Mr. Woods stated that when he filled out the application form, he listed three dealers and does not know why New Tecumseh was left out. He stated that he finally spoke to Julia at O.M.V.I.C. when he rushed over after having telephoned and left messages many times without a reply. The Applicant complained that O.M.V.I.C. was taking pictures of him and "stalking" him. He found this out when the investigators came into the dealership and said "you guys are in big trouble now" and showed photos of him talking to customers at the dealership. As result of this, he was given a Provincial Offences Act summons under the Act. Mr. Woods testified that he thought that it was "ridiculous" that he would be charged for selling a used car.

The Applicant was upset that he had not received any notification advising him that his license had lapsed and he thought it was "redundant" to have to fill out the form as O.M.V.I.C. already knew his work history and had the information already. Mr. Woods further stated that any person who wouldn't have realized that he worked at New Tecumseh is "retarded" as they already had the records. He also explained that it was redundant because he had probably sold more cars than anyone in Canada. In his opinion he stated that what was important was that he did his job well and his customers were satisfied.

Mr. Woods stated that he did not know that his driver's license was under suspension and said that there has been a court order that he could drive if he was in the presence of his wife, but he did not give particulars of when that occurred. At the time of his suspensions for unpaid fines he stated that he was not living at his own address and the letter had not reached him.

On the issue of the most recent bankruptcy he explained that the $30,000 owing to his prior employer New Tecumseh was a loan and did not involve any dishonest behaviour. To his knowledge, the dealership was now closed in any event.

The Applicant explained that his lawyer had told him that some charges would be dropped on a plea bargain, so he did not think it was necessary to include them in the application form. He then said that Julia at O.M.V.I.C. misled him as she told him it wasn't really necessary as they would do a C.P.I.C. record search in any event. Since they would get the information anyway he thought it was silly, however he did not specify which of these reasons was supposed to have been the determining one.

Mr. Woods explained that his conviction and sentence for the Dangerous Driving Causing Bodily Harm and Criminal Harassment charges were under appeal, despite the fact he pleaded guilty. Initially he said he had "bail pending appeal" but on further inquiry by the Tribunal it became apparent that there has simply been an application for "bail pending appeal" but it had yet to be heard. On the issue of this appeal, he stated that representatives of Transport Canada had attended at Evans Lincoln Mercury to do an investigation concerning the vehicle in the accident, and that someone else would come to justice for it.

Mr. Woods again stated that he was able to sell a lot of vehicle and estimated that over his career he had sold 12,000. He took issue with the concept of anyone determining the probability of future conduct by looking at past conduct and wrote it off as pure speculation. He stated that if we want to do a "witch hunt" like that;

"everyone in this room should go home and lock themselves up because they could be hit by a car tomorrow"

He also stated that O.M.V.I.C wouldn't be around long and attacked the application form which warned that if the part in which former employers were to be listed was incomplete, it would result in the application being returned as deficient. On this basis he felt that the form should have been returned to him so that he could try again and that O.M.V.I.C. had a record of all his employers anyway so it didn't matter.

He explained that in his opinion Evans Lincoln Mercury has sold about 55,000 cars, so if Evans says he is okay, then he is okay. In addition, he claimed that his prior business conduct was impeccable.

Mr. Woods stated that he does not own a home and he lives rent free. His wife is self employed and employs 19 other persons.

He could not understand why the Tribunal was concerned about his bankruptcy as there are 45,000 other people in Toronto who have filed for bankruptcy but they are not at the Tribunal being told they cannot work. In his opinion, personal finances are totally irrelevant. It is however more important in his opinion that there is a 98% customer satisfaction rate in the industry. While he was working selling used cars he was able to earn between $50,000.00 and $250,000 per year, and had been given a car to drive by the dealers.

Since the accident he has been seeing a counsellor and doing "damage control" with counselling for "life adjustment" and "life management"

The witness explained that he did not see a financial risk as most dealers do not handle money and a cash deposits are taken by a manager so there is complete supervision.

Mr. Woods again went into the issue of customer satisfaction and said that Evans Lincoln Mercury is now a "Blue Oval dealership" with Ford and must maintain a 100% customer satisfaction ranking, an implied that this should make a difference.

He explained that when Mr. Don McAndrew came in from O.M.V.I.C. and he found that his license was not in good standing he stopped selling cars immediately and notified O.M.V.I.C.

In cross examination, Mr. Woods stated that he did not know that he would get a certificate in the mail upon renewal, and initially did not remember there being a certificate. He explained that when the O.M.V.I.C. representative came to the dealership and told him that he was not registered, he went in the same day. When he was asked about the February 6, 2002 signature date on the application form (Exhibit 3 Tab 3) he said that he was not sure if he dated it the same day that he signed it, and that he may have back dated it. He agreed that Mr. Mike Rietta the dealer representative signed the document and dated it February 6, 2002 and there was warning that the dealer was not to sign the application until it has been completed and signed by the Applicant. When he was asked if he remembered someone attending at the dealership to discuss cars and receiving a card from him dated February 21, 2002, he stated that he was not sure of the date, but did identify his card and the information written on it (Exhibit 3 Tab 7). He also agreed that he was found guilty of the offence under the Act of selling motor vehicles without registration. He stated that he was fined $150, and proceeded to comment that it was not a big deal as someone else in court was told the fine was $250 for failing to clean up after their dog. He testified that in his opinion:

"It is not relevant. If your dog crapping on a lawn is worth $250 and this is worth half of that, it is only half as important and is not a big deal"

When he was asked about why did not mention in the application form that he had been out of work for a year due to his injuries he stated that he went over it quickly before filling it in. When he was asked if he thought the form was important, he said no; that it was petty, silly, and that it was childish that so much should depend on pieces of paper.

Mr. Woods agreed that on the sale of a car it was important to make full disclosure and stated that in his opinion someone buying a car was more important than the application form for the license. He repeated that he knew that there would be a Criminal record check and O.M.V.I.C. would find out about the charges but again denied that his license had been suspended as often as the paperwork said. The Applicant further denied that his license was suspended as a result of the accident and claimed that he had a stroke on April 18, 2001, before the accident on April 21, 2001.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The facts found by the Tribunal are that:

The applicant was involved in accident of on April 21, 2001 and was charged with Dangerous Driving causing Bodily Harm, Impaired Driving, Causing Bodily Harm, and that between April 11, 2001 and April 21, 2001 he committed the offence of Criminal Harassment of the same person. He was also charged on April 21 2001 with the offences of Criminal Negligence Causing Bodily Harm and Fail to Remain.

The charges were resolved by way of a guilty plea to Dangerous Driving Causing Bodily Harm and Criminal Harassment on Jan. 14, 2002 with sentence being passed on June 28, 2002 at which time he received a total of nine months in custody with three years probation, a three-year driving prohibition and a five-year firearms prohibition. The other charges were withdrawn by the Crown. The conviction and sentence are currently under appeal.

The Applicant was charged that on February 21, 2002 he acted as a salesperson when he was not registered contrary to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. On April 12, 2002 he pleaded guilty and was fined $150.

On February 6, 2002 he filled in the application for his motor vehicle sales person's license and only listed the pending criminal charges of Impaired Driving and Dangerous Driving. He also failed to list New Tecumseh Motor Products Inc. when he listed his place of employment within the last three years. The Applicant failed to correctly state that his license was suspended at the time of the application, and has had a history of repeated license suspensions and has been called in for interviews by the Ministry of Transportation.

The Applicant has been bankrupt twice but did correctly report this on his application form and provided supporting documentation which showed that he had owed $100,000 to Revenue Canada, $30,000 to a former employer, and $3500 in arrears of child support, together with debts to commercial lenders.

The Applicant is welcome to return to Evans Ford Lincoln Inc. to take a position as a salesperson if he receives registration

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Act provides that the Registrar may revoke or refuse the registration of the Applicant where the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct

In this case the Applicant blaming someone else for each deficiency, in filling in the application form. Leaving out some of the pending charges was alternatively either the fault of the O.M.V.I.C. receptionist who misled him by saying it wasn't important and they would get a C.P.I.C printout, or the fault of his lawyer for telling him that some charges would be dropped.

Aside from the normal concerns raised when there is a criminal record there is an additional question in this case, as the individual who suffered the bodily harm in the accident was also the same person who was the complainant in the harassment charge.

There was no evidence around this issue and this Tribunal draws no conclusions from it, and in the absence of any such evidence treats these facts as unrelated and neutral.

In his evidence, he also claimed that the accident was someone else's fault as Transport Canada is investigating something to do with the vehicle and someone else will be brought to justice for it. In addition the lawyer must be at fault for the guilty plea as he is now appealing conviction and sentence. This means that he is claiming to have pleaded guilty when he should never have done so. When a defendant has a lawyer acting for him and there has been a guilty plea, he must prove that he was misled by bad legal advice and was pressured into pleading guilty and did not do so voluntarily.

The Applicant did not think the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act charge was significant, and said it was less important at the Provincial Offences Court than a charge involving "letting a dog crap on someone's property". He failed to appreciate the significance of an offence under the governing legislation, and completely trivialized his behaviour.

He was contemptuous of O.M.V.I.C. and said they wouldn't be around very long and clearly did not think the application form was of any real significance.

Mr. Woods repeatedly dismissed the Tribunal hearing as simply being about pieces of paper as if it was not relevant. This was completely consistent with his repeatedly expressed belief that the real test was the ability of a person to sell cars and that the only real determination would be made by the motor vehicle dealers.

The Applicant denied receiving any notices of license suspensions. According to the record obtained from the Ministry, the last unpaid fine was from a Court Ordered. It is interesting to note however that when he was charged with the on April 21, 2001 driving offences and there is no indication of a charge of driving while suspended under the Highway Traffic Act.

Mr. Woods implied that the real test of honesty and integrity was customer satisfaction and dealers satisfaction implying that the dealers should individually monitor themselves and their salespersons. He said that there was there was a 99% customer satisfaction rate in the industry thereby implying that regulation was not necessary in the industry. The Applicant also attacked the idea of whether any form of process was appropriate to determine risks of future behaviour, and said that on the basis of speculation, everyone in the room could lock themselves in their room and be afraid of being hit by a car tomorrow. Given his opinion of the process and the entire concept of industry regulation, the Applicant did not present at this time as someone who would be controllable by any rules imposed if he did not agree with them. He appeared totally focused on simply moving product.

Whether or not the Applicant provided correct information in the application document is a crucial matter in assessing the honesty of an Applicant, as this information is clearly intended to be relied upon by the Registrar. If any information is intentionally concealed, or if false information is given, the Registrar has good reason to have serious concerns that the Applicant will withhold information or provide false information in the future in his dealings with the public or with the Registrar. A motor vehicle dealer or salesperson deals with members of the public who are purchasing or selling products of substantial value, and are depended upon not to misrepresent to value or quality of the vehicles. By withholding or falsifying information they are in a position to take advantage of a vulnerable consumer, and the public must have confidence that the dealer or salesperson will not put their own personal interests ahead of their responsibility to conduct business with honesty and integrity. The Tribunal finds that in this case relevant information was concealed, false information was intentionally provided, and the Tribunal draws an inference that this very recent dishonest behaviour demonstrates a continuation of a pattern of behaviour, which in addition to the past conduct that was concealed, provides reasonable grounds to believe that there would be future behaviour which does not meet the statutory standard of acting with honesty, and integrity and specifically the test of acting in accordance with the law.

The other legal issue in this case is whether having regard to the financial position of the Applicant's it can reasonably be expected that the applicant will be financially responsible in the conduct of the business. The Tribunal finds the applicant's two bankruptcies in combination with the previously mentioned conduct raises serious concern that the Applicant could be can reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of the business.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity honesty and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Licence Registration Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicant.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "Proposal") by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to Section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal, dated May 8, 2002, seeks to refuse the registration of Krikor Samulian (the "Applicant") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the refusal of the Applicant's registration. The reasons stated are as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Krikor Samulian under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows:

1. Krikor Samulian applied for registration as a salesperson on or about April 22, 2002.

2. On the application for registration submitted to the Registrar the applicant disclosed that there were no charges pending and that he had the following convictions:
 - Suspension of fines - unpaid on time
 - Threatening
 - Violation of prob. Undertaking
 - Assault.
3. The applicant further disclosed that his driver's licence was suspended for unpaid fines and that his salesperson registration was revoked.
4. A criminal record check of the applicant was conducted by the Registrar which revealed the following convictions:
 - March 5, 1974 - Threatening
 - May 9, 1984 - Fail to Appear
 - Drive while ability impaired
 - Refuse to provide breath sample
 - June 21, 1984 -Threatening
 - September 22, 1993 - Fail to comply with recognizance
 - Watch and beset
 - June 29, 2000 - Assault (spousal)
 - November 2, 2000 - Fail to comply with undertaking.
5. The criminal record check revealed the following pending charges:
 - Assault and breach of probation.
6. The applicant failed to provide full disclosure on applications submitted to the Registrar.
7. The applicant acted as a salesperson without being registered pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

By written Notice of Appeal dated May 21, 2002 the Applicant delivered notice to the Tribunal in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Act that he required a hearing regarding the Proposal.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 2)

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Louise Gingras and Gordana Radiskovic. The evidence of the Applicant consisted of the oral testimony of the Applicant himself.

LOUISE GINGRAS' TESTIMONY

Louise Gingras ("Gingras") testified that she is an inspector with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") with whom she has been employed for the past 5 years. Her duties include the inspection of dealers to ensure they are in compliance with the Act and its regulations and she also trains new inspectors employed by OMVIC. OMVIC, as she explained, is a non-profit organization mandated to administer the Act and its regulations. The Act is a public protection statute enacted to ensure, among other aspects, compliance by motor vehicle dealers and salespersons with the Act and its regulations.

Gingras explained that Section 5 of the Act entitles applicants to registration except where an applicant's past conduct affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that such applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Gingras stated that she has knowledge of the Applicant's file and the background to this matter.

Currently the Applicant is not registered although he was previously registered as a motor vehicle salesperson in January 1983.

On November 3, 1997 the Applicant applied to the Registrar for a renewal of his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. When applying for renewal the Applicant completed and signed an application form. In that application the Applicant was asked in question 10.

Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are there any charges pending? This includes where a conditional discharge or an absolute discharge has been ordered.

If yes, attach full particulars on a separate signed and dated statement.

Note: Where the applicant has been previously registered, list only those convictions, conditional discharges, absolute discharges or charges which have not been previously disclosed.

The Applicant answered "No" to this question.

The Registrar caused a criminal search to be made concerning the Applicant and called for and obtained a C.P.I.C. report from the police. This C.P.I.C. report revealed that the Applicant did have a criminal record. The Registrar, however, decided to renew the Applicant's registration subject to terms and conditions. Gingras then spoke with the Applicant about his criminal record and the fact that it had not been disclosed by him and advised the Applicant that his registration would be renewed for a further two years subject to terms and conditions. Accordingly, on September 2, 1998 the Applicant signed a document agreeing to the renewal of his registration subject to terms and conditions. Certain of such terms and conditions stated as follows:

- 1) I acknowledge that these terms and conditions will be in effect for two years from the date of my registration as a motor vehicle Salesperson
- 2) I agree, if I am criminally charged in the future, to immediately notify the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealer's Act, in writing of the charges against me.
- 3) I agree, if I am criminally charged in the future to immediately notify my employer of the charges against me...
- 7) I acknowledge that my registration is subject to be revoked if I, in the opinion of the Registrar, breach any of the terms and conditions set out in this document...

Signed this 2 day of September, 1998

(Exhibit 3, tab 5)

On September 18, 1998 the Applicant's registration as a salesperson was renewed for two years terminating on September 17, 2000. Prior to that termination date of September 17, 2000 a renewal application was sent to the Applicant for his completion and signature. On November 6, 2000, an application form signed by the Applicant and bearing the date of signing as September 30, 2000 was received by OMVIC.

Question 1.(a) in Section A of the above application form read:

Are there currently any charges pending or has the applicant ever been found guilty of convicted under any law?

(Exhibit 3, tab 6)

To this question the Applicant answered "yes" but attached no particulars to supplement his answer.

Pursuant to receipt of this renewal application the Registrar issued a Notice of Proposal to Revoke the Applicant's registration as a salesperson. This Proposal was dated March 23, 2001 and alleged that a criminal record search had found the Applicant did have the following convictions:

Threatening, March 5, 1974
Fail to Appear, May 9, 1984
Drive While Ability Impaired, May 9, 1984
Refuse to Provide Breath Sample, May 9, 1984
Threatening, June 21, 1984
Fail to Comply with Recognizance, September 22, 1993
Watch & Beset, September 22, 1993
Fail to Comply with Undertaking, November 2, 2000
Assault, June 29, 2000.

(Exhibit 3 Tab 7)

The Proposal went on to state that the Applicant did answer "Yes" when asked in the application whether there were pending charges or whether the Applicant had ever been found guilty or convicted under any law. However, the Applicant when asked for particulars of pending charges and convictions failed to give such particulars to the Registrar.

The Applicant filed a Notice of Appeal to the Proposal but did not further prosecute the appeal. The Registrar accordingly revoked the Applicant's registration as a salesperson.

Gingras went on to state that despite the Applicant having signed the terms and conditions to which his registration became subject, he failed to disclose an assault conviction registered against him on June 29, 2000 when he was placed upon probation. He also failed to disclose that on November 2, 2000 he was convicted of failing to comply with conditions of undertaking given and was fined $500.00 and put on probation for two years. The non-disclosure to the Registrar of these two convictions was a violation of the terms and conditions signed by the Applicant and was, according to Gingras, evidence of further criminal activity by the Applicant.

Gingras further testified that subsequent to the revocation of the Applicant's registration he once again applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. This application was signed by the Applicant and dated March 14, 2002. and was received by OMVIC on April 22, 2002. Yorkdale Ford Lincoln Sales Limited's office manager Gordana Radiskovic had signed Section G of the application form. The date of the office manager's signing was March 18, 2002.

(Exhibit 3, tab 9)

Question 9 in the March 14, 2002 application reads:

Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending?

The Applicant had answered "Yes" and the following handwritten notation appeared under question 9:

NO CHARGES PENDING
SUSPENSION OF FINES. UNPAID ON TIME.
TREATNING
ASULT.
A SEPARATE LETTER WILL FOLLOW ON ALL ABOVE CONDITIONS.

(sic)

A letter dated April 25, 2002 from the Applicant did follow in which he stated that all his problems were of a domestic nature which lead to his numerous criminal convictions; that he had, in all his years as a salesperson, no complaints registered against him concerning his conduct, that his reputation is "very good" and that he "would like to continue serving the public" as he has done in the past.

(Exhibit 3, tab 10)

Gingras also stated that the Applicant had a conviction for Battery which conviction took place on October 9, 1996 in the Circuit Court, Pinellas County, Florida. The sentence, following a plea of guilty, was one of probation for five years. This conviction has, according to Gingras, never been disclosed to the Registrar in any of the Applicant's applications.

Under cross-examination Gingras stated that the Registrar initially became aware of the Applicant's criminal conviction when OMVIC obtained a C.P.I.C. report containing all convictions up to November 1997. Gingras confirmed that no complaints had been made to OMVIC regarding the Applicant in connection with his business activities or conduct since 1997.

GORDANA RADISKOVIC'S TESTIMONY

Gordana Radiskovic ("Radiskovic") stated in her testimony that she has been employed by Yorkdale Ford Lincoln Sales Limited ("Yorkdale") for the past three and a half years. Her position is that of Office Manager which includes acting as human resource manager. She knows the Applicant who works for Yorkdale.

She recalls that in April 2002 she was requested by the Applicant to sign the "Certificate of Dealer" being Section G to the Applicant's application dated March 14, 2002. The Application had been completed and signed by the Applicant before she obtained the application from the Applicant.

The only handwriting that appeared on the application form under question 9 when she received that form from the Applicant were the handwritten words "No charges pending". There was no other handwriting under these three words when she received the signed and completed form from the Applicant.

Radiskovic went on to state that the normal procedure of Yorkdale is to send to OMVIC all salespersons' completed and signed application forms together with Yorkdale's cheque in favour of OMVIC for the registration fee. This fee is subsequently debited to the salesperson's account.

However, in this instance, Radiskovic stated, this normal procedure was not followed as the Applicant had requested that she give the form and cheque to him after she had completed and signed Section G, being the Certificate of Dealer. The Applicant told Radiskovic that he would personally deliver the form and accompanying cheque to OMVIC. Radiskovic agreed to this request and accordingly handed the completed form and cheque to the Applicant.

Some two or three weeks later Radiskovic called OMVIC to enquire when the Applicant's registration would be received by Yorkdale. She was then informed that there were some criminal charges or convictions against the Applicant and that this was the reason that no registration had been forwarded from OMVIC. She stated that the Applicant had not disclosed his criminal convictions to Yorkdale.

KRIKOR SAMULIAN'S TESTIMONY

The Applicant testified that until 1997 he had experienced no difficulty regarding his renewal of registration applications. He also stated that he has not had a consumer complaint registered against him.

In November 1997 he applied to OMVIC for renewal of his registration. He conceded that in the 1997 application form he did not disclose his prior criminal convictions or pending charges. He also conceded that on September 2, 1998 he signed terms and conditions to which his renewed application became subject.

His application for registration was then renewed for two years subject to the terms and conditions he had signed. When on September 17, 2000 he had not applied for renewal of registration, his registration lapsed.

By written application dated September 30, 2000 he applied for reinstatement of his registration as a salesperson and in answering the question in that application as to whether or not he had ever been found guilty or convicted under any law or had any charges pending he answered "Yes" but did not give any further particulars.

This application was refused by the Registrar who on March 23, 2001 issued a Notice of Proposal to Revoke the Applicant's registration. The Applicant filed a Notice of Appeal to the Proposal but upon learning the Notice had been filed and served beyond the permissible time for filing he did not proceed with his appeal and the Registrar revoked his registration.

By further written application dated March 14, 2002 he applied for registration as a salesperson which application was refused by the Registrar. He was then working for Yorkdale Ford Lincoln Limited ("Yorkdale") and it was the latter who forwarded his application for registration to OMVIC together with Yorkdale's cheque for the registration fee. He also stated that when he signed that application he had already completed question 9 and that in addition to having written in the words "no charges pending" he had also written in the words

Threatening
Violation of Prob. undertaking Assault (sic)

A separate letter will follow on all above conditions"

This letter dated April 25, 2002 did follow and was faxed to OMVIC. The Applicant contended that all his convictions related to domestic disputes and were not industry related.

(Exhibit 3, tab 10)

Under cross examination the Applicant confirmed the correctness of the C.P.I.C. report of April 25, 2002 as to his criminal convictions from March 1974 to November 2, 2002 as well as pending criminal charges. He also confirmed that he had been convicted on October 9, 1996 in the Circuit Court, Pinellas County, Florida on a charge of Battery and had a restitution order in the sum of $62,000 (U.S.) made against him by that court when he was placed on probation for five years. He conceded that he had failed to comply with the terms and conditions he had signed in that he had not notified the Registrar of criminal charges laid against him subsequent to the signing of terms and conditions. The Applicant went on to state that he has not been working as a salesperson since his registration lapsed. Although he was and still is working at Yorkdale, he is employed there as a trainer of salespersons. Prior to working for Yorkdale he worked for Venture Ford and when it ceased operations in October 2001 he continued there in an administrative capacity.

Shown four separate bills of sale entered in between Venture Ford and four purchasers of motor vehicles, all dated during January and February 2001, the Applicant denied that the signature that appeared on those documents under "Vendor's Acceptance" was his signature.

He testified further under cross examination that while employed not in a sales person position but in the position as a trainer of salespersons, all salespersons come to him with proposed sales transactions as he has to confirm all such transactions. He stated that he is paid "a percentage of salesperson's commissions" which statement, under later questioning, he changed to "I get a flat fee for every transaction of $30.00 or $40.00 or $70.00 depending on the transaction." He conceded under cross examination that he "never disclosed his 2002 pending charges" to the Registrar as required by the terms and conditions signed by him. He also conceded that he never disclosed the 1996 Florida conviction as it was "an out of country conviction and not related to business". The restitution order made against him for payment of $62,000.00 (U.S.) was for damages he caused to furniture that belonged to the victim in connection with the Florida Battery charge.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The Tribunal finds the following facts to have been proven:

1. The Applicant was first registered as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act on January 22, 1983.
2. The Applicant made written application for renewal of his registration, which application was received by OMVIC on September 17, 1998.
3. The Applicant denied in the aforesaid application that he had ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or that there were any charges pending.
4. As at September 17, 1998 the Applicant had the following convictions registered against him:

(a) Failed to appear	May 1984
(b) Drive while ability impaired	May 1984
(c) Refuse to provide breath sample	May 1984
(d) Threatening, Section 331(1)(A) C.C.	June 1984
(e) Failed to comply with recognizance	September 1993
(f) Watch and beset	September 1993
(g) Battery	October 1996

5. The Applicant signed terms and conditions on September 2, 1998 undertaking to immediately notify the Registrar if the Applicant was criminally charged in the future.
6. The Applicant's registration was renewed by the Registrar for a period of two years from September 18, 1998, subject to the terms and conditions of September 2, 1998.
7. The Applicant's registration lapsed on September 17, 2000 and on November 6, 2000 the Registrar received an application for the renewal of the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.
8. In the aforesaid application received by the Registrar on November 6, 2000 the Applicant disclosed that he had previous convictions but despite being asked gave no details to the Registrar of his past convictions. The Applicant did not disclose further additional convictions against him for assault and failing to comply with conditions of undertaking on June 29, 2000 and November 2, 2000 respectively.
9. The Applicant's application for renewal of his registration was refused by the Registrar and his registration was revoked pursuant to a Notice of Proposal to Revoke issued by the Registrar.
10. The Applicant by written application dated March 14, 2002 and received by the Registrar on April 22, 2002 applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.
11. The Applicant failed to disclose in his March 14, 2002 application, his 1996 Florida conviction for Battery.
12. At the time the Applicant submitted his signed and completed March 14, 2002 application form to his employer for his employer's signature and the completion of "Section G: Certificate of Dealer" he had only disclosed in answer to question 9 of that application the words "No charges pending."
13. The aforesaid March 14, 2002 application form, after signature by his employer's representative of Section G therein, was given by the Applicant's employer to the Applicant together with his employer's cheque for the Applicant's registration fee. Subsequent to the return of the application form to the Applicant by his employer, the Applicant attended to the delivery of that form and cheque to OMVIC.

14. The Applicant after the lapsing on September 17, 2000 of his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson, did act as a salesperson of motor vehicles.

THE LAW

Section 3 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

(1) No person shall,

- (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or
- (b) act as a salesperson of or on behalf of a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered as a salesperson of such dealer and such dealer is registered as a motor vehicle dealer under this Act

Section 5 of the Act, states as follows;

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or
- (c) the applicant is a corporation and
 - (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or
 - (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
- (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

(2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

There are the following issues for consideration by the Tribunal.

1. Do the various criminal convictions registered against the Applicant afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty?
2. Has the Applicant failed to make disclosure of material facts in his various applications and if so does such non disclosure afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty?
3. Has the Applicant acted as an unregistered salesperson of motor vehicles contrary to the Act and if so does that afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty?

The Registrar's belief is at issue in these proceedings, not the belief of this Tribunal. In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) Southey J. held that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if the Tribunal thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding the past conduct of an applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. In the Brenner decision, Southey J. stated that:

"... To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act and its Regulations. This was confirmed by Divisional Court in the matter of Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050 where that court on appeal quashed the Tribunal's decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his proposal and in sending the matter back for re-hearing stated at page 1051.

It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

The function of this Tribunal is therefore to review the Registrar's decision and in so doing to determine whether or not he was in error in coming to his decision. This, therefore, is a review of the Registrar's decision on the pertinent issues in this matter.

Issue 1 - The Applicant's Criminal Convictions

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has many criminal convictions that have been noted in this decision. Such convictions span the period May 1974 to November 2000. While the convictions are not industry related they do relate to the Applicant's ongoing inability to behave in a lawful manner and to conduct himself within the parameters of a lawful and ordered society. The Applicant has consistently thumbed his nose at the laws in place so as to ensure a safe and conducive environment for all. He has been found guilty and convicted of making threats not only once but twice. He has failed to appear before court, failed and refused to provide a breath sample, failed to comply with recognizance and failed to comply with conditions of undertaking given. All these convictions indicate a person who refuses to comply with and live with the norms of a law abiding society. In short a person who is prepared to act outside of the law. His assault convictions, both here and in the United States, coupled with convictions for threatening, and watch and beset, show that he easily resorts to violence and intimidation. Even though the convictions are not industry related this Tribunal believes that the Applicant's past conduct does afford the Registrar with reasonable grounds for his belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law.

Issue 2 - Failure to make disclosure

The Tribunal finds that there are repeated incidents of non-disclosure or partial disclosure by the Applicant in his various applications. An examination of these non or partial disclosures reveals the following:

(a) Non disclosure on Applicant's November 1997 application

The Applicant admitted, as did his Counsel, that in answering "no" to question 10 in this application there was non-disclosure of his past criminal conduct. Not only was this non-disclosure, but the non disclosure was dishonest, and of a material nature. The Registrar, as he was entitled to do, relied on the Applicant's presumed basic integrity and honesty in truthfully and fully answering this question. The Applicant's conduct in falsely answering this question indicates that the Registrar's presumptions as to honesty and integrity of the Applicant were misplaced and the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's failure to disclose his convictions was done in order to mislead the Registrar. The Registrar had no C.P.I.C. report at that time. When the Registrar did obtain the C.P.I.C. report, after reviewing the Applicant's answers, he noted that between 1974 and 1993 there were some seven criminal convictions against the Applicant all of which the Applicant had not disclosed to the Registrar.

(b) Non or partial disclosure in September 2000 application

Despite the Registrar registering the Applicant on terms and conditions after the Applicant's failure to disclose in his 1997 application, the Applicant again in his September 2000 application fails to make full and true disclosure. The Applicant does not reveal his 1996 Florida conviction and only when confronted with this disclosure offers the spurious excuse that it was not disclosed because it was an "out of the country" conviction. In addition the Applicant failed in this 2000 application to disclose his June 19, 2000 conviction for assault and failed to disclose the pending charge of failing to comply with an undertaking. Not only did the Applicant fail to disclose these facts and thereby show his lack of honesty and integrity but he added insult to injury by failing to comply with the then signed terms and conditions to advise the Registrar.

(c) Non disclosure in Applicant's March 2002 application

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant once again attempted to mislead the Registrar and the Applicant's employer. The Tribunal finds that in the answer to question 9 on the application the only words that were handwritten under that question when the Applicant signed and handed the application to Radiskovic for her signature, were the words 'no charges pending'. The Tribunal further finds that after Radiskovic handed back the application duly signed by her, the Applicant added in the additional handwritten information in question 9 under the words "no charges pending".

The Tribunal accepts the testimony of Radiskovic and finds it to be more credible than that of the Applicant. The Applicant, in not disclosing to his employer the fact of his convictions was done so as to protect his continued employment with Yorkdale. This non disclosure was contrary to the terms of the signed terms and conditions which required the Applicant to inform his employer of his convictions. The Applicant's conduct reflects a lack of honesty and integrity and is supportive of the Registrar's decision.

Issue 3 - Acting as an unregistered salesperson

The Tribunal finds the Applicant, after his salesperson's licence lapsed, did act as an unregistered motor vehicle sales person. Section 3.1)(b) required the Applicant to be registered to a motor vehicle dealer and the Tribunal would have imagined that the Applicant knew of this requirement having regard to the length of time he was a registered salesperson under the Act. The Applicant's own evidence indicates he was more than a trainer of salespersons at both Venture Fort Lincoln Limited and Yorkdale. His evidence was salespersons came to him for confirmation of sales transactions and that he was paid a percentage of the salesperson's sales commission. He then changed his evidence and contended he was paid a fixed amount depending on the type of sale transaction that was concluded with a purchaser. The above is, although not conclusive evidence of the Applicant being a salesperson, certainly indicative of a relationship of salesperson and dealer being in existence. In addition to the foregoing, exhibits 8, 9, 10 and 11 being 4 copies of signed bills of sale between Venture Ford Sales Ltd. and various purchasers during January and February 2001 (after the Applicant's registration had lapsed) show signatures purporting to be that of the Applicant and immediately above such signature the printed words "Sam Samulian MGR". "Sam" is the forename also used by the Applicant and by which forename he goes.

The Applicant when presented with the above four bills of sale by the Registrar's Counsel denied that the signatures appearing under his name were in fact his. On balance, the Tribunal finds that, while it is by no means certain that the signatures appearing on the bills of sale are in fact his, the Tribunal is not able to say that the Registrar was incorrect in concluding that the Applicant did act as a salesperson while not registered.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated May 8, 2002, to refuse the registration of Krikor Samulian as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,
unrepresented

DATE OF
HEARING: August 19, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

1. Notice of Suspension of the Applicant's licence dated February 28, 2002-08.
2. Notice of Appeal from the Applicant, received at the Ministry July 22, 2002-08.
3. Medical Advisory Committee report dated July 16, 2002.
4. Respondent's File Summary received at the Hearing

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 61 year-old truck driver who had his Class A driver's licence suspended on February 28, 2002, after the Ministry received a letter on January 4, 2002 from Physician #1, the Applicant's family physician. Physician #1 informed the Ministry that the Applicant had suffered an episode of confusion, twitching of fingers and memory loss for approximately 1/2 hour and that he was not fit to drive. Physician #1 had made an appointment for the Applicant to see Physician #2, a neurologist.

The above noted episode occurred on December 22, 2001 and was observed by the Applicant's wife. The episode settled down and then recurred. His wife called 911 and the Paramedics wanted to take the Applicant to a hospital, but he refused. His son arrived home and he agreed to go with him.

The Applicant was given a thorough examination, had extensive blood work taken, a CT scan, an EEG and all were reported normal.

The Applicant related two other episodes. One occurred August 7, 2001 while driving to work. He was involved in a minor accident and taken to a hospital. He has no recollection of what happened, but was told his car crossed back and forth over two lanes and then side swiped another car.

The other one was six years ago when the Applicant woke up disorientated. This episode was quite prolonged and he was eventually taken to a hospital, but no other details are available.

The only neurological problem really diagnosed is sleep apnea, based on snoring, poor sleep and daytime somnolence. He had a sleep evaluation on January 9, 2002 by Physician #3. Obstructive sleep apnea was confirmed by polysomnography. This disorder was responsive to positive airway pressure and so he was started on a CPAP machine. This eliminated the apnea symptoms and he no longer experiences problems with excessive daytime sleepiness. His quality of sleep is also much better.

Physician #2 did a neurological assessment on the Applicant, January 23, 2002. He noted that the Applicant has been hypertensive for eight to ten years and takes Zestrin daily. Other than obesity he could not find any neurological problems.

The most likely diagnosis is recurrent partial seizures with one possible episode of secondary generalization, but there was no absolute evidence of it. He ordered a MRI.

On receipt of Physician #2's report the Ministry suspended the Applicant's drivers licence.

Physician #2 reassessed the Applicant on April 18, 2002 and determined there had been no more neurological episodes, his neurological examination was again negative and his MRI was normal. He noted the Applicant's sleep apnea was much improved with the CPAC machine. He was unsure whether there was any association between the sleep apnea and his unusual spells.

The MAC Case Study on June 12, 2002, stated-

"Remain suspended, downgrade to Class G, reconsider with a detailed neuro.assessment, which confirms he has remained free of any episodes of seizures for a period of one year."

MAC agreed with Physician #2's diagnosis, but believed his sleep apnea diagnosis is independent of his seizure diagnosis.

Physician #2 examined the Applicant again on July 10, 2002 and found him perfectly stable from a neurological point of view.

MAC did another case study on August 18, 2002 and stated the following-

"Remain suspended. As previously indicated will consider for a Class G licence with a detailed neurological assessment confirming that he has remained seizure / episode free for one year".

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or

- (c) a CVOR certificate,
- on the grounds of,
- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

When the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles received the letter from Physician #1 on January 4, 2002, advising her that the Applicant had an episode of confusion, twitching of fingers and memory loss for ½ hour, she had no option, but to suspend his licence under Reg.340/94 Section 14(a) and Section 47(1)(f).

The Applicant has a chronic problem that has recurred 4 times in a 6-year period. It appears to be a type of unusual seizure, but a definite diagnosis has not yet been made. The Applicant has had several neurological examinations and every neurological test available and all have been reported normal.

Since starting on the CPAP machine the Applicant's sleep apnea has been reduced, his blood pressure is normal, his energy level is better and he has no complaints at all.

Physician #2 is not sure whether or not there is an association between the sleep apnea and these unusual spells and does not want to do anything else with him.

The Tribunal's main concern is that a definite diagnosis has not been made. The Applicant has been experiencing seizures of some type that render him helpless for a significant period of time. The MVA he was involved in, a year ago, was most likely a result of one of these episodes. The Tribunal agrees with the MAC that it is a little early to return his licence considering he had two back to back "seizures" in December, 2001. If he remains seizure free for another 4 months he should be given strong consideration, since the recommended period of suspension is 12 months, in The National Code for Motor Carriers.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 10, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KYLE BIEL
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant, unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: August 21, 2002

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

1. Notice of suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence dated May 23, 2001.
2. Notice of Appeal from the Applicant received at the Tribunal July 27, 2002.
3. Consultation Report from Physician #1 dated 06/05/2002.
4. Respondent's File Summary received at the Hearing.

FACTS:

The Applicant is an 82 year-old retired construction worker, who had his driver's licence suspended on May 23, 2001, after the Ministry received a Medical Condition Report from Physician #2, an intern or resident at St. Joseph's Healthcare Centre. The letter stated he had assessed the Applicant on May 3, 2001 at the Centre's "Health for Older Adult's" program.

Physician #2 had diagnosed the Applicant to have psychotic symptoms and physical symptoms that may impair his judgement and put him at risk while driving. He recommended that the Applicant have his driving status re-evaluated.

On June 4, 2001 the Ministry received a letter from Physician #3, co-medical Director of the Health for Older Adults Program. Physician #3 relates that the Applicant was seen because of a request for consultation on an urgent basis. The Applicant was apparently exhibiting increasingly agitated and volatile behaviour. She states that at the initial consultation it was clear he was suffering from paranoid delusions and in addition, some defects in frontal lobe function were noted. These were marked lack of insight, impairment of judgement, poor impulse control and from history, a history of personality change. He had some difficulty with tasks related to frontal lobe function such as word generation. There were further examples of history of significant lapses in judgement that were uncharacteristic. She went on to say it was this clinical picture associated with the fact that he had been involved in two MVAs in the past two years and his extremely volatile impulsive behaviour, which leads to concerns about driving. She states that, as physicians are required to do by law, she is notifying the Ministry of their concerns.

Physician #3 states that the Applicant's volatile agitated behaviour has improved on Olanzapine and he has been co-operative and compliant taking his medicine and attending appointments. She recommends several more weeks of treatment before being reassessed and a formal driving assessment at Chedoke Hospital.

This is very damaging evidence from Physician #3, but must be questioned. The Applicant, in a Request for Personal Information to the Driver Improvement Office, received June 28, 2001, states Physician #3 has yet to talk to him or give him any type of test related to his health. In evidence in the Appeal, his daughter, who was with him at both examinations by Physician #2, verified Physician #3 had never examined her father. If this is true, Physician #3 obtained all of her information from an intern or resident, who apparently did not have a licence to practice at the time. The Applicant said that Physician #2 told him he was writing a test the following week to become a psychologist and receive his licence.

Physician #2 also told the Applicant that he had early Parkinson's Disease. The Applicant informed Physician #2 that he had been seeing Physician #4, a neurologist for over a year and she had never mentioned Parkinson's. He said that Physician #2 had apologized to him twice after that discussion.

In a letter dated July 4, 2001, the Applicant's chiropractor provided information regarding the MVA on December 3, 2000. While driving on the New York Thruway a deer ran into the side of the Applicant's car, up on the hood and into the windshield. The Applicant maintained control of the car and came to a stop.

On June 18, 2001, Physician #3 wrote a letter to the Applicant's family physician, Physician #5, which was apparently forwarded to the Ministry. This letter reiterates what was in her letter of June 4, 2001, but also includes a lot of additional information. The Applicant has refused follow-up at the clinic, so is being de-enrolled. She states that at the first assessment, they noted he was on a host of psychotropic medications including 3 antidepressants and 2 benzodiazepines. She states that he had stopped taking the Olanzapine and has become volatile and belligerent to their staff and had threatened to beat up Physician #2. The Applicant and his wife and daughter denied these accusations.

Physician #4 wrote to the Ministry on December 12, 2001 with details of his treatment of chronic complaints of pain affecting the neck, head and thoraco lumbar spine as a result of his MVA. She indicated the Applicant had some features of agitation and anxiety in part associated with his pain and other causes especially at losing his driver's licence. She recommends a formal driving assessment in order to properly validate his driving capabilities.

At the outset of the Appeal the Applicant introduced a Psychiatric Consultation Report (Exhibit #3), dated May 6, 2002, from Physician #1 and Physician #6. These doctors state— in terms of mental status examination the Applicant appeared well groomed and made good eye contact. He was occasionally irritated by some of the questions pertaining to the relationship between he and his wife. However he exhibited no other or inappropriate anger. His affect was full range. His thought process appeared normal. His thought content showed no evidence of delusion.

The Applicant is orientated to date, has an excellent grasp of current events and can recall good detail around these as well.

There was no evidence of frontal lobe disease during the interview and the Applicant indicates there are no problems or concerns at this time.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, after receiving Physician #2's Medical Condition Report dated May 3, 2001. After the suspension the Ministry received a letter from Physician #3, which contained much more information regarding the Applicant's mental and medical status that she had apparently detected in her examination. This letter was signed by Physician #3 and there is no mention that Physician #2 recorded these findings in his examination of the Applicant. The Applicant states in two letters and in evidence that he never met Physician #3 and she certainly did not examine him. Physician #2 was an intern or resident at St. Joseph's.

The Applicant was totally in control at the Hearing and did not display any signs of agitation or volatile behaviour. The Respondent repeatedly asked him some difficult questions to test him, but he answered them without any display of emotion. He admitted he was very upset about losing his licence, especially when a doctor whom he had never met, played such a big role.

The Applicant denied being abusive with any of the staff at St. Joseph's or anyone else. His daughter said that he was a "hotheaded" Italian and could get upset, but not violent. He admitted he was very agitated about his wife having a possible affair with a friend of his, but this matter was not discussed at any length, because it did not have anything to do with his driving abilities.

Physician #3 made mention in her two letters that the Applicant had two MVAs in the previous two years. The first accident occurred when a deer ran into the side of his car on the New York Thruway. He could hardly be blamed for that accident. He had some responsibility in the second accident, but apparently the other driver could have changed lanes or braked before he "T boned" the Applicant's car.

The Tribunal's observations with regard to the Applicant's demeanour and actions are in total agreement with those of Physician #1 in his letter of May 6, 2002 (Exhibit#3). There was no evidence of any psychiatric or neurological problems including Parkinson's Disease.

The Tribunal did not find sufficient evidence to justify continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1), however considering the length of time the Applicant's driver's licence has been suspended and the circumstances, the Tribunal believes a formal driving examination should be arranged.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 2, 2001 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that, contingent on the Applicant successfully completing a formal driving examination, but not including a medical assessment, the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: August 16, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: August 27, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 16 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Leopoldo Resurreccion (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: 2002 Chrysler Neon, plate AMWL 969 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: July 30, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 16, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Date:07/30/20002

To Whom It May Concern:

Regretting my decision to drive without a license I am writing to express my concerns. I was foolishly driving without a license as I was under duress to care for my seriously ill mother.

On reflecting my situation I realize I need to rely on my brother-in-laws offer to drive me to the appointments I need to attend and maintain my mothers hospital and clinical care. I would like to retrieve my vehicle from impoundment so that my brother-in-law can use it for our transportation needs. I have a letter from our Doctor confirming the need to have a vehicle. I hope this request is sufficient, thanking you in advance.

The Applicant testified that his mother had recently had a pace-maker put in and that he was using the car to get her medication when he was stopped. He knew that he should not be driving.

He wanted to get his car back so that it would be available in the event of an emergency. His place of employment was only fifteen minutes away from his home, and he was able to get there quite easily by public transit. The Doctor's Office was also only fifteen minutes away.

Mr. Resurreccion further stated that he owned another automobile, which was presently being used by his nephew. There was also another vehicle on the premises. This one was owned by his father-in law, and although he would not borrow it in normal circumstances, he was certain that he would get it in an emergency. He also had the assistance of friends such as Mr. Cirone.

He would not be the person driving in any event. His sister and brother-in-law were visiting his sick mother, and his brother-in-law would drive the vehicle in an emergency.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Leopoldo V. Resurreccion;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 5, 2002.

The Respondent pointed out that the applicant had based his appeal of Exceptional Hardship, on Ontario Regulation 632/98. Not having access to his automobile in the event of an emergency would pose an immediate threat to anyone ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle. In this case, his sick mother. However he had testified that there were alternative vehicles available.

He could have his nephew return the car he was using. He had access to his father-in law's automobile, and his friends had expressed their willingness to help. Lastly, he could do what any person in the community without access to a car would do. Call 911.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to issue filed, the evidence established that the appellant had access to more than one alternative vehicle.

Ontario Regulation 632/98 Amending Reg.574 of R.R.O. 1990, Section 22(1) (a), states that "in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in... a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle..."

In considering this appeal the Tribunal notes that Mr. Resurreccion's mother has a heart condition and that she should have immediate access to an automobile in an emergency. Although her son has more confidence in the new 2002 Neon than the car being used by his nephew, he has not demonstrated that the alternate vehicle is not dependable. The Tribunal finds that there are other automobiles available, and that an ambulance can be called if there is no car available.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION RELEASED: August 27, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 16, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Dwayne Morgan o/a Prestegous Millenium Rentals of Toronto
(the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: 1988 BMW 735, plate no. ANEB 823 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: July 31, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 16, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties, but the Tribunal noted that the applicant had misinterpreted the law in his written submission.

He stated that, "due to exceptional financial hardship the Driver's License of the Driver was under suspension which resulted in the impoundment of the motor vehicle for 45 days. But the owner of the motor vehicle was not the driver with the suspended license.

The law states that the impoundment of the vehicle for 45 days only relates to the owner of the vehicle if his or her license is under suspension, which means the Impoundment of the vehicle for 45 days does not apply in this case."

The Tribunal referred to Section 55.1 (2) of the Highway Traffic Act, and read it to the Applicant.

"Driving while under suspension, Registrar notified: Where a police officer or officer appointed for carrying out the provisions of this act is satisfied that a person was driving a motor vehicle on a highway while his or her driver's license is under suspension under section 41, 42, or 43, even if it under suspension for any other reason, the officer shall,

- (a) notify the Registrar of the fact or cause the Registrar to be notified: and
- (b) detain the motor vehicle that was being driven by the person whose driver's license is under suspension until the Registrar issues an order under subsection (3)."

The Applicant was asked if it was now clear to him why the automobile had been impounded, and he replied in the affirmative.

After conferring with the Respondent it was decided that the Applicant would to be given the opportunity to proceed with the appeal.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

REASONS FOR APPEAL - DUE TO EXCEPTIONAL FINANCIAL HARDSHIP. THE DRIVER'S LICENCE OF THE DRIVER WAS UNDER SUSPENSION WHICH RESULTED IN IMPOUNDMENT OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE FOR 45 DAYS. BUT THE OWNER OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE WAS NOT THE DRIVER WITH THE SUSPENDED LICENCE. THE LAW STATES THAT THE IMPOUNDMENT OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE FOR 45 ONLY RELATES TO THE OWNER OF THE VEHICLE IF HIS OR HER LICENCE IS UNDER SUSPENSION. WHICH MEANS. THE IMPOUNDMENT OF THE VEHICLE FOR 45 DAYS DOES NOT APPLY IN THIS CASE.

- KANE SOUSA

In his testimony, the applicant began by stating that he did not know that his license was under suspension when he was pulled over. He had committed a misdemeanour in Edmonton, had served time, and had paid a fee in February, 2000. On his return to Ontario, he had applied for and obtained a G2 license in April 2001.

He did not have this license with him when he was pulled over, and in fact did not know where it was.

Regarding due diligence. Dwayne Morgan the owner of the vehicle did not ask whether his license was valid before he loaned him the car.

Regarding exceptional hardship. Dwayne Morgan was the sole proprietor of Prestegious Millenium Rentals, but even though he was Dwayne's agent he had no idea how many cars Dwayne Morgan owned. He had no information whatever about either the Company's or Mr. Morgan's finances, and could not provide an explanation as to how the impoundment of the 1988 BMW would cause hardship.

He stated that his relationship with Morgan was a partnership in the music business. Apparently they supplied equipment and canned music to nightclubs. The loss of the automobile made it very difficult to move around the city to attend meetings. He was not able to say why another of Mr. Morgan's cars could not be used, or why one could not be rented.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Kane Sousa;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

The Respondent reaffirmed that the impoundment was proper. Any conversation that Mr. Sousa may have had with the Officer when the automobile was impounded was moot, because it was hearsay.

Mr. Sousa was not able to explain how Mr. Morgan had exercised due diligence. He claimed that he had discussed the subject of the appeal with his client, and that he understood the meaning of the words.

Mr. Sousa had presented no evidence of financial losses. Where was the evidence of exceptional hardship?

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the first issue filed the evidence established the agent for the applicant was not able to establish due diligence.

Section 50.2 (3) (c) of the Highway Traffic Act states that "the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's license of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension."

Mr. Sousa testified that Mr. Morgan never questioned him about his license.

As to second issue filed, the evidence established the agent for the applicant had no knowledge of his client's finances and could therefore not even begin to address the issue of exceptional hardship.

Section 50.2 (3) (d) of the Highway Traffic Act states that "the order will result in exceptional hardship.

Mr. Sousa was not able to address this issue.

The Tribunal finds that Mr. Dwayne Morgan was ill served in this matter. It may have been best if he had attended the hearing himself. It was difficult to understand how he could have discussed the subject of his appeal with his agent, but it is not the Tribunal's responsibility to concern itself with such matters.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar"), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated November 5th 2001, seeks to Revoke the registration 1269791 Ontario Inc. O/A K & K Auto Sales, as a dealer and Kenneth Mabee, as a salesman.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for the revocation of the registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales and Kenneth Mabee under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated November 5th, 2001, are:

- 1) 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act. The dealer has been registered since June 3, 1999.
- 2) Kenneth Mabee (sic) has been registered as a sales person since July 21, 1997. He is an officer and director of 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales.
- 3) Mabee engaged in conduct which resulted in charges being laid against him for possession of stolen property, uttering forged document, falsification of books and documents and failing to maintain a garage register. The conduct related to the motor vehicle industry. (Exhibit # 1)

By Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated June 7th, 2002, the Registrar stated as follows:

- 1) Kenneth Mabee (sic) engaged in conduct which resulted in further charges being laid against him for fraud over $5000 (X2), falsifying a federal certification (X2) and making a false statement. (Exhibit # 3)

By written Notice of Appeal Mr. Mabee informed the Tribunal in term of section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Constable Kevin Belford and Laura Gordon.

The evidence presented by 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales and Kenneth Mabee consisted of his statement in the Notice of Appeal dated December 03, 2001 and the oral testimony of Kimberly Mabee and Kenneth Mabee.

A summary of the evidence follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR:

Testimony of Ms Laura Gordon

Ms. Laura Gordon, testified that she is currently the Director of Compliance for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). Ms Gordon has been employed by OMVIC since April 1997 and held the position of Director of Compliance since September 1997. As Director of Compliance, Ms. Gordon has the duty of overseeing the Complaint and Mediation Team and also the Inspection Team. Prior to 1997, Ms Gordon was an investigator for the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations and prior to that held various administrative positions within the Registrar's Office.

Ms. Laura Gordon explained that OMVIC is a non-profit corporation which has been delegated the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act which is a public protection statute to ensure compliance, by dealers and salespersons, with Section 5 of the Act. Section 5 requires that individuals and corporations registered under the Act meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law, and financial responsibility.

The decision to revoke the licences of 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales and Kenneth Mabee, was based on the grounds that Kenneth Mabee, who is a Director and officer of the corporation "...engaged in conduct which resulted in charges being laid against him for possession of stolen property, uttering forged documents, falsification of books and documents and failing to maintain a garage register.". Ms Gordon continued by stating the Applicant's "...conduct is industry specific..."

Ms Gordon established the status of K & K Auto Sales and Kenneth Mabee by referring to exhibit # 4, Tabs 3 and 4. K & K Auto Sales was registered as a dealership on June 11, 1999 and Kenneth Mabee was originally registered with OMVIC as a salesperson on July 21 1997.

Ms Gordon is aware that the charges against Mr. Mabee are pending, but the Registrar has "...really valid concerns based on the evidence ...the Tribunal heard ...based on Mr. Magee's involvement with these particular transactions that have in turn led to the charges ...concerned about the federal certification labels ...concern that the dealership is not operating according to the law of honesty and integrity, and that Mr. Mabee isn't and that puts the public at risk..." OMVIC tries to be pro-active but also reacted to a complaint received with respect to the "Mitchell vehicle".

Based on her knowledge and experience, Ms Gordon described the sequence of events that take place when a vehicle is transferred. The Highway Traffic Act specifies that a transfer of a vehicle must be registered within six days of the date of transaction. Nonetheless, Ms Gordon is aware that it is quite common to have two registrations go through on the same day, particularly in transactions involving auction houses.

The current registered address for K & K Auto Sales is 40 Hugill Road, in Coboconk, Ontario

Mr. Lafontaine asked Ms Gordon whether Mr. Mabee has a criminal record, to which Ms. Gordon "...No, not that I am aware of..."

Ms Gordon agreed with Mr. Lafontaine's statement that OMVIC is proceeding against the Applicant based on charges not yet proven in a Court of Law. Ms Gordon explained that in the event no conviction is registered against the Applicant, he is then free to re-apply for registration. She testified that it is not customary to wait until a conviction is registered, when the conduct is "serious".

Testimony of Constable Kevin Belford

Constable Kevin Belford (Belford) testified that he is presently a Detective Constable with the OPP and has been for approximately 18 years. He was assigned to the Provincial Auto Theft Unit in October 1999.

Belford described to the Tribunal how a vehicle in the name on Mark Mitchell was stopped and found to be on the list of “salvage” or irreparable vehicles. This vehicle was a 1998 Dodge Ram. Further investigation revealed that the same vehicle had an engine change and a colour change.

Mr. Sorrel was interviewed by Belford and informed him that a Dodge Ram Dodge Ram had been purchased by Mr. Mabee for a $1,000.00, and that Mr. Mabee was quite upset when he found out that the vehicle record showed the vehicle transferred to him instead of directly to Mark Mitchell. Mr. Mabee did not want his name to appear on the documents.

Belford examined the 1998 Dodge Ram owned by Mark Mitchell. Belford found that the Dodge Ram driven by Mr. Mitchell was not the “burnt out” vehicle, but a vehicle stolen in Barrie in August 2000. The vehicle was determined to be have been stolen as the “secondary numbers” revealed the true identity of the vehicle.

Mr. Mitchell told the police that the vehicle had been sold to him by Mr. Mabee. No records of a transaction for the Dodge Ram were found among K & K Auto Sales company records.

Mr. Lawrence Finley indicated that he had bought a vehicle from Mr. Ken Mabee, yet, during the search executed at Mr. Mabee’s premises, no record of the vehicle owned by Mr. Finley was found.

Mr. Finley’s vehicle had a loose label on the door suggesting that the vehicle had been rebuilt by GMC in 1999. Belford contacted GMC, and was told that GM does not rebuild vehicles. (Exhibit # 5)

Belford checked into the VIN number appearing on Mr. Finley’s vehicle and found the vehicle had not been rebuilt at all. Further, the secondary VIN number traced the vehicle back to Minnesota. Records in Minnesota, indicated that the person owning the vehicle had disappeared and so had the vehicle.

A search with the Ministry of Transportation records showed the history of the vehicle as being owned by K & K Auto, transferred to Calvin Mabee Auctions and then transferred to Lawrence Finley.

A vehicle, owned by Mr. Luke Simmes, a 1996 Chevrolet Pick up Truck was also found to have a federal certification label purporting it had been rebuilt by General Motors Canada.

Belford referred to one of the documents seized as a company ledger. Counsel for the Applicant showed Belford a photocopy of one the documents seized from the K & K Auto Sales, and suggested that the cover of the item being referred to as a company ledger was in fact a register to facilitate GST compliance. Belford acknowledged the copy of the register he was looking at, was in fact a copy of the document referred to as the "company ledger".

"Mr. Lafontaine recounted and Belford concurred that in early August of the year 2000 a grey 1998 Dodge Pick Up Truck was stolen from "...somebody named Bell Chambers..." in Barrie. Given the information received from Terri Sorrel that the Applicant had purchased a "...burnt vehicle ..." from him, Belford deduced that the Applicant transposed the "...burnt vehicle..." VIN to the stolen vehicle and then sold the vehicle to Mr. Mitchell."

Continuing his cross-examination with respect to the "Mitchell vehicle". Mr. Lafontaine asked Belford: "Has anybody ever seen this truck on Ken Mabee's yard?" Belford replied: "There was another, where Mr. Mitchell works, employee there, saw Mr. Mabee bring that truck to Mark Mitchell." In reply to Mr. Lafontaine's comment, as to whether the preceding information was obtained from Mark Mitchell, Belford declared: "No, sir ... I spoke to Steve". Belford could neither recall the last name for "Steve", nor find the reference in his notes. Belford explained: "I believe I deleted it, black marked it out. He was afraid ... he did not want to be identified."

Mr. Lafontaine repeated the question to Belford: "Anybody ever seen this stolen truck on Mr. Mabee's yard?" Belford replied: "No, sir. Not that I am aware of."

Mr. Mitchell purchased the truck sight unseen for a value of $20,000.00, after phoning around to try to sell it for Mr. Mabee.

Another vehicle was involved referred to as the "Simmes vehicle" With respect to this vehicle, there is one charge alleging that a counterfeit federal certification label was placed on the vehicle by Mr. Mabee.

Belford confirmed that it is the practice of the Ministry of Transportation to issue a VIN number that starts with the letters RBT, to indicate that the vehicle has been rebuilt.

It is obvious that the sticker inside the door of Luke Simmes' truck is very similar to the original but the GM logo has been scanned. The new sticker gives all the necessary statistics of the vehicle but includes the words: "Manufactured by General Motors Corporation". Belford is quite adamant, that in his opinion, this statement implies that General Motors did the rebuilding of the vehicle.

The Finley vehicle, according to Belford was not rebuilt, even though that it has an RBT VIN. Belford speculated that Ministry of Transportation personnel sometimes issue RBT VIN numbers without the proper documentation.

With respect to the absence of a record for the transfer of the Finley vehicle, Belford insisted that Mr. Lafontaine was "...getting mixed up..." with respect to the GST ledger vs. the company ledger. Belford pointed out that: "...there is one book that says GST, another one that says K & K Auto ...the GST book says it 's a Moving Company and K & K Auto Sales, the second book ...has a business card inside that was taped to it, says and K & K Auto Sales..."

WITNESSES FOR THE APPLICANT:

Testimony of Kenneth Robert Blain Mabee

Mr. Mabee currently lives and operates his business from 40 Hugill, a property that he purchased some time ago.

Ms Mabee was the bookkeeper for the business, but it is no longer viable for her to do so, as she is also the Manager for IGA.

Mr. Mabee testified that he tries to deal only with reputable businesses and for that reason refrains from "buying off the street". All transactions are paid by cheque and a record of all transactions is kept.

The first time that Mr. Mabee heard about the 1998 Dodge Ram was during a PST audit of K & K Auto Sales. Mr. Mabee thought a mistake had been made and pursued the information provided by the PST auditor. Mr. Mabee was very upset when he found out that the 1998 Dodge Ram had been transferred from PS Auto to K & K Auto to Mark Mitchell. Mr. Mabee contacted PS Auto but was not able to obtain a satisfactory reply from the owners of PS Auto. Mr. Mabee testified that he never paid PS Auto cash for any purchase and that the signature on the Bill of Sale is a forgery.

Mr. Mabee testified that he keeps a file on "...every vehicle ..." bought and sold. There was a file for the Simmes vehicle. There was a file regarding the Finley vehicle, but no record of the sale to Finley as that sale was affected through Calvin Mabee Auction, after the Applicant gave the vehicle to his brother. There is no file for the Mitchell vehicle, because the Applicant never owned the vehicle.

The Finley vehicle was bought from the Applicant's neighbour, with the understanding that the vehicle had been branded "US salvage" due to extensive water damage. The vehicle required considerable repairs before it could be put on the road. The Applicant's brother assisted with the repairs.

Mr. Mabee explained that the stickers on the door and in the glove compartment verify the specs of the vehicle, and tell a mechanic how to service the vehicle. Because the door of the Finley vehicle had been replaced the Applicant replaced the federal sticker with a computer made stickers that provided the same information. The RBT VIN showed 2000, because the Ministry of Transportation issued the label in the year 2000.

Mr. Mabee did meet Mr. Finley and inform him that the vehicle had been rebuilt.

The Simmes vehicle was purchased from an auto auction house in London, and was branded "US salvage". When the truck was sold Mr. Mabee informed the purchaser, Mr. Simmes, that the vehicle had been involved in an accident. The Simmes vehicle also required a door replacement; therefore the Applicant placed one of his stickers on the door.

Replacement of door stickers was not done with the intent to defraud but rather to provide necessary information about the vehicle.

Mr. Mabee confirmed that he had previously purchased three vehicles from PS Auto. Each vehicle was paid by cheque and there is a signed Bill of Sale on file.

Mr. Mabee reiterated his previous testimony regarding the purchase and sale of the Simmes and Finley vehicles, the repairs effected, and the placement of the new labels on the doors.

Testimony of Kimberly Mabee

Ms Mabee's asserted that it was her practice and the business practice to always go "...above and beyond..." in complying with the requirements.

Ms Mabee recalled obtaining the records for the officers, but remembers that the boxes were not taken, only certain records were seized. Ms Mabee did not try to hide files from the officers.

Ms Mabee reiterated her role in the family business was strictly as bookkeeper; she is not involved in the sale of the vehicles.

Two separate sales records were kept, one for GST and the other records of transactions. The Finley vehicle does not appear either register.

Ms Mabee concluded her cross-examination by confirming that most transactions are paid by cheque, and she gave the officers all the documentation available for the year 2000.

Ms Mabee did not feel there was an obligation to include the Finley vehicle in the register because the vehicle was purchased before K & K Auto Sales existed, and the sale did not require GST.

Submissions by Mr. Michael Rothe

Mr. Rothe, for the Registrar, introduced pertinent case law: Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court; and Antonio de Biunno Appeal from a proposal of the Registrar under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act to Refuse Registration, heard on June 27 2000, by Vice-Chairs David J. Hunt and I. Andre.

Mr. Rothe posits that a Registrant under the Act must meet the criteria set by Section 5 of the Act requiring honesty and integrity of conduct. It is the Applicant's conduct, which led to charges, is of concern.

With respect to the "Mitchell vehicle" Mr. Rothe argues that the historical records at the Ministry of Transportation indicate that the vehicle was transferred from the PS Auto to K & K Auto, and then to Mr. Mitchell. It is known that the vehicle was stolen and that it had been re-VINed. The contention is, whether Mr. Mabee sold the vehicle to Mr. Mitchell. The Applicant says he did not, however, P S Auto, the consumer, Mr. Mitchell, say he did. There is here say evidence from a witness named "Steve" who stated that he saw Mr. Mabee deliver the truck to Mr. Mitchell. .

With respect to the "Finley vehicle", records show the vehicle in the Applicant's name and ultimately ending up in the consumer's. There are inconsistencies with the VIN as attested to by Constable Belford. A self-made label had replaced the original federal certification label. Mr. Mabee admits to replacing it, but claims it was done to help the consumer, not deceive.

Finally the "Simmes vehicle", again the vehicle has been re-VINed, and relabeled. There is evidence from Mr. Simmes that he was told that the vehicle was rebuilt by General Motors. This is not the case.

Mr. Rothe emphasized that that this Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a statute for the protection of the public. Mr. Rothe contends there are "...two diametrically opposing views ..." it is up to the Tribunal to determine which is the more credible. There are four individuals that point to Mr. Mabee. The evidence of these individuals, albeit, hearsay, is credible. Whether the charges are still pending or not is not the issue, the issue is the conduct behind the charges. The Tribunal must decide "...on the balance of probabilities ...if the Registrar meets the test ...is the Registrar being extra tough or is the Registrar wrong..." Mr. Rothe suggests that the Registrar is not wrong and that the Registrar is being reasonable.

In conclusion, Mr. Rothe suggests that if the Tribunal does not agree with the Registrar's decision to revoke the licence of the Applicant it should at least consider a conditional order, wherein upon conviction the Applicant's licence will be immediately revoked.

Submissions by the Applicant

Mr. Lafontaine claims that the Registrar based the decision to revoke on one side of the story founded in hearsay evidence, The Tribunal now has heard other evidence.

In regards to credibility, Belford presented two different stories regarding the Finley vehicle. Sorrel and Mitchell have everything to gain by implicating the Applicant. "Steve" is not even identified properly. The evidence of these people cannot be considered credible, and it is unreliable and contradictory.

With respect to the door stickers, if there had been any "...sinister..." intent, Mr. Lafontaine questions why would Mr. Mabee use any labels at all. There was no intent to deceive rather Mr. Mabee was simply trying to assist people.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. Kenneth Robert Blain Mabee was first registered as a salesperson under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, on July 21, 1997.
2. 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales, 40 Hugill Road, Coboconk, Ontario, was registered on June 11 1999,
3. Kenneth Robert Blain Mabee became a registered salesman for 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales on June 11 1999.
4. The Applicant has been charged with a number of criminal charges that are still before the Court.
5. To date the Applicant has no Criminal Record

THE LAW:

Section 5. (1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable risk to revoke his licence as per Section 5 b of the Act.

The Applicant has been charged with a series of offences that have not been heard. A priori, it would appear that the Registrar is attempting to exact punishment before the Applicant has had his day in court. Nonetheless, the Respondent's Counsel expounds that it is not the charges against the Applicant that are at issue but rather the conduct that led to the charges. Mr. Lafontaine put forward that the Applicant's conduct cannot be separated from the charges, if the charges are unfounded, the conduct never happened. The Tribunal concurs with Mr. Lafontaine's contention.

The Tribunal considered whether there was sufficient evidence to allow the Tribunal to extricate the conduct of the Applicant not only from the charges but also from his individual right to be presumed innocent. The evidence of the Registrar is weak, incomplete and fragmented. The Applicant was able to offer a credible, satisfactorily acceptable response to the allegations against him. To date the Applicant has no criminal record.

The Registrar proposed an alternative to the immediate revocation of the Applicant's licence that appeared agreeable to the Applicant and is acceptable to this Tribunal. Thus, this Tribunal finds the Registrar was premature in revoking the Applicant's licence, prior to the charges against the Applicant being dealt with by a Judicial Court. This Tribunal further orders that in the event of any conviction registered against the Applicant arising out any of the charges currently against him, both the licence of the dealership, and the Applicant's salesman's licence shall be revoked forthwith, without further notice or recourse for appeal.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to not to carry out his proposal to revoke the registrations of 1269791 Ontario Inc. o/a K & K Auto Sales, and of Kenneth Robert Blain Mabee until the completion of all criminal proceedings with respect to the current charges now laid against the Applicant.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSE OF THE ONTARIO NEW

TRIBUNAL: TERENCE A. WARDROP Q.C., VICE CHAIR

APPEARANCES: JAMES A. NORMAN, on behalf of himself and SYLVIA E. NORMAN
KAREN SPECTOR, Counsel, for the Ontario New Home Warranty Program
AARON SALEM, for John Boddy Developments Ltd.

DATES OF
HEARING: August 7, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an Appeal by the Applicants, James A. and Sylvia E. Norman (the "Applicants") pursuant to their Request for a Hearing dated April 15, 2002, to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal"), from a decision of the Respondent, Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program"). The Applicants' claim was denied by the Program in its Decision Letter dated April 2, 2002, (the "Program's Decision"). The Applicants are appealing the Program's Decision pursuant to section 16 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act R.S.O. 1990, Ch. 0.31 (the "Act"). The Applicants base their claim on the provisions of section 13 and section 14(1)(b) of the Act.

John Boddy Developments Ltd. (the "Builder") was joined in this Appeal as the Added Party by the Order of the Chairman of the Tribunal and the appropriate notice of application and notice of the Order were served upon the Parties.

ISSUES:

The Applicants have complained to the Program that the Builder is in breach of several of its warranties to construct the new home which it contracted to build for the Applicants in a workmanlike manner and free from defects in material, as part of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale entered into between the Applicants and the Builder and accepted by the Builder on February 16, 1999. The new home is located on Lot 9, of Plan 40M - 1766 in the Town of Ajax, Province of Ontario, and is municipally known as 157 Elizabeth Street, Ajax (the "residential dwelling"). Completion of the residential dwelling and closing of the transaction of purchase and sale was achieved on August 11, 1999, (the "Date of Possession").

On October 15, 2001, the Applicants requested conciliation services from the Program respecting two remaining items of defective work and materials related to ceramic tile on the main floor of the residential dwelling, and in response the Program provided such conciliation services between the Applicants and the Builder on February 5, 2002. The Program thence issued the Conciliation Inspection Report dated February 20, 2002 (the "Conciliation Report") and subsequently issued the Program's Decision respecting the said two remaining items in almost identical language as follows:

" The observed condition does not represent a defect in either material or workmanship. It is minor in nature and not readily visible. Your claim is denied."

EVIDENCE:

The evidence for the Applicants was limited to the Applicants themselves as no expert testimony was submitted on their behalf and no other witnesses were called by the Applicants.

The Respondent called two witnesses: Wendy Skyba, a Warranty Representative of the Program who testified as to the conciliation services respecting the residential dwelling carried out by her; and Dennis Edissi, an expert with respect to the installation of ceramic tiles who had inspected the residential dwelling on July 18, 2002 in the presence of the Applicants.

The evidence given by the Applicants in-chief examination was clear on each of the two items, but tended to be obsessive when dealing with their expectations during cross-examination by the Program's Counsel. Particularly in the case of the evidence given by James Norman, it became confrontational and even evasive to the extent of his responses being given in the manner he wished to rather than answering the question put to him by Counsel. Mr. Norman also provided photographs taken by him to illustrate the defective materials and workmanship alleged by the Applicants. The evidence given by Wendy Skyba was straightforward and, in the few cases of conflicting evidence, is preferred by the Tribunal. The evidence given by Dennis Edissi was likewise straightforward and included a letter written by Terrazzo, Tile and Marble Association of Canada over his signature as President, which was conclusive in dealing with the ceramic tile workmanship and material at the residential dwelling.

It is to be noted that included in the documentation provided by the Applicants is a letter dated "4/13/2002" written by a Mr. Brandon Hunt on behalf of Pickering Tile Center Ltd. which tends to support the evidence of the Applicants on the question of the ceramic tile workmanship and materials "at the floor in question, located in they're (sic) home at 157 Elizabeth Dr. in Ajax", but which is otherwise silent on the qualifications of the writer except "my long experience in this industry". Mr. Hunt was not made available at the hearing to support the views stated in the letter nor was he, of course, subjected to cross-examination by Counsel for the Respondent and the agent of the Added Party. In light of the evidence given by Mr. Edissi, it is not possible for this Tribunal to give any weight to the statements contained within the said letter.

ISSUES OF LAW:

The Applicants are appealing the Program's Decision to the Tribunal under Section 16(2) of the Act and this hearing and this decision of the Tribunal is issued pursuant to Section 16(3) of the Act:

- 16(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the person or owner served is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person or owner mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Corporation and the Tribunal.
- (3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purpose the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation."

Section 13(1) of the Act specifies certain warranties:

- 13(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
 - (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations."

Section 13(6) of the Act not only provides that all such specified statutory warranties and specified regulatory warranties apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary, but also recognizes that the owner may have other rights and other agreed warranties in addition to the warranties specified in Section 13(1) of the Act:

- 13. (6) The warranties set out in subsection (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon."

Under Section 14(1)(b), where an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty, such an owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage. The right to make a claim is set out in Section 14(1) in the Act.

14. (1) Where,
 - (a)... ;
 - (b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty;
 - (c) ... ;
 - the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by regulations."

A warranty is a defined term under the Act. Section 1 provides:

"1. In this Act, "warranty" means a warranty set out on section 13."

The Applicants, as stated above, are owners as defined by the Act and the Tribunal finds them so to be as a fact. As such, they are entitled to compensation or remedies from the assets of the guarantee fund for any and all breaches of warranties by virtue of Section 14(1)(b) thereof, subject only to the limitation of amount as set out in the regulations thereto.

PROVEN FACTS:

As hereinbefore stated, all witnesses testified respecting the two items claimed by the Applicants and there appears to be wide differences of opinion.

The Tribunal finds, pursuant to the evidence given in these proceedings, the following as proven facts:

- (1) the Agreement of Purchase and Sale was reached on February 16, 1999;
- (2) the pre-delivery inspection report was made on August 10, 1999, and the Date of Possession of the residential dwelling was August 11th, 1999;
- (3) In their request for conciliation dated October 15, 2001, the Applicants listed two items of complaint;
- (4) the Program issued its Conciliation Report on February 20, 2002;
- (5) the Program's Decision was issued by the Program on April 2, 2002;
- (6) the request by the Applicants for a hearing before the Tribunal was made on April 15, 2002.

DECISION AND ORDER:

As explained to and acknowledged by the Applicants at the commencement of the hearing, the onus of proof is upon them to show unacceptable workmanship or materials as the basis for a breach of warranty by the Builder. Without further evidence, expert or otherwise, they have failed to establish any claim against the Builder in the two items noted in the Program's Decision. Based upon the evidence given at the hearing, this Tribunal is in accord with the Observation/Comment and Reason expressed by the Program in the Conciliation Report and in the Program's Decision. The Applicants' appeal is therefore dismissed.

ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

MARCUS KNAPP, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program,
JOHN VANBROEKHOVEN, Agent, representing the Added Party,
JVB Construction Ltd.

DATES OF HEARING: August 12 and 13, 2002 London

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Marian Krzyk and Irena Krzyk (the "Applicants") under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting a decision by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated April 4, 2002, (the "Decision"). The Decision denied the Applicants' claim under section 14 of the Act for damages resulting from the vendor's failure to substantially perform the construction contract. The reason given by the Decision was that the Applicants failed to prove that the money that they paid to the builder exceeded the value of work and materials provided by the builder.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1 - Decision letter from the Program dated April 4, 2002, denying the Applicants' claim;

Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal form received at the Tribunal April 25, 2002, filed by the Applicants;

Exhibit #3 - Pre-hearing Order released July 8, 2002, issued by the Tribunal;

Exhibit #4 - Respondent's book of documents;

Exhibit #5 - Letter dated October 12, 2002, from Bruce Curran to Robert Chamberlain;

Exhibit #7 - Receipt from The Home Depot dated May 27, 2001, for $591.04;

Exhibit #8 - The Home Depot Merchandise and Service Summary for Marian and Irene Krzyk dated April 11, 2002; and Exhibit #9 - Financial Loss Calculation, filed by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicants' witnesses were Marian Krzyk and Irena Krzyk. their evidence is as follows:

The Applicants testified that they agreed to purchase a house to be built by the Added Party. The purchase price was to be $133,000.00 for the house plus $52,000.00 for the lot, totaling $185,000.00.

The Added Party failed to complete the house. The Applicants notified the Program by letter dated March 14, 2000, set out at tab 3 of exhibit 4. The letter was stamped "Warranty Program, March 16 200, SWRO" by the Program upon receipt. On August 15, 2000, the Applicants purchased the partially-completed house in accordance with the Statement of Adjustments set out at tab 5 of exhibit 4. The deposit was $11,000.00 and the balance paid on closing was $103,344.42. Later the Applicants paid an additional $6,500.00 to discharge a construction lien.

The Applicants did not obtain any written estimates for the cost of completion of the house. They proceeded to complete the house themselves.

The Applicants submitted evidence in exhibits 7, 8, and tab 22 of exhibit 4 of amounts paid to complete the house. Further, the Applicants testified that they paid additional amounts in cash without obtaining receipts.

During closing arguments, Counsel for the Program submitted a calculation by the Program of $62,058.72 as the amount paid by the Applicants to complete the house based on the evidence presented at the hearing, as shown in exhibit 9.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal set aside, confirm, or modify the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicants' claim for compensation under section 14 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act?

LAW:

Section 14 (1) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act then read as follows:

Where,

(a) a person who has entered into a contract with a vendor for the provision of a home has a cause of action in damages against the vendor for financial loss resulting from the bankruptcy of the vendor or the vendor's failure to perform the contract;...

the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

Section 16(3) of the act states the following:

Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal reviewed the calculation in exhibit 9 and agrees that the amount paid by the Applicants to complete the house is $62,058.72. Unsubstantiated testimony of the Applicants of additional amounts paid in cash is not accepted by the Tribunal.

The total paid by the Applicants is thus $182,903.14, being the sum of $11,000.00, the deposit, $103,344.42, the balance due on house purchase closing, $6,5000 paid to discharge construction lien, and $62,058.72 paid to complete the house. Since the total paid by the Applicants is less than $185,000.00, the contractual purchase price of the house and land, the Tribunal finds that the Applicants have suffered no financial loss from the vendor's failure to perform the contract. The Applicants' claim under section 14 (1) (a) of the Act fails.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

TAGHI VAHID SHAHIDI o/a GTA AUTO

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DAVID J. HUNT, Vice Chair, Presiding
NIVES MONTANO, Member

APPEARANCES:

AVIVA HARARI, Counsel representing the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

ANTHONY BAK, Counsel representing the Applicant.

DATE OF HEARING: August 23, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Registrar", and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated May 7, 2002 proposed to revoke the registration of Taghi Vahid Shahidi ("Mr. Shahidi") o/a GTA Auto ("GTA") under the Act. For the purposes of this decision, the Tribunal would like to point out that Taghi Vahid Shahidi was also referred to by his clientele as "Tony" Shahidi.

REASONS

The reasons for this proposal are:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentanglement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Vahid Shahidi Taghi o/a GTA Auto under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

PARTICULARS

1. Taghi Vahid Shahidi o/a GTA Auto is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer. The dealer is currently registered on terms and conditions imposed by the Licence Appeal Tribunal.
2. The terms and conditions were imposed subsequent to a hearing before the Tribunal. The dealer was represented by counsel at the hearing. Attached hereto as schedule A is a copy of the Tribunal's decision released July 24, 2001. The terms and conditions of registration are set out at page 7 of the decision.
3. The grounds for the proposal included non disclosure of material fact to consumers and misrepresentation of true distance traveled.
4. The dealer has breached the terms and conditions of registration.
5. The entries journal kept by the dealer differed from the garage register that the dealer is required to maintain.
6. The dealer represented vehicles as being one owner vehicles when that was not accurate.
7. On or about July 12, 2001 the dealer purchased a 1998 Nissan Sentra 3n1ab41d6wl060581 with the disclosure of accident and repaired and structural damage. The dealer subsequently sold the vehicle on or about July 14, 2001 without full disclosure. The dealer misrepresented to the consumer the extent of the damage on the vehicle. In the garage register the dealer indicated that the vehicle was "OK".
8. On or about July 18, 2001 the dealer purchased a 1995 Golf, 3vwff01h3sm076029 with disclosure that the odometer was defective. The dealer subsequently sold the vehicle to a consumer on or about August 15, 2001 without disclosing that the odometer was defective.
9. On or about July 19, 2001 the dealer purchased a 1997 Honda Civic 2hgej32vh913791 with disclosure that the vehicle was accidented and repaired and had structural damage. The dealer subsequently sold the vehicle to a consumer on or about August 16, 2001, misrepresenting the extent of the damage.
10. On October 3, 2001, a representative of the registrar attended at the dealership. It was noted by the registrar's representative that a 1991 Nissan Sentra, 1n4eb31s9mc791608, was advertised as having had one owner. A review of the Ministry of Transportation records revealed that the vehicle had had more than 1 owner.
11. On October 3, 2001, a representative of the registrar attended at the dealership. It was noted by the registrar's representative that a 1998 Ford Windstar, 2fza54u1wbc79545, was advertised as having had one owner. A review of the Ministry of Transportation records revealed that the vehicle had had more than 1 owner.
12. The dealer is representing that it a corporation operating as GTA Auto Inc. GTA Auto Inc. is not a registered motor vehicle dealer.

THE LAW

Section 3 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

- (1) No person shall,
 - (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or
 - (b) act as a salesperson of or on behalf of a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered as a salesperson of such dealer and such dealer is registered as a motor vehicle dealer under this Act

Section 5 of the Act, states as follows;

- 5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
 - b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (c) the applicant is a corporation and
 - (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or
 - (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.
- (2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

- (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.
- (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

SHAHIDI 9 (c.o.b.) GTA Auto (Re:) [2001] O.L.A.T.D. No. 278

A July 24, 2001 decision of the Licence Appeal Tribunal was made regarding the same Applicant. The Applicant was to be permitted as a registrant under the Act under the following conditions:

- 1) In addition to the obligation to maintain books and records in accordance with the Act, the Applicant will maintain a separate journal of all vehicle purchase and sale transactions which will be kept available for ready inspection by a representative of the Registrar. Each entry will be identified by the Vehicle Identification number (VIN) and the make and model;
- 2) Beside the record of each transaction there will be kept a record of all pertinent details of each vehicle's history including all entries from the Bill of Sale or other document through which the Applicant became the owner;
- 3) The Applicant will forward to the Registrar at the end of each month a copy of that month's journal entries until the Registrar informs the Applicant that the Registrar no longer requires this to be done.
- 4) Before the execution of every retail Bill of Sale with a customer the Applicant will show and include on that Bill of Sale any statements as to that vehicle's odometer status appearing on the document by which the Applicant obtained the vehicle and the Applicant shall explain such information to the customer. The Applicant will in writing on the face of the Bill of Sale in the presence of the customer attest to having done this.
- 5) Any default in any of these conditions shall result in the immediate forfeiture of the Applicant's registration under the Act.

CASELAW

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesperson) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions, which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

ISSUES

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to revoke the Applicant's licence under the Act on the basis of prior conduct.

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

MR. GIANCARLO LEMBO

Giancarlo Lembo was the first witness to testify on behalf of the Registrar. He stated that he and his father Rosario attended at "GTA" and bought the 1995 VW Golf, serial number 3VWFF01H33M076029. Although the vehicle was purchased in the name of Rosario Lembo, it was purchased for the use of the witness. Rosario Lembo is currently out of the country and unable to testify at today's hearing.

Most of the discussions were with the witness as his father's English was not very good. The witness saw the vehicle advertised in the Auto Trader as he was looking for a diesel vehicle with low km. They went to the dealership on two occasions and on August 15, 2001 purchased the vehicle. The witness remembered that the salesperson, Tony, told them that the vehicle was in excellent working condition. There was nothing wrong with it and there was no mention of any problems with the odometer. He agreed that the salesperson he referred to as "Tony" was a younger person and certainly not the Applicant. His first knowledge that there was anything wrong with the odometer was acquired when he was advised by an independent mechanic that something was wrong with it. He understood that the distance travelled was 160,000 km on the odometer. On the Bill of Sale (Exhibit 3, Tab 6) the distance shown was 160,485 km, and was initialled by his father. The vehicle was sold as fully certified, omissions tested and with a free one-year warranty.

On the Bill of Sale there was a notation that $100.00 had been paid by the Registrant as compensation for the problem with the tires. The witness stated that he would not have purchased the vehicle if he knew that there was a problem with the odometer. Between August and December 2001, the witness purchased parts for the vehicle with the help of a mechanic.

On March 18, 2002, Rosario Lembo signed an agreement with the dealer (Exhibit 4, Tab 10) in which the parties agreed to equally divide the cost of repairs, and GTA would pay the purchaser $1825.00. A copy of the cheque in payment of this amount was received by Mr. Lembo. In addition, it was stated that the defective odometer in the vehicle is more than 160,000 km, and that this was fully explained to the customer, and the customer could not apply the warranty. The witness testified that he was a witness to the signature of this Agreement. The Agreement was signed by his mother on his father's behalf. The witness stated that he was advised of the defective odometer by a letter from the Ministry of Transport early in 2002.

In cross-examination, the witness was asked about whether his father went to GTA after the initial meeting on his own. Although uncertain, the witness did not believe his father would have returned to GTA, as his English is quite poor.

He explained that the Consumer Questionnaire (Exhibit 3 Tab 7) was completed and the attached page typed by him, and it was signed by his father. The witness explained that he had spoken with an independent mechanic, received information, but did not receive a written report. The mechanic in question was not present for the hearing to give evidence. When the witness received the information from the Ministry concerning the odometer, he returned to GTA with his mother and spoke to the Applicant. When he met with the Applicant after receiving a letter concerning the odometer, the Applicant was cooperative and willing to negotiate a settlement with him. By the time the witness went back to GTA to settle the problem, he did not see "Tony" the original salesperson there any more.

The witness stated that he drove the vehicle an additional 20,000 km during the first eight months he owned the vehicle. He confirmed that he still owns the vehicle, which currently has 193,000 km on it.

MS. JENNIFER VICENTE

Jennifer Vicente testified that she purchased a 1997 Honda Civic LX (serial number 2HGEJ6632VH913791) from the Applicant on August 16, 2001. She had seen the vehicle advertised in the Auto Trader and went to GTA twice. She explained that the information she received about the vehicle was that it was a good deal and she could not buy another one like it for less money. In addition, she was told that the door had a dent and had been replaced however, the salesperson, Tony, did not know how the dent occurred and specifically told her that the vehicle had not been in an accident. When she took the vehicle for a test drive, she was concerned because a wheel shook quite noticeably. She was suspicious that the vehicle had been seriously damaged in an accident, but was told that it had certainly not been. GTA performed an alignment on the vehicle, which rectified the problem.

In the Bill of Sale (exhibit 3, Tab 9) there was a notation that the door had a dent and the quarter panel was repainted and replaced by GTA. She did not learn any further information about the vehicle until she received a letter from Ralph Bailey at O.M.V.I.C. He advised the witness that the vehicle had been in an accident and asked her whether GTA had told her about it. She advised Mr. Bailey that GTA had not informed her of the accident. She stated that she would not have purchased the vehicle knowing it had structural damage.

The witness testified that she no longer owns the vehicle as she had traded it in at GTA, where she originally purchased it. She had tried to sell it at other dealerships, but the estimates she received were not as high as GTA. When she traded in her vehicle to GTA, new wording had been added to the Bill of Sale (exhibit 4, Tab 12) on July 29,

2002. In the area referring to the dent in the quarter panel, the words "structural damage" was added at the bottom. To the left of this, in an area for the name address lien amount and certification as to encumbrances, a paragraph was written by the Applicant, which stated:

"the customer came back to the dealer and they did negotiated regarding this auto - and the customer is happy with the deal and there is no complaint regarding this deal and everything is o k."

In cross-examination she agreed that the salesperson "Tony" she spoke to when she was making her initial purchase was not the Applicant. In her note to O.M.V.I.C. included in the questionnaire (Exhibit 3, Tab 10) she confirmed that the description of the salesperson was Indian, 30s, beard, and moustache and it was definitely not the Applicant.

The witness agreed that in the original Bill of Sale (Exhibit 3, Tab 9) it did say "accident repair by dealer", but stated that she was not verbally told that the vehicle was in an accident. She repeated that she would not have purchased the vehicle if she thought there was structural damage. In her opinion, if a vehicle had been in an accident, she would expect there to be structural damage. The witness repeated she did not know anything about any accident the vehicle may have been involved in. She confirmed that when she spoke to Ralph Bailey from O.M.V.I.C., he showed her the Bill of Sale from Adesa Auto Auction ("Adesa") to GTA (Exhibit 3, Tab 9). It was on that document that she saw a reference to "structural damage", however under those words something was scratched out and there were the words "Dent on door". She was never shown any accident reports or repair invoices. She relied on this document as her source of information that there had been an accident.

When she returned the vehicle to GTA to be traded in for the next purchase of another used vehicle, the original salesperson "Tony" was no longer there. She heard that he had been fired. During this transaction, she dealt with the Applicant. The first deal she negotiated to trade in her vehicle was not completed, as there were financing problems. She did, however, end up purchasing another vehicle from GTA using her first vehicle as a trade in.

MR. GERMAN MACZ

Mr. Macz testified that he purchased a 1998 Nissan Sentra serial number 3N1AB41D6WL060581 on July 14, 2001 from GTA. He, his wife and 4 children attended at GTA and he participated in approximately half of the discussions. He discussed the purchase of the vehicle with his wife. Mrs. Macz is currently in Montreal and unable to testify at today's hearing.

The witness stated that he is unsure, but believes he dealt with the owner of GTA. The witness was advised that the vehicle was in a minor accident and there was a visible dent in the side, which GTA promised to fix. When the vehicle was picked up, it had, in fact, been repaired. If he had been told that the vehicle had suffered structural damage, he would not have purchased it. In his opinion, "structural damage" means there is a crack in the chassis so the vehicle would be unsafe to drive. The vehicle is primarily used by his wife to go to and from work.

In cross-examination, the witness stated that he did not originally deal with the Applicant. He agreed that his wife had discussions with the salesperson which he may not have heard or been a party to. The salesperson advised the witness that it was a minor accident. To date, the witness has not seen any insurance reports, police reports, information from a mechanic or anything else to prove that there was structural damage. Therefore, he does not know whether the vehicle was in anything but a minor accident. He was made aware of the structural damage through a letter he received from O.M.V.I.C. When he later spoke to Ralph Bailey from O.M.V.I.C., the witness filled out the questionnaire (Exhibit 3, Tab 4), and discussed the issue of the structural damage with Mr. Bailey.

Mr. Macz stated that he still owns the vehicle, which is still being driven, and gets his auto serviced at Canadian Tire.

MS. JENNIFER ANDREW

Ms. Jennifer Andrew testified that she is employed at O.M.V.I.C as the "team leader" for inspections and has been with O.M.V.I.C. for a total of five years. Prior to her current employment, she took a law enforcement course at Seneca College.

On October 3, 2001, she and Inspector Ralph Bailey of O.M.V.I.C., visited GTA's premises unannounced. The witness made notes of their inspection during and shortly after leaving the premises. The purpose of the inspection was to ensure compliance with the requirements of the Act, as well as the Order of the Tribunal under which registration was given. The witness attempted to get access to the books and records, but was advised that the Applicant was away and the required material was locked in a cabinet. The sales staff contacted the Applicant by cell phone. He was out of town at a car auction. He arranged to meet with the witness and Mr. Bailey on October 9, 2001.

When the witness and Mr. Bailey were on the premises, they decided to note the VIN numbers and odometer readings of some of the vehicles on the lot. The first vehicle they looked at was a white Nissan #1N4EB3159MC791608. The words "one owner" was written on the windshield.

The second vehicle was a white Ford VIN. # 2FTZA54U1WB679545. The words "one owner" was also written on the windshield. When they later did a check on the vehicles, they found that the white Nissan had 4 prior owners (Exhibit 3, Tab 13) before GTA. The white Ford had 2 owners (Exhibit 3, Tab 14) prior to GTA.

When they returned for re-inspection on October 9, 2001, the witness and Mr. Bailey reviewed some wholesale and retail bills of sale. These bills of sale were removed from the premises to be copied and the originals were then returned to GTA. All documents were made available as required.

In cross-examination, the witness agreed that on the Journal that was to be kept, there was a reference to Aftab Ali who had been a salesperson at GTA. At this time, Mr. Ali was trying to become registered as a salesperson. The witness agreed that the Garage Register and the special Journal were important documents and it was normal for them to be kept in a secure place. However, she repeated that it was also necessary for them to be made available for inspection.

When the witness and Mr. Bailey were making notes of the VIN numbers, she explained that Mr. Bailey read them out the numbers and she noted them down. She did concede that it could be possible that Mr. Bailey made a mistake reading them out to her or, she could have made a mistake writing them down, however she thought it unlikely. There were approximately 40 vehicles on the lot and the two vehicles for which the numbers were taken down were chosen at random. When she was asked if they took photographs of the words "one owner" on the windshield of the two vehicles, she said that they did not, but made notes of what they saw. She agreed that they had no proof that there were any misrepresentations in the Auto Trader as to the number of owners. The witness also conceded that she was unable to say who wrote the words "one owner" on the windshields. The words appeared to have been written with a smudge pencil. She also stated that they did not have copies of bills of sale for those vehicles showing any representation to a customer that there was only one previous owner. The witness also agreed that she did not conduct any searches of the previous owners, which were companies, to see if any of them were related and, for practical purposes, one owner. So far she was concerned the owners were listed separately and even if there had been related companies involved, the searches showed more than one owner.

Ms. Andrew testified that she found the Bill of Sale for the Macz vehicle. This vehicle was purchased at Adesa Ottawa and on the Bill of Sale (Exhibit 3, Tab 3) it gave disclosure that the vehicle was "accidented, repaired and structural damage". She does not know who wrote the Bill of Sale; who did the inspection of the vehicle; anything about the accident, or what was the nature of the structural damage.

On the Bill of Sale to Jennifer Vicente (Exhibit 3, Tab 9), the witness stated that there was disclosure of a dent on the quarter panel, which was repaired by the dealer. The witness did not obtained any information from Adesa about the accident and her only information was the notation on the Bill of Sale to GTA that the motor vehicle was "accidented, repaired and structural damage". In Ms. Andrew's opinion, "structural damage" means that there is damage to the internal structure of the vehicle. However, she agreed that beside the words "structural damage" on the Bill of Sale to GTA, someone had written that there was a dent. When the witness was asked if all of the bills from Adesa which say "accidented and repaired" also say "structural damage", she said that she did not know the code or references used at the auction.

RALPH BAILEY

Ralph Bailey testified that he has been an inspector for O.M.V.I.C for 1 year. Prior to that, he was a member of the Metropolitan Toronto Police force for 32 years and since 1985, was a constable in traffic services. He also had experience in warrants, identity thefts and hit and run cases.

On October 3, 2001, the witness attended at the premises of GTA with Ms. Andrew. On October 9, 2001, they re-attended and seized documents for inspection. After copies were made, the originals were returned to the Applicant. The witness had concerns over the Bill of Sale between GTA and Mr. Macz as there was a statement on it indicating that the vehicle had been in an accident, and the customer knew about it (Exhibit 3, Tab 3). On the Bill of Sale from Adesa, there is a notation that the vehicle was "accidented, repaired and structural damage". Therefore there was a concern over the disclosure that was given to the purchaser.

There was also further concern about the Journal and Garage Register prepared by the Applicant and sent to O.M.V.I.C. as required by the Order of the Tribunal (Exhibit 3, Tab 15). Vehicle No. 12 in the Journal is a Honda Civic, which is shown as "accidented and repaired", and on the Bill of Sale from the Adesa, there is the notation of "accidented, repaired and structural damage". This was the vehicle which was eventually sold to Jennifer Vicente and there was no reference to structural damage on the original Bill of Sale to her.

The 17th vehicle in the Journal is a 1997 Volkswagen diesel Jetta which is shown as "OK". Whereas on the Bill of Sale from Adesa (Exhibit 3, Tab 9), there is a notation that the vehicle is "accidented, repaired and structural damage". On the Garage Register, it is listed as "unibody damage" (Exhibit 3 Tab 16).

Vehicle # 32 on the Journal is a Suzuki which is shown as "OK", but in the Garage Register, there is notation that the "odometer has been changed".

In cross examination, Mr. Bailey stated that he did not follow with further investigation on any of the vehicles as to the accidents and extent of the damage. He said that he did not know that with a VIN number he could contact the Ministry of Transport and obtain information. He did not obtain police reports or contact prior owners of these vehicles. Although he knew that both vehicles were purchased from Adesa, he did not contact them or the previous owners. He stated that this was not a requirement for the purposes of the inspection. In the witness' opinion, even though he did not know the particulars or the extent of the damage, if it was on the bill from Adesa it should have been disclosed on the sale to the customers. He did not discuss the matter with the Applicant or anyone from GTA.

Mr. Bailey stated that he did not discuss the issue of the appeal with Jennifer Andrew. The witness reiterated that when he and Ms. Andrew arrived at GTA on October 3, 2001 and the documents they needed were not available, they merely noted down VIN numbers and made other observations.

On the issue of the salesperson AFTAB ALI, the witness stated that he did not make any efforts to find him or interview him, although he had seen him some time later at another dealership located at Keele and Finch. He knew that the salesperson was no longer working for GTA.

Mr. Bailey confirmed that he met with Jennifer Vicente and filled in the questionnaire based on what she told him. The witness sent the questionnaire to Mr. Macz. The witness communicated with Mr. Macz who, in turn, completed the questionnaire and returned it to O.M.V.I.C.

LAURA GORDON

The final witness for the Registrar was Laura Gordon. As a representative of the Registrar, Ms. Gordon was entitled to be in the hearing room for the testimony of the other witness, despite the ruling excluding witnesses and she was so present. Ms. Gordon stated that she has been employed by O.M.V.I.C since January 1997 as the Director of Compliance. Prior to that, she was an investigator with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Before that she was inspector for different registrars within the Ontario government. She explained that the duties of O.M.V.I.C. are divided into registration of dealers and salespersons, complaint mediation, inspection and investigation. Under the terms of the Act, a person is entitled to registration unless they do not meet the requirements of section 5 the Act due to their past conduct or lack of financial responsibility. The issues as to conduct are whether they will carry on business with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law. Ms. Gordon stated that this is the second Proposal for the Applicant. At the first hearing, there were concerns over the disclosure and there was an Order for his registration, subject to terms and conditions. In this case, the Registrar expected compliance with the law with the specific terms and conditions imposed. In the opinion of the Registrar, GTA was not adhering to the terms and conditions and there were further instances of non-compliance. There was concern over the replacement of an odometer, the advertisement of vehicles as having only one owner, and the use of the name "GTA Auto Inc." on Bills of Sale by GTA even though the name of the company was GTA Auto. The primary concerns were again issues of disclosure and allegations that important information was not being passed onto the customers. There was again the problem with an odometer, which was not disclosed to a customer. O.M.V.I.C. had serious concerns that despite the previous Order by the Tribunal, GTA was following the same pattern of conduct in failing to disclose important information and was thereby not acting with honesty, integrity and accordance with the law.

In cross-examination, the witness said that there were concerns over the issue of the business name. As to the issue of the Bills of Sale with "GTA Auto Inc." on them she assumed that he obtained them through the Used Vehicle Dealers Association, as they were a standard pre-printed form. There was no allegation that he had tried to move the business, or hide behind the wrong corporate entity. She stated that it was important that he use the right name so that GTA could be properly identified by a customer. The witness stated that her main concern was that the Applicant should provide the customers with full, frank and honest disclosure. She confirmed that she did not want customers being given incorrect or faulty information and agreed that she did not want him telling clients that a vehicle had structural damage when it did not. The witness further stated that if GTA was given disclosure of structural damage, then GTA should pass that same information onto the customers. With that information, she stated that the customer would be able to take the appropriate steps to have a proper examination of the vehicle to assure themselves that there was no structural damage. In the witness' opinion, the customer should have received the disclosure of structural damage when that notation was made on the Bill of Sale from Adesa to GTA. Without that, the witness did not consider that there was full disclosure even if there was a reference to an accident. As to the notation of "structural damage" on the Bills of Sale from Adesa, the witness agreed that she did not know who inserted the notations on the Bills of Sale or what standard codes are used at Adesa.

WITNESS FOR THE APPLICANT

Mr. Shahidi testified on his own behalf, and stated that he came to Canada from Iran in July 1999. Prior to his arrival in Canada, he did not speak English. He stated that he has been married for 22 years and has two children, ages 14 and 16. His wife does not work and he is the sole source of income for the family and has no business interests aside from his vehicle dealership.

For two years prior to coming to Canada, Mr. Shahidi was in the used automobile business in Iran. Prior to that, he was involved in large-scale agriculture as his family grew melons and watermelons, and had been in the agricultural business for three generations. Once he came to Canada he applied for a dealer's license and received the license very rapidly. He did not take any courses and there was no real training offered. The witness admitted that he received his license too quickly and did not have the time to learn the business or research the Canadian industry. He blamed himself for his lack of knowledge.

In April 2001, Mr. Shahidi was before the Tribunal with a Notice of Proposal and in July 2001 received the decision which permitted him to be registered, subject to terms and conditions. Based on this Order, he is to keep a Journal with information about all of the vehicles purchased and sold by GTA with the particulars and important facts, together with a Garage Register. Copies of these two documents are to be sent to O.M.V.I.C. on a periodic basis. Copies of documents relevant to the motor vehicles purchased or sold are to be kept in the GTA office and available for salespersons and O.M.V.I.C. inspectors to see. Mr. Shahidi explained that he is out of Toronto three days a week as he attends the car auctions in Montreal, Ottawa and Milton.

During the time period in question, he explained that he had four or five salespersons including Miram Behodra (Cyrus), Aftab Ali (Tony) and Hossein Isan Bhakani. Mr. Shahidi stated that Mr. Ali commenced employed with GTA in October 2000 and was terminated October 2001. He had been hired on commission plus salary. Mr. Ali promised customers too many things without authority. Three or four customers complained about various promises that Mr. Ali made that were not being fulfilled (i.e., fixing scratches on vehicles).

Mr. Shahidi stated that he personally dealt with Mr. Macz from the start and explained that the customer had seen the vehicle with the dent on it. Mr. Shahidi had spoken with Mrs. Macz frequently. He testified that he showed Mrs. Macz the Bill of Sale from Adesa Ottawa before her husband signed the Bill of Sale from GTA. He gave them a higher trade in than normal and repaired the vehicle for them. On the Bill of Sale from GTA, there was a reference that the vehicle had been in an accident. The customer was aware of it, and GTA was to do the repair. When Mr. Shahidi purchased the vehicle at auction, he looked at it and saw that it had dents, but did not see any structural damage. To date, Mr. Shahidi has not seen any proof of structural damage to the vehicle. He agreed that it was his signature at the bottom right and left corners of the Bill of Sale (exhibit 3, Tab 3).

With regard to the Macz vehicle on cross examination, Mr. Shahidi explained that he had made the original purchase, saw the notation of "accidented, repaired and structural damage" and actually conducted the transaction with the customers. He repeated that he had shown the original Bill of Sale from Adesa Ottawa to Mrs. Macz so she would have been able to see the reference to "structural damage". Mr. Shahidi explained that he had conversations with her that did not include Mr. Macz.

Mr. Shahidi stated that he did not deal with Mr. Lembo on the sale of that vehicle and that the entire sale was conducted by Mr. Ali. The witness did confirm that he was the one who purchased the vehicle at Adesa Montreal and identified the Bill of Sale (Exhibit 3, Tab 6, p. 2). On this Bill of Sale there was a notation "defective odometer". Mr. Ali wrote the Bill of Sale to the purchaser, but Mr. Shahidi agreed that he signed it on behalf of GTA.

When the witness was shown the Bills of Sale for the Vicente vehicle (Exhibit 3, Tab 9) he stated that Mr. Ali also sold that vehicle to the customer. When he looked at the Bill of Sale from Adesa Ottawa, he agreed that the disclosure stated that the vehicle was "accidented, repaired and structural damage". However on the Bill of Sale from GTA to the customer, it only noted that the door had a dent from an accident and was repaired by GTA. Mr. Shahidi stated that when he purchased the vehicle at the auction, he inspected it and saw no evidence of structural damage.

Mr. Shahidi stated that after he sold the vehicle to Mr. Macz, there were continuing discussions about the vehicle and the customer called him on several occasions. They discussed the issue of the warranty, which didn't cover the mechanical problems. Generally, there were no complaints.

Regarding the Lembo vehicle, Mr. Shahidi stated that when the purchaser complained about the defective odometer, GTA was willing to fix it. Mr. Shahidi said that he offered to pay for the repairs and spoke to the customer several times. Eventually he paid the customer $1800. On March 18, 2002, the parties signed an Agreement (Exhibit 4, Tab 10) for the payment of the funds. The parties agreed that the defective odometer in the vehicle has more than 160,000 km. This was explained fully to the purchaser and the purchaser acknowledged that on that basis he could not apply the Warranty. To date, there have been no problems.

With regard to the vehicle sold to Lembo, on cross examination Mr. Shahidi agreed that the Bill of Sale from Adesa showed that there was the defective odometer when GTA purchased the vehicle, but that on the Bill of Sale to the customer, there was no mention of a defective odometer. Mr. Shahidi did not know why Mr. Ali did not check the Bill of Sale and write this disclosure on it. When Mr. Shahidi was asked what steps were taken to ensure that there was no real structural damage, he said that there is a mechanic who has been employed at GTA for the last six or seven months.

With regard to the Vicente vehicle, Mr. Shahidi testified that Mr. Ali dealt with and sold the vehicle to the customer. When the customer came back to GTA she did speak to Mr. Shahidi. Ms. Vicente requested compensation of $1000. She returned to GTA, found a vehicle she wanted, and arranged a trade in. They attempted to make the first deal but she was not approved for financing. Finally, she found another vehicle that she could afford and the parties made mutually acceptable arrangements. The Applicant paid off her loan on the initial vehicle and the deal was finally worked out.

With regard to the Vicente transaction on cross-examination, Mr. Shahidi stated that Mr. Ali prepared the paperwork and he did not review the Bill of Sale himself. He stated that the customer saw the dent, and that the disclosure on the Bill of Sale was not the same as on the original purchase, as Mr. Ali didn't write "structural damage" on the Bill of Sale to the customer.

Mr. Shahidi stated that on the Garage Register he wrote some of the entries and another salesperson wrote other parts on a Garage Register (Exhibit 3, Tab 16) he agreed that the vehicle five from the bottom, (the Suzuki) had a notation that the odometer had been changed but in the special Journal kept as required by the Tribunal, at line 17 (Exhibit 3, Tab 15) there is a notation for the same vehicle that is OK.

With regard to the Bills of Sale bearing the corporate name "GTA Auto Inc.", Mr. Shahidi explained that he got the Bills of Sale when he moved to the premises and a clerk from the former business assisted him in ordering them. There was also a problem relating to his GST number, so in many cases he had to strike out the pre-printed number and insert the correct number. He also had to strike out the incorrect pre-printed dealer's number, and fill in his own. These incorrect numbers were from the prior business which had left. Similarly he thought that "Inc." at the end of the business name was again leftover from the set up of the form from the prior tenant of the space. When he saw the forms he did not immediately see the problem with the inclusion of "Inc" in the company name.

Mr. Shahidi explained that he sells approximately 300 vehicles per year. He has told his sales staff not to mark the windshield, but has advised them to tell the customers everything about the vehicle. If a salesperson doesn't follow instructions he would terminate their employment. They are paid on commission. Therefore, Mr. Shahidi is of the opinion that his sales staff would deliberately ignore protocol to make a sale.

Mr. Shahidi testified that he did not write on any windshields, but possibly his son might have. When Mr. Shahidi was made aware of the words "one owner" on certain vehicles, Mr. Shahidi removed the writing from the windshields. He explained that he did not try to mislead anyone and has tried to follow the terms and conditions as set out in the Tribunal's Order.

In cross-examination, the witness stated that all of his problems were due to his sales staff. When he was asked what steps he had taken to ensure compliance since the last hearing, Mr. Shahidi stated that he did have problems with his salespersons but that his dealership provided good service. Mr. Shahidi stated that when he travels out of town to purchase vehicles at auction, he has instructed his son or his sister to fax the necessary Journal and Garage Register to O.M.V.I.C. After July 2001, Mr. Shahidi instructed his staff that they could find original Bills of Sale in his desk. He did not understand why the salespeople could not find the documents required for the inspection on October 3, 2001. He was disappointed that O.M.V.I.C. did not call him in advance to ensure that they would be available for inspection. He confirmed that he was the only buyer for GTA and would have been aware of disclosures or declarations on Bills of Sale but confirmed that he might not have reviewed all Bills of Sale.

He stated that he trusted his salespeople and didn't always check on their work. He should have reviewed all of the Bills of Sale and sometimes made the decision not to check.

On the sale of the Vicente vehicle, Mr. Shahidi stated that the salesperson forgot to write "structural damage" on the Bill of Sale and he was not informed. When the vehicles were sold to GTA at the auction, he said that he is only able to carry out a brief visual inspection of the vehicles for only one or two minutes. Although some vehicles may have been in an accident, of those vehicles that have been, not all of them may have incurred "structural damage" even though this notation was put on the Bills of Sale. The vehicles are sold to him "as is". When he obtains a safety certificate, the mechanic is not looking at the vehicle for structural damage. Mr. Shahidi confirmed that he did not take any further steps to verify there was, in fact, structural damage but, in his opinion, it did not look as if there was. Mr. Shahidi has five years experience in the industry and is neither a trained mechanic nor auto body person.

Mr. Shahidi confirmed that he has never incorporated the company under the name "GTA Auto Inc." but confirmed that his brother did open a numbered company, 1790829 o/a GTA Auto, with Mr. Shahidi and his brother as directors. His brother has now left the country and no longer part of the company. He went on to explain how he did receive the plaintiff's Bills of Sale, but he didn't notice the "Inc." at the end of the name. There were also problems with the GST and the Dealer's number on it. This form had been set up for the prior tenant.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The facts found by the Tribunal are that Mr. Shahidi is the owner, and the sole controlling mind of GTA. He is the sole purchaser of vehicles for GTA, and attends the auctions to acquire vehicles. He has five years experience in the industry, and no special training as a mechanic, or in the auto body field. When vehicles are purchased, he is in a position to see the paperwork, and has taken no steps beyond a swift and basic visual inspection, and eventual certification to determine if there are structural problems with the vehicles.

Someone at GTA, or with access to the lot, wrote "one owner" on the windshields of the white Nissan VIN # 1N4EB3159MC791608 and the white Ford truck VIN # 2FTZA54U1WB679545. The white Nissan had 4 previous owners and the white Ford had 2 previous owners. The Tribunal rejects the idea that the numbers were recorded incorrectly, as both of the searches produced a match as to the type and colour of vehicle and both searches showed GTA as the present owner. The chance of this happening with an error on the VIN numbers for two vehicles is too small to consider realistically possible when there are two matches out of two attempts. In the absence of proof from either party, that the previous owners of either vehicle were closely related corporations to the extent that they would constitute one entity, the Tribunal will not speculate that this was the case, in the absence of cogent evidence, and finds that the vehicles had more than just one previous owner each. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of the two inspectors that they saw the representations about the vehicles having only one owner written with a smudge pencil on the windshields. No finding is made as to who wrote this on the vehicles, but the Tribunal accepts Mr. Shahidi's evidence that it may have been done by his son, or one of the salespersons. It does, however, appear to be someone related to GTA, and there were no proper steps taken to remove it before it was visible to potential customers.

On the issue of checking for structural damage, Mr. Shahidi stated that he has had a mechanic working for him for six or seven months. However the purchase and sale of the vehicles in the Notice of Proposal was dated in the summer of 2001 and appeared to be prior to the mechanic commencing work at GTA. There is no evidence that Mr. Shahidi had any structural inspection of the vehicle performed by a properly authorized mechanic or body shop. Mr. Shahidi was not a trained mechanic or trained in examining for structural defects, and even on his own evidence, made only the most cursory visual examination of the vehicles given the way that the auctions are conducted. It was suggested that the words "structural damage" may be written on the Bills of Sale by the vendor every time there is a vehicle which has been in an accident, but there was no evidence to support this theory. This leave the Tribunal with the only conclusion that the vehicle may or may not have had structural damage, but the Applicant chose not to investigate that possibility, or to be sure. He also chose not to give this option to the customers so that they could have a proper inspection done for their own peace of mind.

The Tribunal does not accept the evidence of the Applicant that he showed Mrs. Macz the invoice from Adesa, as Mr. Macz knew nothing about it. It seemed inconceivable that Mrs. Macz would have seen it and not mentioned it to her husband, as it would certainly affect the potential price of the vehicle and the safety and security of the family if the notation was accurate.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not mention "structural damage" to Jennifer Vicente, as she stated that she would not have purchased the vehicle if she had been told it had structural damage. Once she realized the vehicle had a problem and did not drive properly during the test drive she began to ask questions about whether the vehicle was in an accident. When she was assured that it was not in an accident, she purchased it anyway. Once she received information from O.M.V.I.C. that the vehicle was in an accident and had structural damage she attempted to sell it, but she found that other dealers would not given her a very good price for it, and chose to sell it back to GTA as he would give her the most money for it. Logically, this suggests that other dealers saw there were problems with the vehicle affecting its value, whereas GTA was willing to take it back at a higher price to make a further sale and then resell the vehicle.

It is also of concern that in the revised Bill of Sale when the Vicente vehicle was traded in, the words "structural damage" are added in the "description" area when they were not in the original version. In the box to the left of the description, the Applicant wrote in a paragraph which still referred to a dent, and simply stated how happy the purchaser was with the transaction. On its face, this would appear to be a rather crude attempt to recreate paperwork, and does not assist the cause of GTA at this hearing.

The Tribunal finds that Mr. Shahidi allowed many of the salespersons to conduct the sales on their own. He may have made the original purchase invoices available for his staff to their review, but there did not seem to be any system in place to ensure that the disclosure from the purchase Bills of Sale was put on the Bills of Sale to the customers. Even when Mr. Shahidi prepared or signed the paperwork himself, he did not check back with the original Bills of Sale to ensure that all of the disclosure information from the purchase Bill of Sale was on the Bill of Sale when the vehicles were sold. He clearly had the policy that he did not put the notation "structural damage" as disclosure on the Bills of Sale, so it was not simply the case of a lack of supervision of his sales people.

When he conducted a sale himself, he did not ensure that the disclosure concerning the defective odometer was on the Bill of Sale for Mr. Lembo. In that case it appears that there was later proof that the odometer was, in fact, a problem as evidenced in the handwritten Agreement between the parties.

There were also errors in the Journal and Garage Register in which defects on vehicles were not mentioned.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant made an effort to keep the Journal and Garage Register as required, however these were not as accurate. He did at least send them to O.M.V.I.C. as required. He also kept the paperwork surrounding the acquisition of the vehicles as required but did not make the proper arrangements for it to be available on demand, so again he did not meet the terms and conditions of the Order.

On a strict reading of the Tribunal's Order paragraph 36, there are no specific requirements that the Applicant include on the Bill of Sale any statements as to the odometer status of vehicles which appeared on the document by which the applicant obtained vehicle. This information was to be explained to the purchaser. The Order did not include a requirement for the Applicant to write on a customer's Bill of Sale the disclosure statements from the purchase Bill of Sale with regard to other matters such as structural damage. However this is part of GTA's general obligations of full and complete disclosure. If Mr. Shahidi disagreed with the notation on the purchase Bill of Sale, he did have the option of obtaining a proper independent inspection of the vehicle and providing the results of that to the potential customer. He was required to make complete notes of this on his separate journal; however he failed to do that as well.

In the sale of the vehicle to Mr. Lembo he clearly failed to meet the requirements of the Order as set out above, since the disclosure provided on the purchase Bill of Sale related to an odometer. In this case the distance travelled was of a particular importance to purchaser. As in the Vicente transaction; in the Lembo transaction; the Applicant used a subsequent written document to try to imply that the appropriate information had been given and did not make it clear that it was done only after the initial sale.

The Tribunal finds that GTA did use Bills of Sale in which his company was described as GTA Auto Inc. but he provided an innocent explanation. He may have been careless in not noticing it when he received the reprinted forms; however, there was no intent to mislead or deceive the customers.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Act provides that the Registrar may revoke the registration of the Applicant where the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant to past conduct:

In this case, the Applicant showed a consistent pattern of failing to disclose information provided as disclosure on the initial purchase of vehicles. He may have thought that the disclosure was not accurate but he took no steps to find out. He did not leave the customer the option of making their own inquiry, and satisfying themselves that the vehicles were structurally sound.

The salespeople did not provide proper disclosure and were not properly supervised; however the Applicant himself did not provide full disclosure when he dealt with the customers himself.

Of further concern is the fact that when he found that there was a problem with the sale of a vehicle and he had not given adequate disclosure, he attempted to create paperwork to give the impression that full disclosure was given, and the client was happy.

In the case of the Lembo's vehicle, the odometer was in fact defective as indicated on the purchase Bill of Sale.

In the Vicente transaction, when she attempted to sell the vehicle to other dealers, she could not get a good price for it so she ended up selling it back to GTA who took it for resale. This leads to the inescapable conclusion that the other dealers all realized that there was a problem with the vehicle which affected its price, but this was of no concern to GTA. Even though GTA was given a second chance by being put on terms and conditions, it did not implement the necessary procedures for its sales staff or in its own dealings to prevent a repeat of the same problems. The result is that the same pattern of behaviour appears to be continuing and as a result, GTA does not appear to be a good candidate for Terms and Conditions again at this time.

A motor vehicle dealer or salesperson deals with members of the public who are purchasing or selling products of substantial value, and are depended upon not to misrepresent the value or quality of the vehicles. By withholding or falsifying information, they are in a position to take advantage of a vulnerable consumer, and the public must have confidence that the dealer or salesperson will not put their own personal interests ahead of their responsibility and to conduct business with honesty and integrity. The Tribunal finds that in this case the Applicant did not meet the required standard.

Cumulatively all of the above behaviour provides reasonable grounds to believe that there will be future behaviour which does not meet the statutory standard of acting with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law.

