The Program took the position that the amounts claimed under this heading were dealt with in the Amendment, which incorporated the terms of the October 14 letter and that the delayed closing claim was thereby satisfied.

In support of this position, the Program also argued that by closing pursuant to the terms of the Amendment and accepting the consideration of the $1,000 abatement in the purchase price, the Applicants accepted those terms. In addition, the Program argued that it was the Applicants who first threatened to terminate the APS, that the Applicants were the first party to threaten litigation, that they had legal advice throughout, that there is no evidence of coercion, that there was no communication between counsel that the sale was being closed under protest, that there were negotiations over two weeks between both sides, and finally that there was no immediate rescission but rather an acceptance of the offered abatement. The Program further argued that there were options open to the Applicant, such as closing in accordance with the original APS and claiming under the Act for deficiencies. There was a signed Certificate of Completion indicating to the Program that the home was acceptable for occupancy.

In response, the Applicants argued that as with other items covered by the Amendment, the fact that the deck and gazebo were not built by the date required by the Amendment rendered the Amendment of no force or effect, thus allowing them to claim for compensation under the Act. In the alternative, the Applicants argued that the Amendment is of no force and effect as it was entered into under duress. As indicated above, the Tribunal rejects the duress argument.

The evidence shows that the original closing date agreed to by the parties was not met, and the Vendor did not extend that closing date in the manner provided in the Act and Regulation 892 under the Act.

It was open to the parties prior to closing to amend the date of closing set out in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale to a specific new closing date, but this was not done in the Amendment or the October 14 letter.

As to any claim for delay, the October 14 letter makes its most particular reference to delay in item 7 in that letter:

7. In the event that the foregoing is not completed with the purchase price abated, the purchasers would seek the following:

Reimbursement for 9,250.00 for delay compensation, storage, shelter, food and the agreement of purchase and sale terminated and at an end.

Item 7 was the alternative to the Vendor not accepting responsibility to do items 1 through 6, in which case item 7 would apply. However, the transaction did close, items 1 through 6 were incorporated by reference into the Amendment, and item 7 was not incorporated by reference and is not part of the Amendment. Accordingly, item 7 does not foreclose the Applicants making a delayed closing claim. Even if the parties had tried to waive a delayed closing claim by specific agreement prior to closing, the Tribunal would have to consider that such an attempt would offend section 13(6) of the Act which states:

13(6) The warranties set out in (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon.

However, the Amendment did not incorporate item 7 of the October 14 letter, and there is no agreement to waive a delayed closing claim.

The claim for delayed closing not being incorporated into the Amendment, the Applicants may make that claim under the Act. There is no dispute that there was considerable delay past the closing date set out in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. The Program did not contest that if a delayed closing claim were successful, the amount of that claim would be the maximum allowed under the Act of $5,000, which the Tribunal finds is the quantum for delayed closing to which the Applicants are entitled under the Act.

2. Sod

The Applicants contended that more of the area around the house should have been sodded and not merely seeded.

The APS states in schedule E under the title “1. Land Treatment”,

Front sides and rear seeded where disturbed by construction. Remaining area to remain natural. Septic tank area will be sodded.
...

Over the word “seeded” is handwritten the word “sodded”. The schedule indicates that the septic tank was to be sodded, and the Tribunal finds the handwritten “sodded” was to apply to the areas disturbed by construction. The evidence is that only a 12-foot strip around the house and over the septic tank was sodded, not all areas disturbed by grading.

The Program argued that a breach of the APS is not equivalent to a breach of a warranty under the Act. Also, the Program’s warranty representative, Ms. Lumley, stated in her testimony that the definition of “home” in the Act does not include lawn. The Applicants may be able to sue the Vendor under the APS for this shortcoming, but they could not look to the Program for redress.

The Applicants argued that a “home” under the Act should be considered that which is bargained for in an agreement of purchase and sale. As consumer protection legislation, the Act should be viewed as protection for purchasers of new “homes” against the defaults of Vendors, and warranty protection against those defaults should extend to those things which an ordinary purchaser would view as included in his bargain for a “home”. This protection should apply not only to the bricks and mortar but also to the landscaping. In response to the Applicants’ reference to the cases of Thomas James Williams [1998] C.R.A.T. and Julie Kent [1998] C.R.A.T. to support of the Applicants’ position that sod is a item covered by warranty, the Program argued that these cases do not stand for this proposition because the definition of home was not in the analysis. Section 1 of the Act defines “home” as:

“home” means,

(b) a self-contained one-family dwelling, detached or attached to one or more others by common wall, and includes any structure or appurtenance used in conjunction therewith, but does not include a dwelling built and sold for occupancy for temporary periods or for seasonal purposes;

The Tribunal does not agree that sod is necessarily excluded from the definition of a home where the particular facts of a matter support the finding that sod is an appurtenance used in connection with the home. However, it is not necessary to decide this point in this case because the status of the sod was covered by the Amendment.

The October 14 letter includes a relief from this obligation by the Vendor as the letter states in item 6 b), “The area completely sodded”. This item being covered by the October 14 letter, the parties amended their Purchase and Sale Agreement to provide that the condition of the sodding, although inadequate in the Applicants’ view, was the condition that the Vendor was to deliver to the Applicants on closing. That being done, there is no breach of warranty and the Applicants’ claim in this respect is dismissed.

3. Porch

The Applicants claim respecting the porch consists of not only the porch itself but also the pillars on the porch.

The Program’s position with both aspects of this claim was that the claim is not warranted. The evidence is that the cement porch called for in the APS would cost $600.00 and that prior to closing Mr. Marshall gave the Applicants $600.00 in lieu of that obligation so that the Applicants could make their own arrangements with respect to the porch. The Applicants cashed Marshall’s cheque.

The Tribunal did not have sufficient evidence before it to conclude that there was a breach of warranty with respect to the porch, and the Applicants’ claim with respect to the porch is therefore dismissed.

As to the two pillars, the Applicants' claim is that the two pillars do not match in size, and that the difference in size is significant.

The Program argued that the work on the pillars was done by the contractor, JAM, as the Applicants' contractor, not the Vendor's, and that such work was therefore not warranted under section 13(2)(a) of the Act. Mr. Marshall, of JAM, testified that his company did not do this work but that two masons hired by Mr. Hoffman did this work. The Tribunal finds that persons working for the Vendor did this work and the exception under section 13(2)(a) does not apply.

The diagram of the home set out in Schedule "G" to the APS indicates two pillars of similar size. The Program's warranty representative was of the opinion that as this stone was a "natural" product, there were going to be variations. The Program's warranty representative felt that while one pillar was built slightly smaller than the other, this variation was unavoidable and therefore, not warrantable.

The Tribunal did not hear expert evidence with respect to the workmanship of the pillars. However, a difference in dimensions is not denied, and the difference is apparent from the photographs accepted as evidence and that difference in size is not insignificant. The Tribunal is not prepared to conclude that the use of "natural" products with unavoidable variations inevitably forecloses a breach of warranty claim respecting the apparent differences in the size of the pillars. To proceed in a workmanlike manner, a person should have balanced the irregularities found in such pillars to select those with symmetry. With regard to the front pillars, the Tribunal finds that these are unacceptably asymmetrical and must be brought into balance in terms of their overall dimensions. Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that there has been a breach of the warranty under subsection 13(a)(i) requiring that the home be constructed in a workmanlike manner, and the porch pillars should be replaced with pillars of the same size.

4. Tree Cutting

The Applicants complained of trees being felled and taken away for rendering into firewood without compensation. Also, they complained that a large tree was damaged and as a result of the damage now represents a threat of falling on the house. Also, the Applicants stated that there are dead trees that require cutting. The Program argued that these are not warranted claims, as trees do not fall within the scope of "home" under section 1 of the Act.

The Tribunal heard no expert opinion to confirm a threat to the home from root damage to the tree referred to by the Applicants or to identify which trees were those identified in Schedule "H" to the APS as "Tall (unhealthy, rotten) trees to be cut and rendered into chord wood." Further, the Tribunal cannot conclude on the facts that this aspect of the agreement between the parties is within the definition of a "home" under the Act. Accordingly, this aspect of the Applicant's claim under the Act is dismissed.

5. Construction Debris

The Applicants complained of trees that were felled and not cleared away. The Program took the position that this was an item covered by the Amendment since the October 14 letter referred to "The remaining area to be cleared of debris and rendered presentable."

The Tribunal finds that such trees, which were to be cleared away, would be debris and is covered under the October 14 letter. Accordingly, the Tribunal dismisses this aspect of the Applicants' claim.

6. Walstone at 2nd Bedroom Window

The Applicants' Notice of Appeal indicates that this matter is not appealed and is not before this Tribunal.

7. Exterior Paint

The October 14 letter in item 6 b) refers to, "All outside doors painted according to the Schedules and the purchasers' instructions to the Builder." This being an item incorporated into the Amendment, the Applicants' claim respecting this matter is dismissed.

8. Interior Paint

The October 14 letter in item 6 a) refers to "The trim and walls to be repaired and painted." This being an item incorporated into the Amendment, the Applicants' claim in this matter is dismissed.

9. Fireplace

The Applicants' Notice of Appeal indicates that this matter is not appealed, and is not before this Tribunal.

10. Bathroom Shower Faucet

The Applicants' Notice of Appeal indicates that this matter is not appealed, and is not before this Tribunal.

11. Ceiling Height of Basement

The evidence is that the height of the basement is not 8 feet but 7 feet 7 inches. The height of the basement ceiling is item 1 in the October 14 letter.

1. As a result of the reduction in the constructed basement ceiling height to 7'7" instead of 8' compensation should be paid at 5%=$18,212.50, as an abatement to the purchase price.

This being an item incorporated into the Amendment, the Applicants' claim respecting this matter is dismissed.

12. Cold Cellar

"Cold cellar in basement as shown on Plan" is listed in Schedule E under "Interior Appointments".

A cold cellar was built by enclosing the north side indentation of the basement wall during the month of October. The Applicants said that cold cellar should have been built under the front porch but was not. There is no evidence that there were defects in work or material respecting this cold cellar.

The cold cellar is item 2 in the October 14 letter. This being an item incorporated into the Amendment, the Applicants' claim respecting this matter is dismissed.

13. Master Bedroom Windows

The Applicants claim the loss of operable windows for the Master Bedroom.

The Vendor admits substituting a larger or Garden double door and no windows on the outside wall of the master bedroom for a single door with the two adjacent windows specified in the plans.

This is not one of the items listed in the October 14 letter from the Applicant's solicitors to the Vendor as requiring correction prior to closing and is, therefore, not covered by the Amendment.

The Program argued that there was not improper substitution under sections 18 or 19 of Regulation 892. The Program also argued that the compensation received by the installation of the door and sidelights is more than adequate compensation. The Vendor's evidence was that the price of the actual installation is higher than the one contracted for, indicating prices of $400 for single door windows with 30% more for operable windows and $1,200 for a Garden door. The Program also argued that there is not defect in work or materials or violation of the Ontario Building Code.

The Tribunal agrees with the Applicants' argument that they bargained for windows capable of being opened at night, that this function was valuable to the Applicants and that this was lost by the Vendor's substitution. In the circumstances, the Tribunal finds that the substitution was not of equal or better quality. The Applicants received a door, which ordinarily would be taken into account as an offset, however its installation does not fully compensate for the fact that the windows cannot be opened at night. The operable window function was not equaled by the substitution. The best evidence before the Tribunal of the differential in price between operable and non-operable windows in the Master bedroom is $400.00 in total, which the Tribunal directs the Program to pay to the Applicants in satisfaction of this aspect of their claims.

14. Brickwork

The Program's Decision letter of April 24, 2001 also stated that brickwork was "Warranted in part". The Applicants required different remedial work than that proposed by the Program.

The Program agreed that this was a warranted item due to poor workmanship under 13(1)(a), stating:

"the brickwork on the west wall of the house is wavy. This represents poor workmanship and is therefore a breach of section 13(1)(a) of the Act."

The Applicants complained that the bricked wall had a wavy appearance. It also was unattractive due to different colours of mortar being used, which showed up as a patchwork of uneven lines. The May 19 conciliation inspection carried out by the warranty representative, Ms. Lumley, on May 19, 2000 indicated the following with regard to this item:

"The complaint relates to the brickwork on the west side of the house and on the south wall between the front entrance and the garage.....on the south wall, the mortar joints were about 1 inch wide around the windows and about ¾ inch elsewhere. There were minor colour variations in the mortar, which were only visible close up, there was a section of brickwork, which was wavy and had mortar colour variations noticeable from a moderate distance. The section is located halfway up the south west corner and is about 5 feet by 3 feet."

In her testimony, Ms Lumley stated that it was the intention of the Program to have the depth of the mortar changed to eliminate the wavy look to the wall. She stated that after consultation with a bricklayer, the Program decided that "repointing" of the mortar was the best solution. She went on to say that any such repairs would be reinspected to ensure that a proper fix had been accomplished.

Mr. Montemurro testified for the Program with regard to the quality of the brickwork. He himself was not a mason but ran a large masonry-contracting firm. He in essence found the job to be up to industry standards. There could be variations in mortar due to differences in the sand or moisture content; as well, the stone used on the house was "stone brick", a tumbled product that had deliberately non-uniform dimensions. This design was employed to give a "natural" look to the wall on which it was applied. These variations were up to 1/8 to ¼ inch and could give the illusion of curves in the wall. He was not questioned on how actual differences could give an "illusion".

The Tribunal finds that the brickwork is defective in that approximately 15 square feet of the wall does not appear to be flat. It was not established, however, that the bricks themselves were not laid in the appropriate straight lines. The Tribunal did not hear expert evidence to establish the most appropriate means of remedying this defect. On the evidence available, The Tribunal orders that the Program have repointed the 15 square fee of the brick wall that is in issue.

15. Decks and Gazebo

Under the amended agreement, the Applicants were to get a deck and gazebo from the Vendor although the Vendor's liability for lumber was not to exceed $1,000. The Vendor made its $1,000 payment by a $1,000 abatement in the purchase price. The Vendor has not provided the deck and gazebo. The Vendor indicated that this was not done because the Applicants made a claim under the Act, which was contrary to the Amendment. Accordingly, there is no dispute that the deck and gazebo were not done as set out in the Amendment.

The Tribunal therefore orders the Program to have the agreed deck and gazebo constructed pursuant to the agreed renderings, provided however that the Applicants must pay the cost of the lumber required in that construction.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Homes Warranty Plan Act, the Tribunal makes the following order:

1. The following claims of the Applicants are allowed on the terms set out below:
 - (a) The Program shall pay to the Applicants $5,000.00 for delayed closing;
 - (b) The Program shall arrange for the installation of two porch pillars of the same size and in the style provided in the agreement of purchase and sale between the Vendor and the Applicants;
 - (c) The Program shall pay to the Applicants $400.00 for substitution of non-operable windows for operable windows in the Master Bedroom;
 - (d) The Program shall arrange for repointing of the mortar in the 15 square feet of the brick wall on the west wall of the Applicants' home that is the subject of their claim;
 - (e) The Program shall arrange to have the agreed deck and gazebo constructed pursuant to the agreed renderings, provided however that the Applicants must pay the cost of the lumber required in the construction.
2. Work that is to be attended to by the Program shall be completed within nine months of the date of the release of this order and the payment of money shall be made within 60 days of the date of the release of this order.

3. The balance of the Applicants claims herein are dismissed.

DATES OF

HEARING: October 22 - 26, 2001, February 5, 2002

OTTAWA

REASONS AND DECISION

BACKGROUND:

This matter comes before the Tribunal by way of a Notice of Appeal of Michael Erland (the "Applicant") filed pursuant to the right of Appeal granted to the Applicant by section 16(2) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Act R.S.O. 1990 chapter 31 (the "Act"). The appeal is from a decision of the Respondent, the Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("the Program") contained in a Decision Letter issued by the Program and dated December 21, 2000.

The new home in question was bought pursuant to an Agreement of Purchase and Sale ("APS") dated August 30, 1999 with a closing date of March 31, 2000.

After difficulties surrounding the signing of the Certificate of Completion and Inspection, possession was taken on April 3, 2000. On that date, the Applicant sought activation of the New Home Warranty protection for a list of items. The Program in the usual course passed these complaints on to the Vendor for action. After correspondence about the outstanding items, the owner requested conciliation. The conciliation form submitted listed a total of 65 items for which the owner wanted review. That document was duly passed on to the builder. The builder met with the representative of the owner, Mr. Napiorkowski, as the owner was out of town. Their attempts at reconciliation were only partially successful and an inspection by the Program took place on September 27, 2000 leading to the issuance of a Conciliation Inspection Report dated September 29. The homeowner was present at the time of the inspection.

The builder responded to the conciliation report but there were continuing complaints, and the owner was not satisfied with the classification of some of the complained of items being non warrantable under the Act. By October 2000, the owner was contemplating an appeal. By the end of November, it had become obvious that the owner was not satisfied with the responses from the Program and the builder. By facsimile of December 3, 2000, the Applicant asked the Program for a decision letter with regard to the outstanding items against which he wished to launch an appeal. The Program issued its Decision letter of December 21, 2000 and a Supplementary Decision Letter dated January 10, 2001.

During the hearing, several items were agreed to and settled.

The hearing took place with all parties represented save for the final day. The Applicant's representative chose not to appear for the final day of hearing despite having received proper notice.

ISSUES:

The sole issue in this adjudication is whether the items complained of fall within the warranty provisions of the Act.

EVIDENCE:

The numbering of the items below follows the numbering in the Program's decision letter and supplementary decision letter.

The Applicant did not attend at the hearing. Mr. Napiorkowski gave evidence on behalf of the Applicant. Although from his testimony it was obvious that he had some familiarity with the construction of homes, Mr. Napiorkowski offered no other evidence as to his credentials.

#3 "Cannot connect dryer vent to wall vent":

It would appear from the evidence that the Applicant had a European appliance installed which had, due to its larger dimensions the need for a larger pan to be placed underneath it. Because of the installation of a pan which accommodated smaller North American appliances, the fitting were affected. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale does not stipulate oversized appliances and the Program's view is that a North American builder would logically build openings to accommodate the smaller North American dimensions unless advised otherwise. The builder offered to build a bigger pan but the offer was refused. A fix, according to the builder would be in the range of $50.00.

The Program argues that the item was not warranted. The Program submitted that the vent was connected and the complaint does not represent a defect in materials or workmanship or a violation of the Ontario Building Code.

An inspection was carried out on behalf of the builder by a Mr. Chiarelli, who is a professional engineer. He has a degree in engineering, from 1962 and 36 years of consulting work. On this basis, the Tribunal found him qualified to give expert testimony. His inspection was carried out on April 24, 2001. He testified that the dryer connection was operational and that there was no reason the washing machine could not operate normally. His conclusions were based upon his observation rather than testing.

The Program argued that a modification to the APS would have been accommodated had the builder been informed of the non-standard appliance size. In any event, the builder offered to fix the problem with a modified pan, and the Applicant refused.

#4: Inadequate space for washing machine hose cannot be installed:

The Program informed the Applicant that in fact the hose was connected. Also, because the underpan was too small, the connection could not be perfectly completed or the machine properly leveled. The Program's position is that these concerns are matters of design and are not covered by warranty. It was argued by the Program that all these complaints come about or are traceable to the undersized pan and that is an issue beyond the scope of the warranty protection offered by the Act.

The builder's inspector Mr. Chiarelli concluded from his inspection that the taps were working. The top of the of the drain pipe is held in position with wood blocking and is not hindering the flow of water.

#6 Squash Blocks not installed under load bearing walls:

The Applicant stated that this deficiency represented a breach of the Ontario Building Code (the "OBC"). The Program stated that there was the requisite blocking installed and therefore the complaint has been resolved.

Mr. Chiarelli agreed with the Program's position. There was perhaps confusion about when the blocks were installed. It appears they were installed between the time of the observations of the Applicant's representative and when Mr. Chiarelli became involved on April 24. Mr. Chiarelli examined the drawings for the substructure and concluded that the blocking was installed as required.

#7 I-Beam end support is not adequate:

In the Notice of Appeal, the Applicant's representative asserted that the supporting structure to the beams did not conform to the OBC. On cross-examination he stated he agreed with the findings of Mr. Chiarelli that:

"...the support of the main I-Beam at the east end is a built up wood column of 3-2x6 members nailed together with two of the members bearing on the concrete slab directly over the footing location and one bearing directly on the wall. The support at the west end is a built up wood column of 3-2x6 bearing on the concrete slab directly over the footing location. The supports are adequate and no remedial action is necessary."

The Program argued that there was nothing left to rule upon regarding this item.

#8 Load bearing wall compressing floor downward. Floor is not level. Inadequate I-Beam support, floor compressing downward:

The finding of the Program, concurred in by Mr. Chiarelli, was that solid blocking had been installed under the load bearing wall down to the I-Beam which is supported at each end by wooden columns. The deflection in the floor was found to be 7mm over four feet or within industry and the Program's standards.

Mr. Chiarelli testified that the deflection was so minor it could not be noticed. The conclusion was that there being no defect in workmanship, the item was not warrantable under the Act

#9 Several floor joists are not straight:

On the first inspection by the Program there were several floor joists that were not straight. Repairs were completed to correct these misalignments by the addition of blocking or additional joists. These repairs were inspected by Mr. Chiarelli and found to be satisfactory. The Program concurred.

It was not clear to the Tribunal that the Applicant's representative had seen the repairs which were done after his initial visit.

#36 Water leaking behind brick stop over back door:

The Applicant stated that water was entering the house around the brickwork of the back door. The Program's representative inspected the area and found no evidence of water damage. The only explanation that there may have been leakage was the entry into the house of a television cable which may have allowed water to run down its length and enter the house. As there was no evidence of damage or defect in workmanship on the part of the builder, the Program denied the claim. The lack of evidence of water penetration was concurred in by Mr. Chiarelli.

#38 Crack in concrete basement floor:

The issue regarding this item is whether the crack was the result of normal shrinkage or represents a defect in workmanship. Normal shrinkage does not give rise to warrantable claims as it is specifically excluded by section 13(2) of the Act.

Mr. Chiarelli testified that this shrinkage showed no vertical displacement on opposite sides of the crack. This was evidence to him that the crack was the result of shrinkage. He went on to say that cracks exceeding 5 mm are excessive. His measurement of the present crack was 2 to 4 mms. Concrete basement slabs do not constitute an element of structural integrity and imperfections in them do not lead to structural weakness. The Program argued that the size of this crack falls under the exclusions in the Act. The crack was repaired and photographs were provided.

The Applicant's representative felt repairs were inadequate.

#40 Gas furnace air intake is without a screen.

Photographs were provided showing a screen over the intake on top of the furnace. The Program's representative explained that the furnace would shut off if the intake somehow became blocked. There was some confusion as to whether the original complaint was with regard to the outside intake and not the intake on top of the furnace. In such case there would be a complaint without a decision.

#41 Rear balcony not secured directly to wall structure:

The Applicant's representative objected to connecting bolts going through the vinyl siding as there would be the possibility of moisture penetration. There was no evidence given of any lack of integrity to the connection. The Program's witness testified that the connection was with ½ inch lag bolts 16 inches on center, that there was no evidence of moisture penetration or of Ontario Building Code violations or of defects in workmanship or materials. The Program argued that there was no allowable warranty claim. Photographs were provided showing the bolted attachment.

Mr. Chiarelli conducted an inspection and could find no remedial action as being necessary.

#42 Vertical posts and handrail not secured properly:

This claim was previously covered under warranty at the time of conciliation. An engineering firm was consulted and an attachment installed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code was drawn up. The Applicant's representative at the time of his inspection found the attachment not in accordance with the repair suggested.

Mr. Chiarelli suggested that the attachments be tightened, and the evidence is that they were so tightened.

#47 Upper kitchen cupboards not lined up with lower cupboards.

The Applicant's representative stated that he could see a difference in the alignment across the top of the kitchen cabinets.

The Program's witness stated that the upper cabinets in question had the same dimension from the top of the counter to the underside of the uppers. Any misalignment was the result in a slight deflection on the ceiling towards the left end of the upper cabinets and was not the result of installation workmanship. Photographs were produced. The difference according to the Program was not noticeable and there was no structural implication in the difference. As the difference was considered minimal, the Program did not consider the difference poor workmanship and did not consider the claim warrantable.

#48 Incoming water line and waste lines are located 5 feet from foundation. Prime development space destroyed:

The Program refused warranty coverage on this item as there was no defect in workmanship or materials and no breach of the Ontario Building Code. The basement is an unfinished area in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. The area in question was measured by Mr. Chiarelli and found to be 1200 mm. A photograph showed a tape measure beside the pipe at 44 inches. It was the position of the Program that this siting of pipes cannot be ascertained accurately prior to construction in that there may be reasons that pipes are located due to by-law restrictions and the Ontario Building Code. There was nothing specified in the APS that the pipes were to be a certain distance in from the wall. The Program therefore argued that there was no improper workmanship and no claim in warranty.

#49 Ceramic floor uneven with a gap at molding:

The Program's position, concurred in by Mr. Chiarelli, was that the "unevenness" amounted to $\frac{1}{4}$ inch in 48 and that the tiny gap between the molding and the tile was probably due to either shrinking of the molding or unavoidable variations in the surface of the tiles and did not amount to a defect in workmanship. A photograph of the area was supplied. The Program denied warranty coverage as the gap was within its standards and due to normal shrinkage.

#50 Molding trim at base of stairs done poorly:

The Program examined the complaint and found a slight difference in color between the shoe molding at floor level and the staircase riser. The Program found this slight colour difference acceptable and thereby could find no breach of workmanship upon which to base a warranty claim. A photograph was produced.

The Tribunal, while recognizing the difficulty in showing such a difference in a picture, could see no appreciable colour variation. It is clear that the builder tried to match the colour of the boards but on different boards there is going to be some difference when staining wood due to pieces of wood, even from the same tree, having individual characteristics such as absorption rates and grain patterns.

#58 The floor at the right hand side of the fireplace drops in excess of 1 inch to the corner. Squash blocks not used under bearing wall:

The Applicant's representative felt the deflection in the floor was noticeable.

The Program measured the deflection in the floor to be 1/8 to 3/16 inches over 48 inches and therefore within standards and not ordinarily noticeable. Squash blocking was installed under the area in question.

Mr. Chiarelli concurred in the Program's findings and felt no further remedial action was required.

#60 The steel columns in the basement are bent under compression. Some are not set level, one is set at 12 foot beam spans and all others are set at 15 and 16 foot spans.. Footing sizes may be inadequate:

The Applicant's position was that an engineer should review the installation and certify any remedial action. An inspection by both the Program's representative and Mr. Chiarelli found that there were no bent columns. Two of the columns were slightly off-vertical. There were no problems found with the footings. With regard to the space between the columns, the builder installed additional columns in the affected areas.

In view of Mr. Chiarelli's expertise, where there is a conflict between that of Mr. Chiarelli and that of the Applicant's witnesses, the Tribunal prefers the evidence of Mr. Chiarelli.

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act provides as follows:

13(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,
(a) that the home

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code,

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations

13(2) A warranty under subsection 1 does not apply in respect of,

(d) Normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction

14(1) Where

....

(b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty,

.....

The person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is upon the Applicants to prove the existence of a breach of warranty under the Act.

In the present case, the Tribunal has examined the available evidence and with regard to all of the listed items and finds the submissions on behalf of the Program more compelling than those of the Applicant. In the instances where there were grounds for complaint, the evidence is to the effect that remedial work was satisfactorily carried out.

The Tribunal in hearing the evidence took into account the argument by the Program that perfection is not the standard by which warranty claims must be assessed. The term “workmanlike” as used in the legislation can only, in the opinion of the Tribunal, be usefully employed as a criterion if applied against either recognized standards or in their absence common sense.

Counsel for the Program referred the Tribunal to the case of Breen [1999] O.C.R.A.T.D. No 86 for guidance on the issue of perfection as a standard to be applied. The Tribunal in that case referred to an earlier decision of the Tribunal, Mark Teitelman (1987) 16 CRAT 178 which contained the following finding:

“The Teitelmans were not the authors of the defects and the Tribunal understands that they are a constant source of irritation to them. However, they must accept the fact that no house new or old is perfect or is warranted to be perfect. Floors and stairs will squeak, wood will shrink and warp, cracks will appear and paint will peel. All that can be expected is to keep these imperfections at reasonable acceptable levels. The limited warranty provided by the Ontario New Home Warranties Act recognized these facts, and this Tribunal is obligated to make findings in accordance with the statutory provisions and not otherwise.”

In the Teitelman case, the Tribunal also held that the builder had gone to some considerable lengths to correct deficiencies. In the present case the evidence is to the effect that the builder attempted to satisfy the purchaser but was unable to.

Obviously one person’s observation about perfection will differ from that of another. Any attempt to refine the difference between perfection and workmanlike would necessarily drift into the realm of the subjective and be unhelpful as a grounds for mediation.

Once it has been established that an item has passed the test of “workmanlike” in terms of its suitability as part of a completed home, it falls outside of the warranty provisions of the Act.

DECISION AND ORDER:

The Tribunal having heard the evidence and reviewed the law and authorities agrees with the submission of the Program that the listed items have either been completed in a workmanlike manner or have been otherwise satisfactorily dealt with by the Program. Accordingly, there remain no grounds upon which a claim in warranty under the Act can be sustained.

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claims presented on this appeal.

919810 ONTARIO INC. O/A ALL SERVICE AUTO CENTRE AND ZOLTAN HEGEDUS

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: RICHARD C. DELANEY, Member

APPEARANCES:

LEONARD HOCHBERG, Counsel for the Applicants, 919810
Ontario Ltd. o/a All Service Auto Centre and Zoltan Hegedus
A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: January 14, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar", and the "Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated August 21, 2001 proposed to revoke the registration of Zoltan Hegedus ("Hegedus"), as a motor vehicle salesperson under the provisions of the Act. The Notice of Proposal dated August 21, 2001 also proposes to revoke the registration of 919810 Ontario Ltd. o/a All Service Auto Centre ("All Service"), as a motor vehicle dealer under the provisions of the Act. Hegedus and All Service (the "Applicants") appealed the proposal to revoke the registrations to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by Notice of Appeal dated August 30, 2001.

ISSUE:

The Registrar's Notice of Proposal to revoke registration of the Applicants stated that the Applicant's past conduct was inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warranted revocation of registration under the Act. The requirements of the Act include that registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of their business and that they carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

The Registrar's Notice of Proposal includes the following allegations:

- 1) On or about June 11, 1999 a representative of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers (the "Registrar") attended at the Dealer's registered premises at 17380 Highway 27, Schomberg, Ontario and found that the Dealer was not present, did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act");
- 2) On or about March 12, 2001 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's premises at 14692 Highway 48, Stouffville, Ontario and found that the Dealer was not present, did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary with the Act;
- 3) On or about March 23, 2001 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises at 220 Molock Dr. Unit 201, New Market, Ontario and found that the Dealer was not present, did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary with Act;
- 4) On or about June 26, 2001 a representative of the Registrar attended the dealer's registered premises, for the purposes of conducting an inspection under the Act. During the course of the inspection the dealer provided documents to be inspected which had been altered;
- 5) On or about December 12, 2000 the Dealer purchased a 1993 Audi Quattro VIN WAUEJ54A8PNOO0258. The odometer reading on the vehicle at the time of purchase was 182,931 "true KM unknown". On or about January 12, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Attila Farago with the distance traveled disclosed as 183,228 without further disclosing that the true kilometers were unknown thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance traveled;
- 6) On or about January 9, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1988 Audi Quattro VIN WAUUC0896JA158316. At the time of purchase, the vehicle was branded as salvage and the odometer reading on the vehicle was 359,134 kilometers. On or about February 14, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Amrose Raftis with the distance traveled disclosed as 159,354 kilometers thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance traveled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was branded as salvage;

- 7) On or about February 6, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1986 Audi 5000s VIN WAUUD0445GN096271. At the time of purchase the vehicle was branded as salvage and the odometer reading on the vehicle was 284,533 kilometers. On or about March 16, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Maria Elizabeth Story with the distance traveled disclosed as 184,575 kilometers thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance traveled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was branded as salvage;
- 8) On or about February 8, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1993 Audi Quattro VIN WAUCJ04A9PNOO0134. At the time of purchase the odometer reading on the vehicle was 238,000 kilometers. On or about February 23, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Helena Lis with the distance traveled disclosed as 139,945 kilometers thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance traveled;
- 9) The Dealer and Hegedus have failed to comply with the Act and in particular with section 5.

The issue in this proceeding is whether the Registrar had sufficient grounds to support the belief that the Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

THE LAW:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;

6. (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

EVIDENCE:

The Registrar presented three consumer witnesses, Laura Gordon, the Director of Compliance at the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") and Louise Gingras, an OMVIC inspector.

Maria Story

The first consumer witness was Virginia Maria Elizabeth Story (hereinafter "Story"). She is a self-employed professional engineer and runs an environmental consulting business.

In March of 2001, Story purchased a 1986 5000 Audi Turbo from the Applicant, Hegedus. At the time of the purchase she dealt directly with the Applicant and his older son.

Story was referred to Exhibit 3, Tab 9, page 7. She was present when the entire Bill of Sale was completed. It was completed while sitting in the Applicant's house. Story had observed that the Applicant's house was a residence with a vehicle shop in the rear. There was a small table at the entrance of the residence that was apparently maintained for the purpose of transacting business deals.

Story had heard about the Applicant from a friend of the family. The friend's recommendation was that the Applicant had great vehicles.

She attended upon the Applicant's place of business and became interested in a 1986 5000 Audi Turbo (the "5000 Turbo"). Story would not normally buy an older car but the 5000 Turbo appeared good in the shop. She did observe some minor damage to the hood and front grille. Story was sufficiently impressed that she provided a $2,000.00 deposit despite not being able to test drive the vehicle because repairs were needed.

When she returned with her husband to pick up the vehicle, they observed that the grille had been painted or replaced. Story's husband drove the vehicle home and observed that there was no heat in the 5000 Turbo. They called the Applicant and were advised that the heat could be fixed. Story and her husband took some comfort that the Applicant offered his assurances that he would fix anything with the 5000 Turbo if they had any problems.

Story was directed to the Registration forms of the 5000 Turbo, which indicate that the vehicle had been branded as "rebuilt." She recalled some mention of the rebuilt status of the vehicle with the Applicant. However, she characterized it as having been raised in a "very inconsequential way". She did not know what rebuilt meant.

Story observed that the mileage revealed on her Bill of Sale was 184,754 kilometers. This was quite low and was a selling feature of the car.

Since the date the vehicle was obtained, it has presented a series of problems including fuel leaks and hard start difficulties.

The witness was referred to a consumer questionnaire that she had been sent and confirmed that it included an accurate representation of the story of the vehicle (Exhibit 3, Tab 9, pages 5-6).

Story testified that she had received a call from Ralph Bayley at OMVIC asking whether she was aware of the true kilometers on the 5000 Turbo. Bayley advised her that they were well in excess of 280,000 kilometers. Moreover, the vehicle had ten (10) previous owners and the mileage had been nearly 300,000 kilometers prior to the accident that wrote it off.

After the conversation with Bayley, Story and her husband went back to the Applicant's place of business and confronted him about the odometer issue. The Applicant, when asked how he could do or allow such a thing, allegedly responded "what do you want me to do?" Story interpreted this response as an admission by the Applicant that the odometer had been altered.

Story added that an unknown person called from the Applicant's business and offered the Story's $2,500.00 to get out of the matter. At that point, she was not prepared to accept $2,500.00 as she had invested nearly $4,000.00 into the vehicle by way of repairs.

Ms. Story did not feel that she was treated fairly by the Applicant. No further repairs or money was received from the Applicant with respect to the subject vehicle except for the provision of some spare parts and a more useful radio for the subject vehicle.

Ms. Story compared the Bill of Sale at Exhibit 3, Tab 9, page 7 with the Bill of Sale at Exhibit 3, Tab 9 Page 2. The latter was provided by the Applicant to OMVIC and the former is the Bill of Sale given to Story by the Applicant at the time the vehicle was purchased from the Applicant. Story confirmed that it appeared there had been an attempt to change the first digit of the odometer reading from a 1 to a 2.

On cross-examination, Story indicated that she had been to the Applicant's place of business on several occasions prior to placing the $2,000.00 deposit. That particular visit was probably the second or third visit to the Applicant's place of business. She met with the Applicant's wife on the first visit and had no specific recollection of a second visit.

Ms. Story was not aware whether or not the Applicant had a business practice of not allowing a test drive. She re-confirmed that she was only told about the damage to the hood and grille. She also had the impression that there had been only one previous driver, a female.

She recalled being advised that the vehicle was in a “minor” accident. She was a trusting person and did not ask about the extent of the “minor” damage. She did no further investigation on the vehicle.

Story stated that she would never buy another 15-year-old car again. Had she been aware that the true mileage was nearly 300,000 kilometers, she would not have purchased the 5000 Turbo. Story believed that a fifteen-year-old car with mileage as low as 180,000 kilometers should have presented few mechanical problems.

She stated that she was not able to look at a car and determine if it was in good shape or not. When asked if her expectations about the transaction were “naïve”, she stated they were better characterized as “trusting”. She had been referred to the Applicant by people she trusted and to that point had no real reason to question the Applicant’s assertions and representations.

Story confirmed that when the Applicant offered to make repairs, they were completed a short time thereafter.

She confirmed that the Applicant did not ever personally admit that the mileage was incorrect. However, she did get such an admission on the telephone from the unknown representative from the Applicant’s business.

When asked about the thoroughness and accuracy of the questionnaire she completed, Story indicated that there was not a lot of room on the form for detail. Also, she completed it at work and was busy and in a hurry. This accounted for her failing to mention that she had been made aware of the “minor” accident.

Helena Lis

The next consumer witness was Helena Lis (“Lis”). Ms. Lis is retired. She has been married 46 years and has two sons and three grandchildren.

She was familiar with the Applicant and his business All Service Auto Centre.

Lis and her husband first met the Applicant while traveling to Haliburton from Toronto. Their vehicle broke down, and Mr. Hegedus stopped to offer roadside assistance. He gave them his card and they decided at a later date to make a purchase from All Service Auto Centre.

Lis was referred to her Bill of Sale at Exhibit 3, Tab 10, page 5. Lis had sent this Bill of Sale to OMVIC. She identified her signature in the left centre region of the Bill of Sale. She also confirmed the signature of the Applicant in the bottom right corner. She was present when the Applicant completed and signed the form.

Lis and her husband had observed the Haliburton winters to be severe. They decided to buy a second "winter" car. They went to the Applicant's garage because it was convenient to where they lived. At all times, they dealt exclusively with the Applicant.

When questioned about what the Applicant had indicated to her with respect to the 1993 Audi Quattro she purchased, the witness indicated she was advised that the tires were not great but that it was a good car.

The odometer reading on Lis' copy of the Bill of Sale indicates 139,995 kilometers. She confirmed that her initials were beside the mileage.

Lis was referred to the consumer questionnaire she completed for OMVIC. Her husband had completed the form for her using the Bill of Sale, and his signature appeared at the bottom of the received questionnaire.

She stated that she had been told nothing else by the Applicant with respect to the odometer and its reading.

She was referred to page 2 of Exhibit 3, Tab 10, which is the Bill of Sale provided to OMVIC by the Applicant. Lis confirmed that the first digit on her copy of the Bill of Sale indicated a "1" and the copy sent to OMVIC by the Applicant appeared to indicate a "2".

Lis stated that, other than the mileage, there had been other difficulties with the car. There had been some price negotiation prior to agreeing to purchase the vehicle but the mileage was never really on her mind. The true mileage, if known to Lis, would have affected the price she was prepared to pay. She had no recollection whether the Applicant indicated the vehicle had been in accident.

Attila Farago

Attila Farago ("Farago") is 46 years old and is a driving instructor. He has known of the All Service Auto for approximately 11.5 years.

Farago was referred to Exhibit 3, Tab 7, Page 2, which is a Bill of Sale for a 1993 Audi 100 he purchased from the Applicant. He confirmed his signature in the various locations on the Bill of Sale. He was present when the Bill of Sale was completed was completed by the Applicant.

At the time of the purchase, Farago had a Pontiac Grand Am that was getting on in age. He needed a vehicle that would pass the annual tests required for cars used in driving instruction schools.

The Applicant told him that the car had 180,000 kilometers. He may have been told more but could not recall. The Applicant told Farago that the vehicle was in good condition and that some of the molding had been changed to improve the appearance.

He did not notice any other damage to the vehicle nor was he advised that there was any further damage to the vehicle. He was not advised about previous owners or that the odometer had been altered.

Farago recalled taking the vehicle for a test drive and observing that it drove straight in the lanes.

On cross-examination, Farago stated that he still had the car. At the time he made the purchase, the mileage seemed acceptable given the age of the vehicle. He clarified that the Applicant told him the mileage was "183,000 kilometers, maybe more, we do not know".

Louise Gingras

Ms. Gingras has been an inspector at OMVIC for the last four years. Prior to her employment with OMVIC, Ms. Gingras was employed as a private investigator and as an investigator for the Government of Canada. Her duties at OMVIC include ensuring compliance with the various requirements of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and other related legislation.

In the course of her work with OMVIC, Ms. Gingras inspected All Service Auto Centre in June 2001.

Ms. Gingras referred to her notes of the inspection. These are at Exhibit 3, Tab 5. The notes of a follow up inspection are at Tab 6. The witness confirmed that these notes were made at the time of the inspection and had not been altered.

The first inspection was on June 21, 2001, and Ms. Gingras attended at 17380 Highway 27 in Schomberg, Ontario. There was a problem with the premises and it had become known to Ms. Gingras that the Applicant was operating out of a van. She observed the van at the back of a large fenced area at the subject address. She was able to enter the premises and observed that no one was present. Two vehicles were parked beside the van. Ms. Gingras noted two numbers for the business on the side of the van. When she called the second number a young boy answered the phone. She asked for All Service Auto Centre and the Applicant and was given a residence address on the Caledon-King Line.

Upon attending at the address provided by the young boy, she was met by the Applicant's spouse and two children. They told her that the Applicant had returned to the van.

Ms. Gingras returned to the van and met the Applicant. She asked for various Bills of Sale and was provided with purchase bills of sale but not sale bills of sale. She set up a re-attendance date for June 26, 2001.

On June 26, 2001, Ms. Gingras returned to the van. She was given the purchase and sale bills of sale she had requested. A few issues arose as Ms. Gingras reviewed the documents. For example, a document was missing, a sale bill of sale appeared to be altered, there was a 1993 Audi purchase bill of sale that indicated a mileage uncertainty, and at least one vehicle was not registered to his dealership although he had purchased the vehicle.

Ms. Gingras was advised that the Applicant used some vehicles for spare parts only.

She observed that the garage register was up to date and that there were a total of 10 purchase and sale sets of bills of sale.

Ms. Gingras testified that Impact Auto Auctions is an operation located in Stouffville, Ontario that sells insurance write-off vehicles by way of auction. She was shown Exhibit 3, Tab 7, which she identified as a purchase Bill of Sale for a 1993 Audi bearing VINWAUEJ54A8PN000258. The document was prepared by Toronto Auto Auctions at the time the vehicle was sold to All Service. In the section entitled "Announcements", the following is stated: "ODO CHND at 56,000, TRUE KM UNKNOWN". At the bottom of the document, the odometer disclosure is indicated as 182,931. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

The next page of the same Exhibit is a copy of the All Service bill of sale for the same vehicle to Attila Farago. The odometer reading on the vehicle on that bill of sale indicated the distance traveled as 183,228 km. It did not reveal that the true distance traveled was unknown. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

Ms. Gingras stated that the purchase bill of sale disclosure was not on the sale bill of sale and, as a result, there was insufficient disclosure on the bill of sale to Mr. Farago and was not in compliance with OMVIC's standards of practice.

Ms. Gingras then reviewed the documents at Exhibit 3, Tab 8 pertaining to the vehicle purchased by Ambrose Raftis.

The Raftis vehicle is a 1988 Audi Quattro. The odometer on the purchase bill of sale from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. to All Service Auto Centre revealed 359,134 km. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001. The purchase bill of sale clearly indicates that the vehicle ownership is branded as salvage.

The sale bill of sale at page 2 of the same exhibit indicates the distance traveled as 359,354 km. However, it appeared to Ms. Gingras, and to the Tribunal, that the "3" at the start of the odometer reading had been changed either from or to a "1" at some point in time. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

During the same inspection, Ms. Gingras obtained a copy of the Structural Inspection Certificate for the subject vehicle from the Applicants' files. This type of Certificate is required for all vehicles that are branded as salvage in order for them to be plated. Once plated, the brand changes from salvage to re-built. The odometer reading at the time of the Inspection on February 7, 2001 was 159,317 km.

"Branding" is a voluntary procedure carried out by some insurance companies. It follows the vehicle on the ownership history. There are four brands – salvage, rebuilt, stolen and irreparable. The latter brand reveals a vehicle that cannot be plated. A stolen brand indicates the vehicle has not been recovered after a reported theft. This brand is reported by the police. A vehicle may pass from a salvage vehicle to rebuilt upon successfully obtaining a Structural Inspection Certificate.

Ms. Gingras testified that the status of the vehicle as "salvage" or "rebuilt" is relevant and should be disclosed to the consumer.

Ms. Gingras then reviewed the documents at Exhibit 3, Tab 9 pertaining to the vehicle purchased by Maria Story.

The Story vehicle is a 1986 Audi 5000s. The odometer on the purchase bill of sale from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. to All Service Auto Centre revealed 284,533. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001. The purchase bill of sale clearly indicates that the vehicle ownership is branded as salvage.

The sale bill of sale at page 2 of the same exhibit indicates the distance traveled as 284,754 km. However, it appeared to Ms. Gingras, and to the Tribunal, that the "2" at the start of the odometer reading had been changed either from or to a "1" at some point in time. There was no further disclosure on the sale bill of sale to indicate the brand of the vehicle or the uncertainty with respect to the odometer reading. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

During the same inspection, Ms. Gingras obtained a copy of the Structural Inspection Certificate for the subject vehicle from the Applicants files. The odometer reading at the time of the Inspection on March 15, 2001 was 184,575 km.

The Rebuilt Vehicle Parts Audit prepared on March 15, 2001 also reveals a distance traveled as 184,575. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

The vehicle identification number history for the vehicle indicates the status of the subject vehicle was changed from salvage to rebuilt on March 16, 2001. None of this is revealed on the sale bill of sale prepared for the purchaser, Maria Story.

Ms. Gingras then reviewed the documents at Exhibit 3, Tab 10 pertaining to the vehicle purchased by Helena Lis.

The Lis vehicle is a 1993 Audi Quattro. The odometer on the purchase bill of sale from Toronto Auto Auctions to All Service Auto Centre revealed 238,000 km. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

The sale bill of sale at page 2 of the same exhibit indicates the distance traveled as 239,995 km. However, it appeared to Ms. Gingras, and to the Tribunal, that the “2” at the start of the odometer reading had been changed either from or to a “1” at some point in time. Ms. Gingras obtained the document from the Applicants during her inspection on June 26, 2001.

Page 5 of that Exhibit is a copy of the sale bill of sale in the possession of Mrs. Lis. It very clearly indicates distance traveled as 139,995 km.

As a result of these inspections, Ms. Gingras referred the matter to a committee. That committee decided to follow up the inspection findings by contacting the relevant consumers and asking them about the odometer readings and the extent of the disclosure they received when they purchased their vehicles.

On cross-examination, Ms. Gingras stated that she had been directed to attend at the Applicant’s place of business because there were concerns about the registrant’s business location. She was simply attending to confirm the address. The inspection was not triggered as a result of a complaint. As a result of her concerns about the location, the inspection was broadened to include a review of the bills of sale and other documents on the premises. Apparently, there had been two previous attempts to inspect that were unsuccessful.

Ms. Gingras observed that the Applicant’s business was being conducted out of a cube van. The van had a table and two chairs. At the time she was present, she did not see any customers. Ms. Gingras observed that there was no evidence of heat or hydro at the cube van.

Ms. Gingras confirmed that she has been duly designated to conduct inspections pursuant to Section 10 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. Her designation was issued in May 1999 and has no expiration date.

Laura Gordon

Laura Gordon is the Director of Compliance with OMVIC. OMVIC is a non-profit agency established to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “MVDA”). The MVDA is a consumer protection legislation.

Ms. Gordon was familiar with the Applicants’ case through her preparation for this hearing.

The dealership was registered under the MVDA on February 18, 1997. Mr. Hegedus was registered as a salesperson on March 21, 1997. Ms. Gordon confirmed that as of December 20, 2001, both Applicants were registrants under the Act.

The witness stated that the reasons for the proposed revocation were as follows:

- 1) There were concerns about the dealer operating from non-approved locations;
- 2) There was a concern that false documents had been provided to Ms. Gingras during the course of her inspection;
- 3) There were concerns about full disclosure of vehicle histories to consumers.

The requirements of OMVIC are that a dealer's premises have a lot, office and sign. The Act also requires dealers to advise OMVIC should they change their premises within five days of the change. Registrants are required not to deal with customers anywhere except the registered premises.

Ms. Gordon stated that since inspectors are only allowed access at the registrants registered business locations, it is critical that these locations be kept current. She also indicated that the business practice standards essentially form a code of ethics for OMVIC and its membership.

Ms. Gordon testified that the OMVIC Registrar has zero tolerance for non-disclosure and altering odometer readings. The accuracy of this type of information is essential for consumers to assess accurately the anticipated future repair and maintenance costs of a vehicle they intend to purchase. It also helps to establish the fair market price for the used vehicle. She further testified that the onus is on the dealer to act with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law. The standards of business practice for registrants require full disclosure. Moreover, it is an offence under the Act to knowingly provide false information or altered documents to the Registrar.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant did not testify or provide additional evidence.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

Based upon the oral and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, the following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven:

1. The Applicant, Hegedus, was registered as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about March 21, 1997.

2. The Applicant, 919810 Ontario Inc. o/a All Service Auto Centre, was registered as a motor vehicle dealer on or about February 18, 1997.
3. Although no Articles of Incorporation were presented as evidence, the Bills of sale of every relevant transaction were signed by Mr. Hegedus as an official of the vendor corporation with authority to bind the corporation. As such, the Tribunal finds that Mr. Hegedus is an officer of the corporation.
4. The Applicant issued a Bill of Sale to Attila Farago that did not reflect the full information in the possession of the Applicant respecting the distance traveled by the vehicle at the time of the sale. The Applicant was aware that the true mileage was unknown on the subject vehicle.
5. All Service Auto Centre acquired the Lis vehicle from Toronto Auto Auctions on February 8, 2001 with a revealed odometer disclosure of 238,000 km. On February 23, 2001 the same vehicle was sold to Helena Lis. The Bill of Sale provided by the Applicants to the purchaser Lis indicated a distance traveled of 139, 995 kilometers. During her June 26, 2001 inspection of All Service Auto Centre, Ms. Gingras was provided with a Bill of Sale for the Lis vehicle that indicated 239,995 as the distance traveled. The information provided to the consumer was inaccurate. The information provided to Ms. Gingras appeared to have been altered and was an inaccurate representation of the Lis transaction.
6. All Service Auto Centre acquired the Story vehicle from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. on February 6, 2001 with a revealed odometer disclosure of 284,533 km. The Bill of Sale from Impact Auto Auctions also clearly indicated the vehicle had been branded as salvage. On or about March 16, 2001 the same vehicle was sold to Maria Story. The Bill of Sale provided by the Applicants to the purchaser Story indicated a distance traveled of 184, 754 kilometers. During her June 26, 2001 inspection of All Service Auto Centre, Ms. Gingras was provided with a Bill of Sale for the Story vehicle that indicated 284,754 km. as the distance traveled. The information provided to the consumer was inaccurate. The information provided to Ms. Gingras appeared to have been altered and was an inaccurate representation of the Story transaction. Furthermore, the Bill of Sale provided to Ms. Story by the Applicants failed to reveal the vehicle was branded as salvage and had been rebuilt.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar to satisfy the Tribunal that he has reasonable grounds to believe that based upon their activities of the Applicants' registration ought to be revoked under Section 6(2) of the Act in that their past conduct afforded reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicants would not carry on business in compliance with Section 5 of the Act.

The leading authority, which has been followed in numerous cases, is the Divisional Court decision of Brenner, reported in 19 CRAT 58. This decision held that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it is of the opinion that the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The authority of the Tribunal under Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act respecting the proposal of the Registrar was reviewed by Southey J. where he stated at page 60:

The effect of Section 7 (4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

This Decision was confirmed by the Divisional Court in Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050, where it stated at page 1051:

. . . that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

As a result of the above and a line of cases following that reasoning, to overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that the Registrar was wrong in his decision. It must find that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its regulations. The Tribunal must not concern itself with its own opinion of whether or not the Applicant has reformed. It must look at the past conduct of the Applicant and at the decision of the Registrar to come to a conclusion as to whether or not the past conduct of the Applicant would afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty in the future.

The Tribunal finds that this case essentially revolves around two basic allegations:

- 1) The Applicants provided false documentation to the Registrar during an inspection; and,
- 2) The Applicants failed to make disclosure of material facts to purchasers.

The first allegation concerns the Applicants and their relationship with OMVIC. The second relates to the business practices of applicants with consumers.

With the respect to the first allegation, the Registrar is entitled to carry out routine inspections of registrants pursuant to Section 10 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the “Act”). That section stands alone from section 9 inspections, which are triggered by complaints received by the Registrar. Ms. Gingras stated that no complaints were received with respect to the Applicants. The inspection was carried out to ensure compliance with the Act and its regulations relating to registration. During the course of that inspection, the Applicants provided Ms. Gingras with two documents – the Applicant’s copies of the Story Bill of Sale and the Lis Bill of Sale – which were altered from the original Bills of Sale provided to the consumers.

Section 11 of the Act provides, in part, that upon an inspection under section 10, “...no person shall obstruct the person inspecting or withhold or destroy, conceal or refuse to furnish any information or thing required by the person inspecting for the purposes of the inspection.” Furnishing altered and inaccurate documentation on such an inspection is a clear breach of the requirements of this section. Moreover, it is an indication that the Applicants do not act with honesty or in accordance with the law.

The second allegation concerns the business practices of the Applicants with respect to the public. Laura Gordon, OMVIC’s Director of Compliance, testified that the Registrar has a zero-tolerance level for non-disclosure or altering of odometer readings. Disclosure of material facts revealing the true distance a vehicle has traveled is clearly important to the consumer’s purchase decision. As Ms. Gordon indicated, accurate information allows the consumer to assess the future maintenance and repair costs to be expected for the vehicle and the present market value of the vehicle.

According to Ms. Gordon, The Business Practices Act and OMVIC’s standards of conduct require full disclosure and not misrepresent all material facts.

Mr. Farago testified that he was told by Mr. Hegedus at the time of the purchase that the vehicle had “...180,000 km., maybe more, he did not know.” He indicated that he was never advised the odometer was changed. Mr. Farago still has the vehicle and, on cross-examination, indicated that the mileage seemed “okay” to him given the age of the car. The latter comment is important as the consumer obviously assessed the price and condition of the car based on age and mileage information supplied by the Applicants. In fact, the Applicant knew that the mileage had been changed at 56,000 kilometers and the true mileage was unknown. It is the Tribunal’s view that there is a significant difference between the information the Applicants possessed and the information the consumer was actually given.

The Lis and Story transactions include even more troubling examples of non-disclosure.

Helena Lis understood from the Bill of Sale she was provided that the distance traveled on her car was 139,995 kilometers. She testified that, although mileage was not really on her mind at the time of the purchase, the mileage would have affected the price she was prepared to pay for the vehicle. The Applicants acquired the vehicle from Toronto Auto Auctions with a revealed distance traveled of 238,000 kilometers.

The failure to reveal 100,000 kilometers in vehicle travel history from a consumer is the failure to disclose a material fact to the consumer. It really is of no consequence that the purchaser is still happy with the transaction. For the purpose of the issues now before this Tribunal, it is relevant that at the time of the transaction a very significant fact was withheld from the consumer. Ms. Story testified on cross-examination that had she known the true mileage, possibly in excess of 300,000 kilometers, she would not have purchased the vehicle. The Tribunal finds misrepresenting by 100,000 kilometers the vehicle's travel history is a failure to disclose a material fact to the purchaser.

The transaction involving Maria Story is also troubling. The Applicants acquired the vehicle on February 6, 2001 from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. The Bill of Sale to the Applicants indicates the vehicle is branded as "salvage" and that the true distance traveled is unknown and may be in excess of what is recorded to date. The consumer was told the vehicle was rebuilt but did not understand what "rebuilt" meant in the parlance of the industry. She testified that Mr. Hegedus mentioned it to her in a very inconsequential manner. The Tribunal finds this to be further evidence of the Applicant's misleading of the purchaser.

On the evidence presented, the Tribunal concludes that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded the Registrar reasonable grounds for his belief that the Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty.

Having carefully considered all of the evidence presented, this Tribunal finds no ground to interfere with the Registrar's proposal.

ORDER:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated August 21, 2001 to revoke the registration of Zoltan Hegedus as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act and to revoke the registration of 919810 Ontario Inc. o/a All Service Auto Centre as motor vehicle dealer under the Act.

BRIAN M. SAMUEL

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTY PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: DOUGLAS MACKINTOSH, Vice Chair, presiding
MICHAEL TURK, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES:
BRIAN SAMUEL, Applicant, representing himself
KAREN JONES, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
MICHAEL TITLE, Agent, representing the Added Party, Redpath Residences Corporation

DATE OF
HEARING: April 11, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant, Brian Samuel, appeals to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") set out in a letter dated November 23, 2001. The decision letter denied seven warranty claims made by the Applicant. There was an eighth claim which was warranted, but the Applicant turned down the offer to settle.

BACKGROUND:

In August 1998, the Applicant entered into an agreement of purchase and sale to buy unit 709 at 188 Redpath Avenue in Toronto. This was his first home. The price was $208,990 and he took possession in July of 2000.

The Applicant is well educated and represented himself. He has a BA in political science from University of Western Ontario and has worked for ten years as sales manager for a multi-national office products company.

During the purchase procedure, two pre-delivery inspections were carried out with the Applicant by Leslie Yager, the representative from the Vendor, Redpath Residences Corporation. On the second inspection, Ms. Yager made out a list of deficiencies and the Applicant signed it.

Other problems surfaced, and the Applicant became dissatisfied with the way the builder was responding. The Applicant contacted the Program. In due course, this led to conciliation after which, in June of 2001, the Program issued a conciliation report. In their report, two of the items complained of were found to be warranted and eleven, including the hardwood floor, were not.

This situation was complicated by a burst pipe in the unit above the Applicant's which flooded the Applicant's home in August of 2001. He was compelled to evacuate his home. Some of the water damage done was to the hardwood floor. Although the insurance company replaced the whole hardwood floor, the Applicant maintained his claim for the flooring against the Program.

THE FACTS:

The Applicant relied on his own evidence. Each of the other parties called two witnesses.

The Program's two witnesses were Al Stevenson, a widely experienced warranty representative, and Vincent Mascone, the owner of a tile company.

The Vendor also called two witnesses, Leslie Yager, the representative from Redpath Residences Corporation, and Pamela Brophy, the insurance claims adjuster.

As indicated there are eight claims.

1) The Refrigerator

The Applicant's contract stated he was to get a 19 cubic foot refrigerator with a choice of white or black. He chose black. But it turned out that the 19 cu. ft. black model had been removed from the production line and the supplier, Whirlpool Home Appliances, only had 18 cu. ft. or a 22 cu. ft. models in black. The Program says that the 19 cu. ft. unit is a warranted choice.

The Applicant is not content with the 18 cu. ft. model which the vendor had installed. He wants the 22 cu. ft. model and the contention arose as to whether or not it would fit into his home.

The Applicant testified that he measured both the entrance to his home and the alcove and concluded that the larger unit would fit. He stated that Whirlpool at first agreed to the substitution but then changed its mind. The Vendor takes the position that several others in the building accepted compensation and signed releases.

On the basis that the actual difference in capacity between the 18 and 19 cu. ft. models is only .6 cu. ft. or 3%, the vendor offered $40 recompense to the Applicant. (That calculation is based on the 18 cu. ft. model containing 18.2 cu. ft. and the 19 model containing 18.8 cubic feet)

2) The absence of a light above the powder room shower

The Applicant claims there should be a light above the shower because the other units in the building have one although he admitted he believed the contract of sale was ambiguous.

Al Stevenson, the Program's representative, took the position that the absence of a light in the shower is not warranted as is it not set out in the agreement of purchase and sale.

The agreement of purchase reads as follows in schedule B:

3. Vendors finishing comprise the following:

.... shower stall with shower light and glass shower door ..

Redpath Residences Corporation made a gratuitous offer of $400 to settle, but this was not accepted by the Applicant. His position was he should be entitled to $1,000 which he believed to be the real cost of installation from advice he had received from a contractor, the father of a friend.

3) The Towel Bar

One item on the Pre-Disposition Report is a notation, "clean towel bars in both bathrooms of paint". The Applicant testified that the bar was scratched when the paint was cleaned off it, and he now wants it replaced. He did not produce any photographs or the bar itself.

However, the warranty representative, Al Stevenson, who has a wide experience in the industry, testified that he inspected the towel bar and saw no scratches. His evidence was supported by Leslie Yager, the assistant to the president of Redpath Residences Corporation. She inspected the towel bar in February and also saw no damage. She noted the complaint was made by the Applicant at the time of the Conciliation inspection and there were no scratches then.

4) Problems with the toilet

The layout plan of the home shows the toilet in the ensuite bathroom centred in an alcove. But the Applicant says it is not. This is a particular problem because Mr. Samuel is well over an average size.

The Applicant testified that the toilet is so close to one wall in the alcove that when on it, he has to lean over with the tissue roll sticking into his side. He estimates the toilet is only 1" from the wall. As a result, he has had to resort to using the toilet in his other bathroom.

The Program's warranty representative testified that although the toilet is off centre, it is not abnormally close to the wall. He disagreed that the toilet was 1" from the wall.

The Builder's representative, Leslie Yager, testified that the toilet looks and works fine.

The Applicant takes issue with another problem with the toilet. He says the supply pipe going from a riser to the toilet is covered with foil and is a conspicuous eye sore which decreases the value of his home. The Applicant contends this is a defect in workmanship but mainly a design flaw.

The warranty representative said there was nothing unusual in the supply pipe for the toilet coming from the riser (it boxes in pipes going to the units above) although, implying that it could be made less visible, a supply pipe could come up from the floor or out from the wall.

5) Shut-off valves for the washer

The Applicant, having experienced a deluge of water from the unit above, is sensitive to the dangers from water and wants more readily available shut-off valves for the washer/dryer stack.

The washer has two sets of valves. The main shut-off valves are behind the washer/dryer stack and are not visible. The other set is in behind a panel on the stack and the panel has to be opened with a screwdriver before these valves can be reached.

The Applicant says he cannot reach the main valves behind the stack because there is only an inch or two between the stack and the wall. The gap is in fact so small that he cannot retrieve anything such as a sock that has fallen in between the stack and the wall.

He wants $900 or $1,000 to install readily available valves. He stated, "My concern is safety as priority number one and issue number two is liability".

The Program's representative stated that it is not uncommon to access the valves through a panel in high rise homes and suggested that since it is the owner's responsibility to look after his home, he should have the necessary screw driver available.

The Vendor says the use of space has to be efficient and has no problem with the set up.

6) The Carpet

The Applicant complains that the carpet has come untacked from the edge where it meets the hardwood floor between the master bedroom and the hall. He claims the carpet was simply cut too short at the transition.

Some confusion arose from the word "tucked", which carpet layers use to indicate stretching a carpet into position with a knee kicker. The Applicant seems to have wrongly concluded that "tucked" meant the carpet should be folded under itself.

The warranty representative noted the carpet had come loose from the spiked tack board which holds the carpet in place, but he said this was not unusual and is a matter for the homeowner's maintenance.

7) The Hardwood floor

The home has hardwood flooring except in the two bedrooms and two bathrooms. The Applicant claims this flooring was damaged by a cleaning woman sent in by the builder at the time he took possession. He claims that she used an abrasive mop which scraped the wood. In addition, there was an extra washer/dryer in his home when he came in and its removal may also have been responsible for some of this damage and for dents in the wooden flooring.

In addition, some time later, a board in the floor popped up but the Vendor fixed it. The situation changed when the home was flooded, and the whole hardwood flooring was replaced by the Applicant's insurance company.

The Applicant indicated that he wants $3,000 for the damage done to the floor prior to the flood and that he has in mind a global figure for all his claims of $15,000.

8) The tiles in the ensuite bathroom

On the selection chart in the agreement of purchase, the Applicant chose vechia grey for the floor tile and for the vertical tub surround in the ensuite bathroom.

This choice was qualified in the list he signed in the Pre Disposition report which reads:

"Purchaser would prefer that the floor tile extend to top of the tub but ONLY if tile + grout can be a perfect match to floor tile. If not then remove floor tile from tub + replace with wall tile to match installed wall tiles. Purchaser has spent considerable time in dealing w/ Moscone Tile to sort out issues regarding the installation in the ensuite. As compensation for this, once ensuite installation is completed satisfactorily Purchaser wants tile backsplash installed in the kitchen as originally offered by Moscone, with tiles as selected by purchaser"

The backsplash in the kitchen was installed by Mascone Tile Company. The company also replaced all the tiles on the tub surround three times.

Vincent Mascone testified that his company has 50 employees and his experience in the tile business runs over five decades. He personally had the tub surround tiles replaced when the Applicant correctly noted the tub surround tiles did not match the floor tiles.

The Applicant was not satisfied claiming that the tiles still do not match. But Mr. Mascone testified that he had found tiles from exactly the same dye lot and testified this was impossible and that any perceived mismatch was from the light reflecting differently on the horizontal floor tiles and the vertical tiles on the tub surround.

Nonetheless, Mr. Mascone replaced the tiles again. He tried to make the Applicant happy and it finished up that there were two replacements of the tiles, one before closing and one after. Each time required $10 to $15 of material and $100 of labour.

The Program's warranty representative testified that the Applicant got what he had asked for, the tub surround tiles were finally the same as the wall tile. He found no defect in materials or workmanship and no conflict with the Ontario Building Code ("OBC").

ISSUES:

There are two issues.

The first is whether the larger refrigerator unit could fit into the home and if not, whether the offer of settlement is reasonable.

The second, issue is whether the other items are warranted under the Act.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Act are as follows:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,:

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of;

(c) normal wear and tear;

(f) damage caused by improper maintenance;

14 (1) Where

(b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty....

the person is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulation.

(3) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under subsection (1).

Regulation 892

18. (1) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner that the vendor shall make no substitutions in those items of construction or finishing for which the purchaser is entitled to make selection pursuant to the purchase agreement without the written consent of the purchaser.

(3) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the purchaser that where the purchaser fails to make a selection under clause (2)(a) or (b) that the vendor will make a selection on the purchaser's behalf that is of equal or better quality than the original selection as set out in the purchase agreement.

THE APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

With respect to the eight items reviewed above, the following applies:

(1) The refrigerator,

It is true that the Applicant selected a 19 cu. ft. black refrigerator, but it is not available. There has been a substitution because the Applicant has a smaller unit. Regulations 18 and 19 stipulate that the Applicant is entitled to his selection but a substitution has to be of equal or better quality.

Certainly the larger 22 cu. ft. model is of equal or better quality. But the question of whether it would fit into the home is not resolved. The onus is on the Applicant to prove his case, but he has not provided detailed measurements, and the Tribunal has not been persuaded that the larger model would fit into the home. The question therefore is: what is a fair amount of compensation.

Redpath Residences Corporation offered $40, probably correlated to the 3% reduction in the size of the 18 cu. ft. refrigerator which the Applicant received. However, the Tribunal finds that a more appropriate figure is $150.

(2) The light over the shower

The Tribunal has concluded that a light above the shower is called for. The key words in the contract are "shower stall with light". The difficulty is that the Tribunal is not in a good position to determine what the cost of installing such a light would be. The onus is on the Applicant to establish this. But there is no indication of what type of light is required, how it can be secured and what materials are required to come through the shower ceiling.

Given the background it is preferable to avoid ordering the work to be done. The only acceptable guide for a proper amount to be awarded is contained in the Vendor's offer $400 which seems a little low. Accordingly, the Applicant should have $500.

(3) The Towel Bar

The Applicant says the bar is scratched. He has to persuade the Tribunal that this is so on the balance of probabilities, and he has not done so. He could have produced the bar itself or a photograph, but did neither. Accordingly, the Applicant's claim respecting the towel bar is dismissed.

(4) Problems with the Toilet

The Applicant has testified that the amount by which the toilet is off centre is critical to the Applicant, especially as he is considerably more than average size. However, there are no measurements of the size of the alcove in which the toilet is placed. There is disagreement between the Applicant and the warranty representative about the distance from the toilet to the wall. The onus on the Applicant has therefore not been discharged.

With respect to the supply pipe for the toilet which the Applicant says is an eye sore. the Tribunal has no photograph or other way to determine if the Applicant is correct in this dispute with the Vendor and the warranty representative.. Accordingly, the Applicant's claims with respect to the toilet and supply pipe are dismissed.

(5) Shut-off valve for the Washer

The complaint by the Applicant that there are no accessible shut-off valves for the washer is a matter of a design favouring cosmetics. As Al Stevenson, the warranty representative, stated, "You have to know how to access the valves". There is no evidence of a defect in workmanship or materials. The Tribunal dismisses the Applicant's claim with respect to the shut-off valve for the washer.

(6) Loose carpet

The Applicant's complaint that the carpet keeps coming untacked because it was cut too short to tuck back does not stand analysis. The warranty representative stated that this is not unusual and is part of house maintenance for the owner. The Tribunal accepts that explanation and the Applicant's claim respecting the loose carpet is dismissed.

(7) The Hardwood floor

The Tribunal is not inclined to consider the Applicant's claim for damage done to the floor before the flood because he has a totally new floor installed by his insurance company.

Moreover even if his claim was not undone by the replacement of the floor by the insurer, he has not produced the evidence needed to support his contention. Accordingly, the Applicant's claim with respect to the hardwood floor is dismissed.

(8) The Tiles in the ensuite bathroom

The Tribunal finds that Mr. Mascone took great trouble to make the Applicant content, but without success. The tub-surround tiles were replaced three times and the Applicant got what he bargained for. There is no merit in this claim and it is dismissed.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act, the Tribunal orders,

- (1) that the Program pay the Applicant by way of recompense $500 for the absence of a light in the shower stall and $150 for the undersized refrigerator. Such payments shall be made to the Applicant within 60 days of the release of this decision.
- (2) that all other claims herein are dismissed.

TRIBUNAL: RICHARD C. DELANEY, Member

APPEARANCES:
GALINA VELTMAN, appearing on her own behalf
TREVOR BRANION, Counsel representing the Travel Industry
Council of Ontario

DATE OF
HEARING: February 20, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal by Galina Veltman (the "Applicant") to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a written decision dated December 21, 2001 of the Board of Directors of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund Corporation (the "Fund") to deny the Applicant's claim for compensation in the amount of $2,031.35.

The Applicant bases her claim on Section 50(1) of Regulation 806/93 (the "Regulation") made under the Travel Industry Act (the "Act").

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence was both oral and documentary. Oral testimony was given by the Applicant and Lori Furlan on behalf of the Fund.

Evidence of the Applicant:

The Applicant, Galina Veltman, testified that in December 2000 she booked a trip with Sun Holidays. It was to be a four-day trip with Marine Expeditions. The excursion was to be a four-day cruise of Greenland in June of 2001. There were three adult bookings made by the Applicant.

The trip was booked through a Dianne Baldacchin, a travel consultant with Sun Holidays.

Regrettably, on or about June 16, 2001, just five days before the cruise was set to begin, the cruise line Marine Expeditions went out of business and the booked trip did not take place. The Applicant was advised of this situation by her travel consultant. She was advised to contact the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (TICO).

On July 24, 2001, TICO sent the Applicant a blank Customer Claim Form. The Applicant completed her claim and submitted the same on or about August 24, 2001.

The Applicant paid for the trip by authorizing the charges to be placed on her CIBC VISA card. On December 18, 2000, a charge in favour of Marine Expeditions NV was made on the Applicant's VISA card in the sum of CDN $1406.11. This charge was the required deposit to secure the trip booking. On April 25, 2001, the sum of CDN $4442.25 was placed on the Applicant's VISA card. This was the balance of the trip expense. The Applicant confirmed on cross-examination that she had not made any so-called "charge-back" claims against VISA with respect to the bookings.

TICO allowed some of the Applicant's claim. However, she claims in this hearing for the unpaid balance of $2,031.35.

Evidence of the Respondent:

Ms. Lori Furlan is the claims co-ordinator for TICO. She receives, administers and processes claims received by TICO for the compensation fund.

Ms. Furlan processed all aspects of the Veltman claim.

Ms. Furlan testified that in February 2001, a business known as Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. was formed. Canadian Venture Travel was registered under the Travel Industry Act on or about February 20, 2001.

The witness was referred to Exhibit "A" of Tab B, Exhibit 3, which was the sworn claim form of the Applicant. The taxes referred to in the Sun Holiday summary are post or departure taxes. The witness advised that taxes are not eligible for reimbursement from the compensation fund pursuant to section 50(3)(7). Section 50(3)(8) also excludes insurance premiums from reimbursement.

Ms. Furlan confirmed that the final payment made by the applicant to Marine Expeditions was made to a TICO registrant.

On October 16, 2001, Ms. Furlan sent a letter to the Applicant requesting that she furnish any information regarding reimbursement she may have received from her credit card company. Further, the Applicant was asked, in accordance with the regulations, to have VISA provide TICO with a letter stating that the Applicant had not received a credit on her account with respect to the aborted travel plans. This form of letter was sent to all of the Marine Expedition claimants.

As regards the Applicant's claim, Ms. Furlan indicated that it was a difficult case. However, the Applicant's initial deposit payment was made to a non-registered cruise line. It was for this reason that that portion of the Applicant's claim was disallowed.

She confirmed that Sun Holidays is a registrant.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts to have been proven.

1. At the relevant time, Marine Expeditions was not registered with the Fund as either travel agent or travel wholesaler.
2. In or about December 2000, the Applicant booked a cruise through Sun Holidays, a registrant, for a Marine Expeditions cruise which was to depart in June of 2001.
3. The Applicant paid Marine Expeditions by way of providing her VISA number to Sun Holidays. Sun Holidays passed the VISA number on the Marine Expeditions to be processed.
4. Marine Expeditions Travel ceased to operate as a travel agent on or about June 16, 2001 and the June 2001 cruise was cancelled prior to its departure. The Applicant has not received reimbursement of any amounts paid by her to Marine Expeditions by means of her credit card.

THE ISSUE:

Does the Applicant's claim fall within the terms of Regulation 806/93 to the Act?

THE LAW:

The relevant portions of Regulation 806/93 to the Act that are applicable to these proceedings are:

50.(1) A customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if,

- (a) the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent;
- (b) the customer had made a demand for payment from the registered travel agent or the appropriate registered wholesaler; and
- (c) the customer has not been reimbursed by,
 - (i) the registrant because the registrant is unable to pay by reason of bankruptcy or insolvency,
 - (ii) any other person who has received the customer's money, or
 - (iii) any other person who may be legally obliged to reimburse or compensate the customer, including a person obliged under a contract for insurance.

Section 50 (2) , which reads as follows:

- (2) A reimbursement under subsection (1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those travel services that were not provided.

Section 50(3), which reads as follows:

(3) A customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for the following or in the following circumstances:

1. For a claim arising out of the failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.
2. For losses or damages incurred by a customer as a result of a failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.

Section 59.(1), which reads as follows:

59.(1) A customer or registrant is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide travel services is due to the failure of an end supplier and not to the bankruptcy or insolvency of a registrant.

Section 62.(1), (2) and (6) which respectively read as follows:

62.(1) If the board of directors of the Council determines that a claim, or any part thereof made under section 50, 51 or 52 is not eligible for reimbursement, the Council shall immediately serve notice of the decision on the claimant.

(2) A person who receives notice under subsection (1) is entitled to a hearing before the Tribunal if, within 15 days after notice is served, the person mails or delivers a written request for a hearing to the Registrar, the Council and the Tribunal.

62.(6) The Tribunal may,

- (a) allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Council to pay the amount allowed out of the Compensation Fund; or
- (b) refuse to allow the claim in whole or in part.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant in her written claim directed to the Travel Industry Council of Ontario claimed reimbursement from the Fund in respect of the June 2001 cruise which was cancelled.

The Applicant made payment of the disputed amounts through her travel agent, Sun Holidays. The Registrar conceded that Sun Holidays was a registrant. Therefore, in that respect, the Applicant falls initially within the ambit of Section 50(1)(a) of the Regulation 806/93. Moreover, the Applicant contacted Sun Holidays to seek reimbursement and was advised by her travel agent to contact TICO. I would accept this as fulfilling the obligations of Section 50(1)(b). Finally, the relevant portion of Section 50(1)(c) essentially requires that the customer has not been reimbursed by the registrant because of the registrant's bankruptcy or by any other person who has received the money or that may be legally obligated to reimburse the Applicant. This requirement would also appear to be fulfilled.

The Applicant's dilemma is that she made payment indirectly through Sun Holidays. The evidence established that the VISA charges were processed by Marine Expeditions NV, and not Sun Holidays. Section 50(2) limits recovery under Section 50(1) to the "...amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those travel services that were not provided." In that regard, there is no evidence that the Applicant ever paid the disputed amounts directly to Sun Holidays and that the said amounts were ever received by Sun Holidays. The payments appear to have been made to Marine Expeditions NV.

The portion of the claim that is related to taxes and insurance premiums is precluded from recovery by the Applicant by virtue of Sections 50(3)(7) and 50(3)(8).

The evidence was not clear whether the failure to provide the services was due to the failure of the end supplier or the bankruptcy or other failure of the registrant, Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. o/a Marine Expeditions Travel.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Travel Industry Act and Regulations thereunder, the Tribunal upholds the decision of the Board of Trustees of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to refuse the Applicant's claim.

APPEARANCES:

TREVOR BRANION, Counsel representing the Registrar, Travel Industry Act

Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Travel Industry Act (the "Registrar", and the "Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated December 13, 2001 proposed to revoke the registration of 1402446 Ontario Ltd. o/a Ocean Access Travel Connection ("Ocean Access") under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar under the Act proposed to revoke the registration of Ocean Access. The statutory grounds relied upon by the Registrar for the Proposal are set out below:

1. Section 24(1) of Ontario Regulation 806/93, as amended, made under the Act (the "Regulation"), states that every Registrant shall file with the Registrar financial statements for each fiscal year.
2. Section 24(2) of the Regulation states that if the registrant had sales of less than $10 million during the previous fiscal year, the registrant shall file, within three months of the end of the fiscal year:
 - (a) annual financial state ments with a review engagement report by a accountant licensed under the Public Accountancy Act; or
 - (b) annual financial statements with an audit opinion from a public accountant if the registrant is required to obtain annual financial statements audit opinion under the Business Corporations Act.

3. Section 24(3) of the Regulation states that if the registrant had sales of $10 million or more but less than $20 million during the previous fiscal year the registrant shall file,
 - (a) annual financial statements with an audit opinion from a licensed accountant within three months of the end of the fiscal year; and
 - (b) semi-annual financial statements within forty-five days of the end of a half year during the fiscal year.
4. Section 24(4) of the Regulation states that if the registrant had sales of $20 million or more during the previous fiscal year, the registrant shall file,
 - (a) annual financial statements with an audit opinion from a licensed public accountant within three months of the fiscal year, and
 - (b) quarterly financial statements within forty-five days of the end of each quarter year during the fiscal year.
5. Section 24(5) of the Regulation states that the financial statements shall include a statement of sales made during the period, a balance sheet, an income statement and a reconciliation of customer funds and customer obligations.

WORKING CAPITAL

1. Section 25(1) of the Regulation states that a registrant shall maintain a minimum working capital of $5,000 if the registrant had sales in Ontario of less than $1.5 million during the previous fiscal year.
2. Section 25(2) of the Regulation states that a registrant who had sales in Ontario of $1.5 million or more but less than $10 million during the previous fiscal year shall maintain a minimum working capital of $25,000.
3. Section 25(3) of the Regulation states that a registrant who had sales in Ontario of $10 million or more but less than $20 million during the previous fiscal year shall maintain a minimum working capital of $50,000.
4. Section 25(4) of the Regulation states that a registrant who had sales in Ontario of $20 million or more during the previous year shall maintain a minimum working capital of $100,000.
5. Section 25 (5) of the Regulation states that the working capital of a registrant shall be calculated in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and shall not include the value of any security provided under subsection 26(1) or the account of any person with whom the registrant has a non-arm's length relationship.

TRUST ACCOUNTING

Subsection 36 (1) of Ontario Regulation 806/93, as amended, made under the Act (the "Regulation") states that a registrant shall maintain a trust account to protect customer funds if the registrant is required to maintain a trust account under the terms and conditions specified in the registrant's registration.

Subsection 36(3) of the Regulation states that a registrant required to maintain trust accounting under subsection (1) shall hold all customer funds in trust and shall deposit all customer funds received into the trust account within two banking days after receiving them.

Subsection 36(6) states that no registrant shall disburse or withdraw any money held in a trust account under subsection (1) until payment is made to the supplier of the travel services for which the money was received.

SPECIFIC ALLEGATIONS:

The specific allegations against Ocean Access are as follows:

1. The Registrant is registered as a travel agent (Registration No.50007711).
2. On March 9, 2000, the Registrant signed Terms and Conditions of registration which included the implementation and maintenance of a Travel Industry Act Trust Account.
3. By letter dated March 8, 2000, Scotiabank, 1880 Eglinton Ave E., Unit 21, Scarborough Ontario M1 L 2L9, provided TICO with the banking information for the Registrant, which included Travel Industry Act Trust Account. account # 9132200367-14, and general business account# 9132200366-17.
4. On April 18, 2001, the Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors, to ensure that the company was operating in accordance with the Regulation. The visit revealed that trust accounting was not being properly maintained. Customer monies were not deposited within two business banking days, cash payments were not being used to purchase travel services, business expenses were paid through the trust account, and the employees were using their personal credit cards to purchase travel services. The Registrant was advised that the use of personal credit cards must cease immediately as only a shareholder or corporate credit card can be used for this purpose. The Registrant acknowledged the Inspector's findings.
5. On July 25, 2001 the Registrant was again visited to ensure that the compliance issues noted during the April 18, 2001 visit had been corrected. The visit revealed that cash payments were not identified on deposit slips, therefore making it impossible to determine if all customer monies are deposited intact. The Registrant was asked to identify all customer deposits, for both cash and cheques, for the months of June and July 2001, as required by the Regulation, for the Inspector's return visit. The Registrant acknowledged the Inspectors findings.

6. On November 22, 2001, the Registrant was visited by TICO's Inspector to ensure that the compliance issues noted in the April and July 2001 inspection visits were corrected. The visit revealed that the Registrant had issued cheques that had been returned NSF (non-sufficient funds) by the bank for the trust account, for September 2001. The Registrant was asked to provide TICO with its Travel Industry Act Trust Account bank statement for the month of October 2001. The Registrant was also asked to provide trust account reconciliations for the months of September and October 2001, with details of the NSF cheques written on the trust account in September 2001. This Information was due by November 30, 2001. The Registrant acknowledged the required documentation during the visit.
7. To date the Registrant has failed to provide TICO with the required information.
8. It is therefore the opinion of the Registrar that the Registrant's registration should be revoked.

THE LAW:

Section 3 of the Travel Industry Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

(1) No person shall act or hold himself, herself or itself out as being available to act as a travel agent unless the person is registered as a travel agent by the Registrar.

(2) No person shall act or hold himself, herself or itself out as being available to act as a travel wholesaler unless the person is registered as a travel wholesaler by the Registrar.

Section 4 of the Travel Industry Act (the "Act"), states as follows;

4(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration as a travel agent or travel wholesaler by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to his, her or its financial position, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of his, her or its business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he, she or it will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and,

(i) is incorporated without share capital, or

- (ii) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or
- (iii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

Section 5 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 4.

(2) Subject to section 6, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 4 if he, she or it were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing, and on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out his or her proposal or refrain from carrying out his or her proposal and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

(5) the Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

With respect to the ambit of review for this hearing, the leading authority, which has been followed in numerous cases, is the Divisional Court decision of Brenner, reported in 19 CRAT 58. This decision, within the context of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, held that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it is of the opinion that the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The authority of the Tribunal under Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act respecting the proposal of the Registrar was reviewed by Southey J. where he stated at page 60:

The effect of Section 7 (4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

This Decision was confirmed by the Divisional Court in Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050, where it stated at page 1051:

. . . that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

As a result of the above and a line of cases following that reasoning, to overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that the Registrar was wrong in his decision. It must find that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its regulations. The Tribunal must not concern itself with its own opinion of whether or not the Applicant has reformed.

In this case, the Tribunal must examine the past conduct of the Applicant and the decision of the Registrar to come to a conclusion as to whether or not the past conduct of the Applicant would afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant, having regard to its financial position, cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of their business and would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty in the future.

ISSUES:

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar had sufficient grounds for revoking the registration of the Registrant on the basis that the Registrant's past conduct constituted failure to comply with the requirements of the Act and the regulations respecting the filing of financial statements, operation of the Trust Account and maintaining working capital requirements.

EVIDENCE:

Registrar's Evidence:

The evidence of the respondent was given by Mr. Jack Foster. Mr. Foster is a Certified Management Accountant and has been an inspector for the Registrar since May 1993.

As an inspector, Mr. Foster's duties include:

- Analyzing financial statements;
- Conducting on-site inspections;
- Attends to trust fund closures;

He estimated that he had reviewed approximately ten-thousand-five-hundred financial statements in his career. He has conducted over five-hundred inspections for the Registrar.

On April 18, 2001, Mr. Foster inspected the Books and Records of Ocean Access. As a designate of the Registrar, he is entitled to attend upon the premises of a registrant to make an inspection to ensure compliance with the Travel Industry Act (the “Act”) and the associated Regulations (the “Regulations”). This inspection power is provided in Section 16 of the Act. Section 37 of the Regulations to the Act sets out the record keeping requirements of registrants.

The Act sets out the Trust Account requirements of registrants. Mr. Foster testified that all customer funds received must be deposited into a trust account within two banking days. The Regulations require that the trust account, of which there may only be one without the consent of the Registrar, be designated as the Travel Industry Act trust account. Funds are to remain in the trust account until the travel services are to be paid or a refund is to be given to the customer. Expense items related to the operation of the agency are not to be dispersed from the trust account.

The working capital requirements of a registrant are found in Section 25 of the Regulations. When Mr. Foster conducts a working capital analysis it is done by subtracting current liabilities from current assets.

During the April 18, 2001 inspection, Mr. Foster observed the Applicant’s trust account to be overdrawn or in a negative cash position. He stated that if the trust accounts are maintained properly and in accordance with the Regulations, this situation should not occur. He also observed that there appeared to be insufficient cash in the general account to meet the working capital requirements of the Regulations.

His inspection also revealed that cash receipts were not being immediately deposited into the trust account. They were being used to pay for travel services. As a result, there was no “audit trail”. As a result of this inspection, a number of concerns and infractions were noted including:

- Failure to promptly deposit funds received into bank accounts;
- Failure to have purchaser names and addresses on all invoices;
- Failure to put business name and TICO number as registered on all invoices;
- Failure to maintain working capital;
- Failure to deposit funds within two banking days;
- Payments from trust account for non-trust related items;
- Unclear banking records.

Mr. Foster also noted that employees appeared to be using their personal credit cards to secure bookings for clients.

At the conclusion on the inspection, Mr. Foster reviewed the requirements with Mr. Kumar Shanthakumar, the manager. Mr. Shanthakumar acknowledged these findings and he signed the Inspection Findings report on behalf of the Applicant. In that report, it indicates that Mr. Foster will return in three months to follow-up on the compliance issues.

On July 25, 2001, Mr. Foster returned to the Applicant business to review the books and records. He observed that the banking records remained incomplete and the working capital requirements were still not being met.

Mr. Foster returned again to the Applicant business on November 22, 2001. As a result of his observations from that inspection, he wrote an Inspection Report dated November 27, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 17). His findings were as follows:

- The General account and Trust account had a combined balance of $27.14. Mr. Foster concluded from this state of affairs that the working capital requirements of the Regulations were not being maintained.
- NSF cheques were returned on Travel Industry Act trust account on September 17, 2001 for $3,588.00 (cheque 211) and on September 19, 2001 for $3,588.00 (cheque 212). The amount was cleared by cheque 213 on September 25, 2001. All three cheques were to Air Link Travel.
- ABM withdrawals without supporting documentation were made on two occasions during October 2001 (October 24, 2001 - $1,000.00 and October 26, 2001 - $780.00)
- Customer deposit position reports were not available during the inspection
- Customer addresses were not shown on all invoices.

The NSF cheques were of some particular concern. Mr. Foster noted that several deposits were made between September 12, 2001 and September 21, 2001 to boost the trust account balance to permit the cheque to Air Link to clear.

This inspection generated an Inspection Findings report (Exhibit 3, Tab 16). Mr. Foster required the Applicant to fulfill the following reporting requirements no later than November 30, 2001:

1. On receipt October 31 Travel Industry Trust Account Statement, it is to be faxed to TICO;
2. Customer Deposit Position Reports for September & October to be faxed to TICO with (1);
3. Deposit details for Trust on September 12, September 14 and September 21 are to be sent to TICO/also deposit details on General;
4. Details of NSF cheques (Trust) #211 & #212 to be sent to TICO;
5. Details of ABM withdrawals (General) for October 24 /01 - $1,000.00 and October 26 - $780 are to be sent to TICO.

As of the date of this hearing, none of those items had been sent as required to TICO.

During the inspection, Mr. Foster asked what was available as accounts receivable and was advised that there were essentially none. He concluded that the business had insufficient working capital as required by the Regulations and that the Applicant posed a threat to the Compensation Fund.

Applicant's Evidence

Mr. Tham Shanthakumar gave evidence on behalf of the Applicant. Mr. Shanthakumar is the Manager of the Applicant, Ocean Access Travel Connection.

Mr. Shanthakumar reviewed the Inspection Findings report of the April 18, 2001 inspection prepared by Mr. Foster. He stated that some of the Applicant's customers do not like to give their names and addresses. They maintained phone numbers as records of customers. He suggested that indicating customer names on invoices would result in lost business.

With respect to the practice of employees booking trips with their cards, he indicated that the Applicant business did not have a corporate credit card. They did this because many charter companies would not accept cheques to book trips. This practice was eventually stopped by Ocean Access.

Mr. Shanthakumar provided a February 15, 2002 invoice from the Applicant (Exhibit 4). This document reveals how an invoice looks where a credit card payment is made. When a credit card is used, the total amount due indicates $0.00. This was compared to a cash deal such as is indicated at Exhibit 3, Tab 11. A cash transaction on the Internet-based Sabrenet generates a total amount due number. When these were paid in cash, the customer's copy would be marked as paid in full.

Mr. Shanthakumar explained that the Air Link cheques that were returned NSF from the trust account was the result of the Air Link owner being away on holidays at the relevant time. Apparently, a practice had evolved where Air Link would hold cheques from the Applicant for 5-7 days upon receipt before cashing them at the bank. However, in this case, the owner of Air Link was away and the employees cashed the cheques issued by the Applicant without any waiting period.

As regards the Inspection Report located at Exhibit 3, Tab 17, Mr. Shanthakumar stated that they now retain all deposit records made at ABMs and attach them to deposit slips. Mr. Shanthakumar explained the two ABM transactions that were referred to in that report as follows:

- The $780.00 was his pay which he withdrew in cash;
- The $1,000.00 was deposited into the trust account the same day by ABM.

Mr. Shanthakumar confirmed that the Applicant had not fulfilled the requirements of Mr. Foster's November 22, 2001 inspection. He stated that he left the country on November 26, 2001 and did not return until January 18, 2002.

The witness stated that the events of September 11, 2001 had depressed sales in September and October 2001.

The Applicant now has a new bookkeeper.

On cross-examination, Mr. Shanthakumar indicated that a Ragabavan Logosundranam was acting as manager at the Applicant's place of business. The Applicant, as required by the Regulations at Section 16, did not advise TICO of this change.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The facts found by the Tribunal are as follows:

- 1) On April 18, 2001, July 25, 2001 and November 22, 2001, inspections were carried out at Ocean Access.
- 2) The first inspection revealed incomplete banking records, delays in depositing customer funds beyond two days, improper invoicing and improper use of the trust account to pay operational expenses.
- 3) The second visit revealed that cash payments received from customers were not being adequately recorded, June and July 2001 deposits to the Trust account were not adequately recorded and majority of invoices were still missing.
- 4) The final inspection revealed inadequate records regarding customer deposit positions, incomplete records with respect to trust and general account deposits and several NSF cheques on the trust account in September 2001. Ocean Access was required to provide details by no later than November 30, 2001 on the shortcomings revealed in that inspection. Those details have not been provided to date.
- 5) The final inspection indicated that, at least of September 2001, the Applicant did not have sufficient working capital as required by the Regulations.
- 6) Cheques were issued from the Trust Account in September 2001 for which funds were not then available in the trust account.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Under section 5 of the Act, the Registrar may revoke registration for any reason that would disentitle an Applicant to registration under section 4, and section 4, among other things, requires a reasonable expectation of financial responsibility in the conduct of business and that business be conducted in accordance with the law.

The Tribunal is mindful that the tragic events of September 11, 2001 had an undoubted effect on the whole of the travel industry. However, in this case, the breaches of the Regulations were first observed in April 2001. Some were corrected by the follow-up inspection in July 2001. However, problems continued to persist and, in fact, were much worse and more serious by the final November inspection. Most troubling is the occasional negative balances and NSF cheques with respect to the Trust Account. A properly maintained trust account should not have negative balances or NSF cheques. This is of concern to the Tribunal because, despite three inspections, the issues remained and became worse over time. Rather than observing a gradual improvement in compliance, there was a rather precipitous decline.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not be financially responsible in the conduct of the business or would not carry on business with integrity, honesty, and in accordance with the law. The persistent inadequacies of the Applicant's record-keeping, together with the inappropriate maintenance and usage of the trust account afforded the Registrar sufficient evidence to conclude that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity, honesty and in accordance with the law. The very low working capital levels afforded the Registrar with sufficient evidence to conclude that the Applicant could not reasonably be expected to be financially responsible. The failure to observe the imposed and accepted time limits for the furnishing of documentation and the failure to keep TICO advised of managerial changes reflect a cavalier attitude to the regulatory duties carried out by TICO.

On the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 6(4) of the Travel Industry Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicant.

Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

1306609 Ontario Inc. and Bradin Wayne Easterbrook (the "Applicants") appeal the Proposal of the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar" and "Act") to revoke the Applicants' registration as dealer and as salesperson of motor vehicles, respectively. The Proposal was issued on August 3, 2001 in terms of section 7.(1) of the Act and the Registrar bases his Proposal on section 5 (1) (b) (c) (ii) and (d) of the Act.

The Registrar takes the position that the Applicants' registrations should be revoked as the Applicants' past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that they will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; further the Applicants are carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the Applicants are registered, in contravention of the Act and regulations.

The reasons given by the Registrar in his Proposal to Revoke the registrations of both Applicants are as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentanglement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register 1306609 Ontario Inc. o/a Auto Wholesale and Bradin Wayne Easterbrook under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The Registrar's Proposal to Revoke gives the following particulars regarding the reasons for the Proposal:

1. On or about September 24, 1998, Bradin Wayne Easterbrook ("Easterbrook") was registered as a motor vehicle salesperson.
2. On or about September 24, 1998, 1306609 Ontario Inc. o/a Auto Wholesale (the "Dealer") was registered as a motor vehicle dealer. At all material times Easterbrook was the controlling mind of the Dealer. Easterbrook on behalf of the Dealer executed a Wholesale Affidavit, which included the following clauses:
 - A) That the declarant Motor Vehicle Dealer shall conduct business operations from commercial premises which are not in contravention of any municipal by-laws or provincial statutes and for which a letter of business from the municipality is included with this application for registration.
 - B) That all books and records required to be kept by the Motor Vehicle Dealer Act or other records relating to the business operation of the dealership be maintained and stored at the commercial business premises. At no time will the books and records of the business nor the motor vehicles owned by the business be stored and maintained or offered for sale from residential property.
 - C) ... and further that a violation of the terms and conditions of this declaration shall be sufficient grounds for revocation of the dealer's registration in accordance with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (by the Registrar).
3. On or about June 2, 2000 a representative of the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer was not present and did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act").
4. On or about September 24, 2000 pursuant to section 13(1) of Regulation 801 of the Act, the Dealer's registration lapsed. The Dealer's Registration was subsequently renewed on or about October 17, 2000.
5. On or about November 7, 2000 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer was not present and did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary to the Act. Pursuant to section 13(3) of Regulation 801 of the Act, the Dealer's conditional registration was cancelled.
6. On or about December 7, 2000 a representative of the Registrar met with Easterbrook at the Dealer's registered premises and found that in contravention of the Act, the Dealer did not have complete books and records, an office or a sign identifying the dealership. At that time Easterbrook was provided with Inspection Findings, which stated that the Act required him to maintain an office, a clearly visible sign and all books and records at his registered premises.
7. On or about December 14, 2000 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer was not present, did not have an office and had not erected a sign identifying the dealership contrary to the Act.

8. On or about December 20, 2000 the Dealer re-applied for registration attaching signed terms and conditions, which included the following clause:
 - A) The Dealer agrees to operate exclusively from the location approved by the Registrar. The Dealer agrees to apply for the Registrar's approval, by way of prior written notice, of any changes in employment location in the form required by the Registrar. The Dealer further agrees to store all books and records at the registered premises and to display a sign that is visible to the public, stating the dealership name.
9. On or about March 14, 2001 a representative of the Registrar attended at the Dealer's registered premises and found that the Dealer was not present, did not have an office and had not erected a sign, which was clearly visible to the public identifying the dealership contrary to the Act.
10. By letter dated May 28, 2001 a representative of the Registrar requested that the Dealer attend at the Registrar's offices on June 25, 2001 for the purpose of conducting an inspection of the Dealer's books and records. All three letters sent via registered mail to the Dealer's registered address and the registered addresses of Easterbrook were returned unopened. To date, the Dealer has not provided the Registrar with complete access to his books and records.
11. The Dealer has failed to operate from his registered premises contrary to the Act.
12. The Dealer and Easterbrook have failed to comply with the Act and its Regulations.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence of the Registrar consisted of documents as well as the testimony of Louise Gingras and Amanda Leedempsey. The evidence of the Applicants consisted of the testimony of Bradin Wayne Easterbrook.

Testimony of Louise Gingras

Ms. Gingras testified that she is an inspector with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). Her duties include making inspections of Registrants and their premises to ensure compliance with the Act and regulations. She was entrusted with OMVIC's file relating to the Applicants and is familiar with that file.

She testified that both Applicants were presently registered under the Act, Bradin Wayne Easterbrook ("Easterbrook") as a salesperson of motor vehicles and 1306609 Ontario Inc. (the "Corporation") as a motor vehicle dealer. On August 12, 1998, Easterbrook, in his capacity as director of the Corporation, signed an affidavit in which the Corporation undertook that it would conduct business from commercial premises not in contravention of any municipal by laws or provincial statutes; do keep all books and records required under the Act to be maintained and stored at the Corporation's commercial business premises and not on residential property and if these terms were violated, such violation would be sufficient grounds for the Corporation's registration being revoked by the Registrar.

Gingras further testified that on June 2, 2000 she attended at the Corporation's registered premises at 715 Speedvale Road West, Guelph and found that the dealer was not occupying such premises and was using that address only as a mail drop. Furthermore, Easterbrook was not to be found nor was there a sign identifying the Corporation.

A "trade freeze" was placed upon the Corporation but this was lifted by the Registrar and the Corporation was permitted to trade.

On November 7, 2000 Gingras again attended at 715 Speedvale Road West, Guelph and found there was no sign on the premises identifying the Corporation, that the premises were being occupied by a firm called Hydra Air and that within the latter's firm's offices on the premises there was a desk for the use of the Corporation. Easterbrook was not present. Gingras was informed by a person on the premises that Easterbrook uses someone to pick up mail for Easterbrook or the Corporation.

On December 7, 2000 Gingras again visited 715 Speedvale Road West, Guelph and noted on entry that there was no sign on the premises identifying the Corporation. Gingras however met Easterbrook inside the building and he produced from his jacket pocket a plastic sign with the Corporation's name on it.

Easterbrook told Gingras he could not use the offices, which were occupied by Hydra Air, as it was having a meeting. Gingras and Easterbrook proceeded to a donut shop for Gingras to inspect the books and records of the Corporation. Easterbrook had advised Gingras that he had all the books and records with him. When they arrived at the donut shop Easterbrook did not have any current records with him and the financial records were either missing or incomplete. An arrangement was made that Gingras and Easterbrook meet again so as to enable Gingras to inspect all books and records. The written inspection findings of Gingras were left with Easterbrook who sign a receipt for same. The inspection findings reiterated the requirement to maintain an office on the registered premises, to have a sign clearly visible on the premises and to have all books and records on the premises.

At that time the registered premises of the Corporation were moved from 715 Speedvale Road West, Guelph to 94 Gordon Street, Guelph. When on December 14, 2000 Gingras visited the premises at 94 Gordon Street, Guelph she was unable to find the Corporation at that address and there was no sign at the premises identifying the Corporation. Easterbrook could not be found at or about the address.

Gingras managed to speak with Easterbrook who told her he was not able to provide her with the Corporation's books and records and on December 20, 2000 Easterbrook signed certain written "terms and conditions". Two of such terms and conditions read:

- c) The Dealer agrees to maintain a garage register in accordance with the Highway Traffic Act and will maintain all books and records as required. The Dealer further agrees to store his books and records at the location approved by the Registrar.
- f) The Dealer agrees to operate exclusively from the location approved by the Registrar. The Dealer agrees to apply for the Registrar's approval, by way of prior written notice, of any change in employment location in the form required by the Registrar. The Dealer further agrees to store all books and records at the registered premises and to display a sign that is visible to the public, stating the dealership name.

On March 14, 2001 Gingras attended at a residential apartment building at 108 Surrey Street East, Guelph to attempt to speak with Easterbrook. She could not find Easterbrook but Gingras did go "downstairs" in the building where she found washers and dryers and two hot water tanks. There were no books and records seen by Gingras nor were there desks or filing cabinets seen as well as there being no sign. On March 15, 2001, Easterbrook called Gingras to offer an excuse for not meeting her on March 14, 2001 and advised Gingras that he would be away for next two weeks but would contact her on his return.

Easterbrook did not contact Gingras as promised and on May 28, 2001 a letter was sent by registered mail to Easterbrook requesting him to attend at OMVIC's offices on June 25, 2001 at 1:00 p.m. Easterbrook did not attend at OMVIC's offices and has not provided OMVIC with the books and records of the Corporation to date.

Testimony of Amanda Leedempsey

Ms. Leedempsey testified that she is the Manager of Inspections at OMVIC and that she reviews problem files.

She stated that OMVIC was created in 1997 as a non profit corporation with authority and delegated responsibility of administering the Act and its regulations. She also explained that the Act is a consumer protection statute.

Ms. Leedempsey explained the reasons for the Registrar's proposal to revoke the registrations of both the Corporation and Easterbrook. She also stated that an Applicant when submitting an application for registration gives an address from which the Applicant undertakes to trade once registered and that registration is specific to that address. A registrant has five days after changing the registered address within which to advise OMVIC in writing of such change. The original address of the Corporation was 715 Speedvale Road West, Guelph which address was changed on December 12, 2000 to 94 Gordon Road, Guelph.

Ms. Leedempsey confirmed that the original application of the Corporation for registration as a dealer was accompanied by an undertaking by Easterbrook dated August 12, 1998.

In December 2000 the Corporation agreed to enter into “terms and conditions” with the Registrar and signed same. The Corporation and Easterbrook had failed to abide by certain items of the terms and conditions namely to maintain a garage register and books and records as well as to store such books and records at the premises at which the Corporation was registered.

Testimony of Bradin Wayne Easterbrook

In his testimony Easterbrook stated that he is the sole shareholder and director of the Corporation.

In his further testimony Easterbrook did not take issue with the evidence of either Gingras or of Leedempsey.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts that were found proven in this matter.

5. The Corporation failed to operate the business of a motor vehicle dealership from premises approved by the Registrar, as required by the Act.

hearing by the Tribunal if the applicant or registrant mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Registrar and the Tribunal, and the applicant or registrant may so require a hearing.

Section 5.(1) of the Act states:

- 5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,
- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

.....

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar to prove that the past conduct of the Applicants affords reasonable grounds for the belief that the Applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen) [1983] O.J. No. 1017, April 7, 1983, it was clearly stated that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its Regulations.

The Tribunal's conclusions and the reasons for its conclusions, based on the evidence, follow.

The evidence of Louise Gingras, which the Tribunal accepts, was that she, in her capacity as an inspector with OMVIC, visited the Corporation's registered address on five separate occasions between June 2000 and May 2001. The purpose of her visits was to ensure that the Applicants were in compliance with the Act and its regulations. On each and every occasion that Ms. Gingras visited the Applicants' registered premises she was unable to inspect the books and records of the Corporation as they were either incomplete, not available for inspection or not at the registered premises of the Corporation. Further, on her visits to the registered address of the Corporation there was no sign erected and visible that identified the Corporation's name. In addition, the Corporation did not have an office at the registered premises of the Corporation.

In a short period of time after obtaining registration, the Applicants were repeatedly not complying with the Act and its regulations. The investigator, Ms. Gingras, was patient and tireless in her pursuit of obtaining the Applicants' compliance with the Act. After each visit by Ms. Gingras to the Applicants, they made no effort to comply with the requirements of the Act and regulations. Easterbrook, in his evidence, conceded that there was no compliance and offered no excuse for the Applicants' failure. He conceded that he was at all material times the sole Director of the Corporation as well as its controlling mind, and he is responsible for the Corporation's failure to comply with the Act and its regulations. The failure to comply with the Act and its regulations was not an isolated incident but an ongoing course of conduct. This reflects an inability or unwillingness of the Applicants to carry out business in accordance with law. Without the cooperation of the Applicants, the Registrar was severely handicapped in its duty to ensure compliance by the Applicants with the Act and its regulations and thereby protect the consumer from potential harm.

The Tribunal accordingly finds that the Applicants past conduct affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated August 3, 2001 to revoke the registrations of the Bradin Wayne Easterbrook and 1306609 Ontario Inc. as motor vehicle salesperson and motor vehicle dealer under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, as amended.

APPEARANCES:

CONSTANTIN TOFAN and DUMITREL TOFAN, Applicants, appearing on their own behalf

Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: April 29 and 30, 2002 TORONTO

DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

Constantin Tofan ("Constantin") and Dumitrel Tofan ("Dumitrel") collectively referred to as the Applicants, appeal the Proposal of the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") to revoke their registrations as motor vehicle dealer and salesperson respectively, under the Act. The Proposal was issued on December 21, 2001 in terms of section 7.(1) of the Act and the Registrar bases his Proposal on section 5.(1) (a) (b) and (d) of the Act.

The Registrar takes the position that the Applicants' registrations should be revoked as their past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that they will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; further, that the Applicants cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that they are carrying on activities that are in contravention of the Act and its regulations.

The reasons given by the Registrar in his Proposal for revocation of the Applicants' registrations, are as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentanglement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Constantin Tofan o/a C & D Motors and Dumitrele under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

On or about July 25, 2001 the Salesperson sold the vehicle on behalf of the Dealer to Charles Walsh without disclosing that the true kilometres were unknown thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance travelled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was branded as salvage.
4. On or about March 20, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1994 Pontiac VIN 1G2WJ52M6RF232055 from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. The vehicle was branded as salvage and the odometer reading on the vehicle at the time of purchase was 222,110. On or about August 15, 2001 the Salesperson sold the vehicle on behalf of the Dealer to Brian Krompass with distance travelled indicated as 153,234 kilometers thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance travelled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was branded as salvage.
5. On or about July 12, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1995 Ford VIN 1FALP52U0SG118362 from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. The vehicle was salvaged and the odometer reading on the vehicle at the time of purchase was 163,594 "The True Distance Travelled is UNKNOWN". On or about August 17, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to Suzanne Hughes without disclosing that the true kilometres were unknown thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance travelled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was previously a salvage vehicle.
6. On or about June 28, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1992 Oldsmobile VIN 1G3AM51NXN6399276 from Impact Auto Auctions Ltd. The vehicle was a theft recovery and the odometer reading on the vehicle

- at the time of purchase was 226,559 "TKU". On or about August 22, 2001 the Salesperson sold the vehicle on behalf of the Dealer to Ehab Elsaadawy without disclosing that the true kilometres were unknown thereby misrepresenting to the purchaser the true distance travelled. The Dealer also failed to disclose on the bill of sale that the vehicle was a theft recovery.
7. On or about September 6, 2001 the Dealer purchased a 1993 Pontiac VIN 1G2JC51HXP7503683. The vehicle had frame damage at the time of purchase. On or about September 13, 2001 the Dealer sold the vehicle to 135331234 Ontario Inc. o/a Sam Auto Sale without disclosing to the purchaser that the vehicle had frame damage.
 8. The Dealer has failed to comply with the requirements of the Retail Sales Tax Act as to the filing of returns, remitting of tax due and paying assessments when due.
 9. As a result of failure to comply with the Retail Sales Tax Act, the Dealer is indebted to the Ministry of Finance in the amount of $18,180.81.
 10. The Salesperson and the Dealer have failed to comply with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, in particular section 5.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence of the Registrar consisted of documentation as well as the testimony of Louise Gingras and Mary Jane South. The evidence of the Applicants consisted of their testimony.

Testimony of Louise Gingras

Ms. Gingras testified that she is employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") as a field inspector and has been so employed over the past four and one half years. She stated that OMVIC is a non-profit organization which is empowered to administer the Act and its regulations and to ensure compliance with that Act and regulations by motor vehicle dealers and salespersons appointed as such under the Act.

Her duties include the inspection of motor vehicle dealers' books, records and premises to ensure compliance with the Act.

In the course of her employment, Ms. Gingras has become familiar with the Applicants' business. On September 18, 2000 she conducted an inspection at 450 Beach Road, Hamilton, Ontario which is the registered address of the dealership operated by Constantin under the style and name of C & D Motors and where his brother Dumitrel works as a registered salesperson. During the inspection Ms. Gingras inspected the books and records of the business, as well as certain bills of sale entered into during the previous five months, and the garage register.

Ms. Gingras stated that present at this inspection were both Constantin and Dumitrel. During her inspection she determined that the dealership sells "salvage" vehicles after repairing them in a body shop on premises. She was told that such cars are sold as "accident repairs". Ms. Gingras pointed out to the Applicants that when selling these vehicles, there was to be disclosure by the dealership of material facts regarding the vehicles' condition and that it must be disclosed on the bills of sale if the vehicle was "salvage or insurance write off". She noted that the dealership is not a structural inspection station. Ms. Gingras also noted during the inspection, that many vehicles purchased by the dealership had been purchased at auctions conducted by Impact Auto Auctions ("Impact") and that, as vehicles had been sold as salvage to the dealership, she had concerns whether consumers who purchased such vehicles from the dealership were aware that they were purchasing salvage vehicles.

Testimony of Jean Cameron

Following the inspection of September 18, 2000 by Ms. Gingras, a further inspection of the dealership was made on August 28, 2001 by Jean Cameron. Ms. Cameron is employed by OMVIC as an inspector.

Ms. Cameron testified that at this inspection she spoke with Constantin and Dumitrel and explained that she wished to inspect the garage register and the bills of sale entered into by the dealership during the last three months. She was shown files containing wholesale bills of sale when motor vehicles were purchased by the dealership at auctions and bills of sale when vehicles were sold by the dealership to the public. The latter bills of sale were referred to as retail bills of sale. Ms. Cameron chose 17 transactions, all but one of which related to "salvage" vehicles. Of the 17 transactions only three retail bills of sale had disclosure on the bills that the vehicles being sold by the dealership were salvage. In answer to Ms. Cameron's query why only three bills of sale contained disclosure, she was told by Dumitrel that customers were told verbally. She was also informed that Dumitrel attended to most of the retail sale transactions, while Constantin "dealt at auction" when the vehicles were purchased. Ms. Cameron stated that some of the wholesale bills of sale were stamped "TKU", but there was no note on the corresponding retail bill of sale that the true distance travelled was unknown. Constantin advised Ms. Cameron that frequently when Impact stamped a wholesale bill of sale "TKU", there was nothing wrong with the vehicle's odometer.

Ms. Cameron further stated that when inspecting the 17 transactions she noticed that one transaction related to a 1994 Pontiac Grand Prix (Exhibit 3, Tab 8). She noted that this vehicle had been purchased by the dealership on March 20, 2001 and the odometer reading of the vehicle on the wholesale bill of sale was 222,110 kilometers. She also noted that the copy of the retail bill of sale stated, when on August 15, 2001, the dealership sold this vehicle to Brian Krompass, that the "distance travelled" by the vehicle was 153,234 kilometers. She further noted that the wholesale bill of sale stated that the vehicle was branded as "salvage", which fact was not recorded on the retail bill of sale when the vehicle was sold to Brian Krompass.

During the inspection Constantin informed her that the dealership was "behind" in paying retail sales tax and thought "16,000.00 to $18,000.00" was owing. He stated further that arrangements had been made for "repayment".

Ms. Cameron stated that at the conclusion of the inspection she removed documents relating to the 17 transactions. Of these 17 transactions, there are four that are referred to in the Registrar's Proposal and form part of the allegations made against the Applicants.

Ms. Cameron testified regarding the four transactions, as follows.

The first transaction related to a 1991 Ford Tempo motor vehicle that the dealership purchased at an auction conducted by Impact on June 28, 2001. The wholesale bill of sale of Impact reflects that the vehicle was branded as "salvage" and across the face of the bill of sale there was stamped "TKU". The vehicle was subsequently sold by the dealership to Charles Walsh under a retail bill of sale dated July 25, 2001. The latter bill of sale made no reference to the vehicle being branded "salvage" or to the letters "TKU". The retail bill of sale was signed by Dumitrel on behalf of the dealership.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 7)

The second transaction related to a 1994 Pontiac Grand Prix motor vehicle that the dealership purchased at an auction conducted by Impact on March 20, 2001. The wholesale bill of sale of Impact reflects that the vehicle was branded as "salvage". The vehicle was subsequently sold by the dealership to Brian Krompass under a retail bill of sale dated August 15, 2001. The latter bill of sale made no reference to the vehicle being branded "salvage". The retail bill of sale was signed by Dumitrel on behalf of the dealership.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 8)

The third transaction related to a 1995 Ford Taurus motor vehicle that the dealership purchased at an auction conducted by Impact on July 12, 2001. The wholesale bill of sale of Impact is stamped with the words "The true distance travelled is unknown. It may be in excess of that which is recorded". The odometer reading on the wholesale bill of sale of Impact, reflects 163,594 kilometers. This figure is shown on the dealer's retail bill of sale of August 17, 2001 when the dealer sold the vehicle to Suzanne Hughes. However, the latter bill of sale makes no mention of, nor does it disclose, the contents of the stamped note on Impact's wholesale bill of sale. The retail bill of sale was signed by Constantin on behalf of the dealership.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 9)

The fourth transaction to which Ms. Cameron made reference, related to a 1992 Oldsmobile Cutless Ciera motor vehicle that the dealership purchased at an auction conducted by Impact on June 28, 2001. Impact's wholesale bill of sale reflects that there is a large stamp across the face of the bill of sale containing the letters "TKU". The retail bill of sale was signed by Dumitrel on behalf of the dealership. The odometer reading recorded on the wholesale bill of sale was 226,559 kilometers and this figure was contained in the retail bill of sale under "distance travelled". However, no mention or disclosure of the letters "TKU" was contained in the dealership's retail bill of sale when it sold the vehicle to Ehab Elsaadawy on August 22, 2001.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 10)

Ms. Cameron stated that she was concerned with the lack of proper disclosure by the dealership and pointed to OMVIC's publication titled "Standards of Business Practice" which had been sent to all registered dealers and salespersons. She stated that paragraphs 2.2.3 and 2.2.4 of that publication reads as follows:

2.2.3. Where a Dealer knows, or has reasonable grounds to believe that the distance shown on an odometer is not accurate, the purchaser is notified. Where this is the case, the contract includes one of the following plain language statements on the front of the contract:

- (a) "The true distance traveled is unknown, but is believed to be in excess of {estimate of distance traveled} which was recorded on {date}".
- (b) "The true distance traveled is unknown, but is believed to be substantially higher than that shown on the odometer".

2.2.4 Further to section 2.2.3, Dealers do not use abbreviations when disclosing the fact that an odometer does not accurately reflect the true distance traveled by a motor vehicle. Examples of prohibited abbreviations include: "T.K.U." and "T.M.U."

Testimony of Ralph Bayley

Ralph Bayley testified that he is an inspector with OMVIC and his duties include "following up" on inspections already made by other inspectors.

After receiving files containing 17 transactions from Ms. Cameron, Bayley forwarded questionnaires to the 17 retail purchasers. Only six of the purchasers returned their completed questionnaires to OMVIC. The completed questionnaires were returned by Charles Walsh, Brian Krompass, Suzanne Hughes, and Ehab Elsaadawy.

Bayley stated, in regard to Walsh's completed questionnaire, that Walsh contended that when he purchased from the dealership neither the salesperson nor the dealer indicated anything regarding the odometer reading or mileage of the vehicle; that nothing was told to him regarding the vehicle's structural or mechanical condition; that no information was given to him as to whether the vehicle was branded as salvage, an accident repaired vehicle, an insurance write off or a rebuilt vehicle.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 7, last 2 pages)

Bayley further stated that in regard to Brian Krompass' completed questionnaire, the latter person contended that at the time of sale neither, the dealer nor the salesperson indicated anything to him as to the vehicle's odometer reading or the mileage.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 8, third last page)

Bayley continued that in regard to Suzanne Hughes' completed questionnaire, she stated that at the time of sale neither the dealer nor the salesperson indicated anything to him regarding the vehicle's odometer reading or mileage.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 9, third last page)

Bayley also testified that in regard to Ehab Elsaadawy's completed questionnaire, the latter person stated that at the time of sale neither the dealer nor the salesperson indicated anything to him regarding the vehicle's odometer reading or mileage.

Testimony of Mary Jane South

Ms. South testified that she is the Deputy Registrar under the Act and her duties include overseeing the registration of dealers and salespersons as well as the administration of the Act. She also testified that OMVIC is a non-profit organization and is authorized to administer the Act and ensures compliance with the Act.

Ms. South reviewed the Proposal and expressed her concerns regarding the various aspects of non-disclosure by the dealer and salesperson. She was also concerned in regard to the dealer's failure to submit Retail Sales Tax to the Department of Finance.

Regarding the unpaid Retail Sales Tax, Ms. South referred to the letter of July 27, 2001 addressed to OMVIC by the Ministry of Finance, from which letter and attachment she quoted. The Ministry of Finance stated in its communication of July 27, 2001 that the dealer had a poor record of compliance since April 1997; that the Ministry had received several NSF cheques from the dealer; that the dealer's account was referred for collection in April 1997; that the Vendor made certain payments and signed Terms and Conditions, after which NSF cheques had been received; that following garnishment in April, 2000 a small amount was received from the dealer; that the dealer entered into another arrangement which he had broken and that $18,000.00 remained outstanding. The dealer continued to refuse to remit Retail Sales Tax while he continued to collect tax on the sale of motor vehicles.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 10)

Ms. South stated that the Retail Sales Tax collected by the dealer was collected in trust for the Ministry and the failure to submit these funds is indicative of the dealer's financial instability.

In so far the allegations of non-disclosure are concerned Ms. South stated that the dealer is aware of the disclosure requirements as all dealers were sent OMVIC's Standard of Business Practice of November 2000, which contained by-laws applicable to all members of OMVIC. Included in these Standards is a section on "Disclosure" which Ms. South reviewed. She specifically referenced section 2.2.3 and section 2.2.4. She stated that the dealer had repeatedly breached these subsections and thereby had failed to make disclosure. She also stated that critical to a decision by the purchaser of a motor vehicle, is full disclosure of the distance travelled by the vehicle or, if this is unknown, a statement to that effect. She concluded her testimony by stating that apart from any statutory obligation of disclosure by a dealer, there is the aspect of fundamental honesty and integrity of a dealer who must make material disclosures to a purchaser which could affect his decision regarding the purchase of a vehicle. Ms. South stated that the wording "Branded" indicated that the vehicle was "salvage" or, not economically repairable, alternatively irreparable or rebuilt by a licensed structural inspection station.

Testimony of DumitreI Tofan

DumitreI stated in his evidence that if a motor vehicle was sold as "branded" it would mean that there would be a "slight difference" in its value when compared to a vehicle that had not been branded. He indicated the difference could be between 10% and 25%.

He stated that he did not disclose to purchasers that a vehicle's true kilometres were unknown. He did not feel it necessary to make this known to a purchaser by writing it on the bill of sale. He conceded that he successfully passed OMVIC's Automotive Certification course conducted by Georgian College. This course covered, amongst other aspects, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. He was familiar with the Act.

DumitreI confirmed that he sold a 1991 Ford Tempo to Charles Walsh after it was purchased by Constantin at an auto auction. He also conceded that the wholesale bill of sale had the letters "TKU" stamped across its face and that the dealer's retail bill of sale to Walsh did not contain "TKU".

(Exhibit 3, Tab 7)

He confirmed that the wholesale bill of sale of Impact, when the 1994 Pontiac Grand Prix was sold to Constantin by the dealer, stated that the vehicle's odometer read 222,110 kilometers. He also confirmed that when the dealer sold the vehicle to Brian Krompass the bill of sale stated that the distance travelled by the vehicle was 153,234 kilometers.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 8)

He also confirmed that the 1992 Oldsmobile Cutlass that the dealer sold the Ehab Elsaadawy, did not contain the letters "TKU" although the wholesale bill of sale when Impact sold that vehicle to Constantin did contain the letter "TKU".

(Exhibit 3, Tab 10)

Dumitrele conceded that there was about $18,000.00 owing to the Ministry of Finance in respect of Retail Sales Tax collected by the dealership. He also conceded that arrangements with the Ministry to pay this amount had been broken by the dealer. He stated that in 1997 the dealership's premises were broken into and considerable equipment was stolen. This loss has not been overcome. He also conceded that Retail Sales Tax has been collected on all vehicles sold.

Testimony of Constantin Tofan

Constantin stated in his testimony that he commenced to operate as a motor vehicle dealer under the name C & D Motors in 1996. He had been shown how to complete bills of sale by an OMVIC representative.

As a dealer he mainly sold "write off vehicles" which he bought at auctions. He knew that such vehicles had been written off by insurance companies.

He was advised by an inspector of OMVIC that had to "explain everything to a customer" when a bill of sale was entered into.

In September 2000, he was instructed by an OMVIC inspector that when he sold an "insurance write-off" vehicle he was obliged to write this on the retail bill of sale. He did so for some 10 deals and then discontinued the practice. When purchasing a vehicle at auction he is not concerned with the kilometres that that vehicle had travelled. He only looked at condition of the vehicle.

Under cross-examination, Constantin stated that the break-in at his premises resulted in his falling behind with his payments of Retail Sales Taxes to the Ministry. He did not have insurance to cover the loss he sustained.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

There are two issues to be decided by the Tribunal. Those issues are:

1. Does the past conduct of the Applicants afford the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief the Applicants they will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty, and
2. Having regard to the financial position of the Applicants, can the Applicants reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar.

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971 – 1989) page 95 Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989), page 59, is a decision issued on April 7, 1983 where the Divisional Court overruled a decision of this Tribunal. Southey J. states that the Registrar proposed to refuse registration because of the existence of the specific circumstances set out in Section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

The effect of Section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

In the Brenner case, due to the particular facts in this case Southey J. sent it back for a rehearing, however, he adds in the third last paragraph:

The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act and its Regulations. This was confirmed by Divisional Court in the matter of Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050 where that court on appeal quashed the Tribunal's decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his proposal and in sending the matter back for re-hearing stated at page 1051.

It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

The Tribunal's conclusions and the reasons for its conclusions, based on the evidence, follow.

APPLICANTS CANNOT REASONABLY BE EXPECTED TO BE FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE IN THE CONDUCT OF BUSINESS

It is not disputed by the Applicants that approximately $18,000.00 is owing by Constantin to the Ministry of Finance in respect of Retail Sales Tax and that this sum, which includes penalty and interest, commenced to accrue in or about April 1997. It is also not disputed by the Applicants that several cheques received from the dealership have been unpaid and marked N.S.F. Additionally, it is not disputed that arrangements as well as Terms and Conditions were entered into between the Ministry and Constantin and that Constantin has not abided by those arrangements or Terms and Conditions.

The monies collected by Constantin as Retail Sales Tax were collected by him on behalf of the Ministry to whom that tax rightfully belonged. The conduct of Constantin in failing to remit monies that do not lawfully belong to him and in failing to meet his legal obligations flowing from his undertakings and the Terms and Conditions to which he agreed, raises questions as to his honesty and integrity as well as whether he can reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

The monies collected by Constantin in respect of retail Sales Tax, are clearly funds held in trust for the Ministry. These monies should not have been used by Constantin for any purpose other than to pay the sales tax due to the Ministry. Had he maintained these monies in trust he would have had the monies to pay the Ministry. His failure to remit the funds is due either to financial irresponsibility or failure to carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Whether the conduct of Constantin amounts to financial irresponsibility or a lack honesty and integrity, it is conduct that rightfully affords the Registrar reasonable grounds to revoke Constantin's registration. His failure to remit monies to the Ministry does not consist of an isolated incident but is an ongoing course of conduct since 1997. Such conduct, in the opinion of the Tribunal, affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for his belief that Constantin will not carry on business in accordance with law and with honesty and integrity; alternatively, that he cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

Accordingly on this issue, the Tribunal finds there to be no error in the Registrar's reasons or conclusion to revoke Constantin's registration.

FAILURE TO DISCLOSE

The Registrar has alleged that the Applicants failed to disclose to purchasers of certain motor vehicles that such vehicles were branded salvage; that the Applicants failed to disclose that the true distance travelled by certain vehicles were unknown, and in one instance a vehicle was sold when the recorded distance travelled by the vehicle upon resale by Constantin was less than the odometer reading at the time of purchase by Constantin. An examination of the four sale transactions that gave rise to the Registrar's Proposal are set out hereunder.

1991 Ford Tempo

There is no dispute that this vehicle was bought by Constantin at an auction conducted by Impact on June 28, 2001. There is also no dispute that the Impact bill of sale indicates the vehicle was branded salvage and that the letters "TKU" were stamped on the face of the bill of sale.

There is also no dispute that Constantin subsequently sold this vehicle to Charles Walsh, which sale was conducted by Dumitrel on July 25, 2001. Nor is it disputed that there was no disclosure on that bill of sale that the true kilometers or distance travelled by the vehicle were unknown nor was there disclosure that the vehicle was branded salvage.

Dumitrel conceded in his evidence that the value of a salvage vehicle is between 10% and 25% less than a non-salvage vehicle. He also conceded that he wrote and passed the Automotive Certification Course conducted by Georgian College and knows the Act and its regulations.

Constantin acknowledged in his testimony that in September 2000 he was told by an OMVIC inspector that "insurance write off" must appear on all bills of sale when selling a vehicle that had been purchased at an auction. He also stated that he was aware that Impact sold "salvage" motor vehicles on behalf of insurance companies and that “salvage” refers to a vehicle damaged by collision and then sold by the insurer of that vehicle.

He also acknowledged that he abided by the OMVIC inspector’s instructions regarding disclosure of bills of sale of write off vehicles for “about 10 sales”. He then decided not to abide by those instructions and made no disclosure as stipulated by the inspector. Constantin stated in his testimony that he was advised by an inspector that he had “to explain everything to customers”.

1994 Pontiac Grand Prix

There is no dispute that when this vehicle was purchased by Constantin at an Impact auction on August 15, 2001 the bill of sale stated that the odometer reading of the vehicle stated 222,110 kilometers and that the vehicle was branded as salvage.

When Dumitrele, acting as salesperson, sold this vehicle to Brian Krompass on August 15, 2001 there was no reference on that bill of sale to the vehicle being branded salvage. In addition, the “distance travelled” by the vehicle as stated in the bill of sale to Krompass was stated to be “153,234” kilometers.

The Applicants offered no explanation as to the discrepancy in odometer reading.

1995 Ford Taurus

Again, this vehicle was purchased at an auction conducted by Impact on July 12, 2001 and the Impact bill of sale stated “the true distance travelled is unknown and may be in excess of which is recorded”. This is not disputed by the Applicants nor is it disputed that when this vehicle was resold, the retail bill of sale made no mention of the true distance travelled being unknown.

1992 Oldsmobile Cutlass

This vehicle was also purchased at an Impact auction and the wholesale bill of sale was stamped “TKU”. When this vehicle was resold by Constantin, the sale being conducted by Dumitrele, the retail bill of sale did not disclose that the vehicle’s true kilometers were unknown.

In the four sale transactions dealt with above, there are disclosures that should have been made by Constantin as dealer and as well as by Dumitrele as salesperson.

The Standards of Business Practice published by OMVIC, which was sent to all OMVIC members, makes clear that where a dealer has reasonable grounds to believe that the distance shown on a vehicle’s odometer is not accurate the purchaser is to be notified in the contract of sale. Constantin has clearly failed to abide by this requirement as well as the Business Practices Act and Section 19 of Regulation 801 to the Act. The branding of a vehicle as salvage indicates to both a registered dealer and salesperson that the vehicle has sustained damage, sufficient for the insurer of the vehicle to write off that vehicle on the basis of it being uneconomic to repair. In all the instances where Constantin bought vehicles at an Impact auto auction it is clear from the wholesale bills of sale that the seller of such vehicles was an insurance company and that the vehicle was being sold by the insurer as it was damaged beyond economic repair. This is a material fact that Constantin should have brought to the notice of retail buyers of such vehicles. Full knowledge of material facts such as the distance travelled by a vehicle, or that it is a salvage vehicle, are important to a buyer in deciding whether or not to purchase and at what price to deal. Denial to a prospective purchaser of such material information, is in the Tribunal's opinion, a reflection of a lack of integrity and honesty. The Applicants were aware of OMVIC's insistence that full and adequate disclosure be made. In fact they carried out these instructions in some ten transactions whereafter in September 2000 they deliberately decided to ignore OMVIC's instructions and made no written disclosure thereafter.

The fact that Constantin sold vehicles, knowing they were branded salvage and the implications of such branding, and not disclosing this material fact to buyers is in the Tribunal's opinion unethical and dishonest. Buyers should be made aware of the condition of a vehicle when purchasing so as to enable them to make informed decisions whether to purchase and at what price. Similarly, the mileage or distance that a vehicle has travelled is both pertinent and material when considering whether to purchase and at what price. If the true kilometers travelled by the vehicle are unknown to the selling dealer, as is the case in the present matter, this information must be disclosed as it is also material information that can influence a purchaser. Finally, for a dealer to purchase a vehicle and at the time of purchase have the actual distance travelled disclosed and thereafter for that dealer to sell that vehicle and disclose a lesser distance travelled by it, without a plausible explanation, is both dishonest, contrary to section 19(1) and (2) of regulation 801 to the Act and the Business Practices Act.

For all the reasons above the Tribunal finds that the past conduct of both Constantin and Dumitrel affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicants will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated December 21, 2001 to revoke the registrations of the Constantin Tofan and Dumitrel Tofan as motor vehicle dealer and motor vehicle salesperson respectively under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, as amended.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by The Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8 ("HTA").

EXHIBITS:

- (1) Notice of Suspension from the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated December 5, 2001.
- (2) Notice of Appeal from the Applicant, received January 21, 2002 at the Tribunal.
- (3) Tabulated file (1-12) compiled by the Ministry
- (4) Canadian Medical Laboratories Report dated October 12, 2001 received from the Applicant

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 37-year-old married man, with two young daughters, who operates a business in Kitchener. The Applicant had his licence suspended on December 5, 2001 for medical reasons on a recommendation from the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC).

The Applicant has a long history of problems with alcohol, resulting in eight convictions of either impaired driving or refusing to provide a breath sample during the period 1981 to 1995. In 1998 his licence was suspended for three years for not providing a Medical Report (Exhibit #3, tab4a), required after receiving a licence suspension and a four month sentence for impaired driving in 1995. During this sentence he was ordered to take a five-week Relapse Prevention Program in the Correctional Facility.

Following the Applicant's release on parole he attended another six week Alcohol Addiction program at the "Homewood Institute" in Guelph and a Programme to Address the Causes of Impaired Driving (P.A.C.I.D.) at the John Howard Society.

In April 1998 the MAC requested up-to-date laboratory testing (MCV, AST & GGT readings and an Alcohol Assessment Form. The Applicant provided the requested information in October 2001 (Ex # 3, tab6 & Ex #4) and all of the blood tests were recorded as normal. The Alcohol Assessment Form appears to be answered truthfully as he admits that he is still drinking and he stated that it is controlled and moderate. In answer to a direct question the Applicant admitted to being impaired on two occasions this year, at New Years and at a stag, but he did not drive.

The Applicant gave evidence that he has done nothing wrong since 1995 and that things have changed. He has two daughters, owns his own business and has matured. He gave evidence that he did not drink for three years, but the only proof is the normal blood tests.

The MAC reviewed the Applicant's case in November 2001 and again recommended suspension for medical reasons. It requested another detailed report with confirmation of abstinence for one year and supportive biochemical markers. The report states that the Applicant has had numerous D+D and collision while impaired, whereas the Applicant gave evidence that he has never had a collision in his life. The MAC Case Study was followed up with the Deputy Registrar's letter of suspension, indicating a year of abstinence was required, before his driver's licence would be reconsidered.

