5777 – FDEA – CLAIM

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE BOARD OF FUNERAL SERVICES COMPLAINTS COMMITTEE UNDER THE FUNERAL DIRECTORS AND ESTABLISHMENTS ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. F.36

DECLINING TO REFER A MATTER TO THE DISCIPLINE COMMITTEE

TRIBUNAL: TERRANCE SWEENEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: DAWNE JUBB, Counsel representing the Applicant

JULIE MACIURA, Counsel representing the Registrar, Funeral Directors and Establishments Act

LILY I. HARMER and DANNY KASTNER, Counsel representing the Added Parties, McDougall & Brown Funeral Home and Adam McBrain

DATES OF HEARING: April 12, 13 and 14, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

This hearing arises out of a Notice of Appeal to this Tribunal filed by the Applicant and dated November 27, 2009, in respect to a decision of the Board of Funeral Services Complaints Committee dated November 4, 2009. The Applicant complains to this Tribunal in respect of certain alleged unsavoury practices of McDougall & Brown.

The name of the Applicant and members of his family will not be used to protect their privacy.

The Complaints Committee is established under sections 7 and 10 of the Funeral Directors and Establishments Act (the "FDEA" or the "Act").

The Applicant in a letter dated February 5, 2010, in compliance with a Licence Appeal Tribunal ("LAT") order at a pre-hearing of the matter, set out, among other things, ten remedies that he requested the Tribunal to grant. They were as follows:

1. Recommend that the Minister order an in-depth consumer protection investigation into whether there are systemic issues of misrepresentations, upselling and unfair policies and procedures of licensees and operators;

2. Recommend that the Director order the Licensee to stop making of false and misleading representation in contravention of the Act, pursuant to subsection 27(1) of the Act.

3. Recommend prosecution of the Licensee for the offence of non-compliance with the Act, through failing to comply with Section 10 of Regulation 469 (the rules respecting display and pricing), and

4. Order the Licensee to issue a public apology for misleading its clients with respect to options and pricing, to be posted in prominent view in the funeral establishment and published in the principal Toronto newspaper, the Toronto Star;

5. Order the Licensee to disclose all training modules, policies and procedures, including whether there are benefits to employees who make larger sales;

6. Order the Licensee to correct the display of materials, and the signage related to the display, such that the main Price List is the only prominent document;

7. Order the Licensee to, when speaking with customers, clearly state and provide a document in writing indicating:

   a. Whether there are product options or not and any costs associated with such options, such as a standard size but custom boxes are available at no cost (s. 10(b) of Regulation 469); and

   b. The full range of prices, as set out in the main Price List (s. 10(b) of Regulation 469); and

   c. Whether rental products are available the costs associated;

8. Direct that all or part of the matter be referred to Discipline Committee to investigate the misconduct of the employees of the Licensee (s.14 (2) (b)) for breach of Subsection 44(r) of Regulation 470 (the duty on funeral directors not to act in a manner that would disgrace business practice);

9. Order costs to the plaintiff for time spent and associated costs to bring the Complaint, in the amount of $1,000; and

10. Any other remedy the Tribunal considers just.

Based on the evidence, in the phrase “Licensee” the Applicant refers to McDougall & Brown or Arbor Memorial Service Inc. (“Arbor”), a public company, and the ultimate parent of McDougall & Brown.

Preliminary Motion

The Added Parties served and filed motion materials asking this Tribunal to strike six of the remedies sought, being remedies 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 and 7, on the ground that this Tribunal lacks jurisdiction to grant such remedies.

Counsel for the Applicant, in turn, served and filed her own motion materials in support of this Tribunal's jurisdiction.

The Tribunal ruled that it would hear argument on the motion at the commencement of the hearing which took up the morning of April 12, 2010. The Tribunal adjourned the hearing until the following day and, at the outset, delivered orally the ruling. The following is a summary of that ruling.

Motion Ruling

The FDEA is consumer protection legislation and as such is to be interpreted liberally to best achieve its objects which, in the Act, include "to serve and protect the public interest".[1]

A Complaints Committee under the FDEA has only those powers conferred on it by the Legislature. This Tribunal's jurisdiction is the same as the Complaints Committee.[2]

Under the Act, it is only individual funeral directors who are subject to discipline by the Discipline Committee.[3]

Section 14 of the FDEA, however, in its opening words, says that the Complaints Committee "shall consider and investigate complaints regarding the conduct ... of any licensee...". Moreover, paragraph 14(2) (c) of the Act says that the "Complaints Committee ... may ... take or recommend such action that it considers appropriate in the circumstances and that is not inconsistent with this Act ..."

Counsel for the Added Parties submitted that the Complaints Committee is merely a step in the disciplinary proceedings. This interpretation would, however, mean that a person with a complaint against a corporation rather than an individual funeral director would be left without a remedy. This offends against the FDEA as consumer protection legislation.

The Tribunal agrees with Ms. Jubb that such an interpretation would read out the words in paragraph 14(2)(c) which would be contrary to fundamental rules of statutory interpretation, including the rule that every word in a legislative text must be given its own meaning.

The Schmolinski[4] decision does not deal with the individual/corporate issue with which we are concerned. The Tribunal does note that the Divisional Court in Schmolinski said that the "principal role" of the Complaints Committee was as a screening or investigatory body. It did not say that was the "sole" purpose of the Complaints Committee.

The Tribunal has considered the Added Parties' submission that it would be unfair to Mr. McBrain to levy penalties without giving him an opportunity to provide a full answer to the claims against him. That, of course, is why this Tribunal will hold this hearing giving all parties a full opportunity to participate so that justice might be done.

In conclusion, therefore, the Tribunal must dismiss the motion of the Added Parties.

Hearing

The hearing into the merits of the claim commenced on Tuesday April 13, 2010, and was completed that day.

The Tribunal heard argument in the afternoon of April 14, 2010.

The Triggering Event

The brother-in-law of the Applicant died in the morning of March 19, 2009. The family decided on cremation and made an appointment to attend on McDougall & Brown in the afternoon. The Applicant went with his sister, the widow of the deceased, and her three children to McDougall & Brown.

They met with Mr. Waterman, a funeral director, at McDougall & Brown, Scarborough Chapel. The family of the deceased told Mr. Waterman they did not want a service or any visitation. During the discussion, two matters arose which disturbed the Applicant:

1. Waterman asked as to how big the deceased was and the Applicant alleges that he was told that if the deceased could not fit into the standard cremation container, a more expensive casket would have to be purchased.

2. The widow asked if her brother could build the cremation container. The Applicant alleges that the family was told that this "would not be possible".

The Complaint

The Applicant initiated his complaint, first by sending an email, on May 26, 2009,[5] to the lawyer for Arbor. The Tribunal was told that this email accurately summarized his concern. Accordingly, the Tribunal reproduces it in full hereunder:

> Iain, I couldn't find a ready way to communicate with Arbor… and see that you are corporate secretary. Could you kindly pass this on to Brian Snowdon, President and Chief Executive Officer? Thank you.

[5] Exhibit 5

> I recently had the sad occasion to accompany my sister for her meeting with one of your funeral directors, following the death of her husband. While the experience was generally a positive one, there were two aspects that disturbed me greatly.
> - We were handed a printed price list for caskets. The cheapest listed was still quite expensive. But there was a cheaper alternative – if you looked hard for it: on another page, in extremely small type, was a $1,500 cloth covered casket. Easily missed by most, particularly in a vulnerable state of mind. There was no cheaper alternative listed. I found that unethical, and unacceptable. Rental was not put forward as an alternative.
> - We then talked about cremation. Surprisingly, we were asked how big a man my brother-in-law was. He explained that the only wooden box available for cremation wasn't that big, and that, if he didn't fit, we would have no choice but to spend another $1,000 for a casket. Surely, we said, you can get a bigger box? No – that's all that's available, was the response. Of course it is possible to obtain appropriate sized boxes. The only reason I could see for the refusal to provide appropriately sized boxes was to force vulnerable customers into paying a much larger sum for an unnecessary casket.
> Both of these instances create the striking impression that your organization is far more interested in generating maximum profits than in providing cost-effective services that meet people's needs.
> Please confirm that these unsavoury practices have ceased.

The Applicant was unable to get anywhere with Arbor and so completed the Board of Funeral Services ("Board") complaint form on August 28, 2009, specifically naming Arbor/McDougall & Brown as the company complained against. By letter dated September 2, 2009, the Registrar of the Board acknowledged receipt of "complaint against Mr. McBrain of McDougall & Brown". This reply confused the Applicant and in subsequent correspondence, he made it clear that he wanted the Complaints Committee to investigate McDougall & Brown and not a funeral director, Mr. McBrain, whom he had never met.

The Investigation

The investigation was conducted by Mr. Brakel, manager inspections and investigations of the Board, and completed on October 15, 2009, when he delivered a "Background Memorandum to Complaints Committee".[6] Mr. Brakel conducted telephone interviews with the widow, Mr. Waterman and Mr. McBrain. He received a letter, dated September 8, 2009, from Mr. McBrain responding to the two concerns of the Applicant. He had the complaint of the Applicant and a bundle of email correspondence. Inexplicably, he did not interview the Applicant. The Tribunal notes one finding of Mr. Brakel in his memorandum as follows:

[6] Exhibit 3, Tab 9

> Mr. Waterman does recall mentioning to [the Applicant] ... that the cloth covered casket was larger than the standard cremation container, and therefore, if the dimensions of the deceased were greater than what standard cremation container would accommodate, the cloth covered casket might be suitable. Mr. Waterman does not recall saying that their standard cremation container was all that was available.

The Complaints Committee Decision

This was delivered on November 4, 2009.[7] The Tribunal notes the following about the decision:

1. It persists in restricting the investigation to Adam McBrain of McDougall & Brown in contravention of the Applicant's express complaint against McDougall & Brown as part of a corporate chain.

2. The Complaints Committee does not say when the members met to decide the issue if, indeed, they met at all.

3. There is no mention of how the public interest is served or protected by its decision.

4. Remarkably, the decision of the Complaints Committee copies verbatim the background memorandum prepared by Mr Brakel. There is no indication as to what inquiries, if any, the Complaints Committee made. For example, why was the Applicant not interviewed?

It then refers only to section 10 of Regulation 469 and states (as previously set out by Mr. Brakel in his background memorandum) the issues as follows:

> 1. Does the conduct warrant a referral to the Discipline Committee?
> 2 .If the conduct warrants a referral to the Discipline Committee, is there sufficient evidence to meet the standard of proof?
> 3. If it does not warrant a referral to the Discipline Committee, is some other disposition appropriate?

and renders its Decision:

> In accordance with clause 14(2)(c) of the Funeral Directors and Establishments Act, the Complaints Committee admonishes the funeral director for providing conflicting information, multiple documents referring to casket price list and for not meeting the obligation of displaying a casket from among the least expensive available on the market in accordance with the Act. The Committee recommends that the funeral director introduce caskets that are among the least expensive available on the market and include them on the funeral home's price list.

and The Complaints Committee then gives reasons for its Decision:

> The Committee believes that having two documents called "price list" for caskets with inconsistent information is confusing to consumers and ought not to happen.
> In the Committee's opinion, the selection of caskets offered by the funeral home on its price list does not meet the obligations of section 10 of the O. Reg. 469, which requires caskets from among the least expensive available on the market.
> The Committee believes the issue of the oversized casket was poorly communicated, particularly since in the end it was not necessary.
> While the Committee is concerned about what occurred here it does not believe that the conduct warrants a referral to the Discipline Committee, providing there is no recurrence.

The Complaints Committee was wrong to ignore the complaint against McDougall & Brown and to focus on the managing funeral director. The Decision shows that the Complaints Committee thought that its Decision was only a step in the process against an individual funeral director and that it need not or could not investigate corporate licensees.

The Tribunal has reviewed the Decision of the Complaints Committee and cannot find there a clear explanation of why the conduct that it directed to be changed did not warrant a referral to the Discipline Committee.

The Case for the Applicant

The Tribunal ordered all witnesses to be excluded from the hearing room. The Applicant solemnly affirmed and testified as follows. He had no previous experience in arranging a funeral. He and the family met with Mr. Waterman in a room with a big table where they were given a binder containing various options leading ultimately to choosing the "Direct Service Package" which, they understood, was the cheapest available. He was shocked when Mr. Waterman asked him "how big was the deceased?" The Applicant said that Mr. Waterman told them McDougall & Brown only offered one size of cremation container and that if the deceased did not fit they would have to acquire a bigger and more expensive casket.

In addition to the binder, a copy of a “Selection Guide & Casket Price List”[8] issued by the manufacturer was on the table. The Applicant picked it up and was concerned about the prices of caskets. However, he turned over the brochure and saw one entry under "Specialty Caskets" - Cloth Blue Steel Cloth SQ Crepe $1,615. He said that this is misleading and offensive when dealing with distraught people. According to the Applicant, Mr. Waterman looked uncomfortable, but insisted that if the deceased did not fit the standard cremation container they would have to buy the $1,615 casket. In the event they purchased the cremation container offered by McDougall & Brown for $595.00.

His sister asked Mr. Waterman if her brother could make the cremation container but Mr. Waterman told them "that was not possible".

In the car on the way home, the Applicant expressed his concerns and his sister wondered if they had made the wrong choice in choosing McDougall & Brown. The Applicant said that was not the kind of service they should expect. Over the next few months, he thought about the situation and decided to complain.

He confirmed that he was not interviewed by Mr. Brakel and only saw Mr. McBrain's letter of September 8, 2009, when the Board made its disclosure as part of this appeal. The Complaints Committee decision does not reflect his concerns, in that it failed to take into account the public interest. His counsel, Ms. Jubb, then took him through the remedies he seeks, including some only raised at this time and the reasons for them. One of the new remedies sought is:

> Recommend that the Director review the Complaints and Investigation Process, including the Complaints Committee, to ensure that it [sic] policies and procedures are consistent with your ruling on the jurisdiction issues raised at the beginning of this hearing.

On cross-examination, he conceded that Mr. Waterman "was decent and helpful" and that Mr. Waterman had showed his sister the $595.00 container which they bought. He repeated that Mr. Waterman told them that it would not be possible for his sister's brother to build the cremation container. His impression was that Mr. Waterman was a man of integrity and was uncomfortable with the attempt to upgrade to a more expensive casket. He also said that Mr. Waterman said that he could not order in another bigger, cheaper, or same price casket container. He was also annoyed that Arbor would not respond substantively to his concerns.

Witness A

He is the son of the deceased. He solemnly affirmed and testified in support of the complaint. He was present at the meeting with Mr. Waterman. He corroborated the Applicant's testimony as to the "size-more expensive casket" issue and that his uncle would not be allowed to construct a cremation container for the deceased. He also said that he had gone on to a number of websites and discovered cremation containers as low as $99.00.

On cross- examination, he said that Mr. Waterman did say that he would not be able to make a decision on the container until the body was brought to the funeral home.

The Case for the Added Parties

Mr. Waterman solemnly affirmed and testified. He is a funeral director at McDougall & Brown Scarborough Chapel. He met with the deceased's family on March 19, 2009, at the funeral home. At that meeting, he asked as to the size of the deceased. Apparently, if a deceased is more than 200 pounds and relatively short, the standard size cremation container will not be big enough. He said that happens in his experience three or four times a year. He is not comfortable in raising this issue with families as it is an unexpected question for most people. He said there is no policy at McDougall & Brown against "home built caskets". In fact, he did have someone build a cremation container in the parking lot about 12 years ago. Rental caskets are not an option when a family does not want a viewing of the body but simple cremation. In any event, they are expensive, starting around $2,000.00.

He said that he showed the family the price list of McDougall & Brown for caskets and a cremation container and what is involved in planning a cremation. He did not show them any other material. He said, however, that the Applicant picked up the brochure of the manufacturer[9] from the table and looked at it and commented that the caskets were expensive and mentioned that the one on the back of the brochure was the cheapest. Mr. Waterman said, "We didn't need it." He took them through the price list[10] and the family opted for the Direct Service Package and the $595.00 cremation container which he had recommended as the cheapest alternative.

Mr. Waterman took the family into the casket room and explained the "flat top" and the difficulty one might experience with a large body. He denied that he spoke to the family about prices.

He thinks it is better to discuss the "size" issue with a family in case there is a problem. If a larger cremation container is required, the funeral home will order a custom built one at the same price as the basic cremation container. He initially said that the "home built container" question did not come up. He later modified his testimony to say that it was possible that the matter did come up.

He is paid an annual bonus and such bonus is the same for all, but one, of the funeral directors at the funeral home. He does not consider himself to be a salesman and receives no sales training beyond occasional presentations by casket manufacturers, which he described as product knowledge. He did concede that the criteria for the annual bonus are predicated on the financial results of the funeral home.

He said that the funeral home had complied with the Complaints Committee decision and now offers three choices of cremation container and an updated brochure.[11] The casket selection guide of the manufacturer[12] is no longer used.
He said that the crematoria insist on the body being in a container and that he had never heard of a rental cremation container.

[9] Exhibit 4
[10] Exhibit 3, Tab 4
[11] Exhibit 8
[12] Exhibit 4

On cross- examination, he said the following:

1. he did not mention that one could get caskets cheaper on the internet as he was not obliged to do so.

2. he did not recall the conversation with the widow about her brother building a container.

3. there was no alternative to the $595.00 as the family had to identify the body before cremation.

4. he denied that he said that the family would have to pay an additional $1,000.00 if the deceased did not fit in the standard container.

5. there were cheaper alternatives to the $1,615.00 casket which were not on the price list and he did not volunteer that information.

6. it is possible that there was an exchange around the "home built container".

On redirect, he said that he does not recommend competitors and he thought that he and the widow were in agreement when she left the funeral home. He subsequently called the widow after he had received the body and told her that the body would fit in the $595.00 container she had ordered.

Adam McBrain

He solemnly affirmed and testified that he is the managing director of this funeral home in the McDougall & Brown group. There are 10 funeral directors at this home. He and his staff are mindful that families are vulnerable at this time and he wants to ensure that every family leaves the funeral home happy with the service they have received.

There is no sales training, quotas or sales commissions. He took the Complaints Committee decision seriously and has implemented the changes that it had recommended.

On cross-examination, he said that McDougall & Brown is a branch of Trillium Funeral Service Corporation (“Trillium”), a licensee under the Act. He sets his budget which is then sent to Trillium for approval. Trillium selected the exclusive casket supplier for McDougall & Brown. He said that everybody on staff knows that people can bring in their own container. He conceded that he did not mention the two alternatives to the $1,615.00 casket in his letter[13] to the Board.

THE LAW

Licence Appeal Tribunal Act

3. (1) The Tribunal shall hold the hearings and perform the other duties that are assigned to it by or under any Act or regulation.

(2) Except as limited by this Act, the Tribunal has all the powers that are necessary or expedient for carrying out its duties.

Statutory Powers Procedure Act

2. This Act, and any rule made by a tribunal under subsection 17.1 (4) or section 25.1, shall be liberally construed to secure the just, most expeditious and cost-effective determination of every proceeding on its merits.

Funeral Directors and Establishments Act

“Board” means the Board of Funeral Services.

"funeral director" means an individual licensed as a funeral director under the Funeral, Burial and Cremation Services Act, 2002;

"funeral establishment" has the same meaning as in the Funeral*, Burial and Cremation Services Act, 2002*;

"licence" means a licence to operate a funeral establishment, transfer service or casket retailing business or a licence issued under clause 8 (2) (a), 10 (2) (b) or 12 (2) (b) of the Funeral*, Burial and Cremation Services Act, 2002*, where the licensee is acting on behalf of a funeral establishment operator, a transfer service operator or a casket retailing business operator, and "licensed" and "licensee" have a corresponding meaning;

"Minister" means the Minister of Government Services or whatever other member of the Executive Council to whom administration for this Act is assigned under the Executive Council Act;

3.(2) The principal object of the Board is to oversee the regulation of the practices of licensees in accordance with this Act, the Funeral, Burial and Cremation Services Act, 2002, regulations made under those Acts and the by-laws in order that the public interest may be served and protected

(3) For the purpose of carrying out its principal object, the Board has the following additional objects:

1. To make recommendations regarding the standards of knowledge and skill among licensees.

2. To make recommendations regarding the standards of qualification and standards of practice for licensees.

3. To establish, maintain and develop standards of professional ethics among licensees.

4. To administer the Compensation Fund.

5. To make recommendations regarding the oversight and inspection of trust accounts and funds that are required by law to be established or maintained.

6. To make recommendations regarding the establishment and development of standards for funeral establishments, transfer services and casket retailing businesses.

7. To establish and develop standards for funeral establishments. [repealed]

8. To perform such other duties and exercise such other powers as are imposed or conferred on the Board by or under any Act.

14. (1) The Complaints Committee shall consider and investigate complaints regarding the conduct or actions of any licensee, but no action shall be taken by the Complaints Committee under subsection (2) unless,

(a) a written complaint has been filed with the Registrar and the licensee whose conduct or actions are being investigated has been notified of the complaint and given at least two weeks in which to submit in writing to the Committee any explanations or representations the licensee may wish to make concerning the matter; and

(b) the Committee has examined or has made every reasonable effort to examine all records and other documents relating to the complaint.

(2) The Complaints Committee in accordance with the information it receives may,

(a) consider all or part of the matter;

(b) direct that all or part of the matter be referred to the Discipline Committee; and

(c) subject to subsection (9), take or recommend such action that it considers appropriate in the circumstances and that is not inconsistent with this Act, the regulations or the by-laws.

Decisions and reasons

The Complaints Committee shall advise the Registrar in writing of the action it proposes to take or recommend and its reasons therefor.

Notice

(4) Subsections (3) and (6) do not apply to a matter that is referred to the Discipline Committee.

Hearing

(5) The Complaints Committee is not required to hold a hearing or to afford any person an opportunity for a hearing or to make oral submissions before it prior to it taking action or making a recommendation under this section.

Notice

(6) The Registrar shall send to the complainant and to the person complained against by prepaid first class mail a copy of the proposal of the Complaints Committee and its reasons therefor, if any, together with notice that informs the person to whom it is sent that the person is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal if the person mails or delivers to the Registrar and to the Tribunal, within fifteen days after the notice is served on the person, notice in writing requiring a hearing and the person may so require such a hearing.

No hearing

(7) If a complainant or the person complained against does not require a hearing by the Tribunal, the Complaints Committee may carry out the proposal stated in the notice to the complainant or the person complained against.

Hearing

(8) If the complainant or the person complained against requires a hearing, the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold a hearing.

Order

(9) After holding a hearing, the Tribunal may by order direct the Complaints Committee to carry out the proposal or refrain from carrying out the proposal and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Complaints Committee ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations and, for such purposes, the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Complaints Committee.

Conditions

The Tribunal may attach such conditions to its order as it considers proper to give effect to the purposes of this Act.

Parties

(11) The Registrar, the person who required the hearing and such other persons as the Tribunal may specify are parties to proceedings before the Tribunal under this section.

20. (1) A person may apply to the Registrar for a licence to operate a funeral establishment or to operate a transfer service.

(3) An applicant is entitled to a licence or a renewal of a licence as a funeral director or to operate a funeral establishment or to operate a transfer service except if,

(f) in the case of a corporation that operates a funeral establishment, no director of the corporation is a funeral director.

Regulation 469

10. (1) Funeral establishments which offer services to the public shall contain a room in which is displayed,

(a) at least eight adult caskets ranging in price from among the least expensive available on the market to the most expensive offered by the establishment with each casket and its price clearly shown; and

(b) a container or a picture of a container and its price, both of which are set out in a prominent place.

(2) The eight caskets referred to in clause (1) (a) must represent the range of materials from which caskets are constructed for the cultural, religious or ethnic markets being served by the funeral establishment.

Regulation 470

4. (1) An applicant for a licence to operate a funeral establishment or a transfer service shall submit to the Registrar a completed application setting out,

(a) the name of the funeral director responsible for the management of the funeral establishment or the name of the person responsible for the management of the transfer service;

(b) the name and address of any person having a beneficial interest in the operation of the business of the applicant; and

(c) if the operator of a funeral establishment or transfer service is a corporation, the names and addresses of,

(i) the officers and directors of the corporation, and

(ii) persons holding more than 10 per cent of the equity shares of the corporation and, if the persons are corporations, their officers and directors.

(2) It is a condition of a licence to operate a funeral establishment or a transfer service that the premises and vehicles are adequately insured against any public liability.

(3) It is a condition of a licence to operate a funeral establishment that it is managed and directly supervised by a licensed funeral director and, if embalming is performed, that the funeral director is licensed to perform embalming.