On the issue of whether the Applicant will carry on business in accordance with the law, the Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant to past conduct.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity, honesty and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Licence Registration Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicant.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "Proposal") by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal, dated January 22, 2002, seeks to revoke the registration of John Forsythe ("Forsythe") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the revocation of Forsythe's registration which reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disqualification to registration under the Act.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 1)

The particulars that the Registrar relies on are stated in the Proposal as follows:

The reasons for this proposal are:

1. John P. Forsythe (hereinafter referred to as "Forsythe") was first registered as a motor vehicle salesperson since on or before March 16, 1989 and is currently registered under the Act.
2. 1117238 Ontario Limited o/a Southern Automobiles Ltd. (hereinafter the "Dealer") is an Ontario corporation that was registered as a motor vehicle dealer from July 12, 1996 until July 12, 1998.
3. Forsythe is the sole officer/director of the Dealer.
4. The Dealer failed to comply with the requirements of the Retail Sales Tax Act as to the filing of returns, remitting of tax due and paying assessments when due.
5. As a result of failure to comply with the Retail Sales Tax Act, the Dealer is indebted to the Ministry of Finance in the amount of $57,534.65 as of September 13, 2001.
6. On or about the 15th day of July 1998, Forsythe entered into terms and conditions, which were attached to his registration as a motor vehicle sales person. Clause 1) of the conditions states:
 - 1) I agree to assume full responsibility of any monies currently owing or those that may be assessed in the future as owing to Revenue Canada or the Ministry of Finance arising from business transactions while I was the director/owner of 1117238 Ontario Ltd. o/a Southern Automobiles.
7. Forsythe has failed to comply with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, in particular with section 5.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 1)

Subsequent to the Proposal the Registrar filed a Notice of Further and Other Particulars (the "further particulars") dated August 28, 2002 and which further particulars stated as follows:

It is further alleged as follows:

1. The Bank of Nova Scotia has an outstanding judgement against John P. Forsythe.
2. The judgement is in the amount of $34,959.39.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 2)

By written Notice of Appeal Forsythe informed the Tribunal that he required a hearing regarding his appeal to the Registrar's Proposal. Attached to the Notice of Appeal was the "Applicant's Position" which stated as follows:

APPELLANT'S POSITION:

1. In 1996, the Appellant, John P. Forsythe, purchased the dealership known as Southern Automobiles from Mr. James Harris for the nominal sum of $1.00 in exchange for the right to allow Mr. Harris to continue to sell automobiles on a wholesale basis from the said dealership.
2. That same year, the Appellant formed a new company, 1117238 Ontario Ltd., which later became Southern Automobiles (1996) Ltd. The Appellant also obtained a dealer's licence.
3. In 1998, Southern was audited by the Minister of Finance. In preparing for this audit, the Appellant obtained a RIN summary from the Licence Bureau and discovered that nearly 100 vehicles had been sold for which he had no record. The Appellant ultimately discovered that Mr. Harris had fraudulently used Southern's dealership licence number and had failed to remit provincial sales taxes.
4. During the course of the audit, the Appellant contacted the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") seeking assistance to resolve the problem presented by Mr. Harris' unauthorized and fraudulent use of Southern's licence number. OMVIC suggested that the Appellant's wife apply for a licence to operate a dealership which she obtained and now operates under the name and style of Canada Car Depot. Contemporaneously, OMVIC also drafted an agreement ("the agreement") whereby the Appellant would assume "full responsibility for any monies currently owing or those that may be assessed in the future as owing to Revenue Canada or the Ministry of Finance arising from business transactions while [he] was the director/owner of 1117238 Ltd. o/a Southern Automobiles.
5. This agreement was drafted, in its entirety, by OMVIC. The agreement was presented to the Appellant with the heading "Without Prejudice" and was signed by the Appellant on July 17, 1998.
6. The Appellant submits that the July 17, 1998 agreement is not enforceable as it was entered into on a "without prejudice" basis. The agreement, as entered into by both parties, was not intended to be a binding legal document and does not create any legal obligations that must be met by the Appellant.
7. The Appellant further submits that, even if the agreement were deemed enforceable, the Appellant is not in breach of said agreement. The agreement simply provides that the Appellant assume "full responsibility" for monies owing to the Minister of Finance. At all material times, the Appellant has assumed full responsibility for the monies owing and has not attempted to avoid such responsibility.
8. The Appellant further pleads and relies upon the contra proferentem rule. The Appellant submits that the agreement, as drafted by OMVIC, is ambiguous as the terms "full responsibility" are capable of several reasonable interpretations. In fact, it is the Appellant's position that if OMVIC wished to compel him to pay the debts, it would have bound him to do so in clear, enforceable language.
9. The Appellant submits that pursuant to the doctrine of contra proferentem, any ambiguity in the terms of the agreement must be interpreted against the party that drafted the agreement and the interpretation most favourable to the non-drafting party must be adopted. Accordingly, the term "full responsibility" must be interpreted in a manner such that the Appellant simply agreed to be responsible for the monies and nothing more. As such, it is clear that the Appellant has not breached the agreement and continues to meet his obligations under the terms of the agreement. The Appellant submits that any other interpretation of the terms "full responsibility" would be manifestly unjust and would impose on the Appellant terms he did not understand nor did he accept. Moreover, had OMVIC intended that the Appellant pay the monies owing to the Minister of Finance immediately upon such liabilities being assessed, OMVIC could have done so simply and effectively by including terms to that effect. OMVIC failed to include clear and unambiguous terms and, as such, the terms of the agreement must be interpreted in favour of the Applicant.

10. There is no evidence to support the allegation contained in paragraph 7 of the Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration that the Appellant has failed to comply with the provisions of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, in particular with section 5.
11. The Appellant reserves the right to make such further submissions as he deems appropriate.
12. The Appellant requests that the Licence Appeals Tribunal reverse the Registrar's decision to revoke the Appellant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Motor vehicle Dealers Act.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented by the Registrar to the Tribunal at the hearing consisted of the testimony of Ms. Nicole Jordan ("Jordan") and Ms. Mary Jane South ("South") as well as documentary evidence. The evidence presented by Forsythe at the hearing consisted of his testimony as well as documentary evidence.

NICOLE JORDAN'S EVIDENCE

Jordan testified that she is employed by the Ministry of Finance (the "Ministry") in its Ottawa offices as Manager of collections. In her testimony she stated that during 1998 Southern Automobiles Ltd. ("Southern") was audited by the Ministry. Southern was then operated by Forsythe as a motor vehicle dealer and was registered with the Ministry on September 1, 1996. As a result of the audit the Ministry determined that Southern had an outstanding and unpaid balance due the Ministry in respect of Retail Sales Tax. The total amount due and owing by Southern for unpaid Retail Sales Tax together with interest and penalty covering the period September 1, 1996 to May 31, 1998 amounted to $57,534.65.

In June 1998, the Ministry referred the unpaid account of Southern for collection and subsequent thereto Forsythe as Director of Southern contacted the Ministry and he personally entered into an arrangement for payment of the amount owing. No payments were received, despite demand, and the Ministry issued a garnishment which resulted in only $105.03 being obtained.

No further or other payments were received. On December 21, 1998 Forsythe advised the Ministry that Southern had ceased to operate as of May 31, 1998. Forsythe when advising the Ministry that Southern was no longer operating, also advised the Ministry that he was working for a new motor vehicle dealer although he did not disclose that the new dealer was Forsythe's wife.

The Ministry, having failed to recover the outstanding tax, interest and penalty from Southern, then pursued Forsythe in terms of Section 43 of the Retail Sales Tax Act which makes the Directors of a corporation in default jointly and severally liable together with the corporation for payment of the outstanding taxes, penalty and interest.

The Ministry advised the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council of Forsythe's default and failure to make payments to the Ministry in terms of his arrangement.

Under cross-examination Jordan stated that all correspondence that was addressed by the Ministry to Forsythe was sent to 29, Chippewa Avenue, Nepean, Ontario. According to the records of the Ministry, Forsythe did call Ms. Larches, a collections officer at the Ministry on April 17, 2002 to enquire regarding arrangements he wished to make with the Ministry for "some kind of a settlement in order to reactivate his salespersons licence".

MARY JANE SOUTH'S EVIDENCE

South testified that she is the Deputy Registrar under the Act and in that capacity she oversees the registration of motor vehicle dealers and salespersons. South also testified that the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") has, since 1997, been delegated with authority and responsibility to administer the Act and its regulations. She further testified that the Act is a public protection statute enacted with the purpose of ensuring the protection of the public in their dealings with motor vehicle dealers and salespersons. South also referred to section 5 of the Act and described for the Tribunal the import of that section which deals with registration of applicants for dealerships and salespersons.

South also stated that OMVIC had caused a print out to be obtained from Companies Branch. This print out, current to August 28, 2002, indicated that 1117238 Ontario Ltd. operating as Southern was initially incorporated on March 24, 1995 and that as of that date Forsythe was appointed its first and as sole director as well as its president and secretary.

South stated that Forsythe agreed to voluntarily surrender his salesperson's licence and on June 1, 1998 he confirmed in writing that he would so at such time as 1292162 Ontario Ltd. was granted a dealer's registration. This latter corporation was to be his wife's corporation and she would be its sole director and officer.

OMVIC subsequently received information that Southern owed Retail Sales Tax which was outstanding and she was concerned that this amount had not been paid. Forsythe agreed that he would assume responsibility for the outstanding tax and accordingly a document encompassing "terms and conditions" was drawn up by OMVIC for Forsythe's signature. This document was then sent by OMVIC to Forsythe for his perusal and signature. This document was then signed by Forsythe as "salesperson" and by his wife as "dealer" and was returned to OMVIC.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 7)

South testified that it was the intention of OMVIC when drafting the document for Forsythe's signature, that he was to be and remain liable for Southern's indebtedness for Retail Sales Tax and that the document would be "enforceable" against Forsythe. Despite signing the document neither Forsythe nor Southern have made payment of the outstanding Retail Sales Tax. This is perturbing to South in that it indicates that Forsythe has failed to meet a liability imposed upon him.

South also testified that the Bank of Nova Scotia has a default judgement in its favour against Forsythe. This default judgement for the sum of $34,536.39 plus interest and costs, was granted on April 23, 2001 in the Superior Court of Justice. The present status of this default judgement according to South is that it remains unsatisfied.

South concluded her testimony by stating that the non-payment of taxes to the Ministry and the judgement in favour of The Bank of Nova Scotia, indicates that Forsythe cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

JOHN PATTON FORSYTHE

Forsythe testified that in the summer of 1996 one James Harris, for whom he was then working as sales manager in a motor vehicle dealership, approached him and offered to sell his dealership to him. A deal was struck between Forsythe and Harris in terms of which for the nominal amount of $1.00 Forsythe purchased the dealership. Forsythe incorporated a new corporation to operate the dealership. This new corporation was 1117238 Ontario Ltd. which he operated as Southern. Harris, at the time of the transaction, had a number of vehicles which were owned by him and which were still on the dealership's lot. Forsythe agreed these vehicles could remain on the lot pending their sale by Harris who undertook thereafter to concentrate on "wholesaling vehicles which sales would not attract retail sales tax."

Some time later, Forsythe received a call from the Ministry that Forsythe's corporation was to be audited by the Ministry. In preparation for the expected audit, Forsythe obtained a RIN summary from the licencing bureau and when he went through this summary he was shocked to see that there were some 100 vehicles listed as having been sold by Southern which he had no record of as they were not in fact sold by him. He made enquiries and ascertained that these approximately 100 vehicles had been sold retail by Harris who, without Forsythe's authorization, was using Southern's dealership registration number to sell retail. Forsythe confronted Harris with this information who admitted selling retail using Southern's registration number, but he was not prepared to do anything about refunding the retail sales tax debited by the Ministry to Southern. He claimed he was judgement proof, with all assets in his wife's name.

Forsythe conceded he received a bill from the Ministry for approximately $34,000.00 for Retail Sales Tax which he had failed to remit and for which he was liable. Harris at the same time was given a separate bill by the Ministry for Retail Sales Tax but failed to remit to the Ministry.

Forsythe stated further that he reported the situation to Ms. Laura Gordon ("Gordon") at OMVIC. Gordon wanted him to deal with the debt owing to the Ministry for unpaid Retail Sales Tax. He agreed to sign the "terms and conditions" which Gordon had faxed to him pursuant to his conversation with Gordon. He then obtained a new dealership licence from OMVIC which it issued to his wife. After the audit undertaken by the Ministry he agreed to pay his portion of outstanding Retail Sales Tax to the Ministry at the rate of $500.00 per month. This undertaking was made when he agreed to the terms and conditions arrived at with the Ministry.

Insofar as his liability due to The Bank of Nova Scotia is concerned, Forsythe stated he had spoken with the Bank's lawyers "yesterday" and he believes that "we are close to a settlement". Since the date of the judgement he has made no payments in reduction of this indebtedness. He also stated he has made no payment to the Ministry for the sum of approximately $34,000.00 owing for Retail Sales Tax.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are to the facts found to have been proven:

1. The Applicant was initially registered as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act in March 1989 and is presently so registered.
2. 1117238 Ontario Ltd. operating as Southern was incorporated on March 24, 1995 and was registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act from July 1996 until July 1998.
3. The Applicant was appointed as the sole director, president and secretary of Southern commencing March 24, 1995 and presently remains so registered.
4. For the period September 1, 1996 to May 31, 1998 1117235 Ontario Ltd. became liable to the Ministry of Finance, Ontario, for Retail Sales Tax in terms of the Retail Sales Tax Act R.S.O.
5. The amount for which 1117238 Ontario Ltd. is liable to the Ministry of Finance for Retail Sales Tax together with penalty and interest, calculated as at September 18, 2001, is the sum of $57,534.65 which sum remains presently outstanding and due and owing.
6. In terms of section 43 of the Retail Sales Tax Act, R.S.O. the Applicant is personally liable to the Ministry of Finance for the sum of $57,534.65 in respect of unpaid Retail Sales Tax, interest and penalties and which sum he has failed to pay.
7. On or about July 15, 1998 the Applicant signed an undertaking addressed to the Registrar in which the Applicant agreed "to assume full responsibility for any monies currently owing or those monies that may be assessed in the future as owing to Revenue Canada or the Ministry of Finance arising from business transactions while I was the director/owner of 1117238 Ontario Ltd. o/a Southern Automobiles".
8. On or about April 23, 2001, The Bank of Nova Scotia obtained a default judgement against the Applicant in the Superior Court of Justice for the sum of $34,536.39 plus costs and interest. The Applicant has, as of September 10, 2002, failed to in part or at all reduce or liquidate the amount owing to The Bank of Nova Scotia under the above default judgement.

THE LAW:

Section 5.1 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

5 (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6.2 of the Act states;

6. (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 43.(1) of the Retail Sales Tax Act states:

Where a corporation has failed to collect tax or has collected tax and failed to remit the tax or has failed to pay any interest or penalty relating thereto, the directors of the corporation at the time the corporation was required to collect or remit the taxes or to pay the interest or penalty relating thereto, are jointly and severally liable, together with the corporation to pay such amounts.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In these proceedings the Registrar proposes to revoke the Registration of the Applicant on the basis of Section 5.(1)(a) and (b) and section 6.(2) of the Act.

The following are the issues for consideration by the Tribunal.

1. Having regard to the financial position of the Applicant and his failure to pay the amounts presently due and owing to the Ministry of Finance and The Bank of Nova Scotia, can the Applicant be reasonably expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business;

2. Does the past conduct of the Applicant afford the Registrar with reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

It is necessary to note that it is the Registrar's belief that is at issue in these proceedings, not that of the Tribunal. The proper function of the Tribunal is to review the Registrar's decision in order to determine whether or not he was in error in coming to his decision to revoke the Applicant's registration. In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971 – 1989) page 95 Southey J. stated:

The effect of Section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

Amount owing to the Ministry of Finance

1117238 Ontario Ltd. operating as Southern collected Retail Sales Tax from purchasers of motor vehicles and failed to remit such taxes to the Ministry. In addition the company failed to collect Retail Sales Tax from certain purchasers. All these taxes, together with interest thereon plus penalties, were not remitted to the Ministry. The Applicant admitted that the taxes collected but not remitted to the Ministry were collected by Southern in respect of sales concluded by Southern. These taxes were in fact trust funds which Southern failed to remit.

On the Applicant's own testimony, as well as what he stated in his letter of explanation dated March 18, 2002 addressed to the Registrar, he conceded that his share of liability for unremitted taxes was "approximately $34,000 which consisted of $19,000.00 tax not remitted" and "$15,000.00 in penalties".

The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Jordan that the Applicant acknowledged liability for payment but failed to make payment as he had undertaken to do. The Tribunal also accepts that the Applicant was, (and still is), the sole director and controlling mind of Southern and that he was at all stages aware of Southern's liability for outstanding tax. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant, by virtue of his directorship in Southern and the latter's failure to pay the Retail Sales Tax that remains due and owing to the Ministry, is personally liable to the Ministry in terms of Section 43 of the Retail Sales Tax Act, for that outstanding tax and further finds that he has failed to make payment thereof to the Ministry.

The fact that the Applicant did acknowledge his liability to the Ministry, undertook to liquidate same and the failed to implement his undertaking is evidence that supports the Registrar's belief that in the future the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

The Applicant's contention that the July 15, 1998 agreement prepared by OMVIC is not enforceable as it was entered into on a "without prejudice" basis, is rejected by the Tribunal as it was clearly the intention of the parties, pursuant to negotiations, that the "terms and conditions" would be legally binding.

The Applicant's Counsel, in referring to the Terms and Conditions prepared by OMVIC and which were signed by the Applicant, submitted that there was ambiguity in that document in the use of the words "full responsibility". Counsel contended that pursuant to the doctrine of contra proferentem the agreement must be interpreted against OMVIC and the words "full responsibility" must be interpreted in a manner such that the Applicant "simply agreed to be responsible for the monies and nothing more". The Tribunal does not agree with the interpretation placed upon those words by Applicant's Counsel and sees no ambiguity in the words used, being "capable of several reasonable interpretations". The plain and normal meaning of the words "responsible" is that the person would be responsible for and pay the amount for which he undertook responsibility.

However, the Tribunal does not believe the issue in this matter turns on a finding of whether or not Applicant's Counsel is correct in his interpretation of the words "full responsibility" and whether such words are ambiguous. At issue in this matter is not the validity or interpretation of the Terms and Conditions but whether or not the Applicant's acts and omissions give reasonable cause for the Registrar to expect the Applicant not to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

The Tribunal has not doubt that the conduct of the Applicant is not paying over to the Ministry what are essentially trust funds held by the Applicant on the Ministry's behalf, is in itself a display of financial irresponsibility in the conduct of business that bodes ill for the future conduct of the Applicant in business. Additionally, the conduct of the Applicant, that has persisted since 1998, in not making any payments to the Ministry of what is essentially trust monies, is not only dishonest and lacking in integrity, but is conduct contrary to law.

This conduct, which has persisted since 1998 and still persists, is clearly conduct that affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not in the future carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

Amount owing to The Bank of Nova Scotia

The Bank of Nova Scotia has a default judgement in a substantial amount against the Applicant. No appeal has been filed in regard to that judgement. Applicant does not contest the judgement. The evidence before the Tribunal is that no portion of judgement has been liquidated since April 2001. Only in the days before the hearing did the Applicant contact the Bank's lawyers to try to commence "negotiations" regarding the amount owing. The Applicant's failure or refusal to deal with this matter, does not imbue the Tribunal with confidence in the Applicant's ability to deal responsibly in business as well as with integrity. The Tribunal finds no error in the Registrar's decision to revoke the Applicant's registration.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated January 22, 2002, to revoke the registration of John Forsythe as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by Gomes and Sons Transport Inc. (the "Applicant") respecting the decisions of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") dated May 23, 2002 to suspend CVOR Certificate #124-881-797 and plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to the Applicant until such time as payment is made for all unpaid fines.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

When the matter was called at 9:30 a.m. there was no appearance by either the agent on behalf of the Applicant or by the Applicant itself. The matter, accordingly, stood down for thirty minutes as is the Tribunal's usual practice. When at 10:10 a.m. the matter did proceed one Jackie Dennis appeared before the Tribunal and advised the Tribunal that her husband, Harvey Dennis of City Wide Paralegal Services, who had been retained by the Applicant, was not available and handed the Tribunal a letter dated September 13, 2002 which stated, in part, as follows:

Please be advised that I am unable to attend as I have a matter in another court that I was just advised about by my client about just recently.

I was going to contact Mr. Patrick Moore of my situation but I have been so busy that it slipped my mind to do so.

I have tried to contact Mr. Patrick Moore on September 9, 2002 and found out by a very helpful person at the Ministry of Transportation in St. Catharines that he was tied up in meetings till late in the afternoon.

It would be greatly appreciated if this matter could be adjourned to a new date so I can attend and bring this matter to an end.

Counsel for the Registrar objected to the granting of an adjournment on the basis that the present hearing date was arranged in June of 2002 when the date was agreed to by Registrar's Counsel so as to accommodate the Applicant's agent who had specifically requested September 13, 2002 as the date for the hearing of this matter. The Registrar's Counsel also objected on the basis that the Registrar's witness from the Ministry of Transportation was present having been obliged to travel from St. Catharines to give evidence.

Ms. Jackie Dennis declined to respond to the Registrar's Counsel's submissions. The Tribunal denied the request for an adjournment and ordered that the hearing proceed in the absence of the Applicant or its agent.

EVIDENCE:

The only witness for the Registrar was Don Gillett ("Gillett") who testified that he is employed by the Ministry of Transportation as a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator. In his aforesaid capacity he reviews and analyses files of commercial vehicle operators for integrity of operation. If intervention is required pursuant to his review of an operator's file

Gillett submits his findings to the Deputy Registrar for the latter's approval. This was done in the matter of the Applicant and after completing his analysis of the Applicant he formulated the Suspension and Seizure Order and submitted it to the Deputy Registrar for approval. The Deputy Registrar approved the Suspension and Seizure Order (the "Order") and signed same on May 23, 2002.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 2, pages 3 and 4)

The reasons for the Order is based upon the failure of the Applicant to pay fines imposed by court. The Applicant was given until June 14, 2002 to provide proof of payment of outstanding fines failing which to show cause why the Order should not be effective as of June 17, 2002 and shall remain in force until payment of all outstanding fines are made. Attached to the Order was a computer print out of the outstanding fines then due and owing by the Applicant. The fines together with penalties imposed for non payment of such fines as well as accrued interest as at May 23, 2002 was the sum of $4096.75. This sum represented the following unpaid fines:

OFFENCE DESCRIPTION	SENTENCE DATE	AMT OWING
FAIL TO KEEP ALL DAILY	20 07 99	398.75
FL. INSP/REPAIR/MAIN.	14 01 02	412.50
DRIVE MOTOR VEHICLE, NO	22 05 98	128.75
DRIVE MOTOR VEHICLE, NO	06 10 97	128.75
PERMIT/OPERATE UNSAFE V	05 04 01	1895.00
DRIVE MOTOR VEHICLE, NO	20 07 98	128.75
FAIL TO ENSURE STANDARD	28 07 97	398.75
AXLE OVERLOADING	21 05 98	191.75
CONVERSION STATUTE	15 08 00	413.75

Gillett testified that the unpaid fines covered the period July 1997 through to and including April 2001. He also stated that the Order was sent to the Applicant by both fax and by courier. The faxed Order was received by the Applicant on May 24, 2002 and a copy of the Order sent by courier was delivered to the Applicant on May 27, 2002. Attached to and forming part of the Order was a computer print out of the outstanding fines.

(Exhibit 4, tab 2, pages 7, 8 and 9)

Gillett also testified as to each offence that resulted in the imposition of a fine and explained when the offences were committed, when the fines in respect of each offence were imposed, as well as the court which imposed each fine.

(Exhibit 4, tab 3, pages 10 to 49)

Gillett stated that he met and spoke with both Mr. and Mrs. Gomes of the Applicant in regard to the outstanding fines and gave them a computer print out of what fines were outstanding and in respect of what offences the fines were imposed and the dates of the commission of all offences.

He further stated that as far back as May 1999 he handed to Antonio Gomes, the Applicant's President, a copy of the Facility Audit Findings which at that date indicated outstanding fines of $1,374.00. In the Facility Audit Findings the Applicant was urged, if necessary, to reconcile the fines then outstanding with the District Courts.

Again in January 2001 a warning letter from the Ministry of Transport was addressed to the Applicant regarding the outstanding and unpaid fines and on January 11, 2001 a letter to the Applicant stated:

Your record also indicates unpaid fines. Please take the attached listing, identified as the ICON Inquiry Subsystem Outstanding Payments Update listing, with you to any provincial court so they can relate to the appropriate case numbers. Please forward a copy of the court receipts to this office to confirm payment.

Gillett testified that as before the Registrar's demands for payment were ignored.

Gillett concluded his evidence by noting that subsequent to the Applicant receiving the Order, its Agent wrote to the Registrar as follows:

Our Client: Gomes And Sons Transport

Subject: Suspension And Seizure Order

Attn: Don Gillett

As per our conversation of June 13, 2002 with respect to the above noted client Gomes And Sons Transport.

I have now arranged and filed appeals with other courts with respect to other convictions separate from your list.

I am now currently preparing the motions for the five court locations for your list of outstanding convictions and fines owing.

It is the policy of the court to allow me a few options with respect to the fines that are owing.

I will try to get an extension of the fine payment and or have our client appear on a recognize for the fine.

If the above two applications for payment are not allowed we will have no choice but to pay the amount owing and if the appeal is granted a return of the fines will be returned to our client.

I am requesting on behalf of my client an extension with respect to your order of suspension and seizures order.

The motions and or extensions should take me about 14 days to arrange either by way of payment extensions or a recognize and or payment of the fine.

An extension until June 30, would be helpful to my client and would give myself the opportunity to clear up the outstanding fines that are in arrears.

It would be much appreciated if your office would grant this brief extension to June 30, 2002.

A copy of each motion, appeal, extension and or recognize will be sent to your office by June 24, 2002.

If you have any questions or concerns you may contact my office during regular business hours.

Yours truly
"H. Dennis"

c.c. Gomes And Sons Transport Inc.

Despite that letter the Applicant's agent has not filed any motions nor filed any appeals relating to the outstanding and unpaid fines pursuant to the various court orders.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found to have been proven.

1. The Suspension and Seizure Order dated May 23, 2002 issued by the Deputy Registrar in terms of sections 47 And 47.1 of the Highway Traffic Act R.S.O. 1990 as amended was duly served upon the Applicant during May 2002.
2. Attached to such Suspension and Seizure Order was a computer print out detailing the nature of offences committed by the Applicant under the Highway Traffic Act and Regulations, the date of such offences, and the date and amount of the courts' fines or sentences relative to such offences.
3. The amount of unpaid fines imposed by courts against the Applicant under the Highway Traffic Act and Regulations is the sum of $4,096.75.
4. The Applicant fails and/or refuses to pay such fines totalling $4,096.75 .
5. The Applicant has not appealed the sentences or fines imposed against the Applicant by various courts under the Highway Traffic Act and its Regulations.

THE LAW:

Section 47.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act states:

- 47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or
 - (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
 - (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
 - (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
 - (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d) ,(e) or (f).

Section 50.1 of the aforesaid Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The [Tribunal] may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue before the Tribunal is whether the evidence placed before it supports the Suspension and Seizure Order.

There was no appearance before the Tribunal by either the Applicant or its appointed agent. The evidence of the Registrar has not been contested or disputed. On a reading of the Applicant's agent's letter of June 14, 2002 (Exhibit 4, tab 9) it is quite apparent that the Applicant does not dispute that the fines imposed by court are in fact owing.

The evidence of Gillett, which the Tribunal accepts, is clear and unambiguous. Over a period of time commencing in July 1997 and continuing until January 2002 the Applicant has failed to comply with the Highway Traffic Act and its regulations. It has failed to keep all daily logs and has been fined in respect of that infraction. It has failed to inspect/ repair/ maintain a commercial vehicle contrary to section 107 the Highway Traffic Act. It has permitted commercial vehicles to be driven without the necessary permits. It has permitted the operation of unsafe commercial vehicles contrary to Section 84 of the Highway Traffic Act. It has failed to ensure that a commercial vehicle conforms to standards contrary to Regulation 575 (g) of the the Highway Traffic Act. It unlawfully permitted a commercial vehicle to be operated with a defective wheel brake contrary to section 5(5) of regulation 587 under the Highway Traffic Act and unlawfully permitted a commercial vehicle to have an axle overload contrary to section 122(1) of the Act.

All of the above violations of the Highway Traffic Act and/or its regulations resulted in the Applicant being fined by various courts at various times. The Registrar has clearly established an ongoing course of conduct by the Applicant not to pay its various fines in the amount of $4,096.75. The Applicant established a course of conduct of non compliance with the law and repeatedly over a period of years since 1997 refused and failed to pay the fines levied against it. The Applicant had many occasions, when it was reminded of its unpaid fines, to pay such fines and yet it repeatedly did nothing to address the payment of outstanding fines. On the face of uncontested evidence placed before the Tribunal, the Applicant has demonstrated bad faith in not paying or attempting to pay its fines. Accordingly, the Registrar has demonstrated good and sufficient reason, in terms of Section 47.(1)(g) of the Highway Traffic Act, for the confirmation of the Order sought and the Tribunal finds no reason to modify or set aside the Registrar's order as the Registrar was not in error in his conclusions.

DECISION AND REASONS:

For the reasons stated above the Tribunal confirms the Suspension and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar dated May 23, 2002 and orders that CVOR certificate #124-881-797 and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to Gomes and Sons Transport Inc. be suspended until such time as payment is made to the Courts for all unpaid fines imposed upon the Applicant.

The Tribunal further orders that the plate portions of permits, or if issued by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits and the number plates be seized.

And the Tribunal further orders that Gomes and Sons Transport Inc. shall not transfer any commercial vehicles or trailers for which a permit has been issued in Ontario without consent of the Registrar.

AND IN THE MATTER OF the application for registration as a Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic Number 49569 by Joseph Hopper holding Trade Certificate Number 310J-920804 dated February 6, 2002.

TRIBUNAL: DAVID J. HUNT, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: PATRICK MOORE
Counsel for the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards

No one appearing for the Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: August 27, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant, Peterborough Equipment Trailers Ltd. for the issue of a Motor Vehicle Inspection Station licence, Application number 49569, and the application for registration as a Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic, Application number 49569 by Joseph Hopper, collectively referred to herein as (the "Applicant"), respecting a proposal by the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards to refuse registration.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1: Proposal to Refuse dated May 8, 2000, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

Exhibit #2: Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal June 17, 2000, filed by the Applicant.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

This appeal had been scheduled to be heard by the Tribunal on August 27, 2002 at 9:30 a.m. One or two days prior to the hearing, Jelle W. Bosch, a lawyer consulted by the Applicant contacted counsel for the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards and advised that he was not retained, would not be appearing, and advised that Mr. Hopper was aware of the date and place of the hearing. Prior to commencing the hearing, at the scheduled time of 9:30 a.m., a call was placed by the Hearings Co-ordinator for the Tribunal to the Applicant's business phone number, and the number was answered by a female party using the company name of Peterborough Equipment Trailers Ltd. This person stated that Mr Hopper was not there, and she didn't know where he was. The hearing was adjourned for half an hour, and before commencing after 10:00 a.m. another call was placed to the Applicant's phone number, but there was no further news of Mr. Hopper.

FACTS:

The Director's Grounds for Revocation:

By Notice dated May 8, 2002, the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards refused the application pursuant to subsection 91(8)(a) and (e) and section 93(a) and (c) of the Highway Traffic Act R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended:

ON THE GROUNDS THAT the past conduct of the director of the applicant corporation, Joseph Hopper affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Motor Vehicle Inspection Station will not be operated in accordance with the law and with honesty and integrity in that the said Joseph Hopper has issued vehicle inspection stickers including Number E259989 in May, 2001 and Number E260004 dated August, 2001 not being a registered Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic or having inspected the vehicles in a licensed motor vehicle inspection station.

AND FURTHER ON THE GROUNDS THAT Joseph Hopper failed to comply with the requirements of Regulation 601 upon closing the operation at his prior Motor Vehicle Inspection Station.

The Respondent called one inspector for the Ministry of Transportation who was involved in the investigation of the Applicant.

DON LAWRENCE

Mr. Lawrence testified that he is an officer for the Ministry of Transport, and has been employed here for seven years. He is based in the eastern region, and works in the Peterborough, Victoria county and Northumberland area. In September 1999, Mr. Hopper's previous inspection station at 113 Park St. Peterborough, Ontario, had ordered 25 books of annual stickers, but they were returned as the Applicant had moved and had not notified the Ministry. In May, June and July 1999, he had ordered and received 48 books of stickers although in the past, he had only ordered five or six books. Accordingly, there were previous concerns with Mr. Joseph Hopper.

An attempt was made to contact him at his residence, but his wife advised that he wasn't there, and a message was left for him to contact the Ministry but he never did. The station and Mr. Hopper were 'red flagged' on the computer so that they would be investigated if there was a contact. It was confirmed that the business had been moved, and when an audit was done it was found that the building had been bulldozed as set out in the Audit Report (Exhibit 3, Tab 6, p. 24). The station was terminated by the Ministry in October 1999.

On December 21, 2001, Mr. Hopper called the Ministry to request more books of safety inspection stickers. The status of the station was run on the computer, and it was found that the licence had expired in October 1999 when Mr. Hopper was advised that he could not be issued more stickers, as the station no longer existed. He made a request to open a new station at 2655 Lakeshore Road, Port Hope, Ontario.

When Mr. Lawrence inspected the station on January 10, 2002, as a result of this, he found that the application seemed to be in order. Joseph Hopper provided him with his Trade Certificate Number 310J920804, which he knew to be a designation for trailers due to the "J" and the Application form showed that the station was for the inspection of trailers (Exhibit 3, tab 2). Mr. Hopper provided letters of incorporation, but he could not produce a lease agreement. When the witness checked on his Trade number he found that it had expired in 1993. There was also an application form for three books of 10 Safety Standard Inspection stickers. When Mr. Hopper found that his licence had expired, he applied to have it re-instated, but had been working for a period of time without a valid licence.

On January 17, 2002, the witness attended at Mr. Hopper's place of business and found an annual inspection sticker number E259989 stamped May 2001 attached on a truck, and found inspection sticker number E260004 attached to the two axles of a trailer. Both stickers were registered to Trailcom Industries, which was the expired Motor Vehicle Inspection Station registered to Mr. Hopper. Mr. Hopper had therefore been issuing stickers without a valid licence. A charge was laid, and Mr. Hopper was convicted of issuing inspection stickers without a licence.

When the witness spoke to Mr. Hopper on the same day, he asked to see the annual inspection books, but he was told that Mr. Hopper could not find them. He produced no records, and had no unused stickers to return.

FACTS:

The following are the facts found to have been proven:

The Applicant in this matter, Mr. Joseph Hopper had previously been licenced to inspect trailers, and been an owner of a Motor Vehicle Inspection Station. He let his licence lapse in 1993. In 1999, he obtained approximately 480 stickers, while his station was still operating, and continued to work at the Station. He closed the station without sending back the unused stickers as required, and did not notify the Ministry that the station was closed. He issued the stickers when his licence had expired, and applied stickers to the power units of two vehicles, although he had been only certified for trailers.

He was also not keeping proper records, as he could not produce the annual inspection books.

ISSUES:

The issues in this case may be summarized as follows:

Should the decision of the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards to refuse the Motor Vehicle Inspection Station licence be carried out?

LAW:

The Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chap H.8 as amended, provides as follows:

Motor Vehicle Inspection Station Licence:

- 91(1) No person shall establish, operate or maintain a motor vehicle inspection station except under the authority of a licence issued by the Director under this Act and the Director may issue a licence for a motor vehicle inspection station subject to the conditions that the Director may specify in the licence.
- 91(2) Subject to subsection (3), any person who applies in accordance with this Act and the regulations for a licence to establish, operate or maintain a motor vehicle inspection station and who meets the requirements of this Act and the regulations and who pays the prescribed fee is entitled to be issued the licence
- 91 (3) Subject to section. 95 the Director may refuse to issue a motor vehicle inspection station licence where in his opinion or in her opinion.
 - (a) The past conduct of the applicant, or where the applicant is a corporation, of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that the motor vehicle inspection station will not be operated in accordance with the law and with honesty and integrity.

Revocation of a Licence:

- 91(8) The Director may revoke or refuse to renew a motor vehicle inspection station licence where,
 - (a) any person has made a false statement in the application for the licence or a renewal thereof or in any safety standards certificate signed by the licensee or a person authorized in writing by the licensee or in any report, document or other information required to be furnished by this Act or the regulations or any other Act or regulation that applies to the motor vehicle inspection station;

- (b) any inspection authorized by the licence is incompetently performed;
- (c) the licensee or any motor vehicle inspection mechanic employed in the motor vehicle inspection station has misrepresented the condition of a vehicle with respect to the standards of equipment and performance prescribed by the regulations upon an inspection of the vehicle in the station for the purpose of determining whether or not to issue a safety standards certificate, sign a vehicle inspection record or affix a vehicle inspection sticker;
- (d) there is a breach of condition of the licence;
- (e) the licensee does not comply with this Act or the regulations;
- (f) the inspections that can be performed by the motor vehicle inspection station are misrepresented; or
- (g) a change in the officers or directors of any corporation that is a licensee would afford grounds for refusing to issue a motor vehicle inspection station licence under clause (3)(a)

Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic:

- 92(1) No person shall sign a vehicle inspection record as mechanic or certify in a safety standards certificate that a vehicle complies with the standards of equipment and performance prescribed by the regulations unless the person is registered by the Director as a motor vehicle inspection mechanic in a motor vehicle inspection station and the Director may so register any person for whom application is made under subsection (2).
- (2) Where a licensee or an applicant for a motor vehicle inspection station applies for the registration as a motor vehicle inspection mechanic in the motor vehicle inspection station of the licensee or in the proposed motor vehicle inspection station of the applicant for a licence, as the case may be, of any person who meets the requirements of this Act and the regulations, the person is entitled to be registered as a motor vehicle inspection mechanic in the motor vehicle inspection station.
- 92 (4) Subject to section 95, the Director may refuse to register a motor vehicle inspection mechanic where in his or her opinion,
 - (a) the past conduct of the mechanic provides reasonable grounds for belief that the mechanic will not act as a motor vehicle inspection mechanic in accordance with the law, and with honesty and integrity.
- 93 The Director may revoke the registration of a motor vehicle inspection mechanic where,
 - (a) the registrant or the licensee has made a false statement in the application for registration of the registrant or in a safety standards certificate or in any report, document or other information required to be furnished by this Act or the regulations or any other Act or regulation that applies to the registrant;

- (b) any inspection performed under the authority of the mechanic's registration is incompetently performed by the registrant; or
- (c) the registrant does not comply with this Act or the regulation.

Appeal before the Licence Appeal Tribunal:

95(1) Where the Director proposes;

- (a) to refuse to issue or renew a licence;
- (b) to refuse to make a registration; or
- (c) to revoke a licence or registration, the Director shall serve notice of his or her proposal, together with written reasons therefor,

- (d) in the case of a proposal to refuse to issue a licence, upon the applicant;
- (e) in the case of a proposal to revoke or to refuse to renew a licence, upon the licensee;
- (f) in the case of a proposal to refuse to make a registration, upon the applicant or licensee and upon the proposed registrant; and
- (h) in the case of a proposal to revoke a registration, upon the registrant and the licensee of the motor vehicle inspection station in which the registrant is employed.

(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall inform the person who is the applicant, licensee, registrant or proposed registrant, as the case may be, that the person is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person mails or delivers, within fifteen days after receiving service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing to the Director and the Tribunal requiring a hearing by the Tribunal and the person may so require the hearing.

(4) Where the applicant, licensee, registrant or proposed registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and shall hold the hearing and may by order direct the Director to carry out his or her proposal and to take the action that the Tribunal considers the Director ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Director.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

The Applicant in this matter let his certificate lapse, and carried on with the inspections while unlicensed. The number of stickers he ordered after the termination of his based station, he increased the number of stickers issued while he was unlicensed, and the station was terminated. He closed the station without properly advising the Ministry, and did not return the unused stickers. When he was finally located it was discovered that he had applied stickers to power units, when he was only licensed for trailer inspections. Mr. Hopper also had no record of the inspections, and was not keeping records as he was required to do.

The Tribunal finds that the Director has shown the Applicant to have acted in a manner that defeats the integrity of the MVIS system, and misled the public.

In this case the Director has shown that the Applicant, signed when he was not entitled, and for vehicles he was not entitled, In addition to the other breaches of the act, this gives the Director the necessary grounds for the refusal of the Appellants's MVIS Licence Applications under sections 91(3)(a) and 92(4) (a) of the Highway Traffic Act.

Furthermore, the Tribunal finds that the Director has demonstrated justification for his Order on the grounds that the actions of the Applicant have clearly shown that "the past conduct of the applicant or, where the applicant is a corporation, is of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that the motor vehicle inspection station will not be operated in accordance with the law and with honesty and integrity;" as described by section 91(3)(a).

DECISION:

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL to confirm the Order of the Director to refuse the MVIS License of Joseph Hopper and Peterborough Equipment Trailers Ltd. and to refuse the registration of Joseph Hopper as a Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic.

DECISION AND ORDER

This hearing arises from a Notice of Proposal dated June 7, 2002, (the "Proposal"), issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles Dealers and Salespersons (the "Registrar"), to refuse the registration of Lih-Wu (Steve) Wang (the "Applicant"), as a salesperson under the provisions of Section 6(1) of the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act R.S.O. 1990. Ch. M.42 (the "Act"). The Registrar is appointed pursuant to Section 2 of the Act to exercise the powers and perform the duties conferred or imposed under the Act.

The Applicant by a Notice of Appeal (the "Appeal") dated June 20, 2002, requested a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") respecting the Proposal pursuant to the provisions of sections 7(2) and 7(4) of the Act.

The Registrar issued the Proposal under Section 7(1) of the Act based upon the Registrar's opinion that the Applicant is disentitled to registration as a salesperson pursuant to Section 5(1)(b) of the Act. It is the opinion of the Registrar, as stated in the Proposal, that the Applicant failed to make full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar. The Applicant in his Appeal stated that he did not carefully read and understand the application.

At the commencement of the hearing, Counsel for the Applicant stated that as a result of discussions between the Parties, a settlement of the issues had been reached and a Settlement Document had been executed by or on behalf of both Parties. Subsequent to reviewing the Settlement Document and in light of the remarks made by Counsel, the Tribunal thence marked all documents received by the Tribunal prior to the hearing severally, as Exhibits. It was proposed on consent that no further evidence would be produced or testimony given at the hearing save for the filing of the Settlement Document as a further Exhibit and attaching it to this Order as a schedule.

The Tribunal gave an oral decision subject to the release of this written order.

ORDER:

Accordingly, the Tribunal, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(5) of the Act:

- (1) endorses the terms and conditions contained in the Settlement Document marked as Exhibit #5 and attached as a schedule hereto, and
- (2) orders the Applicant to comply fully therewith.

The Applicant having withdrawn his appeal to the Tribunal, this hearing is concluded and the Appeal dismissed.

BACKGROUND:

The Applicant received her "G" licence in 1991. As early as 1993, she started experiencing mental health issues, for which she was hospitalized on several occasions between 1993 and 1999. Physician #1, a psychiatrist familiar with her medical history, indicated in March of 2001, that he had "no knowledge" that any of her mental health problems affected her driving abilities. In fact, she had been driving without incident.

When in March, 2000, she applied for the "A" class beginner's licence, the Applicant was requested to have a family doctor fill out a standard medical form issued by the Ministry of Transportation (hereinafter "MTO"). the Applicant received a letter from the MTO, dated March 16, 2000, requesting an "up to date assessment from a psychiatrist and a neurologist" to determine whether she could safely operate a Class "A" vehicle.

Physician #1 replied to the MTO in satisfaction of this request. However, the MTO threatened to suspend her licence if she was unable to return a detailed discharge summary by July 9, 2002. Her licence was subsequently suspended under section 32(12) of the Act, effective August 8, 2001, for failure to comply with this request.

Pursuant to this decision, the Applicant provided a discharge summary and the following letters to the MTO:

1. Letter from Physician #2, August 21, 2001,
2. Letter from Physician #1 dated August 13, 2001, and
3. Letter from Physician #3 dated August 16, 2001.

The letters all indicated that, while the Applicant did and still does suffer from some mental health problems, these problems have not involved motor vehicles and did not interfere with her ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

The Applicant was sent a notice of suspension of her driver's licence, under section 47(1) of the Act, dated October 29, 2001, due to alleged "evidence of a medical condition that would affect [her] ability to safely operate a motor vehicle". In November of 2001, Doctors Physician #4, Physician #5, Physician #6 and Physician #7 all wrote to MTO again supporting the reinstatement of her driver's licence.

On December 21, 2001, she attended an administrative review of the decision to suspend her licence. Her submissions included the letters from various doctors, explaining the details of her condition. None of these letters indicated that her ability to safely operate a motor vehicle was impaired by her mental illness. The MTO decided to deny her request to have her licence reinstated. In a letter dated May 9, 2002, the Deputy Registrar of the MTO stated that they would be willing to reconsider her case upon receipt of a "detailed assessment that Name has achieved a one year period free from psychiatric symptoms".

On June 20, 2002, the Applicant retained legal counsel to represent her at the appeal. An appeal of the Registrar's decision to suspend her licence under section 47(1) of the Act was submitted on June 27, 2002. The Applicant forwarded additional correspondence from her doctors to the Registrar.

On July 17, 2002, the Applicant provided further correspondence and a discharge summary.

On July 18, 2002, after reviewing the updated file, the Registrar reinstated the class "G" driver's licence of the Applicant. This reinstatement occurred 6 days prior to the scheduled hearing before this Tribunal.

DECISION:

The authority to order costs stems from the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, R.S.O. 1990, c S-22 and the Tribunal's Rules of Practice. Specifically, Rule 14 provides:

14. COSTS

- 14.1 Where a party believes that another party in proceedings before the Tribunal has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith, that party may make a request to the Tribunal for costs, which request shall be made with notice to all other parties to the proceedings and prior to the release by the Tribunal of its final order in the proceedings.

- 14.2 The Tribunal in determining whether a party has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith shall consider all of the circumstances, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, circumstances such as a party:
- (a) failing to attend a hearing before the Tribunal or to send a representative when properly given notice, without contacting the Tribunal and other parties to the hearing;
 - (b) failing to comply in a timely manner with a procedural order or direction of the Tribunal where the result therefrom is undue prejudice or delay to another party or parties in the proceedings before the Tribunal;
 - (c) failure to comply in a timely manner with the disclosure requirements set out in the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the disclosure requirements respecting documents, particulars, or constitutional issues; or
 - (d) knowingly presenting false or misleading evidence.
- 14.3 Where the Tribunal finds that a party has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith, the Tribunal may order that party pay the costs of another party or parties to the proceedings subject to Rule 14.4 respecting the amount of costs that may be ordered by the Tribunal panel.
- 14.4 Where the Tribunal determines that an order for costs may be made under Rule 14.3,
- (1) the Tribunal when determining the appropriate award of costs shall consider all the circumstances, including without limiting the generality of the foregoing, factors such as the seriousness of the misconduct, the amount of costs incurred by the party requesting costs, or the conduct of the party requesting costs; and
 - (2) the amount of costs shall not exceed,
 - (a) where the Tribunal has not commenced a hearing, the sum of $400.00; or
 - (b) where the Tribunal has commenced a hearing, the sum of $800.00 multiplied by the number of days that the Tribunal conducts a hearing of the matter, with any part day being considered a full day for the purpose of this calculation of costs.

The effect of section 14 is that the conduct of a party had to be unreasonable, frivolous, vexatious or done in bad faith. The claim by the Applicant is that the Registrar's conduct was unreasonable due to the fact that she had all the relevant medical information before her when the licence suspension was ordered and there was no change in that information when the licence was reinstated. The Tribunal's understanding of the Submissions is that there is no claim that the Registrar's conduct was frivolous, vexatious or done in bad faith.

ISSUE:

Was the decision to suspend the licence unreasonable?

Black's Law Dictionary (6th Edition) notes that unreasonable has been defined as (amongst others) "irrational, foolish, silly, senseless, stupid; immoderate; capricious or arbitrary". While the Concise Oxford Dictionary (8th Edition) is more moderate in its definitions, "1. going beyond the limits of what is reasonable or equitable...2. not guided by or listening to reason". This Tribunal prefers the latter definitions.

It is this Tribunal's finding that the Registrar did not act reasonably in reviewing the seven medical reports submitted by the Applicant. The Tribunal finds that all of those reports state to some degree or another that the Applicant's mental state would not interfere with her driving. These reports were in the possession of the Registrar well before the scheduled hearing date. To act upon them 6 days before the hearing, after counsel had been retained and the appeal filed was unreasonable in this particular circumstance. Unfortunately for the Applicant it was only after she filed her appeal and shortly before the scheduled hearing date that the Registrar reinstated her licence.

QUANTUM:

Costs are by their nature compensatory rather than punitive. Therefore, if the extent of the loss can be determined, the extent to which costs ought to be allowed can be ascertained. the Applicant paid a filing fee of one hundred dollars ($100.00) to commence this proceeding. Through most of the proceedings before the motion she was represented by a student-at-law and on the motion for costs by counsel. The Tribunal, cognisant of the four hundred dollars ($400.00) maximum permitted by the Rules which should only be awarded in extreme situations finds that a further one hundred dollars ($100.00) would be appropriate in this case.

ORDER:

The Tribunal orders that the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pay forthwith to the Applicant two hundred dollars ($200.00) as costs of this proceeding.

ORDER

The main and only apparent outstanding issue between the parties was the security equipment in the building.

No documentation was provided to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant until after the prehearing was started when a number of affidavits, together with a document labelled "Technical Report", were presented to the Tribunal. No Agreements of Purchase and Sale were filed.

Mr. James Hepburn advised that he was not certain if the Condominium Corporation would be hiring a lawyer.

Mr. Hepburn, on behalf of the Condominium Corporation advised that at least 2 of the first 21 purchasers had Purchase and Sale Agreements that contained a clause indicating the standard of the security system that was to be installed in the building. The other 5 units in the 26 unit building were at the time of the original application to the Ontario New Home Warranty Program still owned by the Added Party and that he believed at least 2 of those units had agreements for an enhanced security system. His argument was that the Added Party orally and in the written documents told everyone that they were to set a certain standard of security.

1. The Parties to the hearing are the owners of the condominiums in Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1244, the Program and the Added Party.
2. The Parties agree to provide any and all documents, including all Agreements of Purchase and Sale, in their possession to each other and to the Tribunal. These are to be received at least 10 days prior to the start of the hearing on October 17, 2002. The Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1244 was ordered to provide the material as soon as possible so that agreement could be reached on any issues which would reduce the number of witnesses and the days needed to conduct the hearing.
3. The Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1244 was ordered to contact its lawyer, Audrey Loeb, for advice and was advised that affidavits are not suitable as evidence. An expert witness should be called to prove its contentions and a report or brief prepared and sent together with the expert's curriculum vitae to the other parties by the time limit set in paragraph 2.
4. Other witness reports and a witness list shall be served and filed with the Tribunal accordance with paragraph 2 above.

DIRECTORS OF THE ONTARIO TRAVEL

UNDER THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

APPEARANCES: ANGELA ALAIMO
Counsel for the Applicant

TREVOR BRANION
Counsel for the Travel Industry Council of Ontario ("TICO")

DATE OF HEARING: September 13, 2002 Toronto

DECISION RELEASED: September 13, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION

At a hearing held on September 13, 2002 in Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directed the Board of Trustees of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund to allow the claim of Mary Schmidt, operating as Arthur Travel Services, with Reasons to follow.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal by Mary Schmidt (the "Applicant") to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a written decision dated June 28, 2002 of the Board of Directors of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund Corporation (the "Fund") to deny the Applicant's claim for compensation in the amount of $8,995.12.(U.S.) ($13,919.95 Canadian).

The Applicant bases her claim on Section 51 of Regulation 806/93 (the "Regulation") made under the Travel Industry Act (the "Act").

ISSUES:

1. What is the date upon which the “event that gave rise to the claim” occurred?
2. Did the Applicant file its claim within six months of the above date?

FACTS:

1. The Applicant appealed a decision of the Board of Trustees of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund set out in its letter dated June 28, 2002 as Exhibit 1. The claim for compensation of $8,995.12 U.S. ($13,919.95 Canadian) was denied on the grounds that it was not made within the six-month filing deadline specified in Section 53 of Regulation 806 of the Travel Industry Act. An Agreed Statement of Facts was filed and entered as Exhibit 4 which is attached hereto as Schedule “A”.
2. The Applicant is a registered travel agent, owner of a small travel agency in Arthur, Ontario and a participant in the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund. It employs 2½ persons.
3. The Applicant purchased a Renaissance Cruise package for 4 customers in June 18, 2001 for travel from October 19, 2001 to October 31, 2001. One of the four customers paid the Applicant by way of company cheque drawn from a Royal Bank of Canada account in the amount of $16,492.22 dated June 18, 2001.
4. The Applicant forwarded payment to the Renaissance Cruises on June 20, 2001.
5. On September 20, 2001, the Applicant called Renaissance Cruises wherein she was advised that the tickets would be processed shortly.
6. Shortly thereafter, the Applicant was made aware on a news broadcast that Renaissance Cruises had ceased operating. There was no confirmation that Renaissance Cruises had gone bankrupt. The Applicant tried to contact Renaissance Cruises by phone wherein there was no answer. She tried to contact them by internet and a message was posted on their website “keep checking for more information”.
7. On November 16, 2001, the Applicant booked an alternative cruise for the 4 customers for travel from January 5, 2002 to January 19, 2002. The Applicant paid Holiday House Network for these alternative travel services.
8. At the end of November, 2001 the Applicant called TICO to obtain a claim form for the original cruise which was to sale from October 19, 2001 to October 31, 2001 on Renaissance Cruises, but she was advised that no forms were available.

9. Clauses 1(a) and (b) of section 51 of Regulation 806/93 to the Travel Industry Act were amended and took effect January 1, 2002 by Regulation 428/01 in order to permit a travel agent to make a claim against the fund for the failure of an end supplier that is an airline or a cruise line.
10. On February 1, 2002 the Applicant refunded its 4 customers the difference in price between the original Renaissance Cruise package and the alternative cruise.
11. The Applicant called TICO on February 12, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 1) to request a Compensation Fund Claim Form (Exhibit 3, Tab 2).
12. During the month of February, 2002, the customer that paid for the original Renaissance Cruise package died. The company cheque in which the customer used to pay the travel package was with his accountant. The cheque needed to be found and authenticated with the bank in which it was drawn from. Consequently, there was a delay in obtaining this information; however, the delay was not caused by the Applicant.
13. The Applicant filed the Compensation Fund Claim Form and supporting documentation which was received by TICO on April 24, 2002. The Board of Trustees found that the Applicant's claim was received beyond the 6 month filing period.
14. Counsel for the Board called Lori Furlan, Claims Coordinator for TICO. In her testimony, the date of event giving rise to the claim cannot be provided to any claimant. This date is determined by the Board of Trustees, which meets on a monthly basis, and is not allowed to be disclosed and is not printed on any claim form. There is no policy in place for the Board of Trustees to advise travel agents of dates of events determined by it which would give rise to claims for reimbursement. The Board of Trustees reviewed the Applicant's claim at their meeting on June 25, 2002 even though it was received in late April. In the witness' opinion, the delay for the review may have been a large amount of claims being processed during May, 2002. The witness further testified that "a few hundred thousand dollars" had already been paid out for Renaissance Cruise claims. The Applicant's claim therefore was not the first claim against Renaissance Cruises.
15. Mr. Branion, Counsel for the Respondent advised the Tribunal that the date of event giving rise to the claim was September 25, 2001. This was the date on which the cruise line ceased operations. Thus the filing deadline became March 26, 2002. He admitted on behalf of his client that the travel industry was not advised of either date. When the Tribunal asked Mr. Branion when the claim forms for Renaissance Cruises were made available for claimants, he advised they were released in January, 2002 after the amendments to clauses 1(1) and (b) of Section 51 of Regulation 806/93 to the Travel Industry Act were made. The fact that the Board of Trustees failed to advise the industry of the "cutoff" date for applications is problematic. The Applicant should not be penalized by the Board's policy.

16. The Board of Trustees denied the claim simply upon the provision of Section 53, of Regulation 806 which states:

A customer or a registrant shall make a claim for reimbursement in writing to the Board of Directors within six months after the event that gave rise to the claim for reimbursement. (Exhibit 1)

Thus while the Board of Trustees is correct in its interpretation and application of the Regulation which is presently in place, it also has the power to extend the time for filing a claim and this would certainly appear to be the case in which this would be appropriate.

The claim forms for Renaissance Cruises were not available until some time in January, 2002. The Applicant requested a claim form on February 12, 2002 which claim form had Renaissance Cruises' particulars already pre-printed on it. Due to the death of the Applicant's customer who paid for the travel package, the Applicant was not able to compile and forward all materials to TICO prior to sending the claim which was finally received by TICO on April 24, 2002. Testimony was also given that in a short timeframe, "a few hundred thousand dollars" had already been paid out for claims against Renaissance Cruises which indicates that a number of claims were grandfathered prior to January 1, 2002.

DECISION:

This Tribunal finds that the date of event which gave rise to the claim for reimbursement is January 1, 2002, the date in which amendments to clauses 1(1) and (b) of Section 51 of Regulation 806/93 to the Travel Industry Act were made. The filing deadline is June 2, 2002.

For the above reasons, the Tribunal directs the Board of Trustees of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund to allow the claim of Mary Schmidt, operating as Arthur Travel Services in the amount of thirteen thousand nine hundred nineteen dollars and ninety-five cents ($13,919.95).

There is no award for costs.

APPEARANCES: PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Respondent

DATE OF
PRE-HEARING: August 23, 2002 Toronto

ORDER

A Pre-hearing between the parties was held on August 23, 2002 in Toronto at 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th Floor as set forth in the Tribunal's Notice of Pre-hearing Conference dated July 24, 2002.

At the commencement of this pre hearing Mr. Warren, Counsel for the Applicant, raised an issue with the Tribunal regarding the disclosure of the reasons and evidence used by the Registrar in determining that a sanction against the Applicant was justified. Mr. Warren further argued that at the show cause hearing with the Registrar, the Applicant had presented material to the Registrar regarding their operation, yet the Registrar in issuing the sanction Order, apparently made no reference to any specific elements of the Applicant's operations, nor did the Registrar explicitly state what was the Applicant's violation.

Mr. Warren therefore argued, that the Applicant is entitled to know why the Registrar chose to impose the sanction, and that reasoning would have a significant effect of the case that the Applicant would have to meet.

Mr. Warren also presented case law and previous Tribunal decisions in support of his argument. Mr. Warren asked that the Tribunal consider issuing an Order dismissing the case on the grounds of inadequate disclosure on the part of the Registrar, or to order full disclosure of the reasons for the Registrar's decision.

The Tribunal, after hearing comments on this issue from Mr. Moore, Counsel for the Respondent, advised Mr. Warren that it would not be appropriate to consider such a request at this pre-hearing. The Tribunal suggested to Mr. Warren that he was entitled to bring his request before the Tribunal at a later date by way of a separate motion, and in such a timely manner as to allow the Registrar to present a proper response.

Mr. Warren undertook to submit a Notice of Motion within one-week, which was subsequently received by the Tribunal on September 4th, 2002.

At this Prehearing, all parties agreed upon a date to hear the Motion of the Applicant on September 25, 2002 at 9:30 a.m.

Notwithstanding the outcome of the Motion for setting aside the Order of the Registrar being brought forward by the Applicant, the hearing for this appeal, if necessary, will be heard by the Tribunal on October 29, 30 and 31; and November 1, 2002

It was determined that the filing dates with the Tribunal of submissions and documents to be used in the hearing by both parties would occur on or before October 18, 2002.

Both parties will file three copies with the Tribunal and deliver one copy to all parties. It was confirmed that the Tribunal requires full disclosure 10 days prior to the hearing.

The parties present at the prehearing recorded that there was no further resolution of the issues between the parties.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROY MELVIN, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant, unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: August 27, 2002 London

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

On January 8, 2002 the Applicant was brought to the emergency of St. Thomas Elgin Hospital by his wife and daughter, seeking help for his drinking bouts over the holiday season and threats of suicide. He was assessed by Physician #1 and found to have diabetes mellitus. A treatment plan was outlined and arrangements made for appropriate referrals to handle ongoing problems. He was advised to take some time off work and to stop driving. A copy of his report was sent to the Ministry of Transportation.

On January 28, 2002 the Ministry of Transportation advised the Applicant that his driver's licence was suspended on the basis of the Highway Traffic Act, section 47(1) and that reconsideration would be given on receipt of appropriate favourable medical and laboratory reports and evidence of compliance with a program of abstinence from alcohol.

On March 21, 2002 the Ministry of Transportation received a report from his family physician, Physician #2, indicating that the Applicant attended regularly for control of his diabetes. He had been started on medication for his depression. Blood tests showed an elevated G.G.T. on March 5, 2002, which reverted to normal on May 7, 2002. He was referred to a psychiatrist to review him for his fitness to drive as per Ministry of Transportation recommendations.

On April 3, 2002 he was assessed by Physician #3, a psychiatric specialist in London Ontario who concluded that the Applicant did not show evidence of clinical depression and suggested that the drug Paxil be tapered off and stopped. Physician #3 was not concerned about the Applicants' future use of alcohol and did not see sufficient cause for his driving privileges to be further suspended.

On June 13, 2002 he was assessed by the Alcohol & Drug Services of Thames Valley in London, Ontario. They reported that the Applicant demonstrates a high level of confidence in his ability to resist alcohol consumption. He has stable employment which he enjoys, a supportive home environment and a number of non drinking leisure activities. No further treatment from Alcohol & Drug Services was deemed necessary.

On June 21, 2002 an Administrative review was begun but not completed. The Applicant was upset with the many administrative delays he encountered.

On July 15, 2002 the Ministry of Transportation informed him that his driver's licence remained under suspension. On August 2, 2002 he submitted an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry's suspension of the Applicants' driver's licence is based on the Highway Traffic Act Regulation 340/94 Section 14(b):

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not...

- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Determination of Medical Fitness to Drive is based on recommendations by the Canadian Medical Association (Sixth Edition 2000). The applicable section is item 3.3:

"A person with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence must complete a recognized rehabilitation program for substance dependence and remain alcohol free for 12 months before recommencing driving."

This is the basis for the Ministry's suspension of the Applicants' licence to date.

Item 3.3 of the guidelines also states:

"Where there is an opportunity to have a patient enrolled in a rehabilitation program and to monitor their alcohol use behaviour by an addiction medicine specialist, the restriction on driving may be reduced."

The Applicant appeared at the hearing supported by his wife. He gives a history of alcohol consumption for many years but excessive only on a few occasions. He was in the Canadian Army for over 30 years attaining the rank of Sergeant Major and obtained an early honourable discharge. Since then he holds down a steady job. He has never been in an auto accident or apprehended by the police. He has a good social history. The incident of January 8, 2002 brought to light his previously undiagnosed diabetes, which he brought under control by medication and diet to the point where he no longer requires medication. His depression is no longer a problem and he is off medication. The consultant, Physician #3 finds no evidence of clinical depression and feels the Applicant could have his driver's licence reinstated. The Applicant attends his family doctor regularly. Recent blood tests, July 23, 2002, are normal. He attends A.A. regularly, subject to restraints by not being able to drive.

He states that he has had nothing to drink since January 8, 2002 except for one beer during the hot weather in July. This is significant in that it was not followed by more drinking and puts in doubt the diagnosis of a true alcohol addiction.

This Tribunal finds that the Applicant is no longer at risk to himself or others from driving a motor vehicle because of a medical disability.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 14, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 25, 2002 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 26, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated August 6, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on August 9, 2002 together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by certified cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

On September 19th, 2002, the Applicant's agent appeared before the Tribunal to request an adjournment due to the Applicant's illness. There being no objection raised by the Respondent's representative, the hearing scheduled for September 19th, 2002 was adjourned on consent to September 25th, 2002 at 1:30 PM.

An Order confirming the adjournment, noting the adjournment date as peremptory to both parties and requiring the Applicant to provide the Tribunal with a medical certificate by end of day September 20th, 2002, was released on September 19th, 2002.

The hearing resumed on September 25th, 2002. The Applicant's agent was asked to provide the Tribunal with the original medical certificate confirming the Applicant's illness on September 19th, 2002. The Applicant stated that he had left it at home.

The representative of the Respondent provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated May 20, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received August 09, 2002.
- c) Exhibit # 4 Medical Note from Physician #1 – received September 20, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received September 12, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

- 50.1(1) “A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "2002 05 02" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal was prepared by the Applicant's physician of "1 1/2 years", Physician #2, on "24/7/02".

Physician #2 details under the heading:

- o “Details and Diagnosis of patient’s present condition: keloid – left rib cage – laceration left ante chest wall
- o History of Condition: See letter ...16/7/02
- o Type of Measurements or recent tests taken:
- o Relevant details of visit and when your patient was last seen? 10/07/02 Difficult to breathe because of pain chest wall...”

In a letter, dated July 16, 2002, under the letterhead of MED CARE, Physician #2 reports that the Applicant: “...received a laceration of left rib cage ...September 17, 2001 ...became infected ...unsightly keloid ...off work for six weeks ...on going severe chest pain ...prevented ...taking part in sports...”

At the hearing, in examination in chief, in reply to the Applicants’ agents’ questions, the Applicant testified as to his whereabouts and activities prior to his being stopped by the RIDE programme unit.

The Applicant continued his testimony by recounting the events surrounding the demand for a breath sample and breathalyzer test session. This encounter being his first contact with police, the Applicant was visibly nervous.

The Applicant confirmed that at no time did he refuse to comply with the officer’s request to provide a breath sample. He was given several opportunities to blow into the instrument, but each time was told by the officer that it was “...not good enough...”.

In response to the Applicants’ agent’s question as to how he was feeling at the time, the Applicant first explained that: “...usually ...pain ...is on an off ...not a constant pain...”. Upon prodding by his agent, the Applicant clarified: “Yeah, I was feeling a little pain...”

In cross-examination, the Respondent’s representative, Mr. Biel, asked the Applicant to tell the Tribunal the exact medical condition that prevented him from complying with the officer’s demand for a breath sample. The Applicant attributed his inability to provide an adequate sample to the consequences of an accident he suffered at work in September 2001. Since the accident the Applicant has been limited to working as a courier.

The Applicant admitted that he was able to blow into the mouthpiece when it was not connected to the breathalyzer device, but emphasized that he did not blow as long as the actual breathalyzer instrument required.

Although, the Applicant told the officer of the accident and of his condition, he did not request medical assistance, and only told the officer he was experiencing physical pain after he was charged with failing to provide.

Between May 20th 2002 and July 16th 2002, the Applicant visited his physician “...for the flu and stuff like that...”. It was not until July 16th, that the Applicant discussed the breathalyzer demand with his physician.

Mr. Biel pursed his line of questioning by asking the Applicant how his inability to play sports relates to his ability to provide a breath sample. The Applicant referred to his difficulty breathing. Physician #2 has not prescribed any medication for the condition, but the Applicant takes Tylenol when he is in pain.

In re-direct the Applicant’s agent expressly asked the Applicant if he was in pain at the time of the breathalyzer, the Applicant replied: “Yes, sir”. The Applicant further testified that he did not specifically visit his physician as a result of the pain he experienced at the time of the breathalyzer, nor did he take medication for the pain.

In closing the Applicant’s agent relied on and quoted from the medical report of Physician #2, The Applicant’s agent contended that the medical report submitted by the Applicant verifies that the Applicant has an existing medical condition that prevented him from providing a breath sample. The Applicant suffers from: “...on going and severe chest pain...” which does not permit the Applicant to participate in sports. Mr. Bridgelall argues that in his understanding Physician #2’s statement means that the Applicant “...cannot do anything heavy, such as heavy breathing...”.

The Applicant’s agent emphasized that the Applicant was not under the influence of alcohol, and that if he provided a breath sample the reading would be under the required limit. The Applicant tried to provide a breath sample but was unsuccessful. The Applicant’s agent expressed the concern that the officer had the possibility of ordering a blood sample, but did not do so.

In conclusion the Applicant’s agent appealed to the Tribunal to rescind the Registrar’s decision, bearing in mind that the Applicant has a wife and two young children who depend on him. The Applicant needs his licence to continue working as a courier and be able to support his family.

Respondent’s Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed August 14, 2002
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed August 14, 2002.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Search, sealed September 14, 2002.

The Respondent's representative, Mr. Kyle Biel called Constable #1, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police – Toronto Detachment as a witness. Constable #1 testified that he has been with the Ontario Provincial Police "...since February 2000..." and a member of the RIDE unit since "June 2000".

Constable #1 described the observations that led him to formulate the belief that there was a reasonable suspicion, which merited the demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given several opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered "E0" indicating that not enough air was going through the device. Constable #1 detected that while seeming to blow into the mouthpiece the Applicant was blowing through the left side of his mouth. Further, Constable #1 noted that the Applicant's chest was not expanding on inhalation except for the time the mouthpiece had been removed from the instrument.

Constable #1 characterized the Applicant's general behaviour and demeanour: "...extreme lack of effort ...nonchalant ...carefree, total disregard for instructions...". In his opinion the Applicant's efforts to blow into the Alcotest were "...hardly existent ...very poor..."

During Constable #1's dealings with the Applicant, it was not evident to Constable #1, that the Applicant was experiencing any sort of physical discomfort. The Applicant never requested medical assistance, nor informed Constable #1 that he was in any physical distress, at the time. There were no conversations regarding the Applicant's accident or a request for a blood sample.

The Applicant's agent cross-examined Constable #1 on his observations and conclusions and tried to ascertain why an alternative test was not requested. Constable #1 re-iterated his previous testimony and confirmed that there were no visible signs as to why the Applicant could not to provide a breath sample.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's representative pointed out that the Applicant's agent submission with respect to the Applicant's possible level of intoxication were irrelevant. Mr. Biel maintains that the Applicant's actions are consistent with and corroborate the premise that the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample. The Applicant lied when approached by the Constable. According to Constable #1, he made no effort to provide a breath sample. Constable #1 is a trained observer, yet he did not notice any signs of physical suffering: "...no wincing or grimacing during the attempts...".

The Respondent's representative contends that there is in fact no medical reason for the Applicant's failure to provide a breath sample. The Applicant allowed fifty-seven and sixty-five days to elapse before consulting with his physician. Physician #2's report is neither explicit enough nor detailed enough to substantiate the medical grounds for appeal.

In conclusion the Respondent's representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the Applicant's issue as to why a blood sample was not taken. While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers.

According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

At issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired, had been drinking, or expressed a vocal refusal to provide a breath sample. The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that at the time, could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Tribunal accepts Physician #2's diagnosis: "...Difficult to breathe because of pain chest wall ...unsightly keloid... on going severe chest pain..." The question for the Tribunal is, as stated above, whether the Applicant was in considerable pain at the time, such as that he would not have been able to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent's representative alleges that Physician #2's medical reports are scant and inconclusive. The Tribunal concurs with Mr. Biel. Physician #2 offers no rationalization as to how the Applicant's condition affects his breathing pattern, other than to say the Applicant cannot take "...part in sports...". The Tribunal fails to see how the ability to participate in sports correlates to the ability to provide a breath sample. The Applicant's agent expounds that this statement means the Applicant cannot do heavy work or "...heavy breathing...". By his own admission, the Applicant is able to exercise and has not been prescribed medication to assist his breathing difficulties.

The Applicant in his viva voce evidence explained to the Tribunal that he was "...nervous..." and "...feeling a little pain". Nonetheless, the fact remains that he did not tell Constable #1 he was feeling any type of discomfort. Constable #1, who as the Respondent's representative noted is a trained observer, did not see the Applicants exhibiting any signs that might be associated with physical anguish.

In reference to the Applicant's agent's plea with respect to the Applicant's need for his licence, the Tribunal sympathizes and applauds the Applicant's desire and need to support his family, but the matter before the Tribunal does not permit a consideration of hardship.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, was insufficient to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated May 20, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH

Applicant,

DATE OF HEARING: September 6, 2002 Hamilton

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

1. Notice of Appeal from the Applicant dated August 7, 2002
2. Notice of driver's licence suspension dated June 2, 2002
3. File summary prepared by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant is an 82 year-old retired gentleman, who had his driver's licence suspended on June 2, 2002, after the Ministry received an unsolicited Medical Report from the Applicant's cardiologist, on April 17, 2002. The cardiologist, Physician #1 stated that the Applicant had an unexplained syncopal event and had been hospitalized for two days with no arrhythmias seen. The Applicant was to have more tests done and was told not to drive.

The event reported, occurred on April 15, 2002, when the Applicant was in his kitchen eating a peanut butter sandwich. His wife was in another room and heard him choking. She rushed into the kitchen and found him on the floor, conscious and alert. They assumed he had fainted and called 911. Two paramedics arrived and examined him, but could not find anything wrong. They transported him to the Brantford General Hospital, where he was examined by Physician #2. His physical examination was negative, with the exception of an ECG that showed an old myocardial infarction and arthritis of the spine.

The Applicant was also examined by Physician #3, Physician #4 and Physician #1, all internists. The only other abnormalities detected were aortic stenosis, gout and mild hypertension. A Holter monitor was normal and a 2D echocardiogram demonstrated early left ventricular hypertrophy and evidence of his old myocardial infarction.

Following the Applicant's infarction 15 years ago, he has had annual appointments with Physician #1 and has been symptom free. Although no medical cause for the syncopal attack could be found, the Applicant asserts that he simply choked on the peanut butter sandwich.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles had no option but to follow Section 47(1) when notified of the Applicant's syncopal event by his cardiologist.

The Applicant was examined by several medical specialists and given every conceivable test to determine the cause of the syncope, but none could be found. The Applicant had an EEG in the last week of August, but does not have the results at this time. He is also scheduled to have an MRI in October.

The Tribunal does not find any evidence to determine this was a seizure and very little to indicate it was cardiac in origin. The National Safety Code for Motor Carriers recommends a one month waiting period after a single unexplained episode provided there is no obvious cardiac or neurological cause.

The Applicant has had an exhaustive investigation and the Tribunal can not find any justification for any further suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) or Regulation 340/94 Section 14(a).

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 13, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DECISION
RELEASED: September 6, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 05, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 06, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated August 13, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on August 13, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

At the Applicant's request a Notice of Motion was heard, by way of teleconference, on August 27, 2002. The Respondent raising no objections, an adjournment was granted on consent.

Prior to the commencement of the hearing the Counsel for the Applicant requested the admission of evidence submitted in non-compliance with disclosure procedures. The Respondent's Representative, raised no objection, and the documents were entered as Exhibit # 4.

The videotape of the breathalyser test session, was entered as an exhibit, with the consent both parties. Since prior disclosure had not been made to the Applicant, a recess was afforded the Applicant and his solicitor to view the videotape.

The Respondent's Representative submitted certified copies of original documents on file.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice of the Registrar dated August 6, 2002, issued by the Ministry of Transportation .
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form dated August 13, 2002

- c) Exhibit # 4 Additional submissions by the Applicant – 7 pages – received September 05, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received August 22, 2002
- b) Exhibit # 5 Video-tape of Breathalyzer Test session – received September 05, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended on "Aug 5/ 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of Notice of Appeal is blank.

A handwritten note on letterhead of Physician #1, dated "Oct 12/93" states: "this patient cannot do a pulmonary function test because of inadequate inspiration & hence would have difficulty with a breathalyzer."

The Applicant's submissions, at the hearing included: a handwritten note purportedly signed by Physician #1, dated "Sept 3/02". Physician #1 specifies: "This patient was referred to a respiratologist Physician #2 who has seen him previously. Physician #2 is out of the city until Nov 15/02. The Applicant cannot be tested until then or later..." a letter under the letterhead of Lakeridge Health verifying the Applicant is a diabetic; and photocopies of an article on emphysema apparently from the Reader's Digest version of the Canadian Medical Home Encyclopaedia.

The Applicant testified as to his ongoing medical problems, and the medical challenges he was facing at the time of the breathalyser: "...diagnosed as diabetic ...emphysema ...sore back, in car accident ...ankle broken..."

The Applicant was diagnosed with emphysema around "...1991/92...". Physician #1, provided the Applicant with a "...note..." in 1993, which the Applicant was told, he must carry with him at all times. As a result, the Applicant has a copy of this note in all his cars.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant why his physician had not completed page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant replied that he had not noticed that the back of the form required completion.

The Applicant attempted to obtain a specialist's report, but his respiratologist was not available. The Applicant was told that it would be very difficult to get another specialist to see him.

The Applicant's condition is deteriorating. The Applicant explained the condition manifests in shortness of breath. An inhaler was prescribed at the beginning, but presently the Applicant no longer carries a "...puffer..."

In reply to The Applicant's Counsel's question as to why he longer uses the inhaler, the Applicant replied: "...I lost a lot of weight, I find that it gags me, I have a mucus discharge, the puff sticks to the back of my throat, I can't get it out...". The Applicant explained that having "...lost about forty pounds..." he is able to breathe more easily, but still has difficulty walking, particular up hill, and he is unable to carry out any type of manual labour.

The Applicant stated the he "...imagined..." that the officers were able to find the 1993 medical note in his car, as they "...found ...ownership ...found ...driver's licence ...the note was right there..."

The Applicant emphasized that he needs his licence for work, also because he lives alone on a farm, and has no one to drive him around.

Under cross-examination the Applicant described the events that led to demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant did not show the note to the officers, nor did he tell them about his condition, as they were "...very rude...". The Applicant "...assumed..." that the officers saw the note, as it was in the car.

The Applicant confirmed that he does not take medication for the condition and does not need to see the respiratologist regularly.

The Applicant did not ask for medical attention, and saw his physician a "...week or so later".

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed August 15, 2002
2. Certified Copy of Driving Record of The Applicant, sealed August 14, 2002
3. Copy of Vehicle Record Search, sealed August 14, 2002

The Respondent called Officer #1, a police officer with the Durham Regional Police Service "...approaching fifteen years..." as a witness.

Officer #1 detailed the events that led to the Applicant's arrest and his being turned over to the breathalyser technician. Officer #1 did not see Physician #1's note, nor did he notice the Applicant exhibiting any signs of breathing impairment.

Officer #2 was also called as a witness for the Respondent. Officer #2 has been a police officer with the Durham Police services for "...approximately three years..." and qualified in "...January 01..." as breathalyser technician.

According to Officer #2, the Applicant was given a total of six attempts to provide a breath sample. Officer #2 expressed his opinion that: "...he was purposely filling his mouth full of air and just not blowing into the instrument at all..."

The Applicant told the officer he was diabetic but at no time mentioned that he had emphysema. During the breathalyzer test session, Officer #2 did not notice the Applicant showing any signs of discomfort, such as wheezing or coughing. When asked by Officer #2 why he was not providing a breath sample, the Applicant replied "...did what I could..."

The videotape of the Applicant's breathalyser session showed the Applicant puffing his cheeks, but the instrument does not register. None of the expected signs on breathing difficulties are perceptible, in the Applicant's appearance and demeanour. The Applicant refers to "lung" problems but does not tell Officer #2, specifically, that he has emphysema.

In his closing remarks the Applicant's Counsel emphasized that the Applicant has demonstrated a need to have his licence re-instated. Mr Hennessey contends that although the Applicant did not disclose his condition to the officers, there is medical evidence before the Tribunal that the Applicant suffers from emphysema, and that nine years ago he was given ten years.

The Applicant's Counsel suggests that the Tribunal must return the Applicant's licence as: it was not established that he was impaired; the Applicant was not able to provide a breath sample due his medical condition.

The Respondent's Representative stated that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition, which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. Neither officer noticed any signs of respiratory distress.

Further, Respondent's Representative maintains that the note provided by the Applicant's physician, does not comply with the requirements of Section 15 of Regulation 574, which is specific as to the information required in a medical report.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The Tribunal accepts The Applicant's Counsel's argument that the Applicant was not impaired and that he needs his licence. An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

At issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or needs his licence. At issue, as the Respondent's Representative asserted, is, did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant opted to submit notes from his physician Physician #1 in lieu of having page 2 of the Notice of Appeal completed by his physician.

The Respondent claims that the information contained in this note, does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required, such as the Applicant's address and date of birth. The Tribunal concurs.

Sections 15 (1) (a) (b) (c) (d) and 15 (2) of Regulation 574 prescribe as follows:

- 15 (1) A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is submitted in evidence shall clearly state:
 - a) the name, telephone number and address, with postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver's license under section 50.1 of the Act.
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
- 15 (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.

Physician #1's notes comply with the requirement of Section 15 1(a) but not with Section 15 1 (b) which requires the Applicant's complete information, i.e. address and birth date.

As one of the notes is dated 1993, it cannot possibly reflect the requirements of section (c). Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal being blank, there is no evidence that the Applicant informed his physician that he had been asked to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal finds that Physician #1's handwritten notes fall short of the meeting the criteria set out in Section 15 (1) (c) of Regulation 574.

Physician #1's notes offer no information as to how long the Applicant has been his patient or any details of last visit. Thus, Section 15 (1)(d) of Regulation 574 is not met.

Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant. The essence of this clause requires that the physician establish a link between the condition and the inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ... patient was last seen

The Tribunal is left unsure as to why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but the fact is, that Physician #1's notes fail to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1.

Physician #1 does not offer any rationalization of how the Applicant's condition affects the Applicant's breathing pattern. Nor, does Physician #1 provide any justification as to how this problem could have affected the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample, other than to say "...this patient cannot do a pulmonary function test because of inadequate inspiration & hence would have difficulty with a breathalyzer." Physician #1's note was written almost ten years ago. No up to date information has been provided with respect to the Applicant's present condition.

At the hearing the Applicant was unable to coherently explain why he was unable to provide a breath sample, other than to state that he has emphysema. Yet, nowhere in the scarce notes written by Physician #1 is there a diagnosis of emphysema. The Applicant is not under the regular care of a respiratory specialist nor is he taking any medication for the condition.

The Tribunal must rely on the testimony, of the eyewitnesses who were involved in the incident and the videotape of the breathalyzer test session. Officer #1 and Officer #2 were in direct contact with the Applicant. Neither officer noticed, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

There are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are visible even to an untrained person. After the viewing the videotape of the Applicant's breathalyzer test session, the Tribunal detected none of the symptoms commonly associated with a severe respiratory illness, such as wheezing, coughing or shortness of breath, on the part of the Applicant.

Also evident in the tape and incomprehensible to the Tribunal was the fact that the Applicant told Officer #2 that he was "diabetic" and that he had difficulties with his lungs, but failed to specifically identify the illness as emphysema.

The Applicant testified that he has a copy of Physician #1's notes in each of his three cars. Yet, the Tribunal was not told why the Applicant did not show Physician #1's note to either officer. The Applicant's only explanation was that he "imagined" or "assumed" that the officers had found the note.

It appears that the Applicant's condition was not severe enough to warrant seeking medical assistance immediately after the incident. The Applicant's first visit to his physician was a week or so after the incident.

The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce from the Applicant, to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant has a medical condition, which would have prevented the Applicant from providing the demanded breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated August 5, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: September 5, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: September 10, 2002 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 5, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Normand J. Henry (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1990 Ford Aerostar, plate # ALDS 470 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	August 14, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 5, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUES:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Notice of Appeal Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I loan Andrew St. Pierre my van. I asked if he had his licences (drivers) and he said he did.

I need my van to work, to transport material to construction sites. I have no other means of transportation.

The Applicant confirmed the information provided with the Notice of Appeal and added the following:

- Mr. Henry, who contracts out as a carpenter, had previously seen Mr. St. Pierre driving and that Mr. St. Pierre had used Mr. Henry's vehicle on other occasions;
- The Applicant did not know that Mr. St. Pierre's licence was under suspension; he had always asked if Mr. St. Pierre, who was working for him as a contract helper on a renovation project, had his licence with him and had that day received a "Yes" in reply to the question about whether he had his licence;
- Mr. Henry testified that Mr. St. Pierre had told the police he had lied to his boss in telling him that he had a valid driver's licence;
- The Applicant advised that the renovation project he was on was now finished and he had not experienced any loss in concluding that job as his boss there had been able to loan him an alternate truck but he had to return it now because he would be starting a new job on Monday, September 9th at an Ontario Hydro facility in Courtright and he would need his own vehicle to be able to get to there with his tools.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Andrew St. Pierre;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 6, 2003.

Based on questions submitted by the Respondent, the Tribunal heard the Applicant had relied on having seen Mr. St. Pierre drive in the past and a verbal question about whether he had his licence with him on the day of the impoundment. The Applicant conformed that he had not previously been aware of how to do a valid driver's licence check but that he would be sure to do so in the future.

Mr. Henry also confirmed that he was unable to afford a rental vehicle to temporarily replace the impounded one and since he was starting a new job he did not know any of the people at the Courtright location which, while it was only about 10 km away, did not offer public transportation access.

Mr. Henry stated that even in the event of transit availability his problem centred around the facts that he would be working a night shift between the hours of 6:00 p.m. and 4:00 a.m. and that he needed to transport his own carpentry tools which consisted of large items such as various types of table saws that could not be carried in a small sedan or a taxi, which would cost about $35.00 each way.

The Applicant confirmed he had not suffered any financial loss to this point as he had been provided with an alternate vehicle by the supervisor at the job which was just concluded. In addition, Mr. Henry confirmed he had no health issues but that he had no immediate family members from whom he could borrow a vehicle.

The Applicant advised that he obtained this job through the carpenters local union hall.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, “due diligence” in Black’s Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the Applicant's appeal to have the impounded vehicle returned under:

- (1) subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, and
- (2) on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d), that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship.

The evidence presented was considered on whether or not it met the definitions of 'due diligence' and "exceptional hardship" and if it clearly established the Applicant did exercise due diligence and will experience an unusual circumstance and severe hardship based on the following.

Whether “the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension” ref S.50.2(3)(c);

The Applicant gave evidence that he had previously seen Mr. St. Pierre driving and when he asked whether he had a valid driver’s licence with him, Mr. St. Pierre had answered in the affirmative.

Whether “no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available” ref S.22(3)(a);

The Applicant gave evidence that he did not have friends or family to temporarily lend him an alternate vehicle and he could not afford a vehicle rental or use taxis. He stated that public transit was not available to the new job site. In addition, he stated he did not yet know anyone at the new site since he was only starting on September 9th. Mr. Henry stated the largest obstacle to alternate transportation was his tools and that a truck was needed to carry them daily.

Whether the “loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;” ref S.22 (3)(b)

The evidence established the initial immediacy of the loss had been mitigated by the fact the Applicant had been provided by an alternate vehicle by his previous place of employment but that his new job expected him to come with his own vehicle and he did not have alternate transportation which would accommodate his tools.

The Applicant testified that he needed the vehicle to be able to start his new job and carry his tools to that job but did not present the Tribunal with any substantive evidence to show immediate (being at the start of his new job on Sept. 9th) or significant or lasting impacts that would result from the loss of his vehicle, both immediately and over the remaining period of impoundment.

Whether “the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle”; ref S.22.(3)(c)

The Applicant testified he was not able to arrange or afford alternate transportation for his new job and confirmed that he would be the impacted individual.

Whether the impact of the loss “will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver’s licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle”; ref S.22.(3)(d)(i)

The evidence showed the loss would be to the Applicant who was not the driver at the time of the impoundment.

In summary, though the Applicant presented evidence to show he had exercised due diligence by asking Mr. St. Pierre if he had a valid driver's licence, he did not present the Tribunal with substantive evidence to confirm the Applicant had any kind of policy for an employee's use of Mr. Henry's vehicle (Mr. Henry testified that Mr. St. Pierre was working for him in a casual or contract employee situation) and thereby confirm that due diligence or all reasonable effort had been exercised to establish the validity of Mr. St. Pierre's licence.

The Tribunal was not provided with substantive evidence to confirm that Mr. Henry would lose the Ontario Hydro job or that the balance of the impoundment period would impact his ability to obtain other placements through his union job centre.

In addition, the Applicant did not present any evidence to confirm he had discussed his vehicle impoundment with either his union hall contact or the Ontario Hydro employment supervisor in an effort to find a solution to his temporary loss, as he was unable to arrange or afford alternate transportation, or to receive a statement advising him of the potential impact if he was unable to report for his start time on September 9th.

In conclusion, there was insufficient evidence to show due diligence had in fact been exercised and neither was any evidence presented to show the detail of possible financial impacts or present and future job loss to the Applicant. The Tribunal was not provided with sufficient facts by which to conclude the Applicant would experience "exceptional hardship" in terms of the loss being exceptional, unusual, and causing "hardness, severity, severe toil or suffering" or "extreme privation".

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 11, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated August 5, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on August 15, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Respondent's Representative moved for an adjournment, as after the thirty minute grace period allowed, the Constable summoned by the Registrar failed to appear.

The Applicant objected to the adjournment on the grounds that the postponement of the hearing would seriously inconvenience the family. It would not only be difficult for the Applicant to take another day off work, but the children would need to stay home from school, again, as there would be no one to drive them to Brampton.

The request for adjournment was denied. The hearing proceeded.

The Respondent's Representative requested that Officer #1's notes be filed as an exhibit. No objection being raised by the Applicant, the notes were entered on consent as Exhibit # 5.

The Applicant petitioned the Tribunal to accept a note handwritten, purportedly by Officer #1, on a telephone pad slip, as an exhibit. The Respondent's Representative did not object the note containing a telephone number was entered on consent as Exhibit #6.

- b) Exhibit # 5 Copy of Officer #1’s note – 3 pages – received September 10, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

- 50.1(1) “A person whose driver’s licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "July 25, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal was prepared by the Applicant's physician of "9 years", Physician #1, on "8/8/2002".

Physician #1 details under the heading:

- o “Details and Diagnosis of patient’s present condition: Depressive Symptoms, Stress reaction/
- o History of Condition: / long standing stress & Depression reaction
- o Type of Measurements or recent tests taken... : Counselling and psychotherapy
- o Relevant details of visit and when your patient was last seen? /

The Applicant in a letter dated August 9, 2002 states: “...I did not refuse the breath sample ...simply could not blow into the alert for eight seconds continuously ...nervous ...panicked ...started to hyperventilate ...”

Witness #1, a friend of the Applicant, wrote the Tribunal a letter on August 22nd, 2002, confirming the number of drinks consumed by the Applicant, on the night in question.

At the hearing the Applicant testified as to the events surrounding the breathalyzer test session. In her first attempt to provide a breath sample, the Applicant admitted that she “...failed miserably...”. The Applicant was not told she needed to fill her lungs and blew “...seven seconds...” instead of the “...eight...” required as the officer suggested was required.

The Applicant asserted she had not been drinking. She believes that she was not able to provide an adequate sample, because the situation and the officer made her feel “...nervous and panicked...”.

The Applicant stated that she appealed in order to have an opportunity to present her side of the events. The Applicant feels the officer was not understanding, and did not exercise proper judgement, in that he should have asked for a blood sample.

In cross-examination, the Respondent’s Representative, Mr. Biel, asked the Applicant to tell the Tribunal the exact medical condition that prevented her from providing a breath sample. The Applicant replied that she “...had bronchitis in the past and several deaths in the family in the past four years...”.

The Applicant stressed that she did not wish to fully disclose her medical history and neither did her physician. Physician #1 informed the Applicant that if further information was necessary, the Ministry should contact him directly, or ask for more detailed information.

According to the Applicant, Physician #1 told her that there could be a number of reasons why she was not able to provide an adequate breath sample: “state of mind ...anxiety attack ...panic ...no experience in those things...”.

The Applicant called her husband as a witness. The Applicant's husband testified as his conversation with the officers, as well as to his wife's mental state.

In closing the Applicant asked the Tribunal to reconsider the Registrar's decision and to reinstate her driver's licence. The Applicant emphasized that: she does not drink; she would never drink and drive; the loss of her licence has caused havoc in her family life; she did not provide a breath sample because of lack of experience in such matters; she was unable to sustain a long enough breath to provide an adequate sample.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed August 20, 2002.
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed August 20, 2002

The Respondent read Officer #1's notes into the record. Officer #1's notes detail that the Applicant was given several opportunities to provide a breath sample, and that each time the instrument registered an "E/O" or "Error" message.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative pointed out that the Applicant seemed more concerned with her level of intoxication, her dealings with Officer #1 and the hardship experienced by the family, than the medical reason she failed to provide a breath sample.

Respondent's Representative contends that there is in fact no medical reason for the Applicant's failure to provide a breath sample. The fact that the Applicant might have been nervous at the time is not a valid medical reason. Physician #1 has chosen for not to disclose details of the Applicant's condition nor does he offer a reason as to why the Applicant was not able to provide a breath sample.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the Applicant's issue as to why a blood sample was not taken. While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained “...by an analysis of the person’s breath sample or blood taken...” the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

The Tribunal feels it is imperative to explain to the Applicant that this Tribunal has no jurisdiction to deal with issues concerning the behaviour of police officers. Further at issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Tribunal concurs with the Respondent’s Representative; the bulk of the Applicant’s evidence focused on issues extraneous to the matter in question. The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause, at the time of the breath sample demand, the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant, but does not quite understand why, while appealing her licence suspension on medical grounds, both herself and her physician would chose not to disclose possibly pertinent medical information. The fact is, that that the Tribunal is left with the very scant diagnosis from Physician #1: “...Depressive Symptoms, Stress reaction...”. Physician #1 offers no rationalization as to how this condition could have prevented the Applicant from providing a breath sample.

The Applicant in her viva voce evidence explained to the Tribunal that she was “...nervous and panicked...”. Nonetheless, she failed to describe to the Tribunal, any actual physical symptoms, she might have been experiencing at the time that would have precluded from proving a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant’s testimony although credible, was insufficient to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated July 25, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”)

and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no Preliminary Matters and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice dated July 31, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received at the Tribunal August 19, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended on "July 18, 2002 " as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Appellant's Evidence

Page two of Notice of Appeal is blank.

Under the letterhead of Perth Medical Physician #1 reports on "August 02, 2002" that he: "...has known and attended the Applicant for approximately 40 years and since September 2001 ...attended ... approximately eight times for anxiety and panic attacks..."

At the hearing, the Applicant was represented by Counsel. In her viva voce evidence, the Applicant testified: to some of the reasons that have provoked her medical condition; to the events that led to the demand for a breath sample; to the particulars of her involvement with the officers prior to and during the attempts to provide the sample.

The Applicant explained that for approximately "...a year and three quarters...", she has suffered from panic attacks as a result of an on going marital dispute. The panic attacks generally manifest in a combination of symptoms: "...anxiety ...trembling, sweating, shortness of breath, ...fragmented dialogue, heart palpitations ...numbness in the ...head ...incoherence...". Panic attacks may last a few hours; the heart rate increases and decreases over a period of time, depending "...on the outside stimuli...". The Applicant has been prescribed Ativan for her condition.

As a result of an altercation with a pedestrian, the Applicant was in a panic mode, at the time she was approached by the police. She was sitting in her car, grasping the wheel tightly, her hands were trembling, and she was numb and sweating.

The Applicant had very little recollection of the events. She could not identify the officer who first approached her, nor recall making any attempts to provide a breath sample, while in the parking lot.

It was the Applicant's testimony that she was asked to provide a breath sample at the police station in Smith Falls, and that she did not refuse to provide a sample, she just could not do it.

The Applicant believes that she was able to provide an adequate sample the first time, not because she was more relaxed or more comfortable, but because she was able to blow "...longer..."

While at the police station in Smith Falls the Applicant asked for but was denied her medication. The Applicant did inform the arresting officers of her condition, and that she was on medication.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant why the physician had not completed page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant replied that the physician provided her with a letter, which she attached to page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, thinking it would suffice.

Physician #1 testified as a witness for the Applicant, via electronic means. In examination-in-chief, Physician #1 confirmed that: he has been practicing medicine for some forty-five years; he has been the Applicant's physician since her birth; she is presently being treated and on medication for anxiety and panic attacks.

During her visits to Physician #1's office, while talking about her marital condition the Applicant sometimes becomes noticeably agitated. As described by Physician #1: "...her heart rate would accelerate, she would be shaking, trembling have some difficult breathing, although there is really no obstruction or anything, most of the other symptoms are probably symptomatic...".

Physician #1 stated that at the onset of a panic attack, an individual's breathing pattern changes without apparent reason. Further, although an acute panic attack lasts five to ten minutes, the sense of panic or a panic episode could last longer, and display varied symptoms depending on the external circumstances.

In cross-examination Physician #1 declared that he is not familiar with requirements of breathalyzer. He is able to attest to the fact that the Applicant panics easily and "...may not be able to breathe properly..." but cannot comment on whether or not she could have provide a breath sample.

The Applicant visited Physician #1 on August 2nd, at which time, she told Physician #1 “...that something had happened in her marital situation...” and asked for a report of her medical condition. It was not until August 30th, 2002 that Physician #1 was informed as to the actual reason the report was requested.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Notice to the Registrar, certified August 22nd, 2002
2. Driving Record of the Applicant, certified August 21st, 2002

The Respondent called Officer #1 as a witness. Officer #1 has been with the Perth Regional Police Service “...approximately a year and half...” and a police officer “...alternately off and on, approximately three years with the regular force and ten years with the University...”

From independent recollection and from periodic reference to his notes Officer #1 detailed: the events that led to the Applicant being taken to the Smith Falls Detachment; his observations, of the Applicant's interactions with other detainees while in the cells; her transportation to Perth; his dealings with the Applicant around six o'clock the following morning.

A breath sample was demanded of the Applicant, at the scene of the incident. Officer #1 observed Officer #2 administer a breathalyzer. The Applicant failed to provide an adequate breath sample. Rather than charging the Applicant immediately, the Applicant was transported to Smith Falls and turned over to a qualified breath technician.

At no time did Officer #1 observe the Applicant afflicted with any breathing difficulties or exhibiting the signs of an individual having a panic attack. The Applicant never asked for medical assistance, she did ask for her “...vallium...”. Apo cephalax cephalaxin was the only medication found in the Applicant's purse.

Officer #3, of the Smith Falls Police Services, was also called as a witness for the Respondent. Officer #3 has been a police officer since 1988 and qualified breathalyzer technician since 1995.

The Applicant provided a suitable first sample, but refused to provide the second sample required to complete the procedure. In reply to Officer #3's repeated explanation and request for a second sample the Applicant replied “...No thank you...”.

Officer #3 did not notice any symptoms of a panic attack; he testified that at no time did the Applicant request medical assistance.

In his closing remarks the Applicant's Counsel submitted an Ontario (ADLS-880-Hyperventillation) [2001] O.L.A.T.D. No. 470, Ontario Licence Appeal Tribunal, A. Aouad, Member, to substantiate his premise that a panic disorder is sufficient to warrant the dismissal of the suspension.

Applicant's Counsel asserted that the Applicant has shown on the balance of probabilities she was suffering from a panic attack at the time of the demand for a breath sample. Therefore she had a medical explanation for her refusal or not to comply with the breath demand.

There is sufficient evidence, according to Applicant's Counsel, that there are considerable triggers in the Applicant's life to set off panic attacks. Further, as the evening progressed there were certainly enough stressors to induce and sustain a panic attack. As such Applicant's Counsel suggests that the Tribunal set aside the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence.

The Respondent's Representative stated that it is the Registrar's submission and position that the onus of a medical condition has not been met by the Applicant. Ms. Beintema, the Respondent's Representative, concedes that it is conceivable that given the circumstances of her life the Applicant suffers from a panic disorder. Nonetheless, there is no evidence that the Applicant was suffering from a panic attack at the time of the breath demand.

Physician #1 was not present at time and was unable to testify that the Applicant's condition would have precluded her from providing a breath sample. There were two eyewitnesses, neither of whom witnessed the Applicant suffering from a panic attack.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Respondent's Representative acknowledged that the Applicant's diagnosed panic disorder is not in dispute. The Tribunal agrees and finds as fact that the Applicant suffers from an anxiety and panic disorder.

Applicant's Counsel submitted Ontario (ADLS-880-Hyperventillation) [2001] O.L.A.T.D. No. 470, Ontario Licence Appeal Tribunal, as a precedent to establish that the Tribunal has in the past accepted panic disorders as grounds for reversal of the Registrar's decision to suspend a driver's licence. The Tribunal points out, that a medical condition is only part of the requirements needed to set aside the Registrar's decision. The Tribunal must consider whether the Applicant's condition at the time of the breathalyzer test, was severe enough, to cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Physician #1 stated that in cases of panic disorders, the breathing pattern can change for no apparent reason, but his unfamiliarity with the breathalyzer apparatus rendered him unable to provide insight as to how the Applicant's panic disorder might have affected her ability to provide a breath sample.

There is conflicting evidence as to why the Applicant did not provide a breath sample as required. The Applicant testified that she blew "...longer..." the first time that she did not refuse to blow a second time, she was just not able to do it. Officer #3 testified after the Applicant provided a sufficient sample she refused to provide a second. Given the Applicant's scant recollection of events, the Tribunal accepts Officer #3's evidence that the Applicant refused to provide a breath a sample.

Is there enough evidence to suggest that the Applicant refused to provide a breath sample because of her medical condition?

The Tribunal must rely on the testimony, of the Applicant and the eyewitnesses who were involved in the incident, Officer #1 and Officer #3. Both Constables were in direct contact with the Applicant. Neither officer noticed, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress, or exhibiting the signs of a panic attack.

The Applicant's condition did not seem to prevent her from providing an adequate sample. The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce from the Applicant, to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant's medical condition would have prevented the Applicant from providing the second breath sample demanded.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that she was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated July 28, 2002, of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

HEARING: September 12, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

This 29-year-old female has been under the care of a psychiatrist since May 2002 for stress disorder and depression by the administration of appropriate drugs. On January 9, 2002, she went to the emergency room of the hospital after an episode of confusion, dizziness and disorientation and then to her family doctor Physician #1 on January 11, 2002 for follow-up. The story was that she lost count of her drug dosages and intervals and by mistake repeated taking indications, perhaps more than once on the evening of January 9, 2002 resulting in symptoms of drug overdose which brought her to the hospital. On January 11, 2002, Physician #1 reported this incident to the Ministry of Transportation. It was the doctor's intention that driving be limited temporarily until her psychiatrist stabilized her condition.

The ministry letter to The Applicant on January 15, 2002 requests an assessment from a neurologist in order to review her driving privileges for medical reasons. This was supplied by a report from Physician #2, Neurologist on January 29, 2002. Unfortunately this doctor referred the matter to The Applicant's family doctor and or psychiatrist.

On March 7, 2002, the Ministry of Transportation requested up to date assessments from the Applicant's family doctor and psychiatrist.

The report of April 25, 2002 from her family doctor, Physician #1 quotes, "The Applicant as saying that on January 11, 2002 while driving from Toronto to Mississauga for that visit "she lost her focus for a long period and almost hit a car". The Applicant later denies, she said those words, but admits she was not quite herself. Physician #1 decreased her drug dosage in consultation with her psychiatrist. The Applicant was seen again on January 14, 2002 following another visit to the hospital E.R. the day or so before because of a G.I. upset and general malaise. This time a complete investigation was done with negative physical and laboratory findings (blood EKG. Brain Scan and Abdominal Ultrasound).

She was referred to her psychiatrist for ongoing care with the assertion that the episode of drug over dosage on January 8, 2002 was in no way intentional or suicidal.

A report from her psychiatrist Physician #3 based on her visit of March 4, 2002 was received late (May 7, 2002) presumably due to the "CUPE" strike. In it, the doctor describes the accidental overdose of January 9, 2002. Unfortunately the wording in the letter/"this happened two or three times" leaves the impression that there were two or three different incidents of this happening, rather than what actually happened which is that the doses were repeated two or three times on the one occasion. This is significant in that it led the Medical Advisory Committee to erroneous assumptions.

Physician #3 prescribed a mood stabilizer and after this was controlled felt that The Applicant would be able to drive. A note dated April 19, 2002 to the Ministry of Transportation from Physician #3 indicates control by a report a therapeutic drug levels and states "no psychiatric reason for not reinstating her drivers licence".

On June 5, 2002, the Medical Advisory Committee recommended the suspension of the drivers licence and on June 10, 2002 The Applicant was so informed and that reconsideration would be given on receipt of a detailed psychiatric report that she remained free of psychiatric symptoms for a period of one year. Suspension was effective July 1, 2002. On July 22, 2002 Physician #1 submitted a letter to the Ministry of Transportation that the Applicant has had no recurrence of her health problems and that there were no medical reasons for her not to drive. On August 27, 2002, the Medical Advisory Committee requested a follow-up psychiatric report because of insufficient information on which to base a recommendation for reinstatement. They base this on the impression that The Applicant has overdosed three times and was non-compliant-facts, which were later, refuted by the applicant's testimony at the hearing.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under sub clause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant's licence to drive was suspended on the basis of Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and Regulation 340/94 Section 14. "The holder of a drivers licence must not suffer from any disability likely to significantly interfere with his/her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely".

Physician #1's letter of January 11, 2002 to the Ministry of Transportation reported the disabilities, which were sufficient to interfere with her ability to drive safely. The Ministry of Transportation requested medical reports to ascertain her condition and competence to hold a drivers licence. The Medical Advisory Committee reviewed these reports several times but they were not able to recommend competence to drive safely or reinstatement after suspension.

The C.M.A.'s Guide in Determining Medical Fitness to Drive deals with psychiatric disability in Section 13. The following is a summary of relevant issues.

It is very difficult to make specific recommendations because some psychiatric disorders are not severe enough to interfere with a person's ability to drive safely. The physician faces difficulty in assessing the patient's insights, emotional stability, judgement and responsibility. Long-term drug therapy introduces another hazard, which depends on the driver's conscientious use of prescribed medication in appropriate dosage. Therefore the Motor Vehicle Licensing authority may require detailed psychiatric reports before it is able to determine the patient's ability to drive safely.

The Applicant's problems stem from stress due to a broken home where parents have separated and a father who is verbally abusive. She also has had abusive interpersonal relationships with several suitors. She has been under the care of a psychiatrist for over a year. The incident of January 9, 2002 was a once only accidental overdose of prescribed medication. As of June 2002 she has stopped all medication and has no mood swings. At her latest visit on September 10, 2002, the psychiatrist reported no evidence of depression or hypomania.

There is no requirement in the guidelines for a one-year freedom from psychiatrist symptoms before consideration is given to allow a patient to drive safely.

This Tribunal finds that The Applicant does not suffer from a disability likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated July 1, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: September 5, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: September 10, 2002 TORONTO

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 5, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Haroon Sakhizadah (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1998 Toyota Camry, plate 490 SZN (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	August 21, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 5, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I need to use my car to get to work and it's about 50 km far from my home and there are no other transportation are running there, if I don't go to work I'll loose my job at the moment I'm on a leave of sick till Sept.01.02. I appreciate your cooperation in this matter. Thank you

The Applicant confirmed the details of his written submission and provided additional evidence including:

- The driver of the vehicle, Mohammad Idrees Sakhizadah (Mohammad), is the brother of Haroon Sakhizadah (Haroon) and that Mohammad took the vehicle while Haroon was sleeping; Haroon, Mohammad and Haroon's cousin live in the same house and Haroon testified that his car keys are generally hung up on a peg near the front door;

- The Applicant testified he did not know why Mohammad took his vehicle as Mohammad has his own vehicle, which has been parked in the garage during Mohammad's licence suspension period;
- The Applicant works in Port Perry, which is 50 km from his home in Pickering or a $60.00 taxi ride each way, and usually working the night shift between 8:00 p.m. and 4:30 a.m.;
- There was also no direct public transportation from Pickering to his place of employment in Port Perry
- The Applicant confirmed that he had just returned to work and been able to get rides from different individuals since September 1st but was convinced that he would lose his job if he missed more than several days work in the remaining impound period of 3 weeks.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Mohammad Idrees Sakhizadah;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle (Exhibit 1);
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until June 18, 2003.

The Respondent confirmed that Haroon's sole claim for hardship was on the basis of loss of transportation and through additional inquiry, the Tribunal also learned:

- there was no direct public transportation to Port Perry from Pickering and while there was one additional vehicle in the family home, it belonged to Haroon's cousin whose work hours and evening classes conflicted with his schedule and thereby made that vehicle unavailable; and, based on previous rental experience he was unable to afford a short-term car rental;
- that the Applicant had a net monthly income of about $2,100 with almost the same level of expenses;
- that Haroon was unable to transfer his insurance coverage to Mohammad's vehicle and that he would have difficulty in coordinating his shift schedule with co-workers who all live at some distance and though he had been able to manage since September 1st, he expressed his belief that it would be difficult to arrange more rides home;
- that arranging rides to work might be easier than getting home at the conclusion of his

- shift at 4:30 a.m. since none of the Applicant's co-workers lived in his community;
- that Haroon had not discussed his vehicle loss problem with his supervisor and therefore could only rely on his concern that if he missed more than 2 or 3 days of work, he would lose his job; Haroon also advised it was very hard to contact the supervisor who had authority to allow time off as this supervisor was not regularly on site but traveled to other company locations;
- the Applicant advised that he was also hesitant to request vacation time since he had been on sick leave for 4 months due to a broken ankle and while receiving unemployment benefits he did need to get back to his regular income level.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the Applicant's appeal to have the impounded vehicle returned on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d), that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship, the evidence presented was considered on whether or not it met the definition of "exceptional hardship" and if it clearly established the Applicant will experience/is experiencing an unusual circumstance and severe hardship based on the following.

Whether "no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available" ref S.22(3)(a);

The Applicant gave evidence that he could not afford a vehicle rental or use taxis and stated that public transit, if he could reach it, did not run at the time his night shift finished (4:30 a.m.) and that while he did not anticipate being able to get rides home from co-workers as none lived in his community, he was willing to inconvenience himself to suit the schedule of whoever would be able to

Whether the "loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;" ref S.22 (3)(b)

The evidence established the immediacy of the loss had been mitigated by the fact the Applicant had been on sick leave until September 1st or for approximately the first half of the impound period (scheduled to expire September 26th).

As the Applicant confirmed that he had not advised his supervisor of his vehicle loss and the reason for the loss, the Tribunal was not provided with any clear evidence that the impact of the loss would result in the loss of the Applicant's employment.

Whether "the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle"; ref S.22.(3)(c)

The Applicant testified he had been able to arrange transportation for his shifts from September 1st but expressed uncertainty about how he would be able to do so for the remainder of the impound period.

Whether the impact of the loss "will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle"; ref S.22.(3)(d)(i)

The evidence showed the loss would be to the Applicant who was not the driver at the time of the impoundment.

In summary, while the Applicant has presented evidence to show he will experience inconvenience as a result of the vehicle impoundment, the Tribunal was not provided with clear evidence to confirm the Applicant would lose his job. In fact, the Applicant confirmed he had not discussed his vehicle impoundment with his supervisor in an effort to find a solution to his temporary loss.

The evidence presented did not clearly show that there was "exceptional hardship" in terms of the loss being exceptional, unusual, and causing "hardness, severity, severe toil or suffering" or "extreme privation".

There was also no evidence to show that the Applicant, who testified he knew his brother's driver's licence had been suspended, had instituted conditions to prevent or discourage him from finding or taking the car keys and that they had actually been left in plain sight by the front door.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 16, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 17, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated August 22, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on August 29, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to the Registrar dated August 10, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received August 22, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received September 10, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "August 10, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal was prepared by the Applicant's physician of "1 years", Physician #1, on "22/8/02".

Physician #1 details under the heading:

- o "Details and Diagnosis of patient's present condition: Shortness of breath; Possibly Hyperactive airways
- o History of Condition: Visited ...office Dec 20/01 - Complaint ...shortness of breath difficulty breathing; Pulmonary function was normal; treated with inhaled Ventolin as needed...
- o Type of Measurements or recent tests taken. : Pulmonary Function Test 20/12/01 – Normal
- o Relevant details of visit and when your patient was last seen? No further complaints; Possibly hyperactive airways triggered by inhaled irritants

At the hearing the Applicant, in her evidence-in-chief, testified as to how she felt about the suspension of her licence, and the fact that she has learned her lesson.

In cross-examination the Respondent's Representative questioned the Applicant as to the medical reason she was not able to provide a breath sample. The Applicant explained that she had used a nasal spray that stuck to the back of her throat and rendered her unable to provide a sample. As this spray is not medicated she was unable to obtain a note from her physician.

The Respondent's Representative specifically asked the Applicant if she was having breathing problems at the time of the breathalyzer test, to which the Applicant replied: "...No I was not having breathing problems...". The Applicant visited her physician and had a pulmonary function test after the incident. The results of the PFT were normal.

In closing the Applicant challenged the fact that she is accused of refusing to provide a breath sample. The Applicant claims that she did not refuse, but that in fact she has a problem with her breathing and could not provide a longer lasting breath.

The Applicant stated that she does not know the accurate diagnosis of her condition.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed September 4, 2002.
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed September 3, 2002

The Respondent called Constable #1, a member of the York Police services as a witness. Constable #1 testified that he sworn as an officer on "...May 20th 1997...".

Constable #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being asked for a breath sample and surrounding the breath test.

Constable #2 performed the breath in Constable #1's presence. At the time the Applicant exhibited no signs of physical distress such as shortness of breath. The Applicant never asked for medical attention or told the officer that she needed any type of medication.

The Respondent's Representative also called Constable #2 of the York Regional Police Services. Constable #2 was sworn in as an officer in 1997, and became a breathalyzer technician in "...October 2000...".

Constable #2 testified that in her first attempt, the Applicant "...took a deep breath in, put the mouthpiece in her mouth, and puffed her cheeks out making no attempt ...to provide a sample into the instrument...". Constable #2 formed the opinion that the Applicant was refusing to provide a breath sample, in that there was no air going into the instrument.

Constable #2 proffered that during the Applicant's second attempt the instrument begun to begin to register. When Constable #2 encouraged her to 'keep going', the Applicant deliberately stopped providing a sample.

After the second attempt, the Applicant was allowed another couple of opportunities to provide a sample but was not successful. The Applicant's explanation to the officer was that she was trying but she could not do any better.

During the time that Constable #2 spent with the Applicant, she did not request medical assistance. Constable #2 did not observe any signs that would lead him to believe that the Applicant required medical attention.

In his closing remarks, Mr. Biel the Respondent's Representative argued that there is no medical condition that would have prevented the Applicant from providing a breath sample.

Mr Biel pointed out that both Constables are trained observers and neither noticed any symptoms of a medical condition. In referring Physician #1's report, Mr. Biel notes that Physician #1 confirms "...Shortness of breath...", however, the pulmonary function test taken the same day, was found to be normal. Further in "Relevant details of visit..." Physician #1 wrote "...No further complaints..."

The Respondent's Representative asked the Tribunal to uphold the Registrar's decision to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Applicant's introduced a report from her physician that listed her condition as "...shortness of breath...". However, as the Respondent's Representative emphasized, the Applicant testified that her shortness of breath is sporadic, and that she was not afflicted at the time of the breathalyzer test session. By her own admission, the Applicant indicated that the pulmonary function tests, ordered by her physician were normal.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's written and viva voce submissions, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that she was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated August 10, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: September 23, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: September 27, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 23, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant’s appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Mariana Paytler ("Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1991 Nissan, Plate No. AFNS899 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 3, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 23, 2002 and proceeded as oral hearing, after the Tribunal determined that there were no preliminary matters in dispute.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit 1	Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle.
Exhibit 2	Marianne Paytler's application.
Exhibit 3	Marianne Paytler's Authority for her Husband (Peter) to act on her behalf.

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence For The Applicant

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

Peter Paytler read his wife's letter authorizing him to act on her behalf. When the presiding member asked him to read his wife's position statement he did not have a copy so the presiding member read it from his copy.

When asked to relate the circumstances of the incident leading to the impoundment of his wife's vehicle, Peter testified that the afternoon before the incident he drove his wife's car to Gananoque to visit the Casino there. Early the next morning he decided to return home and it was on the return trip that he was stopped by police. Questioned about the facts of his license suspension Peter admitted that he was aware that his license had been suspended for life and that his family knew this.

Asked where his wife was when he left for the casino he responded that she was at work and that a friend had taken her there and was going to pick her up when she was finished.

Peter also testified that his son was still living at home and that he also had a car although it was quite old and not very reliable. When asked how his wife was getting back and forth to work since the impoundment of her car, he testified that for the most part her son was driving her. When asked if his wife had missed any time at work due to the impoundment he replied no, that she had not missed a day yet but that she might due to the unreliability of her son's car. He also testified that she had not missed any medical appointments either.

Evidence for the Registrar

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Peter Paytler;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant's agent Mr. Peter Paytler testified that there is no possible threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle. Nor has she missed any medical appointments or any time from work.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant, albeit inconvenienced to carry on her day-to-day operations, has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and that the impact of the loss is not significant and lasting as required by section 22(3) of Regulation 574 as amended by Regulation 632/98.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 574 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 19, 2002 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Govind Sami (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1994 Honda S1, plate # AJFR 009 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 3, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 19, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I Sanjay Sami is on the same Insurance as my father Govind Sami. I was in the passenger side of the vehicle, when the incident occurred. I presumed Vini Segrán had his full drivers licence at the time of the incident, but when everything was all said and done, I found out his licence was under suspension. On this ground I would like to appeal the Impoundment of my vehicle to the tribunal.

The Applicant was present during this proceeding but did not give evidence or testimony. The following is a summary of Sanjay Sami's affirmed testimony.

Mr. Sami is the Applicant's son. For insurance purposes, the impounded vehicle is registered in the Applicant's name, but was purchased and is exclusively driven by Sanjay Sami.

Mr. Sami testified that Vini Segrán is his nephew and that they grew up together. He further testified that on the night in question both Messrs. Segrán and Sami attended a wedding and later went to the grooms house to open gifts. Mr. Sami went on to tell the Tribunal that because he was not feeling well after leaving the party at the groom's house, he allowed Mr. Segrán to have care and control of the impounded vehicle. Mr. Segrán was driving to his home in Brampton where Mr. Sami intended to spend the evening. Unfortunately, Mr. Segrán was cut-off by another vehicle on the highway causing him to rear-end the other vehicle.

Mr. Sami testified that while he had never actually seen Mr Segrán's driver's license, he believed that his nephew held a valid license because he drove his mother's car back and forth to school in downtown Toronto. Mr. Sami also admitted that he had no knowledge that Mr Segrán's license had been suspended on two different occasions within the last two years, the first being an ADLS suspension and the other being an impaired driving conviction relating to the ADLS suspension.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 & 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Vini Segran;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until April 10, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended

December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that Vini Segran's driver's license at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension.

The onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was performed which is required under Section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

In Mr. Sami's testimony, the Applicant merely insures the vehicle. He did not purchase it and rarely drove it. Technically, therefore, the Applicant does not qualify in providing due diligence. The onus lies with Mr. Sami who owns the vehicle.

The evidence before the Tribunal, in Mr. Sami's own testimony, was that he at no point in time asked for or saw Vini Segran's valid driver's licence. He was under the impression and merely assumed that his nephew had a valid driver's licence. The thought never crossed his mind to ensure he was a driver in good standing. Furthermore, there was no evidence heard that would confirm Mr. Sami's actions were anything but passive in nature.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant or Mr. Sami exercised due diligence as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

ROBERT SALHANY AND MARY GARDINER

MOTION TO CONSIDER AN APPLICATION FOR EXTENSION OF TIME

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: ROBERT SALHANY, representing himself and Mary
Gardiner, Applicants
NETANUS RUTHERFORD, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program, Respondent

DATE OF HEARING: August 22, 2002 Via Teleconference

REASONS FOR RULING AND ORDER

This is an application to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") under section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999, to extend the time for Robert Salhany and Mary Gardiner (the "Applicants") to file an appeal from a Decision Letter of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated May 21, 2002, (the "Decision") denying the Applicants' claim for compensation. The hearing of this matter proceeded by teleconference.

EXHIBITS:

- Exhibit #1 - Decision Letter from Paul Rochon of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program dated May 21, 2002;
- Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal dated June 10, 2002;
- Exhibit #3 - Notice of Motion dated June 28, 2002; and
- Exhibit #4 - Respondent's Motion Record

ISSUE:

Have the service requirements of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") been met?

If such is the case and the Notice of Appeal was not filed within the time prescribed by the Act, should the Tribunal extend the time pursuant to section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999?

FACTS:

The affidavit of Filomena Cece of the Program at tab 1 of exhibit 4 states that the Decision was delivered to the Applicants by Canada Post on May 23, 2002, and that the Notice of Appeal was received by the Tribunal on June 14, 2002, which is seven days late.

The Applicants' witness was Robert Salhany, whose evidence is as follows:

Mr. Salhany was directed and authorized by Mary Gardiner to represent both Applicants on this motion.