The Applicant was quite upset about this requirement because a year's abstinence has never been mentioned previously. He maintains that he was abstinent for three years and has just provided a Medical Report, Alcohol Assessment Form and the laboratory results in October 2001.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Section 47(1) unquestionably empowered the Registrar to ".....suspend or cancel" a driver's licence for " any....sufficient reason..." on December 5, 2001. The Registrar originally suspended the Applicant's driver's licence in 1998 for failing to provide a Medical Report, as requested under Sec. 32 (12) of the Highway Traffic Act, following a conviction and suspension in 1995 for impaired driving. The latest suspension was for medical reasons on a recommendation from the MAC.

This suspension required a detailed report from his physician or a specialist in addiction medicine confirming a one year period of abstinence from alcohol and a treatment program, participating in a relapse prevention program with supportive bio-chemical markers, before reconsidering reinstatement of his licence.

The Applicant has already taken courses in Relapse Prevention and Alcohol Abuse and submitted an Alcohol Assessment Form with the bio-chemical markers, which were normal, in October 2001. These facts seem to have been ignored by the Ministry. The Applicant gave evidence that he had been abstinent for three years. He started drinking alcohol again, but moderately and controlled. The Applicant appears to have completed the Alcohol Assessment Form truthfully, but the fact that he is drinking again, seems to be the reason for the continued suspension.

The Applicant stated that he was unaware that a year of abstinence was a requirement and as a result he can not prove he did not drink for three years. The Tribunal was impressed with his explanation of how he has matured, owns a business, is a family man now and understands his problem with alcohol. He feels that he has served his sentence successfully since 1995 without any problems

The Tribunal finds that the evidence presented does not support the Respondent's position to refuse reinstatement of the Applicant's licence, inspite of the Applicant's abysmal driving record from 1981 until 1995. The Tribunal feels the Applicant has matured and is sufficiently aware of his past history to act as a responsible citizen in the future.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated December 6, 2001 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 7, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on May 8, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated April 15, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on April 18, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the evidence gathering commencement of the hearing the Respondent's Counsel informed that the criminal proceedings against the Applicant are still pending. As such, the Respondent's Counsel asked the Tribunal for an Order to ensure that no information from these proceedings be used for purposes other than perjury, more particularly in the up coming criminal trial.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated January 30, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form - received at the Tribunal April 18, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received May 2, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is:

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "Jan.30.2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant has submitted an incomplete Notice of Appeal, in that page two of the Notice of Appeal has been left blank, rather than filled in by the Applicant's family physician, as required.

Physician #1 confirms in a letter dated April 2002, that he has been the Applicant's physician since 1998. Physician #1, states that the Applicant "...presented February 1, 2002, complaining of cough of several weeks duration ...shortness of breath ...On February 26, 2002 ...followed up ...complaining of shortness of breath ...similar to ...episode in January 2002 ...diagnosed with upper respiratory tract infection ...tests so far normal ...sometimes has difficulty breathing ...this would have aggravated his upper respiratory tract infection he may not have been able to blow..."

A handwritten note at the bottom on the letter notes, "...pulmonary airway tests 5.3.02 show 'small airway obstruction and normal volume diffusion'..."

The Applicant testified that he told the officer he was blowing as hard as he could but did not ask for medical assistance.

The Applicant confirmed that his first visit to his physician, after the incident was February 1st 2002. The Applicant was subsequently referred for Pulmonary Function Tests, but had not been in the past. Further he does not require the use of an inhaler.

The Applicant explained to the Tribunal that he was unaware that page two of the Notice of Appeal required filling in by the physician.

On cross-examination the Applicant established for the Respondent's Counsel that he on occasion gets shortness of breath, the severity of which depends on the circumstances.

The Applicant asserted that he was not influenced by his past record and he had no motive not to provide a breath sample, and would have, had he been able to do.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Notice to Registrar numbered 2402201
2. Driving record of the Applicant

The Applicant's driver's record according to the Ministry of Transportation, showing several infractions since "77 03 28". (Exhibit #3)

In a letter dated May 1, 2002, Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of Program in Respiratory Rehabilitation - University of Toronto, states that he is a "...consultant respiratologist in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional Program in Rehabilitation, ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition...".

Dr. Goldstein points out that in his "...opinion Physician #1 does not provide sufficient medical information to suggest that the Applicant could not provide a breath sample ...as a result of ...obesity and physical conditioning ...have tested many patients including obese and deconditioned individuals and have yet to encounter one whose lung function was limited to the extent of their not being able to provide the types of volumes or flow rates necessary for a breath alcohol test ...pulmonary function tests were carried out on March 5, 2002 and showed normal lung volumes and diffusion, small airway obstruction. In the presence of normal volumes and diffusion, small airway obstruction is extremely unlikely to be sufficient to prevent satisfactory breath sample..."

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a Qualified Breathalyzer Technician, as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he has been with the Ontario Provincial Police – Aurora Detachment for six months, but has exercised "...general duties..." as a Police Constable for 12 years.

Police Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total ten opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered and “E0” indicating that some air was going in but the Applicant was neither “...blowing hard enough, not hard enough.”

During his dealings with the Applicant at no time did Police Officer #1 observe the Applicant wheezing, or exhibiting any other symptoms of shortness of breath. No breathing difficulties were mentioned, nor medical assistance asked for, by the Applicant.

In closing the Applicant re-iterated that he wanted his licence back and emphasized he tried hard to provide a breath sample but was unable to do so.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent’s Counsel quoted Section 48.3 of the Act and suggested that according to Police Officer #1 the Applicant failed to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent’s Counsel referred to Physician #1’s letter and reviewed it against the comments of the Respondent’s expert witness, Dr. Roger Goldstein.

In conclusion the Respondent’s Counsel cited that in his opinion the Applicant had specific personal motives not to provide a breath sample.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Prior to setting out the reasons for decision, the Tribunal will address the Respondent’s Counsel’s request regarding the use of the information imparted at this hearing. The Tribunal’s position is that since these proceedings are a matter of public record, and the Respondent’s Counsel did not ask the documents be sealed, the Tribunal has no way of controlling use of the information.

At issue is did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Applicant's Notice of Appeal is incomplete, in that page two of the Notice of Appeal has not been filled by the Applicant's family physician. Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is an important piece of evidence that must form the foundation of any appeal under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Applicant is hindered by the fact that he was not able to offer any viable justification for not requesting his physician to fill in the form. The Applicant simply stated that he was unaware of the requirement. Unfortunately, the Tribunal is left with a lack of knowledge regarding the Applicant's medical history.

As did the Respondent's Counsel, the Tribunal refers to Physician #1's letter as well as Dr. Goldstein's report.

Physician #1 alludes to the Applicant's "...upper respiratory tract infection..." and infers that "...he may not have been able to blow...". Dr. Goldstein is quite clear that he has reviewed the test results of various subjects in similar circumstances, i.e. obese and deconditioned and found that he has "...yet to encounter one whose lung function was limited to the extent of their not being able to provide the types of volumes or flow rates necessary for a breath alcohol test..."

In what appears to be Physician #1's own handwriting, Physician #1 adds that "...pulmonary airway tests 5.3.02 show 'small airway obstruction and normal volume diffusion'...". Dr. Goldstein counters that "...In the presence of normal volumes and diffusion, small airway obstruction is extremely unlikely to be sufficient to prevent satisfactory breath sample..."

With all due respect to Physician #1, he is not a respiratologist. Dr. Roger Goldstein is. The Tribunal must accept the evidence of the Respondent's expert, Dr. Roger Goldstein.

The Applicant has not provided the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. In fact, it appears that Physician #1, who has known the Applicant since 1998, did not feel that the Applicant's history was severe enough to warrant sending him to a specialist until March 2002. This premise is corroborated by the Applicant's own testimony that he did not carry an inhaler.

Since neither Physician #1, nor Dr. Goldstein was at the scene of the roadside breathalyser test session, the Tribunal also considered the evidence of Police Officer #1. At no time, was the Applicant observed in an afflicted breathing state, nor did the Applicant request medical assistance.

The Applicant's testimony was credible, but he failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated January 30, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: KENNETH W. KOPROWSKI
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Applicant,

DATE OF HEARING: May 14, 2002

DECISION
RELEASED: May 15, 2002 Written

REASONS FOR DECISION

A written hearing was held on May 14, 2002, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of a written hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated March 21, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on March 22, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice of Appeal, including medical report and photocopied excerpts
- b) Exhibit # 2 Letter of May 2, 2002, from Applicant.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Respondent's submissions

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath because she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.”

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

“A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal”.

FACTS:

On February 22, 2002, Police Constable #1 of the Hawkesbury Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police stopped a vehicle being driven by the Applicant on City Road 17 in the Village of Alfred.

Constable #1, in her affidavit sworn April 24, 2002, states that the reason for stopping the vehicle was that the Applicant had driven her vehicle off the roadway a total of five times.

On approaching the vehicle, Constable #1 detected a strong odour of alcohol coming from the Applicant's breath. The Constable read to the Applicant the roadside screening device breath demand and took her to the police cruiser. The Constable started to explain the procedure for the screening device. At this point, the Applicant stated that she refused to blow into it.

On three further occasions, the Applicant stated that she refused to blow. She also accused the Constable of having tailgated her and of harassing her. There is no evidence before this Tribunal which could verify either of these two accusations.

Constable #1 also explained to the Applicant the consequences of not providing a breath sample and that a charge would result. The Applicant still refused to provide a breath sample.

Police Constable #2 then came upon the scene, at the request of Constable #1. Constable #2 again explained to the Applicant the consequences of refusing to provide a breath sample. Again, the Applicant refused.

Constable #1 then charged the Applicant with failing to provide a sample of her breath. The Constable served the Applicant with the Notice to the Registrar of the suspension of her licence. The Applicant refused to sign it.

The Applicant now appeals the suspension of her licence.

In her Notice of Appeal, Exhibit 1, the Applicant claims that she was unable to provide a breath sample because of a medical reason.

It is significant that, in the evidence before this Tribunal, the Applicant at no time stated to either police officer that there was a medical reason, or some impediment, for refusing to provide a breath sample. She simply stated to them that she refused to blow.

In support of her appeal, the Applicant has filed, as part of Exhibit 1, a medical Information sheet, dated March 21, 2002, and signed by Physician #1. Physician #1 states that the Applicant has been a patient of his for seven years. Physician #1 also states that the Applicant sees a rheumatologist for her fibromyalgia, and occasionally sees Physician #1 .

Physician #1 also states that the Applicant also takes amitriptyline, which, he says, can occasionally cause drowsiness.

Physician #1 had last seen the Applicant on June 6, 2001, slightly more than eight months before the Applicant was charged with refusing to provide a breath sample.

Significantly, there is nothing in the Doctor's report which provides any support for the Applicant's argument that she was unable, for a medical reason, to provide a breath sample on February 22, 2002. Nor, for that matter, does Physician #1 refer to any condition from which the Applicant suffers and which might impede her ability to provide a sample of her breath.

Physician #1 , in his report, also makes the statement: "This condition, however, does not preclude various testing such as a breath sample." (emphasis is added).

The Applicant, in Exhibit 2, states that, what the Doctor meant by that statement was that her medical condition "does not require test from his part while taking 'amitriptyline' such as a breath sample" (sic). The Applicant goes on to say, in Exhibit 2, that the medication, combined with alcohol, may produce a greater than expected impairment in psychomotor skills and may intensify this effect. She further states: "This is the reason why I did not want to take the test."(emphasis is added).

The Applicant also filed photocopies of excerpts from different publications concerning the drug, "amitriptyline." The Compendium of Pharmaceuticals and Specialties (CPS 2002) is one of them. They are included as part of Exhibit 1. The Applicant did not refer to anything specific in any of the excerpts. Nor does Physician #1 refer to them in his report.

On reading the excerpts, it certainly appears that one of the side effects of amitriptyline is that it may impair mental and/or physical abilities required for performing hazardous tasks such as operating machinery or driving a motor vehicle.

Physician #1 , in his report, suggested only that amitriptyline may cause the Applicant drowsiness, but suggests nothing more.

Nowhere in the materials submitted by the Applicant does it state that the Applicant would be unable to provide a sample of breath into a roadside screening device.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

With respect, this Tribunal cannot accept the Applicant's submissions as being evidence to substantiate her inability to provide a breath sample for a medical reason. The evidence of Constable #1, and the Applicant's own letter, Exhibit 2, paint a picture of a person who was "unwilling" to provide a breath sample, not of a person who was "unable" to do so. At no time while the several demands were made to provide a breath sample did the Applicant offer any reason for her inability to provide one.

There is no evidence which would permit this Tribunal to conclude that the Applicant was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason.

Consequently, the Applicant has not satisfied her onus of establishing the merit of this Appeal.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated February 22, 2002, of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE *ONTARIO NEW

APPEARANCES:

MIAN YUN YANG, Applicant, on behalf of himself and Kuen

KAREN SPECTOR, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
RICHARD COSTIGAN, Agent, representing the Added Party, EastPine Kennedy Steeles Limited Partnership

DATE OF HEARING:

February 25 and 26, 2002

Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an Appeal by the Applicants, Mian Yun Yang and Kuen Kuen Tsui (the “Applicants”) pursuant to their Request for a Hearing dated July 27, 2001, (the “Notice of Appeal”) to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”), from a decision of the Respondent, Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the “Program”) which denied their claim in its Decision Letter dated July 13, 2001, (the “Program’s Decision”). The Applicants are appealing pursuant to Section 16(2) and (3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the “Act”), R.S.O. 1990. Ch. 0.31 and base their claim on the provisions of Section 13(1) and clauses (b) and (c) of Section 14(1) of the Act.

The Applicants, by a letter to Eastpine Steels Kennedy Limited Partnership dated December 18, 1999, (the "Original Complaint") a copy of which was sent to the Program, claimed that the vendor/builder, EastPine Kennedy Steeles Limited Partnership (the "Builder") was in breach of several of its warranties to construct the new home at 47 Eastpine Drive, Markham, Ontario (the "home"), which it contracted to build on Lot #11, Plan #65M-3297 in a workmanlike manner and free from defects in material, and also that the home was free of major structural defects, as part of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale entered into between the Builder, as vendor, and the Applicants, as purchasers, dated June 3rd, 1999 (the "Agreement"). The Applicants and the Builder closed the transaction contemplated in the Agreement pursuant to its terms and took possession of the home on November 18, 1999.

Correspondence, reports and documentation between the Applicants, the Program and the Builder since the date of the Agreement are contained within the five volumes of the "Book Of Documents Of The Ontario New Home Warranty Program" and cover some 202 separate items under Tabs 1 - 202, and these five volumes were entered as Exhibits #4 to #8, inclusive, at the hearing. Included in these Exhibits was a copy of the Program's Decision, the Notice of Appeal, the Agreement and the Original Complaint. This correspondence, reports and documentation reveal in general a voluminous amount of discussion, personal meetings and time was spent by the parties in an effort to resolve the issues raised by the Original Complaint, including the conciliation services provided by the Program and the necessary inspections (and re-inspections) of the home.

A prehearing consultation was scheduled and heard by the Tribunal on October 29, 2001, from which a prehearing Order was released dated October 31, 2001 (the "Prehearing Order"). The Prehearing Order reduced to twenty-nine the number of issues between the Parties in addition to redefining those issues by ordering a further inspection of the home on November 1, 2001.

At the hearing, one of the Applicants, Mian Yun Yang, gave evidence on behalf of the Applicants but, subsequent to the first day of the hearing, his evidence was interrupted by brief settlement discussions between the Parties which yielded a resolution of all issues between the Parties.

Counsel for the Respondent stated that as a result of such discussions, in consideration of the payment of $ 3,210.00 to the Applicants, a Full and Final Release dated February 26, 2002, had been executed by the Applicants which was entered in evidence as an Exhibit. It was proposed by all Parties that no further evidence would be produced or testimony given at the hearing save for the filing of the Exhibits already produced and entered as evidence.

DECISION AND ORDER:

Subsequent to hearing from the Applicants, the Added Party and Counsel for the Respondent, the Tribunal gave an oral decision subject to the release of this written order.

Accordingly, this Tribunal, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Act:

1. Directs the Respondent to pay to the Applicants the sum of $3,120.00; and
2. Orders that the claims as set out in the Notice of Appeal be dismissed due to the withdrawal by the Applicants of the Notice of Appeal.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO SUSPEND REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DOUGLAS MACKINTOSH, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: CAROL STREET, representing the Registrar, Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
ANS VAN DEN HANENBERG representing the two Applicants

DATE OF HEARING: May 21, 2002

Ottawa

ORDER

BACKGROUND:

It was agreed by the parties that the hearing for the two Applicant Companies would be heard together as the issues in both cases are identical and the signing authority is the same for both companies.

The hearing commenced and evidence was given by Gregory Baker, Vice-President of Risk Management of the Program. His department deals in the development of policy and he explained the contested changes now in force.

In April 2000 the Program introduced two new agreements, one which has to be signed by vendors of new homes and the other by builders of new homes. The two agreements replaced a shorter prior version which covered both vendors and builders.

Although the terms in the new agreements are unilaterally imposed by the Program, much of the content is taken directly from the sections and regulations of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act while other parts were introduced only after long consultations with the industry which was done through a Liaison Committee drawn from the Ontario Home Builders' Association and the Program.

There are, he said, 4,700 registrants, all of whom, except three or four, have signed the new agreement.

From the documentary evidence submitted it is clear that the enterprise concerned here, which has been conducted under different names, has an exceptional record without blemish since 1978. But when the new vendor and builder agreements came into force, both Companies signed but made them subject to a number of conditions unacceptable to the Program.

However, after hearing the evidence from Gregory Baker and taking into account the documents submitted, application was made to the Tribunal by the Applicants, represented by Mrs. van den Hanenberg, and by counsel for the Program for the issuance of a consent order.

This order is to be based on the commitment made to the Tribunal by Mrs. Van den Hanenberg that her signature on the Agreements is to bind the two Applicant Companies without being subject to any added conditions.

In addition, Counsel for the Program agreed to make the following recommendations to the Program:

- (i) to try to get with the Vice-President of Licensing and Underwriting to follow a more consistent approach with respect to the provision of financial security for houses being built with private septic systems;
- (ii) to recommend in such cases that the Program continue to waive security requirements for both Applicant Companies, it being understood that the ultimate decision will be made by the Program.
- (iii) to ensure that the renewal forms for registration be sent to both Applicant Companies;
- (iv) to find out whether the Program's intention was to remove Jo Jensen as a guarantor and to get the Program to provide a letter confirming the situation.

DECISION AND ORDER:

Accordingly, this Tribunal, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 9(4) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act directs that:

1. The Ontario New Home Warranty Program will withdraw its proposal to suspend the registrations of the two Applicant Companies, and
2. The Ontario New Home Warranty Program accepts the commitment made to the Tribunal that the two Applicant Companies are bound by the terms of the vendor and builder agreements as signed but without being subject to any conditions added by the Applicant Companies.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

Counsel for the Applicant requested permission for Physician #1, the Applicant's primary Cardiologist, to attend the Hearing and to provide evidence.

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 47 year old truck driver and owner of a Septic Services Company, had his "AZM" driver's licence suspended on July 12, 2001 after applying for an annual renewal of his licence. The Applicant had informed the Ministry that he was under treatment for congestive heart failure as a complication of cardiomyopathy.

On October 17, 2001 the Ministry notified the Applicant that his licence had now been downgraded to a "GM" status, since he no longer met the medical requirements for a commercial "A" licence according to standards set by the Canadian Cardiovascular Society.

Physician #1 informed the Ministry, in his Medical Report of August 28, 2001 (exhibit # 3), that the Applicant's atrial fibrillation and congestive heart failure had been successfully treated and his heart had been in sinus rhythm since January 2001. He stated that the Applicant had a one-year history of dilated cardiomyopathy with normal coronary arteries.

The Medical Advisory Committee remained concerned that the Left Ventricular ejection fraction, a measurement used by the Canadian Cardiovascular Society (CCS), was only 28%. With therapy, it had increased from 21% to 28%, but the CCS recommendation was a minimum of 35%. Physician #1 hoped the ejection fraction would improve with more medication.

In Physician #1's Medical Report of November 27, 200 (exhibit # 4), he states that the Applicant has dilated cardiomyopathy that is non ischemic and has been quite stable on medical management. His LV ejection fraction was now up to 31%. According to CCS standards concerning fitness to drive parameters, he would have a class II ventricle.

Based on his stable clinical status, his reasonably well preserved left ventricular function and his exercise performance, Physician #1 believes there is no cardiac contraindication to him having his commercial licence and he would be supportive of a medical waiver.

On December 11, 2001 the Applicant's family physician sent a Medical Report, which reiterated Physician #1's statements and recommendations.

A MAC case study on December 27, 2001 recommended denying waiver to class "A" licence, because the Applicant did not meet CCS standards. It was felt the LV ejection fraction of 31% puts him at a Class III, which is not sufficient.

Physician #1 then referred the Applicant to Physician #2, an associate at the Toronto General Hospital, who is also a Professor of Medicine at the University of Toronto and specializes in Cardiac Electrophysiology. Physician #2's report (exhibit #5, tab 4) concludes that the Applicant's arrhythmia does not pose a significant commercial driving risk and he hopes the Ministry of Transportation will take this into consideration when reviewing his licence status.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
 - (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

- (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.
- 18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
 - (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and
 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

- (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

When the Registrar received information that the Applicant was being treated for cardiomyopathy and cardiac arrhythmia, there was no alternative but to suspend his driver's licence under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, until the matter could be investigated. When it was established that the medical problems only really effected his commercial licence under Regulation 340/94 Section 17, which states:

- (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - ...
 - (d) has no established history of heart disease including arrhythmia or... likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class.

The decision was to downgrade the licence from "AM" to a "GM" was under Reg. 340/94, Section 17, which states:

- (2) An applicant for a holder of a class A, B,... or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications,

When the Applicant's family physician diagnosed congestive heart failure and cardiac arrhythmia, he immediately referred the Applicant to Physician #1, a specialist in cardiology.

Physician #1 carried out extensive tests and finally diagnosed dilated cardiomyopathy with normal coronary arteries and therefore nonischemic. Based on the Applicant's stable clinical status, his reasonably well preserved left ventricular function and his exercise performance, he stated there is no cardiac contradiction to him having his commercial licence and he supported a medical waiver.

The MAC took exception to the Applicant's left ventricular ejection fraction, which had increased 10% with treatment, to 31%. The standards set by the Canadian Cardiovascular Society recommend an ejection fraction of at least 35%. Physician

#2 repeated the examination and reported in his letter of May 1, 2002, a result of 34%. The MAC has not yet had an opportunity to see this Medical Report.

In Physician #1's evidence, he reaffirmed everything contained in his Medical Reports and stated he had no hesitation in recommending a medical waiver for the Applicant and his return to regular work, as he posed no threat to the public. He further stated the LV ejection fraction of 34% is as good as a 35%, because different methods produce slightly different results. It is also virtually impossible to pigeon hole every case according to arbitrary standards, because of the variables. Most of such cases have complications of coronary artery disease, which the Applicant does not have.

Physician #2's diagnosis was infrequent asymptomatic non-sustained ventricular tachycardia in the setting of nonischemic dilated cardiomyopathy. He added that his arrhythmia does not pose a significant commercial driving risk and he hoped the Ministry of Transportation would take this into consideration when reviewing the Applicant's licence status.

With two such positive Medical Reports from cardiologists who are Professors of Medicine at the University of Toronto, the Tribunal did not find the evidence presented by the Ministry was sufficient to support the Registrar's refusal to upgrade the Applicant's driver's licence from a "GM" to a "AM".

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated October 19, 2001, of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) and Section 17 Regulation 340/94 of the Highway Traffic Act and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "Proposal") by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated December 28, 2001 as amplified by the Registrar's Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated February 14, 2002, seeks to revoke the registration of Delta Minivan & Cars Inc. (the "Dealer") as a motor vehicle dealer and of Carlo Vera ("Vera") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the revocation of both registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disqualification to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Delta Minivan & Cars Inc. and Carlo Vera under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows:

1. Delta Minivan & Cars Inc. is currently registered as a motor vehicle dealer. The dealer has been registered since on or about June 25, 1997. The dealer has Terms and Conditions attached to its registration. Christina Arab a.k.a. Christine Vera is the sole officer and director of the dealership. Christina Arab a.k.a. Christine Vera is not registered as a salesperson pursuant to the Act.
2. Carlo Vera is currently registered as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act. Carlo Vera has been registered since on or about June 30, 1992.
3. The Dealer has sold motor vehicles to consumers and has misrepresented the distance travelled to the purchasers. In particular
 - a. The dealer purchased a 1994 Jeep, VIN 1J4GZ78S7RC260016 with an odometer disclosure of 228,000 km and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an odometer reading of approximately 148,000. The dealer failed to include the distance travelled on the consumer's bill of sale.
 - b. The dealer purchased a 1996 Cavalier, VIN 1G1JC5245T7230680, with an odometer disclosure of 245,865 km, and subsequently sold same with a disclosure of distance travelled of 145,908 km.
 - c. The dealer purchased a 1995 Nissan, VIN 1N6SD16S9SC34306 with an odometer disclosure of 201,978 km and subsequently sold same with a disclosure of distance travelled of 102,110 km.
 - d. The dealer purchased a 1998 Mazda, VIN 4F4YR12C9WTM30792 with an odometer disclosure of 218,000 km and subsequently sold same with a disclosure of distance travelled of 128,098 km.
 - e. The dealer purchased a 1998 Ford, VIN 1FAFP52U5WG120563 with an odometer disclosure of 198,748 km and subsequently sold same with a disclosure of distance travelled of 99,908 km.
 - f. The dealer purchased a 1996 Ford, VIN 1FALP52U3TG223589 with an odometer disclosure of 183,000 km and subsequently sold same with a disclosure of distance travelled of 120,800 km.
4. A representative of the Registrar attended at the dealer's registered premises and noted that a number of vehicles offered for sale on the dealer's lot had odometer readings that were less than the odometer disclosure made to the dealer at the time of purchase. The following vehicles were on display for sale with lower odometer readings:

1994 Honda, JHMEG8640RS800369 - on display at 162,730 km, purchased by dealer at 262,258 km
1997 GMC, 1GKDT13W0V2514316 - on display at 147,142 km, purchased by dealer at 221,074 km
1997 Ford, 1FMDU34X0VUC30373 - on display at 119,881 km, purchased by dealer at 217,556 km
1995 Jeep, 1J4GZ78S6SC625887 - on display at 155,092 km, purchased by dealer at 224,300 km
1998 Mercury, 1MEFM53S8WG626774 - on display at 142,194 km, purchased by dealer at 171,985 km
1992 Mazda, JM3LV5226N0401271 - on display at 169,572 km, purchased by dealer at 229,321 km

(Exhibit 3, Tab 1)

The particulars in the Registrar's Notice of Further and other Particulars sets forth other particulars upon which the Registrar relies, as follows:

1. The Dealer has sold motor vehicles to consumers and has misrepresented the distance travelled to the purchasers. In particular:

- a) The Dealer purchased a 1997 Chevrolet, VIN 1GNDM19W9VB186126 with an odometer disclosure of 198,143kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an approximate odometer reading of 93,000kms.
- b) The Dealer purchased a 1995 Ford, VIN 1FMDU34XSUB05550 with an odometer disclosure of 232,000kms and a notation of "odometer not working". The Dealer subsequently sold same to a consumer with an approximate odometer reading of 135,000kms. The Dealer failed to include the distance travelled on the consumer's bill of sale.
- c) The Dealer purchased a 1998 Ford, VIN 2FMDA5148WBA68949 with an odometer disclosure of 168,400kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an odometer disclosure of 128,886kms.
- d) The Dealer purchased a 1987 Mercedes, VIN WDBCA35D3HA354316 with an odometer disclosure of 312,458kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an approximate odometer reading of 197,000kms.
- e) The Dealer purchased a 1998 Ford, VIN 2FMDA514XWBA33247 with an odometer disclosure of 144,400kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an approximate odometer reading of 112,000kms.
- f) The Dealer purchased a 1995 Dodge, VIN 2B4GH2531SR126735 with an odometer reading in excess of 228,032kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an odometer disclosure of 147,921kms.
- g) The Dealer purchased a 1996 Chevrolet, VIN 1GNDM19W8TB116033 with an odometer disclosure of 250,400kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an approximate odometer reading of 198,000kms.
- h) The Dealer purchased a 1997 Chevrolet, VIN 1G1JC1249VM108739 with an odometer disclosure of 204,676kms and subsequently sold same to a consumer with an odometer disclosure of 104,383kms.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 2)

At the commencement of the hearing Vera informed the Tribunal that he consented to the revocation of his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson and he consequently withdrew his appeal of the Registrar's Proposal. Vera accordingly signed a consent to the revocation of his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.

(Exhibit 5)

Counsel for the Registrar informed the Tribunal at the commencement of the hearing that she and Christina Vera, representing the Dealer, had agreed upon certain facts and by consent a written "Agreed Statement of Facts" dated May 6, 2002 was handed in. The Agreed Statement of Facts states as follows:

1. Christina Vera is the sole officer and director of Delta Minivan and Cars Inc. (hereinafter "Delta") and has been at all relevant times.
2. Delta admits that the vehicles listed in the Registrar's Proposal dated December 28, 2001 (Tab 1 Exhibit 3) at paragraph 3a through 3f (inclusive) and in the Notice of Further and Other particulars dated February 14, 2002 (Tab 2 of Exhibit 3) at paragraphs 1a through 1h (inclusive) had the odometers rolled back after the vehicles were purchased by Delta and were sold by Delta to the 14 consumers who did not have knowledge of nor did they authorize the odometer roll back. The consumers did not have knowledge of the odometer roll back at the time they purchased their vehicle from Delta. Delta offered to make restitution to the consumers after the odometer misrepresentations came to the attention of the Registrar.

3. With respect to the vehicles set out at the Registrar's Proposal dated December 28, 2001 (Tab 1, Exhibit 3) at paragraph 4, on December 8th 2001, OMVIC Investigator Dave Wilson attended at the business premises of Delta and observed the six vehicles displayed for sale on the lot of Delta with the lower odometer set out in paragraph 4. Delta admits that at the time Delta purchased these vehicles, the odometer reading was higher than as at December 8, 2001 when the vehicles were observed by Investigator Wilson.

(Exhibit 6)

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of the testimony of David Wilson and Mary Jane South. The evidence presented by the Dealer consisted of the testimony of Christina Vera ("Christina").

Testimony of David Wilson:

David Wilson testified that he is an investigator employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). Prior to his employment with OMVIC he was a police officer for 29 years. He became familiar with the Dealer in the course of his employment with OMVIC when, on December 8, 2001, he conducted an investigation at the Dealer's registered premises. This investigation followed a consumer complaint. As a result of the investigation the Registrar issued his Proposal.

The investigation by Wilson revealed that the Dealer has sold some 12 motor vehicles to consumers. These vehicles are referred to in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the Proposal. In each instance Wilson had ascertained that the vehicles' odometers reflected a lower reading at the time the Dealer sold such vehicles to consumers as compared to when the Dealer purchased the vehicles.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 1, Paragraphs 3 and 4)

Besides the 12 vehicles referred to above, Wilson stated that his investigations revealed a further 8 motor vehicles were sold by the Dealer to consumers and in each instance the odometers of such vehicles read less at the time of their sale by the Dealer than the odometers read at the time of their purchase by the Dealer.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 2)

Testimony of Mary Jane South:

Ms. South testified that she is currently the Deputy Registrar under the Act, having held such appointment since 1997. Ms. South explained that the Ontario Motor Vehicle Council ("OMVIC"), which was established in 1997, is a non-profit corporation with authority and responsibility to oversee and administer the Act. The Act is commonly referred to as consumer legislation and its main purpose is the protection of consumers.

Ms. South discussed and explained the requirements under section 5 of the Act for the regulation of motor vehicle dealers and salespersons and the conditions under which a Registrant can have her or his registration revoked.

Ms. South stated she was familiar with the Dealer's history and proceeded to review its history, as follows:

By Notice of Proposal dated December 17, 1997 the Registrar proposed to revoke the registration of the Dealer. The Dealer appealed the Registrar's proposal to the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal and that Tribunal heard the appeal and rendered its decision on June 25, 1998. The decision of that Tribunal was to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal and to revoke the Dealer's registration as a motor vehicle dealer. The Dealer appealed the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal's decision to the Divisional Court but abandoned that appeal on October 12, 1998, and entered into written Terms and Conditions with the Registrar. One of the terms and conditions imposed upon the Dealer was:

- k) The Dealer agrees that it is under a positive obligation to disclose all material facts about the vehicles it sells to its customers. The Dealer agrees to make reasonable efforts to research the history of all its vehicles prior to sale to ensure all material facts are disclosed. The Dealer agrees that should any information come to light, which the Registrar deems to be a material fact, concerning a vehicle the Dealer has sold, the Dealer will comply with all reasonable requests made by the Registrar to provide compensation to the purchaser.

Pursuant to the abandonment of the Dealer's appeal and the signing of Terms and Conditions the Registrar allowed the registration of the Dealer. (Exhibit 3, Tab 5)

On February 5, 1998, the Registrar issued a Notice of Proposal to refuse to grant registration as a salesperson to Hossein Arab, who is the husband of Christina, and who is now known as Carlo Vera ("Vera"). Vera appealed the Proposal.

When the proposal regarding Vera came before the Tribunal for hearing, the Proposal was withdrawn pursuant to the Registrar and Vera signing Minutes of Settlement. One of the terms in the Minutes of Settlement stated:

- e) Hossein Arab agrees that he is under a positive obligation to disclose all material facts about the vehicles that he sells. Hossein Arab will not knowingly misrepresent the true condition or distance travelled of vehicles he buys or sells on his own behalf or on behalf of the dealer.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 6)

Vera was then registered as a motor vehicle salesperson and has worked for the Dealer until he withdrew his appeal to the Registrar's present proposal and consented to the revocation of his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.

Ms. South went on to state that Christina, being the sole Officer and Director of the Dealer, had the responsibility to ensure that she carried out her duties with diligence and should have been alive to the fact that Vera, her spouse and the Dealer's salesperson, had already been in difficulties with the Registrar regarding odometer rollbacks and had signed terms and conditions.

Ms. South concluded her testimony by stating that true odometer readings of motor vehicles are important to consumers so as to enable an informed decision being made as to how much to pay for the vehicle and if to enter into a sale at all.

Testimony of Christina Vera:

Christina testified that she is married to Vera and together they have three children. She stated that the present problems regarding motor vehicle odometers came to her attention when David Wilson spoke with her in December 2001.

From the time Terms and Conditions were signed by her in October 1998 until May or June 2001, "things were perfectly fine" at the Dealer. She was doing the Dealer's books and "was actively involved" in the business of the Dealer. Problems started in about summer of 2001 when she found herself overwhelmed with work at the Dealer. Due to the volume of work she had no opportunity to notice any wrongdoing by Vera, who had "built trust" over time. She never imagined that odometer tampering was taking place and believed she acted responsibly in and about her work.

Under cross examination, she stated that she oversees the Dealer's books including all paperwork. She has access to all bills of sale, including those when the Dealer purchases vehicles as well as when the Dealer sells vehicles. She stated that there is "a lot of communication between Carlo and I" and that she put him in charge of day to day operations and watched what he was doing. She testified that she knew there were concerns in the past regarding odometer tampering. She also stated that when she inspected the bills of sale, both those relating to purchases of vehicles by the Dealer as well as sales of vehicles by the Dealer, she observed no difference in the odometer readings as recorded on the bills.

Christina concluded her testimony by stating that since about the summer of 2001, when the building of new premises for the dealer was undertaken, she no longer checked vehicles' odometer readings as shown on bills of sale.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven:

1. The Dealer is currently a registered motor vehicle Dealer under the Act.
2. Christina is the sole officer and Director of the Dealer.

3. Christina and Vera were at all material times married to each other and are currently married to each other.
4. By Notice of Proposal dated December 17, 1997 the Registrar proposed to revoke the registration of the Dealer under the Act.
5. On June 25, 1998 the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal under the authority then vested in it, dismissed the Appeal of the Dealer to the Proposal dated December 17, 1997 and directed the Registrar to carry out his Proposal.
6. On October 12, 1998 the Dealer, therein represented by Christina, and the Registrar signed Terms and Conditions pursuant to which the Dealer was registered as a motor vehicle Dealer subject to those Terms and Conditions.
7. The Dealer sold 14 motor vehicles to consumers which motor vehicles are more fully referred to in the Registrar's Notice of Proposal dated December 28, 2001 at paragraph 3 and in the Registrar's Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated February 14, 2002.
8. The odometers of the 14 motor vehicles referred to in paragraph 7 above were rolled back after the vehicles came into the possession of the Dealer and prior to the sale of the vehicles to consumers, who were not informed by the Dealer of the roll backs nor were they aware of such roll backs.
9. The Dealer purchased 6 further motor vehicles more fully referred to in paragraph 4 of the Registrar's Proposal of December 28, 2001. Those vehicles were displayed for sale by the Dealer at its registered premises on December 8, 2001.
10. After the Dealer purchased the 6 vehicles referred to in paragraph 9 above, and while in the possession of the dealer, the odometer readings of all 6 vehicles were rolled back.
11. The Dealer offered restitution to the consumers of the 14 motor vehicles referred to in paragraphs 7 and 8 above after the odometer roll backs were brought to the notice of the Registrar.
12. Vera was a registered salesperson at the Dealer until May 6, 2002, when he consented to the revocation of his registration.

THE LAW:

Section 7.(1) and 7.(2) of the Act states:

7.(1) Where the Registrar proposes to refuse to grant or renew a registration or proposes to suspend or revoke a registration, the Registrar shall serve notice of the proposal, together with written reasons therefor, on the applicant or registrant.

(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the applicant or registrant is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the applicant or registrant mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Registrar and the Tribunal, and the applicant or registrant may so require a hearing.

Section 5.(1) of the Act states:

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

...

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and,

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar to prove that the past conduct of the Dealer affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Dealer will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The grounds upon which the Registrar bases his Proposal are the rolling back by the Dealer of the odometers of some 20 motor vehicles and the misrepresentation to various consumers of the distance travelled by those vehicles.

In Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen) [1983] O.J. No. 1017, April 7, 1983, it was clearly stated that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its Regulations.

The Tribunal's conclusions and the reasons for its conclusions, based on the evidence, follow.

Christina testified that she is the sole Director and Officer of the Dealer. This was also the situation when the Tribunal rendered its decision of June 25, 1998 in which it upheld the Registrar's then Proposal to Revoke the Dealer's registration. Now some four years later, while still the sole Director and Officer of the Dealer, Christina has more experience in the operation of a motor vehicle dealership. According to her evidence she, and she alone, attended to the administration of the Dealer and handled all the paperwork involved in the administration. Not only was Christina the sole Director and Officer of the Dealer but she was the controlling mind of the Dealer. She had de facto control of the Dealer.

In the course of her functions, she admitted having access to and control over bills of sale relating to vehicles purchased by the Dealer and bills of sale relating to the subsequent sale of such vehicles to consumers. By having access and control over these bills of sale Christina had the ability to observe the distance travelled by a vehicle at time of its purchase and its sale. She had the opportunity to make herself aware of the discrepancies in odometer readings of various vehicles, yet did nothing to ensure that this situation was not permitted. While she may not herself have been complicit in the roll back of odometers, she was nevertheless, at best, grossly negligent in failing to observe what was transpiring at the business. She knew that Vera had previously been convicted of odometer tampering, yet she failed to remain vigilant to his repeating such misconduct while he was in charge of operations at the Dealer.

Being the controlling mind of the Dealer she knew or ought to have known how material and important this information was. She either chose to ignore this information or was content to permit vehicles being sold by the Dealer well knowing the falsehood of the odometer readings of the vehicles when sold to consumers.

The Act and its regulations stress the importance of odometer readings. As was stated by Cory, J. in Re Herman Motor Sales Inc and Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen 29 O.R. (d) 431:

There can be no doubt that the readings form the basis for the assessment in value of most vehicles. To tamper or interfere with odometer readings must be considered a grave breach of the duty of the dealer.

As was also stated in the matter of 1280953 Ontario Limited o/a Morato Cars and Radomir Miljkovic (2001) LAT (released June 4, 2001):

There can be no doubt that when a member of the public purchases a second hand motor vehicle he wishes to make an informed decision before committing himself to a purchase. It is clearly material to any purchaser of a second hand motor vehicle that the vendor has disclosed to him all relevant and material information concerning the vehicle.

It is both relevant and material to the contract that the purchaser knows the true mileage the vehicle has travelled which will help indicate if the price asked is fair and reasonable.

With the benefit of registration comes the obligation to ensure that business is conducted and carried on with honesty and integrity and in accordance with law. The Tribunal finds that this obligation was abrogated by Christina when she failed to be vigilant and diligent.

Regard being had to the Tribunal's findings, the Tribunal believes that the past conduct of Christina is likely to result in future acts or omissions that would or could reasonably give rise to the belief that Christina and therefore the Dealer will in the future not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Having regard to the aforesaid, the Tribunal finds no grounds to disagree with the Registrar's Proposal.

ORDER:

Accordingly, the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated December 28, 2001 to revoke the registrations of Delta Minivan and Cars Inc. as a motor vehicle dealer and Carlo Vera as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

CANUS AUTO TRADERS LIMITED AND SIMON VAN DUFFELEN

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO SUSPEND REGISTRATIONS

TRIBUNAL: DAVID J. HUNT, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel representing the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

SIMON VAN DUFFELEN, acting on his own behalf, and as agent for CANUS AUTO TRADERS LIMITED.

DATE OF
HEARING: May 10, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar", and the "Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated Dec. 18, 2001 proposed to suspend the registration of Canus Auto Traders Limited ("Canus"), and Simon Van Duffelen ("Van Duffelen") under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar under the Act proposed to suspend the registration of Canus, and Van Duffelen. The Reasons of the Registrar for the Proposal are set out below:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants suspension of registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Canus or Simon Van Duffellen (sic) under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act until they comply with the Registrar's requests for information.

THE LAW

Section 1 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") states as follows.

"Motor vehicle dealer" means a person who carries on the business of buying or selling motor vehicles, whether for the person's own account for the account of any other person or who holds himself, herself or itself out as carrying on the business of buying or selling motor vehicles.

Section 3 of the Act states as follows,

- (1) No person shall,
 - (a) carry on business as a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered under this Act; or
 - (b) act as a salesperson of or on behalf of a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered as a salesperson of such dealer and such dealer is registered as a motor vehicle dealer under this Act

Section 5 of the Act states as follows;

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or
- (c) the applicant is a corporation and
 - (i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonable be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or
 - (ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or
- (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

(2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

- (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion , the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.
- (2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 9 of the Act states as follows

(1) Where the Registrar receives a complaint in respect of a motor vehicle dealer and so requests in writing, the motor vehicle dealer shall furnish the Registrar with such information respecting the matter complained of as the Registrar requires.

(2) The request under subsection (1) shall indicate the nature of the inquiry involved.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the Registrar or any person designated in writing by him or her may at any reasonable time enter upon the business premises of the motor vehicle dealer to make inspection in relation to the complaint.

Section 10 of the Act states as follows

(1) The Registrar or any person designated by him or her in writing may at any reasonable time enter upon the business premises of the registrant to make an inspection to ensure that the provisions of this Act and the regulations relating to registration and the maintenance of trust accounts are being complied with.

(2) Where the Registrar has reasonable and probable grounds to believe that any person is acting as a motor vehicle dealer or salesperson while unregistered, the Registrar or any person designated by him or her in writing may at any reasonable time enter upon such person's business premises to make an inspection for the purpose of determining whether or not the person is in contravention of section 3.

(11) The Registrar may require further information or material to be submitted by any applicant or any registrant within a specified time limit and may require verification by affidavit or otherwise of any information or material then or previously submitted.

CASELAW:

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"...the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

O.L.A.T.D. No. 105

In this matter the Registrar had revoked the registration of Michael Gerrior as a salesperson, 1080424 Ontario Ltd. and Eastern Auto Wholesale Inc. There were complaints against Michael Gerrior that he had made misrepresentations regarding a vehicle; had failed to comply with the Retail Sales Tax Act; had failed to honor his Agreement with the Ministry of Finance; had acted as an unregistered salesperson; had prior convictions under the Retail Sales Tax Act; had an outstanding judgment against him; and had failed to repay the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. He had also failed to keep the books and records for the companies on the business premises and provide them for inspection by O.M.V.I.C. even though he had received several verbal and written notices. In paragraph 92 of the decision, the Tribunal noted that:

"The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public protection statute and as such, adherence to its requirements are necessary in order to obtain or to maintain registration under the Act. Mr. Gerrior's failure to allow OMVIC to inspect the books and records of its company denied OMVIC the opportunity to ensure that the objects of the Act were being met and the public was being protected. This in itself was a major breach of the Act and could not be excused on the basis that his Accountant would not give back his records until his account was paid."

1306609 Ontario Inc. and Brandon Wayne Easterbrook

In this matter it was found during an inspection that the Registrant did not have complete books and records, an office, or a sign identifying the dealership. During a meeting Easterbrook said that he had brought the books and records as required but during the meeting it was found that there were no current records, and that the financial records were missing or incomplete. Easterbrook was the proprietor and operating mind of the Corporation. The Tribunal found that the Registrant had made no effort to meet the requirements of the Act and regulations, and was unable or unwilling to carry on business in accordance with law. In the absence of cooperation from the Registrant, the Registrar was unable to carry out his duty to ensure that proper financial arrangements by the Registrant, in compliance with the Act and Regulations, were in place. Which meant he was unable to adequately protect the consumer from potential harm.

ISSUES:

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to suspend the Registrants' licences under the Act on the basis of the Registrants' conduct in failing to provide the financial information as requested, and whether the books and records requested are books and records of the Registrants as contemplated by the Act and Regulations.

Witness For The Registrar

Examination in Chief

Mary Jane South testified on behalf of the Registrar and stated that she is the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles under the Act and oversees the registration of dealers and salespersons. She has been employed by O.M.V.I.C. since 1997 and prior to that was the Deputy Registrar when the Act was administered by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. She explained that O.M.V.I.C. was created as a non-profit corporation responsible to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act which is a public protection statute to ensure compliance by dealers and salespersons with standards of honesty, integrity, compliance with law, and financial responsibility within the motor vehicle industry.

Ms. South stated that the decision to suspend the license of Canus and Van Duffelen was made due to a failure by Van Duffelen, as the sole director, shareholder, and operating mind of Canus, to produce the requested books and records in relation to the operation of Canus as required by the agreement for the registration dated August 24, 2000 (Exhibit 3, Tab 6). The specific information required is one particular bank account and a Mastercard application.

The witness testified that at the time of the initial application, all dealer applications came to her. Additional questions arose due to a reference to Ronald Joseph Muise and the address of the dealership. On the Business Application, (Exhibit 3, Tab 4), the name of Ronald Joseph Muise was initially filled in as a contact person and then crossed out on the page listing officers, directors, partners and sales persons. A copy of the lease for the premises was obtained by Ms. South and she found that Mr. Muise was shown as the lessor of the property to Canus. According to the records of the Ministry, Mr. Muise had been registered as a dealer from 1989 to 1997. In the application by Van Duffelen it showed that he was intending to continue carrying on business as a lawyer. A request was made for an application from Mr. Muise, and he applied as a salesperson. Further concerns were raised when a credit check was carried out on him, and it appeared to the witness that he had serious problems with bad debts and the property was encumbered due to a successful lawsuit against him. His application as a salesperson was refused and Canus was registered as a dealer and Van Duffelen registered as a salesperson, subject to the terms and conditions set out in the agreement (Exhibit 3, Tab 6)

Ms. South testified that in this agreement paragraph 4 required the disclosure of financial information, and item 5 required the dealer to give free access to his books and records to a representative of the Registrar. The agreement required that Van Duffelen would be in charge of the day-to-day operations of the dealership and would be the sole director, officer signing officer, and shareholder of the dealer, and that all expenses and purchases of the dealer would be financed through his personal resources. The dealer further agreed to provide the Registrar with written notice of any new sources of financing, loans or gifts for the dealer within ten days of their arrangement or receipt, whichever came first.

Ms. South testified that a letter (Exhibit 3, Tab 8) dated April 3, 2001 was received from the Registrant giving notice that arrangements had been made for Canus with Mastercard and that the company was utilizing funds drawn from that source in the operation of the business. The registrant provided this information on the basis that it was given as a courtesy and without any admission that it was required for compliance with the terms and conditions attached to the dealers license, or that O.M.V.I.C. had any jurisdiction over the matters disclosed. At this time the witness had a concern about the clients of the dealership and if they were exporting cars due to a letter dated March 11, 2001 from the Registrant (Exhibit 3, Tab 7). In this letter Van Duffelen advised that the business was to be operated primarily on a fee for service basis. They would obtain instructions from clients to apply the client's funds to a particular purchase and/or sale transaction and upon completion of that transaction, the dealership would be paid a pre-arranged amount as a fee. He stated that all clients' funds would be held in the motor vehicle dealer's trust account and that, after the deduction of the fee, any funds remaining upon completion of the contemplated transactions would be returned to the client. The operation of the dealership would be financed from the fee income received and Van Duffelen's personal resources. This information was again provided on the basis that it did not constitute an admission that it was required to be given under the terms and conditions attached to the dealer's license and was therefore given only as a courtesy.

The witness had concerns over this arrangement, and sent a letter dated April 19, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 9) to the Registrant asking whether the customers referred to were registered motor vehicle dealers or whether he was dealing with individuals and businesses that were not registered under the Act. She requested copies of a sample purchase and sale agreement and also asked for a copy of the application or arrangements made with Mastercard. The registrant replied and in a letter dated May 2, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 10) stated that the clients were individuals and corporations who are not registered under the Act and that the clients provide the funds to be applied to the purchases but never take delivery or title. The Registrant is then instructed to export the vehicle purchased and to sell it. The Registrant retains the discretion to choose the particular vehicle within the general description provided by the client and the vehicles are understood to be late model used vehicles. Van Duffelen explained that the funds received from the client are held in the trust account, sale proceeds are delivered directly to the client, and any balance remaining in the trust account will be applied to the next purchase for the client or returned to the client. The dealership does not take their fee from the trust account but receives it directly from the client. Vehicles purchased and/or sold are registered in the name of the dealership and duly recorded in the Garage Register of the dealership. He further stated that there were no sample agreements available and that written instructions are received from the clients directing the dealer to apply the funds to the purchase of one or more motor vehicles and export and sell them as may be advantageous. In the event that a motor vehicle is purchased at a price exceeding the funds provided by the client the Registrant would augment the client's funds out of his own personal resources including the credit facility, if applicable, and later be reimbursed by the client from the sale proceeds. No additional fee or interest is charged for this service. This information was again provided on the basis that it was a courtesy and not required by the terms and conditions of the dealer's license and there was no admission that it was within the jurisdiction of O.M.V.I.C.

On June 5 2001 (exhibit 3 Tab 11), a letter was sent by Aviva Harari in her capacity as counsel for O.M.V.I.C. requesting that the Registrant provide O,M,V,I,C. with copies of any applications or agreements with respect to Mastercard. She also requested copies of purchase and sale, bills of sale, the Garage Register, copies of bank statements and all cancelled cheques from all dealership bank accounts for the previous three months.

The Registrant replied by a letter dated June 13, 2001. (Exhibit 3, Tab 12) In this letter, he forwarded the requested copies of bank statements, copies of cheques, and a copy of the Garage Register for the previous three months, together with copies of all bills of sale for all vehicles traded within the past three months. He explained that he was seeking to comply with the requirements to provide written notice of new sources of financing loans or other gifts but refused to provide the copy of the Mastercard application stating that it was beyond the requirements of the conditions and asking for an explanation of why it was being requested. Van Duffelen further explained that the dealership had purchased two vehicles from private individuals and in one case this was done in the course of his professional activities as a lawyer. Both of these vehicles were sold at auction. Any other vehicles were purchased from licensed dealers or through local auctions and were exported to the United States and have been or are in the process of being sold to licensed dealers or sold at auction.

Ms. South testified that when she examined the bank statements she had questions over the fact that within the three-month period covered by the statements provided, over $75,000 had been transferred into the corporate Registrant's account # 0420-1038-855 from account 0420-1039-356, hereinafter referred to as account 356. These transfers took place on the May 25, 2001 in the amount of $12,000.00, April 17, 2001 in the amount of $9,808.67 and April 23 2001 in the amount of $54,000 00. In the opinion of Ms. South this raised a question of whether there was compliance under the Act and she wished to inspect the records relating to that account as it appeared to her that it was being used to finance the dealership and was therefore a business record which would be subject to inspection under s.10 of the Act and regulation 801, s. 13(11), as well as paragraph 4 of the terms and conditions of the registration.

Further correspondence followed. In his letter of August 15, 2001 (exhibit 3, Tab 14) Van Duffelen informed O.M.V.I.C. that some of his clients were registered motor vehicle dealers, some were not and that none had purchased more than one vehicle. Some clients request the purchase of a specific vehicle from a pre-sale listing at an auction while others only specified the year, make and model together with any additional criteria. In this letter he explained that used vehicles are generally purchased and that after payment for the purchased vehicle any remaining trust funds for that client are returned to the client after the deduction of applicable fees and charges and allowing for recoverable G.S.T. in cases where they are directed to export the motor vehicle. He stated that when the Canus sells a motor vehicle on the client's behalf, the client is not necessarily a motor vehicle dealer as they would not need the registrant's services if they were, unless the vehicle were to be sold on consignment. The Registrant would sell a vehicle on behalf of the client, if requested, if the vehicle is not a personal vehicle and the client is not registered as a motor vehicle dealer. Van Duffelen also confirmed that all vehicles purchased or sold by Canus were registered in the dealership's garage register.

O.M.V.I.C. responded to this letter in a letter from their counsel Aviva Harari in a letter dated October 26, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 15), repeating the request for the Mastercard information and the records for account 356.

In a letter dated November 8, 2001, (exhibit, 3, Tab 16) Van Duffelen replied that Canus had two bank accounts, being a general bank account and a trust account and that account 356 was not a dealership account and that it holds some of his personal resources. On that basis, he refused to provide the information requested and also took the position that the information about the Mastercard was beyond the ambit of the Act and regulations. He further stated that the Mastercard was not an outside source of financing as contemplated in the terms and conditions of registration. The Registrant provided further details of the method of operation of the business. He explained that the proposed arrangement was to have clients who were primarily in Europe send set amounts of funds through an offshore conduit to the dealership trust account for a specified period during which they would be applied to the purchase of used motor vehicles in Canada which would then be exported for resale to the United States. The clients were to be guaranteed a fixed return on their investment at the end of a set time period when the sale proceeds were received. The dealership was to be paid a fixed percentage fee on each transaction. This arrangement was tried by Van Duffelen using his own resources for a number of transactions. No client funds were actually received or ever utilized at any time, and the Registrant had stopped using this strategy as of the date of the letter. Even though there are no clients to report, the Registrant asserted that under this scenario such clients would not be trading in motor vehicles and would therefore not have to be registered as motor vehicle dealers under the Act, as they have no control over the specific vehicle purchased, would never receive ownership of any vehicle at any time or ever have any control over the timing of the purchase or sale.

They would not be at risk of profit or loss on the motor vehicle trade and the only risk would depend on the ability of their offshore conduit of the funds to carry out its obligation. To the date of the letter, there had been no clients, and the other requests by O.M.V.I.C. were in the opinion of Van Duffelen therefore redundant .

Ms. South responded to this letter with a letter dated November 14, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 17) in which the request for bank statements and Mastercard application were repeated, and she asserted that the account referred to was clearly being used as a trust account to finance the business and the registrar is therefore entitled to receive the information requested. Ms. South referred him to section 11 of the Act concerning documents that inspectors appointed by the Registrar are entitled to access. She also stated that assurances given with regard to the Mastercard arrangement were not sufficient and the Registrar still required a copy of the application. In her opinion the Registrant's customers should be registered as motor vehicle dealers as they are purchasing motor vehicles for the purpose of resale, and were receiving a profit as a result of the sale and on that basis should not escape the scrutiny of the Registrar. She also stated that it was in breach of the O.M.V.I.C. Standards of Business Practice for a dealer to conduct business with unregistered dealers, and she attached a copy of the Standards of Business Practice document, paragraph 5..2.3 of which read as follows:

"Dealers do not knowingly allow anyone other than a registered salesperson to be involved in negotiating or approving motor vehicle transactions or to give information about specific motor vehicles that are for sale or lease. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing such positions include those typically known as business managers, finance and insurance staff, leasing staff, sales staff and all sales and leasing managers."

Van Duffelen responded with the letter dated November 24, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 18) in which he asserted that the dealership was carrying on business in a financially responsible manner and denied that account 356 was a company trust account. He stated that the funds in that account were part of his personal resources, so he refused to make disclosure as he thought there had already been compliance with the condition of registration. He explained that the funds were not borrowed or otherwise obtained from third parties. Further, he stated that after past transactions were completed utilizing funds from this account, further funds were transferred on a "fee for service" basis to the dealership's general account and operating funds. This strategy was set up to attract investment for cross-border sales but was not implemented and is now not intended to be used. He took issue with the right of the Registrar to information concerning the Mastercard application as he said it was not relevant to the dealership's operations if they did not have reason to believe that there were significant misrepresentations on the application or that it would show that the registrant could not be expected to be financially responsible in its conduct of business. No such allegations had been made and he was not aware of any reasonable basis for such a belief. He did agree to provide copies of the monthly statements if requested. He also explained that section 11 of the Act regarding access to documents, referred to in the letter of Ms. South, is a power which comes into play for an inspection under section 9 and 10 of the Act and he stated that under section 9 of the Act, it is specifically triggered only upon the receipt of a complaint, and that in this case he was not aware of any complaints. Van Duffelen stated that the dealership has only purchased 9 vehicles, 7 at auction and 2 from individuals and that these 2 vehicles were sold at auction and were handled on that basis only. Of the other seven vehicles, one remains in inventory and six were exported to the United States and sold at auction.

At the conclusion of her evidence in chief Ms. South stated that she required the requested documentation to ensure compliance with the Act and the terms and conditions of registration. In her opinion it was within her powers of inspection under section 10 of the Act which allows her access to books and records. The bank account 356 appeared to her as being used to finance the dealership and was therefore subject to inspection pursuant to the power under section 13 of the regulations under the Act. She explained that they did not apply to revoke the registration as they would not know if the statute was being otherwise complied with until they received the information concerning the account and the Mastercard. There was no prosecution under the Act as there was no evidence of wrongdoing.

Cross-examination

In cross examination Ms. South repeated that the intention of the Act is to protect the public interest and that the issue of conduct refers in this case is the past conduct which is the failure to provide the requested information that is necessary to ensure compliance with the Act. This behavior specifically relates to his conduct as the sole director and the operating mind of the dealership and is only the conduct of refusing access to the requested documentation. She agreed that the Act states that a person has a right to registration, subject to the two exceptions in section 5 that relate to financial responsibility and past conduct. The concept of carrying on business with honesty, integrity, and in accordance with the law in this case goes to the issue of meeting the obligations of disclosing the information requested which is necessary within the regulatory framework for the proper supervision of the industry. Initially, there was a delay in the registration because of the involvement of Mr. Muise and a concern over the location of the dealership. Even though Mr. Muise was a dealer for eight years and had never been the subject of the complaint, there were issues concerning his financial situation and whether he would be the directing mind of the dealership. The conditions of the registration were imposed to ensure that he would not be involved and that Van Duffelen would be the operating mind of the dealership. Ms. South agreed that there was nothing in the circumstances to show that this had not been complied with. However she did express concern over the clients and the fact that there were no written agreements or even written instructions. In her opinion the books and records requested were required to ensure that there was compliance and it was a refusal of access to the books and records that caused the Registrar to consider the conduct sufficient that action had to be taken. There was no breach of the terms and conditions of registration prior to the refusal to provide the requested information. In the letter of April 3, 2001 (Exhibit, Tab 8) notice of the Mastercard application was given in compliance with paragraph 4 of the terms and conditions requiring notice of any new source of financing. However, once this was received, the Registrar required access to the information to properly evaluate the financial status of the Registrant. The witness explained that the Registrar had the right to require information about the capital structure of the company as the Registrar needed to know who would be funding the business. In her opinion, mere notice as provided in the letter was not sufficient since as there were concerns that persons who should be under scrutiny or be registered might be financing the dealer. In this case the issue was the limit of the power of the Registrar to demand information in order to scrutinize the Registrant. She stated that because the card would be used to draw funds for the business it was part of the capital structure and related to the operation and financing of the dealership, thereby becoming subject to disclosure and scrutiny.

She stated that if there is personal information disclosed in the application form it becomes accessible if the money is involved in the financing of the dealership. The witness agreed that there was nothing in the letter of March 11, 2001 (Exhibit 3, Tab 7) setting out the capital structure of the Company which would give grounds to decide that there was non-compliance with the Act or the terms and conditions of registration. However she required the information requested to confirm this. Specifically, she was interested in the statements as to assets and debts in the Mastercard application.

Ms. South disagreed that the statutory declaration was sufficient and stated that there was still a concern that clients might be required to be registered motor vehicles dealers as the vehicles were purchased for the clients for export. She did not know exactly how the Mastercard was going to be used but she wanted the information to know how the business was being financed, just as they needed information about the bank account from which large amounts of money were transferred. Even though they were advised that all of the vehicles were recorded in the Garage Register she was not satisfied with that.

When she was asked if the disclosure was complete after disclosure of the Mastercard application she said it was not, as the information about the bank account 356 was not disclosed and the existence of that account was not known of until the bank records were received and it was found to be the source of transfers. She agreed that there was no particular reason to believe it was not money from personal resources. However, the witness testified that she wanted to have the information about the account to confirm this, and was not willing to simply accept his word on that issue. There was no concern over other deposits and she did not ask for the deposit book as she wanted a document that would give verification independent of the Registrant. She therefore wanted to go beyond the trust ledger even though it would show on whose behalf the Registrant recorded that trust funds were held. When asked if there were reasonable grounds to believe that he had not used his own resources for the transaction, as he claimed in his correspondence, she agreed that there were no grounds but she wanted to see the books to be sure.

Questions in reply

Ms. South was questioned in reply and stated that without seeing the records of the bank account 356 she could not determine if it was a business account or in fact personal funds of Van Duffelen, and she would not simply accept his word on the matter. She explained that the Registrar did not presume that everyone is a crook but the only way they can carry out their function properly is to get confirmation from independent sources.

No evidence was called on behalf of the Registrants Canus and Van Duffelen.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The facts found by the Tribunal are that

1. Van Duffelen is registered as a motor vehicle salesperson and is the sole director, sole officer and operating mind of Canus.
2. Van Duffelen signed terms and conditions prior to the registration of himself and the corporate registrant. In paragraph 4 of the terms and conditions he agreed to provide free access to the books and records of the dealership. Further he agreed to operate the business using his own resources and notifying the Registrar of any new source of funding. When he made a Mastercard application on behalf of the company, he notified the Registrar of the application, but refused to provide a copy of the application form although he offered to provide copies of the monthly statements if these were requested. When he provided the bank statements for the dealership's general account and trust account it appeared that over $75,000 had been transferred within three months from account 356. He denied that this was a business account, and claimed that it contained some of his personal resources. Van Duffelen explained a structure in which foreign investors would arrange for funds to be channelled to his trust account and he would arrange the purchase and export for sale of vehicles based on the clients' instructions to him. The purpose of this arrangement was to return a profit to the client with a fee for service being charged by the dealership. Van Duffelen claimed in his correspondence that this program had been abandoned and that only 9 vehicles had been purchased out of his own resources, with no money being received from outside sources. No testimony was given on this issue.
3. The Tribunal finds that there is no evidence concerning the source of the funds in account 356 and there is therefore a possibility that the funds were in fact solely those of Van Duffelen, in which case he was abiding by the terms and conditions under which he and the company were registered. If that is correct, it means he would have been fronting the money to purchase the vehicles and then receiving compensation out of the sale proceeds. In this case, however, one would expect the sale proceeds to flow into the accounts of the business and the repayment of funds to Van Duffelen to appear as a payment out of the business accounts and back into account 356. If not, then it would appear that any repayment received must have gone directly into account 356 in which case it would directly be an account of the business, although it would have funds potentially mixed with the personal resources of Van Duffelen.

4. The Tribunal finds that an issue arose for the Registrar upon receipt of the explanation in the correspondence from Van Duffelen as to whether the business arrangement as explained by Van Duffelen which was set up to produce a potential profit for the customer on the dealership's resale of the vehicles meant that customer was acting as a motor vehicle dealer under the scope of the Act. If the customers were simply using the Registrant to buy vehicles specifically for the purposes of earning a profit through the resale the Registrar would have to consider the question of whether the customer is carrying on a business as an unregistered motor vehicle dealer with the registrant acting as an intermediary in a system to produce potential profits to the customer. The Tribunal finds that the system as described in the correspondence was arranged to allow the customers to carry on the business of buying, selling and exporting motor vehicles even though they did not necessarily specify the particular motor vehicle or the method of sale. It was therefore incumbent upon the Registrar to investigate the financial and logistical details of this arrangement to ensure compliance with the Act.
5. The Tribunal finds that the Registrant did send the notice of the Mastercard to the Registrar as required by paragraph 4 of the terms and conditions of registration. However he did not send the copy of the application form when the demand was made for this information by the Registrar. The Registrant did provide copies of the trust and general accounts for the business to the Registrar thereby disclosing the involvement of account 356. The Tribunal finds that the Registrar did make a demand for the particulars of the account and the request was refused by Van Duffelen.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

1. The customers in this arrangement were being invited to carry on the business of buying and selling vehicles for profit with the Registrant acting on their behalf in the selection and ultimate disposition of the vehicle. The financing of this arrangement took place and the money eventually found its way to the dealership's trust account through account 356. The intention was that the proceeds of sale together with money from the client would cover the costs of purchasing the vehicle, the fee charged by the Registrant and produce a profit for the customer. The Tribunal finds that money was forwarded from account 356 but there is no evidence of the source of the funds. Van Duffelen in his letters stated that no funds were received from clients but there was no evidence provided to the Tribunal beyond the fact that assertions were made in the correspondence.

2. The Tribunal finds that there were no complaints made about the Registrants and therefore the requests for information by the Registrar were not made under section 11(1) of the Act, having been triggered by section 9 which deals with the investigation of complaints. Section 10 of the Act permits a free inspection by a designated person to ensure that the provisions of the Act and regulations relating to registration and maintenance of trust accounts are being followed. The demand for financial records related to the dealership were therefore justified.
3. The Tribunal finds that the request for further information in this case would also be permitted under section 13(11) of Regulation 801 as a demand for information which is allowed under the Act to verify any information or material then or previously submitted. In this case the information had been provided about the corporate structure, the proposed method of doing business and the information concerning the Mastercard application having been made was given in compliance with paragraph 4 of the terms and conditions of registration.
4. The Tribunal finds that there was no direct proof that account 356 was an account held in the name of the corporate Registrant or what the source of the funds actually was. However this could not be proven one way or the other without access to information regarding the account. It is found that there was activity with account 356 on more than one occasion and it appeared to be involved in the corporate financial structure of the dealership although there was no evidence of whether the account contained the personal assets of Van Duffelen. In the circumstances, where the information provided about the corporate structure and clientele was vague and incomplete, it was reasonable for the Registrar to require information in order to verify the information provided in the letters concerning the arrangements with customers and the corporate financial structure including information involving account 356 and the Mastercard account. In the particular circumstances of this case the information concerning account 356 and the MasterCard application are books and records directly related to the corporate and financial structure of the dealership and are therefore books and records as contemplated by the Act.

The Act provides that the Registrar may suspend or revoke the registration of the Registrant where the Registrant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct.

Prior to the refusal of the Registrant to provide the requested information there was no history of earlier misconduct and the prior conduct referred to specifically relates to the refusal to provide the information concerning account 356 and the Mastercard application. The information concerning the Mastercard application directly relates to the Mastercard which was to be a source of funds for the dealership and the information about account 356 was necessary to provide an understanding of a major source of funds and the financial dealings of the dealership. Both are therefore directly related to the operation of the corporate Registrant and the information thereby becomes business records and compellable under the Act

In a regulated industry the individual does not have the same level of privacy as they would in their outside life. The fact of the regulation and wide powers of inspection means that the individual and corporation will often be subject, in an intrusive manner, to inspection and the requirement to provide information. This is necessary in an industry where the financial and corporate arrangements of the participants must be transparent and open to inspection in order to maintain the integrity of the industry by ensuring the honesty of the participants.

This is not the case of someone with a criminal record or who has provided false information on their application form and is instead a case of a refusal to provide the materials necessary to verify and clarify statements made in correspondence concerning financial arrangements and corporate structure. Van Duffelen has certainly made some serious efforts at compliance and this refusal to provide the requested information may well be based on a legal interpretation by him of whether the required information constitutes records under the Act.

On the issue of whether the Applicant will carry on business in accordance with the law, the Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct. The material requested by the Registrar was necessary for an understanding of the actual corporate and financial structure of the dealership and to determine whether Van Duffelen was carrying out the Terms and Conditions of the Agreement. It is quite possible that he was in fact carrying out the other obligations under the Act, the Regulations and the Agreement. However, the Registrar is obliged to verify this and for that purpose it is necessary for the requested material to be provided. This conduct of refusing to provide the material is a breach of the Act and the Regulations, and is therefore past conduct to be considered for the purposes of the Act. It is a serious breach of the Act as the books and records are necessary for the Registrar to properly carry out his supervisory function under the Act.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity, honesty, and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the Registrar has met the onus to prove that his decision to suspend the registrations was not in error.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the License Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to suspend the registration of the Registrants, and directs that the suspension should not be imposed for a period of 60 days to permit the Registrant to provide the required material. The suspensions shall not be imposed if the information is provided.

WAIVER AND CONSENT

In accordance with section 4.1 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, the parties hereto waive the requirement of a hearing and consent to a Decision in writing based upon the following Agreed Statement of Facts and Joint Submission.

AGREED STATEMENT OF FACTS

BACKGROUND

1. 1407847 Ontario Inc. o/a New Century Travel Consulting Services of Canada (hereinafter referred to as "the Registrant") is a company incorporated pursuant to the laws of Ontario and has been registered under the Travel Industry Act, R.S.O., c. T-19, as amended (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") as a travel agent, registration number 50008386, since September 12, 2000. The Registrant's fiscal year end is May 31st.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS – GROUNDS FOR THE PROPOSAL

2. Subsection 24(2) of Ontario Regulation 806/93 made under the Act (hereinafter referred to as "the Regulation") states that if a registrant had sales of less than $10 million during the previous fiscal year, the registrant shall file within three months of the end of the fiscal year annual financial statements with a review engagement report by a public accountant licensed under the Public Accountancy Act.
3. By letter dated May 22, 2001, the Registrant was requested by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario ("TICO") to file financial statements for the fiscal year ending May 31, 2001 by August 31, 2001.
4. On September 20, 2001, a second request was sent to the Registrant, providing the Registrant with a deadline to submit the required filing by September 30, 2001.
2. On September 26, 2001, Mr. John Paccanaro, the Registrant's Accountant telephoned TICO to advise that he had the financial statements ready in draft form and was in the process of finalizing the statements. The estimated submission date given by Mr Paccanaro was October 15, 2001.
3. On October 17, 2001, Mr. Paccanaro called TICO to advise that he must "tidy up the sales issues" for the Registrant, and that "sales were improperly recorded by the Registrant". He gave a further estimated submission date of November 15, 2001, for submission of the Registrant's financial statements.

4. On November 16, 2001 TICO received draft financial statements for the Registrant.
5. On December 10, 2001 TICO sent the Registrant a fax indicating that TICO had received draft financial statements for its company, which were unacceptable. The Registrant was advised to submit finalized financial statements accompanied by a Review Engagement no later than December 31, 2001.
6. On December 17, 2001 the Registrant telephoned TICO to ask if TICO had contacted his accountant. The registrant was advised that it is the Registrant's responsibility to ensure timely submission of its financial statements.
7. On December 29, 2001, TICO received finalized financial statements for the Registrant, accompanied by a Review Engagement. The Review Engagement Report was not, however, signed by a Licensed Public Accountant, as required by the section 24 of the Regulation.
8. By letter dated January 10, 2002, TICO advised the Registrant of the deficiency with its financial statements.
9. On January 14, 2002, the Registrant telephoned TICO to ask why the financial statements were unacceptable and was again advised that the statements required a Review Engagement Report by a Licensed Public Accountant.
10. By letter dated February 4, 2002, the Registrar issued a final due date of February 15, 2002 for the Registrant to file acceptable financial statements for its first fiscal year ended May 31, 2001.
11. By February 22, 2002, the Registrant has failed to file acceptable financial statements for its fiscal year ended May 31, 2001. On that date the Registrar issued a Proposal to Revoke the Registrant's registration.
12. To date, the Registrant has failed to file acceptable financial statements for the fiscal year ended May 31, 2001.
13. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

JOINT SUBMISSION

Accordingly, the parties consent to an order of the Licence Appeal Tribunal under subsections 6 (4) and (5) of the Travel Industry Act directing that:

1. the Registrar refrain from carrying out the Proposal to Revoke Registration dated February 22, 2002;
2. the Registrant's registration is to be subject to the following terms and conditions:
 - (a) the Registrant shall file complete financial statements as required by section 24 of the Regulation, for its fiscal year ended May 31, 2001, no later than June 30, 2002;
 - (b) If the above-noted financial statements as submitted reveal an insufficient working capital amount or are otherwise deficient, the Registrant will have 30 days from the date of notice of the amount of the deficiency to fully and completely address any deficiency and produce proof of such correction to the Registrar. Thereafter, the Registrant shall maintain the minimum working capital in accordance with section 25 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time. Notice of the deficiency, if any, shall be sent by facsimile, registered mail, or courier to the Registrant;

- (c) The Registrant shall file complete financial statements as required by section 24 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time, for its fiscal year ending May 31, 2002, no later than August 31, 2002;
 - (d) The Registrant shall file complete financial statements as required by section 24 of the Regulation or such subsequent provision as may be in force from time to time, for its fiscal year ending May 31, 2003, no later than August 31, 2003; and
 - (e) the Registrant agrees that the Registrar shall hold TICO's $10,000.00 security until such time as the Registrant has demonstrated to the Registrar that it is in compliance with the requirements of the Regulation.
- 3. Should the Registrant fail to comply with conditions listed in paragraphs (2) (a) to (d) inclusive, the Registrar shall revoke the Registrant's registration on five (5) days written notice sent via facsimile transmission, courier or registered mail.
 - 4. This order shall enure to the benefit of and be binding upon the respective successors and assigns of each of the parties to this order.

INDEPENDENT LEGAL ADVICE

The Registrant further acknowledges by its signature below that it has obtained or has had the opportunity to obtain independent legal advice with respect to its consent to the terms and conditions set out in this document.

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,

DATE OF HEARING: May 14, 2002 By Teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

On April 20, 2002, Physician #1 of Midland Ontario reported to the Ministry of Transportation the medical condition of his patient, the Applicant viz. a cerebro-vascular accident and congestive heart failure. He felt that the Applicant should not be driving.

On May 4, 2001, the Ministry of Transportation suspended his licence to drive on the basis of section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act and advised the Applicant that this matter would be reconsidered upon receipt of necessary medical reports.

The Applicant submitted a report from Physician #2, Optometrist, dated August 2, 2001 to include visual field tests. This showed a high percentage of Fixation Losses, and some degree of restriction of 120° uninterrupted field of vision. Corrected visual acuity with lenses is 20/25 which is acceptable. He also submitted a neurological consultation report from Physician #3, Toronto, dated July 7, 2001 describing mild residual weakness of the right arm and minimal weakness of the right hip flexors. Physician #3 offered no opinion regarding his ability to drive but suggested an assessment by a road testing centre.

The Medical Advisory Committee of the Ministry of Transportation agreed with his licence suspension and suggested a repeat of the visual field testing. The Applicant was so advised on October 12, 2001 and again on December 12, 2001.

At the hearing today, information was elicited from the Applicant that he lives alone, is self sufficient, has full use of his hands and does not use a cane or walker. The only medication he takes now is aspirin. His stroke episodes of December 2000 and February 2001 were mild and he was in hospital for only 2-3 days each, attended by his family Physician #1. He has a disable drivers parking permit

Despite several requests from the Ministry of Transportation, the Applicant has not supplied an up to date visual assessment from his optometrist or ophthalmologist.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (f) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Regulation 340/94 Section 14(a) states that the holder of a driver's licence must not suffer from any disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The medical standards for determining fitness to drive are published by the Canadian Medical Association and are used by the Ministry of Transportation in the application of Regulation 340/94.

When the Ministry of Transportation receives a report that a driver has sustained a cerebro-vascular accident, they will routinely request an assessment of the driver's vision because vision is so often affected by such an attack.

The Applicant's vision does not comply with the standard for visual fields recommended by the Canadian Medical Association (Section 11.1.2 - sixth edition, 2002.)

"Class 5 personal use licence - 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal median and 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation with both eyes open and examined together."

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 13, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 21, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on May 22, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated April 29, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on April 29, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid in cash.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated April 19, 2002
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received April 29, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received May 16, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.”

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

“A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal”.

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended '02 04 19" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of the Notice of Appeal is blank.

The Applicant introduced a handwritten note from a physicians' prescription pad, showing the heading, Physician #1.

The note, apparently signed by Physician #1, and dated "2002-04-26" describes the asthma medication that the Applicant is currently on.

At the hearing, the Applicant testified as to the events that led up to the demand for the breath sample. The Applicant told the Tribunal that he was feeling tired from lack of sleep. He fell asleep in his car, while waiting for his girlfriend. When awakened by a knock at the window, by the officer, he was drowsy, confused, did not know what he doing, and became "excited".

After a few attempts to provide a breath sample, the Applicant had difficulty breathing and asked the officer to be allowed to get his puffer. It is the Applicant's belief that the officer did not understand him, but he did make the request twice.

In commenting on the sworn Affidavit of Police Officer #1, the Applicant disagreed with points #5; #15; #21; #26. Respectively, the Applicant did not agree to having "...bleary bloodshot eyes..." if he did, it was from lack of sleep; the Applicant asserted that he was only given four opportunities to blow not five as stated in the Affidavit; the Applicant claims that the right to counsel was not read; the Applicant affirmed that he did tell the Constable he had an asthma condition.

The Tribunal asked the Applicant why his physician had not completed page 2 of the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant replied that he himself filled the top part of the page but was not aware that his physician was required to fill the form.

In cross-examination by the Respondent's Representative, Mr. Biel, the Applicant basically reiterated his previous testimony. When asked specifically how it was possible that, according to Police Officer #1, he was able to blow into the mouthpiece when the mouthpiece was not connected to the instrument, but not while the mouthpiece was attached, the Applicant proffered that he did not recall being able to blow at all.

The Applicant confirmed that he had not sought medical assistance after the incident. The Applicant saw Physician #1 on the "...26th...", but did not inform him about the fact that he had been stopped by the police and asked to provide a breath sample.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

3. Copy of Notice to the Registrar
4. Copy of Driving Record of The Applicant

The Applicant's Driver's abstract shows several offences.

The Respondent did not call the officer involved in the incident as a witness, but introduced in evidence the sworn Affidavit of Police Officer #1 of the Toronto Police Services, Badge number #_____.

Police Officer #1 attested that he has been employed by the Toronto Police Services "...since October 1991...".

After observing the Applicant asleep at the driver's seat of the vehicle with the engine running, Police Officer #1 "...formed a suspicion ...alcohol in his body ...made the demand ...to provide forthwith a sample of breath ...explained ...how to provide a breath sample..."

According to Police Officer #1, the Applicant "...failed to follow ...instructions by allowing air to escape out the sides of his mouth. He was not making a tight seal on the mouthpiece..."

Police Officer #1 "...again explained ...how to provide a proper sample ...had the male remove the mouthpiece from the instrument and blow through it while it was not attached to the instrument. The male was able to blow without any problem..."

During the Applicant's second attempt to blow into the instrument, Police Officer #1 "...observed that no breath entered the instrument."

The Applicant was given four more opportunities to provide a breath sample, but "...did not create a tight seal ...blew a short 2-second blow and then stopped ...no air entering the instrument ...gave a series of short puffs into the instrument resulting in an improper sample ...blew a second short ...then stopped..."

Police Officer #1 was never informed that the Applicant "...suffered from any medical condition..." nor did the Applicant request "...medication or medical assistance..."

The Applicant did not demonstrate any signs of impaired breathing such as "...coughing or wheezing..."

In closing the Applicant simply stated that he is "innocent" and that he needs his license.

The Respondent's Representative pointed out in his closing remarks that whether or not the Applicant had been drinking is not the issue. The issue is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

In order to succeed in an appeal the Applicant has to establish that he has a medical condition that prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. Mr. Biel maintains that the note provided by the Applicant's physician does not comply with the requirements of Section 15 of Regulation 574, which is specific as to the information required in a medical report.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

Thus, as the Respondent's Representative asserted, at issue is, does the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand?

The Applicant opted to submit a note from his physician Physician #1 in lieu of having page 2 of the Notice of Appeal completed by his physician.

The Respondent claims that the information contained in this note does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required, such as the Applicant's address and date of birth. The Tribunal concurs.

Further, section 15(1)(c), (d) and 15(2) of Regulation 574 prescribes as follows:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
....

- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
- ...
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

By his own admission the Applicant affirmed that he did not inform his physician that he had been asked to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal finds that Physician #1's handwritten note falls short of the meeting the criteria set out in Section 15(1)(c) of Regulation 574.

Physician #1's note offers no information as to how long the Applicant has been his patient nor any details of last visit, thus, Section 15(1)(d) of Regulation 574 is not met.

Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant. The essence of this clause requires that the physician established a link between the condition and the inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF represent important corroboration of your medication opinion)).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ... patient was last seen

The Tribunal is left unsure as to why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but the fact is that Physician #1's report fails to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1.

Physician #1 does not offer any rationalization of how the Applicant's condition affects the Applicant's breathing pattern. Nor, does Physician #1 provide any justification as to how this problem could have affected the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample.

At the hearing the Applicant was unable to coherently explain why he was unable to provide a breath sample, other than to state that he was "excited" and has "asthma". The Tribunal accepts the Applicant's testimony. Nonetheless, there is insufficient evidence, medical and viva voce from the Applicant, to explain how the condition prevented the Applicant from providing the demanded breath sample.

As mentioned by the Respondent's Representative, the Applicant's condition was not severe enough to warrant seeking medical assistance immediately after the incident. The Applicant's first visit to his physician was a week after the incident, and at that time he did not feel the incident merited discussing with his physician.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1(2)(b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated April 19, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 22, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on May 23, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated April 5, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on May 6, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by certified cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

Prior to the commencement of the hearing the Respondent's Representative requested a grace period be allowed in order to afford time for Police Officer #1 to arrive.

In accordance with the Tribunal's procedure a 30 minutes grace period was granted.

The Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar dated April 3, 2002 - issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form received May 6, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received May 17, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

50.1 (1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

(2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

- (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
- (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

- (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
- (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
- (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
- (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Tribunal notes that the date on the Notice of Appeal is "APRIL 3^d 2003", which appears to be in error. According to the Notice to the Registrar, the Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "02/04/03". (Exhibit # 1)

Applicant's Evidence

The medical history portion of the Notice of Appeal has been prepared by the Applicant's physician of "12+" years, Physician #1.

Physician #1 confirms that he saw the Applicant on April 3^d, 2002, presenting signs of "...bronchitis & sinusitis. Biaxin prescribed ...this infection may render it difficult for the patient to maintain a prolonged exhalation of breath..."

Physician #1 attaches the results of a sinuses and chest radiological consultation report, from the Lawrence-Kingston Rd. X-Ray laboratory, dated "03 Apr 2002". The said report indicates, "...There is a slight mucosal thickening throughout the left maxillary antrum consistent with sinusitis which may be acute, sub-acute or chronic. The other paranasal sinuses are clear, as is the posterior nasopharynx ...CHEST: PA AND LEFT LATERAL - Normal..."

The Applicant testified that he had been suffering from sinusitis and bronchitis for approximately one month prior to the breath demand incident. The Applicant attempted to control the cough with medication purchased off the shelf.

The Applicant affirmed that he was not able to blow because of the cough. In fact, the Applicant stated that this was the reason why the officer gave him seven opportunities to provide a sample when the officer's normal procedure is to allow five attempts.

The Applicant believes that it is possible the officer thought he had been drinking because his eyes were red. The Applicant explained to the Tribunal that his eyes get red every time he coughs, as he needs to cough very hard in order to expel the mucus.

When asked, as a matter of clarification, if he was coughing at the time, the Applicant replied, "No, I was not coughing at the time of the test, no..."

Prior to concluding his evidence-in-chief; the Applicant questioned why the officers did not take a blood sample, and stated that his licence is essential.

In cross-examination, the Applicant testified that he had not seen a physician prior to the incident due to lack of time. He suffers quite often from bronchitis, and tries to deal with it himself. The Applicant asserted that his physician chastised him for not seeking treatment sooner.

In reply to the Respondent's Representative's question as to whether his physician ordered any pulmonary function tests, the Applicant noted that "...That was not his main concern ...his main concern was my health...". The Applicant was asked to return for a follow up consultation in two weeks, but was not referred to a respiratologist.

As for medication, the Applicant was prescribed an antibiotic but not an inhaler.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

- 1 Notice to the Registrar
- 2 Driving Record of the Applicant,
- 3 Medical report of Dr. Roger Goldstein, MB.ChB, FRCP (UK), FRCP(C), FCCP
- 4 The Applicant's driver's record according to the Ministry of Transportation. (Exhibit #3)

In a letter dated May 1 2002, Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB,ChB,FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of Program in Respiratory Rehabilitation - University of Toronto, states that he is a "...consultant respiratologist in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional Program in Rehabilitation, ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition..." .

After reviewing the medical report prepared by Physician #1, as well as the results of the sinuses and chest X-ray, Dr. Goldstein concluded “...the presence of bronchitis, even if accompanied by sinusitis, is unlikely to have prevented The Applicant from providing a satisfactory breath sample. The breath sample in question is quite easy to provide and indeed, has been provided in a very satisfactory manner by individuals with very severe lung disease...”

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police – Toronto Detachment as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he has been with the Ontario Provincial Police “...since April 2001...”

Police Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total of seven opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered and “E0” indicating that some air was going in but the Applicant was “...not blowing long enough.”

During the fourth and fifth attempt the Applicant was observed and admitted to putting his tongue in the mouthpiece.

During his dealings with the Applicant Police Officer #1 noticed: “...his breathing was quite normal. He was not wheezing or coughing ...not out of breath...”

In closing the Applicant emphasized that he “was not under the influence”. As a bar owner he tells his customers not to drink and drive and would never do so himself. Not having his license and having been charged, is causing the Applicant severe economic hardship.

In his closing remarks, the Respondent’s Representative referred to Physician #1’s report and commented that Physician #1 suggests that the Applicant “may” have difficulty exhaling, but does not give an indication of the severity of the condition. Further, Physician #1 failed to directly connect the Applicant’s bronchitis to his ability to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent’s Representative cited the Applicant’s actions as evidence of the Applicant’s intent to not provide a breath sample. Although, suffering from bronchitis for a month, the Applicant had not visited his physician prior to the incident. The Respondent’s Representative commented that he probably would not have seen his physician had he not been stopped. The fact that the Applicant was heading for the Casino at two o’clock in the morning, is according to the Respondent’s Representative a clear indication that the Applicant’s state of health was not that serious. Lastly, the Respondent’s Representative alluded to the fact that the Applicant admitted to blocking the mouthpiece with his tongue.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the Applicant's issue as to why he was not asked to provide a blood sample. Subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken..." However, the decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, according to established policy. At the time, the Applicant showed no visible signs of respiratory impairment, such as wheezing or chocking. Thus, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

At issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all. At issue, is did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

"...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason..."

The Tribunal concurs with the Respondent's Representative. Dr. Goldstein's experience has demonstrated the breath sample "...has been provided in a very satisfactory manner by individuals with very severe lung disease...". Physician #1 does not mention the severity of the bronchitis; nonetheless, his words appear quite cautious "...this infection may render it difficult ...to maintain a prolonged exhalation...". Further, Physician #1's report is non-specific as to how the Applicant's condition could have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample.

With all due respect to Physician #1, he is not a respiratologist, Dr. Roger Goldstein is. The Tribunal must accept the evidence of the Respondent's expert, Dr. Roger Goldstein.

The Applicant has not provided the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. In fact, it appears that Physician #1, who has known the Applicant for over twelve years, did not feel that the Applicant's history was severe enough to warrant sending him to a respiratologist. This premise is corroborated by the Applicant's own testimony that he has not been prescribed an inhaler.

Since neither Physician #1, nor Dr. Goldstein was at the scene of the roadside breathalyser test session, the Tribunal also considered the evidence of Police Officer

#1. At no time, was the Applicant observed in an afflicted breathing state, nor did the Applicant request medical assistance.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant is credible, but that the Applicant has failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated April 3, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

WAIVER AND CONSENT

In accordance with section 4.1 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, the parties hereto waive the requirement of a hearing and consent to a Decision in writing based upon the following Agreed Statement of Facts and Joint Submission.

AGREED STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. 995391 Ontario Inc. o/a Air Links International (hereinafter referred to as "the Registrant") has been registered as a travel agent (Registration No. 4132049/R) since May 4, 1993. Its fiscal year end is June 30th.
2. By letter dated February 28, 1995 the Registrant was advised by the Ontario Travel Industry Inspections Office of its working capital shortfall of $15,017 reflected in its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1994, and given a due date of March 21, 1995 to provide evidence of its correction.
3. By letter dated April 5, 1995, the Registrant was given a final due date of April 18, 1995 to correct the working capital shortfall reflected in the financial statements for fiscal June 1994, failing which the matter would be referred to the Registrar.
4. On April 6, 1995 a letter was sent to the Ontario Travel Industry Inspections Office from the Registrant's accountant, advising that the shareholders had injected $28,000.
5. On November 29, 1995, the Registrant filed financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1995, which were due by September 30, 1995. It appeared that working capital requirements were met as at June 30, 1995.
6. On December 10, 1996, the Registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1996, which were due September 30, 1996. Those statements reflected a working capital shortfall of $8,797. The Registrant partially addressed the shortfall by injecting $4,000 on February 11, 1996.
7. By letter dated August 25, 1997 the Registrant was advised that it had failed to file its Form 1 for the period ended June 30, 1997, and to make the required payment to the Fund, and was requested to submit the required filing by September 8, 1997. A final request was sent to the Registrant on September 8, 1997 providing the Registrant with a deadline to file its Form 1 by September 22, 1997.
8. On November 19, 1997, the Registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1997, which were due by September 30, 1997. It appeared that working capital requirements were met as at June 30, 1997.
9. On March 24, 1998 a proposal to revoke registration was issued to the Registrant for failure to file its Form 1 for the period ended June 30, 1997.

10. On April 9, 1998, the Registrant filed its Form 1 for the period ended June 30, 1997.
11. On April 17, 1998, the Registrant filed an appeal to the proposal to revoke registration.
12. On April 30, 1998, the Registrant signed and acknowledged Terms and Conditions of Registration.
13. On May 15, 1998, the Registrar withdrew the proposal to revoke registration for failure to file its Form 1 for the period ended June 30, 1997.
14. On November 26, 1998, the Registrant filed its financial statements for fiscal June 30, 1998, which were due by September 30, 1998. The statements revealed a working capital shortfall of $21,040.
15. On January 19, 1999 the Registrant was advised by TICO of the working capital shortfall of $21,040, and given a due date of February 2, 1999 to provide evidence of correction.
16. The Registrant was visited on March 2, 1999 by one of TICO's Inspectors as the Registrants working capital shortfall was due to repayment of shareholder advances. It was emphasized by the Inspector that working capital must be maintained. It was also revealed that the Registrant was selling airline tickets to other travel agencies without benefit of a wholesale license. A wholesale application was given to the Registrant.
17. On March 5, 1999 the Registrant provided TICO with evidence of a $22,000 shareholder injection.
18. On November 3, 1999 the Registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1999, which were due September 30, 1999. The statements revealed a working capital shortfall of $14,898.
19. By letter dated November 5, 1999, the Registrant was advised of its working capital shortfall and given a due date of November 22, 1999 to correct the shortfall.
20. On December 31, 1999, the Registrant provided TICO with evidence of a shareholder injection totalling $15,000.
21. On March 3, 2000 the Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors, as shareholder advances were repaid during 1998 –1999. It was revealed during the visit that the trust account was overdrawn during November and December 1999, and that the Registrant was selling tickets to other travel agencies without benefit of a wholesale license. A return visit was scheduled for June 2000.
22. By letter dated March 28, 2000 the Registrar issued a letter to the Registrant advising that compliance issues noted in March 1999 and March 2000 still exist and corrective measures had not been taken. i.e. selling to other travel agencies without benefit of a wholesale registration, shareholder advances were repaid, the Travel Industry Act Trust Account was not designated as such, and the trust account was overdrawn during November and December 1999. The Registrant was requested to file trust account reconciliations for the months of January and February 2000, accompanied by copies of the Travel Industry Act Trust Account bank statements for the corresponding periods by April 14, 2000.
23. By letter dated May 24, 2000 the Registrant was issued a final due date of June 2, 2000 by the Registrar, due to no response to the Registrar's letter dated March 28, 2000.
24. By letter dated May 31, 2000 the Registrant was requested by TICO to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2000, due by September 30, 2000.
25. The Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors on June 16, 2000 as a follow up visit to March 2000 to ensure that funds injected by the Registrant were still in place. There was no evidence found that the Registrant had removed the shareholder advances. It was revealed during the visit that IATA had lifted its ticket plate and ticket stock due to NSF cheques to IATA, and the trust account was overdrawn. The registrant acknowledged that it would forward copies of its "Travel Industry Act Trust Account" bank statements for the months of June and July to TICO.
26. By letter dated October 16, 2000 the Registrant was issued a reminder letter that it had not filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2000, and gave a further due date of October 31, 2000.

27. By letter dated November 2, 2000 the Registrant was issued a letter by the Registrar, giving a final due date of November 16, 2000 to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2000, failing which a proposal to revoke registration would be issued.
28. On November 23, 2000 the Registrar issued a proposal to revoke registration against the Registrant, for failure to file its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2000.
29. On November 29, 2000 the Registrant hand delivered its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2000, which were due September 30, 2000. Those statements revealed a working capital shortfall of $4,145. Two of TICO's Inspectors met with the Registrant and advised that if it immediately provided evidence of correction of the working capital shortfall totalling $4,145, that TICO would withdraw the proposal to revoke its registration.
30. On November 30, 2000, the Registrant provided evidence of a shareholder loan totalling $4,200.
31. On November 30, 2000 the Registrar withdrew its proposal to revoke registration against the Registrant.
32. On January 17, 2001, the Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors. It was determined during the visit that the Registrant's trust account was not properly designated as a "Travel Industry Act Trust Account". It was further determined that the company's working capital had been reduced subsequent to the injection on November 30, 2000, due to withdrawals of $12,373.31 paid to the Registrant, for personal and automobile lease. The Registrant stated that it estimated itself to be short on working capital, in an amount approximately $6,000, which it would correct by January 31, 2001, and forward proof of correction to TICO. The visit concluded that until working capital was maintained the Registrant posed a threat to the Fund.
33. On January 31, 2001 the Registrant forwarded proof of a shareholder injection for $6,000 to TICO.
34. On April 27, 2001, the Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors to ensure that the funds injected had not been removed, and to ensure that the trust account was being properly maintained. There was no evidence found that the Registrant had removed the funds injected on January 31, 2001.
35. On October 31, 2001 the Registrant filed its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001, which were due by September 30, 2001. The statements revealed a working capital shortfall of $50,818.
36. By letter dated December 14, 2001 the Registrant was advised of its working capital shortfall of $50,818, and given a due date of December 31, 2001 to correct the shortfall, and provide evidence to TICO.
37. On January 11, 2002, a second request reminder notice was sent to the Registrant, to address the working capital shortfall for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001.
38. By letter dated February 1, 2002 the Registrant was issued a final due date of February 15, 2002 to address the working capital shortfall reflected in its June 2001 financial statements, by the Registrar, failing which a proposal to revoke registration would be issued.
39. On February 21, 2002, the Registrant was visited by one of TICO's Inspectors, to check its working capital position. A re-assessment of the company's working capital revealed that as at June 30, 2001 the working capital shortfall totalled $25,799. The trust account was overdrawn three times in the three months of November and December 2001 and January 2002. The visit concluded that the Registrant is not maintaining minimum working capital levels as required, and poses a threat to the Fund.
40. On March 28, 2002, the Registrant provided evidence of a shareholder advance of $25,799 to correct the working capital shortfall reflected in its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2001.
41. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

LORRAINE McCONNELL AND PERCY FINCH

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS COMPENSATION FUND

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: DEREK ISRAEL, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES:

LORRAINE McCONNELL AND PERCY FINCH, represented by their Agent, Kenneth Maybee
AVIVA R. HARARI, Counsel, representing the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund

DATE OF HEARING: June 14, 2002

Toronto

DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a decision of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund (the "Fund") dated June 13, 2001 wherein the claim of Lorraine McConnell and Percy Finch (the "Applicants") for compensation was disallowed.

The Fund's refusal to allow the Applicants' claim was set out briefly in the Fund's letter of June 13, 2002 which reads as follows:

Your claim was presented to the Board of Trustees of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund on February 26, 2002.

It was the Board's decision to deny your claim as per Section 12(5) of the Compensation Fund Schedule, which indicates, "that no customer of a participant shall have any vested or absolute right to payment of a claim against the Board, the Trustee or the Fund". The Board continues to maintain their position that due to the non arm's length transaction it is not a bonafide claim.

(Exhibit 4)

The Fund had earlier issued a decision letter dated July 23, 2001 in which letter it refused the Applicants' claim as the Fund denied that the Applicants had dealt with a registered dealer. The Fund withdrew its decision of July 23, 2001 and in its place substituted its decision of June 13, 2002. The Applicants consented to the late filing of the Fund's amended decision letter of June 13, 2002 and consented to the hearing proceeding based upon the June 13, 2002 decision letter.

The Applicants bring their appeal pursuant to section 12 of the Schedule to Regulation 801 to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Applicants' claim for compensation from the Fund is based on the Fund's refusal to pay compensation to the Applicants.

Kenneth Maybee (Maybee) was a registered motor vehicle dealer under the Act and a participant in the Fund. The Applicants had purchased a Dodge Ram truck from Maybee in May 1998. The motor vehicle had been stolen prior to its sale by Maybee to the Applicants. The police, in April 1999, had seized the motor vehicle from the Applicants and returned it to its lawful owner. The Applicants' claim against the Fund is for compensation for their loss arising out of the seizure of the stolen Dodge Ram truck which they had purchased from Maybee.

Maybee filed an assignment in bankruptcy on November 24, 1998. The Applicants accordingly made a claim for compensation to the Fund based on section 12.(3)3 of the Schedule to Regulation 801 to the Act. The Applicants claim is limited to the amount of $15,000.00 by virtue of section 12.(10)(a) of the Schedule.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence in this matter consisted of documents and oral testimony. The documents consist of Exhibits 1 through 7 with Exhibit 5 being the Fund's Book of Disclosure. The only witness for the Applicants was Lorraine McConnell ("McConnell".) The Fund called no persons to testify at the hearing and relied solely on the documents filed.

Testimony of Lorraine McConnell

In her testimony, McConnell stated that on May 15, 1998 she and Percy Finch purchased a 1998 Dodge Ram 4x4 truck from Kenneth Maybee ("Maybee") who then traded as Norwood Auto. The Applicants entered into a written bill of sale with Maybee when purchasing the Dodge Ram.

(Exhibit 5, Tab 8)

The bill of sale provided for a purchase consideration of $39,995.00 plus $760.00 for taxes and licence fee of $760.00. A trade-in allowance of $34,995.00 in respect of a 1995 Ford Extended Cab diesel truck was given to the Applicants who paid the balance of the purchase consideration, including taxes & licence fee, in all amounting to $5,760.00, by means of a credit card. When they purchased the Dodge Ram she had no knowledge that it was a stolen vehicle.

McConnell went on to state that on April 20, 1999 she was visited at her home by a police constable who informed her that the Dodge Ram was a stolen vehicle and at the police constable's request she surrendered possession of the vehicle to the police by delivering it to the premises of Norwood Auto. At the time the police constable instructed her to deliver possession of the vehicle to Norwood Auto, she was informed by the constable that the Applicants could make a claim against the Fund for compensation for their loss due to the seizure of the vehicle.

McConnell further stated that she filed a claim for compensation with the Fund but that the Fund initially refused her claim based upon the dealer, Maybee, not being registered as a motor vehicle dealer in terms of the Act. The Fund subsequently withdrew its decision to deny the Applicants' claim based upon the non-registration of Maybee. Subsequent to the Applicants complying with the requirements under Regulation 810 for the filing of a claim, the Applicants' claim was finally dealt with by the Fund in its decision letter of June 13, 2002.

Under cross examination by the Fund's Counsel, McConnell stated that she submitted all necessary documents to the Fund in order to satisfy the Fund as to the Applicants' claim for compensation. The Applicants supplied the Fund with details of their claim, including a copy of the bill of sale under which the Applicants purchased the Dodge Ram, as well as details of their payment of the balance for the purchase price due in terms of the bill of sale to Maybee by way of a Visa charge card. She also informed the Fund that Maybee was her son.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 8, pages 3 through 17)

She insisted that when the police constable requested her to surrender the Dodge Ram vehicle, that vehicle was in her possession at the Applicants' home and was not in the possession of Maybee or Norwood Auto.

McConnell confirmed, that to her knowledge Maybee had plead guilty to being in possession of numerous stolen motor vehicles, including the Dodge Ram, and in April 2002 was sentenced to imprisonment and 75 hours of community service.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 6)

McConnell was shown by the Fund's Counsel the Canadian Black Book of November, 1997 which listed the then value of various trucks. Her attention was directed to the listing of 1995 Ford Light Duty trucks and specifically to an X35 model with supercab which was the Ford truck the Applicants had traded in and in respect of which they were allowed a credit of $34,995.00. McConnell noted that the Black Book showed that the value of such Ford truck in excellent condition was $21, 400.00, a sum far less than $34,995.00. However, McConnell disputed the value of the Applicants' Ford truck traded in was only worth $21,400.00 as she contended that there were many extras of an expensive nature on the that truck, including a set of new tires, a diesel engine, trailer hitch and 2 way radio, all which increased its value over and above the Black Book value. She did not, however, dispute that the extras were worth about $5,000.00 when this figure was put to her in cross-examination.

The Applicants closed their case without calling further testimony and the Fund's Counsel informed the Tribunal that the Fund would not call any witnesses and that it closed its case.

Counsel for the Fund then made submissions to the Tribunal.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found proven.

1. Maybee was at all relevant times a registered motor vehicle dealer under the Act and was a participant in the Fund.
2. The Applicants and Maybee, the latter operating as Norwood Auto, entered into a bill of sale dated May 15, 1998 in respect of the sale by Maybee to the Applicants as purchasers of a used 1998 Dodge Ram 4x4 truck.
3. The purchase consideration payable by the Applicant for the Dodge Ram truck excluding taxes and licence fee was the sum of $39,995.00. The Applicants paid Maybee the sum of $5000.00 by Visa charge card towards the purchase consideration and traded-in a 1995 Ford Diesel Extended Cab truck for which the Applicants were allowed a trade-in allowance of $34,995.00.
4. The Dodge Ram truck was, to the knowledge of Maybee, stolen property when he sold it to the Applicants.
5. Subsequent to the sale Maybee plead guilty to and was found guilty of being in possession of stolen property, including the Dodge Ram truck.
6. Maybee is the son of McConnell and at all relevant times resided with the Applicants in the Applicants' home.
7. Maybee became a bankrupt on or about November 24, 1998.

THE LAW:

Section 12. (3) of Regulation 801 to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

12. (3) A customer may make a claim against the Fund where the customer gives written notice of the claim to the Registrar within two years of the participant's refusal or failure to pay, even if the motor vehicle dealer with respect to whom the claim is being made ceased to be a participant after the refusal or failure to pay, and where the claim meets one of the following requirements:

2. The participant has been convicted of an offence under the Criminal Code (Canada) involving fraud, theft or false pretences in connection with a transaction out of which the claim arose and the claim is for a liquidated amount and the customer makes an application that is supported by evidence of the conviction and of the correctness of the liquidated amount.
3. The participant has become a bankrupt or a winding-up order has been made or a receiver appointed in respect of the business of the participant under the Bankruptcy Act (Canada) and the claim is for a liquidated amount and the customer makes an application that is supported by evidence of the allowance of the claim by the Trustee in bankruptcy, liquidator or receiver, less any amount that may have been paid on account of the claim by the Trustee, liquidator or receiver.

Section 12.(10)(a) of the aforesaid regulation states:

12. (10) Despite subsections (1), (2), (3) and (6) and subsection 15 (3) of this Schedule, there shall not be paid out of the Fund,

- (a) more than $15,000, exclusive of costs, to each claimant in respect of each transaction, in respect of a claim or claims against any one participant;

Section 15.(1) of the aforesaid regulation states:

15. (1) Where the Board determines that a claim or any part of it made under section 12 of this Schedule is not a proper claim, it shall serve notice of its decision, together with written reasons, on the claimant and the notice shall inform the claimant that the claimant is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the claimant mails or delivers to the Registrar and the Tribunal, within fifteen days after the notice is served on the claimant, notice in writing requiring a hearing.

Section 15.(3) of the aforesaid regulation states:

15. (3) Where a claimant requires a hearing before the Tribunal under subsection (1), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, after affording the claimant an opportunity to be heard, may confirm the determination of the Board or may set aside the determination of the Board with respect to all or any part of a claim and direct the Trustee to pay the amount determined by the Tribunal.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Applicants in this matter to prove their case on a balance of probabilities.

The Tribunal finds that there was a contract of purchase and sale between the Applicants and Maybee and that Maybee was a registered motor vehicle dealer at the time of the aforesaid sale as well as a participant who participated in the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund. The Tribunal also finds that the contract of Purchase and Sale involved "a trade in of a motor vehicle" and that such contract was breached by Maybee pursuant to which the Applicants have a legitimate claim against the Fund.

Counsel for the Fund submitted that the transaction between Maybee and McConnell, by virtue of their close relationship, was not an arms length transaction and that it must be viewed with suspicion. Counsel did not argue that the Applicants had knowledge of the fact that the Dodge Ram that they were purchasing was in fact a stolen vehicle. Counsel did, however, ask the Tribunal to find that taking into account the cumulative effect of numerous suspicious circumstances in the matter, such circumstances produced sufficient certainty for the Tribunal to find that it is likely that the Applicants knew or ought to have known that they were purchasing a stolen vehicle and therefore they should be denied reimbursement of their loss.

The Tribunal notes that not one fact was brought before the Tribunal at the hearing to indicate that the Applicants either had knowledge, or ought to have had knowledge, that the Dodge Ram truck which they were purchasing was stolen. The Fund chose not to place any oral evidence before the Tribunal and relied upon nothing more than what it termed as suspicions. The various circumstances which Counsel referred to as being cumulatively sufficiently suspicious so as to justify the Tribunal dismissing the Applicants' claim, have not influenced the Tribunal to hold that the Applicants have not discharged the onus of proof.

The Applicants have met the onus and have proven to the Tribunal's satisfaction that they were not aware that the Dodge Ram truck was stolen; that the transaction, despite it not being an arms length transaction, was a legitimate transaction and that they have suffered a loss arising out of that transaction, which loss can be placed directly at the feet of Maybee. The Tribunal accepts the evidence of McConnell and notes that no evidence was submitted by the Fund (other than the Black Book) to contest McConnell's evidence.

The loss suffered by the Applicants translates into a loss of their $5,000 which they paid by way of a Visa credit card, plus the value of their 1995 Ford truck which they traded in at the time of their purchase of the Dodge Ram truck. If this Tribunal accepts that the value of the Ford truck was only $21,400 (and not the sum of $34,995.00) the loss suffered by the Applicants would still amount to $26,400.00 which is in excess of the $15,000 limit of liability imposed by Section 12.(10)(a) of Regulation 801 to the Act.

DECISION:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, in particular section 15(3) of the Schedule in Regulation 801, the Tribunal sets aside the determination of the Board of Trustees of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund and directs the Fund to pay the Applicants Lorraine McConnell and Percy Finch the amount of $15,000.

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: JOHANNE N. MORISSETTE, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES:

RICHARD BOSADA, Counsel, representing David Bullen
MARY JANE SOUTH, Agent, representing the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING:

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicant appeals a Notice of Proposal dated September 12th, 2001 issued by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Act") to refuse to grant the registration of David Bullen as a motor vehicle salesperson under the provisions of the Act.

The Registrar's proposal is based on the provisions of section 6(2) of the Act as read with section 5(1)(b) thereof, on the grounds that the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard evidence from Ms. South, the Deputy Registrar under the Act. No other evidence was presented on behalf of the Registrar. Mr. Bullen, testified, and the Tribunal heard from Mr. Christopher Kuzyk, the Applicant's current employer and owner of "The Car Company". Based on the evidence, the Tribunal makes the following findings of facts:

David Bullen is 33 years old, married and owns, with his wife, their home in Dunrobin. On August 17th, 2001, he applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. At the time of his application, he was on probation, which has terminated in January of 2002. He had been convicted in April of 1996 of "assault with a weapon" and in August 1999 of "conspiracy to traffic in a scheduled substance, and possession of proceeds of crime over $1000". There is no allegation of non disclosure in this case, nor is there any allegation of lack of financial responsibility with respect to section 5(1)(a).

The Registrar reviewed the application and proposed to refuse registration on the grounds that the intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest and that the Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with that intention. The Registrar is concerned that the past conduct of the Applicant as exhibited by his criminal record, affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Ms. South noted that the Registrar is concerned with the fact that was transmitted to her, through the solicitor for the Applicant sometime before the hearing, that the Applicant may purchase his employer's interest in the business and therefore would in effect be the controlling mind of the dealer. This situation afforded no supervisory control on a day to day basis. This fact was canvassed at the hearing by counsel for the Applicant and by Ms. South. Mr. Kuzyk testified that "perhaps down the road I may want to have someone like the Applicant purchase a share of my business", but this was only discussions and not a "fait accompli".

Mr. Bullen pleaded guilty to all of the convictions on his record, and gave evidence of admitting responsibility to all of his convictions. He has demonstrated a real sense of remorse to his past conduct.

Mr. Bullen submitted a letter from his parole officer, namely Brigitte Massé who supervised Mr. Bullen's probation from April 1st, 2001 to June 22nd 2001. She says in her letter that Mr. Bullen followed his conditions without any breach and has collaborated with them. She further offers the comments that in her opinion, Mr. Bullen is a "responsible and reliable person".

Mr. Kuzyk testified that he would be prepared to supervise the Applicant, as this is the mode of operation as it stands right now, where only Mr. Kuzyk has authority to sign checks, and has the final say on the purchase and sale of vehicles.

ISSUE:

The sole issue in this proceeding is whether the Registrar has sufficient grounds for refusing to grant the registration of the Applicant.

THE LAW:

The relevant portions of the Act that are applicable to these proceedings are subsections 5(1) and 6(1), which set out the circumstances under which the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant. The powers of the Tribunal are set out in section 7(4).

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and,

(i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

6.(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

7.(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

The Divisional Court has clearly outlined the proper test to be applied by the Tribunal in Re Brenner, 19 C.R.A.T.58 as follows:

"The effect of section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that , in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner has genuinely reformed and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed , might have reformed himself."

Ms. South argues that the Tribunal cannot find in favor of the Applicant, unless the Tribunal finds that the Registrar erred in its decision. She is quite right. She further argues that any reasonable doubt should go in favor of the Registrar.

Counsel for the Applicant argues that the Registrar erred in failing to investigate the Applicant's circumstances more fully prior to arriving at the conclusion that registration should be refused. He further argues that the Applicant is forthright and has admitted his guilt, accepted his punishment and has demonstrated since 1998 (his most recent conviction) an unrepachable behavior. The Tribunal agrees. The Tribunal finds that the Registrar erred in relying on the fact that perhaps in the future, the Applicant may purchase this enterprise. This seemed to be a factor that gave rise for concern for the Registrar. As well, there is insufficient evidence to corroborate a finding of refusal. Had the Registrar conducted a more thorough investigation of the Applicant, it would not have concluded to refuse registration, but would have offered to register him on conditions.

DECISION:

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar has erred in its conclusion and as such, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) and (5) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to refrain from carrying out its proposal dated September 12th, 2001 to refuse to grant the Applicant's registration and directs the Registrar to:

Register the Applicant subject to the following conditions:

- He must first pass the Certification Test;
- Cannot be the final signatory on any purchase and sale of any vehicle for a period of two years from the date of registration;
- Cannot be registered as a dealer for a period of two years from the date of registration;
- Cannot be a director or officer of any dealer for a period of two years.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated January 15, 2002, amending an earlier decision dated September 12, 2001, in which the claim of David Dagenais (the "Applicant") was denied.

BACKGROUND:

This is an Appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by David Dagenais (the "Applicant") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") set out in a decision letter dated January 15, 2002 (the "decision letter"). An earlier letter had been issued in the matter on or about September 12, 2001. However, that letter made reference to a Claim regarding a Major Structural Defect. The Applicant's claim is for Breach of Warranty and the decision letter dated January 15, 2002 is framed with the appropriate legislative references.

The relevant decision letter notes that the applicant's claim falls under Section 14(3) of the Act. Sections 13(1) and 13(2) are also relevant as they contain the statutory warranties and exclusions. The relevant aspects of this Act are dealt with below.

At the outset of the hearing an issue was raised as to the appropriate scope of the matter before the Tribunal. The Program suggested that the claim was a narrow one based on excess mortar. Alternatively, it was narrow in that the decision letter dealt only with the front of the Applicant's home. The Applicant argued that the claim was broader and that the Tribunal had to consider the claim as a breach of warranty claim with respect to the brickwork done on the entire home.

The scope of the claim is obviously relevant to the decision in this matter. The Applicant started the process with a complaint received by the Program on February 12, 1999. That complaint set out a number of issues. However, the relevant issue is at 5) of the letter, which reads:

5) Brick

Front door and trim was to be painted, it has not been done yet. It has been fifty weeks now. My brick is a disaster; it's hard to explain because you would have to see it to understand. The house had been bricked in the winter when it was really cold. They cleaned some joints off but didn't bother with the others which all harden before cleaned. They didn't finish cleaning the mortar between the joints so it's just hanging off the brick. So it doesn't look like a clean-finished job. This problem is all around my house. My house looks 10 years old, not 1 year old. I feel it is an eye sore. I really don't know how they will fix this ugly problem now that the mortar is hard. This should have been done while bricking the house before it gets too hard. It is too late for this now. I know this because I was a bricklayer for 10 years. So here is what they came up with so far, someone came to my house when I was at work and sand blasted the brick and all the joints and mortar which now looks worse than it did before. He says he will be back in the spring to fill in all the joints This is totally unacceptable and unprofessional. This whole ordeal has become a nightmare!

The Applicant is obviously frustrated. The language is not entirely precise as to the nature of the complaint but it is very clear to the Tribunal that the Applicant's complaint is with the brickwork on the entire house. His unhappiness is with the finishing of the mortar-work which "...doesn't look like a clean finished job."

The Builder began some remedial work on the front of the home after the complaint above was filed with the Program. The Applicant requested a conciliation. That conciliation was completed, after several delays, on July 9, 2001. That report identifies the Applicant's complaint as "Builder started doing the work". The conciliation inspector inspected the entire home and commented on the warranty position of all of the brickwork. The conclusion was that the remainder of the home did not represent a warranty claim and that the appearance of the brickwork was acceptable. The front of the home had to be completed as the builder had undertaken but not completed remedial work.

The Program position in the decision letter was stated to be the same as that in the conciliation report.

Therefore, as the Applicant's claim was very clearly initiated with reference to the brickwork on the entire home and the conciliation was conducted with a review of the brickwork on all of the house, it is the Tribunal's position that the scope of the appeal is properly with respect to the entire home. The Program's position is that the sides and rear do not constitute a breach of warranty and that the front of the home, as it has been started, must be completed in accordance with the Act.

THE EVIDENCE:

David Dagenais

The Applicant lives at 3438 Treeline Court, which is the address of the new home that is the subject of this hearing.

David Kevin Dagenais contracted to purchase a newly constructed home pursuant to an Agreement of Purchase and sale executed on or about May 14, 1997. The original completion date was scheduled for September 26, 1997. However, the home was not ready in time for that date and the completion date was extended to February 1998.

The builder completed the exterior of the home in December 1997 and January 1998. The brickwork was done during this time frame.

The front of the home is entirely brick. The other three sides are half brick and half siding. The front of the home faces west.

The Applicant was not satisfied with the brickwork as the time for completion approached in February 1998. He was growing reluctant to close on that date. He brought this displeasure to the attention of Chris Thompson of Chris Thompson homes (the builder). Dagenais recalled that he had a meeting with Mr. Thompson in foyer of the home prior to the February 10, 1998 move in and was advised "...not to worry, he would take care of it". Satisfied with that assurance, Dagenais completed the deal on February 10, 1998.

The Applicant had taken a variety of photos depicting the home and the impugned brickwork. He indicated that the photos revealed joints that were not clean and had not been tooled. His complaint with respect to all the photos collectively submitted as Tab 21 of Exhibit 4 was that the joints were not clean and had been improperly tooled.

When referring to the second photo of Tab 21, Exhibit 4, the Applicant observed that there was evidence of frozen mortar. He believed that there should be no holes whatsoever in the mortar.

Mr. Dagenais had been a bricklayer in the construction industry for approximately ten years.

Mr. Dagenais was referred to Page 8 of Tab 21, Exhibit 4, which depicts a peak at the rear of the home. He described it as cracking and concluded that if the mortar is not repaired it will fall out and the joints will continue to crack. He also stated that the peak was visually and aesthetically unpleasant.

The Applicant was a regular at the site during the construction of his home and brought the cracks and holes to the builder's attention in December 1997 and January 1998. He was assured not to worry about the concerns and that they would be fixed. The Applicant understood these assurances to mean that the mortar would be ground out and re-tooled. He also understood that the whole house was a problem.

Mr. Dagenais testified that Mr. Thompson stated something to the effect that "Sal did a shitty job" of the brickwork. Apparently, Sal was the bricklayer that did the Applicant's home. That conversation occurred in February 1998.

Mr. Dagenais estimated that he had about one dozen conversations with Mr. Thompson respecting the brickwork during 1998. He recalled that the builder did not repair it in 1998 because the builder was busy. He also recalled that he was advised the brickwork would be fixed throughout his 1998 conversations with the builder.

In 1999 the Applicant reluctantly filed his claim. He was aware that he had one year to make such a claim on items of this nature with the Program.

The Applicant filed his claim as it appears at Tab 2 of Exhibit 4. There were a variety of complaints made in that letter. However, the relevant section appears at page 2 under the heading "Exterior". He stated as follows:

5) Brick

Front door and trim was to be painted, it has not been done yet. It has been fifty weeks now. My brick is a disaster; it's hard to explain because you would have to see it to understand. The house had been bricked in the winter when it was really cold. They cleaned some joints off but didn't bother with the others which all harden before cleaned. They didn't finish cleaning the mortar between the joints so it's just hanging off the brick. So it doesn't look like a clean-finished job. This problem is all around my house. My house looks 10 years old, not 1 year old. I feel it is an eye sore. I really don't know how they will fix this ugly problem now that the mortar is hard. This should have been done while bricking the house before it gets too hard. It is too late for this now. I know this because I was a bricklayer for 10 years. So here is what they came up with so far, someone came to my house when I was at work and sand blasted the brick and all the joints and mortar which now looks worse than it did before. He says he will be back in the spring to fill in all the joints This is totally unacceptable and unprofessional. This whole ordeal has become a nightmare!

When asked what he meant by this passage, the Applicant stated that the brick for the home is not a flat brick, but a rough brick and that the repair work would have to be completed with a tool. Some of the joints had been done; some had not been done. However, once the mortar freezes it cannot be easily cleaned out.

The Applicant estimated that he had as many as ten conversations with the builder during 1999. He mentioned the brickwork every time that he saw the builder and was still keen to resolve the issue directly with the builder. He recollected that there was no repair work undertaken on the bricks in 1999.

During the spring of 2000, the Applicant was still having conversations with the builder. Mr. Dagenais recalled that Mr. Thompson indicated he would start with the front, grind out all of the joints and re-point the bricks. He thought this work was started in June 2000 but it was not completed. In fact, there were joints ground out and then not refilled. These joints remain open as of the hearing date.

The previous letter was followed up with a handwritten fax to the Ontario New Home Warranty Program Customer Service in July 2000. There are several numbered complaints in the letter. However, number two is relevant and states as follows:

2. My brick still not been finished and is seeping water into the brick and holding moisture. Since they sandblasted the finish off the brick. (Exhibit 4, Tab 3)

In response to that letter, the Applicant received a letter from the builder indicating the following:

- Item 2: We have spoke with George at Arsticraft Corporation where the brick is manufactured. He told us there is no surface sealer and the contents of that brick is 100% uniform throughout. Therefore, George guarantees that power washing that brick will not affect any moisture adsorbent ratings of the brick. (Exhibit 4, Tab 4).

Mr. Dagenais stated that he did not consent to the sandblasting/powerwashing of the exterior that was undertaken by the builder.

On November 17 2000, the Applicant completed a Conciliation request form (Exhibit 4, Tab 5). The Applicant stated as follows:

"Builder started doing the brick he sent a worker there 5 days in three weeks and did a spot in the front of house 6FT by 4FT and he has not been around in two weeks and will not return my calls. And he has not done anything else. Gave Builder two more chances to finish house, but he has not shown progress".

The builder responded to the request with a letter to the Applicant dated December 7, 2000, which stated as follows:

"Re: Exterior brick work

Due to weather conditions we are unable to complete the exterior brick work and we will resume this work this coming spring. Sorry for any inconvenience but it is out of our control."

A conciliation meeting between the parties had been scheduled for January 10, 2001. Mr. Dagenais recalled that bad weather conditions were the main problem. He agreed to a change in the date provided that the builder agreed to give him a letter stating that he would actually do the work. According to the Applicant, the builder advised a letter to this effect would be forthcoming. On that basis, the Applicant agreed to adjourn the conciliation process. However, no such letter was received from the builder.

According to the Applicant, the conciliation was to be adjourned to not later than May 30, 2001 to permit the builder to complete the desired repairs beforehand.

Eventually, a conciliation meeting did occur on July 9, 2000. Mr. Doug Irvine, who is a warranty representative with the Program, did the report. The report of the conciliation appears at Tab 9, Exhibit 4.

The Applicant was asked if he was satisfied with the findings of the conciliation report and responded "No". In response to the report, the Applicant faxed a typed letter to the Program indicated his opposition to the contents of the July 9, 2001 conciliation report.

It was the Applicant's recollection that the conciliator was only present at the site for 10 minutes. He recalled Mr. Irvine asking the builder why the work was not yet completed. The builder apparently responded that he was too busy. Mr. Irvine then walked around the house and took a few photos and departed.

Mr. Dagenais received a decision letter dated September 12, 2001 denying his claim for a Major Structural Defect Claim. This was incorrect and was followed up with an amended Decision Letter dated January 15, 2002 denying his claim for a Breach of Warranty. The latter Decision Letter alleged that Mr. Dagenais had refused to allow the builder or his trades to carry out the repairs noted unless the entire home was completed. Mr. Dagenais denied ever refusing to allow access to the property. He also denied refusing access to the property by ONHWP people.

In preparation for this hearing, Mr. Dagenais obtained several quotes for repair work. He obtained the names by randomly selecting names from the phone book.

On cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that photos submitted were recent and a fair representation of the home. He was standing two or three feet away from the cracks and holes when the photos were taken. If the observer moves further away the offending work becomes less apparent but still visible. He added that there had been some additional cracking since the time of the photos. The front of the home has been completely ground out. The sides and the rear brickwork are of approximate equal condition.

Mr. Dagenais stated that the open joints revealed by the photos had been present from the start. However, since the brickwork was done some mortar has fallen out and there has been some additional evidence of cracking.

The Applicant stated that his primary complaints were that the mortar was ugly and that moisture appeared to be entering the joints.

Mr. Dagenais testified that tooling, if properly done, seals the joints between the bricks. The holes in the photos submitted as evidence reflect open joints in the mortar-work. These holes will expand if moisture enters. He believed that there was a prevailing standard for tooling and that standard required that joints should be sealed.

Mr. Dagenais re-iterated that he had brought the shoddy brickwork to the attention of the builder in advance of the completion of the home purchase. When directed to the defects sections of the ONHWP Certificate of Completion and Possession, Mr. Dagenais could not explain why the state of the brickwork was not mentioned. This form is completed by new home purchasers at or just prior to the completion of the transaction.

In respect of the various quotes for repair work submitted as evidence, Mr. Dagenais stated that he had no friends or colleagues among the group. He did confirm that he knew of Rob Monaghan at Monaghan Masonry (Ex. 4, Tab 18) as an acquaintance for approximately ten to fifteen years. He recalled paying for one of the quotations although he was uncertain which quote. In that respect, he was paying the mason for his time to prepare the quote.

Peter Baker

Peter Baker is a self-employed mason who owns and operates Baker's Masonry Restoration. He does not engage in new home construction. He has been repairing and restoring brickwork for twenty-one years. The last eighteen years have been as a self-employed mason.

Mr. Baker described the process of bricklaying in a summary form and concluded by indicating that the mortar is like glue to hold the bricks in place. The bricks are also fastened to the walls with ties.

There are seasonal implications to the brick-laying process. In particular, if the outside temperature drops below freezing then tarps and heating are required for the process. According to Mr. Baker, mortar is weakened when frozen and will not properly set. It also deteriorates faster when frozen during the setting process. The problems associated with freezing during the laying process arises five to ten years later.

Mr. Baker indicated that finished joints help keep water out of the brick. When moisture penetrates the mortar there will be expansion or contraction with outside temperature conditions.

Mr. Baker prepared the quote for repair work that appears at Exhibit 4, Tab 16. Mr. Dagenais did not prompt Mr. Baker with his own opinions on the problem but asked Mr. Baker to "...tell me what you see". After reviewing the home, Mr. Baker prepared an estimate and concluded the relevant observed problems were as follows:

- The majority of the mortar joints are cracked, open, and not properly tooled;
- Some sills are not properly angled and do not allow for proper drainage;
- Evidence of frozen mortar joints.

His evidence was that these problems could have been caused by freezing, delays in tooling or that the job was just done improperly.

Mr. Baker observed the poor brickwork to be present on all sides of the home. He was shown a selection of photos and observed cracks and holes where he concluded that some tooling had occurred and some had not. He stated that each and every joint must be tooled and sealed to the brick. Whether or not the brick design was rough face or smooth face, each joint must be sealed and tooled. If it is not tooled properly, it will appear that there is excess mortar.

In order to effect the repairs, the mortar will need to be ground out and re-pointed with proper tools. The joints will then be tooled and re-sealed.

Mr. Baker stated that houses will shift and cracks will appear in bricks and mortar as a result. However, he stated that a four-year-old house should look like day one.

Mr. Baker confirmed that he was paid $50.00 for his time to prepare the estimate.

On cross-examination, Mr. Baker indicated that he was retained to prepare the estimate after a phone call from the Applicant. He was asked to come to the house as the owner felt it needed some work. His inspection of the home lasted about half an hour.

Mr. Baker advised that he usually charges to perform an evaluation and that he did tell the Applicant that he would charge him a small fee. Mr. Baker decided what to charge the Applicant.

The witness indicated that the photos as submitted did not reveal the evidence of frozen mortar. However, it presents itself as a discolouration of the mortar. He took his key and was able to dig in with the key about 1/8th of an inch. The application of the key caused the mortar to fall away.

Mr. Baker had not seen the report of the respondent's expert prior to his testimony.

When asked about a standard for proper tooling, Mr. Baker indicated the work should appear "...neat, clean and tight..." By "tight" he means no cracks. He was not aware that there was a tooling standard in the Building Code.

Mr. Baker was questioned on the valuation he provided for repairs, a total of $7,000.00 plus applicable taxes. He usually does it on the basis of time and square footage. In this case, he did not recall the square footage but stated that $7,000.00 was what the project was worth to him. He does not keep the notes he makes when preparing his estimates.

John Bringas

John Bringas is self-employed and owns and operates A-1 Brick and Roof Systems. He is a mason and has been for fifty years. Mr. Bringas has a few workers in his business and his primary role is to sign contracts and give estimates.

Mr. Bringas observed that the Applicant's home was a cement brick made of clay. It is crucial to a cement brick that it not be allowed to absorb water. There are a variety of mortar types and the decision on which type to use is usually made by the bricklayer depending on the season. In the winter, the bricklayer should mix in an accelerator to keep the mortar from freezing. If the temperature falls below freezing the bricklayer should mix in accelerator.

Upon observing the Applicant's home, Mr. Bringas concluded, "...whoever did the tooling did not know what he was doing." He also observed evidence of freezing in the mortar which it manifested itself as shrinkage. He also observed lumps of cement that was additional evidence of freezing and shrinkage.

On cross-examination, Mr. Bringas advised that the need for brick restoration is usually apparent to the eyes as opposed to any fixed time in the life of the brick or mortar. Typically, bricks are 50-60 years old before restoration is needed. He also indicated that when water penetrates the voids in the mortar and brick there will be an expansion and contraction. Apparently, damage to bricks can travel to the front or face from the rear of the brick.

As regards his repair quote of $8,220.00 plus applicable taxes, Mr. Bringas stated that he based that amount on his experience, the height of the building, proximity of other homes, and the number of people needed. He estimated the work, which is labour intensive, would take 14-16 days. He attended at the Dagenais home for approximately 2 ½ hours to prepare his quote.

Ontario New Home Warranty Program – Respondents' Evidence.

Doug Irvine

Doug Irvine is an inspector and conciliator with the Ontario New Home Warranty Program. He has been with the Plan since 1979 and has been a field inspector for the last eleven years. In 2001, Mr. Irvine inspected 296 homes. During these inspections he attends at newly constructed homes and provides an opinion as to the requirement Ontario New Home

Warranty Plan Act and Ontario Building Code requirements. He works out of a home-based office in Kitchener where he is the local representative for the Plan.

Prior to joining the Program, Mr. Irvine was a project manager and customer service representative for a new homebuilder.

Mr. Irvine was assigned this home to inspect because he was covering due to local workload issues. He was assigned to the role from the South West Regional Office in London.

He had no dealings with the home prior to 1999.

Mr. Irvine's characterization of the problem with the Applicant's home was that there was a dispute over design and mortar brickwork at the front of the home. He understood that the builder, as a goodwill gesture, had agreed to rake the mortar at the front of the home.

Mr. Irvine attended upon the home on July 9, 2001 to conduct an inspection. The builder and the applicant were present during the inspection. Upon attending, he explained the procedure to the Applicant and then walked around the house. He took photos at the side and at the rear. He was looking for building code infractions and warrantable defects in materials and workmanship.

His conclusion, after an inspection of about ½ hour, was that the work commenced by the builder at the front of the home had to be completed but that no further repairs to the house were warranted. He found no defects elsewhere on the house. He usually allows about one hour for each inspection.

Mr. Irvine did state that if the front of the house had looked like the remainder of the house prior to the raking of the mortar by the builder, he would not have ruled it a warrantable item.

The witness reviewed Tab 17 of Exhibit 3 (the respondent's book of documents). Mr. Irvine took these photos at the time of his inspection. The first picture revealed the front door and a transom window above. He indicated that this area was the specific area that needed work. Some of the photos revealed visible cracks (page 2) and slight discolouration (page 4). The photos were taken about 3-6 feet away from the subject matter and were fair representation of the state of the photo subject at the time of the photo.

With respect to the mortar and brickwork, Mr. Irvine was asked if there was an industry standard. He replied that there was not and that it was a judgment call. If he feels there was poor work done he will order the builder to have it repaired. Some shrinkage will occur and dirt accumulation and water stains can cause staining or discolouration.

Mr. Irvine was shown the corner photo at Exhibit 4, Tab 21. He stated that the different colours could be a shadow effect. He stated that corners do catch more moisture that will accumulate and soak in or be absorbed by the brick and mortar.

Mr. Irvine did not observe any building code violations during his inspection.

Mr. Irvine did not recall that the May 30 date was selected to allow the builder to effect the repairs. He did add that he could extend required dates if seasonal issues are presented.

He stated that the onus is on the homeowner to prove their case and keep ONHWP up to date even if the builder does not respond.

On cross-examination, Mr. Irvine stated that he has never done any brick laying despite the fact his decision pertains to the good and workmanlike manner of the bricklaying at the applicant's new home.

He denied the Applicant's recollection that he was there less than 10 minutes. He believed he was there 20 minutes to half an hour minimum. He was looking for defects in workmanship and in the process reviewed the brickwork on all sides of the home.

Mr. Irvine stated that poor tooling is not a defect in workmanship but is a design issue. Defects are holes and cracks. He agreed that if a job is done right, there ought to be no defects.

The witness reviewed the photos in Exhibit 4 at Tab 21, Page 1 and observed visible holes. He was not certain that the holes had not occurred since his inspection. However, he did agree that, based on the photo, it was possible that the work had been improperly completed.

He reviewed the photo at page 4 of the same exhibit that reveals discolouration on the north side of the house. He felt that the darker mortar appeared to be repair work and that there was evidence of cracking.

Mr. Irvine stated that he disagreed with the other bricklayers' opinions.

Although he cross-references material in a file after he conducts his inspections, Mr. Irvine stated he does not review a file prior to attending on the inspection. He does this to keep an open mind about the issues.

He stated that the Program does not take any samples or do any testing and that the owner must prove their case.

As regards the requirement to complete the job at the front of the home, Mr. Irvine stated that when joints are ground out and not finished there is potential for further damage. As a result, it was requested that the builder complete the remainder of the job.

Mr. Irvine had no idea if the Applicant ever kept anybody away from the front of the house. He stated that he attended because there was a dispute over how much of the work on the home had to be done.

Mr. Irvine was shown the complaint sent by Mr. Dagenais to the Program. He stated that he saw this after his inspection and report. He had no knowledge of the complaint being about excess mortar and did not even look for excess mortar at the time of his inspection.

