"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,

- (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of his vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship and has caused him difficulty in getting to his job and other family needs. Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant in order to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of their vehicle.

The Tribunal cannot consider any factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment of the vehicle itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all of the criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of these criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored to obtain an alternative to the impounded vehicle.

In this case the Applicant is a suspended driver and an alternative vehicle is of limited or no value until he has regained his licence. Since his appeal of a previous driving charge was denied, a conviction and suspension followed. In addition he now faces new charges for driving while under suspension.

Two alternatives are available to the impounded vehicle. First, the Applicant declared that current bus transportation to his job is a time consuming option which will cause an inconvenience. Second, he states that his brother in Newmarket can drive him if he were to miss the bus. These are nevertheless valid options as defined in Regulation 632/98 section 22(3)(a).

Inasmuch as the evidence present and expanded upon by the Applicant is that he is currently using public transit without any real hardship, no credible evidence to support the Applicant's appeal under 50.2(3)(d) was offered to the Tribunal. The burden to supply evidence to support the Applicant's appeal is that of the Applicant. He has not done so in this case.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

APPEARANCES: LYNDA DUNBAR
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

WILLIAM FRANKISH, Agent for Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: December 16, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 23, 2002 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing by teleconference was held on December 16, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Muskoka Insurance Brokers Ltd. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2002 Chrysler Intrepid, plate no. AEAE 983 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	November 29, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 16, 2002 and proceeded as a teleconference hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Re: Impound Order #2607405 - 2002 Chrysler Intrepid 4DR
Registered Owner - Muskoka Insurance Brokers Ltd.

Dear Sirs/Madam:

I am writing in connection with the above noted automobile. It has come to my attention that this vehicle has been impounded for a period of 45 days under The Highway Traffic Act.

This vehicle is leased to my company, Muskoka Insurance Brokers Ltd. and the principle operator of this vehicle is Shirley MacDonald, who is the office manager here. Recently another of my employee's Ange MacDonald, who is the daughter of Shirley MacDonald, underwent major back surgery at St. Michael's hospital in Toronto, Ontario. Ange was then subsequently released into the care of her mother, Shirley and has been residing at her mother's place since her release from the hospital. On the date in question, November 17th, 2002, Ange suffered a reaction to withdrawal from pain medication and was sick to her stomach. I am told David Stothers who is Ange's boyfriend who offered to pick up the medication was given the car to assist. It is obvious Shirley was under a great deal of stress and simply was not thinking clearly and didn't check to make sure David had a valid drivers license. She was simply thinking of assisting her daughter who was in a great deal of discomfort at the time.

Shirley has always been a responsible person. She is not in the habit of lending her vehicle to others under normal circumstances. I believe that the extenuating circumstances caused unclear thinking. Shirley is still caring for her daughter in her home and has found it even more difficult without transportation. This vehicle is also used in connection with her employment as an Insurance Broker.

I would like to ask at this time that you review all the information enclosed and reconsider the decision to continue to impound the vehicle for the minimum 45 day period.

Yours sincerely,
"W.J. Frankish"
Mr. W.J. Frankish
President

Statement of Shirley MacDonald

My daughter had just been released from hospital in Toronto after a back operation, and was extremely sick all the way back home. Upon arriving home she continued to throw up. My daughter's boyfriend had accompanied us on the trip home, and was present at this time. In the stress of this situation, and without checking to ensure he was licensed I let him take the car to get some medication. My only excuse is that in the stress of the situation, I wasn't thinking clearly. I apologize for my part in this situation.

"Shirley MacDonald"

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by David G. W. Strothers;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle; (Exhibit #2)
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until August 29, 2003.

The evidence filed establishes that David G. W. Strothers drove a motor vehicle, namely a 2002 Chrysler Intrepid, licence plate number AEAE 983, while his driver's licence was under suspension. As a result the motor vehicle was impounded. Shirley MacDonald is the principle operator of the vehicle, which is leased to Muskoka Insurance Brokers Ltd.

Shirley MacDonald asked David G. W. Strothers to pick up some medicine for her daughter. She made no inquiries as to the validity of his driver's licence.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant filed a letter by W. J. Frankish, President of Muskoka Insurance Brokers Ltd. in which he raises the issue of extenuating circumstances. Further, the Applicant argued that the order impounding the motor vehicle will result in great inconvenience. Unfortunately, neither of these submissions meets the tests imposed by the Act.

To succeed in its application to set aside the order to impound under s 50.2(3), the Applicant must first establish that she meets all of the conditions in s. 22(3) of the Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98. Only then can the test in s. 22(2) "exceptional hardship" be considered.

The Applicant has not established that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available as required by s. 22(3)(a) and (4). Nor has she established that the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting as required by s. 22(3)(b).

Even if she met all the conditions in the first test, which is clearly not the case, she does not meet the conditions in the second test set out in 22(2) of the Regulation. Shirley MacDonald's responses to questions indicated that she did not lose her employment or suffer any reduction in her salary. She did say that in her job as office manager she also tried to bring in new clients; at the time of the impoundment there was one prospective client and since then she obtained and lost 2 prospects. She was not reimbursed for $40/week which she incurred in the process.

She continued to be able to get to and from work, and missed no work days.

She stated that she was not taking any education or training. She spoke of "inconvenience" since the automobile would be helpful, especially in the Christmas season. In any case, inconvenience is not a criterion that the Licence Appeal Tribunal may consider.

It is unfortunate that this situation has occurred, but in the circumstances, the Act is very clear and the impoundment must stand.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: December 19, 2002

DECISION
RELEASED: January 7, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 19, 2002, at London, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on December 20, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated November 27, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on November 29, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the Hearing the Representative of the Ministry sought to introduce the videotape of the Applicant's breathalyzer test session as evidence.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant if he had any objections, and as he had none, the videotape was entered as exhibit # 5.

As there was only copy of the videotape available, Mr. Biel, the Respondent's Representative gave the Tribunal an undertaking to forward to the Tribunal, within five business days, a copy of said videotape.

The Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

The Applicant submitted a map indicating the route he took on the night in question, while in transit from his uncle's house to the location where the police approached him. Mr. Biel commented on the relevance of the map, but had no objections to its admission as an exhibit. The Applicant's map was entered as exhibit # 4.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder dated November 13, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – 3 pages – received November 29, 2002.
- c) Exhibit # 4 Map of roads the Applicant used from his uncle's house to his residence – received December 19, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received December 13, 2002.
- b) Exhibit # 5 Video-taped breathalyzer test session – received December 19, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

- (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) “a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver’s licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.”

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

“A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal”.

FACTS:

According to the Notice to the Registrar the Applicant’s Driver’s Licence was suspended November 12th, 2002. (Exhibit # 1)

In his Notice of Appeal the Applicant lists the Effective Date of Suspension as November 13th, 2002. (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of Notice of Appeal was prepared by Physician #1, a physician on duty at a walk-in-clinic, and is dated "27.11.02".

Physician #1 amended the question: "How long has this person been your patient?" by striking out the word "your". In brackets Physician #1 offers the following explanation: "Pt been seen in the walk in clinic. Pt has his own F.C.)

Physician #1 details the Applicant's diagnosis and treatment as follows: "The Applicant was seen by me ...on 24.10.01, 30.10.02 & 13.11.02 for Bronchitis & breathing difficulty ...treated ...Antibiotics (Bioxin) ...on 24.10.02 x 1 wk and 13.11.02 x 2 days ...on 13.11.02 ...given ...nasal spray ...squirt each nostril twice daily if needed ...advised to follow up with his family physician and to omit smoking"

At the hearing, the Applicant offered evidence by describing the events of the evening before the demand for the breath sample.

The Applicant was assisting his uncle strip wallpaper using a mixture of water and vinegar. He believes the fumes caused him to feel unwell. After a while the Applicant had a coughing spell, and his nose began to bleed. As a remedy, since there was no brandy available the Applicant was offered a couple of shots of "CC".

On his return home, the Applicant turned into the wrong driveway. Upon realizing his mistake, the Applicant pulled out and parked his van in the proper driveway. After exiting the van and locking the door, the Applicant was approached by the police, taken to the police station, and subsequently demanded to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant stated that he was given "...fourteen..." opportunities to provide a breath a sample and claims the he did his "...best fourteen times...".

In cross-examination, the Respondent's Representative asked the Applicant to describe to the Tribunal "...the symptoms of the bronchitis..." at the time he was approached by Officer #1. The Applicant stated that he had been coughing on the way but had not coughed in front of the Constables. When the Respondent's Representative suggested the he was "...feeling perfectly fine..." the Applicant responded: "Yes".

The Applicant indicated that he was not experiencing the symptoms of bronchitis, but that the problem was that his "...nose was blocked ...had to breath through ...mouth...".

In response to Mr. Biel's questions the Applicant stressed that he did not recall some of the events immediately preceding the breathalyzer test session. The Applicant remembered being subdued by the officers and having trouble breathing, and confirmed that he "...was screaming..." at the officers: "I can't breathe, I can't breathe".

The Respondent's Representative pursued his line of questioning by asking the Applicant if he had asked the officers for medical assistance. The Applicant acknowledged that no medical assistance was requested, and admitted that he did not visit his family physician after the incident.

The Applicant established that during the visits to the walk-in-clinic, he was examined by Physician #1 and that Physician #1 did not order any chest X-rays nor Pulmonary Function Tests.

With respect to medication, the Applicant verified that no inhaler was prescribed. Physician #1 gave the Applicant a seven-day's supply of Bioxin on the 24th of October, and a further 2 day's supply on October 30th and November 13th. However, the Applicant took only 5 of the 6 pills given to him, on his last visit to Physician #1, on the thirteenth of November.

The Applicant called his uncle, Uncle #1 as a witness. Uncle #1 testified as to the Applicant's state of health while at his house. Uncle #1 recalled noticing that the Applicant was not feeling well, as he was coughing and his nose appeared to be bleeding. Uncle #1 thought the vinegar fumes might be affecting the Applicant, but the Applicant attributed his condition not just to the fumes but also to his existing bout of bronchitis.

Uncle #1 regrets giving the Applicant two ounces of Canadian Club. He feels that he may have inadvertently been responsible for what happened to the Applicant. Nonetheless, Uncle #1 emphasized that had the Applicant been impaired he would not have allowed the Applicant to drive home.

Uncle #1 appealed to the Tribunal to empathize with the Applicant's familial and financial circumstances and urged the Tribunal to exercise leniency.

In his closing remarks the Applicant stated that he was not drunk, he was nervous and upset and feels that he was not given enough time to provide a sample.

The Applicant requested that his licence be reinstated as his family depends on him.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed December 11th, 2002
2. Driving Record of The Applicant, sealed December 3rd, 2002
3. Copy of Vehicle Record Search, sealed December 3rd, 2002

4. Witness Statement of PC #2
5. Witness Statement of Cadet #3

In his General Occurrence Statement, PC #2, of the London Police Service, states that he was working with his partner Officer #1 on November 12th, 2002, when both officers had occasion to approach the vehicle driven by the Applicant.

PC #1 goes on to describes the altercation that developed between the Applicant and the Police in the early hours of November 12th, 2002, after the Applicant had been transported to the "...cells...".

The General Occurrence Statement of Cadet #3 relates the altercation between the Applicant and the Police, while "...Constables #1 and #2..." were conducting "...the search of their prisoner..."

The Respondent called Constable #1, a member of the London Police Service as a witness. Officer #1 testified that he has been a police officer for "...approximately six years..."

Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

While the Applicant was initially co-operative, he became increasingly agitated and belligerent due to the fact that he objected to being searched. A struggle ensued, the Applicant continued, "...wailing and screaming ...for a long period of time..." after being subdued for compliance. At no time was the Applicant observed by Officer #1 to be out of breath or having any breathing difficulties. Officer #1 is adamant that, at no time, did the Applicant inform him that he could not breathe. The Applicant did not advise Officer #1 that he was in need of medical assistance.

PC #4 a Qualified Breath Technician with the London Police Service, on duty at the time of the Applicant's arrest, was called to testify, by the Respondent's Representative. PC #4 first testified for the record that she has been a Qualified Breath Technician for "...three years..."

As part of PC #4' testimony, the Respondent's Representative introduced the videotape of the Applicant's breathalyzer session and asked PC #4 to comment as the portion of the tape that dealt with the actual breathalyzer test session was viewed.

PC #4 pointed out that the Applicant was asked by the Sergeant on Duty whether he had any medical problems and the Applicant replied "NO".

The Applicant was given several opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine he did not blow long enough for the instrument to register. PC #4 formulated the opinion that the Applicant was blocking the tube with his tongue.

At one point the Applicant suggested to PC #4 that he had asthma but at no time was the Applicant observed, to be struggling with his breath or exhibiting any symptoms of respiratory distress.

In closing the Respondent's Representative pointed out that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant had no intention of co-operating with the police. The Applicant's behaviour of screaming and fighting with the police are not the actions of someone suffering from bronchitis.

The Respondent's Representative drew attention to the fact that the videotape clearly shows that the Applicant was able to speak easily, was apparently breathing through his nose and was not having shortness of breath.

As for Physician #1's comments on the Notice of Appeal, the Respondent's Representative notes that the form is incomplete, in that no history of the condition is given, there is no mention of pulmonary function tests being required, and finally Physician #1 does not provide an opinion as to how the Applicant's bronchitis could have affected his ability to provide a breath sample.

Mr. Biel, the Respondent's Representative summarized by re-iterating the Registrar's contention that there is insufficient medical evidence that the Applicant's failure to comply with the breath demand was due to medical reasons.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although all of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address issues, not germane to the case but which, nonetheless appear to be of concern to the Applicant.

As a plea for empathy and leniency was made, the Tribunal feels that some clarification for the benefit of the Applicant is essential. Although the Tribunal may empathize with the Applicant's current dilemma, as well as with the Applicant's emphasis that he was not drunk at the time, the Tribunal must deliberate solely on evidence as it pertains to Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act. At issue is not the individual's state of impairment but rather whether a medical condition exists that may preclude the compliance with the demand for a breath sample.

The Tribunal must also formally give reasons as to why the Applicant's attempt to refer to documents in his possession appearing to be Crown Disclosure notes were not admissible. As Mr. Biel, the Respondent's Representative pointed out, the notes in question did not form part of the Registrar's evidence, and were not disclosed to the Registrar as part of the Applicant's submissions. In accordance with the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, all evidence must be disclosed to the parties involved, ten days prior to the hearing. Since this evidence was not disclosed the Tribunal has ruled that it is not admissible.

The Applicant brought an appeal under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Respondent's Representative contends that the Applicant's behaviour clearly demonstrates that he had no intention of complying with the breath demand. The Applicant's behaviour albeit deplorable, is not at issue. At issue, is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Mr. Biel's, critique of Physician #1's report is that it does not contain sufficient information to corroborate the medical grounds for the appeal. Furthermore, Mr. Biel maintains that the Applicant's argument lacks the support of specialist's reports. The Tribunal agrees.

The Tribunal reviewed Physician #1's report carefully. Noteworthy is the fact that Physician #1 specifies that Bioxin was prescribed "...24.10.02 x 1 wk and 13.11.02 x 2 days...". There is no indication, other than the Applicant's apparently confused assertion, that Physician #1 found it necessary to prescribe a further dose of Bioxin on the "...30.10.02..." visit. The Tribunal cannot speculate as to the reason Physician #1 gave the Applicant a 2 day's supply of Bioxin on November 13th.

The Applicant has not provided the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. It would in fact have been possible for Physician #1 if he thought that the Applicant's condition was severe enough, to warrant a referral to a respiratologist or to order pulmonary function tests. Such reports would provide specific evidence of the Applicant's ability to perform a breathalyzer test.

The Tribunal has considered the eyewitness testimony at the scene. In this case the Tribunal has not only the evidence of Constables #1 and #4 but has also viewed the videotape of the breathalyzer session. There are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory distress that are visible even to an untrained person. At no time, was the Applicant observed to be in an afflicted breathing state. It is apparent that the Applicant did not exhibit any of the symptoms commonly associated with severe respiratory illness, such wheezing, continuous coughing or shortness of breath.

The Applicant may have been diagnosed with bronchitis, but there is insufficient evidence to satisfy the Tribunal that he was in any respiratory distress at the time of the breathalyzer session and unable to provide a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he was suffering from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated November 13, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

APPEARANCES: ADELAIDE PINDER
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

ERIC EDWARD SOKK, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: December 20, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: December 24, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 20, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Eric Sokk (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1984, Dodge, plate #AFMC 478 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 9, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that he exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act. The owner also appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 20, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

" I have a very irresponsible twin brother, whom my family and I thought possessed a valid Ontario driver's licence. I did not know he was under suspension. In the future my brother Allan is prohibited from driving or operating any of my vehicles, because now I am aware of his driving record.

I require this car that was impounded as a second vehicle to drive myself."

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is married and a father of 3 children. His wife is a teacher and he has been employed with the City of Thunder Bay in the Sewer and Water Department for the past 20 years.

The Applicant is also the identical twin brother of Allan, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded. Allan lives in Ignace, Ontario, approximately 200 miles (3 hours) from Thunder Bay. He is employed with a forestry company in which he does not need a vehicle. Allan visits his brother and his family on a monthly basis and borrows one of the Applicant's vehicles when he is visiting. Allan has a motorhome registered in his name, which he gave to the Applicant. The Applicant pays the insurance on this vehicle. It is currently in winter storage. Allan does not own any other vehicles. The brothers generally have a good relationship.

The Applicant knew of his brother's 1983 and 1990 Criminal Code convictions, but was unaware of the 2001 and 2002 convictions.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Allan Sokk;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than .08 mgs of alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until August 12, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Appeal – Due Diligence

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that Allan Sokk's driver's licence at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

The Applicant has conceded that he is the owner of the vehicle that has been impounded. At the time of the impoundment, the vehicle was being driven by his twin brother, whose driver's licence was then under suspension due to a conviction under the Criminal Code of Canada for driving with more than 80 mg of alcohol in his blood.

The evidence before the Tribunal was that the Applicant only saw a driver's licence "years ago". With the knowledge of his brother's previous convictions, the Applicant did not check with the insurance company and/or the Ministry of Transportation to determine whether his brother was an eligible driver. When the Applicant would ask his brother if he had a valid driver's licence, his brother would avoid the question. Unfortunately, the Applicant merely assumed that his brother had a valid driver's licence and did not take any measures to ensure that he had a valid driver's licence. By merely viewing a driver's licence "years ago" does not constitute the necessary step to ensure its validity. Furthermore, there was no evidence heard that would confirm the Applicant's actions were anything but passive in nature.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

Appeal – Exceptional Hardship

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d).

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for his appeal to be considered under section 22(2), he must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal's consideration of subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

- (a) "no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available". The Applicant testified that there are alternative vehicles: (i) his wife drives a Suburban 4x4; (ii) the Applicant is currently driving a truck; (iii) a 1983 motorcycle; (iv) Allan gave the Applicant a motorhome to use which the Applicant pays the insurance. It is currently in storage for the winter; and (v) every 5-6 weeks, the Applicant brings home the company cube van in the event of any call-outs.

The Applicant testified that once the impounded vehicle is release, it will no longer be driven as it is considered a "marked car".

- (b) "the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting" The Applicant testified that (i); he has not missed any days of work or lost any wages due to his vehicle's impoundment; (ii) he has not had nor has missed any doctor's appointments; (iii) there are no health issues with any of his family members; and (iv) although there is no need to use public transit, the Applicant lives in a rural part of Thunder Bay where there is no public transit.

- (c) "the impact of loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle" The children are taken to school by a school bus. Should that not be available, the Applicant's wife drives them to school.

The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, Allan Sokk, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

The Tribunal is sympathetic with plight of the Applicant being confused with his identical twin, the embarrassment this has caused him and his family, but after considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and has managed. The impact will not be immediate significant and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 23, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Exec Distribution Inc. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1995 Freightliner D12, plate no. 3482DH (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 10, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on December 23, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Reference. Notice of Appeal - Owners Position License Appeal Tribunal

1 St Clair Avenue West, Suite 1200 Toronto, Ontario M4V 1K6

Attachment to Notice of Appeal

Background

The company is owned and operated by Ted Bowles and Clive Bowden, sole shareholders. Exec Distribution is a small transportation supplier with 1 straight truck servicing London and 1 tractor trailer servicing London to Toronto. The service is for customers of Exec Warehouse Inc. in London owned by the same persons.

Due Diligence

The driver Mark Braithwaite, driving under suspension, was hired full time in November 2000 from Drivers Alliance, a professional truck drivers employment agency. They supplied an acceptable abstract and recommended him. On June 7, 2001 we did a follow up check (copy Attached) and the old speeding offense was the only issue and no demerit points were current. In the all of the time Mark worked for us his job performance and attendance was excellent. His latest performance review was just on November 27 and his report was excellent. The only time off he has taken was in August of this year. He phoned in sick. We now have learned that he lied to us and this was when his license was suspended. He did not advise us and we had no reason to suspect his suspension, as he has been a trusted employee for 3 years. We find it hard to understand that there is no system to notify an employer when an AZ commercial license is suspended. As a small company you cannot check abstracts weekly especially when you have never had a problem.

Loss of Vehicle

As this is our only tractor trailer the company will have to rent a vehicle at a rate of $857.00 per week plus mileage. This along with the towing and impoundment fee will total in excess of $9000.00. We also have had to return the trailer with the goods on board to meet commitments at a premium of $700.00. We have terminated Mr Braithwaite and will train a new driver, also significant expenses. This vehicle had just returned from a major overhaul costing us $10000.00 to insure it was safe and dependable. This put at our credit limit with our dealer source for further rentals. We feel that this penalty is severe and will have significant impact on both of the businesses we operate. We understand the law and the reasons behind it, but we feel the punishment to an employer who has abided by all rules and regulations they were aware of, shouldn't have to pay such a harsh punishment only because an employee lied to them.

Hearing Request

We have requested a telephone conference as we would have to drive to Toronto for the hearing. This would be the most cost effective for us as we both work in this business, however we will attend a hearing if this is the only option

Clive Bowden

The Applicant, Mr. Clive Bowden, confirmed, through his testimony, the details contained in the Notice of Appeal and the following points:

- over the course of his employment with the company, Mark Braithwaite had become a trusted employee;
- the company first saw a check of Mr. Braithwaite's record when he was hired and a second or last check occurred about one year ago;
- during Mr. Braithwaite's November 2002 performance review, he did not advise the company about his licence suspension;
- Mr. Bowden said he thought "the system would advise us" about the suspension of his employee's driver's licence;
- Mr. Braithwaite had been terminated;
- the impounded vehicle was the company's only highway vehicle and that a replacement vehicle had been rented to continue the company's commitments to its customers;
- the replacement rental and associated impoundment costs were expected to total $9000.00.

In a concluding comment, Mr. Bowden expressed the view that "the loss would have been difficult to prevent".

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Mark F. Braithwaite;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 24, 2003.

In response to questions submitted to the Applicant by Lynda Dunbar, Mr. Bowden did not provide any specific information about a company policy requiring regular checks of a driver's licence record. He also provided the following additional information:

- the last time, in fact, that Mr. Braithwaite's driving record had actually been checked by the company was in June 2001, about one and a half year's ago;
- the company's one other vehicle is an in-town unit and while it could be used for the London-Toronto return trip it would need to make two trips as it is not large enough to hold the same size of load;
- that even if the company did use its in-town truck for the highway run, they would still need to rent another truck to replace the in-truck and while that rental would be less expensive it was not a chosen option;
- that even if the company's appeal is not successful it will continue as there is no other choice.

The Tribunal also learned more about the company's business operations in that:

- the freight transport part of the businesses owned by Mr. Bowden and his partner, Ted Bowles, would ordinarily take about 2 to 3 months to make the amount of money that would be the cost of the impoundment;
- the freight transport business only has the two trucks and that it was established to provide a customer support service to certain customers of the main warehousing and storage business, which is located in a 140,000 square foot warehouse;

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, “due diligence” in Black’s Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

To succeed in this appeal, the Applicant must establish either due diligence in determining the validity of the driver's licence under section 50.2(3)(c) or exceptional hardship under section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

As to the Applicant's appeal to have the impounded vehicle returned on the basis that (a) the company had exercised due diligence in ensuring that the employee's driving licence was not under suspension or (b) that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship, the evidence established:

- (i) the company did not have a clearly stated policy regarding any kind of regular checks of driver abstracts (for example in the case of a small company such as Exec Warehouse Inc., the annual review process could include a mandatory abstract search);
- (ii) that while the company could experience some financial strain as a result of the impoundment costs, it had been able to afford to make immediate alternate vehicle rental arrangements and would continue to be in operation throughout the impoundment period and afterwards;
- (iii) the company had not lost any contracts or work due to the loss of use of the impounded vehicle.

This evidence submitted does not establish the Applicant exercised due diligence as defined under subsection 50.2(3)(c) or that exceptional hardship as required under section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act will result from the impoundment.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

Section 50.1(4) of the HTA states:

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Subsections 15(1), (2) and (3) of Regulation 574 (as amended) of the Highway Traffic Act requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

- (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
 - (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Sept 5, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2) arising out of the failure or refusal of the Applicant to provide a sample of breath.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant relies upon a medical report which was prepared, on October 10, 2002, by Physician #1, who has been the Applicant's physician for "27 years". Physician #1 writes: "This patient has documented ischemic heart disease with admission to Welland General Hosp. on Mar 23rd, 2002. Thallium stress testing thereafter indicates the presence of ischemia (angina). On Sept 4th, 2002 following dinner in Niagara Falls NY he had to come home earlier than expected because of chest tightness which we interpreted as angina. This produced severe anxiety and hyperventilation rendering him incapable of giving a proper breath sample. June 17th 2002 – in office for follow-up on blood cholesterol levels."

A copy of a Patient Discharge Information Record, from the Niagara Health System Welland

Hospital Site, dated "March 27/00", is also attached to the Notice of Appeal. The report confirms the discharge diagnosis: as "myocardial infarction" and lists the drug therapy to be followed by the Applicant. (Exhibit # 2)

After having the opportunity to review the Registrar's argument, the Applicant submitted a response, which includes a copy of the Crown Disclosure information and a Closing Statement. (Exhibits # 9,10,11)

The Applicant made several handwritten notations on the margin of the typewritten document entitled: "PART III – Argument":

1. In reply to statement number 1, wherein the Registrar "...denies that any medical reason caused the appellant's failure to provide the required breath sample..."the Applicant writes: "hypervent". (Exhibit # 9, Paragraph 1).
2. On the margin beside paragraph 2, the Applicant directs the Tribunal to "CHECK CUSTOMS OFFICER #1 S NOTES – PAGE 6" (Exhibit # 9, Paragraph 2).
3. In paragraph 4 of the Registrar's argument, the Applicant underlined the word "medication", in the sentence: "...he would have his heart medication on him..." and stated in the margin: "I did". (Exhibit # 9, Paragraph 4).
4. Paragraph 5 of the Registrar's argument reads: "The Applicant was observed to smoke two cigarettes by the Police Constable #1 shortly after the breath demand..."the words "shortly after" are underlined. The Applicant's handwritten comments state: "*00:05 * RELEASED AT 2:25 TO A TAXI. I WAS IN CUSTODY FOR TWO HOURS & 22 MINUTES AFTER BREATH DEMAND.*" (Exhibit # 9, Paragraph 5).

The Applicant submitted a detailed dispute of the Registrar's "PART III –Argument". A summary follows:

- 1) REGISTRAR STATES MEDICAL REASON ON DOCTOR'S STATEMENT IS ISCHEMIC HEART DISEASE. PHYSICIAN #1'S STATEMENT CLEARLY STATES SEVERE ANXIETY AND HYPERVENTILATION AS THE REASON...
- 2) REGISTRAR SUBMITS I DID NOT EXHIBIT ANY SIGNS OF A MEDICAL PROBLEM ...CUSTOMS OFFICER #1S STATEMENT– ...'AND THROUGHOUT THE WHOLE ORDEAL, THE APPLICANT COMPLAINED OF HIS HEART PROBLEM...'
- 3) I AGREE

- 4) REGISTRAR NOT CLEAR WHETHER PHYSICIAN #1 SAW ME ON OCT 10/02. THE DOCTOR DID SEE ME ... AND THE DOCTOR IS AWARE OF WHAT THE APPEAL FORM IS FOR. AS TO SEEKING ATTENTION (MEDICAL) I WAS IN CUSTODY FROM :00:03 UNTIL 02:25 ...TAKEN NITROGLYCERINE (sic) 8 TO 10 TIMES DURING THAT PERIOD ...NEVER LEAVE HOME WITHOUT NITRO IN MY POCKET, GLOVE COMPARTMENT ...MEDICATION ...CUSTOM OFFICER CUSTOMS OFFICER #1 REFERS TO ...ARE THE VARIETY I TAKE ...I ONLY REFERRED TO THOSE WHEN I AM FELT ANXIOUS ...THE MEDICATION I WOULD NEED IF I WERE IN A GREAT DISTRESS I ADMINISTERED IN FULL VIEW OF THE 4 OFFICERS OVER A 2 HR PERIOD (NITROGLYCERINE) [sic]
- 5) ...EARLIER APPROX. 00:15 WHILE I WAS TAKING MY NITRO TRYING TO STOP HYPERVENTILATING I JOKINGLY SAID ANYBODY GOT A SMOKE ...CUSTOM OFFICER D. CUSTOMS OFFICER #2 WATCHED ME LEAVE THE BUILDING AND MADE NO MENTION OF ME SMOKING ...SITTING INSIDE THE BUILDING WAITING AREA ...WOULD NOT ALLOW THE SAME ...I DO NOT SMOKE ...”
(Exhibit # 9)

As part of his submissions to the Tribunal, the Applicant encloses a copy of the statement provided to the Crown, by Canada Customs and Revenue Officer, Customs Officer #2 .

The Applicant directs the Tribunal to specifically note the following points from Ms. Customs Officer #2 's witness statement:

- and that he then described his heart condition in detail and the many medications that he is currently taking including 'Zoloft' and that he went on to describe his father's and grandfather's deaths due to heart problems;
- and that at approximately 00:18 hrs he stated that he was having chest pains and asked to use his 'spray' to ease the discomfort;
- and that the label on this spray indicated 'Nitrolingual Pump 200DS';
- and that he began to pant and hold his chest;
- and that Customs Officer #1 allowed him to use his medication for his health and safety;
- and that he was speaking quietly and said 'strange situation';
- and that at approximately 00:25 hrs he complained of chest pains;
- and that at 00:28 hrs, he again sprayed the medication into his mouth twice;

- and that Customs Officer #1 assisted him by saying 'Keep blowing' several times;
- and that she then observed him put two sprays of his medication into his mouth;
- and that at this time, Customs Officer #1 asked Applicant if he had health problems that affected his lungs; [sic]
- and that he described that he had health problems with his heart;
- and that Applicant stated loudly in clear voice, 'I am not refusing. I am on 16 pills a day and I am very excited to be here';
- and that at approximately 02:08 she assisted Customs Officer #1 in presenting to Cst. #1;
- and that she further assisted Customs Officer #1 in escorting him to the public waiting area;
- and that she observed him walk to his vehicle in the customs parking area with no apparent difficulty at approximately 02:25." (Exhibit # 10)

In his "Closing Statement" the Applicant contends: "...I HAD SHORTNESS OF BREATH DUE TO AN ANGINA ATTACK WHICH STARTED 1/2 hr. EARLIER & WAS GETTING PROGRESSIVELY WORSE ...I WAS EXTREMELY ANXIOUS ...HAVING BECOME AWARE THAT THIS WAS HER FIRST TEST & I WAS HER TRAINING DUMMY I BECAME MORE ANXIOUS AND STARTED TO HYPERVENTILATE ...I TOOK A COUPLE OF SPRAYS OF NITRO (FIRST OF 6 OR 7 TIMES). THE ANXIETY ATTACK AND HYPERVENTILATION CAUSED BY THE ONSET OF ANGINA CERTAINLY HEIGHTENED MY STRESSFUL SITUATION ...I SUGGESTED THEY TAKE A BLOOD SAMPLE ...PROCEEDED TO ADMINISTER ANOTHER TEST TO THE CHANTS OF COME ON COME ON BLOW BLOW YOU CAN DO IT, WHICH I FELT WAS DEMEANING & JUST INCREASED MY ANXIETY PANIC AND HYPERVENTILATION ...EVIDENCE SHOWS ON THE EVENING IN QUESTION I WAS INDEED SUFFERING AN ANGINA ATTACK WHICH IS BY DEFINITION, A SIGN THAT THE HEART IS NOT GETTING ENOUGH OXYGEN. ONE OF THE FACTORS IS STRESS WHICH INCREASES THE DEMAND ON THE HEART, WITH LESS SUPPLY, AND MORE DEMAND THE HEART CANNOT GET ENOUGH OXYGEN ...THE TREATMENT IS REDUCED STRESS, REST, MEDICATION (NITROGLYCERINE [sic] & ATENOLOL) WHICH I AVAILED MYSELF TO DURING & IMMEDIATELY AFTER. MY CONDITION THAT EVENING RENDERED ME INCAPABLE OF PROVIDING A BREATH SAMPLE. I CONFIRM THAT I DON'T SMOKE AND DID NOT SMOKE ON THAT OR ANY OTHER EVENING..."

Registrar's Evidence

The written submissions provided the Tribunal by the Registrar contains the following documents:

1. PART I – THE FACTS (Exhibit # 3)
2. PART II – THE LAW
3. PART III – THE ARGUMENT (Exhibit # 4)
4. PART IV – ORDER REQUESTED (Exhibit # 5)
5. Copy of Notice to the Registrar
6. Copy of Ministry of Transportation Driver Information for Applicant (Exhibit # 6)
7. Written Statement of Customs Officer #1 (Exhibit # 7)
8. Written Statement of PC #1 (Exhibit # 8)

In PART I – THE FACTS, the Registrar referred to statements obtained from: “Customs Officer Customs Officer #1, dated September 5, 2002, and Police Constable Kadwell.”

Paraphrasing Customs Officer Customs Officer #1's statement the Registrar sets out in paragraph 4 of PART I – THE FACTS: “ At 00:10 Applicant blew into the device and it showed an Error. The Applicant blew into the device seven more times, each time the device registering an Error. Each time that Customs Officer Customs Officer #1 witnessed The Applicant blow into the device, she heard the buzzing sound and the air going into it. Each time The Applicant stopped blowing into the device...”

In her statement Customs Officer Customs Officer #1 describes the events that led to the breath demand and the events that surrounded the breathalyzer session.

Ms Customs Officer #1 states:

- ...at 00:10 hrs The Applicant blew into the device and showed an error’;
- ...The Applicant blew into the device seven more times, each times the device registering an error;
- ...each time I witnessed The Applicant blow into the device I heard the buzzing sound and the air going into it ...each time he stopped blowing into the device;
- complained of his heart problems”
- ...when asked to give us a number to call for his medication he said ‘no, I don’t want to wake anyone up...”

(Exhibit # 7)

PC #1 was present during the breathalyzer test session and reports as follows:

- ...observed as APPLICANT failed to provide a sample ...next attempt blew for one or two seconds and the tone indicating enough pressure was being produced was heard ...He then stopped providing the breath sample, and then after a moment began blowing again ...at no time did I notice that APPLICANT had trouble breathing...

(Exhibit # 8)

The Registrar's closing argument emphasizes:

1. "...The Registrar denies that any medical reason caused the appellant's failure to provide the required breath sample...
2. The Registrar submits that the appellant did not have a health problem at the time the breath demand was made which would have prevented him from giving a breath sample. The appellant did not exhibit any signs of any condition that might suggest a medical problem...
3. The report further states that The Applicant 's last visit was on June 17th, 2002 for follow –up on blood cholesterol level...
4. The Registrar submits that Physician #1's medical report was prepared on October 10, 2002 which is 35 days after the breath demand was made ...not clear whether Physician #1 saw or examined the patient on October 10, 2002 ...report is not accompanied by investigative reports, or test results that would ...substantiate the nature and severity of The Applicant heart condition ...no indication that The Applicant has sought any medical attention for his angina at the time of or shortly after the breath demand...
5. ...The Applicant was observed to smoke two cigarettes...
6. The appellant has failed to submit any sufficient evidence regarding how his condition rendered him incapable to provide a breath sample...
7. ...the appellant has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal ...the appellant has not met this onus ...failed to prove that there was a medical reason that rendered him incapable of providing a breath sample on September 5th, 2002."

(Exhibit # 4)

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the preceding reflects only a summary of the totality of the evidence contained in the documentation presented, all documents were thoroughly reviewed and considered. Statements not directly germane to the issue were not transcribed.

Prior to setting forth the reasons for decision, the Tribunal notes that none of the material submitted for consideration as evidence, was in the form of a sworn statement.

With respect to the issue raised by the Applicant regarding the possibility of obtaining a blood sample, the Tribunal points out that Subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken...". The decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, who had the best opportunity to observe the demeanor of the Applicant.

The Applicant implies that the Registrar's witnesses are less than reliable as the statements made regarding the Applicant being seen smoking two cigarettes are inaccurate. The Applicant emphasizes that he is not a smoker. The Tribunal sees no necessity to take into account the statements made with respect to smoking, particularly as these statements are in fact conflicting.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which provides:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

At issue, is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that caused the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand. More specifically, the Applicant has the burden of proving that an angina attack, or attacks, or some other medical condition prevented him from providing a breath sample.

The Tribunal does not dispute Physician #1's diagnosis that the Applicant suffers from: "...documented ischemic heart disease..." (Exhibit # 2) However, the Tribunal notes that he opines: "...This produced severe anxiety and hyperventilation rendering him incapable of giving a proper breath sample...". Although Physician #1's theory may be flawless, he was not present at the scene of the breathalyzer test session. Physician #1's conclusion was obviously formulated based on information relayed by the Applicant regarding his level of discomfort both prior to and at the time of the breath sample.

In assessing the Applicant's evidence, the Tribunal finds the evidence provided by the Applicant to be inconsistent in a number of key respects. As a result the Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not establish that his failure or refusal to comply with the breath demand was due to a medical reason.

The Applicant states that his condition, at the time, was acute enough to warrant the use of the Nitrospray. The evidence on the quantity consumed however, is inconsistent.

Officer. Customs Officer #2 states that she witnessed “...at ...00:18 ...spray into his mouth twice with the medication (sic) ...at 00:28, ...again sprayed the medication into his mouth twice ...then observed him put two sprays of his medication into his mouth...”

At Exhibit # 9, the Applicant writes that he was compelled to take “...NITROGLYCERINE (sic) 8 TO 10 TIMES...” during the two-hour period that he was in custody. Whereas the Applicant states in his Closing Statement, filed as Exhibit # 11, “...I TOOK A COUPLE OF SPRAYS OF NITRO (FIRST OF 6 OR 7 TIMES)...”

Whether the dosages were 6,7, 8 or 10, is unclear. In the Tribunal’s view, it would appear that these were extremely large doses, which could have led to an overdose with physical symptoms such as headache, nausea, and dizziness requiring hospitalisation. No such symptoms are noted, however.

The Tribunal notes that the evidence of the Applicant appears unreliable. After stating to Customs Officer Customs Officer #2 : “I need access to my medication in 1hour or I am a dead man”, the Tribunal notes that according to Officer Customs Officer #1 , the Applicant refused an offer to call someone to bring his medication, stating: “No- I don’t want to wake anyone up.”

Finally, the Tribunal notes that the Applicant has not filed a medical report from a specialist dated immediately or even shortly after the incident. In fact, the Applicant was not even examined by his own physician until 35 days after the breath demand. Given the alleged seriousness of his condition, a more recent medical report such as from the emergency department of a hospital would have been warranted. Yet after the incident, it was the evidence of Customs Officer Customs Officer #2 that: “she observed him walk to his vehicle in the customs area parking area with no apparent difficulty at approximately 02:25hrs.”

These inconsistencies greatly reduce the reliability of the Applicant’s evidence. Addressing the issue of reliability, the Tribunal finds that the discrepancies in the Applicant’s evidence are most disturbing and have a significant negative impact on his credibility as a witness.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal for medical reasons. Thus, the Tribunal further finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that his medical condition precluded his compliance with a demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated August 2, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant, the Tribunal confirms the suspension imposed by the Registrar, pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA.

Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF

REASONS FOR RULING

BACKGROUND

This is a Motion by the Respondent, the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, for an Order staying the Decision and Order, released October 11, 2002 of Vice-Chair, Antoine Aouad, directing the Registrar to refrain from carrying out the proposal to refuse the registration of Madjid a.k.a. Mike Banki as a salesperson under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, until such time as the Appeal in this matter is heard and a decision rendered therein.

The Hearing of this matter was held before the Tribunal on September 27, 2002. By Order of the Tribunal released October 11, 2002, the Tribunal directed the Registrar not to carry out the proposal to refuse the registrations of Madjid a.k.a. Mike Banki, but to issue a salesperson's licence subject to the terms and conditions stated in the Order.

FACTS

The Respondent, (Registrar) by its Notice of Appeal, dated October 15, 2002, has appealed to the Ontario Superior Court of Justice, Divisional Court. There is no date scheduled for the hearing of this Appeal. The Registrar estimated that the Appeal would take anywhere from between six months to one year before it is heard.

Affidavit Evidence

In support of the Respondent's Motion to stay the Order of this Tribunal, there has been filed the Affidavit of Mary Jane South.

Mary Jane South is employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (hereinafter referred to as OMVIC), as the Deputy Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

Ms. South stated that by a Proposal dated May 23, 2002 and Further and Other Particulars dated September 10, 2002, the Registrar proposed to refuse the registration of Majid a.k.a. Mike Banki (the Applicant) as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal and Further and Other Particulars alleged that the Applicant knowingly violated separate Security Agreements he had entered into with Automotive Finance Company and with Mannheim Auto Auctions by financing several vehicles through them and selling the vehicles out of trust without informing them of the sales and without repaying either Company. The Applicant did so by obtaining replacement permits from the Ministry of Transportation when he knew or ought to have known that it was improper to do so.

After a hearing before Vice-Chair Aouad of the Licence Appeal Tribunal on September 27, 2002, the Tribunal's Reasons for Decision and Order were released October 11, 2002.

The Reasons for Decision and Order directed the Registrar not to carry out the Proposal to refuse the registration of Madjid a.k.a. Mike Banki and to issue a salesperson's licence subject to the terms and conditions that were set out in the Order.

The Registrar did not agree with the terms and conditions in the Reasons for Decision and Order and filed a Notice of Appeal dated October 15, 2002.

Ms. South asserted that the terms and conditions in the Decision are insufficient and unenforceable and thereby failed to adequately protect the public.

She asserted that the first condition that the Applicant not be allowed to handle cash was insufficient as there was no prohibition on his handling other forms of payment, such as credit cards, cheques and money orders.

The second condition attached to the registration that the Applicant not be allowed to attend auctions on his own nor to buy or sell vehicles at auction on behalf of the dealer was insufficient as no level of supervision was required, nor was the nature and authority of the person meant to accompany the Applicant stipulated.

The third condition that the Applicant not carry on business transactions for the sale or purchase of motor vehicles outside the premises of the dealer was unclear as to whether or not the Applicant was limited from motor vehicle off premise buying or selling on the dealers or his personal account. Both of these are currently prohibited pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The fourth condition that all purchase and sale transactions be approved and verified by the sales manager prior to being closed was insufficient as the terms and conditions did not limit the Applicant from working as a sales manager. Further, this condition required a non party to the proceedings to act in accordance with this condition of the Applicant's registration.

The condition requiring that the Applicant inform a prospective dealer principal that he or she is to notify the Registrar within thirty days of offering employment to the Applicant and that the dealer was aware of the Applicant's conditions of registration was a further attempt to bind the conduct of a non party. Further, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act required the dealer to notify the Registrar in writing within five days of the commencement or termination of employment of its sales people.

She also stated that while the Applicant's registration is to be revoked should he be convicted of fraud, it did not address what would happen should the Applicant be convicted of similar economic convictions such as uttering a forged document, theft, false pretenses, breach of trust or any industry specific offences.

She continued to say that although all conditions of registration required that the relation between the Applicant and his dealer principal be arms length, there were no conditions or safeguards in place to prevent the Applicant from becoming the operating mind of the dealership.

She was also concerned that the conditions of registration did not restrict the Applicant from transferring his registration to a dealership where there was little or no supervision of the Applicant's actions or any enforcement of the Applicant's conditions of registration.

Ms. South stated that she believed that, given the Applicant's past conduct, he would not comply with any terms and conditions imposed by the Tribunal if the stay Motion was not granted.

Decision of the Tribunal which is appealed:

The Tribunal ordered registration of the Applicant on the following conditions:

1. The Applicant is not to be allowed to handle cash.
2. The Applicant is not to be allowed to attend auctions, on his own, and purchase or sell vehicles at auctions, on behalf of the Dealer.
3. The Applicant is not to carry on business transactions for the sale or purchase of motor vehicles outside the premises of the Dealer.
4. All transactions of trade, purchase or sale of motor vehicles are to be approved and verified by the Sales Manager, prior to the Applicant closing any deal with prospective buyers and or sellers.
5. The Applicant is to inform any prospective employers of the limitations on his licence.
6. The Applicant shall advise the Dealer, employing him that the Dealer is required to notify the Registrar, in writing, within thirty days of offering employment to the Applicant that the Dealer is aware of the restrictions imposed on the Applicant's licence.

Further, this Tribunal orders that:

1. In the event of breach of any of the conditions listed above, the Applicant shall forthwith forfeit his Salesperson's licence.
2. In the event a conviction of fraud is registered against the Applicant, the Applicant shall forthwith forfeit his Salesperson's licence.

Argument of Respondents (Appellants) Counsel

It was argued on behalf of the Registrar that the Applicant had been originally registered as both a salesman and dealer in March of 1997.

While acting in that capacity, he had a financial arrangement with two lending institutions. The Applicant would buy vehicles from an auction and the finance company would pay for the vehicles and transfer them into the Applicant's name, however, they would retain the physical possession of the ownership. The Applicant would then sell the vehicles and advise the finance companies to fill in the amounts on the pre signed cheques which they held and they would send him the ownerships. The Registrar alleged that the Applicant sold vehicles without informing the finance companies contrary to the agreement with them. He accomplished this by obtaining replacement ownership without telling the finance companies. The Applicant then declared bankruptcy owing approximately $108,000.00, with $90,000.00 to $100,000.00 of that money owing to the two finance institutions.

In the Hearing before Vice-Chair, Aouad, the finance company had given evidence that there was no arrangement with the Applicant which would allow him to obtain replacement ownerships to transfer the vehicles. Despite this evidence, the Tribunal found that there was no indication that the Applicant had intentionally acted dishonestly. Counsel for the Registrar also repeated the arguments that were contained in the Affidavit of Mary Jane South.

The Registrar argued that the Supreme Court of Canada set out in the RJR - MacDonald Inc. v. Canada (A-G) (1991) 82 D.L.R. (4th) 385 at 405, there were three tests that had to be met in order to be successful in this Motion. The tests are as follows:

1. There must be a serious question to be tried.
2. Would the Applicant suffer irreparable harm if the Application were refused.
3. An assessment must be made as to which of the parties would suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the remedy pending a decision.

In regard to the serious issue test, the Registrar argued that this is a very low threshold to meet. It is not meant to be an in-depth analysis of the merits of the case, but a preliminary assessment that the Appeal is neither frivolous nor vexatious.

The Registrar argued that the Tribunal had placed an inordinate amount of weight on the evidence of the Applicant in the face of direct evidence of witnesses for the Registrar and physical evidence produced by way of bills of sale which were stamped stating that they were not to be used to obtain replacement ownerships.

The Applicant had not met the test that he would act with honesty and integrity and according to law, and he had not acted with financial responsibility in the way that he had dealt with the vehicles and the bankruptcy.

The Registrar also referred to the Brenner (Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman)) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 (Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court) test that if the Registrar is found to have a reasonable belief that the Applicant would not act in accordance with law that the Tribunal must grant the Registrar's proposal. It was argued that since the decision of the Tribunal was contrary to the Brenner test, that was enough of a serious issue to be tried.

In accordance with the second test, the Registrar does not typically bring Motions to stay the Tribunal's decisions. It was the Registrar's position that it would be the public that would suffer irreparable harm if the stay were not granted and the public is represented by the Registrar. By allowing the Tribunal's decision to stand pending appeal, it would expose the public to potential harm and that the irreparable harm was the registration of the Applicant.

In regard to the third test, it was argued that this proposal by the Registrar is a refusal and not a revocation. This was not the case where a dealer was currently operating and his income was being taken away. The Applicant is a person who was not yet operating as a salesman and, therefore, it was not taking anything away from him to refuse his registration. Although the Applicant had been working as a salesman since the release of the Tribunal's decision, he was not working as a salesman before that time and, therefore, he was not as dependent upon that income from being a salesman as a person who was already working and reapplying for registration.

The Registrar again referred to the RJR - MacDonald case and stated that although this was a Charter case, the principals enunciated by the Court in paragraph 71 at page 75 applied:

In the case of a public authority, the onus of demonstrating irreparable harm to the public interest is less than that of a private applicant. This is partly a function of the nature of the public authority and partly a function of the action sought to be enjoined. The test will nearly always be satisfied simply upon proof that the authority is charged with the duty of promoting or protecting the public interest and some indication that the impugned legislation, regulation, or activity was undertaken pursuant to that responsibility. Once these minimal requirements have been met, the Court should in most cases assume that irreparable harm to the public interest would result from the restraint of that action.

The Registrar argued that the risk to the public was that they may buy a motor vehicle without a clean title. It was admitted that there was no evidence of this in the present case. It did, however, go to the issue of honesty and integrity. The Applicant's actions concerning the finance institutions was industry related since it had to do with financing vehicles.

Argument of Applicants (Respondents in Appeal) Counsel

It was argued that a decision of the Tribunal is not automatically stayed on Appeal under the Statutory Powers Procedure Act and, therefore, the onus the Registrar must meet is greater to stay the decision of this Tribunal.

At the hearing, the Applicant had given evidence that it was in the normal course of business to issue replacement permits on vehicles which he was selling rather than obtain the original permits back from the finance institutions because of the great distance between the location of the Applicant and the finance institutions. It was stated that this evidence was not contradicted by anyone during the original hearing.

Vice-Chair Aouad had the advantage of hearing the evidence directly from the witnesses and making a finding of fact pursuant to the evidence presented.

Further, in regard to the first test as to whether there was a serious issue to be tried, the Applicant stated that the preliminary assessment must be where the Tribunal's findings so flawed that there was a serious error? It was argued that the Tribunal has more experience in this area as it deals with these matters on a regular basis and that is the reason that a Tribunal's decision is not automatically stayed on appeal.

The Registrar based its proposal to refuse registration as a salesperson based upon the written application of the Applicant whereas the Tribunal actually heard the evidence given in person and based its decision on the evidence. The standard of Appellant review for setting aside a finding of fact is that it is patently unreasonable. The Tribunal had heard the evidence and made findings of fact based upon that evidence and there is no reason to believe that the findings are patently unreasonable.

In regard to the second test, it was argued that the onus is on the Registrar to show that there would be irreparable harm if the stay motion were refused. In reviewing the evidence, the Registrar was in error in advancing the position that the Applicant was dishonest just because he had some financial problems. The Tribunal had made a finding that the Applicant may have made some poor business decisions, however, there was no evidence of dishonesty. There was the theory proposed by the Registrar that the public could suffer some harm by possibly purchasing a vehicle without clear title, however, there was no evidence that the Applicant had acted dishonestly in regard to any purchaser. There were no losses suffered by any purchaser and there was no evidence of any problems with any title passed to any member of the public. The only evidence given was that no consumers were harmed by the Applicant's actions. In regard to honesty and integrity, there was no evidence that there were any charges against the Applicant for any offence.

The above arguments also were applied to the third test of which of the parties would suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the stay. Since there was no evidence of any harm to consumers, would there be any harm to the Applicant by granting the stay? The Applicant disagreed with the Registrar that there would be no harm to him since he was applying for a licence rather than applying for a renewal. The Applicant had previously been registered both as a salesman and a dealer since 1997. His licence was lost in 2001 and he had been over one year without a licence. He has been prohibited from earning income for over one year from his occupation as a salesman and is trying to resume the trade, rather than applying for a first time. The Applicant argued that the balance of convenience favours him or is at least equal to that of the Registrar and if the balance of convenience is equal, then the Registrar has not satisfied the onus placed upon it.

The Law

Section 25 (1) of the Statutory Powers Procedures Act states:

Unless it is expressly provided to the contrary in the Act under which the proceeding arises, an appeal from a decision of a Tribunal to a Court or other appellate tribunal operates as a stay in the matter except where the Tribunal or the Court or other body to which the appeal is taken otherwise orders.

Section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

Although a registrant appeals from an order of the Tribunal under section 11 of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations Act, the order takes effect immediately, but the Tribunal may grant a stay until disposition of the appeal.

Metropolitan Stores (MTS) Ltd. v Manitoba Food and Commercial Workers, Local 832 (1987) 38 D.L.R. (4th) 321 sets out the three stage test. This test was adopted by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General) (1994) 1 S.C.R. 311.

The three-stage test is as follows:

1. First test: A preliminary assessment must be made of the merits of the case to ensure that there is a serious question to be tried.
2. Second test: It must be determined whether the Applicant would suffer irreparable harm if the application was refused.
3. An assessment must be made as to which of the parties would suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the remedy pending a decision.

ANALYSIS:

The issue before this Tribunal at this motion is whether or not to exercise its discretion under section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and grant a stay as of the decision of this Tribunal, which ordered the registration of the Applicant as a salesperson on terms and conditions. The Registrar is only entitled to the relief of a stay if he can satisfy all three of the tests as enunciated by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra. The Tribunal will consider each of the three stages of the tests having completed a through review of the affidavit evidence, the law and the legal analysis referred to by Counsel in their argument during the motion.

1. Serious issue test:

In the consideration of whether or not there is a serious issue to be appealed the Tribunal is not put in the position of judging on the merits of the appeal itself. The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra cites at paragraph 44 the dictum of Lord Diplock from the American Cyanamid Co. Ethicon Ltd. (1975) A.C.396 which states that the applicant need no longer demonstrate a strong prima facie case. Rather it would suffice if he or she could satisfy the court that the case is not frivolous or vexatious; in other words, that there is a serious question to be tried. It is the role of this Tribunal to make a preliminary assessment of this point to determine if there is an arguable case. Even if the Tribunal should feel, based upon its own assessment, that it is unlikely that the appeal will be successful, the Tribunal would still find this stage of the test has been satisfied if the issue before the appeal court is not frivolous or vexatious. This stage of the test requires a low threshold for success.

Based on the arguments presented by Counsel for the Registrar the Tribunal finds that there is a serious issue to be argued before the appeal court. In particular, the issue of whether or not the test as established in the Brenner case had been properly applied. On that ground alone the Register has shown that a serious issue exists.

2. Irreparable harm

The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra provided a definition of irreparable harm at paragraph 59; Irreparable refers to the nature of the harm suffered rather than its magnitude. It is harm which either cannot be quantified in monetary terms or which cannot be cured, usually because one party cannot collect damages from the other. The Supreme Court then at paragraph 58 characterizes the nature of this stage of the test as follows:

At this stage the only issue to be decided is whether a refusal to grant relief could so adversely affect the applicants' own interests that the harm could not be remedied if the eventual decision on the merits does not accord with the result of the interlocutory application.

In support of this ground, the Registrar's Counsel argues that the irreparable harm is the registration of the Applicant. As the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public protection statute, the Registrar stands in the place of the public and the public would suffer irreparable harm if the Applicant were allowed to be registered as a salesperson on the terms and conditions as set out in the Tribunal's Decision released on October 11, 2002. In order to determine the validity of the Registrar's argument, it is necessary to review the conditions imposed on the Applicant and the arguments of the Registrar.

1. The Applicant is not to be allowed to handle cash.

The argument of the Registrar was that, while the Applicant is not allowed to handle cash, there is no prohibition on his handling other forms of payment, such as but not limited to, credit cards, cheques and money orders. It was the Registrar's position that this was not considered in the Decision and that it leaves the public open to fraud by the Applicant.

The Tribunal does not agree with the Registrar's position. It must be remembered that the Applicant is applying for registration as a salesperson for a motor vehicle dealership. The product that is being sold at the dealership is motor vehicles. Except in very rare circumstances, payment for articles as large as motor vehicles are normally paid by certified cheque or money order or financing agreements. It would be a very rare circumstance where a member of the public would walk into a motor vehicle dealership and pay cash for a motor vehicle. Even if this did occur, the Applicant would be prohibited from handling that cash. Any payment made by credit card, cheque or money order would normally be made payable to the dealership and not to the Applicant. The Tribunal, therefore, feels that this restriction is sufficient.

2. The Applicant is not to be allowed to attend auctions, on his own and purchase or sell vehicles at auctions, on behalf of the dealer.

The Registrar's argument was that there was no level of supervision required nor was the nature or authority of the person meant to accompany the Applicant stipulated. The Tribunal is of the opinion that Vice-Chair, Aouad, had understood the difference between a salesperson's licence and a dealer's licence. A motor vehicle dealer or someone on his authority would be able to attend at an auction and purchase vehicles. This restriction does not allow the Applicant to do so on his own. It is, therefore, implied in the Decision that a person with authority given by the dealer would be accompanying the Applicant to purchase or sell vehicles at auctions. The dealer that employs the Applicant would be aware of this condition.

3. The Applicant is not to carry on business transactions for the sale or purchase of motor vehicles outside the premises of the dealer.

The Registrar argued that this provision was unclear as to whether or not the Applicant was limited from motor vehicle off premises buying or selling on the dealer's or his personal account. The Tribunal feels that this matter was also considered by Vice-Chair, Aouad. He was well aware that both of the Registrar's concerns are currently prohibited pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. If the Applicant engaged in either concern of the Registrar, it was provided by this Tribunal that a breach of any of the conditions would result in an immediate forfeiture of the Applicant's salesperson's licence. The Tribunal, therefore, finds that the public is adequately protected with this provision.

4. All transactions of trade, purchase or sale of motor vehicles are to be approved and verified by the Sales Manager, prior to the Applicant closing any deal with prospective buyers and/or sellers.

The Registrar's concern with this provision was that it does not prevent the Applicant from working as the Sales Manager. Further, this required a non-party to the proceedings to act in accordance with this condition of the Applicant's registration. The Tribunal feels that the Registrar's position in this regard may be stretching the bounds of reality. This condition is very clear to both the Applicant and any dealer that may employ the Applicant. Just as one cannot be judge in one's own case, the Applicant as a salesperson could not approve and verify his own transaction. He must present it to a Sales Manager, which, by necessary implication, means that he must bring it to another person who is a Sales Manager of the dealer. To do otherwise would be contrary to the intention of the condition and Vice-Chair, Aouad, has made provision for this by providing that the Applicant's licence would be forfeited forthwith if the condition were breached.

5. The Applicant is to inform any prospective employers of the limitations on his licence.

Although there was no argument made against this condition, it is noteworthy that the Applicant has this responsibility. He would, therefore, be required to notify any prospective employers of each and every limitation and condition on his licence. This would put any employer on notice and it would be in the best interest of the Applicant to ensure that this was done. This is a condition of his licence and if he failed to inform any prospective employer, he would forfeit his licence.

6. The Applicant shall advise the dealer employing him that the dealer is required to notify the Registrar, in writing, within thirty days of offering employment to the Applicant that the dealer is aware of the restrictions imposed on the Applicant's licence.

The Registrar's argument against this condition is that it is a further attempt to bind the contact of a non-party to the proceedings. Moreover, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act requires the dealer to notify the Registrar, in writing, within five days, of the commencement or termination of employment, appointment or authorization of its sales people.

To address the first issue, it is in the Applicant's best interest to make sure that the dealer employing him gives the required notice to the Registrar. The Order is not binding the dealer, but is binding the Applicant to advise the dealer that he must notify the Registrar in writing. There are no sanctions attributed to the dealer if he does not comply, however, there are serious sanctions against the Applicant. It is, therefore, in the Applicant's best interest to make sure that the dealer complies with notification to the Registrar or the Applicant would be the one in breach of the condition and forfeit his salesperson's licence. It is forcing the Applicant to make sure there is compliance with the Order.

Dealing with the second part of that argument, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act requires the dealer to notify the Registrar of certain events within five days. The thirty days, which is mentioned in the decision of this Tribunal, does not extend the time for reporting as required under the Act. The Act takes precedence over this condition and, therefore, the Applicant is not relieved of his obligation to comply with the time limits in the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The Applicant correctly states that the legislation does not provide for an automatic stay on the filing of the appeal and therefore the Registrar must prove that such a stay should be granted. The basis for proving this is by satisfying the three tests set out in RJR MacDonald.

This Tribunal holds that the Registrar has not met the second stage of the test. There was no evidence that any past action of the Applicant had harmed any consumer. There were no criminal charges against the Applicant or any losses to any consumer. Even if successful at the appeal the Registrar has not established that the granting of the Applicants salesperson registration on the terms and conditions as imposed by the Tribunal would cause any harm to the public. Thus the Registrar has failed to meet the definition of irreparable harm as found in RJR MacDonald. As the Registrar has not satisfied the second required test it is not necessary for the Tribunal to proceed to the third test.

DECISION

For the reasons stated above, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7 (9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs that there shall not be a stay of its Order issued herein on October 11, 2002, respecting the issuing of a salespersons licence subject to the terms and conditions set out in the Tribunal's Reasons for Decision and Order.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- 1) Notice of Suspension of Driver's Licence effective September 28, 2001 issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- 2) Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal November 6, 2002, filed by the Applicant.
- 3) Summary of Case File introduced by the Respondent
- 4) Certified Copy of the Applicant's Driver Record from the Ministry of Transportation.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 69 year old retired fire fighter had his driver's licence suspended for 15 months by the Ministry of Transportation on October 12, 1999, as a result of a conviction for impaired driving on September 4, 1999. His licence was reinstated on December 1, 2001, but again suspended September 10, 2001 for medical reasons.

The Ministry had previously received a Medical Report on August 26, 1997, from Physician #1, a cardiologist, detailing the Applicant's history of two myocardial infarctions, a cardiac arrest and a bout of Delirium Tremens, earlier that month. The Applicant developed an organic brain syndrome as a result of cerebral anoxia during the cardiac arrest.

The Applicant was under the care of a psychiatrist and a neurologist because of his confusion and problems with orientation, judgement and memory. Physician #1 stated in his opinion the Applicant was unfit to drive a vehicle at that time.

A psychologist's report on October 22, 1997, indicated the Applicant's cognitive function had improved considerably. She attributed this mainly to reduced alcohol consumption.

Physician #1 reported in January 1998 that the Applicant had undergone bypass surgery and was doing very well. His cardiogram was normal; he was free of angina and had no symptoms of cardiac failure. The only response to all of this from the Ministry was on June 5, 1998, requesting an update assessment from a neurologist. There is no record of this being received.

On July 5, 2001, the Ministry requested an up-to-date assessment from a physician specializing in alcohol addiction. Following receipt of an Alcohol Assessment form on July 23, 2001, which recommended abstinence, the Ministry requested that liver function tests be done. The result of a test done on July 23, 2001 was received and the MCV test was 95, which is in a normal range.

On September 14, 2001, the Ministry, on a recommendation from the MAC, again suspended the Applicant's driver's licence. The reasoning was that the Applicant has a long history of excessive alcohol consumption and continues to drink. The MAC also added that he had one episode of D.T.'s, a drinking and driving conviction and one collision.

The Applicant and his wife gave evidence that they believed the episode in the hospital was a reaction to morphine, which he had experienced before.

There is no record of the Applicant ever having had a collision and he denies it. The Applicant and his wife both testified that he drinks a maximum of three beers in the afternoon while he's refinishing antique furniture.

The Ministry informed the Applicant on December 13, 2001, that his licence would remain under suspension until a satisfactory detailed report was received from an addictions medical specialist. This report must include results of a complete physical examination, MCV and GGT interpretations, alcohol history, confirmation of an alcohol treatment program and abstinence from alcohol for a period of 12 months.

The Applicant saw an Addictions specialist on August 9, 2002 and had two more MCV and GGT blood tests, which were all normal. The specialist did not really add anything new and said he would leave it up to the Ministry to decide the case on its own merit.

The Ministry repeated the same demands as before in letters to the Applicant on September 13, October 8 and November 19, 2002. The Applicant visited the specialist again on October 30 and had the blood tests repeated. They were still normal and the physician recommended the Applicant go ahead with the Appeal process.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal found this to be a rather unusual case, in that no action was taken by the Ministry when Medical Reports were received in the fall of 1997, indicating the Applicant had significant physical and mental problems. His cardiologist reported that the Applicant had recently suffered 2 myocardial infarctions and a cardiac arrest. He considered the Applicant to be totally unfit to drive a motor vehicle. The cardiologist also stated the Applicant was being treated by a psychiatrist and a neurologist because of significant problems with orientation, memory and judgement.

Eight months later, on June 8, 1998, the Ministry requested an up-to-date, detailed assessment from a neurologist. The letter noted that this assessment had to be received by July 31, 1998 or his driver's licence would be suspended. The Applicant had now been driving for several months without any apparent problems.

In October 1999 the Applicant was charged and convicted of impaired driving and his licence was suspended for 15 months. The licence was reinstated in January 2001 and then re-suspended in October 2001 for apparent problems in the past.

In spite of several normal bio-chemical markers and two visits to a specialist in alcohol addictions, with no recommendations, except to try the appeal process, the Ministry refuses to reinstate his licence. The same demands are repeated several times about seeing an addictions specialist, having more bio-chemical markers, a relapse prevention program and a twelve month period of alcohol abstinence.

The Applicant testified and his wife confirmed that his only drinking is two to three beers in the afternoon, while he is refinishing furniture. The consistently normal biochemical markers verify that the Applicant is not doing any heavy drinking.

The Applicant has not demonstrated any problem with alcohol in the past 3 years. The Tribunal can not understand why the MAC recommended the second suspension, months after reinstating his licence, when nothing really happened. There does not appear to be any evidence to warrant the strong stance being taken at the present time by the MAC in refusing to reinstate his licence according to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 23, 2001 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

By the Respondent:

Exhibit #5: Responding Party's Motion Record received November 27, 2002

FACTS:

The Applicant, by its Notice of Appeal, dated June 13, 2002, has appealed to the Ontario Superior Court of Justice, Divisional Court. There is no date scheduled for the hearing of this Appeal.

Applicant's Affidavit Evidence:

Affidavit of Christina Veras

In support of the Application, to stay the order, the Applicant filed the affidavits of Christina Veras and Carlos Veras. These affidavits were not cross-examined upon and contain the following assertions.

In her affidavit, Christina Veras stated that she is the President of Delta Minivan and Cars Inc., and has held that position since the company's incorporation in 1997, when it was also registered as a motor vehicle dealership. The dealership is located at a high traffic intersection in the City of Cambridge. Mrs. Veras further stated in her affidavit that she appeared before this Tribunal on May 6, 2002 on an appeal from the Proposal from the Registrar to revoke the registration of Delta Minivan and Cars Inc. In attendance at that hearing was Mary Jane South, the Deputy Registrar for OMVIC. Mrs. Veras stated that she had no prior knowledge of the Registrar's intention to call nine witnesses. She asked the Chair of the Tribunal for an adjournment so that she might present a character witness of her own who had purchased a vehicle from the dealership that had a rolled back odometer. Mrs. Veras also stated that she would have called a former auditor for the Provincial Sales Tax department to testify on her behalf, as to whether the dealership maintained proper book keeping records.

The Tribunal denied Mrs. Veras' adjournment request. However, Mrs. Veras did enter into an agreed statement of facts that was prepared by her and the Registrar.

Mrs. Veras stated that she disputes the testimony of David Wilson, an OMVIC Investigator, at the appeal hearing. She stated that she had no knowledge of the rolling back of odometers at the dealership, and that at the time that Mr. Wilson served her with the documents regarding the revocation, he told her that he did not believe that she knew anything about the odometer rollbacks.

Regarding the testimony of Ms. South which was that Mrs. Veras should have been following Mr. Veras actions very closely as a result of his known past actions in rolling back odometers, Mrs. Veras stated that there had been no problems for a long time and that she was exercising diligence. However, she gave no examples of her diligence in her affidavit.

In referring to the findings of the Tribunal, Mrs. Veras stated that the relevant sections of the Act, which she had allegedly contravened, dealt with the operating of a business with honesty and integrity, not negligence. Furthermore she indicated that there were no facts before the Tribunal at the appeal hearing that cast doubt on her honesty or integrity. She stated in her affidavit that she was not checking odometers.

Regarding the irreparable harm that would be caused, Mrs. Veras stated that the damage to the company reputation, and loss of referral business would be harmful, due to the fact that her business was well known in the City of Cambridge. The company had compensated customers whose vehicles had rolled back odometers, and had honoured the warranty claims of customers. The current closure of the business has caused financial hardship for all concerned, and if it continues, the company may be forced to shut down due to mounting expenses, financial damages, and a lack of revenue.

As for balance of convenience, Mrs. Veras stated that the status of their employee, Mr. Reaman, who was hired in September 2002, would be made permanent if Delta Minivan and Cars were to reopen.

Affidavit of Carlos Veras

The Applicant presented the Affidavit of Carlos Veras in reply to the affidavits of OMVIC inspectors Louise Gingras and Dave Wilson, which refer to a July 2002 site visit to the premises of Delta Minivans and Cars. Mr. Veras stated that he was on the premises that day doing construction work on the property, which he owns.

Mr. Veras stated that there is signage on the building indicating that the business is closed, and advising customers to wait until it re-opens. He stated that when Ms. Gingras saw him on the site, she pressed him for information regarding whether there were any vans for sale, to which he told her that the business was closed and may re-open in a few weeks. Ms. Gingras continued to ask about a vehicle on site, and he provided her with a price and mileage. The vehicle is still on the site, and Mr. Veras stated that he was in no way attempting to sell these vehicles, and that the business was closed.

Affidavit of Christina Veras in Response

In her affidavit in response to the affidavit of Mary Jane South, Mrs. Veras disputes Ms. South's claim that at the appeal hearing before the Tribunal, the Applicant knew that the Respondent would be calling witnesses. It was Mrs. Veras' recollection that since an agreed upon statement of facts was filed, no witnesses would be necessary or called. She further stated that the Respondent pressured them into agreeing to the statement of facts under the threat of facing the costs of calling fourteen witnesses. Mrs. Veras stated that she was surprised when the Respondent called nine witnesses. She believed that since there were so many witnesses, they would not all be heard in one day; that her adjournment request would be granted and that she would be able to call her own supporting witnesses.

Respondent's Affidavit Evidence:

The Respondent filed affidavits from Mary Jane South, Deputy Director, OMVIC, and OMVIC inspector Louise Gingras, and investigator Dave Wilson. These affidavits were not cross-examined upon and contain the following assertions.

Affidavit of Mary Jane South

Ms. South stated in her affidavit that the allegations in the Proposal to revoke the registrations of the Applicant relate to twenty instances of odometer tampering by Carlos Veras. Furthermore, at the May 6th 2002 appeal hearing, Mr. Veras consented to the revocation of his registration as a dealer. Also at the commencement of that hearing, Mrs. Veras signed an agreed statement of facts, which was entered into evidence before the Tribunal. Included in that statement of facts were the uncontested facts that there were a total of twenty vehicles that had odometers rolled back, including fourteen which had already been sold to unsuspecting purchasers. Restitution has been made to these fourteen purchasers.

Ms. South further stated that at the time the Proposal was served, the Applicant also received a copy of the Tribunal's information booklet, which outlined the procedures and processes for appealing a decision of OMVIC, and specifically, the rules regarding the process of subpoenaing witnesses to hearings. Ms. South believed that the Applicant was fully aware and ought to have known that witnesses could be called to testify at their appeal hearing. Ms. South insisted that at no time did she attempt to convince the Applicant not to seek an adjournment.

Ms. South stated that she previously issued a Proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicant in 1998, and the Commercial Registrations Appeal Tribunal (CRAT) heard the Appeal of that Proposal. A decision was released on June 25, 1998. Among the findings of that Tribunal was that it was Mr. Veras who controlled the business at that time. The current Applicant was registered in October of 1998, under certain conditions, including an agreement to disclose all material facts about the vehicles they sell to their customers.

Carlos Veras was ultimately convicted of a number of criminal offences, and had his registration as a dealer revoked.

Ms. South detailed the history of the past conduct of Mr. Veras, and expressed concern regarding the present situation whereas Mrs. Veras should have been aware of the situation, and should have taken steps to prevent it from occurring again. It is for this reason that the Registrar believed the public was at risk from this dealership.

Affidavit of Louise Gingras

In her affidavit, Inspector Gingras stated that she attended at the Applicant's premises on July 4, 2002, where she observed that there was an electronic sign on the lot, as well as several vehicles that were parked on the premises facing the street. She noticed that the dealership office was locked, but there was a phone number to call for information.

On her way back to her car, she happened to encounter Carlos Veras. Inspector Gingras asked Mr. Veras about a particular van on the premises, and Mr. Veras replied that the van belonged to him, and that he was the owner of Delta Minivan and Cars Inc. Mr. Veras further stated to her that the business was closed due to construction, but she could have a look at the van however he could not sell it to her for two weeks.

Mr. Veras also provided Inspector Gingras with the price, model name, and approximate mileage for the vehicle. He further indicated that he could obtain financing for her if necessary at a good rate. Inspector Gingras concludes in her affidavit that based upon this incident, the Applicant was acting as a motor vehicle dealer without the benefit of registration.

Affidavit of Dave Wilson

Inspector Wilson stated in his affidavit that he attended at the Applicant's premises on July 4, 2002 with Inspector Gingras. At the premises, he observed a large electronic screen displaying advertisements on behalf of Delta Minivans and Cars. This screen listed two vehicles for sale, with model details and prices, and the message that the grand opening was coming soon. Inspector Wilson also noticed vehicles that he described in his affidavit as for sale on the premises, and he took several photographs of them, and the electronic sign (exhibit 5 appendices A and B).

Applicant's Argument:

The Applicant argued that the Supreme Court of Canada set out three tests to successfully stay an order in the RJR - MacDonald Inc. v. Canada (A-G) (1991) 82 D.L.R. (4th) 385 at 405, there were three tests that had to be met in order to be successful in this Motion. The tests are as follows:

1. Is there a serious question to be tried?
2. Would the Applicant suffer irreparable harm if the Application were refused?
3. Would the Applicant or the Respondent suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the remedy pending a decision?

In regard to the serious issue test, the Applicant argued that this is a very low threshold to meet. It is not meant to be an in-depth analysis of the merits of the case, but a preliminary assessment that the Appeal is neither frivolous nor vexatious.

The Applicant argued that under s. 5(1) of the Act the only conduct that is relevant in this case is the conduct of the sole officer of the corporation, Christina Veras. The conduct of Carlos Veras should not be considered. The Applicant further argued that the denial of an adjournment request made by Christina Veras at the May 6, 2002 hearing which resulted in the Applicant not producing any witnesses, and being unprepared for the witnesses of the Respondent, was a very serious issue, that had a great impact on the outcome of the hearing. The failure to grant an adjournment irreparably prejudiced the Applicant, and was contrary to the principles of Natural Justice.

Furthermore, the Applicant argued that if the Tribunal found that Mrs. Veras had knowledge of the actions of Mr. Veras, such a finding was unsupported since there was no evidence produced at the hearing that would have supported this finding. The Tribunal found that Mrs. Veras was negligent in her handling of the matter. It made her liable on the basis of vicarious liability as the sole corporate director of the dealership for the actions of an employee. The Tribunal then made a finding of a lack of honesty and integrity as described by the Act.

The Applicant argued that irreparable harm would be caused to the business if a stay of proceedings was not granted, since the Applicant has no remedy and cannot collect any damages if the court appeal is successful. The affidavit of Christina Veras describes the financial damages the dealership has suffered, among others, and the financial data produced describe losses of up to $40,000 a month.

The Applicant argued that the balance of convenience was in their favour, since there is a public interest in addressing the issues raised by the findings of the Tribunal at the appeal hearing. Specifically, that the finding that Christina Veras was at fault for the conduct of her husband, was flawed, and that she was “at the heart of the problem” was wrong. Furthermore, the lack of opportunity for the Applicant to present witnesses at the appeal hearing would have changed the outcome of the matter.

Respondent's Argument:

The Respondent argued that in order to apply the test of Section 5 (1) of the Act, all sections of the Act must be applied in full. Specifically, 5(1)c refers to applicants that are corporations, and (d) is carrying on activities that are in contravention of the Act.

At the appeal hearing the Tribunal made a finding that there was de facto control of the dealership by Carlos Veras, a situation that Christina Veras had allowed to occur. The Respondent also disputed the Applicant's claim that it was denied the opportunity to call witnesses. The procedures were open and established.

The Respondent argued that as a result of the Applicant's actions, irreparable harm has in fact been done to the vehicle purchasers, the industry, as well as to public confidence. Vehicles having incorrect odometers will be resold, and future purchasers may prove to ultimately be unknowing victims of the tampering. The prejudice in this case is the harm to the public, since the Registrar represents the public interest.

The Law

Section 25 (1) of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act states:

Unless it is expressly provided to the contrary in the Act under which the proceeding arises, an appeal from a decision of a Tribunal to a Court or other appellate tribunal operates as a stay in the matter except where the Tribunal or the Court or other body to which the appeal is taken otherwise orders.

Section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act as amended states:

Even if a registrant appeals from an order of the Tribunal under section 11 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 the order takes effect immediately, but the Tribunal may grant a stay until disposition of the appeal.

Metropolitan Stores (MTS) Ltd. v Manitoba Food and Commercial Workers, Local 832 (1987) 38 D.L.R. (4th) 321 sets out a three stage test in determining whether or not a stay should be granted. This test was adopted by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General) (1994) 1 S.C.R. 311.

The three-stage test is as follows:

1. First test: A preliminary assessment must be made of the merits of the case to ensure that there is a serious question to be tried.
2. Second test: It must be determined whether the Applicant would suffer irreparable harm if the application were refused.

3. Third Test: An assessment must be made as to which of the parties would suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the remedy pending a decision.

ANALYSIS:

The issue to be determined by this Tribunal is whether or not to exercise its discretion to grant a stay of the decision of this Tribunal pending the disposition of the appeal of the Tribunal's decision, which ordered the Registrar to carry out the proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicant.

The Applicant is only entitled to the relief of a stay if it can satisfy all three of the tests as enunciated by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra. The Tribunal will consider each of the three stages of the tests having completed a thorough review of the affidavit evidence, the law and the submissions of Counsel in their argument during the motion.

1. Serious issue test:

In determining whether or not there is a serious issue to be appealed the Tribunal is not put in the position of judging on the merits of the appeal itself. The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra cites at paragraph 44 the dictum of Lord Diplock from the American Cyanamid Co. Ethicon Ltd. (1975) A.C.396 case in which he states that the applicant need no longer demonstrate a strong prima facie case. Rather it would suffice if he or she could satisfy the court that the case is not frivolous or vexatious; in other words, that there is a serious question to be tried. It is the role of this Tribunal to make a preliminary assessment of this point to determine if there is an arguable case. Even if the Tribunal should find, based upon its own assessment, that it is unlikely that the appeal will be successful, the Tribunal would still find this stage of the test has been satisfied if the issue before the appeal court is not frivolous or vexatious. This stage of the test requires a low threshold for success.

The Tribunal accepts the arguments presented by Counsel for the Applicant, and the Tribunal finds that there is a serious issue to be argued before the appeal court. The Tribunal finds that the issues at stake in this matter are inherently serious.

2. Irreparable harm test:

The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra provided a definition of irreparable harm at paragraph 59; Irreparable refers to the nature of the harm suffered rather than its magnitude. It is harm which either cannot be quantified in monetary terms or which cannot be cured, usually because one party cannot collect damages from the other. The Supreme Court then at paragraph 58 characterizes the nature of this stage of the test as follows:

At this stage the only issue to be decided is whether a refusal to grant relief could so adversely affect the applicants own interests that the harm could not be remedied if the eventual decision on the merits does not accord with the result of the interlocutory application.

The undisputed affidavit evidence of Mrs. Veras was that the dealership was suffering ongoing financial losses, which could not be recovered, either from the Respondent, or through future sales. Furthermore, the Applicant speculated that the dealership might fail as a result of these losses. The Tribunal was presented with the company's financial position. The Registrar did not challenge the reason why the Applicant is still paying rent to Carlos Veras for the premises or why it is paying for advertising for an inoperative business. Thus, in these circumstances, the Applicant deserves the benefit of the doubt. The Tribunal therefore finds that there is in fact irreparable harm being done to the Applicant, and has therefore met the second part of the test.

3. Balance of Inconvenience test:

The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra provided a definition of balance of inconvenience:

The third branch of the test, requiring an assessment of the balance of inconvenience to the parties, will normally determine the result in applications involving Charter rights. A consideration of the public interest must be taken into account in assessing the inconvenience, which it is alleged will be suffered by both parties. These public interest considerations will carry less weight in exemption cases than in suspension cases. When the nature and declared purpose of legislation is to promote the public interest, a motions court should not be concerned whether the legislation has in fact this effect. It must be assumed to do so. In order to overcome the assumed benefit to the public interest arising from the continued application of the legislation, the applicant who relies on the public interest must demonstrate that the suspension of the legislation would itself provide a public benefit.

The Tribunal notes that this case does not involve the Applicant's Charter Rights. Even were it to involve such rights, no notice was provided as required by the Rules of Practice of this Tribunal. The RJR MacDonald decision places the burden of proof squarely on the Applicant, which must show that the suspension of the legislation during the stay provides a public benefit. The Tribunal is not persuaded that the Applicant has shown a public benefit.

The Applicant argues that the public interest would be served by a stay in order to correct the original decision of the Tribunal, which in the Applicant's view was flawed. This would include the denial of the above mentioned adjournment request, so that the Applicant could present witnesses as to Mrs. Veras character, and to correct the Tribunal's finding of fact that it was Christina Veras, not Carlos Veras, who was at fault, and responsible for the actions of the corporation. As well a stay would permit the Applicant to carry on business and thus make one of their employees permanent.

The Tribunal is not persuaded that these arguments are in fact valid public interest concerns. They appear to be private interests, which the Applicant has characterized as public. Moreover, the Applicant did not establish that it complied with the Tribunal's Rules of Practice regarding adjournments since no motion was brought seeking an adjournment on notice to the parties at least ten days prior to the hearing.

The Tribunal also remains unconvinced as to how Christina Veras would run the operation in the future in a manner that was consistent with the Act. There was no evidence as to what specific steps she would take, or has taken, to verify that the odometers on the vehicles offered for sale by Delta Mini Vans and Cars are in fact accurate.

The Tribunal was also concerned that the Applicant does not appear to be abiding by the original May 6, 2002 Order. The Affidavit evidence of the OMVIC investigation by Louise Gingras and Dave Wilson would make it appear that the Applicant was attempting to carry on business. The photographs taken at the place of business include pictures of vehicles with large price stickers on them. They also show vehicles adorned with streamers on the antennae which would draw the public's attention to them. This evidence was most compelling and was not adequately answered by the Applicant.

The Applicant did argue that these photographs and the events of the investigation described a business that was not actually operating at the time, but it was anticipating a re-opening pending the successful outcome of this Motion. Further more there was no evidence to show that any vehicles had actually been sold by the Applicant after the Order had been made. Nevertheless, the Tribunal considers this resolution of this issue to be less than satisfactory, and finds the circumstances suspicious.

The evidence at this hearing was that the odometers of twenty vehicles had been tampered with such that the distance traveled had been misrepresented to many members of the public. The Tribunal finds that this is a serious matter of significant public interest. The actual harm done to the purchasers of those vehicles and the greater public at large far outweighs any harm suffered by the Applicant.

Furthermore, the Tribunal rejects the argument that the Applicant was dealt with at the May 6, 2002 appeal hearing in any manner that would suggest damage to the public interest. In fact, there was no evidence at this hearing to suggest that prior to the hearing the Applicant did not receive the usual information. The evidence was to the contrary. The Tribunal can also take notice of its administrative process, which is to always furnish an appellant with the appropriate brochure and the Tribunal's rules. It is the Applicant's sole fault that it attended the hearing without any witnesses and then voluntarily entered into an agreed statement of facts.

In order to come to a decision on granting of the stay, the Tribunal must weigh the balance of inconvenience between the parties. It is not for this Tribunal to review the original findings of fact based upon the evidence presented at the May 6, 2002 appeal hearing; evidence which was not before the Tribunal hearing this motion for stay.

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar's evidence disclosing the large number of individuals affected by the actions of the applicant warrants the continued protection of the public. The Tribunal finds that the balance of inconvenience has thus been suffered by the vehicle purchasing public, and not the Applicant. Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not met the third part of this test.

The Tribunal further notes that the Applicant has failed to show how it could continue to operate the business and protect the public without the participation of Carlos Veras. Since the Applicant indicates that Carlos Veras owns the land upon which the used car business operates and is actively involved on an on-going basis in construction on the premises, a conditional registration is not appropriate.

The Applicant may consider section 8 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, since it provides for a further application for registration upon new or other evidence or where it is clear that material circumstances have changed.

This Tribunal, as stated above, must apply the three-part test as outlined by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald. Therefore, the findings of the Tribunal at the May 6, 2002 Appeal hearing must stand.

ORDER:

For the reasons stated above, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7 (9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, as amended the Tribunal dismisses the Applicant's motion seeking a stay of its Order issued on May 6, 2002.

There shall be no order as to costs.

FACTS:

The Applicants' witnesses were Randall and Lucille Wilson. The witnesses for the Program were Douglas Irvine, a warranty representative with the Program or the Alberta warranty program since 1979, and Brian Haskett, the author of the Decision, the regional manager of the London office of the Program since 1994, the operations manager of the Program from 1992 to 1994, and a member of the high-rise condominium group with the Program from 1988 to 1992.

The date of possession of the house at 16 Trillium Crt., Guelph was September 6, 1995, as shown on the Certificate of Completion and Possession, Exhibit 14.

Cold Cellar Water Penetration

Mrs. Wilson stated that the cold cellar is under the front porch. The other areas of water penetration had been fixed. The Program was advised of the complaint in writing on July 11, 1996, as set out in exhibit 19. The last time that Mrs. Wilson observed a water leak in the cold cellar was in 1999, when she observed a puddle of water the size of a teacup.

Mr. Wilson could not recall when there was last water penetration into the cold cellar. In 1999 and 1998, Mrs. Wilson observed a water puddle maybe once. On February 27, 1997, the Applicants telephoned Oscar Gatto to observe water penetration in the cold cellar. Mr. Gatto failed to attend to inspect. He testified that the Added Party and the Applicants were in litigation at the time. On February 28, 1997, the Applicants advised the Program of the water penetration. The Program chose not to inspect at that time. Doug Irvine inspected the house on behalf of the Program on December 17, 1996, and found that cold cellar water entry was not evident, as stated at tab 8 of exhibit 3. Brian Haskett testified that Mrs. Wilson made no mention of a leak in the cold cellar during his inspection. Mrs. Wilson stated that the Applicants have not determined where the leak is coming from and do not know what repair is appropriate.

Porch Column

On July 11, 1996, the Applicants complained that the pillars are cracking at the bottom, as set out in exhibit 19. Further, on November 4, 1996, the Applicants complained of mildew on the columns, as shown in exhibit 30. The Applicants cut a rectangle about 1 foot by 2 feet in size out of the cladding of the column approximately a foot above its base. The material, exhibit 66, consists of small pieces of badly-damaged plywood. Mrs. Wilson admitted on cross-examination that only one of the four sides of the cladding of the column appears to be water damaged. She stated that there is no failure of the column as a load-bearing structure.

The letter from the architect to the Added Party, exhibit 21, recommended that the front porch columns be repaired. Oscar Gatto testified that the Added Party cut off the bottom of the plywood cladding, applied sealant where the column meets the floor, and attached new trim to the outside of the bottom of the column. Mr. Gatto also applied foam around the rain-water pipe that passes through the column where the pipe exits the ceiling of the cold cellar. He said that the styrofoam around the pipe was put there previously, before pouring the concrete of the porch above. Mr. Haskett states in the Decision that repair work done by the builder in November 1996 did eliminate the contact the wood cladding was making with the concrete porch and that the repair met the requirements of the Ontario Building Code. According to Mr. Haskett, the inside of the column, shown on photograph 6 of exhibit 59, reveals no water stain on the floor and no damage to the bottom of the structural wood. He concluded that no water is wicking up from the bottom.

Porch Roof

The Applicants advised the Program on July 11, 1996, that the drain on the porch roof is too high and water is not draining properly from the roof, as set out in exhibit 19.

The architect states in exhibit 21 that the small amount of ponding which does occur on the front porch roof should evaporate quickly. He writes that this often occurs next to roof drains and he does not recommend any repair. Mr. Haskett testified that the wood of a new one-storey house will normally shrink about $\frac{1}{4}$ "; the plastic drain will not shrink and will end up $\frac{1}{4}$ " higher than the surrounding roof surface.

Photographs 8 and 9 of exhibit 59 show damage to the wood moulding under the flashing at the corners of the front of the porch roof. Mr. Haskett testified that this problem was first brought to the attention of the Program in July 2001. Mrs. Wilson argued that the wood moulding should have been made of aluminum since the building contract, exhibit 6, specifies that soffit should be made of aluminum. Mr. Haskett stated that the wood moulding part could not have been made of aluminum,

Windows

By letter dated July 11, 1996, exhibit 19, the Applicants advised the Program of various problems with the windows including the following: caulking around the windows has not adhered, primer between the windows is peeling away, and main bathroom window sticks.

The Applicants argued that the windows were improperly installed in openings that are too small. Thus, windows stick. As shown in exhibit 10, Mrs. Wilson found several instances where the window openings specified on the architect's drawings, exhibit 4, were smaller than the rough stud openings specified by the window manufacturer in exhibit 7. The Applicants did not measure the window openings before window installation. On December 17, 1996, Doug Irvine opened and closed the main washroom window with little or no resistance, as set out at tab 8 of exhibit 3. The Decision states that during the re-inspection on July 16, 2001, several windows were opened and closed and their operation was found to be acceptable. Mr. Haskett testified that the framers who install windows check the rough stud opening size specified by the window manufacturer, not the opening size shown on an architect's drawing, since the windows provided may not be the same size as the windows that the architect put on his drawing. According to Mr. Haskett, the windows fit into their openings.

The architect advised the Added Party by letter, exhibit 21, that where sealant pulled away from painted steel lintels over windows and doors, the joints were quite small, less than $\frac{1}{4}$ ". The Applicants argued that caulking was defective because caulking joints were too narrow as a result of windows installed in improperly small openings. Doug Irvine states at tab 8 of exhibit 3 that he found all present caulking of windows and doors on December 17, 1996, acceptable. Mrs. Wilson testified that no maintenance of the caulking was done by the Applicants. There is no complaint of water entry through the caulking. Mr. Haskett stated that caulking is applied between the window and the masonry.

The masonry is put in after the installation of a window in its rough stud opening and the masonry covers the studs. Thus, the quality of caulking is unrelated to the size of the rough stud opening.

Photographs of exhibit 56 show that the primer on some of the windows is now peeling. The primer was put on by the window manufacturer. Doug Irvine stated at tab 8 of exhibit 3 that he inspected all windows from the interior and the exterior where possible and found no peeling primer on December 17, 1996.

Brian Haskett saw a bathroom window and a bedroom window that touched the "j" strip, the fascia board, when fully opened. He said that the windows were not jamming and were not hitting the "j" strip with force. Mr. Gatto argued that if there is any touching of the "j" channel, it is because the Added Party when positioning the windows followed the architect's drawings, exhibit 4, provided by the Applicants.

Mr. Haskett testified that items such as weather stripping not extending to the bottom of certain windows as shown on photograph 4 of exhibit 56 and a protruding divider between windows shown on photograph 11 of exhibit 56 may be defects, but were reported in July 2001, after the one -year warranty period had passed.

Dishwasher Installation

The Applicants argued that the dishwasher was installed in a cabinet opening that is too small. As specified in the agreement between the Applicants and the Added Party, exhibit 6, the Applicants supplied a dishwasher and the Added Party installed it in an island cabinet. The cabinets were provided by Barzotti Woodworking Ltd. Mrs. Wilson measured the depth of the cabinet opening to be 22 ¼". The depth of the dishwasher was not measured. The height and the width of the dishwasher are not an issue. The Applicants complain that the dishwasher is not installed flush with the neighbouring cabinets and that there are holes at the sides between the floor and the dishwasher. The photographs of exhibit 57 show that flanges behind the door of the dishwasher and at its sides were attached to neighbouring cabinets. Mr. Irvine testified that the dishwasher is properly installed.

Furnace Installation

The furnace is working properly. Its location is not in accordance with the architect's drawing, exhibit 4. As a result, access to the water heater is now restricted by the furnace venting. A repairman had to reschedule a hot water tank repair to have time to take off the furnace venting to access the tank. Thus, the Applicants were without hot water for three or four days. Mr. Haskett said that the first notice of this problem was given to the Program in February 2002.

Bathroom Basin

Mr. Wilson testified that there is a hairline crack from left to right in a china basin of standard size in the en suite bathroom. The complaint is included in the Certificate of Completion and Possession, exhibit 14, and in a letter to the Program dated July 4, 2001, exhibit 49. Mr. Gatto stated that the basin was replaced in November 1995 by Star Mechanical.

Chrome Drain and Stopper

The Amended Statement of Adjustments, exhibit 71, sets out an additional payment of $160.00 from the Applicants to the Added Party for "brass fixtures". Mr. Haskett stated that "fixtures" would include a drain and a stopper. The Applicants complained to the Program on July 11, 1996, in exhibit 19, that they wanted a brass drain and a brass stopper in the powder room, but the builder put in a chrome drain and a chrome stopper. Oscar Gatto said that Mr. Wilson was given a choice of chrome or brass and said, "do what you wish". Mr. Wilson only recalled being told by Oscar Gatto that a brass stopper would pit.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal set aside, confirm, or modify the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicants' claim for compensation under section 14 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act?

LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, states the following:

- 13.(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
 - (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.
 - (2) The warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,
 - (a) defects in materials, design and work supplied by the owner...
 - (3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.
 - (4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.
- 14.(1) Where,
 - (a) a person who has entered into a contract with a vendor for the provision of a home has a cause of action in damages against the vendor for financial loss resulting from the bankruptcy of the vendor or the vendor's failure to perform the contract;
 - (b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty; or

(c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed, the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

16.(3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

Regulation 892 under the Act adds the following:

1. In this Regulation, ...

"major structural defect" means, for the purposes of clause 13(1)(b) of the Act, any defect in work or materials,

(a) that results in failure of the load-bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load-bearing function, or

(b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purposes for which it was intended, ...

14. Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that there will be no water penetration through the basement or foundation of the home for two years after the date upon which the home is completed for possession.

15. (1) In this section,

"building envelope" means the wall and roof assemblies that contain the building space, and includes all those elements of the assembly that contribute to the separation of the outdoor and indoor environments so that the indoor environment can be controlled within acceptable limits;...

(2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;...

(3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession, in respect of homes that were enrolled, or should have been enrolled, after the 31st day of December, 1990.

16. Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990. the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession.

18.(1) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that the vendor shall make no substitutions in those items of construction or finishing for which the purchaser is entitled to make selection pursuant to the purchase agreement without the written consent of the purchaser.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply where,

(a) the purchaser, having been notified, does not make a selection within thirty days after executing the purchase agreement or within such other time period as may be agreed; or

(b) an item selected under clause (a) is not available and the purchaser does not make a selection within seven days of receiving written notice from the vendor or within such other time period as may be agreed that the item is unavailable.

(3) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that where the purchaser fails to make a selection under clause (2)(a) or (b) that the vendor will make a selection on the purchaser's behalf that is of equal or better quality than the original selection as set out in the purchaser agreement.

19. Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that, where the vendor makes a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement that is not an item that is to be selected by the purchaser, the item will be of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement.

20. A claim may be made under subsection 17(1) and subsection 18(1) or section 19 only where,
(a) the transaction closes; and
(b) the claim is made by an owner within one year after the date upon which the home is completed for possession.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Cold Cellar Water Penetration

The Tribunal finds that the alleged water penetration into the cold cellar is not a warrantable item. Mrs. Wilson testified that the last water penetration in to the cold cellar was in 1999, when she observed a puddle of water the size of a teacup. Such water accumulation is minor. The Applicants stated that there was water penetration on February 27, 1997. There appears not to have been significant water accumulation in the cold cellar since that date. On December 17, 1996, Doug Irvine found that cold cellar water entry was not evident. Mr. Haskett stated that Mrs. Wilson made no mention of a leak in the cold cellar during his later inspection. Mrs. Wilson admitted that the Applicants have not determined where the leak is coming from and do not know what repair is appropriate. The burden of proof was on the Applicants. The Tribunal finds that the Applicants failed to satisfy that burden. This part of the Applicants' claim fails.

Porch Column

The Tribunal finds that the porch column cladding was damaged by water. Exhibit 66 shows that one of the four sides of the rectangular column near the bottom is clearly water damaged. No damage to the top of the column has been proved. The Tribunal finds persuasive the argument that all four sides of the column would have been damaged by water if significant amounts of water were flowing within the column from the top. Such water would travel down along the outside of the rain-water pipe or along the inside of the cladding.

The water would gather at the bottom of the column and would damage all four sides of the column at the bottom. Likewise, if water were wicking up from the bottom then all four sides of the column would likely be damaged. There is no water stain on the floor of the inside of the column shown on photograph 6 of exhibit 59.

The Applicants have not proved where the water that damaged the column came from. The water may have come from the outside of the column, as suggested by Counsel for the Program. No defect in the building envelope that would allow water penetration was proved. The Applicants' claim concerning the porch column fails.

Porch Roof

The porch roof is not defective. The architect states in exhibit 21 that the amount of ponding on the roof is small, should evaporate quickly, and often occurs next to roof drains. Mr. Haskett testified that the plastic drain will end up above the surface of the surrounding roof as a result of normal wood shrinkage. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Haskett found no defect. The Tribunal accepts the opinions of the architect, Mr. Irvine, and Mr. Haskett and finds no defect.

Windows

The wood moulding under the flashing at the corners of the front of the porch roof shows damage. The Program was notified of this problem in July 2001. The one-year and two-year warranties under the Act had passed. The wood moulding is not a load-bearing portion of the house. The problem did not materially and adversely affect the use of the house. The damage to the wood moulding does not constitute a major structural defect. The Applicants interpret the building contract as calling for an aluminum moulding. Mr. Haskett testified that the moulding could not have been made of aluminum. If there were a substitution made by the Added Party then the item provided is of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the building contract. Thus, there is no breach of warranty.

The Tribunal finds no evidence that windows stick or that the windows were installed in openings that are too small. The Applicants did not measure the window openings before window installation. Mr. Haskett testified that framers who install windows check the rough stud opening size specified by the window manufacturer, not the opening size shown on an architect's drawing. During the inspection on July 16, 2001, several windows were opened and closed by the representative of the Program and their operation was found to be acceptable.

The Tribunal finds no breach of warranty based on peeling of primer on windows. The primer was applied by the window manufacturer. Mr. Irvine found no peeling of primer on December 17, 1996, over a year after the date of possession. The Tribunal accepts his testimony and finds no warrantable defects in material.

The caulking is not defective. On December 17, 1996, Mr. Irvine found all caulking to be acceptable.

The bathroom window and the bedroom window that touch the "j" strip when fully opened are defective. The defect is minor. It is the result of positioning of the windows in accordance with the architect's drawings supplied by the Applicants. In accordance with subsection 13(2)(a), the Tribunal finds that no warranty applies.

Such items as weather stripping not extending to the bottom of certain windows and a protruding divider between windows were reported after the one-year warranty had passed.

Dishwasher Installation

The Tribunal finds no evidence that the dishwasher was improperly installed. Flanges at the sides of the dishwasher were attached to cabinets neighbouring the dishwasher. The flanges are behind the door of the dishwasher. As a result, the dishwasher door must protrude and cannot be flush with the neighbouring cabinets. Mr. Irvine testified that the dishwasher is properly installed.

Furnace Installation

The furnace installation does not constitute a major structural defect. The Applicants complained to the Program about the furnace after the one-year and two-year warranties had expired. The furnace is working properly. The furnace has no load-bearing function. The Applicants were without hot water for three or four days in part due to the new position of the furnace.

The Tribunal finds that being without water for such a short period does not materially and adversely affect the use of the house for the purpose for which it was intended.

Bathroom Basin

The hairline crack in the bathroom basin is a defect that is not under warranty. The Applicants first advised the Program of the defect in July 2001, long after the one-year warranty had passed.

Chrome Drain & Stopper

The Applicants are entitled to a brass drain and a brass stopper. The Applicants and the Added Party changed the building contract by an Amended Statement of Adjustments to entitle the Applicants to brass fixtures in return for an $160.00 increase in the purchase price. Mr. Haskett stated that "fixtures" would include a drain and a stopper. The Tribunal agrees.