Robert Salhany signed for receipt of the Decision from Canada Post on about May 23, 2002. The Applicants decided to appeal within five days of receiving the Decision.

The Applicants reside in Ottawa. Mr. Salhany's mother died near Montreal on June 18, 2002. For about one month prior to her death, she was either ill or seriously ill. Mr. Salhany took time off from work to visit his mother several times during that month.

The Applicants are spouses. Mr. Salhany is the one who takes care of financial matters. Ms. Gardiner asked him to fill in the Notice of Appeal on behalf of both Applicants. Mr. Salhany completed the Notice of Appeal in spurts. He did not finish filling in the form on the same day that he started to do so.

Item 3 of the Decision states the following Applicants' complaint: "Bubbled seam along counter top. Kitchen. Located at the corner seam between the stove and wall to family room." Mr. Salhany was advised by two servicepeople that the item is defective because a silicone base was not put in. The Decision states that waves or bubbles are noticeable along the mitre joint in the kitchen countertop. Further, the Decision argues that this complaint represents a damaged item and does not represent a defect in either materials or workmanship nor a violation of the Ontario Building Code.

Counsel for the Respondent conceded that there is no overriding prejudice to the Program in allowing the motion for extension of time.

LAW:

Section 16 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states the following:

- (1) Where the Corporation makes a decision..., it shall serve notice of the decision, together with written reasons therefor, on the person or owner affected.
- (2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the person or owner served is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person or owner mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Corporation and the Tribunal.
- (3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order directed the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act reads as follows:

Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

- (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
- (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

In Vittorio Nicolini, a decision of the Tribunal released February 20, 2001, the Tribunal sets out a four-fold test (the “Nicolini Test”) that the Applicant must satisfy as follows:

1. That she had an intention to appeal within the time limited.
2. That the reason the notice of appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicant should be excused for not doing so and allowed to do it later if she did [so] as soon as the true situation was apprehended.
3. That there is not some overriding prejudice to the Respondent in the allowing of the application.
4. That there is a substantial point in issue and the Applicant has some reasonable chance of success.

Of the case law presented by the Respondent, in Vittorio Nicolini the Applicant did not have an intention to appeal within the time limit. Likewise, in Nizamuddeen, Sirmali, Safraz and Shabana Mohamed, a decision of the Tribunal released August 19, 2002, the Applicants did not have the necessary intention to appeal within the time limit.

In Glen and Ginette Sharp, a decision of the Tribunal released August 10, 2001, the Applicant did not have a reasonable chance of success should the matter proceed to appeal.

Section 13(1) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states the following:

- Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Based on the affidavit of Ms. Cece, the Tribunal finds that the service requirements of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act were met on May 23, 2002.

The Tribunal finds that the Notice of Appeal was not filed within the prescribed time. Section 16(2) of the Act requires it to be filed within fifteen days of service of the Decision. The Applicants' Notice of Appeal was received by the Tribunal on June 14, 2002, which is more than fifteen days after receipt of the Decision on May 23, 2002.

The Tribunal finds that the first part of the Nicolini Test is satisfied. Mr. Salhany testified that he intended to appeal within the required fifteen day period.

Further, the Tribunal finds that the second part of the Nicolini Test is complied with. Mr. Salhany testified that his mother was ill during the prescribed fifteen-day filing period. The Applicants apprehended the true situation and filed only about seven days too late. Mr. Salhany's mother died shortly after. The Tribunal finds that the Applicants should be excused for not filing in time.

The third part of the Nicolini Test is conceded by Counsel. There is no overriding prejudice to the Program in allowing the motion.

Also, the Tribunal finds that there is a substantial point in issue and the Applicants have some reasonable chance of success. Two servicepeople advised Mr. Salhany that the bubbled seam along the kitchen countertop is defective, not constructed in a workmanlike manner and free from defects in material, as required by section 13 of the Act.

In summary, the Nicolini Test is fulfilled and the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension of time and for granting relief pursuant to section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999, the Tribunal orders that the application to extend the time for filing of the Notice of Appeal by the Applicant be granted and the Notice of Appeal filed by the Applicants be and is deemed to be timely filed.

DATE OF HEARING: July 22, 2002 London

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated November 19, 2001 which was amended by a later decision dated July 19, 2002, in which the claim of Joseph Torok and Rose Torok (the "Applicants") was denied and then, after some new information was accepted by the Program, allowed.

BACKGROUND:

This is an Appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicants from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") set out in a decision letter dated November 19, 2001 (the "first decision letter"). A later letter was issued in the matter on July 19, 2002. The parties have agreed to a Consent Order on the repair aspects of the latter decision letter. However, the hearing proceeded as the Applicant and Respondent were unable to agree on costs and certain out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the Applicants.

THE EVIDENCE:

Evidence of the Applicants:

Joseph Torok

The witness lives at 31 Kara Lane, Tillsonburg, Ontario, which is the address of the new home that is the subject of this hearing.

The Applicants contracted to purchase a newly constructed home pursuant to an Agreement of Purchase and Sale executed by them on or about August 21, 1999. The original completion date was extended and they took possession on March 6, 2000.

The witness noticed leaking at the cold cellar area of the new home the day after possession. He notified the builder of the problem the next day. For the next three months, the builder sent his son to the Torok's residence on an occasional basis to review the leaking cold room.

On or about May 16, 2000, Mr. Torok attended upon the Program's London Office where it appears that a Leslie Danaskos took a statement from the Applicant. The relevant complaint is at item 10 of that letter wherein Mr. Torok complains:

“...main entrance underneath: water entry into home thru cold cellar wall.”

This was his first complaint made to the Program regarding the leaking issue.

As a result of this and other complaints, a conciliation inspection was conducted on July 18, 2000. The builder was ordered to take corrective action to stop all water entry. The Applicant recalled that some corrective measures were taken in August of 2000. However, these steps did not fix the problem.

Mr. Torok complained to the builder about the leak and was told the builder could do nothing more. He again went to the warranty program for assistance and resolution.

There was a further inspection by the Program in August 2000 that resulted in a Work Schedule dated October 6, 2000. Mr. Vern Nelligan of the Program observed in his report dated October 6, 2000 that “... the cold cellar was leaking date of claim inspection October 6, 2000, from overnight rain.” The required repair was to create a control joint and use a lastomeric type sealer.

The Program's contractor Custom Service Corporation did this repair work on November 15, 2000. The witness stated that control joint and sealant work was completed as suggested by the contractor. After the repairs were completed, Mr. Torok was presented with a Release, which he refused to sign, as the leakage had not stopped.

Mr. Torok was referred to Tab 12 of the Respondent's Book of Documents and stated that he did not feel Mr. Nelligan's observations were accurate. In the Applicant's view, the repair was not done and the joint was still leaking.

Mr. Torok estimated that Vern Nelligan of the Program was present at the house every two weeks during this period.

The witness continued to make complaints and started to take photos and videotapes. He made three videotapes in all that revealed leaking walls after rainfall at different points in time.

Mr. Torok could not specifically recall when he first advised the Program that he had videotapes of the leaking water. He recalled that Mr. Nelligan came on at least one occasion and took some photos during a rainstorm.

In February 2001, Mr. Torok continued to voice his complaints to the Program. He recalled making his complaints to a John Reid at the Program.

On February 6, 2001 the home was inspected by Simon Radley of Custom Service Corporation following a complaint by Mr. Torok. The witness did not have a specific recollection of this inspection. However, some melting snow was causing a problem that he attributed to the leaking problem. He recalled that the Program continued to insist that there was no leak.

He could not recall what had transpired between February 6, 2001 and June 2001 when some repair work was undertaken on the porch. He did state that the June 2001 repair was not effective and the leaking continued.

An inspection preceded the first decision letter which is dated November 19, 2001. As a result of this inspection, some repairs were suggested. Mr. Torok did not agree with these suggested repairs and wanted the removal of the entire slab of concrete.

On December 6, 2001, some repairs were effected. These were done in accordance with the November 19, 2001 decision letter. According to Mr. Torok, these repairs did not resolve the leakage problem.

As a result of the on-going water issues, the Applicant has not had much joy in the new home.

When asked why it became necessary to hire an expert to test for leakage, Mr. Torok replied to the effect that no one at the Program believed his contention that there was a leak. Mr. Torok was satisfied that there was a leak but he needed to convince the Program.

On February 15, 2002, Mike Hanas, Operation Manager for the Program in the Southwest Region, sent a letter to the Toroks. Mr. Hanas inherited the Torok's file after the retirement of Mr. Nelligan. In that letter, Mr. Hanas requested an opportunity to conduct a water test. Mr. Torok agreed to this and was present when Mr. Hanas conducted the test.

The test was conducted on March 12, 2002. Mr. Hanas attended with Mr. Simon Radley. The Applicant Mr. Torok was also present. Mr. Torok recalled that the test was brief. The water began to leak about fifteen minutes after Mr. Hanas departed. This was about one hour after the test was conducted.

Mr. Torok testified that he told Mr. Hanas that he had a video of the prior water penetration. Mr. Torok recalled being told that Mr. Hanas would not accept this video. Mr. Torok believed this presented him with no alternative but to seek out the opinion of a third party expert.

Mr. Torok thought he told Mike Hanas that he had an expert's report. He recalled being asked by Mr. Reid to provide the report. His response was to have the Program go through the lawyers. This occurred in early May 2002. It appears that Mr. Torok did not have the written report until sometime in July 2002.

The report's conclusions were consistent with the observations of Mr. Torok. There was a leak.

On cross-examination, Mr. Torok stated that he believed the porch slab should have been replaced to fix the problem. He had that opinion from the onset of the leaking until the date of the hearing.

Mr. Torok agreed that any water that was revealed in the photos to be on the ceiling was a condensation issue unrelated to the leaking issue.

He was shown one of the Engineer's photos that revealed the downspout at the front of the home. He stated that he has never removed the downspout. Sometimes the wind blows it off.

Mr. Torok agreed that at some point after the last set of repairs to the home were done, Mr. Hanas did take time to look at the videos with Mr. Torok. The witness recalled Mr. Hanas saying the videos would not help. He could not recall when this review occurred.

He did not agree that the March water test was conducted for nearly 45 minutes. He recalled Mr. Hanas leaving for a coffee to allow the water to seep. He did not recall how long Mr. Hanas was gone. He did recall that there was water leaking when Mr. Hanas came back and reviewed the test results.

Mr. Torok did not call Mr. Hanas about the leaking after this test. Instead, he called Mr. Reid who apparently yelled at him and told him he would not do anything for Mr. Torok.

Fred Stanley

The Program took no issues with the contents of Mr. Stanley's report, his expertise or findings.

Mr. Stanley is an engineer with Walters Forensic Engineering in Toronto, Ontario.

He attended upon the Applicant's home and did his usual look around the front of the building. He took a look at the joint and then observed the cold room itself. In the cold room, he removed some of the insulation that had been installed. He stated that water streaks were visually apparent on the wall. He looked at the plugs that had been installed from a prior repair job and observed small amounts of accumulated moisture. He also observed that there had been an attempt to seal the wall with a clear filling.

He then went back upstairs and turned the hose to the porch. He placed the nozzle two or three feet away from the front door and allowed the water to run away from the house towards the joint for about fifteen minutes. According to the witness, this is a very easy test to perform.

Mr. Stanley also watched some of the Applicant's videos which revealed leaking in the cold cellar (cantina). The leakage revealed on the video was consistent with rainwater penetration. The leakage observed seemed to correspond to rain events. The videos were taken on a variety of dates. Mr. Torok had a dating feature on the camera so the apparent date was revealed when the video was watched. Some of the dates were in November 2001. The last of the dates he observed with rain in the video was December 23, 2001.

EVIDENCE OF THE RESPONDENT: ONHWP

SIMON RADLEY

Mr. Radley has been in the construction business for more than 25 years, mostly in the area of new home construction. He has spent the last 13 years with Z Group in London, Ontario. Z Group is a large London and area builder. He holds a variety of positions with his employer. Mr. Radley is the Warranty Manager and Residential Rental Manager with Z Group. Prior to his employment at Z Group he was employed the London builder R.J. Daniels.

Mr. Radley confirmed that Custom Service Corporation is a sub-business of Z Group that performs repairs and renovations on pre-existing homes. Mr. Radley is also the manager of Custom Service Corporation.

Custom Service Corporation has done repair work and estimates for ONHWP over the last few years. This work amounts to 10-15% of Custom Service Corporation's overall workload.

Mr. Radley reviewed Tab 9 of Exhibit 4. He confirmed that the job at the Applicant's home required the creation of a control joint between pieces of concrete to allow for expansion. The line that appears across the Applicant's front porch between concrete slabs is called a control joint. This was the caulking job he did in October 2000.

After this repair was effected, Mr. Radley met with Vern Nelligan and the Applicant at the home in November 2000. They wanted to review the performance of the lastomeric-type sealant that was injected from the outside into the slab joint. At that time a water test was also done. He was satisfied the water problem was solved by the creation of the control joint. At this time nipples were installed every four or so inches along the joint and an epoxy was injected as a sealant of the joint.

The joint was sealed now from the outside and the inside. The water test conducted revealed no water penetration at the joint.

What Mr. Radley did observe was condensation in the cold cellar. This was occurring as the warm moist air in the home was making contact with the cooler concrete slab. He suggested that some of the "apparent" leaks might have been condensation areas.

Mr. Radley conducted a standard humidity test and observed a reading of 80%. The outside temperature was 5 degrees Celsius. Typical indoor humidity is nearer 40% and he characterized the Torok's home as very high in relative humidity.

The Torok's continued to experience problems and in December 2000, Custom Service Corporation attended to plug some cellar vents in an effort to eliminate the additional cold air to basement. The effort was an attempt to control the temperature in the basement. They were trying to ascertain if the venting system was the problem. The sealed vent will also eliminate migrating water.

Mr. Radley attended the subject home again on February 6, 2001. He could not specifically recall what precipitated his trip to the home. He did observe a water penetration problem. He could not recall if there had been rain but did observe a light dusting of snow. Moisture droplets on the ceiling and a wet wall were observed. He concluded that the problem continued to be condensation and that the water spots were caused by a collection of moisture running toward a single point or area on the ceiling grade.

In June 2001 Mr. Torok reported additional leaking. Mr. Radley thought he attended upon the home at this time to observe the situation. Either way, repairs were effected again in June 2001. They wanted to remove the front slab and see what was occurring at the control joint. This would also present an opportunity to see how the walls were actually constructed and to improve the detail of the venting system.

Mr. Radley observed at this time that there was not a proper water system in place to remove or re-direct water from the area of the cantilever. The area was not properly constructed and so the area was waterproofed, a new control joint was created and caulked, and a new slab was poured.

He recalled someone from Z Group attended the home in late October 2001. There was a problem with poor water removal caused by a lack of weep holes. In December 2001 the repair work on this problem was completed mostly by the application of caulking. They had to re-attend after some caulking has been removed. It was re-installed and at that time all seemed fine.

On March 12, 2002, he met with Mike Hanas of the Program at the Applicant's home to conduct a water test. They were very precise with the test. While one flooded the areas from above, another observed from below. He estimated they were there nearly 45-48 minutes conducting the test. They observed no water penetration. Mr. Radley then left the site for an out of town meeting.

Mr. Radley also attended on the subject home on July 17, 2002. A water test was conducted and within 21 minutes they were able to make it leak. They pulled out some of the caulking during the test and observed that that did not make it worse. He concluded that there was a control joint problem at the southwest corner.

On cross-examination, Mr. Radley indicated that four repairs had been attempted and, after standard tests were performed after each repair, no water leakage was observed. He characterized the process as one of elimination. Each repair built upon the previous to eliminate a cause of the problem.

He denied that the July 17 leak created by the engineer changed his mind. He stated there was no mind change in the process at all, just a response to conditions he observed.

Mike Hanas

Mike Hanas is an operations manager for the Program in the South West Regional Office (SWRO). He has an architectural technology background from Fanshawe College in London, Ontario. He has been with the Program for four years. He became involved in this case as a result of the retirement of Vern Nelligan.

On February 15, 2002, Mr. Hanas sent a letter to the Torok's to follow up on their claim the cellar was still leaking in January 2002 after the November & December 2001 repairs. He proposed a water test be done before March 15, 2002. This test occurred on March 12, 2002.

Mr. Hanas attended upon the March 12 water test that lasted 45 minutes. It was done in stages to test the various walls and slabs and then check the cold cellar. He did not observe any evidence of water at that time. He left the home for approximately half an hour. Upon his return he re-inspected the area of the test and observed no leakage. Mr. Torok did not point out any leakage at that time.

On April 8, 2002, Mr. Hanas again attended upon the Torok home to inspect the site. There was a natural steady rain that day. He observed that the insulation on the ceiling had been partially removed. He observed some evidence of water but could not conclude whether it was condensation or leakage.

Mr. Hanas followed this inspection up with a letter on April 16, 2002 to the Toroks. In that letter he also reviewed the results of a February 21, 2002 visit to the home. On that visit, following a complaint of rain leaks, Mr. Hanas attended with Mr. Radley. They both observed water associated with high levels of condensation.

The April 8, 2002 inspection resulted in a proposal by the Plan to re-do the joint between the foundation and porch slab and re-insulate the cold cellar. The Plan did not feel that removal and replacement of the porch slab was required to correct the conditions observed. This work was not completed, as Mr. Torok did not want further damage done. Mr. Torok wanted to have his own contractor effect the repairs.

The witness stated that he did watch some videos taken by Mr. Torok during his April visit. He viewed portions of videos that he thought had been taken prior to December 2001. His observation was that the videos did not help to establish the state of the floor in April 2002.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

1. The Applicants took possession of the home on March 6, 2000;
2. The Applicant had several complaints about the home that triggered a conciliation report in July of 2000. As a result of that report, which included references to water penetration, the builder was ordered to effect repairs which were done in August of 2000;
3. The Program inspected the builder's repairs in August 2000 and concluded that they were unsuccessful. Simon Radley and Custom Service Corporation were retained by the Program to fix the leak problem. Through October and November 2000, a control joint was created and sealed. Also, the joint between the south wall of the cold cellar and the ceiling was filled with an epoxy;
4. In December 2000, the Applicant again complained of water penetration. Vern Nelligan attended and it was suggested that repairs to the venting system be effected. Other repairs, if needed, would have to wait until the spring;

5. The Applicant reported leakage again in February 2001. Simon Radley attended upon the home for the Program. He concluded that the problem seemed to be associated with high humidity. No further repair seemed warranted;
6. Some repairs to deal with the issue of condensation were completed in April 2001.
7. In response to a complaint by the Applicant, Custom Service Corporation was retained to make significant repairs the affected area including the removal, repair and replacement of the concrete slab in front of the porch concrete slab;
8. On October 26, 2001, the Toroks again complained of water penetration. There was some dispute over whether the Torok's would allow the proposed repairs at that time but in December 2001, the repairs were undertaken. These repairs were again effected by Custom Service Corporation;
9. In response to a complaint of water, in February 2001, Mike Hanas and Simon Radley attended upon the Torok home during a period of substantial rains. He observed no leakage but did see evidence of high condensation.
10. On March 12, the Program conducted an extensive water test and no water penetration was revealed;
11. On April 8, 2002, following a steady rain, Mike Hanas again attended on the Torok's home. He observed some water penetration but could not conclude if it was condensation or leakage. He suggested that the joint be re-done and that the cold cellar be re-insulated. The Applicant refused this course of action.
12. Fred Stanley of Walters Forensic Engineering was retained by the Applicant to test the area for leakage. A water test was conducted on April 29, 2002. The test revealed a water leakage;
13. The Program around July 4, 2002 received the report of Mr. Stanley. A further test was requested by the Program on July 18, 2002 in order to assess methodology and repair alternatives.
14. On July 17, 2002, a water test at the Torok's home was conducted and water leakage confirmed.
15. A second decision letter was issued on July 19, 2002 confirming warranty coverage and suggesting repair options.

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states as follows:

13(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

...

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

(a) defects in materials, design and work supplied by the owner;

(b) secondary damage caused by defects, such as property damage and personal injury;

(c) normal wear and tear;

...

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

...

14(3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,

...

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

The issue to be decided by the Tribunal was greatly narrowed by the parties prior to the hearing. In essence, the matter to be decided herein is:

1. Are the Applicants entitled to an Order for damages for engineering fees incurred prior to the hearing? and,
2. Are the Applicants entitled to costs for the hearing?

I propose to first deal with the issue of costs. The jurisdiction of the Tribunal to award costs is not inherent to the Tribunal. The authority must arise in the enabling statute. This Tribunal does have the authority to award costs by virtue of Rule 14.3 of the Rules of Practice of the Licence Appeal Tribunal. The Tribunal must make a finding that a party has acted “unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith...” before such costs may be awarded.

Counsel for the parties each referred the Tribunal to the decision in Re Ram [2002] O.L.A.T.D. No. 93. In that case, it appears that the Applicants were not represented by counsel. They had made reference to alleged Charter violations without giving appropriate notice to the Attorney General and had failed to make timely disclosure of evidence as required by the Tribunal rules. It appears from the decision that the claim for costs was based on these complaints. That Tribunal stated that the cost sanctions were meant to deal with “extreme” cases.

Indeed, the Rules indicate some types of circumstances may be considered to determine whether an Order for costs is appropriate. It is clear that those circumstances indicate violations of Tribunal Rules and Orders are appropriate considerations for costs. The Ram decision adds that is violations of an “extreme” nature that must attract the sanction of costs.

The Tribunal sees no evidence in this case to warrant an order for costs against the Program. Both parties were well represented by their Counsel. Many issues were dealt with on Consent prior to the hearing. The conduct of the parties at the hearing was orderly and respectful. All parties presented their evidence in a succinct and helpful manner for the Tribunal. The cost sanctions in the Rules are intended to sanction those who use the Tribunal and it's procedure in an “unreasonable, frivolous, vexatious, or in bad faith...” manner. There is no evidence that the Respondent conducted themselves as such and, accordingly, the Applicant's claim for costs is dismissed.

Also, the program's resistance to the damage claim advanced by the Applicants was within the caselaw and statute. This Tribunal does not believe that opposing a claim within these parameters can be construed as being in any way “unreasonable, frivolous, vexatious, or in bad faith”.

The Applicant also seeks an Order for damages for the cost of the engineering report tendered at the hearing.

The Tribunal is authorized to award damages where a claim arises by virtue of section 14(1)(b) the Act. That section entitles a claimant to be paid out of the guarantee fund where an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty. That entitlement is circumscribed by section 6(6) of Regulation 892 “Administration of the Plan”. That section states that liability in the case of this type of home is “...limited to damage to the home only...and there is no liability for any other damage, direct or indirect”.

The Act further limits the liability and scope of warranties under the Act by virtue of the exclusions section in section 13(2). Of particular note is section 13(2)(b) that makes it evident that damage that is consequential to a warrantable defect is not warranted. This excluded “secondary damage caused by defects, such as property damage and personal injury”.

Counsel for the Program cited the decision in Fitch, [1998] O.C.R.A.D.T. No. 161. In that case, the applicants requested an amount for damages concerning various items, such as reimbursement for the purchase of various cleaning materials, the purchase of new furniture to replace the damaged furniture and the costs of various reports obtained for the purposes of the proceeding. In that case, the Tribunal agreed that those damages were properly excluded by section 13(2)(b) of the Act.

The engineer conducted his water test on April 29, 2002. The written report was not received until July 4, 2002. This hearing occurred a little over two weeks later. In the meantime, the results of the engineer’s report precipitated a subsequent test where it was determined that there was a leak.

DECISION:

The Tribunal is mindful of the fact that the Torok’s have been through quite a nightmare with their new home. The problems were undoubtedly exacerbated by the apparent lack of success in remedial efforts taken by the Plan. There also seemed to be a difference of opinion as to the root cause of the water penetration problem. However, while they appear to have been very patient with the Program, it is also apparent that the Program was very diligent with the Torok’s claims. Many repair jobs were conducted in response to the problem. Program representatives and contractors appeared to take the Torok’s claims seriously and respectfully. There were certainly points where the process was strained but it does not appear to the Tribunal that the Torok’s were being ignored.

Counsel for the Toroks suggested that the Program had “obstinately” stuck to a conclusion that there was no leak. With respect, it appears to the Tribunal that the Program responded properly to the Toroks water issues in each case. The many repairs undertaken by the Program were clearly intended to effect the needed repair. It seems, quite frustratingly for all parties, that they were wrong on the repair needed.

The Tribunal is in agreement with the position advanced by the Program with respect to damages. The authority of this Tribunal to make such an order must be clear from the legislation. The cases and the Act make it quite evident that the cost associated with the preparation of an engineer’s report are outside the scope of damages that can be awarded by this Tribunal.

The Applicant suggested that the Tribunal substitute the “decision” that the engineering costs be borne by the applicant. The Tribunal is not prepared to substitute its opinion for that of the Program’s with respect to the issue of reimbursement of the cost of the engineer’s report. The ability to do so in this case would appear to be a back door method of obtaining damages for the applicant. According to this argument the jurisdiction comes from Section 16 of the Act. That section specifically states that the Tribunal, among other things, may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation. The authority of the Tribunal arises by virtue of a decision made by the Corporation under Section 14. Section 14 states, in the relevant portion that a person is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund where "...an owner has a cause of action for damages resulting from a breach of warranty". Once again, we return to the issue of reimbursement for damages. It is the Tribunals' opinion that this applicant's costs are outside the limits for damages prescribed and intended by the Act.

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty as follows:

1. To expose and investigate the south west corner of the porch at the junction of the porch and sidewalk slab;
2. If a defect is apparent, to repair the defect as required;
3. If a defect is not apparent and the Program requires expert assistance in identifying the sources of the leak and/or scope of repair, it will retain the services of an engineer qualified as a building sciences engineer to provide appropriate work schedule.
4. To advise the Applicant's engineer of the findings of its investigation before commencing any repair work on the Applicant's home and to pay the reasonable costs of the Applicant's engineer's review of the findings.

Items 1 – 4 in this order were submitted jointly by the Applicant and Respondent on Consent. The Applicant's request for an order that the costs of the engineer's report incurred by the Applicant be paid by the Respondent is rejected. The Applicant's claim for costs is also rejected.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicants appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated January 17, 2002, and a supplementary decision letter dated April 3, 2002. These decision letters had the cumulative effect of denying the warranty claims made by the Applicants.

PRELIMINARY ISSUE:

The Program asks that the hearing be adjourned to dates to be agreed upon in November on the grounds that its warranty representative, Paul Picard, has recently taken ill and is unable to testify at this time.

The Program advised that Mr. Harkin will be taking over for Mr. Picard in this matter and that Mr. Harkin will require an opportunity to inspect the home and fully prepare for the hearing.

Whereas the added party consents to the adjournment, the Applicants do not.

The Tribunal notes that the illness of Mr. Picard was not foreseeable and that it notified the Applicants immediately thereafter of the circumstances and the need for an adjournment.

Prior to the Tribunal ruling on the adjournment request the parties embarked upon serious and meaningful settlement discussions and advised the Tribunal that the Program and the Applicants agreed to a resolution of the following complaints:

Notice of Appeal from the Decision Letter of January 17, 2002.

1. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $354.00 for taps incorrectly installed;
3. The Complaint regarding the location of the showerhead has been remedied and is hereby dismissed;
4. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $150.00 in respect of their claim for caulking of sinks.
5. The Program shall pay to the Applicants that sum of $411.00 for their lighting complaint;
6. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $60.00 in respect of the Applicants claim for receptacle outlet in the kitchen breakfast area;
7. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $90.00 in respect of the Applicants claim for misalign closet doors;
8. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $50.00 for the cracked window frame;
11. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $25.00 for weather stripping;
13. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $250.00 for their complaint of insulation of the outside light;
15. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $300.00 for their complaint to relocate the sump pump exit;
16. This complaint has been settled and is hereby dismissed;
17. This complaint has been resolved and is hereby dismissed;
19. This complaint has been resolved and is hereby dismissed.

Notice of Appeal from the Decision Letter dated April 3, 2002.

1. This complaint has been remedied and is hereby dismissed;
2. This complaint has been remedied and is hereby dismissed;
4. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $2,000.00 in respect of the Applicants complaint for the heat recovery ventilation system;
5. The Program shall pay to the Applicants the sum of $100.00 in respect of their claim for high wall air returns;
8. This complaint has been settled and is hereby dismissed;
11. This complaint has been settled and is hereby dismissed;
13. This complaint has been settled and is hereby dismissed.
16. Whereas the complaint of water penetration remains unresolved, the Program has offered to effect the necessary repairs of this complaint.

On the basis of the foregoing, the parties acknowledge that the following complaints remain in dispute:

From the Notice of Appeal of the Decision Letter of January 17, 2002, complaint numbers 2, 9, 10, 12, 14 and 18.

ROBERT GUY & JODI ARBOUR

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: MICHAEL H. TURK, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

ROBERT GUY & JODI ARBOUR, Applicants, representing themselves
CAROL STREET, Counsel representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
BRIAN CAMPBELL, Counsel representing Rose Valley Homes Inc., Added Party

DATE OF
HEARING: August 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicants, Robert Guy and Jodi Arbour, appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated 21 January 2002. This decision letter had the effect of denying the warranty claims made by the Applicants.

BACKGROUND:

In July, 1999, the Applicants entered into an agreement of purchase and sale with the added party, Rose Valley Homes Inc. (hereinafter "Rose Valley") for the purchase of a new home to be constructed on the lands known municipally as 197 Guildwood Drive, Bowmanville, Ontario. This home was completed for occupancy in or about the end of July, 2000. The Certificate of Completion and Possession was signed by the Applicants on August 3, 2000.

The Certificate of Completion and Possession as delivered to the Program by Rose Valley consists of two pages. The first page is the standard form Certificate of Completion and Possession signed by Rose Valley and the Applicants and a second page entitled Pre-

Delivery Inspection Report, signed by the Applicants. This second page does not list any deficiencies but makes reference on the bottom right corner to "See Attached 3 pages". The attached three pages were not forwarded to the Program. The Applicants refer to these three pages as a list of their deficiencies.

Whereas Rose Valley attended to many of the deficiencies contained in the Applicant's list, relations between the two became strained.

On January 9, 2001 the Applicants sent a letter to Rose Valley with a copy to the Program. This letter lists six (6) specific deficiencies and is treated by the Program as its first and only Notice of the Applicant's claim within the first year of the new home warranty.

On July 27, 2001 the Applicants issued a Statement of Claim in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice against Rose Valley, the Program and the Municipality of Clarington with respect to the construction and deficiencies in the home. The Statement of Claim was served on the Program on August 8, 2001, 4 days following the Applicant's first year in the home.

Notwithstanding that legal proceedings were ongoing in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice, the parties scheduled a conciliation for January 7, 2002. The conciliation took place as scheduled at which time the Applicants withdrew 1 complaint.

In its Decision Letter of January 21, 2002 the Program reviewed 19 complaints. The Program found 8 items to be warranted but denied these items on the basis that for 2 items the Applicants refused to permit Rose Valley to perform repairs and the remaining 6 warranted items were denied on the basis that the Program had not received notice of the Applicants' claims within the 1 year limitation period for first year warranty claims.

At the hearing the Applicants withdrew 5 complaints and as such, the hearing proceeded to review 13 complaints.

THE FACTS:

The Applicants appeared in person. In addition to Robert Guy, John W. Caverly of Building Litigation Consultants & Associates gave evidence for the Applicants.

The Program called Jim Fortune, a warranty representative.

Rose Valley called two witnesses, Sandro Soscia, an engineer and principal of Soscia Engineering Ltd. and Rob DeMarchis, supervisor of customer service.

With 6 items having been withdrawn by the Applicants 13 items remained to be determined. These items can be categorized in the following manner:

1) Uneven Floor Systems Throughout the Home

The most serious of all deficiency claims relates to the Applicants claim that the floors within the home are uneven, that there is deviation in the height of the floor joists, the joists and engineered beams have inconsistencies with respect to horizontal trueness and the joists are installed both crown up and crown down thereby creating undulations in the floors. The Applicants asks that the entire floor system be reviewed by a structural engineer and that the affected joists be replaced and/or repaired. This would entail the removal and re-installation of electrical and plumbing components.

The Program acknowledges that a downward deflection at the LVL beam is excessive and therefore warrants this area of the floor as a defect in workmanship and materials. The Program refuses the Applicant's claim on the basis that they refused Rose Valley access to the home to effect repairs.

Rose Valley states that the deviation is within acceptable standards and denies any defect in workmanship or material.

2) Separation of Joints and Trim

The Applicant claims defects in material and workmanship as trim has cracked and separated in areas throughout the home.

The Program and Rose Valley acknowledge the cracks but state that this claim was made beyond the 1 year limitation period and is therefore out of time. The Program and Rose Valley state that in any event, had these complaints been provided within the prescribed time, they would have been denied as being a result of normal shrinkage and therefore excluded from the warranty.

3) Installation of Hardwood and Ceramic Floor Systems

The Applicants claim that the hardwood strip floor has not been installed in accordance with the manufacturer's specifications and asks that once the floor system has been re-engineered that the hardwood floor be replaced and installed in accordance with manufacturer's specifications.

As it relates to the installation of ceramic tiles, the Applicants claim that the installation does not comply with the Ontario Building Code and therefore the ceramic tiles require removal and replacement.

The Program and Rose Valley found no problems with the hardwood floor other than a missing piece of trim. Although conceded that the ceramic tiles may have not been installed specifically to code, they note that no damage has occurred and therefore there is no defect in workmanship or materials.

4) Access to Jacuzzi Tub

The Applicants claim that there is no access to the Jacuzzi bathtub motor and is not in compliance with the Ontario Electrical Safety Code.

Although originally denied by the Program as being out of time, it was conceded that this notice was received within the proper time frame and that this is a warranted item. Rose Valley agrees with the Program as it relates to this item.

5) Lack of symmetry in the brick along the front of the home

The Applicants claim that the installation of brick at the front of the home is defective in that there are different courses of brick, variances in mortar and uneven ends to the brick lines.

The Program denies this claim as being received after the expiration of the one year warranty. At the hearing the Program conceded that had this claim been received in time, it would have been warranted. Rose Valley stated that this claim was out of time and denied a defect in workmanship.

6) Temperature variations throughout the home

The Applicants claim that there are substantial variations in temperature throughout the home.

The Program denied this claim as not being proven. Rose Valley concurs.

7) Improper and incomplete vapour barrier system

The Applicants claim a defect in workmanship in the installation of the vapour barrier throughout the home.

The Program found that the poly air/vapour barrier in the basement is installed in pieces and is not properly sealed. The Program denied coverage of this complaint on the basis of the Applicants' refusal to permit Rose Valley to perform the necessary repairs. Rose Valley agrees to perform the repairs.

8) Relocation of the attic hatch

The Applicants claim that the attic hatch is improperly installed in that it does not provide sufficient headroom to permit access.

The Program denied the claim on the basis that it was not warranted and received after the expiration of the one year warranty. Rose Valley has agreed to relocate the attic hatch as required.

9) Drywall taping separation

The Applicants claim that drywall taping on the second floor of the home has separated and/or cracked.

The Program states that this claim was made after the one year warranty period, and states in any event, that this complaint is excluded as being normal shrinkage under the Act. Rose Valley concurs with the Program on this issue.

10) Scratches to main shower stall

The Applicants claim that there are scratches to the main bathroom shower stall.

The Program denies the claim on the basis that it was not made within the one year period and that in any event, the scratches are minor in nature, not readily apparent and therefore not warrantable. Rose Valley concurs with the Program on this issue.

11) Gas and Fireproofing the man door between garage and home

The Applicants claim that the man door has not been properly gas and fireproofed.

The Program found a gap between the brick mould and the wall and that this is a warranted second year claim. The Program refused warranty coverage on the basis that the Applicants refused to permit Rose Valley an opportunity to perform the necessary remedial work. Rose Valley has agreed to remedy this item.

12) Wood extension windowsills are bowed out of shape

The Applicants claim that the some of the wood frames have cracked.

The Program denies this claim on the basis of the Applicants failure to give notice of the claim within the one year period. Rose Valley denies any defect in workmanship or materials.

THE EVIDENCE - PRELIMINARY ISSUES:

1) The Applicants raised an objection to the admission of a supplementary report and curriculum vitae of Sandro Soscia, P. Eng. of Soscia Engineering Ltd. submitted by Rose Valley on the basis that these documents were delivered beyond the time limit set at the prehearing.

When questioned by the Tribunal, the Applicants acknowledged that they were not in any way prejudiced by the late delivery of these documents and that their only objection related to the issue of time.

On the basis that no prejudice would result by the admission of these documents, the Tribunal permitted Rose Valley to rely on these documents.

- 2) The Applicants issued and served a subpoena on Bernard Finney, an engineer who was retained by the Program and conducted an inspection of the Applicants' home. Mr. Finney was retained well after the issuance and service of a Statement of Claim and after the prehearing. The Program advised that it would not be calling Mr. Finney as a witness and objected to the Applicants' subpoena on the grounds that Mr. Finney is not a compellable witness.

The Tribunal accepted the submissions of counsel for the Program and found that Mr. Finney, retained by the Program for the sole purpose of the litigation, was not compellable as a witness by the Applicants and therefore was not required to give evidence before this Tribunal.

THE EVIDENCE:

Robert Guy gave evidence on behalf of the Applicants. Mr. Guy actively followed the construction of this home and referred to photographs in Exhibit 9 to demonstrate the home throughout the construction process.

Whereas the Certificate of Completion and Possession (hereinafter "CCP") was signed on August 3, 2000, Mr. Guy attended in the home numerous times prior to August 3rd. Mr. Guy produced and the Tribunal marked as Exhibit 4C a typewritten letter to Rose Valley dated July 17, 2000, listing 21 problems with the home.

In Exhibit 4D, Mr. Guy produced a more detailed three page typewritten deficiency list dated July 31, 2000. This deficiency list is produced again as Exhibit 4E save & except that in this version, the majority of deficiency items had been ruled off.

As it relates to the CCP, Mr. Guy testified that the inspection commenced on August 3rd but was not completed until August 4th, that Exhibit 4E was his deficiency list and that this list, without the deletions, was attached to the CCP.

Mr. Guy testified that he had no knowledge as to whether Rose Valley submitted the CCP to the Program and that he had not.

On cross examination Mr. Guy stated that due to the difficulties that he has encountered with Rose Valley, his preference was for another contractor to perform the repairs and/or monetary compensation. As it relates to whether access had been denied to Rose Valley for the purpose of effecting repairs, Mr. Guy testified that whereas Rose Valley had remedied many deficiencies, the method of repair for the remaining items was paramount and therefore the Applicants would not have permitted Rose Valley to do the remaining repairs unless the method of repair was approved by Mr. Caverly.

Mr. Guy concluded by stating that the balance of the Applicants claim is based upon the inspection, deficiencies and quotations contained in the report of Building Litigation Consultants and Associates (hereinafter "BLCA").

The Applicants' second and final witness was John W. Caverly from BLCA.

John Caverly has been involved in the construction business since 1968, and has achieved the following designations: BCQ building code qualified, CEI certified environmental inspector, CES certified environmental specialist and RHI, registered home inspector. Mr. Caverly was accepted by the Tribunal as an expert with a specialty in Ontario Building Code issues.

Mr. Caverly authored a 45 page report dated March 14, 2001 which report was filed at the hearing and marked as Exhibit No. 8.

While the report details 18 areas of deficiency, the Tribunal was advised that 5 items were settled thereby resulting in 13 areas of deficiency. In Mr. Caverly's opinion the home had deficiencies which can be summarized as follows:

The exterior brick cladding was out of alignment, different heights and cut of brick and in violation of the standard for brick installation CSA A371-94 Masonry Construction for Buildings. The remedy is to remove and replace the brick at a cost of $7,500.00.

The floor joists have been installed & engineered incorrectly and that the entire floor systems require further investigation. Mr. Caverly found a variation of 3/8" in the floor joists and that the floor joists have been improperly installed crown up and crown down when the proper method of installation is crown up. Mr. Caverly recommends an engineer's report be obtained and budgets $15,000.00 for corrections.

Mr. Caverly testified that he found temperature variations in the home and suggests that the heating system be balanced and that a blower test be performed to determine the areas of the building that are not sealed properly. Remedial costs are quoted at $3,500.00.

Mr. Caverly testified that the installation of the attic hatch is a violation of Ontario Building Code 9.19.2.1 and the attic hatch must be relocated at a cost of $850.00. As it relates to vapour barrier Mr. Caverly testified that there has been no vapour barrier system installed at the perimeter building openings and recommends that a blower test should be undertaken to determine areas of high leakage and the home should be air sealed. Remedial costs are estimated at $3,500.00.

Mr. Caverly testified that there were areas where drywall taping had separated and that substantial separation had occurred at the ceiling wall on the second floor. While truss uplift could be suspected, Mr. Caverly indicated that the drywall should be repaired at a cost of $500.00 and continue to be monitored.

Mr. Caverly continued by testifying that he observed a crack in the main shower bathroom shower although previously repaired, was not repaired properly and that he viewed scratches to the unit. In the absence of being able to properly repair these deficiencies, remedial costs are estimated at $2,500.00.

As it relates to the Installation of the jacuzzi motor access, Mr. Caverly testified that this was in breach of the Ontario Electrical Safety Code and that the entire tub must be removed in order to remedy the problem and quotes remedial costs at $2,500.00.

With regard to the issue of trueness of the floors throughout the home, Mr. Caverly testified that the floors throughout the home have extreme deviations in the floor plane which causes undulations in breach of 9.30.1.4 of the Ontario Building Code. Mr. Caverly stated that further investigation is required by his engineer in order to determine the extent and corrective method of leveling the floor system. $2,500 for engineering fees and $15,000.00 is budgeted for corrective undertakings.

Mr. Caverly testified that the installation of the hardwood flooring was not in accordance with manufacturers specifications in that there was no felt underlay, floor staples were not installed in the proper lengths between each staple, numerous joints are less 6" offset and the subfloor is 5/8" plywood not 3/4" Orient Strand Board. Mr. Caverly states that once the floor system has been engineered, that the entire hardwood strip floor be removed and reinstalled at a cost of $9,000.00.

As it relates to the ceramic floor systems, Mr. Caverly testified that the base mortar and lack of vapour retarder was in breach Articles 9.30.6.4 and 9.30.1.4. of the Ontario Building Code. The only remedy is to remove and replace the ceramic flooring at a cost of $9,000.00.

Mr. Caverly testified that the interior garage door was not properly gas and fire proofed in violation of Article 9.10.9.16 of the Ontario Building code. Remedial costs are quoted at $750.00

Mr. Caverly's evidence in chief concluded with the issue of interior trim and door installations. Mr. Caverly testified that the trim and door installations are substandard and should be repaired at a cost of $2,500.00.

Mr. Caverly's observations were photographed and submitted as evidence. In total, 128 photographs were presented and marked as Exhibit 9.

On cross examination by Mr. Campbell, Mr. Caverly testified that he had only been in the home on one occasion and that his opinions regarding the process of construction and any deficiencies thereto were formed based upon his review of the photographs provided to him by the Applicants.

As it relates to Ontario Building Code violations, Mr. Caverly testified that he found no violations in the exterior brick cladding and the installation of floor joists. The Tribunal notes that the evidence given by Mr. Caverly in chief indicated that the installation of the floor joists was a building code violation.

The major issue relates to the undulations in the floor and that aside from the issues of compliance with the Ontario Building Code, an engineer should be retained.

Lastly, Mr. Caverly testified that his report was not written with the view of whether a deficiency was covered by the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan.

On cross examination by Ms. Street, Mr. Caverly confirmed that his report was prepared in the context of a possible action against Rose Valley and not for a claim against the Ontario New Home Warranty Program. Mr. Caverly further confirmed that he is not familiar with the process of advancing a claim against the Program and the limitations provided within the warranty.

As it relates to the trueness of the floors, Mr. Caverly testified that the proper approach would be to first fix the LVL beam and then look at any other damage.

Ms. Street's cross examination was completed by Mr. Caverly's reconfirming his evidence that the installation of hardwood flooring was deficient, that the ceramic floor installation did not comply with the Ontario Building code, that areas of the home suffered from shrinkage, temperature variations needed to be remedied and that the jacuzzi motor access panel was in breach of the electrical code.

Rose Valley's first witness was Sandro Soscia. As an accommodation to Mr. Soscia, the Tribunal agreed to hear his evidence out of normal sequence.

Mr. Soscia graduated from Concordia University in 1987 with a Bachelor of Building Engineering Degree and since 1992 has been the principal of Soscia Engineering Ltd., a company that provides engineering services in building science and residential project management. The Tribunal accepted the qualifications of Mr. Soscia as an expert in engineering.

Mr. Soscia provided a 4 page written report which was filed at the hearing and marked as Exhibit 6.

In his report Mr. Soscia indicates that the floor system has sufficient capacity to carry the strength and allowable deflections. In evidence, Mr. Soscia was critical of Mr. Caverly's crown up crown down theory and stated that the Ontario Building Code permitted a deflection of 3/4" or 16mm, that the floor should not be re-engineered and that although he noticed a dip in the floor, it is within allowable specifications.

Mr. Soscia stated that in order to remedy the dip in the floor he would remove a portion of the hardwood floor in the complained area in order to determine the extent and nature of the problem.

Mr. Soscia continued by testifying that he did not view any apparent defects in the hardwood flooring, did not see any gaps and that any problems were as a result of normal shrinkage.

As it relates to the ceramic tiles, Mr. Soscia testified that he did not lift the register in order to determine if there was felt paper beneath, but stated that he saw no problems with the tiles and that the installation had been completed in a good and workmanlike manner.

For both the ceramic & hardwood floor issues, Mr. Soscia testified that as the home is now 2 years old, any defects would have become apparent by now.

Mr. Soscia continued by testifying that the installation of brick met the spirit of the Ontario Building Code in that it restricts the penetration of snow, rain and is durable and that any lack of symmetry was not readily visible.

Mr. Soscia confirmed the existence of separation of material on the second floor and recommends the repair of the same.

Mr. Soscia did not find any problems with temperature variations, that there were no problems with the installation of insulation and vapour barriers and that scratches in the bathroom were not visible.

Mr. Soscia's evidence in chief concluded by him agreeing that the attic hatch be relocated, jacuzzi tub access must be provided and the drywall separating on the second floor should be repaired as a result of truss uplift or shrinking.

On cross examination by the Program, Mr. Soscia disagreed with the suggestion that the LVL beam installation was defective and that any repair should be approached in a localized fashion. When shown photograph 19 of Exhibit 7 Mr. Soscia conceded that the crack in the wall should be repaired.

With regard to the issues of ceramic & hardwood flooring and brick symmetry, Mr. Soscia denied any breaches of the Ontario Building Code and stated that the intent of the code had been met.

When questioned by the Tribunal regarding photograph 19 of Exhibit 9, Mr. Soscia testified that it was not common for the wall in question to crack and that this is in need of repair.

The Program's first and only witness was James Fortune, a warranty representative with the Program since 1989. Prior to becoming employed by the Program, Mr. Fortune was a building inspector with the Town of Tottenham and Chief Building Inspector with the Town of Adjula and has attended numerous seminars relating to building construction issues. The Tribunal accepted Mr. Fortune's qualifications.

Mr. Fortune testified that the CCP in the Program's possession consisted of 2 pages, the standard CCP first page and a second page entitled PDI which form was blank with a reference to attachments. These attachments were not in the possession of the Program.

For the purpose of determining whether notice of a claim was provided to the Program in time, the Program relied upon the Applicants letter dated January 9, 2001 filed at the hearing and marked as Exhibit 4B, as the Program's first year notice of the Applicants claims.

As it relates to the floor system, joist, beams, columns lifting and sagging, Mr. Fortune testified that while he did not notice lifting & sagging, he did find separation of floors, undue undulations and that the floor had dipped excessively.

Mr. Fortune conducted string line tests and found variances of 1/4" to 1/2". Whereas Mr. Fortune disagreed with Mr. Caverly's theory of crown up & crown down he testified that a variation of 1/2" at the LVL beam was not acceptable. This problem continued through the home to the second floor and would remain a problem until the LVL beam is fixed.

Whereas the Program found that this issue is warranted, coverage was denied on the basis of the Applicants' refusal to permit Rose Valley to effect repairs.

With regard to the installation of the hardwood floors and ceramic tiles, Mr. Fortune testified that the installation was typical, for the hardwood floor he did not notice any lifting, loose boards or excessive separation. Likewise, for ceramic tiles, he did not view any unevenness, the grout was fine and no cracks were visible. In addition, any deterioration as a result of improper installation or workmanship would have been evident within the first year in the home.

For joint and trim work separation Mr. Fortune testified that this claim was not in the Applicants letter, Exhibit 4B and is therefore out of time. Mr. Fortune testified that in any event the separation complained of is as a result of normal shrinkage and settlement and therefore not warranted.

Mr. Fortune admitted that the issue of the Jacuzzi tub electrical access was received by the Program in time and that this item is warranted.

As it relates to brick symmetry, Mr. Fortune testified that this item was not warranted as it was not contained in Exhibit 4B. In response to questions by the Tribunal, Mr. Fortune testified that the brick work at the front of the home suffered from poor workmanship and that he would have warranted this item if the Program had received notice in time.

Mr. Fortune continued by testifying that upon his inspection he recorded temperature variations of 1.5 degrees and that this was not excessive nor a violation of the Ontario Building Code. Although not complained of, Mr. Fortune testified that during his inspection he found a gap between the steel support beams and the brick which could allow air and gas infiltration. Mr. Fortune noted that this item should be corrected as it posed a health and safety threat.

With regard to the issue of air vapour barriers, Mr. Fortune found that the poly/air vapour barrier in the basement lacked acoustic sealer and construction taped joints and was therefore warranted. Mr. Fortune denied coverage for this item on the basis of the Applicant's refusal to permit Rose Valley the opportunity to effect repairs.

As it relates to the attic hatch Mr. Fortune testified that this is a violation of the Ontario Building Code and would be warranted but denied the claim on the basis that notice of the claim was not made within the first year.

For damage to the drywall on the second floor, Mr. Fortune testified that this claim was also out of time having been received after the first year period. Had notice been given, he would have done a further investigation.

As it relates to the scratches in the bathroom, Mr. Fortune testified that this item was out of time and that as the scratches complained of were not visible to him, this item would have been denied, in any event.

The issue of the man door is warranted and should be fixed by re-caulking the door.

The issues of wood extension windows was disclosed for the first time at the conciliation and is therefore out of time. This item would have been refused in any event due to normal shrinkage.

Mr. Fortune concluded his evidence in chief by stating that the Rose Valley must be given reasonable access at reasonable times to conduct repairs. It was his view that the Applicants were not content with the methods of repair proposed by Rose Valley and that unless the builder did the work in accordance with what the Applicants wanted, they would not permit the builder to do the work.

Mr. Fortune's cross examination was brief and did not disclose any new information or testimony.

Rose Valley called the last witness of the hearing, Robert DeMarchis.

Robert DeMarchis has been employed by Rose Valley for 3 years and acts as the project coordinator and is responsible for after sales service.

Mr. DeMarchis testified that he was not involved in the CCP process and that he did not receive Exhibit 4E until November 27th 2000. Mr. DeMarchis acknowledged that the attachments to the CPP were not delivered to the Program.

As it relates to the items contained in Exhibit 4E Mr. DeMarchis testified that Rose Valley had re-attended to the home on numerous occasions to effect repairs. These repairs consisted of inter-alia: January 23, 2001 to effect drywall repairs and adjust doors; January 24, 2001 to adjust & install a railing, varnish railing and adjust doors; January 25, 2001 paint touch-ups, trim; and on March 25, 2001 balance of the heating system. 5 invoices detailing particulars of the remedial work were filed collectively and marked as Exhibit No. 13.

In addition to the above repairs, Mr. DeMarchis testified that Rose Valley attempted on three instances to perform remedial work but the Applicants would not permit work to be done.

Mr. DeMarchis continued by testifying that once the Statement of Claim was served the matter was in the lawyer's hands and that no further remedial work was undertaken.

Mr. DeMarchis concluded by testifying that Rose Valley was always prepared to perform the necessary remedial work but felt that the report of Mr. Caverly was unrealistic and that the Applicants would not agree to Rose Valley's methodology of repair.

Mr. DeMarchis's cross examination did not disclose any new or conflicting evidence.

ISSUES:

There are three issues.

The first is whether the Program obtained notice of the Applicants 13 claims within the time frame provided by the Act.

The second is whether the claims received by the Program within the proper time frame are warranted under the Act.

The third is what is the appropriate remedy for the warranted items.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Act are as follows:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,;

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code
- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
- (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of;

- (c) normal wear and tear;
- (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;
- (e) damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintain adequate ventilation; and
- (f) damage caused by improper maintenance.

(3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.

(4) A warranty under section (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

14 (6)

In assessing the amount for which a person is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund under this section, the Corporation shall take into consideration any benefit, compensation, indemnity payable, or the value of work and materials furnished to the person from any source;

Regulation 892, Section 15 (2)

Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,

- (d) that the home is free from violations of the Ontario Building Code regulations under which the Building Permit was issued, affecting health and safety, including but not limited to fire, safety, insulation, air and vapour barriers, ventilation, heating and structural adequacy;

15 (3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS & FINDINGS:

The Program relies upon correspondence from the Applicants dated January 9, 2001, received by the Program on January 11, 2001 as its notice of first year claims within the first year of the new home warranty.

This letter is filed as Exhibits 4B and 3-2 referring to the following:

- hardwood floors - lifting, separating & sagging;
- floors unlevel upstairs and downstairs;
- drafts coming in from light switches and baseboards in the two front bedrooms;
- cold air return not finished;
- bathroom in ensuite tiles not finished (no access panel for jacuzzi)
- leaks in basement, not cemented under the door.

Mr. Guy testified that Exhibit 4E was his pre-delivery inspection and that he relied upon this list as his list of deficiencies. Rose Valley admits that it did not append this list to the CPP nor did it forward the list to the Program.

Exhibit 4E as filed at the hearing, had the majority of items ruled off as they had been remedied by Rose Valley. At the hearing the parties agreed that in addition to the items contained in Exhibit 4B referred to above, the only item of complaint from Exhibit 4E not listed in Exhibit 4B pertains to brick alignment and mortar.

As it is admitted that the items referred to in Exhibit 4B were received by the Program in time, the Tribunal concurs and formally finds that notice of these complaints were received by the Program within the first year of the warranty.

As it relates to the issue of whether the complaints relating to brick work were received within the first year, the Program takes the position that as this complaint was not contained in Exhibit 4B, notice was not received within the first year.

Counsel for the Program provided the Tribunal with cases pertaining to whether a claim is received by the Program within the one year period.

The applicable cases are summarized in the decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in the Eleanor Murray matter, released as [1995] O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 77. In the case of C. Ray Webb of March 1982 the Tribunal found that the only proper notice must be written notice served or posted to the Program within the proper time. Failure of the builder to file the Certificate of Completion and Possession did not alter the fact that the one year warranty lapsed and that no claim had been made. On that basis Mr. Webb's claim was disallowed.

A different result was rendered in the case of Giuseppe Brundia of April 22, 1998 where the Tribunal found that it would be "strange indeed to have a builder and subsequently the program escape liability through a failure of the builder to file the Certificate as required."

In the Murray matter, the Tribunal agreed with the Brundia decision and found that the Program should not be able to escape liability through a failure of the builder to file the Certificate as required.

This Tribunal agrees with the Brundia decision. The Program cannot rely on the failure of the builder to file the list of deficiencies attached to the Certificate of Completion and Possession as having not received notice of the deficiency claims. The Tribunal therefore deems that the Program received the Certificate of Completion and Possession with the attached pages of deficiencies within the first year and therefore had notice of the defects contained therein within the one year time period.

Based upon the foregoing and as it relates to Exhibit 4E the Tribunal finds that the Applicants' claim relating to brick & mortar was received within the one year time period.

Aside from the above-noted complaints, the balance of the Applicant's claims were contained in the Statement of Claim issued in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice on July 27, 2001 as Court File No. 01-W-214953CM, at Toronto.

The Program testified that the Statement of Claim was received on August 8, 2001. This position was not contested and therefore the Tribunal finds that the date of service of the Statement of claim was August 8, 2001. On its face it appears that the first year claims contained therein for the first time, were prima facie received beyond the one year time period.

Counsel for the Program provided the Tribunal with the case of John and Teresa Tepylo, a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal dated Nov. 10, 1992. In its decision the Tribunal found that it had no jurisdiction to extend the time for the commencement of the one year period stipulated in the Act and therefore could not assist the applicants in that respect.

This Tribunal agrees with the Tepylo decision and is unable to assist the Applicants in their first year claims that were received by the Program after the first year from the date of the Certificate of Completion and Possession.

On the basis of the foregoing the Tribunal makes the following decision with respect to the timeliness and warrantability of the 13 items referred to in the Decision Letter of the Program of January 21, 2001:

1. Uneven Floor Systems Throughout the Home

The Tribunal finds that notice of this complaint was received by the Program within the one year period.

The Tribunal heard conflicting evidence as it relates to whether the floor systems are defective. Sandro Soscia, P. Eng. testified that the floor systems were constructed properly and that the deviations are within allowable tolerances. On the other hand, Mr. Caverly takes issue with the engineering of the joists and finds the deviations and deflections to be excessive. While Mr. Fortune does not agree with Mr. Caverly's methodology, he found an excessive downward deflection of the floor system in the LVL beam and that this would result in unevenness in the second floor as well.

The photographs contained in Exhibit 10-21 clearly illustrates a dip in the floor at the LVL beam and photograph Exhibits 7-19 and Exhibit 10-19 illustrate a floor to ceiling crack in the wall located at the LVL beam.

It is patently clear to this Tribunal that there is a defect in the floor system.

Whereas the Tribunal would have preferred to make a specific direction for the nature and scope of remedial work required in this complaint, the Tribunal was not presented with sufficient evidence that would have enabled it to make a specific direction.

Based upon the evidence presented to the Tribunal, the Tribunal finds that the downward deflection of the of the floor system at the LVL beam is excessive, that this item is warranted and must be repaired. In addition, the Tribunal also finds that all cracks arising from this complaint are also warranted and must be repaired.

2. Separation of Joints and Trim

The first notice that the Program received of this claim was by way of the Statement of Claim served on August 8, 2001. The Tribunal upholds the decision of the Program and finds that notice of this claim was received by the Program beyond the one year period and is therefore not warranted.

3. Installation of Hardwood and Ceramic Floor Systems

The Tribunal finds that notice of these complaints were received within the one year period.

As it relates to defects in workmanship and material for the hardwood floor the evidence indicated that the installation of the hardwood floor was not in accordance with manufacturer's guidelines and the Tribunal finds that the installation was not in accordance with the manufacturers guidelines and that a piece of trim is missing.

No evidence was tendered to establish that the method of installation of the hardwood flooring resulted in damage to the floor. The problems relating to the hardwood floor are as a result of normal shrinkage and therefore not warranted. The Tribunal finds that a piece of trim is missing and therefore this specific issue is warranted and should be installed.

As it relates to the installation of the ceramic tiles this issue forms two complaints in the decision letter of the Program. The Tribunal heard conflicting evidence as to whether the method of installation was a breach of the Ontario Building Code or installed in an acceptable method in the spirit of the building code. The Tribunal did not hear any evidence that the ceramic tiles had shifted or broken, nor was there any problems with the grout.

There was no evidence that the ceramic floor is damaged nor that the method of installation of the ceramic tiles has resulted in any damage to the tiles or grout. As in excess of 2 years has passed since the installation of the ceramic floor and no defects have materialized, the Tribunal finds no defects in the installation of the ceramic tiles and therefore dismisses the Applicants two claims in this regard.

4. Access to the Jacuzzi Tub

Notice of this claim was received within the one year time period and the parties agree that this item is warranted. The Tribunal therefore finds that this complaint is warranted and that electrical access to the Jacuzzi tub must be provided.

5. Lack of Symmetry in the Brick

In accordance with the Tribunal's prior reasons, the Tribunal finds that notice of this complaint was received in time.

Mr. Soscia testified that defects in the brick were not readily visible and that the installation met the requirements of the Ontario Building Code. The Tribunal heard evidence from Mr. Caverly detailing the improper installation of the bricks at the front of the home. Mr. Fortune was equally critical and testified that had notice been received in time, he would have warranted this item.

The photographs filed in Exhibit 9-5, 9-6, 9-7, 9-8, 9-9 and 9-10 illustrate the poor workmanship in this area. Specifically, these photographs illustrate rough edges, different size mortar joints and different courses of bricks.

The Tribunal finds that the installation of brick at the front of the home is a defect in workmanship and is warranted and that the brick work on the front of the home must be repaired.

6. Temperature Variations Throughout the Home

The Tribunal finds that notice of this claim was received by the Program within the first year.

Mr. Soscia and Mr. Fortune testified that the temperature variations that they found were within acceptable variations. Mr. Caverly was not of assistance on this issue as he recommended that further tests be conducted.

Mr. Fortune testified that during the course of his inspection he noticed in a gap in the garage between the steel support beams and brick that could allow air and gas infiltration into the west wall of the north-west bedroom. Although this item was not part of the Applicants' claim, Mr. Fortune warranted this item as it may pose a threat to health and safety.

As it relates to the issue of temperature variations, the Tribunal finds that the Applicants have not proven any defect with regard to this complaint and therefore dismisses this claim.

The Tribunal finds that the gap in the garage between the steel support beams and brick, as discovered by Mr. Fortune and described above, is warranted and must be repaired.

7. Improper and Incomplete Vapour Barrier System

In accordance with Exhibit 4B the Tribunal finds that notice of this claim was received by the Program within the one year period.

Mr. Caverly's evidence of improper vapour barrier and insulation was based primarily from his review of Mr. Guy's photographs that were taken as construction proceeded. Mr. Caverly did not conduct a complete inspection with respect to these systems and therefore his evidence was not helpful to the Tribunal on this issue.

Mr. Fortune testified that in the basement he observed that the poly/air vapour was installed in pieces, was not sealed as required and was therefore warranted.

The Tribunal finds that this complaint is warranted insofar as it relates to the poly/air vapour barrier in the basement and that this poly/air vapour barrier must be repaired.

8. Relocation of Attic Hatch

The first notice that the Program received of this claim was by way of the Statement of Claim served on August 8, 2001. This complaint is therefore out of time as it relates to a first year warranty claim.

All three witnesses agreed that the installation of the attic hatch was defective and that the hatch needs to be relocated. Mr. Fortune testified that this was a breach of the Ontario Building Code and would have been warranted had notice been received in the first year. Mr. Caverly testified that the location of the attic hatch was not only a breach of the Ontario Building Code but a breach of the fire code as well. Mr. Soscia did not provide specifics on this complaint.

As this complaint was received after the first year the Tribunal only has jurisdiction in the event that this is a valid second year claim. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Caverly that this is a fire code violation as well and therefore finds that this a valid second year claim, is warranted and that the attic hatch must be relocated.

9. Second Floor Drywall Taping Separation

The first notice that the Program received of this claim was by way of the Statement of Claim served on August 8, 2001 and is therefore out of time for first year warranty claims.

As the nature of this complaint pertains to workmanship and/or truss uplift, this does not qualify as a second year claim and therefore the Tribunal dismisses this claim.

10. Scratches on Main Bathroom Shower Stall

The first notice that the Program received of this claim was by way of the Statement of Claim served on August 8, 2001. This complaint is therefore out of time for first year claims.

The nature of this complaint is a defect in workmanship or materials and does not qualify as a second year claim. The Tribunal therefore dismisses this claim.

11. Gas and Fire Proofing of Man Door

The Program agrees that man door between the garage and house has not been fireproofed and that this item is warranted as a valid second year claim. The Tribunal concurs and finds that this is a warranted item.

12. Wood Extension Window Sills are Bowed and Out of Shape

The first notice that the Program received was by way of the Statement of Claim served on August 8, 2001. This claim is therefore out of time for first year claims.

The nature of this complaint relates to an alleged defect in workmanship and materials and does not qualify as a second year claim. The Tribunal therefore dismisses this claim.

ORDER

In the foregoing section the Tribunal found that items 1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 11 are valid complaints as they relate to the issues of timeliness and warrantability. Where necessary, the Tribunal was specific as to what component of the complaint is warranted.

The Tribunal heard evidence that whereas Rose Valley performed numerous repairs to the home, this work ceased following delivery of a Statement of Claim and was further complicated by the inability of the Applicants and Rose Valley to agree on the method of repair.

Throughout the hearing Rose Valley maintained the position that it was ready willing and able to perform the necessary remedial work. In their submissions, the Applicants agreed to permit Rose Valley to perform the work the Tribunal found to be warranted, without pre-condition.

On the basis of the foregoing, the Tribunal hereby orders as follows:

1. Rose Valley shall attend to the repair of warranted items as outlined in the preceding paragraphs 1, 4, 6, 7, 8 and 11 within 90 days hereof.
2. Rose Valley shall attend to the repair of item 5 (brick & mortar) within 120 days hereof.
3. Rose Valley and the Applicants shall cooperate with each other in order coordinate the remedial work in order to minimize any inconvenience.
4. The Tribunal upholds the remaining decisions of the Program to disallow the Applicants other claims.

Upon reading the Affidavit of Jason J. Larton and upon hearing the submissions of Counsle and upon reviewing the Licence Appeal Tribunal's Practice Direction on Adjournments, the Tribunal orders that:

1. The application for an adjournment is dismissed since the hearing was previously adjourned and the new hearing dates were made peremptory against all parties; that there were no compelling reasons given to grant a further adjournment; that the hope of reaching a settlement in a warranty claim which is over ten years old is remote; and that due to the high cost involved in rescheduling the hearing, it is not in the public interest to grant a further adjournment.

DATE OF September 16, 2002 Toronto.
HEARING:

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal by Gregory A. Skinner and Catherine J. Skinner (the "Applicants") pursuant to their Request for a Hearing dated March 19, 2002, (the "Notice of Appeal") to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program"). The Applicants in this appeal base their claim on the provisions of section 13 and section 14(1)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990. Ch. 0.31 (the "Act"). The Applicants' claim was denied by the Program in its Decision Letter dated March 4, 2002, (the "Program's Decision") and the Applicants are appealing pursuant to section 16 of the Act.

Upon the application made by the Program to the Registrar of the Tribunal dated April 12, 2002, Chris Johnson & Associates Ltd. (the "Builder") was joined in this appeal as the Added Party by the Order of the Chairman of the Tribunal dated April 15, 2002, and the appropriate notice of application and notice of the Order were served upon the Parties.

ISSUES:

On July 17, 2001, the Applicants complained to the Program (the "Complaint") that the Builder is in breach of its warranty to construct the new home which it contracted to build for the Applicants in accordance with the Agreement of Purchase and Sale entered into between the Applicants and 1329044 Ontario Limited on October 16, 2000 (the "Agreement"). The Agreement was executed by Christopher Johnson as an officer on behalf of 1329044 Ontario Limited and he is also the principal of the Builder. The main issue of the Complaint was that the pitch of the roof was not in accordance with the plans and/or drawings prepared by the Builder as shown in the elevation depictions thereof which the Builder supplied and were attached to the Agreement as Schedule "B", or otherwise were in accordance with those "already examined by the" Applicants.

The Applicants, on August 16, 2001, thence requested conciliation services from the Program respecting the alleged breaches of warranty, and in response the Program provided such conciliation services between the Applicants and the Builder on December 3, 2001. The Program thence issued the an undated Conciliation Inspection Report (the "Conciliation Report"). being a listing of the two complaints made by the Applicants, which the Program decided, were "not warranted" under the Act. The Program made the following comments in its assessment of the Complaint in the Conciliation Report:

"This complaint does not represent a defect in materials or workmanship ... the Builder's contractual obligations have been met ... there [are no] measurements or written specifications as to the roof pitch. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale does not have ... any reference to the roof pitch. The builder has not made a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale ... pursuant to the Act."

Following receipt of the Applicant's request for a decision based upon the Conciliation Report, a further inspection was scheduled for January 18, 2002, and the Program thence issued the Program's Decision which elaborated but essentially reiterated the assessment made in the Conciliation Report respecting the Complaint. The Applicants, in the Notice of Appeal state, inter alia, that "it is the position of the [Applicants] that the lower roof pitch has a significant negative impact on the value of ..." their home.

EVIDENCE:

Each of the Applicants, Catherine Skinner and Gregory Skinner, gave evidence as to the main issue claimed as a breach of warranty with respect to their new home at 34 Mill Street, Hillsdale, and situate on Lot 11 according to Plan 51M-638, in the Township of Springwater, in the Province of Ontario (the "home"). Completion of the home by the Builder and occupancy by the Applicants took place on or about January 12, 2001, (the "Date of Possession"). The Applicants testified also as to their various dealings with the Builder, the Program and the Municipality. The evidence for the Applicants was limited to the Applicants themselves as no expert testimony was submitted on their behalf and no other witnesses were called by the Applicants.

The Respondent called two witnesses, Donald Straiko, a warranty representative of the Program, and Christopher Johnson, the principal of the Builder, who, coincidentally, is also the next-door neighbor of the Applicants residing at 32 Mill Street, Hillsdale. Mr. Straiko gave evidence respecting his dealings with the Applicants and the Builder and the inspections of the home. Mr. Johnson testified as to the Agreement and the construction of the home including his various dealings with the Applicants and the Program.

The Tribunal has no difficulty with the evidence given by all of the witnesses during the examinations in-chief and cross-examinations as such testimony was straight forward and clear giving rise to no dispute or disagreement on the facts and circumstances in this case. The conclusion which is to be reached from the evidence submitted on the issue is, however, more difficult. The opposing points of view by each of the principal witnesses was most generous to each other and indicated only a misunderstanding or miscalculation of the other viewpoint and, of course, led to the problem inherent in the issue in this case. There is also no suggestion by the Applicants of bias on the part of the Program in favour of the Builder, only grave disappointment in the assessment contained in the Conciliation Report and the reasoning elaborated in the Program's Decision.

Taking the evidence as a whole, the Tribunal observes that either the Applicants failed to make it clear to the Builder the importance to them of the appearance of the home and the pitch of the roof as depicted in the drawings and elevation sketches exchanged between them, or on the other hand, the Builder did not pay close enough attention to this particular detail and was otherwise concentrating on a roof design similar to the other residences it constructed in the area. The Tribunal makes no choice between these two observations as it is probable that the problem has arisen in this case as a result of a combination of both observations. In any event, the issue was ignored by both parties and the home was built by the Builder without defect in workmanship or inferior materials, and the Applicants thence accepted the home as built, took possession thereof and only later discovered its unintended appearance from their point of view.

ISSUES OF LAW:

The Applicants are appealing the Program's Decision to the Tribunal under Section 16(2) of the Act and this hearing and this decision of the Tribunal is issued pursuant to Section 16(3) of the Act.

16. ...

(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the person or owner served is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person or owner mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Corporation and the Tribunal.

(3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation."

Section 13(1) of the Act specifies certain warranties and sets out a list of circumstances in Section 13(2) in respect of which such specified warranties do not apply.

13 (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

(a) defects in material, design and work supplied by the owner;

(b) secondary damage caused by defects, such as property damage and personal injury;

(c) normal wear and tear;

(d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;

(e) damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintain adequate ventilation;

(f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;

(g) alterations, deletions or additions made by the owner;

- (h) subsidence of the land around the building or along utility lines, other than subsidence beneath the footings of the building;
- (i) damage resulting from an act of God;
- (j) damage caused by insects and rodents, except where construction is in contravention of the Ontario Building Code;
- (k) damage caused by municipal services or other utilities;
- (l) surface defects in work and materials specified and accepted in writing by the owner at the date of possession.

Provision is made in Section 13(1)(c) of the Act for these specified statutory warranties to be expanded by regulation, and Part IV of Ontario Regulation 892 (Sections 14 to 24, inclusive) provides for such additional specific warranties by regulation together with terms, conditions, exceptions and exclusions which attach to these regulatory warranties. Such terms, conditions, exceptions and exclusions set forth in Part IV of Regulation 892 only apply to these additional regulatory warranties and do not affect those specified statutory warranties set out in Section 13(1)(a) and (b) of the Act.

Section 13(6) of the Act not only provides that all such specified statutory warranties and specified regulatory warranties apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary, but also recognizes that the owner may have other rights and other agreed warranties in addition to the warranties specified in Section 13(1)(a) and (b) of the Act and the regulatory warranties prescribed in Section 13(1)(c).

13. (6) The warranties set out in subsection (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon.

Under Section 14(1)(b), where an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty, such an owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage. The right to make a claim is set out in Section 14(1) in the Act.

14. (1) Where,

(a) ... ;

(b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty; or

(c) ... the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations."

A warranty is a defined term under the Act. Section 1 provides:

1. In this Act,

...

"warranty" means a warranty set out on section 13."

It is notable that this definition includes a warranty "agreed upon" in subsection (6) of section 13 in addition to "the warranties set out in subsection (1)". Were this not the case, the drafters of the Act would have limited the definition of "warranty" as those set out in subsection (1) of section 13. As such, owners are "entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of" damages "resulting from a breach of" such an "agreed upon" warranty under subsection (6) "in addition to [a warranty under] subsection (1)".

The Applicants are "owners" as defined by the Act and the Tribunal finds them so to be as a fact. As such, they are entitled to compensation or remedies from the assets of the guarantee fund for any and all breaches of warranties pursuant to Section 13 by virtue of Section 14(1)(b) thereof, subject only to the limitation of amount as set out in the regulations thereto.

PROVEN FACTS:

As hereinbefore stated, all witnesses testified respecting the issue claimed by the Applicants and there appears to be neither differences of opinion nor any conflict in the evidence heard by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal finds, pursuant to the evidence given in these proceedings, the following as proven facts:

- (1) the Agreement was reached on October 16, 2000;
- (2) the Builder and the Applicant agreed that the home would have the appearance as shown in the plans and drawings exchanged between them, some of which were computer-produced by the Builder and noted in the Agreement as attached as Schedule "B" thereto, or otherwise "already examined by the" Applicants, all of which depicted a roof pitch of approximately 6:12;
- (3) the Date of Possession of the home was January 12, 2001;
- (4) it became apparent to the Applicants in April of 2001, that the roof did not have the pitch agreed upon and the Builder acknowledged that the roof pitch of the home was inadvertently built to a pitch approximating 4:12 in accordance with the Builder's truss documentation and consistent with other residences constructed by the Builder in the area:

- (5) there is no breach of warranty by the Builder alleged by the Applicants with respect to the roof of the home as to workmanship or materials, or any evidence to support such an allegation or breach;
- (6) the Builder breached its warranty to construct the roof as agreed upon in the Agreement by constructing the roof of the home with a pitch approximating 4:12 thereby altering the appearance of the home to a substantial degree and the Applicants claim for an increased roof-pitch of fifty percent is a warrantable claim;
- (7) the roof as constructed by the Builder is of equal quality to the roof as depicted in the Agreement;
- (8) the Program's Decision was issued by the Program on March 4, 2002; and
- (9) the Notice of Appeal was made on March 19, 2002.

DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL AND ORDER:

Combining the proven facts of this case with the issues of law, the Tribunal is not in agreement with the Program's Decision nor the assessment made by the Program in the Conciliation Report. The Builder clearly agreed to build the home in accordance with the plans and drawings exchanged between the parties to the Agreement which included elevation drawings prepared by the Builder depicting a roof with a pitch of approximately 6:12 and, inadvertently or otherwise, constructed a roof with a pitch one third less which resulted in the home having a markedly different appearance from that which was agreed upon. Pursuant to Section 13(6), this warranty was breached by the Builder and is in addition to the warranties set forth in Section 13(1) but included within a warranty under Section 14(1)(b). As such, the Applicants are entitled to recover damages from the guarantee fund under the Act.

However, the Applicants neither gave any direct evidence as to the damages, if any, suffered by them as a result of the breach of (the agreed) warranty, nor did they tender any expert evidence to assist the Tribunal in assessing such damages. Indeed, the Tribunal requested the Applicants to address the issue of the relief sought by the Applicants but received only an unsatisfactory response. The Applicants admitted that they did not wish a replacement roof with a pitch of 6:12 with all the attendant disruption of the necessary remedial construction. The Applicants tendered indirect evidence of a lower valuation of the home which was speculative at best and not subject to cross-examination, and as such is rejected by the Tribunal. Such evidence dealing with design or appearances was also very subjective and from a different perspective could very well have resulted in an increased value of the home from different eyes and differing tastes. The Builder tendered evidence as to the difference in cost to the Builder of a 6:12 roof to that of a 4:12 roof which the Tribunal finds as not relevant to the issue of damages suffered by the Applicants. The Applicants have, therefore, not satisfied the onus of proof placed upon them in this issue of damages suffered by them as a result of the breach by the Builder of the (agreed) warranty.

The Tribunal rejects the Applicants' claim that the roof as constructed is a substitution under Section 18 of the Regulations promulgated under the Act since it is not "an item of construction or finishing for which the [Applicants are] entitled to make [a] selection pursuant to the [Agreement] without [their] written consent". The Applicants' claim for substitution is, therefore not relevant since the roof as constructed is of equal quality to that depicted in the Agreement.

The Program's Decision makes reference to "a cash settlement of $1,000" offered by the Builder "to resolve this matter", and as such the Tribunal takes notice of this generous offer since it is no longer protected as being "without prejudice". Other settlement arrangements may have been discussed but the Tribunal cannot take notice thereof. Based upon the offer of which the Tribunal can take notice and should have been accepted by the Applicants, the Tribunal orders that the Program pay out of the guarantee fund the sum of $999 to the Applicants as damages for the breach of the Builder's (agreed) warranty, with the usual subrogation rights to recover such sum from the Builder at the option of the Program. It is assumed by the Tribunal that the Applicants and the principal of the Builder can now resume good neighborly relations once again.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE *ONTARIO
NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT*

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: PATRICK DIMONTE, Counsel, representing the Applicants
ANDREW LEWIS, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program
LAWRENCE F. WALLACH, Counsel, representing the Added
Party, Rutherford Generation Investments Inc.

DATES OF
HEARING: September 9, 10, 11, and 12, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Tony and Rose Durante (the "Applicants") under section 14(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated April 12, 2002, (the "Decision") denying the Applicants' claim for compensation.

The Decision, exhibit 1, described the Applicants' complaints as follows:

1. Third garage is significantly shorter then contract car will not fit (it is specifally (sic) shown on contract) this is my biggest issue. Approx 3+ feet shorter.
2. Missing a door in my laundry room to go outside. dining pillars were suppose to go to ceiling.
3. Pillars missing in family room and living room and dining pillars were supposed to go to ceiling.
4. Master bedroom bath tub should be six feet oval step up instead of corner tub as per contract.
5. Missing two windows next to family room fireplace (no problem with City by law missing another window in master bedroom. Builder told me before we closed he would add these windows. He did not.
6. Main family room window should have been a bow window as per contract (no problem with City by law missing another window in master bedroom. Builder told me before we closed he would add these windows. He did not.

7. Washroom lay out upstairs is not as per our contract we did not approve.
8. We are missing basement windows (your plan specifically shows more windows).
9. Furnace was not put in the original location as per drawings. The furnace was put in the back corner of the house therefore the front two bedrooms don't get enough hot air. They also forgot to hook up two furnace ducts to one of the front bedrooms (which is now hooked up.) But those ducts are in the garage and are not insulated nor is the floor under the bedroom which is freezing. (There is no way my daughter could sleep in that room) the attic of the garage was open to the floor of the bedroom.
10. We did not get full size trim through out the house all the bedrooms have the smaller trim and extra contract says upgrade trim package. We paid $2500 for that.
11. Kitchen is 3 feet shorter in width by 12 feet (all rooms have been reduced approx 267 sq ft). Master bedroom is 1 to 2 feet shorter in width. Please see attached document for size discrepancies.

FACTS:

The Applicants' witnesses were Tony Durante and Raymond Nicolini, Mr. Durante's real estate agent. The witnesses for the added party were Carlo Rinomato, manager of Rutherford Generation Investments Inc., Stella Cellucci, and Franco G. Montano. The Program's witness was Bruce Stephens, author of the Decision.

Front Elevation and Floor Plans

Mr. Durante stated that the front elevation and the floor plans (the "Sketch"), three pages in total, were part of the agreement of purchase and sale (the "Agreement"), tab 31 of exhibit 5. He testified that the three pages were attached to the Agreement when it was signed in November 1999. The front page of the agreement is signed by the parties. It identifies the dwelling as "Santa Cruz – modified". The elevation is stated to be "as attached". Mr. Durante identified the initials C.R. on the front elevation and on the floor plans as initials of Carlo Rinomato (the "Builder"). The floor plans are entitled "Modified Santa Cruz". They were prepared by Mr. Durante and Mr. Nicolini. The Builder and Mr. Nicolini removed the stated total square footage from the floor plans. There is no other description of a modified Santa Cruz villa in the Agreement. Mr. Durante testified that no other elevation and no other floor plans were attached to the Agreement when it was signed.

Mr. Rinomato, the Builder, testified that he faxed the two pages containing the floor plans to Mr. Montano (the "Architect") and asked him to prepare design drawings.

Mr. Montano, the Architect, stated that he received the three pages including the front elevation and the floor plans from the Builder. He was asked by the Builder whether a modified Santa Cruz could be sited on the lot selected by the Applicants. The Architect stated that changing the front elevation would require new architectural control approval.

On cross-examination Mr. Durante admitted that the Sketch states the following at the bottom of the page: "Actual usable floor space may vary from stated area...All renderings are artist's concept. Materials, dimensions and architectural detailing are subject to modifications." Paragraph 1 of Schedule "A" of the Agreement states in part: "The Purchaser acknowledges and agrees that the Vendor may from time to time, in its sole discretion, or as required by any governmental authority of the Mortgagee, change, alter, vary or modify the Plans...without notice thereof to the Purchaser. The Purchaser agrees to accept such changes, alterations, variations or modifications." Paragraph 21 of Schedule "A" adds "it is agreed that there is no representation, warranty or collateral agreement affecting this Agreement."

Mr. Durante testified that the house purchase closed on October 6, 2000. Except for a complaint about the total square footage of the house, all the Applicants' complaints were made in a letter received by the Program on January 5, 2001, tab 12 of exhibit 4.

1. Third Garage

The Sketch gives the length of the third garage as 18' 10". Mr. Durante testified that the inside length of the garage is about 15'9'. He stated that the garage is too small for his car.

The Architect testified that he had to push the third garage back four feet rather than two feet due to architectural control. He stated that he could have moved back the back wall of the garage.

Mr. Stephens measured the inside of the third garage. It was 15'9" in length. He observed that the garage was being used for storage.

2. Laundry Room Missing Door to Exterior

The Decision states that the Sketch indicates a side door opening off the laundry room and that this door was not installed. Mr. Durante testified that a window was substituted for the door without the Applicants' consent.

The Architect said that due to stairs in the laundry room there was no room for two appliances to be placed side by side as shown on the Sketch. He situated the appliances front to back; thus he could only put in a door or a window. He put in a window.

3. Pillars

The Program conceded that the living room pillars should have been installed.

No pillars are shown on the Sketch at the entrance to the family room. Mr. Durante testified that such pillars are shown on the Santa Cruz Villas brochure, exhibit 6.

During cross-examination Mr. Durante stated that the dining room pillars are not suitable, but that the issue is not being dealt with at the hearing.

4. Master Bedroom Bathtub

The Decision states that the builder installed a 5' acrylic tub on a 45-degree angle across the southeast corner of the en suite bathroom.

The Sketch shows a bathtub against the rear wall with 6' written inside it. An arrow is drawn across the width of the bathtub with 3' written in. A step is indicated as leading to the bathtub.

The Decision states that there is no reference in the Agreement to clarify whether the dimension references a 6' x 3' tub or the space for the tub.

Mr. Durante admitted that the bathtub is usable.

The Architect testified that he could not put in a six-foot bathtub. He stated that he could not fit in a bidet and a toilet opposite each other together with space to walk to the bathtub in addition to a double-vanity sink on the wall opposite the bathtub.

The Builder testified that an angle bathtub costs more.

5. Missing Two Windows Next to Family Room Fireplace and Missing Window in Master Bedroom

The two windows next to the fireplace appear on the Sketch. The Architect stated that the The Maximum Percentage of Unprotected Openings or Glazed Areas, % of Exposing Building Face Area Table of the Ontario Building Code, exhibit 8, allows additional windows of up to eleven sq. ft. in that location.

The Builder testified that putting in the extra two windows at the time of construction would not cost extra. He said that the cost now would be $600 per window.

The missing window in the master bedroom is on the Architect's drawing.

6. Main Family Room Window Should Be Bow Window

The Sketch shows a window extending out from the room with angled sides. The window area is labelled "all window".

Mr. Durante testified that the Builder installed two windows instead of a bow window.

The Architect did not put in a bow window on the design drawings, exhibit 9. He stated that a bow window could have been put in.

The Builder said that there would have been no cost difference to put in a bow window during construction. Now there would be a cost of $1,500 to $1,600.

Mr. Stephens testified that the shape of a bow window is an arc. He stated that a bay window consists of three windows meeting at an angle.

7. Washroom Layout Upstairs Is Not Per Contract

The Decision states that the Sketch indicates one washroom on the east side and one washroom on the west side of the second floor of the home. The builder has installed the two washrooms back to back on the west side of the second floor.

Mr. Durante testified that his mother would later move into the Applicants' house. The Applicants wanted a washroom next to her bedroom. Mr. Durante conceded that he never advised the Program that his mother would be moving in with the Applicants. He stated that both washrooms work properly.

The Architect said that placing the washrooms back to back would have changed the front elevation and would have increased the area by about 250 sq. ft.

8. Missing Basement Windows

The Sketch does not show a full layout for the basement. Mr. Durante said that the Santa Cruz brochure, exhibit 6, shows a window in the basement that was not provided.

The Architect testified that the window with French doors above it had to be omitted. People exiting through the French doors could be injured by stepping into its window well.

9. Furnace

Mr. Durante testified that the furnace is located in the basement about three to four feet away from the back wall and about two feet away from the side wall. He stated that both front bedrooms are cold in winter and hot in summer. Counsel for the Applicants asked for a secondary assist mechanism to be installed in the ductwork to help move air from the furnace area to the front of the house.

The Sketch does not show the location of the furnace. The Santa Cruz brochure, exhibit 6, and the Architect's production drawings, exhibit 9, show the furnace in a more central location, closer to the front.

The Builder stated that the heating contractor has the ultimate decision of where to place the furnace. A letter from Appleton H.V.A.C. Inc. to Rutherford New Generation Investments dated June 22, 2001, tab 23 of exhibit 4, states the following: "In the fall of the year 2000 we had found that two (2) heat runs had not been connected in the Basement and we rectified the problem. Also, at that time we did a heat balance and found that the system was working satisfactorily."

Mr. Durante stated that when the heating contractor connected the two runs in the basement, about two feet were taken away from the two larger garages. Mr. Stephens confirmed the presence of a 1'10" x 8'7" projection in the garages.

10. Trim

The Decision states that the builder installed 3" casing and 5 ½" baseboard on the main floor and in the upper hall area and 2 ¾" casing and 4 ¼" baseboard in the bedrooms and washrooms on the second floor. Mr. Durante complained that the larger trim package should also have been installed in all the bedrooms.

Tab 8 of exhibit 4, an Extra Schedule, specifies an "upgraded trim package" at a price of $2,500. A cost sheet, tab 8B of exhibit 4, states that the cost of upgraded trim throughout is $2,500. A notation on the cost sheet states the following: "The upgraded trim throughout price shown here would've been honoured if they took all the other items on this list. They did not. We have 3 ways of upgrading trim...1st and 2nd floor throughout (avg. pr. $2,800)". Mr. Stephens stated that builders discount prices based on the volume of extras ordered.

11. Kitchen and Master Bedroom are Narrower (All Rooms Have Been Reduced Approximately 267 Sq. Ft.)

Mr. Durante stated that the kitchen is 12' x 11' instead of the 12' x 14' indicated on the Sketch. The Applicants complain that the master bedroom is one to two feet narrower.

At tab 12 of exhibit 4, Mr. Durante submitted a spreadsheet with a calculation of 268 sq. ft. as the reduced area of the specified rooms. Mr. Durante stated that the square footage of the unmodified Santa Cruz was 4,124 sq. ft. and that the Applicants received a house with 3,568 sq. ft., which is 556 sq. feet less. Mr. Durante also said that the Applicants expected to get a house with 3,800 to 4,000 sq. ft. Mr. Rinomato testified that the house was priced based on an area of 3,400 sq. ft. On cross-examination, Mr. Durante stated that the Applicants never complained to the Program about the reduced total area of the house.

The Architect said that the dimensions of the kitchen were modified because the outside walls were fixed and the rear wall was set. He stated that the master bedroom width is set from the ground floor plate that was done first.

LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, states the following:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

14. (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,

(a) the person became the owner of the home through receiving a transfer of title to it or through the substantial performance by a builder of a contract to construct the home on land owned by the person; and

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

14.(7) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under this section.

16. (3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

Regulation 892 under the Act adds the following

18.(1) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that the vendor shall make no substitutions in those items of construction or finishing for which the purchaser is entitled to make selection pursuant to the purchase agreement without the written consent of the purchaser.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply where,

(a) the purchaser, having been notified, does not make a selection within thirty days after executing the purchase agreement or within such other time period as may be agreed; or

(b) an item selected under clause (a) is not available and the purchaser does not make a selection within seven days of receiving written notice from the vendor or within such other time period as may be agreed that the item is unavailable.

(3) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that where the purchaser fails to make a selection under clause (2) (a) or (b) that the vendor will make a selection on the purchaser's behalf that is of equal or better quality than the original selection as set out in the purchase agreement.

19. Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that, where the vendor makes a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement that is not an item that is to be selected by the purchaser, the item will be of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement.

20. A claim may be made under subsection 17 (1), subsection 18 (1) or section 19 only where,

(a) the transaction closes; and

(b) the claim is made by an owner within one year after the date upon which the home is completed for possession.

CASELAW:

In Gallo (Re), [2002] O.L.A.T.D. No. 49, it was necessary to relocate the furnace to comply with the Ontario Building Code and to enhance the operation of the equipment. The Tribunal found that "item" in section 19 of Regulation 892 under the Act and the requirement that it possess "equal or better quality" implies a material thing rather than its location.

The Tribunal also dealt with the Applicant's complaint that the foyer closet was too small to accommodate full-length coats. The Tribunal found that the size of the closet is not a warranted matter unless it was not constructed in a workmanlike manner. The Tribunal noted that there was no evidence that space for a full-length closet was available but ignored.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal finds that the front elevation and the floor plans, three pages in total, the Sketch, are a part of the agreement of purchase and sale. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of Mr. Durante that the three pages were attached to the Agreement when it was signed. Further, if the three pages were not part of the Agreement, the identification of the dwelling as "Santa Cruz - modified" would be ambiguous. The intention of the parties was to treat the Sketch as part of the Agreement. The Builder used the Sketch to price the house. Later the Builder sent the Sketch to the Architect with instructions to prepare production drawings.

The third garage is too small for the Applicants' car. The garage can only be used for storage. It is defective and is not constructed in a workmanlike manner. Alternatively, the vendor made a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement, on the Sketch, and the substituted item, the smaller garage, is not of equal or better quality than the original item. The Architect testified that the back of the garage can be moved back two feet. The Tribunal allows the Applicants' claim regarding the third garage.

The Applicants claim a door to the outside in the laundry room. The Architect testified that he had to relocate appliances within the laundry room and then put in a window rather than a door. According to the Architect, the Sketch, the design provided by the Applicants was defective. Also, Mr. Durante testified that moving the third garage back is more important to the Applicants than having a door in the laundry room. Once the garage is moved back there does not appear to be room for a door. The laundry room window will have to be moved back. The Tribunal disallows the claim for a door in the laundry room.

The Program conceded that the living room pillars should have been installed. No pillars at the entrance to the family room are shown on the Sketch or mentioned in the Agreement. Such pillars are shown on the Santa Cruz Villas brochure, but the brochure is not a part of the Agreement. The Tribunal finds that the Applicants are not entitled to pillars at the entrance to the family room. Mr. Durante stated that the dining room pillars are not an issue being dealt with at the hearing. In any event, there is no statement in the Agreement or on the Sketch that the dining room pillars should go to the ceiling. Only the Applicants' claim regarding the living room pillars is allowed by the Tribunal.

The Applicants claim a six-foot bathtub against the rear wall of the master bedroom washroom. The Architect testified that there were problems with the layout of the washroom as shown on the Sketch. The Builder testified that the angled bathtub is more expensive than the straight bathtub shown on the Sketch. The Builder made a substitution, but the substituted item is of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the Agreement. This claim is disallowed.

Two windows shown on the Sketch next to the family room fireplace are missing. The Builder substituted a wall, an item that the Tribunal finds not to be of equal or better quality than the windows. The Builder estimated the cost of putting in the two windows to be $1,200. The Tribunal allows the Applicants' claim for these missing windows. Similarly, a window is missing in the master bedroom, which appears on the Sketch and on the Architect's production drawings. Again, the Builder substituted a wall, an item of lesser value, for the window. The Tribunal allows the Applicants' claim for the master bedroom window.

The Applicants claim that the main family room window should be a bow window. The window shown on the Sketch is either a bow window or a bay window, not a straight window. The Tribunal finds that the Builder made a substitution and that the substituted item is not of equal or better quality than the window referred to in the Agreement. The Tribunal allows this claim.

The Applicants claim damages for the change in positioning the washrooms. The Sketch indicates one washroom on the east side and one washroom on the west side of the second floor of the house. There was a defect in the design provided by the Applicants. The Architect stated that placing the washrooms side by side would have changed the front elevation that was subject to architectural control. Alternatively, as decided in Gallo (Re), O.L.A.T.D. No. 49, a change in location is not a substitution. In addition, no damages were proved by the Applicants. The Tribunal disallows the Applicants' claim.

The Applicants claim missing basement windows. The Sketch shows a basement window under the French doors. The Architect omitted that window because of danger of injury by stepping into the window well. The design provided by the Applicants was defective in this instance. The Applicants also claim a basement window on the west side of the house. The Sketch does not show such a window. The Agreement does not mention it. The Tribunal denies this claim.

The furnace was not put into the original location. The Applicants claim that, as a result, the furnace is not operating properly. The heating contractor found that the system was working satisfactorily. The Tribunal prefers the more-informed opinion of the contractor and disallows the claim.

The Applicants claim upgraded trim throughout the house. The Extra Schedule specifies an "upgraded trim package" at a price of $2,500. The trim package was priced by the Builder. The cost sheet at tab 8B of exhibit 4 states that the cost of upgraded trim throughout is $2,500. There is no suggestion that the trim should be provided only in a part of the house. Any ambiguity is the result of the Builder not specifying the location of the trim. The vendor substituted an item of lesser value, smaller trim, in the bedrooms and washrooms of the second floor. The Builder estimates the cost of putting in the larger trim as $1,500. The Tribunal allows this claim.

The Applicants claim that the kitchen and master bedroom are narrower than shown on the Sketch. The Architect testified that the design provided by the Applicants for the rooms was defective and had to be altered. Further, no damages were proved. The Tribunal disallows the claim.

The Applicants also claim that the total square footage of the house is less than that suggested by the Sketch. On cross-examination, Mr. Durante testified that the Applicants never complained of this problem to the Program. A written complain must be received by the Program within one year after the date upon which the home is completed for possession. In addition, the Builder testified that price for the house was based on providing 3,400 sq. ft. and that such area was provided. The Tribunal disallows this claim.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to allow the Applicants' claim in part as follows:

- 1) The third garage is to be moved back two feet and the laundry room window is to be moved back if necessary.
- 2) Living room pillars are to be installed.
- 3) A bay window is to be installed in the family room to replace the existing straight window.
- 4) The missing window in the master bedroom is to be installed.
- 5) $1,200.00 is to be paid to the Applicants regarding the two missing windows next to the family room fireplace.
- 6) $1,500.00 is to be paid to the Applicants regarding the trim.

The Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the remaining Applicants' claims.

DATE OF

PRE-HEARING: September 23, 2002

By Teleconference

ORDER

This pre-hearing is a continuation of a prehearing before this Tribunal held on July 18, 2002.

At that time, the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (hereinafter called "the Program") had sought an adjournment of that prehearing on the basis that the Applicants and the Program were actively pursuing efforts to resolve the issues being the subject matter of the appeal, and on the further basis that work which it had undertaken on the premises in question was ongoing.

A mutual arrangement whereby the Program would perform work at the Applicants' premises and would thereafter conduct an "Air and Settled Dust Sampling" report was already in place at the time of the original pre-hearing and the work was to be completed in July 2002.

Counsel for the Program advised that it had now provided that Applicants and the Tribunal with a Mold Assessment and Sampling Report, prepared by Jacques Whitford Environment Limited (hereinafter called the "Whitford report"). Ms. Jarvinen confirmed that the Applicants had received the report on Friday evening, September 20, 2002. She indicated that the report was of a technical nature and that it needed to be reviewed by her own expert, Dr. Gunter Riedel, a doctor of physics associated with Health Canada. She indicated that she was unable to assess the report herself, because it dealt with matters unfamiliar to her.

The Whitford report, previously mentioned, was the result of the assessment and samplings of the air taken at the Applicants' residence following the work conducted at the premises in July 2002.

Counsel for the Program seeks an order, today, which would compel the Applicants to either permit the Program to send in the original contractor to do more work at the premises or, in the alternative, the Applicants would be required to secure three estimates from separate contractors who would do the work and the Program would select which one would be doing the work (at the Program's cost), indicating that it would probably be selecting the contractor providing the cheapest estimate. The Applicants resisted the suggestions on the basis that the original contractor had damaged the residence during previous attendances to conduct work and was no longer welcome. The Applicants were also unwilling to permit the Program to select who would perform the remaining corrective works. This Tribunal declined the request for the order, sought by the Program, on the basis that the previous prehearing had already dealt with the matter and a terminal date for performance of the works had already been the subject of a decision of this Tribunal at the previous prehearing, which set the deadline at July 25, 2002.

This Tribunal canvassed the parties to ascertain what persons would be in attendance and to determine who would be appearing as witnesses at the hearing:

The parties who will likely be appearing for the Applicants are:

1. & 2. The Applicants;
3. Kim Melanson, as counsel for the Applicants, or some other member of her law firm;
4. Dr. Gunter Riedel, as an expert witness;
5. The expert who presented a report at the previous CRAT hearing who dealt with this matter a few years ago on behalf of the Applicants.

The parties who will likely be appearing for the Program are:

1. Counsel for the Program;
2. Heather Mayhew, Ottawa area manager for the Program;
3. & 4. Melissa Nadeau and/or Marie Graveline, as an expert witness to deal with the Whitford report;

5. Paul Picard, of the Program;
6. Stephen Hibbert, on behalf of SHREC, the contractor who did the work at the premises

The Tribunal alluded to Rule 6 of the Tribunal's rules dealing with disclosure requirements and with the requirements to be complied with where a party intends to rely on, or refer to the evidence of an expert witness. The Tribunal also alluded to the specific time frame requirements which had to met by each of the parties. Ms. Jarvinen professed a lack of familiarity with the rules and was directed by this Tribunal to the availability of the rules by calling the Licence Appeal Tribunal to secure a copy thereof, and this Tribunal also wishes to indicate that the rules and many other brochures, outlining procedures and requirements, are also available at the Tribunal's website www.lat.gov.on.ca. It is important that all parties become familiar with the rules and that the time delays and prescriptive requirements of the rules be complied with in all respects, in order to expedite the conduct of the hearing.

The following issues were listed by each of the parties as matters which would be raised at the hearing:

Applicants' issues:

1. The basement of the premises needs to be cleaned.
2. Damages have been done to the steps on the stairway leading to the basement by the Program's workers when they attended at the premises.
3. The basement floor needs to be fixed (sealing and re-painting) at a cost of approximately $500.00.
4. Mold has to be removed from the basement and from the second floor spare bedroom of the residence. Ms. Jarvinen indicated that she had secured a quote from "O'Reilly Bros." (approximately $11,000.00 plus G.S.T. and taxes).
5. House furnishings to a value of approximately $11,000.00 need to be replaced.
6. Contaminated materials presently stored in the basement in plastic bags (containing household items) need to be disposed of.
7. A number of household items, such as building materials and other things, have been lost or discarded by the Program's workers (a list will be compiled).
8. Hydro costs, involving use of the Applicants' utilities for a period spanning thirty months, to power tools such as sump pumps, jackhammers, etc... are being sought at the rate of approximately $100.00 per month, for 30 months, and the Applicants are seeking interest accruing thereon as well.

9. Compensation is being sought for damages which were caused to the Applicants' vehicle by the Program's workers when they were in attendance at the Applicants' residence (approximate amount $1,000.00).
10. Punitive damages are sought against the Program, to compensate the Applicants for approximately 150 days which they had to take off work when various inspectors and experts were in attendance at the premises and when works were conducted by the Program.
11. Legal fees, currently around $7,000.00, plus additional anticipated legal fees for preparation and appearances at the hearing (approximately $5,000.00).

The Program's issues:

1. The Program believes that the Whitford report substantiates its position that the cleaning of the premises has been substantially completed, except for residue of mold in one bedroom upstairs and in the basement, both of which are minor in nature.
2. The Program has been prepared to return to the premises to conduct the residual work and to retest, however, access to the premises has been denied by the Applicants. An alternative has been suggested involving the securing of three estimates from other contractors who could do the work, and the Program would select one of these; the alternative solution has been rejected by the Applicants.
3. The Program intends to contest some of the items raised, as issues, by the Applicants, on the basis that they may be outside the framework of the legislative enactments under review and beyond the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act and its regulations. The Program maintains that the appeal must be governed by case law and legislation rather than under common law rules.

It is not within the scope of this prehearing to determine whether any of the specific issues raised by the Applicants or by the Program are matters which can be adjudicated by this Tribunal. It is important, however, that each specific issue raised fit within the confines of the statutory enactments under which the appeal is proceeding and be within the jurisdiction of this Tribunal. In an effort to expedite the hearing, the parties are therefore urged to confine each issue to the particular point of law to be considered.

Ms. Jarvinen indicated that she expected that the Applicants' presentation at the hearing would last at least 4 hours. It is not possible to ascertain the duration of the hearing with any degree of certainty and the Tribunal therefore reserves the 3 days originally allocated for the hearing which will be held on November 13, 2002 with November 14 and November 15, 2002 reserved for continuation thereof, if and as necessary.

The Tribunal makes the following Orders:

1. The parties to the hearing are the Applicants and the Program.
2. The parties to the hearing shall fully comply with the requirements of disclosure of documents or things as set forth in rule 6.3 of the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal and shall also fully comply with the disclosure requirements set forth in rule 6.4 of the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal dealing with expert witnesses.
3. The hearing shall be held on November 13, 2002 with November 14, 2002 and November 15, 2002 reserved for continuation thereof if and as necessary.

DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal by Joseph Couse and Diana Plumpton (the "Applicants") pursuant to their Request for a Hearing dated May 1, 2002, (the "Notice of Appeal") to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal"), from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") which denied their claim in its Decision Letter dated April 17, 2002, (the "Program's Decision"). The Applicants are appealing the Program's decision pursuant to Section 16 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act"), R.S.O. 1990. Ch. 0.31 and base their claim on the provisions of Section 13(1) and clause (b) of Section 14(1) of the Act.

The Applicants, by a notice to Townwood Homes Limited dated July 14, 1999, a copy of which was sent to the Program, claimed that the vendor/builder, Townwood Homes Limited (the "Builder") was in breach of several of its warranties to construct the new home at 37 Jack Rabbit Crescent, Brampton, Ontario, which it contracted to build on Lot #64, Plan #43M-1283 in a workmanlike manner and free from defects in material. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale was entered into between the Builder, as vendor, and the Applicants, as purchasers, dated January 16th, 1998 (the "Agreement") and the transaction contemplated in the Agreement was closed pursuant to its terms on September 8, 1998. The predelivery inspection of the new home took place about two weeks prior to the closing of the transaction in late August, 1998. A Conciliation Inspection Report was issued by the Program on September 15, 1998, which listed some sixteen items of complaint which were deemed covered under warranty by the Program and twenty-three items deemed not covered under warranty.

Some of the correspondence, reports and documentation between the Applicants, the Program and the Builder since the date of possession of the new home are contained within the "BOOK OF DOCUMENTS OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTY PROGRAM" entered as Exhibits #4 at the hearing, and further documentation is contained in the Notice of Appeal marked as Exhibit #2. Included in these Exhibits is a copy of the Program's Decision, the Notice of Appeal, the Agreement and the original complaint by the Applicants.

A prehearing consultation was scheduled and heard by the Tribunal on July 8, 2002, from which a prehearing Order was released dated July 11, 2002, listing only three issues to be heard at this hearing.

At the hearing, one of the Applicants, Joseph Couse, gave evidence on behalf of the Applicants but, during a recess, his evidence was interrupted by brief settlement discussions between the Parties which yielded a resolution of the remaining three issues between the Parties.

Counsel for the Added Party stated that as a result of such discussions, in consideration of the payment to the Applicants of $1,500 by the Program and $2,000 by the Builder, a Full and Final Release would be executed by the Applicants and the Applicants "will shut down any web sites & will not erect any signs". This settlement was acknowledged by Counsel for the Program and by Joseph Couse on behalf of the Applicants. A copy of the Minutes of Settlement was filed at the hearing.

DECISION AND ORDER:

Subsequent to hearing from the Applicants, the Added Party and Counsel for the Respondent, the Tribunal gave an oral decision subject to the release of this written order.

Accordingly, this Tribunal, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 9(4) of the Act:

1. Directs the Respondent to pay to the Applicants the sum of $1,500;
2. Directs the Builder to pay to the Applicants the sum of $2,000;

3. Orders that the Applicants "shut down any web sites" and refrain from erecting any signs which address any of the issues set out in the Notice of Appeal; and
4. Orders that the claims of the Applicants be dismissed due to the withdrawal by the Applicants of the Notice of Appeal.

DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

APPEARANCES: FRANK DiADAMO, Applicant, representing himself
KEN ROSENBERG, Counsel, representing the Registrar, *Ontario
New Home Warranties Plan Act*

DATES OF
HEARING: September 3, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal ("the Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act ("the Registrar" and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated April 25, 2002 proposed to refuse registration of Mandev Developments Ltd., ("Mandev") under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar under the Act proposed to refuse to renew the registration of Mandev. The grounds relied upon by the Registrar for the Proposal are set out below:

1. The applicant has failed or refused to:
 - (a) Provide security with respect to the construction and sale of units, requested of the applicant by letter dated February 13, 2002;
 - (b) Comply with a term and condition of registration to which the applicant agreed, dated February 13, 2002 requiring blanket security in the amount of $100,000.00;
 - (c) Provide the outstanding amount owing for enrolment fee adjustments in the amount of $4.50.

2. In failing or refusing to provide the above noted documentation, the applicant has contravened the following provisions of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, (the "Act") as amended, and Regulations:
 - (a) The applicant has failed to comply with section 9 of Regulation 892;
 - (b) Section 1.0.3 of Regulation 894 obliges the applicant to provide such information or material relating to the applicant's entitlement to registration as the Registrar may require and request;
 - (c) Section 7(1)(c)(i) and 8(1) of the Act allows the Registrar to refuse to register an applicant where, having regard to the applicant's financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings and where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration.

FACTS

Opening Statement:

Mr. Ken Rosenberg, Counsel for the Registrar stated the Registrar had refused to register Mandev, as it had not provided the required security and was not in compliance with the terms and conditions of a registration agreement, which the Applicant had signed and agreed to in writing.

The Registrar's witnesses were Adil Darr and Sherri Budgell.

The evidence of Adil Darr is as follows:

Mr. Darr is a Chartered Accountant and holds the position of senior underwriting analyst for the Registrar. He completed his articling work with KPMG and now performs financial analyses to determine if builders are financially viable and any potential risks.

Mr. Darr referred to Builder Bulletin 28 (Exhibit 6) which reviews the various aspects of the assessments the Registrar carries out in his effort to "to ensure that registered builders are able to meet all financial and warranty obligations ” and identified a number of documents that were used to perform the builder’s risk assessment (Exhibit 4, Tabs 1,2,3,4,5,6). Mr. Darr pointed to the differences between the Builder and Vendor Agreements (Exhibit 4, Tabs 7,8), which is signed by the builder, as outlining and clarifying each party’s obligations.

Once terms and conditions are set, a letter describing them is sent to the builder. Mr. Darr also confirmed that he reviews an average of 80 files a month.

Mr. Darr then identified the following Exhibit 4 documents in a review of correspondence between the Registrar and Mandev:

- Tab 9 Dec. 6, 2000 - Registrar's letter to Mr. DiAdamo requesting additional information with regard to registration renewal;
- Tab 10 January 16, 2001 - Registrar's letter advising Mr. DiAdamo he would refuse the renewal application if the he did not hear from Mr. DiAdamo by January 30, 2001;
- Tab 12 March 15, 2001 - Notice of Proposal to refuse to renew registration;
- Tab 14 April 4, 2001 - Registrar's letter requesting a certified replacement cheque for the amount of $977.50 re 2 enrolments;
- Tab 15 July 4, 2001 - letter to Registrar from Harendorf, Lebane, Moss, Mandev’s accountants, advising that October 31, 1999 financial statements marked ‘Draft’, previously submitted, were final figures;
- Tab 16 July 6, 2001 - Supplemental Notice of Proposal advising the builder of additional grounds regarding two judgements against the company, in support of the March 15, 2001, Notice of Proposal

Mr. Darr testified that when a builder does not return a renewal form the registration will lapse, meaning the builder can not legally build or sell homes in Ontario and would require a completely new application, which would involve a new registration number.

Mr. Rosenberg asked the witness to clarify the meaning of the word “Pending” (Exhibit 4, Tab 9). Mr. Darr confirmed this to mean a ‘renewal’ application and that it was this application which had lapsed as the builder had not returned the 2001 renewal form.

The witness confirmed that the year 2000 renewal, which was originally due June 30, 2000, was not received until October of 2000.

Renewal for the 2001 year was also not received on time and when it was allowed to lapse, it was determined that a new application was required. On November 27, 2001, a refund cheque was issued to Mandev in the amount of $321.00 as the builder’s registration had not been renewed on time and had therefore expired.

Consistent with application procedures, Mr. DiAdamo then signed new Indemnity, Builder and Vendor Agreement documents with the Registrar on November 27, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tabs 7, 8, 9).

Mr. Darr stated that a subsequent request for financial information (Exhibit 3, Tab 11) was sent. This letter of November 30, 2001 included the request for a $5,000 security payment for a new home located in 18 Golden Terrace Crt. Construction on this home had started prior to Mandev's enrollment with the Registrar. Therefore, as the builder was not currently registered, Mandev was building without registration.

The builder replied by letter (Exhibit 3, Tab 12) and offered the following information:

- he was not a new builder and that he did not believe security was required.;
- the Registrar should rely on the previous year's statements (for 1999) as the 2000 statements would be ready "within two weeks";
- tax bill/assessments that property held in trust for Mr. DiAdamo showed equity in excess of one million dollars; and
- Mr. DiAdamo's advice that the lien information the Registrar had received was not current or accurate (an additional information request by the Registrar and what was provided by the builder are contained in Exhibit 3, Tabs 13, 14, 15 including a confidential construction report in Tab 16 of the same exhibit book).

On January 7, 2002, the Registrar sent another letter (Exhibit 3, Tab 13) to the builder requesting:

- financial statements;
- notice that there was insufficient equity to support the existing and proposed homes; and
- supporting documentation to confirm that claims/liens had been resolved.

On February 13, 2002, the Registrar submitted a letter to the builder outlining the terms and conditions for a new registration and which specifically required a blanket security payment in the amount of $100,000, due by March 29, 2002, and a security of $30,000 from the sale proceeds of specified units, as well as a security of $5,000 for any other individual units that had closed before March 29, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 18).

The terms and conditions outlined in the letter were agreed to and signed by the builder.

Mr. Darr confirmed that Items 1(a) and 1(b) were resolved but the balance of the $100,000 security was never received.

On April 25, 2002, the Registrar forwarded a Notice of Proposal to the builder to advise him that his application for registration had been refused due to a failure to comply with:

- provision of security re. construction and sale of units; and
- provision of security in the amount of $100,000.

Mr. Darr added that a subsequent credit check was carried out in July 2002 and the report (Exhibit 3, Tab 27) was not favourable. As a result, the Registrar issued a Supplemental Notice of Proposal stating “the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings” and noted that the builder has a number of judgements, collection claims, statement of claims and builders liens, a history of cheques returned marked “Insufficient Funds”, as well as a failure to indemnify the Registrar for claim payments. The Schedule A attachment to the Supplemental Notice of Proposal showed collection claims, statement claims, judgements and liens with a total of close to $300,000. The report additionally shows 4 NSF cheque events (Exhibit 3, Tab 28).

Mr. Darr confirmed that homes at 18, 20, 22, 28 Golden Terrace were not registered.

In cross-examination of Mr. Darr he testified that:

- Mandev had not had any warranty issues;
- in 1999, Mandev was not required to provide security;
- the February 11, 2002 credit report (Exhibit 3, Tab 16) dealt with pre-2000 matters and the Equifax report (Exhibit 3, Tab 27) referred to the past 2 years;
- Mr. Darr’s confirmation that “trends are what (they) have to go by”;
- that the Registrar was aware Mandev was building and selling even though it did not have a valid registration; and
- that Mandev was allowed to close homes during this period as the Registrar received letters of direction from Mandev to ensure it received the payments required from each closing.

The evidence of Sherri Budgell is as follows:

Ms. Budgell has been with the Registrar for 14 years and is currently a Customer Service Representative located in the Sudbury office that deals with delayed closing and deposit refund claims. Her role does not require site visits and she completes “desk assessments”. Prior to joining the Registrar, Ms. Budgell was with Ontario Hydro and the Regional Municipality of Sudbury’s Building Department. Ms. Budgell stated she always encourages claimants to work with their builder in resolving any outstanding issues.

When asked about her process, Ms. Budgell explained that after reviewing a file and report she issues a desk assessment and as required, will send the builder a request to provide a refund to the claimant. If the builder does not do so, the Registrar will send out a breach of performance letter and pay the claimant out of the fund. Ms. Budgell said she handled about 200 files last year.

Ms. Budgell confirmed she has handled a total of four claims regarding Mandev and each claim is in the amount of $10,000.00. She confirmed that three have already been paid out for a total of $30,000.00. The fourth is currently in process.

Ms. Budgell stated she only spoke with the builder once after writing to request information about a refund claim (Exhibit 3, Tab 43). The builder telephoned her in response and advised he was not paying the deposit back. Ms. Budgell encouraged him to submit information.

Ms. Budgell stated the builder called again to say he did not understand the form and that was the last she heard from him. Additional exhibits referenced were: Exhibit 3, Tabs, 36, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 49.

On May 31, having received no information from the builder to enable the Registrar to resolve the financial loss claim (Exhibit 3, Tab 50), Ms. Budgell wrote to the builder to advise him that he was in breach of "obligation to perform the contract" and that the Registrar would proceed to resolve the claim.

Mr. DiAdamo had no cross-examination questions.

The Applicant, Mr. DiAdamo, then provided the following testimony points on his own behalf:

- regarding 2001 renewal registration, Mandev sent in renewal forms September 31, 2001; he had thought that was all that was required;
- of the houses Mandev has and is building and selling, 3 have been sold and closed and 5 more are waiting to be closed; Mandev has been trying to close these houses since November but has been unable to do so due to no closing certificates;
- regarding the blanket security payment, Mr. DiAdamo said that on March 28, 2002 he telephoned the Registrar's office to advise he needed a little more time before he could provide the additional $70,000 and was advised he could have an extension to the end of May;
- in June he telephoned the Registrar's office to again say there would be a further delay in submitting the funds and was advised that he was not a registered builder;
- the August 2002 closing certificates were signed by Mr. Darr and of the 12 houses built, 8 were occupied and 4 were not; and
- that he was willing to give the Registrar the $70,000 and that the $30,000 in refund payments could also be paid back if he could get all his houses closed.

On cross-examination by Mr. Rosenberg, the Tribunal heard Mr. DiAdamo confirm that he did not take issue with the 3 refund payments made by the Registrar.

To the direct question of could he make the security payment "today", as outlined in the conditions of registration, Mr. DiAdamo replied that he could not provide the Registrar with a $70,000 payment as the money is in the houses which have not closed and that he did not have the money available in the bank.

When asked about the Registrar's letter of Final Notice (Exhibit 3, Tab 4), dated October 1, 2001, and the notice that Mandev had until October 15, 2001 to submit the required document, Mr. DiAdamo had no reply.

Mr. Rosenberg raised the issue of financial statements and the Tribunal heard that the last completed statements were the ones submitted October 2000 and that the 2001 year statements were being done now.

Closing Arguments

Counsel for the Registrar argued the evidence showed Mandev had been an enrolled builder but failed to renew and that the registration lapsed after passing the June 30, 2001 renewal date deadline.

Mr. Rosenberg stated the Registrar had been lenient with the builder and attempted to help with closings even after filing the Notice of Proposal. Mr. Rosenberg argued that while the builder had stated he did send his renewal form in on time, the only evidence the Registrar had on record was the application form stamped November 22, 2001 (Exhibit 7).

Mr. Rosenberg argued that “there has to be a finality to the administrative process” and that under oath, Mr. DiAdamo had testified he could not comply with the conditions of registration contained in the Registrar’s letter of February 13, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 18). Mr. Rosenberg pointed to the financial statement for the year 1999 (Exhibit 4, Tab 4) and that it suggested the company had problems.

On the matter of “reasonable evidence”, Mr. Rosenberg referred to case law examples as found in the Respondent’s Book of Authorities, specifically Exhibit 5, Tab 5, pg 3, Ontario (Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers) v. Vogelsberg (Ont. Div. Ct.), O.J. No. 226, DRS 94-07860, and that despite the builder’s best intentions, the evidence shows “the respondent has carried on activities in contravention of the Act and regulations”.

Mr. Rosenberg asked the Tribunal to consider the builder’s history and referred to Tab 6, pg 2, Ontario (Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers) v. Faccenda (Ont. Div. Ct.), O.J. No. 954, DRS 94-10620, and “whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law...” and that clearly, Mandev was not in compliance with s.7(1)(a)(b) of the Act.

In his closing argument, Mr. DiAdamo argued that Mandev was “profitable yearly and able to look after its affairs”; that although there were trade claims and liens, the company was always able to deal with them.

Further, Mr. DiAdamo argued that Schedule A (Exhibit 3, Tab 28) contained duplicate claims and everything except for $40,000 had been resolved. He concluded by stating that of the $100,000 security, he is prepared to pay the additional $70,000 as well as to pay back the refund payments made by the Registrar. He also pointed out that there has only been one conciliation report.

In redirect, Mr. Rosenberg argued there is no evidence that the balance of trade debts is only $40,000 and that the $100,000 security was a pre-condition to continue, “not a post-facto excuse”.

ISSUE:

Does the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act have sufficient grounds to refuse the registration of the Applicant as a builder under the said Act?