The Act provides for a number of exclusions to coverage for warranty claims. They include Acts of God and improper maintenance. Mr. Irvine stated that there was no evidence to support these exclusions.

Based on his process of estimating the value of a claim, the witness would have placed the repair cost at $4,800.00 plus applicable taxes. However, he did agree that local quotes are a better reflection of the true cost to effect repairs.

Glenn Grainger

Glenn Grainger is a Civil Engineer graduate of the University of Windsor. Presently, he is a partner with Albert Schepers Engineering Limited where he has worked as a professional engineer for the last six years. His tasks with his employer included project management, civil design, underground work and some inspection work. His employer, Albert Schepers, is President of the Ontario Home Builders Association.

He has held a variety of employment positions since graduation from Windsor in 1994. At Golder and Associates in 1994 he performed, among other work, concrete and cement-related testing. Following that stint he was employed at Giffles Associates Ltd. in Toronto Ontario where, among other tasks, he performed construction inspection for all areas of construction.

He indicated that he was out on a job site that he had designed when he was contracted by Chris Thompson to see if he had time to look at a house. He was told that the owner had lodged a complaint over workmanship of the brick.

Mr. Grainger indicated to the builder he was prepared to attend but that he would only do so on an unbiased basis, as there was the potential that he may concur with the homeowner.

Mr. Grainger provided a report and opinion regarding the home dated March 11, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 15). He indicated his belief that he was able to offer such an opinion. Placing the "P.Eng." designation next to his signature on the report reflects his certitude in that.

He indicated his inspection took approximately 10 minutes and that he conducted the same on the 10th or 11th of March 2002. He prepared his report a short time after conducting the inspection. His inspection involved reviewing the front of the house and the two sides. He observed most of the mortar joints on the front of the house to be ground out to a depth of about one-half inch from the face of the brick. He did not go to the rear of the home, as he did not want to raise suspicion among the neighbours. He checked the brick and mortar and in various locations he did a key test.

He observed that visually the mortar was not placed in an aesthetically pleasing manner and that the work looked sloppy. In fact, the sides of the home did not look good at all. Where the mortar was ground out at the front of the house he was able to observe that, beyond the surface, the mortar joints looked pretty good and that he observed no cracks and saw contact between the top and bottom of bricks with the applied mortar.

Mr. Grainger concluded in his report that there was "...no evidence to suggest that the mortar was improperly mixed or that it froze shortly after it had been placed." Had this occurred, Mr. Grainger stated that he would have expected to observe softness in the mortar or discolouration. He stated that it was more likely the mortar hardened before it was tooled rather than frozen.

He did not observe any evidence of improper mixing of the mortar. This would have produced powdery or sandy spots.

When he conducted a key test the mortar was hard. He stated that where the tooling was rough it was possible to scratch it off. This was likely the result of the rough texture rather than a flaw. The key test was performed at three locations along each of the front and both sides.

He did not observe any cracks that went from front to rear of the bricks. There were surface cracks and separations, which occur through shrinkage. These were stated to be normal. Apparently, the stress associated with the mortar curing process forces bricks to separate at some point.

Mr. Grainger stated that the holes complained of by the Applicant were imperfections in the surface of the mortar. What he saw were "pits".

Mr. Grainger was asked to comment on whether improper tooling had anything to do with water penetration. He stated this was a false and misleading view. A brick wall is like a sponge and no amount of tooling will prevent water absorption. This is why weep holes are inserted to allow a point of release for water and moisture.

Apparently, the brick is not really needed at all on modern home construction and is purely an aesthetic feature of the home. He did not observe any defects in the ability of the mortar to hold bricks.

As to concern about the development of mold as a result of added water penetration, Mr. Grainger stated water is expected to get in to the rear of bricks and mold will not develop as a result.

Mr. Grainger was aware of no standards regarding tooling. Some joints are convex and some are concave. Tooling is a personal preference.

On cross-examination, Mr. Grainger advised that his firm was to be paid for the report he prepared. He was not sure how much and indicated that the hearing date was the first time he actually met the builder in person.

He attended on the Applicant's home without the knowledge or permission of the Applicant, likely on the 10th or the 11th of March 2002. He had no reason to believe that he should not have been on the property. In fact, he preferred not to have spoken to the owner as his assessment of the brick and mortar was enhanced by less prior information.

He confirmed that he was asked to look at the brick and mortar to see if there were any warrantable defects. In this regard, he stated that he had some knowledge of the Building Code and the ONHWP Act and that he also consulted his employer Mr. Schepers.

In his review for the report, Mr. Grainger reviewed a guideline published by the Warranty program. He did not review the Act or the regulations. He could not recall the title of the booklet he reviewed.

Although he conceded that the tooling work on the home was done sloppily, he stated that there was nothing else wrong with it.

He stated that it was possible there was frozen mortar, he just did not see evidence of it. He stated that freezing is an interruption in the mortar curing process. If frozen, it could be weakened or there could be no problem at all. In some extreme cases freezing of mortar may cause damage.

Mr. Grainger suggesting that the pitting he observed was caused by the way it was tooled. What may have happened was the bricklayers waited too long to tool and pulled away bits and pieces of mortar. Once mortar is frozen or hardened it cannot be tooled. If this occurs, it may appear as the Applicant's home appears.

Chris Thompson

Chris Thompson is the President and owner of Thompson Homes. He has three employees and has been in the home building business for ten years. Prior to having his own business he was in a carpentry crew doing wood framing and contraction. Over the last fourteen years in the industry, he estimated that he had been associated with the construction of two hundred homes.

In his role at Thompson Homes, Mr. Thompson signs and reviews contracts and offers, arranges for permits and is site supervisor. He performed these functions with respect to the Dagenais home and was in the subject subdivision on a regular basis.

He testified that the alleged shoddy brickwork was not an issue prior to move in at the home. It only became an issue two or three months after the sale was completed.

When the issue arose, they sandblasted and powerwashed the bricks then proceeded to grind out the joints at the front of the home. He understood he was only doing the front of the home. He did it because Mr. Dagenais was a customer and he wanted to keep the customer happy.

He estimated that the remainder of the work to be completed would cost him approximately $1,500.00. This amount represents three bricklayers occupied for three full eight-hour workdays.

His recollection of the Doug Irvine inspection in July 2000 was that it lasted about one half-hour. He recalled that Mr. Irvine advised all parties of the conciliation procedure.

When Mr. Thompson walked around with Mr. Irvine he observed surface cracks at the back and sides but no holes.

Mr. Irvine advised Mr. Thompson that the Applicant was unhappy with the conciliation report and that was the reason they stopped further work. They did not want to complete the front if the owner's expectation was that the whole house was to be completed. He is still willing to go back to the home and complete the repair work at the front of the home.

Mr. Thompson noted that he had seen a variety of tooling approaches in his experience such as convex, concave, slick and raked. He noted there was nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale respecting the manner of tooling.

The brick on Mr. Dagenais' home is an uneven faced brick, rough, round and with broken looking edges. He felt the tooling was consistent with the type of brick selected for the home. He felt the photos submitted by both the Applicant and the Program were consistent with his review and recollection of the home.

On cross-examination, Mr. Thompson stated that the quotes presented by the Applicant for repairs seemed reasonable under all of the circumstances because profit is built in to the process.

He did the final walk through with Mr. Dagenais just before closing and had no recollection of a conversation or comment about the brickwork. He felt the first conversations were likely in March or April of 1998 following the completion of the sale. When that conversation did occur, it was at the house where Mr. Dagenais showed the builder the offensive areas. Mr. Thompson recalls asking the Applicant what it would take to make him happy and was told the front of the house had to be fixed.

Mr. Thompson confirmed that the same bricklayer, Sal Albano, did the brickwork all the way around the home. He stated that the brickwork was consistent all the way around the home.

The builder had no recollection that he stated to the applicant that the bricklayer had done a poor job. In fact, Mr. Thompson stated that he thought there was nothing wrong with the brickwork. He did not think the work was done poorly at all.

The repairs were not done until 2000 because of a local labour shortage. Mr. Thompson was not able to get anyone to go to the site and effect repairs. He did call the original bricklayer to return but Mr. Albano did not feel that he did anything that needed repair. The builder likely would have paid Mr. Albano to return and effect the repairs.

Mr. Thompson stated that he tries his best to address customer complaints. However, if there is nothing wrong, he tells his customers there is nothing wrong. However, sometimes builders have to do things that are not otherwise required just to maintain good customer relations.

Mr. Thompson was directed to a letter from his business at Tab 8 of Exhibit 4. The letter is signed by his wife for the company and refers to "exterior brick work". He was at a loss to explain why the wording did not limit the work to the front, as was his understanding of the scope of repairs. A handwritten note to the Ontario New Home Warranty Program using the same wording is dated January 4, 2001 (Exhibit 4, Tab 9).

When asked to review some of the photos submitted by the Applicant, Mr. Thompson conceded that while he felt the mortar work was consistent with the type of brick selected, he did not disagree with the various bricklayers opinions as to the quality of the workmanship based on the varying amounts of mortar applied.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The Tribunal notes that all of the witnesses appeared to testify with candor and a concern for accuracy. Many of the events that lead to this hearing were well over three years old. Some inconsistencies were present as between witnesses. Those inconsistencies require some analysis.

The Applicant testified that he had numerous conversations regarding the mortar-work with the builder prior to close and following completion of the transaction. His recollection was that the builder assured him the whole home would be repaired. The Applicant understood this to mean grinding out and re-tooling the mortar-work. The builder did not recall such conversations but had a recall of a meeting in March or April following the close of the transaction. He met the Applicant at the home and they reviewed the problem areas. The builder recalled asking the Applicant what it would take to make him happy and being told that the front of the house had to be fixed.

The builder and the Applicant disagree on the scope of the repair work. In that respect, the Tribunal accepts the evidence of the Applicant. On cross-examination, the builder testified that while he does his best to address all customer complaints he tells his customers there is nothing wrong when there is nothing to be repaired. In this case, the builder stated that he wanted to keep Mr. Dagenais happy. With respect, it does not make much sense that Mr. Dagenais would accept that only the front of the home be repaired. The same bricklayer did all of the work around the home. The witnesses Bringas and Baker both concluded that the tooling was done poorly and that the mortar job required repair work. They drew these conclusions by observing the whole of the house. In fact, the respondent's witness Grainger also conceded that the mortar-work had been done in a sloppy manner and did not look good at all. The witness observed this with respect to the sides and rear of the home as the front had been ground out.

There was no evidence that Mr. Dagenais received anything of value in exchange for foregoing repair work on the remainder of the home. It is difficult to accept that the Applicant would have any incentive to accept such a proposal. The witnesses Bringas, Baker and Grainger all agreed that the remaining mortar-work appeared sloppy.

The builder testified that the brickwork was consistent all the way around the home. In that respect, the front, prior to being ground out, would have resembled the sides and rear as they now exist. He further stated that he did not think the job had been done poorly at all and that there was nothing wrong with the brickwork. Despite this situation, the builder agreed to an expensive and unnecessary repair job.

Interestingly, the documentary evidence produced at the hearing does not make any distinction between repairing the whole house or just the front of the home until the conciliation report in July 2001. In that report, the author, Doug Irvine of the Program, states that the Applicant's concern "...is that he was not happy with the mortar joints and in some areas where mortar splashes have left excessive mortar on brick and joints." Mr. Irvine goes on to conclude that he observed no warrantable defects in the remainder of the home but that the front, having been started must be completed. Moreover, in letters from the builder to the Applicant and the Program dated December 7, 2000, there are references by the builder to "...exterior brick work" without any additional words of limitation.

The Tribunal finds that the evidence supports the conclusion that the builder had undertaken to repair all of the brickwork. For whatever reason, this repair-work stopped prior to and precipitated the conciliation report.

The Tribunal was presented with a variety of quotations regarding the amount required to effect repairs on the home were the same to be ordered. There was some disparity in the amounts. Mr. Irvine for the Program suggested that his best estimate was $4,800.00 plus applicable taxes. This was based on the size of the job and the application of a suggested price range from a document entitled "The Home Buyers Guide to Renovations and Repair Costs" (Exhibit 7). Mr. Irvine did concede that local quotes were a better reflection of the true cost associated with making repairs. The local masons that testified provided estimates ranging from $7,000.00 plus GST. (Peter Baker of Baker's Masonry Restoration) to $8,220.00 (John Bringas of A-1 Brick and Roof Systems). The Applicant provided two other written estimates. No one was called to testify on these estimates but the Tribunal notes that Mr. Bringas and Mr. Baker's estimates fell within the range of the other two estimates. The quotes are essentially identical in scope of work. Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the cost to repair the brickwork is $7,000.00 plus applicable taxes. Of that amount, $3,000.00 is associated with the cost to complete the front of the home.

The Applicant and his witnesses testified that the poor tooling and workmanship on the mortar work would cause the risk of water penetration and the development of mold. The peril associated with water penetration is that mortar will expand and contract with changes in temperature. This expansion and contraction will compromise the integrity of the brickwork. Glenn Grainger testified that water penetration had nothing to do with improper tooling. He stated that a brick was like a sponge and that no amount of tooling will prevent water absorption. In this respect, the Tribunal prefers the evidence of Mr. Grainger who is a professional engineer. His evidence was of great assistance to the Tribunal more so than the largely anecdotal observations of the Applicant's witnesses on these issues.

There was little or no persuasive evidence that the mortar had frozen. Mr. Grainger testified that freezing would have been evidenced by discolouration in the mortar or softness. He applied a key to the mortar and observed the mortar to be hard. Where the tooling was rough, he was able to break it off with the key. The breakage was likely the result of rough texture rather than a curing process flaw. It was his conclusion that the most likely explanation for the state of the mortar was that the mortar hardened before it was tooled. Mr. Baker also applied a key test and stated that he was able to dig about 1/8th of an inch causing mortar to fall away. He did not state how many spots were tested. Mr. Bringas concluded freezing had occurred because he observed shrinkage in the mortar. This had caused cracks.

Where the evidence of these witnesses differs on this point, the Tribunal prefers the evidence of Mr. Grainger for the same reasons mentioned above. As such, the Tribunal finds that the mortar which fell away when a key test was applied was most likely caused by the texture of the mortar as applied rather than freezing.

No evidence was called as to local temperature conditions during the bricklaying process. The bricklayer, Sal Albano, was not called to testify about the conditions when he did the mortar work.

There is one item upon which most of the witnesses seemed to agree. The Applicant felt that the job had been done poorly and that the tooling was not done properly. Mr. Baker concluded that the cracked mortar joints were not properly tooled and that the cracks may have been caused by "...freezing, delays in tooling or that the job was done improperly." Mr. Bringas attributed the lumps of mortar as evidence of freezing but also as evidence that "...whoever did the tooling did not know what he was doing." Mr. Irvine, when presented with certain photos revealing obvious holes, stated that it was possible that the work had been improperly completed. Mr. Grainger concluded that the mortar likely hardened before it was tooled. He also stated that although there was nothing wrong with the integrity of the work on the home, it had been done sloppily. Only Mr. Thompson felt there was nothing wrong with the brickwork, although repairs were started on the front of the home as a goodwill gesture.

The bottom line of all this evidence seems to be the inescapable conclusion that a very poor job was done on the tooling. The photos presented by Mr. Irvine and Mr. Dagenais reveal a rather unsightly collection of mortar gobs, cracks, pits and inconsistencies in tooling presentation. While there may be disagreement on the long-term effects of this state of affairs, there can be no doubt that the mortar work on the Applicant's home is aesthetically unpleasant.

Based on the evidence, both oral and documentary, the Tribunal finds the following facts to be proven:

- 1) The Applicant's appeal with respect to this breach of warranty claim was made within the time limits prescribed by the Act. There was no dispute from the Program in this regard;
- 2) The Applicant's claim was framed to mean the brickwork on the entire home;
- 3) The amount required to repair the mortar work is $7,000.00 plus taxes. Of that amount, $3,000.00 is for the front of the home;
- 4) The brickwork on the home was done in an aesthetically unpleasant manner;
- 5) There was insufficient evidence adduced to establish that the discolouration or status of the mortar-work had been caused by freezing;
- 6) The evidence suggested that improper tooling was an aesthetic concern rather than a performance issue;
- 7) There was no evidence that the problems associated with the brick work was excluded under section 13(2) of the Act.

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states as follows:

13(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

...

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

(a) defects in materials, design and work supplied by the owner;

(b) secondary damage caused by defects, such as property damage and personal injury;

(c) normal wear and tear;

...

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

...

14(3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,

...

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

Counsel provided a number of cases for consideration by the Tribunal. These cases were quite helpful in coming to a decision in this matter.

Counsel for the Program directed the Tribunal to pages 25-26 of the decision in Saporita v. Ontario New Home Warranty Program (1999). In that section of the case, the Tribunal suggests that the standard in workmanship is not one of perfection. Moreover, "If imperfections exist in the Applicant's home they are, from the evidence tendered, minor in nature and do result in aesthetically displeasing results." The Tribunal in that decision associated itself with the remarks in the Mark Teitelman (1987) CRAT 179 matter wherein it was stated that minor imperfections are to accepted and expected and that "All that can be done is to keep these imperfections at reasonable acceptable levels."

The Tribunal in Saporita concluded that the imperfections in the work were minor and did not result in aesthetically displeasing results. As stated above, in this case, this Tribunal has concluded that the mortar work is aesthetically displeasing.

Program Counsel also cited the Breen (CRAT, 1999) case as authority for the application of a de minimis rule in these matters. Specifically, at page 17 of the Breen decision, the Tribunal states:

The mark is only visible on an extremely close inspection. A microscopic examination is not the appropriate standard of testing. In law this type of mark could be considered "de minimis non curat lex" meaning that the law does not take notice of nor care about very small or trifling matters.

In that case, the alleged defect was a banding mark on the bottom of a cupboard door. The warranty representative recalled the banding marks being an issue when he did his inspection but "...it was not visible to him when installed in the cabinets and he believed it was not an issue."

It cannot be said that the sloppy mortar work on this home is a "...very small or trifling..." matter. Tiny banding marks on a cupboard door on the inside of a home are not the same as very poor workmanship on the exterior of a home. Consumers purchase homes for a variety of reasons. The exterior appearance is clearly an important consideration. The outward appearance of the home is seen everyday by the owner and the neighbours. When the owners sell their homes the exterior appearance or “curb appeal” is an element of the sale price.

Additionally, the photos that were taken and submitted by the Program and the Applicant are rendered from a variety of distances. The Applicant’s photos were taken from a closer range and tend to focus in on very bad spots. Mr. Irvine took the Program photos, usually from a range of 3 – 6 feet. He stated that they were a fair representation of the home. Excluding the photos of the ground out areas and the great entrance, there is evidence that the defects in the mortar work are visible without a microscopic inspection.

Counsel for the Applicant pointed the Tribunal to the case of Goulet (Re) [2000] O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 51 where the Tribunal considered the concept of “workmanlike” manner. The case of Belvedere v. Ontario New Home Warranty Program (CRAT, 1997) was cited for the proposition that the appearance of the work of aesthetics plays a role in the concept of workmanlike manner. The aesthetic appearance of work is neither of the highest importance or of the lowest importance, but it has some importance.

In Belvedere, the workmanship issue arose with respect to some ceramic tiling. Vice Chair Hiley, after extensively reviewing definitions of workmanship, rejected the decisions in Russo and Uludamar and stated the following at page 12:

“Workmanship” does not just mean that the item is functional. There is the element of quality to be found in the concept of “workmanship”. There is the element of skill to be found in the concept of “workmanship”.

She continues,

“For example, one can see that a handcrafted wooden desk can still function as a desk even if the top of the desk is slanted slightly or has a rather rolling surface. But would a member of the public wish to purchase it in that condition? No. Is it a product of a skilled worker? No. A skilled worker would ensure that the wooden top of the desk has no angles or rolls to it. The desk could still be used to write on. It can hold papers and books and a computer or a telephone but it has not been constructed in a skilled or expert fashion” (page 13)

The same holds true for the mortar work on Mr. Dagenais’ home.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to have the necessary action taken to repair the mortar work on the entirety of the Applicant's home in a proper and workmanlike manner to meet the warranty requirements of the Act. Furthermore, it shall be a condition of this order that the Applicant shall allow the Program and such person or persons that the Program may arrange to complete the required work all reasonable and necessary access to the premises for this purpose. If the Applicant refuses this latter condition then the Program shall have no further obligation in this matter.

This latter condition is added to permit the Program to select the builder to effect the repairs, if appropriate.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

Background:

This matter was commenced by a Notice of Proposal dated October 31, 2001. The Registrar wished to suspend the registration of 933891 Ontario Limited o/a Classic Country Homes due to the failure of the registrant to execute the Vendor and Builder Agreements. The registrant, through its president, Barry Mills, filed a Notice of Appeal dated November 8, 2001. In the Notice of Appeal the registrant stated a number of grounds for appealing the decision. The first ground stated was that the ONHWP Vendor Agreement and the ONHWP Builder Agreement and the regulations under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act violated the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

A prehearing was held with the Registrant and the Program on January 24, 2002. A prehearing order was released by the Tribunal on January 25, 2002. Attached to the order was a Statement of Facts. The parties were in agreement as to paragraphs 1 through 14 of the Statement of Facts. There was no agreement as to paragraph 15. The prehearing order set out the procedure and time lines for the parties to proceed on the Charter challenge. The Applicant was to serve the Program and the Attorney Generals of Ontario and Canada with its documents, including a statement of issues, fact and law, by February 15, 2002. The Program was to serve the Applicant and the Attorney Generals of Ontario and Canada with its documents and its statement of issues, fact and law, by March 4, 2002. Then the parties had from March 6 through 22, 2002 to conduct cross examinations on the affidavits and until March 28, 2002 to file transcripts of the cross examinations. There would be no viva voce evidence permitted on the Charter issue at the hearing unless the Tribunal consented. Failure to comply with the procedures and time lines as set out in the prehearing order would result in the Tribunal not hearing submissions from the parties at the hearing regarding Charter issues. The parties were to comply with the Tribunal's Rules of Practice as it relates to disclosure requirements for the hearing.

Both parties were in attendance at the hearing on April 3, 2002. A preliminary issue was raised by the Program as regards the Charter issue.

Preliminary issue:

Counsel for the Program raised the issue of whether or not the Charter argument could be considered in this hearing. It was the submission of Counsel for the Program that the Applicant had not complied with Rule 8 of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, with the prehearing order of January 25, 2002 and with s.109 of the Courts of Justice Act. Therefore the Applicant could not proceed with the Charter arguments.

Counsel for the Program spoke of Rule 8.1 of the Rules of Practice, in particular the subsection dealing with the content of the notice. It was the submission of Counsel that the Applicant had not complied with this requirement. Such failure to comply should result in no remedy being granted by the Tribunal.

It was stated by Counsel for the Program that the Applicant had stated in his Notice of Appeal that he wished to make a Charter argument and that he would need to serve the Attorney Generals of Ontario and Canada at least 15 days prior to the hearing date. Again at the prehearing held on January 24, 2002 the Applicant was informed by the Tribunal that notice had to be given to the Program and the Attorney Generals of Ontario and Canada by February 15, 2002. The Applicant was aware of the time frames and of the reasons for the order made at the prehearing.

Counsel for the Program stated that the Applicant objected to the prehearing order in his letter of February 7, 2002 to the Registrar of the Tribunal. The Registrar informed the Applicant that there would be no changes to the prehearing order. The Applicant did not provide notice as required under the prehearing order. As a consequence the Program could not prepare its case. It should be noted that the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal echoes the wording in section 109 of the Courts of Justice Act. Notice shall be done "as soon as the circumstances requiring it become known and, in any event, at least fifteen days before the day on which the question is to be argued, unless the court orders otherwise."

It was submitted by Counsel for the Program that the Applicant had not provided the material facts on which to support the argument. For example, paragraph 4 of the Applicant's materials speaks of abuses of search and seizure powers of the Program but there are no facts or particulars provided as to when these powers had been abused and under what circumstances.

In the exhibits filed by Counsel for the Program was a letter of Beth Symes dated April 2, 2002 stating that Ms. Goldberg of the office of the Ministry of the Attorney General for Ontario had informed Ms. Symes that no notice of constitutional question had been filed with the Ministry. The Applicant had responded to that letter by providing a fax sheet which showed that a document of seven pages in length had been faxed directly to the office of the Ontario Attorney General on March 26, 2002. It was the submission of Counsel for the Program that even if that had occurred the notice was only eight days in advance of the hearing date, not the fifteen days as required by the Rules of Practice for the Tribunal and under section 109 of the Courts of Justice Act. Nor was there any evidence that the Attorney General for Canada had been served. It was the opinion of Counsel that the notice was insufficient.

Counsel for the Program referred to the case of The Brant County Board of Education and the Attorney General for Ontario v. Carol Eaton and Clayton Eaton et al, a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada as of February 6, 1997. Chief Justice Sopinka spoke of the purpose of section 109 of the Courts of Justice Act and the entitlement of the governments to notice so they can protect their legislation. The absence of notice is prejudicial to the public interest.

Counsel also referred to Family and Children's Services of Guelph and Wellington County v. K.F. a decision of the Ontario Court of Justice of November, 2001. In that decision Mr. Justice Caspers found that "The failure of the respondents to comply with the notice requirements of subsection 109(1) of the Courts of Justice Act is fatal to the application in accordance with subsection 109(2)."

Counsel referred to the LAT case of T Mag Marketing of May, 2001 where the Tribunal held that there was a need to have proper notice of constitutional issues.

Besides objecting to the hearing of the Charter issues Counsel for the Program objected to the improper notice disclosure of the Book of Documents of the Applicant which was served approximately a week prior to the hearing date which is not in compliance with both the prehearing order or the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal as it relates to disclosure requirements. Tabs 4 through 8 dealt with Charter issues and tabs 10 & 11 dealt with irrelevant matters, that being letters of reference from satisfied consumers. The Program stated on the record that it had no problems with the competency of the Registrant, just with its non compliance in not executing the Vendor and Builder Agreements.

Mr. Mills, as agent for the Registrant, stated that he is primarily a builder. Though he had attended at the prehearing conference he had been unhappy with the order and had objected by his letter of February 7th to the Registrar of the Tribunal. There are Charter ramifications in the insistence of the Program that he sign these Agreements. Mr. Mills stated that he had also faxed the Attorney General for Canada on March 26, 2002.

Mr. Mills stated that the cases referred to by Counsel for the Program all dealt with situations whereby no notice had been given to the Attorney Generals. Here he had given notice to both the Attorney General for Ontario and that for Canada. He had not mentioned any specific facts as he had not signed the Vendor or Builder Agreements. He noted that in the Brant Board of Education case the Court of Appeal had permitted argument on Charter issues even though proper notice had not been given.

Decision of preliminary issue:

The Tribunal finds that the Registrant had not provided proper notice of its intention to argue Charter issues. Though it is evident that the Registrant did inform the Attorney General for Ontario that notice was outside of the fifteen days stipulated in the Courts of Justice Act. The Registrant has stated that he had faxed the Attorney General for Canada on March 26th. It is quite likely that he did so even though he had no documentation to verify his statement. But again that notice was outside the fifteen days stipulated in the Courts of Justice Act.

The cases provided by the parties do show that the higher courts value the concept of proper notice being given to the parties. They also show that in some instances even if the proper notice had not been given the Charter issues can be advanced to the court for consideration. But in this case the Registrant was well aware of its responsibilities to provide notice and to provide the proper foundation for any constitutional arguments. The Tribunal at the prehearing and as shown by its prehearing order did go to great lengths to inform this unrepresented Registrant as to what is required if one wishes to advance a constitutional challenge at the hearing. The prehearing order could not have been any more detailed as to what the Registrant must accomplish in order to present its Charter challenge at the hearing. Whether or not the Registrant liked the order it is an order of this Tribunal. One ignores it at one's own peril. The Registrant knew there were deadlines in order to advance its case for the Charter challenge. The Registrant choose to ignore those deadlines and indeed to ignore the limitation periods as stated in both the Rules of Procedure of the Tribunal and under s.109 of the Courts of Justice Act. Accordingly this Tribunal refused to hear submissions at the hearing in regards to any Charter issues.

Though the Registrant had failed to disclose its documents to the Program at least ten days prior to the Hearing date the Tribunal permitted the documents of the Registrant found in Exhibit 4 to the hearing, being Tabs 1 through 3 and tab 9 to be entered as exhibits to this proceeding. Tabs 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 are not entered as they deal with the Charter issue which is not before this Tribunal. Tabs 10 and 11 are not entered as they deal with the competency of the Registrant which is not an issue before this Tribunal. Tabs 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10 and 11 are not relevant to the issue before the Tribunal.

Issue:

Does the failure of the Registrant to sign the new Vendor and new Builder Agreements provide the Registrar of the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan with the grounds to refuse to renew the registration of the Registrant?

Testimony:

The parties had agreed at the prehearing on January 25, 2002 to an Agreed Statement of Facts paragraphs 1 through 14. Evidence was not led on the matters covered by this Agreed Statement of Facts which was appended to the prehearing order as Exhibit B.

Testimony of Gregory Baker:

Mr. Baker testified that he is the vice president of Risk Management for the Program. He has held that position since 1998. In 1997 he was the manager of business analysis for the Program.

Mr. Baker testified that his responsibilities include the preparation of policy for the Program. He has four staff members in his department. He has a degree in Finance and a Master of Business Administration degree. He has a law degree from an American University but he is not qualified to practice law in Ontario.

According to Mr. Baker the Program began to look at its Vendor/Builder Agreement in 1995. There was consultation with the builders and the Program's Board of Directors to review the Agreement. In 1998 this consultation became more intense with the Ontario Home Builders Association. This is a provincial association of homebuilders comprised of builders, trades and suppliers. It provides formal institutional representation to the Program. The Ontario Home Builders Association has fifteen chapters in Ontario. Approximately fifty per cent of its members are registrants with the Program.

There are approximately five thousand registrants with the Program. All have signed the new Builder and Vendor Agreements except for eight registrants.

The Liaison Committee, which has geographical representation throughout Ontario, had met quarterly to consider the new Agreements. In 1999 there was a joint Communique from the Liaison Committee/Program to all members of the Ontario Home Builders Association and all registrants of the Program. As well during 1999 all registrants of the Program were faxed information sheets on three or four occasions. The drafts of the new Agreements were distributed to the members of the Ontario Home Builders Association. Any issues or changes then went to the Board of Directors of the Program.

Mr. Baker testified that under the bylaws of the Program there is a Board of Directors of fifteen people. Approximately eight Board members are registered builders who work in the industry and are members of the Ontario Home Builders Association.

The Program consulted with the building industry and got input from those in the industry. It was evident that builders wanted as much information in the draft agreements as possible. The draft agreements were expanded to be more specific as to rights and responsibilities.

Mr. Baker testified that there had been a Vendor/Builder Agreement in place from 1976 to 1987. From 1987 to April, 2000 that same agreement was in place with some minor changes.

Prior to the release of the new Builder Agreement and new Vendor Agreement registrants of the Program would have to read the Act and its Regulations in order to know precisely what were their rights and responsibilities. The Program would issue Builder Bulletins as communication tools which were basically interpretations of the Act and its Regulations. Though initially there was a combined agreement the builders made it clear during the consultations that they wanted two separate agreements, a Builders Agreement and a Vendors Agreement.

Though the new agreements are longer and more detailed than the old combined agreement they do not contain any different obligations. There are no surprises to the registrants but the new agreements are more specific in their language. Indeed it was the opinion of Mr. Baker that the Program now has more limitations on it under these new agreements. For example under the new Vendor Agreement section 2.3 the Program is now responsible for any major structural defects from years 3 through 7 and the Registrant is responsible only for years 1 and 2.

Mr. Baker explained that initially in the Builders Agreement under section 1.4 there was language related to after sales service. After consultation with the builders that section was amended in June, 2001 to take out the wording "after sales service". But the types of documentation itemized in section 1.4 was all in the older Vendor/Builder Agreement. What has happened is that the language is more specific at the request of the industry which wanted the requests for documentation to be more consistent.

Mr. Baker stated that the Registrant had signed the former Vendor/Builder Agreement. Under that Agreement in section 4.4(e) there is listed the same type of documents as are listed now under 1.4 of the new Builders Agreement. The provision of such documentation by the builders to the Program was an existing obligation of builders prior to the new Agreements coming into force. Under the Act section 7(2) there can be terms and conditions prescribed by the Regulations. Regulation 894 lists the terms and conditions of registration of builders and vendors.

Mr. Baker stated that if the registrant is a corporation and there is no personal guarantee in place then the Program is unable to pierce the corporate veil as regards the indemnity clause in section 1.4 of Regulation 894. It is the historical practice of the Program to facilitate registration by doing an assessment of the assets of the corporation registrant. Usually it is the practice to ask for a personal guarantee. Small builders can get their registration without a security requirement by using the personal guarantee. In order to do a personal guarantee it is required that a personal net worth statement be filed. There needs to be some sort of financial statement or the Program cannot assess the financial strength of the registrant.

Mr. Baker testified that under Builder Bulletin #28 the Program has provided the information on how it does a risk assessment. There is a point system which is based on size, tenure, performance history etc. This is analogous to the insurance industry's underwriting process.

Those in the condominium industry have a different scheme as there is a risk to the purchasers deposits which are to be held in trust.

Under these internal processes you can go to the higher levels of management. Of there is an external appeal to the Tribunal.

Mr. Baker then reviewed the issues mentioned on the Notice of Appeal, commencing with issue #2 and the first issue dealt with the Charter issues.

Issue #2 – personal information not protected

Mr. Baker did not think that the Registrant was required to provide letters of security. Often the Program will ask for a copy of the driver's licence to verify identity. All personal information is kept confidential. The staff and Board members sign confidentiality agreements on an annual basis. As well the Program has a policy not to disclose information without a subpoena. What the Program can disclose are the names and addresses of the place of business.

Issue #3 – overcharging buyers for warranty coverage

Mr. Baker stated that this is not covered under the new Agreements.

Issue #4 – non disclosure of all material implications

Mr. Baker referred to section 3.9 of the Builders Agreement and 3.10 of the Vendors Agreement. There is no retroactive effect of new provisions in future Bulletins. This was not changed in the amended versions dated June of 2001. The Builders Bulletins are traditionally communication vehicles in which the legislation is interpreted or where the risk assessment process is outlined. For example under Bulletin 19 there is a field review required for condominium construction by an engineer and then security can be released. There is no retroactive effect of these Bulletins unless it comes from judicial decisions. As well the Liaison Committee can bring up any issues or you can go to the Tribunal.

Issue #5 – new financial or fiduciary requirements are imposed by the new Agreements

Mr. Baker stated that the Act and Regulations permit the Program to ask for additional securities if necessary. Then if there is no compliance the Notice of Proposal can be issued. For example if a builder has been building five homes a year and now wants to build fifty homes then the Program can ask for more information and possibly want additional security from that builder.

Issue #6 (found on last page of March 18th/02 letter) - builds homes under contract and these homes not eligible for registration

Mr. Baker stated that the Agreements do not apply if it is found that the builder is not covered under the definition of builder in the Act.

Issue # 7 (found on last page of March 18th/02 letter) equity per unit and risk assessment

Mr. Baker stated that the risk assessment does not have anything to do with the new Agreements. Equity per unit is a term of art, a way of looking at assets of a corporation. The more invested in a corporation the less likely that a company will walk away from its obligations.

Under cross examination Mr. Baker stated that perhaps fifty per cent of those registered as members of the Ontario Home Builders Association are builders. There are just eight builders who have not signed the new agreements. In the Board of Directors of the Program there are eight builder designated positions and he believes that five are practicing builders.

The issues of administration fees on invoices and interest on debts come from the Regulations attached to the Act

Regarding the issue of confidentiality Mr. Baker stated that the Program does report to credit reporting agencies if there is a duty to disclose. That is part of the consumer protection practices in the Agreements found in section 4.3 and 4.4 and 1.5 of the Builder Agreement.

Regarding the non material disclosure issue Mr. Baker stated that section 3.9 of the Builders Agreement is in accordance with the Act and its Regulations.

Regarding new financial requirements issue Mr. Baker stated that the Builders Agreement could result in the builder being responsible for more security at mid stream. The Program does complicated assessments similar to the Insurance Act practice to determine liabilities. Then the Program looks at anticipated enrolments. In the past two years the fees have been reduced by forty per cent. This has been achieved through better risk management procedures. The Program may or may not release guarantees.

Regarding the issue of homes being built under contract this means that those homes that fit under the definition of builder in the Act would come under the Builders Agreement. The new agreements are more specific but not so that new obligations would be added by the builders.

Regarding the risk assessment issue the Program does look at the company's financial position as a whole and it will often say to small builders that they require additional guarantees. It is done on an individual basis for the assessment but the liabilities remain the same under the Act.

Testimony of Barry Mills:

Mr. Mills testified that he has been in business since 1991 and has worked in the industry since 1988. He used to work with Upper Canada Beam doing shell packages and then progressed to constructing homes. He has been registered with the Program since 1994. He has been the sole shareowner of Classic Homes since 1998. He has done 31 homes: 9 have been shells; 18 have been fully completed in the Muskoka area; and he has 5 homes registered under the Program. He signed the Vendor/Builder Agreement in 1994.

Mr. Mills felt that it was an invasion of privacy to provide the personal information required by the Program. He realizes that the Program needs a mechanism to check on builders.

He has no problem with the provision of a certificate of completion and possession. He does have a problem with signing an agreement and then finding it has changed and he has no recourse to oppose the change.

Mr. Mills feels the new Agreements are discriminatory to the smaller builder due to the financial requirements.

He has a problem knowing whether or not he fits under the definition of builder and whether or not he should register his homes. Currently he has registered five homes.

He felt that Mr. Baker had through his testimony clarified the risk assessment process and how points are assessed to the smaller builder.

Under cross examination Mr. Mills stated that he was worried that personal information he gave to the Program would be given to a third party. He has no problem with the Program doing an assessment of his financial status and providing financial information to the Program. Indeed he has done a personal net worth statement on himself for the Program. He agreed that to date there has been no problem with disclosure of this personal information. He has no knowledge of complaints about disclosure of personal information.

Mr. Mills agreed that he had signed the Vendor/Builder Agreement and that it contained a clause under section 5.1 which permitted the Program to change the agreement. He agreed that he could go to the Tribunal if there was such a problem.

Though Mr. Mills had received the Builder Bulletins he felt that there was a difference between receiving information and being told how to do things. He did agree that the Bulletins have been primarily informational in character.

Mr. Mills still had concerns that the new agreements would allow the Program to reconsider its security terms at other times other than the renewal of the agreement. Mr. Mills agreed that he had no experience with security as he had never been required to provide it.

Mr. Mills had concerns about the unpredictability of the definition of builder. The warranty of the home depends on this definition. He agreed that the Program had never commented that he had acted in a non appropriate manner in not enrolling the other homes.

Mr. Mills stated that he was satisfied with the clarification by Mr. Baker as to the term "equity". He agreed that the size of a builder is a factor. He had no difficulties with his own risk assessment. He is concerned that future Bulletins will have unknown obligations. He agreed his concerns were of a hypothetical nature.

Closing Statements:

By Program:

The Program is asking for the suspension of the registration of the Registrant under section 8(2) of the Act on the basis that it has breached a term or condition of its registration.

Under section 7(2) there can be terms and conditions prescribed by the Regulations. In this case the Registrant had signed previous Vendor/Builder Agreement. Section 23(1)(a) of the Act permits bylaws that govern registration such as (f) agreements for Vendor and Builder; (l) bonded or provide other security; (o) prescribe forms. Under the general legislation there is a right for the Program to have agreements and forms.

Under Regulation 892 section 9(3) the applicant may be obliged to furnish information. This is the basis for which the Program required the initial applicant to sign an agreement.

The pre-existing Vendor/Builder Agreement allowed under section 5.1 that the registrant sign further agreements and under section 4.4(e) supply information.

Regulation 894 specifics terms and conditions for registration. Section 1.3(3) speaks of compliance with obligations. Other obligations are specified in 1.5 and 1.10(1).

Counsel for the Program submitted that there were prima facie grounds for the Registrar to suspend the Registrant's registration. The test is on the balance of probabilities.

Counsel stated that Mr. Baker had testified that the new agreements codify the Program's practices. Indeed Mr. Mills had agreed that the Program must have some process to assess builders. The confidentiality concerns of Mr. Mills are hypothetical at this point. His concerns are the same whether one looks at the old agreement or the new agreements.

Mr. Mills had stated that Bulletins were a concern. But his concerns deal with some unknown future obligation. Again they are hypothetical. This point is the same whether under the old agreement or under the new agreements. Counsel stated that the Bulletins must be in accordance with the Act and its Regulations.

Counsel stated that the Program put into place the practice of being able to reassess security requirements during the period of registration in order to fine tune the registration process. It is a beneficial process to a builder as before the only recourse was to go for revocation of the registration. This helps to regulate the builders and protect the public interests.

Counsel stated that the definition of builder and its interpretation is not a problem dealing with the new agreements. This was a concern under the old agreement as well.

The risk assessment formula helps the builder to understand the process. It is not related to signing of the new agreements.

Counsel referred to T-Mag Marketing Inc. a LAT decision of August, 2001. In that decision the Tribunal found that failure to execute the new agreements meant the Program had the authority to refuse to renew the builder's registration. In the LAT decision of Dynasty Homes Ltd. of June, 2001 the Tribunal found that the builder was in breach of Regulation 894 by failing to sign the new Agreements.

Counsel submitted that the new agreements are reasonable and within the jurisdiction of the Program.

By the Registrant:

Mr. Mills submitted that by signing the Vendor/Builder agreement in 1994 he had complied with the Act and its Regulations. He submitted that the new Vendor's agreement has the potential of addressing issues which could be significant in the future.

Mr. Mills submitted that the definition of builder is still a concern as is the confidentiality issue. The Program can still provide information to other agencies with which it has business relations.

ANALYSIS:

This is a case whereby the registrant has refused to sign the new Vendor Agreement and the new Builder Agreement. The registrant had signed the old Vendor/Builder Agreement when it was registered with the Program in 1994. It is agreed by all the parties that there are no concerns with this registrant as to quality of work. The company has currently five homes registered with the Program. The only issue that led to the Notice of Proposal by the Registrar was the refusal of the registrant to sign the new agreements.

The Registrant had noted six areas of concern when appealing this Notice of Proposal. Attached to the Notice of Appeal had been an Exhibit A which noted six issues. The first issue dealt with validity concerns and the Charter of Rights and Freedoms. The Tribunal had held that it would not entertain any arguments at the hearing based on the Charter. That left the Registrant with the four other issues noted in Exhibit A to this Notice of Appeal plus two additional non Charter issues as stated on the last page of the letter of March 18th, 2002 by the Registrant to the Registrar of this Tribunal. These six issues will be dealt with as follows:

Issue # 1 – confidentiality of personal information

The Registrant throughout this proceeding has stressed his concerns with the sections of the new Agreements that deal with personal information. Sections 1.2, 1.4, 1.5, 4.3, 4.4, 4.6 of the Vendor Agreement of February, 2000 and 1.3, 1.5, 1.6, 4.3, 4.4, 4.6 of the Builder Agreement of June, 2001 all deal with disclosure of information and credit reporting. Mr. Baker had testified as to the measures taken by the Program with its staff and Board of Directors to ensure that information provided to the Program remains confidential. He testified that the new Agreements merely codified the existing practices of the Program.

The Act itself and its Regulations do not directly give any rights for confidentiality of information provided to the Program. They speak of the duty of the registrants and applicants to provide all manner of personal and financial documentation that the Registrar might reasonably require. It would appear that the new Agreements actually provide the applicants and registrants with greater protection by stating in plain language the obligation of the Program to protect the personal and financial information given to it and outlining in what circumstances the Program is permitted to disclose such information to a third party.

The Tribunal finds that the Program has shown in the wording of its agreements and through its internal practices as stated by Mr. Baker that it is doing its best to protect the personal and financial information given to it by applicants and registrants. The Tribunal does not find this to be a concern which would permit the Registrant to fail to sign the new Agreements.

Issue # 2 – overcharging new home buyers for warranty coverage

This is a matter which is not dealt with in the wording of the new Agreements nor was it part of the old Vendor/Builder Agreement. Therefore it is not a reason for this Registrant not signing the new Agreements. This is a matter which could be dealt with in other ways such as having it brought before the Liaison Committee of the Ontario Home Builders Association and the Board of Directors of the Program.

Issue #3 new agreements do not disclose all material obligations etc.

Sections 3.9 of the June, 2001 Builder Agreement and section 3.10 of the February, 2000 Vendor Agreement state that the registrants will diligently comply with the Bulletins issued by the Program. It is agreed that this type of wording is not found in the old Vendor/Builder agreement. What the old agreement does state is in section 5.1 ...”provided that the Vendor shall enter into such further agreements with the corporation as the Registrar may require for the purpose of modifying or supplementing any of the provisions hereof or for the purpose of superseding this agreement.”

Mr. Baker had spoken of the importance of the Builder Bulletins as a communication tool. The clauses speak of there being no retroactive effect unless so ordered by the courts. There has always been the obligation of registrants to deal with the unknown as evidenced by the former section 5.1 of the old agreement. If the registrant does not wish to comply with some future obligation as set out in a future Bulletin than it can utilize the Liaison Committee or perhaps through a Notice of Proposal have the matter dealt with by the Tribunal. This is a hypothetical concern and the Tribunal cannot deal with it. As such it is not a valid reason for not signing the new Agreements.

Issue # 4: New financial or fiduciary requirements

Section 1.4 of the June, 2001 Builder Agreement and section 1.3 of the February, 2000 Vendor Agreement does contain a clause which permits the Program to ask for additional financial documentation and security between the renewal dates. This is not found in the old Vendor/ Builder agreement. But section 1.4 and 1.5 of Regulation 894 permits the Registrar to ask a registrant for any documents at any time as the Registrar might reasonably require them. So though the old Agreement did not specify this matter it formed part of the agreement through compliance with the Act and its Regulations. The Tribunal finds that this is not an additional burden to builders but is permitted under the wording of the Act and its Regulations. Mr. Baker has stated that though improved risk management procedures the fees have been reduced by forty percent in the past two years. These sections form part of the risk management procedures. The Tribunal does not find this to be a sufficient reason to fail to sign the new Agreements.

Issue # 5: definition of builder

Mr. Mills had a problem with the definition of builder as found in the Act. This is not a matter under the new Agreements. Whether or not you are a builder as per the definition depends on the specific facts of your situation. This is not an issue that warrants not signing the new Agreements.

Issue #6: equity per unit

The registrant had some problems with the concept of equity per unit. It is a term of art that is used in determining how to look at the assets of a corporation. Again it is not something which is addressed within the new Agreements. It is not an issue that permits the Registrant to not sign the new Agreements.

The Tribunal has found on all of the issues before it that there are no matters which warrant the Registrant not signing the new Agreements. These new Agreements might be more specific in their wording but they do little to change the situation as it exists between builders and the Program. The Registrant is working within an industry that is regulated through legislation and its regulations. The Act and its Regulations govern the powers provided to the Program. The new Vendor Agreement and the new Builder Agreement put in a more specific manner the powers already inherent to the Program through the Act and its Regulations. The Tribunal does not find that the new Agreements invalidate any authority provided to the Program. The Registrant is obligated under the Act and under Regulation 892 and 894 to comply with the authority given to the Program.

The Tribunal finds the Registrant to be sincere in its arguments though it has rejected those arguments. The Tribunal hopes that the Registrant will in the future reassess its position and agree to sign the new Agreements. It is unfortunate that the Registrant did not have a complete understanding of the legalities of working in an industry that is regulated by legislation and its regulations. The Act is there to protect the new home buying public through registration of builders. The new Agreements are in compliance with the powers given to the Program under the Act and its Regulations. The Registrant must comply with the requirements of the Program and sign the new Agreements if it wishes to work in this particular industry.

ORDER:

Accordingly, based on the evidence and under the authority of section 9(4) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal confirms the Notice of Proposal of the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Program, to suspend the registration of 933891 Ontario Limited o/a Classic Country Homes Limited.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated November 6, 2001, which disallowed the Applicant's claims relating to a variety of issues with respect to a newly constructed home. This appeal is based upon the provisions of ss. 13(1)(a) and 14(1)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. O.31, as amended (the "Act") and Regulation 892, Part VI, s. 14.

The Applicant entered into an agreement of purchase and sale ("APS") with 1236059 Ontario Inc. carrying on business as Silverfox Building Group, accepted on the 24th day of November, 1997, for the purchase of a single family home located at 130 Bayview Avenue, Keswick, Ontario.

The house was completed for possession on December 4, 1998 and since taking possession, the Applicant has raised a variety of complaints with respect to the dwelling.

The builder built approximately 18 homes in the immediate vicinity, however, for reasons that were not explained, the builder left the site without doing any repair work.

The decision letter of November 6, 2001 addressed eight different claims and for the purposes of convenience the hearing proceeded with reference to the numbering sequence used in the Program's decision.

The reasons for denying the Applicant's claim fall into three categories:

1. the defect in workmanship or material is not apparent with respect to the claim;
2. the claim was not reported within the applicable warranty period; and
3. the subject matter of the claim is beyond the scope of warranty.

THE EVIDENCE:

At the opening of the hearing, counsel for the Program tendered the Program's Book of Documents which was made Exhibit 4 in this matter and the Applicant's Book of Documents was made Exhibit 5.

The evidence of the Applicant was given by the Applicant himself who use a Power Point presentation to identify his concerns as shown on photographs contained in Exhibit 5 and enlarged by the use of the Power Point presentation. In addition, the Applicant provided a video tape of certain of the alleged defects.

1. Cracking Floor

The first claim refers to "cracking floor" which it was agreed should have read "creaking floor" and related to the floors in the livingroom, diningroom, kitchen, second bedroom and the main washroom. It was the Applicant's position that the floors were nailed rather screwed down as required by the APS and that the floor joists did not properly overlap nor did the floor joists make proper contact with the I-beam. In addition, the Applicant suggested that there was evidence that the nails had missed the floor joists in certain areas which could be seen from the basement of the home looking at the exposed undersurface of the subflooring of the livingroom, diningroom, kitchen, second bedroom and the main washroom.

The Applicant testified that the grout surrounding the ceramic tiles in the entrance way was cracking and breaking loose because of the movement of the subfloor due to the aforesaid defects.

2. Improper Installation of Baseboard in Livingroom

The Applicant testified that a wall in the livingroom bowed in and out in places as much as $\frac{1}{2}$ ". In addition, there are gaps or cracks between the wall and the baseboard and between the bottom edge of the baseboards and the carpeting or tile where the floor covering abuts the subject wall changes from carpeting to tile and that this discrepancy is particularly noticeable when compared to the other location where the floor covering also changes from carpet to tile.

3. Floor Ceramic Installation

The Applicant testified that the ceramic floor in the kitchen sloped as much as $\frac{3}{4}$ " when a straight edge was laid along the floor. This gap which was caused, according to the Applicant, because of the height difference between the top of the beam and the sill plate.

8. Check Foundation and Brick for Mortar

The Applicant next addressed the issue, out of sequence from the numbering in the Program's decision letter, which relates to concerns regarding a possible structural defect with respect to the lintel between the garage doors being too narrow and too weak. The Applicant stated that this defect appeared in other houses in the immediate vicinity built by the same builder and was listed on the municipality's inspection list. The Applicant had no evidence other than an engineering drawing with respect to this problem and testified that this item had not yet been deleted with respect to the Applicant's residence.

4. Refund Grading Damage Deposit ($500.00)

The Applicant testified that paragraph x on page 3 of the APS required the purchaser to pay an amount not to exceed $500.00 for grading and subdivision damage which amount was to be refunded to the purchaser but that he had not received such a refund. In response to the Applicant's letter to the Town of Georgina, the Applicant was advised by the Office of the Mayor (Exhibit 5, Tab 7) that the Town had to utilize all funds that were held from the builder and that there were no longer any funds to reimburse home purchasers.

5. No Door on Laundry Room

The Applicant referred to a brochure showing a floor plan of the style of house which was built for the Applicant which does appear to show a door on the laundry room in the basement of the dwelling. The Applicant testified that there was no door on the laundry room in his house.

6. Broken Ceramic Tiles, Loose Ceramic Tiles, Cracking Joints in Main Washroom

The Applicant testified that a wall section in the shower cubicle moved, that there was cracked grout and water damage between the tiles in the shower, that there was a gap of approximately 3/8" between the floor tiles and the wall tiles along one section of the shower wall. Further, grouting between the floor tiles was cracked and breaking away and there are gaps and cracking around the door to the shower stall and a second area where the wall seems to flex. There were also broken ceramic tiles both inside the shower stall and in the area outside the shower stall near the tub. The Applicant also testified that certain of the ceramic tiles were lifting and that there may be water penetration through the framing and water damage under the sill of the doorway into the shower stall. Also, there was missing grouting and cracked and chipped grouting around the tile floor where the floor meets the shower and tub.

The Applicant referred to a quote from Home Depot dated March 9, 2002 (Exhibit 5, Tab 10) which indicated a cost of $3,457.50, including taxes, to repair the problems in the bathroom but that the estimate did not include the carpentry work necessary prior to redoing the tile work.

The Applicant testified that he obtained another estimate from BathKrafters of $3,400.00 plus $850.00 for replacement tub and $1,600.00 to replace the glass shower enclosure, a copy of this estimate was forwarded to the Program on or about November 27, 2000, by the Applicant (Exhibit 4, Tab 14).

7. Wall Not Straight - Mud Room

The Applicant testified that the wall running perpendicular to the hallway door bowed in and out over the length of the wall of the mud room and where it abutted a narrow exterior wall on the north side of the east door, there was approximately a 1/2" difference between the space between the mud room wall and the door jam around the door at the top and the bottom.

At Tab 12, Exhibit 5, the Applicant provided a statement of the amount requested to settle his claims which totals $8,572.00.

Under cross-examination, the Applicant acknowledged that certain of the pictures contained in Exhibit 5 were taken in or around March 2002 while others were taken prior to the inspection in September 2000 and that the video tape provided was taken on or about March 17, 2002.

The Applicant testified that he worked as a technical specialist for Yamaha in the service division and previously had worked building cabinet doors and general cabinetry in 1987 and 1988. The Applicant did acknowledge that he was aware of the need for timely reporting of deficiencies to the Program.

With respect to certain of the items, the Applicant acknowledged that the Program had agreed to warrant certain repairs however the Applicant stated that he did not believe the cash settlement was sufficient to make the necessary repairs.

The Applicant testified that four members of the household used the shower on a daily basis.

The Applicant did acknowledge that the amount requested to settle his various claims was based on his estimates only.

The first witness called on behalf of the Program was Wendy Skyba whose credentials included having built approximately 100 homes, acting as a construction site supervisor, being employed as a building official and having taught courses with respect to the construction industry. Ms. Skyba was the warranty representative with respect to the Applicant's claim.

Ms. Skyba testified that the large number of claims raised with respect to this dwelling had gradually been reduced to the matters raised at this hearing.

1. Creaking Floor

Ms. Skyba indicated that it was a minor squeak and that one had to consider whether it was a major or minor problem and whether it was seasonal or pervasive as building materials change due to interior heating during winter drying out the materials and possible humidity. The witness testified that it is a natural property of wood materials for there to be shrinkage and as this was a normal expectation, it was not considered to be a defect. Ms. Skyba expressed the opinion that the floor joists did sit securely and have reasonable overlap.

2. Improper Installation of Baseboard in Livingroom

Ms. Skyba testified that the shrinkage which created the bowing was minor and not readily visible and suggested that the pictures produced by the Applicant were taken to emphasize the bowing of the walls beyond what would normally be observed. It was Ms. Skyba's testimony that the problem complained about was not a defect in workmanship and materials and noted that the initial complaint related only to the baseboard and that the complaint with respect to the wall was not reported within the warranty period.

3. Floor Ceramic Installation

The witness testified that there was often a "crown" where there was a transition from a beam to the foundation wall and that the manner in which the Applicant had measured the slope was exaggerated. Her investigation of the matter indicated that the crown was only 3/8" which was not unusual and therefore not a defect in workmanship or material.

8. Check Foundation and Brick for Mortar

Ms. Skyba testified that other houses in the area had been inspected and that there were concerns with the bearing capacity as the centre column between the garage doors was not wide enough to support the brick work above. An engineer had been hired to look at all the homes however, the Applicant's house was not identified as having this design problem and the conclusion was that there was no defect.

4. Refund Grading Damage Deposit ($500.00)

Ms. Skyba testified that this claim was not a warranty matter and therefore was outside that for which the Program was responsible.

5. No Door on Laundry Room

The witness testified that this matter was raised after the end of the one year warranty period and therefore was too late and not to be considered by the Program.

6. Broken Ceramic Tiles, Loose Ceramic Tiles, Cracking Joints in Main Washroom

Ms. Skyba testified that upon investigation of the bathroom it was observed that certain tiles were cracked and recommended that the damaged or loose tiles be repaired which she estimated would be approximately $300.00. Ms. Skyba testified that she had done numerous estimates over a period of the five years and that her estimate was based on a removal and replacement of approximately 20 tiles and that the tiles being replaced were builder grade white glazed ceramic tiles. The material cost should be approximately $50.00 and the labour of $30.00 per hour would be approximately $250.00 for eight hours labour.

When asked to respond to the estimate given by BathKrafters, Ms. Skyba testified that the base frame appeared level and square with equal grout lines however, she acknowledged that she was not able to look under the frame as there was no way to make this observation at that time.

The witness testified that certain of the items the Applicant was now claiming were not raised at the time of her first inspection and suggested that there had been deterioration since the inspection.

7. Wall Not Straight - Mud Room

With respect to this item, Ms. Skyba testified that it was felt that the bowing was excessive and the recommended corrective work was to cut into the stud to remove material and that the cost of such work and material were minimal. The witness testified that she estimated the work to cost approximately $250.00 which she felt was a generous amount. Ms. Skyba testified that there could be an acceptable amount of bowing in a wall and in such situations, one wall might be repaired where another wall would not be repaired.

The witness testified that in order for work to be warrantied it must be reported on time and be visible and measurable and that the complaint raised with respect to where the wall of the mud room met the wall where the door is, was a new complaint which was out of time and in any event, was minor in nature and not readily visible.

On cross-examination, Ms. Skyba indicated that with respect to floor joists, it was not unusual for wood to shrink at different rates. Ms. Skyba testified that she did not know why the tiles lifted under the glass door in the main bathroom. When asked if she had taken pictures, the witness stated she had no pictures but had extensive notes.

In reply, Ms. Skyba suggested that one of the reasons the tiles may have lifted was because they were incorrectly installed or that the glass partition was put in place before the tiles had had an opportunity to set.

Chad Foresheew was called as a witness for the Program and was qualified as a construction expert having trained as a civil engineer, had given courses in building sciences and been a building inspector and presently is the manager, dispute resolution for the Program. Mr. Foresheew testified that he had been called in as the Applicant had challenged the results of the first inspection conducted by Ms. Skyba.

1. Creaking Floor

With respect to the complaints regarding the creaking floor, Mr. Foresheew had walked the floors with the Applicant and there had been no squeaks or creaking. The witness testified that, in his opinion, there was nothing out of character in the manner in which the floor joists were installed and that the work conformed with normal framing practice.

2. Improper Installation of Baseboard in Livingroom

With respect to the bowing in the livingroom, it was the witness's evidence that the bowing of the baseboards was minimal and not readily visible. Mr. Foresheew suggested that the pictures taken by the Applicant were a "worm's eye view" which accentuated the condition. It was the witness's opinion that, although there was some slight bowing, it was not a defect.

Mr. Foresheew testified that he had stretched a string along the livingroom wall moving from the bottom to the top and although he detected a certain amount of bowing there was very little at the top and felt that overall this was normal and not a defect.

3. Floor Ceramic Installation

With respect the ceramic installation, the witness testified that he used the same approach to determine the amount of dip or slope and expressed the opinion that it was only slight and could not be felt nor seem. It was the witness's evidence that this was not unusual and not a discernable defect.

6. Broken Ceramic Tiles, Loose Ceramic Tiles, Cracking Joints in Main Washroom

Mr. Foreshew testified that there appeared to be very little change, if any, between the first inspection and the inspection conducted by him on October 24, 2000. A hole had been cut in the floor in the basement to form a small inspection point and the witness could detect no evidence of water, mould or the blackness which might form on wood where there is moisture. There appeared to be no rotten wood and the framing seemed sound.

With respect to the letter from BathKrafters, the witness testified that he could see no basis for statements made the letter containing the estimate. The witness suggested that certain of the problems experienced by the Applicant around the doorsill of the shower could be as a result of a crack or rip in the "wiper" which would permit water to seep out of the shower under the shower stall door. The witness acknowledge that he could not say with certainty that this was the problem however, it did appear to be a reasonable possibility given the state of the door and the door sweep or wiper.

LAW

Section 13 of the Act provides:

(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
.....

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,
.....

(d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;

(e) damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintain adequate ventilation;

(f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect to claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer period of time under such conditions as are prescribed.

ISSUE

The issue before the Tribunal is whether or not the claims raised by the Applicant fall within one of the categories for which the Program is responsible to provide compensation and were made within the time allowed under the Act.

FACTS FOUND

1. The Applicant and the builder entered into the APS pursuant to which the builder constructed the Applicant's home in Keswick, Ontario.
2. The Applicant made certain claims to the Program within the time permitted under the legislation.
3. Certain other claims raised by the Applicant were not raised in a timely fashion.
4. The requirement to install a door on the laundry room was not part of the APS and was raised outside of the required notice period.
5. The request for compensation for the refund of the grading deposit was a matter of contract and not of warranty pursuant to the statute and therefore was not a warrantable by the Program.

DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant must be complimented on his efforts to provide a clear presentation for his claims. Unfortunately, the Program can not warrant perfection and therefore a certain level of imperfection must be accepted by the purchaser of a new home.

In response to the Program's position that certain of the Applicant's claims were not raised within the required time, the Applicant testified that the delay was because the first inspection occurred after the one year period. Although there may be situations where, as a result of an inspection, the degree of a problem claimed may expand, it is not the purpose of an inspection to provide an opportunity for an owner to expand the claims giving rise to the inspection.

With respect to the claims raised by the Applicant at the hearing, the Tribunal finds as follows:

1. Creaking Floor

The creaking complained of by the Applicant is minor in nature and does not represent a defect in material or workmanship but is consistent with the normal shrinkage of material which would be experienced in a new home.

2. Improper Installation of Baseboard in Livingroom

The cracks between the baseboard and the wall is minor in nature and not readily visible and is consistent with the normal shrinkage of material caused by drying after construction and therefore is excluded from the warranty coverage. The height differential between the ceramics and the carpeting is unavoidable and therefore acceptable.

The bowing of the wall is not readily noticeable and is not a defect in workmanship or material.

3. Floor Ceramic Installation

Once again, this condition is considered to be minor and not readily visible and therefore no defect in workmanship or material.

4. Refund Grading Damage Deposit ($500.00)

This is matter of contract and outside warranty coverage provided by the Program.

5. No Door on Laundry Room

As there is no evidence that this was part of the APS, this is not a matter of warranty and is beyond the scope of the Program.

6. Broken Ceramic Tiles, Loose Ceramic Tiles, Cracking Joints in Main Washroom

It is clear that there was a defect in workmanship and material with respect to the ceramic tile in the main bathroom however, the Applicant did not feel that the amount offered by the Program was sufficient. This Tribunal finds that the amount initially offered by the Program was sufficient to correct the problem and any increase in the cost of repairing the bathroom arises as a result of the failure of the Applicant to promptly deal with the problem and the continued use of the bathroom notwithstanding the defects.

7. Wall Not Straight - Mud Room

The Program found that there was a defect in material with respect to this complaint but the Applicant felt that the cost of repairing it would be greater than the amount offered by the Program.

8. Check Foundation and Brick for Mortar

There is no evidence that this is a problem with the Applicant's house and therefore no defect in workmanship or material is present.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated above and pursuant to the authority vested in it by s. 16(3) of the Act, the Tribunal directs that the Program to pay to the Applicant the sum of $598.50 with respect to the claims relating to the mud room and the main bathroom but in all other respects, to disallow the claims of the Applicant.

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: No-one appearing for the Applicants
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: April 29, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "Proposal") issued by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to Section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated November 30, 2001 seeks to revoke the registrations of Samson Awodamola and 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors (the "Applicants") under the Act.

In the Proposal, the Registrar alleges that the intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest, that the Act requires registrants to carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty, and that the Applicants' past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act and, therefore, warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act.

No-one appeared for the Applicants at the scheduled start of the hearing at 1:30 p.m. on April 29, 2002. The hearing was adjourned for thirty minutes in case the Applicants were delayed. When the hearing resumed at 2:08 p.m. no-one appeared for the Applicants. The Tribunal proceeded to hear the evidence of the Registrar in the absence of the Applicants.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal direct the Registrar to carry out the Proposal to revoke the registration of one or both of the Applicants, 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors and Samson Awodamola?

FACTS:

The evidence presented by the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Officer Ross Price and Amanda Dempsey as well as documentary evidence introduced through them.

TESTIMONY OF OFFICER ROSS PRICE:

Officer Price testified that he has worked with the York Regional Police for twenty years. He stated that he has been a detective constable for the last three years. Officer Price said that he is familiar with the Applicant Samson Awodamola, also known as Samson Awodamola-Davies, also known as Samson Davies. He arrested Mr. Awodamola, who had previously falsely identified himself as Anthony Robinson, for fraud over $5,000. Officer Price testified that Mr. Awodamola pled guilty to attempted fraud over $5,000 and was convicted on July 6, 2000 as set out at tab 5 of exhibit 4.

Furthermore, Officer Price stated that he had been advised by Peel Regional Police that the Applicant Samson Awodamola was convicted on September 13, 2001 for possession of a fraudulent credit card.

TESTIMONY OF AMANDA DEMPSEY:

Ms. Dempsey said that she has been with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") since 1997 and that she is now the manager of inspections.

Ms. Dempsey testified that the Applicant Samson Awodamola is an officer and director of the Applicant 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors (exhibit 4, tab 6).

Ms. Dempsey also stated that Mr. Awodamola did not properly disclose his conviction for attempted fraud over $5,000 on his application to be registered as a salesperson under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act dated June 2, 2001. Ms. Dempsey testified that Mr. Awodamola answered "no" on the application in response to the question "Are there currently any charges pending or has the applicant ever been found guilty or convicted under any law?".

LAW:

The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states in part the following:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,

...

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

...

6(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

...

7 (4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

Rule 14 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Rules of Practice partly states the following:

14.1 Where a party believes that another party in proceedings before the Tribunal has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith, the party may make a request to the Tribunal for costs, which request shall be made with notice to all other parties to the proceedings and prior to the release by the Tribunal of its final order in the proceedings.

14.2 The Tribunal in determining whether a party has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith shall consider all of the circumstances, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, circumstances such as a party:

(a) failing to attend a hearing before the Tribunal or to send a representative when properly given notice, without contacting the Tribunal and other parties to the hearing;

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant, Samson Awodamola, was convicted of attempted fraud over $5,000. Mr. Awodamola failed to disclose the conviction on his application to be registered as a salesperson under the Act. Later Mr. Awodamola was convicted for possession of a fraudulent credit card. The Tribunal therefore finds that the past conduct of the Applicant Samson Awodamola affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for the belief that Samson Awodamola will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Applicant Samson Awodamola is an officer and director of the Applicant 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors. Given Mr. Awodamola's conduct, the Tribunal finds that the past conduct of the applicant corporation's officer and director affords reasonable grounds for the belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that the Registrar is not in error and may revoke the registrations of both the Applicant Samson Awodamola and the Applicant 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors pursuant to section 6(2) of the Act.

COSTS:

Counsel for the Registrar requested costs pursuant to rule 14 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Rules of Practice on the grounds that no-one appeared on behalf of the Applicants. Counsel argued that failure to attend is in itself sufficient evidence that the Applicants acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith. The Tribunal disagrees. According to the rule, the Tribunal must consider all of the circumstances including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, failure to attend. The Tribunal notes that the Applicants requested a pre-hearing conference. The Registrar refused and no such conference was held. The Tribunal declines to find that the Applicants acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith. The Tribunal, therefore, refuses to grant costs to the Registrar.

DECISION:

Thus, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out the Proposal dated November 30, 2001 to revoke the registrations of both the Applicant Samson Awodamola and the Applicant 1346333 Ontario Inc. o/a Kadara Motors.

ROBERT A. ELWOOD AND BARBARA E. ELWOOD

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE ONTARIO TRAVEL INDUSTRY COMPENSATION FUND CORPORATION
UNDER THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: ROBERT A. ELWOOD AND BARBARA E. ELWOOD, appearing on their own behalf
TREVOR BRANION, Counsel, representing the Travel Industry Council of Ontario

DATE OF
HEARING: May 2, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) under the Travel Industry Act (the “Act”) from a decision by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (“TICO”) dated December 21, 2001, wherein the Applicants’ claim for reimbursement from the Travel Industry Compensation Fund was denied.

PRELIMINARY ORDER:

On motion made at the hearing by the Applicant Robert A. Elwood, on consent of the parties, the Tribunal ordered that Barbara E. Elwood be added as Applicant.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to pay the amount allowed out of the Travel Industry Compensation Fund?

FACTS:

The evidence presented by the Applicant consisted of the testimony of Robert A. Elwood and Barbara E. Elwood as well as documentary evidence introduced through them.

TESTIMONY OF BARBARA E. ELWOOD:

Mrs. Elwood testified that in February 2000 she authorized payment by Visa of $1,825.31 to Marine Expeditions Inc. for a June 2000 Summer Solstice cruise together with a payment of $771.76 to Blyth & Company for the air fare portion of the trip (exhibit 3, tab 7, page 2). The Visa account was in the names of Mr. & Mrs. Elwood.

Mrs. Elwood stated that the Applicants were notified that the June 2000 trip was cancelled due to mechanical problems. Later they found out that Marine Expeditions Inc. was bankrupt. Mrs. Elwood said that in August 2000 they received a credit voucher for US$2,050.00. They also received a credit for the air fare portion of the 2000 trip on their Visa from Blyth & Co. for $773.52 in November 2000 (exhibit 3, tab 7, page 16).

Mrs. Elwood said that in March 2001 the Applicants booked a June 2001 Summer Solstice cruise with Marine Expeditions Travel. She stated that they used the credit voucher for US$2,050.00 (exhibit 3, tab 4, page 2) and they paid an additional US$592 for air fare as $930.10 in Canadian funds by Visa (exhibit 3, tab 7, page 3).

Mrs. Elwood testified that she and her husband were notified on June 6, 2001, that their June 2001 trip was cancelled due to the bankruptcy of Marine Expeditions Travel.

The Applicants submitted a claim to the Travel Industry Council of Ontario for $2,755.41, the sum of $1,825.31 and $930.10. The Applicants acknowledged receiving $216.82 of their claim from TICO (exhibit 3, tab 11).

The evidence presented by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario consisted of the testimony of Lori Furlan as well as documentary evidence introduced through her.

TESTIMONY OF LORI FURLAN:

Ms. Furlan stated that she has been a claims coordinator for TICO for over ten years. She said that her job is to process claims against registrants that have ceased operations.

Ms. Furlan testified that there were three companies with the name "Marine Expeditions". She stated that the first company failed in the fall of 2000 and the second company failed in February 2001. Ms. Furlan said that only the third company, Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. o/a Marine Expeditions Travel, was a registrant under the Travel Industry Act. Ms. Furlan admitted that the Applicants booked their 2001 trip with Canadian Venture Travel Ltd.

Ms.. Furlan explained that the refund of $216.82 issued to the Applicants by TICO was calculated as follows (exhibit 3, tab 9):

payments by claimant:
VISA (US$592)	$ 930.10

voucher (US$2,050)	3,220.76
less non—claimable: voucher (insurance and taxes from exhibit 3, tab 4,page 1:)	(3,220.76)
insurance (US$64)	(100.55)
taxes (US$390)	(612.73)
verified claim amount	$216.82

LAW:

Ontario Regulation 806/93 (the “Regulation”) under the Travel Industry Act then stated

49. The board of directors shall determine whether a claim, or a part of one, meets the requirements of this Part and shall determine the eligible amount of the claim.

50.(1) A customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if,

- (a) the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent;
- (b) the customer had made a demand for payment from the registered travel agent or the appropriate registered wholesaler; and
- (c) the customer has not been reimbursed by,
 - (i) the registrant because the registrant is unable to pay by reason of bankruptcy or insolvency,
 - (ii) any other person...

(2) A reimbursement under subsection (1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those travel services that were not provided

(3) A customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for the following or in the following circumstances:

1. For a claim arising out of the failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.
2. For losses or damages incurred by a customer as a result of a failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services...
5. If the travel services were received as a prize, an award or a goodwill gesture.
6. If the customer used a voucher, certificate, coupon or other similar document to obtain the travel services or did not pay for the travel services with cash or by a cheque, credit card or other similar cash payment method.
7. For any taxes, fees or levies imposed by a government or government body.
8. For any insurance premiums....

62.(6) The Tribunal may,

- (a) allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Council to pay the amount allowed out of the Compensation Fund; or
- (b) refuse to allow the claim in whole or in part.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicants testified that they paid for travel services that they did not receive. Furthermore, their only reimbursement was $216.82 from TICO. Section 50 of the Regulation states that a customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if, the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent. Such was not the case with respect to the $1,825.31 paid for the June 2000 trip. That payment was made by the Applicants directly to Marine Expeditions Inc., which was not a registrant under the Act. Section 59 of the Regulation says that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide travel services is due to the failure of an end supplier. Thus, the Tribunal finds that TICO properly disallowed the claim for $1,825.31 paid for the June 2000 trip.

The Applicants submitted a credit voucher for US$2,050.00 and paid a further $930.10 for the June 2001 trip. According to the Statement of Account dated April 24, 2001, provided by Marine Expeditions Travel, US$390.00 of the total was for port dues & taxes and a further US$64.00 was for medical insurance (exhibit 3, tab 4). Section 50 of the Regulation states that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed if the customer used a voucher, certificate, coupon or other similar document to obtain the travel services. The section also states that there is no reimbursement to a customer for any taxes and insurance premiums. No evidence was presented to contest the conversion of American dollar sums into Canadian dollar amounts by TICO. Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the calculation by TICO of the verified claim in the amount of $216.82 is correct and refuses to allow the Applicants' claim for additional funds.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Travel Industry Act and regulations thereunder, the Tribunal directs the Board of Trustees of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to disallow the Applicants' claim.

UNDER THE TRAVEL INDUSTRY ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: JOHN ORT, Member

APPEARANCES: RAY FARRELL, appearing on his own behalf
TREVOR BRANION, Counsel, representing the Travel Industry
Council of Ontario

DATE OF
HEARING: May 2, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") under the Travel Industry Act (the "Act") from a decision by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario ("TICO") dated December 27, 2001, wherein the Applicant's claim for reimbursement from the Travel Industry Compensation Fund was denied. The decision states in part "It appears that you have dealt directly with Marine Expeditions Inc (cruise line), which was not registered with the Travel Industry Council of Ontario."

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to pay the amount allowed out of the Travel Industry Compensation Fund?

FACTS:

The evidence presented by the Applicant consisted of the testimony of Ray Farrell and Joan Farrell as well as documentary evidence introduced through them.

TESTIMONY OF RAY FARRELL:

Mr. Farrell stated that he and his wife never received the trip that he paid for and that they have not been reimbursed. Mr. Farrell said that he was eventually advised that the trip was not provided because Marine Expeditions failed.

Mr. Farrell testified that he and his wife dealt with Marlin Travel, which later became a Thomas Cook office (exhibit 3, tab 8, page 2). He said that he first dealt with Vanessa Reid. After Ms. Reid left the travel agency, he stated that he mainly dealt with Ligia Cuervo, the branch manager.

Furthermore, Mr. Farrell stated that he did not deal directly with Marine Expeditions. He said that Marlin Travel dealt with Blyth & Company Travel (exhibit 3, tab 3 and exhibit 3, tab 8, page 3), which dealt with Marine Expeditions.

Mr. Farrell admitted that charges of $4,158.92 for the trip appeared on his MasterCard statement and were in favour of Marine Expeditions. Mr. Farrell stated that he never signed the credit card charge slip dated May 2000 (exhibit 3, tab 12, page 12). He said that he was surprised that the payment was to Marine Expeditions, but he did not challenge the charges because he recognized the dollar amount as relating to his trip. Mr. Farrell testified that Ms. Cuervo of Thomas Cook was also surprised that the charges were in favour of Marine Expeditions. Her letter of February 8, 2002, states, "This is to confirm that the booking and payment for Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Farrell only with Blyth and Company... This booking was paid by Mr. Farrell's mastercard through our agent - Vanessa in may 2000.... When talking with Marine Expeditions came into play, all monies on this booking were already received for this booking, through Marlin Travel Eaton Centre and charged by our supplier, Blyth & Company with Mr. Farrell's authorization. The passenger was travelling with Marine Expeditions so at some point Blyth & Company would have submitted payment on this booking to Marine Expeditions."

Mr. Farrell stated that the trip was originally scheduled for September and October 2000, but his wife was diagnosed with cancer and had an operation in July 2000. Mr. Farrell cancelled the trip in September 2000 because his wife was to receive radiation treatment and the time of the treatment was uncertain.

On cross-examination, Mr. Farrell admitted that on a Confirmation/Statement of Account form dated May 10, 2000, that stated "I have been offered travel Insurance and have accepted: ...declined: ..." (exhibit 3, tab 12, page 7), he circled "accepted" and filled in "medical only".

Mr. Farrell's attention was drawn to Terms & Conditions of Sale (exhibit 3, tab 12, page 11) stating, "If notice of cancellation is received by Blyth & Company Travel in writing 120 days before departure or earlier, payments are refundable, less a cancellation fee. If such notice is received after 120 days prior to departure, then the payment is non-refundable.

TESTIMONY OF JOAN FARRELL:

Mrs. Farrell testified that the Statement of Account dated May 12, 2000 from Blyth & Company Travel (exhibit 3, tab 12, page 10) states, "Cancellation insurance declined 2.0 (units] Incl. [under 'Total' column]". She said that Blyth & Company Travel did not want to give them a refund after they cancelled the initial trip. Mrs. Farrell claimed that Blyth & Company Travel agreed to give them a substitute trip in September 2001 only because the Statement of Account set out "Incl." under the total or charges column (exhibit 3, tab 12, page 8).

The evidence presented by the Respondent consisted of the testimony of Lori Furlan as well as documentary evidence introduced through her.

TESTIMONY OF LORI FURLAN:

Ms. Furlan testified that she has been a claims coordinator for TICO for eleven years. She stated that she processes claims against travel industry registrants that cease operations.

Ms. Furlan said that there were three companies with the name "Marine Expeditions". She stated that the first company is the one that Mr. Farrell dealt with. It failed in the fall of the year 2000. The second Marine Expeditions also failed, in February 2001. Ms. Furlan testified that only the third company, Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. o/a Marine Expeditions Travel, was a registrant under the Travel Industry Act.

Ms. Furlan admitted that Marlin Travel, Thomas Cook, and Blyth & Company Travel were all registrants under the Travel Industry Act.

Ms. Furlan argued that providing a substitute trip for September 2001 was a goodwill gesture and is not a refundable item under the Act.

Ms. Furlan referred to a claim calculation (exhibit 3, tab 10) that deducted insurance of $99.20 and taxes of $604.50 from payment amount of $4,159.92 to get a verified claim amount of $3,455.22. Ms. Furlan confirmed that the TICO board disallowed the claim.

LAW:

Ontario Regulation 806/93 (the "Regulation") under the Travel Industry Act then stated

49. The board of directors shall determine whether a claim, or a part of one, meets the requirements of this Part and shall determine the eligible amount of the claim.

43. In this Part, ...

"end supplier" means a person who supplies travel services but does not include a travel agent or travel wholesaler; ...

50.(1) A customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if,

(d) the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent;

- (e) the customer had made a demand for payment from the registered travel agent or the appropriate registered wholesaler; and
 - (f) the customer has not been reimbursed by,
 - (j) the registrant because the registrant is unable to pay by reason of bankruptcy or insolvency,
 - (ii) any other person...
- (2) A reimbursement under subsection (1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those travel services that were not provided
- (3) A customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for the following or in the following circumstances:
1. For a claim arising out of the failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.
 2. For losses or damages incurred by a customer as a result of a failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services...
 5. If the travel services were received as a prize, an award or a goodwill gesture.
 6. If the customer used a voucher, certificate, coupon or other similar document to obtain the travel services or did not pay for the travel services with cash or by a cheque, credit card or other similar cash payment method.
 7. For any taxes, fees or levies imposed by a government or government body.
 8. For any insurance premiums....
59. (1) A customer or registrant is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide travel services is due to the failure of an end supplier and not to the bankruptcy or insolvency of a registrant.
- 62.(6) The Tribunal may,
- (c) allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Council to pay the amount allowed out of the Compensation Fund; or
 - (d) refuse to allow the claim in whole or in part.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant mentions both the 2000 and the 2001 trips in his claim.

The Marine Expeditions that was scheduled to provide the initial trip in the year 2000 went bankrupt. That Marine Expeditions was not a registrant under the Act; it was an end supplier. Section 59.(1) of the Regulation states that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide travel services is due to the failure of an end supplier.

The September and October 2000 trip was cancelled by the Applicant. Although the Applicant initially asked for a refund, he accepted a substitute trip scheduled for September 2001. The 2001 trip was to be provided by Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. o/a Marine Expeditions Travel. That company received no payment from the Applicant. The Tribunal finds that the 2001 trip was received as an award or goodwill gesture. Section 50(3)5. of the Regulation states that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed if the travel services were received as a prize, an award or a goodwill gesture. Therefore, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's claim should be disallowed.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Travel Industry Act and regulations thereunder, the Tribunal directs the Board of Trustees of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to disallow the Applicant's claim.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is a written appeal by Hiroyuki Takami (the “Applicant”) to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a written decision dated November 23, 2001 of the Board of Directors of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund Corporation (the “Fund”) to deny the Applicant’s claim for compensation in the amount of $3,240.00 (U.S.).

The Applicant bases his claim on Section 50(1) of Regulation 806/93 (the “Regulation”) made under the Travel Industry Act (the “Act”).

The Parties consented to this hearing being held as a written hearing before this Tribunal in terms of Rule 10.3 of the Rules of this Tribunal. The Tribunal accordingly ordered that these proceedings be conducted as a written hearing in terms of the Tribunal’s Rules of Practice and that the Parties exchange written documents within the time stipulated by the Rules of Practice. The Parties have exchanged written documents and have made written submissions to the Tribunal which documents and submissions have been considered by this Tribunal and have been entered into evidence as exhibits.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence in this matter was written and documentary.

The evidence of the Applicant was that on or about January 2001 he booked a "classic Antarctic voyage" with Marine Expeditions of Toronto. Marine Expeditions, by way of its letter dated May 8, 2001, acknowledged receipt of payment of $3,240.00 (U.S.) which it received from the Applicant in respect of the voyage. Marine Expeditions letter of May 8, 2001 stated as follows:

Thank you for booking your December 27th Classic Antarctica voyage with us.

I'm pleased to advise that we have arranged for all bookings to be handled by Marine Expeditions Travel, a registered travel agency in the Province of Ontario (Retail No. 50009128, Wholesale No.50009132).

Your deposits to Marine Expeditions Travel are subject to the very strict consumer protection legislation, administered by the Travel Industry Council of Ontario (T.I.C.O.) and the industry-financed Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund.

Your earlier payments, totalling $3,240.00 were paid to Marine Expeditions. To extend the protection of T.I.C.O. to your earlier deposits, please sign the enclosed form and return it to us in the enclosed self-addressed envelope or fax it to (416) 964-2366.

Please feel free to call me at any time, should you have any questions about your upcoming trip.

(Exhibit 1)

The departure date of the voyage was to be December 27, 2001. The voyage was to depart from New York and was to consist of travel by air and ship. Payment in the sum of $3240.00 U.S. was made by the Applicant to "Marine Expeditions" on January 22, 2001 by way of a Visa card in the name of the Applicant.

(Exhibit 2)

By an undated written "cancellation notification" from the Travel Industry Council of Ontario ("TICO"), the Applicant was notified that "1414847 Ontario Inc. operating as Marine Expeditions, a cruise line" had, as of June 6, 2001, ceased operations. In that letter TICO stated that "it appears you may have dealt directly with Marine Expeditions Inc. (cruise line), which was operating as an end-supplier of travel services, and was therefore, not required to be registered with the Travel Industry Council of Ontario."

(Exhibit 3)

On November 23, 2001 TICO addressed a further written notification to the Applicant in which letter it stated that in terms of Section 50.(2) reimbursement to a customer under Section 50.(1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to a travel agent for the services that were not provided. The letter goes on to state that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for a claim arising out of a failure of an end supplier to provide travel services and that as Marine Expeditions was an end supplier with which the Applicant dealt directly, the Applicant is not entitled to reimbursement.

(Exhibit 4)

The evidence introduced by the Fund consisted of documentary evidence and is referred to in the "Respondent's Application Record.

By letter dated November 23, 2001, TICO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging the Applicant's claim against Canadian Venture Travel Ltd. o/a Marine Expeditions Travel in the amount of $3,240.00 (U.S.). In that letter TICO rejected the Applicant's claim on the basis that it considered the claim "not eligible for reimbursement." The letter of November 23, 2001 went on to state as follows:

The Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund is governed by legislation under the Ontario Travel Industry Act. The Fund is totally financed by registered travel agents and travel wholesalers in Ontario. The purpose of the Fund is to reimburse consumers for travel services paid for to a registered Ontario travel agent when the travel services are not provided, and a refund cannot be obtained, due to the bankruptcy or insolvency of an Ontario registered travel agent or an Ontario registered travel wholesaler. In order for a claim to be eligible, the consumer must be able to demonstrate proof of direct payment to an Ontario registered travel agent.

Section 50 (1) of Ontario Regulation 806/93 enacted under the Travel Industry Act outlines the provisions for a customer to claim and states, in part, that a customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered Ontario travel agent. Section 50 (2) states that a reimbursement under subsection (1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those services that were not provided. In addition, Section 50 (3) 1 states that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for a claim arising out of the failure of an end supplier to provide travel services. Section 59(1) states, in part, that a customer is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide the travel services is due to the failure of the end supplier and not to the bankruptcy or insolvency of a registrant.

It appears that you have dealt directly with Marine Expeditions Inc. (cruise line), which was not registered with the Travel Industry Council of Ontario.

(Exhibit 5, Tab 1)

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. Neither Marine Expeditions nor Marine Expeditions Inc. were at all relevant times registered with the fund as either travel agent or travel wholesaler.

2. In or about January 2001, the Applicant booked a "Classic Antarctic Voyage" through Marine Expeditions, which voyage was to depart in December 2001.
3. The Applicant paid Marine Expeditions by means of a VISA credit card for the voyage due to depart in December 2001. The amount paid by the Applicant to Marine Expeditions for the voyage was the sum or $3,420.00 (U.S.)
4. The voyage that was due to depart in December 2001 was cancelled effective June 6, 2001 when 1414847 Ontario Inc., operating as Marine Expeditions, a cruise line, ceased operations and failed to provide the travel services to the Applicant.
5. Reimbursement of the amount of $3,240.00 (U.S.) has not been made to the Applicant by Marine Expeditions or by Marine Expeditions Travel.

THE ISSUE:

Does the Applicant's claim fall within the terms of Regulation 806/93 to the Act?

THE LAW:

The relevant portions of Regulation 806/93 to the Act that are applicable to these proceedings are:

- 50.(1) A customer is entitled to be reimbursed for travel services paid for but not provided if,
- (g) the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent;
 - (h) the customer had made a demand for payment from the registered travel agent or the appropriate registered wholesaler; and
 - (i) the customer has not been reimbursed by,
 - (k) the registrant because the registrant is unable to pay by reason of bankruptcy or insolvency,
 - (ii) any other person who has received the customer's money, or
 - (iii) any other person who may be legally obliged to reimburse or compensate the customer, including a person obliged under a contract for insurance.

Section 50(2), which reads as follows:

(2) A reimbursement under subsection (1) is limited to the amount paid by the customer to the travel agent for those travel services that were not provided

Section 50(3), which reads as follows:

(3) A customer is not entitled to be reimbursed for the following or in the following circumstances:

1. For a claim arising out of the failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.
2. For losses or damages incurred by a customer as a result of a failure of an end supplier to provide the travel services.

Section 59.(1), which reads as follows:

59.(1) A customer or registrant is not entitled to be reimbursed if the failure to provide travel services is due to the failure of an end supplier and not to the bankruptcy or insolvency of a registrant.

Section 62.(1), (2) and (6) which respectively read as follows:

62.(1) If the board of directors of the Council determines that a claim, or any part thereof made under section 50, 51 or 52 is not eligible for reimbursement, the Council shall immediately serve notice of the decision on the claimant.

(2) A person who receives notice under subsection (1) is entitled to a hearing before the Tribunal if, within 15 days after notice is served, the person mails or delivers a written request for a hearing to the Registrar, the Council and the Tribunal.

62.(6) The Tribunal may,

- (e) allow the claim, in whole or in part, and direct the Council to pay the amount allowed out of the Compensation Fund; or
- (f) refuse to allow the claim in whole or in part.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant in his written claim directed to the Fund claims reimbursement from the Fund in respect of travel services that were not provided to the Applicant. The travel services that were not provided related to a December 2001 voyage which the Applicant had paid for in the sum of $3240.00 (U.S.). Payment of this sum was made by the Applicant to Marine Expeditions.

The Tribunal finds that the payment of $3240.00 (U.S.) was made to Marine Expeditions and that Marine Expeditions was not a registered travel agent. Section 50.(1)(a) of Regulation 806/93 states that a customer is entitled to be reimbursed by the Fund for travel services paid for, but not provided, if;

"the customer made payment for the travel services directly to or through a registered travel agent"

The Applicant made payment to Marine Expeditions which was, at all relevant times, not a registered travel agent. This payment was not made in compliance with Section 50.(1)(a) of Regulation 806/93 and accordingly the Applicant is not entitled to reimbursement from the Fund in the amount of $3240.00 (U.S.) or in any amount.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Travel Industry Act and Regulations thereunder, the Tribunal upholds the decision of the Board of Trustees of the Travel Industry Council of Ontario to refuse the Applicant's claim

NATIONAL HOMES (MAPLE) INC.

DATE OF
HEARING: May 28 & 29, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated January 24, 2002 in which the claim of Yee Wan Chan (the "Applicant") was denied.

BACKGROUND:

The Applicant's claim against the Program is based upon section 14(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act"). section 14(3) reads as follows:

14. (3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,

- (a) the person became the owner of the home through receiving a transfer of title to it or through the substantial performance by a builder of a contract to construct the home on land owned by the person; and

- (b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

The Applicant and National Homes (Maple) Inc. (the "builder") entered into a written agreement of Purchase and Sale in terms of which the builder agreed to sell to the Applicant certain lands in the City of Vaughan in the Regional Municipality of York, Ontario and to erect thereon a single family residential dwelling (the "home") for an agreed price of $223,900.00. The date of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale was November 12, 1999.

Pursuant to the Agreement, the closing of the transaction and the Applicant taking possession of the home on January 14, 2002, the Applicant noted certain deficiencies in the home. The Applicant contends that the deficiencies that she noted and brought to the builder's attention were not all satisfactorily attended to, although most of the deficiencies were rectified. This appeal arises in respect of those deficiencies that the Applicant claims have not been satisfactorily rectified or attended to by the builder.

Prior to this appeal being brought, the Applicant enlisted the assistance of the Program in an attempt to resolve her claims in respect of the deficiencies. Accordingly, the Applicant requested the Program to conciliate the items that the Applicant claimed to be in dispute. On December 6, 2000 the Program held a conciliation inspection at the home at which were present the Applicant, Ms. Marj Donaldson, the builder's representation and Warren Northcott, the Program's warranty representative. Pursuant to that meeting Warren Northcott ("Northcott") authored a written conciliation report dated December 11, 2000 in which report the Program found 4 items to be covered under the warranty and required the builder to rectify those items. A further 43 items were dealt with in the report, each of which the Program considered to be not covered under warranty and did not require remedial action by the builder for the various reasons given in the conciliation report.

The builder attended at the home from time to time after the December 11, 2000 conciliation report but the Applicant was not satisfied that the deficiencies were being resolved. As a result, the Applicant again approached the Program in October 2001 and requested that a further conciliation be undertaken by the Program in relation to 8 remaining issues. Pursuant to this request, a reinspection of the home took place on December 18, 2001 at which inspection the Applicant and Northcott were present as well as the builder's representative, Armenio Cesario. On December 19, 2001 the Program issued a reinspection report authored by Northcott. That report dealt with 10 issues including the 8 issues raised by the Applicant in her October 2001 request for a conciliation reinspection of the home. In the December 19, 2001 report the Program denied 9 of the 10 issues raised by the Applicant. One issue relating to water entering the home's garage was warranted by the Program. This issue had previously been warranted by the Program in its December 11, 2000 conciliation report but was still found to be a warrantable issue as it was considered to be a violation under the Ontario Building Code.

Subsequent to the December 19, 2001 reinspection report, further correspondence was addressed by the Applicant to the Program and on January 23, 2002, Northcott again reinspected the Applicant's home. Pursuant to this reinspection the Program issued its January 24, 2002 decision letter in which it dealt with 4 issues only. Those 4 issues are the remaining issues that are still in contention and this hearing flows from those 4 unresolved issues.

At the commencement of the hearing, the Applicant and the Program's Counsel agreed that the date of completion and possession of the Applicant's home was January 14, 2000.

THE EVIDENCE:

The only witness for the Applicant was the Applicant herself, Christina Yee Wan Chan. The only witness for the Program was its warranty representative, Warren Charles Northcott. The builder's representative, Carl Melvin Burrill, testified for the builder. The evidence of these individuals follows:

Christina Yee Wan Chan

First Claim

The Applicant testified that the first issue related to "a receipt for the repairs to a side door lock of the home."

She stated that on January 24, 2001 her husband came home and was not able to open the side door leading from the garage to the home. A locksmith was called and he opened the door. The locksmith, Armor Lock and Safe, charged the Applicant $73.83 for "picking open" the lock.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 23)

This charge by the locksmith was paid by the Applicant but the Program has refused to reimburse the Applicant.

The Applicant stated that her husband had used a key that in the past had caused trouble when it failed to work properly, and on this occasion it again would not open the door. The Applicant stated that her husband did not have a key to the home's front door and only had a key to the side door from the garage to the home.

Under cross examination by the Program's Counsel, the Applicant stated that "I agree the warranty expired and then I sent letter to the Program. The Program is right when it says the claim too late."

Claim Two

The second issue related to "chips off at exterior cold room."

The Applicant stated that the cold room is located beneath the front entrance to the home.

The front entrance was constructed of concrete. The exterior surface of the concrete was "rough" on all three sides of the concrete entrance. However, during the last week, the builder had "patched" the cement and it now looks better but it is still "out of my expectation", which expectation was that the concrete entrance should have been constructed with brick around the three sides of the front entrance between grade and the top of the concrete.

Under cross examination the Applicant conceded that there was nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that indicated that there was to be brick surrounding the three sides to the concrete front entrance. She further stated that she did have the opportunity, before taking occupation of the home, to observe that there was no brickwork around the concrete sides of the front entrance. Despite this she had not raised this issue when she noted deficiencies upon taking occupation. She stated she did not report the "missing bricks" to the Program, nor was such report made to the Program by the "home inspector" she had employed to inspect the home in order to determine and identify deficiencies. The Applicant was not able to produce any document that indicated a report being made to the Program regarding the lack of brickwork. She conceded her concern was patchiness of the concrete.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 30)

Claim Three

The third issue related to "chips and nicks on the garage door."

The Applicant stated that the paint on the garage door was thin and a person is able to see the wood under the paint. There are chips in the paint, particularly near the door handle.

Under cross examination the Applicant stated that she reported this complaint in writing to the Program in her letter of December 27, 2001. She stated, however, that there was a prior letter to the Program dated June 13, 2000 in which she complained of chips and nicks on the garage door. She, however, was not able to produce such letter.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 29)

Claim Four

This last issue related to the basement floor of the home not being level.

The Applicant stated that she did initially report this issue to the Program in her letter of June 13, 2000, which she stated she did not have with her but which letter was at her home. The Applicant was desirous of the opportunity to produce this letter and was not prepared to close her case before she had the opportunity to do so. She accordingly requested that the matter stand over until the following day so as to enable her to produce the letter when the hearing resumed. The Program's Counsel informed the Tribunal that rather than delay the hearing, the Program was prepared, only insofar as this 4th claim was concerned, to concede that this claim was initially reported to the Program within the warranty period.

However, Counsel stated that the Program reserved its right to continue to contest the 4th claim based upon the Program's alternative defence which was that the floor was installed in a good and workmanlike, manner free of defects in workmanship and materials.

On this understanding the hearing continued and did not stand over until the following day.

The Applicant stated in her further testimony that the first occasion she reported this particular issue to the Program was when Northcott attended at the home on December 6, 2000 during the conciliation inspection. Her concerns were regarding the floor not being level.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 17, item 36)

The Applicant denied that the washing machine in the basement was not level and stated that it was the floor that was not level. She did observe Northcott using a level to measure the level of the basement floor and she did receive a copy of the December 6, 2000 conciliation report. She observed Northcott's observations therein relating to this issue, which were that there was no defect observed in regard to the level of the floor, but that the problem lay with the clothes washer's supporting legs which required adjustment so as to make it level

(Exhibit 3, Tab 17, item 36)

During the cross examination of the Applicant, Counsel for the Program took the Applicant through numerous letters she had addressed to the Program, specifically, letters dated January 4, 2001, February 28, 2001, May 24, 2001 and the conciliation request for reinspection of the home dated October 13, 2001. The Applicant conceded that in all these letters and the conciliation request, there was no complaint regarding the level of the basement floor.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 19, Tab 21, Tab 24 and Tab 25)

The Applicant stated further that when Northcott came to her home on December 18, 2001 to conduct a reinspection of the complaints made by her, she still did not report a concern regarding the level of the basement floor.

The Applicant, upon being given the opportunity to study the home inspector's report of her inspector, was not able to point out to the Tribunal that that inspection report made reference to the basement floor not being level.

(Exhibit 5)

Warren Charles Northcott

Northcott testified that he has a Diploma in Architectural Technology from an Ontario College. He also stated that he was a building official employed by certain Ontario municipalities over a period of some ten years until 1998. In his duties with the municipalities, he had to ensure Builders complied with the Ontario Building Code ("O.B.C."). Northcott also stated he has taken various courses regarding the O.B.C. and holds a Certificate as a Building Official. In his capacity as a Building Official he has inspected some 400 residential homes. Since 1999 he has been employed by the Program as a Warranty Representative.

On December 6, 2000 he attended at the Applicant's home so as to inspect the home and prepare a Conciliation Inspection Report. The Applicant was present at the inspection. He, subsequent to the inspection, authored the Conciliation Inspection Report of December 11, 2000.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 17)

Northcott stated as follows regarding the 4 issues raised by the Applicant and now before the Tribunal

Claim One

Northcott stated that this claim was reported beyond the expiration period of the one year warranty. section 13.(4) of the Act requires that warranty claims made under section 13.(1) of the Act be made within 1 year after the warranty takes effect on the taking of possession. The warranty commenced on January 14, 2000 and expired one year later. However, the Applicant, whose claim was made under section 13.(1) of the Act, was only reported on May 25, 2001 when the locksmith's invoice was received by the Program from the Applicant. Further, that the date on the invoice itself indicated that services were rendered on January 24, 2001, some ten days beyond the expiration of the 1 year warranty period.

Northcott also stated that, quite apart from the claim not being made within the required warranty period, the claim itself did not arise out of a defect in materials or workmanship nor was there a violation of the O.B.C.

Claim Two

Northcott stated there were two aspects to this claim. One related to "concrete spillage visible on the foundation wall, along the underside of the porch slab." The second aspect related to a "chip in the exterior corner of the cold room" concrete slab.

Northcott testified he observed minor chips or bubbles in the exterior of the concrete. This was not at all unusual, for poured concrete does not show as a smooth unblemished surface. He also stated that the Applicant complained of there being no course of brick beneath the porch as was the case with a neighboring home whose home did have a course of brick.

Northcott stated that there were no visible signs of erosion to the concrete. He also stated that he had seen the concrete porch during the last week and had noted that the builder had been in attendance at the Applicant's home and had applied a parged coat over the concrete surface. The parging was done to improve the appearance of the concrete itself. The concrete spillage, that had been complained of previously, had also been rectified by the Builder and was no longer visible. Northcott took the opportunity of photographing the remedial work done by the builder in the last week in regard to parging the concrete and removing spillage of concrete. This remedial work done by the builder has been successful in alleviating, in Northcott's mind, the complaints regarding spillage and the appearance of the concrete. He stated that there never was and there is not at this time, any question of defects in workmanship or materials or a violation of the O.B.C.

Insofar as the Applicant's complaint that there was no course of brick beneath the porch, Northcott stated there was nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that called for any bricks to be used. Additionally, it would not have been reasonable, nor permissible under the O.B.C., to install bricks around the concrete due to there being only 8" from grade to the concrete lip on the porch. This left insufficient room for brickwork and it would have violated the O.B.C. had the builder used bricks as requested by the Applicant.

Claim Three

In regard to the chips and nicks on the overhead garage door, Northcott stated he did observe dents and nicks on the door's surface. Such dents and nicks, as observed, were normal wear and tear for a two year old garage door.

There was no observed defect in workmanship or materials and the nicks and chips, besides not being readily visible, are minor in nature. Furthermore, this claim was not reported within the first year of warranty and is therefore not warrantable by virtue of section 13.(4) of the Act.

Claim Four

This issue related to the basement floor. Northcott stated that at the December 6, 2000 conciliation inspection the Applicant complained the floor was not level and pointed to the washing machine as evidence of the floor not being level. On closer inspection Northcott observed that the washing machine was not level and that one of the adjusting screws of the washing machine's legs was broken, as a result of which the machine was not sitting level. He measured the floor to see if it was itself level and used a "torpedo level" to ascertain the degree of levelness of the floor. He found the floor to be level except in the area adjacent to the drain where he found the floor sloped towards the drain.

Northcott testified further that he again inspected the basement floor level January 23, 2002, when the owner indicated that, after washing the basement floor, water accumulated in the south-east corner of the basement and did not drain down the floor drain itself. He again used a torpedo level to measure the floor for slope and again was satisfied that the floor was level. He stated that basement floors are not constructed so as to ensure drainage of all water that falls on the floor and that small patches of water may be left on a floor which then evaporates. Small patches of water are normal with a basement floor and does not indicate that there is a defect in workmanship or materials or a violation of the O.B.C. There was no defect in workmanship or materials observed in the basement floor of the Applicant's home nor was there any violation of the O.B.C.

Carl Melvin Burrill

Burrill testified on behalf of the builder that he has been employed in the construction industry for over forty years and that for the past thirty years he has held the position of supervisor and has inspected, on average, between 350 and 500 houses per year. He is familiar with the O.B.C. and the standards of practice in the industry and has taken continuing education courses to keep up to date within the industry.

He became familiar with the Applicant's home in September 2001, after he joined the builder as its service manager. He reviewed the Applicant's file kept by the builder and was involved in only two outstanding issues. One issue related to the lock on the door from the garage to the home and the other issue related to the cement porch above the cold room.

On the issue of the lock on the garage door he determined from his review of the builder's file that the claim was reported beyond the first year warranty period and the complaint was therefore not warrantable. He told the Applicant of his determination that this issue was not warranted.

Insofar as the second issue was concerned, he went to the Applicant's home in about September 2001 to investigate the complaint. He was told by the Applicant that the concrete was "rough" at the north-east corner of the front porch. He observed bubbles in the concrete and also saw "overflow" of concrete. The Applicant said that there were "chips" in the concrete. The "chips" that the Applicant pointed to were minor indentations due to popped bubbles in the concrete which left surface marks. He stated that concrete is generally not smooth and this was the case with the concrete at the Applicant's home. This was quite normal and was not indicative of defects in workmanship or materials and was not a violation of the O.B.C.

Burrill went on to state that when last week the builder was in attendance at the Applicant's home so as to attend to the garage floor, he instructed the work crew to parge the foundation walls at the exterior of the front porch so as to give it a "nice clean appearance." He also instructed the work crew that the accumulation of concrete under the lip of the porch be removed and cleaned up. Since the parging and removal of concrete spillage Burrill has reinspected the work and in the course of this reinspection he took two photographs of the north-east area of the porch. He is satisfied that the complaint regarding the second issue has been taken care of and that the complaints are not justified and that the aesthetics of the concrete porch are satisfactory.

(Exhibits 7 and 8)

The Applicant complained to Burrill at the time of his September 2001 inspection regarding the lack of brickwork around the porch. He inspected a neighbour's home which did have brickwork but noted that the homes were different. In the case of the neighbour's home, that did have brickwork around the foundations to the porch, he noted that the concrete slab to the front porch of that home was some 13" to 14" above grade and that with this amount of space brick could be used without violating the O.B.C. However, in the case of the Applicant's home the space was only about 7" which, and if bricks were used in such a confined space, it would result in a violation of the O.B.C.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found to have been proven.

1. The Applicant's home was completed for possession on January 14, 2000 upon which date the Applicant was given possession.
2. The Applicant's claim in respect of services rendered by Armor Lock and Safe to the Applicant in terms of its invoice dated January 24, 2001 was not reported in writing to the Program until May 25, 2001.
3. The chips at the exterior of the cold room are not due to defects in material or workmanship and are not a violation of the O.B.C.
4. The concrete spillage on the concrete foundation wall, along the underside of the front porch slab of the Applicant's home have been satisfactorily removed by the builder prior to the hearing and prior to removal did not constitute defects in material and workmanship and are not a violation of the O.B.C.
5. The "chips" in the exterior concrete of the cold room room at the north-east corner of the front porch were minor in nature and occur naturally in concrete and did not, nor do they now, constitute defects in material and workmanship nor do they violate the O.B.C.
6. The minor "chips" on the exterior concrete of the cold room have been satisfactorily removed by the parging of the concrete surface by the builder prior to the hearing of this matter.
7. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale entered into between the Builder and the Applicant in relation to the Applicant's home does not call for brickwork to be provided around the concrete foundations to the front porch of the home and would have been, if the builder did provide same, in violation of the O.B.C.
8. The concrete spillage on the concrete foundation wall, along the underside of the front porch slab of the Applicant's home, was not reported in writing by the Applicant to the Program within one year of the Applicant taking possession of the home.
9. The Applicant's complaint regarding chips and nicks in the garage door was due to normal wear and tear, was minor in nature and was not reported in writing by the Applicant to the Program within one year of the Applicant taking possession of the home.
10. The concrete floor in the basement of the Applicant's home was constructed in a workmanlike manner, free of defects in material and was not in violation of the O.B.C.

THE LAW:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states as follows:

13(1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

(a) that the home,

(i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,

(ii) is fit for habitation, and

(iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and

(c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

...

(3) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

...

(c) normal wear and tear;

...

(4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

...

14(3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,

...

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

REASONS FOR DECISION:

The onus of proof rests upon the Applicant to satisfy the Tribunal on a balance of probabilities.

There are 4 issues that require determination by the Tribunal and each will be considered and dealt with separately.

Issue 1: Receipt for Repairing Side Door Lock

This issue arose out of an incident that occurred on January 24, 2001 when a locksmith was engaged by the Applicant to open a door from the garage to the home. This incident took place some ten days beyond the one year period of warranty under section 13.(4) of the Act. The Applicant during the course of her evidence before the Tribunal conceded that this claim arose after the expiration of the warranty period of one year. Possession of the home took place on January 14, 2000 and the Program was notified in writing of this claim on May 25, 2001.

The Applicant's claim in respect of this issue clearly falls outside of the one year warranty and on that basis alone the Applicant's claim under this heading must fail.

Issue 2: Chip off at Exterior Cold Room

The Applicant did not produce evidence to support her allegations regarding the "chips" on the concrete at the exterior of the cold room. The one copy of a photograph that the Applicant referred to was of poor quality and no detail was visible when viewing that photograph. A clearer and more detailed photograph may have been of assistance to the Tribunal. No building expert testified to corroborate the Applicant's statements and observations. Opposed to the Applicant's evidence, the Tribunal was left with the testimony of Northcott and Burrill both individuals with many years of experience in the building industry. The Tribunal accepts their testimony based upon their experience and the fact that their testimony was not disputed by the Applicant or put in issue by evidence of any witnesses in the building industry who the Applicant could have called to testify but did not do so.

Both Northcott and Burrill testified that there were no defects in material or workmanship and no violation of the O.B.C. The exterior concrete surface of the cold room was what one would normally expect of poured concrete and the spillage of concrete under the sill was not visible unless one specifically looked for such spillage. Even if there was spillage of concrete which produced an unsightly appearance (which is not a finding of the Tribunal) and even if there was a chip in the concrete (which is also not a finding of the Tribunal) such spillage and chips were satisfactorily remedied by the builder before the hearing by the removal of the spillage and the paring of the entire area where the Applicant contended there was a chip. The photographs taken after the remedial work (Exhibits 7 and 8) clearly indicate that there is now no visible spillage, and the paring has produced an acceptable level of workmanship and has produced an aesthetically pleasing appearance.

The "chip" was never indicated to the Tribunal by the Applicant by way of a photograph. From the evidence of Northcott and Burrill the appearance of the exterior surface of the concrete was acceptable according to industry standards and accords with what is to be expected of poured concrete. The mark or chip indicated by the Applicant was clearly minor in nature and extent and would be considered "de minimus non curat lex" of which the law does not take notice as it is of insignificant matter. The Tribunal believes that the Applicant seeks an unrealistic standard of perfection. One does not live in a perfect world and allowances must be made for minor imperfections.

The Tribunal finds, as well, that there is nothing in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that calls for the builder to supply a course of brick around the concrete at the front entrance and that even if the builder had supplied such brick it would have resulted in a violation of the O.B.C.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated above the Applicant's claim under this heading fails

Issue 3: Chips and Nicks on Overhead Garage Door

The Applicant produced no photographs to substantiate this claim. She was not able to produce a document to indicate that this complaint was made to the Program within the one year warranty period as required by section 13(4) of the Act.

The evidence of Northcott was that he did observe dents and nicks on the door's surface. However, the door was two years old when he observed the nicks and dents and constituted what one would expect from normal wear and tear over that period. The nicks and dents were not readily visible and were minor in appearance.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not discharged the onus of proof regarding this claim being made within one year of possession in terms of section 13.(4) of the Act. Further, the "chips and nicks" were due to normal wear and tear in connection with the use of the door over a period of some 2 years. Accordingly, a warranty is excluded and does not apply by virtue of section 13.(2)(c) of the Act. The Tribunal also finds that the "chips and nicks" were minor in nature and that the comments made by the Tribunal under the second issue above apply equally to this issue.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's claim under this heading fails.

Issue 4: Basement Floor not Level

The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Northcott and Burrill in that the basement floor was constructed in a workmanlike manner, free of defects and was not constructed in violation of the O.B.C.

The Applicant produced no evidence to show that the floor was not level. She did not either herself, or through an expert, do any tests to ascertain whether the floor is level. The Program did investigate whether the floor is level when Northcott measured it by way of a "torpedo level" which indicated that the slope of the floor was level and in accordance with acceptable industry standards and practice and that it only sloped in the vicinity of the drain, which is where the floor should slope. Northcott also testified that the washing machine in the basement was not level due to a defective leg at one corner of the machine. This, according to the uncontraverted evidence of Northcott is what the Applicant relied upon when alleging to Northcott during his inspection, that the floor was not level. There was no evidence introduced by the Applicant that the floor was not level. It was only her opinion and observations unsupported by any tests. The fact that after washing down the basement floor, as alleged by the Applicant, there were patches of water left standing on the floor (that subsequently evaporated) does not indicate that the floor is constructed in an unworkmanlike manner, is defective in materials or is in violation of the O.B.C.

The Tribunal accordingly finds the Applicant's claim under this heading fails as well.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 16.(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicant's claims.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal from the decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("the Program") dated January 31, 2002, wherein the Applicant's claim for damages for the return of his deposit based on a breach of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale by the Vendor was disallowed. The claim was for a total of $20,000.00 for the return of the deposit claimed to have been paid pursuant to Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 23, 2001 for the sale of 1579 Heatherglenn Crescent. As set out herein, the Tribunal found that the funds paid January 3, 2000 to the vendor and credited towards the purchase of another property did not qualify as a deposit for the purchase of the subject property. Accordingly, the Applicant is not entitled to succeed in his claim against the Program for the reasons hereinafter set out.

FACTS

It is not disputed by the parties that the Applicant signed an Agreement of Purchase and Sale for a home located at 1546 Heatherglenn Crescent on January 3, 2000 and that the deposit listed on that Agreement was $60,000.00. The cheque in the amount of $60,000.00 was given by the Applicant to the Vendor on January 4, 2000. The closing date on the Agreement of Purchase and Sale was May 15, 2000, but the transaction did not close, and the property was later sold by the Vendor to another purchaser. The Applicant received $30,000 from the Vendor at the time of that sale.

A request for compensation dated November 15, 2001 was sent by the Applicant to the Ontario New Home Warranty Program, by which a claim was made on the following basis.

In his letter dated November 15, 2001, the Applicant stated that he wished to obtain a refund as soon as possible for the deposit and enclosed a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale for 1579 Heatherglen Crescent, dated May 23, 2001, with the closing date of July 30, 2001 and a deposit shown as $20,000.00. There was also a copy of a certified cheque dated January 4, 2000 in the amount of $60,000.00 which he said was a deposit on more than one house. Further he advised that he had not been able to contact Combined Group of Trades o/a Castlemark Homes.

The Program disputes the entitlement of the Applicant to compensation under Section 14(1) of Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act"). The grounds asserted on behalf of the Program in the Decision Letter are that the $60,000 was a loan made to the company when it was needed to purchase some lots that would be lost if the company did not succeed in obtaining the necessary cash. The cheque was provided on January 4, 2000 and, as security for the loan, the Applicant was given the first Agreement of Purchase and Sale for 1546 Heatherglen Crescent in Tecumseh. This Agreement of Purchase and Sale stated that there was to be a deposit of $60,000 but the Registrar found that that this was a loan he had made and there was no separate payment for the deposit. The house at 1546 Heatherglen Crescent was sold on July 28, 2000 to a different purchaser according to O.N.H.W.P. records and, out of the closing proceeds, the builder paid the Applicant $30,000, reducing the balance owing to $30,000.00. The Applicant received a further payment of $10,000, thereby reducing the debt to $20,000. As security for the remained debt, in the month of May, 2001, the Applicant entered the second Agreement of Purchase and Sale for the purchase of 1579 Heatherglen Crescent which stated that the deposit of $20,000 was paid forthwith. The Program took the position that no separate payment of the deposit was made, the vendor had now gone out of business, and the debt was still outstanding, so the Applicant was attempting to now collect it from O.N.H.W.P.

WITNESSES FOR THE APPLICANT

Aldo Costantino

The first witness was Mr. Aldo Costantino, who testified that his understanding with the builder was that he was buying a house and he did have to close the deal. He understood the legal implications and that he would have to have the money to close the deal. His line of credit allowed him to have sufficient funds to cover the full amount. When he found that the house was not completed, and the return of the deposit was not forthcoming, he called Mr. Di Felice and was told that the house had not been finished. He didn't know what to do and decided he should enter a new Agreement and buy a house to get the funds back. He knew that he was buying a semi detached house which was almost completed and he knew where it was and he knew what he was getting, but he did not take the Agreement of Purchase and Sale to a lawyer. He had concerns over the situation, as the builder appeared to have problems, but he thought the best decision was to buy the house as it was too expensive to hire a lawyer to pursue legal action.

On the issue of the cheque for $60,000, he said that Mr. Di Felice had asked him around Christmas if he wanted to buy a house, and told him that it was a good opportunity. Mr. Costantino testified that it was like a favour to Mr. Di Felice, and explained that the contract had a May closing date. He had purchased houses before, for himself and parents, but he had never been in a deal like this. At the end of it, he expected to get a house, and believed it was legal. He said that he had concerns about how he would be able to sell the house, but Mr. Di Felice said not to worry as they had people who would be able to help.

In cross examination Mr. Costantino explained that he was approached by Mr. Di Felice, whom he had known socially. They had only met a few times but since that they did become closer, and their wives were good friends. When he was asked if Mr. Di Felice asked him if he would do a favour, he said that he was asked if he would buy a house. He stated that the $60,000 was for a house and that the favour was regarding having a contract for Purchase and Sale. The witness did agree that Mr. Di Felice told him that the company would lose the lots if they didn't get the $60,000, but stated that this was after the contract was signed. When he was shown the Agreement of Purchase and Sale signed January 3, 2000, (Exhibit 4) the witness agreed that it was dated the day before the date of the $60,000 cheque to Combined Group of Trades. He explained the different dates by saying that the cheque had to be certified and he had to go and get a cheque certified the day after the contract was signed. He stated that the signing of the contract took place in an office in a trailer at the site and was done with Mr. Di Felice and two other individuals from the company. The witness agreed that there was interest at a rate of 9 percent per year to be paid to him on the $60,000.

Mr. Costantino testified that at the time he signed the Agreement of Purchase and Sale he did not know that $20,000 was the maximum deposit covered by the Act.

The witness agreed that the property at 1546 Heatherglen Crescent in Tecumseh, is near Windsor, Ontario and that he and his family are residents of Mississauga and did not intend to move into the home as his intention was to resell. Mr. Costantino testified that the date of closing of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale for 1546 Heatherglen Crescent was supposed to be May 15, 2000 but the deal did not close on that date. He did not retain a lawyer in preparation for the closing date and did not present a cheque on the date listed for the closing to tender and to try to get the deal closed. The witness dealt with the matter by simply speaking to Mr. Di Felice and was advised that the house was not ready at that time and there was no discussion of arrangements for the closing. He explained that when the house was finished he thought the agreement was still good and did not know that the house had been sold to someone else who was willing to purchase and move into the house. Mr. Costantino made no real effort to close the deal. When the deal was eventually closed with the other purchaser he agreed that he was paid $30,000 in September 2000.

Mr. Costantino testified that when his son a was buying a house and he was in need of funds he called Mr. Di Felice and was told he would have to meet with the other partners to get the money. Finally he did get a further cheque for $10,000 from Mr. Di Felice, two days before Mr. Di Felice died during the first few days of January 2002. The witness stated that when he found that the original house had been sold, his concern was about getting his money, not about getting the house. He had received part of his money and the interest to September 2000 on the full amount but he received no more. The amount owed now is $20,000 plus interest based on the Agreement of Purchase and Sale for 1546 Heatherglen Crescent. He disagreed that this was simply the balance of a debt owed. Even though the debt was over $30,000 in September 2000, he stated that he did not sue the vendor and simply dealt with the matter by speaking with Mr. Di Felice who he hoped would get him what he could, although he knew that the vendor was in financial difficulty.

He explained that by September 2000 the vendor owed over $20,000 and his security in the house was gone and his only security was in Mr. Di Felice. The witness stated that he wanted further security, and the safest thing he could do was to buy another house. As a result he entered the second agreement of purchase and sale for the house at 1579 Heatherglen Crescent. In late December 2001, he got the last $10,000 when there was still a balance of $30,000 owing. He stated that when he signed the Agreement of Purchase and Sale for the home at 1579 Heatherglen Crescent on May 23, 2001, the deposit for that home was shown as $20,000.00 as he was trying to buy two homes and the sum owed to him was to be split between the two homes at $20,000.00 for one home and $15,000 for the other to make up the total of $35,000. The Agreement and Purchase and Sale for the second home was never done as the partners in the company had problems.

Mr. Costantino testified that Mr. Di Felice didn't answer questions about the problems properly but it was still his intention to buy a house and resell it to recover the money he had invested. He did not attend at the site to inspect either house or walk through what was completed so far. On the second Agreement of Purchase and Sale he agreed that he did not pay the $20,000 shown, as it was part of the debt. That transaction was to close July 30, 2001 but he was advised the house was never completed and he took no steps to pursue the issue other than to call the vendor's office, but by that time the phone was not being answered. He did not take legal steps to try to close the deal and did not tender or retain counsel. The witness explained that his calls to the builder began about a week before he was told the house had not been completed.

When he found himself with no house and no money, his best option was to make a claim with the Program. He made the claim in November 2001 and was advised that the maximum available was $20,000. Then, in December 2001, Mr. Di Felice paid him $10,000. Following receipt of these funds he called the partners and was simply advised that a lot of people had lost money in this transaction and he was just another casualty. He denied that the vendor had told him the amount he could claim, and to go to the Program to try to settle the debt.

In re-examination the witness stated that he did not understand what it meant to 'tender' in a real-estate transaction.

Antonia Di Felice

The last witness for the Applicant was Antonia Di Felice who testified that she was aware of the dealings of Paul Di Felice and knew of this transaction. She understood that when Paul Di Felice asked the Applicant to put money into the property it was intended that the deal would close. She confirmed that she had met the other partners in the vendor company and had tried to find out the status of the company but had no success.

In cross-examination she stated that she was not part of the company and only knew what her husband told her. In late 1999 she knew the company was in deep financial trouble and she knew nothing about the hearings at the Tribunal concerning the company's registration.

WITNESSES FOR THE PROGRAM

Brian Haskett

The only witness called by the Program was Mr. Brian Haskett who testified that he was the manager of the London, Ontario New Home Warranty Program office. He had been employed by the Program for 14 years and as the manager of the office personally deals with claims involving deposits. The witness explained that the first communication from the Applicant was on November 22, 2001. The office received a letter with a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 23, 2001 for the property at 1579 Heatherglen Crescent. He did not get a copy of the second Agreement. At that time he did not know of the first Agreement of Purchase and Sale and investigated the matter by having a warranty representative contact the Applicant. The information given to the warranty representative was put into the decision letter as he had no other sources of information. Based on the information received, he understood that the Applicant had told the warranty representative that he had loaned the vendor $60,000 that was needed to help the company buy some building lots. If this money was not received, they would have lost the lots. The debt would be secured by an Agreement of Purchase and Sale. On this basis, the witness formed the opinion in the Decision Letter that the claim should be denied. Through the records of the Program, he discovered that the home had been sold to another purchaser on July 28, 2000. He further found that the builder was subject to a Notice of Proposal at this time. A hearing was held on the Notice of Proposal on Jan. 22, 2001 at which time it was clear that the builder was in serious financial trouble. The Program had paid 2 claims for lost deposits in amount of $20,000. The builder was put on notice of this, as builders are given 30 days notice after a claim is paid. At this time the builder would know the maximum limits, and that the Program would pay claims.

In cross-examination the witness explained that the registration of the vendor had been in jeopardy due to problems with deposits, claims regarding workmanship and based on the financial analysis. He explained that unless there is a claim, the Program does not receive a copy of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, as they normally only receive a notice of possession within 14 days of possession of the home. He was aware that 2 claims had been made for $20,000 but was not aware of the $60,000 deposit until the information came out in the hearing. Mr. Haskett explained that when the Warranty Representative calls there is no standard script to follow and they just advise that they are calling from the Program and ask questions appropriate to the situation. He explained that the builders are interested in the claims as well as there are generally guarantees as security for financial losses.

ISSUES

The legal issue in this proceeding is whether the Applicant has satisfied the burden of proof to show that the Registrar was wrong in his decision to deny the claim for the refund of the deposit claimed by the Applicant for the Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 23, 2001.

CASE LAW

McDonagh and Joseph Palmerio - Supreme Court of Ontario (Divisional Court) November 12, 1980

In this case the applicants were the principals of a construction company operating as Leader Construction Ontario Ltd. ("Leader") which was owed a debt by the builder Marvo Construction Co. ("Marvo") due to prior business dealings on a specific condominium project. The debt was assigned by Leader to the applicants who each entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale with Marvo for a condominium unit in the project whereby a portion of the debt, was written off, by setting off against the debt, the cost of acquiring the condominium units. The builder had financial difficulties and the project was transformed into a rental building instead of a condominium. There was no indication of when the parties knew of the builder's financial difficulties and knew that the project would not proceed as a condominium. The applicants sought to recover from the guarantee fund the full purchase price set out in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. The tribunal found that there was no proof that Leader owed any money to the applicants; that there was no proof that moneys were paid by the applicants to Marvo by way of deposit or otherwise; or that Leader's interest in the units was transferred to the applicants. The tribunal found that the contra account 11 months after the Agreements were signed was not a deposit within the meaning of the Act or regulations; and that there was no proof that the applicants suffered a financial loss.

At p. 145 of the decision the court states that:

"the Tribunal found that the statute was designed to guarantee damage or financial loss arising out of a contractual relationship between the vendor and an owner in relation to a specific property it was not designed to guarantee debts owing between such parties that have no bearing or relation to such a contractual relationship as exists in the present case. Debts between contractors and subcontractors unrelated to a specific Agreement of Purchase and Sale of a specific property are clearly not within the scope of the legislation. In this case the tribunal found as a fact that there was no proof of a transfer of the interest of Leader Construction in the subject properties to the applicants and that the applicants suffered no financial loss. These findings were supported by the evidence before the tribunal "

The appeal was dismissed.

Estate of John Frederick Earle v the Corporation Designated for the Purposes of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act March 1994

In this case the parties had invested money earlier in a building project to secure the purchase price of land. The applicants admitted that the money was given to the builder not be used for the purchase of any houses but was to be returned to each applicant together with a home for free. When the applicants discovered that the money was no longer in trust they signed purchase agreements to secure their investments. The claim was made by the applicants prior to the vendor being in breach of the agreements. The money was advanced one year before the agreements of purchase and sale as an investment in land. No deposits were paid by the applicants and their claim was dismissed.

Don and Joyce Kennedy v the Corporation designated for the purpose of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act - March 1995

In this matter the Tribunal found that there was no proof that the applicants paid money by way of deposit at the time of entering into the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. A debt owed by the builder to a company owned by the applicants was set off with respect to the first deposit, and the cheque for the second deposit was paid to a company which was not proven to be related to the builder. At p. 198 of the decision, the case was dispensed on the basis that the program was not established to guarantee debts owed between parties unrelated to the specific Agreement of Purchase and Sale on a specific property.

Aristides Indio - 1998, Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the applicant was a member of the partnership which completed the pouring of basements on a residential construction site on behalf of the builder. By December 1993 the builder owed the applicant's company approximately $300,000. Some of this debt was paid by the builder, leaving a balance of approximately $97,000. On March 28, 1995 the applicant entered an Agreement of Purchase and Sale with a purchase price of $126,000 and a deposit listed of $20,000. The applicant did not pay the builder the deposit of $20,000 as required but the builder's debt to the applicant's Company was reduced by $20,000 so no funds changed hands. The value of the property was approximately $186,000 but in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale it was described as $126,000 and in this $60,000 benefit was also used to lower the debt owed by the builder. The project was not completed and builder breached the agreement. The claim for the deposit of $20,000 was rejected by the Tribunal as the deposit was not actually paid to the builder and the applicant did not therefore suffer a financial loss within the meaning of the Act. The debt owed by the builder was unrelated to the subject property and did not arise under the agreement but was a debt previously owing and the claim was rejected.

Anita Paliwal and Suman Paliwal, 1998 License Appeal Tribunal

In this case the Tribunal found that there was a prior investment by the applicants and the deposits were not found to have been normal modify the commitments to buy condominium units and were rather contrived to attempt to salvage the applicants' financial interests in their investments and the claim was dismissed.

On appeal to divisional court the court found that the transactions were loans secured by the agreements and were therefore not properly within section 14 of the Act, and the appeal was dismissed.

Stephen and Gayle Madely, 1996 Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter an Agreement of Purchase and Sale was entered between the parties with a deposit of $10,000 shown in the agreement. No money was paid by the applicant towards the deposit but the Agreement of Purchase and Sale was conditional upon the execution of personal services agreement between the builder and the applicant under which the applicant, who was a known radio personality, would do promotional work for the builder. The payment for the personal services contract was to be broken up into three payments of $10,000. On the date on which the deposit was due the applicant did not make payment and on the same date the builder failed to make a payment under the personal services contract as required. The tribunal found against the applicant on the basis that there was not sufficient evidence to establish that the amount payable under the personal services contract was to be applied against the money due under the Agreement and Purchase and Sale. In this case $20,000 of the $30,000 of the personal services contract was due after the closing date in the agreement.

On appeal to the Divisional Court, the court held that there was a financial loss of $10,000 suffered by the applicant as he was obliged to pay $10,000 deposit on January 2, 1995, but by oral agreement between the parties that deposit was to be paid out of the funds due contemporaneously to the applicant from the vendor. The court found that based on the oral agreement the vendor held the purchaser's deposit and there was therefore no failure by the purchaser to satisfy the deposit requirement

The Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 23, 2001 for the property located at 1579 Heatherglen Crescent in paragraph 1(g) lists a deposit in the amount of $20,000, followed by a paragraph stating:

"paid to the Vendor forthwith, pending completion or other termination of this Agreement to be credited against the Purchase Price on closing, plus such further deposits specified by the schedule "A" to this Agreement."

This qualifying paragraph is found to specifically refer to the future or proximate payment of funds, as shown by the use of the word "forthwith", and does not contemplate the crediting of monies owed by the vendor to the purchaser. It therefore refers to funds specifically paid for this property and there is nothing in the evidence to suggest that any monies were received in addition to the initial payment of $60,000 by a cheque dated January 4, 2000.

The schedule "A" on the signature page states:

"This offer is conditional on the purchaser arranging financing by June 23, 2001 failing which this offer shall become null and void in the event no notice is received to the vendor by June 23, 2001 this condition shown the considered automatically waived by the purchaser"

There was a reference in the evidence to the matter of interest payable for the deposit in the Agreement of January 3, 2000. On a close inspection by the Tribunal of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale for the residence at 1579 Heatherglenn Crescent, the Tribunal observed in Schedule "A", on the signature page of the Agreement, there was an interest rate of 10 percent per annum and a right of cancellation set out under the following conditions:

" the purchaser shall have the right to declare this agreement null and void up to and including May 14, 2000, upon return of his deposit plus accrued interest re-paid to him at the rate of 10 percent per annum"

In the first Agreement of Purchase and Sale, the purchaser was provided with an absolute right of termination upon the re-payment of the deposit and interest, at an interest rate of 10 percent, so if the deposit plus interest were repaid he was under no obligation to arrange financing and close the deal on the house. His protection for his deposit was that so long as the deposit was not returned, he had the right to purchase the house so that he could resell it and hopefully get his money back plus a profit.

In the later Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 3, 2001, the purchaser had an absolute right of termination by simply notifying the vendor that he had failed to arrange financing. So long as he arranged financing, the purchaser had security in the right to the home, but if he no longer wanted the home, he could free himself of his obligations under the contract quite simply by giving notice that he was not able to arrange financing.

The Tribunal finds that based on the terms of the 2 Agreements of Purchase and Sale, the transaction was arranged so that there was a one time payment of $60,000 to the vendor with a significant interest rate of 10 percent per annum to be paid to the Applicant. If this was repaid by the vendor the contract was structured so that the Applicant would be under no obligation to carry out the purchase of the home and would have the right to terminate the Agreement when he was fully paid. If the principal and interest were not paid to the purchaser, his security was his right to purchase the home. His security was provided by the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. In his evidence, the Applicant referred to his security several times, and stated that it was in the home and also in Mr. Di Felice. Throughout the entire transaction the actions of the Applicant did not demonstrate any real interest in closing the transaction. He did not inspect the property or monitor the progress of the building process, and did not even retain the services of a lawyer to take the necessary steps to be ready to close the transaction.

There is evidence that on the original closing date of May 15, 2000 he did not offer to close by tendering upon the vendor. In his evidence he stated at different times that his intention was to buy a house and close the deal, but his actions throughout the course of events are not consistent with this, and the transaction was structured to give him some protection and profit for his payment rather than to close a real-estate transaction. When he spoke to the Warranty Representative, the facts recorded from the conversation and put into the Decision Letter are much more consistent with the $60,000 being an investment or a loan rather than a deposit.

even if it was a deposit on the first property, it was not a deposit on the home for which he made a claim.

The Applicant has denied that these facts are an accurate representation of what happened. However, when the transaction is examined in detail, they appear to better reflect the documentation and actions of the parties and are found to be correct. The Tribunal therefore finds that the Applicant made a onetime payment of $60,000 by way of a loan or investment, although it was listed on the Agreement of Purchase and Sale as the deposit, and that the Agreement of Purchase and Sale was only a method of obtaining some security for the money. No separate amount was paid for the second Agreement of Purchase and Sale dated May 23, 2001 and the amount listed for the deposit in that Agreement was merely part of the outstanding balance on the loan or investment by the Applicant. By this point, it is clear that the vendor had knowledge of the amount that would be paid for a lost deposit under the Act and Regulation, and it is found that the figure of $20,000 is consistent with the vendor trying to find an alternate way to clear their pre-existing debt.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

It is found that the $20,000 deposit listed on the Agreement of Purchase and Sale signed May 23, 2001 was part of the pre-existing $60,000.00 debt owed to the Applicant, and not funds paid for a deposit on that Agreement of Purchase and Sale. It was therefore not a deposit under the definition provided for in section 1 of Regulation 892 under the Act, as it was not received on account of the purchase price payable under the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. Although there appears to be a debt owing it does not qualify as a deposit under the Act as it is a loan or investment predating the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, and is, therefore, not a financial loss attributable to the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, and thereby not subject to coverage pursuant to section 14 of the Act. The Tribunal finds that the Registrar was correct in his finding to deny the claim.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claim.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Registrar", and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated February 1, 2002 proposed to revoke the registration of Tri-Star Sales and Leasing as a dealer, Vasilios Mitropoulos as a sales person, and Parthenia Mitropoulos as a sales person under the Act.