(4) An applicant for a licence to operate a funeral establishment or a transfer service shall submit to the Registrar a certificate of inspection of its premises issued by a medical officer of health or public health inspector within the six months preceding the date of the application for a licence.

FACTS PROVEN

March 19, 2009, was a sad day for the Applicant, his sister and her children. They had an unfortunate experience at the funeral home that afternoon.

The Tribunal readily accepts that it was an emotional time and that a witness' recollection of events at McDougall & Brown on the afternoon of March 19, 2009 may be clouded. The Tribunal accepts the testimony of the Applicant where it conflicts with Mr. Waterman or Mr. McBrain. The Applicant's testimony was corroborated by Witness A and Mr. Waterman's testimony, in at least one instance, conflicted with his earlier statement (supra, page 6, under "Investigation"). Thus, the Tribunal finds that the following facts are proven, on a balance of probabilities:

1. Mr. Waterman told the Applicant that if the deceased did not fit the standard container they would have to use the $1,615.00 casket.

2. There was nothing in between the $595.00 cremation container and the $1,615.00 casket. He did not tell them that there were, however, two caskets for sale which were not listed on the price list at $747.00 and $849.00.

3. McDougall & Brown allows clients to supply their own cremation container.

4. Mr. Waterman did subsequently telephone the widow that her husband fit the standard container and that a larger one was not necessary. The widow selected the Direct Service Package and bought a $595.00 cremation container.

5. Exhibit 4, being the "Selection Guide & Casket Price List", shows the name, address and telephone number of McDougall & Brown clearly on the front of the brochure. There is no reference to the casket manufacturer. The back page has one entry: "Cloth Blue Steel Cloth SQ Crepe $1,615.00"

6. McDougall & Brown still does not list the two caskets, $747.00 and $849.00 on its price list.

7. McDougall & Brown does not conduct sales training for its funeral directors; nor are there sales quotas or commissions. All, but one, of the funeral directors at the Scarborough Chapel receive the same annual bonus which is related to the financial results of the funeral home.

8. The updated brochure[14] of McDougall & Brown now lists three cremation containers and there is one authoritative price list.

REASONS AND DECISION

The onus is on the Applicant to prove his case on a balance of probabilities.[15] The Applicant complained about alleged unsavoury practices at McDougall & Brown. The evidence at the hearing focussed on three issues: “custom container”, “oversized casket” and the price list.

He has proven his complaint in respect of the three issues. He has failed, however, to adduce sufficient evidence that McDougall & Brown engaged in "upselling" or other unsavoury trade practices.

The Tribunal notes that the widow bought the $595.00 casket. The Tribunal accepts Mr. Waterman’s testimony that he telephoned her when he received the body to tell her a larger casket would not be needed. The Tribunal agrees with Mr. Kastner who said, in argument, that this is hardly the action of one interested in upselling a larger casket to a distraught customer.

The Tribunal has considered all of the remedies that the Applicant seeks. The Tribunal may lack the jurisdiction to grant the Applicant all of the remedies he seeks, save two. The Tribunal need not answer the question here as, in any event, the evidence does either not support the remedy claimed or it is moot, e.g., the Tribunal is satisfied that McDougall & Brown has implemented the changes the Complaints Committee ordered; McDougall & Brown does not conduct sales training for its funeral directors. The Tribunal has jurisdiction to refer the matter to the Discipline Committee (see: paragraphs 14(1)(c) and (9) and (10)) and to recommend that the Board consider changing some of the Complaints Committee’s practices. The Registrar and the Added Parties did not object to the Tribunal’s jurisdiction in remedy 3 sought by the Applicant. See above, page 2, wherein he asked the Tribunal to recommend prosecution. The Tribunal intuits, therefore, that there will be no objection to its jurisdiction to recommend changes to the investigative process and to some of the practices of the Complaints Committee.

The Complaints Committee ignored the claim by the Applicant against the corporate licensee and did not accord the Applicant the courtesy of interviewing him or telling him why it would not or could not investigate McDougall & Brown as he asked. This was simply not fair to the Applicant. The Tribunal accepts that the principal role of the Complaints Committee is as a screening and investigatory body but the plain words of section 14 of the FDEA show that its function is wider than that.

DECISION, ORDER and RECOMMENDATION

The Tribunal has considered carefully what remedies would be appropriate in this case. The Tribunal accepts that its jurisdiction is the same as the Complaints Committee. Accordingly, and pursuant to subsection 14(9) of the Act, the Tribunal:

[15] F. H. v. McDougall, 2008 SCC 53

1. admonishes McDougall & Brown for its role in the events of March 19, 2009;

2. orders McDougall & Brown to include in its price lists all caskets and containers which it might have for sale, including the two caskets discussed at the hearing which were for sale at $747.00 and $ 849.00;

3. directs that the matter be referred to the Discipline Committee; and

4. recommends that the Board conduct an in-depth review of the directives to, and the practices and procedures of, the Complaints Committee to ensure that they comply with the Act and will serve and protect the public interest. Hopefully, with better direction, the Complaints Committee will investigate complaints against corporate licensees as well as individual funeral directors.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an appeal by Ms. Prabhjot Johal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a decision of the Discipline Committee of the Board of Funeral Services (the "Discipline Committee") dated April 22, 2010 which imposes a suspension and restrictions on the licence of Ms. Johal as a funeral director under the Funeral Directors and Establishments Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. F.36 (the "Act") and imposes terms and conditions for the re-instatement of Ms. Johal's licence.

Facts

The factual issue in this case is deceptively simple. Two women who interned at the Benisasia Funeral Home ("Benisasia") each claim to have performed the same six embalmings. They agree that they did not perform the embalmings together. There is no evidence that they are both lying in claiming credit for them. The logically obvious conclusion is that one of them must be lying.

The significance of the deception lies in the educational requirements to become licensed as a funeral director. After completion of a recognised course, each candidate must intern for a period which is usually twelve months but which may be extended to a maximum of twenty-four months. Interns must train under a preceptor who supervises them while they perform the practical part of their training. Key among the requirements of internship is that interns perform fifty embalmings. Ideally, the preceptor supervises the conduct of the embalmings but in a busy funeral home such as Benisasia it is common to permit an intern to perform embalmings on her own after a basic level of competence has been established. Preparation Reports are completed by the intern for each embalming performed and these Preparation Reports are reviewed by the preceptor. It is common practice for both the intern and the preceptor to sign the Preparation Report after it is reviewed. At the completion of the internship, the Preparation Reports are kept by the intern and used during the practical examination.

One of the two women who claim to have performed the contested embalmings is Ms. Cathy Cowley, a former Registered Practical Nurse. After completing her funeral director's training, she began her internship at Benisasia in May, 2006. Ms. Cowley testified that Ms. Tracey Witzel, a licensed funeral director at Benisasia, was her preceptor. Ms. Witzel supervised her first embalming but then left her to perform the embalmings on her own. She did get assistance from other funeral directors as needed. Ms. Cowley would pick up ten Preparation Reports at a time. After Ms. Cowley had completed the ten embalmings and the associated Preparation Reports, her evidence was that she would return the completed reports to Ms. Witzel who reviewed and signed the reports. From time to time, Ms. Witzel would sit down with Ms. Cowley and review the reports before signing them. Ms. Cowley was able to recall details about several of the six contested embalmings, usually details about specific embalming challenges that she faced. Ms. Cowley left Benisasia on February 19, 2007, after an upsetting incident at work and after completing thirty embalmings, if one includes the six in contention.

Ms. Cowley's preceptor, Ms. Witzel, testified that she supervised a couple of Ms. Cowley's embalmings and found Ms. Cowley to be competent to proceed on her own. After that, she saw Ms. Cowley performing embalmings a number of times. Ms. Witzel would have liked to have been available to supervise Ms. Cowley during her embalmings but Ms. Witzel was assigned to the night shift, which she preferred, and so was rarely in the building when Ms. Cowley was performing the procedure. However, Ms. Witzel testified that she was satisfied that Ms. Cowley had in fact performed the embalmings because she reviewed the Preparation Reports with Ms. Cowley before signing them. She noted that Ms. Cowley's reports were particularly detailed, which might be explained by her training and experience in nursing. Ms. Witzel testified that she would ask questions about the procedure and the type and concentration of embalming fluid used and was satisfied with the answers. She would not have signed the Preparation Reports if she had not been satisfied that Ms. Cowley had done the work, she said. She testified that she has no doubt that Ms. Cowley did the six embalmings in question.

The second woman claiming credit for performing the contested embalmings is Ms. Johal. Unusually, Ms. Johal was already licensed as a funeral director and was the owner of Benisasia at the same time that she was interning there. She had originally completed her formal education and had interned for twelve months but did not do the requisite fifty embalmings. Accordingly, she was granted a licence as a funeral director without embalming privileges. There are only seventeen such licences in Ontario, out of over 2,600 funeral directors. In addition to obvious reasons of marketability, the overwhelming majority of funeral directors become licensed to perform embalmings because only funeral directors who are so licensed may become the Managing Director of a funeral establishment that performs the procedure. The Managing Director runs the funeral establishment and supervises the staff for compliance with the Act. It is a clear advantage for an owner to also be the Managing Director.

Ms. Johal became the owner of Benisasia under unusual circumstances when she was still a student. She has ambitious plans for Benisasia and at the time in question, the fall and winter of 2006/07, she was busy opening a second location for the business.

Ms. Johal testified that her preceptor during the time in question was Ms. Deborah Walters, who was also the Managing Director of the business at the time. Ms. Johal testified that she performed twenty embalmings under the supervision of Ms. Walters and that Ms. Walters was present during her performance of five of the six embalmings in question although she was in and out of the room. Ms. Walters, Ms. Johal testified, gave her permission to print Ms. Walters's name on the Preparation Reports as they had done the embalmings together. On two of the six contested embalmings, Ms. Johal testified that Ms. Walters came in on two separate Sundays, her day off, to supervise the procedure. Ms. Walters was in the habit of punching a time card but, according to Ms. Johal, on the two Sundays when Ms. Walters came in specifically to oversee the embalmings, she did not punch in. Instead, Ms. Johal made a handwritten note on the time cards. On one of the Sundays in question Ms. Johal paid Ms. Walters $85 in cash for her trouble.

Ms. Walters also gave evidence. She testified that Ms. Johal was willing to do embalmings the first couple of times but after that it was not easy to get her into the embalming room. Ms. Johal would not refuse but she would say she was too busy and Ms. Walters would end up doing the embalming herself. Ms. Walters testified that Ms. Johal did not like the smell of the embalming.

With one exception, an embalming not in issue here, Ms. Johal did not turn in her Preparation Reports to Ms. Walters. Ms. Walters was not aware that Ms. Johal was doing embalming with any other funeral directors and she was doing very few embalmings with Ms. Walters so Ms. Walters did follow up a couple of times to ask to see her Preparation Reports. When she approached Ms. Johal, she would be told things like, "Do you want to get paid this week?" and "I have more than one business to run." She interpreted this to mean that Ms. Johal was too busy to be disturbed. Ms.

Walters concluded that it was not her responsibility to chase Ms. Johal to do the requisite number of embalmings so she stopped asking for the Preparation Reports.

Ms. Walters directly contradicts Ms. Johal's evidence that she supervised Ms. Johal doing five of the six contested embalmings or that she authorised Ms. Johal to print her name on the Preparation Reports. Ms. Walters also flatly denies Ms. Johal's testimony that she paid Ms. Walters in cash to come in one Sunday to supervise one of the disputed embalmings or that Ms. Walters came in on a second Sunday to supervise another of the embalmings in issue.

Both preceptors, Ms. Witzel and Ms. Walters, gave evidence about the embalming of the intern they did not supervise. Ms. Walters testified that she saw Ms. Cowley many times in the embalming room alone. She helped Ms. Cowley from time to time and observed that "she was getting very good". Ms. Witzel testified that she saw Ms. Johal in the embalming room a couple of times but that she was more an onlooker than a participant. She would leave the "nasty parts" for others to do. Ms. Witzel could tell that Ms. Johal did not like embalming and there was perfume in the embalming room which Ms. Johal frequently used to mask the smell.

Ms. Johal is unable to explain why Ms. Walters contradicts her testimony. Concerning the evidence of Ms. Walters and Ms. Witzel about her aversion to embalming, she explained that initially, she had found the smells very unpleasant but that she had overcome this to finish the required fifty embalmings.

Concerning the sixth embalming, Ms. Johal testified that she performed the embalming in the presence of Mr. Tim Kolotyliuk, who was at the time a funeral director and who since has become Managing Director of one of Benisasia's two locations. Mr. Kolotyliuk became Ms. Johal's preceptor when Ms. Walters left Benisasia in February, 2007 and oversaw the balance of the embalmings needed by Ms. Johal to complete her licensing requirement.

Mr. Kolotyliuk corroborates Ms. Johal's testimony that he supervised her performing one of the contested embalmings, an embalming that Ms. Johal and Mr. Kolotyliuk testified occurred on November 28, 2006.

There is an inconsistency about the date of this embalming between the testimony of Ms. Cowley and the evidence of Ms. Johal and Mr. Kolotyliuk. Ms. Cowley testified that she performed this embalming on November 29, 2006, a day after the date Ms. Johal testified that she had done it. Mr. Kolotyliuk, Ms. Johal's preceptor, testified that he was present and the embalming occurred on November 28, 2006. However, Ms. Witzel, Ms. Cowley's preceptor, testified that she was collecting the body in Orangeville on November 28, 2006 at the approximate time that Ms. Johal says she was embalming it. Ms. Johal and Mr. Kolotyliuk suggested that Ms. Witzel must have been mistaken in her recollection of picking up the body.

There is another inconsistency in the two Preparation Reports of this embalming. In her Preparation Report, Ms. Cowley notes that she removed a pacemaker. The family of the deceased confirms that they had requested the pacemaker be removed. There is no mention of removing a pacemaker in Ms. Johal's Preparation Report.

Also giving evidence were two representatives of the Board of Funeral Services (the "Funeral Board"). One representative testified to another set of discrepancies between the Preparation Reports of the two women, what might be called the "height and weight" discrepancies. The women differed in their assessments of height and weight of several of people they each claim to have embalmed. The most striking of these differences was in an embalming where Ms. Cowley reported in her Preparation Report that the deceased was 6 feet 2 inches and weighed 200 pounds. Ms. Johal, on the other hand, reported that the deceased was 5 feet 3 inches and weighed 105 pounds. The family of the deceased advised that the deceased was between 6 feet 1 inch and 6 feet 2 inches and weighed 160 pounds. There are no scales in the embalming room and tape measures are not used to assess height. Various witnesses testified that they either used the table, which is about 6 foot 5 inches long, as a reference point or they used their own height and weight as a comparison. Ms. Johal is herself 5 foot 3 inches tall and weighs over 105 pounds. She testified that she has difficulty assessing weights and heights and that in this case she made a mistake.

Another Funeral Board representative, Ms. McCoy, testified that she visited Benisasia on February 9, 2007 which was, by coincidence the same day that Ms. Walters left the firm. The Funeral Board had sent Ms. McCoy to Benisasia because it was concerned that Ms. Johal was falling behind in her embalmings. Ms. McCoy testified that she met with Ms. Johal on that day and that she recalls Ms. Walters being present during the meeting. Ms. McCoy asked Ms. Johal how many embalmings she had performed and she answered that she had done approximately ten. Ms. McCoy recalls Ms. Walters and Ms. Johal agreed on this number. Ms. McCoy was concerned that Ms. Johal was now left with forty embalmings to do in the four months remaining of her internship. An extension of time to complete the internship was not possible under the internship rules but a suspension of the internship was an option. Ms. McCoy felt that it was possible for Ms. Johal to complete the required number of embalmings in the four months remaining if Ms. Johal focussed on achieving this goal. Ms. McCoy was concerned that the time Ms. Johal was spending opening her second location was distracting her from successfully completing her internship. Therefore, Ms. McCoy "strongly" encouraged Ms. Johal to suspend her internship until her second location was established and she could focus her attention on completing the required embalmings. Ms. Johal refused.

Ms. Johal testified that she declined to suspend her internship because she was confident that she could finish the required number of embalmings by June, 2007 and that, under the preceptorship of Mr. Kolotyliuk, she did complete the requirement.

Ms. Johal does not recall meeting with Ms. McCoy on February 9, 2007 and Ms. Walters gave no evidence that she attended the meeting. Both Ms. Johal and Ms. Walters recall another meeting on that day. As Ms. Walters was leaving the employ of Benasisa, she was asked to sign a standard Funeral Board affidavit attesting to the number of embalmings Ms. Johal had performed under her preceptorship. Ms. Walters and Ms. Johal agreed that Ms. Johal had completed twenty embalmings and Ms. Walters swore her affidavit to that effect. Ms. Johal also swore an affidavit saying she had performed twenty embalmings as of that date. Ms. Walters testified that before signing the affidavit, she explained to Ms. Johal that, in calculating the number of embalmings performed, she was including approximately eleven that she believed Ms. Johal had done under her supervision and a further nine that the two women had previously agreed not to count. Ms. Johal, on the other hand, testified that she had a very brief conversation with Ms. Walters on this occasion and that they agreed that the correct number was twenty without any explanation.

In determining who is being truthful in claiming to have performed the six contested embalmings, the Tribunal considered a variety of factors, including the following.

Demeanour

Demeanour as a factor in determining credibility must be used with caution. People may respond differently to the stress and formality of giving evidence. In this case, demeanour was of little use in assessing the credibility of any of the witnesses. The two principal witnesses, Ms. Cowley and Ms. Johal, both gave their evidence with apparent candour and forthrightness and both gave consistent evidence during cross-examination. The other witnesses also gave their evidence forthrightly and with candour. Ms. Walters and Mr. Kolotyliuk both gave inconsistent evidence in cross-examination and the effect of that will be discussed below. It is important to note that all the witnesses had previously given testimony on this matter at a hearing conducted by the Discipline Committee.

As expected, there were minor inconsistencies within the evidence of each of Ms. Johal and Ms. Cowley. Mr. Klug, counsel for Ms. Johal, emphasised inaccuracies in a sworn statement of Ms. Cowley about the progress of her internship at the time she left Benisasia. She stated in her affidavit that she had arranged four funerals. In fact, Benisasia did not permit interns to arrange funerals and the four she did were “mock arrangements” she went through with her preceptor. Her preceptor, Ms. Witzel, confirmed Ms. Cowley’s testimony that these mock arrangements were completed by Ms. Cowley and that mock arrangements are accepted by the Funeral Board when there is no alternative available. The Tribunal does not consider that this inaccurate description on the affidavit affects Ms. Cowley’s credibility.

Corroboration

The Tribunal found Ms. Witzel, the preceptor of Ms. Cowley, to be a credible and convincing witness. Ms. Witzel has a habit of dating important events by reference to events in her life, which assisted her memory. The details she was able to recall about specific events were consistent with the circumstances about which she was testifying and were plausible and reasonable.

Beyond corroborating Ms. Cowley's account, Ms. Witzel gave testimony about the discrepancy in the dates of the November, 2006 embalming noted above. She testified that she drove to Orangeville on November 28, 2006 to collect the body and was in fact picking up the body at the approximate time that Ms. Johal claims to have been embalming it. She remembers the occasion because it was a day before her birthday and because it was her first time out of town in the hearse and she was nervous about the trip. It was a sunny day and she regretted not having brought her sunglasses. The Tribunal accepts her evidence on this matter.

The Tribunal is satisfied that Mr. Kolotyliuk genuinely believes he supervised the embalming that Ms. Johal says she performed on November 28th but the Tribunal does not accept his evidence.

Mr. Kolotyliuk suffers from two disabilities, one of hearing and one of speech. He was unable to complete grade 13 and has had great difficulty finding and keeping employment as a funeral director. On two occasions he was let go after his probation period and for six years he was unable to find employment in his chosen field.

Mr. Kolotyliuk appears to be a very trusting person and there is evidence that he is highly suggestible. For example, he testified that he had been "instructed" that Ms. Walters had sworn an affidavit on her last day of work about the number of embalmings Ms. Johal had done. He evidently internalised this instruction to the point that, at the Discipline Committee hearing, he testified that he had been present during this meeting and had witnessed the oath. He concedes this is incorrect. He also, on the suggestion of Mr. Klug at the Discipline Committee hearing, testified that the November embalming he claims to have witnessed occurred in December. The Tribunal concludes that if someone Mr. Kolotyliuk trusted had told him that he had supervised the November embalming, it is probable that Mr. Kolotyliuk would believe it.

There is another embalming for which there is an inconsistency in dates. This discrepancy between the accounts of Ms. Cowley and Ms. Johal also tends to support Ms. Cowley's claim to have performed the embalming. However, Ms. Cowley's evidence is confirmed but not fully corroborated by Ms. Walters and by the work records of Benisasia. Accordingly, the Tribunal did not give this discrepancy the same weight as the inconsistency about the November, 2006 dates.

Concerning the credibility of Ms. Walters, Mr. Klug, Counsel for Ms. Johal, during his cross-examination, focussed on the fact that when Ms. Walters left Benisasia on February 9, 2007, she signed an affidavit as Ms. Johal's preceptor. In that affidavit, she swore that Ms. Johal had performed twenty embalmings under her supervision whereas Ms. Walters testified that the actual number was different. Ms. Walters testified that she was "sure" that Ms. Johal had completed eleven embalmings with her as preceptor and she understood that Ms. Johal had completed nine embalmings with a prior preceptor.

In cross-examination, Ms. Walters stated that the figure of eleven embalmings under her supervision was an estimate.

It does seem that Ms. Walters was casual in calculating the number of embalmings Ms. Johal had performed as of February, 2007 under her supervision and that she swore an affidavit without being sure of accuracy of what she was attesting. On the other hand, under cross-examination by Mr. Klug, both Ms. Cowley and Ms. Witzel testified that they considered Ms. Walters to be an honest and forthright person, based on their work experience with her. Further, Ms. Walters's account of the management and operation of Benisasia is corroborated by other witnesses. The Tribunal concludes that Ms. Walter's credibility is affected but not irretrievably undermined by her evidence surrounding the affidavit she swore on leaving Benisasia. After cautious review, the Tribunal prefers her account of certain events to that of Ms. Johal for the following reasons.

The Tribunal prefers Ms. Walters's evidence regarding the discrepancy in height and weight of one of the deceased in the contested embalmings. As noted above, in one case, Ms. Johal recorded in her Preparation Report that a body was 5 feet 3 inches and weighed 105 pounds whereas it was in fact about 6 feet 2 inches and weighed about 160 pounds. It is not plausible that Ms. Johal would have so substantially understated the weight of the deceased had she in fact done the embalming, especially given that she herself is 5 feet 3 inches and weighs more than 105 pounds. Both Ms. Witzel and Ms. Walters confirm that this is a mistake that not even a novice would make. When Ms. Walters was asked about the discrepancy, she chuckled. If she had supervised Ms. Johal doing the embalming, she testified, she would have corrected Ms. Johal's estimate of the height and weight as this was an obvious error. The Tribunal found this evidence particularly convincing.

There was a stark difference in the testimony of Ms. Johal and Ms. Walters about whether Ms. Walters supervised Ms. Johal's embalmings and permitted Ms. Johal to sign Preparation Reports on her behalf. The Tribunal prefers Ms. Walters's account for the following reasons. The embalming noted above with the significant variation in height and weight was an embalming that Ms. Johal claims took place on a Sunday and for which Ms. Johal asserts she paid Ms. Walters in cash for attending. The evidence of Ms. Johal concerning both Sundays where she claims that Ms. Walters worked "off the clock", lacks credibility. There was evidence that Ms. Walters routinely punched a time clock and no evidence that she was in the habit of not punching the time clock when she came in on her days off. There was no reason for Ms. Walters not to punch in if she in fact worked those days. It is not credible that Ms. Walters was at work on the two Sundays in question. It follows that, despite Ms. Johal's evidence to the contrary, Ms. Walters could not have supervised Ms. Johal performing the two embalmings that Ms. Johal testified occurred on Sundays

Ms. Johal was not Ms. Walters's first intern and Ms. Walters was familiar with the process of supervision. She testified that she routinely signed her interns' Preparation Reports and has never permitted someone else to sign them on her behalf. Her testimony of following up with Ms. Johal to have her submit her Preparation Reports was convincing. It is also inconsistent with Ms. Johal's testimony. If Ms. Walters had supervised the embalmings and given Ms. Johal permission to complete the Preparation Reports without further review, there would have been no need for Ms. Walters to follow up with Ms. Johal to request them. The fact that Benisasia was a busy funeral home and that Ms. Cowley was left on her own to do embalmings also makes it less probable that Ms. Johal was being as closely supervised as she has testified.