THE LAW

Section 9 of Regulation 892 and Section 7(1)(c)(1), 8(1) of the Act, states as follows:

9. (1) Each applicant desiring registration under the Plan shall complete, execute, and deliver to the Registrar such form or forms of application as the Registrar may require from time to time.

9 (3) The applicant shall furnish to the Registrar:

3. Financial statements of the applicant and such other information relating to the applicant's financial affairs as the Registrar may require.

7. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,

(c) the applicant is a corporation and,

(i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings,

Section 8(1) of the Act states as follows:

8. (1) Subject to section 9, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 7.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The evidence shows:

- despite repeated requests for renewal form completion, the Applicant was overdue on the 2000 year registration completion;

- despite repeated requests, in 2001, the Applicant did not provide the financial information as requested by the Registrar in letters of November 30, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 11) and January 7, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 13);
- the builder did not assist or participate in resolving the refund claims from homebuyers; and
- the builder was unable to comply with the terms and conditions of a new registration, as set out in the Registrar's letter of February 13, 2002.

The Tribunal considers it to be of concern that despite the implications of this hearing to Mandev's ability to obtain registration, without which it cannot remain in business as a new home builder, Mandev had no substantiating documentation to submit as evidence in support of Mr. DiAdamo's claim that Mandev was "profitable yearly and able to look after its affairs".

With regard to Mandev's outstanding financial matters, Mr. DiAdamo argued that the credit history obtained by the Registrar was not current and that only $40,000 out of a list totaling close to $300,000 in claims and liens remained.

Mr. DiAdamo failed to present any evidence to substantiate this claim.

In regard to s.7(1)(a) and whether the Applicant can reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings, the fact that Mandev was unable to comply with the blanket security payment of $100,000 in full, despite being given an extension from the end of March 2002 to the end of May, shows the Applicant did not have the financial ability to do so.

Mr. DiAdamo's confirmed that he could not provide the Registrar with a $70,000 payment as he did not have the money available in the bank.

The Tribunal found this testimony disconcerting in its potential impact to the Registrar, specifically in consideration of the fact that the Registrar owes a duty to consumers and to the general public to ensure that only those builders who can demonstrate financial responsibility in the conduct of their undertakings are allowed to participate in the industry

The Tribunal also takes note of the fact that Mandev has failed to indemnify the Registrar and hold him harmless with respect to 3 refund claim payments of $10,000 each, with a 4th still in process.

In summary, the Tribunal believes the Registrar is entitled to expect and receive timely disclosure of an applicant's financial details if that applicant is seeking approval to construct housing which, of necessity, exposes the warranty program to potential liability for claims. In the absence of an acceptable explanation, failure to provide such disclosure may in itself be capable of constituting reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will not be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings.

The further inability of the builder to satisfy the security payments required in the terms and conditions of registration, as well as the builders confirmation that Mandev did not have the funds to make the outstanding payments, seriously questions the ability of the builder to withstand unexpected circumstances or ensure that the company has the financial ability to meet its contractual and warranty obligations.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act to refuse the application for registration.

The Applicant filed an appeal of this Suspension and Seizure Order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 filing fee.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the outset of the hearing, Mr Paul Gill, representing both Applicants, advised the Tribunal that P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. was no longer carrying on business. He had authority to speak for the company and it was withdrawing its appeal.

Counsel for the Registrar asked that the Tribunal confirm the Suspension & Seizure Order of the Applicant, P.S. Sandhus & Associates, and Mr. Gill had no objection to that request.

Counsel also advised that the Register would refer to the safety record of P.S. Sandhus, as it was a related company to the Applicant National Fibres Ltd.

ISSUES:

Should the Tribunal confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Registrar to issue a suspension and seizure order for 14 days?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard from Ms. Bernadette McKenna, Carrier Safety Rating Administrator, with the Ministry of Transportation. It was her duty to review CVOR files referred to her from a CVOR Analyst for possible sanctions. Prior to that she was a CVOR Analyst who monitored the CVOR system concerning operators safety and performance and before that she was a driver examiner.

She stated that the objective of the Ministry of Transportation is to monitor carriers to ensure that they comply with the provisions of the Act and Regulations. She explained how the CVOR rating system operated and the point system attributed to each infraction. She showed how this was all set out in the Ontario's Carrier Safety Rating and Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration System Public Guideline.

The goals of the CVOR system are to promote safe operation of commercial motor vehicles as defined by the Act. The CVOR system monitors a two-year time frame based upon certain computer data, which is updated regularly and entered into the CVOR system. The updating of the system is a continual process.

With the CVOR system, a threshold limit is established by comparing the record of the CVOR holder with operators of comparable fleet size. The threshold limit of the applicant was therefore adjusted to compare with operations of a similar fleet size.

When the CVOR holder reaches 35% of the threshold, a warning letter is sent out. At 65% of the threshold, the holder is put in an audit stage. At 80% of the threshold, the operator reaches an interview stage and at 100% of threshold the sanction stage is triggered.

The Minister's actions are discretionary and can be taken at any stage where the safety of the public is of concern.

The system works upon a point rating system. An example is that convictions are rated from 0 to 30 points for violations with the more serious violations having the higher points assigned to them. The accidents are rated on a range from 0 to 12 points depending upon the seriousness and the driver impropriety involved. The out of service (OOS) has a two-point maximum if two OOS items are reported on a vehicle inspection.

Ms. McKenna produced the CVOR Abstract of the Applicant, which set out all accidents, convictions and inspections.

The applicant became a CVOR holder in July, 2000 under the CVOR certificate 135-961-490. This was only one week after P.S. Sandhus & Associates ceased operating.

In February, 2002, Ms. McKenna did an analysis of the CVOR record of the Applicant since it obtained its CVOR Certificate in July 2000. This period was less than the normal two-year period covered by an analysis, however the Applicants record required an earlier review. This was forwarded to the applicant along with all supporting documentation.

The analysis showed that the applicant had been involved in eight accidents in the period from July 18 2000 to January 18 2002.

Point values were assigned to some of these events in accordance with the tables in the Ministry's CVOR Guideline. Not all events on the record were point able.

The Applicant's violation rate was determined by calculating the number of points in each category by the number of vehicles and the number of months. There was no dispute in this case about the accuracy of the Ministry's records or calculations.

The Applicant's violation rates were as follows:

Accident	– 215.7%
Conviction	– 86.7%
Inspections	– 24.9%
Overall	– 135.8%

Ms. McKenna testified that this was a high overall violation rate. The Ministry is concerned whenever a carrier's violation rate exceeds 35%.

The Safety Net Report from January 18, 2000 to January 18, 2001 showed a 16.7% OOS. From the period January 19, 2001 to January 18, 2002, the Safety Net Report showed 56.6% OOS, indicating that the out of service rate had increased dramatically.

An ICON Report indicated that the Applicant, National Fibres Limited owed $1,003.75 in unpaid fines and that P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. owed $1,125.00 in unpaid fines.

Jatinder Sandu held the position of Vice President of P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. That Company's violation rate exceeded the threshold rate established for a two-year period in its last six months of operation.

MTO enforcement had advised that drivers from P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. were producing a letter at roadside inspections allowing National Fibres to utilize their CVOR and operating authorities. Galaxy Freightways do not have operating authorities or a CVOR in Ontario. Information obtained indicated that Galaxy Freightways is now a division of National Fibres Ltd. and that P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. ceased operations.

National Fibres Ltd. and P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. had the same address in Surrey, British Columbia and National Fibres Ltd. commenced operation the same week that P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. ceased operation. Jatinder Sandhu who held the position of Vice President with P.S. Sandhus & Associates Inc. was the President of National Fibres Ltd. and Navjot Gill (the wife of Paul Gill) was the Secretary, according to information received from the B.C. Registrar General.

According to the Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration Certificate application of National Fibres Ltd. signed on March 27, 2002, the President is listed as Navjot Gill and the application signed by Navjot Gill as President. A copy of the application was faxed on the cover sheet of Galaxy Freightways.

A Corporate Search for Galaxy Freightways on July 17th, 2002, showed Harinderpal S. Gill as an officer and director and Parminder Singh Sandhu as President. The Corporate Search of National Fibres Ltd. showed Navjot Gill as officer and Director and Jatinder Singh Sandhu as President.

On March 4, 2002, a Notice of Suspension and Seizure for thirty days was sent by courier and fax to National Fibres Ltd. and P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. to the same address in Surrey, British Columbia. Accompanying the Notice were the following: Commercial Vehicle Operator Record;

1. Analysis dated February 2002;
2. Safetynet Inspection Reports;
3. Inspection template;
4. Accident Report;
5. Accident Template;
6. Ontario's Carrier Safety Rating and Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration System Public Guidelines.

As a result of the Notice, a meeting was held at the Ministry of Transportation on March 19, 2002 with the Deputy Registrar, the Manager Carrier Safety Rating and Ms. McKenna, Carrier Safety Rating Administrator. Paul Gill was present as Operations Manager representing National Fibres Ltd. and P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd.

At the show cause hearing, Mr. Gill explained how P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. (dba Galaxy Freightways) was started by Parminder and Jatinder Sandhu with Mr. Gill working for the Company as owner/operator. Mr. Gill then became a partner and shortly after the partnership was dissolved due to financial problems. Mr. Gill and Jatinder Sandhu then purchased National Fibres Ltd., which started operating as National Fibres Ltd. dba Galaxy Freightways in July 2000. All equipment owned by P.S. Sandhus was sold to National Fibres and shortly thereafter Navjot Gill became the sole owner and president of National Fibres Ltd.

Paul Gill as operations manager explained how he was responsible for all vehicle maintenance, drivers, contracts and day-to-day operation of the business. George Simpson was full time safety manager responsible for hiring drivers, discipline, safety programs, log books and driver training. He also explained how verbal and written warnings were issued to drivers as a result of incidents involved on an Ontario highway. He provided two examples of such warnings.

At that time, Mr. Gill stated that the Company operated twelve Company owned and nine owner/operator vehicles. The vehicles operated along the Vancouver/California coast and Ontario to British Columbia. When asked why the application submitted

March 1, 2002 by Navjot Gill stated that the Company had thirty-two commercial motor vehicles, Mr. Paul Gill stated that Navjot Gill was his wife and she might have made a mistake in completing the application.

Mr. Paul Gill continued to explain the strict hiring practices at the Company, driver incentives for safety, the audit of all log books by George Simpson when a driver returned from a trip and warnings that were given to drivers found to be in non-compliance. A warning was issued for the first offence, a warning for the second offence and possible termination for a third offence.

Mr. Gill was presented with the outstanding fines of P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. And National Fibres Ltd. And he assured the Deputy Registrar that the fines would be paid that week by his accounting department. He stated that if the Registrar would give him more time, the Company safety record would improve.

After considering the submissions, safety record and history of unpaid fines, the Deputy Registrar remained concerned for highway safety and issued the suspension and seizure Order dated May 22, 2002

Ms. McKenna asserted that the decision of the Deputy Registrar was correct as the safety record of the applicant had not improved and up until the first day of this hearing, when she last checked, none of the outstanding fines had been paid. She stated that all Company's were related because of common corporate officers and that the safety record of both P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. And National Fibres Ltd. could be considered by the Ministry.

Ms. McKenna also stated that George Simpson, the safety manager for National Fibres Ltd. Was familiar to her as Mr. Simpson had been the safety manager for three other affiliated companies operating out of Surrey, British Columbia with CVOR licences in Ontario and all three companies had their Ontario CVOR certificates canceled for safety related reasons.

Ms. McKenna also gave evidence that if the fleet size of the Applicant had been reduced, the overall violation rate would be much higher as the analysis was done on the basis of the applicant having a fleet size larger than had been represented by Mr. Gill.

On cross-examination, the applicant established that the convictions were a result of driver impropriety and in most cases there was only property damage. The accidents were a result of driver fatigue, improper driver action, speeding or careless driving. Although Mr. Gill tried to establish that the OOS had declined since he had become operations manager, the evidence indicated that the rate of OOS had actually increased.

The only witness for the applicant was Mr. Paul Gill. He stated that he was Operations Manager for the applicant and was aware of all of the safety issues. Since he became Operations Manager he had fired the problem drivers and is very strict with his drivers on violations. The company had gone through some hard times but had learned from its mistakes.

He agreed with all of the Ministries findings and issues, both at the Show Cause Hearing and with what was said and presented to the Tribunal by the Ministry at this Hearing. He wanted the applicant to be given another year to show improvement.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gill admitted that he had told the Deputy Registrar in February 2002 that the fines would be paid off in a week. He admitted that they were still not paid but said the Company was having a cash flow problem. He again promised that they would be paid by next week.

Mr. Gill stated that the fleet size was now twenty-one vehicles, which was much less than the Ministry had in their records based upon the application completed by his wife. There were not thirty-two vehicles double shifted, but only twenty-one vehicles and not were all double shifted.

Mr. Gill also stated that his trucks were not spending as much time in Ontario as they use to as they are doing more traveling along the British Columbia and California coast. Mr. Gill was presented with the two hand written driver warnings, which he had submitted, to the Registrar as samples of the strict warnings that are given to his drivers. One warning to Krewal Sidhu was dated November 18, 2001 for tailgating. The form provides for the driver signing and acknowledging that he had received the warning. The driver's signature was dated March 14, 2002. He could not say when the driver got the warning or why he did not sign it until four months after its date. He suggested that Mr. Simpson may have warned him verbally and the driver did not get around to signing it until four months later.

The second warning, which was produced, was to a driver named Inderjit Rai and the date of the warning was October 28, 2001. The warning was for driving with a damaged air hose and failure to obey road signs. Mr. Gill could not explain how the driver was given a written warning for having a damaged air hose on October 28, 2001 when the record of conviction of the driver showed that the damaged air hose did not occur until November 9, 2001. He again suggested that Mr. Simpson may have warned him verbally and perhaps then added that to an earlier dated report.

In reviewing the present business of National Fibres Ltd. in Ontario, Mr. Gill stated that the ten trucks a week that he had traveling in Ontario during the time of the analysis was now down to three to five trucks a week maximum. The analysis was based upon 18% travel in Ontario and Mr. Gill stated that it was now less than half of that amount and may be as low as thirty percent of what it was before. Travel in Ontario was a very small part of the business of National Fibres Ltd. The Company had only one major customer in Ontario who gave him business on the west coast and loads between Alberta, British Columbia and California. He was concerned that if he could not service that customer in Ontario that the company may lose the business of that customer on the west coast. He could not produce any evidence of that other than his own suspicion.

Even though he was operations manager and in charge of vehicle maintenance, he was unaware of the dramatic increase in the rate of OOS in the last year since he had been in charge of maintenance.

Although the applicant was given the opportunity to produce witnesses in addition to himself, he chose not to do so.

LAW:

47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or
 - (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
 - (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
 - (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
 - (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
- (10) The Registrar may, at any time for misconduct or contravention of this Act, the Truck Transportation Act, the Public Vehicles Act or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or lessee of one or more motor vehicles or trailers for which permits have been issued by a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than the Province of Ontario, order that the permit and number plates issued for the vehicle or vehicles be seized and any police officer or any officer appointed for carrying out this Act or the enforcement of the Public Vehicles Act or the Truck Transportation Act may seize the permit and number plates and deliver them to the Ministry which shall return them to the authority that issued them.

According to Section 22(e) HTA:

- 22(e) the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, governing the suspension or cancellation of CVOR certificates under subsection 47(1) or the imposition of a limitation on the feet size operated under a CVOR certificate under subsection 47(2).

The maintenance requirements under the HTA are found, inter alia, at Regulation 575 (commercial motor vehicle inspections); Regulation 577 (covering of loads); Regulation 587 (re brake push rod travel); Regulation 597 (gross vehicle weights); Regulation 625 (tire standards and specifications); Regulation 762/91 (safety inspections); Regulation 614 (security of loads).

The appeal comes to this Tribunal by virtue of s. 50(1) of the HTA which provides:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The [Tribunal] may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

Regulation 574, also addresses appeals to this Tribunal;

- 3(3) Upon receipt of a notice of appeal under subsection (1) the [Tribunal] shall forthwith notify the Minister or Registrar, as the case may be, and the person notified shall forthwith provide the [Tribunal] with all the relevant documents and other material in his or her possession.
- 3(6) At any hearing under this section, the person making the appeal has the right to attend and make representations and, subject to subsection (7), to adduce evidence respecting the appeal either personally or through counsel.
- 3(7) At any hearing under this section, the [Tribunal] shall hear only such evidence as was submitted to the Minister or the Registrar, as the case may be, respecting the matter in dispute."

APPLICATION OF FACTS TO THE LAW:

At the outset of the hearing, Mr. Gill representing P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. withdrew the appeal of that Company. Accordingly, the suspension and seizure Order against P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. is confirmed.

Paul Gill was a director of P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. and now is a key person in the operation of National Fibres Ltd. Paul Gill was part owner of P.S. Sandhus & Associates and his wife Navjot Gill is now the sole owner of National Fibres Ltd. Both Companies have used the Galaxy name. When P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. was in jeopardy of receiving a sanction because of its poor safety record, it ceased operations in July 2000 at nearly the same time National Fibres Ltd. commenced operations with the equipment of P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd.

The Tribunal finds that P.S. Sandhus & Associates & Ltd. and National Fibres Ltd. are related companies for the purposes of Section 17 (3) of the Highway Traffic Act. Both P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. and National Fibres Ltd. have outstanding fines that have not been paid despite the warnings given and the promise of payment of Mr. Gill on behalf of the companies. The rate of accidents, convictions and OOS demonstrates that the continued operations of National Fibres Ltd. in Ontario may pose a serious threat to the safety of other users of Ontario highways.

The Tribunal finds that the Deputy Registrar had sufficient and reasonable grounds to believe that the past conduct of the applicant supported the belief that it would not operate commercial vehicles safely or in accordance with the law. The Tribunal also finds no reason to interfere with the extent of the sanction imposed by the Deputy Registrar.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50. (2) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the decision of Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue a suspension and seizure order of CVOR certificates 135-961-490 and 125-174-646 and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to National Fibres Ltd. & P.S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. for 14 days and thereafter until all fines are paid and the plate portion of permits, or if issued by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits, and the number plates be seized.

The suspension and seizure order will become effective on a date to be set by the Registrar.

THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

APPEARANCES: NORMAN SWEDKO, counsel for 1085091 Ontario Limited
o/a Embassy Auto Sales Services and Mohamad Mansoor

A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: September 20th, 2002 Ottawa

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal ("Tribunal") from a notice of proposal (the "Proposal") by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Act"). The Proposal dated the 7th day of May, 2002, seeks to revoke the registrations of Embassy as a motor vehicle dealer and of Mohamad Mansoor ("Mr. Mohamad") as a motor vehicle sales person.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the revocation of both the above registrations. The reasons are stated as follows.

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register 1085091 Ontario Limited o/a Embassy Auto Sales Service and Mohamad Mansoor under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows.

1. 1085091 Ontario Limited o/a Embassy Auto Sales Service has been registered as a motor vehicle dealer since on or about August 15, 1996.
2. Mansoor Mohamad has been registered as a salesperson since on or about August 15, 1996. He is an officer of the corporate dealership.

3. On or about January 24, 2002, the dealer was convicted pursuant to the Business Practices Act and Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. The convictions relate to the misrepresentation of odometer readings with respect to 2 vehicles. [Emphasis added].

At the hearing, the Registrar sought and was granted a slight amendment to the particulars in the Proposal in paragraph 3 as noted above.

By written notice, Embassy and Mr. Mohamad informed the Tribunal in terms of Section 7(2) of the Act, that they require a hearing regarding their appeal to the Registrar's Proposal.

THE EVIDENCE

At the opening of the hearing, counsel indicating that they had agreed as a fact that Embassy had pled guilty to five separate counts relating to two incidents of odometer tampering. Charges were laid under both the Business Practices Act, R.S.O. 1990 c. B-18 and under the Act and the Regulations to the Act. The Corporation was fined $2,000.00 in respect of one count and received a suspended sentence in respect of the four other counts. Mr. Mohamad had also been charged with the same five counts, but charges were withdrawn against him personally.

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence, as well as the evidence of Aviva R. Harari. Ms. Harari's evidence was as follows.

Ms. Harari is counsel to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") and has served in that capacity for five years. She outlined in broad terms her role in advising OMVIC, as well as acting on certain hearings before this Tribunal, together with disciplinary matters and other regulatory affairs of OMVIC. She was called to the Bar in 1991. She outlined in broad terms OMVIC's responsibility for regulating used car salespersons and dealers in Ontario.

She testified as to the corporate status of Embassy and specifically that Mr. Mohamad was a director and officer of Embassy. This fact was agreed by counsel for Embassy and Mr. Mohamad during the course of the Registrar's case. Ms. Harari testified that she had acted as "Crown counsel" in respect of the charges brought against Embassy and Mr. Mohamad. She testified and identified certain correspondence that went back and forth between herself and a student-at-law at Mr. Swedko's firm in December 2001 and January 2002 wherein a deal was made concerning the guilty pleas. Ms. Harari also testified in broad terms that odometer tampering is a very serious matter for OMVIC and is of particular significance to its role as regulating the sale of used cars in the Province of Ontario.

On cross-examination Ms. Harari admitted that she was not aware of any prior convictions against either Embassy or Mr. Mohamad. She did testify however that there were a number of consumer complaints with respect to Embassy, although no particulars were given or requested in cross-examination. She did admit she was not 100% sure how the particular charges at issue came to the attention of OMVIC. Ms. Harari admitted she did not speak to those persons who did the investigations directly nor did she speak directly to the individuals who purchased the cars for which the odometers were admitted to have been tampered with.

On cross-examination a used vehicle bill of sale in respect of a 1998 Mazda 626 purchased by one Verena Tanner (the "Tanner Vehicle") was put to Ms. Harari. Specifically, she was requested to identify the fact that on the box wherein it was indicated the amount of kilometers, the letters "TMU" had been indicated. Ms. Harari indicated that to her knowledge, this meant "true mileage unknown" and is a notation known to used car dealers to connote when the actual kilometers travelled by a used vehicle are not known to the vendor of the used car. Also, on cross-examination, a document entitled "Wholesale Buyer's Car Order and Agreement" between Edna Bass and Embassy with respect to a 1992 Toyota Camry was indicated. Ms. Harari testified that as far as she was aware no complaint had been made to OMVIC with respect to this particular vehicle.

Mr. Mohamad gave evidence on behalf of Embassy and himself.

Mr. Mohamad admitted he was an officer and director and the sole sales person of Embassy Auto. He and Embassy have been licenced since 1996.

Mr. Mohamad testified (over the objections of counsel for the Registrar) that he would not have pled guilty on behalf of the corporation had he known that it would have led to these present proceedings.

Mr. Mohamad also testified that he had discussions with Joe Newbold, an inspector with OMVIC. He testified that Mr. Newbold had led him to believe that if a guilty plea was entered on behalf of the corporation in the Provincial Offences matter, that the Registrar would take no further punitive steps in respect of the subject matter that formed the complaints. Mr. Mohamad testified that he believed the corporation had a valid defence, but decided to plead guilty as a result of cost considerations and his belief that no further punitive measures would be taken against himself or the corporation arising from the facts relating to the charges.

Mr. Mohamad indicated that Edna Bass had actually filled out the Wholesaler Buyer's Car Agreement for the 1992 Toyota Camry, which he admitted did not include a indication of the kilometers on the vehicle at the time of the sale. Mr. Mohamad candidly indicated that in his view if he had done anything wrong, it was the fact that he had not noticed that the kilometers had not been filled out on the form. Mr. Mohamad indicated that he had filled out the kilometers on his garage register with respect to the vehicle. With respect to the so called Tanner vehicle, Mr. Mohamad explained that when he obtained the vehicle he determined that its tachometer and temperature gauge were not working. This required him to replace the entire assembly which included the speedometer and the odometer. Mr. Mohamad indicated that the used odometer that he purchased was set at 144,039 kilometers and he did not believe it was necessary for him to change the odometer to read what he acknowledged to be the some 198,786 kilometers that the vehicle had travelled at the time he purchased it. In his view, had he changed the used odometer, this in and of itself would have constituted odometer tampering. Mr. Mohamad testified that he had told Ms. Tanner, the purchaser, of the precise kilometers on the vehicle notwithstanding his notation of "true mileage unknown". On cross-examination Mr. Mohamad admitted that he appeared in court on January 24th, 2002, at which time he entered a plea of guilty on behalf of the corporation.

Further, Mr. Mohamad testified that the Tanner vehicle had been subject to a Used Vehicle Lease Agreement which had been signed in March of 2000. That agreement was made an exhibit to the proceedings. On that exhibit, the kilometers for the Tanner Vehicle indicated 198,786. Mr. Mohamad testified that although the contract was executed by Embassy and by a lessee, the lessee did not "follow through" and did not take possession of the vehicle.

At the conclusion of the case for Mr. Mohamad and Embassy, Ms. Harari was called in reply. She testified that absolutely no representations had been made by her as counsel that as part of the plea bargain that the Registrar was giving up any rights to proceed with the revocation of the registrations of either corporation or Mr. Mohamad personally.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

On the documentary and oral evidence, the following facts are found to have been proven.

1. Mr. Mohamad is presently registered as a motor vehicle sales person under the Act;
2. Embassy is presently registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act;
3. Mr. Mohamad was at all relevant times the sole director of Embassy and represented Embassy in all its purchases and sales transactions;
4. Mr. Mohamad acted on behalf of Embassy in respect of two transactions identified above as the Tanner Vehicle (1988 Mazda 626), which was sold to Ms. Tanner on January 22nd, 2001, and in respect of a 1992 Toyota Camry which was purchased by Edna Bass on July 21st, 2000.
5. On January 24th, 2002, Embassy pled guilty to the following counts:

In respect of the Tanner Vehicle, at the time of sale, Mr. Mohamad knew that the actual kilometers travelled were some 58,000 kilometers more than the amount indicated on the Used Vehicle Bill of Sale.

The term “true mileage unknown” is a term of art in the used car industry in Ontario. However, contrary to the indication on the Tanner Vehicle Used Vehicle Bill of Sale, “TMU”, Mr. Mohamad in fact knew how much the car had travelled at the time it was resold to Ms. Tanner.

The five counts enumerated above were withdrawn against Mr. Mohamad personally. The corporation was fined some $2,000.00 in respect of the counts which it had pled guilty.

THE LAW

- 3.(1) No person shall,
 - (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or

Section 5.(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

- 5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,...

Section 6.(2) of the Act states:

- 6.(2) Subject to Section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 16.(2)(o) of Regulation 801 as amended states:

- (2) Where a used motor vehicle is sold, the sales or purchase order shall show,
 - (o) the distance travelled by the vehicle at the time of sale;

APPLICATION OF LAW TO THE FACTS

In determining these matters, the Tribunal is entitled to refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out its proposal only if it finds that the Registrar was in error in concluding the past conduct of the applicants affords reasonable grounds for the belief that the applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Tribunal is concerned by the fact that there were some unexplained gaps in the evidence from both parties. To begin, the primary investigator from OMVIC, Mr. Newbold was not called on behalf of the Registrar. The reasons for appeal filed by Embassy and Mr. Mohamad clearly set out that Embassy and Mr. Mohamad took the position that had they believed they would have been subjected to the present proceedings, a guilty plea would not have been entered in the Provincial Offences matter. The Tribunal specifically inquired of counsel for the Registrar as to the status of Mr. Newbold. No explanation was offered as to why he did not testify and in the face of the evidence of Mr. Mohamad that Mr. Newbold had made the suggestion that a guilty plea would in effect terminate all future proceedings, counsel for the Registrar did not seek an adjournment to call Mr. Newbold to rebut this evidence. In argument, counsel for the Registrar suggested that Mr. Newbold had no authority in any event to bind the Registrar with respect to any plea bargains. Further, there is no suggestion in the correspondence from counsel for Embassy and Mr. Mohamad that somehow Mr. Newbold had made such representations prior to a plea bargain being entered. Ms. Harari was unequivocal in saying that no such arrangement was part of the plea bargain. Again, the counsel for Mr. Mohamad who had entered into the arrangement when she was a student-at-law was not called to testify. Again, while calling the student as a witness may have caused some difficulties for Mr. Swedko to continue as counsel, given that an associate of his would have to testify, no explanation was given as to why the student was not called.

Further, there were no particulars given in the evidence of either party as to what false, misleading or deceptive consumer representations were made to one Xu Meng, a consumer with respect to the true distance travelled regarding the sale of the 1992 Toyota vehicle which had been sold to Embassy by the Besses and for which Embassy had pled guilty. Mr. Mohamad gave no evidence concerning it, other than to proffer the Wholesale Buyer's Car Order Agreement which had nothing to do with the sale to Xu Meng.

The Tribunal was left with no evidence as to what was the degree of "deception" regarding the odometer.

The Tribunal believes the particulars of misconduct are necessary to assess the reasonableness of the Registrar's position. It is only through the testimony of Mr. Mohamad that the Tribunal is aware that when Tanner purchased the vehicle, the odometer read some 58,000 kilometers less than the vehicle had actually traveled. In the Tribunal's view, this is a significant variation, some 30%. The notation on the contract "TMU" is inaccurate. Mr. Mohamad actually knew how much the vehicle had travelled. The Tribunal does not accept Mr. Mohamad's suggestion that his hands were tied and he would be guilty of odometer tampering had he actually changed a used odometer to reflect the actual kilometers which were travelled by the vehicle into which it was being placed. Surely, if that kind of conduct were permissible, used car dealers could misrepresent the kilometers of any vehicle, simply by changing odometers with those from vehicles with significantly lesser mileage.

Clearly, a plea of guilty and the registration of a conviction is not something that can be subsequently explained away by a suggestion that economic considerations drove the decision to enter the plea. Indeed, in giving the evidence before the Tribunal Mr. Mohamad's explanation of the circumstances behind the plea were quite brief.

On the other hand, the Registrar did withdraw charges against Mr. Mohamad when they could have pressed for a conviction and a suspended sentence on all counts, as was the case for the corporation.

In these circumstances, a corporation has to act through a person notwithstanding the legal fiction of a separate existence in law for the corporation. In a case such as this where there are no other persons actively involved in the operation of the corporation, Mr. Mohamad is its directing mind. The acts of the corporation can be taken to be his, at least for the purposes of the legislation at issue.

The Tribunal is of the view that Mr. Mohamad's explanation as to the circumstances of the sale of the Tanner vehicle, and specifically the indication of TMU on the bill of sale in the face of actual knowledge of the vehicle's mileage, were actions that would reasonably lead the Registrar to believe that Mr. Mohamad will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Accordingly the Tribunal finds that based on the convictions registered against the corporation, the failure of Mr. Mohamad to lead any evidence with respect to the Toyota sale to Ms. Meng and the admission by him that he indicated "true mileage unknown" with respect to a vehicle for which he clearly did know the mileage, in the Tribunal's view, affords the Registrar with reasonable grounds for his belief that Embassy and Mr. Mohamad will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

DECISION

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal hereby directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated May 7th, 2002, to revoke the registrations of Mohamad Mansoor as a motor vehicle sales person under the Act and of 1085091 Ontario Limited o/a Embassy Auto Sales Services, as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by John and Anne Morrison (the "Applicant") under section 14(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting a decision by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated May 21, 2002, (the "Decision") denying the Applicant's claim for compensation.

The Applicant's claim relates to a dwelling located at 36 Abbotsford Road, RR1 Gormley, Ontario (the "home") which was constructed by Landford Lake Ltd. in terms of a written agreement of Purchase and Sale dated March 15, 1991 and the transaction was completed for possession on August 20, 1992. Landford Lake Ltd (the "builder") subsequently ceased business.

The Applicant provided notice of complaint by numerous letters dating back to December 8, 1992 up to March 4, 2002. Throughout this time the Program inspected and or visited the Applicant's residence on various occasions with a first inspection on September 30, 1993 and the last occurring on July 18, 2001.

The Decision Letter described the Applicant's complaint as: "Water leak under the West Bay Window and Various colours of brick and mortar."

FACTS:

The reasons given by the Decision Letter, Exhibit 1, for denying the Applicant's claim are:

With respect to the water leak under the west bay window, the owners have identified the complaint of water penetration on numerous occasions dating back to September 30, 1993 with the latest report being on March 4, 2002. Water was observed on only two occasions, January 1997 and June 1998. Detailed remedial work was carried out and accepted by the Applicant. Following this and between January and May 2000, additional complaints were resolved through a negotiated cash settlement in the amount of $4,000.00. The Applicant accepted and signed a Full and Final Release on May 23, 2000.

The Applicant subsequently arranged for a contractor to replace the bay windows. Upon removal of the easterly window, the owner observed evidence of moisture and after testing by a Program representative, the owner indicated he would apply sealant and conduct his own water testing. After replacing the windows and in July 2000, the owner advised the Program there were no more problems.

Subsequently, additional water leakage was reported from September 2000 through May 2001. A Program representative conducted extensive water testing on July 18, 2001 but was unable to find to find any water leakage. No further complaint was received until March 4, 2002.

Therefore it is concluded that moisture migration may be evident during the colder seasons due to possible condensation and or abnormal storms. The ONHWP concludes the owner has not shown actual water or proven that leakage is the result of remedial work carried out by ONHWP. With respect to the various colours of brick and mortar and the owner's complaint that the new bricks, in the repaired areas of the brick veneer, do not match the original areas or colour of brick, ONHWP concludes that it is impossible to expect exact colour matches in product manufactured eight years apart and that over time, environmental soiling will mute the new bricks and mortar to blend with the already soiled existing brick. Therefore the slight variation in brick colour is not a defect in workmanship or material.

The Applicant, Mr. John Morrison, confirmed the two issues being leaking around the west bay window and that the colour of the new brick did not match the old brick. The Applicant did not have any witnesses and gave testimony on his own behalf.

The Program's counsel, Mr. Andrew Lewis, agreed these were the two issues and submitted that the current issues arise out of repairs done. Mr. Lewis submitted there was no evidence of further water penetration and that in any event, the owner had signed a full and final release when accepting compensation and agreed to obtain his own contractor for window replacement. Mr. Lewis advised the Program would have two witnesses: Chad Foresheew and John Huismans.

The evidence of the owner, Mr. John Morrison is as follows:

Mr. Morrison testified that there is still water penetration and water is leaking around the west bay window even though the window was replaced and that this leaking is not from the window but in the area around the window. He stated that the July 18, 2001 testing conducted by the Program's representative was inconclusive and that when he spoke with his contractor who had completed the bay window replacement, he had been advised the leaking was not from the window.

Mr. Morrison advised that most of the water penetration in his home occurs in the Spring and Fall when it rains the most. Testing for water penetration or leakage was first done in February 1995 (Exhibit 3, Tab 64).

Mr. Morrison stated that when the July 18, 2001 water testing proved inconclusive, he understood the Program's representative to suggest more testing could be done, such as vacuum and drywall removal. Following that test, Mr. Morrison received the Decision letter from the Program.

Mr. Morrison confirmed his complaint is to do with water penetration after rain.

Mr. Morrison then referred to the occasion when Chad Foresheew, the Program representative, was on-site as remedial work was being carried out at the front of the home. He showed Mr. Foresheew colour differences on the north wall. Mr. Morrison said when he originally spoke with the Program's representative in 1994-1995 about different brick colours, he was advised not to worry about it and that it would be dealt with at the end of the process. Mr. Morrison confirmed his complaint that he has a house with many brick colours.

On cross-examination by the Program's counsel, Mr. Morrison confirmed his complaints were always about leakage around windows and that aside from the west bay window leakage complaint, all leakage issues had been dealt with by the Program. Mr. Morrison confirmed the Program had done a lot of work and spent tens of thousands of dollars.

Mr. Morrison confirmed his complaints in Exhibit 4, Tabs 134 and 135 were about the same issue and that he did sign the letter of May 5, 2000 (Exhibit 4, Tab 136), being a Full and Final Release for issues described in the documents and that he had received payment in the amount of $4,000.00 as described in the cash settlement, as well as a previous amount of $750.00 for interior finish restoration.

In response to cross-examination questions about how the monies were used and his further complaints, Mr. Morrison confirmed he had the window replaced with his own contractor and that his complaints about leakage were the same after the window was replaced. He did add it was not exactly the same complaint as water was now on the floor.

Mr. Lewis asked Mr. Morrison if he had understood what he signed when he signed the Release form (Exhibit 4, Tab 136) and that he agreed the Release referred to the west bay window. Mr. Morrison replied "yes" to the first question and acknowledged "that's what the release applies to" in response to Mr. Lewis' second question.

Through further questioning by Mr. Lewis, the Tribunal heard that water leakage does not happen every time it rains; that Mr. Morrison did not have any photographs of where the leakage is; and that he did not call the ONHWP office after a rain when leakage did occur, even though the area ONHWP office is only about a 15 minute drive from his home.

In reply to questions about lighter bricks, Mr. Morrison said the following:

- that "the bricks are not a mistake
- (it is the) best they could do"
- "as close as they come with off-the-shelf product"
- that he understood there could be "different dye lots at the same time".

When asked if he knew that bricks weathered, Mr. Morrison replied, "yes".

When Mr. Lewis asked if tinting brick were able to fix the colour problem then the rebricking would not be required, Mr. Morrison agreed and confirmed that tinting brick would be acceptable if colour were the only issue.

In addressing information arising out of cross-examination, Mr. Morrison stated there had been no effort to match colour or tint the brick and mortar. In addition, Mr. Morrison referred to the July 18, 2001 water test as having been unsuccessful as well as to Exhibit 4, Tab 102, page 2, which contained comments regarding areas that remain to be tested.

The Program's witnesses were Chad Foreshaw and John Huismans.

The evidence of Chad Foreshaw was as follows:

Mr. Foreshaw joined the ONHWP in 1994 with a background in civil engineering and experience as a building department official with several municipalities. In the Spring of 2000, he became Manager Technical Operations with the ONHWP and holds that position today.

Mr. Foreshaw first examined the Morrison house in 1995, confirming that the builder ceased business sometime in the 1995-96 period and that he had left homes in various stages of completion. Mr. Foreshaw confirmed that while the Program's process is to address complaints, it will take an active role if the builder is not in the picture.

It was confirmed that the source of water penetration is difficult to locate and the first step is to look for obvious indicators such as poor caulking and examine areas where flashings are located. Mr. Foreshaw stated the Program took a very methodical approach to its examination and that the work had been successful since the area pointed out by the owner is only "a spot about the size of a grapefruit".

A number of issues which Mr. Foreshaw discussed were:

- rebricking of north wall where it had been found that the moisture barrier was not in place or had been poorly installed (re Exhibit 6 -1)
- that seasonal conditions are a factor in the way or timeliness of work and its completion
- that it was a big house with big problems to which the Program took a methodical approach and "we've been successful"
- Exhibit 5-1 shows bricks around window
- Exhibit 5-2 shows galvanized thru-wall flashing where previously there was none
- that flashing was installed below the window

Mr. Foreshaw spoke about how he personally supervised the work and that the only thing not replaced was the window, "Everything from the bottom of this window has been rebuilt". When after the work was completed and the owner again complained about water penetration, Mr. Foreshaw testified to his belief that the only possible area that could still be a problem was the window.

Mr. Foreshaw stated the purpose of the negotiated settlement was to complete resolution of the water penetration and the Full and Final Release was intended to conclude the matter. He further stated that in his view, he could not be certain about the window replacement work but there was no question in his mind that the work he supervised around the window had been successfully completed.

Regarding the matter of the brick colour, Mr. Foreshaw testified that the several dark bricks were part of the manufacturer's approach to dealing with naturally occurring colour variations based on the materials used to make bricks and that he was confident that if the new bricks were subjected to the same soiling conditions, that occur with the passage of time, they would blend in and become indistinguishable from the existing bricks. (Exhibit 4, Tab 139).

Mr. Foresheew confirmed his belief there was no necessity for any change as bricks do age and if they were tinted, they might actually become darker as tinting would likely accelerate the aging process.

Mr. Foresheew did not believe the slight variation in brick colour was either a defect in workmanship or material and therefore it was not a warrantable item.

Through cross-examination questions submitted by Mr. Morrison, the Tribunal heard Mr. Foresheew confirm his view the brick colour variation was “very subtle” and that it might be due to some random darker bricks.

When Mr. Morrison questioned the west bay window wall work, Mr. Foresheew testified that:

- he did recall a conversation with Mr. Morrison about water running down the bay window roof
- that when the building contractor opened the wall there was very little moisture barrier and the brick ties were only fastened to the sheathing
- that with the new thru-wall flashing it was improbable moisture was not being properly diverted
- that a water penetration test was conducted on the west wall but no water penetration was seen

Mr. Foresheew also confirmed that he did recall Mr. Morrison’s reluctance to accept a cash settlement.

The evidence of John Huismans was as follows:

Mr. Huismans has been with ONHWP for two years as Operations Manager for the East Central Office with responsibilities for administering policies and providing support to ONHWP representatives and customer service. Previously, Mr. Huismans spent 30 years with CMHC, holding positions in the technical sector and working in the areas of planning, National Technical Services, served on technical committees dealing with National Building Code issues and has inspected buildings up to 55 stories in height. Mr. Huismans wrote the ONHWP decision letter (Exhibit 4, Tab 151).

Mr. Huismans stated he inspected the owner’s home on July 18, 2001, specifically the southwest wall for evidence of water penetration. Mr. Huismans heard about how water would penetrate the home under rain and wind conditions. Mr. Morrison also showed him the trim underside (at the inside of the bottom left side shown in Photo Exhibit 5-1); where there was some damage about the size of a grapefruit. The damage was described as paint bubbling or delaminating from the surface of the drywall.

Mr. Huismans said he was allowed to do a water test and Mr. Morrison provided a ladder and hose. The test was conducted from the bottom, moving gradually upwards...

- covering the foundation joint
- the area between the quoining and window
- the window canopy (bay window roof section)
- along the sill at the bottom part of the window
- the window jamb
- the mullions
- the roof edge.

He testified he concentrated on an area of the roof under-hang and also compared the section construction with the other side.

Mr. Huismans said he remained approximately 10 to 15 minutes at each location and after one to one and a half hours he had not witnessed any evidence of water penetration. Mr. Huismans said that Mr. Morrison confirmed there was no water penetration. The witness testified that with this type of testing he would generally expect to find signs of water penetration within 2 to 3 minutes but did not see any indications after 5 to 10 minutes.

Mr. Huismans testified he discussed the results of the test with Mr. Morrison who explained the problems but also did not see any reason to continue the test.

In closing argument, Mr. Morrison, the owner, confirmed the Program's efforts and professionalism but said there are still leaks and brick colour variations. He stated the window replacement helped but had not completed the work. He argued that his understanding of the release dealt with the windows only and felt that a complete rebricking at a cost of $39,985.00 would bring about a complete resolution to the problems.

In closing, the Program's counsel, Mr. Lewis, argued that the central issue of the matter was that Mr. Morrison had signed a full and final release, including a cash settlement which he used to hire a contractor to replace the west bay window, and that the purpose of a release is to cover all items as identified and incorporated in the release documents (Exhibit 4, Tab 136).

Mr. Lewis argued that the release covers the complaint but if it is a new leak, then it is no longer warranted as there is only a one year water penetration warranty.

Mr. Lewis referred to Entwisle, OCRATD No. 152, July 6, 1999 (Case Law Book of Authorities: Tab 4, page 9) in arguing for the validity and meaning of "Release". In addition, Mr. Lewis argued that the Tribunal heard Mr. Foresheew state the owner had used his own contractor to replace the window and the most probable cause of Mr. Morrison's complaint about leakage would be consistent with how the window was installed.

In addition, repairs under section 13 (2) (a) and (g) are not warrantable and Mr. Morrison had not established or proven that leakage was caused by either an original defect or a Program contracted repair.

Regarding the brick colour, Mr. Lewis argued that Program warranties “do not cover perfection” and referred the Tribunal to Shafman (Re), OCRATD No. 45, May 23, 1995 (Case Law Book of Authorities: Tab 6, page 10) in arguing that “to keep these imperfections at reasonable acceptable levels” and that “the colour variation on the brick and mortar on the Applicants’ home is noticeable especially on very close inspection but when viewed from a reasonable distance is acceptable” and therefore the onus of proof has not been met (found in Case Law Book of Authorities: Tab 5, page 14).

Referring to the same case (Tab 5, page 15), Mr. Lewis argued that the Applicant had not proven a defect in workmanship or materials and therefore had not proven a breach of warranty under the Act (found in Case Law Book of Authorities: Tab 5, page 15).

ISSUE:

Is either the leakage or brick colour a breach of warranty and should the Tribunal set aside, confirm, or modify the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicant's claim for compensation under section 14(3)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act

APPLICABLE LAW:

Section 14 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the “Act”) states in part:

- (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,
- (3)(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty

Section 13(1) of the Act adds:

Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

- (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
- (ii) is fit for habitation, and
- (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations;
and
- c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

Section 13(4) states in part:

“A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect...”

Section 15 of Regulation 892 under the Act states:

- (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;
 - (c) that all exterior cladding of the home is free from defects in material and work resulting in detachment, displacement or physical deterioration;
 - (d) that the home is free from violations of the Ontario Building Code regulations under which the Building Permit was issued, affecting health and safety, including but not limited to fire safety, insulation, air and Vapour barriers, ventilation, heating and structural adequacy;
- (3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession...

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof in this matter rests upon the Applicant to prove whether there has been a breach of warranty with regard to leakage in the west bay window area and whether there is a defect in materials and or workmanship with regard to brick colour.

A finding by the Tribunal as to whether there is a breach of warranty on the first issue, regarding leakage, is an issue on which the burden was on the Applicant to prove that the leakage was a new breach of warranty on remedial work carried out by the Program and completely unrelated to leakage that was covered by the Full and Final Release signed by the Owner.

The Applicant acknowledged that both the remedial work was completed by the Program and that he had signed the Full and Final Release and accepted the cash settlement compensation for replacement of the southwest bay window.

While the Applicant stated he thought the release pertained to the windows only, the Schedule clearly specifies “the resolution of their complaints regarding water penetration through the building envelope of the house in the area of the southeast and southwest bay windows.” Further, the Applicants, in signing the Full and Final Release, confirmed their understanding of the document and that they released and forever discharged ONHWP of and from any and all claims, however arising, for all items in the Settlement Schedule dated May 5, 2000.

Black’s Law Dictionary defines ‘Release’ as being...

To discharge a claim or an oral statement manifesting an intention to discharge another from an existing or asserted duty. The relinquishment, concession, or giving up of a right, claim, or privilege, by the person in whom it exists or to whom it accrues, to the person against whom it might have been demanded or enforced. Abandonment of claim to party against whom it exists, and is a surrender of a cause of action and may be gratuitous or for consideration.

A discharge of a debt by act of party, as distinguished from an extinguishment which is a discharge by operation of law, and, in distinguishing release from receipt, “receipt” is evidence that an obligation has been discharged, but “release” is itself a discharge of it.

The Tribunal was not presented with any substantive evidence to contradict the Release, nor did the owner present expert witness testimony, to support either the claim that the leakage had been unresolved by the Program’s remedial work or that the newly installed window was not the cause of the leakage.

In weighing the Program’s evidence of remedial work and inspections as well Mr. Morrison’s acceptance of the cash settlement and signing of the Full and Final Release in releasing and forever discharging the ONHWP “for the resolution of their complaints regarding water penetration through the building envelope of the house in the area of the southeast and southwest bay windows”, the Tribunal finds no evidence upon which to consider there has been a new breach of warranty on work carried out by the Program.

On the matter of the brick colour, the Tribunal was not provided with evidence to contradict Mr. Foresheew’s testimony that the new bricks would age and blend in with the original bricks over time, as appears to be occurring on the south elevation (Exhibit 5-1). Therefore the Tribunal has no basis upon which to find that the colour variations are either a defect in workmanship or materials or that they have an appearance that is substantially unreasonable.

The Applicant has failed to present credible or acceptable evidence to discharge the onus that rested upon him and has not satisfied the Tribunal that his version of the issues, where in conflict with the Program, is correct.

The Tribunal finds that the Program is not in breach of warranty on leakage or brick colour, that the Full and Final Release is binding, and therefore the Program is not obliged to compensate the Applicant for any amount whatsoever.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Registrar”), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Act”). The Proposal dated the 23rd day of May 2002, seeks to Refuse the Registration of Madjid, a.k.a. Mike, Banki.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar’s reasons for seeking an order to refuse the registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant’s past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act.

Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Madjid, a.k.a. Mike, Banki under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated the 23rd day of May 2002, are:

1. On or about February 28, 2002, Madjid, a.k.a. Mike, Banki ("Banki"), applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. He proposed to work for Mills & Hadwin Ltd.
2. Banki was originally registered as a salesperson and officer of 1079326 Ontario Corp. o/a Parsco Investments and Consulting Inc. (the "Dealer") under the Act and has been registered since on or about March 24, 1997. At all material times, Banki was the sole officer and director of the Dealer.
3. The Dealer was a corporation, which was first registered as a dealer on or about March 24 1997.
4. On or about September 17, 2001 the Registrar, Motor Vehicles Dealers Act proposed to revoke the registration of both Banki and the Dealer for the following reasons:
 - a) Acting on behalf of the Dealer, Banki entered into a security agreement with the Automotive Finance Corporation (AFC) to finance vehicles purchased by him on behalf of the Dealer. Banki arranged for the financing of several vehicles pursuant to his security agreement and then disposed of the vehicles in violation of the security agreement.
 - b) As a result of Banki's breach of the security agreement with AFC, the Dealer is indebted to AFC in the amount of approximately $80,000.00.
 - c) The Dealer is not operating from its registered premise.
5. On or about October 9, 2001 both Banki and the Dealer were revoked.
6. On application to become a registered salesperson question 6 asks: "Are you engaged now or have been involved in personal bankruptcy proceedings? If yes, attach a copy of the Assignment of Bankruptcy or proof of discharge and provide explanation of circumstances leading to the bankruptcy." The Applicant indicated "Yes" and attached the following explanation: "I was the Director of the business my Lawyers recommended that I declare personal bankruptcy to safeguard my personal interests. I acted according to their recommendation. The bankruptcy will be discharged on April 4, 2002."
7. Banki has failed to comply with the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act and in particular with section 5.

By Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated the 10th day of September 2002, the Registrar stated as follows:

1. Acting on behalf of 1079326 Ontario Corp. o/a Parsco Investments and Consulting Inc. (the "Dealer"), Madjid, (a.k.a. Mike), Banki ("Banki") entered into a security agreement with the Manheim Auto Auctions to finance vehicles purchased by him on behalf of the Dealer. Banki arranged for the financing of several vehicles pursuant to his security agreement and then disposed of the vehicles in violation of the security agreement.
2. As a result of Banki's breach of the security agreement with Manheim, the Dealer is indebted to Manheim Auto Auctions in the amount of approximately $51,232.00.

By written Notice of Appeal Mr. Banki informed the Tribunal in term of section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Mr. Roy Vandermeere, Mr. John Murray and Ms. Jean Cameron.

The evidence presented by Madjid Banki consisted of his statement in the Notice of Appeal dated June 6, 2002 together with the admissible information contained in the complete package constituting the Applicant's submissions as well and Mr. Banki's oral testimony.

A summary of the evidence follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

Testimony of Ms Jean Cameron

Ms Jean Cameron has been an Inspector with Ontario Motor Vehicles Industry Council ("OMVIC") since 1997; as such her duties are to conduct inspections on Dealer's premises to ensure that they are in compliance with the requirements of the Act.

OMVIC is a non-profit corporation which has been delegated the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicles Act. The Motor Vehicles Act is a public protection statute regulating dealers, and salespersons in the trade of buying and selling motor vehicles. Section 5 of the Motor Vehicles Act requires that individuals and corporations registered or applying to be registered under the Act meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law and financial responsibility.

Ms Cameron reiterated the information contained in Exhibit #4, Tabs #1 & 2 as the grounds for the Registrar's refusal to accept the Applicant's Registration.

Referring to the Applicant's Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, found at Tab # 8 of Exhibit # 4, Ms Cameron pointed out that the Applicant checked section A, acknowledging that he would be "...buying or selling vehicles on behalf of the dealership". The Applicant, as the sole officer and director of 1079326 Ontario Corp., was registered in 1997 as Dealer and Salesperson. The Applicant's original license as Dealer and Salesperson was revoked on October 9th, 2001. Yet, in section B of the application form, the Applicant check marked the answer: "First-time Registrant".

Ms Cameron testified that Mr. Banki answered “No” to “Question 3: Have you ever had a commercial, professional or business registration, certification or licence of any kind refused, suspended revoked or cancelled, or are you currently involved in such proceedings?”

The Applicant did admit, in his application, that he had previously filed for bankruptcy and was awaiting discharge. Although the Bankruptcy Trustee initially opposed discharge, Mr. Banki was discharged in April 2002.

In general credit reports speak to an individual’s financially responsibility and provide information regarding debts. The Applicant’s credit report, found at Tab #9 of Exhibit #4, proves that the Applicant had several bad debts and collections against his name.

As part of her testimony Ms. Cameron identified and explained the information contained on Tab # 11, A & B of Exhibit #4. The documents refer to the two vehicles financed by AFC subsequently sold by the Applicant without AFC’s knowledge, and for which the Applicant obtained replacement ownerships.

The Registrar, according to Ms. Cameron’s testimony, does not differentiate between Dealers and Salespersons, the requirements are the same. The Registrar proposes to refuse the Applicant’s registration due to concerns regarding his past business and financial conduct.

In cross-examination, Ms Cameron testified that the Motor Vehicle Dealer’s Act is meant “...to be preventative not reactive...”. Although the Registrar may impose limitations on a licence, Ms Cameron believes that in this case, limitations would not sufficiently ensure consumer protection.

Ms Cameron testified that bankruptcy is not in itself a restriction to registration. Registration is dependent on a number of facts. Mr. Banki lied on his application, therefore causing concern to the Registrar and to his honesty and integrity.

Testimony of Mr. Roy Vandermeere

Mr. Vandermeere testified as to his past employment history as well as to his current duties as Manager of Finance for Manheim Auto Auctions.

The witness identified the documents contained in Tab # 12 of Exhibit #4. The documents show that the Applicant signed two Security Agreements with Manheim. An agreement signed on April the 6th, 2000, entitling the Applicant to a maximum line of credit of $50,000.00, sets out credit fees for the 28-day program. An Amending Agreement was signed on January 9/2001 increasing the Applicant’s line of credit to $80,000.00 and extending the payment term to 56 days.

Mr. Vandermeere detailed, for the Tribunal, the main terms and conditions under which Manheim Auto Auctions provides bridge financing for dealers buying vehicles through Manheim.

Advanced funds together with fees, must be paid within the prearranged time whether or not the financed vehicle is sold; within 48 hours of a vehicle being sold; and in the event of a short fall between the purchase and sale price, the Dealer is responsible to cover the difference.

Mr. Vandermeere attested to the fact that the Applicant purchased and sold several vehicles within the period of April 5th 2002 and June 7th, 2002. The Dealer issued cheques to the Applicant for the sale of these vehicles, yet the Applicant's cheques to cover the purchase cost of the vehicles, were returned "Insufficient Funds" and "Account Closed".

As a result, the Applicant remains indebted to Manheim in the amount of $51,232.00.

In cross-examination Mr. Jiwa asked Mr. Vandermeere to explain Manheim's business practices. Mr. Vandermeere offered reasons as to the need for a Power of Attorney; reiterated the charges levied Dealers by Manheim; and confirmed them in some instances Manheim requests signed blank cheques from the dealers. Mr. Vandermeere agreed with Mr. Jiwa that the Applicant had lost money on a number of transactions. However, to the best of his knowledge there had been no problems with the Applicant prior to the cheques being returned.

Testimony of Mr. John Alfred Murray

Mr. Murray has been a Branch Manager for AFC Finance Corporation, for approximately eleven months, but has been with AFC for approximately four years.

Mr. Murray described his duties as Manager for AFC as well as the type of service that AFC provides to dealers. Mr. Murray identified and clarified the contents of the documents filed under Exhibit #4, Tab 11.

Mr. Murray emphasized that AFC was not notified, by the Applicant, of the sale of two vehicles, as required under the terms of the Security Agreements. The Applicant breached the terms of the Agreement by obtaining replacement ownership certificates from the Ministry of Transportation. The Bills of Sale are clearly stamped with the wording: 'ORIGINAL OWNERSHIP HELD AT AFC / KITCHENER / 519-622 2863 DEALER CANNOT APPLY FOR DUPLICATE OR LOSS'

As seven of the Applicant's cheques were returned and only part of the inventory was recovered, AFC suffered an approximate loss of $84,500.00. The total loss includes extra expenses incurred by AFC. For instance, AFC was not able to sell the recovered vehicles at a fair market price. Also, in order to be able to dispose of the vehicles recovered, AFC had to pay the Retail Sales Tax on behalf of the Applicant.

AFC received notification of the Applicant's bankruptcy proceedings but Mr. Murray was not aware of what transpired at the Creditor's Meeting.

Mr. Murray attested that originally, in 1997, the Applicant started out with a $10,000.00 credit limit, and that by 2002 the Applicant's credit limit had been increased to $100,000.00.

WITNESSES FOR THE APPLICANT

Testimony of Mr. Madjid Banki

The Applicant testified as to his personal information and professional history. The Applicant has an automotive background, and dealing in motor vehicles is his major skill to enable him to earn a living.

With respect to the issues affecting this matter, the Applicant attested that he had no desire to file for bankruptcy, yet he was forced into doing so, due to a downturn in business as well as purchaser's cheques being returned as "insufficient funds". The Applicant claims he returned all unsold vehicles to the finance companies at his own expense, and that he was forced to sell some vehicles at a loss in order to cover his debts. The Applicant incurred several debts, with "loan sharks". These loans had to be paid otherwise the Applicant's safety could have been endangered.

In cross-examination, the Applicant stated that he never intended to hold a Managerial position. His curriculum vitae was written strategically, as the Applicant was advised by friends to set a higher expectation on his resume, so that he would least be considered for a salesperson's position.

The Applicant testified that he did not apply for an increase in his line of credit, but as it was offered, he accepted, hoping that it would facilitate his ability to continue in business.

As far as obtaining the replacement ownerships, the Applicant explained that this was "...nothing new...". The Applicant's place of business was in London, whereas the Finance Company was in Kitchener, sometimes he was given permission to ask for a duplicate ownership, due the distance between the two businesses.

Submissions by Counsel for OMVIC

Mr. Rothe quoted sections of Section 5 of the Act, and argued that the Registrar does not come to a decision based on future intentions but rather on past behaviour. The Applicant does not meet the standards required under the Act and it is in the public's best interests that he not be allowed to work within the motor vehicles sales industry.

The Applicant did not ensure that there was sufficient money in his account to cover outstanding cheques. Mr. Vandermeer described the Applicant's behavior as fraudulent.

Mr. Murray testified that the Applicant sold two vehicles in breach of the existing agreement between the Applicant and AFC Finance.

Mr. Rothe argued that the Applicant ignored the rules and did not intend to pay for the vehicles he purchased. Thus, the Registrar did not err in law, but had a reasonable belief that the Applicant, if issued licence, would not act with honesty and integrity. Counsel emphasized that this was not a situation where restrictions on the license was an adequate solution.

Submissions by the Applicant's Counsel

Mr. Jiwa argued that the Applicant made some bad business decisions. As far as the application is concerned there was no intent to mislead, the Applicant simply did not understand the questions clearly.

There is no evidence that the Applicant's actions in filing for bankruptcy were fraudulent. This premise is corroborated by the fact that the Applicant returned all unsold vehicles.

The Applicant is applying for a salesman's licence, there are no financial responsibilities involved. The public interest would be served, if restrictions were imposed on the Applicant's licence.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. Banki was originally registered as a salesperson and officer of 1079326 Ontario Corp. o/a Parsco Investments and Consulting Inc. (the "Dealer") under the Act on or about March 24, 1997.
2. At all material times, Banki was the sole officer and director of the Dealer.
3. The Dealer was a corporation, registered as a dealer on or about March 24 1997.
4. Banki filed for bankruptcy on or about July 3, 2001.
5. At the time of his bankruptcy Banki owed AFC approximately $80,000.00.
6. At the time of his bankruptcy Banki was indebted to Manheim Auto Auctions in the amount of approximately $51,232.00.
7. On or about October 9, 2001 both Banki and the Dealer were revoked.
8. Banki's was discharged from bankruptcy on or about April 4, 2002.

9. Madjid, a.k.a. Mike, Banki ("Banki"), applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson, proposing to work for Mills & Hadwin Ltd.

THE LAW:

Section 5. (1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable risk to the public to refuse his registration as a Salesperson, as per Section 5 b of the Act.

Under both the Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration and the Notice of Further and Other Particulars, the Registrar implies that the Applicant is still indebted to Automotive Finance Corporation and Manheim Auto Auctions. The amounts outstanding were the subject of the Applicant's bankruptcy however, the Applicant has been discharged. Thus, it would appear the Applicant's debts have been cleared.

From the evidence presented, the Tribunal discerned three areas of concern raised by the Registrar as grounds for denial to register the Applicant as a Salesperson under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

- 1. allegation of fraudulent behaviour with respect to the bankruptcy;
- 2. impropriety in obtaining replacement ownership under false pretenses;
- 3. lying on his current application for registration.

The Tribunal will address each issue separately.

First the Applicant was in business from 1997 until July 2001, when he filed for bankruptcy. It is not this Tribunal's purview, to re-open the matter of the bankruptcy, therefore the Tribunal will only refer to the bankruptcy as it reflects on the Applicant's character. The Registrar inferred, that the question before the Tribunal is whether the Applicant's behaviour, at the time of his filing for bankruptcy, could be considered fraudulent. The applicant suggested he simply exercised bad business judgment.

It would have been within the parameters of the Trustee in Bankruptcy mandate to investigate and deal with any allegations of fraud that might have surfaced at the time of the bankruptcy. There is no evidence before the Tribunal that the Trustee were concerned with the issue of fraud. Therefore, the Tribunal does not find the Applicant's behaviour as fraudulent.

Secondly, there are two explanations before the Tribunal as to why the Applicant applied for replacement ownership papers. The Registrar asserts that the Applicant committed fraud. The Applicant submits that due to the distance between the Dealer and the Finance Company, that there was an implied agreement that allowed the Applicant on occasion to request replacement ownership from the Ministry of Transportation. The Tribunal will not presume to conjecture what was going through the Applicant's mind at the time, but will take into consideration his probable state of mind under the pressure of a failing business. Extending the Applicant the benefit of the doubt, the Tribunal, while not condoning the Applicant's behaviour, does not find that any possibility of fraudulent behaviour, was intentional and/or premeditated in this instance.

The last issue the Tribunal must determine is whether the Applicant lied on his application. By indicating that he was a first time registrant it would appear that he did in fact lie. Nonetheless, it is also plausible, as put forward by the Applicant's Counsel that the Applicant simply misunderstood the question. This assumption is substantiated by the fact that the Applicant admitted to the bankruptcy and provided details of his past dealership. Thus, the Tribunal will consider the incident a misunderstanding rather than a deliberate lie.

There is no doubt that the Applicant has made some bad business judgments, and that those judgments might have compelled him into behaviour that could be considered questionable. Therefore, the Registrar was prudent with respect to the decision made. Nevertheless, the Applicant demonstrated a sense of decency by returning unsold vehicles at his own expense. This does not appear to be an action carried out by an intentionally dishonest individual. Further the Applicant's behaviour is in the past. He was punished for his errors, by losing his Dealer's and Salesperson's licence.

The Applicant is now asking for a Salesperson's licence. The Tribunal disagrees with the Registrar's position that a Salesperson carries the same responsibility as a Dealer and sees no reason as to why the Applicant should not be allowed to practice his trade, albeit with strict conditions. The Tribunal hereby orders that a Salesperson's be granted to the Applicant, with the following terms and conditions:

1. The Applicant is not to be allowed to handle cash.
2. The Applicant is not to be allowed to attend auctions, on his own, and purchase or sell vehicles at auctions, on behalf of the Dealer.

3. The Applicant is not to carry on business transactions for the sale or purchase of motor vehicles outside the premises of the Dealer.
4. All transactions of trade, purchase or sale of motor vehicles are to be approved and verified by the Sales Manager, prior to the Applicant closing any deal with prospect buyers and or sellers.
5. The Applicant is to inform any perspective employers of the limitations on his licence.
6. The Applicant shall advise the Dealer, employing him that the Dealer is required to notify the Registrar, in writing, within thirty days of offering employment to the Applicant that the Dealer is aware of the restrictions imposed on the Applicant's licence.

Further, this Tribunal orders that:

1. In the event of breach of any of the conditions listed above, the Applicant shall forthwith forfeit his Salesperson's licence.
2. In the event a conviction of fraud is registered against the Applicant, the Applicant shall forthwith forfeit his Salesperson's licence.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to not to carry out the proposal to refuse the registrations of Madjid, a.k.a. Mike, Banki ("Banki"), but to issue a Salesperson's licence subject to the terms and conditions hereinto before stated.

4. The front porch has unfinished steps. Front of the porch steps going all along the front with two posts. Mandatory Inspection Report # 17. Front conc. Steps require foundation or to be hung as per OBC.
5. The tiles in the foyer need repair.

When the hearing resumed at 10:00 a.m., the Tribunal proceeded in the absence of the added party.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit#1- Decision letter from the Program dated May 30, 2002, denying the Applicants' claim;
Exhibit#2- Notice of Appeal form received at the Tribunal on June 11, 2002, filed by the Applicants;
Exhibit #3 - Program's book of documents;
Exhibit #4 - Applicants' documents;
Exhibit #5 - The Sutton, Lakeside Village brochure; and Exhibit #6 - Photographs provided by the Applicants.

FACTS:

The Applicants' witnesses were John and Sandra Placko. The witnesses for the Program were Wendy Skyba and Chad Foresheew. Ms. Skyba stated that she is a warranty representative and has worked for the Program for over three years. She is the author of the Decision. Mr. Foresheew was a warranty representative for eight years until he became Manager for Technical Operations for the Program. He was asked by the Program to provide a second opinion on the Applicants' claims.

The agreement of purchase and sale, tab 2 of exhibit 3, is dated December 1997. Paragraph 22 of the agreement states the following: "There is no representation, warranty, collateral agreement or condition affecting this Agreement or the Property, or supported hereby, for which the Vendor can be held responsible or liable in any way, whether contained, portrayed, illustrated or represented by, or in, any plan, drawing, brochure, display, model or any other sales/marketing material, other than expressed herein in writing."

The Certificate of Completion and Possession for the house at 94 Bayview Avenue, Keswick, tab 3 of exhibit 3, is dated March 17, 1999.

1. Loft

Mr. Placko testified that the loft is only 12'6" wide. The Applicants advised the Program of this claim by a letter received on September 2, 1999, tab 6 of exhibit 3. As stated in the Decision, Ms. Skyba found that the actual interior dimensions of the loft are 12'6" x 19'0", totaling 237 sq. ft.

Schedule "G" of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale (the "Agreement"), tab 2 of exhibit 3, shows the dimensions of the loft, the optional family room, as 13'6" x 17'6", totaling 236 sq. ft. The agreement of purchase and sale states that schedule "G" is an integral part of the Agreement. Schedule "G" is a copy of the Sutton, Lakeside Village brochure, exhibit 5, which states the following: "Actual usable floor space may vary from the stated floor area. All renderings are artist's concept. Dimensions, Specifications and architectural detailing subject to minor modifications."

2. Missing Railing to the Loft

By letter dated December 3, 1999, and received by the program on December 7, 1999, the Applicants complained of "missing railing to the loft." The Decision states the following: "During the inspection done on December 9, 1999 the owner pointed out that a half wall guards the exposed side of the stairs to the loft and a handrail attached to it. A half-wall with a handrail guards the exposed side of the stair. The owners contend they are entitled to an oak guardrail and pickets." Schedule "F", which is stated to be an integral part of the Agreement, reads as follows: "Banister with pickets and oak on main staircase in two storey models." The loft is situated above the garage; therefore, Mr. Placko claimed that the house is a two-storey model. Mr. Foresheew testified that the house is not a two-storey model because there is no living area above another living area; the attached garage is not living space.

During the hearing, Mr. Placko testified that the Applicants are not asking for a complete railing, merely an end post. Ms. Skyba stated that she had not heard of a demand for an end post prior to the hearing. Page 15 of exhibit 4 dated 1999 contains a complaint of "fix around stairs."

3. Fireplace

The Applicants complained to the Program in a letter received December 7, 1999, tab 22 of exhibit 3, that the fireplace is missing a variable-speed fan. Schedule "F" of the agreement states that there is included a "directed vented gas fireplace(s) as per plan." Schedule "G", the only plan in the Agreement, simply indicates a gas fireplace with the notation "gas f.pl." Mr. Placko referred to architectural production drawings dated October 1998, issued for building permit on April 29, 1998, page 36A of exhibit 4, that describe the fireplace as follows: "To be direct gas vent, air circulating type, zero clearance, factory built steel fireplace with variable speed fan,...in finish and style as selected by the Owner, from the standard range." Ms. Skyba stated that if the building department had considered the notation on the architectural production drawings, it would have concluded that the variable-speed fan is an option. She further testified that she had examined the owner's manual and the metal plate attached to the fireplace and that both say that a variable-speed fan is an option.

Mr. Placko stated that the mantle is hot to the touch when the fireplace is used; thus, it is a fire hazard. Mr. Foresheew testified that he examined the fireplace and that it is a zero clearance model, which can be installed right up to combustibles.

4. Front Porch Steps

Mr. Placko complained that the house does not have stairs across the full width of the front landing. Schedule "G" of the Agreement contains a front elevation of the house that shows such steps. The Decision states that the vendor installed pre-cast concrete stairs in front of the main entrance only. Further, the Decision claims that the steps provide safe access to the house. Mr. Foreshew described the existing steps as five-foot wide.

Tab 43 of exhibit 3 is a full and final release dated August 2, 2000, signed by the Applicants and witnessed, releasing the Program, in consideration of the payment of $37,341.50, "from any and all actions, causes of action, covenants, contracts, debts, demands, claims, and costs, for damages, loss, or injury however arising, which I/we ever had, now have or may hereafter have...for items #1 through #40 on the Settlement Schedule dated August 2, 2000...in respect of the home located at 94 Bayview Avenue, Keswick." Item sixteen in the settlement schedule dated August 2, 2000, tab 43A of exhibit 3, states the following: "Complaint: The front porch has unfinished steps. Front of the porch steps going all along the front with two posts. Mandatory Inspection Report #117. Front conc. Steps require foundation or to be hung as per OBC."

5. Tiles in the Foyer

Mr. Placko testified that the corner tile in the foyer is sticking up $\frac{1}{4}$ " instead of being even with the wooden floor. Tab 6 of exhibit 3, a letter received by the Program on September 2, 1999, complains that the tiles in the front foyer need repair. The Applicants also complained that the tiles slope and that there are hairline cracks in the grout between tiles. Ms. Skyba stated that these complaints were first made at the time of her inspection on October 30, 2000.

Ms. Skyba testified that the tile is not a tripping hazard, that it is minor in nature, and not readily visible. She stated that the edge of the tile bevels down. Further, she said that the hairline cracks in grout between tiles is the result of normal shrinkage and is not a defect in workmanship.

Mr. Foreshew stated that the edges of the tiles are intended to be exposed to a degree since the tiles have joints. He walked over the tiles and did not find a tripping hazard. Mr. Foreshew testified that there are normally height differences between flooring materials. He said that the cement under tiles is normally variable in height. He also testified that the problem is not unusual and has no aesthetic impact. Mr. Foreshew said that the hairline cracks in the grout are barely visible from a standing position and are the result of the wood substrate shrinking. He characterized the slope of the tiles as minor and stated that he could not really see it and could not feel it in stocking-covered feet. Mr. Foreshew concluded that there is no defect.

6. Colour Tiles in Shower

Mr. Placko testified that the Applicants ordered plain tiles for the ensuite shower. Instead, he said, they also received six or eight tiles with a pattern. The complaint was received by the Program on December 7, 1999, by letter set out at tab 22 of exhibit 3.

Mr. Foresheew said that the patterned tiles are the same colour as the other tiles in the shower. He testified that people often ask to pay extra for such patterned tiles. Both he and Ms. Skyba testified that the Applicants ordered some randomly installed, patterned tiles for their other bathroom.

LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, states the following:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
 - (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.
 - (3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.
 - (4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made there under within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.
14. (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,
 - (a) the person became the owner of the home through receiving a transfer of title to it from a vendor or through the substantial performance by a builder of a contract to construct the home on land owned by the person; and
 - (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the use may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.
 - (7) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under this section.
 - (3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

Regulation 892 under the Act adds the following:

18. (1) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that the vendor shall make no substitutions in those items of construction or finishing for which the purchaser is entitled to make selection pursuant to the purchase agreement without the written consent of the purchaser.
- (2) Subsection (1) does not apply where,
 - (a) the purchaser, having been notified, does not make a selection within thirty days after executing the purchase agreement or within such other time period as may be agreed; or
 - (b) an item selected under clause (a) is not available and the purchaser does not make a selection within seven days of receiving written notice from the vendor or within such other time period as may be agreed that the item is unavailable.
- (3) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that where the purchaser fails to make a selection under clause (2)(a) or (b) that the vendor will make a selection on the purchaser's behalf that is of equal or better quality than the original selection as set out in the purchase agreement.
19. Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that, where the vendor makes a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement that is not an item that is to be selected by the purchaser, the item will be of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement.
20. A claim may be made under subsection 17(1) and subsection 18(1) or section 19 only where,
 - (a) the transaction closes; and
 - (b) the claim is made by an owner within one year after the date upon which the home is completed for possession.

CASELAW:

In Florio (Re), [1999] O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 84, the Tribunal states that multi-storey houses have a living area above another living area such that a vertical plane will intersect more than one living area.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

1. Loft

With respect to the loft, the Tribunal finds that the vendor made a substitution, but the item provided to the Applicants is of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement. The square footage of the loft is slightly greater than the square footage shown on schedule "G" of the Agreement. The schedule states that dimensions are subject to minor modifications. There is no evidence that the smaller width of the room resulted in damages to the Applicants. The Tribunal disallows the claim concerning the loft.

2. Missing Railing to Loft

The Tribunal finds that the Agreement does not entitle the Applicants to a railing or an end post. The Agreement requires a "banister with pickets and oak on main staircase in two storey models." The Tribunal agrees with Mr. Foreshew that the house is not a two-storey model because there is no living area above another living area. The loft is found above the garage, but the garage is not a living area. The Applicants' claim is denied.

3. Fireplace

The Tribunal concludes that the fireplace is not a fire hazard. The onus of proof on a balance of probabilities rests upon the Applicants. The fireplace is a zero-clearance model that can be installed next to combustible materials. The Applicants stated that the mantle gets hot when the fireplace is used, but no fire hazard was proved. The Tribunal does not find the fireplace to be defective.

The agreement of purchase and sale does not entitle the Applicants to a variable-speed fan. The architectural production drawing that mentions a fireplace with a variable-speed fan states that it was issued for a building permit on April 29, 1998; thus, that drawing was prepared after the Agreement was signed. The Tribunal finds that the production drawing is not a part of the Agreement and finds that there was no substitution. The Applicants' claim is disallowed.

4. Front Porch Steps

The Tribunal finds that the Applicants released the Program from their claim for valuable consideration as set out at tab 43 of exhibit 3. The Applicants' claim with respect to the front porch steps is denied.

5. Tiles in the Foyer

Ms. Skyba and Mr. Foreshew, both experienced in inspecting houses, found no defect. The Applicants complained that the corner tile in the foyer is sticking up $\frac{1}{4}$ " instead of being even with the floor. Mr. Foreshew testified that there are normally height differences between flooring materials. He said that the cement under tiles is usually variable in height. Mr. Foreshew and Ms. Skyba stated that the hairline cracks in the grout between the tiles are minor and are the result of normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction, an exception to the warranties granted by subsection 13(1) of the Act. Mr. Foreshew testified that the slope of the tiles is minor and that he could not really see it or feel it. Tribunal accepts the testimony of Ms. Skyba and Mr. Foreshew and finds no defect. The Applicants' claim is disallowed.

6. Colour Tiles in Shower

The Tribunal finds that providing the patterned tiles was a substitution of an item of equal or better quality than the plain tiles of the same colour that were requested by the Applicants. Mr. Foresheew testified that purchasers pay extra for such patterned tiles as an upgrade. There is no defect in materials. The Tribunal disallows the Applicants' claim.

In summary, the Applicants failed to prove a breach of warranty under the Act.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

- 14) Ken Bowker, Agent for the Applicant is to advise the Program and the Third Party by October 7, 2002 if he intends to appear as both an Agent for the Applicants and an expert witness. NICK NOEL, Applicant, appeared on his own behalf
YOVANKA McBEAN, Agent, representing the Registrar under the

DATES OF

OTTAWA

REASON FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is an appeal by the Applicant, Nick Noel, to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a proposal dated June 27, 2002 by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act ("the Act") to refuse his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Registrar relies solely on the Applicant's failure to meet the criteria set out in Section 5 of the Act.

THE EVIDENCE

The Tribunal heard from two witnesses.

Michael Rothe gave evidence for the Registrar. He gave an explanatory background for the documentary evidence that was introduced on behalf of the Registrar.

Mr. Rothe has been involved since January of 2000 with administration and prosecution for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). Consequently, he understands the requirements needed by an applicant for registration as a salesperson under the Act. OMVIC oversees such applications, having been created in 1997 to enforce compliance with the Act and its regulations.

The documents identified by the witness show that on April 25, 2002 the Applicant, Nick Noel, applied on the prescribed form to become a salesperson. The Registrar's concern arose for two reasons from this application.

First, in answer to question 6 on the form, ".... have you been engaged in personal bankruptcy proceedings?" the Applicant marked the answer "No" with a cross in the space provided, indicating that he had not been so involved.

Quite clearly this was wrong. Records received from Equifax indicated "A bankruptcy was filed in 11/99 in SC Ottawa" and as well a certified copy from the trustee showed a discharge dated August 22, 2000.

The second concern arose from the answer to question 9 on the form, "Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law? If yes, list all the charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each (attach additional information if necessary)" Again the Applicant marked the answer NO with a cross in the space provided.

This answer was also clearly wrong. The Police records obtained by OMVIC and submitted as evidence showed that Mr. Noel had been convicted of the following 11 offences:

MAR 1995 BREAK AND ENTRY SUSP SENT & PROB 1 YR

JAN 1997 FAIL OR REFUSE TO PROVIDE SAMPLE SEC 254(5) FINED $300 & PROB

JUL 1998 MISCHIEF UNDER $5000 FINED $250 & PROB

AUG 1998 DRIVE DISQUALIFIED FINED $600 & PROB

MAR 2000 ASSAULT FINED $548.67

OBSTRUCTION SUSP SENT & PROB

MISCHIEF UNDER SUSP SENT & PROB

SEP 2000 OBSTRUCT PEACE OFFICER FINED $500

When this information was received by OMVIC, a letter was sent to the Applicant's sponsor indicating, without giving details, "Criminal record checks can result in false positives" and requesting the sponsor to discuss this with the Applicant.

The Applicant wrote back "I apologize for not enclosing all the pertinent information as requested due to the fact that I assumed it may not be relevant since there is nothing but a few minor fines (which I will take care of within the next couple of weeks) that is outstanding".

Then, apparently in response to a telephone call from an OMVIC representative, the Applicant wrote a second letter saying, "... I have neglected to mention two other cases which took place in the year 2000 of which one has been dismissed and the other resulted in a fine"

Finally, after a call from the Deputy Registrar, the Applicant submitted the details of his convictions. With respect to the Break and Entry he wrote, absolving himself, "My friend at the time Richard Harris asked me to drive him to a house which he intended to rent. I parked my car in front of the house and waited for Richard. When he came out he had some items I thought were his. When we were ready to leave a police cruiser stopped us and charged us both ..."

The Applicant gave evidence, which did not assist his appeal. He acknowledged that on the application form after a caution reading in capitals, 'NOTE: PLEASE ENSURE THAT YOU HAVE READ THIS SECTION IN FULL BEFORE SIGNING' the following paragraph appears:

"I understand that I may not buy or sell vehicles for a motor vehicle dealer unless I am registered under the Act as a salesperson to that dealer. I acknowledge that "buying and selling" refers to any form of negotiation concerning the purchase or sale of a vehicle, and is not limited to the signing of contracts."

The Applicant said he was a pretty good salesperson and had sold over 60 cars. This, of course, put him in direct violation of the requirement to be registered first.

With respect to the Break and Entry conviction, the Applicant testified he pleaded guilty to get the matter over.

THE LAW

The relevant sections of the Act provides as follows:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or:
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty; or

- 6.(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

DECISION AND REASONS

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant obviously gets on well with people. However, the only question the Tribunal has to answer is whether the Registrar was in error in concluding that the Applicant is not in compliance with the requirements of section 5 of the Act.

The leading case on the proper test to be applied is set out in Brenner v. Registrar of Motor Vehicles and Salesmen 1983 19 CRAT Divisional Court which confirms how the Act. should apply:

"The effect of s. 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question. Instead the Board seems to have been pre-occupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

It is therefore the Applicant's past conduct, not his prospects which govern the outcome.

Accordingly by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7. (4) of the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated 11th February 2002.

DATE OF HEARING: October 1, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 3, 2002 written

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 1, 2002, at Fort Frances, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Roberto Gioia (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1990 Chevrolet Beretta GT, Plate No. 927 TTF (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 4, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 1, 2002 and proceeded as a written hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

This letter is to Appeal the impounding of my car: 1990 Chevrolet Berretta GT

VIN: 1G1LW11T4LY100983

This experience of having our car impounded has caused my (recently separated) wife (Nancy Margaret Gioia) un-do hardship. We have just recently separated and her and her daughter live alone in an apartment. For her to survive on her own, she has to work two separate jobs. The vehicle in question is her only transportation, and without it, has made it virtually impossible to continue working her part-time job. She only has 30 minutes to travel from Yonge and Finch to Don Mills and Lawrence between the hours of 4:30 pm to 5:00 pm. I am not available to pick her up to take her to her part-time employment due to my full-time working hours. Also, she leaves her part-time job at 9:00 pm and at that hour it takes her approximately 1 hour to arrive at her residence with public transit and walking through dark fields, so I am concerned with her safety.

She informed me that prior to her allowing Mr. Fraser to use our vehicle, he had produced a valid Florida Driver's License but P.C. #7959 Kevin Drake confiscated it at the area of which our car was towed from.

I thank you in advance for taking your time to read my appeal and hope to hear from you shortly with your decision in this matter.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Thomas Fraser;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Remain at Accident under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 11, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

- (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the first issue, that of due diligence, section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act specifically states :

- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension
(emphasis is added)

Thus, it is the owner of the vehicle who must exercise due diligence. There is no provision in the legislation that would, in a case like this, permit the owner to delegate his responsibility.

The certified copy of the records from the Ministry of Transportation, filed with Exhibit 3, clearly reveals that the owner in this case is Roberto Gioia. However, in his letter of appeal, filed with Exhibit 2, Mr. Gioia specifically states that it was his wife, Nancy Gioia, and not Mr. Gioia himself, who made the inquiry about the validity of the Driver's Licence of the driver, Thomas Edwin Fraser.

Unfortunately, for Mr. Gioia, Nancy Gioia is not the owner of the vehicle in question.

In order to comply with section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act, it should have been Roberto Gioia, as owner, and not Nancy Gioia, who made the inquiry. Mr. Gioia, therefore, did not comply with this provision. Therefore, his appeal on the ground of due diligence must fail.

As to the second ground of appeal, that of exceptional hardship, Mr. Gioia, in his letter of appeal, filed with Exhibit 2, refers to two consequences of the impoundment of his vehicle; namely:

1. His wife works at two separate jobs, but cannot continue working her part-time job because she only has thirty minutes to travel from one location in the city of Toronto to another. Presumably, this means that Mrs. Gioia has only thirty minutes to travel from one of her jobs to another, although Mr. Gioia does not make this clear in his letter of appeal. Mr. Gioia cannot transport her himself because of his own job.
2. Mrs. Gioia leaves her part-time job at 9:00 p.m., and, using public transportation, requires one hour to arrive at her residence, which also requires her to walk through dark fields, thereby raising concerns in Mr. Gioia for her safety.

No other details are provided by Mr. Gioia about these two circumstances.

The first issue that this Tribunal must consider, in deciding the issue of exceptional hardship, according to section 22(1) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, is whether no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available. If there is, that is the end of the matter. If there is not, certain other factors must be considered.

In his letter of appeal, Mr. Gioia makes reference to public transportation in Toronto. Perhaps public transportation may not be as fast as travel in a personal vehicle; nevertheless, public transportation is an alternative, in this case, to travel in the impounded vehicle.

Perhaps, as a further result, there may be financial loss, loss of employment or employment opportunity, or loss of education or training or of education and training opportunity. This Tribunal does not know whether these results follow the impoundment because Mr. Gioia does not indicate these results in his letter of appeal.

Regardless, this Tribunal cannot consider those factors unless, pursuant to section 22(3) of the above Regulation, there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle, and unless the loss would be immediate, significant and lasting, as provided for in paragraphs 22(3)(a) and (b). Nor is there evidence that the impoundment would cause a threat to the health and safety of any person ordinarily transported by the impounded vehicle, as required by section 22(1).

There simply is not enough evidence before this Tribunal to enable it to conclude that the impoundment of the vehicle in question results in exceptional hardship, as that phrase is defined earlier in this Decision. This Tribunal finds, on the evidence, that there is, in fact, alternative transportation. However, even if the evidence were such as to permit this Tribunal to hold that there was no alternative transportation, the evidence still falls far short of establishing the other criteria in section 22(1) and section 22(3) of the above Regulation that must be satisfied before a finding of exceptional hardship can be made out.

The onus in this Appeal is on the Applicant to prove his case. Considering the evidence that Mr. Gioia has provided, this Tribunal finds that he has not met that onus. Therefore, the Appeal must fail.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION RELEASED: October 1, 2002 Belleville

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 20, 2002, at Belleville, Ontario, to consider the Applicant’s appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Amy C. Scrimshaw (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1991 Pontiac Convertible VIN JG7MR316XMK618771
Plate ALXF889
Date of Appeal: September 4, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 20, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

To whom it may concern. On the night in question, it started off by me getting off the 3-11pm shift. My boyfriend (Kurtis) was at my house waiting for me to get home to drive him to work for midnight. I was tired so I just threw the keys at him and said. "I'm too tired to take you". No question was asked about his license' and this was the first time he had driven my car. So now I have learned a hard lesson, and it puts me in a hard position because, I have to get to and from work, and take my kids ages 5 and 7 to and school and day care. Which I have to do all myself 'cause the father of the kids was murdered 5 years ago. I believe that these are reasonable grounds to request an oral hearing before the Tribunal

: Attached Documents

- Children's Birth certificates

- Work schedule and what was worked the week of Aug 19 2002.

Testimony given by the Applicant detailed her effort to get to work and handle her child care duties. Working shifts presents a problem due to the public transportation ending at 11 p.m. Furthermore, delivering the children to a day care centre when they finish school presents another problem. She stated that her mother has been of considerable help as she drives and has supplied transport whenever her own shift work permits. She has used taxis from time to time but the fare of $9 per trip is more than she can continue to afford. No other evidence in regard to renting a car or borrowing a vehicle was offered.

Her boyfriend Kurtis Munnings, the driver of her car, was unable to supply any financial help as he was keeping his money to pay for a lawyer for his pending court case.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record as Exhibit#1 on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Kurtis M. Munnings;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until May 29, 2003.

The Respondent's evidence included a review of the Applicant's testimony specifically as it related to public transportation and the securing of an alternative vehicle which left a number of options unexplored, specifically borrowing a car from a friend or relative. The Respondent went on to detail the requirements under the Act which she, in her closing statement, claimed had not been met by the Applicant .

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under 50.2(3)(d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of her vehicle will result and has resulted in exceptional hardship. Section 22 of the Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant in order to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment. The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative vehicle is available.

In this case the Applicant does have the use of her mother's car from time to time and no doubt options exist to further facilitate the use of this vehicle with care and planning. The mother's co-operation has already been demonstrated as it was her cheque that accompanied the Applicant's appeal papers. No evidence was offered to demonstrate any effort to rent a car.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TRIBUNAL: ROY MELVIN, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
Applicant

DATE OF
HEARING: October 2, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by The Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 63 year old retired airline pilot who was admitted to the North York General Hospital, Toronto on January 16, 2002 directly from a hospital in Honolulu Hawaii, where he had been treated for alcohol intoxication and dependency. He had a previous admission to this Hawaii hospital in 2000 with the same problem. He recovered from withdrawal symptoms and was diagnosed with Korsakoff syndrome, substantiated by C.T. Scan showing cerebral atrophy. At the North York General Hospital, he was under the care of Physician #1 Psychiatrist and seen in consultation by Physician #2 Neurologist. He elicits a history of alcoholism for about 25 years and has previously been diagnosed with alcoholic and viral hepatitis and thrombocytopenia secondary to alcoholism.

Clinically, he showed signs of cognitive impairment. He was admitted to assess his competency and provide guidance to relieve his social stresses, which could trigger further episodes of alcoholism. He was kept at the North York General Hospital until February 22, 2002, where he improved to the point where it was felt he could function on his own. There was a question of whether he had sustained head injuries because a recent photograph showing bruises to the right side of his face and the finding that he had drooping on this side of the face. The discharge diagnosis was (1) Chronic Alcoholism (2) Korsakoff Dementia (3) Possible head injury- and was prescribed medications (1) Risperdal- an anti- psychotic and (2) Imovane – for insominia. Korsakoff Dementia is a neuropsychiatric disorder caused by Vitamin B1 –thiamine, deficiency, typically associated with chronic alcoholism because of malnutrition.

Physician #2 notified the Ministry of Transportation on January 20, 2002 that The Applicant was medically unfit to drive a motor vehicle, whereupon the Ministry suspended his licence on the basis of the Highway Traffic Act Section 47(1). Reconsideration would be given on receipt of favourable medical reports and verification of compliance with an alcohol rehabilitation program. The Applicant was referred by his family doctor to see Physician #3, consultant in Addiction Medicine, whose report of June 7, 2002, recommended total alcohol abstinence and A.A. attendance, but was unable to offer an opinion as to his ability to drive safely. The Ministry's Medical Advisory Committee's report of July 19, 2002 concludes that his licence remain suspended. He was advised on July 26, 2002, and an appeal was submitted on September 5, 2002.

The Applicant has been divorced for over 20 years. He has two grown sons living in Ottawa, who initially were very supportive during his acute illness. He lives a very peripatetic lifestyle and since his retirement four years ago has lived in Ottawa, Toronto, the Turks Island, Hawaii and Vancouver. He resides presently at a motel in Richmond B.C. He lists his permanent address in Don Mills, Ontario where he lived with his last lady friend. He attributes his last alcoholic bout in December 2001 to distress caused by his break up with his lady friend and declares that he has had no alcohol since. Ministry of Transportation records show that his licence was suspended for impaired driving on August 9, 2000 until August 9, 2001. Eight days later on August 17, 200, he was given an ADLS suspension for 90 days.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

and

- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under sub clause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry of Transportation accepts medical guidelines published by the Canadian Medical Association for determining fitness to drive. Section 3.3 recommends that a patient with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence should not be allowed to drive until he/she completes a recognised rehabilitation program and remain alcohol free for 12 months.

Section 13.5 and 13.5.1 addresses the problem of dementia and recommends that such patients should have an up to date assessment of their cognitive functions.

The Applicant has not provided the Ministry of Transportation with sufficient information to satisfy the above guidelines.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 7, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held by teleconference on September 26, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant’s appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Cora Louise Bowman (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1995 GMC Safari Van, plate 956 TFX (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 6, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 6, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Robert Hill is a boarder (sic) in my home. I did not know he didn't have a valid licence, nor did we discuss it.

I was in bed when he left to go visit his friend. A pickup truck that he owns was in the laneway. I assumed he would drive his own vehicle. We never discussed his not having a licence or taking my vehicle without my knowledge.

This has left me without transportation to and from work, and daily errand eg: groceries, Doctors appointments, work. I don't have the funds to be able to get my van from the impoundment if kept for 45 days or any amount of time. This is the only vehicle I own.

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant has been a widow for the past 4 years. She has 3 adult children who no longer live at home and all own their own vehicles. The Applicant has legal custody of her 6 year old granddaughter. As the Applicant only receives a small widow's pension and has no significant savings, it is up to her to support herself and her granddaughter.

The Applicant is currently working 1 day a week at Lansdowne Child Centre as a home care counselor. Her responsibilities include physiotherapy, occupational therapy, provides various social activities for the handicapped as well as transporting kids to a specific location or she goes to their homes. She has been with Lansdowne Child Centre for 15 years.

Approximately 2 years ago, the Applicant had carpal tunnel surgery which limits her abilities in this field and the amount of contracts she receives. Opportunities would be available for her if she so decided to accept them.

The Applicant accepted Robert Hill, the driver of the impounded vehicle, into her home as a boarder on August 23, 2002. He was referred by and is a friend of some people she knows in Brantford. One week later on September 1, 2002, Mr. Hill left the home and without the Applicant's permission or knowledge, drove away with her vehicle instead of his pickup truck that was parked in the laneway. The Applicant only realized that her vehicle was missing when Mr. Hill phoned her from jail informing her of where he was and that her vehicle had been impounded.

In her testimony, the Applicant had no discussions with Mr. Hill regarding lending her vehicle to him nor was there a need for her to ask to see his valid driver's licence. At no time did Mr. Hill ask to borrow her vehicle. The Applicant hung her keys in plain view on a hook in the kitchen as there was no reason not to. Mr. Hill drove to work each day with his own vehicle. He is currently serving 23 months in jail.

During the time of impoundment, the Applicant was working full time in a clerical position and was also working at Lansdowne Child Centre. On September 13, 2002 the Applicant quit her full time job (on her own accord) and this had nothing to do with her vehicle having been impounded.

The Applicant stated that she also owns a 1981 motor home. It is only insured for fire and theft. She cannot afford to insure this vehicle to include a $1 million liability insurance because she occasionally needs to transport her handicapped clients. She has not suspended the insurance on her impounded vehicle nor transferred it to her motor home.

The Applicant's two of the three children live near her and have been helping her to get to and from work since the impoundment. It has been very difficult as they each have busy schedules and work long hours. Her daughter would drive her mother to and from work and the Applicant's daughter-in-law would look after her granddaughter. The Applicant borrows her daughter's vehicle on Tuesday nights when she works at Lansdowne Child Centre.

The Applicant testified that she had loaned one of her daughter's money towards the purchase of a vehicle (Tracker). This daughter is currently trying to sell this vehicle which is unavailable for the Applicant to use while her van is impounded.

Burford is approximately 4 kilometers from the Applicant's home. It is a small farming community with no public transportation. The cost of traveling by taxi from Burford to Brantford is approximately $27 each way. There are no co-workers that live in Burford. The cost to rent a vehicle is approximately $30 per day. As there is very little income coming in, the costs of the aforementioned are too expensive.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 & 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Robert Donald Hill;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood Alcohol in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

1. The Applicant has testified that she is currently using her daughter's vehicle on Tuesday evenings.
2. She has not determined whether Mr. Hill's vehicle is, in fact, owned by him. If that were the case, she could borrow it during the impoundment period.
3. One of her daughters is selling a vehicle in which the Applicant has lent her money for its initial purchase. This could be an alternative for a short period of time.
4. The Applicant could transfer the insurance from the impounded vehicle to the motor vehicle for the duration of the impoundment.

With regard to possible threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle, the Applicant testified that her granddaughter has asthma which is currently not a problem. The community in which the Applicant resides is "911" accessible. Since the impoundment, she has not had and therefore not missed any doctor's appointments.

Although the Applicant is a person in crisis, her plight with regard to her significant financial losses regarding this impoundment cannot be addressed by this Tribunal since there are alternatives to the impounded vehicle.

Evidence was heard that the Applicant has incurred severe financial hardship as a result of the loss of the vehicle. The Applicant testified that Mr. Hill indicated he would pay the impoundment charges. The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, Robert Hill, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will only be financially significant, but not immediate and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 26, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Joy Jensen Day (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1989 GMC SAFARI, plate AJTY 370 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: September 4th 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 26th 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I hereby am requesting the release of my van from a 45 day impoundment.

My husband, whose license is currently under suspension took my van without my consent, while I was out walking our 21 month old daughter. As I had no clue as to where he went I couldn’t retrieve the van from him.

I truly need to have this vehicle. I have 3 children, one 21 months old, who I need to be able to get to doctor’s appointments. I also have a 12 year old daughter who needs a ride to school as she's been transferred to a school out of our area and the distance between our home and her school is approximately 8 km. My son is involved in a variety of sports all over our area and I was one of the parents who did a great deal of team transportation (having a van) and it is very embarrassing for my 14 year to have to explain why his mother doesn't have a van any longer.

I, personally, as of Sep 12, 2002 will be resuming doctor's appointments once a week in Hamilton, Ontario, which is at least 30 km from my home.

I truly would not allow my husband to take my vehicle because this type trouble can happen.

I've requested an electronic hearing because unless there is a Tribunal meeting someplace in Brantford, I would have no way to get to such a hearing. Those people that I do know that own vehicles are very hesitant to lend them to anyone to go out of town.

I truly hope you can see your way to release my vehicle.

In the written statement submitted by the Applicant it is noted that her friends will lend her a vehicle but not for out of town trips or so it is implied. Testimony in respect to other sources of a substitute vehicle was given and indicated a rental car could not be had as she had no credit card a basic requirement by all agencies. Her brother-in-law lives in Oshawa and is seldom in contact with her family. She has no relatives at all and hence no help from that direction. While transport to her daughters school has not been provided, even though it is 8km distant, by the local school board this is a distinct departure from most school boards and I question the Applicant's effort in this direction. The son's sports activities continue as other parents of team mates provide the transport.

There is hardship here with a husband in jail ,a gross family income of $1522,,an overdue mortgage payment on their home (with less than 13% equity). Her own medical condition requires weekly trips to Hamilton for methadone treatments which resumed on September 12, 2002. She has hitch hiked and bussed to these appointments since the loss of her vehicle.

Her husband Robert A. Day has been denied bail, a rather unusual position for the court, as his trial is not scheduled until early next year. He is an electrician who is usually taken to work by a co-worker according to her testimony. Mr. Day has had previous driving convictions and is currently under suspension until February 2003.

No information was offered as to her case workers' help nor had she explored the help that might be offered by United Way or other local charities. She is a former Administrative Assistant but has not pursued an active job search. Whether or not she still receives Employment Insurance was not determined.

No letter was offered from her doctor in Hamilton to verify her methadone treatment was only available in Hamilton. The Applicant also failed to supply a letter in respect to the lack of bus service for her child from the School Board.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.(Exhibit #2)

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the Applicant's husband Robert A. Day
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 14, 2003.

The Respondent vigorously pursued the Applicant's position in respect to an alternative vehicle and was given the same position as was originally declared by the Applicant in her written and oral evidence.

The Respondent then produced search documents that indicated the Applicant had two other cars registered in her name which according to the Applicant had been scrapped. She also stated she had signed the ownership permits and turned them over to the wrecker, however they have yet to be processed by the Ministry of Transport.

The Respondent suggested to Mrs. Day that she follow up the wrecking yard to ensure these documents have been forwarded to the Ministry of Transport as required by law.

Public transport was discussed as an alternative but the Applicant could not afford the time nor the cost. Treatment for methadone is not available in Brantford according to the Applicant but no letter in support of this notion was provided by the Applicant.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under section 50.2(d) Of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of her vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship and has caused her difficulty in getting her to family medical appointments and her child to school. Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment.

The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

Furthermore section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored including an alternative vehicle.

In this case the Applicant has indicated in her evidence that friends will lend her a car except for out of town use. Her methadone treatment could be suspended until her vehicle is released. It is also unclear as to whether the local hospital could provide this treatment.

No letter was presented from the school board in respect to the denial of bus service for her child. Some question remains in respect to the other two vehicles still registered in the Applicant's name.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION RELEASED: October 3, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 30, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Lolita Takeram (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	1990 Ford Aerostar, plate 913 VKM (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	September 12, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 30, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I am appealing on the grounds of hardship. I rely upon the use of my car because I have 2 young children that need to be taken to school, my 9 year old needs to be dropped to school, picked up for lunch at 12:00 noon, returned and picked up again at 3:30 p.m. I have a 4 year old starting kindergarten 9th Sept, he needs to be taken to school at 1:15 p.m. and picked up 3:30 p.m. This is a 20 minute walk one way, several times a day. I also need to do grocery shopping, my children are with me. I also do grocery shopping for my elderly parents who are in their 70's a couple times a week. I am unable to do the above without extreme hardship.

I am also unable to go to work as I have no transportation to go to work. I am suppose to go on a regular basis to select a route because when I was called to select a route, all routes in my Zoning area had been taken by senior drivers over me. I am presently waiting but unable to go to my work place because I still have my 4 year old with me in the morning, and I do not have enough time to use TTC to go down to my workplace and back as I have to pick up my 2 children from school at 3:30 p.m. At present I am not able to work because I have no vehicle. I cannot afford to take a taxi all over the place, this is very costly.

I also have a 17 year old girl who goes to high school using the TTC. She also has a part-time job in Toys 'R' Us. I am supposed to pick her up in my vehicle as I do not feel it is safe for her to be travelling on her own at night into the Kingston Rd/Morningside area. I also live in a lonely remote area where it is away from the main road. She has to walk from the bus stop to my home alone, again this is not safe for a young girl to be walking by herself alone.

In conclusion to my appeal, the circumstances that led up to my impoundment of my van were on Saturday 31st August 2002 we (myself, husband, 2 children and 2 young friends) decided to go fishing about 7:20 a.m. where we fished all day until about 5:30 p.m., we decided to leave for home. I got into the vehicle and as I was driving I started to feel quite ill, a nausea feeling started to come over me and I decided to exit on a service area at Cobourg. When I returned from the washroom I asked my husband who has not got a licence (convicted for impaired driving) to drive for a while until I felt better. We had barely got off the ramp and onto the 401 when a police officer stopped us. He asked for drivers licence, ownership and insurance, of course my husband had no licence and was duly charged. I then noticed a tow truck pull up one police officer came over and said to me he was impounding the vehicle for 45 days. I told him I was unaware of this law, he said it was enforced 2 years ago. I tried to plead with him to allow me to keep the vehicle, that I had 2 small children in the vehicle and I had no money to get home. He said he didn't care and that I put myself in this position for allowing my husband to drive. I received absolutely no sympathy and compassion from the police officer. He said he would drop us off at a motel about 3 minutes away from where he had stopped us. I had asked the assistant police officer who had been called on the scene to assist if he could give us details how to get back to Toronto via the Go train. He said he didn't know but one staff at the motel would know. Again when they dropped us off I again pleaded with the officer that had charged us, the I had no money and I wouldn't be able to go back to Toronto. He said that he didn't care and again that we caused this on ourself. I told him that I could not survive without a vehicle in Toronto, that I have to take my kids to school, the 9 year old take piano lessons at Kingston Rd./St. Clair and martial arts lessons and I need a vehicle, again he showed lack of interest and was in a hurry to leave us.

The hotel staff knew nothing about the Go-train and any details. We then had to ask strangers on the street how to get back to Toronto, eventually we phoned a cab firm in which they informed us it would cost $130.00 to drive us to Toronto. We managed to get the fare down to $100.00, we then proceeded home.

The testimony of the Applicant, together with her written submission, clearly indicates that the Applicant Lolita Takerman knew that her husband Ray M. Khedan had had his licence suspended and was not allowed to operate a car. In fact the driver of her car, her husband Ray M. Khedan, has had more than one conviction and is currently under suspension until February 19, 2004. The Applicant further identified her inconvenience in order to cope with her normal family chores. Additionally, she said her job as a School Bus Driver has been temporarily abandoned because the loss of her vehicle, together with her family needs, were in conflict due to route restrictions and scheduling.

In giving her evidence, replacement travel modes such as public transit, taxi use and walking were dismissed as too time costly and very awkward to schedule. Her entire evidence in respect to her hardship both written and oral centered on the absence of the vehicle or a replacement vehicle.

Much of the evidence submitted, in respect to the Applicant's description of the events following the impoundment, is not relevant to the matter before the Tribunal and should be pursued in another venue.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Ray M. Khedan;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving with more than 80 mgs Alcohol in Blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 19, 2004.

In pursuit of further clarification of the Applicant's hardship claim it was learned that Ray M. Khedan, the Applicant's husband, had been employed for 11 years at a furniture manufacturing plant and had a gross income of over $30,000 annually. When the Applicant is driving for the bus company she earns a minimum of $9600 a year. The townhouse where they live is owned by the parents and is rented for $600 monthly. Family debts call for payments of approximately $400 monthly.

Because she is now on Employment Insurance her income has been reduced by approximately 50% or $400 monthly. These known figures would leave a disposable income of $2400 gross when she returns to work where she can be reemployed.

The Respondent, in summing up the Applicant's position, recognized that it was currently very inconvenient at this time for the Applicant but it fails the test of section 50.2 (3) (d) of the Act.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
- (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of her vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship and has caused her difficulty in getting to her job and other family needs. Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant in order to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment.

The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of the Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

Furthermore section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored, including obtaining an alternative vehicle.

In this case, the Applicant did not show that she has explored any of the options to the impounded vehicle which might be available to her, but instead focused most of her testimony on her hardship to the exclusion of any attempts she may have made to mitigate the loss of the vehicle. In particular, the Applicant did not provide any specific information with respect to a renting a car which, according to her testimony in respect to their financial position, would appear to be a logical solution to replace the impounded vehicle.

While the Applicant has established that the impoundment of her vehicle is very inconvenient, she has not presented the Tribunal with evidence that would support exceptional hardship, her grounds for Appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act. The burden to provide evidence to support an Appeal under the Act is that of the Applicant.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: SEPTEMBER 30, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: OCTOBER 4, 2002
Toronto
(By Teleconference)

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 30, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Kevin Frenette (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1994, PONTIAC SUNBIRD SLE, plate # 532 XEN (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 13, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 30, 2002 and proceeded as electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Vehicle was leased to Maureen and Daniel Murray. They lent car to son John Murray. He had not told them he had lost his licence. I 'm including the Ownership, the Insurance slip and a copy of Lease Agreement. Obviously, I would not have given permission to John Murray to drive vehicle or had knowledge of him driving the car. This happened to no fault of my own or the Murray's.

The lease between the Applicant and Daniel and Maureen Murray was for a period of not less than one year at a payment of $1 per month. Details as to precise covenants were not offered nor was any figure supplied as to the deposit made in consideration of this lease. Detail of the taxes paid were not offered in evidence by the Applicant.

While a presumption was presumed that no unlicensed driver would operate the car no covenant was declared within the agreement by the Applicant.

The Applicant testified that this lease agreement was motivated by his desire to remove the car from his access so that he would not be tempted to drive it as his licence is under suspension until 2004.

No protection to the Applicant for possible exposure to an unlicensed person driving the leased vehicle was offered in evidence.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as vehicle owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by John Murray;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs. alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until June 13, 2003.

After a review of the Applicant's submission and testimony the Respondent outlined the requirements under the Act subsection 50.2(3)(c) that must be in evidence in order to support the Applicant's appeal. The conclusion of the Respondent was that no such evidence was offered by the Applicant and that his appeal should be denied.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Neither the owner, the Applicant Kevin Frenette nor the lessee Daniel Murray offered any supporting evidence to meet the required requisites of the Act subsection 50.2(3)(c). The lessee's son John Murray the driver in this case had 5 previous driving convictions and was under suspension until June 13 2003. The driving record of Daniel Murray's son would demand a verification of the validity John Murray's licence to drive.

No evidence was given by the Applicant, Kevin Frenette, to support any act of diligence on his part in spite of his own experience in licence suspension.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR

TRIBUNAL: STUART CORK,
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

ROBERT WAPPEL,
Solicitor for the Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: September 27, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 1, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 27, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Fujitec Canada Inc. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2000 Ford Focus, plate no. AFLH 819 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 13, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 27, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

The Respondent submitted a set of copies of documents bearing original certification seals, which were entered into evidence, and all documents entered into evidence were with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

OWNER'S POSITION

Fujitec Canada Inc. claims the return of its vehicle from impoundment.

Reason -

1. This vehicle contains elevator and escalator parts and equipment needed to install and maintain elevators.
2. The vehicle contains unique safety equipment to be used by elevator maintenance personnel. If Fujitec Canada, Inc. cannot have access to this equipment, then one field employee will not have the necessary safety equipment.
3. Fujitec Canada, Inc. exercises due diligence with all of its employees with vehicles to make sure that their licences are current and that they comply with Fujitec Canada, Inc.'s driving policy, which, among other things, prohibits drinking and driving. Fujitec Canada, Inc. was intentionally misled by the driver. The driver has been fired.

In his statement to the Tribunal, Mr. Wappel indicated that he was both general counsel for the Applicant, as well as a director of the company. He stated that the company is in the business of servicing elevators and related equipment, and relies upon several Ford Focus automobiles to transport pairs of service staff and their equipment to their customers' locations.

Mr. Wappel stated that it is the company policy to obtain an annual assessment from all of their employees. As part of this assessment, an un-sworn declaration is signed by each of the Applicant's employees attesting to, among other things, that the employee's driver's licence is in good standing. No further checks as to the validity of the employee's driver's licences are made by the Applicant. The most recent such declaration made by Mr. Robert Boyd, who was the driver of the vehicle at the time of the impoundment, was in November of 2001.

Mr. Wappel also stated that their Ford Focus vehicles have been modified by the car's supplier. These modifications allow their vehicles to transport the safety and service equipment required for their technicians for their calls.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as registered plate owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Robert S. Boyd;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until May 14, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, “due diligence” in Black’s Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Mr. Wappel stated before this Tribunal that it was the policy of the Applicant to have a declaration from each of their employees that their driver's licence was valid. However, sections 50.2(3)(c) of the Act is clear in that it states that in order to meet the grounds, the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the vehicle was not suspended. There was no evidence before this Tribunal that could be considered an attempt by the owner to determine the validity of Mr. Boyd's driver's licence. Mr. Wappel stated that it was the company's policy to rely solely upon the statement of the driver in their annual assessment, and not to pursue any further determinations as to the validity of their employees driver's licences. It was also not known as to whether or not the Applicant actually ever viewed the driver's licences of their employees.

The Tribunal finds that in this case, the action of the Applicant's obtaining a declaration from each of their employees as to the status of their driver's licences, does not amount to due diligence as required by the Act.

The Applicant has also appealed on the grounds of exceptional hardship, in accordance with section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment. The Tribunal is precluded from considering any other factors not arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

In order for the Applicant's claims to be considered under section 22(2)(a), (b), and (c), he must also have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered for an alternative vehicle. The Applicant has made no specific claims of exceptional hardship as described by section 22(1)(a) or (b).

The Tribunal may consider economic loss only if no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available (see subsection 22(3)(a) of that Regulation). In this case, the Applicant's elevator service company has not been shown to be suffering any significant financial or employment loss, as there was evidence before the Tribunal that this particular modified Ford Focus was not the only such vehicle operated and owned by the Applicant.

The Applicant has not presented the Tribunal with any evidence that would demonstrate that every reasonable alternative option has been considered and inquired into as required under section 22(4) of the Regulation. In fact, there was no evidence from the Applicant that he had pursued any alternatives to the impounded vehicle. The Tribunal was told that these Ford Focus vehicles had been specially modified to carry equipment, however there was no evidence as to why only these particular vehicles, and not some other form of transport, could carry their equipment.

The Applicant has apparently been able to maintain the daily activities of the business and the Tribunal was not presented with any evidence as to what, if any, losses were being suffered as a result of the impoundment of their vehicle. The Tribunal finds that no evidence was heard that would support a finding of exceptional hardship, nor a loss that was significant or lasting, as required by the Act.

Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to meet the onus under section 22(4) of the Regulation and is therefore precluded from considering the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship under section 22(2) of the Regulation.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by All-Lift Ltd. (the "Applicant") respecting an Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to sections 50.3 and 82.1 respectively of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario), R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1: Order to Impound and Suspend dated September 4th, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Exhibit #2: Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal September 16th, 2002, filed by the Applicant.

Exhibit #3: Respondent's Record Book

Exhibit #4: Applicant's Submissions, nine pages

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

There were no preliminary matters raised at this hearing.

FACTS:

Evidence for the Respondent:

The Registrar's witnesses at this hearing were MTO Transportation Enforcement Officer Dennis Singh, and MTO Transportation Enforcement Officer Richard McConnell.

Officer Dennis Singh testified that on the date of the impoundment he was stationed at the Halton-Oakville truck inspection station and that the impounded vehicle was selected for a random full level 1 CVSA inspection. As part of the CVSA inspection, the brakes on the vehicle were checked accordingly. The impounded vehicle was equipped with three axels, with a hydraulic braking system for the front axel, and the two rear axels (axels two and three) were equipped with air brakes. The air braking system for the two rear axes were equipped with clamp type 30 regular type brake chambers, which are the most common type of system in use.

Officer Singh testified that with the vehicles wheels blocked, he instructed the driver of the vehicle, Mr. Leslie Sharpe, to apply pressure to the brakes and hold until instructed to release. The brake system air pressure gauge in the cab was observed by Officer Singh to indicate that the pressure was at 98 psi, the proper level for the system's operation. With the brakes fully applied, and then released, Officer Singh measured the pushrod travel for each of the four air brake actuator chambers by marking the rod with a sharpened soapstone, and measuring the travel difference with a steel tape measure. Officer Singh further testified that his marks on the rod were made in such a way that there was no space between the end of the mark and the face of the chamber when the rod was in the retracted position, giving the best possible accuracy.

Officer Singh found that four of the six brakes on the vehicle had pushrod travel in excess of the 2 ¼" allowed by the regulations (Exhibit #3, page 4). Officer Singh determined that the number of brakes having a critical defect was in excess of the 50% as per Regulation 512/97 7.(2), and called another MTO Enforcement officer, Richard McConnell to the scene to verify his measurements. The driver was given a Notice and a ticket, and the Applicant was subsequently informed that the vehicle was to be impounded. The Applicant then dispatched a mechanic to the scene to make the necessary repairs to the vehicle. Officer Singh stated that upon completing the repairs to the vehicle, the mechanic told him that "yes, the brakes were bad."

Officer Richard McConnell testified that he verified Officer Singh's original measurements of the air brake's pushrod travel with his own measurements. He confirmed that the marks on the pushrods were satisfactory, and the air pressure in the braking system was adequate for the test. Officer McConnell further testified that the one brake pushrod travel measured at 2 ¼" (Exhibit #3 page 4) for the left brake on the second axle, was in fact "a hair over" and a "very solid" 2 ¼" measure.

Evidence for the Applicant:

Mr. Alan Bennett, Owner of the company whose vehicle was impounded, challenged the use of a metal tape measure and sharpened soapstones to measure the pushrod travel. He argued that this case turned on whether the single brake pushrod measured at 2 ¼" of travel, could have possibly been inaccurately measured by the slightest amount either way, thereby making precision very critical to whether there vehicle should have been impounded.

Mr. Burnett referred to several work orders (Exhibit #4 page 4) listing the various repairs that had been done to the impounded vehicle over the previous year. He stated that his company takes the approach of "when in doubt, have it serviced", though there was no formalized policy as to what time periods were required before certain repairs, such as brake adjustments, were done on the vehicle. These matters were the responsibility of the company service manager, who determines when certain tasks need to be performed.

Mr. Lesley Sharpe, the driver of the vehicle at the time of the impoundment, stated that his visual pre-trip inspection revealed no major defects the day of the impoundment. He also stated that if any defects were to be found, he would make a request to the shop of the service manager, who would not hesitate to correct them. He also indicated that he was not aware that air brakes had to be measured and recorded daily, and that he was not qualified to measure and adjust air brake systems.

ISSUES:

Should the order of the Registrar to impound and suspend the Applicant's commercial motor vehicle or trailer be confirmed or set aside?

LAW:

Section 50.3 of the Highway Traffic Act states as follows:

- (1) The owner of a commercial motor vehicle or trailer that is subject to an order to impound and suspend under section 82.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

Grounds for appeal:

- (3) The only ground on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound and suspend are:
 - (a) that the commercial motor vehicle or trailer that is subject to the order was stolen at the time the order was made;
or
 - (b) that the commercial motor vehicle or trailer had no critical defects at the time of the inspection under section 82.1

Powers of Tribunal:

- (5) The Tribunal may confirm or set aside the order to impound and suspend.

Section 82.1(37) provides that:

- (37) The Lieutenant Governor in Counsel may make regulations,
 - (a) prescribing what constitutes a critical defect;

Regulation 512/97 of the Highway Traffic Act states:

PART II CRITICAL DEFECTS

INTERPRETATION

- 5.(1) In this Part,

“broken”, when used to refer to a vehicle component, means that the component or any of its sub-components is split into more than one part;

“cracked”, when used to refer to a vehicle component, means that the component is not broken but has a split that penetrates completely through the component or any of its sub-components;

“steering axle” means any axle of a commercial motor vehicle that is controlled by the driver to provide direction to the motor vehicle.

- (2) For the purposes of an inspection for critical defects under section 82.1 of the Act,
- (a) a liftable axle, being an axle that is designed to be adjusted vertically and to lift its tires from contact with the surface of the highway when in a raised position, shall be considered part of a vehicle;
 - (b) a conversion unit shall be considered part of the vehicle that it converts; and
 - (c) a trailer converter dolly, if carrying a trailer, shall be considered part of that trailer.

BRAKES

6. In sections 7 and 8, “rotor” includes a disc.

AIR BRAKES

- 7.(1) In this section, the measurement of travel of a pushrod out of a service brake chamber shall be taken with the vehicle engine turned off, the air system pressure between 90 and 100 psi (620 and 690 kPa), the park brakes released and the service brake actuator fully applied.
- (2) A commercial motor vehicle or trailer, if the trailer is required by subsection 64 (5) of the Act to have brakes, equipped with an air brake system other than an air-over-hydraulic brake system has a critical defect for the purposes of section 82.1 of the Act if one or more of the following defects is present on more than 50 percent of the wheel brakes of the vehicle:
- 1. A drum or rotor is cracked, broken or missing.

2. A chamber housing, chamber support, chamber pushrod, slack adjuster, camshaft, or camshaft support bracket is broken or missing.
3. A shoe, shoe lining, shoe block, pad, pad lining or pad block is missing.
4. The pushrod travel out of the service brake chamber is 1/4 inch (6.3 mm) or more beyond the measurement listed in Column 2 of Schedule 1 for the type of chamber listed in Column 1 of Schedule 1 if the brake is cam or disc type.

HYDRAULIC BRAKES

- 8.(1) A commercial motor vehicle or trailer, if the trailer is required by subsection 64(5) of the Act to have brakes, equipped with hydraulic or air-over-hydraulic brakes has a critical defect for the purposes of section 82.1 of the Act if two or more of the following defects are present on the vehicle:
 1. Brake fluid can be seen coming out of any location in the system upon full brake application with the vehicle engine turned on or the depth of hydraulic brake fluid in any reservoir of the master cylinder is less than 1/4 inch (6.3 mm) at its deepest point.
 2. A brake drum or rotor is cracked, broken or missing.
 3. The actuator, linkages or cables of the parking brake system are broken or missing or any cables are seized such that there is no movement of the cables to both rear wheel brakes when the brake actuator is applied.
- (2) If a commercial motor vehicle or trailer has two or more defects of the type described in paragraph 2 of subsection (1), the two or more defects under that paragraph constitute a critical defect for the purpose of section 82.1 of the Act.