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar's reasons for this Proposal are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disqualification to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri -Star Sales and Leasing and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows:

1. The dealer, Tri-Star Sales and Leasing was first registered as a motor vehicle dealer on or about May 12, 1993.
2. Parthenia Mitropoulos was first registered as a salesperson on or about October 28, 1987.
3. Vasilios Mitropoulos was first registered as a salesperson on or about November 30, 1982 and is currently in officer and director of the dealer.
4. The Parthenia Mitropoulos and Vasilios Mitropoulos Were (sic) officers and directors of another motor vehicle dealership, 314309 Ontario Ltd. c.o.b. as Trust Motor Sales. Trust Motor Sales was registered as a motor vehicle dealer since on or about August 22, 1983. Trust Motor Sales and and Vasilios Mitropoulos had their registrations pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act revoked by order of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal dated February 18, 1999. Parthenia Mitropoulos registration had expired in April, 1998.
5. The registration of Tri-Star Sales and Leasing was revoked by order of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal, now known as the Licence Appeal Tribunal, dated October 19, 1998.
6. The 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri -Star Sales and Leasing and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Trust Motor Sales appealed the decisions of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal to the Divisional Court and filed stay motions with the Tribunal.
7. The appeals were settled. The terms of settlement included, inter alia, that the appeals would be abandoned and that 1012265 Ontario Inc. O/A Tri -Star Sales and Leasing and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos would submit new applications for registration to the Registrar, MVDA. It was further agreed between the parties that the Registrar would issue a Proposal to refuse the registrations, pursuant to Section 7 of the MVDA, but that the Registrar would subsequently settle the Proposal. To effect the settlement, the applicants, 1012265 Ontario Inc. O/A Tri -Star Sales And Leasing and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos and the Registrar agreed that certain Terms and Conditions would be imposed on the applicants' registrations.
8. The terms of the Consent Order, include, inter alia, the following:
 10. The Dealer will not conduct any purchases or sales with anyone who is in the business of buying and selling motor vehicles without confirming that they are registered as a dealer under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

O/A Tri -Star Sales And Leasing and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos have breached the terms of the consent order.

CASELAW

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

Shine Car Sales Inc [2001] O.L.A.T.D. No. 286.

In this matter the Applicant had been convicted of odometer tampering and there were allegations that he had failed to disclose material information to purchasers of vehicles and he also had a minor criminal record which was not related to his work in the industry. The Tribunal found in that his practices were careless but that he was not acting without integrity and honesty and in accordance with the law in his dealings with the public. He had purchased vehicles with digital odometers and at the time of the sale to him the readings were unknown and when the batteries were connected, the odometer reading became visible and was put on the bill of sale although in one case in error was made. His behaviour subsequent to the inspection and prior to the notice of proposal was found to demonstrate that he was able and willing to implement better procedures when he was advised to do so. The Tribunal found that the Registrar was in error and ordered that he be registered subject to specified terms and conditions.

Constantin Tofan and Dumitrel Tofan [May 6, 2002]

In this matter there were problems that the dealer was purchasing vehicles with certain odometer readings which appeared not to be accurate and customers were being advised that the true mileage was unknown. Vehicles were being sold which were branded salvage, and the customers were not being informed. The Tribunal found that the dealer was not carrying on business with honesty, integrity, and in accordance with the law.

ISSUES:

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to revoke the Applicant's registration under the Act on the basis of the Applicant's conduct respecting the allegations of breaches of the Terms and Conditions of registration..

Witnesses For The Registrar

Paul Pittaway

The first witness for the Registrar was Mr. Paul Pittaway who has been the leasing manager for two years at Halton Autolease which is the leasing division of Halton Honda. He stated that he has been employed by Halton Honda for 17 years. During his tenure with Halton Honda, he leased 10 motor vehicles to Chariots of Hire ("Chariots") commencing in May 2000. Originally 6 vehicles were leased followed by 4 more. He stated that Nazir Jinnah ("Jinnah") was an officer of Chariots and appeared to be a reliable business man, and his wife Shairoz Jinnah was a practicing dentist in Toronto. They acted as guarantors on the leases, and this was quite acceptable to him. He referred to 7 leases (Exhibit 3, Tabs 25 - 31) dated in May and June and, 2000 for lease periods of 24 and 30 months in which motor vehicles were leased by Halton Auto Lease Chariots.

Mr. Pittaway explained that when a vehicle is leased, the ownership document stays with Halton Honda, and the plate portion of the ownership document is given to the lessee and put into their name. The ownership portions of the document were kept in the file by Halton Honda. However, the vehicles had been transferred into the name of Tri-Star Sales and Leasing ("Tri-Star") even though Halton Honda had registered liens, and had never signed over the vehicles; given releases of the liens, or ever agreed to the transfers. When he was shown a letter of release purportedly signed by him concerning a Honda Civic. (Exhibit 5, Tab 10) he explained that the letter was not from Halton Honda, and was definitely not signed by him. The letter appeared to be on a piece of blank paper with part of the Honda Autolease letterhead design at the bottom and a fax transmission line from Chariots of Hire at the top. At (Exhibit 5, Tabs 11 & 12) there were two more letters of release purportedly from Halton Autolease Inc. and the witness again stated that it was not his signature on them, and that they were not on the letterhead of Halton Autolease Inc. At (Exhibit 5, Tabs 13, 14, 15) there were further letters of release purportedly from Halton Autolease Inc. He stated that they were not authentic letters from Halton Autolease, and certainly not his signatures.

To his knowledge there had been no attempt by Tri-Star to verify the authenticity of the letters. The used car division of Halton Honda did have dealings with Tri-Star as they were always looking for used late model Hondas, and on occasion did sell vehicles to Tri-Star. He confirmed that Mr. Mitropoulos had always made proper payment for any vehicles purchased and on some occasions even brought in payments from Chariots when payments were overdue. The witness had discussions with Mr. Mitropoulos about the fact that there were issues and financial problems in the dealings with Chariots. When purchases were made by Halton Honda from Tri-Star, he explained that they were not advised of any liens and did not look into the matter themselves, as it was not considered necessary in a transaction with a dealer although it is automatic in any dealings with the public.

In cross examination, Mr. Pittaway stated that it was Mr. Mitropoulos who introduced Nazir to Halton Honda, and based on what they saw, he looked reputable. A background check was conducted on both Nazir and Chariots. He seemed to be financially stable, had three and later four locations, and his wife was a practicing dentist. On the issue of the letterhead on some of the letters of release, he explained that it did not look like their company letterhead as the company name was not in the middle of the top of the page.

He asked questions of some people within the company to find out if anyone gave them letterhead. The witness could not find that anyone did give them letterhead. However, he could not be sure that it couldn't have happened. The witness confirmed that he was the one who received the payments by Chariots delivered by Mr. Mitropoulos, however, he could not say which of the 10 leased vehicles to payment payments were for. He anticipated, however, that the payments would be applied across all of the vehicles as necessary by the accounting department.

Late in the year 2000 or early in the year 2001 he discovered that there were problems with Chariots and he placed a call to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("O.M.V.I.C.") He explained that he might have spoken to Mary Jane South and told her that there were serious problems as they found that 7 vehicles had been transferred out of the name of Halton Honda without his knowledge for permission. Mr Pittaway was not sure what documentation he had sent to her other than the lien searches. Although he had made a note that there had been a conversation, he did not take notes of the contents of the conversation. He was also unsure if the lease payments on the vehicles were up to date at the time of the transfer. By the late autumn of 2001, he was aware that arrears of payments had become an issue. His standard practice during this time, was that he did not do checks of the fleet of leased vehicles to keep track of whether there were problems. The police became involved in the matter, and charges of fraud were brought against Chariots but he did not know the status of it or whether Halton Honda had brought civil proceeding against them.

Mr. Pittaway agreed that during his 17 years in business he had seen letters of release used in the transfer of leased vehicles. The policy at Halton Honda was to keep the ownership in the file and not to give both sides of the document to the lessee. He agreed that at the time of the transaction there were to his knowledge no written standards published by O.M.V.I.C. concerning the proper procedures for the sale of a leased vehicle and that the suggested procedures were later set out in the Dealer Standard in April 2002 (Exhibit 7). As a result of this publication, Halton Autolease has since made of changes to their procedures.

Michael Goba

The second witness for the Registrar was Mr. Michael Goba the stated that he is the leasing manager for North York Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. and has worked there in that capacity since April 2001. He was not involved in the original leasing arrangements with Chariots as it was before his time, but he was involved in the extensions of the leases. To his knowledge there were over 40 leases to Chariots. North York Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. had leased in excess of 40 vehicles to Chariots.

Mr. Goba was aware that some of the vehicles which were leased in 1999 had been bought out, but 37 or 38 could not be accounted for, and he was aware that some had been transferred into the name of Tri-Star. In January 2002 he received a call from another dealer advising him to do motor vehicle history searches as some of the vehicles had been transferred out of the name of North York Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. He testified that when he did the searches based on this information, he found that of the current leases all but 3 had been transferred and that some had been transferred to Tri-Star. According to the records he found in the files, and the information he obtained, the dealership had never agreed to the transfers or that the ownerships be signed over. At the time of the transfers there were liens registered on virtually all of the vehicles except for one or two where there were lien extensions which were not registered. There was no record of any release letters being given or of any inquiries having been made by Tri-Star concerning the transfers. He explained that for the ownership documents, the right side is given to the person having the plate but the left side stays with the leasing company and was not released to the lessee. The witness examined copies of leasing documents at (Exhibit 3, Tabs 39 to 58) that show the dates and durations of the leases vary. When he was shown copies of letters of release, (Exhibit 5, Tabs 24 to 43) he stated that when he searched the files he found no record of the releases and explained that the company will not release a lien prior to the vehicle being paid for in full. In addition, the format of the letter was not one use by the dealer for their letters of release. There was also a problem with the signatures on the letters of release and he saw that the name C. Monro was incorrectly spelled when it was typed at the bottom of the letters. The name of the actual person was Monroe, and he observed that the signature was incorrect and assumed that if the documents had been prepared by the proper person, they would spell their own name correctly.

In cross-examination Mr. Goba agreed that he would have had no dealings with Chariots prior to April 2001 when he joined the company. The fact that there were over 40 leases to Chariots meant that they were a significant customer for North York Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. and at the time he joined the dealership he had no reason to believe that Chariots was not a reputable company. It was not until after he was with the dealership for a period of time that problems began to surface. He knew that C. Monroe worked for the accounts receivable office of the dealership and would have dealt with Chariots concerning overdue accounts and receivables. The letterhead appeared to be the type used by the dealership and he spoke to people in the dealership to try to find out where Chariots could have obtained letterhead but was unable to discover anything, although he did speculate that the letterhead could have been obtained from a fax or a copy of a prior release that was given. Chariots had continued to make sporadic payments on some of the vehicles, but major issues arose surrounding arrears of payments.

On January 10, 2002 the dealership was advised that they should do searches on the leased vehicles and this showed that transfers that occurred. He did not know if he had called O.M.V.I.C. at that time. Mr. Goba did know that charges had been brought against Chariots and that the dealership was seeking compensation but did not know the status of it although he did not know if anything had been received yet.

The witness testified that he had been in the car business for 20 years and had spent between 14 and 15 years in leasing, and agreed that it was a common practice to use letters of release in the sale of leased vehicle. As a result of the experience in this case, he now asks for V.I.N. searches on all vehicles.

Joe Wade

The next witness called by the Registrar was Mr. Joe Wade who is the owner of Leasewell Inc ("Leasewell") and testified that he had been registered as a motor vehicle dealer for between 13 and 14 years and had leased 5 vehicles to Chariots. These leases all ran until January 2001 and were reproduced in (Exhibit 4, Tabs 59 - 63). He explained that the practice of his company is to retain the ownership side of the ownership document at the dealership and to release only the license plate side of the ownership document to the lessee and he believed that his dealership still had the ownership portion of the documents. On the expiry of the leases in January 2001 there was an automatic renewal for a one year period pursuant to item 25 of the lease agreement, in the absence of notice to the contrary being given to the lessor within the prescribed time. For the vehicles leased by Chariots, the extensions were never put into effect as the cars were missing. They were advised that the cars were missing, so he contacted the License Bureau and found that the cars were no longer in the name of Leasewell and had been sold two or three times. Of the 5 vehicles, 4 of them had been registered to Tri-Star. These transfers had taken place without the knowledge or consent of Leasewell and there were no liens still registered on the cars as the liens had expired.

In cross-examination, Mr. Wade confirmed that he did credit checks on Chariots and they appeared to be reputable. At the beginning of the business relationship they were a good client. When the witness was shown letters of release purportedly from Leasewell, he stated that they were not authentic, and it were not on their Leasewell's letterhead. Further, he pointed out that they were signed by Mary Munroe and that there was no one at his company by that name. It was not his practice to do periodic spot checks on the status of his vehicles, but when he did do the checks in 2001 he found that the transfers had taken place. As a result of this, he called the police and was not sure if he called O.M.V.I.C. at that time. Although he had sought compensation, he had received nothing so far, and was pursuing Chariots, the owners and other people as well.

In his experience of between 13 and 14 years in the leasing business, he said it was not common to his knowledge that release of lien letters were used for the sale of vehicles but he was not really aware of prevailing industry standards.

V. Jay Kholsa

The next witness on behalf of the Registrar was Mr. V. Jay Khosla who was the leasing manager at Kerr Cadillac, ("Kerr"). He testified that he has been with the dealership since November 1, 1996 and has been in the industry since 1981. In May 2000 the began leasing vehicles to a numbered company operating as Chariots of Hire and over his dealings with them, leased a total of 64 vehicles.

In his evidence he referred to the document at (Exhibit 3, Tabs 32 -38) and stated that the original ownership would have been retained by the dealership in a safe. It was also the policy of the dealership to keep a photo copy of the license plate. When he was alerted by Halton Honda in January 2002 to the fact that there could be a problem with the vehicles, he conducted vehicles searches and found that all 6 of these vehicles had been transferred into the name of Tri-Star even though he had never agreed to the transfers. He had no knowledge of anyone at the dealership giving consent and stated that there was still a lien on the vehicles, and that there was still a lien at time of the sale. The witness stated that he is the only one who does lien releases for the dealership, and he only does them when the vehicles are paid out.

When he saw the letters of release purporting to be from Kerr he explained that he did not sign the documents and the wording in them was not the wording used by the dealership. In this case he stated that he did not authorize the releases and assumed that the document was falsely produced using part of an invoice. At no time did Tri-Star contact him to try to verify the letters.

In cross-examination Mr. Kholsa testified that he did not know Mr. Jinnah, and did not know anything about Chariots until he personally visited their office. He dealt with them in the normal manner and did usual checks. The witness found that Mrs. Jinnah was a practicing dentist and that they owned substantial property. He visited with them periodically until October of 2001 to check on the vehicles and stated that there were 7 leases in issue and for the other vehicles, all but 2 were in the possession of Kerr. When he was shown the letter of release at (Exhibit 5, Tab 20) he explained that it looked like an invoice, however the letters at (exhibit 5, Tabs 19 & 21) are what the letterhead actually look like. He was not aware how they came into the possession of letterhead, but assumed it was a cut and paste from an authentic letterhead. Mr. Jinnah would also have had a sample of his signature from the leasing documents. Until the discovery of the problem in January 2002, the payments were being made properly.

When the problem was discovered his employer contacted the police and he was unaware of any efforts being made to obtain compensation. In March 2001 he knew that Chariots was having problems as there were difficulties with cheques being returned N.S.F., however they were replaced by certified cheques the same day. He was not aware of any industry standard at the time concerning the giving of letters of release.

Amanda Dempsy

The next witness called on behalf of the Registrar was Amanda Dempsey. She has been the manager of inspections at O.M.V.I.C. since 1999 and was originally hired in 1997 as an inspector. Her evidence was that she had inspected Tri-Star in the past, and in 1997 and 1998 her inspection lead to a Proposal to revoke the registration of Tri-Star and eventually a decision by this Tribunal. When she attempted to inspect in August 2000, the dealer did not appear to be at the premises and on September 1, 2000 she attended with Elizabeth Browning who was a trainee. The purpose of this inspection was to ensure compliance with the Act and the terms and conditions as agreed to on February 1, 2000 (Exhibit 3, Tab 2). A short report and notes were made concerning the inspection. Mr. Mitropoulos met with them and they explained the purpose of their visit. They reviewed the bills of sale since August 2000 and requested approximately 16 bills of sale as they had a RIN. number printout showing all the registered transfers. They also reviewed the terms and conditions in the Consent Order of February 1, 2000 and discussed the issue of a sign which was supposed to be up to advise clients of their right to contact O.M.V.I.C. if they were having problems. When they left, they told Mr. Mitropoulos that they would return the books and records and that he was in breach of the Agreement due to the lack of the sign, but it was not their decision as to what to do about it. Due to the fact that his prior problems involved odometer readings which had been whited out and changed on the paperwork, they primarily focused on checking the odometer reading on the bills of sale and compared them with the Odessa Auction contracts to ensure that sufficient disclosure was made to customers. She was unsure if they discussed anything else during the inspection.

In cross-examination Ms. Dempsey testified that when she was a full time inspector she annually she did about 800 to 900 inspection, but in the year 2000, only did about 56 and in 2001, a few less. She testified that she did remember this inspection as she was there to ensure compliance with the Consent Order. It was particularly important to her to see the Garage Register, and all the bills of sale. She had obtained an R.I.N. search showing all of the registrations for the particular dealer but she did not have it now, as it was probably thrown out.

Her evidence was that she was not aware of transactions with Chariots. When she was shown the copy of the Garage Register and the record of 20 transactions with Chariots she stated that she would have seen the transactions along with others but was unsure of what pages she looked at, although she does know what deals she looked at. Mr. Mitropoulos provided the information and records as requested. Her recollection was that she did not discuss Chariots with him however she did agree that one of the deals taken by her did involve Chariots. When she was shown the paperwork for the deal involving Chariots at (Exhibit 3 Tab 17) she stated that she did not remember that the dealer number for Chariots was missing and did not remember if it was discussed. Her recollection is that she did not have to ask for more information and simply photocopied the paperwork relating to the 16 transactions to follow up the issue of the odometer reading. She stated that the Registrant is entitled to purchase autos from a non dealer so the fact that Chariots was not a registered dealer did not raise a red flag with her. In her opinion at that time, the Registrant was not offside with the Terms and Conditions of his registration.

A colored photocopy of the Terms and Conditions (Exhibit 8) was produced and she stated that she may have highlighted it in yellow. The paragraphs highlighted were 1, 6, and 15, as there were breaches of them. However, she did not highlight paragraphs 10 or call as she did not know at that time that there was non-compliance. She explained that the R.I.N. printout shows the transaction dates for vehicles transferred into the company name but does not have the name of the seller. At the end of the inspection, she simply brought to his attention that there was non-compliance with regard to the sign. The witness had not seen problems with the Chariots transactions so based on her information at that time, it would not have been inappropriate to continue dealing with them.

Re-examination

In the re-examination, she stated that Chariots was not registered and therefore she had no jurisdiction over them. She simply took the paperwork on the deals so that she could examine the odometer readings. Several of the documents were missing the dealer number for the vendor or the purchaser or the sales person's number and several of the bills of sale were incomplete. She took the bills of sale to consider the transactions and follow up with the purchasers. When she explained the Terms and Conditions she didn't specifically explain to him what was the most important.

Mary Jane South

The final witness called by the Registrar was Mary Jane South who testified that she has been the Deputy Registrar of O.M.V.I.C. since 1997. Prior to that she was employed by the Ontario government for two years with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations and was the Deputy Registrar for Motor Vehicles. Before that she held a financial position relating to the administration of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. She explained that the Act is a public protection statute to ensure that people within the industry are financially responsible and carry on business with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law.

Ms South testified that Mr. Mitropoulos has his registration previously revoked for odometer tampering and he was finally registered subject to terms and conditions as set out in the Consent Order issued February 1, 2000 (Exhibit 3, Tab 2). At that time the primary concern was fraudulent transfers as there had been problems with odometer tampering and the fabrication of books and records, and auction bills of sale. The terms and conditions applied to the company as well as the individual registrants. The Registrar's position was that the terms and conditions had been breached, specifically under paragraph 10 as the Registrant was not permitted to conduct any purchase or sale with anyone who is in the business of buying or in selling motor vehicles without confirming that they are registered as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act. The Registrant did not confirm that Chariots was registered under the Act. Further, under paragraph 11 of the Terms and Conditions, the Registrant was to confirm that the vehicles sold were registered in the name of the purchaser prior to releasing the vehicle to the purchaser. Under paragraph 12 of the Terms and Conditions, the Registrant was required to ensure prior to purchasing a vehicle, that the vehicle was registered in the name of the seller. The Registrant also agreed that he would register the transactions himself.

The witness reviewed the chronological history of some of the transactions from (Exhibit 3, Tabs 25 to 31 and 32 38) which showed a series of transactions in which vehicles under lease to Chariots were purchased by Tri-Star when they were not registered to Chariots, in contravention of paragraph 12 of the Terms and Conditions. There was also a problem with some of the letters of release as they were dated after payments, so that the money had been paid prior to obtaining the release.

For the transaction set out at (Exhibit 5, Tab 16) there was no letter of release and in the transaction at (Exhibit 5, Tab 17) a partial payment was made prior to the letter of release, as the letter of release was dated December 12 and the cheques were dated December 5, and 14. The bill of sale was dated December 10, 2001 so the deal was clearly consummated prior to the receipt of the letter of release.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 10) the bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star was dated July 4, 2001, cheques were dated July 6, 2001 and July 12 2001 and the letter of release was dated July 9, 2001, showing that the deal had clearly closed prior to the letter of release being received.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 12) the bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star was dated July 4, 2001, the cheques were dated July 6, 2001 and July 12, 2001 and there was no letter of release relating to any of the for vehicles purchased. The letter of release was for a 2000 Honda Civic serial # 2HGEJ6680YH929908 whereas the bill of sale related to one 2000 Honda Civic serial # 2HGEJ6680Y4929908 and three other 2000 Honda Civics with completely dissimilar serial numbers.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 14) there was a bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated April 2, 2000 a bank draft dated March 29, 2001 and a cheque dated April 9 2001 as well as a letter of release dated April 5, 2001. The payment was therefore made and the deal was signed prior to the letter of release being obtained.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 15) there was a bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated July 4, 2001 for 4 2000 Honda Civics . Cheques were given dated July 6, 2001, July 12, 2001, and bank drafts dated July 11 2001, and July 6 2001, and there was a letter of release dated July 9, 2001 referring only to the fourth vehicle listed of the four vehicles on the bill of sale.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 16) there was a bill of sale from the Chariots to Tri-Star and a copy of the cheque, but there was no letter of release.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 17) there was a bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated December 10, 2001, cheques dated December 5 and December 12, 2001 and a letter of release purportedly from Kerr dated December 12, 2001, so it post dated the sale. The fax transmission information at the top of the page shows that it was sent from Chariots.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 18) the bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star was dated March 4, 2001, the cheque stub was dated March 15, 2001, 11 days later, and there was no letter of release.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 25) there was the bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated June 23, 2000, the bank draft was dated July 7 2000 and a letter of the release dated June 28, 2000 so the car would have been received prior to payment.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 29) there was a bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated June 7 or 2, 2000 as the date is partially obliterated. The bill of sale is for two vehicles, the payment was made by a cheque dated June 2, 2000, and the letter of release was dated June 29, 2000, so the transaction was completed before the letter of release was produced.

At (Exhibit 5, Tab 31) there was a bill of sale from Chariots to Tri-Star dated January 26, 2001 and a payment made by a cheque dated January 29, 2001, and a letter of release which was not dated until March 21, 2001 so the transaction was completed prior to the date of the letter of release. The fax transmission line at the top of the letter of release was from Chariots rather than North York Chevrolet Oldsmobile who were the purported originators of the letter.

At (Exhibit 3, Tabs 12, 13, 22 & 24) there was correspondence stating that there had been a spot inspection and it appeared that the dealer was not operating at the registered address. A letter dated March 24, 1997 was sent and a notice was given from an inspection on July 20, 2000 setting out concerns that the business was not operating at the proper address. There was a follow-up inspection on May 21, 2001 and it was reported that there was no one there, and a note was left asking for the registrant to notify them and arrange a time for an inspection. At this time there was a person on the premises who appeared to be a mechanic and was able to provide a telephone number to contact the registrant.

In cross examination Ms. South testified that she did not have a direct involvement in the original case against the Registrant. She was not the inspector and was only involved in her capacity as the Deputy Registrar. When she was asked if she considered Tri-Star to be in compliance with the terms and conditions as of December 31, 2001 she explained that they had not been, as there was a problem with the sign. Even though she had received this information in September 2000, as shown by the reports at (Exhibit 3, Tab 16) she did not decide to revoke at that time. When she met with Ms. Dempsey she found out that Tri-Star had put up the necessary sign, but had done so two years after the date of the Order. At this point she did not see the other particular concern and it appeared that Tri-Star was in compliance and as far as she knew, business was being conducted properly.

On January 8, 2002 things changed drastically and the Notice of Proposal was issued as they had received the complaint from Halton Honda and there were concerns over compliance with paragraph 10 of the terms and conditions (Exhibit 3, tab 2) which required that the registrant confirm that anyone he conducts a purchase or sale with who is in the business of selling motor vehicles, is a registered dealer under the Act. In addition to the complaint by Halton Honda there was concern expressed by a representative of the Used Car Dealers Association over vehicles transferred to Tri-Star without the knowledge or consent of the owner or a valid release of the lien from the owner. Mr. Pittaway had advised them of the problem. These vehicles had been leased to Chariots and liens registered, however they had been transferred into the name of Tri-Star. Notes of the conversations were made by the witness on the computer but there was no record made by hand which could be produced at this hearing. Mr. Wade had expressed concern that Tri-Star was paying Chariots for the vehicles while the vehicles were still registered to Leasewell .

On Thursday January 8, 2002 the witness checked the registration history of one of the vehicles with the Ministry of Transport and received a copy of the lease and the lien search (Exhibit 3, Tab 25). She did not call Tri-Star to get their explanation of this. By this time she knew that the police were investigating the matter as fraud, and she dealt with it as an administrative matter, so did not investigate it separately as a fraud. Her concern was whether there was a breach of the terms and conditions, or of the Act, and she did not advise Tri-Star that she was investigating. She agreed that she was under a duty to act fairly and stated that she issued the Final Notice on January 15 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 6) as there were a lot of assets at stake and she had to move quickly. The witness agreed that she had not given the Registrant the right to a hearing prior to the issue of the Final Notice, and said that under clause 19 of the Consent Order she was entitled to carry out the proposal to revoke the registration once there was a breach of the Terms and Conditions (Exhibit 3 Tab 2). Her understanding was that a hearing was not necessary as it had been dispensed with on consent in the third paragraph of the Consent Order. The revocation could take place without a hearing when there was a breach of the terms and conditions as there had been agreement that if the Terms and Conditions are breached, that the Registrar is authorized and directed by the Order to carry out the Proposal to revoke the registration. Her justification for believing that the breach was of a serious nature was that the term in paragraph 12 had been breached which required the registrant to ensure that vehicles sold were registered in the name of the vendor. Also paragraph 11 had been breached which required that any vehicles sold were registered in the name of the purchaser before releasing the vehicle to the purchaser. When the Final Notice was given the witness explained that she did not take into account the findings at the inspection as the issues arose out of the complaints of other dealers. The focus of the inspection had not been the issue of the release of liens or the name of the owner at the time of the purchase of the vehicles. She did not discuss the issue of the proposal with Ms. Dempsey or with the Applicant. In September 2001, they knew that he was buying from Chariots but the problem was that he was buying a lot of cars with liens so they were not simply isolated transactions. She explained that the problem was with the way of doing business not with the fact of doing business. If it had been a "1 off deal" it would not have been as likely to raise the issue of making inquiries of whether Chariots was a registered dealer. Ms. South agreed that Chariots is an offender but they had no jurisdiction over him and did not prosecute him.

Ms. South was not personally aware of the proper practice to release liens by letter but did say that O.M.V.I.C. has been working since then to tighten the standards. She recognized (Exhibit 7) which was a copy of the Dealer Standard published by O.M.V.I.C. and was involved with its development. It does refer to letters being used to release liens, but sets out other procedures to check the veracity of them with the lienholders.

The points made in the publication suggested that before purchasing a vehicle a check should be made for liens, whether or not there was a wholesale transaction, and if there is a lien to obtain an original letter of release from the creditor and call to verify the authenticity of the letter of release as many dealers had been given forgeries. The last point was that the seller should provide an original vehicle permit showing that the vehicle is registered in his name. These suggestions were considered best practices. However the witness was not sure if the failure of Mr. Mitropoulos to follow these practices prior to the publication of the document by O.M.V.I.C. meant that his practices fell below the prevailing industry standard at the time.

Witness For The Applicant

Mr. Vasilios Mitropoulos was the only witness who testified on behalf of the Registrants. He stated that he was 54 years of age, has been married for 33 years to Parthenia Mitropoulos. He has a grade 6 education and had been in the industry for between 22 and 23 years as he was first licensed in the autumn of 1982 with Sun Motor Sales. Following that, he obtained his dealer's license with Trust Motor Sales in 1983, and started Tri-Star Sales and Leasing in 1992. He is an officer and director, sales person and the controlling mind of Tri-Star. His wife is registered as a sales person and works at the dealership. However, her role is very limited. She basically runs errands out of the office such as going to the bank and picking up ownerships. The business is located at 3252 Danforth Avenue. The witness estimated that the business of the dealership is about 99.9% wholesale and that in the last 2 years he has only sold between 5 and 10 cars retail. He did have the difficulty when the registrations of the dealership, of himself and his of wife as sales persons were revoked for problems relating to odometer readings. When that matter was before the Tribunal, he took responsibility for it and it ended up being settled by entering into terms and conditions once an appeal was launched after the Tribunal upheld the revocation. Pursuant to this agreement, Tri-Star was registered as a dealer again and he and his wife were registered as sales persons. Mr. Mitropoulos stated that he did read the terms and conditions over prior to signing them on February 1, 2000 and that they were explained to him. In his opinion he had complied with them.

Mr. Mitropoulos testified that he met Mr. Nazir Jinnah in 1997 when Mr. Jinnah was working in a dealership. He later found that Mr. Jinnah was going to be opening a business near him and in 1999 he saw that Mr. Jinnah had opened a rental business 2 or 3 doors away from Tri-Star. Mr. Jinnah was renting cars to the public on a daily, weekly or monthly basis, and by March or April he started dealing with him. Mr. Jinnah had cars to sell and the witness was interested in purchasing good cars so they would negotiate prices, come to an agreement and conclude the deals. He knew that Mr. Jinnah was operating Chariots from two locations and then he got a third and fourth location. Mr. Jinnah told him that the company was doing well, and that a one time he had a fleet of up to 230 vehicles.

Mr. Mitropoulos referred to his Garage Register (Exhibit 5, Tab 9) and explained that it records the date of purchases, the name of the seller, and the date the vehicle is sold and the name of the purchaser. He pointed out some transactions with Chariots and said that there could be some mistakes on the dates. During the transactions Mr. Jinnah told him that he was the owner of the vehicles and the witness would attend at Chariots so that he could see the vehicle and evaluate the price he was prepared to pay. There would be a negotiation of the appropriate price with Mr. Jinnah and once that had been settled Mr. Jinnah would prepare a bill of sale, sign it and then the witness would pay for the car. Mr. Jinnah would provide a signed ownership for him and a letter of release. In his opinion there were no problems with the transaction and he obtained the letter of release as he was concerned over the liens. During his time in the motor vehicle business, the witness became quite familiar with the use of letters of release and estimates that he had used them at least 500 times over 20 years. When he had the signed ownership he would attend to the registration himself to transfer it into the name of Tri-Star. He would later attend for the transfer into the name of the new purchaser once he had sold the vehicle. He did not call to confirm the ownership of the vehicle as everything with the transactions seemed okay to him. When he sold the cars, they were sold wholesale to other dealers. The purchasers from him required the ownership to be signed over to them, and they also wanted a letter of release. He provided them with the same letter of release that he had been given, and to his knowledge no one contacted the original owner to confirm the release.

When the inspection took place September 1, 2000 he remembered that the inspector looked at approximately 20 transactions. At that time he was doing business with several other companies the same way that he was dealing with Chariots. After the Consent Order was signed, a representative from O.M.V.I.C came to his premises and left a note and business card (Exhibit 5, Tab 4). They wanted to see his Garage Register and the bills of purchase and sale after the date of the Consent Order February 1, 2000 so he called them and set up a time for the appointment for September 1, 2000. When they came in they had a printout for certain vehicles, and wanted the documentation for them. They took the invoices and went over the Garage Register with him and he recalls showing them the bills of purchase and sale for approximately 16 - 18 vehicles. His recollection was that they did discuss Chariots. When Ms. Dempsey asked him if Chariots was registered as a dealer he was advised that they were not, and he replied that it didn't matter as it was a rental company and not a dealership. He was asked about the transaction at (Exhibit 3 Tab 17) a Honda Odyssey and he produced the invoice showing who he had sold it to.

There was discussion concerning the lack of a sign displaying the name and phone number of O.M.V.I.C. for anyone with a complaint. He was advised what would be done if he did not immediately put up the sign, as required, and that nothing would be done if he put the sign up. The inspectors did not explain that there was anything else wrong, and he did review the terms of the Consent Order. Ms. Dempsey highlighted the parts of it to be drawn to his attention. They discussed the terms and conditions and that if there was a breach there could be the revocation of the registration. It did not seem at that time that he had breached anything serious. He was not advised of any problems with regard to terms 10 for 12 of the terms and conditions. The inspectors reviewed the bills of sale and the invoices as well as the money orders and the inspectors did not ask to see the letters of release. They had a printout, and discussed the fact that the vehicle was not registered to Chariots. When the inspector came back 7 days later to bring his documentation back and check the sign, he was not told that he was not in compliance, so after that he continued business as unusual and did 55 or 60 more deals with Chariots. In these transactions he had letters of release. However, after the sale of the vehicle, he had to give the letter of release to the purchaser either through the auction or to a used car dealership so he often than did not have one in the file as he didn't have time to make copies. Most of the letters received by him from Chariots, were by fax. He testified that he believed that he was in compliance with the Terms and Conditions and was surprised when he heard about the problem in January 2002.

During that time a representative from O.M.V.I.C. passed by his office to check he was still at the same location. In January 2002 he received telephone calls from other dealers asking if he had paid for vehicles and it was not until he was at Halton Honda that he was told that his license was revoked and he advised them that as far as he knew it was in good standing. Finally in mid January he got the letter from O.M.V.I.C. advising him of the revocation. This document he received was the Final Notice (exhibit 5, Tab 6) and when he contacted Mary Jane South at O.M.V.I.C. to find out why he was revoked he was simply advised to call his lawyer. On page 2 of the Final Notice he was told that he had to liquidate his inventory through a wholesale dealers to dealer auction.

He had a letter sent by his lawyer to Mr. Jinnah at Chariots seeking compensation but as yet he has received no reply. The police had spoken to him concerning the charges against Mr. Jinnah and Chariots and Mr. Mitropoulos explained that no charges were brought against him or his company and the officer told him that he was another victim.

Recently he received the Dealers Standard (Exhibit 7) from O.M.V.I.C. setting out the best practices for purchasers of vehicles dealing with lessees. However, prior to that, there was no written directive on how to conduct the transactions and he thought it was sufficient as long as there were bills of sale and letters of release as were commonly used. Even in the Dealers Standard publication itself it mentioned that many dealers had been stung with forgeries so he knew he was not alone.

In cross examination he repeated that he had taken responsibility for the odometer problem in the prior hearing as the odometer reading on some of the paperwork had been changed but he maintained that it was not by him. When Ms. Dempsey had requested the documentation he gave her everything he had and reviewed the terms and conditions with her. At the time that they were signed on February 1, 2000 he had reviewed them with his lawyer.

At the time of the inspection no steps were taken regarding non-compliance except that he was told that he should have had the sign up but he had not done so as he didn't think it was needed because he was not dealing with the public. When he was asked about the transactions for a person named Bill and a person named JoAnne on March 16, 2000, he said that these were simply buyouts of existing leases and were therefore not the sale of vehicles to the public. He agreed that paragraph 2 of the terms and conditions required a sign of a certain size and with specific contents to be in position at all times but he stated he did not post it as he was not selling retail. He stated that he did have a retail and wholesale registration but that no one had walked in to inquire about the vehicles. He stated that he had applied for a wholesale registration only but that he had been given the retail registration as well but has never applied to be changed to wholesale. His evidence was that he had been operating at the same location since February 2000.

Mr. Mitropoulos explained that he had met Mr. Jinnah when Mr. Jinnah was employed at an Accura dealership as a new car manager so he had no direct business dealing with him. In March or April 1999 he met Mr. Jinnah when the rental business was a few doors from Tri-Star and he discussed the possibility of purchasing vehicles as Chariots was operated as a rental business and had cars to sell after the period of rental use. When he was asked what steps he took to ensure that Chariots was a reputable business he repeated that they had over 230 vehicles in the fleet, had four locations, and were carrying on business with viable dealers. He did not do credit checks or searches with the Ministry. The witness explained that he did not do lien searches although he knew of the liens, as he was selling to other dealers who did do lien searches so there was no need to do them twice. He felt it was sufficient to simply get the letters of release. His policy was that when buying from dealers he did not need to do lien searches, and when he was selling the vehicles to other dealers, they would advise him of the liens. He stated that when he sold vehicles he told the purchasing dealer that the vehicle might have a lien as it was a leased vehicle. The witness also agreed that he was signing agreements of purchase and sale to sell the vehicles free and clear prior to getting the letters of release. Most of the letters of release were sent to him by fax, and he believed had been originally sent to Mr. Jinnah who then forwarded a copy to him. He agreed upon examining the letters of release in the exhibits that the only fax transmission lines were from Chariots and there was no indication that they had originated with the lessors..

Mr. Mitropoulos agreed that in some instances he had given money prior to obtaining the letter of release for the liens. At this point the witness said that he;

" did not always call the lessor to confirm the lien release"

He continued by explaining that he did not conduct the lien search to ensure the liens were removed and didn't take steps beyond receiving the letter of release to verify that the liens were removed. When he was in the leasing business he was involved in lease to own transactions, and stated that he would only give a letter when the lien was paid. He usually gave a letter stating that the lien was paid rather than registering anything to remove it. In his experience he did not give a letter of release to anyone other than a lessee when he was acting as the lessor.

On the issue of ownership of the vehicles he clearly stated that for the vehicles purchased from Chariots he knew that they were not the registered owners of the vehicles. He explained that he knew that the terms and conditions required that he only purchase vehicles from the registered owner and that he was obliged to ensure that the seller was the registered owner but he explained that if they had the lease they had the right to own the vehicle when it was paid for and that was good enough for him. He understood that only when the person was the owner, the registration would be in their name. The witness stated that he knew that the vehicles were not registered in the name of Chariots and he was satisfied that the ownerships were signed by someone at the dealerships and, as far as he knew, it was given to Mr. Jinnah. Again he made no effort to contact the dealer to confirm that it was properly signed over. Mr. Mitropoulos explained that he was not worried about registering the vehicle prior to the lien being formally being removed as in his experience it took approximately 30 days for a company to register the release of a lien.

When Mr. Mitropoulos was asked about purchases from other rental companies such as Roots Car Rental, he explained that it was the same situation and that some cars were registered to Roots Car Rental and some were not. In (Exhibit 10) it was shown that for one of the vehicles, Roots Car Rental was the registered owner prior to the car being sold to Tri-Star.

The witness testified that when Ms. Browning came on September 1, 2000 she had a printout of the vehicle histories which gave the V.I.N. number and asked for those specific documents. He got the bills for the purchases and sales of those 16 to 20 deals for her, and when she came back a week later she brought those documents with her, and checked to make sure that he had put up the required sign. When he was asked about 'x' marks which appeared beside certain transactions in his Garage Register primarily for July and August 2000 he said that he was unsure why they were there. Ms. Browning and Ms. Dempsey asked for deals up to the end of August 2000 and he did not know if they looked at the deals before that as he did not make notes of which papers they took. During the inspection Ms. Browning asked if Chariots was a registered dealer and Ms. Dempsey said no that they were a rental company. He stated that he was told that they would be satisfied if he put the sign on his wall and this was the only violation of the terms and conditions mentioned to him. He believes that the prior owner of the vehicles was not Chariots and Ms. Dempsey said it was not a problem so long as the contract was signed by whoever he purchased the vehicle from. The only other discussion was that the books seemed a lot better now since the last inspection. Ms. Dempsey raised the issue of the Chariots transactions and wanted specific documents based on the printout she had brought with her. There was nothing in writing from them indicating that it was not a problem that the vehicles had not been registered to Chariots. His recollection was that they had primarily dealt with the sign and that it was sufficient if it was put up within the week

Mr. Mitropoulos was asked why he had considered himself a victim in dealings with Chariots and he explained that this is what he was told by the police. He explained that even though he was paid for the vehicles had sold them and had not paid the dealers back, he was a victim as he had suffered a loss of credibility within the industry and said that his name had been in the publication of the Used Car Dealers Association.

Re-examination

In re-examination, he explained that the matter had been taken up with the Used Car Dealers Association and there was ongoing litigation over the losses.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The facts found by the Tribunal are that at the time of these transactions Tri-Star and the individual registrants were subject to the terms and conditions set out in (Exhibit 1).

Chariots was not a registered dealer and was in the business of renting cars to consumers. Chariots acquired vehicles on lease and did not become the registered owner. The vehicles were subject to liens which were registered and the vehicles in the transactions before this Tribunal were sold during the term of the lease; during the extension period of the lease; or after the expiration of the lease. There was a practice in the industry of vehicles subject to lease being sold with the prior written permission of the lessor by the use of a letter of release. The companies involved in the leasing of vehicles in this case had policies of not issuing letters of release until the liens were paid out. The letters of release from Halton Honda, Leasewell, North York and Kerr were not issued by the registered owner, and were created fraudulently. Tri-Star purchased vehicles on the strength of the false documents and no efforts were made to check their veracity. Tri-Star had a policy of not checking for the registration of liens but would have had knowledge that there were liens on the vehicles as some form of letter of release was requested and obtained from Chariots on most of the vehicles.

No efforts were made to contact the lessor or to have a search conducted on the vehicles to ensure that they were registered in the name of Chariots who was the vendor. It is clear that Mr. Mitropoulos knew that these vehicles were on lease as he knew that there were liens and advised the purchasers that they could be leased vehicles. It is found that Mr. Mitropoulos understood that he was obliged to purchase only from the registered owner, and he knew that the lessee was not the registered owner. However, he was willing to deal with the lessee on the basis that they would have the right to own the car when it was paid for. Unfortunately he did not ensure the payment was directed to the lessor so that the person that he was paying for the vehicle would be the registered owner of the car. Despite this knowledge, he chose to proceed with the transactions and relied upon the letters of release. The lessee may have had the right to pay off the lien and thereby take title to the vehicle, but Mr. Mitropoulos made no provision to ensure that the lien was paid and the lessee became the owner with the result that due to a fraud by Chariots and a failure to follow the Terms and Conditions by Tri-Star, the owners were deprived of their vehicles. Aside from the fraudulent nature of the letters of release and the breaches of the Terms and Conditions, the use of the letters of release in many cases was improper, as there was a pattern of deals being concluded, and money being paid prior to the date of the letters of release in any event. Mr. Mitropoulos registered the deals himself, and would have been aware that the name on the ownership was not Chariots, from whom he was buying the vehicles. There was also the matter of the lack of a sign which was a clear breach of the Terms and Conditions. However, Mr. Mitropoulos decided that he was not dealing with the public so that it was not necessary and did not put up the required sign until it was brought to his attention during an inspection. Unfortunately, when the inspection was done, it focussed on the issue of the odometers and a comparison of the bills of sale with the documents for the acquisition of the vehicles, since in the past Mr. Mitropoulos had problems related to odometer readings

There was no clear industry standard at the time by which it was a well-documented practice to checked on the authenticity of the letters of release. However, in this case, there was a total disregard for the liens as he not only did not verify the letters, but he had repeated instances of proceeding with a deal in the absence of a release of lien letter. In some cases these were obtained later but in other cases they were not obtained at all. Most of the letters which were obtained appeared to be faxed from Chariots and were not even sent from the lessor so no effort was made to obtain a copy directly from the lessor. Even if the industry standard was very low at this time, this particular Registrant was subject to the terms and conditions which imposed specific duties which were clearly set out in the document and which held this Registrant to a particular standard. He was a person with extensive experience in the motor vehicle industry, and chose to get the deals closed rather than comply with the Terms and Conditions. This was not an isolated failure to follow an unclear or confusing requirement, and even if he had not been subject to terms and conditions, his willingness to close a deal without a letter of release might give reasonable grounds to have serious doubts about his honesty and integrity.

This is not a case of mere carelessness or an isolated incident, but shows a pattern of behaviour which lacked the level of honesty and integrity necessary in a regulated industry which deals with the sale to the public of goods of high value.

It is found that Mrs. Mitropoulos took no part in the selling of the vehicles or the purchases. Her role was limited to running errands such as picking up ownerships and minor tasks. Aside from this there is no mention of her during the evidence as to the events in this case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Act provides that the Registrar may revoke the registration of the Applicant where the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following fact to be relevant to the credibility of the Registrant.

In the examination in chief, Mr. Mitropoulos made it clear that he did not phone to confirm the letters of release but in cross examination he tried to imply that he did call some of the time by saying that he; "did not always call the lessor to confirm the lien releases.

On the issue of whether the Applicant will carry on business in accordance with the law, the Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct.

The Registrant was aware of the requirements set out in the Terms and Conditions in the Consent Order, and was a person of substantial experience within the industry. In this case, it is clear that he specifically knew that the motor vehicles were leased and that Chariots was not the registered owner. He therefore knowingly, and willingly, proceeded with the transactions with knowledge that he was failing to meet a term to which he was subject. Under paragraph 12 of the Consent Order, he was obliged to ensure that vehicles he purchased were registered to the seller. In this case, he didn't simply fail to make the necessary inquiries, it is clear that he had actual knowledge that the vehicles were not registered to the seller as required, and chose to proceed with the transaction in any event, so it is not a case of negligence or carelessness. Similarly, he decided that it was not necessary for him to put up the sign even though it was required in paragraph 1 of the Consent Order. He chose not to comply because he did not think he should have to do so as he said he was not selling retail, although he was licenced to do so, and took no steps to have that changed. Fortunately, there is no proof that anyone suffered any losses due to this action. However, it does again show a course of conduct which is not consistent with meeting the obligation to carry on business according to the law

Mrs. Mitropoulos appears to have played a very minor role in the day-to-day business of the dealership. However, there was evidence that one of her tasks involved picking up ownerships for transactions. If this is the case, she would have been in a position to take note of the name of the owner of the vehicle and would have known that Chariots was not the owner and would know that the dealership was buying cars from someone other than the registered owner. There is no evidence as to which transactions she was involved with by picking up the ownerships. She also failed to take steps to put up the sign required by the terms and conditions. Even though she was apparently not out making the deals, it is clear that she took no steps to ensure compliance.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity honesty and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registration of the Applicants.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This hearing arises out of a written Notice of Proposal dated January 29, 2002 issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act") to refuse the registration of Vihn H. Luong (the "Applicant") as a motor vehicle salesperson under the provisions of the Act.

The Applicant was not present at the hearing nor was he represented at the hearing. The matter was called at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, June 17, 2002 and when the Applicant was not present or represented the matter stood down for 30 minutes in terms of the practice of the Tribunal. When the matter was again called at 10:15 a.m. the Applicant was still not present nor was he represented. The Tribunal then heard preliminary evidence as to the service of the Notice of Hearing upon the Applicant and after satisfying itself that service had been effected on the Applicant, the hearing proceeded.

The Registrar bases his Proposal to Refuse the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on Section 6.(1) of the Act, which reads as follows:

6.(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

The Registrar further bases his Proposal to Refuse registration in terms of section 5.(1)(b) of the Act, which reads as follows:

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

...

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

...

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

In support of the Notice of Proposal to refuse registration to the Applicant the Registrar furnished particulars therein, which read as follows:

PARTICULARS

The reasons for this proposal are:

1. The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about January 4, 2002. He proposes to work for 970910 Ontario Inc. o/a Prestige Motors.
2. On the application to become a registered salesperson question 9 asks:
"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)."

The Applicant answered, "Yes", indicating:

"Possession — pending controlled substance
Conspiracy to Import — pending controll (sic) substance
- cases are pending in court, been remanded 5 times already, co-accused has been fully drop (all charges), no preliminary date has been assigned hopefully within the next year."

3. A criminal record search found that the Applicant has the following charges pending:

September 17, 2001: Conspiracy to Import Ecstasy 465(1)(C) - 6 (1) CDSA
Conspiracy for the Purpose to Traffic 465(1)(C) - 5(2) CDSA
Possession for the Purpose to Traffic 5(2) CDSA
Possession of Marihuana 4(1) CDSA

4. The Applicant has failed to comply with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and in particular with section 5.

(Exhibit 3)

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence introduced by the Registrar consisted of the testimony of Alan Joseph Prytula. In addition the Registrar introduced documentary evidence.

Testimony of Alan Joseph Prytula

Alan Joseph Prytula ("Prytula") testified that he is a member of the Drug Section of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police ("RCMP") stationed at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Prytula testified that criminal charges were laid against the Applicant and two other persons, namely Jodie Tse and Thieu Trinh. The charges were that they:

between the 1st day of August, 2001, and the 13th day of September, 2001 inclusive, at the City of Amsterdam in the Netherlands, in the City of Mississauga, the City of Niagara Falls and elsewhere in the Province of Ontario, did conspire together the one with the other or the others of them and with a person or persons unknown, to commit an indictable offence, namely to import into Canada a Schedule III Controlled Substance to wit 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, contrary to Section 6(1) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act, thereby committing an indictable offence contrary to Section 465(1)(c) of the Criminal Code of Canada;

AND FURTHER THAT Vinh Hung LUONG, Jodie TSE and Thieu TRINH, between the 1st day of August 2001 and the 13th day of September 2001 inclusive, at the City of Amsterdam in the Netherlands, in the City of Mississauga, the City of Niagara Falls, and elsewhere in the Province of Ontario, did conspire together the one with the other or the others of them and with a person or persons unknown to commit an indictable offence, namely to have in their possession a Schedule III Controlled Substance to wit 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, for the purpose of trafficking, contrary to Section 5(2) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act, thereby committing an indictable offence contrary to Section 465(1)(c) of the Criminal Code of Canada;

AND FURTHER THAT Vinh Hung LUONG, Jodie TSE and Thieu TRINH on or about the 13th day of September 2001 at the City of Niagara Falls in the Central South Region, unlawfully did have in their possession a Schedule III Controlled Substance, to wit: 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, for the purpose of trafficking contrary to Section 5(2) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act;

AND FURTHER THAT Vinh Hung LUONG, Jodie TSE and Thieu TRINH on or about the 13th day of September 2001 at the City of Niagara Falls in the Central South Region, unlawfully did have in their possession a Schedule II Controlled Substance, to wit: Cannabis (marihuana) contrary to Section 4(1) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act;

The current status regarding the criminal charges is that all such charges have been withdrawn against Tse and Trinh and that the Applicant has been committed for trial on the first three of the four charges referred to above.

Prytula went on to state that he has knowledge of the facts to which he testified before the Tribunal and that on August 21, 2001 Canada Customs intercepted a package mailed from Amsterdam and addressed to 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario. The package was handed over to the Drug Section of the R.C.M.P. who attended at the above address and noted 3 motor vehicles parked outside the residence, one of which, it was determined through a C.P.I.C. search, was registered to the Applicant, whose address was given as 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls. The package was submitted by the R.C.M.P. for analysis to the Department of Health & Welfare. The result of the analysis was that the package contained some 7,000 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine, commonly referred to as Ecstasy.

Following receipt of the analysis of the package, a general search warrant was obtained to search the residence at 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls. Prior to the execution of the general search warrant the package containing the 7,000 tablets of Ecstasy was on September 13, 2001, delivered by a police constable, posing as a private courier, to 6516 Monroe Street. Upon delivery of the package the Applicant opened the front door to the residence. The Applicant advised the courier that he resided at the residence but that the addressee named on the package was not then at the residence but would be returning shortly. The Applicant accepted and signed for the package. The name of the address on the package was not that of the Applicant.

At approximately 4 p.m. on September 13, 2001 the general search warrant was executed at 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls. The Applicant was present at the time of the search of the premises at 6516 Monroe Street. The package delivered by the courier earlier that day was found unopened in a bedroom in the residence. The Applicant identified the bedroom as his bedroom. Also found in the bedroom occupied by the Applicant were some 29 pills. These 29 pills were found in an open clay box on a table in the bedroom. The 29 pills were seized and sent for analysis, which analysis confirmed the pills to be Ecstasy. The street value of the 7000 Ecstasy tablets was estimated at between $175,000 and $350,000.

On a search of the back yard of the residence 5 marihuana plants were observed and were seized.

The Applicant was arrested and charged with the four counts referred to above.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following facts were found by the Tribunal to have been proven:

1. By written application dated December 22, 2001 the Applicant applied for registration under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act as a motor vehicle salesperson.
2. In the written application dated December 22, 2001 the Applicant disclosed that certain charges were pending against him in respect of possession of a "controlled substance", and conspiracy to import a controlled substance.
3. On or about August 31, 2001 Canada Post intercepted a package mailed from Amsterdam in the Netherlands to 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario.

4. The contents of aforementioned package were inspected and analysed by Health and Welfare Canada who determined that the package contained some 7,000 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine commonly known as Ecstasy.
5. On September 13, 2001 the aforesaid package was delivered to 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls where such package was handed to the Applicant.
6. On September 13, 2001, subsequent to the delivery of the package to the Applicant a general search warrant was executed by the R.C.M.P. at the premises at 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario. Those premises were searched and the unopened package containing some 7000 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine was found in the bedroom of the residence at 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario. The aforesaid bedroom was the bedroom occupied by the Applicant.
7. At the time of the search of the residence at 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario some 29 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine were found in an open clay box on a table in the bedroom occupied by the Applicant.
8. The 7000 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine as well as the further 29 tablets of 3,4 methylenedioxyamphetamine found in the bedroom of the Applicant were drugs and/or narcotics listed in Schedule III of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act 1996, Chapter 19.
9. The Applicant was present during the search of the above premises by the R.C.M.P.

THE LAW:

Section 5.(1)(b) and (d) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states as follows:

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

...

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

...

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

Section 6.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states as follows:

6. (1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section

Section 7.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states as follows:

7.(1) Where the Registrar proposes to refuse to grant or renew a registration or proposes to suspend or revoke a registration, the Registrar shall serve notice of the proposal, together with written reasons therefor, on the applicant or registrant.

Section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states as follows:

7.(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar to satisfy the Tribunal that he has reasonable grounds to believe that registration of the Applicant ought to be refused based upon the past conduct of the Applicant and which past conduct affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in compliance with Section 5 of the Act.

The Divisional Court decision released April 7, 1983 of Brenner, reported in 19 CRAT 58, held that the Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Southey J. for the Court reviewed the authority of the Tribunal under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act respecting the proposal of the Registrar under Brenner at Section 5(1)(b) of that Act. He states at page 60:

The effect of Section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself.

In the Brenner case, due to the particular facts in that case, Southey J. sent it back for a rehearing. However, he adds in the third last paragraph:

The proper question at the rehearing remains, however, whether the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Unless the Tribunal can find that it does not, the Tribunal should not order the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on activities in contravention of the Act and its Regulations. This was confirmed by Divisional Court in the matter of Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050 where that court on appeal quashed the Tribunal's decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his proposal and in sending the matter back for re-hearing stated at page 1051.

It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

The Tribunal's analysis of the evidence before the Tribunal and the Tribunal's conclusions pursuant to the analysis follow.

The uncontroverted evidence of R.C.M.P. officer Prytula is that a package containing Schedule III drugs under the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act were addressed to and delivered to 6516 Monroe Street, Niagara Falls, Ontario where such package was accepted by the Applicant who was an occupant of the home. It is noted by the Tribunal that the package was not addressed to the Applicant himself although he accepted same, stating that the addressee of the package was not in at the time the package was delivered but would be returning shortly. The package was later that same day found unopened in the Applicant's bedroom when a search warrant was executed by the R.C.M.P.

Insofar as the package is concerned it is noted that such package was unopened when found in the Applicant's bedroom. It is also noted that it was not addressed to the Applicant and that the Applicant, in accepting delivery of the package advised the courier that he would accept delivery for the addressee who would be returning shortly. It would in the Tribunal's opinion, be manifestly unfair to the Applicant, to conclude that he was the owner of the package and its contents or that he knew or ought to have known of the contents of the package. If and when the Applicant faces criminal charges for possession and trafficking in drugs and narcotics he would do so under Section 4(1) of the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act in terms of which simple possession is an offence. However at this stage there is no conviction of which the Tribunal could take cognizance.

Accordingly, the Tribunal does not accept that the unopened package addressed to a third party that was found in the Applicant's bedroom is sufficient evidence to satisfy the Tribunal that reasonable grounds exist to deny registration to the Applicant. The Tribunal accordingly believes the Registrar was in error in concluding that the Applicant should be denied registration solely on the facts that the package contained Ecstasy.

However, the fact that 29 tablets of Ecstasy were found in an open clay box in the bedroom of the residence occupied by the Applicant does give the Tribunal serious concerns. The Tribunal finds in this regard that the overwhelming probability is that the Applicant knew that the pills were Ecstasy and that he was the actual possessor of such Ecstasy, a clearly dangerous drug. The Applicant chose not to attend the hearing and the allegations of the Registrar stand uncontested.

The Tribunal accordingly finds that the Registrar is not in error in concluding that the conduct of the Applicant in being found by the police to be in possession of 29 tablets of Ecstasy afford reasonable grounds for the belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Having regard to the finding of the Tribunal insofar as the 29 tablets of Ecstasy are concerned, the Tribunal believes that such past conduct is likely to result in acts or omissions that would or could reasonably give rise to the belief that the Applicant will in the future not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Tribunal therefore sees no grounds to interfere with the Registrar's proposal.

DECISION:

Accordingly, the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated January 29, 2002 to refuse the registration of Vinh H. Luong as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

TRIBUNAL: STUART CORK, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Respondent
CHRISTOPHER CHOP, Counsel for the Applicant
ANTONIO DIMILTA, Assistant Counsel for the Applicant

DATE OF
PRE-HEARING: April 19th, 2002 Toronto

ORDER

A Pre-hearing between the parties was held on April 19th, 2002, 2002 in Toronto at 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th Floor as set forth in the Tribunal's Notice of Pre-hearing Conference dated March 25, 2002.

The Tribunal makes the following Orders respecting the hearing:

1. The hearing dates have been set for 9:30 a.m. commencing on July 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, 2002, at the Tribunal's Chambers, 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th Floor, Toronto, Ontario.

2. It was determined that the filing dates with the Tribunal of submissions and documents to be used in the hearing by both parties would occur on or before July 4th, 2002.

Both parties will file five copies with the Tribunal and deliver one copy to all parties. It was confirmed that the Tribunal requires full disclosure 10 days prior to the hearing.

3. The Respondent will present evidence and testimony from one witness, Carrier Safety Rating Administrator Bernadette McKenna. Ms. McKenna will provide evidence of all the Applicant's records and information, including notes taken at a show cause meeting on March 6th, 2002, the Applicant's history and safety records, MTO correspondence, warning letters and interviews.

Further evidence will include all data relating to accidents, convictions and inspections for R&S Transportation Inc. back to 1997, and 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. back to the year 1999. Ms. McKenna's evidence will also include the history of the Applicant companies performance in Ontario before and after a Suspension and Seizure Order served in the end of 2000, the analysis for the current Cancellation and Seizure Order from 2000 until February 2002, and information from a United States data base.

4. The Applicant will present evidence and testimony from three witnesses. Among the witnesses anticipated, will be either Mohinderpal Virk, Director of the Applicant companies, or Art Wong, Manager of the Applicant companies, and George Simpson, Safety Supervisor. The Applicant also expects to present a Safety Consultant as an expert witness.

The witnesses for the Applicant will present evidence of the initiatives that the Applicant companies have taken to improve the safety record of the companies, the history of the fines, and explanations and clarification of the Applicant's record. Included in this evidence will be the role of M. Simpson as Safety Officer, and a summary of the procedures for company safety, company safety training courses, manuals, pre-hiring tests, initiatives and improvements for company safety.

The Safety Consultant will testify to the detailed plans initiated to bring the Applicant companies into a higher standard of safety compliance. The Safety Consultant will also give an analysis of the MTO data, challenge the MTO evidence where appropriate, and possibly present a formal report.

5. Among the issues to be raised by the Respondent will be whether there is sufficient evidence to support the Registrar's March 7th, 2002 Cancellation and Seizure Order
6. Among the issues to be raised by the Applicant will be that the sanction being imposed upon it is overly harsh and inappropriate. The Applicant contends that the sanction would mean the Applicant companies would be put out of business, and would be final. Other issues to be raised by the Applicant are the circumstances surrounding the accidents and the vehicle drivers, the accuracy of the CVOR, and the application of the Cancellation to all three of the Applicant companies.

7. It was outlined at the Prehearing Conference that:

The Registrar has issued a Cancellation and Seizure Order dated March 7th, 2002, pursuant to section 47 and 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, for R&S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc.

8. The parties present at the prehearing recorded that there was no resolution of the issues between the parties.
9. The Applicant will provide a list or letter detailing its alleged inaccuracies in the CVOR record, 10 days prior to the hearing as part of its disclosure.
10. At the hearing of this matter, the Tribunal will be asked to review in detail the time period from when the Applicant had served its previous sanction in 2000 until the date of the Cancellation and Seizure Order.

ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act R.S.O. 1990, Chapter O.31 as amended, Dan Diks and Mary McAllister-Diks ("the Applicants") appealed the decisions of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") set out in the decision letters dated January 17, 2002 and April 3, 2002;

WHEREAS the Applicants filed appeals with the Tribunal requesting a hearing.

AND WHEREAS the Tribunal scheduled the hearing to commence on May 27, 2002 and to continue to May 31, 2002 as necessary.

AND WHEREAS the Tribunal adjourned the scheduled hearing and appointed the date of May 31, 2002 at the Gillespie Reporting Services, 130 Slater Street, Suite 200, Ottawa, Ontario for the prehearing.

AND WHEREAS in attendance at the prehearing on May 31, 2002 were Dan Diks and Mary McAllister-Diks (Applicants), Sarah Karges, Counsel for the Program, Paul Picard, warranty representative for the Program, Don Cardill, owner of 561732 Ontario Ltd., and by teleconference Brian Campbell, Counsel for the Added Party;

NOW THEREFORE upon consent of the parties this Tribunal orders that:

1. The hearing will commence on September 30, 2002 and continue to October 4, 2002 as required at the Gillespie Reporting Services above address.
2. The parties to the hearing will consist of the Applicants, the Program and the Added Party.
3. The Added Party undertakes to repair the following items that have been warranted by the Program:

(a) Decision Letter dated April 3, 2002:

- Item # 1 – light at garage storage area
- Item # 2 – two receptacles in garage
- Item # 3 – eight receptacles in basement
- Item # 4 – two lights on switches in basement
- Item # 8 – put in the missing high wall returns as required by Program (approx. 7 in number)
- Item # 9 – changes to the basement stairs as required by Program including threshold strips
- Item #12 – fix doorstep so door handle does not strike counter
- Item #13 – reduce # of elbows in ductwork to approximately 3 if possible to increase flow of warm air to bedroom in front north west of house
- Item #14 – (a) repair voids in mortar, repoint brick, repair weeping holes (does not cover (b) dealing with width of mortar joints)
- Item #16 – put triangular stones over arched front entry and arched window opening (work to be done instead of money for substitution claim)
- Item #17 – replace broken and cracked bricks – this is dependent on the builder finding suitable replacement bricks.
- Item #27– provide wood steps in accordance with the OBC and secure the steps to the house under the rear doors; make rear doors operable. This is to be done under the direction of the warranty representative.

- Item #28 – replace cracked pipe in basement
- Item #29 – repair power room window
- Item #30 – put drain in garage floor near the door opening in accordance with the direction of the warranty representative
- Item #31 – repair plumbing vent so it is vertical

(b) Decision Letter dated January 17, 2002: (per reinspection report of February 20, 2002 which found it to be warranted)

- Item #11 – put duct in powder room to assist with the lack of heat in the mudroom. If possible the duct will be put in through the toe kick as the powder room has limited space.

4. The repairs as stated in Paragraph #3 will be done in the following manner: On Wednesday, June 5, 2002 at approximately 4 pm the warranty representative, Mr. Picard, and the builder, Mr. Cardill, will meet at the home of the Applicants. They will be allowed access by the Applicants to assess all of the mentioned items.

Then Mr. Cardill will take one week to contact his subtrades as are necessary to schedule these repairs. A schedule will be devised by Mr. Cardill with Mr. Picard with full consultation with the Applicants. It is felt by the warranty representative, Mr. Picard, that approximately four consecutive dates are required to complete the mentioned repairs. The schedule will accommodate the Applicants as much as possible, in particular having as many trades as can be scheduled doing work on the first day, the Monday of this four day time period. If possible Mr. Diks will try to take time off to be at his house during this time period. If that is not possible Mr. Picard has undertaken to try to be at the house as much as possible during the time period. The repairs are to be completed by the end of June, 2002 at the latest. All parties are required to be flexible if due to weather issues there are some time delays in completing some of the outside work.

It is understood by the parties that if there are any differences in the method of repairs for the above mentioned items the final decision will be determined by the warranty representative, Mr. Picard.

5. There are a number of matters warranted by the Program where there is disagreement by the Applicants who wish to have the work performed rather than be compensated in money on the basis of an invalid substitution. These matters were not resolved at the prehearing and therefore will be considered at the hearing of this matter. The items are:

In Decision letter dated April 3, 2002: Items # 5 (attic insulation), #6 (wall insulation), #18 (a) (using plastic flashing), #20 (front steps of house). As well though this is not an invalid substitution matter there is a difference of opinion concerning Item #23 (attic space access hatches – their location).

In Decision letter dated January 17, 2002: Item # 9 (drywall in garage)

As well though this is not an invalid substitution matter there is a difference of opinion concerning Item 16 dealing with the level of the grade around the front stoop

6. There are a number of items which have been resolved after discussion at the prehearing . In Decision letter dated January 17, 2002 Item # 2(c) deals with a leak in the shower. It is agreed that the builder will have the work to repair this leak done by the manufacturer's representative. This work will consist of replacement of the panel and installation of the correct skirt for the shower. Also in Decision letter dated January 17, 2002 Item # 17 concerning the grading of the driveway it is agreed that the work will be done in accordance with the recommendations of the warranty representative. The Applicants are satisfied with the width of the driveway once this grading has been completed.
7. There was a settlement schedule dated November 4, 2001. It dealt with a number of minor items. The Applicants are prepared to accept this settlement and cash the current cheque from the Program which is in their possession upon agreed that a further ninety dollars ($90.00) will be forwarded to them by the Program to cover the additional costs of re burying the bell line at the front of their property. Despite work by the builder the bell line is not completed covered at this time. The Applicants will use that money to hire their own contractor to bury this bell line. It is agreed that the acceptance of the current cheque plus the additional ninety dollars will mean that the Applicants will do the necessary repairs on the items so listed in the settlement schedule and they release the Program from any present or future responsibilities for such repair work on these specified items.
8. A number of items were not resolved. These items will be dealt with at the hearing. They are as follows:

In Decision letter dated January 17, 2002: Items # 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18.

9. The Added Party has undertaken to provide the Applicants and the Program with the complete set of drawings that are colour coded as to amendments. These drawings will be sent to the other parties as soon as possible. The Tribunal requests that they be sent to the other parties prior to the end of June, 2002. As well the Tribunal requests that a copy of such drawings be sent to the Tribunal prior to the hearing date.
10. There has been considerable disclosure by all parties. The Tribunal has informed all parties that they must be in compliance with the disclosure provisions of the Rules of Procedure of the Tribunal. In particular expert reports and the Curriculum Vitae of expert witnesses must be provided in accordance with these disclosure provisions. The Tribunal urges all parties to disclose their expert reports as soon as possible and certainly well in advance of the disclosure requirements of the Rules of Procedure.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 3, 2002, at Sudbury, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on June 4, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing decide his appeal. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated April 22, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on April 24, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Applicant requested that his driving record not be disclosed.

The Respondent stated that the normal procedure is to introduce the driving record and in this case there is nothing in the Applicant's record of any consequence relating to this charge.

The Tribunal agreed with the Respondent and the record was introduced.

The Applicant wanted to know why it took three requests to the Ministry to try and obtain a copy of a videotape, supposedly taken while he was attempting to provide a breath sample and also a copy of the notes of another Officer, who was present, before he received an answer that neither was available.

The Respondent stated that she had informed the Applicant (Exhibit #1) that such information would have to be obtained from the police or the crown attorney. The investigating officer added that a videotape was not taken and he knew nothing about the other Officer's notes. He said that the constable would be available at the Applicant's criminal trial.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice of Appeal dated April 22, 2002
- b) Exhibit # 1(a) Notice of Appeal dated May 2, 2002

- c) Exhibit # 2 Patient's Drug Profile and two inhalers (Flovent and Ventolin)
- d) Exhibit # 3 Correspondence and Medical Reports
- e) Exhibit # 4 Copies of letters to the Respondent dated May 10, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to the Registrar and Arrest Report

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15. (1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

- (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 32-year-old sales manager from Sudbury was arrested in Barrie on April 21, 2002 for failing to provide a breath sample after being stopped by Officer #1, a Barrie Police Officer.

The Applicant and his girlfriend had driven down from Sudbury for a weekend of golf and fun. They checked into the Holiday Inn and then played a game of golf and had dinner at the course. After dinner they went to the Georgian Downs Slots at the racetrack to play the slot machines and then on to the Molson Centre for a concert. Following the concert they returned to downtown Barrie and picked up a couple of hot dogs. As they were driving down the street, the Applicant noticed a police car following him. He said the police car was tailgating him and he mentioned to his girlfriend that they often do this to intimidate drivers.

The Officer pulled the Applicant's car over after he observed the vehicle cross over the yellow centreline on three occasions. When the Officer requested the Applicant's driver's licence, insurance and ownership, he stated he could smell alcohol on the Applicant's breath. When asked about alcohol consumption the Applicant replied none, but his girlfriend had been drinking heavily.

The Applicant was taken back to the police cruiser for a roadside screening device breath sample. The Officer said he explained how the device worked and how the test was to be performed. When the test started the Officer observed the Applicant manipulating the mouthpiece with his tongue. The device was pulled back and the Applicant was observed pushing a piece of chewing gum with his tongue into the mouthpiece. The Applicant was cautioned regarding refusal to provide a breath sample and obstructing police and directed to spit the gum out. A second mouthpiece was affixed to the device and a second test attempted. The officer observed the Applicant pushing his tongue against the mouthpiece and spitting saliva into it. The Officer again cautioned the Applicant and directed him to try again and blow properly. The Applicant informed the Officer he has asthma and is unable to blow.

The Officer stated that at no time had he witnessed any signs of distressed or laboured breathing and there had been no previous mention of asthma. The Applicant was read his rights and arrested.

The Applicant was then taken to the South Simcoe Police detachment and a fourth request was made for a breath sample. The Applicant ignored the Officer's directions to blow continuously and blew in spits resulting in an error code. He was advised he would be charged for failure to provide a sample.

Officer #1 processed an ADLS suspension and Form 9 release and seized the Applicant's licence. He was transported back to the Holiday Inn.

There were several conflicts between the Applicant's evidence and the Officer's evidence. The Applicant said that he was not told how the test worked or how to blow properly. He complained that he was allergic to pollen, dust and smoke and he had been exposed to all three during the day, so his chest was quite tight. He said he needed his inhaler in order to blow and the Officer would not let him retrieve it from his car. The Officer said the only reason he knew about an inhaler was that he saw the yellow one (Flovent) in the glove compartment when he was retrieving the ownership and insurance papers after arresting the Applicant. The girlfriend had identified it as belonging to the Applicant. He put it in the Applicant's coat pocket when he searched him and told him it was there. The Officer said the Applicant had not requested the inhalers at any time.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

At issue is how the medical condition of the Applicant relates to Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act and is the medical reason the cause for him failing or not complying with the breath demand. The onus is on the Applicant to provide the Tribunal with a medical reason as to why he was unable to provide a breath sample.

Reviewing the facts the Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not relate his medical condition to Regulation 574 and Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Act

The Applicant introduced medical reports (Exhibit # 3) to verify his asthmatic condition, but they do not conform to Regulation 574. The Tribunal accepts that the Applicant has asthma, but this condition does not seem to be involved in his failure to provide a breath sample. From the evidence presented the Tribunal finds that the Applicant did not truly attempt to provide a sample.

In the first test, the investigating Office saw the Applicant forcing gum down the mouthpiece with his tongue. Gum was found in the mouthpiece when it was removed.

During the second test the Officer observed the Applicant pushing his tongue down the opening and repeatedly breaking the lip seal, without any real attempt to blow, as required.

When the Officer asked him to try a third time, the Applicant then said he had asthma and could not blow.

The third attempt at the South Simcoe Police Detachment was also a failure because the Applicant did not blow continuously and blew in spit. He had apparently used an inhaler before this last try, but it was the wrong type. Flovent is for prophylactic management of asthma, whereas Ventolin is for relief and treatment of the bronchospasm caused by asthma.

At no time did the Officer observe any signs of respiratory distress or breathing difficulties. He had detected alcohol on the Applicant's breath and he needed a sample to confirm it. The Applicant had stated he had not been drinking any alcohol that day, but for some reason he apparently did not want to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal has to assume that he had been drinking.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated April 21, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA, Respondent
Representative for the Minister

Applicant,
unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: June 6, 2002 Ottawa

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

In 1981 the Applicant had a motor cycle accident, suffering a closed head injury as well as multiple fractures. He was admitted to the Ottawa Civic Hospital for 3 weeks and has no memory of the first two weeks of admission. (exhibit 16)

In 1982 the applicant had a 'nocturnal generalised tonic clonic seizure'. There is no information regarding the management, if any, of this episode. (exhibit 16)

In 1996 or 1997 the applicant was hit on the head with a shovel. Although the wound required stitches, there was no loss of consciousness. (exhibit 16)

On December 11th, 2000, the Applicant suffered two "nocturnal generalised tonic clonic seizures". The Applicant was seen in the emergency rooms of the Renfrew Victoria Hospital and the Ottawa Hospital. A CT scan of the head done at that time was normal. The Applicant was placed on Dilantin, 300 mgms daily. (exhibit 5)

These visits were reported to the M.O.T. (exhibits 2 & 4) as a result of which the Applicant was informed that his licence was suspended under section 47(1) of the Act. (exhibit 3)

On Mar 21, 2001 a neurological examination was reported as negative, a sleep deprived EEG and an MRI showed only minimal and non-specific changes. The Dilantin was stopped. (exhibit 5)

On May 29th, 2001 the Applicant had a sleep study which was reported as negative for seizure activity or anything that might trigger seizure activity, (exhibit 14)

On May 29th, 2001 the Applicant's licence was reinstated class 'GM'. (exhibit 6)

June the 28th, 2001 the neurological consultant reported that on April 2nd, 2001, 2 mos. after stopping the Dilantin (exhibit 13) the Applicant experienced a "nocturnal generalised tonic clonic seizure" and was restarted on Dilantin 300 mgms per day. (exhibit 7)

September 9th, 2001 the Medical Advisory Committee denied the Applicant's request for an 'AM' class licence and recommended that a change from a 'GM' to an 'AM' class licence would require 5 years seizure free of medication and 10 years seizure free on medication as per recommendation 5.4.2. "Determining Medical Fitness To Drive". 6th edition. (exhibit 8)

On February 28th, 2002 Neurological examination was reported negative, the Applicant's status stable, and the Applicant's 'GM' class licence was renewed, (exhibit 9)

On April 9th, 2002 the Applicant's family physician stated that the Applicant had been seizure free for 1 year, was on 600 mgms. Dilantin daily and the neurological exam negative. He requested the Applicant's 'AM' class licence be reinstated. (exhibit 12)

At the hearing the Applicant provided pictures identifying the type of vehicle he is currently driving, the conditions under which he is driving and the type of vehicle he would be driving should his licence be returned to class 'GM'. (exhibit 21)

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
 - (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;
 - (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

- (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.
- 18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,

 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

- (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant is requesting an upgrading of his driver's licence from class 'GM' to class 'AM' on the basis that he has been seizure free for one year, has never had a seizure while on medication and all three seizures were nocturnal. The Applicant states that he is currently driving large cement carriers on quarry property. These are equally as demanding and driven in more hazardous conditions than his regular trucking routes. The Applicant states that if his 'AM' licence is restored, his trips would be "short haul" with regular hours rather than "long haul" with their accompanying irregular hours and fatigue. The Applicant further states that he no longer uses alcohol or drugs and that his neurological examination and all laboratory investigation are within normal limits.

The Applicant's family physician of 20 years confirms the above and supports this request. He identifies the Applicant as a stable member of the community. On cross examination the physician stated that he was not aware of the CMA recommendations as in "Determining Medical Fitness To Drive" and could not categorically say the Applicant would be free of seizures in the future even while on medication.

The Ministry's representative stated that the Applicant's request should be denied on the basis of Regulation 340/94 (a) Section 14. To satisfy this regulation the Applicant should meet the requirements of section 5.4.2. of the Canadian Medical Publication "Determining Medical Fitness To Drive" 6th edition, i.e. to be 10 years seizure free while on medication.

The Tribunal notes an error in the Sept 10th, 2001 MAC report. The seizures were not "break through". On both occasions the Applicant was not on medication. This however should not alter the MAC's recommendation. The seizures were all nocturnal which might suggest that they were somehow sleep related. The Tribunal notes that the sleep study was essentially normal without any significant degree of apnea. The fact that all other laboratory investigation was non specific and essentially within normal limits means only that the exact aetiology of the seizures can not be determined. The seizures themselves were all witnessed and well documented.

The Tribunal agrees that the requirements for approval of the Applicant's request, 10 years seizure free on medication, (at least in this instance) appear harsh. It is also noted that the CMA publication is in its 6th edition, suggesting that the rules continue to be reviewed. With time and experience the rules may be lightened. This in turn suggests that the Applicant might consider repeating this request at a later date.

The guidelines given in the CMA publication are clear, as are the recommendations of the Ministry's Medical Advisory Committee. The Tribunal does not consider the arguments given by the Applicant compelling enough to overrule these authorities.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated May 25, 2001 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,
unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: June 11, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- #1 - Notice of Appeal and a Driving Assessment Report, received at Tribunal May 15, 2002
- #2 - Notice of Applicant's Driver's Licence Suspension from the Ministry dated March 12, 2001
- #3 - Applicant's Driving Record received from the Ministry
- #4 - File Summary prepared by the Respondent

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 56 year-old retired male who had his driver's licence suspended on March 12, 2001, after the Registrar of Motor Vehicles received a Medical Condition Report from a Physician #1, dated February 14, 2001. The doctor informed the Ministry that the Applicant had suffered a cardiovascular accident with right-sided weakness, aphasia and confusion.

The Ministry received a second report from a neurologist; Physician #2 dated November 14, 2001. She reported that the Applicant had a history of numerous atherosclerotic risk factors and had suffered a brain stem stroke in November 2000. The Applicant was admitted to the Markham Stouffville Health Centre in February 2001, because of a recurrence of symptoms. Investigation revealed a thrombosed left vertebral artery with infarction in the left medulla. He also was being treated for diabetes and hypertension.

The Applicant received treatment in the Rehab Ward and was discharged with some neurological impairment, mainly impaired temperature sensation in the left side of the face, and on the right side of his body he had a post-stroke pain syndrome. Physician #2 did not feel, however, there was any neurological contraindication to him operating a motor vehicle.

The Medical Review Committee notified the Applicant on December 10, 2001 that a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre is required before reinstatement of his licence could be reconsidered.

The Applicant took a driving assessment course at Saint Elizabeth Health/DriveABLE in Toronto on February 28, 2002 (Exhibit #1). First there was a DriveABLE Competence Screen test given on a computer. The overall performance on the Driving Competence Screen resulted in a 41% predicted a probability of failing the DriveABLE Road Test, placing the Applicant in the intermediate range of scores.

The Applicant then took the road test, which is given on a standardized road course. The results of the Evaluation were:

- 1) The Applicant's driving errors are out of the normative range of healthy drivers and constitute a fail score.
- 2) Driving cessation is strongly recommended.
- 3) This recommendation is based on criteria that were empirically determined. Those criteria enable normal, healthy drivers of a similar age to achieve a passing score.

On March 12, 2002, the Ministry again informed the Applicant a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre is required before his licence reinstatement can be considered.

The Applicant felt the two tests should have been given on separate days. He found the computer test very difficult because he is not familiar with computers. He provided explanations for all of the stated driving errors and claimed he did not make any mistakes.

The Applicant complained about the report from DriveABLE because of some typo errors. The date on the report was a couple of days before he even took the test. The Applicant refused to accept the findings of his driving evaluation and the Registrar's refusal to reinstate his licence.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Registrar acted in accordance with the law by suspending the Applicant's licence when informed of the Applicant's devastating cerebrovascular accident.

The medical information provided indicates the Applicant improved physically with physiotherapy. His speech returned and the strength returned in all of his limbs. Physician #2 stated he has no residual cognitive involvement or visual impairment. In fact she says there is no neurological contraindication to him operating a motor vehicle.

The Tribunal, however does not feel the DriveABLE results can be ignored as they are very clear and concise. The road test is known to reveal driving errors of experienced drivers whose mental competence has been compromised by medical conditions and/or treatments. The results of the evaluation were that his driving errors were out of the normative range of healthy drivers and constitute a fail score and driving cessation is strongly recommended.

These results indicate the Applicant would fall under Regulation 340/94 Section 14(a) and his driver's licence should remain suspended.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 22, 2001 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 3, 2002, at Owen Sound, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on June 4, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated May 10, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on May 16, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Representative of the Ministry provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of Ministry of Transportation documents on file.

The Applicant submitted new medical and internet evidence, which once reviewed by the Respondent's Representative was admitted into evidence, and on consent filed as exhibit #4.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to Registrar – dated April 28, 2002
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received May 16, 2002
- c) Exhibit # 4 Additional submissions – 7 pages – received June 3, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received May 29, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Appellant's Driver's Licence was suspended "April 28, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Appellant's Evidence

In a letter, dated May 10th, 2002 the Applicant sets out the events leading up to the demand for the breathalyser test as well as her reasons for not being able to provide an adequate sample.

The last paragraph of the Applicant's letter summarizes her position: "I believe that the medication would have helped me to provide a sample had the Officer retrieved the Bricanyl which I use whenever my breathing is becoming a problem for immediate relief. It is for this reason that I am appealing ...due to my illness Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) I could not provide a long enough breath for the required sample. I complied with the request from the Officer and it is for this reason that I am appealing..."

Page two of Notice of Appeal was prepared on May 9th 2002, by Physician #1, who has been the Applicant's physician for "...6 months...". Physician #1 explains that he is replacing Physician #2 who has been the Applicant's regular physician "...for years...". Physician #2 is currently on a one year sabbatical in New Zealand.

Physician #1 notes under "Details and Diagnosis of patient's present condition" that the Applicant has "...long history of asthma ...chronic obstructive pulmonary disease caused by years of smoking..."

Under "History of condition" Physician #1 writes, "...constantly short of breath especially with exertion, degree of shortness of breath can be variable depending on factors such as weather ...3 different kinds of inhalers..."

Physician #1 states that there are “no PFT on ...records...” but attaches the report of Physician #3 dated March 19, 1997.

At the time, Physician #3’s diagnose was “...very likely ...COPD...”. Physician #3 “...suggested ...use of ...puffers on a regular basis with an aerochamber...”. As the Applicant’s chest X-ray was “...of some concern...” Physician #3 recommended further investigation.

Under “Relevant details of last visit and when your patient was last seen” Physician #1 notes “...2002. Jan.29...”

On an handwritten prescription pad note, dated May 02, 2002, Physician #1 expands that the Applicant “...has some significant problems with her lungs with asthma (chronic obstructive lung disease) ...requires 3 different inhalers ...it is possible she may have difficulty doing the breathalyzer because of this...”

At the hearing the Applicant provided the Tribunal with what she believes to be a “prescription” from Physician #1. On a handwritten prescription pad note, dated May 20, 2002, Physician #1 wrote: “...spirometer / peak flow halter x 1...”.

Also presented at the hearing: a copy of a report from the Bruce Peninsula Health Services detailing the Applicant’s condition on “30 01 97”; a letter executed by Witness #1.

In his letter dated May 31, 2002, Witness #1 writes that the interior of Applicant’s house is under renovation; as such “...the dust from finishing the drywall boarding is very hard to contain in one area. In most cases drywall dust usually travels throughout the entire house...”

In her evidence-in-chief, the Applicant reiterated the comments in her letter of May 10th, 2002, emphasizing that it is her belief that “...the evidence speaks for itself...”

The Applicant cited several passages from her letter, regarding the amount of alcohol consumed on the day in question, and the number of opportunities allowed her by the Officer to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant asserted that she believes that had the Officer retrieved her puffer, as she requested “...several times...” she would have been able to provide an adequate sample.

The Applicant stressed that she “...didn’t refuse ever, to do a breathalyzer...”, and accentuated “...to the best of my ability, I did the best I could under the conditions as I stated in my letter under my medical reasons. I was upset over the argument, an on going argument that I had with my boyfriend. I was cold, I had six layers of clothes on the top half of my body, I had three layers of clothes on the bottom. I was very irritable and I was doing the best that I could”.

The Applicant confirmed that she does not have spirometer tests to prove that her condition has worsened over the five years that have past since she was diagnosed. This was through no fault of her own. Not being aware of the severity of her condition, she chose to go into denial after being diagnosed, rather than pursue the matter with her physicians.

The Applicant suggested that if in fact the Officer believed her to be impaired, he should have taken a blood or urine test, or asked her to perform a sobriety test.

In cross-examination the Respondent's Representative questioned the Applicant on the events prior to her being asked for a breath sample. The Applicant detailed that she had been four wheeling with her boyfriend and two other couples, for approximately six hours stopping along the way at some friend's house.

With respect to what transpired during the actual breathalyzer test session, the Applicant stated that she initially asked the Officers to retrieve her purse, so that she could prove that she used three puffers, but that subsequently she asked for her puffers because she needed them to breathe. The Applicant testified that the Officer replied, "No, you don't". Under insistent questioning from the Respondent's Representative, regarding her exact comments to the Officers, the Applicant clarified: "...No, no, no no ...no, no, no, no, I never said that I needed my puffers to breathe, I said that I needed my puffers..."

The Applicant went on to testify that she never clearly indicated to the Officer that she was having difficulty breathing, or that she needed her puffers to help her breath, she just said "...I need to take my puffers..."

The Applicant remembered telling the Officer that the gas fumes were bothering her and the car was turned off.

With respect to her symptoms at the time of the breathalyzer test, the Applicant stated that stressful situations and cold air bring about breathing difficulties. The Applicant did not complain to the Officer, because she "...is so used to it..."

The Respondent's Representative specifically asked the Applicant if she was having breathing problems at the time of the breathalyzer test, to which the Applicant replied: "...No I wasn't having breathing problems, I was having air flow problems..."

The Applicant explained that in her mind, breathing difficulties are characterized by wheezing or coughing. The condition that she has is different, in that it consists of "...attacks that just come on, whenever they feel like it...". The Applicant described the symptoms of these attacks as "...coughing fit, hard to breathe, gasping for air..."

After describing how often she used her medication, the Applicant agreed with the Respondent's comment that even though she had spent five to six hours in the cold air, in the back of a four wheeler exuding gas fumes, she had felt no need to take her medication.

The Applicant testified that she did not need to follow any of the instructions in the COPD booklet regarding shortness of breath, while sitting in the police car, and that she often exerts herself.

Once the Applicant was told that she was free to go, she opted to walk back to the farm. She took her puffers immediately, but did not visit her doctor until the following Thursday.

The Applicant was not certain as to the date that she was examined by Physician #1. She believes it was either May 2nd or May the 9th, but she remembered that Physician #1 told her he found "...a wheeze..." in her chest.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed May 29, 2002
2. Certified Copy of Driving Record of the Applicant sealed May 22, 2002
3. Medical report of Dr. Roger Goldstein, MB., ChB, FRCP (UK), FRCP(C), FCCP

In a letter dated May 28 2002, Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB, ChB, FRCP(UK), FRCP(C), FCCP, Director of Program in Respiratory Rehabilitation - University of Toronto, states that he is a "...consultant respirologist in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional Program in Rehabilitation, ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition...".

After reviewing the medical report prepared by Physician #1, as well as the consult report from Physician #3, Dr. Goldstein concluded "...in my view, the Applicant has a respiratory condition likely related to smoking plus a possible asthmatic (reversible) component ...unclear to me as to whether her respiratory condition was of sufficient severity to prevent a satisfactory sample..."

The Respondent called Officer #1, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police— Owen Sound Detachment as a witness. Officer #1 testified that he has been "...with the OPP for one year this past May, and four years prior to that with the Peel Regional Police..."

Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total of eleven opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so.

Officer #1 testified that he "...observed ...that she put the mouthpiece of the instrument ...in her mouth ...and ...observed that she clamped her on to the piece with her front teeth and blew her breath into the machine weakly and ...specifically detected air escaping around the mouthpiece, from her mouth ...stopped her and advised her not to bite the mouthpiece, and to form a seal around the mouthpiece ...she again tried blowing weakly and stopping after a few seconds ...felt she was blowing weakly, not strong enough to provide a proper sample..."

It is Officer #1's practice to coach the individuals along by telling them to "...keep going, keep going ...harder..." until the machine registers a proper breath sample. In this case, it is Officer #1's testimony that the Applicant stopped on her own, before he asked her to do so.

According to Officer #1 the Applicant was able to activate the tone in device, but because she was not blowing hard enough and stopped prior to being told to stop, the instrument registered an error reading.

Officer #1 confirmed that after the first few attempts, the Applicant advised him that she "...had weak lungs and she smokes ...she takes puffers...". Officer #1 also confirmed that the Applicant asked him "...to go look in her purse for these puffers...", but "...at no time did she ask me to get the puffers so that she could use them or indicate that she was in medical distress and that she wanted to use them for that purpose...". Had the Applicant requested to use the medication she would have been allowed to do so, and if necessary an ambulance would have been called.

The Applicant complained, at one point, about the exhaust fumes bothering her, and Officer #2 immediately turned off the engine. Although the door of the vehicle was open, and her feet were on the roadway, the Applicant also complained about being cramped in the back seat. At this time she was allowed to provide a breath sample while standing.

Also at some point during her breathalyzer test the Applicant asked for a "break", not as in I need to stop for a while, but as in wanting to be let off.

Officer #1 noted that the last couple of attempts, made by the Applicant to provide a breath sample, were stronger and very close to being a suitable sample, but still unsuccessful.

During the time that Officer #1 spent with the Applicant he "...didn't observe any type of distress that she was in as far as breathing, or ...never heard her having a coughing fit or wheezing or any of the things that would indicate ...that a person was in respiratory distress...".

Officer #1 stated that he did not observe the Applicant using the puffer after she was released.

Under questioning by the Applicant regarding her request to use for the puffers as the medication would have opened up her lungs, Officer #1 was adamant in his reply that "...that information wasn't provided ...at the time ...there was never a request to use the puffers because you needed them period...".

The Respondent's Representative also called Officer #2 who has been a police officer "...six weeks short of twenty five years...", as a witness.

Officer #2 described his observations of the Applicant's erratic driving, and why he pulled her over and instructed Officer #1 to speak to her.

Officer #2 was sitting in the driver's seat while the tests were being administered and could hear the instrument's tone as the Applicant attempted to provide a breath sample.

Officer #2 detailed the sound heard from the device as each attempt was made: "...The first attempt the tone ended almost immediately, just come on briefly and went off, indicating that the sample being supplied was only ...for a split second; the second try, I heard the tone for approximately two seconds before it ended; the third try, I heard the tone come on and go off immediately; the fourth try, I heard the tone for approximately two seconds and then it stopped; ...on the fifth try, I heard the tone for approximately three seconds before it ended; on the sixth try, I heard the tone for approximately four seconds before it ended; on the seventh try, I heard the tone for approximately three seconds before it ended; on the eighth try, I heard the tone for approximately three seconds before it ended; on the ninth try, I heard the tone for approximately five seconds before it ended, it was still not a sufficient sample; ...number ten, number eleven were basically the same on each of those occasions, I heard the tone for approximately five seconds before it ended...".

Officer #2 noted the Applicant was cautioned that her license would be suspended and that she would be charged, if she did not provide an adequate breath sample. The Applicant stated that she had three inhalers in her purse but never requested to use the medication in her purse.

Officer #2 "...heard nothing unusual about her breathing ...", but noted that the Applicant asked to be given a break.

Officer #2 stated that he did not observe the Applicant using the puffer after she was released.

In closing the Applicant read from a prepared statement. She depicted her living status and her duties at work.

The Applicant claimed that she has "...endured undue hardship because of the suspension of ...driver's license..." the Applicant further contended that she appealed the suspension because she did not refuse to comply with the demand to provide a breath sample.

After being given eleven attempts, she was still unable to provide a suitable sample, because she "...was physically unable to ...no explanation except for ...medical condition...".

The Applicant stated that she asked the officer to get her medication, as she "...believed would have helped ...to provide a sample, but he refused..."

The Applicant questioned whether the Officer was a qualified breath technician able to determine that she "...was not blowing hard enough, as outlined in R vs Schimpf 1980 and indicated within page 316 of the Criminal Code of Canada 1990..."

The Applicant also insisted that upon being demanded a breath sample she "...was never read ...rights as required under S 10 (b) of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms..."

The Applicant challenged the "...validity of the stop..." as she does not believe the Officer "...had reasonable grounds to stop vehicle...". As an explanation as to why the Officers might have seen the rear lights go on off, the Applicant suggested that given direction her car was facing in relation to where she lives, "...it was necessary make a U turn...". The Applicant asserted that "...this was not a bona fide reason to be subjected to a random roving stop by the officers..."

The Applicant repeated her previous comments with respect to blood tests and sobriety tests not being performed. The Applicant, continued to expand on how her condition, which she has had "...for the past five years ...was further aggravated by the events of the day, emotional stresses, the anxiety of being pulled over, and further, that ...condition was already worsened due to on going renovations at ...home..."

With respect to the condition, the Applicant has now made further enquiries of her physician, as well as researched the Internet, in order to learn how the condition manifests and can be maintained.

The Applicant pointed out that she has been provided with a "...prescription for a spirometer reading testing, but ...no information on where to take it..."

In conclusion, the Applicant emphasized that she "...did not refuse a demand for the breathalyzer ...appealing ...driver's licence suspension based on ...physical incompatibility caused by chronic obstructive lung disease, diagnosed in 1997 ...further aggravated by the facts as outlined..."

At the start of his closing remarks the Respondent's Representative commented on the case law referred to by the Applicant. Mr. Biel pointed out that neither the Registrar nor the Tribunal received a copy of the case law alluded to, "...nevertheless, that in fact it is not what the factor is..."

With respect to The Applicant's reference to Charter of Rights of Freedoms, Mr. Biel noted that in order to raise an objection under the Charter, The Applicant would have had to follow the strict provisions allowing such a challenge. No notice was given as is required under statute, thus, Mr. Biel asked the Tribunal to dismiss the Applicant's challenge.

The Respondent's Representative conceded that he accepts the fact that the Applicant has been diagnosed with and suffers from "...chronic obstructive pulmonary disease...". Nonetheless, that is not the issue before the Tribunal. The issue before the Tribunal is whether the COPD prevented the Applicant from providing a suitable breath sample. It is the Registrar's position, that "...it did not...".

The Respondent's Representative continued by pointing out that according to the evidence "...contrary to the medical evidence ...supplied by The Applicant for this appeal, it appears that ...when it suits The Applicant, she is quite capable of living her life with COPD. She is able to withstand the gas fumes of these four-wheel vehicles, for five or six hours. She is able to exert herself by hanging on ...in the back of one of these vehicles, for hours at a time, while they go up and down hills and mountains and through mud ...not e asy to do and she is able to do that without a problem..."

Mr. Biel drew attention to the fact that the Applicant admitted to not following any of the precautions mentioned in the booklet, such as covering her mouth with a scarf, while she was out four wheeling with her friends. Further, The Applicant still continues "...rather normal activities, ...is able to continue to smoke, inhale and exhale cigarettes without a problem...". Mr. Biel contended that "...if you can smoke a cigarette you can exhale air ...for five or six seconds...".

The Respondent's Representative reviewed the evidence of Officer #1, and maintains that it was not the Applicant's condition that caused her "...to blow around the mouthpiece or to bite the mouthpiece in her teeth, this was a conscious attempt to deceive...". Mr. Biel suggests that the Applicant's action of asking "...to be let off...", also corroborates his theory that she did not want to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative reminded the Tribunal that the Officers observed "...no shortness of breath ...no breathing problems, no wheezing, no coughing...". Regarding the use of the puffers, Mr. Biel referred to the testimony of both Officers who declared that the Applicant never specifically requested her medication. Both officers readily accommodated the Applicant's needs when she mentioned the fumes of the vehicle, and the fact that she felt cramped. There is no reason to believe they would have denied the Applicant the use of her puffers.

Mr. Biel argues that Physician #1 "...is guessing..." when he states, "...it is possible she may have difficulty doing the breathalyzer..." because of her condition. It may be possible, but there is no specific relationship established between the condition and the breath test, as there are no pulmonary function tests to substantiate the premise.

Mr. Biel also maintained that Physician #1's statement that the Applicant is "constantly out breath" was not demonstrated during the hearing. During the hour and a half of the hearing, the Applicant did not exhibit any signs of being out of breath. She was able to read her closing statement into the record without any apparent effort.

In conclusion, Mr. Biel referred to the Applicant's evidence in chief and noted that the Applicant did not detail any medical problems occurring during the day. The Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

In rebuttal the Applicant attributed her lack of more detailed reports to the fact that she lives in a rural area, where physicians are not privy to the latest resources.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address the issues raised by the Applicant.

With respect to the qualifications of the Officer and the case law mentioned, as well as with respect to the correctness of the Applicant being stopped by the officers, such matters are for a Court of Law. The Tribunal has no jurisdiction and will make no further comments.

Regarding the challenge to the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the Tribunal must adhere to the provisions set out in Section 8 of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, which deals with "Notice of Constitutional Question"

Section 8.1 provides as follows:

"Where a party intends, to raise a question about the constitutional validity or applicability of legislation, a regulation or by-law made under the legislation, or a rule of common law or to claim a remedy under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms,

- (1) notice shall be served on the other parties, the Tribunal, the Attorney General of Ontario, and the Attorney General of Canada as soon as the circumstances requiring notice become known and, in any event, at least 15 days before the question is to be argued before the Tribunal..."

As pointed out by the Respondent's Representative, the provisions of Section 8 of the Rules of Practice were not met, thus, the Tribunal has no alternative but to dismiss the challenge under the Charter.

Lastly, the Applicant raised the question of why she would not have been asked to provide a blood or urine sample, or a sobriety test.

There is no provision under the Highway Traffic Act for the provision of a urine sample. Subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended, is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "...by an analysis of the person's breath sample or blood taken...". Nonetheless, the decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, according to established policy. At the time, the Applicant was neither unconscious nor showed any visible signs of respiratory impairment, such as wheezing or choking. Thus, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

As for the practice of administering sobriety tests, the Tribunal recognizes and accepts that such tests have now been superseded by the breathalyzer device, which is a much more accurate means of determining the volume of alcohol concentrated in the blood.

At issue is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all or whether the Applicant expressed a vocal refusal to provide a breath sample. At issue, is did the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

Section 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Tribunal concurs with the Respondent's Representative, that whether or not the Applicant is a sufferer of chronic obstruction pulmonary disease is not in dispute. The Applicant was able to successfully establish that she is afflicted with a medical condition, i.e. chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. The question that remains to be answered is how did the Applicant's medical condition cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Tribunal is aware of and agrees with the Applicant as to the circumstances which aggravate chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

The Tribunal reviewed the two medical reports in evidence. Physician #1, the Applicant's physician, “...is guessing...”, according to the Respondent's Representative, when he suggests that “...it is possible she may have difficulty doing the breathalyzer...”. Physician #1 may be guessing, but Dr. Goldstein's report is just as uncertain “...unclear to me as to whether her respiratory condition was of sufficient severity to prevent a satisfactory sample...”. Finding both medical reports inconclusive, and acknowledging that neither physician was present at the scene of the breathalyzer test session, the Tribunal must rely on the eye witness testimony provided by the Applicant, herself, and that of Officer #1 and Officer #2.

The Tribunal was, somewhat confused by the Applicant's viva voce testimony that she “...wasn't having breathing problems...” she “...was having air flow problems...”. The Applicant clarified her statement by proffering an explanation as to the nature of her attacks: “...coughing fit, hard to breath, gasping for air...”. None of these symptoms were observed by either Officer #1 or Officer #2. As summarized by the Respondent's Representative, in his closing remarks, the Officers observed “...no shortness of breath ...no breathing problems, no wheezing, no coughing...”.

The Applicant implied that she was prejudiced by Officer #1's refusal to allow her the use of an inhaler. The Applicant believes that had she been allowed to use her medication she might have been able to open up her lungs and provide an adequate breath sample. The Tribunal is not the venue to access the appropriateness of Officer #1's behaviour. The Tribunal will restrict its findings as to whether or not the Applicant was clear in her request and as to whether or not the use of the inhaler could have affected the Applicant's ability to give a suitable sample.

The Applicant claims that she told Officer #1 "several times" that she wanted her puffer, but by her own admission the Applicant may not have been explicit as to the reason she wanted her puffers: "...I never said that I needed my puffers to breathe, I said that I needed my puffers...".

Being familiar with the symptoms of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, the Tribunal is of the opinion that had the Applicant been in severe respiratory distress, she would have been quite specific as to why the inhalers were needed. Further, the Officers would have easily detected the Applicant "gasping for air". As previously stated none of these symptoms appeared to be present at the time, thus the weight of the issue of the use the inhaler is negligible.

The Applicant seemed acquiescent with the testimony of the Officers. She did not contradict their testimony, by testifying that she was in fact coughing or wheezing at the time. Considering that at no time during the breathalyzer test session did the Applicant appear to be having respiratory difficulties, that the Applicant did not feel the condition was severe enough to request medical assistance, or seek medical assistance immediately thereafter, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1(2)(b), in that she was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated April 28, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

MICHAEL M. KELLY, Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: June 21, 2002 By teleconference

DECISION RELEASED: June 25, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 21, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant’s appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Michael M. Kelly (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2000 Dodge Durango, plate AFHX 193 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	May 31, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on June 21, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

Prior to the commencement of the Hearing, the Tribunal established that the Applicant, Michael Kelly, entered, in the Notice of Appeal, the name of Diane Kelly as owner of the impounded vehicle, in error.

Diane Kelly being present on the line was sworn in as possible witness, but in fact was not called to testify.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

Vehicle required for running business and household. Vehicle is leased from Foss National Leasing, Thornhill, Ontario 905 886 2522 and is operated by Diane Sjostrom Kelly who is marketing manager at Addison Kelly Executive Search and mother to two dependant children Leah and James Kelly.

At the hearing the Applicant reiterated the grounds for the appeal. The Applicant explained he is the President of Addison Kelly Executive Search, and that his wife, Diane Kelly is the Executive Manager.

Diane Kelly is responsible for presentations and meeting with clients, she needs the vehicle to get around and carry on the business of the company.

As the company is losing business, some employees may have to be laid off.

In cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that the family owns two other vehicles, one driven by Applicant's son, who also works for the business, and the other by the Applicant's daughter, who uses the vehicle to get to and from school.

The Applicant and his wife do not commute to work together, as the Applicant generally goes in earlier than Ms. Kelly. The Applicant has been taking the bus, walking or going in with his son.

The Applicant repudiated the Respondent's Representative suggestion that Ms. Kelly could drive their son's vehicle in order to attend her meetings. The Applicant contended that the business requires a certain image not exuded by a '96 Plymouth, or a '93 Corsica.

The Applicant stated that he had not considered renting a vehicle, as he believes the cost would be prohibitive. Although, the cost of rental could be absorbed by the business, the Applicant attested that the last quarter has not been too favourable and it would not be wise to incur additional costs.

The children have not suffered the impact of the impoundment, but the business has been severely impacted by Ms. Kelly's inability to attend the meetings required to acquire new clients and maintain existing clients.

In his closing remarks the Applicant briefly stated that he “would appreciate the vehicle back...” so that Ms. Kelly could go about her business.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar’s evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;

Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Michael M. Kelly;

Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver’s licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 19, 2003.

The Respondent proffered no viva voce evidence at the hearing choosing to rely on the information provided for the hearing, and the legislation including the criteria set in Regulation 632/98.

In closing the Respondent’s Representative, asked the Tribunal to confirm the decision of the Registrar and uphold the impoundment, on the grounds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Regulation 632/98. The Applicant has alternative vehicles at his disposal but has opted not to avail himself of those alternatives.

The legislation requires that an Applicant mitigate his losses. The Applicant has not done so, as he did not consider the possibility of renting a vehicle for the duration of the impoundment.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner’s right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
- (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
- (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
- (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
- (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
- (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
- (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the exceptional hardship grounds of appeal as provided in subsection 50.2(3)(d).

The criteria for considering undue hardship is found under Section 22 of Ontario Regulation 632/98.

Is there no alternative to the impounded vehicle?

Subsection 22(3)(a) Regulation 574 as amended by O. Reg. 632/98 provided that this Tribunal may not consider financial or economic loss as a ground of appeal unless no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

The Applicant argued that his wife Diane Kelly's ability to carry out the business of the company, owned by the Applicant, has been restricted. Ms. Kelly is unable to attend meetings due the lack of the impounded vehicle.

As the Respondent's Representative pointed out, the family owns two other vehicles. Ms. Kelly could utilize either of these vehicles to get to and from her meetings.

As the Applicant has alternate methods of transportation available, the Tribunal may not consider the provisions of 22.1 of Regulation 574.

Is the loss immediate, significant and lasting?

The Applicant does not meet the criteria of O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b) which provides that the Tribunal may not regard economic loss unless the Applicant shows proof that loss will be immediate, significant and lasting.

The Applicant stated that he has suffered a loss in business, but no documented evidence was introduced to that effect.

Thus, the Tribunal may not consider O. Reg. 632/98, Subsection 22(3)(b).

The Applicant having an alternative vehicle and the loss due to the impoundment not being immediate, significant or lasting, it is not necessary to review further criteria set out in the Regulation.

The individual affected by the impoundment, has an alternative method of transportation, and has incurred no significant or permanent loss.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship ground for appeal, as required under section 50.2(3) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

No one appeared for the Applicant at the scheduled start of the hearing at 9:30 a.m. on June 17, 2002. The hearing was adjourned for thirty minutes in case the Applicant was delayed. When the hearing resumed at 10:13 am., no one appeared for the Applicant. The Tribunal proceeded to hear the evidence of the Registrar in the absence of the Applicant.

FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles' grounds for refusal are set out in the Notice of Refusal to Issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate and in the Notice of Refusal to Issue an Operating Licence, both dated November 9, 2001, as follows:

- a) The safety record of Cyrus Moving Systems Inc.
- b) The current Suspension and Seizure Order in effect for Cyrus Moving Systems Inc.
- c) The unpaid fines for Cyrus Moving Systems Inc.
- d) I am of the opinion that Cyrus Rezvanian directly or indirectly controls or manages or will control or manage the applicant.
- e) The safety record of Sisters Moving System Inc.
- f) The past working relationship between Fariba Rezvanian and Cyrus Rezvanian.

The Refusal to Issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate dated December 10, 2001, issued by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles states the following:

AND WHEREAS I have considered your [the Applicant's] submissions, the safety record of the applicant, the safety record of the related company, current Suspension and Seizure in effect and the unpaid fines for Cyrus Moving systems Inc. (CVOR #124-622-357);

AND WHEREAS I am still not satisfied that the applicant will operate its commercial motor vehicles safely and in accordance with this Act [the Highway Traffic Act], the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety...

I hereby Refuse to Issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate.

The Refusal to Issue an Operating Licence dated December 10, 2001, issued by the Deputy Registrar of Motor vehicles states the following:

AND WHEREAS I have considered your [the Applicant's] submissions, the safety record of the applicant, the safety record of the related company, current Suspension and Seizure in effect and the unpaid fines for Cyrus Moving Systems Inc. (CVOR #124-622-357);

AND WHEREAS I am not satisfied that the transportation service will be operated in accordance with the law and the public Interest, I have determined the applicant to be unfit....

I hereby Refuse to issue an operating licence to the applicant.

The Registrar's witness was Bernadette McKenna, whose evidence is as follows:

Ms. McKenna has worked for twenty-five years for the Ministry of Transportation. She is now a carrier safety rating administrator.

Fariba Rezvanian is the president and director of Sisters Moving System Inc. Fariba Rezvanian is also a former employee of Cyrus Moving System Inc., a company controlled by her brother Cyrus Rezvanian.

The Commercial Vehicle Operator Summary for Cyrus Moving System Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 12, page 2) shows an unsatisfactory violation rate of 161.3%, eight accidents, thirty convictions, and four inspections detecting out of service defects. Cyrus Moving System Inc. operated five commercial motor vehicles. On April 26, 2001, a Notice of Suspension & Seizure was issued proposing a thirty day suspension of the CVOR (Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration) certificate issued to Cyrus Moving Systems Inc. As of May 18, 2001, the CVOR certificate and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to Cyrus Moving Systems Inc. were suspended for seven days and thereafter until all fines are paid. Fines of about $36,000.00 are still outstanding and the suspension is still in effect.

On July 31, 2001, two commercial motor vehicles owned by Cyrus Moving System Inc. were stopped by Metro Toronto Police. Five charges were laid including a charge for operating with a suspended CVOR.

Sisters Moving System Inc. leases its four commercial motor vehicles from AAA Safe Private Storage Inc. ("AAA"). Cyrus Rezvanian, the president of Cyrus Moving System Inc., is the director of AAA. The registered office address of AAA is the same as the address for Cyrus Moving System Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 14, page 5 and exhibit 4, tab 8). AAA obtained the first of the commercial motor vehicles that it leases to Sisters on April 27, 2001. The other three commercial motor vehicles that AAA leases to Sisters were leased to Sisters the same day that they were acquired by AAA.

Sisters Moving System Inc. provided a sales agreement dated May 11, 2001, by which it apparently purchased four trucks from Safe Private Storage Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 6, page 4). At the date of the agreement three of those trucks were not registered in the name of AAA Safe Private Storage Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 19).

Sisters Moving System Inc. was charged with operating a commercial motor vehicle without a CVOR certificate on August 17, 2001. The driver of the vehicle was Rouzbeh Asri-Aghmiouni (exhibit 4, tab 16, page 7), who had been involved in two accidents when he was a driver for Cyrus Moving System Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 12, pages 6 and 7). The Trip Inspection Report used by Rouzbeh Asri-Aghmiouni is the same as the Trip Inspection Reports used at Cyrus Moving System Inc. (exhibit 4, tab 16, page 8 and exhibit 4, tab 15, page 8). Further, the Trip Inspection Report identifies Rouzbeh Asri-Aghmiouni as Behrouz. The Safety Fitness Application for Rating of Sisters Moving System Inc. discloses that Behrooze was to be the company representative responsible for promoting safety (exhibit 4, tab 3).

An application by Sisters Moving System Inc. for a CVOR was received by the Ministry of Transportation on August 30, 2001.

The Tribunal finds the following facts to be proven on the evidence:

- 1) Cyrus Moving System Inc. directly or indirectly controls or controlled, or manages or managed the Applicant, Sisters Moving System Inc.
- 2) The CVOR certificate of Cyrus Moving System Inc. is under suspension.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Registrar to refuse to issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate and an Operating Licence to the Applicant Sisters Moving System Inc.?

LAW:

The Highway Traffic Act, R. S. O. 1990 Chapter H. 8 as amended provides as follows:

17. (1) The Registrar shall issue a CVOR certificate to every person who applies therefor in the prescribed form and meets the requirements of this Act and the regulations.
- (2) The Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to an applicant if the Registrar has reason to believe, having regard to the applicant's safety record and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the applicant will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

(3) The Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to an applicant if the applicant is related to,

- (a) a person whose CVOR certificate has been cancelled, is or has been under suspension or is or has been subject to a fleet limitation;
- (b) a person whose CVOR certificate suspension, cancellation or fleet limitation is under appeal; or
- (c) a person who the Registrar has reason to believe, having regard to the person's safety record and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

(4) An applicant is related to a person for the purpose of subsection (3) if,

- (a) the applicant and the person are related individuals...
- (c) either the applicant or the person, directly or indirectly, controls or controlled or manages or managed the other; ...

50(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

The Truck Transportation Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chapter T.22 as amended states the following:

6(1) An operating licence shall not be issued or an operating authority granted unless the applicant demonstrates fitness to carry on the business of carrying goods for compensation as described in the application for the licence...

(3) Every applicant for an operating licence shall file with the Registrar, with respect to the business for which authority is sought, a description of the proposed transportation service and evidence that the applicant, ...

- (c) holds a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate issued under the Highway Traffic Act that is not under suspension or subject to a fleet limitation.

7(2) Where the Registrar finds that an applicant is not fit to hold an operating licence, the Registrar shall give the applicant written notice thereof with reasons, and the applicant may, within thirty days after receiving the notice, appeal the decision to the Licence Appeal Tribunal as defined in the Highway Traffic Act.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

Based on the evidence, the Tribunal finds that Cyrus Moving System Inc. directly or indirectly controls or controlled or manages or managed the Applicant, Sisters Moving System Inc. Pursuant to Subsection 17(4) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Applicant Sisters Moving System Inc. is thus related to Cyrus Moving System Inc. Since the CVOR certificate of Cyrus Moving System Inc. is under suspension, the Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR to the Applicant in accordance with Subsection 17(3)(a) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Registrar's refusal is not an error.

Subsection 6(3)(c) of the Truck Transportation Act requires every applicant for an operating licence to file evidence with the Registrar that it holds a CVOR. The Applicant is unable to do so. Thus the Registrar is justified in refusing to issue an operating licence to the Applicant.

DECISION:

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL to confirm the Orders of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles, both his Refusal to Issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate to the Applicant and his Refusal to Issue an Operating Licence to the Applicant.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,
unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: June 19, 2002 Hamilton

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

- #1 Notice of Suspension of Driver's Licence effective February 25, 2000, issued by Registrar of Motor Vehicles
- #2 Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal May 7, 2002, filed by the Applicant
- #3 File Summary prepared by the Respondent

FACTS:

The Applicant, a 59 year-old truck mechanic had his Driver's Licence suspended on February 25, 2000. The Registrar had received a Medical Condition Report from an emergency physician, Physician #1, on February 2, 2000. The prepared report states: "This individual has the following condition likely to significantly interfere with driving" and the box opposite "alcohol or drug abuse" is checked. In addition there is a check mark in the box "Patient is aware of this report."

The Applicant gave evidence that he had been attending an engagement party on January 29, 2000 and was drinking. He felt a weakness in his right arm and had his girlfriend drive him to the Joseph Brant Hospital in Burlington. The ER physician noted he had been drinking and inquired how he came to the hospital? The Applicant answered "by car" and the physician apparently assumed he had driven. Blood tests revealed an alcohol level of 35 mmol/l (above the legal limit), a GGT of 103 (normal 15-73) and a normal MCV.

The Applicant was admitted to the hospital under a neurologist, Physician #2, who diagnosed a left hemispheric small vessel stroke. He remained off work for three months and returned when he received a clearance from Physician #2 on April 13, 2000. He was very surprised to learn the suspension was because of a diagnosis of alcohol abuse, by Physician #1.

The Applicant had received a letter from the Deputy Registrar dated February 18, 2000 advising him that the Ministry had received evidence that he suffered from a medical condition that might impair his ability to operate a motor vehicle safely. The Applicant had assumed the suspension was because of his stroke.

An addiction specialist, Physician #3, at the Credit Valley Hospital saw the Applicant on August 16 and September 6, 2000 for an assessment. His blood tests were repeated and the GGT and MCV were normal. Physician #3 found the Applicant had demonstrated evidence of hazardous or problem drinking, but he did not fully meet the DSM 1V criteria for Alcohol dependency.

It was Physician #3's opinion that the Applicant would benefit from attending a Relapse Prevention Program. This program involved five days a week from 8 to 4 for three months. The Applicant stated there was no way he could afford to take the course and besides he did not feel he had an alcohol problem. He has never missed a day's work because of drinking and no one has ever mentioned any concerns about his drinking. He further stated he has never consumed alcohol at a level that would be hazardous.

The Medical Advisory Committee repeatedly demanded participation in a relapse prevention program before considering a licence reinstatement.

The Applicant is a truck mechanic and requires his licence to move trucks in his work. He states that so far he has lost $40,000 dollars in wages as a result of the suspension.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (f) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

According to the Highway Traffic Act Section 47(1) the Registrar was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence when the Medical Condition Report was received from Physician #1.

It was unfortunate there was a communication breakdown and the Applicant believed for several months that the suspension was a result of his suffering a stroke.

The Applicant admits he was drinking at a party when the stroke occurred and had his girlfriend drive him to the hospital. His problems began when the emergency physician thought he had driven himself to the hospital, while under the influence of alcohol and reported him to the Ministry. The records indicate the Applicant did not appear to be impaired while he was in the emergency, but his blood alcohol and GGT were elevated.

The Tribunal found the Applicant's Alcohol Assessment Form was very complete and appeared to be honest. It indicated the Applicant liked his beer and drank often, but not too much at a time. He stated in evidence that he never drinks at home and now does not drink during the week. He meets a group of friends at noon every Saturday and Sunday and they have a couple of beers and that is all. He will not accept the label that he is an alcoholic or that he has to take a relapse prevention program.

The Tribunal finds that the evidence presented does not support the Respondent's position under Section 47(1) that the Applicant's licence should remain under suspension until he attends a relapse program. There is little evidence to indicate that the Applicant has an alcohol problem or would be a danger to society while driving a motor vehicle.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 15, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

RELEASED: June 25, 2002

PREHEARING

IN THE MATTER OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1990, Chapter H.8;

AND IN THE MATTER OF the Order of Suspension and Seizure by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated May 22nd, 2002, issued to the Applicants;

AND IN THE MATTER OF unpaid fines.

APPEARANCES:

DATE OF

PRE-HEARING: June 24, 2002

Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Respondent issued a Suspension and Seizure Order dated May 22, 2002, (the "Suspension Order") whereby it ordered the Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration ("CVOR") issued to each of the Applicants and plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers in the name of each of the Applicants be suspended for a period of 14 days and thereafter until all fines are paid. The Respondent, in the Suspension Order, also notified the Applicants that the plate portion of permits, or if issued by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits and the number plates, will be seized. The Suspension Order was to be in effect at 9:00 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the 29th day of May, 2002 to 8:59 a.m. Eastern Standard Time on the 12 day of June, 2002, and thereafter until all fines are paid.

The Applicants appealed the Suspension Order by a Notice of Appeal dated May 28, 2002, (the "Appeal") which was received by the License Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") on May 28, 2002. The Appeal requested a Prehearing Conference to be convened by the Tribunal and participation in the Prehearing Conference was set down for a conference on June 24, 2002, in accordance with the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal. At the Prehearing Conference, both the Registrar and the Applicants were represented by counsel.

It became apparent at the Prehearing Conference that the issues involved in the Suspension and the Appeal were simple and straight forward and the usual discovery procedure and cooperation between counsel might identify facts or evidence that could be agreed upon in order to expedite the time spent at the hearing. It was generally agreed that the hearing would occupy two to three days in mid-September 2002, and would involve one witness for each party subject only to the decision of counsel for the Applicants to call expert evidence in accordance with the Tribunal's Rules of Practice. The Prehearing Conference also disclosed some doubt at this time respecting the status of one of the Applicants and clarification was sought and discussed so as to simplify prior to the date of the hearing one of the issues raised by the Appeal with respect to the Parties participating.

DECISION:

It was agreed between counsel and decided by the Tribunal that on or before the close of business on Tuesday, July 2nd, 2002, Counsel for the Applicants would obtain instructions from his clients whether or not P. S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. would continue as a Party to these proceedings in view of the apparent fact that it was no longer in an active business undertaking at this time. If Counsel could obtain such instructions, the withdrawal of the Appeal by P. S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. would expedite the hearing without prejudice to the Respondent to introduce evidence respecting P. S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd. as a predecessor registrant of the CVORs'.

ORDER:

The Tribunal therefore makes the following Order respecting the hearing to be heard before the Tribunal:

1. The Parties to the hearing are the Applicants and the Registrar subject only to the withdrawal of P. S. Sandhus & Associates Ltd.;

2. The hearing shall take place at the Tribunal's Chambers, 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, on Wednesday, September 18, 2002, and shall be continued on Thursday, September 19, 2002, and Friday, September 20, 2002, if necessary;
3. The Parties shall fully comply with Rules 6.3 and 6.4 of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice;

DATE OF HEARING: June 21, 2002 St. Catharines

DECISION RELEASED: June 24, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 21, 2002, at St. Catharines, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	the Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	the vehicle
Date of Appeal:	June 2, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on June 21, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

THE LOSS OF THIS VEHICLE WILL CAUSE EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP. I HAVE RECENTLY BEEN SUFFERING FROM SEVERE DEPERSSION DUE TO MARITAL/ FINANCIAL BREAKDWON WHICH CREATES ERRATIC BEHAVIOR. I MADE A SERIOUS MISTAKE WHICH AT THE TIME I DID NOT EVEN REALIZE THE IMPLICATIONS. I AM A SINGLE MOM OF TWO BABIES (2 & 3) IF I LOSE MY CAR I WILL HAVE NO TRANSPORTATION & WILL NOT HAVE ANY MEANS TO BECOME SELF-SUFFICIENT. I AM ALSO IN GRAVE FINANCIAL TROUBLE AS IT IS. THIS VEHICLE IS LEASED TO ME & I RISK LOSING IT ALTOGETHER. I COMPLETELY UNDERSTAND & FELL SERIOUS REMORSE FOR THIS INCIDENT. I CANNOT EXPRESS TO YOU ENOUGH HOW THIS SITUATION HAD CREATED MORE TURMOIL IN MY LIFE. I AM BEGGING THIS TRIBUNAL TO RELEASE MY VEHICLE. I AM A GOOD UPSTANDING CITIZEN WHO MADE A BIG MISTAKE I THANK-YOU FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION.

To Whom It May Concern:

Re: the Applicant

The above mentioned is presently under my care and she was hospitalized back in May 2002 for treatment of depression. She is the mother of two children and she is recently separated. She apparently was becoming increasingly depressed, dysphoric, anxious, agitated and had suicidal thoughts.

I understand that she was involved in a car accident but she was not the driver. Apparently the driver was disqualified at the time of the incident and her care was impounded. This is the only transportation she has and deprivation of this motor vehicle is going to cause significant hardship on her. She is emotionally very devastated and this is intensifying a major depressive disorder for which she is being treated with medications.

Her behavior of allowing a disqualified driver to drive her was probably a manifestation of her underlying depression and anxiety and she now realizes that it was an irrational act.

I also gather from her that every day of the impound costs her fifteen dollars which could accumulate to a figure of several hundred dollars. She is in deep financial trouble.

I would hope that you would consider releasing the impounded vehicle to her. I will continue to see her in my office in ongoing psychotherapy and monitoring medications.

I will be more than pleased to provide details if you require so.

Thanking you.

Yours sincerely,
"Physician #1"

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a mother of 2 young daughters aged 2 and 3 years of age. She is currently separated and will be in a position to file for divorce in August, 2002.

There is no separation agreement in place with the Applicant and her estranged husband. He only provides her with child support, but no additional financial support. He is employed full-time and resides with his parents in Ajax. Because of this, the Applicant moved to her current hometown to be with family and has been on welfare for the past 2 months.

With respect to the circumstances surrounding the impoundment, The disqualified driver, the Applicant's friend since October, 2001 and herself decided to frequent a few clubs that evening. At a certain point, the Applicant refused to drive since she had been drinking. The disqualified driver volunteered to drive her vehicle with her permission. The Applicant was aware that the disqualified driver was a suspended driver.

As the disqualified driver was travelling along St. Paul Street in St. Catharines, The disqualified driver failed to check his blind spot when changing lanes and got into an accident with a taxi (Exhibit 5). The Applicant testified she tried to assume responsibility for the accident, but there were too many witnesses. The disqualified driver was charged criminally and the vehicle was impounded.

Due to all of the foregoing, the socio-economic changes in her life, the lack of support at the time, the bad decisions and the mistakes which were made, the Applicant suffered severe depression and was hospitalized in May, 2002. She is currently under the care of a psychiatrist (Exhibit 3) as well as case workers to assist her emotionally and with her parenting skills.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 6 & 7):

Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;

Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the disqualified driver;

Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until January 9, 2003.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
- (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal must determine whether it should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant has appealed on the grounds of "exceptional hardship" under section 55.2(3)(d).

Section 22 of Regulation 632/98 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in section 22(2). In order for her appeal to be considered under section 22(2), she must have demonstrated that all of section 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, section 22(4) of the Regulations provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle.

The Applicant has testified that she is currently using her grandmother's leased vehicle. There is no public transit in her current hometown. She also testified that she has made some friends in the area who would provide her with transportation if the need arose.

With regard to possible threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle, the Applicant testified that her daughters have no health issues. The community in which the Applicant resides is "911" accessible and the hospital is about 3 kilometres from her home. Since the impoundment, she has not missed any doctor's appointments.

She would like to honour her commitment to the leasing company as well as repairing the damage caused to the vehicle, but she doesn't feel she can manage the cost of the towing charges, impoundment fees as well as the cost to repair the vehicle. Unfortunately, the insurance company has disallowed the damage claim since the Applicant was not the driver of the vehicle at the time of the accident.

Although the Applicant is a person in crisis, her plight with regard to her significant financial losses regarding this impoundment cannot be addressed by this Tribunal since there are alternatives to the impounded vehicle.

Evidence was heard that the Applicant has incurred severe financial hardship as a result of the loss of the vehicle. The Applicant testified that the disqualified driver indicated he would help her pay half of the expenses, but to date she has not received any money. "He has a good job with John Deere". The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

"The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

After considering the above requirements, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and the impact of the loss will only be financially significant, but not immediate and lasting.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, the Tribunal finds the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE L.HILEY, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES: GARY HUNT, Agent for the Applicant
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel for the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: April 23, 2002 Sudbury

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This matter was commenced by the Registrar issuing a Notice of Proposal dated July 30, 2001. In that Notice of Proposal the Registrar stated his refusal to register the Applicant as a motor vehicle salesperson based on the non disclosure of outstanding judgments against her. The Applicant submitted a Notice of Appeal dated September 24, 2001. The Registrar issued Notice of Further and Other Particulars on April 9, 2002. In that Notice of Further Particulars the Registrar stated that the refusal was based on the previous reasons and as well the facts that:

1. the Applicant received a transfer of funds in contravention of section 91 of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act;
2. The Applicant declared personal bankruptcy on October 29, 2001.

There was a dispute over the admissibility of some of the documents presented by the Applicant. The Tribunal allowed in as evidence the original application, the lawsuit between the Bank of Nova Scotia and Donna Hunt, letter of James Houston, copy of Jeannette Assinewai deal, copy of Anna Wilkins deal and the report dated April 15, 2002 from Catherine Beebe. R.N. The affidavit of Gary Hunt, the copy of the LAT decision re Gary Hunt, the copy of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the copy of the Canadian Bill of Rights and the copy of the lawsuit between Donna Hunt and Mary Jane South were not entered as exhibits.

It was determined that the Tribunal would not hear any Charter arguments as the proper procedure had not been followed by the Applicant. Mr. Gary Hunt was to act as agent for the Applicant and would not be called as a witness.

ISSUE:

Was the Registrar acting reasonably in refusing the registration of Donna M. Hunt to be a motor vehicle salesperson?

EVIDENCE:

The Registrar called Pamela Florence, an estate administrator for Price Waterhouse Coopers and Mary Jane South, deputy register, as his witnesses.

Pamela Florence testified that she has been a certified estate administrator since 1995 and was familiar with the bankruptcy of Grandview Ford Lincoln Sales Ltd. as her company had been appointed the receiver on this matter. She stated that the Trustee in Bankruptcy was to review certain transactions of which one was the payment to Donna Hunt of forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00) via a bank draft on November 17, 1999. Ms Florence found this to be an unusual transaction as the bank draft was drawn on the MasterCard account of the dealership. Normally the monies in the MasterCard account would be transferred to the dealership's general account. As well this bank draft had been labeled as a bonus but if that were the case there should have been a T4 issued and taxes should have been deducted. Ms Florence stated that repayment of a personal loan would normally be posted to the general account and if it were a bonus it would be a payroll item. She stated that there is a court order stating that this transaction is a settlement payment and not allowed under section 91 of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act. The money was to be returned by Ms Hunt to the trustee. Ms Florence stated that to the best of her knowledge the funds had not been returned. There had been a recovery of $2,000.00 when a motor home owned jointly by Donna and Gary Hunt was seized and sold. The funds were distributed on a percentage basis to the various creditors.

Mary Jane South testified that she has been the deputy registrar of OMVIC since January, 1997. OMVIC is a non profit corporation which has the responsibility to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, which is a public protection act. She had issued the Notice of Proposal. She based her refusal on the outstanding judgments with the CIBC and the Bank of Nova Scotia as well as the transfer of funds by bank draft to Ms Hunt and the fact that Ms Hunt was an undischarged bankrupt. Ms South felt that Ms Hunt had misled the Registrar concerning her financial position. Her application for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson was dated July 17, 2001. In it Ms Hunt had stated that there were no outstanding judgments but the Bank of Nova Scotia judgment predated that application.

Ms South stated that she asked Ms Hunt about that judgment and the CIBC judgment during a telephone conversation on September 24, 2001. Ms Hunt stated that the Bank of Nova Scotia judgment had been settled and she was unaware of any judgment against her by CIBC. Ms South stated that Ms Hunt could not work as a business manager without being registered but she could work as an accountant without such registration. Such a distinction is stated in Section f of the application form.

Ms South stated that Ms Hunt had said she was not signing any documents. The Vehicle Purchase agreement for the Doreena Trudeau deal dated August 15, 2001 has the signature of Ms Hunt plus her old registration number of 4671880. As well there is the Jeannette Assinewai document dated June 30, 2001 which was signed by Ms Hunt. Ms Hunt also signed the vehicle purchase agreement dated July 24, 2001 for Anna and Gary Wilkins.

Ms South stated that the CIBC judgment against Gary and Donna Hunt is dated February 8th, 2001 in the amount of $277,350.35 for principal and accrued interest plus $3500.00 for costs. As of May 8th, 2001 the amount owing on that judgment was $290,519.03. The Bank of Nova Scotia judgment against Donna and Gary Hunt is dated February 23, 2001. It is in the amount of $758,754.00 plus $36,170.74 for prejudgment interest. The full and final release by the Bank of Nova Scotia on this judgment is dated August 8, 2001 which is after the application for registration had been submitted to OMVIC. Ms Hunt then declared personal bankruptcy and the insolvency search conducted on October 29, 2001 showed no discharge date.

It was the position of Ms South that declaring bankruptcy itself is not the factor for financial irresponsibility in this case. It is the conduct of Ms Hunt leading to the bankruptcy which concerns the Registrar. Ms Hunt had failed to disclose her proper financial position and had not conducted herself in a financially responsible manner. She signed documents on behalf of the dealership when she knew that she should not be doing that as she was not yet registered under the Act.

Ms Hunt testified on her own behalf. She has extensive business experience with the motor vehicle industry since 1980. She relocated to Gore Bay and submitted a renewal application in March, 2001. That renewal application could not be found at OMVIC so it was resubmitted. Then the matter was delayed in the legal department at OMVIC. She was told to do a reinstatement application. This was done in July, 2001. She put down that there were no outstanding judgments as she thought the Bank of Nova Scotia judgment had already been settled and she did not know about the judgment against her by CIBC. She does not remember being in court on this matter.

Ms Hunt stated that she had a difficult time in the fall of 2000 as she was depressed and went to hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. She had been upset at the lawsuit over the closure of Grandview. Money was tight in the family as her husband was not working steadily. She was on Prozac for some time and recently has gone off it. She stated that she had liquidated a RESP fund to allow her husband to have the funds for the business. Her husband had agreed to repay her. It was not a bonus situation. She did take the $40,000.00 bank draft from her husband. She thought that the funds had been repaid and she had heard nothing from Price Waterhouse Coopers on this issue. She felt when the full and final release was signed with the Bank of Nova Scotia that meant the $40,000.00 had been repaid, that no fault was found and there was no lawsuits between the parties.

Ms Hunt testified that she and her husband had been fighting with CIBC as the bank had erred on a bank loan so they stopped payments. The bank did not protect their motor home from creditors. All their other credit obligations are paid in full.

Regarding Island Ford, Ms Hunt stated that she did not work for them but helped with the paperwork. She did not sell cars. She was not knowingly trying to deceive anyone. She felt that her situation was delayed due to the problems being experienced by her husband. Their current financial problems are due to her husband. She had no paperwork to prove it was a loan to her husband. It was monies from her first divorce.

Ms Hunt wants to work at Island Ford where her husband is now the general manager. She would report to him as well as to Ken Bell. She does not understand why you have to be registered if you work as a business manager. Regarding the documents with her signature she had signed them at home and then the customer signed them.

LEGISLATION:

The relevant legislation is the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty;

...

(2) A registration is subject to such terms and conditions to give effect to the purposes of this Act as are consented to by the applicant, imposed by the Tribunal or prescribed by the regulations.

...

7.(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

(5) The Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

ANALYSIS:

This is an application by Ms Hunt to be allowed to be registered as a motor vehicle salesperson. She had been registered in the past but that registration had lapsed and she had applied for reinstatement. She has been working in the motor vehicle industry in a variety of positions since 1980. This depth of experience is significant in the decision of this Tribunal.