Ms. McCoy was also a convincing witness and she vividly recalls the day she went to Benisasia, as it was her first trip to a funeral home. The Tribunal accepts her evidence that she was at Benisasia on February 9, 2007 and that she met with Ms. Johal. However, her recollection of meeting both Ms. Walters and Ms. Johal to discuss the status of Ms. Johal's embalming is implausible. It is unlikely that Ms. Johal would have invited Ms. Walters to what was a private meeting, especially since Ms. Walters had submitted her resignation earlier that day. It is also implausible that Ms. Walters would have agreed that Ms. Johal had completed ten embalmings and then, later on the same day, sworn an affidavit that Ms. Johal had in fact completed twice that number. The Tribunal does accept Ms. McCoy's testimony that Ms. Johal advised her that Ms. Johal had completed approximately ten embalmings to that date. Ms. McCoy was at Benisasia specifically to address the Funeral Board's concern about the number of embalmings Ms. Johal had performed. She based the strong recommendation she gave to Ms. Johal at that meeting on the low number of embalmings Ms. Johal had done. It is unlikely that she would have made such a fundamental mistake about the number she was given.

Prior Consistent Acts

In this case, not only is credit claimed for another's work, the nature of the lie is such that, had it been believed, the innocent victim would have found herself facing sanctions for having misled the Funeral Board. Has either Ms. Cowley or Ms. Johal told a lie that calls someone's professional reputation into question before this incident?

There is no evidence that Ms. Cowley has ever lied at the expense of another. By contrast, there was convincing evidence that Ms. Johal has lied in the past to further her own objectives at the cost of besmirching someone else's good name. When Ms. Walters left Benisasia, Ms. Cowley testified that a staff meeting was called at which Ms. Johal said that Ms. Walters was "let go" because she exposed Benisasia to legal problems due to oversights. The staff was instructed not to contact her. Ms. Cowley learned of the lie when Ms. Walters telephoned her, sounding upbeat, and told her about Ms. Walters's new job. Ms. Witzel corroborated this evidence, testifying that Ms. Johal said that Ms. Walters was not following proper Board procedures and they had to let her go. The Tribunal accepts Ms. Walters's testimony that she left voluntarily on her doctor's recommendation, because the stress of working at Benisasia was affecting her health. The Tribunal finds that Ms. Johal was lying when she said that Ms. Walters had done anything improper.

Motive

The Tribunal considered who profited from falsely claiming credit for the contested embalmings. Ms. Johal obviously did. She would be able to become the Managing Director of her business as a result. In addition, there was a more pressing motive. On February 9, 2007 Ms. Johal met with Ms. McCoy of the Funeral Board and, as noted above, the Tribunal finds that Ms. Johal told Ms. McCoy at that meeting that she had performed approximately ten embalmings. Within hours of this meeting, she permitted her preceptor to swear an affidavit stating that she had completed twenty embalmings, twice the number of embalmings that she had claimed in her meeting with Ms. McCoy. Ms. Johal also swore an affidavit saying she had completed twenty embalmings as of February 9, 2007. When the Funeral Board began its investigation, Ms. Johal had to account for approximately ten embalmings she had not done. These embalmings had to have been done during the time of Ms. Walters' supervision. All six of the contested embalmings were done in that period.

By contrast, what we know about Ms. Cowley's internship, based on the evidence of Ms. Witzel, Ms. Walters and Ms. McCoy, is that her embalmings were on track and no one was concerned about the number she was performing.

None of Ms. Cowley, Ms. Witzel or Ms. Walters had any reason to wish Ms. Johal well. They each gave evidence that they found Benisasia a stressful and harsh working environment. They each believed that working at Benisasia affected their health. However, there was no suggestion or evidence that Ms. Cowley, Ms. Witzel or Ms. Walters somehow colluded to cause trouble for Ms. Johal. Instead, it appears that each of them made the emotionally healthy decision to leave a stressful workplace. The fact that they all left in February, 2007 is notable but there was evidence that the turnover at Benisasia was high and the Tribunal accepts that the timing of their leaving was a coincidence.

Means

Some time was spent during the hearing considering whether Ms. Cowley would have had access to Ms. Johal's Preparation Reports or vice versa. This is a red herring. Having access to Ms. Johal's reports would not have greatly assisted Ms. Cowley as hers were significantly more detailed and contained information not available from Ms. Johal's work. Parenthetically, the level of detail in Ms. Cowley's Preparation Reports is one of the many small matters that add credence to Ms. Cowley's evidence. Ms. Johal, as owner of the establishment and the person who most frequently met with customers, was in a different position than her intern. She did not need to see Ms. Cowley's Preparation Reports in order to create ones of her own. Ms. Johal testified that she frequently assists in the bathing rituals performed by the South Asian community that Benisasia serves. During these rituals and in conversations with the family of the deceased, Ms. Johal could have gleaned the necessary information to fill in Preparation Reports. She had enough experience with the embalming procedure to plausibly fill in any required details of types and quantities of embalming fluid used.

The Tribunal concludes that there is very strong evidence that Ms. Johal did not perform at least two of the six embalmings for which she claims credit. As noted above, the Tribunal accepts Ms. Walters's evidence that she did not supervise Ms. Johal in the embalming where Ms. Johal reported that a 6 foot two inch, 160 pound man was 5 foot 3 inches in height and weighed 105 pounds. The discrepancy in weight and height itself supports Ms. Cowley's testimony and undermines Ms. Johal's. Both Ms. Witzel and Ms. Walters testified that it was a mistake not even a novice would make. The Tribunal finds that Ms. Johal did not perform this embalming and that Ms. Cowley did.

The Tribunal accepts Ms. Witzel's evidence that she was collecting the body on which another of the disputed embalmings was performed at the approximate time on November 28th when Ms. Johal claims that she was embalming the body. The Tribunal does not accept Mr. Kolotyliuk's evidence that he supervised this embalming. The Tribunal finds that Ms. Johal did not perform this embalming on November 28, 2006. Ms. Cowley did the embalming on November 29, 2006, as she has testified. The fact that Ms. Cowley correctly noted that a pacemaker had been removed on this occasion and that Ms. Johal overlooked this in her Preparation Report also supports Ms. Cowley's account of this embalming.

The evidence regarding the other four embalmings is not as overwhelming but it is clear cut. There is a lesser discrepancy in height and weight measurements on one embalming that supports Ms. Cowley's testimony and there is also one other instance of a difference in the date of embalming that supports Ms. Cowley's evidence. There is the evidence of Ms. Witzel that she is satisfied that Ms. Cowley performed the embalmings based on her review of the Preparation Reports with Ms. Cowley. There is the evidence of Ms. Walters that she did not supervise five of the six contested embalmings as Ms. Johal asserts. Having concluded that Ms. Cowley was telling the truth about the two embalmings discussed above, it follows that there is a greater likelihood that she is telling the truth about the others. By contrast, there are the various factors noted above that call Ms. Johal's credibility into question, including the fact that she has been found to be lying about two of the embalmings.

The Tribunal concludes that there is overwhelming evidence that Ms. Johal did not perform two of the contested embalmings. The Tribunal also finds that the Funeral Board has met the burden of proof, that of a balance of probabilities, regarding the other four embalmings. The Tribunal finds that Ms. Johal did not conduct any of the six contested embalmings for which she is claiming credit; Ms. Cowley performed them.

Decision

Ms. Johal is a bright, ambitious woman with palpable charm. She is also a woman who brazenly lied to the Tribunal. She attempted to take credit for the work of an intern she employed and she did so in circumstances where, had she been believed, the victim's licence as a funeral director would have been in jeopardy for falsifying Preparation Reports. Before considering what the consequences of this deception should be, the Funeral Board submits that the Tribunal ought to consider the role of the Discipline Committee and the hearing it held.

To understand the respective roles of the Discipline Committee and the Tribunal, it is helpful to review the relevant provisions of the Act. Under the Act, there are three methods in which a funeral director may be sanctioned and three avenues of appeal to the Tribunal. There is a Registrar and subsection 20(2) of the Act provides that a person who has completed the educational requirements may apply to the Registrar for a licence as a funeral director. Subsection 20(3) provides that such a person in entitled to a licence unless:

> (b) the past or present conduct of personal referred to in subsection (4) affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not operate in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty;
> (c) the applicant or an employee or agent of the applicant makes a false statement or provides a false statement in an application for a licence

Licences may also be revoked by the Registrar for these reasons. Where the Registrar proposes to refuse or revoke a licence on these grounds, the applicant or licensee is entitled to a hearing by the Tribunal under section 22 of the Act and subsection 22(5) provides:

> After holding a hearing, the Tribunal may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the proposal or refrain from carrying out the proposal and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

In this respect, the Act is similar to over a dozen various acts which regulate certain industries and which provide for an appeal from registrars' proposals to the Tribunal. The Divisional Court, in a series of cases, has spelled out the role of the Tribunal in appeals of this nature. In Zahariev v. Ontario (Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act)(2005), 205 O.A.C. 110, for example, the Court held:

> The question that the Tribunal must ask itself is not whether the Registrar was wrong. Instead, the Tribunal is required to make an independent decision as to whether the criteria for depriving the Applicant of his license have been proven, showing no deference to the initial decision of the Registrar.
> [8] This accords with the wording of s. 7(4) of the [Motor Vehicle Dealers] Act, which reads as follows:
> > Where an applicant or registrant requires a hearing by the Tribunal in accordance with subsection (2), the Tribunal shall appoint a time for and hold the hearing and, on the application of the Registrar at the hearing, may by order direct the Registrar to carry out the Registrar's proposal or refrain from carrying it out and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Registrar ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations, and for such purposes the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Registrar.

> [9] Counsel for the Tribunal concedes that this section requires a de novo hearing before the Tribunal. At that hearing, the Tribunal would be called upon to make a fresh determination of the factual issue set out in s. 5(1)(b) as to whether "the past conduct of the applicant affords reasonable grounds for belief that the applicant will not carry on business in accordance with law and with integrity and honesty".
> [10] This court, in Registrar, Motor Vehicle Dealers Act v. Shine Car Sales (2003), 40 M.V.R. (4th) 86 (Ont. Div. Ct.), pointed out that Brenner "must be read carefully". It went on to state the following, at para. 9:
> > It does not establish a rule that the Registrar must be shown to be wrong in having concluded that there was reason to doubt that the registrant would carry on business appropriately. [emphasis added]
> [11] The court elaborated further on this point at para. 10:
> > It should be clearly understood that the Tribunal owes no deference to the Registar's opinion. The Registrar is the investigator. The Registrar is not a trier of fact whose opinion is based upon a hearing and so entitled to deference.

The Act also provides for a Complaints Committee which, under subsection 14(1) of the Act is to "consider and investigate complaints regarding the conduct or action of any licensee" where a written complaint has been filed. The Complaints Committee is not required to hold a hearing or afford an opportunity for a hearing. However, it may take certain action as a result of its investigation. If either the person complained against or the complainant requires a hearing, then under subsection 14(8), it is the Tribunal which is to hold the hearing. Subsection 14(9) provides:

> After holding a hearing, the Tribunal may by order direct the Complaints Committee to carry out the proposal or refrain from carrying out the proposal and to take such action as the Tribunal considers the Complaints Committee ought to take in accordance with this Act and the regulations and, for such purposes, the Tribunal may substitute its opinion for that of the Complaints Committee.

It will be seen that this provision is identical to subsection 22(5) quoted above. Therefore, it follows that the decision in the Zahariev case would apply to appeals from a Complaints Committee decision.

The Act also provides for a Discipline Committee to be appointed by the Funeral Board. The Discipline Committee consists of four members of the Funeral Board, two of whom are not funeral directors. Under section 15 of the Act the Funeral Board or the Executive Committee of the Funeral Board may direct the Discipline Committee to hold a hearing and determine any allegation of professional misconduct on the part of a funeral director. Section 44 of Regulation 470 of the Act spells out a number of acts which would constitute professional misconduct. These include:

> (o) signing or issuing a certificate, report or other document that contains a statement the licensee knows or ought to know is false, misleading or otherwise improper: . . .
> (u) acting in a manner relevant to the practice of funeral directing that, having regard to the circumstances, would reasonably be regarded as unprofessional conduct.

The proceedings of the Discipline Committee are governed by, among other sections, Section 17 of the Act. This section provides that the Funeral Board and the funeral director whose conduct is being investigated are parties to the proceedings. The funeral director has the right to examine any written or documentary evidence to be adduced before the hearing. Discipline Committee Members are not to have taken part in the pre-hearing investigation. Discipline Committee Members are not to communicate with anyone, including any party, about the subject matter of the hearing without notifying the parties and giving them an opportunity to participate. The Discipline Committee may seek legal advice from independent counsel and the proceedings of the Discipline Committee at the hearing are recorded.

Ms. Maciura, counsel for the Funeral Board, in her submissions argued that Ms. Johal had received a full and fair hearing by the Discipline Committee. In fact, Ms. Maciura argued that the hearing before the Discipline Committee "looks more like a full hearing than this License(sic) Appeal process does." She bases this argument on the fact that the Discipline Committee hearings are recorded by a court reporter, there is an independent counsel in attendance and the panel consists of three or four members. While this is not a compelling argument, it is important that neither party be left with the impression that they have received a "lesser" hearing before this Tribunal than before the Discipline Committee. When the Tribunal sits in Toronto, its proceedings are recorded digitally; when it is sitting out of town, there is a court reporter. In either case, the proceedings are recorded and a transcript is available to the parties. Vice-Chairs of the Tribunal are themselves lawyers, unlike the members of the Discipline Committee, so an independent counsel does not routinely attend Tribunal hearings. The presence or absence of independent counsel to advise the Tribunal during a hearing does not affect the legitimacy of the process. Finally, the panel size of the Tribunal in any hearing may vary from one to three, depending on the anticipated legal and evidentiary complexity of the case. The number of Tribunal adjudicators sitting on a hearing does not determine whether or not a valid hearing has occurred. This is not to take away from the legitimacy of the Discipline Committee process: Mr. Klug, counsel for Ms. Johal, while disagreeing with the findings of the Discipline Committee, did not argue that the hearing itself was inadequate or denied Ms. Johal a right to know the case she had to meet and to participate fully.

Section 18 of the Act provides for an appeal from the decision or order of the Discipline Committee to the Tribunal and subsection 18(2) provides, "Subsections 14(6) to (11) apply with necessary modifications to an appeal to the Tribunal from a decision or order of the Discipline Committee." In other words, the Tribunal has the same responsibilities and authority on an appeal from the Discipline Committee as it does on a request for a hearing from the Complaints Committee, "with necessary modifications".

Ms. Maciura submits that the Tribunal's role, on an appeal from the Discipline Committee, is to review the decision of the Discipline Committee and in doing so, the Tribunal must defer to the decision of the Discipline Committee. She submits that the Act is of limited use in determining this matter because, unlike decisions of the Registrar or the Complaints Committee, the Discipline Committee holds a hearing. Therefore, she submits, the underlying reasoning of the Zahariev case does not apply here. The Discipline Committee is a trier of fact and therefore is entitled to deference. The role of the Tribunal, by this logic, is to review the decision of the Discipline Committee, applying the standard of reasonableness to that review in accordance with the decision in David Dunsmuir v. New Brunswick, [2008] 1 S.C.R. 190.

It is true that a principal reason given in the Shine case, which was cited with approval by the Court in Zahariev, was the fact that the Tribunal was dealing with an appeal from the decision of a Registrar who was not a trier of fact and therefore not entitled to deference. Does it follow, however, that the Tribunal ought to restrict itself to reviewing the decision of the Discipline Committee with a deferential standard of review because the Discipline Committee has conducted a hearing?

Ms. Maciura submits that it does and in support of her argument submitted a number of cases. The Tribunal is grateful for her assistance in this matter. One of the cases cited is Woodward v. Society of Notaries Public of British Columbia [1993] B.C.J. No. 332, 38 A.C.W.S. (3d) 1037, a decision of the British Columbia Supreme Court in Chambers. This was an application for directions in an appeal by a Notary Public from a decision of the discipline committee of the Society of Notaries Public of British Columbia. Clancy J. focuses on the wording of the statue involved because, in his words, > Statutory appeals take different forms. The jurisdiction of the tribunal and the powers of the court on appeal or review depend on the language employed by the legislature.

The specific wording of the statue in this case provided that the Court was to "hear and determine the matter in dispute de novo". Clancy, J. concluded that the "matter in dispute" was whether the discipline committee had erred in its decision and therefore, despite the use of the wording "de novo" in the act, the Court owed deference to the earlier decision. However, this case can be distinguished from the present one because the wording of the statute differs from that of the present case. With one exception, which will be considered below, that is the difficulty with all the cases cited. They each must be regarded as specific to the legislation they consider.

It is to the Act before us that the Tribunal must turn for guidance. The question to be determined is whether, because the Discipline Committee conducted a hearing in this matter, the role of the Tribunal changes fundamentally from a full plenary jurisdiction to conduct a fresh hearing and arrive at an independent conclusion to an appellate jurisdiction to review the decision of the Discipline Committee. A consideration of subsection 18(2) yields the conclusion that it does not. It will be recalled that subsection 18(2) provides that the same provisions apply to appeals from the Discipline Committee to the Tribunal as apply to requests for a hearing from the Complaints Committee "with necessary modifications." The use of the phrase "with necessary modifications" is not sufficient to convert the role of the Tribunal from holding a fresh hearing and forming its own conclusions, substituting its judgement for that of the initial decision maker if necessary, to the role of conducting a curial review with deference to the Discipline Committee. The phrase "with necessary modifications" must be read to mean minor modifications necessary to give sense to the provisions in their new context. It cannot be used as an excuse to re-write the appeal provisions. If the Legislature had intended a curial review of decisions of the Discipline Committee, it could easily have provided for it. For example, the Act could simply provide for an appeal to the Divisional Court bypassing the Tribunal. There is a reason the Tribunal was inserted into this process and despite the attendant expense and the obvious risks of conflicting findings of fact and contradictory decisions, the Legislature clearly intended there to be a second, independent, quasi-judicial proceeding if requested.

Ms. Maciura cites one decision of this Tribunal, Re: Colin Wartman, an appeal from the decision of the Discipline Committee of the Board of Funeral Services, released October 7, 2004. In that case, the panel was considering an appeal from a decision of the Disciplinary Committee and concluded that while the Act authorised the Tribunal to substitute its own opinion for that of the Discipline Committee, reference ought to be made to the case law, in particular to the decisions of the Divisional Court in College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario v Payne [2002] O.J. No. 3574 and Flowers v. Health Professions and Appeal Board [2004] O.J. No. 1252. The panel concluded that the Tribunal must act in an appellate role, reviewing decisions of the Discipline Committee with deference. However, the cases cited do not establish a general principle that where a full hearing has occurred, the function of a second quasi-judicial tribunal must necessarily be to review the decision of the initial trier of fact, regardless of the wording of the legislation in question. On the contrary, each of these decisions reviews and interprets the provisions of the respective statues to determine their framework and intent. The provisions of those statutes differ materially from the relevant provisions of the Act. It is important to note the Re: Colin Wartman decision was reached before the Zahariev case. Therefore the panel in Re: Colin Wartman did not have the benefit of that ruling and subsequent decisions of the Divisional Court commenting on the role of the Tribunal. This Tribunal is not bound by its own decisions and this panel declines to follow the case of Re: Colin Wartman. It is the Act which must dictate what role and authority the Tribunal has and, for all the factors considered above, the Tribunal concludes that the role of the Tribunal is to conduct a fresh hearing and arrive at an independent decision.

It is important to note that the decision of the Discipline Committee is, on consent of the parties, before this Tribunal as evidence. In determining the facts in this case, the Tribunal gave no weight to the findings of the Discipline Committee for the following reasons. This case turns on the issue of credibility. There is no special expertise involved in determining credibility that is exclusive to the Discipline Committee. The Tribunal heard the evidence and is as qualified as is the Discipline Committee to make a finding of credibility. In the result, the finding of the Discipline Committee is the same as that the Tribunal, although the Discipline Committee heard somewhat different evidence and conducted a different analysis of the evidence it heard. The Discipline Committee concluded that Ms. Johal did not perform the embalmings in question.

The Discipline Committee decided to suspend Ms. Johal's licence for ten months, to fine her and to impose restrictions on her licence and conditions on her reinstatement, including the requirement that Ms. Johal successfully complete a prescribed professional development course and an approved ethics course. After considering the evidence, the Tribunal has decided instead to revoke Ms. Johal's licence. There are several reasons for this different result.

The Tribunal has facts that the Discipline Committee could not have known. Ms. Johal, far from showing remorse or taking any remedial action after she was found to have misled the Funeral Board by the Discipline Committee, has instead repeated her attempted deception to the Tribunal.

The Discipline Committee deferred to the recommendation of the Funeral Board in establishing the penalty. The Committee wrote:

> The Panel considered what period of suspension (in addition to the restrictions) would be minimally necessary given the facts of this case in order to meet the principles of general deterrence, to maintain public confidence in the disciplinary process and to ensure appropriate respect for the [Funeral] Board. In the Panel's view, a lengthy suspension of Ms. Johal's licence is necessary to achieve these general principles of sentencing. In fact, the Panel was concerned that the ten month period of suspension suggested by the [Funeral] Board was not adequate to address the seriousness of the conduct, however; it accepted this submission in deference to the [Funeral] Board's position. The Panel wishes Ms. Johal to know that had it not been for the [Funeral] Board's penalty submission, the Panel would have imposed a longer period of suspension.

Ms. Maciura advises that it is customary for the Discipline Committee to accept the recommendations of the Funeral Board concerning penalty. However, for the Tribunal to defer to the Funeral Board, which is a party to this proceeding, on the question of penalty would be improper.

The Discipline Committee seemed to regard this as principally an internal matter. As will be noted from the above excerpt, the Discipline Committee was concerned about deterrence of other funeral directors and maintaining respect for the Funeral Board and public confidence in the disciplinary process. It did not expressly consider the interests of the wider public in this matter.

Ms. Johal did far more than mislead the Funeral Board, an act of professional misconduct under paragraph 44(o) of Regulation 470 of the Act. In the spring of 2007, when the Funeral Board began its investigation, Ms. Johal created a calculated web of deception in which she attempted to implicate four of her employees and ex-employees. Most obviously, she took advantage of an intern in her employ. She was in a position, if not of trust, then certainly of responsibility for the instruction of Ms. Cowley. She betrayed this responsibility by claiming credit for the work of Ms. Cowley. If Ms. Johal had been believed, Ms. Cowley's licence would have been in jeopardy for misleading the Funeral Board. Even the accusation may have cast a shadow on Ms. Cowley's integrity. The Tribunal wishes to underscore the fact that two independent hearings have now established that Ms. Cowley was an innocent victim of the lies of her employer. She performed all of the six contested embalmings.

Ms. Johal also attempted to involve Ms. Walters in her deception. Ms. Johal prepared false Preparation Reports and put Ms. Walters's name on them. She implied that Ms. Walters was lying when she denied having supervised most of the contested embalmings. Ms. Johal falsified two of Ms. Walters's time cards in an attempt bolster her claims. On the day Ms. Walters left Benisasia, Ms. Johal permitted her to swear an affidavit that Ms. Johal knew to be false.

Someone persuaded Mr. Kolotyliuk that he had witnessed one of the contested embalmings. Ms. Johal permitted him to persist in this belief, and to testify to it, despite knowing it was wrong. Ms. Johal implicated the fourth employee, Ms. Witzel, by implying that she was lying in corroborating Ms. Cowley's testimony.

At any time in the past three and a half years, Ms. Johal could have unwound this web of deception. She could have recanted her testimony; she could have expressed remorse, she might have made amends to those she had attempted to harm with her lies. She did not. Instead, she persists in these falsehoods.

The Act provides that funeral directors are entitled to be licensed unless their conduct provides reasonable grounds for the belief that the director will not operate in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. It is important to note that the Discipline Committee does not have to demonstrate that an act of professional misconduct meets this test to consider revocation of a licence. This is the test that the Registrar must meet but the Discipline Committee has a wider scope for its consideration. However, there is nothing preventing the Discipline Committee from applying this test.

Ms. Johal's repeated deceptions, particularly given the extent and the damaging nature of her lies, constitute professional misconduct under both paragraphs 44(o) and 44(u) of Regulation 470 to the Act. These deceptions and her persistence in them raise legitimate concerns about her ability to conduct her business in accordance with the law and with integrity and honesty. Bereaved families are in a particularly vulnerable situation and they need to be assured that they are dealing with a person of probity at this time. Given that Ms. Johal has attempted to implicate her own employees and former employees in her lies, has lied to her regulating body and to this Tribunal, there are reasonable grounds to believe that she would deceive her customers if it were self-serving for her to do so.