STEERING

9. A commercial motor vehicle has a critical defect for the purposes of section 82.1 of the Act if either of the following defects is present:
 1. With the wheels of the steering axle on the ground in the straight ahead position and the engine turned on, the circumference of the steering wheel moves in excess of the measurements contained in Column 2 for the applicable diameter shown in Column 1 of Schedule 2, with no accompanying movement of the left front wheel.
 2. With the vehicle having been stopped with the wheels of the steering axle on the ground in the straight ahead position, with hand force alone applied, a steering linkage ball and socket joint relating to the steering axle moves other than rotationally by more than 1/4 inch (6.3 mm).

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal heard arguments for the Applicant that the single brake pushrod travel measurement of 2 1/4" on the vehicle was a determining factor in this impoundment. The Applicant stated that the measurement of this one pushrod was critical to whether there should have been an impoundment, and that the absolute precision required to make such a determination, was not possible with the tools and methods used by the MTO officers to measure the brakes. However, the undisputed testimony of the officers, was that the pushrod that was found to be at 2 1/4" of travel, and was clearly and with out any doubt at that measure, or slightly more. This was confirmed by the two officers, with each taking independent measurements for themselves. In fact, this would seem to have been confirmed by the comments of the mechanic who repaired the vehicle. Furthermore, the Tribunal notes that for the type of air brake components used on the vehicle, and pushrod travel over 2" would be considered in violation of Regulation 587 5.(1).

The testimony of the witnesses for the Respondent that the vehicle had 50% or more of it's brakes out of adjustment, was not challenged in any significant way by the Applicant. As a result of the veracity of the Officer's testimony, the Tribunal finds that the vehicle did in fact have sufficient critical defects to it's air braking system at the time of the impoundment, as per Regulation 512/97 7(2)(4).

DECISION:

Upon the application by All Lift Ltd. (the "Applicant") to appeal the order to impound and suspend dated September 4th, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to impound and suspend a commercial motor vehicle or trailer pursuant to Section 50.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL that the Order of the Registrar to impound and suspend the commercial motor vehicle or trailer of the Applicant be confirmed.

DATE OF HEARING: October 11, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 17, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 11, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Manu Bai Chauhan (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2000 Honda CRV, plate AJFZ504 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 11, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 11, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows:

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

"My father-in-law, Madan L. Chauhan aged 65 yrs is suffering from kidney disorder and attends Peel Memorial hospital for Dialysis treatment at least 3 times a week and whenever required. He uses Honda CRV AJFZ504 for travelling to and from the hospital because of convenience in getting in and out, higher seat and comfort of seating.

My work shift is 3.00 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. at Give & Go Prepared foods. I drop off and pick-up my husband Praveen K. Chauhan from his work (Canadian Tire distribution centre) when he is working the same shift. On Sep 13, 2002, as I was working later than my usual shift, I asked my husband to keep the vehicle and pick me up from work.

I request the board members to please release the car to me in light of the above circumstances as it is very difficult for my father-in-law to travel given the nature of his illness.

Manu Bai Chuhan"

The following is a summary of the Applicant's sworn testimony. The Applicant's brother-in-law was present with her, for translating purposes, but did not give testimony.

The Applicant is married and a mother of 2 daughters aged 6 and 9 years of age. She is employed full time with Give & Go Prepared Foods from 3 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. Her husband is employed at Canadian Tire Distribution Centre whose shift alternates each week (i.e., 1 week mornings, 1 week afternoons). The Applicant's husband is the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded.

The Applicant's mother-in-law and father-in-law also reside with her and her family. The Applicant's mother-in-law is currently employed and also provides child care to her grandchildren while the Applicant is at work.

The Applicant's father-in-law became quite ill in April 2002 and requires kidney dialysis for renal failure 3 times per week (Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) from 4:45 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. at Peel Memorial Hospital. The Applicant's father-in-law owns and operates a 1998 Acura.

In her testimony, the Applicant's father-in-law drives her to and from work most days as he finds her vehicle more comfortable especially after dialysis treatments.

In the Applicant's Owner's Position (Exhibit 2), she wrote that "I asked my husband to keep the vehicle and pick me up from work". In her own admission, she was aware that her husband was a suspended driver and was "never allowed to drive the cars".

With respect to the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, the Applicant was intending to work some overtime (until 1:30 a.m.), when a co-worker advised her, around midnight, that her husband was outside her place of employment with the police. Her husband advised her that he had come to pick her up and that the police had pulled him over for speeding. She was aware that her father-in-law had gone for dialysis treatment earlier that evening in which he was quite ill afterwards.

The Applicant advised the Tribunal that the Acura was experiencing engine problems that day and was not working. No service/repair receipts were provided to the Tribunal.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 and 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner Manu Bai Chauhan;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Praveen K. Chauhan;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 13, 2005.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1

may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section

55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact “exceptional hardship” will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal’s consideration of subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

- (a) “no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available”. The Applicant testified that: (i) since the impoundment, her friend, on occasion, has driven her home from work; (ii) she has taken public transportation as well as a taxi. She also, for 1 week, rented a vehicle. The Applicant’s father-in-law, who resides with the Applicant, owns a 1998 Acura.
- (b) “the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting” The Applicant testified that (i); she has not missed any days of work or lost any wages due to her vehicle’s impoundment; (ii) she nor her family have missed any doctor’s appointments; (iii) the Applicant’s friend has been driving her home from work on occasion; (iii) the Applicant has the option of public transit, a taxi as well as a rental vehicle, all of which have been utilized during this impoundment period; and (iv) the Applicant’s residence is 911 accessible and the hospital is approximately 10 minutes from home in the event of an emergency.
- (c) “the impact of loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle” The Applicant testified that before her vehicle was impounded, she would drop off her children at school each day and pick them up for lunch. Since the impoundment, her children have been walking to and from school. The Applicant’s father-in-law used the Applicant’s vehicle “for travelling to and from the hospital because of convenience in getting in and out, higher seat and comfort of seating” even though he owns and operates a 1998 Acura. Since the impoundment, the Applicant’s brother-in-law, who lives approximately 4 kilometres from the Applicant, drives her father-in-law to and from the hospital.

None of the claims presented by the Applicant have been substantiated with sufficient evidence. None of the losses presented in the Applicant’s submissions have been proven and/or have met the criteria required under the Regulation.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will only be inconvenient and financially significant, but not immediate and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: October 17, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 22, 2002 Written Hearing

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 17, 2002, at Fort Frances, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Kavita Devi Bhagoo (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	Mazda UML, plate AMXL 376 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	September 19, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 17, 2002, and proceeded as a written hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

The Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal makes the following points:

1. It is extremely difficult to go about her normal duties without her car.
2. She drives her brother to work. His work is far away, and he does not know his way around.
3. She has no close relatives here.
4. She herself finds it difficult to go to work and to do groceries.
5. Matters are difficult for her, financially.
6. She does not know whether she can afford to pay the impound fee if the vehicle remains impounded.
7. She acknowledges that it was wrong to allow the suspended driver, Dennis Persaud Roopnarine, to drive the Applicant's vehicle, knowing that his driver's licence had been suspended.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Dennis Peraud Roopnarine.;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of dangerous driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until August 31, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;

- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity.
2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Compare the contents of the Applicant's letter, outlined earlier, to the evidentiary requirements of section 50.2(3) of the Act and section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98.

Section 50.2(3) prescribes, as one of the specific grounds of appeal, that the Order for impoundment will result in exceptional hardship. The words "exceptional" and "hardship" have already been defined earlier in these Reasons.

Further, section 22(1) of the above Regulation provides that, in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from the Order to impound, the Tribunal must consider whether no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

On this latter point, the above letter of the Applicant gives no indication whether there is any such alternative. Although the Applicant states that she has no close relatives, she leaves unanswered the question as to whether there is any public transportation available to her or whether persons other than relatives can provide any assistance.

Were an alternative available, that would be the end of the matter, and the Applicant's appeal would be dismissed; however, even if this Tribunal were to conclude that there was no alternative available, there are still other matters that must be present before this Tribunal could allow this Appeal to succeed, as will be outlined later in these Reasons.

The Respondent, in its material, provides a copy of Routes and Schedules of the Grand River Transit (GRT) system. One of the Routes is even named "Route 58 - Alison". This is significant because "Alison" is the name of the street on which the Applicant lives. By filing this information, the Respondent seems to be arguing that the Applicant does, in fact, have alternative transportation to the impounded vehicle. However, with nothing more than this filed as evidence, this argument is still only speculative, so that this Tribunal still cannot draw any firm conclusion as to whether the GRT is alternative transportation for this Applicant.

However, having said this, even if the GRT were not considered to be alternative transportation, thereby supporting the Applicant's argument of exceptional hardship, the Applicant still has to provide further information, as required by statute and, by virtue of the powers granted in the enabling statute, as required by Regulation.

In the absence of alternative transportation, the Applicant must demonstrate, according to section 22(1) of the above Regulation, that the impoundment will result in either a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle, or a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used. The letter of the Applicant neither reveals nor hints at anything like this.

Furthermore, in the absence of alternative transportation, section 22(1) requires the Applicant to demonstrate financial or economic loss to any person; or, loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or, loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person. The letter of the Applicant, again, reveals no evidence of such matters. The letter does state that she finds it difficult to go to work, but this is far different from saying that she will lose her employment, as the section requires.

Furthermore, in order to show that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available, under section 22(1) or section 22(3)(a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded vehicle or a replacement during the impound period. These are matters that are prescribed to this Tribunal to consider. As much as this Tribunal may sympathize with the Applicant's circumstances, this Tribunal has no discretion to ignore or to vary the prescribed matters. In light of that, the Applicant's letter, again, discloses none of the above information.

The Applicant has the onus, on a balance of probabilities, to prove its case. For the reasons given above, this Tribunal concludes that the Applicant in this case has not done so.

Therefore, this Appeal must be dismissed.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 15, 2002, at North Bay, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Robin Garlick (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	1986, FORD MLX, plate # AMHZ 498 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	September 24, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 15, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

Mr. Ron Garlick of Garlick Consulting Services asked that a copy of Robin Garlick’s employment termination certificate be included as an exhibit for evidence purposes.

The Tribunal made its ruling on the preliminary issue and accepted the certificate in evidence.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

First, I was not aware of an Impound Program. I am a licenced G2 driver. I had a few drinks. I did not wish to jeopardize my licence.

As a result of this Impoundment I was terminated from my position at Tim Horton's North Bay as I could not obtain a ride. My shift was 6:30 a.m. – 3:00 p.m. I attempted to have my shift changed to 8:00 – 5:00 to locate a ride, but was terminated.

I live in Bonfield (40 km. East of North Bay). There [sic] no buses or other public transportation to North Bay. Now I can't even find another job and even if I did I wouldn't be able to get there. With no income, I can no longer afford housing.

I feel I am being unjustly punished for something I didn't do. I was simply trying to abide by the law by not driving and now I am on the verge of loosing everything I have worked so hard for.

P.S. I cannot pay the impound fee with no job either and it is my understanding to keep my licence. This must be paid.

The Applicant's representative, Mr. Ron Garlick of Garlick Consulting Services, first called Mr. Jean Dumont as a witness. Mr Dumont testified that at the time of the incident, resulting in the impoundment of the car, he was the registered owner of the vehicle, but that the car was actually purchased by Robin Garlick. Mr Dumont testified that he insured the vehicle in his name to reduce the insurance premium as a favour to Robin.

Mr. Garlick then called on Robin Garlick to give her testimony. She stated that she and her boyfriend (Jason Clarke) purchased the car and had spent considerable time and money fixing up so it could be used as transportation for her to and from work. She further stated that for several days before the incident the car was not working properly due to certain fuel pump problems. These problems caused her to miss work on Sept. 11, 12, and Friday September 13th, the day of the incident. When she went to work on the following Monday, her employer raised the issue of her not coming to work and dismissed her. By her own admission, her dismissal from her job was not directly related the impoundment of her vehicle but rather because she had missed work 3 days in a row.

The applicant went on to testify that due to her living some 40 KM outside the city she needed her car to secure another job, that there was no public transportation available, that a taxi service existed but was far too expensive for her to use. She further stated that she was aware of a Greyhound bus service but was unsure of its costs or its timetable.

Responding to questions, Ms. Garlick stated that she was aware of her boyfriend's driving record and that he was not permitted to drive but on the night in question she had been drinking and was in her words, "too drunk to drive," and that her boyfriend had also been drinking but insisted that he could drive and did so resulting in the impoundment of the vehicle.

In summation, Ron Garlick, pointed out that the applicant was suffering exceptional hardship because not having her car was an obstacle to her securing a new job and not having an income would make it very difficult to pay the costs of the impoundment, finish the repairs to the car and insure it once the impoundment period was over.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Jason Clarke;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving while Disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 14, 2005.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of exceptional hardship, in accordance with section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act. Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment.

The Tribunal is precluded from considering other factors not arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself. This includes the unfortunate fact that the Applicant lost her job as a result of not showing up for work for several prior to the impoundment of her vehicle, as well as any fees associated with the impoundment and subsequent release of the vehicle.

In order for the Applicant's claims to be considered under section 22(2) (A), (B), and (C), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulation provides that the Applicant demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered for an alternative to the vehicle. The Applicant has made no specific claims of exceptional hardship as described by section 22 (1)(a) or (b).

The Applicant's oral testimony that she investigated alternatives lacked sufficient detail especially regarding possible bus line services. The Tribunal finds her testimony insufficient in meeting the onus of proof required by section 22(4) of the Regulation.

Though inconvenienced, the Applicant has not suffered any loss of employment as a result of the impoundment. Furthermore, the Applicant has not presented the Tribunal with sufficient evidence that would indicate that this loss of the vehicle would be immediate significant and lasting as per section 22(3)(b) of the Regulations.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to meet the onus under the section 22(3) and 22(4) of the Regulation, and is therefore precluded from considering the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship under section 22(2) of the Regulation.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 23, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on October 25, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated September 05, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on September 27, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by Cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the hearing, the Tribunal received notification that the Applicant has been delayed. As is the common practice of the Tribunal a 30-minute grace period was extended.

The Respondent's Representative, Mr. Kyle Biel informed the Tribunal that he had been advised that the Applicant had not received disclosure of documents tendered by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles. Mr. Biel showed the Tribunal a Purolator Courier proof of delivery report indicating that on October 17th, documents were sent to the Applicant's address as provided on the Applicant's driving record: 873 Jane Street, Box 98585 in Toronto. The package was signed for by "...Wendy at Reception..." on October 18th, at 12:48. Mr. Biel maintains that although the address is a post office box at the Jane Plaza Pharmacy, the duty of the Registrar to make disclosure available to the Applicant was fulfilled. The onus is on the Applicant to pick up his mail.

The Applicant confirmed that he had not picked up his mail, a copy of the documents was given to the Applicant and a recess was afforded to the Applicant to review the Registrar's submissions.

The Applicant raised concerns regarding the Constitutionality of an immediate licence suspension without due process. The Applicant asked the Tribunal for permission to verbally make a motion challenging the Constitution.

The Applicant pointed out that although a motion was not filed within the prescribed fifteen days, the intent to argue the issue of the Constitution was noted in the letter addressed to the Tribunal dated October 5th.

The Respondent's Representative noted that the Registrar had not received a copy of the Applicant's October 5th letter. Mr. Biel substantiated his objection to a motion on a Constitutional issue, by referring to Section 8 of the Rules of Practice for the Licence Appeal Tribunal. Mr. Biel emphasized that not only had the Attorney General of Ontario, and the Attorney General of Canada not been notified, but the Ministry of Transportation did not receive basic notice as well.

In rebuttal the Applicant suggested that an adjournment might be in order, to allow him to prepare.

The Respondent's Representative vehemently objected to an adjournment contending that the Applicant had ample time to file a motion. Further, the Applicant is being ambivalent, in saying that he wanted no delays in the proceedings and yet asking for an adjournment.

The Tribunal considered Section 8.1 (1) of the Rules of Practice, which prescribes:

"notice shall be served on the other parties, the Tribunal, the Attorney General of Ontario, and the Attorney General of Canada as soon as the circumstances requiring notice become known and, in any event, at least 15 days before the question is to be argued before the Tribunal..."

As the Applicant himself established, he considered raising the Constitutional issue on or about October 5th, 2002. Had the Applicant acted at the time, the Applicant could have filed his motion on time. The Applicant's request to file a motion to challenge the Constitution was dismissed.

With respect to the request for an adjournment, having dismissed the Constitutional challenge, and acknowledging the Applicant's comments in his letter of October 5th, 2002, wherein he states that he "...simply cannot afford to consent to any delay or extension in this matter..." the Tribunal ruled the hearing proceed.

The Applicant raised the issue of the driving record being introduced as evidence. The Tribunal ruled the abstract inadmissible. As previously stated by this Tribunal, at issue is not the Applicant's previous record, but the possibility of an existing medical condition, which may have prevented the Applicant from failing or complying with the demand for a breath sample. The Applicant's Driver's Record is thus irrelevant to the proceedings.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated August 27, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received September 27, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received October 18, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "27-08-02" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of Notice of Appeal was prepared on September 9, 2002 by Physician #1, the Applicant's physician for 23 years and 3 months.

Physician #1, states "Patient seen on 28/8/02 with 2 weeks history of itchy, throat, swollen glands/tonsils, fever, getting worse, with chest pain on inspiration. He was diagnosed with acute pharyngo-tonsillitis and acute bronchitis, pleurisy. Throat swab revealed Hemolytic Streptococcus, chest X-ray was normal ...seen again on 12/09/02..."

Attached to the Notice of Appeal is a Gamma-Dynacare Laboratories microbiology results form showing that a throat swab taken on 2002/08/28 indicates "Haemolytic Streptococci group A".

At the hearing the Applicant testified both in examination in chief and in cross examination, that on the evening in question he had not been drinking, that he was unable to take a long enough breath to provide an adequate sample due to the fact that he was experiencing breathing difficulties and chest pains at the time.

The Applicant did not fully recollect whether he told the officer about the sore throat or the chest pains, but he was adamant that he told her about his breathing difficulties. The Applicant had been feeling ill for a couple of weeks prior to the demand for a breath sample, yet at the time he was unaware of the severity of his condition. It was not until he visited his physician the following day that the Applicant was told he needed medication.

The Applicant called Witness #1 as a witness. Witness #1 testified that she had spent "11 1/2 hours" with the Applicant prior to his being stopped and that during that time she did not see him consume alcohol.

Further Witness #1 attested that the Applicant had complained to her about having a sore throat, and that she advised him to see a physician.

At the time the Applicant was demanded a breath sample, Witness #1 was sitting on a bench across the street from where the Applicant was stopped, and was able to see that he made several attempts to blow into a mouthpiece.

In closing, the Applicant stressed that he did not refuse to provide a breath sample but that he was unable to do so due a medical condition. The Applicant re-iterated his previous remarks that he was unaware of his condition until he visited his physician, at which time he was told that he had a highly contagious condition.

At the time of the breathalyzer test session the Applicant was not feeling well, and did ask the staff sergeant at the police station, whom he called on his cell phone, to have another type of test administered. The Applicant complained that his request was ignored.

The Applicant dismissed Physician #2's letter as too general and not applying to him or his case.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed October 1, 2002
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed October 2, 2002.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Search, sealed October 8, 2002.
4. Medical Report from Physician #2, MB,Ch,FRCP(UK),FRCP (C) FCCP dated October 4, 2002

Physician #2, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of Program in Respiratory Rehabilitation - University of Toronto, states that he is a "...consultant respirologist in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional Program in Rehabilitation, ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition..."

After reviewing the Applicant's medical report from Physician #1 and the microbiology report, Physician #2 concluded: "...the medical evidence gives absolutely no further information as to the possibility of the patient having obstructive lung disease..."

The Respondent called Constable #1, a member of the Toronto Police Services as a witness. Constable #1 testified that she has been a police officer for approximately three years.

Constable #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total of four opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. According to Constable #1 the first sample was "...not done properly..." as the Applicant was not emitting enough air into the machine. The Applicant told Constable #1 that he was experiencing breathing difficulties but did not elaborate.

After the second unsuccessful attempt by the Applicant to provide a breath sample, Constable #1 formulated the opinion that the Applicant was simply "...feigning blowing..."

The third time the Applicant attempted to blow into the instrument, the machine "...immediately..." registered an E/O message, indicating that no air or very little air had gone into the device.

After cautioning the Applicant, Constable #1 allowed him one last attempt, which also proved to be inadequate.

During the breathalyzer test process, Constable #1 described the Applicant as uncooperative, evasive in replying to the simplest of questions, in fact "...belligerent...", but at no time did she notice the Applicant exhibiting any signs of physical discomfort. No medical assistance was requested by the Applicant.

Under questioning by the Applicant Constable #1 confirmed that there are options that can be exercised in the event an Applicant is physically hurt and not being able to provide a breath sample. Nonetheless, Constable #1 felt that Applicant's circumstances did not warrant such measures.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative cited the Applicant's actions as evidence of the Applicant's intent to not provide a breath sample. At the time of the breathalyzer test session, the Applicant was uncooperative and feigned blowing.

Although, suffering from a cold for a couple of weeks, the Applicant had not visited his physician prior to the incident. The Applicant continued to work, and go out until late at night which according to the Respondent's Representative is a clear indication that the Applicant's state of health was not that serious.

Mr. Biel continued his argument by referring to Constable #1's evidence that there was no coughing, or wincing or any other signs of medical distress, on the part of the Applicant.

As far Physician #1's report is concerned, it lists simply a variety of symptoms, but does not relate the symptoms to the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. Further the fact that the X ray was normal, indicates that there were no respiratory difficulties.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the issue alluded to by the Applicant regarding blood samples. While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers.

According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

At issue is not whether the Applicant was impaired, had been drinking, or expressed a vocal refusal to provide a breath sample. The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant had a medical condition that at the time could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Tribunal heard evidence that the Applicant was evasive, uncooperative, and "...belligerent..." The Respondent's Representative contends this type of behaviour, indicates that the Applicant had no intention to comply with the demand for a breath sample. Since the Applicant did not go to the doctor prior to the incident, and continued to work and party, Mr. Biel categorized the Applicant's condition as the "...common cold...", which does not preclude and individual from providing an adequate breath sample.

The Tribunal may or not may agree with the Respondent's Representative's arguments. Certainly, the Tribunal does not condone the Applicant's conduct, but the Tribunal cannot make a decision based on speculation and assumption. The Tribunal must abide by the medical evidence presented. Physician #2 is reluctant to proffer an opinion based on Physician #1's report. Yet, the Tribunal must accept Physician #1's diagnosis as incontrovertible evidence, which cannot be ignored. Physician #1, who examined the Applicant the day after the incident, diagnosed the Applicant as suffering from: "...pharyngo-tonsillitis and acute bronchitis / pleurisy...". It is unlikely that a sore throat caused by streptococci bacilli would interfere with breathing, however "...acute bronchitis / pleurisy..." could definitely induce breathing difficulties.

Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated August 27, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held, by way of an electronic (teleconference), on October 18, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Gordon E. Bertrand (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1998, DODG, plate # 9395KE (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 30, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 18, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

The Respondent filed certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents, previously submitted as part of the Respondent's evidence.

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I, Gordon Bertrand the owner of said vehicle had lent my truck to my daughter Stephanie Bertrand to drive and because she was not feeling well she let Jeffrey Campbell drive unknown to me the owner, she had asked Jeff if he had a license and he told her that he did which was a false statement and completely out of my control. I never gave my permission for anyone other than her to drive.

At the hearing the Applicant re-iterated the statements made in the Notice of Appeal.

The impounded vehicle was in the care and possession of the Applicant's daughter, for her sole use. The Applicant's daughter was not authorized to allow anyone else to drive the vehicle except in extenuating circumstances.

At the time of the impoundment the Applicant's daughter asked Mr. Campbell to drive, as she was not feeling well.

In cross-examination, the Applicant admitted that he did not physically had an opportunity to ask for or look at the suspended driver's licence as he was not present when his daughter allowed Mr. Campbell to drive the vehicle. The Applicant testified that he believes his daughter asked the driver if he had a licence, and he responded affirmatively.

In closing, the Applicant emphasized that it would have been impossible for him to question Mr. Campbell as he was not present at the time.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Jeffrey Grant Campbell.
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle.
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of blood/alcohol content in excess of .08, ccc under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until April 22, 2003

The Respondent offered no viva voce evidence at the hearing choosing to stand on the information provided.

In his closing remarks, Mr. Biel, the Respondent's Representative, contended that the Applicant failed to prove her grounds of due diligence in respect to Mr. Campbell's driver's licence. Mr. Biel quoted section 50.2 of the Act which clearly states that the "owner" of the vehicle must exercise "due diligence".

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation...

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the due diligence ground of appeal as provided in subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

The Tribunal agrees with the Applicant that the circumstances were totally beyond his control, nonetheless, Section 50.2 (3) (c) is clear in the requirement:

“that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s license of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension.”

The word “owner” as used in the abovementioned section, is further defined in section 55.1 of the Highway Traffic Act:

“owner” means the person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle...”

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal has no alternative but to find that the Applicant did not satisfy the criteria of Section 50.2 (3) (c).

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant’s motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 17, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Valerie Ann Philpotts (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1990 Buick Century, plate AFWW 049 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 1, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 17, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

My husband took car without my permission and I need vehicle for my own use. Have family responsibilities that require me to have my vehicle such as helping my daughter who is due to have another child Oct 15 and I was going to drive to Kingston to assist her. Due to financial circumstances I cannot afford alternative transportation. My husband will no longer have access to the vehicle as I will be taking a new residence. I feel I am being unfairly penalized because of my husband's actions and hope you will take my consideration seriously.

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a 64 year old woman who has been married to George Philpotts, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, for the past 41 years. From March, 2000 to February 1, 2002, the couple had been separated. In her testimony, the Applicant advised the Tribunal that Mr. Philpotts was an alcoholic and was possibly mentally unstable. She took him back to help and support him as he promised to get into an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Applicant attended this teleconference hearing from Kingston where she arrived 3 days prior to this teleconference because one of her two daughters was giving birth to her 7th grandchild. That grandchild was born the day after the Applicant arrived in Kingston.

In her testimony, the Applicant was aware of her husband's suspension and indicated that he tried to find alternative arrangements to see his lawyer in Val Caron and Kingston, but was unsuccessful. They argued continually 1 week prior to the impoundment. He would "hassle" and pressured her wherein "I had no choice but to give him my car". Mr. Philpotts was of the view that "the law was for other people".

With respect to the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, apparently Mr. Philpotts was en route to Val Caron when he realized he was about to run out of gas. He pulled over near a Legion Hall wherein he entered and consumed 4 beers. Mr. Philpotts forgot to put fuel in the vehicle and proceeded to continue driving and got as far as Espanola where the car ran out of gas. He called for a tow truck. The tow truck driver realized Mr. Philpotts was impaired and called the police. Mr. Philpotts was arrested and charged with "impaired driving".

Since his incarceration, and with the help of his parole officer, he was able to see someone at a psychiatric facility. There is currently a warrant out for his arrest as he did not appear in court for a scheduled hearing on October 7th. He also has another court date in mid-November in Espanola regarding this impoundment.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 and 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by George Henry Philpotts;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 20, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Applicant has resided in Elliot Lake for the past 6 years as it is an inexpensive area for retirees. She and Mr. Philpotts owned a home which was sold approximately 2 years ago. Once she paid off her mortgage and all her debts, there was no money left. She is currently renting a townhouse. She is on a fixed income consisting of a Canada Pension and supplement totaling $564 per month and currently has $250 in her bank account.

She has no relatives in Elliot Lake. She has one daughter in Kitchener who is single and is currently going through some difficulties and is not in a position to help financially with regard to the impoundment cost. The Applicant's other daughter and family resides in Kingston. This daughter just gave birth to her 7th child.

The Applicant's daughter and son-in-law who live in Kingston paid half of her fare ($125) to Kingston from Elliot Lake. The day the Applicant set out for Kingston, she took public transportation to Kitchener. The daughter, who lives in Kitchener, picked her up and drove her to Barrie. The Applicant then proceeded by way of bus from Barrie to Toronto where she transferred and continued onto Kingston.

Elliot Lake is 911 accessible and the nearest hospital is a 20-25 minute walk away. She has not had and therefore did not miss any doctor's appointments. She has been able to walk to her counseling sessions which are about 2 miles away. Public transit runs once an hour from 8:10 a.m. weekdays (9:10 a.m. on Saturdays) until 6 p.m. each night. There are no buses on Sunday.

In her testimony, the Applicant used her vehicle to purchase groceries, attend church on Sundays and attend a euchre game twice a week.

The Applicant only has one friend in Elliot Lake who works all day, but does not own a vehicle. Her aged mother and siblings reside all over the Province of Ontario. She cannot bring herself to ask them for financial assistance as there is friction with her husband.

The Tribunal is very sympathetic to the Applicant's plight, unfortunately her financial difficulties pre-existed the impoundment. Her health is not in jeopardy and she was able, by way of public transportation, to travel to Kingston with the assistance of her children.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will only be inconvenient and financially significant, but not immediate and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 10, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Elaine L. Steele (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1998 GMC Sierra, plate 906 9KZ (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	September 25, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 10, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic (teleconference) hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

By Order of the Tribunal released on October 9th, 2002, the Hearing originally listed to be held in London, on October 18th, 2002, was re-scheduled on consent, as a teleconference to be heard on October 10th, 2002.

The Respondent filed certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents, previously submitted as part of the Respondent's evidence, save and except for the Vehicle Record. Apparently the vehicle was registered during the strike, and due to the backlog, no certified copies are as yet available.

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Elaine Louise Steele - Notice of Appeal - Licence Appeal Tribunal
SCHEDULE 'A'

GROUND OF APPEAL: Licence Appeal Tribunal

1. s. 50.2(c) HTA: Due Diligence: I met Mr. Cutajar through mutual friends in May or June 2002. In late August 2002, approximately two or three weeks before I lent Mr. Cutajar my truck in the incident that resulted in it being impounded, he showed me his Driver's Licence, which I had a chance to examine carefully because we were comparing photo I.D.'s on our respective licences. At that time, I noticed that his licence had an expiry date in 2003, and it appeared to me to be valid in every respect. Mr. Cutajar never mentioned his driving conviction to me or told me that his licence was suspended. In fact, since I have known him, I have rarely seen him take even one drink, so I had no reason to suspect he had ever been convicted of impaired driving. Furthermore, it is my understanding that when a person's licence is suspended, they must immediately surrender it to the Court or to the Police. Thus the fact that Mr. Cutajar had his Driver's Licence in his wallet, and readily offered it for inspection, gave me no reason to interrogate him further or to doubt that the licence Mr. Cutajar presented to me was anything other than what it appeared to be — i.e. a valid Ontario Driver's Licence. Based on that information and my personal visual inspection of the licence, and the fact that I had no reason to think that the information had changed in the interim, approximately two or three weeks later, I lent Mr. Cutajar my truck for what was to be a 1-2 hour period.

I only learned from Mr. Cutajar of his conviction and licence suspension after my truck was impounded on September 11, 2002. Mr. Cutajar informs me that, with the exception of the automatic 90-day removal of his Driver's Licence by the Police on the scene (after which the Licence was returned to him), he has never surrendered his licence to the authorities, and in fact still has it in his possession. I had hoped to produce it (or a notarial copy of it) as evidence to verify the information in the above paragraph, but Mr. Cutajar advises me that he has temporarily misplaced it. I am still hoping he can find it and it can be produced as evidence, but I believe the fact that Mr. Cutajar's licence has never been surrendered pursuant to the suspension order should be on record with the Registrar / Ministry of Transportation.

Evidence relied upon:

- (a) My sworn Affidavit (which will be faxed to your offices by Friday, September 27, 2002, and the original sent by regular mail), and oral testimony with respect to the above information;
- (b) Mr. Cutajar's Driver's Licence, if he can locate it (a Notarial copy of which will be faxed to you, as per #1 above).
- (c) If Mr. Cutajar is unable to find his Driver's Licence, I will endeavour to obtain a letter the Ministry of Transportation, attesting to the fact that Mr. Cutajar never surrendered his Driver's Licence; and,
- (d) A sworn Affidavit from Mr. Cutajar (faxed and sent to you as per #1), and his oral testimony as to the facts in #1 and #2 above.
- (e) Notice to Registrar - copy attached - indicating that Mr. Cutajar is neither the owner of the impounded vehicle nor the person who ordinarily has use of it.

2. s. 50.2(d) HTA: Exceptional Hardship:

- (a) My husband and I separated in September 2000, and we share custody of our three children (ages 17, 15, and 12), who (prior to the impoundment) frequently visited between our two residences. I have the only vehicle in the family, and my husband does not have a phone (which makes it difficult to ascertain if the children are at home at any given time), so my truck is a necessity. The bus service in St. Thomas is not reliable and, in fact, not faster than walking the distance between our homes, which takes approximately 30 minutes (as opposed to 5 minutes driving). Since my truck was impounded, my time with my children has been cut almost in half due to the difficulties in co-ordinating our schedules and activities — a fact which is having a negative emotional effect on all of us, which seems all the more unfair in that we (and certainly my children) are innocent parties in this matter.
- (b) Since I am the only one in the family with a vehicle and a phone, my children's schools, friends, etc., have only my phone number for emergency contact purposes, and my truck was used to transport the children to medical/dental appointments, out-of-town extra-curricular activities, friends' homes, etc., which is impossible now, with the result that they are frequently unable to attend activities unless they can find someone to carpool with. Because of the proximity of the St. Thomas Psychiatric Institute, and because of several recent frightening episodes in St. Thomas involving out-patients or discharged former patients from that Institute, I am afraid to take the bus, and even more reluctant to have my children take the bus (or, more accurately, to stand at the bus stop for long periods of time, waiting for the bus to come) -- particularly after dark.
- (c) I work shift work at Formet Industries, which is located in the east end of St. Thomas, but I live in the west end of the city. The same concerns as mentioned in

(a) and (b) above apply to transporting myself to work on a daily basis. The situation will be exacerbated starting October 1st, 2002, when I start working the midnight shift. Although I am trying to arrange for a car pool for myself to get to work, I am particularly concerned about being unable, without a vehicle, to reach my children in an emergency.

- (d) There is no realistic alternative to the impounded vehicle without significant and lasting financial hardship. I rented a car for 4 days, at a cost of $189.00 -- an amount which I cannot sustain for the length of the impound period on my income. Taxis are equally prohibitive and a luxury I cannot afford, particularly since those costs are in addition to the $650 per month that I must still pay for the (impounded) truck ($550/month truck payment and $100/month insurance), rent, utilities, groceries, etc.. Since the reason my ex-husband lost his phone and car was that he was out of work for almost a year, the financial burden of caring for our family has fallen disproportionately on me and has exhausted my savings, such that any extra expense at this time in our lives genuinely constitutes a hardship, which has already severely impacted (both emotionally and financially) on myself and on my children (the people ordinarily transported by the vehicle in question) and will continue to do so both in the short- and (financially, at least) in the long-term.
- (e) Neither I, nor any of my family members or friends have access to a surplus vehicle (i.e. one that they do not need on a daily basis), nor can I obtain such a vehicle to replace the impounded vehicle during the impound period.

Evidence Relied Upon: (Copies to be faxed to your offices on September 27, 2002)

1. My pay stub.
2. Information evidencing monthly expenses for truck, insurance, rent, etc.
3. Copy of the receipt from the 4-day car rental.
4. Affidavit and oral testimony.

EXPEDITED HEARING REQUEST:

I request an expedited hearing, on the grounds that it is urgent that I obtain the release of my vehicle as soon as possible, and hereby consent to waive the disclosure period.

At the hearing the Applicant's Legal Counsel, Ms Katherine Orkin asked the Applicant to attest to the information contained in the Affidavits filed, with the Tribunal, in support of the hearing.

The Applicant confirmed that the information was, at time of swearing, and continues to be true. Further the information has not changed except for the fact that the Applicant's 15-year-old sister has now come to live with her. The new addition to the household means that the Applicant has assumed extra responsibilities, including that of driving her sister to and from appointments.

In cross-examination, the Applicant admitted that she merely glanced at Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence, whenever Mr. Cutajar's used it as a means of identification, or to compare pictures. The Applicant never really viewed Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence in detail for the purpose of ascertaining whether the licence was valid.

It was the Applicant's belief that Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence expired in 2003. The Applicant testified that she was not aware the expiration date of Mr. Cutajar's licence, would have been 2004.

On September 11th, 2002, the date that the vehicle was impounded, the Applicant had left the car at home. The Applicant had gone to lunch with friend who drove her to work, since they work together. The Applicant phoned Mr. Cutajar and asked him to take the car and run an errand for her. The Applicant did not physically look at Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence prior to allowing him to drive the car.

During the course of her testimony the Applicant re-iterated the information contained in her Affidavit: "separated in September 2000 ...share custody of ...three children ...Damian (age 17) and Lacey (age 12) live with ...father, while Shannon (age 15) live with me..." Prior to the impoundment, the Applicant drove the children to visit each other "...several..." times a week. The Applicant has just moved, and now lives about a half an hour walk from her ex-husband.

With respect to work, the Applicant stated that she works shifts, on a two-week rotation. The Applicant has had no problem working the midnight shift, as she has been able to get a ride. The Applicant testified that she has not yet found a ride for the afternoon shift coming up soon.

The Applicant has missed only one day off work to visit her solicitor, and has not sustained any losses other than legal fees and the future impoundment fee. Mr. Cutajar will assist in paying the impoundment fee but will not pay for travel expenses incurred by the children. The children have not missed school, and have been getting around, either by public transportation or by walking.

The Applicant agreed with the Respondent's Representative's comments that the impoundment has been a major inconvenience, but has not resulted in financial or educational loss.

The Applicant cannot afford to take a cab to and from appointments, but has managed to ensure that her sister attended the required appointments with Children's Aid.

In redirect the Applicant confirmed that her daughter has missed Volleyball that is an extra curricular activity. As far as financial distress, the Applicant testified that up until June her wages were being garnisheed which curtailed her spending ability. The Applicant's ex-husband filed for bankruptcy and is not able to provide much support for the children.

In closing Ms. Orkin, explained on behalf of the Applicant, that the problem is not necessarily the Applicant's ability to get to work, but rather her inability to run errands during breaks.

As far as examining someone else's licence, it is common belief that when a licence is suspended, the licence is actually confiscated, thus if somebody is in possession of a driver's licence no one would question its validity.

Ms. Orkin maintains that due to the separation, the Applicant has faced considerable financial hardship. The Applicant and her children are innocent parties of the impoundment, they have suffered hardship, in that there have been missed appointments due the financial circumstances of the Applicant.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Mr. Todd M. Cutajar;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of "Driving with more than 80 mgs in Blood" under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 26, 2004.

Mr. Cutajar's driver's record indicates that his driver's licence is under suspension until October 4, 2004.

The Respondent offered no viva voce evidence at the hearing choosing to stand on the information provided.

In her closing remarks, Ms Beintema, the Respondent's Representative, contended that the Applicant failed to prove her grounds of due diligence in respect to Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence. Comparing photographs, does not, according to Ms. Beintema "...constitute an act of due diligence as required by the Act...". The Respondent's Representative maintains that the Act requires more than a cursory glance at a driver's licence. The Applicant did not, as she stated in her Affidavit, examine Mr. Cutajar's driver's licence carefully, otherwise she would have known the licence expires in 2004.

The Respondent's Representative emphasized that the Applicant was not at home, at the time she asked Mr. Cutajar to ran an errand for her, thus she could not have physically seen his driver's licence as is required. Further, the Applicant did not actively question Mr. Cutajar to determine if his licence was under suspension, as she could have and should have done, in order to exercise due diligence.

As for hardship the Respondent's Representative referred to the criteria set out in Regulations which is clear that in order to establish hardship, the Applicant must not have alternative methods of transportation. The Applicant has managed to car pool, and there has been no loss of employment. As for the financial situation of the Applicant, the situation arises out of pre-existing conditions.

With respect as to how the children have been affected, Ms Beintema asserts that there is not evidence that the children have suffered educational or financial hardship.

As inconvenience is not grounds for appeal, the Respondent's Representative asked the Tribunal to confirm the decision of the Registrar and uphold the impoundment

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (2) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish due diligence and exceptional hardship ground of appeal as provided in subsection 50.2(3)(c) and 50.2(3) and (d) of the Act, respectively.

The Tribunal will address the matter of due diligence first. Section 50.2 (3) (c) is clear in the requirement:

“that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension.”

The Applicant testified both in her viva voce evidence and in her Affidavit that: “...he handed me his Driver’s Licence which I had a chance to examine carefully because we were comparing photos...” The Respondent’s Representative, argues that viewing a driver’s licence for social purposes, does not constitute due diligence.

The 6th edition of Blacks Law Dictionary, defines “due diligence” as follows: “Due diligence, such a measure of prudence, activity, assiduity as is properly to be expected from and ordinarily exercised by a reasonable and prudent man under the circumstances, not measured by any absolute standard but depending on the relative facts of the case.” Applying the Blacks Law Dictionary’s definition this matter, in order for the Applicant to establish that she exercised due diligence, the Applicant would have to prove that she made a “...reasonable effort...” to ensure that Mr. Cutajar had a valid driver’s licence. By her own admission the Applicant did not physically check Mr. Cutajar’s driver’s licence on the day she asked him to run an errand for her, as she was not home at the time. The Applicant did not, at any time prior to allowing Mr. Cutajar to driver her car, question Mr. Cutajar to determine whether his licence was under suspension. The fact that the Applicant was unaware of the actual expiry date of Mr. Cutajar’s driver’s licence, is an indication that she did not “...examine carefully...” Mr. Cutajar’s driver’s licence.

Given the preceding evidence, the Tribunal concurs with the Respondent’s Representative that the Applicant’s efforts to determine the validity of Mr. Cutajar’s driver’s licence were insufficient. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not satisfy the criteria of Section 50.2 (3) (c).

With respect to undue hardship as per subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act, the Tribunal will proceed to review the criteria required to meet the onus for consideration of financial loss.

Is there no alternative to the impounded vehicle?

Subsection 22(3)(a) Regulation 574 as amended by O. Reg. 632/98 provided that this Tribunal may not consider financial or economic loss as a ground of appeal unless no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

The Applicant owns no other another vehicle, but has been able to get to and from work, without loss of time. The Applicant has also testified that, although her daughter missed and extra curricular Volleyball match, she has been able to take the children to other required appointments.

As the Applicant has alternate methods of transportation available, the Tribunal may not consider the provisions of 22.1 of Regulation 574.

Is the loss immediate, significant and lasting?

The Appellant does not meet the criteria of O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b) which provides that the Tribunal may not regard economic loss unless the Appellant shows proof that loss will be immediate, significant and lasting.

The Applicant was unable to substantiate the premise that she has suffered financially as a result of the impoundment. As pointed out by the Respondent's Representative, the Applicant's precarious financial situation arises out of a pre-existing situation, not as result of loss due to the impoundment.

Thus, the Tribunal may not consider O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b).

Is the loss upon a person ordinarily transported in the motor vehicle?

The evidence indicates that the impact of the impoundment will be borne by the owner of the vehicle, who was not the suspended driver, however, as previously stated, there is no such loss. Therefore, the requirements under O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(c) are not met.

Is the loss upon a person other than the driver of the motor vehicle and not a result of that driver's loss?

O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(d)(i)(ii), amending Regulation 574 provides that this Tribunal may not consider economic loss unless the owner demonstrates that:

d) the impact of the loss,

i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's license was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle and...

ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause 2(b)(c) or (d).

The Applicant was not the suspended driver, but is the individual affected by the impoundment, nonetheless, the Applicant has an alternative method of transportation, and has incurred no significant or permanent loss.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship ground for appeal, as required under section 50.2(3) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: October 18, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 21, 2002

Orillia

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 18, 2002, at Orillia, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Brabant Construction And Management (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Mack 1600, plate no. 118 2JA (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 2, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 18, 2002 and proceeded as teleconference.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I AS OWNER OF BRABANT CONST. WAS TOTALY UNAWARE. OF MY EMPLOYEE NOT HAVING A VALID DRIVERS LICENCE. I GAVE MY INSURANCE COMPANY DOUG'S DRIVERS LICENCE # IN APRIL AND NEVR HEARD BACK FROM THEM ASSUMING EVERTHING WAS OKAY. (THEY HAVE NOTIFIED ME IN THE PAST IF ANYTHING IS WRONG). I WAS UNAWARE THAT I SHOULD DO DRIVRS ABSTRACTS ON LONG TERM EMPLOYEES. (I'VE LEARNED A LESSON.)

The Applicant testified that he had employed Mr. Doug Summers as a dump truck driver over the past several years (7 or 8) and had found him to be a trusted employee. The nature of the Applicant's business is seasonal causing him to lay off his drivers in the late fall and then to rehire them in early spring. The Applicant testified that each spring he would ask to see each employee's driver's license and would forward the license information to his insurance company and that in the past his insurer would contact him if there were a problem with any of the submitted license information. In the spring of 2002 he did the same thing with Mr. Summers' information and not hearing back from the insurer he assumed all was well.

The Applicant further testified that he operates a small family owned business and that due to some personal health problems over the past summer the business was down and the company is currently losing money. The impounded vehicle, a 2000 model tri-axle dump truck, is the company's main source of revenue at this time of year and not having it available for work was compounding the company's financial problems and preventing the company from fulfilling on certain contracts.

Under questioning, the applicant stated that the company did own another truck that was licensed as well as an unlicensed 1979 truck. These vehicles could not be used to replace the impounded vehicle as the licensed model was rated for 12 tons instead of the 22 ton rating for the impounded vehicle and the unlicensed 1979 model (used only on construction sites) required too many repairs to make it road worthy.

In summation the Applicant reiterated his company's financial position, going over the submitted income statement and explaining that the monthly operating costs of the vehicle still had to be paid even though it was not earning revenue. The Applicant was a credible witness and the Tribunal accepts his evidence as to the company's financial situation and that these losses will be immediate, significant and lasting.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Douglas R. Summers;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol content in excess of .08, CCC under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 27, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The tribunal found that there was sufficient evidence to show that in this instance exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act. A long-standing family run business will be put in financial jeopardy because of a significant loss of income due to the loss of its main income generator. In the circumstances of this case only the impounded vehicle is available for this purpose.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: October 28, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: October 30, 2002 Hamilton

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 28, 2002, at Hamilton, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by one of the owners. The owners, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owners:	Glenmore Goulbourne and Monica Jules (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Dodge Grand Caravan, plate ANRW817 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 10, 2002

The Applicant, Monica Jules, filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 28, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

Prior to the commencement of the Hearing the Respondent provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of the documents on file.

Entered on consent as Exhibit # 4 is a letter from Noel Marshall dated October 28th, 2002 explaining why he could not attend the hearing.

The Applicant submitted an undated medical report, from Dr. Allan H. H. Leung. As the Respondent's Representative raised no objection, Dr. Leung's report was filed on consent as Exhibit # 5.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I had made prior arrangement for some one to drive the vehicle, with a valid driver's Liccence I will provide proof of doctor's that I have a herniated disc, the reason I didn't go on oct 5/02.

I just got the vehicle which I sold my old one and use the money as down payment on this vehicle which is finance through Trans Canada credit, and because I needed someone with good credit, glenmore had to get loan for me, the reason his name is with me. I insured the vehicle, that's why I always Let a License driver operate when I'm unavailable, Thank you.

Monica Jules
Oct 10 / 02

In an undated note attached to Exhibit # 2, Mr. Noel Marshall informs that he "...was the one that was to be driving the vehicle on Saturday, Oct 5/02..."

Dr. H. H. Leung details in his undated report the number of times that the Applicant has seen him since the first visit on April 22nd, 1996. After a CT scan on April 26th, 1999 the Applicant's condition was diagnosed as "...L5 S1 disc herniation...". The Applicant was scheduled for surgery on July 07th, 2002 but refused to follow through, although she continues to suffer from lower back pain.

At the hearing, in evidence-in-chief, the Applicant re-iterated the statements made in the Notice of Appeal, that the van is used to enable her to make her living.

The impounded vehicle is needed, as the Applicant is required to travel to Toronto at least three times a week, plus she is required to "...sign in with the police..." every Friday.

In cross-examination the Applicant affirmed that she does not have access to another vehicle. The Applicant rented a van but was only able to afford a three day rental charge.

As she has recently moved to Brantford the Applicant does not know too many people. The few friends she does have do not own a suitable vehicle.

The Applicant testified that she finds it hard to travel by bus as the rocking causes her discomfort. Thus far, the Applicant has missed some doctor's appointments, including a scheduled x-ray. The Applicant's daughter did not want to change schools when the Applicant moved, and must take a bus and walk in order to attend school. Because the Applicant has not been able to drive her, the Applicant's daughter has had to miss school a couple of days.

The Applicant's only income is from the re-sale of clothes that she transports in the van. Due to a herniated disc the Applicant is unable to hold any other job. The Applicant applied for Disability Benefits in July.

The Applicant believes that the van may be repossessed as she is unable to meet the payments.

Mr. Glenmore Goulbourne was called as a witness by the Applicant. Asked to make a statement, Mr. Goulbourne testified as to why he found it necessary to drive the van, while his licence was under suspension.

In closing the Applicant re-iterated her previous comments, emphasizing the she is totally dependent on the new van, in order to get her life back together. Without the van she is unable to earn a living and visit her physician in Toronto.

In rebuttal to the Respondent's remarks, the Applicant pointed out that she should be attending physio-therapy on a regular basis but has not been able to do so because of the impoundment. Also she must be in Toronto every Friday and traveling by bus is uncomfortable.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant and Glenmore Goulbourne as joint owners;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Glenmore Goulbourne;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of "DRIVING WHILE LICENCE IS SUSPENDED - H. T. A." pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until July 26, 2004.

The Respondent's Representative offered no viva voce evidence at the hearing, relying only on information previously submitted to the Tribunal.

In closing the Respondent's Representative pointed out the criteria for an appeal on the grounds of hardship: significant and long lasting loss of employment or education by the person normally transported in the vehicle.

According to the Respondent's Representative, the Applicant has claimed a loss of income but the Registrar is not prepared to accept the claim as there is no documentation supporting the loss.

The Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the exceptional hardship grounds of appeal as provided in subsection and 50.2 (d) of the Act.

Is there no alternative to the impounded vehicle?

Subsection 22(3)(a) Regulation 574 as amended by O. Reg. 632/98 provides that this Tribunal may not consider financial or economic loss as a ground of appeal unless no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

The Applicant owns no other vehicle, but public transit is available.

As the Applicant has alternate methods of transportation available, the Tribunal may not consider the provisions of 22.1 of Regulation 574.

Is the loss immediate, significant and lasting?

The Applicant does not meet the criteria of O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b) which provides that the Tribunal may not regard economic loss unless the Applicant shows proof that loss will be immediate, significant and lasting.

The Applicant testified as to loss of income but had no available documentation or figures to substantiate her assertion. Further, the Applicant offered no evidence that the loss would be significant or long lasting.

Thus, the Tribunal may not consider O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b).

The Applicant having an alternative vehicle and the loss due to the impoundment not being immediate, significant or lasting, it is not necessary to review further criteria set out in the Regulation. As the Applicant's alternative mode of transportation is public transit, the Tribunal will ponder the health and safety issue.

Section 22.2 (a) of Regulation 574, R.R O. 1990 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 allows consideration in circumstances which could pose "a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle."

The Tribunal reviewed the medical report submitted by the Applicant. There is no doubt that the Applicant is afflicted with chronic back pain. Nonetheless, a herniated disc albeit painful, cannot justifiably be regarded as life threatening. Thus, the provisions of Section 22.2 (a) of the Regulation are not met.

The individual affected by the impoundment, has an alternative method of transportation, and has neither proven significant or permanent loss, nor health threat.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship ground for appeal, as required under section 50.2(3) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION RELEASED: October 29, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 24, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Sandra Selin (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	1996 Dodge Dakota, plate 6175KF (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	October 8, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 24, 2002 and proceeded as a teleconference.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is married and a mother of 2 children, a daughter who attends the University of Manitoba and her 19 year old son, who resides at home, and is employed and attends high school, both on a part-time basis.

The Applicant is employed at a home for the aged where her shifts consist of 3 different alternate shifts (i.e., 2 days from 7:20 a.m. to 7:20 p.m., then 2 days off; 2 days from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., then 2 days off; 2 days from 7:20 p.m. to 7:20 p.m., then 2 days off).

Mr. Selin is employed at the mill in Fort Frances wherein his shifts consist of 2-day shifts (6 a.m. to 6 p.m.), 2 night shifts (6 p.m. to 6 a.m.) then 4 days off.

Both places of employment are approximately 10 blocks from their home.

The Applicant and her husband own a second vehicle, which they are currently using.

With respect to the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, the Applicant's son turned 19 two months ago. The evening the vehicle was impounded, the Applicant's son borrowed the vehicle to go to a friend's house (about 1 mile away) to watch some movies and spend the night. Unbeknownst to the Applicant, her son and his friend went to a bar about 1½ mile from her son's friend's home wherein they became drunk. He and his friend were going to walk home when they met Tara Green, whom they did not know, who indicated she would drive them home with their vehicle. The Applicant's son asked to see her licence, which she provided. The Applicant's son told the Applicant the next day that Ms. Green did not appear to be intoxicated.

The police pulled them over and asked the Applicant's son if he could drive the vehicle home, which he told the officer he could not. Therefore, they left the vehicle on the side of the road. Unfortunately, the police lead him to believe that the vehicle would be there the next day, which it was not due to it being towed to East Kenora (250 miles away) and impounded.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 & 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Tara S. Green;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of impaired driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 11, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of “exceptional hardship” under section 55.2(3)(d).

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact “exceptional hardship” will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal's consideration of subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

- (a) “no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available”. The Applicant testified that: (i) there is an alternative vehicle that her husband drives; (ii) since the impoundment, she has walked to work occasionally; (iii) her husband has, on occasion driven her to and from work when his shift permits; and (iv) in her testimony, there are co-workers that could provide her with transportation, but the Applicant does not want to burden them.
- (b) “the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting” The Applicant testified that (i); her employer is not aware of the situation and as such, she has not missed any days of work or lost any wages due to her vehicle's impoundment; (ii) she has currently taken a one week paid vacation since her husband went out of town with the alternative vehicle; (iii) she has not had nor has missed any doctor's appointments; (iv) the Applicant does not have the option of public transit nor train, but there are only 2 taxis in town; and (iv) the Applicant's residence is 911 accessible and the hospital is on the other side of town in the event of an emergency.
- (c) “the impact of loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle” Since the impoundment, the Applicant's son who is employed part-time at McDonald's (from 4:30 a.m. to 12 noon), walks to work. Once his shift is over, he walks to school to attend 2 courses from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Although the Applicant indicated that she unfortunately feels violated and punished for something she did not do, her son is working towards paying for the impoundment costs. The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, Tara Green, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

“The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order”.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and has managed. The impact of the loss will only be inconvenient and immediate, but not significant and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

ORDER

A motion was heard by teleconference on October 16, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's request for an extension of time to appeal the impoundment order of the Registrar affecting the Applicant's motor vehicle. The motion is brought pursuant to Section 20(7) of Ontario Regulation 632/98 amending Regulation 574 of the Revised Regulations of Ontario, 1990 made under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990. c.H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal grants the extension of time requested by the Applicant to commence an appeal for the reasons set out below.

SUBMISSIONS OF WRITTEN MATERIAL:

The Applicant submitted the following documents:

1. Original Notice of Appeal, including Applicant's position on Appeal, dated November 25, 2000 received by the Tribunal on December 8, 2000. (Exhibit # 1);
2. Undated letter, addressed: " Att. Kim Beintema- To Licence Appeal Tribunal" received by the Tribunal on September 24, 2002-10-17
3. Letter dated October 3rd 2002, addressed to the Tribunal to the attention of John Ripley. (Exhibit # 2)

The Registrar's Representative, Ms Beintema, requested the Tribunal note for the record, that the Registrar had not received a copy of the letter of October 3rd, entered as Exhibit # 2.

THE FACTS:

The Applicant's motor vehicle was impounded on July 30, 2000 while being driven by the Applicant, whose driver's licence appeared to be under suspension at the time of impoundment.

In his first letter to the Tribunal, addressed to Ms Beintema, the Applicant requests an extension to the time granted to file an appeal on the grounds that he was "...working 7 day A week 12 hours days ...did not have the time..."

The second letter explains in more detail that the Applicant was "...staying in another area at the time ...asked girlfriend to mail ...her mother had taken sick ...hospitalised with colon cancer ...her concerns and thoughts were only with her mother..."

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that three days after the impoundment, he was informed by the police officer, that he had been charged under the "...wrong section...", and advised to appeal. The Applicant then went about trying to obtain information on how to appeal, so that he would not have to pay the cost of impoundment.

Under questioning by Ms Beintema, the Applicant continued his testimony by re-iterating the comments in his letter of October 3rd, 2002.

According to the Applicant, he went to work in Windsor on Monday, August 5th, two days after finding out that he had the right to appeal, and asked his girlfriend to take care of the details on his behalf. The Applicant works on a "...tug boat...", where communications with land are difficult as in the middle of the water cell phones do not have "...much of a signal...". The Applicant stated that his work requires him to stay away from home "...a month at a time...", and that he has no opportunity to contact anyone while at work. Upon his return from Windsor, the Applicant found out that his girlfriend had forgotten to mail the appeal form.

In her closing remarks, Ms Beintema argued that the Applicant knew about the appeal process prior to his leaving for Windsor. The Applicant could have, if acting in good faith, filed the appeal, but chose instead to delegate the matter to his girlfriend.

THE LAW:

Section 20(1) of Regulation 632/98 states:

20. (1) An appeal to the Tribunal under section 50.2 of the Act shall be commenced by filing a notice of appeal with the Tribunal within 15 days of the issuance of the order to impound, together with a fee of $100 payable to the Minister of Finance.

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98 states:

20. (7) Despite subsection (1), the Tribunal may extend the time for commencing an appeal if the owner establishes that the owner, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness, or other cause beyond the owner's control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

7. Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

- (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
- (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98, provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to satisfy the Tribunal that an extension of the time for commencing an appeal ought to be granted. Where the Registrar does not give his or her consent in writing for an appeal to be commenced after the expiry of the prescribed time. The Applicant must establish that he, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness or other cause beyond his control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days. The Tribunal is precluded from considering other factors not arising from or directly related to these criteria.

The Tribunal agrees with the Respondent's Representative that the onus is on the Applicant to file his own appeal. Nonetheless, the vehicle was impounded on Tuesday, July 30th; the Applicant testified that he only considered appealing approximately three days after the impoundment, when the officer told him that he should do so. The Tribunal also heard from the Applicant that he had to leave for work on Monday August the 5th, 2002. Thus, it is reasonable to accept that the Applicant would have delegated the responsibility of filing.

The Respondent's Representative maintains that the delay period is extensive. The Applicant attested that he did not follow up the matter earlier, as he was unable to contact his girlfriend while at work, and that his girlfriend had major concerns which caused her to forget to file.

In retrospect it is always clear that situations that seemed handled appropriately, could have, and sometimes should have, been handled differently. In this matter the Applicant's actions, may at first appear to be remiss. However, the Tribunal finds the Applicant's testimony credible. The Tribunal is satisfied that the evidence before it shows that the Applicant was unable through a cause beyond the Applicant's control, to bring the appeal within the prescribed fifteen days.

The evidence presented establishes that the Applicant's delay in appealing the order impounding the vehicle under Section 55.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was the result of a situation beyond the Applicant's control.

ORDER:

For the reasons set out above, the motion herein of the Applicant requesting an extension of time to appeal, pursuant to section 20(7) of Ontario Regulation 632/98 amending Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, is granted.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "proposal") pursuant to Section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act").

The Proposal dated January 8, 2002 seeks to revoke the registrations of both 1190467 Ontario Ltd. operating as A1 Car Sales hereinafter referred to as ("1190467") and 1296945 Ontario Inc. hereinafter referred to as ("1296945") as well as the Salesperson registration of Ade Taitlbaum ("Taitlbaum"). 1190467, 1296945 and Taitlbaum are collectively referred to the "Applicants". The proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for revocation of the Applicant's registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the act, and therefore warrants disentanglement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register 1190467 Ontario Ltd. o/a A1 Car Sales, 1296945 Ontario Inc. and Ade Taitlbaum under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 1)

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies as stated in the proposal, are as follows:

1. On or about August 25, 1992 Ade Taitlbaum ("Taitlbaum") was registered as a salesperson.
2. On or about April 21, 1997 1190467 Ontario Ltd. o/a A1 Car Sales was registered as a motor vehicle dealer. At all material times, Taitlbaum was the operating mind of the corporation.

3. On or about July 23, 1999 1296945 Ontario Inc. was registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act. At all material times, Taitlbaum was the operating mind of the corporation.
4. On or about October 27, 1998 the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act proposed to revoke the registration of the 1190467 Ontario Ltd. o/a A1 Car Sales and Taitlbaum and further proposed to refuse the registration of 1266945 Ontario Inc. As a result of this proposal, in February of 1999 Taitlbaum on behalf of himself, 1190467 Ontario Ltd. o/a A1 Car Sales and 1266945 Ontario inc. signed Minutes of Settlement. Clause 4 of the Minutes of Settlement state:

"The Applicants agree that they will not make any representations to any 'consumer' which would constitute 'unfair practices' or 'unconscionable consumer representations' as defined by the Business Practices Act, R.S.O. 1990, C.B 18, as amended."

5. On or about March 29, 2000 the Dealer purchased a 1998 GMC Jimmy SL VIN 1FKCT18W0WK521384. At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed as accidental and repaired. On or about March 2, 2001 the dealer sold the vehicle to David J. Grayston without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle was accidented and repaired.
6. On or about January 16, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1998 GMC Safari VIN 1GTDM19WXWB5077939. At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed with unibody damage. On or about February 21, 2001 the dealer sold the vehicle to Michael A. Menezes without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle had unibody damage.
7. On or about March 7, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1998 Oldsmobile Intrigue GL VIN 1G3WS52K4WF340449. At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed as accidented and repaired, with frame damage and structural damage. On or about March 19, 2001 the dealer sold the vehicle to Paula Bateman without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle was accidented and repaired, frame damage and structural damage.
8. On or about March 8, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1998 Chevrolet Venture VIN 1GN DU03EDWD162826. At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed as accidented and repaired and with structural damage. On or about March 3, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Deanna M. Wright without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle was accidented and repaired and had structural damage.
9. The Dealer has retained the services an unregistered salesperson.
10. The Dealer and Taitlbaum have failed to comply with the Act and in particular with section 5.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 1)

Subsequent to the proposal, by way of further and other particulars the Registrar added further allegations to his proposal, as follows:

1. On or about February 14, 2001, 1190467 Ontario Ltd. o/a A1 car Sales (the "Dealer") purchased a 1999 Pontiac Grand Am, (VIN 1G2N12E6XM710579). At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed as accidented and repaired and frame damaged. On or about April 3, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Stewart Leasing Ltd. without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle was accidented and repaired and frame damaged.

2. On or about February 14, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1997 Pontiac Trans Sport (VIN 1GMDU06E9VD285804). At the time of purchase the vehicle was disclosed as accidented and repaired. On or about April 5, 2001 the dealer sold the vehicle to Ali Wahid without disclosing on the bill of sale that the vehicle was accidented and repaired.

(Exhibit 5)

The Evidence

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consists of documentary evidence of David John Grayston, Jennifer Andrew and Mary Jane South. The evidence presented by the Applicants consisted of the oral testimony of Ade Taitlbaum.

David John Grayston

Grayston stated in his testimony that by bill of sale date March 2, 2001 he purchased a 1998 GMC Jimmy from 1190467. Having viewed the vehicle he then sat down with "Tony", who he took for a salesperson. Tony wrote up the bill of sale and received the deposit from Grayston. The financing of the transaction required the approval of Scotiabank which approval was received the same day. After approval of financing on March 2, 2001 Grayston sat down with Taitlbaum who went over with Grayston the paperwork and filled in the missing items on the bill of sale. The latter document did not state that the vehicle had been damaged in an accident.

Subsequent to purchasing the vehicle Grayston received a visit from an OMVIC official who enquired of Grayston whether he knew that the vehicle he bought from 1190467 had been involved in an accident prior to his purchasing the vehicle. Grayston advised the OMVIC official he was not aware nor had he been told so by "Tony" or Taitlbaum when he concluded the transaction. He also states that had he known the vehicle had been involved in an accident he would not have purchased the vehicle.

Under cross-examination Grayston stated he did not enquire, when either negotiating the purchase of the vehicle with "Tony" or when later speaking with Taitlbaum, whether the vehicle had been involved in an accident.

Grayston further stated that he was unable to say whose signature appears on the Scotiabank financing agreement under "authorized sellers signature". He also stated he did not observe Taitlbaum sign the bill of sale.

Jennifer Andrew

Ms. Andrews testified that she is employed by OMVIC as Team Leader of Inspections with the duty of overseeing inspectors employed by OMVIC. She stated that she visited the Dealer at 18 Martin Ross Avenue, North York on June 27 2001 and spoke with a male individual who identified himself as Avi. Asked if "Tony" was on the premises, Ms. Andrew was told by Avi, that he knew of no "Tony". Ms Andrew left an "Inspection Findings" note with Avi advising she would return the next day to conduct an inspection of the dealership and its books and documents.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 8)

The next day, June 28, 2001, Ms Andrew returned to the dealership and spoke with Taitlbaum. The latter told her he "sells a lot of accident repair" vehicles. He also said he did not know of a "Tony". He did supply Andrew with certain documentation which she took with her for copying purposes. Andrew left with Taitlbaum an "Inspection Findings" report which cautioned him that only registered salespersons may represent a dealer and show vehicles to potential purchasers and that neither Avi nor "Tony" are registered salespersons. She left a copy of OMVIC's Standards of Business Practice with Taitlbaum.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 9)

Under cross examination Ms. Andrew stated she did not ask Taitlbaum during her visit of June 28, 2001 if he had ever seen "Tony's" registration as a salesperson.

Mary Jane South

Ms. South testified that she is the Deputy Registrar under the Act.

She stated that the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC) is a non-profit organization mandated to administer the Act and its regulations and to ensure compliance by motor vehicle dealers and salespersons with the Act and its regulations. The Act itself is a public protection statute which regulates the motor vehicle industry and Section 5 of the Act entitles applicants to registration, except where their past conduct affords the Registrar with reasonable grounds for belief that such applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Ms. South stated she is familiar with the proposal in this matter which is based upon the Applicant's failure to disclose material information to buyers of motor vehicles as well as upon employing an unregistered salesperson contrary to the Act. She also states that in October 1993 the Registrar has caused a proposal to be issued to revoke the registration of A1 Car Sales, then operated as a partnership by Taitlbaum and one Michael Adler.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 4)

By order of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal that proposal of the Registrar was confirmed on March 24, 1994 and the registration of A1 Car Sale was revoked.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 5)

Ms. South went on to state that by Notice of Proposal dated October 27, 1998 the Registrar sought to refuse the applications for registration of 1190467 as a motor vehicle dealer and the registration of Taitlbaum as a motor vehicle salesperson as well as the registration of 1296945.

(Exhibit 4 Tab 7)

Pursuant to this proposal a consent order was issued by the Tribunal on March 4, 1999, incorporating certain agreed terms and conditions to the above registration. One of the terms agreed to under the Tribunal's order was:

"The Applicants agree that they will not make any representations to any "consumer" which would constitute "unfair practices" or "unconscionable consumer representations" as defined by the Business Practices act, R.S.O. 1990. C.B. 15, as amended."

(Exhibit 4 Tab 7)

Ms. South also testified that Taitlbaum is, according to the records of Companies Branch, both the sole director and officer of 1190467 and 1296945.

Ms. South further stated, by reference to copies of bills of sale obtained by OMVIC from the Applicants, that when 1190467 purchased certain six motor vehicles at various auction sales, the auctioneers' bills of sale indicated that in all six instances the vehicles were either accidented or repaired or had frame or unibody damage. Further, that when selling these vehicles there was no disclosure by 1190467 that five of the vehicles were accidented or repaired or had frame or unibody damage.

(Exhibit 4 Tabs 10 to 13 inclusive and Exhibit 5)

Ms. South also testified that neither "Tony" nor Avi were registered as motor vehicle salespersons under the Act.

ADE TAITLBAUM

Taitlbaum stated that he is a landed immigrant from Romania and he has never taken a course in the English language. He can read very little English.

He stated further that "someone else" fills out documents that he is required to sign, before he affixes his signature. He specifically denied that his signature appears on the Grayston bill of sale nor is anything on that document in his handwriting. He also stated that in regard to the bills of sale with purchasers Menezes, Wright and Wahid his signature does not appear on the bills of sale.

(Exhibit 4 Tabs 10,11,12 and Exhibit 5)

He did admit that his signature is on the Scotiabank financing document relative to the Grayston transaction.

(Exhibit 6)

He denied knowing "Tony" but admitted knowing Avi Cousis "who came to him with good references" and who told him he was a registered motor vehicle salesperson. He further stated that he never looked at bills of sale before he signed those documents. He did not know that Avi was signing his name on bills of sale. He asked Avi on more than one occasion for his registration certificate as a motor vehicle salesperson but never was shown it over the approximate six months that Avi worked for him.

Under cross-examination Taitlbaum admitted to being sole Officer and Director of 1190467 and 1296945. He attended at all auctions to purchase vehicles on behalf of 1190467 and he understood the condition of vehicles he was purchasing.

When considering whether to purchase a vehicle the condition of the vehicle is important to him as it indicates what he should pay for the vehicle. He also stated that he instructed his salespersons to make full disclosure to purchasers of motor vehicles but beyond that instruction he did nothing further to ensure disclosure.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The Tribunal finds the following facts to have been proven:

1. Taitlbaum is currently a registered motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.
2. 1190467 is currently and has since April 21, 1999 been registered as motor vehicle dealer under the Act and presently operates under the business designation of A1 Car Sales.
3. 1296945 is currently and has since July 23, 1999 been registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act.
4. Taitlbaum is and at all relevant times was the sole Director and Officer of both 1190467 and 1296945.
5. Pursuant to the Registrar's Notice of Proposal of October 1998, Taitlbaum entered into Minutes of Settlement in terms whereof he agreed not to make any representations to consumers which would constitute "unfair practices" or "unconscionable consumer representations" under the Business Practices Act,

R.S.O. 1990. C.B. 18, as amended.

6. 1190467, therein represented by Taitlbaum, purchased a 1998 GMC Jimmy, a 1998 GMC Safari, a 1998 Oldsmobile Intrigue, a 1998 Chevrolet Venture, a 1999 Pontiac Grand Am and a 1997 Pontiac Trans Sport at various auctions. The auctioneer at each auction disclosed in writing to 1190467 that major and/or material structural damage had occurred to such vehicles prior to their sale by auction.
7. Subsequent to the purchase by 1190467 of the six above stated vehicles at auction, such vehicles were sold by 1190467 to various consumers. All of such consumers, save the consumer that purchased the 1999 Pontiac Grand Am, did not have disclosed to them by 1190467 that the vehicles purchased by them had suffered major and/or material structural damage.
8. 1190467 employed one Avi Cousis as a motor vehicle salesperson when such Avi Cousis was not registered as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

THE LAW:

Section 3 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows;

- (1) No person shall,
 - (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or
 - (b) act as a salesperson of or on behalf of a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered as a salesperson of such dealer and such dealer is registered as a motor vehicle dealer under this Act.

Section 5 of the Act, states as follows;

5. An applicant is entitled to registration by the registrar except where,
 - 1(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (c) the applicant is a corporation and
 - (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonable be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or
 - (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

- (2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

- (6)
 - (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.
 - (2) Subject to section 7, the registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 4 of the Act, states as follows;

- (4) A motor vehicle dealer shall not retain the services of a salesperson who is not registered under this Act.

Section 17.(1) (c) of the Act, states as follows;

- (1) Every motor vehicle dealer shall, within five days after the event, notify the Registrar in writing of,
 - (c) any commencement or termination of the employment, appointment or authorization of a salesperson;

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issues for consideration by the Tribunal are:

Issue 1

Did 1190467 retain the services of Avi Cousis and permit Cousis to act as a motor vehicle salesperson when he was not registered as a motor vehicle salesperson in terms of the Act.

Issue 2

Was Taitlbaum the sole Director and controlling mind of 1190467 at all material times.

Issue 3

Did 1190467 sell motor vehicles to certain five consumers without disclosing to those consumers that the motor vehicles they were purchasing were accidented and repaired, or had suffered frame and/or structural damage.

Before setting out the Tribunal's analysis of the above issues and the conclusions and findings of the Tribunal regarding those issues it is necessary to review the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) page 95.

In the Brenner decision, Southey J. stated that "the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty."

That decision went on to state, in referring the matter back to the Tribunal for rehearing, that "The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal."

Accordingly, it is the Registrar's belief that is at issue in these proceedings, and not the belief of this Tribunal. Only if the Tribunal believes that the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicants afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such applicants would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, should this Tribunal refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal.

The analysis of the issues as well as the Tribunal's conclusions and findings follow:

Issue 1

Taitlbaum conceded in his testimony that he employed Avi Cousis as a salesperson of motor vehicles. He stated that Cousis worked as a salesperson for 1190467 for about six months and that he came "with good references". When employing Cousis as a salesperson he stated that Cousis told him he was registered. He asked Cousis for his registration certificate on more than one occasion but was never shown a certificate nor did he ever see a certificate. It was Cousis who, according to Taitlbaum, completed the bills of sale of 1190467 during the time Cousis worked for 1190467. Only when OMVIC's inspector Andrew called to inspect the books and documents of 1190467 and started to make enquiries about who was employed as a registered salesperson did Taitlbaum tell Cousis of Andrew's enquiries. It was then that Cousis disappeared from the scene.

Taitlbaum has been in the industry since 1983 and during that time has been both a dealer and salesperson. In that time he clearly knew, or ought to have known, that a motor vehicle dealer was not permitted to retain the services of a salesperson who is not registered under the Act. He was never shown a certificate of registration by Cousis and at no stage made any inquiries of OMVIC as to whether Cousis was in fact registered. At no stage did Taitlbaum comply with the requirement under the Act that every dealer shall, within five days after commencement or termination of a salespersons employment, notify the Registrar in writing. He clearly contravened sections 4 and 17. (1) (c) of the Act.

It is clear that Cousis was employed by 1190467 as a motor vehicle salesperson and that this fact was known to Taitlbaum who was and still is the sole Director of 1190467 which is a closely held corporation. It was Taitlbaum who, on behalf of 1190467, employed Cousis and told him, according to Taitlbaum's own evidence, that he must ensure full disclosure when selling vehicles to customers.

On the evidence before it the Tribunal accordingly finds that Cousis was employed by 1190467 as a unregistered salesperson and that Taitlbaum as his capacity as Director of 1190467, authorized Cousis' employment and failed to ensure compliance with sections 4 and 17. (1) (c) of the Act.

Issue 2

The Registrar presented documents from the records of the Companies Branch in relation to 1190467, these records show that Taitlbaum was appointed sole Director of 1190467 commencing July 15, 1996, and continues to be that corporation's sole Director.

Insofar as 1296945 is concerned the Registrar presented documents being computer print outs from the records of the Companies Branch that Taitlbaum was appointed sole Director on May 25, 1998, and continues to be that corporation's sole Director. Under cross-examination Taitlbaum admitted to being a Director of both corporations and did not put in issue the contents of the records of the Companies Branch.

(Exhibit 9)

The aforementioned records show no parties, other than Taitlbaum, have at any stage been directors of either corporation and there have been no officers appointed in either corporation. The evidence indicates that the only person in control of both Corporations was, and continues to be, Taitlbaum.

The Tribunal accordingly finds that Taitlbaum was the controlling mind of both corporations at all material times.

Issue 3

The onus of proof was upon the Registrar. The latter failed to have any purchasers of vehicles, other than Grayston, testify at the hearing. No explanation or evidence was offered by the Registrar as to why one or more or all of the purchasers failed to testify. Grayston, the only purchaser to testify, stated that he dealt with one "Tony" when negotiating the purchase of a vehicle from 1190467 and that he only met with Taitlbaum when the transaction was being finalized. He did not observe Taitlbaum execute the bill of sale.

The uncontested evidence of Taitlbaum was that he cannot read and can barely write English. He relies on others to interpret documents for him. Also uncontroverted, was his evidence that his signature does not appear on any of the bills of sale placed before the Tribunal and that what appears to be his signature on all such bills is not his and is that of unregistered salesperson, Avi Cousis, who did not have authority to sign on behalf of 1190467. It was also not proven by the Registrar that Taitlbaum was present during the negotiations with the various purchasers of vehicles referred to in the proposal. Taitlbaum's denial that he was present during such negotiations was not attacked by the Registrar's Counsel.

The only document that Taitlbaum admits to signing on behalf of 1190467 was the Scotiabank financing agreement in the Grayston transaction and such document in no manner assists the Registrar's case by proving Taitlbaum was present at negotiations regarding the Grayston transaction or that Taitlbaum signed the bill of sale.

There is therefore no clear and cogent evidence to show that Taitlbaum, in his capacity as Director of 1190467, failed to ensure disclosure was made by 1190467 to the various purchasers of the vehicles as alleged.

Having considered all the evidence, the Tribunal finds that issue 1 and 2 have been proven by the Registrar to the satisfaction of the Tribunal. Issue 3 has, however, not been proven by the Registrar.

It was submitted by Counsel for the Applicants that a finding by the Tribunal against Taitlbaum on his capacity as a director of the dealer does not translate into a finding against Taitlbaum in his capacity as salesperson and that if Taitlbaum in his capacity as a dealer did not carry on business in accordance with law does not mean that he will in the future not carry on business in accordance with law as a motor vehicle salesperson. The Tribunal rejects this submission and conclusion as an individual's propensity to honesty, integrity and compliance with law cannot be compartmentalized into one domain but not into another. The failure of Taitlbaum, in his capacity as sole director and controlling mind of 1190467, to ensure compliance with the Act's requirements that salespersons be registered reflects directly on Taitlbaum's personal propensity for compliance with law.

The Tribunal believes that revocation of Taitlbaum's registration as a salesperson would be too harsh and extreme a penalty to impose for his having employed an unregistered salesperson. However, the public must be protected from those working in the industry, whether as dealers or salesperson, who fail to fully comply with the Act and its regulations. The Act is, after all, a consumer protection statute.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7. (4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Tribunal directs that the Registrar carries out his proposal dated January 8, 2002 to revoke the registrations of 1190467 Ontario Ltd. and 1296945 Ontario Inc. as motor vehicle dealers under the Act.

Insofar as Ade Taitlbaum is concerned, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal dated January 8, 2002 to revoke Ade Taitlbaum's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson subject to his compliance with the following terms and conditions:

1. Taitlbaum shall forthwith enroll in the Canadian Automotive Institute's course at Georgian College and shall successfully complete all requirements under that course for the issuance of a certificate by either Georgian College or The Canadian Automotive Institute.
2. Taitlbaum shall forthwith enroll at Humber College of Applied Arts and Technology in a course commonly referred to as "ESL – English as a Second Language." The level of such ESL course that Taitlbaum shall enroll in shall be no lower than the "ESL 150" course offered by the aforesaid College. Upon full completion of the ESL course Taitlbaum shall produce to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council written proof from the above College that he has satisfied all the requirements of the course he enrolled in.
3. Until such time as Taitlbaum produces to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council written proof from both the above Colleges of having received a passing grade in both courses and having met all the requirements for the successful completion of both the above courses, Taitlbaum's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson shall be and remain suspended and he shall not be entitled to work for a motor vehicle dealer as a motor vehicle salesperson and he shall not be entitled to receive a certificate of registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.
4. The cost of and incidental to both the Georgian College and Humber College courses shall be borne solely by Taitlbaum.

FACTS:

The witnesses for the Director were Andrew Losztyn, former Ministry of Transportation Officer Don Rutherford, and Ministry of Transportation Officers Mark Horton, Rob Grabar, James Smith, and Larry Grimaldi. The witnesses for the Applicants were Naseem Jamil, Shane Bailey, Jabbar Abdul Javed, and Mohinder Singh Lamba.

Ministry of Transportation Officers identified numerous defects that, in their opinion as mechanics, would have been present in vehicles at the time of their safety standards certificate inspection. The officers testified that issuing safety standards certificates in such instances was contrary to the Act and regulations. The safety standards certificates state the following above the signatures of the inspecting mechanic and the licensee: "We hereby certify that the above described motor vehicle has been inspected in accordance with the provisions of Sections 88 to 100 of the Highway Traffic Act and Regulations issued thereunder, and that the items inspected met the prescribed standards on the Date of Inspection."

Former Ministry of Transportation Officer Don Rutherford testified about twenty convictions of Naseem Jamil for making false statements on safety standards certificates. The convictions were against the partnership of Naseem Jamil and his brother, rather than against Naseem Jamil personally. According to Mr. Rutherford, the charges were based on the testimony of Andrew Losztyn. Mr. Losztyn is now eighty years old. He testified before the Tribunal that he did not sign some of the safety standards certificates that appear to have his signature as inspecting mechanic. Mr. Losztyn said that he does not remember the vehicles concerned or their specific problems. Mr. Jamil stated that at court Mr. Losztyn testified that he signed some but not all of the safety standards certificates. Mr. Rutherford testified that Mr. Losztyn told him that he did not sign any of the twenty safety standards certificates. Mr. Jamil pled guilty to the first charge. He pled not guilty to the later nineteen charges, but was convicted and paid a fine in installments.

Mr. Rutherford also testified about three instances set out at tabs 8 to 10 of exhibit 4 where Naseem Jamil was convicted under section 90(3)(a) on behalf of his partnership, but not personally, for issuing safety standards certificates for vehicles that did not comply with inspection requirements and performance standards prescribed by regulations under the Act. In each case Mr. Jamil pled guilty and was convicted. Mr. Rutherford stated that rust holes identified on all three vehicles would have been present at the time of the safety standards certificates inspection.

Naseem Jamil and his brother dissolved their partnership. In October 1997, Naseem Jamil incorporated the Applicant T&R Auto Service Centre Inc. (the "Corporation"). Mr. Rutherford next testified about three convictions of the Corporation under section 90(3)(a) of the Act. Problems identified by Mr. Rutherford as having been present at the time of the safety standards certificate inspections included the following: a parking brake foot pedal that could not be depressed with front cable seized and rear cables binding (tab 11 of exhibit 4); rear frame rail rust holes, inoperative left rear parking brake cable (tab 12 of exhibit 4); parking brake pedal that would not depress with front cable seized and both rear cables seized, and left front brake hose cracked with inner cord frayed (tab 14 of exhibit 4). In each case the Corporation pled guilty and was convicted.

In 1999 Naseem Jamil received his licence as a mechanic.

Mr. Rutherford also testified about a safety standards certificate that Naseem Jamil signed both as inspecting mechanic and licensee, as set out at tab 18 of exhibit 4. Mr. Rutherford stated that the oversized right rear drum, the rust-perforated holes in the floor pan and the quarter panel, and the absence of a locking device on the tie rod ends are all defects that would have been present at the safety standards certificate inspection. A wheel came off the automobile twice. Mr. Rutherford was unable to determine why the wheel came off. Naseem Jamil stated that the drum is only marginally oversized and that there were cotter pins on the tie rod ends. He stated that the cotter pins would have to be bent to fall out. At trial, Mr. Jamil entered into a plea bargain. Charges against the Company were dropped. Naseem Jamil in his personal capacity was convicted.

Mr. Jabbar Abdul Javed testified that Naseem Jamil refused to issue a safety standards certificate for the vehicle described at tab 18 of exhibit 4 until an emergency brake cable and a small hole in the muffler were fixed.

Officer Mark Horton identified several items as problems that would have existed at the time of the safety standards certificate inspection of the vehicle described at tab 17 of exhibit 4: a rusty hole in floor by driver's feet, a rust-perforated tail pipe, an emergency brake not applied by the foot pedal, an emergency brake cable seized solid on the right side, and brake fluid leaking at the connection of the rear wheel cylinder to the brake line. Mr. Jamil claimed that the brake fluid leak was actually oil that he bled off when installing a new wheel cylinder. Mr. Horton said that the mechanic stated that he missed the hole. Mr. Jamil claimed that the hole was in the firewall and not in the floor. Mr. Lamba testified that the purchaser of the vehicle tried to blackmail him. He said that the tailpipe was okay. He testified that a tail pipe leak always makes noise and that there was no such noise.

Officer Grabar claimed that several defects of the vehicle identified at tab 19 of exhibit 6 would have been present at the time of the safety standards certificate inspection: the left rear floor pan rot hole, the right rear floor pan perforation, and the rotten rocker panel. Mr. Grabar explained that the rocker panel is part of the unitized body and is part of the chassis. Naseem Jamil disagreed. Officer Grimaldi testified that Naseem Jamil had identified the licensee's signature on the safety standards certificate as his own. Naseem Jamil told the Tribunal that he did not sign the certificate and that he does not know who did sign it. Charges against the licensee Naseem Jamil and against the mechanic are pending.

Naseem Jamil claimed that the licensee's signatures on the safety standards certificates in tabs 20 to 23, both inclusive, are not his. He stated that he was out of the country on July 26 and 27 when those certificates were issued. Mr. Jamil said that he was away from July 3 to July 28, 2001. The certificates were sent to the licensee by the Ministry of Transportation on July 12, 2001.

With respect to the vehicle at tab 20 of exhibit 4, Mr. Grabar concluded that the following problems existed at the time of the safety standards certificate inspection: a rust perforation on the left side of the driver's floor area, a detached left rear parking cable and inoperative parking brake. Mr. Bailey was the owner of the car. He stated that the car shown on page 215 of exhibit 4 is red and was not his car. Mr. Bailey also said that the photograph on page 218 of exhibit 4 shows an amplifier and that his car did not have one. Further, Mr. Bailey said that his car had no body work done and that the photograph on page 219 of exhibit 4 shows a car with gray primer, not his car. Mr. Bailey testified that the emergency brake stopped working one and a half weeks after the safety standards inspection. Mr. Grimaldi said that Mr. Jamil had identified the licensee's signature on the safety standards certificate as his signature. Naseem Jamil told the Tribunal that the signature is not his.

Officer Smith testified that Naseem Jamil had identified the signature on behalf of the licensee on the safety standards certificates at tabs 22 and 23 of exhibit 4 as his own signature. Mr. Smith found rust-perforated holes in the left sub-frame, the right front sub-frame, and the left rear rocker panel on the vehicle at tab 22. He stated that the holes would have been present at the time of the safety standards inspection. Defects found by Officer Smith for the vehicle at tab 23 included an inoperative parking brake and steel brake tubing with heavy corrosion and scaling, both problems that would have existed at the time of the safety standards inspection, in his opinion. Charges against the licensee Naseem Jamil and against the mechanic are pending with respect to the matters at tabs 22 and 23 of exhibit 4.

The Tribunal finds the following facts to be proven on the evidence:

- 1) Contrary to subsection 91(8) of the Act and regulation 611, numerous safety standards certificates were issued by T&R Auto Service Centre Inc. and signed by Naseem Jamil as licensee, for vehicles with defects. Such vehicles did not comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards prescribed by the regulations. Naseem Jamil knew or should have known such was the case.
- 2) Naseem Jamil was properly convicted in his own capacity as well as on behalf of the Corporation and his prior partnership under subsection 90(3)(a) of the Act. Such convictions were not minor. In instances where Naseem Jamil pled guilty, the Tribunal finds that Mr. Jamil did not do so simply as a matter of convenience.
- 3) The licensee's signatures on the safety standards certificates in tabs 19, 21, 22, and 23 of exhibit 4 are those of Naseem Jamil. The vehicles identified in those tabs contained defects and did not comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards prescribed by the regulations.

- 4) Photographs at tab 20 of exhibit 4 show more than one vehicle and the allegations contained in that tab should be disregarded.
- 5) Naseem Jamil was convicted on behalf of his partnership under subsection 92(2) of the Act for making false statements on safety standards certificates. The Tribunal finds no credible evidence that the conviction was improper.

- (a) the vehicle has been inspected by a motor vehicle inspection mechanic in the motor vehicle inspection station and the vehicle complies with the inspection requirements and performance standards prescribed by the regulations; and
- (b) the safety standards certificate or a vehicle inspection record,

- (i) is made by the motor vehicle inspection mechanic who inspected the vehicle, and

- (ii) is countersigned by the licensee or a person authorized in writing by the licensee.
- 91.(8) The Director may revoke or refuse to renew a motor vehicle inspection station licence where,
- (a) any person has made a false statement in the application for the licence or a renewal thereof or in any safety standards certificate signed by the licensee or a person authorized in writing by the licensee or in any report, document or other information required to be furnished by this Act or the regulations or any other Act or regulation that applies to the motor vehicle inspection station;
 - (b) any inspection authorized by the licence is incompetently performed;
 - (c) the licensee or any motor vehicle inspection mechanic employed in the motor vehicle inspection station has misrepresented the condition of a vehicle with respect to the standards of equipment and performance prescribed by the regulations upon an inspection of the vehicle in the station for the purpose of determining whether or not to issue a safety standards certificate, sign a vehicle inspection record or affix a vehicle inspection sticker;...
 - (e) the licensee does not comply with this Act or the regulations;....
93. The Director may revoke the registration of a motor vehicle inspection mechanic where,
- (a) the registrant or the licensee has made a false statement in the application for registration of the registrant or in a safety standards certificate or in any report, document or other information required to be furnished by this Act or the regulations or any other Act or regulation that applies to the registrant;
 - (b) any inspection performed under the authority of the mechanic's registration is incompetently performed by the registrant; or
 - (c) the registrant does not comply with this Act or the regulations.
- 95.(4) Where the applicant, licensee, registrant or proposed registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and shall hold the hearing and may by order direct the Director to carry out his or her proposal or refrain from carrying out his or her proposal and to take the action that the Tribunal considers the Director ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Director.
- 99.(2) Any person who makes a false statement in a safety standards certificate is guilty of an offence and on conviction is liable to a fine of not less than $400 and not more than $20,000.

CASELAW:

In R. v. Servacar Ltd. (Ont. CA.) [1983] O.J. No. 190, Dubin J.A. stated the following with respect to the predecessor of section 90(3) of the Act::

In our opinion the statutory requirement for the licensee, for the purposes of this appeal, was to see to it that the vehicle had been inspected by a motor vehicle inspection mechanic, and that was done in this case. The licensee must be satisfied that the motor vehicle inspection mechanic found the vehicle to comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards, and that was also done in this case....Crown counsel, on appeal, seeks a broader interpretation of s. 74 [now s.90] of the statute. It was his submission that if it is determined at a trial that the vehicle did not comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards of the statute, that the licensee was guilty of an offence and vicariously liable for the failure of the licensed mechanic to perform his duty....In our view the statute does not clearly impose such a liability, and, for these reasons, the appeal will be dismissed.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

On the evidence, the Tribunal finds that the Director of Motor Vehicle Inspection Standards is not in error with respect to revocation of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Station Licence of T&R Auto Service Centre Inc..

The Director may revoke a motor vehicle inspection station licence where any person has made a false statement in any safety standards certificate signed by the licensee. Naseem Jamil was convicted on behalf of his partnership under subsection 92(2) of the Act for making such false statements.

In addition, the Director may revoke a motor vehicle inspection station licence where any inspection authorized by the licence is incompetently performed. The Director may also revoke the licence where the licensee or any motor vehicle inspection mechanic employed in the motor vehicle inspection station has misrepresented the condition of a vehicle with respect to the standards of equipment and performance prescribed by the regulations upon an inspection of the vehicle in the station for the purpose of determining whether or not to issue a safety standards certificate. Further, the Director may revoke the motor vehicle inspection station licence where the licensee does not comply with the Act and regulations.

Naseem Jamil was properly convicted on behalf of T&R Auto Service Centre Inc. under subsection 90(3)(a) for issuing a safety standards certificate for a vehicle that did not comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards prescribed by the regulations. Naseem Jamil knew or should have known this. This is not a case where, as in R. v. Servacar Ltd., the licensee was satisfied that the motor vehicle inspection mechanic found the vehicles to comply with the inspection requirements and performance standards.

Similarly, the Tribunal finds on the evidence that the Director of Vehicle Inspection Standards was not in error in connection with revocation of the registration of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic Naseem Jamil.

The Director may revoke the registration of a motor vehicle inspection mechanic where the registrant does not comply with this Act or the regulations. Naseem Jamil was properly convicted in his own capacity under subsection 90(3)(a) of the Act.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 95(4) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal directs the Director of Motor Vehicle Inspection Standards to carry out his proposal to revoke the Motor Vehicle Inspection Station Licence of T&R Auto Service Centre Inc. and the registration of Motor Vehicle Inspection Mechanic Naseem Jamil.

DATES OF
HEARING: October 21, 22, 23, and 25, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation #1101 and Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation #1120 (the "Applicants") under section 14 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting decisions by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated March 25, 2002, (the "Decisions") denying the Applicants' claims for compensation.

The Decisions, exhibits 1 and 3, described the Applicants' claims as the cost of repair of the construction deficiencies of the exterior caulking and stucco finishes, the air barrier, and the vapour barrier; the cost to replace the safety anchors; past and future engineering costs; and past legal costs.

The reasons set out in the Decisions for denying the Applicants' claims are as follows:

The Condominium Corporation has signed a Technical Audit Agreement and Release on May 28, 1998 in which it has agreed to release and forever discharge the declarant CLS [Concorde Square Limited] and its respective successors and assigns, officers, directors and employees from and against all manners of action, causes of action, suits, debits, duties, accounts, bonds, contracts, damages, claims and demands whatsoever at law or in equity which the Corporation ever had, now has or may hereafter have for or by reason, in any way arising out of or in any way related to the claim (refer to item 6 of the attached copy of the Technical Audit Agreement and Release document).

The Release Agreement was executed on May 28, 1998 (which date was beyond the expiry date of the 2nd year common element warranty of December 20, 1997) to settle all claims relating to the common element of the building filed with the declarant and with ONHWP [the Ontario New Home Warranty Program] including the technical audit report as outlined in paragraph B of the Release Agreement.

The claim from Robins Appleby & Taub on behalf of M.T.C.C. #1101 [Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation #1101] [and on behalf of M.T.C.C. #1120] was received beyond the 2nd year common element warranty but within the seven year Major Structural Defect warranty. However, the condominium corporation has not satisfied requirements #3 and #5 of the major structural defect warranty. Building Sciences Inc. did not expressly identify the alleged deficiencies as a major structural defect. Rather, they seem to classify these alleged deficiencies as related to active water penetration into the residential suites from the exterior wall assemblies. None of the alleged deficiencies would qualify under the definition of major structural defect.

The pre-hearing order, exhibit 5, states the following:

The issues to be heard by this Tribunal shall be confined to those issues of law contained within the Decisions and the Appeals, and shall include an understanding of the circumstances and intent of the formal release document executed by the Applicants and whether or not such can be relied upon by the Respondent as a bar to any relief sought by the Applicants under the Act or to the compensation fund administered by the Respondent.

PRELIMINARY MATTER:

At the commencement of the hearing, all parties agreed that the claims are within the two-year common element warranty period.

ISSUES:

Do the Technical Audit Agreements and Releases dated March 28, 1998, tabs 23 and 24 of exhibit 6, preclude the Applicants' claim?

FACTS:

The parties agreed that the wording of the Technical Audit Agreement and Release concerning M.T.C.C. #1101 at tab 23 of exhibit 6 (the "Release") is identical to the wording of the Technical Audit Agreement and Release at tab 24 of exhibit 6 concerning M.T.C.C. #1120. The Release states the following:

WHEREAS:

B. The Corporation [M.T.C.C. #1101] has filed with the Declarant [Concorde Square Limited] and with the Ontario New Home Warranty Program a technical audit report prepared by Medhurst Hogg, Sobottka, Leong & Associates Limited (the "Medhurst Report") setting forth a list of defects in materials and/or workmanship in the original construction of the common elements of the Building [the units and common elements comprising M.T.C.C. #1101 and M.T.C.C. #1120, together known municipally as 18 Concorde Place, Don Mills, Ontario] and the Corporation has identified other defects found during its own inspections (the "Claim");

C. The Declarant and the Corporation, through a series of meetings have resolved all issues related to the Claim;

D. The Declarant has completed all necessary work to satisfy the Claim save and except those matters set out in Schedule "A", as hereinafter described; ...

NOW THEREFORE THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH that in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements herein contained and the sum of Seventeen Thousand, Five Hundred Dollars ($17,500.00) paid by the Declarant to the Corporation, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties covenant and agree as follows:

1. The parties hereto confirm that each of them has relied upon and confirms the accuracy of the aforesaid recitals in entering into this Agreement.

2. The Corporation agrees the work referred to in Recital D hereof has been satisfactorily completed by the Declarant save and except as set out in Schedule "A" attached hereto.

3. The Declarant, at its sole cost and expense, agrees to perform the work and supply the materials to correct the deficiencies described in Schedule "A" to this Agreement.....

6. Upon fulfillment by the Declarant of its obligations pursuant to this Agreement, the Corporation, for and on its own behalf, and for and on behalf of each and every unit owner of Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1101 insofar as each owner has an undivided interest in the common elements, does hereby remise, release and forever discharge the Declarant, Concorde Square Limited, and its respective successors and assigns, officers, directors and employees (the "Releasees"), from and against all manners of action, causes of action, suits, debts, duties, accounts, bonds, contracts, damages, claims and demands whatsoever at law or in equity which the Corporation ever had, now has or may hereafter have for or by reason, in any way arising out of or in any way related to the Claim.

7. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, it is agreed that this Agreement and Release shall not affect nor shall it be construed to apply to or affect any claim which has, may now or may hereafter be made by or on the behalf of:

- a) a unit owner in Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1101 arising from the operation of warranties still in effect under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act or at law in respect of his or her own suite or unit; and
- b) any proper and valid claim of a unit owner or the corporation arising from the operation of warranties still in effect under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act including, but not limited to any major structural defect in materials or workmanship in the original construction of the building which defect materially and adversely affects the use of the common elements in accordance with the definition of a "major structural defect" as defined under the said Act in respect of the units and common elements of Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1101.

10. Upon completion of the work referred to in Schedule "A" to this Agreement, the Corporation will and does hereby release the Ontario New Home Warranty Program from any and all claims, demands, costs, expenses, damages, actions or causes of action solely arising from or pertaining to construction of the Building as disclosed in the Technical Audit Report, except as provided for in Section 7 of this Agreement and Release. The Corporation further acknowledges that it has no further claim against the Ontario New Home Warranty Program nor the Declarant for any item referred to in the Medhurst Report.

13. This Agreement expresses the entire and final agreement between the parties hereto with respect to the matters herein, and the execution of this Agreement has not been induced by, and neither do any of the parties hereto rely upon or regard as material any representations or promises whatsoever not incorporated herein and made a part hereof, and this Agreement shall not be amended, altered or qualified except by separate memorandum in writing signed by all parties hereto.

SCHEDULE "A"

1. Complete the modifications to the driving entrance gates ...
2. With respect to the floor slab in the visitors parking garage, provide an engineering report...and repair or replace the slab as determined to be necessary in the engineering reports.

A letter dated May 28, 1998 from Paul Fortin to Benjamin Lamb and Shil Sanwalka set out at tab 25 of exhibit 6 (the "May 28 Letter") states the following:

Further to our meeting on Tuesday, May 27, 1998, (sic; May 26, 1998) we confirm that Concorde Square Limited undertakes to repair the water leaks identified on the attached schedule 1, which are all leaks known to us at this time.

Considerable work has been done on most of these leaks and, in some cases, the repair work has been flood tested with no further leakage. However, we acknowledge that the leaks cannot be fully tested until there is a severe storm.

If you provide us with a list of any further related leakage occurring after a severe storm, Concorde Square Limited will assign personnel to continue to try to find the cause and repair the leaks.

If you have any questions, please give me a call...

The Applicants' witnesses were Nick Tassone, Beryl Macleod, Ewald Pentzak, Frank Smith, Allan Steven, Bing Kwan, Shil Sanwalka, and Donna Farr. The witness for the Added Party was Paul Fortin. The Program did not call any witnesses.

Beryl Macleod

Ms. Macleod testified that she has been on the board of directors of M.T.C.C. #1101 since July 1995. The boards of directors of the Applicants always met together. A Technical Audit Sub-Committee (the "TAC") was formed in January 1997 by the two boards of directors to examine and understand all recommendations in the Medhurst Report, to interface with Concorde Square Limited ("CSL") as required, to interface with the ONHWP as required, and to report to the Joint Services Committee of the Applicants on arguments or disputes, all as set out at tab 3 of exhibit 6.

The subject of the Releases first came up on October 8, 1997, during a meeting of the Joint Technical Audit Committee of the Applicants (the "JTAC") , as reported at tab 13 of exhibit 6. The JTAC minutes state that it was agreed that a "letter of understanding" shall be sent from CSL to the presidents of M.T.C.C. #1101 and M.T.C.C. #1120 requesting their agreement that CSL's releases will be signed upon satisfactory correction of the deficiencies (as determined by the Courtyards' [Applicants'] TAC).

Legal advice was sought on November 6, 1997, from Mr. Stephen Karr, Barrister and Solicitor, as shown at tab 16 of exhibit 6. The form of the Release was approved by Mr. Karr, as confirmed at tab 20 of exhibit 6.

On May 28, 1998, Ms. Macleod received a memo to the Directors of M.T.C..C. No. 1101 & 1120 from J.T. Valley, shown on the first page of tab 25 of exhibit 6 (the "Varley Memo") together with enclosures such as the May 28 Letter and the May 27 letter from Mr. Fortin set out at that tab. She reviewed the package. The board of directors of the Applicants was divided on the question of deficiencies, especially leaks. The board heard from the TAC that CSL made oral and written commitments to continue to repair the leaks and the board then resolved that the Releases be signed by the presidents of the Applicants, Judge Lamb and Mr. Sanwalka, as stated at tab 27 of exhibit 6.

Ms. Macleod stated that the leaks were an almost separate item since they were ongoing from the start. Some corrected leaks reoccurred. After the Releases were signed, CSL continued to repair leaks. In September 2000, CSL indicated that it would no longer pay to fix water leaks.

The boards of the Applicants were aware of the ONHWP and its warranties. A representative from the ONHWP attended a meeting of the JTAC on September 10, 1997, to describe the role of the ONHWP and various warranties, as set out at tab 12 of exhibit 6. The Applicants had no dealings with the Program regarding the execution of the Releases.

Frank Smith

Mr. Smith joined the board of M.T.C.C. #1101 in the fall of 1996 and served on the board until June 2000. He is an electrical engineer and was a member of the TAC.

In September or October 1997, Mr. Fortin asked the TAC to request that the presidents of the Applicants sign the Releases.

At tab 14 of exhibit 6 appears a letter dated October 20, 1997, to Benjamin Lamb and Shil Sanwalka, the presidents of the Applicants. The letter sets out various deficiencies, excluding water leakage, and states that those items are the only outstanding work related to the Medhurst Report. When Mr. Smith was asked why he signed the letter that does not mention leaks, he stated that he had no idea of the seriousness of the water leaks.

Mr. Smith received the Varley Memo set out on the first page of tab 25 of exhibit 6.

The May 28 Letter was prepared and delivered the same day that the Releases were signed.

Allan Steven

Mr. Steven was the property manager of the buildings of the Applicants from October 1999 to June 2001.

A letter dated October 3, 2000, from Allan Steven to Paul Fortin, tab 9 of exhibit 11, states the following: "At a recent meeting of the Technical Management committee, it was understood that the leaks reported by the residents for which CSL was responsible, have been satisfactorily repaired. R.D.E INC has carried out this work extensively with great care and consideration on behalf of CSL." Mr. Steven stated that he drafted the letter, reviewed it with the boards of directors of the Applicants, and was authorized by the boards to send the letter.

Bing Kwan

Mr. Kwan is an electronics graduate. He was a member of the TAC.

M.T.C.C. #1101 was registered under the Condominium Act on December 21, 1995, as stated in exhibit 1. M.T.C.C. #1120 was likewise registered on May 14, 1996, as set out in exhibit 3.

Mr. Kwan also signed the letter of October 20, 1997 at tab 14 of exhibit 6, which does not mention water leaks among deficiencies and states that there is no other outstanding work related to the Medhurst Report. When asked why water leaks were not mentioned, Mr. Kwan said that the leaks were an ongoing issue, CSL was continually working on the leaks, the problem was being attended to and that they thought that the matter was already in hand.

When Mr. Kwan was asked why water leaks were not mentioned in Schedule "A" of the Releases, he said that they were an ongoing repair job already in hand.

Shil Sanwalka

Mr. Sanwalka was president of M.T.C.C. #1101 from 1998 to 2000. As such, he signed the release. He is a lawyer who has been practicing in Ontario since 1972.

Mr. Sanwalka has prepared releases in his private practice. He stated that Schedule "A" of the Releases does not mention water leaks because there was a separate letter, water leaks were an ongoing problem, and some leaks could not be determined without a storm. The May 28 Letter was not appended to the Releases; it was presented simultaneously with the Releases. There were no meetings with the Program regarding the Releases or the May 28 Letter.

Paul Fortin

Mr. Fortin is a Certified Management Accountant and a Professional Engineer with a degree in electrical engineering. He was vice-president of CSL from 1989 to January 1999.

At a meeting of the TAC in 1997 he requested execution of the releases. Mr. Fortin said, "We proposed it. ONHWP wanted to see a release so they would release our security." CSL had over five million in letters of credit with the Program.

Tab 25 of exhibit 6 is a letter dated May 27, 1998, from Mr. Fortin to Mr. Lamb and Mr. Sanwalka, presidents of the boards of the Applicants. The letter incorrectly refers to a meeting on May 27, 1998. The meeting was held on May 26, 1998. At that meeting, representatives of the condominium boards asked that water leaks be addressed. The May 27 letter states the following: "...we have prepared the following draft documents for your final review: 1. Revised Technical Audit Agreement and Release forms [the Releases] for each of the Condominiums incorporating: a) Payments of $17,500.00 to each of the Condominium Corporations; b) Changes to sections 6 and 10 to reflect Mr. Sanwalka's comments; and c) Changes to Schedule "A"...2. A side letter in which we undertake to make the necessary repairs to stop the known leaks which are identified in the attachment to the letter [Schedule "1" to the May 28 Letter]." The May 27 and May 28, 1998 Varley Memo and letters were drafted after the May 26, 1998 meeting. There were no communications regarding the meaning of the May 27, 1998 Varely Memo and the May 28 Letter from May 27, 1998 to June 2, 1998. The two items were first sent to the Program when these proceedings started.

CSL sent the Releases to the Program, as set out at tab 3 of exhibit 13. Its security filed with the Program was then further reduced.

After the Releases were signed, water leaks other than those identified on Schedule "1" of the May 28 Letter were dealt with. Mr. Fortin stated that they did not object, that they were trying to maintain their reputation and the work was not costing them a lot of money. They had unsold units and were mindful that most of their sales came from referrals.

LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, then stated the following:

11.(2) When a vendor enters into a contract for the sale of a home to an owner or for the construction of a home for an owner, the vendor shall deliver to the owner such documentation and notices respecting the Plan as are prescribed by the regulations.

13.(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

- (ii) is fit for habitation, and
- (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
- (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

(6) The warranties set out in subsection (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon.

14.(3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,

- (a) the person became the owner of the home through receiving a transfer of title to it from a vendor or through the substantial performance by a builder of a contract to construct the home on land owned by the person; and
- (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the cause may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

(7) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under this section.

15. For the purposes of sections 13 and 14, a condominium corporation shall be deemed to be the owner of the common elements of the condominium and the warranties take effect on the date of the registration of the declaration and description.

16.(3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

Regulation 892 under the Act adds the following:

1. In this Regulation,
"major structural defect" means , for the purposes of clause 13(1)(b) of the Act, any defect in work or materials,
(a) that results in failure of the load-bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load-bearing functions, or
(b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended,...

15. (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
(a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;
(e) that the home is free of major structural defects.
(3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession, in respect of homes that were enrolled, or should have been enrolled, after the 31st day of December, 1990.

16. Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990, the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession.

CASELAW:

In Mandos v. Ontario New Home Warranty Program, [1995] O.J. No. 3647, the Ontario Court of Appeal stated:

"Subsection 13(6) of the Act is a difficult subsection to construe. However, we believe that the interpretation given to it by counsel for the respondents is a proper one, i.e., that the warranties contained in s. 13(1) continue in force, irrespective of any agreement by the parties to the contrary....When a mutual release is executed between an owner and a builder, it is quite possible, as in the present case, that there may be defects which could only be discovered by reasonable inspection. If it is the intention of the legislature that a release should be a bar to any action by an owner for breach of warranties in s. 13(1), then, in our opinion, the legislation should clearly so provide and owners should be warned of the dangers in entering into a release."

The Divisional Court previously said in the case, [1993] O.J. No. 2090:

"Assuming, without deciding, that the Mandos were competent to contract out of the provisions of s. 13(6) of the Act under the particular circumstances, we are of the view that such contracting out could only be valid if it could be shown that the Mandos were fully aware of the rights afforded to them by s. 13(6) of the Act and equally aware of the potential consequences flowing from their decision to give up those rights. That of course is not the evidence. Indeed, it is apparent that neither Mr. or Mrs. Mandos nor their solicitor were aware of the protection afforded by the Act when the release was executed. No doubt, this lack of knowledge stemmed in large part from the failure of the builder/vendor to comply with the provisions of s. 11(2) of the Act....In this case, the builder/vendor failed to provide Mr. And Mrs. Mandos with the requisite material."

A recital of the facts indicated that in order to vacate a construction lien, the Mandos agreed to pay $5,000 to the builder.

Similarly, in Holburn (Re), [1996] O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 37, the Tribunal stated:

"In the circumstances of this case, where one of the joint owners of the property did not sign the Release, where the Release was signed without benefit of legal advice and without knowledge that any rights against the Program would be waived and where it was signed under duress due to the 12 inches of water in the basement, it is the Tribunal's view that the Release signed did not extinguish the Applicant's right to claims against the Guarantee Fund."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

This case is distinguishable from Mandos v. Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("Mandos"). In this case the Applicants were aware of the warranties under the Act. In Mandos neither the purchasers nor their solicitor was aware of the protection afforded by the Act when the release was executed. In Mandos the builder failed to provide requisite material under s. 11(2) of the Act. Such was not the case here. In Mandos the purchasers made a payment to the builder. Here there was payment made by CSL to the Applicants. In Mandos there were defects which could only be discovered by reasonable inspection. In this case, the Medhurst report on defects had been completed prior to signing of the release. In addition, the TAC of the Applicants studied the Medhurst report in detail and reported to the boards of the Applicants before recommending to those boards that the release be signed.

Similarly, this case is different from Holburn (Re), where one of the joint owners of the property did not sign the release, where the release was signed without benefit of legal advice and without knowledge that any rights against the Program would be waived and where it was signed under duress due to the 12 inches of water in the basement. In this case, the proper parties signed the Release, legal advice was obtained by the Applicants prior to signing, the Release was approved by the lawyer for the Applicants, a judge and an experienced lawyer were among the signors of the Release, and there was no duress against the Applicants.

Incidentally, the Licence Appeal Tribunal rules encourage parties to settle. Section 13(6) must be read in the context of the entire Act. It would be impossible to properly administer the Act if no disputes could be settled by the parties and all disputes had to be resolved by the Tribunal.

Here the Releases were signed after the two-year warranty under the Act had expired. There was no waiver of warranties signed at the time of purchase.

Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Releases are binding.

The essence of a release is the release of a claim. Since the deficiencies described in Schedule "A" of the Releases were corrected, paragraph 6 purports to release CSL from the Claim, which includes defects identified in the Medhurst Report, including the subject matter of this hearing. If CSL is released then the Program is also released. Paragraph 7b must be read in this context.

The Tribunal notes that paragraph 7b gives an example of a claim that is to remain in effect: "any major structural defect in materials or workmanship in the original construction of the building which defect materially and adversely affects the use of the common elements in accordance with the definition of a 'major structural defect' as defined under the Act." The seven-year warranty for major structural defects had not expired and it makes sense to keep such claims in effect. The Tribunal interprets paragraph 7b as also preserving in effect any major structural defect that is a defect in work or materials that results in the failure of the load-bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load-bearing function.

This Tribunal interprets "any proper and valid claim ...arising from the operation of warranties still in effect under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act" in paragraph 7b as referring only to claims arising from warranties that have not yet expired. This Tribunal holds that paragraph 7b does not refer to claims still in effect arising under the one- or two-year warranty, which warranties are no longer "still in effect". The Tribunal then reads section 10 of the Releases as releasing the Program from claims under the one- and two-year warranties under the Act.

Paragraph 13 of the Releases is an entire agreement clause. It states that the Releases can be amended by a separate memorandum in writing signed by all the parties to the Release. The May 28 Letter is not signed by the Applicants and is not an amendment of the Releases.

In the event that this Tribunal is wrong and the Releases are not clear and their provisions are ambiguous, this Tribunal makes the following observations on the extrinsic evidence. The Releases do not mention the May 28 Letter. The May 28 Letter does not mention the Releases. The two writings were not sent to the Program together and they are not part of the same agreement. The May 27, 1998, letter found at tab 25 of exhibit 6 states that sections 6 and 10 of the Releases were amended to reflect Mr. Sanwalka's comments at the May 26 meeting. Clearly, the Releases could have been amended to include the water leaks that were discussed at that same May 26 meeting. CSL wanted a reduction in security held by the Program. The effect of the parties including water leaks in the May 28 Letter, excluding water leaks from the Releases, and forwarding only the Releases without the May 28 Letter to the Program was to mislead the Program. After receipt of the Releases, the Program changed its position to its detriment in reasonable reliance on the Releases. As expected by the parties, the Program reduced its security relating to CSL. The Applicants received the benefit of payments under the Releases. Estoppel should be applied against the Applicants.

In summary, the Releases are binding and preclude the Applicants' claim under section 14 of the Act. No continuation of the hearing is necessary.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

TRIBUNAL: Marjorie Hiley, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: ROBERT J. VALLERIANI, on his own behalf.
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: October 4, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") respecting a Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, dated April 22, 2002. The Registrar proposed the revocation of the registration 1145082 Ontario Limited o/a Bridlewood Auto Brokers (the "Dealer") as a motor vehicle dealer and further proposed to revoke the registration of Robert J. Valleriani ("the Salesperson") as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act. Since the Salesperson is the sole officer/director of the Dealer, they will be both referred to as the Applicant. The basis of this proposal was that the Applicant lacks financial responsibility and had failed to conduct business in accordance with the law with integrity and honesty.

ISSUE:

Preliminary Issue:

The Applicant requested an adjournment due to his counsel being unavailable. Whereas the hearing was set as peremptory, and whereas the Applicant's counsel advised the Tribunal that he will not represent the Applicant, and whereas some witnesses had traveled in some instances a lengthy distance, and whereas the Applicant had more than five months to retain Legal Counsel, the Tribunal hereby denies the Applicant's request.

Witnesses were excluded as requested by the Registrar.

Have 1145082 Ontario Limited o/a Bridlewood Auto Brokers and Robert Valleriani contravened Section 5 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, (the Act)?

If the Applicant has violated Section 5 of the Act, should the motor vehicle dealer licence and motor vehicle salesperson license be revoked?

REGISTRAR'S PARTICULARS:

The following is the rationale offered by the Registrar for their proposal:

1145082 Ontario Limited (the Dealer) is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer and has been registered since December 1, 1998.

The Dealer originally operated under the name "Quality Transportation" which was subsequently changed to "Bridlewood Auto Brokers" on November 27, 2001.

Robert J. Valleriani is currently registered as a motor vehicle salesperson since on or before September 30, 1985. He is currently registered as a salesperson to the Dealer.

The Applicant Salesperson is the sole officer/director of the corporation.

The Applicant Salesperson declared bankruptcy on February 15, 2002.

The OMVIC (The Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council) has received several complaints with respect to the Applicant not acting with financial responsibility.

The OMVIC was contacted by Dufferin Mazda, a registered dealer in May 2001, due to an NSF cheque provided to them for payment of vehicles purchased by the Dealer.

The OMVIC was also contacted by Toronto E Auto Limited, a registered dealer in Ontario, as a result of the Dealer not paying monies owing to them for vehicles sold on consignment on Toronto E's behalf. The amount of outstanding funds was approximately $10, 400.00.

THE OMVIC was further contacted by consumer Rui Moniz, concerning a truck (VIN: 1GCVHK392WF054816), which he had left with the Applicant to sell on consignment.

Although the Applicant had sold the vehicle to another consumer, on or about September 26, 2001, Mr. Moniz has not been able to collect the amount of approximately, $23,500.00 from the Dealer or Salesperson.

The Applicant has made numerous promises to OMVIC staff to repay monies owing to Mr. Moniz, but to date, no payments have been made, and all funds remain outstanding.

The Dealer has failed to comply with the requirements of the Retail Sales Tax Act as to the filing of returns, remitting of tax due and paying of assessments when due.

The Salesperson is an undischarged bankrupt.

EVIDENCE:

Witness John Jamieson, Unionville Motors Dealer, testified that the Dealer, Applicant Mr. Valleriani, gave him a promissory note for $43,480.50 for receipt of vehicles. (Exhibit 6 tab14) He further stated that he was given NSF cheques, and that a balance is still outstanding.

Witness, Marilyn Blazevic, Ministry of Finance, Field Investigator stated that the Applicant is twenty-nine months in arrears of sales tax. That he had an obligation to file remittances on a monthly basis, which he failed to do. She also stated that he had collected tax monies but did not remit them to the Ministry of Finance. He is indebted to the Ministry of Finance, Ontario, in the amount of $15,419.87 for the period from June 1998 to June 30, 2002 (Exhibit 5 tab 12). The arrears she stated for tax collected and not remitted is subject to a penalty, and interest resulting in the amount outstanding being $153,700.00, for the period from October 25, 1995 to June 30, 2002. (Exhibit 8)

Witness, Rui Moniz, stated that he left his 1998 (4x4) Chevy Silverado Pickup with the Applicant to sell on consignment for approximately, $23,500.00. which he learned had been sold by the Applicant, however Mr. Moniz has not been able to collect the monies owing to him. The witness testified that he received from the Applicant, delays, NSF cheques, a stop payment of a cheque, and excuses for the same. (Exhibit 5 tab7).

Witness, Laura Gordon, Director of Compliance since 1997, and now Field Investigator, reviewed the Applicant's past conduct and stated that there were serious concerns regarding the best interests of the public in this matter.

She stated that there had been no disclosure regarding an odometer problem as had been alleged by the Applicant with respect to Mr. Moniz's vehicle.