It is the opinion of the Tribunal that the Registrar acted reasonably in refusing to register Ms Hunt as a motor vehicle salesperson. It is trite law that the Tribunal should not interfere with the decision of the Registrar unless the Tribunal is of the opinion that the Registrar acted unreasonably and did not have sufficient grounds for the Proposal.

The Tribunal bases its decision on a number of factors. Ms Hunt has stated and she provided medical information that she suffered emotionally after the collapse of the Grandview dealership. Accordingly the Tribunal can accept her explanation that she has some confusion over exactly what occurred from the fall of 1991 until recently. But Ms Hunt was quite clear that she had faxed in her application form in March, 2001, it was lost and she did another one later that spring and then finally did a reinstatement application in July, 2001. The evidence before the Tribunal is that Ms Hunt did appear in court regarding the CIBC statement of claim so she either misled the Registrar regarding this matter or she failed to make inquiries as to what happened with that court case. Regarding the Bank of Nova Scotia judgment there was a release signed August 8th, 2001. The Tribunal finds it difficult to believe Ms Hunt's explanation that she thought it was settled earlier. She was capable enough to sign documents on behalf of Island Ford in June, July and August, 2001. Why was she not capable of ascertaining the progress on the settlement negotiations with the Bank of Nova Scotia? Failure to make proper disclosure on the application form is considered by this Tribunal as a serious error of judgment and requires reasonable explanations as to why the application was not completed properly. In this case the Tribunal did not receive such reasonable explanations. The Registrar must rely on these applications to be accurate and honest due to the tremendous volume of applications received each year. To deceive the Registrar, particularly on a reinstatement application, show a lack of honesty and integrity on the part of the Applicant. This Applicant had worked for many years in the motor vehicle industry and had been registered previously. She should have ensured her answers were accurate to the best of her ability.

The Tribunal is also concerned about the conduct of the Applicant signing documents on behalf of Island Ford when she had not received her registration. Indeed on one document, the Trudeau deal, Ms Hunt not only signed her name on behalf of the dealership but she put her old registration number. She knew in August, 2001 that her registration application had not been accepted by the Registrar and yet she knowingly put down an expired registration number on the vehicle purchase agreement. There were three examples of Ms Hunt having signed official documents on behalf of Island

Ford either shortly before or shortly after having submitted her reinstatement application. Yet she should have known due to her previous experience as a registrant that you cannot work as a business manager without being registered. Indeed that statement is stated quite clearly on the application form that she submitted in July, 2001. Again Ms Hunt was either misleading the Registrar or was negligent in not reading the application form.

The Tribunal agrees with the statement of Ms South that the fact that one has filed for personal bankruptcy does not in itself mean you cannot be registered under the Act. You have to look at the conduct of the individual prior to and after the filing of the bankruptcy.

It is unfortunate that Ms Hunt and her family are suffering financially due to the business losses of her husband. The Tribunal can sympathize with how this affected her emotionally. But the Tribunal, as does the Registrar, must balance the interests of the applicant with that of the general public. In this case the Tribunal found the conduct of the Applicant in not completing the reinstatement application properly and in acting as a business manager without being registered shows that she would not act with honesty and with integrity if permitted to be registered as a motor vehicle salesperson.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal to refuse the registration of Donna M. Hunt as a motor vehicle salesperson.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Applicant appeals a Notice of Proposal dated November 6, 2001, issued by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Act") to refuse to grant the registration of Eugene Borg as a motor vehicle salesperson under the provisions of the Act.

The Registrar's Proposal is based on the provisions of section 6(2) of the Act as read with section 5(1)(b) and 5(1)(a) thereof on the grounds that the past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. In addition, the Registrar relies on a Decision of this Tribunal between the same parties, released on August 25, 2000 and which is attached to the Decision of the Registrar as Exhibit #1, an appeal from the Registrar's previous refusal to register the Applicant dated January 1, 2000.

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard evidence from Mr. John McCormack. He alleged that he bought a car from Mr. Eugene Borg for $12,800 from a driveway near Eglinton and Renfrew, said car being a 1996 Ford Windstar, on March 26, 2001 with an odometer reading of approximately 38,000 km. but that he never received any paperwork until April 6, 2001. he further stated that he gave Mr. Borg some $2000.00 in cash for a deposit and in payment of taxes and improvements on the vehicle.

When he received the Sales Receipt (Exhibit 3 Tab 10 4th page) the amount of the sale price was $10,332.00 and the seller was G.W. Motors and the Salesperson was indicated to be Sally Baughem. He was later advised by a Ford dealer that the true mileage was in fact 83,000 km. as of 1999. He had a great deal of trouble with the van and sold it within 6 months.

Mr. Mark Harris was the second witness for the Registrar. He advised the Tribunal that he represents G.W. Motors and that they are registered under the Act. He testified that he had been trying to help Mr. Borg, who used to own his own car business. Mr. Harris testified that when old customers call Mr. Borg, Mr. Borg refers them to Mr. Harris, who gives him a commission.

Mr. Borg also goes to car auctions with Mr. Harris as an advisor. Mr. Harris further stated that he pays a referral and commission cheque to Mr. Borg monthly, together with some cash each month. The motor vehicle in question, the Ford Windstar sold to Mr. McCormack, was a theft recovery sale by Ford Credit Canada at auction with the notation "TKU" True Kilometers Unknown. It had in fact been a stolen vehicle.

In cross examination Mr. Harris advised the Tribunal he knew about Mr. Borg's Criminal Record, and his some 7 convictions and that he would still trust him and, if licenced, would have hired him on his car lot.

Amanda Lee Dempsey was the third witness for the Respondent. She is an employee of the office of the Registrar and enforces the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. She testified that their criteria for registration are honesty and integrity and financial responsibility.

She testified she was aware of the reasons for the Registrar's decision to refuse registration and that in Mr. Borg's case the refusal concerns his complete criminal record and his deception in not advising the Registrar about it when filing out applications on two previous occasions (See Exhibit #1 with Schedule "A" attached). There also were concerns to do with his financial irresponsibility in non payment under a support order, and also in his acting as a salesperson when not licenced.

The Registrar was particularly concerned by the conviction for possession of stolen property and fraud and by the arrears of the Family Court Award.

Mr. Eugene Borg was the sole witness for the Applicant. He testified that he is 38 years of age and was convicted at the ages of 16 and 18 for possession of stolen auto parts, and in 1987 for possession and fraud. He testified that he had no knowledge of the 1998 or 1999 convictions, but knew they dealt with his marriage troubles. He is paying his ex-wife $300-400/month in cash over the last 9 months and is $63,000.00 in arrears.

His work consists of finding cars for dealers and fixing up cars. If he is allowed to attend auctions he can earn a living. He admitted during the last week of March 2001 he met Mr. McCormack at a friend's driveway and told him that the friend had a vehicle for sale.

He drove Mr. McCormack to Speedy Muffler, where the vehicle was located, and was paid $2000.00 cash, by Mr. McCormack, to do repairs to the vehicle. He did the repairs himself through a company he owns. No invoices were produced. Mr. Borg testified he never saw Mr. McCormack again.

He further stated that certain payments have been made to his wife by friends on his behalf. The payment records of the Family Responsibility Office (Exhibit 5) do show certain payments were made, payments which he indicated were to be credited to him.

In cross examination Mr. Borg acknowledged that Exhibit #7 was a Judgement of the Ontario Court of Appeal in a case recorded as Caroline Gerstner (Respondent) and Eugene Borg (appellant) being file no. G 29403, which was decided on February 10, 1999 and dealt with a contempt order made against him, concerning his failure to pay $100,000.00 into his solicitor's trust account.

The contempt order dealt with the removal of $171,000.000 from a business account and an affidavit was sworn by Mr. Borg concerning the whereabouts of the funds. It later became known that the affidavit was false and that his mother was holding the funds for him. The Court of Appeal stated that due to a technical error, Mr. Borg could not be held in contempt. However, the affidavit he had sworn was indeed false.

THE LAW:

The relevant portions of the Act that are applicable to these proceedings are subsections 5(1) and 6(1), which set out the circumstances under which the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant. The powers of the Tribunal are set out in section 7(4).

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and,

(i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of its business, or

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

(d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations.

6.(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

7.(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

The Divisional Court has clearly outlined the proper test to be applied by the Tribunal in Re Brenner, 19 C.R.A.T.58 as follows:

"The effect of section 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead, the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner has genuinely reformed and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Ms. Harari argues that the Tribunal cannot find in favour of the Applicant unless the Tribunal finds that the Registrar erred in its Decision. She is quite right. She further argues that any reasonable Decision should go in favour of the Registrar and that the case for the Registrar is stronger now than it was two years ago due to Mr. Borg's acting as a salesperson without a licence.

Mr. Fedorsen, Counsel for the Applicant, submitted that the Registrar erred in failing to investigate the Applicant's age at the time that the "honesty" convictions were dealt with and his wife's willingness to remove the order filed with the Family Responsibility Office before refusing his registration. He further argued that the Applicant is forthright and admitted everything to the Tribunal and that he has been in the motor vehicle business all of his adult life.

The Tribunal finds as fact that:

1. The Applicant was carrying on the business of a car salesperson while unlicensed.
2. The Applicant's dealings with Mr. McCormack did not exhibit the integrity and honesty expected of a licensed motor vehicle salesperson.
3. The Applicant was financially irresponsible with regard to his support payments.

4. In 1999, the Applicant was found by Ontario Court of Appeal to have sworn a false affidavit with regard to his financial circumstances.

The Tribunal finds that based on these facts the Registrar was correct in his findings that the past conduct of the Applicant:

- (a) afforded reasonable grounds for believing that he would not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; and,
- (b) having regard to the facts found in the evidence, indicated the Applicant could not reasonably be found to be financially responsible in his business dealings.

Having regard to the aforesaid the Tribunal finds no grounds to disagree with the Registrar's Decision.

ORDER:

Accordingly the Tribunal, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, directs the Registrar to carry out its proposal dated November 6, 2001 to refuse the registration of Eugene Borg as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

CYNTHIA AND JOSIP BAN

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE
ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE L. HILEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: CYNTHIA AND JOSIP BAN, Applicants
KAREN JONES, Counsel representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program

DATE OF
HEARING: April 8 and 9, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Registrar issued a decision letter on November 21, 2001 in which he denied the claim of the Applicants based on water penetration issues and the spalling of the foundation concrete. The Registrar found that the claim did not fall within the definition in the Act for major structural failure.

The Applicants by their Notice of December 5, 2001 requested a hearing before the Tribunal. They stated in their Notice of Appeal that they had an engineer's report stating there was structural damage, joist ends needed to be supported, and the foundation wall did not meet Code and was defective.

The hearing was held on April 8, 2002 and continued on April 9, 2002.

ISSUE:

Do the claims of the Applicants fall within the meaning of the definition of major structural defect under the Ontario New Home Warranties Act?

If so, did the Applicants suffer any damages from this defect?

TESTIMONY:

Testimony of Cynthia Ban:

Mrs. Ban is one of the homeowners of the property at 5259 Forestwalk Circle, Mississauga, Ontario. She and her husband took possession of the property on January 29, 1998.

Mrs. Ban testified that she first noticed the water penetration problem in July, 2001. They have a two story detached home. The water penetration was occurring at the north end of the basement adjacent to the garage. They had insulation only on the top one half of the walls in their basement. They noticed a puddle of water on the floor by the north wall. They removed the insulation in that particular area. They did not notice any cracks in that area. They then noticed that the foundation was crumbling on the outside of the house. They contacted the Program and on the recommendation of the Program staff they had concrete testing done by Construction Testing Laboratory on September 19, 2001. After receiving the results of that testing they filed a claim with the Program on September 21, 2001.

Mrs. Ban testified that it was recommended by the Laboratory that they have the foundation repoured and have the joist ends supported by metal posts. Mrs. Ban was informed that the city inspector does not look at testing the concrete when it is poured into foundations. She was not aware of how this concrete issue could have come to their awareness without doing the concrete testing. Mrs. Ban stated that the concrete in their foundation does not meet the requirements of the Ontario Building Code.

Mrs. Ban testified that on October 30, 2001 there was a site inspection of the claim by a warranty representative.

Mrs. Ban presented a number of photographs to illustrate the nature of the problem. Photograph 8C shows the top of the foundation on the north wall of the house just before the garage. Mrs. Ban took this photograph on March 13, 2002. Photograph 8A shows a close up view of the north wall of the house going down some 4 to 5 inches below the soil surface. There is no evidence of plastic covering or tar covering on the wall. This photograph was taken by Mr. Ban on April 6, 2002. Photograph 8B is taken inside the basement on the east wall of the house. It shows efflorescence half way down on the wall. Mrs. Ban took this photograph on March 13, 2002. Photograph 8D is of the north wall of the house on the outside. It was taken by Mrs. Ban on March 13, 2002. Photograph 8E is of the outside north wall of the house closer to the garage. It was taken by Mrs. Ban on March 13, 2002.

Mrs. Ban explained that the Ontario Building Code states that concrete in the foundation should be 12.7 mpa but the results of the testing show the concrete at her home to be 5.5 mpa.

Exhibit 9 to this hearing is some pieces of the foundation of the house which had been seen in the photographs contained in Exhibit 8.

The Construction Testing Laboratories Limited did a further report dated December 4, 2001 which dealt with the matters raised by the warranty representative after his site visit.

Mrs. Ban stated that on March 6, 2002 Mr. Genge and the warranty representative came to their home for a site visit. A report was written on March 15, 2002. The Construction Testing Laboratories Limited then did a further report dated March 29, 2002.

Mrs. Ban testified that they are concerned about their ability to sell their home with these problems. She had no estimate of the costs involved to remove the concrete foundation and repour it in sections.

Under cross examination Mrs. Ban confirmed that they had no concerns about the basement until July of 2001. It had not been raining when they discovered the puddle of water on the floor. They found about a litre of water on the floor in the north west corner of the basement. They use their basement for storage and continue to do so now.

Mrs. Ban stated that the foundation was crumbling on the north wall by the garage. As well there was a bit by the front door. There was nothing on the south wall and with the deck on the east wall they could not see the foundation.

Mrs. Ban with the assistance of her husband completed a chart which showed the extent of the problem. Efflorescence was found by the south wall near east side by the insulation. In the cold room the efflorescence starts at the top of the wall and goes to the middle of the wall. There is a crack at the west end of the north wall near the electrical box. It is about 4 feet in length and perhaps a couple of millimeters in width being wider at the top. There was no water from that crack. There was another crack on the north wall under the insulation in the top part of the wall. It is about 3 ½ feet long and approximately 4 millimeters in width, being wider at the top. There was no water on the wall. In the northeast area of the basement the cardboard boxes were damp underneath.

Mrs. Ban stated that she had not taken any humidity readings. There was no dehumidifier, just the air conditioner.

In conclusion the north wall had efflorescence under the insulation; northeast wall had efflorescence by the insulation and at the bottom; south wall had efflorescence by the insulation; and the west wall by the cold room.

Mrs. Ban stated that they have not shorn up the joists as they did not want to do anything to prevent their ability to file for warranty protection.

Mrs. Ban stated that there was no crumbling of the foundation inside the basement but that had started to happen in the garage in the summer of 2000. There is a fine powder crumbling along all the exterior walls of the garage. This problem was not mentioned to their engineer, Mr. Wong or to the warranty representative.

Testimony of William Wong:

Mr. Wong is a professional engineer. He has tested approximately 25 to 30 house foundations since 1987. His area of expertise is in the testing of concrete. He normally does industrial or commercial testing. He tests approximately three or four houses per year.

His initial report (Exhibit 5) was done on September 20, 2001. Using a diamond core drill he took three cores from the north wall. Two of those cores were from the exterior above the ground level and the third core was taken from the interior of the north wall about 800 millimeters from the floor and about one meter east of the electrical box.

Mr. Wong explained the calculation of pressure is done in megapascals. He uses a specific type of machine that results in the piston rising and the concrete material is crushed. His machine dates from 1995 and is calibrated yearly. He had an average result of 5.5 mpa while the Ontario Building Code speaks of 15 mpa. His results were roughly one third of the minimum requirements under the Ontario Building Code.

Mr. Wong stated that the results of his carbonation tests showed 20 mm and 25mm for the exterior walls and 35mm for the interior wall. He concluded that the concrete was so porous that carbon dioxide could enter. He stated that normally concrete will carbonate at about 1 mm per year. If it is a poor quality of concrete then you get a larger amount of carbon in it. He found the concrete to be extremely porous on both interior and exterior of the wall.

The two cores were taken from the exterior of the wall. The surface was very scaled which is caused by freeze and thaw damage. Water gets into the pores of the concrete. When it freezes that causes expansion and the concrete will flake off. Such flaking is an indication that the concrete is porous and absorbs water readily. If this process is allowed to continue you could have a collapse of the wall as the foundation would not be thick enough to support the house.

Mr. Wong stated that as the compressive strength was lower than the Code it was necessary to have metal shoring posts along the foundation walls at the end of every joist. He stated that there was no way to determine the strength of the concrete at the base point where the wall meets the floor.

The third core was taken in the interior of the wall closer to the basement floor. Mr. Wong observed that it could be weaker at the top of the wall where the base plate is under the joists.

His second report of December 4, 2001 deals with the observations of the warranty representative.

He stated that the minerals from the concrete, in particular calcium hydroxide, are brought to the surface by water. There is a reaction and a white residue is formed which is insoluble in water. This is efflorescence. It happens to concrete that is very porous. Mr. Wong felt that good quality concrete of this age should not be showing any measurable carbonation. The shrinkage cracks mean a high water to cement ratio. The normal water to cement ratio is 0.55. When you increase the water to cement ratio the concrete becomes porous for when it dries the water dissipates leaving pores behind. Its compression strength decreases. He felt that a symptom of high water to cement ratio are shrinkage cracks. He observed densities of 2174.5 to 2212.4 kg/m³. Normal densities are 2300 kg/m³. He felt this was due to more water in the mix.

Mr. Wong stated that the Ontario Building Code at 9.3.1.6 mentions the compressive strength as being 15 mpa as the minimum standard. This is necessary so there will be the ability to resist environmental exposure, resist abrasion and damage by impact. If you fail to meet this standard then it might not be able to anchor what you mount on the inside of your house.

Mr. Wong stated that the table 9.15.4.1 of the Ontario Building Code states that the thickness of foundation walls is related to the 15 mpa. There has been no changes in the Code on this issue.

Mr. Wong stated that the strength of concrete will increase over time. Within 28 days of pouring you get about 90 to 95% of its strength. You have about 75% of its strength after seven days from being poured. He found that the original thickness of the foundation walls in this house was 8 inches. If the foundation erodes then something drastic could happen within ten years. As well the lateral earth pressure can bend the wall and horizontal cracks will appear. It is necessary to have the 15 mpa strength to resist that kind of pressure.

Mr. Wong responded to the criticism of his report by Mr. Genge. He stated that the size of his samples meets the standard set up the CSA. He stated that 100 mm requirement is not part of that standard and is not necessary but is a notation to the standard. The core samples were taken to his laboratory and allowed to sit for twenty four hours before testing. CSA standards allow for one day of rest before testing. Mr. Wong disagreed with Mr. Genge's statement that the Schmidt method meets the CSA standard. According to Mr. Wong Schmidt test method is not intended to determine strength. You use the Schmidt impact hammer to determine the areas of weaker concrete and stronger concrete. Mr. Genge did not determine the correlation between rebound numbers and the compressed strength. Accordingly Mr. Wong felt the compressive strength results by Mr. Genge were totally misleading.

Mr. Wong disagreed with Mr. Genge's analysis of the carbonation tests. He did not feel that the walls were exposed to the environmental hazards mentioned by Mr. Genge.

Indeed the third core test was done on an interior wall and it was the highest in results. Mr. Wong felt that there was no indication that the foundation was built in winter using heaters for to do that it would require plywood frames.

Regarding the issue of moisture Mr. Wong disagreed with the comments of Mr. Genge that the moisture was caused by air in the basement. There is very heavy sheeting on the insulation in the basement. The water vapour is due to emissions from the concrete. Mr. Wong also stated that he did not see any damp proofing. If it is required you cannot apply it to a flaking surface but one that is clean and dry. Mr. Wong stated that you need to replace the concrete with that which meets the Code standard. He felt that the photograph 8B showed that the damp proofing had been compromised.

Mr. Wong stated that the efflorescence at the top and bottom of the wall showed that either the damp proofing was not there or it was not working. Two factors can cause efflorescence: weak concrete or non functional damp proofing.

Mr. Wong explained that he used the CSA test method to take cores from the house as explained at 17.6.7.2 dealing with compressive strength requirements. As well he used the CSA test method of 4.1.1 for taking test specimens. He had to trim his samples. The 100 mm diameter is in a footnote to the standard. He also used the dry conditioning mentioned in 4.1.3.2 of the CSA standards. He also applied the correction factors mentioned in Table 1 of this standard.

Mr. Wong stated that the rebound test standard used by Mr. Genge was not intended to be an alternative to strength determination of concrete. As well the rebound numbers were not correlated with the core testing information.

Mr. Wong stated that under the Code foundation walls below ground level should be damp proofed. The photograph 8A shows that damp proofing was not present. In order to do damp proofing properly the holes and recesses in the concrete walls have to be sealed with cement mortar.

In cross examination Mr. Wong explained that three of his staff went out to the Ban home to do the core samples. Then on March 21, 2002 Mr. Wong went to the house.

Mr. Wong explained that he went to University at Memorial University, University of Toronto and in the Philippines which was recognized here in Canada. He has two years of engineering experience plus he passed the three hour written examination in law/ethics. When he wrote the report of Sept. 20/01 it was based on the observations of his three employees. He felt that spalling and scaling were words to be used interchangeably. They meant the flaking off of concrete.

Mr. Wong stated that his report dealt with random scaling on the foundation, not measured scaling. He did not see the surface spalling on the basement walls. The prime objective of his employees was to take the core samples. There was no testing for porosity or entrained air. He felt that there were a number of trucks who supplied concrete to the foundation, probably three loads of cement. A cold joint is a separation between two loads of cement.

Mr. Wong felt there was no real change in the standards between CSA 2000 and CSA 1994. He did not feel you had to use the 100 mm diameter core sample. He had to trim his samples so they were shorter than 100 mm. He felt that the testing was done until noon or 1 pm. That would have given the 24 hours for the samples to be dry cured. If the cores are wet there would be a slight decrease in the test results. He felt that length does make a difference.

Mr. Wong did not feel that the fact that his samples were crushed invalidates his test results. As well he did not think you could do a 100 mm diameter penetration in an eight inch wall as it would penetrate the wall. You could possibly do that in a twelve inch wall.

Regarding calcium carbonate, which is formed when water leaches out carbon hydroxide, Mr. Wong did not feel that walls with calcium carbonate have a stronger matrix. You then have a lining of a cell structure. Unlike air pores you can see water pores with your naked eye. A porous concrete is linked to permeability.

Mr. Wong disagreed with the hypothesis that warm moist air behind a vapour barrier will pond below the insulation. Instead he felt that the moisture is from the concrete and as the wall was drier inside than outside the water was wicked into the inside wall. This water is then trapped by the vapour barrier and goes down to below the insulation and causes the efflorescence. He felt the damp proofing was not working well. He did not feel that the cold joint was causing the efflorescence.

Regarding the repair issue Mr. Wong did not feel that it was possible to fix the problem by repairing the outside wall. The bonding agent would not adhere due to the scaling of the wall. There is little aggregate to paste bond. He disagreed with the analysis of Mr. Genge that the foundation was safe. Mr. Wong felt the concrete was soft and its load bearing capacity was one third of what it should be. Though it is currently supporting the load there could be a structural failure in the future. Currently the structural failure is that the concrete does not meet Code.

Testimony of Mr. Camilleri:

Mr. Camilleri was at the house when Mr. Wong's staff came to do the core testing. He recalls that these people were at the house from approximately 9 am to 11:30 am.

Testimony of Mark Roccatagliata:

Mr. Roccatagliata has an architectural diploma from Mohawk College. He has extensive experience in the building industry and has been a warranty representative with the Program since 1988. He has taken a number of courses on the Ontario Building Code, and on brick, masonry and concrete repairs. In the course of his career with the Program he estimates that he has inspected over three thousand homes of which approximately twenty per cent deal with foundation problems.

Mr. Roccatagliata recalls doing a home inspection in the presence of Mrs. Ban and her father, Mr. Camilleri. He viewed the core sample area, the area of water penetration and tested the floor joists on base where he observed that one and one half inch sat on the foundation. He saw the area of the cold joint which was near a band of efflorescence. There was a crack at the northwest corner but no evidence of water penetration. He saw efflorescence below the hydro panel and on the north wall at the band of insulation. On the north wall he observed that concrete had spalled away from the top face of the foundation wall about 2 to 3 feet west of the electrical panel and that carried on for 15 or 20 feet along the north wall.

Mr. Roccatagliata had seen the report dated September 20, 2001 from Mr. Wong. He disagreed with its findings. He felt there was no failure of the load bearing foundation. He based that finding on there being no displacement of the wall, no sheering of the wall as the foundation was flush and there was no lateral movement, no collapse of the floor joists and no horizontal cracks to indicate displacement.

Mr. Roccatagliata went again for an inspection of the home on March 6, 2002 with Mr. Genge. Mr. and Mrs. Ban were there at that time. He cut into the insulation and did find a crack there. There was no spalling on the south wall and the homeowners had not directed his attention to any problems with the west wall by the front entrance.

Mr. Roccatagliata disagreed with the statement that no damp proofing would mean moisture penetrating the foundation. That situation was dependent on the soil conditions near the foundation. In his opinion the efflorescence was the result of condensation. The cold foundation draws heat. Condensation forms a band on the insulation. The header space (space below the floor joint) was not insulated and condensation forms on the vapour barrier. If the water was being wicked through the concrete foundation there would have been evidence of efflorescence on all of the foundation walls.

Mr. Roccatagliata felt the repair can be effected by cleaning the exposed surface, applying the bonding agent and then applying a concrete solution to help it bond.

Under cross examination Mr. Roccatagliata did not deny that there was a violation of the Code but he disagreed with the statement that this led to a major structural defect.

Testimony of Gerald Genge:

Mr. Genge stated that he is a professional engineer with a degree from the University of Toronto. He is accredited by the Toronto Building Envelope Council. He is a consulting engineer. As such he has been retained by CMHC to examine a number of condominium properties and by private corporations and cooperatives to examine their structures. He has done research on concrete repairs and is currently working on a research report on the methods of concrete repair. The Tribunal found him to be an expert on building envelopes, structural concrete and the repair of defects of concrete.

Mr. Genge had done an inspection of the Ban property on March 6, 2002. He had noticed deterioration of the north wall for approximately forty feet but did not notice any such deterioration on the south or west wall. Inside the home he noticed staining and efflorescence on the concrete immediately below the insulation and one crack of a diagonal nature on the north wall.

He had read the reports of September/01 and December/01 from CTL. Though he wanted to analyze the core samples to tell what was the break or failure of the core he was unable to make that determination from the sample of core provided to him.

Mr. Genge testified that he conducted tests using the Schmidt Hammer, which is an instrument that through impact testing indirectly measures the strength of the concrete. By putting weight against the plunger the instrument calibrates strength. This test is done at least ten times at each location. It is a non destructive test, unlike the core sampling method. It does not give absolute values of compressive strength but is a reasonably accurate methodology. For instance, if the test result is 10 mpa the result could be 8 ½ to 11 mpa. Basically the readings are not in mpa but in rebound numbers that are averaged and then compared to a calibration chart.

Mr. Genge stated that he obtained values considerably higher than the core samples obtained by Mr. Wong. He found no real significant problem with the actual strength of the foundation and felt his findings showed it was not inconsistent with acceptable values for concrete in basements. Mpa relates to strength of the concrete. The standards are 15 mpa for foundations, 20 mpa for floor slabs and 20 to 30 mpa for exposed sidewalks.

Part 9 of the Ontario Building Code is a prescriptive standard. A house designer can opt out of Part 9 and use engineering principles. There is not a major structural defect simply because the mpa in the concrete does not meet the Code. You have to determine the relevance of meeting this standard and as well look at the scope of the repair required.

If there is a higher water to cement ration than the concrete is less durable. This higher water ratio can happen if there is excessive water added at the end of a pour of cement. The strength of the foundation is less at the top than at the bottom.

Mr. Genge stated that while a trained observer could do a naked eye assessment of concrete and state if there is a high degree of air content you still need to have microscopic observations to determine the degree of entrained air in the concrete.

He stated that there has never been a failure of a basement wall due to inadequate comprehensive strength for the loads (live and dead) applied are less than required for such a failure.

In his opinion the scaling of the exterior wall on the north side was due to freeze/thaw problem and it needed to be stopped by restoring the profile of the concrete (removing the deteriorated concrete) and putting in a repair concrete under the veneer. This is an atypical repair of a low strength concrete so you must be careful of the patch materials used and ensure that they match the qualities of the substrata. The aggregate paste bond failure was another sign of low strength concrete.

Mr. Genge did not see water leaking through the crack. He assumed that the damp proofing was intact as there was not significant staining nor was there efflorescence on the whole face of the wall. He felt that the problem was due to condensation.

Mr. Genge did not see any horizontal cracks which could mean displacement of the foundation. The lateral crack was likely the result of improper backfilling but by this time it would not result in that wall falling.

Mr. Genge described the core drilling method and stated that all core drills have some wobble in them and that wobble impacts on the cores when inside the barrel and there is vibration damage to the concrete. The larger the diameter of the core samples the less impact of this vibration damage to the samples. Once you know that you have a soft concrete then you should be suspicious of the test results using the core drilling method as the cores can be damaged during the testing. It is essential that the cores be dried in accordance with the standards. Mr. Genge felt that the fact that the core samples in Mr. Wong's tests crumbled or were crushed means that the testing would not give an accurate value of the strength of the concrete. He found it difficult to believe that the core testing results were at 5.5 mpa. This is an usually low figure.

Mr. Genge found the carbonation results of Mr. Wong to be surprising considering the age of the house but he did not feel that these results should be given any significance. These type of tests are normally done for the ph factor to determine if there is any corrosion on the steel in the concrete. This was not the situation here.

Under cross examination Mr. Genge stated that he has done a number of reports for the Program in the past and several have been in support of the homeowners. He disagreed with the statement that you should not use the Schmidt test in this type of situation. He stated that both types of testing, Schmidt and core, showed greater strength of the concrete at the bottom then at the top and that there was a higher water to cement ratio than was usual. Mr. Genge felt the strength of the walls was adequate to support the house. He would effect the repair by taking away the deteriorated concrete and then bonding it to the proper material.

CLOSING STATEMENTS:

Applicant:

Mr. Ban stated that the Ontario Building Code states that concrete in foundations need to be at 15.5 mpa. The results from CTL shows that the concrete is below that standard and the foundation is affected by the substandard concrete. He feels he will have difficulty selling his house .

Program:

Counsel stated that the Applicants took possession of their house on January 29, 1998. There is efflorescence on the northeast corner and south wall of the house with scaling on the north wall above the grade and on the west wall. This is a case of experts and Counsel submitted that the Tribunal should prefer the evidence of Mr. Genge who is an acknowledged authority on concrete. It is submitted that Mr. Wong is wrong in his theory on what has caused the efflorescence. As well he is wrong as regards his sampling procedures as there was no sample taken from the middle of the wall. There are concerns as regards his lab testing techniques particularly in regards to the evidence of Mr. Genge. The samples by Mr. Wong were crushed and that reflects damage done to the core during the testing. You should set out the type of failure in the test results.

Counsel submitted that the case of Chewerda (Re) (1997) O.C.R.A.T.D. No.49 speaks to the time limitations and what is the definition of major structural defect. In this case the applicants could use the basement for storage and could continue to use the basement throughout their complaint.

Counsel submitted that the case of Pengelly (Re) (1995) O.C.R.A.T.D. No.60 stands for what is meant by the definition of major structural defect. There must be an imminent danger and current problem. Here we have the case of Mr. Wong saying there could be a danger in the future.

In the Lowry (re) (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 256 there were statements as to what could be considered as major structural defects. There must be some visible sign of failure of the load bearing function. Both the Brabant (re) and Pengelly (re) cases offer definitions of what is a major structural defect.

Here the Applicants need to stop the flaking of the concrete wall. The damaged concrete needs to be cleared away and fresh concrete applied. Then there will be no problems in the future.

In the case of Richards (re) (1994) O.C.R.A.T.D. 105 major structural repair was defined as being a threat to the structural integrity of the home and not a failure to repair something which could lead to further deterioration.

LEGISLATION:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act states in section 14

(1) Where,

...

(c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed, the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

Regulation 892

"Major structural defect" means for the purpose of clause 13 (1) (b) of the Act any defect in work or materials

- (a) that results in failure of the load bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load bearing function, or
- (b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended, including significant damage due to soil movement, major cracks in basement walls, collapse or serious distortion of joints or roof structure and chemical failure of materials, but excluding flood damage, dampness not arising from failure of a load bearing portion of the building, damage to drains or services, damage to finishers and damage arising from acts of God, acts of the owners and their tenants, licensees and invitees, acts of civil and military authorities, acts of war, riot, insurrection or civil commotion and malicious damage.

ANALYSIS:

This case is based upon major structural defect. The Applicants did not notice a problem with their foundation until after the one year and two year warranty periods had expired. Though it can be said that the foundation problem was not an obvious one the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act does not provide for extensions of warranty periods for latent defects.

The caselaw is quite clear as regards a major structural defect. As stated in the Richards case it needs to be a threat to the structural integrity of the home and not a failure to repair a defect which could lead to further deterioration or a more serious defect in the future. Other items might be characterized as minor structural defects but they do not meet the definition as found in Regulation 892. The Pengelly case at paragraph 16 cites from two earlier CRAT cases that being Angelos Proestos (1992) CRAT 758 and DanVera (1988) 17 CRAT 185 which establish that a fear for future potential problems cannot therefore constitute a major structural defect.

In the present case the Applicants are concerned that at some point in the future if the foundation is not corrected it will not hold the dead load and live loads of the house. They are concerned because the concrete in the foundation is not up to the standard as established by the Ontario Building Code. They have efflorescence on many of their interior walls in the basement and at one time there was a pool of water in the north west corner of the basement. Despite these concerns and problems the Applicants continued to use their basement for storage and did not follow the suggestion of their expert, Mr. Wong, and shored up the joists. Their actions suggest that they do not believe that their foundation is in imminent danger of failure. They are concerned that the crumbling of the concrete outside of the home and the efflorescence as found below the insulation on the interior walls of the foundation will worsen over time. They had a number of photographs which showed this crumbling and the efflorescence problem.

But Mr. Roccatagliata of the Program had also seen a number of these problems. He has inspected the home on two occasions. He has reviewed the numerous reports of their expert, Mr. Wong. He has called in his own expert, Mr. Genge, to inspect the foundation. Mr. Roccatagliata does not disagree with the Applicants that their foundation is crumbling nor that they have an efflorescence problem in the interior walls of the basement but he does disagree that these problems constitute a major structural defect. Indeed Mr. Roccatagliata is of the opinion that there is no problem with the joists and no lateral movement, no sheering of the walls and no horizontal cracks to suggest displacement which would be symptomatic of a major structural defect. He feels that the problem does require some cleaning of the outside concrete and the applying of a bonding agent to help the new concrete bond to the old concrete.

Primarily this is case of divergent opinions of experts. Mr. Wong, the expert for the Applicants, did core testing which showed that the concrete strength was significantly less than that required by the building code. His carbonation tests showed that the concrete was very porous and therefore lacking in the necessary strength to resist environmental exposure. He was concerned that if the process of scaling were permitted unchecked there could be a collapse of the foundation wall in the future. He did not detect any damp proofing for the foundation. He did not feel that the type of repair work espoused by the Program was appropriate as the porous nature of the concrete would not permit a proper bond with new concrete. His solution was to replace the foundation, to provide proper damp proofing and to shore up the joists. The Building code violation was of considerable significance to Mr. Wong as the low strength of the concrete constituted a major structural defect.

But Mr. Genge, expert for the Program, disagreed with every fundamental point in the analysis of Mr. Wong. He did not like the method of testing used by Mr. Wong as he did not get sufficient core samples and the testing led to the destruction of the samples which in the opinion of Mr. Genge voided the results. Mr. Genge preferred using the Schmidt Hammer tests which by impact testing indirectly measures the strength of the concrete. His test results were higher than those obtained by Mr. Wong. He felt that the foundation concrete was consistent with acceptable values for the strength of concrete for basements. He did not put any significance on the carbonation results of Mr. Wong due to lack of relevance. Such testing is mainly to check for corrosion on steel in the concrete which is not the case for this foundation. Mr. Genge felt that the repair suggested by Mr. Roccatagliata was appropriate for the crumbling of the concrete on the outside of the foundation. He felt the efflorescence was due to evaporation problems in the inside of the basement. The condensation formed a band on the insulation. It was not due to water wicking through the porous concrete.

The Tribunal finds the testimony of Mr. Genge to be superior to that of Mr. Wong. It is significant that Mr. Genge is an accredited expert in the repair of concrete. He has a long history of work with residential concrete problems. He also has a superior understanding of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act and its regulations. He stated quite clearly that a breach of the Ontario Building Code does not of itself mean there is a major structural defect. One must determine what is the relevance of the standard in this type of situation and what is the scope of the repair. The Tribunal accepts his statement that there have been no failures due to the comprehensive strength being less than that required under the Ontario Building Code. The Tribunal accepts his explanation that the efflorescence is due to condensation for the efflorescence is not on the entire face of all the interior walls of the basement but mainly close to the band of insulation. The Tribunal accepts his statements as to the inadequacies of the type of core drilling tests conducted by Mr. Wong and how it is significant that the core samples did not survive the tests. The Tribunal accepts his explanation that though there are significant problems with scaling that can be corrected by a proper repair of restoring the profile of the concrete and using a suitable bonding agent. This repair will require some skill to ensure that the patch materials used match the qualities of the concrete substrata. But it is not necessary to replace the foundation in order to correct the scaling.

The Tribunal does not find that this problem meets the test of a major structural defect. There is no failure to the load bearing portion of the building. The strength of the concrete does not adversely affect the load bearing function of the foundation. There is no material or adverse affect to using the basement for storage. That has been its use throughout the time that the Applicants have had possession of the house. There are no major cracks in the basement walls. Any cracks are minor in nature and lateral, not horizontal, in direction so as not to signify any significant damage due to soil movement. The comments by Mr. Wong and the Applicants are speculative in nature and are directed to a situation which could develop at some point in the future if the repairs are not effected. The Tribunal cannot take such speculation into account when making a determination on whether or not there is a major structural defect in a home.

It is unfortunate for these homeowners that the scaling and efflorescence did not come to their attention during the time period of the one or two year warranties. Reasonable homeowners would conclude that repairs are required to prevent further scaling on the outside of the foundation and to stop the condensation on the inside walls of the basement. But such repairs do not come within the scope of the definition of major structural defect and accordingly cannot be warranted by the Program.

DECISION:

Accordingly under the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal directs the Program to disallow the claim of the Applicants.

SEAN W. KELLY, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program

DATES OF HEARING: July 8 and 9, 2002 Ottawa

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by Anasthasie Noël-Paré (the "Applicant") under section 14(1) (b) and (c) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") respecting a decision by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Respondent" and the "Program") dated May 18, 2001, (the "Decision") denying the Applicant's claim for compensation.

The Decision described the Applicant's complaint as: "Mold throughout the house. Water penetration and cracks in grout."

EXHIBITS:

- Exhibit #1 Decision Letter dated May 18, 2001;
- Exhibit #2 Notice of Appeal dated June 6, 2001;
- Exhibit #3 Prehearing Order released October 23, 2001;
- Exhibit #4 Book of Documents of the Respondent;
- Exhibit #5 Letter from Jacques Whitford Environmental Limited to Ms. Netanus Rutherford, Ontario New Home Warranty Program, dated June 17, 2002;

- Exhibit #6 Letter from Dr. John Molot to Dr. S. Moulavi dated June 7, 2000;
- Exhibit #7 Letter from Dr. C. Leger-Nolet to Dr. L. Scully dated August 9, 2000;
- Exhibit #8 Letter from Dr. John Molot dated October 25, 2000;
- Exhibit #9 Letter from Heather L. Knudsen, Buchan, Lawton, Parent Ltd., to Ms. Anastasia Noel Pare dated October 11, 2001;
- Exhibit #10 Two photographs of water damage in basement closet; and
- Exhibit #11 C.V.s of Bruce C, Fraser and David Jolliffe.

FACTS:

The reason given by the Decision, exhibit 1, for denying the Applicant's claim is:

With respect to the mold issue, even though the report of Buchan, Lawton, Parent Ltd. is fairly explicit, it does not state that the house is not fit for habitation but rather clean up is required. It also state (sic) that, there is a high concentration of condensation and humidity in the house. Under section 13(2)(e) 'damage caused by dampness or condensation due to failure by the owner to maintained (sic) adequate ventilation', (f) 'damage resulting rom improper maintenance' are excluded from warranty.

Furthermore, there has been no failure in the load bearing portion or function of the structural components of the house, nor has it been materially or adversely affected. The use of the building for the purpose for which it was intended, namely a residence, has not been materially or adversely affected as indicated in the Buchan, Lawton, Parent Ltd. report. Therefore this is no major structural defect.

With respect to water penetration, under Reg. 892 of the Act, water penetration through the envelop of the unit is warranted for a period of two years from the original date of possession. It is also the owner's responsibility to inform the ONHWP in writing during this time period. This complaint was not documented in writing to the Warranty Program, as stipulated under Section 13(4) of the Act, within the appropriate time frame and therefore cannot be considered under the warranty. The ONHWP recommends to the owner to have this issue repaired in the near future so to minimize damages and the growth of mold.

With respect to the cracking of the grout between the ceramic tiles in the main washroom, this item of complaint is defect in material or workmanship and is covered under the builder's one-year warranty. However, this time period has elapse. It is also the owner's responsibility to inform the ONHWP in writing during this period. This complaint was not documented in writing to the Warranty Program, as stipulated under Section 13(4) of the Act, within the appropriate time frame and therefore cannot be considered under the warranty. The ONHWP recommends to the owner to have this issue repaired in the near future so as to minimize damage.

The Applicant's witnesses were Mrs. Anasthasie. Nöel-Paré and Ms. Marie Belanger. The evidence of Mrs. Nöel-Paré is as follows:

Mrs. Noël-Paré is a retired nurse. She purchased a new semi-detached, one-story house, 66 Sandfield Street, Alexandria, from the Third Party, Denis Campeau Construction Inc., on April 25, 1997. She moved in about three days later.

In March 1998, water leakage formed a bubble on the ceiling of the kitchen. The bubble burst. Mrs. Noël-Paré's insurance company repaired the damage. There has been no additional water leakage in the area.

Later in March 1998, water leaked under the front window of the master bedroom. The Third Party fixed the problem. Mrs. Noël-Paré also told the Third Party about water leakage beside the electrical switch in the foyer onto the tiles and down into the crawlspace. The Third Party inspected the foyer and the crawlspace, but both were dry then.

On February 26, 2000, when the snow was melting, Mrs. Noël-Paré contacted the Third Party because of another water leak in the foyer beside the electrical switch. Mr. Campeau later told her said that he changed the joint on the eaves trough above the main entrance. Mrs. Noël-Paré also informed Mr. Campeau that she found ice and moldy baseboards in the master bedroom closet. This was the first time that the Applicant noted mould in the house. Mr. Campeau repaired a crack in the closet with silicone. There has not been water leakage into the closet since.

In March 2000, after Mrs. Noël-Paré's son moved a buffet in the dining room, she found a dark stain on the hardwood floor as well as black deposits in cracks opening between boards. Mrs. Noël-Paré telephoned the Third Party that she had found mould.

On April 7, 2000, Mr. Poitras of D&D construction found that the exhaust duct of the heat recovery ventilator (the "HRV") was squeezed by a plumbing pipe so that only about fifty per cent of the usual cross-section allowed air flow.

On May 26, 2000, Mrs. Noël-Paré permanently moved out of the house.

The first notification to the Program was by letter dated February 15, 2001, exhibit 4, tab 7. In a Request for Claim Inspection dated March 29, 2001, the homeowner's complaint is described as mould throughout house, as set out at tab 11 of exhibit 4.

Since about July 1999, Mrs. Noël-Paré experienced a variety of physical problems that she believes were caused by living in the house. Her condition improved when she was away on vacation. Problems included temporary hypothyroiditis and jaundice. She was also diagnosed as hypersensitive to mould. She continues to experience some problems even after moving out of the house. When visiting the house, she can stay for about twenty minutes before experiencing problems.

Mr. John Molot, M.D., practicing in Environmental Medicine, states the following in a letter dated November 29, 2001, being part of exhibit 8:

You have asked me for my opinion as to whether Ms. Pare could return to live in the home located at 66 Sandfield Avenue following the cleanup recommended in the report dated October 11, 2001. It must be emphasized that the level of exposure required to provoke symptoms in sensitized individuals is unknown. Therefore, I cannot determine whether Ms. Pare or any other individual with mould sensitivity could live in the home located at 66 Sandfield after the cleanup. However, any individual without mould sensitivity should be able to live in this home once the IAQ and, in particular, the mould levels are within the limits seen in normal homes.

The Program's witnesses were: Paul Rochon, David Jolliffe, and Bruce Fraser.

The evidence of Paul Rochon was as follows:

Mr. Rochon has been a warranty representative with the ONHWP for thirteen years. He inspected the Applicant's home and prepared the Decision.

Mr. Rochon found the intake and exhaust of the HRV to be partially blocked. In the basement he saw no water leak stains and no mould where Mrs. Noël-Paré indicated a leak in the closet. In the master bedroom, he found evidence of a previous leak, but did not find mould. Under the master bedroom window, he also did not see evidence of a water leak or mould.

Mr. Rochon did see hardwood floor boards with black and green edges. He saw nothing on the surface of the boards. He did not think there was mould.

The evidence of David Jolliffe was as follows:

Mr. Jolliffe is a Certified Engineering Technologist and is a project manager at Jacques Whitford Environmental Limited. He inspected the house on behalf of the Program for water infiltration and major structural faults. Mr. Jolliffe was accepted by the Tribunal as an expert in building envelope investigation.

Mr. Jolliffe detected a number of Ontario Building Code violations and other deficiencies. The sewer vent pipes end inside the attic. The attic hatch is not insulated. No attic roof vents were present. Soffit ventilation was obstructed at the rear of the house. The insulation in the attic was not staggered. The vapour barrier above the gypsum board ceiling was not sealed at the overlaps. Eave protection against ice damming was not present. The HRV inlet and exhaust were partially blocked.

The firm's report, exhibit 5, states the following in its conclusion:

Several defects in work and materials were noted in this investigation. However, none of the defects, in and of themselves appear to be structural defects....

Evidence of water/moisture impacts was noted in several locations in the subject dwelling. These impacts appear to be of a historical nature or occur only infrequently. These areas included:

- 5.1 The basement bedroom closet
- 5.2 The master bedroom closet
- 5.3 The front hall foyer
- 5.4 The basement crawlspace

Several building envelope deficiencies related to the roof system/cantilever portion of the exterior were noted which appear to have contributed to the water entry into the master bedroom closet and front hall foyer. It appears that this water entry was either historical in nature or occurs only infrequently. Furthermore, these deficiencies do not appear to have resulted in visible mold growth in the areas investigated in the master bedroom closet and front hall foyer. Limited amounts of suspect visible mold were observed in the following locations:

- 6.1 Basement bedroom closet baseboard ($\ll 1 \text{ m}^2$ or approximately 0.04 m^2)
- 6.2 Basement crawl space joists ($\ll 1 \text{ m}^2$).

The firm's report also states that asphalt-impregnated felt paper was present immediately adjacent to the basement bedroom exterior wall. A damp concrete odour was noted from the space behind the felt paper and the foundation door. This was suspected to be a moisture source and a possible cause of mould growth.

There did not appear to be bulk water entering the basement through the foundation wall.

The evidence of Bruce Fraser was as follows:

Mr. Fraser is Manager, Indoor Environment, at Jacques Whitford Environmental Limited. He was accepted by the Tribunal as an expert in indoor air quality and mould investigation.

Mr. Fraser examined the house twice. He came a second time to investigate the house after a heavy rain.

Upon entering, he detected no mould odour. Based on a prior report from Buchan, Lawton, Parent Ltd., tab 6 of exhibit 4, Mr. Fraser expected to find mould amplification (present or past growth) in the basement. Water is required for mould growth. Mr. Fraser took moisture measurements from the interior of the basement of all basement exterior walls. The results were fairly uniform and were not unusual. Based on the moisture measurements and absence of visible signs of water entry in the basement, he concluded that there does not appear to be bulk water entering the basement through the foundation wall.

Mr. Fraser examined the bathroom exhaust grill. He could find no penetration of the outside wall or roof. The grill seemed to vent into the heating or HRV ducts. This was a defect. However, it was not related to mould amplification in the basement. Levels in the whole house would be the same if mould spread through the heating or HRV ducts.

In the living room, Mr. Fraser examined the hardwood floor. The dark areas seemed to be stains not mould.

The squeezed HRV duct was not a concern. It should not increase concentration. It should only have a minor, local effect. Mould spores would mostly move with the air.

Mr. Fraser collected four air samples for total airborne spores, four air samples for viable mould only, carpet-settled dust samples of f the basement bedroom floor and the master bedroom floor, and one bulk material sample from a wood floor joist in the crawl space. The samples were sent to Sporometrics, Inc., an independent laboratory, for analysis. The bulk sample showed no growth and no fungal elements. The basement floor surface dust sample showed low growth only and the master bedroom floor dust sample showed moderate growth. Results of mould air samples vary widely even when taken during a single day. Mould amplification was noted in the basement air samples. Potential mould amplification was noted in the master bedroom air samples. Penicillin mould was clearly dominant in the basement air samples and, to a lesser extent, it was dominant in the master bedroom air samples. The Penicillin subgenus contains both toxigenic and non-toxigenic moulds that are difficult to tell apart.

The conclusion of the firm's report ends with the following:

The mold present in the house appears to have had a measurable, but not dramatic, effect on the quality of the air within the home. It is possible that many persons would not even be aware of this degradation in air quality, although it is just as possible that a particularly sensitive individual would find it intolerable. Since the effects of mold exposure vary amongst individuals ..., it is not possible to define a level of mold exposure at which all persons would find their use of the building as a home materially and adversely affected. The level of mold exposure that would have such an affect would have to be made on an individual basis, and only then by a licensed medical practitioner.

ISSUE:

Should the Tribunal set aside, confirm, or modify the decision of the Program to disallow the Applicant's claim for compensation under section 14(1) (b) and (c) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act?

LAW:

Section 14(1) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") stated in part:

Where...

- (b) an owner has a cause of action against a vendor for damages resulting from a breach of warranty; or
- (c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.

the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

Section 13(1) of the Act adds:

Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,

- (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material,
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code;
- (b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations; and
- c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.

Section 13(4) states in part:

“A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect...”

Section 15 of Regulation 892 under the Act states:

- (2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,
 - (a) that the home is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in materials including windows, doors and caulking such that the building envelope of the home prevents water penetration;
 - (b) that the electrical, plumbing and heating delivery and distribution systems are free from defects in material and work;
 - (c) that all exterior cladding of the home is free from defects in material and work resulting in detachment, displacement or physical deterioration;
 - (d) that the home is free from violations of the Ontario Building Code regulations under which the Building Permit was issued, affecting health and safety, including but not limited to fire safety, insulation, air and Vapour barriers, ventilation, heating and structural adequacy;
- (3) The warranties described in subsection (2) apply only in respect of claims made within two years after the home was completed for possession...

Section 1 of Regulation 892 under the Act defines “major structural defect” for the purposes of clause 13 (1) (b) of the Act as:

...any defect in work or materials,

- (a) that results in failure of the load—bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load—bearing function, or
- (b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended, including significant damage due to soil movements, major cracks in basement walls, collapse or serious distortion of joints or roof structure and chemical failure of materials, but excluding floor damage, dampness not arising from failure of a load-bearing portion of the building, damage to drains or services, damage to finishes and damage arising from acts of God, acts of the owners and their tenants, licensees and invitees, acts of civil and military authorities, acts of war, riot, insurrection or civil commotion and malicious damage.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The burden was on the Applicant to prove a major structural defect. The Applicant purchased her home on April 25, 1997, and moved in a short time later. The first notification of a problem was provided by the Applicant to the ONHWP by a letter dated February 15, 2001. Since notice was given more than one year after the warranties of section 13(1) of the Act took effect, section 13(4) precludes any claim based solely on defects in material, compliance with the Ontario Building Code, and fitness for habitation. Similarly, section 15(3) of Regulation 892 under the Act disallows any claim submitted two years after the home was completed for possession for water penetration, defects in plumbing, and violations of the Ontario Building Code affecting health and safety under section 15(2) of that regulation. The notice given by the Applicant was timely only with respect to a major structural defect.

The definition of major structural defect in section 1 of Regulation 892 under the Act includes two alternatives.

The Tribunal finds that the first alternative within the definition of major structural defect is not satisfied. No evidence was provided of any defect in materials that results in failure of the load-bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load-bearing function. Although Mr. Fraser observed limited amounts of suspect visible mould on the basement crawl space joists, there is no suggestion that the load-bearing function of the joist is affected. Further, if mould is present on the hardwood floor, or on the basement bedroom closet baseboard, such infestation was not claimed to materially and adversely affect a load-bearing element of the house.

The Tribunal must still decide whether there is any defect in work or materials that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended, whether the second alternative of the major structural defect definition is satisfied. Mould requires water. There is evidence of some water penetration in the past, but there is no evidence of current water penetration. There is evidence of mould in the air and dust inside the house; there is no evidence of significant mould on house materials. The Applicant argued that such mould presence on materials might be found if the space within walls was examined. That was not done. The burden to present such evidence was on the Applicant, not on the ONHWP. The Tribunal is satisfied that Mrs. Noël-Paré is unable to stay in the house for extended periods. After she moved into the house, she was diagnosed as being hypersensitive to mould. She is unable to use the house as a residence, which was the purpose for which she intended to use it. However, the Tribunal finds that the test in the definition of major structural defect is objective, not subjective. Frailties of the homeowner that were unknown at possession are irrelevant. No credible evidence was presented that a reasonable person of normal health would have been unable to reside in the house. The Tribunal, therefore, finds that there is no major structural defect and the Applicant's claim under section 14 of the Act fails.

DECISION:

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicants' claim.

MARY AGOSTINO

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE
ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE L. HILEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: MARY AGOSTINO, the Applicant
MARCUS KNAPP, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program
J. BUTSON, Counsel, representing the Added Party, Villa Royale
Homes Inc.

DATE OF
HEARING: April 18, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

The Program by its decision letter of December 4, 2001 denied the claim of the Applicant for financial loss under section 14(1)(b) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act. The Program held that the Applicant had a contract with a vendor to purchase a home and had paid a deposit to the vendor which had not been refunded . But the Program also held that the vendor had not failed to transfer title due to bankruptcy or a fundamental breach of contract. The Applicant filed a Notice of Appeal dated December 20, 2001. In it the Applicant alleged that the conduct of the vendor and misrepresentations by the vendor led to the failure to transfer title and that the circumstances surrounding the deal were such that the Tribunal should permit the return of her deposit.

ISSUE:

Was there a fundamental breach of contract by the vendor which would allow for a claim of financial loss under section 14 (1) (b) of the Act?

EVIDENCE:

For the Applicant:

Ms Agostino testified that she had been financial arrangements to purchase the house at 104 Villa Royal Avenue in Vaughan. She paid $5000.00 on July 21, 2000 at the time of signing of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. She paid another $5000.00 in August, 2000 and a further $10,000.00 in October, 2000. Her total deposit on the home was $20,000.00. The house was scheduled to be ready for possession in January, 2001. But there were delays with the construction. Ms Agostino agreed to the delay as she was herself having some delays in obtaining the remainder of her financing for the house. She signed an agreement to consent to the delay of completion of the house. She thought that the builder would take a second mortgage for her on the house.

Ms Agostino testified that by mid July 2001 she was beginning to have serious concerns about the quality of construction of her house. She realized that the house would have some steps at the front and this was not something that she had contracted for when she signed the Agreement for Purchase and Sale. The drawing that she had seen did not show such steps. She would not have agreed to purchase this house if she knew there were going to be steps as she has health problems and sometimes uses a cane, and her husband had just recently completed a course of chemotherapy for cancer.

Ms Agostino felt that she had been deceived by the builder as she learnt later that the site plans submitted to the Town of Vaughan dated May 25, 2000 showed her house with these steps yet she had known nothing of this when she signed the Agreement of Purchase and Sale in July, 2000. Ms Agostino also learned from the architect she hired after the sale had not been completed that the drawings submitted to the Town of Vaughan for the building permit in December, 1999 had only one step at the front of the house.

There were other problems with the construction of the house, in particular the fact that it could not be an A frame. She had thought that was the style of her house but the builder told her that the A frame style could not hold the weight of the brick and either she could lower the ceiling or have siding rather than brick if she wanted the A frame design.

She had thought that 120 days had expired and that she could get out of her contract. Accordingly she had not bothered to proceed with the financing of the sale. But her lawyer told her she was wrong and then she began to look at the financing for the sale. She had discussions with a mortgage broker after that time.

She instructed her lawyer to write to the builder on August 1, 2001 demanding a substantial abatement in the purchase price of the home.

Ms Agostino also stated that in August, 2001 the construction on her house was changed in that the door from the garage into her house was boarded up and she now would have to exit the garage and go up the front steps to enter her house. She had wanted this particular house because of everything being accessible on one floor.

Ms Agostino testified that the pre delivery inspection of her home was scheduled for August 30, 2001 which is the date of completion of the purchase and sale. About midnight of August 29th/30th she went to the house and saw that there were workmen in it laying tile in the foyer, the upstairs bathroom and the master bathroom. This was disturbing to her. She and her husband then attended at the house at 9 am on August 30, 2001. There were workmen in the house and a bulldozer in her front yard. She took a number of photographs of the state of the house at that time which were admitted into evidence. The photographs did show that workmen were at work on both the outside and inside of the house at that time and that there were a number of matters such as floors and cupboards which had to be completed.

Ms Agostino testified that no toilets were in operation at 9:45 am of August 30th, 2001. The hardwood floors had not been laid. There was dirt on the floors.

She had started to do the pre delivery inspection and had been in the house for about an hour. The pre delivery inspection was not complete as she wanted to go over her list with what had been written down by Anthony. The builder came into the house and was rude to her. Then she and Mr. DeFlippis got into a screaming match. He told her to leave the property and he was calling the police. She and her husband left the property and sat in their car until 11:30 am but the police did not come. She did not want to go back on the property so the pre delivery inspection was not completed. She contacted her lawyer. The house sale was not completed. There were discussions between her lawyer and the builder for a period of time into September, 2001. She did not want to pay another thousand dollars to extend the time for the closing. Then she was told that the builder wanted another fourteen thousand to close the house. Ms Agostino had an appraisal which put the value of the house at $300,000.00. The sales price had been $295,000.00. She was not prepared to pay more for the house than what it had been appraised for financing purposes.

Ms Agostino stated that the house was not habitable when she was doing the pre delivery inspection. The municipal inspector did issue an occupancy permit for the house which her lawyer received at 3:55 pm on August 30, 2001.

Ms Agostino stated that the house was not the one she had contracted with the builder as the builder made modifications to it which he failed to disclose to her. The builder knew prior to her signing the Agreement of Purchase and Sale that there were modifications and yet he did not tell her. Ms Agostino felt that the conduct of the builder showed that the contract was breached for fundamental misrepresentation, failure to disclose and mis-description. Besides the photographs taken at the time of the pre delivery inspection on August 30, 2001 there were a series of six photographs introduced into evidence which were taken in the spring of 2002 and which showed the exterior of the house and the stairs at the front of it.

Under cross examination Ms Agostino stated that she had not verbalized her health problems and the need not to have stairs. She would have done so if she had known of the modifications to the design of the house. She agreed that though she took the Agreement of Purchase and Sale to a lawyer there was nothing put in writing in the Agreement as to the requirement that there be no stairs. She agreed that the letter of August 1, 2001 only asked for an abatement of the purchase price not to cancel the contract. She agreed that there was no reference in her Notice of Appeal regarding the issue of stairs.

Ms Agostino stated that the first mortgage was in place but she was finalizing the second mortgage at the end of August, 2001 and the paperwork on it was not completed by August 30, 2001. She agreed that her lawyer was not in a position to close the deal as of August 30, 2001. She agreed that she had signed the Agreement of Purchase and Sale which allowed the builder to increase or decrease the steps and to change the house elevation. She agreed that her Proof of Claim document sent to the Program did not mention the issue of the stairs. She agreed that she had signed a number of documents extending the closing date for the house.

Mr. Agostino testified that in July 2001 he had attended at the house site and saw that the front porch was higher than expected and there was a door opening into the house from the garage. That was then closed and you could not go from the garage into the house. He thought he was at the wrong house at first as it looked so different from the drawings. He did not approach the builder with his concerns.

For the Program:

Mr. Basso DiCesare testified that he was the sales representative for Villa Royale from July, 2000 to July, 2001. He now works for Royal LePage Real Estate. He recalls meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Agostino. He does not recall any discussions with them concerning the house elevation or problems with stairs due to health issues. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale of July 21, 2000 was initially conditional on financing and legal review. The Agostinos told him they had reviewed it with a lawyer. He assisted them with financing arrangements. The TD bank was contacted for the first mortgage but they would need a second mortgage. The builder was unable to give them a second mortgage so he contacted Eagle Group Mortgage company who could do the second mortgage. Mr. DiCesare had thought the financial arrangements were complete but Mrs. Agostino thought the rate on the second mortgage was too high. Mr. DiCesare met the Agostinos by accident in September, 2001 and was told there were problems with the house deal. He went to the house with Mr. Agostino and everything looked fine there. He told Mr. Agostino to get their lawyer to contact Villa Royale to work out the problem. He agreed under cross examination that though he had contacted Mrs. Agostino regarding the modification dealing with the brick he did not mention the other changes to her.

Anthony DeFilippis testified that he was the assistant site supervisor and did the pre delivery inspection with the Agostinos. He met with them at the house at 9 am on August 30, 2001. He found Mrs. Agostino to be upset. He went through the house with her and was recording what was unfinished or missing. Mrs. Agostino was outraged with the condition of the home. He explained that the backhoe was there to dig out the water box and complete the installation for the city inspector. There was about 20 to 25% of the house to be completed on that day, which he did not find to be unusual. Cupboards needed to be installed, floors needed to be finished and the carpet was not laid. The pre delivery inspection report was never signed by the Agostinos. Mrs. Agostino yelled at the owner. He tried to calm them down by speaking to them after the yelling match. The senior site supervisor also tried to calm them down. The City Inspector looked at the house in the afternoon and found it to be habitable. Two days later a second city inspector came and Mr. DeFilippis let him into the house. That city inspector also found the house to be habitable. Under cross examination Mr. DeFilippis did not recall there being a request to delay the pre delivery inspection. It had to be done on August 30th as that was the closing day.

Sherri Budgell, a customer service representative, testified on behalf of the Program. She has held that position for thirteen years. She is responsible for complaints, delayed closings and deposit refunds. She examined the request by Mrs. Agostino for a refund of the deposit. She wanted to determine if there was a fundamental breach of contract and if so from which party. She wanted to determine why the house sale had not closed. Mrs. Agostino in her documentation to the Program had stated that she was not happy with the house nor with the pre delivery inspection. The house had not been complete so she did not sign the pre delivery inspection form. Mrs. Agostino also told her that she did not have the financing in place on the date of closing. There was no mention by Mrs. Agostino about problems with the steps at the front of the house nor was it mentioned in the claims documentation. Ms Budgell denied the claim for a refund of the deposit. She felt that the items complained of were items of warranty deficiency and there were not sufficient grounds to find a fundamental breach of contract. The vendor was ready and willing to close the house deal but Mrs. Agostino did not have the funds to close it. In cross examination Ms Budgell stated that the Agreement of Purchase and Sale permitted the builder to make changes to the design.

In their closing statements both parties referred to a number of cases for the Tribunal to consider.

Mrs. Agostino cited Freeear v Gilders 64 D.L.R. 274 (Ont. App. Div.) regarding the proposition that even in the absence of fraud there can be rescission of a contract if there is a difference in substance between the thing bargained for and that obtained. Here she had relied upon the drawings and the sales representative as to what would be the style of her house. She was given no warning that it would be so different. She was induced into the contract. In Keen v Alterra Developments Ltd. (1993) O.J. No. 2623 it was found that the changes made to the house constituted a fundamental breach of contract. In Lau v 1755 Holdings Ltd. 6 R.P.R. (3d) 152 (B.C. Ct. of Appeal) the judge found that the changes made by the builder were not minor modifications and amounted to a fundamental breach of contract. The Applicant stated that having steps to the front door and omitting the door from the garage to the house were not minor changes. In Hyrsky v Smith 5 D.L.R. (3d) 385 the court found that if the mistake was so fundamental that it went to the very root of the contract then it was fundamental breach of contract. Here the mistake was fundamental as there was a significant transformation from the brochure to the actual house.

The Applicant submitted that she had signed the agreement in good faith and the vendor knew she would not get what she had contracted to get and the vendor did not bother to tell her.

Counsel for the Added Party submitted that the Applicant was making a new issue of the stairs which had not been mentioned in any significant fashion prior to the failure to close the transaction, nor were they mentioned in the claim by the Applicant for the return of her deposit. The Agreement of Purchase and Sale permits the vendor to make modifications. The Applicant took the Agreement to her lawyer and nothing was put in writing in it as to the importance of the design or the lack of stairs. As well the Applicant did not have her financing in place in order to close on August 30th, 2001. There might have been defects but the city inspector did issue the occupancy permit. The Keen v Alterra Developments Ltd., supra, case can be distinguished on its facts. There the buyers had made known their requirements and tried to cancel the deal when they realized the changes that had been made. Here the Applicants never told anyone about their concerns about the stairs. The vendor was ready and willing to close on August 30th, 2001. In such a case the vendor can keep the deposit as the fault lies with the purchasers.

Counsel for the Program stated that the builder had not committed a breach of contract. The municipality approved the home for occupancy. Mrs. Agostino did not have her financing in place to close the deal. The stairs were never raised as an issue to cancel the deal. Indeed the lawyers for Mrs. Agostino tried to keep the deal alive. In the Morris Keter LAT August 29, 2001 case the doctrine of fundamental breach is discussed. There the buyer got extra windows which were not found to be a fundamental breach. In Town Wood Homes Ltd. v Khanna (1994) O.J.No.940 the Divisional Court found no fundamental breach though the buyer got a single garage door rather than a double garage door. In Fisher (re) (1995) O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 56 it was found to be a fundamental breach when the purchasers received a house considerably smaller than what they had contracted to buy. In the case of Re Greenidge (re) (1995) O.C.R.A.T.D. No.72 there was no fundamental breach of contract in factual situations whereby the purchaser failed to have her financing in place and the vendor was ready and willing to close. In the case of Dryden (re) (1998) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 254 there was a fundamental breach due to a smaller garage. This can be distinguished from the Town Wood Homes Limited v Krishna Khanna, supra, whereby the purchaser did not wish to close due to the lack of funds and decline in the real estate market. In the case of Mageau (re) (2000) O.L.A.T.D. no. 160 it was held that though there was a breach of warranty in that the basement had a moisture problem which led to mold or mildew that was not a fundamental breach of contract. In this case the real reason the Applicant failed to close the deal was due to her lack of financing on the date of closing.

LEGISLATION:

The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act:

Section 1:

“vendor” means a person who sells on his, her or its own behalf a home not previously occupied to an owner and includes a builder who constructs a home under a contract with the owner

Section 14(1):

(2) Where,

...

(c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed,

the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

Regulation 892

1. In this Regulation,

“deposits” means, in respect of a home, all money received before the date of possession by or on behalf of the vendor from a purchaser on account of the purchase price payable under a purchase agreement, and, in the case of a condominium dwelling unit, includes money received by or on behalf of the vendor after the date of possession and prior to the date of transfer but does not include money,

- (a) paid under the purchase agreement as rent or as an occupancy charge and not part of the purchase price, or
- (b) specified in the purchase agreement as money paid under subsection 51(6) of the Condominium Act.

6.(1) A purchaser who has a claim under clause 14 (1) (a) of the Act in respect of a purchase agreement entered into after the 30th day of June, 1988 is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund an amount for damages arising from the breach of the agreement by the vendor that does not exceed $20,000.00

ANALYSIS:

This is a claim under section 14 (1) (a) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act for the return of deposit monies of twenty thousand dollars. The decision letter of December 4, 2001 accurately states the requirements for making such a claim. Mrs. Agostino does have a contract to purchase a home from a vendor. She has shown that she paid twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) to the vendor and that money has not been returned to her. The issue in this case has been whether the vendor failed to transfer title due to a fundamental breach of contract by the vendor. There is no question that this is not a case of a vendor going into bankruptcy.

The decision of this Tribunal is that the purchaser has not shown that the vendor committed a fundamental breach of contract. Therefore the purchaser is not entitled to have the deposit returned to her.

There is a significant point in this case; that being that the purchaser acknowledges that she did not have the financing in place to close the deal on August 30, 2001. There is no question that Mrs. Agostino was upset by the state of her home on the morning of her pre delivery inspection. The photographs show that the home was not complete in many of its finishing aspects, that being the laying of tiles, of hardwood floor and of the installation of kitchen cabinets. But it is significant that the municipal inspector for the Town of Vaughan did find that by the afternoon of August 30, 2001 the house was fit for occupancy. Indeed a second inspector some days later also found that the house was fit for occupancy.

Mrs. Agostino did have cause for being concerned about the state of affairs on the morning of August 30, 2001. But her concern was not sufficient to lead to a fundamental breach of contract. All of her concerns could have been dealt with under the warranties for the first year. But the occupancy certificate was proof that the home could be occupied even if some of the finishing items were not completed. It is significant that she had similar concerns a month prior to the closing but she never requested the cancellation of the deal. It is significant that she never told the vendor of the importance of not having stairs because of health issues. It is significant that though she went to a lawyer over the Agreement of Purchase and Sale there were no written provisions in the deal as to the necessity of not having stairs. It is significant that she did not state the importance of not having stairs when she asked for the return of her deposit from the Program. In essence Mrs. Agostino did not find the issue of the stairs to be of importance until her request for the return of her deposit was denied by the Program.

It is of importance to note that her Agreement of Purchase of Sale, as is the case with most Agreements, permits the builder to make modifications to the contract as is necessary to construct the dwelling. There is no evidence that anyone at the builder had any knowledge of the state of her health and the importance of not having stairs in the dwelling. Indeed Mrs. Agostino in her own evidence makes it clear that she did not impart that information to the builder as it was personal and she did not feel it necessary to tell them about her health issues. How can the builder be found to have made a misrepresentation when the fundamental issues are not before them?

This is not a case such as found in the cases whereby the house has been made substantially smaller or that the builder knew of an issue but ignored it. Indeed there were modifications to the plans but even when Mrs. Agostino knew of those modifications she did not demand that the contract be cancelled. The mistake was not so fundamental that it goes to the root of the contract.

The Tribunal has great sympathy for Mrs. Agostino who did not appear to understand the risks that she undertook when she refused to close the deal either on August 30th or at some later date. Either she did not receive proper advice from her counsel or she failed to appreciate the importance of the advice that she did receive. Failure to close a real estate deal on the date of closing can lead to substantial risks unless one is quite clear on the justification for that action. Here Mrs. Agostino, either through her lawyer or by herself never stated in a clear and forthright fashion that it was her health issues with the stairs that led to the failure to close the deal. Indeed the evidence at the hearing can only lead to the Tribunal finding that she had not completed the financing on the deal and therefore was vulnerable and had to find reasons for why she could not close on the date of closing. The evidence of the vendor is quite clear and uncontradicted that it was ready and willing to close on August 30, 2001. Though the conduct of the vendor in not completing many finishing aspects of the house until the last moment is not to be commended, it is a fact that the occupancy permit was granted by the municipal inspector in the afternoon of August 30th. The purchaser had a case for deficiencies under the warranty but not for failure to close the deal.

ORDER:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16 (3) of The Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal directs the Program to disallow the claim of the Applicant.

The Registrant has failed to comply with the trust accounting requirements of section 36 of the Regulation and the terms and conditions of registration as consented to by the Registrant and has failed to provide banking records when requested to do so by TICO, as summarized by paragraphs 24 through 33.
24. TICO conducted an inspection of the Registrant on June 12, 2000 to ensure that the company was operating in accordance with the Regulation. The inspection revealed that the Registrant's trust account was not properly designated. The inspection also revealed that the trust account was utilized for non-travel related transactions and that the trust account bank statement dated April 30, 2000 showed that the account was in an overdraft position several times throughout the month of April 2000.

25. By letter dated August 29, 2000 the Registrant was directed to provide TICO with trust reconciliations for the months of July, August, and September 2000 to be submitted by August 31, September 30, and October 31, 2000 respectively.
26. By letter dated October 3, 2000, the Registrant advised TICO that effective November 2000 the Registrant would have two separate bank accounts, one general and one Travel Industry Act Trust Account. The letter indicated that the trust account would not be overdrawn. The letter requested that TICO "be patient" in allowing the Registrant to submit a reconciliation commencing with November 2000.
27. On February 20, 2001 financial statements were received for the fiscal year ended October 31, 2000. The statements did not disclose the customer deposit position.

29. By letter dated April 12, 2001, TICO received a letter from the Registrant's solicitor, which included a letter from the National Bank of Greece confirming separate bank accounts for the general account and the Travel Industry Act Trust Account, and a copy of the trust account bank statement for the month of March 2001. The letter stated that the trust account reconciliation would be submitted in early May 2001.
30. By letter dated October 22, 2001 TICO requested that the Registrant provide bank statements for the months of August and September 2001, an interim bank statement for each account for the period of October 1 to October 26, 2001, and a list of all customer deposits as of October 31, 2001. Of the items requested, the Registrant only provided the August and September bank statements. Both the general and trust accounts were overdrawn in September 2001.
31. TICO conducted another inspection of the Registrant on October 29, 2001. This inspection revealed that the Registrant was not adhering to trust accounting, and that the trust account was consistently overdrawn during the month of October 2001, due to extensions of credit.
32. By letter dated November 5, 2001 the Registrant was requested to provide TICO with a trust reconciliation for the month of October 2001 and submit a copy of the general bank account for the month of October 2001.
33. On November 19, 2001 the Registrant faxed the trust reconciliation for the month of October 2001, and also provided a copy of the general account bank statement. The reconciliation showed that as at October 31, 2001, there was a trust deficit of $11,433.92.
34. The parties agree that the facts set out in the above-noted document are true.

Notice of the deficiency, if any, shall be sent by registered mail to the Registrant.
3. Should the Registrant fail to comply with conditions listed in paragraphs (2) (a) to (g) inclusive during the two (2) year period immediately following this order of the Tribunal, the Registrar shall revoke the Registrant's registration on five (5) days written notice sent via hand delivery or by registered mail.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) made a decision to issue a CVOR suspension and seizure order against RTS Transport Ltd. under section 47(1) of the Act on January 28, 2002.

RTS Transport Ltd. is located in Surrey, British Columbia and transports perishable and other goods into and out of Ontario, between Ontario and Quebec and the U.S. and Canadian west coast markets. Subsequent to the June 30, 2000 date issue of its Ontario CVOR certificate, RTS Transport received a Warning Letter in June 2001 advising RTS that its safety record was at an unacceptable level of performance and that “Further events on your record may result in a change to your safety rating, a facility audit being conducted on your premises, and/or yourself being required to attend an interview with an official of the Ministry to show cause why your privileges of operating commercial motor vehicles in Ontario should not be suspended or cancelled”.

On December 14, 2001, the Registrar notified RTS that its safety rating had been revised to ‘Unsatisfactory’ and that a Notice of Suspension and Seizure had been issued based on the company’s safety record and unpaid fines.

A Show Cause Meeting between RTS Transport and Ministry of Transport representatives was then held on January 16, 2002 during which RTS had the opportunity “...to present information that may impact the decision relative to the suspension and seizure of the CVOR certificate.”

Based on the Registrar's consideration of the submissions made by RTS at the Show Cause meeting, as well as the company's safety record, the Registrar issued an Amended Suspension and Seizure Order on January 28, 2002 to the Applicant by courier and fax and enclosed the following:

1. Notice of Suspension and Seizure;
2. Commercial Vehicle Operator Record;
3. Rating and CVOR Registration System Public Guideline;
4. MTO's Facility Audit Guideline;
5. Accident Reports;
6. Analysis
7. National Safety Code Manual;

On January 31, 2002, RTS Transport Ltd. (the "Applicant") filed an appeal of this suspension and seizure order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 filing fee.

A Pre-Hearing was held on March 6, 2002 and it was agreed to proceed to a full hearing at which time the Respondent would present evidence to show why the suspension and seizure are in the interest of highway safety and the Applicant would provide evidence to show the suspension "is harsh and unwarranted, and will result in the Applicant being put out of business".

At the commencement of the Hearing, the Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing and none were forthcoming.

Witnesses identified as appearing for the respective Parties:

- Respondent	Ms. Bernadette (Bunny) McKenna Carrier Safety Rating Analyst
- Applicant	Mr. Mr. Daman Grewal Operations/Safety Manager

ISSUES:

Was the Registrar justified in issuing a thirty day Suspension & Seizure order and should the Tribunal confirm, modify or set aside the Registrar's order?

Would the Suspension & Seizure order result in exceptional hardship to the Applicant which would justify modification or setting aside the Registrar's order?

EVIDENCE:

The Respondent presented evidence pertaining to the Ministry's records of the Applicant's number of accidents, its unacceptable safety record and operating procedures in the June 2000 to December 2001 review period.

The Respondent's witness was then introduced as being Ms. Bernadette (Bunny) McKenna, who is employed as a Carrier Safety Rating Analyst as the Ministry of Transportation's Carrier Safety Enforcement Branch (CSEB). Ms McKenna carries out analyses of commercial carrier safety records and performance of CVOR holders whose safety record comes to the attention of the CSEB.

The Ontario Safety Enforcement Branch compiles statistics to monitor CVOR-holder compliance with the MOT's Carrier Safety Rating Program and Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration System and associated legislation and regulations (the full public guideline document is contained in Exhibit 4, Tab 17).

A description of violation rates and threshold values leading to intervention and sanctions, which could be a fleet limitation, plate seizure or suspension or cancellation of a carrier's operating privileges, is described in Exhibit 4, Tab 17, page 220-240.

Ms. McKenna reviewed the CVOR abstract of the Applicant showing that RTS had been involved in five (5) accidents in the June 30, 2000 through November 13, 2001 period and that charges had been laid in three (3) of the five incidents.

The CVOR abstract for RTS further showed there had been 24 convictions with the two most frequent violation types being for speeding and log book or document records maintenance improprieties. The analysis showed there had been a number of log book violations and poor or inadequate record keeping. The resulting overall violation rate was 3.6569 (365.7%) versus a threshold rate of 1.0 (100%).

While the Suspension and Seizure Order would under normal circumstances have been issued when the Applicant's safety record or performance reached 100%, McKenna stated the record had been worse in the last 6 months of 2001 than in the prior 13 months.

The Ministry's standard practice with under-performing carriers is to send out a warning letter when a CVOR holder reaches 35% of the threshold. At 65% of the threshold level, a facility audit is triggered and at 80% of the threshold either an interview stage or audit may occur. At 100% of threshold a review of a non-compliant carrier is triggered.

Ms. McKenna advised the Tribunal that despite these various stages and prescribed actions at these stages, the Registrar's actions are discretionary and can be taken at any time when the safety of the public is of concern.

Evidence presented by Mr. Grewal, the Applicant's Representative at the Show Cause meeting, revealed:

- there were no safety programs in place when he joined RTS in April 2001
- plans to implement new hiring practices are not yet in place; RTS consists mainly of Owner/Operators
- the company relies on driver experience in place of driver tests
- no log training is provided – the company relies on a driver's past experience and only checks after first trip
- Mr. Grewal was aware drivers were falsifying logs but did not know how to control practice
- Sukhwinder Pandher reportedly completes accident reviews with drivers
- vehicles are checked on return to yard; drivers are required to submit monthly maintenance reports – copies of monthly reports were provided but no repair receipts were available for verification
- RTS was not aware of all speeding charges against drivers as drivers do not submit tickets received
- dangerous goods charges had been laid against RTS but date of event and against which driver was not known
- as RTS was growing very fast, Mr. Grewal had become more involved with dispatch duties and recommended the company hire a safety manager
- RTS hired Mr. Sandy Power as Safety Manager; training sessions for all drivers were being developed for presentation on Saturdays, starting February – drivers not attending could face suspension
- Mr. Grewal spoke of his belief that "RTS was getting better"; that the discipline policy was getting stricter and he was attempting to get RTS into compliance; and since he had joined the company there had been a 60-70% improvement overall in their safety record

Ms. McKenna advised the Tribunal that even if the amendments to the CVOR licence requested by the Applicant had been granted to increase the company's CVOR fleet size, the threshold rate would still have been at 170%.

The Applicant's Counsel, Mr. Patrick DiMonte presented through his opening statement, the following points:

- the cited threshold was reached on an incorrect fleet size
- of the five (5) accidents alleged to have happened in a short time, two (2) were minor and should not have been mentioned; one (1) was questionable; and the two (2) serious events "allege driver error"
- that the 30 day suspension is "Draconian" and could put RTS out of business
- that the company has done everything possible and there has been a dramatic performance improvement

On cross-examination by Mr. DiMonte, Ms. McKenna acknowledged that RTS equipment showed no significant problems but restated that accidents and convictions, the majority being for speeding and log book improprieties, triggered the warning letter.

Ms McKenna emphasized that almost six (6) months went by between the time the Warning Letter was sent and when the Suspension and Seizure Order was issued. During this time there had been expectation of improvement but this did not occur. Evidence showed that the RTS performance record for the June 17, 2001 through December 16, 2001 period would have been approximately 224% versus a maximum allowable of 100%.

Ms McKenna clarified (1) that even at the adjusted fleet size and with an adjusted threshold of 170% versus 365%, the Order would still have been issued, and (2) while U.S. road events have no impact on a carrier's rating, if there are no Ontario events, they do become part of the overall consideration if the carrier's Ontario record triggers the Notice process.

When Mr. DiMonte asked Ms. McKenna about the RTS safety performance during the January 2002 through to the end of May 2002 period, Ms McKenna said she had no knowledge about performance in this time as it was after the Order date.

The witness appearing for the Applicant was Daman Dede Singh Grewal. While Mr. Surpinder Pandher, a co-owner and director of the Applicant, was present throughout the hearing he did not testify.

The evidence presented by Mr. Grewal included the following:

- his background included working at Aman Enterprises Ltd., also a trucking company, for 18 months where he was involved with safety operations and where he met Surpinder and Sukhwinder Pandher, the owners of RTS
- he started at RTS in March 2001
- RTS operates in 48 states and from British Columbia to Ontario in Canada; RTS has 45 trucks on the road and owns 6 trucks and numerous trailers; 39 power units are owner operated; the company began operating in Ontario on June 30, 2000 and approximately 21 to 23 units enter Ontario
- as operations manager his duties include hiring drivers, input of drivers' log records into computer and dealing with safety matters
- there are close to 70 drivers; he started the log book program in June 2001 and Gurbit Gill, an employee whom Grewal oversees, inputs data and is the record keeper
- the business largely moves B.C. lumber to U.S. destinations with offloads in California and then transports produce to food terminals in Ontario; RTS trucks then take consolidated freight out West; a standard trip can take eight (8) days to complete
- on the matter of fuel tax reports, which are necessitated by law and indicate the mileage travelled in each province, Mr. Grewal confirmed that RTS has them done by Coping With Trucking, a corporation in Langley, British Columbia

- certain material for some drivers' applications were lost and not available
- the discipline procedure calls for a file note re the accident or conviction; if required, a written warning; if another breach occurs the driver is supposed to be suspended; a further breach calls for termination
- Mr. Grewal testified he had never before seen the Registrar's letter of warning (June 27, 2001) to the company

In cross-examination Mr. Grewal's list of drivers, dated March 2002, and was different from the records contained in the Applicant's Book of Documents, dated October 23, 2001. Mr. Grewal was unable to answer how that had occurred.

He could not explain why one driver (Gill) was recorded as on active driver in December 2001 but had been purportedly terminated in May 2001 as a result of an accident.

In regards to the accident referred to in the police report of July 7, 2001, where Nav Dayg Gun Drak and Jasvir Dahliwal were allegedly fired for falling asleep and causing a serious accident, they appeared to still be active drivers months after their supposed termination date.

When dealing with speeding infractions, log book entry violations and hours of work violation matters Mr. Grewal agreed that RTS does not have the proper paper work in the records.

With repeat offenders it is company policy to first provide an oral warning and then a written warning. There are supposed to be two written warnings before suspension but mostly it is three. The third warning stage results in a suspension for 5 days.

RTS has written a four page driver's handbook, which is supposed to be read by and must be signed by all drivers to confirm they have read it. Mr. Grewal stated that while not all drivers are fluent in English, the company rules are in English and are reviewed with each driver by translation through him and Sukhwinder Pandher.

In addition, numerous training materials are available in his office for any drivers who wish to avail themselves of additional training materials; there is also a British Columbia Trucking Association (BCTA) course however, RTS is not a BCTA member as it is too expensive.

Additionally, Mr. Grewal confirmed videos are available in Punjabi and English; Safety Bulletins were started on October 31, 2001 and are contained in the drivers' pay packets; since RTS received the Notice of Suspension and Seizure, drivers are monitored much more closely.

Mr. Grewal stated that the hours of work and the days during which the hours were worked are given to him verbally before he enters it into the computer

He was cross-examined extensively as to his record keeping especially relating to:

- log book entries
- speeding infractions
- the driving records of Mr. Gill, Mr. Drak and Mr. Dahliwal who incurred infractions after they had allegedly been terminated

In addition he was questioned as to his knowledge of the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario and especially Ontario Regulation 4/93 which deals with hours of work and the use to be made of the automatic timer installations which are installed in all of the Applicant's vehicles, and which calculate:

- distance travelled
- time of engine use (start up - shut down)
- speed
- times when the timer device box is opened and shut

Mr. Grewal admitted he was not familiar with any of the above items.

LAW:

- 47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or
 - (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
 - (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
 - (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
 - (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
- (10) The Registrar may, at any time for misconduct or contravention of this Act, the Truck Transportation Act, the Public Vehicles Act or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or lessee of one or more motor vehicles or trailers for which permits have been issued by a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than the Province of Ontario, order that the permit and number plates issued for the vehicle or vehicles be seized and any police officer or any officer appointed for carrying out this Act or the enforcement of the Public Vehicles Act or the Truck Transportation Act may seize the permit and number plates and deliver them to the Ministry which shall return them to the authority that issued them.

According to Section 22(e) HTA:

22(e) the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, governing the suspension or cancellation of CVOR certificates under subsection 47(1) or the imposition of a limitation on the fleet size operated under a CVOR certificate under subsection 47(2).

The maintenance requirements under the HTA are found, inter alia, at Regulation 575 (commercial motor vehicle inspections); Regulation 577 (covering of loads); Regulation 587 (re brake push rod travel); Regulation 597 (gross vehicle weights); Regulation 625 (tire standards and specifications); Regulation 762/91 (safety inspections); Regulation 614 (security of loads).

The appeal comes to this Tribunal by virtue of s. 50(1) of the HTA which provides:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The [Tribunal] may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

Regulation 574, also addresses appeals to this Tribunal;

- 3(3) Upon receipt of a notice of appeal under subsection (1) the [Tribunal] shall forthwith notify the Minister or Registrar, as the case may be, and the person notified shall forthwith provide the [Tribunal] with all the relevant documents and other material in his or her possession.
- 3(6) At any hearing under this section, the person making the appeal has the right to attend and make representations and, subject to subsection (7), to adduce evidence respecting the appeal either personally or through counsel.
- 3(7) At any hearing under this section, the [Tribunal] shall hear only such evidence as was submitted to the Minister or the Registrar, as the case may be, respecting the matter in dispute."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Section 47 of the Highway Traffic Act provides that the Registrar may suspend a CVOR certificate on the grounds set out in that section.

The Tribunal has reviewed the considerable volume of evidence brought before it both as exhibits and through oral testimony. The Tribunal has some concerns that the only witness produced on behalf of the Applicant was Mr. Grewal, a person who had only been employed by the company for about 18 months and who did not have full knowledge of the business practices of the Applicant and was not an officer or Director of the Applicant although an officer, owner and Director was present but did not give evidence.

Although Mr. Grewal was operations manager he also stated that he acted as the safety manager of the Applicant. He had very little experience having only taken 4 or 5 one or two day courses in the National Safety Code, log book useage and management, the handling of dangerous goods, loading and unloading, as well as drug and alcohol issues.

Mr. Grewal attended the show cause hearing on behalf of the Applicant and stated that he attempted to change the methods of operation after receiving the Order of Suspension and Seizure. These actions were said to include drafting a Drivers' Hand Book to be read by all drivers.

Mr. Grewal gave general evidence as to what the number of contracts were in Ontario (about 100) but gave no evidence concerning the dollar amount of the contracts or the value of business done in Ontario and he testified that all contracts were oral in nature. There was no evidence provided regarding the possible financial impacts that a 30 day suspension could have on the RTS business.

Mr. Grewal's testimony revealed a lack of knowledge of the Highway Traffic Act. In addition, the inability to discipline drivers properly suggested that it would be difficult for him to keep complete log book records and address the RTS driver performance in Ontario. No evidence was provided about changes being made at any time up to the date of the hearing.

The evidence of Ms. McKenna is found to be credible, clear and consistent in the reliance on information from computer print-outs, other reports and a CVOR safety rating system which is applicable to all commercial trucking companies using Ontario roads.

Ms. McKenna's evidence was that the record of the Applicant was 365% and even if the amendment to the CVOR licence had been properly requested and allowed by the Ministry of Transportation the number would still be 242%, approximately 2 ½ times over the Suspension of Licence level.

The Applicant did not dispute the accuracy of the information in the show cause hearing and attempted to show that the carrier had improved its driving record since the original Suspension and Seizure Order had been issued.

CASELAW:

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant was rehabilitating himself. The Tribunal found that "possibly the applicant will in the future, be a person of honesty and integrity", and the Tribunal expressed a willingness to "encourage that objective". The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty."

DECISION:

In considering the evidence presented regarding the record of driver performance, the log book violations, the absence of clear and consistent safety practices and training programs, the Tribunal finds that the Registrar was justified in his concern for the safety of the public on Ontario roads and did not err when issuing the Amended Suspension and Seizure Order.

Therefore, and in the absence of any evidence to indicate the Applicant's claim that the suspension would put the company out of business, and pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the decision of Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue a suspension and seizure order for 30 days.

HARRY NICOLAU

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: MICHAEL H. TURK, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

DORIS NICOLAU representing Harry Nicolau
ANDREW LEWIS representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program

DATE OF

HEARING: June 12, 13, 14, 17 and 18, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant, Harry Nicolau, appeals to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the Program) set out in a decision letter dated 25 January 2002 and a supplementary decision letter dated May 24, 2002. These decision letters had the cumulative effect of denying the warranty claims made by the Applicant.

BACKGROUND:

On November 21, 2000, the Applicant submitted an offer to purchase the property located at 1 Lister Drive, Toronto from Michael & Yekaterina Zaleznik (hereinafter the "vendors"). This home was custom built for the vendors by Hunter Building & Development Inc. and completed for occupancy in July 2000. The Certificate of Completion and Possession was signed by the vendors on July 24, 2000 and does not identify any deficiencies. The vendors never moved into the home.

The Applicant's offer was prepared and submitted by his spouse, Doris Nicolau in her professional capacity as a licensed real state agent. The offer was conditional upon inter-alia satisfactory written approval of a qualified home inspector. In this regard, the Applicant retained the services of Steve Balshin of Majestic Home Inspection Service who compiled a list of 233 deficiencies.

Following the inspection the Applicant negotiated a $10,000.00 abatement in the purchase price, waived the inspection condition and completed the transaction with a purchase price of $508,000.00.

The real estate commission payable by the vendors was 5% of the selling price plus GST. The Applicant's spouse as purchaser's agent split the commission due on the completion of this transaction.

Following the formal transfer of the home, the Applicant submitted a claim to the Program for the 233 deficiencies.

At the conciliation the Applicant withdrew 33 items from his deficiency claim.

In its first decision letter the Program found 35 items to be warranted at a value $8,305.00 and denied the balance of the Applicant's claims on the basis that the Applicant was the second owner, that the home was fit for habitation save & except that final cosmetic finishes were incomplete and that the Applicant had reached a settlement with the first owner for $10,000.00 thereby receiving a benefit under Section 14 (6) of the Act.

In its supplementary decision letter the Program obtained a quotation for 87 specific items of warranted work in the sum of $8,395.00 and a second non-specific quotation for warranted work in the sum of $4,580.00 for a total quotation for warranted work of $12,975.00. The Program further denied the Applicant's claim on the basis that the Applicant had refused a repair to the garage floor (deficiency item No. 5) as offered by the builder thereby entitling the Program to a further set-off of $4,000.00.

As the Program's set-offs of $14,000.00 exceeded its quotation for warranted work of $12,975.00 the Applicant's claim was denied.

THE FACTS

The Applicant did not appear in person and was represented by his spouse, Doris Nicolau. In addition to Doris Nicolau, Steven Balshin of Majestic Home Inspection Service gave evidence for the Applicant.

The Program called two witnesses, Richard Johnston, a warranty representative, and Ozzie Felkir, the owner of a general contracting company.

The deficiency list of Majestic Home Inspection Service contained 233 items at a cost of $66,425.00 and formed the basis of the Applicant's claim. At the hearing Steve Balshin of Majestic Home Inspection Service acknowledged that errors took place in transposing his quotations which result in a reduction of his quotation by $1,100.00 for revised claim of $65,325.00.

The Applicant withdrew the following 33 items: 6, 9, 23, 45, 58, 61, 64, 67, 70, 72, 77, 82, 86, 89, 90, 98, 116, 119, 121, 122, 125, 132, 133, 142, 143, 54, 155, 156, 165, 187, 230, 232 and 233 thereby reducing the claim by $5,200.00.

The Applicant acknowledged and accepted the Program's quotations for the following 24 items: 4, 19, 20, 31, 37, 40, 50, 68, 73, 76, 79, 85, 88, 91, 92, 94, 99, 100, 126, 133, 206, 207, 228 and 231 having a value of $2,470.00

With 57 items having been either withdrawn by the Applicant or accepted by the Applicant 176 items remained to be determined. These items can be categorized in the following manner:

1) Paint and Drywall

108 or approximately 60% of the items relate to alleged defects in material and workmanship in paint and drywall. The Applicant asks that the entire home be repainted and drywall repaired where necessary. The Program acknowledges defects in paint and drywall but states that the defects and warranty are limited to the white areas of the home.

The Applicant quotes the cost of remedial paint and drywall at $36,950.00. The Program says that the cost of drywall repairs and re-painting the white areas of the home is $5,250.00 and the cost of paint and drywall repairs for the entire home is $8,000.00.

2) Ceramic Tiles

The Applicant claims 9 defects in material and workmanship of the ceramic tiles and grout in the main floor kitchen, lower level kitchen, master ensuite, second floor middle bathroom, bathroom in basement, upper floor laundry room floor, a cracked tile in the upper laundry room and a slope in the basement and basement laundry room floors.

The Applicant quotes the cost of ceramic repairs at $5,800.00. The Program has allowed $240.00 for repairs to ceramic tiles & grout and denies all other claims as within allowable specifications.

3) Garage Floor

The garage floor slopes improperly and requires repair. The Applicant says the entire concrete garage floor must be removed and repoured at a cost of $4,000.00. The Program agrees that the floor requires work but states that a lesser repair is appropriate at a cost of $2,000.00.

4) Missing Quarter Round

The Applicant advances 7 claims that quarter round is missing in halls, foyer, main floor kitchen, master ensuite and basement and quotes the remedial costs of these items at $1,600.00. The Program has allowed the sum of $200.00 for the installation of warranted missing quarter round and baseboards.

5) Doors

The Applicant advances 9 claims for door adjustments and the installation of a replacement solid door in the basement cold cellar and quotes the remedial costs at $950.00. The Program has allowed the sum of $240.00 for warranted door items.

6) Gaps

The Applicant advances 8 claims for items described as gaps between cabinets and walls, the tub area and between cabinets and the floor and quotes the cost of remedial work at $600.00. The Program allows the sum of $200.00 for warranted items.

7) Concrete Cracks

The Applicant advances 1 claim for parging the exterior portion of the foundation wall, 2 claims for cracks to the foundation wall and 1 claim for a mortar joint crack at the header area of the patio door and quotes the cost of remedial work at $1,500.00. The Program allows $40.00 for warranted work.

8) Caulking and Weatherstripping

The Applicant advances 3 claims for improper caulking and weatherstripping and quotes the cost of remedial work at $375.00. The Program has allowed $140.00 for warranted work.

9) Eavestrough

The Applicant advances 3 claims for improper & deficient installation of eavestroughs and splash pads and quotes the costs of remedial work at $350.00. The Program denies any defect or deficiency.

10) Deck

The Applicant advances 3 claims for deficiencies to the deck pertaining to steps and treatment of lumber and quotes the cost of remedial work at $350.00. The Program has allowed $125.00 for warranted work.

11) Dents to Doors

The Applicant advances 2 claims for dents to the front door and garage door and quotes remedial costs at $450.00. The Program denies these claims as not being in the vendor's Certificate of Completion & Possession.

12) Rooms over Garage

The Applicant advances 2 claims for heating/air conditioning of rooms over the garage and quotes remedial costs of $1,150.00. The Program denies any defect in materials or workmanship.

13) Electrical

The Applicant advances 4 claims for electrical deficiencies for a missing outlet, doubled up circuit, loose electric operator in the central vacuum system and poor finish of an electrical panel cover and quotes the cost of remedial work at $525.00. The Program denies any defects in materials or workmanship.

14) Rust

The Applicant advances a claim for rust on the front porch and quotes remedial costs at $350.00. The Program denies any defects in material or workmanship.

15) Vents

The Applicant advances 3 claims for an exterior vent for the central vacuum, blocked vent opening in the cold cellar and a vent in the furnace room door and quotes remedial costs at $325.00. The Program allows $40.00 to open the blocked vent and denies the other claims as being defects in material or workmanship.

16) Insulation

The Applicant advances 2 claims for missing insulation and uncovered insulation and quotes remedial cost at $275.00. The Program denies any defects in material or workmanship.

17) Lintels

The Applicant advances a claim for the cost of painting exterior lintels which have only been primed and quotes remedial costs of $350.00. The Program denies any defect in materials or workmanship.

18) Humidifier

The Applicant advances a claim that all of the components for the humidifier had not been supplied and quotes remedial costs of $75.00. The Program denies any defect in material or workmanship.

19) Shower

The Applicant advances a claim that the shower plate in the master ensuite is not installed properly and quotes remedial costs of $100.00. The Program agrees that this item is warranted at a cost of $40.00.

20) Chimney

The Applicant advances a claim that the chimney is overly close to the second floor bedroom window and quotes remedial costs of $150.00. The Program denies that this is a violation of the Building Code and denies coverage.

21) Cover Black Waterproofing

The Applicant advances a claim that the black waterproofing on the foundation wall is above the grade of the property, should be covered and quotes remedial costs at $200.00. The Program denies any defect in materials or workmanship.

22) Exterior Nails

The Applicant advances a claim that there are nails protruding from the exterior of the property and claims remedial costs of $200.00. The Program denies the existence of this issue.

23) The Hardwood Floor

The Applicant advances a claim that the flooring in the dining room has a small chip, is scratched and quotes remedial costs of $200.00. The Program states that these complaints are normal wear and tear and denied coverage.

THE EVIDENCE

The Applicant's entire claim is based upon the deficiencies and quotations contained in the report of Majestic Home Inspection Service and the Applicant's first witness was Steve Balshin of Majestic Home Inspection Service.

Steve Balshin is a former home builder and is a registered home inspector with the Ontario Association of Home Inspectors and is also certified by the Housing Inspection Foundation as a certified home inspector.

Home inspections are Steve Balshin's full time occupation and in the past year he performed approximately 900 home inspections and estimated that to date he had conducted approximately 23,000 inspections. The Tribunal accepted Mr. Balshin's qualifications.

Steve Balshin testified that his only inspection of the home took place in December, 2000 and that he had no independent recollection of the home. He viewed the workmanship of this home as not typical and that many deficiencies could result in consequential damage. Overall, Steve Balshin testified that he would classify the workmanship as one of the poorest he had seen with paint and drywall issues being the major areas of deficiency.

On cross examination, Steve Balshin testified that he considers himself to be a critical home inspector, that his standards are close to perfection and that anything short of perfection is a defect in his mind.

As it relates to quotations for repairs, Steve Balshin testified that he would not undertake remedial work, his quotations were calculated on an individual item by item basis and if a contractor was retained to complete the repairs his quotations should be reduced by a factor of 20%.

In response to questions from the Tribunal Steve Balshin testified that the cost to repaint the entire home would be $9,000.00. As it relates to the issue of the garage floor, Steve Balshin testified that the only repair method that he was aware of was to repour the entire garage. He dismissed the Program's suggestion that a solution would be to repour a small area of the garage floor.

The Applicant's second and final witness was the Applicant's spouse, Doris Nicolau.

Mrs. Nicolau testified that she is a licensed real estate agent and in the top 10 of her office, Sutton Group. Mrs. Nicolau testified that following Steve Balshin's home inspection she negotiated a token $10,000.00 abatement in purchase price, that the agreement specifically provided for an assignment of the New Home Warranty to the purchaser and that it was her intention to submit a claim to the Program based upon Steve Balshin's deficiency list.

At the hearing, Mrs. Nicolau conceded that the $10,000.00 abatement in purchase price should be treated as a benefit and that this sum less 20% from the quotations of Steve Balshin should be deducted from the amount of the Applicant's claim.

Mrs. Nicolau relied upon the report of Steve Balshin and submitted 27 miscellaneous photographs as an illustration of various deficiencies.

Mrs. Nicolau attempted to introduce 3 pages of a 15-page report from The Home Buyers Guide Inc. The Program objected to the filing on the grounds that the report was not served prior to the hearing in accordance with the Rules of the Tribunal and that in any event, the report was incomplete and that the Tribunal should not accept what appeared to be an edited version of the report.

The Tribunal was prepared to consider allowing the report to be admitted if the sole issue was with respect to service and timing. The Tribunal was not prepared to accept a partial or edited report and therefore did not permit the Applicant to file this report.

Mrs. Nicolau testified that she did not purchase the home on an as is basis and was highly critical of the Program's treatment of the claim. Mrs. Nicolau was very candid in her view that the Program was acting in bad faith and that following its initial determination not to accept the Applicant's deficiency claims any further investigation would be used as a further excuse by the Program not to pay.

On cross examination Mrs. Nicolau reluctantly testified that as the purchaser's real estate agent she received a real estate commission of $12,700.00 on the transaction and paid her broker $1,000.00 from this amount. Mrs. Nicolau testified that as an agent she was entitled to this amount and that this was not a factor in determining the purchase price for the home.

As it relates to the issue of the sloping of the garage, Mrs. Nicolau stated that in accordance with Steve Balshin's report the correct remedy is to repour the entire garage. She testified that she rejected the proposed repair of Gene Privis and further testified that Mr. Privis failed to appear on two occasions and was unreliable.

In response to questions from the Tribunal, Mrs. Nicolau testified that she expected the remedial costs to be between $35,000.00 and $40,000.00, that she did not obtain specific quotations from individual trades and that her main areas of concern were with paint, drywall ridges and the slope of the garage floor.

The Program's first witness was Richard Johnston, an experienced warranty representative of 14 years.

Richard Johnston testified that his involvement commenced at the conciliation of August 20, 2001 and that following the conciliation he commenced an investigation into whether the home was purchased on an as is basis and whether the owner had received a benefit within the meaning of the Act.

Richard Johnston formed the view that the owner had received a benefit and this view is apparent throughout his correspondence to the Applicant and in the two decision letters.

Mr. Johnston further testified that he did not obtain quotations from Ozzie Felkir for the entire items claimed by the Applicant until he had been so instructed by the Program's legal counsel.

Mr. Johnston proceeded to give credible evidence on an item by item basis as to whether an item was warranted, if not why, and the estimated costs for repair.

On cross examination, Mr. Johnston acknowledged a friendship with Mr. Felkir but steadfastly denied that he instructed Mr. Felkir to provide quotations within a specified range or that there was anything improper with retaining Mr. Felkir.

As it related to the issue of accepted standards for workmanship, Mr. Johnston testified that the industry standards that he spoke of were not in writing but were an accepted practice. As the Applicant did not present any credible evidence to dispute Mr. Johnston's standards, the Tribunal accepts the testimony of Richard Johnston with respect to the issue of industry standards.

The Program's final witness was Ozzie Felkir, the principal of IOW, a general contractor.

Ozzie Felkir testified that his company has been doing work for the Program for 10 years and in this matter was requested by Richard Johnston to attend at the Applicant's home and prepare a quotation for the items claimed by the Applicant.

Mr. Felkir's quotations are to be found in the Supplementary decision letter and his specific quotations were tendered in evidence and marked as Exhibits 9 and 10 respectively. Exhibit 9 provides an itemized quotation for 233 items for a total estimate of $32,635.00 and has a separate category for paint and drywall issues. The paint and drywall repairs total $16,650.00.

Exhibit 10 does not break down paint and drywall repairs and provides a revised estimate of $32,415.00.

Mr. Felkir noted that like Mr. Balshin, his quotations were provided on an item by item basis and that the estimates can be discounted by 25%-30% on a contract basis.

Mr. Felkir testified that he made no determination whether an item was or should be warranted and estimated that the cost of warranted paint and drywall repairs was $5,250.00 and that the cost of paint and drywall repairs for the entire home is $8,000.00.

As it related to the repair of the garage floor, Mr. Felkir testified that it is possible to perform a lesser repair by cutting back 4 - 6 feet at a cost of $2,000.00.

In response to questions from the Tribunal Mr. Felkir testified that it was just not the white areas of the home that required repainting and drywall repairs and that as a practical matter the entire home should be repainted. As it relates to the issue of the garage floor, Mr. Felkir testified that in order to avoid the possibility of any further settling, the most effective repair would be to replace the entire concrete floor.

On cross examination, Mr. Felkir vehemently denied that he was instructed or pressured by Mr. Johnston in any manner and stated candidly that that was not the way he operates.

ISSUES:

There are two issues.

- 1) Did the Applicant obtained a benefit under Section 14 (6) of the Act and if so, to what extent.
- 2) Are the other items warranted and if so, what are the costs of repair.

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Act are as follows:

13. (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,;
 - (a) that the home,
 - (i) is constructed in a workmanlike manner and is free from defects in material
 - (ii) is fit for habitation, and
 - (iii) is constructed in accordance with the Ontario Building Code
 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.
- (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of;
 - (c) normal wear and tear;
 - (f) damage caused by improper maintenance;
- 14 (6) In assessing the amount for which a person is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund under this section, the Corporation shall take into consideration any benefit, compensation, indemnity payable, or the value of work and materials furnished to the person from any source;

THE APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

With respect to the first issue the following applies:

At the hearing Mrs. Nicolau admitted that the Applicant received an abatement of purchase price in the sum of $10,000.00 and that this sum should be deducted from any award. It is therefore conceded that the Applicant received a benefit of $10,000.00 pursuant to Section 14 (6) of the Act.

Mrs. Nicolau testified that as a real estate agent and the purchaser's agent in this transaction she shared in the real estate commission payable by the vendors and that her share of the commission was $12,700.00 and that of this sum she paid $1,000.00 to her broker.

The Program asks the Tribunal to treat the real estate commission as a benefit under Section 14 (6) of the Act.

The Program was unable to provide the Tribunal with any precedent whereby a benefit under Section 14 (6) of the Act included the receipt of a real estate commission.

The real estate commission was earned by the Applicant's spouse, Doris Nicolau in her professional capacity and was taxable income to her. Mrs. Nicolau testified that she is in the top 10 of her office and is taxed at 50 percent.

In the event that the Tribunal considers the real estate commission to be a benefit, the commission would be discounted by 50% to reflect the after tax value.

Unlike the Applicant's negotiation of the $10,000.00 abatement in purchase price which was directly related to the issue of deficiencies, there was no evidence tendered that the real estate commission was a factor in determining the purchase price for the home.

The Tribunal is not satisfied based upon the evidence that the real estate commission earned by the Applicant's spouse, Mrs. Nicolau is a benefit under Section 14 (6) of the Act.

With respect to the second issue, the onus is on the Applicant to demonstrate that the defects complained of are warranted as a result of defects in material and/or workmanship and in this regard the following applies:

(1) Paint and Drywall

Based upon the admission of the Program that the white areas of the home should be repainted and drywall repaired where necessary, the issue is whether the entire home should be repainted and drywall repaired and at what cost.

Steve Balshin testified that the quality of workmanship for paint and drywall was consistent with the worst that he had seen. Approximately 60% of Steve Balshin's report deals with paint and drywall repairs at an estimated cost of $36,950.00. Allowing for Mr. Balshin's reduction of 20% reduces his quotation to $29,560.00

Steve Balshin's quotation of $29,560.00 contained in his deficiency list is inconsistent with his testimony that the cost of repainting the entire home is $9,000.00. Although he did not give testimony for the costs of drywall repairs, it is inconceivable that the costs for drywall repairs should be in the $20,000.00 range.

Ozzie Felkir testified that there were paint and drywall deficiencies in all areas of the home and that a practical solution would be to repaint the entire home and repair the drywall where necessary. He testified that the costs of paint and drywall repairs were $8,000.00, however the total of individual items for paint and drywall in his Exhibit 9 are $16,650.00. As this would be reduced by 25% on a contract basis, Mr. Felikir's estimate is $12,487.50.

Based upon the evidence, it is the Tribunal's finding that there are sufficient paint and drywall deficiencies throughout the home that the entire home should be repainted and the drywall repaired where necessary.

The Tribunal finds that the sum of $12,487.50 is a fair and reasonable cost to repaint and repair drywall throughout the home and allows the Applicant this amount.

(2) Ceramic Tiles

The Applicant advances 9 claims for defects in material and workmanship for ceramic tiles.

The Applicant did not produce any evidence from a tile expert and Steve Balshin was not of assistance to the Tribunal in this area.

The only evidence before the Tribunal was that of Richard Johnston who testified that save & except the sum of $240.00, all issues complained of were within allowable specifications and standards.

The Tribunal allows the Applicant the sum of $240.00.

(3) Garage Floor

During the hearing the Program withdrew the allegation that the Applicant refused a form of repair and as such the issue to be determined is the nature and cost of the repair.

The Tribunal is satisfied that the entire garage floor should be removed and repoured and allows the sum of $4,000.00 for the costs of the same.

(4) Missing Quarter Round

The Applicant says that quarter round is missing in various areas throughout the home. The Program acknowledges that quarter round is missing in certain areas and states that the agreement of purchase and sale does not specifically refer to quarter round.

The Tribunal finds that the construction contract for the home was vague in many areas and that in this custom built home the missing quarter round is a deficiency. The Tribunal allows the sum of $350.00 for the cost of the same.

(5) Doors

The Applicant advances 9 claims for door adjustments and the installation of a solid door in the basement cold cellar. The Program allows the sum of $240.00 for door adjustments and the Tribunal allows the Applicant this amount for door adjustments.

The Applicant has not provided evidence that a solid door is a Building Code requirement and therefore the Tribunal dismisses the claim for a solid door.

(6) Gaps

The Applicant advances 8 claims for items that are best described as gaps between cabinets and walls, the bathtub and cabinets and the floor.

The Program acknowledges defects and allows the sum of $200.00 for the costs of repairs. The Tribunal accepts the Program's quotation and allows the Applicant the sum of $200.00 for gap repairs.

(7) Concrete Cracks

The Applicant advances claims for 2 foundation cracks, a motor joint crack at the header of the patio door and parging the exterior portion of the foundation wall.

The Applicant has not submitted any evidence that there is leakage or that these claims are warrantable.

The Program allows the sum of $40.00 for warranted work and the Tribunal accepts this sum for the cost of repair. The Tribunal dismisses the applicant's other claims in this category.

(8) Caulking and Weatherstripping

The Applicant and the Program agree that there are deficiencies in caulking and weatherstripping but disagree on the cost of the remedial work.

The Tribunal accepts the Program's estimate of the sum of $140.00 as the cost of repairs.

(9) Eavestrough

The Applicant advances 3 claims for improper and/or deficient installation of eavestrough and splash pads. In her evidence, Mrs. Nicolau testified that she had taken the necessary steps to remedy these deficiencies.

On that basis, the Tribunal finds that no deficiencies exist and dismisses these claims.

(10) Deck

The Applicant advances 3 claims for deficiencies to the deck. The Program acknowledges deficiencies but disagrees on the cost of repairs.

The Tribunal accepts the Program's cost estimate of $125.00 as the cost of the repairs.

(11) Dents to Doors

The Applicant advances claims for dents to the front door and garage door. The Program acknowledges the dents but denies coverage on the basis that these items were not noted in the original Certificate of Completion and Possession and therefore may have been damaged in the period from this Certificate and the Applicant's offer to purchase.

The Tribunal notes that the Certificate of Completion and Possession referred to by the Program does not contain one deficiency, notwithstanding the fact that numerous deficiencies exist.

The Tribunal therefore finds that the damage to the front and garage doors represent defects in material and workmanship and allows the Applicant the sum of $225.00 for the same.

(12) Rooms Over Garage

The Applicant advances claims that 2 rooms above the garage are overly cold compared to the rest of the home. The only evidence in this regard was the testimony of Mrs. Nicolau.

The Applicant did not conduct any inspection to determine the cause of the temperature variance nor did the Applicant provide evidence from a heating/ air conditioning contractor or otherwise in order to assist the Tribunal in determining whether the issues complained of are in defects in material or workmanship.

The Tribunal therefore dismisses the Applicant's claims in this category.

(13) Electrical

The Applicant advances 4 claims for electrical deficiencies but did not tender any evidence from an electrician to support these claims nor was Steve Balshin's evidence helpful to the Tribunal.

The Tribunal dismisses the Applicant's claims in this category.

(14) Rust

The Applicant advances a claim for rust on the front porch and tendered a photograph of the same as evidence.

The Tribunal is satisfied on the evidence that the rust complained of is a defect and allows the Applicant the sum of $60.00 for the same.

(15) Vents

The Applicant advances 3 claims for an exterior vent, blocked vent and a missing vent in the furnace room door. The Program acknowledges that the blocked exterior vent must be cleared.

The Applicant did not tender evidence in support of the claim that the missing vents were a deficiency or a violation of the Building Code and therefore the Tribunal dismisses these claims.

The Tribunal allows the Applicant the sum of $40.00 to open the blocked vent.

(16) Insulation

The Applicant advances 1 claim for missing insulation and 1 claim for uncovered insulation.

The Applicant did not provide any evidence that these items are deficiencies or Building Code requirements and therefore the Tribunal dismisses these claims.

(17) Lintels

The Applicant advances a claim that the exterior lintels have only been primed and tenders 1 photograph of the same as evidence.

The Tribunal is satisfied that the failure to paint the lintels are a deficiency and allows the Applicant the sum of $100.00 for the same.

(18) Humidifier

The Applicant did not provide the Tribunal with any evidence that components of the humidifier are missing and therefore the Tribunal dismisses this claim.

(19) Shower

The Program agrees that this is a warranted item at $40.00 and the Tribunal accepts the Program's cost estimate of $40.00.

(20) Chimney

The Tribunal finds that Steve Balshin was not well versed in Building Code issues and did not satisfy the Tribunal that the placement of the chimney was a Building Code violation and therefore the Tribunal dismisses this claim.

(21) Cover Black Waterproofing

The Applicant did not provide any evidence to the Tribunal that the exposed area of the foundation wall was as a result of a defect in workmanship or material and therefore dismisses this claim.

(22) Exterior Nails

The Applicant had no knowledge of whether there are nails protruding from the exterior of the property and therefore did not satisfy the Tribunal that there was a deficiency. The Tribunal therefore dismisses this claim.

(23) The Hardwood Floor

The Applicant did not provide any photographs or evidence that the scratches were anything other than normal wear and tear. The Tribunal therefore dismisses this claim.

DECISION:

The onus is on the Applicant to demonstrate that his complaints are valid and prove with credible evidence that the complaints are warranted under the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act.

The Tribunal was constrained by the Applicant's failure to provide current expert evidence and cost estimates from individual trades and contractors.

Although the Applicant alleges lack of bona fides on behalf of the Program, it is principally the admissions and evidence tendered by the Program that results in the Applicant's award as hereinafter provided.

Whereas the Tribunal accepts the qualifications of Steve Balshin as a home inspector, the Tribunal finds that remedial costs and providing cost estimates for remedial work are not Steve Balshin's forte.

The Tribunal finds as a general principle that Steve Balshin's costs estimates are excessive and therefore for the purpose of awarding compensation to the Applicant has primarily relied upon the evidence and cost estimates as provided by the Program through its witness, Ozzie Felikir.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Program to pay the Applicant the following:

- 1) The sum of $2,470.00 for the 24 items acknowledged and agreed upon between the Applicant and the Program;
- 2) The sum of $12,487.50 for paint and drywall repairs;
- 3) The sum of $240.00 for ceramic tiles and grout repairs;
- 4) The sum of $4,000.00 for repairs to the garage floor;
- 5) The sum of $350.00 for replacement of quarter round and baseboards;
- 6) The sum of $225.00 for door adjustments;
- 7) The sum of $200.00 for gap repairs;
- 8) The sum of $40.00 for concrete repairs;
- 9) The sum of $140.00 for caulking and weatherstripping;
- 10) The sum of $125.00 for repairs to the deck;
- 11) The sum of $225.00 for repairs to doors;
- 12) The sum of $60.00 for removal of rust;
- 13) The sum of $100.00 to paint lintels; and
- 14) The sum of $40.00 for installation of a shower plate;

The total cost of the warranted items listed above is $20,702.50 which sum is to be reduced by $10,000.00 on account of the benefit that the Applicant received.

The Tribunal therefore finds that the Applicant be paid the sum of $10,702.50 by the Program by way of recompense.

The Tribunal upholds the remaining decisions of the Program to disallow the Applicant's other claims.

AND IN THE MATTER OF THE SAFETY RECORD OF IBL TRANSPORT CO. LTD.

TRIBUNAL: BRIAN K. MAROTTA, Vice-Chair, Presiding
SIMON DANN, Member
CHARLES J. SANDIFORD, Member

APPEARANCES: JAMES F. LEE, Agent, representing the Applicant
PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Respondent

DATES OF
HEARING: June 25 and 26, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISIONS

An oral hearing was held on June 25 and 26, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap, H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Suspension and Seizure Order imposed by the Deputy Registrar pursuant to section 47(1) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

On January 24th, 2002, the applicant met with the Deputy Registrar to show cause why the suspension and seizure order should not be issued. At that meeting, the parties discussed the Deputy Registrar's dissatisfaction with the high out of service rate of the applicant's vehicles, its record of accidents and poor safety record.

As a result of that meeting, the Deputy Registrar issued the following suspension and seizure order:

SUSPENSION AND SEIZURE ORDER

WHEREAS a Notice of Suspension & Seizure dated the December 12, 2001 was issued proposing a 30 day suspension of the CVOR certificate issued to IBL TRANSPORT CO. LTD. and suspension and seizure of plate portion of permits and number plates;

AND WHEREAS provided in the notice, you had the opportunity to make submissions at a meeting with the Deputy Registrar on January 24th 2002, to show cause why the suspension and seizure order should not be issued;

AND WHEREAS I have considered your submissions and your safety record including your record of convictions, accidents, vehicle detentions and vehicle out of service rates, history of past dealings with the ministry and I remain concerned for highway safety;

NOW THEREFORE IT IS ORDERED that pursuant to Section 47 & 47.1 of the Highway Traffic Act that as of February 18th, 2002, CVOR certificate 106-998-851 and plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to IBL TRANSPORT CO. LTD. be suspended for 7 days and the plate portion of permits, or if issued, by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits, and the number plates be seized.

The Applicant filed an appeal of this suspension and seizure order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 filing fee. Therefore the suspension did not go into effect.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUES:

Should the Tribunal confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Registrar to issue a suspension and seizure order for 30 days?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard from Mr. Donald H. Gillett, Carrier Safety Rating Administrator, with the Ministry of Transportation. It was his duty to monitor CVOR operators for safety and performance. Prior to that he was a National Safety Code Auditor and Provincial Offences Officer. He stated that the objective of the Ministry of Transportation is to monitor carriers to ensure that they comply with the provisions of the Act and Regulations. He explained how the CVOR rating system operated and the point system attributed to each infraction. He explained how this was all set out in the Ontario's Carrier Safety Rating and Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration System Public Guideline.

He produced the CVOR Abstract of the applicant which set out all accidents, convictions and inspections. The applicant became a CVOR holder on August 22, 1991.

With the CVOR system, a threshold limit is established by comparing the record of the CVOR holder with operators of comparable fleet size. The threshold limit of the applicant was therefore adjusted to compare with operations of a fleet size of one vehicle. When the CVOR holder reaches 35% of the threshold a warning letter is sent out. At 65% of the threshold, the holder is put in an audit stage, at 80% of threshold, the operator reaches an interview stage and at 100% of threshold the sanction stage is triggered.

The goals of the CVOR system are to promote safe operation of commercial motor vehicles as defined by the Act. The CVOR system monitors a two year time frame based upon certain computer data which is updated regularly and entered into the CVOR system. The updating of the system is a continual process.

The system works upon a point rating system. An example is that convictions are rated from 0 to 30 points for violations with the more serious violations having the higher points assigned to them. The accidents are rated on a range from 0 to 12 points depending upon the seriousness and the driver impropriety involved. The out of service (OOS) has a 2 point maximum if two OOS items are reported on a vehicle inspection.

In the two year period from October 16, 1999 to October 15, 2001, the following numbers of events appeared on the company's CVOR record:

Accidents – 6

Conviction – 28

Inspections – 56

Point values were assigned to some of these events in accordance with the tables in the Ministry's CVOR Guideline. Not all events on the record were pointable. Three of the 16 accidents had points assigned. Twenty-four of the inspections resulted in points being assigned. Accidents count as double points, but not all accidents are pointable.

The Appellant's violation rate was determined by calculating the number of points in each category by the number of vehicles and the number of months. There was no dispute in this case about the company's adjusted fleet size of 22 vehicles.

The appellant's violation rates were as follows:

Accident	– 77.7%
Conviction	– 88.3%
Inspections	– 50.4%
Overall	– 73.5%

Mr. Gillett testified that this was a high overall violation rate. The Ministry is concerned whenever a carrier's violation rate exceeds 35%.

Mr. Gillett testified that the Ministry will consider sanctions at a point before 100% percentage of threshold in various circumstances. Among these circumstances, a sanction will be considered when there is a poor score on an audit or there is a history of interventions. It was his opinion that both existed in this case. After hearing the evidence in this matter, the Tribunal agrees.

The April, 2001 Audit resulted in the Appellant receiving the following compliance rate scores:

Driver Profile:	33.3%
Vehicle Profile:	47.8%
Safety Programs and Training:	30%
Overall:	40.6

The history of previous interventions with the appellant was lengthy. The Ministry makes use of three interventions short of a sanction – warning letters, interviews and audits. All three of these interventions were attempted at least twice with the Appellant. The first intervention was a warning letter on March 3, 1992 – seven months after the company was issued a CVOR. The last intervention was the April 2001 Audit, for which it was agreed that the findings of the ministry were correct.

According to Mr. Gillett, the forms of intervention used by the Ministry normally have very high rates of success in bringing about improvement in a carrier's compliance rate. The improvement sought by the Ministry is that the CVOR holder brings its violation rate below the 35% of threshold. The violation rate of IBL was 73.5% overall.

There are three threshold values which are all considered together to arrive at the violation rate. These three thresholds are: safety (accidents), convictions and inspections.

On cross-examination, the Applicant attempted to establish, through Mr. Gillett, that the Ministry's pointing system was unfair. One complaint was that the number of points assigned to the offence of "Fail to Inspect/Repair/Maintain According to Standards" was excessive. Mr. Gillett's evidence was that this was one of the most serious charges laid by Ministry officers. It seems logical to the Tribunal that this is a very serious charge.

If the driver fails to inspect a vehicle defects cannot be found, repaired, nor can vehicles be properly maintained thus endangering public safety.

It was also suggested in cross-examination that there may be a flaw in the system as it pertains to points being assigned to accidents because if there was a charge laid, and the case is later dismissed, the points remain. The Tribunal has noted that there was no evidence from the Appellant to suggest that points were assigned to its record for charges that were later dismissed.

Mr. Gillett indicated that the Ministry's pointing system only took into account a limited class of accidents. No points were assigned to any accidents reported at Collision Reporting Centres. No points were assigned where the investigating police officer did not specifically note impropriety. Thus, an incident like the accident of March 31, 2000, for which the Applicant asserted that no fault was found on the part of the driver, was a "zero pointer". This was even though it involved a tractor trailer backing up along the shoulder of a road and striking a vehicle which was exiting a parking lot.

The Tribunal heard evidence with respect to the three accidents for which points were assigned. The descriptions of the pointable accidents indicate three very serious incidents. Two of the three accidents involved rollovers of tractor trailers and the other accident involved a tractor trailer jack-knifing into a guardrail. Two of the incidents were on the 401 and the other on a ramp to the 427. Each of the three accident reports reference ambulance or hospital care.

It was suggested to Mr. Gillett that the Ministry should not have taken note of accidents where neither the company nor the driver was at fault. Mr. Gillett's evidence was that these accidents did not effect the company's CVOR standing. He indicated that accident violation points trigger interventions, not accidents. It was noted by the Tribunal that the Respondent had not in any way relied on these occurrences in its examination in chief. For example, the last wheel separation incident may not have gone unnoticed by the Ministry, but if there was no point assigned, it would not affect the CVOR of the Applicant.

It was suggested in cross-examination of Mr. Gillett that the Appellant's accident record appeared much differently when the non-pointable accidents were removed. However, the fact is that the company's three pointable accidents still exceeded the provincial average of two accidents for its fleet size.

In cross-examination of Mr. Gillett, it was suggested that the company's out of service rate in the second analysis year had improved over the previous year. While this was not disputed, it was shown by Mr. Gillett that the rate remained above the provincial average. His evidence, which was not challenged by the Appellant, was that the time frame in question also saw a more general reduction in the provincial average. The company's out-of-service rate had been highlighted as a problem in the past with the first reference to it in the Interview of July 13, 1994.

The only witness for the Applicant was David Tso. Mr. Tso has been president or vice-president of the company since its inception. The other two key people in the company were Danny Lo, who has been Operations Supervisor/Dispatcher for 10 years and Jim Lee, who has been the Safety Consultant since 1990 or 1991.

IBL transports ocean containers. There are no power units owned by the company as one hundred percent are owner operated. Eighty to ninety percent of the trailers are leased. IBL operates hauling containers between Toronto and Montreal and it also has local delivery.

Mr. Tso stated that he has set up an Accident Review Committee which is composed of himself and Danny Lo. He stated that the Committee reviews all accidents and he gave evidence with respect to his assessment of each of three pointable accidents on the Company's record. He was also noted as being the person responsible for accident reviews in the 1996 interview. In respect of the rollover of the tractor trailer, he stated he reviewed this with the driver who stated that he was not speeding and thought the load may have shifted. He terminated that driver. In regard to the jackknife on 401, he also talked to that driver who stated that he had been cut off by another vehicle. He terminated the employment of that driver.

With respect to the rollover on highway 401, the driver had told Mr. Tso that the load had shifted. Mr. Tso did not believe the driver as he was on a straight road and it should not have shifted and, therefore, he terminated the driver.

Although Mr. Tso said the Company was trying to improve its record by terminating any driver who has an accident, he also stated that the purpose of terminating drivers is for insurance purposes.

In the National Safety Code Audit of March 17, 1992, there was a large concern noted about overweight loads. Mr. Tso answer was that he had discussed the problem with his customers, but IBL had no control over the weight of the containers. That was still his position as of this hearing.

In the second Audit on July 2, 1993, it was noted that drivers logs were not completed properly, there were missing logs and the drivers were using US style logs. It was also noted that the logs were not being checked for hours of service. To correct this, Mr. Tso had made an action plan which included that the operator would ensure a process was in place to regulate monitor driver daily logs and trip inspection reports to ensure compliance with the regulations. He also stated that Mr. Lee had done driver's training on log books five or six times over the past six or seven years. If there was a new driver hired, Danny Lo would give him an orientation.

It is interesting to note that it was remarked in that Audit that:

"Drivers logs had missing information, this was after the drivers received training on log books and hours of service by Jim Lee as reported by the Operators. No documentation on file re training. No system being implemented to check or verify the logs submitted."

In January 1996, the Applicant was called in for an interview as a result of continuing to accumulate convictions at an unacceptable rate. At that time, total convictions on record for a three year period was seventy-five. Of those, twenty-four were for weight, thirteen as a result of facility audit and twenty-three related to defects and inspections with two violations relating to drivers licences. The out of service defects were predominately for break adjustment, brakes and tires, as well as lights, suspension and steering.

As a result of that interview, IBL filed an action plan in which it promised to do a number of things to correct the problems and Mr. Tso stated that all things on that plan had been done. In addition, Mr. Tso stated that all drivers must have an AZ licence to drive a tractor trailer with air brakes and three years experience. He stated that all drivers are given road tests however, he did not have any results of the road test in his files and did not produce any. He thought that most of the drivers had road tests results, but they might have been misfiled.

On cross examination, Mr. Tso said that Mr. J. Lee had been the same safety consultant that had been with the Company since 1991, although he is not full time.

He also stated that the Accident Review Committee had never formally been established but it had always been there.

Commenting on the July 31, 2000 rollover incident, he stated that besides talking to the driver he had reported it to his insurance company and left it to the insurance adjuster to do the inspection. The driver had stated that the load had shifted, however, Mr. Tso did not follow up on that and did not know how it was loaded. Contrary to his prior evidence, he stated that he fired the driver because the driver no longer had a power unit.

In the December 1, 1999 accident, the tractor trailer had rolled over in a single vehicle accident on highway 401. The police report had noted a log book problem and although Mr. Tso had reviewed the accident with the driver he could not remember if he had reviewed the log books. He admitted that it was possible that the driver fell asleep, but he did not have any answers.

In his 1996 action plan, Mr. Tso had stated that Kellers Maintenance Manager Program had been purchased and would be implemented. Mr. Tso confirmed that this had been purchased in 1995 and he thought that there was a page somewhere in the program about logs but he wasn't sure. He said that the program consists of forms only as he had never purchased the computerized part of the program.

In regard to driver training, he stated that his Company has a handbook for drivers in the office but he didn't bring it with him. He did bring five pages of it with him to the show cause hearing, which pages were created about one month before the Deputy Registrar issued the suspension and seizure order.

When questioned on discipline policies or drivers who performed poorly, Mr. Tso stated that any driver in a motor vehicle accident is fired. He had already indicated that this was not necessarily for safety purposes but was for insurance purposes and, if the accident was serious enough, because the driver would no longer have a power unit. He also stated that there were charge backs or fines by the Company for drivers who did not comply with the regulations. He was questioned about the charges against one of his drivers who had convictions for items such as failing to wear a seatbelt, using a radar device and speeding.

Mr. Tso was asked if that driver had been fined by the Company for his offences and Mr. Tso stated that he had not, but maybe Mr. Lo had warned him, he was not sure.

Mr. Tso was asked about another driver whose vehicle was found to be out of service in three out of five inspections. He stated that he knew about this high rate of out of service in this case but usually he doesn't track particular drivers. Danny Lo was his Dispatcher and probably Mr. Lo would have warned him, but he was not sure.

In a letter in December 2001, Mr. Tso had advised the Deputy Registrar that IBL would require all drivers to attend a defensive driving course within six months. He stated that there was such a course at Guelph that was run by an insurance company. The day of this hearing was the first day anyone had been sent to the course and one employee was there.

In that same letter, Mr. Tso stated that "IBL will assign an administrative person to monitor hours of service and log books". The Tribunal notes that in 1994 Mr. Tso had made a similar promise in the proposed action plan. He indicated that he would ensure that "a process is in place to regularly monitor driver daily logs and trip inspection reports to ensure compliance with regulations". On redirect examination, Mr. Tso said that at one time he did assign a person to monitor the log book but he had to terminate his employment.

In regard to hours of work that appeared to continue to be a problem. In the first company audit in 1992, one of the items noted was "no hours being maintained for local drivers". The same problem was referred to in the 1997 audit where the company committed to keeping a record of times for local drivers. Mr. Tso acknowledged that one of the difficulties the company had in its 2001 audit was with local drivers who did not know they needed to submit hours.

In the Montreal to Toronto run, Mr. Tso stated that the drive would take six hours each way. The regulations provided for thirteen hours of driving time, plus two hours on duty but not driving. This would mean that it would be very tight for a driver to travel from Toronto to Montreal and back within his allowable driving time.

Mr. Tso did not seem to be concerned with that and stated that in "most cases" the drivers would not exceed their allowable time and that it was possible that they "could be" not complying. Mr. Tso did not express concern that his drivers could be exceeding the maximum driving time allowable.