Mr. Klug has submitted that Ms. Johal ought to be permitted to continue her business because Benisasia is the only funeral establishment serving the South Asian community in the Greater Toronto Area. However, this argument is not persuasive. The community served by Ms. Johal is entitled to the same standard of integrity as any other.

To suspend Ms. Johal, as the Discipline Committee proposed, even with the other terms it imposed, will not turn her into an honest person. One of these terms was that Ms. Johal was to complete an approved ethics course prior to her reinstatement. This might be appropriate if there were some question as to whether Ms. Johal was confused or unaware of the proper course of conduct. The deceptions practiced by Ms. Johal are too fundamental for confusion or misunderstanding. An ethics course will not turn Ms. Johal into a person who will conduct her business lawfully, honestly or with integrity. Nor will the longer period of suspension that the Discipline Committee considered have that effect. Ms. Johal cannot have honesty and integrity imposed on her; she must find it within herself. Until she does, there are reasonable grounds to believe that she will not meet the regulated standard of conduct. For the protection of the public she serves, Ms. Johal's licence must be revoked.

Order

Under subsections 14(9) and 18(2) of the Funeral Directors and Establishments Act, the Licence Appeal Tribunal directs the Discipline Committee of the Board of Funeral Services to revoke the licence of Ms. Prabhjot Johal as a funeral director.

5941-MED-DOWN-Downgrade of Licence

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION PURSUANT TO SECTION 32(5)(b)(i)

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Minister of Transportation

DATE OF HEARING: April 7, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister of Transportation (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

Dr. M. sent to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") a Medical Condition Report respecting the Applicant, dated April 29, 2003, which stated as follows:

> Episode of clonic jerking and loss of consciousness on awakening from sleep at night. Fatigued from lack of sleep (working multiple shifts).
> No alcohol abuse. No focal signs.

> CT scan normal.
> Prior similar episode 2000. To have neurology follow-up for diagnosis. Not started on anticonvulsants.

After receiving this report, MTO wrote to the Applicant on May 20, 2003, to inform him that his licence was suspended for medical reasons.

Dr. N., Neurologist, wrote a consultation letter dated June 5, 2003, describing two nocturnal episodes while the Applicant was sleeping. The doctor was of the opinion that the first episode was simply an episode of syncope. The doctor stated that he could not be sure about the second episode and wrote that he would not continue to treat the Applicant as having had a seizure. The doctor decided to order a sleep-deprived EEG. Dr. N. wrote again to MTO on July 7, 2003, stating that the Applicant's EEG of June 20, 2003, was reported as normal.

As a result of the reports noted above, MTO wrote to the Applicant on July 24, 2003, to advise him that his medical report had been approved and that his licence had been reinstated.

The Applicant's family physician, Dr. N., wrote to MTO on April 3, 2006, in regard to the fact that the Applicant's application for his Class "A" licence had been denied because of the receipt of a report with the finding of Bradycardia (heart rate was 47 beats per minute). The doctor enclosed a Holter test report, which reported "no dramatic bradyarrhythmias". On receipt of this report, MTO wrote to the Applicant on May 12, 2006, informing him that the medical report had been approved for a Class "A" licence.

Dr. B. sent a Medical Condition Report concerning the Applicant to the MTO on June 15, 2009. With reference to the medical condition in question, the doctor wrote "Blackout or Loss of consciousness or Awareness". Under the heading "Optional", the only legible comments are:

> Working a lot. Poor sleep. Felt tired/light-headed when got into truck. Blackout of some type soon after...

When MTO received this report from Dr. B., a letter was written to the Applicant on July 24, 2009, informing him that his driver's licence was suspended for medical reasons.

A Motor Vehicle Accident Report (date illegible) was completed in relation to the accident involving the Applicant. The legible comments from this report are:

> Vehicle: Trailer.

Dr. M., Neurologist, wrote a report to MTO on January 14, 2010, in which he stated, in part, that the Applicant suffered another spell on June 15, 2009, when he had a loss of consciousness while driving his truck and crashed into a light standard in a parking lot, driving slowly. The doctor noted that recent EEGs and the Holter monitor test were normal, and that a recent MRI of the head showed focal cortical encephalomalacia in the right frontal lobe. The doctor stated that the patient was on medication, Keppra, and was seizure-free since its initiation. In his final sentence, the doctor stated that he thought it was safe for the Applicant "to go back to driving at this point".

Dr. D., Neurologist, wrote a report on January 21, 2010. He described the past medical history of the Applicant. He noted that the Applicant had suffered a head injury causing unconsciousness in 1982. He further wrote that the Applicant was doing well on Keppra medication, that the seizures were likely related to the right frontal MRI lesion, and that the epilepsy appeared to be very mild. The doctor believed that there was an excellent chance that the Applicant would remain completely seizure-free while taking Keppra. He finally wrote that he believed that "it would be safe for <Applicant's name removed> to drive".

In the Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") Case Summary report, dated February 16, 2010, it was written as follows:

> Recommendations: Reinstate and Downgrade.
> Reasons: Driver no longer meets the requirements for a commercial licence [O. Reg. 340/94, s. 17(1)(G)] nor does he meet the waiver criteria as he must establish a seizure free period on or off medication for five years (CCMTA 6.3.1). It is appreciated that the five year period could be reduced on the recommendation of a neurologist, but this driver has encephalomalacia which is likely epileptogenic, in the right polar orbital frontal surface i.e. cortical.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on February 23, 2010, to advise him that it was required that his Class "AC" licence be changed to a Class "G".

On March 19, 2010, Dr. M., Neurologist, sent another report to MTO. The doctor reported that the "spell" thought to have been suffered by the Applicant in 2006 was an error, and, in fact, there had been no "spell". The doctor concluded his report by suggesting that the Applicant be considered for his Class "AZ" licence, which was integral to his livelihood.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant testified that he is not working. He has had considerable misfortune through his working life through no fault of his own and needs to work now.

He has not had a seizure or any loss of consciousness episode since June 15, 2009. He was started on Keppra medication in October 2009. It was in 2009 that he had an MRI test done for the first time. He is diligent about taking his medication and following the advice of his doctors.

The Applicant stated that the reason why he is now appealing and trying to get his "AC" licence back is because of what happened on June 15, 2009. He acknowledged that he fully realizes and understands what his doctors have been telling him - that there may be scar tissue in the right frontal part of his brain, which may be causing his difficulties. He pointed out that there are records which show that three neurologists have stated that he is safe to drive. He noted that Dr. D. is not just a neurologist but also specializes in the area of seizures. The Applicant is of the opinion that when his doctors wrote "he was safe to drive" in their reports, they meant that he was safe to drive a truck.

The Applicant's wife also testified. She stated that on some of the occasions when the Applicant suffered an episode or a loss of consciousness, he had been sleep-deprived or drinking, which is not happening now. She believes that her husband's doctors have confidence in the Keppra medication that the Applicant is now taking. She asserted that her husband is faithfully following the instructions of his doctors.

ISSUES

Does the Applicant suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

> 14. An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

> 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,

(a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;

(b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

(c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;

(d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;

(f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;

(g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

(h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

(j) has a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1) (a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1) (c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.

(4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5

metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,
(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32(5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) An applicant for a driver's licence or a person who holds a driver's licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("CCMTA") Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 6.3.1., under the heading "Seizures", reads:

> If individual has been seizure-free on or off medication for 5 years, and receives a favourable report from their usual treating physician and/or a neurologist, may operate any class of motor vehicle.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant's wish to return to driving as soon as possible, especially since he needs to drive to earn a living.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant had an episode of loss of consciousness in 2000, which Neurologist Dr. N. thought most likely due to syncope, and then another episode in 2003, which Dr. N. thought was suggestive of, but not definitely diagnostic of, a seizure. Then in 2006, due to the finding of bradycardia, the Applicant lost his commercial licence for a short period of time, but had it restored in May 2006 with the receipt of a favourable Holter test report. On June 15, 2009, the Applicant suffered another loss of consciousness episode while driving his truck in a parking lot, resulting in an accident.

The Tribunal, after serious consideration of the evidence, cannot ignore the fact that the most serious episode suffered by the Applicant was only about ten months ago (June 15, 2009 - loss of consciousness while driving a truck). The Tribunal has also considered the following:

1. The Applicant had a serious head injury in 1982 (with the possibility put forward of resulting scar tissue of the brain).

2. Dr. D.'s report of January 21, 2010, which stated that the area of encephalomalacia in the frontal lobe of the brain was likely the cause of the Applicant's seizures.

3. The MAC neurologist wrote (February 16, 2010) that he considered the area of encephalomalacia to be epileptogenic. This neurologist recommended downgrading the Applicant's licence to a Class "G", following the guidelines of CCMTA, Standard 6.3.1.

The Tribunal notes that it has been about ten months since the Applicant's last episode of loss of consciousness. The Tribunal finds that a further neurological follow-up period is required, and, in keeping with the recommendation of the MAC neurologist, serious consideration should be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's Class "AC" licence, whenever the Applicant's neurologist expresses confidence in this step being taken.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Respondent's decision, effective February 23, 2010, to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Minister of Transportation be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION PURSUANT TO SECTION 32(5)(b)(i)

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, self-represented

KYLE M. BIEL, Representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 29, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

Dr. C. sent in a report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) on August 6, 2008 concerning the Applicant, writing as follows:

> Mr. X, who has a history of seizure disorder, had a seizure two days ago.

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

Neurologist Dr.T wrote a consultation report to Dr. C., (the family physician of the Applicant), dated October 24, 2008, in which he said, in part, that the Applicant had a history of seizure since the age of 18. When the Applicant arrived in Canada seven years ago, his medication for seizure was changed to Epival.

In June 2008, the Applicant missed one dose of Epival and had an episode when he blacked out. He was told that he had a mild seizure. Then, in August 2008, the Applicant believes that he may have missed his dose of Epival again and he blacked out and was told he had an episode of mild shaking of the body and he had bitten his tongue, but there was no incontinence, muscle soreness, focal weakness, focal numbness or injury. He has not had any further seizures since August 2008.

Under Clinical Impression Dr. T wrote as follows:

> Mr. X's neurological examination is normal. The history that I obtained is suggestive of primary generalised epilepsy, possibly juvenile myoclonic epilepsy. Because of language barrier, the history is somewhat difficult to obtain. I have arranged for him to have an MRI of the brain and an EEG. I have ordered CBC, liver function tests and a Depakene level. I have told him that at present he should not be driving and not involved in any activity that would be dangerous if he would have a seizure.

EEG report (November 12, 2008):

> Mildly abnormal EEG. Intermittent, infrequent, generalised sharp waves and spikes are Identified. No other epileptiform activity or focal abnormalities are seen. These findings likely represent an interictal manifestation of an underlying primary generalised seizure disorder.

MRI of head report (November 17, 2008):

> There are a few punctate hyperintense T2 signal foci in the cerebral white matter which are entirely non-specific. The differential includes small vessel ischemic change of various etiologies or less likely demyelination. Mild generalised cerebellar atrophy.

Neurologist Dr. T sent in another report, dated March 9, 2009. The Clinical Impression reads as follows:

> Mr. X has primary, generalised epilepsy and has had no seizures since August 2008. He is taking his medications regularly. I have ordered CBC, liver function tests and Depakene level today. I have told him to carry on with things as they are. There is no reason that he cannot resume driving from the neurological point of view.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on May 1, 2009, informing him that his Class 'G' licence was reinstated.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on June 12, 2009, informing him that his application for a Class 'A' licence would be considered when he had established a five-year seizure-free period on or off medication.

Dr. P wrote to the MTO on August 11, 2009, stating that he was the Family/Attending physician of the Applicant. He summarised the Applicant's history and finally wrote:

> Mr. X is fully assessed including detailed history, clinical examination and investigations EEG, MRI and blood levels of Valproic acid. To best of my assessment, he is medically fit for AZ licence.

The Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated June 15, 2010, showed no convictions' discharges or other actions, and the Demerit Points were zero.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant explained that since he lost his 'A' licence, he has been out of work. He is finding it very difficult financially as a result. He has four children and is the breadwinner in the family.

He said that on the day in August 2008, when he suffered a seizure he had to work 15 hours and he missed taking his morning anti-seizure medication that day.

The Applicant drew attention to the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("C.C.M.T.A.") Standards for Drivers under Seizures Standard 6.3.5. (Simple Partial Seizure), wondering if this Standard applied to the medical situation he was in.

He referred to the medical report of his doctor, Dr. P, dated August 11, 2009, who indicated that he was fit for an 'AZ' licence.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

> 14. An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

> 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
> (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
> (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;
> (c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;

(d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;

(f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;

(g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

(h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

(j) has a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1) (a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1) (c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.

(4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,
(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32 (5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) The Minister may require an applicant for a driver's licence or an endorsement or a person who holds a driver's licence to submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations at the times and places required by the Minister and to meet other prescribed requirements, and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose the conditions authorized by the regulations, remove any conditions or endorsements or change the class or classes of driver's licence held by the person, in accordance with the results of the examinations and other prescribed requirements, or

Section 50 states:

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(5)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading "Seizures" of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 6.3.1.) is written as follows:

> If individual has been seizure-free on or off medication for 5 years, and receives a favourable report from their usual treating physician and /or a neurologist, may operate any class of motor vehicle.

The Tribunal sympathises with the Applicant's wish to have his Class 'A' licence reinstated, especially since he depends on this to earn a living.

The Tribunal recognises that the Applicant is being very careful not to miss any of his medication and that he is seeing his neurologist regularly. Also, the Tribunal recognises that the Applicant has an excellent driving record.

The Tribunal notes that in both seizures, the one in June 2008, and the one in August 2008, the Applicant suffered loss of consciousness. It notes that he has not had a seizure since August 2008. It also notes that he has been diagnosed with Epilepsy (Primary, generalised Epilepsy).

Therefore, the Tribunal concludes that the C.C.M.T.A. Standard that applies to the Applicant under the heading “Seizures” is Standard 6.3.1. The Tribunal has decided that the decision of the Registrar should be upheld.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 21, 2008 of the Minister (“Respondent”) to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

6178-MED-DOWN-Downgrade of a Licence

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION PURSUANT TO SECTION 32(5)(b)(i)

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Minister of Transportation

DATE OF HEARING: August 19, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister of Transportation (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the onset of the hearing, the Applicant submitted an additional document, namely a medical report from Dr. S., dated August 3, 2010. The Agent for the Respondent agreed to the admission of this report into evidence, and it was marked as Exhibit #4.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

Dr. M. sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") on January 7, 2010, in which he wrote that the Applicant suffered a seizure or loss of consciousness on January 5, 2010. He also wrote "Situation is a serious road safety risk" and "Patient is aware of this report".

The Applicant was referred to a neurologist, Dr. S., by his family physician. Dr. S. sent a report to MTO on February 18, 2010, concerning the Applicant. In this report, the neurologist stated that he had assessed the Applicant regarding a possible epileptic seizure on January 5, 2010. The Applicant had no previous seizure-like episodes. His physical examination was normal, and the CT scan of the head, MRI of the head, EKG and EEG were normal. The doctor described how the Applicant was awakened in the night in order to return to snow-ploughing during a storm. The Applicant ploughed for two hours, not feeling well, and when he returned to the work site he "blacked out", and was seen to have tonic clonic movement. Dr. S. noted that in the Ambulance Report, the Applicant's blood sugar level was written as borderline low at 3.8 at 04:04 hours, which was 25 minutes after the ambulance received the incident call, so he was given an oral glucose tablet. Blood glucose was only 2.8 at 04:17 hours (although this was written in as 3.8 at 04:18 hours). Dr. S. concluded the report by stating his opinion that the Applicant had probably suffered tonic clonic movements associated with hypoglycaemia, compounded by fatigue. The doctor believed that there was no evidence to suggest that the Applicant was likely to have recurrent seizures or any similar neurological disorder, and from the neurological point of view, he believed that "he [the Applicant] may be allowed to drive without risk".

A laboratory report on the Applicant, dated April 4, 2010, showed a normal blood sugar reading of 4.6 (normal range is 3.6 – 6.0).

On April 21, 2010, MTO wrote to the Applicant to inform him that his Class "A" licence was being changed to a Class "G" licence.

The Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated August 4, 2010, showed that between September 2007 and April 2010, the Applicant was convicted of failure to have insurance card on three occasions, and speeding on three occasions. Current demerit points are zero.

Neurologist Dr. S. wrote another report concerning the Applicant, dated August 3, 2010. He stated that the Applicant had had no further seizures and the neurological examination was normal. In conclusion, he wrote:

> There is no need for any further investigation from a neurological point of view. In my opinion, there is no significant risk of any further seizures. I believe he is not at risk in any way as a driver of any type.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant testified that his work consists of running a concrete pump (a type of crane), and in the winter he also does snow-ploughing. He needs a Class "D" licence for this purpose.

The Applicant stated that he cannot collect unemployment or disability payments, and noted that he had tried retraining. He is still not able to work and is not earning any money. He has a family. He has never had a seizure before. With his work, he is not a threat on the highway.

The Applicant described what happened during the night of the seizure (January 5, 2010). He had done a full day's work the day before and went to bed at the work site. He took a Gravol tablet in order to help him sleep. After about two hours of sleep, he was woken up (at about 3:00 a.m.) in order to do more snow-ploughing. He ploughed for approximately two hours, until about 5:00 a.m., and did not feel well during that time. He then returned to the work site, and when he got into the office, he suffered the seizure. As far as the Applicant knows, he was unconscious for about one or two minutes. The seizure was seen by his supervisor. He had a bad headache when he woke up. He was taken to a hospital in the ambulance, and was given glucose by mouth while in the ambulance.

ISSUES

Does the Applicant suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

> 14. An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,

(a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;

(b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

(c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;

(d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;

(f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;

(g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

(h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

(j) has a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1) (a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1) (c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.

(4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32(5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver’s licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) An applicant for a driver’s licence or a person who holds a driver’s licence shall submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations relating to this section and required by the Minister at the time and places that the Minister may require and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver’s licence,

(i) impose or remove the conditions or endorsements authorized by the regulations or change the class or classes of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examinations, or

Section 50 states:

> 50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant suffered a seizure on January 5, 2010. This was observed by his supervisor, and the description given was that of a generalized or grand mal seizure. The Applicant did not have any seizures before this, nor has he had one since. At the time that he had this seizure (about 5:00 a.m.), the Applicant had been fasting and working for a prolonged period of time. The February 18, 2010 report of neurologist Dr. S. described the blood glucose level of the Applicant as being low, not long after the seizure. The Applicant was not taking any medication which might cause a seizure or low blood glucose. In the report, Dr. S. wrote "I believe he probably had tonic clonic movements associated with hypoglycaemia compounded by fatigue". The Tribunal is aware that hypoglycaemia can be the cause of a seizure.

The Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 6.3.2., under the heading "Seizures" reads:

> Not eligible for any class of licence until a complete neurological assessment has been conducted.
> May be considered for a higher (1-4) class of licence if there are no signs of epileptiform activity and individual has been seizure-free for 12 months.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant has only been seizure-free for seven and a half months, but is of the opinion that the following should be taken into consideration:

Dr. S., a neurologist, has been following the Applicant since soon after his seizure - his first report being dated February 18, 2010, and his last report being dated August 3, 2010. In this last report, the doctor wrote "In my opinion there is no significant risk of any further seizures. I believe he is not at risk in any way as a driver of any type".

This opinion, expressed without any ambiguity, cannot be ignored. Therefore, the Tribunal has decided that the Applicant's Class "A" licence should be reinstated.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Respondent's decision, effective April 21, 2010, to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Minister of Transportation be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION PURSUANT TO SECTION 32(5)(b)(i)

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: JOE BALL, Agent, Representing the Applicant,

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT, Respondent
Representative for the Minister of Transportation

DATE OF HEARING: October 14, 2010 Belleville, ON

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Applicant, a 52 year old transport driver, suffered an event on the 20th of January 2010 necessitating transport to a local emergency room. A Medical Condition Report was completed by Dr. A.B. in which he ticked off the possibility of seizure(s) – cerebral, and blackout or loss of consciousness or awareness. His comments included the statement that the Applicant had suffered a possible severe episode with loss of consciousness for about two minutes with tonic clonic movements and a post ictal state. A C.T. study demonstrated a small lesion in the pons suspicious for metastasis from previous thyroid cancer. Plans to investigate further included an MRI study.

On March 4, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant explaining that they had received this report indicating that he suffered from a medical condition which may impair his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. This letter stated that the Registrar of Motor Vehicles had decided to suspend his driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

In this letter the MTO explained that they would reconsider his case upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the Registrar. They requested an up-to-date report from his physician or a neurologist regarding the reported seizure(s)/loss of consciousness. The report would include the results of all investigations. A narrative of this and any previous seizure/syncope history was required. It was noted by the Respondent suspension applied to all classes of driver's licences.

On May 11, 2010, a letter from Dr. A.S., a university level neurologist was sent to the MTO in order to facilitate the Applicant getting back his "G" and "A" driver's licences. He was described as being 51 years old with a history of diabetes, hypertension and hypercholesterolemia with a single episode on January 10th, 2010 in which he lost consciousness shortly after getting out of bed due to a muscle cramp. The episode was unwitnessed. When his wife found him about 20 minutes later he was still unresponsive with eyes rolled back and diffusely diaphoretic. The paramedics arrived and he was found then able to sit in a chair but still not responding normally. His blood sugar was 18 mmol/L. The Applicant awoke in the ambulance and denied any further confusion or fatigue. An EEG was normal and an MRI showed only that he has an incidental venous anomaly in the pons (a part of the brain stem). He also had a cardiac workup including a 48 hour Holter monitoring and an Echocardiogram which, were both normal. He was noted to have had no further events despite not taking any medications. The doctor stated that given the fact that the Applicant has not had any events for five months she thought his risk of having further events was low and she hoped that this was sufficient for reinstatement of his driver's licences.

On July 23, 2010, a report of the MAC of the Ministry of Transportation filed in which they recommended re-instatement with downgrade, in other words a class "G" licence and offered to reconsider the Applicant's commercial licencing with a report from the driver's treating physician to confirm one year seizure free. They also asked that a current clinical assessment with respect to the driver's venous anomaly be included along with a copy of an MRI.

In their reasoning the MAC was of the opinion that the driver experienced a single seizure in January/10. Symptomatology provided 20 minutes post-event include "unconscious, unresponsive with eyes rolled back and diffusely diaphoretic". Also noted were normal cardio and neuro investigations and not on any medication.

On, July 22, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that Ontario Regulation 340/94 requires that his class "A" licence be changed to a class "G" due to the reported history of loss of consciousness/awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition.

A report dated January 21, 2010, MRI - head with and without IV gadolinium. Conclusion: The MRI findings not suggestive of intracranial metastatic disease. Combined CT and MRI findings highly suggest development of a pontine venous angioma since 2005 with distal thrombosis resulting in visualized pontine calcification on CT exam and vague vascular enhancement without parenchymal signal abnormality on MRI exam. As a precaution, follow up contrast – enhanced MRI of the head January 2011 suggested to ensure one year of stability.

Holter ECG Medical Report, dated March 12, 2010m findings:

> Supraventricular arrhythmias – only 29 premature atrial contractions were seen. There are 20 short runs of supraventricular tachycardia totalling 120 beats. Conclusions: no significant arrhythmia.

Eighteen channel EEG, dated, April 16, 2010:

> Interpretation – this EEG is normal. No focal or generalized epileptiform abnormalities are seen.

Electrocardiogram, dated April 26, 2010:

> Conclusion: normal.

On, September 17, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant to note that while they had received the various medical reports they found that information requested previously was still lacking. They stated that it would be necessary for the Applicant's treating physician to file an assessment which confirms that you have remained free from further episodes of loss of consciousness/seizure for a period of one year and a clinical assessment referencing your recorded venous anomaly.

The next entry on the Respondent's narrative was a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record stating his suspension for medical reasons on March 14, 2010 and there were a few other minor infractions.

The Respondent entered pertinent portions of the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers drawing attention to section 6.3.2 – solitary seizure and it states that the individual who has suffered a single unprovoked seizure should not be considered for any class of motor vehicle licence until a detailed neurological assessment and EEG have been performed and are satisfactory. The individual whom seizure can not directly be related to a toxic illness can continue to drive safely provided full neurologic assessment is normal and EEG reveals no epileptiform activity.