There was a substitution of an item that is not of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the amended purchase agreement.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty

Program to replace the chrome drain and the chrome stopper in the powder room with a brass drain and a brass stopper. Further, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow all of the other Applicants' claims.

OTTAWA CARLETON CONDOMINIUM CORPORATION #581

DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT
TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL DOUGLAS MACKINTOSH, VICE-CHAIR

APPEARANCES JEANINE GOURGEON-LEBRUN, Counsel for the Applicant
JEAN G. LEGAULT, Counsel for the New Home Warranty Program
MORRIS KERTZER, Counsel for the added party
Waterbrook Condominiums Inc.

DATE OF HEARING November 28, 2002 Ottawa

ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant, Ottawa-Carleton Condominium Corporation #581 ("O-CCC No.581"), from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("the Program") set out in a letter dated the 30th July 2002, later amended by a subsequent letter dated the 3rd September 2002.

In its decision, the Program denied the claim by O-CCC No.581 for $247,612 to correct severe condensation and icing on their windows and curtain wall.

When the hearing commenced, the Tribunal found that only half the time needed for a full hearing had been allocated. So it was decided to hear only the preliminary issue of whether or not O-CCC No.581 can claim against the Program after giving a categorical release to the Builder/vendor.

It is not clear if Ms. Gurgeon-Lebrun, the representative for O-CCC No.581, knew of the time shortage before the hearing commenced. However, she was quick to understand and accepted the proposal to address this single issue as a practical solution.

No witnesses were called in the hearing. The evidence considered came entirely from a number of exhibits filed and there were two agreed-upon facts.

RELEVANT FACTS PROVEN:

1. The condominium O-CCC No.581 is an impressive high quality 18-storey building known as "The Commodore" situated at 3106 Carling Avenue in Nepean.

2. The Applicant's claim is that every winter after its registration in the Land Registry Office on 11 April 1996, severe condensation and icing developed on the windows and curtain wall of some of the condominium units.

Under the Condominium Act, the Condominium Corporation is responsible for the windows and the curtain wall, which are part of the common elements of the building.

3. In June 1998 O-CCC No.581 retained Morrison Hershfield to investigate the problem. Their conclusion was that the Fulton Curtain Wall Systems being used were inappropriate for this application and modifications were recommended.
4. Trial modifications to correct the icing problems were carried out with the involvement of three further consultants (two of them from the Program) and two glass companies.
5. In the meanwhile, O-CCC No.581 was negotiating with the builder/vendor, Waterbrook Condominium Inc., (hereinafter "Waterbrook"), which made a series of offers to settle. The first offer came on 15th October 1998 for $10,000 in addition to specified remedial work to be done. . Another offer for $40,000 came at a meeting (at which Alan Stevenson was present) on 16th November 1999. Neither offer was accepted.
6. At a meeting in May 2000, the builder/vendor made an offer of settlement to O-CCC No.581 of $100,000. This offer was not accepted.

However, it is of note that during this negotiation the Program's representative, Alan Stevenson, was present but he did not participate. (That is a fact agreed upon).

7. On 22nd November 2000 the Ottawa-Carleton Condominium Corporation #581 signed a release, which had been drawn up by their own legal counsel, Nelligan Power, as follows:

"RELEASE"

IN CONSIDERATION of payment of the sum of ONE HUNDRED AND EIGHTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($118,000.00), the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, Ottawa-Carleton Condominium Corporation #581 ("O-CCC No.581") hereby releases and forever discharges Waterbrook Condominiums Inc., their directors, officers, employees ("the releasees") from any and all actions, causes of action, claims and demands, for damages related to the repair of defects in the windows which relate to excess condensation or icing of those windows.

AND FOR THE SAID CONSIDERATION O-CCC No.581 further agrees not to make any claim or take or continue any proceedings against any other person or corporation regarding the said matters as a result of which the said person or corporation could or might claim against the Releasees.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED that this said payment is deemed to be no admission whatsoever of liability on the part of the releasees.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF QCCC No.581 has executed this release this 22nd day of November 2000 (three signatures follow, the President, the Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer)".

8. After this release, on 14 December 2000, obviously to clear up any ambiguity, the Applicant's solicitor wrote to the builder/vendor confirming that the release would apply to damage related to the repairs of defects in any of the windows as long as those defects related to the icing problem.
9. 18 months after the release, on 30 April 2002 the Applicant submitted a detailed claim to the Program for $365,612.86 less the amount paid on the release $118,000, making a net claim of $247,612.86.

The claim indicated that the total amount on the invoice was what was necessary to correct the window and patio door icing problems in the Applicant's Commodore Building. Owing to the lapse of 6 years since the registration of the Condominium, the only warranty claim that was not out of time was the seven years for a major structural defect.

10. A fact agreed upon during the hearing by the Applicant, the Program and the added party was, "if there is no release ... if ONHWP is required to pay monies to honour a warranty to Condo-Corpn581, it has a right to pursue repayment of any such monies paid to Condo-Corpn518 from Waterbrook Condominiums Inc. (the Builder)".

THE ISSUE:

The issue is whether the release given by the Applicant to the Builder/vendor, Waterbrook Condominium Inc., precludes the Applicant from making a warranty claim against the Program.

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act ("the Act")

The Act is a remedial consumer protection statute. The Program administers an insurance scheme to protect new homeowners from certain defects in material, and construction. The homeowners pay insurance premiums to the builder, who in turn pays premiums to the Program for coverage of specified problems.

Sec.13 (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner:

(b) that the home is free from major structural defects....

(6)The warranties set out in subsection (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon.

The Ontario Court of Appeal considered the effect of s. 13(6) in Mandos v ONHWP (1995) 86 OAC 382. In that case the Applicants had a builder with whom they had a loose agreement (see 21 Dec '92 CRAT decision) to construct a new home. They terminated the services of their builder but he sued them for $6,902 for work completed. When the Applicants failed to pay the debt, the builder registered a lien against the property. In order to vacate the lien the Applicants settled on a payment of $5,000 to the builder and executed a mutual release drawn up by the builder's solicitor.

Later, the Applicants sought compensation from the Ontario New Home Warranty Program but the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal denied the claim on the basis that the mutual release which they executed cancelled any cause of action against the builder for failure to perform the contract.

When it reached the Court of Appeal, the Court ruled that the Act was remedial legislation and the best interpretation to be given to s. 13(6) was that the warranties contained in section 13(1) continued in force, irrespective of any agreement by the parties to the contrary. The Court continued that if the Legislature had intended that a release would be a bar to any action by an owner for breach of warranties in s. 13(1), it should have provided for the same, and the owners should have been warned of the dangers of entering into such a release.

However, the Legislature has made neither of these changes suggested.

It follows that since the Act is a complete code, providing an owner with payment out of the guarantee fund should settle a s. 13(1) breach of warranty claim. The difference occurs when an owner receives compensation from the builder then a warranty claim continues. This demonstrates that the legislature probably intended the Act to over-ride private agreements.

s. 13 of the Act fortifies this conclusion.

s. 13(4) Any settlement or release does not bar the rights of the corporation unless the corporation has concurred therewith in writing.

To date the Program has not concurred with the release and is therefore not bound by its terms.

On the other hand, the Act allows a private agreement that is arbitrated.

17(4) Every agreement between a vendor and prospective owner shall be deemed to contain a written agreement to submit present or future differences to arbitration, subject to appeal to the Divisional Court and the Arbitration Act applies.

Conciliation is a different matter. It is solely a request that the homeowner can make. The vendor is not entitled to request conciliation under the Act, s. 17(1) The Corporation may, upon request of an owner, conciliate any dispute between the owner and a vendor,

In the present case, the unspoken question between the parties has been the distinction between contracting out before the formation of the contract and contracting out after much of the construction had been completed. This issue was clearly addressed in Mandos (1993) 627 OAC 247 by the Divisional Court which dismissed the distinction.

POSITION OF THE PARTIES:

Ms. Gourgeon-Lebrun for the Applicant, O-CCC No.581, submitted she was under the impression the release had nothing to do with the Program and that the release was necessary to enable them to mitigate their damages which their solicitor had advised them to do. But she never thought they were releasing the Program, as she knew it would cost more than the compensation in the release.

Counsel for the Program while acknowledging their decision letters denied the Applicant's claim because of the Applicant's release of the Builder, Waterbrook Condominium Inc., leaving no live cause of action, urged the Tribunal to distinguish Mandos on the grounds that this particular release is directed to a specific problem.

Counsel for the builder, Waterbrook Condominium Inc, contends that the Applicant had expert reports and had a solicitor for negotiations. He said that the release contained all the necessary components of a binding contract without duress. He submitted that a bargain was struck and that both parties are bound by it.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

In order to protect the homebuyer, the Act contemplates the involvement of the Program in the whole process of a new home being built but the Program did not participate in any conciliation nor in the terms of settlement.

On a plain reading of section 13(6) of the Act, it is clear from the Court of Appeal decision that the warranties in the Act continue despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights that the owner may have. Therefore the Applicant Condominium Corporation may file a claim with the Program.

The release in question is not however without effect as the payment made by the builder attracts s.14 (6) of the Act which provides that the plan must take into consideration "...any benefit, compensation, indemnity payable..." furnished to the person from any source.

INTERIM ORDER:

Accordingly, this tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 9(4) of the Act hereby issues the following interim orders:

1. That the release given by the Applicant O-CCC581 to the added party Waterbrook does not preclude the Applicant from claiming on the warranties set out in s. 3(1) of the Act that are not out of time.
2. That the parties file with the Tribunal by the January 24, 2003 their estimate of the number of days required to complete the hearing with a list of the days in February, March and April 2003 during which they are available to continue the hearing.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE *ONTARIO
NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT*

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

APPEARANCES:
LAURA GIUSTIZIA and MARCELLO GIUSTIZIA, Applicants,
MARCUS A. KNAPP representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program,
LISA VEY, representing Madison Homes Limited, added party

DATE OF
HEARING: January 6, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicants appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated August 21 2002 denying the claim made by the Applicants for delayed closing.

BACKGROUND:

On November 21, 1998, the Applicants executed an agreement of purchase and sale with the added party, Madison Homes Limited (hereinafter "Madison Homes") for the purchase of a new home to be constructed on 39 Moraine Drive, Woodbridge Ontario. The agreement was accepted by Madison Homes on November 23, 1998 and contains a closing date of December 16, 1999.

On August 24, 1999, Madison Homes sent a letter to the Applicants notifying them that the closing date of December 16, 1999 was being extended to April 13, 2000.

On October 1, 1999, the Applicants executed an amendment to the agreement of purchase and sale. This amendment revised the closing date to April 13, 2000 and required Madison Homes to group the three windows in the living room and dining room together.

On January 17, 2000 Madison Homes sent a further letter extending the closing date from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000. The agreement was completed on June 16, 2000.

The Applicants contend that Madison Homes was permitted an extension of 120 days from December 16, 1999 to April 16, 2000 and submit a claim for delayed closing for the additional days from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000.

In its decision letter the Program denied the Applicants claim on the ground that the amendment that the Applicants executed on October 1, 1999 had the effect of revising the closing date to April 16, 2000 therefore the delay was acceptable, as the Applicants had been provided with proper notice of the extension.

THE EVIDENCE

The Applicants appeared in person.

The Program called one witness, Sherri Budgell, a customer service representative.

Lisa Vey gave evidence on behalf of the added party.

Laura Giustizia

Laura Giustizia testified that she was aware that in accordance with Schedule "F" to the agreement of purchase and sale, Madison Homes was entitled to extend the closing date, without her consent, a maximum of 120 days. The agreement of purchase and sale is contained at Tab 1 of the Program's book of documents that was filed and marked as Exhibit Number 3.

Laura Giustizia acknowledges receipt of the correspondence from Madison Homes dated August 24, 1999 and January 17, 2000 whereby the closing date was extended from December 16, 1999 to April 13, 2000 and further extended from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000. These letters are contained at Tabs 2 and 3 of Exhibit Number 3. Laura Giustizia testified that whereas in her view Madison Homes was entitled to extend the closing to April 13, 2000, the extension from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000 was in excess of 120 days and therefore she was entitled to submit a claim for a delayed closing of 65 days.

As it relates to executing the amendment to the agreement of purchase and sale, Laura Giustizia testified that on October 1, 1999 she attended at Madison Homes' office and discussed the previous agreement to group together the three windows in the living room and dining room. During discussions about the revision, a salesperson of Madison Homes prepared an amendment pertaining to the window grouping and advised her that while she was already there, that she should execute the amendment which also included confirmation of the amendment of the closing date. The amendment to the agreement is contained at Tab 2B of Exhibit Number 3.

Laura Giustizia concluded her testimony by stating that she was not advised that it was necessary to take the amendment to a solicitor for review, signed the amendment as a formality and had no intention of waiving any of her rights.

On cross-examination by Mr. Knapp, Laura Giustizia testified that her solicitor reviewed the agreement of purchase and sale and represented her and her husband on the closing of this transaction. Laura Giustizia concluded her cross-examination by stating that she did not contact her solicitor regarding the amendment or the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan and that any questions regarding the expense claimed should be directed to her husband, Marcello Giustizia.

Marcello Giustizia

Marcello Giustizia testified that commencing in January 2000 his family moved into his parent's home and lived with his parents until the transaction was finally completed.

During this time he paid his father $500.00 per week or $2,000.00 per month which was the equivalent of what he would have otherwise been required to pay in rent. Marcello Giustizia further testified that he did not keep records for what he paid his father and that at the time he did not know that he could claim compensation for delayed closing.

On cross-examination by Mr. Knapp, Marcello Giustizia testified that he felt that he was misled. He acknowledged executing the amendment to the agreement of purchase and sale, did not consult legal counsel, believed that Madison Homes could extend the transaction 120 days and saw no reason to question Madison Homes.

In support of the claim for delayed closing the Applicants submitted an Affidavit from Marcello Giustizia's father, Victor Giustizia, indicating that he charged and received the sum of $5,600.00 for rent and storage from April 16, 2000 to June 16, 2000. This Affidavit is contained at Tab 16B of Exhibit Number 3.

Lisa Vey

Lisa Vey testified that she is the construction coordinator for Madison Homes, has been so employed for the past 1 1/2 years and was not involved in this transaction.

Lisa Vey testified that the policy of Madison Homes is that signing of the amendment in question was voluntary and that but for the amendment, Madison Homes would not have been entitled to extend the transaction the additional 65 days.

Lisa Vey concluded her testimony by stating that the Applicants had retained a solicitor and that the solicitor proposed amendments to the initial offer.

Lisa Vey was not cross-examined.

Sherri Budgell

Sherri Budgell has been employed by the Program for 14 years and has been a customer service representative dealing with complaints for delayed closings since 1998.

Sherri Budgell testified as to permissible extensions, the time frames thereto and that for delayed closings a maximum of $5,000.00 could be claimed.

Sherri Budgell testified that due to the amendment, Madison Homes' extension from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000 was permissible and that as there was no evidence that the Applicants executed the amendment under duress, they were not entitled to compensation for delayed closing.

As it relates to the issue of damages, Sherri Budgell testified that the only evidence submitted by the Applicants to the Program consisted of an Affidavit from Victor Giustizia stating that on June 1, 2000 he received the sum of $5,600.00 from the Applicants for rent and storage from April 16, 2000 through June 16, 2000.

Sherri Budgell continued by stating that she would not have approved the Applicants' claim based upon the Affidavit of Victor Giustizia. This would have been insufficient in that when the Program receives a claim where money was paid to a relative she would require particulars such as a lease, cancelled cheques, withdrawal receipts, receipts for utilities and confirmation that the recipient has claimed the income for income tax purposes.

Sherri Budgell concluded her testimony by stating that the Applicants did not provide any evidence to substantiate the costs and that the monies paid were paid for inconvenience.

On cross examination by Laura Giustizia, Sherri Budgell testified that she did not pursue the issue of the Affidavit being insufficient due to the fact that it was determined that Madison Homes' extension was proper and therefore the Applicants were not entitled to advance a claim for delayed closing.

ISSUES:

There are two issues.

The first is whether the Applicants are entitled to advance a claim for delayed closing?

The second is that in the event that the Applicants are entitled to advance a claim for delayed closing, have they proven their damages?

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act are as follows:

Regulation 892

17. (1) Every vendor of a new home of a type referred to in clause (a) or (b) of the definition "home" in section 1 of the Act warrants to the owner that in the event of a delay in closing that is more than five days beyond,

(a) the date originally fixed for the closing of the agreement; or

(b) an extension referred to in clause 3 (a) or (b), the vendor shall compensate the owner for all direct costs caused by the delay in an amount that does not exceed $100 a day for living expenses and $5,000.00 in total.

- 17 (3) Subject to paragraph 5 of the Addendum referred to in paragraph 12 of section 1 Regulation 894, subsection (1) does not apply where,

(a) the vendor extends the closing beyond the original closing date after giving written notice to the purchaser at least sixty-five days before the original closing date; or

(b) the vendor extends the closing for not more than fifteen days beyond the original closing date referred to in clause (a), after giving written notice to the purchaser at least thirty-five days before the original closing date or the extended closing date referred to in clause (a).

THE APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS & FINDINGS:

The salient facts in this matter are not in dispute and can be summarized as follows:

The transaction was originally scheduled to be completed on December 16, 1999 and Madison Homes extended the closing twice. The first was on August 20, 1999 whereby Madison Homes extended the closing to April 13, 2000. The second extension took place on January 17, 2000 whereby Madison Homes extended the closing to June 16, 2000. The closing took place on June 16, 2000.

On October 1, 1999, the Applicants executed an amendment to the agreement of purchase and sale. This amendment refers to the insertion of a new closing date of April 13, 2000 and grouping of three windows in the living room and dining room.

The Applicants' execution of the amendment had the legal effect of revising the closing date in the agreement of purchase and sale to April 13, 2000 thus eliminating any potential delay claim from the original closing date of December 16, 1999 to April 13, 2000.

Madison Homes was legally entitled to extend the closing from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000, an extension of 62 days, provided that it provided the Applicants with notice of at least 65 days prior to the closing date of April 13, 2000 if the extension was for more than 15 days. As notice was sent to the Applicants on January 16, 2000, the Applicants were provided with proper notice of the extension and therefore they are not entitled to claim for delayed closing.

The Applicants testified that at no time did they intend to waive any of their legal rights and that when they executed the amendment, they were not advised to review the same with their lawyer and had no knowledge that by executing the same they were providing Madison Homes with their agreement to the extension.

In this respect the Applicants submit that Madison Homes should have explained to them the significance of the amendment. This is a consistent theme in that, notwithstanding that the Applicants were represented by counsel as early as the time of submitting the agreement of purchase and sale, they maintain that they did not understand the amendment, were unaware of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program and were further unaware, at the relevant time, that they could be compensated for delayed closing.

As noted above, by executing the amendment the Applicants in effect revised the closing date and eliminated the possibility of any delay claim from December 16, 1999 to April 13, 2000.

The Applicants acknowledged that they did not execute the amendment under duress but maintain that had they understood the significance of executing the amendment they would not have executed the same.

The Applicants did not provide the Tribunal with any submission that would enable it to find that the amendment as executed was or should be unenforceable.

As it relates to the issue of assessing the quantum of the Applicants claim for delayed closing, the only documentary evidence submitted to the Tribunal was in the form of an affidavit from Victor Giustizia, which states that " I received payment of $5,600.00 on June 1st, 2001 for rent and storage I charged Marcello and Laura Giustizia to cover the period of April 16th 2000 through June 16, 2000".

The Applicants did not provide any other supporting documentation regarding the amount claimed in the Affidavit. The testimony of Marcello Giustizia of weekly payments to his father is not consistent with the Affidavit in that the appellant acknowledges receipt of one lump sum payment.

Marcello Giustizia was quite candid when he advised the Tribunal that he did not keep records of the money paid to his father and could not provide the Tribunal with receipts if required.

The Tribunal finds that by executing the amendment the Applicants consented to the closing date being revised to April 13, 2000 thereby eliminating any potential claim for delay from December 16, 1999 to April 13, 2000.

As such, the Tribunal finds that as proper notice of the extension from April 13, 2000 to June 16, 2000 was provided, the Applicants are not entitled to compensation for delay within the meaning of the Act.

The Tribunal finds further that in the event that the Applicants were entitled to advance a claim for compensation for delayed closing, apart from the affidavit of Victor Giustizia, that they failed to provide the Tribunal with any documentary evidence supporting the expenses paid or with evidence that these expenses were reimbursable under the Act. The Tribunal finds that the Applicants have not proven the damage component of their claim.

DECISION:

By virtue of the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act, the Tribunal upholds the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicants claim and does hereby dismiss the Applicants appeal.

FACTS:

Registrar's evidence:

The Registrar's witness was Bernadette McKenna, whose uncontroverted evidence is as follows:

Ms. McKenna has worked for the Ministry of Transportation (the "Ministry") for twenty-five years. She is now a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator in the Carrier Safety and Enforcement Branch.

Sam Bisignani is the president of Brander Trucking Ltd.

The Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration (CVOR) System tracks the on-road safety performance of commercial vehicle operators. The CVOR system monitors convictions, reportable accidents, vehicle mechanical safety inspections, carrier information such as fleet size, and Ministry of Transportation interventions. (As set out at tab 20 of Exhibit 3).

Reportable accidents involve damage over $1,000 and/or personal injury. Accident points are assigned to them based on factors such as the presence of impropriety, charges and the severity of damage, being property damage, personal injury, or fatal injury. An accident violation rate based on accident points per vehicle per month is calculated.

Similarly, a conviction violation rate based on safety-related conviction points per vehicle per month is calculated. An inspection violation rate based on points on vehicle inspection per vehicle unit inspected is also calculated.

The violation rates in each category are compared against threshold values to determine the Percentage of Threshold. Accidents are weighted at double the severity of convictions and inspections. The scores are then combined to calculate the Overall Percentage of Threshold. One carrier in a thousand has an Overall Percentage of Threshold score that exceeds one hundred.

Ms. McKenna prepared an analysis of Brander Trucking Ltd. for May 26 to June 25, 2002 (See further tab 6 of Exhibit 3). The Conviction Percentage of Threshold for the firm was 251.8 and the Overall Percentage of Threshold was 116.9. The calculations used a fleet size of eighteen based on information provided by the Applicants, set out at tab 16 of Exhibit 3. The Applicants later advised that the fleet size is ten. Use of a fleet size smaller than eighteen would lead to higher Percentage of Threshold figures.

The analysis of Brander Trucking Ltd. took into account eleven accidents, sixty convictions, and forty-nine inspections, as summarized on page 23 of tab 7 of Exhibit 3.

Particulars of the accidents are provided at tab 9 of Exhibit 3. Three of the accidents involved an insecure load. Safety inspections revealed an out-of-service rate of 57.7% compared to a provincial average of 35.3%.

Numerous convictions and resulting fines imposed are recorded in the CVOR at tabs 11 and 12 of Exhibit 3 for both Brander Trucking Ltd. and Sam Bisignani. A summary as of December 16, 2002, on page 107 of Exhibit 11 shows total fines unpaid by Sam Bisignani personally of $3,026.25 and total fines unpaid by Brander Trucking Ltd. of $37,819.25. Ms. McKenna testified that the total fines unpaid by the two Applicants are $42,402.50 as of January 6, 2003. The time for appealing the fines has passed. Ms. McKenna emphasized that she could not find a single fine that was paid by either Applicant.

There were also two wheel separation incidents, which took place on June 23, 1998, and February 26, 2002 (see more page 16 of tab 6 of Exhibit 3 and tab 12 of Exhibit 3).

On June 5, 1999, Sam Bisignani attended an interview at the Ministry of Transportation concerning the performance of Brander Trucking Ltd., as shown at tab 13 of Exhibit 3. On December 8, 1999, the Ministry sent a letter to Brander Trucking Ltd. listing convictions and out-of-service inspections as problem areas. The details of a facility audit of Brander Trucking Ltd. on September 11, 2000 are set out at Tab 15 of Exhibit 3. The company failed the audit of both drivers and vehicles with an overall Audit Compliance Achieved of only 44.7%. A Show Cause Meeting concerning Brander Trucking Ltd. was held on July 25, 2002. The meeting was attended by Sam Bisignani, who requested thirty days to provide the Ministry of Transportation with a fine repayment schedule (see tab 18 of Exhibit 3). No such schedule has been received

LAW:

The Highway Traffic Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended states the following:

- 47.(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
 - (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or

- (c) a CVOR certificate,
on the grounds of, ...
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
 - (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
- (2.1) Subsection 17(4) applies, with necessary modifications, for the purpose of determining who are related parties under clause (1)(f).
- 17.4 An applicant is related to a person for the purpose of subsection (3) if,...
- (c) either the applicant or the person, directly or indirectly, controls or controlled or manages or managed the other;...
- 47.1(1) Before taking any action under clause 47(1) (a) or (c) or subsection 47(2), the Registrar shall notify the person whose plate portion of a permit of CVOR certificate is to be affected of his or her proposed action.
- 50.(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subsection 17(2) or (3) or sub clause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

Regulation 424/97, as amended by regulation 197/99, made under the Act adds the following:

- 5.1(1) The safety record of an operator shall contain a record of the following information:
- 6. Any warning letters sent by, or interviews held with, Ministry officials relating to the operator's safety performance and practices.
 - 7. Any conviction related to the operation of a commercial motor vehicle or a vehicle drawn by it, for an offence committed by an operator, its agents or employees,
 - i) under this Act or under any other Act of the Legislature or the Parliament of Canada or any regulation or order made under any of them, or
 - ii) for an offence under a municipal by-law regulating traffic on the highways, or orders made under any of them, except convictions for offences for standing or parking.
 - 8. The particulars of any accident involving a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator or a vehicle drawn by it.
 - 9. The results of any inspection under section 82 or 82.1 of the Act or any similar inspection of a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator, or a vehicle drawn by it.

12. The results of any audits of the operator.

17. Any compilations or analyses of any of the information in paragraphs 1 to 16.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar's decision is not in error and in accordance with section 47 and 47.1 of the Act. There is reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of Brander Trucking Ltd., that the company will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

Brander Trucking Ltd. was convicted about sixty times for offences related to the operation of a commercial motor vehicle or a vehicle drawn by it. The Conviction Percentage of Threshold for the firm was 251.8. Further, Brander Trucking Ltd. was involved in about eleven reportable accidents. Three of those accidents involved an insecure load. There were also two wheel-separation incidents. Safety inspections of the company's commercial motor vehicles and vehicles drawn by them revealed an out-of-service rate of 57.7% compared to a provincial average of 35.3%. The company failed a facility audit of both its drivers and its vehicles. The Overall Percentage of Threshold for Brander Trucking Ltd. based on reportable accidents, convictions, and inspections was 116.9. Only one carrier in a thousand has an Overall Percentage of Threshold score exceeding one hundred.

Mr. Sam Bisignani is the president of Brander Trucking Ltd. Thus, he controls or manages the company and by section 17.4(c) of the Act Brander Trucking Ltd. is a person related to Sam Bisignani. Since there is reason to believe that Brander Trucking Ltd. will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety, the Registrar may suspend the plate portion of a permit or a CVOR certificate held by the Applicant Sam Bisignani pursuant to section 47 of the Act.

There is also other sufficient reason for the Registrar to suspend the plate portion of permits and the CVOR certificates of the Applicants in accordance with subsection 47(1)(g) of the Act. Unpaid fines assessed against Brander Trucking Ltd. for industry-related convictions totaled $37,819.25 on December 16, 2002. Total unpaid fines against Sam Bisignani at that time were $3,026.25. Ms McKenna testified that not a single industry-related fine assessed against either Applicant was paid.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 50 of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal confirms the Suspension and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar dated September 23, 2002, and orders that CVOR certificates numbered 080-

952-466 and 093-195-199 and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to Brander Trucking Ltd. and Sam Bisignani be suspended for thirty days and thereafter until all fines are paid and the plate portion of permits, or if issued by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits, and the number plates be seized.

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

APPEARANCES: SCOTT GUERTIN, Student at-law, representing the Applicant
NATO GRATTA, Applicant

YOVANKA MC BEAN, Agent, representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: January 07, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar"), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated the 12th, day of September 2002, seeks to refuse the Registration of Mr. Nato Gratta.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order to refuse the registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Mr. Nato Gratta under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated the 12th, day of September 2002, are:

1. Nato Gratta (the "Applicant") applied for registration as a salesperson on or about August 14th, 2002
2. On the application to become a registered salesperson, question 9 asks:

“Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)”

The Applicant said, “no”

3. A criminal history check found that the Applicant has the following criminal convictions:

Dangerous Driving - August 11th, 1981

Conspiracy to Traffic in a Narcotic – January 8th, 1998

The original Notice of proposal was amended by Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated the 1st, day of October 2002, wherein the Registrar stated as follows:

1. Paragraph 2 of Notice of Proposal dated September 12th, 2002 is deleted and replaced with the following:

On the application to become a registered salesperson, question 9 asks:

“Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)”

The Applicant said, “yes” indicating:

“I have pled guilty to a drug charge in 1998 Jan 8

I was charged with this incident in on April 2-96 (sic)

I have no outstanding charges and I have never been in any kind of trouble since my 1st offence on April 2-96”

By written Notice of Appeal Mr. Nato Gratta informed the Tribunal pursuant to section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Ms. Louise Gingras.

The evidence presented by Mr. Nato Gratta consisted of his statements attached to the Notice of Appeal dated September 25th, 2002; a brief prepared by the Applicant’s solicitor containing: a letter dated September 25, 2002 from Nicoles E.M. Menard, Parole Suprvisor; a letter dated September 30, 2002 from T & R Auto Service Centre Inc.; seven certificates of achievement; and his viva voce testimony at the hearing.

The Applicant’s Reasons for Appeal as per Notice of Appeal are as follows:

1. The Applicant did not conceal his previous criminal conviction for the conspiracy to traffic in a narcotic from the Registrar. Although the Applicant checked the “no” box to question 9 of the Application, the Applicant disclosed the details of his 1998 criminal conviction in the explanation lines provided with that question.

2. The Applicant did not provide details of the 1981 Dangerous Driving conviction but the Applicant was not being dishonest or trying to conceal the charge from the Registrar. Providing the details of the recent charge was foremost in his mind and 1981 conviction seemed unrelated and unnecessary at the time. The Applicant realizes his mistake but hopes that it is not so serious as to bar him from obtaining his motor vehicle dealer licence.
3. The Applicant respectfully submits that the Registrar erred in refusing the licence based on his past convictions. The Applicant makes no excuses for his past conduct and has learned from his mistakes. He has not been in trouble with the law since he was charged in 1996. He cooperated with the authorities and pled guilty in both instances. He is genuinely remorseful. He has worked to improve his situation for himself and his two children of whom he has sole custody. The two convictions were not fraud or theft or industry related.

A summary of the evidence follows:

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

Testimony of Ms Louise Gingras

Ms. Louise Gingras began her testimony by describing for the Tribunal her current position as a Senior Inspector with OMVIC and reciting prior job experience as an investigator.

Ms. Gingras explained that OMVIC is a not for profit corporation which has been delegated the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicles Act. The Motor Vehicles Act is a public protection statute regulating dealers, and salespersons in the trade of buying and selling motor vehicles. The criteria for entitlement to registration is set out in Section 5 of the Motor Vehicles Act which, requires that individuals and corporations registered or applying to be registered under the Act meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law and financial responsibility.

Ms. Gingras re-iterated the Registrar's position that the decision to refuse the registration of the Applicant was based on the grounds set out in the Notice of Proposal dated September 12th, 2002 and in a Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated October 1st, 2002, found respectively at tabs #1 and # 2 of exhibit #4.

Although it is correct that the Applicant disclosed the conviction of Conspiracy to Traffic in narcotics, he did not disclose the driving conviction, which occurred in 1981. Ms. Gingras pointed out that the omission reflects the Applicant's lack of honesty and integrity.

A copy of the actual the Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, identified by Ms. Gingras, filed under tab # 4 of exhibit # 4, indicates that the application was signed August 9th, 2002, and that the Applicant listed previous employment as "Social Assistance Aug-99 till date."

Filed under Exhibit # 4, tab # 4, is a copy of the criminal record of the Applicant, which Ms. Gingras read into record. Ms. Gingras noted the Applicant was on "Full Parole" from August 9, 1999, to October 7, 2002.

The Registrar also requested and obtained a copy of the information outlining the 1981 charge of "Dangerous Driving" laid against the Applicant, which is entered in exhibit #4, at tab #5 and was read into the record by Ms. Gingras.

Ms. Gingras continued her testimony by reading the details, and the disposition, of the three charges of conspiracy to traffic laid against the Applicant, filed at tab #7, exhibit # 4. According to Ms. Gingras, in considering the refusal of an application for registration, the Registrar takes into account the length of the prison term awarded the individual. The Applicant's sentence of "...four years and nine months in jail..." was determined to be "...pretty serious...". It was also noted that the Applicant's sentence was longer than any of the sentences faced by the co-accused, thus raising the suspicion that he may have been the "...leader of the organized crime..."

Ms. Gingras clarified for the Tribunal that an individual who has acted outside the law is of particular concern to the Registrar. The Registrar must be pro-active rather than reactive in protecting the public. As a salesperson, the individual will have access to the credit information of customers, which can be potentially tempting, and used for illegal purposes. As the Applicant is no longer on parole, it is now up to the Registrar to protect the public's interest.

In cross-examination by the Applicant's Representative, Mr. Scott Guertin, Ms. Gingras justified her allegation that possibly the Applicant had been the group leader by comparing the Applicant's sentence to the sentences received by the co-accused.

Applicant's evidence

In examination-in-chief, the Applicant was asked by counsel to provide details of his family life. The Applicant has custody and is the sole parent of his two children.

The Applicant described for the Tribunal the circumstances surrounding the charge of Dangerous Driving to which he pled guilty in 1981.

There were no other charges until 1996, when the Applicant was charged with conspiracy to traffic. The Applicant pointed out that originally, there were three charges; two charges were dropped before the Applicant attended court. The Applicant stressed that he was "...forced..." to plead guilty in order to protect his family. At the time, the Applicant was advised by his lawyer that "...a proceeds of crime charge..." could be laid against his family.

The Applicant feels that his period of incarceration was a "...blessing..." which allowed him to get his health and his life back. While incarcerated the Applicant participated in several workshops which he found to be very helpful.

Although the Applicant was under observation since 1996, he feels that he would have been able to break the law, had he wanted to. However, he chose to live within the law.

In cross-examination the Applicant maintained that no narcotics were found in his house, he was not importing narcotics from Venezuela and that he did not even know half the people that were involved. At the time, the Applicant was not a well man, and allowed others to control his life; these people used his phone without his knowledge.

Submissions by Ms Yovanka Mc Bean

In support of her argument Ms Mc Bean, presented the Tribunal with copies of precedent decisions and quoted from these precedents during her submissions.

Ms. Mc Bean reminded the Tribunal that the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act is a public protection statute. As such the Registrar had a duty to consider an Applicant's past conduct.

Ms. Yovanka quoted case law wherein it was established that, in order to reverse the decision, the Tribunal must find that the Registrar in refusing registration, erred in law. In this case, it is the Registrar's position that the 1998 conviction against the Applicant was serious enough to warrant refusal of the Applicant's application, particularly in view of the Applicant's guilty plea. Sympathy is not to be a factor in the decision making process, it must be determined that the Applicant's character is impeachable.

Further as the Applicant is no longer under supervision, it is possible that he will revert to illegal behaviour. The Registrar is responsible to protect the public in a pro-active not re-active manner, refusing to grant the Applicant a motor vehicles' salesperson licence the Registrar is ensuring that the public is protected.

Submissions by Mr. Scott Guertin

The Applicant's Representative, Mr. Guertin explained that the Applicant did not intentionally omit the 1981 conviction, he was simply more concerned with the 1996 charge of which he was convicted, jailed and subsequently placed on parole.

Mr. Guertin referred to the letter from the Applicant's parole officer, which indicated that the Applicant has exhibited "...positive pro-social behaviour..." Further, by pleading guilty the Applicant assumed responsibility for his behaviour.

At this point in time the Applicant has two children to look after, and there is every indication that the Applicant has changed his life.

Mr. Guertin closed by stating that the Applicant his willing to accept any limitations imposed on his licence as a precaution.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about August 9, 2002, proposing to work for T & R Auto Service Centre Inc.
2. The Applicant has the following criminal convictions:

Dangerous Driving - August 11th, 1981.
Conspiracy to Traffic in a Narcotic – January 8th, 1998.
3. The Applicant was released on parole on August 9, 1999, and fully released as of October 7th, 2002.

THE LAW:

Section 5. (1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the Applicant, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable risk to the public to refuse his registration as a Salesperson, as per Section 5 b of the Act.

The Registrar's sole mandate is public protection. Given the nature of the Applicant's convictions the Registrar felt justified in refusing the Applicant's registration. The Registrar contends that there is a possibility the Applicant might use the personal credit information obtained by virtue of his employment to commit further offenses. The Tribunal takes a different view. While not condoning, in any way, the Applicant's past conduct, the Tribunal recognizes that the Applicant has paid his debt to society. The Applicant has a family to support and is currently on Social Assistance. The pursuit of gainful employment might in fact serve as a deterrent to life of crime.

The Registrar is also concerned about the Applicant apparently lying on his current application for registration by failing to disclose information regarding an earlier driving conviction. Extending the Applicant the benefit of the doubt, the Tribunal finds the explanation proffered by the Applicant's Representative plausible. It is acceptable that the Applicant simply did not relate a driving charge to this application, particularly a driving charge that took place in 1981, some 20 years ago. Thus, the Tribunal finds the incident an unintentional omission. Moreover, in 1996 matter the Applicant accepted responsibility for his behaviour by entering a plea of guilty, and the passage of time since 1999 has shown that he respects the law.

Since the past conduct is not industry related and there has been the passage of some time, the Tribunal finds that the Registrar has not shown that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, integrity and honesty.

The Tribunal hereby orders that a Salesperson's licence be granted to the Applicant, with the following terms and conditions imposed to provide a measure of protection to the public:

1. The Applicant is not to be allowed to handle cash or credit cards, or be privy to customer's private information.
2. The Applicant is not to be allowed to attend auctions, on his own, and purchase or sell vehicles at auctions, on behalf of the Dealer.
3. The Applicant is not to carry on business transactions for the sale or purchase of motor vehicles outside the premises of the Dealer.
4. All transactions of trade, purchase or sale of motor vehicles are to be approved and verified by the Sales Manager, prior to the Applicant closing any deal with prospect buyers and or sellers.
5. The Applicant is to inform any prospective employers of the limitations imposed on his licence.
6. The Applicant must request that the Dealer, employer, notify the Registrar, in writing, within thirty days of offering employment to the Applicant that the Dealer is aware of the restrictions imposed on the Applicant's licence.

7. In the event of breach of any of the conditions listed above, the Applicant shall forthwith forfeit his Salesperson's licence.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to not to carry out the proposal to refuse the registrations of Nato Gratta but to issue a Salesperson's licence subject to the terms and conditions hereinto before stated.

DATE OF HEARING: January 15, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The appeal is from a Notice of Proposal dated September 12, 2002 which seeks to refuse the registrations of George Iyamu (the "Applicant") as motor vehicle dealer and a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act. The proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for the refusal of the Applicant's registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register George Iyamu o/a Carera Auto Sales under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar bases his proposal are stated as follows.

- 1) George Iyamu o/a Carera Auto Sales (hereinafter referred to as the "Applicant") is a sole proprietorship, which applied for registration as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act on or about June 26, 2002.

- 2) On the individual application for registration submitted by the Applicant, question 9 asks:

"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)."

- 3) A criminal record search shows that George Iyamu has the following criminal convictions:

June 30, 1992	Fraudulent Use of a Credit Card
February 11, 1994	Fraud under $1000 (x3)

- 4) The Applicant has failed to provide full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 1)

By written Notice of Appeal the Applicant has advised the Tribunal that he requires a hearing in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Act regarding his appeal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar at the hearing consisted of documentary evidence as well as the testimony of Ms. Louise Gingras ("Gingras"). The evidence presented by the Applicant consisted of the Applicant's testimony.

Gingras

Gingras stated in her testimony that she is presently employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") as a senior inspector and complaints officer. She further stated that she had been employed with OMVIC since 1997 and that the latter is a non-profit organization that is empowered to administer the Act and its regulations. OMVIC has four main functions which are the registration of applicants under the Act, inspections of motor vehicle dealers and their premises, investigations of complaints made regarding motor vehicle dealers and salespersons and mediation of disputes between registrants under the Act and consumers. Gingras went on to state that the Act is a consumer protection statute and that the Registrar is empowered under the Act to ensure due compliance by all registrants.

Gingras confirmed that she has knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the Registrar's proposal to refuse registrations to the Applicant and confirmed that such refusal was due to the reasons stated in the particulars to the proposal.

Gingras further testified that the Applicant made written applications to OMVIC for the issuance to him of registrations as to both a motor vehicle dealer and motor vehicle salesperson. In the Applicant's written application dated April 22, 2002 for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson, in answer to question 9 therein, he answered "No." Question 9 asked the following:

Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered). If yes, list all charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each (attach additional sheets if necessary).

(Exhibit 4, Tab 4)

At the foot of question 9 the following words appear:

Note: Applicants are subject to background and criminal record searches. Submitting a false or incomplete disclosure is an offence under the MVDA and will result in disqualification. Do not assume that convictions are automatically deleted from your record. If you have any questions about the information you must disclose please call OMVIC.

Pursuant to receipt of the Applicant's two applications OMVIC caused a background check to be made regarding the Applicant. Following OMVIC's enquiries a CPIC report dated July 4, 2002 was received. This report stated that the Applicant had the following criminal charges and convictions registered against him.

DATE & PLACE	CHARGE	DISPOSITION
JUN 30 1992 TORONTO	FRAUDULENT USE OF CREDIT CARD	SUSP SENT & PROBATION 12 MOS
FEB 11 1994 TORONTO	FRAUD UNDER $1000 (03 CHGS)	SUSP SENT & PROBATION 2 YRS

(Exhibit 4, Tab 5)

As the Applicant's written application had not disclosed the above convictions he was asked by OMVIC to give the reason for his failure to disclose such convictions and the circumstances surrounding each charge and conviction.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 6)

The Applicant replied to OMVIC's above query by letter dated July 17, 2002 which stated as follows:

Following our discussion this morning, this to explain the situation surrounding my charge and conviction.

I was charge in February of 1995 for bank fraud along with other people. It was a case of been in the wrong place with bad friends. I was convicted for said charge in October of 1996. Ever since I have learned my lessons and have been making an honest living. This was a big mistake on my part as I was new in the country and did not know how the system works then. I thank God I know how the system works now and this will never happen again.

As for the question of not indication if I have been convicted before, it was sincerely an honest mistake for ticking the wrong box, as I am aware of the fact that there is going to be a back ground check and you will definitely see this in my record. So I couldn't have knowing lied about it.

(Exhibit 4, Tab 7)

Gingras went on to testify that there are two issues that are of concern to the Registrar. The first issue is that the Applicant has two recent criminal convictions for "economic crimes" involving fraudulent use of a credit card and three convictions for fraud under $1000.00. The second issue is the failure of the Applicant to disclose these convictions in his application for registration as a salesperson. Both issues involved serious questions as to the honesty and integrity of the Applicant.

The various convictions and the non-disclosure of those convictions indicates a continuing lack of honesty and integrity commencing in 1992 with the Applicant's first criminal conviction followed in 1994 by further criminal convictions and culminating in the Applicant's failure to honestly respond to question 9 in his application for registration. That application was as recent as April 2002.

Gingras felt that the Applicant's conduct was both dishonest and ongoing and that if he were to be granted registration under the Act, the public would be at risk in future dealings with the Applicant, more particularly in that all his convictions are of an economic nature.

George Iyamu

The Applicant testified at the conclusion of Gingras' evidence.

In answer to his Counsel's questions the Applicant conceded the correctness of the contents of the CPIC report and that the charges and convictions therein referred to do relate to him. He also confirmed that he had answered "no" to question 9 in his April 4, 2002 application for registration. He stated that his lawyer at his criminal trial had told him that after 3 years of the date of his convictions such convictions would no longer appear on his record and it was this advice by his lawyer that led him not to disclose the convictions in his application for registration. He went on to state, in relation to question 9, that he did not "know the right answer to take to this question." On being further questioned, he stated that he did not know whether to answer "yes" or "no" to that question.

He stated further that he operated a retail business from 1996 until 2000. this business involved his selling cell 'phones, pagers and accessories. In the course of this business he accepted either cash from customers or credit cards and there have been no allegations against him of misuse of credit cards. Since 2000 he no longer operates the cell 'phone business.

In cross examination he stated that question 9 in his April 4, 2002 application was unclear and that is why he was unsure as to whether to answer "yes" or "no". He stated that he did not call OMVIC to obtain clarification of the question as he was in a rush to complete the application.

He conceded that he signed the application on April 22, 2002 and did not dispute that such application was received by OMVIC on June 26, 2002.

Iyamu went on to state that he did not disclose his convictions "due to a mistake" and that he "thought that my convictions had been pardoned".

In closing, the Applicant stated he is 42 years of age and that he emigrated to Canada from Nigeria where he had completed some 12 years of schooling.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven:

1. On April 19, 2002 the Applicant signed and completed a written application for registration under the Act as a motor vehicle dealer and that application was received by OMVIC on June 26, 2002.
2. On April 22, 2002 the Applicant signed and completed an application for registration under the Act as a motor vehicle salesperson which application was received by OMVIC on June 26, 2002.
3. On or about June 30, 1992 the Applicant was criminally charged with fraudulent use of credit card and was subsequently convicted on such charge and received a suspended sentence and 12 months probation.
4. On or about February 11, 1994 the Applicant was criminally charged with three counts of fraud under $1000.00 and was subsequently convicted on such charges and received a suspended sentence and 2 years probation.
5. The Applicant, in his signed and completed application for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson dated April 22, 2002, falsely answered question 9 therein in that he did not disclose having been found guilty and convicted of any or all of the criminal charges referred to in paragraphs 3 and 4 above and which charges and convictions are more fully referred to in CPIC report dated July 4, 2002 (Exhibit 4, Tab 5).
6. At the time of his completing and signing his application for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson dated April 22, 2002, the Applicant was aware and had full knowledge of all the convictions registered against him and referred to in the CPIC report dated July 4, 2002.

THE LAW:

Section 5.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

...

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6.(1) of the Act states:

(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The issue for decision is whether the Registrar erred in his decision that the Applicant should have his applications for registration as a motor vehicle dealer and a motor vehicle salesperson refused.

Section 6.(1) of the Act states the Registrar may refuse to register an Applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the Applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

Section 5.(1)(b) of the Act entitles the Applicant to registration by the Registrar except where the past conduct of the Applicant affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrar has the onus of proof to satisfy the Tribunal that he has reasonable grounds to believe that the registration of the Applicant should be refused as his past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971–1989) page 95 Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989), page 59, is a decision issued on April 7, 1983 where the Divisional Court overruled a decision of this Tribunal. Southey J. states that the Registrar proposed to refuse registration because of the existence of the specific circumstances set out in Section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

The effect of Section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

In the Brenner case, due to the particular facts in that case, Southey J. sent it back for a rehearing. However, he adds in the third last paragraph:

The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its Regulations.

Turning to the matter before this Tribunal, there are two allegations made by the Registrar against the Applicant. The first allegation is his failure to disclose in his application for registration as a salesperson, that he had been found guilty and convicted of fraudulent use of credit card in 1992 and subsequently that he had been found guilty and convicted on three counts of fraud under $1000.00 in 1994. The second allegation is that the convictions of 1992 and 1994 in and of themselves constitute and reflect a lack of integrity and honesty on the Applicant's part.

Both allegations, according to the Registrar, constitute conduct that affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

An analysis of the evidence placed before the Tribunal is dealt with hereunder:

1st Allegation - NON DISCLOSURE

The Applicant admitted during his testimony that:

- (i) he was found guilty in 1992 of the criminal charge of fraudulent use of credit card,
- (ii) he was also found guilty in 1994 of three criminal charges of fraud under $1000.00, and

- (iii) he was at all times aware of having been found guilty and convicted of the criminal charges referred to in (i) and (ii) above.

Question 9 in the April 22, 2002 application for registration which was signed and completed by the Applicant posed a simple, unambiguous question - "Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law?" To this simple question the Applicant answered "no" which was totally and absolutely false particularly having regard to the abundantly clear admonitions and explanations appended to this particular question which cautioned the Applicant on the absolute necessity of a full, true and correct answer. The Applicant ignored the cautions and not seek clarification from OMVIC as he was invited to do.

The Tribunal had an opportunity to observe the Applicant when he testified at the hearing and found him to be at ease with the English language, to have followed the proceedings with no difficulty, to have had no difficulty in understanding questions put to him and to have had no difficulty in expressing himself. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant's failure to honestly answer the question was not based in any misunderstanding of the question but was based upon the Applicant's fear that if he disclosed his criminal convictions he would be denied registration. The Registrar is entitled to expect that Applicants are honest in answering questions in their applications and an Applicant's failure to answer with veracity quite rightly sets alarm bells ringing in the Registrar's mind in so far as the Applicant's honesty and integrity is concerned. After all, it is the Registrar who has the duty and obligation to protect consumers and ensure their rights at law.

The Tribunal does not believe the Registrar to be in error in his belief that the past conduct of the Applicant, as evidenced by his failure to disclose material facts to the Registrar, affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that in the future the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

2nd Allegation - CRIMINAL CONVICTIONS

The criminal charges upon which the Applicant stands convicted are:

- (i) serious in nature, and
- (ii) recent in time

All the convictions registered against the Applicant relate to fraud which by its very definition indicates an intentional perversion of truth that results in injury to another. Such convictions do have a direct bearing on an individual's ability to conduct and comport himself with honesty and integrity in business. The Applicant's fraud convictions did not occur in the distant past but are recent in time. There was not one offence but a number of offences that took place, all of which indicate a course of conduct that involved dishonesty. This past misconduct, coupled with the more recent misconduct dealt with in the "1st Allegation" above do, in the Tribunal's opinion afford the Registrar reasonable grounds for his belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Having regard to all the facts it would be unreasonable for the Tribunal to conclude that the Registrar was incorrect in his belief that the Applicant should not be registered as either a dealer or a salesperson.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to refuse the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle dealer and as a motor vehicle salesperson.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- 1) Copy of the Order of Suspension of the Applicant's Driver's Licence dated June 19, 2002.
- 2) Copy of the Notice of Appeal from the Applicant dated December 2, 2002.
- 3) Copy of the File Summary prepared by the Respondent.
- 4) Copy of File Documents attached to the Notice of Appeal

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 33 year old female police officer had her driver's licence suspended on June 19, 2002 by the Ministry of Transportation for the reason that she suffers from a medical condition which might impair her ability to operate a motor vehicle safely. The Ministry letter refers to a seizure, which it alleges is related to alcohol misuse. The Registrar of Motor Vehicles had received an unsolicited Medical Report from a neurologist, Physician #1, which outlined the circumstances of a seizure the Applicant had suffered on May 29, 2002.

The history was that the Applicant had experienced bitemporal headaches and night sweats for a week before this episode. On May 28th she had worked a 12-hour shift and during lunch break had a 10 km run. That evening she had attended a "recruits night" party and had 5 beers. The most she had previously consumed was three.

The following morning she felt queasy at breakfast and went out on the deck for some fresh air. A couple of minutes later she passed out and fell forward striking her nose. Her husband, who is also a police officer, heard her fall and went right out. She was lying on the deck and when he called her name she looked up at him. He stated in evidence that her arms were twitching for a few seconds. She felt dazed and slightly dizzy, but stood up. Her husband stated that he has witnessed several seizures in the course of his work and they were all much more violent than this one. She neither bit her tongue nor voided.

The Applicant rested during the day, had a full dinner and played a game of soccer that evening. She saw her family doctor the next day, because she was frightened it might be a tumour. He apparently thought it was a combination of too much beer, dehydration and very warm weather. To be thorough, because of her headaches he referred her to Physician #1.

A neurological examination was normal and an EEG, MRI and multiple blood tests were ordered and eventually reported to be all-normal. Physician #1 notified the Ministry that it might have been a result of alcohol withdrawal after drinking five beers the night before, which was more than usual. He did not recommend any treatment.

Physician #1 examined the Applicant again on July 3, 2002, and forwarded the results of the laboratory tests to the Ministry. He stated that he did not believe the Applicant was an alcoholic, did not consider her to be a risk on the road and was willing to sign a waiver. He also said that he would be pleased to speak to anyone at the Ministry about the Applicant's case.

On July 15th, the Applicant's family physician completed an Alcohol Assessment form, which showed a score of "2". He also ordered biochemical markers (MCV & GGT), which were both reported normal.

A letter of endorsement was sent to the Ministry on September 3rd, by the Applicant's direct supervisor. He was on the Board when she was hired by Police Services and has been her supervisor since 1999. His letter was very supportive of the Applicant and stated she has shown exemplary service and had recently been promoted to a detective position in the Break Enter and Robbery unit.

A second letter was sent to the Ministry on December 18th from a fellow officer, who is a Breathalyzer/Intoxilyzer Technician and has known the Applicant since she joined in 1995. He is also very supportive of her and states as a certified expert witness in the courts on alcohol matters, that any suggestion or accusation that the Applicant has a drinking problem is "cruelly untrue".

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal agrees that the Registrar of Motor Vehicles had no other option, but to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence, under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act upon receipt of the Medical Report from Physician #1, informing the Ministry of the Applicant's possible alcohol withdrawal seizure.

The Ministry immediately took the position that the Applicant had an alcohol problem as well as a potential for future seizures. These conclusions appear to be based on the Applicant drinking five beers at a party and suffering a seizure the following morning. The only resemblance to a seizure was her husband's observation that her arms twitched for a few seconds after falling on the deck and cutting the bridge of her nose. She was stunned for a few minutes, but rested during the afternoon, ate dinner and played a game of soccer that evening.

Several letters sent to the Applicant by the Ministry demanded proof of total abstinence from alcohol and being seizure free for one full year as well as a detailed assessment from a neurologist, before her licence could be considered for reinstatement.

These requests were made after Physician #1 had forwarded two complete reports containing details of two normal neurological examinations, a normal EEG, normal MRI and multiple normal blood tests as well as statements that she was not an alcoholic and does not represent a risk on the roads.

The Ministry had also received an Alcohol Assessment form with a score of 2 and the normal results of the MCV and GGT tests. In addition the Applicant's supervisor, who has known her for over seven years, stated emphatically that she did not have an alcohol problem.

Counsel for the Applicant asked the Respondent what the medical condition is that is mentioned in the letter of suspension that the Applicant suffers from, which might impair her judgement to operate a motor vehicle safely.

The only diagnosis in evidence was Physician #1's statement that the seizure may have been from alcohol withdrawal, having overdone it the night before with five beers, which was much more than usual (three beers). This could not even be considered as an inference to label someone with an alcohol problem. The Tribunal believes the two extra beers precipitated the problem, because it was more than usual, but not because of alcohol withdrawal. The after effects of this incident could have been a result of the fall and hitting her nose.

After considering all of the evidence and the application of the facts to the law, this Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not fall within section 14 of Regulation 340/94 in that she does not suffer from a medical disability likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive a motor vehicle.

The Tribunal did not find any evidence of the Applicant having any type of alcohol problem or any propensity for future seizures that would fall under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act to prohibit reinstatement of her licence.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 19, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 03, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 06, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated December 9, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on December 9, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated December 5, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form received December 9, 2002.
- c) Exhibit # 4 Additional submissions by the Applicant, include a Medical Report from Physician #1 – received December 30, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received December 27, 2002.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.”

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

“A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal”.

FACTS:

The Applicant’s Driver’s Licence was suspended “02/12/05” as per Notice of Appeal filed as exhibit # 2.

Applicant’s Evidence

In order to fulfil the requirements of the procedures for appeal, the Applicant had page two of the Notice of Appeal prepared by his family physician. Physician #1 confirms that she has been the Applicant’s physician for “4 years...”

Physician #1 diagnoses the Applicant with “Chronic Rhinitis, sceptical deviation...” and explains that the Applicant is suffering from: “...Chronically poor air flow ...since childhood ...2º nasal injury septoplasty & cautery of the turbinates in 1992, recently symptoms of postnasal drip, snoring & air flow...”.

Under “Relevant Details of last visit and when your patient was last seen”, Physician #1 notes: “...Flonase Nov 7/02 ...some improvement in airflow & decreased snoring...”

In a letter dated December 24th, 2002, Physician #1 reiterates the Applicant’s condition and adds that “...asked to take a breathalyzer ...could not consistently blow without choking ...in recent months ...symptoms worsening ...condition may have interfered with ...ability to perform the breathalyzer test...”

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that upon being asked to provide a breath sample he informed the Constable that he “...had a respiratory problem and a breathing problem...”

Being instructed by the officer “...to give it a shot...” the Applicant made several attempts to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant affirmed that as he cannot breathe through his nose, he is unable to take in the amount of air necessary to enable him to blow for the length of time required.

Referring to Dr. Goldstein’s report, the Applicant not only challenged Dr. Goldstein’s credentials, but also questioned whether Dr. Goldstein “...was a medical doctor...”. The Applicant maintains that: Dr. Goldstein has never examined him; Dr. Goldstein did not have any “...measurements...”; and that Dr. Goldstein’s credentials are totally irrelevant to his condition.

The Applicant feels that he has done “...nothing wrong...” other than he was speeding, and does not understand why he has to take time off work to deal with these issues.

Prior to concluding his testimony the Applicant questioned why the officer did not take him down to the station for a blood sample, and asked why he was not allowed to make a phone call.

In cross-examination, the Applicant admitted to telling the officer that he has “...asthma...”. By way of clarification the Applicant confirmed that he had been required to use an inhaler before participating in sport activities earlier in his life. In response to the Respondent’s Representative question as to when was the last time he used an inhaler the Applicant replied: “...five or six years ...but still gasp for air ...constantly...”

The Applicant testified that over the past several years he has seen Physician #1 with respect to his breathing problems, he is still being prescribed and uses a nasal spray, but is no longer being prescribed an inhaler. Physician #1 did “...about a year, a year and a half ago...” refer the Applicant to a respiratologist, but the Applicant did not follow through with the consultation due to work constraints.

The Respondent’s Representative asked how Physician #1 knew that he had been “choking” at the time of the breathalyzer. The Applicant replied that he had told her.

Witness #1 testified on behalf of the Applicant. Witness #1 was asked by the Applicant to describe the events on the night that the Applicant was asked to provide a breath sample.

Witness #1 confirmed that the room was smoky, however, not being a physician the witness was not able to comment on how the smoke affects people. Nonetheless, Witness #1 acknowledged that he, himself, was not affected by the smoke.

In cross-examination, Witness #1 declared that he did not witness the Applicant exhibiting any signs of respiratory difficulties.

In closing the Applicant highlighted that he disagreed with Police Officer #1’s evidence and complained about not being allowed to make a telephone call or being asked to provide a breath sample. The Applicant stressed “...I did what I could...” and accentuated that he was not able to blow into the device for the length of time required.

After listening to the Respondent’s Representative’s comments that Applicant re-iterated his position that he was not impaired, and emphasized that he needs his driver’s licence, not only for work but also because his wife is pregnant and might have to be taken to the hospital.

Respondent’s Evidence

The Respondent provided the following documents:

1. Notice to the Registrar, certified December 12th, 2002
2. Driving Record of the Applicant, certified December 20th, 2002
3. Vehicle Record Search, certified December 12th, 2002

4. Medical Report of Dr. Roger Goldstein, Respiralogist, dated December 12th, 2002

In his report dated December 12th 2002, Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB, ChB, FRCP(UK) FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of Program of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional program in Rehabilitation, states that he has been a "...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years..." and is "...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78%... The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition..."

After reviewing the medical information contained in the Notice of Appeal, Dr. Goldstein concluded: "...It is my view that neither of these diagnoses prevent an adequate provision of a breathalyzer sample..."

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a member of the Toronto Police Services, as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he has been a Police Constable for "...seven years..."

Police Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total of ten opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered an error message.

Police Officer #1 described in detail, for the Tribunal each of the Applicant's attempts to provide a breath sample:

"...first attempt ...cheeks puff out but he was not blowing any air out of his mouth ...cheeks not deflating...; second time ...exact same thing happened ...he puffed his cheeks out, no tone was emitted ...no air was going into the device ...he stated he has asthma...; third attempt ...did put some air into the Alcotest ...observed ...blowing air in very short bursts ...pop air into the machine, stop, immediately pop air again continuously for several seconds ...resulted in error reading ...not given a long enough sample...; fourth attempt ...blew continuously ...emitting a tone for approximately two seconds ...stopped blowing, removed his lips from the mouthpiece ...error reading...; fifth attempt he blew for approximately three continuous seconds ...tone emitted ...after three seconds he took lips off the mouthpiece expended rest of air that was in his mouth and his lungs into the air outside...; sixth attempt ...deep breath ...observed his chest expand ...exhaled into the Alcotest for approximately two seconds he then removed his lips again and blew the rest of his breath into the air ...cold night ...10 degrees below zero ...clear and dry and in the air, when he exhaled ...could see his breath ...expended a large volume of his breath into the air...; seventh attempt ...puffed some air into the Alcotest, several short bursts for one or two seconds ...resulting in error reading...; eighth try ...puff and blow again in short burst one to two seconds ...error reading...; ninth attempt ...blew continuously ...three seconds ...strong tone ...removed his lips from the mouthpiece, expelled the rest of the air out his mouth

...error reading...;tenth final attempt ...blew continuously ...approximately two seconds and then stopped ...error reading..."

Police Officer #1 was quite certain that at no time during the breathalyzer test session did he observe or detect the Applicant: to have a runny nose or discharge; to blow his nose; to be "...choking, coughing..." to be experiencing any symptoms of asthma or breathing difficulties. Further, at no time did the Applicant request medication or medical assistance.

Under cross-examination by the Applicant, Police Officer #1 disagreed with the Applicant's claim that prior to commencing the breathalyzer test session, the Applicant advised him of his asthmatic condition. Police Officer #1 was adamant that the information had been proffered after the second failed attempt.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative suggested that the Applicant has no medical condition that prevented him from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative cited the Applicant's action of expelling breath into the air, as evidence of the Applicant's intent to not provide a breath sample. There was no indication that the Applicant had a medical problem and according to Police Officer #1 there appeared to be no difficulty with the Applicant's airflow.

Further, Mr. Beil, the Respondent's Representative continued, the Applicant testified that he is continuously gasping for air, yet at no time during the breathalyzer test session did Police Officer #1 observe any signs of breathing impairment.

In referring to Physician #1's report the Respondent's Representative points out that Physician #1 makes no mention of history of respiratory illness nor is there any indication that she has ordered Pulmonary Function Tests. Physician #1 alludes only to the Applicant's nasal problems, which, in his opinion and in the opinion of Dr. Goldstein, would not affect the ability to provide air through the mouth.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although all of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal shall address concerns raised by the Applicant.

The Applicant questioned the reason a blood sample was not demanded. While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officer or officers involved. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

As the Applicant made a plea for empathy and leniency, the Tribunal feels that some clarification for the benefit of the Applicant is essential. Although the Tribunal may empathize with the Applicant's current dilemma, as well as with the Applicant's emphasis that he was not drunk at the time, the Tribunal must deliberate solely on evidence as it pertains to Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act. At issue is not the individual's state of impairment but rather whether a medical condition exists that may preclude the compliance with the demand for a breath sample.

Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Applicant submitted medical reports from his family physician Physician #1 indicating the Applicant suffers from: “Chronic Rhinitis, septical deviation resulting in: “...Chronically poor air flow ...postnasal drip, snoring...”. The Applicant is being treated with “...Flonase...” and has showed “...some improvement in airflow & decreased snoring...”. In the December 24th, 2002, report Physician #1 opines that the Applicant “...could not consistently blow without choking ...condition may have interfered with ...ability to perform the breathalyzer test...”

The Respondent's Representative argues that there is no evidence either from Applicant, or from Police Officer #1, of the Applicant choking. According to Mr. Beil, Physician #1 is a family physician with unknown experience with breathalyzer devices whereas Dr. Goldstein is a respiratologist with vast experience in the field. The Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal consider Dr. Goldstein's expert view that the Applicant's condition would not “...prevent an adequate provision of a breathalyzer sample...”

The Tribunal must concur with the Respondent's Representative. With all due respect to Physician #1, she is not a respiratologist, Dr. Roger Goldstein is. The Tribunal, thus, must accept the evidence of the Respondent's specialist, Dr. Roger Goldstein, that there is no existing medical condition precluding the Applicant from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

This premise is corroborated by several facts. The Applicant has failed to provide the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. It appears that Physician #1 may have referred the Applicant to a respiratologist, but the Applicant felt his condition was not severe enough to take time off his job and follow through with the referral; by the Applicant's own admission his last use of an inhaler was “...five or six years...” ago; the Applicant neither requested nor sought medical assistance for his condition, during or after the incident; and lastly, at no time, was the Applicant observed by Police Officer #1 to be in an afflicted breathing state.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 05, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated December 12, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on December 12, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

By way of Preliminary Matters, the Respondent's Representative informed the Tribunal that during a conversation with the Applicant, it was established that the Applicant had received notification to pick up a package at the courier's office, but did not do so. As the Applicant was not in possession of the disclosure information provided by the Ministry, a short recess was offered in order to avail the Applicant of the opportunity to review the documents. The offer to recess was declined by the Applicant.

The Representative of the Ministry sought to introduce a copy of the videotape of the breathalyzer session. The Applicant raising no objections, a copy of the breathalyzer session videotape was introduced and entered as exhibit # 4.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated October 28, 2002 – issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received December 12, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received January 3, 2003
- b) Exhibit # 4 Videotape of the Breathalyzer test session – received January 10, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "28/10/2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Appellant's Evidence

Page two of the Notice of Appeal is blank. Attached to the Notice of Appeal is a medical report dated December 04, 2002, prepared by Physician #1.

Physician #1 informs that the Applicant "...suffers from Bronchial asthma, and on the day ...he became nervous and anxious which made his medical condition worse." It is Physician #1's opinion: "...That is why he couldn't blow the pipe...".

At the hearing the Applicant testified as to the events preceding the demand for a breath sample.

At the time of the breath test session, the Applicant claims that he attempted to provide a sample but was unable to do so, because he has asthma and requires the use of an inhaler.

In cross-examination the Applicant clarified that he does not use the inhaler on a daily basis, but as needed. The inhaler the Applicant showed the Tribunal was purchased in June 2002. At the time of the breathalyzer session the Applicant did not ask the officers to be allowed to use the medication because he did not have the inhaler with him.

The Applicant confirmed that he did not request medical assistance but did inform the officers that he was having difficulty breathing. The Applicant did not recall telling the officers he had a problem with his heart and denying that he had asthma.

After being released the Applicant went home rather than seek immediate medical assistance.

As the Applicant became emotional while on the stand, a short recess was granted to allow the Applicant time to compose himself.

Continuing his cross-examination the Applicant testified that his physician has never sent him to a respiratologist, and stressed that he has a heart condition.

While under oath the Applicant acknowledged understanding the questions asked and responded accurately to the questions posed.

In his closing remarks, the Applicant stressed he is not happy with the situation and asked that his licence be returned to avoid further problems in his life.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed December 13th, 2002
2. Certified Copy of the driving Record of the Applicant, sealed December 13th, 2002
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Record Search, sealed December 13th, 2002

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a member of the Toronto Police Services, who has been a police officer for approximately "...two years...", as a witness.

Police Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped, and transported to the station for a breathalyzer test.

Although the Applicant had been involved in a motor vehicle accident, he had not suffered any injuries.

During the time that Police Officer #1 spent with the Applicant, Police Officer #1 did not observe the Applicant in any apparent physical discomfort, although the Applicant stated that he had a heart condition.

Prior to calling the next witness, the Respondent's Representative offered to play a portion of the tape. The Applicant accepted the offer, and the portion of the videotape showing the interview by the Sergeant on duty was viewed. It is clear from the tape that the Applicant answered "NO" to the questions posed regarding health problems and medication.

Also called, as a witness by the Respondent's Representative, was Police Officer #2, the Breath Technician who administered the breathalyzer test. Police Officer #2 is employed with the Toronto Police Services – Traffic Services, and has been a police officer since "...15 October 1985...". In 1999, Police Officer #2 was designated as a qualified breath technician to operate the Intoxylzer 5000 C.

The Respondent's Representative asked that the videotape of the breathalyser session be played while Police Officer #2 was on the stand, thereby allowing the Constable to comment as appropriate.

Police Officer #2 explained for the record that the Intoxylzer device emits a tone when minimum pressure had been reached. If no tone is emitted it means no air is going in. In this case it is obvious the Applicant was "...chipmunking...", that is blowing out his cheeks but not blowing air into the chamber. The Applicant released the seal and blows air out the side of his mouth.

The Applicant showed no apparent sign of discomfort but suggested that he has a heart problem. Police Officer #2 then asked the Applicant if he has asthma, the Applicant denied.

In closing, Police Officer #2 confirmed that during the time he spent with the Applicant there was no indicia of a medical condition: no clutching of the heart, no sweating, no wheezing.

The Respondent's Representative, in his closing remarks, suggested that there is no medical condition that would prevent the Applicant from providing an adequate breath sample. Mr. Biel alluded to the videotape to support his argument. The videotape, Mr. Biel asserts, indicates clearly that the Applicant is not making an effort to blow into the instrument. Further the Respondent's Representative pointed out that the Applicant contradicted himself, regarding his medical condition. At the time he denied having asthma, but his medical report now states that he suffers from bronchial asthma.

With regard to the medical reports, Mr Biel highlighted that Physician #1's report does not conform with section 15 of Regulation 574 and that that Physician #1 in his brief comments does not provide any information as to the history of the Applicant's condition.

Mr. Biel emphasized that neither officer, both of whom are trained observers, noticed the Applicant to be in medical distress.

Citing insufficient information, in conclusion, the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant had a medical condition that at the time could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant submitted a medical report and produced an inhaler to support his argument that he is asthmatic.

With respect to the medical report from Physician #1, the Respondent's Representative maintains that the report does not conform with the requirements of section 15 of Regulation 574.

The Tribunal agrees. Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant in that it prescribes:

15 (2):

"The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests."

The essence of this clause requires that the physician establish a link between the medical condition and the individual's inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated):
(Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PFT represent important corroboration of your medication opinion)).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen

Unfortunately page 2 of the Notice of Appeal has been left blank, therefore denying the Tribunal possibly valuable insight into the Applicant's physical condition.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant, nonetheless, the Tribunal cannot ignore the Respondent's evidence submitted by way of the videotape. The Applicant exhibits absolutely no signs of physical distress or discomfort during the breathalyser session. The Tribunal's observation is corroborated by Police Officer #1 who was with the Applicant from the time of his arrest at the scene of the accident, until his release.

The Tribunal is also perturbed by the obvious conflict in the information provided by the Applicant to the officers at the time, and the information contained in Physician #1's report. With all due respect to Physician #1 it does not appear that he is a specialist in the field of respiratory illness, therefore his opinion, albeit well intended, is insufficient to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant has a medical condition that would preclude him from providing a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of his appeal, the Tribunal, has no alternative, but to find that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal, further, finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1(2)(b), in that the Applicant was not able to demonstrate that a medical condition prevented the compliance with the demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated October 28, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: January 3, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: January 10, 2003 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 3, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Kyle A. Jones (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1995 Dodge Dakota , plate 1561LL (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 17, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 3, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

The Tribunal made its ruling on the preliminary issue which follows.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Background leading up to this charge: While out with a group of friends and new acquaintances I admitted that I felt I had too many drinks to be driving. The person that was driving my vehicle December 6, 2002 offered to drive. I had no idea that his licence had been suspended and frankly can't believe that anyone under suspension would offer to drive. I have learned a very valuable experience from this incident and will advise everyone to always ask when offered to be given a drive if the person has a valid licence and ask to see it.

The reason I must ask for this appeal is the fact I was married on November 16h, 2002 and my wife has just learned she is pregnant. We are trying to pay for a house and the financial aspect of this impoundment is virtually impossible at this time. I need my vehicle for work and although the impoundment period is going to be a hardship to be without my truck, financially I don't know how I am going to do it but do accept the fact what happened was a terrible act of bad judgment on my part to accept a drive by someone I really didn't know.

The reason I am asking for a telephone appeal is I just cannot afford to take a day off work to attend in person and a written appeal may take too long. I work as a machinist and would appreciate knowing the procedure for a telephone appeal. As I work on machines that can't be left I would have to be told in advance of the call. Do you call during a specified time of day that I will be notified about?

I sincerely ask that my appeal will be granted.

"Kyle Jones"

Kyle Jones

Mr. Jones informed the Tribunal that he normally used his automobile for work, and making deliveries. He recently found out that his wife was pregnant and was worried that the cost of the impoundment would adversely affect his capacity to purchase baby items. He realised that he could try to get his friend to cover the cost of the impoundment, but was not sure that he would be successful.

In response to questioning by the Respondent, Mr. Jones said that he has made alternative arrangements to get to work. He gets a lift from a female friend, and occasionally is given a ride by his father or one of his workmates. His wife owns her own car. There is therefore no problem in her getting to work or getting to her Doctor's office.

Mr. Jones admitted that his main concern is how he will find the funds to get his truck out of the pound.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Jason Pellegrims;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until January 25, 2003.

The Respondent maintained that in her view the Appellant was not experiencing exceptional hardship.

The loss of his automobile had not resulted in hardship that was immediate, significant or lasting. There was no threat to his wife, because she had her own vehicle; and there was no threat to his employment. Mr. Jones admitted that he had not missed a day of work since his truck had been impounded.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant appeals the Registrar's decision stating that the order will result in exceptional hardship under subsection 50.2(3) of the Act. The Applicant has not shown exceptional hardship exists in this case. Although he and his family will have some inconvenience both the Applicant and his wife have access to alternative transportation. Inconvenience is not a factor to be considered under section 22(2)(a) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98.

The concern by the Applicant of a threat to health or safety does not apply when an alternative to the impounded vehicle is available, as in this case, pursuant to section 22(1)a) of Regulation 574.

Even if it did apply, the Applicant's concern regarding his wife's pregnancy does not constitute a threat to her safety. There is no evidence that her pregnancy is anything other than a normal pregnancy.

The financial concern expressed by the Applicant relating to the cost of the impoundment is only relevant where the Applicant establishes that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available. Since as previously stated there is an alternative, financial loss cannot be considered under section 22(2)(b) of the Regulation.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant's predicament. He has learned from this experience and will check to ensure that the driver's licence is valid by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca or obtaining a driver's abstract at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office or Service Ontario Kiosk, prior to giving someone the permission to drive his vehicle.

In view of the above finding the Tribunal concludes that Mr. Jones' appeal of exceptional hardship has no merit.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL ROSS C. BENNETT M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant

Solicitor for the Applicant

DATE OF
HEARING: JANUARY 13, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- (1) Notice of Suspension from the Ministry dated September 13, 2002.
- (2) Notice of Appeal from the Applicant dated December 16, 2002.
- (3) File Summary introduced by the Respondent
- (4) Applicant's driving record from the Ministry dated December 30, 2002
- (5) Letter from Physician #1, psychologist dated September 22, 2002.
- (6) Letter from Physician #2, family physician, dated September 27, 2002.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 53 year old retired male, had his licence suspended September 22, 2002 by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. Physician #2, the Applicant's family physician, sent an unsolicited Medical Report to the Ministry on March 27, 2002 stating the Applicant had been admitted to the hospital for intoxication with withdrawal (d.t.'s). She added that he had a 12 year history of alcoholism (87-89). He had remained sober for 12 years, but over the past two years has been on several binges.

The Applicant had worked for the City for 30 years and had been promoted to Director. When the amalgamation of the City took place he lost this position because he did not have an engineering degree. Problems with his retirement package occurred because he was short 2 years to reach the "85" factor. Eventually he was kept on the payroll in another position for the two year period, which meant he would collect an additional $12,000 annually. At this time he had been married for 4 years and had 2 children.

The Applicant remained sober until July 1999, when he became depressed and started to drink again. His doctor prescribed tranquillizers. His wife became very angry and separated in October 1999 because she did not want to live with an unsuccessful man who was drinking.

The Applicant's routine was to go on a bender at home for 3-4 days every 6-8 weeks. He never drank outside of his home and never when driving. In the spring of 2002 he realized he was out of control and on May 16 went into detox. He did not drink for the next 2 weeks, but restarted again. He returned to detox and followed up at the inpatient treatment centre for a one month program.

He was readmitted in July of 2002 and completed the program successfully under a psychiatrist Physician #3, who wrote a very supportive letter to the Ministry. He began attending AA, 4-5 times a week and became very active in his church. Physician #3 does not feel there is any necessity for the Applicant to lose his licence for a full 12 months.

The Applicant's counsellor at the inpatient treatment centre also wrote to the Ministry on September 20, 2002 stressing the excellent recovery of the Applicant and his need to have freedom to seek help, attend meetings and partake in the fellowship of recovery. He does not see an individual in recovery, working an excellent recovery program, as a threat to society.

The former paragraph refers to the fact that the Applicant's house is in a remote area and without transportation he is unable to go to AA meetings, church meetings and appointments with his doctors. He is forced to live with his elderly father, which is not assisting in his recovery.

On September 22, 2002, Physician #1, a psychologist wrote to the Ministry (Exhibit # 5) emphasizing the Applicant's strong motivation in his recovery program. He had attended 6 sessions of psychotherapy between April and September and truly impressed Physician #1 the way in which he has strengthened his coping mechanisms.

On October 12, 2002 the Applicant went to see Physician #4, a specialist in the treatment of alcoholism and substance abuse. In a letter to the Ministry Physician #4 states he is very impressed with the Applicant's motivation to recover and his laboratory assessment shows no evidence of recent or long-term alcohol abuse. He has demonstrated his ability to work a good recovery program for 10 years before circumstances triggered a relapse. Based on his findings he recommends reinstatement of the Applicant's driver's licence.

An Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) Case Study on October 31, 2002 recommended continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence despite letters recommending reinstatement of his licence from a psychiatrist, a specialist in alcoholism and drug abuse, a psychologist and his counsellor from the Treatment Centre.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act on September 12, 2002, when Medical Reports were received from Physician #2 outlining a 2 year history of alcoholism with 2 recent admissions to hospital for alcohol and withdrawal effects and two visits to detox units.

Unfortunately by the time the suspension occurred, the Applicant was getting his life in order and seeking help from a number of sources. He had previously maintained sobriety for some 12 years until he suffered, what Physician #3, his psychiatrist, called "a catastrophic emotional reaction and he was just unable to maintain sobriety." The loss of his wife and his job after 30 years employment was just too much.

He was immediately admitted to the Mental Health Centre in their Concurrent Disorders Program and he returned to AA on a regular basis, as well as getting very involved in his church. He completed the program and received glowing reports from his psychiatrist and counsellor. He also attended psychotherapy sessions from a private psychologist and was treated by a specialist in alcohol and addictions.

The Tribunal was very impressed with the support offered by all of the Applicant's therapists. These specialists were all accustomed to treating alcoholics and all were impressed with the Applicant's determination to win his battle with alcohol. They individually saw him multiple times and thus, know him well. They obviously trust him and did not feel he would be a danger to society, if allowed to drive. Another point they considered is that the Applicant has a clean driving record despite his past history.

The Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) on the other hand has never met the Applicant and bases its' decision on policy, the Applicant history and a set of guidelines, from the C.M.A., which never vary. The Tribunal believes the evidence from the psychiatrist, the psychologist, the counsellor and the family physician has much more weight and is more valuable in the determination of whether the suspension should continue.

After consideration of all of the evidence and the application of the law to the facts this Tribunal does not find sufficient evidence to warrant the continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) in that he does not suffer from a medical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle.

The Applicant has maintained sobriety since July 2002, a period of some five months, he has sought counselling and has strong letters of support from many of the individuals active in his treatment. Moreover Physician #4, a specialist in the treatment of such disorders recommended the re-instatement of the Applicant's licence as early as October last year. In view of this strong evidence the Tribunal finds that it is appropriate that the Registrar's decision be set aside.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 12, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: January 6, 2003

DECISION RELEASED January 10, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 6, 2003, at London, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Brian Archambault (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Toyota Tercel, plate 561 ZRG (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 19, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 6, 2003 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I, Brian Archambault, am the owner of the impounded 1996 Toyota Tercel. The driver of the vehicle at the time of the offence is brother, Michael Archambault. I was unaware that my brother's driver's licence had been suspended for a prior drinking and driving conviction.

I am the father of two young children and require my vehicle to take them to school and daycare as well as other various activities through out the week. My spouse works full time and therefore it is my sole responsibility to ensure they are cared for during the day. Without my vehicle it will be very difficult, if not impossible to continue with their scheduled activities.

With the Christmas season approaching it is even more imperative we have my vehicle for transportation. With no family in London we will be travelling home to Barrie, Ontario to spend Christmas with our family. We will need our vehicle to transport myself, my spouse, our two children, dog and Christmas gifts home for Christmas morning. I am afraid that without our vehicle we will not be able to spend Christmas with our family as planned.

I hope you will take into consideration how difficult it will be for my family during this season with out our vehicle and notify us of your decision as soon as possible.

Thank you.

In an expansion of the Applicant's written submission it was found that the wife of the Applicant has a car which she uses to take her to and from work. The wife did not need this car for her job but only to commute. Apparently the time she leaves for work is half an hour before the children are scheduled to go to school and day care. This time conflict precludes the use of this car by the Applicant according to his testimony for the many other needs he has for a car. These include their children's sports activities, medical appointments and household shopping trips.

The Christmas visit to Barrie was accomplished by the use of the wife's car and the parent's vehicle who came to London to assist in the transport of the family and parcels.

The Applicant testified that his brother lived with them until the December driving incident and had been with them for over one year. The driver Michael D. Archambault, the Applicant's brother was under suspension until June 13 2003 when stopped at 0356 hours on December 15, 2002. He was charged with impaired driving and driving while under suspension for a May 12, 2002 charge for driving while impaired which would have been during the time he was living with his brother.

Because the Applicant's brother was paying little rent the Applicant stated his brother had considerable savings. A rental car to replace the impounded vehicle was not considered, as he could not afford the cost.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records, which indicates that, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar, which indicates that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Michael D. Archambault;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records, which indicates that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of Impaired Driving and his licence was under suspension until June 13, 2003.

The Respondent reviewed the evidence and testimony of the Applicant more particularly to the availability of another car in the family. The Respondent indicated that with a minor change in scheduling the vehicle belonging to the Applicant's wife could serve the family's needs for a car.

The Respondent closed with a recital of the evidence required to be proven by the Applicant to establish the grounds for a successful appeal based upon exceptional hardship.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
- (d) the impact of the loss,

- (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under section 50.2 (d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of his vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship and has caused him difficulty in getting his children to and from school and day care and with other routine family duties.

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clearly defined criteria that must be met by the Applicant to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment.

The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available, which is not the case here. Furthermore section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored including an alternative vehicle. This has not been shown.

In this case the Applicant has access to an alternative to the impounded vehicle. He has access to another car in his immediate family, which is used by his wife to get to and from work, but is not required while she is working. While it may require some adjustment to their present daily scheduling there has been no evidence submitted by the Applicant that the second family vehicle couldn't be used until the impounded car is released. The evidence submitted clearly reflects the availability of a replacement vehicle, which precludes any other consideration in support of the Applicant's appeal.

Inconvenience is not a factor to be considered under section 22(2)a of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, as amended.

The Tribunal is sympathetic to the Applicant's situation, however, in view of the above facts, the Tribunal must conclude that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship.

In future, before giving someone permission to drive their motor vehicle, individuals should ensure that the driver's licence of the proposed driver is valid by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or access the website at www.mto.gov.on.ca or obtain a driver's abstract at a local MTO Driver Licence Issuing Office or Service Ontario Kiosk.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 9, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 10, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated December 02, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on December 02, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Representative for the Registrar, Ms Beintema informed the Tribunal that the Breathalyzer Technician, Police Officer #1, would not be attending the hearing and sought to introduce a copy of the videotape of the breathalyzer session instead. The Applicant raising no objections, a copy of the breathalyzer session videotape was entered as exhibit # 5.

Certified copies of the original documents on file, from the Ministry of Transportation, were provided to the Tribunal by the Respondent's Representative.

The Applicant submitted a copy of medical reports from his physician, Physician #1 and from Physician #2. As the Respondent's Representative had not received copies previously, a fifteen-minute recess was called to afford Ms Beintema an opportunity to review the reports.

After examining the medical report from Physician #1, the Respondent's Representative had no objections to the report being entered as an exhibit requesting only that it be noted that the reports were not filed in accordance with the rules of disclosure. With the consent of both parties Physician #1's report was entered as exhibit # 4.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar Dated October 27, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received December 2, 2002
- c) Exhibit # 4 Medical Reports from Physician #1 and Physician #2– received January 3, 2002.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation Submissions – received January 3, 2003.
- b) Exhibit # 5 Videotape of Breathalyzer session – received January 3, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

50.1 (1) “A person whose driver’s licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

(2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

(a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

15. (1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

- (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
- (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Board from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "October 27th, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Page 2 of Notice of Appeal, which is to be filled in by the Applicant's physician, is blank. The Applicant explained to the Tribunal that he had not realized the information was required.

In a letter dated "January 7th, 2002", the Applicant's physician Physician #1 comments on the Applicant's condition and attaches a letter from Physician #2, a psychiatrist also treating the Applicant.

Physician #1 confirms that he has been the Applicant's physician since 1985 and explains that the Applicant: "...Since the death of his 26 year old son ...has been feeling depressed, sleeping poorly and abusing alcohol ...referred to a psychiatrist ...prescribed antidepressants ...continues to see the Psychiatrist on a regular basis..."

In his report, Physician #2, a retired assistant Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Toronto describes his findings after examining the Applicant: "Depressed affect. Excessive self-reproach. Poor concentration. Social withdrawal. Poor anger control and impaired judgment"

At the hearing, after being sworn the Applicant asked the Tribunal to use discretion and return his driver's licence.

In cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that he understood the grounds for appeal. The Applicant attested that he appealed the suspension on medical grounds, as he refused to provide a breath sample due to a "...heart problem..."

The Applicant is not currently seeing a cardiologist but believes that he is on medication for a heart condition. Under further questioning from Ms Beintema, the Applicant clarified that the pills are for "...high blood pressure..."

The Applicant testified that he informed Physician #1 that he had been asked to provide a breath sample, and does not know why the physician made no note of this fact in his report.

The Applicant was adamant that he refused to provide a breath sample because he did not want a reoccurrence of the August incident; when after the breathalyzer session he experienced chest pain. The Applicant was feeling some pain during the October breathalyzer session but did not tell the officers and did not visit his physician until quite sometime after the incident.

In closing the Applicant confessed to regretting his behaviour, and revealed some details about his personal life as a possible cause. At the present time, The Applicant is receiving treatment for his condition.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Notice to Registrar, certified December 23rd, 2002.
2. Driving record of John M. The Applicant certified December 23rd, 2002
3. Vehicle record certified December 24th, 2002

The Respondent called Police Officer #2 as a witness. Police Officer #2 testified that he has been in the Police Services for "...almost two years..."

After relating events of the incident that led to the demand for a breath sample and the subsequent suspension, Police Officer #2 attested that at no time did he observe the Applicant being afflicted with any physical difficulty, such as clutching his chest or wheezing.

Police Officer #2 further indicated that the Applicant did not inform him that he was taking medication, or ask for medical assistance.

A videotape of the breathalyzer session was introduced as evidence. When asked by the breathalyser technician if he was suffering from any illness or injury or if he had any medical problems, the Applicant replied “No” to each question. It is clear from the tape that the Applicant stated on more than one occasion that he would not provide a breath sample until he was “...evaluated...” by his doctor.

The Respondent’s Representative, in closing, reminded the Tribunal that the Applicant appealed on grounds of a medical condition, yet asserts that there is absolutely no evidence of a medical condition.

Ms Beintema points out that Physician #1’s report refers to a visit on “23rd November, 2002. There is a considerable gap of time between the date of the incident and the date when the Applicant first appeared to have been seen by a physician.

Ms Beintema also noted that the videotape shows an “...outright refusal...” from the Applicant to provide a breath sample, due a heart problem he claims to have had some years ago. There is no evidence of a heart problem in the medical reports. Further the medical reports do not conform with the regulations, as there is no evidence that the physicians were aware as to the purpose of the reports.

The Respondent’s Representative concluded that the Applicant did not meet the onus of proof being unable to provide a breath sample because of medical grounds and asks that the Tribunal uphold the suspension.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

There is no doubt that the Applicant refused to provide a breath sample. At issue then is did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause him to not comply with the breath demand. The Applicant brought an appeal under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, alleging medical grounds for his refusal to provide a breath sample.

Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, prescribes:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

In his testimony the Applicant alleges heart and blood pressure problems. The Applicant also submitted two medical reports to corroborate his argument.

With respect to the medical reports from Physician #1 and Physician #2, the Respondent’s Representative makes two points: one, the reports do not conform with the requirements of section 15 of Regulation 574; two, neither reports mentions a heart condition.

The Tribunal agrees. Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant in that it prescribes:

15 (2):

“The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.”

The essence of this clause requires that the physician establish a link between the medical condition and the individual's inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen.

Unfortunately page 2 of the Notice of Appeal has been left blank, therefore denying the Tribunal possibly valuable insight into the Applicant's physical condition.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant, but there is no evidence, other than the viva voce evidence of the Applicant, that he is suffering from a heart condition. Neither the report from Physician #1 or the report from Physician #2 substantiates the Applicant's claim of cardiac or blood pressure disease. Both physicians allude to an illness of a different nature. Physician #2 is quite specific in his diagnosis: “Depressed affect. Excessive self-reproach. Poor concentration. Social withdrawal. Poor anger control and impaired judgment”. While the Tribunal accepts that the disorder affecting the Applicant is quite debilitating, the report does not establish that such a disorder precludes the compliance with the demand for a breath sample.

Further, the videotape taken during the breathalyzer test session clearly demonstrates the Applicant's refusal.

The Tribunal finds that there is no indication that the Applicant has a medical condition that would preclude him from providing a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of his appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal also finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated October 27, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DECISION
RELEASED: January 16, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 14th, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 16, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated December 18, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on December 18, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

“This is a case of mistaken identity. I am not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken.”

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters at this hearing.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit #1: Notice to Registrar
- b) Exhibit #2: Notice of Appeal

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3: MTO Submissions, certified original copies

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(a) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Was the Applicant whose licence was suspended the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Evidence of the Applicant:

The Applicant testified that he works at two different jobs delivering pizza, and in the kitchens of the pizza restaurants. He stated that when he was pulled over by Police Officer #1 of the Peel Regional Police Force on December 4, 2002, he was en-route to deliver food from the restaurant to a police station.

The Applicant admitted that he was administered the Breathalyzer test at the police station however, the Intoxilyzer report that was produced did not belong to him. He insisted that he was not drinking that evening, and that this was a case of mistaken identity since he believes that the report must have belonged to someone else who was processed at the station at that time, and for the reason that his last name did not appear on the report. The Applicant did have the original copy of the report in his possession that he received at the time his breath sample was taken. He further insisted that the vehicle mentioned in the report was not his since the licence was not the same.

Evidence of the Respondent:

Ms. Beintema testified that Police Officer #1 told her by phone conversation, that he observed the Applicant giving a breath sample at the police station to Intoxilyzer Technician Police Officer #2. Police Officer #2 inadvertently inserted her last name in the field for subjects last name. The Applicant's first name and drivers licence number did appear on the Intoxilyzer report. Ms. Beintema also stated that Police Officer #1 told her that the Applicant's vehicle licence number as it appeared on the report was off by one letter, "V" instead of "W", and that this was a minor typing error.

Police Officer #1's comments to Ms. Beintema were supported by his photocopied original notes (Exhibit #3). These notes also bear the signature of the Applicant, who signed for them when he received his copy.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant testified that this was a case of mistaken identity because some of the information on the Intoxilyzer report was in error, and belonged to another individual. He argued that since he had not been drinking that evening, and that the report did not bear his last name, it must belong to someone else. However, the specific details of the Applicant's Intoxilyzer report, and whether it is his report or whether it showed him to be in excess of the legal limit for alcohol consumption at the time the test was administered, are not what is at issue in this matter.

Section 50.1(2)(a) of the Act states that in order to qualify for this ground of appeal, the person whose licence was suspended must be found not to be the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made. The Applicant by his own testimony stated that he did supply a breath sample to Police Officer #2 at the Police station, and was subsequently processed, as the document in Exhibit #3 indicates.

Since the Applicant's own testimony establishes that he complied with a demand for a sample of his breath from Police Officer #2 he cannot now rely on section 50.1(2)(a) as a ground for his appeal. He is the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath was made. As a result, the Tribunal must find that the Applicant whose licence was suspended is the same individual from whom a sample of breath was obtained.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 6, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO

APPEARANCES: LYNDA DUNBAR
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

BETTY BAIRD, Applicant, unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: January 9, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: January 15, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 9, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Betty Baird (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	2000 Chrysler Cirrus, Plate No. AAXT 325 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	December 16, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 9, 2003 and proceeded as a teleconference.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I am a senior citizen as I have a heart problem. I also have a broken bone in my back. I cannot walk or stand for any length of time.

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a 69 year old woman, who resides alone. Her husband left her about 20 years ago. She is the youngest of 8 siblings. Since some of her siblings passed away in 2002, the remainder of the family decided to have an early Christmas dinner at a Chinese Restaurant in Trenton. As the Applicant did not want to go alone, she asked her platonic friend, Eduard Ortiz, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, whom she's known for the past 10 years to escort her.

Due Diligence

In her testimony, she stated that Mr. Ortiz had one drink with dinner and she only consumed water as she is on medication for a heart condition and high blood pressure. After dinner, everyone went back to the Applicant's sister's house in Trenton where the Applicant viewed Mr. Ortiz consume more alcohol. After a while, Mr. Ortiz became quite bored and he and the Applicant left for Campbellford, taking a scenic route home, at Mr. Ortiz's request. The Applicant drove her vehicle to Belleville at which time she handed over care and control of her vehicle to Mr. Ortiz. Before doing so, she asked him if he had a valid driver's licence, which he responded he had, but did not produce it and she, at no time, saw one. In her testimony, the Applicant indicated that Mr. Ortiz accused her of calling him a liar, as he stated that he would not be in a position to purchase a new vehicle without a licence.

Prior to these circumstances, Mr. Ortiz had convinced the Applicant that he had purchased a 2003 white half ton pick-up truck which he had brought her to see in Kingston, where he resides and works. When the Tribunal asked where the vehicle was located and whether she had seen Mr. Ortiz drive this vehicle, she responded that Mr. Ortiz brought her to Kingston and that she viewed it at Mr. Ortiz's employer's home. Mr. Ortiz advised her that he only used the vehicle for work and didn't drive it after hours as it was full of tools.

It is the Applicant's evidence that on or about December 9, 2002, Mr. Ortiz drove approximately 1 mile before the police pulled him over. In her testimony, the Applicant was very poorly treated by the police. Both she and Mr. Ortiz were given breath tests. She indicated that Mr. Ortiz blew over the legal limit. The vehicle was then impounded. The police drove them to a truck stop where they took a taxi back to the Applicant's home in Trenton. The Applicant's sister drove the Applicant home and Mr. Ortiz to Belleville where he caught a bus back to Kingston.

Exceptional Hardship

In her Notice of Appeal, the Applicant indicates that she is a senior citizen with a heart problem and with a broken bone in her back. She states that she cannot walk or stand for any length of time.

The Applicant testified that the first week after her vehicle was impounded; she visited her doctor 3 times. She was driven there by a friend. There are taxis in Campbellford and community care services for the elderly which she has access to. She also testified that although she has no family in Campbellford, she has a network of many friends who provide her with transportation if the need arose.

Although the Applicant has some health issues, her medication is delivered to her and the hospital is 1 block from her home. Since the impoundment, she has not missed any doctor's appointments.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Edward Ortiz;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving while licence is suspended under the Highway Traffic Act pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 28, 2004 and as well he was convicted of Impaired Driving for which his licence was suspended until August 20, 2003.

I note that the driver, Eduard Ortiz, has a very lengthy and serious driving record, which includes Drive while Licence suspended, Drive while Disqualified, 1 – Fail to Remain at Scene of Accident, and 2 – convictions for Impaired Driving.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

APPEAL – DUE DILIGENCE

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that Eduard Ortiz's driver's licence at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

The Applicant has conceded that she is the owner of the vehicle that has been impounded. At the time of the impoundment, the vehicle was being driven by Mr. Ortiz, whose driver's licence was then under suspension due to a conviction under the Criminal Code of Canada for Impaired Driving and under the Highway Traffic Act for Driving while Licence Suspended.

The evidence before the Tribunal was that the Applicant merely took Mr. Ortiz for his word and assumed that Mr. Ortiz had a valid driver's licence and did not take any measures to ensure that he had a valid driver's licence. But merely taking Mr. Ortiz at his word, does not constitute the due diligence required to ensure its validity. The Applicant had good intentions, but Mr. Ortiz misused her trust. Furthermore, there was no evidence heard that would confirm the Applicant's actions were anything but passive in nature.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

Due diligence requires that the Applicant take further steps to verify the validity of the driver's licence. This can be accomplished by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca.

APPEAL – EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Applicant has not demonstrated that she falls under all of the categories in section 22(3) of the Regulation:

There is an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle. A friend has driven her to the doctor and she has access to taxis. Furthermore, the inconvenience is temporary and there is no loss that is significant and lasting. Under section 22(4), the Applicant has not established that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle. There are a number of other modes of transportation available to her.

The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, Eduard Ortiz, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

“The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order”.

The Tribunal is sympathetic with the Applicant, but after considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and has managed. The impact will not be immediate significant and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

The Applicant is a 53 year old mini-bus driver, who had his driver's licence downgraded from Class ACM to Class GM on September 29, 2002.

The Ministry first received a Cyclical Driver's Medical Report from Physician #2 on June 19, 1990 indicating the Applicant was suffering from Gouty Arthritis and Peripheral Vascular Disease. The Applicant was referred to Physician #1, a cardiologist, in January, 1991. Physician #1 did not find the intermittent claudication severe enough to warrant surgery and could not detect any evidence of coronary artery disease. The gout was controlled with medications.

The Applicant was examined yearly and medical reports sent to the Ministry with little change noted until he suffered two myocardial infarctions in 1996 and 1998. Physician #1 reported in July 1999, that the Applicant had a stress thallium and a rest thallium injection and there was no evidence for reversibility of his anterior segment and therefore not at high risk. An ECG showed only modest left ventricular dysfunction. Physician #1 completed three Waiver Certificates and Medical Reports on July 22, 1999, on April 24, 2001 and on September 3, 2002 stating the Applicant has left ventricular dysfunction without evidence for provokable ischemia or dysrhythmia. In each Waiver he crossed out a sentence in the Physician's Certificates, which stated, "Reading the Relevant sections of the Canadian Medical Association's Guide for Physicians in determining fitness to drive a motor vehicle may be helpful in considering some cases." This implies that Physician #1 did not consider the guide in making his determinations.

A graded exercise test report states there is sinus rhythm, Q waves in the inferior and anterior leads and mild atrial enlargement. The conclusion was that he was symptom free and the ECG was negative for myocardial ischemia.

On December 18, 2002, Physician #1's Medical Report stated the Applicant's left ventricular function is Grade III-IV. His Holter Monitor reveals frequent isolated Ventricular Premature Beats including rare couplets and triplets. The Applicant does not demonstrate any symptoms of myocardial ischemia or symptoms of heart failure.

The Applicant is also being treated for hypertension and was advised to stop smoking, but was only able to cut down. He had a recent angiogram which revealed some blockage in his coronary vessels, but not enough for by-pass surgery.

The Ministry of Transportation rejected Physician #1's final Waiver of September 3, 2002 and notified the Applicant on October 2, 2002 that reports indicate his heart disease has been worsening and his application for reinstatement of his Class "ACM" licence has been rejected.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
 - (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

- (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.
- 18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
 - (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and
 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry downgraded the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 32(12)(b)(i), which directs the Minister to change the class of motor vehicle in accordance with the results of requested medical examinations. A series of medical examinations over the past 4 years revealed a history of 2 myocardial infarctions, hypertension, coronary artery disease, valvular thickening and a Class III-IV left ventricular dysfunction.

The C.M.A. Guidelines for Physicians Determining Medical Fitness to Drive recommends that only Class I is acceptable for a commercial driver's licence. The Guide states that the Medical Assessment of a driver with heart disease must also take into account the risk of sudden incapacitation (due, for example to sudden death or syncope). This is very relevant when the Applicant's job is transporting people around the city in a mini van.

The Tribunal agrees with the Medical Advisory Committee that the Waivers completed by Physician #1 dated July 22, 1999, April 24, 2001 and September 3, 2002 are unacceptable because each one has one sentence in the "Physician's Certificate" crossed out. This sentence states "Reading the relevant sections of the CMA's guide for physicians in determining fitness to drive a motor vehicle may be helpful in some cases" and in this case it is essential.