APPLICATION OF FACTS TO THE LAW:

The Applicant had suggested that the company may have been assigned more points than other carriers because it operates on the 401 corridor where it has greater exposure to enforcement activity. A similar argument was rejected by Madam Justice MacFarland in Muscillo Transport Limited v. Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (Ont. Gen. Div., unreported, June 3, 1997):

"The appellant suggest also that because it carries on its business primarily in an area of the province where there are more inspection stations it is subject to a greater number of inspections than are other carriers elsewhere in the province and that in and of itself is inherently unfair. The short answer to the question is that if the appellant maintains its fleet and trailers properly as it is required to do, it has nothing to fear from such inspections." (pp. 8-9)

The issue of inclusion in the CVOR Record of zero point accidents was also dealt with by Madam Justice MacFarland in Muscillo Transport Limited v. The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles:

"In relation to the accidents as recorded in police accident reports, the objection is made that all accidents are recorded including those in which the carrier is not at fault. It is submitted that it is inappropriate to include such accidents in its process. Again, the system which is challenged is one merely which brings the particular carrier to the attention of the Ministry; before its rights are affected in any way, the carrier is afforded full opportunity for a hearing". (p. 9)

The purpose of a sanction under section 47 was described in the majority and minority decisions of the Court of Appeal in Muscillo Transport Limited v. Deputy Registrar (Ont. C.A.) unreported (April 1, 1998):

"The issue is not simply one of sanction, but rather one of the safety of the public and the appellant's dedication in that regard" (page 2) per Brooke, Moldaver JJ.

The purpose of a sanction under s. 47(2) of the Highway Traffic Act is to improve, assist and encourage the licence holder to adhere to appropriate safety standards in order to ensure the safety of highway users and others." (page 3) Per Borins JA

Muscillo Transport Limited et al. v. Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles

In Muscillo, Madam Justice Chapnik adopted the Board's expression of the standard to be expected of truck and bus operators:

"[T]he appellants have had a full 2 years to demonstrate whether their operations can achieve compliance with the HTA. The CVOR's, SafetyNet reports, and audits show overwhelming evidence to the contrary.

The standard to be met by commercial vehicle operators is not incremental improvements over many years towards defect free vehicles but are you compliant now."

According to the record of IBL, it is difficult to find any substantial improvement. While there was some improvement in the company's out-of service rate, the record deteriorated in other areas such as audit compliance.

The evidence was that the key people at the Appellant being, David Tso, who held the positions of Vice-President and President; Danny Lo who has been Operations Supervisor/Dispatcher for 10 years; and Jim Lee who has been Safety Consultant since 1990 or 1991, were all familiar with the Deputy Registrar's concerns, yet it was noted that there was non-compliance in log books and hours even after training by Jim Lee.

In the area of hours of work, the evidence was that the company has had problems from its earliest days and has not resolved its problems.

IBL had purchased a program to assist in improving its record, but Mr. Tso was not sure what was included in the program even though it was purchased in 1995.

There were promises that were made in action plans that were either not put into effect or were abandoned and then again proposed in subsequent years.

In the area of the performance of the company's drivers and on the monitoring of their performance by the company, it was apparent that Mr. Tso was generally not familiar with the performance of individual drivers. He indicated that he checks the company's CVOR record but does not keep track of driver performance.

The Appellant provided virtually no documentation to explain, illustrate or corroborate its policies and processes in the areas of hiring, training, testing, monitoring or discipline.

From the evidence of Mr. Gillett, it is accepted that the methods used by the Ministry and the Deputy Registrar to assess the applicant, were applied clearly and uniformly. There is no evidence that the Deputy Registrar took into account information about the applicant which would not be considered in assessing the safety of every other carrier in the Province.

The Tribunal finds that the suspension proposed by the Deputy Registrar is necessary to sanction the Appellant. A number of measures short of an actual suspension have been attempted over the years with the Appellant. Each of warning letters, interview and audits have been tried more than once. While Mr. Gillett testified that these interventions are usually successful in bringing about compliance, they clearly have not worked with the Appellant. Considering the continuing non-compliance of the Applicant there is no basis to conclude that the company's record in the future will be different than it has been in the past.

Sanctions of a CVOR holder indicate to the industry as a whole that serious consequences ensue when a company fails repeatedly to come into compliance.

Public safety is the most important consideration. The evidence of Mr. Tso gives the Tribunal concern over whether the company is willing and competent to deal with its accidents. Similarly, there is room for concern over its continued logbook/hours of service violations. Both areas affect the company's ability to adequately provide for public safety. A suspension will force the company to seriously deal with these issues.

In the case of Brenner vs. The Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen, 19 CRAT 59, a Decision issued by the Divisional Court on April 7, 1983, Southy, J. stated:

"...the effect of Section 7 (4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty".

The authority of the Tribunal on this appeal is subject to the decision in Brenner. Accordingly, it is only if the Tribunal finds that the Registrar was in error in his conclusion that an order can be made directing the Registrar to refrain from carrying out his proposal. In the circumstances of this case, the Tribunal finds that the Deputy Registrar had sufficient and reasonable grounds to believe that the past conduct of the applicant supported the belief that it would not operate a commercial vehicle safely or in accordance with the law. The Tribunal also finds no reason to interfere with the extent of the sanction imposed by the Deputy Registrar.

The 7-day suspension imposed by the Deputy Registrar is the shortest period of suspension that is employed by the Ministry. It was also noted by the Tribunal that the time of suspension had already been reduced from a former proposal for a 30 day suspension. There was no evidence from the Appellant on the effect that the suspension would have on its business or that it would be unduly harsh. It was not argued that the Appellant's business has a special characteristic that would make the ordered suspension unduly harsh in the specific circumstances of the company.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the decision of Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue a suspension and seizure order for 7 days to be imposed on a date to be fixed by the Deputy Registrar.

1012265 ONTARIO INC. o/a TRI STAR SALES AND LEASING
AND VASILIOS AND PARTHENIA MITROPOULOS

MOTION TO CONSIDER A STAY OF AN ORDER OF THE LICENCE APPEAL TRIBUNAL, TO REVOKE
REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: MARJORIE HILEY, Member

APPEARANCES: KEVIN MACDONALD, Counsel, for the Applicants
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar, the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: JULY 4, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR RULING

BACKGROUND:

This is a motion by the Applicants requesting an order to stay the revocations of the registration of 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri Star Sales and the revocations of the salesperson registrations of Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos. The hearing in the matter was held before the Tribunal on May 23 and 24, 2002. By order of the Tribunal released June 12, 2002 the registration of 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri Star Sales and Leasing as a dealer and the registrations of Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos as salespersons were revoked.

Facts:

The Applicants by their Notice of Appeal dated June 18, 2002 have appealed to the Ontario Superior Court of Justice, Divisional Court. There is no date scheduled for the hearing of this appeal.

1. Affidavit Evidence:

In support of the Applicants' motion there has been filed the Affidavit of Vasilios Mitropoulos.

Mr. Mitropoulos states that he is the President of 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri Star Sales and Leasing. He is 54 years of age with a grade 6 education. He has been employed as a motor vehicle dealer for 23 years. He and his wife have no other source of income except their dealership and the sales registrations. He states that without the ability to conduct business in his dealership he and his wife cannot service their debts and likely will be forced into bankruptcy. If that happens he doubts that the registrations could be reinstated due to the ground of lack of financial responsibility. There will be irreparable harm to the good will of the business. He and his wife are willing to consent to any reasonable conditions on their registrations while they await the decision of the higher court.

The Respondent filed an affidavit from Mary Jane South, deputy registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

In her affidavit Ms South states that she was present during the two days of the hearing and that the dealer and salespersons were represented by counsel. She feels that the decision of the Tribunal accurately states the evidence of Amanda Dempsey. She states that it was only during the evidence of Mr. Mitropoulos that it became apparent that he had been aware that the seller was not the registered owner of the vehicles. She states that the Registrar disclosed all documents it relied upon and that opportunity was given to the counsel for the Applicants to review the documents of those witnesses who were called by the Registrar to testify at the hearing. She states that there was no evidence as to a standard of practice within the motor vehicle industry for transactions requiring lien release letters. As well the Registrar had insisted that the Applicants comply with all terms and conditions of their registration.

2. Decision of the Tribunal which is appealed:

The Tribunal found, inter alia, the following:

- a) that Mr. Mitropoulos had actual knowledge that the vehicles were not registered to the seller as required and this was not a case of negligence or carelessness
- b) that Mrs. Mitropoulos, though playing a minor role in the day to day business of the dealership, would have known that Chariots was not the owner of the cars and that the dealership was buying cars from someone other than the registered owner and she took no steps to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions
- c) that the decision of the Registrar to revoke the dealer registration and the salesperson registrations was not in error

3. Grounds of Appeal:

The Notice of Appeal of the Applicants lists the following grounds upon which their appeal is based:

- a) decision of Tribunal was grossly unreasonable and contrary to the weight of evidence;
- b) Tribunal erred in its findings of fact;
- c) Tribunal erred in not considering the formal admissions of the Registrar made prior to the hearing and in permitting the Registrar to make arguments contrary to such admissions;

- d) Tribunal failed to take notice of the evidence of Amanda Dempsey;
- e) There should have been an adverse inference for failure to call Elizabeth Browning as a witness;
- f) There was failure to disclose relevant and material documents;
- g) Tribunal failed to consider the standard of practice within the industry as to the use of release letters in the purchase and sale of used motor vehicles;
- h) Tribunal should not have considered the issue of the posting of the sign;
- i) Tribunal failed to consider the evidence as to the Registrar condoning breaches of the consent order;
- j) Tribunal used an improper standard of proof as to the revocation of registrations;
- k) Tribunal erred in its application of section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act;
- l) Tribunal erred in concluding Parthenia Mitropoulos acted without honesty or integrity;
- m) The penalty is grossly disproportionate to the offences;
- n) Section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is void for uncertainty;
- o) Charter challenges to sections of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, and the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act.

4. Grounds for Stay of Proceedings:

The Applicants rely on the following grounds for a stay of the Tribunal's decision:

- a) that the Applicants have a strong prima facie case on appeal;
- b) that there will be irreparable harm if the order is not stayed;
- c) continued revocation of the registrations is inequitable;
- d) section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

Argument by Counsel:

Applicants Counsel:

Counsel stated there is a three-part test:

1. Serious issue: Counsel stated that the RJR-MacDonald v Canada (Attorney General) (1994) 111 D.L.R. (4th) 385 (S.C.C.) is the authority for the low threshold required to determine there is a serious issue. Once the Tribunal has determined this is not frivolous or vexatious the preliminary examination should not be prolonged. Here the transcripts have been ordered as there is disagreement over the evidence as cited in the decision.

Counsel held that the Registrar by his formal admission had stated he was not relying on the state of mind of the Applicants. The Coates decision (65 O.R. (2d) 526 (1988) O.J. No. 1351) stated that there had to be clear and convincing proof for there to be a revocation of existing licences. Counsel stated that there had been a request for Particulars. On the basis of the response to that request the Applicants felt the issue was failure to ensure compliance with the Consent order and that state of mind was not an issue. It is agreed that Chariots had permitted fraud by issuing fraudulent letters of release. The Applicants had relied on those letters of release in the conduct of their business. Then in the cross examination of Mary Jane South it was alleged that the transfers by the Applicants were done knowingly. Though it was objected to by Counsel for the Applicants the Tribunal permitted this evidence and relied upon it in the reasons for the decision. The reasons for the decision focus on knowingly and willingly and not on a failure to comply or negligence or carelessness. Counsel relied upon the case of Shine Car Sales Inc. (2001) O.L.A.T.D. NO. 286 for showing the distinction between acting with carelessness and acting without integrity and honesty. Sopinka in his book The Law of Evidence in Canada states that a formal admission can be made by a letter written by the party's solicitor prior to the trial. Disclosure had been requested pursuant to the Rules of Procedure of the Tribunal. Counsel submits that this ground is sufficient to raise a serious question.

Other grounds relied upon include the reliance of the Applicants on the comprehensive inspection conducted by Ms Dempsey in September 2000. Despite examining one of the transactions dealing with Chariots of Hire Ms Dempsey did not state the Applicants had failed to comply with that part of the terms and conditions. The Applicant did correct the issue of the sign. As well there was no convincing evidence to warrant the revocation of the registration of Mrs. Mitropoulos. There was a standard industry practice regarding release letters at the time of these transactions. Now the OMVIC has provided a standard for the industry. There were issues of the Registrar failing to disclose relevant documents and numerous adjournments were required during the course of the hearing in order for Counsel for the Applicants to review the documents of witnesses. As well revocation is an extreme penalty and not suited to a case dealing with carelessness.

2. Irreparable harm issue: Counsel stated that there will be at least a four-month delay or longer before this case can be argued at the Divisional Court. The Applicants have stated in their affidavit that they will have to declare bankruptcy. If that happens they cannot be reinstated as they cannot meet the financial responsibility test. It is not just a question of money but of the loss of the right to appeal. This issue was not mentioned in the affidavit of Mary Jane South.

3. Balance of convenience issue: Counsel characterized this as who will sustain the greater harm. If the stay is not granted Counsel stated that the appeal will not be heard. The Applicants are willing to agree to terms. Such terms could include regular inspections; having only a wholesale business; no purchases of leased vehicles. Chariots of Hire are now out of business so there will be no repeat offences. The Applicants have changed their business practices to comply with OMVIC standard.

Counsel referred to the case of RE Off Lease Motor Car Sales Inc. (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 292 which dealt with two Divisional Court decisions Jacobs Sales and Service Inc. court file NO. 558/98 and Aghtaie Mashmoul Hasem heard by the Divisional Court on October 18, 1999. Both those decisions considered the effect of not granting a stay in circumstances where the applicant would be out of business and thereby rendering the appeal moot. In both cases the court granted the stay. Counsel referred to the case of RE 1159275 Ontario Ltd. (c.o.b. Thrifty Auto Sales) (2000) O.L.A.T.D. No. 405 where the Tribunal found it significant that the Applicants would abide by terms and conditions. As well the Tribunal found that the Tribunal could not rely on material that was not part of the evidence.

Accordingly here the Applicants would suffer the greater harm. Counsel stated that many of the cases relied upon by the Respondent predated the Supreme Court of Canada case of RJR MacDonald which is the governing case for these stay applications.

Counsel for the Respondent:

Counsel stated that it is important to realize that this is a unique situation. This case is distinguishable from the Off Lease supra as this case deals with a registration that was already under terms and conditions.

As regards the three-part test Counsel stated:

1. Serious issue: One needs to take a common sense approach. There was a breach of clause 12 of the Terms and Conditions which led to a significant loss of property as thirty-eight cars were involved in this situation. There is no evidence of standards in the industry at the time of these transactions. The Applicants were bound by the terms and conditions and a general industry standard is irrelevant to the situation. The Registrar was not aware of who had affected the transfer of vehicles from Chariots of Hire until Mr. Mitropoulos stated in his evidence that he did the transfers. The VINs show that ownerships were never in Chariots name so Mr. Mitropoulos had physical evidence of the ownerships prior to using the release letters. From this evidence the Registrar then found there was a knowing element to the breach. Counsel relied on the Clairmont decision by the Divisional Court in which Madam Justice Van Camp stated that past conduct can just be one incident of a mistake. Counsel stated that the decision accurately summarizes the evidence of Ms Dempsey. The fact that Ms Dempsey was not aware of the breaches by the Applicants does not mean she condoned them. If the Applicants wanted to hear the evidence of Ms Browning she could have been summoned as a witness by them. It is not the position of the Registrar to call witnesses to help the case of the Applicants. All documents were disclosed that were being relied upon by the Registrar. Some dealer witnesses came to the Tribunal hearing with documents. These documents were not under the control of the Registrar. The Applicants were not disadvantaged as the Tribunal gave them the opportunity to view these documents prior to their examination of these witnesses. The evidence presented at the hearing would be cogent whether this was a refusal case or a revocation case. The Coates case can be distinguished as Mr. Coates was an officer of the company but not involved in the daily activities of the dealership. The Applicants, through the wording of the terms and conditions were aware of the consequences of non-compliance.

2. Irreparable harm: Counsel relied upon the RJR MacDonald supra case whereby the Supreme Court stated that it was the magnitude of the harm not the nature of the harm that had to be examined. The Applicants are operating within a regulatory framework. The nature of the harm is the result of the proper application of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, which is a public protection statute.

3. Balance of convenience: The legislation is a public interest Act. In looking at the balance the Tribunal must consider the individual economic interest versus the public interest. The onus is on the Applicants to show private economic interest is paramount to public interest. It is important here that the Applicants have been under terms and conditions due to a prior revocation of their registration. It was mainly a wholesale operation and other dealers as well as consumers are at risk. It is not a situation where you can have any certainty that they will comply in the future. Counsel referred to the case of Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters v. Ontario (Ministry of Natural Resources) (1990) 43 O.R. (3rd) 760 whereby the public interest was considered. In the case of Foster v Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act CRAT (1993) it was held that only in extreme circumstances should the Tribunal grant a stay. In the case of RE Dudzic and Law Society of Upper Canada (1990) 71 O.R. (2d) 272 (Div. Ct.) the court also considered a statute which had no automatic stay. Due to the nature of the legislation it was inappropriate to grant the stay.

Counsel stated that the Registrar did not feel this was an appropriate case for terms and conditions. If terms and conditions were imposed Counsel stated that it was not necessary to have inspections as they are mandated under the legislation. Suggestions for terms and conditions include: only wholesale transactions; being in a registered premises; pay the costs for inspections which are more frequent than the industry average (that being one inspection every two years); not dealing with leased vehicles; allow the salesperson registrations to continue but not the dealer registration; post a bond.

The Law:

Section 25 (1) of the Statutory Powers Procedures Act states:

Unless it is expressly provided to the contrary in the Act under which the proceeding arises, an appeal from a decision of a Tribunal to a Court or other appellate tribunal operates as a stay in the matter except where the Tribunal or the Court or other body to which the appeal is taken otherwise orders.

Section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

Although a registrant appeals from an order of the Tribunal under section 11 of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations Act, the order takes effect immediately, but the Tribunal may grant a stay until disposition of the appeal.

Metropolitan Stores (MTS) Ltd. v Manitoba Food and Commercial Workers, Local 832 (1987) 38 D.L.R. (4th) 321 sets out the three stage test. This test was adopted by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General) (1994) 1 S.C.R. 311.

The three-stage test is as follows:

1. First test: A preliminary assessment must be made of the merits of the case to ensure that there is a serious question to be tried.
2. Second test: It must be determined whether the Applicant would suffer irreparable harm if the application was refused.
3. An assessment must be made as to which of the parties would suffer greater harm from the granting or refusal of the remedy pending a decision.

ANALYSIS:

The issue before this Tribunal at this motion is whether or not to exercise its discretion under section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act and grant a stay as against the decision of this Tribunal which revoked the dealer registration and the salesperson registrations of the Applicants. But the Applicants are only entitled to the relief of a stay if they can satisfy all three of the tests as enunciated by the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra. The Tribunal will consider each of the three stages of the tests having completed a thorough review of the affidavit evidence, the law and the legal analysis referred to by Counsel in their argument during the motion.

1. Serious issue test:

In the consideration of whether or not there is a serious issue to be appealed the Tribunal is not put in the position of judging on the merits of the appeal itself. Indeed the Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra cites at paragraph 44 the dictum of Lord Diplock from the American Cyanamid Co. Ethicon Ltd. (1975) A.C.396 case in which states that “the applicant need no longer demonstrate a strong prima facie case. Rather it would suffice if he or she could satisfy the court that the case is not frivolous or vexatious; in other words, that there is a serious question to be tried”. It is the role of this Tribunal to make a preliminary assessment of this point to determine if there is an arguable case. Indeed, even if the Tribunal should feel, based upon its own assessment, that it is unlikely that the appeal will be successful, the Tribunal would still find this stage of the test has been satisfied if the issue before the appeal court is not frivolous or vexatious. This stage of the test requires a low threshold for success.

Based on the arguments presented by Counsel for the Applicants the Tribunal finds that there is a serious issue to be argued before the appeal court. Though the Notice of Appeal itself contains many grounds, some of which could be charitably considered as boilerplate arguments, there are some serious points for consideration by the appeal court. In particular, the issue of formal admissions and whether or not evidence as to state of mind should have been presented by the Registrar during the course of the hearing raises some interesting evidentiary issues. The Statutory Power Procedures Act permits tribunals to consider all evidence that the tribunal feels is relevant to the issues at hand whether or not such evidence is technically hearsay. But the issue of whether or not a Registrar is bound by its formal admissions made during the request by the Applicants for particulars on the issue of past conduct raises novel considerations which are neither frivolous nor vexatious and which could have an impact on evidentiary procedure for the Tribunal in the future. On that ground alone the Applicants have shown a serious issue. Accordingly the Tribunal will not review other grounds as stated in the Notice of Appeal as it is only necessary for the Applicants to demonstrate that they have one serious issue for argument before the appeal court in order to succeed with this first stage of the test.

2. Irreparable harm

The Supreme Court of Canada in RJR MacDonald supra provided a definition of irreparable harm at paragraph 59; “Irreparable refers to the nature of the harm suffered rather than its magnitude. It is harm which either cannot be quantified in monetary terms or which cannot be cured, usually because one party cannot collect damages from the other”. The Supreme Court then at paragraph 58 characterizes the nature of this stage of the test as follows: “ At this stage the only issue to be decided is whether a refusal to grant relief could so adversely affect the applicants’ own interests that the harm could not be remedied if the eventual decision on the merits does not accord with the result of the interlocutory application”.

The Tribunal finds it significant that the Registrar in its affidavit evidence of Mary Jane South does not address this stage of the test. The only evidence before the Tribunal is that of the affidavit evidence of the Applicants. The Applicants state that they have worked for 23 years at the dealership, they both are salespersons for the dealership and they have no other source of income to satisfy their debts. It would have been helpful if the Applicants had provided more particulars as to the quantum of their financial distress but they do state that it is likely they will need to seek the protection of bankruptcy proceedings if the stay is not granted. Significantly they state that being a bankrupt, and the Tribunal is assuming they mean an undischarged bankrupt as they make no mention of even attempting a Proposal prior to bankruptcy, would be a severe impediment to them being allowed to revive the dealership due to the requirement in the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act that one show financial responsibility.

The Registrar correctly states that the legislation does not provide for an automatic stay on the filing of the appeal and therefore the Applicants need to prove such a stay should be granted. Counsel for the Registrar has argued that revocation of registration is the natural consequence of the application of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. But the legislation also provides for other remedies including suspension and terms and conditions.

This Tribunal holds that the Applicants have met the second stage of the test. Being put out of business and the risk that even if successful at the appeal they then could not meet the requirement of financial responsibility meets the definition of irreparable harm as found in RJR MacDonald.

3. Balance of convenience:

There must be a determination of which of the parties would suffer the greater harm from the granting or refusal of the application for the stay. In the course of this consideration the Tribunal needs to balance the public interest versus the individual economic interest. The Motor Vehicle Dealers Act is a public interest legislation. The Registrar needs to be vigilant to protect the public from those in the motor vehicle industry who act without integrity and in a dishonest manner.

Again the only affidavit evidence before this Tribunal is that of the Applicants who state that they are willing to consent to terms and conditions for the time frame until their appeal has been decided. There is no affidavit evidence from the Registrar regarding any special matters to be considered when balancing the public interest with that of the Applicants. Though some charter issues have been raised by the Applicants in their Notice of Appeal this does not make the case such that the public interest becomes a special factor as was stated in the case of Metropolitan Stores (MTS) Ltd. v Manitoba Food and Commercial Workers, Local 832, supra.

The Registrar has relied upon the statements as set out in Foster v Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen Act April 23, 1993 (C.R.A.T.) and Re Dudzic and Law Society of Upper Canada (1990) 71 O.R. (2d) 272 (Div. Ct.). In both those cases the courts put great reliance on the fact that the relevant legislation did not provide an automatic stay for an appeal and that there must be good and cogent reasons for then disturbing the status quo. But both cases were decided prior to the benefit of the Supreme Court of Canada in the RJR MacDonald supra case. The Supreme Court of Canada did not put such restrictions on stay applications.

The Registrar also relied upon the statements of the court in Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters vs. Ontario (Ministry of Natural Resources) (1999) 43 O.R. (3rd) 760. But there is a distinction between seeking to suspend the application of a regulation made under the authority of a statute and seeking to exempt yourself from the provisions of a statute. In the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters supra case the parties were seeking to suspend the operation of law, in particular a regulation forbidding the cancellation of the spring bear hunt. Here the Applicants seek an exemption from the revocation of their registrations pending the outcome of their appeal. This Tribunal agrees with the analysis found in the RE Off Lease Motor Car Sales Inc. (1999) O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 292 that the Applicants do not need to show there is an affirmative public interest flowing from the granting of a stay but only that the balance of convenience favours the granting of the stay.

The Tribunal does not find that the public will be endangered by granting of this stay on the basis of the imposition of terms and conditions upon the Applicants. OMVIC has properly considered the situation of release letters on leased vehicles and has advised the industry of an acceptable procedure for dealing with such situations. The Applicants are aware of OMVIC's position as it formed part of the exhibits attached to the affidavit of Mr. Mitropoulos. Counsel for the Applicants has stated in his argument that the Applicants would agree to doing only wholesale deals and not to deal with the transfers of leased vehicles while awaiting the outcome of the appeal. Counsel for the Registrar has stated there is a past history with these Applicants and indeed the issue before the Tribunal which led to its decision dealt with whether or not these Applicants had transgressed previous terms and conditions. But the Registrar has not provided any affidavit evidence indicating their concerns for the public interest at this time. There is no evidence before the Tribunal to indicate there is a serious risk that the Applicants will continue with such behaviour while the appeal is being determined.

In these circumstances the Applicants would suffer the greater harm from a refusal to grant the stay.

DECISION:

For the reasons stated above, pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 7(9) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs that there shall be a stay of its order issued herein on June 12, 2002 respecting the revocation of the dealership registration of 1012265 Ontario Inc. o/a Tri Star Sales and Leasing and the salesperson registrations of Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos, until the disposition of the Applicants' appeal to the Divisional Court. The stay of the order contains the following terms and conditions:

1. 1012265 Ontario Inc will operate under a wholesale registration. The retail registration is suspended.
2. 1012265 Ontario Inc. and Vasilios Mitropoulos and Parthenia Mitropoulos will not deal with the transfers of leased vehicles.
3. The Applicants will cooperate with representatives of the Registrar during any inspections of its premises or books and records and will provide copies of any documents promptly when requested by the agents of the Registrar.
4. The Applicants will comply with all of the legislative requirements as found in the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act or its regulations.
5. Any failure to abide by terms #1 through #4 will result in the Registrar having the ability to bring this matter back to the Tribunal for further consideration.
6. These terms shall be in force until such time as the Divisional Court has issued its decision on the appeal of the Applicants.

LICENCE APPEAL TRIBUNAL

Marjorie Hiley, Vice-Chair, Presiding

SERGIO ALEXANDER MONZON

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DAVID J. HUNT, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES: YOVANKA McBEAN, Agent representing the Registrar
under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act
MARK WAINBERG, Counsel representing the Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: July 9, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Registrar", and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated February 7, 2002 proposed to refuse the registration of Sergio Alexander Monzon under the Act as a motor vehicle salesperson.

REASONS

The reasons for this proposal are:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Sergio Alexander Monzon under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act;

Section 5 of the Act, states as follows;

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion , the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

CASELAW

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

Lloyd Ripani v Registrar of Real Estate and Business Brokers December 8, 1988, Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this matter the applicant had been registered as a real estate salesperson and had been convicted of conspiracy to traffic in cocaine. He was sentenced to 12 months in custody and 18 months probation. He had failed to make disclosure of the Criminal Record in his application as he was afraid of the consequences for his registration. Significant evidence of good conduct was presented to the Tribunal. The Tribunal recognized that when a person has been sentenced for an offence and the sentence has been served, they should be entitled to return to the responsible position in the community where there is sufficient evidence of true reformation. At p. 359 of the decision, the Tribunal found that there would not be an automatic registration after a specified time, but the principles should be applied to each case on its individual merits. They would look at the nature of the offence, the sentence imposed, and the acceptance of responsibility for the offence by the applicant as well as the conduct of the applicant and evidence of moral reform. In the circumstances, the Tribunal found that they were able to conclude that the Applicant's past conduct up to the date of the hearing, did not afford reasonable grounds to believe that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

Re: (Moodie) v Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, June 19, 1998
Ontario Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this case the Applicant had failed to disclose some criminal charges, and stated that he thought that the question on the Application form only related to recent charges involving the sale of motor vehicles. He later admitted he had been charged twice with drug offences. The criminal record search revealed six charges, including three charges of trafficking in narcotic. The Applicant claimed that he had turned his life around, and provided evidence that he had completed a drug rehabilitation program. The Tribunal found that the failure to answer the question correctly may have been due to a lack of thoroughness on his part and not an attempt to mislead. However, the Tribunal found that the record combined with the nondisclosure gave reasonable grounds for the decision by the Registrar not to grant registration.

Diamond v Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act Feb. 17, 2000 Ontario Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal

In this case the Tribunal found that the Registrar was allowed to obtain a Youth Court record under the Young Offenders Act as the consent given by the Applicant in the Application Form was sufficient. The Applicant may have turned a corner in his life but the decision by the Registrar was not in error, and the application for registration should be refused.

ISSUES

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to refuse to grant the Applicant registration as a motor vehicle sales person under the Act on the basis of the Applicant's past conduct including his criminal record, his failure to disclose his record, and particulars of the offences in answer to question 9 on the Application Registration form which he filed with O.M.V.I.C.

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

Laura Gordon testified on behalf of the Registrar that she has been the Director of Compliance for O.M.V.I.C. since 1997. Prior to that she was an investigator with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. She explained that O.M.V.I.C. was established in 1997 as a non-profit corporation to administer the Act which is a public protection statute. The primary functions are to carry out complaint mediation, registration under the Act; inspections, and investigations of non-compliance. As a public protection statute, the goal of the Act is to ensure that the public is able to have confidence in the individuals and companies working within the automotive sector. A person or company is entitled to registration under the Act unless their past conduct shows that they will not carry on business with honesty, integrity, financial responsibility, or in accordance with law.

In this case the Registrar had concerns as the Applicant was not forthcoming concerning his criminal record. The Applicant had a Youth Court and adult record involving numerous offences with conviction dates beginning in 1988 and finishing in 1998, involving a variety of offences. This record itself gave the Registrar concerns as it involved property related offences, failures to comply with Court orders, and an obstruction of a Peace Officer. She also noted that in the Notice of Appeal (exhibit 2) filed by the Applicant he complained that he was not given an opportunity to respond to the results of the Criminal Record search and give an explanation for his answer to question 9 on the Application form in which he marked the 'no' area when asked if he had ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or had any charges pending. The witness explained that he in fact had three opportunities to give an explanation. First, on the Application form itself, he failed to give any explanation in the area provided below question 9 which asks for a list of all charges, the circumstances surrounding them, and invites the Applicant to attach additional sheets if necessary. In her estimation, he was provided with three opportunities to give an adequate explanation and failed to do so at any time.

The witness pointed out that at the end of question 9, there was an explanatory note that advised Applicants that background and Criminal Record searches would be done. The answers provided to this question are considered by O.M.V.I.C to be extremely important, as it is the first test of honesty in the Applicant's dealings with them, and it would therefore be taken into account in the consideration of their honesty and integrity. Next, she explained that in Section 'D' on the third page of the Application form, the Applicant is advised to read the section prior to signing the Application, as it includes a consent for the collection and exchange of information from government and non-government sources. Section 'E' of the Application form is the certification signed by the dealer in which they state that they have personally and fully discussed the response to each question with the Applicant and are satisfied with the responses prior to signing the document. This certification is not to be signed by the representative of the dealer until it has been completed and signed by the Applicant.

Ms Gordon noted that when the Criminal Record search was requested from the Ontario Provincial Police, the reply received (Exhibit 3, Tab 4) showed a pattern of criminal activity commencing in 1988 and finishing in 1998. She explained that when there is no disclosure by the Applicant of a record but one is returned by the police, a form letter is sent to the dealer advising them that a record has been found, and that even though it might not be correct, they are asked to discuss the matter with the Applicant. At this time the Applicant is requested to again provide an explanation, in writing, as to why the convictions were not disclosed, and the circumstances surrounding each charge or conviction if this has not been done in the original Application form. The dealer is also advised that if it is a new or a reinstatement Application they should not be allowing the Applicant to act as a sales person until the Application is approved.

The witness testified that when the Applicant responded by letter, (Exhibit 3, Tab 6) he first explained that he misunderstood, then admitted the charge of Carry Concealed Weapon and provided the explanation that it was just a small pocket knife. Mr. Monzon explained that the police made a big deal of it which caused him to be angry and uncooperative, resulting in the charge of "obstructing justice". The Applicant then stated in his letter, that this charge was quickly dismissed by the judge as "foolish" however he confirmed that he was given three years probation for it. In addition he received a Community Service Order which he says he did voluntarily. At the beginning of the letter he explained that he had misread the question due to his haste to get his license and understood it to be asking whether there were any charges pending. At the end of the letter he repeated that he had made a mistake by not fully reading the question properly.

Ms. Gordon explained that a second letter was written by the Applicant and submitted to O.M.V.I.C in which he elaborated on his earlier version and claimed that the police arrived due to an argument between two other parties, and he was questioned and patted down. He elaborated on his last explanation by saying that he did not give his name to the police and that is what led to the Obstruct Justice charge. He provided an explanation concerning his narcotics conviction and stated that he and some friends found a marijuana plant growing in the backyard and took it to his house for safe keeping. The next day a friend came over when he was not there, got angry at him and called the police. He denies that he was a dealer or a grower and states that he simply just found the plant. For the three charges of failure to appear in Court, he stated that he just forgot and for the theft charge, commented that it was probably just something stupid.

The witness testified that she still had serious concerns over the fact that, despite these letters, he was not forthcoming about the offences and there was no explanation of the two Fail to Comply with Recognizance charges or the Possession of Property charge. She also stated that the letters were not in compliance with the requirements of the letter to the dealer (Exhibit 3 Tab 5) as they were supposed to be co-signed and sent within ten days, and the letters as sent, (exhibit 3, Tabs 6 & 7) were not co-signed by the dealer.

On the basis of all of this information the Registrar believed that the Applicant's past conduct gave grounds to believe that he would not carry on business with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law.

In cross examination Ms. Gordon explained that the document from Georgian College (Exhibit 3, Tab 3) does refer to the conditional registration certificate and a request for a permanent certificate however January 28, 2002 which was the date of the document was not the date that the certificate would have been issued as it would take an extra few days. She had concerns that the business card showing him in a sales capacity was attached to the application which was dated December 27, 2001.

The witness explained that once per week there is a committee meeting to review applications in which there are issues. She was not present at the meeting but did have input. Based on her experience and knowledge she stated that there would have been concern over the record and the lack of disclosure. Although there are no formal minutes of the meetings taken, the lawyer or someone else would make notes of the results of the discussions. She explained that the letter to the dealer (Exhibit 3 Tab 5) was sent by O.M.V.I.C. by fax and they knew that it was received as the Applicant responded to it. However, they did not contact the dealership to ensure that they had discussed the issues with the Applicant, as it was the responsibility of the dealer to do so and they assumed that the dealer would carry out that function.

When the witness was asked what the policy of O.M.V.I.C. was as to a person's rehabilitation she answered that they look at each case individually on the merits, and give the person the opportunity to explain. She explained that they generally asked for a copy of the Information document on the charges but in this case two came back and the others did not. Therefore she did not contest what the Applicant had said about the offence dates. On that basis, there was a gap of five years since the commission of the last offence. However, she stated that the lack of disclosure in this circumstance was serious and would not give the Registrar confidence in this Applicant. Even without the problem of disclosure, she stated that this particular record would have given concerns and it is likely that he would have been refused in any event. In this case the failure of the Applicant to disclose the record was a very serious matter and lead to questions about his honesty and integrity

In redirect examination Ms. Gordon stated that the issue of the conditional certificate was based on his answers that there was no Criminal record and he had not been bankrupt. A conditional certificate is given to avoid undue delays in registration and she stated that it is the Applicant's responsibility to advise the dealer of the record.

WITNESS FOR THE APPLICANT

The Applicant, Mr. Sergio Alexander Monzon testified that he was 29 years of age, had been married for 1 1/2 years and had known his wife since 1997. He and his wife have a baby girl at the present time his wife is on maternity leave from her employment at Sorenson-Page Chrysler, Dodge, Jeep as a salesperson. He explained that he now works at the dealership on a part time basis at $ 8.00 per hour, moving vehicles from place to place as often as he is needed. This employment is usually for less than 20 hours per week. In addition to this work he owns a business building decks and fences, and also works cleaning restaurants at night. The Applicant testified that when he is licensed as a motor vehicle salesperson he would have a job waiting for him at Sorenson-Page. He produced a letter (Exhibit 4) from the dealer signed by Rick Major, the general sales manager at the dealership, vouching for him, and indicating that he would have a job with that dealership.

When the Applicant was asked why he failed to disclose his criminal record in question

9 of the Application Form he explained that he was afraid that if he disclosed it, his application for the license would be turned down by O.M.V.I.C. He elaborated and stated that he spoke to a couple of people and was told that O.M.V.I.C. didn't really do criminal record checks very often anyway.

When he was asked about the charge of Attempt Theft in 1997 he stated that when he wrote the document to O.M.V.I.C. at (Exhibit 3, Tab 7) he did not remember, and simply had said that it was probably something stupid. Since then, he has had the ability to remember and stated that one day at 2:00 am. in the morning he was with some friends who went over a fence into a fruit market. He explained that one of them took a mango and everyone was charged. He could not remember if he pleaded guilty or not.

With regard to the charge of Carry Concealed Weapon in 1996 he stated that he has had no criminal charges since that time. He remembered that it occurred on Labour Day of 1996 or 1995 but is not sure which year it was. Mr. Monzon explained that the weapon involved was a small pocket knife with a locking blade and was certainly not a "Rambo knife". Since that time he has moved away from the neighbourhood, has changed his friends and associates, and has married and moved to Richmond Hill. The witness stated that he did more than the required number of hours of community work at a community organization for tenants at which he worked with children, organized functions and helped some elderly persons move. He explained that his Probation Officer was apparently very satisfied with his work. Since he has been employed at the dealership, he stated that he was doing well when he was selling cars, it was the first time he enjoyed the work he was doing as he was well-suited for it and was working with his wife as a team.

In cross-examination, he agreed that the Registrar would rely on honest answers to the questions in the Application as would an employer. The witness also acknowledged that as a motor vehicle sales person, honest and complete disclosure is an important part of the job which is very crucial to the consumer.

The Applicant stated that the two Fail to Comply Reconnaissance charges were based on his failure to keep the peace and be of good behaviour due to further offences which occurred while the recognizances were in effect. These offences are shown on the record.

The final witness for the Applicant was Carolina Monzon who testified that she had been married to the Applicant for approximately two years and that their daughter was born April 25, 2002. At the present time, she is on maternity leave until April 2003. She and the Applicant intend to have more children in the future. The witness testified that the Applicant supports his family; is a good father, and is very kind. While she is on maternity leave she is getting some financial benefits. She stated that the car business has been very good for her and that he is now working at Sorenson-Page and she is one of the top sales persons in North York.

Admissibility of the Youth Court Record

In this matter, the Applicant was warned on the Application form that O,M,V,I,C. would be conducting a criminal records search. In the last paragraph of the box containing question 9 on the Application form, the Applicant is advised that he would be subject to a background and criminal record search. In section D of the Application form, the Applicant is directed to read this section fully before signing the Application, and there is a consent to the collection and sharing of information to be used for the purposes of the Application which would obviously include a Criminal record search. It is clear from the evidence of the Applicant that he knew that he was subject to a Criminal records search. He hoped that O.M.V.I.C. would fail to do it, but he proceeded to sign the form in any event. The Youth Court record was found to be admissible but the list of offences has been deleted from the "PARTICULARS" in this Decision due to the public availability of this Decision.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The facts found by the Tribunal are that the Applicant has completed the required course at community college and was working in a motor vehicle dealership pending the approval on his license. When he was required to fill in the Application form for registration, he did not disclose his criminal record. When he signed the form he was aware that a criminal record check was the proper procedure and gave his consent for that to be done. After the criminal record check was done, he was given two opportunities to explain to O.M.V.I.C. why he did not give correct disclosure and explain the offences. In his first effort at an explanation on Feb. 6, 2002 in a typewritten explanation to O.M.V.I.C. (Exhibit 3, Tab 6), he explained that he did not tick off "yes" due to his haste and because he misread the question as he focussed on the part asking whether there were any charges pending or ongoing. In dealing with the issue of the Concealed Weapon charge, he said that it was a little knife, but the police made a big deal of it, causing him to be angry and un-cooperative which lead to an Obstruct Justice charge. In his typed letter of February 6, 2000 to O.M.V.I.C. (Exhibit 3. Tab 6), he stated that this charge was "quickly dismissed" by the judge as foolish, but when he was questioned by his counsel during this hearing, he repeated his explanation from his letter to O.M.V.I.C. at (exhibit 3, Tab 7) and said that he was patted down by the police due to a dispute between other parties. Concerning the narcotics charge he stated in his letter to O.M.I.C. at (Exhibit 3, Tab 7) that he found the marijuana plant and took to his house for safe keeping and was turned in by a friend who was angry at him. In his handwritten reply submitted to O.M.V.I.C. (Exhibit 3, Tab 7), he claimed that he did not remember anything about the theft charge, but it was simply stupid. Despite this, in his Notice of Appeal to the Tribunal he claimed that he was denied natural justice because he was not given an opportunity to respond to the results of the Criminal record search and to explain the inconsistency between his answer to question No. 9 and results of the Criminal record search. He also repeated that he had misread the question and mistakenly responded. However, this ground was abandoned at the hearing. When he was under examination in chief, he testified that he knowingly chose to answer the question falsely as he was afraid that if he answered it correctly his application would be refused.

The Tribunal finds that the final answer by the Applicant that he gave a false answer to question 9 in the Application form as he was afraid that he would be refused registration, if he advised them of his record was the truthful answer, and was in fact the motivation for this deception. Further, the Tribunal accepts his evidence that he had received the advice of friends that O,M,V.I.C. does not always carry out the criminal records check. The Tribunal finds that he gave this answer believing that he might thereby be able to avoid detection through a false answer.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Act provides that the Registrar may revoke or refuse the registration of the Applicant where the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct

The Applicant has a significant criminal record showing a pattern of dishonesty. However, to his credit, the string of convictions commencing in the 1988 ends in 1998. Since that time the Applicant appears to have made many important and positive changes in his life. However, there is a very serious issue of recent past conduct based on his failure to honestly answer the question in the Application form regarding his criminal record. Of equal concern to this Tribunal is his trying to evade responsibility by a continuing assertion in his letters to O.M.V.I.C., as well as his Notice of Appeal filed with this Tribunal, claiming that he misunderstood the question and gave the answer in error. When he finally admitted during examination in chief that he gave the false answer as he was afraid of what would happen if he answered truthfully, he also explained that he had been told that O.M.V.I.C. might not actually do the search, and he saw the possibility of avoiding detection.

When the Applicant was put a position of choosing between honest disclosure and the risk of being refused because of the record, he chose to try to conceal the truth when he thought that the criminal record check might not be done. When he tried to explain this away throughout the entire process, up until the time he filed the Notice of Appeal for his application to this Tribunal he compounded his problem and continued the deception when he again said that he misread the Application and had incorrectly mistakenly responded.

In his written material sent to O.M.V.I.C., as well as his evidence before the Tribunal, when he described the circumstances surrounding each of the offences he minimized the facts and trivialized the events. However, on closer examination this does not hold true. On the charge of Carry a Concealed Weapon and Obstruct Justice, he had explained that the judge dismissed the charge of Carry Concealed Weapon or Obstruct Justice and had referred to it as foolish. He was however he was convicted on each charge, and given concurrent suspended sentences with a two-year probation and a further 10 year firearms prohibition. This most certainly did not show that the judge treated the matter as trivial as the penalty imposed was much greater than the minimum available. The judge may very well have commented that the situation or the act was foolish. The Applicant's explanation for the narcotics charge also stretches the imagination, as it is hard to believe that he took a marijuana plant home simply for safekeeping. It certainly seems more realistic that the most favourable scenario for him was that he was presented with the opportunity to get a small amount of free drugs and took advantage of it. All of his explanations concerning his extensive record diminish his responsibility and show that he is willing to hold other persons responsible when it meets his ends.

Whether or not the Applicant provided correct information in the Application document is a crucial matter in assessing the honesty of an Applicant, as this information is clearly intended to be relied upon by the Registrar. If any information is intentionally concealed, or if false information is given, the Registrar has good reason to have serious concerns that the Applicant will withhold information or provide false information in the future in his dealings with the public or with the Registrar.

A motor vehicle dealer or salesperson deals with members of the public who are purchasing or selling products of substantial value, and are depended upon not to misrepresent the value or quality of the vehicles, handle large sums of money, and have access to credit card information. By withholding or falsifying information, they are in a position to take advantage of a vulnerable consumer, and the public must have confidence that the dealer or salesperson will not put their own personal interests ahead of their responsibility to conduct business with honesty and integrity.

The Tribunal finds that in this case relevant information was concealed and false information intentionally provided. A reasonable person would draw an inference that this very recent pattern of dishonesty demonstrates a continuation of the dishonest behaviour, which in addition to the past conduct that was concealed, provides reasonable grounds to believe that there will be future behaviour which does not meet the statutory standard of acting with honesty, and integrity, and in accordance with the law.

This Applicant has made great progress in his life as he has avoided contact with the criminal justice system for five years, has married and is now raising a family. Hopefully he will continue to distance himself from his past ways. But, when he was given the opportunity in this case to choose between honesty and immediate advantage, he showed that his rehabilitation was not yet adequately complete.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity, honesty and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to refuse the registration of the Applicant.

the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATES OF
HEARING: July 17, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to Section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The proposal dated February 8, 2002 seeks to refuse the registration of R.C. Jerry Daldin ("Daldin") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The proposal sets out the reasons for the Registrar seeking an order for the refusal of Daldin's registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act.

The particulars that the Registrar relies on are stated in the Proposal, as follows:

The reasons for this proposal are:

- 1) The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about January 11, 2002. He proposes to work for Romolo Chiaravalle o/a Clearvalley Auto Sales.
- 2) On the application to become a registered salesperson question 1 asks:

"Have you previously applied for or been granted any registration, exemption or certificate of any kind by the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act? If yes, of what kind?

The Applicant said "yes" and indicated:

"Applied April or May 1994 (not granted)".

- 3) The Applicant was originally registered as a salesperson on or about December 19, 1990 and subsequently had his application for registration refused in or around February 1995.

- 4) On the application to become a registered salesperson question 6 asks:

"Are you engaged now or have been involved in personal bankruptcy proceedings? If yes, attach a copy of the Assignment in Bankruptcy or proof of discharge."

The Applicant said "yes" and indicated:

"1984? – discharged"

- 5) On the application to become a registered salesperson question 8 asks:

"Are there any unpaid judgements or outstanding court orders pending against you? If yes, submit a copy of each judgement and/or court order. State amount outstanding and repayment arrangements."

The Applicant said "yes" and indicated:

"outstanding court orders – copies attached"

- 6) The Applicant has 6 restitution orders with respect to criminal convictions totalling $13,350.00.

- 7) On the application to become a registered salesperson question 9 asks:

"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)."

The Applicant said "yes", indicating:

"No charges pending – copies attached"

"Number of convictions for Fraud & Theft. But all have been dealt with"

The Applicant also provided the number for his probation officer.

- 8) A criminal record check found the Applicant has the following convictions:

Jan. 3, 1989: False Pretences
Jun. 12, 1989: Fraud (x2)
 Fraud (x4)
 Theft By Conversion (x4)

9) The Applicant will be on probation until October 2003.

10) The Applicant has failed to comply with the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, in particular with section 5.

Subsequent to the Proposal the Registrar filed a Notice of Further and other Particulars dated June 10, 2002 stating as follows:

FUTHER PARTICULARS

It is further alleged as follows:

1. R.C. Gerry Daldin (hereinafter "Daldin") failed to disclose his criminal record on previous applications submitted to the Registrar.
2. Daldin is an undischarged bankrupt.

Daldin, by written notice in terms of section 7.(2) of the Act, informed the Tribunal that he required a hearing regarding his appeal to the Registrar's Proposal.

At the commencement of the hearing, Counsel for the Applicant conceded that C.P.I.C. report (Exh.4, Tab2) of January 16, 2002 is true and correct as to its contents and is admitted by the Applicant;

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Laura Gordon and Yovanka McBean. The evidence presented to the Tribunal by Daldin consisted of his oral testimony as well as the testimony of Roman Chairavalle.

Laura Gordon

Ms. Gordon testifies that she is the Director of Compliance of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") a non profit organization empowered with the duty to oversee compliance with the Act and its regulations. The Act itself is a public protection statute.

Gordon stated that she is familiar with Daldin's file as, in her capacity as Director of Compliance, she had the duty to generally oversee and monitor applications for registration under the Act. She explained the import of Section 5 of the Act and the basis for the Registrar's refusal to grant Daldin's registration as a salesperson.

Gordon stated that Daldin was, pursuant to a written application, originally registered as a salesperson in December 1990 and was reinstated on October 1992 pursuant to his written applications for reinstatement.

(Exh. 4, Tabs 7, 8)

Again in March 1994 Daldin applied for reinstatement of his registration.

(Exh. 4, Tab 9)

Pursuant to receipt of the March 1994 application, the Registrar issued a Proposal to Refuse Daldin's continued registration.

The basis of the Registrar's proposal was the failure of Daldin to disclose in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications that:

- he had an outstanding judgement against him for $5,480.00
- he had made an assignment in bankruptcy
- he had some 17 criminal convictions for fraud & theft during the period March 1988 and November 1992
- had had some 31 convictions for driving offences under the Highway Traffic Act as well as having his driver's licence suspended on 12 occasions.

(Exh.4, Tab5)

Daldin did not oppose the Registrar's proposal and the Registrar carried out that proposal and refused Daldin's registration. The Registrar, in his proposal contended that the past conduct of Daldin afforded the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that Daldin would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

On January 10, 2002 the Registrar received an application from Daldin for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.

(Exh.4 Tab10)

On this application, according to Gordon, Daldin made fuller disclosure than in the previous applications although still not sufficiently precise so as to satisfy the Registrar.

Since the convictions extending to November 1992, Daldin had been again convicted on January 19, 2001 on 6 further charges of fraud and false pretences. Daldin is still on probation for these latter offences and convictions.

(Exh.4 Tab11)

Gordon stated that from investigations made certain of the criminal convictions were industry specific in that the offences occurred when Daldin worked for car dealerships and took deposits without handing such deposits to this employer.

The January 2001 convictions all related to offences of taking deposits from the dealer's customers and failure to hand such deposits to the dealer for whom Daldin worked. When convicting Daldin in respect of these offences, the Court ordered restitution. None of those restitution orders have been complied with by Daldin.

In addition to the six restitution orders that are outstanding, there are two other prior restitution orders that Daldin has failed to comply with.

Yovanka McBean

McBean testified that she is a legal assistant employed by OMVIC and that in her employment with OMVIC she personally made enquiries of and concerning the restitution orders made by Court against Daldin in January 2001. Pursuant to her enquiries she was informed by the Clerk of the Court concerned that Daldin has failed to comply with these restitution orders which remain outstanding.

Gerry Daldin

Daldin testified that he is 55 years of age.

He stated that he has a degenerative physical condition that limits his physical abilities. He further stated that he admits to his criminal convictions as alleged by the Registrar in his proposal and admits that in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications for registration he did not disclose his convictions as well as not disclosing his bankruptcy. He also admitted that he has some eight restitution orders made against him arising out of certain criminal convictions and that he has not, to date, made restitution as ordered.

Daldin went on to state that since 1980 he has suffered from a gambling addiction which has been the cause of his various criminal misdemeanours. His addiction, which he referred to as sickness, lead him to obtain monies by theft, fraud and false pretences which in turn lead to his losing his employment and being convicted on charges of theft and fraud. His loss of employment and inability to obtain fresh employment due to his criminal record has resulted in his not being able to comply with the various restitution orders.

Presently, Daldin is receiving $3,400.00 per annum from "Ontario Works" and he lives with his elderly father who suffers from Alzheimer's disease. Since July 2000 he no longer gambles and regularly, on a weekly basis, attends a Chapter of Gambler's Anonymous. These ongoing attendances help him to cope with his gambling addiction. Additionally, since April 2000 he has been in regular telephone communication with an Addiction Therapist at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health, Toronto who has been counselling Daldin regarding his gambling problem. He has also recently taken and passed OMVIC's certification course with the Canadian Automotive Institute at Georgian College.

Daldin testified in conclusion that he is a "terrific salesperson" who had an income of over $80,000.00 or more in the early 1980's. If given the opportunity to obtain work as a motor vehicle salesperson coupled with his belief that he has overcome his gambling problem, Daldin maintains he would be in a position to meet his obligations under the various restitution orders.

Roman Chiaravelle

Chairavelle testified that he is in the used car business and is a registered dealer under the Act.

He has known Daldin for the past 27 years and is fully aware of his criminal convictions and his gambling problem. He is however prepared to employ Daldin as a motor vehicle salesperson in his dealership if the Registrar grants Daldin registration. He is prepared to take whatever steps are reasonably necessary to both protect consumers by ensuring Daldin would not handle monies or deposits and would ensure that any terms and conditions to Daldin's registration will be complied with.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found proven.

1. Daldin was originally registered as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act in December 1990.
2. Daldin was reinstated as a motor vehicle salesperson when he applied for renewal of his registration in October 1992.
3. Pursuant to Daldin's application for reinstatement of his registration in March 1994, the Registrar caused inquiries to be made as a result of which the Registrar, in December 1994, issued a Proposal to Refuse Daldin's registration.
4. Daldin did not contest the Registrar's proposal as a result of which the Registrar carried out that Proposal in terms of Section 7.(3) of the Act.
5. Daldin made an assignment in bankruptcy in June 1986 which assignment was not disclosed by Daldin in his applications to the Registrar for registration in 1990, 1992 and 1994, despite the Registrar asking Daldin in those applications if he had ever been involved in bankruptcy proceedings.

6. Daldin, between March 1988 and November 1992, was convicted of some 21 criminal convictions for fraud, false pretences and theft all of which convictions Daldin denied and none of which did he disclose in his applications to the Registrar for registration in 1990, 1992 and 1994 despite Daldin being asked in such applications whether he had ever been found guilty of or convicted of an offence under any law.
7. In or about January 2001, Daldin was found guilty of and convicted on three charges of fraud under $5,000.00 and false pretences.
8. Daldin has six court imposed restitution orders registered against him pursuant to his criminal convictions and has made no restitution under any of those orders.

THE LAW:

Sections 5. (1)(a) and (b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act state:

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;

Section 6. (2) of the Act states:

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Sections 7. (1) and (2) of the Act state:

(1) Where the Registrar proposes to refuse to grant or renew a registration or proposes to suspend or revoke a registration, the Registrar shall serve notice of the proposal, together with written reasons therefor, on the applicant or registrant.

(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the applicant or registrant is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the applicant or registrant mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Registrar and the Tribunal, and the applicant or registrant may so require a hearing.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar in this matter.

There are the following issues for consideration by the Tribunal, namely:

1. Did Daldin fail to disclose his assignment in bankruptcy to the Registrar when asked in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications?
2. Did Daldin fail to disclose his various criminal convictions to the Registrar when asked in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications?
3. Having regard to the financial position of Daldin, can he be reasonably expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business?
4. Does the past conduct of Daldin afford the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and integrity and honesty?

An analysis of these issues follows.

Failure To Disclose

Daldin had conceded in his testimony and the Registrar has proven on a balance of probabilities that Daldin in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 written applications for registration failed to disclose any of his many admitted criminal convictions registered against him between 1989 and 1992. Additionally Daldin admits that he made an assignment in bankruptcy in 1986 and failed to disclose this to the Registrar in his 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications.

The Registrar is entitled to rely on the truth, accuracy and completeness of answers by applicants to questions posed to such applicants in their applications for registration. The various convictions and the assignment in bankruptcy were all recent in time when the 1990, 1992 and 1994 applications were made by Daldin. The convictions and assignment in bankruptcy were undoubtedly within the knowledge and memory of Daldin and his denial of such recent convictions and assignment speak volumes as to his dishonesty and lack of integrity in not disclosing such events. The failure to disclose was not an isolated single event but was repeated. The non disclosures are material and important non disclosures that denied the Registrar both the opportunity and the ability to make an informed and reasoned decision.

Daldin's Financial Position

The bankruptcy of Daldin in 1986 and the 6 unsatisfied restitution orders in the sum of over $13,000.00 are indicative of the inability of Daldin to meet his financial obligations and to be financially responsible. Daldin in his evidence before this Tribunal admitted that he earned over $80,000.00 in the early 1980's and, in subsequent years, greatly exceeded that sum.

Despite such earnings, he failed to meet his financial obligations, and show financial responsibility, which led to his assignment in bankruptcy and in more recent times to his failure to meet his obligations under six restitution orders. Daldin's financial position, according to his own evidence, is in disarray. He has no employment due to his being unable to obtain employment as a result of his many criminal convictions. Based upon Daldin's past conduct in relation to his finances as well as his recent conduct in not meeting his financial obligations under the various restitution orders, the Tribunal is of the opinion that Daldin cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the future in the conduct of business.

Criminal Convictions

The criminal convictions that Daldin has accumulated are impressive in number and the time span over which the convictions were registered. The convictions started in 1988 through to 1992 when there was a hiatus until 2001 when further convictions were recorded. The convictions related to fraud, theft and false pretences. All the offences relate to financial dishonesty that reflect an ongoing absence of integrity on the part of Daldin and a continued display of behaviour that is outside societal norms and is at odds with an acceptable lawful ordered society.

Daldin has a problem in not being able to control his gambling impulses which he contends have led to his criminal activity and consequent convictions. While the Tribunal is sympathetic to Daldin's position and is impressed with his having sought counselling, it cannot become preoccupied with sympathetic concerns as to whether or not he will manage to overcome his gambling addiction. What is of prime concern to the Tribunal is whether the past conduct of Daldin, particularly as reflected in his convictions, affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that Daldin will not in the future carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds there are reasonable grounds for this belief and that the Registrar was not in error in concluding that Daldin's past conduct affords him reasonable grounds for his belief.

DECISION:

Therefore by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal of February 8, 2002.

UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DOUGLAS MACKINTOSH, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES:

MICHAEL HOBBS, on his own behalf
A. MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF
HEARING: July 10, 2002

REASON FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is an appeal by the applicant, Michael Hobbs, to the Licence Appeal Tribunal from a proposal dated 11th February by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act (the Act) to refuse him registration as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

The Registrar relies solely on the Applicant's failure to meet the criteria set out in section 5 of the Act.

THE EVIDENCE:

There were two witnesses.

Laura Gordon (Gordon) gave evidence for the Registrar. For the past five years she has been Director of Compliance for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") which was created in 1997 to enforce compliance with the Act and its regulations.

She is familiar with the problems in the application made by Mr. Hobbs to be registered as a salesperson.

The first contact was receipt by OMVIC of this application on January 24, 2002. It was dated November 1, 2001. The Applicant sent some further information explaining the circumstances of a fraud conviction and a letter from his present employer, a motor vehicle dealer who, knowing the background, wants him to move up from parts and service to sales.

The fraud was significant and it was committed at the time the Applicant was vice-president of finance. Over a three year period he absconded with over $880,000 from his corporate employer, Kromacorp Printing Ink ("Kroma").

Documentary evidence was introduced proving the conviction and the subsequent 2½ years sentence.

Ms. Gordon confirmed there was also a civil judgement against Mr. Hobbs. She had done so by phoning Kroma's lawyer.

Ms. Gordon expressed great concern arising from the seriousness and economic nature of the offence combined with the length of the time over which the fraud continued. Also, the offence was recent.

She pointed out vehicles are the second biggest item ordinary people buy and that temptations arise for vehicle salespersons over trade-ins, large deposits, incorrect odometer readings and so on. She noted that the Applicant had been under police and parole supervision until the end of last year, 2001, and that the subsequent period is too short from which draw conclusions.

She stated that the Applicant is not a good candidate for terms and conditions and that anyway, supervision that can be given is different from police and parole supervision.

The Applicant gave evidence on his own behalf. He does not deny what he did.

He is now 51 years of age. His career started after passing through grade 12 when he took night courses to be an accountant. For a while he worked for Hershey, a chocolate factory in Smith Falls. Then he moved to a pharmaceutical company in Perth and finally to Kromacorp Printing Ink ("Kroma") situated in Prescott. That is the company he has defrauded. It had 70 employees and annual sales of $20 to $25 million.

He testified that in 1994 he became controller and then vice-president of finance. But he had matrimonial troubles and during the next three years absconded with the $887,000 already mentioned.

On 3rd June 1999 he pleaded guilty to one count of fraud over and two other counts were withdrawn.

With respect to Kroma's civil suit against him, he instructed his lawyer not to contest it and that is all he knows. Between the police and Kroma $131,000 was retrieved from his bank accounts and life insurance policy. The balance owing is approximately $170,000.

Other problems emerged in his cross-examination. It became clear that Applicant had made a fraudulent conveyance of property to his ex-wife.

There is concern about the explanation that Mr. Hobbs gave in one of the sections in the Application form. Section 8 asks the following question:

"Are there any unpaid judgements outstanding against you? If yes, submit a copy of each judgement. State the amount outstanding and repayment arrangements".

The Applicant answered "No".

In cross examination he said that he gave that answer because he has heard nothing about the judgement and only knows he instructed his counsel not to defend. The Tribunal finds in this respect the Applicant has been wilfully blind. He must have suspected the judgement existed, realized its probability and refrained from obtaining the final confirmation.

Besides the judgement, his finances are also weighed down by two credit card debts totalling $8,596.

As to the cause of his crime, the Applicant testified that fraud was related to matrimonial problems and a family disaster and that he was trying to make things perfect for his family. It was not, he said, because of drugs or alcohol.

After spending some months in jail, he was placed in a half way house and was then on parole until 2nd December 2001. His parole Officer whom he saw once a month wrote a letter of support saying that the Applicant had reintegrated successfully and is leading a pro-social life in the community. He wrote "I would have no hesitation to support the issuance of a salesperson licence for Mr Hobbs".

THE LAW:

The relevant sections of the Act provides as follows:

5. (1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, or:

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty...

6.(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

DECISION AND REASONS:

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant is obviously capable and intelligent. He also obviously gets on well with people. However, the only question the Tribunal has to answer is whether the Registrar was in error in concluding that the Applicant is not in compliance with the requirements of section 5 of the Act.

The leading case on the proper test to be applied is set out in Brenner v Registrar of Motor Vehicles and Salesmen 1983 19 CRAT Divisional Court which confirms how the act. should apply:

"The effect of s. 7(4) is that the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The Board does not appear to have directed itself to this question. Instead the Board seems to have been pre-occupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was a possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

It is therefore the Applicant's past conduct, not his prospects which govern the outcome.

Accordingly, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal dated February 11, 2002.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE CORPORATION
DESIGNATED FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE ONTARIO NEW HOME WARRANTIES PLAN ACT

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

APPEARANCES:

Warranty Program

DATE OF

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") dated February 17, 2002 wherein the Program denied the Applicant's claim

The Applicant in this appeal is Subramanian Somanathan (the "Applicant"). The Applicant's claim relates to a dwelling situate at 15 Hacienda Drive, Richmond Hill, Ontario (the "home") which was constructed by Kansun Homes Limited in terms of a written agreement of Purchase and Sale dated October 20, 1999. Kansun Homes Limited (the "Builder") subsequently changed its name to Sierra Homes Inc. The transaction was completed on March 21, 2000.

Subsequent to the transaction being completed, the Applicant brought a claim for damages for delayed closing in terms of Section 14(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act") as read with Section 17 of Regulation 892 to the Act. The Applicant's claim for damages for delayed closing was investigated by the Program and on February 27, 2002 the Program issued a written decision regarding that claim in which decision the Program denied the Applicant's claim. The Applicant now appeals the Program's decision to deny his claim. The Builder has been specified by the Tribunal as an added party to this appeal in terms of Section 16(4) of the Act.

THE EVIDENCE:

The only person to testify for the Applicant was the Applicant himself. The only person to testify for the Program was Susan Scheunemann while Morris Kansun was the only person to testify for the Builder. A summary of the above persons' testimonies follows.

Subramanian Somanathan (the "Applicant")

The Applicant testified that he and the Builder entered into a written agreement of purchase and sale on October 20, 1999 in respect of a residential home (the "home") in Richmond Hill, Ontario. The Builder was to construct the home on certain lands purchased by the Applicant in terms of the agreement and the transaction of purchase and sale was to be completed on March 1, 2000.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 1)

The agreement was amended on November 25, 1999 when the Applicant and the Builder executed a written amendment whereby the transaction's closing date of March 1, 2000 was altered to February 23, 2000.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 1, last page)

At the time the Applicant and the Builder signed the agreement the home was partially constructed. The Applicant visited the home then being constructed on an approximately weekly basis. On some of such visits the Applicant would attend at the Builder's sales office and speak with Charlie Barnett, a sales representative of the Builder. During his visits the Applicant also met and spoke with the site superintendent. After December 1999, when Charlie Barnett demanded that the Applicant leave the sales office, the Applicant did not again go to that office although he continued to visit the home under construction.

The Applicant further testified that he did receive the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000 in which letter the Builder advised him that due to unforeseen delays, the closing was being moved from February 23, 2000 to March 8, 2000.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 2)

The Applicant stated that he received this letter through the mail, delivery being by both regular mail and registered mail. The date that he received the letters delivered by regular and registered mail was January 21, 2000.

The Applicant denied that the letter of January 18, 2000 was handed to him by Morris Kansun either on January 18, 2000 or at all. He further denied having met with Morris Kansun on January 18, 2000 or at any other time prior to his seeing Kansun at the hearing of this appeal. He had only spoken to Kansun once by telephone.

Upon receiving the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000 by way of both regular and registered mail, the Applicant telephoned Susan Scheunemann at the Program. He explained to Scheunemann that there was a delay in the closing of the transaction and he sought her assistance in speeding up the closing of the transaction. Scheunemann called the Applicant back and informed him that she had spoken with Kansun, who she stated, undertook to look into the matter.

The Applicant further stated that the only time he spoke with Kansun was by telephone during January 2000 and that discussion related to the delay in closing from February 23, 2000 to March 8, 2000. He also stated that he did not request his lawyer to write the letter of January 31, 2001 to the Builder's lawyer.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 4)

The Applicant also testified that when he learned that the closing was to be delayed until March 8, 2000 he did not ask his lawyer to request a further delay in the closing until March 21, 2000.

The Applicant also stated that due to the delay in closing he was obliged to rent an apartment. The minimum period that he could rent was for two months and he therefore was obliged to rent for March and April 2000 at $1,000 per month. He paid the rental of $2,000 by way of a bank draft.

(Exhibit 16B and Exhibit 16A)

The Applicant claimed he had the following expenses due to the delay in the transaction's closing.

eligible moving costs - movers, truck	$750
rental, gas, meals	$350	1100.00
tel. activation, mail redirect $55+tax,+32 to temp accommation		95.00

(Exhibit 3, Tab 8, last page)

Morris Kansun

Morris Kansun ("Kansun") testified that he is the President of Sierra Homes Inc. and that Kansun Homes Limited (the "Builder"), subsequent to the transaction with the Applicant, changed its name to Sierra Homes Inc. He stated that he is familiar with the transaction.

Kansun stated that the relationship with the Applicant "was rocky" from the beginning. The Applicant, when visiting the home during its construction, continually argued and interfered with the Builder's employees. The site superintendent complained to Charlie Barnett regarding the behaviour of the Applicant and Barnett in turn complained to Kansun concerning the Applicant's disruptive behaviour.

When it became apparent to Kansun that the transaction could not close on February 23, 2000 he "commissioned" the letter of January 18, 2000. Due to the strained relations between the Builder's employees, including Barnett, and in an attempt not to exacerbate the strained relations, Kansun decided to meet personally with the Applicant, to then deliver the letter of January 18, 2000 to the Applicant and to deal with any concerns the Applicant may have. Accordingly, Kansun instructed Barnett to arrange a meeting between the Applicant and Kansun at the Builder's sales office. Barnett was also to be present at the meeting. The purpose of the meeting was to try to obtain the Applicant's consent to changing the closing date from February 23, 2000 to March 8, 2000. Only in the event of it not proving possible to obtain the Applicant's consent would Kansun then hand the Applicant the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000.

On January 18, 2000 Kansun attended at the Builder's sales office when he met with the Applicant for the first time. Barnett was also present. The meeting was brief. Kansun requested the Applicant's consent to the extension of the closing to March 8, 2000 and before he could get an answer to this request, the Applicant raised his voice and started shouting. Realizing that the Applicant's consent was not going to be obtained and wishing to avoid a confrontation, particularly as a prospective purchaser was present in the sales office, Kansun left the sales office after handing the Applicant an envelope that contained the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000.

Within ten minutes of leaving the sales office Kansun received a call on his cell phone from Barnett who told Kansun the Applicant wished to speak with him. Kansun then spoke with the Applicant who accused Kansun of delaying the closing for his own gain. Kansun did not wish to continue speaking with the Applicant and then told the Applicant to leave the sales office. Kansun then hung up. The following morning copies of the January 18, 2000 letter, that Kansun had hand delivered to the Applicant the previous day, were sent to the Applicant by registered and regular mail.

Kansun continued to testify that on March 2, 2000 he instructed the Builder's lawyers of exercise the five day grace period so that the closing would then take place on March 13, 2000. The Builder's lawyers accordingly sent the Applicant's lawyers a letter dated March 7, 2000, reading as follows:

"Further to our telephone conversation of March 2nd and today, we confirm our advice to you that the Vendor is exercising its five (5) day grace period in accordance with the Ontario New Home Warranty Program. Accordingly, the closing is now schedule to be completed on the 13th day of March, 2000 with all other terms and conditions to remain the same and time to continue to be of the essence."

(Exhibit 3, Tab 5)

Kansun further stated that pursuant to the letter of March 7, 2000, the Builder's lawyer advised Kansun that the Applicant's lawyer had left a voice mail message that the Applicant was not comfortable with closing on March 13, 2000 due to religious reasons and the Applicant therefore requested a closing on March 21, 2000. Kansun agreed to the extension until March 21, 2000 without penalty to the Applicant. Accordingly, the Builder's lawyers wrote on March 9, 2000 as follows to the Applicant's lawyer.

"Further to your voice mail message yesterday, we confirm your clients' advice that the would not be closing the subject transaction before the 21st day of March, 2000. We further confirm our client's consent to their request for the extended closing date, with all other terms and conditions to remain the same and time to continue to be of the essence.

Finally, the Vendor would also confirm that there will be no penalties, charges or compensation for the delayed closing."

Susan Scheunemann

Susan Scheunemann ("Scheunemann") testified that she was a customer service representative with the Program for some fifteen years and that since 1998 has the duty of assessing delayed closing claims. Since 1998 she has assessed approximately 400 claims for delayed closing. She confirmed that she is familiar with and has carriage of the Applicant's file relating to his claim for compensation for delayed closing.

Scheunemann investigated the Applicant's claim and pursuant to her investigation the Program issues its Desk Assessment Report of June 27, 2001.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 15)

The Program, in its Desk Assessment Report, denied the Applicant's claim. Scheunemann referred in her testimony to the report and explained the reasons for her denying the Applicant's claim. She stated that she stood by the report and the reasons for denying the Applicant's claim.

In the report she stated that:

"The builder's hand delivered notice of January 18, complied with Regulation 892, Section 17 (3) (b), therefore delayed closing compensation does not apply for the period from February 23 until March 8.

Delayed closing compensation also does not apply for the period from March 8 until March 13 because closing was not further extended more than five days beyond the extended date as outlined in Regulation 892 Section 17 (1) (b).

The purchaser requested an extension from March 13 until March 21, which the builder agreed to and confirmed in writing that there would be no penalties, interest or compensation for the delayed closing."

After this report was sent by the Program to the Applicant and the Builder, the Applicant wrote to the Program and stated in that letter that he had not received "any hand delivered letter from the Builder", referring to the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000.

Scheunemann stated that she requested and had been furnished with two conflicting Statutory Declarations, one by the Applicant and the other by Kansun.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 18(A) and Exhibit 3, Tab 12(A) respectively)

The Applicant contended in his Statutory Declaration that the January 18, 2000 letter was not hand delivered to him by Kansun, while Kansun in his Statutory Declaration had countered that he personally delivered the January 18, 2000 letter to the Applicant. Faced with the conflicting declarations, Scheunemann communicated with the Barnett before issuing a decision letter. Barnett was then no longer in the Builder's employ. Barnett told Scheunemann that although he no longer remembered the exact date, he did recall the meeting in the Sales Office of the Builder when the Applicant, Kansun and he met. He confirmed that he saw Kansun hand the envelope to the Applicant and that an argument had erupted. Faced with the conflicting Statutory Declarations, Scheunemann was not able to decide as to who was to be believed and as the onus of proof was on the Applicant she felt that he had not discharged such onus and accordingly denied the Applicant's claim.

Scheunemann's superior, Manager Dennis Faubert, reviewed the Applicant's file and concluded that the decision made by her was correct. Accordingly, the Program issued its decision letter of February 27, 2002 setting out the facts as found by the Program as well as reasons for the denial of the Applicant's claim for compensation for delayed closing.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. The Applicant and the Builder entered into an Agreement of Purchase and Sale on October 20, 1999 in terms of which the Applicant purchased certain lands in Richmond Hill, Ontario on which the Builder undertook to construct the home.
2. In terms of the Agreement of Purchase and Sale, the transaction was to be completed by March 1, 2000.
3. By written Agreement of Amendment dated November 30, 1999 the Applicant and the Builder agreed to the date of completion being changed from March 1, 2000 to February 23, 2000.

4. By letter dated January 18, 2000, addressed by the Builder to the Applicant, the Builder advised the Applicant that the date of completion of the transaction was to be changed from February 23, 2000 to March 8, 2000.
5. The Builder's letter addressed to the Applicant and dated January 18, 2000 was delivered personally by Morris Kansun on behalf of the Builder to the Applicant on January 18, 2000 on which date the Applicant received that letter.
6. On January 19, 2000 the Builder mailed to the Applicant two copies of the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000. One of the two copies was mailed by regular mail and the other copy of the letter of January 18, 2000 was mailed by registered mail.
7. The two mailed copies of the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000 were received by the Applicant on January 21, 2000.
8. By letter dated March 7, 2000 addressed to the Applicant's solicitor by the Builder's solicitors, the Builder extended the amended closing date of March 8, 2000 to March 13, 2000.
9. By way of voice mail message from the Applicant's solicitor to the Builder's solicitor, the former, on behalf of the Applicant, requested of the latter, that the closing be extended to March 21, 2000 to which request the Applicant's solicitor agreed.
10. The transaction closed on March 21, 2000.

THE LAW:

The following sections of the Act and Regulation 892 are applicable to this appeal.

14(3) Subject to the regulations, an owner of a home is entitled to receive payment out of the guarantee fund for damages resulting from a breach of warranty if,

...

(b) the person has a cause of action against the vendor or the builder, as the case may be, for damages resulting from the breach of warranty.

Section 17.(1) of Regulation 892 to the Act states:

17. (1) Every vendor of a new home of a type referred to in clause (a) or (b) of the definition of "home" in section 1 of the Act warrants to the owner that in the event of a delay in closing that is more than five days beyond,

(a) the date originally fixed for closing the purchase agreement; or

(b) an extension referred to in clause 3 (a) or (b),

the vendor shall compensate the owner for all direct costs caused by the delay in an amount that does not exceed $100 a day for living expenses and $5,000 in total.

Section 17.(3)

(3) Subject to paragraph 5 of the Addendum referred to in paragraph 12 of section 1 of Regulation 894 of the Revised Regulations of Ontario, 1990, subsection (1) does not apply where,

(a) the vendor extends the closing beyond the original closing date after giving written notice to the purchaser at least sixty-five days before the original closing date; or

(b) the vendor extends the closing for not more than fifteen days beyond the original closing date or beyond the extended closing date referred to in clause (a), after giving written notice to the purchaser at least thirty-five days before the original closing date or the extended closing date referred to in clause (a).

(4) Where a claim is made under subsection (1), compensation shall be calculated from the original closing date or the closing date as extended under clause (3) (a) or (b).

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof in this matter rests upon the Applicant to prove his version of events on a balance of probabilities.

It is common cause that the Applicant and the Builder entered into a written agreement on October 20, 1999 whereby the Builder undertook to construct a home for the Applicant on certain lands in Richmond Hill, Ontario. Further, that the transaction was initially to close on March 1, 2000 but that date was by the written consent of the Applicant and the Builder, dated November 20, 1999 changed to February 23, 2000. However, the Applicant and the Builder disagree regarding the facts surrounding a further extension of the closing of the transaction to March 8, 2000 from February 23, 2000.

A finding by the Tribunal as to the validity, or otherwise, of the Notice of Extension of January 18, 2000 is critical in determining whether or not there has been a delayed closing which entitles the Applicant to compensation. In order to determine whether the Builder's letter of January 18, 2000 complies with section 17 of the Regulation 892, the Tribunal has to look at the testimony of the Applicant, Kansun and Scheunemann as well as the documentary evidence introduced at the hearing. Essentially, it is a matter for the Tribunal to decide as to the credibility of the Applicant, Kansun and Scheunemann.

Having considered the testimony of the above three persons as well as the documents tendered as exhibits at the hearing, the Tribunal has no difficulty in finding the testimony of Kansun and Scheunemann, where such testimony differed from the Applicant's testimony, to be more compelling and convincing. The documents and letters support the Builder's version of events.

The testimony of Kansun as to what transpired on January 18, 2000 is supported by Barnett's evidence who confirmed to Scheunemann that he was present when he observed Kansun hand a letter in an envelope to the Applicant. While it would have been preferable to have heard Barnett's testimony firsthand, the Tribunal is nevertheless entitled to receive hearsay evidence and, having received it, to weigh that evidence. This entitlement to receive Barnett's evidence is in terms of Section 15 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act. The Tribunal finds therefore, that the Applicant did receive notice of extension of the closing on January 18, 2000 when Kansun handed the Applicant the envelope containing the January 18, 2000 letter. The Builder's letter of January 18, 2000, which the Tribunal finds was handed to the applicant on that date by Kansun, did therefore comply with section 17.(3)(b) of Regulation 892 and the closing date was thereby extended to March 8, 2000 from February 23, 2000, a period of less than 15 days. The January 18, 2000 letter also complies with Section 17.(3)(b) of Regulation 892 as such notice was more than thirty-five days before the original March 1, 2000 closing date.

The Builder was entitled to a further extension of five days beyond the already extended closing of March 8, 2000. This five day period extended the closing to March 13, 2000. This five day extension claimed by the Builder was in compliance with section 17.(1)(b) of Regulation 892.

Insofar as the closing not having taken place on March 13, 2000 but having taken place on March 21, 2000 the Tribunal finds that the requested extension to March 21, 2000 was specifically made at the request of the Applicant through his solicitor. The Builder's solicitor's letter of March 9, 2000 addressed to the Applicant's solicitor supports and confirms the testimony of Kansun that the Builder was agreeable to accommodating the Applicant's solicitor's request. The Tribunal rejects the Applicant's testimony that he did not require such extension and that he did not instruct his solicitor to request the extension. The contents of the March 9, 2000 letter was at no time contested or disputed by the Applicant's solicitor and the Tribunal finds it unlikely in the extreme that this letter did not accurately reflect that it was the Applicant himself who wished to delay the closing until March 21, 2000 and it was the Builder who agreed to the Applicant's request.

The Applicant has failed to discharge the onus that rested upon him and has not satisfied the Tribunal that his version of events, where in conflict with that of the Builder, are either credible or acceptable. The Tribunal finds that the builder is not in breach of warranty for the delayed closing and is not obliged to compensate the Applicant for any amount whatsoever.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 16.(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, the Tribunal directs the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the Applicant's claim.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 as amended, from a Decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROY MELVIN, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Solicitor for Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: July 8, 2002 Kitchener

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 43 year old automobile mechanic who began to have unusual symptoms within his head about two years ago. Then he had spells where he felt a constriction in his throat, sour taste in the mouth, tingling feelings in his left arm and leg, sometimes a numbness at which times he would drop things from his hand. His family doctor referred him to a Neurologist, Physician #1 at McMaster Health Centre in Hamilton, who suspected a right frontal brain tumour. An EEG, September 26, 2001, reported abnormal activity of the right frontal region.

The Applicant was referred to Physician #2, a neurological surgeon at St. Michael's hospital in Toronto. An M.R.I., October 17, 2001, shows a large right-sided brain lesion and the Applicant was booked for a biopsy, November 13, 2001.

In the meantime he had been for a visit to Hungary where he was seen by various doctors and prescribed Tegratol, which relieved his spells somewhat. The biopsy, reported December 27, 2001 diagnosed this tumour as oligodendroglioma. He was reviewed by the Multidisciplinary Oncology team at the Hamilton Regional Cancer Centre on January 17, 2002. The consensus of opinion was that he should undergo surgical removal of this tumour, followed by radiation therapy. The risks were discussed with the Applicant and he was asked to make a decision. In the meantime he was advised to continue with the anti-epileptic medication because he could be a risk of having more aggressive seizures given the extent of his tumour.

It was at this point that Physician #3, of this team, sent a medical report to the Ministry of Transportation pursuant to Section 177 of the Highway Traffic Act, who suspended his licence as per Section 47(1) effective February 24, 2002.

The Applicant was assessed again by Physician #2, Neurosurgeon, on February 26, 2002, who agreed with the recommendation of the Hamilton Regional Cancer Centre. He showed very little clinical change and attributes this to taking a variety of herbal medications which he gets from a clinic in California. He states that he gets very few so-called seizures while he is taking Tegratol.

To date the Applicant has made no definitive decision regarding the treatment of his tumour as recommended by the appropriate specialists.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has a slow growing right sided brain tumour diagnosed by biopsy as an oligodendroglioma with focal symptoms of a vague nature sometimes involving sensation and movement of the left arm and/or leg. These are relieved, for the most part, by taking Tegretol regularly. However, without definitive treatment by surgery and/or radiation, he will be at risk to experience unexpected and unpredictable disorders of motor sensory or cognitive nature due to pressure of the tumour on so vital an organ as the brain.

Should such an event occur while he is driving a motor vehicle he would be placing himself and/or others at serious risk. This is in direct contravention of Regulation 340/94 section 14(a), which states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 15, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR OF THE
MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DAVID HUNT, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: EDWARD SULLIVAN, Agent, representing the Applicant
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: July 29, 2002 Toronto

ORDER

The Applicant in this matter was not personally in attendance on the date of the hearing, having been sentenced, on June 28, 2002, to nine months in custody. He had arranged for Mr. Sullivan to attend as his agent and a request for adjournment was made without prior, formal notice. The basis of the request was that Mr. Woods could obtain a temporary absence pass for the day to leave the institution where he is serving his sentence and therefore could appear at the Tribunal on a future date. The institution (Mimico Correctional Centre) was contacted by Counsel for the Registrar and it was confirmed that Mr. Woods could qualify for a temporary absence pass for a future date.

The position of the Registrar was that the application for adjournment should be refused by this Tribunal as there was not adequate notice and Mr. Woods did not take the appropriate steps to obtain a pass for the scheduled date of the hearing.

The Tribunal finds that although the Applicant failed to obtain a pass for the scheduled date of the hearing he did instruct an agent, and demonstrated a real interest in being part of the proceedings. He was not really absent by choice. In all of the circumstances the matter was adjourned, to recommence on August 21, 2002 at 9:30 a.m. in the Tribunal's Chambers, 1 St. Clair Avenue West, 12th floor, Toronto, Ontario.

Counsel for the Registrar requested an order for costs in the event that the adjournment was given. Mr. Sullivan, on behalf of the Applicant, consented to costs in the amount of $650.00, payable to the Respondent within 14 business days of the date of this order. The order for costs is so made.

TRUSTEES OF THE ONTARIO MOTOR VEHICLE
DEALERS COMPENSATION FUND

TO DISALLOW A CLAIM

TRIBUNAL: DAVID HUNT, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: NASR AHMED SAEED appearing on his own behalf
AVIVA HARARI, Counsel representing the Ontario Motor Vehicle
Dealers Compensation Fund

DATE OF
HEARING: July 3, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a written decision of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund (the "Fund"), dated March 15, 2002, wherein the claim for compensation of Nasr Ahmed Saeed (the "Applicant") was denied.

The claim of the Applicant is for the sum of $5,150.00 being the amount of a default judgment obtained by the Applicant in the Toronto Small Claims Court against Auto Sahel. The default judgment has not been satisfied by Auto Sahel and was set aside by the Court on May 30, 2002.

MOTION BY THE FUND:

At the commencement of the hearing, Counsel for the Fund brought a motion that the Tribunal was without jurisdiction to hear this appeal for the following reasons:

1. The Applicant's claim against the Fund identifies the basis of his claim as being a default judgment, dated October 18, 2001, for $5,150.00 granted in favour of the Applicant against Auto Sahel.
2. Subsequent to the default judgment being granted by Court, Auto Sahel brought a motion to that court to set aside the default judgement.

3. Pursuant to the Applicant's motion to set aside the default judgement, the court heard evidence and rendered a decision. The decision of the court, issued on May 30, 2002, was:

The Judgement for the Plaintiff against the Defendant in the sum of $5,150.00; was set aside subject to the filing of a Statement on Defense and payment of $100.00 – costs.

4. The Statement on Defense was filed June 14, 2002 and the $100.00 costs were paid on June 5, 2002.
5. On the basis that the judgement was set aside and the conditions met, the Board of Trustees for the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund revoked its decision of May 15, 2002:
 - i) On October 18, 2001, the Applicant was granted a default judgement against Auto Sahel in the amount of $5,150 which judgement has not been satisfied by Auto Sahel.
 - ii) On May 30, 2002 the default judgement for $5,150.00 against Auto Sahel was set aside and by June 14, 2002 all the conditions were met.
 - iii) On July 3, 2002 the Board of Trustees for the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund revoked its decision of March 15, 2002 as the judgement was no longer in place.

THE ISSUE:

The legal issue raised by the motion brought by the fund is:

Has this Tribunal the jurisdiction to hear the Applicant's appeal under section 12(3)1. of Regulation 801 to the Act?

THE LAW:

MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

Section 1. "Motor vehicle dealer" means a person who carries on business of buying a or selling motor vehicles, whether for the person's own account or the account of any other person, or who holds himself, herself or itself out as carrying on the business of buying or selling motor vehicles

Section 24. The Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations,

.....

- (o) providing for the establishment, maintenance and administration of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Compensation Fund including prescribing provisions relating to investing and paying out of money from the Fund;

.....

- (p) providing for payment out of the Fund of claims and procedures to be followed in respect thereto;

.....

REGULATION 801 TO THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

.....

Section 12(3) A customer may make a claim against the Fund where the customer gives written notice of the claim to the Registrar within two years of the participant's refusal or failure to pay, even if the motor vehicle dealer with respect to whom the claim is being made ceased to be a participant after the refusal or failure to pay, and where the claim meets one of the following requirements:

1. The customer has recovered in any court in Ontario a judgement in respect of the claim and the judgement has become final by reason of the expiration of the time for appeal or of having been confirmed by the highest court to which an appeal may be taken and the customer makes an application, supported by the judgement and statement of claim, for payment of the unsatisfied portion of the judgement and costs as assessed.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant when filing his notice of claim against the Fund, dated April 3, 2002, stated that his claim was based upon an unsatisfied default judgement for $5,150.00 against a motor vehicle dealer, namely Auto Sahel.

The Applicant, accordingly, filed his claim in terms of section 12(3)1 of regulation 801. Auto Sahel successfully challenged the default judgement in a motion brought before the Court and upon the Court setting aside the default judgement for $5,150.00 there was no longer a judgement upon which the Applicant could found his claim.

As there was no final judgement in existence at that date of the hearing, and the decision by the Trustees has been revoked, this Tribunal does not have jurisdiction to hear the Applicant's claim.

DECISION:

By virtue of what is stated above, the Tribunal finds it does not presently have jurisdiction to hear this appeal and accordingly this hearing is concluded without any finding on the merits of the case and without prejudice to any further rights of appeal the Applicant may have.

Vehicle Dealers Act*

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal dated February 7, 2002 seeks to revoke the registration of 1302406 Ontario Ltd. o/a Colson Motor Cars ("Colson"), as a motor vehicle dealer and Efstratios (Steve) Coliviras ("Coliviras") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for the revocation of both the above registrations. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Colson or Steve Coliviras under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows:

- 1) Steve Coliviras has been registered as a salesperson under the Act since on or about September 4, 1986.
- 2) Colson is a corporation which has been registered as a dealer under the Act since on or about November 11, 1998.
- 3) Steve Coliviras is an officer and director of Colson.
- 4) On or about August 20, 2001, a judgement was issued by the Ontario Superior Court of Justice against Colson in favour of Vincent Tyler, Jim Siler and Larry Swanton ("the plaintiffs") This judgement related to the sale of a stolen vehicle to the plaintiffs by Colson.
- 5) Steve Coliviras and Colson have failed to take any reasonable steps to arrange repayment of the judgement.
- 6) Steve Coliviras and Colson are not financially responsible in the conduct of business.

By written Notice of Appeal both Colson and Coliviras informed the Tribunal in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Act that they required a hearing regarding their appeals to the Proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Laura Gordon. The evidence presented by Colson and Coliviras consisted of the oral testimony of Coliviras.

Laura Gordon

Laura Gordon ("Gordon") testified that she has been employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") since 1997 and currently holds the position of Director of Compliance. Since 1997 OMVIC, a non profit organization, has been charged with administering the Act and its regulations and Ms. Gordon, as Director of Compliance, has the duty of overseeing the registration of dealers and salespersons and ensuring compliance with Section 5 of the Act. She is familiar with Colson and Coliviras as she has carriage of their file at OMVIC.

Ms. Gordon stated that both Colson and Coliviras are presently registered under the Act as dealer and salesperson respectively. Coliviras has been registered since September 1996 and Colson since November 1998. Gordon further stated that certain parties, namely, Messrs. Tyler, Diler and Swanton (the "Plaintiffs") had in April 2000 brought an action in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice against Colson and Messrs. Diamantidis, Petros Koliviras, Nash and Coliviras (the "Defendants"). The Defendants filed a Statement of Defence and Counterclaim to the Plaintiffs' action. Subsequently, on July 20, 2001, Mr. Justice Cameron granted default judgment against Colson in the sum of $29,425.00 for damages, $11,843.27 for expenses and loss of profits together with prejudgment and post-judgment interest and $5,000.00 costs. The counterclaim of the Defendants was dismissed.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 6)

Pursuant to the judgment having come to OMVIC's attention Ms. South, the Deputy Registrar, addressed a letter dated October 15, 2001 to Colson and Coliviras in which letter South referred to the judgment and stated,

These are serious allegations which could affect your continued registration as a dealer and as salespersons. Before making a decision concerning your registrations, we would like to give you an opportunity to respond. In order to qualify for or maintain your registration as a motor vehicle dealer or salesperson, you must conduct business with honesty and integrity and in a financially responsible manner. This includes taking all reasonable steps to satisfy your financial obligations. You should also be aware that the ethical responsibilities of a registrant extends further than their legal obligations.

Accordingly, could you please advise me what steps you intend to take to satisfy the above-referenced judgement. May I please have your written response no later than Friday, October 26, 2001.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 8)

On receipt of the letter of October 15, 2001 Coliviras telephoned Ms. South and spoke with her on October 18, 2001. At that time Ms. South entered a memo into OMVIC's computerised record system recording that conversation as follows:

returned msg from Steve Colivars concerning my letter re o/s judgement in favour of Tylor's Blue Ridge. He said that Colson's was closed down and they didn't bother to defend judgement for that reason. I said that he would still be accountable if he was an officer of the corporation. I said that an argument could be made that he's not legally liable but we have standards of honesty, Integrity and financial responsibility to maintain registration. He said his lawyer advised them that they were off the hook wrt the judgement. I said this was not the case in terms of his continued reg'n as a salesperson. I said we would still require a written response to my letter and then I would discuss this file w/ the Registrar.

(Exhibit 6)

Gordon continued to testify that OMVIC obtained a computer print out from the Companies Branch regarding Colson which indicated that Colson was incorporated on June 23, 1998 and was, as of July 4, 2002, still registered. Further, that S. Coliviras was shown to be the sole Director, Treasurer, Secretary and President of Colson as of June 23, 1998 and remains so today.

(Exhibit 3, Tab 11)

Ms. Gordon further stated that the action by the Plaintiffs against the Defendants was instituted when Coliviras was sole Director and Officer of Colson and that when default judgment was entered against Colson, Coliviras remained as sole Director and Officer. Ms. Gordon also maintained that Coliviras has done nothing to satisfy or ensure satisfaction of the default judgment which remains unsatisfied.

Efstratios Steve Coliviras

Coliviras stated in his testimony that the "owner" of Colson was his brother, Petros (Peter) Coliviras. The original funds for the establishment of Colson came from Peter Coliviras who was a Director of Colson but resigned when Coliviras became the sole Director on June 23, 1998.

Coliviras also stated that he was appointed sole Director and Officer of Colson purely for the purpose of attending at auto auctions for Colson and purchasing vehicles at auctions. He contended that he would not have been able to attend auto auctions and obtain a line of credit with the auctioneers unless he was authorised to do so by Colson and was a Director of Colson. Beside attending auto auctions, the only other function Coliviras had in Colson was to occasionally help on Saturdays as salesperson. He at no time dealt with administration matters.

After Petros Coliviras resigned as Director of Colson Petros continued to work in administration for three to four hours a day. Petros Coliviras had authority to sign Colson's cheques while Coliviras only had authority to sign Colson cheques in order to purchase vehicles at auto auctions.

Colson ceased to operate in mid 2001 since which time Coliviras had been employed by another company owned by another brother of Coliviras. The landlord of this other company is a corporation of which Coliviras and two other brothers are Directors and Officers.

Coliviras concluded his testimony by stating that he knew of the civil court action instituted by the Plaintiffs and knew that the Defendants did not persist in their defence of that action due to "financial difficulties."

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found to have been proven.

1. Coliviras was originally registered as a salesperson under the Act on September 4, 1986.
2. Colson was incorporated on June 23, 1998, was registered as a dealer under the Act on November 11, 1998 and remains incorporated as at date.
3. Coliviras became the sole Director, Treasurer, Secretary and President of Colson on June 23, 1998 and has retained such appointments at all material times.
4. On August 20, 2001 a default judgment was granted in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice in favour of Plaintiffs Tyler, Diler and Swanton against Defendant Colson for payment of damages in the sum of $29,425.00 plus $11,843.27 expenses and loss of profits plus pre and post judgment interest as well as costs in an amount of $5,000.00.

5. The aforementioned default judgment, to the knowledge of Coliviras, remains unpaid in part or whole.

THE LAW:

Section 5.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

(c) the applicant is a corporation and

(i) having regard to its financial position, it cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business, ...

(ii) the past conduct of its officers or directors affords reasonable grounds for belief that its business will not be carried on in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6.(2) of the Act states:

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issues for consideration by the Tribunal are:

1. Is the Registrar entitled to revoke the registration of Colson as, having regard to its financial position, Colson cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business?
2. Is the Registrar entitled to revoke the registration of Coliviras as having regard to Coliviras' financial position, he cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business?

3. Is the Registrar entitled to revoke the registration of Coliviras as the past conduct of Coliviras affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty?

It should be noted that it is the Registrar's belief that is at issue and not the belief of this Tribunal. In the case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971-1989) page 95, Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Accordingly, to overrule the Registrar's decision the Tribunal must conclude that the Registrar was in error and that the conduct of the Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act.

An analysis of the issues follows.

Issue 1

It is clear from the evidence that there is an unsatisfied judgment registered against Colson. When this judgment came to the notice of OMVIC, the latter addressed a letter to Colson and enquired what steps had been taken to satisfy this judgment. Despite this letter to Colson and a subsequent discussion between Coliviras, its sole Director and Officer, and the Deputy Registrar nothing was done by Colson to satisfy this judgment or make any arrangement to liquidate the judgment.

The failure of Colson to meet in part or in full or offer to liquidate the substantial judgment, rightfully gives the Registrar justification for concluding that Colson cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business. The Registrar would be derelict in his duty of protecting consumers if he were to ignore this type of conduct which resulted in a group of consumers (the "Plaintiffs") suffering serious losses in their dealings with a registered motor vehicle dealer. The conduct of Colson indicates an inability or unwillingness to meet its financial obligations and the Registrar is consequently justified in proposing that Colson's registration be revoked.

Issues 2 and 3

These issues relate to Coliviras in his personal capacity who is a registered salesperson under the Act and is also the sole Director and Officer of Colson.

The Tribunal finds that the various offices held by Coliviras in Colson indicate he was the controlling mind of Colson. The Tribunal finds that Coliviras had the authority to bind the credit of Colson by signing cheques for purchases of vehicles at auctions. No evidence was placed before the Tribunal that Peter Coliviras was the controlling mind of Colson. Coliviras was from the inception of Colson its sole Director and Officer. This in and of itself indicates that he was Colson's controlling mind from the inception of Colson. Coliviras in his capacity as sole Director of Colson, and by virtue of that office, was authorized to arrange and direct the affairs of Colson. By virtue of his appointment as sole Director of Colson he was the sole individual with actual power and authority to control the actions and affairs of Colson. Vested with such power and authority, Coliviras had the obligation and duty to ensure that Colson act in a financially responsible manner and meet its obligations, both financial and otherwise, to consumers. In this regard Coliviras has failed to make any efforts to have the Plaintiffs recompensed for their losses and to ensure that Colson acted in a financially responsible manner and this past conduct of Coliviras affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will in the future not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Coliviras abrogated his responsibility as sole Director of Colson. He showed a personal lack of integrity when, acting as a sole Director and the controlling mind of Colson, he permitted its closure when he was advised by his lawyer that there was no personal liability on the judgment against Colson. (Exhibit 6)

The Tribunal finds the Registrar not to be in error in his belief that the past conduct of Coliviras, Colson's sole Director and Officer, affords reasonable grounds for belief that Coliviras will not carry on business in accordance with law and both integrity and honesty.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to revoke the registrations of 302406 Ontario Ltd. o/a Colson Motor Cars ("Colson"), as a motor vehicle dealer and Efstratios (Steve) Coliviras ("Coliviras") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

APPEARANCES:

TOINI JARVINEN, Applicant, attending the hearing in person on her own behalf and on behalf of Stewart Graham
NETANUS RUTHERFORD, Counsel for the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program by telephone

DATE OF

PREHEARING: July 18, 2002

ORDER

At a prehearing before this Tribunal held on July 18, 2002, Toini Jarvinen, appearing on her own behalf and on behalf of Stewart Graham (the "Applicants"), no one appearing at the hearing room on behalf of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program"), this Tribunal contacted the Program by telephone and Netanus Rutherford, Counsel on behalf of the Program, indicated that the Program was seeking an adjournment of the prehearing.

Counsel for the Program advised that it was seeking an adjournment of the prehearing on the basis that the Applicants and the Program were actively pursuing efforts to resolve the issues being the subject matter of the appeal, and on the further basis that work had been undertaken on the premises in question and was ongoing which was likely to resolve some, if not all, of the issues,

She drew attention to the following statement in correspondence dated July 10, 2002 received from the Applicants (signed by Toini Jarvinen), addressed to the Program:

“Clearly the pre-hearing could not go ahead before September 23, 2002 if necessary, and then we could proceed to the Hearing on November 13-15, 2002 as proposed by you, if it is necessary.”

She directed the Tribunal's attention to the remainder of the letter, which outlines what is essentially a mutual arrangement whereby the Program would perform work at the Applicants' premises and would thereafter conduct an “Air and Settled Dust Sampling” report. Counsel for the Program and Ms. Jarvinen confirmed that, in fact, the work was presently proceeding as per agreement, although Ms. Jarvinen was seeking conclusion of the work by Friday July 19, 2002 while Counsel for the Program indicated that best efforts would be undertaken to conclude the work by Monday July 22, 2002.

After canvassing that issue, this Tribunal suggested that, barring any unforeseen surprises arising out of the work currently being undertaken, the Program ought to exercise its best efforts to have the work completed on July 22, 2002 and at the latest by July 25, 2002, and Counsel for the Program advised that she would convey this request to the persons involved.

Counsel for the Program and Ms. Jarvinen on behalf of the Applicant were both adamant that it was impossible to deal with procedural matters at this time. The result of the work currently being undertaken and the report which would flow therefrom were likely to address most, if not all, of the issues raised by the appeal. It would be premature, at this time, to attempt to determine the parties and other persons necessary at the hearing or what the scope of their participation thereat would be, as the facts and evidence currently available were likely to evolve, depending upon the contents of the report.

The Tribunal alluded to Rule 15 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Rules of Practice under the heading “Practice Directions” dealing with the need for efficiency of the Tribunal, to the effect that, an adjournment would be granted only under limited circumstances and that, brief adjournments only, within a time frame of 30-60 days from the dates previously set, would be considered.

Both the Appellant and the Respondent provided compelling reasons in support of their request for adjournment of the prehearing and of the hearing and for the dates which they mutually agreed upon, citing the work in progress, the need for time to prepare and digest the pending report and their own counsels' availability. Since the Appellant is satisfied with the agreed upon hearing date, the Tribunal orders the prehearing to be held on September 23, 2002 and the hearing to be held on November 13-15, 2002, with the proviso that the parties shall advise the Tribunal, at the earliest available date, if they are able to completely resolve the matters under appeal and the appeal is withdrawn.

Counsel for the Program requested that the adjourned prehearing be conducted by teleconference. Ms. Jarvinen professed a preference for a written prehearing, claiming she was intimidated by the prospect of speaking to a box; however, it is obvious to this Tribunal that a written prehearing in this case would be unduly cumbersome and unlikely to produce a satisfactory result. The Tribunal was able to ascertain that, Toini Jarvinen, despite her reluctance to proceed by way of teleconference, managed very adequately in what turned out to be a teleconference hearing, as this prehearing was conducted by way of speaker phone, albeit at the hearing chambers. It was obvious that Ms. Jarvinen was not intimidated by the teleconference method and that the subject matters to be canvassed at the prehearing could be dealt with very adequately by teleconference.

The Tribunal makes the following Orders:

1. This prehearing is adjourned to September 23, 2002 at 1:30 p.m.
2. The September 23, 2002 prehearing shall be by teleconference.
3. The hearing shall be held on November 13, 2002 with November 14, 2002 and November 15, 2002 reserved for continuation thereof, if and as necessary.

DATE OF HEARING: July 2, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

An oral hearing was held appeal pursuant to section 50.(1) of the Highway on July 2, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO MODIFY the Suspension and Seizure Order imposed by the Deputy Registrar pursuant to section 47(1) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") made a decision to issue a suspension and seizure order under section 47(1) of the Act.

The Applicant filed an appeal of this suspension and seizure order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 filing fee.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1 - Suspension and Seizure Order Dated May 22, 2002, issued by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal Form received at the Tribunal on May 30, 2002, filed by the Applicant.

Exhibit #3 - The Respondent's Appeal Book

Exhibit #4 - Letter of Kellie Dalling dated June 17, 2002, plus documents

Exhibit #5 - Summary of Invoices, "Just Trucks", July 2, 2002

Exhibit #6 - Summary of Invoices, "Transit Trailers", July 2, 2002

Exhibit #5 - Summary of Invoices, "Beverley Tires", July 2, 2002

FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles grounds for Suspension and Seizure are set out in the Suspension and Seizure Order dated May 22, 2002 based on:

- A) the safety record of Stik-Man Logistics Inc.
- B) the Deputy Registrar's concern for highway safety resulting from Stik-Man Logistics' record of convictions, accidents, vehicle detentions and vehicle out of service rates.

The Registrar's witness was John Miller, whose evidence is as follows:

Mr. Miller is currently a carrier safety rating administrator and has worked for approximately 22 years with the Ministry of Transportation in various positions including, transportation enforcement officer, National Safety Code Auditor, CVOR analyst.

The Commercial Vehicle Operator Summary and Record for Stik-Man Logistics Inc. (Exhibit 3, Tab 5, pg8), shows an unsatisfactory overall violation rate of 152.1% (versus a maximum threshold rate of 100.0%) resulting from 3 accidents, 5 convictions and 9 inspections, the latter having led to 5 out of service inspection results. This record was incurred in the period December 4, 2000 through December 30, 2001 (CVOR Abstract, Exhibit 3, Tab 6, pg 10).

Initially, the MOT's Safety and Regulation Division issued a warning letter (dated August 27, 2001) as a first stage intervention when the safety record of Stik-Man Logistic reached an unacceptable performance level (Exhibit 3, Tab 14, pages 26-27 describes how carrier safety performance is measured).

This was followed by the Notice of Suspension and Seizure letter of January 31, 2002.

Attachments with the letter were:

- (a) Analysis (of the safety record of Stik-Man Logistics Inc.) January 2002
- (b) Commercial Vehicle Operator's Record (Exhibit 3, Tabs 3,5,6)

Mr. Miller confirmed that the intervention process moved quickly, omitting the facility audit stage, because of the short period in which accumulated violation points went from the warning letter stage to the sanction stage. He testified that the accidents were of concern as they were the type that placed the skill of the drivers into question.

A Show Cause meeting was held with the President of Stik-Man Logistics, Kelly Dalling, and Monique Philipp, the company's Safety and Compliance Manager. The purpose was to provide the Applicant with an opportunity to present information that could influence the Suspension and Seizure decision.

Notes from the meeting were taken by Mr. Miller (Exhibit 3, Tab 12) who testified the Applicant was fully cooperative at the meeting.

Based on the information provided at the Show Cause meeting, the Deputy Registrar reduced the Notice of Suspension and Seizure from 30 days to 10 days.

Subsequent to the Show Cause meeting, the Applicant sent by fax, a document (Exhibit 3, Tab 13) outlining the Stik-Man Logistics plan to improve their CVOR rating. This document was faxed to Mr. Miller by Kellie Dalling with a request for his review and comments.

Mr. Miller confirmed that he had problems with the content because it did not set goals, there was no maintenance schedule, there were no details on accident prevention or who would do training. He also testified that he did not send any comments by reply.

The Applicant's evidence did not include any cross-examination questions for Mr. Miller but was comprised of the following testimony points:

- despite having been in the industry for about six (6) years as a dispatch employee, she (Kellie Dalling) was new to the management side of the business and continually learning about the rules and regulations regarding highway safety
- the company has spent substantial amounts of money on vehicle maintenance and is trying to keep its power unit fleet up-to-date
- after receiving the Warning Letter of August 2001, the company hired a Safety and Compliance Manager to develop and implement appropriate training and monitoring practices
- the company had never had a visit from MTO personnel to its facility
- following the Show Cause meeting the Applicant submitted a plan to improve their CVOR rating and asked Mr. Miller to provide his comments to ensure the plan was appropriate
- the Applicant never received any comments in response to their plan of action submission
- it was the Applicant's impression of the Show Cause meeting, that if the company proceeded to take the appropriate corrective actions there would be a follow-up meeting

In response to a question about the Ontario Carrier Safety Rating and Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration System Public Guideline (CVOR Guideline), the Applicant questioned the fact that it is not referenced on the CVOR application form and while publicly available it was only provided at the intervention stage.

ISSUES:

The only issue in this appeal is whether the Tribunal should confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Registrar to issue a suspension order for 10 days.

LAW:

47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not

- operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d) , (e) or (f).

- (10) The Registrar may, at any time for misconduct or contravention of this Act, the Truck Transportation Act, the Public Vehicles Act or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or lessee of one or more motor vehicles or trailers for which permits have been issued by a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than the Province of Ontario, order that the permit and number plates issued for the vehicle or vehicles be seized and any police officer or any officer appointed for carrying out this Act or the enforcement of the Public Vehicles Act or the Truck Transportation Act may seize the permit and number plates and deliver them to the Ministry which shall return them to the authority that issued them.

According to Section 22(e) HTA:

- 22(e) the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, governing the suspension or cancellation of CVOR certificates under subsection 47(1) or the imposition of a limitation on the fleet size operated under a CVOR certificate under subsection 47(2).

The maintenance requirements under the HTA are found, inter alia, at Regulation 575 (commercial motor vehicle inspections); Regulation 577 (covering of loads); Regulation 587 (re brake push rod travel); Regulation 597 (gross vehicle weights); Regulation 625 (tire standards and specifications); Regulation 762/91 (safety inspections); Regulation 614 (security of loads).

The appeal comes to this Tribunal by virtue of s. 50(1) of the HTA which provides:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The [Tribunal] may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

Regulation 574, also addresses appeals to this Tribunal;

- 3(3) Upon receipt of a notice of appeal under subsection (1) the [Tribunal] shall forthwith notify the Minister or Registrar, as the case may be, and the person notified shall forthwith provide the [Tribunal] with all the relevant documents and other material in his or her possession.
- 3(6) At any hearing under this section, the person making the appeal has the right to attend and make representations and, subject to subsection (7), to adduce evidence respecting the appeal either personally or through counsel.
- 3(7) At any hearing under this section, the [Tribunal] shall hear only such evidence as was submitted to the Minister or the Registrar, as the case may be, respecting the matter in dispute."

CASE LAW SUBMISSIONS:

The Respondent submitted two case law references, citing sanction confirmations on the basis of the achieved violation rate over a short period of time:

(1) Court of Appeal for Ontario in the matter of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8 as amended, RE: Muscillo Transport Limited, Bolton Equipment Sales & Leasing Ltd., Frank S. Coyle Limited and Carmar Enterprises Inc. (Appellants) and The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (Respondent), Date: 19980408, Docket: C27924,

Page 2, para [4] The issue is not simply one of sanction, but rather one of the safety of the public and the appellant's dedication in that regard.

(2) Decision to Confirm Sanction of the Licence Appeal Tribunal RE: 1226795 and 1383546 Ontario Limited, o/a Potatoland – Carr/00/22

Page 8, The Applicant suggests that a period of probation, wherein Potatoland's ability to comply with safety requirements and paperwork could be assessed is the more appropriate penalty

APPLICATION OF FACTS TO THE LAW:

The Tribunal heard how Ontario's Carrier Safety Rating and CVOR System operates, and relevant references to the Commercial Vehicle Safety Alliance and the National Safety Code, stating that the objective of the Ministry of Transportation is to monitor carriers to ensure that they comply with these standards and the provisions of the Act and Regulations.

Mr. Miller, the Carrier Safety Rating Administrator for the Ministry of Transportation reviewed the analysis used to determine a carrier's safety rating and specifically referred to the time period in which the Applicant accumulated an unsatisfactory safety performance rating.

This time frame was regarded as too short to enable the Ministry to conduct a facility audit as part of its analysis process and therefore it proceeded directly to the sanction notice and Show Cause meeting stage.

The evidence showed that the Applicant was cooperative in the Show Cause meeting and followed up with an action plan and a commitment to address the Ministry's safety concerns.

Mr. Miller testified that he did not reply to the Applicant's Action Plan submission.

The result of the Show Cause meeting was that in consideration of the submissions made by the Applicant, the Deputy Registrar reduced the originally proposed 30 day suspension notice of January 31, 2002 to 10 days and issued a Suspension and Seizure Order to that effect on May 22, 2002.

The Tribunal also learned that the CVOR application form makes no reference to the CVOR Guideline document which states, in its introduction, that "This document was published to help you gain an understanding of the process normally applied when the Ministry of Transportation assigns safety ratings or applies interventions to bus and truck operators" and that "The document also contains many useful examples and appendices to further assist the reader's understanding of the program."

The Applicant's basis of appeal, as presented by Ms. Kellie Dalling, the company President, is that in addition to employing a Safety & Compliance Manager, the company has been fully cooperative with the Ministry in responding to its safety performance concerns.

Ms. Dalling did not dispute the events listed in the CVOR abstract but did submit that...

- some of the offending drivers were no longer with the company
- she is trying to maintain a modern fleet
- the company has spent significant monies on maintenance.

The Applicant testified that as of February 25, 2002, it has done everything that has been requested. The company believed that following the Show Cause meeting, it would receive comments from Mr. Miller regarding the submitted action plan.

The Applicant testified that she was new to this side of the operating business and that she was continually learning but was also taking steps to improve the safety procedures and practices of the company.

In summary, it is clear that the methods used by the Ministry and the Deputy Registrar for determining and addressing a carrier's safety performance, as described in the CVOR Guideline are clear and consistent when applied as prescribed.

However, the Tribunal finds itself concerned with several facts. These are:

- I. that the Ministry failed to conduct a facility audit to further investigate the nature of the Applicant's operations and thereby obtain more substantial insight to either support or modify its intervention action (despite the fact that the Registrar may intervene earlier if action is considered appropriate [ref Exhibit 4, Tab 14, page 70, paragraph describing 'What may happen to a carrier with an unacceptable violation rate?']);
- II. a review of the Applicant's CVOR abstract (Exhibit 3, Tab 6, pgs 12-17) shows an improvement in the company's safety performance record in the post-warning letter period;

- III. Mr. Miller failed to respond to the Applicant's submission of a proposed action plan subsequent to the Show Cause meeting;
- IV. the Applicant submitted sufficient information at the Show Cause meeting to persuade the Deputy Registrar to reduce the sanction period from 30 days to 10 days;
- V. that the CVOR application forms make no reference to the availability of the CVOR Guideline, its purpose, its importance, and the specifically described performance responsibilities of an operator.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal modifies the decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue a suspension and seizure order for 5 days.

DATE OF HEARING: July 4, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBIT #1 Suspension of Driver's Licence dated January 3, 2002

EXHIBIT #2 Notice of Appeal by the Applicant dated May 28, 2002

EXHIBIT #3 Letter from Physician #1, dated June 4, 2002 introduced by the Applicant

EXHIBIT #4 Letter from Physician #2, dated May 30, 2002 introduced by the Applicant

EXHIBIT #5 Summary of the evidence prepared by the Respondent

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

The husband of the Applicant requested permission to remain with his wife. Later in the hearing he assisted by presenting evidence.

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 31 year old who had her licence suspended on January 3, 2002 by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles after receiving a Medical Condition Report, dated September 13, 2001, from the Applicant's family physician, Physician #2. The report simply stated "possible new seizure activity".

The Ministry requested an up-to-date detailed assessment from a neurologist and received one from Physician #1 dated December 13, 2001. The report stated that the Applicant had been diagnosed as having "pseudo seizures" since February 1, 2001 and had been investigated by another neurologist, Physician #3, an epileptologist, Physician #4 and a psychiatrist, Physician #5.

These episodes usually onset with a feeling of nausea, followed by a short spell of unconsciousness. Physician #5 discovered tapping the knee reflex could trigger them. When she regains consciousness she is alert, but feels very tired. She stated that she has experienced approximately 50 of these "pseudo seizures", the last one in November, 2001.

Her physical and neurological examinations were completely normal, including a CT scan, a MR scan and an EEG. Physician #5 diagnosed a Major Depressive Disorder with Panic Attacks and prescribed Paxil 40 mg. daily and Clonazepam, as needed for the panic attacks.

The Applicant attended individual counselling at the Community Health Services and Department of Psychology and continues to see Physician #5 every three weeks.

Physician #2, the Applicant's family physician and Physician #5, her psychiatrist have stated in letters that there is no medical or psychiatric contraindication for her not to drive.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (f) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Under the Highway Traffic Act, Section 47(1) the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles was obligated to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence when the Medical Condition report was received in September 2001, indicating "possible new seizure activity". Unfortunately the actual suspension did not occur until January 2002, two months after the Applicant's last seizure.

The Applicant has remained seizure free since November 2001 and states she has never felt better. She continues to be followed by her family doctor and her psychiatrist every month and is taking Paxil daily.

Not one of her five attending physicians, four of whom were neurologists and one also a psychiatrist, diagnosed these as being epileptic-type seizures and all of her neurological and physical tests were reported as normal.

Her family physician and her psychiatrist-neurologist, the two who know her best, do not find any contraindications for her to drive. These "seizures" are very unusual and appear to be a result of the Applicant's depressive disorder caused by events that occurred many years ago. One of the events was allegedly sexual abuse by a brother when she was 3 years old.

The anti depressant medication and psychotherapy have been effective in treating the Panic Disorder and Major Depressive Disorder and as a result stopped the "so called pseudoseizures". The Applicant's psychiatrist states in his report that she has no psychotic symptoms, good insight into her psychological difficulties and reasonable judgement.

The Medical Advisory Committee appear to be treating the Applicant as an epileptic and are following the accepted criteria for someone with that condition, in considering reinstatement of her driver's licence. The fact that the Applicant had a valid licence all the time she was having these "pseudoseizures" and did not have any problems, is completely ignored.

The Tribunal did not find enough evidence to support the Ministry's decision under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act to further suspend the Applicant's licence.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated January 13, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on July 3, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on July 4, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an electronic hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated June 5, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on June 5, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by cheque.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Tribunal asked the Applicant if there was a reason page two of the Notice of Appeal had not been completed by his physician, as required. The Applicant explained that he obtained a note from his physician but did not ask him to complete the form.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Suspension Reminder Notice – dated May 28, 2002
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form – received June 5, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions – received June 27, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is:

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

The Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "April 08/ 02" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of the Notice of Appeal is blank.

The Applicant introduced a handwritten note from a physician's prescription pad, under the heading, Physician #1.

The note, apparently signed by Physician #1 and dated "5/6/02" states: "This is to certify that the Applicant is (illegible ...) shortness of breath suggestive of asthma. He has a family history of asthma and is being assessed. He is being treated with inhaled bronchodilators."

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that the officer told him to "keep going, keep going", but after three attempts the Applicant was unable to provide a satisfactory breath sample.

The Applicant affirmed that he was having chest pains and shortness of breath and that he told the officer that he had a "problem", but did not request medical assistance.

The Applicant stated that he had been having chest pains and shortness of breath for "6 or 7 months" but did not know he had a problem.

In cross-examination the Applicant re-iterated his previous comment that he had seen his physician "...15 to 20 (days)..." after being asked to provide a breath sample.

The Respondent's Representative pointed out that the note from Physician #1 was dated June 06. The Applicant clarified that the June 06 consultation was a follow up visit, to discuss the results of the lab tests ordered by Physician #1. The Applicant stated that he "did not know" why Physician #1 made no mention of the test results in his report.

When asked if his physician had ever proffered a diagnosis "...asthma, bronchitis, allergies...", the Applicant replied "...No, sir ...he just sent me to the lab ...I never told him that I had that problem before ...I just lived with it..."

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed June 10, 2002
2. Certified Copy of Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed June 10, 2002

The Applicant's Driver's abstract shows several offences.

The Respondent, called Police Officer #1, a police officer "...for twenty seven years..." as a witness.

Police Officer #1 detailed the events that led to the demand for the demand for a breath sample.

According to Police Officer #1, the Applicant was given a total of ten attempts to provide a breath sample. In his first attempt the Applicant "...blew for one second...". Police Officer #1 explained the procedure for a second time and again asked the Applicant to provide a sample. Each time the Applicant attempted to blow into the Alcotest, the machine showed an "E/O" reading, indicating the breath sample was not suitable.

During the breathalyzer test session, Police Officer #1 did not notice the Applicant showing any signs of discomfort. When asked by Police Officer #1 if he had a medical condition the Applicant replied that he was "fine".

In his closing remarks the Applicant stated that he was not able to provide a breath sample because of a "...medical problem..."

The Respondent's Representative emphasized that it is the Registrar's position that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition which would have prevented him from providing an adequate breath sample. The Applicant has introduced no evidence whatsoever to substantiate his position, no detailed medical reports, no PFT results.

Further, Mr. Biel maintains that the note provided by the Applicant's physician, does not comply with the requirements of Section 15 of Regulation 574, which is specific as to the information required in a medical report.

The Respondent's Representative concluded by asking the Tribunal to uphold the decision of the Registrar.

In rebuttal to the Respondent's Representative closing remarks the Applicant repeated his previous testimony that he had informed the Constable of his condition.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“... person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

Thus, as the Respondent’s Representative asserted, at issue is, does the Applicant have a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant opted to submit a note from Physician #1 in lieu of having page 2 of the Notice of Appeal completed as required.

The Respondent claims that the information contained in this note, does not meet the criteria set out in Section 15 of Regulation 574, in that it provides none of the information required, such as the Applicant’s address and date of birth. The Tribunal concurs.

Further, section 15(1)(c)(d) and 15(2) of Regulation 574 prescribes as follows:

15 (1)	“A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is submitted in evidence shall clearly state:
15 (1) (c)	that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver’s license under section 50.1 of the Act.”
15 (1) (d)	“the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;”

Section 15 (2):

“The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.”

By his own admission the Applicant stated that he did not ask his physician to complete the Notice of Appeal. It is not problematical, thus, for this Tribunal to derive that the Applicant did not inform his physician that he had been asked to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal finds that Physician #1’s handwritten note falls short of the meeting the criteria set out in Section 15 (1) (c) of Regulation 574.

Physician #1's note offers no information as to how long the Applicant has been his patient nor any details of last visit. Thus, Section 15 (1)(d) of Regulation 574 is not met.

Section 15 (2) of Regulation 574 is, perhaps, the most relevant. The essence of this clause requires that the physician established a link between the condition and the inability to provide a breath sample. This clause relates specifically to the detailed information required on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, which serves as a valuable guideline to the Tribunal as it is designed to provide pertinent details of the Applicant's condition, such as:

- Details and diagnosis of the patient's present condition;
- History of condition;
- Type of Measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated): (Reference to any pathology test (e.g.: PTF represent important corroboration of your medication opinion).
- Relevant details of last visit and when ...patient was last seen

The Tribunal is left unsure as to why page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but the fact is, that Physician #1 's report fails to meet the test of establishing the grounds for appeal under section 50.1.

Physician #1's comments can be considered guarded at best. He confirms that the Applicant "...has a family history of asthma...", but fails to establish a clear diagnosis for the Applicant.

Physician #1 does not offer any rationalization of how the Applicant's "...shortness of breath suggestive of asthma...", affects the Applicant's breathing pattern. Nor, does Physician #1 provide any justification as to how this problem could have affected the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample.

At the hearing the Applicant was unable to coherently explain why he was unable to provide a breath sample, other than to state that he has a "problem".

The Tribunal finds that there is absolutely no evidence to substantiate the Applicant's ground for Appeal.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has failed to do so. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1(2)(b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that he suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

The Tribunal finds that there is insufficient medical reasons as to why the Applicant was unable to comply with the request to provide breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by The Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated May 28, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on July 11, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Katherine V. McCoy (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle:	Chevrolet Cavalier, plate 307 HBO (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	June 21, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on July 11, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit # 2) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound (Exhibit # 1) the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

The License Appeal Tribunal
1 St. Clair Avenue West
12th Floor
Toronto, Ontario
M4V 1K6

To Whom It May Concern:

Please accept this letter as an appeal to you to have my car returned to me before the 45 day impound expires, based on the grounds that the loss of my vehicle will result in exceptional hardship.

My husband and I are pensioners and rely on our vehicle on a daily basis. I require my vehicle to get me back and forth to work where I care for 3 young children in the evening hours. Public transit is not available to me in the late hours to when I finish work. Part of my job also requires me to get the children to various activities in which they are enrolled.

Due to my health conditions it is very difficult for me to get around for doctors appointments which I attend twice a month for my high blood pressure and diabetes. I also am required to use a cane when I walk and can not walk long distances. It is also very difficult to shop for groceries without my car.

I do not want to lose my job because the extra income is much needed. We solely rely on my husband's pension and the additional income is very helpful.

I hope this information is satisfactory and provides you with enough that you may make a favourable decision so I may have my vehicle returned early. Thank you for your consideration in this matter and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours truly,
Katherine McCoy

The Applicant's testimony reviewed and confirmed the submitted information.

As a result of questions by Ms. Luba Neuwirth, the Registrar's Agent, the Tribunal heard the following:

- the Applicant's childcare work starts in the evening but finishes between 12:00 midnight and 1:00 a.m., when there is no transit service and she is unable to get home;
- while it is only a 10-15 minute car ride to her work place transit takes about one hour and two buses;
- the Applicant has missed two doctor's appointments for her high blood pressure and diabetes checks since her vehicle was impounded; she believes the missed appointments are affecting her health as she feels light-headed and uneasy in her balance;
- her daily activities have come to a halt and she has had to take days off work
- during the past five weeks, since her vehicle was impounded, she has missed the last three weeks of work and does not expect to work during the remaining nine days;

- during the time she was able to work she was unable to take the children to their scheduled activities; and
- the family's monthly income, from pension sources, is approximately $2,022.00 plus the $400.00 earned by the Applicant for her childcare work; their monthly expenses, are in the $1,650.00 range.

When asked about alternative vehicle options, Mrs. McCoy stated she did not have any close relatives in London, and she did not have a friend from whom she could borrow another vehicle. She had not investigated rentals or taxis as she did not believe could afford either option.

The Applicant understood she could pursue financial compensation from her son but confirmed she would not be able to take that action against her son. She also stated she would not be able to afford the impound cost and might have to get her belongings out of the car and leave it.

In response to Ms. Neuwirth's question about how the Applicant's son obtained the vehicle, Mrs. McCoy said he must have taken it while she was sleeping. She explained that he would always ask to take it but she never let him take it because she knew he did not have a valid driver's licence.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by John R. Spindler;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 3, 2002.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

As to the Applicant's appeal to have the impounded vehicle returned on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d), that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship, the evidence presented was considered on whether or not it met the definition of "exceptional hardship" and if it clearly established the Applicant will experience/is experiencing an unusual circumstance and severe hardship based on the following.

Whether there is "a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle" under section 22.(1)(a)(b);

There was no evidence to show circumstances or personal conditions existed to pose "a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle".

The Applicant confirmed that she did have access to 911 emergency services and that a hospital was within 5 minutes of travel time.

Whether there is “a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used”;

There was no evidence to show that there was such a threat.

Whether “no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available” ref section 22(3)(a);

The Applicant gave evidence that she could not afford a vehicle rental or use taxis. She stated that public transit was not available to take her home after midnight and she was not able to get her employer to drive her home.

Whether the “loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;” ref section 22 (3)(b)

The evidence established the loss had been immediate in that the Applicant had not been able to work for the past three weeks and she did not expect to be able to work during the remainder of the impound period.

However, the Applicant gave no evidence that the loss would be lasting or that she would permanently lose her employment due to the impoundment.

As to the Applicant’s claim that she would be unable to pay the impound fee, there was no clear evidence presented to show she would abandon the vehicle.

Whether “the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle”; ref section 22.(3)(c)

The Applicant testified she had already missed work and that she would miss work for about two-thirds of the impound period (4 of 6 weeks) and lose the income she would have earned during that time.

Whether the impact of the loss “will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver’s licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle”; ref S.22.(3)(d)(i)

The evidence showed the loss would be to the Applicant who was not the driver at the time of the impoundment.

In summary, while the Applicant has presented evidence to show she has incurred some loss and inconvenience resulting from the vehicle impoundment, the evidence did not clearly show that there was “exceptional hardship” in terms of the loss being exceptional, unusual, and causing “hardness, severity, severe toil or suffering” or “extreme privation”.

There was also no evidence to show that the Applicant, who testified she knew her son's driver's licence had been suspended, had instituted conditions that would prevent or discourage him from finding and or taking the keys to the vehicle.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Beena Mathai
Motor Vehicle:	Toyota Tercel, plate ADZH 794 (the “vehicle”)

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on July 12, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I, Beena Mathai, owner of one 1996 Toyota Tercel licence plate # ADZH 794 would like to appeal the decision to impound my vehicle on the grounds that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship.

As indicated in the order to impound (attached, my vehicle was impounded June 13, 2002. At this time, my husband, Warren Morris, had taken my vehicle without my consent. My husband had had his driver's licence suspended in February 2001 for driving under the influence of alcohol among other charges including violating sections of the highway traffic act.

I, on the other hand, have been driving for almost 14 years with a clear driving record. I have not even had a speeding ticket and I am a law abiding citizen with no criminal record. I would never give permission to anyone without the valid "G" driver's licence go drive my vehicle. As I show in my supporting documents, I brought assault charges against my husband in August 2001. I was making plans to separate from him at this time. However, as Domestic Assault Charges were laid against my husband, he was offered a chance to avoid criminal charges through a special "Early Intervention Program". He completed this 17 week program and I decided at this time not to separate from him. In addition we found that we had our first child due in May.

Our son was born on May 28th, 2002.

Presently I am desperately trying to manage caring for a young baby, manage my expenses (without financial support from my husband), recover from a "C section" delivery and also decide what need to be done about our marriage relationship (separation). Some days I find it extremely difficult to perform daily tasks like doctors visits or paying bills while taking care of my 3 week old baby and without my vehicle this is even more of a hardship. My husband has not worked since May 2002, I am the family's main wage earner (presently on maternity leave). Having to pay the fee for having my car impounded would be another hardship for me.

Please consider my application to appeal this decision. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you,
B. Mathai

With her handwritten submissions the Applicant included a copy of a "Promise to Appear" indicating that one Warren Richard Morris, was charged with "... an offence, contrary to Section 266 of the Criminal Code of Canada. (ASSAULT)" and promised to appear before the Presiding Judge on " Monday the 10th day of September 2001."

A letter dated "February 8, 2002" under the heading of "Changing Ways" established that Warren Morris "...completed the basic 17 week Changing Ways program, consisting of Basic Education Group and Consolidation Group." Mr. Morris is invited to participate in " two voluntary groups, the Phase II and Phase III SEGWAY groups..."

The Applicant also entered as evidence a hospital card from the St. Joseph's Health Centre in London, showing the date of a baby boy on "May 28/ 02".

An "Earnings Statement", for the pay date "05/17/2002", for Warren Morris shows that for the Period ending "05/12/2002", Mr Morris received $100.00 and that his year to date earnings total "$1,190.00".

At the hearing, the Applicant opted to make a statement instead of proffering evidence under oath. In her statement and in reply to questions from the Tribunal and the Respondent's Representative, the Applicant explained that the vehicle was taken without her consent.

The Applicant resides with her parents, as the Applicant and her husband are no longer living together. The Applicant informed the Tribunal that she does not own another vehicle, nor is she able to rent one due to her current financial situation. The Applicant confirmed that she has just received the Sick Leave benefits due since March, and that those funds had to be applied towards mortgage and bill arrears. No income has been forthcoming as yet from EI or other sources.

Although the Applicant's parents have a vehicle, which she sometimes uses, said vehicle is not always available to her. As for public transportation, bus schedule does not always coincide with the baby's feeding or changing schedule. The Applicant was able to take her infant child to the physician for his check up, but missed her own six-week check up appointment with her obstetrician. The appointment with the obstetrician was re-scheduled. So far there have been no complications, but as the Applicant had a "C section" she is required to go for follow up consultation.

The Applicant's husband is living with friends. He works "sparsely" and is unable to assist the Applicant financially, and is unwilling to help defray the cost of the impoundment.

The $100.00 fee paid to commence these appeal proceedings has been the Applicant's only extra expense. The Applicant declared that she has not incurred extra expenses, as she has no money to spare.

The Applicant emphasized that the impoundment of the vehicle: "...first of all, has added extra stress, in terms of my marriage, ...I have a stressful relationship with my husband to begin with, this impoundment has tripled my stress ...the added expense ...the extra $100.00 was hardship for me to part with ...when there is no car, no transportation, I worry ...in an emergency, it is possible I may not be able to get to where I need to..."

In closing the Applicant asked that the Tribunal to take into consideration that: she did not give consent for her husband to take the car; at this time, she is not living with her husband and the responsibility for raising the infant child rests totally on her shoulders; she would prefer not to be dependant on her parents; her freedom has been curtailed.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Warren R. Morris;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Fail to Remain at Accident under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 18, 2002.

The Respondent offered no viva voce evidence at the hearing choosing to stand on the information provided.

In closing the Respondent's Representative asked the Tribunal to confirm the Registrar's decision, and quoted the various clauses of section 22 of the Act to substantiate the argument.

The Respondent's Representative claims that the impoundment may be inconvenient to the Applicant, but that inconvenience is not grounds for reversal.

Financial loss or economic loss cannot be considered, unless the Applicant has attempted to mitigate her losses.

The Respondent's Representative contends that the Applicant was not able to substantiate that: she has had financial, employment or educational losses; her losses are immediate, significant and long lasting.

As for alternate vehicles, the Respondent's Representative maintains the Applicant is able to use her parent's car and is able to avail herself of the public transportation system.

Regarding the health and safety issue, the Respondent's Representative argues, that the Applicant was able to keep her baby's appointment with the Family Physician and able to re-schedule her missed appointment with her obstetrician.

In rebuttal to the Respondent's Representative's remarks regarding the use of a vehicle, the Applicant insisted that her parents' car is not always available to her.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the exceptional hardship grounds of appeal as provided in subsection and 50.2 (d) of the Act.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R O. 1990 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 is in fact, quite specific in establishing the criteria an Applicant must demonstrate for a determination that exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Respondent's Representative accurately quoted section 22 of Regulation 632, and emphasized that financial loss or economic loss cannot be considered in the event an Applicant has an alternate mode of transportation. Nonetheless, the first consideration for the Tribunal is Section 22.1 of the Regulation prescribes that the Tribunal:

“...shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle”.

Does the Applicant have an alternative to the impounded vehicle?

In this case Respondent's Representative asserts that the Applicant has both her parent's car and public transportation at her disposal. The Applicant assured the Tribunal that her parent's car is not available on demand, and that her child's basic needs do not always allow her to meet the schedule of public transportation.

The Tribunal found the Applicant to be credible. As such the Tribunal concurs with the Applicant. The Tribunal accepts and respects the Applicant's right not to impose or be dependant on her parents. As for the issue of public transportation, the Applicant is definitely entitled to adhere to the baby's schedule, rather than trying to adjust to the public transportation system's schedule. In fact she is to be commended for allowing the baby's needs to supercede her own. Taking into consideration that the Applicant owns no other vehicle, that she is unable, due to financial reasons, to rent one, the Tribunal finds, that the Applicant has no alternate means of transportation, and meets the criteria of Section 22 (1) and 22 (3)(a)

After finding that Applicant meets the provisions of Section 22 (1) and 22 (3)(a), the Tribunal will assess whether the provisions Section 22(1) (a) apply.

Is there “a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle”?

The persons ordinarily transported by the vehicle are the Applicant and her infant child. The Respondent's Representative maintains that by her own admission the Applicant confirmed that she is in good physical health. No medical appointments for the baby were missed. The Applicant was able to re-schedule the missed appointment with her obstetrician and no dire consequences have resulted.