Where the EEG shows signs of epileptiform activity, the patient should not be allowed to drive for a period of six months. An earlier reinstatement may be considered on a favourable recommendation from a neurologist.

The individual may be considered for a classified (1 – 4) licence after 12 months if the EEG is normal and there has been no recurrence of seizure.

In section 32(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, sections a, b and c indicate the options available to the Minister regarding licencing requirements which the Applicant must fulfill.

It is noted that in section 55 of the Highway Traffic Act, subsection (g) states that there must be no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

The Respondent's presentation was completed by the observation that the last report available to the MTO had been filed by Dr. A.S. (neurologist) May 11, 2010, noting the absence of further events for five months and expressing the opinion that this would be sufficient for reinstatement of the driver's licences.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE

The Applicant's Agent stated that he had no questions.

The Agent drew attention to section 6.3.1 regarding seizures – epilepsy in the CCMTA document and commented that there is no proof of seizures involving the Applicant and then drew attention to section 6.3.2 – solitary seizure – and commented that subsequent neurological and cardiac factors had been investigated and no abnormalities had been found. The Agent then observed that at the time of the event in January of 2010 a random blood sugar was found to be 18 mmol/L., but did not expand on this.

The Agent introduced the Applicant's wife as a witness. She stated under direct questioning that her husband had had no other medical problems other than his diabetes and she concurred that blood sugar elevation to this level had never been observed in the various testing they have done at home and that the diabetes is treated with Metaformin (tablets).

On questioning the Applicant stated while the event had occurred in January, 2010 he received no information from the MTO until March and during this interval he did not drive at all, either at work or in his own vehicle. He stated that he had had no further problems. He regularly checks his blood sugars every morning, they are in the range of 5 to 8. He stated that he takes his Metaformin pills every morning and then always checks his blood sugar.

In the 24 hours prior to this event he described going to work on Sunday night then came home and slept for 6 hours and early Monday found that he was not needed at work until Tuesday. He did report for work on early Tuesday am, finishing at 5pm, then fainted at 9:30pm on the Tuesday. His food intake from 3:30pm on Tuesday was only chips or pop and then he had supper at 6pm. He denies any further problems since this event and sees his family doctor once every three months.

The Agent drew attention to the fact that the Ministry has acted on the basis that the suspension is because the Applicant suffered from a chronic or recurring condition as in section 17 Ontario Regulations 34/94 (g) and underlined the fact that the Applicant has only had the single event as noted.

Questioning by the Tribunal disclosed the fact no blood test had been done on the day of the event. He usually does this every day but said that his physicians stated that a daily test is not necessary.

THE RESPONDENT'S QUESTIONS

The Respondent's Representative elicited the fact that the Applicant takes his Metaformin twice daily. He then reviewed with the Applicant the events on the evening of the "seizure" and the Applicant stated that he had some memory of the event and remembers that it was quite cold and that he was led to the ambulance in his underwear. The Respondent's Representative elicited the fact that the Applicant had received the letter from the MTO explaining the downgrade of his licence to a "G" and the Applicant's wife concurred that although the MTO had asked for further details of a medical update this had not been done. His wife stated on the request of their physician a further MRI has to be done by way of follow up. The Applicant stated during this series of questions that he can recognize when his blood sugar is low and that he feels somewhat "stupid or weak", and that if the blood sugar should course higher he feels no symptoms. He stated that his diabetes was discovered in 2005 and attempts at control with diet were carried out and he has been on Metaformin since 2008. Mention of the MRI study done in 2005 disclosed it was to be sure that the pontine lesion was not a secondary from his thyroid cancer which had been treated with surgery and radiation previously.

THE APPLICANT'S AGENT IN SUMMARY

The Applicant's Agent stressed that CMTA recommends suspension on the basis of a chronic or recurring condition, and the Applicant has had only a solitary event. The Agent pointed out that the Applicant is a highly responsible individual who stopped all driving after this event. The Applicant has had no further symptoms and possibly this was only a fainting spell.

The Applicant's Agent described himself as a safety officer with the Applicant's transport company and they have no concerns about this man.

It was the Agent's observation that with time lapses between the organizing of doctors visits and reports to the Ministry and the Ministry's responses two years could elapse before the Applicant could return to work as a transport driver.

THE RESPONDENT IN SUMMARY

The Respondent stated that the MTO had no alternative but to respond as they had upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report regarding the event in January 2010. He expressed some concern over the random blood sugar finding of 18 and the fact that there is no clear explanation of why the Applicant was still semiconscious after 20 minutes from the onset of the trouble.

The Respondent admitted that all tests are negative and there is no sign of an epileptiform condition but he expressed some concern about the MRI finding of the venous anomaly which could trigger a seizure. Also the radiologist had recommended a follow up MRI in one year.

Also noted was the fact that no further medical information has been provided to the MTO since May 2010. The Respondent emphasized that the Ministry's position is that an updated medical review has not been provided and that there have been no clinical details filed with the Ministry regarding the possibility of focal activity caused by the pontine lesion. He stressed that the Registrar wants a one year seizure free period well documented, and that we are at approximately 10 months now.

He asked that the Ministry's position be confirmed by the Tribunal.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

> 14. An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

> 17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,
> (a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;
> (b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

(c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;

(d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;

(f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;

(g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

(h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

(j) has a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1) (a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1) (c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.

(4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32 (5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) The Minister may require an applicant for a driver's licence or an endorsement or a person who holds a driver's licence to submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations at the times and places required by the Minister and to meet other prescribed requirements, and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose the conditions authorized by the regulations, remove any conditions or endorsements or change the class or classes of driver's licence held by the person, in accordance with the results of the examinations and other prescribed requirements, or

Section 50 states:

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(5)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The decision of the MTO to downgrade the Applicant's licence from "A" to "G" is based on section 32 (5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act.

For reasons still unknown it seems very likely that the Applicant did suffer a solitary seizure in January 2010. This is supported by the fact that there were probably 20 minutes of loss of consciousness (an episode caused by fainting would have seen a more rapid recovery) and the description of the probable post ictal state mentions profuse diaphoresis.

The Applicant had a previous thyroid malignancy (generally a very low grade lesion) and there have been no problems with recurrence or metastasis.

The Applicant's only significant medical problem is his diabetes which has been controlled very well.

The MTO had no option but to react as they did on the receipt of the Medical Condition Report describing the possibility of a seizure having occurred or at least the loss of consciousness.

It is clear from the information provided today the Applicant has had no previous episodes to suggest epilepsy or episodes of loss of consciousness. He continues in excellent health at the present time.

The Ministry in their reports to the Applicant has pointed out that in certain circumstances with satisfactory and supportive reports from the doctors the interval of suspension can be shortened. In fact, while they do ask for a 12 month interval without recurrent trouble it is noted that the Applicant has now already gone approximately 10 months without further events. The Applicant's neurologist in a letter dated only four months from this event stated clearly that there was no significant further risk and that his licences should be restored.

The Applicant's Agent, an employee of the Applicant's transport company was very supportive and underscored the fact that the Applicant voluntarily ceased all driving and that he considers him to be a valued member of their firm. He went on to point out that the Ministry has erred in describing the Applicant's condition as chronic and recurring when in fact it is clear this unfortunate event in January of 2010 has never occurred before or since.

Given these facts and also considering the time that has already elapsed and the neurologist's recommended reinstatement, it also favours the Applicant that he has remained completely well for 10 months and that should be sufficient in this case.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective July 22nd, 2010 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") to downgrade his class "A" driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant:

It is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE MINISTER OF TRANSPORTATION PURSUANT TO SECTION 32(5)(b)(i)

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: DR. DAVID HURST, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Minister of Transportation

DATE OF HEARING: November 18, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister of Transportation (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the beginning of the hearing today, the Applicant provided the Tribunal with a letter from Dr. R.K. dated November 11th, 2010 containing further information pertaining to his medical difficulties and this was entered as Exhibit #3 and will be referred to later on in the narrative.

FACTS

The Applicant, a 45 year old gentleman, was diagnosed as having epilepsy years ago. His mother is also a known epileptic.

The Applicant's condition has been very well controlled over the years with various medications, albeit with an occasional event caused primarily by the Applicant's inability to pay for the required medication and therefore resulting in occasional lapses in the use of his medication. Starting with a "G" licence, the Applicant was eventually issued a medical waiver to enable him to upgrade his licence to "A" level. Unfortunately recent events resulted in the suspension of his "A" category but he remains free to drive with a "G" licence.

It is this downgrade that has led to his appearance before the Licence Appeal Tribunal today.

With the agreement of the Tribunal and the Applicant, today Mr. Biel filed documents dating back to April 5, 1993 pertaining to licencing issues where the Applicant experienced an episode of loss of consciousness consistent with a seizure.

To achieve fairness and accuracy, while these earlier documents were not reviewed in detail at the Tribunal today, it is essential that they now be reviewed in some detail.

THE SUMMARY OF EARLIER DOCUMENTS

April 5, 1993 – Dr. B.B. (neurologist) reported to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") that the Applicant experienced an episode of loss of consciousness consistent with a seizure while at work. He noted that he had been taking anticonvulsant medication for some time and would be followed up by his personal physician Dr. I.P.

May 15, 1993 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that his driving privilege was suspended for medical reasons.

July 2, 1993 – Dr. B.B. a neurologist, wrote "To Whom it May Concern" that the Applicant had been epileptic since childhood. He had been seen in the local emergency department on the 5th of April 1993 as a result of a seizure which occurred on the first day on a new job. The neurologist explained that the Applicant was likely under considerable stress with the starting of his new job and surmised that such matters predisposed him to the seizure. The doctor explained that this was a phenomenon that is seen on occasion. The Applicant was advised to increase his drug (Epival) to 1.5 grams daily in four divided doses.

The neurologist went on to state that these were extreme circumstances experienced by the Applicant since the penultimate seizure had occurred more than two years previously and that it was reasonable to permit him to return to driving his vehicle. He noted that there had been no further neurological events since the 5th of April and that blood levels of his anticonvulsant were being followed regularly by his physician.

August 12, 1993 – The Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") of the MTO advised that the Applicant's licence should be reinstated with regular medical follow ups beginning in November 1993.

August 26, 1993 – The MTO restored the Applicant's class "G" licence.

December 15, 1993 – The Applicant had complied with the MTO by filling out a medical questionnaire and on December 15, 1993, a class "G" licence was approved with no follow up medical reports required.

November 20, 1996 – Dr. M.S. (neurologist) wrote to the MTO to expand on her Medical Condition Report filed November 7th, 1996. She stated that on November 7th, 1996, the Applicant suffered a generalized tonic/clonic seizure. She noted that at that time he had failed to take his anticonvulsant (Epival) due to serious financial constraints. Since then, there have been no further problems and his blood levels of his drug were within the normal range.

November 25, 1996 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his licence would be suspended under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act for medical reasons.

February 17, 1997 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his class "G" licence had been restored. The usual stipulations regarding follow up medical review were underlined and on June 25th, 1997, Dr. M.S. (neurologist) reported no further seizures since November of 1996 and the Applicant was compliant with his medication. She said he was doing exceedingly well.

January 27, 1998 – The Applicant appeared at the local emergency department with a "known seizure disorder" and having missed two of his tablets had suffered a generalized seizure. A blood test showed that his anticonvulsant was below the therapeutic range. This event was reported to the MTO.

March 12, 1998 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that his driver's licence would be suspended once again.

March 22, 1998 – Dr. M.S. (neurologist) wrote to the MTO regarding the Applicant. This letter stressed the difficulty the Applicant was having in paying for his drugs. Attempts were being made to arrange for assistance from one of the drug firms.

July 13, 1998 – The MAC reviewed the Applicant's case and denied his request for reinstatement of his "G" licence not because of the history of noncompliance but because a more up to date report to confirm a longer period of stability was required.

August 7, 1998 – Dr. M.S. (neurologist) complied with the MTO's need for further detail regarding the seizure of January of 1998. She reported that an MRI scan was clear and the neurological examination was normal and that in the previous years whenever a seizure occurred it was secondary to failure to take medication, and this was prompted by lack of sufficient funds.

September 1, 1998 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that he would remain suspended.

The Applicant initiated a Notice of Appeal to the Licence Suspension Appeal Board on September 10th, 1998. He quoted an MTO letter indicating that his driver's licence will be reinstated when he files a satisfactory Medical Report. The Applicant stated that his doctor had since sent two letters to the MTO indicating the control of the seizures and his compliance regarding medication.

September 21, 1998 – Ms. E.W., a driver review co-ordinator, wrote to the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles describing her review of the medical file of the Applicant whose licence was then currently suspended. In her letter she noted that additional information had been received stating that the Applicant had been seizure free for eight months and that he was compliant with medication and had responded well to it. It was noted in her letter that unfortunately this document had not been seen by the MAC and the Applicant's driving privilege remained under suspension. Ms. E.W.'s final paragraph stated that on reviewing the Applicant's file,

> Given the fact that he has been seizure free for almost ten months and is monitored regularly by his physician (last visit September 1998, next visit January 1999), it is reasonable and in accordance with CMA Guidelines to reinstate with a follow up report confirming no further seizures and compliance with prescribed medication.

On the same date Ms. E.W. wrote to the Applicant stating that his Medical Report had been approved for a class "G" licence.

January 11, 1999 – Dr. M.S. (neurologist) wrote to the MTO regarding the Applicant and stated that he continues to have no further seizures and he is compliant with his medications. Blood levels of his anticonvulsant were in the therapeutic range.

September 17, 2002 – A Medical Report was filed by Dr. I.B. with the MTO regarding the Applicant's request for a change of class waiver. This report noted that the Applicant's first seizure occurred more than ten years before and the last seizure was approximately eight years ago (in other words 1994).

October 9, 2002 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant that the report indicated that he did not meet the legislated medical standards for a class "A" licence, but a waiver could be requested.

February 4, 2003 – A Medical Waiver Certificate signed by Dr. B.B. was filed with the MTO, with a diagnosis of seizure disorder. This form requested that it would be needed because of the Applicant's medication.

On February 5, 2003, Dr. B.B. wrote to the MTO with an enclosed copy of his consultation letter done on the Applicant in October of 2002. Dr. B.B. noted that the Applicant had had no seizures in ten years. The spells which he did have were classified apparently as petit mal. He was taking his anticonvulsant three times a day and was considered seizure free for a decade. He felt that the Applicant was medically fit for an upgrade. An EEG on November 12th, 2002 was considered within normal limits as was an MRI scan of his head on January 23rd, 2003.

April 4, 2003 – The MAC granted a waiver to class "A" with an annual neurologist's assessment to start in February 2004.

On April 16th, 2003, the application for a Waiver of the Medical Standards was approved by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

All remained serene and on May 10th, 2006, the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that his file showed there was no significant change or deterioration in his health and therefore follow up medical reports would not be necessary. He would be required to file a Medical Report Form in the regular five years cycle, a requirement for all drivers holding a controlled class of licence. His next report was due on September 17th, 2007.

Again all was well until January 4th, 2009, when a Medical Condition Report was sent to the MTO signed by Dr. R.K. ticking off the category of seizure(s) – cerebral, commenting that there had been a blackout with no warning. He also noted that the Applicant was taking an anticonvulsant for epilepsy and the blood levels were in the therapeutic range. The doctor advised the Applicant of his satisfactory blood level but also advised him not to drive.

The next entry in the MTO's file is dated February 2, 2010, consisting of a letter to the MTO regarding the Applicant and signed by Dr. M.A. (neurologist). He stated that the Applicant was seen in his clinic for seizures. The Applicant denied reporting a clouding of consciousness to his family physician which had prompted Dr. B.K.'s letter to the MTO and the referral to this neurologist's clinic. The neurologist went on to say there was no other supportive documentation confirming either an ictal or post-ictal state (i.e. emergency was not involved and he was not seen in the emergency room). His neurological exam, previous EEG and cerebral MRI had all been normal. He said that he could neither confirm nor refute the existence of an ictal event in January 2010. He remained on Tegretol 200mg by mouth three times day, (anticonvulsant).

February 11, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating they had decided to suspend his driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

This letter went on to state that they could reconsider his case upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the MTO, including an up to date detailed report from a physician familiar with the medical history regarding his reported blackouts/seizure. The report must include a narrative account of this event and any previous syncope history. The results of all cardiological and neurological investigations (i.e.: ECG, EEG, Holter Monitor), must be included. The report would also indicate that the cause has been determined and successfully treated.

This summary completes a review of the Applicant's past medical period regarding his seizure disorder. In essence he is a known epileptic whose condition is well controlled, provided he is compliant regarding the use of his anticonvulsants. There have been occasions when he omitted his medication (to a fair extent due to financial difficulty but occasionally due to forgetfulness).

The emphasis at this hearing today was on the events resulting from current reports from Dr. R.K. and from Dr. A. (neurologist). As a result of these documents sent to the MTO, the Applicant's class "A" privilege has been downgraded to "G".

To maintain the correct chronology of Mr. Biel's presentation, reference is made to a letter by Dr. R.K. addressed to the MTO on November 11, 2010. The letter was sent to Mr. Biel regarding the Applicant and is quoted in its entirety as follows:

> I have read the letter from the Applicant dated October 20, 2010 (the Tribunal does not have a copy of this letter). I will recount the facts of his condition as outlined in my clinical notes dated December 29, 2009.
> During the course of this visit he reported to me that he had two episodes in the last 12 months where he said he had something that appeared to be a blackout while he was in front of his computer. He denies any symptoms before these events that would be indicative of a more benign diagnosis. He was not able to offer any explanation to suggest a cause other than possible seizure activity. Given his past history of epilepsy I was very concerned that we were looking at epilepsy that was not being controlled by his medication. Obviously, it was my legal obligation to inform the Ministry of Transportation that I had information regarding his ability to drive. However, I was also concerned that he could come to some significant harm if he were to have a seizure in a dangerous environment. When I informed him of my legal obligation to contact the Ministry of Transportation, he became quite upset about this development. I informed him that I understood his reaction, but I really had no other choice. Of note, at this time in the conversation he still was not forthcoming with any alternative explanations for his two events. In fact, I held off the notification to the Ministry until I received the final report on his various blood tests and in particular, his Tegretol level which was normal. On the basis of these legitimate concerns, I referred him to Dr. M. A. a neurologist, to further investigate the nature of these events. I recognized the impact on the Applicant and was able to arrange an urgent consultation for February 2, 2010 whereas a normal consultation would have been in May or June of that year.
> I received a phone call from Dr. M.A. on the day of the Applicant's consultation because of a rather bizarre event. He accounted to me that the Applicant completely denied having any blackout spells whatsoever. I confirmed that I had concerns that there was some sort of event that resulted in a loss of consciousness. In his subsequent consultation letter to me, Dr. M.A. makes the following statement which I have quoted precisely.
> I found this account of his interaction with you not entirely believable. He denies having any clouding of consciousness. He denies having any symptomatology that resembles a seizure.

Later on in the letter, Dr. M.A. confirms the legal complications of all physicians to pass on concerning information. He also informed the Applicant that such information is not protected by the conventional rules of confidentiality in a doctor/patient relationship.

> If you wish, I can send on a copy of this letter provided I receive a release of information form provided from Mr. Smith authorizing the release of this information.
> On the visit of August 26, 2010, the Applicant came to my office requesting that I send a letter to the MTO stating that he was fit to drive. I informed him that this was beyond my level of expertise given the potentially serious nature of the problem. Later in that visit, an unpleasant interaction ensued during which it became evident that we had several serious differences of opinion. Throughout this prolonged conversation, the Applicant was not forthcoming with any new or different information that might provide an alternative explanation for his events. The > office visit did not conclude amicably.

> Subsequent to the events of August 26, 2010, I decided that there had been a serious breech of the doctor/patient relationship. I considered this to be unfixable and I terminated our doctor/patient relationship. This was confirmed by a registered letter which he declined to pick up as well as a brief telephone conversation.

The substance of this letter is Exhibit #3.

The Respondent then directed us to a letter by Dr. M.A. dated April 27th, 2010 stating that the Applicant had been seen in his clinic for seizures. Previously he had been seen there on February 2, 2010 and a note was sent to the MTO. He had no further seizures and he remained on his anticonvulsant. An EEG was obtained and the results are included (unremarkable). A sleep deprived EEG was to be ordered.

> From a neurological perspective he remains stable from his ictal event on January 2010. I will be seeing him again after his sleep deprived EEG.

(The Tribunal notes that the event in January 2010 was not clearly identified as ictal). The EEG report described the sleep EEG as "significant depth of sleep not reached".

May 18, 2010 – The MTO requested a further assessment from Dr. M.A. He responded on June 22nd, 2010. He states that he had seen the Applicant again. He had had no further seizures and remained on his anticonvulsant. In the sleep deprived EEG there was noted an area of focal dysrhythmia but no epileptiform discharges and no sharp waves were reported. From a neurological perspective he remains stable from his event in January 2010.

August 17, 2010 – The MAC reviewed the Applicant's status and recommended reinstatement for his driving privilege with a downgrade to "G". Their reasons stated that the driver no longer meets the requirements for a commercial licence nor the waiver criteria as he had a seizure in January 2010 in spite of anticonvulsive treatment. They stated that he must establish a seizure free period on or off medication for five years to regain his "A" status.

August 17, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his medical report has been approved for a class "G" licence. They stated that they could reconsider his case upon receipt of an up to date report confirming a five year seizure free period on or off medication.

August 26, 2010 – Dr. R.K. wrote to the MTO to say that the Applicant had requested that the doctor send a letter indicating his fitness to drive. The doctor stated that he had a progress report from the Applicant's neurologist Dr. M.A. dated June 22nd, 2010 indicating that he has faxed a third letter to the MTO at which time he speaks to the Applicant's neurological stability for driving. The doctor deferred to Dr. M.A.'s judgment in that regard. He stated that he did not have any information subsequent to that visit that might indicate seizure activity. The doctor said that he was not aware of any non-seizure problems that might indicate an unsuitability to drive.

September 21, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that they would need an assessment from a neurologist confirming that he had remained seizure free for a period of five years on or off medication.

Mr. Biel then entered the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers document with the emphases on Seizures – (6.3.1) epilepsy. He pointed out that this document states that

> If the individual has been seizure free on or off medication for five years, he/she may be considered for any class of licence.

Mr. Biel's final presentation was a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE

The Applicant explained that he had gone to Dr. B.K. on his own volition as he and his father had pondered the possibility that exposure to TV or computer screens could be an initiating factor in seizures. The possibility existed also that he might require a different anticonvulsant. He wanted Dr. B.K.'s opinion and also stated that he understood Dr. B.K.'s legal responsibility regarding reports to the MTO. He said that this was only applicable if he had had a seizure and indicated to the Tribunal that Dr. B.K. made an assumption of something for which there was no evidence (the seizure). The Applicant quoted Dr. B.K.'s question about having had a seizure and he explained to Dr. B.K. that he had no seizure and simply wanted an opinion and said that his impression was that Dr. B.K. did not believe him. Therefore the doctor erred to be on the cautious side in reporting to the MTO regarding this seizure where in fact there was no evidence, history, or proof of such an event.

The Applicant continued to state that he went to see Dr. M.A. when referred by Dr. B.K. He said that Dr. M.A. asked if there had been a seizure and the Applicant explained that this was not true. He stated that Dr. B.K. misunderstood what had happened and the Applicant could not understand why he had been referred to a neurologist. The Applicant described his first EEG on April 27th, 2010 showing no abnormalities and the sleep deprived EEG later on showed no sign of seizure activity. He reiterated that this comment about an ictal event on January 10th, 2010 was not about a seizure and the report is an error.

The Applicant stated to the Respondent there was no evidence from Dr. B.K. that he had had a seizure and that he is being described as guilty without any proof. The Applicant said that he was extremely upset about what Dr. B.K. had done taking away his livelihood. He had simply gone to the doctor for an opinion about possible causes of the events with the loss of his "A" class licence.

MR. BIEL'S QUESTIONS

He ascertained from the Applicant that he got his class "A" qualification in the "early 2000s". Questioning disclosed from the Applicant there had been no seizures. He asked if he got his class "A" licence, then what was the reason for him conceding, if Dr. B.K. was wrong. The Applicant thought he had no choice and that it was best to tell his employer in an attempt to do the "right thing". The Respondent also ascertained that the Applicant denies ever telling Dr. B.K. of a seizure or a spell.