The Tribunal finds that the fragile condition of the Applicant's health due to heart related problems detected in the series of examinations and tests established that the Applicant suffers from a disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle, which is too serious to reinstate the Applicant's Class "ACM" licence under Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 29, 2002 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: BARBARA FRASER

APPEARANCES: Lynda Dunbar
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

MELANIE McKay, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: January 16, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: January 22, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 16, 2003 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Melanie McKay (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Chevrolet Blazer K15, Plate 496 VTJ (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 17, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 16, 2003 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

The Applicant stated that she requires the vehicle, which is a four wheel drive, in order to attend physiotherapy sessions. She said that she must attend the therapy as a condition for Worker's Compensation. The four wheel drive vehicle explained the Applicant, is safer to drive in the winter than an ordinary car.

Ms. Dunbar declined making an opening statement.

Both parties stated that it was not their intention to call witnesses.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I live in the country 1½ hrs. east of Toronto. I am presently involved in a Workmen's Compensation Claim, which requires me to take physiotherapy twice a week. Due to the severe weather in the winter out here, I need the 4 wheel drive to insure [sic] I make my scheduled appointments. I miss any days I risk losing my coverage from WSIB.

Thank you for your consideration.

The Applicant stated under oath that she was unaware her spouse had taken the four-wheel drive vehicle. She said that she was not well the day in question and was in bed at the time he did so. She stated that she first learned he had taken the vehicle when she received a telephone call informing her that he had been caught driving while his licence was under suspension.

The Applicant further stated that although her spouse has to travel back and forth to work, he is able to secure rides from a co-worker.

She admitted that she does have an alternate vehicle in the driveway, which is an older model car. She said that the car is in working condition and that she drives it to go shopping. However, she prefers the four-wheel drive because it is safer in wintery conditions on the highway. She reasoned that if she had to use the car, and the weather was inclement, she would have to cancel her physiotherapy appointment and re-schedule. She raised the concern that she might not be able to get another appointment right away.

The Applicant said that she is not currently in a training or educational program but that she may be in the future.

Ms. Dunbar, on behalf of the Registrar, referred to the Registrar's Exhibits 2 and 3, regarding the impoundment of the Applicant's vehicle and the driving record of the Applicant's spouse.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

- 13662. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
- 13663. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Terry Claude McKay;
- 13664. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
- 13665. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs. alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until Aug. 1, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

- 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
- 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal finds that the oral evidence given by the Applicant was open, consistent and credible. Having said that however, it is the Tribunal's opinion that she has not met the standard set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of The Highway Traffic Act.

The Applicant has not demonstrated that the Order will result in extreme hardship. She stated that she has access to an alternate vehicle which is operational and she drives it to go shopping.

She also said that she is not currently in an educational or training program . The Applicant stated that her spouse is being driven to his workplace by his co-worker.

Section 22(4) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 requires the Applicant to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant, however according to her own testimony, she has the use of an alternate vehicle. While she may prefer to operate a four-wheel drive vehicle in the winter, she still does have another vehicle at her disposal.

Furthermore, the Applicant has not shown that every reasonable option has been considered under section 22(4) of the Regulation including making arrangements to do without the impounded vehicle or obtaining a replacement.

Such options as making arrangements for transportation with neighbours, a taxi cab company, renting a four-wheel drive, or even re-scheduling the appointment in severe conditions have not been considered.

Although the Impoundment of her four-wheel drive vehicle may be an inconvenience, the Applicant has not demonstrated that it is an exceptional hardship as defined by the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 20, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 22, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, chapter H.8 as amended. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated December 30, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on January 2, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

On or about January 16, 2003, the Tribunal received, a request from the Applicant, to adjourn this matter. However, prior to the commencement of the hearing the Applicant informed the Tribunal that he wished to proceed.

The Registrar's Representative informed the Tribunal that the Registrar's Witness would not be attending; and that anticipating an adjournment, the matter had not been thoroughly prepared. As the Respondent's Representative sought no adjournment, the hearing proceeded.

After the Applicant offered his testimony and was cross-examined, the Registrar's Representative expressed a request for an adjournment, on the grounds that, based on the anticipation of the Tribunal granting the Applicant's request to adjourn, the Registrar released the witness scheduled to appear on behalf of the Registrar.

The Applicant's objection was duly noted. Nonetheless, the Tribunal taking into consideration that the Applicant precipitated the incidents by indicating his wish to seek an adjournment granted the adjournment peremptory to the Ministry.

At the hearing on January 17, 2003, the Applicant submitted a letter from the Social Services, which was entered on consent as exhibit #4.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice Dated December 9, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 2, 2003.
- c) Exhibit # 4 Letter addressed “to whom it may Concern” from the Social Worker” Received January 17, 2003

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation Submissions – Received January 14, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

- 50.1(1) “A person whose driver’s licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "DEC 07-02" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Physician #1, a family practitioner, who has been the Applicant's physician for "1 years and 3 months", prepared page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, on December 31, 2002.

Under the heading “Details and Diagnosis of patient’s present condition”, Physician #1, writes: “Post-traumatic stress disorder and anxiety precipitated by stressful events suffered in his home country – when stress or afraid, ...find it hard to breathe (i.e. take a deep breath)...”

Physician #1 goes on to clarify that the Applicant “...sees a counsellor ...for ...anxiety – and has been in counselling for over one year...”

Attached to the Notice of Appeal is letter dated December 23, 2002, signed by Registered Nurse #1, RN(EC), Nurse Practitioner with the Health Centre. Registered Nurse #1 confirms that the Applicant has “...On several occasions ...reported feelings of ‘not being able to get enough breath’, particularly when he is feeling stressed ...episodes appear to be related to stress and anxiety...”. Registered Nurse #1 goes on to express her opinion that “...it is understandable that he was feeling frightened and anxious by his encounter with the police ...several samples were deemed inadequate ...caused him to feel even more anxious ...obvious the situation affected his ability to supply an adequate sample...”

At the hearing, the Applicant gave an account of the events leading up to and surrounding the breathalyzer session, as well as described his employment and general life situation.

The Applicant testified that on the evening in question he had not been drinking. He asserted that he was unable to take a long enough breath to provide an adequate sample due to the fact that he was “...afraid...”

In cross-examination, the Applicant emphasized that he did not refuse to provide a breath sample. The Applicant claimed that he gave “...the best sample...” he could, and stated: “...sometimes when I am afraid I find it difficult to breathe...”. The Applicant explained that he was “afraid” because he felt “threatened” after the officer told him that unless he provided a breath sample he would go to jail.

The Applicant did not ask for medical assistance. With respect to medication, the Applicant takes “...a couple of pills sometimes...”. He is still receiving counseling, and after the incident, the Applicant immediately called his doctor for an appointment.

According to the Applicant, his physician has performed pulmonary tests and has suggested that the Applicant consult with a specialist, if the condition persists.

In closing, the Applicant’s agent asked the Tribunal to reinstate the Applicant’s licence based upon two issues: the medical evidence, and that when this matter gets before a Judge the case will be dismissed.

With respect to the Applicant's medical condition, the agent stressed that it is quite reasonable to accept that the Applicant would have been rather anxious given the situation he found himself in.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed January 8th, 2003
2. Certified Copy of Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed January 8th, 2003

The Respondent called Police Constable #1, a member of the Toronto Police Services as a witness. Police Constable #1 testified that he has been a police officer for approximately "...four and half years...", and is trained in operating the roadside breathalyzer instrument.

Police Constable #1 described the circumstances that led to the demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given "...over 15..." opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. According to Police Constable #1 the Applicant was not emitting enough air into the machine. Police Constable #1 noticed that the Applicant was taking a breath and expelling the air before he put his mouth around the mouthpiece, as well as, he appeared to be blowing around the mouthpiece.

Given his observations Police Constable #1 formulated the opinion that the Applicant "...was able to take a deep breath...". Police Constable #1 recalled that he asked the Applicant whether he had a medical condition that prevented him from providing a breath sample, and noted that the Applicant replied "No". No medical assistance was requested by the Applicant.

During the breathalyzer test process, Police Constable #1 described the Applicant's demeanour as "...very calm...", and not exhibiting any breathing difficulties, such as hyperventilating.

Under questioning by the Applicant's agent, Police Constable #1 confirmed there were several other officers involved in investigating the Applicant before and after he was stopped by the police and subsequently demanded a breath sample. The Applicant was actually stopped by another officer who stayed in his car until back up arrived. During the wait for back up, the Applicant was made to wait in his car without being told what was happening.

Police Constable #1 reiterated his belief that the Applicant was not having trouble breathing but did comment it would be possible for the Applicant to be "...anxious...", given the fact that he was in the back of a police vehicle.

The Applicant's agent suggested to Police Constable #1 that the Applicant in breathing in and exhaling before making a seal around the mouthpiece, was simply trying to catch his breath.

Police Constable #1 disagreed with the Applicant's agent, stating that in his opinion the Applicant was intentionally "...trying to avoid blowing into the device..."

Police Constable #1 denied that the Applicant was handcuffed during the breathalyzer session. Police Constable #1 also disagreed with the Applicant's agent that the Applicant was placed in handcuffs prior to the demand for a breath sample. Police Constable #1 confirmed that the Applicant was being investigated for "hit and run" but asserted that the Applicant "...was not handcuffed prior to being arrested..."

In her closing remarks, Respondent's Representative contends that there is no medical reason for the Applicant's failure to provide a breath sample, and that in fact the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample. To substantiate her argument, the Respondent's Representative relied on Police Constable #1's testimony. The Respondent's Representative noted that the Applicant showed no signs of physical distress, or breathing difficulties, or of being visibly upset.

The Respondent's Representative referred to the medical report submitted by the Applicant and pointed out that, the reports fail to link the diagnosis to the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. The Respondent's Representative argued that it would be impossible for either Physician #1 or Registered Nurse #1 to know the degree of anxiety the Applicant experienced on the night in question.

In addition, due to the lack of specialist's reports verifying the Applicant condition, the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

An appeal was brought under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Tribunal's mandate is to decide whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause, at the time of the breath sample demand, the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Much of the Applicant's agent's line of questioning and the bulk of his argument focused on issues that were irrelevant to the matter at issue. The Applicant's agent pursued his cross examination of Police Constable #1, challenging Police Constable #1 's notes; establishing whether or not Police Constable #1 believed the Applicant to be impaired, and whether or not the demand for a breath sample was founded.

It is imperative that the Tribunal note that the Applicant's state of intoxication or impairment is not at issue.

Further, the Applicant's agent is quite correct in his assertion that the matter of the breath demand being founded or unfounded, is a matter to be determined in a Judicial Court. As a quasi-judicial body, this Tribunal has no jurisdiction to deal with certain of the issues argued by the Applicant's agent. Furthermore, the Applicant's agent's inferences of a possible dismissal in a Court of Law are simply not relevant.

The Tribunal must deliberate the provisions of Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Respondent's Representative contends that there is no medical condition that would prevent the Applicant from providing a breath sample. The Respondent's Representative argues that this premise is corroborated by Police Constable #1's testimony in that according to his observations the Applicant was not in any physical distress.

The Applicant maintains that he was "afraid" and that when he becomes anxious he has difficulty breathing. The Applicant's claim is substantiated by Physician #1's comments when stressed or afraid, the Applicant finds "...it hard to breathe (i.e. take a deep breath)..." and by Registered Nurse #1 who confirms in her letter that "...On several occasions ...reported feelings of 'not being able to get enough breath', particularly when he is feeling stressed ...episodes appear to be related to stress and anxiety..."

The Tribunal is faced with two opposing views. In considering the evidence, the Tribunal has no reason to dispute Physician #1's and Registered #1's comments. Thus, the Tribunal must find that the Applicant suffers from an anxiety disorder.

The question that remains then, is whether anxiety could have caused and did cause the Applicant to not be able take a deep enough breath to not provide an adequate breath sample. The Tribunal must decide whether there are enough reasons for the Tribunal to accept the affirmation that the Applicant was in a state of anxiety at the time.

According to Physician #1, the Applicant has a history of post traumatic stress disorder. The Tribunal was told by Police Constable #1 that the Applicant was made to wait in his car until Police Constable #1 arrived at the scene. There is a discrepancy between the Applicant's evidence and that of Police Constable #1, which the Tribunal will note without inferring judgment. The Applicant alleged that he was in handcuffs throughout the session, Police Constable #1 denied that the Applicant was in handcuffs and refutes this statement by saying that the Applicant "...was not handcuffed prior to being arrested...". It was not made clear as to exactly when or why the Applicant was placed under arrest. Was it on the suspicion of "hit and run" or after not being able to provide a breath sample? Regardless, it seems quite conceivable that the Applicant finding himself in a situation of peril, being kept waiting without knowledge of what was happening; and being "threatened" with jail became anxious. Police Constable #1 supports this conclusion in his admission that under the circumstances it is possible that the Applicant was anxious.

There is no doubt that one of the symptoms anxiety often manifests, as put forward by Physician #1, is the inability to take a deep breath. Police Constable #1's evidence that the Applicant took a breath and immediately exhaled appears consistent with the symptoms of someone trying to take in enough oxygen.

Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 9, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

DECISION
RELEASED: January 29, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 28, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 29, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 3, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 3, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00 paid by cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Respondent's Representative informed the Tribunal that one of the Constables scheduled to testify was late, but that the Respondent was ready and willing to proceed.

A discussion ensued as to whether the Applicant had received the disclosure package forwarded to him by the Ministry. The Applicant stressed that he had not received the disclosure until the day before the hearing. The Respondent's Representative advised the Tribunal that there was evidence from Purolator Courier that a note, informing the Applicant of an attempted delivery, had been left at the Applicant's place of residence. The Applicant explained that he had been away.

The Respondent's Representative requested that the Tribunal note that the Ministry took all the necessary steps to ensure that the Applicant received disclosure within the allotted time.

Prior to giving testimony the Applicant asked that the individuals in attendance, and sitting in the body of the hearing room be identified. The Respondent's Representative confirmed that the individuals concerned were members of the Ministry's staff who were just observing the proceedings, as well as the police officers involved in the incident.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated January 1, 2003, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 3, 2003

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received January 27, 2003
- b) Exhibit # 4 Videotape of the Breathalyzer test session – received January 27, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

- 50.1(1) “A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Jan 01 2003" as per the Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant had page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared by his physician of "7 years 2 months", Physician #1, on January 2nd 2003.

Under the heading "Details and Diagnosis of patient's present condition", Physician #1 verifies that "...Patient may have chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (will see respirologist)...". According to Physician #1 the Applicant has a history of "...prior chest infections; including pleurisy..." Physician #1 notes that PTF (sic) PFT are "pending" and that the Applicant was last seen on "Jan 2/03 (for this reason as well as back pain)".

At the hearing, the Applicant reiterated his position that he is appealing the suspension of his driver's licence on medical grounds as he is currently under the care of a specialist in internal medicine as well as a specialist in respiratory medicine.

The Applicant confirmed that he is undergoing exhaustive tests ordered by Physician #2, who is a respirologist. Unfortunately, there are as yet no findings, and therefore, no reports available to be presented to the Tribunal. The Applicant explained that Physician #2 gave him her card and suggested the Tribunal be informed that the Applicant is under her care at this time.

The Applicant concluded his viva voce testimony by respectfully requesting that the Tribunal make an order reinstating his licence on grounds of hardship. The Applicant drives a five-ton truck for the Post Office and has not been paid since his suspension. Further, he is the primary care giver for his daughter who is terminally ill and disabled.

In cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that he has a history of chronic chest infections. The Respondent's Representative, asked the Applicant to tell the Tribunal the date of his last chest infection. The Applicant replied: "...I think I have one right now. Smoke, second hand smoke really tightens me up and ...cold air...".

In offering a history of his medical condition, the Applicant related details of his life from childhood. The Applicant was told by his sister that he was found "...screaming in side of back yard, in cold weather, almost every day". The Applicant believes this situation led to the development and possible worsening of his condition in later life: "...bronchitis ...at age 14 has a disease called histoplasmosis ...at age 23 ...put in Wellesley Hospital ...for a week under observation ...at the time ...had a calcified lymph node ...at age 28 pleurisy ...repetitive bronchital situations since then, almost ...twice a year...".

The Respondent's Representative specifically asked the Applicant if he was suffering from bronchitis on January 1st, 2003, at the time he was stopped by the police and the demand for a breath sample was made. The Applicant answered: "Well, I don't know, I usually have something...".

The Respondent's Representative pointed out that neither physician prescribed an antibiotic after examining the Applicant (Physician #1 on January 2nd, 2003, and Physician #2 on January 8th, 2003). The Applicant confirmed that he is "...medication free..." and suggested that the Respondent's Representative "...ask the doctors..." why no medication was prescribed if the doctors believed the Applicant had a respiratory tract infection.

The Applicant insisted that he has had this condition most of his life, and that "...it comes and goes...", sometimes undetected, sometimes he needs medication. The Applicant continued by explaining that he "...might have had..." chronic bronchitis at the time of the breathalyzer session. The Applicant emphasized that he does not always know when he has chronic bronchitis: "Sitting here now, I don't know if I have it, right now ...it can go on for a month ...not really aware of it...".

The Applicant contested the Respondent's Representative's statement that he appealed on medical grounds based on the fact that he suffers from chronic bronchitis. The Applicant offered the following explanation: "No. The reason I have appealed this, is, I have a medical condition, I don't know what it is, it may be something worse, I might have TB, I don't know what I've got, I might have some obstruction, I might have scar tissue, I don't know, it might be bronchitis, ...I am not the doctor ...the specialist will tell...".

The Applicant emphasized that Physician #2 considers his situation "worthy of investigation", and that Physician #2 instructed him to inform the Chair of the Tribunal that he is under her care at this time. The Applicant has undergone some tests and is awaiting further tests, as recommended by Physician #2, but does not "...know when she is going to be ready to ...give a report...".

Asked specifically, by the Respondent's Representative, to describe the symptoms of his condition, the Applicant retorted: "...Are you a doctor, by the way, I am not a doctor either...". Prodded by the Respondent's Representative to describe what happens when he is affected by the environmental stimulus, he mentioned, the Applicant testified: he may "...cough or not cough..."; and "...shortness of breath is one thing ...not being able to breathe properly".

In response to the Respondent's Representative's question as to whether he "breathes heavily", the Applicant responded: "I don't know how I breathe, ...breathe as normally as I possibly can...".

According to the Applicant he visits his physician when he thinks he is not going to "...clear up ...but ...could be having it for sometime...".

The Applicant is not sure whether he has had pulmonary function tests in the past. The Respondent's Representative suggested that in the seven years Physician #1 has been the Applicant's physician, he had not, until now, recommended pulmonary function tests, nor that the Applicant consult with a specialist. The Applicant became visibly agitated by the Respondent's Representative's remark and asserted: "...I am sorry ...I was in the Wellesley under the hands of a specialist for one week ...when ...twenty three years old ...yeah, I am fifty seven ...since, during, and after, I have chronic bronchitis ...I have been sick all along...".

The Applicant confirmed to the Tribunal that over the years he has frequently visited his physician for back pain. The Applicant is not sure why his physician never sent him for respiratory tests before, but believes it could be because he has "...never been asked ...to have a breathalyzer..." before.

In response to the Respondent's Representative's direct question, as to how he was feeling at the time of the breathalyzer, the Applicant's reply was: "...Well, I can relate to you the tests that they are giving me now ...uptake ...intake ...all this complicated stuff, it is all very scientific stuff, I am not really qualified...".

The Applicant could not recall specifically when he had last been prescribed any medication for his condition, but affirmed that he usually takes medication "...twice a year...", and that the doctors are trying "...to cut back...".

The Applicant did not ask for medical assistance because he has lived with the condition all his life.

In closing, the Applicant related the fact that his car had "...swung around...", and the reason that he was "...sitting there in a daze...", when approached by the officer, was due to the incident that took place before he was stopped by the police.

The Applicant claims that he volunteered to take the breath test, and that during the test he tried to do the "best" he could.

The Applicant referred to his driving abstract and pointed out that he has a clean record. The Applicant believes himself to be a good and responsible driver, who does not drink and drive.

In concluding, the Applicant repeated his previous request for leniency, asking the Tribunal to re-instate his driver's licence as he is suffering considerable hardship due to the suspension.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Notice to the Registrar, certified January 13th, 2003
2. Certified Driving Record of the Applicant, certified January 13th, 2003
3. Vehicle Record, certified January 14th, 2003
4. Videotape: Booking/Breath Interview

The Respondent's Representative called Police Constable #1, as the Respondent's first witness. Police Constable #1 testified that he is currently a member of the Toronto Police Services and is in his "...thirtieth year..." of employment as a police officer.

Police Constable #1, although a breathalyzer technician since 1981, and an Intoxylizer technician since 1993, was the arresting officer in this matter, but not the breath technician.

Police Constable #1 continued his testimony by relating the events that led to the demand for a breath sample and the subsequent suspension of the Applicant's licence.

Upon approaching the vehicle being driven by the Applicant, Police Constable #1 asked the Applicant whether he was feeling well.

The Applicant was transported to the station by Police Constable #2, while Police Constable #1 waited at the scene for the tow truck to arrive.

Police Constable #1 met up again with the Applicant at the station where he turned the Applicant over to Police Constable #3 for the breathalyzer test.

Police Constable #1 remained in the breath room during the Applicant's interview with Police Constable #3. Police Constable #1 is aware that the Applicant failed to provide a breath sample.

During his dealings with the Applicant, Police Constable #1 did not observe the Applicant exhibit any signs of respiratory distress. The Applicant at no time, advised Police Constable #1 that he had any medical problems.

The Applicant cross-examined Police Constable #1 as to whether the officer thought it possible that the Applicant was experiencing medical respiratory stress that could have gone unnoticed by the Applicant. Police Constable #1 restated that nothing was noticed.

The second witness to testify on behalf of the Respondent was Police Constable #3, also with the Toronto Police Services. Police Constable #3 has been a police officer for "sixteen years", and a qualified Intoxylizer technician since "2000".

The Respondent's Representative played the videotape of the breathalyzer session during Police Constable #3's testimony in order to allow the Constable to comment while the tape was being played.

The videotape of the Applicant's breathalyzer session showed that each time the Applicant attempted to provide a breath sample, no tone, indicative of air entering the instrument, was emitted. None of the expected signs of breathing difficulties are perceptible, in the Applicant's appearance and demeanour. The Applicant did acknowledge that he had back problems and past bouts of "...ammonia, asthma and bronchitis...".

Police Constable #3 explained the operation of the instrument. It was her evidence that the Intoxylizer requires minimal effort in order to register, and emit a tone. In her view, the Applicant's failure to cause the instrument to emit a tone, suggests that the Applicant was either not blowing at all, or not blowing with sufficient force to activate the instrument.

Police Constable #3 attested that at no time did she observe the Applicant being afflicted with any physical or breathing difficulty, such as wheezing or coughing.

In his cross-examination of Police Constable #3, the Applicant questioned why the Constable did not ask, as she should have done, whether he had any chest infections or chest or lung related diseases. Police Constable #3 noted that as demonstrated by the videotape, she did ask the Applicant if he had any illnesses or was on any medication.

In her closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative, Ms. Beintema, reminded the Tribunal that the matter of hardship is not a consideration for this hearing.

The Applicant appealed on medical grounds and Ms. Beintema contends that there is no medical reason for the Applicant's failure to provide a breath sample, and that in fact the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample.

To substantiate her argument, the Respondent's Representative relied on the testimony of both Constables. The Respondent's Representative remarked that the Applicant showed no signs of stress or breathing difficulties. Further, the Applicant did not inform, Police Constable #3 of any existing medical conditions other than "back pain". It was only while the Applicant was attempting to provide a breath sample that he specified he had respiratory problems. Nonetheless, having an illness as the Applicant indicated "...at some time in my life ..." does not support the premise that the illness is current.

According to the Respondent's Representative, there is absolutely no medical evidence by way of current medical reports to support the Applicant's argument. Physician #2, whom the Applicant saw on January 8th, 2003, did not even provide a preliminary medical report to assist the Applicant.

The Applicant seems to suggest that if "...he could be suffering now, ...he could have been suffering then...", yet, neither physician prescribed any medication. The Applicant's family physician Physician #1, did not even report any occurrence of wheezing or chest congestion.

The fact that the Applicant failed to cause the instrument to emit a tone is also suggestive, according to Ms. Beintema, that the Applicant was intentionally evading to incriminate himself, by deliberately not providing a suitable breath sample.

In conclusion, the Respondent's Representative referred to the medical report submitted by the Applicant and pointed to the fact that Physician #1's report fails to link the diagnosis to the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. Thus, the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The Tribunal feels it is imperative to explain to the Applicant that as the Applicant brought an appeal under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to deal with issues of hardship. Further at issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all.

The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause, at the time of the breath sample demand, the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand. Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, states:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

In dealing with the medical grounds for appeal, the Applicant takes the position that he was unable to provide a breath sample, because: he had pleurisy approximately thirty five years ago, at which time he was hospitalized for a week; and, he has suffered from recurring spells of respiratory illness all his life.

The Respondent's Representative insists that it is unreasonable for the Tribunal to accept a medical condition that occurred over thirty five years ago as a valid reason for the Applicant to have failed to provide an adequate breath sample, on January 1st, 2003.

The Tribunal must agree. It is highly unlikely that an attack of pleurisy that occurred while the Applicant was in his twenties, would still to this date, affect the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. Considering, as the Applicant suggests, that as a result of this and previous events, the Applicant has suffered continuously from respiratory difficulties, the Tribunal has great difficulty understanding why the Applicant would not have seen a respiratory specialist, or provided a pulmonary function test to confirm his inability to provide a breath sample.

To substantiate the second part of his argument, the Applicant attested to the fact, confirmed by Physician #1's brief comments on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, that he is currently undergoing a series of pulmonary function tests to determine the existing condition. The Respondent's Representative contends that the Applicant presented no corroborating reports.

The Tribunal does accept the Applicant's testimony that he is under medical care and an investigation to determine his medical condition is under way.

The Tribunal would have entertained a request for an adjournment had the Applicant requested an opportunity to submit a report from Physician #2, at a later date, but he did not do so.

Of major consequence, and relevance to the breathalyzer incident, is Physician #1's opinion after examining the Applicant on January 2nd, 2003, the day after the demand for a breath sample was made: "Patient may have chronic obstructive pulmonary disease...". Not only does Physician #1's use of the word "may", appear to the Tribunal as cautionary, but the fact Physician #1 prescribed no medication whatsoever, not even of a temporary nature, could also be taken as an indication, that none was necessary.

The Applicant was examined by Physician #2 on January 8th, 2003. Again it appears that Physician #2 does not feel the situation warranted issuing a prescription, not even for an inhaler, which is the most common and immediate relief for individuals with breathing disorders. It is hard to conceive that neither physician would prescribe provisional medication, if the Applicant, as he maintains, was manifesting any signs of bronchitis or any other severe respiratory illness.

Furthermore, the Tribunal notes that Physician #2, as an expert witness for the Ministry, did not provide the Applicant with a preliminary report of her findings on examination.

The Applicant was asked several times by the Respondent's Representative to specifically describe the symptoms he experienced during the breathalyzer session. The Applicant's replies were elusive and evasive, at best. The Applicant was unable to describe to the Tribunal, any actual physical symptoms, that would have precluded the provision of an adequate breath sample.

The Applicant maintains that breathing difficulties are not discernible. The Tribunal disagrees. It is the Tribunal's experience that the signs of breathing distress, manifested by shortness of breath and wheezing are quite noticeable even to an untrained observer. The Tribunal heard and accepted the evidence presented by two well-trained and highly experienced Constables, that the Applicant exhibited absolutely no signs of physical distress or discomfort during the breathalyzer session. The Tribunal viewed the videotape and is in a position to be able to verify the Constables' assessment.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony was insufficient to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Nor is there compelling evidence provided by his doctors to confirm a medical reason for his inability to provide a sample of his breath. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 1, 2003 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

LICENCE APPEAL TRIBUNAL

Appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap.H.8 as amended (the "Act"), from the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE
ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: TERRENCE LORETTE
 Presiding member

APPEARANCES: KIM BIENTEMA
 Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

 GINA STRATI, Applicant
 unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: January 20, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: January 30, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 20, 2003 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Gina Strati (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Honda Civic CX, plate AKJY095 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	December 30, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the driver's licence was not under suspension, the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended; and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 20, 2003 and proceeded as an electronic (telephone) hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the three grounds of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the driver's licence was not under suspension, or that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended; or alternatively that the loss of the vehicle so that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of her appeal states:

I (the vehicle owner) exercised due diligence to determine drivers license was not suspended. His impaired charge was withdrawn in court. Documentation is provided. The police computer system has not been corrected to reflect this.

Also, the loss of my vehicle has resulted in exceptional hardship. I live in the country with no accessibility to public transit. Due to 2 severe car accidents I am unable to walk very far. Not having a vehicle has interfered with my rehabilitation schedule and I am unable to get my medication or make long awaited doctor's appointments.

Gina Strati

The Applicant testified that she had known the driver David J. Moir for some time and that they lived together for the past 2 years. She states that the Crown Attorney withdrew all driving related charges against David Moir on July 24, 2001 in relation to the October 25, 1996 charges. She states that his licence was therefore not under suspension at the time of the driving incident of December 21, 2002. She further stated that she believed he had a valid drivers license although she had never actually seen it. She was unaware that Mr. Moir had never held a valid drivers license, something that the Tribunal member found difficult to understand.

The Applicant also testified as to her physical health and need to periodically see a chiropractor for treatments relating to injuries resulting from a car accident some years ago. These visits to the chiropractor become necessary during cold damp weather such as we had been experiencing recently in Southern Ontario.

The Applicant went on to state that there was no public transit available in her area, the nearest being 5 km. or a $10.00 dollar taxi trip away. She also stated that she could not afford these taxi charges, as both she and Mr. Moir were unemployed and receiving public assistance. Ms Strati also stated that there were no neighbours who could assist with transportation and that her nearest relative lived north of Toronto and could not provide any assistance.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by David J. Moir;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of two driving offences under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 4, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended

December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsections 50.2(3)(b), (c) and (d). The tribunal will consider a number of issues in regards to each ground:

Driver's Licence Suspension

Whether or not the driver's licence was under suspension is a question of fact to be determined upon the review of all of the evidence before the Tribunal.

Due diligence

What were the efforts made by the Applicant to determine if the licence was under suspension? What inquiries did she make in regards to her friend?

Exceptional Hardship

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis of one or more of the three grounds?

Driver's Licence Suspension

The Registrar has provided a certified copy of an extended driver record search for Criminal Code convictions under the seal of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles from the Ministry of Transportation. It reveals convictions for Dangerous Driving in 1991, Suspension re Unpaid Fine in 1994, convictions for Impaired Driving in 1997, Impaired Driving again July 24, 2001, and a suspension until July 24, 2003, conviction for Fail to Remain at Accident on July 24, 2001 and a suspension to July 24, 2003. Since there is no evidence of an appeal being filed the conviction is proof that the crimes were committed pursuant to the Ontario Evidence Act.

The Applicant has provided a photocopy of the Court record, which indicates that the driving offenses heard on July 24, 2001 were withdrawn. It is not a certified copy but merely a list of the matters on the docket that day. It is dated the same day as the court appearance regarding the convictions. There is no evidence of an appeal. I prefer the evidence of the Registrar since it is a certified record. Furthermore, I note that the record also refers to a previous suspension from 1994, which appears outstanding so that the licence would still appear to be previously under suspension for an unpaid fine.

Due Diligence

The Applicant had known the driver for some time and she states that she had never seen the driver's license in question but believed the driver had held a valid license. The Tribunal cannot accept that due diligence was performed in this case.

Due diligence requires that the Applicant take positive steps to confirm the validity of the driver's licence. This requires that an individual contact the Ontario Ministry of Transportation with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca.

The evidence before the Tribunal was that the Applicant merely took Mr. Moir at his word and assumed that he had a valid driver's licence. She did not take any steps to determine whether or not he had a valid driver's licence. Merely taking him at his word, is not enough to show due diligence.

Exceptional Hardship

Section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act provides for an appeal on this basis but Section 22(3)(a), (b), (c) and (d) provides very specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment. It is the Tribunal's finding that the Applicant did not provide sufficient evidence to support her appeal.

To show that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available, section 22(4) of the Act stipulates that:

"the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person"

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not demonstrated that every reasonable option was explored. She has not provided adequate evidence about the alternatives. The Applicant has indicated that she needs her vehicle for an occasional visit to the chiropractor for shoulder pain arising from car accidents two years ago. This is not an exceptional hardship. Furthermore she has not filed a disability certificate from her doctor setting out the scope of her medical problem, if any.

Since she has not demonstrated that every reasonable option has been considered, and it is clear that the loss is not immediate, significant and lasting, the Tribunal cannot consider the criteria set out in Regulation 22(2) (b), (c) and (d), that is to say financial loss, loss of employment or education or training. Even if they did apply, the Applicant did not show that she would suffer significant financial loss, job loss or loss of education as a result of the impoundment.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: January 20, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: January 28, 2003 TORONTO

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 20, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Vishwah P. Ramesar (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Dodge Spirit LE 1998, plate ANDY 966 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	January 3, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 20, 2003 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

The impoundment of my vehicle incur financial hardship to me and my family, my wife uses the vehicle to drop me to work and the kids to school. Without the vehicle its difficult to reach to work on time and the fatigue and stress it causes.

The Applicant confirmed the details of his written submission and added the following:

- His wife drives him to and from work and that he works a 7:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. shift as a car detailer; he added that his son had some inconvenience in getting to and from school but that transit was immediately available;
- He lives in the Victoria Park and Danforth area and works in Whitby; he has public transit available and this requires him to take subway and GO train to Oshawa; at the Oshawa station there is no direct bus to his work and he completes the journey by taxi – he confirmed it was also possible to complete the journey to work by walking; the full daily transportation cost, including the use of taxis is $35.70;
- The Applicant and his wife have 3 three children, aged 2, 10 and 13 years, and they live on one income of about $350 to $400 per week and incur stated living expenses of up to $1700 per month, covering rent, auto insurance, credit debt payments and groceries;
- Mr. Ramesar testified that he felt his job was threatened by the amount of time it was now taking him to get to work;
- The Applicant clarified that he owned the vehicle but that the impound fee of $826.15 was an amount he would not have and therefore might not be able to pick it up at the end of the impound period.

In response to questions from Ms. Dunbar, the Registrar's representative, the Tribunal learned that Mr. Ramesar did not have any family or neighbours he could call on but that other though longer (duration) means of getting to work were available.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Vishwah P. Ramesar;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than mgs alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 2, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
- (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As the Applicant appealed on the basis of exceptional hardship (s.50.2(3)(d)), the issue is whether the loss is unusual and whether the impoundment forms an exceptional condition; also whether the impoundment creates a circumstance of severity or/and extreme privation.

The Applicant did not provide any evidence to prove that the impoundment would result in a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the vehicle, or a threat to public health, safety or the environment, as required by s.22(1) of Regulation 574.

The Applicant has demonstrated that there is an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle. He has access to TTC and GO Transit. Although the transportation time may be longer, there is no evidence that the loss is immediate significant and lasting

The evidence that was presented to the Tribunal showed only that the impact would be inconvenience in transportation to Mr. Ramesar, who is the owner of the vehicle and was the driver at the time of the impoundment. Since there is an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle, namely public transit and taxis, the Tribunal cannot consider inconvenience, financial or economic loss, loss of employment, or loss of education.

In summary, since the evidence does not establish exceptional hardship, the Tribunal confirms the Registrar's decision to impound.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant appeals to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated August 9, 2002 denying the claim made by the Applicant for the refund of his deposit.

BACKGROUND & FACTS:

On August 27, 1988, the Applicant executed an agreement of purchase and sale in the Province of Ontario with the added party, Villa Loma Resort Club Limited (hereinafter "Villa Loma") for the purchase of Unit 806 Level 8 in a condominium project to be constructed in Acapulco, Mexico. The agreement contains a closing date of August 30, 1990.

Upon execution of the agreement the Applicant provided an initial deposit of $5,418.00 in Canadian currency and a further deposit in January 1989 which consisted of $2,100.00 in United States currency and $2,898.00 in Canadian currency.

The transaction was not completed, the Applicant demanded the return of his deposit monies and has not received any monies from the added party.

In its decision letter the Program denied the Applicant's claim on five grounds. Firstly, that the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") does not apply to the sale or construction of dwellings located outside Ontario. Secondly, that the dwelling itself is not a "home" within the meaning of the Act. Thirdly, that the Applicant has failed to prove that the vendor is bankrupt or fundamentally breached the contract. Fourthly, that the Applicant's claim against the vendor is statute barred as he failed to commence an action against the vendor or submit a claim to the Program within six years from the date upon which the agreement did not close. Fifthly, that the Applicant did not prove payment of the second deposit.

THE EVIDENCE:

The Applicant appeared in person.

Neither the Program nor Villa Loma called any witnesses.

Michael Puchta

Michael Puchta testified that in August 1998 he responded to an advertisement in a Toronto newspaper and agreed to purchase a condominium to be constructed in Acapulco, Mexico.

The agreement of purchase and sale is contained at Tab 3 of the Program's Book of Documents which was marked as Exhibit Number 3. The agreement provides for a purchase price of $54,180.00, first and second deposits of $5,418.00 and a closing date of August 30, 1990.

Michael Puchta testified that upon execution of the agreement he provided Villa Loma with a deposit of $5,418.00, provided his second deposit on January 15, 1989 and that payment of the second deposit was $2,100.00 cash in United States currency and a cheque in the sum of $2,898.00 in Canadian funds.

Michael Puchta continued by testifying that it was his intention to live in this unit and that following payment of his two deposits, he had difficulty contacting Villa Loma. In June 1990, he met with Mr. Maida, the principal of Villa Loma, in Toronto and was advised that the deal would not go through and was offered an alternate unit in another property.

Michael Puchta testified that he travelled to Acapulco in December 1990, viewed the proposed alternate property, that this property was not acceptable to him and he returned home disappointed.

Michael Puchta testified that as the alternate unit was not acceptable to him, on July 26, 1991 and with the assistance of a sales representative of Villa Loma he prepared and sent a letter to Mr. Maida whereby he requested the return of his deposit. This letter is contained at Tab 5 of Exhibit Number 3.

Michael Puchta testified that he did not receive a response to his July 26, 1991 letter and on April 16, 1992 through CAW Legal Services Plan sent a formal demand letter for the return of the deposit monies and interest thereon. This letter is contained at Tab 6 of Exhibit Number 3.

Michael Puchta concluded his testimony by testifying that as he did not receive a response to his letters, he travelled to Acapulco in May 1993, met with Mr. Maida, advised him that he did not wish to purchase an alternate unit and again, requested the return of his deposit. Michael Puchta testified that Mr. Maida advised that he would not receive his deposit back and that he felt threatened.

Prior to the commencement of the cross-examination of Michael Puchta, the Program acknowledged for the purpose of this appeal that Villa Loma was a registrant within the meaning of the Act.

On cross-examination by Carol Street, Michael Puchta denied that he was purchasing a unit in a hotel, stated that his intention was to live in Mexico for six months at a time and disputed the contents of correspondence that he received from Villa Loma dated October 15, 1990. This correspondence is contained at Tab 4 of Exhibit Number 3.

Upon further cross-examination, by Carol Street, Michael Puchta agreed that the agreement of purchase and sale did not refer to Ontario law and that in accordance with paragraph 8, the agreement refers to the closing being governed in accordance with the Trust Provisions of the Government of Mexico. The agreement of purchase and sale is contained at Tab 3 of Exhibit Number 3.

The remainder of Carol Street's cross-examination, the cross-examination by Mr. Thomas and re-examination did not disclose any significant facts.

ISSUES:

Whereas the decision letter of the Program denies the Applicant's claim on five grounds, there is one specific issue which in this Tribunal's view is determinative of the Applicant's claim.

This is the first issue raised by the Program in its decision letter and can be stated for the purpose of this appeal as whether the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act is applicable to the construction of dwellings outside the Province of Ontario.

Applicant's Submissions

It is the submission of the Applicant that as Villa Loma was a registrant in Ontario for the purpose of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act RSO, 1990 Chapter O.31 (hereinafter the "Act") as amended; as a result the Applicant is entitled to seek payment out of the guarantee fund for the amount of his deposit in accordance with Section 14 of the Act.

The Applicant further submits that the Act does not specifically provide a requirement that homes within the meaning of the Act must be constructed in the Province of Ontario.

The Applicant did not provide the Tribunal with any authority or precedents in support of his position.

Respondent's Submissions

It is the submission of the Program that the Act does not apply to construction outside of the Province of Ontario and this position is based upon the legal principle of territoriality. The Program submits that the principle of territory is authority for the proposition that a province can only legislate or regulate matters within its territory. The Program provided the Tribunal with the following authorities thereon:

Pierre-Andre Cote, the author of The Interpretation of Legislation in Canada, 2nd Edition, states at page 147:

"Unless he implicitly or explicitly provides otherwise, the legislator is presumed to enact for persons, property, juridical acts and events within the territorial boundaries of his jurisdiction. As a result, it is assumed that Parliament does not wish to give its statutes an extraterritorial effect. If possible, all legislative enactments should be construed and applied to promote this presumed intention of the legislature."

Pierre-Andre Cote continues at page 148:

"...the presumption against extraterritorial effect is reinforced by another favouring a construction that validates an enactment over one that renders it invalid. Because provincial legislatures have no power to legislate extraterritorially, they are deemed to respect the constitutional limits of their powers".

He concludes at page 149 by stating:

"a third principle associated with the presumption of territoriality is that words designating persons, property, undertakings and events should, prima facie be construed as referring to persons, property, undertakings and events located within the territory over which the legislative or regulatory authority has jurisdiction".

Peter Hogg, the author of Constitutional Law in Canada, 1997, states at page 13-9:

"as a general proposition, it is plain that a province may not regulate extra-provincial activity".

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act defines "vendor" as follows:

"vendor" means a person who sells on his, her or its own behalf a home not previously occupied to an owner and includes a builder who constructs a home under a contract with the owner

Section 13 of the Act provides:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

Section 14 of the Act provides:

- (1) Where,
 - (a) a person who has entered into a contract with the vendor for the provision of a home has a cause of action in damages against the vendor for financial loss, resulting from the bankruptcy of the vendor or the vendor's failure to perform the contract;
 - (b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty; or
 - (c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed, the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

DECISION:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") regulates the construction of homes in the Province of Ontario. The Act is a provincial statute of the Province of Ontario.

In accordance with the principle of territoriality, the Province of Ontario's statutory and regulatory authority is limited to acts that take place within the Province of Ontario.

The protection afforded to consumers by the Act is limited to new homes that are purchased and constructed in the Province of Ontario. The entire structure of the Program pertains to registration and enrollment of new homes in the Province of Ontario and ensures inter-alia that all new homes are constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code.

The Province of Ontario has no authority nor ability to regulate the construction of homes in Acapulco, Mexico and therefore the Program has no jurisdiction to reimburse the Applicant for deposit monies paid for a home to be constructed in Acapulco, Mexico.

The Tribunal therefore confirms the Decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan dated August 9, 2002 denying the Applicant's claim for the refund of his deposit.

On the basis of the foregoing, the Tribunal makes the following Order:

1. The Appeal of the Applicant is hereby dismissed.
2. The Tribunal makes no findings as to the remaining issues contained in the Notice of Appeal.

Aviva R. Harari, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATES OF

HEARING: December 6, 2002 and January 22, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (“Tribunal”) from a notice of proposal (the “Proposal”) by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (“the Act”). The Proposal dated the 15th day of August, 2002, seeks to refuse the registrations of Liana as a motor vehicle dealer and of Eman S. Shihab (“Ms. Shihab”) and Mazen A. Shihab (“Mr. Shihab”) as motor vehicle sales persons.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar’s reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the revocation of both the above registrations. The reasons are stated as follows.

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant’s past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register 1381357 Ontario Ltd. o/a Liana Car Sales and Eman S. Shihab and Mazen A. Shihab under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows.

1. On or about April 19, 2002 1381357 Ontario Ltd. o/a Liana Car Sales (the "Dealer") applied for registration as a motor vehicle dealer. The Dealer was previously registered as 1381357 Ontario Ltd. o/a Liana's Sales Cars on or about February 4, 2000.
2. On or about April 22, 2002 Mazen A. Shihab ("Mazen") applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. At all material times Mazen was the controlling mind of the Dealer. Mazen was previously registered on or about February 4, 2000.
3. On or about April 22, 2002 Eman S. Shihab ("Eman") applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. At all material times Eman was the controlling mind of the dealer. Eman was previously registered on or about February 4, 2000.
4. On or about February 4, 2000 (as per amendment) they provided the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") with an executed copy of terms and conditions for its registration which included inter alia:
 - E) The Dealer agrees not to invite the public to deal at a place other than their approved location.
 - K) The Dealer agrees that he is under a positive obligation to disclose all material facts about the vehicles he sells to his customers. The Dealer agrees to make reasonable efforts to research the history of all his vehicles prior to sale to ensure that all material facts are disclosed. The Dealer agrees that should any information come to light, which the Registrar deems to be a material fact concerning a vehicle the Dealer has sold, the Dealer will comply with all reasonable requests made by the Registrar to provide compensation to the purchaser.
 - L) The Dealer acknowledges and understands that its registration will not be used to buy or sell motor vehicles where the Dealer knows or ought to know that the purchase or sale of those motor vehicles will facilitate an illegal or unethical practice.
5. On or about August 1, 2000 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer was not present and did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act").

6. On or about May 7, 2001 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer did not have his own office separate from the other dealers and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary to the Act.
7. On or about February 4, 2002 the Dealer, Eman and Shihab's registrations lapsed.
8. On or about May 10, 2002 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises, the Dealer did not have any books and records available for inspection contrary to the Act.
9. On or about February 1, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1994 Voyageur VIN 1P4GH44RX218615 with the disclosure that the vehicle was salvage. On or about June 26, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Gloria Nkrumah without full disclosure.
10. On or about February 1, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1996 Ford Taurus Voyager VIN 1FALP52U4SG210400 with the disclosure that the vehicle was problem vehicle body damage. On or about May 9, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle through GTA Auctions without full disclosure.
11. The Dealer has failed to operate from his registered premises contrary to the Act.
12. The Dealer, Eman and Mazen have failed to comply with the Act and in particular with section 5.

At the hearing, the Registrar sought and was granted a minor amendment to the particulars in the Proposal in paragraph 4 as noted above.

By written notice, Liana and Ms. Shihab informed the Tribunal pursuant to Section 7(2) of the Act, that they require a hearing regarding their appeal to the Registrar's Proposal.

The Evidence

At the opening of the hearing, counsel for the Registrar and the agent representing the Applicants indicated that they had agreed as to the facts set out in paragraphs 1, 2 and 4 of the particulars as noted above.

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence (32 exhibits) as well as the oral testimony of Saul David Paton, Brian Lia and the Deputy Registrar of OMVIC Mary Jane South.

Evidence of Saul David Paton

Mr. Paton is a member of the public who purchased a used vehicle which is the subject of these proceedings. Mr. Paton testified that in May 2001, for the very first time, he attended at GTA Auctions in Toronto. At the auction he bid on a number of vehicles but ended up purchasing a 1995 dark blue Ford Taurus, serial number 1FALP52U4SG210400 (the "Taurus").

When Mr. Paton purchased the Taurus, it was towed to a mechanic he had used in the past at a garage located at Shuter and Parliament. The mechanic took Mr. Paton into the garage when the vehicle was up on the hoist. He showed the undercarriage of the vehicle to Mr. Paton which indicated to Mr. Paton's eye that there was extensive frame damage to the Taurus. As a result of that damage, Mr. Paton returned the Taurus to GTA Auctions. The damage was verified and Mr. Paton received a refund of his money. He returned all copies of the purchase documentation to GTA Auctions at the time. Mr. Paton did not recall hearing the name "Liana" or knowing from where the vehicle had originated during his dealings with GTA Auctions. Mr. Paton quite candidly admitted that he did not specifically recall the exact price, the express mileage, the exact year of the vehicle or the exact date of his purchase. However, subsequent testimony on the part of the Applicant confirmed that in fact Mr. Paton had purchased the Taurus which was the subject of the Registrar's concerns about the Applicants. Mr. Paton was extensively cross-examined about the issue and about the particulars of the vehicle, however I find from my observations of the demeanor of Mr. Paton while giving his testimony that his inability to recall precise details concerning the vehicle (the VIN for example) did not detract from his testimony. Mr. Paton was quite clear that when he purchased the Taurus there was no mention whatsoever about the fact that the vehicle had been damaged or there was any indication that the car had been in an accident. Mr. Paton described the damage as "obvious", and I find no reason to believe he would not have the capacity to make this observation.

Evidence of Brian Lia

Mr. Lia has been employed by OMVIC as an inspector for three years. Prior to his present position, he worked for OMVIC for a year in the Complaints/Mediation Department. Mr. Lia testified with the benefit of referring to notes which he had made contemporaneous to the events at issue.

On May 7th, 2001, Mr. Lia found Mr. Shihab in premises where Mr. Shihab was selling vehicles on behalf of Liana at 5 Rossdean Drive. There was no signage to indicate that it was a dealer location for Liana Car Sales. Mr. Lia directed Mr. Shihab to ensure that all books and records were kept at the registered premises, that he submit a business change form to OMVIC with regard to his address change. At the time the business was registered it was at 429 Signet Drive in North York. Mr. Lia also directed that the signage be conspicuously posted and that the business office for Liana Car Sales be separate from other business, which were on the premises.

Approximately a year later on May 10th, 2002, Mr. Lia again went to visit Liana Car Sales. At this point, the business had been registered to operate at 395 Weston Road, Toronto. At the time Mr. Shihab was not present at the site. Another appointment was set up for May 14th, 2002. When the next visit occurred, Mr. Shihab did not have his garage register. Initially he stated that he had lost it and said that his records were with his accountant.

May 10th, 2002 Visit

During the visit Mr. Lia reminded Mr. Shihab that his registration was subject to terms and conditions. One of these conditions was that the dealer had agreed to maintain a garage register in accordance with the Highway Traffic Act.

Mr. Lia also noted during his visit that there were a number of vehicles which were on the lot which were not registered to the dealership.

Mr. Lia again met Mr. Shihab on May 15th, 2002. Certain of the records were still missing at that time. However, Mr. Shihab was able to produce his garage register at the time.

At this time, Mr. Lia discovered that Liana had sold a vehicle, a 1994 Plymouth Voyager, which had been in an accident, was declared "salvage", but this fact did not appear on the bill of sale to a retail customer. According to Mr. Lia, Mr. Shihab indicated he did not remember whether or not the purchaser was advised that the vehicle was "salvage". This transaction is subsequently referred to this decision as the purchase by Ms. Gloria Nkrumah.

Also during this visit, Mr. Lia discovered the circumstances concerning the Ford Taurus, which had been ultimately sold to Mr. Paton. At this point, Mr. Lia discovered that when Liana purchased the vehicle from Toronto Auto Auctions it was indicated that the vehicle was a "problem" as it had been damaged.

Also during this meeting Mr. Lia questioned Ms. Shihab's role in the business. Mr. Shihab advised Ms. Shihab taught public school in Woodbridge, and was not involved in the day to day running of the business.

During the visit Mr. Lia requested certain documentation be sent or supplied to OMVIC. He also reviewed the paperwork for some twenty deals. Ten of these had complete documentation and ten were incomplete.

On or about May 24th, 2002, Mr. Lia spoke to Ms. Nkrumah. At that time according to Mr. Lia, Ms. Nkrumah said that she did not recall being advised that the Voyager she had purchased had been in an accident prior to her purchase.

There was some dispute during Mr. Lia's evidence concerning what had occurred outside the hearing room on the first day of hearing in respect of Ms. Gloria Nkrumah's expected testimony. She was initially summonsed, but then released by counsel for the Registrar, before she actually set foot in the hearing room. Ultimately, the agent for the Applicants indicated he wished to call the witness and placed her under summons for a subsequent date of hearing.

Ultimately Mr. Lia obtained the information from GTA Auctions which indicated that when Mr. Shihab sold the Taurus, written disclosure did not include any reference whatsoever to the fact that the vehicle had been in accident and had been repaired.

On cross-examination Mr. Lia was asked why there was a delay between inspections. Mr. Lia advised this is a routine matter given OMVIC's resources, and the number of dealers that they are responsible to regulate. Mr. Lia admitted that there had been no prior complaints about Liana Car Sales prior to his initial meeting with Mr. Shihab.

Evidence of Mary Jane South

Mary Jane South is the Deputy Registrar of OMVIC and has held that position since January 1997. Prior to that time she was employed by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

Ms. South testified as to the reasons why the Registrar refused to renew the registration of the Applicants and confirmed the particulars of the Registrar's position as set out above. Ms. South explained the basis for the initial imposition of terms and conditions with respect to the initial application of Liana and Mr. and Mrs. Shihab. There were concerns about the business plan, and thus the reason for the imposition of terms and conditions.

Ms. South also testified that she was concerned about the application to renew based on the fact that it appeared certain portions on the face of the document had been whited out. The Tribunal examined the original document and it did appear that there had been white out used, but the document was otherwise proper and set out the information the Applicants intended to convey in their application.

Ms. South testified that she had reviewed the reports prepared by Mr. Lia. She discussed with Mr. Lia his concerns about the fact that in a number of areas the Applicants had failed to comply with the requirements to keep certain records and it also appeared Mr. Shihab was involved in selling two vehicles that had been damaged and the fact of damage had not been disclosed to the purchaser.

Ms. South testified that she had no confidence based on her review of the material in the application and her review of various reports by OMVIC officers, including Mr. Lia, that what was shown in the material provided by the Applicants, was in fact what was occurring at the dealership. Accordingly, Ms. South formed the opinion that she could not conclude that the registrants would continue to carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Ms. South was the last witness called on behalf of the Registrar.

Evidence of the Applicants

Gloria Nkrumah ("Ms. Nkrumah")

Ms. Nkrumah purchased a 1994 Plymouth Voyager from Liana Car Sales in June 2001. Ms. Nkrumah paid $5,500.00 for the vehicle. The transaction involved $4,000.00 in cash and $1,500.00 in financing. Ultimately, the financing cost Ms. Nkrumah some $3,000.00. Ms. Nkrumah testified in chief that she was advised by Mr. Shihab that the car had been in an accident and that Liana had fixed it.

Ms. Nkrumah testified that when she had been initially contacted by OMVIC, she had simply "forgot" that she had been advised that the vehicle had been in an accident. She testified she had no further difficulties with the vehicle since the purchase. During cross-examination Ms. Nkrumah admitted that she had not told the inspector, Mr. Lia that she had been expressly warned that the car had been in an accident and had been repaired. She also agreed that in December of 2002 she had spoken with counsel for the Registrar at which time she again confirmed that she had not been told that the car had been in an accident prior to her purchasing it. At some point between late November 2002 and the date of the hearing on January 22nd, 2003, she "remembered" that she was told that the vehicle had been in an accident by the dealer, Mr. Shihab. She testified that she believed that Mr. Shihab would not have sold her the vehicle if it was not "fixed". There was some testimony given concerning a person who had actually brought Ms. Nkrumah to the hearing at the first date in December. Ms. Nkrumah never really answered the question as to how it was she knew this person, but she did maintain that she had not been contacted by the Applicants or their agent, Mr. Kassam, prior to giving her testimony.

Ms. Nkrumah admitted that she had purchased other vehicles prior to the 1994 Plymouth Voyager at issue.

At one point in the cross-examination, Ms. Nkrumah indicated that she was confused about the line of questioning and was not able to answer certain questions posed to her by counsel for the Registrar.

Evidence of Mazen A. Shihab ("Mr. Shihab")

Mr. Shihab testified he is 50 years old and married with five children. He had been three years in the motor vehicle business since coming to Canada in 1990. Mr. Shihab testified he had no criminal record and that he has a diploma in "building and shuttering" from an institution in Jordan. Mr. Shihab testified in chief that he did not read and write well in English.

In chief, Mr. Shihab admitted that the vehicle that had been sold to Mr. Paton had been sold to GTA Auctions by Liana Car Sales. Mr. Shihab testified that when he had brought the vehicle to sell it, he had been questioned by a "guy" working for GTA.

According to Mr. Shihab, the “guy” told him that in the event the vehicle was not labelled “salvage” that there was no need for Mr. Shihab to identify on the documentation going to GTA that the vehicle had been “damaged”. Mr. Shihab did not recall the guy’s name. Mr. Shihab testified that the Taurus was the first vehicle he had purchased that had been in an accident.

Mr. Shihab further testified in chief that when GTA Auctions had indicated to him that the purchaser had brought the Taurus back because of extensive damage, that Mr. Shihab immediately refunded the purchase price to GTA Auctions.

In chief, Mr. Shihab testified concerning the events with the 1994 Plymouth Voyager and Ms. Nkrumah. Mr. Shihab maintained that he had told Ms. Nkrumah that the Voyager had been in an accident. However, he said that he did not mention on the bill of sale that the car had been in an accident because that document was going to a leasing company. In Mr. Shihab’s opinion, if the vehicle documentation indicated it had previously been in an accident, the leasing company would not have extended the financing necessary to allow Ms. Nkrumah to purchase the vehicle.

In chief, Mr. Shihab admitted that he had been given the terms and conditions initially imposed by OMVIC and that they had been read to him by his wife and explained to him by her.

Mr. Shihab testified that when he first had been contacted by OMVIC, and specifically Mr. Lia, that he was at the Rossdean location. At that time apparently Mr. Lia was looking for another dealer and just happened upon Mr. Shihab. Mr. Shihab testified that he had asked for a change of address application.

Mr. Shihab testified that the second time he met with Mr. Lia it was sometime later, perhaps a year. At that time Mr. Shihab testified that he did not know that Mr. Lia was coming. Mr. Shihab agreed that the second time Mr. Lia met him, the garage register was not available as it had been “lost”. Subsequently, Mr. Shihab found the document.

Mr. Shihab admitted that when he was at the Rossdean location he did not have signage up. This however was explained by the fact that he was not actually operating there at the time and he was simply fixing the place up getting ready to operate there.

Under cross-examination Mr. Shihab agreed that his wife was not specifically involved in transactions involving the business. He said however that sometimes he called her when he needed her, but he admitted he was really the operating mind of the business. He also agreed that he was not an officer or director of Liana Car Sales.

Mr. Shihab indicated that during his time operating Liana, he had bought and sold some fifty to sixty cars. Only three of those had been involved in accidents.

Mr. Shihab testified that he put the Taurus into an auction because he wanted to “sell it fast”. He said he paid $1,500.00 for the Taurus and spent $2,000.00 in repairs. He did not recall the name of the person who repaired the vehicle and did not have the repair documentation available for production, although apparently it had not been requested prior to the hearing.

In cross-examination Mr. Shihab said that he did in fact tell GTA that the car had been in an accident, but because the “guy” had told him not to write it down, he didn’t write it down. Mr. Shihab said that he now regretted listening to the “guy”. Mr. Shihab testified that he had told Ms. Nkrumah that the car had been in an accident, but did not tell her how bad the accident was and didn’t tell her how much he had paid to repair it.

Mr. Shihab testified that he had first commenced business at 429 Signet, then moved to 915 Weston, then moved to 5 Rossdean and finally continued the Liana business at 395 Weston Road.

Mr. Shihab mentioned that he was involved with a “partner” in the venture at 395 Weston Road. However, the “partner” is long gone. Apparently the partnership was not disclosed to OMVIC.

Mr. Shihab admitted selling cars for another dealer. The cars were on his lot, but were not registered to Liana. Mr. Shihab said that Mr. Lia did not confirm with him the fact of the terms and conditions and did not send anything with respect to them following his initial visit.

Evidence of Eman S. Shihab (“Ms. Shihab”)

Ms. Shihab is 43 years old. She is married to Mr. Shihab. They have five children and they live in Woodbridge. Ms. Shihab works in childcare and also teaches heritage language courses at an elementary school.

In chief, Ms. Shihab testified that Liana Car Sales was losing money from the beginning. She claimed that she and her husband have lost $100,000.00 operating the business in its three years of operation. She testified that the business was not showing any signs of picking up at the time that the registration was refused.

Ms. Shihab said that she helped oversee the business, but she was not present when any specific transactions were completed. She mentioned that her husband talked to her about visits he received from OMVIC. She confirmed that she explained to Mr. Shihab the terms and conditions. She mentioned at the time that they became dealers she did not understand that there were courses available for her to take to understand how to operate a motor vehicle dealership. She also confirmed at some point in time Mr. Shihab had a partner, but in the operation of the dealership, it did not really work out. Ms. Shihab was concerned because she believed that it was not necessary for the dealership to purchase vehicles that had been in accidents and then fixed up for resale.

The Law

Section 3.(1)(a) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

- 3. (1) No person shall,
 - (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or

Section 5.(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

- 5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;

Section 6.(2) of the Act states:

- 6.(2) Subject to Section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 16.(2)(o) of Regulation 801 as amended states:

- (2) Where a used motor vehicle is sold, the sales or purchase order shall show,
 - (o) the distance travelled by the vehicle at the time of sale;

Application of Law to the Facts

In determining these matters, the Tribunal is entitled to refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out its proposal only if it finds that the Registrar was in error in concluding the past conduct of the applicants affords reasonable grounds for the belief that the applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. (Brenner (1983 19 CRAT 58 (Div. Ct.)).

The Tribunal finds that the Applicants Eman and Mazen Shihab failed to comply with the Act. There was a failure to maintain the documentation required, and as well a failure to comply with the terms and conditions they had agreed to. Further, the Tribunal is concerned about Ms. Nkrumah's explanation with respect to the transaction concerning the 1994 Voyageur. Ms. Nkrumah, on two occasions, did not recall that she had been advised by the dealer that the vehicle had been in an accident. Her story changed when she was on the stand on the second day of the hearing.

The Tribunal finds that the fact that a vehicle has been in an accident is a very material consideration for a purchaser of a vehicle. The Tribunal does not believe that Ms. Nkrumah simply forgot about being advised of the accident when she was asked, on not one, but two occasions prior to the hearing.

The Tribunal finds that the dealer in fact did not tell Ms. Nkrumah that the vehicle was in an accident. Not only was the vehicle in an accident, it had been considered “salvage”. That is to say, it had been written off by an insurance company. This is a very material issue with respect to a used motor vehicle. The Tribunal finds that Mr. Shihab did not disclose a material fact about the motor vehicle when it was purchased by Ms. Nkrumah.

The incident concerning the 1995 Ford Taurus is also of concern. Obviously, the vehicle came to Liana Car Sales in a damaged condition which clearly disclosed in the sale documentation from the original auctioneer to Liana. Mr. Shihab admitted that he did not fill in the comment section with respect to the vehicle when he sold it to GTA Auctions. It appears to the Tribunal that the comment section is critical in describing any problems with a vehicle. The Tribunal does not believe Mr. Shihab when he asserts that someone from GTA Auctions told Mr. Shihab to omit a very important fact concerning the history of a vehicle.

The Tribunal accepts Mr. Paton’s evidence and believes that the vehicle, notwithstanding the repairs performed by Liana, was not in saleable condition when the car was sold to GTA Auctions, and in turn to Mr. Paton. Interestingly, Mr. Shihab mentioned that he wanted to do a “quick sale” with respect to the Taurus. The Tribunal believes the reason that Mr. Shihab was looking for a quick sale is that he was experiencing some financial difficulties in the business which was verified by the testimony of his wife in chief. Mr. Shihab was attempting to effectively double his money as he had purchased the Taurus for $1,500.00, claims he put $2,000.00 into it and was trying to sell it with a reserve price at $6,900.00. The fact the vehicle was damaged and repaired, including damage to the frame, should have been disclosed. Mr. Shihab admitted he made a mistake, but in the Tribunal’s view, it was more than a “mistake”, it was an attempt by Mr. Shihab to mislead a potential purchaser in the interest of making a quick sale.

The Tribunal appreciated the forthright manner with which Ms. Shihab gave her evidence. The Tribunal finds that she was not involved in the day to day activities of the business and was not ensuring that the business complied with the terms and conditions of its registration. The Tribunal cannot understand why she wishes to pursue registration as a motor vehicle dealer sales person. She is pursuing her career in teaching in the main. The Tribunal was also concerned about the evidence that was given about the fact that the business was uneconomic for the Shihab family and losses of $100,000.00 were incurred over a three-year period.

While the Tribunal appreciates that Mr. Shihab indicated that he wished to pursue a career as a motor vehicle dealer, his past conduct did not give the Tribunal confidence that he would carry forward in the pursuit of this line of work with honesty, integrity and in accordance with law. The Tribunal does not believe the circumstances are appropriate to allow Mr. Shihab to maintain his registration to sell under further terms and conditions. Clear terms and conditions were imposed initially and they were not observed by

Mr. Shihab, particularly the two incidents respecting the vehicles sold to Mr. Paton and the vehicle sold to Ms. Nkrumah.

DECISION

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal hereby directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated August 15th, 2002 to refuse the registrations of 1381357 Ontario Ltd. o/a Liana Car Sales, as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act and Eman S. Shihab and Mazen A. Shihab as a motor vehicle sales persons under the Act.

ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, as amended, 1288918 Ontario Inc. (the "Applicant") appealed a Notice of Proposal dated September 4, 2002 of the Registrar of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Registrar") to revoke registration of the Applicant;

WHEREAS the Applicant appealed the proposal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal requesting a hearing;

AND WHEREAS the hearing was scheduled to be held on February 12, 2003, to be continued on February 13, 2003 at the Springbank Room of the London, Ontario, Delta Armouries Hotel;

AND WHEREAS the hearing commenced on February 12, 2003 and Counsel for the Applicant advised the Tribunal that he was requesting an adjournment as he had not had any communication with his client since December 24, 2002 and did not have his instructions as to how he should proceed with the matter.

Counsel for the ONHWP, Ms. Street, argued against adjournment and submitted that:

- The Applicant knew of the Hearing schedule and was well aware of it;
- The Applicant had retained Counsel and been given full opportunity to defend itself;

- The Applicant appeared to have chosen not to proceed as he had not been in contact with his counsel;
- The request for adjournment had only been communicated to her (Ms. Street) yesterday at 3:00 p.m., February 11, 2003;
- There are claims against the Applicant which are in process and an adjournment would not be in the public interest at this time.

The Tribunal ruled that the adjournment request was denied and the hearing was to proceed;

Counsel for the Applicant then requested a short break to make another effort to contact his and obtain his instructions.

Upon his return, Mr. Cockburn advised the Tribunal he had contacted his client and that he had been instructed to withdraw the Appeal;

NOW THEREFORE this Tribunal orders, on the consent of the parties, that the proceedings in this matter are hereby concluded and that the ONHWP Registrar's Proposal to Revoke Registration of 1288918 ONTARIO INC. is confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a written decision of the New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated September 23, 2002.

The Applicant in this appeal bases his claim on the provisions of section 13(1)(a) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act"). The Applicant's claim was refused by the Program.

The Tribunal heard evidence from the Applicant, David J. Egan who is a graduate in architecture from the Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and registered specification writer, and Paul Rochon the warranty representative of the Program.

FACTS

Evidence for the Applicant

The Applicant gave evidence that he has two major concerns regarding the construction of this roof. First, there was a leak in the roof at the north side of the home above or very near a window in the master bedroom. Second, the Applicant maintains that roofing shingles are lifting and roofing nails protrude significantly. The Applicant acknowledged that while there is some telegraphing of the roof (the appearance of a wave-like affect on the shingles), he is not concerned about the appearance of the roof. He is only concerned that the telegraphing may be a sign of excessive flexibility in the plywood.

With regard to the leak, the Applicant explained that he can only confirm the roof leaked on one occasion, November 30, 2001. There are two spots of water damage in the second floor master bedroom. Sometime later, he noticed signs of water damage on the first floor. He cannot say whether this damage arose as a result of the leak on November 30, 2001 or a subsequent leak.

On cross-examination the Applicant acknowledged there were no leaks prior to November 30, 2001, and that he could not confirm any subsequent leaks. He also acknowledged that eavestroughing had been installed by a contractor retained by the Applicant in May of 2000, after he took possession of the home. The eavestroughing runs around the roof, including from the northeast corner to a valley on the north side, which is over the master bedroom. The Applicant acknowledged that, after noticing the leak, he saw a small sheet of ice on the roof near the valley and above the eavestroughing. He also acknowledged that there had been a steady rain on November 29 and 30, 2001. The Applicant also confirmed that, at times, the temperature dropped below freezing on those days. Finally, he acknowledged that the builder had performed some repairs following the leak of November 30, 2001, and, again, he could not establish that there had been any leaks since that time.

With regard to the lifting shingles and protruding roofing nails, the Applicant felt these problems were the result of using plywood that was too thin. All parties agreed the builder had used 3/8" thick plywood. The Applicant pointed to Ontario Building Code table 9.23.15.6.A and interpreted it to mean that where roofing trusses were 24" inches apart, the Code requires 1/2" plywood. The Applicant acknowledged that, in coming to this interpretation, he was relying on the evidence of his expert witness, David Egan.

The Applicant felt the thin plywood meant there was excessive flexibility in the roof. He felt that, as a result of this excessive flexibility, the roofing nails were not driven completely into the plywood and/or worked themselves out. This resulted in the lifting of shingles and the potential for water penetration. He acknowledged seeing roofing clips between the panels of plywood in the attic.

The Applicant was also concerned that the Program's inspector, Paul Rochon, never actually went on to the roof during his inspections. He did not bring his own ladder. He declined the use of the Applicant's ladder. In December of 2002, Mr. Rochon called and asked to have access to the roof. Despite the fact that the Applicant gave him permission to go on the roof, Mr. Rochon did not attend to do so.

The issue regarding the securing of the trusses at the peak had not been raised prior to the Applicant filing the report of David Egan, dated October 10, 2002. The parties were content to address this issue. The Applicant deferred to the evidence given by David Egan on this point.

David J. Egan is a graduate of the architecture program at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute. He is a registered specification writer, which designation was obtained through the University of Toronto and Construction Specifications Canada. He has extensive experience in residential construction. Since 1984, he has been operating his own architectural design firm. Mr. Egan was qualified to give evidence as a residential construction specialist. His qualifications were admitted by the Program and the Third Party.

In his report of October 10, 2002, Mr. Egan confirmed that the roof sheathing (plywood) was 3/8" thick. He went on in his evidence to state that table 9.23.15.6.A of the Ontario Building Code provided that only 1/2" plywood could be used with "H" clips supports. While giving his evidence, he again reviewed the table and candidly acknowledged that he had erred. He conceded that 3/8" plywood could be used with "H" clips. He had observed "H" clip supports when inspecting the roof.

Notwithstanding the admitted error in interpreting the table, Mr. Egan indicated he found the roof to be very flexible. He noticed many areas where the roof shingles were raised. Upon further inspection, he noticed that the roofing nails had not been fully driven into the sheathing. This was confirmed when inspecting the roof from the interior through the attic and upon reviewing photographs which he had taken of the roof. The nails protruded anywhere from a 1/4" to 1/2". The protruding nails were causing the shingles to lift. In his opinion, the shingles would be subject to excessive movement which will shorten the life of the shingles and ultimately result in leaks. These are also subject to being stripped off by high winds, especially as an adhesive tab on the underside of the shingles was prevented from adhering to the shingle below due to the protruding roofing nails.

Mr. Egan had also noticed a lack of eaves protection at a number of locations, including areas above the master bedroom window and a 10' to 12' area on the west side of the home above a heated office. He explained that eaves protection usually consists of 15 lb. building paper. According to Mr. Egan, it was industry standard to put eaves protection under roofing valleys, and he did not see any protection under the roofing valley on the north side, above the master bedroom window. He felt that the lack of protection at the eaves and under the valley may have led to the leak in the master bedroom. Upon cross-examination, he acknowledged that eaves protection under valleys is not required by the Ontario Building Code. He further acknowledged he had no information that the roof had leaked in the area of the office. Under cross-examination, Mr. Egan indicated that, while ice damming is primarily an insulation problem, it can be made worse by the installation of eavestroughing.

With regard to the securing of the roofing trusses, Mr. Egan testified that, upon a recent inspection, he could clearly see where the ridge rafters met the main truss, and these units had not been nailed together.

EVIDENCE OF THE PROGRAM

Paul Rochon gave evidence on behalf of the Program. Mr. Rochon had been a warranty representative for 13 years. It was his responsibility to mediate and conciliate disputes between the homeowner and builder. Before his time with the Program, Mr. Rochon had been a customer service manager for a builder, and an Ontario Building Code official for a local municipality. He graduated from a three-year diploma course from Algonquin College as a technologist in architecture.

Mr. Rochon did review letters written to the Program by the Applicant dated August 15 and June 22, 2002. He acknowledged that the letter of June 22, 2002 simply referred to, “. . . crappy quality of shingles on my roof and too thin plywood on my roof.” Mr. Rochon felt the complaint lacked specifics. While the Program could have asked for greater detail, it did not. He relied on what the applicant brought to his attention at the meeting of September 23, 2002.

Mr. Rochon met the Applicant at his home on September 23, 2002. At the time and during previous circumstances, the Applicant referred to the water damage in the master bedroom, as well as the lack of thickness of the plywood and wavy appearance of the roof. Specifically, there was no discussion regarding eaves protection.

Mr. Rochon confirmed that, when he attended on September 23, 2002, he looked at the roof from the ground and through the entrance to the attic. He did not go on to the roof itself. He did see telegraphing which is normal and not a defect in his opinion. From the ground, he could not see any evidence of lifting shingles or anything out of the ordinary.

From the attic, he measured the thickness of the plywood sheathing and found it to be 3/8”. He also saw the spacing of the trusses at approximately 24” and the presence of “H” clips. While not specifically looking for protruding nails, he did see that the majority of the roofing nails were protruding through the plywood into the attic.

Mr. Rochon acknowledged that he had called the Applicant in December of 2002 enquiring about obtaining access to the Applicant's roof. He explained that he was unable to take advantage of the Applicant's offer of access to the roof because of weather conditions and his schedule.

Concerning the lack of eaves protection, Mr. Rochon only heard of this upon reviewing Mr. Egan's report of January 10, 2002. Mr. Rochon pointed out that this was more than a year from the date when the Applicant took occupancy (approximately December 21, 1999). He noted that there is a one-year warranty for incomplete work or breaches of the Ontario Building Code, and this deficiency was not raised with the Program within the one-year warranty period.

Regarding the leak into the master bedroom, Mr. Rochon noted that there had been snow and freezing rain in the area. In his opinion, the eavestroughing may fill due to ice, resulting in ice damming and a backing up of water onto the roof under the shingles. He also pointed out that the area of the roof in question faced north so it would have little melting effect from the sun. The fact the Applicant had noticed a thin layer of ice on the roof indicated to Mr. Rochon the problem was likely due to ice damming as there had not been any indication of leaks since the repairs were made by the builder. Mr. Rochon did not address the issue in detail upon his examination of the property.

ISSUES

The issue in this appeal is whether the Applicant's roof has been constructed in a workmanlike manner and in accordance with the Ontario Building Code.

THE LAW

The Act requires that the builder of a home provide certain warranties to an owner and reads as follows:

Section 13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;...

Subsection 15(2)(a) of Regulation 892 states:

- (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;...

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Applicant could not establish that there had been leaks in the roof since the builder performed repairs following the leak of November 30, 2001, including in the area of the master bedroom. To the extent that there had been a defect that led to the earlier leak it seems to have been corrected by the repairs made by the third party. As to the issue of the lack of eaves protection, this was not raised until Mr. Egan's report of October 10, 2002, which is well outside of the one-year warranty period provided by the Act. As a result, the complaint cannot be allowed.

Finally, concerning the lifting of shingles and the protruding roof nails, counsel for the third party submitted that Mr. Egan's evidence cannot be relied upon in light of his mistaken interpretation of the provisions of the Ontario Building Code with regard to the use of 3/8" plywood sheathing with "H" clip supports. The Tribunal does not accept this submission. While Mr. Egan made an error, he candidly acknowledged his error. He has a great deal of experience in residential construction. He went on the roof to conduct his examination. He observed numerous loose shingles that had lifted and many protruding nails. When he examined the roof from the attic, he was specifically looking at whether or not the roofing nails penetrated entirely through the plywood and, in many cases, they did not. Mr. Egan's observations are confirmed by photos 10 and 11 of exhibit 14 which show the underside of the roof through the attic. A regular pattern of nails is not seen. It was suggested that perhaps the nails were hammered through and then worked themselves back out one way or another. If this had happened then one could assume that the nails would have displaced some of the plywood when being driven through it and this would still be visible, but it is not. The Tribunal accepts that the roofing nails were not hammered through the plywood sheathing, rather these were left protruding on the exterior. This may well have been due to the fact that the sheathing was spongy, as described by Mr. Egan, making it difficult to hammer the nails through. Whatever the reason, the roof nails do protrude causing the lifting of shingles and the inability of the shingles to adhere to one another. This amounts to a breach of the warranty to construct the home in a workmanlike manner.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by subsection 16(3) of the Act, the Tribunal directs that the Program remedy the problem of protruding nails and lifting shingles. The work is to be carried out at the first reasonable opportunity, likely in late spring or early summer when the air temperature will be warm enough to assist in having the tiles adhere to one another. The Program shall have the option of properly hammering the existing roofing shingles into place and retabbing the existing roofing shingles. If this option is chosen, this work will be subject to the further one-year warranty that applies to all repairs performed under the Act. Alternatively, the Program can remove the existing roofing nails and shingles and install new shingles. Again, this work will be subject to the further one-year warranty.

Concerning the securing of the ridge rafters to the main truss, while this issue was only just raised, the Program and Third Party agreed to investigate and, if they found matters to be as described by Mr. Egan, to remedy the situation. They are directed to take these steps as soon as possible.

CHRISTINE RICKSNEUWOEHNER

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE ONTARIO MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS COMPENSATION FUND

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: DOUGLAS MACKINTOSH, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: ESI CODJOE, representing the Applicant, Christine Ricksneuwoehner AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Ontario Motor Vehicle
Dealers Compensation Fund

DATE OF HEARING: 14 January 2003 Kingston

REASON FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal by the Applicant, Christine Ricksneuwoehner, from a decision by the Board of Trustees for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund. By letter dated September 24, 2002 the Board denied her claim of $3,402.97 for compensation. The Board based its denial on four reasons.

1. The Bill of Sale for the vehicle in question indicates the total price paid was $900.
2. With respect to the amounts paid for the vehicle, the documentation provided is inconsistent, as some of the receipts do not indicate that these payments relate to a trade in a motor vehicle.
3. The Bill of Sale indicates that the vehicle was sold in "as is" condition.
4. The fund does not cover claims related to the quality of the vehicle.

ISSUE:

Was the Board of Trustees of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund in error in denying the claim of Christine Ricksneuwoehner?

THE EVIDENCE:

Two witnesses gave sworn evidence, the Applicant Christine Ricksneuwoehner and Yvonne Hallitt, administrator of the fund.

The Applicant testified that she is 35 years old, has two children, 6 and 14 years old, and has worked for a number of years in health care. The relevant evidence she gave is as follows.

She stated that she had owned five motor vehicles, most of them coming down to her from her mother Marlene. The only one she had obtained from a dealer was the vehicle in question.

In the summer of 1999 she sold her previous car for $1000 privately and she then went to a couple of dealers looking for another Grand Am, since she had owned one before. She found the vehicle in question at Midland Motors. She was well acquainted socially with the two owners over a period of 13 years and she trusted them. They gave her a test drive in the vehicle.

The vehicle seemed good except for the passenger seat and a bit of bodywork. It was a good running car, she testified, judging from the previous Grand Am she had owned.

The Applicant stated the purchase price was $3,000. She paid $1,000 cash and got her mother Marlene to borrow $1,400 from Associates Financial Services. Marlene paid this to Midland Motors and as well gave Midland Motors a post-dated cheque made payable to and cashed by D. Barkley (one of the two owners of Midland Motors) for $167.50, which total together came to $2,567.50.

The documents in evidence submitted supported this testimony. There was a copy of the cheque of $1,400 made payable to the Applicant's mother, Marlene Ricksneuwoehner, from Associates Financial Services endorsed over to Midland Motors. There was a copy of the post-dated cheque and a receipt for $2,400 signed by Sherry Gibbs (the other owner of Midland Motors) although the receipt made no reference to the sale of a motor vehicle.

Finally, there were notes on a scratch pad which the Applicant stated were made by the co-owner Debbie Barkley for the purpose of showing what was owed on the vehicle.

The notes read as follows:

$135.00 taxes on 900.00

$3035.00

2400.00 cash

However, the Bill of Sale from Midland Motors shows a very different set of circumstances. The Bill of Sale is dated 31st August 1999 and purports to sell a 1990 Pontiac Grand Am with 177, 287 kms on it to the Applicant for $900.00 plus $72.00 P.S.T. and $63.00 G.S.T., totalling $1,035. 00.

The Applicant states she signed this document without reading it. On the other hand, she acknowledges that she initialled the Bill of Sale in two places. Firstly, she initialled paragraph 3 which reads:

2. VEHICLE SOLD "AS IS": I agree that if the appropriate space below is initialled by me, the vehicle is sold "as is" and is not represented as being in a roadworthy condition, mechanically sound or maintained at any guaranteed level of quality. The vehicle may not be fit for use as a means of transport and may require substantial repairs at my expense.

CR

Purchaser's initials

To the side of paragraph 3 is an empty box in which was written in conspicuous handwriting As is As seen@.

The Applicant also initialled the vehicle information box on the Bill of Sale. That box contains a line as follows: "the vehicle will be delivered with a safety standards certificate" with one of two boxes to choose from, one indicating "YES" and the other "NO". It is curious that a cross was put in the "NO" box yet the documentary evidence shows that the vehicle was indeed provided with such a certificate.

The Applicant admitted she was dishonest because the Bill of Sale was reduced so that she avoided being charged P.S.T. and G.S.T. on the actual purchase price of the vehicle. But she said both owners had told her that it (the $900 purchase price) would be a lot easier on taxes for their business. She admitted that tax had not been charged on $2,100 and she did not dispute that she had received the benefit of not paying these taxes. But she implied her participation was innocent repeating that the co-owner, Debbie Barkley, had said it would be cheaper on her, the owner, not to pay the taxes on the whole price of $3,000.

Another document in the evidence was an application made to Lubrico for "limited power train protection" which the Applicant stated her mother paid for. On that document the purchase price of the vehicle is shown as $3000.

To be valid, the Lubrico application form set out a requirement under the caption of customer obligations as follows: "B. If you have not received your Lubrico warranty contract in the mail within 21 days, please contact your selling dealer and Lubrico immediately". The Applicant did not receive the contract within 21 days and failed to contact either the dealer or Lubrico.

Soon after the sale it became obvious the vehicle was a lemon. There were a string of major problems such as a leaking gas tank, exhaust seepage into the interior, and then its engine seized with a piston through the motor and the vehicle has not been used since.

However, Midland Motors did fix the leaking gas tank and claims to have fixed the exhaust problem, which they did not, but thereafter the company refused to remedy any other problem.

The result was the Applicant ended up paying another $204.08 to have the exhaust system fixed and another $68.95 to have the vehicle made roadworthy totalling $273.03.

To resolve these problems, the Applicant went to Queen's Legal Aid to seek a remedy. With their help, she obtained a default judgement on June 14, 2001 in the Small Claims Court against the dealer for $2,900.53 plus interest and $100.00 costs. In addition, the Court ordered the vehicle to be returned to the dealer. This was done and the registration was put in the glove box signed over to the dealer. It should be noted that in her statement of claim she made no mention of the false purchase price in the Bill of Sale.

After the Applicant's evidence, the Tribunal heard from Yvonne Hallitt for the Board of Trustees. As already indicated, she is the administrator of the compensation fund.

She gave the present value of a 1990 Grand Am and its value at the time of purchase. To do so, she referred to what is known in the industry as the Black Book, Old Car Market Guide. This is a book that provides the wholesale value of vehicles by their year and condition.

The valuation in the 1999 Black Book shows:

1990 Pontiac	clean	average	rough
Grand Am 2d coupe LE	3800	2800	1600

The valuation in the October 2002 Black Book shows:

1990 Pontiac	clean	average	rough
Grand Am 2d coupe LE	1750	1000	750

Ms. Hallitt also explained how the compensation fund, which was set up by the Province with $1.5 million, is sustained by dealers who pay a one-time fee of $320.00 to enable them to become a participant.

THE LAW:

The schedule to regulation 801 pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act provides as follows:

Section 1

"claim" means a claim for pecuniary loss arising out of a transaction involving a trade in a motor vehicle.

Section 12

(3) A customer may make a claim against the fund where the customer gives written notice of the claim to the Registrar within two years of the participant's refusal or failure to pay, even if the motor vehicle dealer with respect to whom the claim is being made ceased to be a participant after the refusal or failure to pay, and where the claim meets one of the following requirements:

1. The customer has recovered in any court in Ontario a judgement in respect of the claim and the judgement has become final by reason of the expiration of the time for appeal or having been confirmed by the highest court to which the appeal may be taken and the customer makes an application supported by the judgement and statement of claim, for payment of the unsatisfied portion of the judgement and costs as assessed.

Section 15

(3) Where a claimant requires a hearing before the Tribunal the Tribunal after affording the claimant an opportunity to be heard, may confirm the determination of the Board or may set aside the determination of the Board with respect to all or part of a claim and direct the Trustee to pay the amount determined by the Tribunal.

POSITION OF THE PARTIES:

The law student acting for the Applicant presented her arguments with exceptional skill. She stated that her client was seeking an equitable remedy of $3,000, that the dealer's misrepresentations were high-handed and evasive, and that her client received a defective motor vehicle. Her client was misled, she said, by the dealer as to the meaning of "as is" and that after the finding of civil wrong in the judgement of the Small Claims Court, her client should be entitled to full compensation.

Counsel for the Board of Trustees, on the other hand, noted that while the organization is not unsympathetic, it is governed by the law. In this case, the Applicant got exactly what she bargained for. The best evidence was the Bill of Sale for $900 for an automobile sold "as is". The Applicant is experienced in the work force but simply failed to review the contract. She raised concern about the Applicant's conduct in the scheme to avoid paying the P.S.T. and G.S.T. and noted the inconsistencies in the documents with the testimony of the Applicant including the term on the Bill of Sale acknowledging that the Applicant had read all the terms of the contract.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

To succeed in her claim for compensation from the fund the Applicant must submit a claim for pecuniary loss arising out of a transaction involving a trade in a motor vehicle.

This issue was covered in the Divisional Court in Didaskalou [1995] O.J. No. 98 DRS 95-07634 Court File No. 135/94.

"The Board of Trustees cannot look behind the judgement to decide if the judge erred in awarding damages or in fixing the amount of those damages. Instead, pursuant to the definition of "claim" in section 1 of the Schedule, the Trustees are simply required to decide (a) whether the damages awarded amount to a claim for pecuniary loss and, if so, (b) whether they arose out of a transaction involving a trade in a motor vehicle.

"In order to amount to a pecuniary loss under s. 12(3)1, the loss must simply be one which is capable of evaluation on a monetary basis. While such a loss would not, by way of example, include damages for pain and suffering, it would, as the tribunal found, include damages referable to the excessive price paid for a motor vehicle and the cost of repairs.

"However, mere pecuniary loss will not of itself lead to a successful claim under s. 12(3)1. The loss must be shown to have arisen out of a transaction involving the trade in a motor vehicle.

" We take a different view of the repair costs. In the particular circumstances of this case, we are not persuaded that those costs were sufficiently linked to the transaction such that they could be said to have arisen from it."

Based on all the evidence before it, the Tribunal agrees that the Applicant suffered a pecuniary loss ending up with nothing when the vehicle she bought had to be returned to the dealer by order of the Small Claims Court. However, the Tribunal does not find that this loss arises out of the purchase of the Grand Am. The Applicant purchased a nine year old Pontiac Grand Am with three month warranty on it which she never claimed, and which was sold to her on an "as is" basis in a contract which she claims she never read. She simply made a bad deal.

The same point was addressed in Re McMullen [2002] OLAT 91 where the Tribunal concluded with these words, "Unfortunately she (the Applicant) made a bad deal and she has had to pay the consequences of that. The Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund was not drafted to protect consumers from such errors of judgement".

Yet the Applicant says she was deceived by the dealer as to the meaning of "As is As seen" on the Bill of Sale and made the allegation in the Small Claims Court that she was told it would save her money in taxes. Based on her evidence alone, the Court awarded her damages. As it was not mentioned in the statement of claim, the Court was apparently unaware of the conditions in the Bill of Sale and the false purchase price to avoid taxes.

The Tribunal has to take into account the Applicant's conduct in signing a false Bill of Sale to avoid taxes. The Bill of Sale showing $900 as the purchase price for the 1990 Grand Am instead of the real purchase price of $3,035 which deprived the Province of $170.80 in Provincial Sales Tax and the Federal Government of $149.45 making a total of $320.25.

The Applicant now wishes to claim from the fund set up by the very Province, which she participated in defrauding. As a matter of public policy, the Tribunal finds this alone is fatal to her claim. She is after all, as her representative says, making an equitable claim but in the circumstances, this claim is made without clean hands.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 15(3) of the schedule in Regulation 801 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Board of Trustees of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund to disallow the claim of the Applicant.

Preliminary Matter:

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) made a decision to issue a suspension and seizure order under section 47(1) of the Act. The Applicant filed an appeal of this suspension and seizure order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 filing fee. The Tribunal conducted a prehearing on December 17, 2002 and sent the prehearing order to the parties on January 3, 2003 by fax, which indicated that the date of the hearing before the Tribunal was February 3 and 4, 2003.

Counsel for the Applicant notified the Tribunal by a fax dated January 31, 2003 that he had not received instructions from his client and would therefore not be attending the hearing on February 3, 2003.

The Tribunal contacted the Applicant by telephone that same day and left a voice mail message advising that the hearing would proceed as scheduled. At the opening of the hearing before this Tribunal on February 3, 2003, no one appeared for the Applicant.

After an initial delay of 15 minutes and then a second delay of an additional 20 minutes, the hearing proceeded. The Tribunal heard from Ms. Ranjit Lal, Hearings Co-ordinator who testified that she had contacted the Applicant by telephone on January 31, 2003 and was only able to access a recorded message asking the caller to leave a message. Ms. Lal did this.

Ms. Lal testified that she also attempted to call three numbers prior to the commencement of the February 3, 2003 hearing, namely (604-520-1807, 604-841-3938, 888-554-3454). The 841 number was out of service and there was no answer on either of the other two.

The hearing then proceeded with the evidence of the Registrar in the absence of the Applicant.

FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles' grounds for cancellation, seizure, and refusal are set out in the Notice of Cancellation and Seizure Order dated November 12, 2002, as follows:

- a) Concern for highway safety regarding the safety record of the Applicant;
- b) I am of the opinion that Mohinder and/or Harjeet Virk directly or indirectly control or manage Reliable Service Transport Inc.

The first witness was Ms. Bernadette McKenna who testified that she is a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator with the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and has had 26 years of experience. Her role in this matter was to prepare the file with a complete review and analysis. Ms. McKenna had also previously prepared analysis files regarding R&S Transportation Inc. ("R&S"), 590029 B.C. Ltd. ("590029", and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. ("Harj-Min").

Ms McKenna was asked if the Ministry had a position regarding a relationship between all the companies. She replied "Yes" and referred to the fact that Mr. Wong represented R&S, 590029 and Harj-Min at the March 6, 2002 Show Cause Meeting.

Ms McKenna was then asked if the case hinged on this relationship. She replied that it did and that the three companies were under a CVOR Cancellation and Seizure Order. The original Order had been dated March 7, 2002 and it was confirmed after the Licence Appeal Tribunal Hearing of July 15 and 16, 2002.

Ms. McKenna added the following:

- At the Show Cause meeting of March 6, 2002 for R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc., Art Wong was introduced as the Vice President of Operations for these companies;
- Art Wong was present as a representative of these companies at the Licence Appeal Tribunal hearing for R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc., on July 15 and 16, 2002; the outcome of that hearing confirmed the Cancellation and Seizure Order;
- Reliable was incorporated March 21, 2002 and issued a temporary CVOR on May 27, 2002;
- Mohinder Virk and his wife Harjeet Virk are principals in R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc.
- In May 2002, the Ministry was advised of a new address for R&S Transportation at #2-20075 100A Ave., Langley BC, V1M 3G4
- The October 18, 2002, Notice of Cancellation and Seizure to Reliable Service Transport ("Reliable") was sent to the R&S Transportation location at the Langley Avenue address via Purolator courier and Art Wong signed the Purolator delivery slip at that address;
- At the Show Cause meeting of November 7, 2002, Mr. Wong is noted to have at first claimed he received the Notice information package at his Burnaby home address but then changed his story when he was shown the Purolator delivery slip
- Drivers working for Reliable were identified as also working for R&S Transportation;
- Reliable was using trucks that had previously been licenced to R&S;
- Inspections of Reliable trucks found freight waybills showing the carrier to be listed as R&S Transportation.

Ms. McKenna also testified that on October 21, 2002 she called the telephone numbers provided by Reliable and the first, 604-841-3938, was Mr. Wong's answering machine. The second number being 888-554-3454 was answered by a female voice who responded by saying "R&S".

Ms. McKenna then said she asked if the voice was "Harjeet Virk" and the voice answered "yes". She testified she then hung up and called back. Again the voice answered with "R&S" and when Ms. McKenna asked for Art Wong she was given another number to call, which was 604-841-3938.

When she subsequently called that number she heard a message saying it was Art Wong at Reliable.

From notes taken by Ms. McKenna at the November 7, 2002 Show Cause meeting, the Tribunal learned:

- Mr. Wong had said Reliable, which was incorporated on March 21, 2002, was his own company and that he started it as an opportunity for himself when he saw that R&S was getting into trouble in Ontario;
- Reliable applied for a CVOR on March 27, 2002 and was issued a temporary CVOR on May 27, 2002;
- Mr. Wong had confirmed that Reliable employed R&S drivers but that he did not know the names of the drivers even though he claimed to be doing the dispatching and signing of all cheques; he also confirmed he has become reliant upon R&S to provide him with drivers;
- That he leases trucks from R&S but did not have copies of leases;
- That when Mr. Wong was presented with copies of permits showing the vehicles were owned by Reliable, he could not provide an explanation;
- That as R&S still has a relationship with their former customer base, Reliable is piggybacking on them to get his business established;
- At one point of the meeting, Mr. Wong stated R&S was providing him with brokerage services but later withdraw this statement;
- Mr. Wong presented to the meeting a copy of the Reliable Articles of Incorporation but the register sections for directors and shareholders were blank.

The Tribunal also heard that the CVOR safety records of the companies showed that as of January 7, 2003, Reliable had a violation rate of 28.2%; as of October 3, 2002, R&S, which was under sanction, had a violation rate of 94%; and as of October 3, 2002, 590029 B.C. Ltd had a violation rate of 130.6%

The next witness was Lynda McArthur, a Transportation Officer who is based in Wasi, Ontario, and has been with the Ministry for more than 25 years.

Ms. McArthur testified regarding a vehicle inspection she conducted on September 17, 2002. She stated she initially intended to do a standard document inspection only.

During the inspection she found that not all documents were available and that the name R&S Transportation was on both the trailer and the bill of lading (photos of the truck and trailer were entered as Exhibits 4 and 5). As she had previously seen the R&S name on an 'Alert Memo' indicating the company was not authorized to operate in Ontario, she initiated a more thorough document inspection and determined to contact the Carrier Sanctions and Investigation office to discuss this with the Deputy Registrar's office.

Ms. McArthur then reviewed the following:

- The driver told her he worked for Reliable and that the load was being hauled for R& S;
- The driver advised that he reported to "Harj";
- Documents collected included log records, commercial waybill and a B.C. Commercial Vehicle Inspection Report and each listed R&S Transportation;
- Ms. McArthur called the Deputy Registrar's office in St. Catherines to express concern that Reliable and R&S might be related companies and was subsequently advised to put the vehicle out of service;
- The driver then called his boss who he had identified as Harj;
- Ms. McArthur then spoke with Harj and after advising that the driver did not have proper documents, Harj offered to send them by fax; these were subsequently received from fax number 604-882-8730;
- Ms. McArthur also asked Harj for her complete name and was given the full name of "Harjeet Virk"

The next witness was Jason Leeman, a Transportation Officer who is based in Halton, Ontario, and has been with the Ministry for 2 years.

Mr. Leeman testified regarding a vehicle inspection he conducted on November 15, 2002 at the Trafalgar station in Oakville.

He stated that his intention was to carry out a Level 1 inspection of documents and during the course of the document review found (1) the log book record to be incomplete, (2) that Reliable had never been issued a permanent authority to operate in Ontario, and (3) he noted the R&S name on the Driver's Daily Log record, and on the commercial bill of lading.

Mr. Leeman also testified that as the driver did not have accurate driving time log records, the driver was advised to take 8 hours off to reset his hours and log book. The driver was directed to park at the back of the inspection station.

Mr. Leeman testified he was not aware of any sanctions at the time but that he did call the St. Catherines office to suggest that an investigation might be warranted. At that time he learned about R&S and was asked to forward copies of documents.

In closing argument, Mr. Moore submitted that all the companies were related and in referencing Section 47(1) and subsection 17(4), he asked the Tribunal to consider that:

- Arthur Wong was common to all companies;
- Harjeet Virk as a principal of R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. is in the background as the operating manager;
- R&S was evident as being “all over the affairs of Reliable”.

LAW:

47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

(10) The Registrar may, at any time for misconduct or contravention of this Act, the Truck Transportation Act, the Public Vehicles Act or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or lessee of one or more motor vehicles or trailers for which permits have been issued by a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than the Province of Ontario, order that the permit and number plates issued for the vehicle or vehicles be seized and any police officer or any officer appointed for carrying out this Act or the enforcement of the Public Vehicles Act or the Truck Transportation Act may seize the permit and number plates and deliver them to the Ministry which shall return them to the authority that issued them.

17. (1) The Registrar shall issue a CVOR certificate to every person who applies therefore in the prescribed form and meets the requirements of this Act and the regulations.

(2) The Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to an applicant if the Registrar has reason to believe, having regard to the applicant's safety record and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the applicant will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

(3) The Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to an applicant if the applicant is related to,

(a) a person whose CVOR certificate has been cancelled, is or has been under suspension or is or has been subject to a fleet limitation;

(b) a person whose CVOR certificate suspension, cancellation or fleet limitation is under appeal; or

(c) a person who the Registrar has reason to believe, having regard to the person's safety record and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

(4) An applicant is related to a person for the purpose of subsection (3) if,

(a) the applicant and the person are related individuals...

(c) either the applicant or the person, directly or indirectly, controls or controlled or manages or managed the other; ...

50(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

The Truck Transportation Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chapter T.22 as amended states the following:

6(1) An operating licence shall not be issued or an operating authority granted unless the applicant demonstrates fitness to carry on the business of carrying goods for compensation as described in the application for the licence...

(3) Every applicant for an operating licence shall file with the Registrar, with respect to the business for which authority is sought, a description of the proposed transportation service and evidence that the applicant, ...

(c) holds a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate issued under the Highway Traffic Act that is not under suspension or subject to a fleet limitation.

7(2) Where the Registrar finds that an applicant is not fit to hold an operating licence, the Registrar shall give the applicant written notice thereof with reasons, and the applicant may, within thirty days after receiving the notice, appeal the decision to the Licence Appeal Tribunal as defined in the Highway Traffic Act.

APPLICATION OF FACTS TO THE LAW:

Based on the evidence, the Tribunal finds that Mohinder and or Harjeet Virk directly or indirectly control or manage the Applicant, Reliable Service Transport Inc.

Among the evidence points which call for particular attention, from the simple to those which attract more weight, there is...

- The timing of Reliable's March 21, 2002 incorporation and March 27, 2002 CVOR application and the March 7, 2002 Cancellation and Seizure Order issued to R&S, 590029 and Harj-Min;
- The attendance of Mr. Wong as the Vice-President of Operations for these companies at the March 6, 2002 Show Cause Meeting as well as attending the Licence Appeal Tribunal hearing of July 15 and 16, 2002, as the companies' representative;

- The matter of the 2 different addresses for Reliable, one being Mr. Wong's home address and the other being the same as the one declared to be for R&S; that Mr. Wong received a package from the Ministry at the R&S address – which he first denied receiving there and then acknowledged that he had after being shown the Purolator slip with his signature;
- That as Reliable's owner and its operations manager he did not know the names of his drivers and that he was unable to produce lease documents for his company's trucks;
- That Reliable was dependent upon R&S for its loads and drivers;
- That a Reliable truck was stopped with R&S markings on both trailer and tractor; in addition, Reliable drivers were found, during road inspections, to be carrying loads, with waybills marked for R&S; and that one driver, in particular, referred to his boss as being "Harj" who turned out to be Harjeet Virk, a principal of R&S;
- The contacts by Ms. McKenna and Ms. McArthur with Harjeet Virk;
- The incomplete corporate documents;

The Tribunal also finds it not unreasonable to question the credibility of Mr. Wong's statement, as noted in the Show Cause Meeting notes, that he saw the R&S problems in Ontario as an opportunity for himself.