The Applicant stated that her state of mind has been affected. Her stress level has “...tripled...” since the impoundment. It appears that because of the impoundment and financial repercussions thereof, an already stressful situation between the Applicant and her husband has worsened. Further, the Applicant worries about what could happen in the event of an emergency.

The Tribunal finds that there is enough evidence to substantiate a decision of exceptional hardship. The Tribunal appreciates that the possible consequences of a cesarean section delivery, and recognizes it is imperative for the Applicant to be examined after a certain interval. The Applicant has had to miss an important appointment with her obstetrician. Hopefully, no harm will ensue.

In arriving at a decision favourable to the Applicant, the Tribunal also took into consideration the harmful consequences that increased stress levels may have on a new mother. It is possible that mental and emotional anguish could result, which could be devastating to the Applicant and to the new born.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant established exceptional hardship ground for appeal, as required under section 50.2 of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on July 23, 2002, at Barrie, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Marilyn B. McMillan (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1989 Chevrolet GM4, plate 305 3LC (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: July 5, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on July 23, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

Prior to the commencement of the Hearing the Respondent provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of the documents on file.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

TO: LICENCE APPEAL TRIBUNAL
RE: APPLICANT'S POSITION

My reasons for appeal of vehicle impoundment of 45 days are as follows:

Medical Reasons

My husband, Kenneth McMillan, has C.L.L. (Chronic Lymphatic Leukemia) and has constant visits to see his Oncologist, Dr. Rajagopal at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Barrie.

He also has frequent visits to his family doctor, Dr. Mozaffari in Painswick for medication for osteo-arthritis and chronic lower back pain. As of today's date (July 2nd) an appointment with Dr. Kyle Gould at Royal Victoria Hospital has been cancelled because my vehicle is impounded and I do not have access to another vehicle. My friends are presently working, or on holiday.

My mother-in-law, Bernice McMillan (75 years old) who lives on the same property, does not have a vehicle and I am responsible for taking her to Bradford to her doctor and also to Newmarket for her tests. She also suffers with osteo-arthritis and has had two knee replacements.

We live in a rural area, with no public transportation and it truly is a necessity for me to have my vehicle so I am able to keep the various doctor/hospital appointments.

Thank you for listening.

Sincerely,

"Marilyn McMillan"

To: Licence Appeal Tribunal

This letter will serve as my verification that my daughter-in-law, Marilyn McMillan has committed herself to taking me to my doctor, Dr. L. Klassen in Bradford and Drs. Hess and Ragakow in Newmarket or whatever doctors recommended by my family doctor.

I attend Dr. L. Klassen in Bradford on a bi-weekly basis because I am on a series of different kinds of medication. I have had both knees replaced.

I no longer have a vehicle and Marilyn is the only person available to me for transportation I may add that I am 76 years of age, Marilyn is the only person I can depend on.

Yours truly,

"Phyllis Bernice McMillan"

On a handwritten note attached to page two of the Notice of Appeal the Applicant stated: "...husband has C.L.L. (Chronic Lymphatic Leukemia) ...constant visits to the Oncologist ...frequent visits to family doctor ...for medication ...appointment ...cancelled ...friends working or on holidays ...mother-in-law does not have a vehicle ...responsible for taking her to doctor ...live in rural area ...no public transportation..."

Mrs Phyllis Bernice McMillan, the Applicant's mother-in-law in a letter addressed to the Tribunal confirms that "...daughter-in-law has committed herself to taking me to the doctor ...I no longer have a vehicle ...76 years old ...Marilyn is the only person I can depend on..."

A letter dated July 4, 2002 under the signature of Dr. B. Mozaffari, informs that Kenneth McMillan, the Applicant's husband "...needs to see me on a monthly basis for renewal of ...medications and monitoring of his medical condition..."

An RVH Oncology/Medical Appointment Information sheet indicates that an appointment has been made for Kenneth McMillan for "July 22 @ 200/July 22 @ 300" with the Registration and Lab and physician, respectively.

Under the letterhead of Dr. Mozaffari an Appointment form indicates that the July 2nd appointment was cancelled and re-scheduled for August 13th.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Kenneth R. McMillan;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 14, 2004.

At the hearing, in evidence-in-chief, the Applicant re-iterated the statements made in the Notice of Appeal.

The impounded vehicle is needed, as the Applicant has no other means of transporting both her husband and her mother-in-law to their respective appointments with physicians. The Applicant's husband has been diagnosed with Chronic Lymphatic Leukaemia and requires constant monitoring visits to his oncologist at the Barrie Royal Victoria Hospital, as well as monthly visits to his family physician, in order that he may get refills for the medication he has been prescribed for "...osteoarthritis and chronic lower back pain...".

The Applicant testified that thus far, two of her husband's medical appointments have been cancelled, one on July 2nd the other on July 22nd. The Applicant's husband was scheduled to visit the oncologist on July 22nd, and the Applicant is particularly upset about having been forced to cancel. Her husband needs to be examined on a regular basis to determine "...if his cancer has moved to another stage..."

The Applicant affirmed that she does not have access to another vehicle and that her friends, albeit “...not a whole lot...” are either working or on holidays.

With respect to the Applicant’s mother-in-law, the Applicant indicated that her 76-year-old mother-in-law, who lives in the same property, does not own a vehicle. The Applicant is also responsible for driving her mother-in-law to her doctor’s appointments. Mrs. Bernice McMillan, the Applicant’s mother-in-law, also suffers from osteoarthritis and has two knee replacements. She too, requires medical attention “...every couple of weeks...” for medication refills. The Applicant is concerned about her mother-in-law, as she has developed a “growth” on her left side. The Applicant feels her mother-in-law should be looked at by a physician, as soon as possible, and would like to call for ambulance to take her. Yet, Mrs. Bernice McMillan insists that while she can walk and talk she will not take an ambulance from those who cannot and may need it more.

The Applicant lives in a rural area with no public transportation system. She has enquired into the costs of taking cabs from Gilford to and from Newmarket and Barrie, but has found the costs ranging from $40.00 to $60.00 each way, to be prohibitively high.

Before completing her evidence the Applicant informed the Tribunal that she had to “...scramble...” in order to find a ride to the hearing this morning, as the friend who promised to drive her cancelled at the last moment.

In cross-examination, the Applicant continued to testify that her husband is required to see his oncologist “...every two months...” for scans and blood monitoring.

In response to the Respondent’s Representative suggestion she could consider renting a vehicle, the Applicant explained that not having a credit card, this would not be possible. Further, the family income of $1,400.00 monthly is not sufficient to allow for extra costs such as the cost of renting.

Under questioning by the Respondent’s Representative, the Applicant clarified that her husband’s medication cannot be prescribed over the telephone, as it is narcotic based. The Applicant has a daughter who owns a vehicle but who lives in Bradford. The Applicant’s daughter works for the Red Cross and her schedule is too erratic to allow her to provide assistance to her parents, as needed.

In reply to the Tribunal’s question as to how missing the medical appointments has affected the general health of the family, the Applicant stated that her husband has been psychologically affected. He is worried because he has been having dizzy spells and “...cancer is cancer... cancer is cancer...”. As for the Applicant’s mother-in-law, since she has no way of getting to the doctor, she is refusing to take an ambulance to see her physician regarding the lump on her side.

The Respondent offered no viva voce evidence at the hearing other than relying on information previously submitted to the Tribunal, and asking that the Tribunal consider the applicable regulation and the criteria for hardship.

In closing the Applicant emphasized the need to have the vehicle returned in order for her to be able to "...transport ...husband and ...mother-in-law to the doctor, and not only that, but groceries so they can eat as well."

In closing the Respondent listed the two levels for an appeal on the grounds of hardship: the health and safety issue, and the loss of employment or education by the person normally transported in the vehicle.

The Applicant has not suffered a loss of income nor incurred extra expenses due to the impoundment. The Applicant's appeal rests solely of the possible threat to the health and safety of her husband and her mother-in-law.

The Respondent's Representative maintains that there are alternate methods of transportation available, as there is Go Transit nearby. The Respondent's Representative suggests that it would be possible to take a "...taxi cab/bus/taxi cab, to where they need to go... for their doctor's appointments...". Another option would be the daughter whose "schedule could be worked around..."

As final clarification the Tribunal enquired as to the facilities in the vicinity of the Go Transit bus stops and was informed by both the Applicant and the Respondent's Representative that there are no special enclosures. Some bus stops are out in the open although "...there is a convenience store nearby..."

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,

- (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the exceptional hardship grounds of appeal as provided in subsection and 50.2 (d) of the Act.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R O. 1990 as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98 is in fact, quite specific in establishing the criteria an Applicant must demonstrate for a determination that exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Respondent's Representative accurately quoted section 22 of Regulation 632, and emphasized that financial loss or economic loss cannot be considered in the event an Applicant has an alternate mode of transportation. Nonetheless, the first consideration for the Tribunal is Section 22.1 of the Regulation prescribes that the Tribunal:

"...shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle".

Does the Applicant have an alternative to the impounded vehicle?

The Respondent's Representative argued that there is public transportation at the disposal of the Applicant and the people normally transported in the impounded vehicle.

The Respondent's Representative further suggested that the Applicant can mitigate her losses by taking a "...taxi cab/bus/taxi cab ...".

The Tribunal cannot accept the Respondent's Representative's proposition of public transportation as a viable alternative method of transportation. If the individuals concerned were of a younger age and in good health the Tribunal would definitely consider the Respondent's Representative's arguments differently. According to the evidence, the people normally transported by the Applicant, in the impounded vehicle are a 76-year-old woman, with two knee replacements and osteoarthritis, and a man suffering from Chronic Lymphatic Leukaemia and osteoarthritis as well. Compelling them to use a mode of transport that would require: a taxi cab, a bus, and a taxi cab, to go to and from their physician's office or to and from the hospital, would be exhausting and could likely pose a risk to their already frail health.

With respect to the Applicant scheduling medical appointments for her mother-in-law and husband around her daughter's schedule, the Tribunal does not concur with the Respondent's Representative's view either. Not only does the Tribunal accept and respects the Applicant's right not to impose or be dependant on her daughter, but also the Tribunal recognizes the fact that it is not always possible to make medical appointments to suit the patient's convenience.

Taking into consideration that the Applicant owns no other vehicle that she is unable, due to financial and other personal reasons, to rent one, the Tribunal finds, that the Applicant has no alternate means of transportation, and meets the criteria of Section 22 (1) and 22 (3)(a)

After finding that the Applicant meets the provisions of Section 22 (1) and 22 (3)(a), the Tribunal will assess whether the provisions Section 22(1) (a) apply.

Is there "a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle"?

The persons ordinarily transported by the vehicle are the Applicant's husband and the Applicant's mother-in-law. There can be no doubt that both these individuals require constant medical supervision. Two appointments have been missed, already. The Applicant's mother-in-law is in need of immediate medical attention due to the recently found lump on her left side. The Applicant's husband state of mind has been adversely affected. He is worried about the possible consequences of having missed an appointment and the fact that he is having dizzy spells.

Hopefully, no harm will ensue. The Tribunal finds that there is enough evidence to substantiate a decision of exceptional hardship.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant established exceptional hardship ground for appeal, as required under section 50.2 of the Act.

Before closing, Tribunal will take the opportunity to caution the Applicant with respect to ensuring that in future her vehicle is not driven under unlawful circumstances, which could lead a second impoundment.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

ALBERT FALZON, Applicant,
unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: July 26, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: July 30, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on July 26, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended (“HTA” or the “Act”).

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the “Act”).

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Albert J. Falzon (the “Applicant”)
Motor Vehicle: 1994 Pontiac Bonneville SSE, plate no. 546 TZB (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: July 9, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time it was being driven as provided in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on July 26, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant’s request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #2) identifies the basis of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant’s evidence follows.

Applicant’s written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

July 9, 2002

RE: Written Appeal

To whom it may concern,

I am appealing the impoundment of my vehicle, a white 1994 Bonneville SSE, license plate # 546 TZB. VIN # 1G2HZ52L6R4206995, held at Abrams Towing, 72 Lepage Drive Toronto.

I charged the person (driver) who drive the vehicle without my permission. He drove it without my knowledge. A statement was given to PC Sauders of 23rd division #8366 and signed by myself.

I am a victim and I demand the return of my property without cost to me.

Sincerely,
"A. Falzon"
Mr. A. Falzon

The following is a summary of the Applicant's sworn testimony.

The Applicant owns 2 vehicles: a 1982 BMW which is driven during the summer months and a 1994 Pontiac Bonneville (the impounded vehicle) which is driven during the winter months.

The Applicant usually stored the vehicles at his place of business, but since a recent move, there would be many risks involved if he stored the vehicles inside this new location. As the Applicant is the owner of a sprinkler business, there are many pipes which are moved by forklifts and the possibility of falling on the vehicles are great due to poor flooring.

Mr. Howes, the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, has known the Applicant for approximately 6 years. The Applicant has employed Mr. Howes since October, 2001 and retrained him in to work in the sprinkler industry. Mr. Howes was previously a truck driver. Being aware of Mr. Howes' driving history and suspensions, the Applicant would pick up and drop off Mr. Howes everyday from work. He would also drive him to medical tests and to the subway to attend certain programs.

Mr. Howes lives in a basement apartment of a home. As he does not own a vehicle, he offered the parking space to the Applicant at no cost. The Applicant accepted his offer. After storing his car in the driveway, the Applicant removed the ownership papers and removed the insurance on the vehicle. He provided a key to the vehicle to Mr. Howes in the event the vehicle had to be moved due to fire or emergency.

The evening the vehicle was impounded, the Applicant was told that Mr. Howes decided to drive the stored vehicle to purchase some ice cream with his girlfriend and 3 grandchildren as it was too hot to walk.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows (Exhibits 4 & 5):

- 1) Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as plate owner;
- 2) Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by John Henry Howes;
- 3) Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
- 4) Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence Driving While Disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

Under section 6.5(2)(c)(ii) of the Rules of Practice for the Tribunal, the procedure is clear:

- (2) The disclosure required under clause (1) above, shall be made,
(c) where the hearing is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act,
(ii) by any other party at least five (5) days prior to the hearing.

In this case and in a previous case the Representative for the Ministry of Transportation in this matter, Ms. Neuwirth, failed to follow this procedure, filing documents less than five days prior to the hearing.

Although the Applicant consented to these documents being admitted into the record, the Applicant also advised the Tribunal that he was given false hope of the vehicle's release by a different person at the Ministry of Transportation. This hope was based on the Ministry obtaining a copy of the Applicant's statement to the police without charge, which statement could not be obtained. Therefore, the late filing of the documents left insufficient time for any recourse on the part of the Applicant.

The foregoing errors should be reviewed by the Ministry of Transportation.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at

- the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(a).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(a) alleging that the vehicle was stolen, the meaning of “stolen” is not provided in The Highway Traffic Act.

The Shorter Oxford Dictionary, provides the definition of “stolen” as follows:

Stolen: 1. Obtained by theft. 2. Accomplished or enjoyed by stealth; secret. 3. Of time: obtained by contrivance

Theft: 1. The action of a thief; the felonious taking away of the personal goods of another; larceny 2. That which is or has been stolen; the proceeds of thieving.

The Criminal Code (Canada) R.S.C. 1985, Chap. C-46 provides guidance.

Section 1 of the Code states:

“steal” means to commit theft...

Section 332(1) of the Code states:

322. (1) Every one commits theft who fraudulently and without colour of right takes, or fraudulently and without colour of right converts to his use or the use of another person, anything, whether animate or inanimate, with intent,
- (a) to deprive, temporarily or absolutely, the owner of it, or a person who has a special property or interest in it, of the thing or of his property or interest in it;
 - (b) to pledge or deposit it as security;
 - (c) to part with it under a condition with respect to its return that the person who parts with it may be unable to perform; or
 - (d) to deal with it in such a manner that it cannot be restored in the condition in which it was at the time it was taken or converted.
- (2) A person commits theft when, with intent to steal anything, he moves it or causes it to move or to be moved, or begins to cause it to become movable.
- (3) A taking or conversion of anything may be fraudulent notwithstanding that it is effected without secrecy or attempt at concealment.
- (4) For the purposes of this Act, the question whether anything that is converted is taken for the purpose of conversion, or whether it is, at the time it is converted, in the lawful possession of the person who converts it is not material.
- (5) For the purposes of this section, a person who has a wild living creature in captivity shall be deemed to have a special property or interest in it while it is in captivity and after it has escaped from captivity.

The Divisional Court held in Marshall v. Registrar of Motor Vehicles that the Tribunal should not limit the meaning of “stolen” only to an intention to take the vehicle permanently. The Court held that the term “stolen” could also apply to an intention to take the vehicle temporarily. The Court reviewed the circumstances of that case and stated:

"In our opinion a vehicle is 'stolen' in this context when it is taken without the owner's consent and when the perpetrator intends to deprive the owner of it, whether permanently or temporarily."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the motor vehicle was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made.

The burden of proof is on the Applicant to establish whether the impounded vehicle was, in fact, stolen.

Although the Applicant had good intentions, his trust was misused. The Tribunal found no proof that Mr. Howes' intent was to permanently deprive the Applicant of his vehicle, but the evidence was clear that Mr. Howes did wrongfully take the vehicle without the Applicant's consent. He did in fact have a key to the vehicle.

Although the vehicle was stored in the driveway of where Mr. Howes lived, he did not did enjoy a colour of right in this regard.

When the Applicant tried to press charges against Mr. Howes, the police took the Applicant's statement, but refused to lay charges.

The driver did not give evidence before the Tribunal to clarify the nature of his intent respecting the car. In the circumstances of this case, the Tribunal cannot conclude that the driver intended to deprive the Applicant of the possession of his car. Therefore, the Tribunal is of the view that the impounded vehicle was not, in fact, stolen from the Applicant within the meaning of section 50.2(3)(a) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") under Section 9(2) of the Act by Joseph Bressi (the "Applicant") respecting a Notice of Proposal to Refuse to Grant Registration (the "Proposal") by the Registrar, Real Estate and Business Brokers Act (the "Registrar"), dated January 10, 2002, and a Supplementary Notice of Proposal to Refuse to Grant Registration (the "Supplementary Proposal") by the Registrar dated May 1, 2002.

EXHIBITS:

Exhibit #1 - Notice of Proposal to Refuse to Grant Registration by the Registrar, Real Estate and Business Brokers Act dated January 10, 2002;

Exhibit #2 - Notice of Appeal dated January 25, 2002;

Exhibit #3 - Registrar's Book of Documents; and Exhibit #4 - Registrar's Supplementary Book of Documents.

FACTS:

The Registrar's grounds for refusal are set out in the Proposal, exhibit 1, as follows:

In the Registrar's opinion, the Applicant is not entitled to registration under section 6 of the Act as:

1. Having regard to the Applicant's financial position, the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business;
2. The past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

The Registrar's additional grounds for refusal are set out in the Supplementary Proposal, exhibit 4, tab 1, as follows:

In the Registrar's opinion, the Applicant is not entitled to registration under section 6 of the Act as:

- 1) The Applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the Applicant is registered, in contravention of the Act.

The Registrar's witnesses were Yvonne Nandalall, Alan Shiner, and Brian Schlotzhauer. The evidence of Yvonne Nandalall was as follows:

Ms. Nandalall has been a Registration Officer with the Real Estate Council of Ontario (RECO) since 1997. She held a similar position under the Act with the Ministry of Consumer & Commercial Relations for about ten years.

Mr. Bressi was a salesperson under the Act with nine real estate firms from September 4, 1985, to July 31, 2000, with interruptions, as set out in Director's Certificate at tab 2 of exhibit 4.

Mr. Bressi failed to advise RECO of his termination with the last employer shown on the Director's Certificate, Royal LePage RCR Realty, on July 31, 2000. Only the broker advised RECO by a Notice of Employee Change, exhibit 3, tab 12. The broker advised that Mr. Bressi's conduct while in his employ was satisfactory. On cross-examination, Ms. Nandalall admitted that in the normal course of events RECO does not receive notice of termination from both the broker and the salesperson.

An Application for Employee (the "Application") to reinstate Mr. Bressi as a salesperson under the Act, exhibit 3, tab 13, was received by RECO on May 23, 2001.

Question 6 on the Application is as follows: "Are you now or have you ever been involved in personal bankruptcy proceedings? If yes, attach - Assignment, List of Creditors OR Discharge papers." The Applicant ticked the "Yes" box as a response. Attached to the Application was a document entitled "Statement of Affairs of Non-Business Bankrupt" (the "Statement of Affairs").

Question 6 of the Statement of Affairs on page 8 of tab 13 of exhibit 3, dated April 4, 2000, states:

"Name of Present Employer - SELF; Occupation - (Bankrupt) REAL ESTATE SALES".

Question 5 of the Section 170 Report in the Matter of the Bankruptcy of Joseph Bressi dated November 7, 2000, on page 13 of tab 4 of exhibit 4 sets out the following:

5. Any material changes during period of bankruptcy? - Yes; The bankrupt resigned from his position as a real estate agent at Royal LePage and is now working for 1-2-3 Real Estate. The debtor has been requested to provide the Trustee with monthly income and expense statements in order for the Trustee to calculate surplus income. The debtor's income fluctuates relating to commission sales."

Ms. Nandalall found no entry in the Registrar's database for 1-2-3 Real Estate. She did find a record for 1 2 3 Realty Services Inc. and spoke to the broker at that firm. She was advised that Joseph Bressi had not worked there.

Upon receipt of the Application, Ms. Nandalall carried out a judgment search and found two executions filed against the Applicant. There is a judgment in favour of the Department of Justice - Canada for an original amount of $31,252.86, tab 14 of exhibit 3. There is another judgment in favour of Sears Canada Inc. originally for $3,665.57 and $90.00 costs, tab 15 of exhibit 3.

Question 8 on page 2 of the Application at tab 13 of exhibit 3 states:

"Are there any unpaid judgements outstanding against you? If yes, submit a copy of each judgement. State amount outstanding and repayment arrangements on separate sheet."

The "No" box is ticked in response.

Mr. Alan Shiner testified that he is a trustee of the estate of Joseph Bressi, a bankrupt. He has been a Trustee in Bankruptcy since the early 1980s.

Mr. Shiner stated that he has had difficulty obtaining information from Mr. Bressi regarding certain transactions. Indeed, Mr. Shiner is still trying to get information from Mr. Bressi. He is investigating the transfer of properties in Aurora made eleven months before bankruptcy. Also, Mr. Shiner has been unable to find evidence of deposits said to have been made regarding a mortgage advance. Further, Mr. Shiner believes that the Bressi family trust, which the Applicant conducted business through, was not properly designated.

The Statement of Affairs includes claims by the Canada Employment Centre for unemployment insurance collected by Mr. Bressi while he was self-employed and by the Ministry of Finance for unpaid retail sales tax. There are also claims by Sears Canada and the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency, the outstanding judgement debtors.

The evidence of Brian Schlotzhauer is as follows:

Mr. Schlotzhauer has been Assistant Registrar at RECO for over two years.

He is concerned about the size of the Applicant's bankruptcy and that the creditors include government agencies, individuals, small businesses, and mortgagees. He has no information that the individuals dealt with the Applicant in real estate transactions. He admitted that there have been instances where an undischarged bankrupt was granted registration as a salesperson under the Act.

Mr. Schlotzhauer stated that if Mr. Bressi was working without a salesperson registration at 1 2 3 Realty and was receiving commissions, as disclosed to the bankruptcy trustee, then Mr. Bressi, on the surface, appears to be in violation of the Act.

Mr. Schlotzhauer is not aware of any complaints against the Applicant as a real estate salesperson.

The Applicant's witnesses were Ehud Estreicher, Sandro Giuliani, Joseph Bressi, and Ross Norman Phillips.

The testimony of Ehud Estreicher was as follows:

Mr. Estreicher is a mortgage broker. He dealt with Mr. Bressi on projects in the late 1980s and in 2001. Mr. Estreicher stated that Mr. Bressi maintained himself in an honest fashion, with integrity. He testified that Mr. Bressi was very straight with him and that he would have no problems dealing with Mr. Bressi now.

The evidence of Sandro Giuliani was as follows:

Mr. Giuliani is a real estate broker and runs 1 2 3 Realty Services Inc. He did not recall that someone from RECO called him about Mr. Bressi. He stated that he would recall if someone did so.

Mr. Giuliani found Mr. Bressi to be competent and financially responsible. Mr. Bressi dealt with him in an honest and truthful manner.

Mr. Bressi worked for Mr. Giuliani as an assistant in November and December of 2000. Mr. Bressi was not paid commission; he was paid $6,000 by one cheque. Mr. Bressi was not a real estate broker, a real estate salesperson, or a mortgage broker. Mr. Bressi helped with administration of the office, the M.L.S., drafting offers, research, and valuing property.

The evidence of Joseph Bressi was as follows:

Mr. Bressi stated that his debtors as shown on the Statement of Affairs include the following:

- a) Cybernetic Exchange Inc. with a claim of about $76 million;
- b) claims by mortgagees for about $3 million on 3 or 4 mortgages that he personally guaranteed on properties that were sold under power of sale; and
- c) other claims totaling about half a million dollars.

He explained that the Cybernetic Exchange Inc. claim related to his prior investment banking business. The corporation obtained a default judgement against him in Florida for about $74 million.

Mr. Bressi claimed that he cooperated with his bankruptcy trustee, that he gave what was asked for, and that he consented to all requested orders. The bankruptcy trustee and Cybernetic Exchange Inc. were objecting parties to his bankruptcy discharge.

His duties at 1 2 3 Realty Services Inc. included providing advice on commercial properties, valuation, research, some administrative work, and mostly work as a consultant.

Mr. Bressi did not mention 1 2 3 Realty as a previous employer on the Application for Employee for reinstatement of previous registration as a salesperson, tab 13 of exhibit 3, because he thought that only companies where he worked as a real estate salesperson must be mentioned. On cross-examination, Mr. Bressi admitted that on similar prior applications, such as those at tabs 4 and 7 of exhibit 3, he disclosed employers who were not real estate related.

The testimony of Ross Norman Phillips was as follows:

Mr. Phillips stated that he is engaged in building development. He has known Mr. Bressi for twenty-three years and they are friends. Mr. Phillips worked with Mr. Bressi on projects in 1995, 1996, 1997, and more recently, and he found Mr. Bressi to be honest and truthful.

ISSUES:

Should the Tribunal direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with the Act and the regulations?

LAW:

The Real Estate and Business Brokers Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chapter R.4 as amended, provides as follows:

3(1) No person shall,...

(b) trade in real estate as a salesperson unless he or she is registered as a salesperson of a registered broker;....

6(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the applicant's financial position, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty;...
- (d) the applicant is carrying on activities that are, or will be, if the applicant is registered, in contravention of this Act or the regulations....

8(1) Subject to section 9, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 6 or 7.

9(1) Where the Registrar proposes to refuse to grant or renew a registration or proposes to suspend or revoke a registration, the registrar shall serve notice of the proposal, together with written reasons therefor, on the applicant or registrant....

9(4) Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal... the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar....

9(5) The Tribunal may attach such terms and conditions to its order or to the registration as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

21(2) Every salesperson shall, within five days after the event, notify the Registrar in writing of,

- (a) any change in address for service;
- (b) any commencement or termination of his or her employment, appointment or authorization by a broker.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS:

Having regard to the Applicant's financial position, he cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business. There are unpaid judgments outstanding against him. There are executions filed against him. He is an undischarged bankrupt. The total claims against him in bankruptcy are huge. Further, the Applicant's bankruptcy trustee testified that the Applicant is not fully cooperating with him. The bankruptcy trustee opposed the Applicant's discharge in bankruptcy. There is no indication if and when the Applicant will obtain a discharge.

The past conduct of the Applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that he will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Claimants in his bankruptcy include the Canada Employment Centre for unemployment insurance collected by Mr. Bressi while he was self-employed. The Canada Customs and Revenue Agency obtained judgement against him for unpaid retail sales tax. The Applicant provided incomplete information to RECO; he failed to advise them of his employment at 1 2 3 Realty Services Inc.

There is some evidence of conduct by the Applicant in contravention of the Act. The Applicant advised the office of his bankruptcy trustee that he was employed by a real estate broker and that he was receiving commissions while he was not registered as a salesperson under the Act. Contrary to section 21(1)(b) of the Act, the Applicant failed to notify the Registrar of the termination of his employment at Royal LePage RCR Realty.

In summary, the Registrar's opinion that the Applicant is disentitled to registration under section 6 of the Act is not in error.

DECISION:

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL to direct the Registrar to carry out his Proposal and Supplementary Proposal to refuse to grant registration to the Applicant as a salesperson under the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act.

APPEARANCES: CHRISTOPHER E. CHOP, Counsel for the Applicants
PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 15 and 16, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by R & S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. (the "Applicants") respecting a Cancellation and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated March 7, 2002, (the "Order"), ordering pursuant to section 47 & 47.1 of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act") that as of March 19, 2002, the Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration (CVOR) certificates number 126-488-670, 134-764-539 & 133-189-137 and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to H & S Transportation Inc., 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. be cancelled and the plate portion of permits, or if issued by a jurisdiction other than Ontario, the permits, and the number plates be seized.

EXHIBITS:

- Exhibit #1 – Cancellation and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated March 7, 2002;
- Exhibit #2 – Notice of Appeal dated March 14, 2002;
- Exhibit #3 – Prehearing Order released April 26, 2002;
- Exhibit #4 – Appellants' Appeal Book;
- Exhibit #5 – Respondent's Appeal Book;
- Exhibit #6 – Calculations marked R&S Fleet Size 7, 8, and 9; and
- Exhibit #7 – Calculations marked R&S fleet size 10.xls and 11.xls.

FACTS:

The Deputy Registrar's grounds for cancellation and seizure as set out in the Order, dated March 7, 2002, exhibit 1, is concern for highway safety.

The Deputy Registrar's grounds for cancellation of CVOR certificates number 126-488-670, 134-764-539 & 133-189-137 and the plate portion or permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers in the names of the Applicants in a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated February 18, 2002, tab 3 of exhibit 5, was that the Deputy Registrar was not satisfied with the Applicants' on-road performance record.

The witness for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar" and the "Respondent") was Bernadette McKenna, whose evidence was as follows:

Ms. McKenna has worked for the Ministry of Transportation for twenty-five years. She is now a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator.

The records of the three Applicants were analyzed together because they have common corporate officers. Harjeet Virk is an officer of all three Applicants and Mohinderpal Virk is an officer of both R & S Transportation Inc. and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc., as set out at tab 7 of exhibit 5.

Ms. McKenna testified about prior sanctions.

R & S Transportation Inc. received a CVOR certificate on August 6, 1997 as shown at exhibit 5, tab 7, page 23. On July 20, 1998, the Ministry of Transportation sent a warning letter, tab 20 of exhibit 5, to R & S Transportation Inc. advising the company that a review of its operating record indicates unacceptable performance and that the problem areas are detentions and convictions. On August 3, 1999, the Ministry of Transportation interviewed Mohinderpal Virk concerning the CVOR record of R & S Transportation Inc., as set out at tab 21 of exhibit 5. Mr. Virk was warned that failure to substantially improve the CVOR record could lead to a sanction. The company filed an action plan and was warned that failure to meet the commitments of the action plan can lead to a sanction.

590029 B.C. Ltd. received a CVOR on March 17, 2000, as shown at tab 11 of exhibit 5. The Ministry of Transportation sent to the company a warning letter dated August 14, 2001, page 17 of tab 5 of exhibit 5, concerning its operating record.

A Notice of Suspension and Seizure of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated May 15, 2000, tab 22 of exhibit 5, purported to suspend for thirty days the CVOR certificates and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers registered in the name of R & S Transportation and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. A Suspension and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles dated June 26, 2000, ordered CVOR certificate # 126-488-670 issued to R & S Transportation Inc. and CVOR certificate # 133-189-137 issued to Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers registered in the names of the two companies suspended for a period of thirty days. An order of the Licence Appeal Tribunal, tab 25 of exhibit 5, incorporating a written consent signed by the two companies and the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, varied the Suspension and Seizure Order of June 26, 2000, to provide for a suspension of twenty-four days starting December 18, 2000, and ending January 11, 2001, as set out in tabs 25 and 26 of exhibit 5.

Ms. McKenna explained that the CVOR System evaluates a carrier based on the events in its CVOR Record, including accidents, convictions, and inspections. The accident violation rate is based on accident points per vehicle per month. The conviction violation rate is based on safety-related conviction points per vehicle per month. The inspection violation rate is based on points on vehicle inspections per vehicle unit inspected. In calculating an overall violation rate, accidents are weighted at double the severity of convictions and inspections as shown at page 334 of tab 20 of exhibit 5. The calculations are based in part on the adjusted fleet size, which is calculated using information provided by the carrier in the CVOR Certificate - Application/Change of Information form. The carrier is required to advise of a change in fleet size within fifteen days.

The Commercial Vehicle Operator Summary for R & S Transportation Inc. for December 2, 1999 to December 1, 2001 from the Ministry of Transportation set out at tab 6 of exhibit 5 reports seven pointable accidents and thirty-four safety-related convictions. Details of the convictions include the following; fail to maintain/carry log book, speeding 122 kmh in 90 kmh zone, fail to surrender permit for trailer, fail to stop vehicle upon direction, failure/improper use seat belt assembly-driver, improper drive on divided hwy-lane change, and speeding 115 kmh in 90 kmh zone. Based on information provided by R & S Transportation, an adjusted fleet size of twelve was used in the calculations. Both the accident violation rate and the conviction violation rate are unacceptably high. The overall violation rate is also over 100 and is thus unacceptably high.

Ms. McKenna testified that for all R & S Transportation Inc. accidents where charges were laid, those charges resulted in convictions.

The Commercial Vehicle Operator Summary for 590029 B.C. Ltd., tab 11 of exhibit 5, shows two pointable accidents from March 17, 2000, to December 1, 2001. The accident violation rate is unacceptably high. Likewise, the overall violation rate is over 100, which is unacceptably high.

Ms. McKenna presented calculations of the overall violation rate for R & S Transportation Inc. for various time periods, exhibits 6 and 7. In each case the rate was over 100 and was unacceptably high -

The U.S. government Safer Web report included at tab 19 of exhibit 5 shows a rating of unsatisfactory for R & S Transportation Inc. There are no ratings for the other Applicants.

The witness for the Applicants was Shaun Garvey, whose evidence was as follows:

Mr. Garvey holds a Certified Risk Manager Programme diploma from the Insurance Institute of Canada. He has worked in the trucking industry for about eighteen years. Mr. Garvey was accepted as an expert in risk management by the Tribunal.

He gave an overview of the British Columbia system for monitoring carriers. He explained that, unlike Ontario, British Columbia does not take into account charges. It only considers those charges that result in convictions.

Mr. Garvey states the following in his report at tab 6 of exhibit 4: "The CVOR records, supplied by the Ontario MOT [Ministry of Transportation], were scrutinized to determine inconsistencies or errors. All accident, violation and inspection data is consistent with actual fleet records of these incidents."

Mr. Garvey also says the following in his report: "The vast majority of drivers responsible for either violations and/or accidents affecting R & S Transportation Inc.'s CVOR are no longer employed by the organization, having left in advance of the latest sanctions." Mr. Garvey testified that R & S Transportation Inc. has a policy of immediately terminating such drivers unless there are extenuating circumstances. Such a policy is not set out in the Operations Manual, tab 2 of exhibit 4. During cross-examination Mr. Garvey admitted that Bajinder Mann, one such driver, was involved in an accident on August 31, 2001, and was let go only on November 11, 2001. Satinderpal Dhaliwal, another driver, who was involved in an accident on December 12, 2000, only left the company November 15, 2001.

Mr. Garvey found the supporting information for Ms. McKenna's calculation of adjusted fleet size to be out of date.

He calculated a fleet size of one less than the number used by Ms. McKenna in exhibits 6 and 7 by rounding a calculation to the nearest whole number rather than rounding it up to the next higher whole number. He did not agree with Ms. McKenna that rounding the number up benefits the carrier. Mr. Garvey's calculation of the overall violation rate for R & S Transportation Inc. also resulted in a figure over 100, an unsatisfactory rate.

LAW:

The Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 Chapter H.8 as amended provides as follows:

safety;....

47(2.1) Subsection 17(4) applies, with necessary modifications for the purpose of determining who are related persons under clause (1) (f).

47(10) The Registrar may, at any time for misconduct or contravention of this Act,... or of any regulation thereunder by an owner or lessee of one or more motor vehicles or trailers for which permits have been issued by a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than the Province of Ontario, order that the permit and number plates issued for the vehicle or vehicles be seized and any police officer or any officer appointed for carrying out this Act or the enforcement of the Public Vehicles Act or the Truck Transportation Act may seize the permit and number plates and deliver them to the Ministry which shall return them to the authority that issued them.

47.1(1) Before taking any action under clause. 47(1) (a) and (c)... the Registrar shall notify the person whose plate portion of a permit or CVOR certificate is to be affected of his or her proposed action.

6. Any warning letters sent by, or interviews held with, Ministry officials relating to the operator's safety performance and practices.
7. Any conviction related to the operation of a commercial motor vehicle or a vehicle drawn by it, for an offence committed by an operator, its agents or employees,
 - i) under this Act or under any other Act of the Legislature or the Parliament of Canada or any regulation or order made under any of them, or
 - ii) for an offence under a municipal by-law regulating traffic on the highways, or orders made under any of them, except convictions for of fences for standing or parking.
8. The particulars of any accident involving a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator or a vehicle drawn by it.
9. The results of any inspection under section 82 or 82.1 of the Act or any similar inspection of a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator, or a vehicle drawn by it....
11. Any safety rating that has been assigned to the operator....
13. Any record from another jurisdiction in respect of the operator that is comparable to that described in any of paragraphs 1 to 12....
17. Any compilations or analyses of any of the information in paragraphs 1 to 16.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicants 590029 B.C. Ltd., and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc. are persons related to the Applicant R & S Transportation Inc. within the meaning of section 17(4) of the Act. The companies have common officers. Harjeet Virk is an officer of all three companies and Mohinderpal Virk is an officer of both R & S Transportation Inc. and Harj-Min Express Carriers

Inc.

The safety record of R & S Transportation Inc. is poor. The evidence discloses numerous convictions related to the operation of its trucks and trailers in Ontario. There were also many accidents involving vehicles operated by the company in Ontario. Shaun Garvey, the witness for the Applicants, found no inconsistencies or errors in the CVOR records. Analysis of the company's Commercial Vehicle Operator Record results in calculation of an unacceptably high overall violation rate no matter what reasonable time period was selected. Such calculation is not tainted by reliance on charges laid rather than convictions. All such relevant charges resulted in convictions. Analysis by the Ministry of Transportation is supported by the U.S. government Safer Web report, which shows a rating of unsatisfactory for R & S Transportation Inc.

R & S Transportation Inc. has had sufficient notice that a serious sanction may be applied. It received a warning letter, its officer met with ministry officials to discuss the company's poor performance, and the company appeared previously before the Licence Appeal Tribunal. The company's CVOR certificate and the plate portion of its permits were suspended for twenty-four days.

Based on the evidence, the Tribunal finds that the Registrar is not in error. Having regard to the safety record of R & S Transportation Inc., a person related to both 590029 B.C. Ltd. and Harj-Min Express Carriers Inc., there is sufficient grounds for the belief that the Applicants will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety, as required by section 47(1) (f) of the Act. The Applicants' motion for nonsuit must fail.

APPEARANCES:

GORAN J. ILIEV, appeared on his own behalf
YOVANKA McBEAN, Agent, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATES OF

HEARING: July 30, 2002

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Notice of Proposal (the "Proposal") by the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"). The Proposal, dated April 7, 2002, seeks to refuse the registration of Goran J. Iliev (the "Applicant") as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The Proposal sets out the Registrar's reasons for seeking an order for the refusal of the Applicant's registration. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Goran Iliev under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the Proposal as follows:

- (1) Goran Iliev applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about February 27, 2002.
- (2) On the application submitted to the registrar's office, Iliev failed to disclose that he had charges pending for possession under $5000.00.

Subsequent to the Proposal the Registrar filed a Notice of Further and Other Particulars (the "further particulars") dated July 9, 2002 which state as follows:

1. A credit check revealed that Mr. Iliev has bad debts with the following companies:

Household Financial Corp.
Trans Canada Credit
CitiFinancial
GE Capital Equipment Financial

By written Notice of Appeal dated April 22, 2002 the Applicant informed the Tribunal, in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Act, that he required a hearing regarding his appeal to the Registrar's Proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the oral testimony of Mary Jane South, the Deputy Registrar. The evidence of the Applicant consisted of his oral testimony.

Mary Jane South

Ms. South testified that she is the Deputy Registrar under the Act and is employed by the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC"). OMVIC is a non profit organization with authority to administer the Act and ensure that the Act is being complied with. Ms. South's duties include overseeing the registration of motor vehicle dealers and salespersons and ensuring they are registered in compliance with the Act. She stated that she is familiar with the Applicant and his application for registration.

She testified further that the Applicant made written application for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on February 20, 2002. In the course of reviewing the application she noted that in relation to question number 9 in that application form which posed the following question

9. Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered). If yes, list all charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each (attach additional sheets if necessary).

(space for answer)

Note: Applicants are subject to background and criminal record searches. Submitting a false or incomplete disclosure is an offence under the MVDA and will result in disqualification. Do not assume that convictions are automatically deleted from your record. If you have any questions about the information you must disclose please call OMVIC.

the Applicant had answered "No."

A CPIC report was obtained by OMVIC pursuant to receipt of the Applicant's written application. This CPIC report revealed that the Applicant had a pending criminal charge for possession of stolen property under $5,000.00. When this report was received by OMVIC a letter dated March 14, 2002 was addressed to Craig Hind Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ltd. the sponsoring dealer of the Applicant. This letter stated that after reviewing the Applicant's application, the Applicant's conditional registration was being cancelled due to the Applicant's failure to disclose a pending criminal charge and the dealer was asked to:

"Please review this matter with your salesperson. If there are any charges pending and/or convictions under any law which were not disclosed, the applicant must explain in writing why the information was not disclosed and the circumstances surrounding each charge and/or conviction. Please submit the written explanation, signed by the salesperson and yourself to the Registrar's office within ten days."

Pursuant to this letter the Applicant wrote to OMVIC and stated as follows in regard to not disclosing the pending charge:

"...I probably misunderstood (sic) the questions & their meaning...."

Ms. South further stated that at the date when the Applicant signed his application for registration, the criminal charge referred to in the CPIC report was already pending and accordingly was within the Applicant's knowledge.

Ms. South went on to testify that the Applicant had a number of "bad debts" which were recorded against him in the files of a credit bureau. These "bad debts" totalled over $11,000.00. Additionally, G.E. Capital, a creditor of the Applicant had been obliged to repossess a vehicle due to non payment by the Applicant of $40,000 owing to it by the Applicant.

The "bad debts" recorded against the Applicant were in respect of monies due, owing, and unpaid by the Applicant to Household Financial Corp. in a sum of $570.00; to Trans Canada Credit in a sum of $6,651.00; to Yes Charge in a sum of $1,200; and to CitiFinancial in a sum of $2790.00. Furthermore, Chrysler Goldkey, a further creditor, had reported that the Applicant was at least 120 days past due date under an agreement to repay monies advanced to him relating to the financing of a motor vehicle and that the amount past due amounted to $2,507.00 as at April 2002.

Ms. South stated that the Registrar relies on the honesty and integrity of applicants and registrants when completing their applications. False disclosure or non disclosure by applicants and registrants is an indication of failure to be forthright and honest. Non disclosure of material facts are not only misleading but mislead the Registrar when he is required to make an informed decision.

Finally, Ms. South stated that the various bad debts of the Applicant and the Applicant's failure to meet his financial obligations indicate that the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business.

Goran Jordanco Iliev

The Applicant testified he has been in Canada for the past 12 years. He also testified that he signed and completed the application form for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. He was assisted in completing the application by a person with whom he was then employed.

He went on to state that in 1999 his driver's licence was suspended for 90 days. At that time he was operating a cartage or transport business and due to his prohibition from driving for 90 days, he lost business and found himself in financial difficulties. He was then obliged to earn a living as a musician, a carpet layer and a drywaller. The suspension of his driver's licence has led to his not being able to pay his debts.

The Applicant testified that he did not know what the word "pending" meant in question number 9 on his application and that is why he failed to disclose his pending criminal charge. He did admit to his "bad debts", the involuntary repossession of his vehicle due to non payment and the fact that he was some $2507.00 in arrears to Chrysler Goldkey.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The Tribunal has found the following facts proven.

1. The Applicant completed and signed a written application for registration as a motor vehicle dealer dated February 20, 2002
2. The Applicant failed to answer question 9 in the above application truthfully in that he denied that there were any charges pending against him whereas in fact and to the Applicant's knowledge there was a pending criminal charge for possession of stolen property.
3. The Applicant has outstanding and unpaid debts to:
 - (i) Household Financial Corporation in the sum of $570.00.
 - (ii) Trans Canada Credit in the sum of $6,651.00.
 - (iii) Yes Charge in the sum of $1,200.00
 - (iv) CitiFinancial in the sum of $2,790.00.

THE LAW:

Section 5.(1) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

(a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or

(b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty;...

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The onus of proof rests upon the Registrar in this matter.

There are two issues to be dealt with and they are:

1. Did the Applicant in completing his application for registration knowingly fail to disclose a pending criminal charge?
2. Is the Applicant's financial position such that the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business?

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971 - 1989) page 95 Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act and its Regulations. This was confirmed by Divisional Court in the matter of Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050 where that court on appeal quashed the Tribunal's decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his proposal and in sending the matter back for re-hearing stated at page 1051.

It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

The proper function of the Tribunal is to review the decision of the Registrar and the evidence presented to the Tribunal at the hearing in order to determine whether or not the Registrar was in error in coming to his decision to refuse the Applicant's registration. That which follows is therefore a review of the Registrar's decision as well as the evidence presented at the hearing.

1. FAILURE TO DISCLOSE PENDING CRIMINAL CHARGE

There is no doubt that the Applicant, at the time he completed his application for registration on February 27, 2002, failed to disclose a pending criminal charge. In fact the Applicant did not deny either the pending criminal charge or that he had failed to disclose that pending charge in his February 27, 2002 application. The charge arose out of an allegation of possession of stolen property on September 4, 2002. This is apparent from the CPIC report.

(Exhibit 3 tab 5)

When, on March 21, 2002 the Applicant wrote to OMVIC he stated and by way of an explanation for his failure to disclose the pending charge that he "probably misunderstood the questions and their meaning".

When the Applicant testified at the hearing he gave a different explanation to the Tribunal for his failure to disclose the pending charge which was that he did "not know what charges pending meant". The Applicant had changed his reasons for failing to disclose the pending charge.

The Tribunal had the opportunity to observe the Applicant when he testified and finds that the Applicant, while not entirely proficient in English, was quite comfortable in that language and at no time found difficulty in expressing himself in English or in responding to or understanding questions put to him in English.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant, who admitted reading the application prior to his signing it, did understand the question asking whether he had charges pending. The Tribunal further finds that he denied that he faced a pending charge when he well knew of the pending criminal charge. The Tribunal believes that the Applicant deliberately did not disclose the pending charge as he feared that if he did disclose the charge he would jeopardise his chances of registration as a motor vehicle salesperson. This failure to disclose a material fact is both dishonest and indicates a lack of integrity.

Accordingly, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's conduct affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

2. THE APPLICANT'S FINANCIAL POSITION

The Applicant did not dispute the fact that he had debts which remain due, owing and unpaid to Household Financial Corp., Trans Canada Credit, Yes Charge and CitiFinancial. The above debts total over $11,000.00. The Applicant presently owes a past due amount of $2507.00 to Chrysler Goldkey and in addition has suffered an involuntary repossession of a leased vehicle with a reported balance of $40,000.00 owing to G.E. Capital Equipment Finance, the lessor of that vehicle.

The Applicant contended that the 90 day suspension of his driver's licence which occurred in November, 1999 led to his "bad debts." He did testify that after his truck was repossessed by G.E. Capital Equipment Finance he worked in various jobs such as a carpet installer at $85.00 per day, a drywaller at $100.00 per day and as a musician earning over $2,000.00 per month.

Quite clearly the Applicant has not been a large earner by any means but the Tribunal notes he made no effort to liquidate any of his debts. His past record insofar as his finances are concerned show numerous bad debts where firms with whom the Applicant did business suffered not insubstantial financial losses.

The Tribunal does not believe that the 90 day driver's licence suspension was the cause of his financial problems. The Tribunal believes rather that the Applicant's numerous defaults in his financial responsibilities indicate the Registrar's fears are well founded that the Applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business and is not a suitable person to be registered as a motor vehicle salesperson.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal dated April 7, 2002 to refuse the registration of Goran J. Iliev as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant was stopped by the Ontario Provincial Police ("O.P.P") on March 24, 2000 while driving erratically and was taken by ambulance to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Barrie. There was no alcohol in his car or on his breath. His story was that he had just come from his pharmacy, where he renewed his medications: Atenalol, Paxil, Antabuse, Tiamin and Valium, and that he had just taken a pill. He was kept at the hospital overnight for monitoring. The Emergency Room physician sent a Medical Report to the Ministry of Transportation as per Section 177 of the Highway Traffic Act, indicating that the Applicant was not able to drive. He was discharged to the care of his family physician. He has a longstanding history of alcohol consumption, at times excessive.

On June 7, 2000 the Ministry of Transportation informed the Applicant that his driver's licence was suspended because of his medical condition which might impair his ability to operate a motor vehicle safely (Highway Traffic Act, section 41.(1). Reconsideration by the Ministry would be based on medical reports from a neurologist and if cleared - a driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

On June 26, 2002 the Applicant's family doctor at the time, Physican #1, Barrie, referred him to Physican #2, neurologist at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. Physican #2's report includes the history of off and on heavy drinking for approximately 20 years. There were minimal neurological findings viz: tremor of the outstretched hands and leg ataxia, attributable to the effects of alcohol on his nervous system.

On November 30, 2000 the Applicant was reviewed by the "Skill Builders" rehabilitation centre of Barrie to evaluate his fitness to drive. The scores and skill demonstrated by the Applicant indicated that he has adequate skills for driving despite the mild tremors of his hands.

The above reports were reviewed by the Medical Review Section of the Ministry of Transportation who notified the Applicant on December 11, 2000 that he would need a up-to-date assessment and laboratory tests (M.C.V. and G.G.T.) to indicate the nature and extent (if any) of his alcohol related disability. He was given an Alcohol Assessment form to give to his doctor for completion.

Physican #3 of Barrie signed this from on December 28, 2000 but did not provide any information regarding alcohol consumption. Physican #3 has been the Applicant's new family doctor since July 2000. Several laboratory reports from September 2000 to January 2001 show very high values of the G.G.T., marginally high values of M.C.V. and negative urine drug screening.

On February 21, 2001 the Medical Review Section of the Ministry of Transportation informed the Applicant that they had decided his driver's licence should remain under suspension, with the usual notice that reinstatement would be considered on receipt of satisfactory medical reports.

An Administrative Review was done April 30, 2001. The Applicant was again advised that no decision would be made until updated medical information was received.

A report was received from a Physican #4 of Barrie, dated February 28, 2002. This included 24 urine drug screen tests from December 1, 2001 to February 13, 2002 - all of which were negative for drugs and alcohol.

On May 21, 2002 the Medical Review Section acknowledged Physican #4's report but again deferred consideration to the reinstatement of the Applicant's driver's licence pending receipt of the previously requested medical information.

The Applicant sent a Notice of Appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal which was received June 19, 2002. There is some question as to the date he submitted his appeal, or whether it was received because a second filing fee of $100.00 was returned to him as not required for reinstatement.

At the hearing, held July 30, 2002 by telephone to the Applicant in Barrie, certain relevant history was elicited. In 1994 he spent 3 weeks in prison in Windsor Ontario followed by a psychiatric disorder for which he was hospitalised at the St. Thomas Hospital for 6 weeks. He was prescribed medication in decreasing dosages as he improved.

Also in 1994 he was referred by his employer's medical advisors to Homewood for rehabilitation and treatment of alcoholism, but signed himself out after one day.

In 1998 he was convicted of a driving infraction "ability impaired" and his licence was suspended for 15 months.

The Applicant has worked for his employer for 23 years and since his licence suspension has been given a ride by fellow employees to where he works. He is single. He is presently drinking up to 8 bottles of beer every 2nd or 3rd day and/or on weekends. He does not partake of any sports or physical activities. He states that he has stopped all his medication and claims that Antabuse is a placebo but it is not clear that he understands what that means.

While giving his evidence the Applicant made a number of accusations against the police and the Ministry. His tirade continued to the point where he made derogatory remarks to the Chair. Then he abruptly hung up the telephone which, of course, terminated the hearing and left many questions unanswered.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
 - (b) a driver's licence; or
 - (c) a CVOR certificate,
- on the grounds of,
- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
 - (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
 - (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
 - (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry of Transportation suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence was in compliance with the Highway Traffic Act, Section 47.(1) and Regulation 390/94, Section 14(b) "...be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely."

The Applicant has a long history of excessive alcohol consumption, albeit intermittent, with resulting medical and legal complication. The Ministry has requirements for reinstatement and the Applicant has passed the initial stages, a neurological assessment which shows that he does not have any serious neurological defect and the driving assessment, which he passed.

Unfortunately, he has not presented any satisfactory, up-to-date medical evidence of his present physical condition and his compliance with an alcohol rehabilitation program. He needs to establish an ongoing relationship with a physician who can monitor him and attest to his ability to drive, relative to his alcohol consumption. The proper completion of the Ministry of Transportation Alcohol Assessment Form would also be quite useful.

As an intermittent drinker he may very well pass but with the information on file now it is uncertain whether he can drive a motor vehicle safely at all times.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 18, 2000 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant, age 43, has had a number of syncope attacks since the age of eight. It is not clear how many or at what intervals but there have been none in the past two years. When her younger sister died suddenly of hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, other members of the family were investigated because of the congenital nature of this disease. The Applicant was diagnosed with this disease by Physician #1, Windsor, Ontario, whose report of October 1, 2001 suggests the prophylactic implantation of a defibrillator. This was subsequently done by Physician #2 at the London Health Science Centre on November 16, 2001.

Physician #1's report was also sent to the Ministry of Transportation indicating concerns regarding her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely. The Ministry suspended her licence on the basis of Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act and advised her that reconsideration would be dependent on the results of follow up cardiac assessments. She was monitored by her specialist in Windsor, Ontario, and by the Arrhythmia Service in London, Ontario. Holter monitor tests were satisfactory. Physician #3's latest report of June 28, 2002 was satisfactory.

A review by Physician #4 of the Hypertrophic Cardiomyopathy Clinic at the Toronto General Hospital on July 5, 2002 reports that the Applicant is asymptomatic, has no evidence of defibrillator shock and suggested that she should be allowed to drive.

The Ministry of Transportation thereupon approved her "G" licence and she was so notified on July 23, 2002.

Her present appeal is for the reinstatement of her class "B" licence to enable her to resume her job as a school-bus driver.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued, in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;

- (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;
 - (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
- (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and
 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
- (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Highway Traffic Act, Section 17.(1)(d) states that a holder of a class "B" driver's licence "has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle..."

The Canadian Medical Association's guidelines "Determining Medical Fitness to Drive" 6th edition, Section 8.1.4 Subsection B, Disturbances of Cardiac Rhythm (1) Ventricular fibrillation and/or sustained ventricular tachycardia disqualifies a person from commercial driving even with an implanted cardioverter/defibrillator.

The Applicant's medical situation fits both parameters described above. Hypertrophic Myocardiopathy is a serious congenital progressive heart disease characterized by disturbances of heart rhythm. If this disease process is arrested or controlled by medication and/or implantation of a defibrillator, this person may qualify for a "G" driver's licence since the risks involved are negligibly higher than for the general population. However, when this risk is multiplied by the number of passengers in a school bus and you consider that these passengers are children, the added risk becomes unacceptable.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 6, 2002 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DATE OF HEARING: August 9, 2002

DECISION RELEASED: August 13, 2002 St. Catharines

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 9, 2002, at St. Catharines, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Christine M. Tweedle (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1984 GMC Van, licence plate AHDM 256 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	July 23, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the driver's licence was not under suspension and that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(b) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 9, 2002 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

The Respondent's Representative provided the Tribunal with original certified copies of the documents on file.

The Applicant introduced in evidence two photographs of the van, which on consent were entered as exhibits # 4.

Witnesses were excluded at the suggestion of the panel.

The Tribunal notes that portions of the evidence proffered at the hearing, more particularly details of a previous incident concerning the suspended driver Randy Stewart, as well as allegations made with respect to the officer involved in this matter, are not germane to the issue and will not, therefore, be transcribed.

There were no other preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the bases of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

The cruiser lights where activated I pulled over to the side of the road, I rolled down my window the rest of the way and then
I reached behind the passengers seat to get my owner ship and insurance papers in a box I

He looked into the van an asked over me to randy that he wanted to see his License he then went around the van and opened the door
And told randy he was under arrest of driving while disqualified and then put him in the cruiser and then told me to get my stuff

This is the same officer that Randy has had problems

With out my van I cannot take my newly born baby to his Doctors in Grimsby I also have 3 other kids I need to drive around I also need it to go to work with. I can not also pay the amount of the impound if it stays in the full 45 days This is not my fault I was driving my own van and I am the one that has to suffer Because this Police Officer has issues with someone else. I shouldn't have to go through this hardship with all I have with 4 kids and a job. So I ask you to please help me to get my van back for my Children and me.

P.S I have Pictures of the van and the tinted windows
As proof and this statement from our sitter.

At the hearing the Applicant testifying under oath, opted to focus on the hardship grounds for appeal and so stated several times during the hearing.

In her evidence-in-chief and in cross-examination, the Applicant cited both economic and health factors of hardship.

Economic reasons being loss of income. On or about July the 25th, the Applicant was unable to accept a job due to her inability to arrange for a babysitter to come to her home. Taking the four children to a babysitter, would have required two trips, as the Applicant's second vehicle, a Camaro, only has four seat belts. The Applicant is aware that the law makes it illegal to transport young children without the mandatory precautions of the use of seat belts, and believes that she would have been fined had she attempted to do so. The loss of the vehicle has also resulted in a loss of income, in that the van is used to haul "...vehicles ...furniture ...brings in $400.00-$500.00 a month..."

Without the extra income the family is finding it difficult to "...pay the bills and the mortgage...". The Applicant is also very concerned that she may not continue to be able to afford buying the special formula her son requires, as he is lactose intolerant.

Although her baby's health has not apparently been affected, the Applicant has been forced to miss two appointments with his physician. The Applicant testified that the doctor's office has "threatened" that if another appointment is missed "...they will have to call Children's Aid because he has to see the doctor..."

During her testimony, the Applicant related to the Tribunal an incident that took place the day before the hearing. Her daughter fractured her arm. Given the fact that the Applicant is not able to take all the children in the Camaro, the Applicant had to call and wait for a baby sitter to arrive at her home, before being able to take her young daughter to the hospital.

Under questioning by the Respondent's Representative the Applicant confirmed that she was the driver of the vehicle at the time of the impoundment.

The Applicant was admittedly reluctant to comment on the issue of whom was driving the vehicle at the time they were stopped by the police. As a means of clarification the Applicant explained: "I don't know if this statement will be used when we do go to the Court house, so I don't want to say too much. Because if it is used at the court house, than he is going to know everything that is against him when we do go to the Court house, because he has been subpoenaed...".

The Applicant called Randy Michael Stewart as a witness. Mr. Stewart testified that they have four children and that it is difficult to make ends meet, due to the loss of income realized by the use of the van.

In reply to the Respondent's Representative question as to who was driving the car "...on the morning of June the 15th...", Mr. Stewart replied: "Gee, I don't know if I can say anything, because I am going to court with this, right. I don't want to say anything that is going to jeopardize...". After insistence from the Tribunal that the question be answered, Mr. Stewart stated: "...She was..."

In closing the Applicant reiterated her statements regarding her need for the vehicle. The Applicant emphasized the extra cost of babysitting, and the loss of income.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Randy M. Stewart;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving While Disqualified under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 16, 2003.

The Respondent called Dwayne Pardoe, an officer with the Niagara Regional Police Services, as a witness.

Reading from his notes, Constable Pardoe testified that on the morning of July the 15th, he was traveling westbound, in uniform, in a marked police cruiser, on the Queen Elizabeth Highway. Observing a black GMC van, also westbound on the QEW, and having “...recognized ...vehicle...”, Constable Pardoe followed the vehicle as it exited off the Queen Elizabeth Highway. Immediately behind the vehicle, and “...taking a sharper corner ...as the vehicle rounded the corner...”, Constable Pardoe was able to see the driver of the van, whom he described as “...a male wearing sun glasses ...recognized ...male, known ...as Randy Stewart...”.

Constable Pardoe described for the Tribunal his observation after the vehicle pulled to the side of the roadway and stopped: “...As I approached the driver's side of the vehicle I observed that the vehicle was rocking on its suspension as if someone was moving inside of the vehicle. I approached the driver's side door and there was a female in the driver's seat, who identified herself as Ms Christine Tweedle. Mr. Stewart was in the passenger's seat ...”

The van in the pictures introduced by the Applicant was identified by Constable Pardoe as the van in question. Constable Pardoe could not recollect whether the windows were rolled down or not, but insisted that his view was unobstructed and that he was able to see clearly Mr. Stewart driving, as the van made the turn.

The Applicant did not wish to cross-examine the officer, as “...he is already going to be subpoenaed in court...”, but did state that she had seen him four or five car lengths behind her. Constable Pardoe denied being so far behind and reaffirmed that he was directly behind the van.

In reply to a question posed by Ms Barbara Fraser, a member of the Tribunal, Constable Pardoe stated that it took approximately "...sixty seconds..." for him to get from his cruiser to the side of the van.

In her closing remarks, the Respondent's Representative rebutted only the hardship issue, maintaining that hardship was the single issue on which the Applicant based her appeal.

The Respondent's Representative referred to section 22 of Regulation 632 which sets out the criteria for hardship, and argued that Applicant must prove that her losses are immediate, significant and long lasting. According to the Respondent's Representative, the Applicant has demonstrated that there have been immediate and significant losses, but these losses are not long lasting.

With respect to the health and welfare of the family, the Respondent's Representative contends that although there have been some missed appointments, the family has survived for the past three weeks, and as there is only two more weeks for the impoundment, there should not be any further risk.

The Respondent's Representative claims that the impoundment may be inconvenient to the Applicant, but that inconvenience is not grounds for reversal.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(b) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(b) alleging that the driver's licence of the driver driving at the time of the impoundment order was not under suspension, section 55.1(2) of the Act states:

Where a police officer or officer appointed for carrying out the provisions of this Act is satisfied that a person was driving a motor vehicle on a highway while his or her driver's licence is under suspension under section 41 or 42 or 43, even if it is under suspension at the same time for any other reason, the officer shall,

- (a) notify the Registrar of the fact or cause the Registrar to be notified; and
- (b) detain the motor vehicle that was being driven by the person whose driver's licence is under suspension until the Registrar issues an order under subsection (3).

Section 41 of the Highway Traffic Act identify the type of appeals for which a licence is suspended in sections 41(1)(a), (b), (c), (d), and (e) and 41(7) and 42(1) and 42(5) as follows:

Section 41(1) Subject to subsections 41.1 (1), (2) and (3), the driver's licence of a person who is convicted of an offence,

- (a) under section 220, 221 or 236 of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed by means of a motor vehicle or a street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of Motorized Snow Vehicles Act;
- (b) under section 249, 252, 253 or 255 of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed while driving or having the care, charge or control of a motor vehicle or street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act;
- (c) under subsection 254 (5) of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed in relation to the driving or having the care, charge or control of a motor vehicle or street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act;
- (d) under a provision that is enacted by a state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations; or
- (e) referred to in a predecessor to this sub-section, is thereupon suspended

Section 42.(1) The driver's licence of a person who is convicted of an offence under subsection 259 (4) of the Criminal Code (Canada) or under a provision that is enacted by state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations is thereupon suspended for a period of,

- (a) upon the first conviction, one year; and
- (b) upon a subsequent conviction, two years, in addition to any other period for which the licence is suspended and consecutively there to.

- (4) This section applies in the same manner as if a person were convicted of an offence if the person pleads guilty to or is found guilty of an offence referred to in subsection (1) and,
 - (a) an order directing that the accused be discharged is made under section 730 of the Criminal Code (Canada) or under a provision that is enacted by a state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations; or
 - (b) a disposition is made under section 20 or sections 28 to 32 of the Young Offenders Act (Canada), including a confirmation or variation of the disposition. R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8, s.42 (1-4).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

- (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

During the hearing the Applicant asserted that she was basing her grounds for appeal solely on the issue of hardship. In her closing remarks the Respondent's Representative chose to refute only the matter of hardship.

Nonetheless, the Tribunal has reviewed this matter at great length, and finds section 50.2(3)(b) of the Act to be of paramount importance.

Section 50.2(3)(b) prescribes as follows:

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are...

- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;

The Tribunal's premise that the Applicant is relying on Section 50.2(3)(b) is corroborated by the Notice of Appeal filed by the Applicant, which clearly indicates that the Applicant also appealed on the grounds: "the driver's licence was not under suspension".

There can be no argument that the Notice of Appeal constitutes part of the proceedings. Therefore, the contents therein simply cannot be ignored. In this case, before considering the issue of possible hardship, the Tribunal must primarily determine whether there was just cause for the impoundment of the Applicant's vehicle.

At issue is the identity of the driver when the vehicle was pulled over by officer Pardoe.

All witnesses agree that the Applicant was sitting in the driver's seat when Constable Pardoe approached the vehicle.

Controversy arises due to the conflicting evidence, as to how the Applicant came to be sitting behind steering wheel. Although, irrelevant, as the issue was raised, the Tribunal will proceed to examine the particulars.

In her written submissions to the Tribunal the Applicant explicitly notes that "... The cruiser lights where (sic) activated I pulled over to the side of the road, I rolled down my window... ". At the hearing the Applicant introduced evidence by way of photographs, that the van in question had tinted windows. Constable Pardoe was able to identify the van in the photographs, but could not recollect whether the windows were down or up, nor whether the van had tinted windows. Nonetheless, Constable Pardoe attested that he plainly saw the disqualified driver, Randy Stewart driving the van. Furthermore, Constable Pardoe asserted that tinted windows did not hinder his line of vision, therefore it can be inferred that the windows were down.

The Applicant told the Tribunal that she had been driving since they left the house. Constable Pardoe claims that the van was "... rocking on its suspension as if someone was moving inside of the vehicle... ". With all due respect to Constable Pardoe's instincts the Tribunal cannot make a finding based on assumption or speculation.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant was in fact the driver of the vehicle at the time of the impoundment, and that since the Applicant's driver's licence was not under the suspension, the van is deemed to have been improperly suspended.

Hardship is a consequence of impoundment. There being no grounds for impoundment, there is no need for the Tribunal to address the issue of hardship.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

REASONS FOR RULING AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an application to the Licence Appeal Tribunal to extend the time for the Applicant, Derek Scanlan, to file an appeal to the Notice of Proposal dated May 9, 2002 of the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. The proposal is to revoke the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.

The hearing of this motion proceeded as an electronic hearing. The Applicant filed a Notice of Motion with the Tribunal dated July 2, 2002 together with supporting documentation. The reasons for the Applicant's motion to extend the time for filing his appeal are set forth in the documentation filed with the Tribunal. The Applicant contends that he did not receive the Registrar's Notice of Proposal as it was mailed by the Registrar to an incorrect address. When ultimately the Applicant learned of the Registrar's proposal, the time within which the Applicant was required to appeal the proposal to the Tribunal in terms of Section 7.(2) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act had expired. The Applicant's solicitors requested the Registrar's consent to an extension of time for the filing of an appeal but such request was refused, hence the Applicant's motion to the Tribunal. The Registrar has filed materials opposing the Applicant's motion.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

Having heard Counsels' submissions and having considered the documentation filed by the Applicant and the Registrar the Tribunal finds the following facts to have been proven.

1. The Applicant was on January 2, 2001 registered as a motor vehicle salesperson.
2. In or about May 9, 2002 the Registrar executed a written Notice of Proposal to revoke the Applicant's registration as a motor vehicle salesperson.
3. The aforesaid proposal was on May 10, 2002 sent by registered mail to the Applicant at 60-53 Tannton Road East, Oshawa, Ontario, L1G 3T6.
4. On May 31, 2002 the proposal was returned, marked "unclaimed" by the postal authorities, to the Registrar.
5. The proposal came to the notice of the Applicant on or about June 13, 2002 when the Applicant's employer was notified by the Registrar, by way of "Final Notice" that, as the Applicant had not exercised his right to a hearing in terms of section 7.(2) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the proposal had become final.
6. By letter dated June 19, 2002 the Applicant's solicitor forwarded to the Tribunal a Notice of Appeal by the Applicant to the Registrar's Notice of Proposal.
7. The Applicant was on March 26, 2002 found guilty and convicted on one count of unlawfully by deceit, falsehood or other fraudulent means defrauding Wayne Bolahood, operating as J-Bee Motors Limited, of a sum not exceeding $5,000.00 contrary to section 380(1)(a) of the Criminal Code of Canada and amendments thereto. The Applicant received a suspended sentence.

THE LAW:

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

"Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

"(a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and

"(b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.".

Section 7 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, R.S.O. 1990, states:

"(1) Where the Registrar proposes to refuse to grant or renew a registration or proposes to suspend or revoke a registration, the Registrar shall serve notice of the proposal, together with written reasons therefor, on the applicant or registrant.

"(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the applicant or registrant is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the applicant or registrant mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Registrar and the Tribunal, and the applicant or registrant may so require a hearing.

"(3) Where an applicant or registrant does not require a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Registrar may carry out the proposal stated in the notice under subsection (1)..."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The test for determining whether there are reasonable grounds for applying for an extension of time to file an appeal and for the granting of relief are dealt with in Re Bilodeau and ONHWP (1994) 25 CRAT 930. In order to be successful in a motion to extend the time for filing an appeal, an Applicant must show:

1. That there was an intention to appeal within the time limit;
2. That the reason the notice of appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicant should be excused for not doing so and allowed to do it later if he did so as soon as the true situation was apprehended;
3. That there is not some overriding prejudice to the Respondent in allowing the application.
4. That there is a substantial point in issue and the Applicant has some reasonable chance of success.

The Tribunal, when considering whether or not to grant an extension of time for the filing of an appeal must be cognizant of the fundamental principle that justice must be done.

In applying the tests above mentioned to the facts found proven in this particular matter, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant did have the intention to appeal within the time limit. The Applicant only became aware of the proposal when it was brought to his attention by his employer after June 13, 2002. Within six days thereafter the Applicant's solicitor had notified the Tribunal of his client's intention to appeal the proposal. This was well within the 15 days permitted by Section 7.(2) of the Act. The reason why the Applicant did not serve his Notice of Appeal earlier was due to the Registrar's proposal having been mailed to an incorrect address.

There is no overriding prejudice to the Registrar in allowing the extension of time. No evidence was presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar that he would suffer prejudice if an extension was granted and the Tribunal finds there to be no prejudice caused by the delay in the Applicant's filing of his Notice of Appeal. The situation that gave rise to this motion was caused by the inadvertence of the Registrar.

Finally, the Tribunal has considered whether the Applicant has some reasonable chance of successfully appealing the Registrar's Notice of Proposal. The bar is not set high for an Applicant to show a reasonable chance of success before the Tribunal in opposing the Registrar's proposal. Upon being found guilty and being convicted on one count of fraud under $5,000.00, the passing of sentence upon the Applicant was suspended. No background information regarding the conviction and passing of a suspended sentence was placed before the Tribunal. It is conceivable that at the hearing of the Registrar's proposal there will be information placed before that hearing that may indicate the reason and circumstances for a suspended sentence being passed. To deny the Applicant an opportunity to fully and fairly deal with the conviction and the reasons for a suspended sentence being imposed would be a denial of a just resolution regarding the proposal.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999, the Tribunal orders:

1. That the application to extend the time for the filing of the Applicant's appeal to the Registrar's Notice of Proposal dated May 9, 2002, be and is hereby granted.
2. That the Applicant, within 10 days of this order, shall provide in writing to the Registrar, with a copy to the Tribunal:
 - (a) full and precise particulars of the "extraordinary circumstances surrounding" the Applicant's conviction of March 26, 2002 on a charge of fraud as referred to by the Applicant in schedule "A" to the Applicant's Notice of Appeal dated June 19, 2002.
 - (b) full and precise particulars of the "error in both fact and in law made by the Registrar in refusing to register" the Applicant.
 - (c) full and precise particulars of the Registrar's error "in fact and in law in refusing to register" the Applicant on the basis of past conduct.
 - (d) full and precise particulars of what past conduct of the Applicant is inconsistent "with the intention and objectives of the Act."

DATE OF
HEARING: May 6 & 7, 2002 Kingston

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This matter arose from the decision dated May 4, 2001 of the Registrar, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, denying the major structural defect claim of Margaret Pergunas. The Program found that the cracking of the ceramic tiles was not a major structural defect. As well the inadequacy of the joist header, the inadequate joist support at the stairway opening and the distance between two floor joists were not defects that met the definition of major structural defect. By the Notice of Appeal filed by the Applicant's agent on May 21, 2001 the Applicant contested the denial of the claim and requested a hearing before the Tribunal. This matter had originally been scheduled for hearing on October 4 and 5th, 2001. The Applicant had requested an adjournment in order to permit her expert to complete his report. Hearing dates were scheduled for December 11 and 12, 2001. But the Program requested an adjournment of those dates in order to permit its expert to complete his report. On consent of parties the matter was adjourned to January 21 and 22, 2002. A further adjournment requested by the Applicant was granted and the hearing was rescheduled for May 6 and 7th, 2002. The hearing proceeded on May 6 and 7th, 2002 with all the parties in attendance.

ISSUE:

Does the claim by Margaret Pergunas fall within the definition of Major Structural Defect as found in Regulation 892 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act?

EVIDENCE:

The Applicant Margaret Pergunas testified as did her expert, Alasdair Higginson.

Margaret Pergunas' testimony:

Mrs. Pergunas testified that she took possession of her home on August 14, 1998. She noticed the first cracks in her floor tiles in late October, 1999. Her first reaction was to have the installer, Discount Carpet, fix the problem. She informed them of the problem in November, 1999 and an employee from Discount Carpet did come to her home in January, 2000. But in March, 2000 she noticed new cracks and by April, 2000 she found there were cracks all over her ceramic floor.

Mrs. Pergunas then got the Program involved with this problem and Mr. Brent Caskenette did an inspection of her home on November 16, 2000. In his report of February 20, 2001 Mr. Caskenette stated the problems did not fall under the major structural defect warranty and the claim was denied.

On the advice of friends she sought the assistance of Mr. Louch, currently acting as her agent at this hearing, who did a report dated March 6, 2001 in which he stated that the tile was cracking due to the structural failure of the floor system.

The builder had offered to put a wall in the basement in January, 2001 but she had not accepted that offer as Mr. Louch had told her that the wall needed to have a foundation.

Mrs. Pergunas said she was getting conflicting information from the Program and the builder as to whether or not the problem was due to the method by which the ceramic tiles had been laid initially. The person from the floor system, Mr. Bucci, had stated in his report of December 20, 2000 that there had been overlay panels. But her builder, Mr. Farmer, said her floor was not overlaid.

Mrs. Pergunas got an estimate from Floor and Wall Centre in Brockville in March, 2001. After repairs to the floor joists and subfloor they estimated the cost of replacing the existing ceramic floor to be $7,476.64.

Then Mrs. Pergunas got the report from her expert, Mr. Higginson, dated September 26, 2001. He found that the subfloor did not meet the Ontario Building Code and the floor joists were not installed in accordance with the manufacturer. Her expert estimated the cost of repairs at over $18,000.00, which included not only replacement of the ceramic tiles but repairs to the floor assembly.

Mrs. Pergunas stated that in December, 2001 the builder again stated he would build a wall in her basement. Her agent, Mr. Louch, responded on her behalf in January, 2002 and listed a number of conditions before the wall could be built. The builder did not agree to these conditions and the wall has not been built.

Mrs. Pergunas stated that she was not happy with the work of Discount Carpet and did not want them to do further repair work at her home. She feels that all the tiles will need to be replaced as the design is not discontinued. She wants a proper subfloor with the joists positioned properly. She wants the wall in the basement to be done properly.

Mrs. Pergunas stated that the cracks are now from wall to wall. The repaired cracks are now cracking again. There are cracks in the floor of her entrance way, her hallway, her bathroom, her broom closet, and in a number of places in her kitchen.

Under cross examination Mrs. Pergunas agreed that in her letter to the Program dated February 10, 2000 she had not mentioned the problem with the ceramic tiles. She agreed that the builder had replaced her hardwood floor at no cost to her. She agreed that there had been issues with the casement windows and the builder had tried to correct it. She was still not happy with that situation. She had paid $1,795.00 for the upgrade for the ceramic tiles.

Mrs. Pergunas stated that Mr. Walker had screamed at her and wanted to buy back her house plus 3% increase.

She thought that she might have refused to allow the floor joist company to inspect her floor in the fall of 2000.

Mrs. Pergunas stated that she continued to live in the house despite her concerns with the safety of the subflooring. The wall was not constructed in the basement as she relied upon the advice of Mr. Louch.

Testimony of Alasdair Higginson

Mr. Higginson graduated from civil engineering in 1996 from Carleton University. He has worked as a structural engineer for over three years. He was registered as a professional engineer in June, 2001 and has worked with Buchan, Lawton, Parent since August, 2001. He works in the field of building science and building envelope. This is his first report on flooring and his first time giving testimony. He was qualified as a structural engineer expert.

Mr. Higginson spoke of the issue of the joists near the stairway opening not being adequate to carry the load of the house. The joist members were picking up a large amount of the kitchen load. In his opinion the floor system is not properly designed and is unsafe. The joists were not supposed to carry that kind of load. Photo 3 in his report shows how the joist was being used as a pick up beam. He stated that in order to calculate the weight load you need to consider the different types of beams. With engineered wood products you should use the LVL beam.

Mr. Higginson pointed out the basement plan of the house which showed that there was to have been a wall to support the floor joist. You would need footings as this is a load bearing wall. This is stated in the OBC 9.15.3 As the plywood underlay is not in compliance with the Ontario Building Code it could possibly crack.

Mr. Higginson also stated that the floor joists and the subfloor must act together. If the subfloor is not glued but just nailed then it is overspanned and does not meet the manufacturer's specifications. It will deflect more and over exceed the maximum limits specified by the manufacturer as set out in the vibration controlled floor span tables. For instance in a subfloor that is nailed only the span should be 13' 11" but he found the joist spans to be 15' 1", 14' 7½ " and 14' 3".

He found the major structural defect to be that the subfloor assembly does not meet the building code. The underlay used was ½" but the code requires 5/8", section 9.30.6.3(1)(b). He stated that photo #4 in his report shows that the thickness of the underlay in the front hallway measured as ½". He was unable to tell if the joints are offset.

Mr. Higginson stated that he could not agree with Mr. Finney's calculations as these calculations were based on the subfloor and the underlay working together. He was not sure if that is the case here as he is unsure of the location of the joints and underlay. He also stated that the proper way to test a floor would be to flood it with water. Deflection does not mean anything if there is no live load.

As well Mr. Higginson stated that the Terrazzo Guild has requirements for the subfloor and the current joist spacing and underlay in the house does not meet those requirements.

Under cross examination Mr. Higginson stated he had not viewed the building plans or made any inquiries to the building department of the City of Brockville. He was unsure as to the extent that the floor would flex and shear. He did not know the number of joists in the home. He was making engineering assumptions as to where the load was going and that the floor could possibly collapse. It was common sense that the load was being transferred. He agreed that he had not seen compression at that location nor the floor deflecting when stepped on. He was assuming that the two joists were supposed to be beams. The structural integrity was being compromised by the tiles cracking. The major structural defect is the two joists at the staircase.

Mr. Higginson stated that this defect was not affecting the use of the house by Mrs. Pergunas. Maybe if there were a number of people in the house at one time the floor might not support the load. He had not suggested any remedial steps in his report and he did not feel the house was severely unsafe. He had not told Mrs. Pergunas to put in two Jposts to support the wall and floor. He agreed that most homes has some sort of structural deficiencies. He agreed that with a ¾" subfloor, which is the floor installed in this house, the joists are installed in compliance with the tables provided by the manufacturer. As well the tables he had used came into force in July, 1998 and when Mrs. Pergunas's house was being built the manufacturer would have been using the older manual and tables. Mr. Higginson stated that he had not seen any evidence of glue on the joists but he agreed that if Mr. Finney saw such glue, then the floor is correctly spanned.

Mr. Higginson did not agree with Mr. Finney's conclusion that one can combine the underlay and subfloor thickness and find that the system is better than required by the OBC. According to Mr. Higginson the OBC requires 5/8" for the underlay so there is a violation of the Code.

Mr. Higginson could not give a definitive answer to what was causing the ceramic tile to crack. He had no evidence whether or not the installation procedures had caused the tile to crack. In his opinion the floor system is inadequate to support the ceramic tile. He agreed that his reference to the Terrazzo Association standards was not relevant as these standards do not apply to pre manufactured systems.

The Added Party called the builder, William Farmer, as its witness.

Testimony of William Farmer:

Mr. Farmer is one of two principals of the numbered company which is the Added Party to these proceedings. Since 1989 he has built about two hundred homes. This is his first hearing and his first claim with the Program. He had changed the windows for Mrs. Pergunas and redid her hardwood floors even though she had initially picked the colour of the hardwood and then had not liked it. If she had not upgraded to ceramic tile there would have been vinyl floors in the kitchen and bathroom and carpet in the hallway.

Mr. Farmer agreed that they should have put in the wall as outlined in the floor plans. They had asked her for permission to put the wall in but that had not happened due to the dispute over the method of installing the wall. It does not have to have footings nor be drywalled. The engineering drawings do not require footings for that wall. The subfloor and overlay are glued and screwed down. It is an overlay method with the plywood offset from the edge of the wafer board.

Mr. Farmer stated that there is no previous bad experience with using Discount Carpet as his supplier. Another subcontractor installed the tiles in the Pergunas house. He felt that the cost of replacement for the same quality of tiles would be $3879.66 for cost of tiles and $374.50 for wood.

Mr. Farmer stated that there is no evidence of improper deflection or squealing or noise on the tile. It is not a major structural defect. Either the stud wall or two Teleposts would rectify any deficiencies. The City of Brockville was happy with the wall being constructed. He provided a quote of $375.00 which included drywall.

The Program called Mr. Fernando Bucci, Mr. Bernard Finney and Mr. Philip Mayhew as its witnesses.

Testimony of Fernando Bucci:

Mr. Bucci is the technical representative for True Joist, the manufacturer of the flooring system. He has a degree in architectural/building sciences from McGill University and experience in construction with his father. He has worked for True Joist since 1988.

Mr. Bucci explained that the True Joist floor system was invented in the late 1960's. It uses engineered lumber and is sold as a package through the lumberyard dealers to builders. The manual used by the manufacturer at the time of the construction of the Pergunas house was not the Limited States Design.

He was asked to inspect the Pergunas house by the builder. He did so on December 8, 2000. In the hallway and kitchen he found telegraph cracks in the ceramic tiles which were on the edges of the underlay. One needs to consider the type of joists, their span and bearings, the spacing of the joists, the type of subfloor and such components as strapping. He examined the knock out holes used to pass wiring through. He saw no difficulty with these holes and felt they made no impact on the capacity of the joists.

Mr. Bucci felt that the tiles were cracking due to the expansion and contraction of the overlay. The fact that one joist is 22.5" does not make any difference to the subfloor. Indeed with $\frac{3}{4}$ " one can space the joists up to 24" apart. He did feel that one needs to put in a wall or two header joists in lieu of a wall by the stairway. Otherwise you cannot load it to its ultimate load, that being 40 lb. live load per square foot and 15 lb dead load. The Ontario Building Code factors in a safety factor of over 2 $\frac{1}{2}$. He did some tests using measurements which differ from those of Mr. Finney. His tests did show that the joist was insufficient for the load but that does not mean it will collapse. It is not a major failure and indeed Mr. Bucci felt that it is not unusual to have these stress situations in up to 75% of the homes that he has inspected. He felt that the stud wall would take the load off the header joist. Or you can install two header joists.

Mr. Bucci stated that he knew the definition of major structural defect as found in Regulation 892 and did not feel this situation met that definition. There was no failure of the structure, no evidence of load failure, and no structural integrity problem.

Under cross examination Mr. Bucci stated he could not say with certainty why the tiles were cracking. He thought the definition of major structural defect required a total collapse. Here there was no evidence of excessive deflection. The stairs are safe to walk on but he would consider doing the recommended repairs.

Testimony of Bernard Finney:

Mr. Finney has his Masters in Engineering from Waterloo. He worked as a structural engineer for five years and since 1978 has had his own practice in Lindsay. He does 220 to 250 projects per year. He is recognized as an architect as well as a professional engineer. He does approximately 50 forensic engineering/architect cases per year. Mr. Finney was recognized by the Tribunal as an expert in structural engineering and architectural engineering.

Mr. Finney visited Mrs. Pergunas's home on December 11, 2001. His terms of reference were to review the ceramic tiles, consider the floor frame and the floor sheathing system and consider any major structural defect. He is familiar with the definition of major structural defect as found in Regulation 892. He reviewed a number of previous reports, obtained a copy of the floor plans and discussed the computer analysis with Mr. Bucci.

Mr. Finney discussed the methodology of determining the surface failure load and the design factors used to determine loads and safety factors. The allowable stress factor involves a formula of dividing the surface load stress by a flexor factor of 1.6 or a shear factor of 2.25. For example, a floor could be flexible enough but not strong enough. The methodology involves taking the amount of load and equating to the amount of deflection. Mr. Finney defined flexor, shear and deflection.

In a residential situation Mr. Finney stated you have about 12 lbs of live load and between 12 to 15 lbs of dead load. If your surface load is close to the design load then there are serious problems. The Ontario Building Code is used as a standard of care. Mr. Finney stated that in this case, with a TGI floor system, the safety factors are flexibility at $2\frac{1}{2}$ the design load and shear at $3\frac{1}{2}$ the design load.

Mr. Finney testified that he saw no visible structural defects at the home of Mrs. Pergunas. There were no cracks or fractures in the structure. He spent $2\frac{1}{2}$ hours viewing the home. Mrs. Pergunas showed him the cracks in her ceramic tiles. The TGI floor system is engineered timber. The subfloor is glued and screwed to it. He saw evidence of glue over 75% of the timber. The underlay is not part of the system but is a finish element for the ceramic tile. The subfloor is $\frac{3}{4}$ " OSB and the underlay is $\frac{1}{2}$ " OSB. He did no destructive testing of the system.

Mr. Finney explained that in an engineered floor system such as Tres Joist all the elements are controlled and should be 100% reliable. The manufacturers of Tres Joist use their own tables and procedures to analyze their product. Mr. Bucci did not take exact measurements when he did his site visit so Mr. Bucci's measurements differ slightly from those taken by Mr. Finney.

Mr. Finney stated that the 2 span continuous is the dominant span in the house. His analysis is that the floor system is more than adequate. The ceramic tile is not attributable to the TGI floor system. He had walked and jumped in the travel areas of the home and did not find any uncomfortable situations. He did this to consider the surface load deflections.

Regarding the holes complained of by Mr. Louch Mr. Finney would not spend any money fixing them. While the holes reduce capacity of the shear by 15% the safety factor is still 46%. He found no evidence of sagging joists. Only three of the holes were improper and they would have no impact on the deflection performance of the floor system.

Mr. Finney saw no need for footings for the stud wall. He would do it in accordance with the floor plan. You could also put in a jackpole with a bigger base plate.

Mr. Finney found that the trimmer joist was 10 to 12% overstressed and the header joist was 60% overstressed. The header joist only has a sphere of influence of 4 feet, while the trimmer joist has a different sphere of influence. Mr. Finney's tests on the trimmer and header joists were different from Mr. Bucci as Mr. Finney's measurements were more exact. He did agree that the design load condition was overstressed and the transfer of load to adjacent joist in the stairway area could be 15 to 20%. He agreed with Mr. Bucci that the stairs are safe to use but he also would repair them.

Mr. Finney stated that the missing stud wall does not compromise the structural integrity of the home in any material or adverse fashion. It has no impact on the intended use of the home. In order for there to be material or adverse affect the overstressed conditions would need to be much higher. He saw no evidence of movement of the vertical support elements though there was some transfer by the header joist but no shedding or visible signs of stress on that header joist.

Regarding the joist that is at 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ " Mr. Finney stated that joist was taking 8% more load than the adjacent joists but there is a 26% reserve factor. The subfloor is rated for joists at 24". He found no evidence of distress on any TGI over the whole house.

The subfloor consists of OSB (oriented strand board) which is an engineered product. It is used to improve quality as it is superior to plywood. The subfloor is $\frac{3}{4}$ "

OSB and the underlay, which should be 5/8 plywood, is actually 1/2 OSB. According to his calculations the combination makes for 25% greater stiffness. So while it is not in strict compliance with the Ontario Building Code, it is 25% stiffer. There is no major structural defect of the floor components.

Regarding the ceramic tile Mr. Finney has expertise in ceramic tile installation, both commercial and residential. Mr. Higginson had experience in concrete floors. Mr. Finney felt the tile used was of low quality. The issue is to use tile with a low water absorption rate. Otherwise the tile expands dramatically and will have voids in its structure. One needs to look at the humidity level of the floor and whether or not the tile is adhered directly to the underlay. Control joints are required and the humidity level of the home must be monitored in the winter.

Mr. Finney found the need for a control joint at the north end of the foyer and one at the door of the washroom. As well the tiles in the Pergunas house were laid at 45 degree diagonal which leads to more cracking in the tiles. Putting them on top of mortar also increases risk of cracking. In such cases it is now industry standard, according to Mr. Finney, to use a decoupling membrane such as polyethylene membrane. The tiles are telegraphed on the joints of the underlay. If the floor joists were the problem there would be far more cracking of tiles and there would be a pattern of cracking tiles at the joists. The tiles would crack within the sphere of influence of the floor stress. He felt that the cracking of the tiles was due to a number of these factors: 45 degree angle, direct adhesion to underlay, moisture and temperature changes and no proper control joints. The tiles were not cracking due to the joists, subfloor or the underlay. So the problem is improper installation which is a defect in workmanship and not due to major structural defect. The moisture levels in the subfloor, the tile and in the air are the major issues.

Regarding the issue of the cost to repair Mr. Finney felt his estimate was consistent with that of the contractor. Mr. Finney estimates the cost of repairs to be $7,458.55.

In conclusion Mr. Finney felt that the replacement of the tiles is for esthetic purposes. The overstressed header beam is a significant deficiency but is not a major structural defect.

Testimony of Philip Mayhew:

Mr. Mayhew is a certified civil engineering technologist of over 25 years experience. He has been a warranty representative for 24 years. He does about 120 inspections per year and major structural defect problems account for about 20% of those inspections.

Mr. Mayhew stated that he agreed with the decision of Mr. Caskenette, the original representative for this matter who made the original decision to refuse the claim. Mr.

Caskenette no longer works for the Program. Mr. Mayhew inspected the home on May 5, 2002. and stated that he agreed with the decision of Mr. Caskenette to refuse the claim.

Mr. Mayhew stated that the date of possession of the home was August 14, 1998. The letter of February 10, 2000 was the first written notice to the Program of any problems. The letter of September 13, 2000 was the first written notice on these particular problems. Mr. Mayhew testified that this specific builder has an excellent rating with the Program and has no chargeable conciliations.

Mr. Mayhew stated that regarding claim #1 in the decision letter he found no evidence of joist sagging, no evidence of compression or acceleration and no significant deflection with Ontario Building Code standards. He found no evidence to support claim #2. He accepts the evidence of Mr. Finney regarding claim #3. He also agrees with the evidence of Mr. Finney regarding claim #4 as the all joists are 19.2" except for the one near the stairs which is 22.5".

Mr. Mayhew stated that the panel underlay and the tile are not structural elements but finish elements. He felt that under section 2.7 of the OBC an engineer has latitude for design that meets with the intent of the Code. It is sufficient for the Program if the intent of the Code is met. Here there is a defect of workmanship and material but not a major structural defect. There is no failure of load bearing portion and the problem does not materially or adversely affect use. It is speculative to consider future damage.

It is the understanding of Mr. Mayhew that the builder wished to put in the stud wall but Mrs. Pergunas would not allow it. The Program can do nothing if the homeowner will not allow the builder to rectify the problem.

Under cross examination Mr. Mayhew stated he had seen glue and screws in a number of areas of the flooring. He is not aware of any complaint by Mrs. Pergunas that she cannot use her house.

Closing statements:

Mr. Louch stated that Mrs. Pergunas has no trust in this builder due to the previous problems with the windows and the hardwood floor. The Tribunal should rely on the deficiencies in the joists as found in the tests of Mr. Bucci. There have been violations of the Ontario Building Code. Mr. Louch submitted that there had to be a review of the stamped drawings to see if the stud wall requires footings. There is at least one crack of the tile floor due to the problem with the joist at the stairs that materially and adversely affects the house.

Counsel for the Program states that the onus is on the Applicant to show the problem meets the definition of major structural defect. After reiteration of the evidence Counsel directed the Tribunal to a number of cases.

In the case of Re Galko (1997) O.C.R.A.T.D. no.111 there is a discussion of the concept of major structural defect. It is stated at page 3 "A major structural defect in our view and as we have found in the past must inter alia be one which renders a home virtually uninhabitable, uncomfortable beyond reason, unsafe or in a state of imminent collapse."

In the case of Re Buss O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 257 it is stated that prospective fears do not make a defect a major structural defect. In the case of Re Lowry O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 256 the Tribunal quotes two cases Proestos (1992) CRAT 758 and Dan Vera (1988) 17 CRAT 185 for the proposition that fear of future problems cannot constitute a major structural defect. In the case of Re Restagno O.C.R.A.T.D. no 129 the Tribunal found that there was no major structural defect as there was "no failure to any load bearing portions or any major negative impact on its load bearing function. The use of the building has not been materially and adversely affected."

Regarding the issue of whether or not the homeowner has received a benefit under section 14 (2) of the Act, Counsel for the Program relied upon the case of Re Wilkinson O.C.R.A.T.D. 78 whereby the offer by the builder to remedy the problem was found to be a benefit within the meaning of the Act and the homeowner had not suffered any damages. As well, in the case of Re Baldassarre O.C.R.A.T.D. no. 83 the Tribunal found that the refusal of the homeowner to allow the builder to remedy the problems was a denial under section 14(3) of the Act. This section permits the Program the opportunity to perform or arrange to have performed the work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages.

Counsel for the Added Party pointed out the inconsistencies in the testimony of the homeowner and her expert and requested that the Tribunal accept the evidence of the Program and the Added Party if there were differences between their evidence and that of the Applicant. He stated that the builder was prepared to put in the stud wall but that had been denied by the homeowner.

LEGISLATION:

The relevant legislation is that of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act and Regulation 892.

Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act:

s. 13 (1) Every vendor of a home warrants to the owner,...

(b) that the home is free of major structural defects as defined by the regulations;

...

s. 14 (1) Where,...

- (c) the owner suffers damage because of a major structural defect as defined in the regulations for the purposes of section 13, and the claim is made within four years after the warranty expires or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed,...

the person or owner is entitled to be paid out of the guarantee fund the amount of such damage subject to such limits as are fixed by the regulations.

(2) In assessing damages, the Corporation shall take into consideration any benefit, compensation or indemnity payable to the person or owner from any source.

(3) The Corporation may perform or arrange for the performance of any work in lieu of or in mitigation of damages claimed under subsection (1).

Regulation 892

"major structural defect" means, for the purposes of section 13(1) (b) of the Act, any defect in work or materials

- (a) that results in failure of the load bearing portion of any building or materially and adversely affects its load bearing function, or
- (b) that materially and adversely affects the use of such building for the purpose for which it was intended,

including significant damage due to soil movement, major cracks in basement walls, collapse or serious distortion of joints or roof structure and chemical failure of materials, but excluding flood damage, dampness not arising from failure of a load bearing portion of the building, damage to drains or services, damage to finishes and damage arising from acts of God, acts of the owners and their tenants, licensees and invitees, acts of civil and military authorities, acts of war, riot, insurrection or civil commotion and malicious damage

(2) Every vendor of a new home warrants to the owner,...

- (e) that the home is free of major structural defects.

Section 16

Where a home was enrolled after the 31st day of December, 1990, the claim for damages because of a major structural defect may be made within seven years of the date specified in the certificate of completion and possession.

ANALYSIS:

The Applicant is claiming that her home has a major structural defect. She is claiming for the replacement of her ceramic tiles, and repairs to her floor assembly which would cost over $18,000.00. The Program states that while she has problems with the cracking of her ceramic tiles, that in itself is not a major structural defect. The cracking of the ceramic tiles is not due to any defect with the floor assembly but with the method of installation and the type of tiles used on the floor. The installation of two Jposts or of a stud wall would solve any issues of stress around the basement stairs. The cost of repairs would be approximately $7,500.00 to replace the ceramic tiles and fix the floor assembly near the staircase.

The issue here is whether or not the problem fits within the definition of Major Structural Defect as stated in Regulation 892. In the opinion of the Tribunal it fails to meet that definition.

The defect must be one that either results in the failure of a load bearing element, or materially and adversely affects its load bearing function, or materially and adversely affects the intended use of the home. None of these components of the definition can be found in this claim.

The experts disagreed as to the causes of the cracking of the ceramic floor. Mr. Higginson felt that the cracking of the tiles was symptomatic of serious problems with the floor assembly. Mr. Finney, on the other hand, felt that the tiles were cracking due to a combination of factors: water absorption of the tiles; humidity level of floor; and how tile was installed: 1. Directly to underlay or using a decoupling membrane, 2. At an angle, 3. Use of control joints. In his opinion the problem was due to improper installation.

The Tribunal accepts the evidence of Mr. Finney over that of Mr. Higginson. Mr. Finney is acknowledged to have expertise in ceramic tile installation while Mr. Higginson stated his experience was with concrete floors. Mr. Finney gave a detailed explanation on the factors which led to the tiles cracking while Mr. Higginson could not give a definitive answer to the problem. As well Mr. Higginson relied on practices and procedures which were not correct for the subfloor, current joist spacing and underlay for the Pergunas home.

Regarding the floor assembly the experts disagreed as to whether the issues with the joists at the basement stairway met the definition of major structural defect. Mr. Higginson stated that the joists near the stairway opening were not adequate to carry the load of the house. There was a wall missing from the plans for the basement. The plywood underlay did not comply with the OBC. It was ½" instead of 5/8". The major structural defect was that the subfloor did not meet Code.

But Mr. Higginson did not find that this defect affected the use of the house by Mrs. Pergunas. He had not suggested any remedial steps in his report and he did not feel the house was severely unsafe. He had not told Mrs. Pergunas to put in 2 Jposts to support the stairway opening. This is significant. Mr. Higginson did not fully understand the definition of major structural defect. You can have a problem and not be in compliance with the Ontario Building Code and yet that does not in itself constitute a major structural defect. The load bearing capacity has to be affected in a severe way or the use of the house has to be materially and adversely affected. This is not the case here. Mrs. Pergunas has done no repairs to support her floor assembly. She continues to use all parts of her home.

The Tribunal prefers the evidence of Mr. Finney and Mr. Bucci. They both agree that it would be preferable to put either a stud wall or Jposts near the basement opening in order to assist with stress of the joists in that area. But they do not feel that defect, or the fact that the underlay is ½" rather than 5/8", constitutes a major structural defect.

Mr. Bucci had done tests using approximate measurements. Though the two joists failed the tests he felt that the safety factors were more than sufficient. He found no evidence of excessive deflection, no failure of the structure nor evidence of load failure. The Tribunal was impressed with his demeanor and evidence and accepts his opinion.

Mr. Finney has a great deal of experience with similar problems. His report was thorough and comprehensive. He disagreed with Mr. Higginson that failure to meet the Code constitutes a major structural defect. The Code is a standard of care. He saw no visible structural defects, no excessive surface load deflections, and no shedding or visible signs of stress. The holes in the joists do not affect the performance of the floor assembly. In his opinion the combination of the subfloor and underlay made for a greater degree of stiffness than that required under the Code. He would put in a stud wall with no footings or two Jposts to reduce the stress on the header beam. None of the deficiencies met the definition of major structural defect. His evidence, both in its scope and complexity, was impressive and the Tribunal accepts his conclusions.

It is unfortunate that Mrs. Pergunas did not accept the offer of the builder to install the stud wall. The Tribunal found Mr. Farmer to be a sincere and honest person who has tried to appease Mrs. Pergunas throughout the construction of her home. Mrs. Pergunas has somewhat unrealistic expectations of her new home and has unfortunately placed her trust in individuals who lack the expertise to inform her of how to correct her problems. Indeed Mrs. Pergunas is suffering with deficiencies in her ceramic tiles and with the joists near her stairway opening. Due to the limitations of the legislation her remedy does not lie with the warranties offered by the Program. She must seek other venues for redress.

The Tribunal agrees with the case of RE Wilkinson that the offer of the builder is a benefit within section 14 (2) of the Act. As well the Tribunal agrees with the case of Re Baldassarre that the homeowner has violated section 14(3) by not permitting the Program to have the builder construct the stud wall.

The definition of major structural defect does not include speculation over future problems. The Tribunal accepts the conclusion as stated in Re Lowry which relies on the cases of Proestos and Dan Vera, supra that concern that in the future the defect could lead to the floor to collapse does not meet the components of major structural defect.

ORDER:

Pursuant to the authority vested in it by section 16(3) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal directs the Program to disallow the claim of Mrs. Pergunas.

MOHEBALI MOJARRAB O/A UPTOWN USED CARS

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR UNDER THE
MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REVOKE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DEREK ISRAEL, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: FREDERICK YACK, Counsel, representing Mohebalí Mojarrab AVIVA HARARI, Counsel, representing the Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATES OF
HEARING: July 2, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) from a Notice of Proposal (the “proposal”) pursuant to Section 7 of the Motor Vehicles Dealers Act (the “Act”). The proposal dated January 7, 2002, seeks to revoke the registration of Mohebalí Mojarrab o/a Uptown Used Cars (the “Applicant”), as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act. The proposal sets out the Registrar’s reasons for seeking an order for the revocation of the Applicant’s registration as a motor vehicle dealer. The reasons are stated as follows:

The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that the financial position of Registrants be such that they can be reasonably expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Registrants’ past conduct and financial position is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to continue to register Mohebalí Mojarrab o/a Uptown Used Cars (the “Dealer”) under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

The Particulars upon which the Registrar relies are stated in the proposal, as follows:

1. Mohebalí Mojarrab o/a Uptown Used Cars (hereinafter referred to as the “Dealer”) is a sole proprietorship, which was first registered as a dealer on February 9, 1999.

2. A criminal record search found Moheballi Mojarab has the following criminal convictions:

August 30, 1999: Assault
 Utter Threats
 Breach of Recognizance x2

3. A criminal record search found Moheballi Mojarab has the following charges pending:

June 11, 2001: Threatening Death or Injury x2

4. The Dealer has failed to make full disclosure on application submitted to the Registrar.
5. On or about September 18, 2002 the Dealer purchased a 1992 Acura Legend (VIN JH4KA7673N800346) at auction. The odometer disclosure at the time of purchase was 201,152 kilometers. The vehicle was subsequently sold to a consumer named Juliet Pokuaa with an odometer disclosure of 145,856 kilometers. The Dealer failed to disclose the true distance travelled by the vehicle at the time of sale.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 1)

Subsequent to the proposal, by way of Notice of Further and Other Particulars dated May 22, 2002 the Registrar added the following allegations to his proposal,

1. The Dealer has an outstanding judgment against him dated December 3, 2001 and to the date the judgment remains outstanding.
2. The Dealer has breached the terms and conditions of his registration, signed on February 2nd 1999, particularly clause "k") which states:
 - k) The Dealer agrees that he is under a positive obligation to disclose all material facts about the vehicles he sells to his customers. The Dealer agrees to make reasonable efforts to research the history of all his vehicles prior to sales to ensure all material fact are disclosed. The Dealer agrees that should any information come to light, which the Registrar deems to be a material fact, concerning a vehicle the Dealer has sold, the Dealer will comply with all reasonable requests made by the Registrar to provide compensation to the purchaser.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 1)

By written Notice of Appeal the Applicant, in terms of section 7.(2) of the Act, informed the Tribunal that he required a hearing regarding his appeal to the Registrar's proposal.

THE EVIDENCE:

The evidence presented to the Tribunal by the Registrar consisted of documentary evidence as well as the testimony of Lloyd Amponsa and Laura Gordon. The evidence presented by the Applicant consisted of his testimony and that of Ali Mahmoodpour Tehrani.

LLOYD AMPONSA

Amponsa stated in his testimony, that he was looking to purchase a vehicle for his mother and that in response to an advertisement in the "Auto Trader", a motor trade publication, he viewed a 1992 Acura motor vehicle (the "Acura") on January 4, 2001 at the premises of Uptown Used Cars at Finch Avenue West, Toronto. He met with one "Ali", a salesperson who showed him the Acura and gave him the keys to the vehicle to enable him to test-drive it. After test driving the vehicle Amponsa decided to negotiate the purchase of the Acura and a price, inclusive of tax, was agreed in the amount of $12,000.00. Although no bill of sale was then presented to him, Amponsa paid to Ali a cash deposit of $200.00 and said he had to arrange with the bank for financing of the balance. On January 7, 2001 Amponsa returned with a bank cheque of $10,000.00 which together with the cash deposit of $200.00 he had already paid as well as further cash which he then paid, amounted to $12,000.00. A bill of sale was presented to Amponsa for his signature

(Exhibit 5, Tab 9).

Amponsa was shown a copy of this bill of sale at the hearing. He stated that there was no handwriting on the left hand side of the original bill of sale that he signed. He also testified that when he viewed the Acura, test-drove and later took delivery of the vehicle, he was not told the vehicle had done over 201,000 kilometers. On taking delivery of the Acura on January 7, 2001, he noticed the odometer was not "reading" and he took the vehicle back to the dealership where an argument ensued over the defective odometer. Amponsa sought the assistance of the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("OMVIC") who later informed him that they had investigated and ascertained that the Acura had in fact travelled a distance of over 201,000 kilometers, whereas the bill of sale between Amponsa and the Applicant stated the distance travelled as 145,856 kilometers. Amponsa confirmed in testimony that 145,856 kilometers was the reading of the Acura's odometer when the vehicle was delivered to him on January 7, 2001.

Subsequently, at the suggestion of OMVIC, Amponsa accepted the sum of $500.00 from the Applicant as a rebate on the purchase price.

In cross-examination Amponsa stated that he met the Applicant for the first time when he took delivery of the Acura on January 7, 2001. The Applicant is known as "Moe".

Amponsa stated that the initials or signature on the bill of sale immediately under the handwritten words on the left hand side of that document (Exhibit 5 Tab 9) is his. He stated that when he signed the bill of sale on January 7, 2001, when taking delivery of the Acura, there were no words written on the left side of the bill nor were the words "customer knows the odometer has been changed on January 9, 2001, customer knows and agrees" on the bill of sale at the time of his signing. In answer to the question as to why he had signed under those handwritten words Amponsa stated, "I had to agree to the odometer being changed before they could change it". He went on to state that these words were added so that the defective odometer could be changed by the Applicant.

On cross-examination by the Applicant's Counsel, Amponsa was shown a document which Applicant's Counsel stated was the original bill of sale. (Exhibit 6) This document had not been disclosed by the Applicant in terms of the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal but Applicant's Counsel was permitted by the Tribunal to put this document to Amponsa solely for the purpose of cross-examination.

Amponsa, when shown the original bill of sale (Exhibit 6), was asked by Applicant's Counsel why he had signed under the following additional written words that appear on Exhibit 6 but do not appear on Exhibit 5 Tab 9:

"Customer has been informed the car has 201,000 kilometers and has been changed because it has been defective."

Amponsa explained that these words were added by the Applicant to the original bill of sale which was in the Applicant's possession when, some three or four months after delivery of the Acura, Amponsa went to the Applicant's premises to pick up the Applicant's cheque for $500.00 which OMVIC has arranged as a rebate on the purchase price. Amponsa stated that he placed his signature under these words as he had become tired of the entire affair and did not know what else he could do other than accept the $500.00 rebate negotiated on his behalf by OMVIC.

LAURA GORDON

The second person to testify on behalf of the Registrar was Laura Gordon ("Gordon").

Gordon stated that she is the Director of Compliance with OMVIC having been with OMVIC since 1997. She stated that OMVIC is a non-profit organization empowered to administer the Act and its regulations.

Gordon further testified that when the Applicant was originally registered he consented to registration subject to written terms and conditions. The following three terms and conditions were included in the general terms and conditions to which he had consented. Those three terms and conditions read as follows:

- a) The Dealer acknowledges and understands that it will not retain the services of a salesperson unless the salesperson is registered as a salesperson to the Dealer.
- b) The Dealer further acknowledges that the restrictions concerning the activities of salespersons referred to in these terms and conditions, applies to both buying and selling on behalf of a dealer. "Buying and selling" refers to showing a vehicle to be prospective purchases or any form of negotiation concerning the purchase or sale of a vehicle and is not limited to the signing of contracts. This further includes attendance at auctions on behalf of the Dealer."

- k) The Dealer agrees that he is under a positive obligation to disclose all material facts about the vehicles he sells to his customers. The Dealer agrees to make reasonable efforts to research the history of all his vehicles prior to sale to ensure all material facts are disclosed. The Dealer agrees that should any information come to light, which the Registrar deems to be a material fact, concerning a vehicle the Dealer has sold, the Dealer will comply with all reasonable requests made by the Registrar to provide compensation to the purchaser.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 5)

Gordon also testified that the distance travelled by a vehicle is a material fact that should be disclosed by the dealer to a prospective purchaser. This was the type of positive obligation envisaged by paragraph "k" in the terms and conditions. Gordon went on to state that when an OMVIC inspector called upon the Applicant on January 20, 1999 the inspector advised the Applicant in writing that he was to disclose "in writing on the bill of sale all material facts known". The inspector also gave the Applicant a written example of how to complete a bill of sale, which example reads "odometer was replaced at 250,000 kilometers, current reading 131,000 kilometers, true mileage unknown".

(Exhibit 12)

Gordon also referred to the wholesale bill of sale dated September 12, 2000 entered into by the Applicant when he purchased the Acura at an auction conducted by Toronto Auto Auctions. On this bill of sale the signature of the Applicant appears as the purchaser of the Acura and the odometer reading of the Acura is stated to be 201,152 kilometers. Gordon stated that OMVIC obtained possession of this document when the Applicant handed it to OMVIC during OMVIC's investigation.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 9)

Gordon also referred to the Applicant's February 5, 2001 application for registration as a motor vehicle dealer. In that application in answer to the question:

"Are there any charges pending or has the Applicant been found guilty or convicted under any law?"

the Applicant answered "No".

(Exhibit 5 Tab 7)

The above answer, Gordon contended, is untruthful as according to the C.P.I.C. report of the Ontario Provincial Police dated October 3, 2001 the Applicant has the following convictions:

AS OF: OCTOBER 3, 2001

...

AUG 30 99
NEWMARKET

(1) ASSAULT
(2) UTTER THREATS BREACH OF RECOGNIZANCE X2

(1-3 60 DAYS, 18 MOS
PROB AND S110
ORDER 5 YRS

In addition the C.P.I.C. report states the following charges are pending:

THREATEN DEATH INJUR X2
OFFENCE DATE: 11-JUN-2001

Gordon also testified that the Applicant has an unsatisfied civil judgement against him. This judgement was obtained in the Toronto Small Claims Court on December 5, 2001 for $4,572.76.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 4 Page2)

ALI MAHMOODPOUR TEHRANI

Tehrani testified for the Applicant and stated that in January 2001, he was in auto sales and carried on business as such under the name of A.M.P. Sales at Finch Avenue West, Toronto. The Applicant also operated a motor vehicle dealership at that address, although from different premises. In early January 2000, the Applicant was relocating his premises from 2300 Finch Avenue West to 5109 Steeles Avenue West. However, the Applicant's motor vehicles were still at 2300 Finch Avenue West, when Amponsa called at that address on January 4, 2001. As the Applicant was not present when Amponsa called and as the latter was interested in the Acura, which was owned by the Applicant, Tehrani attended to Amponsa. He showed the Acura to Amponsa, gave him the vehicle's keys and permitted Amponsa to test drive the vehicle. When on the completion of the test drive, Amponsa expressed an interest in purchasing the Acura Tehrani accepted a $200.00 deposit from Amponsa and drew up a bill of sale dated January 4, 2001. Amponsa arranged bank financing after he paid a $200.00 deposit. Amponsa returned on January 9, 2001 when he had arranged finance so as to complete the purchase of the Acura. On this latter visit both Tehrani and the Applicant were present with Amponsa. When Amponsa attended on January 9, 2001 and paid the agreed balance of the purchase price of the Acura, the bill of sale drawn up by Tehrani on January 4, 2001 was torn up and Tehrani drew up a new bill of sale which he dated January 4, 2001. This bill of sale was then signed by Amponsa and the Applicant.

(Exhibit 5 Tab 9)

On January 4, 2001 after the original bill of sale was draw up and Amponsa had paid the $200.00 deposit, Tehrani reported to the Applicant by telephone. The Applicant then "asked if I had told him about the odometer" and told Tehrani there was a defect in the vehicle's odometer. Tehrani had not informed Amponsa regarding the odometer as he has not known it was defective but at the meeting between Amponsa, the Applicant and himself on January 9, 2001 he heard the Applicant inform Amponsa of the defective odometer and this was when the words

"Customer knows the odometer has been changed on January 9, 2001, customer knows and agrees" were placed on the new bill of sale. Tehrani further testified that Amponsa had the opportunity at that time "to walk away" but did not do so as he said he wanted the Acura. The bill of sale (Exhibit 5 Tab 9) was then signed by Amponsa.

After January 9, 2001 the vehicle's odometer was changed by the Applicant and it was on January 12, 2001 that the handwritten additions were added on the original bill of sale by the Applicant and which were signed by Amponsa.

(Exhibit 6)

Tehrani stated in conclusion that he was at no time a registered salesperson with the Applicant.

MOHEBALI MOJARRAB

The next person to testify was Mojarab (the "Applicant")

Insofar as the sale of the Acura was concerned, the Applicant stated that he bought that vehicle at an auto auction on September 12, 2000 and that the vehicle's odometer then read 201,152 kilometers. Upon taking the vehicle from the auction he noted the odometer was not working and on September 14, 2000 he had the vehicle's odometer replaced by "Good Guys" who charged him with the replacement costs. The replacement odometer read 145,000.

(Exhibit 10)

Under cross-examination the Applicant stated that Amponsa was not given a copy of Exhibit 6. When shown a letter dated June 10, 2002 addressed to OMVIC from Acura Woodbine in which letter the latter stated that, according to its records, the vehicle's odometer was in working order when it sold the vehicle on September 12, 2000, the Applicant had no comment. The Applicant also stated he did recollect the OMVIC inspector's visit in January 1999 when he was then instructed in writing by that inspector on how to comply with disclosure requirements regarding replacement odometers in vehicles being sold by the Applicant.

(Exhibit 12)

The Applicant also acknowledged that he signed terms and conditions at the time the Registrar registered him as a dealer. However, he stated that "I didn't know what I signed".

(Exhibit 5 Tab 5)

The Applicant confirmed that Tehrani was not a registered motor vehicle salesperson in the employ of the Applicant when Tehrani showed the Acura to Amponsa on January 4, 2001.

Insofar as the convictions for assault, uttering threats and breach of recognizance were concerned, the Applicant admitted such convictions and further admitted not having disclosed those convictions to the Registrar in his application of February 5, 2001.

(Exhibit 5, Tab 4 and Tab 7)

The Applicant stated that the reason for his failure to disclose such convictions was that the convictions related to a domestic dispute involving his wife which he did not think he had to disclose "as it was a family matter and my probation Officer said I need not disclose".

Insofar as the civil judgement registered against him is concerned, the Applicant stated that he disputes that he owes the Plaintiff any amount and further disputes that he was served with either the Plaintiff's statement of claim or the judgement which was registered against him. He also stated that he has a good defence on the merits and that since he became aware of the default judgement entered against him, he has taken steps to have that default judgement set aside and a motion in that regard is presently pending.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The following are the facts found by the Tribunal to have been proven.

1. The Applicant was registered as a motor vehicle dealer in terms of the Act on January 9, 1999, subject to the terms and conditions as set forth in Exhibit 5, Tab 5.
2. Tehrani acted as a salesperson for or on behalf of the Applicant without being registered as a salesperson of the Applicant.
3. The Applicant was aware at the time of the sale of the Acura by the Applicant to Amponsa that the Acura had an odometer reading of 145,856 kilometers.
4. The Applicant was aware that at the time of the purchase by him of the Acura on September 12, 2000 that vehicle had an odometer reading of over 201,000.
5. The Applicant after purchasing the Acura on September 12, 2000 caused the odometer in the Acura to be exchanged and to be replaced by a replacement odometer with a reading of 145,856 kilometers.
6. The Applicant when selling the Acura to Amponsa, failed to ensure that the identical kilometer reading that appeared on the vehicle's odometer prior to that odometer's replacement, namely 201,152 kilometers, appeared on the vehicle's odometer after the exchange or replacement.

7. The Applicant failed to disclose in his February 5, 2001 application for registration as a motor vehicle dealer that he at that time had convictions for assault, uttering threats and breach of recognizance.
8. The Applicant has a default judgement registered against him in the sum of $4,572.00 arising out of claim made against the Applicant in the Toronto Small Claims Court under claim T50269/01.
9. On January 20, 1999 the Applicant was visited by an OMVIC inspector who instructed the Applicant regarding the necessity to disclose to purchasers all material facts known regarding the vehicle being sold, including specifically how to complete a bill of sale where there has been an odometer replacement.

THE LAW:

Section 5(1)(b) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act states:

5.(1) An applicant is entitled to registration or renewal of registration by the Registrar except where,

- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6.(2) of the Act states:

.....

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5 if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 3.(1)(b) of the Act states:

(1) No person shall,

- (b) act as a salesperson of or on behalf of a motor vehicle dealer unless the person is registered as a salesperson of such dealer and such dealer is registered as a motor vehicle dealer under this Act.

Section 4 of the Act states:

4. A motor vehicle dealer shall not retain the services of a salesperson who is not registered under this Act.

Section 19(2) of Regulation 801, as amended states:

(2) Where a motor vehicle dealer exchanges an odometer or effects any repairs to the odometer of a motor vehicle in the dealer's possession or control or to any other part of the motor vehicle that is directly related to the odometer, the dealer shall record in the reconditioning record of that motor vehicle the reading in miles or kilometers that was on the odometer prior to the exchange or repair and shall ensure that the identical reading appears on the odometer of the motor vehicle after the exchanges or repairs have been effected. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 801, s. 19 (2).

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

There are a number of issues for consideration by the Tribunal. These issues are:

1. Did the Applicant comply with the terms and conditions of his registration as a motor vehicle dealer?
2. Did the Applicant permit Tehrani to act as his salesperson when Tehrani was not registered to the Applicant as a salesperson?
3. Did the Applicant know that the Acura motor vehicle at the time of its sale to Amponsa's mother had travelled over 201,000 kilometers and if so did the Applicant disclose this fact to Amponsa?
4. Did the Applicant comply with Section 19.(2) of Regulation 801 to the Act?
5. Did the Applicant make full and true disclosure of his criminal convictions in his application for registration as a motor vehicle dealer?

The following is an analysis of the above issues and the conclusion and findings of the Tribunal regarding those issues.

1. Did the Applicant comply with the written terms and conditions of registration of February 2, 1999?

The Applicant consented to and signed written terms and conditions dated February 2, 1999. These terms and conditions (Exhibit 5 Tab 5) have been referred to in this decision and in the evidence of Laura Gordon.

The Applicant failed to comply with paragraph (a) of the terms and conditions in that he permitted Tehrani to act as his salesperson in the transaction of sale involving Amponsa when he knew that Tehrani was not registered as a salesperson of the Applicant. Accordingly, the Applicant in permitting Tehrani to act as his salesperson when he knew, or ought to have known, that Tehrani was not permitted to act as his salesperson, breached Section 3.(1)(b) of the Act.

2. Did the Applicant permit Tehrani to act as his salesperson when Tehrani was not registered to the Applicant as a salesperson?

The evidence of both Amponsa and of the Applicant and Tehrani clearly indicate that Tehrani acted as the Applicant's salesperson in connection with the Amponsa transaction. It was Tehrani that met with Amponsa on January 4, 2001 to show the Acura vehicle to Amponsa. It was Tehrani that discussed price with Amponsa, gave Amponsa the keys to the vehicle so that he could test drive it and it was Tehrani that wrote up the initial bill of sale of January 4, 2001. Tehrani reported by telephone to the Applicant immediately after concluding the deal with Amponsa and it was Tehrani that accepted and received the initial deposit on the vehicle from Amponsa. At a meeting between Amponsa and the Applicant subsequent to Amponsa's January 4, 2001 meeting with Tehrani, the latter was also present.

All the aforesaid facts indicate that the Applicant considered Tehrani to be his salesperson and permitted Amponsa to so believe. Tehrani was at no time registered as a motor vehicle salesperson to the Applicant. Allowing Tehrani to act as his salesperson was a clear violation of clause (a) of the signed terms and conditions that the Applicant consented to when he was registered by the Registrar. Not only was this a breach of a term of the Applicant's registration but it was clearly a breach of section 3.(1)(b) of the Act.

3. Did the Applicant know that the Acura motor vehicle, at the time of its sale to Amponsa's mother, had travelled over 201, 000 kilometers and if so did the Applicant disclose this fact to Amponsa?

The Applicant, according to his own testimony as well as the documentation disclosed by the Registrar, attended on September 12, 2000 at the auction conducted by Toronto Auto Auctions when the Applicant purchased the Acura motor vehicle. The Applicant not only attended at the auction but purchased the Acura when he signed the bill of sale (Exhibit 5, Tab 9). This bill of sale disclosed on its face that the Acura had an odometer reading at the time of the sale of 201,152 kilometers. The Applicant in his testimony did not deny that he knew of this disclosure when he purchased the Acura.

When on January 3, 2001 the Applicant sold the Acura to Amponsa's mother there was no disclosure on the bill of sale that the vehicle had travelled 201,152 kilometers. Indeed, the bill of sale indicated 145,856 kilometers, a clear falsehood in that the Applicant knew or ought to have known that it was false. At no stage prior to OMVIC becoming involved in this matter did the Applicant admit to the vehicle having travelled over 200,000 kilometers. It was OMVIC that brought the true kilometers to Amponsa's notice some time after the bill of sale had been signed by Amponsa.

The evidence of both the Applicant and Tehrani is rejected by the Tribunal in so far as disclosure of the true distance travelled by the Acura is concerned. The Tribunal specifically finds that Exhibit 6 was filled in by the Applicant insofar as the handwriting on the left hand side of the bill is concerned without the knowledge or acquiescence of the Amponsa. It is interesting to note that the Applicant did not forward a copy of Exhibit 6 to OMVIC when OMVIC requested a bill of sale but forwarded instead a copy of the document found at Exhibit 5 Tab 9. The Applicant made no reference to Exhibit 6 when in negotiations with the Registrar. The first and only time this exhibit appeared was when the Applicant's Counsel attempted to hand it in at the hearing. At no time prior thereto did the Applicant or his Counsel attempt to disclose this document.

The Tribunal finds that it is both material and fundamental to the transaction that the Applicant should have disclosed the vehicle having travelled a distance of 201,152 kilometers. This the Applicant failed to do. The Applicant disclosed a patently false figure of 145, 856 kilometers. The Applicant failed to comply with section 19.(2) of Regulation 801 to the Act in that the Applicant did not ensure that the replacement odometer recorded the kilometers that was on the odometer prior to replacement and failed to ensure that 201, 152 kilometers appeared on the vehicle's odometer after the replacement odometer had been fitted into the vehicle.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant had been fully instructed by an OMVIC inspector in 1999 as to how to precisely complete a bill of sale where an odometer had been changed. Despite this the Applicant ignored the instructions and in so doing misled and prejudiced the Applicant. As was stated in the Registrar v. Morato Cars and Radomir Miljkovic released on June 4, 2001, and with which statement the Tribunal associates itself;

There can be no doubt that when a member of the public purchases a second hand motor vehicle he wishes to make an informed decision before committing himself to a purchase. It is clearly material to any purchaser of a second hand motor vehicle that the vendor has disclosed to him all relevant and material information concerning the vehicle. It is both relevant and material to the contract that the purchaser knows the true mileage the vehicle has travelled which will help indicate if the price asked is fair and reasonable.

The Tribunal accordingly finds that the Applicant knowingly misled Amponsa insofar as the true distance travelled by the vehicle was concerned and that the Applicant violated section 19.(2) of Regulation 801 to the Act. The Tribunal, for the reasons already stated above finds the past conduct of the Applicant affords the Registrar reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In the leading case of Brenner 19 CRAT SCO Decisions and Orders (1971 – 1989) page 95 Southey J. held that a Tribunal should only refuse to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thinks the Registrar was in error in concluding that the past conduct of an Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that such Applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

To overrule the decision of the Registrar, the Tribunal must conclude that he was wrong in his decision and that the conduct of an Applicant does not afford reasonable grounds for the Registrar's belief that the Applicant will in the future carry on business in contravention of the Act and its Regulations. This was confirmed by Divisional Court in the matter of Albert Fascenda (1994) 26 CRAT Part II 1050 where that court on appeal quashed the Tribunal's decision to direct a Registrar not to carry out his proposal and in sending the matter back for re-hearing stated at page 1051.

It follows that the Tribunal should have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal only if it thought the Registrar was in error in his belief.

4. Did the Applicant comply with Section 19.(2) of Regulation 801 to the Act?

This issue has been dealt with in the third issue above.

5. Did the Applicant make full and true disclosure of his criminal convictions in his application for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson?

The uncontested evidence presented by the Registrar shows that the Applicant was on August 30, 1999 convicted of assault, utter threats and two counts of breach of recognizance.

In his February 5, 2001 application for registration the Applicant was specifically asked if he had been found guilty of or convicted under any law to which he answered in the negative. This answer is both false and misleading. It misled the Registrar into believing the Applicant was conviction free. The question posed by the Registrar in the application form was a material and important question for it assisted the Registrar in making a decision as to whether or not the Applicant may be a suitable and acceptable Applicant. The Registrar relied upon the honesty and integrity of the Applicant to answer the question truthfully. The Applicant's failure to truthfully answer the question indicates a lack of honesty and integrity on the Applicant's part. That the convictions were not industry related but were of a domestic nature is no justification for deliberately giving a misleading and untruthful answer. This past conduct on the part of the Applicant does not imbue the Tribunal with confidence that the Applicant's future conduct will be any more honest than his past conduct and that consumers will not be adversely affected in their dealings with the Applicant.

The Registrar is mandated in the Act with the duty and obligation to ensure that the general public is being ensured protection from malpractice by dealers and salespersons. It would be an abrogation of his duties for the Registrar to ignore or overlook the conduct of the Applicant which led to a hearing of the various issues in this matter. Serious issues arose in this matter and the evidence adduced has led to this Tribunal's finding that there is no error in the Registrar's reasons and conclusions for his proposal that the Applicant's registration be revoked.

DECISION:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by Section 7.(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers

Act, the Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his Proposal of January 7, 2002 to revoke the registration of Moheballi Mojarrab o/a Uptown Used Cars as a motor vehicle dealer under the Act.

KEN ROSENBERG, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home
Warranty Program, the Respondent

the Added Party

DATE OF
PRE-HEARING: July 19, 2002 Toronto

BACKGROUND:

At the request of Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1101, and Metropolitan Toronto Condominium Corporation No. 1120, (hereinafter called the "Applicants"), the Registrar of the Tribunal appointed the time and place for a Prehearing Conference in this matter on July 19, 2002 at Toronto (hereinafter called "the Conference").

The matter involves an appeal pursuant to the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act, RSO 1990 c. O.31 (hereinafter called "the Act") in each of two nearly identical decisions made by Ontario New Home Warranty Program (hereinafter called the "Program") each dated March 25, 2002, (hereinafter called the "Decisions"). The Applicants issued a Notice of Appeal dated April 3, 2002 with respect to each of the Decisions (hereinafter called the "Appeals") for a determination pursuant to the Act by the Licence Appeal Tribunal (herein called the "Tribunal") of the issues raised in the Appeals and noted in the Decisions.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice of the Tribunal, no testimony of witnesses was heard by the Tribunal at the Conference and all statements made by the Parties thereat were confidential and without prejudice to the various rights of the Parties at the eventual hearing of the issues by the Tribunal. At the Conference submissions were received from each Party and heard by the Tribunal as to the manner in which this matter should proceed in an orderly and expeditious way.

ISSUES:

It would appear that the Applicants are each the owner of nearly identical 12 story residential high-rise complexes situate at 18 Concorde Place in the City of Toronto, which were registered in the late winter of 1995 and spring of 1996, respectively. Both structures suffer water penetration and this condition was subjected in December of 1996 to a technical audit report (hereinafter called the "Medhurst Report"). The Added Party, Concorde Square Limited, (hereinafter called "the Builder") effected repairs to rectify the water penetration from August of 1996 to the autumn of 1999, but conditions of water penetration continued thereafter despite these attempts to repair effectively the condition. There would appear to be other deficiencies alleged by the Applicants such as the lack of a continuous air barrier and compliance with applicable regulation of the roof safety anchors. The claim is made by Robins, Appleby & Taub, Barristers & Solicitors, on behalf of both Applicants and is dated February 5, 2002, (hereinafter called "the claim"). The claim was evidently supplemented by a further letter from the said solicitors dated February 25, 2002, but this letter was not included in the material before this Tribunal at this time.

The Program, in its Decisions does not dispute the facts alleged in the claim as supplemented, but rather relies in its rejection thereof on the timeliness of the claim falling outside the two year statutory period prescribed by the Act and also citing a formal release document executed between the Applicants and the Added Party as the Builder. Counsel for the Program urged on this Tribunal that the Program had not in any way abandoned whatever further defence to the claim it might have by reason of its statutory rights, but rather chose the time limitation and its reliance on the executed release as the essential first step in its rejection of the claim and the expeditious way to proceed squarely with the legal issues before dealing with the more complex technical and engineering matters of the claim at a much greater cost.

The Appeals likewise confine the hearing to the legal issues in their rejoinder and request a prehearing conference, inter alia, "to clarify the issues to be dealt with at the hearing."

The conference also examined into the anticipated duration of the hearing given the number of witnesses to be heard and the testimony relevant to the execution of the formal release document. This Tribunal is content with the discovery process which took place at the conference and that all necessary parties were named and representatives of each were present.

ORDER

The Tribunal hereby orders:

- (1) That this matter should proceed without any further Prehearing Conference, and commence on Monday, October 21, 2002, at Toronto at 9:30 a.m., and shall continue, if necessary, on October 22 to 25, inclusive, 2002. Insofar as it is estimated that a further five days of hearing before the Tribunal will be required, Counsel for each of the Parties are forthwith required to consult among themselves and with the Registrar of the Tribunal to fix a further five-consecutive-working-day period for a continuation of the hearing as expeditiously as possible;
- (2) The issues to be heard by the Tribunal shall be confined to those issues of law contained within the Decisions and the Appeals, and shall include an understanding of the circumstances and intent of the formal release document executed by the Applicants and whether or not such can be relied upon by the Respondent as a bar to any relief sought by the Applicants under the Act or to the compensation fund administered by the Respondent;

WILLIAM G. LONG

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: DAVID J. HUNT, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES:

WILLIAM G. LONG, on his own behalf.
MICHAEL ROTHE, Counsel representing the Registrar
under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

DATE OF HEARING: August 7, 2002 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the 'Tribunal') arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act ("the Registrar", and "the Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated April 18, 2002 proposed to refuse the registration of William G. Long ("Long") under the Act.

REASONS

The reasons for this proposal are:

The intent on (sic) and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that Registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that Registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register William G. Long under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act.

PARTICULARS

The reasons for this proposal are:

- 1) The Applicant applied for registration as a motor vehicle salesperson on or about April 4, 2002.
- 2) The Applicant had his registration as a motor vehicle salesperson previously refused.
- 3) On the application to become a registered salesperson question 9 asks:
"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered)."

The Applicant said "yes", and indicated in the space provided:

"Assault w/ Firearm (Misdemeanor) B.B. Gun
Explanation already on file w/ OMVIC
Theft Under (Fail to Pay for Gas) Explanation already on file w/ OMVIC"

- 4) A criminal record search found that the Applicant has the following convictions:

August 23, 1991:	Assault with a Weapon (x2)
May 30, 1995:	Theft Under $1000 (x2)
	Fail to Appear

FURTHER PARTICULARS

It is further alleged as follows:

1. On or about March 27th 2002, William G. Long (hereinafter "Long") engaged in conduct that resulted in convictions under the Highway Traffic Act for Failing to Report an Accident and Improper Driving on Highway.
2. The vehicle involved in the accident was the property of Long's employer, Laurie Williamson Pontiac Buick GMC Ltd.
3. Long provided false information to Laurie Williamson Pontiac Buick GMC Ltd. and to the Registrar, MVDA regarding the vehicle.
4. Long has violated the terms of his Consent Order released by the Licence Appeal Tribunal on August 23, 2000.

THE LAW

Section 3 of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Act"), states as follows,

(1) No person shall,

Section 5 of the Act, states as follows;

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business; or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; or

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion , the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Section 140 of the Criminal Code of Canada states as follows:

140. (1) Every one commits public mischief who, with intent to mislead, causes a peace officer to enter on or continue an investigation by

(b) doing anything intended to cause some other person to be suspected of having committed an offence that the other person has not committed, or to divert suspicion from himself;

(c) reporting that an offence has been committed when it has not been committed; ...