THE RESPONDENT'S CLOSING REMARKS

He quoted the pertinent sections of the Highway Traffic Act stating that a driver must not have any nervous disorder that could interfere with his ability to drive and to hold a class "A" designation. He went on to point out that the Applicant has epilepsy, chronic and recurrent although controlled intermittently. He conceded that Dr. B.K. might have misunderstood the Applicant's reason for visiting him on December 29th, 2009 but we still have the question of why Dr. B.K. decided that the Applicant had had not one but two events in the previous 12 months. He pointed out that the Registrar must act according to the CCMTA regulations on receipt of such information from Dr. B.K. He went on to stress the greater need for stringent rules regarding an "A" designation. He observed that Dr. B.K. is standing by his diagnosis and is not wavering. The doctor also requested laboratory results regarding anticonvulsants and a consultation with Dr. M.A. He again drew attention to Dr. M.A.'s comment to Dr. B.K. that he didn't find the Applicant entirely believable. Mr. Biel said the matter comes down to the credibility of either Dr. M.A. or the Applicant and notes that neither Dr. M.A. nor Dr. B.K. has backed down. Mr. Biel said that Dr. B.K. would have concluded there had been two events in 2009 if the Applicant had told him so and therefore the Applicant can only deny this. On questioning from the Tribunal it was determined that the last event prior to these supposed events in 2009 had occurred more than five years previously.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

> 14. An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

17. (1) Qualifications required by an applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence are that the applicant or holder,

(a) has no history or clinical diagnosis of diabetes that requires insulin for control;

(b) is not taking any drug that could, in the dosage prescribed or in the dosage recommended by the manufacturer, impair his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

(c) has no established medical history of myocardial infarction, angina pectoris, coronary insufficiency or thrombosis;

(d) has no established medical history of heart disease including arrhythmia or of respiratory dysfunction likely to interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(e) is not suffering from an aortic aneurysm, whether resected or not;

(f) is not suffering from hypertension accompanied by postural hypotension resulting in giddiness when under treatment;

(g) has no established medical history of loss of consciousness or awareness due to a chronic or recurring condition;

(h) has no established medical history of a disorder of the musculoskeletal or nervous system that may interfere with the safe driving of a motor vehicle of the applicable class;

(i) has no established medical history of an intractable psychotic or psychoneurotic disorder, having particular regard for sustained hostile, aggressive, paranoid, suicidal or other destructive tendencies or depression unless it is medically determined that the condition from which the person has suffered is corrected or controlled;

(j) has a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(k) has a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence who fails to meet the qualifications referred to in clauses (1) (a) to (i) may, despite the failure, qualify for the class of licence applied for or held if he or she demonstrates the ability to drive a motor vehicle in the applicable class as safely as any person who meets those qualifications.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class D driver's licence who fails to meet the qualification referred to in clause (1) (c) may, despite the failure, qualify for that class of licence if it is medically determined that he or she has made a full recovery and there is no established history of a second occurrence of myocardial infarction, thrombosis or recurring angina pectoris.

(4) An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32 (5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver’s licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) The Minister may require an applicant for a driver’s licence or an endorsement or a person who holds a driver’s licence to submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations at the times and places required by the Minister and to meet other prescribed requirements, and the Minister may,
(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver’s licence,
(i) impose the conditions authorized by the regulations, remove any conditions or endorsements or change the class or classes of driver’s licence held by the person, in accordance with the results of the examinations and other prescribed requirements, or

Section 50 states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant's seizure related illness has been thoroughly documented both by his doctors and by the events that have been dealt with by the MTO regarding his driver's licence since April 5th, 1993, when the Applicant had a tonic/clonic seizure. The Applicant maintained that that was a fainting episode while the doctor at that time pointed out that his last ictal event had been in 1991, and felt that he should be allowed to drive. The Applicant's driving privilege was reinstated in August of 1993.

On November 7th, 1996, another seizure was noted to be due to the cessation of his medication because of lack of funding to purchase the proper drugs. His licence was suspended.

In February of 1997, the Applicant's licence was restored. But unfortunately on January 27th, 1998, another seizure occurred after the Applicant had stopped his medication because of lack of funding. On March 12th, 1998, again his licence was suspended.

In early September of 1998, it is noted that the Applicant had been seizure free for almost ten months and his driving privilege was restored.

All was well until September of 2002, when the Applicant was denied an upgrade to an "A" class licence. In February 2003, the Applicant was noted to have "spells" and these were attributed to petit mal events. In fact on April 14th, 2003, the Applicant succeeded in his request for a Medical Waiver in order to obtain an "A" class driving licence.

Things went so well that by May of 2006, the Applicant was informed by the MTO that no further follow up medical reports were needed other than the standard routine medical check up every five years required of all the holders of the "A" designation.

Problems for the Applicant returned when he was seen by Dr. B.K. on December 29th, 2009 with an incorrect recording of the date. In fact he reported this event on January 4th, 2010. The event was described as a blackout with no warning.
As a result of this, in early February 2010, the Applicant was seen in consultation by Dr. M.A. who reported that the Applicant denied such an event. Dr. M.A. could find no evidence to indicate one way or the other whether an ictal event had occurred.

On February 11th, 2010, the MTO with a suspension downgraded the Applicant's "A" status to class "G".

On April 27th, 2010 and June 22nd, 2010, Dr. M.A. reported that there had been no further problems for the Applicant.

On August 17th, 2010, the MAC of the MTO recommended the downgrade to continue based on the fact that there was a probable seizure on December 29th, 2009. Dr. B.K.'s last report on August 26th, 2010 deferred to Dr. M.A.'s comments.

Mr. Biel's new information presented to the Tribunal today consisted of a letter to the MTO dated November 11th, 2010 from Dr. B.K. In this message he refers to a letter from the Applicant to the Tribunal dated October 20th, 2010 and of this I can find no record here. He stated that the Applicant told him he had suffered two episodes in the last 12 months and had something to suggest a blackout while he was in front of his computer. The doctor was quite concerned with the past record of epilepsy. He stressed his legal obligation to inform the MTO. He informed the Applicant of his obligation and the doctor/patient relationship deteriorated rapidly.

Dr. B.K. then went on to describe a phone call from Dr. M.A. who had again seen the Applicant on very short notice. Dr. M.A. said that the Applicant denied any blackouts whatsoever. Dr. B.K.'s letter went on to quote Dr. M.A.

> I found this account of his interaction with you (Dr. B.K.) not entirely believable. He denies having any symptomatology that resembles a seizure.

Certain facts emerge from this very convoluted story.

The Tribunal takes note of the fact that despite the background diagnosis of epilepsy, the Applicant has repeatedly been able to regain at least a class "G" licence after complying with the MTO's requests. He has even been able to achieve a class "A" status by winning a Medical Waiver when his seizure problems disappeared for several years. Seizures occurred on two or more occasions when the Applicant, because of financial constraints, was unable to buy the medication and his doctors have been very helpful as has Abbott Laboratories, making it a certainty that the Applicant always has medication. The type of medication has been upgraded through the years. An exception has been made on one occasion by the MTO to enable the Applicant to regain his "G" licence after a ten month interval.

Were it not for a comment by Dr. B.K. of two events in his mention of blackouts on December 29th 2009, the Applicant would be eligible to have his "A" classification reinstated.

There is insufficient evidence here today that these events referred to in 2009 by Dr. B.K. were ictal (epileptiform) in nature.

If one takes into account the fact that the Applicant is allowed to drive with a "G" licence at present and the fact that the Tribunal has not had clear evidence presented to show that there have been seizures within the last several years, on the balance of probabilities the Applicant should have his class "A" privilege restored.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Respondent's decision, effective August 17, 2010, to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Minister of Transportation be set aside.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister of Transportation (the "Minister") pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Minister's Case

A Medical Report filed in support of an application for a Class 'A' licence was completed by Dr. S.P., a family physician on February 10, 2005.

The doctor reported:

> Myocardial infarction in 1991; has not had any recurrence of infarction or angina. He has quit smoking in 1991, takes cardio-protective medication and has favourably changed his lifestyle. A cardiological evaluation by cardiologist in 2003 was entirely reassuring.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on February 16, 2005 that he may apply for a waiver of medical standards under section 340/94 of the Act.

A cardiologist, Dr. D.Y. completed a waiver certifying fitness to drive a large truck, tractor trailer unit, bus or ambulance, on February 24, 2005.

In a cover letter Dr. D.Y. wrote:

> There was a past history of an inferior MI 13 years ago-possibly related to coronary spasm with normal angiography. Transient episodic supraventricular tachycardia on exercise ECG.
> Today I would recommend he be considered for a Class AZ licence.

The Medical Advisory Committee on April 21, 2005 recommended a waiver with an annual assessment from the attending physician.

On June 15, 2006 the Registrar requested an annual assessment and a signed waiver certificate.

Dr. S.P. issued a waiver certificate. There was no reported clinical change.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on October 12, 2006 that the next report would be required in October 2007.

On January 31, 2009 the Registrar informed the Applicant that the annual assessment must include a detailed assessment by his cardiologist, that he must meet NYHA standard of an ejection fraction equal or greater than 35%.

A Medical Condition Report was completed on April 7, 2009 by a hospital physician, Dr. S. pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

> Heart disease with Pre-syncope/Syncope/Arrhthmia.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on April 30, 2009 that it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date assessment from a cardiologist referencing his reported heart disease, with results of all investigations initiated, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment and current status.

He was advised that he may request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

A cardiologist at a teaching hospital, Dr. A, reported to the Registrar on September 9, 2009:

> <Applicant> has a normally functioning implantable defibrillator. This was implanted for management of ventricular tachycardia. On September 8, 2009, I saw him in the Cardiac Rhythm Device Clinic at the <teaching hospital>. He had an appropriate shock for ventricular arrhythmia. This was successful. I have indicated to him that he should not be driving his vehicle until he heard from you.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on November 5, 2009 that his licence would remain under suspension. A detailed up-to-date assessment was required, confirming that the defibrillator has delivered no shock or anti-tachycardia pacing therapy and that a period of at least six months has elapsed since the last episode of ventricular tachycardia or ventricular fibrillation.

On March 15, 2010 the resident for Dr. A. reported that a new evaluation at the clinic in March 2010 showed that he did not have any further episodes of arrhythmia in the past six months. He recommended that he should be allowed to drive.

M.A.C. recommended reinstatement to Class 'G'. Consideration to reinstate to Class 'AC' would require that the annual risk of incapacitation in less than 1% and that there have been no further therapies delivered.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on May 6, 2010 that a report from his cardiologist must include the date of implantation of the ICD, and no loss of consciousness or loss of awareness at time of shock delivered in September 2009. The report must also indicate the annual risk of incapacitation is less than 1%, and no further therapies have been delivered.

The cardiologist, Dr. D.Y. wrote on May 31, 2010:

> <Applicant> has been well in the last nine months without further shocks from the ICD since beginning Amiodarone. I would suggest he has less than a 1% annual risk of incapacitation although a five-year cardiovascular risk is clearly elevated.
> Medications: ASA 81 mg, Ramipril 10 mg, Lipitor 40 mg, Bisoprolol 10 mg, Amiodarone 200 mg.
> A MUGA nuclear medicine scan on June 3, 2010 reported the left ventricular ejection fraction was 47%, representing a slight decrease compared with the previous study in September 2009 when the EF was 52%.
> The ICD was being followed by Dr. S. at the <teaching hospital>.

M.A.C. requested a report from Dr. S. that there was no loss of consciousness or awareness in September 2009, no additional events requiring device therapy and an opinion regarding suitability to operate a commercial vehicle.

> Generally speaking individuals with an ICD are not eligible to hold a commercial licence (CCMTA 3.5.8).

Dr. S., Director of the Arrhythmia Service at <teaching hospital> wrote to the Registrar on October 5, 2010:

> The "1%" stipulation in the CMA, CCS and CCMTA guidelines was added in recently in order to address the small group of ICD patients without structural heart disease whose risk was sufficiently low to allow safe operation of a commercial vehicle. These conditions might include LQTS, Brugada syndrome, and other inherited channelopathies where an ICD is implanted for primary prevention.
> As <Applicant> is a secondary prevention patient with structural heart disease, this "exception clause" ordinarily would not apply. He has an ischemic cardiomyopathy. However, having said that, his EF is in the high 40s/ low 50s by MUGA – this is unusual for an ischemic cardiomyopathy secondary prevention patient and probably means that his prognosis is far better than the usual secondary prevention patient for whom these guidelines were designed.
> I would suggest that perhaps this case be elevated to your MAC for further consideration. The case for his ineligibility is not as straightforward as it might seem.

M.A.C. recommendation on December 13, 2010:

> Request for commercial licence is denied. Given the permanent nature of driver's cardiac status, no reconsideration can be offered.

Reasons:

> Late post MI with documented VT treated with ICD (secondary prophylaxis) and amiodarone. Of note, in his October, 2010 report, Dr. S., driver's treating electrophysiologist, and Chair of the CCS Guidelines, notes that the "1% consideration" was not intended to apply to secondary prophylaxis patients-where the typical event rates are -30% over 5 years of follow-up.
> This consideration was intended to apply to patients with primary prophylaxis with a reduced ejection fraction without previous VT/VF events, where the overall event rates are -10%, per -5 years, and where a subgroup of patients might demonstrate sufficient improvement in their condition such that their individual risk might be estimated to be less than or equal to 1% per year.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on December 14, 2010 that the medical advisors had recommended that at the present time, he should not hold a licence higher than Class 'GM', due to the permanent nature of his cardiac status likely to interfere with the safe driving of a commercial vehicle.

In Reasons for Appeal the Applicant stated that he had one episode of arrhythmia in 1997. He went to the local hospital, was "paddled" and released. He had an episode in 2004 and went to the hospital where his heart rate was stopped before the "paddling" procedure could be completed

Under examination he informed the Tribunal that he had a heart attack in 1991 when he was still smoking. He was defibrillated at the local hospital E.R. Five years later when he felt faint he required defibrillation again. In 2009 while driving he had a near fainting episode and he stopped his vehicle and was taken by ambulance to hospital. He was scheduled three times for an implanted defibrillator but he asked for a second opinion. He was then seen by Dr. S. who advised the ICD at the <teaching hospital> and the device was implanted in late July 2009.

Following the implanted device he had an episode of shock while working on an antique car and was assessed at the <teaching hospital>. He was started on Amiodarone sometime in October or November, 2009.

The M.A.C. report of December was not seen by Dr. S. and therefore the Tribunal was adjourned to February 4, 2011 to allow the Applicant an opportunity to examine the decisions by M.A.C. and the Minister.

The hearing continued by teleconference.

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he had discussed the decision by M.A.C. with Dr. S. who informed him that he had nothing further to add to his letter of October 5, 2010.

Under cross examination he stated that he did not lose consciousness before the ICD was implanted or when he had a shock episode in September 2010.

He attends the ICD Clinic every six months. His family physician, Dr. S. has retired and he does not have a family physician now.

He has not been employed since his licence was suspended.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be varied, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

17. An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and

(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32 (5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) The Minister may require an applicant for a driver's licence or an endorsement or a person who holds a driver's licence to submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations at the times and places required by the Minister and to meet other prescribed requirements, and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose the conditions authorized by the regulations, remove any conditions or endorsements or change the class or classes of driver's licence held by the person, in accordance with the results of the examinations and other prescribed requirements, or

Section 50 states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. The history of myocardial infarction in 1991 which was reported on the application for upgrade, followed by a waiver under section 340/94.

2. The period of stability ended in April 2008 when the Applicant's physician filed a Medical Condition Report under section 203 of the Act, of heart disease with near syncope due to ventricular fibrillation. The Registrar was obliged to issue a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1).

3. Following the implanted defibrillator device (ICD) procedure he was advised not to drive ant type of vehicle until a period of stability without shock had elapsed.

4. The Medical Advisory Committee recommended reinstatement to Class 'G' in May 2010 following a six month period without shock.

5. Because the ICD was implanted for secondary prophylaxis, i.e. due to past history of myocardial infarction, the risk of a serious cardiac event was elevated to an unacceptable level for a commercial driver. Therefore the Registrar was justified in refusing the application for a commercial licence.

6. CCMTA Standard 3.5.9 states that a patient with ICD is ineligible for a Class 1,2,3,4 licence. May be considered for a Class 5 licence if:

    - The device was inserted as a prophylactic measure in a person without a documented episode of VT or VF and there are no other disqualifying conditions.

    - The device has delivered no shock or anti-tachycardia pacing therapy, and at least six months has elapsed since the last episode of VT or VF, or

    - Criteria for satisfactory control are met.

The Applicant relies on the advice given by the Director of the Arrhthymia Service at <the teaching hospital>, who is also a member of the Medical Advisory Committee, that "his ejection fraction is higher than expected for his condition and that his prognosis is far better than the usual secondary prevention patient". His risk of a serious cardiac event is therefore lower than expected.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege for Class 'G' and Class 'AC', under section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report of arrhythmia and near syncope.

2. The Registrar was justified in reinstating the Applicant's driving privilege for Class 'G" following successful control of the Applicant's cardiac arrhythmia by an implanted defibrillation device (ICD).

3. The Minister was justified in refusing the Applicant's request for upgrade to Class 'AC' upon advice by the Medical Advisory Committee Review of the case on December 13, 2010. This indicated that that the risk of a serious cardiac event in a commercial driver is increased in the case of ICD for secondary prevention.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated May 6, 2010 of the Minister ("Respondent") to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to Section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Respondent be confirmed.

TO CHANGE THE CLASS OR CLASSES OF MOTOR VEHICLE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE LICENCE WAS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST, MD, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent Representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 24, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Minister (the "Respondent") pursuant to 32(5)(b)(i) of the Highway Traffic Act R.S.O. 1990 c.H.8. (the "Act").

FACTS

Evidence for the Respondent

Mr. Biel for the record stated that the Applicant now has a class G driver's licence as of March 21, 2011 downgraded from F commercial classification. Mr. Biel said that the problem now is the downgrade from the commercial classification, under s. 32(5) of the Act.

On October 2, 2010, the Medical Condition Report filed by Dr. K.J. indicated that the Applicant had suffered a blackout or loss of consciousness or awareness and the possibility that sleep apnea might be a factor. His written statement described how the patient drove off the road while driving an ambulance with a patient on board. He was described as showing dizziness/confusional state with the cause to be determined.

On October 26, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant. In this report they had received they noted a possible condition impairing his ability to drive safely. The Ministry went on to explain that they could reconsider his case if a detailed report was provided to them including the results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, clearance status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns. Following this, the Applicant filed a report to the Ministry explaining what happened on October 22, 2010. He said that he was including all the test results that his personal physician had recommended including an EEG, Holter monitor, blood work, CT, x-rays, hospital reports and specialist reports. He also noted the inclusion of a letter from his partner at work who was the only witness to what actually occurred that morning. He explained that he is taking diabetes education classes and dietician classes at a local diabetic clinic in a regional hospital. He also noted that he was monitoring his blood pressure and blood sugars daily. He was taking all medications as prescribed and there have been no further symptoms since that unfortunate day in October.

The Applicant went on in his letter with reference to his diet, weight loss and reduction of medication noted in the clinical notes which he felt were misrepresented. He said that after losing fifty pounds under the guidance of Dr. J.B. by exercise and strict reduction of calories, his medications were slowly weaned down to one Metformin tablet daily. He was maintaining the weight loss and recording relatively normal blood sugars and normal blood pressures. He had no explanations for the events of October 22, 2010.

The letter from his colleague from the ambulance dated November 20, 2010 is quite detailed. This Paramedic, Ms. M.E. says that she has been a partner of the Applicant for over six years and has never been concerned about his driving. When they went to work on the morning of October 22, 2010 he told her that he was tired and that he had not been sleeping well for two days. When they were summoned to pick up a patient Ms. M.E. had to recite directions to the Applicant at the wheel who seemed to be confused in that he was signalling to turn at incorrect streets on several occasions. When they picked up the patient the Applicant was driving and she felt the ambulance hit a curb and again felt another bump and she noticed that they were driving on the median with two wheels above the curb. She described yelling at the Applicant to stop the vehicle and he simply looked at her and said “ok”. She described how he drove erratically up on the median and back into different lanes and swerving between both. She ordered him to stop again and he simply looked at her and said “ok” and he did stop. At this time another ambulance was called.

Ms. E. went on to state that it was quite clear that the Applicant was confused that morning as these events were very much out of character. The confusion became even more evident when he sat in the triage chair at the local hospital.

Ms. M.E. stated that the patient was never unconscious, nor was he demonstrating any signs of seizure activity. He was never in a post-ictal phase. Ms. M.E. was present at the first doctor interview and felt that she had to help the Applicant to correct his thinking.

Mr. Biel's next entry was the consultation note by Dr. K.J., a specialist in internal medicine. Dr. K.J.'s note describes how the Applicant had a dizzy spell causing the ambulance to go off the road for a few minutes and then return to the road. He did not lose consciousness but he was drowsy. He did not have any witnessed seizure activity. There was no tongue biting or urinary incontinence. He denied chest pain, shortness of breath or sweating. His blood pressure was elevated when he came to the hospital and the Applicant said that he only sleeps two to three hours a night. The doctor also reported that he suffered from Type II diabetes, hypertension and mild sleep apnea. There was no documented history of coronary artery disease and his cardiac investigations did not reveal any objective features for underlying ischemic heart disease. He did note that the Applicant's cardiologist was considering an angiogram later. The Applicant was described as a non smoker and occasional drinker. It was noted that he had a history of non compliance with medication. He stated that he had stopped taking Ramipril that he had been taking for hypertension in the past. It was noted that he was taking one Metformin tablet per day which controlled his Type II diabetes.

Examination showed that his blood pressure on admission was 160/102 but it came down to 139/85. Temperature was normal and the heart rate was 80 beats per minute and oxygen saturation was 100%. The remainder of the physical examination was non contributory.

A review of the laboratory work up of that date showed the blood glucose was 18.6 mmols/litre. The remainder of the blood work was unremarkable.

Dr. K.J.'s impression was that this gentleman had suffered an episode of confusion and dizzy spell while driving the ambulance. He found a history of mild sleep apnea and he felt that this condition could be due to tiredness due to lack of sleep.

The Applicant was admitted for observation and monitoring and the consultations. He was restarted on his medications including Metformin, Ramipril and ASA. He advised the Applicant to take his medication to control his blood sugar and blood pressure in order to prevent complications in the future. Plans were made for a sleep study follow up with a sleep specialist.

On October 22, 2010 the Applicant was seen in consultation by Dr. B.M. a cardiologist.

His assessment disclosed that the Applicant had suffered an episode of dizziness and confusion but there were no cardiac factors involved. On October 25, 2010 the Applicant was seen by Dr. J.K. His interview stated that the Applicant had experienced a dizzy spell while driving the ambulance but there was no seizure activity, and no chest pain with the comment that in the past year the Applicant had been seeing a physician for weight loss and in fact has not seen this doctor for several months. Dr. J.K. stated that the Applicant had taken himself off medication on the advice of this physician and he had reduced his Metformin and was cutting off his Ramipril. The Applicant's family doctor had advised him to remain on his medication but it was noted that the Applicant did not. He quotes the Applicant as saying that he was monitoring his own blood sugars and they were well controlled.

It is pertinent in this report that despite this, the Applicant was suffering from polydipsia, (taking large amounts of fluids) and polyuria (excessive amount of urination) and polyphagia (excessive eating). Over the last several weeks he has had no further dizzy episodes.

Physical examination disclosed nothing of consequence.

An EKG on telemetry revealed normal sinus rhythm. This doctor's assessment was that this 45 year-old diabetic gentleman shows symptoms of poorly controlled blood sugars, i.e. polyphagia, polydipsia and polyuria. He had strongly advised the Applicant to continue on his medication and stressed the need to monitor his blood sugar. There had been some question about problems of compliance in terms of his use of medication. He was advised to increase his Metformin to 1 gram twice a day and ½ gram at noon. He was also given Amiodipine to more satisfactorily control his blood pressure.

On October 26, 2010, a chart summary was reported by Dr. J.K. Herein he described again that for several weeks the patient had been showing increasing polydipsia, polyuria and polyphagia (all indicative for poorly controlled diabetes). He noted that the Applicant had taken himself off much of his diabetic treatment as well as hypertensive medication. The Applicant's blood pressure was poorly controlled as were his blood sugars. He noted that his Metformin was increased to one gram twice a day as well as Diamicron MR which was added to the regime, which was a better medication for his blood pressure.