This would in ordinary circumstances seem to put him in competitive conflict with his employers and therefore it is difficult to understand how he would be in a position to incorporate a freight transport company, in March, while still employed with R&S and then also still represent the company at a July appeal of a cancellation and seizure order of his employer's CVOR.

Further, Mr. Wong also acknowledges that he is completely reliant upon R&S for drivers and freight loads. Then there is also uncertainty about where the responsibility for Reliable's truck equipment lies – who holds it is left unclear.

The Tribunal also finds compelling, the failure of the Applicant or his representative to appear at the hearing to dispute the evidence and clarify the numerous questions which point to control of Reliable by Mohinder and or Harjeet Virk, the owners of R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc.

Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant, Reliable Service Transport Inc. is related to R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. pursuant to subsection 17 (4) of the Highway Traffic Act. Since the CVOR certificate of R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. is under cancellation, the Registrar had valid grounds to cancel the Applicant's CVOR in accordance with subsection 17(4) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue a cancellation and seizure order of Reliable Service Transport Inc.

RELEASED: February 24, 2003

CIVIC AUTOS INC. AND RASHID DASOO

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATIONS

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: RASHID DASOO, Agent, representing Civic Autos Inc. and Applicant, representing himself

A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel, representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: February 10, 2003 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Civic Autos Inc. and Rashid Dasoo (the "Applicants") respecting a Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar"), dated November 5, 2002.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or to refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") and the regulations?

PRELIMINARY MATTER:

There were two preliminary matters, namely:

- 1) a request for an adjournment, and
- 2) a request for an interpreter.

Adjournment

On Sunday, February 9, 2003, the Tribunal received a letter dated February 9, 2003, from Jerome H. Stanleigh, Barrister and Solicitor, stating that he represents the Applicants and requesting an adjournment on the grounds that he has a conflict with two pre-trial dates.

John Ripley, Hearings Co-ordinator for the Licence Appeal Tribunal, testified that a Notice of Hearing dated December 16, 2002, set the date of this hearing for February 10, 2003. Mr. Ripley stated that the Tribunal on December 16, 2002, has fax confirmation advising Jerome H. Stanleigh, Barrister and Solicitor, of the hearing date of February 10, 2003.

The Tribunal ruled that the hearing shall not be adjourned. The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public-protection statute. The public has an interest in speedy resolution of licence-revocation matters. Also, there would be inconvenience to the Respondent, the two summoned witnesses, and the Tribunal in adjourning the hearing. Rule 11.2 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Rules of Practice states, "where the motion [for an adjournment] is to be heard on the same date as that scheduled for the hearing, the party shall serve notice of the motion and any supporting documentation on all other parties and file with the Tribunal a copy...at least 10 days before such hearing date." The rules of the Tribunal have not been complied with. Further, Applicants need not be represented by Counsel before the Tribunal.

Interpreter

Rashid Dasoo then asked for an interpreter. Mr. Dasoo immigrated to Canada from India in 1989. He had completed grade 12 in India with English as a second language. In Canada, he completed a full-time twelve-week auto mechanics course in English as well as a two-month part-time English course. Mr. Dasoo has run a business in Ontario since 1994. It is the practice of the Tribunal to require Applicants to provide their own interpreter. Rashid Dasoo stated that he could not find one quickly.

The Tribunal ruled that the hearing would proceed in the absence of an interpreter since Mr. Dasoo appeared to have a very good command of the English language. The Tribunal instructed the Applicant Rashid Dasoo to ask for assistance whenever he had difficulty understanding oral or written material during the hearing.

EXHIBITS:

- Exhibit #1 - Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration dated November 5, 2002, issued by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act;
- Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal received by the Tribunal on November 18, 2002, filed by the Applicants;

Exhibit #3 - Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated January 22, 2003, issued by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act;
Exhibit #4 - Respondent's Book of Documents; and Exhibit #5 - Letter from Jerome H. Stanleigh, Barrister and Solicitor, to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council and the Licence Appeal Tribunal dated February 9, 2003, together with fax cover sheet.

FACTS:

The evidence on behalf of the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Marilyn Blazevic, Robert Rotondo, and Jean Cameron together with documents introduced through them. The testimony of Rashid Dasoo was the evidence on behalf of the Applicants.

Marilyn Blazevic

Ms. Blazevic has been a Field Collections Officer for the Ministry of Finance since 1991. She has worked for the Ministry for twenty-one years.

A retail sales tax vendor permit was issued to Civic Autos Inc. on November 24, 1994, following an interview of the Ministry of Finance with Rashid Dasoo. The corporation's first return for March 1995 was filed late and without payment. The last filed return pertains to October 2001. Retail sales tax trust funds collected from customers on the sale of taxable items during about fourteen months are outstanding. Both oral and written warnings were given to Civic Autos Inc. A payment arrangement was entered into, but cheques were returned marked NSF. The Ministry of Finance asked Civic Autos Inc. to provide new cheques, but none were received. No repayment arrangements were made within the last two years. A few hundred dollars were obtained from the bank account of Civic Autos Inc. by legal action. A Personal Properties Security Act (PPSA) lien and a Writ of Seizure and Sale have been registered against the Applicant Civic Autos Inc.

$61,011.99 was the balance owing as at October 28, 2002, as shown on Schedule B of tab 5 of exhibit 4. $46,216.31 of that amount is retail sales tax collected and not remitted based on returns filed by the Applicant Civic Autos Inc. Currently, there is owing $84,193.23, including an estimated $28,000.00 for November 2001 to December 31, 2002.

Robert Rotondo

Mr. Rotondo is the Client Service Manager with the Family Responsibility Office. He supervises twenty-five enforcement officers.

In 1993 Rashid Dasoo was ordered to pay $700.00 per month as child support. He paid about $1,000.00 in 1993-94. No payment has been received since then. Mr. Dasoo now owes about $18,200.00 to the Ministry of Community, Family, and Children's Services for family benefits paid out. Later, a court ordered Mr. Dasoo to make payments of $500.00 per month; however, no payments were made. Mr. Dasoo's drivers licence was suspended for nonpayment two years ago. Garnishment is in place.

Jean Cameron

Ms. Cameron has been a Senior Inspector with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC) since 1997.

Rashid Dasoo is the sole owner of Civic Autos Inc. He is the only administrator and director of the corporation, as shown at tab 4 of exhibit 4. According to tab 1 of exhibit 4, Civic Autos Inc. was registered as a motor vehicle dealer and Rashid Dasoo was registered as its only motor vehicle salesperson on about January 22, 1997.

Mr. Dasoo failed to comply with the Retail Sales Tax Act and is indebted to the Ministry of Finance for failing to remit tax due and to pay assessments when due. He also owes money to the Family Responsibility Office.

Rashid Dasoo

Mr. Dasoo asked for another chance. He admitted that he owes at least $46,000.00 to the Ministry of Finance. He was never up to date in filing and paying. Mr. Dasoo is willing to pay $1,500.00 per month.

Rashid Dasoo claimed that his lawyer had advised him that he owes only about $8,000.00 to the Family Responsibility Office. He offered to pay it $300.00 per month.

No payments were made since the early 1990s on either indebtedness.

LAW:

The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states the following:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and

(i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonable be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, ...

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

6. (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

7. (4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Having regard to the financial position of Rashid Dasoo, he cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business in accordance with subsection 5(1)(a) of the Act. Mr. Dasoo testified that he owes $8,000.00 to the Ministry of Community, Family, and Children's Services. No payment on account has been received since 1994. Garnishment is in place. Mr. Dasoo's driver licence has been suspended because of the nonpayment.

The past conduct of Rashid Dasoo affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, as required by subsection 5(1)(b) of the Act. Mr. Dasoo received retail sales tax trust funds from customers upon sale of taxable items by Civic Autos Inc. He has failed to forward the trust funds collected over fourteen months to the Ministry of Finance. He has never been up to date with filings and payments of collected retail sales tax. Mr. Dasoo admitted that Civic Autos Inc. owes at least $46,000.00 to the Ministry of Finance.

Having regard to the financial position of Civic Autos Inc., the corporation cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, as prescribed by subsection 5(1)(c)(i) of the Act. The Applicant Civic Autos Inc. owes at least $46,000.00 to the Ministry of Finance. A PPSA lien and a Writ of Seizure and Sale have been registered against it.

Further, the past conduct of Rashid Dasoo, the director of Civic Autos Inc., affords reasonable grounds for belief that the corporation's business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, as required by subsection 5(1)(c)(ii) of the Act. Mr. Dasoo has failed to forward at least $46,000.00 of retail sales tax trust funds collected from customers to the Ministry of Finance.

According to subsection 6(2) of the Act, the Registrar may revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant. Rashid Dasoo and Civic Autos Inc. are not in compliance with section 5 of the Act. The Registrar's proposal to revoke the Applicants' registrations conforms with subsection 6(2) of the Act and it is correct and reasonable.

ORDER:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration dated November 5, 2002, to revoke the registrations of Civic Autos Inc. and Rashid Dasoo.

MILLENIUM TRAVEL CANADA INC.

APPEAL FROM DECISION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTOR OF THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY COUNCIL OF ONTARIO UNDER THE TRAVEL INDUSTRIES ACT

TO DISALLOW CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: CARL F. DOMBEK, Chair

APPEARANCES:

DANNY MAMA, Agent, representing the Applicant Millenium Travel
Canada Inc.

TREVOR C.D. BRANION, Counsel, representing the Travel Industry
Council of Ontario

DATES OF

HEARING: February 20, 2003

Toronto

ORAL DECISION

Danny Mama operates Millenium Travel Canada Inc. In order to keep his good clients' business Millenium extended credit to some of its clients including a valued client and friend Soli Mehta. On September 7, 2001, Mr. Mehta called Mr. Mama to book a ticket to travel to India in December on Canada 3000. The trip was booked with a company called Travelpack Marketing and Leisure Services (Travelpack). Unfortunately Millenium paid for the ticket through its Trust Account even though it had not received payment from Mr. Mehta. This was a breach of the rules governing Trust Accounts. However, I do not find that Millenium breached these rules in bad faith. It was clear in cross-examination that Mr. Mama did not understand the concept of not using Trust Account funds for payment of tickets when payment has not been received by the travel agent. I would suggest that a representative of Travel Industry Council of Ontario (TICO) assist Millenium in understating the rules in relation to Trust Accounts.

The Tribunal finds and there was no dispute that Millenium paid $1518.97 to Travelpack. Section 51 of Ontario Regulation 806/93 enacted under the Travel Industry Act outlines the provisions for a travel agent to claim against the Compensation Fund. Section 51(1) states that a travel agent is entitled to be reimbursed for money paid by the travel agent to reimburse a customer or to provide alternate travel services to the customer if the customer paid the travel agent and if the travel agent passed all or part of the customer's money to the travel wholesaler. Section 51(2) states that a travel agent is entitled to be reimbursed only for the portion of the customer's money that the travel agent passed to the travel wholesaler. From the documentation submitted it appears that Millenium paid Travelpack on September 10, 2001, however, Mr. Mehta did not pay Millenium Travel until December 15, 2001, 2 months after the failure of Travelpack. Thus the Tribunal finds that there was no customer monies forwarded to Travelpack.

In fact, the December 15th payment was actually made by Darmich Enterprises Ltd. which is another company operated by Mr. Mama. Mr. Mama's evidence was that Mr. Mehta paid him in cash and he then paid Millenium through Darmich.

There is no receipt for the cash payment to support Mr. Mama's claim.

The other significant regulation, which disentitles this claim, is found in Section 51(2) of Ontario Regulation 806/93. This section only entitles a travel agent to be eligible for reimbursement if its customer would have had a claim against the Compensation Fund. Section 50(3) 6 of Ontario Regulation 806/93 clearly provides that to have a claim the customers had to pay by cheque, credit card or other similar cash payment.

Unfortunately for Millenium this was not done and thus Mr. Mehta would not have a claim against the Fund and by operation of the Regulation neither does Millenium.

This Tribunal is sympathetic to Mr. Mama's case. However, it is bound by the statutory framework. There is no discretion for the Tribunal to make a finding, which would be in contravention of the Act and its Regulations.

Therefore, the Tribunal upholds the Decision of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to deny compensation.

Costs were requested by TICO however, due to the findings that Mr. Mama did not make the claim in bad faith, there will be no order for costs. Indeed, the Tribunal found Mr. Mama to be forthright in his evidence even when the facts did not help his case.

26. By fax dated October 15, 2002, TICO advised the Registrant that an October 31, 2002 submission date had been noted on file.
27. To date the Registrant has failed to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ended May 31, 2002.
28. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KEIL BIEL
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant
Unrepresented

DATE OF
HEARING: February 5, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- (1) Notice of Suspension from the Ministry of Transportation dated August 2, 2002
- (2) Notice of Appeal from the Applicant received December 10, 2002
- (3) File Summary introduced by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, an unemployed roofer, had his driver's licence suspended on August 2, 2000. The Ministry had received a Medical Report from the Applicant's family physician Physician #1, on May 9, 2000 reporting that the Applicant was having episodes of disassociation, which may interfere with his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

Physician #1 referred the Applicant to Physician #2, a clinical and cerebrovascular neurologist, who first saw him in May 2000 and again on October 26, 2000. Physician #2's neurological investigation, including an EEG and CT scan, was completely negative and he believed the probability of these spells being seizures is low.

In the course of his investigation Physician #2 determined the Applicant had a past history of alcoholism and drug use. When the Ministry received his Medical Report, the Applicant was notified on November 15, 2000 that his licence would remain under suspension until a detailed positive assessment was received from a specialist in addiction medicine.

The Applicant attended the Inpatient Addiction Program (HADS) and saw Physician #3 on a referral from an Addiction Counsellor in the Community Addiction Division of the Health Centre. Information was elicited that the Applicant had been a binge drinker and a frequent user of cocaine, acid, speed, opiates, benzodiazepines and marijuana. He has not used cocaine or marijuana since 1996 and none of the others since 1989. He had attended a one-month program at HADS in 1996 and an Aftercare Program for a short time. That is how he got off the drugs and stopped his heavy drinking. He was also a member of AA and attended at "12 step meetings".

Physician #3's physical and laboratory examinations were completely negative. MCV was normal at 90.4 and GGT was normal at 25. The Applicant's last drink of alcohol was May 16, 2001.

Her diagnosis on July 22, 2001 was:

Alcohol Dependency in early remission, Cocaine Dependency in remission, Polysubstance Abuse in remission (Hallucinogens, THC, opiates and benzodiazepines), Nicotine Dependency.

Psychological and environmental problems: loss of driver's licence, grief issues.

Plan and Recommendations

1. Continue to be abstinent from all mind-altering chemicals.
2. Continue to use supports, communicate in a healthy way and ask for help regarding any life issues.
3. Follow-up with Physician #3 on a regular basis to monitor continued abstinence and recovery program. If the Applicant continues to do well and remain abstinent from alcohol for 3 months, reinstatement of his driver's licence will be supported. Follow-up reports will include blood-work and urine and alcohol screens.

4. Reinstatement conditional on the Applicant remaining compliant with follow-up assessments for a period of 12 months.

At this time the Applicant was operating a metal roofing company and travelling around southwestern Ontario doing jobs. He apparently had a confrontation with Physician #3 when she contacted him in Owen Sound and wanted him to drive back for tests. He refused and she became very angry and told him that was it. He never went back because he owed her money and he believed she did not want to see him.

Subsequent to this the Applicant lost his business and he and his wife separated. At the present time he is unemployed. He said that he was drinking a couple of beers every once and awhile, but that was all.

The Applicant's driving record in the past was very bad. He was convicted of impaired driving in 1987, 1989, 1992 and 1995, as well as dangerous driving in the 1995 incident and driving while his licence was suspended in 2001.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's licence under Section 47(1)(g), when the Medical report from Physician #1 was received with information that he was experiencing episodes of disassociation.

Physician #1 referred the Applicant to Physician #2, a clinical and cerebrovascular neurologist. Physician #2's examinations and laboratory tests ruled out the possibility of seizures, but elicited a past history of alcoholism and drug use. He referred the Applicant to the Addiction and Recovery Assessment Unit at the Addiction Centre, as requested by the Ministry, after his report had been received. The Applicant had already attended a month long session in the Inpatient Addiction Program (HADS) in 1996 and had stopped drugs and reduced his alcohol intake, but started drinking 1-2 beers a month after several months.

The Applicant stated that his driver's licence had just been reinstated, when he was notified in August 2000 that his licence was under suspension again. The Applicant had stopped drinking in May 2001, just before he saw Physician #3 and had not used any drugs for the previous 5 years, so he was quite surprised, because he thought he had served his time.

The Tribunal was concerned about the chronology of the events leading up to the suspension in August 2000. This suspension was because of possible little seizures and these were ruled out by Physician #2 in October 2000. In November 2000, the Ministry notified the Applicant that his licence would remain under suspension until a detailed assessment was received from a specialist in addiction medicine. This was based on his past history of drinking and yet the Ministry had recently returned his licence after a suspension in 1995, so his alcohol problem was known.

The Applicant had attended a month long inpatient session at the Addiction Centre in 1996, likely ordered by the courts, but continued to drink 1-2 beers a couple of times a month. Does this warrant a continued licence suspension after 5 years? His GGT and MCV were reported normal in Physician #3's Medical Report in July 2001, so he was not drinking much at that time.

There is no evidence that indicates that the Applicant currently suffers from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability, or is addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely in accordance with section 14 of Regulation 340/94.

After consideration of all of the evidence presented and the application of law to the facts, Tribunal does not find sufficient evidence to warrant a continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated August 2, 2000 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
Applicant,

DATE OF HEARING: January 8, 2003 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- 1) Notice of Downgrading of Driver's Licence dated December 12, 2002.
- 2) Notice of Appeal, dated December 13, 2002 from the Applicant.
- 3) File Summary introduced by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a bus driver had his licence downgraded from a Class "C" to a Class "G" on December 12, 2002 by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles, on a recommendation from the Medical Advisory Committee based upon the view that a longer period of stability is required. Physician #1, a neurologist, had forwarded a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry on June 10, 2002, reporting that the Applicant had an episode of "confusion and not understanding verbal communication."

The Ministry responded by requesting an up-to-date detailed assessment from Physician #1.

Physician #1 did a follow-up examination on July 12 and ordered an EEG, MRI, and a CT scan. The EEG disclosed a mild focal disturbance of the cerebral function in the left frontal region of non-specific etiology. A sleep deprived EEG was later reported as normal. His neurological examination was normal and she reported the Applicant had not experienced any more episodes since his last visit.

Evidence revealed the Applicant had been having these episodes for two years before he sought medical help. They usually occurred while he was watching television. His tongue felt as if it was swollen and as if he was unable to move it, but in reality it was normal size and his speech was normal. He also said that he would be unable to follow the story line in the TV program he was watching. If he happened to be talking to someone, he would have an odd feeling that his words did not make much sense to himself, but they apparently made sense to the recipient. These episodes lasted about an hour and occurred 1 to 2 times a week. Neither his wife nor anyone else in his presence had any idea that he was experiencing any problems. He would carry on as if nothing was happening and the sensations would disappear spontaneously.

The Applicant gave evidence that he was under a great deal of pressure at that time, in that he had just been married; had a new job and was on probation; was having a problem with obesity and his father in law had just died. Once he got over these issues the spells stopped and he has not experienced any since May, 2002. The Applicant has been driving commercial vehicles for five years and has never had one of these episodes while driving.

Physician #1 gave evidence at this Hearing to try and assist her patient. She stated that she does not have a diagnosis for these spells, but she does not believe that they indicate anything serious. She was concerned at first, but she is not concerned at the present time. Her initial thought was that they might be complex partial seizures in origin, triggered by the TV. She rejected this theory after all of the radiological tests were reported normal and the cessation of these spells once the problems creating stress were reduced.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although neither the Registrar of Motor Vehicles nor the MAC recorded the sections in the Highway Traffic Act, wh ich authorized the downgrading of the Applicant's driver's licence, the Tribunal notes the application of the following:

Section 14 of Regulation 340/94, which states:

An applicant for or holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

or Section 17(1) states:

Qualifications required by an applicant or holder of a Class A, B, C - driver's licences are that the applicant or holder,

- (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

or Section 32(12)(b) states:

In the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

- (1) impose or remove conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the results of the examinations,

The Applicant experienced these spells over a two-year period, while driving a bus and never had one while driving. His last episode was in May, 2002 and although Physician #1 notified the Ministry about these spells in June, no action was taken until December 12, 2002. This could not have been a high priority on the Ministry's agenda.

During the period the Applicant was having these episodes he was experiencing a great deal of stress in his life. He had been recently married; he was on probation at work, because he was a new employee and his father-in-law died very suddenly. With time these problems resolved and the spells ceased. The Tribunal finds that they were a result of stress and not as a result of any pathology, since his neurological examinations and the entire laboratory and radiological tests were reported normal. The fact that they never occurred while he was driving would also add to the likelihood of stress at home.

After consideration of all of the evidence and the application of the facts to the law, this Tribunal finds that the Registrar has not established that the Applicant falls within Regulation 340/94, Section 14 and Section 47(1) or the sections noted above, in that he does suffer from any medical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a bus safely nor has any evidence been adduced by the Registrar to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely to warrant prohibiting the reinstatement of his "C" licence. As previously stated, the Applicant has not experienced any further episodes since May, 2002 and has never had any episodes while driving. Furthermore, he has a perfect driving record. The Tribunal finds that sufficient time has elapsed to dispel concerns from a medical perspective.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated December 12, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant.

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DATE OF
HEARING: January 24, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended (the Act).

EXHIBITS

- (1) Decision Letter from the Ministry of Transportation Dated November 22, 2002.
- (2) Notice of Appeal received at the Tribunal December 27, 2002.
- (3) File Summary introduced by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 57 year old truck driver, had his Class "ACZ" driver's licence downgraded by the Ministry on November 22, 2002, after receiving a Medical Report from Physician #1 on January 21, 2002. The report stated that the Applicant has a history of ischemic heart disease, with multiple risk factors, which are currently well controlled on medication. The Applicant was examined by Physician #2, a cardiologist, on August 19, 2002. The findings were:

- 1) Ischemic Heart Disease
- 2) Hypertension
- 3) Hyperlipidemia
- 4) Obesity
- 5) Venous insufficiency of the legs.

Physician #2 completed a Medical Waiver Certificate on that date.

The Applicant returned to see Physician #2 on September 19th for a cardiac stress test, which was positive. The ECG showed some ST changes, suggestive, but not diagnostic of ischemia. As a result he made arrangements for a nuclear cardiac stress test on October 2, 2002. This revealed partially reversible decreased activity present in the portion of the inferior wall extending through the apex. This was possibly due to a prior myocardial infarction with some additional exercise induced ischemia. The Applicant had no knowledge of having had a heart attack or even chest pain at any time.

The Medical Advisory Committee determined the Applicant did not meet the requirements for a commercial licence or Waiver due to exercise induced ischemia on stress testing. Physician #2's Waiver was denied and the Applicant's driver's licence was downgraded from Class "AC" to Class "G".

The Applicant's job is driving an eighteen wheeler hauling general freight, which includes dangerous and hazardous goods. He drives approximately 100,000 miles a year on trips from Toronto to New York and Chicago. Each trip is about 1,000 miles and he drives 10 hour a day.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Regulation 340/94

Does the Applicant suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
 - (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;
 - (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

- (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.
- 18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
 - (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and
 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Minister of Motor Vehicles was obligated to downgrade the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act after investigating the information contained in a Medical Report received from the Applicant's family physician. This letter stated that the Applicant had a history of ischemic heart disease with multiple risk factors. A series of cardiac stress tests confirmed this information.

The investigating cardiologist had completed a Medical Waiver before all of the tests results were available. The Medical Advisory Committee denied the Waiver because it was determined the Applicant did not meet the requirements for a commercial licence or Waiver consideration, due to exercise induced ischemia on stress testing (National Safety Code 3.1). This particular Section covers "Cardiovascular Diseases and Driving" and is written by the Canadian Cardiovascular Society.

A physician should be able to offer, based on clinical finding and the results of non-invasive testing, an opinion on the probability of sudden incapacitation significant enough to cause loss of control of a vehicle. The classification takes into consideration both symptoms and objective evidence (exercise-induced ECG changes).

The Applicant falls into their Functional Class II:

Clinical or objective diagnostic evidence of mild functional impairment and symptoms only on major physical effort, may be eligible for a Class 5 vehicle and to drive a taxicab.

After consideration of all of the evidence, the Tribunal agrees with the findings of the Ministry that the exercise-induced ECG changes are quite significant, considering the Applicant's occupation; driving long distances over long hours and transporting dangerous and hazardous goods. The Tribunal finds that this disability is likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a commercial motor vehicle and is too serious to reinstate the Applicant's Class "ACZ" licence under Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 29, 2002, of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION
RELEASED: February 5, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 3, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on February 5, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 2, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 2, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

“I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason.”

Preliminary Matters

As Police Officer #1, the witness for the Respondent's Representative, arrived late, the Respondent's Representative asked for a five-minute recess in order to confer with the witness. The Respondent's Representative's request was granted.

Certified copies of original documents on file were submitted by the Respondent's Representative.

The Respondent's Representative asked the Tribunal to have the Applicant present a piece of identification with a photograph. Given the fact that his driver's licence was taken, the Applicant was able to present only a library card with his name on it, which was found acceptable by the Respondent's Representative.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder dated December 24, 2002 – issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 2, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received January 28, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is:

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
- (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
- (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
- (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
- (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "22 Dec 2002" as per Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

In lieu of Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which is left blank, the Applicant submitted a hand written note from a physician.

Physician #1 wrote: "...This gentleman is suffering from chronic rhinitis and deviated septum L side. He had nasal congestion and cold on 2/Dec 02 (at time of spot-check). The above medical condition would cause his inability to provide a breath sample..."

At the hearing the Applicant related to the Tribunal that he was stopped by the R.I.D.E. programme and subsequently demanded a breath sample. The Applicant tried to provide an adequate sample but was not able to do so.

After the incident, the Applicant went to his family physician and was given a letter as to the reasons the physician thought he could not provide a sample.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant why his physician had not completed page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant explained that he filed the Appeal prior to going to his family physician and that he thought the note would suffice.

Under cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that he did not know the exact medical reason he was unable to provide a breath sample, but he recalled telling the officer that he had a cold and that his “...nose is always plugged...”

The Applicant confirmed that he was not taking any medication for his cold, and that Physician #1 did not prescribe any medication when he saw the Applicant on December 28, 2002.

The Applicant also confirmed that he did not ask for medical assistance.

For clarification the Tribunal asked the Applicant if he suffered from breathing difficulties. The Applicant answered that his physician has told him that he has allergies.

In his closing remarks the Applicant stated that he was not drunk and that he needs his driver's licence for his convenience.

The Applicant emphasized that he did try to blow several times, but did not understand the officer's instructions.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Notice to the Registrar, sealed January 7, 2003
2. Certified Driving Record of the Applicant sealed January 6, 2003
3. Certified copy of Vehicle Record, sealed January 7, 2003
4. Medical Report of Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP

Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Division and Program in Rehabilitation, states that he is “...in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition...”

After reviewing the letter from Physician #1, Dr. Goldstein points out that “...A deviated septum would not influence The Applicant's ability to provide a satisfactory breathalyzer test...”

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a police officer with the Toronto Police Service— 54 Division, as a witness.

Police Officer #1 being on duty as a member of the R.I.D.E. programme had occasion to stop the Applicant, and establish that there were enough grounds to demand a breath sample. He testified that the Applicant was allowed to blow into the device about "...twenty times..." Each time the instrument registered an error reading. Police Officer #1 noticed that the Applicant would puff his cheeks, start to blow and then "...suck back in...", or just stop blowing.

During the breathalyzer test session, Police Officer #1 did not notice the Applicant showing any signs of breathing difficulties. According to Police Officer #1, the Applicant did not inform him of any medical condition that would prevent him from providing a breath sample, nor did the Applicant ask for medication or medical assistance.

In cross-examination Police Officer #1, re-iterated his previous comments that the Applicant had acknowledged understanding the instructions, as well as his observations of the Applicant 's several attempts to provide a breath sample.

In closing, the Respondent's Representative stated that it is the Registrar's submissions that the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample, and that his failure to do so, had nothing to do with a medical condition. Police Officer #1's testimony supports the Registrar's position, in that Police Officer #1 observed the Applicant "...was sucking and blowing on the mouthpiece during his attempts...". Furthermore, Police Officer #1 saw absolutely nothing wrong with the Applicant at the time of the breathalyzer test.

Further, the Respondent's Representative maintains that the note provided by the Applicant's physician, does not comply with the requirements of Section 15 of Regulation 574, which is specific as to the information required in a medical report. Physician #1's report also fails to link the illness noted with the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative referred to the report of the Registrar's expert witness, Dr. Goldstein and pointed out Dr. Goldstein's conclusion that "...A deviated septum would not influence The Applicant's ability to provide a satisfactory breathalyzer test..."

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The Tribunal accepts the Applicant's argument that the Applicant was not impaired and that he needs his licence. An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

Thus, at issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired, had been drinking or needs his licence. At issue, as the Respondent’s Representative asserted, is, did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand?

The Applicant opted to submit notes from his physician Physician #1 in lieu of having page 2 of the Notice of Appeal completed by his physician.

The Respondent’s Representative claims that the information contained in this note, does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required, such as the Applicant’s medical history. The Tribunal agrees with the Respondent’s Representative.

Sections 15 (1) (a) (b) (c) (d) and 15 (2) of Regulation 574 prescribe as follows:

15 (1)

“A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is submitted in evidence shall clearly state:

- a) the name, telephone number and address, with postal code, of the medical practitioner;
- b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver’s license under section 50.1 of the Act.”
- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

15 (2):

The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.”

Physician #1’s note complies with the requirement of Section 15(1)(a) but not with Section 15 (1) (b) which requires the Applicant’s complete information, i.e. address and birth date.

It appears that Physician #1 was aware of the purpose of his report, therefore Section 15(1)(c) is met, yet Physician #1 offers no information as to how long the Applicant has been his patient or any details of last visit. Thus, Section 15 (1)(d) of Regulation 574 is not met.

Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant. The essence of this clause requires that the physician offer support to establish that there is a relationship between the medical condition and the incapacity to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen.

The Tribunal is left unsure as to why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but the fact is, that Physician #1's note fails to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1.

Physician #1 does not offer any explanation of how the Applicant's condition affects the Applicant's breathing pattern. Nor, does Physician #1 provide any justification as to how the medical problem could have affected the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample, other than to say "...The medical condition would cause his inability to provide a breath sample..."

Dr. Goldstein, after reviewing the letter from Physician #1, stresses that "...A deviated septum would not influence The Applicant's ability to provide a satisfactory breathalyzer test..." With all due respect to Physician #1, the Tribunal must accept the evidence of a prominent respiratologist, who is also an expert on the requirements of the Alcotest.

At the hearing the Applicant was unable to coherently explain why he was unable to provide a breath sample, other than to state that he had a cold, and his nose "...is always plugged..."

There are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are visible even to an untrained person. The Tribunal must rely on the testimony, of the eyewitness involved in the incident. Police Officer #1 was in direct contact with the Applicant, he did not notice, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce, to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant has a medical condition, which would have prevented the Applicant from providing the demanded breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 22, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 12, 2003, at Oshawa, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on February 13, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 05, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 07, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice dated November 4, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 7, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received February 7, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "October 22, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

In lieu of Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which is left blank, the Applicant submitted a hand written note from a physician.

Physician #1 wrote: "...Pulmonary Function Testing indicates asthma. This could adversely affect his ability to blow into a breathalyzer machine..."

The results of a Pulmonary Function Test performed on the Applicant on "04/11/2002" attached read as follows: "Diagnosis: Asthma; Computerized Interpretation: Mild restrictive disease; Medication: Salbutamol; Additional Information: Airways resistance is in the normal range. Maximum Inspiratory Pressure is reduced; Maximum Expiratory Pressure is reduced. Good effort by patient.

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that he suffers from asthma and after seeing his physician he was sent to a specialist.

The Applicant pointed out to the Tribunal that he has been driving for twenty-five years without committing any offence.

By way of clarification, the Tribunal asked the Applicant if he had given the Notice of Appeal form to his physician. The Applicant replied that he thought that the handwritten note would suffice.

In cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that he has had asthma for approximately nine years. The Applicant had not in the past been referred to a respiratologist. The Applicant believes that the physician was unwilling to provide the report himself, as he was too busy. Further, the Applicant assumes that being a family physician, the doctor felt his words would have less weight than those of a specialist.

The Applicant confirmed that he did not have an inhaler on him at the time. The Applicant had his own prescription for an inhaler given to him approximately eight years ago, but now mainly uses his children's medication, when needed.

The Applicant described his symptoms at the time as shortness of breath, due to the anxiety he was experiencing at the time.

In closing the Applicant reiterated his previous comments that in the twenty-five years he has been driving in North America, he has never committed any traffic violations.

The Applicant noticed that he was wheezing after the breathalyzer, for that reason he consulted with his physician to find out the cause. The physician confirmed the previous diagnosis of asthma, and sent the Applicant to a specialist for further tests.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy Notice to the Registrar, sealed January 3rd, 2003.
2. Certified Copy Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed January 13th, 2003.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Record, sealed January 13th, 2003.
4. Medical Report of Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP.

Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Division and Program in Rehabilitation, states that he is "...in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ... The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition..."

After reviewing the letter from Physician #1 and the pulmonary function tests interpreted by Physician #2, Dr. Goldstein points out: "...the force expired volume is within normal range that the FEV 1/FVC ratio (an important measure in airflow) is very close to normal range. Flow at mid and low lung volumes are almost entirely normal. In my view, it is extremely unlikely that this patient has asthma based on the above measurements ...the finding is consistent with some restriction in ventilatory mechanics with a slight reduction in total lung capacity, functional residual capacity and vital capacity ...it might be worthwhile advising the physicians involved that any abnormalities are more consistent with a restriction than obstruction. The pulmonary function measurements are unlikely to preclude satisfactory delivery of a breath sample if indeed the abnormality is restrictive, then it is relatively mild, most likely attributable to obesity...”

The Respondent, called Police Officer #1, who has been a police officer “...about three years...”, as a witness.

Police Officer #1 detailed the events that led to the Applicant’s vehicle being stopped, and the Applicant subsequently being demanded a breath sample.

According to Police Officer #1, the Applicant was given approximately thirteen attempts to provide a breath sample. Each time the Applicant attempted to blow into the Alcotest, the machine showed an “E/O” reading, indicating the breath sample was not suitable. An error message is suggestive that the individual is not breathing hard enough to activate the device.

During the breathalyzer test session, the trip to the station, and during the time that Police Officer #1 spent with the Applicant at the station, Police Officer #1 did not observe the Applicant exhibiting any of the usual signs of breathing difficulties, such as coughing or wheezing. The Applicant never advised the Constable that he suffered from an asthmatic condition.

In cross-examination by the Applicant, Police Officer #1 confirmed that he did not recall asking, or being told by the Applicant, about the Applicant being afflicted with asthma. Police Officer #1 also did not recall swearing at the Applicant.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent’s Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar’s position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition, which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. Mr. Biel argued that the Applicant simply had no intention of providing a breath sample. This argument is substantiated by the observations of Police Officer #1, who at no time noticed any signs of breathing difficulties.

The Applicant has introduced no evidence whatsoever to substantiate his position, the PFT results do not link the Applicant’s condition to the Applicant’s ability to comply with the breath demand. Physician #1 attempts to make a connection, but Physician #1’s comment that the condition “could” affect the Applicant, is basically a guess. Both the PFT report and Physician #1’s letter were sent to Dr. Goldstein, who is a respirologist. Dr. Goldstein noted that “...the force expired volume is within normal range that the FEV 1/FVC ratio (an important measure in airflow) is very close to normal range. Flow at mid and low lung volumes are almost entirely normal...” and surmises that the Applicant could have provided an adequate breath sample.

Further, Mr. Biel maintains that the note provided by the Applicant’s physician, does not comply with the requirements of Section 15 of Regulation 574, which is specific as to the information required on a medical report.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The Tribunal accepts and commends the Applicant for his spotless driving record, nonetheless, the Tribunal must point out, to the Applicant, that it is not within the Tribunal's mandate to consider the Applicant's driving record. The Applicant brought an appeal under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

Thus, as the Respondent's Representative asserted, at issue is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant opted to submit a note from Physician #1 in lieu of having page 2 of the Notice of Appeal completed by the physician, as required.

The Respondent claims that the information contained in this note, does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required, such as the Applicant's address and date of birth. The Tribunal agrees.

Sections 15 (1) (a) (b) (c) (d) and 15 (2) of Regulation 574 prescribe as follows:

15 (1)

"A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is submitted in evidence shall clearly state:

- a) the name, telephone number and address, with postal code, of the medical practitioner;
- b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver's license under section 50.1 of the Act."
- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

15 (2):

The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.”

Physician #1's handwritten notes complies with the requirement of Section 15 1(a) but not with Section 15 1 (b) which requires the Applicant's complete information, i.e. address and birth date.

The criteria of section (c) of Regulation 574 is met, but the requirements under Section 15 (1)(d) are not, in that Physician #1 offers no information as to how long the Applicant has been his patient or the details of the Applicant's last visit.

Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant. The essence of this clause requires that the physician establish a connection between the condition and the individual's inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF (sic) represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen

The Tribunal does not know the degree of familiarity that Physician #1 has with the Applicant's condition. Physician #1's note does not confirm the length of time that the Applicant has been his patient. Further, Physician #1's note fails to provide a history of the Applicant's condition.

The Tribunal is left unsure as to why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but the fact is, that Physician #1's note fails to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1, and will be accorded the weight merited.

Physician #1's comments are, it appears, based on the results of the Applicant's recent pulmonary function test. The Tribunal agrees with the Respondent's submission that Physician #1's explanation, does not provide justification. Physician #1's chosen words that asthma “...could adversely affect his ability to blow into the breathalyzer machine...”, clearly demonstrate ambivalence. After reviewing the same pulmonary function results, Dr. Goldstein, concludes that: “...it is extremely unlikely that this patient has asthma ...the pulmonary function measurements are unlikely to preclude satisfactory delivery of a breath sample...”. With all due respect to Physician #1, the Tribunal prefers and adopts the conclusions of Dr. Goldstein, who is a well known respiratologist.

At the hearing the Applicant was unable to articulate why he was unable to provide a breath sample, other than to state that he felt anxious. By his own admission the Applicant confirmed that he did not have an inhaler with him. The Tribunal finds this surprising, as it is the Tribunal's experience that most asthma sufferers are extremely reluctant to be found without an inhaler.

There are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are visible even to an untrained person. In order to further assess the evidence at the time, the Tribunal refers to the testimony of the eyewitness who was involved in the incident. Police Officer #1 was in direct contact with the Applicant. He did not notice, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

It appears that the Applicant's condition was not severe enough to warrant seeking medical assistance immediately after the incident.

The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce from the Applicant, to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant has a medical condition, which would have prevented the Applicant from providing the demanded breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of his appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated November 4, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DECISION
RELEASED: February 6, 2003 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 30, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Galt Chrysler Dodge Ltd. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2002 Chrysler Neon, plate 563 NSW (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	January 10, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on January 30, 2003 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

DRIVER ADVISED US THAT HE HAD A VALID DRIVERS LICENCE WHEN IN FACT HE DID NOT. HE CONTINUED TO DRIVE FOR THE SHORT PERIOD OF TIME HE WAS EMPLOYED BY GALT CHRYSLER DODGE LTD., UNTIL STOPPED BY POLICE AND CHARGED WITH DRIVING WHILE UNDER SUSPENSION.
THE LOSS OF THIS VEHICLE WILL RESULT IN EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP.

The following is a summary of Mr. Longo's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a full service car dealership which has been in business for the past 33 years in Cambridge, Ontario. Mr. Longo's brother opened the dealership in January, 1970 and Michael Longo commenced working there in February, 1970. Michael Longo currently holds the position of Secretary/Treasurer. The Applicant employs approximately 50 persons. Its number of vehicles consists of 75 new and 50 used vehicles for sale. It operates 6 days a week, Mondays to Saturdays.

The Applicant is the registered owner of the impounded vehicle. The Applicant permits some of its employees to drive the demonstration vehicles or rentals for their own personal use.

In early November, 2002, Mr. Gligor, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, called the sales manager employed by the Applicant, to apply for a sales job. He and the sales manager have known each other for many years. Mr. Gligor had been in the car business for some time. He was unfortunately experiencing difficult times with his spouse, a sick child and a business he had lost. Mr. Gligor was hired on November 13, 2002 by the Applicant. His salesman's licence was transferred immediately. All relevant information was obtained. When asked to produce his driver's licence to ensure its validity, Mr. Gligor had indicated that he had left it at home and would produce it the next day. The next day, Mr. Gligor called in sick and did not return to the dealership for 2 weeks. On his return, the administration staff neglected to obtain Mr. Gligor's driver's licence. He worked for approximately 3 weeks before the impoundment.

The Applicant was advised of the impoundment by the sales manager who received a call at home from Mr. Gligor the evening the vehicle was impounded.

Neither the Applicant, Mr. Longo nor the Tribunal are aware of the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, but in reviewing the Notice to Registrar (within Exhibits 3 and 4), it appears that Mr. Gligor was driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 and 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by John Gligor;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until July 25, 2004.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of "exceptional hardship" under section 50.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant, in this case, has argued that the impoundment will result in exceptional hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for its appeal to be considered under section 22(2), it must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Applicant has failed to meet the burden of proof and has failed to establish exceptional hardship.

There was no evidence adduced by the Applicant to indicate whether or not there was an alternative to the impounded vehicle, under section 22(1) or a threat to health or safety of any person ordinarily transported under section 22(1)(a). Since the Applicant failed to show that there was no alternative to the impounded vehicle, under section 22(3), the Tribunal cannot consider the criteria in sections 22(2)(b), (c) and (d). Nor was there evidence regarding section 22(2) namely inconvenience, financial or economic loss, loss of employment or of education or training.

The Applicant may nonetheless pursue compensation from the suspended driver, John Gligor, as provided by in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22 of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 3, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Steve P. Samko (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	1998 Chevrolet GM4 Pickup, plate 2365DY (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	January 16, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 3, 2003 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

The Respondent submitted a set of copies of documents bearing original copy certification seals, which were entered into evidence, and all documents entered into evidence were with the consent of both parties.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I Steve Samko am appealing the dismission of impoundment of my 1998 chev pickup due to the fact I will suffer great losses and financial hardships. I cannot rely on my family members or taxis services to transport me to work. If I cannot fulfill my job requirements my employer will terminate me. Which will result in financial hardship loss of my family as we will have no place to live. I am law biding citizens in community of lambton country where I have community ties. I will due every thing in my power to prevent others from having accessibility to my vehicle. I never new it was my responsibility to inquire other drivers abstract as this has never happened to me before. So once again I am pleading with you to release my truck into my custody.

The Applicant testified that he works as a truck driver, and drives large tractor trailer rigs for a living. He relies upon the impounded vehicle for his primary means of getting back and forth to his job, as well as for shopping and other errands.

He stated that on some occasions, such as when he has an early delivery, his employer allows him to drive the company tractor home, and back to his job the next day. He also stated that he currently has the use of a friend and co-workers second vehicle, that has been loaned to him for the balance of the impoundment period. Furthermore, he could also ask his mother to assist him in his transportation needs if necessary, but only if there were no other alternatives.

Since the impoundment period began, the Applicant testified that he has been able to find alternative means of transportation, either by getting rides from friends, or through the use of his friends borrowed vehicle. He has not lost any time at work since the impoundment of his vehicle began, nor does he expect to. He finds the use of a borrowed vehicle, as well as having to ask others for assistance to be less preferable to having his own vehicle, since he misses having it.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Janice L. Graham;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Provide Breath or Blood

Sample under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until June 25, 2004.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of exceptional hardship, in accordance with section 55.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment. The Tribunal is precluded from considering any other factors not arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

In order for the Applicant 's claims to be considered under section 22(2)(a), (b), and (c), he must also have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered for an alternative vehicle. The Applicant has made no specific claims of exceptional hardship as described by section 22(1)(a) or (b) regarding a threat to health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle, or to public health and safety.

The Tribunal may consider economic loss only if no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available (see subsection 22(3)(a) of that Regulation). The Applicant has established that there are alternatives to the impounded motor vehicle; an alternative vehicle has been kindly provided to him by his friend. Failing that, he indicated that he often can use his company truck to get back and forth to his job or, could still get a ride from his mother. Therefore, as stated, sections 22(2)(a), (b) and (c) cannot be considered.

The Applicant has not presented the Tribunal with any evidence that would demonstrate that every reasonable alternative option has been considered and inquired into as required under section 22(4) of the Regulation. In fact, the testimony of the Applicant was that an alternative was readily available, therefore no further options need be considered.

The Applicant has been able to maintain his daily activities through the use of various alternatives that he has at hand. The Tribunal recognizes that the Applicant has been inconvenienced by the loss of his vehicle, however no evidence was heard that would support a finding of exceptional hardship, nor a loss that was significant or lasting, as required by the Act.

Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to meet the onus under section 22(4) of the Regulation and is therefore precluded from considering the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship under section 22(2) of the Regulation.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF
HEARING: FEBRUARY 20, 2003

DECISION
RELEASED: FEBRUARY 21, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 20, 2003, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on February 21, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 15 and 21, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on February 17 and 22, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

“I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason.”

Preliminary Matters

The Registrar provided the Tribunal with the original certified copies of the Notice of Registrar and driver record.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit #1 Suspension Reminder Notice dated January 3, 2003
- b) Exhibit #2 Notices of Appeal dated January 15 and 21, 2003

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit #3 Materials and Submissions of the Respondent dated February 13, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

(2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

(a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The Tribunal may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

15. (1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant was stopped by Police Officer #1 at approximately 6 a.m. on January 1, 2003. The Applicant was on his way to work having slept over at a friend's house the night before.

Police Officer #1 testified that he pulled The Applicant over because his vehicle appeared to be weaving, although not crossing the centre line. After giving his licence to the officer The Applicant sat in his car for a few minutes with the window down, exposed to the cold January air. He was then asked to get into the police cruiser to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant testified that he tried to provide a breath sample but began to cough. He stated he attempted a number of times, around 5 or 6, and that his ability to blow decreased with each effort. It was The Applicant's evidence that he tried his best but could not provide a sample due to his coughing and that he had asked the officer if he could be given some other test to show that he was not drunk as he could not provide the breath sample.

The evidence given by The Applicant was not contradicted in any significant way by the evidence of Police Officer #1. He testified that The Applicant was not able on his first attempt to provide a sample that The Applicant did not blow but only made a grunting or groaning sound. He testified that The Applicant did cough during some of his 5 attempts to provide a sample and that these coughing bouts lasted between 5 to 10 seconds. Police Officer #1 confirmed that The Applicant requested he be subjected to some other test to prove his sobriety however it was Police Officer #1's opinion at the time that this was not a genuine cough rather it was merely theatrics on the part of The Applicant.

In support of his appeal The Applicant submitted a letter dated January 14, 2003, from his family physician, Physician #1, who has treated The Applicant since 1985. Physician #1 states in his letter that The Applicant was seen in his office on January 21 and January 27th, 2000, complaining of choking coughs related to cold dry air. The Applicant was then referred to, and subsequently seen by, respirologist Physician #2 on April 13, 2000. He was also referred to and seen by allergist Physician #1 on July 30, 2001. Copies of Physician #2's and Physician #1's assessments were also submitted to the Tribunal. Both reports make reference to The Applicant's symptoms of coughing triggered by cold air.

Exhibit # 3, the Respondents materials, includes a report of respirologist Dr. Roger S. Goldstein who reviewed the reports of Physician #1, Physician #2 and Physician #1. Dr. Goldstein concludes:

"In my view, The Applicant likely does have mild asthma presenting as cough (rather than wheeze) and triggered predominantly by cold air and possible by house dust as well. It is unlikely that asthma of this nature would preclude The Applicant from providing a satisfactory breath sample unless he were exposed to cold air, immediately prior to that sample being requested. This being the case, it is conceivable that repeated coughing might interfere with the delivery of an adequate sample."

The Representative for the Registrar did not make reference to Dr. Goldstein's report. She argued however, that the medical reports provided by The Applicant should be given less weight than the observations and opinion of Police Officer #1 at the time of the breath test.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

In order to succeed in this appeal the onus is on The Applicant to establish that he was unable to provide a breath sample for a medical reason. The Tribunal found both The Applicant and Police Officer #1 to be credible witnesses. The differences in their evidence lay primarily in the interpretation of the facts: Police Officer #1 simply believed The Applicant's coughing to be intentional and within his control.

The medical evidence provided by The Applicant supports his claim that he has a medical condition that causes him to cough when exposed to cold air. The Applicant claims this is what prevented him from providing a breath sample and the medical evidence provided by the Respondent suggests this is a possibility.

Based on the sworn testimony and medical evidence provided the Tribunal finds that The Applicant has established the merits of his appeal.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 3, 2003 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: February 14, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: February 24, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 14, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Kathleen Susan Clark (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Plymouth Voyageur, plate 059 YHC (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	January 7, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 14, 2003 and proceeded as a written hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of the Appeal states:

I am a single mother caring for two school age children. My estranged husband has left the country and has not pay court ordered child support on a regular basis nor any costs of the children for medical or dental. My income barely covers the necessities and there is no money left over for extras.

Having the van impounded has caused extreme financial difficulties for my children and myself and I am now forced to sell it to cover costs and expenses. I have been fortunate enough to be approached by Mr. Bruce Johnston who has offered to purchase the vehicle if it can be available by January 20, 2003. I am enclosing the Offer to Purchase that the Purchases has signed/

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Kathleen Susan Clark;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of impaired driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 22, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d), exceptional hardship.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In order for the applicant to succeed on the ground that the impoundment order will result in exceptional hardship, she must prove, first, that there was no alternative available to the impounded vehicle, as required by section 22(1) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 (the "Regulation").

However, in her letter, the Applicant does not state that there is no alternative available to her impounded vehicle. The Applicant would have to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to her, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

This the applicant has not done.

Even if the contents of her letter could be interpreted as proving that there was no alternative available, she must also prove that any loss to her of the kind described in section 22(2)(b), (c) and (d) will be immediate, significant and lasting. Here, there is no such evidence.

Furthermore, if no alternative is available, the Applicant would have to show that the impoundment will result in a threat to the health and safety of anyone transported by the vehicle. In addition, the Applicant would have to prove that the impoundment would result in a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the vehicle is ordinarily used.

The applicant has provided no evidence relating to these criteria.

The Licence Appeal Tribunal was created by the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999. Having been created by statute, the Tribunal has only those powers as are assigned to it under any Act or regulation. The Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chap. H8, with which we are dealing in this case, is one of those acts.

The Tribunal is, therefore, able to consider only that evidence which the Highway Traffic Act allows it to consider, as outlined earlier in these Reasons. The Tribunal has no discretion to add to or to delete from any of those provisions.

In effect, this means, among other things, that even though this Tribunal may have some sympathy for the circumstances of the Applicant in this case, this Tribunal must, nevertheless, make its decision solely in accordance with the requirements of the above provisions.

That being the case, this Tribunal concludes, on the evidence before it, that the Applicant has not satisfied the onus of proving, on a balance of probabilities, that the impoundment of her motor vehicle will result in exceptional hardship, because she has failed to prove the elements of "exceptional hardship" as defined earlier in these Reasons.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF
HEARING: February 18, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- (1) Notice of Change of Class of Driver's Licence effective December 4, 2002 issued by the Ministry of Transportation.
- (2) Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal January 20, 2003.
- (3) Driving Records of the Applicant from the Ministry of Transportation.
- (4) File Summary prepared by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 58 year old plumber, had his driver's licence downgraded on December 4, 2002 under Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act by the Ministry of Transportation. The Applicant had been monitored by the Ministry since 1991, after a Medical Report was received from Physician #1, advising that the Applicant had suffered a Myocardial infarction on April 26, 1990.

The Ministry requested an assessment and a Medical Waiver from a cardiologist in order for the Applicant to maintain his Class "F" licence. A waiver was completed by Physician #2, a cardiologist, on May 16, 1991 and an assessment on May 24, 1991. The waiver was approved by the Medical Advisory Committee and a request was made for an annual assessment. In the following 2 years waivers were approved and the period was extended to every 2 years and then every 3 years and could be completed by his family physician.

In 2002 the Ministry again requested a full assessment and a waiver by a cardiologist. Physician #3 complied with an assessment and a waiver on November 15, 2002. He reported some non-specific ST-T wave abnormalities and ST depressions in the Applicant's ECG suggestive of myocardial ischemia. There was also a dilated left ventricle and the left ventricular ejection fraction was only 25 %. Previous records indicated he had a normal ejection factor in 1991.

Physician #3's crossed out one sentence in the "Physician's Certificate" of the waiver, which stated "Refer to enclosed information sheet in respect to Ontario's licence class structure and related medical requirements." Physician #3's report, however, indicated the Applicant is stable from a cardiac standpoint with no symptoms suggestive of myocardial ischemia.

A Stress Myoview report accompanied Physician #3's assessment with the radiologist's impression:

1. There is no jeopardized myocardium identified.
2. Large dilated left ventricle with low left ventricular ejection fraction and increased end systolic volumes in keeping with left ventricular remodelling.
3. Due to the markedly elevated sum stress score and low left ventricular ejection fraction, the patient is at increased risk of a subsequent cardiac event. The patient would most likely benefit from intervention as opposed to medical therapy alone. The Ministry downgraded the Applicant's driver's licence, because the Applicant's left ventricular ejection is graded below standards for the criteria used as a guideline in assessing fitness to retain the waiver provision.

For a commercial driver the “Determining fitness to Drive” guide for physicians, prepared by the C.M.A. states:

Left ventricle

Class 1: Ejection fraction 50% or more

Class 2: Ejection fraction 35-49%

Class 3: Ejection fraction 20-39%

The Applicant maintains that he has never suffered any chest pain, inspite of maintaining a rigorous exercise program regularly. This includes walks and cycling on a stationary bike 10 miles a day, ball hockey, “Reebok” Spin Classes, golfing, baseball and working out in a gym. His work as a pipe fitter in a factory involves heavy lifting and climbing.

His commercial driving is transporting children in a 15 passenger van twice weekly to church and for recreational activities. It is a volunteer job with no remuneration.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;

- (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;
 - (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
- (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and
 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
- (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Minister of Transportation was obligated to downgrade the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act when the Medical Report was received from Physician #3 outlining the deteriorating condition of the Applicant's left ventricle.

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 (a) of the Highway Traffic Act states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

In addition, Section 17 (1) states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - ...
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

The Applicant has a history of a myocardial infarction in 1990, but no identifiable problems since that time. Medical records indicate that in 1991 he had a normal left ventricular ejection factor. Twelve years later, in November 2002, the Applicant's LV ejection factor is down to 25%, which is in Class # 3 and unacceptable for a commercial driver.

The Tribunal finds that the medical reports disclose a heart condition that does not satisfy the above noted legislation or the guide for "Determining Medical Fitness to Drive". The Tribunal agrees with the Ministry that it would be too much of a risk to reinstate his Class F licence, since he is transporting children.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated December 4, 2002 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 11, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on February 12, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 22, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 22, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that his witnesses would not be present as they were unable to take time off work. He had not made arrangements to summons them.

The Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal delay the start of the hearing until eleven o'clock, in order to allow time for the officer involved in this matter to arrive. Police Officer #1 was summoned, but attended another court. The Tribunal proceeded with the hearing.

The Respondent's Representative subsequently sought permission to introduce into evidence, the Constable's Affidavit, regarding the Applicant's breathalyzer session. No objection being raised by the Applicant, the Tribunal entered PC Police Officer #1's Affidavit as Exhibit #4.

The Applicant claimed that he did not receive the disclosure package forwarded to him by the Ministry. Ms. Dunbar, the Respondent's Representative confirmed that the Registrar's submissions had been sent by Courier to the Applicant's current address, as shown on his driver's licence. Purolator Courier provided the Ministry with confirmation of delivery, signed by Name. The Applicant stated no one by that name lived at his house. Copies of the disclosure documents were given to the Applicant.

The Applicant declined the opportunity to adjourn this matter, in order to have further time to review the disclosure.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice dated December 12, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 22, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received January 31, 2003
- b) Exhibit # 4 Sworn Affidavit of Police Officer #1 – received February 11, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Dec 10 2002" as per Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant had page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared by his physician of " 1 years 6 months", Physician #1.

Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, prepared by Physician #1, reads as follows:

"Details and Diagnosis of patient's condition ...Asthma since childhood);

History of Condition ...childhood asthma. Getting worse last 3 years...

Type of Measurements or recent tests taken with (date indicated): Reference to any pathology tests (e.g. PTF (SIC) represent important corroboration of your medical opinion) ...Referred to a Respiratologist. Spirometry was not performed...

Relevant details of last visit and when your patient was last seen? ..30 Dec.02 ...Shortness of breath at times. Using Ventolin inhaler regularly."

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that he was unable to provide an adequate breath sample due to his deteriorating health. Physician #1, the Applicant's physician has now referred him to a respiratologist.

The night in question was very cold, which, according to the Applicant, aggravated his condition. The Applicant wondered why the officer could not have given him an "eye test" or a blood test.

The Applicant claimed that he had not read what his physician had written in the Notice of Appeal, and could not provide an explanation as to why he did not have a report from the specialist.

The Applicant feels that he is "qualified" to appeal as he feels that his condition falls within the category of medical grounds.

In cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that he was given several opportunities to blow into the device, and that he did the best he could, but was not able to satisfy the demand.

The Applicant stated that he was exhausted from work, that he had been in smoke filled prior to being stopped, and described his symptoms at the time of breathalyzer, as "...short of breath, nauseous..."

When asked if he had told the officer about suffering from asthma, the Applicant first asserted that he had, then recanted and stated that he was "...pretty sure..." and that he "...must have..." told the officer.

The Applicant stated that he was coughing and wheezing at the time, not exactly in pain, but feeling some discomfort. Furthermore, being in the back of the cruiser, and fearing being arrested, increased the Applicant's anxiety level. The Applicant repeated several times that he was "...terrified ...very scared ...very, very scared ...feeling very troubled, very, very troubled...".

The Applicant stated that he went to his physician, about three weeks later, to find out why he could not provide a breath sample. The Applicant was referred to Physician #2, a specialist, by his family physician as Physician #1 needed "...back up ...to feel comfortable..." about signing the Notice of Appeal form. The Applicant has not in the past been seen by a respiratologist.

The Applicant did not have the inhaler with him at the time of the breathalyzer test, but does use the inhaler about three times a week.

By way of clarification the Tribunal asked the Applicant the date of his last asthma attack. The Applicant replied: "...asthma attack, I do not know what that is ...you mean shortage of breath..."

In his closing remarks the Applicant stated that he was asked to provide a breath sample and did the best he could. The Applicant suggested that there should be alternate methods available to people like him who are unable to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant rebutted the Respondent's Representative closing remarks by repeating his closing remarks.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Notice to the Registrar, certified January 28^h, 2003
2. Certified Driving Record of the Applicant, certified January 28th, 2003
3. Vehicle Record, certified January 28^h, 2003

In an Affidavit sworn on February 10th, 2003, Police Officer #1, stated as follows:

" 2. ...trained in the use of the ALCO-TEST since they first came into use... 6. ...stopped the vehicle ...the male driver, identified as The Applicant... 10. ...read the male the approved screening device demand... 11. The Applicant was given a total of 9 attempts using 3 separate mouthpieces to provide a breath sample... 13. ...2nd attempt ...allowed most of the air to go around the mouthpiece ...not creating a seal... 14. ...3rd attempt ...same thing ...did briefly activate the tone but ...stopped for no reason... 15. 4th attempt ...blowing around the mouthpiece ...blowing air so hard past the mouthpiece that I could feel the air on my cheek in the front seat... 16. 5th and 6th attempts ...either not blowing hard enough, or allowing air to escape out of the sides of the mouth piece... 18. ...7th attempt ...observed ...blowing around the mouthpiece ...also puffed out his cheeks to pretend blowing fully... 21. 8th attempt ...was not trying at all... 23. 9th attempt ...results being the same as the 8th ...my opinion he was pretending to blow... 25. ...never stated ...he suffered from any medical condition ...observed no respiratory distress such as coughing, wheezing or being out of breath... 28. At no time ...advise ...that he had Asthma or that he required a ventilator... 29. ...observed nothing to suggest ...refusal to provide ...due to medical problem...”

For the record, as there was no objection from the Applicant, the Tribunal recessed for a brief period, after the completion of the Applicant's testimony, to wait for Police Officer #1.

Police Officer #1 graduated from the Police College in 1992. Every year, except for two years, since 1992, Police Officer #1 has been involved in the R.I.D.E. programme, which, takes place from November 29th or 30th until January 1st. Police Officer #1 is fully trained in all breathalyzer devices.

Police Officer #1 detailed the events that led to the demand for the breath sample, and basically re-iterated the information contained in his Affidavit.

According to Police Officer #1, the Applicant was given a total of nine attempts to provide a breath sample. Initially, the Applicant was not blowing at all, later, Police Officer #1 observed that the Applicant was blowing around the mouthpiece.

Police Officer #1 is familiar with the symptoms of asthma and has had occasion to test individuals who required the use of inhalers. During the breathalyzer test session, Police Officer #1 did not notice the Applicant showing any signs of discomfort. The Applicant did not ask for medical assistance nor to be allowed to use the ventilator.

The Applicant cross-examined Police Officer #1 by asking the Constable to describe the physical area, where the breathalyzer session took place. The Applicant tried to ascertain whether any exterior noises could have prevented the Constable from hearing the wheezing in the Applicant's breath. Police Officer #1 replied that due to the close proximity, he would have been able to detect any wheezing.

The only medical training that Police Officer #1 has, is sport training, which involves CPR, and is regularly updated. Police Officer #1 is familiar with the symptoms of asthmatics as his wife suffers from the condition.

Police Officer #1 recalled the Applicant asking for an alternate method to provide a sample, but denied the Applicant's contention that the Applicant informed him of being asthmatic.

The Applicant asked the Constable to detail, and the Constable did so, under what circumstances a blood sample could be obtained.

By way of closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition, which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. The Applicant has introduced no evidence whatsoever to substantiate his position, no detailed medical reports, and no PFT results.

The officer did not observe any respiratory difficulties. The Applicant did not inform the officer that he was in any type of respiratory distress.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the Applicant's issue as to why he was not asked to provide a blood sample. Subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." However, the decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, according to established policy. At the time, the Applicant showed no visible signs of respiratory impairment, such as wheezing or choking. Thus, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

At issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all. At issue, is did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant believes that by virtue of his asthmatic condition, he has sufficient grounds for appeal.

Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Tribunal would like to emphasize, that in the event a medical condition, is established as a fact, the onus is still upon the Applicant, to demonstrate that the condition prevented the Applicant from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant would have the Tribunal accept the fact that his asthma is severe enough to prevent him from providing an adequate breath sample. To support his premise, the Applicant submitted a brief report from his family physician confirming that he has had "...Asthma since childhood ...Shortness of breath at times."

When asked if he had seen a respiratologist in the past, the Applicant admitted that his physician had never been concerned enough about the condition to refer the Applicant to a specialist. The Applicant was, further, able to explain for the Tribunal, the reason that, although, according to the physician, the condition is "...Getting worse last 3 years...", Physician #1 made no prior referrals until now. Although it appears that the Applicant has asthma, the Tribunal accepts the observations of the Respondent noting the Applicant's lack of symptoms of asthma and his pretending to blow into the mouthpiece as evidence that the Applicant did not fail or refuse to comply with a brief demand for a medical reason.

In his viva voce evidence, the Applicant stated that he was "...anxious ...coughing and wheezing..." at the time of the breathalyzer. As the Respondent's Representative pointed out, at no time, was the Applicant observed, by Police Officer #1, in an afflicted breathing state, nor did the Applicant request medical assistance.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 10, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: February 12, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: February 18, 2003 Hamilton

REASONS FOR DECISION

An oral hearing was held on February 12, at Hamilton, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to subsection 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to subsection 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under subsection 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under subsection 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Zaharo Aivaliotou (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: 1999 Chrysler, Plate AMSN927 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: January 28, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 12, 2003, and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of the appeal states:

"On Thursday January 23, 2003, I was awoken by an officer of the Hamilton department that a Rick James had been arrested for being under a suspension. My 1999 Entrepid had been impounded.

I was very upset with what had happened. The officer was saying that the car would be there for 45 days. I am a single mother of a young child and also the sole provider for her. Without the vehicle it makes things very difficult especially with work. I had to miss work and that means no money. I work a very difficult shift and I need transportation. My vehicle is my livelihood and it is very important that I have my vehicle. I had been very worried about how I would be getting to work. I have not been sleeping very good, especially when I can't get a ride.

I work out of town. I worked hard to purchase this vehicle. Mr. James doesn't reside at my residence nor do I want him around. He has betrayed my trust when he took my keys without my permission. I'm a very sensible person. I'm still making my payments on the vehicle and I have no one to turn to."

In her oral evidence Ms. Aivalotou stated that Mr. James had been residing with her when he took the car. According to her, Mr. James knew that he did not have permission to use the automobile.

He waited until she went to sleep after coming off night shift to take the automobile. As a result of her not having the car, Ms. Aivaliotou has lost four days of work. She said that there is no direct bus route to her place of employment, which is in an industrial area near Guelph. She has had to depend on the kindness of friends who have to go out of their way to drive her to work. None of these friends live in Cambridge.

The city bus from Kitchener stops running at 9.00 p.m., and taking a cab from home would cost at least $40.00 one-way.

When asked about the possibility of her using a visa card to pay for the cab, Ms. Aivaliotou replied that she does not have a card. She has applied for one, but does not expect to get it for at least three weeks.

Besides missing work, Ms. Aivaliotou explained that she has additional expense such as baby-sitting for her thirteen-year-old daughter who she does not like leaving home alone at night.

Ms Aivaliotou said that her monthly expenses consisted of rent: $760.00; car lease, $400.00 per month plus other incidental expenses such as groceries, her daughters' extracurricular activities, and household bills. She can make these payments but the additional expense as well of the constant fear that she will not be able to get to work was a hardship.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Mr. Rick James.
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving while disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until 03 October 2004.
5. The Registrar stated that not having use of the car did not pose a threat to the health and safety of either Ms Aivaliotou or her daughter. The financial loss was not significant and lasting. The Applicant had been successful in getting rides to work, although she did say that she had missed four days. She had friends who were driving her to work, and was able to get a credit card if necessary to pay for a cab
6. The Registrar also noted that Ms. Aivaliotou's daughter could walk to school.

LAW:

Subsection 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and subsection 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in subsection 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under subsection 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under subsection 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

- (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal has found that although the Applicant did not have immediate access to a vehicle, and has been experiencing some inconvenience she has been getting a lift to work. She therefore does have an alternative to her impounded motor vehicle.

The Tribunal notes that Ms. Aivaliotou was indeed experiencing some inconvenience and expense in adjusting to life without her automobile. She was concerned that she was inconveniencing her friends who had to go out of their way to pick her up and drive her to work. She had already lost four days wages and was afraid that if she missed more days, she would not only lose wages but would also get in trouble with her employer. Mere inconvenience cannot be considered.

Since an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle exists, the Tribunal cannot consider subsection 22(1)(a) and (b): threat to health and safety, nor can it consider subsection 22(2): inconvenience, financial or economic loss, loss of employment or of education.

The only other person immediately affected is Ms. Aivaliotou's daughter. The Applicant has stated that her daughter can walk to school.

Although the applicant has experienced some inconvenience and financial loss, there is no evidence before the Tribunal to indicate that she has experienced exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of her automobile as defined by the Act and the regulations.

The Applicant does have a claim against the suspended driver for her financial loss and expenses pursuant to subsection 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under subsection 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: February 20, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: February 24, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 20, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: 1343185 Ontario Inc. (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: Ford MHV, plate 2510JY (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: February 3, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 20, 2003 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I, Luis A. Carrillo did not know about the driver's suspension. If I had any idea about it, I would have never let him drive the truck.
The truck is my business, that's how I make a living, support my family and pay my bills.

That is why I'm appealing. I need my truck back. (A.S.A.P.) I will have a lot of financial problems, specially if the holidays just ended.

Both Mr. Luis Carillo (the Applicant) and his son Christopher Carillo (driver of the vehicle) were in attendance at the hearing.

The Applicant testified that in 1999 he and his young son joined forces in expanding the family owned delivery and courier business. At that time the Applicant purchased a second vehicle for his son to drive and both set about securing new clients. They were successful and the business was soon keeping them and the two delivery vehicles busy. The Applicant further testified that their current business was steady, from long standing clients and the result of a good work ethic. The Applicant expressed his surprise and disappointment at discovering that his son, who lives on his own, had deceived him about his driving record and stated that his son would never be allowed to drive for him again.

The Applicant went on to testify that the impoundment of one of the business's trucks had put a severe strain on the business's ability to perform for its clients and the business was in jeopardy of losing some of its delivery contracts. He further stated that while many of his customers were sympathetic to his loss they had goods that needed to be shipped under contract and they could not wait for him to get his business back in order.

The Applicant also stated that he had investigated replacing the impounded vehicle with a rental unit but concluded that the operating costs (rental fee, insurance, fuel and driver) were far too expensive and would mean that he would be losing money daily and he needed this money to support his family.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of 1343185 Ontario Inc. as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Christopher Paul Carrillo;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving with more than 80 mgs

Alcohol in Blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until August 22, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis of exceptional hardship?

Section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act provides for an appeal on this basis and Section 22(3)(a), (b), (c) and (d) provide very specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment and it is the Tribunal's opinion that the Applicant did provide sufficient evidence to support his appeal. The Tribunal is satisfied that the Applicant examined all reasonable options with regards to using an alternative vehicle and that the Applicant's business has suffered losses that are immediate, significant and lasting. The impact of these losses will be upon the Applicant's business and in as much as he is self employed the losses will adversely affect him and his family.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Ontario Historical Society ("OHS" and the "Applicant") pursuant to Section 10 of the Cemeteries Act (Revised) (the "Act") respecting an Order to Close Part of the St. Alban's Cemetery dated June 8, 2001 (the "Order") made by the Registrar, Cemeteries Act (the "Registrar" and the "Respondent").

The Order states the following:

THEREFORE IT IS ORDERED, pursuant to Section 9(1) of the Cemeteries Act (Revised) that St. Alban's Cemetery, part of the west half of Lot 27, Concession 7, Township of Albion, Town of Caledon, and more specifically identified as Lots 3 and 4 of the Plan of Subdivision of the Village of Palgrave, Region of Peel, Province of Ontario is closed, save and except for the part situated on the northwest corner of the cemetery that is sufficient in size to retain all of the human remains and their associated artifacts and grave goods that remain in the entirety of the cemetery, in the same style of burial that they are currently in (i.e. single interment to be retained as single interment, multiple interments to be retained as multiple interments, etc.) and that the minimum size to be retained as cemetery is the size proposed by the owner, 25' by 25'".

The Order further specifies that the location, the disinterment and the re-interment of human remains is to be done by skilled, experienced, and licensed archaeologists. No forensic or scientific analysis of the human remains, the associated artifacts, and the grave goods is to be permitted.

St. Alban's Cemetery is inactive. A church building remains on the grounds.

PRELIMINARY MATTER:

The Tribunal was concerned that witnesses may change their testimony upon hearing the evidence of others. Thus, the Tribunal ordered the exclusion from the hearing room of witnesses other than experts and parties.

FACTS:

The evidence presented by the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Michael D'Mello, Registrar, Cemeteries Act, Heather Broadbent, David Ostler, and Bonni Glencross as well as documentary evidence introduced through them. Testimony of the Venerable Archdeacon Huskins, retired Rev. Canon Donald Bone, and Gordon Barr together with documentary evidence introduced through them constituted evidence on behalf of the Added Parties. The Applicant's evidence consisted of the testimony of Dorothy Duncan, Marjorie Stuart, Paul Johnston, and Dr. Douglas Leighton and evidence introduced through them.

Michael D'Mello, Registrar, Cemeteries Act

Mr. D'Mello was a police officer from 1976 to 1987 and an investigator for the Ministry of Consumer and Business Services from 1994 to May 2001. In May and June of 2001, he job-shadowed the preceding Registrar, Cora dela Cruz. Mr. D'Mello has been Registrar since June 1, 2001. He issued the Order, exhibit 1, on June 8, 2001, after reviewing the file and discussing the matter with his predecessors.

On August 21, 1996, the Registrar received a Notice of Intention to Apply for an Order to Close a Cemetery from St. Alban's church, as shown at tab 21 of exhibit 6.

Mr. D'Mello stated that notice of the intention to make the Order was given in the manner and to the persons prescribed. His staff advised him that such was the case. The initial notice stated that the entire cemetery was to be closed.

Tab 21 of exhibit 6 contains a letter from Isabella Hyndman, Church Warden, St. Alban's Anglican Church, asking the Ontario Gazette to publish the first notice. Exhibit 29 contains a copy of the notice published in the Ontario Gazette. Tab 33 of exhibit 7 is a letter dated October 17, 1996, from Isabella Hyndman stating that a notice was published in the Ontario Gazette and for two consecutive weeks in The Caledon Citizen. An invoice from the Caledon Citizen for a "display Aug. 21 & 28" is enclosed. Ms. Hyndman also says that the notice was posted at the entrance to the cemetery.

Tab 41 of exhibit 7 contains a letter dated November 1996 from Coira dela Cruz, Deputy Registrar, Cemeteries Act, stating that the notice that is posted at the entrance to the cemetery, being 8 ½" by 14", is too small to be conspicuous and advising that a sign of 4' by 4' at that location would be conspicuous. A notice of 12' by 4' was posted on December 13, 1996, as stated at tab 43 of exhibit 7.

On February 28, 1997, a public meeting was held in Palgrave to discuss the application to close the cemetery.

In about 1997 Gordon Barr purchased the cemetery lands.

Notification of the intention to order the closure of the cemetery was sent by a registered mail letter from Cora dela Cruz, A/Registrar, dated July 20, 2000, set out at tab 26 of exhibit 8. It was sent to the Town of Caledon, the municipality in which the cemetery is located, Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee, Downsview, ON, the Ontario Historical Society, the Ontario Archaeological Society, the Ontario Genealogical Society, but not to the Archives of Ontario or the Minister of Culture and Communications. A Cemetery Closure Application Summary Sheet, tab 39 of exhibit 7, shows to whom notice was sent. Copies of various registered mail receipts are provided. The letter of July 20, 2000, states, "If you intend to make submissions, please forward them...before August 15, 2000."

On August 18, 2000, Gordon Barr submitted an Application to Close a Cemetery, tab 34 of exhibit 9, substantially repeating information in the Application to Close a Cemetery of St. Alban's Church.

By letter dated January 26, 2001, Gordon Barr advised the Registrar that he wishes to provide the option of closing only part of the cemetery. That option was chosen. Mr. D'Mello testified that no new Application to Close a Cemetery for closure of only part of the cemetery was required because the change in area being closed was not significant enough.

A second notification was sent by Cora Dela Cruz, A/Registrar, on February 26, 2001, tab 50 of exhibit 9. It was sent to the same parties as on June 20, 2000, as shown by the list at tab 26 of exhibit 8. Copies of various registered mail receipts are at tab 1 of exhibit 10. This second notification letter proposes that a portion of the cemetery, 25' by 25', is to remain open. The letter invites submissions as follows: "If you intend to make submissions, please forward your submissions in writing to the attention of the Registrar on or before March 15, 2001."

Written submissions were received from Alan Potts of Toronto, who objected to the closing of the cemetery, as shown in letter dated June 26, 1997, at tab 5 of exhibit 8; Rita Reid of Bolton, who expressed no objection to moving the remains of her uncle to Morningside Cemetery, as stated at tab 26 of exhibit 7; the Ontario Historical Society, tabs 6 and 19 of exhibit 8; the Ontario Genealogical Society, tab 29 of exhibit 7 and tab 7 of exhibit 8; Marjorie Stuart, tabs 8 and 18 of exhibit 8; the Halton-Peel Branch of the Ontario Genealogical Society, tab 10 of exhibit 8; the Ontario Archaeological Society, tab 25 of exhibit 6; the Diocese of Toronto, Anglican Church of Canada, tab 1 of exhibit 8 and tab 42 of exhibit 9; Michael Reed, Counsel for Gordon Barr, tab 44 of exhibit 7; Catherine Bray, Counsel for the Ontario Historical Society, tab 37 of exhibit 9 and tab 37 of exhibit 9; as well as Glenn Barr on behalf of Gordon Barr, tab 20 of exhibit 8, tabs 41 and 44 of exhibit 9. Mr. D'Mello testified that he took into account all submissions before making the Order.

The letter from Canon Bone of the Diocese dated October 17, 2000, tab 42 of exhibit 9, states the following:

While there have been many arguments put forward as to why the cemetery should be closed and why it should not, one thing that seems to have been forgotten here is that the cemetery was supposed to have been closed in the 1920's. This was between seventy and eighty years ago!...The Church has a strong desire to complete the closure...

The Registrar also reviewed and considered the St. Alban's Anglican Church & Cemetery Assessment (the "Assessment") prepared by Bonnie Glencross and Karla Bondy, tab 48 of exhibit 7; the unsigned draft Site Plan Agreement among the Town of Caledon, the Regional Municipality of Peel, and Gordon Barr, tab 20 of exhibit 8; and letters from the Town of Caledon, tab 49 of exhibit 7 and tab 9 of exhibit 8. The letter from the town dated March 3, 1997, states, "The fact that burials have been relocated from this cemetery in the past regrettably makes it a poor candidate for preservation. Consequently this office and the heritage advisory committee to Council, after due consideration, did not have an objection to this closing." The July 2, 1997, letter from the town adds the following:

It is with some relief that the Town of Caledon now hears that the owner has proposed that the entire cemetery will be closed at this location, and that all remaining and previous grave sites will be identified, evaluated and if necessary, excavated and re-interred. I am pleased to inform you that the municipality is much happier with this arrangement than previous scenarios.

Mr. D'Mello also considered the Act, regulations under the Act and the Ontario Historical Society (Re), a decision of the Licence Appeal Tribunal released February 24, 1999, (the "Clendennen Decision"). He concluded that closure of part of the cemetery is in the public interest. Mr. D'Mello states in the Order, exhibit 1, that such closure will,

- result in a reorganization of human remains remaining in the cemetery and enable land that will no longer be used for cemetery purposes to be used for other purposes.
- result in the remaining cemetery lands being better marked and more readily identified and commemorated by future generations;
- ensure that the cemetery, although reduced in size, will continue to be in the same location, more visible and accessible to the public and properly cared for and maintained; and
- will result in the restoration and preservation of the historical church structure and the designation under the Ontario Heritage Act;

Exhibit 1 includes a list of recipients of the Order. A copy was sent to the LACAC to a Downview, Ontario address. No copy of the Decision was sent to Mr. Potts of Toronto, although he sent a letter opposing closure of the cemetery, tab 5 of exhibit 8.

Mr. D'Mello testified that he received no new information that would now persuade him to make a different order.

St. Alban's Cemetery has no interment rights holders.

Heather Broadbent

Ms. Broadbent's curriculum vitae appears at tab 16 of exhibit 11. She was the president of the Ontario Historical Society from 1982 to 1983 and remains a member. She was also chair of the Caledon Heritage Committee and LACAC from 1981 to 2000. Further, Ms. Broadbent has been Heritage Resource Officer for the Town of Caledon, as a volunteer for eleven years and as an employee for an additional fourteen years. Her position with the town included looking after the town's cemeteries. The Tribunal accepted Ms. Broadbent as an expert in heritage resources for the Town of Caledon, including Palgrave.

Heather Broadbent personally attended St. Alban's Church. She is familiar with the cemetery.

St. Alban's church was constructed in 1882. The cemetery may have been used even earlier. Burials at the cemetery stopped in 1919 during a typhoid outbreak. It was thought that dead bodies could cause the disease. In the 1960s a Sunday school on stilts was added. Still later, a little building containing a kitchen and a washroom was added to the Sunday school. In the eighties, a septic system was put in with the septic field installed about three to four feet below ground. Services at St. Alban's Church ceased in the 1990s. The Sunday school was used until 1995 or 1996. Past members of the church continued to look after the grounds. On occasion, Ms. Broadbent picked up empty beer bottles on the site.

The church building remains on the lands. Heather Broadbent described it as a local landmark that is not terribly significant architecturally. She knows of no other cemetery that had a septic field installed.

Ms. Broadbent testified that another cemetery in Palgrave had buried bodies removed and reinterred elsewhere.

Heather Broadbent believes that the construction on the site proposed by Gordon Barr would not affect the value of the cemetery as a historical resource. Ms. Broadbent supports the Registrar's Order.

David Ostler

Mr. Ostler has been the City Solicitor for the Town of Caledon since 1981. The Tribunal accepted him as an expert in planning law.

Before 1989 the Palgrave area was not zoned. In 1989, while the Diocese owned the cemetery, the site was zoned institutional. In June 1996, the town received a rezoning application from Gordon Barr to allow the existing church to be converted to a commercial building for the purposes of a business office and dwelling unit. The construction of an addition on the north side of the church was also proposed.

Planning staff recommended approval of the application subject to site plan approval and the owner fulfilling the requirement of the Act for the relocation of graves, as set out at tab 14 of exhibit 11. The planning comments state, "since the existing building and the addition are proposed to be designed with the merits of the existing heritage features of the building, the building and addition will be in keeping with the existing development of the area and the existing church on the property."

In reviewing the rezoning application, the Caledon Heritage Committee, the LACAC, and the Heritage Resource Office at tab 4 of exhibit 12, "expressed support for the application as it provided for the retention of the historic church, and addressed the existence of the unknown number of burials under the Provincial Regulations of the Cemetery Act."

In October 1996, a zoning by-law, tab 6 of exhibit 12, was passed changing the zoning of the site to village commercial. No appeals were made to the rezoning by-law, as stated at tab 14 of exhibit 11. Tab 13 of exhibit 11 sets out the uses permitted in a Village Commercial Zone. Allowed non-residential uses include a business office, a parking lot, a professional office, and a retail store. An accessory residence is also permitted.

The proposed building of an addition on the site triggered the site plan process. The Town of Caledon had a draft Site Plan Agreement, tab 20 of exhibit 8, prepared by an outside solicitor. The draft agreement among Gordon Barr, the Town of Caledon and the Regional Municipality of Peel assumed that the entire cemetery would be closed. The usual procedure would be for Gordon Barr to sign the agreement first. Mr. Ostler has not seen a copy of the agreement with Mr. Barr's signature on it.

The Site Plan, exhibit 26, shows the church building, the proposed addition, the proposed garage, and the existing septic tank tile system at the back of the church. The zoning by-law required six parking spaces to be included.

The draft Site Plan Agreement (the "Draft"), tab 20 of exhibit 8, required Mr. Barr to gratuitously convey to the region a five metre road widening. He did so. The five metres extend over the part of the cemetery that the Registrar proposes be retained on the site. Mr. Ostler testified that the region wanted the five metres of land to conform to its official plan. The Draft requires that prior to issuance of building permits for the addition, the cemetery be closed. It also states that Mr. Barr agrees to apply to have the church building designated pursuant to the Ontario Heritage Act. Mr. Ostler said that Mr. Barr wanted that clause included. He added that the town cannot deal with architectural details in a site plan agreement. The Draft also requires the owner of the site to maintain the buildings on the lands in a good state of repair and to maintain the exterior of the buildings in a reasonably clean and tidy condition. Mr. Ostler called those requirements pretty standard.

The site is about 1,500 square meters. It is surrounded by a single-family residential development to the north, south and east. Highway 50, a regional road, lies to the west. On the west side of the highway are buildings used for commercial and residential uses. Municipal water is available via a water main on Highway 50. Municipal sanitary sewer service is not available at the site. There is a three-foot-high concrete retaining wall at the front of the property that constrains access. The Town of Caledon has no requirement or parking for the cemetery. Street parking is available in front of the site.

Bonnie Glencross

Ms. Glencross obtained a Master of Arts in Anthropology in 1992. She is now a Ph. D. Candidate at the Department of Anthropology of the University of Toronto. The Tribunal accepted Ms. Glen-cross as an expert in archival research.

Bonnie Glencross is the senior of the two authors of the St. Alban's Anglican Church & Cemetery Assessment (the "Assessment"), tab 48, exhibit 7. The Assessment was undertaken on behalf of the St. Alban's Church wardens.

Two stone markers at St. Alban's for James Rowley and John E. Rowley are the only visible physical evidence of interments still present. Both markers have been moved.

Upon consulting various sources, including the Beeton and Tottenham, St. Alban the Martyr Palgrave Parish Register and Baptisms, Marriages, Burials, Christ Church Bolton, the authors of the Assessment prepared a list of thirty possible burials at St. Alban's Cemetery. Ms. Glencross admitted that there could be other burials that were not listed in the sources.

The Assessment quotes Perkins Bull's 1937 book From Strachan to Owen as follows: "In the eighties [1880s] complaints were made that wells in the neighbourhood were being polluted." The Assessment continues, "In 1890 an inquiry was made by the Board of Health but, no decision was reached. Use of the cemetery continued until 1925 when Morningside Cemetery was purchased. Shortly after, the majority of interments were removed..."

To confirm removal and relocation, the authors of the Assessment checked each name on their burial list against various records. Dates of birth and dates of death were also checked.

The Assessment concludes, "From our original burial list of thirty interments, we have confirmation of burial elsewhere for fifteen persons and three (Lipsett's) that are thought to have likely never been buried at St. Alban's. This leaves us with twelve burials that we cannot locate at other cemeteries in the area and, that are possibly still buried at St. Alban's."

Ms. Glencross testified that there was conflicting information about removal of one corpse and that person's name was left on their list of burials possibly still at St. Alban's Cemetery.

Venerable Archdeacon Harry Huskins

The Tribunal accepted Archdeacon Huskins as an expert in Anglican canon law, custom and usage, including the Anglican tradition regarding cemeteries. His curriculum vitae appears at tab 1 of exhibit 12.

The Archdeacon's testimony primarily relates to the time period in question, 1880 to 1930. The church building and the churchyard were consecrated separately. No differentiation was made between the part of the churchyard that would be used as a cemetery and the other part. The words of the consecration, "And we do pronounce, decree, and declare that the said land shall remain so consecrated, set apart, and dedicated for ever...", are a declaration of intent, not a binding obligation. They are analogous to the words "as long as you shall live" in a marriage ceremony. Deconsecrating of a burial ground exists.

Anglican canon law, custom, and usage allow the sale of cemetery lands as well as their partial closure. Such partial closure, narrowing, was not uncommon.

Burial has never been deemed final. Very simply, a trustee relationship, a moral trust, is created. In good stewardship, both corpses and monuments may be moved. Tombstones were considered to be property of whoever erected them and of the heirs at law; however, the church had power to move or destroy them. In canon law, corpses belong to no one.

Rev. Canon Donald Robert Bone, Retired

Canon Bone had been a parish priest for over twenty-four years. From 1987 to 2001, he was Director of Planning and Development for the Diocese. He looked after buildings, property, planning for growth or lack of growth, opening and closing of churches, and the demolition of unused churches.

St. Alban's was brought to Canon Bone's attention when the local rector, the parish priest, approached him.

Canon Bone directed the rector to speak to the bishop. An attempt was then made to understand why people were not coming to St. Alban's. Demographics of the area were examined.

St. Alban's Cemetery was not on the list of cemeteries of the Diocese. There was no perpetual care fund for the cemetery.

It is common to close a church. Both the vestry, the members of the local church, and the diocese must approve a sale. An approval to close and sell is only an approval in principle. When an offer to purchase is received, it also must be approved by the vestry and the diocese. Proceeds from the sale go to the parish.

Many attempts were made to sell the St. Alban's church property (the "Property"). The Diocese advised the Inter-Church Regional Planning Association of the availability of the Property, but no other religious organization was interested. The vestry offered the Property for sale through a local real estate agent and it was listed with MLS.

Without a sale the condition of the church building would decline. The property would likely be vandalized. Eventually, the church building would have to be demolished.

In March 1996, an offer to purchase the Property was received from Gordon Barr. An agreement of purchase and sale (the "APS"), tab 13 of exhibit 8, calling for relocation of all graves off the Property was entered into. In due course, the agreement was approved by the vestry and the Diocese. As shown at tab 5 of exhibit 12, endless amendments were made to the APS. At the time that the application for closure of the cemetery was changed to request partial closure only, the vestry no longer existed. The congregation had dispersed to other churches. Only the St. Alban's Churchwardens existed and they had asked the Diocese to take over the Property. In 1998 the sale of the Property to Gordon Barr closed. $9,000.00 was paid on closing in addition to a $1,000.00 deposit. An additional $15,000.00 is to be paid when graves are removed. At closing, the Incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Toronto granted to Mr. Barr a $55,000.00 mortgage on the Property. According to its original terms that mortgage matured December 3, 2000; however, the Diocese continues to hold a mortgage on the Property.

Canon Bone urged the closing of the St. Alban's Cemetery to "finish the job" as previously stated in his letter at tab 42 of exhibit 9.

Gordon Barr

Mr. Barr is a construction estimator and the manager of a construction company. He is close to retirement. Mr. Barr was born in 1935, as shown in exhibit 32.

Gordon Barr is a former member of the vestry of St. Alban's. He purchased the Property because he loves the church building and the Property is located on a main road where he can get business off the street. Mr. Barr wants to build a home and a garage on the Property. He wants to fix up the church and to open an office and, perhaps, a flower or antique shop.

Mr. Barr made the original offer to purchase the Property, tab 13 of exhibit 8, in 1996. Tab 5 of exhibit 12 contains all the amendments to the offer to purchase. He became the owner in 1998. The deed appears at tab 28 of exhibit 8. The mortgage granted to him by the vendor appears at tab 8 of exhibit 13. Mr. Barr confirmed the terms of the purchase stated by Mr. Bone. He clarified that $15,000.00 is to be paid by the purchaser when the graves are moved off the property because the expected cost of doing so is about $15,000.00 to $20,000.00, as shown in Exhibit 28. Mr. Barr knows that he took a risk in purchasing the Property with an unclosed cemetery. As set out in exhibit 32, on closing of the purchase, he received an undertaking from the Diocese to remove all graves within one year.

Mr. Barr purchased the Property to be able to enter into a Site Plan Agreement. He has not returned a signed copy of the Site Plan Agreement, tab 20 of exhibit 8, to the municipality, because a $4,000.00 cheque must accompany it and the graves on the Property have not been relocated. An unsigned copy of the Site Plan Agreement was forwarded to the Registrar.

In 1999 or 2000 Mr. Barr took down the sign of the Notice of Intention to Apply for an Order to Close a Cemetery. He has removed the Sunday school building from the Property. Tab 9 of exhibit 12 shows the Property as it looked in about 1996. Tab 10 of exhibit 12 contains photographs of the Property taken in the spring of 2000.

The church building has no plumbing. Mr. Barr lives in Oakville. He maintains the cemetery by cutting the grass and keeping it tidy. If the cemetery is partially closed, he plans to build a small monument on the Property.

Gordon Barr sent in a Notice of Business/New Officer or Director Change Under the Cemeteries Act to the Registrar. He has not applied for an inactive cemetery licence. He has not made annual filings under the Act. He is therefore not in compliance with the Cemeteries Act.

Mr. Barr believes that a partial closure of the cemetery as set out in the Order is in the public interest.

Dorothy Duncan

Ms. Duncan was a teacher. More recently, she was active in museum and heritage organizations.

Ms. Duncan was Executive Director of the Ontario Historical Society from 1982 to 2002, and remains a Life Member of the OHS. From 1980 to 1982 she was the Supervisor of the Museums Section of the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture. From 1975 to 1980 she was a Museums Advisor to the Province of Ontario. Ms. Duncan was also Chair of the Ontario Heritage Foundation from 1991 to 1994. She was a Governor of Heritage Canada from 1985 to 1991. Dorothy Duncan received an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from the University of Waterloo in 1996.

Ms. Duncan was accepted as an expert in heritage matters, cemeteries, and the public interest regarding heritage and cemeteries. In weighing her testimony, the Tribunal undertook to take into account that her expertise is greatest in heritage matters and least in the area of public interest regarding heritage and cemeteries.

Ms. Duncan argued that cemeteries are a heritage resource, an educational, historical, artistic, and cultural resource. She referred extensively to a Policy Statement issued under the Planning Act, tab 16 of exhibit 14, in support of the proposition that conservation of significant cultural heritage resources is important. Ms. Duncan argued that to move a cemetery is to destroy it.

Cemeteries can be used as a teaching aid. The art forms on stones, the designs and markings, can be examined. The birth dates and dates of death of the deceased are especially helpful where municipal records have been destroyed. The notations of what the deceased died of can also provide clues about epidemics. On the Property resources include the church, one monument, the size of the plots and the original positions of cornerstones.

Dorothy Duncan knew St. Alban's Cemetery in a general way when she was Director of the Peel County Museum and Art Gallery. She first visited the cemetery after she received notice of the application to close it. She walked through the cemetery and took some photographs. Ms. Duncan has never visited the near-by Morningside Cemetery to which the Registrar originally had proposed moving graves.

Ms. Duncan is familiar with the St. Alban's Anglican Church and Cemetery Assessment at tab 48 of exhibit 7. Ms. Duncan asserted that there is no evidence that bodies were moved out of St. Alban's cemetery.

She argued that the burial ceremony in the Anglican Book of Common Prayer contains the word forever and that people expected to remain buried in St. Alban's cemetery forever. She emphasized that when a cemetery has been moved in Ontario many more remains were found than anyone expected.

Dorothy Duncan argued that closing even a part of the St. Alban's Cemetery is not in the public interest. There is no health or safety issue.

Closing this cemetery would open the door to development on cemetery lands throughout the province.

Ms. Duncan commented on the reasons for partly closing St. Alban's Cemetery set out by the Registrar on page 3 of the Order, exhibit 1. The use of the Property as a cemetery is sufficient. There is no reason for it to be used for any other purpose. The church building could be used as an office, a bookstore, a dress shop, a hair dresser shop, or headquarters for a business or nonprofit organization. Reorganization of human remains is not desirable.

"We do not know what portion of the Property was used as a cemetery. Moving graves to a corner of the Property may move them out of the cemetery grounds. It will not make them more visible or accessible. The cemetery is sufficiently accessible now. Putting in a plaque and a chain around moved graves will not improve things. The Act itself requires proper care and maintenance of a cemetery."

Designating the church structure under the Ontario Heritage Act will provide limited protection. If the municipality does not purchase a designated structure within one hundred eighty days of being advised of the owner's intention to demolish it then the owner may destroy it.

Marjorie Stuart

Ms. Stuart is a member of the Ontario Historical Society and the Ontario Genealogical Society. She is the editor of the "Cemetery News" column in the bi-monthly OHS Bulletin. Ms. Duncan was accepted as an expert by the Tribunal in connection with the Ontario Historical Society (Re) decision released February 24, 1999.

While counsel for the OHS attempted to qualify Marjorie Stuart as an expert in cemeteries, the value of cemeteries to the community, the public interest regarding cemeteries, and genealogy Ms. Stuart stated that she considers herself to be an advocate for the Ontario Historical Society on this issue, the closure of St. Alban's Cemetery. Marjorie Stuart's statement is reasonable based on the facts. Ms. Stuart had sent a letter to the Registrar opposing closure of the cemetery, tab 18 of exhibit 8.

Counsel for the Ontario Historical Society at this hearing had represented Ms. Stuart in this matter, as shown in letter at tab 5 of exhibit 10.

The Tribunal did not accept Ms. Stuart as an expert. An advocate cannot be an expert. An expert should be impartial and objective.

Although Ms. Stuart does not have formal training in the area, she appears to be knowledgeable in the field. Thus, the Tribunal admitted her testimony.

Ms. Stuart stated that cemeteries are a cultural and heritage resource. They have very special meaning for descendants. They are valuable to historians, members of the community, school groups, and genealogists. The trees, the location of plantings, the types of stones making up the monuments and the tombstone inscriptions and markings are all valuable.

Ms. Stuart was aware of the St. Alban's Anglican Church and Cemetery Assessment at tab 48 of exhibit 7 when she researched past removal of remains from the Property. She consulted the same sources as the authors of the Assessment as well as additional materials. She found that Morningside Cemetery records said that only two graves were moved there from St. Albans. Ms. Stuart concluded that only two bodies were moved out of St. Alban's Cemetery.

James Rowley is the name of the deceased on a monument at the Property. Ms. Stuart and her team started looking for his descendants in the fall of 2001. She did not start earlier because of other commitments. She did not look for descendants of others identified by the Assessment as possibly still buried at the Property.

James Rowley died in Simcoe County, but he asked to be buried at St. Alban's in Palgrave. Ms. Stuart met Ron Rowley, a descendant of James Rowley, at the cemetery. Ron Rowley was shocked and horrified that the remains of James Rowley may be moved. Ms. Stuart located descendants of James Rowley in Alberta and British Columbia. She had spoken to two of them, Robert Charles Rowley and James E. Rowley, as well as Darlene Rowley, the wife of James. They were distressed to hear that the remains of their ancestor may be moved. Neither has ever been to Palgrave.

Ms. Stuart argued that any closing of St. Alban's cemetery is not in the public interest. There is no public safety or public health reason. Religious beliefs of the buried and of the community should be respected. There would be destruction of a cultural and heritage resource. The implication of closing the cemetery would be unfavourable for other cemetery closures. If the cemetery is partially closed, remains may be moved to a location that is not part of the cemetery.

Ms. Stuart commented on the reasons for partially closing St. Alban's Cemetery set out by the Registrar on page 3 of the Order. The Property is in use now. It is a cemetery. Restoration of the church structure will not affect the cemetery. Delineating the plots and building an appropriate marker would be nice, but is not important. The cemetery is where it has been and should remain there. The cemetery must be properly maintained anyway. There is access to the cemetery now. Being able to build an addition on the property should not be a factor.

Paul Johnston

Mr. Johnston has appeared as an expert before the Ontario Municipal Board. His curriculum vitae is exhibit 16. The Tribunal accepted Paul Johnston as an expert in land use planning.

Mr. Johnston referred to various planning documents in support of the proposition that one of the goals of land use planning is preservation of significant, important, or unique heritage resources. One of the objectives of the Town of Caledon Official Plan, tab 18 of exhibit 14, is to ensure that development within settlements, such as Palgrave, has regard for cultural heritage resources. One of the goals of the Official Plan is to preserve and protect important cultural heritage resources and provide for the stewardship of these resources.

Paul Johnston testified that the public gets no notice of a Site Plan Agreement and that such an agreement is not enforceable by the public

Mr. Johnston argued that there is nothing crying out for changing the current use of the Property as a cemetery. The site is small and the return from movement of graves would be limited. The Property is not in a central urban area where one wants efficient use of land.

Mr. Johnston was not sure whether a municipal sanitary sewer runs along the site. He argued that a septic system would have to be put in, probably with a reserve bed. Apparently, he did not know that a septic system exists on the Property. He stated that after a septic system and a dwelling are put in, the Property could not be used for other purposes.

Paul Johnston concluded that the use of the Property as a cemetery is its best use and preservation of its present use is in the public interest. The change proposed in the Order is not good land use planning.

Dr. Douglas Leighton

Dr. Leighton has taught history at university level since 1967. Occasionally, he also taught university theology courses. He is an Anglican priest and is active in parish ministry.

He has not taught courses on cemeteries, but did take a course on death and dying. From 1986 to 1988, Dr. Leighton was president of the Ontario Historical Society.

The Tribunal accepted Dr. Leighton as an expert in Canadian history, comparative Christian religions regarding death rites and rituals, Anglican religion and process, first nations, Anglican custom and usage, Anglican tradition regarding cemeteries, and the historical value of cemeteries.

Dr. Leighton testified that Anglicans had a literal view of the resurrection of the dead at the time that the cemetery was active. People took bodily integrity seriously and attempted to bury all body parts together. Moving graves was almost never done. People were afraid that they would appear before God in an incomplete way. On cross-examination, Dr. Leighton answered that it is quite possible that Anglicans had a less literal view of resurrection than some other denominations.

Dr. Leighton admitted that he is not an expert in canon law. He did not disagree with statements of canon law that had been made by Archdeacon Huskins. Dr. Leighton agreed that the church has power to alter or to move monuments. He admitted that the interpretation by Archdeacon Huskins of for ever in a ceremony as being an expression of intent only may be correct, but he added that such would not be the understanding of the common parishioner.

Dr. Leighton suggested such uses for the church building as a gift shop, a tearoom, or a heritage tourism office.

Dr. Leighton granted that a cemetery could be closed for a public safety reason, such as desire to widen a road.

Dr. Douglas Leighton opposed the partial closing of St. Alban's cemetery. He stated that the desired places in the cemetery would be away from the road, not close to it. He testified that if the Order were carried out bodies "would be stacked up like cord-wood".