Witness, Robert J. Valleriani, for the Applicant stated that he has been licensed since 1985 as a dealer and never had any complaints. He alleged that in 1996, stolen vehicles had been sold to him and he had to pay back the customers $150,000. He entered the restaurant business, as a shareholder. The business failed, resulting in lost money.

He stated that he suspects that the odometer on Mr. Moniz's pick up truck had been tampered. That was his reasoning for placing a stop payment on one of the cheques he had given Mr. Moniz.

He stated that since he is bankrupt he is working for another dealer for approximately $3000.00 to $4000.00, a month, gross.

The Applicant requested that his salesperson's licence not be revoked, because selling cars is all he wants to do for a living.

ANALYSIS AND ORDER

The relevant legislation is the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

- 5(1) an applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty;
- (2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.
- 7. (4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.
- (5) The Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration, as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

Under the Retail Sales Act the relevant sections are as follows:

- s.10 every vendor is an agent of the Minister and as such shall levy and collect the taxes imposed by this Act upon the purchaser or consumer.
- s.15 every vendor shall make returns and shall keep such records in the form and substances as are prescribed by the regulations; any failure so to do constitutes an offence against this Act.
- s.18(1) Where a vendor fails to make a return or a remittance as required under this Act or if the returns are not substantiated by the vendor's records; the Minister may make an assessment of the tax collected by such vendor for which the vendor has not accounted and such assessed amount shall thereupon be deemed to be the tax collected by the vendor.
- s.18(9) every person assessed under this section shall pay to the Minister the amount assessed whether or not an objection to or an appeal from , the assessment is outstanding.
- s.22(1) every vendor who collects any tax under this Act shall be deemed to hold it in trust for Her Majesty in right of Ontario and is responsible for the payment of it in the manner and time provided under this Act and the regulations.

The Motor Vehicle Act s 5 (1) (a) and (b) apply to the following:

1. The Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible. He is an undischarged bankrupt.
2. The Applicant issued NSF cheques to various persons while transacting business, and when approached by the consumer regarding the NSF cheques, he always had an excuse and promised to make good. In most instances the result was the issuance of further NSF cheques.
3. He received vehicles on consignment, and sold them to other consumers while issuing NSF cheques to the original owners. In one instance he placed a stop payment on a cheque for a truck he purchased, stating odometer tampering. Interestingly however, he sold that vehicle.

The Retail Sales Act s.10, 15, 18(1), (9) and s.22(1) apply to the following:

1. The Applicant Dealer is indebted to the Ministry of Finance in the amount of $15, 419.87 and is in default of filing Retail Sales Tax Returns.

2. The Applicant Salesperson gave the impression that he was unaware that he should file a tax assessment even if he did not realize any sales.

We are of the opinion that the Witnesses' testimony regarding their experiences with the Applicant, i.e. unfulfilled promises and N.S.F. cheques are consistent with the entered Exhibits. Their retelling of their experiences with the Applicant was clear, concise and consistent.

The Applicant however, when attempting to explain why he acted in the manner he did in business transactions, blamed others repeatedly for his actions. He blamed the purchase of stolen vehicles, which he sold and had to make good on to, whomever sold him the vehicles in the first place. He reasoned that he thought that the NSF cheques would somehow be acceptable until he could make them good. He stated that he issued a stop payment on a vehicle he sold because of odometer tampering, although he kept the money realized from the sale. He blamed a restaurant investment that went sour, and that he has been attempting to recover monies from the partner in that venture.

When confronted with the fact that he had not filed or remitted tax collected on sold vehicles for some time, stated that he was unaware that he had to file a tax report. The Applicant all through his testimony failed to accept responsibility for his actions or lack thereof and repeatedly blamed others for his financial behavior.

Considering the above, we do not accept the testimony of Robert J. Valleriani on behalf of the Applicant as credible and trustworthy.

We are instructed by the relevant legislation in the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, as it applies to the Applicant.

- (a) Having regard to the Applicant's financial position, he cannot be reasonably expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.
- (b) The past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty.

The Tribunal has taken into consideration all of the above and is of the opinion that although we feel sorry for the Applicant, we are of the opinion that he is the author of his own misfortune. He exhibited financial irresponsibility in his business dealings. He did not honor his obligations as they pertained to promises, debts or obligations.

The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a consumer protection statute, and the Tribunal as well as the Registrar must be assured that the consumer is protected from such irresponsibility.

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal to revoke the registration of 1145082 Ontario Limited o/a Bridlewood Auto Brokers as a motor vehicle dealer and to revoke the registration of Robert J. Valleriani as a motor vehicle salesperson.

RAYMOND AND MARGUERITE MARTIN

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: DEREK ISRAEL, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

RAYMOND AND MARGUERITE MARTIN, representing themselves
CAROL STREET, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
PETER MAXWELL, the Added Party, representing himself

DATE OF
HEARING: October 28 and 29, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated May 27, 2002 wherein the claim of Raymond and Marguerite Martin (the "Applicants") was denied.

THE ISSUES:

The Applicants' appeal is based upon the provisions of Section 13(1)(a) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") as well as Section 14(3) of that Act.

The Applicants claim that they and Peter Maxwell ("Maxwell") entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale regarding a residential home at 25 Hamilton Avenue in the town of Cobourg, Ontario (the "home"). After taking possession of the home, the Applicants became aware of defects in the home which they contend were due to defective workmanship of Maxwell relative to the stucco cladding on the exterior of the home. The defect in workmanship constituted, according to the Applicants, a breach of warranty in terms of Section 14(3) of the Act entitling them to damages. The Program, in its decision letter of May 27, 2002 denied the Applicants' claim and gave as its reasons for denying their claim the following:

The stucco cladding on the exterior of the building was not installed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code. It has detached from the gypsum backing in numerous locations. Where the stucco has detached the exterior layer of paper on the gypsum board has peeled off leaving the interior gypsum exposed to the elements causing it to deteriorate. The stucco has cracked at most of the junctions between the sheets of gypsum board as well as at all corners. The application of the exterior stucco has not been done in accordance with the Ontario Building Code. Defects in material and work have resulted in detachment, displacement and physical deterioration of the cladding.

The house does not qualify for warranty under the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act because it was occupied as a rental unit prior to re-sale to the current owners.

THE EVIDENCE:

Evidence Presented By The Applicants:

Raymond Martin

Applicant Raymond Martin ("Martin") testified that he and his wife, Marguerite, were initially shown through the home on September 8, 2000 by Sherry Wickins a sales representative employed by the real estate agent handling the home's sale. At that time Martin saw no furniture in the home. He did go into the home's basement where he saw some building materials and a bar. The Applicants viewed the home and put in an offer to purchase the home on that day and on September 9, 2000 their offer was accepted by Maxwell. Possession of the home was to be given on November 1, 2000. On October 6, 2000 the Applicants returned to the home accompanied by Sherry Wickins and Mike O'Grady, a home inspector hired by the Applicants to do the home inspection. On this occasion Martin did not observe that the home had been lived in although he did see a mattress on the floor of the main bedroom and a two ring hotplate on top of a counter in the kitchen. Martin further testified that at some later date in October 2000 he and his wife returned to the home together with Sherry Wickins. On that occasion they met with Mrs. Pat Maxwell, Maxwell's mother, who was then in the home. From briefly speaking with Mrs. Maxwell, the Applicants learned that she and her husband were waiting to move into their new home and while so waiting were living in the home of her son at 25 Hamilton Avenue. Martin stated that he and his wife were not informed that the Maxwell's were renting the home from their son. On October 23, 2000 the Applicants moved into the home although the transaction only closed on November 1, 2000 when title passed to the Applicants.

Under cross examination Martin was shown by the Program's Counsel exhibits 5(a) through 5(i) being photographs of the exterior of the home (exhibit 5(a)) and some eight further photographs of the home's interior rooms (exhibits 5(b) through 5(i)). Counsel informed Martin that these photographs were downloaded from the internet on September 7, 2000 and represent a virtual tour of the home. Martin noted the existence of certain furnishings that appeared on certain of the photographs, notably photograph 5(c) depicting the home's dining area, photograph 5(d) the home's living room area (the dining and living room areas being contained in one large room), and photograph 5(i) being the home's third bedroom. Martin, on being shown the photographs, stated that when he viewed the home on September 8, 2000 the furniture shown in certain photographs was not seen by him or his wife. He also stated that he saw no stove, fridge or microwave in the home when he was in the home prior to taking occupation.

Garry Lynn Liboiron

The next person to testify for the Applicants was Garry Lynn Liboiron ("Liboiron") a real estate broker and owner of Century 21, Real Estate Agents of Cobourg who was the listing agent of the home.

Liboiron testified that the home was initially listed with his agency from May 27 to August 30, 2000 but the listing was extended after the latter date. Liboiron was of the opinion that the home was being used as a residential home and that upon Maxwell's parents, Gerry and Pat Maxwell moving into the home it became a rental. When making appointments to show the home he was obliged to make such appointments with Gerry Maxwell by telephoning the latter. Liboiron further stated that he did speak with Marguerite Martin and he told her that Maxwell did live in the home prior to Maxwell's parents living in the home.

In cross examination Liboiron stated that when he obtained the listing he retained a firm to produce a video of a virtual tour of the home which was then available on Liboiron's firm's web site. He visited the home after the video had been taken and he viewed the home. When he viewed the home he observed it was partially furnished. The video of the home is represented by photographs being Exhibits 5(a) through 5(i). Liboiron upon being shown the above exhibits during cross-examination confirmed that they accurately reflected the furniture in the home when he visited the home after its listing in May 2000. However, he could not attest to what furniture there was in the home as at September 9, 2000 but does recollect that in addition to the furniture shown in the various above photographs there was a telephone in the home and that the garage was full of Maxwell's parents' furniture. There was no question in his opinion that Maxwell's parents were staying in the home prior to its purchase by the Applicants.

In answer to a question put to him by Maxwell in cross examination, Liboiron stated he believed the home was occupied as the listing notice (Exhibit 3, tab 10) shows the home as "owner occupied."

Sherry Wickins

Sherry Wickins ("Wickins") also testified on behalf of the Applicants and stated she was a sales representative with Century 21, Cobourg. She showed the Applicants the home on September 8, 2000. At that time the home was without furniture other than a mattress on the floor of a bedroom and a hot plate and computer table and computer.

Wickins stated she was never told the home was a rental. She did know that Maxwell's parents were staying in the home and she had met Pat Maxwell, Maxwell's mother, at the home. She knew that Maxwell's parents were using the home while waiting for their home to be completed and she also knew she was selling the home "as a resale home." She also testified that she had been told that Maxwell had himself occupied the home and that, according to what Maxwell's mother had told her, Maxwell had constructed the home for his own occupation.

Mike O'Grady

O'Grady stated he is a registered home inspector who inspected the home for the Applicants on October 6, 2000. His inspection lasted about three hours. He recollected the home was then "sparsely furnished" with a mattress on the floor of a bedroom as well as a 2 burner hot plate. He also recollects seeing a table in a room adjacent to the kitchen but does not recollect seeing a bar in the basement. His interest in doing the inspection was regarding the home itself and not its furnishings.

Evidence Presented By The Program:

Leonard Raymond Dean

Leonard Raymond Dean ("Dean") testified that he is an investigator with the Program and his duties are to look into potential violations under the Act, to ensure compliance with the Act and further ensure that a home qualifies for warranty coverage in terms of the Act. Dean reviewed notes made by him contemporaneously with the events recorded therein and reviewed such notes during his testimony.

On April 12, 2000, in the course of his investigation, he drove by the home and determined the home's construction was incomplete. No for sale sign was posted. There was no indication that the home was then occupied.

On July 7, 2000 he observed from the roadway that a "for sale" sign appeared outside the home and noted the home was then complete. He was uncertain if the home was then occupied. Exterior landscaping was complete. He did take a photograph of the home as it then appeared from the roadway (Exhibit 5(a), top photograph).

On July 24, 2000 he returned to the home and noted that the "for sale" sign was still in place. He met with building inspector Mike Sinclair, who told him that an occupancy permit had been issued that day. Sinclair also told him that he had seen minimal furniture in the home and was uncertain if any person was then in occupation.

Dean continued to testify that he revisited the home on August 14, 2000 and took a photograph of the home from the road. (Exhibit 5(a) bottom.) On September 6, 2000 he again visited the home and made a site inspection, noting that there were two chairs on the deck, flowers in a planter and a hose affixed to a faucet at the rear of the home.

On September 7, 2000 Dean stated that he visited the website of Liboiron and viewed a virtual tour of the home. He downloaded copies of photographs of the virtual tour from the website. These photographs are reproduced at Exhibit 5(a) through 5(i) and show certain rooms in the home and which rooms were furnished and if furnished the nature of the furnishings as seen on the photographs downloaded.

On November 16, 2000 he again went to the home and met with James Martin whom he took to be the new owner. He was informed by James Martin that he had moved into the home on November 9, 2000 and had been told by Maxwell and the real estate agent that Maxwell's father had lived in the home for 7 ½ weeks while his home was being completed. James Martin also informed Dean that he saw a small cot, television set and a couple of pots in the kitchen and not much else.

On January 16, 2001 he met with Gerry Maxwell who confirmed to him that he occupied the home for approximately one to one and a half months during the summer of 2000 and that he paid his son $1000.00 for rental.

Dean continued to testify that, on his superiors' instructions, he reopened his investigation and spoke with Liboiron on May 21, 2002 who confirmed that he was aware that Maxwell had furniture in the home and garage and did occupy the home prior to the sale. He was also aware that Maxwell's father and mother occupied the home prior to its sale and had also stored furniture in the garage.

On May 22, 2002 Dean also met with one Hendrik Vermeer, a neighbour of Maxwell, who confirmed that Maxwell's father and mother did occupy the home for several weeks in summer 2000. Vermeer thought they were "camping" as opposed to actual occupancy. Vermeer was also aware Maxwell himself "stayed overnight while constructing the house but did not believe he was living in the home." Vermeer had been in the home and did see a small amount of furniture in the home but did not recall seeing kitchen appliances.

Dean testified that he did not pursue charges against Maxwell under the Act as he considered that the chances of a successful prosecution were slim. He also acquired a copy of the Maxwell's parents' cheque for $1000.00 dated September 18, 2000 payable to Maxwell, their son, which was tendered and accepted in evidence. (Exhibit 7)

On September 3, 2002 Dean spoke with Maxwell who stated, in reply to Dean's queries, that he moved into the home towards the end of December 1999 and remained in the home until about the end of September 2000. He had a New Years Eve party in the home's basement in December 1999. During the time his parents occupied the home Maxwell's furniture remained in the home. Maxwell's parents vacated the home about a week or two prior to November 1, 2000 and moved to a rented condominium prior to moving to their new premises.

Dean also contacted Mrs. Maxwell on September 3, 2002 who stated that she and her husband moved into her son's home in early September 2000 and vacated the home about the last week of October 2000. She stated that she met the Applicants when they were shown the home. At that time she and her husband were living in the home.

Dean was also told by Maxwell when he spoke with him on September 26, 2002 that "he did not have much furniture to begin with" and it was all in the home including a fridge, stove, microwave and small appliances. All were removed when the home was sold and they have all been sold.

In the course of his investigation Dean called upon Frank Lukes, the chief building officer of the Town of Cobourg who advised Dean that it is not unusual for people to occupy a home prior to closing and that the delay in time between the home's drywalling on November 1999 and the issuing of an occupancy permit in July 2000 was due to Maxwell delaying in having called for a final inspection which would have resulted in the issuance of an occupancy permit.

Dean concluded his testimony by stating that Maxwell's registration enabling him to build homes expired in February 2000.

Evidence Presented By Maxwell:

The builder of the home, Peter Maxwell, who by Notice dated July 26, 2002 was added as a party under Section 16(4) of the Act, had the following persons testify on his behalf.

Gerald Maxwell

Gerald Maxwell testified to being the father of Maxwell and that he and his wife, Patricia moved into the home on approximately September 9, 2000. He was building a new residence and while waiting for it to be completed he and Patricia moved into the home. Their telephone was moved from the residence they had recently left and was reinstalled on September 22, 2000 under the same number in the home. (Exhibit 10, page 2) He also handed in as evidence a cancelled cheque in favour of his son, Peter Maxwell, for $1000.00 and dated September 18, 2000 which represented Gerald and Patricia Maxwell's rental for the home. There was no notation on the face of the cheque that such payment represented rent. There was no "formal" rental agreement with their son who had been employed by him in his lumber business in Cobourg. His son moved into the home in time for the New Year's Eve party at the end of December 1999 and in May of 2000 listed the home for sale.

Gerald Maxwell was shown the photographs at exhibits 5(b) through 5(i) and stated that the furniture shown in those photographs is consistent with what was in the home when his son occupied the home. In the summer of 2000 his son commenced working in Waterloo and at the end of summer 2000 when he went to Humber College he moved some furniture out of the home. On August 30, 2000 he (Gerald) had received an offer to purchase his house which offer he accepted with a closing date in September of 2000. He and his wife then moved into the home of their son on September 22, 2000 where they stayed until October 25 that year when they moved out of the home. When he and his wife moved into the home on September 22, 2000 they stored some of their furniture and belongings but moved their double bed into the home and stocked the fridge with groceries.

Sharlene Michele McHolm

Sharlene Michele McHolm testified that during the period December 1999 to November 2000 she and Maxwell were dating each other and during that time she visited regularly with Maxwell and estimated that she visited Maxwell at the home on about fifty occasions. She considered the home to be the home of Maxwell until the end of August 2000 when he vacated the home and moved to Etobicoke in order study at Humber college. She considered Maxwell's style of living to be that of "a typical unmarried male - minimum of possessions and sparse living". She did not reside with Maxwell at the home.

In cross-examination she stated that when Maxwell resided in the home there was a fridge and stove in the home although such appliances were not there when Maxwell's parents occupied the home having already been removed by Maxwell before his parents moved into the home.

She observed that after holding the New Year's Eve party at the end of December 1999 Maxwell moved a small amount of furniture into the home.

Maxwell lived at the home "full time" from January to May 2000 and from May to August 2000 he worked a couple of days per week in Waterloo. While working in Waterloo his possessions and furniture remained in the home.

From about September 22, 2000 to about October 24, 2000 Maxwell's parents were staying in the home but did not move their furniture into the home.

Peter Maxwell

Maxwell stated that during September and October 1999 the requisite building permits were issued by the Town of Cobourg for the home. He had purchased the land in June 1999. (Exhibit 3, Tabs 2 and 4)

On November 10 and 17, 1999 building inspector Sinclair held inspections of the home then under construction. These inspections related to the structural framing of the home and the installation of insulation/vapour barrier in the home. The home passed both the above inspections.

While construction of the home was in progress Maxwell resided with his parents, Gerry and Pat, at 35 Tremaine Terrace, Cobourg and in about Christmas of 1999 he moved into the home where he hosted a New Years Eve party.

By February, 2000 the home was mainly complete other than the rear deck which was completed in May 2000. During February 2000 his father, Garry, sold his lumber business in Cobourg and Maxwell's employment at his father's lumber business came to an end.

An occupancy permit was issued on July 7, 2000. (Exhibit 4)

On November 4, 1999 Maxwell had insured the home with Hamilton Township Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company during the home's construction and on February 29, 2000 that cover was changed to a comprehensive homeowner's insurance policy. On July 20, 2000 this policy was extended to September 12, 2001. (Exhibit 3, tab 7)

Maxwell referred to a hydro bill from the Public Utilities Commission of Cobourg addressed to him and covering water and hydro used in the home during December 20, 1999 to February 17, 2000. This bill, entered as evidence, was paid by Maxwell. (Exhibit 3, tab 8)

Maxwell also handed in as evidence a bill addressed to him which he received from Northumberland Cable TV of Cobourg relative to cable TV for the home for the period July 1, 2000 to October 1, 2000. (Exhibit 11)

Maxwell further handed in as evidence certain invoices he received from Union Gas in respect of gas supplied to the home for the period April 17, 2000 to May 16, 2000. (Exhibit 12)

Under cross-examination by the Program's Counsel Maxwell confirmed that photographs shown in Exhibit 5 accurately show the furniture in the home at the time that the photographs were taken.

Insofar as the exterior stucco on the house is concerned, the application thereof was done by Maxwell together with the assistance of a friend. This was the first occasion that he had installed stucco and in applying the stucco he followed the manufacturer's instructions. He did not follow the Ontario Building Code. The exterior stucco was completed in October 1999.

When his father's lumber business was sold in February 2000 and his employment ended Maxwell decided to take employment with his brother in Waterloo. He commenced working in Waterloo in May 2000 and it was at about this time that he decided to sell the home. On May 27, 2000 he listed the home with Century 21, Cobourg. When he entered Humber College as of September 2000 he moved to an apartment in Etobicoke.

Maxwell stated that on August 30, 2000 his parents had accepted an offer on their home and they then commenced to have a new home constructed. On September 9, 2000, the day he (Maxwell) accepted the Applicants' offer for the home, Maxwell's parents commenced moving some of their belongings into the home. On September 18, 2000 his parents gave him a cheque for $1000.00 for the use of the home. (Exhibit 7)

Maxwell stated that while he had a "full complement" of appliances in the home in the kitchen, the small amount of furniture that is shown in the photographs (Exhibit 5) is indicative of his "style of living" to which he is accustomed.

At the conclusion of Maxwell's evidence, the Program's Counsel informed the Tribunal that Maxwell did not accept the correctness of the Program's decision letter insofar as the installation of the home's stucco was concerned and was disputing the Program's position that it was not installed according to the Ontario Building Code and that there were defects in material and work which resulted in detachment, displacement and physical deterioration of the cladding. Accordingly, the Program's Counsel indicated that the Program was calling one Wendy Skyba to testify on behalf of the Program as to its position on the stucco and the reasons for the Program considering it to be defective or in non-compliance with the Ontario Building Code. With the concurrence of the Tribunal, Wendy Skyba took the stand and gave the following testimony.

Wendy Skyba

Skyba testified that she is a warranty representative with the Program and has been with the Program in that capacity for the past three and one half years. As a warranty representative she inspects, on average, twelve to twenty homes per month. Prior to her present employment with the Program she was a building inspector in Sudbury in which position she was required to be knowledgeable in regard to the Ontario Building Code. Prior to her position in Sudbury she was employed in the building industry as a construction site supervisor. In total she has about fifteen years experience in the industry.

In her present employment with the Program she was assigned to investigate the Applicants' complaint regarding the stucco applied to the home's exterior. She confirmed that the Applicants' claim was received by the Program in the first year after possession of the home. On May 10, 2002 pursuant to a request for conciliation, an inspection of the home was held. Maxwell although notified of the date and time of the inspection, did not attend the conciliation inspection. On inspection she determined that the stucco applied to the home's exterior did not comply with the requirements of the Ontario Building Code (the "Code"). She noted that no lath (galvanized metal) had been used in the application of the stucco as required by the Code.

Skyba further stated that the Code called for the stucco to be applied with at least 2 base coats and one finish coat. The 2 base coats were each to be no less than 1/4" thick and the finish coat was to be no less than 1/8" thick. The three coats in total were to be no less than 5/8" in thickness. From her observations the stucco installed by Maxwell was less than 1/4" thick "in its entirety." Furthermore the joints of gypsum material used in the stucco construction were observed to be "opened and cracked" and the stucco cladding had detached from the gypsum backing in numerous locations. There was peeling of the exterior layer of paper on the gypsum board resulting in the interior gypsum being exposed to the elements causing deterioration. She considered there were, besides contraventions of the Code, defects in the material used and work done, all of which have resulted in detachments, displacement and physical deterioration of the cladding.

Skyba produced a series of photographs of the exterior stucco cladding in support of her contentions. (Exhibit 13)

She also testified that the Program had received from the Applicants a copy of a quotation dated April 17, 2002 from Sica Masonry and General Contractor (2002 Ltd.) addressed to the Applicants. This quotation for the removal and disposal of the existing stucco, installation of new exterior plywood sheeting and provision and application of 3 coat stucco gave a total contract price of $43,800.00 excluding G.S.T. She considered this quotation to be reasonable. If the deck needed to be removed and alterations were necessary to the aluminum soffit a further cost of $10,000.00 was not unreasonable. (Exhibit 3, tab 19)

After speaking with her superior she authored and sent the Program's decision letter of May 27, 2002 to the Applicants in which the Program denied liability as the home did not qualify under the Act for warranty coverage as it was occupied as a rental property prior to its "resale" to the Applicants.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts the Tribunal found to have been proven.

1. Maxwell was registered as a builder under the Act until February 15, 2000 when his registration expired.
2. The home was not enrolled by Maxwell under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan.
3. Maxwell in or about September/October 1999 applied for and received from the Corporation of the Town of Cobourg the necessary building permits in respect of the construction of the home.
4. On September 23, 1999 Maxwell signed and completed a declaration when applying for the issue of building permits for the home in which declaration he declared that he was not acting as a "vendor" or "builder" of the home.

5. On or about New Years Eve 1999 Maxwell held a party in the basement of the home which was then not fully constructed.
6. On July 7, 2000 the Corporation of the Town of Cobourg issued an occupancy permit in respect of the home.
7. During the period January 2000 until May 2000 Maxwell resided at the home. During this period there was a fridge and a stove in the home's kitchen and there was in addition a certain small amount of furniture in the home consisting of:
 - (a) certain 4 chairs and a table, a floor rug, swivel recliner and an ottoman in the dining area;
 - (b) a sofa, two standing lamps, rug and TV set in the living room which is part of the dining room;
 - (c) a wooden book case in the front hall;

8. In or about March 2000, after Maxwell's father's lumber business was sold and Maxwell's employment in that business terminated, he applied to Humber College to commence studies in September, 2000.
9. At or about the beginning of May 2000 Maxwell took employment in Waterloo and remained in that employment during the summer of 2000.
10. During the period May through August 2000 Maxwell resided during the week in Waterloo returning to the home during some weekends
11. On May 27, 2000 Maxwell listed the home for sale with Century 21, Cobourg.

13. Maxwell's parents lived in the home from September 22, 2000 until October 25, 2000.

14. The stucco cladding to the home's exterior was applied by Maxwell contrary to the requirements of and in violation of the Ontario Building Code and the cladding was not constructed and affixed in a workmanlike manner by Maxwell.

THE LAW:

The Act's relevant portions are:

"builder" means a person who undertakes the performance of all the work and supply of all the materials necessary to construct a completed home whether for the purpose of sale by the person or under a contract with a vendor or owner; home" means,

- (a) a self-contained one-family dwelling, detached or attached to one or more others by common wall,
- (b) a building composed of more than one and not more than two self-contained, one-family dwellings under one ownership,
- (c) a condominium dwelling unit, including the common elements, or
- (d) any other dwelling of a class prescribed by the regulations as a home to which this Act applies, and includes any structure or appurtenance used in conjunction therewith, but does not include a dwelling built and sold for occupancy for temporary periods or for seasonal purposes;

"owner" means a person who first acquires a home from its vendor for occupancy, and the person's successors in title;

"vendor" means a person who sells on his, her or its own behalf a home not previously occupied to an owner and includes a builder who constructs a home under a contract with the owner;

14. (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,
(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

DECISION AND REASONS:

The issues for determination by the Tribunal are twofold.

The first issue, or threshold issue, is whether or not Maxwell was a builder or vendor as contemplated under the Act. If Maxwell is determined not to be a builder or vendor as contemplated and defined by the Act by virtue of the home having been occupied prior to the Applicants' occupation and ownership then the home does not qualify for warranty under the Act.

Only if the Applicants are successful in regard to the first or preliminary issue is it necessary for the Tribunal to decide the second issue which is whether the Applicants are entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty under the Act.

The onus of proof rests upon the Applicants and failure to prove the preliminary issue will result in the failure of their claim before this Tribunal. Success on the preliminary issue will result in the Tribunal considering the second issue.

Analysis of the first or preliminary Issue:

Although the Tribunal finds that there were discrepancies in the various testimonies that were placed before it, the Tribunal does not attribute such discrepancies to dishonesty of any persons who testified at the hearing but rather attributes such discrepancies to the mists of time having clouded their recollections.

The analysis that follows is divided into three specific time frames or periods in the unfolding of events in this matter.

The first time frame or period is up to December 31, 1999. The second time frame or period is from January 2000 until Maxwell went to work in Waterloo in May 2000 while the third time frame deals with the period from when Maxwell went to Waterloo in May 2000 and November 1, 2000 when the sale transaction closed and title passed to the Applicants.

First Time Frame

During this period Maxwell was registered under the Act as a builder of residential homes. In or about September/October 1999 Maxwell applied to and received from the Town of Cobourg the necessary building permits to commence construction of the home and pursuant to the permits being granted Maxwell commenced building the home. When applying for the building permits Maxwell signed a declaration that he was not acting as a "builder" or "vendor" as defined in the Act.

By the end of December 1999 the home was some way in its construction with the exterior cladding and stucco having been applied by Maxwell assisted by a friend. A bar was moved into the basement of the home and on New Years Eve Maxwell held a party in the home's basement.

The Tribunal finds when commencing building the home Maxwell had the intention of occupying the home himself and residing therein.

During the period ending December 31, 1999 there is no evidence of the home having been occupied by Maxwell or anyone else. In fact Maxwell in his testimony stated that he was staying with his parents in Cobourg in the latter's' home until he moved into the home at the end of 1999.

The Tribunal accordingly finds that in the first time frame neither Maxwell nor any other party occupied the home then under construction.

Second Time Frame

As of the beginning of January 2000 Maxwell continued to work in his father's lumber business in Cobourg. At or about the beginning of January 2000 - or possibly even at the end of December 1999 when Maxwell held the New Years Eve party - Maxwell installed a fridge and a stove in the home's kitchen and commenced residing in the home.

At that stage Maxwell was single and according to the testimony of Ms. McHolm his style of living was that of a "typical unmarried male" which she described as living sparsely and with a minimum of possessions. According to Ms. McHolm, Maxwell moved "a small amount of furniture" into the home in early 2000 and he lived in the home from January 2000 until the beginning of May 2000 when he left for Waterloo.

Circumstances changed in March 2000 when Maxwell's father sold his lumber business in Cobourg. Maxwell's employment in the lumber business was coming to an end with the businesses' impending sale and at this point in time he decided on a career change and enrolled at Humber College in Etobicoke for a course commencing in September 2000. In the meantime he took employment with his brother in Waterloo commencing the beginning of May, 2000. He went not only to work in Waterloo but to live in that town during the week, returning to Cobourg and the home for some weekends. At about the beginning of May he had decided to sell the home and listed the home for sale with Century 21, Cobourg.

During this time frame or period Maxwell contends he continued to reside in the home. His life style was clearly spartan, doing with little furniture and effects. A neighbor of Maxwell, on Hendrik Vermeer, stated in discussion with Dean, the Program's inspector, that he was aware that Maxwell "stayed overnight while constructing the home but did not believe he was living in the home."

However, there were a number of factors the Tribunal finds that indicated Maxwell was occupying the home during the period January 2000 until about the beginning of May 2000. These factors were:

- the uncontraverted evidence of Maxwell himself that he lived in the home during that time frame commencing from the New Years Eve party held in the home at the end of December 1999.
- the uncontraverted evidence of Maxwell and McHolm, his girl friend, that there was furniture in the home until the end of April 2000, albeit minimal, sufficient to support his spartan lifestyle.
- the uncontraverted evidence of Maxwell and McHolm that there was at least a fridge and stove in the home's kitchen during the months of January until the end of April 2000.
- the uncontraverted evidence of McHolm that she visited Maxwell at the home during the months of January until the end of April 2000 on at least 50 occasions.
- the uncontraverted evidence of Maxwell that his personal possessions were in the home during the period January 2000 until he moved to Waterloo in May of that year when he placed some of his personal effects in his parents' home.
- the uncontraverted evidence of Maxwell that there was cable T.V. connected to the home, the invoices in respect whereof were in Maxwell's name and were paid by Maxwell.
- Maxwell's uncontraverted evidence that there were hydro, gas, telephone and water services to the home and the invoices in respect of such services were addressed to Maxwell and paid by Maxwell.
- Maxwell's uncontraverted evidence that there was a comprehensive homeowner's insurance policy in existence regarding the home's contents in which the insured was Maxwell and which policy commenced on February 29, 2000 and was extended in July 2000 until September 12, 2000.

Apart from the above factors there was other evidence placed before the Tribunal that indicated that Maxwell did occupy the home. These additional factors were:

- the listing of the home by Maxwell with Century 21, Cobourg in May 2000 in which listing it was stated that the home was a

"resale" home and which listing information was clearly obtained by the listing agent from Maxwell.

- the evidence of Maxwell that the home was mainly complete by January 2000, except for the deck, and Maxwell's conduct in being in no hurry to complete the home, as one would have expected if it was built by Maxwell for the purpose of sale. It was, after all, only on July 7, 2002 that Maxwell requested and received an occupancy permit.
- Maxwell's actions throughout the period January 2000 to May 2000 indicated that he treated the home as his fixed abode or dwelling and his permanent place of residence.

All the factors above indicate a settled or firm intent by Maxwell to occupy the home as owner of the home and his intention only commenced to change when his father sold his lumber business and Maxwell thereafter in April 2000 enrolled at Humber College.

The Tribunal finds that Maxwell had occupied the home for some four months before offering it for sale and subsequently selling it to the Applicants. When the Applicants purchased the home from Maxwell it had already been occupied for some four months, a not inconsiderable period. The Tribunal finds this prior occupation results in the home not qualifying for warranty coverage under the Act and the Applicants' claim against the Program must therefore fail.

Third Time Frame

During this time frame or period from the beginning of May 2000 to November 1, 2000 when title passed to the Applicants Maxwell was working in Waterloo and subsequent to being in Waterloo he was in an apartment in Etobicoke from approximately the end of August 2000. While he worked in Waterloo he lived there during the week returning to the home on some weekends. From the time the home was listed for sale on May 27, 2000 the only occasional occupant of the home, other than his parents, was therefore Maxwell on his weekend visits to Cobourg.

The period that the home was used by his parents was from September 22, 2000 until October 25, 2000. The use of the home by Maxwell's parents was in fact nothing more than a place to sleep. They had no furniture in the home other than their double bed. Their son had removed what little furniture he had in the home by the time his parents used the home. As Gans J. stated in the Carreiro decision "merely sleeping at the house and not much more" does not create a residence for the purpose of the Act. The fact that Maxwell's parents gave him a cheque for $1000.00 does not in and of itself indicate nor establish a tenancy such that it would remove the home from the operation of the Act.

The Tribunal finds that during the third time frame there was no occupation of the home within the meaning of the Act.

Accordingly, having regard to the first issue to be determined, the Tribunal concludes and finds for the reasons stated under the "Second Time Frame" that the home prior to its sale to the Applicants was occupied and that the home does not qualify for warranty coverage under the Act.

Had it been necessary for the Tribunal to consider the second issue (which the Tribunal repeats, it is not) the Tribunal would have had no difficulty in accepting the evidence of Skyba that the stucco cladding on the home's exterior was not installed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code and that there were defects in material and work, all of which caused detachment, displacement and physical deterioration of the stucco cladding. Maxwell was shown to be inexperienced and unfamiliar with the application of stucco cladding and failed to follow the requirements of the Ontario Building Code. This failure on Maxwell's part led the unhappy state in which the Applicants now find themselves. To rectify the stucco cladding based upon the reasonable and necessary costs of remedying the situation created by Maxwell would cost at least $43,800.00 plus G.S.T. and could be higher if removal of the deck and alterations to the aluminum soffit are required.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it under Section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claim of the Applicants.

DATES OF
HEARING: October 10 and 11, 2002 Sarnia

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicants appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from decisions of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (hereinafter "TICO") set out in decision letters dated June 28, 2002. The substance of the decision letters is the same for all Applicants.

The decision letters denied the Applicants' claims for payment from the Travel Industry Council Compensation Fund on the grounds that the Applicants did not qualify for reimbursement in accordance with the requirements and exclusions contained in Regulation 806/93 of the Travel Industry Act.

Whereas the specific paragraphs of Regulation 806/93 will be recited in detail further on in this decision, the applicable sections of Regulation 806/93 as referenced in the decision letter required that the Applicants contract with a registered travel agent in Ontario, provide proof of payment to a registered Ontario travel agent and that the cancellation of a trip must not be as a result of any act of the tour participant.

FACTS:

The Applicants were participants in a 16-day tour scheduled to depart on October 26, 2000 to visit Greece, Egypt, Jordan and the Holy Land. The tour was based from the United States and the participants could depart from either Bay City, Michigan or Orlando, Florida. All payments were in the currency of the United States and therefore the reference to amount paid in this decision are in United States' dollars.

Jacques and Grace Lama were to act as tour hosts and Father Bob DeLand would provide spiritual leadership. Tour arrangements were provided by Lama Tours International Inc., (hereinafter "Lama Tours").

All participants in the tour paid the sum of $3,349.00 per person, save and except Jane E. Birdsall and Orville Dobson who paid the additional sum of $112.00 to extend their tours.

As tensions in the Middle East increased, the tour scheduled to depart on October 26, 2000 did not take place and was re-scheduled to March 15, 2001. The participants that did not wish to extend the tour to March 15, 2001 were given a full refund less a $200.00 penalty.

As circumstances in the region did not improve, the tour scheduled for March 15, 2001 was cancelled.

Prior to the tour being cancelled, Jane E. Birdsall provided written notice of cancellation of her trip by letter dated January 16, 2001. Mrs. Birdsall's cancellation was for reasons other than unrest in the region.

Whereas Lama Tours promised the tour participants a full refund less a cancellation fee of $200.00, it only succeeded in providing the parties with a per person refund of $1,007.00 prior to it ceasing operations at the end of September, 2001.

During the hearing, TICO acknowledged that the Applicants had paid the appropriate monies for the tour and therefore withdrew the issue of proof of payment as a ground for refusing the Applicants' claim.

The hearing proceeded on the issues of whether TICO was correct in denying the Applicants' claim on the basis of the Applicants not having dealt with a registered Ontario travel agent and/or that the Applicants are not entitled to reimbursement as their payments were non-refundable, that the travel services were available but not received and the failure to receive the travel services was due to the Applicants' action or failure to act.

THE EVIDENCE:

Whereas all of the Applicants appeared in person or through agents, they essentially relied on the experience and expertise of Mr. Joseph L. Scorsone, an Attorney in Saginaw, Michigan and agent of Sandra Scorsone, to present their position. Individual Applicants were permitted to give evidence and/or cross-examine, as they so desired. Mr. Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand gave evidence on behalf of the Applicants.

TICO called Hani Lama of Lama Tours as its only witness.

Hani Lama

Hani Lama testified that he was the president of Lama Tours of Ontario and that Lama Tours specialized in tours to the Holy Land.

Hani Lama testified that he was contacted by Jacques Lama, a distant relative, whom he had never met before, and was advised that he wished to take a tour to the Holy Land. Hani Lama and Jacques Lama ultimately agreed upon an itinerary and a per person price. The tour hosts would receive a complimentary trip.

As it relates to the refund policy of Lama Tours, Hani Lama testified that in accordance with the tour brochure marked as Exhibit Number 4, delivered to Jacques Lama in July 2000, a full refund was available for a cancellation received six weeks or more prior to departure and cancellations received within six weeks of departure would be subject to a $250.00 cancellation penalty.

With respect to the cancellation of the trip scheduled for October 26, 2000, Hani Lama testified that the tour was postponed to March 15, 2001 with the same itinerary provided that a minimum of 20 passengers participated. Thirteen participants chose to cancel postpone the tour and were given full refunds less a cancellation fee of not more than $250.00.

As it relates to the cancellation of the March 15, 2001 trip, Hani Lama testified that he was not involved, that the trip was cancelled by the tour hosts, that the trip was available and that all participants received a refund of $1,007.00.

Hani Lama concluded his testimony by stating that all monies were received by Lama Tours in Ontario and delivered to Lama Tours in Bethlehem. Of the monies received, only $800.00 was deposited in Lama Tours' Ontario account as a handling fee.

On cross examination, Hani Lama acknowledged that the website for Lama Tours International Inc., shows one company and that none of the participants were told to contact Lama Tours in Bethlehem.

Hani Lama was recalled during the hearing and testified that documents presented and marked as Exhibits Number 13 & 21, being a receipt from United Parcel Service dated July 12, 2000 and Print Shoppe of the same date confirm delivery of the tour brochures to Jacques Lama in July 2000.

In addition, Hani Lama testified that he was certain that the sights in East Jerusalem, Jericho and Bethlehem were closed, that he did not participate in the discussions about canceling the second trip or an alternate itinerary and that until Lama Tours closed, it was always the intention of Lama Tours to provide full refunds.

Jacques Lama

Jacques Lama testified that he contacted Father Bob DeLand with respect to the possibility of hosting a tour to the Holy Land and noted that both he and Father DeLand hosted a similar type of tour in 1984.

Jacques Lama attempted to contact Lama Tours in Tulsa, Oklahoma, the tour company that he used for the 1984 trip. Whereas this office was closed, he conducted research on the Internet and found that Lama Tours' North America office was located at Dundas Tower, Suite 802, 165 Dundas Street West, Mississauga, Ontario. The Website page of Lama Tours confirming the address of the North America office was marked as Exhibit Number. 5.

Jacques Lama testified that he contacted Mr. Hani Lama of Lama Tours in Mississauga, Ontario and that following discussions, Lama Tours agreed to provide travel services for his tour.

An itinerary was prepared through consultations with Lama Tours, which presented a 16-day tour to Greece, Egypt, Jordan and the Holy Land with a cost of $3,349.00 per person and a departure date of October 26, 2000.

Jacques Lama then proceeded to contact various churches and requested that notice of the trip be inserted into their respective bulletins in order to determine if there was sufficient interest to support the tour. Interested parties provided a deposit of $200.00. Sufficient interest existed for the tour and on September 8, 2000, Jacques Lama couriered the deposits by Federal Express to Lama Tours in Mississauga, Ontario and sent the balance of the funds to Lama Tours in Mississauga, Ontario on September 27, 2000.

Jacques Lama continued his testimony by stating that a dinner for the tour participants was held on or about October 2, 2000 at which time he provided all present with the formal Ancient Civilization Tour brochure, pamphlets entitled, Israel Visitor's

Companion, a Pilgrim's Map of the Holy Land and a pamphlet entitled Preparing For Your Trip Overseas...The Tour Members Manual. These documents were marked as Exhibits Number 4, 17, 18 and 19 respectively. Exhibits 4 and 18 specifically refer to Lama Tours International Inc. located at 162 Dundas Street West, Mississauga, Ontario.

In the interim, the political situation in the Holy Land changed and Jacques Lama testified that he maintained constant contact with George Lama, the brother of Hani Lama, of Lama Tours with respect to the situation in Bethlehem and whether it was safe for the tour to proceed as scheduled.

Jacques Lama testified that on the basis of the ongoing discussions and the advice of George Lama he decided to postpone the tour scheduled to depart on October 26, 2000. In further support of this, Jacques Lama provided a copy of an e-mail from George Lama, which refers to the situation in the Holy Land and the possibility and ramifications from a postponement or cancellation of the tour. In addition, Jacques Lama provided a second email that included a form letter, drafted by Joseph Lama detailing the cancellation and penalties thereof. These two emails were entered and marked as Exhibit Number 9 and 10.

As it relates to re-scheduling the tour, Jacques Lama testified that although he was advised by Joseph Lama that a cancellation fee of $650.00 per person would be imposed, this was reduced by half as the United States State Department had issued a travel warning and he was able to negotiate a further reduction to a penalty of $200.00 per person for those who wished to cancel. A fax from the Congress of the United States dated October 13, 2000 confirming the travel advisory was entered and marked as Exhibit Number 15.

Jacques Lama testified that 13 participants cancelled and received a full refund less a $200.00 penalty and the remaining participants agreed to the tour being postponed to March 15, 2001.

Jacques Lama continued his testimony by stating that in the following months he continued to maintain contact with Joseph Lama with respect to the ongoing situation in the Holy Land and that he was advised by Joseph Lama that the situation in the Holy Land had not changed in that the religious sights in Bethlehem, the Old City of Jerusalem and Jericho were closed.

Jacques Lama further testified that he had general discussions with Joseph Lama about an alternate tour that might include Turkey as an alternative to the sights from the itinerary that would be unavailable due to unrest in the region.

Mr. Jacques Lama completed his examination in chief by testifying that an alternate trip was not acceptable as the sights in Bethlehem and the Old City were crucial to the tour and that following discussions with Joseph Lama, it was agreed that the tour scheduled to depart on March 15, 2001 would be cancelled and that all participants would receive a full refund less a penalty of $200.00.

Although unspecific as to whether the tour was formally cancelled in January or February of 2001, Jacques Lama sent a letter to all participants outlining the cancellation. This letter was filed and marked as Exhibit Number 11.

On cross-examination by Mr. Branion, Jacques Lama was unsure when he had received the formal brochure for the tour and maintained that the brochures were received after the participants had paid for the tour. Jacques Lama denied that it was his decision to cancel the tour and acknowledged that an alternate tour was discussed but that no firm alternative was provided.

On cross examination by Father Robert DeLand, Jacques Lama testified that the discussions of cancellation of the second tour were with Joseph Lama and that he was advised by Joseph Lama that the situation was serious, that Bethlehem was closed, there were tanks in the streets and people were being shot. In addition, Jacques Lama stated that the Old City, Mount of Olives, Dead Sea, Jericho, Tiberias and the Galilee were closed and that there were demonstrations in Egypt and Jordan.

Father DeLand's cross-examination concluded with Jacques Lama testifying that all correspondence and communication were consistent in receiving a refund and that this approach did not change until Lama Tours went out of business.

On cross-examination by Mr. Scorsone, Jacques Lama confirmed that he did not receive any of the pay vouchers for meals on the tour and that he did not receive the airline tickets. In addition Jacques Lama testified that the tour was cancelled in January 2001 and that he was never told that if the tour did not proceed that they would lose their money.

On cross examination by Mr. Dobson, Jacques Lama confirmed that he did not consult with Mr. Dobson regarding a cancellation of the trip and that the cancellation was done with Lama Tours' consent.

Father Bob DeLand

Father Robert DeLand testified that he was to be the spiritual leader and that the logistical arrangements were the responsibility of Jacques Lama. As it relates to the issue of refund and cancellation, Father DeLand testified that just as the first group received a full refund, the second group was to be treated the same.

Father DeLand continued his testimony by stating that in January 2001 he started to receive a number of telephone calls from tour participants pertaining to the situation in the region and whether the tour was to proceed as re-scheduled. Father DeLand testified that he consulted with his Congressman's aide in the State Department and was advised that the State Department's warning was well placed, Bethlehem was closed and the tour scheduled by a Bishop also had been cancelled.

As it relates to the cancellation of the tour Father DeLand testified that he expected a $200.00 penalty and that he spoke with Joseph Lama once and that in this conversation Joseph advised that it was not a good time to visit and apologized for the $200.00 penalty.

With respect to an alternate itinerary, Father DeLand testified that an alternate tour was proposed but as this did not involve the Holy Land sights he was not interested.

As it relates to the issue of receipt of the formal brochure, Father DeLand testified that he did not receive the brochure until the group dinner of October 2000.

Father DeLand 's cross examination did not provide any further information other than in response to questions from Mr. Loiacano, Father DeLand testified that had he thought that the monies paid would have been forfeited, he would have consulted with the group prior to deciding to cancel the tour.

As it relates to the issue of when the tour participants received a copy of the tour brochure, aside from Mildred Hugo who received the brochure at the beginning of September, the consensus of the Applicants was that it was received at the dinner of October 2000 and that those who did not attend the dinner received the same within two weeks thereafter.

SUBMISSIONS:

Mr. Branion's submissions were consistent in that they followed the reasons set out on the decision letter.

As it relates to the issue that the Applicants did not deal with a registered Ontario travel agent, Mr. Branion submits that as the cheques were not deposited into an Ontario agent's account that the Applicants did not contract with a registered Ontario travel agent.

As it relates to the cancellation of the October 26, 2000 tour, it was submitted that the tour was otherwise available and that it was extended as a good will gesture by Lama Tours.

With respect to the cancellation of the March 15, 2001 tour, Mr. Branion submits that the trip was available, that it was cancelled by the Applicants and as such, by virtue of Regulation 806/93 Section 50 (3) 4 the Applicants are not eligible for reimbursement.

In addition to the above, it was further submitted that the Applicants are also ineligible as they were provided with an option for alternate travel arrangements as provided in Regulation 806/93 50 (3) 3 and declined.

Lastly, as it relates to the conditions in the tour brochure, Mr. Branion submits that the brochure was in the possession of Jacques Lama and that the tour participants cannot rely on the failure of Jacques Lama to deliver the brochures in a timely manner in order to absolve them of reliance on the terms and conditions contained therein.

Mr. Scorsone, on behalf of the Applicants, submitted that Applicants contracted with a registered Ontario travel agent, they were induced by Lama Tours to cancel the tour and that the Applicants were not told by Lama Tours that they faced the risk of losing their money if the tour did not proceed in March, 2001 and that TICO should not be able to rely on the actions of Lama Tours to its benefit.

Mr. Dobson submitted that he was not consulted with respect to cancellation of the March 15, 2001 tour and that in his view, Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand were agents of Lama Tours. Mr. Dobson submits that on the basis that Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand were agents of Lama Tours, it was Lama Tours that cancelled the tour.

ISSUES:

There are two issues.

The first is whether TICO is correct in denying the claim of the Applicants on the basis that they did not contract with a registered Ontario travel agent.

The second is whether the travel services were available and not received as a result of the Applicants' action or failure to act.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of Ontario Regulation 806/93 of the Travel Industry Act are as follows:

50. (1) A customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if,
 - (a) the customer made payment for travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent,
- (3) 3. For payment to a registrant for any travel services that were provided or for which alternate travel services were provided or made available.
4. For a payment, including a non-refundable payment, for travel services that were available but not received if the failure to receive the travel services is due to the customer's or traveller's action or failure to act.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS AND FINDINGS:

Jacques Lama testified that he contracted with Lama Tours of Mississauga, Ontario. This is supported by information published on Lama Tours' website, the address of Lama Tours as printed on Lama Tours' brochure and maps of the Holy Land provided by Lama Tours. These documents were accepted and marked by the Tribunal as Exhibits Number 4 and 18. Exhibit Number 19 is a manual provided by Lama Tours although silent as to address of the company, provides Ontario telephone and fax numbers.

The correspondence from Lama Tours to tour participants contained in Exhibit Number 3 are on the letterhead of Lama Tours International, Inc. Dundas Tower, Suite 802, 165 Dundas Street West, Mississauga, Ontario L5B 2N6.

In addition, Jacques Lama testified that payment for the tour was made to Lama Tours and delivered to Lama Tours, Mississauga, Ontario.

Hani Lama's evidence was clear on the facts that he was working in the Mississauga office, received payment for the tour and save and except $800.00 that was deposited into the company's Ontario account, the balance of the tour funds were deposited in a clearing account in the United States and transferred to Lama Tours, Bethlehem.

TICO submits that as the funds were not deposited into an Ontario account that the Applicants were not dealing with an Ontario registered travel agent.

As it relates to the issue of contracting and dealing with a travel agent, registered in Ontario, the Tribunal accepts the evidence of Jacques Lama that he was dealing with Lama Tours of Mississauga, Ontario. The correspondence, brochures and pamphlets marked as Exhibits clearly establish that Jacques Lama was dealing with a registered Ontario travel agent.

The Applicants had no knowledge or input into which account Hani Lama would deposit the tour monies. It was the Applicants' understanding that they were dealing with an Ontario travel agent.

The Tribunal does not accept TICO's submission that Hani Lama not depositing the tour funds into an Ontario bank account has the effect of the Applicants not dealing with a registered Ontario travel agent. To do so, would in this Tribunal's view, defeat the protection afforded to consumers by dealing with a travel agent registered in Ontario in accordance with the provisions of the Travel Industry Act.

The Tribunal therefore finds that for the purpose of Section 50 (1) of Regulation 806/93, the Applicants made payment for travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent.

With respect to the remaining issue, the Tribunal must determine whether the facts pertaining to the cancellation of the tour brings the Applicants claim within the exception of Section 50 (4) of the Regulation.

Based upon the evidence of Jacques Lama and Hani Lama it is clear to this Tribunal that the parties cooperated fully throughout and attempted to resolve all issues amicably.

As it relates to the rescheduling of the October 26th tour the evidence of Jacques Lama and Hani Lama are not in disagreement. As evidenced by the emails referred to in Exhibits Number 9 and 10, the decision not to proceed with the first tour was made jointly by Jacques Lama and Hani Lama. The email of October 11, 2000, filed as Exhibit Number 10 discusses a postponement of the tour, possible cancellation penalties and the need for a minimum of 20 participants.

The email of October 31, 2000 marked as Exhibit Number 9 contains a letter, prepared by Joseph Lama, explaining the cancellation to the participants, its impact and cancellation penalties.

As noted previously, 13 participants chose not to continue with the tour to March 15, 2001 and cancelled their participation. These individuals received refunds in full.

With respect to the cancellation of the March 15, 2001 tour, Jacques Lama testified that he was in regular contact with Joseph Lama and was advised by Joseph Lama that the situation in Bethlehem had not changed and that the tour would not be able to enter Bethlehem, the Old City of Jerusalem or Jericho. On cross-examination by Father Bob DeLand, Jacques Lama expanded the list of closed sights to include the Dead Sea, Mount of Olives, Tiberias and the Galilee and stated that there were demonstrations in Jordan & Egypt.

Father Bob DeLand testified that commencing in January 2001 he was receiving telephone calls from tour members inquiring as to the status of the tour as some wished to make alternate winter vacation plans if the tour was not going to proceed. Father DeLand further testified that he consulted his Congressman's Aid in the State Department and was advised that the State Department's warning was well placed.

Both Jacques Lama and Father DeLand acknowledged that the topic of revisions to the itinerary were discussed, but that a tour that excluded the holy sights of Bethlehem and the Old City of Jerusalem was not an acceptable alternative.

On February 2, 2001 Jacques Lama sent a letter to the members of the tour with respect to the cancellation of the tour. This letter was marked as Exhibit Number 11. In the second paragraph thereof Jacques Lama writes as follows:

"In addition some of our tour participants have called father Bob and called me as well with their concerns about the safety of travel at this time, and some tour members requested to cancel their participation. Lama Tours will fully cooperate with our decision to cancel the tour, and are doing their utmost to process your refunds as quickly as possible”.

Hani Lama testified that he did not have any involvement with the cancellation of the tour scheduled for March 15, 2001.

The Tribunal notes that Joseph Lama was not called as a witness and that his evidence would have been of assistance to the Tribunal on the issue of the ultimate cancellation of the trip.

Regulation 806/93 50 (3) 4 states that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed in a situation where the travel services were available but not received if the failure to receive the travel services is due to the customer's or the traveller's action or failure to act.

In view of the Tribunal's finding that the Applicants dealt with a registered Ontario travel agent, for them to succeed they must be able to establish, in accordance with the above Regulation, that it was not their actions that resulted in the failure to receive the travel services. As such, they must establish that they did not cancel the tour.

The decision to cancel the March 15, 2001 tour was made through consultation with Lama Tours. Whereas the decision was made following consultation, the Tribunal did not hear any testimony or receive any evidence that it was Lama Tours that cancelled the tour.

The evidence indicated that the tour could have taken place with revisions to the itinerary. Whereas Jacques Lama expanded the list of closed sights on Father Bob DeLand's cross-examination, the Tribunal refers to Exhibit Number 15, the travel advisory from the Congress of the United States, which refers to a warning against travel to the West Bank, Gaza, the Old City of Jerusalem, and the Jaffa section of Tel Aviv. The Tribunal notes that the travel advisory does not refer to Tiberias or the Galilee and these locations are not in the West Bank.

As it relates to what sights would not have been available, the evidence of Hani Lama is consistent with the State Department warning and therefore the Tribunal finds that the sights in Bethlehem, the Old city of Jerusalem and Jericho were the only sights that were not available. The itinerary could and would have been revised to delete the scheduled visits to Bethlehem, the Old City of Jerusalem and Jericho and alternate arrangements been made accordingly.

The Tribunal notes that whereas deletion of these sights would have altered the spiritual nature of the tour, these sights comprised a maximum 3 days of a 16-day tour and that the tour, with modifications and/or deletions remained available.

The Tribunal refers back to the correspondence from Jacques Lama marked as Exhibit Number 11 and finds that the said correspondence of Jacques Lama as referred to above accurately presents the facts leading up to the decision to cancel the March 15, 2001 tour and finds that the decision to cancel the tour was made by Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand.

Whereas Lama Tours cooperated with the cancellation and promised the participants that they would receive a full refund, it cannot be said that Lama Tours cancelled the tour.

As it relates to the submission that Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand were agents of Lama Tours, there was no evidence that these individuals represented themselves to the participants as being agents of Lama Tours and no case law or precedents were presented to the Tribunal in support of the contention that a tour host is an agent at law for the tour operator.

It is clear to this Tribunal through the evidence that at all times Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand had the best interests of the participants in mind and this is most evident when it came to their decision to cancel the tour. They negotiated reductions in cancellation penalties and diligently pursued refunds from Lama Tours.

The Tribunal rejects the submission that Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand were agents of Lama Tours.

The Tribunal notes that whereas Lama Tours provided the Applicants with every assurance that their monies would be refunded and that Lama Tours did not provide any indication at the time of cancellation that the tour monies were at risk or might not be refunded, there is a distinction between the liability of Lama Tours to the Applicants in contract and the criteria under which a party is entitled to reimbursement from the Travel Industry Compensation Fund.

The Tribunal finds that as the decision to cancel the tour was made by Jacques Lama and Father Bob DeLand on behalf of the tour participants, the travel services were not received as a result of the actions of the traveller's and therefore the Applicants are ineligible for reimbursement in accordance with the exclusion contained in Regulation 806/93 50 (3) 4.

Whereas TICO's decision letter did not specifically refer to Regulation 806/93 50 (3) 3 which provides an exclusion where alternate travel services were provided or made available, the Tribunal finds that the evidence supports the fact that alternate travel arrangements were offered and rejected and therefore the Applicants would have also been ineligible for compensation in accordance with the exclusion in Regulation 806/93 50 (3) 3.

ORDER:

Based upon the foregoing the Tribunal hereby orders as follows:

1. The Tribunal upholds the decision of TICO to disallow the Applicants' claims and therefore the Applicants' Appeals are hereby dismissed.

TRADUCTEUR /
INTERPRÈTE JEAN-PIERRE POULIOT, bilingue (français-anglais)

DATE DE L'AUDIENCE: 3 octobre 2002 OTTAWA

MOTIFS DE LA DÉCISION ET ORDONNANCE

LE FOND DE L'AFFAIRE:

Le requérant a soumis une demande d'appel à ce Tribunal constitué en vertu de la loi de 1999 sur le Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis.

Son appel a pour objet la révision d'un avis de proposition délivré par le registraire, Loi sur les commerçants de véhicules automobiles ("la loi") visant à refuser son inscription comme vendeur.

L'avis de proposition en question est daté du 27 juin, 2002.

L'avis de proposition de refuser délivré par le registraire est fondé sur les stipulations de l'article 6(1) de la loi lue conjointement avec celles de l'article 5(1)(b) de la même loi.

Le registrateur maintient que la conduite antérieure de l'auteur de la demande d'enregistrement, les détails qu'il a divulgués lorsqu'il a rempli son formulaire de demande d'inscription et les informations subséquentes qu'il a soumises permettant d'établir qu'il y a motif raisonnable de s'inquiéter qu'il n'exercera pas ses activités commerciales conformément à la loi et avec intégrité et honnêteté.

LES FAITS SAILLANTS:

Le Tribunal a entendu la preuve de l'agente du registrateur. Nulle autre preuve n'a été soumise pour le registrateur sauf le document 3, en liasse, qui est accepté par les parties. Ce dernier (un volume à reliure avec index) comporte 5 onglets pour divers documents pertinents à l'affaire, sauf que les traductions qui accompagnent deux documents, en français, sous deux onglets différents, ne sont pas acceptées par le Tribunal comme traductions fidèles et ces dernières ne font donc pas partie de la preuve. Le requérant a témoigné en sa propre faveur et nulle autre preuve a été soumise par lui sauf les documents 1 et 2, qu'il avait soumis au Tribunal au préalable.

Après étude de la preuve, le Tribunal reconnaît les faits suivants:

Le requérant, âgé de 41 ans, est directeur commercial attitré au financement et aux assurances pour un concessionnaire de véhicules automobiles à Hawkesbury, Ontario, et ce, depuis juillet, 2001. Il détient un diplôme collégial (option finance) d'un CEGEP de la province de Québec, ainsi qu'un certificat en administration obtenu de l'Université du Québec, à Montréal. Il a suivi plusieurs cours de perfectionnement par l'entremise des Caisses Populaires Desjardins où il occupa jadis le poste de gérant adjoint d'une succursale de la Caisse Populaire de l'ouest du Québec. Il s'exprime uniquement en français et il écrit très bien le français, tel qu'en fait foi une lettre qui fut introduite devant le tribunal (le document 2). L'audience fut entièrement traduite par un interprète qui relayait ses propos du français à l'anglais et qui lui relayait les propos du registrateur et du procureur du registrateur de l'anglais au français. Le Tribunal accepte sa prétention à une difficulté au niveau linguistique pour expliquer une omission à fournir son dossier judiciaire (exigé par la loi) lorsqu'il a soumis sa demande d'inscription comme vendeur de véhicules automobiles et pour établir le bien fondé de sa demande de révision: le présent appel. Cependant, le Tribunal doit aussi considérer l'ensemble de la preuve avant de trancher la question, puisque le registrateur maintient sa position, laquelle est fondée à la fois sur une omission à fournir de l'information ainsi que sur d'autres motifs que celui auquel le requérant fait allusion.

Lors de la soumission de sa demande d'inscription comme vendeur de véhicules automobiles, l'auteur de la demande a omis de révéler l'existence de son dossier judiciaire. Lorsque le Conseil ontarien de commerce des véhicules automobiles, ci-après nommé ("conseil") a, par la suite, transmis une lettre de vérification au concessionnaire de véhicules automobiles pour qui le requérant travaille et qui endossait la demande d'inscription, le requérant a ultimement dévoilé au conseil certains détails très imprécis de son casier judiciaire (mentionnant simplement qu'il avait "été accusé d'abus de pouvoir qui au sens de la loi est de la fraude") par une lettre explicative (le document 2) dont le texte complet est le suivant:

"Mme Nabat Alibhai

OBJET: DOSSIER NORBERT ST-DENIS

En 1995, j'ai déclaré faillite personnelle laquelle faillite a été libérée en janvier 1996.

De 1991 à 1994, j'étais employé de la Caisse Populaire de Masson-Angers à titre de directeur adjoint. Durant cet emploi j'ai contracté un emprunt pour faire l'acquisition d'un terrain que je n'ai jamais acheté car quelque semaine après que l'argent a été déposé dans mon compte, j'ai payé d'autres choses. La Caisse aurait dû contrôler les déboursés mais étant donné mon poste de directeur, ils m'ont fait confiance en déposant les sous dans mon compte.

Après ma faillite, la Caisse a découvert que je n'avais pas de terrain donc ils m'ont poursuivie au criminel. J'ai perdu ma cause car même si la Caisse n'a pas fait son travail correctement en déposant l'argent sans faire de contrôle interne, j'ai été accusé d'abus de pouvoir qui au sens de la loi est de la fraude.

J'ai éclopé de 1ans1/2 de sursis de sentence, suivi de 1ans de probation. Toute ces accusations sont terminées depuis quelque années déjà et ces pour cette raison que je n'ai pas cru bon d'en parler car au moment où Nicole (contrôleur ici) me posait vos questions, je n'avais aucun dossier ouvert au criminel.

En espérant que vous saurez comprendre ce malentendu et que je pourrai quand même obtenir ma licence.

Merci

Norbert St.Denis"

Tel que mentionné au préalable, la lettre donnait réponse au conseil parce que le conseil avait raison de croire que l'auteur de la demande d'inscription comme vendeur de véhicules automobiles avait omis de révéler son casier judiciaire.

Le conseil est un organisme qui rassemble les renseignements qui lui sont transmis par une personne qui veut s'inscrire comme vendeur de véhicules automobiles; par la suite, le conseil vérifie les données pour ensuite acheminer le tout au registrateur à qui incombe la tâche de, soit accorder l'enregistrement ou de délivrer un avis de proposition de refus d'enregistrement.

La partie pertinente du texte de la lettre de vérification du conseil au concessionnaire est le suivant et il reproduit aussi, en caractère gras, une partie importante de la question 9 du formulaire de demande soumise à l'origine par le requérant.

Le texte en question est tiré du document 3, onglet 5:

"We understand that you have sponsored an application for the above-noted individual.

An individual of the same name and date of birth as this applicant has a record of convictions and/or charges not disclosed in response to the question which states:

"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are there any charges pending? If yes, attach full particulars on a separate signed and dated statement. "

PLEASE NOTE THAT CRIMINAL RECORD CHECKS CAN RESULT IN FALSE "POSITIVES". DO NOT ASSUME THAT THE APPLICANT HAS A CRIMINAL RECORD UNTIL THIS INFORMATION IS CONFIRMED BY THE APPLICANT.

Kindly discuss this matter with your salesperson. If there are any charges pending and/or convictions of any offence under any law which were not disclosed, the applicant will need to explain in writing why they were not disclosed and the circumstances surrounding each charge and/or conviction. If you have not already done so with the original application, please provide us with a copy of the applicant's driver's license, for identification purposes.

...

... Kindly provide us with the applicant's response, co-signed by you, within ten days. ..."

La question 9 du formulaire de demande d'enregistrement en question (document 2, onglet 3) se lit comme suit:

"9. Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending ? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered). If yes, list all charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each (attach additional sheets if necessary).

...
Note: Applicants are subject to background and criminal record searches. Submitting a false or incomplete disclosure is an offence under the MVDA and will result in disqualification. Do not assume that convictions are automatically deleted from your record. If you have any questions about the information you must disclose please call OMVIC. "

Une traduction approximative de la question serait:

"9. Avez-vous déjà été trouvé coupable ou été condamné d'un délit sous n'importe quelle loi ou êtes vous présentement sous inculpation ? (La question inclue même les instances de sursis ou une ordonnance de libération conditionnelle ou absolue a été rendue). Si oui, veuillez dresser la liste des accusations et/ou des condamnations et les circonstances qui les entourent (annexer des pages additionnelles si nécessaire)

...
Note: Les demandeurs feront l'objet de recherches quand à leurs antécédants et à leurs dossiers criminels. La soumission comportant une divulgation fausse ou incomplète est un délit sous la loi des concessionnaires de véhicules automobiles LCUM et aura pour effet la disqualification de l'auteur de la demande. Vous ne devez pas présumer que vos condamnations ont été automatiquement radiées de votre dossier. Si vous avez des incertitudes au sujet de l'information à fournir veuillez vous référer au conseil. "

À l'endroit indiqué à la droite du texte, l'auteur de la demande devait cocher la réponse. La coche indiquée sur le formulaire est : Yes _____ No ã

La question 6 du formulaire en question se lit comme suit:

"6. Are you engaged now or have you been involved in personal bankruptcy proceedings? If yes, attach copy of the Assignment in Bankruptcy or proof of discharge."

Une traduction approximative de la question serait:

"6. Êtes-vous présentement ou avez-vous déjà été impliqué dans des procédures de faillites personnelles ? Si oui, annexer une copie de votre soumission en faillite ou une preuve de votre libération. "

À l'endroit indiqué à la droite du texte l'auteur de la demande devait cocher la réponse La coche indiquée est : Yes à No sauf qu'il y a une bavure visible sur la réponse No ou la personne qui remplissait le formulaire a évidemment radié une coche encore légèrement visible même si un effort évident pour radier l'erreur est encore visible. La réponse est quand même évidemment Yes à .

Le requérant prétend que le texte de sa demande d'inscription fut rempli la main par l'employée du concessionnaire pour qui le requérant travaillait et travaille toujours. Elle occupe le poste de contrôleur et elle a signé la demande au nom du concessionnaire qui endosse la demande, tel qu'exigé par le formulaire en question.

Le requérant témoigne que l'employée en question avait inscrit la réponse, au poste 6, avant de lui demander la question. Il lui aurait révélé le fait qu'il avait été libéré d'une faillite en l'an 1996 lorsqu'elle lui a fait part de la nature de la question. C'est alors que la radiation de la réponse erronée s'est effectuée. Une copie du certificat de libération de la faillite en question fut annexée au formulaire par l'auteur de la demande, et acheminée au conseil en même temps que la demande.

Cependant, l'auteur de la demande n'a pas alors demandé à l'employée de corriger la réponse négative qui avait été inscrite au poste 9 du formulaire d'inscription.

La preuve établit que, malheureusement, le formulaire de demande sous la Loi des concessionnaires de véhicules moteurs n'existe qu'en anglais.

Le requérant prétend que l'avis de proposition du registrateur est fondé sur sa réponse négative erronée lorsqu'il a répondu à la question. Il prétend qu'il y avait confusion dans son esprit en ce qui a trait à la teneur du texte de la question 9 du formulaire d'inscription. Il maintient que son explication par lettre en réponse à la vérification qui suivit, bien que tardive, a eu pour effet de corriger une bévue non intentionnée de sa part.

Il demande au Tribunal de statuer en sa faveur en rendant une décision à l'effet que le registrateur a commis une erreur en décidant de lui délivrer un avis de proposition visant refuser son permis comme vendeur automobile. Le requérant prétend que l'avis de proposition du registrateur est fondé uniquement sur une erreur de traduction. Selon lui, vu qu'il est unilingue francophone, il ne devrait pas être pénalisé par une telle erreur.

Le registraire, par ailleurs, prétend que la loi en vertu de laquelle les vendeurs de véhicules automobiles sont régis est une loi visant la protection des membres du public et qu'il doit veiller à s'assurer que les vendeurs sont des personnes honnêtes, intègres et qui exerceront leur activités conformément à la loi.

Il est vrai que le registraire appuie partiellement son avis de proposition sur le fait que l'auteur de la demande n'a pas immédiatement divulgué son dossier criminel. N'eusse été le seul motif de proposition de refus, le tribunal devrait donner raison au requérant. Cependant, les motifs du registraire pour son refus sont multiples. Il attire l'attention du Tribunal au texte même du requérant (le document 2) et il souligne que le requérant ne dévoile toujours pas exactement et au complet l'entièreté de son casier judiciaire. Les délits criminels que révèle le dossier judiciaire du requérant (le document 3, onglet 4) sont très sérieux:

Le 20 février 1998

1) contrefaçon: article 367 du Code Criminel du Canada et

2) fraude, montant en excès de 5,000.00$: article 380(1)(a) du Code Criminel du Canada.

Il prétend que ce sont là des indices évidents de malhonnêteté fondamentale chez l'auteur de la demande.

De plus, le registraire attire attention aux propos du requérant dans sa lettre explicative:

"Après ma faillite, la Caisse a découvert que je n'avais pas de terrain donc ils m'ont poursuivi au criminel. J'ai perdu ma cause car même si la Caisse n'a pas fait son travail correctement en déposant l'argent sans faire de contrôle interne, j'ai été accusé d'abus de pouvoir qui au sens de la loi est de la fraude.

Le registraire maintient que ces propos font foi d'un manque de jugement de la part du requérant. Il voudrait prétendre que son délit émane d'un manque de surveillance de la part de ses collègues de travail. Cette prétention est une preuve évidente du manque d'intégrité du requérant. Ses paroles expriment clairement un défaut fondamental chez lui et une incompréhension des mots "intégrité et honnêteté". Le registraire souligne le fait que ce n'est que suite à sa faillite que les syndic en faillite et les gens de l'institution financière pour qui le requérant avait travaillé ont compris qu'il avait fait preuve de supercherie comme travailleur et, une telle supercherie est preuve tangible que le requérant n'est pas une personne intègre de nature.

Lorsque le procureur du registraire contre-interroge le requérant, durant l'audience, on apprend que le concessionnaire pour qui il travaille n'avait jamais été avisé, auparavant, de l'existence de son casier judiciaire. Le procureur persiste et ultimement le requérant admet qu'il n'a pas encore informé son employeur, malgré le fait qu'il sait fort bien que son employeur est l'endosseur de sa demande d'inscription. Il prétend qu'il est possible que son employeur soit au courant de son dossier, parce qu'un de ses amis de travail peut possiblement avoir révélé l'information. Cependant, il nie savoir si, oui ou non, son employeur est effectivement au courant. Le Tribunal, de plus, constate que ni son employeur, ni le contrôleur du concessionnaire pour qui il travaille n'a contresigné sa lettre explicative au conseil, en réponse à la demande de divulgation, malgré que la lettre du conseil exigeait clairement que la réponse soit contresignée par l'endosseur. Le Tribunal comprend que ni l'employeur ni le contrôleur n'a été mis au courant du dossier criminel.

LA QUESTION À TRANCHER:

Le registraire a-t-il des motifs suffisants pour refuser d'accorder à l'auteur de la demande son inscription comme vendeur de véhicules automobiles ?

Y a-t-il raison de craindre que le requérant, dans l'exercice de ses fonctions de vendeur d'automobiles, n'agira pas automatiquement conformément aux exigences de la loi, avec intégrité et honnêteté ? La protection du public exige intégrité et honnêteté. Y a-t-il raison de craindre que le requérant ne se conformerait à la lettre de la loi que si constamment surveillé ?

LA LOI:

Les stipulations pertinentes de la loi dans cette instance sont les articles 5(1)(b) et 6(1). Les deux stipulations énoncent les circonstances selon lesquelles le registraire peut proposer un refus d'inscrire l'auteur d'une demande. Le Tribunal a le pouvoir de réviser cette question en appel et statuer en vertu de l'article 7(4) de la loi.

Les articles en question :

5. (1) L'auteur d'une demande a le droit d'être inscrit ou réinscrit par le registraire, sauf dans les cas suivants:

- a) compte tenu de sa situation financière, il n'y a pas raisonnablement lieu de croire que l'auteur de la demande est financièrement responsable dans l'exercice de ses activités commerciales;
- b) la conduite antérieure de l'auteur de la demande offre des motifs raisonnables de croire qu'il n'exercera pas ses activités commerciales conformément à la loi et avec intégrité et honnêteté;
- c) s'il s'agit d'une personne morale:
 - (i) compte tenu de sa situation financière, il n'y a pas raisonnablement lieu de croire qu'elle est financièrement responsable dans l'exercice de ses activités commerciales,
 - (ii) la conduite antérieure de ses dirigeants ou administrateurs offre des motifs raisonnables de croire qu'elle n'exercera pas ses activités commerciales conformément à la loi et avec intégrité et honnêteté;
- d) l'auteur de la demande exerce des activités qui sont ou seront, s'il est inscrit, en contravention avec la présente loi ou les règlements.

6. (1) Sous réserve de l'article 7, le registraire peut refuser d'inscrire l'auteur d'une demande s'il est d'avis que l'article 5 prive ce dernier du droit à l'inscription.

7. (4) Si l'auteur de la demande ou la personne inscrite demande une audience devant la Commission, conformément au paragraphe (2), celle-ci fixe la date et l'heure de l'audience et la tient. Elle peut, à la requête du registraire présentée à l'audience, ordonner à ce dernier de donner suite à son intention ou de s'en abstenir et de prendre les mesures que la Commission estime qu'il devrait prendre, conformément à la présente loi et aux règlements. La Commission peut, à cette fin, substituer son opinion à celle du registraire.

Dans l'instance Re Brenner, 19 C.R.A.T. 58, la cour divisionnelle a émis une formule pour guider le Tribunal:

"The effect of section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner has genuinely reformed and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself. "

La cour veut que le Tribunal détermine si le registraire s'est trompé lorsqu'il a conclu que la conduite antérieure du requérant offre des motifs raisonnables de croire qu'il n'exercera pas ses activités commerciales conformément à la loi ainsi qu'avec intégrité et honnêteté.

Le Tribunal ne doit pas être préoccupé par des motifs de sympathie pour le requérant et son désir de gagner sa vie et ne doit pas s'arrêter sur un seul motif avancé par un requérant (dans le cas présent, un motif fondé sur une incompréhension de la teneur d'un texte), mais doit plutôt se pencher sur tous les motifs avancés par les intervenants afin de décider du bien fondé de la décision du registraire.

DÉCISION:

Le Tribunal statue que le registraire n'a pas fait erreur en concluant comme il l'a fait. Le Tribunal est convaincu que les antécédents du requérant, sa divulgation biaisée lorsqu'il fournit les détails les plus minces relatifs à son casier judiciaire, son désir de porter le blâme sur d'autres que lui, dans la soumission de sa demande, sa tendance cachottière et l'ensemble de ses propos durant l'audience sont inquiétants. Le Tribunal s'inquiète au sujet de son intégrité et de son honnêteté et le Tribunal reconnaît l'importance de la protection du public à ce niveau. Comme tel, et en vertu des pouvoirs qui lui sont accordés par l'article 7(4) de la loi sur les commerçants de véhicules automobiles, le Tribunal autorise le registrateur à donner suite à son avis de proposition de refuser l'inscription du requérant.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar"), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated the 9th day of May 2002, seeks to Refuse the Registration of Derek Scanlan.

DECISION

Derek Scanlan wants to continue his career as a salesman of used cars. He has been in the car sales business for approximately 18 years. During this period he has held a number of different positions from being a dealer, a service adviser, a salesman and a service manager. In this latter capacity he was named Service Manager Of The Year for Canada by Hyundai Canada in 1990. However, the Registrar under the Motor Vehicles Act (Registrar) now wants to curtail his career. The Registrar issued a Notice of Proposal to Refuse the Registration of Mr. Scanlan under the Act in May of 2002. The reason for this Proposal was that "On March 26, 2002 Scanlan was convicted of fraud over $5000.00. The conviction related to industry specific conduct." After Mr. Scanlan appealed that Proposal the Registrar issued Further Particulars dated October 1, 2002. These amounted to additional reasons to refuse the registration. These reasons follow:

1. Derek David Scanlan (hereinafter "Scanlan") was originally registered as a motor vehicle dealer from on or about September 4, 1984 until September 22, 2000.
2. Scanlan has declared bankruptcy three times.
3. Scanlan has received a suspended discharge on his last two bankruptcies.
4. Scanlan is currently the subject of a commercial proposal to creditors.
5. Scanlan failed to disclose his bankruptcies on his most recent applications submitted to the Registrar.
6. Scanlan has failed to act with financial responsibility.

Before setting out the Tribunal's analysis of the issues and its findings and conclusions it is necessary to review the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) page 95.

In the Brenner decision, Southey J. stated that "the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty."

Southey, J. then added, in referring the matter back to the Tribunal for rehearing, that "The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal."

Accordingly, it is the Registrar's belief that is the issue in these proceedings, and not the belief of this Tribunal. If the Tribunal believes that the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the belief that such an applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, this Tribunal should direct the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal. The analysis of a similar fact situation by Vice-Chair Israel also was very helpful in this case (see Re: Adiyaman [2002] O.L.A.T.D. No. 63)

Mr. Scanlan first attracted the attention of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC) on or about September 25, 2000 when Wayne Bolahood contacted OMVIC about some financial difficulties he was having with Mr. Scanlan. Mr. Bolahood had entered into a financial arrangement with Mr. Scanlan in relation to the financing of used vehicles purchased by Mr. Scanlan. The details of this financial arrangement are not entirely relevant. Suffice it to say that Mr. Bolahood paid for the vehicles after they were purchased and expected a return of his capital plus a fee when the vehicles were sold. While originally successful, this arrangement began to fall apart when there was a downturn in the market for used vehicles. When he did not receive his money Mr. Bolahood contacted OMVIC.

OMVIC is responsible for overseeing the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act (the Act). The Act is a public protection statute which deals with the registration and regulation of motor vehicle dealers and salespeople. OMVIC, which is a non-profit organization, has a number of tools which it uses to meet this mandate. It can conduct investigations into infractions of the statute. It has a compliance unit which enforces adherence to the Act or its Regulations. It can resolve public complaints by reaching an agreement achieved by consensus with the parties; and, of course, it can do background checks on potential registrations. Section 5 of the Act entitles applicants to registration, except where their past conduct affords the Registrar with reasonable grounds for belief that that such applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
- (c) the applicant is a corporation and,
 - (i) having the regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or
 - (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
- (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

(2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations. R.S.O. 1990, c. M.42, s. 5 (2).

At the time of the complaint filed by Mr. Bolahood, Mr. Scanlan was registered as a dealer under the Act. There was no evidence presented to the Tribunal as to what action, if any, OMVIC took in relation to this complaint. Neither was there any explanation offered to the Tribunal as to why OMVIC did not pursue this complaint. It seems that nothing was done. Mr. Scanlan then filed a document with OMVIC entitled Notice of Registration Change which was received by OMVIC on December 18, 2000 (Exhibit 11). In effect, Mr. Scanlan wanted to change his registration as a dealer to become registered as a salesperson. On this Notice he indicated that he would be working for Feeney Car Sales Inc. and would be starting his employment on December 7, 2000.

This request was approved without conditions and Mr. Scanlan has continued to work for this company as a used car salesperson to this date. There was no evidence presented as to the reasons for allowing Mr. Scanlan to continue working without conditions. Presumably, he met all the criteria for registration.

In the meantime Mr. Bolahood decided to seek other forms of redress. He began the process to seize assets belonging to both Mr. Scanlan and his common-law partner Kathryn Parsons through the vehicle of the chattel mortgage. This resulted in voluntary Minutes of Settlement being finalised in early June of 2001 in which Mr. Bolahood recovered assets and cash worth over $115,000.00. OMVIC was unaware of this settlement. It is important to note that Mr. Bolahood's civil claim could have been "fought out to its bitter end" but instead it was voluntarily settled.

While there is no direct evidence on this point the Tribunal surmises that Mr. Bolahood also contacted the Durham Regional Police Department as criminal charges for committing fraud over $5,000.00 and making false statements in writing were laid against Mr. Scanlan. The total amount defrauded was alleged to amount to $93,000.00. There was no evidence presented to the Tribunal about the action, if any, OMVIC took once it was apprised of these criminal charges.

Mr. Scanlan continued to work as a salesperson at Feeney Car Sales Inc. He continued to make monthly payments of $1200.00 to support his two children from his first marriage. He has arranged with his creditors to make monthly payments of $500.00 under his current bankruptcy proceedings. His uncontradicted evidence is that he has never reneged on any of these payments. His ex-wife Karen Scanlan provided an undated letter (Exhibit 6) which states in part: "Derek was given a monthly obligation of $1,200 to support his children, he has not failed me for our kids, even through hard times in the past few years Derek has never missed a payment."

The next major event occurred March of this year. Mr. Scanlan pled guilty to one count of fraud over $5,000.00. He received a suspended sentence with 24 months of probation. The probation order was a nonreporting type i.e. Mr. Scanlan was not required to report to a probation or parole officer. In addition to the standard conditions contained in a probation order Mr. Scanlan was ordered not to apply for or possess a Car Dealership Licence under the Act. He also testified that at that time of the commission of the crime he did not know that his actions were criminal but he fully understands "that what I did was criminal". He also took full responsibility for his actions and expressed remorse for them. Mr. Scanlan also testified that there are no other criminal charges pending against him.

Shortly after this conviction the Registrar issued the first Notice of Proposal to refuse Mr. Scanlan's registration due to the conviction which related to industry specific conduct.

Failure to Disclose

The above findings are generally not disputed; and generally speaking nor were the particulars numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 6 found above in the Notice of Further and Other Particulars. However, particular number 5 in that document states that "Scanlan failed to disclose his bankruptcies on his most recent applications submitted to the Registrar." The issue to be determined is whether Mr. Scanlan made full disclosure of his bankruptcies to OMVIC.

Laura Gordon is the Director of Compliance at OMVIC and has been in this position since April 1997. She testified that the application form for a registration imparts the consequences for failing to disclose certain information. She also stated that OMVIC regards full disclosure as a test of the applicant's honesty and integrity. Therefore, it is important to have the full particulars from "day one". Ms. Gordon testified that Mr. Scanlan had been in bankruptcy three times and was currently involved in a further Commercial Proposal involving his finances. These bankruptcies occurred in 1978, 1981, 1992 and 2001 (Exhibit 5, Tab 6). In Mr. Scanlan's 1996 Application for Registration/Reinstatement (Exhibit 10) she indicated that she did not believe that there was full disclosure since Mr. Scanlan only forwarded information in relation to his 1992 bankruptcy. She did concede on cross-examination that the 1992 information appeared to be sent by facsimile the day following the date of his Application. She also agreed that this facsimile indicated that it was "page 2". She was unaware whether the missing "page 1" contained information on his previous bankruptcies or whether it was just a cover sheet.

Ms. Gordon testified that Mr. Scanlan received a Registration in 1984. At that time background checks were done by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (as it was then known). While Ms. Gordon was unaware of whether a bankruptcy check was done on Mr. Scanlan at that time she knew that the Ministry did request such information on their application forms. Thus, unless Mr. Scanlan lied on his 1984 Application, information about his 1978 and 1981 bankruptcies would have been in the Ministry's files. In 1996, when OMVIC was created, the Ministry gave OMVIC its old files in which the data was recorded on microfiche. Ms. Gordon testified that for the purposes of the present Proposal the old microfiche files on Mr. Scanlan were not reviewed. This is unfortunate. If OMVIC had researched these old files it would have proven one of two suppositions. One that Mr. Scanlan had lied on his application when he received his 1984 Dealership or that he was truthful and had disclosed the bankruptcies. In either event the Registrar did not have some very important information before him or her when the decision was made to buttress the first Notice of Proposal by adding nondisclosure of the bankruptcies to the list of Particulars.

Ms. Gordon further testified that as part of the inspection function of OMVIC Mr. Scanlan's business would have been inspected by the organization. There was nothing negative in these inspection reports that came to her attention as the Director of Compliance.

She also agreed that there was only one other complaint regarding Mr. Scanlan. This was a complaint regarding a consumer whose warranty on his used car had expired. This complaint had been resolved. Ms Gordon stated that except for the criminal conviction and the lack of full disclosure regarding the bankruptcies there was nothing in Mr. Scanlan's record which "stood out".

Mr. Scanlan testified that he had disclosed the 1978 and 1981 bankruptcies in his application for a Dealership Registration in 1984. While he disclosed his 1992 bankruptcy in his 1996 Application, he did not disclose the previous two bankruptcies for two reasons. First, it was his belief that OMVIC already had the information and did not require it again. Secondly, he received advice from Robert Beatty, who was with the Used Car Dealers Association, that previously disclosed bankruptcies need not be disclosed in subsequent applications. Of course, this advice was incorrect.

Mr. Scanlan further compounded the impression that he was withholding information when he submitted a Request to Reinstate a Business dated August 11, 2000 (Exhibit 5, Tab 8) and an Individual Application for Registration dated December 20, 2000 (Exhibit 5, Tab 7). In both cases he once again stated "no" to the question of whether he ever had been involved in bankruptcy proceedings. He testified that his rationale for answering in the negative in relation to the reinstatement document was that since it was only a reinstatement, the information regarding his bankruptcies was already on record. He testified that individuals at OMVIC to whom he spoke regarding this reinstatement agreed with him that the information was already on record and did not need to be supplied again. Similarly, in relation to the Registration Application he testified that he had spoken to officials at OMVIC; that he had explained that the registration was urgent; and that since he had previously disclosed the bankruptcies; he was advised that he did not have to provide the information again. Mr. Scanlan stated that between August and December of 2000 he spoke to officials at OMVIC between 15 to 20 times. Unfortunately, except for recalling speaking to Ms. Gordon, Mr. Scanlan did not recall the names of individuals he spoke to OMVIC nor did he make any notes about those conversations. He agreed on cross-examination that the discussions with Ms. Gordon were in relation to the transfer of his licence and not about disclosure.

OMVIC did not rebut Mr. Scanlan's evidence regarding the information he received from OMVIC officials about his previously disclosed bankruptcies. It would have assisted the Tribunal to have evidence on this point. For example, Ms. Gordon could have testified as to OMVIC's policies in providing oral advice to the Applicant regarding disclosure. Or perhaps there are documents such as a Frequently Asked Questions and Answers that guide OMVIC staff which could have been tendered as an exhibit. Failing that, the Tribunal accepts Mr. Scanlan's testimony. The Tribunal found Mr. Scanlan to be forthright and credible and that it finds he did receive bad advice on this issue.

As Counsel for Mr. Scanlan submitted rhetorically, he disclosed his 1992 bankruptcy and obtained his licence why would he not disclose it again in 2000 when the bankruptcy was eight years old unless he was told that it was not relevant and he believed it was not relevant? Once again a search of Mr. Scanlan's files would have alerted officials at OMVIC that something was amiss and that he could have been contacted in order to determine why the information was missing. Also the Registrar did not have important information before him as to the rationale for Mr. Scanlan disclosing bankruptcy information on one occasion but not on a subsequent Application. Thus, the Registrar lacked two vital pieces of information when the decision was made not to register Mr. Scanlan due to his non disclosure. An important decision as in the instant case requires the Registrar to have as much information before him as is possible. Otherwise, the Registrar's decision or belief is in error. The Tribunal finds in this instance the Registrar's belief to be in error.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds the Registrar was in possession of Mr. Scanlan's bankruptcy information when the Registrar considered not only his 1984 and 1996 application but also his 2,000 applications. For the Registrar to imply that Mr. Scanlan had not disclosed his bankruptcies in his most recent applications is both incorrect and unjustified. The Tribunal finds that there was no justification for the Registrar to imply that there was an intent on Mr. Scanlan's part to mislead the Registrar for he already disclosed the fact of his bankruptcies in previous applications.

Financial Responsibility

Despite the fact that Mr. Scanlan had declared his bankruptcies to the Ministry in 1984 he was registered as a Dealer under the Act. Furthermore, in 1996 when he applied for a reinstatement of his Dealers licence he disclosed a further bankruptcy. Once again he was granted a licence as a Dealer. The bankruptcies indicate a lack of financial acumen on the part of Mr. Scanlan in operating a used car sales business. This would be important in determining whether to continue the registration of Mr. Scanlan if he were operating as the Dealer or Salesperson as the Act requires (amongst other things) that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

Terry Feeney owns and operates Feeney Car Sales Inc. since 1983 now in the City of Toronto. The company sells about 28 vehicles per month. He employs five people, three of whom are salespersons including Mr. Scanlan. Mr. Scanlan has been employed with him for a number of years. Mr. Feeney and his accountant/bookkeeper handle all the financial obligations of the company. Sales staff are not involved in the financial operations of the dealership. Before he retained Mr. Scanlan, Mr. Feeney had placed an advertisement for the position of salesperson in a newspaper. He received a large number of applicants and after checking references which were quite favourable he decided to hire Mr. Scanlan. He also had known the Applicant previously as he had done business with him over the years. In terms of financial responsibility, Mr. Feeney testified that if as a condition of Mr. Scanlan's registration there was a requirement that he not handle any money; it would not affect their employer/employee relationship.

On cross-examination by Counsel for the Registrar Mr. Feeney was asked as to whether he would consider guaranteeing Mr. Scanlan's employment through a Letter of Credit or a Bond. The witness, after thinking about the question, stated unequivocally that if this was a term or a condition of Mr. Scanlan's registration he would consider supplying the financial guarantee. This is an important piece of evidence as it shows that Mr. Feeney who employed Mr. Scanlan for over two years has complete trust in him.

Consequently the Tribunal finds that the Registrar, while correct in having some concerns about Mr. Scanlan's financial ability to operate the dealership, did not have the following facts before him:

1. that Mr. Scanlan has been employed by Mr. Feeney as a salesperson in the motor vehicle business for two years and has not been financially irresponsible in this position;
2. that his position with Mr. Feeney does not require him to handle money;
3. that he has continued to make support payments to his children without failure despite going through times of financial difficulty;
4. that he has entered into an arrangement to repay his creditors for his outstanding debts; and
5. that he made full and voluntary restitution to Mr. Bolahood.

By not being aware of these facts, and in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past financial conduct of Mr. Scanlan afforded reasonable grounds for believing that he was not financially responsible.

The Criminal Conviction

After pleading guilty to one criminal charge of Fraud over $5,000 Mr. Scanlan was convicted and placed on two years probation. The guilty plea admits every element of the offence including knowledge. Furthermore, the case law currently provides that the Tribunal cannot look behind the guilty plea and must accept the criminal conviction as it stands.

This conviction was recorded in March of 2002 approximately six months ago; however the criminal act upon which the conviction is based occurred over two years ago in the period commencing May 2000 and terminating in September 2000. Mr. Scanlan has an unblemished record since the commission of the crime and his subsequent conviction. In fact this single conviction is the only criminal blemish on an 18-year career in the industry. He has made full restitution to the victim. He pleaded guilty to the crime of which he stands convicted. While this Tribunal will not compare sentences for similar offences it can take judicial notice of the fact that the sentence received by Mr. Scanlan was very lenient. This usually means that the Criminal Court found some mitigating factors in the accused's behaviour which resulted in a lighter sentence.

The Tribunal found Mr. Scanlan forthright in his evidence. He did not colour his testimony or offer excuses for his past conduct, and he seemed remorseful. He has since October 2000 been employed by Feeney Used Car Sales Inc. as a used car salesperson. There is no evidence whatsoever to show that consumers have been jeopardised by his conduct. Any complaints about Mr. Scanlan were minor in nature and actually were the responsibility of Mr. Feeney. Mr. Scanlan is 49 years old and has two children from a previous marriage. He is currently in a common law relationship which he freely admits is under some strain due to his current predicament.

All the above are important factors in predicting the future behaviour of Mr. Scanlan should he continue to be registered under the Act.

In opposition to the above mitigating facts there is the conviction. The crime resulting in the conviction is industry related. The nature of the crime is serious and the amount of money involved was large. The conviction cannot be lightly disregarded. The question to be dealt with by the Tribunal is whether the actual conviction of Mr. Scanlan is indicative that he will, in the future, not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrar bases his decision to deregister Mr. Scanlan on his past conduct, which the Registrar believes afforded reasonable grounds to conclude that Mr. Scanlan will not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

The Registrar has not placed any evidence before the Tribunal that Mr. Scanlan's behaviour since September of 2000 is indicative of conduct that would afford the Registrar reasonable grounds for the belief that Mr. Scanlan will not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. Opposed to the Registrar's lack of evidence in the above regard are of the uncontested mitigating factors to which Mr. Scanlan and Mr. Feeney testified. The one blemish over the last 18 years does not support the Registrar's belief that Mr. Scanlan should not be registered. Furthermore, the Registrar allowed Mr. Scanlan to continue as a Salesperson without terms or conditions for over two years and without negative result.

In Ontario (Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers) v. Faccenda (Ont. Div. Ct.) [1994] O.J. No. 9541 Adams J. in considering s. 6 of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act R.S.O. 1990, c.R.4. which is essentially the same as s. 5 of the Act before this Tribunal stated:

Given the test set out in s. 6(1) of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act, R.S.O. 1990, c.R.4, all past conduct is potentially relevant, notwithstanding that it was the subject of a previous proposal. It is the totality of that past conduct, considered in the light of more current circumstances, which form the basis for the relief.

He further added:

Clearly, s. 6(1)(b) requires a more qualitative assessment of the entire conduct of an applicant to determine whether past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that he or she will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In applying this test to Mr. Scanlan's past conduct, the Tribunal finds the Registrar to be in error in believing that Mr. Scanlan's past conduct indicated that he will not act with honesty and integrity. As Ms. Gordon for OMVIC testified there was nothing in his background which "stood out".

The penalty sought by the Registrar is too severe and the Tribunal believes that registration, subject to terms and conditions, is appropriate in this case.

ORDER

Accordingly, the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, directs the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal dated May 9, 2002 to refuse the Applicant's registration subject to the Applicant complying with the following five terms and conditions.

1. If the Applicant at any time in the future shall be charged with, found guilty of or convicted of any offence under any law he shall forthwith advise the Registrar.
2. If the Applicant at any time in the future is convicted of any charge under the Criminal Code of Canada, the Registrar shall be entitled to forthwith revoke the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

3. The Applicant shall at no time in the future, unless with the Registrar's prior written consent, become an officer, director or partner in a motor vehicle dealership.
4. The Applicant shall not transfer his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson without the prior written consent of the Registrar.
5. The Applicant shall abide with all the provisions of the Act, the Regulations made under the Act and OMVIC's Standards of Business Practice issued in November 2000.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant failed to appear. A thirty-minute grace period was extended. During the interval the clerk for the Tribunal called the Applicant's home. As there was no reply, Mr. Leslie, the Applicant's solicitor of record was called, at both his office and his pager.

The hearing resumed at 10:00 a.m. without a reply from either the Applicant or his solicitor being received by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal being satisfied that the necessary notices had been properly sent out, and that all efforts were made to contact the Applicant and his solicitor, proceeded in absentia.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar"), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated the 1st day of August 2002, seeks to Refuse the Registration of Maxwell O. Nsafoah o/a K&K Fine Cars.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order to refuse the registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register of Maxwell O. Nsafoah o/a K&K Fine Cars press (sic) under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated the 1st day of August 2002, are:

1. Maxwell O. Nsafoah o/a K&K Fine Cars (hereinafter referred to as the "Applicant") is a sole proprietorship, which applied for registration as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act on or about April 16, 2002
2. On the individual application for registration submitted by the Applicant, question 9 asks:

"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)"

The Applicant said, "Yes", and provided the following disclosure:

"Was convicted of posinging (sic) stolen computer in 1999 (Was not aware that co-worker had soled (sic) me a stolen PC. I was given probation for a year. Please know that I am a person with good integrity, although my record my (sic) question my credibility. Please just give me a chance to prove that I can successfully operate a dealership with no problems. You have the power to revoke my licence if I don't operate in accordance with OMVIC. "Please give me a chance at least."

3. A criminal record search shows that Maxwell Nsafoah has the following criminal conviction:
August 19, 1999: Possession of Property Obtained by Crime
4. A criminal record search shows that Maxwell Nsafoah engaged in conduct that resulted in the following charges:
March 22, 2002: Possession for the Purpose
Possession Proceeds of Crime
Possession Controlled Substance (x2)
February 12, 2002: Breach of Recognizance
5. The Applicant has failed to provide full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar.

By Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated the 18th day of October 2002, the Registrar further alleged as follows:

1. On June 7th, 2002 the Maxwell Nsafoah was convicted of "Possession for the Purpose."

By written Notice of Appeal Mr. Maxwell Nsafoah informed the Tribunal in term of section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Ms Laura Gordon.

The evidence presented by Maxwell Nsafoah consisted of his statement in the Notice of Appeal dated August 17th, 2002.

A summary of the evidence follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

Testimony of Ms Laura Gordon

Ms. Laura Gordon, testified that she is currently the Director of Compliance for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). Ms Gordon has been employed by OMVIC since April 1997 and held the position of Director of Compliance since September 1997. As Director of Compliance, Ms. Gordon has the duty of overseeing the Complaint and Mediation Team and also the Inspection Team. Prior to 1997, Ms Gordon was an investigator for the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations and prior to that held various administrative positions within the Registrar's Office.

Ms. Laura Gordon explained that OMVIC is a non-profit corporation which has been delegated the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act which is a public protection statute to ensure compliance, by dealers and salespersons, with Section 5 of the Act. Section 5 requires that individuals and corporations registered under the Act meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law, and financial responsibility.

The decision to refuse the registration of Maxwell O. Nsafoah o/a K&K Fine Cars, was based on the grounds that Maxwell O. Nsafoah, contravenes the criteria of Section 5 of the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act. Mr. Maxwell O. Nsafoah engaged in conduct, which resulted in charges being laid against him. Further, Mr. Maxwell O. Nsafoah failed to make full disclose of his criminal record and of the pending charges against him.

Ms. Gordon proceeded to identify and comment on the documents filed in the Respondent's Book of Documents, entered as Exhibit # 4

Mr. Maxwell Nsafoah's application for registration is dated April 16th, 2002, as per copy found in Tab # 5 of Exhibit # 4. Ms Gordon noted that the Applicant does not mention the pending charges as is mandatory. Ms Gordon further emphasized that the line directly above the Applicant's signature clearly obliges the Applicant to "certify that the information provided ...is to the best ...knowledge and belief true..."

Ms Gordon pointed out that the completion of the application is the first indication of "...honesty and integrity..." and that an applicant intends to work in accordance with the law. Mr. Maxwell Nsafoah's lack of full disclosure caused concerns to the Registrar.

Referring to Tab # 7 of Exhibit # 4, Ms Gordon paraphrased the Applicant's comments with respect to the financing which read as follows:

"...I am aware of the financial costs of the dealership. I will be accessing funds from a joint account with my mother Margaret Nsafoah who has also acquired a $15,000 line of credit along with the $10,000 that we have saved in the bank. Attached is a bank statement of the savings with the balance that is my mothers name due to her being the principle account owner. I have also attached a hand written affidavit from my mother stating her knowledge of my intentions and plans with the savings..."

Ms. Gordon pointed out that the account owner is, ambiguously named "M. Nsafoah". Further, the balance in the account was $5,000.00 a $5,000.00 deposit was made on the date of the statement, bringing the balance to $10,003.50.

For the record, Ms Gordon quoted relevant passages of the Applicant's reply letter, found in Tab # 11 of Exhibit # 4. According to the Applicant he failed to disclose pending criminal court proceedings as he: "...knew that ...would be presumed guilty before innocent..." and his "...lawyer ...advised ...that due to the moral nature of ...alleged crime, it would not be in ...best interest ...to voluntarily disclose this information unless found guilty..."

Ms. Gordon referred to the Applicant's Notice of Appeal and stressed that this explanation conflicts with the Applicant's reason's for appeal as set out in the Notice of Appeal.

Ms. Gordon alluded to Tab # 12 of Exhibit #4, which is a letter dated August 26th from the Ontario Provincial Police establishing that the Applicant was convicted, on June 7th, 2002, of the previously pending charges against him.

Ms. Gordon concluded her testimony by summarizing that the Applicant's contradicting statements clearly demonstrate his intent to misrepresent. Ms Gordon rationalizes that if at the onset the Applicant does not act in accordance with the law, he cannot be trusted to work honestly in future.

Of particular alarm to the Registrar is the fact that the Applicant was involved with possession of a controlled substance. The Registrar is concerned that drug convictions often are connected with money laundering.

Applicant's evidence

The Applicant's only evidence is contained in his statements in the Notice of Appeal:

- 1 "...Did not fully understand the phrase "Charges Pending". Thought they only wanted CRIMINAL CONVICTION.
- 2 All outstanding charges withdrawn except possession of controlled substance. I have changed my life style & I am trying to provide a good environment on my family."

Submissions by Ms. Yovanka McBean

Ms. McBean quoted sections of Section 5 of the Act, and argued that the Registrar does not come to a decision based on future intentions but rather on past behaviour. The Applicant does not meet the standards required under the Act and it is in the public's best interests that he not be allowed to work within the motor vehicles sales industry.

According to Ms. McBean the Registrar did not err in law, but had a reasonable belief that the Applicant if issued a licence, would not act with honesty and integrity. As a sole proprietorship, the Applicant would have access to the personal and confidential financial information of his clients. It is reasonable to assume, given the Applicant's past conduct that the information collected would not be used in accordance with the law.

In support of her argument Ms. McBean, presented the Tribunal with copies of precedent decisions.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. K & K Fine Cars, a business classified as "Sole Proprietorship" submitted a Business Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, on April 16, 2002.
2. The sole operator of K & K Fine Cars is Maxwell Owusu Nsafoah.
3. Maxwell Owusu Nsafoah, submitted an Individual Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, on April 16, 2002.
4. The Applicant, Maxwell Owusu Nsafoah, failed to disclose pertinent information on his application, more particularly the pending charges against him.
5. The Applicant, Maxwell Owusu Nsafoah, was convicted of "Possession of Property obtained by Crime” and “ Possession for the Purpose.”

THE LAW:

Section 5.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable risk to the public to refuse his registration as a Sole Proprietorship and Salesperson, as per Section 5 b of the Act.

Having found as a fact that the Applicant failed to disclose pertinent information to the Registrar, and that the Applicant was convicted of: “ Possession of Property obtained by Crime” and “ Possession for the Purpose,” the Tribunal also finds that the Registrar was justified in refusing the registration of Maxwell Nsafoah o/a K & K Fine Cars and Maxwell Nsafoah.

The Applicant petitions for “...a chance to prove that...” he “...can successfully operate a dealership with no problems...” He goes on to acknowledge that the Registrar has “...the power to revoke ...licence...” in the event of non-compliance with the law. Unfortunately, the Tribunal cannot heed the Applicant's plea. The intent of the Motor Vehicle's Dealers Act is preventative not reactive. The Tribunal concurs with Ms Gordon that the application and the information therein provided is crucial in assessing the intent and honesty of an Applicant. In this case, the Applicant shattered any possibility for trust that could be afforded him, by failing to mention in his application for registration the outstanding charges against him.

Further, it is the Registrar's mandate and this Tribunal's responsibility, in interpreting the law, to protect the public. Motor vehicle dealers and salespersons, are privy to credit card information as well as personal financial information of their clients. The Registrar must have full confidence that registrants will not misuse the information entrusted to them. The Applicant's previous convictions certainly offer no reassurance.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle

Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the proposal to refuse the registrations of Maxwell Nsafoah o/a K & K Fine Cars and Maxwell Nsafoah.

Mr. Rothe asked the Tribunal, to consider awarding the sum of $800.00 to the Registrar, as full costs, in the event the Applicant's request for adjournment was granted.

DATE OF HEARING: November 1, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: November 8, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on November 1, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Debbie Stewart (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Mercury Sable, plate ALV H023 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 11, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on October 15, 2002 and proceeded as electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I own 3 vehicles –1 my mother drives as she has had knee sugery. 2nd Vehicle my daughter drive back & forth to College & work. 3rd Vehicle is mine as I just had back surgery & now just starting back to work. I have 2 jobs in which I need a vehicle to get back & forth to two jobs. I also have 16 year old in school & involved in a number of sports. I am not to be walking long distances or riding the bus.

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is married and a mother of 2 children, a 19 year-old daughter who attends college in Sault Ste. Marie and a 16 year-old son who attends high schools and resides at home.

The Applicant is employed at a hospital in Sault Ste. Marie in housekeeping. She is currently working 5 days a week from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. She returned back to work on gradual re-entry on September 9, 2002 after she underwent back surgery in April, 2002.

Mr. Stewart, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, is employed full time at Praxair from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In her testimony, the Applicant owns 2 other vehicles. Her mother is the primary driver of a Ford Taurus and her daughter is the primary driver of a Nissan Stanza.

The following is the Applicant's testimony regarding the circumstances surrounding the impoundment. Mr. Stewart's daughter, from his first marriage, arrived in Sault Ste. Marie from Alberta at the start of October. On or about the day his daughter was to return to Alberta, Mr. Stewart received documentation from his ex-wife regarding unpaid child support which was in excess of $95,000. Before his daughter boarded a 12:30 p.m. Westjet flight back to Alberta, Mr. Stewart wanted his daughter to see a lawyer in town to swear an affidavit regarding the aforementioned documentation. In her testimony, the Applicant was "aware he took the car" because she was working at her second job, a car clean-up shop (which job she held for only 2 weeks), and could not leave work. While Mr. Stewart was driving, he noticed that police had set up a seat belt check further up the road. He pulled over, got out of the vehicle and he and his daughter walked away until a police officer stopped them.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 & 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Randy James Stewart;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 28, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal's consideration of subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

(a) "no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available".

The Applicant in her testimony and in her written submissions (Exhibit 2) indicated that she owns 2 other vehicles. One vehicle is driven by her mother, who is the primary driver. The second vehicle is driven by her daughter. They each pay their own insurance.

Her mother is employed full-time at a doctor's office from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., which is a 10 minute drive from her home. The Applicant stated in her Owner's Position (Exhibit 2), that her mother fell on March 17, 2002 wherein she hurt her knee cap. She wore a cast for 8 week and then a brace until September, 2002. Her mother has not had surgery as yet, but will be scheduling an appointment in which the doctors will be scoping her knee to determine what further steps can be taken. The Applicant could not tell the Tribunal with certainty which knee was injured.

The Applicant lives 1 ½ hours on foot from her mother's residence.

The Applicant's daughter lives on her own. She is a 10 minute drive to the Applicant's home. She is enrolled in a nursing program at the community college in Sault Ste. Marie which is accessible by public transit. She is also employed part-time at Wendy's.

The Applicant's father, his spouse and her 2 brothers also live in Sault Ste. Marie. They all own their own vehicles and are aware of the circumstances. The Applicant's father drove the Applicant to one of her physiotherapy appointments.

The Applicant testified that: (i) since the impoundment, she has walked 1 ½ hours each way to and from work; (ii) her mother has driven her to work on a few occasions (iii) she has taken public transit, but there is no service after 11 p.m.; (iv) she has not taken any taxis or rented any vehicles because she cannot afford them (v) there are no other co-workers that work the same shift as her in order to obtain a ride to work or home (vi) she has moved into her neighbourhood in July, 2001 and does not know any of her neighbours.

(b) "the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting"

The Applicant testified that (i); she has missed 3 work shifts not because of medical reasons or because of the vehicle's impoundment, but due to being "upset with the situation", "angry" and "mad"; (ii) she has not had nor has missed any doctor's appointments; (iii) the Applicant has attended 1 or 2 physiotherapy appointments per week wherein she should be going for 3 appointments each week; (iv) the Applicant's residence is 911 accessible in the event of an emergency.

(c) "the impact of loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle"

The Applicant's son received a concussion during a football game approximately 3 weeks ago and has currently suffered a swollen ankle from falling down the stairs at school. Since the impoundment, the Applicant has made arrangements for her son to get to and from school.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and has managed to date. The impact of the loss will only be inconvenient and immediate, but not significant and lasting. Although the Tribunal is sympathetic with the Applicant's situation, the medical conditions and financial losses pre-existed the vehicle impoundment.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on November 1, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Richard Ritchie (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 2000 Yamaha YF4, plate # TC 727 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: October 18, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on November 1, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

In May 2000, I was convicted of refusing to provide a breath sample. My license was suspended for 2 years as a result of this conviction. This suspension ended in May 2002. I applied to take the remedial course to get my license back. Because of the OPSEU strike in May of 2002, I have been put on a waiting list and cannot complete the necessary requirements to get my licence back. However, since May 2002, I have not been notified that my license had been further suspended by the Registrar pursuant to s. 41.1(3) of the Highway Traffic Act. Therefore, as a result of s. 41.1(4) of the Highway Traffic Act, my licence was not suspended on July 30, 2002 and therefore the police officer had no grounds to impound my vehicle.

The Applicant testified that on July 30, 2002 he was driving his ATV (All terrain vehicle) alongside a country road near his home when he saw two other vehicles stopped on the road ahead. Thinking that it may be a friend needing assistance he crossed over the road and approached the stopped vehicles. The Applicant stated that at this point he was approached by a man who identified himself as a Police Officer and was told to get off his vehicle and wait until the officer finished what he was doing. After some thirty minutes the officer informed the Applicant that he had information that the Applicant's license had been suspended under the Criminal Code of Canada ("C.C.C.") for failure to provide a breath sample and that he was going to be charged with driving while disqualified and dangerous driving.

The Applicant then stated that a few days later he received a telephone call from the same police officer asking that they meet that evening in a parking lot at a local Tim Horton's donut shop. They did meet and the Applicant was told by the police officer that he had established that the Applicant was no longer disqualified under the C.C.C. but that his licensed remained suspended under the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario. The Applicant then stated that the Officer recommended that he appeal the impoundment of his vehicle as it was actually impounded in error.

Under cross examination by the Tribunal member, the Applicant testified that he was aware that at the time of the incident he knew that his driving license was in fact suspended, however, he was confused as to when the suspension started and when it was over and could not remember what month he was in court where he was convicted. He also stated that he had not made any recent effort to confirm his license status.

Under cross examination by the Representative for the Registrar the Applicant's testimony became more confused about the circumstances surrounding the incident leading to the impoundment of his vehicle and what was actually said by the police officer(s).

It is the view of the Tribunal that the Applicant's testimony lacked certain credibility relative to the actual events that took place on afternoon of July 30th 2002. The Applicant seemed to know that his vehicle was legally impounded because he was driving while under suspension but wanted his appeal upheld because of a technicality.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Richard Ritchie;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Provide Breath or Blood Sample under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 11, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the his driver's licence at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

The Applicant admitted in his testimony that he was aware that his license was under suspension and further stated that he had made no attempt to contact the Ministry of transportation to question when in fact his suspension was over.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

My name is Edward Zavalkovsky. I am President of Target Auto Sales Inc. I've known Mr. G. Boulaievsky as a used car dealer for a number of years, I've sold and bought vehicles from this gentleman a lot of times. On 10.15.02 at about 4 pm he picked up my 1998 Dodge Durango (listed in this document) to show it to the potential buyer. I had no idea that Mr. Gershon Boulaievsky had his driver licence suspended at this point of time.

Could you please review this claim and have the vehicle released back to me as soon as possible.

I've got a lot of money invested in this car (about $20,000) and without having this car in my position (sic) I can not sell it. That makes my whole business (sic) operation very difficult due to the very limited amount that I'm operating my business (sic) with.

The Applicant is the president and owner of Target Auto Sales Inc., a wholesale used car business which usually has fifteen vehicles on the lot and by his own admission, on average, sells twenty to twenty-five vehicles per month.

With respect to the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, another dealer, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, whom the Applicant has known for many years, made arrangements to show the vehicle to a prospective buyer. He was driving on a 400 series highway when he was stopped by the police who thought he had a white licence plate on the front and a yellow dealer plate on the rear of the vehicle. In fact, only the dealer plate was on the vehicle. The police checked the driver's licence and found the dealer was driving while his licence was suspended. The Applicant stated he knew the dealer/driver had some previous possible problems with his licence but he did not know he was a suspended driver.

The Applicant advised the Tribunal that the impounded vehicle is valued around $20,000.00. This amount is more than one-half his operating fund. Without the cash flow from this vehicle he is experiencing hardship but he can still carry on business without the impounded vehicle. He further stated that once the end of November arrives it is very difficult to sell vehicles of this value as customers do not buy cars before Christmas and sales are slow then.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Gershon Boulaievsky;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Provide Breath or Blood

Sample under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until August 23, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(10) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

The prescribed period referred to in subsection 55.1 is two years pursuant to Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of exceptional hardship per subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for his appeal to be considered under section 22(2), he must have demonstrated that all of the criteria in section 22(3) have been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal's consideration of the Applicant's evidence relating to subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

(a) "no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available."

The Applicant testified that he does have other vehicles available for sale to his customers and other dealers.

(b) "the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting."

The Applicant testified that "he will continue in business and the impounded vehicle when released will be going to an auction centre for resale." The funds realized from this sale will be distributed to resolve other issues that arose as a result of the dealer/driver's previous business transactions.

(c) "the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle."

The Applicant testified that he has a used car dealership and therefore has other vehicles available for transportation. This was not his personal vehicle but was for commercial resale purposes.

None of the claims presented by the Applicant have been substantiated with sufficient evidence. None of the losses presented by the Applicant's submissions have been proven and/or have met the criteria required by the Regulation.

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has an alternative to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will be inconvenient and immediate, but the financial implications are not a significant equivalent to exceptional hardship and are not lasting. The Applicant has failed to meet the criteria set out in subsection 22(3) of the Act.

Accordingly, after the criteria set out in sections 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle for forty-five days.

HEARING: November 5, 2002 London

DECISION
RELEASED: November 7, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on November 5, 2002, at London, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on November 5, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated October 1, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on October 22, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the hearing, the Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated September 7, 2002 – issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – Received September 22, 2002-11-06
- c) Exhibit # 3 Applicant's submission's – 19 pages – includes Medical Reports, Laboratories results, Human Resources correspondence, Medical Note - received October 22, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 4 Ministry of Transportation submissions – 13 pages – received October 31, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Sept 7/2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence:

Page two of Notice of Appeal is blank and refers to attached medical reports.

A medical report prepared by Physician #1 dated February 11, 2002, prepared for Human Resources Development Canada, in support of an application for Disability Benefits, diagnoses the Applicant with "Dilated Cardiomyopathy Syncope NYD".

Physician #1 described the Applicant's relevant medical history as follows: "Onset of Symptoms Nov 1994: Gradual Improvement until 1999 when reversal occurred: Now stable on medication but LVEF – 15%"

In a prescription pad note, dated October 15th, 2002, Physician #2 writes: "...was unable to give breath sample because of auto defibrillator. It has been activated several times in the past few months and often will activate with increased heart rate. He was legitimately refusing to prevent the defibrillator from going off..."

Attached to the Notice of Appeal, the Applicant submitted several documents in support of his case.

At the hearing the Applicant testified both in examination in chief and in cross examination, that on the evening in question he had been drinking. Prior to the breath test sessions, the Applicant told and showed the officers proof of his heart condition. At the time of the breath test session, the Applicant felt his heart rate increase and became afraid that he "...would get shocked...". The Applicant explained: "...I knew I was going to get it pretty soon ...you get to know after a little while, when you can feel it rise..."

The Applicant emphasized that being in Chatham in the early morning, augmented his fears as what could happen in the event his defibrillator activated.

The Applicant confirmed that after the breathalyzer test session, he was taken to the hospital by two officers. The Applicant made the decision to go to a hotel before going home. He chose not stay in the hospital as he was told that there was no cardiologist on the premises. The Applicant is sufficiently knowledgeable about his condition and the implanted device to realize that there would be nothing a physician could do.

In his closing remarks, the Applicant stressed that he did not refuse to provide a breath sample but that he was unable to do so due a medical condition. The Applicant re-iterated his previous remarks regarding his fears of activating his defibrillator.

Respondent's Evidence:

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, certified October 29th, 2002
2. Driving Record of the Applicant, certified October 28th, 2002
3. Copy of Vehicle Record Search, certified October 28th, 2002

The Applicant's driving record obtained from the Ministry of Transportation is attached to the Respondent's submissions.

The Respondent called Constable #1, a member of the Chatham-Kent Police Service, who has been a police officer since September 2001 as a witness.

Constable #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped, and transported to the division for a breathalyzer test. According to Constable #1 the Applicant was cooperative at all times.

The Applicant informed Constable #1 of his heart condition, but at no time did Constable #1 observe the Applicant in any apparent physical discomfort.

After Constable #2 was through with the breathalyzer test, the Applicant was returned to the care of Constable #1, who subsequently drove the Applicant to the hospital as a precautionary measure. Constable #1 noted that the Applicant tried to ascertain whether a cardiologist was in attendance at the hospital.

Also called, as a witness by the Respondent's Representative, was Constable #2, the Breath Technician who administered the breathalyzer test. Constable #2 is employed with the Chatham-Kent Police Service, and has been a police officer since October 1994. In November 2001, Constable #2 became a qualified breath technician to operate the Intoxylzer 5000.

Constable #2 minutely described his dealings with the Applicant as well as the mechanical workings of the instrument.

According to Constable #2 the Applicant was cooperative “...up until the testing...”. The Applicant was given approximately 10 or 11 opportunities to provide a breath sample but failed to comply. Constable #2 determined that the Applicant was blowing air out of the side of his mouth and therefore formulated the opinion that he was refusing to provide a breath sample.