CASE LAW

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

ISSUES

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to refuse the registration of the Applicant as a motor vehicle sales person under the Act.

WITNESSES FOR THE REGISTRAR

SONYA KLOSE MacDONALD

Sonya Klose MacDonald testified that she is the Sales Manager at Laurie Williamson Pontiac Buick GMC. ("Williamson"). In that capacity she was in charge of the sale of both new and used motor vehicles and had been the manager of the Applicant while he was at the dealership. She explained that she had been employed at Williamson for 10 years and prior to that had spent seven years at Holly Pontiac and was the business manager when she left that company. The witness stated that she had hired the Applicant, and that he had only worked for the company for 1½ to 2 days. On his first day he was given a company car but on the next day he called to advise them that the car was missing. Her recollection was that he told her that the car had been stolen from his driveway. Following this, the dealership received a phone call from the police, advising them that the vehicle had been found on the Queen Elizabeth Way and had been seriously damaged in an accident.

The police told her that the car had struck the guardrail and had been abandoned. She later had a conversation with the Applicant to find out if he had the car keys. However, he was not able to provide them and they were never returned. He did offer to pay the insurance deductible of $1,500.00 for the vehicle, and then asked if he still had the job at the dealership. The witness advised him that he had lost his job. Ms. MacDonald explained that most of the information she received concerning the accident was from the police, as the Applicant was forthcoming with very little information. A few days later the dealership arranged for the car to be towed from the police pound, and it was found that the damage to the vehicle was over $24,000 00

VINCE LIPAROTI

Mr. Vince Liparoti testified that he was employed at Williamson and had been the Used Car Manager there for four years. Prior to that he had been employed in the auto industry for approximately 17 years. He stated that he knew the Applicant although the Applicant had worked at Williamson for only a short period of time. Within three or four days of beginning his employment Mr. Long called the witness and told him that the vehicle he had been given by the dealership had been stolen from his driveway. The witness advised the Applicant to call the police. The Applicant told him he had already done so, and the witness asked for the name and the badge number of the officer.

Mr. Liparoti was unsure of exactly when this was, and originally said it was at the end of May 2002. Then he later reconsidered and said it was at the end of March 2002. He did remember that it was on a Wednesday morning after a 10:30 a.m. sales meeting. Mr. Liparoti also recalled that the Applicant offered to pay the $1,500.00 deductible and even asked if he was still employed at the dealership.

The witness stated that the dealership was advised that the vehicle had been found abandoned on the Queen Elizabeth Way, and had been taken to the police pound. They knew that the Applicant had been in possession of the vehicle at the time of the accident. When asked if he could form an opinion about the honesty and integrity of the Applicant, the witness stated that he could not form an opinion on the matter as the Applicant had only been at Williamson for three days.

In cross examination Mr. Liparoti confirmed that when the Applicant was hired, there was a discussion of what he was bringing to the dealership. He also stated that new salesmen were normally not given a 'demo' to drive until he or she had been there for 90 days. In this case the dealer agreed to provide a vehicle to the Applicant due to his sales record and his commuting distance.

MARY JANE SOUTH

The last witness for the Registrar was Mary Jane South who explained that she is the Deputy Registrar for the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council ("O.M.V.I.C.") and reports directly to the Registrar. In this capacity she oversees the registration of motor vehicle dealers and salespersons. She has been employed by O.M.V.I.C. since 1997 and prior to that was employed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles when the agency was administered by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. Before that, she held financial positions for 10 years with the government of Ontario.

Ms. South explained that a person is entitled to registration under the Act, pursuant to section 5, unless there are reasonable grounds to believe that they will not conduct themselves with honesty, integrity, and in accordance with the law. The Act also provides for consideration of financial responsibility, but that it is not an issue here. She explained that her concerns in this particular case were the prior criminal charges, the circumstances of the accident, the failure to provide correct particulars to the employer; the lie told initially to the police, and the failure to disclose the pending charges to O.M.V.I.C.

The Applicant is not currently registered but was previously registered based on a Consent Order (Exhibit 3, Tab 9), with conditions. These conditions required that he notify the Registrar under the Act, as well as his employer, if he was charged in the future under any law, and notify the Registrar under the Act of any convictions against him. Failure to comply with any of these conditions would result in an automatic revocation of his registration. He was also to immediately notify the Registrar under the Act of the disposition of any current pending charges. The Applicant was required to give full and complete disclosure on all future applications and he acknowledged that he understood that this disclosure would be relied upon by the Registrar. This order was issued on consent by the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal on August 23, 2000. In substance, the Applicant agreed to provide accurate information about any criminal charge pending or conviction in a timely fashion, with the understanding that it would be relied on by the Registrar and that a failure to do this would result in the immediate revocation of his registration. At the time that this order was agreed to by the Registrar the primary concern was his existing criminal record.

On April 4, 2002 an application for reinstatement, signed by the Applicant, was received by O.M.V.I.C. In question 9 there was a requirement that he disclose his criminal record as well as any pending charges and give an explanation of the circumstances. In section D. of the forms he was required to fill in particulars of his employment and other activities for the last three years. On the form, there was a warning that an incomplete answer would result in the application being returned as deficient. The Applicant listed a charge of 'Assault with Firearm', and a 'Theft Under' indicating that explanations for these convictions were already on the file with O.M.V.I.C. In the area for previous employers within the past three years, he only listed Unique Chrysler, Islington Chrysler and Friedrich Motors (Exhibit 3 Tab 4).

In March 2002, the witness got a call from Mr. Long who advised her that he had been working for about a year for "Unique Chrysler". Mr. Long told her that he thought that his employer had sent in the necessary paperwork to re-activate his registration, but they had apparently failed to do so. He discovered this when he was going to work for Williamson. At this time Ms. South advised the Applicant that she intended to register him on the same terms and conditions as in the previous consent order.

As result of this discussion, she contacted Mr. Ironside from Glenleven Chrysler which was the dealer listed in the application for reinstatement received April 4, 2002. Mr. Ironside advised her that he had received information from the previous employer, Williamson, concerning the accident and his subsequent dismissal. Upon discovering that information, Ms. South contacted Williamson and was told about the circumstances and aftermath of the accident. When she called the Applicant to get his side of the story, she asked him why he had been dismissed by Glenleven and was advised that things had simply not worked out and there was nothing else. When she asked him about having reported the vehicle stolen, he denied it and said that the accident was during a snow storm. She received a letter from him by fax on Tuesday May 7, 2002 (Exhibit 3, Tab 7) in which he stated that there had been a traffic accident which he didn't report until the following day, which caused the police to do unnecessary investigation leading to a public mischief charge as well as a Highway Traffic Act ticket for Failure to Report. He went on to say that he was as cooperative as possible with the police and expected to have that Public Mischief charge withdrawn and plead guilty to the Highway Traffic Act charge of Fail to Report Accident. The witness explained that she had concerns with regard to the application by the Applicant, sponsored by Lockwood Chrysler Ltd., signed by the Applicant on April 1, 2002, and received by O.M.V.I.C. on May 3, 2002 as there was no reference to the pending charges.

Ms. South testified that complete and honest disclosure on the application form is considered to be important by the Registrar as it is the first test of honesty for the Applicant. Customers require full and complete disclosure due to the nature of an automobile purchase, and the giving of false or incomplete information is a serious concern. Although the Highway Traffic Act charge itself is of some concern she was more troubled by the Applicant's dishonesty with his employer, with the Registrar; and with the police as he first reported the car stolen.

In cross examination she explained that his personal driving record is not a primary concern but in some circumstances could have a bearing on the Registrar's decision. She agreed that she had no information about any customer complaints and stated that O.M.V.I.C. does not do any customer surveys and explained that she was mainly concerned about why he was leaving the different dealerships. As far as she knew, Mr. Ironside knew about his prior history in the industry but had a serious concern over the incident at Williamson, as he had told her that there were "issues" there. Ms. South was asked if she knew that the Applicant was charged three days after the driving incident, and she explained that she had heard he was in jail for it. Ms. South could not remember the source of the information but when she checked her notes, she found that Mr. Ironside had advised her that he had been told by someone at Williamson that the Applicant had charges against him and had spent two or three days in jail, though she did not have information from a first-hand source.

Ms. South explained that the Registrar originally had concerns over the Applicant's criminal record and he was therefore registered subject to terms and conditions. As a result of the notice provisions in the terms and conditions, Ms. South was concerned when the Applicant did not give O.M.V.I.C notice of the pending charges or his explanation until he was specifically confronted by her. She explained that she was advised of the situation on May 8, 2002 by Mr. Bailey at Williamson and on May 7 received her first indication from Williamson that there was a problem. On May 9, 2002 she had a conversation with the Applicant and advised him that people from Williamson had said that he had reported to them to them that the car had been stolen. She would liked to have spoken to the investigating officer but she was not given sufficient information.

Once she confronted Mr. Long with the allegations he advised her that there would be a plea to the Highway Traffic Act charge of Fail to Report Accident and he denied that he had ever reported the car stolen. While asking his questions the Applicant made statements asserting that he was the only possible source of the information that he had reported the car stolen. However, the witness testified that she could have obtained the information through other sources

WITNESS FOR THE APPLICANT

Mr. Long testified on his own behalf, and stated that in the past he had disclosed everything at the time that the original registration with terms and conditions was given. In his opinion he had not breached any of the terms or conditions, and the criminal record was of little importance as it was between 10 and 12 years old. He stated that he believed he had notified the police and the Registrar as soon as was reasonably possible and pointed out that he was not convicted of Public Mischief. The Applicant explained that he was initially nervous, but when he got together with the police officer, he did the right thing as the options were laid out for him by the officer. Although he had initially phoned in report the vehicle stolen, the officer seemed to know that this was a false story and explained the situation to him.

The Applicant explained in great detail that he has good business ethics and there have been no complaints by customers as he is diligent at putting the customers into the proper vehicle for them and does not try to sell them vehicles that are beyond their needs or financial ability. His relationships with his customers are so sound that customers will follow him from dealership to dealership and he will even book their service for them.

He explained that when he was at Unique Chrysler they advised him that they were doing the paperwork to reinstate his license but they did not do this and he did not find out until he went to Glenleven. In his opinion, he did not break the rules and he does not really think that his Highway Traffic Act charges are any of O.M.V.I.C.'s business. He admitted that he made a mistake in reporting the car stolen to Williamson, but repeated that the police told him he did the right thing.

In cross examination he said he was in the car business for 4 years, although when he was shown the date of August 23, 2000 on the Consent Order, he stated that it was just an honest mistake and said it felt like four years. He went into detail about how he was a valuable asset to a dealership as he could move 16 to 20 cars per month. Although he did not do the actual sales contracts, he did do the initial worksheet and took down the information from the customer for the sale. Again, he explained that he has excellent business sense and an ability to focus on people and their ability to pay. He again repeated his statements about how customers follow him from dealership to dealership. Mr. Long said that he began his career at Simcoe Honda, then Friedrich Motors, Islington Chrysler, Unique Chrysler, and spent a few days at Leggatt Chev Olds but did not want to work there and ended up at Williamson, and Glenleven. He explained that he had no shortage of jobs available to him due to his record in the industry.

During the cross examination, he repeated the allegations that he had tried to interject during the examination of Ms. McDonald and stated that he had told the management at Williamson that he could not be on the sales floor due to his lack of registration. He said that they had told him that he could sell, but they would put another salesman's number on the paperwork. Mt Long explained that he was never really on the payroll at Williamson and therefore did not consider himself an employee so he did not include Williamson as a past employer on his application to Lockwood (Exhibit 3, Tab 5). He then provided an alternative reason and stated that any reference to Williamson was also left off his application to Glenleven Chrysler as it was his fourth application in two months so he thought it was redundant. The Applicant confirmed that he had signed both of the application forms.

Mr. Long stated that he was not charged with the offences related to the accident until April 4 or April 6, 2002 so did not disclose those charges in his application to Glenleven Chrysler or Lockwood Chrysler as they were not in existence at the time of the applications. He explained that he had been speaking to Ms. South every day or two during that time, and thought that he had disclosed it to her. The Applicant testified that on July 11, 2002 he was convicted of Fail to Report under the Highway Traffic Act and that the charge of Public Mischief under the Criminal Code was withdrawn. He confirmed that he did not disclose it to Ms. South until she raised the issue and confronted him with it.

The Applicant agreed that the Registrar and the dealers would rely on information provided In the Application forms

With regard to the accident and the events following, he agreed that there was a single car accident and that he called Vince at Williamson the next morning and advised him that the car had been stolen from him and that Vince told him to call the police. But by then he had already called the police and told them that the car was stolen. He explained that 2 days later he went to the police station and met with the investigating officer, who thought that he was not telling the truth and outlined his options for him. He then advised the officer that the car was not in fact stolen, so that the official report of the theft was not entered into the system. The Applicant disagreed that the accident was on the Queen Elizabeth Way but stated that it happened on a street 10 minutes from his home. He agreed that when he gave information to Ms. South he told her there was an accident but did not mention that he had reported the car stolen to the police and later admitted that he had made a false report.

In redirect, he explained that he wanted to sell cars and thinks that he had an amazing sales record. As proof of this, Vince at Williamson was so impressed that he gave the Applicant a car immediately, rather than after the normal three month waiting period. He stated that he was unclear on dates as he had so many jobs in a short period of time. As to why he did not disclose the Public Mischief charge in the applications, he explained that he knew it would be dropped and Ms. South knew about it anyway so he didn't think it had to be put into the forms. He testified that while he was at Lockwood, he sold 12 cars in 14 days. The witness testified that he thought he was able to sell cars, as Patrick told him that he had received a fax from O.M.V.I.C advising him of this.

Once the dealership found out about the Tribunal hearing, he was released. Rather than suspend him, they terminated his employment so that he could claim Employment Insurance benefits. He would not go back to that dealership in any event as he said that he had a monetary dispute with them.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN

The facts found by the Tribunal are that the Applicant had been registered as a motor vehicle salesperson in August 2000, pursuant to the terms of a Consent Order, and according to these terms he was to notify the Registrar of any charges or convictions or any pending charges under any law. Failure to do this was to lead to the automatic revocation of his registration.

The Applicant worked for a series of motor vehicle dealers from the time of his registration and eventually worked at Williamson. Within three days of commencing work for Williamson, he was driving a motor vehicle given to him for his use by the employer when he had a serious motor vehicle accident on or about March 27, 2002. He did not remain at the scene of the accident, abandoned the vehicle and failed to report the accident to the police in a timely fashion. When he called his employer to advise them of the accident he told them that the car had been stolen from his driveway. In his initial call to the police he reported that the car had been stolen and the police contacted him to carry out the accident investigation. When he went to the police station, the investigating officer suspected that the car was not stolen and that he had been the driver. After the officer explained the situation, and the possible consequences to him, he admitted that he was in fact the driver, and was then charged with Public Mischief for having made a false report of the theft, and Fail to Report for not having reported the accident in a timely fashion. The police contacted the dealership and they were made aware that the car had not in fact been stolen and advised that the Applicant had lied to them when he said the car had been stolen.

His employment had already been terminated once Williamson was made aware of the accident. At this time the Applicant was already in the process of applying for the reinstatement of his registration as a salesman for other dealerships. In the application forms he did not notify them of the pending charges and did not mention his short term employment at Williamson. The Applicant characterized this as an innocent error caused by the confusion of having worked so many places and putting out so many applications, but the Tribunal finds that this is a case of his trying to conceal the incident at Williamson. Multiple reasons for this failure were put forward in his evidence, and the same goal would have resulted from successfully concealing his employment at Williamson.

Based on his discussions with the officer or a prosecutor Mr. Long quickly formed the opinion that the Public Mischief charge would be withdrawn. He did not, however, notify the Registrar of the pending charges until he had no other option after being contacted by Ms. South, who already knew of the charge. In his written response to her he did not disclose the particulars about having falsely reported the theft of the vehicle and tried to pass off the Public Mischief charge as having been caused by the officer having to do unnecessary investigation as a result of his failure to report the accident until the next day. He then indicated in the letter to Ms. South that he had been as cooperative as possible with the police and thereby completely mischaracterized the situation by leaving out all reference to the false report of a theft. He correctly advised that he expected the Public Mischief charge to be dropped and a plea of guilty taken on the Fail to Report charge, but there was clearly a misstatement of what happened in an attempt to mislead the Registrar

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Act provides that the Registrar may refuse the registration of the Applicant where the Applicant's past conduct affords reasonable grounds for belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with the law, and with integrity and honesty. The Tribunal finds the following facts to be relevant past conduct

The Applicant found himself in a difficult situation when he had a serious car accident with a vehicle given to him by a new employer. Certainly most people would be nervous in the situation. However, he made a series of serious mistakes.

The first one was that he fled the scene and did not report the accident immediately. Fortunately for him he was not charged with Fail to Remain. However, when he did report the accident, he concealed the fact he was driving by reporting the car as stolen. He continued this charade by also advising his employer that the car was stolen. It was not until he was confronted by an experienced police officer who did not believe this story and outlined the probable consequences for the Applicant that he changed his story and finally admitted to the officer that he had been the driver of the vehicle.

As a consequence of his initial false report to the police he was charged with Public Mischief, but that charge was eventually dropped when he pleaded guilty to the charge of Fail to Report. He again failed to notify the Registrar of the charges and did not admit the Public Mischief charge until he was confronted. Even then he tried to mislead the Registrar in his letter to Mary Jane South, where he characterized the Public Mischief charge of as having been a result of his failure to report, rather than his initial lie to the police.

In his applications for registration he also concealed the fact that he worked at Williamson, as well as the circumstances surrounding his more recent charges. A pattern of behaviour emerges in which the Applicant is willing to use concealment when it suits his purposes. It may also be that he does not fully appreciate the seriousness of his deceptive behaviour and chooses to focus on the fact that he appears to be a very effective car sales person.

In testifying before the Tribunal he was also willing to provide different explanations when he was faced with difficult questions. At one time he explained that he did not include the new charges on his applications as they had not been filed yet, and at another time stated that he did not include them as they had already been disclosed to Ms. South. There was then another explanation that he did not include them because he knew that the Public Mischief charge would be withdrawn. This explanation, of course, does not explain why he would not have mentioned the Fail to Report charge.

Whether or not the Applicant provides correct information in the application document is a crucial matter in assessing the honesty of an Applicant, as this information is clearly intended to be relied upon by the Registrar. If information is intentionally concealed, or if false information is given, the Registrar has good reason to have serious concerns that the Applicant will withhold information or provide false information in the future in his dealings with the public, or with the Registrar. A motor vehicle dealer or salesperson deals with members of the public who are purchasing or selling products of substantial value, and is depended upon not to misrepresent to value or quality of the vehicles. By withholding or falsifying information, salespersons are in a position to take advantage of vulnerable consumers, and the public must have confidence that the dealer or salesperson will not put their own personal interests ahead of their responsibility to conduct business with honesty and integrity. The Tribunal finds that this Applicant made one initial mistake in abandoning the vehicle and leaving the scene of the accident. However, he compounded this many times over with his lack of honesty with his employer, the police, and the Registrar.

This false information, very recently and intentionally provided, demonstrates a pattern of dishonest behaviour which provides reasonable grounds to believe that there will be future behaviour which does not meet the statutory standard of acting with honesty and integrity, and in accordance with the law.

The legal test to be used by the Tribunal is whether the Registrar was in error in deciding that the past conduct of the Applicant provided reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicant would not carry on business with integrity honesty and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts as found, and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act the Licence Registration Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to refuse the registration of the Applicant.

CHRISTOPHER DAVID CLERMONT

APPEAL FROM A PROPOSAL OF THE REGISTRAR
UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLE DEALERS ACT

TO REFUSE REGISTRATION

TRIBUNAL: BRIAN MAROTTA, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES:

The Applicant, appearing on his own behalf
Aviva Harari, Counsel representing the Registrar,
Motor Vehicle Dealers Act

DATE OF HEARING: August 7th, 2002 Ottawa

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is a hearing before the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") arising out of a Notice of Proposal issued by the Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act (the "Registrar", and the "Act" respectively). The Notice of Proposal dated April 22nd, 2002, proposed to refuse the registration of Christopher David Clermont, as a motor vehicle salesperson under the Act.

FACTS:

On February 22, 2002, the Applicant completed an Application for Registration under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act. Question 9 on the Application stated:

"Have you ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or are any charges pending? (This includes those instances where a conditional or absolute discharge has been ordered). If yes, list all charges and/or convictions and the circumstances surrounding each. (Attach additional sheets if necessary)."

There was a space to check off "Yes" or "No" and the Applicant checked "Yes" and answered as follows:

"267(b)266 (when younger got into fight). Have come a long way from that. Can't change the past, but can certainly learn from it".

A criminal record search was done on the Applicant and the Applicant was aware, and consented in his Application, for O.M.V.I.C. to conduct a criminal record search. The result of the criminal record search included a conviction in Ottawa Youth Court. The Youth Court record was found to be admissible, but the list of offences has been deleted from this Decision due to the public availability of this Decision. The balance of the Applicant's convictions were as follows:

DATE AND PLACE	CHARGE	DISPOSITION
July 27, 2000 Ottawa	(1) Fraud under $5,000.00 Section 380 (1) (b) CC 2 charges	(1-2) 30 days on each charge concurrent
	(2) Attempt Fraud Under $5,000.00 Section 380 (1) (b) cc (5 charges) and Section 463 CC
January 15, 2001 Ottawa	Assault causing bodily harm Section 267 (b) CC	18 months conditional sentence order and probation 18 months and mandatory probation order Section 109 CC

On April 22, 2002, the Registrar of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act issued a Notice of Proposal to Refuse Registration. The reasons given in the Notice were:

"The intention and objective of the Act is to protect the public interest. The requirements of the Act include that registrants be financially responsible in the conduct of business and that registrants carry on business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. The Applicant's past conduct is inconsistent with the intention and objective of the Act, and therefore warrants disentitlement to registration under the Act. Therefore, the Registrar is unwilling to register Christopher David Clermont under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act".

The Applicant appealed the Registrar's proposal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal.

THE LAW:

5(1) An applicant is entitled to registration by the Registrar except where,

- (a) having regard to the financial position of the applicant, the applicant cannot reasonably be expected to be financially responsible in the conduct of business;
- or
- (b) the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law, and with integrity and honesty; ...

6(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

ISSUES:

After taking into consideration the Applicant's past conduct, including his criminal record and his failure to adequately disclose his record in his Application, was the Registrar in error in concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for the belief that the applicant would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty?

EVIDENCE:

The evidence for the Registrar was presented by Jennifer Andrew who was team leader of inspections with O.M.V.I.C. Ms. Andrew explained that O.M.V.I.C. was established in 1997 as a non-profit corporation to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, which is a public protection statute. The purposes of O.M.V.I.C. are to regulate the registration process, deal with complaints and carry out inspections and investigations of non-compliance. As a public protection statute, the goal of the Act is to ensure that the public is able to have confidence in the individuals and companies working in the automotive sector. Under Section 5 of the Act, there are certain criteria for registration of a salesperson. An applicant under the Act is entitled to registration except where the Registrar has reasonable grounds or belief that the Applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty.

In the case of this application, the Registrar relied upon the past conduct of the Applicant, the convictions of the Applicant and the failure of the Applicant to make full disclosure on his application for registration submitted to the Registrar.

The application of the Applicant dated February 22, 2002, was received by the Registrar on February 26, 2002. The Registrar noted that Section 9 asked the question of whether the Applicant had ever been found guilty or convicted of an offence under any law or if there were any charges pending. To this the Applicant answered "Yes". Section 9 continued to ask the Applicant to list all charges and/or convictions, and the circumstances surrounding each. Under that there was space for the Applicant to list all charges and/or convictions and the circumstances surrounding them. The Applicant simply listed two section numbers, 267(b) and 266 and stated that when he was younger he got into a fight, but he had come a long way from that. He continued to say that he could not change the past, but could certainly learn from it.

In the same Section 9, there was a note to the Applicants which stated:

"Applicants are subject to background and criminal record searches. Submitting a false or incomplete disclosure is an offence under the MVDA and will result in disqualification. Do not assume that convictions are automatically deleted from your record. If you have any questions about the information you must disclose, please call O.M.V.I.C."

The two section numbers that were stated were for assault and assault causing bodily harm. On February 28, 2002, O.M.V.I.C. sent the standard letter to the dealer principal where the Applicant wanted to work and stated that O.M.V.I.C. did not receive a complete explanation of the convictions and the circumstances surrounding them. It advised the dealer principal that the convictions and circumstances must be reviewed and discussed with the proposed salesperson. A response, together with two pieces of identification, was requested.

The Applicant responded by faxing a letter to O.M.V.I.C. explaining the circumstances of one assault charge and further disclosing one fraud charge. The Applicant answered the request for a complete explanation of the convictions and the circumstances surrounding them as follows:

"When in a bar my friends and I were playing pool. We started getting involved until other guys came around that looked really aggressive. As the game ended our loonie was next that would mean we were next as to who plays next. As I went to put my loonie, I was confronted by this other guy who told me his loonie was there first but they just got there and we knew they were just trying to play first. I told him again and he began swearing and out of know where he hit me in the face so out of self-defence I hit him back.

My self and another person would go into a store and purchase something under five dollars. When the cashier gives back the change we would complain and say we gave them a twenty and we would try get money back for twenty and not a five ".

O.M.V.I.C. conducted a criminal record search, as they do for every application for registration. The criminal record search showed the conviction in Youth Court for which the Applicant served one year in custody with one year probation. The record continued on July 27, 2000, showing two convictions for fraud under $5,000.00 under Section 380 (1) (b) and five convictions for attempt fraud under Section 380 (1) (b) and 463, with a sentence of thirty days concurrent on each of the charges. The criminal record further revealed a conviction on January 15, 2001 for assault causing bodily harm in which the Applicant received eighteen months conditional sentence and eighteen months probation.

A certified copy of the information was obtained which revealed that on March 31, 1999, the Applicant attempted to defraud the Christmas Store contrary to Section 463 of the Criminal Code; on the 6th day of May 1999, the Applicant defrauded the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce contrary to Section 380 (1) (b) of the Criminal Code; on the 7th day of May 1999, the Applicant attempted to defraud the Royal Bank contrary to Section 463 of the Criminal Code and on the 10th day of May 1999, the Applicant defrauded the Royal Bank contrary to Section 380 (1) (b) of the Criminal Code.

The Applicant was given a further chance to fully explain the charges and convictions. He responded to the Registrar that, regarding the May 1996 conviction, someone had hit him in the face with a snowball at a bus stop so he ran after the person and punched him in the face. He was convicted and sentenced to two years because his lawyer was from Legal Aid and the person he punched had rich parents.

Regarding the July 27, 2000 charge of fraud under $5,000.00, he reported that on his 20th birthday, he got into an argument with his father and by the end of the yelling match he did not have a home anymore. He was on the streets and stole from stores on the market totaling $300.00.

Regarding the January 15, 2001 conviction for assault causing bodily harm, he stated that was the same case where he stole from a few stores on the market, totaling $300.00. Because there were two stores, there were two different Court dates. The clerk in the second store said that he had pushed him while the clerk was running after him with a knife. Because he had a previous assault charge they automatically took the clerk's side and assault was attached to the charge for stealing under $300.00. The Applicant had previously said that this conviction was the result of a fight in a pool hall.

The Registrar had grave concerns about the Applicant not being forthcoming concerning his criminal record. The witness explained that the Applicant had been given three opportunities to fully disclose his offences and convictions. On all chances given to him, the Applicant failed to fully disclose the offences and convictions. He had misled the Registrar in regard to the assault charges, giving two completely different explanations for the same incident. He misled the Registrar into believing that there was one assault charge that had occurred in the past when he was a youth, when there were two separate assault convictions. He had failed to disclose any convictions for fraud or attempted fraud against the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank.

The Applicant, Christopher David Clermont, gave evidence on his own behalf.

In regard to question 9 on the application, Mr. Clermont stated that he called his lawyer and asked what charges he had because his recollection was poor. He stated that he was told by his lawyer that 267(b) was the fraud and attempted fraud and he was very confused about the charges. He did mention the assault, but he should have checked more thoroughly. He said that he did mention the second assault charge in his letter to the Registrar.

He stated that his sales manager really wanted him to continue to work there. He also stated that he had sat down with the sales manager on his first day of employment and explained both assault charges and all fraud charges to the sales manager. He commenced employment at his dealership sponsor on February 20, 2002 and was terminated April 11, 2002.

According to the Applicant, the total of all fraud charges was $150.00 and that he had paid back $300.00. At the bank he would go in and ask for change for a $20.00 but would not give them a $20.00 bill and this composed his attempted fraud charge. He stated that for all fraud charges, he served a total of fifteen days in custody. He stated that he is still in school but now was training for a Personal Training Certification and working weekends for his sister who runs the Gymnastics Association. He produced a letter from the Gymnastics Association commending his work with that group and a letter from his employer/sponsor acknowledging that the Applicant possessed many of the attributes needed for a successful career in automotive sales and his feeling that he was of good character.

The Applicant said that he was being honest and wasn't trying to hide his criminal record and that he would be willing to accept a probationary period with conditions.

On cross examination, the Applicant stated that he was aware that the criminal record search would be conducted on him. He admitted that he signed the Application after reading the part that said that he swore that all of the information in the application was true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

When asked about his answer to question 9 in his application, he said that he thought that one of the section numbers that he mentioned related to the fraud charges and that the assault he referred to was the one in Youth Court.

He stated that his memory was very poor and he did not recall the fight or the conviction for assault in 2001. In the letter that he sent to O.M.V.I.C. after his application and the questions from O.M.V.I.C. he did mention the second assault conviction, but he did not mention anything about the Youth Court conviction.

Relating to the fraud charges, he said that he just considered the stores and banks to be the same thing and, therefore, he didn't disclose any fraud or attempted fraud against the banks.

When further questioned in cross examination about the charges for fraud and attempted fraud against the Christmas Store, the Royal Bank and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, he stated that all of those were done within a few months period and he pleaded guilty because he had a Legal Aid lawyer representing him.

Regarding the conviction for assault in January 2001, he was asked why his one letter to O.M.V.I.C. stated that it was a fight over a pool table, but the next letter to O.M.V.I.C. described it as pushing a clerk who was chasing him after one of his thefts at a store in the market. The only explanation given by the Applicant was that he was confused.

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

The Applicant commenced working at a motor vehicle dealership on February 20, 2002 pending the approval on his licence. On the first day of his employment, his uncontradicted evidence was that he disclosed to his sales manager all convictions and circumstances relating to the assault and fraud convictions. The Applicant completed an application to the Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council to be registered as a salesperson on February 22, 2002.

In his application the Applicant answered question 9 by simply inserting two section numbers and mentioned one fight, which he stated occurred when he was younger and that he had come a long way since then and learned from it.

The Applicant failed to disclose the more recent assault conviction or the convictions for fraud and attempted fraud.

The Applicant was given an opportunity by O.M.V.I.C. to further disclose details of his convictions and the circumstances surrounding the convictions and he replied by acknowledging an assault charge resulting from a fight in a pool hall and one $20.00 value fraud.

The Applicant was given a further opportunity by O.M.V.I.C. to give full particulars of the charges, convictions and circumstances and he responded by disclosing the Youth Court charge, stealing from stores on the market, totaling $300.00 and the most recent assault conviction that resulted from him pushing a store clerk who was chasing him with a knife. The Applicant failed to disclose any of the fraud or attempted fraud convictions on the Royal Bank and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

The Tribunal fails to find the Applicant to be a credible witness. It is inconceivable that he would be able to disclose to his sales manager the circumstances relating to both assault convictions and all fraud and attempted fraud charges on February 20, 2002, yet not remember these charges or convictions when he completed his application just two days later on February 22, 2002. His explanation that he just forgot about the most recent assault conviction is not plausible. The inconsistencies in his application, his letters and his evidence lead the Tribunal to the conclusion that he was trying to mislead O.M.V.I.C. and hoped that O.M.V.I.C. would not carry out a criminal record search and simply approve his application based upon his answers. The Applicant's answers to question 9 were inadequate, incomplete and misleading, yet he swore in the application that all of his answers were true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

When the Applicant was put in a position of choosing between honest disclosure and the risk of being refused his licence because of his past record, he saw the possibility of avoiding detection and he chose to conceal the truth when he thought that the criminal record check might not be done. When given further opportunities to rectify the situation, he chose to compound his problem by releasing small bits of information and continuing the deception.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

In Re: (Moodie) vs. Registrar under the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, June 19, 1998, Ontario Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal, the Applicant had failed to disclose some criminal charges. He explained that he thought the question on the application form only related to recent charges involving motor vehicles. He later admitted to two drug offences whereas a criminal record search revealed six charges. The Tribunal found that the failure to answer the question correctly may have been due to a lack of thoroughness on his part and not in an attempt to mislead, but his criminal record combined with the non-disclosure gave reasonable grounds for the Decision by the Registrar not to grant registration.

In the case of Brenner v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen) 1983, O.J. No. 1017, Ontario Supreme Court - High Court of Justice Divisional Court, the Court heard an appeal from a Decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal. In that case the Applicant had a serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application, although he had not disclosed three further convictions. Evidence was heard from his potential employer and a criminal lawyer who were both of the opinion that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself and, therefore, his past record should not be held against him and he should be allowed registration under the Act. The Tribunal agreed that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself and directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration. On appeal, the Court found the Tribunal had not applied the proper test and set out this test in paragraph 9 of the Judgment as follows:

“...the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the Applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty”.

In the present case, the Applicant was aware that the application document was crucial in assessing his honesty as the information contained in the application was clearly intended to be relied upon by the Registrar. If any information was intentionally concealed or false information was given, the Registrar had good reason to have serious concerns that the Applicant would withhold information or provide false information in the future in his dealing with the public or with the Registrar.

The Applicant was less than candid in his answer to question 9 on his application. Although given subsequent chances to rectify the situation, the applicant continued to provide partial and misleading information without ever fully revealing his criminal convictions and charges or the circumstances surrounding them. His excuse that he forgot about the most recent criminal assault charge, although telling his employer of it two days before filling out the application, is a stretch to the imagination. His continued non-disclosure of several of the fraud and attempted fraud convictions demonstrate a continuation of the dishonest behaviour. This combined with his past conduct, provides reasonable grounds to the Registrar to believe that there will be future behaviour which does not meet with the statutory standard of acting with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law. On the basis of the facts found and the application of the law to those facts, the Tribunal finds that the decision by the Registrar was not in error.

DECISION:

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under section 7(4) of the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Registrar to carry out his proposal to refuse the registration of the Applicant.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 40 year old male truck driver who on April 26th, 2002 received notice from the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") that his driver's licence status was to be reviewed (exhibit #1). This was based on a report from Physician #1, cardiologist, that the applicant had newly diagnosed "idiopathic dilated cardiomyopathy" (exhibit #2). On January 4th, 2002 the MTO advised the applicant that his licence was to be changed to class G (exhibit #3). From the time of initial diagnosis to the appeal, the applicant has undergone numerous cardiology assessments (exhibits # 4,5,6,7,8,9,10, 11). Despite the encouraging reports of the applicant's cardiac status, (exhibit # 12, 13, 14), the Medical Advisory Committee confirmed the downgrade to a class "G M" Licence on the basis of "sever left ventricular dysfunction grd. 5" (exhibit #15). As a result of this decision the applicant filed an appeal. July 4th, 2002(exhibit #16), followed by two letters presenting his arguments (exhibits # 17 & 18), accompanied by letters of support from his family physician (exhibit #19) and his cardiologist (exhibit # 20).

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

The Applicant no longer suffers from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
 - (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
 - (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
 - (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;
 - (d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

- (e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;
 - (f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;
 - (g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;
 - (h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;
 - (i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;
 - (j) has a visual acuity by Snellen Rating, with or without the aid of corrective lenses, no poorer than 20/30 in the better eye and 20/50 in the weaker eye; and
 - (k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees in each eye as measured by confrontation tests.
- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.
18. An applicant for or a holder of a G, G1, G2, L, M, M1, M2, or R driver's licence must have,
- (a) in the case of a person whose vision in one eye is better than in the other, visual acuity in the better eye that is no poorer than 20/40 as measured by Snellen Rating; and

- (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Tribunal has reviewed in detail the applicant's cardiac history and acknowledges the appreciable improvement in the applicant's cardiac status and symptomatology as expressed in the several cardiology consultant notes and the multiple cardiac laboratory assessments.

The Tribunal recognises the lack of correlation between symptoms and left ventricular function (ejection fraction). Although not critical in the decision, the Tribunal did not have the report of the Holter monitor assessment referred to in the consultant's note of Jan 29th. 2002.

Despite the applicant's general improvement in cardiac status the most recent investigation continues to demonstrate an ejection fraction considerably below the minimal 35% required of commercial drivers. The applicant clearly has an established and current history of heart disease which on the basis of The Highway Traffic Act, Reg. 340/94, sec 17. (1) (d) prohibits the applicant from holding a class "A" drivers licence.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 18, 2002 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed

TRIBUNAL: ROSS BENNETT, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: LUBA NEUWIRTH, Respondent
Representative for the Minister

Agent for Applicant

DATE OF
HEARING: August 7, 2002

Whitby

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS

1. Ministry's letter to the Applicant, dated June 26, 2002, downgrading his driver's licence from a Class DZ to a Class G.
2. Applicant's Notice of Appeal received at the Tribunal July 15, 2002.
3. Applicant's Holter report processed July 6, 2002.
4. Respondent's File Summary.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Agent #1, Health and Safety Manager for the Applicant's employer, introduced himself as the Applicant's agent and presented a copy of a Holter Report (exhibit #3), processed on July 6, 2002, to the Tribunal.

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 53-year-old garbage truck driver, who had his licence downgraded on June 26, 2002, on a recommendation by the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) that he not hold a licence higher than a Class G.

The Ministry of Transportation had received a Medical Condition Report from Physician #1 on February 12, 2002 stating the Applicant had a condition of coronary heart disease. The Ministry informed him he had to submit an up-to-date cardiologist's report by July 8, 2002, in order to determine whether he can safely operate a class D vehicle.

A report dated February 12, 2002 prepared by Physician #1, who is a cardiologist, stated the Applicant's final diagnosis is:

- congestive heart failure
- carotid sinus hypersensitivity requiring pacemaker
- severe triple vessel disease for urgent bypass
- hypertension
- diabetes.

The Applicant was treated with Lasix to control the cardiac failure and a pacemaker was installed on January 31st. A triple bypass was performed on February 13, 2002.

After discharge an echo was carried out and showed mild left ventricular dysfunction and borderline LVH. A stress cardiolute on April 22, showed a previous infarction and some reversible ischemia in the circumflex area.

The Applicant had one episode of chest pain, which was relieved with nitroglycerine, but enjoys good exercise capacity. His EKG shows sinus rhythm with associated ventricular pacing. A stress test was carried out and the Applicant was able to walk 6 minutes and 21 seconds of the Bruce protocol without chest pain.

In a Medical Waiver Certificate dated May 28, 2002, Physician #1 concluded that compliance was improving and the Applicant has a class 1-exercise capacity. He stated there was fair, but incomplete revascularization. Physician #1 recommended reinstatement of the Applicant's Class DZ driver's licence.

On June 25, 2002, the MAC recommended that the Applicant's driver's licence be downgraded to a Class G. The Applicant would be reconsidered for a commercial licence, on receipt of a cardiologist's assessment confirming there is an improvement in his cardiac condition, including the results of a Holter and that he meets the Canadian Cardiovascular functional Class 1 requirements.

The reasons given for this decision were:

1. Demonstrated triple vessel coronary artery disease with poor exercise tolerance and evidence of ischemia.
2. Reversible defect with marked severity on stress test.
3. Demonstrated left ventricular dysfunction.
4. Requires a pacemaker.
5. Recent episode of chest pain requiring nitro.
6. Does not meet C.C.S. functional Class 1 requirements for a commercial Vehicle (NSC 3.4.1).

The Applicant's Agent introduced a Holter Report (exhibit #3), which they had just obtained that morning. The comments are:

1. occasional unifocal PVC's with 3 couplets
2. no symptoms reported
3. no ischemic changes demonstrated
4. normal sinus rhythm.

The Ministry accepted the MAC recommendations and informed the Applicant on June 26, 2002 that his licence was being downgraded from Class DZ to Class G. The decision was made because the Applicant did not meet the medical standard, but his case would be reviewed on receipt of a satisfactory cardiologist's assessment. This assessment must indicate there is improvement in his cardiac status, include the results of a Holter monitor and that he meets the Canadian Society functional class 1 standards.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued, in accordance with the result of the examination, be varied, modified or set aside?

The Applicant stated in evidence that he has lost 30 pounds, his diabetes is under control, his exercise tolerance was much improved and he has not felt as well in 15 years.

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

Regulation 340/94, Section 17 and 18 states:

- (2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1)(a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrated the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.
- (3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1)(c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infraction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.
- (4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

 - (b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 degrees as measured by confrontation tests.

Section 32(12)(b)(i) states:

- 32 No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.
- (12) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,
 - (b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,
 - (i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

The Ministry was obligated, under Regulation 340/94 Section 17 & 18 of the Highway Traffic Act, to investigate the Applicant's medical status when informed by Physician #1 on February 12, 2002 that he had coronary heart disease. Unfortunately this investigation took until June 26, 2002 to be completed.

By this time the Applicant had been hospitalized, treated for congestive heart failure, had a pacemaker installed, had triple bypass surgery at the Toronto General and returned to work driving a garbage truck for 2 months. This information was provided to the Ministry, in Physician #1's letter of May 22, 2002 with a recommendation for reinstatement of the Applicant's Class DZ licence, but appears to have been largely ignored.

This letter was from the attending cardiologist, who knows the Applicant better than anyone else. The information provided appears to be exactly what the MAC is requesting after the fact. The surgery was successful, the pacemaker was functioning properly and he has only had one episode of angina. His stress test did not produce any chest pain or specific EKG abnormalities.

The Holter test was recorded on July 24, 2002, but was not available until the day of the hearing would put the Applicant in a functional Class 1 category.

The Tribunal did not find enough evidence of any cardiac disability to justify the Applicant's Class DZ licence not being reinstated.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 26, 2002 of the Minister to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(12)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

Appeal under Section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act,

Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 47(1) of that Act.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: ROSS C. BENNETT, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KIM BEINTEMA
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

Applicant,

DATE OF HEARING: August 15, 2002 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario).

EXHIBITS:

1. Notice of Applicant's licence suspension from the Ministry of Transportation dated February 11, 2002.
2. Notice of Appeal by the Applicant to the Ministry dated July 18, 2002.
3. Respondent's File Summary received at the hearing.

4. Certified copy of the Applicant's driving record.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

The daughter of the Applicant asked to be allowed to assist the Applicant with translations in the proceedings and act as his agent.

FACTS:

The Applicant is a 52 year old, former truck driver and driving instructor, of Italian descent, who had his licence suspended for psychiatric reasons, on February 11, 2002. The Ministry had received a Medical Report from Physician #1, a psychiatrist at the Whitby Mental Health Centre on January 25, 2002, informing them of the Applicant's diagnoses:

1. Schizophrenia
2. Cognitive Impairment -? Dementia

The Applicant had a long psychiatric history of schizophrenia dating back to 1977, but had retained his licence during this period. He had been a truck driver but could not work because of his illness from 1987 until 1988 when a change of medication improved his mental health. In 1998 he opened a driving school, which he operated successfully, until November 2001.

His early problems were depression, which culminated in a month's hospitalization in Mount Sinai in 1977. He was followed for a number of years by a psychiatrist, Physician #2, who had advised the Applicant not to work in 1987.

The Applicant was admitted to the Humber River Regional Hospital November 30, 2000 on a Form 1, with a diagnosis of depressive psychosis, anxiety traits and moderate stress, with strong paranoid symptoms. He was quite suspicious of his wife and daughter and on one occasion became aggressive towards his wife. In June 2001, the Applicant had an altercation with his accountant and was arrested for assault, but the charge was later dropped.

During a month's hospitalization the Applicant was started on a new antidepressant medication, Celexia and Imovane for sleeping. His new psychiatrist was a Physician #3.

On November 1 2001, the Applicant was taken to Markham Stouffville Hospital by the York Regional Police on a Form 1, issued by his new psychiatrist, Physician #3, after the Applicant's son reported the Applicant had threatened to kill his wife and daughter. He had pushed his daughter and hit her on the head with a Mason jar. When his wife came home he pushed her to the floor. When the police arrived the Applicant's wife was still on the floor and they noted redness and swelling of her left knee. The Applicant was very angry and told the police his family would pay and he threatened to kill them. The police felt that if the Applicant were released he would severely injure someone. They wanted him assessed at a secure hospital to prevent any subsequent danger to the public.

He was transferred to the Humber River Hospital and eventually discharged on November 14, 2001. He was reassessed several times by Physician #3 and on December 3, 2001, he found him to be paranoid and suspicious towards his family, had poor judgement, was not sleeping and not responsible for his actions. Physician #3 completed another Form 1 on December 5. The Applicant assaulted his daughter again and she called 911 thinking he would be taken back to the hospital, but he was arrested and taken to jail. He remained in jail until December 28, 2001, when he was finally admitted to the Whitby Mental Health Centre. The Applicant was treated with antipsychotic medications, Zyprexa and Olanzapine, as well as an antidepressant, Celexa.

Psychological testing revealed the Applicant to be cognitively impaired with difficulties in memory, for example - remembering instructions and perseveration(an inability to switch "sets"), along with perceptual disturbances.

The psychologist had great concerns about the Applicant driving a car and notified the Ministry. The Applicant was advised not to drive a car.

Physician #1 did not feel the Applicant was a significant threat to anyone at that time, but felt he should be followed closely by his psychiatrist, Physician #3.

The diagnoses at discharge were:

1. Schizophrenia, Rule Out Dementia
2. Major Depressive Disorder in Remission

A Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") Case Study on July 5, 2002 determined the Applicant's licence should remain suspended for the following reasons:

1. Very serious history of long-standing mental illness requiring numerous hospitalizations. One of these included an episode of violent behaviour resulting in assault charges.
2. Requires a demonstrated one-year period of freedom from psychiatric symptoms, compliance with treatment and cognitive review before consideration can be given to the reinstatement of his driving privilege.

Physician #3 assessed the Applicant on July 22, 2002. He stated in a letter to the Ministry that the Applicant has been stable for the last seven months and has not shown any evidence of a relapse or any symptomatology. He added that being unable to drive has been having a negative effect on him and very stressful.

Physician #3 could not find any reason for him not to have his licence reinstated. He stated an unnecessary suspension would only be detrimental for him and not advisable.

He had not found any evidence of impairment of his cognitive status, which would jeopardize his competency to drive.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

- (a) suffers from an mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
- (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

- (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
- (b) a driver's licence; or
- (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

- (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
- (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
- (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
- (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

- 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
- (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

When Physician #1 informed the Ministry of the Applicant's diagnoses, under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act the Deputy Registrar had no alternative, but to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence.

There is no question that the Applicant has chronic Schizophrenia and recurrent depression. He has responded well to therapy and has been free of symptoms since January, 2002.

Physician #3 has given the Applicant a clean bill of health and recommended that his licence be reinstated. He did not find any evidence of impairment, which would jeopardize his competency to drive. He even said that it would be detrimental to the Applicant's mental health and therefore not advisable to return his licence.

The Tribunal, however, is reluctant to act too quickly, because the Applicant's condition is a chronic type and he has suffered several exacerbations over the past 2 years. He has been symptom free for 8 months, but he has not been under any stress during this period.

The Applicant is requesting reinstatement of his Class AZ licence, so he would be able to return to being a driving instructor. The Tribunal feels this could be a very stressful occupation for someone on antipsychotic and antidepressant medications and who is just recovering from months of mental illness.

The Tribunal agrees with the MAC recommendation that the Applicant should be symptom-free for a period of 12 months before his licence is reinstated to conform to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated February 21, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 14, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on August 14, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that her appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated July 29, 2002 and was received by the Tribunal on July 29, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters and the hearing proceeded.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to the Registrar dated July 20, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal received by the Tribunal July 29, 2002, filed by the Applicant.

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions received August 9, 2002.
- b) Exhibit # 4 Copy from the Canadian Medical Association Guide to Prescription and Over the Counter Drugs, received August 14, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
 - (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
 - (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "July 20, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit #2)

Applicant's Evidence:

Page 2 of the Notice of Appeal is blank, but refers to documentation attached.

The first attachment to the Notice of Appeal is a letter dated July 26, 2002 from Physician #1, the Applicant's physician since "January 31 1995".

Physician #1 confirms that she is aware the Applicant was stopped by police and charged with "...failing to provide a breath sample". Physician #1 reports: "...she has frequent visits for her asthma and allergies ...suffered since the age of 7...asthma worsens due environmental triggers such as smoke or pollens more difficulty breathing in humid weather ...this summer has been extremely humid ...finds it difficult to take a deep breath ...professional opinion ...it would have been extremely difficult for the Applicant to have taken a long enough breath to blow into the breath analyser..."

The Applicant in a letter dated July 25, 2002 describes the state of her health on the day prior to her being stopped by the police as well the events leading up to the demand for a breath sample: "...uneasy sleep ...awoke ...with swollen, red and watery eyes, a runny nose and a sore throat ...at this bar from approximately 8 pm July 19 to 2 am July 20 ...after leaving the bar ...took 2 puffs of ...Ventolin inhaler..." (SIC).

The Applicant introduced a number of letters from friends and co-workers confirming their awareness of her condition and the symptoms noticed on the dates in question. Summaries of said notes follow hereinafter:

Witness #1 the Applicant's house mate, informs the Tribunal per letter dated July 26, 2002, that the Applicant "...has numerous allergies ...sneezes, coughs, gets itchy, reddened watery eyes and complains of tightness in her chest and wheezing ...Friday July 19 ...at about 9:30 am ...looked ill ...eyes were very red and puffy ...not sure she was well enough to work and may go home sick." (SIC)

In a note also dated July 26, 2002 addressed to the Applicant, Witness #2 states: "As requested by you, the Applicant, this letter will confirm my observations the morning of Friday July 19, 2002 ...I had a conversation with you shortly after your arrival at work ...focused on your ill health, which was visible and remarked on by myself and your co-workers ...observed and commented that your eyes were swollen and watery, your sinuses were stuffed and your voice strained ...asked if you had a cold ...discussion centred around your many allergies this time of year and other times due to your numerous allergies.” (SIC)

Witness #3 in a note dated July 24th, 2002, addressed “To Whom it May Concern” confirms: “...I saw the Applicant on Friday July 19, 2002 ...when she arrived at the office ...her poor health condition was very obvious ...questioned the Applicant about her health ...she explained that she was ill due to a severe asthma and allergy attack and that she had been up most of the night ...the Applicant’s condition included puffy and watery eyes, coughing, stuffed sinuses and a hoarse voice ...not the first time I have seen the Applicant ill from allergies.” (SIC)

Addressed “To Whom it May Concern”, a short note, dated July 23, 2002 portrays the events of the evening of July 19, 2002 as viewed by Witness #4: “...I was with the Applicant from 9:15pm to 2:00am ...spent much of the time either engaged in conversation or dancing ...she had been ill that day and the previous evening.” (SIC)

A letter from Witness #5, dated August 09, 2002 is addressed to the Tribunal. Witness #5 relates: “I have known the Applicant for 5 years ...have had occasions to go out socially with her ...the Applicant was out with me for my Birthday on the evening of July 19, 2002 ...had dinner ...we all talked, danced and mingled ...I have know the Applicant to have asthma as long as I have known her ...my opinion that the Applicant’s asthma would have prevented her from be able to blow hard enough into the breath analyser, especially given she was ill with her asthma and allergies that morning...” (SIC)

Also attached to the Notice of Appeal, and forming part of the proceedings, are a series of newspaper articles and Internet information concerning the triggers, symptoms and consequences of asthma and allergies, as well as air quality reports.

At the hearing, the Applicant offered evidence by reading from a prepared statement.

After thanking the Tribunal for the opportunity to state her case the Applicant proceeded to re-iterate the events of the day and evening leading to the demand for the breath sample.

The Applicant asserted that she had been at a bar but had “...very little to drink...” The officer permitted the Applicant four attempts to provide a breath sample. When told that her license was being suspended the Applicant told the officer that she had asthma and showed him her prescription. The Applicant’s request to take a puff of Ventolin and try again was dismissed by the officer who remarked that the Applicant had been given “enough chances”.

At this time the Applicant asked the officer if there were any other means to prove that she was not intoxicated such as “walking the line” or “touching ...nose...”

The day after the demand for a breath sample the Applicant wondered why the officer had not requested a blood sample. The Applicant's father placed a call to the station, on the Applicant's behalf, to seek the reason a blood test was not offered. Police Officer #1 explained that blood tests are performed only "...if there is something wrong with someone's mouth..." The Applicant argues that "...if there is something wrong with a person's mouth it is almost the same as having something wrong with ...lungs, it is very similar, if something is wrong, something is wrong..."

The Applicant objected to the statement made "twice" by the officer that he smelled alcohol on her breath.

Due to the incident, the Applicant and her family have suffered "...extreme hardship..." The Applicant described herself as single mother. Since the incident the Applicant has "...not been able to carry out ...work duties..." and has had to rely on family and friends to transport her and the children to and from Mississauga three times a week. In order to ease transportation problems the Applicant is being forced to make alternate living arrangements for September.

For the Tribunal's benefit, the Applicant chose to testify about herself, her "...asthma ...witnesses ...doctor's notes..."

The Applicant has been gainfully employed with the Ontario Government for thirteen years and is respected by her colleagues.

After fleeing from an abusive marriage, the Applicant has been staying with a co-worker. The financial and emotional costs of litigation and custody disputes have brought considerable stress to the Applicant's life. The Applicant testified that the recent two-month strike she had to endure was a great burden due to the loss of income. Further, having had to undergo surgery, added an extra dose of stress.

All the stress in her life plus the unusually smoggy, hot, humid weather this summer, have combined to make the Applicant's asthma more difficult that it has been "...or many years ...and more difficult to recover..."

The Applicant went on to read the various "...stressors..." of asthma, noting that these triggers keep her sick the whole year, but have particularly unhealthy effects in the summer.

In order to validate her grounds for appeal the Applicant read into evidence portions of a pamphlet from the Lung Association describing "...what asthma is..." as well as selected passages from the newspaper articles attached to the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant continued by reading the symptoms and consequences of the disease, highlighting that different people have different triggers. Smoke is one the triggers and the Applicant pointed out that she had spent all evening in a smoky environment.

The Applicant listed the normally prescribed medication for asthma and verified that she has been prescribed the same medication. The Applicant also confirmed that because she has had asthma for so long, she is able to self-medicate, therefore frequent visits to the physician are not required.

Alluding to the illustration of a woman wearing a collar who looks like she is under water, the Applicant accentuated that, that is exactly what asthma feels like, “...it is easier to blow out than it is breathing in ...but ...it is hard to blow out as well ...difficult to get a deep breath ...struggling to get the air in the first place and ...then struggle to get it out ...cannot blow up balloons...”

Heat being one of the stressors of asthma, the Applicant used the article reporting the heat wave in July to substantiate her premise that the month of July was particularly difficult for asthma sufferers like herself.

The next point of reference mentioned by the Applicant was the “Air Quality Index Reports” for Mississauga and Brampton. These reports indicate that there were several days in July that were designated as “...high smog days...” Looking at the dates when smog alerts were issued, it is clear that the worst days were immediately prior to July the 20th, the date the Applicant was stopped.

Continuing with her testimony the Applicant briefly read some comments from the letters from her friends and co-workers.

The Applicant maintained that she would not be nervous about providing a breath sample as she “...was not worried about going over...” To this effect, the Applicant selected the passages from her friends’ letters that mentioned her alcohol intake, on the evening in question.

The Applicant challenged Dr. Goldstein’s report claiming it is not “very valid” due to the fact that by his own admission, Dr. Goldstein cannot “render a meaningful opinion”. Dr. Goldstein did not examine her. Dr Goldstein had ample time to examine her but failed to do so. The Applicant stated that she would have been willing to sign a consent form allowing Dr. Goldstein access to the complete history of her condition.

In refuting Dr. Goldstein’s report the Applicant referred to the paragraph wherein Dr. Goldstein reports on the results obtained in tests performed in the “44-77” age groups. The Applicant feels these results should not be applied to her as she is younger than the group tested. If comparative data is to be used then it should, at least be comparative data from the same age group.

Further, the Applicant questioned whether the conditions the test group was subjected to, were similar to hers. Unless the conditions were identical, the statistics provided are not applicable.

A third point of refute was the wording used by Dr Goldstein: “...the vast majority of individuals...”. The Applicant finds the phrase “...the vast majority” to be non-specific and relative. The actual percentage of people who can and cannot satisfactorily provide a breath sample should be identified, in order to allow the relevancy and accuracy of the statement to be properly determined.

With respect to the pulmonary function tests the Applicant explained that she has had the tests administered twice, “...both on being admitted into an hospital for an asthma attack ...had tests years and years ago ...as a child ...first time, then only other times ...when ...admitted to hospital during an attack...”. The Applicant commented that pulmonary function tests are not done routinely: "there is no reason for those tests, other than ...when having extreme difficulty breathing or ...when you are first being assessed or when you are first being diagnosed ...to determine how bad is ...asthma, so that they know how to measure ...medication..."

The Applicant emphasized that although Physician #1 has been her family physician for only 7 years, she is privy to the file containing details of the Applicant's condition since 1990. Another physician at the clinic saw the Applicant from 1990 to 1995 and the file has been transferred to Physician #1.

The Applicant quoted passages from her own physician's report: "...unfair ...valid medical conditions ...difficult to take a successfully deep breath ...frequent visits for asthma and allergies ...worsen with environmental triggers such as smoke ...more difficulty breathing in humid weather ...warnings issued several times ...weather improves ...it takes several days ...to return to ...normal..."

By way of clarification the Tribunal asked the Applicant to describe the respiratory distress symptoms she was experiencing, at the time of the breath demand, specifically. The Applicant replied that she was nervous and unable to take a deep enough breath to provide a sample. Her condition worsened with each try, yet, there was no need to ask for medical assistance. It was not until a week after the demand for a breath sample incident that the Applicant visited her physician. The Applicant told the Tribunal that the reason for the visit was to obtain a letter of support to the Tribunal and to be assessed.

In cross-examination, the Applicant repeated the evidence proffered in evidence-in-chief. She has been an asthma sufferer since age of 7 and because it has been so long, her physician now trusts her to adjust own medication.

On July 19th, the Applicant worked five consecutive hours without a lunch break. She left work early because she was not feeling well, not because she needed to go home and rest before the party.

From the reports presented, the Respondent's Representative, Mr. Biel, inferred that "...it seems this summer has been very trying on ...respiratory problems...". Mr. Biel then questioned the Applicant as to whether she had required medical treatment for asthma during this period. The Applicant's replied: "...seeked (SIC) medical treatment not just for my asthma but mostly for my emotional stress and stability through a psychiatrist ...discussed that with her because my current doctor was on maternity leave...". When asked expressly, if she has seen a physician for asthma during this summer, the Applicant replied "No, no ...but, I did discuss the asthma with my psychiatrist. She said ...under all the stress ...it is no wonder ...asthma not doing well...".

The Respondent's Representative asked the Applicant to describe to the Tribunal how she was feeling on July 19th. The Applicant minutely detailed her daily medicinal morning routine, then declared: "...this day in particular I woke up stricken with allergies and asthma. I had taken several bouts of different medications to try to clear some of those symptoms. I felt I was able to breathe well enough to drive to work ...physically did not feel well ...physically did not look well ...symptoms did not clear, continued to have difficulty breathing, I kept taking my medicine way too much, and I went home and rested..."

In response to Mr. Biel's question as to why she went out if she was not feeling well, the Applicant commented that after a four-hour rest she "...was feeling better...". The Applicant felt she needed to make her "...best efforts..." to attend her friend's birthday as her friend was very supportive during the stressful moments of her life.

The Respondent's Representative pursued his line of questioning by asking the Applicant why she spent six hours in a smoke filled room instead of just making an appearance, especially if not feeling well. The Applicant answered that she "...got caught up in the discussions ...was catching up with everybody..."

The Applicant left the club at two AM, by which time the band had stopped playing and she was "...starting to not feel well ...very tired...". While at the club the Applicant "...did one or two slow dances ...was mostly standing and talking...". During the course of the evening the Applicant did not use her inhaler as she had used it prior to going to the club. She did however need to use the inhaler immediately after leaving the club.

Mr. Biel quoted the Toronto Star article introduced by the Applicant: "Asthma can be treated very effectively with inhaler medication...", then read the information on Salbutamol, commonly known as Ventolin, from the Canadian Medical Association Guide which elucidates that the onset effect of an inhalation is "...within 5-15 minutes..." and can last "...up to 6 hours...". A copy of the Canadian Medical Association Guide to Prescription and Over-the Counter Drugs was entered as exhibit # 4.

The Applicant disputed the admissibility of the information imparted by the Canadian Medical Association Guide to Prescription and Over-the Counter Drug, as the "copyright" date is unknown. The Applicant suggests that because smog levels are worse today then they were five years the information may be inaccurate. The Applicant was adamant that Ventolin does not always work after the first inhalation. To substantiate her position the Applicant recounted the incident of a man who had to be taken to hospital because the use of Ventolin was not sufficient to relieve his symptoms.

The Respondent's Representative asked the Applicant directly: "Did it (Ventolin) work when you took it that night?", to which the Applicant replied: "Briefly". Alluding to the Applicant's testimony regarding the hospitalisation of a man after the use of Ventolin, Mr. Biel asked the Applicant: "Did you go to the hospital?" The Applicant replied: "I was on my way home and hoping to get rest..." Mr. Biel insisted: "Did you go to the hospital?" The Applicant replied: "No, I was not having an asthma attack...".

The Applicant testified that at the time, her breathing was "...short and shallow ...slower take in and slower takeout ...effort to breathe in and an effort to breathe out so it takes longer...". Having taken a puff upon leaving the club, a second puff at the time of the breathalyzer test would be over dosing. Ventolin is to be used as needed but a maximum of once every four hours.

After being released by the officer the Applicant went "...home...". Replying to the Respondent's Representative question as to why she did not seek a hospital or walk-in clinic for medical assistance, the Applicant stated that she was not thinking rationally she was: "...extremely upset, flustered and discouraged and hurt..." and "...needed to get home and speak to ...father....needed to get home to calm ...down...".

The Applicant explained that she gave Physician #1 a copy of the Notice of the Appeal, but Physician #1 felt she could "...do more justice..." by submitting a report to the Tribunal than by filling in the prescribed Notice of Appeal. Physician #1 did not conduct a physical examination of the Applicant prior formulating her report.

The last time the Applicant was seen by a respirologist was in 1997, when she was admitted to the hospital's emergency ward. The Applicant was unable to recollect whether pulmonary function tests were done at the time.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to Registrar, sealed August 1, 2002.
2. Certified Copy of driving record of the Applicant, sealed August 4, 2002.
3. Medical opinion of Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB, ChB, FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP.

The Respondent's evidence further contains a report dated August 2m 2002 from a specialist in respiratory medicine. Dr. Roger S. Goldstein, MB, ChB, FRCP(UK)FRCP(C) FCCP, Director of Program in Respiratory Rehabilitation - University of Toronto, states that he is a "...consultant respirologist in practice since 1979 with particular interest in chronic respiratory conditions such as: asthma, emphysema and chronic bronchitis ...Director of the University of Toronto, Respiratory Divisional Program in Rehabilitation, ...medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 16 years ...familiar with the Alcotest and the Intoxilyzer 5000C having evaluated both machines in ...Pulmonary function laboratory ...have tested both the portable and the station monitor among a variety of individuals (men and women) age range 44-77 years, vital capacity range 1.6 to 4.5 litres, FEV1 range 0.4 to 2.9 litres, FEV1/FVC range 20% to 78% ...The vast majority of individuals, even with an FEV1 of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample notwithstanding their respiratory condition...".

After reviewing the Applicant's medical history as provided by Physician #1 letter, Dr. Roger S. Goldstein notes that, "...no pulmonary function tests have been enclosed ...the Applicant has not been seen since prior to December 2001 for her asthma ...unable to provide a more detailed opinion other than indicating this letter does not contain sufficient information to explain why the Applicant did not provide a satisfactory breath sample ...not been provided with sufficient information to render a meaningful opinion as to the severity of the Applicant's asthma at the time of the episode in question..."

The Respondent called Police Officer #1, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police— Toronto Detachment as a witness. Police Officer #1 testified that he has been “...on the job since ‘96...”, has been a Qualified breath Technician for over a year and a member of RIDE team for approximately two months.

Police Officer #1 described the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and the subsequent demand for a breath sample.

The Applicant was given a total of three opportunities to provide a breath sample, but failed to do so. Each time the Applicant blew into the machine the screen registered and “E0” indicating that the Applicant was “...not blowing long enough.”

After the second attempt as the Applicant was not providing an adequate sample, although Police Officer #1 did not observe any symptoms of breathing difficulties, he asked the Applicant if she had any breathing problems and if she used an inhaler. The Applicant said she did and opened her purse to show him the inhaler. Police Officer #1 then asked the Applicant if she wished to take a puff, and she replied: “...I don’t need it, I don’t feel wheezy...”

Police Officer #1 testified that he is familiar with the symptoms of asthma. During his dealings with the Applicant Police Officer #1 noticed nothing that would indicate that Applicant was breathing irregularly or was nervous.

With respect to the possibility of a blood samples being obtained by police officers, Police Officer #1 informed the Tribunal that the procedure is discretionary and only used in the event of a visible physical injury that prevents an individual from blowing into the breathalyzer instrument.

In her questioning of Police Officer #1, the Applicant asked why Police Officer #1 did not suggest to her that she could go to the hospital to obtain a blood sample. Police Officer #1 replied that after being released the Applicant was “...free to do whatever she wants...”.

The Applicant insisted on ascertaining Police Officer #1’s knowledge of asthma. Police Officer #1 stated that he has seen both children and adults exhibiting symptoms of asthma.

The Applicant further questioned Police Officer #1 as to why he did not ask the reason she did not acquiesce to the suggestion she use the inhaler.

At the request of the Applicant a brief recess was taken prior to closing remarks.

In her closing remarks the Applicant opened by saying that “...the experience has been very upsetting, the discrepancies of the police officer’s report are upsetting ...and are not the same recollection ...to some of the details...”

The Applicant clarified for the Tribunal how her long-term illness affects her daily life. She has “...difficulty taking in deep breaths ...difficulty breathing...”. She tries to cope with scarred and weak lungs by living as normal a life as possible without running to the hospital each time she feels afflicted.

The Applicant recapped her objections to Dr. Goldstein's report and the reasons why her physician's report should be given more weight.

The Applicant emphasized she was not under the influence, and that the reason she was not able to provide a breath sample was due to a medical condition.

In closing the Respondent's Representative pointed out that the Registrar does not deny that the Applicant has an asthma condition. It is the Registrar's contention that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample to Police Officer #1.

Notwithstanding her illness, it appears that Applicant is quite capable of managing her condition and live a normal life. In fact she places herself around known triggers such as a smoky environment and a cat.

The Respondent's Representative drew attention to the fact that the Applicant "...spent more hours in the night club than she did at work...". Thus, Mr. Biel posited that he was at a "...loss as how ill she was that would have precluded her from giving a breath sample..."

The Respondent's Representative asked the Tribunal to carefully review the letters submitted by the Applicant. Mr. Biel notes that neither Witness #4 nor Witness #5 makes any mention of the Applicant's illness while she was at the club.

Mr. Biel reviewed the Air Quality reports introduced by the Applicant. He argued that given the number of "...good..." quality air days, it is difficult to understand how the weather and air quality could have been a factor in the Applicant's inability to provide an adequate breath sample.

The fact that the Applicant did not ask for or follow up medical assistance after she was released is a clear indication, according to the Respondent's Representative, that the Applicant was not as ill as she would have the Tribunal believe. Furthermore, the Applicant told Police Officer #1 that she did not need Ventolin and that she was not wheezing.

Referring to Physician #1's report Mr. Biel commented that Physician #1 does not offer any indication as to the severity of the condition. Since there are no pulmonary function test results or respiratologist reports available, Mr. Biel conjectures, that Physician #1 "...is guessing whether or not she could provide a breath sample...". In her report Physician #1 states that the Applicant may have had "...difficulty..." providing a breath sample, not that it would be "...impossible or even unlikely...".

Mr. Biel continued his critique of Physician #1's report by noting that Physician #1 acknowledges in her report that she had not seen the Applicant in "...nine months..."; that the Applicant told the Tribunal that Physician #1 prepared the report without examining her. Thus, the "most glaring" deficiency in Physician #1's report is the lack of any up to date medical information on the Applicant's condition.

In conclusion the Respondent's Representative asked that the Tribunal uphold the Registrar's decision.

In rebuttal the Applicant confirmed that she did not have an asthma attack in front of the officer. The Applicant described that her asthma “...inhibits the ability to breath in and out ...may look normal to everybody else...” and emphasized that she does not like to take the Ventolin “...in front of other people...”.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal will address issues not germane to the case but which, nonetheless appear to be of concern to the Applicant.

The Tribunal commends the Applicant for her thoroughness in researching her condition and for her presentation of the evidence. In order to avoid repetition and non-relevance evidence transcribed herein, had to be summarized. Nonetheless, the Tribunal reassures the Applicant that both written and oral submissions were carefully reviewed and considered by the Tribunal.

The Tribunal understands the Applicant’s argument that knowing she was not impaired, she had nothing to hide and would have provided a breath sample had she been able to do so. For that reason the Applicant told the Tribunal, she would have been willing to provide a blood sample, had the officer told her she could get one. Certainly, as Police Officer #1 stated, after the Applicant was released “...she was free to do whatever she wants...”. The Applicant could have opted to seek medical assistance or to obtain a blood sample to substantiate her argument.

As far as Police Officer #1 asking for a blood sample, subsection 48.3 (3) 1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H-8 as amended is clear in its provision, the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained “...by an analysis of the person’s breath sample or blood taken...”. However, the decision to request a blood sample is at the discretion of the officers, according to established policy. At the time, the Applicant, was neither physically injured nor did she show visible signs of respiratory impairment, such as wheezing or chocking. Thus, the issue of a blood sample is inconsequential.

Furthermore, the Applicant resented the insinuation she felt was being made by Police Officer #1, that she was impaired. For the record, the Tribunal would like to establish that at issue, is not whether the Applicant was impaired or had been drinking at all.

Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act allows for an appeal in circumstances where a

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

Thus, at issue, is whether the Applicant has a medical condition that could cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Respondent’s Representative conceded that the Applicant is asthmatic. The Tribunal concurs. The Tribunal does not dispute the Applicant’s testimony or Physician #1’s diagnosis.

The Tribunal also acknowledges and accepts the evidence introduced by the Applicant with respect to the triggers of asthma.

The question that remains is: was the Applicant's condition, at the time of the breathalyzer test, severe enough to preclude her from providing an adequate breath sample.

As the Applicant read into evidence, Physician #1 opines that "...it would have been extremely difficult for the Applicant to have taken a long enough breath to blow into the breath analyser...". Dr. Goldstein, the Registrar's expert witness, concludes he is unable "...to render a meaningful opinion due to the lack pulmonary function tests..."

The Applicant dismissed Dr. Goldstein's report on the grounds that he did not take the time to examine her nor request her complete medical file. The Tribunal would like to point out that Dr. Goldstein is an expert witness for the Registrar. The onus is on the Applicant to provide the Tribunal with evidence to substantiate the ground for appeal. The Applicant thus, had the opportunity to submit her own expert witness reports.

The Applicant has not provided the Tribunal with medical reports from any specialists. In fact, it appears that Physician #1, who has known the Applicant for over seven years, did not feel that the Applicant's history was severe enough to warrant sending her to a respiratologist, nor to order pulmonary function tests to periodically assess the Applicant's condition.

Since neither Physician #1, nor Dr. Goldstein was at the scene of the roadside breathalyser test session, the Tribunal must rely on the eyewitness testimony of both the Applicant and Police Officer #1.

There are certain unmistakable indicators of asthma that are visible even to an untrained person. At no time, was the Applicant observed by Police Officer #1 to be in an afflicted breathing state. By her own admission, the Applicant was "...nervous..." but "...not wheezing..." and "...not having an asthma attack...". It is apparent that the Applicant did not exhibit any of the symptoms commonly associated with severe respiratory illness, such as wheezing, coughing or shortness of breath.

As the Respondent's Representative aptly pointed out the Applicant's condition was not severe enough to warrant medical intervention. In fact, not only did the Applicant not request medical assistance, at the time, she was not even examined by own physician until some time after the incident.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony although credible, failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that she was not able to demonstrate that she suffers from a medical condition, which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated July 20, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DECISION RELEASED: August 20, 2002 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 15, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Theresa D. Willar (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1999 GMC SIE pick-up, plate no. 5744CR (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	July 31, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 15, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

My common law husband drove my vehicle on July 20/02 3:00 in morning he was stopped on highway and was charged with his licence being under suspension from 1½ prior for a drinking and driving charge. He had served his jail time and I thought he had 1 year suspension because he still had his licence on him and this is a year and ½ later. He now is in jail and knowing about his suspension he will not or anyone will never drive my truck again. This is causing such hardship because now I am on my own to look after 3 small children. I need my truck for work. I work early hours in the morning. There is no other transportation for me. I cant leave my children alone in the house so I need my truck to drive later then I'm with my kids longer. With only 20 hours of work each week I cannot afford taxis with three small children I need my truck for everything.

P.S. I have no material except what I have written here.

Testimony by the Applicant revealed that she had been together with her partner for 17 years and should therefore be very aware of his very poor driving record. The licence of her common law husband and the driver of her truck, Anthony, R, Maffrett, was under suspension until Feb. 2004. He has had more than 12 previous traffic convictions, 5 alcohol related. It is beyond reason to accept that any family member would not be aware of his licence not being under suspension. A need for Ministry of Transport verification of the validity of her husband's driver's licence should have been obvious, especially in light of her knowledge of his poor driving record and the severe consequences that would result from any apprehended driving infraction.

While there is a good deal of stress and inconvenience to the Applicant as a result of the impoundment of her vehicle many unexplored avenues to substitute her vehicle remain, not the least of which is his family's help. Getting her three children looked after while she works is the main problem, which would be solved by a substitute vehicle. The Applicant has not pursued this alternative very vigorously. She has not asked her husband's family for help or her Union, who often assist in matters such as hers.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;
2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Anthony R. Maffrett;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until February 7, 2004.

The Respondent questioned the Applicant at length in regard to public transportation which was declared unsuitable to her needs as she had to work on call which at times was early morning or late at night when transit is unreliable. Her credit card was "maxed out" which precluded rental cars as an option. Family sources for transportation seemed to evoke a vague response from the Applicant. The key to the Applicant's hardship is a substitute car at this time but this will be resolved and not prove lasting once her vehicle is released, and sooner if a more vigorous pursuit of a substitute vehicle is successfully achieved. Her common-law husband's family continues to provide the best solution.

The Respondent concluded by enumerating the requirements under the Act to support the Applicant's basis for her Appeal which the Respondent stated, had not been met by the evidence presented.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

- (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

- (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
 - (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
 - (b) That the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
 - (c) That the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
 - (d) That the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).

Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, “due diligence” in Black’s Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
- (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

- (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
- (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
- (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
- (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under section 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

With respect to 50.2(3)(c) the Applicant, given her common law husband's driving record, did not meet the standards of diligence that would be clearly due as defined in the Act.

The Applicant has also appealed under 50.2(3)(d) of the Act, on the basis that the impoundment of her vehicle will and has resulted in exceptional hardship. Section 22 of the Regulation 632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant in order to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment. The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative to the impounded vehicle is available.

Furthermore section 22(4) of the Regulation requires the Applicant to demonstrate that every reasonable option has been explored including an alternative vehicle.

In this case the Applicant has not proven she has explored every reasonable option for a vehicle to substitute for the impounded vehicle.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

MOTION TO CONSIDER AN APPLICATION FOR EXTENSION OF TIME

TRIBUNAL: TERENCE A. WARDROP Q.C., Vice Chair

APPEARANCES: NIZAMUDDEEN MOHAMED, on behalf of himself and Sirmali, Safraz and Shabana Mohamed, Applicants
NETANUS RUTHERFORD, Counsel, on behalf of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program, Respondent

DATE OF HEARING: July 25, 2002 Via Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an application to the Licence Appeal Tribunal under Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999, to extend the time for Nizamuddeen N. Mohamed, one of the Applicants, to file an appeal on behalf of himself and Sirmali, Safraz and Shabana Mohamed, the other Applicants (herein collectively referred to as "the Applicants"), from a decision letter dated May 8, 2002, of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (herein referred to as "the Program"), pursuant to Section 16(2) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Act. R.S.O. 1990, Ch. O. 31. A Notice of Appeal dated June 6, 2002, was filed by Nizamuddeen N. Mohamed on June 11, 2002 and received by the Licence Appeal Tribunal on June 13, 2002.

The hearing of this Motion proceeded on the consent of both Parties as an electronic hearing. The Tribunal was provided with a facsimile copy of a Notice of Motion for an extension of time from the Applicants and an facsimile copy of an affidavit of Nizamuddeen Mohamed sworn on July 23, 2002, who also by affirmation, provided the Tribunal with testimony confirming the facts as stated in the said Notice of Motion. The Program provided to the Tribunal the affidavit of Rob Rosset and attached Conciliation Inspection Report dated November 8, 2001, the affidavit of Filomena Cece sworn on July 15, 2002 and a facsimile copy of a supplementary affidavit of Filomena Cece sworn on July 24, 2002. Mr. Rob Rosset was also in attendance at the hearing. Nizamuddeen Mohamed verbally confirmed that he represented the Applicants at the hearing. The Tribunal marked the Decision Letter of the Program dated May 8, 2002, the Notice of Appeal of Nizamuddeen N. Mohamed dated June 6, 2002, and the foregoing noted supporting documentation as Exhibits to the hearing.

ISSUES AND EVIDENCE:

The sole issue before the Tribunal is whether it should exercise its the discretion under Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999. Section 7 is as follows:

"Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

(a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and

(b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time."

The criteria which the Tribunal has adopted in considering its discretion under Section 7 was laid down in the case of In Re Bilodeau and Ontario New Home Warranty Program (1994), 26 CRAT 930 and restated in the case of Douglas and Marie Freeman and Ontario New Home Warranty Program. The four criteria are as follows:

- (1) That there was an intention to appeal within the time limited;
- (2) That the reason the notice of appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicants should be excused for not doing so and allowed to do later if they did so as soon as the true situation was apprehended;
- (3) That there is not some overriding prejudice to the Respondent in allowing the application;
- (4) That there is a substantial point in issue and the Applicants have some reasonable chance of success.

The evidence presented by the Applicants in this case fails to establish the necessary facts to support the use by the Tribunal of its discretion with respect to the first two of the criteria stated. Nizamuddeen Mohamed repeated on several occasions that he was still anticipating a further inspection, or re-inspection, of the residential dwelling by the Program subsequent to his receipt of the Decision Letter dated May 8, 2002, in spite of the statements made by representatives of the Program to the contrary. He did not accept that the decision of the Program was the final position of the Program and was in fact still in a negotiating mode even at the date of the hearing. The Tribunal is not part of this process.

The Applicants urged upon the Tribunal that they should be excused for not serving their notice of appeal within the time required due to the medical condition of Nizamuddeen Mohamed and the necessary attention and/or stress which he was experiencing at his place of employment. At the same time, there were three other adult applicants who were able and capable of completing the documentation required in making the appeal within the time limitation. It is notable that the notice of Appeal is dated June 6, 2002, yet the postmark on the envelope containing the said Notice indicates June 11, 2002.

The Tribunal therefore finds as a fact that the Applicant Nizamuddeen Mohamed did not have the intention to appeal the decision within the time limited and the other Applicants have omitted to express any such intention. Furthermore, it is a fact that the Applicant, Nizamuddeen Mohamed, did not comply in a timely manner as soon as the true situation became apparent to him, if indeed, it has. The medical condition and employment related stress of Nizamuddeen Mohamed are not factors in these circumstances which would allow the Tribunal to exercise its discretion pursuant to Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act.

It is unnecessary to deal with the remaining criteria noted above.

DECISION AND ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, the Tribunal refuses the Applicants' request for an extension of time within which to appeal the decision of the Program.

NETANUS RUTHERFORD, Counsel, representing the Ontario New Home Warranty Program

HEARING: August 15, 2002

REASONS FOR RULING AND ORDER

BACKGROUND:

This is an application to the Licence Appeal Tribunal to extend the time for Mario Belfrutto and Helen Pires (the "Applicants") to file an appeal from a decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (the "Program") pursuant to Section 16.(2) of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act").

The hearing of this motion proceeded on consent as an electronic hearing. The Tribunal was provided with:

- a copy of the Program's decision letter of May 27, 2002. (Exhibit 1)
- a copy of the Applicants' Notice of Appeal dated June 14, 2002 to which is attached a document marked Schedule A. (Exhibit 2)
- Applicants' Notice of Motion seeking an order for an extension of time for filing an appeal. (Exhibit 3)
- a copy of Canada Post's written advice of delivery of a registered letter on June 3, 2002 to Helen Pires. (Exhibit 4 page 3)
- a copy of the Applicants' agent's letter to the Program dated August 6, 2002 confirming that Helen Pires signed for receipt of a registered letter on June 3, 2002 delivered by Canada Post. (Exhibit 4 pages 4 & 5)
- Affidavit of Mario Belfrutto sworn to on August 8, 2002. (Exhibit 4 pages 6 & 7)
- Affidavit of Helen Pires sworn to on August 8, 2002. (Exhibit 4 pages 8 & 9)
- Affidavit of Filomena Cece dated August 7, 2002. (Exhibit 5 tab 1)
- Affidavit of Warren Charles Northcott dated August 9, 2002. (Exhibit 5 tab 2)
- Affidavit of Sharon Henderson dated August 9, 2002. (Exhibit 5 tab 3)

In addition to the above documentation Mario Belfrutto gave oral testimony, under affirmation. No other oral testimony was present to the Tribunal.

ISSUES:

The following issues arise in this matter.

Have the requirements for service of a notice under sections 16 and 20 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act been met and if such requirements have been met and the Notice of Appeal was not filed with the Tribunal within the time prescribed by statute is this an appropriate case for leave to be extended pursuant to section 7 of the Licence Tribunal Act, 1999?

THE EVIDENCE:

Oral Testimony of Mario Belfrutto

The evidence of Mario Belfrutto ("Belfrutto") was both oral and in affidavit form.

Belfrutto contends that upon clearing his mailbox either on June 7, 2002 or on June 10 or 11, 2002 he found a letter from the Program. This letter was the Program's decision letter of May 27, 2002. He gave this letter "a few days" later to his agent, Joram Gold and requested Gold to complete a Notice of Appeal to the decision letter. Belfrutto went on vacation and understands Gold filed the Notice of Appeal on June 19, 2002. He contends he had the intention to appeal the Program's decision, hence his instructions to Gold. He believed he had "done everything" within the 15 days for the filing of his appeal.

He went on to state that his wife, Helen Pires, at no stage gave him the registered letter for which letter she had signed receipt nor did she inform him of receipt by her of such registered letter.

(Exhibit 4, pages 6 and 7)

Affidavit evidence of Helen Pires

Helen Pires ("Pires") did not give oral testimony but did file a sworn statement in which she stated that "on or about June 3, 2002" she signed for a registered letter which she believed was from the Program.

She did not open the envelope nor did she give the envelope to her husband. She did not realize that the envelope contained the Program's decision letter. She stated that she "forgot" to give the envelope to her husband, Mario Belfrutto, "who was dealing with the Ontario New Home Warranty Program."

Affidavit evidence of Filomena Cece

Filomena Cece ("Cece") stated that she is employed by the Program as Dispute Resolution Coordinator and was advised by Canada Post that on June 3, 2002 it had delivered the Program's May 27, 2002 decision letter which had been mailed by registered mail to Mario Belfrutto and Helen Pires. Receipt of the registered letter was signed for by Pires according to the information verified by Canada Post.

Cece further stated that the 15 day appeal period prescribed in Section 16 of the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act expired on June 18, 2002 and that, according to what she had been informed by the Tribunal's Hearing Supervisor, the Notice of Appeal was hand delivered to the Tribunal on June 19, 2002. The Notice of Appeal was accordingly filed one day late.

(Exhibit 5, tab 1)

Affidavit evidence of Warren Charles Northcott

The sworn statement by Warren Charles Northcott ("Northcott") was to the effect that he is a Warranty Representative with the Program and is the author of the Program's decision letter of May 27, 2002. He further stated that the standard practice of the Program, which the Program followed in this matter, is to send only one decision letter and such one decision letter is sent by registered mail.

Northcott then dealt with the parquet flooring which was one of the issues dealt with by the Program in its decision letter of May 27, 2002. Northcott stated as follows:

3. I wish to respond in particular to the Applicants' allegation that they verbally raised the issue of the parquet flooring with me at a conciliation inspection in the first year. The only conciliation conducted in the first year was on November 22, 2000. I attended as the Warranty Representative, and my colleague, Sharon Henderson, attended as an observer. During the course of the conciliation, Mr. Belfrutto identified several items that he wanted to add to his list of complaints, and I made a note of each additional item. He did not ask me to add any complaint about the parquet flooring. At the end of the conciliation, I reviewed the list of additional items with him, and asked him to sign it, which he did. A true copy of the list of additional items signed by him is attached hereto as Exhibit "A".
4. I do not recall any discussion at all about the parquet flooring. However, I am advised by Sharon Henderson, and do believe, that she recalls a brief passing reference that occurred about midway through the actual inspection. Ms. Henderson recalls that, as we were walking from the dining room to the bedroom to look at another complaint, Mr. Belfrutto looked back over his shoulder at the dining room floor in the sunlight and asked: "Is that what my hardwood floor is supposed to look like?" I looked back at the floor and said: "Yes, that's normal." That was the extent of it. Mr. Belfrutto did not say whether he thought there was anything wrong with the floor or what was wrong with it. He did not ask me if he should or could add it to the list of additional items, nor did I tell him not to do so.

5. Further, the Applicants knew or should have known about the notice requirements. Their Warranty Certificate contains standard wording, in bold letters, as follows: "A COMPLAINT MUST BE REPORTED TO BOTH ONHWP AND THE BUILDER IN WRITING BEFORE THE APPROPRIATE WARRANTY PERIOD EXPIRES". If the Applicants had wanted to make an actual complaint about the parquet flooring, or if they had thought I missed something in the conciliation report, they could have given written notice in the month between the delivery of the conciliation report in late November 2000 and the expiry of their first year warranty on January 11, 2001. A true copy of the Warranty Certificate is attached hereto as Exhibit "B."

(Exhibit 5, Tab 2)

Affidavit evidence of Sharon Henderson

Sharon Henderson ("Henderson") stated in her sworn statement that she is a Customer Service Representative employed by the Program and that she attended as an observer at the conciliation inspection at the home of Belfrutto and Pires on November 22, 2001. Henderson went on to state in her sworn statement that:

... I recall that Mr. Northcott commenced the conciliation by asking the Applicants if they wanted to withdraw or add anything to their list of complaints. Mr. Belfrutto did identify several additional items but did not mention anything about the parquet flooring at that time. The only such mention was a brief passing reference that occurred about midway through the actual inspection. As we were walking from the dining room to the bedroom to look at another complaint, Mr. Belfrutto looked back over his shoulder at the dining room floor in the sunlight and asked: "Is that what my hardwood floor is supposed to look like?" Mr. Northcott looked back at the floor and said: "Yes, that's normal." That was the extent of it. Mr. Belfrutto did not say whether he thought there was anything wrong with the floor or what was wrong with it. He did not ask Mr. Northcott if he should or could add it to his list, no did Mr. Northcott tell him not to do so.

(Exhibit 5, tab 3)

FACTS FOUND PROVEN:

1. The Applicants' home situate at 54 Belwood Boulevard, Maple Ontario was completed for possession on January 12, 2000.
2. The Applicants have made a claim against the Program in terms of the Act in respect of three alleged outstanding deficiencies in the Applicants' home.
3. The alleged deficiencies are:
 - (i) the parquet flooring in the kitchen and living room of the home.
 - (ii) the heating vents in the children's bedroom of the home, and
 - (iii) the cracked and leaking basement wall in the home.
4. The alleged deficiency relating to the home's parquet flooring in the kitchen and living room were first reported in writing to the Program on April 18, 2001.

5. The alleged deficiency relating to the heating vents in the children's bedroom of the home was first reported in writing to the Program on April 29, 2002.
6. The alleged deficiency relating to a cracked and leaking basement wall of the home was first reported in writing to the Program on March 14, 2002.
7. The Program issued a decision letter dated May 27, 2002 which decision letter was forwarded to the Applicants by registered mail and received by Helen Pires, one of the Applicants, on June 3, 2002.
8. Other than the original decision letter dated May 27, 2002 which was mailed by the Program to the Applicants by registered mail, and which was received by and signed for by Helen Pires, the Program did not forward to the Applicants a duplicate copy of that decision letter.
9. The Applicants' Notice of Appeal, dated June 14, 2002, was delivered to the Program on June 19, 2002.

(1) Where the Corporation makes a decision under section 14, it shall serve notice of the decision, together with written reasons therefor, on the person or owner affected.

(2) A notice under subsection (1) shall state that the person or owner served is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person or owner mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Corporation and the Tribunal.

(3) Where a person or owner gives notice in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and may by order direct the Corporation to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Corporation ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Corporation.

(4) The Corporation, the person or owner who has required the hearing and such other persons as the Tribunal may specify are parties to proceedings before the Tribunal under this section.

Section 20 of the Act states:

Any notice or document required by this Act to be served or given may be served or given personally or by registered mail addressed to the person to whom notice is to be given at the person's last known address and, where notice is served or given by mail, the service shall be deemed to have been made on the fifth day after the day of mailing unless the person to whom the notice is given establishes that the person, acting in good faith, through absence, accident, illness or other cause beyond the person's control, did not receive the notice, or did not receive the notice until a later date.

Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

Section 7. Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 2 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,

- (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
- (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The decision of the Tribunal in Re Bilodeau (1994), 26 CRAT 930 deals with the factors to be taken into account when there is an application to the Tribunal for an extension of time. The following are the factors to be taken into account:

- (1) That there was an intention to appeal within the time limited;
- (2) That the reason the notice of appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicants should be excused for not doing so and allowed to do later if they did so as soon as the true situation was apprehended;
- (3) That there is not some overriding prejudice to the Respondent in allowing the application;
- (4) That there is a substantial point in issue and the Applicants have some reasonable chance of success.

The Tribunal is cognizant that the fundamental principle in deciding whether to allow an extension is to ensure justice is done.

The Tribunal accepts and finds that the Applicants had the intention to appeal within the time limited. In fact, it was conceded by the Program's Counsel that the Applicants had the intention to appeal within the time limited and it was further conceded by the Program's Counsel that there is not some overriding prejudice to the Program in the allowing of the application.

The Tribunal finds that it is the normal practice of the Program to issue only one decision letter to Applicants and in doing so it mails the decision letter by registered mail. The Tribunal also finds that the May 27, 2002 decision letter was received and signed for by Helen Pires on June 3, 2002 and rejects the evidence of Mario Belfrutto that when he cleared his mail box on either June 7 or on June 10 or 11, 2002 he found the decision letter from the Program. The Tribunal believes that the only decision letter that the Applicants received from the Program was the registered letter that was received and signed for by Helen Pires on June 3, 2002.

The 15 day period for the filing of an appeal commenced to run on delivery of the decision letter. Section 16.(3) of the Act is clear and unambiguous and states that an "owner served is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person or owner mails or delivers, within fifteen days after service of the notice under subsection (1), a notice in writing requiring a hearing to the Corporation and the Tribunal." Clearly, having accepted delivery and service of the decision letter on June 3, 2002, the fifteen day time limit within which the Applicants had to file their Notice of Appeal was June 18, 2002. This they failed to do by one day.

The Tribunal does not find that the Applicants' explanation why the Notice of Appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicants should be excused for not doing so.

Insofar as the fourth factor to be considered by the Tribunal is concerned, the Tribunal finds the Applicants have no reasonable chance of success. In respect of the Applicants' first claim regarding the parquet flooring such claim must be brought within one year after the warranty takes effect. This means the claim was to be made by no later than one year from date of possession which is one year from January 12, 2000. The Tribunal accepts the evidence by way of sworn statements of Northcott and Henderson that no claim was made by January 11, 2001. No evidence was placed before the Tribunal by the Applicants that they reported the alleged deficiency in writing or at all prior to April 18, 2001 and the Applicants' claim must therefore fail.

Insofar as the Applicants second claim is concerned, regarding heating vents in the children's bedroom, there is no evidence to indicate that written notice was received by the Program prior to April 29, 2002. Section 15.(3) of Regulation 802 to the Act requires a claim of this nature to be made within 2 years after the home was completed for possession. The Applicants failed to meet this requirement and their claim must therefore fail.

In regard to the Applicants' third claim, regarding the basement wall, the contention of the Program as set forth in their decision letter is not either disputed or contested. No facts or evidence have been presented by the Applicants to dispute that the leak had in fact been repaired prior to November 2000 and was no longer an issue after the repair. Only on March 14, 2002 did they again report a leak in the same area. The March 14, 2002 claim was received more than one year after these repairs had been completed and accordingly this claim will also fail.

Given what is stated above the Tribunal does not believe it to be appropriate that it exercise its discretion and thereby order that the time for giving notice of appeal be extended.

ORDER:

Accordingly, pursuant to the authority vested in it by the Licence Tribunal Act, 1999 the Tribunal orders that the Applicants' application to extend the time for filing of their appeal be dismissed.

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal from the decision of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program ("the Program") dated April 26, 2002, denying the claim by Daniel Cain and Jannett Lewis Cain (the Applicants) for damages for a breach of the Vendor's warranty under the Ontario New Home Warranty Plan Act (the "Act"). The claim was for a total of $3,400.00. As set out herein, the Tribunal found that the Applicants are not entitled to succeed in their claim against the Program.

FACTS

It is not disputed by the parties that the Applicant's home is a town home built by the Vendor, Emery Homes Williamstown Limited ("Emery"), and sold to the Applicants with a final closing date of October 30, 2001.

A Delayed Closing Information for Freehold Homes form was filed by the Applicants on February 14, 2002 by which a claim was made on the stated grounds that:

Compensation of $5000.00 was received for the delays in closing up until September 27 2001 but a further delay of 34 days occurred and the closing did not occur until October 30, 2001. Further expenses of $3400 were incurred and the Applicants seek additional compensation for this amount.

The Program disputes the entitlement of the Applicants to compensation under Section 17 of Regulation 892 under the Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act (the "Act").

The Applicants established a period of delay for which the vendor was responsible, however Regulation 892 of the Act set the maximum limit of compensation at $5000. Pursuant to section 14(2) of the Act the Program must take into account any benefit or compensation received by an Applicant, when assessing the amount they would be entitled to receive from the guarantee fund. The Applicants in this case had already received $5000 from the vendor for the delayed closing so the vendor has already paid out the maximum benefit payable under the warranty.

WITNESSES FOR THE APPLICANT

Jannett Lewis Cain testified that she was not given sufficient notice of the last delay from September 27 to October 30, 2001. As a result of this, she gave up her apartment and had to find alternate accommodation as she otherwise had no place to live. This was difficult, and lead to additional expenses for this period for accommodation, food, storage, and moving. On July 20, 2000, the Applicants signed a waiver accepting the amount of $5000 to be credited on the statement of adjustments as compensation for the extension of the closing date to September 27, 2001. She explained that she and her husband had accepted this amount of compensation on the understanding that the transaction would close on September 27, 2001 and did not anticipate that they would be put to significant further expense due to a further delay. When the final closing date arrived on October 30, 2001 the house was not fit for habitation as the heating system was not functional so they were not able to move in until the following day. As they were not able to stay in the house that night, the vendor paid for their hotel accommodation.

In cross examination the Applicant agreed that there had been five delays in the closing date and she had received a total of $5000 compensation by way of an adjustment on the statement of adjustments. She agreed that she had provided receipts and stated that some of them had become lost. The witness agreed that the in her claim form dated January 15 2002 (Exhibit 30 Tab 10) she had acknowledged the receipt of $5000.00 and claimed a further $3400.00 for her living expenses.

The second witness Elaine Walrond testified that she was with the Applicants when they purchased the home. Each time there was of delay they would approach the builder and she stated that the builder never had a good answer for them about the date of completion. Often they saw nothing been done to the site, however the builder would send the letter to notify them of the delay just within the time limit. There was an extension to September 27 and compensation of $5000 was given specifically to that date. The Applicant gave up her apartment and had nowhere to live after September 27 and had to find whatever accommodation she could. The builder's representative at the site agreed to compensate her for her further expenses, but this changed after the closing date and she was refused.

WITNESSES FOR THE PROGRAM

No evidence was called by the Program.

FACTS AS FOUND

The Applicants in this case purchased a home from the vendor with an initial closing date on the Agreement of Purchase and Sale of March 1, 2001. On November 30, 2000 the vendor sent a notice by registered mail to the Applicants extending the closing to April 30, 2001. On February 12, 2001 the vendor send a notice by registered mail to the Applicants extending the closing to June 28, 2001. On April 12, 2001 the vendor sent a notice by registered mail to the Applicants extending the closing date to August 27, 2001. On June 1, 2001 the vendor sent a notice by registered mail to the Applicants extending the closing date to September 27, 2001. On Aug. 30, 2001 the vendor sent a notice by registered mail to the Applicants extending the closing date to October 30, 2001. On July 28, 2001 the Applicants signed a waiver, release, and indemnification document in which they agreed to accept $5000 to be credited (on the statement of adjustments) as compensation as result of the closing date being extended beyond 120 days to September 27 2001. When the closing took place on October 30, 2001, $5000.00 was credited to the Applicants in the Statement of Adjustments as had been agreed. After the closing the transaction the Applicants sought further compensation in the amount of $3400.00 for expenses incurred from September 27, 2001 to October 30, 2001.

The Tribunal finds that the final notice sent by registered mail by the vendor on August 30, 2001 was less than 35 days before the September 27, 2002 date, and extended the closing for a period greater than 15 days. This notice was therefore not in compliance with Section 17 (3) (b) of the Act and there was therefore a breach of warranty. All of the other notices had been well within the appropriate times.

ISSUES

The issue in this case is whether the Applicants have a cause of action against the vendor for a breach of warranty as a result of the delayed closing over and above the $5000.00 compensation received upon the closing of the transaction.

APPLICABLE LAW

Section 1, Ontario New Home Warranties Act:

"home" means,

(a) a self-contained one-family dwelling, detached or attached to one or more others by common wall,

 - (c) such other warranties as are prescribed by the regulations.
- (2) A warranty under subsection (1) does not apply in respect of,

 - (d) normal shrinkage of materials caused by drying after construction;

 - (f) damage resulting from improper maintenance;
 - (g) alterations, deletions or additions made by the owner;
 - (h) subsidence of the land around the building or along utility lines, other than subsidence beneath the footings of the building;

 - (k) damage caused by municipal services or other utilities;
 - (l) surface defects in work and materials specified and accepted in writing by the owner at the date of possession.
- (3) The vendor of a home shall deliver to the owner a certificate specifying the date upon which the home is completed for the owner's possession and the warranties take effect from the date specified in the certificate.
- (4) A warranty under subsection (1) applies only in respect of claims made thereunder within one year after the warranty takes effect, or such longer time under such conditions as are prescribed.
- (5) A warranty is enforceable even though there is no privity of contract between the owner and the vendor.

(6) The warranties set out in subsection (1) apply despite any agreement or waiver to the contrary and are in addition to any other rights the owner may have and to any other warranty agreed upon.

Regulation 892, Section 4, Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act:

(1) Each person with a claim under the Plan shall give written notice of the claim to the Corporation.

Regulation 892, Section 17. (Delayed Closing), Ontario New Home Warranties Plan Act:

17 (1) Every vendor of a new home of a type referred to in clause (a) or (b) of the definition of "home" in section 1 of the Act warrants to the owner that in the event of a delay in closing that is more than five days beyond,

- (a) the date originally fixed for closing the purchase agreement; or
- (b) an extension referred to in clause 3 (a) or (b),

the vendor shall compensate the owner for all direct costs caused by the delay in an amount that does not exceed $100 a day for living expenses and $5,000 in total.

- (2) Subsection (1) does not apply to the period of delay in closing caused by a strike, fire, flood, act of God or civil insurrection.
- (3) Subject to paragraph 5 of the Addendum referred to in paragraph 12 of section 1 of Regulation 894 of the Revised Regulations of Ontario, 1990, subsection (1) does not apply where,
 - (a) the vendor extends the closing beyond the original closing date after giving written notice to the purchaser at least sixty-five days before the original closing date; or
 - (b) the vendor extends the closing for not more than fifteen days beyond the original closing date or beyond the extended closing date referred to in clause (a), after giving written notice to the purchaser at least thirty-five days before the original closing date or the extended closing date referred to in clause (a).

CASELAW

SID (Re) [1998] O.C.R.A.T. No. 84

In this case the vendor and purchasers entered into the agreement of purchase and sale with a closing date of November 28, 1996. The agreement was amended in writing and a new closing date of December 30, 1996 was inserted. The transaction did not close on that date and the vendor gave proper notice extending the date to January 14, 1997. When the transaction finally closed on January 24, 1997 the Applicants were given a statement of adjustments showing a credit of $3,037.78 for moving expenses, accommodation, and storage expenses as agreed to in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale. The Applicants' solicitor filed a claim for $2,754.00 made up of $800 for moving expenses and $1,935.35 for meals. The Tribunal found that the total period of the delay covered by the warranty was 10 days and the limit of $100 per day was applicable. As a result the only damages under the breach of warranty was $1,000.00 and when the funds received by the Applicants in the Statement of Adjustments were taken into account, no further compensation was due, so the claim was dismissed.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

There was no dispute that there was a breach of warranty by the vendor in this matter due to the delay in closing. Further it is agreed by both parties that a total of $5000.00 compensation was paid by the vendor to the Applicants pursuant to the agreement signed by the Applicants on July 28. The Act and Regulations provide a Warranty which renders the vendor liable for delays of the closing date in excess of five days and provides a structure for the vendor to extend the closing dates without a breach of warranty. In this case one extension created a breach of warranty. However, the Applicants were already compensated in the amount of $5000.00 for the delayed closing. The Act does not set up a structure for individual delays to be compensated individually and sets an over all maximum liability of $5000 for a delayed closure. In this case the vendor had already compensated the Applicants in the maximum amount for the delay and the Applicants therefore had no further cause of action under the Warranty in the Act.

DECISION

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in it under s. 16(3) of the New Home Warranties Plan Act the Tribunal directs the Registrar of the Ontario New Home Warranty Program to disallow the claim.

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 16, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on August 20, 2002, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND:

Notice of Appeal and Prescribed Fee

This appeal comes before the Tribunal on behalf of the Applicant, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 as amended, chapter H.8. The Applicant elected that his appeal be decided by the Tribunal by way of an oral hearing. The form of Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act was dated July 29, 2002, and was received by the Tribunal on July 29, 2002, together with the prescribed fee of $100.00, paid by money order.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal cited by the Applicant was stated as follows in the said notice:

"I was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason."

Preliminary Matters

The Tribunal asked the Applicant if he had asked his physician to complete the Notice of Appeal. The Applicant replied that he had but the physician completed only the bottom part and opted instead to submit a letter to the Tribunal.

A ten-minute recess was granted in order to allow the Applicant to photocopy the Notice of Appeal, showing Physician #1's signature.

Submissions of Written Material

By the Applicant:

- a) Exhibit # 1 Notice to the Registrar, dated July 26, 2002, issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
- b) Exhibit # 2 Notice of Appeal Form received by the Tribunal July 29, 2002, includes 4 pages and two pictures
- c) Exhibit # 4 Copy of Notice of Appeal completed at the bottom and showing Physician #1's signature, received August 16, 2002

By the Respondent:

- a) Exhibit # 3 Ministry of Transportation submissions received August 13, 2002

ISSUE:

Having established that this appeal falls within subsection 50.1(2)(b) of the Highway Traffic Act, and the Tribunal thereby having jurisdiction, the question to be answered is: Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW:

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") states:

- 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
- (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
 - (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
 - (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 (amended), Highway Traffic Act at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

- 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
 - (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
 - (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
 - (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
 - (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

- (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
- (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
- (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
- (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 (amended) provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS:

Applicant's Driver's Licence was suspended "July 26, 2002" as per Notice of Appeal (Exhibit # 2)

Applicant's Evidence

Page two of Notice of Appeal is blank, except for the last question requesting details of the Applicant's last visit to his physician. Physician #1 writes: "July 26/02 – severe stress, anxiety & panic ...due to incident at police station..."

The Applicant submitted a handwritten note under the letterhead of Physician #1 dated "31/07/02". Physician #1 has been the Applicant's physician for "...15 years or so...".

In his letter Physician #1 states that the Applicant "...has been treated for Panic Disorder, Anxiety & Depression ...most recently he has been seen on July 26/02..." and concludes that "...it is entirely possible that he could not do the breathalyzer test at the police station due to a panic attack brought on by the stress of the incident...".

Attached to the Notice of Appeal is a photocopy of two prescriptions; one dated "26/7/02" for paxil, the other dated 31/7/02 for Tylenol #2 and Ventolin.

Also introduced in evidence are two pictures showing bruises and abrasions on the Applicant's body.

At the hearing the Applicant's agent made an opening statement, setting forth position of the Applicant.

It is the Applicant's Agent's intent to introduce evidence to demonstrate: the Applicant was unable to provide a breath sample due to medical reasons; circumstances surrounding the arrest aggravated the Applicant's condition and made it difficult for him to provide the sample; the Applicant complied with the request; the Applicant is a responsible person.

The Applicant's Agent questioned his client, with respect to the events leading up to the demand for the breath sample.

The Applicant testified that there were three officers in total, and that he was feeling "...anxiety ...pretty nervous..." but co-operated fully when asked to provide a breath sample. It took three attempts to provide an adequate sample.

The Applicant is an anxiety sufferer and has been on medication for the condition for sixteen years. Anxiety is brought on by stress and manifests in "...shortness of breath ...severe breathing difficulties ...panicky ...disorientation...".

The Applicant testified that he was standing when he took the test, then totally unexpectedly two officers "...tackled me head first into the pavement ...did not resist...". At this time the Applicant was "...feeling very anxious..." and finding it "...a lot harder to breathe ...very difficulty to breathe...".

The Applicant was transported to the police station where he was escorted inside. The Applicant described as follows the scuffle that ensued: "...the arresting officer, for I don't know what reason, grabbed my throat, and he wouldn't let go, starting choking me, I had to tell him to stop choking me, he threw me against the metal bench, against the concrete wall ...I was handcuffed ...I was devastated, my anxiety got a lot worse, I was feeling anxious, a lot panicky, disoriented...".

The Applicant was then taken to holding room to speak on the telephone to duty counsel. Because the room was very small and the door was locked, the Applicant began to feel claustrophobic. His request to have the door open was rudely denied, and as a result the Applicant developed a full-blown anxiety attack.

Approximately forty minutes after arriving at the station the Applicant was taken to the breathalyzer room and demanded a second breath sample. The Applicant was cooperative but due to his condition was unable to provide an adequate sample.

The Applicant concluded his evidence in chief by testifying that he visited his physician on July 26th, and was advised to continue taking the Paxil.

The Applicant attested that he had never been charged with a criminal offence, has no demerit points, that he needs his licence for work and to drive his elderly parents and grandfather.

The Respondent's Representative, Mr. Kyle Biel began his cross-examination by asking the Applicant to state the medical reason he attributed to his inability to provide a breath sample. The Applicant explained that that he was having an anxiety attack and that the symptoms resemble asthma.

The Applicant described his symptoms, while in the breathalyzer testing room with Police Officer #1: "...severe difficulty breathing, shortness of breath, disoriented, panicky, tightness of chest, sweaty...". The Applicant elaborated on his feeling of disorientation as follows: "...not thinking clearly...".

In reply to Mr. Biel's question as to why he did not request medical assistance, the Applicant replied that while still in the parking lot of "Whiskey a Go-Go", his anxiety was not "...full blown..." and that he was trying to cooperate with the police. Later, when in the breathalyzer testing room, with Police Officer #1, the Applicant "...felt uncomfortable ...needed medical...", nonetheless, he felt there was no point in asking as "...they would not let me anyway ...by that time they would not let me do anything...".

After being released by the police the Applicant went home rather than seeking immediate medical assistance, because "...after five hours in a cell..." he had "...calmed down, was more relaxed ...could breathe a little bit better...".

The Applicant visited his physician the same day and explained to him the incident of early morning while the Applicant was in police custody.

The last time the Applicant saw a psychiatrist for his panic attacks was ten or fifteen years ago.

On the night he was stopped the Applicant did not have either the Paxil or the Ventolin with him.

The Applicant's agent re-examined the Applicant regarding his level of anxiety at the time of the incident. the Applicant's Agent, asked the Applicant to clarify: "Were you disoriented because you were drunk or were you disoriented because you were having a panic attack?". The Applicant replied: "...I was drunk...".

The Applicant's wife, proffered testimony as to the Applicant's appearance when she picked him up from the police station and regarding his panic disorder and general good character.

After the Applicant's wife's testimony permission was granted to the Applicant's Agent to re-examine his client. the Applicant's Agent asked the Applicant to clarify his answer to the question regarding the reason for his disorientation. The Applicant contradicted his previous answer replying "...panic attack ...severe anxiety...". By way of explanation the Applicant suggested that he "...was confused..." when first asked the question by the Applicant's Agent.

In his closing remarks, the Applicant's agent commented that it is difficult to believe "...that all the officers were talking about the same person..."

the Applicant's Agent felt confident that the evidence introduced by the Applicant, demonstrates the Applicant could not provide a sample due his medical condition.

On the night in question his treatment at the hands of the officers aggravated his condition and rendered him unable to breathe adequately and provide a breath sample.

Respondent's Evidence

The Respondent provided the following Documents:

1. Certified Copy of Notice to the Registrar, sealed August 1, 2002
2. Certified Copy of Driving Record of the Applicant, sealed July 31 2002.
3. Affidavit of Police Officer #2, York Regional Police Service, sworn August 9, 2002.

The Applicant's driving record since "1979/08/02" shows no infractions.

In his Affidavit Police Officer #2 attests to the events that led up to the demand for the breath sample as well as the results of the roadside breathalyzer test.

During the time he spent with the Applicant "...never requested medical assistance..."

Although, the Applicant told Police Officer #2 that he suffered from "...asthma ..." Police Officer #2 "...never observed any breathing problems...".

The Respondent called Police Officer #3, as a witness. Police Officer #3 has been with York Regional Police Service since "December 8th 2001".

In examination-in-chief and in cross-examination, Police Officer #3, testified as to the events that led up to the demand for a breath sample, the Applicant's subsequent arrest, transportation to the police station and the second demand for a breath sample.

Police Officer #3, described the Applicant's behaviour as agitated, abusive and resistant. At no time did Police Officer #3 observe the Applicant having "...shortness of breath or anything that would lead ...to believe there was a health concern...". Through her own experience with asthma Police Officer #3 would be capable of detecting if someone was exhibiting any of the symptoms commonly associated with asthma.

In reply to the Applicant's Agent's questions, Police Officer #3 confirmed that the Applicant did not request medical assistance.

The Tribunal heard from Police Officer #1 employed by York Regional Police Service, since November 1999, and previously with the Ontario Provincial Police. Police Officer #1 has been a Qualified Intoxilyzer Technician since 2001.

Police Officer #1 was asked to take the Tribunal through her dealings with the Applicant on the morning of July 26th, 2002, by the Respondent's Representative.

Police Officer #1, testified that the Applicant appeared to understand the instructions. During the Applicant's first attempt to provide a breath sample into the Intoxilyzer device, Police Officer #1 heard the sound of air escaping from the mouthpiece and formulated the opinion that the Applicant had not properly formed a seal around the mouthpiece. The Applicant was again instructed on how to provide a proper breath sample, but the display did not change after his second attempt, indicating that there was not enough breath to activate the instrument. The Applicant's "...cheeks puffed out..." during his last attempt. Insufficient air entered the instrument for the machine to register.

After his second attempt the Applicant informed Police Officer #1 that he had asthma. As for his demeanor Police Officer #1 saw no signs of respiratory distress, such as shortness of breath, disorientation, or even signs of impairment.

The Applicant behaved in a quite pleasant and cooperative manner with Police Officer #1, but seemed to have an issue with Police Officer #2. There were no signs of injury and no indication that the Applicant was in pain.

the Applicant's Agent questioned Police Officer #1 as to her experience with the Intoxilyzer device and as to how the determination of the number of opportunities given to an individual is made. More to the point, the Applicant's Agent asked the Police Officer #1 why if she did not feel the Applicant was inebriated did she "flunk" him after only two cards.

Police Officer #1 answered that she was "...under the impression that this subject was willfully not providing a breath sample...".

At the stipulation of the Tribunal Police Officer #1 explained that the roadside device does not give a numeric reading of the individual's breath sample. Thus, everyone who registers a FAIL is asked to provide an Intoxilyzer breath sample, to determine the actual amount of alcohol in the breath.

In his closing remarks, the Ministry's Representative indicated that the Registrar is not denying that the Applicant suffers from a "...some sort of panic attack...". The contention is that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, not that his condition is severe enough to prevent him from doing so.

Mr. Biel pointed out that it is hard to accept that someone going through a medical problem would have been able to resist arrest and scuffle with three police officers.

At no time during the ride to the detachment nor at the detachment did the Applicant request medical assistance.

The Respondent's Representative also pointed out the discrepancy between the Applicant's evidence and that of Police Officer #1. The Applicant stated that he was visibly showing the signs of a panic attack. Police Officer #1 noticed nothing. In fact the Applicant was able to ask Police Officer #1 quite logical questions regarding the Intoxilyzer device.

The Ministry's Representative, Mr. Biel suggested that Physician #1's report is inappropriate because Physician #1 "...was not there...", and also because his report does not contain enough information. Physician #1 did not provide a history of the Applicant's condition nor the Applicant's behavioural pattern.

The Ministry's Representative urges the Tribunal confirm the Registrar's decision to suspend the Applicant's driver's licence, as there was no visible indication, that the Applicant was unable to provide a breath sample for any other reason, that he was not cooperating with the police officer's demand.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

Although the totality of the evidence presented was considered, the preceding notes reflect a summary of the proceedings.

An appeal was brought by the Applicant under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

“...person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason...”

The Respondent's Representative conceded that the Applicant suffers from a panic disorder. The Tribunal concurs and so finds a fact. Nonetheless, at issue is: was the Applicant's condition at the time of the breathalyzer test, severe enough, to cause the Applicant to fail or not comply with the breath demand.

The Applicant, albeit inadvertently, unmistakably shattered his grounds for a medical appeal by confirming that he was disoriented because he was “drunk”. The Tribunal accepts the Applicant's explanation that he was “confused” when first asked the question by his agent, and will proceed to examine the evidence.

Physician #1 suggests, “...it is entirely possible that he could not do the breathalyzer test at the police station due to a panic attack brought on by the stress of the incident...”. The Tribunal finds Physician #1's premise quite plausible. It is conceivable that the Applicant would have been feeling somewhat anxious about the unusual circumstances that he found himself in. Nonetheless, as the Mr. Biel asserted Physician #1 “...was not there...”.

As pointed out by the Respondent's Representative corroborated by the evidence of Police Officer #2, Police Officer #3 and Police Officer #1, also confirmed by the Applicant, at no time did the Applicant request medical attention.

Police Officer #3 described the Applicant as agitated, but neither of the three officers observed the Applicant in any state of respiratory distress.

For the events that transpired during the breathalyzer testing session the Tribunal must rely on the eyewitness observations of the two individual's involved: the Applicant and Police Officer #1.

As Mr. Biel emphasized there were several discrepancies between the Applicant's evidence and that of the Police Officer #1,

The Applicant testified that while he was in the breathalyzer testing room with Police Officer #1, he was undergoing a full-blown panic attack. The Applicant testified that he was experiencing: “...severe difficulty breathing, shortness of breath ...tightness of chest...” and that he was feeling “...disoriented, panicky, sweaty...”. There is no doubt, that Police Officer #1, due to her first hand knowledge of asthma, and her close proximity to the Applicant would have been able to detect and signs described the Applicant. Police Officer #1 noticed nothing.

Police Officer #1's recollection of the Applicant being "...quite pleasant..." is consistent with the Applicant's evidence that he was "...cooperative...". It is the fact the Applicant was cooperative and coherent in asking questions, that the Tribunal finds inconsistent with the usual characteristics of someone going through a panic attack.

The Applicant presented no detailed medical reports, no specialist reports. The Tribunal was told that the Applicant has learned to manage his condition and does not require medical attention each time he has a panic attack.

The Tribunal finds the evidence of the Applicant credible, but is not satisfied that the Applicant's condition at the time he was demanded a breath sample by Police Officer #1 was severe enough to prevent the Applicant from providing a breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony failed to substantiate the basis for an appeal on medical grounds. Thus, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not meet the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was not able to demonstrate that his medical condition, prevented him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order dated July 27, 2002 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA") and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DECISION RELEASED: August 22, 2002 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on August 19, 2002, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	John Bricker (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	1982 Oldmobile Cutlass, plate AMWE 140 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	July 4, 2002

The Applicant filed an appeal of this impoundment order with the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") together with supporting documentation and the required $100.00 fee payable to the Minister of Finance.

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on August 19, 2002 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

The Tribunal asked the parties if they wished to make any submissions prior to the Tribunal commencing the hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of appeal states:

I bought the car for $900.00. The Safety Check cost me $1100.00 totalling $2000.00. I was born in 1928 and live on old age pension. The cost of Safety Check in the vehicle. The receipt is in the car. I'm asking for more time for this appeal.

The Applicant's testimony elaborated on his limited income and the severe strain on his savings in order to redeem his car. His daughter recovered the car from the garage where a mechanical certification had been performed in order to transfer the car into the Applicant's name from the previous owner Debra Thomas. The Applicant lives just a mile and a half from town and his family looks after his transportation needs as required, as they all have cars. His focus during his testimony was the financial loss he has endured.

His daughter, Jamie Bricker, the suspended driver of his car, then testified that she was not aware of the three year suspension as the judge had sentenced her to just two years, however she was also advised in writing that as her charge was under the Criminal Code of Canada the minimum suspension would be three years. She claims she never received the notice nor the follow up notice from the Ministry that is sent by mail. It was determined that she had changed her address and not notified the Ministry.

It is significant to note that she has yet to apply for a new licence even though she testified that in her view the suspension was served as of March 2002. She was stopped June 10th, 2002.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by Jamie J. Bricker;
2. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
3. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Blood/Alcohol Content in Excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until March 9, 2003.

After considerable review the Respondent found from the Applicant's testimony that more than one vehicle was available to him should he need transport and indeed he had made use of his daughter's car during the impoundment period whenever necessary.

The Respondent detailed the requirements to support his Appeal and concluded that evidence presented in the Respondent's opinion did not meet the required test detailed in the Act.

As for the daughter's claim of non notification in respect to the 3 not 2 years suspension the Respondent explained how the proof of notice could be obtained even though it is not an issue for this Appeal. It was suggested she retain a lawyer for this process.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Ontario Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

- (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
- (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
- (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
- (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

- (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

- 22
- (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) a threat to the health or safety or any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
 - (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
 - (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
 - (a) inconvenience to any person;
 - (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
 - (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
 - (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
 - (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
 - (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
 - (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
 - (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
 - (d) the impact of the loss,
 - (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
 - (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
 - (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

The Applicant has appealed under 50.2(3)(d) of the Act on the basis that the impoundment of his vehicle will result and has resulted in exceptional hardship. Section 22 of the Regulation

632/98 is very specific and provides the Tribunal with clear criteria that must be met by the Applicant in order to establish exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment. The Tribunal cannot consider any other factors arising from or directly related to the impoundment itself.

Under section 22(2) of Regulation 632/98 the Tribunal cannot consider financial or economic loss or loss of employment or employment opportunity unless the Applicant demonstrates that all criteria set out in section 22(3) apply. One of those criteria is that no alternative vehicle is available.

In this case more than one vehicle was available to the Applicant, as was revealed in his evidence. Any economic loss cannot be considered as it fails the test provided in Regulation 632/98 section 22 Sub 3 and 3a. that no alternative vehicle was available.

The issue in respect to the term of his daughter's suspension is not a matter for this Tribunal's consideration but rather some other venue.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

Section 6 of the Act states as follows;

(1) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to register an applicant where in the Registrar's opinion, the applicant is disentitled to registration under section 5.

(2) Subject to section 7, the Registrar may refuse to renew or may suspend or revoke a registration for any reason that would disentitle the registrant to registration under section 5, if the registrant were an applicant, or where the registrant is in breach of a term or condition of the registration.

Brenner v Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesman) 1983 O. J. No. 1017 Ontario Supreme Court-High Court of Justice Divisional Court

This was an appeal by the Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers and Salesmen from a decision of the Commercial Registration Appeal Tribunal in which the Tribunal directed the Registrar to grant a conditional registration to the Respondent. The Applicant had a very serious criminal record which he had disclosed in his application but he had not disclosed three further convictions which were considered by the Registrar to be minor offences. The Tribunal heard evidence from a potential employer and a criminal lawyer who testified that the Applicant had rehabilitated himself. The Court found that the Tribunal had not applied the proper test, and set out this test in paragraph nine of the judgment as follows:

"the Tribunal should only have refused to direct the Registrar to carry out his proposal if it thought the Registrar was in error concluding that the past conduct of the applicant afforded reasonable grounds for belief that he would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. The board does not appear to have directed itself to this question and makes no finding that, in its view, the past conduct of Brenner did not afford reasonable grounds for the belief that Brenner would not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty. Instead the Board appears to have been preoccupied with sympathetic concern as to whether or not Brenner had genuinely reformed, and appears to have decided that it ought to give him a second chance because there was the possibility that he, indeed, might have reformed himself."

Re: Nguyen [2001] O.L.A.T.D. No. 170

In this case the applicant has a significant criminal record with 23 prior revoke convictions and on his application form had admitted that he had a record but only if particulars of a minor Theft Under $1000 charge and subsequently he sent further information concerning other more serious charges. He also admitted during the Tribunal hearing that he had been working as an unregistered motor vehicle salesperson and that the dealership was aware of his convictions. The Tribunal found that he had initially failed to answer the question concerning his record fully, and deliberately attempted to cover up his record and found that the conduct of acting as an unregistered salesperson was also indicative that he would fail to act lawfully and with honesty and integrity in the future. At the time of the hearing this total record was too recent for it to be out weighed by his present efforts at reformation.

At page 7 of the decision the Tribunal stated:

"Nguyen's many convictions are too recent, and that some further time must be allowed to pass within which Nguyen does not renal sent. Only with the passage of time coupled with exemplary behaviour will is be possible to consider him for registration as a salesperson."

Registrar v Griese 1993 (Ontario Court of Appeal)

In this matter the Court of Appeal found that the Tribunal erred in relying on the Applicant's allegation that he did not knowingly breach trust requirements in relation to his earlier conviction. And failed to appreciate that the plea of guilty admits every element of the offence including knowledge.

ISSUES

The legal issue in this case is whether the Registrar was wrong in his decision to refuse the Applicant's application for registration under the Act on the basis of the Applicant's conduct respecting the allegations of criminal behaviour, a conviction under the Act, the Applicant's driving record, and the lack of appropriate disclosure on the Application form, as well as the issue of financial responsibility.

WITNESS FOR THE REGISTRAR

Ms. Laura Gordon testified on behalf of the Registrar. She explained that she has been the Director of Compliance at O.M.V.I.C. since 1997. Prior to that she spent eight years as the investigator and inspector with the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations motor vehicles branch prior to the creation of O.M.V.I.C. Before that, she worked in various capacities for other Registrars within the Ontario government. She testified that O.M.V.I.C. was established in 1997 to administer the Motor Vehicle Dealers Act which is a public protection statute regulating motor vehicle dealers and salespersons within the province of Ontario. There are four areas of responsibility being: registration, complaint mediation, inspection, and the investigation of complaints. Pursuant to section 5 of the Act, a person is entitled to registration unless the Registrar had reasonable grounds to refuse based on concerns that they will not be financially responsible, or their past conduct raises concerns that they will not carry on business with honesty, integrity and in accordance with the law.

The witness stated that the Notice of Proposal set out the concerns for the Registrar that the Applicant had not adequately disclosed pending charges; had not disclosed the suspension of his driver's license for unpaid fines; had been convicted of the industry specific offence of acting as an unregistered salesperson; had failed to disclose an employer on his application form; and had been through bankruptcy twice. She explained that in the Notice of Further and Other Particulars the Registrar set out the other concerns once they learned that he had been convicted of Criminal Code charges, convicted of the charge under the Act, and also found that his driver's license was suspended for unpaid fines.

Ms. Gordon reviewed the application form and explained that in section D the applicant is supposed to fill in all of their work activities over the last three years and that if they do not do so they are warned that the form will be returned as deficient. In the Applicant's form only three employers were listed whereas the records at O.M.V.I.C. (Exhibit 7) showed that the Applicant had also worked at New Tecumseh Motor Products Inc. as well within the three-year period. On the application form filed by the Applicant on this occasion the supporting dealer was Evans Ford Lincoln Inc. In this form there were concerns over several answers. First, he failed to list New Tecumseh Motor Products Inc. as an employer. Also, in answer to question 4, he marked that he did have a valid Ontario driver's license, and when O.M.V.I.C. received a printout from the Ministry of Transportation records (Exhibit 3, tab 4), it showed that there were several license suspensions over the years and the license was suspended for a Court ordered unpaid fine.

The witness also had concerns over his answer to question 9 of the application form where he stated that there were charges of Impaired Driving Causing Bodily Harm and Dangerous Driving causing Bodily Harm still pending (Exhibit 3 Tab 3). When the criminal record search (Exhibit 3 Tab 5) came back, the Registrar found that there were other charges pending as well and it was discovered that the charges pending were actually Criminal Negligence Causing Bodily Harm, Fail to Remain, Dangerous Operation, Impaired Operation Causing Bodily Harm, and Criminal Harassment. When the copy of the Information was received it showed that the Dangerous Driving Bodily Harm, Impaired Driving Bodily Harm and Criminal Harassment charges were all on the same information and were completed on June 20, 2002 and were with regard to the same person. There had been a guilty plea on the Dangerous Driving Causing Bodily Harm and Criminal Harassment charges on January 14, 2002 and a pre-sentence report was ordered. On June 28, 2002 sentence was passed and the Applicant received nine months imprisonment on the Dangerous Driving Bodily Harm charge, and with three years probation; and three months imprisonment concurrent and three years probation concurrent on the Criminal Harassment charge. The Applicant was also prohibited from driving for three years; was ordered to pay restitution to the victim in the amount of $1000.00; and was ordered not to possess weapons or ammunition for five years. He was ordered to provide a D.N.A. sample. The charge of Impaired Driving was withdrawn by the Crown.

In answer to question 6 in the application form, Mr. Woods advised that he had been bankrupt and provided a copy of the some supporting documentation from his trustees regarding his current bankruptcy.

Further checks revealed that he had been convicted of an industry related offence under the Act for acting as a salesperson for a motor vehicle dealer on February 21, 2002 while not registered. In April 2002 he entered a guilty plea, and was given a fine of $150.

Ms. Gordon explained that the Registrar had serious concerns as there appeared to be a pattern of behaviour given the totality of problems including the criminal charges, the charge under the Act, the unpaid fines and the lack of disclosure in the application form. She explained that the application form is particularly important because it is relied upon as accurate by the Registrar and is seen as the first test of honesty for the Applicant. On the signature page of the application the Applicant is asked to sign certifying that the facts contained are true. The document was signed by the Applicant, and also by an authorized representative from the dealership.

In cross examination, Ms Gordon explained that O.M.V.I.C. records as to customer complaints do not go back for 20 years. As individuals generally renew their registrations every two years O.M.V.I.C. did not do a search in this case to determine if there had been any customer complaints. When she was asked if the policy at O.M.V.I.C was that a bankrupt person could not be registered, she explained that there is no absolute rule, as each case depends on its individual circumstances and the Registrar looks at the totality of the situation for each Applicant. When it was pointed out to her that on the application form there was a box at the top with initials beside the words "approved by" she explained that this does not mean that the application had been formally approved but was just initialled by the receptionist when the application was submitted. She explained that the approval process went further than examination by the receptionist, and the problems for the Applicant started when the criminal record search was done and O.M.V.I.C. received the information that there was a record or charges pending. The witness stated that she had no information on the criminal charges beyond what was shown on the C.P.I.C. printout and the Information. However she did state that she had spoken to the police officer, and was advised that the car had turned over.

Ms. Gordon stated that if the only problem had been that the Applicant had failed to disclose New Tecumseh as a prior employer on the Application form, it is unlikely that it would have been sufficient grounds for a refusal. The problems with the application initially started when O.M.V.I.C. became aware of the criminal charges.

When she was again questioned about the record of customer complaints she repeated that she was not aware of any record of customer complaints being kept for a great length of time.

Ms. Gordon was asked why they would be a concerned over the bankruptcy if the Applicant was a salesperson who did not handle money, and she explained that in the industry, there have been problems that things happen, deposits are taken or figures and paperwork are manipulated. On the bankruptcy itself she was more concerned that there were arrears owing to Revenue Canada, a loan owing to a dealer, and a family court order for support that was in arrears. In a regulated industry such a pattern can give a concern for the protection of the public.

She was asked how Mr. Woods would know if he had been ever been suspended if he never got a notice, and she explained that he would have known something about suspensions, as he had been called in for interviews on November 3, 1994, March 28, 1988 and November 16, 1987 according to the Ministry of Transportation records produced (Exhibit 3, Tab 4). She also noted that the last suspension August 31, 2001 was as a result of the Court ordered fine, so he would have known of the fine and been advised of the consequences of non-payment. The information showed that he appeared in Court on January 14, 2002 on the criminal charges and should have known by that time that his license was suspended in August for the unpaid fine. On this basis, the witness believed that by February 6, 2002 when the Application was dated he would certainly have known of the suspension.

Ms. Gordon was asked about the Applicant's industry related record and pointed out that Mr. Woods had pleaded guilty to acting as a salesman while he was unregistered. She explained that this charge would have been of concern to the committee considering the problems with the registration. The issue of whether this one item would have caused the refusal of the registration was raised and she again explained that the decision would be made based on the totality of the conduct to determine if the conduct as a whole gave reasonable grounds for the refusal.

She was asked about what consideration would be given to his sales record, and she said that the Registrar was not concerned with how quickly he could move cars off the lot. Ms. Gordon stated the decision was based on the past conduct which is a combination of his criminal charges, his industry related charge, his license suspensions, his bankruptcies, and his nondisclosure of information in the application form.

WITNESSES FOR THE APPLICANT

Mr. Edward Sullivan

Mr. Edward Sullivan testified on behalf of the Applicant that he was a salesman at Evans Lincoln Mercury and had known the Applicant since July 1996. They had met when both were working at Erinwood Ford as salespersons. He explained that presently he is an inventory supervisor and the Applicant is his assistant and does not actually sell cars. Mr. Sullivan explained the when they worked at Erinwood Ford the dealership sold over 3000 called cars per year including new used and fleet sales and the Applicant had sold over 1000 cars while he was there without any customer complaints. At this point three letters were produced from Erinwood Ford, Rose City Ford, and Auto Park Superstore indicating that Mr. Woods had worked and each place, he was a good producer and took care of customer satisfaction. One letter made specific reference to his honesty. Mr. Sullivan explained that the Applicant had specialized in selling used vehicles and had never sold new ones. At Evans Lincoln Mercury, Mr. Sullivan had constant contact with the Applicant as Mr. Woods worked directly for him. He knew that Mr. Woods' registration had lapsed as he was there when the new application was filled in. The witness was also aware of the criminal charges of Dangerous Operation, Impaired Operation and Criminal Negligence. He explained that Mr. Woods does not drive vehicles off the lot as part of his employment at Evans Lincoln Mercury. As to Mr. Woods' state of mind after the accident, Mr. Sullivan said that he was nervous and unsure of himself. The applicant had been off work for over a year as a result of the accident.

When Mr. Woods filled out the form he did not ask for any help going over it, and Mr. Sullivan did not review it for him. Mr. Sullivan testified that he was aware of Mr. Woods' bankruptcies as Mr. Woods had told him about them. He also knew that Mr. Woods had been charged with selling cars at Evans without being registered, and knew that Mr. Woods had pleaded guilty and the penalty was a fine of $150..

Mr. Sullivan testified that Mr. Woods knew that he could not drive as Mr. Woods had told him he could not drive as a result of the accident and had not mentioned unpaid fines. He stated that he drives Mr. Woods to and from work. The witness stated that he knew that the Applicant had worked at Auto Park Superstore which was a high volume dealership but didn't know why Mr. Woods left. He also knew that Mr. Woods had worked at Chevalier Chrysler but did not know why he had left. When he first met Mr. Woods, he had already heard of him and explained that they had now both been selling cars for about 30 years. At the present time he stated that the Applicant is not dealing with other dealers and is now just involved with inventory at Evans. He explained that any sales transactions have to go through a manager and any deposits taken in must be given directly to a manager. There are three managers at Evans.

In cross-examination the witness stated that he is a salesperson and not a manager so he must take any of his deals for approval by a manager and could not approve a deal for the Applicant if the Applicant were able to continue as a salesperson. When they were at Erinwood Mr. Sullivan stated that he was management for some time.

Mr. Sullivan explained that when the Applicant was applying for registration, the witness thought that he had a valid license, and was just applying for a transfer.

Mr. Cyrus Lindsay Woods

The Applicant testified that he had been a motor vehicle salesperson since 1973. He stated that there is the same license for selling new and used cars. Mr. Woods explained that there is now a renewal form for the registration every two years. Mr. Woods testified that he is 50 years of age and has two children. He stated that he had been selling cars all of his working life and it is the only occupation he knows. From 1997 he estimates that he has sold 500 cars, and would have sold more but he was injured in the accident and was away from work for a year. Finally he found that he had to make another application and when he filled it in, he thought he had understood it.