Diane Clendenan

Ms. Clendenan was a teacher in kindergarten before she retired. Recently, she obtained a Bachelor's Degree in Sociology. She has been active in genealogy and family history studies since 1977. Exhibit 36 is her curriculum vitae. Diane Clendenan was accepted by the Tribunal as an expert in genealogy, family history and the transcription of cemeteries.

Ms. Clendenan had visited fifty to sixty cemeteries in Ontario. She described St. Alban's cemetery as at the lower end of the scale in terms of upkeep.

The main monument on the Property is that of James Rowley. Ms. Clendenan traced his descendants. Great grandchildren of the deceased were located. Robert Charles Rowley of Alberta and James Rowley of British Columbia, as well as his wife Darlene, were not in favour of moving the remains of their ancestor.

The unsworn affidavit of James E. Rowley and his wife Darlene Rowley, apparently received by Counsel on or about November 26, is exhibit 34. The Affidavit of Robert Charles Rowley sworn November 15, 2002, is exhibit 35. Counsel for the Added Parties filed a Notice of Motion to exclude the two documents from evidence. The Tribunal heard the motion on December 9, 2002.

Rule 6.3 of the Rules of Practice of the Licence Appeal Tribunal states the following:

Except for the report of an expert witness to which Rule 6.4 applies or expedited hearings to which Rule 6.5 applies or where a document or thing is to be used by a party solely for the purpose of the cross-examination of another party or another party's witness, a party to a hearing shall at least 10 days before the hearing:

(1) Disclose to all other parties the existence of every document and thing that the party will refer to or tender as evidence at the hearing and shall deliver a copy of such documents to the other parties, ...

Exhibits 34 and 35 were not submitted ten days before the start of the hearing in accordance with the Rules of Practice. The Tribunal rejects the argument of Counsel for the OHS that at least 10 days before the hearing in Rule 6.3 refers to ten days before the continuation of the hearing. The words of the rule are plain. According to prior testimony, the OHS started to look for descendants in the fall of 2001. No reasonable excuse has been given for not providing statements from descendants earlier.

By Rule 2.7 the Tribunal may waive any of its Rules of Practice. Although the contents of the documents have not been subjected to cross-examination, the Tribunal has heard testimony from Marjorie Stuart that James E. Rowley, Darlene Rowley, and Robert Charles Rowley oppose moving the remains of James Rowley. Thus, the Tribunal accepted the documents, exhibits 34 and 35, as evidence that the authors oppose the relocation of the remains of James Rowley and for no other purpose.

Ms. Clendenan found the will of James Rowley. Although he died away from Palgrave, he wanted to be buried at St. Alban's Cemetery and to have a monument erected.

Even though Ms. Clendenan was looking for descendants rather than investigating the number of bodies moved from St. Alban's Cemetery, she concluded that not many people were relocated.

Ms. Clendenan stated that moving bodies from the St. Alban's Cemetery is not in the public interest. The cemetery is part of the identity of Palgrave. James Rowley wanted to be buried at St. Alban's and his descendants do not want his body moved. People have a right to remain where they were buried.

CASELAW:

The leading case in this area is Ontario Historical Society (Re) released by the Ontario Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal on February 24, 1999 (the "Clendennen Decision"). The Tribunal found, as set out in paragraph 430 of the decision, that the notice contemplated under subsection 8(3)(a) of the Act was not given by the owner. Subsection 8(3) of the Act provides that the Registrar shall not make an order closing a cemetery until notice under subsection 8(3)(a) is given. Thus, the Tribunal held that the Registrar's order with respect to the closing of the cemetery should be set aside.

The Tribunal went on to consider whether closing the cemetery is in the public interest. The decision states in paragraph 452 that "public interest" means the best possible accommodation of all interests and purposes of the Act. It continues in paragraph 453, "the Act's context, objects and purposes provide a guide to the Tribunal in determining the meaning of 'public interest' under the Act." The Tribunal concluded that compliance with the Act, maintenance of the cemetery, safety of the public, and preservation of the dignity, quiet and good order of the cemetery are all elements of the public interest to be considered. Since there was noncompliance with the Act, the Tribunal held that the closing of the cemetery is not in the public interest.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal finds that there has not been compliance with the Cemeteries Act (Revised).

Subsection 8(3)(a) of the Act requires notice of the intention to make the Order to be given in prescribed manner before the Order is made. Subsection 49(4) of Ontario Regulation 130/92 made under the Act (the "Regulation") requires notice to be conspicuously posted on a sign at the entrance to the cemetery before publication of the notice. The Tribunal finds that the notice was published in The Caledon Citizen on August 21 and August 28, 1996. The notice was first conspicuously posted much later, on December 13, 1996. Clearly, there has not been compliance with subsection 49(4) of the Regulation.

Subsection 49(3) of the Regulation requires that notice required to be made under subsection 8(3)(a) of the Act be sent by registered mail to specified parties including the Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee (LACAC). Both the July 20, 2000, notice and that of February 26, 2001, were sent to the LACAC at an incorrect address. However, the notices were also sent to the Heritage Resource Officer and counsel for the OHS conceded that such notice would have reached the LACAC. On the basis of the evidence including registered mail receipts and the testimony of the Registrar, the Tribunal finds that notice was properly sent to the other parties specified in subsection 49(3) of the Regulation. Thus, the Tribunal finds that there has been compliance with that subsection of the Regulation.

Subsection 8(3) of the Act further requires that interested persons be given the opportunity to make submissions to the Registrar within such time as is prescribed. Section 50 of the Regulation specifies that the time within which interested persons may make submissions to the Registrar is the later of forty-five days after the final notice is published or fifty days after the day on which the final notice is mailed under subsection 49(3) of the Act.

The notice of July 20, 2000, asked that submissions be forwarded before August 15, 2000, which is less than forty-five days after the final notice was published on August 28, 1996, and is less than fifty days after the notice was mailed. The notice of February 26, 2001, requested that submissions be forwarded before March 15, 2001, which is less than fifty days after that second, final notice was mailed. Some interested persons may have been discouraged from forwarding their submissions within the time period prescribed by the Regulation because the notice specified a shorter period. Since the notices failed to specify the correct time for making submissions, notice of intention to make the Order was not made in accordance with subsection 49(3) of the Regulation and subsection 8(3) of the Act.

Subsection 49(3) of the Act states, "the Registrar shall give every person who made a submission notice of the order and at the same time advise the person of the right of appeal".

The Registrar received a submission dated June 26, 1997, from Mr. Alan Potts of Toronto that opposes closure of St. Alban's Cemetery. The first notice of July 20, 2000, asked for submissions to be forwarded before August 15, 2000. Therefore, the submission by Mr. Potts was timely. No additional submission was received from Mr. Potts and no evidence was presented that he knew of the Order or his right to appeal it to this Tribunal. Notice is fundamental. Since the Registrar did not send Mr. Potts notice, he was deprived of his right to a hearing. This serious noncompliance with the Act is sufficient by itself for the Tribunal to find that the Registrar's Order is not correct and is not reasonable.

The Tribunal makes the following additional observations:

Subsection 8(2) of the Act states: "The Registrar may order a cemetery closed if the closing is in the public interest." The Tribunal agrees with the Clendennen Decision that compliance with the Act is an important element of the public interest to be considered. That aspect of the public interest has been dealt with above.

The Registrar considered the wishes of the community. The religious community, the vestry and the Diocese, agreed to close the cemetery. According to Canon Bone, tab 42 of exhibit 9, the cemetery was supposed to have been closed in the 1920s. The Tribunal finds on the evidence of Bonnie Glencross that the majority of interments were removed from St. Alban's Cemetery at that time.

Likewise, the local community wanted the cemetery to be at least partially closed. The Town of Caledon expressed relief and happiness with the proposal to close the entire cemetery in a letter dated July 1997, tab 9 of exhibit 8. The heritage value of the cemetery to the community has been considered.

The Caledon Heritage Committee writes at tab 49 of exhibit 7, "The fact that burials have been relocated from this cemetery in the past regrettably makes it a poor candidate for preservation." Rita Reid, a local descendant of a person interred at the cemetery, does not object to its closure. Heather Broadbent, a local resident, who is a past president of the Ontario Historical Society, also supports the Registrar's Order.

Counsel for the OHS argued that the Registrar must consider the closure from a Planning Act point of view. The Tribunal disagrees. Neither the Act nor the regulations specifically require such analysis. In any event, the Tribunal has the benefit of comments regarding the Site Plan made by the planning staff of the Town of Caledon: "the building and addition will be in keeping with the existing development of the area and the existing church on the property." The Town has people with expertise in this area and the Town does not oppose the Registrar's order.

James Rowley wanted to be buried at St. Alban's Cemetery. Several of his descendants expressed opposition to moving his remains.

Their position is understandable; however, the Tribunal agrees with the Clendennen Decision that the wishes of descendants is only one factor among many to be considered. Further, Archdeacon Huskins testified that it is not uncommon for an Anglican cemetery to be narrowed and that canon law allows human remains together with monuments to be moved.

Maintenance of the cemetery is a factor to be considered in determining the public interest. There is a septic field at the back of the Property. It is distressing that there probably are human remains buried under the septic system. The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar that there should be removal, reorganization, of such remains.

The Tribunal finds that the partial closing of the Cemetery involving the relocation of human remains and markers to a front corner of the Property is not in the public interest. That part is more likely subject to noise and physical disturbance. The dignity, quiet and good order of the cemetery are an important consideration.

Dr. Leighton testified that the desired places in the cemetery would be away from the road, not close to it. Mr. Ostler testified that the Regional Municipality of Peel wanted the front of the Property for a possible road widening. There is danger that human remains moved to the front portion of the Property would be disturbed in the future for a road widening in the interest of public safety.

In addition, section 14 of the Act requires the owner of a cemetery to be licensed. Mr. Barr does not hold the required licence; thus, he should not be entrusted with maintenance of a reduced cemetery on the Property. The Tribunal finds that it would be more in the public interest to close the entire St. Alban's Cemetery rather than a portion of it.

In summary, the Tribunal finds on the evidence that there has been noncompliance with the Act and further finds that the partial closing of St. Alban's Cemetery is not in the public interest. The Registrar's Order is not correct and is not reasonable.

If there were compliance with the Act, the Tribunal would have ordered the closing of the entire cemetery and relocation of human remains and markers to Morningside Cemetery, Palgrave.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 82 of the Cemeteries Act (Revised), the Tribunal directs the Registrar, Cemeteries Act, not to carry out his order of June 8, 2001, which orders closure of a part of St. Alban's Cemetery, Palgrave.

DATE OF HEARING: October 1, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

Background:

The Program by its decision of May 30, 2002 denied the claim for compensation by the Applicant as it related to 18 different items. The Applicant by his Notice of Appeal dated June 14, 2002 requested a hearing before the Tribunal. Attached to his Notice of Appeal was a copy of a letter dated November 22, 2001 entitled Response to ONHWP Conciliation Inspection Report. The builder, Ballymore Building (Oak Ridges) Corp. was added as an Added Party.

No pre hearing was held. There was a hearing scheduled for October 1, 2002. All the parties were in attendance at that time.

Issue:

Are there any breaches of warranty under the Ontario New Home Warranties Act?

Evidence:

The Applicant testified as to his complaints on each of the eighteen different claims, which had been denied by the Program.

He presented in evidence photographs taken by the Applicant on each of these claims. All the photographs were taken in September, 2002 prior to the date of hearing.

1. Pot Light Switches: Mr. Tankovitz testified that he had paid extra to have a number of pot lights installed in his house. He felt that each pot light should have its own switch. Instead the two pot lights in the master bedroom were on one switch; the two pot lights in the media loft were on one switch and the two pot lights in the front bedroom were on one switch. As well he had ordered a pot light for over the kitchen sink. It had been installed close to the bulb light with both being on the same switch. He had an electrician correct that situation. It was not possible to correct the switches for the pot lights in the other rooms. The builder had not responded to his requests in this matter and Mr. Tankovitz felt it was a defect in workmanship.
2. Exterior Dirt: Mr. Tankovitz testified that there was construction dirt on the stonework of his house. When the dirt was removed scratches were visible. The builder put a coating on the stonework but that coating is now coming off. Though the builder did correct the second story windowsill the repair was not satisfactory.
3. Front Door Beam: Mr. Tankovitz stated this was a case of bad workmanship and poor materials. The photograph shows the poor quality of the paint, which was not rust proof.
4. Exterior Finish: The concrete foundation has not been brush coated in a satisfactory manner according to Mr. Tankovitz. There is a gap between the end of the coating and the level of gravel.
5. Driveway Painting: Initially there was an issue as to tire marks on the paving. But now the issue is one of the interface between the lawn and the driveway. This is not an issue of grading but of the interface. Soil is now exposed between the driveway and the lawn.
6. Wall Between Front Bedroom And Media Loft: Mr. Tankovitz testified that there had been changes made to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. Part of those changes included a design change for the angle of the wall in that location. This was not done in accordance with the contract and though he pointed out the problem to the builder it was not changed.
7. Opening Between Family Room and Dining Room: Mr. Tankovitz said this was a similar problem to item #6; the builder did not comply with the design changes. Mr. Tankovitz disputes any suggestion that he verbally agreed to changes in the design for item #6 or item #7.
8. Telephone Wires: The Tribunal did not find this to be an issue as the telephones now work.

9. Survey Pins: The Tribunal did not find this to be an issue as the Applicant has an updated survey.
10. Linen Closet Door: This is an issue of defect in workmanship according to Mr. Tankovitz. The door opening is too small and there is no accessibility to parts of the closet.
11. Front Door Paint: There had been dents repaired on the door. The paint used was not as glossy as the original paint.
12. Scratched Family Room Window: This had been reported within the first year though it was not on the pre delivery inspection report. Mr. Tankovitz stated that it was impossible to note all problems at the PDI and write them down then. When he noticed the problem he reported it to the Program.
13. Front Porch Concrete: It is not uniform due to obvious bubbles in the concrete.
14. Kitchen Exhaust Fan: Mr. Tankovitz stated that the fan is not powerful enough to suck out the odors. He never was provided with specifications on it though he had asked for them.
15. Warped Siding: Mr. Tankovitz stated that this siding is metal and yet it is warped. It should not shrink. It was defective and warped when installed.
16. Grading: There is an ongoing problem of water pooling between the houses. Then this water seeps into the ground.
17. Roof Shingles: Mr. Tankovitz had worries as to the future effectiveness of some of the roof shingles, which had marks on them.
18. Ceiling Panels on Balcony: In the front NE corner of the balcony heavy winds had caused the panels to blow off three times. As well there was a gap in the ceiling panel, which was unacceptable workmanship.

Under cross-examination Mr. Tankovitz could not remember if he sent a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale (APS) to the Program. He does acknowledge that his signature is on two sheets dated May, 1999 entitled Customer Extras. The diagram on page 2 of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale lists whether or not each pot light has its own switch. That is not the case for the diagram on page 3 of the APS, which only specifies for the balcony pot light. The diagram on page 5 of the APS does not specify pot lights for the media room, master bedroom or front bedroom.

On the document entitled customer request for extras there is a specification of separate switches for the two exterior pot lights but no such specification for the media room, bedroom #2, master bedroom or main bathrooms.

Mr. Tankovitz agreed that there was nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale stating the front door was to be painted with rust proof paint. He recalls that the problem was evident quite early in his occupancy of the house. His first written complaint on it was June, 2000.

Regarding the wall between the front bedroom and media loft Mr. Tankovitz recalls having a meeting with the builder on May 6, 1999, but does not recall saying to leave the angle alone. He disagrees with the position of the builder that instead of the angle Mr. Tankovitz was getting a number of other extras. He testified that there was no written or verbal deal in which he accepted the 45% angle.

Regarding the opening between the family room and the dining room and the linen closet opening Mr. Tankovitz agreed that no dimensions are specified on the diagrams.

Mr. Tankovitz agreed that there is nothing in the pre delivery inspection form dealing with the scratched window or the warped siding. He has not observed any water leakage as a result of the problems with the roof shingles or the ceiling panels.

Testimony of Wendy Skyba:

Ms Skyba has been a warranty representative for three years. Prior to that she worked as a building official and as a constructive site supervisor. She was involved with the conciliation inspection on September 13, 2001 and she issued the decision letter that is the subject of this appeal.

Regarding the issues:

1. Pot light switches – denied this, as nothing in the documentation to show he was to get separate switches for these pot lights. Other pot lights are mentioned in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale as requiring separate switches but there is nothing on these particular pot lights. Ms Skyba stated that Mr. Tankovitz had been deliberate about a number of pot lights and their switches. It was the industry standard to put all the pot lights in a room on the same switch.
2. She was unaware of any further complaints regarding the 2nd story windowsill after it had been repaired. She was not asked to return to view it.
3. She stated that rust paint is not used on angle iron. You can either not paint the angle iron or paint it with exterior latex paint. In this case the builder had painted the angle irons with white paint. That will last for approximately one year in this climate. It is a normal wear and tear item and is excluded under section 13(2)(c) of the Act. Regarding the concrete foundation it is poured concrete with a brush coat application. She had viewed it about a year ago. The front step has now settled and has exposed an inch of the foundation with no brush coating. The defects are typical and there is no evidence of improper application. It is a wear and tear item excluded under s. 13(2)(c) and under the subsidence exclusion of 13 (2) (h) of the Act.

4. Ms Skyba had no recollection of there being a gap between the driveway to the grass. The grass meets the pavement but is higher than the level of the driveway.
5. The wall between the bedroom and media loft comes under the substitution provision of Regulation 892 section 19.
6. Regarding the wall between the family room and dining room the builder moved it to make the family room larger. It also comes under section 19 of Regulation 892.
10. Linen closet – the drawings are without specification as to the size of the opening. It is functional for a linen closet.
11. The front door paint matches the paint on the garage door.
12. Family room window scratches were not mentioned in the pre delivery inspection yet the latches were mentioned. She does not know who is responsible for these scratches.
13. Front porch concrete: The epoxy concrete topping has adhered to the surface of the concrete. There are some bubbles but that does not impair the surface and is typical for concrete.
14. There are no supply performance standards mentioned for the kitchen exhaust fan. It is extracting air and is vented to the outside.
15. Ms Skyba stated that this house has vinyl siding attached to wood. The wood framing has shrunk and caused some bowing, as the vinyl siding is not rigid. This is an exclusion item as shrinkage under section 13 (2)(d) of the Act. The siding has not detached or deteriorated and there has been no report of water penetration.
16. Lot grading is the responsibility of the municipality. Settlement of earth is an exclusion item under section 13 (2) (h). Ms Skyba has not been told of any water penetration of the building envelope.
17. There are marks on perhaps ten roof shingles. This is in an area over the garage, which could be seen from the window. It was not mentioned on the pre delivery inspection report and Ms Skyba does not know who is responsible for the damage. There have been no reports of water penetration.
18. The ceiling panels, which were loose, were warranted, as they had to be securely attached to the building. The last panel fits against the second panel with no notch. It is not as visually evident as would appear from the photograph. This is a minor defect and is not warranted.

Ms. Skyba stated that she was not permitted to take photographs when doing her conciliation report.

Testimony of Walter Kairetz:

Mr Kairetz is the vice president of construction for Ballymore Building (Oak Ridges) Corp. He has worked at a variety of positions in the construction industry since 1973. He is a registered builder. He did the pre delivery inspection with Mr. Tankovitz.

Mr. Kairetz testified that angle iron would rust unless you clad it. He stated that there is a grade variation between the driveway and the lawn due to the curb depression. It cannot be made flat.

Mr. Kairetz testified that he was present at a meeting on May 6, 1999 with Mr. Tankovitz and Mr. Morra the carpentry contractor. The angles in the wall were discussed and ultimately Mr. Tankovitz said to leave it as it was. Mr. Tankovitz requested additional pot lights, which Mr. Morra agreed to do at cost. Then on May 10, 1999 at another meeting of the parties the other issues such as the pot light switches, exterior dirt, front door beam, driveway painting were resolved. Regarding the opening between the family room and dining room there was a structural column there so the wall could not be shortened.

Regarding the linen closet the railing is angled due to the order of the building inspector and the opening for the linen closet is within the normal range of 16 to 20 inches.

He recalls the tissue test being done on the kitchen exhaust fan. Regarding the grading there is a positive slope and it was inspected by the city engineer prior to laying of the sod.

Under cross-examination Mr. Kairetz stated that there was no deficiency notice from the Town of Richmond Hill. As the builder has to comply with the Building Code there was no notice given to Mr. Tankovitz regarding the change on the railing near the linen closet.

Mr. Kairetz stated that it was Mr. Morra who negotiated the items with Mr. Tankovitz at the May 6th, 1999 meeting.

Closing Statements:

Mr. Tankovitz reiterated his testimony on the items in question. He felt that if there was lack of clarity on the diagrams it was the responsibility of the builder to provide that clarity. He felt that the builder did not tell him of changes nor did the builder negotiate with him.

The Program stated that the builder did not have to meet a standard of perfection. Many of the items would be excluded under the various clauses found in section 13 of the Act. As well there were substitution items under section 19 of Regulation 892 of the Act. Many of the items were normal wear and tear items. Some of the items were not noted on the pre delivery inspection report and it is impossible for the Program to allocate responsibility for the damage. Some items such as the warped siding and the ceiling panels were matters of aesthetics as there was no problem with functionality and no evidence of water penetration.

Legislation:

The relevant legislation is the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act and its Regulations:

- s. 13 (1) Every Vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material.
 - (ii) Is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) Is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code...
 - (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,
 - (c) normal wear and tear.
 - (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;
 - (h) subsidence of the land around the building or along utility lines, other than subsidence beneath the footings of the building.
- s. 14
- (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the cost of the remedial work required to correct a breach of warranty if,
 - (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

Regulation 892

- s. 19 Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that, where the vendor makes a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement that is not an item that is to be selected by the purchaser, the item will be of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement.

Analysis:

This is a case that would have benefited from a pre hearing conference. Many of these issues could have been resolved if the parties had participated in a pre hearing conference.

There were eighteen different items, which were in dispute at the beginning of the hearing. The Tribunal held that items #8 the telephone wires and #9 the property marking pins had no merit. Mr. Tankovitz had a problem with intermittent telephone signals over two years ago. The telephone system has worked with no problems since that time. The Tribunal can only deal with current problems not speculative ones. Regarding the survey pins the builder is under no obligation to expose them for Mr. Tankovitz. The builder has supplied Mr. Tankovitz with a current survey as is required under the Agreement of Purchase and Sale.

The Tribunal will deal with the remaining sixteen items using the numbering for items as stated in the decision letter.

1. Pot Lights:

Mr. Tankovitz claims he is entitled to have the additional pot lights each on its own separate switch. The Tribunal denies this claim. It is evident that Mr. Tankovitz put some thought into separate switches when he initially negotiated his Agreement of Purchase and Sale. Unfortunately he was not as specific when dealing with extras as the home was being constructed. There is nothing in writing or on the diagrams attached to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, which would substantiate these claims.

2. Exterior Dirt:

The Tribunal denies this claim. A repair was made to the second story windowsill. Mr. Tankovitz has not complained of that repair to the Program. If he has a problem he must go through the formal channels as the Program does provide a warranty of a year on such repairs.

3. Front Door Beam:

The Tribunal denies this claim. There is nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that specifies rust paint. This is a maintenance item and is excluded under section 13 (2) (c).

4. Exterior Finish:

The Tribunal denies this claim. The foundation had a brush coating. The area that Mr. Tankovitz complained of is the result of settling of the dirt around the foundation and is excluded under section 13 (2) (h).

5. Driveway:

Mr. Tankovitz had initially complained of tire marks on his driveway. But at the hearing his complaint was of the interface between the lawn and driveway. The lawn is higher than the surface of the driveway. The builder has explained that this is due to a curb depression and it cannot be corrected. The Tribunal accepts the explanation of the builder. This is not a defect that can be corrected under the legislation nor did Mr. Tankovitz follow through with this complaint to the Program. The Tribunal denies this claim.

6. Wall Between Front Bedroom and Media Loft:

There is an inconsistency in the testimony of Mr. Tankovitz and Mr. Kairetz as to whether or not this matter was settled at the meeting of May 6, 1999. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Kairetz over Mr. Tankovitz on this issue. As well the Tribunal agrees that this is a matter of substitution permitted under section 19 of Regulation 892. This claim is denied.

7. Opening Between Family Room and Dining Room:

This is a further matter of substitution permitted under section 19 of Regulation 892 and under the wording of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. As well the Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Kairetz that this substitution was necessary due to the structural column. This claim is denied.

8. Linen Closet Door:

The Tribunal agrees that the drawings do not give specifications for the size of the linen closet door.

Though Mr. Kairetz testified that he had to change the positioning of the upstairs railing due to the Ontario Building Code it would have been prudent of the builder to inform Mr. Tankovitz of this change. The Tribunal does not agree with the Program that the current opening is functional. There is restricted access to the portion of the linen closet closest to the railing. This is a case of poor workmanship. Either the door needs to be repositioned or more likely it needs to be expanded as a sliding door to allow access to all of the closet area. The Tribunal accepts this claim.

11. Front Door Paint:

The Tribunal denies this claim. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of Ms Skyba that this paint matches the paint on the garage door.

12. Scratches on Family Room Window:

This claim is denied. It is impossible to determine who is responsible for the scratches as this problem was not mentioned on the pre delivery inspection report. This same report does mention fixing of window catches so it is evident that Mr. Tankovitz was examining windows when doing his pre delivery inspection.

13. Front Porch Concrete:

This claim is denied. The defects complained of by Mr. Tankovitz are not due to poor workmanship or defects in materials.

14. Kitchen Exhaust Fan:

This claim is denied. No performance specifications are provided. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of Ms Skyba that the fan is extracting air and is vented to the exterior.

15. Warped Siding:

This claim is denied. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of Ms Skyba that this is excluded under section 13 (2) (d) of the Act. There is no report of functional defects.

16. Grading:

This claim is denied. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Kairetz that the municipality approved the lot grading. There is a positive slope and no report of water penetration.

17. Roof Shingles:

This claim is denied. Though there are some marks to a few shingles the Applicant is more concerned with future effectiveness than aesthetics. The Tribunal cannot deal with what may or may not happen in the future. There is no water penetration reported at this time.

18. Ceiling Panels on Balcony:

Mr. Tankovitz and Ms Skyba agree that the panels were warranted for not being securely attached to the building. The photographs show a gap between the second panel and the first panel. The past history of loose attachment plus the current gap illustrates poor workmanship.

The second panel needs to be repaired so it will fit securely against the first panel. The Tribunal accepts this claim.

Order:

Accordingly under the authority vested in it under section 16 (3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal orders the following:

1. The Tribunal directs the Program to disallow the claims as numbered in the decision letter of May 30, 2002 as Claim numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17.
2. The Tribunal directs the Program to allow claim numbers 10 and 18. The linen closet door is to be repaired to allow access to all of the closet area. As there was no discussion at the hearing as to the method of repair for this matter the Program has full authority as to what would be the best method of repair to allow full accessibility to all parts of the closet. The ceiling panel is to be repaired so that the second panel fits securely to the adjacent panels with no gap. Again there was no discussion at the hearing regarding the method of repair. The Program has full authority as to what would be the best method of repair to have the second panel fit securely to the adjacent panels with no gap.

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

APPEARANCES:

BELA BERTA, representing himself
KAREN SPECTOR, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home

DATE OF
HEARING: February 11 and 12, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated July 9, 2002 wherein the claim of Bela Berta (the "Applicant") was denied.

THE ISSUES:

The Applicant's appeal is based upon the provisions of section 13(1)(a) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") as well as section 14(3) of that Act.

The Applicant claims that he entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale with Empire Yonge Heath Ltd. (the "builder") regarding a residential home to be constructed by the builder at 19 Oak Avenue, Richmond Hill, Ontario (the "home"). The home was duly constructed by the builder and after the Applicant took possession of the home on February 22, 2001, he became aware of defects in the home which he contended were due to the defective workmanship of the builder. Certain of the defects were attended to by the builder to the satisfaction of the Applicant.

However, there were certain defects complained of by the Applicant which were disputed by the builder. The Applicant then sought the assistance of the Program to attempt to mediate the impasse that resulted from the dispute. Two inspections were then held by the Program at the home to investigate the alleged defects and to determine the builder's liability, if any, therefore. Pursuant to the first inspection, the conciliation inspection held on February 22, 2002, the Program determined in its written report issued pursuant to such inspection, that all twenty-five alleged defects complained of by the Applicant were for various reasons not warranted under the Act. The Applicant was not satisfied with the conclusions of the Program and at the request of the Applicant a second inspection of the home, termed a reinspection, was held by the Program. At this reinspection held on May 15, 2002, certain of the Applicant's complaints that had been dealt with in the conciliation inspection report were re-examined by the Program and pursuant to this reinspection a further written report was made by the Program. In this reinspection report, the Program confirmed the findings and conclusions that it had arrived at pursuant to the conciliation inspection at the home. The Applicant was not satisfied with the findings of the Program in both its conciliation meeting report and its reinspection meeting report. Accordingly, pursuant to section 16(1) of the Act, the Program issued its formal written decision by way of a letter addressed to the Applicant dated July 9, 2002. This is the decision of the Program that the Applicant now appeals. Pursuant to section 16(4) of the Act, the builder has been added as a party to the proceedings.

The Program's decision letter of July 9, 2002 dealt with 13 claims of the Applicant. During the hearing, the Applicant abandoned and withdrew 5 of those 13 claims. Those 5 abandoned claims are claims 3, 5, 7, 10 and 11 as enumerated on the Program's decision letter. This appeal therefore relates to claims 1, 2, 4, 6, 8, 9, 12 and 13 set forth in the Program's decision letter of July 9, 2002.

THE EVIDENCE

The evidence presented to the Tribunal consisted of documentary evidence, as well as the oral testimony of the Applicant, two warranty representatives of the Program namely, Wendy Skyba and Jim Fortune and the builder's representative Carol Newman.

The following is a summary of the testimony of the above persons and the documents admitted into evidence.

There was no disagreement that the Applicant and the builder entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale whereby the latter was to construct for the Applicant a residential home at 19 Oak Avenue, Richmond Hill. (Exhibit 3, Tab 2). The home was duly constructed and the Applicant took possession of the home on February 22, 2001. Subsequent to taking possession, the Applicant had certain concerns with the home. He reported certain concerns to the builder and in November 2001 he brought his concerns to the Program's notice. Certain concerns of the Applicant were not addressed to his satisfaction by the builder and on December 13, 2001 he advised the Program that he required the Program to conduct a conciliation inspection in regard to his outstanding concerns.

On March 18, 2001, a conciliation inspection meeting was held at the home at which meeting the Applicant was present as well as the builder's representative, Carol Newman, and the program's warranty representative, Wendy Skyba. Dealt with at that meeting were 25 concerns or complaints of the Applicant. The Applicant was not satisfied with the conciliation inspection report dated April 2, 2002 issued by the Program pursuant to the meeting. (Exhibit 3, Tab 16) The report stated that none of the 25 complaints was warranted by the Program. However, of those 25 complaints, 12 complaints were withdrawn by the Applicant at the time of the conciliation inspection. Dissatisfied with the report of April 2, 2002, the Applicant requested a reinspection of the home by the Program and the Program appointed another warranty representative to conduct the reinspection that was held on May 15, 2002 with another warranty inspector, Jim Fortune, as well as the Applicant and Carol Newman of the builder. A written report regarding the reinspection was issued by the Program dated May 16, 2002 in which report the Program confirmed that all the Applicant's complaints remained "not warranted". (Exhibit 3, Tab 17)

The Program thereafter issued its decision letter of July 9, 2002.

Insofar as the complaints of the Applicant were concerned, they were dealt with at the hearing and the various testimonies of witnesses are referred to hereunder.

CLAIM 1 – All thermal windows are sweating

The Applicant stated that all windows in the home have water accumulating on the inside. The water accumulation was so bad originally that water was running from the interior of the windows onto the floors or carpeting. The Applicant went on to state that the "sweating", as he termed it, is due to the builder having failed to install "a bleeding system" when the home was constructed. If such a system had been installed by the builder, at a cost of some $360.00, there would have been no problem with water accumulating on the inside of the home's windows. The Applicant did concede that the amount of water forming on the windows is now less than it was after he took possession of the home. He stated further that when the weather is cold outside there is more water accumulation on the windows and the higher he turns up the heat, the more the "sweating" occurs on the windows.

In her testimony given on behalf of the Program, Wendy Skyba stated that she was assigned the Applicant's file and she was present at and conducted the conciliation inspection meeting at the home on March 18, 2002. Skyba testified as to her qualifications within the building industry which she stated to be as follows: she has been a warranty representative with the Program for the past four years during which she has inspected many homes where there have been various concerns of an owner and has issued many conciliation reports following conciliation meetings which she had conducted. Prior to her being a warranty representative, she was a building official in Sudbury where she conducted inspections of residential properties for the municipal authority. Before she held the latter position, she was construction supervisor for a construction company that constructs new residential homes and which position she held for some 5 years.

She went on to state that when she was present at the conciliation inspection, she noted that there was no condensation of water on the home's windows. The outside temperature at the time was 3 degrees centigrade. Skyba did state that condensation occurs when warm moisture laden air comes into contact with a cold window. The materials in a newly constructed home, including the lumber used in the home and the concrete, typically contain moisture. As a home slowly dries out, the air in the home absorbs the moisture from the materials used in its construction. If the home is not properly ventilated so as to vent the moist air within the home, condensation will occur and appear on the windows. To prevent condensation the homeowner should run fans to exhaust the moist air. Skyba noted that there are fans to vent air in the home which are situated in the bathroom and in the range in the home's kitchen.

This claim of the Applicant was denied by the Program, according to Skyba, because she noted no water condensing on any windows at the time of her inspection, there was no defect in either the materials used or workmanship insofar as the home's windows were concerned and there was no violation of the Ontario Building Code (the "Code"). She also stated that under section 13(2)(e) of the Act, warranty coverage is excluded where an owner fails to maintain adequate ventilation of his home and which the Applicant failed to do.

Jim Fortune, the Program warranty representative testified that he conducted the reinspection of the home on May 15, 2002. He stated that he has been a warranty representative with the Program since 1989, as well as a client service representative. Prior to being with the Program he was a building inspector and official. Prior to 1986, he conducted his own construction business for some 5 years.

Fortune stated that on reinspection of the home he did not observe any problem with water accumulating on the home's windows.

In February 2003, Fortune testified that he did return to the home to ascertain if there was condensation on the windows. When he visited the home, it was 10:30 a.m. and the outside temperature was -5°C to -10°C. He did not enter the home and stood at the street from where the only window he could adequately observe was one front window which was some 30 to 35 feet away from where he stood. He did not observe condensation on that window.

He contended that the Applicant needed a dehumidifier or a vent recovery ventilator to control the excessive humidity in his home. This would cost him about $350.00 to install. However, neither the Act nor the Code required such installation and it is not standard practice in the building industry to provide such installation unless the contract calls for it or it is an extra for which the homeowner agrees to pay. There was nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that called for, or required the builder to install a dehumidifier or vent recovery ventilator in the home. There was also no agreement for the builder to install the latter at an extra cost to the Applicant.

Fortune stated that he denied warranty coverage on the basis that the home had been constructed in a workmanlike manner, free from defects in material, and that there was no violation of the Code.

Carol Newman testified on behalf of the builder and stated she is employed by the builder as its customer service manager. She is responsible for overseeing customer complaints and attending all home inspections. Her experience extends to being employed by the builder as customer service manager for the past 5 years and prior thereto she was a warranty representative with the Program. She has been involved in the building industry for the last 14 years.

Newman stated that after the Applicant called for a conciliation inspection meeting she visited the home to familiarize herself with the issues. She was not able to decipher the Applicant's handwriting regarding his concerns and wished to obtain clarity from the Applicant himself insofar as the issues were concerned. Newman stated she was in the home when both the conciliation inspection took place and the reinspection meeting took place. On no occasion when she was at the home did she observe any problem with water condensation on any windows in the home.

CLAIM 2 – Squeaking Floors

The Applicant stated that when he walked on the floors of the home he could hear "cracking". He complained to the builder who sent an employee to the home and applied caulking to the underneath of the floors with a caulking gun. This has helped to reduce the noise where the caulking was applied but it was not applied to all areas where there was noise. There is presently noise from the hallway floor as well as from the floors in one bedroom and the eating area.

Under cross-examination, the Applicant stated there was no longer a problem with the floor in the master bedroom, or with the floors in the kitchen and living room.

Skyba testified that during the conciliation inspection she asked the Applicant to demonstrate the problem with the floors. She and the Applicant walked over various floors including those in the master bedroom and living room. She observed a very narrow area of minor creaking in both rooms. The creaking was faint and isolated but there was no movement under foot.

Skyba stated that the minor squeaking was caused by the normal shrinking of the wood floor joists which occurs where the lumber dries out and the moisture dissipates into the air. When this occurs a minor gap appears at the floor joist which typically reflects shrinkage. She denied warranty coverage as normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction is excluded from warranty under section 13(2)(d) of the Act. Furthermore, no defect in either work or material was observed nor was there any violation of the Code.

Fortune also testified as to his observations on reinspection and noted that he observed minor noises and was told by the Applicant that squeaks from the floors were more apparent at some times and not at other times. This indicated that the problem lay with humidity levels in the home. Shrinkage of materials is excluded from warranty under section 13(2)(d) of the Act. He observed no Code violations nor was there any defect in materials or in workmanship.

Newman stated in her testimony that when she visited the home in preparation for the conciliation inspection, she noted minimal squeaks in the master bedroom floor and the living room floor. She authorized remedial work to be carried out not because there was a defect but because the Applicant was disturbed by the minor noise. She ordered shimming and the application of glue to the complete underside of the living room and master bedroom floors. No other floor areas of concern were pointed out to Newman by the Applicant.

CLAIM 4 – Dining room walls and kitchen walls – too broken up

The Applicant stated in his testimony that he has “no problem with this at present but I fear in the future there will be a problem”. His fear related to the integrity of the kitchen wall and its ability to support the weight of the roof.

Skyba stated that when she was in the home during the conciliation inspection the Applicant pointed to some drywall repairs that had been completed by the builder in around the archway to the kitchen and living room. She identified the area of drywall repairs by reference to a photograph (Exhibit 3, Tab 21, first of 4 photographs).

Skyba stated that the Applicant's complaint prior to the time of the conciliation inspection was that the drywall was "broken-up". The Applicant had at the time of the inspection pointed out to her that the drywall had by then been repaired by the builder but that the portion repaired had not been primed or painted. She pointed out to the Applicant that this was not a complaint that was warranted under section 13(2)(d) of the Act as the complaint was consistent with normal shrinkage caused by drying out of materials.

The Applicant at no time prior to the meeting or at the meeting mentioned to Skyba that he had concerns that related to aspect of construction itself.

Skyba stated that she denied warranty coverage as there were no defects in work or materials, no violation of the Code and that the cause of the cracks in the drywall were due to normal shrinkage which is excluded from warranty coverage under section 13(2)(d) of the Act.

Skyba stated that at the time of the conciliation inspection, no concerns were expressed by the Applicant as to possible future failure of the supporting upright sections of the kitchen wall. Skyba disputed that the construction of the two upright sections of wall that support the roof trusses had caused any damage to the drywall that was repaired by the builder nor is there any danger to the integrity of the home itself.

In his evidence, Fortune testified that he took a photograph of the wall in question when he attended at the reinspection. (Exhibit 3, Tab 21). At this reinspection, the Applicant raised his concern regarding the construction and integrity of the wall. This was not the same issue that the Applicant had previously raised and which Skyba had to deal with at conciliation. Fortune had prior to his testimony determined, by reference to the building plans which he had inspected, that the roof of the Applicant's home was engineer designed and posed no risk to the structural integrity of the home. At present, the Applicant was experiencing no problem and was satisfied with the builder's repairs to the drywall itself.

CLAIM 6 – Slim lights under kitchen cabinets

The Applicant stated that the home does not have what he termed as "slim lights" under the cabinets in the kitchen. Other homes that the Applicant had seen in the neighbourhood did have these lights installed under the cabinets. He went on to state that when he was in the builder's sales office prior to the sale being concluded he was assured by a representative of the builder that the home would have such lights.

In cross-examination, the Applicant was shown a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale (Exhibit 3, Tab 2), the original of which he conceded signing. He was not able to point to any provision in that agreement to the effect that such lights would be supplied and installed by the builder. He was shown the following clause in the agreement which he conceded is a clause in the agreement he signed.

30. The Purchaser(s) acknowledge(s) and agree(s) that the Vendor's model home(s) presentation may, where applicable, include features, finishes and upgrades (either inside or outside) which may not be included as standard features in the home being purchased. Accordingly, the Purchaser's attention is drawn to SCHEDULE "B" QUALITY APPOINTMENTS which forms part of this Agreement of Purchase and Sale and which sets out therein the items which will be included in the home as standard features. The Purchaser(s) hereby acknowledge(s) that the new home will only include those standard features and, accordingly, if the Purchaser(s) require(s) any clarification of the explanation as to terms, features or finishes as referred to in the SCHEDULE "B" or anywhere else in this Agreement of Purchase and Sale or with respect to any matters whatsoever which the Purchaser(s) had discussed with the Vendor's Sales Representatives such matters, clarifications, features or representations must be made in writing and included in this Agreement of Purchase and Sale, failing which the Purchaser(s) shall be stopped from making a claim for any such matters, clarifications, features or representations, other than set out in writing in this agreement. The Purchaser(s) hereby acknowledge(s) that there are no representations, warranties, collateral agreements or conditions whatsoever affecting the Agreement of Purchase and Sale or the real property or supported hereby other than as is expressed in writing in this Agreement.

The Applicant was also shown Schedule "B" to the Agreement and was not able to point in the home's listed standard features to any reference to "slim lights" or valance lights being supplied as a standard feature.

Skyba confirmed in her testimony that the agreement did not call for the builder to supply or install valance lights in the kitchen. Fortune in his evidence supported Skyba's position. Both Skyba and Fortune concurred in their opinions that there was no requirement in the Agreement for valance lights to be installed by the builder and their absence in the home did not indicate the builder had breached the warranties as stated in section 13(i)(a) of the Act.

Newman stated that valance lights were not supplied and installed and as such were not required under the agreement, and the Applicant did not purchase such valance lights as an extra.

CLAIM 8 – GROUND FAULT RECEPTACLE MISSING IN THE KITCHEN

The Applicant testified that there was no ground fault receptacle installed in the kitchen. He stated that the home should have been constructed according to the CSA Standard which he claimed does require such receptacle to be installed in the home's kitchen. Under cross-examination the Applicant stated he could not substantiate his statement regarding CSA Standard nor could he indicate where in such CSA Standard there is a requirement for this receptacle to be installed in the home's kitchen.

Skyba, in dealing with this claim in her evidence, stated that there is no ground fault receptacle in the home's kitchen. She went on to state that the Ontario Building Code does not require such receptacle in the kitchen, nor does the Ontario Electrical Safety Code require such receptacle to be installed under the latter Code which is the governing Code relative to electrical installations. The Ontario Electrical Safety Code does require such ground fault receptacles to be installed in only bathrooms and combination laundry/bathrooms. The latter Code prohibits such receptacle being installed directly behind or in front of a kitchen sink. Skyba further stated that she denied this claim as there was no violation of either of the above Codes, the home did pass all necessary electrical inspections prior to an occupancy permit being granted and the home was constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material.

Fortune testified that he supported and confirmed Skyba's position. He did add that although the Ontario Electrical Safety Code in force at present and at the time of the home's construction does not require a ground fault receptacle in a home's kitchen, there is possible legislation pending, but not in force, that may amend the requirements for such receptacle in home's kitchens.

CLAIM 9 – FLAT CONCRETE SLAB MISSING OUTSIDE OF STAIRS OF SLIDING DOOR

The Applicant claimed that there is no slab outside the home's sliding patio door and he requires the builder to place one outside that door.

Skyba conceded in her testimony that there was no concrete slab outside the patio door. However, she observed during the conciliation inspection, that there was a wooden deck that had been constructed by the builder and which deck leads from the patio door of the home. From the deck itself there were steps down to grade. There was no requirement in the agreement that the builder was to construct a deck outside the patio door. However, a deck was supplied and built by the builder in lieu of the concrete slab. Such deck, which was not stipulated in the agreement to be supplied, was in fact supplied by the builder in substitution of the slab. The substituted deck, according to Skyba was of equal or better quality than the slab and complies with section 19 of the regulation 892 under the Act.

Fortune stated in his evidence that if a side or patio door is more than 2 foot above grade, as is the case of the home's patio door, the builder shall supply either patio stones at the door's exit or a deck with stairs to grade. The builder chose the latter in substitution of patio slabs which Fortune testified is in conformity with section 19 of Regulation 892.

This claim according to Fortune, was denied by the Program as there was no violation of the Code and the deck was constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material.

CLAIM 11 – TURF FOR GRASS UNIT BADLY LAID ON GROUND

At the hearing, the Applicant stated that his complaint was that turf or grass sod was laid down by the builder one day and that the very next day the Applicant found such turf had been rolled up and stacked on his neighbour's property. The turf that was removed was subsequently replaced and relaid by the builder with turf that was "no good".

Skyba in her testimony stated that when she attended at the home at the time of the conciliation inspection, the Applicant's complaint was that there was a hole in the front yard that had been dug by Bell. The Applicant also complained of a second hole at the southwest corner of the home that had been dug by the builder at the request of the local municipal authority and then filled and sod installed. On the basis of this information, the Program denied warranty coverage as the damages complained of were caused by municipal services which are specifically excluded from warranty coverage under section 13(2)(k) of the Act. (Exhibit 3, tab 16).

The complaints of the Applicant as expressed in his testimony before the Tribunal is, according to Skyba, a new complaint that had not previously been raised by the Applicant. It is therefore a new claim made by the Applicant during his testimony before this Tribunal and is denied as it was not made within one year after the warranty took effect on the Applicant's possession of the home.

CLAIM 12 – DRIVEWAY HAS OIL SPOTS ON IT (100 PLACES OR MORE)

The Applicant stated that whatever oil spots were apparent on the surface of the driveway are no longer apparent, as the driveway has, at the end of 2002, had a further surface applied to it by the builder. Now his complaint related to 5 pin points of rust, no larger than the tip of a ball point pen that have appeared since the further driveway surface has been applied. The Applicant stated that when he noticed the pin points of rust he reported same by telephone to the builder.

Skyba in her testimony related that when she attended at the conciliation inspection, she was told by the Applicant that when the driveway was wet there were oil spots noticeable on the asphalt surface. No oil spots were apparent at the time of her inspection. Skyba stated that, typically, asphalt is laid in two stages with the second layer being applied about a year after the first layer. The second layer is not a repair job but normal completion of a driveway. Skyba denied this claim as there were no oil spots observed by her on inspection and the driveway had been constructed in a workmanlike manner and was free from defects in material. There was no question of there being a Code violation.

Fortune stated that on reinspection he observed no oil spots on the driveway and saw no defect in work or materials used. He also stated that at no time has the Program received a report from the Applicant, either in a writing or orally, that there are rust spots on the driveway surface.

CLAIM 13 – SOUTH EAST CORNER LEAKING BADLY – NEEDING REPAIR
DOWNSPOUT OR EAVESTROUGH

The Applicant stated that the eavestrough is completely installed but without a downspout. He conceded that he had at no time made a report or complaint in writing to the Program regarding overflowing of water from eavestrough. He stated that he told both Skyba and Newman of overflow of water only when the latter persons attended at the conciliation inspection and that he never made a report to the Program in writing.

Skyba confirmed that the Applicant verbally reported this complaint to her when she was at the home at the conciliation inspection. Prior thereto there had been no report of this complaint either orally or in writing.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. The Applicant took possession of the home on February 22, 2001.
2. A conciliation inspection of the home took place on March 18, 2002 at which inspection the Applicant, Skyba and Newman were present.
3. A reinspection of the home took place on May 15, 2002 at which inspection the Applicant, Fortune and Newman were present.
4. At the hearing of this matter before the Tribunal, the Applicant abandoned and withdrew claims 3, 5, 7, 10 and 11 as enumerated in the Program's Decision Letter of July 9, 2002.
5. The Applicant's complaint of all thermal windows sweating, is caused by dampness or condensation due to the failure of the Applicant to maintain adequate ventilation in the home. The sweating is not due to the builder's workmanship nor is it due to defects in materials used by the builder.
6. The squeaking of the floors in the Applicant's home is due to normal shrinkage of materials used by the builder in the home's construction. This shrinkage of materials is due to and caused by drying out of the moisture in the materials used in the home's construction.
7. The builder has repaired the cracks and other blemishes in the drywall in or about the home's kitchen. The drywall existant in or about the kitchen does not exhibit damage. There is no evidence to support a claim that there is damage to the home's roof support or that the roof or any portion of the structure is unstable, damaged or in danger of collapse.

8. Slim lights or valance lights in the kitchen cabinets were not stipulated in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale as standard items or features nor as extras to be paid for by the Applicant. The aforesaid lights are not required by the Code and the lack of such lights does not reflect a lack of workmanship by the builder.
9. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale did not require the builder to install a ground fault receptacle in the home's kitchen, nor does the Code itself require such installation nor is it a requirement under the presently existing Ontario Electrical Safety Code. The lack of such receptacle does not reflect a lack of workmanship by the builder.
10. The builder did supply and install, without additional charge to the Applicant, a wooden deck leading from the home's patio door together with steps from the deck to grade. The wooden deck was not called for in terms of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale and was supplied and installed by the builder in lieu of patio stones at the patio door exit. The wooden deck was a substitution made by the builder that is of equal or better quality than patio stones.
11. The Applicant's original complaint made prior to the conciliation inspection and at such inspection related to two holes in or about the home's ground. The two holes in the ground, identified by the Applicant at the conciliation inspection, have been repaired and no longer exist. The claim made by the Applicant at the hearing was that sod had been removed from his property and had been replaced by the builder with sod that subsequently died. This latter claim had not been brought to the Program's notice either in writing or verbally prior to the hearing.
12. Any oil spots that may have existed on the home's driveway no longer exist due to an additional asphalt surface having been applied by the builder in the normal course of the finishing of the driveway's construction. The Applicant had prior to the hearing not brought to the Program's notice, either in writing or verbally, that any rust spots exist on the final surface of the home's driveway.
13. The Applicant's complaint regarding the "southeast corner leaking badly – needing repair downspout or eavestrough" being claim #13 on the program's decision letter of July 9, 2002, was only brought to the Program's notice at the time of the conciliation inspection on March 18, 2002 which is beyond the one year warranty in terms of section 13.(4) of the Act.

THE LAW:

The Act's relevant portions are:

Section 13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

- (a) defects in materials, design and work supplied by the owner;
- (b) secondary damage caused by defects, such as property damage and personal injury;
- (c) normal wear and tear;
- (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;
- (e) damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintain adequate ventilation;
- (f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;
- (g) alterations, deletions or additions made by the owner;
- (h) subsidence of the land around the building or along utility lines, other than subsidence beneath the footings of the building;

Section 13. (4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

Section 14. (3) Subject to the regulations, a person who has entered into a contract to purchase a home from a vendor is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for the amount that the person paid to the vendor as a deposit to be credited to the purchase price under the contract on closing if,

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

Regulation 892 to the Act states:

Section 4.(1) Each person with a claim under the Plan shall give written notice of the claim to the Corporation.

Section 16. Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990, the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Applicant to prove that he is entitled in terms of section 14(3)(b) of the Act to receive payment from the Program for the cost of remedial work required to correct breaches of warranty. Having had the benefit of listening to the oral evidence of various persons who testified and of observing their demeanour, the Tribunal has no hesitation in accepting the testimonies of witnesses Skyba, Fortune and Newman. They gave their evidence in a straightforward manner without embellishments. Skyba and Fortune impressed the Tribunal with their expertise in relation to the issues and their logical and reasoned testimony. The Applicant, on the other hand, showed no expertise on the various issues upon which he testified and brought no person or persons whatsoever to dispute the evidence of Skyba and Fortune. Additionally, he produced no photographs that could have supported his contentions. As a result, the Tribunal found no difficulty in accepting the evidence of the Program and the builder and preferring such evidence to that of the Applicant. The following is the Tribunal's analysis of the evidence and the reasons for the Tribunal's decision.

CLAIM 1

The Program's two warranty representatives who inspected the home on separate occasions did not observe condensation on the inside of the windows of the house. The Applicant brought no evidence, other than his own testimony, to support his allegation that condensation was present. No photographs were presented nor was there objective independent evidence placed before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant to support his allegations. The Tribunal finds the Applicant has failed to discharge the onus of proof to satisfy the Tribunal on a balance of probabilities that condensation did occur or was present. On that basis the Applicant's claim must fail.

However, even if the Applicant had proven that condensation occurred and manifested itself in water accumulating on the inside of the home's windows (which the Tribunal does not find), the Tribunal accepts the evidence of the Program's two witnesses who both independently and jointly have many years of experience, dealing with excessive humidity in a home. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant failed to properly ventilate the home so as to control excessive humidity which is common in a newly constructed home due to the drying out process of building materials used in construction. The Tribunal therefore finds in the alternative, that this claim if it had been proven, is excluded from warranty coverage in terms of section 13(2)(e) of the Act.

The Tribunal finds this claim of the Applicant therefore fails.

CLAIM 2

The Applicant testified that he was aware of "cracking" or squeaking noises from certain floors in the home when walked upon. The noises have greatly abated in certain areas due to remedial measures taken by the builder after the Applicant complained. Presently, there are only minor noises emanating from the floors in one bedroom and the hallway. Both warranty representatives of the Program, when they paid independent inspection visits to the home, stated that they heard minor faint noises from certain isolated floor areas.

While the Applicant brought no evidence before the Tribunal, other than his own testimony, the Program's evidence introduced through its two warranty representatives was that the minor small squeaks that they heard were a manifestation of a common occurrence in newly built homes experiencing humidity problems from the drying out of materials used in the home's construction. The Program's witnesses asserted that the minor squeaks were consistent with normal shrinkage of materials used in the home's construction and caused by those materials drying out.

The Tribunal accepts the uncontroverted evidence of the Program's two witnesses as to the cause of minor noises and finds that this claim falls into a warranty exclusion under section 13(2)(d) of the Act.

The Tribunal finds this claim of the Applicant fails.

CLAIM 4

The Tribunal finds that there were repairs to the kitchen's drywall carried out by the builder after the Applicant took occupation of the home. These repairs were successfully completed and satisfactorily dealt with certain cracks and nail pops about which the Applicant had complained.

Possession or occupation of the home was given to the Applicant on February 22, 2001 and on March 18, 2002, a conciliation inspection took place. At the time of the conciliation inspection, the complaint of the Applicant related to the cracks in the drywall and the nail pops. There was at that inspection no question raised about the structural integrity of the wall or walls in the kitchen. The latter allegation was only expressed verbally by the Applicant after the Conciliation inspection report of April 2, 2002 has been issued.

The one year period within which the Applicant was obliged in terms of section 13(4) of the Act to report claims to the Program expired on February 21, 2002. At that latter date, the Applicant's claim related to cracks and nail pops which were subsequently repaired by the builder. It was only after February 21, 2002 that the Applicant registered his verbal complaint to the Program regarding his fears of the structural integrity of the kitchen wall or walls. At no time has the Applicant made this latter claim in writing. The Applicant brought no evidence before the Tribunal at the hearing that there is a failure of the structural integrity of the home's walls. He asserted that he only fears that in the future there may be problems due to the possible collapse of the roof of the home and kitchen wall. The Program's two representatives disputed the Applicant's opinion that the home was in any way without structural integrity. They also disputed that the Applicant's fears were valid.

The Program finds that the original complaint of the Applicant, which was reported to the Program in terms of section 13(4) of the Act as read with section 4.(1) of Regulation 892 to the Act, related to cracks in the kitchen drywall that has now been repaired by the builder and in which respect the Applicant has no further claim. His claim in that regard therefore fails.

The Act does not legislate for possible future claims that an applicant fears may arise at some future date. However, if in the future the Applicant's home does manifest a major structural defect as defined in Regulation 892 to the Act, and the Applicant can establish a valid claim for damages due to such defect within seven years of the home's completion and possession, he may be able to bring a claim for damages. However, at this stage there is no proven major structural defect and no valid claim made in that regard.

CLAIM 6

There is nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that entitles the Applicant to receive slim lights (or commonly referred to as valance lights) in the home's kitchen. There is no document to indicate that such lights were to be supplied as an extra. Even if the Applicant has been verbally promised such lights by an employee of the builder prior to the execution of the agreement, such promise is not binding on the Program or the builder by virtue of the disclaimer in paragraph 30 of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale referred to earlier in this decision. The absence of such valance lights does not indicate a lack of workmanship or a defect in materials nor does it indicate a violation of the Code. This claim of the Applicant therefore fails.

CLAIM 12

This claim relates to oil spots that the Applicant stated in his testimony had appeared on the driveway surface. The Program's witnesses testified that when they inspected the driveway they saw no oil spots. The Applicant produced no photographs to support his contention nor did he have any person testify in support of this allegation. However, he did concede that a further or second coat has been applied by the builder to the driveway's surface and that oil spots are no longer apparent. He now claims that the resurfacing has resulted in five rust spots, each the size of the tip of a ball point pen, appearing on the asphalt.

The original complaint of oil spots were not observed by the Program's witnesses but in any event they have now been eliminated. The Applicant's original complaint of oil spots was remedied by the second layer of asphalt. That claim must therefore fail.

Insofar as the five rust spots are concerned, such allegation surfaced for the first time when the Applicant testified at the hearing. At no time has a claim relating to rust spots been made to the Program in writing. Accordingly, the Applicant's claim relating to rust spots must fail due to non compliance by the Applicant with Section 13.(4) of the Act as read with section 4.(1) of Regulation 892. Even if the Applicant had proven there are rust spots present (which the Tribunal finds he has failed to prove to the Tribunal's satisfaction) he has not at any time reported such complaint to the Program in writing or within one year of taking occupation of the home.

The Tribunal finds that when the builder applied the second coat or layer to the asphalt driveway that work was not done as repair work but was done in the normal course of the completion of an asphalt driveway.

CLAIM 13

This claim of the Applicant relates to a downspout or eavestrough at the southeast corner of the home that the Applicant claims is leaking badly. This claim was verbally reported to the Program for the first time at the conciliation meeting held on March 18, 2002. The warranty representative, Skyba, did not observe any leak at the time of inspection.

This claim was made after the expiry of the one-year warranty period as required by section 13.(4) of the Act. As such the Tribunal finds the claim to have been made beyond the one-year period calculated from the date of occupation, namely February 21, 2001. This claim accordingly fails due to it having been reported out of time. In addition, in view of the conflicting testimony of the Applicant and Skyba as to whether there is or was a leak, the Applicant's claim must fail as he has failed to prove on the balance of probabilities that there is or was leakage.

In dismissing all the claims of the Applicant, the Tribunal finds that none of the Applicant's complaints or claims resulted from the home not being constructed in a workmanlike manner or having defects in material that were used. Furthermore, the Tribunal find the home is fit for habitation and is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code.

DECISION

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claims of the Applicant.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Counsel for the Respondent, Ms. Aviva R. Harari, expressed concern regarding Mrs. Multani's daughter acting as both interpreter and witness. Ms. Harari pointed out that part of the Order made by this Tribunal on November 14th, 2002, required that the Applicant obtain the services of an independent and certified interpreter. Ms. Harari argues that the Applicant's daughter is not certified and she definitely cannot be considered impartial.

Mrs. Multani explained that she is not able to afford the services of a certified interpreter, and that her daughter will not be a witness in these proceedings.

Noting, Ms. Harari's objection that the interpreter should only provide translation to questions posed to the Applicant, and not the complete answers given by the Applicant, the Tribunal ruled that in the interests of justice, Mrs. Multani's daughter would be allowed to assist Mrs. Multani.

Ms. Jaspreet Multani was sworn in as interpreter of the Punjabi language.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) from a notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Registrar”), pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Act”). The Proposal dated September 12, 2002, seeks to revoke the Registration of Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors, as a Dealer.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar’s reasons for seeking an order for the revocation of the registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant’s conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentanglement to registration under the Act.

The particulars in the Notice of Proposal dated September 12, 2002, are:

1. Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors (hereinafter the “Dealer”) is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer and was originally registered on or about November 30, 1995.
2. Makhan Singh Multani (hereinafter “Mike”) was refused registration as a motor vehicle salesperson in or around November 1997.
3. Mike has a beneficial interest in the Dealer.
4. Mike is an unregistered salesperson for the Dealer.
5. The Dealer has been advised by the Representatives of the Registrar that retaining the services of an unregistered salesperson is in contravention of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.
6. The Registrar’s office has received consumer complaints concerning the conduct of the Dealer.
7. The Dealer has engaged in conduct, which has resulted in charges being laid for making false statements and falsifying safety certificates under the Highway Traffic Act.
8. The Dealer has engaged in conduct, which has resulted in charges being laid under the Highway Traffic Act for failing to maintain a garage register.
9. The Dealer has permitted an unregistered salesperson to attend Dealer only auctions on behalf of the Dealer.

10. The Dealer has shown a disregard for the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and its Registrations.

By Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated January 16th, 2003, the Registrar stated as follows:

1. On January 3rd 2003, the Small Claims Court rendered a Judgment in favour of a consumer plaintiff against Nanco Motors in the amount of $4,726.00.

By written Notice of Appeal Mrs. Rajwant Kaur Multani informed the Tribunal pursuant to section 7 (2) of the Act that a hearing was requested regarding an appeal to the proposal.

THE EVIDENCE

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR:

Testimony of Mr. Larry Edgar

Presently, Mr. Edgar is an Investigator for the Registrar of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC), a position that, he has held since "March 2000". He was previously with the OPP for 33 years.

On Thursday, April 25th, 2002, Mr. Edgar attended at the premises of Nanco Motors, at 610 Danforth Road. Mr. Edgar confirmed that the handwritten notes filed in Exhibit # 5, at Tab 21, were made at time and shortly after his visit to Nanco Motors.

Mr. Edgar posed as the buyer of a 1994 red Pontiac Firebird being offered for sale. The vehicle was further identified by licence plate ALMZ 147, and by the last five digits of VIN number: 14116.

The female present at the dealership, later identified as Mrs. Multani, gave information as to the listed sale price. Further conversation took place with the male, who identified himself with a business card imprinted with the business name Nanco Motors and the words: "Call: Multani". The name "Mike" is hand printed over the words: "Call: Multani". "Mike" was subsequently identified as Mr. Multani.

After obtaining the serial number of the vehicle from Mr. Multani, Mr. Edgar informed Mr. Multani of his employment with OMVIC, and asked him why he was selling cars. According to Mr. Edgar, Mr. Multani explained that Nanco Motors was a family business in existence for twenty years, that business was bad and that he was just helping.

Testimony of Mr. Brian Lia

Mr. Lia is an Inspector with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC). Prior to becoming an Inspector, three years ago, Mr. Lia worked for OMVIC as a Complaints Officer.

In his capacity as Inspector Mr. Lia visited Nanco Motors on "01/09/02". The document entitled "Short Report" under the letterhead of OMVIC (Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council), filed in Exhibit # 5, at Tab 14, reflects Mr. Lia's notes made shortly after the inspection of Nanco Motors.

Mr. Lia confirmed that he met with Mr. and Mrs. Multani. The discussion, with Mr. Multani, focused on the alleged misrepresentation, by Nanco Motors involving the sale of a 1988 Caravan.

During the inspection, Mr. Lia observed Mr. Multani openly provide information to two prospect customers, about a vehicle being offered for sale by the dealership.

Mr. Multani did not hide from Mr. Lia, the fact that he had been refused a salesman's licence, but explained that he was just helping his wife.

Prior to leaving Nanco Motors, Mr. Lia prepared and left a copy with the Dealer of his Inspection Findings. Mrs. Multani signed the sheet and indicated to Mr. Lia, that she understood the comments made therein.

Subsequently, Mr. Lia followed up with the consumer, who confirmed that Mike Multani had sold the vehicle to him. Documentation filed in Exhibit #5, at Tab 15, indicates that R. Multani signed the transaction information sheet.

Testimony of Mr. Kevin Van-Pedro

Mr. Van-Pedro has been a Complaints Mediator with OMVIC since April 2001.

As a Complaints Mediator, Mr. Van-Pedro had occasion to be involved in a dispute between a consumer and Nanco Motors.

Filed at Tabs 17 and 18 of Exhibit # 5, are copies of the records of the complaint received from Mr. Rick Thomson, and of Mr. Van-Pedro's conversation with Mrs. Multani, respectively.

In speaking to Mrs. Multani, Mr. Van-Pedro was informed that Mr. Multani's involvement in the business is in financing.

Mr. Van-Pedro was also involved, but unsuccessful, in mediating the complaint against Nanco Motors, made by Mr. Douce.

After succeeding in Small Claims Court, Mr. Douce faxed Mr. Van-Pedro a copy of the last page of the court order which has been entered into evidence as part of Exhibit # 5, Tab 33.

Testimony of Mr. Doug Davey

Mr. Davey, who is employed by the Ministry of Transportation as a Provincial Offences Officer under the Highway Traffic Act, testified as to his responsibilities regarding compliance with regulations for the issuance of Safety Standards Certificates.

As Nanco Motors, owned by Mrs. R. Multani was licenced under the Highway Traffic Act as an Inspection Station, Mr. Davey had occasion to carry out an audit on August 7th, 2002. Mr. Davey's findings are filed at Tab 27 of Exhibit # 5.

As a result of Mr. Davey's audit, the licence under the Highway Traffic Act for Nanco Motors has been revoked, and charges have been laid against the garage and the mechanic.

Based on his observations, Mr. Davey agreed with Ms. Harari's statement that Mrs. Multani had not fulfilled her obligations as a licence holder.

Testimony of Ms Laura Gordon

Ms. Gordon has been with Ontario Motor Vehicles Industry Council, OMVIC, since April 1997, and has held the position of Director of Compliance since September 1997.

For the record, Ms. Gordon explained that OMVIC, created in January 19th, 1997, is a non-profit corporation, which has been delegated, the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. Enacted as a public protection statute, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, ensures compliance, by dealers and salespersons, with Section 5 of the Act, requiring that individuals and corporations registered under the Act, meet standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law, and financial responsibility.

The decision to revoke the registration of Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors was based on the past conduct of the dealer. As part of her testimony Ms. Gordon reiterated the reasons set out in Notice of Proposal to Revoke Registration and in the Notice of Further and Other Particulars, found in Tabs 1 and 2 of Exhibit #5, respectively. Ms Gordon testified that Mrs. Multani's failure to abide by the terms of her licences under the Highway Traffic Act denotes disregard for the law, and therefore contravenes section 5 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

As requested by Ms. Harari, Ms. Gordon continued her testimony by identifying and commenting on particular documents contained in Exhibit #5.

Nanco Motors was registered as a Motor Vehicle Dealership on November 30 1995. In December of 1997, Mike Multani applied to be registered as a salesperson for the Dealer. A copy of the Registrar's Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration based on Mr. Multani's past conduct forms part of these proceedings, and can be found at Tab 9 of Exhibit #5.

Ms. Gordon also referred to a search carried out by OMVIC which revealed that the premises listed as the business address for Nanco Motors, 610 Danforth Road, is owned by Sonna 2000 Venture, whose officer and shareholder is Mike Multani. Copies of the search effected at the Companies Branch are filed under Tab 8 of Exhibit #5.

Filed under Tab 7 of Exhibit #5 is a copy of the Transfer/Deed of Land and as well as a Charge/Mortgage of Land in the amount of $275,000.00 showing as Chargor Rajwant Kaur Multani, designated as having "authority to bind the Corp."

Ms. Gordon is aware that since May 1996, the Dealer has been notified on numerous occasions that only licenced salespersons can work at the dealership. In support of her statement Ms. Gordon alluded to Tabs 10, 11, 12, 13 of Exhibit #5.

The Registrar is particularly concerned, as Ms. Gordon affirmed, with the fact that Mrs. Multani has not heeded the warnings of the Registrar. The Registrar also has reason to believe that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Multani act in a professional manner in the discharge of their duties. This conclusion was reached after a telephone conversation where Mr. Multani was heard screaming in the background.

As further proof that Mr. Multani has been carrying on the activities of a salesperson for the dealership, Mr. Gordon referred to Tab 19 of Exhibit #5, which indicates that Mr. Multani attended a dealer's only auction as a visitor. Ms Gordon contends that Mr. Multani should not have attended and that Mrs. Multani should not have signed him as a visitor.

In conclusion, Ms. Gordon confirmed that the Registrar, albeit showing patience in the past, now maintains the position that the Dealer licence for Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors should be revoked.

APPLICANT'S EVIDENCE

Testimony of Mrs. Rajwant Kaur Multani

Mrs. Multani testified that she understands that there are several problems that have been caused by her husband. However, Mr. Multani is no longer part of the business.

Mrs. Multani related that an incident that occurred with a consumer that resulted in a complaint being made. She confirmed that both herself and her husband were involved in the transaction.

Mrs. Multani stated that she had not seen some of the letters before, and does not know whether the information therein is right or wrong. As an example, Mrs. Multani cited Mr. Lia's report contained at Tab #14, of Exhibit 5.

Mrs. Multani points out that the conversation took place between Mr. Lia and her husband. Nonetheless, Mrs. Multani admits to not reading but signing the Inspection Findings.

Mrs. Multani recognizes that she has made mistakes, and assures that she will not make the same mistakes in future. She reiterated the request in her Notice of Appeal, asking the Tribunal to give her one more chance, as she has a family to support.

In cross-examination Mrs. Multani confirms that her signature appears at the bottom of documents contained in Tabs 11, 13 and 14 of Exhibit #5, but that she never reads any of the documents she signs.

Mrs. Multani confirmed that Mr. Multani returned to India in May of 2002, but left with a Power of Attorney, which in her opinion, enabled her to sign the mortgage.

In response to Ms. Harari's questions, Mrs. Multani stated that she works for the Toronto Star and that one of her children holds a full time job. As for the number of cars sold by Nanco Motors during the 2002, Mrs. Multani stated that only approximately "...four or five maybe six..." vehicles were sold.

Mrs. Multani admitted to not being aware of the dealings in the garage, and not being aware of the whereabouts of the 340 missing safety standard certificates, as she trusted her husband, in spite of his criminal record.

Submissions by Ms Aviva Harari

In support of the Registrar's arguments, Ms. Harari referred to a number of tribunal decisions as well as the Divisional Court decision of Justices Southey, Reid, and Krever, in Brenner referred to as Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) page 95.

Ms. Harari emphasizes that the Tribunal must consider the reasonableness of the decision of the Registrar, and according to the Brenner decision, in order to reverse the Registrar's decision, the Tribunal must consider that the Registrar erred in law.

She submits that in this case, the Registrar has not erred in law. Regardless of how sincere Mrs. Multani is in her intentions not to allow the situation to be repeated in the future, the fact remains that the Applicant has been given several chances in the past. Mrs. Multani has made a mockery of the system by her continuous disregard for the law. Mrs. Multani has demonstrated that the dealership is ungovernable and has failed to accept responsibility for her actions.

The Respondent's Counsel continued by listing the several occasion where Mrs. Multani has been informed of her responsibility in the dealership. As the evidence of Laura Gordon suggests, and as per documentation in Exhibit #5, as early as 1996, the Registrar's office had concerns about Mike Multani acting as salesperson for the Dealer.

In 1998, as per statement filed at Tab 13, of Exhibit #5, Mrs. Multani acknowledged being told of the seriousness of the matter and the possibility of revocation of the Dealer licence in the event of non-compliance.

Mr. Lia attended the dealership in January 2002, he finds that Mr. Multani is still representing the Dealership and participating in the sale of vehicles. A notice is again left with the Applicant. Yet, in April 2002, when Mr. Edgar visits the Dealer pretending to be a consumer, he is still assisted by Mr. Multani, who actually offered Mr. Edgar a business card for Nanco Motors with the name "Mike", hand printed on the card.

During this time, there have been several consumer complaints. In fact, there is an outstanding judgment against the Dealer, resulting from a Small Claims Court action brought by a consumer. Mrs. Multani has completely ignored her responsibility towards the regulations, towards the consumers and towards the Courts. According to Ms. Harari, Mrs. Multani has provided no evidence that she has taken any steps to protect the integrity of the Dealership.

Ms. Harari pointed out, Mrs. Multani's defense that she signs documents without reading them, is not acceptable, as the Tribunal heard the evidence of Mr. Lia, that he explained the contents of the Notice given to Mrs. Multani, prior to asking her to sign it.

Another area of concern to the Registrar is the fact that Mrs. Multani, was the principal in the garage registered under her name. Mrs. Multani evades responsibility, by admitting she did not know what her mechanic was doing. The Tribunal has heard evidence that there is a black market for Safety Standards Certificates, Mrs. Multani's lack of involvement in the garage cannot be ignored. The Registrar believes that Mrs. Multani has put the public at risk, by her failure to account for 340 Safety Standards Certificates.

With respect to the books of the business, the Respondent's Counsel, notes that simple tasks of record keeping were not maintained.

In conclusion, Ms. Harari emphasizes that Mrs. Multani's conduct demonstrates total lack of integrity, honesty, and compliance with the law, and requests that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision to revoke the licence of Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors.

In reply to the Applicant's closing comments, Ms. Harari strongly pointed out that Mrs. Multani no longer deserves another chance as she has already been given many in the past.

Submissions by the Applicant

Mrs. Multani, in closing pleaded for another chance. She stated that the situation arose because she trusted her husband. The cause of all the problems has now been eliminated, as her husband is absent from the business.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer and was originally registered on or about November 30, 1995.

2. Makhan Singh Multani was refused registration as a motor vehicle salesperson in or around November 1997.
3. Mr. Multani participated in the dealership as an unregistered salesperson for the Dealer.
4. The Dealer was advised several times by the Representatives of the Registrar that retaining the services of an unregistered salesperson is in contravention of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.
5. There have been consumer complaints concerning the Dealer.
6. The Dealer has engaged in conduct, which has resulted in charges being laid for making false statements and falsifying safety certificates under the Highway Traffic Act.
7. The Dealer has engaged in conduct, which has resulted in charges being laid under the Highway Traffic Act for failing to maintain a garage register.
8. The Dealer has permitted an unregistered salesperson to attend Dealer only auctions.
9. The Dealer has shown a disregard for the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and its Regulations.
10. On January 3rd 2003, the Small Claims Court rendered a Judgment in favour of a consumer plaintiff against Nanco Motors in the amount of $4,726.00.

THE LAW:

Section 5. (1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) an applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Although all the evidence presented has been carefully considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The issue for consideration by this Tribunal is, whether the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for the belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty.

The Respondent's Counsel submits that the Applicant's past conduct is a clear indication of a total disregard for the law.

The Applicant pleads ignorance of the facts. Mrs. Multani's testimony is that she was unaware of what other people were doing. The Tribunal finds this contention problematic. If she did not know, she ought to have known, as the licences were issued in her name.

By virtue of the licences entrusted to Mrs. Multani, she was given the trust of the people of the Province of Ontario, a trust that she not only thoroughly violated but showed contempt for, by ignoring the verbal and written warnings given to her. As early as 1996, Mrs. Multani's signature appears at the bottom of each notice that has been left at the Dealer. The Tribunal heard, and has no reason to disbelieve evidence, introduced by the Respondent's witnesses, that the documents were verbally explained to Mrs. Multani prior to her signature being sought.

The Tribunal finds as follows:

That the testimony of Mr. Edgar and Mr. Lia establishes that Mrs. Multani was aware that Mr. Multani participated in the sale of vehicles without a salesperson licence. Mr. Lia established that Mr. Multani actually completed the sale of a motor vehicle, without a sales person licence. This would occur with the full knowledge and approval of Mrs. Multani.

The Tribunal finds further that there is ample evidence of past conduct that shows that Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors is not carrying on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty.

Mrs. Multani would have the Tribunal believe that now that her husband has left, things will be different. Mrs. Multani's uncertainty when asked how many motor vehicles were sold by the dealership in the past year, offers the Tribunal no reassurance that she now has a hands on involvement in the business.

The Tribunal agrees with the Respondent's Counsel, that the Applicant's reluctance to accept responsibility in the past, is disconcerting and definitely demonstrates complete and utter disregard for the law. Furthermore, Mrs. Multani's past conduct does not negate, in fact, it corroborates the Registrar's position, that this Dealer is ungovernable.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the proposal to revoke the registrations of Rajwant Kaur Multani o/a Nanco Motors.

Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF
HEARING: January 20, 2003

DECISION
RELEASED: January 21, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on January 20, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on January 21, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was undated, and was received by the Tribunal on December 31, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Applicant sought to introduce in evidence a note from a physician dated January 16th, 2003. The Respondent's Representative objected on the grounds that the letter being submitted had not been previously disclosed to the Ministry.

The Tribunal noted the objection of the Respondent and reserved its decision.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated December 16, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received December 31, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received January 13, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.”

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

“A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal”.

FACTS:

Applicant’s Driver’s Licence was suspended “Dec 16, 2002” as per undated Notice of Appeal.

Applicant’s Evidence

In lieu of providing the information required in page two of Notice of Appeal, the Applicant submitted a report from Physician #1, dated March 28, 2002 (prior to the incident) and addressed Physician #2.

Physician #1 notes that “...the issue for referral was in relation to symptoms of depression and anxiety...” According to Physician #1 that the Applicant “...relates a history of feeling depressed, anxious and irritable together with the cessation of his usual activities due to long term hospital-based treatment as well as adjunctive care such as physiotherapy and pain related treatments...”

After examining the Applicant Physician #1 diagnoses the Applicant with “...Axis I: Major Depressive Disorder, chronic; Axis II: Deferred; Axis III: Motor vehicle accident in December 2001 – pain related symptoms; Axis IV: Psychosocial stressors – difficult finances, questionable ability to return to work; Axis V: Current GAF – 65 to 70...”

The Applicant has been prescribed Paxil as an anti-depressant agent, and appears to be deriving “...a degree of benefit...”

At the hearing the Applicant testified by reading a prepared statement into the record. In his statement the Applicant described the circumstances leading up to and surrounding the demand for a breath sample, and alluded to his disgust at what he believes was the unacceptable treatment he received at the hands of the police. Given his previous experience with the police, the Applicant believes that he is a victim of "...brutal police practices..."

The Applicant stressed that he does not drink and that he had not been drinking that night. He went to pick up his friends, who had been drinking at a Club, in order to "...protect..." them, and society, from a possible accident.

Due to a motor vehicle accident over a year ago, the Applicant sustained severe injuries, including two herniated disks, and continues to suffer from chronic pain. The Applicant's life and general health were affected to the degree that changed his life completely. According to the Applicant he is not able to work, tires easily and has "...new symptoms every day..." which, require him to see various doctors on a weekly basis.

The Applicant emphasized that he did not refuse to provide a breath sample and believes that another officer would have acted differently and let him go. At the time the Applicant asked to have a blood test, as he knows this is possible. The officer refused. Yet, the Applicant bears no ill will towards the police and continues to support the R.I.D.E. programme.

In cross-examination, the Respondent's Representative, asked the Applicant to tell the Tribunal exactly how he was feeling at the time of the breathalyzer session. The Applicant replied: "...You know, ...I have these symptoms for over a year ...and I am on a daily basis with all doctors... I am not taking the medication all the time, and the reason why I didn't ...not taking the medication for bronchitis or emphysema is because I have so many medications, I don't want to be addicted ...I was feeling I could drive the car..."

Asked specifically, by the Respondent's Representative, whether he was experiencing any breathing difficulties, at the time, the Applicant explained: "...difficulties with my breathing, you never know when they come ...in stressful situations ...difficulty breathing, yes I feel that I am breathing properly, but I am not breathing properly ...sometimes under stress I cannot take a breath..." The Applicant continued by clarifying that he has not sought medical advice regarding his breathing because he already "...too many doctors and specialists...".

When asked directly whether, at the time of the breathalyzer sessions, he was exhibiting any visible signs of breathing difficulties, the Applicant commented that; "... with the breath problem, you cannot really ...show the signs...".

The Applicant believes that he could never provide a breath sample, because he is not able to take a deep breath, as he has been diagnosed with "...asthma...". Although he does not have documentary evidence to support this belief, the Applicant asserted that he had been diagnosed with "...bronchitis, asthma, and emphysema...". The major symptoms of these diseases are coughing and discharge.

The Respondent's Representative attempted to ascertain whether at the time of the breathalyzer session, the Applicant was suffering from any of the symptoms he described. The Applicant's answer was: "...I am on stress all the time ...sometimes I cannot even walk because I am out of breath...". After further questions by the Tribunal as a means of clarification, the Applicant admitted that he was not suffering from asthma at the time of the breathalyzer.

At the time, the Applicant did not inform the officer about any of his medical problems, nor offer any reason as to why he could not provide a breath sample.

The Applicant stated that the applicant's doctor is aware of the breathing problems, but has not ordered pulmonary function tests recently, as the Applicant has been seeing too many doctors and it is difficult to make appointments with specialists. Physician #2 has never treated the Applicant for emphysema, just bronchitis. The Applicant is currently on antibiotics and has been since the 16th of January.

From time to time, the Applicant takes an over the counter "...natural syrup..." for the asthma and the emphysema.

The Applicant did not ask his family physician for a report because he thought it was better to get a report from the clinic.

In closing the Applicant reiterated the comments made during his viva voce evidence, regarding the events of the evening.

The Applicant feels that he is paying the price for trying to help his friends, and stated that from now on he will never allow anyone who is drunk in his car.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Notice to the Registrar, sealed January 8th, 2003
2. Certified Driving Record of The Applicant, sealed January 9th, 2003.

The Respondent's Representative called Police Officer #1 as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he has been a member of the Toronto Police Services for "...fourteen years...".

Police Officer #1 was on duty with a R.I.D.E. when he had occasion to stop the Applicant. Police Officer #1 continued his testimony by relating the events that led to the demand for a breath sample and the subsequent suspension of the Applicant's licence.

The Applicant was given about ten opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Police Officer #1 described the several attempts, made by the Applicant to blow into the Alcotester. Each time, the Applicant gave a "...quick puff...", and each time the instrument registered an error reading, indicating that not enough air was getting through the mouthpiece.

During his dealings with the Applicant Police Officer #1 noticed "...nothing strange..." in the Applicant's behaviour. According to Police Officer #1 the Applicant "...was fine..."

Police Officer #1 attested that at no time did he observe the Applicant being afflicted with any physical or breathing difficulty, such as wheezing or coughing. Police Officer #1 further indicated that the Applicant did not inform him that he had any medical problems, or ask for medical assistance.

In her closing remarks, Respondent's Representative contends that there is no medical reason for the Applicant's failure to provide a breath sample, and that in fact the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample. To substantiate her argument, the Respondent's Representative relied on Police Officer #1's testimony. The Respondent's Representative noted that the Applicant showed no signs of stress, breathing difficulties, or of being visibly upset.

The Respondent's Representative referred to the medical report submitted by the Applicant and pointed out that Physician #1's report fails to link the diagnosis to the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. Further to Physician #1's report is dated March 28, 2002, nine months before the incident.

With respect to the report submitted at the hearing by the Applicant, the Respondent's Representative highlighted that the report confirms that the Applicant was diagnosed with bronchitis "...today..." the date being January 16th, 2003. The report does not mention the Applicant's condition on December 15th.

The Respondent's Representative suggested that neither medical report conforms with the criteria of the Regulation 574.

In addition due to the lack of specialists' reports verifying the Applicant's condition, the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for decision the Tribunal will address the issue of the admissibility of the medical note submitted by the Applicant during Preliminary Matters. The Tribunal must abide by the Licence Appeal Tribunal Rules of Practice. The pertinent section concerning disclosure is Section 6.1 (1) which states:

“the party requesting a hearing before the Tribunal shall at the time of the request or not more than ten (10) days thereafter provide in writing to the Tribunal particulars of the facts on which the party bases the request for the hearing, and the Tribunal shall forward a copy of those particulars to any party to the proceedings.”

After considering the guidelines the Tribunal finds the Applicant's report submitted at the hearing inadmissible. However, for the Applicant's benefit, the Tribunal will comment on the relevancy of the report. As the Respondent's Representative mentioned, the Main Square medical and Dental Centre's attending physician, is quite explicit that the condition diagnosed, applies as of the date of the report which is January 16th, 2003. On the basis alone the Applicant failed to establish a link between the diagnosis in the report dated January 16th, 2003, and failure to provide a breath sample which occurred on December 15th, 2002.

With respect to the Applicant's issue concerning his request for a blood sample, the Tribunal must refer to subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended. While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained “...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken...” the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers.

According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

The Tribunal feels it is imperative to explain to the Applicant that this Tribunal has no jurisdiction to deal with issues concerning the behaviour of police officers. Further the issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all.

The appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which provides that:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The issue to be determined in this appeal is whether or not the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause, at the time of the breath sample demand, the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The bulk of the Applicant's evidence focused on issues extraneous to that issue. In dealing with the medical grounds for appeal, the Applicant told the Tribunal that he has been diagnosed with “...bronchitis, asthma and emphysema...” No documentary evidence whatsoever was presented by the Applicant to support this claim.

Unfortunately page 2 of the Notice of Appeal has been left blank, therefore denying the Tribunal possibly valuable insight into the Applicant's physical condition. The Applicant opted to submit an outdated report from Physician #1, dealing with the Applicant's general mental status, rather than having a physician complete page 2 of the Notice of Appeal as required.

The Respondent claims that the information contained in Physician #1's report, does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required. The Tribunal agrees. Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is most relevant:

"The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests"

The physician must therefore establish a link between the condition and the individual's inability to provide a breath sample. Section 15 therefore specifically states the detailed information required to be set out on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. This serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PFT represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen

It is not clear to the Tribunal why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is left blank, but the fact is, that Physician #1's report fails to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1.

The Applicant was asked several times by the Respondent's Representative to specifically describe the symptoms he experienced during the breathalyzer session. The Applicant's replies were elusive and evasive, at best.

The Applicant was unable to describe to the Tribunal, any actual physical symptoms, that would have precluded the provision of an adequate breath sample.

The Applicant maintains that breathing difficulties are not discernible. The Tribunal disagrees. It is the Tribunal's experience that the signs of breathing distress, manifested by shortness of breath and wheezing are quite noticeable even to an untrained observer. The Tribunal heard and accepted the evidence presented by Police Officer #1, that the Applicant exhibited absolutely no signs of physical distress or discomfort during the breathalyzer session. Nor did the applicant communicate to the officer any difficulties with breathing.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony was insufficient to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from complying with the demand for a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 16, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 14, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 15, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit #1 - Copy of Suspension Reminder Notice dated December 31, 2002
- b) Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal Dated January 14, 2003, with attachments

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit #3 - Materials and Submissions of the Respondent dated February 24, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal there by having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15. (1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant, aged 41, was stopped at approximately 9:00 p.m. on December 28, 2002. It is the Applicant's evidence that once stopped, his truck door was flung open by the arresting officer and he was grabbed, pulled out, and forcibly put over the hood of his truck. The officer then forced handcuffs on which were too tight. The Applicant refused to get into the police car until the handcuffs were loosened. He was then transported to the Fergus police station where he was searched and the handcuffs removed. The Applicant was then held in a room while effort was made, inadequate effort in the opinion of the Applicant, to contact his lawyer in Toronto. It is the Applicant's evidence that he requested his heart medications while at the police station, repeatedly, but they were not given to him. (The Applicant had heart surgery, angioplasty, in September, 2002).

In his written submission the Applicant states he had not been drinking that evening, in cross-examination he stated that he had consumed one beer.

The applicant's sworn evidence with respect to why he did not provide a breath sample was that he blew into the machine four times and that he began "passing out from blowing out" and that he "was sore" and that it "got to point hurting too much". In his written submissions the Applicant stated: "I proceeded to blow into the machine four separate time with in five minutes. I was fainting from blowing and having the blood flowing through my veins again. I explained I was very dizzy etc."

In cross-examination the Applicant was asked whether he had said anything to the breathalyser technician about his condition and he stated "I was asking for my medications". When asked specifically did he say he was having chest pain the Applicant's evidence was "I did explain that I was passing out". The question was repeated and the Applicant replied "no".

The Applicant also confirmed in cross-examination that "I was more vocal", "I wasn't being polite", "Yah I kicked the door, I was trying to get someone's attention, I was asking for my medication".

Police Officer #1, of the O.P.P. - Fergus Detachment, administered the breathalyser test to the Applicant. His sworn evidence was that for the first two attempts the Applicant just laid the mouthpiece in his mouth and made no attempt to blow. On the third attempt he observed that the Applicant was attempting to blow but did not seal his mouth around the mouthpiece so that the air simply blew into the room. On the fourth attempt the Applicant blew into the machine for one second, which was insufficient to provide a sample. He offered the Applicant one last opportunity to provide a breath sample, but the Applicant refused to try stating "you will hear from my lawyer, I'm fuck.'n done".

Police Officer #1 testified that he questioned the Applicant at the time of the breath test to ascertain whether he had a reason why he could not provide a breath sample and his evidence was that the Applicant responded "Yah, I told you I had a bad heart". Police Officer #1 testified that he did not observe the Applicant having any breathing difficulties, rather that the Applicant was belligerent and talking in a loud voice.

Police Officer #2, of the O.P.P.- Mount Forest Detachment, was the arresting officer. His evidence with respect to the roadside events contradicted that of the Applicant. According to him the Applicant got out of his truck himself. He did confirm that the Applicant requested his medication at the police station. Police Officer #2 testified that he had concerns whether the Applicant should have his medication (having the opinion he had been drinking) and therefore took the Applicant to the Hospital after the Applicant had been charged and released.

At the Hospital a physician in the emergency department assessed the Applicant. A copy of the Emergency/Outpatient Record and Triage Record and Nursing Notes were filed with the Applicant's Notice of Appeal. According to these records the Applicant was given an ECG and had his vital signs checked. No medical intervention took place and the attending physician confirmed that the Applicant could take his medication. Police Officer #2 testified that the Applicant was given back his medications at the hospital but did not in fact take them. In cross-examination the Applicant stated that he waited until he got back to a friend's house.

The Applicant in his evidence on cross-examination pointed out the fact that his blood pressure taken at the hospital, and noted on the Triage Record, was higher than normal, 151/93, and that "this says it all" as to why he could not provide a breath sample.

Finally, in his summation the Applicant argued that if he hadn't been slammed on the hood of his truck he would have been able to provide a breath sample. He agreed he had been belligerent but that he felt he was manhandled and not treated with respect.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

In order to succeed in his appeal the Applicant must prove that he had a medical condition that prevented him from providing a breath sample. Through oral evidence and written submissions the Applicant has suggested four different reasons why he failed to provide a breath sample:

- 1) that he has high blood pressure;
- 2) that he has a bad heart;
- 3) that the handcuffs had affected his circulation, and lastly and most significantly;
- 4) that he was in too much pain as a result of being slammed up against the hood of his truck.

The Applicant provided no medical report(s) as described by Reg. 574. The Tribunal accepts that the Applicant has had heart surgery and has above normal blood pressure, however, there was no evidence before the board to suggest that these facts in themselves would preclude the Applicant, or any person, from providing a breath sample.

The suggestion that the tight hand cuffs worn during transportation played a role in the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample is simply not accepted as there is no evidence of any kind to support this.

Lastly, with respect to the argument that he was in too much pain. It is apparent from the facts that the Applicant was very vocal and let his complaints be known yet he failed to mention he was in pain. Even when asked by Police Officer #1 why he might not be able to provide a breath sample the Applicant did not indicate he was in pain. The tribunal notes that in his written submissions filed with his Notice of Appeal, dated January 14, he does not claim he was in pain at the time of the breath test. Given these facts the Tribunal concludes that the claim to be in too much pain was simply an after thought.

The focus of the Applicant in both his written and oral evidence was on what he perceived to be mistreatment by police. This perceived mistreatment, whether founded or not, was the basis for his admitted belligerent and disruptive behaviour but it is not a basis for appeal under Sec. 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act. In the absence of any medical evidence in support of the Applicant's claims, and in view of the facts set out above, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to prove the merits of his appeal.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated December 28, 2002, of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

REGISTRAR, TRAVEL INDUSTRY ACT

WAIVER AND CONSENT

In accordance with section 4.1 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, the parties hereto waive the requirement of a hearing and consent to a Decision in writing based upon the following Agreed Statement of Facts and Joint Submission.

AGREED STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. McDonnell Travel Ltd. o/a Thomas Cook Travel ("the Registrant") was registered as a travel agent (Registration No. 50008201/R) on July 31, 2000.
2. On June 19, 2001, TICO performed a site inspection of the Registrant. The visit revealed that the Registrant's Travel Industry Act trust account was dormant, and due to the absence of trust accounting, posed a risk to the Fund. A follow up visit was scheduled to ensure that trust accounting had been implemented and properly maintained.
3. On December 3, 2001, TICO performed a site inspection as a follow up to the June 19, 2001 inspection, re: trust accounting. It appeared that the Registrant had corrected the trust accounting compliance issues revealed during the June 2001 inspection visit.
4. On October 19, 2001, the Registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001, which were due by September 30, 2001. The statements reflected a working capital shortfall of $56,350, based on sales of $616,097.
5. By letter dated November 6, 2001 the Registrant was advised by TICO of its working capital shortfall of $56,350 and given a due date of November 21, 2001 to provide evidence of correction.
6. On November 12, 2001, the Controller for the Registrant, Kevin Deacon, telephoned to discuss how to address the working capital issue. Mr Deacon further stated that he "was meeting with the franchisor for Thomas Cook to see whether the franchise was worth saving or whether they would voluntarily terminate the registration".
7. On November 26, 2001, Ms Karen Romans, franchise regional support manager, telephoned TICO to advise that she had hired a full time accountant for the Registrant, as the Registrant had no administrative background. She advised that the books and records "were a mess" and needed time to provide a new financial statement as at December 31, 2001.
8. By letter dated January 22, 2002, the Registrant was reminded that its working capital shortfall needs to be corrected.
9. On February 28, 2002, the Registrant submitted an interim financial statement to January 31, 2002. The statements reflected a working capital shortfall of $36,702.

10. On March 6, 2002 the Registrant was issued a final due date of March 25, 2002, to correct its working capital shortfall of $36,702, failing which a proposal to revoke would be issued.
11. On March 25, 2002, the Registrant submitted a copy of a deposit slip showing a $37,000 injection on March 21, 2002, as evidence of correction of its working capital shortfall.
12. On August 13, 2002 TICO performed a site inspection to ensure that the cash injection into the company on March 21, 2002, had not been removed. It appeared that the Registrant had not removed the funds as at the date of the visit.
13. By letter dated May 23, 2002, the Registrant was requested by TICO to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2002, by September 30, 2002.
14. By fax dated September 26, 2002, the Registrant's accountant requested an extension to file the Registrant's financial statements for fiscal June 2002 by November 30, 2002.
15. By fax dated September 26, 2002, TICO notified the Registrant's accountant that TICO was unable to agree to an extension for the filing of financial statements for the Registrant.
16. By letter dated October 3, 2002, the Registrant was requested by TICO to file the June 30, 2002 financial statements no later than October 15, 2002.
17. By letter dated October 23, 2002, the Registrant was issued a final due date of October 31, 2002 to file its financial statements for fiscal June 2002, failing which a proposal to revoke would be issued.
18. On November 14, 2002 TICO telephoned the Registrant to advise that the financial statements for fiscal June 2002 must be submitted by November 18, 2002.
19. On November 15, 2002, the Registrant's accountant telephoned and stated that the financial statements for the registrant should be submitted by November 30, 2002.
20. On November 26, 2002 the Registrant's accountant telephoned and stated that the financial statements for the Registrant for fiscal June 2002 may not be submitted by November 30, 2002, as there "were issues that needed cleaning up". The accountant further stated that she was unable to give a submission date, and asked what steps would be taken by TICO. The accountant was advised by TICO that a proposal to revoke would be issued.
21. To date the Registrant has failed to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2002, which were due by September 30, 2002.
22. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

JOINT SUBMISSION

Accordingly, the parties consent to an order of the Licence Appeal Tribunal under subsections 6 (4) and (5) of the Travel Industry Act directing that:

1. the Registrar refrain from carrying out the Proposal to Revoke Registration;
2. the Registrant's registration is to be subject to the following terms and conditions:
 - (a) The Registrant shall file complete financial statements, including a reconciliation of customer funds and customer obligations, as required by section 24 of the Regulation, for its fiscal year ended June 30, 2002, no later than March 15, 2003;

- (b) If the above-noted statements reflect a working capital deficiency, the Registrant shall correct any and all working capital deficiencies and provide evidence of its current working capital position by April 30, 2003. At all times thereafter, the Registrant shall maintain the minimum working capital as required by section 25 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time;
 - (c) The Registrant shall file complete financial statements, including a reconciliation of customer funds and customer obligations, as required by section 24 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time, for its fiscal year ending June 30, 2003, no later than September 30, 2003;
 - (d) The Registrant shall file complete financial statements, including a reconciliation of customer funds and customer obligations, as required by section 24 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time for its fiscal year ending June 30, 2004, no later than September 30, 2004; and
 - (e) If the above-noted financial statements as filed are incomplete, the Registrant will have 14 days from the date of notice of the deficiency to fully and completely address the deficiency and produce proof of such correction to the Registrar. Notice of the deficiency, if any, shall be sent by registered mail to the Registrant.
- 3. Should the Registrant fail to comply with conditions listed in paragraphs (2) (a) to (e) inclusive, the Registrar shall revoke the Registrant's registration on five (5) days written notice sent via hand delivery or by registered mail.
 - 4. This order shall enure to the benefit of and be binding upon the respective successors and assigns of each of the parties to this order.

INDEPENDENT LEGAL ADVICE

The Registrant further acknowledges by its signature below that it has obtained or has had the opportunity to obtain independent legal advice with respect to its consent to the terms and conditions set out in this document.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWRITH

DATE OF
HEARING: February 24, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS

- (1) Notice of Suspension of Driver's Licence from the Ministry dated June 20, 2002.
- (2) Notice of Appeal by the Applicant received at the Tribunal January 27, 2003.
- (3) File Summary introduced by the Respondent.
- (4) Applicant's Driving Record introduced by the Respondent.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 49 year old steel worker, had his licence suspended on June 6 2002 by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles. A Medical Report was received from Physician #1 advising that the Applicant had suffered a full body seizure, while at work on March 13, 2002, however, there was no biting of the tongue or incontinence. There was a history of a similar experience in July 2001, while at his cottage. At that time he was hospitalized for 4 days. Physician #1 also noted that the Applicant has a drinking problem and drinks on a daily basis.

This notice arrived in the Ministry Offices at the time of the Public Service strike, so it was June before the Ministry could react. The response was a request for a complete neurological assessment with results of an EEG, MRI and CT Scan as well as a report on the Applicant's alcohol status and an Alcohol Assessment Form completed, with interpretation of bio-chemical markers.

An internist, Physician #2, saw the Applicant on October 28, 2002 and in his report gave the details of the two reported incidents, which he diagnosed as withdrawal seizures related to alcohol use. He enclosed a follow-up EEG report which did not reveal any evidence of epileptiform activity. Also enclosed were a Holter Monitor report which disclosed isolated ventricular premature beats and couplets and an Echo/Doppler report, which showed mild concentric LVH function, degenerative changes of the aortic valve and mild aortic insufficiency.

A laboratory report, dated December 2, disclosed a normal AST- 29 (6-42) and an elevated Gamma GT -83 (5-50). An Alcohol Assessment Form indicated the Applicant had started drinking again after his March episode, but has been abstinent since October 5, 2002. On December 20, 2002 the Ministry informed the Applicant that his driver's licence would remain under suspension until a Medical Report confirmed he had been seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

The Applicant was upset that because of the strike he had not been notified earlier and now the starting date is October rather than March. He claims that if he had known, he would not have started drinking again. The Applicant's driving record indicates he had been convicted of drinking and driving in 1992 and refusing a breathalyzer test in 1996. His habit was to drink 6-7 bottles of beer daily and always at home or with friends.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle; conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, when informed in March, 2002 that the Applicant had suffered two full body seizures in the past year and had a drinking problem.

The Applicant has a long history of alcoholism with two previous alcohol convictions and two alcohol related withdrawal seizures leading up to his suspension. He was informed by several physicians why the seizures had occurred, but started drinking again, for several months. He admits to many attempts in the past to stop completely, without success.

The Guide for Physicians "Determining Medical Fitness to Drive" states in Section 5.5 "Seizures Induced by Alcohol Withdrawal" – "Patients who have had alcohol seizures should not drive any type of motor vehicle. Before they can recommence driving these patients must complete a recognized rehabilitation program for substance dependence and remain alcohol free and seizure free for 12 months".