Constable #2 was aware that the Applicant had a heart condition but at no time did he observe the Applicant in physical distress.

In closing the Respondent’s Representative reminded the Tribunal that the onus is on the Applicant to substantiate the medical grounds for appeal. Ms. Beintema acknowledged that the Applicant has a medical condition. Nonetheless, Ms Beintema emphasized that neither officer, both of whom are trained observers, noticed the Applicant to be in medical distress.

The Respondent’s Representative, asserts that because the Applicant knew he was intoxicated, he had no intention of providing a breath sample. Ms. Beintema contends that Tribunal cannot make a decision based on assumption, and claims that there is very limited medical information to support the Applicant’s “...speculation and presumption...” that the defibrillator could become activated. Ms. Beintema quoted the last sentence of Physician #2’s report “...He was legitimately refusing to prevent the defibrillator from going off...”, pointing out that the report lacks detail as to exactly how the defibrillator could be triggered. Also missing from the report according to Ms Beintema is: “...what happens when it shocks him ...what happens to the Applicant and what kind of an effect would it have on him...” “ if the defibrillator went off.

Citing insufficient information, in conclusion, the Respondent’s Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar’s decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Applicant's state of impairment is not at issue for this Tribunal. The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant had a medical condition that at the time could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Based on medical reports and on the viva voce presented at the hearing, the Respondent's Representative concedes that the Applicant does have an existing medical condition. The issue as presented to the Tribunal by the Respondent is whether the Applicant's medical condition prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative maintains that there were no visible observations by either officer that the Applicant was suffering from any physical distress. In most cases, the Tribunal would tend to agree that the officers on site observations are essential to the decision making process. Not in this case. The Applicant is not afflicted with lung disease or breathing difficulties where symptoms commonly associated with respiratory distress would be exhibited. The Applicant has been diagnosed with "Dilated Cardiomyopathy Syncope NYD", he has been implanted with a pacemaker-defibrillator. Unless the Applicant was in the throes of a myocardial infarction, his condition would present no visible symptoms.

The Applicant testified that as he attempted to provide a breath sample he noticed an increase in his heart rate. Having experienced the "shock" of his defibrillator being activated, the Applicant feared the rapid heartbeat would set it off again. Ms Beintema, the Respondent's Representative, contends that there is insufficient medical evidence to support the Applicant's claim that his defibrillator might be activated. Further Ms Beintema pointed out that there is no information before the Tribunal as to the exact conditions that might cause a defibrillator to activate.

The Tribunal disagrees with Ms Beintema's comment regarding the medical report. It is the Tribunal's view that Physician #2's hand written note strongly substantiates the Applicant's claim "...was unable to give breath sample because of auto defibrillator. It has been activated several times in the past few months and often will activate with increased heart rate. He was legitimately refusing to prevent the defibrillator from going off..."

Although the Applicant did not articulate his fear to the officers, the Tribunal accepts that the Applicant's ingrained apprehension resulting from his fear of activating the defibrillator contributed to his inability to provide a breath sample.

Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated September 07,

2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. The owner has appealed that order. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Marlene Norma Trudeau (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1990 Chevrolet GM4 pick-up, plate # 1359HW (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	October 28, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that she as the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on November 14, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Licence Appeal Tribunal:

Please accept this information as my appeal to retrieve my vehicle from impoundment.

On October 6, 2002, I asked Rodney G. Trudeau if he had a driver's licence and that if he did that he be my designated driver, after he informed me that he had not been drinking any alcohol. Rodney showed me his driver's license, however, failed to inform me that his license have been suspended.

A few hours later, Rodney returned to pick me up where I was and we were pulled over by the police shortly thereafter, on our way home. It was then that I learned that Rodney's licence had been under suspension prior to that day.

In addition, I requested that the information and application for appeal be sent to me on October 9, 2002 and have just received it today October 22nd and did not have much time to prepare my case. I did not know that I needed a lawyer and would have liked to collect a support letter from on witness who was with me at the time of the impoundment order. Also the police did not give me any information other than the document enclosed and stated that they gave all information to Mr. Trudeau. Mr. Trudeau informed me that he has no other information other than what the police gave to me.

Thank you in advance for considering this information and I look forward to hearing from you. For more information you can contact me at <phone number>.

Sincerely,

Marlene Dokum - Trudeau

ATTENTION: License Appeal Tribunal

I am writing in support to the return of Marlene Dokum's vehicle from my own bad judgement. I apologize to Marlene Dokum and to all occupants in the vehicle knowing now the danger I have involved them in and that my class "G" license was suspended.

I met Marlene at my Uncles place of residence and failed to tell her that my license was suspended and showed her my license at that time. I am at fault on this matter and I hope that Marlene Dokum does not have to pay for my actions.

Once again, I apologize for my actions and hope that you will consider the return of Marlene Dokum's vehicle.

Sincerely,

Rodney G. Trudeau

During the Applicant's testimony she claimed to have seen the driver's licence of the operator of her car, Rodney Trudeau, but did not observe any expiry date or address. Although the driver and the Applicant have the same name she claimed there was no relationship. She therefore had no reason to suspect that his licence had been suspended.

The driver, Rodney Trudeau, has had six previous driving convictions. The most recent was failure to surrender his driver's licence. His licence is currently under suspension until April 2003.

The Applicant asked Rodney Trudeau to be a designated driver that evening as she knew she was to continue drinking after she left Rodney Trudeau's uncle's place for a local bar. In view of the nephew's extensive licence problems it is difficult to understand why Rodney Trudeau's uncle would not have cautioned the Applicant in respect to her choice of a designated driver. It would seem to be a questionable decision to allow a person that you do not know to drive your car under these circumstances. The police report was dated October 7th, 2002 at 0250 Monday morning.

The Applicant, Marlene Norma Trudeau, maintained throughout her testimony that she saw the driver, Rodney G. Trudeau's driver's licence.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Rodney G. Trudeau;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood /Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until April 3, 2003.

In response to questions addressed to the Applicant it was determined that the Applicant has purchased another vehicle to replace the impounded truck.

She stated that she had no reason to suspect that during the absence of her designated driver, Rodney G. Trudeau, he would drink nor did she believe he had been drinking when he picked her up to drive her home. This in spite of the fact Rodney G. Trudeau had a blood alcohol level in excess of 80 mgs. at 0250 Monday morning October 7, 2002, when the vehicle was pulled over by the OPP.

The Respondent noted that the driver failed to produce his driver's licence as requested by the OPP officer of record, even though the Applicant said she saw this document when she appointed Rodney G. Trudeau her designated driver.

The Applicant, Marlene Norma Trudeau, had no idea how a driver's licence can be verified as valid and this process was explained to her by the Respondent.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c), that due diligence was exercised.

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The evidence in this case suggests the Applicant, Marlene Norma Trudeau, was about to go out for an evening that would include her consumption of alcoholic beverages that might exceed the legal limit for driving an automobile. She therefore appointed a designated driver, Rodney G. Trudeau, whose licence she said she witnessed. No further verification of the validity of Rodney G. Trudeau's licence was attempted by the Applicant, Marlene Norma Trudeau. She made no inquiries of an independent party, such as the uncle, to ascertain whether the proposed driver held a valid driver's licence. Indeed, in the view of this Tribunal, no credible evidence was provided to support the Applicant's claim that she saw the driver's licence at the residence of the driver's uncle.

Diligence that is due is dependant on the individual circumstances. In the view of this Tribunal, the Applicant did not exercise diligence at the level required in these circumstances.

The Applicant, Marlene Norma Trudeau, in this case has failed to supply evidence to support her grounds for Appeal as defined in 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: JUNE 27 and 28, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar issued a Notice of Proposal dated February 21, 2002 to revoke the registration of Carmen Di Paola as a salesperson under the Act. The Proposal outlines a lengthy chronology of events. In summation the Registrar alleged that the Applicant had a number of unsatisfied judgments against him. There were some years of negotiation between the Registrar and the Applicant regarding these judgments. Ultimately the Applicant surrendered his registration as a broker but continued to work as a salesperson under a registration with terms and conditions. There was negotiation again between the Applicant and Registrar as to the settlement of the existing judgments in accordance with the terms and conditions. The Applicant filed a Notice to make a Proposal in September 2001. The Proposal was rejected and in November 2001 the Applicant made an assignment into bankruptcy. The Applicant continued to be an undischarged bankrupt at the time of the hearing.

The Registrar wished to revoke the registration of the Applicant under section 6 of the Act for the following reasons:

1. Having regard to the Registrant's financial position, the Registrant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

2. The past conduct of the Registrant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Registrant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Applicant filed his Notice of Appeal dated March 11, 2002 requesting a hearing before the Tribunal. A prehearing was held on May 24, 2002. At that time there was agreement by the parties to a number of matters stated in the Notice of Proposal. Following that prehearing the Registrar issued a Notice of further and other particulars on June 4, 2002. In it the Registrar detailed further particulars as regards the Participative Dynamics Inc. judgment, the Nesbitt Thomas Inc. judgment also referred to as Newbitt Thomson Inc. (hereinafter Nesbitt) and judgments relating to Revenue Canada, Ministry of Finance Ontario and Worker's Compensation Board.

The hearing commenced on June 27th and continued on June 28th, 2002.

Issue:

Did the Registrar have reasonable grounds to form the conclusions in his Notice of Proposal that the Applicant failed to meet the standards as set out in section 6 of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act and therefore the registration of the Applicant as a salesperson should be revoked?

Evidence:

Counsel for the Registrar stated in his opening statement that the Applicant had a number of business related judgments since 1993. He had been permitted to be registered on condition that he deal with these judgments. Then the Registrar learned of another judgment that was related to the real estate industry. After a series of meetings the Registrar and Applicant reached an understanding whereby the Applicant would renounce his broker registration and would pay off his outstanding judgments. The Applicant was then registered as a salesperson on terms and conditions. The Registrar determined that the Applicant had not met his obligations and he gave the Applicant until September, 2001 to settle his debts. This was not accomplished and the Registrar issued his Proposal in February, 2002 based on financial irresponsibility.

Counsel for the Applicant stated that the Applicant has worked in the real estate business for thirty-six years. During that time there has been one industry related complaint whereby a judgment was issued against the Applicant. Attempts to settle that judgment and an appeal of it were unsuccessful. By 1998 the Applicant and the then Registrar were in negotiations as the Applicant had a number of unsatisfied judgments as a result of the early 1990's crash of the real estate market, deficiencies in mortgage transactions and the personal guarantees of the Applicant on these transactions. The Applicant informed the Registrar of efforts to settle the PDI judgment, which was industry, related. The Applicant renounced his broker's registration and continued to be registered as a salesperson under terms and conditions. The Applicant discussed the issue of bankruptcy with the Registrar and understood that his salesperson registration would not be affected if he went bankrupt.

The Proposal to the creditors was unsuccessful and the Applicant made an assignment into bankruptcy. The issues before the Tribunal in the opinion of Counsel for the Applicant were:

1. Should the Registrar be permitted to revoke his agreement with the Applicant?
2. If so, are the matters stated in the Proposal and the subsequent bankruptcy grounds for revocation of the salesperson registration of the Applicant?

Testimony of Yvonne Nandalall:

Ms Nandalall has been a registration officer with the Real Estate Council of Ontario (RECO) since November, 1997. Prior to that time she had worked in a similar position with the government for over ten years. It is her responsibility to review all the complex applications to see if they are in compliance with the requirements of the Act.

There were a number of judgments against the Applicant, which totaled $7,611,801.56. Of these the important ones were the PDI judgment as it was real estate industry related and the Nesbitt judgment as the Registrar had not known of these judgments. The Registrar had asked for particulars on these judgments. The Applicant provided some additional information with his application for registration in July, 1997. It was not until October, 1997 that the Registrar learned of the PDI judgment, which was related to a real estate deal of the Applicant. The Registrar had known of a complaint by counsel for PDI back in early 1993.

Ms Nandalall followed up with letters to all creditors of the Applicant in order to learn of the status of the judgments. There were a series of meetings between the Registrar and the Applicant. The Applicant had stated to the Registrar in the May 7, 1998 meeting that he hoped to have satisfied all judgments within two to three months. A further meeting was held on August 18, 1998. Then on October 2, 1998 there was another meeting at which time a draft of the terms and conditions was discussed. Then at the December 9, 1998 meeting the terms and conditions document was revised. Ms Nandalall recalls Mr. Di Paola stating that his lawyer felt he should go bankrupt but he wanted to satisfy his creditors. The last meeting was held on February 28, 2001. At that meeting the Registrar wanted confirmation that the Applicant would satisfy the PDI and Nesbitt judgments. But the Registrar never received any confirmation.

Ms Nandalall stated that it is the policy of the office not to give advice to applicants on whether or not they should go bankrupt or what would happen to their registration if they were to go bankrupt. The Registrar has to look at each situation and see how it affects the public interest.

In Ms Nandalall's opinion she did not think Mr. Di Paolo was taking the registration process seriously. He knew since 1997 that administrative action could happen due to the unsatisfied judgments yet he made no progress with satisfying those judgments. He would ask for extensions of deadlines at the last minute or give his responses to inquiries at the last minute.

Testimony of Allen Taylor Johnston:

Mr. Johnston is the Registrar, Real Estate and Business Brokers Act. He has held that position since January, 2002. Prior to that time he has held a number of senior positions within the industry.

Mr. Johnston stated that he issued the Notice of Proposal on the basis of lack of financial responsibility of the Applicant and that the Applicant would not act in accordance with law, with integrity and honesty.

Regarding the issue of financial responsibility Mr. Johnston stated that upon his review of the documents he noted that there were a number of judgments issued over a large span of years. This fact caused him concern. Rather than these judgments being satisfied the amounts in question appeared to increase over time. Though he thought all of the judgments were of importance he did place a little more importance on those that deal with consumers and real estate transactions.

Mr. Johnston stated that he was concerned about the insufficient disclosure of the judgments. Over time there appeared to accumulate more judgments. He felt that going bankrupt is an important factor. In this case he had some reservations about the desire of the Applicant to meet his financial obligations as a bankrupt when one reviewed the particulars of the Proposal to the creditors. Mr. Johnston had reviewed the draft Proposal to Revoke Registration that had been initiated by the former Registrar and he agreed with its content.

Regarding the issue of honesty and integrity Mr. Johnston felt it was important that applicants answer the questions on the application form honestly. In this case Mr. Johnston felt that the Applicant either failed to state clearly that there were outstanding judgments against him or failed to state all of those judgments. Mr. Johnston felt that the former Registrar had been sympathetic to the Applicant initially as it was hoped that the Applicant would deal with the outstanding judgments in a satisfactory manner. When that did not happen terms and conditions were imposed. Then there was the demand that the Applicant use his best efforts to deal with these outstanding judgments. Finally there was the issuance of the Proposal.

Mr. Johnston stated that there is a higher standard applied to real estate brokers as they are dealing with consumer trust assets. But the consumer also puts a high degree of trust in the real estate salesperson. The deposit cheque is given to the salesperson who then provides it to the real estate company.

In this matter Mr. Johnston was concerned about the PDI judgment as it was real estate industry related. As well he was concerned that the Applicant was indicating that there had been a settlement of the Nesbitt judgment but there had been no payments or any agreement to settle this judgment. Finally Mr. Johnston was concerned about the debts owing to the Federal Government for source deductions and GST payments. The lack of consumer complaints was a positive indication to the Applicant in this case.

Mr. Johnson was also impressed by the reference letters for the Applicant, many of which are updates of the 1998 reference letters.

Regarding terms and conditions Mr. Johnston stated that the Applicant was under such conditions on two occasions. Despite being required to use his best efforts to settle judgments he failed to meet the time lines. Then he went into bankruptcy. That in itself is not an absolute bar.

Under cross-examination Mr. Johnston stated that he formed his conclusions after reviewing the long list of creditors. He did not speak to the Trustee in Bankruptcy. He was concerned about the consumers after reviewing the contents of his file. Mr. Johnston stated that he formed his opinion based on the materials before him. He had concerns about the reasonableness of the Proposal before the creditors. Mr. Johnston was satisfied that the Applicant had been given a number of opportunities to satisfy existing judgments.

Testimony of Jerrald Gaertner:

Mr. Gaertner is a licensed Trustee in Bankruptcy. He has the carriage of Mr. Di Paola's bankruptcy proceeding. He evaluated the past financial history of Mr. Di Paola and his ability to pay his creditors. He thought that the Proposal submitted to the creditors was fair and reasonable and in good faith. Mr. Porteous disagreed with the Proposal. He was elected as the sole inspector and ordered an investigation. Mr. Gaertner contacted the major creditors who disagreed with the position of Mr. Porteous. The results of his investigation were negative. He had investigated the disposition of certain commercial property and the transfer of various racehorses.

Under cross-examination Mr. Gaertner stated that the large creditors wanted to write off the debts. Much of the indebtedness of Mr. Di Paola was from the late 1980's into the early 1990's. Mr. Gaertner did not feel the cost justified any further examination of the financial position of Mr. Di Paola.

Testimony of Archibald Porteous:

Mr. Porteous testified that he got judgment against Mr. Di Paola and the appeal by Mr. Di Paola was dismissed. He recovered approximately eighty four hundred dollars from the bond forfeiture. Mr. Porteous testified that he handled the case in court personally and then hired a lawyer to collect on the judgment. When his lawyer did a judgment debtor examination Mr. Di Paola refused to answer questions. His second lawyer entered into negotiations with Mr. Di Paola. There was some confusion if the offer by Mr. Di Paola to settle was ten thousand over five years or twenty five thousand over two years. The actual debt in 2000 was $455,000.00 inclusive of interest.

When the debt was not paid Mr. Porteous appealed to government authorities and put pressure on RECO and the Ministry. It was only during the bankruptcy proceedings that Mr. Porteous found out about the extent of the other debts owed by Mr. Di Paola.

Mr. Porteous was suspicious of the Notice of Proposal as the wife of Mr. Di Paola is a broker of the company and operated out of the same building.

He had invested in two units in the Woodbine Business Centre. When he did not close Mr. Di Paola sued him. Mr. Porteous had counter sued and was successful.

Under cross-examination Mr. Porteous stated that during the course of litigation he has used four lawyers. He would only accept the amount of the judgment (that being about $320,000,00) and would forego interest but Mr. Di Paola was not receptive to that offer. Despite his suspicions about Mrs. Di Paola 's interest in the building Mr. Porteous has not searched title.

Testimony of Tom Wright:

Mr. Wright has been the President of RECO since January, 2002. Prior to that time he was the Registrar of REBBA from November, 1997 to January, 2002. He had been the Information and Privacy Commissioner for the Province of Ontario from 1991 to 1997.

Mr. Wright explained that there were a series of outstanding debts and various executions, which totaled over seven million dollars. As well as a considerable length of time during which, Mr. Di Paola had these outstanding debts. There has been a judgment, which related to trading in real estate. These were all concerns of Mr. Wright.

Mr. Wright recited the history of negotiations between Mr. Di Paola and the Registrar's office. In the spring of 1998 he had a meeting with Mr. Di Paola to get an idea of the status of the outstanding judgments. In October, 1998 there was a further meeting to discuss terms and conditions. A further meeting on these terms and conditions occurred in December, 1998.

Mr. Wright stated that the purpose of the terms and conditions was to address the outstanding judgments. He wanted measures to protect the public. Following these meetings there was the forfeiture of the bonds of the company and Mr. Di Paola. The proceeds of the bonds forfeiture was applied to the PDI judgment.

Mr. Wright recalls the Applicant asking for time to resolve this PDI judgment. A meeting was held in February, 2001 to get an update on this situation. At that time Mr. Wright stated Mr. Di Paola was given a time frame of September, 2001 to resolve the matter or there could be administrative action. He recalled that Mr. Di Paola had mentioned bankruptcy as an option at several of the meetings.

Mr. Wright testified that in each case of bankruptcy the merits need to be reviewed. The outstanding debts are considered particularly any relating to real estate consumers.

In Mr. Wright's opinion there was no progress by Mr. Di Paola from 1993 to 1997. Though Mr. Di Paola did make some efforts regarding the PDI judgment there was difficulties in obtaining specifics. Two sets of terms and conditions were necessary to monitor the situation. Mr. Wright stated that he must balance the protection of the public against the interests of the registrant.

Mr. Wright found there were a number of factors that influenced his decision to issue the Notice of Proposal to revoke the registration of Mr. Di Paola. Firstly he found out the extent of the indebtedness of Mr. Di Paola once the Notice of Proposal was issued. Instead of seven million Mr. Di Paola owed upwards of seventeen million dollars to his creditors. Secondly there had been a substantial length of time of the judgments being unpaid, from five to seven years. Thirdly he considered the nature of the interaction of Mr. Di Paola with his office. There had been two sets of terms and conditions. In the second set of terms and conditions Mr. Di Paola was to use his best efforts to deal with his outstanding obligations. Mr. Wright expected Mr. Di Paola to deal with his office in good faith. When he did not see any best efforts to deal with the indebtedness he then issued the Notice of Proposal. Fourthly it is quite unusual to have the two bonds forfeited. Fifthly there was a real estate related judgment.

Mr. Wright stated that he considered that Mr. Di Paola has been a long time registrant and that he had numerous letters of reference. But he had to protect consumers. Salespersons do get deposit cheques from consumers. Financial responsibility is equally important as the way they interact with the public.

Under cross-examination Mr. Wright agreed that normally cheques are not made out in the name of the salesperson. He was aware that the judge in the PDI matter found Mr. Di Paola guilty of a technical breach. He agreed that he had not asked for a personal financial statement. He did not know why Mr. Di Paola and his lawyer had the impression that if Mr. Di Paola went bankrupt it would not affect his registration as a salesperson.

Mr. Wright explained that the letter from his office dated March, 2001 shows what are the expectations for administrative action and that there existed the option to take away his sales registration. Mr. Wright stated that his decision was based on the failure of Mr. Di Paola to satisfy the outstanding judgments. He did not contact the Trustee in Bankruptcy to obtain information on the indebtedness of Mr. Di Paola. He had no further meeting with Mr. Di Paola after September, 2001. Mr. Wright stated that the bankruptcy caused him to re evaluate the situation.

Testimony of Carmen Di Paola:

Mr. Di Paola testified that he is fifty-eight years of age and has been working in the real estate industry since 1966. Between 1975 and 1999 he worked at his company Carmen Di Paola Real Estate Inc. The registration on that brokerage was terminated in 1999. He stated that Mr. Porteous is the only complaint against him in his real estate career.

Mr. Di Paola stated that in the Fall of 1989 he borrowed three million dollars against his family home. He also borrowed five million dollars on properties that he owned. This money went towards maintaining the commitments he had previously made. But the recession lasted longer than he anticipated and the buildings were sold by power of sale after the mortgage companies obtained judgments against them. Mr. Di Paola had signed on these properties as a guarantor. For instance Nesbitt was a half partner in the development of a 25-acre property into a plaza. But it was not completed and the five million in equity became a five million dollar mortgage. There had been three principals on that deal. One of them died. The second made a settlement by paying out $250,000.00 on the 5 million dollar mortgage. Mr. Di Paola stated that he was also offered that deal but could not find the monies to make that commitment. He lost his farm as it had 2.3 million mortgage on it. Manufacturers Life sold it for $620,000.00. The Royal Trust got an execution against a mortgaged property after the tenant defaulted. Mr. Di Paola owed $250,000.00 on his personal assignment.

Mr. Di Paola stated that he owed Revenue Canada $600,000.00. He made $400,000.00 in 1988/89. The remainder was interest owing on the principal. It was written off as a fairness issue.

Regarding the Porteous matter, it went to judgment in 1993. Mr. Di Paola took it to the Ontario Court of Appeal but lost the appeal. There were settlement negotiations and Mr. Di Paola went to a judgment debtor examination. Mr. Di Paola made a settlement offer of $20,000.00, which was not accepted by Mr. Porteous. Then Mr. Porteous stated he wanted the full principal amount but would waive interest. Mr. Di Paola did not have the funds to do that. Finally Mr. Di Paola made an offer of $50,000.00 over five years. This was at a time when the Registrar was pushing that he settle this outstanding judgment. But Mr. Porteous refused that offer.

Mr. Di Paola stated he had a number of meetings with the Registrar. In May, 1998 he had sold some properties and took care of some of the judgments. In August, 1998 they were concerned with the draft terms and conditions. Then in the October, 1998 meeting he and the Registrar again discussed the terms and conditions and the need for a settlement with PDI. There had been ongoing discussions as to settlement of the outstanding judgments. Mr. Di Paola did mention how he did not want to go into bankruptcy. He wanted to continue to be a real estate salesperson so he could support his family.

Mr. Di Paola had a further meeting with the Registrar in December, 1998. Mr. Di Paola told the Registrar how humiliating it would be to go into bankruptcy. Then in February, 2001 Mr. Di Paola asked the Registrar what would happen to his real estate registration if he did go bankrupt. He understood that the Registrar wanted him to try to settle and then go for a Notice of Proposal. But if he did go bankrupt despite these efforts then Mr. Di Paola understood that the Registrar would permit him to keep his registration.

Under cross-examination Mr. Di Paola stated that he is registered with CDP Real Estate and does mainly sales and gives some management advice. In the last four months he has concluded a number of leases and one conditional sales agreement. Mr. Di Paola thought that the wording in the terms and conditions, particularly clause 8, pertained to any new matters that could lead the Registrar to revoke the registration. He thought that the termination of his registration as a real estate broker was his punishment for the Porteous judgment. He thought the impetus of the second set of terms and conditions was for him to settle the Porteous judgment. He did make his best efforts but could not make a deal with Mr. Porteous.

Testimony of Joseph Virgilio:

Mr. Virgilio has been a barrister and solicitor for twenty-six years. He has a practice in real estate development, corporate and commercial law. He is the councillor for ward 3 in Unionville. He attended the October, 1998 meeting with Mr. Di Paola and Mr. Wright. The issue was Mr. Di Paola's real estate broker's registration. Mr. Wright wanted that registration terminated and Mr. Di Paola wanted to keep it. The Registrar was concerned with the Porteous judgment. It was agreed that Mr. Di Paola would resign his real estate broker's registration but would keep his salesperson registration. The main issue then was allowing Mr. Di Paola to work at his wife's real estate brokerage. There were further meetings to finalize the terms and conditions.

Mr. Virgilio did not remember the Registrar's exact answer to his question about the significance of Mr. Di Paola going bankrupt. He did feel there was no problem with it.

Testimony of Character Witnesses:

Mr. Mario Giorgio is a businessman who has known Mr. Di Paola since 1979. He has done business with Mr. Di Paola and as volunteered with Mr. Di Paola in such organizations as the United Way and Doctor's Hospital. He has found Mr. Di Paola to be honest and have integrity.

Mr. Brian McFarlane is the president and CEO of Kensington Health Centre. He was affiliated with Doctor's Hospital for thirty years. He has known Mr. Di Paola for eleven years in doing fundraising events for the Hospital. He has done business dealings with Mr. Di Paola. He has found Mr. Di Paola to be an honest and trustworthy person.

Dr. Abraham Liebermass has had a personal and business relationship with Mr. Di Paola for thirty-five years. He wrote a reference letter on behalf of Mr. Di Paola.

Frank D'Andrea is a barrister and solicitor. He has known Mr. Di Paola for six years. He knows Mr. Di Paola from their charitable work together with the Board of Governors of Holy Trinity School. He has found Mr. Di Paola to be a person with honesty and integrity.

Paul Durigon is the president of Perlane Construction. He has known Mr. Di Paola for fourteen years. He knows Mr. Di Paola both socially and from a business perspective. They own property together. He has found Mr. Di Paola to be a straightforward person.

Closing Statements:

The Registrar

In his closing statement Counsel for the Registrar relied upon a number of cases:

Brenner v Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen (1983) O.J. No.1017 (Ont. Div.Ct) states the test to be used by the Tribunal in determining whether the proposal by the Registrar should have been carried out. Mr. Justice Southey states "The effect of s.7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty."

669607 Ontario Ltd. (c.o.b Carrera Fine Cars) (Re) (1998) O.C.R.A.T.D. 45 states that the inactivity of the applicant to repay his debts "goes directly to the issues of honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law".

Auciello (Re) (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 56 states that the Tribunal attached significance to the fact that the applicant had not engaged in any meaningful discussions with the creditors to look at future repayment plans.

Winston W. LaRose v Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers (1992) C.R.A.T. 590 states that the applicant faces temptation if he has access to trust funds when he has little expectation of repaying his judgments.

Twin Towers Realty Ltd. (Re) (1997) O.C.R.A.T.D. no 91 states that the public should be protected at the expense of the applicant particularly if there are any issues as to the handling of trust monies.

Paul Stephen Kash v Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers (1990) CRAT vol. 21, p.253 deals with the impossibility of the applicant to satisfy his creditors and the need to protect the public.

Melnyk (Re) (1997) O.C.R.A.T.D. no 15 deals with the impact of the applicant acting in bad faith with the Registrar. The applicant had bad debts since the 1991 recession and she continued to state she could pay off these debts while not providing the Registrar with information on her current income.

Vogelsberg (Re) (1994) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 135 deals with an applicant who was unwilling and unable to make significant efforts to pay off his debts.

Josef Reznicek v Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen (1990) CRAT vol. 20 p. 65 deals with the applicant having outstanding judgments.

Registrar v Griesse (1993) CRAT vol.25 p.765 deals with the Tribunal needing to consider the cumulative effect of the misconduct of the applicant

Gilford Garage Service Limited and Theodore Ambury v Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen (1982) CRAT vol. 11 p.52 deals with the importance of full disclosure being given to the Registrar

Chopra v Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers (1993) CRAT vol. 25 p. 514 stresses the importance of non disclosure and its weight upon the assessment of the relevant past conduct.

Ontario (Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers) v Faccenda (Ont. Div. Ct.) (1994) O.J. no. 954 states that all past conduct is potentially relevant Evaniuk v Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers Act April 24/25, 2001 states that the conduct of the applicant in relation to civil judgments is important.

Counsel for the Applicant also cited a number of decisions.

Re Jervis (c.o.b Dave's Car and Truck Sales and Service) (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 285 stresses the need for the Registrar to review all of the past conduct of the applicant in making his decision on registration.

4-x4 Headquarters Ltd. (re) (2000) O.L.A.T.D. no. 149 cites the Re Jervis case

Re Coates et. Al and Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen (1988) 65 O.R. (2d) 526 (Ont. Div. Ct.) states at page 7 " In revoking a registration the tribunal is interfering with a right to make a living that has been equated to a property right: see Evans, Janisch, Mullan and Risk, Administrative Law, 2d ed. (Toronto, Emond-Montgomery Publications, 1984), at p. 80. While the grant or refusal of a licence may be regulated as a matter of privilege, rather than right, the revocation of an existing licence has always been regarded as an interference with a right, not a privilege."

At pg 9 the court states "This message is clear and has been consistently adopted by this court. Nothing short of clear and convincing proof based upon cogent evidence will justify an administrative tribunal in revoking a licence to practice medicine or to gain a livelihood in business."

Hunt (c.o.b. Garys) (re) (2001) O.L.A.T.D. no. 450 finds that the applicant's failure to answer a question in the application form correctly is not the basis to refuse registration when the applicant has been registered under the Act for 24 years with no major problems.

Re Faccenda (1994) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 139 deals with the proposition that the Tribunal needs to look at the totality of the past conduct in light of more current circumstances.

Re Boboros (2000) O.L.A.T.D. no. 133 deals with the Registrar considering all conduct of the applicant including his dealings with the Registrar's office

Legislation:

The relevant legislation is the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act.

Section 6 (1) an applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the applicant's financial position, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;...

- (2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

Section 9 (4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

- (5) The Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

Analysis:

This is a complex situation, which has been in progress for over ten years. Mr. Di Paola ran into financial difficulties when the recession of the early 1990's continued for a number of years. He was guarantor on a number of buildings that were sold by power of sale. Ultimately he was left owing many millions of dollars. There was one deal in which he sued Mr. Porteous. Mr. Porteous counter sued and Mr. Di Paola was ultimately found responsible on a technical breach to Mr. Porteous and a judgment was issued which was upheld on appeal.

During this time frame the Tribunal understands that Mr. Di Paola was in negotiation with the Registrar's office. The Registrar had known of the complaint of Mr. Porteous since 1993 though it learnt of the judgment only after it was upheld on appeal. For a period of time Mr. DiPaolo kept both his broker and salesperson registration. After a series of meetings in 1998 it was agreed that Mr. DiPaolo would resign his broker's registration. Mr. DiPaolo had continued to work as a salesperson and was registered with his wife's real estate broker's company. In the fall of 2001 a Proposal was made by his Trustee to his creditors. It was not accepted and Mr. DiPaolo went into bankruptcy. He was an undischarged bankrupt as of the date of his hearing in late June, 2002.

The Registrar now wishes to revoke the salesperson licence of Mr. DiPaolo on the grounds that he failed to fully disclose his financial position and he is not financially responsible, lacks integrity and honesty and will not carry on business in accordance with the law. The Applicant states that the Registrar misled him as to the consequences of going into bankruptcy and the Registrar should be stopped from revoking the salesperson registration. The Applicant states that there is a higher proof required for the revoking of registration.

The Tribunal is not convinced that the actions of Mr. DiPaolo are such that he has breached the standard as set out in section 6 of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act. The Registrar has known that Mr. DiPaolo suffered serious financial losses due to the early 1990's recession. Whether the losses amount to seven million or seventeen million is of no significance. Either figure is an indication that Mr. DiPaolo was and continues to be in an extremely poor financial position. It would have been wise in hindsight if Mr. DiPaolo had recognized the futility of his financial position at an earlier time. Mr. DiPaolo did manage to deal with some of his debts such as those owed to Revenue Canada. He has testified and his testimony is collaborated by his creditor, Mr. Porteous, that there had been negotiations to settle the judgment that issued from the lawsuit, particularly after it was upheld on appeal. Both Mr. Porteous and Mr. DiPaolo agreed that despite negotiations no settlement could be realized as Mr. Porteous wanted the principal on the debt and Mr. DiPaolo did not have sufficient financial resources to make such a large repayment.

Ms Nandalall, registration officer, testified that the Registrar's office knew of the client, Mr. Porteous' complaint since 1993. They did not know of the judgment until the fall of 1997. That matter had been under appeal and it had taken some years before the appeal was refused. The Registrar's office knew of a number of the judgments, which spanned a number of years. The Registrar did not know the full extent of the indebtedness until he received information relating to the Proposal and ultimately the application for bankruptcy. But Mr. Johnston did testify that he did not seek any further information from the Trustee. Mr. Wright testified that he did not ask for a personal financial statement though he did allow the Applicant to continue to be registered under terms and conditions for a number of years. The Tribunal agrees with the comment made by Ms Nandalall that she did not think Mr. DiPaolo was taking the registration process seriously. Mr. DiPaolo should have listened to the advice of his lawyer back in 1998 as to the need to go into bankruptcy. He was deluding himself by thinking he could manage to repay debts of such a magnitude. But the Tribunal does not think Mr. DiPaolo willfully misled the Registrar. He tried to negotiate for some period of time with Mr. Porteous. He sold some properties and repaid some of the debts. Finally he sought the assistance of a professional Trustee and tried to work out a Proposal. It could be that the Registrar's Office was caught off guard by the magnitude of the debts as stated in the Proposal and bankruptcy proceedings but the Registrar's office was not proactive to fully investigate the finances of the Applicant prior to that time.

The Registrar's office knew since the fall of 1997 that there was a client judgment. There was pressure put on Mr. DiPaolo to relinquish his broker's registration. When that occurred the Registrar's office agreed to terms and conditions, which remained in place for several years. There was little followup on the terms and conditions until early in 2001 when pressure was put on Mr. DiPaolo to settle the PDI judgment. The Tribunal finds it significant that a Proposal did not issue until after the commencement of the bankruptcy by Mr. DiPaolo. Indeed Mr. Wright testified that the bankruptcy made him re-evaluate the position of the Registrar towards the continuing registration of the Applicant as a salesperson. While it would have been prudent of Mr. DiPaolo to have kept the Registrar's office aware of the lack of progress with his negotiations for settlement with Mr. Porteous the Tribunal cannot find that his actions were in violation of the terms and conditions by which he was to use his best efforts to deal with outstanding judgments. The Tribunal does not find that the act of bankruptcy by itself is sufficient for the revocation of an existing registration. All of the circumstances, both past and present including the circumstances, which led to the bankruptcy, must be considered and weighed prior to issuing a Notice of Proposal.

The Tribunal attaches great significance to the history of the Applicant in the real estate industry and the support of his local community leaders, many of whom chose to testify personally on his behalf. This is an Applicant who has been a salesperson and then a real estate broker for thirty-six years. There is one client judgment, PDI, during that time frame. It was not contested that that judgment was based on technical reasons. Efforts were made to settle but with no success. It was evident that Mr. Porteous has been rigorous in his pursuit of Mr. DiPaolo since the failure of his investment in the Woodbine Business Centre. Mr. Porteous has displayed overzealous suspicions of the current situation of Mr. DiPaolo, though he has taken no reasonable steps to validate his suspicions. He remains active in the bankruptcy proceedings of Mr. DiPaolo. It is evident that he would not be prepared to engage in any realistic settlement proposals. This factor should have been of some significance to both Mr. Johnston and Mr. Wright when assessing what weight to be given to the PDI judgment.

But Mr. DiPaolo must share some blame for this situation. He was not realistic in assessing his ability to repay such large debts. He should have kept the Registrar's office fully apprised of the futility of his quest for settlement with Mr. Porteous. He should have insisted on further meetings with the Registrar's office after acceding to the professional advice of his Trustee in Bankruptcy. The Tribunal attached significance to the testimony of Mr. Gaertner. He testified that he felt the Proposal to the creditors was fair and reasonable and in good faith. Where his opinion clashed with that of Mr. Johnston on the issue of the Proposal to the creditors the Tribunal has accepted the opinion of Mr. Gaertner.

Mr. DiPaolo allowed himself to be lulled into a false sense of security about the reaction of the Registrar to the issue of going into bankruptcy. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of both Mr. Wright and Ms Nandalall that it is the policy of the office not to give advice to applicants on whether or not to go into bankruptcy and on how that would affect their registration. Even his lawyer Mr. Virgilio did not remember the exact response of the Registrar to that issue. While Mr. Virgilio felt there was no problem it is not evident on what basis he arrived at that conclusion. Mr. DiPaolo convinced himself that by relinquishing his broker's registration he had faced his punishment. Those who wish to be employed in a regulated industry need to understand that the Registrar has a duty to be alert to the protection of the consumer. There needs to be a balance between the right to earn a livelihood and the need to protect the public.

I have reviewed and considered all of the cases mentioned by counsel for the parties and I find that the Coates case, a decision of the Ontario Divisional Court applies in this situation. It states that it takes clear and convincing proof based upon cogent evidence to revoke an existing registration. The Tribunal does not find that such is the case here. Nor does the Tribunal find that there is a need for terms and conditions. There is no evidence before the Tribunal that Mr. DiPaolo has abused trust funds. Nor is there evidence that the Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and integrity and honesty.

Now that he has filed for bankruptcy the Applicant is under the supervision of his Trustee for Bankruptcy for some period of time. His major creditors and the Trustee differ from the views of Mr. Porteous and saw no need for any further investigation of his financial affairs. There is no evidence that his conduct as a salesperson with CDP is of concern to the Registrar. Terms and conditions would serve no meaningful purpose in these circumstances.

Order:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 9(4) of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act the Tribunal directs the Registrar not to carry out his Proposal.

LICENCE APPEAL TRIBUNAL

Marjorie Hiley
Vice Chair

Released: December 20, 2002.

LOU AND ROSE CAVALERI

IN THE MATTER OF THE DECISION OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTY PROGRAM

DECISION DATED MARCH 19, 2002

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE HILEY
VICE-CHAIR

APPEARANCES: LOU and ROSE CAVALERI, Applicants
KAREN JONES, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program
LOUIA GREGORIS, Agent, representing the Added Party,
Baycliffe Homes Inc.

DATE OF HEARING: JULY 25 & 26, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("The Program") had by its letter of March 19, 2002 dismissed the Applicants' claim for compensation based on major structural defect. The Program stated that water penetration is excluded from the definition of major structural defect. The limitation period for building code violations has expired. The issue of mold is excluded under section 13 (2)(e) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, ("the Act") and the definition of major structural repair in the Act excludes dampness not arising from a failure of a load-bearing portion of the building.

The Applicants filed a Notice of Appeal dated March 27, 2002. In it they allege that their basement cannot be used for recreational purposes; that water is seeping up through the grout in the tiles on the basement floor; and that mold growth is present in the basement and presents a serious health hazard to the use of the basement.

There was no prehearing. The hearing proceeded on July 25, 2002. At that time the Applicants stated that their expert could not attend on July 25, 2002. The Tribunal permitted the testimony of this witness to be heard out of order on July 26, 2002.

The Program brought a motion at the commencement of the hearing on July 25, 2002 to permit the filing of the expert report of Mr. Paul Duffy. This report was outside of the twenty-day time period as stated in the Rules of Procedure of the Tribunal. The Applicants objected to the filing of this report. The Tribunal heard argument from both parties on this matter. As well there was filed the Notice of Motion, Affidavit in support of motion and the response by the Applicants and Affidavit of Rose Cavaleri.

Counsel for the Program stated that there had been a delay in retaining an expert due to settlement negotiations between the parties. Finally an expert was retained on June 21, 2002. The Applicants were contacted and the expert viewed their home on July 3, 2002. The report was prepared by July 10, 2002 and served on the Applicants on July 10, 2002, which was fifteen days prior to the hearing rather than the required twenty days. Counsel for the Program stated that there was no prejudice to the Applicants. They had ample time to review the report which was not complex or of a technical nature. If necessary an adjournment was requested to permit the filing of this report.

The Applicants stated that they had concerns as they only received the Notice of Motion on the evening of July 15, 2002. They had agreed to the date of July 3, 2002 for the inspection by Mr. Duffy. They felt it unfair to permit this report when the Program had known of the hearing date since late April 2002. They opposed the adjournment.

The Tribunal allowed the expert report. Though it was submitted outside of the time frame under the Rules of Procedure the Tribunal found that there was no prejudice to the Applicants. They had time for the review of this report by their own expert. The Tribunal determined that it was important to have all relevant evidence before it. In so concluding the Tribunal wished to make it known that the Program should not conclude that its actions were acceptable to the Tribunal. The Program is knowledgeable as to the Rules of Procedure of the Tribunal. It is expected that in future the Program will hire and instruct its expert well enough in advance of a hearing date that there will be no breach of the Rules of Procedure.

ISSUE:

Was the Program correct in denying the major structural defect claim of the Applicants?

EVIDENCE:

Opening Statement:

Applicants:

The Applicants took possession on July 15, 1996. By December 2000 they had problems with water on the basement floor. There was a crack and water seepage. In 2001 the Program was given written notice of the major structural defect. They are relying on the second part of the definition of major structural defect, which deals with the use of the building. The water penetration is not due to dampness nor the work by the Applicants nor due to ventilation issues. It is due to surface water as there is a high water table under the grade of the house. The basement is unsafe and not used by the family. There are violations of the Ontario Building Code.

Testimony of Rose Cavaleri:

Mrs. Cavaleri testified that the floor plans provided for a sink in the future recreational area and rough in bathroom. The interlocking patio was installed in the summer of 1997. The basement was finished in 2000. There is a gas fireplace, large recreational room, entertainment centre and cold cellar. There is ceramic tile in the finished area of the basement. There was no moisture penetration in the area from 1997 to 2000 nor was there mold found in the basement during construction.

In December 2000 Mrs. Cavaleri noticed one to two inches of water in the grout underneath the work out machine. There were patches of moisture throughout the basement though mainly in the middle of the room, not at the perimeter. After this discovery the family and particular the children were not permitted to use the basement. The oldest daughter is sensitive to all molds.

Mrs. Cavaleri feels that the mold problem has contributed to her daughter's asthma attacks. She remembers that when her daughter used to go into the basement that she would complain that she could not breathe.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that she would mop up the grout and the water would be back within the hour. She noticed the water in front of the cold cellar. There would be a sticky substance in the patches and it would come up through the tiles. She did not see any such patches on the perimeter walls. There is a crack on the west/north wall. She has two dehumidifiers working, one on each side of the room.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that they complained to the Program via their letter of November 17, 2001 of the water seepage through the tiles in the ceramic floor, the water underneath the foundation, the mold growth and how all this affects the health of the family. The photographs attached to Mr. Fisher's report showed the water seepage and the visible mold on the fiberglass.

Though Mrs. Cavaleri would clean up the water every day it would seep back into the basement within hours. She now has a dehumidifier with a hose attached to the drain so she does not need to be constantly emptying the reservoir of the dehumidifier.

Mrs. Cavaleri submitted a claim to her insurance company. They had an inspector from Leda come and investigate the matter. There is a report by Mr. Matthew Molson of Leda dated July 17, 2001 stating that there moisture detection equipment indicated moisture is present in the drywall and the exterior ground surface is saturated with moisture close to the house. They concluded that the damage "is occurring due to some type of hydrostatic pressure causing water to flow below the home and enter the floor due to capillary action." " The insurance company did not pay for damages to their furniture and home due to the water seepage. They had the sprinkler system checked and it was found to be fine. Despite that they shut down the sprinkler system for the summer of 2001 and that did not help with the water seepage.

It was the testimony of Mrs. Cavaleri that in July 2001 they had a company called RCC fix the crack in the west/north wall. The weeping tile was checked and it was clear. The water by the wall cleared up after the crack was repaired but the patches of water on the floor continued. By their report of November 15, 2001 RCC suggested installing an internal drainage system around the inside perimeter of the house. They submitted an estimate of $10,800.00 for that work.

The building inspector attended at the house on November 7, 2001. A report dated November 16, 2001 from Randy Chalmers, Building inspector supervisor, City of Vaughan, was submitted. It stated that the building inspector observed moisture in the grouting of the ceramic tiles and that he suggested that the cause of the moisture could possibly be a high water table. Further investigation would be required.

RCC bored two core holes in the basement of the home. Mr. Molson from Leda reattended on November 16 2001 and observed that the concrete at the site of the core holes was approximately 1¾ inch thick and there was evidence of the presence of moisture below the concrete slab.

Mrs. Cavaleri testified that she understood that the Ontario Building Code requires the concrete in the basement floor to be 3 inches thick. Her basement floor was measured at the core openings to be 1¾ inch thick.

She stated that she would put a paper towel into the core opening and it would be completely saturated with water. She obtained materials from CMHC, which stated when investigating a damp basement to check the condition of the water table near the house. She obtained the reports on the boreholes done by the developers. Their house is on lot 35 and thereby is closest to borehole # 10. That borehole level as of April 1987 showed the water table to be at ground level.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that her oldest daughter, Giulia, has allergies to mold. She submitted a medical report from Dr. Hamat, her child's pediatrician dated July 4, 2002. That report indicated that the child is seen by the specialist Barry Zimmerman regarding her asthma. It is the opinion of Dr. Hamat that the mold in the basement is contributing to the instability of the child's asthma condition.

It was the testimony of Mrs. Cavaleri that the basement is not now used as a storage area. They removed the door from the furnace room to help with air circulation. She opens the windows in the basement in the winter to get better circulation of the air but that does not help with the water seepage problem.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that Mr. Northcott inspected the basement in January 2002. Regarding his decision letter she states that she used to clean the floors with a water and vinegar solution. Unlike his report she had observed water on top of the tiles. She has suffered emotionally from this situation, as she fears for the health of her family. As well she had two real estate agents tell her that the problem would have to be fixed before they could sell their house.

Under cross-examination Mrs. Cavaleri stated that her knowledge of the building code came from discussions with her expert. She did not think her daughter Guilia was diagnosed with environmental allergies until after the move into the home. She was diagnosed with asthma in 1996. There is nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale to indicate any concern for Guilia's health issues. There had been a number of one-year warranties and mildew in the basement, which had been resolved by the builder, and they had not proceeded with the conciliation process. Between 1998 and 1999 they put ceramic tiles on the basement floor, did some partitioning and drywall of basement walls and ceiling. They used an architect for the plans for the basement and then used different contractors to implement those plans. Her husband did the interlocking brick patio in about 1997/98. They had an underground sprinkler system installed but Mrs. Cavalier could not remember when that occurred.

Mrs. Cavalier remembered noticing some water in the grout in November 2000. She cleaned it up with a paper towel. That occurred in the southwest corner of the basement. It was after their trip in December, 2000 that she saw a puddle of water in the Northeast and North to South quadrants plus a third patch by the cold cellar. She could see water on the grout and a whitish material. The patches would be about a foot by a foot in size. She would wipe up the water but it would be back in a short time frame. They tried using dehumidifiers and then called in RCC who found a crack in the north wall on the outside of the house. This crack was near the window on the northwest wall and went down the wall from the window to the weeping tile. RCC fixed the crack from the outside. The weeping tile was checked and it was clear.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that there was no water on the perimeter of the walls. The entertainment centre was installed in the basement after completion of the basement room in 1999. She did find white patches in the furnace room after the carpet there was lifted.

Mrs. Cavaleri was there when Mr. Northcott from the Program inspected the house. He thought she was putting some cleaning material on the tile but she only used vinegar and water solution as per the direction of the tile people. She pointed out to him two different patches of water but in his report Mr. Northcott did not mention any surface water on the tiles.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated that starting in November or December 2000 she noticed a musty smell in the basement. They stopped using it as a recreational area and she told that to Mr. Northcott when he inspected the house. She had not noticed any mold on walls or the plastic over the insulation prior to doing the renovations nor was there any water on the basement floor prior to installing the ceramic tiles.

Mrs. Cavaleri stated her laundry room is on the main floor of the house. There is a sink in the basement but it is not used for laundry. There is a cold cellar, which holds wine. The canned goods were moved upstairs. She can remember having to empty the dehumidifiers at least twice a day as their containers would be full of water. If she left boxes on the utility floor the bottom of the boxes would be wet.

Since the boreholes were done she has noticed the sand underneath is saturated and she regularly pulls out wet paper towels from that area. She notices that the sand is wet though there is no standing water.

Mrs. Cavaleri testified that the municipality stated that she needed a sump pump.

Testimony of Mr. Northcott:

Mr. Northcott has an architectural technology degree from Mohawk College in 1987. He has taken courses offered by the Ministry of Housing and the Ontario Building Officials Association. As well he is certified in the design and installation of heating, refrigeration, and air conditioning units. He initially worked as a survey technician, then as an inspector of subdivisions and since May 1999 as a warranty representative with the Program.

Mr. Northcott inspected the home of the Cavalier's on January 18, 2002. He observed damp proofing on the outside of the foundation. He did not notice any odor while inspecting their basement. He saw the drill holes in the basement floor.

Mr. Northcott noticed furniture in the basement. He was told the husband uses the exercise equipment but the children do not use the basement. There is a wine cellar there and a prefabricated plastic laundry tub in the furnace room.

He agreed with the sketch by Mrs. Cavaleri as to the site of the approximately ten patches of water seepage. There is nothing on the perimeter of the basement walls. There are no such patches near the boreholes. He did not see water sitting on the grout of the tiles. There is a white substance on some of the tiles and on the grout areas. He saw no standing water in the boreholes. He tested by pouring water on the floor and saw where the water darkened the grout differently. He could not recall if there was any calcite on the floor of the furnace room. The concrete floor in the furnace room was dry and had been painted.

Mr. Northcott testified that Mrs. Cavaleri had stated there was mold in the insulation behind the television. He did not see the mold, as the television was not pulled out during his inspection. He saw no mold elsewhere in the basement. There was a single cold air return in the unfinished basement but none in the finished area of the basement. Mr. Northcott stated the cold air returns provide proper air ventilation. The Building Code stated that the cold air return should not be in the furnace area. There were heat vents in the ceiling of the basement.

Regarding the area behind the entertainment centre Mr. Northcott through his observation of the photographs felt that there should have been some ventilation from that area to the other parts of the house.

Mr. Northcott stated that the data collected from the boreholes done by the developer in 1987 reflected the water table at that time. Since then there has been regrading of the soil, installation of sewers and other work. It is not helpful to look at such data in 2002. There was no indication that the house was on a high water table.

He explained that hydrostatic pressure means water being forcibly taken out of the ground. He looked for water coming in through the boreholes or at the perimeter of the walls but that was not happening. He did not feel the interior drainage system recommended by RCC would be of any assistance in this situation.

Regarding the thickness of the basement floor Mr. Northcott stated that the Ontario Building Code states that the concrete needs to be three inches thick. The Ontario Building Code also stated the structural adequacy of the concrete and the size of footings. The Code sets out when a moisture barrier is required and it is related to the strength or mpa of the concrete. Mr. Northcott was not aware if the mpa of the concrete in the basement floor of the Cavaleri home had been tested.

Though the thickness of the concrete of the basement floor of the Cavaleri house was a defect by the Code Mr. Northcott did not see any correlation between the thickness of the slab and the problems being experienced by the Applicants. There was no failure of the load bearing portion or displacement or heaving of the floor.

Under cross-examination Mr. Northcott stated that no testing was done of the water seepage from the grout nor were any air measurement tests done. He felt that there was no single thing that impacted on water being on the floor. He stated that different construction methods were to be used if the footings were within one meter of the water table. Then you would use a sump pump. The Code does not specify that the sump pump has to be inside the house. He agreed that the basement was one third of the house and constituted a major portion of the house.

Testimony of J. Paul Duffy:

Mr. Duffy received his Master in Civil Engineering in 1983. He has been designated to be a consulting engineer by the Consulting Engineers. He worked at mold remediation at the Newmarket Courthouse and at other courthouses in the Province plus office buildings and townhouse projects. He has done research for CMHC on mold remediation in homes. His expertise is in locating mold and diagnosing the repair of buildings with mold problems. He is familiar with the testing techniques for molds. The Tribunal stated he was an expert in building sciences/building envelope and mold remediation.

Mr. Duffy had observed the areas of the grout and the ceramic tiles as shown in the photographs. He felt that the ceramic tile was acting as a moisture vapor. He did not feel that the problem was one of water being under the slab. Otherwise he would have expected to see water in the boreholes or coming through the perimeter of the walls at any crack locations.

He excavated the area shown by photographs 12 A & B. There was green growth on the exterior wall, which shows that it is a wet area. As shown by photograph 14B there was a drainage barrier on the outside of the foundation. There is an eight-inch band at the top of the wall without damp proofing. But he did not see that translating into a problem with the south wall. As shown by photographs 7 A & B that the furnace room floor is painted and there is no lifting of that paint. The moisture is not coming through from that floor. In the area shown by photographs 21 A & B Mr. Duffy did not see any standing moisture but he did see evidence of moisture in the polyethylene sheet. He would have thought the moisture problem would have been on the south wall not the east wall. He did not do any excavations of the east wall. It had the interlocking patio. There is a possibility that the soil was compacted under the interlocking patio and that could have damaged the drainage system there.

Mr. Duffy did not feel that the moisture problem was due to the construction of the house. He took off the baseboard at the north wall and took off a piece of tile as shown by photographs 17B and 20B. He found no moisture there. He could not find a source of moisture on the north wall nor on the west wall. He did not see mold in the cold cellar but it is a good candidate for the development of mold.

Mr. Duffy felt that there was water in the grout. The water on the tiles was due to splashing of the water in the grout. There was no condensation of water on the tiles. The areas of grout discoloration were discrete and distinct.

Though the concrete slab floor was less than three inches thick it met its intended purpose and there was no cracking. Water wicks up through concrete but Mr. Duffy did not feel the difference in the thickness of the concrete slab was significant. He stated that there is a risk of moisture through grout if there is moisture on the concrete. He questioned what was the additional mix used in the mortar or the grout. He felt perhaps that could be an issue. On the balance of probabilities he did not feel the problem was due to a running water issue. It would be helpful to test the water in the grout to see if it had chlorine. If so then it was municipal water.

Regarding the mold issue Mr. Duffy felt it was important to test the mold to see what type of species. That would indicate if it is a mold that would normally be found in a house. He felt that samples should be taken from the air in the basement and the main floor as well as from the cold cellar in order to look for issues of cross contamination. Mr. Duffy stated that after looking at the entertainment centre area as shown by photograph B there would have been heat generated by the equipment, which should have dried up the excess moisture. In his opinion the defect was not caused by the work of the builder.

Cross-examination of Mr. Duffy was interrupted for the testimony of Mr. Fisher, expert witness for the Applicants. When Mr. Duffy was cross examined he stated that as shown by photograph 10 A he could see that there was a defect in the way the membrane was installed on the top edge. It could have let water in so he checked the south wall but did not find a problem.

Mr. Duffy stated that grout is a porous substance and can be a path for the wicking of water. Some manufacturers of grout and mortar add mixtures, which can change the characteristics of the mix. He could see as shown by photographs 7B, 8 A & B and 3 B that there was a mixture of sand and stones in the boreholes.

In summation Mr. Duffy felt that the worst area should have been the south wall, which is the higher wall, and the photographs show it is wet outside of the wall. But the problem was the water on the east wall and the patches in the middle of the floor. The north wall had a crack but it was repaired some time ago.

Testimony of David Fisher:

Mr. Fisher has a degree in chemical engineering and he is a chemistry engineer. He is accredited as a professional chemist and has been found to be a consulting engineer by Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario. Since 1990 he has operated Fisher Environment, which is an engineering consulting firm that does lab testing, and air testing. It has a department for mold testing. The company consults on environmental matters, does drilling and analysis of soil. Prior to that time he was a manager of a refinery. The Tribunal found him to be an environmental engineering specialist.

Mr. Fisher stated that he found black/green colour mold in the basement of the Cavaleri home when he investigated the home on January 25, 2002. As well he observed efflorescence in the leaching of calcite into grout. He observed that the air in the basement had a moldy odour, particularly when he came close to the plastic behind the entertainment centre.

It was the opinion of Mr. Fisher that there was moisture channelling through the basement floor and that resulted in the calcite deposit. There needs to be pressure for the water to come through the floor and into the grout. He did not feel the water was going through the grout due to the composition of the grout. If the concrete was thick enough and have sufficient density then the channelling of water would be prevented. Photograph A attached to his report showed the greenish and black mold. If insulation is placed on a wet basement the mold will grow due to the moisture being contained within the insulation.

Mr. Fisher stated that if a person is allergic to mold then they could have sensitivity at 25 cfu. Most people are considered safe at 300 cfu. Normally one does not identify the species of the mold.

Mr. Fisher testified that he had observed water in the boreholes. That does not mean that there would necessarily have been water in the boreholes in July when Mr. Duffy observed the boreholes. Mr. Fisher felt that the borehole drilling by the developer in 1987 shows that the area had been part of a swamp. In that case if the drainage is not done correctly than moisture could remain. The composition of the soil was glacial till which is like concrete. The harder the soil the more chance of water pooling into the top area.

Mr. Fisher felt that the sump pump solution offered by RCC would be of assistance to the problem. He did not feel that the interlocking brick patio had an impact on the moisture problem. He stated that it was not an unusual procedure to put ceramic tiles on a mortar base. It would be beneficial to have ventilation in the cold cellar.

Under cross-examination Mr. Fisher stated that he could not tell the elevation of the water table after the subdivision had been constructed. He stated that with the glacial till type of soil there was a greater likelihood of having wetness around the envelope of the house.

Though Mr. Fisher knew that three inches was required for the concrete slab for the basement floor by the Ontario Building Code he was not aware of the Code requirements for its density.

Mr. Fisher stated that the house is suffering from its weeping tile system not being able to take away the water. In a hydrostatic pressure situation the water enters through the perimeter and in the boreholes. Mr. Fisher did not recall seeing any cracks in the concrete. He did not see heaving of the concrete. He saw no mold in the furnace room or water on the floor of the furnace room.

Though Mr. Fisher agreed that the New York State and Ontario guidelines ask for the species of mold he felt it was too expensive to do that analysis. He did a visual inspection of the nooks and crannies of the basement and did not find mold in any other area. He described his procedures for doing the air samples; two were taken at about fifteen minute intervals. They were contained in a room temperature non-air device and after three days the spores were counted. Though it would be helpful to take the air samples from inside and outside of the house it was twenty below on January 25 so that was not possible. Mr. Fisher stated that both test results were within the range acceptable to a non-allergic person.

It was the opinion of Mr. Fisher that the thickness of the concrete floor was very important to the proportion of water coming through the floor. As well the more dense the concrete (mpa) the better for prevention of capillary action of the water.

Closing argument:
Applicants:

Mr. Cavaleri stated that the slab floor was not containing the water. It was the intent of the Applicants to use the basement as a recreational area. The Applicants had done a number of investigations. As well the medical report suggests that their daughter's health problems can be attributed to the mold. The basement cannot be used for what it was intended. There is no evidence to suggest that the Applicants contributed to the problem.

Program:

Counsel stated that the Applicants took possession in July of 1996. Over the next few years they did a significant amount of work consisting of an interlocking patio in 1997/98 and the basement being refinished 1998/99 plus the installation of an underground sprinkler system. There is mold behind the east wall and water on the floor. There are no problems with the other walls and the crack on the outside of the north wall was repaired. Though there is green algae on the outside of the south wall there is no water penetration there. Counsel stated that the mold and floor water is in the areas where the homeowner has done work.

Counsel stated that Mr. Duffy's report should be given more weight than that of Mr. Fisher. Mr. Duffy stated that the thickness of the concrete slab should have no bearing on the water penetration. He found no standing water in the boreholes so there is no high water table.

Counsel pointed to the exclusions found in section 13 (2) (a), (e), (f), (g) of the Act. Counsel stated that one looks at what are the requirements of a reasonable person, not at the thin skull arguments. There was no problem with the home prior to the renovations.

Counsel quoted the following cases:

Catherine Balfour CRAT released June 29, 2000 - that the basement floor was not load bearing.

R.K.Brimacombe CRAT released Nov. 19, 1991 – that there is an onus on the homeowner to prove that the exclusions do not apply

RE Galko (1997) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.111 deals with case law on definition of major structural defect.

After the completion of the hearing Counsel for the Program sent to the Tribunal and the Applicants a copy of the case of Anastasia Noel Pare LAT released July 31, 2002. In it the Tribunal found that the test in the definition of major structural defect is objective, not subjective.

The Applicants objected to this case being sent by the Program after the date of hearing. They countered with the case of Rodger James a CRAT decision of Nov.16, 1998 in which it was held that the basement constitutes one third of the residence and the Courts have in the past upheld the belief that the loss of such a large area is material and adverse.

It should be pointed out to both the Program and the Applicants that prior case law at the level of the Tribunal is not precedent setting. Often such cases involve unique factual situations, which are not helpful to the case at hand. Unlike a court of law an administrative tribunal is not bound by precedent. Such decisions are merely persuasive.

Legislation:

The relevant legislation is the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act.

Section 13 (1) every vendor of a home warrants to the owner:

- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
- (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,
 - (a) defects in materials, design and work supplied by the owner;
 - (e) damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintain adequate ventilation;
 - (f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;

(g) alterations, deletions or additions made by the owner;

Section 14 (1) Where:

- (b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty; or
 - (c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed, the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.
- (2) In assessing damages, the Corporation shall take into consideration any benefit, compensation or indemnity payable to the person or owner from any source.
- (3) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under section (1).

Regulation 892

Section 1 "major structural defect" means for the purposes of clause 13 (1) (b) of the Act any defect in work or materials

- (a) that results in failure of the load bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load bearing function, or
- (b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended, including significant damage due to soil movement, major cracks in basement walls, collapse or serious distortion of joints or roof structure and chemical failure of materials, but excluding floor damage, dampness not arising from failure of a load bearing portion of the building, damage to drains or services, damage to finishes and damage arising from acts of God, acts of the owners and their tenants, licensees and invitees, acts of civil and military authorities, acts of war, riot, insurrection or civil commotion and malicious damage;

Section 14 (2) every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner;

(e) that the home is free of major structural defects.

Section 16 Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990, the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession.

Analysis:

The homeowners took possession of their home on July 15, 1996. There were a number of problems which came to the attention of the Program but which were resolved with the builder without the need for the conciliation process or recourse to the then Commercial Registration

Appeals Tribunal. The Tribunal was told that one of those problems dealt with mildew but it was resolved to the satisfaction of the homeowners. Accordingly there is no prior history of unresolved matters, which would permit the current complaint to be considered under the one year, or two-year warranties as stated in the Act. The Applicants are compelled to rely upon the warranty of major structural defect as it allows for a complaint within seven years from the date of possession.

The definition of major structural defect is quite specific as to what can and cannot fall under that type of warranty. It is unfortunate that many homeowners are not aware of the limitations as stated in the Act and in particular in Regulation 892 of the Act which contains the definition of major structural defect and its exclusions. This claim and its unique factual situation are determinative by the specifics of that definition.

The Tribunal has the greatest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Cavaleri and in particular to the health issues of their oldest daughter, Guilia. The Tribunal does not doubt that as stated by the child's paediatrician Guilia's allergies and the flare-ups of her asthma are worsened by being in an environment where mold is present. The Applicants are quite correct to be concerned about the presence of mold in the basement. But that situation cannot be viewed in isolation. The results of the mold testing are inconclusive, as there was no analysis of the species of mold. If there was only one species of mold than there could be a situation whereby the home is not suitable to all members of the family. The Tribunal cannot speculate and the results of the air testing do not by themselves permit this conclusion. The builder was not put on notice of any specialized health requirements of the family and there is no such requirements written in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale.

There are two problems with the claim of the Applicants. The major one is in the definition itself. Problems with dampness such as observed by Mrs. Cavaleri are excluded under the definition of major structural defect unless the dampness is the result of a failure of a load bearing portion of the building. Here there is no evidence that the floor slab has shifted or heaved. There is no evidence of any major cracks in the floor slab or in the foundation walls. There is no evidence that the foundation walls have shifted resulting in water flowing in through the links in the perimeter between the foundation walls and the floor slab. The Applicants did not base their case on failure of a load bearing portion of the house but on subsection (b) of the definition that there is a defect, which affects the use of the house in a material and adverse way. The Tribunal notes with approval the case of Anastasia Noel Pare quoted by the Applicants. The loss of a basement, which comprises one third of the space of a home, is material and adverse and within the Act. But the legislators in drafting this definition have listed a number of exclusions to it. The Applicants are caught by the exclusion "but excluding ...dampness not arising from failure of a load bearing portion of the building". There is no evidence that the water, which has been observed, by Mrs. Cavaleri and Mr. Fisher in the grout of the tiles and in the boreholes can be attributed to any failure of a load-bearing portion of the building.

There is discussion by the parties as to the type of soil found in the subdivision and to the height of the water table near the home of the Cavaleri's but there are no specific investigations on how that relates to the water that started to seep onto the basement floor of the Cavaleri home starting in November, 2000. The Tribunal has no basis on which to relate the porosity or lack thereof of the soil and the height of the water table at the site of this home. There is the evidence of Mr. Northcott that if the home had been constructed within one meter of the water table the builder is obliged to use different construction methods including the use of an exterior sump pump. No one has stated that there has been a violation of the building code as regards the lack of a sump pump.

As well though there is a violation of the building code regarding the thickness of the basement slab the Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Duffy over the opinion of Mr. Fisher on this point and finds that the defect in the thickness of the floor does not by itself account for the moisture and mold problems observed in the Cavaleri's basement. Mr. Duffy states in his report that the problem spots are isolated and random in location and "the pattern of moisture is not easily explainable as general efflorescence and moisture passing through the floor by capillary action." The Tribunal was quite impressed with Mr. Duffy's testimony. He was quite forthright in his puzzlement over the problems experienced by the Cavaleri's and tried to offer some ideas for solutions to this problem. His report was detailed and contained information on previous investigations as well as on his own observations and testing methods. The problem of moisture can not be linked to failure of a load bearing portion of the building.

The second problem deals with the timing of the discovery of the moisture and mold problems. Mrs. Cavalier testified that she first noticed the moisture in November 2000 prior to the family going on vacation. She also states that prior to that time but after completion of the basement renovations her daughter Guilia had complained of breathing problems if she spent any period of time in the basement portion of the house. In the opinion of the Tribunal Mrs. Cavaleri is a credible witness and the Tribunal was impressed with the clarity of her evidence. The problems now complained of by the Applicants only came to light after some major renovations were completed by them such as the interlocking patio, the sprinkler system and the major basement renovations. There is no evidence that the renovations themselves are grossly defective. But it is suspicious that there was no mold or moisture seepage when the basement was unfinished and yet such problems were detected within a short time frame after the renovations were completed. Mr. Duffy's report provided some analysis of this issue. The Tribunal accepts his analysis and finds that his comments are relevant to this matter. The Tribunal strongly recommends to the homeowners that they consider his observations and recommendations in making any further decisions on how to correct these problems. In light of the health problems of Guilia it is advisable that the homeowners eliminate the mold now existing on the east wall. Both experts have stated the likelihood that mold can grow in a cold cellar. Both experts have testified that the cold cellar smelled musty. Further investigation of mold growth in the cold cellar is advisable.

In conclusion the Tribunal agrees with the homeowners that they are experiencing problems with moisture seepage and mold in their basement. Unfortunately these problems cannot be linked to the definition of major structural defect since they are excluded from the definition of "major structural defect" in section 1 of Regulation 892 and therefore the homeowners do not have a claim for compensation under the Act.

Order:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claim of Mr. and Mrs. Cavaleri.

Warranty Program

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Ontario New Home Warranty Program issued its decision by letter dated March 20, 2002. It denied the Applicant compensation for the hardwood floor in the living room and family room on the basis that partial repairs are only required and the homeowner refused the builder access to complete such repairs. The Program relied on section 14(6) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act. The Program also relied upon the exclusion clause in section 13 (2) (d) of the Act on the basis that the separation is consistent with normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction.

By Notice of Appeal dated April 5, 2002 the Applicant requested a hearing before the Tribunal. The Applicant stated in his Notice of Appeal that the builder knew of the problems with the hardwood floor since the date of possession. The Applicant claimed that the cost of the floor totaled $7,558.99.

ISSUES:

Is the floor warrantable under the Act?

Can the Program rely upon section 14(6) of the Act?

Is this an issue of exclusion under section 13 (2) of the Act?

Evidence:Opening statements:

The Counsel for the Applicant stated that the hardwood floor has been an outstanding issue for over three years. The Applicant is reluctant to allow the builder access as he has no assurance that such access will lead to reasonable results.

Counsel for the Respondent stated that the Applicant took possession on January 20, 1999. The gaps and chips in the floor are warranted and the builder wished to replace some board. But the Applicant did not agree with the proposed manner of repair by the builder and refused access. Accordingly the Applicant is not entitled to compensation from the Fund. As well it was the improper humidity levels which have resulted in gaps to the floor.

Testimony of Kamal Killu:

Mr. Killu stated that he is a registered engineer who has worked on construction projects in Iraq. He took possession of his home on January 20, 1999. The Pre Delivery Inspection was done on January 18, 1999. The PDI sheet dated January 18, 1999 and signed by him and Mr. Misurka states "fill gaps on floors". Mr. Killu stated that the family room and living room are basically one large area. At the time of the PDI the floor was approximately one half completed.

Mr. Killu stated that during February and March, 1999 Mario from the builder and Sandro from the builder saw the condition of the floors. As well Chris from Pine Valley Flooring came and found that you could fit a loonie in the gaps in the floor. At that time Chris checked the nailing of the floor via the basement and checked the humidifier. By April, 1999 the subcontractor, Pine Valley Flooring and David Misurka for the builder were concerned about the manufacturing process. Someone came from the manufacturer, Mirage, at the middle or end of May, 1999. A report was supposedly completed but such report was never provided to Mr. Killu. There is a report by Dennis Coles from Mirage dated June 4, 1999 stating that basically the installation is good but some cosmetic repairs are required.

In July, 1999 a representative from the subcontractor came to do repairs. After several hours this person caused damage to the good boards while trying to take out the damaged boards. This worker nailed down the boards and then put in filler. There was an uneven floor as a result of these repairs. The floor was damaged in a number of areas.

Mr. Killu referred to his letter of January 17, 2000 which outlined the problems with his floor. These problems according to Mr. Killu were the same from the date of the PDI to the date of that letter.

Mr. Killu referred to the report of Mr. Sharko from Mirage dated February 24, 2000 which spoke of Mr. Sharko's observations following his inspection on that date. Mr. Sharko spoke of the gaps between the boards being due to environmental conditions at the time of installation which then led to the wood shrinking as it dried out. Mr. Sharko felt that entire sections of the floor had to be replaced.

As well Mr. Killu referred to the report of L.R. Wells of Wathdene Holdings Ltd. dated May 18, 2000. In it Mr. Wells stated that the installation of the floor exceeds industry standards. It speaks of optimum conditions for the preservation of wood floors. Mr. Killu was not present during this inspection and he contests its findings.

Ms. Lumley from the Program came to the house on July 3, 2001 to deal with the issue of a steel beam. Her conciliation report dated July 26, 2001 speaks of some repairs being required for the hardwood floors. Mr. Killu testified that the hardwood floors were deteriorating due to an increased number of chips from nails popping out.

After this conciliation report Mr. Killu checked with the subcontractor and found out that the repairs would be done in accordance with the method used in July, 1999. Mr. Killu had concerns about this method of repair which he conveyed verbally and in writing to Ms. Lumley. Mr. Killu referred to his letter of September 16, 2001 which stated his dissatisfaction with the previous repair work on his floor and the need to replace the entire floor.

There was no written response from the Program but the builder wrote to him to complain about lack of cooperation regarding these repairs.

Mr. Killu then asked Carson Dunlop and Associates to inspect the basement beam and the condition of the main floor hardwood flooring. This report found that the installation of the hardwood floor was defective, the damage is extensive and represents significant cosmetic deficiencies.

Mr. Killu testified that there was a site inspection by Ms. Lumley on February 19, 2002. She took photographs of the floor at that time and said she would contact the builder. Ms. Lumley stated that the cost of the floor was four thousand dollars. Mr. Killu disputes that figure as he felt that the $2,500.00 bonus for appliances was used towards this floor. He has no invoice on the cost of replacement of the floor.

Mr. Killu stated that he wants the floor replaced as over fifty per cent is damaged. He found chips on forty strips, gaps on the long side of 20% and many gaps on the short side. He maintained that the floor is in the same condition as what he received on the date of possession.

Under cross-examination, Mr. Killu stated that the Agreement of Purchase and Sale shows the cost of the flooring to be $4,564.70. He stated that Mr. Misurka had not mentioned any significance with the humidity when he initially checked the flooring. He disagrees with the analysis of Mr. Sharko that it is environmental conditions that have caused the gaps. He stated that there had been no discussion of the method of repair at the time of the conciliation inspection. He agreed that he questioned the method of repair in his response to the builder in late August, 2001 and asked that the repairs be postponed. In his letter to the Program dated September 16, 2001 he disagreed with the method of repair. He did receive the letter of November 5, 2001 from the builder in which it was stated that the builder could not obtain access to do the repairs to the hardwood floor. His lawyer sent a letter dated November 9, 2001 confirming his opposition to the method of repair. He agreed that he was not prepared to allow the builder to perform the repairs in the same fashion as previously.

Testimony of Gerard Gransaul:

Mr. Gransaul from Carson Dunlop inspected the hardwood floors on December 5, 2001 and prepared a report on December 11, 2001. Mr. Gransaul stated that he is a professional engineer who has seen thousands of hardwood installations over the past five years. He is a registered home inspector and an inspector and teacher at Seneca College. He found chips and cracks in the edges of the boards at random locations throughout the floor. It would not be cost effective to repair the floor. It needs to be replaced. He felt that further repairs would not be effective.

Mr. Gransaul stated that wood does not shrink at its length. The gaps lengthwise or at the butt end are due to installation. There can be shrinkage on the width of the boards. He felt the chips are due to stresses in the wood from improper installation. Environmental conditions are not an issue. He disagrees with Mr. Sharko's report from Mirage. He disagrees with Mr. Wells report from Wathdene Holdings and feels that the installation does not meet industry standards. He disagreed with the statement in the decision letter that the excessive gaps are due to fluctuating moisture levels. That is not a reasonable statement in his opinion. While some gaps can be the result of environmental conditions other gaps are not due to this issue.

Under cross-examination Mr. Gransaul stated that his inspection of the hardwood floor was a visual inspection and there were no tests conducted on the floor. He did no quantification of the size of the gaps. He felt it was not necessary as the only solution was to replace the floor. Mr. Gransaul agreed that the floor was structurally sound and his recommendation was due to cosmetic considerations.

Testimony of Christopher Obelnycki:

Mr. Obelnycki is the President of the subcontractor Pine Valley Flooring. He has been in the business since 1988 and does about one thousand homes per year. He bought the hardwood flooring from the manufacturer, Mirage. He had work orders in March and April, 1999 to repair the floor. The manufacturer was prepared to give him 20 square feet of product for repairs. The total floor area of the hardwood floor was about 500 square feet.

Mr. Obelnycki did the repairs in July, 1999. The industry standard is that you can fit a dime within the gaps. There is no distinction made between the butt end gaps and the horizontal gaps.

There were some excessive gaps and some sections needed to be repaired. Mr. Obelnycki felt that three boards by ten feet and three boards by one foot could be considered as sections. He agreed that he would have to pay for the cost of such repairs. He saw some chips in the boards in July, 1999 which could be the result of error by the installer. It affected maybe twenty boards.

Mr. Obelnycki stated that in open concept areas when doing the buffer from the family room to the kitchen you would have to nail into the grain of the board and put putty over the top of the nail.

He stated that the hardwood was kept at the warehouse at about 18 degrees which is the same as a house in the winter. It would only have been transported by truck from the warehouse to Mr. Killu's house for about twenty minutes.

Under cross-examination Mr. Obelnycki felt that the environment was responsible for 80% of the gaps and the rest was due to the floor installer. He felt that the repairs should be allowed to be done. There would be an additional warranty for one year from the date of repair. He agreed that he did not know the humidity at the time that the floors were installed.

Testimony of David Misurka:

Mr. Misurka is the representative for the Added Party. He is the customer service manager. He did the pre delivery inspection with Mr. Killu on January 18, 1999. At that time the flooring in the living room and dining room was complete and the installers were working in the family room area. He remembered that there was gapping by the staircase. He did not notice chips or gouging. The wording in the PDI report is not specific. When he inspected the flooring with Mr. Wells and Chris Obelnycki he noticed sporadic chipping and some gapping at the butt ends.

Mr. Misurka testified that he told Mr. Killu to invest in a humidifier. He tells all of his customers to do that and use it with a monitoring device. He tells his customers to vary the humidity according to the outside temperature.

Mr. Misurka recalled Mr. Killu showing the hardwood floor to Ms. Lumley in February 2002. She took two pictures of it. Mr. Killu said the problem had been ongoing since he took possession of the house.

Under cross examination, Mr. Misurka stated that it was the position of the builder that they should do the repairs. If the repairs are not correct then they will do what is necessary. If necessary they would get in an independent contractor to assess the work. The repairs are warranted for one year. He did not feel that the floor needed to be completely redone.

Testimony of Sherri Lumley:

Ms. Lumley has been the warranty representative for three years. She has worked as a customer service representative on condominium projects. She has done approximately three hundred inspections since being employed by the Program.

Ms. Lumley found the gaps between the planks to be 1.25 mm to 2 mm. There are gaps at the head of boards. There are cracks due to nailing. The Applicant had not been happy with the top nailing of some boards.

It is the position of the Program that the builder should be given the chance to do the repairs. There was a need to replace about thirty boards but Mr. Killu wanted to have the whole floor replaced.

Ms. Lumley agreed that there were some repair problems with top nailing and fill being added. The builder was prepared to rectify the problem.

Mr. Killu wants a new floor. The Program is not prepared to do that. The claim was denied under section 14 (6) of the Act. If the repairs by the builder are not satisfactory then the Program can look at whether or not to replace the floor.

Under cross examination Ms. Lumley stated that she was aware of the reports submitted by Mr. Killu as well as those from the builder. She agreed that she did not respond to Mr. Killu in writing but she did telephone him.

Concluding Statements:

Applicant:

Counsel felt that Mr. Killu was justified after three years to refuse to allow the builder to do the repairs. The report of Carson Dunlop shows that over fifty per cent of the floor required repairs. The homeowner has rights and does not need to have a problem of constant repairs. The refusal of Mr. Killu was based on the problem with the previous repairs. Counsel felt that the cases relied upon by the Program can be distinguished on the facts.

Program:

Counsel stated that this case falls under section 14 (6) of the Act. The builder was willing to do repairs but was denied access by Mr. Killu. The following cases were noted:

Re. Migliano (1994) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.137 - there is no warranty claim when the builder is prepared to repair or compensate the homeowner.

Re. Wilkinson (1998) O.C.R.A.T.D. no 78 - no damages because the homeowner did not allow the builder to make repairs.

Re. Schollenberg (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 65 - no reason for refusing to allow the builder to do the repairs

Re. Saporita (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.166 - Applicants seeking unrealistic standards of perfection

Analysis:

This is a claim by Mr. Killu for the replacement of his hardwood flooring in his living room, dining room and family room. He alleges that it is defective due to chipping and gaps between the butt end of boards and between the horizontal sides of boards. He alleges that the repairs previously done by the builder were incompetent. He has refused to allow the builder to do any more repairs. Despite a conciliation report by the Program which states that there are some problems with the hardwood floor he has not agreed with the Program to allow the builder to repair what the Program sees as the warrantable repairs.

Mr. Killu has stated that as a professional engineer in Iraq he did have experience with construction. He is not qualified as an expert in construction nor is there any history of his experience with flooring issues.

Mr. Killu has a report by Mr. Gransaul of Carson Dunlop, home inspectors, which states that his flooring is damaged in several areas and that it would be more cost efficient to replace the existing floor. There are no estimates of what that replacement floor would cost in 2002. There is a dispute between the parties as to what exactly is the cost of the existing floor. Mr. Killu states it is over $7,000.00 when you add the bonus funds. The Program and Added Party state it is approximately $4,500.00.

The Tribunal has some problems with the report by Carson Dunlop. It does not show any quantification of the gaps. The only measurement of the gaps was by the warranty representative, Ms. Lumley. It does not give the exact measurement of the boards that are defective. It does not give specifics as to why it would be better to replace the existing floor than repair it. Such specifics should include a comparison of the cost of labour and materials for replacement versus repairs. It does not give any explanations for the reason the floor has chips and gaps. There is no measurement of humidity levels nor any research in how the floor was originally installed and under what type of moisture conditions.

Ms. Lumley has provided some measurements on what are the extent of the repair issues. She feels about thirty boards need to be replaced. Both the Program and the Added Party have been quite forthright that there are some problems with the hardwood flooring. They wish the opportunity to do further repairs to see if they will rectify the situation. But Mr. Killu is adamant that further repairs are not the solution. Unfortunately Mr. Killu has not made a case for his position.

The Tribunal understands the importance from a cosmetic viewpoint that there not be obvious defects in the flooring. This type of flooring is white and significant defects would mar its appearance. But Mr. Killu did not allow the Program to make the repairs it felt were necessary. It could be that after the repairs were done the floor would still be found to be flawed but that is mere speculation. Until the repairs are completed no one is sure what will be the appearance of the floor. No one has suggested there is a structural issue involved with this floor.

Mr. Killu has not provided any expert evidence to substantiate his opinion that the method of repairs as provided by the builder and agreed to by the Program would necessarily fail. Mr. Killu is not an expert on flooring. He should have permitted the Program and the builder to have carried out the required repairs. If he had a problem after the repairs were completed he still had a one-year warranty period to try to have the matter resolved.

The Tribunal is sympathetic that the homeowner has felt his flooring has not been satisfactory for a period of years. But there is nothing in the history of the matter which leads the Tribunal to consider that the homeowner has been in any fashion victimized by the builder or that the builder cannot carry out the repairs in a workmanlike fashion. There were repairs done on the floor on one occasion only. That was in July, 1999. The Program agrees that further repairs are necessary. The builder has in writing and verbally at the hearing stated their willingness to try to put this matter right. The homeowner has denied the builder that opportunity.

It is the opinion of the Tribunal that Mr. Killu has suffered no damages compensable under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act. Section 14 (1)(b) states that there must be damages resulting from a breach of warranty. The refusal to allow access to the builder to make the necessary repairs has led to this legal consequence. Mr. Killu has to realize that the Act has limitations on its warranties. The homeowner must act within the boundaries as established by the legislators who drafted this legislation. Hopefully Mr. Killu can come to some terms with his builder to allow the necessary repairs as stated in the conciliation report by the Program.

ORDER:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal upholds the decision of the Program to deny the claim of the Applicant.

JAMES FREDRICK WHITTEN O/A NIAGARA INVESTMENT MOTOR CARS

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE *MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE L. HILEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: No one representing the Applicant

MARY JANE SOUTH, Agent, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: September 16, 2002

Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This matter was commenced by a Notice of Proposal dated May 14, 2002. The Registrar seeks to revoke the registration of James Fredrick Whitten O/A Niagara Investment Motor Cars as a Dealer under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. The particulars dealt with Mr. Whitten's actions with consumers, with the purchase of vehicles from other dealers and with odometer disclosure complaints by consumers. The Applicant filed a Notice of Appeal dated May 31, 2002. Attached to that Notice of Appeal was a letter dated December 7, 2001 to Mr. Whitten by Mr. Vandermeer of Manheim Automotive Financial Services with some handwritten notes in the top right hand corner of the letter. Also filed was an invoice from Classic Transmission dated January 31, 2002 and a promissory note for ten thousand dollars dated May 30, 2000.

At the commencement of the hearing on September 16, 2002 at 9:30 am there was no one there representing the Applicant nor was the Applicant present. The Tribunal called upon Ms. Dominique Yeung, an employee of the Tribunal, to testify as to the hearing notice in this matter. Ms. Yeung stated that as the Hearing Co-ordinator for the file, she had telephoned the parties on September 13, 2002. She had left a message for Mr. Whitten. There had been no messages from Mr. Whitten in the morning of September 16, 2002. Ms. Yeung testified that there was a note dated June 18, 2002 on the file in the handwriting of Stacy Murphy, Supervisor, stating that the purolator tracking system shows the hearing notice was signed for on June 18, 2002 by Whitten.

Following the testimony of Ms. Yeung at 9:55 a.m., a Ms. Marlene Peters entered the hearing room. She stated that she had been asked by Mr. Whitten to attend and request an adjournment for thirty days. She stated that Mr. Whitten was undergoing tests for kidneys and diabetes. Mr. Whitten wished the Tribunal to know that he was fighting a number of lawsuits at this time.

Ms. South, on behalf of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, stated her opposition to the adjournment request. Mr. Whitten had not contacted the Registrar on the adjournment request prior to the hearing date. Mr. Whitten had been well enough to attend another court hearing the week prior the hearing. He had been seen on the weekend working at his gas station. As well a number of witnesses had travelled some distance to testify at the hearing. Ms. South stated that Mr. Whitten had known of the hearing date by mid-June, 2002 and had sufficient time to hire a lawyer.

The Tribunal made the decision to continue with the hearing. There was no consent to the adjournment request. It was made at the last moment. There was insufficient evidence before the Tribunal as to the seriousness of the health issues of Mr. Whitten. There was evidence that Mr. Whitten had been properly served with the Notice of Hearing some months prior to the hearing date. There would be prejudice to the Registrar who had subpoenaed a number of witnesses to attend at the hearing. These witnesses had travelled considerable distances in order to testify at the hearing. It was in the public interest to proceed with the hearing.

The Tribunal ordered the exclusion of witnesses. Ms. South was acting as agent for the Registrar and Ms. Cameron was acting as her principal on behalf of the Registrar.

The Registrar was withdrawing paragraph 8 of the Notice of Proposal dealing with allegations under the Retail Sales Act.

Issue:

Did the Registrar have reasonable grounds under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act to revoke the registration of the Applicant as a motor vehicle dealer?

Evidence:

Testimony of Alfred Griese:

Mr. Griese stated that he had purchased a 1986 Mustang GT from the Applicant in early September, 2001. A deal was reached between the parties. Mr. Whitten was to perform a number of repairs on the vehicle and conduct a safety check. When Mr. Griese picked up the car he discovered that the front headlight and rear seatbelt did not work; the blower for defrost did not work and the gas tank leaked. These were all safety items in the opinion of Mr. Griese.

Despite Mr. Whitten having the vehicle on three separate occasions most of these repairs were not completed. He had obtained the safety standards certificate dated October 3, 2001 which had an odometer reading of 165,231. Mr. Whitten refused to give him the warranty certificate as stated in the Bill of Sale due to the expenses covered by Mr. Whitten in installing a new transmission.

Mr. Griesse stated that Mr. Whitten had telephoned him on September 15, 2002. Mr. Whitten wanted to settle the matter prior to the hearing. Mr. Whitten told him not to attend for the hearing on September 16th as it was going to be adjourned.

Testimony of Mark Milner:

Mr. Milner had purchased a 1991 Honda Accord from Mr. Whitten. He was looking for a car with low mileage as he was travelling to Toronto. Mr. Whitten knew of this requirement and had telephoned him to say he had found a low mileage Honda for him. The day following his purchase of the vehicle the brakes failed him on the QEW. The master cylinder had failed. They made a deal to split the cost of repairs. Then Mr. Milner found a rust proof warranty in the glove compartment of the car. It was dated in July, 1994 and showed an odometer reading of 75,900 km. Mr. Milner had purchased the car in June, 2001 with an odometer reading of 92,500 km on the Bill of Sale.

Mr. Milner stated that Mr. Whitten called him on September 15, 2002. Mr. Whitten told him not to come to the hearing the next day as Mr. Whitten would be asking for an adjournment. Mr. Milner saw Mr. Whitten three weeks ago playing tennis. As well a friend of Mr. Milner had his car filled up with gas on September 14, 2002 by Mr. Whitten at Mr. Whitten's gas station.

Testimony of Thomas Anthony Morgan:

Mr. Morgan is a motor vehicle dealer. He has run Morgan Equipment for the past twelve years. He knows Mr. Whitten. Mr. Morgan sent a letter to OMVIC on March 14, 2002 to complain about the actions of Mr. Whitten. He had provided Mr. Whitten with a loan of ten thousand dollars at the time in May, 2000 when they were contemplating going into business together. Mr. Morgan would consign his vehicles to Mr. Whitten who was to sell them. They would split the profits. Mr. Whitten sold two vehicles but did not provide Mr. Morgan with the full proceeds of the sale. Instead of $18,000.00 Mr. Morgan received $7,500.00. The remainder was used by Mr. Whitten to pay for a gas delivery to his service station. During 2001 despite numerous demands Mr. Morgan only received three cheques for a total of $4,100.00. Mr. Morgan felt that now Mr. Whitten owed him $19,487.92. There was a default judgment against Mr. Whitten but it was set aside on September 11, 2002. Mr. Whitten had attended at court on that date. As of the date of the hearing Mr. Morgan had not received any of the outstanding monies.

Testimony of Stephen Byron:

Mr. Byron testified that he purchased a Toyota 4 runner from Mr. Whitten in early November, 2001. He left his Ford Explorer to be sold by Mr. Whitten. Shortly after the purchase of the vehicle the transmission failed. Despite a repair by Mr. Whitten it failed again and the transmission had to be rebuilt. Mr. Byron did not receive the vehicle until January, 2002. During this time Mr. Byron did not have the vehicle registered in his name and Mr. Whitten had the possession of the Ford Explorer. Finally in December, 2001 Mr. Whitten paid him for the sale of the Ford Explorer.

Mr. Byron found out that the Toyota truck had a lien on it from the repair shop. The lien was in favour of Manheim Automotive Financial Services.

Testimony of Roy Vandermeer:

Mr. Vandermeer is the manager, Finance Department at Toronto Auto Auctions. This is a wholesale auction whereby dealers buy and sell vehicles. They will establish lines of credit for dealers. Mr. Vandermeer was familiar with the account of Mr. Whitten. In June of 2000 Mr. Whitten had signed a general security agreement with TAA. It dealt with short term financing. It was the responsibility of the dealer to get the ownership from TAA by seeking permission for a duplicate ownership paper.

TAA hires a company to do inventory checks on the vehicles financed through it. In December 2001 this company did an audit of Mr. Whitten's inventory. The vehicles were not found at the dealership site. When Mr. Vandermeer tried to determine the location of a particular Grand Prix vehicle Mr. Whitten told him that the location of that car was none of his business. An employee of Mr. Whitten had told him that the Grand Prix was sold. This contradicted the listing with the Ministry of Transportation. Mr. Vandermeer attended at the dealership lot of Mr. Whitten. He could not find Mr. Whitten nor were his calls being returned. When Mr. Vandermeer tried to get certified the cheque that had been left as collateral with TAA on the Grand Prix the bank said there were insufficient funds.

Mr. Vandermeer was uncomfortable with this situation. He picked up the other vehicles that were at the Whitten dealership lot. He left his business card with Mr. Whitten's employee. Later it was discovered that one of the vehicles, a Honda Civic, did not belong to TAA but to a customer. That vehicle was returned to Mr. Whitten. There is an outstanding vehicle, a 1993 Jetta which Mr. Whitten said was being driven by his daughter. Mr. Vandermeer found the 1993 Toyota at the transmission shop in St. Catharines. He told the manager of the shop that his company had a lien on it. Mr. Byron then telephoned him and told Mr. Vandermeer that he had paid in full for the vehicle to Mr. Whitten but he had never received the registration. Mr. Vandermeer discharged the lien to allow Mr. Byron to transfer the ownership. Mr. Vandermeer has a general security agreement in place on that vehicle.

It was determined by Mr. Vandermeer that Mr. Whitten owed TAA $13,330.85. A judgment was obtained on June 24, 2002. It was not defended. Nothing has been collected on it.

Testimony of Jean Cameron:

Ms. Cameron is an inspector with OMVIC. She has held that position for five years. She testified that the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public protection statute. Under section 5 those registered under the Act must show financial responsibility, honesty and integrity.

Ms. Cameron testified that she received a telephone call from Steve Byron. Based on that complaint she attended at the dealership of the Applicant on February 11, 2002. She found that the Applicant had changed premises and was now the owner of Virgil Service Station. She found that the Applicant had been doing consignment deals using improper documentation. She found that there was lack of disclosure on the retail bills of the odometer readings from the wholesale bills. For instance on the Griese wholesale bill it states that the speedometer is not working and has the figure of 236,000 km. But the Griese retail bill of sale had the distance travelled left blank and had no disclosure of the speedometer not working or the true km not known. For the Griese vehicle the safety certificate showed 165,231 km. The Milner wholesale bill said true kilometres. unknown and had 92,111 km on it. The Milner retail bill of sale had 92,501 km and no disclosure that the true kilometres were unknown to the consumer. This is important as Mr. Milner specifically wanted a vehicle with low kilometres. As well the odometer disclosure is important to consumers as it often determines the price of a vehicle and whether or not a consumer wishes to buy the vehicle.

Ms. Cameron testified that despite telephone calls to Mr. Whitten she never got any resolution of the Byron situation. She never got the documents that she had requested from Mr. Whitten. Mr. Byron purchased a vehicle from Mr. Whitten without knowing it had a lien on it. Mr. Whitten could not provide clear title for the vehicle.

Mr. Whitten had not repaid Mr. Morgan for the consignment deals. In so doing Mr. Whitten was not acting with financial responsibility.

Legislation:

The relevant legislation is that of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

7. (4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

(5) The Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act. R.S.O. 1990, c. M.42, s. 7 (5).

(2) The request under subsection (1) shall indicate the nature of the inquiry involved.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the Registrar or any person designated in writing by him or her may at any reasonable time enter upon the business premises of the motor vehicle dealer to make an inspection in relation to the complaint.

Regulation 801

16. (2) Where a used motor vehicle is sold, the sales or purchase order shall show,

(o) the distance travelled by the vehicle at the time of sale; and

19. (1) Except in the case of an exchange or repair of an odometer and subject to subsection (2), no motor vehicle dealer or salesperson shall alter, adjust or permit any alteration or adjustment to the odometer on any motor vehicle in the dealer's or salesperson's possession or control in such a manner that as a result of the alteration or adjustment the total distance indicated on the odometer is other than the total distance travelled by the motor vehicle.

Analysis:

Mr. Whitten did not attend to give evidence in this matter. The Tribunal did give consideration to his Notice of Appeal and the documents so attached to them. It is to be noted that in his Notice of Appeal Mr. Whitten made a number of allegations against other dealers which have not been substantiated by any evidence at the hearing.

It is quite clear that a number of consumers have either been inconvenienced or even would have lost their vehicles due to the actions of Mr. Whitten. Mr. Griesse purchased a vehicle that was not repaired in accordance with the Bill of Sale. Indeed Mr. Whitten unilaterally changed the conditions of sale and denied him a warranty on his transmission. Mr. Milner bought a vehicle whose master cylinder failed the next day. He had considerable trouble getting Mr. Whitten to agree to any responsibility for repairs on this matter. He expressly wished to have a car with low mileage. He did not receive such a car and was misled by Mr. Whitten as to what exactly was the distance travelled on his vehicle at the time of sale. Both these witnesses were contacted by Mr. Whitten the day prior to the hearing and advised falsely not to attend as an adjournment was to be granted. There had been no assurances by anyone to Mr. Whitten that an adjournment would be granted and the Registrar was not even aware that Mr. Whitten did not plan to attend at the date of hearing nor was the Registrar asked for consent to an adjournment as is outlined in the Rules of Procedure for the Tribunal.

Mr. Byron waited a number of months to receive payment of the sale price on his trade-in vehicle. The vehicle he purchased from Mr. Whitten was never properly registered with the Ministry of Transportation. Indeed Mr. Whitten had no authority to register that vehicle on behalf of Mr. Byron due to an outstanding lien. Mr. Byron had no knowledge of this lien and could have lost the use of this vehicle if the Toronto Auto Auctions had wished to rely upon their clear legal right to claim that vehicle. Fortunately TAA relinquished that lien in order to allow Mr. Byron to register the vehicle. As well Mr. Byron had to have extensive repairs done on the vehicle after the repairs by Mr. Whitten were not successful.

Mr. Vandermeer of Toronto Auto Auctions testified that his company was owed a substantial amount due to Mr. Whitten not complying with the legal agreement he had signed with TAA. Ultimately TAA got a judgment in June of 2002 for over thirteen thousand dollars. Nothing has been paid on that judgment. TAA still cannot locate one vehicle which Mr. Whitten has stated is in the possession of his daughter. Mr. Whitten has not been of any assistance to TAA in locating this vehicle.

Mr. Morgan trusted Mr. Whitten. He had lent him ten thousand dollars on a promissory note. He had gone into business with him. Mr. Whitten was not honest in his business dealings with Mr. Morgan. He with-held money on vehicles he had sold on consignment for Mr. Morgan. He consistently made false promises on when he would repay the monies owed. He abused his position of trust with Mr. Morgan.

Mr. Whitten was not cooperative in his dealings with Ms. Cameron when she attempted to deal with customer complaints. He failed to provide her with the required documentation on these matters despite his obligations under the Act and Regulations to cooperate with the staff of the Registrar who are investigating complaints from the public. Despite being told by Ms. Cameron of the complaint of Mr. Byron, Mr. Whitten did not assist Ms. Cameron to resolve this matter.

It is clear to this Tribunal that Mr. Whitten has over the past couple of years taken actions that are not law abiding nor are they honest and with integrity. He has cheated on his customers. He has failed to abide by his legal obligations. He has misled a customer as to distance travelled on the vehicle at time of sale which is in direct contravention of the Act and its Regulations. Not only did he fail to attend and present his case but he attempted to stop important witnesses from attending the hearing through false statements as to the adjournment of the hearing. The Tribunal finds that the Registrar has reasonable grounds to revoke the registration of Mr. Whitten. The Registrar and this Tribunal have a duty to protect the public from those in the motor vehicle industry who fail to act with honesty and integrity. All past conduct of the Applicant must be considered and the right of the Applicant to work in a regulated industry must be balanced against the right of the public to have trust in those who sell or repair motor vehicles.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the powers given to it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out its Proposal and revoke the registration of James Fredrick Whitten O/A Niagara Investment Motor Cars.

APPEARANCES: Robert B. Warren and Carole McAfee Wallace, Counsel representing the Applicants;
Patrick Moore, counsel, representing the Respondent

DATE OF
HEARING: October 29, 30, 31, November 1 and 7, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicants appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from an Order of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated July 8, 2002 issued pursuant to Section 47 (1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Deputy Registrar ordered a suspension for seven (7) days of CVOR certificates 101-137-620 and 066-126-385 and plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to Star Van Systems Inc. and Van-Es, Andries and that the plate portion of permits be seized.

FACTS:

The Show Cause Hearing

The Show Cause Meeting was held on June 27, 2002 for the purpose of providing the Applicants with an opportunity to present information that may impact the decision of the Deputy Registrar to Suspend and Seize the CVOR of the Applicants for a period of 30 days.

Mr. Warren, Counsel for the Applicants at the Show Cause, as well as this Appeal, presented an 18 page submission. This submission is contained at Tab 21 of Exhibit Number 7 and details the operations of Star Van Systems, provides an analysis of accidents, out of service incidents and convictions and an 8 point action plan in order to address the concerns of the Deputy Registrar.

The action plan provided for the following:

- (a) enhance the driver training program and to improve re-training programs for pre-trip inspections and book logs;
- (b) institute a discipline system for all drivers;
- (c) develop and implement a new tracking system for all incidents giving rise to CVOR points, with a focus on taking the measures necessary to prevent a recurrence;
- (d) develop and implement a new CVOR tracking system;
- (e) hire a full time driver trainer;
- (f) institute a system of random driver and vehicle spot checks;
- (g) equip all vehicles with brake adjustment indicators;
- (h) require all drivers to complete a brake adjustment course.

The notes from the Show Cause Hearing at Tab 20 of Exhibit Number 7 disclose that the Applicants were extremely candid in accepting responsibility for past failures and that they were optimistic that the implementation of the above noted systems would improve their CVOR record within six months.

Registrar's Decision

On July 8, 2002 the Deputy Registrar issued a decision wherein he states that "I have considered your submissions, your payment of fines, and your safety record including your record of convictions, accidents and vehicle inspections, I remain concerned for highway safety".

The Deputy Registrar ordered that the CVOR be suspended for 7 days. The Tribunal notes that this Order had the effect of reducing the original suspension from 30 days to 7 days.

It is this Order that is the subject of this Appeal.

Evidence of John Miller

John Miller is an employee of the Ministry of Transportation and is currently employed in the position of safety ratings administrator.

The CVOR of the Applicants which is contained at Tab 7 of Exhibit Number 6 indicates that during the period from April 30, 2000 through April 29, 2002 the Applicants had an overall violation rate of 101%. This overall rate is composed of 75.9% of threshold for accidents, 204% of threshold for convictions and 51% of threshold for inspections.

Mr. Miller testified that an overall violation rate over 100% would put the Applicants in the worst 5% of all carriers in the CVOR system and that once a carrier is in this percentile sanctions are the appropriate remedy.

Mr. Miller prepared an analysis of the Applicants' safety record which is found at Tab 6 of Exhibit Number 6. This analysis contained a summary of Ministry interventions from 1990 to the present which identifies 6 audits, two warning letters, two interviews and safety ratings of conditional (2) and satisfactory.

Mr. Miller noted that most carriers resolve their difficulties with the Ministry at the interview & audit phases and that it is only a small percentage of carriers that go to the stage of a sanction.

On cross-examination by Mr. Warren, Mr. Miller acknowledged that the proposals put forth by the Applicants at the show cause hearing were appropriate and should have been in place by now. Mr. Miller continued by stating that he was concerned about the Applicants' track record of non-compliance, however, at no time did he advise the Applicants that he was concerned that in light of past interventions that they would not carry out the plan.

Mr. Miller further testified that he did not tell the Applicants that the reason why they would be suspended was due to the belief that they would not fulfill the action plan.

Motion to Admit Current Record

During the cross examination of Mr. Miller, Mr. Warren sought to examine Mr. Miller on the Applicants' record for a two year period from September 3, 2000 through September

2 2002 and for the 6 months from March 3, 2002 through September 2, 2002. These documents are found at Tab 3 of Exhibit Number 5, in the Applicants Book of Documents.

Mr. Moore objected to the introduction of the more current data on the grounds that the Tribunal should only look at the statistics contained in the CVOR contained at Tab 7 of Exhibit Number 6 as this was the CVOR used in connection with the Order that is being appealed.

Mr. Warren submits that the updated information should be admitted as the Tribunal should make its decision based upon the information as of the date of the hearing and that it was not until this hearing that the Applicants were advised that their credibility was in issue and therefore they are entitled to lead evidence in that regard.

Both counsel submitted cases and advised the Tribunal that the cases support both positions.

The Tribunal reviewed the cases submitted and followed the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Transport Provost Inc./Provost Bulk Transport Inc. v. Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles, whereby it was held that evidence of current conduct was relevant for the purpose of determining whether the sanction was appropriate. On that basis, the Tribunal ruled that the current statistics of the Applicants shall be admitted for the purpose of determining whether the sanction was appropriate.

On the basis of this ruling, Mr. Miller's cross-examination continued with the presentation of a CVOR from the period of September 24, 2000 to September 23, 2002. This CVOR was admitted and marked as Exhibit Number 9.

Exhibit Number 9 provides an overall rating of 94.2% which can be broken down to 63.5% of threshold for accidents, 192.7% of threshold for convictions and 56.9% of threshold for inspections.

Evidence of Ken Simpson

Ken Simpson testified that he has been the Vice-President of the corporate Applicant since December 2001 is responsible for safety & compliance and gave evidence of the measures that the company has taken in order to improve its CVOR.

Mr. Simpson testified that in March 2002 he retained the services of Melanie Ethridge, an industry consultant that the company had used for its audit with the Department of Transportation in the United States. The analysis concluded that 70% of the company's problems were driver related and she recommended implementation of a system of driver discipline, driver incentive program, revised driver's manual, installation of brake indicators, retraining of drivers and random spot checks. Ken Simpson testified that these recommendations had been implemented.

In addition to retaining the services of Melanie Ethridge, Ken Simpson testified that the company had also retained the services of Blair Gough to undertake an assessment of fleet maintenance.

Mr. Simpson concluded his testimony by stating that in the past, the senior management of the company had placed too much reliance on hired personal and that these problems had been rectified.

On cross-examination by Mr. Moore, Mr. Simpson stated that although having been employed by the company in dispatch prior to his promotion to Vice-President, he was unaware of the CVOR record and relied upon the advice of the then safety manager and consultant and that all problems were under control.

Mr. Simpson further testified that the company had since hired Mark McElroy as a safety director and that since July 2002, the company had established a CVOR committee which meets monthly in order to review the status of the CVOR.

Evidence of Mark Stanley McElroy

Mark McElroy testified that he has been employed as Safety Director since September 26, 2002 and has been employed in this industry since 1979. Mr. McElroy's testified that his experience started as a driver and has expanded to being a consultant on training and safety compliance systems. He is certified as a brake instructor, served on the Ontario Safety League and is a charter member of the Council for Driver Trainers.

Mr. McElroy continued his testimony by detailing his responsibilities for the discipline policy, accidents, preventative maintenance, convictions and implementation of a system of random spot checks.

Mr. McElroy testified that the action plan proposed by the Applicants is a good one and will reduce the company's out of service & conviction rates. In addition, he has implemented revisions to the training program, changed the discipline process and has developed his own tracking system.

The cross-examination of Mr. McElroy did not disclose any new or significant information.

Evidence of Andries Van-Es

Andries Van-Es testified that he is the President of the corporate Applicant and a CVOR holder as well.

Mr. Van-Es testified that in the past he had relied upon the experience & expertise of two employees, Randall Birch & Dave Duern to ensure compliance and that these individuals failed to keep him apprised of Ministry interventions and that he was unaware that an action plan had been signed by Messrs. Birch & Duern.

Mr. Van-Es testified candidly, that he did not supervise the company the way he should have and that he accepts full responsibility for the situation that the company finds itself in today. He continued his testimony by stating that it was not until March 2002, when the company could not licence plates, that he realized that something was wrong.

Mr. Van-Es continued by confirming the evidence given by Ken Simpson & Mark McElroy outlining the personnel & policy changes that have been implemented by the company.

Mr. Van-Es concluded his testimony by detailing that a closure of the company for 7 days would be devastating in that the company would suffer losses of gross revenue of $700,000.00 - $800,000.00, independent operators would not return and customers would be lost.

On cross-examination by Mr. Moore, Mr. Van-Es maintained that he placed too much reliance on others and admitted that he did not obtain an analysis of the impact of a work stoppage on his business but he believed that he would lose a great majority of his good customers.

ISSUES:

There are two issues.

The first is whether the Tribunal has the authority to vary or substitute the decision of the Deputy Registrar.

The second is whether the decision of the Deputy Registrar is correct.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Highway Traffic Act are as follows:

- 47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
 - (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or
 - (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other law relating to highway safety;
- 50 (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS & SUBMISSIONS:

Mr. Moore presented the Tribunal with various cases in support of the Respondent's position that the Tribunal should affirm the decision of the Deputy Registrar and dismiss the Applicant's appeal.

Mr. Moore relies on the case Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen), a decision of the Mr. Justice Southey of the Divisional Court of Ontario for the proposition that the Tribunal's review should focus on whether the Deputy Registrar was in error in his conclusion that on reasonable grounds the Applicants would not operate the commercial vehicles safely or in accordance with law.

The Brenner decision is referred to and relied upon in the decision of 1226795 and 1383546 Ontario Limited vs. Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles. In this case the Tribunal stated that in accordance with Brenner the powers of the Tribunal are circumscribed in that it is only if the Tribunal finds that the registrar was in error in his conclusion that an order can be made directing the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.

Mr. Moore submits that the past record of the Applicants provides abundant reason for the Deputy Registrar's Order and when considered with the above-referenced cases, the decision of the Deputy Registrar should stand.

Mr. Warren submits that the Brenner case is not applicable to this case for the reasons that the Deputy Registrar did not provide adequate reasons and the manner in which the Deputy Registrar made his decision. Of primary significance is Mr. Warren's submission that the Deputy Registrar did not advise the Applicants that he was concerned that the Applicants would not carry out the remedial measures as the first time that the Applicants heard this position was at this hearing, through the evidence of Mr. Miller.

As Mr. Moore submits that this Tribunal should follow Brenner and Mr. Warren submits that Brenner is not applicable to this case, let us now review Brenner in order to determine its application to this Appeal.

Mr. Brenner's application for registration as a motor vehicle salesman was refused due to concerns by the Registrar that his past conduct afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on his business in accordance with law, honesty and integrity.

Mr. Brenner had an extensive criminal record with 17 convictions, with the most recent crime of fraud having taken place in Detroit, Michigan, 2 years prior to his application and a crime for which he was sentenced to 3 years in prison. Mr. Brenner spent 22 months in custody until he was paroled and deported to Canada.

The Tribunal heard evidence that Mr. Brenner had turned over a new leaf and that Brenner had the possibility in the future of being a person of honesty and integrity and that he should upgrade himself. On this basis, the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant Mr. Brenner a registration on terms & conditions.

The Divisional Court was critical that the Tribunal was preoccupied with sympathetic concerns as to whether Mr. Brenner had genuinely reformed and decided to give Mr. Brenner a second chance.

On this background the Divisional Court held that the Tribunal should have only refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought that the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Divisional Court found that the past conduct of Mr. Brenner afforded the Registrar with reasonable grounds as required by the legislation.

The Divisional Court concluded its decision by noting that at the time of the hearing of the Appeal in Divisional Court, almost a year had passed since the decision of the Tribunal and that as the Registrar did not seek a stay of the Tribunal's decision, Mr. Brenner had maintained his employment as a car salesman during the intervening time.

The Court stated that it would be unjust to set aside the order of the Tribunal and direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal which is based upon the facts as they existed when the Registrar made his decision. The Court continued by stating that it may be that if the Tribunal heard matters afresh and gave effect to the principles laid out in the reasons, it may now be able to conclude that the past conduct of Brenner no longer afforded reasonable grounds for the belief that he will carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

This Tribunal heard evidence from Ken Simpson, Mark McElroy and Andries Van-Es with respect to the action plan, implementation thereof and all steps that the corporate Applicant has undertaken to improve its CVOR. The Tribunal was impressed by the candour and bona fides that these individuals displayed in their evidence and their collective goal of ensuring the improvement of the company's CVOR.

Similarly, Mr. Miller testified that he agreed that that the action plan presented by the Applicants was a good one and did not suggest any revisions or amendments to the action plan.

The Tribunal notes that at the time of this hearing the Applicants had implemented the proposed action plan and had taken the necessary steps to improve its CVOR record. The updated CVOR shows an improvement as does the Applicants' records for the last six month period.

It is the view of this Tribunal that the steps taken by the Applicants as of the date of this hearing are positive, that these steps were not rejected or contradicted by the Respondent and that these steps are wholly consistent with the ultimate goal of ensuring highway safety. On this basis the Tribunal finds the Deputy Registrar was in error in concluding that he had reasonable grounds to remain concerned for highway safety.

It is this Tribunal's further view based upon the Applicants actions the Deputy Registrar should have deferred his decision on sanction for a period of six months and conduct a further audit as this would ensure that the Applicants had maintained their action plan and improved compliance to an acceptable level.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing the Tribunal hereby orders as follows:

1. The Tribunal hereby suspends the decision of the Respondent for a period of six months from the date hereof.
2. Following the six months referred to above, the Respondent shall conduct an audit of the Applicants.
3. In the event that the Respondent is not satisfied with the result of the audit the Respondent shall be at liberty to implement the suspension.

APPEARANCES: CLAUDIA COORE, Applicant, who was not represented nor

Home Warranty Program

DATE OF
HEARING: November 26, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated August 1, 2002 wherein the claim of Claudia Coore (the "Applicant") was denied by the Program.

The Applicant was neither personally present nor represented when this matter was called on November 26, 2002. The Tribunal noted that by Notice of Hearing dated September 10, 2002 the Applicant and the Program were notified of the hearing set down for hearing for November 26, 2002. Nothing was heard from the Applicant until the Tribunal received a letter from her on November 19, 2002. In this letter the Applicant requested the hearing be adjourned to a later date stating that due to circumstances beyond her control she was unable to attend at the Tribunal on November 26, 2002. On November 20, 2002 the Tribunal's Registrar replied by letter to the Applicant as follows:

We are not in a position to make a decision with regard to your request unless the following information is provided to us in writing:

- . the reasons why you are unavailable to proceed on the scheduled hearing dates;
- . the written consent of the other party; and
- . if the other party consents, the new dates that both parties have agreed to and can attend.

Unless we receive the above information, in writing by no later than 9:30 a.m. on Friday, November 22, 2002, the hearing will proceed as scheduled on November 26 and 27, 2002, at 9:30 a.m., at the Tribunal's Chambers, 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th Floor, Toronto, Ontario.

If you wish to present your arguments for an adjournment, you may do so at the onset of the hearing. However, if the panel does not consent to an adjournment, the hearing will proceed and the parties are to prepare themselves accordingly.

This letter was delivered by courier to the Applicant. By letter dated November 25, 2002 the Applicant wrote to the Registrar stating that her supervisor had denied her request "for time off" to attend the hearing and that she had been unsuccessful in finding someone to appear on her behalf. On receipt of the Applicant's letter, a Clerk at the Tribunal telephoned the Applicant and although unable to speak with her did leave a message on the Applicant's voicemail advising her that her letter had been received by the Tribunal and that she "will need to present" her adjournment request at the commencement of the hearing and that in the event of her not being present on November 26, 2002 the hearing would proceed in her absence.

Nothing further has been heard from the Applicant. When the matter was called the Program's Counsel opposed the adjournment request, maintaining that neither she nor her client had been informed by the Applicant of a request for an adjournment. The Program had witnesses present and was fully prepared to proceed with the hearing.

The Tribunal refused to grant an adjournment noting that the Applicant has had ample opportunity since early September of this year to seek and obtain her employer's consent to her taking leave; further the Applicant had not supported her request for an adjournment by furnishing the Tribunal with any form of letter from her employer in which the employer confirms its objection to granting leave to the Applicant and the reason for the employer's refusal. The requested adjournment would prejudice the Program as it had been put to not inconsiderable expense in retaining Counsel and arranging for the presence of witnesses. The Applicant had paid no heed, by requesting the adjournment at the eleventh hour, to the additional costs that would have been incurred by the Program.

Accordingly, the adjournment requested by the Applicant was denied and the matter proceeded.

THE EVIDENCE:

One witness Ms Wendy Skyba testified for the Program and she stated as follows:

She is currently employed by the Program as a warranty representative. She has held this position for the past three and one half years and prior thereto was employed as a building official with the Town Council, Sudbury, Ontario. Prior to working in Sudbury she was employed by a large building contracted as a site supervisor.

Skyba stated that she is familiar with the file relating the Applicant's claim. The original warranty representative involved in dealing with the Applicant's complaints was requested by the Applicant to be replaced. Skyba was appointed by the Program as the replacement warranty representative and she was asked to attend at the home of the Applicant to carry out an inspection relating to complaints the Applicant had in regard to the construction of her home (the "home") at 33 Apollo Road, Markham, Ontario. Accordingly, Skyba attended at the home on July 29, 2002 to conduct an inspection. Skyba stated that the home was completed for possession on February 25, 1999, the inspection of July 29, 2002 related to three complaints or issues raised by the Applicant, and the first notification to the Program of all such three claims was received by the Program on June 28, 2002

Pursuant to Skyba's inspection on July 29, 2002 she authored the Program's decision letter dated August 1, 2002 addressed to the Applicant in which letter the Program denied all three claims of the Applicant. Skyba then dealt with the three claims in her testimony and stated as follows.

FIRST CLAIM

This claim related to a crack approximately three feet in length in the home's west foundation wall. The crack was from the top of the foundation wall to the basement floor slab. On her measuring the width of this crack, Skyba noted that it was 0.010 inches wide and showed evidence of dampness from water penetration. A second crack was also noted on the west foundation wall at a point where the garage foundation back wall meets the foundation wall. This crack showed no sign of leakage, dampness or water penetration and was also measured by Skyba to be 0.010 inches wide. The finishes to the interior and exterior of this basement wall showed no damage or evidence of movement.

During her inspection, Skyba took a number of photographs of the cracks and presented such photographs when testifying. These photographs were entered as exhibits (Exhibits 4 and 5).

The first photographs tendered by Skyba (Exhibit 4) showed the exterior of the west foundation wall between the brick cladding and the ground.

The second photographs (Exhibit 5) show the interior surface of the west foundation wall shown. This interior surface shows water dampness on the interior surface and on the concrete floor. Skyba stated that this dampness was due to water penetration from the exterior soil. There was no "water running on the floor" according to Skyba and "no ponding" of water on the floor. Skyba noted that there was no shifting or movement of the foundation wall and the height of the wall was the same on both sides of the cracks. No cracks were seen in the brick cladding on the wall's exterior nor were cracks observed in the mortar. No damage was noted to the wall's interior finish.

Skyba continued to testify that the cracks that she observed in the west foundation wall were minor hairline cracks and were caused by the shrinkage of the concrete which is typical of a long concrete wall such as the west foundation wall.

Skyba further stated that there was no major structural defect as defined in section 1 of Regulation 892 of the Ontario New Homes Warranties Plan Act (the "Act"). There was also no failure in the load bearing portion of the building nor was there any defect in work or materials that materially and adversely affected the use of the home and for which it was intended.