On December 9, 2010, F.K. wrote to the Applicant's family doctor (Dr. M.P.) describing the Applicant as suffering from Type II diabetes for about ten years. He noted that the Applicant had recently been in hospital for hypertension and hyperglycaemia. He expressed surprise that, although the Applicant was slightly confused at that time from severe hypertension and a moderate degree of hyperglycaemia, that his licence had been downgraded or suspended. He drew attention to the fact that the Applicant had reduced most of his medications but was taking 500 mg of Metformin. Since then, having been put back on full medications he had done very well. Minor changes were made in his hypertensive medication and he expected that the Applicant would do well. On January 7, 2011, the Applicants' family doctor, (Dr. M.P.) wrote a note to the Ministry indicating that his diabetes is now under much better control and could see no reason why his licence should be restricted. This report was filed as well as a Medical Condition Report on the same date.

Mr. Biel then entered reports pertaining to further investigations of the Applicant's medical status. This included a normal EEG and normal cardiac investigations. His Holter monitor was unremarkable as was the CT of the head. Noteworthy was that the patient's lipids were all in the low normal range and very satisfactory.

On February 3, 2011, the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating the need for an enclosed Diabetic Assessment Form to be completed by one of his doctors. He was also asked to file an assessment from a sleep disorder specialist.

The Applicant wrote to the Ministry explaining that the Diabetic Assessment form had already been completed and that a sleep disorder study was not being done because there was no history of this problem (noted on the Diabetic Assessment Form report).

However a report from a Centre for Sleep Disorders on December 13, 1996 was given today and the conclusion of that report was that there was no evidence of sleep apnea.

Mr. Biel then entered a certified copy of the Applicants' driving record and this document disclosed minor violations dating back to 2005 and only indicated that the Applicant displays a somewhat cavalier view towards driving offences.

Mr. Biel also entered the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers with emphases on metabolic diseases, 8.2-Diabetes Mellitus.

The Ministry presented this problem to their medical advisory committee on February 14, 2011. Their decision is quite detailed and is quoted as follows:

> Instructions:
> Downgrade and reinstate with a follow up report (MTO Diabetic Form) in May of 2011, completed by an endocrinologist. The report must provide: 1. A careful assessment of driver's diabetic regimen in particular the use of Diamicron; 2. An increase in A1C levels; 3. Confirmation of ongoing compliance with diabetic and hypertension treatment; 4. Clarification needed: A - Was event due to LOC (loss of consciousness)?, confusion?, dizziness?, and B – Is there a history of dizziness and confusion? If yes, require a diagnosis and recommended treatment.
> Commercial licence to be reconsidered when follow up is received.
> REASONS CLASS "G"
> Reinstated as driver now said to be compliant with diabetes and hypertension treatment. However in the context of commercial driving and given the adherent stresses associated with such a profession, remain quite concerned as no definitive reason for event has been determined. Also concerned re: The use of Diamicron known to cause hypoglycaemia and the fact that his A1C level has decreased in one month from .074 to .064 – increasing risk for a hypoglycemic event. Further it remains unclear whether there was LOC or not? Initial report and diabetic form (Dr. P. February 8/11) indicate there were yet other reports stating that the event was brought on by dizziness, confusion. In addition, unclear is there a "history of episodic dizziness and confusion" as noted in Dr. M.'s report of October 22/10 or not? If yes then require a diagnosis and what preventative treatment has been initiated.

On March 21, 2011 the Ministry again wrote to the Applicant stating that he was now approved for a Class "G" licence. They stated that he would be required to file a further MTO Diabetic Assessment Form on May 8, 2011 completed by an endocrinologist. Details of the requirements were noted. The Ministry stated that they would be pleased to reconsider the Class "F" designation when they have received this follow up report.

At the Tribunal hearing, the Applicant brought a Diabetic Assessment document filed by Dr. F.K. from a regional health care facility pertaining to the Applicant's problems. This was a fairly cursory document, hand written, and indicated that the Applicant was stable regarding his blood sugar and that his diabetes should not be an excuse to suspend the Applicants' licence. This was filed as Exhibit 4.

Evidence for the Applicant

The Applicant stressed that certain misunderstandings have appeared in the doctors' documents. He began by explaining his problems with insomnia and that there was no history of sleep apnea and this was documented today. He described the events in the ambulance on October 22, 2010 and claims to have made a wrong turn and struck the curb with two wheels. He did not consider this of much importance.

He notes that the doctors' reports describe his dizziness but he denied at the hearing that there was dizziness/confusion based on his lack of sleep. This problem was aggravated by the fact that he does shift work and has trouble making the appropriate adjustments in his sleeping patterns from shift to shift. He admitted that his blood sugar was up but did not think it was enough to cause problems. Regarding his medications, he felt that he had been compliant and has been following Dr. B.'s guidelines when his weight was dropping from 285 to 230 over a year and that he had been quite compliant in the gradual reduction of his medication. He went on to explain that Dr. F.K. is now monitoring his use of Metformin and Diamicron (a long acting agent). He also was puzzled about the May 8, 2011 dateline prescribed by the Ministry when in fact he has been on this new regime since October 26, 2010. He felt that adding three months to the period of monitoring was unreasonable. He pointed out that Dr. F.K.'s comments at the present time indicate that his diabetes is stable and there is no reason why he should not regain his commercial licence.

Mr. Biel pointed out the Dr. J. saw the Applicant and had checked off the possibilities of black out and sleep apnea. It was noted that Dr. J. had in fact ticked off the category of black out or loss of consciousness or awareness. The Tribunal notes, that there might have been an error. Mr. Biel questioned the use of the expression "tired". The Applicant explained that the doctors felt that he was suffering from a combination of tiredness with a high blood pressure and slight loss of control of his diabetes. Mr. Biel reviewed Dr. J's comments about dizziness which the Applicant denied, mild sleep apnea also denied by the Applicant and non compliance regarding his medications also denied by the Applicant.

The Tribunal noted that there was only one recorded reading of an elevated blood sugar and that was a level of 18.6 mmols with the upper normal range being about 7.5 and that was on October 22, 2010.

Mr. Biel then referred to the question of loss of consciousness explained by the Applicant as an error in medical documentation and Mr. Biel accepted that.

Mr. Biel stated that there is ample medical evidence of the Applicant suffering from poorly controlled diabetes at the time of the event in the ambulance. He stated that the Ministry requires more detailed information and this has been thoroughly outlined in the MAC's extensive report (Exhibit #3). Mr. Biel stressed that there has not been a suspension but a downgrade situation as per section 32(5) of the HTA. He also noted in Ms. M.E.'s description of the event that there was something quite serious going on with the Applicant. It was also noted that diabetics can have a commercial licence if there are no other problems. He stated that the MTO wants confirmation of the Applicant's compliance with his management and that his diabetes is well controlled. He stated that in fact he has been non-compliant. Mr. Biel also drew attention to the total absence of information from Dr. B. (the weight loss doctor) regarding the reduction of medication. Mr. Biel stressed that this was quite a serious driving mishap and that a well documented three month interval ending in May, with medical details, is quite reasonable.

The Applicant stated that his partner's report is quite accurate. He recognizes the problems of diabetes and he felt that on that date there was a combination of fatigue, an elevated blood pressure and moderately blood sugar acting in combination. He pointed out that he has now been stable for five months having readjusted his medications. He denied non compliance.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Minister to change the class or class of motor vehicles in respect of which the licence is issued in accordance with the result of the examination be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his/her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and
(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Sections 17 and 18 state:

17. An applicant for or a holder of a Class B, C, E or F driver's licence whose hearing in one ear is better than in the other must be able to perceive in the better ear, with or without a hearing aid, a forced whisper at a distance of 1.5 metres or, if an audiometer is used to test the person's hearing, must not have a loss in the better ear of more than 40 decibels at 500, 1,000 and 2,000 hertz.

18. (1) An applicant for or a holder of a Class M, M1 or M2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50, with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(2) An applicant for or a holder of a Class G, G1 or G2 driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/50 with both eyes open and examined together with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 120 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 15 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

(3) An applicant for or a holder of a Class A, B, C, D, E or F driver's licence must have,

(a) a visual acuity as measured by Snellen Rating that is not poorer than 20/30 with both eyes open and examined together and not poorer than 20/100 in the weaker eye, with or without the aid of corrective lenses; and
(b) a horizontal visual field of at least 150 continuous degrees along the horizontal meridian and at least 20 continuous degrees above and below fixation, with both eyes open and examined together.

Section 32 (5)(b)(i) states:

32. No person shall drive a motor vehicle on a highway unless the motor vehicle is within a class of motor vehicles in respect of which the person holds a driver's licence issued to him or her under this Act.

(5) The Minister may require an applicant for a driver's licence or an endorsement or a person who holds a driver's licence to submit to the examinations that are authorized by the regulations at the times and places required by the Minister and to meet other prescribed requirements, and the Minister may,

(b) in the case of a person who holds a driver's licence,

(i) impose the conditions authorized by the regulations, remove any conditions or endorsements or change the class or classes of driver's licence held by the person, in accordance with the results of the examinations and other prescribed requirements, or

Section 50 states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Certain prominent facts emerged during this hearing:

1. The letter submitted by the Applicant's partner as the only witness to the event. Ms. M.E. goes a long way to provide a detailed description of the serious medical problems at the time of this event. She describes very clearly the Applicant's poor response to her directions when he had driven the ambulance up onto the curb. He continued with reluctance or inability to take her advice.

2. The Applicant shows a cheerful disregard to various rules and regulations that we all try to follow in our daily activities.

3. This characteristic emerges again with the evidence presented here; the Applicant has been quite casual about complying with instructions given to him by a series of well trained physicians.

There is no evidence of sleep apnea and it is unlikely that hypertension would factor into the events of that day. It is a surprise to this Tribunal that only one blood sugar (18.6) was recorded to show that the Applicant's diabetes was not under control. In the narrative of Ms. M.E.'s letter it is clear this was a sick man unable to take direction. One is amazed at his statement today that this was "no big deal;" to drive the ambulance up onto the curb and probably shows a serious lack of insight. The Ministry's response to the MAC's detailed report is correct.

DECISION:

On the Application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated October 26, 2010 of the Ministry to change the class or classes of motor vehicle in respect of which the licence was issued pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(i) of the Act and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant; it is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under Section 50 (2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

5967-MED-PSYCH

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 16, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar" or the "Respondent") pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 c. H. 8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

From the file summary the Respondent's Agent explained that about 18 years ago medical reports had identified the fact that the Applicant had suffered episodes of dizziness which had been diagnosed as being due to Transient Ischemic Attacks.

The Applicant recovered and there was no suspension of his driving privilege. Provisions of these medical details today were simply for completion of the Applicant's medical background.

On the 28th of December, 2009 a Medical Report by Dr. N.J.M. was directed to the Ministry of Transportation stating that for medical reasons the doctor was of the opinion that the Applicant was unfit to drive a motor vehicle safely and, as required by law, this was to inform the Ministry of this fact. The medical condition was described as cognitive impairment. There were no other details.

On February 11th, 2010 the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles thanked the doctor for this report. On the same date, the Deputy Registrar sent a letter to the Applicant indicating it had been reported that he suffered from a medical condition which could impair his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. This report had been submitted by a doctor in compliance with Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles decided to suspend the Applicant's driving privileges for medical reasons under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The letter from the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles went on to explain that the Ministry of Transportation could reconsider the Applicant's case upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the Registrar. They asked that the Ministry of Transportation receive an up-to-date detailed assessment from a physician familiar with the Applicant's medical history, a neurologist or a physician specializing in geriatric medicine. The report was to evaluate the Applicant's cognitive functions and confirm there were no other disqualifying medical concerns. The Deputy Registrar also indicated they might require a driving evaluation of the Applicant at a Rehabilitation Centre.

The Respondent's Agent submitted a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record which indicated the suspension for medical reasons dated the 1st of February, 2010, and said that they had received no new medical information regarding the Applicant.

The Applicant's presentation did not go well. When asked his age by the Tribunal he turned to his son for confirmation of this to be 79 years. With great difficulty, the Applicant recalled that his doctor filed a Medical Report with the Ministry of Transportation, which described medical reasons that made the Applicant unfit to drive safely. There was mention of cognitive impairment in this report. (It is noted by the Tribunal that the Applicant didn't understand the meaning of this phrase). The Applicant stated he returned to see his doctor. At the time the Applicant felt he was in good health and that he was still able to drive safely.

In order to assist the Applicant with his presentation the Tribunals asked him four questions. The questions and response follow.

1. How long have you been seeing your doctor?
   A very vague and rambling answer was given by the Applicant.

2. What problems required you to see your doctor?
   "I am not certain but it might have been a check-up."
   The Applicant answered.

3. Are you still able to drive and if so how frequently and what is the locale?
   The Applicant was unable to recall the name of his home community.

4. Have you ever gotten lost or into accidents while driving?
   The Applicant responded that he had not.

The Applicant was asked about the frequency of his visits to his doctor and about his medical problems, and the Applicant was unable to give a coherent answer. He was then asked if he understood the term cognitive impairment and he admitted that he didn't understand it.

The Respondent's Cross Examination:

The Respondent's Agent explained the process of the Applicant's driver licence suspension following receipt of the Medical Condition Report from his doctor. The Agent also explained to the Applicant that to this date the Ministry has not received the Applicant's driver licence, which the Applicant is required to return as a consequence of the suspension.

The Respondent in Summary:

The Respondent's Agent stated the importance of the letter from the Applicant's family doctor. The letter indicated that the Applicant suffered from cognitive impairment. The Agent stated that, to date, the Ministry has received no further medical reports and therefore, is justified in applying this suspension as described in the Highway Traffic Act – 340/94, section 14(a).

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Receipt of the Medical Condition Report by Dr. N.M, dated the 28th of December, 2009, stated that the Applicant suffers from cognitive impairment. The Ministry was correct in suspending the Applicant's driving privilege.

On February 11th, 2010 the MTO sent a letter to the Applicant requesting medical information, specifically regarding an evaluation of the Applicant's cognitive function. The letter stated that he might also be required to undergo a driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

The Ministry, to date, has received no further medical reports.

It is apparent to the Tribunal that the Applicant suffers from a serious degree of cognitive impairment. He was virtually incapable of presenting his case in coherent fashion. This is indeed unfortunate, but it is also clear that the Applicant could not drive a car safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. PATRICK COFFEY, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: SEVAGE YEGOHAYAN, Counsel, representing the Applicant

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 12, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar" or the "Respondent") pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990 c. H. 8 (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

A Medical Report was sent in to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) on December 22, 2008, in which the doctor indicated that the Applicant suffered from the medical condition of Addiction (Alcohol, sedatives, tranquillisers, narcotics, etc). The physical examination was found to be essentially normal. The History Details and Summary was largely illegible.

When the MTO received this report, a letter was sent to the Applicant informing her that she was required to file an assessment from an addiction specialist, or her treating physician.

Addiction specialist Dr. M.S. sent in a report to the MTO, dated February 2, 2010 in which she stated that the Applicant was first seen in her clinic on August 13, 2009, presenting with a history of opioid dependency and polysubstance abuse. She had been at a drug rehabilitation centre for ten weeks from November 2008 to January 31, 2009, had completed this program, but she relapsed in May 2009. At the clinic of Dr. M.S. the Applicant was started on a Methadone program in August 2009. The Applicant stopped this treatment at the end of September 2009 and restarted it on December 15, 2009. She had been doing well, and had not been using any illiicit drugs. The doctor has been seeing the Applicant twice weekly, and the doctor feels that she is well on the road to recovery and "I have no concerns with her obtaining an F Class licence while on methadone".

Two laboratory toxicology reports, one dated January 26, 2010 and the other dated January 29, 2010, indicated "negative" for opiates and five other substances.

The MAC Case Summary form was completed on March 3, 2010. The medical specialist recommended suspension of the Applicant's licence. Under the heading Instructions, it was detailed, in part, that one year of total abstinence from all mood altering substances supported by random, observed, urine drug toxicology was required. Under the heading Reasons, the doctor wrote as a summary the following:

> Thus she has remained compliant for only two months. Given her relapses following formal treatment, above period of compliance is required prior to reinstatement of driving privileges.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on March 3, 2010 informing her that her driving privilege was suspended.

Dr. M.S. sent another report to the MTO on March 16, 2010 in which the doctor wrote that the Applicant was continuing to be seen for her opioid dependency and was stable on the methadone treatment. The doctor requested that the Applicant's licence be returned on a conditional basis, depending on immediate licence suspension if any of her twice weekly urine toxicology results were reported positive.

Dr. M.S. sent another follow up report to the MTO on April 5, 2010. The doctor stated that the Applicant was very compliant with the methadone program and that she had not used any illicit or prescription drugs at all. She ended the report by writing:

> She is clinically and functionally stable and I have no concerns with her ability to operate a motor vehicle.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant had a successful academic career. She earned a B.Sc. degree. She qualified as a paramedic and then worked as a paramedic from 2002 to 2008. It was in November 2008 that she self-admitted herself to a drug rehabilitation program because of an addiction. She completed this ten week course at the end of January 2009. She relapsed in May 2009 and then in August of that year started attending the drug rehabilitation clinic she is now at. At the end of September 2009, thinking she had had sufficient treatment, she left this clinic, but felt it necessary to return in December.

She was asked how and why she got into drugs. She said that she was away from home and got into bad, drug-using company. At the time she had difficulty finding work and was finding life difficult.

The Applicant said that she is following this methadone program very conscientiously. She is submitting monitored drug urinalyses twice a week and has been doing this since December 2009. She is very determined never to relapse again. She has left the area where she was in the company of people who were abusing drugs. Additionally, she has made new friends, she is living with her parents and is active in social and sports activities such as working out in a gym, boxing and roller-skating. She feels she is a totally different person. She is on the waiting list for a paramedic job, but she needs to be able to drive for this or any paramedic position. She has never had a charge or conviction for driving under the influence.

The Applicant's mother testified also. She explained that she holds a position with supervisor responsibilities and one of her responsibilities is to discipline employees under her and, for instance, deal with individuals abusing alcohol. Her daughter, (the Applicant), is living at home with her and her husband, and she would have no compunction in reporting her daughter if she stepped out of line with the use of illicit medication of any kind.

The Applicant's mother views a large change in her daughter. She said that all the steps that her daughter has taken to never abuse drugs again, have been on her own initiative. Her daughter has broken away entirely from the friends whom she used to know and who were responsible for introducing her to drugs. If and when her daughter gets her driving licence back, she will be driving the car owned by her and her husband.

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal sympathises with the wish of the Applicant to be able to return to driving, especially since she depends on this for her livelihood.

Under the heading The Effects of Drugs and Narcotics, of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable Standard (12.4) is written as follows:

> Individuals repeatedly using non-prescription narcotics may not be eligible to operate any class of vehicle, depending on degree of deliberate abuse or loss of control.

The Tribunal recognises that the Applicant has a strong determination to break her addiction to illicit drugs, notably opiates, and a commitment to comply with the advice of addiction specialist Dr. M.S. The Tribunal recognises that Dr. M.S. has expressed confidence in the Applicant's ability to do this in her present state of mind. The counsellor, Dr. M.S., has written that the Applicant "is well on the road to recovery", (February 2, 2010), and in two reports, (February 2, 2010 and April 5, 2010). The counsellor expressed the opinion that she had no concerns about the ability of the Applicant to operate a motor vehicle. The Tribunal also recognises that the Applicant has strong family support and that she has broken with the environment she was in when she became addicted, that she is actively engaged in sports and in social affairs and that she is keenly anxious to start working again.

However, the Tribunal notes that the Applicant went through one relapse and one partial relapse in 2009, and is of the opinion that a further period of time and attendance at the rehabilitation centre she is now at is required.
The Tribunal takes into consideration, first, the fact that the applicable CCMTA Guideline Standard for Narcotics (12.4) does not specify a period of time prior to which reinstatement of driving privileges should not be given. Secondly, the Tribunal takes into consideration the favourable reports from addiction specialist, Dr. M.S. and the favourable environment which the Applicant is currently in. It, therefore, recommends that serious consideration be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's licence, (Class 'F'), after another three months, providing that satisfactory reports continue to come in from Dr. M.S.

DECISION

Upon the Application by the Applicant to appeal the decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act ("HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant; it is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it that under Section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. DAVID HURST, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 31, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS:

The Respondent's Case

On December 8, 2007 an unsolicited Medical Report was filed with the Registrar of Motor Vehicles. Dr. M.L. a specialist in Neurology, in his optional comments stated that this 61 year-old male had Parkinsonian's Syndrome with early cognitive problems. He recommended a DriveAble Test.

The next report was the result of a Driver Assessment Test dated January 14, 2008 which had been carried out at a regional health care centre. In the summary the occupational therapist noted that "performance on the Cognitive Assessment indicates that cognitive function has declined to a level that may impact driving". It was also noted that "driving performance was observed to be within the range of healthy, normal drivers and continued driving is recommended".

Her Recommendations were that:

1. the Applicant continue independent driving as there is no evidence that medical impairment compromises the client's [Applicant's] ability to operate a motor vehicle.

2. Reassessment in one year is due to the potentially progressive nature of the client's medical condition.

Reassessment is recommended sooner than one year if there is any notable change of cognitive function.

On August 26, 2009, the Applicant's family doctor (Dr. M.R.) filed an urgent Medical Condition Report indicating cognitive impairment – Parkinson's Disease --- and enclosed a Driver's Assessment Report from the same institution as previously noted, and dated August 18, 2009. This summary of this report stated that cognitive function has declined to a level that may impact driving and driving cessation was recommended because there was evidence that a medical condition compromised the Client's ability to operate a motor vehicle. It was reported also that the Applicant's physician had asked him not to drive three to four months previously.

In the On-Road Assessment, it was reported that "the Client demonstrated errors that are consistent with difficulties in information processing and decision making". Driving cessation was strongly recommended; eleven significant driving mistakes were noted.

On October 14, 2009, the Deputy Registrar acknowledged this report and on that date wrote to the Applicant referring to the physician's report filed in compliance with Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Registrar stated that suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege was carried out for medical reasons under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Registrar also noted that reconsideration of the Applicant's case could be done upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the Registrar.

Instructions regarding reconsideration included a request for an up to date detailed assessment from a physician familiar with the Applicant's medical history, a neurologist or a physician specializing in geriatric medication. This report would evaluate the Applicant's cognitive functions and confirm that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns. Coincident with this report, the Applicant might be required again to undergo a driving evaluation at a Rehabilitation Centre.

The Applicant ultimately contacted the MTO for a release of the medical reports under the provisions of Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

The Applicant then appealed the decision of the Registrar for the following reasons:

1. The medication that I am currently taking has made me more stable (Levocarbs 8 tablets per day).
2. I have no tremors or involuntary movements.
3. I exercise regularly four times per week with my partner and personal trainer.
4. I am a cautious driver and not aggressive.
5. I will not drive on any major highways, however I will drive occasionally on county roads.
6. I will only drive during daylight hours and during slow traffic hours.

The Registrar's Agent in her presentation presented the Tribunal with a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record stating only a suspension for medical reasons dating October 4, 2009 with no demerit points. Also provided were sections of the Highway Traffic Act – 47(1) suspension Reg. 340\94 – driver's licences, Section 14(a).

The Registrar's Agent also referenced the CCMTA "diseases of the central nervous system" Section 6.6 dealing with Disorders of Coordination and Muscle Control.

THE APPLICANT'S PRESENTATION:

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he had gone to a driving instructor for a week of lessons prior to his driving test(s), and the instructor had complimented him on his driving skills. He said he had had no convictions or tickets in forty years of driving and that he is a very careful driver. He avoids the major highways though questioning from the Tribunal indicated that this was simply a matter of comfort.

He noted that he and his partner used GPS when they are driving. He described how he exercises regularly and has improved his diet. He is taking eight tablets a day for his Parkinson's Syndrome. He noted that this drug has about a 50% success rate.

It was observed by the Tribunal that during the Applicant's presentation he was very slow and hesitant and showed frequent memory lapses and occasional confusion.

During the Applicant's presentation the Registrar's Agent elicited the fact that his annual physical exam was satisfactory and all of his medications were the same with no changes. The Applicant also stated that he had no tremors or involuntary movements; nor was he bothered by dizziness. At this point, the Applicant stated that he needs his licence to be independent and he is the only driver in the household. The Applicant described the driving test in which there were three other people in the car, including an intern, the instructor and an occupational therapist. The Applicant found this quite distracting. He commented that when an order was given to him for example, to turn left, he then asked for confirmation of this order, probably giving a picture of confusion to the Examiner, leading to a poorer score. He explained that many of his apparent errors were simply related to his care and caution.

The Applicant complained of his difficulty in putting his case together and the Tribunal took note of the fact that the Applicant was extremely hesitant and often very vague.