The evidence establishes that in March, 2002, the Applicant suffered a full body seizure, which has been diagnosed as withdrawal seizure related to alcohol use. He continued to drink until October, 2002. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant suffers from a disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle. Due to the two full body seizures diagnosed as withdrawal seizures, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant is addicted to the use of alcohol to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Tribunal finds the evidence presented supports the above noted recommendation and is sufficient to warrant a continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 20, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 17, 2003 to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on February 18, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 20, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on January 27, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice dated January 9, 2003 – issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received January 27, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received February 11, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "January 8, 2003" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant submitted as his documentary evidence, page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which, was prepared by the Applicant's physician of "20 years, 7 months", Physician #1, on "Jan 14/03".

Under the headings set out hereinafter, Physician #1 writes:

"Details and Diagnosis of patient's present condition: Asthma. This patient has a long history of asthma, since childhood, mainly aggravated by exercise, cold air & second hand cigarette smoke."

History of Condition: "He chronically uses inhalers for control. He was unable to cooperate with recent breathalyzer test (symbol) of exposure to cigarette smoke & was unable to access his inhaler – this is consistent with the diagnosis..."

Type of Measurements or recent tests taken...

Relevant details of visit and when your patient was last seen?"

At the hearing, the Applicant, read from a prepared statement, which reiterated his position, that he is appealing the suspension of his driver's licence on medical grounds.

The Applicant confirmed that he has suffered from asthma since childhood, and that the breathalyzer procedure was hampered by the officer's denial to allow him the use of his inhaler.

The Applicant described the occurrence for the Tribunal, emphasizing that he had not consumed any alcohol, prior to being stopped. Although the Applicant cooperated with the officers, and attempted to provide the best possible sample of breath, he was unable to do so. The Applicant believes that the reason he was unable to provide an adequate breath sample is that he had spent the night in a smoky room, and was feeling the effect on his breathing.

After not being able to blow into the device, the Applicant informed the officers that he was asthmatic and asked to be allowed to use the inhaler, which, was in his vehicle. According to the Applicant, the officers “restricted” the Applicant’s use of the inhaler.

The Applicant concluded his chief testimony by informing the Tribunal, of the hardship that he has endured since the night of the incident, and requesting that the Tribunal reverse the suspension.

In cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that he has a history of asthma, which, is aggravated by cold air, exercise and smoke filled rooms. The Applicant was not feeling well as he had spent the night in a smoky environment.

The fact that the Applicant felt intimidated by three officers standing over him, made him nervous, and the tension aggravated the condition.

Asked specifically, by the Respondent’s Representative, to describe his symptoms on the night in question, the Applicant replied that he was gasping for air and was not able to get a full breath of air. As he was unable to inhale fully, the Applicant was also not able to exhale the same amount of air as “...a normal person...”. The Applicant believes that it would be easily discernible to the officers that he was wheezing and having difficulty taking a deep breath.

The Applicant did not refute the statement that, during the brief period of incarceration, he was singing in the cells. However, the Applicant denied singing “...at the top of his lungs...”, as suggested by the Respondent’s Representative.

The Applicant confirmed that he was still experiencing breathing difficulties after being released, and that he continued to feel uncomfortable for a few days after the incident. In response to the Respondent Representative’s question as to how soon after leaving the station he used his puffer, the Applicant stated: “I never took it after that”.

As far as visiting his physician, the Applicant confirmed that he needed no immediate medical attention. The Applicant called his physician’s office and accepted an appointment a week hence.

The Respondent’s Representative, asked the Applicant if he had seen a respiratologist recently and had any pulmonary function tests performed. The Applicant is not sure whether he has had pulmonary function tests done in the past. The Applicant recalls being hospitalised when younger and assumes that some tests might have been performed then. Lately, the Applicant has learned to live with his condition, in fact, in the “...last six years...” the Applicant verified that he has been able to “...grow out of it ...past the stage ...of asthma attacks...”.

In closing the Applicant, repeated his assertion, that he had asked for his inhaler at the time, and that even though the officers did not notice, he was having breathing difficulties.

Further the Applicant is confident that had he been allowed to use the inhaler he would have been able to provide a breath sample, passed, and not need to appear before the Tribunal.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed January 29, 2003.
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant sealed January 29, 2003.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Search sealed, sealed January 29, 2003.

The Respondent's Representative called Police Officer #1 as the Respondent's first witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he is currently a member of the Hamilton Police Services and has been a police officer since “...September 2000...”.

Police Officer #1 related the events that led to the demand for a breath sample and the subsequent suspension of the Applicant's licence.

Police Officer #1 noted that each time the Applicant attempted to provide a breath sample, he would “...blow on the machine for approximately one second, take his mouth away from the machine, and claim that he had asthma and could not perform the duties...”. The Applicant was given eleven opportunities to provide a breath sample.

At no time, did the Applicant request permission to use an inhaler or request medical assistance. During his dealings with the Applicant, Police Officer #1 did not observe the Applicant exhibiting any signs of respiratory distress. In fact Police Officer #1 could hear, through the heavy steel door of the cell, the Applicant singing loudly.

The second witness to testify on behalf of the Respondent was Police Officer #2, also with the Hamilton Police Services. Police Officer #2 has been a police officer “Just a little over one year, January 2002”.

Police Officer #2 was asked by the Respondent's Representative to take the Tribunal through the events of the night in question.

He stated that on the first try, the Applicant “...would put the machine up to his mouth and he would blow for a second, then stop, exhale, wait for a couple of seconds that [sic] start talking about how he has asthma and could not provide a sample...”. After the fourth attempt by the Applicant, Police Officer #2, who suffers from asthma as well, demonstrated that he could blow into the device.

Police Officer #2 attested that at no time did he observe the Applicant being afflicted with any physical or breathing difficulty, such as wheezing or coughing. Police Officer #2 is quite certain that the Applicant never asked to use the inhaler. Had the Applicant asked, Police Officer #2 would have definitely retrieved the inhaler from the Applicant's car, and allow him to use it.

Police Officer #2 confirmed that he heard the Applicant singing. Police Officer #2's personal experience with asthma, is that there is a tight feeling in the chest, that he would not "...want to sing...".

In his cross-examination of Police Officer #2, the Applicant asked the Constable to clarify his testimony, particularly as to whether the Applicant has asked for the inhaler or not.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition, which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. Mr. Biel argued that the Applicant simply had no intention of providing a breath sample. This argument is substantiated by the observations of both Constables, as well as the behaviour of the Applicant.

Neither officer noticed the Applicant exhibiting any signs of breathing difficulties. The Applicant was able to sing quite loudly. It is unlikely that anyone having difficulty breathing could sing at the top of his lungs. Further, the Applicant did not require the use of an inhaler after leaving the station, nor seek medical intervention.

According to the Respondent's Representative, there is absolutely no medical evidence by way of current medical reports to support the Applicant's argument. The Applicant has introduced no specialist reports, nor any pulmonary function test results.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause, at the time of the breath sample demand, the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand. The applicable section under the Act is, as stated hereinbefore is Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

In dealing with the medical grounds for appeal, the Applicant takes the position that he was unable to provide a breath sample, because he has suffered from asthma since childhood.

The Respondent's Representative insists the Applicant's failure to comply with the breath demand was not due to a medical condition, but that the Applicant simply had no intention to provide a breath sample.

The Tribunal found the Applicant's evidence credible, and has no doubt that the Applicant, as corroborated by Physician #1's report, has suffered from asthma most of his life. The issue to be determined by this Tribunal, is whether the Applicant's condition at the time of the breathalyzer could have precluded him from providing an adequate sample.

The Tribunal agrees with Physician #1's conclusion that cigarette smoke is an irritant that aggravates any respiratory dysfunction. Nonetheless, it is apparent that Physician #1's opinion that the Applicant: “...was unable to cooperate with recent breathalyzer test ...exposure to cigarette smoke ...was unable to access his inhaler...”, is based on information provided by the Applicant. With all due respect to the Applicant's physician, Physician #1, was not present during the incident, and is, therefore, not privy as to what transpired.

The Tribunal must depend on the viva voce evidence of the Applicant and the eyewitness evidence of the officers involved.

The Applicant claims that he was unable to provide a breath sample because he was denied the use of the inhaler. Constables #1 and #2 attest that the Applicant did not ask to use the inhaler. In fact Police Officer #2 suggested that had the Applicant asked, he would have retrieve it from the Applicant's vehicle. The Tribunal will not attempt to make a finding as to this issue. Rather, the Tribunal will focus on the Applicant's behaviour, and any visible physical symptoms the Applicant may have been exhibiting at the time.

There are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are discernable even to an untrained person. Police Officers #1 and #2 were in direct contact with the Applicant. Neither officer detected, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

As for the Applicant's own testimony, the Tribunal finds it to be problematic and implausible. The Applicant did not deny that he sang for a period of time after being placed in a cell. The Tribunal agrees with the testimony of Police Officer #2, who, is asthmatic himself. It is, inconceivable as well as inconsistent with the condition, that the Applicant would feel like, or be able to sing, while experiencing shortness of breath due to asthma.

The Tribunal considered the testimony regarding the use of the inhaler after the Applicant was released. By his own admission the Applicant declared: "I never took it after that". Given, that the Applicant maintains that he was gasping for air, while trying to inhale, the Tribunal finds it improbable that the Applicant's shortness of breath, would have subsided without the aid of an inhaler.

Further, since the Applicant's condition did warrant seeking medical assistance immediately or shortly after the incident, the Tribunal must infer that the condition was not severe enough to preclude the Applicant from providing an adequate breath sample.

The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce from the Applicant, to satisfy the Tribunal that the Applicant has a medical condition, which would have prevented the Applicant from providing a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 9, 2003 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

(6) Photostats of several Medical Reports, Introduced by the Applicant's Counsel.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 62 year old school bus driver had his Class BM driver's licence downgraded to a GM by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles on September 3, 2002.

The Ministry had received a Cyclical Driver's Medical Report from Physician #1, the Applicant's family physician, reporting that the Applicant had a history of Cardiovascular Disease and had suffered a Myocardial Infarction in November 1998. The Ministry's first response was to request a waiver of the medical standards from his physician, if he wished to maintain his classified licence.

Physician #2, an internist, forwarded a waiver and a medical report on December 18, 2002. The report stated that the Applicant underwent coronary angiography following his myocardial infarction and was found to have coronary artery disease and circumflex disease, but could be managed medically. He had exercise testing in April 2001, which demonstrated some ST-T changes in various leads, indicating ischemia, but he never experienced any chest pain.

Physician #2 recommended that the Applicant should have his Class B licence renewed.

The Applicant gave evidence that he had been driving a 72 passenger school bus for the past 4 years. He had previously worked for General Motors for over 30 years. His bus driving involved 3 hours of driving 5 days a week in the city.

The Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) recommended downgrading his licence to a Class GM, but the Ministry first demanded an up-to-date detailed internist's assessment in a February 11, 2002 letter.

Physician #2 responded on May 15, 2002 with the results of another series of exercise stress tests, which demonstrated the same ST depressions as the other tests. He made arrangements for a cardiolute exercise test, but again recommended that the Applicant's BM licence be renewed.

On April 4, 2002 a Nuclear ECG stress test disclosed changes significant with myocardial ischemia without any chest pain. The radiologist remarked that the positive interpretations are silent ischemia versus a falsely positive stress ECG. Another part of this study reported there was an appropriate rise in the left ventricular ejection fraction with exercise.

The MAC recommended downgrading of the Applicant's licence on July 31, 2002. The reason being the Applicant does not meet the requirements for a commercial licence or waiver consideration due to demonstrated reversible ischemia on stress testing (N.S.C.3.1) (Exhibit # 3).

Physician #2 sent a letter to the Ministry on September 9, 2002 questioning why the licence had been downgraded. He followed this up with another letter on September 27, 2002 reiterating his findings and stating the Applicant's physical status is unchanged and thus the reported changes in the Nuclear stress tests are false positive. He once again recommended that the Applicant's licence be reinstated.

The MAC responded on November 29, 2002, repeating that the tests show ischemic changes and in spite of being asymptomatic he does meet the C.C.S. functional requirements.

The Applicant was then seen by Physician #3 a cardiologist at the General Hospital and more tests were done by another cardiologist, Physician #4. The summary, in Exhibit # 6, states:

1. Preserved left ventricular function with inferior hypokinesis.
2. Moderate coronary artery disease in the LAD (left descending artery).
3. Focal severe stenosis in the circumflex distal segment.
4. Recannulized occlusion of the RCA with collaterals.

Physician #3, in a letter dated January 23, 2003, states there is little change in the new tests from the March 1999 tests. The exercise will show ischemia inferiorly despite good collaterals. The collateral flow is sufficient to maintain a non ischemic myocardium under mild to moderate conditions, but under high conditions of stress (exercise) the defect will be noted. He added, in the absence of change and having continued as a driver in the interval, until he was recently stopped because of a positive exercise tests, it would, in his opinion be reasonable to his returning to the bus.

Physician #2's last letter on February 17, 2003 (Exhibit # 6) discusses the Applicant's coronary angiography on January 8, 2003. It showed improvement in blood flow in the occluded right coronary artery and collaterals. The left main was normal and the left anterior descending had moderate disease in the range of 50% in the proximal segment.

Physician #4 stated at the time the Applicant was asymptomatic with a positive exercise test showing infralateral ischemia and no significant new wall motion abnormalities on exercise RNA scanning.

Physician #2 repeated that he could see no reason at this time why the Applicant should not be allowed to continue his employment.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,

 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

When the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles became aware of the Applicant's coronary artery disease it was necessary to investigate how serious the condition was and determine whether the disease would create a danger to the public. The Medical Advisory Committee reviewed all of the medical reports and recommended downgrading the Applicant's driver's licence.

A cardiologist and an internist examined the Applicant and ordered a multitude of ECG's, x-rays, nuclear tests and various stress exercise tests. At least 2 medical waivers and multiple medical reports were sent to the Ministry from the specialists recommending the Applicant's Class BM licence be reinstated. They acknowledge the Applicant's ECG's demonstrate some "ST" depressions during stress testing, which are indications of ischemia, but state he has never experienced any chest pain.

The issue of no chest pain during the stress tests is of little significance, since the Applicant did not experience any chest pain when he suffered the myocardial infarction in 1998. He claims he has greater tolerance when he exercises at home then when he is doing the stress test and is stopped because of ST depression. This is no doubt because he is unaware of the ST depression and does not experience angina to warn him to stop. The Applicant stated that he also wears a "nitro" patch at all times, which would reduce the possibility of angina even more.

After examining all of the available evidence the Tribunal determined that the persistent finding of ST depression in all of the stress tests cannot be ignored. This is objective evidence of heart disease, since the ECG changes are exercise-induced. This puts the Applicant in the Canadian Cardiovascular Society Class II, which would make him only eligible to drive a taxicab.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant holder of a BM licence suffers from a physical disability which is likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle, contrary to Section 14 Regulation 340/94 of the Act.

The Applicant suffers from coronary artery disease with myocardial ischemia. His medical history raises a significant concern about his ability to drive. Due to the absence of symptoms, the Applicant could suffer a serious cardiac event without warning, placing the lives of school children in great jeopardy.

The Tribunal has carefully considered the specialist's recommendations, but finds the evidence of ischemia too significant to ignore, because the Applicant is driving a large 72 passenger school bus. Therefore the Tribunal finds there is enough evidence under Section 32(12)(b)(i) to warrant the downgrading the Applicant's driver's licence from Class BM to Class GM.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 3, 2002 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 04, 2003 to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on March 06, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated February 12, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on February 14, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Respondent's Representative informed the Tribunal that the Registrar was agreeable to proceeding without the viewing of the videotape of the Applicant's breathalyzer session, as the hearing room is not equipped with a video system.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated January 9, 2003, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received February 14, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received February 26, 2003.

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is:

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended on "Jan 9/03" as per Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant submitted Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, prepared by his physician of "1 years and 7 months", together with several laboratory blood analysis results, as well as report of findings of an Abdominal and pelvic ultrasound.

Physician #1 describes the Applicant's medical condition as follows: "Diabetes Mellitus for years with complications ...peripheral vascular disease & cirrhosis of liver and splenomegally ...gout ...cervical spondylitis."

At the hearing, the Applicant proceeded to tell the Tribunal about his financial and general life situation.

The Applicant testified that the officer "...talked very loud ...yelled and yelled and yelled". The officer's loud voice was very disturbing and aggravating, "...like a slap in the face..." because of the fact that the Applicant wears a hearing aid.

As far as the night in question, the Applicant repeatedly stated that he was not drunk, and that he did not have an accident. At the time of the breathalyzer, the Applicant was feeling well, except for a ringing in his ears, which happened after several attempts of trying to provide a breath sample.

Under cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that he does not believe that the diabetes could have prevented him from providing a proper breath sample.

In response to the Tribunal's question, posed as a matter of clarification, the Applicant verified that he has not been diagnosed with any respiratory illnesses, and does not suffer from any breathing difficulties.

By way of closing remarks the Applicant commented that he does not understand how the police can say that he was drinking "...grape juice...". The Applicant emphasized that he does not drink, was not drinking at the time, did not have an accident, nor hurt anybody.

The Applicant complained about being a prisoner in his own home, as without a car, he is not able to go out.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy Notice to the Registrar, sealed February 17, 2003.
2. Certified Copy Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed February 17, 2003.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Record, sealed February 17, 2003.

The Respondent called as a witness, Police Officer #1, from the Regional Police Service. Police Officer #1 has been a police officer for “...twenty-two and half years...”

Police Officer #1 detailed the events that led to the Applicant's arrest and his being turned over to the breathalyser technician. During the time that Police Officer #1 spent with the Applicant, before and after the breath test, Police Officer #1 did not observe the Applicant exhibiting any signs of respiratory distress. Further, at no time, did the Applicant request medical assistance.

Police Officer #2 was also called as witness by the Respondent's Representative. Police Officer #2, who is with the Police Service, has been a police officer for “almost ten years...” and qualified “...as breathalyser technician as of June 16, 1997, and designated and qualified as an Intoxilyzer technician on February 11, 1999...”

Police Officer #2 described for the Tribunal the Applicant's numerous attempts to provide a breath a sample. According to Police Officer #2, the Applicant alternated between not meeting either the pressure or the time requirement. At times the Applicant provided sufficient pressure but not long enough to allow the machine to register. There were times when both the pressure and the time requirements were met, but the Applicant was not able to maintain the slope needed to register the amount of alcohol in the blood. Police Officer #2 also noticed that there were times when the Applicant was just not exhaling into the device.

The Applicant's appearance was dishevelled. He was incoherent, rambled and behaved in a rude, boisterous manner. The Applicant told Police Officer #2 he was diabetic, and had several other illnesses, but was not able to name any of the medication that he has been prescribed. The Applicant did show Police Officer #2 a prescription bottle with his name, and advised Police Officer #2 that “...he had a penis infection at that time...”

When asked by Police Officer #2 why he was not providing a breath sample, the Applicant told Police Officer #2 that she “...had enough information...”

During the breathalyzer test session, Police Officer #2 did not notice the Applicant showing any signs of physical discomfort. Further, the Applicant never asked for any medication.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition, which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. Mr. Biel argued that the Applicant simply had no intention of providing a breath sample. This argument is substantiated by the observations of both Constables, who at no time noticed any signs of breathing difficulties, such as shortness of breath. In fact, the Applicant confirmed that he has no respiratory disorders.

Mr. Biel, the Respondent's Representative pointed out that Physician #1's medical report does not link the diabetes with the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal feels it is imperative that the Applicant understand that at issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired at the time, or has a need to drive.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Applicant takes the position that he was unable to provide a breath sample, because of a medical condition and supports his claim with a medical report from his physician. Physician #1's report establishes the Applicant has been diagnosed with: 'Diabetes Mellitus ...peripheral vascular disease & cirrhosis of liver and splenomegally ...gout ...cervical spondylitis.'

The Respondent's Representative mentioned the fact that Physician #1 fails to connect the Applicant's condition to his ability or inability to provide a breath sample.

The Tribunal must agree. Physician #1 does not offer any rationalization or justification of how the Applicant's condition may affect the Applicant's breathing pattern. In his somewhat incoherent viva voce testimony, the Applicant, by his own admission, stated that he has no respiratory illnesses, was not experiencing breathing difficulties at the time, and was feeling fine, except for a slight ringing in his ears after several attempts.

As there are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are visible even to an untrained person, the Tribunal also relies on the testimony of the eyewitnesses who were involved in the incident. Both, Police Officer #1 and Police Officer #2 were in direct contact with the Applicant. Neither officer noticed, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

The Tribunal finds there is absolutely no evidence that the Applicant's medical condition precluded the Applicant, at the time of the breath sample demand, to fail to provide an adequate breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 9, 2003 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

HEARING: February 27, 2003

DECISION
RELEASED: March 5, 2003 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on February 27, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Suzanne Nault (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1996 Suzuki X90 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	February 7, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 27, 2003 and proceeded as a teleconference.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I lended my car to my son Nicholas Raymond to go to work because his was in the garage. On Sunday night at approx 11 pm Darren asked Nicholas to borrow the car because he had to go to work and if he was late one more time he was going to get fire. Nicholas ask him if he had a valid driver licence and Darren said yes and show him his driver licence. Attach is a statement from Darren verifying this statement.

The loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship already that to miss two days of work and also all the cost associated with it – impoundment cost, the repair cost, loss of wages also no having the vehicle to go to work.

The Applicant is a single mother with one of two adult sons still residing at home. She is employed full-time at Ontario Power Generation in Pickering, 27 kilometers from home as a mechanical maintainer. She starts each business day at 6:30 a.m.

The circumstances surrounding the impoundment resulted due to a car accident. The following is a brief synopsis.

The Applicant's son, Nicholas, who does not reside with the Applicant, borrowed her vehicle so that he could play hockey. Darren Rankine, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, and a friend of Nicholas's for about the past 3 years, asked Nicholas at the arena, if he could borrow the vehicle to go to work at Arcon, located in Richmond Hill. Mr. Rankine advised Nicholas that it would be returned to him in the morning, after his midnight shift. Mr. Rankine is currently under probation at work and a threat of losing his job is possible if he continued to be tardy. Nicholas was satisfied that Darren had a valid driver's licence because Darren had shown it to him upon inquiry.

Mr. Rankine, while having care and control of the Applicant's vehicle allegedly stopped at a red traffic light wherein he was rear-ended. Mr. Rankine called Nicholas from the hospital to advise him of the impoundment.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 3 and 4):

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Darren Rankine;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs of alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 25, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Appeal – Due Diligence

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that Darren Rankine's driver's licence at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension.

The Applicant is the owner of the vehicle that has been impounded as set out in the vehicle and plate portion of her driver's licence, a copy of which is attached to Exhibit 2. She also owns a 1999 Pontiac Grand Am.

Subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence and the onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was performed which is required under this section of the Act.

The Applicant lent her vehicle to her son. The Tribunal is assuming that she was unaware that her son was going to lend her vehicle to a friend. In a document provided by the Applicant's son, Nicholas, he confirmed that he exercised due diligence and a driver's licence was viewed (Exhibit 2). Unfortunately, the Applicant's son is not the owner of the vehicle.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

Appeal – Exceptional Hardship

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d).

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Tribunal's consideration of subsections 22(3)(a), (b) and (c) follows:

- (a) "no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available". The Applicant has conceded that she is also the owner a 1999 Pontiac Grand Am which she is currently using as an alternate vehicle (Exhibit 3).
- (b) "the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting". The Applicant testified that (i); she has taken 2 vacation days due to her vehicle's impoundment; (ii) she has not had nor has missed any doctor's appointments; (iii) although there is no need to use public transit, the Applicant lives in a community where public transit, GO trains and taxis are available; and (iv) in the event of an emergency, the hospital is approximately 6 kilometres from her home.
- (c) "the impact of loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle". The Applicant's 25 year old son who currently resides with her, uses the vehicle to attend a trade school. Since the impoundment, he has walked to school.

These criteria are cumulative. That is, all of these criteria must be met before the Tribunal may consider the ground of "exceptional hardship" under section 50.2(3)(d). On the evidence, none of the criteria have been met.

Evidence was heard that the Applicant has incurred financial hardship as a result of the loss of the vehicle. The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, Darren Rankine, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

After considering the above requirement, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will not be immediate, significant and lasting as required by section 22(3) of Regulation 574 as amended by Regulation 632/98.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

A hearing was held on February 28, 2003, at Oshawa, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Christian Braunoehler (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: Chev GM 4, plate 887OEE (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: February 13, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on February 28, 2003 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

1. the Ministry's impoundment Order will result in exceptional hardship;
2. there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle available;
3. the impact of the loss of the vehicle will be immediate, significant and lasting;
4. the loss will be upon persons other than the person whose driving while his driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle;
5. every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into.

AFFIDAVIT OF CHRISTIAN BRAUNOEHLER

I, CHRISTIAN BRAUNOEHLER, of the city of Pickering, in the Regional Municipality of Durham, Manager of Andy & Frank Excavating, MAKE OATH AND SAY:

1. I am the legal owner of the impounded vehicle that is the subject of this appeal.
2. Mr. Andrew Happe was the driver of the vehicle at the time it was impounded. Mr. Happe did not have my permission to drive my(sic) as I was aware that he was a prohibited driver.
3. Mr. Happe currently owns and operates an excavating business jointly with his father, Frank Happe. The name of the business is Andy & Frank Excavating and its head office is located in Pickering. The business has been operating for about 20 years and currently employs seven people. I have been employed by Andy & Frank Excavating for over 11 years.
4. The sole purpose of the business is excavation. The company owns four excavators, two Bob Cats, two Blades as well as other hydraulic machineries and equipments that service the business. All of these machineries require fuel regularly.
5. The vehicle that was impounded by the Ministry is a fuelling truck that is used to fuel all of the heavy machineries and equipments that are used in the day-to-day operations of the business. The fuel truck holds approximately 550 liters of fuel. Attached to my fuel truck is a trailer that is used to haul the smaller machineries(sic) to various job sites. This trailer was impounded along with the truck.
6. The successful operation of the business depends on these machineries. The winter season is ordinarily a busy season for the company who currently has several contracts for snow removal, breaking and dumping ice, etc. These contracts must be fulfilled. However, since the impoundment of the fuel truck, all business operations have ceased.
7. I have inquired into the rental of a fuel truck but the cost is excessive. In addition, I don't have access to company funds to undertake this immediate financial obligation. On February 6, 2003, the police arrested Mr. Happe for Driving While Prohibited. Mr. Happe remains in custody in Penetanguishene and the expected date of his release is sometime in July 2003. Mr. Happe's father is co-owner of the business but is presently out of the country on an extended leave. Since I do not have signing authority of the company's funds, I am not in a position to rent another fuel truck for the duration of the Ministry's impoundment.

8. I do not know whether Mr. Happe considered the possible drastic consequences to his actions before de(sic) decided to act. For the [past seven months I have been responsible for driving Mr. Happe back and forth on business and personal errands. I have been diligent in assisting Mr. Happe with following the Order of the court by ensuring that all aspects of the business that required driving a vehicle was carried out either by myself or by another employee. On occasions that I was not available to drive Mr. Happe on some errand, another employee would fulfil this role. On the day Mr. Happe was caught driving. I was out on a job site and had left my fuel truck at the business location so that it can be available for fuelling the machines. I did not give Mr. Happe permission to move the truck, however, I later learnt that he had moved the truck about 1000 feet in order to dump some sand. Mr. Happe acted entirely on his own when he chose to violate this Court Order, and his action will cause a lasting impact on the business and its employees.

9. Most of these employees have been with the company for several years and depends on the business for their livelihood. Thus the loss of business revenue would have an immediate and significant economic impact on them. Further, a loss of employment would result in undue hardship for the seven employees and their families.'

10. The survival of the business depends upon the immediate release of my fuel truck and I therefore, request an Order that the Ministry's impoundment order be set aside and that the Ministry pay all costs related to the impoundment.

The applicant's lawyer R. Metelsky called her client C. Braunoehler as her witness and proceeded to develop their position through his testimony. The Applicant has worked for an excavating company for the past eleven years. His prime function is to supply fuel etc. to the equipment used at different sites and transport this equipment to new projects as needed. The trailer he uses in this operation is still impounded but could be released by contact with the ministry for the required papers. To date the Applicant has not pursued this path.

There are seven employees affected by the impoundment of the Applicant's vehicle who might lose their jobs and indeed the whole company may fail in the absence of some solution to the loss of the refuelling truck.

A replacement fuel truck was considered but thought to be too costly. No evidence of cost was submitted or names of rental companies that were contacted. The fact that the principal owner was at the time out of the country seemed to be a factor as he would have to supply the money to rent the unit.

The driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment was Andrew Happe who is under suspension until March 2007 before the resolution of this charge. He is currently incarcerated and in no position to help financially even though he is co-owner of the business with his father.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Andrew Happe.
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March, 2007

During the Respondent's examination of the Applicant it was determined that the business was still operating even though with some difficulty and diminished productivity. The employment of 20-liter cans is currently servicing the fuel requirements of the equipment but not as efficiently as the fuel truck.

It was also determined that the owner of the business, Frank Happe is back in the country and in spite of a sudden illness would now be able to lend his financial support to the rental of a suitable replacement vehicle during the impoundment period. It had been the intention of the Applicant's lawyer to have Frank Happe testify at the hearing but regrettably he was too ill to appear. No written statement was available from Frank Happe either.

In general testimony it was established that there was some additional inconvenience servicing the equipment with fuel through the use of the use of fuel cans.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

- (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d), exceptional hardship.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under Section 50.2 (3)(d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of his vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship. The Applicant's lawyer refers specifically to Regulation 574 Section 22 (a)(b)(d) and (i).

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific. The Applicant must meet these clearly defined criteria to establish exceptional hardship as a result of impoundment.

The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under Section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or loss of employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in Section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available. Furthermore Section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored including an alternative vehicle. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to establish that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

In this case the Applicant demonstrated a less than aggressive effort to replace the impounded vehicle in spite of what he considered severe consequences because of the loss of his vehicle to himself and others. No evidence was presented to the Tribunal by way of rental estimates for small truck equipped with a trailer hitch. This would have provided transport for the 20-liter fuel cans and brought back the stored trailer into service. The cost barrier to a rental unit stated in the Applicant's submission was removed by the return to home of the owner of the business in which the impounded vehicle was employed.

The Applicant has failed to show that every reasonable option was considered to replace the impounded vehicle with a rental unit. This is the first test and the evidence submitted by the Applicant did not support his basis for Appeal of the Impoundment Order under Section 22(4) of the Regulation.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: March 4, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 4, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: 1208242 Ontario Inc. (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: 1994 Pontiac GFS, plate ANKY 251 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: February 14, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on March 4, 2003 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

To: Licence Suspension Appeal Board
From: Jairam Chiekrie
1208242 Ontario Inc. o/a Cheap Wheels 4 Rent.
Date: February 11, 2003

Re: Owner's Position

On, February 6 , I rented a car, licence plate ANKY 251, to one Michael D. Savory. On that day I filled out the contract based on information from his driver's licence, which he presented to me. He never indicated to me that his licence was suspended neither did I had any reason to doubt the validity of his licence. He called me on February 7th, 2003 and told me that the car in question was seized and impounded by the MTO and would not be released until after 45 days because "they said his licence was suspended for unpaid overdue parking tickets."

I would like to make this appeal based on the grounds that it will cause exceptional hardship on the company. The company will have to pay $ 800.00 storage fee plus loss of projected revenue of about $ 600.00. Our company is single location company with only two employees and does not make any great profit, very recently we experienced a 50% increase in our insurance premiums and had to lay off one of our employees. I am working seven days a week to make ends meet especially in these slow winter months.

The renter does not have any balance on his credit card remaining, so my alternative is to take him to court. This exercise will on prove fruitless because even if judgment is made in my favor it will be impossible to collect since he does have any money, not to mention the cost of filing a claim against him.

I would ask the board to give me a chance since this my first case of this kind. I am very careful with customers who make cash deposits and tend to be more trusting to credit card customers. I suppose I will have to check the validity of every customer's licence rather than just accepting it on sight.

I thank you for your kind consideration.

(sic)

The Applicant testified that he rented a car to Mr. Savory for a month, for a rental fee of $599 plus taxes. On the day of the rental Mr. Savory presented his Driver's License and a credit card. The Applicant stated that he then processed a charge of $300 against the credit card by calling the credit card issuer and agreed with Mr. Savory that the balance would be due upon the return of the car in early March. The Applicant further stated that he assumed that the presented driver's license was valid and did not do anything to verify it. When asked about his car rental business the Applicant stated that this particular car was one of 30 and that the business also had about a dozen other vans and small trucks for rent. The Applicant further stated that the business generated approximately $30,000 per month in gross business and that in its 8 years of operation it had never had a car impounded and that he was unaware that he could, or should, check the validity of a driver's license with the Ministry of Transportation.

In response to questions about how the business was suffering "exceptional hardship" due to the impoundment, the Applicant restated his written position relative to lost revenues and the impound storage expense. When questioned, the Applicant did admit that the original $300 credit card charge did mitigate the claimed $600 revenue loss.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Michael Savory;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Remain at Accident under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until December 17, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The evidence presented by the Respondent points out that several conditions have to be met to meet the criteria for exceptional hardship set out in the Act, and that these criteria are cumulative. The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of exceptional hardship, in accordance with section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act. Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship under the Act will result from the impoundment.

Though inconvenienced, the Applicant has not presented the Tribunal with evidence that would prove the loss of the vehicle would be immediate, significant and lasting, as required per section 22(3)(b) of the Regulation. The Tribunal does not consider a financial loss claim of approx. $1100 to be significant or lasting to an enterprise that generates $30,000 per month in sales.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to meet the onus under the sections 22(3) and 22(4) of the Regulation, and that the Tribunal is therefore precluded from further considering the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship under section 22(2).

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 6, 2003, at Kitchener, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Sherry Shuba (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1993 Buick LLF, plate AMXF 231 (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: February 19, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on March 6, 2003, and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing. The representative for the Registrar provided original certified copies of the materials filed with the Tribunal.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows:

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

On the weekend of Feb. 14th, 2003, I was helping a friend move to Sault Ste. Marie. I left Friday night driving a moving van there. Upon my return home on Monday I found out that my vehicle had been impounded.

I would like to appeal this decision (sic) under the loss will result in exceptional hardship. We moved here 2 years ago and have no family here except my two daughters (age 17, 23). My youngest daughter lives with me. She has changed schools 3 times, she has a learning disability and has had a difficult time. She is attending Lutherwood in Kitchener. I drive her 3 times a week. My oldest daughter has 2 small children. Her husband works for a vending company, he leaves their home at 4 am and is not back until 2 pm or later. I supply rideies (sic) to her and my grandchildren for the doctors or if an emergency situation (sic) happens.

I only have this vehicle and am not in the position to buy another. Albert was dismissed from his job 6 weeks ago, he worked days (7am, 3pm) I worked afternoons (4pm, 1am) in Cambridge. I was dismissed two weeks ago. Our savings are very low. I have a new job opportunity in Ayr at the Schnieders plant, which is about 40 miles away. There are no buses that travel there on a daily basis (sic). I have looked into renting a car but don't have a credit card, all car rental companies require one.

If this results in a 45-day impoundment I would not be able to get my car back until April 1st. I would possibly lose my home leaving my daughter and myself in a very difficult situation.

The Applicant, in her oral testimony reiterated her above submissions as to why the loss of her car will cause exceptional hardship:

- (1) she has a teenage daughter who has a learning disability and who she drives to school 3 times a week;
- (2) she assists her adult married daughter, who does not drive, transport her infant children to the doctor's or in emergency situations, and
- (3) she is currently unemployed but she has a job opportunity in Ayr which she needs her car to get to.

In cross examination the Applicant confirmed that her teenage daughter can get to school using public transit, that her married daughter's husband has a car, and that she had not formally applied for the job in Ayr but that a friend, a supervisor of maintenance, has put in a word for her with the supervisor of production. When asked what alternative modes of transportation she has investigated, the Applicant stated she had got a quote from a cab company as to the cost of a ride to Ayr based on a distance of 40 miles, although she hadn't checked on what the actual mileage would be, and that it would cost too much to make it worth it. When asked if she had looked into buses between Kitchener and Ayr she replied she had not. She had only considered the local city buses, which she did not believe, would be an alternative mode of getting to Ayr.

The Applicant also testified that she has a part-time job in Kitchener working weekends, 2 shifts, earning $12.50 an hour and that she has made application for unemployment insurance although she suggested because she was fired from her last job she may not get it. She could not explain why her application might be denied. She also testified that her mother is currently helping her with her rent.

Lastly, in cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that this is in fact the second vehicle she has had impounded as a result of her spouse driving while suspended. The other car had been a 1985 Chevy and had been impounded in Sault Ste. Marie about 4 years ago.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Alber J. Shuba;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of impaired driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

The Registrar submitted no oral evidence.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

- (4) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In her oral testimony the Applicant stated that this is the second vehicle of her's, which has been impounded due to her husband driving while suspended. Although not argued by the Registrar, subsection 50.2(4), as set out above provides that subsection 50.2(3)(d), exceptional hardship, does not apply when there has been a previous order to impound with respect to any vehicle then owned by the same owner. Although the Applicant testified to this fact, the Registrar submitted no evidence of the previous order to impound. If that had been the case this Appeal would fail on that basis. However, the Tribunal does not want to rely solely on the testimony of Applicant in the event the facts are not as she stated.

To succeed in an appeal based on exceptional hardship under subsection 50.2(3)(d), the Applicant must meet the very specific criteria set out in section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, set out above.

There is no evidence before the Tribunal to suggest the loss of the vehicle will result in a threat to the health or safety of any person or any thing as set out in section 22(1).

Under section 22(2) the Tribunal may consider whether there will be a loss of education, [section 22(2)(d)], or loss of employment opportunity, [section 22(2)(c)], however, the Applicant must demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle and the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting, [section 22(3)].

It was clear from the Applicant's testimony that her teenage daughter can reach her school using public transit. This is an alternative to the impounded vehicle. This alternative should eliminate any threat of loss of education.

With respect to the Applicant's claim that the impoundment will result in the loss of an employment opportunity in Ayr, the Tribunal was not satisfied by the Applicant's evidence that every reasonable option had been considered and inquired into to show there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle. The only inquiry made was to a cab company, without verifying the distance she needed to travel. The Tribunal was also not satisfied that an employment opportunity would in fact be lost. The Applicant has not actually made any application for employment with the company in Ayr or spoken with the individual(s) who would be hiring her to confirm the availability of the position and her suitability for it. She merely spoke to a friend who spoke to friend who put in "a word" for her.

Given the criteria set out in section 22(1) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 6322/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

Pursuant to Sections 6(1) and 7 of the Travel Industry Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1990, Chapter T.19, (the "Act"), a Notice of Proposal dated June 21, 2001, (the "Proposal") was issued by the Registrar under the Act (the "Registrar") to revoke the registration of Value Vacations Ltd. (the "Applicant") as a travel agent and by order temporarily suspended the said registration effective the date upon which the Proposal was issued (the "Suspension Order").

The Applicant by a Notice of Appeal dated June 22, 2001 (the "Appeal") and filed at the offices of the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") on June 28, 2001, required a hearing by the Tribunal in respect of the Proposal and the Suspension Order pursuant to Section 6(2) of the Act.

The Proposal and the appeal was set down for a hearing before the Tribunal on July 12, 2001, and at that time and at the request of the Applicant, the hearing was adjourned by the Tribunal for the purpose of affording the Applicant an opportunity to engage and instruct counsel to represent the Applicant. On July 12, 2001 the Tribunal heard evidence from three witnesses and continued the Suspension Order pending a prehearing conference (the "Prehearing Conference") before the Tribunal for the purpose of identifying and/or simplifying the issues contained within the Proposal and the appeal.

The Tribunal issued an Interim Order released July 27, 2001 (the "Interim Order"), respecting the adjournment, the continuation of the Suspension Order, the evidence presented at the said hearing of July 12, 2001 and the need for a Prehearing Conference in order to refine the issues raised in the Proposal and the Appeal.

Participation in the Prehearing Conference was set down for a conference on August 8, 2001, in accordance with the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal. At the Prehearing conference, both the Registrar and the Applicant, Charles A. Pinnock, were present and participated.

At the Prehearing Conference it was noted that the particulars alleged in the Proposal resulted from numerous alleged breaches by the Applicant on several separate occasions respecting the same issue or issues. The Registrar has set out sixty-two items in the Proposal in which specific particulars of non-compliance by the Applicant of statutory or regulatory requirements were alleged. It was also clear at the Pre-hearing Conference that "the categories or issues were subordinate to the main issue of the Applicant's ability or fitness to comply with the regulatory requirements of the Act as determined by the Registrar and to do business with other Registrants and wholesalers".

The enumerated items of non-compliance fell into the following categories:

- late filing of financial statements,
- failing to maintain working capital,
- misuse of credit cards,
- issuing NSF cheques,
- failing to meet its financial responsibilities to wholesalers,
- misrepresentation,
- failing to notify the Travel Industry Council of Ontario ("TICO") of changes in its financial institutions,
- deficient advertising,
- failure to maintain proper records, and
- failure to deal with customers' complaints.

On September 7, 2001, the Registrar issued a Notice of Further or Other Particulars, which added other specific allegations to the above-mentioned list of headings. The Registrar also added new allegations relating to the Applicants ability to carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty, by alleging that the Applicant continued to carry on business as a travel agent despite the Interim Suspension Order.

On December 11, 2001, the Registrar issued a Notice of Further or Other Particulars, which added other specific allegations concerning the Applicant continuing to carry on business as a travel agent despite the Interim Suspension Order.

The Registrar takes the position that the Applicant is not entitled to registration under section 4 of the Act on the grounds that; it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, that the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, that it is in breach of the terms and conditions of registration and that the Applicant is in contravention of the Act and the Regulations.

The Applicant takes the position that in collecting this information the Registrar's staff grossly failed in the following respects:

1. it did not critically analyze any of the information regardless of its source;
2. it completely failed to fully or at all to investigate the various allegations;
3. it did not fully understand the information gathered and misconstrued its significance and/or effect;
4. it purposely and negligently ignored material evidence.

Furthermore, the Applicant argues that the Registrar strayed far from its mandate and its statutory jurisdiction into an area of trade disputes which have no bearing whatsoever on consumers and the criteria set out in the Act, which are to be considered in granting or refusing someone's license. The Registrar's staff had taken the approach that every issue including ones previously reviewed and accepted and however minimal or non-consequential ought to be part of the proposal, in the apparent effort to attempt to persuade the Tribunal with mere volume of materials rather than on basis of clear evidence and proper legal principals.

The Applicant contends that the result was a Proposal which is unnecessarily lengthy and complicated and which in the end contained no credible allegations necessary to support the upholding of the Registrar's proposal and the resulting deprivation of license.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence in this matter was both oral and documentary. The following persons appeared before the Tribunal and testified:

Jack Foster

Jack Foster was the first witness called by the Registrar. He gave oral testimony on December 6 and 14, 2001. Mr. Foster testified that he is a Certified Management Accountant and has been employed as an Inspector, designated by the Registrar since May, 1993. In his capacity as an Inspector, Mr. Foster routinely reviews financial statements and performs on-site inspections of travel Registrants to determine their financial viability and their compliance with the Act. Mr. Foster indicated that he has performed thousands of Abench reviews of Registrant financial statements. He estimated that he performed over 500 on-site inspections. He has first-hand knowledge of the Applicant and has since 1997, conducted eleven on-site inspections of the Applicant's business premises.

Rachel Palozzi

Rachel Palozzi was the second witness called by the Respondent. Ms. Palozzi is employed as a Compliance Officer by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (hereinafter referred to as TICO) and is an Inspector, designated by the Registrar. As TICO's Compliance Officer, Ms Palozzi has corresponded with the Applicant concerning issues of non-compliance including advertising deficiencies, NSF cheques, and credit card problems. Ms Palozzi has also dealt with several tour operators, who have notified TICO that they have ceased to trade with the Applicant by reason of the Applicant's apparent lack of financial responsibility, as they are obligated to do under subsection 18(1) of the Regulation. Ms Palozzi gave oral testimony on December 14, 2001 and February 7, 2002.

Antonette Ermellini

Ms Antonette Ermellini was the third witness called by the Respondent. She gave oral testimony on February 7, 2002 and February 27, 2002. Ms Ermellini is the manager of accounts receivable for North American Leisure Group o/a Sunquest and Alba Tours (NALG). She has held that position since 1994. In her testimony, Ms Ermellini referred to several documents, which were collectively bound in a brief marked as Exhibit 12.

Ms Ermellini also produced evidence of charge backs to NALG in relation to the Applicant, which were marked as Exhibits 13 B 17.

Ms Ermellini gave evidence that the Applicant owed an outstanding account of $57,512.50 in respect of Toronto Star newspaper advertising.

Ms Ermellini testified that in the fall of 1998, NALG stopped selling its travel services to the Applicant and advised the Applicant of this in or around October 7, 1998. She testified that the Applicant managed to book through Nalg's computer system until the end of that year, although it did not have permission to do so.

Tammy Crane

Ms. Tammy Crane gave evidence on February 27, 2002 and March 21, 2002. In her testimony, Ms Crane referred to several documents, which were collectively bound in a brief marked as Exhibit 20. Ms. Crane testified that she has been employed by Signature Vacations, a tour operator registered under the Travel Industry Act, since March, 1987 and is currently their Manager of Customer Accounts.

Ms. Crane also testified that or about July 25, 1997, Signature Vacations contracted with Charles Pinnock to allow the Applicant to sell and advertise Signature vacation packages.

Ms. Crane indicated that in 1998, Signature received several credit card charge backs in relation to the Applicant. The Applicant also issued an NSF cheque during this time. Ms Crane stated that on September 14, 1998, Signature refused to accept any more bookings from the Applicant.

She further indicated that by January 5, 1999, the Applicant owed Signature $11,907.77 for travel services relating to eight customers. On January 6, 1999 the Applicant was placed on third party collection for the outstanding amount owed. Its account with Signature remained closed and it was not permitted to sell Signature Vacation packages. Its account has not since been re-opened. On June 4, 1999, Signature obtained a default judgment against the Applicant and Mr. Charles Pinnock for the sum of $12,002.86 plus $399.00 costs, plus interest.

Immelda Accosta

Ms. Immelda Accosta was the first witness called by the Applicant. She gave oral testimony on March 21, 2002. Ms Accosta testified about past bookings made by the Applicant through Amazonas Travel. Ms Accosta did not have any first-hand knowledge of the Amazonas booking transaction, which was formed part of the Proposal.

Charles Pinnock

Mr. Charles Pinnock was the second witness called by the Applicant. Mr. Pinnock is the Applicant's principal. He is the Applicant's sole shareholder and officer and director. Mr. Pinnock gave extensive testimony on March 21, 2002, May 1, 2002, June 20, 2002, July 16, 2002, September 15, 2002, November 14, 2002 and November 15, 2002. His testimony is described in more detail throughout this Decision.

Yvonne Harris

Ms. Yvonne Harris was the third witness called by the Applicant. Ms Harris gave oral testimony on November 15, 2002. Ms. Harris is an Accounts Receivable Supervisor with Signature Vacations and reports directly to Ms. Tammy Crane. Ms. Harris gave evidence regarding her experience in the travel industry, particularly her knowledge of the charge back process and charge backs in the travel industry. Ms. Harris also gave testimony in respect of her dealings with the Applicant.

Ownership of Applicant

The Applicant was initially registered as a travel agent (registration number 2301830) on December 14, 1984. The Registrant's registration was suspended on August 14, 1990 and lapsed on December 14, 1990. Mr. Pinnock was the principal of the Applicant during this period. On April 17, 1997, the Applicant was reinstated as a travel agent.

There was an issue between the parties as to who was actually in control of the Applicant and for what period of time. Mr. Pinnock indicated that from April, 1997 to the fall of 1998, he was employed as a reservation agent and did some marketing. Mr. Pinnock indicated that Ms. Inna Zelener, the identified 60% shareholder and Mr. Patrick Daley managed the company during that period. Mr. Pinnock testified that in or about June 3, 1998, he and Inna Zelener reached an agreement for the transfer of the travel agency to him. He further testified that the transfer was a gradual process and that the effective ownership and control did not change until about April, 1999. About that time, a solicitor completed the transfer, filed the requisite Notice of Change with the Ministry and advised TICO. Until that time, Ms. Zelener was identified as the president and majority shareholder. She was operating another travel agency, named IPT at that time. Ms. Zelener was not called as a witness.

It is noted that Ms. Zelener's release to Charles Pinnock and Value Vacations (Exhibit 115) was signed on June 3, 1998. According to a letter from Patrick Daly, the Comptroller for the Applicant and IPT, Ms Zelener maintained signing authority of the Applicant's CIBC accounts until November, 1998 (Exhibit 28). It is also stated by Mr. Daly that Zelener and her backers agreed to loan Pinnock $70,000 to start the company (Value Vacations Ltd.). On October 22, 1998, Mr. Pinnock had executed a Schedule A Form (Exhibit 5, Tab 38) to become the manager of the Applicant. In November, 1998, the office of the Applicant was moved by Mr. Pinnock to a different location.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant's Form 1, filed with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (Exhibit 115), shows Lloyd Pinnock to be director and general manager of the Applicant between March 25, 1997 and April 27, 1999. Charles Pinnock (aka Lloyd Pinnock) certified that the information set out in the Form 1 was true and correct.

On the oral and documentary evidence produced, the Tribunal finds that Charles Pinnock was in daily control and the true manager and controlling mind of the Applicant since March, 1997. This was subject only to Zelener protecting her investment by retaining authority over cheque writing. Despite her Release of Pinnock and the Applicant June 3, 1998, she retained cheque writing authority until the fall of 1998.

Late Filing of Financial Statements

Subsection 24(1) of Ontario Regulation 806/93 (the "Regulation"), made under the Act, states that every Registrant shall file with the Registrar financial statements for each fiscal year.

Subsection 24(2) of the Regulation states that if the Registrant had sales of less than $10 million during the previous fiscal year, the Registrant shall file, within three months of the end of the fiscal year,

- i) annual financial statements with a review engagement report by a public accountant licensed under the Public Accountancy Act; or
- ii) annual financial statements with an audit opinion from a public accountant, if the Registrant is required to obtain annual financial statements with an audit opinion under the Business Corporations Act.

Subsection 24(5) of the Regulation states that the financial statements shall include a statement of sales made during the period, a balance sheet, an income statement and a reconciliation of customer funds and customer obligations.

The Registrar alleges that despite three contacts by TICO the Applicant did not file financial statements due July 31, 1998 until September 29, 1998.

Charles Pinnock testified that letters regarding financial statements were all addressed to Inna Zelner and were in regard to the period of time that she had exclusive control of Value Vacations. Pinnock further testified that when he became aware that the statements were not filed, he immediately contacted the accountant and wrote to TICO on August 10, 1998 (Tab 24 of Document Brief Volume 1 Exhibit 5). He advised TICO that, due to system failure at the accountants the financial statements were going to be two to three weeks late. Furthermore, on September 18, 1998, Inna Zelner wrote to Michael Pepper and again confirmed that the statements were being delayed due to computer problems but that they would be delivered within several days (Tab 4 of the Applicant's Document Brief – Exhibit 7). The financial statements were filed on September 29, 1998.

The Registrar again alleges that it took several contacts with the Applicant before the financial statements due July 31, 1999 were filed on September 30, 1999.

The Tribunal notes that the first two contacts were only form letter reminders, as the statements had not yet become due. Pinnock testified that when he changed the location of offices in November of 1998, he also changed accountants. Pinnock further testified that the lateness of filing resulted, in part, from the new accountant not being familiar with the accounts. He had not obtained the necessary documents from the old accountant until a short period of time prior to the filing deadline as a result of an outstanding account incurred by previous owners of Value Vacations. Pinnock was in contact with TICO regarding the financial statements and testified that he had instructed his accountant to contact TICO directly and advise them when the statements would be ready. Charles Pinnock confirmed this by letter to TICO on or about August, 1999 (Tab 29 - Registrant's Document Brief Volume 2 – Exhibit 6).

The Tribunal finds Pinnock failed in his duty to provide financial statements on time. He was in total control of the Applicant. All matters with Ms. Zelener had been settled by that time. Not paying the accountants of the Applicant showed financial irresponsibility.

2000

Financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 2000, were due by July 31, 2000. The accountant had communicated and written to TICO on July 31, 2000 (Tab 23 of the Applicant's Document Brief - Exhibit 7) regarding the late filing of the statements prior to receiving any inquiry or reminder from TICO.

The Applicant filed its financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 2000, which were due by July 31, 2000, on August 21, 2000.

The Applicant was late again, however the Registrar did not complain until this proposal.

2001

By letter dated March 27, 2001, Ms Pamela Stout, Financial Inspection Co-ordinator with TICO, reminded the Applicant that its financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 2001 were due by July 31, 2001.

By letter dated August 21, 2001, the Applicant informed TICO that it did not believe it was required to submit its financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 2001 due to the present Licence Appeal Tribunal proceedings. The Applicant indicated that it would attempt to submit its financial statements by September 10, 2001.

The financial statements for the Applicants fiscal year ended April 30, 2001, which were due by July 31, 2001, were received on or about November 18, 2001.

Application of law to facts relating to late filing

The following cases establish the law in this area:

Karin Travel v Registrar Travel Industry Act (May 3, 1996) Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the travel agency had failed to file its financial statements as required. It was argued that allowing the Registrant to remain open for business would not pose the danger to the public. There was no issue that the filing of the required financial material was not made. The Tribunal directed that the Registrar should revoke the registration of the travel agent and found that the requirement by the regulations to the Act to submit financial statements does not confer discretion upon the Tribunal. The legislation, which was passed after extensive consultation with the industry, made the prompt filing of financial statements to be a necessary prerequisite for the continued registration of a travel agent.

Crystal Travel Ltd v Registrar, Travel Industry Act (March 15, 1996) Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the travel agency had failed to file its financial statements as required and asked that the Tribunal not revoke its registration and promised on behalf of the travel agent to file the required documentation within the next three month period. The Tribunal held that the registrar was correct in finding that the failure to file the required financial statements contravened the Act and the regulations, and that the travel agent was thereby not entitled to registration under the Act. It was found at page 3 of the decision that:

"it is the nature of a regulated industry that certain requirements for continued registration must be met for the mutual advantage of the industry and consumer. In this fashion the consumer is guaranteed a measure of protection against business failures with negative consequences for consumers and those regulated companies reap the benefit of working in an industry with enhanced public credibility as a result of effective regulation."

Luna Travel Agency Inc. v Registrar, Travel Industry Act (May 3, 1996) Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the travel agency had failed to file its financial statements as required, even as of the date of the hearing. The agent on behalf of the travel agency apologized for this and promised to file the documentation as soon as possible. The Tribunal found that the requirement to submit financial statements does not confer any discretion upon the Tribunal and that the registrar was correct in finding that the failure to file financial statements disentitled the Registrant from being registration under the Act. It was found that the purpose of the Act was to monitor the financial health of travel agents and thereby avoid insolvencies and bankruptcies which had occurred earlier in the industry

Applying these principals to the present case, in the Karin case the Registrant had not filed its financial statements for over a year after they were due and had not done so by the time of the hearing. At paragraph 13 of the decision, the Tribunal determined that as the statements were not filed, it had no discretion to allow the registration to continue. The Tribunal also pointed out that once the statements were filed, this would constitute a material change in circumstances, which could entitle the Registrant to reinstatement of its license. As such, it was argued that the Tribunal implied that even a one year delay in filing financial statements may not mean that the Registrant is precluded from registration but that the Registrant is not entitled to be registered so long as it is in default of its obligation to file financial statements.

Both Crystal Travel and Luna Travel Agency decisions, express the same point of law as set out above in the Karin Travel decision. In both of these cases the Registrants failed to file financial statements as requested and had not done so by the time their respective hearings were held. Since at the time of the hearing each of the Registrants was in default, the Tribunal felt that it had no discretion to permit the registrations to continue.

In the present case the Applicant had always been late in filing financial statements, although they had all been filed by the start of this hearing. That is not to say that by filing statements before a hearing that an Applicant can escape all liability. At some point excuses wear thin, even for minor delays. A continual late filer can be held accountable by reason that it demonstrates that it cannot be reasonably expected to act in accordance with the law or be financially responsible in the conduct of its business. The Applicant has reached that point.

$10,000.00 Security

In order to properly address the issue of a shortfall of working capital, one must first review the issues of the $10,000 security deposit and the Zelener loan.

Subsection 26(1) of the Regulation provides that a person who has not been registered during the previous 12 months shall provide $10,000 in security to the Council when applying for registration on or after June 24, 1998.

Subsection 26(2) of the Regulation provides that the Corporation shall transfer to the Council all security that it held immediately before June 24, 1998.

Subsection 26(3) of the Regulation provides that the Registrar shall return the security to the Registrant 24 months after the date of registration, less an amount for any claims paid or anticipated to be paid to customers of the Registrant by the Corporation or the Council for the costs of the Corporation or the Council, as the case may be.

It was submitted that the Registrar has residual discretion under subsection 26(3) to hold the security provided under section 26, if he anticipates that there would be claims and costs to TICO in respect of a Registrant. It was admitted that the decision of the Registrar must be reasonable and there must be a legitimate basis for his belief that claims and costs are anticipated.

In accordance with the requirements of the Act, Value Vacations paid a $10,000.00 deposit in or about March, 1997 and Value Vacations was registered on April 17, 1997. The evidence does not show that the Registrar had any serious belief in April, 1999 that there would be any claims to be paid to customers of the Registrant or that retaining the deposit had even been considered by the Registrar. After one of the final inspections on March 3, 2000, Jack Foster concluded in his report (Tab 42 of Document Brief Volume 2– Exhibit 6, at page 2) that Value Vacations was not a threat to the compensation fund. During cross-examination, Mr. Foster also testified that at that time there were not anticipated claims against the fund.

As such, in accordance with the Act, the amount of the deposit of $10,000.00 ought to have been released in full to Value Vacations in April, 1999. As it was not released, it could not be considered as part of the Applicants working capital. The Applicant had not asked for the security deposit to be released.

Zelener Loan

Pinnock testified that initially Inna Zelener lent him the sum of $34,000.00 to be used in the business. Pinnock testified that this was a personal loan to him, however the loan from the very first statement was improperly recorded as a company liability. Over the next few years, Charles Pinnock, paid down the loan to about $23,566.00. In or about May, 1998, Inna Zelener agreed to transfer her shares in Value Vacations to Charles Pinnock providing he continued to repay her his loan to her. When it was discovered that this loan was recorded in the financial statements as a liability of the company, Pinnock gave Zelener a promissory note for $23,566.00, which had the effect of injecting the money into the company.

By fax dated September 14, 2000 (Exhibit 122) Mr. Pinnock advised Pamela Stout, TICO's financial inspections co-ordinator, "Regarding your letter dated August 29, 2000 please be advised that prior to April 30, 2000 Charles Pinnock had advanced the company funds to repay the outstanding loan of $23,566.00". The letter from Pamela Stout dated August 29, 2000 stated that the financial statements showed a working capital deficiency of $12,350.00, and continued to state "To comply with the Regulation, an improvement of $17,350.00 in working capital is required to attain the minimum required. This can be achieved by means of a shareholder advance."

By giving a promissory note to Zelener for the $23,566.00, which was recorded as a debt of the Applicant, this was no longer a debt of the company but became a personal debt of Pinnock and a shareholders loan to the Applicant. The Tribunal also notes that there was an undated handwritten letter from Pinnock to Zelener (Exhibit 26), wherein he had made a proposal to Zelener regarding the startup of Value Vacations, which proposal contemplated a loan to Charles Pinnock personally.

Mr. Foster in his testimony and affidavit, gave evidence that during his October, 2000 inspection of the Applicant, Mr. Pinnock explained to him that the $23,566.00 loan, which had appeared on its financial statements, was from Ms Zelener, and that Ms Zelener had agreed to charge the loan to Mr. Pinnock personally. TICO requested proof that the loan was personal. In October, 2000, Charles Pinnock provided to TICO a personal promissory note in the amount of $23,566.00. TICO then requested a letter from an accountant confirming the effect of the promissory note. A letter was provided to TICO by the company's accountant on or about November 20, 2000, which confirmed that the loan was at all times personal to Charles Pinnock and thus wrongly recorded as company liability. TICO did not ask for anything else.

Failure to Maintain Working Capital

The requirement to maintain minimum working capital is another term and condition of a travel agent's registration. The working capital requirements are laid out in section 25 of the Regulation.

Subsection 25(1) of the Regulation states that a Registrant shall maintain a minimum working capital of $5,000.00 if the Registrant had sales in Ontario of less than $1.5 million during the previous fiscal year.

Subsection 25(2) of the Regulation states that a Registrant who had sales in Ontario of $1.5 million or more but less than $10 million during the previous fiscal year shall maintain a minimum working capital of $25,000.00.

Subsection 25(5) of the Regulation states that the working capital of a Registrant shall be calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and shall not include the value of any security provided under subsection 26(1) or the account of any person with whom the Registrant has a non-arm's length relationship.

Mr. Foster testified that the Applicant's financial statements (Exhibit 5, Tab 27) for its fiscal year ended April 30, 1998, revealed a working capital shortfall as of that date of $9,039.00, based on the Registrant's reported sales of $2,439,713.00.

Mr. Pinnock, in his evidence, conceded that there was a working capital shortfall, as of April 30, 1998. He attributed the shortfall to the failure of his predecessor Inna Zelener to inject sufficient capital.

Mr. Foster testified that he conducted an inspection of the Applicant on October 8 and 9, 1998. During the course of his testimony, Mr. Foster referred to his Inspection Findings and Inspection Report (Exhibit 5, Tab 34), which were made at or around the time of the inspection.

Mr. Foster indicated that Mr. Pinnock advised him that he had injected $3,500.00 on September 7, 1998 and $15,000.00 on September 17, 1998, to correct the working capital shortfall reflected on the Registrant's April 30, 1998 financial statements.

Mr. Foster did not have the Applicant's September, 1998 bank statements available during his October 8 and 9, 1998 inspection and relied on the information provided to him by Mr. Pinnock. The Applicant also did not have copies of its bank statements and cheques for September and October 1998 available for Mr. Foster's November 27, 1998 follow-up inspection.

The September and October 1998 bank statements (Exhibit 5, Tab 49) were provided to TICO on or about December 4, 1998 for Mr. Foster's follow-up inspection. The statement shows a $3,937.00 credit on September 9, 1998 and a credit of $15,080.70 on September 17, 1998. The account was, however, overdrawn and not replenished indicating that the apparent working capital injection was not maintained by the time of Mr. Foster's October inspection.

Further inspections in December, 1998 and February, 1999 indicated negative balances in the Applicant's bank accounts. On April 19, 1999, the Applicant submitted interim financial statements (Exhibit 6, Tab 21) for the period ended February 28, 1999. The statements revealed that as of that date, the Applicant had a working capital deficit of $4,578.00 or total shortfall of $29,578.00 based on the Applicant's required minimum working capital.

It was submitted by the Applicant that the financial statements filed for the period ending April 31, 1998, and the interim statements in April, 1999 included a loan from Inna Zelener, which in 1997 totaled $34,000.00 and by 1999 was paid down to $23,566.00. They also did not take into account the $10,000.00 deposit, which was then due to be released by TICO. If the financial statements are corrected by deducting either of these amount from the company liabilities, the working capital increases by the corresponding amount and the Value Vacations does not have a working capital shortfall but, in fact, has a surplus of capital.

The Tribunal cannot entirely agree with the Applicant's submissions in this regard. It is the responsibility of the Registrant to see that its records are accurate. The Registrar looks at the information provided by the Registrant. The Tribunal examines the decision of the Registrar to see if he was in error in making his decision based on the information before him (Brenner). If the Registrant has provided incorrect information, it cannot complain that the Registrar was in error in basing his decision on information provided by the Registrant. As was stated, the deposit is not to be included in the working capital, as is set out in section 25 (5) of the Regulation.

In the present case the Registrant did not correct the issue of the Zelener loan until April, 2000 and did not advise TICO until September, 2000. Before that it appeared to the Registrar that there was a shortage of working capital.

The Applicant's financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 1999 (Exhibit 6, Tab 30) revealed that the Applicant had a working capital deficiency of $41,918.00 or total shortfall of $46,918.00 based on the Applicant's reported sales of $1,139,865.00. This substantial shortfall existed despite Mr. Pinnock's purported capital injection of $54,000.00 including the $20,000.00, which was injected only nine days prior to the Applicant's fiscal year end. Pinnock testified that he was advised of the above shortfall on October 19, 1999, by letter from TICO. A potential buyer deposited $47,000.00 on or about November 7, 1999 but changed his mind and was refund the sum of $37,000.00 very shortly thereafter. A prior cheque for $47, 000.00 was not honoured. The $10,000.00 difference was a penalty to the potential buyer. Pinnock, injected a further sum of $14,000.00 on December 2, 1999, which sum was still in place by March 3, 2000, as confirmed by Mr. Foster in paragraph 43 of the Proposal.

TICO's review of the Applicant's financial statements for its fiscal year ended April 30, 2000 (Exhibit 6, Tab 45) identified a working capital deficiency of $12,350.00 or total shortfall of $17,350.00. In his testimony, Mr. Foster indicated that the actual shortfall was, in his opinion, $27,350.00. He attributed the discrepancy to the inclusion of the Applicant's $10,000.00 security in the Applicant's current assets. The Applicant maintains that there was no shortfall if the Zelener loan is taken into account. Pinnock testified that he provided a copy of the Promissory Note on or about October 11, 2000. Value Vacation's accountant provided that confirmation in writing on November 27, 2000 (Tab 26 of the Applicant's Document Brief – Exhibit 7). Removing the Promissory Note from the company's liabilities appears to result in a working capital of $11,216.00 as of April 30, 2000. There is some dispute as to whether the Applicant reported to it's accountant the outstanding Signature judgment of $12,002.86 plus costs and interest. It is clear that the financial statements did not reflect the judgment as a liability, or even make reference to it.

Misuse of credit cards

Phyllis James

On or about September 24, 1998, a credit card belonging to James Phyllis was used to purchase a trip for a party with a different name. This transaction was done with approval of James Phyllis.

Mr. Pinnock gave evidence that James Phyllis was Phyllis James, a corporate client and close friend of Mr. Pinnock. The Applicant introduced two letters from Ms. James (Exhibits 29 and 30) in support of its position that the transaction was authorized. Despite the allegations of three charge backs, which were received in relation to bookings made by the Applicant using Ms. James' credit card, the letters from Phyllis James clearly state that the Applicant had authority to use her credit card. She admits to some issues with charge backs, but the Registrar had not proved evidence of wrongdoing on the part of the Applicant.

Nadia Ciaravino

Regent made an error and billed the client twice, once in the amount of $3,600.00 and once in the amount of $699.00. The booking form authorized Regent to bill only the amount of $3649.00 to a certain master card number (Booking form at page 6 of Tab 32 of Registrar's Document Brief Volume 1 – Exhibit 5). From the documentary evidence and the testimony of Pinnock this transaction appears to be the error of Regent with no basis for any allegation that Value Vacations did anything improper.

Sheryl Davis

Sheryl Davis, purchased a trip from the Applicant, to Greece, departing on September 5, 1998 and returning on September 21, 1998. Ms Davis authorized the Applicant to debit her credit card $4,922.00. Ms Davis' credit card was later debited again, without her authorization, for the same amount, which resulted in a charge back to Regent Holidays. The Applicant reimbursed Regent Holidays for the charge back.

Ms Ermellini indicated that the Applicant booked trips for passengers Bourneas and Martino departing for Acapulco and Aruba. Ms Ermellini further indicated that the Applicant had booked the trips on June 15, 1998. Despite attempts to obtain payment on the file, no payment was made until the Applicant provided Ms. Davis' credit card on August 13, 1998.

Pinnock explained that several agents worked on this file and in the end, inadvertently the client was charged twice. The client charged back one of the billings and she was not out any money. Pinnock testified Value Vacations in return reimbursed Regent Holidays.

The fact that one credit card was charged for two trips by different people traveling to two different locations, with the amount of the two trips equaling the cost of the one trip that the cardholder actually did take, appears to be too much of a coincidence. This charge back would give reason for concern to the Registrar.

Dufour transaction

Ms Ermellini testified that NALG received a charge back in respect of this booking for $6,116.00 on September 14, 1998 (Exhibit 12, Tab 1 and Exhibit 13). She stated that the Applicant faxed documentation in response to the charge back (Exhibit 12, Tab 10). Ms Ermellini indicated that the documentation received was unsatisfactory. There was no explanation as to why it was not acceptable.

Mr. Pinnock testified that Mr. Dufour later authorized the Applicant to use his credit card, because he, in effect, received a free trip. It appears that the Applicant applied Mr. Dufour's credit card to other bookings.

The Applicant contended that NALG double-billed it in relation to the charge back and took it out of commissions due to the Applicant. The Respondent acknowledged that the NALG brief (Exhibit 12, Tab 20) showed the Dufour amount twice. Ms Ermellini candidly admitted this in her testimony. The Respondent could not locate the alleged double billing to the Applicant. Visa had closed the file.

It was not explained why Dufour had received a free trip or why his credit card was not debited properly, or at all, on the first trip. It appears that the first trip was paid for by commissions owing to the Applicant, but it was not explained why it appeared twice in the NALG documents. The Tribunal would have thought that this would raise enough concern that TICO would have investigated this with both the Applicant and NALG.

Kiwanuka Transaction

Ms Ermellini testified that a $96.00 charge back occurred in respect of a credit card the Applicant applied to a booking for a passenger, Kiwanuka, (Exhibit 14). This amount was disputed and charged back to NALG. The Applicant could not explain the charge back but neither could the Respondent.

Mitchell Transactions

Ms Ermellini testified that a credit cardholder, Mr. Guiseppe, had his credit card debited three times for travel services, without his authorization. The Applicant accepted responsibility for the first booking and denied responsibility for the other two.

Pinnock testified that when the first transaction (Exhibit 15) came to his attention he spoke with the agent (Monica) who did the booking. Monica advised him that she did not know anything about the transaction, except that she was asked by another agent "Donna" to do the booking for her. This booking was done in the office by Monica and as such Value Vacations agreed to assume responsibility for paying for this transaction.

The other two transactions appeared to have been telephone bookings by someone who purported to be an employee of Value Vacations. At the time of the second two bookings "Donna's" employment at Value Vacations had been terminated by Value Vacations. Upon learning of the last two transactions, Charles Pinnock contacted the Police and filed a report (Exhibit 35). Pinnock also produced two lists of all agents who ever worked for Value Vacations (Exhibits 32 and 33) to show that no agents with the names "Richa" or "Diane" ever worked for Value Vacations. Those were the names of the agents who did the other two bookings.

During the course of its hearing, Sunquest was also contacted and asked to search its records if it ever accepted a booking from Value Vacation's agents with those names. Sunquest advised that its records did not indicate so (Exhibit 34). There was no evidence given as to the result or who was found at fault. The Registrar failed to prove fault on the Applicant.

Hola Sun Holidays

Pinnock testified that in a conversation with TICO he advised Jack Foster that he was having problems collecting money from some agencies and that one of those agencies was Hola Sun. Mr. Foster contacted Hola Sun and the result was the subject letter from Hola Sun (Tab 46 of Document Brief Volume 1). Paragraph 19 of the Proposal states that in the letter, Hola Sun advises that they were holding back commissions "due to credit card irregularities".

The Tribunal finds that the Hola Sun letter does not allege any "credit card irregularities". The Respondent conceded in the Agreed Statement of Facts that on November 27, 1998, Hola Sun Holidays received an inquiry regarding a particular trip. Upon request, the Applicant faxed credit card authorization. The name on the credit card was not the same as the name of the people who traveled.

Pinnock testified that this transaction never resulted in a charge back. There was no evidence of wrongdoing proved against the Applicant.

Signature Charge Backs

Bolers Transaction

Signature advised TICO that it had received a charge back in September, 1998 for $1930.00 with an affidavit from the cardholder (White), stating the charge was not authorized (Exhibit 20, Tab 7, Signature Document Brief).

Pinnock testified that this was a booking, which was done over the phone. The agent on the file filled out the first three lines of the credit card authorization (page 2 of Tab 15 of the Applicants Book of Documents Exhibit 7) being the destination, date and price of the trip. The agent then faxed the authorization and asked that the client fill in her credit card information and sign and faxes back the form (Tab 2 of Applicant's Affidavit Record Exhibit 36). After the passengers (Bolers and Caines) traveled, the person to whom the credit card belonged (White) objected to the charge.

Signature was back charged by Visa for $1930.00.

Pinnock testified that he first learned of it after Signature wrote to TICO on January 6, 1999 complaining about this charge back (page 1 of Tab 7 of Document Brief for Signature). Pinnock stated that he then received a phone call from TICO requesting information. On the same day that he was contacted by TICO he faxed to TICO a short letter, credit card authorization and booking form. (Value Vacations letter to TICO Tab 15 of the Applicant's Book of Documents, Exhibit 7).

Yvonne Harris, from Signature Vacations, stated that this information was not provided to her by TICO and if she had received it she would have tried to appeal to VISA to reverse the charge back.

Upon examining the signatures, it is clear that they are not the same. The Registrar submits that if the Applicant accepts such a booking without an imprint, it must bear responsibility for the charge back. It was not denied that accepting a faxed credit card authorization is common in the travel industry.

It appears that neither TICO nor Signature nor the Applicant made any effort to follow up on this matter. The Tribunal finds that there was poor investigation and follow up on the part of all parties involved.

John Curtis Transaction

Mr. Curtis booked a trip with the Applicant and paid in full with his credit card on November 26, 1997. His credit card number was later given to Signature by an agent of the Applicant and he was charged for another person's trip. As a result the client ended up paying for two trips. Pinnock testified that this was caused by a mixed-up between several agents working on the file with the wrong credit card information being forwarded to Signature.

To correct the charge back, the Applicant issued a NSF cheque, before it subsequently reimbursed Signature in September, 1998. The Applicant attributed the problem to a mix-up and indicated that Signature was responsible for the delay. The Tribunal finds that the fault lies with the Applicant.

Redpath Transaction

Pinnock testified that on November 14, 1997, this transaction was booked directly on the computer and the credit card information was put into the system at the time of booking. He testified that at this point Value Vacations involvement ended with the computer booking. Signature applied payment on November 17, 1997 and again on the November 18, 1997. Pinnock stated that the error had to have been made by Signature in double billing the client.

During cross-examination Tammy Crane admitted that she could not be sure that the error was not made by Signature. Furthermore, Signature confirmed that it had made an error when it wrote to the client on December 12, 1997, "We apologize for the system error that may have occurred when your travel agent made the booking." (page 3 of Tab 12 of Document Brief of Signature)

The Registrar produced no evidence that Value Vacations did anything improper.

Air Transat Transactions

Pinnock testified that at the time Value Vacations was promoting a Caribana cruise. Some people wanted to pay by credit card, even though they were advised that Value Vacations did not then have a merchant number to process the cards and that the cruise company was not accepting credit card payments. As such Value Vacations processed the credit card payments by paying for other peoples trips with agencies, which did accept credit card payments. Pinnock testified that the consumers were advised that their credit cards will be used in this manner and that there was not one consumer complaint or charge back related to this matter. There was no evidence presented to the contrary.

George Pinnock Transaction

Pinnock used the card of his relative George Pinnock, to pay for the trip of a consumer, Mr. Hadida. Mr. Hadida previously paid cash for his trip. Mr. George Pinnock authorized the transaction and signed the credit card authorization form.

It was submitted by the Applicant that the Act does not prohibit these type of transactions as was admitted by TICO. The Travel Industry Act Proposal for Reform document September, 2000 edition, states as follows at page 13:

“Currently, a Registrant can use a personal credit card to buy travel services for customers, while using the cash from customers, which was to pay for the same services...”

It was not proved to the satisfaction of the Tribunal that there was any complaint or impropriety on the part of the Applicant.

Charlotte Gibson

Ms. Charlotte Gibson, purchased a trip for a party of four to Amsterdam, through the Applicant. Ms. Gibson's credit card was debited twice for the same trip. "Value Marketing and Promotion" debited the card on July 19, 2000 and Martinair debited the card on October 31, 2000. As a result of the double billing, there was a charge back to Martinair. The Applicant reimbursed Martinair for the charge back.

Pinnock testified that there were three agents involved in the transaction. The client paid by credit card, which was processed and the money was deposited into the Value Vacations merchant account. Subsequently when in October, 2000 Martinair called for payment, it spoke to another agent who was not aware that the credit card was processed and passed on the credit card number. Martinair again charged the credit card and was charged back when the client complained.

TICO wrote to Pinnock on December 28, 2000 (Document brief volume 3, tab 9), and Pinnock responded January 23, 2001. The client was reimbursed by Martinair and payment was forwarded to Martinair by way of cheque from the Applicant, as it ought to have been done in the first place.

The proper method for paying for the trip by the Applicant should have been by a cheque paid out of the merchant account. The Applicant did not follow proper procedure.

Rita Silvestri

Pinnock testified that Ms Silvestri and her sister-in-law called and each had agreed to purchase a trip for themselves and their respective partners. Each sister agreed to pay for two tickets. Ms. Silvestri came in to Value Vacations and signed a regular credit card imprint. Her sister-in-law lived further away and faxed her authorization to Value Vacations. The trip was with Conquest Tours, which does not accept fax credit card authorizations. Value Vacations used its funds to obtain a certified cheque on behalf of the sister in law and gave Conquest Ms. Silvestri's credit card imprint and a certified cheque on behalf of the sister-in-law.

The problem occurred when the Value Vacations agent went to process the sister's-in-law credit card to reimburse Value Vacations for the money it used cover the certified cheque. The agent processed the wrong card. As a consequence, Ms. Silvestri's card was charged with all four transactions and the sister-in-law was not charged for any transactions.

Ms. Silvestri attended at the Applicant's office three times to obtain a refund. On one occasion, the Applicant issued a refund cheque, which was not honoured. The Applicant later credited Ms Silvestri's credit card for the full amount plus an additional amount of $188.50 for interest. Pinnock testified that there was no valid reason for the bank not honoring the cheque as there was money in the account. Pinnock introduced into evidence a copy of the relevant bank statement to show there were sufficient funds in the account.

Issuing NSF Cheques

Travel Media Cheque

Pinnock testified that the cheque (Tab 40 of the Document Brief Volume 1 – Exhibit 5) was written during the move to the Finch Avenue location. At that time Value Vacation was still using the CIBC accounts set up by Inna Zelener. In regard to those accounts both the general and trust cheques were the same color and the cheque was written in error on the general account, when it was supposed to be written on the trust account. At the time of writing the cheque there were sufficient funds to cover the cheque in the trust account (Exhibit 7 Tab 8 page 2). Charles Pinnock testified that, as per the note on the NSF cheque, Travel Media received cash immediately upon Value Vacations learning of the NSF cheque.

It was noted that the amount of the cheque was $758.00 and that the Applicant had $804.89 in the trust account. It was also noted however that Pinnock had told Ms. Palozzi on her inspection on November 5, 1998, that the cheque was post-dated and that Travel Media had tried to cash it prematurely.

September and October, 1998, NSF Cheques

In September, 1998 there were four NSF cheques drawn on the Applicant's general account. In October, 1998, there were ten NSF cheques drawn on the Applicant's general account. To explain the reason for the Applicant's NSF activity during September and October, 1998, Pinnock referred to "bank transfer memos" (Exhibits 44 and 45), which were purportedly made to transfer necessary funds from IPT, operated by Ina Zelener, to the Applicant. Pinnock stated that the NSF cheques were the result of the bank's failure to transfer funds.

The problem that the Tribunal finds with this explanation is that the transfer memos, to which Mr. Pinnock referred, were not signed by Ms. Zelener, whom Mr. Pinnock had testified was the sole signatory of IPT and the Applicant. The September 6, 1998 transfer memo was not signed at all. The September 9, 1998 transfer memo was allegedly signed by Patrick Daly, a non-signatory. The dates on both memos have been crossed out and replaced. By the time of the alleged transfer, Ms. Zelener had released her shares in the Applicant. According to Pinnock, he did not have signing authority until November 1998. It was not explained how Pinnock expected the bank to act on these memos. The Tribunal feels that the fault in relation to these items clearly lies with the Applicant.

South American Tours Cheque

The cheque was written on June 1, 2000 (Exhibit 47). The customer traveling paid by credit card, which ought to have been processed through the bank of Montreal visa clearing account.

Pinnock testified that the Applicant erroneously did not process the credit card in time and there was no money to cover the cheque. Pinnock testified that this NSF cheque was replaced on June 10, 2000, which cheque cleared (Exhibit 49).

Cheques Written on a Frozen Trust Account

Thomas Jacob

The Applicant admitted in the Agreed Statement of Facts that on June 22, 2001, the Applicant was served with a Director's Direction issued under section 22 of the Travel Industry Act and dated June 21, 2001, which froze the Applicant's bank accounts.

The Applicant also admitted that on August 2, 2001, Thomas Jacob, a consumer, wrote to TICO to complain about the Applicant. Mr. Jacob had purchased a Niagara Falls vacation package, which he did not receive. When Mr. Jacob demanded a refund from the Applicant on June 30, 2001, he was provided with a cheque for $380.00. The cheque was written on the Applicant's "Value Vacations Limited In Trust Account", an account that had been frozen by the Director, Travel Industry Act on June 22, 2001. The cheque was not honoured. Mr. Pinnock indicated in his testimony that Mr. Jacob has yet to be refunded.

Elizabeth Pellegrino

The Applicant further admitted that on August 30, 2001, Elizabeth Pellegrino, a consumer wrote to TICO to complain about the Applicant. Ms. Pellegrino had purchased a Niagara Falls vacation package, which she did not receive. On August 17, 2001, Ms. Pellegrino demanded a refund from the Applicant and was provided with a cheque for $240.00, which was written on the Applicant's "Value Vacations Limited In Trust Account". This account had been frozen by the Director, Travel Industry Act on June 22, 2001. The cheque was not honoured. The Applicant subsequently reimbursed Ms. Pellegrino.

In examination in chief, Mr. Pinnock claimed that he wrote the cheques because he was not getting anywhere with TICO regarding the Signature garnishment of the Applicant's trust account. The Applicant introduced several letters (Exhibit 107) written by Mr. Pinnock to TICO between July 10, 2001 and November 1, 2001, demanding a return of the garnished funds. He included a hand-written list identifying 40 consumers with deposits of approximately $13,000.00, whom Mr. Pinnock indicated required reimbursement because their money was garnished from the trust account (Exhibit 108). In chief, Mr. Pinnock testified that the monies for those consumers were held in trust.

During cross-examination of Mr. Pinnock, it was demonstrated that the Applicant's bank statement (Exhibit 7, Tab 49) identified only $5,456.87 in the trust account at the time of the Signature garnishment. That amount included a $2,500 deposit, which related to a consumer who was not on the Applicant's list (Exhibit 108). It was not shown that the Applicant had sufficient funds on deposit in its designated trust account to cover its customer obligations.

The Respondent introduced videotaped testimony given under oath by Mr. Pinnock to the Toronto police in August, 2001, to impeach Mr. Pinnock's evidence regarding the customer deposits, which were said to be held in trust. In the videotaped statement, Mr. Pinnock indicated that much of the money, which was paid for Niagara Falls vacation packages, was not deposited into the Applicant's trust account. A large amount was apparently misappropriated by a Jasen Plunkett.

Pinnock stated that the monies were secured by a supposed refund Mr. Plunkett had owing on a cruise that did not take place, because of Mr. Plunkett's earlier incarceration. When questioned about the cruise refund by the Tribunal, Mr. Pinnock indicated that the Applicant never received that money. Mr. Pinnock also said that he only subsequently learned that some of the money received by Mr. Plunkett was not turned over to him.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not take sufficient precautions to safeguard consumers' funds, which were impressed with a specific trust.

There were other allegations put forth by the Respondent, regarding an improper payment out of the Applicants trust account, but these arose out of the videotape and were not part of the proposal. As the Respondent had possession of the video tape and rejected an opportunity to include these allegations in the Proposal or either of the further Notices, the Tribunal will not consider these additional allegations in making its finding.

South American Tours Cheque

The cheque was written on the account of the Applicant on June 1, 2000 (Exhibit 47). The customer traveling paid by credit card, which ought to have been processed through the Bank of Montreal visa clearing account. Pinnock testified that Value Vacations erroneously did not process the credit card in time and there was no money to cover the cheque. Pinnock testified that this NSF cheque was replaced on June 10, 2000 which cheque cleared (Exhibit 49).

The Applicant's bank statement for the period did not identify a customer deposit to correspond with the Applicant's submission. There were three identified customer deposits to the account for $2,600, $1806.82, and $400 during June 2000. This was left unexplained and the Tribunal was satisfied that this would be cause for concern to the Registrar.

Southwinds Cheque

The cheque was written on August 15, 2000 and processed on August 18, 2000. (Exhibit 50). Pinnock testified that he does not know why the cheque was returned NSF. A review of the applicable bank statement (Exhibit 51) shows that there were sufficient funds to clear the cheque and that the cheque does not in fact even appear to have gone through the account. The NSF cheque refers to a customer "Grantham", and the cheque amount was $454.00. The Respondent failed to prove that the Applicant was at fault.

Distinguished Travel Cheque

The cheque was written on May 12, 2001 (Exhibit 53) and was processed on May 18, 2001 (Exhibit 54). Analysis of bank statement for the applicable period of time (Exhibit 55) shows that there was sufficient money in the bank account to clear the cheque. Pinnock testified that he does not know why the cheque was returned NSF other than it being an error on the part of the bank. The Respondent concedes that there is nothing in the documents, which explains why this item was returned NSF.

Sylvestri Refund Cheque

As noted above, Ms Sylvestri attended the Applicant's premises to obtain a refund for a double billing on her credit card and received an NSF cheque. The reason for the NSF cheque was not explained.

Abdy Electriciteh

Pinnock gave testimony regarding cheque problems in respect of the refund owing to Mr. Electriciteh for a booking made during the Applicant's suspension. It took approximately three weeks for the Applicant to reimburse Mr. Electriciteh for his travel services. Three cheques were drawn to reimburse Mr. Electriciteh. A NSF cheque was issued by Value Marketing and Promotion. Mr. Pinnock's testimony was contradictory regarding the refund. He indicated that he would have to review the cheques. The cheques were never provided to the Tribunal.

Failing to Meet its Financial Responsibilities to Wholesalers

There is considerable contention and a complete divergence of opinion and evidence given on this matter between the wholesalers and the Applicant.

The Respondent submitted that the Applicant's failure to meet its financial responsibility to wholesalers goes directly to its ability to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business for the purpose of subsection 4(c) of the Act and affects the Applicant's working capital. Trade debts are proper matters upon which the Registrar may base a proposal to revoke a Registrant's registration when they affect the financial viability of the Registrant.

The Applicant disputed any amounts owing to the wholesalers and produced two charts (Exhibits 68 and 127) summarizing its position. The Applicant's position was that the wholesaler's claims were unfounded and unsupportable from the evidence and resulted from the wholesaler's not honouring their commitments to the Applicant.

Sunquest Debt

In attempt to support its position, the Applicant had broken down its claim into several subheadings:

December 27 and 28 Incentives

Exhibit 56 is a letter purporting to summarize the terms of the promotion, and in particular entitlement to Value Vacations and its agents to receive $15 per passenger. The letter was written by Pinnock in response to an offer by Sunquest to pay an incentive of $10.00 per passenger. On basis of 50 passengers tallied by Value Vacations at the material time, Value Vacations calculated the outstanding amount owed to the Applicant to be $750.00.

It is noted by the Tribunal that this is a self-serving letter written by the Applicant with no verification from the wholesaler, no documentation of the number of bookings and no documentary evidence regarding requests made by the Applicant for payment in respect of this promotion.

November 1998 Promotion

Pinnock testified that Sunquest held another promotion for which they promised to pay another $15.00 per person. He calculated the money owing to the Applicant to be in the amount of $1,000.00 although he had no documents in support of this claim.

Cruise Incentive Summer 1997 to Winter 1998.

The Applicant produced exhibit 57, a promotion form and Exhibit 58, a sample completed cruise form. Attached to Exhibit 57 is a Sunquest computer summary of the passengers booked for the subject cruises by Value Vacations. The said form shows 107 passengers in total (therefore 53 cabins). Value Vacations calculated the amount of owing to it being $8,300.00.

The Tribunal notes that the Sunquest productivity report includes “bookings on option”, and that the Applicant has not produced satisfactory evidence of its own to demonstrate how many bookings were actually made as a result of the Dream Cruise Incentive.

Fax Broadcasting

Exhibit 59 is an accepted proposal from Value Vacations to Sunquest pursuant to which Sunquest agreed to pay $450.00 per week for 11 weeks of advertising for a total of $4,950.00. Value Vacations was required to submit tear sheets in order to receive payment. Exhibits 60 are sample tear sheets, showing Sunquest products being advertised during the material time.

There is no documentary evidence regarding requests made by the Applicant for payment in respect of these broadcasts. The evidence of the Applicant was that it was not paid.

The Tribunal is also aware of the findings made during the Applicant's July 12, 2001 interim suspension hearing. At paragraph 10 of its decision, the Tribunal found:

He (Charles Pinnock) admitted there may be some $57,000 owing to the North American Leisure Group Inc. operating as Sunquest and Alba Tours, but he is not sure of the exact amount. The debt apparently arose from the Company's share of advertisements put in newspapers.

Signature Debt

As with Sunquest and Alba, there were also disputes between the Applicant and Signature Vacations. These disputes relate to incentives alleged to be outstanding, shared advertising and fax broadcasting charges between the parties.

These are matters of trade debts between retailer and supplier and do not affect consumers.

Tribunal's Position Regarding Trade Disputes

What the Applicant and Respondent are asking the Tribunal to do is to adjudicate disputes between various tour operators and the Applicant, and to make determinations regarding interpretations of contracts and accounting matters between them.

That is not the function of this Tribunal and this is not the proper forum in which those determinations should be made.

Concerning monetary trade disputes between tour operators and agents, it is only after a finding has been made in the appropriate legal forum that the results become relevant to the decision to be made by this Tribunal.

That is not to say that the Tribunal will not consider such matters of charge backs, dishonesty or NSF cheques, as these are matters which affect the Applicants ability to carry on business with honesty and integrity and in accordance with law. It means that the Tribunal will not make decisions on the interpretation of contracts and accounting between the agent and tour operator, as that is not its mandate.

In that regard, what is relevant is the Signature Judgment against the Appellant, on June 4, 1999, in the amount of $12,002.86. The Tribunal notes that the Applicant did not defend the claim nor did it move to set aside the judgment after it became aware of it. As such, the Applicant is deemed to admit the truth of the allegations and the validity of the debt. The Tribunal will not look behind the judgment, absent very extreme and compelling evidence, as to the reason the defendant in the action would not have defended, appealed or moved to have the decision set aside. The Tribunal finds no such reason in the present case.

Misrepresentation

Under the heading of misrepresentation there are several sub headings listed as follows:

Fax Broadcasting Advertisements

The Applicant does not dispute the fact that it has been unable to make bookings directly with the following tour operators since the end of 1998 or beginning of 1999: North American Leisure Group o/a Sunquest and Alba Tours; Signature Vacations; and Regent Holidays.

The Applicant does not dispute that it has advertised the travel services of one or more of the above-noted tour operators in the period since it was "blacklisted" by those companies.

In August, 1999, North American Leisure Group's counsel sent a cease & desist letter (Exhibit 85) advising the Applicant to cease using the SUNQUEST trademark. The word SUNQUEST is a registered trademark to identify travel services, which was owned by North American Leisure Group (Exhibit 125).

Pinnock testified that he was never asked not to advertise Sunquest products. Ms. Ermellini confirmed that she did not give such advice to Value Vacations and she did not have any documents proving that such advice was given to Value Vacations. Pinnock testified that notwithstanding any reservations that the Sunquest accounting department might have had, the Sunquest marketing department was very much intent on soliciting Value Vacations' business. Throughout the material time it continued to send Value Vacations stacks of brochures and fax broadcasts.

Pinnock testified that the only communications on this subject which he ever received (written or oral) was a letter dated August 17, 1999, from Sunquest's solicitors requesting that he does not use the "Sunquest" logo.

Pinnock testified that when Sunquest denied him access to their direct booking system because of the dispute over payment, he simply purchased the packages from other wholesalers. It was confirmed by Rachel Palozzi during her cross-examination that there is nothing in the Act prohibiting such practice. Any agency is entitled to purchase a package from a licensed wholesaler. Consequently, the Applicant argued that Value Vacations could legally purchase any Sunquest product and therefore had every right to advertise same for sale.

The Tribunal does not entirely agree with the Applicant's submission. The Applicant is quite correct that it was allowed to purchase the packages from wholesalers. The matter of reselling the packages under the tour operators name is a different situation, in this case. Here the letter from the lawyers for Sunquest said more than the Appellant must not use the "Sunquest" logo. It stated that "...you must immediately cease and desist from any and all further use of the SUNQUEST trade mark, its associated logos or any mark confusingly similar therewith in conjunction with the operation of your business". In addition, the Applicant was very much aware that Sunquest had denied him access to their direct booking system. It should have been very apparent to the Applicant that Sunquest did not want it involved with their name or products.

The confusion comes about because the marketing department of Sunquest kept sending the Applicant faxes and brochures of their trips. It appears that the marketing branch of Sunquest had no communication with the accounting department. Although that was a great shortcoming on the part of Sunquest, the Applicant was well aware of the intention of Sunquest and took advantage of the lack of communication within Sunquest.

Several provisions of the Regulation are germane to this issue, as follows:

Subsection 21(1) of the Regulation states that a Registrant shall not make any representations with respect to travel services that are false, misleading or deceptive.

Subsection 21(2) of the Regulation states that before reserving travel services for a customer, "the travel agent shall bring to the attention of the customer any conditions related to the purchase of travel services that the travel agent has reason to believe may affect the customer's purchase...".

Section 38 of the Regulation provides that every Registrant shall ensure that any advertising or representation in Ontario with respect to travel services sold by the Registrant is not false, misleading or deceptive.

It is noted that the word “representation” and the phrase “false, misleading or deceptive” are not defined in the Regulation. They are, however, defined in the Business Practices Act, a companion consumer protection legislation.

Section 1 of the Business Practices Act defines “consumer representation” as: “a representation, statement, offer, request or proposal, (a) made respecting or with a view to the supplying of goods or services, or both, to a consumer, or (b) made for the purpose of or with a view to receiving consideration for goods or services, or both, supplied or purporting to have been supplied to a consumer.”

Section 2 of the Business Practices Act states that for the purposes of this Act, the following shall be deemed to be unfair practices:

- i. A false, misleading or deceptive consumer representation including, but not limiting the generality of the foregoing,
- ii. a representation that the person who is to supply the goods or services has sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation or connection the person does not have

It was submitted by the Registrar that the Applicant, by continuing to advertise the travel services of the noted tour operators, for the purpose of receiving consideration in respect of those services, is indicating approval or affiliation it does not have. The representations go to the Applicant’s honesty and integrity and are also, false, misleading or deceptive, and in contravention of the Regulation.

The Tribunal agrees that the Applicant’s representations could place consumers at risk. If consumers are not told that the Applicant is barred from making bookings directly with the tour operator, they are unwittingly dealing with a travel agent, which is unable to make its bookings through normal open channels. This would affect the ability of the agent to represent the consumer with the tour operator should any difficulties arise with the trip.

Amazonas Transaction

Ms. Palozzi gave evidence that Cecilia Ycaza, Manager of Amazonas Travel, contacted TICO in response to a complaint from Signature Vacations, holding Amazonas responsible for a booking made on January 31, 2001. Ms. Ycaza denied responsibility for the booking and indicated that no one in her agency made the booking.

Pinnock testified that he often purchased packages from Amazonas, that Value Vacations could not buy directly from any particular tour operator. Exhibit 87 was a partial four-page list of packages purchased from Amazonas Travel. Charles Pinnock and Imalda Acosta testified that the normal process was, that if Value Vacations had a client who wished to purchase a particular package, it would advise Amazonas Travel which would purchase the subject package and resell it to Value Vacations for a certain fee. Pinnock further testified that Value Vacations' relationship with Amazonas was so good that when the time to book a particular trip was of the essence (i.e. limited seat availability) and when Amazona's sales representative could not be reached, Amazonas permitted Value Vacations to call in the booking directly on its behalf. It then required that Value Vacations immediately advise Amazonas of the booking.

Charles Pinnock testified that on this particular occasion, he tried reaching Amazonas by telephone to request that it buy a particular Signature package for Value Vacations customer, but he was unable to reach anyone at Amazonas Travel. As there was urgency to the booking because of limited availability of seats, Pinnock testified that he called Signature, identified himself by his name and requested a booking on behalf of Amazonas Travel.

The Tribunal notes that Pinnock did not identify himself as "Charles Pinnock from Value Vacations", but simply as "Charles on behalf of Amazonas Travel". The problem was discovered when Signature became suspicious because it did not recognize any agent named Charles, working at Amazonas.

Section 13(1), states that a Registrant shall not carry on business under a name other than the name appearing on the registration and a name registered under the Business Names Act. By making bookings in another agent's name, the Applicant contravened subsection 13(1), even if it did have "implied permission" to do so.

Alleged Failure to Disclose Judgment on Application Form

In its Application for Business or Branch Registration or Reinstatement dated April 27, 2001 (Respondent Brief vol. 3, Tab 25), the Applicant was asked: "Are there any unpaid judgments outstanding against the Applicant? If yes, submit a copy of each judgment. State the amount outstanding and repayment arrangements." In the Application, the Applicant indicated that there was $2,600.00 owed to Canadian Tire and the Applicant was negotiating terms of repayment. The Applicant did not disclose the outstanding Signature judgment against the Applicant and Mr. Pinnock (Exhibit 6, Tab 24).

Pinnock testified that he believed that the "Applicant" was himself and not Value Vacations. In support of that he pointed out that the signature line of the Application (Exhibit 88) states "Signature of Applicant" seemingly asking for personal signature.

At page 6 of Jack Foster's report regarding the October 6 and 10 inspection (Tab 17 of the Signature Document Brief – Exhibit 20) is a hand written note from Charles Pinnock to Jack Foster specifically informing him of the judgment and the first garnishment.

It is noted by the Tribunal that this disclosure by the Applicant was in October, 2000, while the Application signed by the Applicant to TICO was in April, 2001.

Failure to Notify of Changes in Financial Institutions

A Registrant's obligations in respect of advising TICO of its financial institutions are laid out in the Act and the Regulation.

Subsection 16(3) of the Act states that upon an inspection under this section, the person inspecting is entitled to free access to all books of account, cash, documents, bank accounts, vouchers, correspondence and records of the person being inspected that are relevant for the purposes of the inspections

Clause 16(1)(4) of the Regulation states that a Registrant shall notify the Registrar within fifteen days of a change in the name or number of an account or in the choice of financial institution in which the account is required to be maintained.

Clause 37(1) 2 of the Regulation states that a Registrant shall keep and maintain at the Registrant's principal place of business or such other place as the Registrar may approve in writing, banking records that identify readily and may be used to verify all transactions that were made in connection with the operation of the business of the Registrant.

In his testimony, Pinnock indicated that he opened bank accounts with the TD Bank on or about October 26, 1998. Mr. Foster testified that on February 5, 1999, he conducted an inspection of the Applicant. Mr. Foster indicated that TICO was not notified of the opening of the Applicant's Toronto Dominion bank accounts. The Applicant presented a copy of a fax purportedly sent to TICO on November 29, 1998, as notification that it had opened the TD bank accounts. The exhibit contains no transmission confirmation.

The Applicant's trust account was not available on the premises, however by fax (Exhibit 6, Tab 7), the Applicant provided TICO with copies of its CIBC trust account statements for September, October and December, 1998.

It could not explained by the Applicant, why TICO would not have asked for the TD bank records if it knew of the TD account at that time. In the past, TICO had always asked for all bank records and that was the normal procedure.

Bank of Montreal

Pinnock testified that TICO and in particular Jack Foster, urged him to open a credit card clearing account in order that Value Vacations could process each credit card payment directly in order to avoid any credit card problems. He opened a Bank of Montreal account strictly for the purpose of processing master card payments, sometime in June, 1999 or after. He did not remember exactly when. Pinnock confirmed that he did not advise the Registrar in writing of the Bank of Montreal account, as required by the Regulation, but said he verbally advised Mr. Foster. He could not remember when.

Mr. Foster testified that, at no time, did the Applicant advise him of the Bank of Montreal account.

The account was closed around June, 2000, and Pinnock admitted that NSF activity might have had some influence on the account being closed. Pinnock also admitted that he did not advise TICO that the account was closed.

The Tribunal prefers the evidence of Foster in that regard, that neither he nor TICO was aware of the opening or closing of this account at the relevant times.

Royal Bank Account

As previously mentioned, on June 22, 2001, the Applicant was served with a Director's Direction issued under section 22 of the Travel Industry Act and dated June 21, 2001 to freeze the Applicant's bank accounts to protect consumer deposits. The Director's Direction (Exhibit 119) states, among other things, that:

... pursuant to and under the authority of Section 22 of the Travel Industry Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter T.19 ("the Act"), as amended, the Director directs Value Vacations Ltd. to refrain from withdrawing any assets or trust funds from any person having any of them on deposit or under control or for safekeeping and to hold any such assets or any trust funds of clients, customers or others in their possession or control or that come into their possession or control in trust...