Skyba also stated that although there was water penetration noted, a claim in respect thereof had to be made to the Program in writing within two years after the home was completed for possession. This was not done by the Applicant as the home was completed for possession on February 25, 1999 and the Applicant's written claim to the Program was only received by the Program on June 28, 2002 which was outside the two year period.

SECOND CLAIM

This claim related to a cracked window pane in the basement window of the house.

Skyba stated that there is a double pane thermal window installed and the broken pane is the interior pane. Applicant had stated to Skyba that the previous interior pane had also cracked and had been replaced by the builder. It was this replacement pane that was the subject of this claim.

On inspection Skyba noted the cracked pane (Exhibits 7) was the inside slider pane. The outside pane was neither cracked nor damaged. There was no evidence noted of structural movement. The brick and wall surrounding the window was found by Skyba to be in order and no cracks or damage were seen. The interior dry wall surface around the window showed no damage. Skyba could not explain the reason for the cracked window pane and speculated that it could be due to something having struck the window pane.

Skyba also stated that this claim was brought to the Program's attention for the first time when the Applicant reported this claim to the Program in writing on June 28, 2002.

Skyba stated that this claim was not reported to the Program within the one year after the home had been completed for possession on February 25, 1999. Further, that this claim was not documented by the Applicant on the predelivery documents. She stated this broken pane is not a major structural defect within the definition as contained in Regulation 892 to the Act.

THIRD CLAIM

This claim relates to cracks at the southeast corner of the home's foundation.

During the inspection of the home on July 29, 2002, the Applicant pointed out cracks on the south and east exterior foundation walls approximately 12 inches from the southeast corner of the home. No cracks were observed in the brick cladding above the cracks nor in the mortar surrounding the bricks. The interior drywall in the home's basement at the southeast corner was inspected and found to be undamaged and no water penetration was seen or pointed out to Skyba. When Skyba inspected the home she noted that the basement was being used as a finished living area (Exhibits 8 and 9).

Skyba further stated that during the inspection of the home the Applicant asked her to look at these exterior cracks although she had never before reported these cracks to the Program in writing. Skyba went on to state that the cracks noted in the outside are typical shrinkage cracks caused by normal contraction and expansion of concrete. The cracks do not constitute a major structural defect and the normal use of the home was not affected by these shrinkage cracks. Skyba further stated that apart from this claim not constituting a major structural defect, the shrinkage cracks caused by the drying out of the concrete were excluded from warranty coverage by virtue of section 13(2)(d) of the Act. Additionally, this claim was denied by the Program as the Applicant had not complied with section 13(4) of the Act in reporting the claim to the Program within one year after taking possession of the home.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven:

1. Pursuant to a written Agreement of Purchase and Sale, the Applicant took possession of the home on February 25, 1999.
2. In respect of the Applicant's first and second claims, written notice in respect thereof was delivered by the Applicant to the Program in writing for the first time on June 28, 2002.

3. In respect of the Applicant's third claim, no written notice of such claim was delivered to the Program at any time although verbal notification was given to the Program's warranty representative on July 29, 2002.
4. There are not, and at no stage were there, any construction defects in the home within the meaning of "major structural defect" as defined by section 1 of Regulation 892 of the Act.
5. In relation to the Applicant's first claim there was minor water penetration into the home's basement caused by water penetrating through a hairline shrinkage crack in the homes west foundation wall.
6. The Applicant's written notification of claim to the Program relative to water penetration into the home's basement was made beyond the two year period after the home was completed for possession on February 25, 1999.
7. In relation to the Applicant's second and third claims the Applicant has failed to prove that such claims arose from the home having been constructed in an unworkmanlike manner and with defects in material, nor has the Applicant proven that the home was not fit for habitation or that it was not constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code.
8. The Applicant first reported the second claim to the Program in writing on June 28, 2002 and at that time such notice was received by the Program beyond the two-year period after the home's completion for possession on February 25, 1999.

THE LAW:

The Act's relevant portions are:

Section 13(1)(a) of the Act states:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

Section 13(2)(d) of the Act states:

- (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,
 - (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;

Section 13(4) of the Act states:

- (4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

Regulation 892's relevant sections are:

"major structural defect" means, for the purposes of clause 13 (1) (b) of the Act, any defect in work or materials,

- (a) that results in failure of the load-bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load-bearing function, or
- (b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended, including significant damage due to soil movement, major cracks in basement walls, collapse or serious distortion of joints or roof structure and chemical failure of materials, but excluding any defect attributable in whole or in part to a Year 2000 compliance problem, flood damage, dampness not arising from failure of a load-bearing portion of the building, damage to drains or services, damage to finishes and damage arising from acts of God, acts of the owners and their tenants, licensees and invitees, acts of civil and military authorities, acts of war, riot, insurrection or civil commotion and malicious damage;

Section 16 of Regulation 892 states:

16. Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990, the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 892, s. 16.

Section 4 of Regulation 892 states:

- 4. (1) Each person with a claim under the Plan shall give written notice of the claim to the Corporation

Section 15.(2) and (3) of Regulation 892 state:

- 15. (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;
- (3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession, in respect of homes that were enrolled, or should have been enrolled, after the 31st day of December, 1990.

REASONS FOR DECISION:

There are three issues for consideration in this matter and the onus of proof regarding those three issues rests with the Applicant.

An analysis of the three issues follows together with the Tribunal's reasons for its decision.

1. FIRST CLAIM

The evidence of Skyba was that she observed minor hairline cracks in the west foundation wall. These cracks measured no more than 0.010 inches in width. Some minor water penetration did exist as was evident from both the evidence of Skyba as well as the photographs she took during the inspection. There was no ponding of water on the floor nor did she find shifting or movement of the foundation wall. Skyba attributed the cracks to shrinkage of the concrete in the drying out process.

The Tribunal finds no evidence to indicate that there was a major structural defect in the house resulting from these cracks. There is no evidence that a load-bearing portion of the building has been materially or adversely affected nor has the use of the building been adversely affected for the purpose for which it was intended.

The Tribunal finds therefore that there is no major structural defect existing in the home as defined by Section 1 of Regulation 892 to the Act.

While there has been water penetration into the building through the minor hairline cracks, the Tribunal finds the warranty under section 15.(2)(a) of Regulation 892 has no applicability in this instance as the Applicant failed to make written claim to the Program within two years after the home was completed for possession as required by section 15.(3) of Regulation 892. Occupation and possession of the house took place on February 25, 1999 while the Applicant reported this claim on June 28, 2002.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that this claim must fail due to the Applicant's failure to report the claim within the time limit imposed by the Regulation and for the reason that there is no major structural defect in the home.

2. SECOND CLAIM

This claim related to a cracked window pane in the basement's window as described in the evidence of Skyba.

There was no evidence to suggest that this broken pane was caused by a defect in work or materials supplied by the builder. There was also no evidence to suggest that the broken pane has been caused by the failure of a load bearing portion of the home or that the use of the home has been adversely affected by the broken pane. The evidence of Skyba was that there was no evidence of movement in the wall in which the window containing the pane was situated. No damage was present or seen on the brickwork or wall surface surrounding the window. Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that this window pane did not fail due to a major structural defect in the home's construction.

Furthermore, the Tribunal finds written notice of this claim, as required by section 13.(4) of the Act, was not given to the Tribunal within one year after the Applicant took possession of the home on February 29, 1999. Written notice was only received by Program on June 28, 2002 considerably outside the one year period in which the Program should have received written notification.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that this claim fails.

3. THIRD CLAIM

This claim related to cracks on the exterior concrete foundation wall situated at the home's southeast corner.

The evidence of Skyba was that these are minor cracks due to normal shrinkage of the concrete due to the contraction and expansion of the concrete. The Tribunal finds that these cracks did not constitute or result in a major structural defect within its defined meaning. There was no evidence of any defect in work or materials that resulted in failure of the load-bearing portion of the home or materially or adversely affected the home's load-bearing function. There was also no evidence to suggest any defect in work or material that materially or adversely affected the use of the home for the purpose for which it was intended.

The Tribunal finds that these minor cracks are due to normal shrinkage and are excluded from warranty coverage by section 13.(2)(d) of the Act.

Finally, the Tribunal finds that this claim was at no time reported to the Program in writing. This claim was only raised verbally by the Applicant when she spoke with Skyba at the July 29, 2002 inspection of the home. The Tribunal finds therefore that this claim was not reported in writing to the Program as required by section 4(1) of Regulation 892 nor was it reported within one year after the Applicant took possession of the home as required by section 13.(4) of the Act.

For all the above reasons the Tribunal finds this claim must fail.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under Section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claims of the Applicant.

UNDER THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

APPEARANCES: There was no appearance by the Applicant or on its behalf.

TREVOR BRANION, Counsel representing the Registrar,
Travel Industry Act

DATE OF
HEARING: November 19, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Travel Industry Act (the "Registrar", and the "Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated August 12, 2002 proposed to revoke the registration of Astra Travel and Services Inc. under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The grounds relied upon by the Registrar for the Proposal are set out below:

- (i) the failure by the Applicant to comply with provisions of Section 24 of Regulation 806/93, as amended, under the Act (the "Regulation") relating to the filing of financial statements with the Registrar.
- (ii) the failure by the Applicant to comply with the provisions of Section 25 of the Regulation relating to the maintenance of sufficient working capital by the Applicant; and
- (iii) The failure by the Applicant to comply with the provisions of Section 36 of the Regulation relating to the maintenance of a trust account.

The Applicant was not present nor represented when the matter was called at 9:30 a.m. and in accordance with the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal the matter stood down for 30 minutes. At the end of the 30 minutes the matter proceeded in the absence of the Applicant who was not present or represented and after the Tribunal had satisfied itself that the Notice of Hearing had been received by the Applicant.

THE EVIDENCE:

The first witness to testify to the Registrar was Pamela Lavinia Stout ("Stout") who testified that she is employed by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (TICO) as financial inspections coordinator and has been employed in that capacity for the last twelve years. Her duties entail ensuring compliance by Registrants with the Act and Regulation.

Stout stated that the Applicant is a registered travel agent. She reviewed the Proposal and stated that the Applicant has persistently been in violation of the Regulation insofar as the filing of financial statements are concerned. Commencing in July 1998 the Applicant failed to file the annual financial statement with the Registrar when such statements were due for filing.

Financial statements, when received, repeatedly reflected a shortfall in working capital. During an inspection of the Applicant by an inspector it was revealed that the Applicant was not properly maintaining its trust account as required by the Regulations and customer deposits were being incorrectly processed through the Applicant's general account. The inspector reviewed the trust account guidelines with the Applicant.

In May of 2001 when asked by the Registrar for evidence that it was correcting its working capital shortfall it furnished the Registrar with unacceptable evidence.

During a further visit by an inspector to the Applicant it was ascertained that in contravention of Section 36 of the Regulation pertaining to trust accounts, the Applicant was using trust funds irregularly in that overhead expenses were being passed through the trust account. Information was also hard to come by from the Applicant despite repeated requests for such information. Documentation in support of the Applicant's financial statements were omitted from letters addressed to the Registrar by the Applicant. There were constant and recurring shortfalls in working capital and insufficient or no supporting documents or details sent by the Applicant to enable the Registrar to ascertain whether or not the shortfall in working capital, as reported by the Applicant, was either correct or in any way accurate.

In June 2002 the Registrar ascertained that the Applicant was operating its trust account with frequent overdrafts and that there was a trust deficit of $11,507.00 as at April 30, 2002. The Applicant was asked for further information in order to allay the growing fears of the Registrar.

When In July 2002 an inspector paid a visit to the Applicant to further the Registrar's investigations, it was revealed that the trust account of the Applicant was overdrawn in May and June 2002 and it was impossible to ascertain the current customer deposit information.

Bank statements were not available nor was information available in order to determine whether the working capital of the Applicant was in place or sufficient. No business records by way of books of account were being maintained by the Applicant as is required by Section 37 of the Regulation.

To date the Applicant has not addressed the working capital deficit of $11,507.00 and has not furnished the Registrar with information sufficient to satisfy the Registrar as to the current customer deposit position. Due to the failure of the Applicant to cooperate with the Registrar the latter cannot determine the true current working capital of the Applicant.

Linda Lee Gilbert also testified on behalf of the Registrar. She stated that she is employed by TICO as a financial inspector and is an accountant by profession.

Ms. Gilbert testified that in the course of the Registrar's investigation she attended at the Applicant's offices on July 9, 2002. She noted that there were no books of account being maintained by the Applicant and from the few incomplete documents made available to her by the Applicant she could not ascertain whether the working capital of the Applicant complied with the requirements of the Regulation. As there were no books of account available but only some cheque stubs, bank statements and deposit slips, she could not successfully reconcile the Applicant's trust account nor could she confirm the amount or correctness of the shortfall in the Applicant's trust account. The lack of records was in contravention of Section 37 (3) of the Regulation.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found proven by the Tribunal

- 1 The Applicant is presently registered as a travel agent under the Act.
- 2 The Applicant has failed to comply with section 24(2) of the Regulation in that it has failed on numerous occasions to timeously file its annual financial statements with the Registrar.
- 3 The Applicant has failed to comply with Section 25 (2) of the Regulation in that it has failed to maintain a minimum amount of working capital as required by the aforementioned section of the Regulation.
- 4 The Applicant has failed to comply with section 36 (6) of the Regulation in that it has disbursed or withdrawn from money held in its trust account prior to a supplier or suppliers of travel services having received payment from the Applicant for such travel services.
- 5 The Applicant has failed to comply with section 37 (3) of the Regulation in that it has failed to maintain written business and accounting records of, inter alia, all payments made by or to the Applicant respecting the purchase or sale of travel services.

The Law

The Travel Industry Act states as follows:

- a. (1) No person shall act or hold himself, herself or itself out as being available to act as a travel agent unless the person is registered as a travel agent by the Registrar.
- b. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration as a travel agent or travel wholesaler by the Registrar except where,
 - (a) having regard to his, her or its financial position, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of his, her or its business; or
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he, she or it will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (c) the applicant is a corporation and,
 - (i) is incorporated without share capital, or
 - (ii) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or
 - (iii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
 - (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.
5. (1) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 4.

(2) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 4 if he, she or it were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In terms of Section 5 of the Act, the Registrar is entitled to revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle an Applicant to registration under Section 4 of the Act. Section 4.(1) (c) of the Act requires that an Applicant, having regard to its financial position, be financially responsible in the conduct of its business and that its business be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) page 95 Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must therefore conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act and its Regulations.

The Applicant did not appear nor was it represented before the Tribunal at the hearing of this matter. It had been duly served with the Registrar's Notice of Proposal as well as supporting documents as contained in the Registrar's Book of Documents. The evidence adduced by the Registrar through its two witnesses who testified at the hearing was uncontraverted by the Applicant and the Tribunal accepts their testimony without reservation.

Section 24 (1) and (2) of the Regulation places an obligation on the Applicant to file with the Registrar financial statements for each fiscal year within three months of the end of the Applicant's fiscal year. The financial statements due on March 31, 1998 were only filed on July 24, 1998. The applicant's financial statements due on March 31, 1999 were only filed on April 29, 1999. The financial statements due on March 31, 2001 were only filed on April 23, 2001. The Applicant's financial statement due on March 31, 2002 were only filed on April 24, 2002. There were ongoing breaches of the aforesaid section of the Regulation by the Applicant for the years 1998, 1999, 2001 and 2002.

Section 25 of the Regulation requires that a certain minimum working capital shall be maintained by travel agents. The working capital that should have been maintained by the Applicant was not in fact maintained and there were repeated shortfalls discovered by the Registrar in 1998, 1999, 2001 and 2002.

Section 36 of the Regulation requires the Applicant to maintain a trust account so as to protect customer funds and the Applicant was required to hold all customer funds in such trust account.

The Applicant, in terms of Section 36 (6) of the Regulation, was not entitled to withdraw monies held in the trust account until payment has been made to a supplier of travel services by the Applicant. This requirement was breached by the Applicant.

In May 2001 an investigation by the Registrar revealed that customer deposits were processed not through the trust account but through the Applicant's general account. Despite investigation by the Registrar, it was ascertained in November 2001 that this issue of the trust account continued and that customer deposits processed through the Applicant's trust account were subsequently transferred to the Applicant's general account or personal account from which latter account travel suppliers were paid. The Applicant was again reminded of the necessity to conform and operate according to the Act and the Regulation. However, the Applicant did not cooperate with the Registrar and repeatedly failed to submit documentation and financial information as requested.

In June 2002 the Registrar ascertained that the Applicant's trust account revealed frequent overdrafts during April 2002 and a deficit in that account of $11,507.00. This deficit has not been dealt with by the Applicant who has not furnished to the Registrar any or sufficient information or documentation in order to assess the true and actual amount of the deficit. Additionally, the Applicant has not furnished the Registrar with information or documentation so as to enable the Registrar to determine the current customer deposit position or the current working capital position of the Applicant.

The total evidence indicates that the financial affairs of the Applicant are in chaos and its keeping of records as required by the Act, to be practically non-existent. The consumer is at risk in dealings with the Applicant and the Travel Industry Compensation Fund is also at risk in permitting the continued operation by the Applicant as a travel agent. The Registrar is correct in proposing the revocation of the Applicant's registration and would be derelict in his duties if he failed to act and were to allow the present situation to continue.

During the Registrar's counsel's closing submissions he moved for an award of costs against the Applicant. The Tribunal finds that an award of costs against the Applicant is appropriate based on Rule 14.1 and 14.2 of the Rules of Practice of this Tribunal. The Applicant was served with the Notice of Hearing for November 19, 2002 at 9:30 a.m. and a telephone call was made to the Applicant by an employee of the Tribunal on the day prior to the hearing. While the employee did not manage to speak personally with the Applicant's representative, she did leave a voicemail message reminding the Applicant that the hearing was due to take place on November 19, 2002 at 9:30 a.m. at the Tribunal's Chambers in Toronto. Despite the service of the Notice of Hearing and the voice message, the Applicant neither appeared nor was represented before the Tribunal on November 19, 2002.

The Applicant has shown a total lack of respect for the Tribunal in failing to appear before it on November 19, 2002 and failing to give an excuse or reason for not doing so.

The evidence presented by the Registrar was convincing and reflected serious allegations which the Tribunal has found proven and which justifies the Registrar in arriving at his decision to propose the revocation of the Applicant's registration. The Tribunal finds the Applicant acted frivolously and vexatiously in failing to attend before the Tribunal or send a representative and failing to communicate with the Tribunal and the Registrar.

Although the Registrar, when his Counsel moved for an order for costs, had not given Notice to the Applicant the Tribunal accedes to the request and waives the necessity of notice by virtue of Rule 2.7 of the Rules which gives the Tribunal the discretion to waive any Rule.

The Tribunal therefore orders the Applicant to pay the sum of $800.00 to the Registrar in terms of Rule 14.4 (2) (b) of the Rules of Practice of this Tribunal.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 6 (4) of the Travel Industry Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the Registration of the Applicant.

MOHAMAD (MICHAEL) BASHIR ALMAWI

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT
TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES:

A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act
MOHAMAD (MICHAEL) BASHIR ALMAWI, Applicant
unrepresented

DATE OF
HEARING: November 22, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar, pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated the 1st day of August 2002, seeks to refuse the Registration of Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order to refuse the registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register of Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated the 15th, day of August 2002, are:

1. The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about May 24, 2002. He proposes to work for Nadine Bayoun o/a Motorway Auto Detailing and Accessories.
2. On the application to become a registered salesperson, question 9 asks:

“ Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)”

The Applicant said, “Yes”, and provided a letter outlining certain convictions.
3. A criminal record search shows that the Applicant has the following criminal convictions:

February 2, 1990:	Public Mischief False Statement
March 2, 1993:	Fraud under $1,000
October 13, 1993:	False Pretenses Under $1,000
June 13, 1997:	Fraud Under $5,000
May 28, 1998:	Possession of Property Obtained by Crime over $5,000 (x2)
November 5, 1998:	Fraud Under $5,000 (x3)
4. The Applicant has failed to make full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar.

By written Notice of Appeal Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi informed the Tribunal in term of section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Ms Louise Gingras.

The evidence presented by Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi consisted of his statements in the Notice of Appeal dated August 22nd, 2002 and his viva voce testimony at the hearing.

A summary of the evidence follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

Testimony of Ms Louise Gingras

Ms Louise Gingras began her testimony by describing for the Tribunal her current position as a Senior Inspector with OMVIC and reciting prior job experience as an investigator.

Ms Gingras explained that OMVIC is a non-profit corporation which has been delegated the responsibility to administer the Act. The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public protection statute regulating dealers, and salespersons in the trade of buying and selling motor vehicles. The criteria for entitlement to registration is set out in Section 5 of the Act which, requires that individuals and corporations registered or applying to be registered under the Act meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law and financial responsibility.

Ms Gingras continued testifying by identifying and commenting on the documents filed in the Respondent's Book of Documents, filed as Exhibit # 3.

The decision to refuse the registration of the Applicant was based on the grounds set out in the Notice of Proposal dated August 15th, 2002, found at tab # 1 of Exhibit # 3, that in not responding to question 9 of the Application for Registration under the Act, the Applicant failed to make full disclosure of his criminal record.

A copy of the actual Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, filed at tab # 3 of Exhibit #3, indicates that the application was signed May 21, 2002, and that the Applicant proposes to work for Motorway Auto Detailing. Ms Gingras referred to the letter, written by the Applicant, and attached to the Applicant's Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, detailing the convictions against him. Ms Gingras pointed out that the Applicant "...has a record of fraud going back to 1988...", which he explains as: "...issuing bad cheques in 1988, for $198.00; and in 1996 he was charged and found guilty of buying stolen goods..."

The Applicant came to the attention of the Registrar during a new dealer's inspection of Motorway Auto Detailing; wherein it was uncovered that it appeared the Applicant was involved in the buying and selling of motor vehicles for the dealership. At the time, the Applicant was given ten days to submit an Application for Registration under the Act as a Salesperson.

Ms Gingras clarified for the Tribunal, that the completion of the application is the first indication of "...honesty and integrity..." that an applicant for registration, intends to work in accordance with the law. The Applicant failed the honesty test by his failure to fully disclose the extent of convictions against him.

Filed as Exhibit # 3, at tabs 4 & 5, identified by Ms Gingras, are a copy of the criminal record ran on the Applicant. The Applicant was requested to provide more information and did so by e-mail dated June 19th, 2002, as per copy contained at tab # 5 of Exhibit # 3. Ms Gingras summarized the Applicant's e-mail response "...it appears ...that he took responsibility for someone backing into a vehicle in a parking lot..."

The Registrar also requested and obtained a copy of the information outlining the 1990 charge of Mischief laid against the Applicant, which is entered as exhibit # 3, at tab # 6. Ms Gingras noted that the charge arose out of the Applicant making a false statement to the police, "...which led police to believe that someone had committed an offense which they had not committed..." Ms Gingras concluded that there is a vast difference between the explanation proffered by the Applicant, and the reality of the charge.

The nature of the convictions against the Applicant together with the fact that it appears that the Applicant deliberately misled the Registrar is of particular significance and concern to the Registrar.

In cross-examination by the Applicant, Ms Gingras conceded that Motorway Auto Detailing is registered as a Wholesaler operation rather than as a Retailer. As such the Applicant would deal mainly with other dealers and, not essentially with the public unless leasing of a vehicle was involved.

Applicant's evidence

The Applicant confirmed for the Tribunal that Motorway Auto Detailing has been in operation since 1997. Since that time the business has been successful, has established a good relationship with the bank and has earned the trust of dealers.

The Applicant expressed regret and remorse for his past indiscretions. By way of explanation, the Applicant briefly commented on the circumstances surrounding the convictions and remarked that he had been young and ignorant of the process. Rather than challenging the charges he plead guilty to expedite a resolution.

The Salesperson's licence is necessary to allow the Applicant to attend auctions restricted to dealers only.

In cross-examination by the Respondent's Counsel, the Applicant was asked to review each conviction. Due to his previous criminal record, in 1997, the Applicant's solicitor advised him to plead guilty after he was charged with fraud. The Applicant was charged after a purchaser reported the tampering of an odometer.

With respect to the 1998 conviction of Possession of Property Obtained by Crime, the Applicant was found guilty, after buying stolen vehicles from a dealer, which, he subsequently exported overseas. The Applicant admitted that "greed" got the better of him, as he purchased the vehicles in question for $5,000 under market value, therefore, he ought to have known better.

The Applicant emphasized that he had no intention to withhold information from the Registrar, but he felt that since the 1998 charges of Possession and Fraud were related, there would be no need to specify each one.

In reply to questions posed by Mr. Rothe, the Applicant recanted his previous statement and elucidated that he does not buy cars at auction but does consign cars to auction houses for sale.

Submissions by Mr. Michael Rothe

In support of his argument Mr. Rothe, presented the Tribunal with copies of precedent decisions.

Mr. Rothe reminded the Tribunal that the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act is a public protection Statute. As such the Registrar had a duty to consider an Applicant's past conduct.

The Applicant's criminal record indicates that over a span of eight years the Applicant was convicted of ten offenses. More importantly each of the convictions demonstrate that the Applicant has not operated with honesty and integrity. The circumstances surrounding the 1997 and 1998 convictions are of particular concern to the Registrar, since the charges are related to purchase and sale of motor vehicles.

Mr. Rothe contends that the Applicant's ability to deal with the public is questionable, particularly since he has not complied with the full disclosure requirement. Furthermore, the Applicant has not only attempted to conceal the evidence from the Registrar, but offered explanations, which are contrary to the facts. For the past years the Applicant has been carrying on business as a salesperson for Motorway Auto Detailing, knowingly being unlicensed to do so. The Registrar has no assurance that the Applicant, if granted a licence will not abuse his privilege in dealing with the public.

According to Mr. Rothe the Registrar did not err in law, but had a reasonable belief that the Applicant if issued a licence, would not act with honesty and integrity.

The Registrar has not entered into an agreement with the Applicant and feels that the seriousness of the convictions does not warrant conditional licensing.

APPLICANT'S SUBMISSIONS

The Applicant re-iterated the fact that he does not deal with the public, and emphasized that he can provide letters from dealers attesting to his character.

Since the dealership is in his wife's name, the Applicant asserted that he would not do anything to jeopardize her name.

The Applicant stated that he is willing to enter into an agreement with OMVIC that he will not in any way put the public at risk.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about May 24, 2002, proposing to work for Nadine Bayoun o/a Motorway Auto Detailing and Accessories.
2. The Applicant has the following criminal convictions:
 - February 2, 1990: Public Mischief
False Statement
 - March 2, 1993: Fraud under $1,000
 - October 13, 1993: False Pretenses Under $1,000
 - June 13, 1997: Fraud Under $5,000
 - May 28, 1998: Possession of Property Obtained by Crime over $5,000 (x2)
 - November 5, 1998: Fraud Under $5,000 (x3)
3. The Applicant failed to make full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar by failing to disclose his criminal record.
4. The Applicant was less than forthcoming in providing explanations to the Registrar regarding the circumstances of his convictions.

THE LAW:

Section 5. (1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

- 5(1) an applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable risk to the public to refuse his registration as a Sole Proprietorship and Salesperson, as per Section 5 (b) of the Act.

Having found as a fact that the Applicant failed to disclose pertinent information to the Registrar, and that the Applicant was convicted of: "Possession of Property obtained by Crime" and "Fraud," the Tribunal also finds that the Registrar was justified in refusing the registration of Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi.

The Applicant petitioned an opportunity to prove that he has turned his life around, and insists that he would not damage his wife's reputation. He goes on to suggest that he is willing to pledge his home as collateral to cover the eventuality of a possible claim. Unfortunately, the Tribunal cannot heed the Applicant's plea. The intent of the Motor Vehicle's Dealers Act is preventative not reactive. The Tribunal concurs with Mr. Rothe that the application and the information therein provided is crucial in assessing the intent and honesty of an Applicant. In this case, the Applicant shattered any possibility for trust that could be afforded him, not only by failing to mention in his application for registration his full criminal record, but also by misleading the Registrar as to the circumstances surrounding the convictions.

The Tribunal further agrees with Respondent's Counsel, Mr. Rothe, that this is not a matter where terms and conditions imposed on a registrant's licence would suffice. It is the Registrar's mandate and this Tribunal's responsibility, in interpreting the law, to protect the public. The fact that Motorway Auto Detailing is a Wholesaler and not a Retailer is of no comfort to the Tribunal. The Applicant's latter convictions relate to, tampering with an odometer, and the purchasing of stolen vehicles, which were subsequently exported over seas. This concerns the Tribunal, as the automobile detailing business is rife with the possibilities for continued misconduct. The Registrar must have full confidence that registrants will not misuse the privileges entrusted to them. The Applicant's previous convictions certainly offer no reassurance.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the proposal to refuse the registration of Mr. Mohamad (Michael) Bashir Almawi.

DATE OF HEARING: December 16, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Michael Puchta (the "Applicant") under section 14(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting a decision by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated August 28, 2002, (the "Decision") denying the Applicant's claim for compensation.

The Applicant's claim relates to a dwelling located at 550 Queens Quay W., Suite 301, Toronto, Ontario (the "unit") which was constructed by Cenpac Developments Inc. in terms of a written agreement of Purchase and Sale dated June 30, 1998 and the transaction was completed for possession on January 31, 2001.

The Applicant provided notice of complaint by faxes dated January 28, 2002 and January 31, 2002. The Program first inspected the Applicant's home on May 7, 2002 and re-inspected on June 26, 2002.

The Program's Decision Letter described the Applicant's complaints as follows:

1. "Floor laminated in living room a lot of scratches."
2. "Dusting problem."
3. "Venting, furnace heating thermostat problem."
4. "Balcony – to fix brick no fix ceiling only 1 coat paint, looks very ugly needs to paint and stucco sliding door frame too."
5. "Small window (glass cracks)."
6. "Bath tub crack."
7. "Washroom door at bottom."
8. "Kitchen counter repairs made worse."
9. "Vibrations and clicking noise within suite."
10. Issues identified as being outstanding when given to the ONHWP representative during the June 26, 2002 re-inspection visit.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1 Decision Letter dated August 28, 2002;
Exhibit #2 Notice of Appeal dated September 6, 2002;
Exhibit #3 Book of Documents of the Respondent

FACTS:

A summary of the reasons given by the Decision Letter, Exhibit 1, for denying the Applicant's claim are as follows:

1. "...numerous superficial scratches were observed on the laminate hardwood floor finish within the living room...primarily in the centre of the room in the vicinity of the coffee table. The warranty start date was January 31, 2001 and this specific complaint was received by ONHWP within the first year of possession (received January 28, 2002). However, your Pre-Delivery Inspection Form and the Certificate of Completion and Possession do not mention the observed defect. Therefore, ONHWP cannot determine responsibility."
2. "... The clothes dryer (stacked laundry appliances) contains an integral lint filter that was free of lint. The 4" metal dryer duct is vented to the exterior and contains an "in-line" lint filter complete with an access door (located in the ceiling of the laundry area) for maintenance. The in-line lint filter was inspected and revealed an accumulation of lint (1/8" thick) on the filter screen...not abnormal and requires cleaning after use to provide optimum venting. No defects in workmanship and/or materials were noted..."
3. "The heat/cool thermostat ...located on east wall of kitchen hallway...You requested that it be relocated...to provide a balanced temperature...You also stated that the glazing, which makes up roughly 70 percent of the exterior wall partition on the south elevation is drafty and too cold at night. The draftiness noted may result from convective current; cold, dense air descending along the inside of the window and across the floor, as no window coverings have been installed within this 745 sq. ft. unit...The present location of the thermostat provides effective heating and cooling...as it is shielded from solar gain and heat loss. No defects in work and/or materials and/or Ontario Building Code violations were noted..."

4. "...noted issues are considered part of the Common Element and as such are beyond the scope of the unit warranty. These may, however, be pursued with the Condominium Board as they are considered to be the owner of the common elements for the purpose of the warranty..."
5. "...resolved and...no longer an issue."
6. "A hairline crack (1-1/2" in length) was observed...(directly under the chrome overflow plate). The warranty start date...was January 31, 2001 and this specific complaint was received by ONHWP within the 1st year of possession... However, the Pre-Delivery Inspection form and the Certificate of Completion and Possession do not reference the observed defect. Therefore, ONHWP cannot determine responsibility."
7. "...complaint was first reported to ONHWP...roughly 14 months after possession...too late to be considered for warranty coverage."
8. "...resolved and...no longer an issue."
9. "...a clicking noise, emanating from the low-voltage light fixture in the ceiling of the bathroom is audible particularly at night. The lamp retainer was removed from the bezel to observe the interior portion of the fixture. No defects...observed and no unusual sounds...detected...no vibrations detected within the unit at the time of...re-inspection meeting. This complaint does not represent a defect in either materials or workmanship nor is it a violation of the Ontario Building Code. Pursuant to Section 13(4) of the Act,...this complaint was received too late to be considered for warranty coverage."
10. "Pursuant to Section 13(4) of the Act, complaints must be received by ONHWP in writing within the first year after...possession...and (they) are too late to be considered for warranty coverage."

The Applicant did not have any witnesses and was prepared to give testimony on his own behalf.

The Program's counsel, Ms. Karen Jones advised the Program would have two witnesses: Allan Stevenson and Rob Rosset.

In giving his evidence, Mr. Puchta provided the following testimony regarding the unresolved warranty complaints listed in the ONHWP Decision Letter and his Appeal of the ONHWP decision:

No. 1 – scratches on laminated floor

Mr. Puchta said that at the time of possession there was dirt and dust on the floor so he could not clearly see anything on the floor. He also testified that the floor had only been installed one day before and that it took him 2 to 3 days to clean up and that he could not see anything before cleaning up.

No. 2 – dusting problem

Mr. Puchta testified that in his view the lint filter did not sit or fit properly and that when it was in place there was an air gap through which dust was able to escape into the air in his unit.

Mr. Puchta argued that (a) the filter was missing a seal and therefore did not sit tightly in its position, (b) perhaps it was the wrong size element, and (c) there had not been a general duct cleaning so dust in the system was coming into his unit.

No. 3 – venting, furnace heating thermostat problem

Testimony by Mr. Puchta focused on noise from the furnace whenever it came on and he stated that his solution to the problem was to change the lock to the room containing his furnace unit (the Tribunal learned that each floor of the condominium building had rooms off the general hallways which contained the furnace units for suites on that floor and that the furnace units were not in the individual suites).

When asked if he had considered getting an outside expert's opinion, Mr. Puchta stated that he did not call in an independent contractor but he did state that once he changed the lock to the furnace room, leaving himself with the only access key, the noise from the furnace stopped.

No. 4 – balcony issue

After describing his complaint about the appearance of the balcony finish, Mr. Puchta also acknowledged the balcony to be a common element and that he had spoken with the property manager as well as the condominium's Board of Directors and that they will look into this item.

No. 6 – bath tub crack

Mr. Puchta described the crack as outlined in the ONHWP Decision Letter but provided no material support, photographs or other evidence to assist the Tribunal on this complaint.

No. 7 – washroom door

Mr. Puchta testified that this was no longer an issue as his nephew had fixed the problem.

No. 9 – vibrations and clicking noise

Mr. Puchta testified that he heard disturbing sounds emanating from (a) the light fixture attached to the bathroom ceiling and (b) from the floor when he walked in certain areas and that he believed these sounds were coming from some kinds of surveillance devices in place to monitor his activities.

Mr. Puchta did not provide the Tribunal with any material evidence to support this claim.

Regarding the No. 10 Claim in the ONHWP Decision Letter, Mr. Puchta provided no specific comments to the individual items listed in this No. 10 paragraph. When asked if he could provide specific comments, he stated that he only wanted to concentrate on 3 issues which he listed as being (1) the floor scratches and (2) the dust problem. His testimony did not identify the third issue but repeatedly returned to the dusting problem.

Counsel for the ONHWP then called the witnesses for the Program.

Allan Stevenson, a warranty representative with the ONHWP, testified he had been with the Program for 14 years and prior to this had been Chief Building Official with the Town of Whitby for more than 10 years. In addition, Mr. Stevenson confirmed that his experience included the inspection of hundreds of units.

Mr. Stevenson confirmed the details of his Conciliation Inspection Report (Exhibit 3, Tab 7), which occurred on May 7, 2002 and also included the following points:

- (re No. 1) scratches were seen around the coffee table but how they got there could not be determined and they had not been mentioned in the original Certificate of Completion and Possession;
- (re No. 2) upon examining the filter Mr. Puchta referred to, it was found to be clean – other units were examined for cross-reference and Mr. Stevenson testified his findings were consistent with what would normally be found in these types of lint filters;
- (re No. 3) Mr. Stevenson testified he found the unit to have adequate air flow and there were no vent obstructions; he also stated there were no window coverings;
- (re No. 6) Mr. Stevenson confirmed the hairline crack in the tub, just under the overflow plate but said he could not determine its origin as there had been no previous report on this item.

Also present for the inspection were Mr. Puchta, the builder's representative, Randy Vardy, and Bonnie Douglas, also from the ONHWP.

Robert Rosset, a warranty representative with the ONHWP, testified he had been with the Program for 13 years and prior to this had been a construction supervisor for more than 5 years. In addition, Mr. Rosset testified his experience included the inspection of hundreds of units.

Mr. Rosset confirmed the details of his Reinspection Report (Exhibit 3, Tab 8), which occurred on June 26, 2002 and that the purpose of the reinspection was to review the previous conciliation report and identify any possible defects in materials and or workmanship. His testimony included the following points:

- (re No. 1) scratches around the coffee table were considered to be typical of a heavy object pulled across the floor but as this had not been previously documented, the cause could not be identified;
- (re No. 2) upon examining the lint filter Mr. Puchta spoke of, Mr. Rosset confirmed that his findings were consistent with what would normally be found in a clothes dryer's lint filter;
- (re No. 3) Mr. Rosset testified that he discussed the large window area and how drapes could be a way to prevent cold air from coming through the large window area;
- (re No. 6) Mr. Rosset confirmed the hairline crack in the tub, just under the overflow plate but said he could not determine its origin as there had been no prior report;

- (re No. 9) regarding the noise and vibrations Mr. Puchta had noted, Mr. Rosset testified he had removed the bezel of the light and showed Mr. Puchta that there was no surveillance camera or other device to monitor his bathroom activities; the space behind the bezel only had enough room for the fixture wires. Mr. Rosset stated that this was the only noise Mr. Puchta mentioned to him.

Also present for the inspection were Mr. Puchta and Patty Lutz, Office Manager of the condominium section of the ONHWP.

When asked if he wished to present a closing argument, Mr. Puchta submitted opinions and comments regarding his concerns and the Program. He then indicated that he did not have anything else to add.

In closing argument, the Program's counsel, Ms. Jones, argued that while some issues raised by Mr. Puchta were past the warranty date, the ONHWP stood by its position on the other claim items that no evidence had been presented to show there were either defects in material or workmanship or violations of the Ontario Building Code.

Ms. Jones referred to the Respondent's Book of Authorities (Tab 4, page 11, item 5, paragraph 48), Corrine and Firat Uludamar, OCRATD No. 46, March 18, 19, 1997 in arguing that "unless the complaint is included on the Pre-Delivery Inspection Report (Certificate of Completion and Possession), the Tribunal must not make a finding in favour of the Applicant and must rely on the statute".

Ms. Jones pointed to Section 15 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act in arguing that the balcony issue was a matter for the condominium corporation to pursue.

(For the record, the Tribunal notes that Mr. Puchta left the hearing room prior to the conclusion of Ms. Jones' closing argument.)

ISSUE:

Based on the Applicant's testimony and concluding statement of interest in 3 claim issues (though only 2 were identified by the Applicant), the Tribunal was directed to the 2 issues he referred to: (1) the scratches on the laminate flooring, and (2) the dusting problem.

In consideration of this narrowing of the claims by the Applicant, the Tribunal must consider whether the scratches and dusting claims are a breach of warranty and therefore, should the Tribunal set aside, confirm, or modify the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicant's claim for compensation under section 14(3)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act

APPLICABLE LAW:

Section 14 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the “Act”) states in part:

- (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,
 - (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty

Section 13(1) of the Act adds:

Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
- c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

Section 13(4) states in part:

“A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect...”

Section 15 of Regulation 892 under the Act states:

- (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;
 - (b) that the electrical, plumbing and heating delivery and distribution systems are free from defects in material and work;
 - (c) that all exterior cladding of the home is free from defects in material and work resulting in detachment, displacement or physical deterioration;
 - (d) that the home is free from violations of the Ontario Building Code regulations under which the Building Permit was issued, affecting health and safety, including but not limited to fire safety, insulation, air and Vapour barriers, ventilation, heating and structural adequacy;
- (3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession...

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As the Applicant concluded his testimony with the statement that he only wanted to focus on three (3) claim issues but only identified two (2) issues, (1) the scratches on the laminate flooring, and (2) the dusting problem the Tribunal will therefore consider only these two (2) remaining claim issues and whether they represent a breach of warranty.

A finding by the Tribunal as to whether there is a breach of warranty on the first issue, regarding the scratches, is an issue on which the burden was on the Applicant to...

- a) prove that the scratches had occurred prior to possession,
- b) were either noted at the time of possession on the Certificate of Completion and Possession or communicated to the Program after the 2 to 3 days that the Applicant testified it took him to clean up after moving in.

The evidence provided to the Tribunal shows that the complaint information regarding the scratches was not presented until days before the expiry of the one year warranty period.

The Tribunal finds itself in agreement with the submissions by the Program that it is not possible to determine the origin of the scratches. Therefore the Tribunal finds that this is not a warrantable item.

Regarding the second item, being the dust in the air of the Applicant's suite and the claim that it originates through a gap between the lint filter and its in-line location (that the filter either does not fit properly or is missing sealant to close off the gap), the Tribunal was not presented with any kind of material or substantive evidence to assist it in weighing the merits of the claim.

The Tribunal therefore finds the Applicant has not met the burden of proof on this second claim and dismisses this claim as well.

In conclusion, the Tribunal was not presented with any kind of supporting evidence, documentation or expert reports to assist it in considering the Applicant's claims. In fact, the Applicant has failed to present any credible or acceptable evidence to discharge the onus that rested upon him and therefore has not satisfied the Tribunal that his version of the issues is correct.

The Tribunal finds that the Program is not in breach of warranty on either of the two (2) identified complaint issues which the Applicant stated, in his testimony, as being the claims in which he still had an interest. Since the other claims were not pursued by the Applicant, and there being no evidence before the Tribunal, they are dismissed as well.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

Dealers Act*

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "proposal") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The proposal dated August 23, 2002, seeks to revoke the registration of Joseph Fine Car Sales Ltd. as a motor vehicle dealer (the "Dealer") and Riadh Jirjis as a motor vehicle salesperson ("Jirjis") under the Act. The Dealer and Jirjis are collectively referred to as the "Applicants". The proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for the revocation of both the Applicants' registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the proposal, as follows:

1. Joseph Fine Car Sales Ltd. (hereinafter the "Dealer" is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer and was originally registered on or about May 2, 1996.
2. Riadh Jirjis (hereinafter the (sic) "Jirjis") is currently registered as a motor vehicle salesperson and was originally registered on or around May 2, 1996.
3. Jirjis is the sole officer/director of the Dealer.
4. The Dealer has failed to comply with the requirements of the Retail Sales Tax Act as to the filing of returns, remitting of tax due and paying assessments when due.
5. As a result of failure to comply with the Retail Sales Tax Act, the Dealer is indebted to the Ministry of Finance in the amount of $11,823.19 as of June 21, 2002.

By written Notice of Appeal in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Act, the Applicants notified the Tribunal that they required a hearing regarding their appeals to the Registrar's proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the testimony of Anna Lundrigan and Louise Gingras. The evidence presented by the Applicants consisted of the testimony of Jirjis.

At the commencement of the hearing the Applicants' agent informed the Tribunal that the Applicants did not dispute and formally admitted that Jirjis was at all material times the sole Director, and sole Officer of the Dealer.

ANNA LUNDRIGAN

Lundrigan testified that she is employed by the Ministry of Finance (the "Ministry") and has been with that Ministry for the past 20 years. She is presently working as a Field Collection Officer based in North York, Toronto and has held that position for the past 3½ years. She stated that in her employment she deals with retail sales tax due by various vendors under the Retail Sales Tax Act (the "Act"). She stated that vendors under the Act are obliged to complete monthly returns in respect of retail sales tax collected by them pursuant to sale transactions governed by the Act. A vendor is obliged to remit payment to the Ministry, together with the completed monthly returns. The tax collected by a vendor is considered trust monies and is to be remitted by the vendor by no later than the 23rd day of the month following the month in which the tax was collected by the vendor from a purchaser. Lundrigan further testified that the Ministry relies on vendors' monthly returns to be accurate and truly reflective of monies collected by such vendors. However, if returns are not filed by vendors the Ministry then is entitled to estimate tax due by the vendor and audits of vendors' records are carried out by the Ministry from time to time.

Lundrigan went on to state that she is conversant with the Ministry's file pertaining to the Applicants and referred to a schedule dated June 21, 2002 prepared by the Ministry. This schedule is marked "Schedule A" in the Registrar's Book of Documents (Exhibit 3, tab 4) and makes reference to the Dealer and its history with the Ministry relating to Retail Sales Tax. Lundrigan stated further that in February 1997 the Dealer's account with the Ministry was referred to her department for collection as the Dealer had defaulted in its monthly returns and a subsequent audit assessment indicated tax collected by the Dealer was not remitted to the Ministry. Several arrangements for payment were made with the Dealer and were subsequently broken by the Dealer. Finally, on October 22, 2001 written Terms and Conditions were signed by the Dealer, therein represented by Jirjis, in terms of which the Dealer undertook to pay the balance of tax then owing to the Ministry, namely $25,826.72, by way of monthly instalments. On October 30, 2001 the Dealer was credited with an amount which resulted in the balance then due by the Dealer being reduced $14,959.50. This credit in favour of the Dealer did not relate to payments made by the Dealer on account of his then current or past indebtedness but related to a reversal by the Ministry of a provisional estimate of retail sales tax owing by the Dealer. This provisional estimate was reversed when the Dealer signed the Terms and Conditions.

Lundrigan stated further that the Dealer since signing the Terms and Conditions had failed to comply with the payment schedule in that the Dealer had issued cheques to the Ministry which were returned marked "N.S.F." The Dealer continued in its failure to comply with the filing of his monthly returns promptly or at all.

During cross-examination Lundrigan stated that under the signed Terms and Conditions the Dealer had, as of October 8, 2002, reduced the amount owing to the Ministry for Retail Sales Tax to the sum of $8,413.81 but the Dealer continues to issue cheques to the Ministry that are returned "N.S.F." The cheques that accompanied the Dealer's returns for the months of June, August and September 2002 had all been returned unpaid to the Ministry.

LOUISE GINGRAS

Gingras stated in her testimony that she is employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") and is presently a senior inspector with OMVIC which was created in 1997 as a non-profit corporation with the mandate to administer the Act and its Regulations.

Gingras reviewed Section 5 of the Act which deals with registration of motor vehicle dealers and salespersons under the Act and when registration may be refused or revoked. She also reviewed the Notice of Proposal to Revoke the registrations in this matter and confirmed that both Applicants are currently registered under the Act. Gingras noted that the Act constitutes consumer legislation which requires the Registrar to be vigilant insofar as the conduct of registrants and applicants for registration are concerned.

The conduct of the Applicants in this particular matter gives Gingras cause for concern as the allegations relate to the failure by the Dealer to account to the Ministry for tax due to the Ministry and which the Dealer had collected on the Ministry's behalf and for which it had persistently failed to account to the Ministry. She repeated to the Tribunal that the Registrar, in conformity with his obligations under the Act, persists in his proposal to revoke both Applicants' registrations.

RIADH JIRJIS

Jirjis testified that he does owe the Ministry retail sales tax which was collected by the Dealer and not accounted for to the Ministry. However, he disputed the correctness of the amount claimed by the Ministry as being due and owing by the Dealer. He contended that the Ministry had debited the Dealer's account with an estimated amount of tax collected and that such estimate was incorrect as the Dealer did not in fact collect the amount estimated by the Ministry. He further contended that the Dealer filed an objection to the Ministry's assessment as to the amount owing by the Dealer and following that objection the amount due and owing was reduced when the estimated amount was reversed and the Dealer's account credited. He did concede that he did sign Terms and Conditions (Exhibit 3, tab 4). The balance shown as then due and owing by the Dealer was incorrect, as that balance did not reflect the credit due to the Dealer for the reversal of estimated retail sales tax collected.

Jirjis produced a Notice of Assessment dated October 8, 2002 addressed by the Ministry to the Dealer (Exhibit 5). Jirjis stated that that notice showed a balance then due to the Ministry of $8,413.81 against which amount the Dealer had paid $1000.00 in cash on November 25, 2002. He therefore contended that the Dealer's present liability to the Ministry is $7,413.81. He also disputed that, as shown on the Notice of Assessment of October 8, 2002, the Dealer gave the Ministry a dishonoured cheque for $280.00 which cheque the Dealer forwarded with its return for the period August 1, 2002 to August 31, 2002. He did concede that the Dealer has defaulted at times in respect of the $1000.00 per month payments that the Dealer was obliged to pay to the Ministry and that when he failed to keep to the monthly payments under the signed Terms and Conditions it was due to the Dealer not having the necessary funds to make those payments.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found proven by the Tribunal:

1. The Dealer and Jirjis are currently registered as motor vehicle dealer and motor vehicle salesperson respectively under the Act.
2. Jirjis is currently and at all material times was the sole director and officer of the Dealer.

3. The Dealer was in terms of the Retail Sales Tax Act at all material times the agent of the Ministry and as such was obliged to levy and collect retail sales tax imposed under the Act upon the purchasers of motor vehicles sold to the purchasers by the Dealer.
4. The Dealer in terms of the Retail Sales Tax Act was at all material times obliged to remit to the Ministry all retail sales tax collected by the Dealer. The Dealer has failed to remit to the Ministry all retail sales taxes collected.
5. The Dealer in terms of the Retail Sales Tax Act was obliged at all material times to make and file with the Ministry returns of retail sales tax levied and collected by the Dealer.
6. The Dealer failed to remit and make returns to the Ministry of retail sales tax levied and collected by the Dealer as agent for the Ministry.
7. The Dealer, therein represented by Jirjis, entered into written Terms and Conditions, dated October 22, 2001, with the Ministry in terms of which the Dealer agreed and undertook to make payment to the Ministry at the rate of $1000.00 per month, all retail sales tax collected but not remitted by the Dealer as agent for the Ministry.
8. The Dealer has failed to remit and pay to the Ministry, both in respect retail sales tax levied and collected by the Dealer and in respect amounts owing by the Dealer under the agreed Terms and Conditions, an amount of not less than $7,413.00

THE LAW:

Section 5.1 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

5 (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6.2 of the Act states;

- 6 (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.
- (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 4.2 (1) of the Retail Sales Tax Act states:

(1) Despite section 2, every purchaser of a used motor vehicle shall pay to Her Majesty in right of Ontario a tax in respect of the consumption or use thereof, computed at the rate of 8 per cent of the fair market value thereof.

Section 10 of the Retail Sales Tax Act states:

Every vendor is an agent of the Minister and as such shall levy and collect the taxes imposed by this Act upon the purchaser or consumer.

Section 13.(1) and (3) of the Retail Sales Tax Act states:

13. (1) All taxes and all amounts collected as or on account of tax by a vendor under this Act shall, subject to subsections 2 (16) and (16.3), be remitted to the Minister at the time or times and in the manner prescribed by the regulations.

(3) Any person who collects any amount as or on account of tax shall be deemed to be a vendor for the purposes of subsection (1) and for the purposes of assessment, collection and enforcement of this Act.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar in this matter and the test in this matter has been set out in the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989). In that decision Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Dealer, represented by Jirjis, its sole Director and Officer, collected retail sales tax from various purchasers of motor vehicles. This was not disputed by the Applicants. The Dealer was obliged to account to the Ministry for the tax that it collected. Again, Jirjis did not dispute this obligation which was placed upon the Dealer by the Act.

Further, Jirjis did not dispute that the Dealer had not accounted to the Ministry for amounts collected by the Dealer in respect of retail sales tax and, in fact, admitted that the Dealer had not accounted to the Ministry for over seven thousand dollars. This amount represents trust monies collected by the Dealer as agent for the Ministry. The repeated failure of the Dealer to remit trust funds in its possession is reflective of the Dealer's and Jirjis' conduct in not acting with honesty and integrity and in accordance with law. The failure to remit these trust monies is ongoing and has become a course of conduct insofar as the Applicants are concerned. The Dealer continues to forward cheques to the Ministry that are dishonoured by non payment when presented to the Dealer's bank. Failure to make payment of monies lawfully due to a party is in and of itself indicative of financial irresponsibility but failure to account for monies that are held in trust for another party does not only indicate financial irresponsibility but also reflects a lack of honesty and integrity. Once the Dealer received monies representing retail sales tax from various purchasers, such monies became trust funds in the hands of the Dealer. These trust funds were to be accounted for by the Dealer to the Ministry in terms of the trust imposed upon the Dealer by the Retail Sales Tax Act. The Dealer in failing to pay over these trust funds to the Ministry was in breach of trust which course of conduct was repeated time and again.

Jirjis in his capacity as sole Director and Officer of the Dealer was clearly the controlling mind of the Dealer and he bears equal responsibility for its failure to account to the Ministry for trust funds held by the Dealer on the Ministry's behalf.

Having regard to what is stated above, the Tribunal does not believe the Registrar was in error in concluding that both Applicants' actions reflect a lack of integrity and honesty and that if allowed to continue in business they will likely not carry on business in the future in accordance with law and with honesty and integrity.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated August 23, 2002 to revoke the Registrations of Joseph Fine Car Sales and motor vehicle dealer and of Riadh Jirjis as motor vehicle salesperson.

DATE OF
HEARING: December 10 and 11, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated May 22, 2002 wherein the claims of Robert Salhany ("Salhany") and Mary Gardiner ("Gardiner") collectively referred to as the "Applicants" were denied by the Program.

BACKGROUND:

The Applicants' claim that they and Tartan Homes Corporation ("Tartan") entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale regarding a residence (the "home") to be built by Tartan upon 78 Gleeson Way in the City of Nepean, Ontario. Pursuant to that agreement, Tartan built the home and on December 15, 2000 the Applicants took occupation and possession of the home.

After taking occupation and possession of the home, the Applicants became aware of defects in the home, which they contended were due to the defective workmanship of Tartan and the defective materials supplied by Tartan. The defective work and materials constituted, according to the Applicants, a breach of warranty in terms of section 14(3)(b) of the Act entitling them to damages. Tartan has denied the Applicants' claims.

The Applicants complained to the Program regarding the defects noted by the Applicants. Pursuant to such complaints and request by the Applicants for a conciliation inspection, a meeting and inspection was held and following the Program's inspection report, it issued its decision letter of May 22, 2000. In the decision letter of May 22, 2002 the Program confirmed and adopted the reasons given in the conciliation inspection report of May 1, 2002. When the Applicants' appeal came before the Tribunal, Salhany for the Applicants, Counsel on behalf of the Program and the Agent for Tartan agreed that there were only two unresolved issues to be dealt with. The hearing of the Applicants' appeal therefore proceeded on the two unresolved issues, which are referred to in the conciliation inspection report of May 22, 2002. That report states as follows in regard to those two unresolved issues.

1st ISSUE

Complaint:

200-amp service - Electrical meter outside and breaker box inside house.

Observation:

A 100 Amp electrical service has been installed in this home as per the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, Schedule "G". Furthermore, in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale under "Request for Change #70WT-003" it clearly indicates that a 200 amp service is to be installed. The ONHWP has documents showing that the builder did make an offer to reimburse the cost for the change. However the owner refused the offer.

Assessment:

Although this item of complaint was on a Request for Change and paid by the owner, this was not a specific selection and therefore cannot be covered under warranty. The builder's responsibility is to reimburse the owner the full amount, which he was charged for the change in the amount of $435.00

Furthermore, this complaint does not represent a defect in either materials or workmanship nor is it a violation of the Ontario Building Code.

2nd ISSUE

Complaint:

Bubbled seam along counter top. Kitchen. Located at the corner seam between the stove and the wall to family room.

Observation:

Waves of bubbles are noticeable along the mitre joint in the kitchen counter top located on the left of the sink. This situation is also starting on the mitre joint at the right of the sink.

Despite the above observation, these joints in the counter tops are not water tight or sealed against any water or moisture that can be left along or on top of these joints for a certain time period.

Assessment:

This complaint does not represent a defect in either materials or workmanship nor is it a violation of the Ontario Building Code. Furthermore, this complaint represents an item of damage. It has not been documented on any pre-delivery documents, such as the Certificate of Completion and Possession. Therefore, ONHWP cannot determine responsibility.

THE EVIDENCE:Robert Salhany

Salhany testified that he and his wife, Mary Gardiner, are the Applicants in this appeal. He stated that he and Gardiner entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale with Tartan dated April 4, 2000 in terms of which they purchased the home to be built by Tartan at 78 Gleeson Way in Nepean, Ontario. (Exhibit 3, tab 5)

1st Issue

Schedule "G" to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale provided that Tartan would supply and install a 100 amp electrical breaker panel in the home.

Pursuant to the completion of the home the Applicants took possession and occupation on December 15, 2000.

Salhany went on to state that by way of a written "request for change" dated May 3, 2000 Tartan and the Applicants agreed to a change in regard to the supply and installation of the 100 amp electrical breaker panel in the home. In lieu of a 100 amp electrical breaker panel, Tartan would "supply and install a 200 amp service" in the home at an agreed additional cost to the Applicants of $435.00. Salhany conceded under cross-examination that at the foot of the second page of the "request for change" form, immediately above his signature and that of Tartan's representative, the following words appear:

The Vendor will undertake to incorporate the work covered by the Change Order in the construction of the house but will not be liable to the Purchaser in any way if for any reason any work covered by the Change Order is not carried out. In that event, any monies paid in connection with same shall be returned to the Purchaser.

(Exhibit 3, tab 6)

The Applicants duly paid Tartan an agreed sum of $435.00 for this change to the electrical system in the home.

When, after taking occupation and possession of the home, the Applicants learned that they had not received a 200 amp electrical service in the home they complained to Tartan who advised the Applicants that the City of Nepean would not permit a 200 amp service on newly constructed homes. However, Tartan upgraded the standard 32 circuit panel that it had installed in the home to a 40 circuit electrical panel. This upgrade, combined with the original 100 amp service would, according to Tartan, meet any future electrical needs that may be required. Tartan forwarded the Applicants a cheque for $175.00 being the difference between the $435.00 upgrade cost of the 200 amp service and the cost of the 40 circuit panel installed in lieu of a 32 circuit panel.

Salhany went on to state that upon Tartan informing him that a 200 amp service could not be provided, he caused enquiries to be made with officials of the City of Nepean and Ottawa Hydro. Salhany stated that Ottawa Hydro contended there was no restriction on the supply and installation of a 200 amp service and this could be provided as an upgrade from a 100 amp service at a cost of $2,179.80 including G.S.T. Ottawa Hydro's position was that a 100 amp service is "ample for the vast majority of homes" and "services larger than 100 ampere are the exception" amounting to less than 5% of total homes in its area. (Exhibit 4)

On June 2, 2002, after the conciliation inspection report and the Program's decision letter had been received by the Applicants, they received a letter from Tartan enclosing a cheque in their favour for $435.00 as "reimbursement" for the $435.00 paid by the Applicants for the supply and installation of a 200 amp service which had not been supplied and installed. Salhany conceded that this cheque had been deposited by the Applicants but stated that it was deposited in error. At the time of depositing the cheque both Applicants were distracted as Salhany's mother was terminally ill and the Applicants were going back and forth to visit Salhany's mother in Montreal. The stress of the mother's illness resulted in the cheque being deposited in error. Salhany conceded under cross-examination that since depositing the cheque in June 2002 no attempt had been made to make refund of $435.00 to Tartan.

Under cross-examination Salhany conceded that the electrical system as installed is functioning properly and that such system was installed by a qualified electrician and had been approved by the City of Nepean.

2nd Issue

Salhany testified that approximately three to four months after taking possession and occupation of the home he noticed that the corner seam on the kitchen counter top evidenced bubbling over a length of about six inches. He, at about the time of discovering the bubbling, verbally reported the problem to Tartan. He contended that the seam had "come apart" and that there did not appear to be silicon between the two pieces of counter top where they were joined. He was able to put his finger nail between the two pieces of counter top where these two pieces met. Salhany also stated that he had not had anyone inspect this complaint other than Canac Kitchens who had supplied and installed the kitchen cabinets including the counter top. He went on to state that when Canac Kitchens inspected the counter top on October 26, 2001 he was present but did not speak with the representative of Canac Kitchens either during or after the inspection.

Under cross-examination Salhany denied that he had ever notice water pooled on the counter top near or at the seam where bubbling had occurred. He conceded that he never "took the counter top apart" so as to see whether or not there was silicone between the seam where the two pieces of counter top meet.

Paul Rochon

Rochon testified on behalf of the Program. He stated that he has been employed with the Program for the past 13 years. He is presently a warranty representative with the Program. Prior to his employment with the Program he was a customer service manager with a builder/developer of residential homes where his duties included making inspections of newly constructed homes. Prior to being a service manager he was a building official with the building departments of two Ontario municipalities.

Rochon stated that he became involved in this matter as the Program's warranty representative and attended the conciliation inspection on May 1, 2002. He authored the subsequent conciliation inspection report and the Program's decision letter of May 22, 2002.

1st Issue

Insofar as the first issue is concerned, Rochon stated that "schedule G" to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale between the Applicants and Tartan called for a 100 amp electrical service to be installed in the home. By subsequent written agreement dated May 3, 2000 and titled "Request for Change" between the Applicants and Tartan this 100 amp service was to be upgraded to a 200 amp service at an agreed cost to the Applicants of $435.00 which the Applicants paid to Tartan. However, the upgrade was not done by Tartan and Tartan refunded to the Applicants the $435.00 paid by them for such upgrade. This refund was made in terms of the conditions attached to the "Request for Change" form.

Rochon went on to state that a permit for the 100 amp electrical service had to be issued by the necessary authorities prior to occupation and possession. From his inspection he noted that the supply and installation of the 100 amp service was free of defects in material, was done in a workmanlike manner and was not installed in contravention of the Ontario Building Code. The Applicants did not complain that the 100 amp service was defective but stated that they felt it might be inadequate in the future to service an anticipated basement apartment and a swimming pool.

2nd Issue

Insofar as the second issue was concerned Rochon confirmed that when he inspected the counter top at the time of the conciliation inspection he did observe that over a distance of some 6" there was a bubbling of the counter top surface where the two pieces of the counter top met. From his experience this bubbling was caused by water or wet cloths having been left on top of the counter top at the seam or joint between the two pieces of counter top. The mitre joint was damaged by water entry or excessive moisture caused by wet cloths being left on the joint. Rochon stated that when the Applicants took possession and occupation of the house on December 15, 2000 there was no damage recorded at the predelivery inspection regarding the kitchen counter top and this damage clearly occurred subsequent to occupation. Water or moisture penetration into the mitre joint can affect the composite materials of which a counter top is made and the bubbling observed is consistent with water entry or moisture penetration.

Rochon maintained that damage to the counter top could have been avoided if the Applicants had properly maintained the kitchen counter top by ensuring that water or wet cloths did not stand on the mitre joint. Rochon stated that in his opinion the construction and assembly of the counter top was done by Canac Kitchens according to normal acceptable methods. The Ontario Building Code had not been violated, the home was not unfit for habitation and the counter top was constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free of defects in materials that were used.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal found to have been proven.

1. The Applicants and Tartan entered into a written agreement dated April 4, 2000 in respect of the construction and sale of a single family residential home by Tartan to the Applicants.
2. Included in the home to be constructed was a 100 amp electrical service.
3. Subsequent to the Applicant and Tartan entering into the written agreement dated April 4, 2000, referred to in paragraph 1 above, they entered into a written agreement titled "Request for Change" dated May 3, 2000 in terms whereof Tartan agreed to upgrade the home's electrical system from 100 amp service to a 200 amp service at an agreed cost to the Applicants of $435.00, which sum the Applicants paid to Tartan.
4. It was a condition of the written agreement titled "Request for Change" dated May 3, 2000 that Tartan would not be liable to the Applicants in any way if for any reason any work covered by the change request was not carried out, in which event any monies paid in connection with the change were to be returned by Tartan to the Applicants.

5. Tartan did not carry out the work covered by the aforesaid "Request of Change" and by cheque dated May 31, 2002 for the sum of $435.00 refunded the Applicants the monies they paid to Tartan in respect of the upgrade.
6. The Applicants accepted Tartan's cheque for $435.00 by depositing same to their banking account and have not refunded that amount or any amount to Tartan.
7. The 100 amp electrical service installed by Tartan in the home is not defective, functions adequately and was supplied and installed in terms of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. There was and is no defect in material or workmanship in regard to the 100 amp service and the installation is not in violation of the Ontario Building Code nor has it resulted in the home being unfit for habitation.
8. There is water damage that has manifested itself by bubbling along the mitre joint in the kitchen counter top. The damage occurred subsequent to the Applicants' occupation of the home and is consistent with improper maintenance by the Applicants.
9. There has been no failure by Tartan to construct and install the kitchen counter top in a workmanlike manner. It is free from defects in material and was not constructed in violation of the Ontario Building Code.

THE LAW:

Section 14.(3)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") states as follows:

14. (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,
 - (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

Section 13.(1)(a) of the Act states as follows:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

Section 13.(2)(f) of the Act states as follows:

Exclusions

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

(f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;

REASONS FOR DECISION:

There are two issues for consideration in this matter.

The first issue relates to the 100 amp electrical service installed by Tartan in the home.

There is no dispute that the Applicants and Tartan did enter into a written Agreement of Purchase and Sale in terms whereof Tartan was to construct a residence for the Applicants which included a 100 amp electrical service. There is also no dispute that subsequent to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale the Applicants and Tartan amended that agreement insofar as the supply and installation of the 100 amp service was concerned and they agreed in writing dated May 3, 2000 that at a cost to the Applicants of $435.00, which they paid, Tartan would supply and install an upgraded 200 amp service. There is further no dispute that the amending agreement whereby the 200 amp service was to be supplied contained a term and condition that Tartan would have no liability to the Applicants "if for any reason" Tartan did not supply and install the 200 amp service in which event the $435.00 paid for such service would be refunded to the Applicants. It was also not disputed that Tartan did not supply and install the 200 amp service and that it refunded the $435.00 to the Applicants. That the Applicants accepted the refund, albeit possibly in error, does not affect the legal consequences of the fact that they did accept a full refund from Tartan. The Applicants have made no effort to refund the $435.00 to Tartan, which in and of itself serves to confirm acceptance of Tartan's refund of the $435.00 in terms of the conditions attached to the May 3, 2000 amending agreement.

The Tribunal finds quite apart from there being no breach of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale by Tartan, that the Applicants have not met the onus of proof that the 100 amp service is in any way defective or that it constitutes a defect in terms of Section 13.(1) of the Act. The 100 amp service has not been shown by the Applicants to be inadequate or defective. The possibility that a basement apartment may be incorporated in the home at some future time and that a pool may be added to the home is mere speculation. Even if such additions are made in the future there is no evidence to indicate that a 200 amp service is necessary or required.

The present 100 amp service was installed by a qualified electrician and was inspected by the City of Nepean prior to an occupation permit being issued. In fact, the Applicants did not contend or complain the 100 amp service was defective.

Accordingly, on the basis of the foregoing the Tribunal dismisses the Applicants' first claim.

Insofar as the second issue is concerned there is no doubt, and the Tribunal finds, that the mitre joint on the kitchen counter top shows signs of bubbling over a length of some 6". The Tribunal also finds that this bubbling was not present when the Applicants took possession and occupation of the home on December 15, 2000 and was verbally brought to the notice of Tartan for the first time some three to four months after possession and occupation pursuant to which and Tartan caused Canac Kitchens to inspect the mitre joint in October of 2001.

The Applicants, upon whom the onus rests, did not call any evidence whatsoever in regard to the cause of the bubbling. They brought no evidence to counter the evidence of Rochon, which the Tribunal accepts.

The only evidence place before the Tribunal was the testimony of Rochon who clearly has had considerable experience in the building industry generally. His uncontraverted evidence was that the bubbling was caused by water having penetrated the mitre joint. He testified that, other than a granite like top, there is no counter top made of wood composite material, such as the one installed in the Applicants' home, that is completely watertight. Leaving pooled water on the top of a mitre joint or even a wet cloth would cause water to penetrate the counter top and cause it to be damaged. The bubbling observed along the mitre joint is due to water damage caused after the Applicants took occupation of the home.

Normal and proper maintenance would have prevented water accumulating over the mitre joint and causing damage. The Applicants had a clear duty to properly maintain their property and ensure that accumulating water did not cause damage. This the Applicants failed to do and they are the authors of their own misfortune. The damages resulting from the improper maintenance of the counter top are excluded from warranty pursuant to section 13.(2)(f) of the Act.

The Applicants have brought no evidence to show that the counter top was constructed in an unworkmanlike manner and is not free from defects in material. Nor have they shown that the home is not fit for habitation or that the kitchen counter top was constructed in contravention of the Ontario Building Code.

Accordingly, the Applicants have not discharged the onus of proof as to this second issue and their second claim is dismissed.

ORDER:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 16.(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow both claims of the Applicants.

TORONTO INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY INC.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PRIVATE CAREER COLLEGES UNDER THE PRIVATE CAREER COLLEGES ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: CARL DOMBEK, Chair, Presiding

APPEARANCES:

XIAOJUN MA, Counsel representing the Applicant
ANITA L. LYON, Counsel representing the Superintendent of Private Career Colleges

DATES OF

HEARING: December 17, 18, 19 & 20, 2002

Toronto

DECISION

These are the reasons for the oral decision and Order which was given at the conclusion of the hearing on December 20, 2002.

The Toronto Institute of Technology Inc (the "Institute") is not a private career college as defined under the Private Career Colleges Act (the "Act"). However, it applied for registration under the Act's predecessor statute which was entitled the Private Vocational Schools Act in October of 2001. Supporting material was submitted on May 27, 2002. On August 22, 2002, Anchuan Jiang, the sole owner and President of the Applicant, revised the application particularly with respect to the location of the school and the programmes to be offered. The Superintendent refused to register the Applicant and gave his reasons, addressed to Mr. Jiang, as follows:

It is the opinion of the Superintendent of Private Career Colleges that Toronto Institute of Technology is not entitled to registration because the past conduct of Toronto Institute of Technology and yourself as director, afford reasonable grounds for the belief that the school will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, and because the Toronto Institute of Technology is carrying on activities that are in contravention of the Act and regulations.

The Superintendent relied on the following facts in reaching this decision:

- that since October 2001, the Toronto Institute of Technology, with the knowledge of yourself as the director and chief operating officer, offered programs, or held itself out as offering programs at 1220 Sheppard Avenue East, Toronto, that would require registration under the Act, when the school was not registered. Such programs also were offered or were held out as being offered at 4580 Dufferin Street, Toronto in June and July 2002. This was in contravention of the Act.
 - that over the period from March 2002 to the present, the Superintendent has received complaints from students or potential students that Toronto Institute of Technology, through its staff or officers, portrayed itself as a registered private vocational school (now known as private career colleges) when it had never been registered under the Act;
 - that Toronto Institute of Technology's advertisements in the Chinese-language newspaper Sing Tao Daily News, which ran in March 2002, included untrue and/or misleading statements regarding matters such as: the authorization of the Toronto Institute of Technology and programs offered by the school, by the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities; the existence of an application for government authorization to offer degree programs; formal arrangements or agreements with universities for the recognition or transfer of credits from the Toronto Institute of Technology; and the facilitation of required immigration visas or study permits.
 - that Toronto Institute of Technology produced, distributed or made available to members of the public, a colour brochure entitled Cultivate Enquiring Minds and Inspire Innovative Ideas, that contained similar, untruthful or misleading statements regarding government authorization or approval of the school and its programs.
 - that the advertisements and brochure, and statements to members of the public from staff or officers of Toronto Institute of Technology, were misleading or tended to be misleading to students, potential students and members of the public by both affirmative statements or omissions by leading such individuals to believe that:
 - the Toronto Institute of Technology was an institution endorsed or approved by the provincial and federal government and leading academic bodies; and
 - a student attending the Toronto Institute of Technology would be able to enrol (sic) in vocational or career programs that were authorized or were about to be authorized by the Ontario government and recognized by other government bodies, and that could culminate in degrees based on arrangements with leading universities.
- (emphasis from original)

At the commencement of her opening statement Counsel for the Applicant, Ms Ma, admitted that the above reasons, which concerned the misleading advertisements and the brochure, were accurate. However, her defence was "what was advertised was not taught".

Mr. Jaing in his testimony also agreed that the advertisements and brochure were inaccurate and misleading. However, his explanation was that once he was apprised of the nature of these documents, he did not offer them for distribution and he actually changed the wording in the advertisements. With these admissions the Superintendent proved his case, since under section 5(1)(c)(ii) of the Act it is "the past conduct of a corporation's officers or directors which gives the Superintendent reasonable grounds to believe that the private career college will not be operated in accordance with law, integrity and honesty (emphasis added).

Despite the above, which is sufficient to uphold the Superintendent's decision, the Tribunal also found that Mr. Jaing:

1. entered into an agreement with an organisation called the Canadian Institute of Information Technology to use its licence for the business of the Institute. This arrangement was illegal under the Act and its Regulations;
2. was willfully blind to the daily operations of his business, insofar as he did not proof read the content of the advertisements or brochure;
3. continues to operate his school by offering courses which require the approval and registration of the Superintendent;
4. continued to make offers to foreign students to participate in programmes that offered courses which required the approval and registration of the Superintendent at least until August 9, 2002 despite warnings from an official from the Department of Immigration and Citizenship not to do so;
5. agreed that he was a participant in a scheme to circumvent the currency laws of China;
6. despite all official warnings, did not know whether the misleading brochures was still being distributed;
7. did not proofread the content of the misleading brochure for its accuracy but was only concerned about the quality of the print;
8. continues to blame employees, former employees, consultants and agents for the untrue and misleading text in his advertisements and brochure even though he was the sole owner and Director of the Institute;
9. refused to answer questions which were appropriately asked of him in cross-examination regarding evidence that he testified to in examination in chief; and
10. during his entire testimony was very confusing about dates of events, was evasive, would not answer the questions that were asked, was argumentative and generally was not a credible witness.

The leading decision, which is binding on this tribunal, is Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicles and Salesmen), [1983] O.J.No.1017. This case dealt with the interpretation of legislation which was identical to the present Act. In the Brenner decision, Southey J. stated that:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty."

That decision went on to state, in referring the matter back to the Tribunal for a rehearing, that:

"The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant for its reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal."

Accordingly, it is the Superintendent's belief that is an issue in these proceedings, and not the belief of this Tribunal. Only if the Tribunal believes that the Superintendent was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, should this Tribunal refuse to direct the Superintendent to carry out his proposal.

Based on the admissions made by the Applicant, and the additional findings of this Tribunal, the evidence was overwhelmingly in favour of the Superintendent coming to the decision that caused him to refuse to register the Applicant. However, this does not conclude the matter. The Tribunal is concerned about the protection of the consumer, i.e. the students who may be attending the Institute.

Consequently, the Tribunal orders that the Superintendent take some additional remedial steps to protect the students and to notify them of the non-registration of the Institute. Furthermore, based on the past and continuing conduct of the Applicant, the Tribunal agrees with Counsel for the Superintendent that additional conditions should be placed on any future registration of the Applicant. These conditions, which were submitted by the Superintendent, are attached as Appendix "A" to the order that was issued at the conclusion of the hearing. As stated therein, these terms and conditions may be modified or relaxed depending on the circumstances existing at the time of any future application.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KYLE BIEL
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,
unrepresented

DATES OF HEARING: October 30, 2002 and November 29, 2002

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

This Appeal was initially opened on October 30, 2002. At the outset, the Applicant advised the Tribunal that additional medical reports that she had forwarded to the Ministry early in October 2002, were not included in the file. These reports apparently contained information requested by the Ministry in a letter dated July 13, 2001. Since this information would be essential to the Hearing, the Tribunal and both parties agreed to an adjournment until November 29, 2002, to allow time for the Respondent to try and locate these reports.

The Applicant was also asked to request her doctors to provide duplicate reports, in case the originals were not located.

Unfortunately the reports were not located in either the Ministry of Transportation or the Tribunal files and the Applicant said she had been too sick to obtain the duplicates.

EXHIBITS:

- 1) Notice of Suspension of Driver's Licence from The Ministry of Transportation dated February 4, 2000.
- 2) Notice of Appeal from the Applicant received at the Tribunal October 4, 2002.
- 3) File Summary received from the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 60 year old female, had her driver's licence suspended by the Ministry of Transportation on February 4, 2000, after receiving a medical report on December 9, 1999, from Physician #1, a cardiologist. Physician #1 informed the Ministry that the Applicant suffers from unheralded syncope and her fitness to drive should be evaluated.

The Ministry informed the Applicant in the Suspension letter of February 4, 2000 that her case would be reconsidered upon receipt of satisfactory detailed reports from neurology and cardiology investigations, including results of ECG, Holter Monitor, EEG, MRI and CT scan.

The Applicant was investigated by Physician #2, a neurologist, who reported to the Ministry on August 30, 2000 that she had not experienced any more blackouts and had curtailed her drinking. However, her liver function tests were elevated and she had a toxic amount of alcohol in her blood on her previous visit.

The Ministry then advised the Applicant on October 25, 2000 that an assessment was also necessary by a specialist in Addictions Medicine. This request was repeated on February 16, 2001.

The Applicant was examined by Physician #3, an Addictions Specialist, in March, 2001. Physician #3 concluded that she probably is an alcoholic, but did not think she required treatment at the present time. The Applicant told him her laboratory markers were normal, but they had been misplaced at the Ministry of Transportation and were not available. When repeated in May, her GGT was slightly elevated. When the Applicant was asked how long since she had her last drink of alcohol, she said it had been 3 months.

In evidence the Applicant informed the Tribunal the missing reports, that she was asked at the adjournment in October to bring, were from the East General Hospital Emergency. The visit was on March 6, 2001, but she could not recall why she went there. Previously she had simply referred to them as doctors reports. She now says that she sent these reports to the Tribunal, not the Ministry.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar acted in accordance with Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act in suspending the Applicant's driver's licence, after being informed that she was experiencing syncope spells.

From the outset the Ministry outlined a number of steps the Applicant had to take before her licence could be reinstated. The Applicant did see a neurologist and an addiction specialist, but their reports were very sketchy and did not satisfy the MAC's needs. She has not been making regular visits to her family physician and so no one has been monitoring her drinking problem. She does not appear to appreciate or have any insight into the fact that she has an alcohol problem and that is the reason for her licence suspension.

The problem started in December 1999 and since then she has been asked repeatedly by the MAC for proof that she has stopped drinking. She has virtually ignored these requests, except for claims that she had sent in medical reports 2 months ago that have not been located. She also failed to obtain copies of these reports during the adjournment, as requested by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal did not find the Applicant credible for these reasons. In addition there was not enough evidence produced to demonstrate abstinence from alcohol consumption in order to justify reinstatement of the Applicant's driver's licence according to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 13, 2000 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TRIBUNAL: ROSS BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
Solicitor for Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: November 21, 2002

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- 1a) Notice of Suspension of Driver's Licence effective September 9, 2002 issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- 1b) Notice of Downgrading of Class AMB to Class GM dated September 9, 2002.
- 2) Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal October 16, 2002, filed by the Applicant.
- 3) Applicant's Appeal Book received at the Tribunal November 12, 2002.
- 4) Certified Copy of the Applicant's Driver Record from the Ministry of Transportation.
- 5) Applicant's driver's record from the Ministry of Transportation.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 52-year-old self-employed truck driver, suffered a Cerebral Vascular Accident on February 4, 2001. He was taken to the Haliburton Hospital and then transferred to the Toronto Hospital's Western Branch. The attending physician sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation on February 16, 2001 stating that the Applicant had suffered a Right Middle Cerebral Artery Stroke with physically minimal defects, but with higher order problems –cognitive/short term recall /memory.

The Ministry of Transportation notified the Applicant on March 23, 2001 that his driver's licence has been suspended.

The Applicant was treated by Physician #1, a neurologist and Director of the stroke program and a neuropsychologist, Physician #2. Physician #1 informed the Ministry on May 14, 2001, that the Applicant had made a complete recovery in terms of his motor functions and had no field defects or primary sensory deficits. Recommendation was that the Applicant be assessed at a driver-training program.

The Ministry responded, requesting an up-to-date neurologist's assessment confirming no residual visual defects and 120-degrees of uninterrupted field of vision. The Applicant had the visual examinations completed and was referred to another neurologist, Physician #3. Physician #3 did not find any major defect, such as cognitive function, visual fields, and visual attention on both sides, motor or sensory skill loss that would prevent him from operating a motor vehicle. He also suggested the Applicant have an assessment at a driver improvement centre. An EEG on June 8, 2001, disclosed persistent Delta activity over the right hemisphere, indicating underlying structural lesion, consistent with a right cerebral infarct.

The Applicant completed an assessment at the "Skill Builders Rehabilitation Centre" on July 30, 2001 and the instructor recommended his driving privileges be reinstated.

Unfortunately the Applicant suffered a tonic clonic seizure, while at home on August 14, 2001 and a second one in the ambulance, before he was even aware that his licence had been reinstated.

The Applicant's licence was again suspended on September 2, 2001

Physician #3 examined the Applicant on February 5, 2002 and ordered a CT scan, an MRI and an EEG. The CT scan disclosed the previous cerebral infarction and the EEG again demonstrated Delta activity over the right side, but no seizure activity. The rest of the examination was normal. Treatment was Dilantin 450 mg daily with serum levels every 3 months. Physician #3 believed the seizure was a result of the previous stroke.

The Ministry notified the Applicant on May 22, 2002 that his Class ABM licence was being changed to a Class GM and if he wished to regain his Class ABM licence he must apply for a waiver of the medical standards.

Physician #4, a consultant in Neurology and Electrodiagnosis, examined the Applicant and sent a medical report and medical waiver to the Ministry on June 21, 2002. Physician #4 stated that the Applicant had recovered completely from his stroke and was under good control on Dilantin. He said it was reasonable for the Ministry to allow the Applicant to regain his Class A licence.

The MAC responded on September 9, 2002, stating that the cerebral infarct significantly lowers his seizure threshold and he does not meet requirements for waiver consideration. The MAC demanded strict adherence to the CMA guidelines section 5.4.2 and the National Safety

Code 6.3, which the Applicant needs to be seizure free while being off medication for 5 years or seizure free for 10 years while being on/off medication.

Physician #4 did a follow up neurological examination and completed a Medical Report for the Ministry on September 25, 2002. Physician #4 again stated the Applicant was doing very well from a neurological point of view and had no recurrence of his seizure in August 2001. An EEG was reported normal and his Dilantin was at a therapeutic level, indicating compliance. He enclosed a second medical waiver to assist in the Applicant's appeal.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar acted appropriately under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act in suspending the Applicant's driver's licence, when informed that the Applicant had suffered a stroke on February 4, 2001. The licence was reinstated August 20, 2001, but suspended again on September 2, 2001 after the Applicant was reported to have had a seizure on August 14, 2001.

The Applicant has been examined by four neurologists who have stated he has completely recovered from the stroke and has not suffered any residual effects. He had one seizure in August 2001 and no recurrence in the past 15 months. His EEG's had previously shown Delta activity over the cerebral infarct, but his latest EEG, in September, was normal.

Physician #4, his present neurologist, has submitted 2 Medical Waivers, as requested by the MAC. The MAC, in a September 9, 2002 Case Study, reasons for denying Physician #4's waiver, refers to CMA's "Determining Medical Fitness to Drive" section 5.4.2. This particular section is titled "After a diagnosis of epilepsy".

In the evidence presented, there is no mention of epilepsy or a diagnosis of epilepsy. The Applicant suffered a single seizure, which according to two neurologists was a result of his previous stroke. No evidence of seizure activity was demonstrated in any of the EEG's, although there was evidence of Delta activity in the area of the cerebral infarct. The most recent EEG in September 2002 was reported normal.

The CMA guidelines for professional drivers, Section 5.4.1, which covers driver's with a single unprovoked seizure, states:

- not drive for at least 3 months,
- get neurological assessment, including EEG and CT scan
- if no epilepsy diagnosis, resume professional driving if seizure-free for 12 months.

The National Code for Motor Carriers, under Solitary Seizures Section 6.3.2, states:

The individual who has suffered a single unprovoked seizure should not be considered for any class of motor vehicle until a detailed neurological assessment and EEG have been performed and are satisfactory.

The individual may be considered for a classified (1-4) licence after 12 months, if the

EEG is normal and there has been no recurrence of seizure.

The Applicant has fulfilled all of these requirements.

The Tribunal did not find evidence to justify further suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. He had been evaluated by 4 neurologists and a certified occupational therapist and all recommended reinstatement of his licence.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 23, 2001 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA

Applicant,

DATE OF
HEARING: December 3, 2002

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 34 year old, married mother of two who suffers from Cerebral Palsy resulting in significant motor dysfunction of right upper and lower limbs. (Exhibit 2). Because of the increasing need for transportation for her growing family and her husband's work schedule (frequently working weekends) the applicant applied for a class G drivers licence in January 2002.

The applicant successfully completed the written part of the test and was advised to contact the "Driver Assessment Program" at the Name Continuing Care Centre in City, Ontario re the installation of 'adaptive driving equipment' to her car. The conclusion of the Driver Assessment Program was that the applicant required a left foot accelerator and a steering wheel spinner knob plus instruction in their use.

Following six lessons, using the modifications recommended, it was the opinion of the occupational therapist (O.T.) that the applicant should not be approved for a class G drivers licence (exhibit 3). The applicant was informed of this decision.

After some discussion with the O.T.'s superior it was agreed that the applicant should receive a further 6 lessons. The same driving instructor gave the subsequent series of lessons, the original O.T. was present for the first lesson and by happenstance a second O.T. was present for the final lesson. The final assessment noted that the applicant had made little progress despite 12 lessons and that the type or quality of the applicant's disability was such that it was unlikely to improve with time, experience or further lessons. It was the consensus of the driving instructor and the two O.T.s that the applicant should not be granted a drivers licence. The applicant was informed of this decision and given the name and phone number of two other Driver Assessment Programs should she want to seek a second opinion (exhibit 3). These programs were located in Toronto and Ottawa, and the only programs in the opinion of the O.T. competent to fairly assess the applicant's particular disability. This opportunity was declined firstly out of consideration of costs (the applicant has already spent $600.00 on driving lesson plus other expenses) and secondly both the applicant and her husband are confident of the applicant's ability to drive carefully and safely. As a result the applicant did not think a second opinion necessary. The applicant is a high school graduate and although she has not worked outside her home has a number of post secondary community college level credits. The applicant is fully active around the house requiring only minimal assistance in certain areas (exhibit 4).

As a result of the Driver Assessment Program's decision and the opinion of the applicant that the assessment was "unjust and inaccurate" an appeal was filed (exhibit 1). With the Appeal a "Chronology Of Events" was submitted in which it is suggested that the applicant was prejudiced against by her assessors (exhibit 5).

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry has tabled a list of the applicant's driver deficiencies noted by the three assessors, driver instructor and two O.T.s. Of particular importance is the observation of the O.T. that at times of momentary stress, excitement or confusion the applicant's affected (right) side becomes dominant and the applicant effectively loses control of the steering wheel and/or foot peddle. As well, this type of disability is permanent and not likely to improve over time no matter what further efforts are made. The Ministry notes that the applicant's purpose in obtaining a drivers license is to transport her children to and from their activities and that the very presence of small children in the car increases the frequency of moments of stress, confusion and excitement, The Ministry further notes that although the applicant intends to drive only in quiet areas at quiet times, realistically this is impossible to control and the applicant will invariably, from time to time, find herself in more stressful and demanding traffic situations.

The applicant bases her appeal on her demonstrated ability to function as a student, mother and housekeeper and on her own confidence that she can drive carefully and safely. The applicant's second argument is that some kind of conspiracy, (office politics), was formed against her by the driver instructor and the two O.T.s. and that the two lessons with the O.T.s in attendance were deliberately booked during the busiest part of the day (12 noon) and conducted in the busiest part of town. The Tribunal finds no reason for, nor evidence of, such a conspiracy and notes that driver assessments are routinely conducted in all levels of traffic activity, compatible with the safety of the applicant, instructor and the public.

Although the Tribunal is sympathetic to the first of the applicant's two arguments, it finds neither argument compelling enough to reverse the opinion of the Driver Assessment Program and subsequent decision of the Ministry. The disability as described clearly falls within Regulation 340/94, Section 14, (a) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated November 1, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: ELIZABETH SPROULE, presiding member

APPEARANCES: LYNDA DUNBAR, Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (by written submission only)

PETER BULK, Agent for Applicant
(by written submission only)

DATE OF HEARING: December 4, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 6, 2002 Written

REASONS FOR DECISION

A written hearing was held on December 4, 2002, at Waterloo, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8, as amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	597370 Ontario Ltd. o/a Peter Bulk Greenhouse Ltd. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1999 Ford CTV, Plate # FX 2359 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 7, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and further on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act. The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 4, 2002 and proceeded as a written hearing.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal read the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal (Exhibit 1) states:

Reasons for appeal:

1. I am the owner of the impounded vehicle (not the driver.) When the driver was hired 3 years ago, we checked his licence upon hiring and he was driving every day in at work with his own vehicle up to the day of impoundment.
2. I am a rosegrower. This is the truck that we have to use to ship the flowers to the customers every day. I am just a farmer and the cost is also a hardship.

written hearing. I request a written hearing because I cannot take time off work to go to the hearing in person

In a letter dated and received November 25, 2002, (Exhibit 4), in reply to the submissions of the Registrar the Applicant further states:

With reference to the submissions of the Registrar dated November 22nd, 2002. I would like to draw you attention to Part IV - argument #10. page 7. which states that I have (5) five alternative vehicles. First of all, two of the five vehicles do not belong to me; they belong to somebody else P.J. Bulk of Grimsby. Second, Ford year 87, has not been road-worthy since the summer and I cannot use that truck anymore. The Ford 98 is a passenger vehicle and cannot be used for shipping farm product. I am already using the Ford van 2002, but since it was designed only to be a back-up vehicle on the occasion of an extra large load, it is much too small to be the main shipping vehicle. Currently I am making 2 to 3 trips with the van to deliver roses instead of one trip we used to do with the Ford 99. Often the roses arrive now very late at the wholesalers. Please, could you release the impounded vehicle a.s.a.p. It would be greatly appreciated since our Christmas crop is coming up soon and we need the extra room in the Ford 99.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar (Exhibit 3) are as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by John Douglas Mann;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until May 9, 2003.
5. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating the registration of other vehicles in the name of the Applicant.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

To succeed in this appeal, the Applicant must establish either that due diligence was exercised in determining that Mr. Mann's driver's licence was not under suspension on October 29, 2002, or that the impoundment order will result in exceptional hardship.

With respect to the issue of due diligence, the only inquiry the Applicant made in this regard was three years ago, at the outset of Mr. Mann's employment. The Tribunal finds that one inquiry in three years does not amount to what can be termed due diligence.

As to exceptional hardship there is very specific criteria set out in section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, that must be met. The Applicant submits that the impounded vehicle is needed for the delivery of product to customers daily and that "the cost is also a hardship". The Tribunal understands that the loss of the use of this vehicle has caused inconvenience and possibly some economic loss to the Applicant. Inconvenience, however, is not a consideration in determining "exceptional hardship".

For financial or economic loss to be considered the Applicant must demonstrate that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and that the financial or economic loss will be immediate, significant and lasting. It is the Applicant's evidence that it does have at least one other vehicle suitable for the purpose needed, although it is smaller than the impounded vehicle and less efficient and convenient. The Applicant provided no evidence that any resulting financial or economic loss will be immediate, significant and lasting. After considering the evidence and the criteria set out in section 22(1) of the Regulation the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

APPEARANCES: LYNDA DUNBAR
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

LENA LAZAROV, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: December 4, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 6, 2002 St. Catharines

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 4, 2002, at St. Catharines, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Lena Lazarov (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1989 Chevrolet Celebrity, plate AKHS 205 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 15, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 4, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing. The Applicant stated that she needs her car now; that it is humiliating to have to ask people for the use of their car and then explain why she is without the use of hers.

Ms. Dunbar stated that the Impoundment order should stand .

Both parties stated that it was not their intention to call witnesses.

There were no preliminary matters therefore the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

My vehicle was recently impounded due to an unlicensed driver driving my vehicle. I am asking that the Licence Suspension Appeal Board consider the hardship I am experiencing due to not having a vehicle to continue with my present employment. I'm employed as a crisis counselor with Women's Place of south Niagara Inc. My hours have recently been reduced to 26.5 hours a week from 40 hours a week. Any additional hours will be on an on call basis. I also am employed in corrections on an on call basis. Both my places of employment are a half hour drive from my residence.

I also own a GMC 1984 truck that is in need of repair due to an accident 1.5 years ago due to the fault of someone else. I am unable to repair this vehicle because of financial restraints.

I have been driving for over 20 years and have received one traffic violation for speeding. This matter has caused my great personal stress that has impacted both my work performance and my personal life. Without a vehicle I am at risk of loosing my one job which is on call only and therefore I will also suffer financially.

In addition, I am having difficulties meeting my rent, school loan, utilities, and additional bills with my hours being reduced as of this week.

Through my employment in the correction field I understand and have respect for the law. I can promise you, will not here from me again.

I am requesting that due to the hardship of not having a vehicle that my car be released to me before the standard 45 days.

I would like to thank you for your time and consideration to my case. Should you require any further information please do not hesitate to contact me.

(sic)

The Applicant stated under oath, that she knew that the person to whom she gave her car keys did not have a licence but she had been attending a night out with the girls. She met up with him later that night, and he told her that she had better not drive, that he would. The Applicant stated that she didn't think anything about it at the time.

The Applicant entered into evidence (Exhibit 4) a letter dated 12 03 02, signed by John Falusi, wherein he stated the following:

Due to the situation that Lena is in i John Falusi, have lent my car to her when needed to get back and forth to work. I have been driving my truck which is now in storage for the winter, but seeing how upset and stressed out she has been over the whole situation ; was glad i could do this for her P.S. if this letter helps in any way i am pleased to do so.

(sic)

Also entered into evidence by the Applicant (Exhibit 6) is a letter dated December 3/02 signed by Carol Weir. She stated the following:

This letter is to confirm that Lena Lazarov has suffered many hardships while her car has been impounded. Lena has had to rely on friends including myself for rides to complete her daily errands. Lena works in Niagara Falls and it was very difficult for her to get back and forth to work. In addition to a lack of transportation, Lena also suffered a great deal of emotional stress due to her car being impounded . On several occasions while speaking to Lena, she was crying and very upset about how she didn't have the money to pay the impound charges for her car. Lena said she would have to borrow the money to pay these charges and this is something Lena has said will create even more of a financial hardship for her. I hope this letter helps to clarify the hardships Lena has experienced while her car has been impounded.

The Applicant testified that in addition to the help her friends have given her that she has had to travel by taxi on some occasions.

She also testified that her work hours had been cut back prior to the impoundment. With respect to her second job which is an "on call" basis, she testified that she was called once, but she was not at home at the time to take the call. She said that she really needs to find additional employment but that if she secures another job, she will have to have a car.

The Applicant also stated that she lives alone with her cat. She does not have a health problem which would require transportation for medical treatment . She also stated that she does not require the vehicle for educational purposes.

Ms. Dunbar, on behalf of the Registrar, referred to Registrar's Exhibits 2 and 3 regarding the impoundment of the Applicant's vehicle and the driving record of the person whom the Applicant gave her keys to drive her vehicle for her.

The Tribunal finds that the oral evidence given by the Applicant was although quite emotional at times, was open and credible. Having said that however, it is the opinion of the Tribunal that she has not met the standard set out in Section 50.2(3)(d) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Applicant has not demonstrated that the Order will result in extreme hardship.

She stated that she has had access to other vehicles and taxis. She further stated that she feels ashamed when she has to explain her circumstances to others. The Applicant admitted that she does not require the car for medical treatments for herself, and that no one is depended upon her for transportation. She stated that she does not require the vehicle in order to attend an educational facility.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant who admitted that she made an error in judgement when she knowingly permitted a driver whose licence is under suspension to drive her vehicle.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Michael S. Lambert;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving While Disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until May 4, 2004.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has not met the test of exceptional hardship set out in s. 22(3) of Regulation 574 for the following reason. According to the Applicant's evidence, due to the kindness of John Falusi and other friends, she has had access to another motor vehicle. Therefore, an alternative to the impounded vehicle is available and the loss is not lasting.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

LITIGE

Compte tenu du fait que le présent appel relève de l'alinéa 50.1 (2)(b) du Code de la route et, de ce fait, du Tribunal, voici la question à résoudre: est-ce que le requérant a omis ou refusé de se conformer à un ordre de fournir un échantillon d'haleine/de sang parce qu'il en était incapable pour des raisons médicales?

LA LOI

Les dispositions des paragraphes 50.1 (1) et (2) du Code de la route, qui régissent la suspension administrative de permis de conduire, prévoient ce qui suit:

50.1 (1) La personne dont le permis de conduire est suspendu en vertu de l'article 48.3 peut interjeter appel de la suspension devant le Tribunal.

(2) Les seuls motifs pour lesquels une personne peut interjeter appel en vertu du paragraphe (1) et les seuls motifs pour lesquels le Tribunal peut ordonner l'annulation de la suspension sont les suivants :

- a) soit la personne dont le permis a été suspendu n'est pas la même que celle à qui a été donné un ordre de fournir un échantillon d'haleine ou de sang, ou sur qui un tel échantillon a été prélevé, selon le cas, en vertu des dispositions du Code criminel (Canada) visées au paragraphe 48.3 (3) ou conformément à celles-ci;
- b) soit la personne ne s'est pas conformée à un ordre donné en vertu de l'article 254 du Code criminel (Canada) de fournir un échantillon d'haleine ou de sang, ou a refusé de le faire, pour des raisons médicales.

Le Code de la route énonce ce qui suit au paragraphe 50.1 (4):

Le Tribunal peut confirmer la suspension ou ordonner son annulation.

Les paragraphes 15 (1), (2) et (3) du règlement 574 (modifié) du Code de la route, exigent qu'un rapport médical contienne :

- 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Board from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Enfin, l'article 13 du règlement 574 (modifié) prévoit ce qui suit :

A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

LES FAITS

Trois (3) agents de la sûreté d'Ottawa ont témoigné devant le tribunal à l'effet que le requérant a omis de fournir un échantillon de son haleine lorsqu'il a été sommé de le faire. Chacun des agents a témoigné à l'effet que le requérant soufflait de sorte à faire passer l'haleine outre l'instrument fourni de sorte qu'un montant d'haleine insuffisant était fourni et ne fournissait pas un échantillon capable d'être analysé.

Le requérant n'a pas contre interrogé les agents de police au sujet de leurs témoignages malgré l'opportunité qu'il avait de le faire, indiquant plutôt qu'il allait simplement témoigner de sa position lui-même.

Lorsqu'il témoigna, le requérant souleva deux motifs pour appuyer sa demande:

1. Il souffre de haute pression et doit ingérer des médicaments pour contrôler ses malaises. Lorsqu'il tentait de souffler pour fournir un échantillon de son haleine il devenait étourdi et perdait son dentier ce qui l'empêchait de produire la quantité d'échantillon nécessaire aux fins d'analyse.
2. Lorsqu'il a été sommé par les policiers à l'origine de son interpellation par les agents de police il était dans sa résidence ordinaire (un camion remorque comportant un lit et un endroit pour dormir) même si à l'instant où il fut arrêté il était au volant du véhicule. Il explique que le véhicule n'était pas en marche par lui, comme chauffeur puisqu'il était assoupi et que les clefs du véhicule étaient dans sa poche, mais plutôt en marche automatique pour réchauffement de l'intérieur de l'habitacle où il dormait.

APPLICATION DE LA LOI AUX FAITS

L'article 50(1)(2)(b) du code de la route de l'Ontario stipule qu'une personne qui a omis ou refuse de fournir un échantillon de son haleine lorsque sommé de le faire en vertu de l'article 254 du code criminel du Canada peut présenter une demande, en appel, de la suspension de conduire un véhicule moteur en invoquant comme motif pour son omission ou son refus: une inhabilité fondée sur une raison médicale.

Le requérant n'a pas demandé à son médecin de remplir la page 2 (l'endos) de son avis d'appel. Il prétendait qu'il ne croyait pas que le rapport de son médecin pouvait être nécessaire afin de fournir une explication de son inhabilité à fournir un échantillon de son haleine, c'est-à-dire de la raison médicale. Le requérant prétend que le simple fait de présenter une copie de l'ordonnance médicale de ses médicaments suffirait, ce qui n'est pas le cas. Le requérant a le fardeau de la preuve et doit présenter des preuves suffisantes pour convaincre le tribunal. La preuve soumise, par lui, n'est nettement pas suffisante pour satisfaire le tribunal du bien-fondé de sa requête en appel.

La soumission du requérant lorsqu'il invoque l'argument à l'effet que son camion est son domicile est un argument qui n'est pas du ressort de ce tribunal mais plutôt de la cour criminelle ou il pourra la présenter s'il le veut.

DÉCISION

Après étude de la demande du requérant en appel d'une ordonnance de suspension (administrative) de son permis de conduire, daté le 11 octobre 2002 par le registrateur de véhicules moteurs en vertu de l'article 48.3 du code de la route de l'Ontario ("HTA") et après avoir considéré toutes les preuves présentées devant ce tribunal ainsi que les représentations du registrateur et du requérant;

En vertu de l'autorité conférée au tribunal par l'article 50.1(4) du HTA, ce tribunal confirme la suspension.

TRANSPORTACTION LEASE SYSTEMS INC.

Appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap.H.8 as amended (the "Act"), from the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE
ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: ADELAIDE PINDER & KIM BEINTEMA
Representatives for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

BEVERLY SALMON, Agent representing the Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: December 5, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 12, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 5, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Transportation Lease Systems Inc. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1990, Mercedes 500 SL, Plate No. ANCT 863 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 18, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 5, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

The vehicle that is impounded is a vehicle owned by Transportation and leased by Mr. Allan Mohammed. Mr. Allan Mohammed breached his lease obligations (Clause 6(a)) by allowing the vehicle to be driven by Mr. Kenneth Mohammed who did not hold a valid driver's license.

Transportation undertakes to not return this vehicle to the Lessee and terminate the lease upon receipt of the vehicle from impound. Not returning the vehicle to Transportation will cause Transportation undue financial loss.

The following is a summary of Ms. Salmon's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a business which operates coast-to-coast in the vehicle leasing business. It operates on long-term lease contracts (2-4 year terms) for fleet vehicles, but also has a minimum of 12 month lease agreements for some consumer transactions. Approximately 20,000 vehicles are leased on a long-term basis.

The Applicant is the registered owner of the impounded vehicle, who leased the impounded vehicle to A. Mohammed for a 12-month term. A. Mohammed lent the vehicle to K. Mohammed. K. Mohammed's licence is under suspension until February 21, 2003.

The lease agreement is still in full force and effect. Since the impoundment, the lease agreement has not formally been severed. November's lease payments have cleared A. Mohammed's bank account. December's payment is due to clear any day. Ms. Salmon has attempted to contact A. Mohammed unsuccessfully regarding the impounded vehicle. To date, no formal written correspondence has been forwarded to A. Mohammed.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 4 & 5):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Kenneth Mohammed;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of impaired driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 21, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The lessee paid the November lease payment and there is no evidence regarding the December payment. The lease is currently in good standing.

Even if the December lease payment was dishonoured, the Applicant would still have to establish that the lessee's failure to pay the December lease payment was an exceptional hardship.

The Tribunal as well as the Representatives for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles determined that Ms. Salmon appeared before this Tribunal to obtain information with regard to having the impounded vehicle released to it rather than A. Mohammed. Ms. Salmon is aware that the Applicant will need to mitigate its losses and take alternative actions against A. Mohammed for breach of his lease agreement, but understands that the Applicant will not suffer exceptional hardship regarding this particular impoundment.

Ms. Beintema advised Ms. Salmon that once the Applicant provides documented proof of ownership of the impounded vehicle as well provide evidence that a lien is registered against the impounded vehicle, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles will be satisfied and the Release Order will be granted in the Applicant's name rather than that of A. Mohammed.

The Applicant has failed to establish exceptional hardship.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DECISION
RELEASED: December 12, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 11, 2002, at City, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on December 12, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated November 21, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on November 21, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by Cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

“This is a case of mistaken identity. I am not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken.”

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the Hearing the Representative of the Ministry advised the Tribunal that neither Police Constable summoned to testify was able to attend. The Representative of the Ministry sought to introduce Occurrence Notes from Provincial Constable #1 and a Witness Statement from the Breathalyzer Technician Police Constable #2.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant if he had any objections, and as he did not, both items were entered in evidence.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated September 17, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received November 21, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received December 5, 2002.

- b) Exhibit # 4 Provincial Constable #1's Notes – 4 pages – received December 11, 2002.
- c) Exhibit # 5 Provincial Constable #2's Notes and Witness statement – 5 pages – received December 11, 2002.
- d) Exhibit # 6 Note of Application for Increased Penalty – received December 1, 2002.
- e) Exhibit # 7 Promise to Appear – Received December 11, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(a) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Whether the Applicant whose licence was suspended is the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

As per Notice to the Registrar, and the Notice of Appeal the Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended on "Sept 14 2002".

Applicant's Evidence

On page 1 of the Notice of Appeal the Applicant marked "mistaken identity", as the reason of appeal.

At the Hearing the Applicant testified as to the events leading up to the Applicant being stopped by the police, as well as the circumstances that led to and surrounding the subsequent demand for a breath sample and the breath test session.

The Applicant was asleep in the motor vehicle while his friend, drove home. Before allowing his friend to drive, the Applicant asked to see Mr. Murray's driver's licence, but did not notice that the licence had expired. After being stopped by the police, his friend told the Applicant that his licence was in fact not valid. At this point, the Applicant and his friend changed places, so that the Applicant was in the driver's seat when the officer approached the vehicle.

In cross-examination the Applicant acknowledged signing the Notice to the Registrar, the Notice of Application For Increased Penalty, as well as the Promise to Appear, and consented to the documents being entered in evidence.

The Applicant further testified that he was the occupant of the vehicle, who was arrested by the police, that he is the person from whom a breath sample was demanded and the person charged with failing to provide a breath sample.

His friend was called as a witness by the Applicant. His friend confirmed: that he was driving; that the vehicle had a flat tire which, he fixed; that he changed places with the Applicant when they were stopped by the police, and that since he "...was never out of the car..." he is not aware of what transpired other than the fact that the Applicant was arrested.

In closing the Applicant confirmed that he feels that what has happened is unfair as he was attempting only to do a favor for a friend.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

- 1 Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed November 25, 2002
- 2 Certified Copy of the Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed November 25,

2002

3 Copy of Vehicle Record as of Occurrence date, sealed November 26, 2002

In his notes Provincial Constable #1, of the West Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, notes: "...Applicant's name and address. ..."

P.C. #2 provided a Witness Statement wherein he confirms that he has "...approximately 5 years experience as a police constable combined with the Hamilton Wentworth Regional Police and the Ontario Provincial Police...". P.C. #2 became a qualified Breathalyzer Technician on "...July 18, 2001..." and has since "...conducted over 100 breath tests..."

According to PC #2's statement: " At 0119 hrs, the accused was brought into the breath tech's room. The accused was identified with a valid Ont. DL to be the Applicant's name and address."

At the hearing the Respondent's Representative offered no viva voce evidence, opting to rely on the information provided for the hearing and the Constable's statements introduced at the hearing.

In closing the Respondent Representative clarified the reason for this appeal. Whether or not the Applicant was impaired and whether or not he had proper control of his vehicle at the time is not at issue. The Applicant appealed under Section 50.1 (2) (a), suggesting that he is not one and the same as the person from whom a breath sample was demanded.

The Respondent Representative emphasized that according to the evidence presented there is no doubt that there is in fact no mistaken identity.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the preceding reflects only a summary of the totality of the evidence contained in the documentation presented, all documents were thoroughly reviewed and considered. Statements not directly germane to the issue were not transcribed.

At issue is whether the Applicant is one and the same as the individual from whom a breath sample was demanded as per Section 50.1 (2) (a).

The Tribunal finds that it is evident that the Applicant is the person from whom a breath sample was demanded. This finding is corroborated by the Applicant's own admission that he was the individual sitting behind the wheel when approached by the Provincial Constable, and that he is the individual from whom a breath sample was subsequently demanded. Further the Tribunal's finding is substantiated by the fact that the Applicant admitted to being the individual who signed the Notice to the Registrar, the Notice of Application For Increased Penalty, as well as the Promise to Appear.

Regulation 574 as amended, particularly Section 13, provides that the Appellant has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated September 14, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: December 9, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 12, 2002 Hamilton

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 9, 2002, at Hamilton, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Paulette McInnes (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1993 Honda Civic VCD, plate 429 XEN (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: November 25, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 9, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I hereby appeal the impounding of my vehicle for the following reasons:

- The suspended driver of the vehicle, Jason Modesty (sic), will not be the person suffering the loss as set out in your section 3(d)(ii). The loss will be a person other than the driver of the vehicle, it will be the innocent owner of the vehicle - Paulette McInnes.

- My vehicle was driven by a person unauthorized by myself. My daughter, Ashley McInnes was given permission (by myself) to drive my car on November 16, 2002. When Ashley became unable to drive the car, Jason Modesty, 17 Abigail Street, Brantford, ON offered to drive the car for her. Unknown to Ashley, Jason Modesty did not have a valid driver's license. Jason did not advise Ashley that he did not have a valid driver's license.
- The vehicle was stopped in a random spot check on the license plate on November 16, 2002. The license plate does not match the vehicle type in the Ministry of Transportation database. I purchased this vehicle in July 2002. I changed the ownership over at that time. However, it appears the Ministry's database is not up-to-date. I have been stopped four times in a period of 3 months during random Police spot checks, because the plates do not match the vehicle description. After being stopped the first time, I checked at the Ministry of Transportation office whether my vehicle registration had been completed correctly, I was informed that the registration is correct. I was also informed by Ministry staff that the computer has a back-log of data input/processing because of the strike last year.
- I am employed as a cleaner, I am part of a 9-member crew. It is my responsibility to wash and dry the daily linens needed by the work crew and to bring a fresh supply to the crew each morning. None of the other staff are able/willing to take on the daily task of washing the linens. Without transportation, I can't give the other members the daily linens. The other members of the cleaning crew depend on my delivering of daily linens to enable them to complete their job.
- I am sole support of my household and need my car to go to and from work.
- As well as being employed as a day cleaner, I clean houses in the evenings and on weekends. I would be unable to fulfill this obligation without my car.
- My Mother, who is 78, relies on me solely to get her groceries, take her to pay her bills, drive her to the Doctors and drive her to the cemetery for visits.
- Financially I am unable to rent another vehicle nor take taxi's to and from work
- No family member of friends are available to drive me to and from work. Both my sons work out of town and unable to drive me to and from work, nor take on my Mother's errands.
- I do not live on direct City bus route to take the bus to work, nor are the houses in the evening and weekends on the City bus route.
- If I am unable to go to work, I will lose my job. I do not have money saved to pay my rent. The loss would be immediate and to a person other than the suspended person driving the car.
- I am 56 years of age, unable to find other work that does not require transportation. I am unable to be trained for other type work.

The Applicant's oral testimony expanded on the points made in her written submission. She stated that she did not know Mr. Jason Modessy nor had she ever met him. She stated that her daughter was in control of her car on the evening in question and because her daughter felt too ill to drive that Mr. Modessy would drive her home using her mother's car. The applicant also elaborated on her claim that the Ministry's database is not up to date pointing out that a local newspaper report of the incident in question stated that the reason that the vehicle was stopped was because its plate number did not match the car's description on the police computer system. This database error was substantiated by the Registrar whose representative, Lynda Dunbar, confirmed that the database was still in error as of the date of this hearing. The Applicant also stated that the police officer who stopped Mr. Modessy on the night in question had also stopped the Applicant some few weeks previous for the same reason.

The Applicant also testified as to the nature of her employment and how it depended a great deal on her being punctual and mobile and that her vehicle was used daily to transport items that she could not easily ask others to allow her to transport in a borrowed vehicle. Not being able to deliver these items meant that other workers could not properly perform their duties either in part or on time.

The Applicant further testified that her wages as a cleaner are only slightly above the minimum wage and that she simply cannot afford to rent a vehicle and that paying taxi fares to and from her work locations would cost her as much as half her earnings. The Applicant stated that there was no public transport available to the locations she had to travel to and that transporting her supplies to and from these locations via public transport would be extremely difficult. The Applicant stated that she has two sons with cars but that each worked out of town and they were unable to assist her or lend her a car.

As the sole wage earner of her household that Applicant also testified to the financial impact that the loss of her job would have on herself and her family.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Jason Chauncy Modessy;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving While Disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 21, 2004.

The Respondent read for the record the pertinent sections of the Law dealing with "exceptional hardship" (see below) and pointed out that the Applicant failed to show that there was any threat to and individual's health and/or safety, nor show that there would be any significant or lasting financial losses. The Respondent also stated that the Applicant failed to show that she had exhausted all means to secure alternative transportation.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

Section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act requires an Applicant to show exceptional hardship for an appeal to succeed. The Tribunal is satisfied that this Applicant will suffer exceptional hardship. The loss of her motor vehicle will have a disproportionate impact on her.

Section 22(3)(a), (b), (c) and (d) of Regulation 574, R.R.O.1990, as amended, provides very specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment.

In making its determination the Tribunal considered the application of:

Section 22(3)(a) - no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available. The Tribunal found that the Applicant had made all reasonable efforts to find an alternative to the impounded vehicle but was unsuccessful.

Section 22(3)(b) (c) and (d) - the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting. Since the impoundment of her car the Applicant has been successful in maintaining her usual level of work performance but given the nature of her job the potential for immediate job loss is very real although not explicitly threatened. It is the Tribunal's finding that should the Applicant's job performance suffer due to her lack of adequate transportation that it could very well result in her loss of her job and that the potential for immediate, significant and lasting loss is very real and that with reference to clause (c) the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the vehicle in question and not upon the person whose license was suspended.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE
ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: TERRENCE LORETTE

APPEARANCES: ADELAIDE PINDER
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

FRANCES MACLEAN, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: December 13, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 24, 2002 Oshawa

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 13, 2002, at Oshawa City Hall, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Frances MacLean (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Mercury XR 7 1996, plate ADXJ 684 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 26, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 13, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Reason for Appeal

I work everyday, now that the vehicle has been impounded, I'm forced to take a cab to the GO Bus stop morning and night. It is costing me fifteen dollars a day, which I cannot afford.

The reason I take a cab is because I suffer from Arthritis, and cannot walk any distance without severe pain in my knees.

Type of Hearing

I request an oral (in person) hearing before the Tribunal.

Owners Position

I left my car at home the day in question because of weather conditions and decided to take the bus.

The Applicant added to her written submission (above), testifying that the impoundment of her vehicle was extremely inconvenient and costly. She further stated that she was a very private person and did not know her neighbours well enough to ask them for favours like the borrowing of their car or having them drive her to the Go station. She also stated that she had no friends and family living nearby who could help her out and that there was public transport in her area.

In response to questions from the Tribunal member the Applicant stated that she was aware that her husband was not permitted to drive a car and could not explain why he chose to do so on the day the car was impounded. The Applicant also testified that her Arthritis condition is long standing, aggravated mostly by weather conditions and severe enough to prevent her from walking any distance resulting in her need to take a cab to the Go station stop. The Applicant also stated that she had not missed any time at work since the impoundment but only because she was incurring the cost of the taxi trips.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Bernard C. McLean;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 13, 2003.

The Respondent pointed out that the Applicant did not provide sufficient evidence under the sections of the Act dealing with exceptional hardship to have the impoundment order set aside. The Respondent suggested that there was an obvious alternative to the impounded vehicle, a taxi, and that the Applicant had been successfully getting to and from work for the past several weeks. The Respondent also stated that a $15 a day taxi fare should not be considered an immediate, significant and lasting loss.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

Section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act provides for an appeal on this basis but section 22(3)(a), (b), (c) and (d) provides very specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not meet the test set out in section 22(3) since there clearly is an alternative to the impounded vehicle and the Applicant will not suffer significant financial losses.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: December 12, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 17, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 12, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Brian Clare Mounce (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1988 Ford Taurus, plate 702 YVV (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 28, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 12, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing. Neither party had any submissions to add. The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

On Nov 22/02 I was stopped by Aurora O.P.P. on Hwy 404 on my way home from work (T.T.C.) to Keswick. I explained to officer my licence was suspended June 26/02 and I had appealed conviction through my lawyer David Lakie (905) 898-2686 Newmarket.

I was of the understanding that as of my filing of Appeal I would have the privilege of driving my vehicle until another trial was arranged. I did contact my lawyer re this impoundment notice and he advised me that he did not ask for my licence be reinstated as to very expensive fees to do so. If I had any knowledge that this was the case I certainly would not have used my vehicle under any circumstance and very much regret doing so.

I am employed with the T.T.C. and have been for 23 years in various positions and now working night shift I have a few times missed bus in Keswick to reach Toronto in order to be in time for work and I do admit I have done this on a few occasions not realizing I was doing anything against the law.

I would ask that due to my work hours and my excessive financial hardship currently under bankruptcy that you could understand my position and have a regard for reasonable and lenient consequences in allowing this appeal to have my vehicle removed from impoundment as soon as possible. I will immediately remove plates and park vehicle until such time as my licence could be reinstated.

Thank you for your attention.

The Applicant expanded on his submission to include the information that while the service is limited, there is public transportation to his job in Toronto.

In response to questions by both the Respondent and the Tribunal it was determined that vehicle transport was available to the Applicant through his brother in Newmarket in an emergency or if the regular bus was missed. He also revealed that he had received his bankruptcy discharge in September 2002, which should have left him free of debt. His statement that he was going to remove the plates and store his car conflicts with his intention to let a neighbour in Keswick drive him to the Toronto bus from Newmarket.

The Applicant had no written evidence to support his claim that his lawyer had begun an appeal on his current conviction which he claims is now in process. He was advised that his driving offence of November 10, 2002 must also be dealt with as he was a suspended driver by virtue of his earlier conviction and suspension until June, 2003.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The Respondent had little to add in respect to the Applicant's statements and submission but to emphasize the fact a conviction and suspension was in effect when the Applicant was stopped and a new charge has been laid and must be dealt with in the court.

The Respondent read the terms and conditions in respect to the Act as it defines the Applicant's requirements to support an appeal.

In closing the Respondent asked the Tribunal to confirm the order to impound as no evidence was supplied to support the Applicant's basis for an Appeal as described in 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