This Direction shall apply with immediate effect from the date of service of this Direction and it shall remain and continue to remain in effect until the Director revokes or the Licence Appeal Tribunal cancels the Direction or consents to the release of any particular assets or trust funds from the direction...

In his testimony, Mr. Pinnock admitted that the Applicant opened and operated a new general account and trust account with the Royal Bank. This was clearly contrary to the Director's Direction and a contravention of the Act. The Royal Bank, according to Mr. Pinnock, subsequently closed the accounts.

Deficient Advertising

The prescribed advertising requirements are laid out in sections 38 through 40 of the Regulation.

Section 38 of the Regulation states that every Registrant shall ensure that any advertising or representation in Ontario with respect to travel services sold by the Registrant is not false, misleading or deceptive.

Subsection 39(1) of the Regulation states that a Registrant who advertises or places an advertisement for travel services shall ensure that the advertisement complies with the Act and the regulations.

Subsection 40(1) of the Regulation states that if an advertisement for the sale of travel services refers to the price of the travel services, the price shall include all fees, levies, charges, services charges, surcharges or other charges and taxes. The advertisement shall either state that the price includes GST, transportation taxes and related transportation fees or it shall state that the price does not include those items.

Subsection 40(2) of the Regulation states that any advertisement for the sale of travel services that refers to the price of the travel services shall include the following information and shall set it out in a prominent and understandable manner:

1. A statement indicating whether the price includes GST, transportation taxes and related transportation fees.
2. The terms and conditions, if any, that affect or limit the availability of the price of the travel services.
3. A brief description of the advertised travel services including the name of the air carrier, hotel and travel wholesaler where applicable.
4. A statement that a brochure containing further information is available from a travel agent.

In her testimony, Ms Palozzi indicated that by letter dated November 19, 1997 (Exhibit 5, Tab 6), she advised the Applicant that its advertisement, which was placed in the November 16, 1997 edition of the Toronto Sun (Exhibit 89), was deficient, because it did not clearly state whether the price included GST, transportation taxes, and other fees. The advertisement also did not mention the applicable air carrier, hotel, and travel wholesaler.

Ms Palozzi also testified that the Applicant's October 24, 2000 advertisement was deficient, because it did not include applicable taxes and service charges.

The following facts were admitted:

- a) On December 2, 1997, TICO sent a letter to the Applicant regarding advertising deficiencies, including failure to identify the applicable air carrier, hotel, and travel wholesaler.
- b) On December 12, 1997, TICO sent a letter to the Applicant to clarify the advertising provisions of the Regulation and to ensure advertising compliance in the future.
- c) On January 15, 1998, in response to a complaint from a consumer alleging misleading advertising by the Applicant, TICO cautioned the Applicant about its advertising practices.
- d) On April 13, 1998, Ms. Rachel Palozzi, Compliance Officer with TICO, met with Mr. Charles Pinnock to discuss advertising issues.

- e) On October 24, 2000, TICO received a copy of the Applicant's advertisement, which was issued on October 18, 2000.
- f) On October 25, 2000, TICO notified the Registrant that its October 18, 2000 advertisement was deficient.

Pinnock testified that at the time that TICO came into existence the advertising rules were very unclear, so much so that one of the first things that TICO did after coming into existence was to publish advertising guidelines for the industry. These guidelines were provided to Value Vacations on December 2, 1997 (Exhibit 90). He argued that the advertisements were in compliance with the information required, but were not set out in the manner that TICO wanted.

The Tribunal notes that the letter from TICO dated November 19, 1997, clearly sets out what was deficient in the Applicants November advertising and how to correct the deficiency.

The December 2, 1997 letter from TICO again mentioned some of the same items and that they must be set out "in a prominent and understandable manner". The letter included a copy of the advertising guidelines for the industry.

The December 12, 1997 letter from TICO commended the Applicant on its efforts to comply and clarified a point in its previous letter. It also stated that there were several advertisements in the same edition that were also deficient and that in the past month TICO had made over 40 contacts with various travel agencies.

In response from a complaint from a consumer, TICO again wrote to the Applicant on January 15, 1998, advising of deficient advertising, but not specifying the reason.

In the Applicants advertisement of October 18, 2000, The Tribunal notes that it states in the middle of the advertisement that GST, transportation taxes and services charges are not included, that Christmas and New Year were not included and Pinnock testified that the dates advertised were available.

Failure to Maintain Proper Records

Subsection 37(1) of the Regulation states that a Registrant shall keep and maintain at the Registrant's principal place of business or such other place as the Registrar may approve in writing the following records:

1. Accounting records setting out in detail the income and expenses of the Registrant and supporting documentary evidence which includes copies of statements, invoices or receipts that have unique identifiers or serial numbers provided to customers.
2. Banking records that identify readily and may be used to verify all transactions that were made in connection with the operation of the business of the Registrant.

3. A written record of all payments made by or to a Registrant respecting the purchase or sale of travel services which record shall be in a form that enables the Registrar to identify readily the transaction to which the payment relates based on the unique identifiers or serial numbers.

With respect to the findings of Jack Foster during his Inspection on October 8 and 9, 1998, (Exhibit 95), the inspection report alleges three deficiencies:

- i. Monthly customer deposit reconciliation were not being completed:

As admitted by Mr. Foster during his cross-examination, the Act does not require that monthly reconciliation's are prepared. The Tribunal cannot see how Mr. Foster can note this as a deficiency when it is not something that is required under the Act.

- ii. Inspectors were unable to determine if sales were being recorded.

At paragraph 2 of Exhibit 2 to the subject Report, Mr. Foster wrote, "automated invoicing is not operational & therefore unable to determine if all sales recorded."

During cross-examination Mr. Foster confirmed that the Act does not require an automated invoicing system. This should not have been noted as a deficiency.

- iii. Incomplete bank records

Pinnock explained that Jack Foster pointed out that when cash was being deposited, the bankbooks did not indicate to which customer the cash belonged. Pinnock explained that bank deposit book has a place to write information about individual cheques being deposited but with respect to cash, there is only space to write the amount, as such he was not recording any information. He further went on to say, that Mr. Foster suggested that he just write notes on the back of previous deposit page setting out details of who was paying in cash.

Mr. Foster explained that the Applicant never provided him with "a record of all payments made by or to a Registrant respecting the purchase or sale of travel services which record shall be in a form that enables the Registrar to identify readily the transaction to which the payment relates based on the unique identifiers or serial numbers". That record is required.

Further, the Applicant's failure to maintain or furnish sufficient records is evidenced by the non-disclosure of bank accounts discussed above. If the Applicant never advised the Respondent of its bank accounts, it follows that it did not maintain or furnish banking records in respect of those accounts as required by 37(1)2 of the Regulation.

November 27, 1998 Inspection

This inspection report alleges two deficiencies:

- i. No trust reconciliation's prepared: It has already been noted that none were required under the Act.
- ii. Bank Statements for the previous two months were not available:

Pinnock testified that all the other financial statements were there but not the September and October statements. He was unsure why the statements were not there. He further testified that he undertook to contact the bank and fax the statements to TICO.

December 4, 1998 Inspection

Since the previous inspection a week earlier, Pinnock had faxed bank statement with respect to the general bank account.

The Proposal further alleges that no trust reconciliation's were available. As stated above, in regard to the October 8/9 inspection and the November 27 inspection, trust reconciliation's were not required.

June 29, 2000 Inspection

The deficiency raised was the absence of financial statements at the business premises. Pinnock testified and as is confirmed in first paragraph of the subject inspection report, the financial statements were not there because they were with the accountant. The accountant was preparing the year-end financial statements for Value Vacations for the fiscal period ended April 30, 2000 and due July 31, 2000. The attending inspector requested statements from the previous two months (May and June) and was provided with it. The statements were attached to the subject inspection report. As such the only statements not in possession of Value Vacations were the statements required by the accountant for preparation of financial statements for the previous fiscal year. Pinnock advised the inspector (as is also confirmed in the first paragraph of the subject report) that the accountant was in the same building. The inspector did not ask to be shown the statements or to speak to the accountant.

Foster testified that it was not the duty of TICO inspectors to go searching for records; it was the responsibility of the Registrant to have the records on the premises, as required by the Act.

Notice of Further and Other Particulars, dated September 7, 2001

Failure to File Financial Statements on Time

By letter dated March 27, 2001, Pamela Stout, Financial Inspection Co-ordinator with TICO, reminded the Applicant that its financial statements were due by July 30, 2001.

It was admitted by the Applicant that it did not file its financial statements on time. Pinnock gave evidence that the statements were not filed because he did not think that the Applicant had to file financial statements while under suspension.

The Registrar made representations to this Tribunal that there were several cases that had held that the Travel Industry Act regulation, section 24, does not confer any jurisdiction on the Tribunal to allow a Registrant to keep their registration when they have not filed their financial statements. These cases have been dealt with elsewhere in this decision. The Applicant did file its financial statements, but again they were filed late.

Carry on Business while under Suspension

On June 21, 2001, the Respondent issued an Interim Suspension of the Applicant's Registration. On June 22, 2001, the Applicant was served with the Registrar's Interim Suspension Order and advised that it may not, while under suspension, act or hold itself out to be available to act as a travel agent. Specifically, it may not accept any consumer monies or make new bookings for travel services.

After the Applicant was served the Registrar's Interim Suspension Order, the Applicant made queries regarding the scope of the Order. TICO, by letter June 22, 2001, responded to the Applicant's queries. The Tribunal thinks that it is of such significance that the correspondence be set out in its entirety. The letter read:

Dear Mr. Pinnock:

Re: Interim Suspension

I am writing in response to your queries about what Value Vacations is and is not permitted to do during the period of its interim suspension.

Briefly, section 7 of the Travel Industry Act gives the Registrar authority to impose the order to temporarily suspend Value Vacation's registration. Under that section, "the order shall take effect immediately and where a hearing is required, the order expires fifteen days from the date of the notice requiring the hearing unless the hearing is commenced in which case the Tribunal holding the hearing may extend the time of expiration until the hearing is concluded."

Section 3 of the Act provides that no person shall act or hold himself, herself or itself out as being available to act as a travel agent unless the person is registered as such by the Registrar. Any person doing so is guilty of an offence and on conviction, is liable to a fine and/or imprisonment.

During the period of the interim suspension, Value Vacations may not act or hold itself out as being available to act as a travel agent. It may not, therefore, accept any bookings or take any consumer monies. While Value Vacations is not permitted to take new bookings, it will be able to complete any outstanding bookings that had been paid in full prior to the date of the suspension. Bookings that had not been paid in full prior to the suspension should be transferred to another registered Ontario travel agency and those customers advised accordingly. TICO will work with you to ensure that arrangements have been made to protect any consumers who have not received the travel services for which they have paid.

If Value Vacations receives calls from customers during its suspension, it may not imply that it is operating as a travel agent. It should answer telephone calls with a simple "hello". If a customer calls or enters Value Vacations' offices and requests travel services, Value Vacations should direct that person to an Ontario registered travel agency, which is able to make the necessary booking and provide the travel service.

Please guide yourself accordingly. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at (905) 624-6241.

Yours truly,

THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY COUNCIL OF ONTARIO

Immediately after receiving TICO's letter, the Applicant telephoned TICO for further clarification. In response to the Applicant's request for clarification, TICO, by another letter dated June 22, 2001, advised:

Dear Mr. Pinnock:

Re: Interim Suspension

To follow up on my previous letter and telephone conversation, Value Vacations may assist customers and provide information with respect to travel services. It may not sell or hold itself out as being available to sell those travel services and should direct the customer to a registered Ontario travel agent to make any bookings.

I hope that clarifies things. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at (905) 624-6241.

Yours truly,

THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY COUNCIL OF ONTARIO

In the Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated September 7, 2001, and in its evidence given at this hearing, the Registrar alleged further specific transactions of the Applicant, which were done in contravention of the Order.

Duane Squires Transaction

The Applicant admitted that, on or about July 20, 2001, TICO received a complaint from a consumer, Mr. Duane Squires. Mr. Squires had paid the Applicant for travel services for his girlfriend Cilla Namsua, on July 6, 2001. While Ms. Namsua made the original reservation for the travel services on June 19, 2001, Mr. Squires paid for the travel services by VISA on July 6. When the tickets for the travel services arrived, the dates were allegedly incorrect. This resulted in the complaint from Mr. Squires. TICO advised Mr. Squires that the Applicant had been under suspension since June 22, 2001.

In his evidence, Pinnock had added that the original credit card was given on June 19, 2001, and was processed on July 6, 2001, when the seats became available. This information was not in the original agreed facts, however it was supported by letter from Elaine Welsh, former employee of Value Vacations (Tab 3 of the Applicant's Affidavit Record – Exhibit 36).

It was submitted by the Applicant, that the letter from TICO setting out Value Vacations obligations after suspension (Exhibit 105), Value Vacations was expressly permitted to complete all bookings. As such, in regard to this transaction Value Vacations did not accept payment after the date of suspension and merely completed processing the transaction.

The Tribunal sets out the relevant portion of that letter as follows:

“While Value Vacations is not permitted to take new bookings, it will be able to complete any outstanding bookings that had been paid in full prior to the date of the suspension. Bookings that had not been paid in full prior to the suspension should be transferred to another registered Ontario travel agency and those customers advised accordingly.”

The Tribunal finds that the trip was not ‘paid in full prior to the date of the suspension’, nor was the transaction “transferred to another registered Ontario travel agency” nor was the customer advised that the Applicant was under suspension.

Abdy Electriciteh Transaction

Mr. Pinnock testified that the subject customer inquired about a trip for twelve people in the month of June, 2001, prior to the suspension. On July 17, 2001, the customer then attended at the Value Vacations place of business in order to book the subject trip. Pinnock testified that in order that it would not be taking the booking directly, Value Vacations intended to transfer the booking to Travel Media. For that purpose it prepared the Booking Request Form, (Exhibit 106) which it faxed to Travel Media. Travel Media could not complete the transaction because all twelve seats were not available at that time. Value Vacations then proceeded to monitor the availability of seats.

The client attended again on August 3, and was very impatient and irritated that the seats were not yet booked and demanded that the seats be booked then and there or he wanted his money back. In order to placate the customer, Value Vacations directly reserved whatever number of seats were then available (10). Pinnock testified that Value Vacations never intended to be making the reservation directly and only did so in order to appease the customer and provide it with a written confirmation. Pinnock testified that it was his intention to still transfer the booking transaction to Travel Media, however, the customer called TICO from the premises and learned that the Value Vacations was suspended. TICO then got involved and the entire transaction was canceled on the spot before any transfer could have been affected. Neither the Applicant nor respondent could establish the exact date, however, both parties agree that the customer received a full refund.

The Tribunal finds that, no matter what the intention of the Applicant may have been, it made a direct booking in contravention of its suspension. It also failed to advise the customer that it was under suspension at the time of the booking and it accepted money from a consumer while under suspension.

Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated December 11, 2001

The Registrar alleges that the Applicant has continued to carry on business directly with Air Canada Vacations Ltd. By making bookings and payments for travel services for consumers, despite the Interim Suspension Order under section 7 of the Act.

Air Canada Vacations

By affidavit evidence (Exhibit 10), Ms. Grundie indicated that since the date of its suspension, the Applicant has continued to carry on business directly with Air Canada Vacations Ltd. by making bookings and payments for travel services for consumers. The Applicant made twelve bookings with Air Canada Vacations totaling $15,809.38 more or less, since its suspension. The last booking was made on October 29, 2001. Air Canada Vacations has used the commissions payable to the Applicant to reduce the amounts owing from the Applicant for credit card charge backs and NSF cheques.

Pinnock testified that he completed only nine transactions with Air Canada after the suspension. He further testified that he only accepted money on a couple of occasions and that in all other cases he either passed on the credit card number directly to Air Canada or after making the arrangements, instructed the customers to pick up their tickets directly from Air Canada and to pay directly to Air Canada. Pinnock testified that he advised the various parties of the suspension and as proof, submitted to the Tribunal three letters (Exhibits 111 to 113) from some of the Air Canada customers. He further testified that he did not personally benefit from the transactions but that he participated in the subject transactions out of obligation to his old clients and also in order to payoff outstanding commissions to Air Canada.

The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Ms. Grundie in that regard. Three letters produced by the Applicant do not speak for the other consumers that booked and paid for trips through the Applicant, while it was under suspension. The Tribunal also disagrees that the Applicant did not personally benefit from the transactions. The commissions earned on the transactions were used to pay down the Applicants debt, which is in itself, a benefit to the Applicant.

Ms. Grundie stated that Charles Pinnock personally attended the offices of Air Canada on several occasions after the suspension of the Applicant, to make payment for customers travel services. She testified that the Applicant still owed Air Canada Vacations $1,229.43.

Direct and Indirect Bookings

Mr. Pinnock gave evidence that the Applicant continued "indirect" bookings as well as "direct" bookings. The indirect bookings were arranged with tour operators that the Applicant was not able to book directly. Pinnock would provide particulars of the trip to the consumer and then fax a credit card authorization to the consumer who would then fax it back to the Applicant. Pinnock would then obtain the travel services from another travel agent and fax that agent the customer's credit card authorization. The other agent would book the trip with the tour operator and give the customer's credit card number, but not the faxed sheet unless there was any problem. The tour operator would then charge the customer's credit card and the second travel agency would obtain the commission. The second travel agency would charge the Applicant $10.00 or $20.00 per booking and remit the rest to the Applicant. Pinnock would then deposit the commissions into the Applicants Royal Bank account. In some cases, the agency would be told to hold onto the commissions and set them off against other trips that the Applicant has sent, where the consumers had paid the Applicant in cash. Pinnock indicated that the Applicant had done approximately 60 indirect bookings while under suspension, which number he considered to be trivial compared to the Applicant's usual volume.

In the "direct bookings" the consumers paid Value Vacations directly and the Applicant then dealt directly with the tour operator, such as Air Canada Vacations. The Applicant has also dealt through retailers who are also wholesalers, although the consumers paid the Applicant directly by cash, credit card or a combination of both. Pinnock stated that his best estimate was that the Applicant had done approximately 30 direct bookings while under suspension. The bookings were of a value of between $25,000.00 to $30,000.00 with the last booking done in late June or early July of 2002.

Acting as Outside Sales Agent

The Applicant submitted that the Act does permit unlicensed individuals (such as outside sales representatives) to provide certain travel services providing that they meet certain obligations set out in section 14 of the Act. One of such requirements is that the outside sales agents have a written agreement with the company(s) for whom they sell travel services.

Pinnock testified that he approached several agencies and requested that they enter into a written contract in order that he could act as a freelance travel agent. However, as Charles Pinnock testified during his rebuttal evidence, after TICO made it public knowledge (by publishing the suspension in the trade newspaper) that Value Vacations license was suspended; he was only able to obtain one written contract (between the third party agency and another agent employed by Value Vacations). Other agencies were willing to accept referral clients but none of these agencies were willing to enter into written contracts.

It was further submitted by the Applicant, that other than the Air Canada bookings set out in the Notice of Further and Other Particulars, no other bookings were part of the overall Proposal or either Notice of Further and Other Particulars and ought not to have been properly considered by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal notes that there are several sections of the Act and Regulation that outline the requirements for an outside sales agent.

There must be a written contract. Section 14 of the Regulation states that a travel agent shall not sell travel services unless sold directly by the Registrant, through an employee or through a person with whom the Registrant has a written contract and who operates from the registered premises.

The outside sales agent must operate from the registered premises. Subsection 3 (3) of the Act states that no travel agent shall conduct business from a place at which the public is invited to deal unless it is named as an office in the registration. Subsection (4) clarifies when there is more than one office, one is the main office, and the remaining are branch offices. The Applicant did not operate from a registered head office or branch office.

There are a number of specific advertising sections found in the Regulations. Section 39 (2) and (3) specify all advertisements for the sale of travel services shall include the registered name, address and registration number of the Registrant. The advertisements made by the Applicant did not identify the registered name, address and registration number of any agency with whom it dealt.

The Tribunal notes that Pinnock gave evidence that there was one employee of the Applicant that had a contract with one travel agency until May 2002. He also stated that the Applicant made bookings through five other travel agencies, none of which the Applicant had contracts with.

The Applicant has taken the position that the Applicant was denied natural justice, because, among other things, it was denied the opportunity to explain or clarify any accusations before its licence was suspended. The Applicant has also suggested that... "The Tribunal should treat all allegations arising from breach of the suspension as nullity (The Tribunal ought not to consider any allegations of breach of suspension). Furthermore, it is submitted that to consider any evidence regarding any matter arising after the unlawful suspension would have the effect of justifying TICO's unlawful actions and be a gross miscarriage of justice."

Regarding the Applicants argument that the Tribunal cannot take into account the improper bookings, other than those with Air Canada Vacations, because they were not included in the Proposal, the Tribunal disagrees. The purpose of the Act is to safeguard consumers. It is a public protection Statute. This is not a criminal matter where each allegation must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Nor is the Tribunal as restricted in the evidence that it may consider, as may be the case in a criminal court. The burden of proof is on the Registrar, and it is not a light burden. Where the issue involves taking away a persons right to make a living in that persons chosen field, the evidence must be "clear and convincing and based on cogent evidence which is accepted by the Tribunal" (Bernstein). It is up to the Tribunal as to what evidence it will consider and accept. If clear and convincing evidence is brought forth in the hearing, and that evidence has a bearing on the allegations and the protection of the public, the Tribunal may consider that evidence in making its decision.

Addressing the argument that the Applicant was denied the opportunity to explain or clarify any accusations before suspension, the Proposal contained the following:

TAKE NOTICE that subsection 6(2) of the Act provides that a Registrant is entitled to a hearing by the Licence Appeal Tribunal in respect of a proposal by the Registrar to revoke a registration if WITHIN 15 DAYS after receipt of notice that the Registrar intends to revoke a registration, the Registrant mails or delivers notice in writing that a hearing is required (Notice to Reader) to the Registrar and the Tribunal...

AND TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that if you require a hearing regarding this proposal, a hearing date may be set by the Licence Appeal Tribunal on short notice to you. If you wish to be represented by a lawyer at the hearing, it is advisable that you make these arrangements as soon as possible. The Registrar reserves the right to oppose any request by you for an adjournment in order for you to make such arrangements.

Mr. Pinnock appeared at the hearing on behalf of the Applicant and had an opportunity to submit evidence and to cross-examine the Registrar on his opinion why the Applicant's licence should be suspended. The Applicant was afforded due process with full participatory rights. The fact that the Applicant chose not to be represented by counsel at the hearing was a matter of the Applicants choice. It did not diminish the fact that there was notice given that counsel could have represented it.

Unnecessary Delay

The Applicant has contended that the Respondent has delayed and unnecessarily complicated the hearing and that its unjust actions have resulted in the hearing that stretched over one and a half years. The Applicant has further contended it was the Respondent's counsel that was often not available on the dates that were convenient to the Tribunal, usually as a result of an apparently busy hearing schedule, or for an extended absence due to the birth of his child.

The Tribunal, at the outset of the hearing, had requested that both counsel give an estimate of the anticipated length of the hearing. Either counsel thought that perhaps three or four days would be sufficient. There was more evidence to be covered than either counsel anticipated and at the conclusion of each hearing day, another date was set to resume. There were more occasions when the Respondent was not available for hearing dates, however there were also dates when the Applicant or the Tribunal was not available. There were also several occasions where the sheer volume of the material to be covered necessitated longer time between hearing dates in order to allow counsel adequate time to prepare. This was the case for both counsels as they had tried to accommodate each other's schedules without any significant objection.

Bad Faith or Bias

The Applicant argued that TICO and the Registrar has shown bias against the Applicant by including complaints from third parties in the Proposal, as if they were proven facts. It used this information without investigating the allegations. Further, the Applicant alleged that TICO misconstrued facts, contradicted facts it had already accepted (promissory note and accountants opinion), ignored letters from the Applicant in its possession (TD bank accounts), ignored the garnishment of the trust account by Signature, made allegations regarding deficient advertising when the rules were not yet settled and generally pursued trivial matters. These incidents, the Applicant alleged, showed TICO was bias and unfair in its prosecution of this matter.

The Registrar submitted that the Applicant, acknowledged several breaches of the Act and Regulations. Those breaches were sufficient to justify the Registrar's conclusions. It was submitted that the Applicant did little to demonstrate that the Registrar was in error. It merely attempted to explain away the enumerated items and many of the explanations were insufficient or contradictory.

It further submitted that the Applicant had demonstrated bad faith in these proceedings by breaching The Tribunal's Interim Suspension Order. The breach placed consumers at risk and caused harm, as evidenced by the Electriciteh transaction. The Respondent submitted that the Applicant's bad faith was compounded by its submissions to the Tribunal that all consumers were being referred to other travel agencies, when they were not.

The Issue:

The Tribunal must decide whether the Registrar ("the Respondent") had sufficient grounds to support his belief that the Applicant's registration as a travel agent under the Act, should be revoked.

The Law:

Section 4 of the Travel Industry Act (the "Act"), states as follows;

4(1) an Applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration as a travel agent or travel wholesaler by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to his, her or its financial position, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of his, her or its business; or

(b) the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he, she or it will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the Applicant is a corporation and,

(i) is incorporated without share capital, or

(ii) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or

(iii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carry on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(d) the Applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the Applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

Section 5 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to register an Applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the Applicant is disentitled to registration under section 4.

(2) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the Registrant to registration under section 4 if he, she or it were an Applicant, or where the Registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(4) Where an Applicant or Registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out his or her proposal or refrain from carrying out his or her proposal and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

(5) the Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar to satisfy the Tribunal that he has reasonable grounds to believe that the registration of Applicant ought to be revoked based upon the particulars set out in the Notice of Proposal dated June 21, 2001 and the Notices of Further and Other Particulars dated September 11, 2001 and December 11, 2001.

Case Law

The leading authority, which has been followed in numerous cases, is the Divisional Court Decision of Brenner, reported in 19 CRAT 58. This decision held that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it is of the opinion that the Registrar was in error. The authority of the Tribunal under Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (paralleling the Act) respecting the proposal of the Registrar was reviewed by Southey J. where he stated :

“The Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his Proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty... The Proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.”

Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) [1983 O.J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court

The above has often been quoted, but also of importance is the burden of proof required as well as the quality of that proof. The following have provided some assistance in that regard:

“Nothing short of clear and convincing proof based upon cogent evidence will justify an administrative tribunal in revoking a license to practice medicine or to gain a livelihood in business.”

Coates v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen) 1998 65 O.R.(2d) 526 at p526 ([1988] O.J. No. 1351 at page 9)

“In my view discipline committees whose powers are such that their decisions can destroy a man’s or woman’s professional life are entitled to more guidance from the Courts ... I hold that the degree of proof required in disciplinary matters of this kind is that the proof must be clear and convincing and based on cogent evidence which is accepted the tribunal.”

Bernstein and College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (1977), 15 O.R.(2nd) 447

“I wish, however, to emphasize that in every civil action before the tribunal can safely find the affirmative of an issue of fact required to be proved it must be reasonably satisfied, and that whether or not it will be so satisfied must depend on the totality of the circumstances on which its judgment is formed including the gravity of the consequences...”

Smith v. Smith [1952] 2 S.C.R. 312 at pp. 331-2

“The concept that the standard of proof rises with the gravity of the allegations and the seriousness of the consequences has been reaffirmed in the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in R v. Oakes [1986], 1 S.C.R. 103.”

Regarding denial of due process:

“...the purpose of the participatory rights contained within the duty of procedural fairness is to ensure that administrative decisions are made using a fair and open procedure, appropriate to the decision being made in its statutory, institutional and social context, with an opportunity for those affected by the decision to put forward their views and evidence fully and have them considered by the decision maker.”

Baker v. Canada (Minister of Citizenship and Immigration) [1999] 2 S.C.R. 817 at paragraph 22

Regarding Failure to Disclose on Application

“Failure to make proper disclosure on the application form is considered by this Tribunal as a serious error of judgment and requires reasonable explanations as to why the application was not completed properly. In this case the Tribunal did not receive such reasonable explanations. The Registrar must rely on these applications to be accurate and honest due to the tremendous volume of applications received each year. To deceive the Registrar, particularly on a reinstatement application, show a lack of honesty and integrity on the part of the Applicant. This Applicant had worked for many years in the motor vehicle industry and had been registered previously. She should have ensured her answers were accurate to the best of her ability.”

Re Hunt [2002] O.L.A.T.D. No. 273. At paragraph 20

Regarding Failure to Maintain Working Capital

In this matter the travel agency had failed to maintain the minimum working capital requirement due to a downturn in economy. There was evidence that some financial relief would be available and the business might improve; however, the Tribunal found that the decision by the Registrar was reasonable when it was made.

591578 Ontario Inc. o/a Hansa Travel v Registrar Travel Industry Act (September 17, 1997)
Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the travel agency had a history of filing necessary forms late, filing forms, which were insufficient, and of not maintaining a sufficient amount of working capital. The Tribunal found that in the circumstances the Registrar had not made an error in deciding that the past conduct of the Registrant and its officers provided reasonable grounds to believe that it would not carry on business in accordance with law.

CIAO Travel & Tour Inc. o/a CIAO Travel & Tour v Registrar, Travel Industry Act
(August 25, 1998) Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

Contravention of Terms of Registration and Miscellaneous

In this matter the travel agency had contravened the Act, the terms and conditions of registration, and an order of the Tribunal. Sufficient working capital was not maintained, there were problems with the trust accounting, and the financial statements were not provided within the proper time limits. Even though the company had the assistance of direct intervention by the Registrar and prior appearances at the Tribunal, they did not appear to understand the importance of compliance with the Act and Regulations to ensure the protection of the public. The deficit in the trust account and the failure to maintain the required working capital were found to pose a substantial risk to the public.

Past Conduct and Current Circumstances

As stated in Derek Scanlan, a decision of this Tribunal released November 26, 2002, In Ontario (Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers) v. Faccenda (Ont. Div. Ct.) [1994] O.J. No. 9541 Adams J. in considering s. 6 of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act R.S.O. 1990, c.R.4. Which is essentially the same as s. 4 of the Act before this Tribunal stated:

Given the test set out in s. 6(1) of the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act, R.S.O. 1990, c.R.4, all past conduct is potentially relevant, notwithstanding that it was the subject of a previous proposal. It is the totality of that past conduct, considered in the light of more current circumstances, which form the basis for the relief.

He further added:

Clearly, s. 6(1)(b) requires a more qualitative assessment of the entire conduct of an Applicant to determine whether past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that he or she will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Facts Found Proven:

1. From 1984 to 1990, the Applicant was registered as a travel agency with Charles Pinnock as part owner.
2. In April 1997, the Applicant was reinstated with a surety of $10,000.00. Inna Zelener financed the company and was president.
3. Charles Pinnock was the manager and the controlling mind of the Applicant since 1997, subject to Zelener protecting her investment by retaining cheque-signing authority until October, 1998. Zelener had released any interest in the Applicant by a full release in June, 1998.
4. In November, 1998, Charles Pinnock moved the office of the Applicant.
5. The Applicant was late in filing its Financial Statements every year since 1997.
6. The Applicant paid a $10,000.00 security deposit into the compensation fund in March, 1997, which should have been returned, in accordance with Section 26 of the Act by April, 1999.
7. The security deposit was not to be considered as part of the Applicants working capital, according to section 25(5) of the Regulation.

8. The loan from Zelener was meant to be personal to Pinnock and it was improperly recorded as a debt of the Applicant. This was resolved by April, 2000.
9. According to the Applicants records at the time, the Applicant had a working capital shortfall for the year ending April 30, 1998.
10. In 1999, even if there were adjustments for the deposit and the promissory note, as the Applicant contends there should be, the Applicant still had a working capital shortfall.

The Applicant had to be continually monitored by TICO and advised of its working capital shortfalls.

11. The Applicant usually made up any shortfalls in working capital within a brief time after being advised of them by TICO.
12. In the Phyllis James matter, the Tribunal finds no fault on the part of the Applicant. This was merely an inquiry from a tour operator and Ms. James agreed that her card was used with her permission.
13. In the Nadia Ciaravino matter, the Tribunal finds no conclusive proof of any fault on the part of the Applicant.
14. In the Cheryl Davis matter, the Applicant was at fault for double billing the client by using her charge card to pay for another customer's trip. There was a charge back to Regent, which was then reimbursed by the Applicant. This complaint gave reason for the Registrar to be concerned.
15. In the Dufour transaction, there was no proof by the Registrar of fault on the part of the Applicant.
16. In the Kiwanuka transaction, there was a $96.00 charge back to NALG, but neither party could explain the reason. The Tribunal finds no fault on the part of the Applicant was proved.
17. In the Mitchel transactions, the customer was debited three times for travel services. The Applicant accepted the first charge, but denied responsibility for the other two charges and filed a Police Report. It appeared that two other persons, who were not employed by the Applicant, used the Applicants name and the consumers' credit card to book trips. There was no evidence of wrong doing proved against the Applicant.
18. In the Hola Sun Holidays matter, there was no proof of any charge back. Hola Sun was withholding the Applicants commission as a precaution against a credit card inquiry from Visa. The name on the credit card was different from the name of the travelers, however there was no impropriety proved on the part of the Applicant.

19. In the Bolers transaction, Signature was back charged $1,930.00 as a result of the Applicant booking a trip on a credit card, which was rejected by the owner. Although the Applicant provided a signed authorization, it was not the name or signature of the owner of the card. The Tribunal finds it very strange that neither the Applicant or the witness from Signature followed up and produced further evidence on this matter when both had the fax and phone number of the person who signed the authorization. This transaction would be enough to raise the suspicion of the Registrar of some improper behavior, but it was not proven that the Applicant was at fault.
20. In the John Curtis matter, the Applicant charged his credit card for the trip of Mr. Curtis and then again for another customer's trip. Curtis wrote a letter to TICO alleging dishonesty on the part of the Applicant. This also would have been reason to raise the Registrar's concern. There was fault proven on the part of the Applicant in allowing the consumer's credit card to be debited twice, as well as issuing a NSF cheque.
21. In the Redpath transaction, there was no evidence of wrongdoing proved against the Applicant.
22. There were several Air Transat transactions. Even though there were no complaints from consumers, the fact that the Applicant was using consumer's credit cards to pay for totally unrelated travel by other persons with different travel agencies, would give cause for concern to the Registrar.
23. In the George Pinnock matter, although the nature of the transaction may have raised a suspicion, there was not any proof of impropriety on the part of the Applicant.
24. In the Charles Gibson matter, the Applicant made a mistake by not paying for the Client's trip out of the merchant account after debiting the Client's credit card. Martinair was reimbursed shortly after the mistake was brought to the attention of the Applicant. The Tribunal is not impressed that it took the Applicant five months to discover that it had debited the Client's credit card, but never remitted the funds to Martinair. Although it did so shortly after notification by TICO, the nature of the transaction infers that there were some shortcomings in the Applicant's bookkeeping.
25. In the Rita Silvestri transaction, it was not proved that there was any intentional dishonesty on the part of the Applicant, but again the transaction indicated that the Applicant's bookkeeping lacked careful attention. A complaint from the consumer, as well as issuance of NSF cheques to Visa to reimburse the client, certainly would give cause for concern to the Registrar.
26. Regarding the Travel Media cheque of November 5, 1998, the explanation given by the Charles Pinnock appears credible and without dishonest intent. Again, however, it shows that the Applicant was not paying attention to detail in its financial matters.

27. The matter of the transfer memos and NSF cheques in September and October, 1998 was not explained to the satisfaction of the Tribunal. In its best light, it is yet another example of the Applicant not comprehending or not following proper financial procedures. Fourteen NSF cheques over a two-month period, would give rise for concern to the Registrar regarding the Applicant's financial dealings and responsibility.
28. In the Thomas Jacob matter, the Applicant wrote a cheque on the Value Vacations Ltd. in trust account, after it had received Notice that account had been frozen. The cheque was not honoured and no reimbursement was made to the customer. The Applicant was at fault when it wrote the cheque, knowing that the account had been frozen and again when it did not reimburse the consumer.
29. Concerning the Elizabeth Pellegrino and Niagara Falls transactions, the Respondent has proved that the Applicant had written cheques on a bank account that it knew was frozen at the time. The reason given, that the Applicant wrote the cheques out of frustration because of TICO taking so long to deal with the Signature garnishment of the Applicant's trust account, is no excuse. The evidence accepted by the Tribunal shows a clear breach of the Regulation by the Applicant. The fact that there were not enough funds in the Applicants trust account to pay for all the trips that were booked, also reinforced the need for inspections of the Applicants accounts. These transactions would clearly give the Registrar reasonable concern that the Applicant may not be carrying on business with honesty, integrity and according to law.
30. Regarding the South American Tours cheque, again this shows the Applicant's lack of detail to accounting and protection of consumer funds. The fact that the Applicant's account did not show a corresponding deposit that was paid by the consumer, was not explained. The Tribunal was satisfied that the Registrar would have had cause for concern in this transaction.
31. Concerning the Southwinds cheque of August, 2000, there was no fault proved attributable to the Applicant. However, the fact that this matter still remained unexplained over two years later, again demonstrated a lack of attention to financial matters.
32. Regarding the Distinguished Travel NSF cheque, the Tribunal finds that there was no wrongdoing proved on the part of the Applicant.
33. Regarding the Abdy Electricitch matter, the cheques in issue were not produced to the Tribunal. The evidence was that one NSF cheque was from Value Marketing and Promotion. The Tribunal was not satisfied with the contradictory evidence given by the Applicant concerning this matter. The circumstances and lack of explanation by Pinnock, would give the Registrar a reason for concern regarding the financial responsibility of the Applicant.

34. Signature obtained a Default Judgment against the Applicant on June 4, 1999, in the amount of $12,002.86, which Judgment remains outstanding. The Applicant did not dispute the Judgment or move to set it aside. This again demonstrated a lack of financial responsibility.
35. Signature acted inappropriately in its garnishee of a Travel Industry Trust Account. Signature further acted inappropriately in not turning over the funds garnished from a Travel Industry Trust Account to either the Applicant or to TICO to administer on behalf of the consumers.
36. The Registrar acted inappropriately in not taking any action to deal with the garnishee of a Travel Industry Trust Account. The main purpose of TICO is to regulate the industry and protect consumers. TICO should have demanded the return of the money garnished from a Travel Industry Trust Account to ensure the protection of the consumers to whom the funds belong.
37. The Applicant continued to advertise and sell Sunquest products when it knew that Sunquest had the intention of prohibiting the Applicant from doing so. This action on behalf of the Applicant could have placed consumers at risk if any difficulty had arisen between the consumer and the tour operator, as the Applicant would not have had any status to represent the consumer. The actions of the Applicant were also false and misleading, as the advertising did not inform the consumer of the Applicants status with those tour operators. This is considered in the Applicants ability to carry on business with honesty and integrity.
38. The Applicant contravened the Act by making a reservation for a Value Vacations customer under the name of Amazonas Travel, while not registered as an agent of Amazonas Travel.
39. The Applicant failed to disclose the Signature Judgment of June 4, 1999 in its Application of April 27, 2001, when it knew or ought to have known that it was required to do so. The Tribunal is satisfied that the non-disclosure arose from a lack of understanding of the form by the Applicant since the Applicant had advised Jack Foster of the Judgment during an inspection in October, 2000.
40. The Applicant had opened, operated and closed a Bank of Montreal account without informing TICO contrary to clause 16 (1) (4) of the Regulation.
41. The Applicant had opened and operated accounts at the Royal Bank contrary to the Director's Direction. The Tribunal notes that the issue of non-disclosure of the Royal Bank accounts was not in the Registrars Proposal. The Applicant argues this non-disclosure cannot be considered by the Tribunal since the Registrar did not know about the accounts at the time of the Proposal. The Tribunal is of the opinion that it can consider matters that are proved, although not in the Proposal, in its overall assessment of the Applicants honesty and integrity.

42. The Applicant was in breach of the Regulations relating to advertising in its 1997 advertisements. The Tribunal notes that TICO came into existence on June 25, 1997. The advertising regulation enforcement began near the end of 1997. There were many agencies that were not in compliance as the method of following the regulation was being formulated. It would be unfair to single out the Applicant for its breaches at that time. The Applicant has been in substantial compliance with its advertising format since then. The Tribunal is commenting simply on the advertising format under the Regulations and not the propriety of the advertising by the Applicant subsequent to its suspension.
43. The Applicant failed to maintain and produce proper records by not providing the information regarding the undisclosed bank accounts.
44. The Applicant failed to file statements by the time that they were due in 2001 despite being advised by TICO in March 2001, that the statements were due by July 30, 2001.
45. On June 22, 2001, the Applicant was served with the Registrar's Interim Suspension Order and advised that it may not, while under suspension, act or hold itself out to be available to act as a travel agent. Specifically, it may not accept any consumer monies or make new bookings for travel services.
46. The Applicant made inquiries regarding the scope of the order and TICO responded in two letters also dated June 22, 2001.
47. The Applicant took payment for travel services in the Squires transaction after it had received notice that it was under suspension and the Applicant failed to advise the consumer that it was under suspension contrary to the terms of the Interim Suspension Order.
48. In the Electricitch transaction, the Applicant made a direct booking, took consumer funds and failed to advise the consumer that it was under suspension at the time. The Applicant was again in breach of the Interim Suspension Order.
49. The Applicant continued to act as a travel agency by making direct bookings with Air Canada Vacations and taking consumer monies while under suspension.
50. The Applicant continued to hold itself out as, and to act as a travel agent by making indirect bookings through five different travel agencies without having a contract with those agencies, contrary to the Regulation.

Analysis:

The onus of proof in this matter falls on the Registrar.

In the Registrar's Proposal to Revoke the Applicant's registration and the Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated September 7, 2001 and December 11, 2001, he laid out four grounds, upon which Value Vacation Ltd.'s registration should be revoked. They included the following:

1. The Applicant is and has been carrying on activities that are in contravention of the Act and Regulations;
2. The Applicant is in breach of the Terms and Conditions of its registration;
3. The past conduct of the Applicant's officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; and
4. Having regard to the Applicant's financial position, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business.

The Registrar alleged that the Registrant has shown a pattern of non-compliance, which goes to its ability to be registered as a travel agent. This non-compliance includes: late filing of its financial statements; failing to maintain working capital; credit card misuse; issuing NSF cheques; failing to meet its financial responsibilities to wholesalers; misrepresentation; failing to notify the TICO of changes in its financial institutions; and deficient advertising. In the two Notices of Further or other Particulars, the Registrar also alleged that the Applicant continued its non-compliance by carrying-on business while under suspension and knowingly issuing cheques on a frozen bank account to refund its customers.

The Tribunal finds that, taking into account the totality of the past conduct of the Applicant, considered in the light of more current circumstances, the Registrar has satisfied the burden of proof and was not in error in his belief.

The Tribunal is not unmindful of the Applicants argument that the Registrar has included numerous unfounded allegations in the Proposal and subsequent Notices of Further and Other Particulars. That the sheer number of the allegations would have influenced the Registrar to make the decision that he did, even though most of the allegations were unproven and groundless. There were many allegations made which were of little substance, and unnecessarily made this hearing longer, and more complicated and cumbersome than necessary.

In order to address that concern of the Applicant, the Tribunal has re-examined the evidence and allegations that were proven by the Registrar, without regard to the allegations that were unproven. In other words, if only the allegations which have been found to have been proven were before the Registrar at the time that he made his decision, would they have been enough to justify the Registrars decision at that time?

The Tribunal finds that the failure to disclose bank accounts, shortage of working capital, poor or inadequate supervision of customer's monies which should have been scrupulously safeguarded in a properly managed trust account and issuing NSF cheques, were sufficient in themselves to allow the Registrar to reach the conclusion that he did. The Registrar had a justifiable concern as to the financial viability of the Applicant, as is required by section 4 (1) (c) (ii) of the Act. In addition, the Applicant was carrying on business in breach of the terms and conditions of its registration, in contravention of section 4 (1) (d) of the Act.

Furthermore, the actions of the sole officer and director of the Applicant, while the Applicant was under suspension, supported the Registrar in his concern regarding the Applicants ability to carry on business in accordance with law, and with honesty and integrity, as set out in section 4 (1) (c) (iii) of the Act.

DECISION

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by subsection 6(4) of the Travel Industry Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registration of Value Vacations Ltd.

RADU AND LILIANA SIRBU

IN THE MATTER OF THE DECISION OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTY PROGRAM

DECISION DATED MAY 3, 2002

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE HILEY, Vice Chair
ALBERT LONGO, Member

APPEARANCES: RADU SIRBU, representing the Applicants
MARCUS KNAPP, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
ENZO BERTUCCI, Agent, representing the Added Party, Maple View Building Corporation

DATES OF HEARING: September 4 and 5, 2002

Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Program by its decision letter of May 3, 2002 refused a number of claims made by the Applicants for warranty coverage. The Applicants requested a hearing before the Tribunal by their Notice of Appeal dated May 12, 2002. The hearing was held on September 4, 2002 with all parties present. In the course of the hearing Mr. Sirbu filed a consent from Liliana Sirbu which stated that she wished Radu Sirbu to act on her behalf.

EVIDENCE:

Mr. Sirbu stated in his opening statement that there was an eight month delay in closing of the house. This resulted in poor workmanship and incomplete work. Even at the date of closing the house was not in livable condition. The Applicants did receive some compensation for the delay in closing. The Applicants were in possession on December 15, 2000. Mr. Sirbu stated that after that date there were continual problems with delays in getting repairs completed. The Applicants had to make their requests by fax due to problems with staffing of the office. Mr. Sirbu stated that they were dissatisfied with the Program, particularly the conciliation process. They did receive some compensation and were able to hire trades to complete repairs.

They are concerned about future repairs.

The Program stated in their opening statement that there was no delay claim before the Tribunal. There were fifteen items found not to be warranted. Many of these items were minor in nature and not noticeable. In some instances the Applicants were not in compliance with the contract and therefore not under protection by the Program.

The Added Party stated that it states in writing that all service requests are to be in writing or by fax. It is their policy only to take telephone service requests if it is an emergency situation.

Evidence of Radu Sirbu:

Mr. Sirbu testified that they took possession of the house on December 15, 2000 as is stated in the Certificate of Completion and Possession.

Mr. Sirbu had a series of computer generated colour photos to demonstrate the defects in the house. The issues are numbered as per the decision letter.

Issue #1

Regarding the issue of the main wood staircase Mr. Sirbu stated that from December 4-15, 2000 there were trades in the house completing the interior work. These tradesmen were using this staircase. Though the stairs were varnished there were severe gouges in the wood to a depth of 3 mm. When varnished these marks were evident. (photo 9A) They need to be sanded. This is particularly evident in the first set of stairs going to the landing.

Mr. Sirbu had no invoices for the cost of repair of the staircase. Mr. Sirbu stated that a tradesman named John told him that the repairs could not be accomplished without removing the hand rails to sand and stain the stairs.

Issue #2

Mr. Sirbu stated that regarding the kitchen cabinets they were described in Tab I Schedule B of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale as tall or upper cabinets. What was installed in their kitchen were cabinets that stopped one foot from the kitchen ceiling. (photo 9 N) The model home had cabinets installed in the kitchen which went all the way to the ceiling. Their home is based on a model called Rosemount which is the subject of a brochure. The picture in that brochure shows the kitchen cabinets going right to the ceiling.

Issue #3

It was the testimony of Mr. Sirbu that there was no trim on the kitchen counter at the time of its installation. When the trim was not installed despite his request Mr. Sirbu purchased trim and installed it using glue. (photo 9B) Unfortunately by that time the edges of the counter were worn out as shown by that photo.

Issue #4

Mr. Sirbu stated that the interior walls in the family room were crooked. Some of the walls were repaired. The photo 9 C shows the SW corner wall which was not repaired.

Issue # 5

Mr. Sirbu stated that the door to the master bathroom is not straight due to the difference in inclination of $\frac{1}{2}$ cm at the bottom to $2 \frac{1}{2}$ cm at the top.

Issue # 6

It is the claim of Mr. Sirbu that the fireplace in the family room is not in accordance with the contract. Photo 9E shows that it is built out into the family room. The brochure for the Rosemount model shows the fireplace flush to the wall. When he complained due to this design taking too much space in the family room the builder told him that because of a sidelot problem the fireplace had to be built inside the room rather than outside of the home. Mr. Sirbu stated that when he went to City Hall and bought the plans for the house it showed an encroachment for the fireplace outside of the home.

Mr. Sirbu testified that he wanted a fireplace but it needed to be flush to the wall. He was prepared to take a smaller fireplace. Otherwise he wanted to be compensated for the loss of space. Mr. Sirbu did not know what should be the amount of compensation.

Issue #7

Mr. Sirbu stated that if you were in the living room you could hear every step of someone in the bedroom above. The Schedule B to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale stated that all sub floors were to be screwed down and joints sanded. This problem was mentioned in the pre delivery report and despite numerous service requests it had not been fixed.

Issue # 8

Mr. Sirbu complained about the excessive noise and springing of the sub floors under the living room. He stated that this problem had been brought to the attention of the builder and the Program. Mr. Sirbu felt to do the repairs properly the flooring needs to be removed and the subfloor has to be screwed down.

Issue # 9

Mr. Sirbu stated that the east wall of the family room is not square. Photos 9F and 9G. He measured a two inch difference for approximately three feet. It is evident on the parquet floor. Mr. Sirbu did not have any solution on how to fix this problem.

Issue # 10

Mr. Sirbu stated that the front patio door is not aligned properly. Photo 9H At first they could not use the door and then it was fixed but not to his satisfaction. Mr. Sirbu stated that the builder said they had to fix the door in this manner or else they would have to take out the door and fix the wall.

Issue # 11 is no longer an issue.

Issue #12

Mr. Sirbu stated that the stone accent on the exterior finish above the garage door had a number of chips in it. Photos 9I and 9J.

Issue # 13

There is an issue with the alignment of the wall in the master bathroom. The variation is 1/8". As it runs parallel to the bathroom floor tiles it can be readily seen. Mr. Sirbu wants the wall to be aligned properly.

Issue #14

Mr. Sirbu stated that the front porch was not constructed in accordance with the plans. The front porch columns are not installed correctly. Mr. Sirbu had obtained plans from the municipal authorities which showed the columns installed on the porch, not on the stairs. In his conciliation request it was stated that there had been service requests on this issue on June 23/01 and Sept.23/01.

Issue #15 not an issue.

Issue #16

Mr. Sirbu stated that the patio slabs were not installed properly as they are not in the correct location and not properly aligned to the stairs. As well the slabs are cracked. This is a poor workmanship issue and is a safety hazard as you can trip on them. Photos 9L and 9M

Issue #17 not an issue.

Issue #18

The columns on the front balcony are not finished properly. They were not sealed or painted in a proper fashion and the edges are not sealed. He had mentioned it in his letter of June 23/01 to the Program when he stated that the poles were not painted.

Mr. Sirbu testified that he tried to negotiate with the builder to get the work done but he find it a frustrating experience. He would send a lot of faxes to the builder. Then the Program got involved and he did get some compensation. There were a large number of items in the conciliation report. He wants to be compensated for some of these problems so he can hire someone else to do such work as moving the paving slabs and getting the walls aligned.

In his cross examination Mr. Sirbu stated that there are clauses in his Agreement of Purchase and Sale dealing with such matters as grading, substitution and alterations. He has nothing in writing from the municipality regarding the deficiencies though he thought the municipality was currently doing work at the property.

Mr. Sirbu agreed that the brochure and the plans he obtained from the municipality do not form part of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. He agreed that the matter of a delayed closing is not an issue before the Tribunal.

Mr. Sirbu disagreed with the comments on the decision regarding the condition of his stairs. He thinks the photos he took of the stairs was after either the decision letter or the conciliation report. He believes he was about one foot away from the stair tread when he took the photograph.

He stated that the Agreement of Purchase and Sale stated he was to have "taller upper cabinets". Though the model home has an eight foot ceiling his home has a nine foot ceiling and the cabinets stop about a foot from the ceiling.

Mr. Sirbu agreed with the comment of the Program regarding Issue #4 that the bulkhead in the southwest corner of the room is skewed. But regarding issue #5 he feels that the non alignment is more than the 1/16" mentioned by the Program. He agrees that the non alignment does not affect the operation of the bathroom door.

Regarding issue #6 Mr. Sirbu agreed that he did get a gas fireplace and it works normally. His photo 9E shows that the fireplace protrudes into the room and impedes his ability to watch TV.

Regarding issues #7 and #8 Mr. Sirbu stated that the subfloors have creaked from day one. It was not mentioned on the predelivery inspection as the floors were not complete then.

Regarding issue #9 Mr. Sirbu agreed that the east wall of the family room is skewed about two inches. This occurs for its length of nine feet.

Mr. Sirbu agrees concerning issue #10 that the patio door opens freely now.

He agrees that there is 1/8" variation in the wall alignment in the master bathroom.

Mr. Sirbu stated that in a number of the items he was disputing esthetics not operation. There was poor workmanship on the items. There was poor quality assurance and poor completion work.

Testimony of Fernando Silva:

Mr. Silva works for the Added party, the builder Maplevue Building corp. He has been the contract manager and the project coordinator for the past two years. Prior to that he worked for seven years in the building industry as a drywall installer. He has an architectural technologist diploma. He attended at the conciliation meeting on December 17, 2001.

Mr. Silva stated that he disagrees with Mr. Sirbu's assessment of the condition of the wood stairs. There is no problem with the staining of them.

There are variances in the walls. A nine foot wall could have a variance up to 3/4". To correct such a variance would make matters worse. There is a minor misalignment on the shower wall.

Mr. Silva stated that the fireplace is approximately 4 1/2 feet wide.

He stated that the floors are structurally sound and that when wood dries you will get squeaking. There are no screws popping out or parquet popping. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale does not state that insulation is required between the floors.

Regarding the patio stones you have to match them to the elevation. They were laid on gravel and can move by use or by the freezing of the ground.

Under cross examination Mr. Silva stated that the plans entered as an exhibit by Mr. Sirbu are not the final approved plans. The builder's final plans as provided in Exhibit 8 show the revisions. There was a setback problem and the fireplace had to be changed.

In the living room the builder did do repairs to the three joists in the subfloor. There is no visible deficiency in the subfloor in the bedroom nor any excessive squeaking.

Mr. Silva stated that the patio slabs were installed correctly to ensure proper water drainage. The cracked slab was due to it shifting.

Testimony of Enzo Bertucci:

Mr. Bertucci is the developing coordinator for Mapleview Building Corp. He deals with municipal approvals, committee of adjustment, building permits and consultants. Then the project is turned over to construction.

Exhibit 8 is the site plan and grading plan. It deals with elevation, grading, slopes and drainage and has all the stamps of the building department on it. Originally the site plan had the fireplace protruding by 1.2 m. But there would be two houses encroaching into the side lot. The first one to purchase gets to keep that fireplace. Lot 39 kept it but lot 40, being Mr. Sirbu's house, has to have the fireplace inside the house. As the City said the changes have to be made on the site plans addendum drawings were provided.

Regarding the columns on the front porch the new site plans showed nine risers. The steps had to be pushed in for the two more risers. The porch overhang did not change so it was necessary to have the columns on the stairs to support it.

Regarding the kitchen cabinets there is no industry standard as to the term "taller upper cabinets". Usually their manufacturer uses 24" cabinets but the cabinets in Sirbu's home are 30" tall. There was no contract to put in 42" cabinets.

Under cross examination Mr. Bertucci stated that he had spoken to Mr. Sirbu about the fireplace and had given him the option of having the fireplace in the corner. No such option was provided for the columns. Mr. Sirbu had not paid for a customized staircase such as porch surrounding columns.

Testimony of Warren Northcott:

Mr. Northcott has been a warranty representative for the Program for three years. He has inspected over 150 homes. Prior to that he was a building inspector for Barrie and Brantford for approximately eleven years. He is a certified building code official for Ontario. The Tribunal found him to be an expert as to requirements of the Ontario Building Code.

Mr. Northcott took a number of photographs of issues in the Sirbu home during the conciliation inspection. He sent Mr. Sirbu the conciliation report. Mr. Sirbu responded to it in writing. Then Mr. Northcott did the decision letter.

Mr. Northcott had the following comments concerning the issues:

Issue #1: These are oak stairs with a natural finish with varnish. There were some marks prior to the varnish being applied. Others were wear and tear marks. Mr. Northcott stated that minor blemishes are to be expected when stairs are finished on site. There are no written standards and the assessment is based on his own visual observation.

Issue #2: The height of the kitchen cabinets is not referenced in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale so this is not a substitute matter.

Issue #3: Mr. Northcott stated the problem was at the floor level. There could have been damage due to using water to clean the floor. But Mr. Sirbu installed the trim so it is excluded from warranty coverage as it is work by the owner.

Issue #4: The bulkhead in the family room conceals a duct. Though the corner is not perfectly square it is not readily visible.

Issue #5: There is a space between the door casing and the wall. He measured it and found it to be 1/16" for one foot in length. It is behind the door in the bathroom. It does not affect the operation of the door.

Issue #6: There is no defects in workmanship or materials as regards the fireplace. There is no reference in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale as to whether or not it was to protrude out of the wall. Under the Ontario Building Code the City of Vaughan has jurisdiction. Section 10.13 states that the drawings are to be approved by the municipality. There needs to be accordance with the approved drawings.

Issue #7: Mr. Northcott stated that he had heard a squeak from the quarter round trim in the northeast bedroom and some crackling noises when in the living room. There was no visible movement of the subfloor.

Issue #8: There was no creaking noises but there was a small amount of deflection in the floor of the living room. The dishes did rattle in the hutch there. Mr. Northcott found the vibration to be normal. There are joists over the steel beams and the only solution would be to add more beams.

Issue #9: In the family room the interior wall is not parallel to the parquet flooring. The parquet flooring is aligned with the load bearing wall. The two inch variation by the east wall is not in a location which is readily visible. Mr. Northcott found the installation to be done in a good workmanlike manner.

Issue #10: There was a repair to the non moveable door. Though the two doors are not perfectly square in the frame the doors operate.

Issue #12: Mr. Northcott found the stone chips to be minor in nature. He found the stones were installed in a good workmanlike manner.

Issue #13: In the master bathroom there is a variation of approximately 1/8" for approximately three feet. It is not readily visible and is minor in nature.

Issue #14: The columns are on the steps of the front porch. This is an issue of design and not one of workmanship or substitution.

Issue #16: Mr. Northcott stated that the cracked patio slab was not reported within the first year warranty time frame. The slabs have moved due to settlement of the soil which is an exclusion under the Act. The slabs extend into the driveway but that is not an issue of workmanship or materials.

Issue # 18: There are no structural problems with the balcony columns.

Under cross examination Mr. Northcott stated that there is no requirement in the Ontario Building Code that the walls need be perfectly plumb or square. He stated that there was no defects with the installation of the subfloors. Otherwise there would have been sections of the parquet coming apart. Regarding the placement of the porch columns he stated that this is not a contractual issue and the builder can change the design.

CLOSING STATEMENTS:

Mr. Sirbu stated that there were a substantial number of problems with both the completion of work and the quality of the work that was completed. A number of items were covered by the Program. Others that are in question are decisions based on subjective factors. The process has taken a whole toll on the owners. In reply Mr. Sirbu stated that there are no standards on how one interprets the concept of aesthetics as part of workmanship.

Counsel for the Program stated that the Applicants are asking for too high a standard from the builder. The Act does not require a standard of perfection.

Counsel stated that in Re Goulet (2000) O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 51 the Tribunal discusses the concept of workmanlike manner which can include such concepts as functionality, expertise, practice skill, proficiency, craftsmanship, competency, the ability to do something well and aesthetics.

Counsel referred to Re Kirk (2001) O.L.A.T.D. No. 193 wherein the Tribunal had mentioned a number of cases that deal with the concept of aesthetics. These cases found that the standard is acceptability not perfection.

Counsel discussed each disputed item and reiterated the testimony of the witnesses for the Program. None of the matters fell within the warranties as stated in the Act. The loss of floor space by the location of the fireplace was within the criteria as set out in Builder Bulletin #22.

19 Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that, where the vendor makes a substitution with respect to an item that is referred to in the purchase agreement that is not an item that is to be selected by the purchaser, the item will be of equal or better quality than the item referred to in the purchase agreement.

ANALYSIS:

The Tribunal reviewed the case law in the Program's Book of Authorities. Re Goulet supra and Re Kirk supra were cited by Counsel for the Program in his closing statement. Re Tharmathurai (2001) O.L.A.T.D. no. 466 at page 15 cites from Breen (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.86, Mark Teitelman (1987) 16 CRAT 179 and Saporita (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.166 dealing with the standard to be expected in a standard housing, which is less than perfection. In Re Whitham (2000) O.L.A.T.D. no.20 the Tribunal cited considerable case law dealing with the value of property when changes are made to plans and it is not considered a substitution under the Regulations. The Tribunal found that the change in plans was not specifically mentioned in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale and even if the height of ceilings had been mentioned there was no proof of a loss in the market value of the unit. In Re Van Sterijevski (1998) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.73 the Tribunal held that "an item of construction is not the same as a plan of construction" and therefore the building of the home on a reverse mirror image did not constitute a substitution under Regulation 892. The case also dealt with the 2% guideline for difference in overall area that is set out in Builder Bulletin # 22.

The onus of proof is upon the Applicants for they must show that their claims fall into section 14 (3)(b), and 14 (7) of the Act. In this case the Applicants did not provide the Tribunal with any estimates to permit a calculation of damages under 14 (3) (b) and therefore if the Applicants are successful on any of the items the Tribunal under section 16(3) can ask the Program to perform any required repairs.

The items in contention will be reviewed by the Tribunal using the item # as stated in the decision letter of the Program.

1. wood stairs – It is agreed by the Program that there are some marks on the wooden stairs. The Tribunal agrees with the position of the Program that these are minor in nature and do not constitute a defect in either materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.
2. Kitchen cabinets – The Agreement of Purchase and Sale does not specify the height of the kitchen cabinets. This is not an item of substitution. The brochure does not form part of the contract between the builder and the Applicants. If the Applicants were desirous of cabinets going right to the ceiling they should have so stated in the APS rather than using the vague phrase "taller upper cabinets". This claim is denied.

3. Kitchen counter – The Applicants have not proved that the defect of the trim at the floor level was due to any action by the builder. By installing trim without allowing for the Program to act on this omission the Applicants have excluded themselves from any warranty coverage under section 13(2)(a) of the Act. This claim is denied.
4. Family room wall – The bulkhead in the southwest corner is slightly skewed. This is a minor defect and the Tribunal agrees with the Program that it is not readily visible nor constitutes a defect in materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.
5. Master bathroom – The wall adjacent to the shower is slightly skewed. The Tribunal agrees with the Program that this is a minor defect, not readily visible and does not constitute a defect in materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.
6. Fireplace not per contract The Tribunal holds that this is not part of the contract. The final plans for the City of Vaughan were revised due to the issue of the setback. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Bertucci that the builder gave the Applicants the option of having the fireplace in the corner. The amount of space taken by this fireplace does not fit the criteria as stated in Builders Bulletin #22 and therefore compensation for lack of space is not required. The builder has provided an explanation for why the plans needed to be revised (sidelot issues) and the Applicants knew of this problem prior to occupancy. This claim is denied.
7. Squeaking floor in bedroom – There are some noises and squeaks when the bedroom floor is walked upon. There is no evidence of screws popping out and the parquet flooring being loose. Though this is of some concern to the Tribunal the Applicants have not given sufficient evidence to show that the defect is not within the exception under section 13(2) (d) of the Act and due to normal shrinkage. This claim is denied.
8. Living room subfloor – There is some deflection and vibration of the wood floors when walking across the living room floor. The Tribunal is concerned about this issue but the Applicants have not provided sufficient evidence to show that this is not due to normal shrinkage. The builder has done some repairs on three joists. There is no evidence that can attribute this existing problem to improper screwing. It falls under the exception of section 13 (2) (d). This claim is denied.
9. Family room east wall There is some skewing along this wall. It is not readily visible even from the photographs submitted by the Applicants. The parquet floor aligns with the load bearing wall. Though it is not perfect it does not affect the operation of the family room and is not a defect in materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.
10. Patio door – This door did not work until repairs were made to it. It does operate now. While not perfect the Tribunal examined the photographs of the Applicant and the Program and does not see this as a glaring aesthetics problem. Indeed in the normal course of settling of a new home there can be problems with alignments of doors. The Tribunal does not find this to be a defect of materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.

11. Not an issue

12. Exterior finish There are some minor chips to the stone accents. The Tribunal examined the photographs of the Applicants. The defect is very minor in nature. The Tribunal does not find this to be a defect of materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.

13. Walls crooked by shower, master bathroom - Again the Tribunal carefully examined the photograph done by the Program and the evidence presented at the hearing. There is a minor variation of the wall near the shower door. The Tribunal finds that this is not a defect of materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.

14. Front porch not as plans – The front posts are situated on the stairs rather than on the porch. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Bertucci that due to grading issues the number of risers required at the front of the house were increased. This then led to a change in the design. The builder felt that the columns had to be on the steps in order to support the overhang of the porch. This was not a custom designed home and the Applicants were not paying for a customized staircase. This is not a substitution issue. This claim is denied.

15. Not an issue

16. Patio slabs. The cracked slab was not reported within the one year warranty period. It is not warranted. The shifting of the patio slabs is due to soil settlement and is excluded from warranty under section 13(2) (h) of the Act. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Silva that the patio slabs were positioned in accordance with the slope of the grass and water drainage considerations. There is no defect of materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.

17. Not an issue

18. Front balcony columns – The Applicants complained of the joints not aligning properly on the columns and they were not sealed properly. The Program states that this problem was not reported to it within the one year warranty period. The Applicant held that it was by the phrase “poles not painted”. Whether or not it was reported in time the Tribunal has examined the photographs taken by the Program and does not see a major defect. There is no defect of materials or workmanship. This claim is denied.

This case should have had a pre hearing conference. Such conferences can be of great help to all parties prior to the entrenchment of positions. It might have assisted the Applicants to realize that their standard based on perfection is not the standard espoused under the legislation. Warranty protection is not based on such a high standard. The Tribunal agrees with the concept of workmanship as stated in Re Goulet. Workmanship includes many concepts including that of aesthetics. In determining whether or not there has been a defect of workmanship in the construction of a new home one must consider a multitude of issues of which aesthetics certainly is part of the consideration but not the prominent consideration. In this case the Applicants examined each repair issue with microscopic scrutiny. The Tribunal understands that these homeowners were involved in a lengthy process of repairs and it is evident that mutual respect and understanding is lacking in the relationship between these homeowners and their builder. But the warranties stated in the legislation are founded on the concept of what is reasonable, not on what is perfect. The defects complained of by these owners are there and are recognized by both the Program and the builder. After consideration of all the evidence the Tribunal does not find that these defects are warrantable under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act or its regulations.

ORDER:

Therefore, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow these claims.

YOUNIS SABHAH YOUNIS O/A EAGLE CAR SALES

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT
TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: E. ALAN GARBE, Vice-Chair
DONALD BENNINGER, Member

APPEARANCES: YOUNIS SABHAH YOUNIS, the Applicant
AVIVA R. HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: January 27 and 28, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicant appeals a notice of proposal dated May 9, 2002, issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") to refuse to grant the registration of Younis Sabhah Younis o/a Eagle Car Sales (the "Applicant") as a motor vehicle dealer under the provisions of the Act.

Registrar's Position

It is the position of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") that the past conduct of the Applicant is inconsistent with the intention and objectives of the Act for the following reasons:

1. The Applicant acted as a motor vehicle dealer without being registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act.
2. The Applicant purchased vehicles using the registration identification number of another party.
3. The Applicant was found to be in possession of vehicles which he knew or ought to have known were stolen or re-vined vehicles.

Item number 6 contained in the proposal of the Registrar was withdrawn.

By notice of further and other particulars, the Registrar replaced allegation number 4 contained in its notice of proposal with the following:

"The spouse of the Applicant reported a motor vehicle stolen and an insurance claim was made for the vehicle. The licence plate of the stolen vehicle was subsequently found in the possession of the Applicant at 26 St. Albans Road."

Applicant's Position

It is the Applicant's position that an agent of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") was aware of and had agreed to the sale of vehicles by the Applicant. The Applicant stated that he was not the individual who was involved with any stolen or re-vined vehicles but that a person named Leszek Florkowski, the person who shared space at the same location, was responsible. The reason that the Applicant did not apply for registration earlier was that he was waiting until criminal charges arising from the presence of stolen vehicles on the premises leased by the Applicant were dropped.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence introduced by the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Tamar Vartanian, Sharon Slade, Dmytro Nikolaenko, Darrell Ware, Mary Jane South and Tim Thomas. Vladislav Zoric was called as the only witness for the Applicant and the Applicant himself did not give evidence.

The above parties introduced documentary evidence with the Applicant's Book of Disclosure being admitted as Exhibit 4 and the respondent's Books of Disclosure were made Exhibits 5 and 6 in these proceedings.

TESTIMONY OF TAMAR VARTANIAN AND SHARON SLADE

Both Ms. Vartanian and Ms. Slade testified that they had purchased vehicles from the Applicant believing him to be a dealer but neither witness was told that the vehicles that they were about to purchase were salvaged or rebuilt vehicles. Both witnesses stated that they would not have purchased the vehicles had they been advised as to the history of the respective vehicles.

TESTIMONY OF DMYTRO NIKOLAENKO

Dmytro Nikolaenko testified that he operated Hi-Tech Car Care, which carries on business as a car detailing business, and used car dealer. The witness confirmed that he knew the Applicant and that he had transferred vehicles, which were not his vehicles at the Applicant's request. Mr. Nikolaenko testified that there were approximately four cars, which he had transferred for the Applicant. When asked about the vehicles identified at Tabs 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21 of Exhibit 5 as having been transferred by him to third parties, the witness stated that he only sold two of the vehicles (Tabs 12 and 13). The witness stated that he had no knowledge of the other vehicles and had never seen the vehicles. The witness testified that he did not sell the vehicles referred to at Tab 10 and Tab 20 which were the vehicles sold to Ms. Slade and Ms. Vartanian respectively.

TESTIMONY OF DARRELL WARE

Darrel Ware is a member of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Service holding the rank of Detective Constable and until recently was assigned the Auto Section of Special Investigative Service. Detective Constable Ware testified that he had attended at 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke on August 31, 1999 as a result of information that there was a stolen vehicle at this location. The witness stated that he met the Applicant at the shop and determined that there were other stolen vehicles inside the premises, which were in the process of being or had been "re-vined". The witness testified that in inspecting the premises various parts from the vehicle reported stolen in the occurrence report at Tab 41, Exhibit 6 were recovered together with the rear portion of the vehicle reported stolen in the occurrence report at Tab 38, Exhibit 6. A search warrant was issued and a search conducted on September 1, 1999. When asked by the Applicant, the witness acknowledged that he had been invited into the premises by the Applicant at the time of his attendance at the premises.

TESTIMONY OF MARY JANE SOUTH

Ms. South, the Deputy Registrar, confirmed the reasons why the Registrar was refusing registration as set forth in the notice of proposal and the notice of further particulars. Ms. South identified a variety of transactions in which the Applicant owned vehicles, which were never plated and subsequently transferred up to five to six weeks after being registered in the Applicant's name. The witness confirmed that at the time of the transactions, including the sales to Ms. Slade and Ms. Vartanian, the Applicant was not registered under the Act.

The witness stated that the Registrar had concerns about the Applicant being involved in transactions where the transfers were done using Dmytro Nikolaenko's registration identification number ("RIN"). The witness stated that the consumers were not told the history of the vehicle and did not know if they were dealing with a dealer or not and the Applicant's use of Mr. Nikolaenko's RIN was to circumvent the registration requirements of the Act.

The witness testified that amongst the material seized at 26 St. Albans Road (Exhibit 6 Tab 51,) were documents that showed that the Applicant, an individual identified as "Les" and a person identified as "Vlad" had business dealings and that the conclusion is that "Les" refers to Leszek Florkowski.

Ms. South stated that the police report at Exhibit 6, Tab 6 refers to the theft of a 1994 Chrysler with licence plate ADWR 908 and in the record of the insurance adjustor's call to the Applicant (Exhibit 6, Tab 8) he confirms the licence number and that the vehicle was registered in the Applicant's wife's name, Fagima Younis. In the course of the telephone call with the adjustor, the Applicant stated that he parked the car at about seven o'clock on the day before the theft and discovered it stolen the following morning yet the above referenced licence plates for the vehicle were found at 26 St. Albans Road two and a half months later.

The witness identified the offer to lease (Exhibit 6, Tab 52) wherein the Applicant together with Leszek Florkowski leased the premises at 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke and the actual lease for the premises (Tab 53) together with receipts for payment of the rent in the name of the Applicant (Tab 54).

TESTIMONY OF TIM THOMAS

Tim Thomas testified that he had been with the Metropolitan Toronto Police for 28 years and was a vehicle identifier. The witness stated that on August 31, 1999, he received information, which suggested that there was a stolen vehicle at the premises municipally known as 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke and that he attended there with Detective Constable Ware. Upon their attendance, they found a Honda, which matched a theft occurrence report made on July 31, 1999 (Exhibit 6 Tab 21). The witness testified that there was two Jeep Grand Cherokees in the premises together with tools, which were general, used for grinding out vehicle identification numbers and that it was clear one of the Jeeps had been re-vined.

The witness testified that he was told by the Applicant that a customer had brought the Honda to the premises but no documentation was produced to substantiate this statement. The warranty card and owner's manual for the vehicle were found in a trash can at the premises.

The witness testified that personal items were found at 26 St. Albans Road, which were reported as being in a stolen vehicle at the time of its disappearance (Tabs 32 and 65, Exhibit 6).

The witness traced the history of numerous vehicles, including a 1995 BMW 325 V.I.N. WBACB3328SFE23754 purchased by Star Kar Sales on June 2, 1998 for $10,700.00 U.S. and registered in the Applicant's name August 18, 1998.

The Applicant signed a proof of loss for this vehicle on February 2, 1999, claiming a loss of $32,555.75 which amount was paid by Allstate Insurance less the $500.00 deductible. This vehicle was seized from Vilhelm Kocs and it was determined that the front half of the vehicle had V.I.N. WBACB3328SFE23754 and the rear half had V.I.N. WBACB4309PFL00294. The front half of this latter vehicle was found at 26 St. Albans Road.

TESTIMONY OF VLADISLAV ZORIC

The witness called by the Applicant, Vladislav Zoric, knew Dmytro Nikolaenko and had had dealings with him but his evidence was not helpful in addressing the issues raised by the Registrar in the notice of proposal.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following facts are found by this Tribunal to have been proven:

1. The Applicant was a tenant at 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke.
2. That numerous stolen vehicles and car parts were found at 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke.
3. Vehicles found at 26 St. Albans Road, Etobicoke had been re-vined.
4. The Applicant has sold vehicles at a time when he was not registered under the Act.
5. The Applicant has been involved in transactions involving vehicles, which have been rebuilt using parts from stolen vehicles.

ISSUE:

The issue before this Tribunal is whether or not the Registrar has erred in proposing to refuse the registration of the Applicant under the Act.

LAW:

The authority granted to the Registrar is provided in subsections 5(1)(b) of the Act, which states:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;

The Registrar has the onus of proof to satisfy the Tribunal that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the registration of the Applicant, Younis Sabhah Younis, should be refused.

For the Tribunal to carry out its responsibilities pursuant to the Act, the Tribunal must review the decision of the Registrar by examining the allegations of the Registrar with respect to the activities of the Applicant and consider such allegations in light of the evidence given by the Registrar and the Applicant.

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989), page 59, is a decision issued on April 7, 1983 where the Divisional Court overruled a decision of this Tribunal. Southey J. states that the Registrar proposed to refuse registration because of the existence of the specific circumstances set out in Section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

“The effect of Sec. 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view; the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.”

Due to the particular facts in that case, Southey J. sent it back for a rehearing, however, he added in the third last paragraph:

“The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.”

Therefore, it is not sufficient for the Tribunal to reach a conclusion that it would have exercised the discretion differently from the way in which the Registrar did. Clearly, in order to overrule the Registrar the Tribunal must conclude that the Registrar was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for his belief based upon it.

The above principle was affirmed by the Divisional Court in Faccenda [1994] 26 CRAT Part II 1050. In Faccenda, the Divisional Court, again on appeal from this Tribunal quashed a decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his Proposal. At page 1051, the Court held:

“It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought that the Registrar was in error in his belief.”

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar, which was virtually unrefuted by the Applicant, provides ample evidence that the Applicant has not conducted his business affairs in an honest and forthright manner. The number of occurrences and extent of the Applicant's activities provide ample and sufficient grounds for the Registrar to refuse to grant registration to the Applicant.

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar has satisfied the onus of proof that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant's registration should be denied.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealer Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the notice of proposal dated May 9, 2002, to refuse the registration of the Applicant as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE *ONTARIO
NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT*

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: MICHAEL H. TURK, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

PREDRAG PASIC, the Applicant, in person,
MARCUS KNAPP, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program,
BLAGOJE SAVIC, representing Savic Homes Ltd., added party.

DATE OF
HEARING: February 11, 12 and 13, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicants, Predrag and Irma Pasic appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated September 25, 2002. The decision letter confirmed the position of the Program contained in the Conciliation Inspection Report dated March 26, 2002.

BACKGROUND:

On September 17, 2000, the Applicants entered into a contract with the added party, Savic Homes Ltd. (hereinafter "Savic Homes") for the construction of a home on 756 Chesapeake Drive, Waterloo, Ontario. The contract is contained at Tab 1 of the Respondent's Book of Documents which was marked as Exhibit Number 6.

The Certificate of Completion and Possession contained at Tab 2 of Exhibit Number 3 was signed by the Applicants and Savic Homes on January 19, 2001 and lists grading and sodding as unfinished work.

The Applicants first written complaint was delivered to Savic Homes on September 29, 2001 and identifies 12 items of complaint. The Applicants corresponded to the Program on October 25, 2001 and by this correspondence identifies 15 items of complaint. These letters are contained at Tabs 3 and 4 of Exhibit Number 6.

The conciliation took place on March 18, 2002 at which time 18 items of complaint were addressed. In the Conciliation and Inspection Report the Program found 2 items to be warranted.

THE FACTS

Predrag Pasic testified on behalf of the Applicants and relied upon the report of Abode Inspection Services dated January 15, 2003.

The Program called one witness, Doug Irvine, a warranty representative.

Blagoje Savic testified on behalf of Savic Homes, the added party.

The Applicants withdrew conciliation item number 12 and therefore 17 items remained to be determined. These items can be categorized in the following manner:

1) Location of the Shut Off Valve for Exterior Faucet

The Applicants allege that the installation of the shut off valve in the basement ceiling is improper and should be relocated for easier access. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

2) Missing Exterior Faucet

The Applicants claim that while Savic Homes installed two faucets on the exterior of the home, the building contract required and Savic Homes failed to install one of these two exterior faucets in the garage. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

3) Misplaced Electrical Panel

The Applicants claim that the electrical panel should have been installed in the garage rather than in the basement. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

4) Misplaced Light Switch

The Applicants claim that the light switch in the main floor bathroom should be located on the opposite wall. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

5) Unfinished Laundry Room

The Applicants claim that the laundry room has not been finished properly. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

6) Missing Basement Windows

The Applicants claim that the plans require the placement of windows on each side of the home on the basement level and that these two windows have not been installed. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

7) Improper Installation of Brick

The Applicants claim that the method of installation of brick at the rear of the home is improper. The Program warranted this item to the extent that it required confirmation from Savic Homes that the brick installation had been approved on the construction permit and that all code requirements had been met.

8) Installation of Siding

The Applicants claim that the siding on the home has not been installed properly. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

9) Installation of Fascia & Downspouts

The Applicants claim that the fascia and a downspout have been installed improperly. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

10) Squeaky Floors

The Applicants claim that the floors throughout the home squeak. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect.

11) Cold Bedroom above Porch

The Applicants claim that the bedroom located above the porch is cold. The Program noted limited airflow and warranted this item to the extent that Savic Homes was required to investigate and determine whether the pipes were installed properly or if there was a blockage in the line.

12) Bulkhead in Den

The Applicants claim that the construction of a bulkhead in the den is improper. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect in materials or workmanship.

13) Placement of Exterior Dryer, Furnace & Water Heater Vents

The Applicants claim that the placement of the exterior vents for the dryer, furnace and water heater are improper. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defects.

14) Installation of Gas Line

The Applicants claim that the location of the gas line on the side of the home is improper. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defects.

15) Cracks and Nail Pops

Although described in the conciliation report as nail pops & cracks, the Applicants ask that Savic Homes return and repaint areas of the home that have been touched up. The Program and Savic Homes state that repainting is not a warranted item.

16) Wood Post on Porch

The Applicants claim that a wooden post installed on the front porch is defective. The Program and Savic Homes deny any defect in material.

17) Height of Home

There is a dispute as to the nature of this complaint. The Applicants contend that the exterior height and length of the home do not correspond to the building plans. The Program contends that this complaint relates to the level of the front entry door and sill area.

THE EVIDENCE

Predrag Pasic

Predrag Pasic gave evidence on behalf of the Applicants. In addition to his own testimony, Predrag Pasic relies upon the report of Abode Inspection Services dated January 15, 2003, authored by Roy Chan, P.Eng., CET, RHI. This report was entered and marked as Exhibit Number 5.

Mr. Pasic testified that in September 2000 he viewed some model homes in this development by another builder, Mr. Stencek, who advised that he was soldout and referred him to Savic Homes who could build him a similar home.

Following negotiations, the parties signed a building contract for the construction of the subject home. This contract was entered and marked as Exhibit Number 3 and the plans for the construction of the home were entered and marked as Exhibit Number 4.

Mr. Pasic testified that he felt that he was protected by the building contract, that he wanted the home to be constructed strictly in accordance with the building plans and he felt that paragraph 9 of the building contract provided him with this protection. Paragraph 9 states inter-alia that "the contractor agrees to build the said dwelling house in strict accordance with the detailed plans and specifications referred to herein in a proper and workmanlike manner".

Mr. Pasic's testimony continued by going through each individual item of complaint, providing photographs of the complaints and his comments thereto. The photographs were entered and marked collectively as Exhibit Number 7.

Complaint item number 1, Mr. Pasic testified that the placement of the shut off valve for the exterior faucet was improperly placed in the basement ceiling and that if he finishes this area he will lose access to the shut off valve. In addition to this item, Mr. Pasic testified that he was also complaining that Savic Homes substituted plastic pipe lines when the contract provided for copper. In Mr. Pasic's view, this substituton was not proper.

Complaint item number 2, Mr. Pasic testified that the building contract provided for the placement of two exterior faucets one of which was to be in the garage and that whereas Savic Homes installed two exterior faucets, it failed to install a faucet in the garage. Mr. Pasic also stated that he could not hook up a hose to the exterior faucets.

Complaint item number 3, Mr. Pasic testified that Savic Homes improperly installed the electrical panel in an area of the basement where he was planning to construct a bathroom and that in all other model homes the electrical panel was installed in the garage.

Complaint item number 4, Mr. Pasic testified that the light switch in the main floor bathroom was improperly installed behind the door and that he has to close the door before being able to turn the light switch on.

Complaint item number 5, Mr. Pasic testified that Savic Homes did not finish the basement laundry room.

Complaint item number 6, Mr. Pasic testified that while the building plans initially required two windows at the rear of the home, during negotiations with Savic Homes it was agreed that the two rear windows would be relocated to each side of the home. Mr. Pasic stated that the two windows were not installed on the sides of the home and that for the purpose of this hearing, he wanted a window on the left side of the home.

Complaint item number 7, Mr. Pasic testified that the use of angle irons as a method of brick installation at the rear of the home was improper. In support of this contention, Mr. Pasic refers to page 3 of the Abode Inspection report which states "this add-on brick siding violates OBC 9.20.12.3(1) which states that the Masonry veneer resting on a bearing support shall not project more than 25mm (1") beyond the supporting base. The report continues by stating that there is the possibility that the entire wall may collapse in the event that the angle irons rust or the top of the foundation wall spalls, that this may run with the possibility that the entire wall may collapse and recommends that the brick siding be examined and approved by a structural engineer.

The Abode report also notes that there are no weepholes at the bottom of the brick and that there is insufficient air space behind the veneer.

Complaint item number 8, Mr. Pasic testified that when the siding at the side of the home was reinstalled it was not attached properly and is loose.

Complaint item number 9, Mr. Pasic testified that the installation of the downpipe at the side of the home is improper as it is not parallel to the home.

Complaint item number 10, Mr. Pasic testified that the floor is squeaky and unstable throughout the home and referred to page 5 and 6 of the Abode Inspection Services report which states that the floors squeak and shake, there were no joist hangers and screws intended to attach to the sub floor missed their targets.

Complaint item number 11, Mr. Pasic testified that although additional insulation was installed, the bedroom above the porch remains cold.

Complaint item number 12, was withdrawn.

Complaint item number 13, Mr. Pasic testified that the installation of a bulkhead in the den was not in the plans and that Savic Homes relocated a closet within the den without his approval.

Complaint item number 14, Mr. Pasic is critical of the placement of the exterior vents for the dryer, furnace and water heater and relies on page 7 of the Abode Inspection Services report which found that these vents are clustered and therefore not in the perfect location. The report also noted the possibility of excessive condensation which may in the future result in mold and a health and safety issue.

Complaint item number 15, Mr. Pasic testified that the installation of the gas line, running parallel to the home was unsightly.

Complaint item number 16, Mr. Pasic testified that Savic Homes returned to the home to repair nail pops and cracks and that during this time patched 93 different areas of the home. Mr. Pasic stated that in view of the numerous patches, the home now needs to be repainted and that Savic Homes refuses to repaint it.

Complaint item number 17, Mr. Pasic testified that there is a blemish in a wooden post on his porch and asks that it be replaced.

Complaint item number 18, Mr. Pasic testified that his home was not constructed in accordance with the building plans and specifically, that the home is shorter than his neighbors in height as well as in length. Mr. Pasic relies upon page 4 and 5 of the Abode Inspection Services report which found that the home was not built in accordance with the plans and states "we found that on the exterior the right side and over the garage of the house to be short 1'3" while the overall height was short by 2 feet".

Abode Inspection Services found further that "the rear foundation walls were erected to a height of 8' rather than 5'2" as designed in the house plans".

At the conclusion of this section, the report states "apparently, these construction changes are major breaches to the building contract of both Articles 9 and 10. Moreover, this is a violation of Ontario Building Code (OBC) Table 9.5.3.1 & 9.15.1.2(3).

On cross-examination by Mr. Knapp, Mr. Pasic essentially repeated the evidence that he gave in chief. Mr. Pasic did acknowledge that he was unaware of any work orders, or orders to comply with respect to the construction of the home, that the plumbing and electrical systems and drainage pipes were operating properly and that the complaint items for installation of the bulkhead in the den, location of vents and location of the gas line related to issues of aesthetics.

Mr. Knapp's, cross-examination concluded with Mr. Pasic stating that he was relying on the report of Abode Inspection Services for the issues contained therein.

On cross-examination by Mr. Savic, Mr. Pasic acknowledged that the building contract was conditional upon Savic Homes being able to purchase the required building lot.

Mr. Pasic testified that although Mr. Savic offered to cancel the contract and return his money, he wanted interest on his deposit, did not take the offer seriously and expected Mr. Savic to fulfill his obligations.

Mr. Savic's cross-examination concluded with Mr. Pasic acknowledging Mr. Savic's attempt to send in his plumbers and drywall contractors to perform remedial work. Mr. Pasic acknowledged that drywall repairs were done, but to the wrong area and that he did not advise Mr. Savic of this.

When questioned by the Tribunal as to what remedy he is requesting, Mr. Pasic testified that he wished for Savic Homes to fix what can be fixed and payment of the sum of 25% of the original cost of the home.

On re-examination by Mr. Knapp arising from the question by the Tribunal, Mr. Pasic testified that if he wanted to sell his home back to Savic Homes it would be for more than he paid and stated that the current assessed value of the home was $242,000.00.

Blagoje Savic

Mr. Savic's testimony followed each item of complaint:

Complaint item number 1, Mr. Savic testified that it is his practice to install the shut off valve in the ceiling and that the substitution of plastic for copper was more expensive and is used in approximately 95% of new home construction today and that the plumbing passed all inspections.

Complaint item number 2, Mr. Savic testified that the contract called for two exterior faucets and that he did not care where they were placed. He acknowledged that the issue of one faucet in the garage was raised by Mr. Pasic, however this was raised after Mr. Pasic moved into the house and had it been raised during construction, he would have been able to change the location of one faucet. Mr. Savic testified that the faucets work, that he sent a plumber to check the system and that no problems were found.

Complaint item number 3, Mr. Savic testified that placement of the electrical panel in the garage was not discussed, that it is not uncommon for it to be placed in the basement and that the installation of the panel was inspected and approved.

Complaint item number 4, Mr. Savic testified that the placement of the light switch in the main floor bathroom was the only wall that it could be placed and that it was inspected and approved.

Complaint item number 5, Mr. Savic testified that according to the plans this was to be an unfinished area and that his installation of drywall in the basement was done as a courtesy to Mr. Pasic.

Complaint item number 6, Mr. Savic testified that he and Mr. Pasic agreed that due to the installation of a rear deck, the two windows in the rear would be deleted from the building plans.

Complaint item number 7, Mr. Savic acknowledged that the Program warranted this item and in accordance with the requirement of the Program he obtained an engineer's report from Courtland Engineering Consultants Inc. This report was entered and marked as Exhibit Number 8.

Complaint item number 8, Mr. Savic denies that the flashing is loose.

Complaint item number 10, Mr. Savic testified that there will be some squeaks in the floor and that when he attended at the home, Mr. Pasic would jump on the floor in order for it to squeak. He testified that he uses the best lumber and that the floor was inspected and approved.

Complaint item number 11, Mr. Savic testified that during construction he explained to Mr. Pasic that the very nature of this room, above a non-heated area, would result in it being cooler. He stated that he sent his trades back and they increased the insulation to R-31.

Complaint item number 12, Mr. Savic testified that it is standard practice to install a bulkhead and that any complaint is cosmetic. As it relates to the issue of the closet location, Mr. Savic testified that the first he heard of this complaint was during the hearing.

Complaint item number 13, Mr. Savic testified that the building contract does not specify placement of the exterior vents and that all inspections were completed and approved.

Complaint item number 14, Mr. Savic denied any defect with the placement and installation of the gas line and stated that its regulated by the City.

Complaint item number 15, Mr. Savic testified that there is no warranty for paint.

Complaint item number 16, Mr. Savic testified that the wood post may have a blemish but that it is acceptable and not defective.

Complaint item number 17, Mr. Savic denied that there was any discrepancy with the height or dimensions of the home. Mr. Savic testified that the exterior dimensions will depend upon grading and how the lot was set out by the surveyor. Mr. Savic denied that this issue was previously raised by Mr. Pasic.

On cross-examination by Mr. Pasic, Mr. Savic testified that he was approached by Mr. Pasic and told by Mr. Pasic that he wanted to save money and that he advised Mr. Pasic that he did not own the lot. Mr. Savic stated that he constructed the home next door after he completed the construction of Mr. Pasic's home and that the electrical panel was located in the garage as a special order. Mr. Savic testified that he had no recollection that he was to install two additional windows.

Mr. Savic further testified that the work contemplated by the report of Courtland Engineering Consultants Inc. was performed by his trades but that he did not personally inspect and that he does not have a letter confirming that the work was done. Mr. Savic stated that the work was inspected in September or October, 2002 by Tom Hushka.

As it relates to the method of brick installation, Mr. Savic testified that this is an acceptable method of installation and that the original plans for the home do not provide for the installation of brick at the rear of the home.

Mr. Savic stated that the exterior dimensions of the home when compared to the home next door are basically the same and that he did not use cheaper materials in Mr. Pasic's home.

As it relates to the downspout in complaint item number 9, Mr. Savic testified that although there is no defect, it is possible to repair the elbow and make it more parallel to the home.

Mr. Savic testified that he sent his heating contractor into Mr. Pasic's home to investigate the complaint of a cold room over the porch, that the trades checked the heating line and found no problems. Mr. Savic relied upon his correspondence to the Program located at Tab 24 of Exhibit Number 6 in support of the work done. Mr. Savic stated that if the problem persists, an extra fan could be installed to increase the air flow into this room.

Mr. Savic denied any defect in the installation and placement of the exterior vents and gas line, denied that it was his responsibility to repaint the home after his painters repaired cracks and nail pops and maintained that the wooden post used on Mr. Pasic's home was the same quality and from the same supplier that he uses for more expensive homes.

On re-examination by Mr. Knapp, Mr. Savic testified that the foundation was constructed in accordance with the building plans, that joist hangers were not required, that the framing was inspected and approved and that any squeaking would be as a result of normal shrinkage of material.

Doug Irvine

The Program's only witness was Doug Irvine, an employee of the Program since 1979 and a warranty representative for 10 years.

Mr. Irvine testified that he has inspected over one thousand homes and generally conducts between 180-300 home inspections per year. Mr. Irvine testified that on March 18, 2002 he conducted a conciliation inspection and issued his report on March 26, 2002. Mr. Pasic was not satisfied with the report and requested that another inspector attend at his property. The Program decided that it would not send a second inspector due to the cost and issued its decision letter based upon the conciliation report.

Mr. Irvine then proceeded to go through each item of complaint.

Complaint item number 1, Mr. Irvine testified that while Mr. Pasic wanted a finished area in the basement this was not in the contract, was an issue of design and therefore not covered. Mr. Irvine disputed Mr. Pasic's allegation that the installation of the shut off valve for the exterior faucet in the ceiling was improper and testified that it is the standard practice to install the valve in the ceiling.

As it relates to the substitution of plastic for copper feeding lines, Mr. Irvine testified that he did not recall this issue being raised and that the use of plastic is superior.

Complaint item number 2, Mr. Irvine testified that the contract requires two exterior faucets, was not specific as to location and that there are two working exterior faucets in the home.

Complaint item number 3, Mr. Irvine testified that unless the plans are specific, the location of the electrical panel is at the discretion of the builder. Mr. Irvine continued by testifying that it is not the norm to install the electrical panel in the garage and that the installation of the electrical panel in the basement is not a violation of the Ontario Building Code and that all inspections were completed and approved.

Complaint item number 4, Mr. Irvine testified that there was not a defect in the location of the light switch in the main floor bathroom and that if it was an issue it would have been caught during the electrical inspection.

Complaint item number 5, Mr. Irvine testified that this was an unfinished basement area according to the plans and therefore no defect existed.

Complaint item number 6, Mr. Irvine testified that although the two exterior windows were crossed out on the contract, the contract itself does not specify that the windows from the rear would be placed on the side. On that basis, no defect existed and Mr. Pasic received what was contracted for.

Complaint item number 7, Mr. Irvine testified that the main issue was the use of angle irons as the method of installation of the brick at the rear of the home. Mr. Irvine stated that he warranted this item to the extent that he wanted to ensure that the method of installation was approved. Mr. Irvine stated that he accepted the findings contained in the Courtland Engineering report but has not followed up the findings and recommendations in the report.

Complaint item number 8, Mr. Irvine denied that there was any defect in the installation of flashing over the brick, however some openings may require caulking.

Complaint item number 9, Mr. Irvine testified that the fact that the exterior downpipe is not parallel to the home is a design issue, is functional and therefore not covered.

Complaint item number 10, Mr. Irvine testified that a degree of squeaking is normal due to the shrinkage of materials and stated that the use of joist hangers were not required. Mr. Irvine testified that the Program offered to pay for the cost of lifting the carpets in order to determine whether there was any defect in the installation of the floor but that if no defects were found Mr. Pasic would be responsible for the costs of re-installing the carpet.

Complaint item number 11, Mr. Irvine testified that all unheated areas over a garage or porch will be subject to temperature variations. Mr. Irvine observed a variation in heat temperature and a reduced area of air flow. He warranted this item of complaint to ensure proper air flow and insulation and asked Savic Homes to remedy the problem. Mr. Irvine then referred to Tab 24 of Exhibit Number 6, which is a letter received from Savic Homes dated July 2, 2002 which states that Corestar Mechanical balanced the heating system, found sufficient insulation and that nothing was wrong.

Mr. Irvine testified further that he has not spoken to nor seen the report of Corestar Mechanical and that in general, these items are design only, not warranted and that an owner could install baseboard heaters.

Complaint item number 12, Mr. Irvine testified that he found no defect in the installation of the bulkhead and that the re-location of the closet was not raised at the conciliation.

Complaint item number 13, Mr. Irvine testified that the placement of the exterior vents, other than for gas, is up to the builder and that there are no defects in this regard.

Complaint item number 14, Mr. Irvine testified that there is no defect in the installation of the gas line.

Complaint item number 15, Mr. Irvine testified that he does not recall noticing excessive nail pops and that these are excluded from coverage as normal shrinkage of materials.

Complaint item number 16, Mr. Irvine testified that the porch post has a slight blemish in the wood but that it is cosmetic, not defective and therefore not warranted.

Complaint item number 17, Mr. Irvine testified that the only item discussed at the conciliation was that the front door to the home should have had a sill. Mr. Irvine testified that the door installation was fine and that any problems experienced by Mr. Pasic were as a result of him having installed ceramic tiles on the porch thereby raising the height.

Mr. Irvine specifically denied that the issue of the height of the foundation, height of brick and site dimensions were raised during the conciliation and that he heard of these issues for the first time at this hearing.

On cross examination by Mr. Pasic, Mr. Irvine maintained his previous testimony.

Submissions

The Applicants submit that Savic Homes has failed to construct the home strictly in accordance with the building contract and the building plans. They ask that Savic Homes fix what can be fixed and provide them with an amount equal to 25% of the cost of the home as compensation arising from variations from the building plans.

The Applicants also ask that they be reimbursed with the sum of $1,230.00 on account of expenses that they have incurred for this hearing. These expenses consist of $100.00 filing fee, $500.00 for the Abode Inspection Services report, $450.00 for 3 days of lost wages, $60.00 for gas, $60.00 for photocopies and $60.00 for parking.

As it relates to the Applicants claim for costs, it was the submission of the Program that the Tribunal should only award costs in the limited circumstances referred to in Rule 14 of the Rules of the Tribunal and that these factors have not been met.

ISSUES:

There are two issues to be determined.

- 1) Are the items of complaint warranted and if so, what is the appropriate remedy.
- 2) Are the Applicants entitled to costs.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Act are as follows:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,:
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code
 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.
- (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of;
 - (c) normal wear and tear;
 - (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;
 - (g) alterations, deletions or additions made by the owner.

Rule 14 of the Rules of the Tribunal,

14.1 Where a party believes that another party in proceedings before the Tribunal has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith, that party may make a request to the Tribunal for costs, which request shall be made with notice to all other parties to the proceeding and prior to the release by the Tribunal of its final order in the proceedings.

THE APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS & DECISION:

With respect to the 17 issues of complaint the onus is on the Applicants to demonstrate that the defects complained of are warranted as a result of defects in material and/or workmanship and in this regard the following applies:

(1) Location of Shut Off Valve for Exterior Faucet

The Applicants allege that the shut off valve for the exterior faucet is improperly installed in the basement ceiling. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic testified that this is standard practice and that the installation was inspected and approved.

The Tribunal finds that the shut off valve functions as it should, the installation of this valve in the basement ceiling is proper and therefore dismisses the Applicants claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(2) Missing Exterior Faucet

The Applicants state that the building contract required the installation of two exterior faucets one of which was to be installed in the garage. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic state that the contract requires the installation of two exterior faucets and that is what was provided. Mr. Savic testified that Mr. Pasic raised this issue after the garage had been completed and that as Mr. Pasic had complete access to the home during its construction, had he raised this issue prior to the installation of the drywall in the garage he would have gladly accommodated Mr. Pasic's request.

The Tribunal notes that Schedule "A" of the building contract states "two exterior faucets; one in the garage one at outside of the house; at back of house". Whereas it was submitted that this paragraph is ambiguous and refers to three exterior faucets, it is the finding of this Tribunal that Schedule "A" to the contract is clear and provides for the installation of two exterior faucets one of which is to be located in the garage.

The Tribunal therefore finds that the failure to install a faucet in the garage is a defect and is warranted. The Tribunal hereby Orders Savic Homes to install a faucet in the garage within 60 days hereof or in the alternative, pay the sum of $350.00 to the Applicants within the same time frame.

(3) Misplaced Electrical Panel

The Applicants alledge that the electrical panel should have been installed in the garage rather than in the basement and rely upon the location of the electrical panel in the garage in the house next door, also built by Savic Homes.

Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic stated that it is standard practice for the electrical panel to be installed in the basement and the contract did not specify where it was to be installed. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic with respect to this complaint, finds that there is no defect in materials or workmanship and dismisses the Applicants' claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(4) Misplaced Light Switch

The Applicants allege a defect in the installation of the light switch for the main floor bathroom as they have to close the door before being able to turn the light on.

Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic state that the light switch is operable, passed the electrical inspection and deny any defect. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic on this item of complaint, finds no defect in workmanship or material and dismisses the Applicants' claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(5) Unfinished Laundry Room

The Applicants claim that Savic Homes failed to properly finish the basement laundry room area.

Mr. Savic and Mr. Irvine testified that according to the contract this was an unfinished area and therefore no defect exists.

The Tribunal notes that the building contract does not provide for a finished area in the basement laundry room and therefore dismisses the Applicants' claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(6) Missing Basement Windows

The Applicants claim that when they deleted two windows from the rear of the home these were to be relocated to both sides of the home. In support of this claim they refer to the building plans which were entered and marked as Exhibit Number 4. Mr. Pasic stated however, that for the purpose of this hearing he was content that only one window be installed.

Mr. Savic testified that the rear windows were deleted to accommodate a deck and that these windows were not to be added to the left and right sides of the home. In Mr. Irvine's view, the plans did not require additional windows on each side of the home.

The Tribunal notes that the face of the building plans reflect the deletion of two windows at the rear of the property and the insertion of windows on each side of the home. These side windows were drawn by hand on the building plans and initialed by the parties. The Tribunal finds that the failure to install the two windows on each side of the home is a defect.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicants' list of Homeowner Complaints in the Conciliation Request Form refers to one basement window and this is consistent with Mr. Pasic's testimony that he is only asking for one basement window.

On that basis, the Tribunal Orders Savic Homes to install one basement window on the left side of the home within 60 days hereof, or in the alternative, pay to the Applicants the sum of $350.00 within the same time frame.

(7) Improper Installation of Brick

The Applicants claim that the use of angle irons as a method of brick installation is improper. Mr. Pasic relies upon the report of Abode Inspection Services which is critical of the installation and at page 4 recommends that the "rear brick siding be examined and approved by a structural engineer for the integrity of the construction".

The Program warranted this item and required evidence from Savic Homes that the method of installation has been approved by an engineer. Mr Savic states that this item has been rectified and provided the Tribunal with a report from Courtland Engineering Consultants Inc., entered and marked as Exhibit Number 8, in support of this position.

The Tribunal notes that on page two of the report under the heading Comments & Recommendation, Larry MacArthur, P.Eng. writes that the "steel angles are considered to be heavy enough to support the brick ledge" and continues by recommending that "proper attention must be made to address rain screen effects as there are no weep holes and no air space behind the brick. All seams on the cap flashings must be sealed with caulking to prevent water penetration and poorly fitted cap flashings replaced to eliminate gaps at seam locations. A penetrating silane sealer should be capable of forming a water repelling (hydrophobic) layer on the surface of the masonry".

The Tribunal notes that whereas the report of Courtland Engineering Consultants Inc. was delivered to the Program in response to a warranted item, the Program did not follow up with respect to this report. Specifically, the Program has not conducted a further inspection nor confirmed that the remedial measures contained in the report and referred to in the above paragraph have been done.

The Tribunal accepts the findings of Courtland Engineering Consultants Inc. and Orders the Program to confirm within 60 days hereof that the remedial measures referred to in the report and as hereinbefore set out have been completed in a good and workmanlike manner. In the event that the remedial measures have not been undertaken, the Program shall ensure that the same are completed within a further 60 days.

(8) Installation of Siding

The Applicants claim that the installation of siding is loose and is in need of repair.

Mr. Savic denies any defect and Mr. Irvine stated that some openings may require caulking.

The Tribunal hereby Orders the Program to reinspect this item of complaint and that Savic Homes effect any necessary repairs to the siding that the Program finds warranted within 60 days hereof.

(9) Installation of Fascia & Downspouts

The Applicants claim that the installation of the downspout on the side of home is improper as it is not parallel to the home. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic state that the downspout is functional and deny any defect.

The Tribunal finds that the downspout is functional, that this complaint is cosmetic in nature and therefore not warranted. The Tribunal dismisses the Applicants' claim in regard to this item of complaint.

(10) Squeaky Floors

The Applicants claim that the floors in the home squeak excessively. Whereas Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic denied any excess squeaking, Mr. Irvine offered to pay the costs of lifting the carpet in the home in order to determine whether there are any defects in the installation of the floor. Mr. Irvine qualified this offer to the extent that in the event that no defects in the floor were found, it would be the responsibility of Mr. Pasic to pay the costs of reinstalling the carpet.

The Tribunal heard conflicting testimony about the extent of the floor squeaking however, without lifting the carpet, the Program is unable to fully investigate and determine whether there were any defects in the installation of the floor.

The Tribunal is of the view that the offer of the Program with regard to this item of complaint should have been unconditional and therefore Orders the Program to reinspect this item of complaint and pay for all costs necessary to conduct the reinspection of this item of complaint within 60 days hereof.

(11) Cold Room Above Porch

The Applicants claim that the bedroom above the porch is cold. Mr. Irvine noted limited amounts of air flow and that the flow was not overly warm. He warranted this item and directed Savic Homes to investigate and determine if the pipes were properly installed or if there is a blockage in the line. Mr. Irvine noted that the owner may be required to balance the system.

Mr. Irvine testified that Mr. Savic advised him that he sent Corestar Mechanical to the home which company balanced the system and advised him that all was fine.

Mr. Irvine did not receive anything in writing from Corestar Mechanical, nor did he speak with Corestar mechanical or follow up to determine whether or not the work remedied the problem.

On the basis of the foregoing the Tribunal hereby Orders Savic Homes to provide the Program with correspondence from Corestar Mechanical outlining what work was performed and its findings. Following receipt of the report, the Program shall reinspect the home with respect to this item of complaint. Delivery of the necessary correspondence and the follow up inspection shall be completed within 60 days hereof.

(12) Bulkhead in Den

The Applicants claim that the installation of a bulkhead in the den is a defect. The Applicants also claim that the closet in the den was relocated without their approval. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic testified that the installation of the bulkhead is a design issue and not warranted and that the issue of relocating the closet was not raised previously.

The Tribunal finds that the installation of a bulkhead in the den is an issue of design, is not warranted and therefore dismisses the Applicants' claim in regard to this item complaint.

As it relates to relocation of the closet in the den, this issue was not contained in the Applicants' correspondence nor addressed at the conciliation and is therefore not properly before this Tribunal.

(13) Placement of Exterior Dryer, Furnace & Water Heater Vents

The Applicants claim that the placement of these exterior vents in one cluster is improper. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic testified that the vents are functional and that no defect exists in their installation.

The Tribunal finds that the vents are functioning as required, that there are no defects in workmanship and therefore upholds the decision of the Program with regard to this item of complaint.

(14) Installation of Gas Line

The Applicants claim that the location of the gas line running along the side of the home is improper. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic testified that Mr. Pasic's complaint is cosmetic in nature and deny any defect.

The Tribunal finds that there is no defect in the installation of the gas line and upholds the decision of the Program with regard to this item of complaint.

(15) Cracks, Nail Pops & Paint

The Applicants state that Savic Homes attended at the home and repaired 93 nail pops and cracks and that the patched areas are so extensive that the entire home needs to be repainted.

Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic testified that the Act does not provide a warranty for paint and that the repair of nail pops and cracks are excluded by virtue of the normal shrinkage of materials exclusion contained in the Act.

The Tribunal was not provided with a report from a painting contractor nor with sufficient evidence that would enable it to rule that the cracks and nail pops were beyond those arising through the normal shrinkage and drying of material. The Tribunal therefore dismisses the Applicants claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(16) Wood Post on Porch

The Applicants claim that a wood post on the porch is defective. Mr. Irvine and Mr. Savic acknowledge that the wooden post has a slight blemish in the wood but is not defective.

The Tribunal was not provided with sufficient evidence in order to determine whether the wooden post is in fact defective. The post functions as required and the Tribunal dismisses the Applicants claim with regard to this item of complaint.

(17) Height of Home

This is a highly contentious item of complaint between the parties. The Applicants claim that the exterior dimensions of the home are shorter than what were stated in the building plans. In support of this complaint, the Applicants rely upon the report of Abode Inspection Services which details external measurements of the home and compares these measurements to what is stated on the building plans.

Mr. Irvine was adamant that this was not the nature of the complaint and that at the conciliation the only issue raised by Mr. Pasic was with respect to the height of the front door sill. Mr. Savic concurs with Mr. Irvine.

Mr. Pasic wrote to the Program on October 21, 2001 and January 17, 2002 respectively and on February 20, 2002 provided the Program with a Conciliation Request Form. These documents are contained at Tabs 5, 9 and 13 of Exhibit Number 6.

The Tribunal notes that the letters of October 21, 2001 and January 17, 2002 make no reference to the height or dimensions of the home. The Tribunal notes that the only written reference to height is found at item 18 of the Homeowner Complaints attached to the Conciliation Request Form. This item states "height position out home, Nov 29, 01 short obo two F. front of building". The Tribunal is unable to determine what is meant in the previous sentence.

The Tribunal finds that regardless of whether it accepts the Applicants evidence of the nature of this complaint or that of the Program, the Applicants complaint with respect to this item will be dismissed for the following reasons.

If Mr. Irvine's view of the nature of this complaint is accepted, there is no defect as it relates to the installation of the front door sill as any problems experienced by the Applicants are as a result of their installation of ceramic tiles on the porch. The work done by the Applicants falls within the exclusion contained in Section 13 (2) (g) of the Act and therefore this item of complaint will be dismissed.

If the Tribunal accepts Mr. Pasic's evidence that the nature of this complaint relates to the dimensions of the home, this item of complaint will fail for the following reasons:

- a) The Applicants did not conduct any interior measurements or provide the Tribunal with any evidence that the interior dimensions or square footage of the home are incorrect;
- b) The Applicants did not provide the Tribunal with any evidence that the value of their home has been reduced. To the contrary, according to the evidence of Mr. Pasic, the value of the home has increased by $62,000.00;
- c) The Applicants ask that they receive an abatement of 25% of the value of the home but have not provided the Tribunal with any acceptable and recognized method, formula or legal precedent by which the Tribunal could consider and quantify monetary compensation for this item of complaint; and
- d) The Applicants have not established any damages for this item of complaint.

On the basis of the foregoing, the Tribunal dismisses the Applicants' claim with regard to this item of complaint.

As it relates to the items of complaint for which the Tribunal has ordered reinspection, the Tribunal does hereby Order that the Program deliver to the Applicants a supplementary decision letter within 30 days of completion of all reinspections.

As it relates to the Applicants' claim for costs, the Tribunal heard no evidence that the Program or Savic Homes acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously or in bad faith and therefore dismisses the Applicants claim for costs.

8. On December 9, 1998, the registrant submitted its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1998, which were due by September 30, 1998. The financial statements revealed a working capital shortfall of $64,084, based on sales of $2,406,976.
9. By letter dated January 19, 1999, the registrant was advised of its working capital shortfall of $64,084, reflected in its June 1998 financial statements, and given a due date of February 2, 1999 to provide evidence of correction.
10. By letter dated March 10, 1999, the registrant was issued a reminder to correct its working capital shortfall of $64,084.

11. On March 23, 1999, TICO performed a site inspection of registrant, due to the unaddressed working capital shortfall of $64,084 reflected in the financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1998. It was revealed during the visit that the shareholder had injected $40,000 on February 18, 1999, and that evidence of correction of the balance of $24,084 would be forwarded to TICO. It was further revealed that the Travel Industry Act trust account was not properly designated, and customer deposits were not being deposited within two business days.
12. By fax dated April 8, 1999, the registrant provided TICO with evidence of a shareholder advance totalling $49,990, which was deposited on March 30, 1999.

15. By letter dated November 28, 2000, the registrant was notified by TICO of its working capital shortfall of $24,419, and given a due date of December 12, 2000 to provide evidence of correction.
16. On December 18, 2000, the registrant's accountant telephoned TICO and directed TICO to the notes to the June 30, 2000 financial statements which indicated that the shareholder advances had been repaid subsequent to year-end. This subsequent event corrected the working capital shortfall as at June 30, 2000.
17. By letter dated December 18, 2000, TICO advised the registrant of the additional information received from its accountant, which consequently corrected the registrants working capital shortfall, and that the letter of November 28, 2000 was withdrawn.
18. On November 2, 2001, the registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001, which were due by September 30, 2001. The statements reflected a working capital shortfall of $37,995, based on sales of $3,231,000. The notes to the financial statements indicated the repayment of the shareholder loan to the company in August 2001, in the amount of $36,200, which partially corrected the working capital shortfall. After the repayment of the shareholder loan the working capital shortfall was $1,795.
19. By letter dated November 7, 2001 the registrant was advised by TICO of its working capital shortfall of $1,795, and given a due date of November 23, 2001 to provide evidence of correction.
20. On November 16, 2001, the registrants accountant telephoned TICO to advise that the information requested in TICO's letter of November 7, 2001 would be submitted by November 30, 2001.

23. On February 12, 2002, TICO received a letter from the registrant's bank confirming the proper designation of the Travel industry Act trust account.
24. By letter dated May 23, 2002 the registrant was requested by TICO to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2002, by September 30, 2002.
25. On September 19, 2002, the registrants accountant telephoned TICO to advise that they were installing a new computer system, and estimated a submission date of October 31, 2002, for the June 2002 financial statements.
26. By letter dated October 3, 2002, the registrant was requested to file its financial statements for June 30, 2002 by October 15, 2002.

27. On October 23, 2002, the registrant was issued a final due date of October 31, 2002, to file its financial statements for June 2002, failing which a proposal to revoke registration would be issued.
28. On October 25, 2002, the registrant's accountant telephoned TICO to advise that they had successfully completed the installation of a new computer system, and that financial statements for fiscal June 2002 would now be submitted by November 30, 2002.
29. On October 30 and November 1, 2002, TICO performed site inspections of the registrant. Copies of bank statements for September 2002 were reviewed, and it appeared that the trust account was not being maintained properly, i.e. overdrafts in the trust account, and not depositing customer monies within two business days of receipt. The visit concluded that until trust accounting was functioning properly, the registrant was a risk to the Fund.
30. By January 6, 2003 there had been no further response and the registrant had failed to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2002, which were due by September 30, 2002. On that date, the Registrar issued a Proposal to Revoke the Registrant's registration.
31. On January 8, 2003, the Registrant filed its June 30, 2002 financial statements, which were due by September 30, 2002. The statements revealed a working capital deficit of $28,041.00. The working capital shortfall was subsequently addressed by a shareholder injection.
32. On March 11 and 14, 2003, TICO conducted an inspection of the Registrant. From the information provided, it appeared that the capital injection was in place and that the Registrant was complying with the trust accounting requirements of the Regulation.
33. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWRITH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,
Unrepresented

DATE OF
HEARING: MARCH 4, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

1. Photostat of Notice from the Ministry of Transportation dated February 6, 2003 advising that the Applicant's Driver's Licence Suspension Date was June 10, 2002.
2. Notice of Appeal from the Applicant Received at the Tribunal on January 28, 2003.
3. File Summary Introduced by the Respondent.
4. Applicant's Driving Record Introduced by the Respondent.
5. Medical Records from the Memorial Emergency dated September 20, 2002.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 40 year old former truck driver, had his Class GM driver's licence suspended by the Deputy Minister of Transportation on June 10, 2002, pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Applicant previously had his Class AM and Class GM driver's licences suspended on November 5, 2000 after suffering two grand mal seizures as a result of alcohol withdrawal. The Applicant appealed the suspension in June 2001 and had a hearing in July 2001, but the appeal was rejected. The Ministry returned his Class GM licence on February 27, 2002 after he had been seizure-free and abstinent from alcohol for over 12 months.

The Applicant believed he was going to have his Class A licence restored and when he received only the GM licence on March 7, 2002 he was furious. He was so upset; he started to drink again and forgot to take 2 doses of his medication. The following morning he suffered a seizure and was treated at Sunnybrook Hospital. The attending physician and his neurologist, Physician #1, both informed the Ministry and the result was this suspension.

On April 17, 2002, Physician #2, the Applicant's family doctor, completed a Medical Waiver Certificate and a letter to the Ministry stating the Applicant was not drinking alcohol. Both he and Physician #1 informed the Ministry that the Applicant had an elevated GGT of 169 (N<60), which was due to the drug Carbamazepine (Tegretol), that he was taking for his seizures. This was a result of liver damage from ethanol cirrhosis.

Physician #1 notified the Ministry on October 16, 2002 that the Applicant had suffered another seizure. Medical records from the Memorial ER (Exhibit #6) indicate the Applicant was seen in the emergency with a fever and vomiting followed by a seizure. The Applicant explained that he had vomited several times during the day and had likely brought up his medication, which resulted in the seizure.

Physician #1 sent a Reassessment Summary to the Ministry dated February 13, 2003 stating the Applicant has not had a recurrent seizure since October 16th. He is being maintained on 1200 mg of Tegretol daily.

In his evidence the Applicant denied being epileptic and that he had a problem with alcohol. An EEG in October 2000 showed theta paroxysms, which may indicate to an epileptic diathesis. An EEG in December 2000 was definitely abnormal, demonstrating epileptiform right temporal sharp wave activity. There is no mention of any other EEG tests in the evidence presented. Since 3 of the 4 seizures occurred after drinking alcohol and he has liver damage from alcoholic cirrhosis, it would indicate that alcohol has been a problem.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, after receiving Medical Reports that the Applicant was experiencing epileptic type seizures.

Evidence indicates the Applicant was finely controlled on high doses of Tegretol, but the slightest deviation in the overall treatment resulted in loss of control and a seizure. The first seizure occurred after a weekend of heavy drinking. The second seizure occurred after he stopped his medication, because he did not accept he was epileptic. He had a few drinks with some friends and seized the following morning. The next seizure followed a bout of drinking and failing to take two doses of Tegretol, after learning his Class A licence was not going to be reinstated. His last seizure resulted after a day of vomiting when he likely vomited up his medication.

The Tribunal is concerned about the Applicant's denial that he is neither an epileptic nor has a problem with alcohol. It has been proven several times that he cannot drink alcohol or misses a dose of his medication and he must accept this. The Tribunal recognizes that the last two seizures were provoked inadvertently by the Applicant and need not have happened if he had understood his problems. The "Determining Fitness to Drive" standards (5.4.2) under Private Drivers, written by the Canadian Medical Association states:

Patients with epilepsy and taking anti-epileptic medication should not be recommended for class 5 or 6 licensing until the following conditions are met: the patient has been seizure free on medication for not less than 12 months.

With certain types of epilepsy, this period may be reduced to 6 months on the recommendations of a neurologist. The seizure free period is necessary to establish a drug level that prevents seizures without side effects that could affect the patient's ability to drive safely. The attending physician should feel confident that the patient is conscientious and reliable and will continue to take the anti-seizure medication as directed.

After reviewing all of the evidence the Tribunal is uncertain that the Applicant is not still in denial and could easily get upset over something and return to alcohol, as he did in March 2002. As a result the Tribunal finds that there is not enough evidence at this time to justify reinstatement of the Applicant's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, as it is only 5 months since the Applicant had his last seizure. A longer period of suspension is required for the Applicant to demonstrate he is capable of remaining seizure-free.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 10, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

THE LAW:

Section 20(1) of Regulation 632/98 under the Highway Traffic Act states:

20. (1) An appeal to the Tribunal under section 50.2 of the Act shall be commenced by filing a notice of appeal with the Tribunal within 15 days of the issuance of the order to impound, together with a fee of $100 payable to the Minister of Finance.

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98 under the Highway Traffic Act states:

20. (7) Despite subsection (1), the Tribunal may extend the time for commencing an appeal if the owner establishes that the owner, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness, or other cause beyond the owner's control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

7. Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

- (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
- (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98, provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to satisfy the Tribunal that an extension of the time for commencing an appeal ought to be granted. The Applicant must establish that he, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness or other cause beyond his control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days in circumstances where the Registrar does not give his or her consent in writing for an appeal to be commenced after the expiry of the prescribed time.

The criteria listed in Section 20(7), which the Tribunal should consider in granting an extension, are matters outside the Applicant's control.

This Motion was to have been conducted by Teleconference. The Tribunal was however unable to contact Mr. Abel by telephone. The matter proceeded using Mr. Abel's detailed written Appeal as evidence.

Mr. Abel makes it quite clear in his letter of Appeal and subsequent letter of January 27th 2003 that he was in a lot of stress as a result of his wife's illness and the need to care for his three children. He stated that the truck was the least of his worries. He had, "a sick wife, three worried children, and a household of concerned in-laws." He was not about to call Government offices, which were closed during the Holidays. When he did call he got a "wrong number".

He also stated that he took no further action because he believed it would only cost $200.00 to get his vehicle back. He only proceeded with the appeal when he realised that the storage charges would be $904.69.

This time he called all of the numbers (i.e. the 1-800 number, as well as the French Service number) on the Notice of Appeal Form, and made certain to leave messages. Even then, he did not write his letter until January 27th, which was seven days after he received the letter informing him of the cost of the storage charges.

Although initially the Applicant was misled with the wrong Government phone number, the evidence presented does not establish that the Applicant's delay in appealing the order impounding the vehicle under Section 55.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was the result of a situation beyond the Applicant's control. The additional delay was the result of the Applicant's inaction. Clearly it was his own inaction that resulted in him missing the time period in which to appeal.

REASONS FOR ORDER:

Section 20 (7) of Regulation 632/98, provides the Tribunal with the specific criteria that the Applicant must meet to satisfy the Tribunal that an extension at the time of commencing an appeal ought to be granted. The Applicant must establish that acting in good faith, he was unable through accident, illness or other cause beyond his control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

The evidence presented does not establish that the Applicant's delay in appealing the Order impounding the vehicle under Section 55.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, was the result of accident, illness, or other cause beyond the Applicant's control as required by Section 20 (1) as read with section 20 (7) Of regulation 632/98. Further, the Applicant has not satisfied the Tribunal that there are reasonable grounds for applying the extension and for granting the relief. Accordingly, the requirements under section 7 Of the License Appeal Tribunal Act have not been met.

While the Tribunal commiserates with Mr. Abel in the stressful situation of caring for a sick wife, and three concerned children during the Christmas Holidays, it notes that Mr. Abel made a conscious decision to do nothing about the vehicle because he thought it would only cost $200.00 to get it out of the pound.

The Tribunal also notes that although he read the faxed Appeal Forms on Jan 23rd, he did not mail his Appeal letter until January 28th. which was five days later.

It is the Tribunal's opinion, that Mr. Abel did not act in a manner which supports his request for an extension of time.

ORDER:

For the reasons set out above, the motion herein of the Applicant requesting an extension of time to appeal, pursuant to section 20(7) of Ontario Regulation 632/98 amending Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, is dismissed.

H.8 as amended (the "Act"), Sandra Fisher (the "Applicant") initiated an appeal under section 50.2 of the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 55.1 of the Act, effective January 8, 2003 to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle for a period of 45 days;

AND WHEREAS, the Applicant has not responded to the Tribunal's Notice of Intent to Dismiss Proceedings sent to the Applicant pursuant to section 4.6 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter S. 22 as amended, and Rule 2.10 of the Rules of Practice of the Licence Appeal Tribunal, whereby a proceeding before this Tribunal may be dismissed without a hearing for failure to commence an appeal within the 15 day period;

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE

TRIBUNAL: KENNETH W. KOPROWSKI

APPEARANCES: ADELAIDE PINDER
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

ANGELA KEENAN, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: March 12, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: March 19, 2003 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 12, 2003, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Angela Keenan (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle: 1990 Nissan Sentra Coupe plate AHSP 110 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: February 9, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on March 12, 2003, and proceeded as a written hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows:

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

My position for this appeal is due to the fact that having my vehicle impounded for 45 days will affect my health. I currently suffer from an eating disorder and I have lots of Doctors (sic) appointments to go to! Taking public transportation will not help, due to the fact that most of my appointments are in Toronto and Peterborough, which means I need to drive there, because there is (sic) no buses to Peterborough and not at the right time for Toronto, keeping in mind that I live in Lindsay, Ontario.

My evidence for this is the Doctor (sic) note I have sent along from my Family Physician stating what I just have.

I also have a disability parking sticker and I am also at this time on a disability pension due to my illness. I would assume that my note from my Doctor would be enough to satisfy any need of how much having my car for doctor's appts (sic) is necessary for me. Once a week I have to go too (sic) Toronto for a doctor's appt. (sic) and twice a week I go to Peterborough for appts (sic). I would hope this is enough evidence for my case because it is my health.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Shane Newman;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Dangerous Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until July 11, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

- (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In order for the Applicant to succeed on the ground that the impoundment order will result in exceptional hardship, she must prove, first, that there was no alternative available to the impounded vehicle, as required by section 22(1) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario regulation 632/98 (the "Regulation").

Then, if the Applicant did, in fact, prove that there was no alternative available, that same section requires that she prove that the impoundment will result in a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle.

This Tribunal cannot consider that the impoundment will result in inconvenience to the Applicant.

It also cannot consider the following three matters; that is:

1. financial or economic loss to any person;
2. whether the impoundment will result in loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
3. whether the impoundment will result in a loss of education or training or of an opportunity for same.

However, the Tribunal may consider the above three last-mentioned matters if the Applicant can prove all four of the following circumstances; namely:

1. if there is no available alternative to the impounded vehicle;
2. if the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
3. if the loss will be suffered by the person ordinarily transported by the vehicle; and
4. if the result of the loss does not have an impact on the driver whose licence had been suspended and whose driving of the motor vehicle in question had resulted in the impoundment.

Section 22(4) provides that, to prove there was no alternative to the impounded vehicle, the Applicant would still have to prove that every reasonable option had been considered and inquired into to eliminate or mitigate any threat or loss to her, including using another vehicle or making arrangements to do without the impounded vehicle during the impound period.

The onus is on the Applicant to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that she falls within the above relevant circumstances when claiming exceptional hardship.

To say the least, the Applicant must proffer much evidence to support her appeal.

The Respondent Registrar of Motor Vehicles makes various submissions, in Exhibit 3, and comes to several conclusions to which this Tribunal should give its full consideration.

On the issue of whether the impoundment will result in a threat to the health of the Applicant, pursuant to section 22(1)(a), the Applicant, in her Notice of Appeal, writes that having her vehicle impounded will affect her health. She states that she suffers from an eating disorder and has "lots of doctors appointments to go to."

A letter dated February 4, 2003, from one Doctor Keith Evans, does confirm that the Applicant is under medical supervision which requires her to drive approximately 85 kilometers to Peterborough and back each week for a medical appointment.

Further, the Applicant states that most of her appointments are in Toronto and Peterborough.

It must be remembered that the Applicant lives in Lindsay, and must travel to both Peterborough and to Toronto.

Unfortunately, this Tribunal cannot conclude, on the evidence before it, just how the Applicant's health is affected. Presumably, the Applicant may be saying that failure to attend on those appointments will cause her health to fail; however, the Applicant provides no such details. This Tribunal cannot, therefore, come to any firm conclusion, on such evidence, on the issue of whether there is any threat to the health of the Applicant.

The Registrar has, based on the same evidence, submitted that, therefore, the impoundment does not pose a risk to the health of the Applicant. With this conclusion, this Tribunal cannot agree. The fact that the evidence does not show whether there is a health risk to the Applicant is not the same as saying that there is no health risk to her.

All that can be said is that the evidence is inconclusive, one way or the other, as to whether or not there is a health risk to her.

Dealing with another matter, the Applicant lives in Lindsay. Her car was stopped in Sudbury on a Monday night, January 27, 2003. The Registrar therefore submits that, if the Applicant had to attend on medical appointments, the fact that she had allowed her car to be taken so far away from Lindsay on a weeknight shows that doubt can be cast on the truthfulness of the Applicant's story.

Again, this Tribunal cannot so conclude. There could very well be other explanations for that circumstance. The Applicant's appointments could have been for a time which was later in the week, for example. Perhaps there are other valid explanations. The end result, however, is that this Tribunal cannot, as the Registrar has, come to any conclusion about the truth of the Applicant's story from that small amount of evidence. Attacking the credibility of an Applicant should be done only in the face of compelling evidence.

In dealing with alternative transportation, the Registrar submitted a bus schedule for travel between Peterborough and Toronto. In so doing, the Registrar submits that the Applicant has failed to provide evidence as to why the bus schedules are not at the right times for her, and why she cannot make use of that reasonable alternative.

However, it must be remembered that the Applicant lives in Lindsay, not Peterborough. What schedules has the Registrar provided for travel between Lindsay and Peterborough? And, without knowing how the Applicant can travel from Lindsay to Peterborough, how can bus travel from Peterborough to Toronto even be considered to be a reasonable alternative to the Applicant? The most that can be said, again, is that this Tribunal has insufficient evidence to even conclude that bus travel is a reasonable alternative for the Applicant.

Further, the Registrar submits that there are three vehicles registered to one Frank Keenan who lives at the same address as the Applicant. The Registrar, correctly, in the view of this Tribunal, submits that there is no evidence that these alternatives cannot be used to transport the Applicant to the bus station or to a doctor's appointment. However, the mere fact, alone, that three vehicles are registered to a Frank Keenan is not evidence that would allow this Tribunal to conclude that these vehicles are, in fact, available to the Applicant. The mere existence of these three vehicles, without more, is not really conclusive of anything, so that this Tribunal cannot come to any conclusion, one way or the other, about whether the availability of any or all of these vehicles is a reasonable alternative to the impounded vehicle for the Applicant.

The Registrar also submits that the Applicant has failed to inquire into obtaining, from the Ontario Disability Support Plan (ODSP), compensation for her transportation costs to her medical appointments. What the Registrar does not provide is any confirmation that the Applicant is even entitled to make those claims under the ODSP.

Decisions about such claims are within the jurisdiction of another agency entirely, and are not within the jurisdiction of this Tribunal. It would be unwise to assume, without more, that the Applicant is entitled to such compensation. Nor would it be proper for this Tribunal to engage in any such inquiry.

The Registrar, correctly, submits that the Applicant has failed to provide evidence of other options such as renting a vehicle, or obtaining assistance from family, friends or neighbours. Such evidence would have been of much value to this Tribunal.

On the question of whether there has been any financial loss to the Applicant as a result of the impoundment, there is no evidence from the Applicant. However, whereas the Registrar concludes that, therefore, there is no financial or economic loss, this Tribunal can only conclude that there is no such evidence. To reach the conclusion that the Registrar has reached, based only on the lack of evidence of financial loss, is merely speculation and assumption. However, what is significant to this Tribunal is that there is no such evidence on which such a conclusion can be reached. This Tribunal will not engage in making assumptions or in speculating.

There is also no evidence from the Applicant about loss of employment or employment opportunity, nor is there evidence about loss of education or training opportunity. As a result, the Registrar concludes that there is no such loss of such matters. This conclusion, as well, is too far reaching. It is based only on the lack of evidence relating to such matters. Lack of evidence on such matters does not allow this Tribunal to conclude, necessarily, that such matters do not exist. Lack of evidence is only an indication that there is, in fact, no evidence on the matter. That is the only firm conclusion that can be reached in the absence of anything more. To conclude anything more is, again, speculation and assumption.

Nevertheless, in dealing with all the above issues, and despite this Tribunal's disagreement with some of the conclusions submitted by the Registrar, based only on the lack of evidence on certain matters, this Tribunal, for lack of evidence before it, can and must come to one conclusion. That conclusion is that the Applicant has not provided sufficient evidence to establish the various criteria, referred to earlier in these Reasons, which would allow this Tribunal to conclude that the Applicant suffered exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of her motor vehicle. The significance of this lack of evidence is that the Applicant has not proved her case on a balance of probabilities, which she has the onus to do, in order to succeed in this Appeal.

Not having met this onus, this Appeal must fail.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LYNDA DUNBAR

Applicant,

DATE OF
HEARING: March 14, 2003

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- #1 Notice of Suspension to the Applicant from the Ministry dated September 21, 2002.
- #2 Notice of Appeal from the Applicant received at the Tribunal February 17, 2003.
- #3 File Summary introduced by the Respondent.
- # 4 Applicant's Driving Record.
- # 5 Medical Reports and Laboratory Reports from Physician #1.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a very pleasant 48 year old lady, who lives with her husband in a retirement community, had her driver's licence suspended, on September 21, 2002, pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. Her problems began when she went to a neighbour's home on August 14, 2002 and had a couple of Martinis. She stated that she had never had a Martini before. While walking home she felt a little unsteady, but nothing severe. While making her husband's dinner she knocked over the cat's water dish, slipped on the ceramic tile floor and hit her head.

The Applicant's husband heard her fall, rushed into the kitchen and found her unconscious and bleeding from a scalp wound. He called her name and she apparently responded immediately, but was somewhat confused for awhile.

Two days later, on August 16th the Applicant was in the city and went to the Hospital E.R., because she felt nauseated and had a headache. The E.R. physician, Physician #2, took a history, examined her and ordered a CT scan, which revealed a tiny subdural hemorrhage.

Physician #2 forwarded a Medical Report to the Ministry, which contained the following statement: "Seen by me in Emergency Department for effects after blackout and head injury. Tells me she is a heavy drinker and blackouts are not uncommon".

The Applicant stated she was completely blindsided when she received the suspension notice from the Ministry. She denies ever saying that she was a heavy drinker. She says that she has never had a blackout where she has been unconscious or passed out due to alcohol. She admits to using the term "blackout", but in the context of memory loss. She also stated, she usually restricts her drinks to 2 beers. She admits telling Physician #2 that she was drinking the night she had the fall, but denies saying that blackouts are not uncommon.

Subsequent CT scans disclosed a tiny brain contusion in the right temporal lobe. A laboratory report dated September 18, 2002 shows normal GGT and MCV markers. The Applicant began attending the Simcoe Outreach (SOS) program, but says it is mainly for treatment of previous sexual abuse.

Exhibit # 6 is the Applicant's response to MTO's assessments and allegations. It would appear that her family physician should have assisted her in answering many of the questions, because her interpretations are illogical.

In a letter from the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) dated November 25, 2002, a month after the Applicant saw Physician #3, a specialist in addictions and alcohol, a repeat request was made for a detailed assessment from a physician specializing in addiction medicine. A similar request was made by the MAC in a letter dated January 10, 2003 and a letter from the Ministry dated February 26, 2003. It would appear that the MAC simply does not want to accept Physician #3's assessment. He questions the initial reporting to the Ministry, of the circumstances of the Applicant's fall and states her alcohol intake is "sporadic and usually well controlled, recreational". Physician #3 reports that the Applicant has been abstinent from alcohol since September and her laboratory markers (MCV, GGT) were normal in September. He also states that the Applicant's goal is "maintenance of abstinence, even if her history does not indicate alcoholism".

The MAC, in the Report, dated January 10, 2003, appears to attack the Applicant by saying she was less than honest with Physician #3 and that her goal of abstinence and participation in a substance abuse program reaffirms that she is alcohol dependent. This is after she has been told repeatedly that she must remain abstinent and take a treatment program.

The Applicant saw a neurologist, Physician #4, on January 28, 2003, some five months after her slip and fall, and he could not detect any neurological problems and states there is no ongoing issue with alcoholism. He recommends reinstatement of her driver's licence.

A laboratory report dated January 30, 2003 from Medical Laboratories reports a GGT level of 12 and MCV of 60, which are both normal.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, when Physician #2's Medical Report was received. The report stated she treated the Applicant for effects after a blackout and head injury. She adds that the patient said she was a heavy drinker and blackouts were not uncommon.

Investigation of this incident revealed it was 2 days before the examination and the Applicant had slipped in some spilled water and hit her head on a ceramic floor. "Blackout" was the word the Applicant admits to using, but it was inappropriate in this case. The Applicant denies telling Physician #2 she was a heavy drinker and blackouts were not uncommon. She states (Exhibit #6) that she has never passed out or been unconscious due to alcohol.

The Medical Advisory Committee appears to have based their judgement of the Applicant being an alcoholic on Physician #2's Medical Report and the answers on the Alcohol Assessment Form. The Applicant's comments on her answers to the questions, illustrate how confused she was at the time and that she did not understand the questions. The MAC was really reaching when it stated that her alcohol dependence is reaffirmed by her goal of abstinence and participation in a substance abuse program.

The Applicant has received a clean bill of health from two specialists. Physician #3, the specialist in addictions and alcohol did not find the Applicant had any signs of alcoholism. Physician #4, the neurologist stated that he did not find any neurological abnormalities and that there did not appear to be any ongoing issue with alcohol.

The Applicant is obviously a drinker, like the majority of people in the province, but there is no evidence to indicate she is an alcoholic. She has followed through with every requirement made by the Ministry and the MAC, with the exception of the MRI, which the neurologist said she did not need.

The Respondent has failed to show that the Applicant suffers from a disability likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive a motor vehicle and further the Respondent failed to prove that the Applicant is addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive a motor vehicle under Section 14 of Regulation 340/94.

After reviewing all of the evidence the Tribunal finds there is little, if any evidence, to prove that the Applicant has an alcohol problem or to justify the continued suspension of her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 21, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 13, 2003 to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on March 14, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated January 28, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on February 18, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Ms. Pinder asked if the videotape of The Applicant's breathalyzer session, introduced as evidence by the Respondent, had been viewed by the Tribunal. It is not the Tribunal's practice to review any submissions, prior to ensuring that the Applicant is aware of and consents to the evidence presented. Thus, the Tribunal ascertained from the Applicant that she had viewed the contents of the videotape and was prepared to comment if necessary.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated January 13, 2003– issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received February 18, 2003.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received March 10, 2003
- b) Exhibit # 4 Videotape of the Brethalyzer session test – received March 10, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Jan 13 2003" as per Notice of Appeal.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant had page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared by her physician of some "10 years... Physician #1", on 28/1/03.

Physician #1's comments on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal follow:

"Details and Diagnosis of patient's condition ...history of asthma - likely unable to give a breathalyzer expiration breath under stress- able to provide blood sample if it was offered.

History of Condition ...has asthma more than 10 years.

Type of Measurements or recent tests taken with (date indicated): Reference to any pathology tests (e.g.PTF (SIC)) represent important corroboration of your medical opinion) ...x-rays – chest 6/1/03; stress test 21/1/03.

Relevant details of last visit and when your patient was last seen? ...6 /Jan/03 sinusitis – taking antibiotics."

At the hearing the Applicant asserted that she told the officers that she had asthma, in fact the officer gave the Applicant the inhalers. With respect to the breath sample, the Applicant testified: "...I tried as hard as I could ...it is my word against hers...".

In cross-examination, the Applicant reiterated her previous testimony that she was not immediately aware that the police were trying to pull her over, and that she had no idea why she was stopped until she was in the station.

According to the Applicant, on the advice of Duty Counsel she did not tell the officers that she was taking antibiotics for sinusitis since approximately January 6th 2003.

In reply to the Respondent's Representative's question if she was having any difficulty breathing the night in question, the Applicant replied: "...no, no, not until I started to blow into that machine did I feel my chest starting to get really tight...". The Applicant was not alarmed by the tightness in the chest as she has had asthma since she was about "...eighteen...". In the approximately ten years that the Applicant has suffered from asthma, her physician has never referred her to a pulmonary specialist.

The Applicant was not sure at what point she used the inhaler, but confirmed that she had not felt the need to take another puff during the breathalyzer session.

Asked if she was coughing or wheezing at the time, the Applicant responded, "...I don't believe so, no ...probably I was wheezing a little bit, if I breathe deep, I always have a little bit of a wheeze, usually..."

The Applicant's asthma is not affected by chronic sinusitis, but the Applicant verified that she does feel pressure on her face, when afflicted.

By way of clarification, the Tribunal asked the Applicant to describe the symptoms she was experiencing at the time of the breathalyzer. The Applicant answered: "...Just stress, I did not know if I was going to be able to do it properly, that's all."

In closing the Applicant accused Police Officer #1 of lying with respect to the Applicant's lack of effort to blow into the breathalyzer. The Applicant asserts that it must have been quite obvious that she was unable to provide an adequate sample due to asthma.

The Applicant is annoyed and does not understand why she was treated the way that she was. Further, the Applicant wondered why she was not asked to provide a blood sample.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed February 18th, 2003.
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed February 18th, 2003.
3. Certified Copy of Vehicle Record, sealed February 18th, 2003.
4. Sworn Affidavit of Police Officer #2, sworn March 6, 2003.
5. Videotape of the breath session at Police Station dated January 13, 2003.

In an Affidavit sworn March 6, 2003, Police Officer #2, member of the Regional Police Service, employed “...since Jan 2001”, describes the events that led to the Applicant’s arrest and subsequent demand for a breathalyzer test.

Police Officer #2 confirms: “...26. At no time during my dealings with the accused did she inform me of a medical condition or ask for medical attention ...27. At no time did I observe anything to suggest a medical problem with The Applicant...”

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that she has been a police officer for approximately “...five years...”, and a breath technician for about “...a year and half...”

The Applicant was given “...several attempts...” to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Except for one attempt, each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered an error message, indicating that no air was going through. The one time that the machine registered a tone, the Applicant did not blow long enough for the device to complete a reading.

Police Officer #1 observed that the Applicant appeared “...to just be putting her lips over the applicator...”, but was not blowing adequately. Police Officer #1 was able to tell that the Applicant was not blowing as Police Officer #1 did not hear or feel the air passing through the tube.

During her dealings with the Applicant Police Officer #1 did not notice the Applicant gasping for air, or wheezing. The Applicant did inform Police Officer #1 that she was asthmatic and specified that she had used the inhaler “...about half an hour...” earlier.

In her closing remarks, the Respondent’s Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar’s position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition which would have prevented her from providing an adequate breath sample. The Respondent’s Representative argued that the Applicant simply had no intention of providing a breath sample. This argument is substantiated by the observations of both Constables, who at no time noticed any signs of breathing difficulties, as well as by the fact that the Applicant at no time asked for medical assistance.

Quoting from Physician #1’s medical report, the Respondent’s Representative maintains that there is no certainty in the statement: “...likely unable...” Further there are no specialist reports as to the reasons that the Applicant could not provide a breath sample.

In conclusion the Respondent’s Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar’s decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the total evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the issue raised by the Applicant concerning the possibility of a demand to provide a blood sample. Subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." However, the decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, according to established policy. At the time, the Applicant showed no visible signs of respiratory impairment, such as wheezing or choking. Thus, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

With respect to the Applicant's complaint regarding the treatment she was subjected to while in custody, as the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to deal with such matters, no further comments will be made.

At issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all. At issue, is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Tribunal does not dispute that the Applicant is asthmatic. Nonetheless, the Tribunal concurs with the Respondent's Representative that Physician #1's surmising "...likely unable to give a breathalyzer expiration breath..." is inconclusive. Physician #1 does not specify the severity of the Applicant's condition, nor comment as to how the Applicant's condition could have prevented her from providing an adequate breath sample, Physician #1's seems to relate the inability to provide a breath sample to "...stress..."

The Applicant has not provided the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. In fact, it appears that Physician #1, who diagnosed the Applicant's asthma about ten years ago, did not feel that the Applicant's history was severe enough to warrant sending the Applicant to a respiratologist.

Thus, in order to assess how the Applicant's condition could have precluded the Applicant from providing a breath sample, the Tribunal considered the viva voce evidence of the Applicant and Police Officer #1, and the videotape of the breathalyzer test session. At the hearing, asked specifically, if she was experiencing any breathing difficulties the Applicant's response was an emphatic: "...no, no...". The Applicant's reply seems consistent with the evidence of Police Officer #1, corroborated by the videotape of the breathalyzer session, wherein by her own admission, the Applicant confirmed that she had used her inhaler approximately half an hour prior to the session. Given the timing of the Applicant's use of the inhaler, it is conceivable that, as she testified, the Applicant would not be suffering from a breathing impairment during the breathalyzer. The Tribunal further alludes to the videotape, which demonstrates quite clearly, what appears to be the lack of effort on the part of the Applicant to provide an adequate breath sample. Further, and most importantly, the Applicant's demeanour is not indicative of an individual exhibiting any type of respiratory distress.

As there are certain unmistakable indicators of respiratory impairment that are visible even to an untrained person, the Tribunal also relied on the testimony of the eyewitnesses who were involved in the incident. Both, Police Officer #2 and Police Officer #1 were in direct contact with the Applicant. Neither officer noticed, at any time, the Applicant suffering from any type of respiratory distress.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony albeit credible, fails to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that the Applicant was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 13, 2003 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: August 30, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: September 13, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 30, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 13, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	James Delaney (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1992 Ford F-150 XL, plate 2H2 8JY (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	August 15, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 30, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

MY POSITION IS WITHOUT MY VEHICEL I WILL LOSE MY JOB. ALSO MY GIRLFRIEND WAS DRIVING UP TO AUG 9th WHEN SHE TOOK SICK I MOVE FROM MISSISSAUGA TO BLUE WATER BEACH A MONTH AGO I WILL SHOW THAT I HAD A DRIVER'S WORKING WITH ME UP AND TILL JUNE 27/02 WHEN I MOVED TO BLUE WATER BEACH. THEN MY GIRLFRIEND TOOK ME TO WORK UNTIL SHE GOT SICK. NEVER DID I DRIVE THE VEHICEL.

(sic)

Evidence of Barbara Vogtlaender

Ms. Vogtlaender resides with the Applicant and moved with him to Blue Water Beach, ON on June 27, 2002 from their former residence in Mississauga ON. Ms. Vogtlaender explained that the Applicant usually works with his younger brother and nephew on job sites in or near the Greater Toronto Area. The impounded vehicle is normally utilized as a "work truck" in addition to being used as a personal vehicle. After Ms. Vogtlaender and the Applicant moved to Blue Water Beach, the Applicant's older brother loaned to the Applicant and his younger brother another truck (an Astro van) to be used for work purposes. After moving to Blue Water Beach and prior to the impoundment of the vehicle, on working day mornings Ms. Vogtlaender drove the Applicant in the impounded vehicle from their home to his younger brother's residence in Tottenham ON. Subsequently, the Applicant, his brother and nephew would drive to the job site of the day in the borrowed Astro van. Ms Vogtlaender would return to her home in the impounded vehicle and use it throughout the day for personal travel.

Ms Vogtlaender is currently unemployed. She has applied for Employment Insurance, but she is uncertain about whether she is eligible to receive benefits. Since moving to Blue Water Beach she has been searching for employment in the greater vicinity of Barrie ON. Prior to the impoundment she was using the impounded vehicle for this purpose. Therefore, she asserted that the impoundment might result in the loss of employment opportunities for her. Since the impoundment she has been invited to two job interviews in Collingwood ON. However, she did confirm that she was able to attend both of those interviews. She drove to the interviews in a car that she borrowed from her brother.

Ms. Vogtlaender explained that following the impoundment of the vehicle she was able to borrow her brother's 1988 car. Normally this car is driven by her brother, for among other purposes, to commute from his residence in Hamilton ON to his place of employment in Woodbridge ON. Since loaning this car to his sister he has secured the usage of a company car to meet his transportation requirements. Since borrowing her brother's car Ms Vogtlaender has used his car as a substitute for the impounded vehicle. In particular, she has used this car to drive on working day mornings with the Applicant from their home to his younger brother's residence in Tottenham ON. Then, as prior to the impoundment, the Applicant, his brother and nephew would drive to the job site of the day in the borrowed Astro van. She would return to her home in her brother's vehicle and use it throughout the day for personal travel. In particular, she has been utilizing the car to facilitate her employment search.

However, Ms. Vogtlaender expressed anxieties concerning her brother's car. Firstly, she stated that the car is old (a 1988 model) and that it is in poor condition. More urgently, she was concerned that she will be required to return the car to her brother before the impounded vehicle is released from the pound on September 23, 2002. She asserted that an early return of the car would leave her with no means of transportation and in particular, with no ability to attend job interviews. However, she did not state the basis for her belief that she might soon be required to return the car to her brother. She pointed out that Blue Water Beach is approximately a 30 minute drive from Barrie, a 45 minute drive from Tottenham and that the nearest town is a 90 minute walk from her home. She stated that there are no modes of public transportation available to her.

Also, she stated that since moving to Blue Water Beach she and the Applicant have been looking for a second car to purchase. She confirmed that the decision to purchase a second car was not related to the impoundment.

Evidence of the Applicant

The Applicant is employed by a heating company on a piece work basis. He installs and maintains heating equipment. He is a specialist in high velocity heating equipment.

On the day of the impoundment he had a job that entailed the installation of a high velocity heating unit. This type of installation does not require the assistance of the Applicant's brother and nephew. They are not experienced with high velocity units. Therefore, the Applicant had planned to perform the installation by himself. Normally under such circumstances, Ms Vogtlaender would have driven the Applicant directly to the job site. However, on the day in question, Ms Vogtlaender was ill and she could not drive. Therefore, the Applicant drove the vehicle. He explained that it was very important that this installation be completed on schedule. He felt a strong sense of obligation to the client. Also, he feared that he would be fired by his employer if he did not attend at the job site and complete the installation on the day in question.

The Applicant stated that he was concerned that the impoundment could result in the loss of his job. In particular, he feared that an early return of Ms Vogtlaender's brother's vehicle, as outlined above, would leave him without the means to get to work.

The Applicant explained to the Tribunal that on the evening before the hearing his older brother's Astro van, that was loaned to him for use as a "work truck", was taken to an automotive shop for repairs. The Applicant said that he assumed that the van could be repaired but that he was not certain.

The Applicant is the registered owner of another vehicle, a 1987 GMC van. He explained that this vehicle is not in working condition and that it waiting to be towed away for scrap metal.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by James Delaney;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until January 25, 2003.

The Registrar's Representative did not present any evidence in addition to the documentary evidence summarized above. In her submission before the Tribunal she reviewed section 22 of Regulation 574 of R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, which defines "exceptional hardship" for the purposes of the Tribunal's deliberations. She asserted that the Applicant had failed to meet the burden of proof required by the Regulation in order to establish that a condition of exceptional hardship exists as a consequence of the impoundment of the vehicle.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant, to establish exceptional hardship, must first establish that there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle under Subsection 22(3) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990. The Applicant's evidence demonstrates that there is an alternative, namely the motor vehicle loaned by Barbara Vogtlaender's brother. Fortunately, the Applicant has been able to rely on her and other family members for alternative transportation to work, as well as the assistance of his brother and nephew in traveling to various jobs.

Since there is an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle, the Tribunal cannot consider inconvenience, financial or economic loss, loss of employment or loss of training under Subsection 22(2) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990. As a result the Applicant has failed to establish exceptional hardship as a ground for his appeal.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds that the impoundment of her vehicle will result in exceptional hardship.

Under Section 22 of Regulation 574 of R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the owner must establish that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available as a prerequisite for a finding of exceptional hardship under subsections (1) or (3).

Ms. Vogtlaender stated that the impounded vehicle has historically been utilized as both a "work truck" and as a personal vehicle. Furthermore, she stated that after the Applicant and herself moved to Blue Water Beach, the Applicant's older brother loaned an Astro van to the Applicant for use as a work vehicle. Therefore, at the time of the impoundment, the impounded vehicle was only being used as a personal vehicle. Subsequent to the impoundment, Ms. Vogtlaender was able to use her brother's car as a personal vehicle as set out above. The Tribunal must conclude that an alternative to the impounded vehicle has been found. While some anxiety was expressed regarding the possibility of the loss of the use of Ms Vogtlaender's brother's car before the release of the impounded vehicle and regarding the state of repair of the borrowed Astro van, no compelling evidence was presented to support the belief that the alternative arrangements that have been made cannot continue until the impounded vehicle is released.

Furthermore, the Applicant has also failed to establish any of the other conditions required for a finding of exceptional hardship. In addition to establishing that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available, the Applicant must establish that the impoundment will result in:

- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety...of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used; or
- (c) financial loss, loss of employment or education, or loss of employment or educational opportunity that will be immediate, significant and lasting, and where the loss will be sustained by a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle, excluding the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension.

Regarding (c) above, the Applicant expressed anxiety over the possibility that the impoundment may result in the loss of his employment. It should be noted that the Applicant has sustained his employment since the impoundment and he has been in attendance at the required job sites since the impoundment. The evidence presented before the Tribunal does not suggest any imminent threat to his employment. Furthermore, section 22.3(d)(i) of Regulation 574, does not permit the Tribunal to consider financial losses of the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension.

Also, regarding (c) above, Ms Vogtlaender, a person who is ordinarily transported by the impounded vehicle, expressed anxiety that the impoundment would impede her search for employment and could result in the loss of employment opportunities. However, since the impoundment, she has been invited to two job interviews. She utilized her brother's borrowed car as transportation and she was able to attend both of the interviews. It is most probable that any future interviews during the impoundment period will be attended via similar means. Therefore, the Tribunal must conclude that Ms. Vogtlaender has not sustained any loss.

Regarding (a) above, the health or safety of anyone is not at issue in this case.

Regarding (b) above, public health and safety is not at issue in this case.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, (the "Registrar"), pursuant to section 7, of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated November 29, 2002, seeks to refuse the registration of Matthew Joseph Elliott (the "Applicant") pursuant to section 7, of the Act, based upon:

1. Applicant's criminal convictions, and the nature of said convictions.
2. Applicant's failure to fully disclose his criminal record as required by question 9 on the application to become a motor vehicle salesperson.

Mr. Elliott, on behalf of himself, filed a Notice of Appeal dated, December 13, 2002. He did not dispute his criminal record.

THE LAW

- Section 5(1) the Act, an Applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where, disentitled to registration under section 5.
- (b) the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Jennifer Andrew, Inspector, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (MVDA), affirmed, testified on behalf of the Registrar.

1. She stated that the primary purpose of the Act is to ensure consumer protection and she set out the criteria for registration of persons to ensure the protection of the public when dealing with motor vehicle salespersons. Registration of the Applicant was refused because of the serious nature of the convictions.

2. Ms. Andrew stated that in a six-year period the Applicant received 20 convictions. She further testified that on his application to become a salesperson, the Applicant initially did not fully reveal all the convictions against him. The Applicant was released on parole from Saskatchewan Penitentiary on September 19, 2002, and is currently on parole, until May 13, 2003.
3. The Applicant's convictions were obtained in a criminal background search: (Exhibit 4 Tab 4). They are as follows:

May 8, 1992	Possession of credit card obtained by crime (5 Counts). Theft under $1000.00 (2 counts)
April 15, 1993	Trafficking in a narcotic (2 counts) Failure to comply with Probation Order
February 26, 1998	Possession of Device to Obtain Telecommunication Facility or service.
November 16, 1998	Traffic in Schedule 1 Substance (2 counts) Possession of a Schedule 1 Substance for the purpose of Trafficking
June 15, 1998 to September 1998	Fail to comply with Recognizance (5 counts) Possession of a scheduled Substance for the purpose of Trafficking.

Witness for the Applicant:

Matthew J. Elliott, Applicant, stated that the convictions reviewed by Ms. Andrew were accurate. He said however, that it was not his intention to hide any of his convictions. He said that he was unaware that he had to state all of his past. He said that he had submitted a second letter with additional details.

The Applicant further said that he has turned his life around. He intends to become a correspondence student at McMaster University. He produced a letter from McMaster University, dated December 2002 (Exhibit 2) stating that the Applicant applied to the Addiction Studies Program, which is conditional on payment of a sixty-dollar fee. The Applicant admitted that he has not paid the fee; therefore he is not enrolled in the course of studies. He stated that he would like to become a drug and alcohol counselor eventually. (Note that all of the documents referred to by the Applicant were filed jointly as Exhibit 2 and will be referred to as such.)

The Applicant stated that while he was in Yellowknife he was employed as a Sales Consultant for Yellowknife Chrysler Ltd. during the period January 2000 to April 2001 (Exhibit 2). A letter dated December 11, 2002, from Yellowknife Chrysler Ltd. stated that during the Applicant's employment, his performance was excellent. The Applicant stated that he thoroughly enjoyed his time as a salesman and only desires to do that work. He said that in Yellowknife there was no requirement to have a clean record and that is why he applied for a licence in Ontario.

The Applicant explained that he moved to Windsor to be near his mother who has been ill. The Applicant was asked if he was willing to be employed in work other than car sales. He replied he only wants to be a car salesperson, but said he had submitted resumes to various places of employment, but has not received any replies.

A letter dated April 11, 2002 (Exhibit 2), from Windsor Chrysler stating that Mr. Elliott has applied to become a sales professional at their dealership. The letter further states that it is their intention to hire him, and are awaiting the final decision from OMVIC. An undated letter, from the Drouillard Road Clinic, (Exhibit 2), states that the Applicant is a patient, and that since October, 2002 he has provided clean urine specimens.

A letter dated December 6, 2002, (Exhibit 2) by a medical doctor, stating that at the time of writing, the Applicant has been doing extremely well. It also stated that the Applicant is being maintained on a regular daily dose of methadone.

Exhibit 2 also contains another letter of support from a Windsor Parole Officer, dated December 6, 2002, stating that since his release there have been no known violations of Mr. Elliott's release conditions.

A letter dated December 6, 2002, (Exhibit 2) signed by a caseworker at St. Leonard's House states that the Applicant appears to be making a sincere effort toward making healthy lifestyle changes and choices. The letter further suggests that he is receiving family support.

The Applicant's mother Elfreda Stacey, stated that her son has made some mistakes in the past but that she believes he deserves another chance.

The Tribunal upon reviewing all of the evidence before it, is of the opinion that the Applicant's criminal past conduct affords reasonable grounds for the belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law, with integrity and honesty.

The Tribunal is also of the opinion that the application for registration is premature in that the Applicant was released from the penitentiary only six months ago, and is still on parole until May 15, 2003. He has not had sufficient time to prove to this Tribunal and most importantly to himself that he has indeed reformed and will remain free of illegal drugs. The Tribunal further suggests that the Applicant should be willing to accept any honest work as he wends his way to rehabilitation. Unfortunately, we are not always able to work in the fields of our choice.

Having said that however, the Tribunal does not wish to crush the hope of an individual who sincerely wishes to get on with his life and make a new start.

ORDER:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7 (4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out its proposal dated November 29, 2002, against the Applicant with the following provision:

1. That the Applicant, if after a period of two years from the date of this decision, has indeed reformed, such that he: remains free of illegal drugs; maintains a criminal free record; then upon a further application for registration, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to register Matthew J. Elliott as a salesperson upon the following conditions:
 - a. That Matthew J. Elliott, within two years of this decision successfully completes the certification course offered by OMVIC.
 - b. That for a period of three years from the date of this decision, all bills of sale involving Matthew J. Elliott will require the signature of his sales manager who has the responsibility to supervise the work of the salespersons.
 - c. That Matthew J. Elliott, will not be given a supervisory position at a motor vehicle dealership, which involves the handling of money for a period of four years from the date of this decision.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal ("the Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act ("the Registrar" and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated October 31, 2002 proposed to refuse registration of DaCosta Developments Inc., ("DaCosta") under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar under the Act proposed to refuse to renew the registration of DaCosta Developments Inc. The grounds relied upon by the Registrar for the Proposal are set out below:

1. The Applicant has failed or refused to:
 - (a) Provide security with respect to the construction and sale of units, as requested of the applicant by letter dated October 9, 2002;
 - (b) Provide the security required with respect to the construction and sale of units in the 5-unit Type B Phase 4 condominium project known as Scott's

Gate Condos located at 375 Scott St., in Strathroy, requested of the applicant by letter dated October 9, 2002;

- c) Enroll the homes located at Moore Street, in Strathroy, by submitting the completed Enrollment of Home forms together with the prescribed fees, requested of the applicant by letter dated October 9, 2002;
 - d) Enroll the condominium units for Phase 4 of a condominium project known as Scott's Gate Condos located at 375 Scott Street, in Strathroy, by submitting the completed Enrollment of Condominium Unit form together with the prescribed fees, as requested of the applicant by letter dated October 9, 2002
2. In failing or refusing to provide the above noted documentation, the Applicant has contravened the following provisions of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31, (the "Act") as amended, and Regulations:
- (a) The Applicant has failed to comply with sections 8 and 9 of Regulation 892;
 - (b) Section 1.0.3 of Regulation 894 obliges the Applicant to provide such information or material relating to the Applicant's entitlement to registration as the Registrar may require and request;
 - (c) Section 7(1)(c)(i) and 8(1) of the Act allows the Registrar to refuse to register an Applicant where, having regard to the Applicant's financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings and where in the Registrar's opinion, the Applicant is disentitled to registration.

The Registrar subsequently issued a Supplemental Notice of Proposal, dated March 5, 2003 which, in addition to the grounds shown in the Notice of Proposal dated October 31, 2002, the Registrar added the following:

- 3. Pursuant to section 7(1)(c)(i), the Registrar has reasonable grounds for concluding that the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings, having had regard to the financial information provided to ONHWP from the Applicant and its officer/guarantor, Terry DaCosta.
- 4. Pursuant to section 7(1)(c)(ii) the past conduct of the sole officer/director of the Applicant affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for believing that the Applicant's undertakings will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. In particular:

- (a) The said officer/director, Terry DaCosta, caused or allowed the Applicant corporation to commence construction of a condominium project located at 375 Scott Street in Strathroy, Ontario without having first become registered with ONHWP; without first enrolling the said project; without having first obtained the appropriate building permits on land owned by another unrelated company;
- (b) The said officer/director, Terry DaCosta, caused or allowed the Applicant corporation to enter into 4 Agreements of Purchase and Sale for units in the condominium project at 375 Scott Street in Strathroy, Ontario without first becoming registered with ONHWP and without first enrolling the said project;
- (c) The said officer/director, Terry DaCosta caused or allowed the Applicant corporation to construct 2 semi-detached homes located at 25-27 Moore Street in Strathroy, and entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale for one of the said homes without first becoming registered with ONHWP and without first enrolling the said homes
- (d) The said officer/director, Terry DaCosta, has behaved in an abusive and threatening manner towards representatives of ONHWP and others. For example, as a result of the actions referenced in paragraphs (a) (b), and (c) above, charges were laid against the Applicant corporation and the said officer/director, Terry DaCosta, in the Provincial Court, pursuant to section 22 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act. The said officer/director, Terry DaCosta, behaved in a threatening and abusive manner to a representative of ONHWP, Roger Ducharme, when the said charges were served on Terry DaCosta by Mr. Ducharme.

FACTS

Opening Statements:

Ms. Carol Street, Counsel for the Registrar stated the Registrar's case would be presented under two headings. These would be (1) Financial and (2) Behavioural (Compliance).

Specifically the refusal decision to register DaCosta had been made on the basis that:

- (1) the Applicant did not have sufficient financial strength; and
- (2) there were compliance issues relating to the manner in which the Applicant
(a) commenced construction without a building permit, (b) sold homes without being a registrant and (c) sold without enrolling new home units with the Program.

The Applicant, Mr. DaCosta, indicated in his opening statement that he would cover much of the same ground as had been mentioned by Ms. Street and that he would review evidence of his enrollment and that he had been a previous registrant and there had been no complaints.

The Registrar's Witnesses were Kevin Brodie and Roger Ducharme

Evidence of Kevin Brodie

Mr. Brodie is a chartered accountant and has been with the Program since May of 2001. He currently holds the position of senior financial analyst and works in licensing and underwriting where he reviews applications for registration from first time applicants. Mr. Brodie stated he completed his CA training with BDO Dunwoody, in the Barrie, Ontario office in 2000 and that he has reviewed many financial statements.

Mr. Brodie confirmed the Applicant's file started with Connie Corriero after it was received by the Program on June 21, 2002. He stated that Ms. Carreiro is an Underwriting Analyst and that she is not an accountant. Only when it becomes evident that there are problems or financial questions with a file does that file go to an accountant staff member. The history of the DaCosta file shows:

- the initial application was received June 21, 2002 (E3-T5)
- the company's sole owner was Terry DaCosta
- the principal details of the construction proposal for the next 12 months were presented as being:

Residential Construction Planned over next 12 months	Total Units	Start Date
Single Detached/Semi	16	June 2002
Single	33	May 2002
Low-Rise Condominium	17	July 2002
Contract Home(s)	2	August
Homes on Septic System	1	June 2002

- the application included an out-of-date Guarantee Document (E3-T6)
- (E3-T7) the letter of June 26, 2002, by Ms. Carreiro requested additional information by July 12, 2002; specifically:
 1. to confirm the total number of units over next 12 months
 2. a project profile
 3. to complete the new indemnity form in place of old guarantee form
- on July 9, 2002, the Program received the completed indemnity and project profile forms (E3-T8, T9)
- the third page of the project profile form showed a total unit count of 47
- the July 11, 2002 letter from Ms. Carreiro requested confirmation for the total number of freehold units to be built over the next 12 months (E3-T10)
- the July 11, 2002 fax from DaCosta confirming Phase #3 is to be done in 4 phases for a total of 17 units (E3-T11)
- subsequently, the program was advised there would only be 6 freehold and 4 condominium units for a total of 10
- the Builder Risk Assessment Report produced on August 6, 2002 (E3-T15) showed that Mr. DaCosta did not have sufficient minimum equity for the proposed total number of units (the report was based on 10 units)
 - The Program was unable to include either the cash amount or the real estate shown on Mr. DaCosta's Personal Net Worth Statement (Exhibit 4) as there was no back-up in the form of bank statements, tax assessment form or deed
 - On the technical test it was acknowledged that while Mr. DaCosta initially obtained a below average business and technical skills rating, he did arrange to redo the test and obtained an improved score at that time however, it did not overcome the insufficient financial rating (E3-T19)

Mr. Brodie then referred to Builder Bulletin 28 which reviews how the Registrar carries out the risk assessments to ensure that registered builders are able to meet all financial and warranty obligations.

- the letter of August 7, 2002 (E3-T16) advised Mr. DaCosta his financial information showed insufficient financial equity and that the Program required a guarantor to support his application for registration; this letter requested a reply by August 21, 2002;
- on September 16, 2002, the Program received the following financial documents by fax:
 1. Pro-Forma Financial Statements for DaCosta Realty Inc. (E3-T12)
 2. Financial Statements for DaCosta Realty Inc. (E3-T13)

3. Financial Statements for DaCosta Developments Inc. (E3-T14)

Mr. Brodie testified that these documents were unable to assist his review as there was no back-up information and that "Pro-Forma" only means the company's best estimates. In addition, each page contained a disclaimer stating they were "Prepared without Audit or Review of any kind by The Ellis-Dillon Group from information provided by management. Prepared for management purposes only."

- on September 20, 2002, Ms. Carreiro obtained a second Builder Risk Assessment Report (E3-T17), taking for face-value the September 16th statements received from Mr. DaCosta; the resulting report showed there was still insufficient minimum equity;
- the letter of October 9, 2002 (E3-T18), from Mr. Pat Varcoe, Deputy Registrar, advised Mr. DaCosta that the Program was prepared to provide DaCosta Developments with registration based on the following terms and conditions:
 1. $15,000 security per unit for the 5 condo units at 375 Scott Street (original request had been for $20,000 per unit)
 2. to provide a declaration of deposit amount requested from buyer
 3. to provide $10,000 per unit security for 2 freehold units at 25-27 Moore Street
 4. to submit appropriate enrollment applications with corresponding fees
 5. to obtain Program consent for any additional units
- though the Program requested a reply by October 18, 2002, none was received by that date;
- on November 13, 2002 the Program was advised by Mr. DaCosta (E3-T20) that he was not continuing with the condominium project at 375 Scott Street as 3 of the 4 offers to purchase had expired and he was returning the only deposit in his possession to the purchaser;
- Mr. DaCosta also advised that the only project left was the two semis at 25-27 Moore Street, Strathroy and they had been enrolled - front side only copies of a deposit refund (dated Nov. 12, 2002) and enrollment cheque (date was unclear whether Oct or Sept 26, 2002) were included

Mr. Brodie's testimony reviewed other facts, including:

- copies of four Agreements of Purchase and Sale (E3-T26, T27, T29, T30) which showed deposits had been taken for condominium units at Scott Street and that DaCosta was not a registered builder at the time the agreements were entered into;
- Mr. DaCosta's comments to Connie Carreiro during a telephone conversation of November 18, 2002 (E3-T21) in which Ms. Carreiro noted Mr. DaCosta's comment that "...he would sell the home registered or not. He will use his friend's number or sell it to himself ..."
- a letter from the law firm of Parker, Ross & Blain, December 17, 2002 (E3-T22) which included:
 1. a proposal for four units and a letter of explanation on past events from Mr. DaCosta
 2. a copy of the agreement of purchase and sale between DaCosta and The Hampton Group
 3. 4 mutual releases signed by purchasers of the proposed condominium units

4. copy of a building permit for the Moore Street property

Mr. Brodie also reviewed a second letter, from Parker, Ross & Blain, dated January 6, 2003 (E3-T23), which included document copies that had been discussed during a conference call on January 2, 2003. These were:

- (a) a copy of transfer/deed for Mr. DaCosta's personal residence
- (b) a copy of first mortgage to TD Bank
- (c) a copy of second mortgage to Cecilia DaCosta
- (d) a copy of mortgage on Moore St to G.M.S. Mortgage Funding
- (e) a copy of assessment notice on Mr. DaCosta's residence
- (f) a copy of listing agreement for Mr. DaCosta's residence
- (g) two construction cost sheets for 25-27 Moore Street

Mr. Brodie commented that he would not have been able to determine the profitability of the Moore Street, project as he had not received any proof of construction costs.

Ms. Street then introduced a copy of a land registry abstract (Exhibit 5) showing charges registered against DaCosta Realty Inc. by Finleigh Realty Inc., for $31,000 and Coldstream Concrete Limited for $2,560.

In summary, Ms. Street asked Mr. Brodie if he thought DaCosta had the financial strength to proceed with the proposed homes and he answered "No". Mr. Brodie also confirmed he had completed a new Risk Assessment on March 16, 2003 and based on the available information, DaCosta would still only score 13 points. According to the Bulletin 28 grid, that would still place this builder in the above average risk category.

On cross-examination of Mr. Brodie by Mr. DaCosta, the Tribunal heard:

- that in due course, it typically takes 4 to 6 weeks for a registration application to be processed if all the required information is received;
- confirmation that Mr. DaCosta's construction plan, submitted with the application, was for 17 homes (E3-T9pg3, E3-T11);
- that the first time Mr. Brodie saw the DaCosta financials was in January 2003 - however Mr. Brodie believed that Mr. Varcoe, who is also a CA, would have seen them before signing the condition of registration letter of October 9, 2002;
- Mr. Brodie confirmed the Program does not accept 'Pro-Forma' statements, as they are only estimates of what management thinks may happen, and that he also had no familiarity with the Ellis-Dillion Group, who had prepared the statements (to which Mr. DaCosta responded "You don't want to know");
- Mr. Brodie confirmed that he had not contacted Mr. DaCosta to discuss the statements.

Evidence of Roger Ducharme

Mr. Ducharme has been an Investigator with the Program's Enforcement Group for 10 years and investigates allegations concerning unenrolled homes and unregistered builders. Prior to joining the ONHWP he had been a police officer from 1973.

Mr. Ducharme received the DaCosta file on June 20, 2002 and prepared his report for the period from that date to November 2, 2002 (E3-T32). Highlights of Mr. Ducharme's investigation findings were reviewed through his testimony and include the following:

- as of June 25, 2002 there was no construction at 375 Scott Street and no building permit had been issued; Mr. Ducharme also learned that DaCosta was building a semi-detached unit at 25-27 Moore St and an expired ONHWP number had been used on the building permit application;
- on July 2, 2002, DaCosta entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale for one unit at Scott Street; a second agreement was dated July 30th; a third on August 19th and a fourth agreement was entered into on September 9th;
- on August 16, DaCosta Developments ordered concrete to be poured for 5 foundations at 43 to 47 Scott Street and this construction started August 26, 2002;
- on September 11th, 2 photos were taken of the 5 foundations at Scott Street (E3-T24) and it was learned that (i) no construction permits were in place and (ii) the property was still owned by the Hampton Group;

On the basis that DaCosta Developments was not a registered builder, that no permits had been issued and the 5 units were not enrolled in the Program, Mr. Ducharme contacted DaCosta to advise him that Section 12 of the Act required enrollment forms, fees and securities documentation to be completed and that he was in contravention of the regulations.

On September 20, Mr. Ducharme learned from DaCosta that the Moore Street units were rental units and therefore did not need to be enrolled. Mr. DaCosta also said the Program head office had received all the documents for registration and enrollments for the condo project would be sent when registration was completed.

On October 8, Mr. Ducharme visited the Scott Street site and learned that (i) no further construction had occurred, (ii) no permits had been issued or applied for and (iii) there were problems with the ownership of the property which now had foundations for 5 units.

On October 17, Mr. Ducharme learned from Connie Carreiro that Mr. DaCosta had advised her that (i) he would not submit the requested securities, (ii) that the condo project was on hold and that (iii) he wanted his file sent to Notice of Proposal as he intended to appeal the security requirement.

On October 22, Mr. Ducharme confirmed there was no further condo construction work taking place and that Coldstream Concrete had liened the property. In addition, he learned that there was now legal action between DaCosta and the Hampton Group.

On October 29, Mr. Ducharme met with:

- Dave Tennant, owner of the Scott St. property, and The Hampton Group, and obtained copies of various background documents regarding the Tennant/DaCosta relationship (E3-T32pg2);
- Ron Tyler, the real estate agent for DaCosta, and obtained copies of 4 Agreements of Purchase and Sale and deposit details;
- Bob Brown of Coldstream Concrete for copies of work invoices and concrete delivery tickets.

On November 4, Mr. Ducharme testified he met with Mr. DaCosta at 25 Moore Street to serve summonses regarding charges for failing to enroll, for not being a registered vendor and for not being a registered builder.

Mr. DaCosta's response to being served was "confrontation, menacing, abusive" as described in Mr. Ducharme's Threatening Call/Contact report (E3-T35). Mr. Ducharme also took photographs of units 25 and 27 Moore Street (E3-T24pg5).

On cross-examination of Mr. Ducharme by Mr. DaCosta, the Tribunal heard...

- that rental units are not covered by the Program;
- that Mr. Ducharme had not seen any deposits during the course of his meeting with Ron Tyler;
- there had been no complaints from any of the purchasers about getting their money back;
- that the situation with DaCosta is not out of the ordinary.

Mr. DaCosta also raised the matter of when he might have received the August 30, 2002 fax letter from The Hampton Group's law firm (E3-T28) advising him to "cease and desist all work on the site...") and Mr. Ducharme testified that by September 6th, all the Coldstream concrete forms had been stripped and were off-site.

The Applicant, Mr. DaCosta, then provided the following testimony on his own behalf:

- he is an electrician and has knowledge in other trades;
- he has taken management courses;
- in the 1995-97 period he did some personal construction work as well as for others;
- between 1997 and 2000 he worked in the maintenance department at the Toyota plant and then at the Ford plant in Oakville until 2001;
- after the position at Ford he looked at home construction for self-employment;

- regarding the original Notice of Proposal (E3-T1), only item 1(a) should be in dispute as items 1 (b) and (d) had been halted and were not proceeding while 1 (c) was completed and enrolled

Regarding the Supplementary Notice of Proposal (E3-T2), Mr. DaCosta believed it was similar to the original Notice of Proposal and that he had wanted to enroll the semi units at Moore Street and that “no others were happening”.

Highlights of Mr. DaCosta's testimony are noted as follows:

- he still has not received a letter stating “here is your equity and here is what we need (security);
- that he remembered his 1990-91 experience when he had not needed security;
- that he needed to have his registration first before the bank would lend money;
- the first project he considered was the Mogg Street parcel (see E3-T12, T13 - which is listed on the Balance Sheet pages in the Total Current Assets - Inventory section) but he then got the Moore Street property on which he planned to build and rent;
- he then contacted The Hampton Group about buying Phase 3 of Scott Gate;
- Mr. DaCosta confirmed he started the ONHWP application in June of 2002 and after completing the Indemnity Form he also spoke with Connie Carreiro to find out how to reduce the security amount required;
- that his agreement with The Hampton Group (E3-T22pg7) allowed him to start construction with the submission of building plans;
- he confirmed that the Moore Street units were rented by November 2002 with the sale of one having closed March 12, 2003;
- he stated that he felt his personal net worth statement (Exhibit 4) was “pretty accurate”;
- he confirmed that he had received only one actual deposit, which was from Hustler, and that the site photos shown in E3-T24 were correct.

Mr. DaCosta testified that following the January 2, 2003 conference call (referenced in E3-T23), he provided information to the Program but never received a reply and that he was disappointed his request for a Pre-Hearing had not been agreed to by the Program.

Mr. DaCosta referred to the Program's letter of October 9, 2002 (E3-T18) and (i) agreed with paragraphs 1 and 3. He suggested the 2 Moore Street units might require $5,000 each and claimed he was told that “under normal circumstances maybe not at all”. He also felt the security should be held for 1 year not 2 years.

On equity, Mr. DaCosta also pointed out that his equity should be $104,000 and while that was originally for 10 units he is now down to 2 units.

Ms. Street then offered an updated Risk Assessment report, dated March 16, 2003, which showed that Mr. DaCosta still did not meet the minimum equity requirement. This was accepted as Exhibit 6.

On cross-examination of Mr. DaCosta, the Tribunal heard:

- that while the Moore Street property only closed in July 2002, DaCosta began clearing the land between May and July and then started construction in July even though it had not been enrolled;
- on being shown a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, for 25 Moore Street, to Fuller and Martin (Exhibit 7), which was in place before construction started (which shows a date of June 1, 2002), it was noted that the second page of the Agreement was missing; Mr. DaCosta refused to answer when asked if he denied the existence of the second page;
- that Mr. DaCosta had told Mr. Ducharme the Moore Street units were rental units;
- that Mr. DaCosta did not disclose pending litigation to the Program as he did not consider it relevant;
- that DaCosta Realty Inc. was in default to G.M.S. Mortgage Funding Corporation for the Moore Street property mortgage and had not disclosed this to the Program;
- that the financial statements found at E3-T13 listed assets (Mogg Street) which Mr. DaCosta did not own;
- that while advising the Program he would only be doing 4 condos, he actually poured 5 foundations;
- that by signing the ONHWP Vendor Agreement (E3-T3) and the ONHWP Builder Agreement (E3-T4), Mr. DaCosta had committed to the terms detailed in Article 1.3 of the Vendor Agreement and Article 1.4 of the Builder Agreement.

In response to a question from the Tribunal member regarding the discrepancy between the deposit amount of $5,000 noted in the original Presseault Agreement of Purchase and Sale versus the amount of $3,500 noted in the Presseault Mutual Release, Mr. DaCosta said he did not know anything about that as his real estate agent had prepared the Release and he had just signed the form.

In closing argument for the Program, Ms. Street reviewed the evidence presented during the course of the hearing and concluded by asking the Tribunal to consider...

- the Applicant was building in 2 locations;
- the Applicant had submitted misleading information
- the Applicant was selling homes without being registered;
- the Applicant had not enrolled homes for sale;
- the Applicant had submitted misleading information on deposits.

And, since the Program could not rely on the information supplied by the Applicant, it also could not rely on the Applicant to do what it was supposed to do.

Further, as the Applicant was involved in an altercation with Mr. Ducharme, and as he deals with the public, there is a potential for other altercations to occur. Therefore, the Applicant's conduct cannot be relied upon.

In his closing argument, Mr. DaCosta submitted the following:

- it was only through this hearing that he had a view of the Risk Assessment Report;
- the Program was only valuing his personal property at the year 2000 value and that it had a higher current value and in fact, the higher value would give him equity of $104,000;
- that the $15,000 cash shown in his statements should have been considered;
- that he was never given the opportunity to go into the Program offices to personally review his Risk Assessment Report;
- that he considered the different 'Total Equity' number shown in Exhibit 6 versus that shown in E3-T17 pg 2 to be discriminatory;
- that based on his asset and equity calculation he should have scored between 34 and 37 points depending on whether he was planning 4 or 2 units.

Regarding his conduct, Mr. DaCosta suggested that as there were no witnesses, it should not be considered. However, he did agree that he had not provided the information regarding the construction lien and litigation but that he did have an interest in the Mogg Street property and that was why it had been listed as an asset.

As far as the deposits were concerned, he had relied on his real estate agent to complete the offers and release documents. He had also relied solely on the accountants who had prepared the financial statements on his behalf.

Mr. DaCosta acknowledged that he had not enrolled homes nor provided required security but expressed the view that denying him registration was unfair as he had money that was now tied up.

In closing, Mr. DaCosta stated that if everything was resolved, there would be no problem in providing new financial statements, enrolling homes and providing security as required, especially as he now had a better understanding of the Risk Assessment analysis.

Mr. DaCosta called for more collaboration between the Program and Applicants to allow for better understanding of the process and he acknowledged he had made mistakes and had learned from them. He asked the Tribunal to consider a compromise solution.

In reply, Ms. Street emphasized that contrary to Mr. DaCosta's argument, the Tribunal should consider that:

- (1) the Program could not consider the value of any assets as the financial statements were not reliable;
- (2) Moore Street started without building permits;
- (3) Mr. Ducharme's version of the dispute is the only evidence on record as Mr. DaCosta did not challenge it;
- (4) that it would be difficult for the Program to consider a compromise as the Program does not have the necessary confidence in Mr. DaCosta;
- (5) in accordance with section of the Act, Mr. DaCosta could make a new application for registration based on new or other evidence or where it is clear that material circumstances have changed.

ISSUE:

Does the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act have sufficient grounds to refuse the registration of the Applicant as a builder under the said Act?

THE LAW

Sections 6,7(1)(c)(1) and 8(1) of the Act and section 9 of Regulation 892 state as follows:

Section 6 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") is clear in requiring that

No person shall act as a vendor or a builder unless the person is registered ... under this Act.

Section 7 states:

- 7 (1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,
 - (1) (c) the applicant is a corporation and,
 - (1) (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings,

Section 8(1) of the Act states as follows:

- 8 (1) Subject to section 9, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 7.
- 9 (1) Each applicant desiring registration under the Plan shall complete, execute, and deliver to the Registrar such form or forms of application as the Registrar may require from time to time.

9 (3) The applicant shall furnish to the Registrar:

9 (3) Financial statements of the applicant and such other information relating to the applicant's financial affairs as the Registrar may require.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Based on the evidence presented by both the Program's counsel and the Applicant through his own testimony and closing submission, the Tribunal finds as a fact that DaCosta Developments Inc. had not enrolled homes or provided the security requested in the Program's 'Condition of Registration' letter of October 9, 2002 (E3-T18) contrary to subsection 9(3) of the Act.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant failed to comply with the Act and the regulations. The Applicant proceeded to sell and build in contravention of the Act's requirements and it is not unreasonable to consider that he may have done so with some fore-knowledge of the requirements. The attitude displayed by the Applicant towards Mr. David Tennant and then Mr. Ducharme is also of some concern. However, the Tribunal takes note of the fact that the Applicant did resolve the matters of owed deposits and other debts.

The Tribunal further finds as a fact that the Registrar established (through the evidence of Mr. Ducharme) that the applicant engaged in construction and sales activities in 2002 without becoming an ONHWP registered vendor or builder, contrary to section 6 of the Act, and that this evidence was not challenged by the Applicant.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant substantially reduced its construction plans from 17 units to 10 to 2 (4 units were also mentioned) and was making efforts to complete a registration application.

The Tribunal further finds that the evidence presented through Mr. Ducharme regarding construction and sales activities in 2002 without registration which therefore acting as a vender or builder, contrary to section 6 of the Act was not challenged by the Applicant.

Regarding the matter of security and the financial strength of the Applicant, the Tribunal considers this issue of greatest concern, especially as the financial reliability of a builder is generally of great importance to a home buyer.

The fact that the Applicant failed to present any documentary evidence, at the hearing, to counter the Program's concerns about his asset base or financial capabilities left the Tribunal in the position of only being able to consider the Applicant's failure to provide security or finance the closing of his real estate deal with The Hampton Group and also fail to bridge finance his obligations to Finleigh Realty Inc. and to Coldstream Concrete Limited.

Further, when presented with the opportunity to obtain registration through the support of a guarantor (ONHWP letter of August 7, 2002, E3-T16) and then through the provision of requested security (ONHWP letter of October 9, 2002, E3-T18), the Applicant failed to respond in either instance.

The failure or refusal of the builder to provide the security required as a condition of registration places in serious jeopardy the financial ability of the builder to meet its contractual and warranty obligations or to respond to unexpected circumstances.

The evidence and testimony shows that at present, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings as required by s 7(1)(c)(1) of the Act.

In summary, the Tribunal believes the Registrar is entitled to expect and receive complete and credible disclosure of an Applicant's financial details, in complete accordance with the Act, if that Applicant is seeking approval to construct housing which, of necessity, exposes the warranty program to potential liability for claims.

In the absence of an acceptable explanation, failure to provide such disclosure may in itself be capable of constituting reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will not be financially responsible in the conduct of its undertakings.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act to refuse the application for registration.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE

MARIO BELFRUTTO

IN THE MATTER OF the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. M.42 and Regulations, as amended;

AND IN THE MATTER OF an Application by Mario Belfrutto dated December 16, 2002, for a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act appealing the Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, dated December 4, 2002.

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: JORAM GOLD, Agent, representing the Applicant,
Mario Belfrutto

YOVANKA McBEAN, Agent, representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: March 13, 2003 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Mario Belfrutto (the "Applicant") respecting a Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar" and the "Respondent"), dated December 4, 2002.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or to refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") and the regulations?

EXHIBITS:

- Exhibit #1 - Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration dated December 4, 2002, issued by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act;
- Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal received by the Tribunal on December 17, 2002, filed by the Applicant;
- Exhibit #3 - Respondent's Book of Documents; and
- Exhibit #4 - February 26, 2003, letter to Mr. Joram Gold from Ms. Yovanka McBean re s.35 of the Evidence Act.

FACTS:

The evidence on behalf of the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Mary Jane South together with documents introduced through her. The testimony of Mario Belfrutto was the evidence on behalf of the Applicant.

Mary Jane South

Ms. South has been a Deputy Registrar at the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council (OMVIC) since 1997.

In November 2002, the Applicant applied for registration under the Act as a motor vehicle salesperson. The application appears at tab 3 of exhibit 3. Question 9 on the application asks:

Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances, where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered). If yes, list all charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each (attach additional sheets if necessary).

The Applicant checked off No. A note at the bottom of question 9 adds: "Applicants are subject to background and criminal record searches. Submitting a false or incomplete disclosure is an offence under the MVDA and will result in disqualification. Do not assume that convictions are automatically deleted from your record. If you have any questions about the information you must disclose please call OMVIC.

The application for registration under the Act also states in capital letters:

IT IS AN OFFENCE UNDER SECTION 22(1)(A) OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT TO KNOWINGLY PROVIDE FALSE INFORMATION ON THIS APPLICATION.

Above the signature of Mario Belfrutto on the application appears:

I certify that the information provided by the undersigned in support of this application is to the best of my knowledge and belief true.

The Ontario Provincial Police provided a search of the criminal record held in the CPIC Identification Data Banks, page 2 of tab 4 of exhibit 3, which states the following:

NAME:	BELFRUTTO, MARIO
D.O.B:	OCTOBER 31, 1960
DATE & PLACE	CHARGE	DISPOSITION
MAY 23, 1991 TORONTO	ASSAULT SEC 266 CC	SUSP SENT & PROBATION 2 YRS
JUL 13, 1992 TORONTO	TRAFFICKING IN A NARCOTIC (5 CHGS)	5 YRS LESS 1 DAY ON EACH CHG CONC

The Applicant was contacted and he provided a signed letter to Mike Razo of OMVIC dated November 28, 2002, which appears at tab 5 of exhibit 3. That letter says the following:

Please note that I, Mario Belfrutto, am the individual with the positive Criminal record check. I was rushed at the time when filling out my application and didn't thoroughly look at the question "in question". I was under the impression that I had checked off "yes" to the prior conviction question.

My convictions were: Trafficking Narcotics 1992
Assault - 1992.

Mario Belfrutto

Mr. Belfrutto testified that he correctly understood question 9 on his application to become a salesperson under the Act. He stated under oath that he answered question 9 no just to see if it goes through. He added, "Yes, I lied; I know I lied."

Mario Belfrutto also testified that the letter of explanation to OMVIC at tab 5 of exhibit 3 is not true. He stated, "This letter is a lie."

LAW:

The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states the following:

5. (1) An Applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the Applicant, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
- (c) the Applicant is a corporation and,

- (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or
- (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or
- (d) the Applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the Applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

6. (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an Applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the Applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

7. (4) Where an Applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the Application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

22. (1) Every person who, knowingly,

- (a) furnishes false information in any application under this Act or in any statement or return required to be furnished under this Act or the regulations;
- (b) fails to comply with any order, direction or other requirement made under this Act; or
- (c) contravenes any provision of this Act or the regulations, and every director or officer of a corporation who knowingly concurs in such furnishing, failure or contravention is guilty of an offence and on conviction is liable to a fine of not more than $25,000 or to imprisonment for a term of not more than one year, or to both.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Mr. Belfrutto admitted under oath that he lied on his Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, tab 3 of exhibit 3. He knew that he was convicted of offences under the Criminal Code, yet he answered that he had not been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law on the application. The Applicant knowingly furnished false information in an application under the Act contrary to section 22 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

Mr. Belfrutto was advised by OMVIC that a criminal record check revealed convictions against him. In response, Mario Belfrutto wrote an explanation to OMVIC in a letter dated November 28, 2002. Mr. Belfrutto testified that the letter is a lie.

The past conduct of Mario Belfrutto as set out above affords reasonable grounds for the belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, as required by subsection 5(1)(b) of the Act.

According to subsection 6 of the Act, the Registrar may refuse to register an Applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the Applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5. The Registrar's proposal to refuse the Applicant's registrations conforms with subsection 6 of the Act and it is correct and reasonable.

ORDER:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration dated December 4, 2002, to refuse the registrations of Mario Belfrutto under the Act.

DECISION
RELEASED: March 17, 2003

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 14, 2003 to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on March 17, 2003, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated February 19, 2003, and was received by the Tribunal on February 21, 2003, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

- a) Exhibit # 4 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received March 7, 2003

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act (“HTA”) states:

- 50.1(1) “A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason”.

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) “a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

- (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
 - (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended on "Nov. 24, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit # 2.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant had page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared by his physician of "20 years, ...months" Physician #1, on "20/2/03".

Physician #1 indicated under the headings:

"Details and Diagnosis of patient's condition ...29.11.02 – sinusitis & cough
...2.12.02 sinusitis & cough...

History of Condition ...present for 1 week after inhaling dust...

Type of Measurements or recent tests taken with (date indicated): Reference to any pathology tests (e.g. PTF (SIC)) represent important corroboration of your medical opinion) ...clinical diagnosis

Relevant details of last visit and when your patient was last seen? ...last visit 18.02.03...

In a letter dated February 18th, 2003 Physician #1, opines that: "...the above medical conditions can possibly produce coughing on forced expiration..."

The Applicant in a letter dated November 24th, 2002, explained his view of the incident and stated: "...On February 19th, the Judge after examining all the evidence allowed my 'not guilty' plea to stand. He was satisfied that there was enough evidence to allow my 'Not Guilty' plea".

The Applicant explained that he had spent the day clearing a very dusty building and had apparently inhaled a considerable amount of dust. Although the Applicant's eyes were red and watery, the Applicant did not immediately feel any respiratory effects. The Applicant began to cough after being required to force himself to expel a strong breath for the breathalyzer. During the remainder of the night, the Applicant was unable to sleep and continued to cough. The following day the Applicant was advised to go to emergency, but chose not to go until a few days later. Upon his attendance at emergency, the Applicant was diagnosed with sinusitis and prescribed antibiotics. The following Monday the Applicant attended at the office of his family physician and was prescribed an inhaler as well as other medication.

Concluding his testimony in chief, the Applicant restated the comments in his letter to the Tribunal commenting that the judge accepted his plea of not guilty of failing to blow and dismissed the charge against him.

In cross-examination, the Applicant offered further reasons for being required to clean the building, and remarked that he requested the officer to visit the building but she refused.

Being health conscious the Applicant exercises regularly and believes himself to be in exceptionally good health for his age. The Applicant has not in the past suffered from any respiratory illnesses or allergies.

At the hearing, the Applicant detailed the events of the evening prior to his being stopped and the demand to provide a breath sample. The Applicant emphasized that he is aware that the location where he was stopped is well known as a R.I.D.E. programme site, and noted that had he wanted to, he could have avoided the locale by taking another route.

The Applicant confirmed that he was given eight attempts to provide a sample but was unable to do so.

The Applicant did not immediately begin to cough, after inhaling the dust. Approximately ten hours later, during the breathalyzer test the Applicant had a bad coughing spell. The cough got progressively worse and the Applicant felt compelled to go to emergency. During his visit to his family physician, Physician #1 assessed the hospital's diagnosis as correct but also found the Applicant's lungs to be congested. The Applicant subsequently developed pneumonia. Further, the Applicant testified that his physician also implied that the dust incident might have triggered allergies as the immune system had been weakened.

In closing, the Applicant stressed that he has perfect driving record, that he was behaving responsibly by not allowing his friend to drive, and that he could have avoided the R.I.D.E. programme.

The Applicant recapped his previous remarks that he was unaware of his condition until he visited his physician, at which time he was told that he had sinusitis and a "bronchial infection which to this day ...suffering from...".

The Applicant concluded by suggesting that he was a victim of circumstances and asked the Tribunal to afford him the benefit of the doubt.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed February 24th, 2003
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed February 21st, 2003
3. Copy of Vehicle Record, sealed February 21st, 2003

The Respondent's Representative called Police Officer #1, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police as a witness.

Police Officer #1 described the events that transpired after the Applicant was stopped and demanded a breath sample.

According to Police Officer #1 the Applicant's eyes were "...quite red and watery..." The Applicant was cooperative at all times but visibly nervous and asking several questions as to the consequences of a high reading.

Police Officer #1 described each of the eight attempts made by the Applicant to provide a breath sample. While the Applicant was attempting to provide a breath sample, Police Officer #1 noticed that air was escaping out of the sides of the Applicant's mouth as it appeared that the Applicant "...had not formed a complete seal over the mouthpiece...". Since insufficient air was entering the device, the machine indicated an error reading.

During the third attempt, the Applicant "...began coughing ...this coughing then went on for approximately the next five minutes. He was coughing uncontrollably ...noticed that he was burping and gagging and a lot of coughing of and burping.... The Applicant was allowed a further five opportunities to provide a sample but failed to do so.

Police Officer #1 pointed out that the Applicant did not cough during the “...twenty minutes...” that he spent in the presence of Police Officer #1 after the breathalyzer test, nor did he request medical assistance.

The Applicant in cross-examining Police Officer #1 alluded to Police Officer #1’s notes, focusing on her reference to the Applicant’s “...red rimmed watery eyes...”. The Applicant also questioned the number of attempts routinely administered during a breathalyzer session, in contrast to the number of attempts he was permitted.

Police Officer #1 emphatically clarified that she did not agree to the Applicant’s request to visit the building in question, as it was not her job to do so.

Under questioning by the Applicant, Police Officer #1 confirmed that there are options that can be exercised in the event an Applicant is physically hurt and not being able to provide a breath sample. Nonetheless, Police Officer #1 felt that Applicant’s circumstances did not warrant such measures.

In her closing remarks, the Respondent’s Representative asserted that it is the Registrar’s position that sinusitis is not sufficient medical grounds to substantiate the Applicant’s appeal. According to the Respondent’s Representative, the Applicant had no intention to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant’s medical report does not link the illness, in this case sinusitis, to the Applicant’s ability to provide a breath sample. There are no respiratory test or pulmonary measurement tests results to show the Applicant’s lung capacity.

The Respondent’s Representative lay emphasis on the fact that the Applicant waited to have his case dismissed in Judicial Court prior to appealing. Ms. Neuwirth pointed out that these proceedings are different from the actions undertaken in the Judicial Courts and asked that Tribunal not be influenced by the Judicial Court’s decision to dismiss the “Refuse to Provide a Breath Sample – Approved Screening Device s. 254 (5) CC” charge laid against the Applicant.

In conclusion the Respondent’s Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar’s decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding reflects a summary of the proceedings. Evidence introduced not directly germane to the issue was not transcribed.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the issue alluded to by the Applicant regarding blood samples.

While subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained “...by an analysis of the person’s breath sample or blood taken...”, the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. As no such signs were present, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The issue is not whether the Applicant was impaired, had been drinking, or expressed a vocal refusal to provide a breath sample. The subject of this appeal is whether the Applicant had a medical condition that at the time, could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Respondent’s Representative insists the Applicant’s failure to comply with the breath demand was not due to a medical condition, but that the Applicant simply had no intention to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal disagrees. The Tribunal must accept Physician #2’s and Physician #1’s diagnosis as incontrovertible evidence, which cannot be ignored. Physician #2 examined the Applicant at emergency in the District Hospital, a few days after the incident, and found him to be suffering from: “...sinusitis...”. The Applicant’s physician, Physician #1 confirmed the sinusitis and further diagnosed lung congestion which, subsequently deteriorated into full blown pneumonia. There is no doubt that the Applicant, albeit not aware at the time, was in fact in the process of contracting a serious lung infection.

The Tribunal is satisfied with the Applicant’s justification for waiting a few days before going to emergency. According to the Applicant, Physician #1, the Applicant’s family physician was away, although advised to go to emergency immediately, the Applicant decided to wait and see if the condition would improve. The Applicant has now consulted his physician on several occasions as he continues to be treated for the condition.

The Respondent’s Representative maintains that the medical reports do not connect the condition to the Applicant’s failure to provide a breath sample. Thus, in order to assess whether the Applicant's condition prevented the Applicant from providing a breath sample, the Tribunal considered the viva voce evidence of the Applicant and Police Officer #1.

The Applicant's testimony that he began to cough upon being forced to exhale into the device is unequivocally supported by Police Officer #1, who testified that during the third attempt to provide a sample the Applicant "...began coughing ...this coughing then went on for approximately the next five minutes. He was coughing uncontrollably ...noticed that he was burping and gagging and a lot of coughing of and burping..."

Further, Police Officer #1's observations of the Applicant's eyes being "...quite red and watery..." is consistent with the possible allergy symptoms resulting from the Applicant's contact with the dust.

Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated November 24, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: MARCH 4, 2003

DECISION RELEASED: MARCH 10, 2003 HAMILTON

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 4, 2003, at Hamilton, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Hoi Thi Lai (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	Toyota Camry, plate ANYN 450 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	February 13, 2003

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on March 4, 2003 and proceeded as oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I need the car to go to work to Toronto.

I asked Nop Sarann to se his licens befor I lend him the car, he told me he dint have them with him, that they wer at his hoose. He then said that ones I get the car, I will go get my licenc at home. So I said macke shure. [sic]

In her oral evidence Ms. Hoi stated that Mr.Savann, who is the friend of a friend wanted to borrow the car to go to pick up his girlfriend. She claimed that she asked him whether he had a valid driver's license, and that his response was in the affirmative.

She said that she works as a cook in a Vietnamese restaurant at Highway Seven and Markham. She normally works from Wednesday through Sunday, but has only been able to go to work on Saturday and Sunday.

She admitted that she also owns a 1993 Dodge Minivan, but said that it is presently being used by her sister who works in Dundas. She advised that she is unable to use the car during the week because her sister leaves for work at 5.00 a.m., and she has to be at home to prepare her 9-year old son for school She moved from Montreal to Hamilton approximately one year ago, and has no friends in Hamilton who could assist her in getting her son to school.

When asked whether she had explored the possibility of using the GO Bus to get to Markham, Ms. Hoi declared that she did not know how to use the Bus, and had not made any effort to learn.

Ms. Hoi is presently losing three days wages of approximately $240.00, and she says that her employer has warned her that he will have to let her go if she does not find a way to get to work during the week. Her sister assists with the monthly expenses, Ms. hoi pointed out that they also have to send money to their parents in Vietnam and that loss of wages will constitute a hardship for both herself and her parents.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Nop Sarann;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of dangerous driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until May 23, 2005.
5. The Registrar stated that not having use of the car did not pose a threat to the health and safety of either Ms. Hoi or her son. The financial loss, while significant could be solved if Ms. Hoi would find a way to juggle schedules with her sister. It might be easier for her sister to get to Dundas by public transport while Ms. Hoi uses the van.
6. In any event getting to Markham by Go Bus while inconvenient is not very difficult.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the issue filed the evidence established that Ms. Hoi does have immediate access to a second automobile. The Dodge Minivan is registered in her name. She has demonstrated that she has made any effort to discuss with her sister means by which they could solve their transportation problem. It is also very apparent that Ms. Hoi has not explored any other means of getting to work other than by using her car. The Go Bus is a viable alternative which has not been considered.

Since an alternative to the impounded motor vehicle exists, The Tribunal cannot consider subsection 22(1)(a) and (b); threat to health and safety, nor can it consider subsection 22(2): inconvenience, financial or economic loss, loss of employment or of education.

The only other person immediately affected is Ms. Hoi's son, who is seen to school by her. Although the applicant, whose English is unfortunately poor, and who seemed to be unfamiliar with the accessibility of public transportation has experienced some inconvenience and financial loss, there is no evidence before the Tribunal to indicate that she has experienced exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of her automobile as defined by the Act or the regulations.

The Applicant does have a claim against the suspended driver for her financial loss and expenses pursuant to subsection 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is the subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.