The Registrar's Agent's cross examination reviewed the Applicant's various visits to his doctors regarding this problem, his Parkinson's Syndrome, and devoted a lot of attention to explaining to the Applicant the importance of the Registrar receiving detailed reports on his condition: in particular, an updated medical reports regarding his progress. The Applicant stated that his family doctor had become very resistant to completing another medical questionnaire (as each one requires an hour and a half of his time).

The Registrar's Agent also elicited the fact the Applicant had retired three years ago on the advice of his psychiatrist regarding his disability.

The Registrar's Agent made an even greater effort to explain to the Applicant that the MTO needs further medical reports with updates. She was very patient explaining these details to the Applicant to the point where it became repetitive, with the Applicant demonstrating great difficulty assimilating this information.

The Agent summarized the events leading to suspension under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act with suspension occurring on August 26, 2009, due to cognitive impairment from his Parkinson's Syndrome. She stressed the fact that suspension was strongly recommended in the last DriveAble Examination report.

She observed that the MTO has received no more information about the Applicant's condition, but since, this is a progressive disease it must be reviewed by the physicians. She asked that the Tribunal confirm the suspension.

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACT:

The Applicant has been diagnosed as suffering from Parkinson's Syndrome and he has had this for perhaps three or four years.

It has been reported by his physician(s), that the Applicant's cognitive function problems early on in the course of this disease, have deteriorated to the point now where the examiners advised him to cease driving and reported this to the MTO. His first DriveAble test showed that he was not at risk while the second one about a year later has now reported strongly that his driving privilege be suspended.

During the Applicant's presentation, it was clear to the Tribunal that he is ill and suffering considerably from cognitive dysfunction. He was very vague and admitted that his presentation was quite confused and rambling. He demonstrated memory lapses despite the Registrar's Agent's very gentle, kind repetitions to explain to the Applicant that the MTO has inadequate information as to his progress and needs more detailed medical reports.

The Applicant demonstrated a serious lack of understanding. The efforts by the Agent became repetitive and proved futile. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant's cognitive function has deteriorated to such a degree that it is unsafe for him to drive.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated October 24, 2009 to the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence, and the submissions of the Registrar, and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: May 3, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY ISSUES

The Respondent informed the Tribunal that the Alcohol Abuse Assessment Form requested of the Applicant by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles has not been received but is currently in the hands of the Applicant’s physician. The parties agreed to proceed without adjournment.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

A Medical Condition Report pursuant to Section 203 of the Act was completed on January 28, 2010 by an Emergency Room physician at a local hospital.

The Report stated that the Applicant presented in the Emergency Department on January 22, 2010 intoxicated and had a seizure in the E.R.

The Report was received by the Registrar and a letter was sent to the Applicant informing him that it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act effective March 19, 2010. He was requested to arrange for the ministry to receive an up-to-date detailed report from a neurologist or a physician familiar with his medical history regarding his reported seizure(s) and alcohol abuse. The report must state that he has been seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

On March 23, 2010 a letter was prepared by Dr. M., a specialist in kidney diseases at a regional hospital.

> This is to certify that (Applicant) was admitted to ICU in January 2010. He had kidney failure and required dialysis for a short period. His renal failure has almost recovered and I am currently following him as an outpatient.
> The cause of his renal failure was unclear. According to his chart there is evidence of alcohol toxicity. Since I have seen him in the outpatient department he tells me that he has not been drinking any alcohol. I am currently seeing him for treatment of his high blood pressure.

The Registrar reviewed the medical report and informed the Applicant that it contained insufficient information. He was requested to have an Alcohol Abuse Assessment form completed. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers that are outside the normal laboratory range. His physician must also include details of the circumstances surrounding the reported seizure as well as details of any previous seizure whether alcohol related or not.

If the diagnosis of alcohol dependence is confirmed he must provide confirmation that he has remained alcohol and seizure free for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant commenced driving in Canada four years ago and had one speeding ticket.

He has a dog training business.

On the day before admission to hospital he had no work to do and consumed six or seven Scotch whiskeys at home in the afternoon. After he had some Chinese food he felt unwell and went to bed at about 7:30 p.m. He awoke later and fell out of bed striking his head on a dresser. His wife found him unconscious and called 911. An ambulance took him to the local hospital.

His wife gave evidence.

She stated that he got up from bed at about 1:30 and she heard a crash as he struck his head on a dresser. He had a tendency to sleep walk and she thought that this was the reason for his being out of bed. She called Telehealth after half an hour and then called for an ambulance. He vomited once while waiting and was partially lucid. She went to the E.R and spoke to the doctor there. He told her that her husband had a high alcohol level. She recalls a number 40. Her husband continued vomiting and was given medication that seemed not to be working. At about 5:30 she witnessed a number of seizures. His blood pressure was about 207/130. He was put into a drug-induced coma and transferred to the regional hospital where he was admitted to ICU. He required dialysis and was given anti-seizure medication. A CT Scan was performed.

At one point he suffered a cardiac arrest and pneumonia and a blood infection.

The Applicant stated that he was not prescribed anti seizure medication on discharge. He was taking blood pressure medication.

In Reasons for Appeal he stated that he had stopped drinking but he informed the Tribunal that he had recommenced drinking, mostly on weekends.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

Submissions

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1) of the Act which states that the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence for any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

2. The Medical Condition Report completed by a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act stating that the Applicant was admitted with alcohol toxicity and had suffered a seizure.

3. In absence of a completed Alcohol Abuse Assessment, the Registrar has insufficient information on the Applicant's alcohol use or abuse, and evidence was given that he continues to drink.

4. Insufficient medical information is available to justify reinstatement.

5. CCMTA Standard 13.2 states that patients with alcohol withdrawal seizures must not drive for 12 months during which time the patient must remain seizure free and alcohol free. This period may be considered for reduction after favourable recommendation from his physician.

The Applicant submitted that he is in danger of losing his business and house if he is not able to drive. He acknowledged that he does not have a family physician but that he will ask Dr. M. to provide a detailed report as well as the Alcohol Abuse Assessment.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant abused alcohol to the extent of suffering alcohol related seizures. His medical problems have not been reported in detail sufficient to consider reinstatement. There is insufficient evidence of alcohol dependency or addiction.

The Registrar was justified in issuing a licence suspension on receipt of a medical condition report made pursuant to Section 203 of the Act. Reinstatement is not supported by medical evidence.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 10, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: Dr. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Respondent
Representative for the Minister

DATE OF HEARING: May 7, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act") effective August 23, 2009.

FACTS

A Medical Condition Report dated July 23, 2009, was completed by an Emergency Room physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act.

The condition was described as:

> Mental or Emotional Illness-Unstable

The patient was not aware of the report and the physician wished to be notified if the patient requested a copy of the report.

On August 13, 2009, the Registrar informed the Applicant that it had been decided that his driving privilege was suspended under Section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for the Registrar to receive a detailed up-to-date report from his physician. The report must contain:

- Results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
- His complete psychiatric history (i.e. duration, degree, dates of hospitalization (if any), including his most recent discharge summary.
- A reference to any suicide attempts/ideation (if any).
- A narrative account of his reported anxiety/panic attacks (if applicable).
- Evidence of addiction or misuse of medication (if applicable).
- Details of his compliance and frequency/rapidity of decompensation, signs of impaired judgement, reduced concentration, reckless/aggressive behaviour and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication.
- Confirmation of his mental and emotional stability and current level of function.

He was advised of his right to an Administrative Review and of his right of appeal.

Under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act a copy of the Medical Condition Report was disclosed to the Applicant on December 22, 2009.

On March 9, 2010, the Registrar received a copy of a report from Dr. C., dated July 15, 2009. The report was in response to a request for consultation by the Applicant's family physician, Dr. E. Dr. C. is a specialist in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation and the condition for which he was consulted was lumbar disc disease. The patient's chief complaint was lower back pain radiating to both legs most likely following incidents when working as a self employed landscape gardener.

A CT Scan done in May 2009 showed some disc bulging at L5S1 with evidence of neurological deficit on the left side. The specialist prescribed a course of physiotherapy to strengthen the Applicant's lower limbs.

No medical information was submitted concerning the admission on July 23, 2009.

The Registrar informed the Applicant by letter dated March 18, 2010, that this information was not in compliance with the detailed information requested on August 13, 2009.

The Applicant's Case:

In Reasons for Appeal the Applicant stated that his problems began in January 2009 when he had surgery to remove a pilonidal cyst that required him to remain prone for an extended period of time for healing to take place, with loss of income during the snow removal season. His family doctor had prescribed strong analgesic and anti-inflammatory medications. In order to continue to work he had to keep taking medication and when he was unable to see his own doctor he went to a walk-in clinic where he was prescribed a mixture of anti-inflammatory and muscle relaxants. He informed the Tribunal that he collapsed at home and became unresponsive. His parents called for an ambulance and he was taken to the Emergency Room where he regained consciousness. He denied taking alcohol with the medication. He stated that he was in hospital for three days and does not recall what specialists saw him other than a psychiatrist who looked at him very briefly. He denied that he had any suicidal ideation.

He stated that he has lost his landscaping business as a result of the suspension and has had to file for personal bankruptcy.

He stated that he did not request his hospital records and did not bring the hospital discharge summary to the Hearing. He stated that he attempted to have Dr. E. his family physician, complete the information requested by the Registrar without success.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report by a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act stating that the Applicant suffered from a mental or emotional illness that may make it unsafe for him to drive.

2. Lack of the requested medical information that might assist the Registrar to determine if the Applicant's driving privilege might be restored.

3. Regulation 340/94 (14) of the Act which states:

   An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

The Applicant acknowledged that the information requested by the Registrar would be available in the Health Records Department of the hospital where he was treated for three days even though his family physician was not willing to assist him. He agreed to take the letter from the Registrar dated August 13, 2009 to the Health Records Department in order to obtain this information or have a copy of the health record released to the Registrar.

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under Section 47(1)(g) upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report filed by a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act, that stated that the Applicant suffered from an unstable mental or emotional condition that may make it unsafe for him to operate a motor vehicle.

The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension upon failure by the Applicant to submit the information requested by the Registrar pursuant to Regulation 340/94(14).

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective dated August 23, 2009 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT and AGENT (Applicant's son), representing the Applicant

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 21, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

Dr. D. saw the Applicant when he was brought into a hospital emergency department on November 28, 2009, and in her report she wrote "Alcohol Dependence" as the medical condition. When the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

The Substance Abuse Assessment form was completed and signed by the Applicant's family physician, Dr. L. on March 11, 2010.

In this report, under Health History it was written Gastritis or peptic ulcer disease, Nutritional deficiencies, and Hospitalisations within the last 12 months (admitted to hospital on November 28, 2009). Further information about the hospitalisation showed that he was admitted for failure to thrive, severe esophagitis and gastritis.

Physical assessment was essentially normal and both the MCV and the GGT and the liver function tests were within normal limits.

The AUDIT score was zero. Under "Diagnosis" was written Abstinence since November 2009. The recommendation was Abstain.

Dr. L., the family physician for the Applicant, sent in a medical report to the MTO on February 10, 2010, in which he said that the Applicant had abstained totally from alcohol use and that he was medically stable, which was supported by his blood work. The doctor said that he believed that consideration should be given for reinstating his driving licence.

The Applicant was seen in consultation by Dr. K on February 11, 2010. Under "Impression" the doctor said the Applicant had Type 2 diabetes, that his glycemic control was quite good on his current regimen, that he had lost a significant amount of weight since last visit, which seemed unintentional and which might have to be investigated, and that his blood pressure was quite low. The doctor described some medication changes he was going to make.

In the MTO Certified Driver Record of May 20, 2010, no convictions, discharges or other actions are shown and the demerit points are zero.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant retired in April 2009. He stayed at home with his mother and gradually became depressed. This sudden cessation of his usual work felt like a shock. Also, he found that his stomach was bothering him and he could not eat. He was drinking wine. He was asked how much he was drinking at that time. He replied, "four to five glasses a day". He was told by a doctor that his liver was not good. His nephew, who is a doctor, arranged for him to be taken into the local hospital emergency department on November 28, 2009. He was asked if he took any wine that day. He said that he took none and he could not eat anything either that day.

The Applicant said that he never drank and drove. He has not consumed any alcohol since he was admitted to hospital.

The Applicant's son spoke briefly. He said that his father, after retirement, mostly stayed at home and he became introspective. He drank wine and did not seem well. With the change for the better in his father's health and life-style, he wondered if consideration could be given to the return of his father's driving licence before too long.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading "Alcohol dependence and alcohol withdrawal seizures" of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 13.2) is written as follows:

> May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.
> Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Tribunal finds that after the Applicant retired in April 2009, he felt depressed and also, he had stomach complaints and he could not eat. Between that time and the end of November, when he was admitted to hospital, his symptoms became worse and he was probably drinking more wine than usual. He was seen in the hospital emergency department by Dr. L., who not only admitted him, but also completed the Medical Condition Report with the condition of "Alcohol Dependence" written. In hospital he was treated for gastritis, esophagitis and failure to thrive. The Applicant is feeling better and has not consumed alcohol since before he went into hospital. There has been a change for the better.

The Tribunal is favourably impressed by the following facts, although, it is aware that only six to seven months, not twelve months, has passed since the Applicant abstained from alcohol.

1. The Tribunal finds the statement of the Applicant that he has not consumed alcohol since the end of November to be credible.

2. The only Laboratory reports on file since the Applicant left hospital showed normal MCV, GGT and liver function tests (February 25, 2010).

3. The Applicant's family physician, Dr. L, who has known him for many years, finds the statement of the Applicant regarding abstinence from alcohol credible, and, in addition, stated that he is "medically stable" and recommended the reinstatement of his driving licence.

4. Good driving record of the Applicant.

Therefore, the Tribunal is of the opinion that more rehabilitation time spent under the care of the Applicant's family physician is required, but that the full twelve (12) month period since his last alcohol intake is not warranted, providing that the following recommendation is adhered to. The Tribunal recommends that serious consideration be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privilege after another two months, provided that during that time, favourable reports, including MCV, GGT and liver function tests are received from family physician, Dr. L.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective December 12, 2009, of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, self-represented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 21, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

Dr. W. sent in a report on November 11, 1998 regarding the Applicant, writing as follows:

> This patient was brought in by ambulance to the emergency department of X Hospital on November 4, 1998 with a hypoglycaemic reaction. He was comatose when the ambulance picked him up and was treated with Glucagon. Medical records at the hospital showed him to have had a similar episode on November 2, 1998. He is an insulin dependent diabetic.

On receipt of this report, the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) wrote to the Applicant informing him that it had been decided that his driving privilege should be suspended.

Internist Dr. S. saw the Applicant in consultation and wrote to the MTO on January 12, 1999.

The doctor wrote that he was asked to review the Applicant in order to assess whether the Applicant was "suitable to drive". The doctor described the problem of the Applicant as being "nocturnal hypoglycaemia with diabetes mellitus of longstanding duration".

The doctor described the two episodes of hypoglycaemia which took the Applicant to an emergency department in November 1998. He went on to report that stresses from marital breakdown led to recreational use of cocaine requiring hospital admission and counselling and that the Applicant had not taken any cocaine in the previous three months. The doctor said that the Applicant had been managing his diabetes very well over the previous 10 years, and his assessment was "Suitability to drive". He believed that it was reasonable to allow the Applicant to drive under the following circumstances:

1. Three months follow ups for one year by myself.
2. Regular glucose monitoring.
3. Glucagon in the house.
4. Anti-hypoglycaemic agents available in the motor vehicle.
5. Abstinence from cocaine completely. This will be monitored at q3 monthly intervals by urine testing for one further year.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on July 14, 1999 stating that the last medical report had been approved for class 'D' licence with certain conditions, including regular reports from internist Dr. S.

The Applicant continued to be reviewed regularly by Dr. S. who found that his diabetes was under good or reasonable control, but on January 3, 2010 the Applicant had to be taken to a hospital emergency department because of a severe hypoglycaemic reaction and Dr.L. wrote the following report:

> Hypoglycaemia (uncontrolled). Insulin dependent diabetic. Had increased physical Activities, (cleaning snow), today and forgot to take his snacks this evening.

When the MTO received this report it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

In the Case Summary of MTO's Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC"), dated April 10, 2010, the Instructions were to "Remain suspended", the Reasons being:

> MAC is requesting a longer period of stability to ensure driver is no longer at risk for further severe hypoglycaemic events. Driver had two, possibly three episodes within three weeks. MAC is concerned considering severe hypoglycaemia resulting in LOC and confusion. Driver indicates he "forgot" to take his medication on two to three occasions. Requires six months free of severe hypoglycaemic event.

The Certified MTO Driver Record of June 4, 2010 for the Applicant showed a conviction for speeding 111 KMH in 80 KMH zone on March 3, 2008 and Current Demerit Points were zero.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant referred to the MAC report of April 20, 2010, in which it was mentioned that the Applicant had suffered severe hypoglycaemic episodes in January 2010 and "the driver indicates that he forgot to take his medication". The Applicant stated that he did not forget his medication and never does. The factors that came into play in relation to these episodes were first, that he forgot to take his snacks and, secondly, he had to exert himself unduly shovelling snow at that time.

The Applicant said that all these hypoglycaemic events happen at home and nearly all are at night. He tests his blood sugars at least four times a day. He uses his cell-phone alarm to wake him up day and night. At night he sets the alarm for 2.30 a.m. and 2.40 a.m. The Applicant has found that unusual physical activity can lower his blood sugars, and after the two episodes of January 2010 he arranged for someone to do his snow shovelling for him.

The Applicant drew attention to his observation that his blood A1C reports in the latter part of 1999, when his licence was reinstated, were worse than they have been recently.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant has had brittle, difficult to control Diabetes for at least 20 years. In spite of very careful work on the part of the Applicant and his medical advisors he had his driver's licence suspended on two occasions, in 1999 and in 2010, (due to hypoglycaemic reactions resulting in coma) His hypoglycemic episodes are almost entirely nocturnal.

The Tribunal is of the opinion that the time has arrived when the Applicant should have his driving privilege reinstated for the following reasons:

1. It is probable that two factors came into play in the causation of the two severe episodes suffered by the Applicant in January 2010, namely unaccustomed physical exercise, (snow shovelling), accompanied by the Applicant not taking his usual snacks. (It should be added that in the MAC Report of April 20, 2010, it was written that the Applicant neglected to take his medication on two occasions, but the Applicant has stated that it was his snacks he did not take and he would definitely never miss his medications.)

2. The Applicant's very careful and intelligent application to his illness and that of his medical advisor. The following details apply, namely - the Applicant monitors his blood glucose at least four times a day, has an alarm system to wake him at certain times, glucagon in the house, anti-hypoglycaemic agents in his car, and the recent acquisition of someone to help with heavy physical work.

3. It is now almost six months since the Applicant's last severe hypoglycaemic episode, (January 26, 2010). In the last MAC Report of April 20, 2010 it was written that six months free of a severe hypoglycaemic event was required.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective February 19, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TRIBUNAL: DR. GARRY FISHER, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE M. BIEL, Respondent
Representative for the Minister

DATE OF HEARING: June 2, 2010 Teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Tribunal was conducted as a telephone hearing with the Applicant and the Respondent. The Applicant was sworn at the inception of the hearing.

FACTS

The Applicant is a 75 year old man who was assessed by Dr. L., a geriatrician, on Dec 17, 2009. With this assessment, a notice was forwarded to the MTO in compliance with section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

Several boxes were checked: “Dementia or Alzheimers likely to interfere with driving”, “situation is serious road safety risk”, and “patient is aware of this report”.

On January 22, 2010, the MTO notified the Applicant of his licence suspension. Reconsideration of the suspension hinged on medical evaluation of cognitive function and “perhaps“ the need for driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

Dr. G., family doctor, wrote on February 17, 2010, that the Applicant had three different MMSE tests and that the results “were not terrible”. His opinion as to driver licence was that the Applicant was “borderline at worst” and “able to function safely” at best.

On March 2, 2010, the MTO notified the Applicant of the need for a satisfactory driver evaluation from a rehabilitation centre. He was provided with a list of approved Ontario centres.

An appeal was started, but dismissed when the Applicant failed to submit the necessary fee.

A new appeal was launched. Dr. G. referred the Applicant to driveABLE in a nearby city and testing was carried out May 8 2010. Testing took the form of In-office cognitive evaluation followed by road evaluation. The Applicant clearly failed both of these assessments.

The recommendation therefore was that “driving cessation is strongly recommended”

The Applicant did not present well at the hearing. He failed to call in as requested to join the conference. The Tribunal contacted him, having to sleuth out his phone number when he had made errors on his forms. Then he couldn’t recall receiving packages from the LAT (May 31) or the MTO (June 1) although we knew he had signed for both. We waited while he found the material.

His driving test had been stopped abruptly, when it was deemed unsafe to continue and when asked about it, he had no insight into the problem.

The Applicant is of the opinion that there is nothing wrong with his driving. “I have been driving 52 years with no accidents”

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant’s licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

Section 6.8 of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators (CCMTA) Medical Standards for Drivers states:

> STANDARD: MEMORY IMPAIRMENT OR MILD DEMENTIA – ELIGIBLE FOR CLASS 5 LICENCE, SUBJECT TO SATISFACTORY DRIVING ASSESSMENT. ANNUAL REASSESSMENT IS RECOMMENDED.

The Applicant fits in to the mild dementia category. He has been tested objectively and failed both the cognitive and physical driving tests. Driving cessation has been recommended.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel
(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated January 22, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: GARRY FISHER, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 15, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The hearing was held by teleconference. The Applicant was directly contacted by the Registrar's Agent and by staff of the Tribunal within the week prior to this hearing. The Applicant failed to call in as instructed, and the Tribunal was unable to contact him, in spite of numerous attempts over more than thirty minutes.

After the thirty minute grace period, the hearing commenced and the Tribunal then proceeded to hear the Registrar's case.

FACTS

The Applicant is a 36-year old man who presented in a nearby city hospital Emergency Room ("ER") on September 23, 2009. He is described as exhibiting bizarre behaviour, being agitated and rambling.

He was initially seen by Dr. W., an ER doctor, who completed a Form 1 – an involuntary admission form for psychiatric reasons, and with that, a Form 203, wherein the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") suspended his driver's licence.

Dr. W. checked off "blackout or loss of consciousness or awareness", and wrote in "psychosis". He added in the comments area "schizophrenia" and "hallucinating".

At admission, the Applicant was seen by Dr. N., a psychiatrist, who treated him during his stay in hospital. Within the first 72 hours of admission, a second psychiatrist saw the Applicant and completed a second form, thus extending the involuntary admission to two weeks.

The Applicant was an in-patient from September 23, 2009, to discharge on October 9, 2009.

The agitated bizarre behaviour apparently settled quickly in the hospital. A final diagnosis was Psychosis NOS. The Applicant was discharged on Risperidone 2 mgm at bedtime, with an appointment to see another psychiatrist, Dr. J., who was to monitor the Applicant and his medication.

The Applicant had one follow-up with the psychiatrist, Dr. N., on October 19, 2009. At that time he was advised to continue his medication, attend the follow-up clinic and become involved in counselling. So far as the Tribunal is aware, the Applicant has done none of the above.

However, it was Dr. N.'s opinion that his patient was "psychiatrically stable to drive a motor vehicle".

The Applicant had one former admission to the same hospital in March 2007, with the same diagnosis and recommendations – discharged on Risperidone.

A letter was received from the Applicant that was long, rambling and repetitive. It stated clearly that he was perfectly alright and that the ER doctor, Dr. W., was wrong to sign an MTO Form 203. The letter failed to deal with the issue of the failure to have a formal follow-up, as requested.

A Medical Advisory Committee report to the MTO, filed January 8, 2010, recommends that the Applicant keep his appointment, as arranged with Dr. J., and to have a detailed report of his status prepared and submitted to MTO.

The Applicant had a speeding ticket in March 2010, while his licence was suspended.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
> (b) a driver's licence; or
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Regulation 340/94, section 14, states that a holder of a driver's licence must not suffer from a mental illness that might interfere with the safe operation of a motor vehicle.

In this instance, Standard 11.4 of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("CCMTA") Medical Standards for Drivers describes the need for attending a psychiatric follow-up, as requested by MTO.

The Applicant has provided a brief note from his family doctor, but it does not satisfy the requirements of the CCMTA guidelines or the requests made by MTO for detailed information.

The Registrar's Agent noted that if the Applicant wished to contact the Registrar's office, he would be given assistance in how to take the appropriate steps to regain his driver's licence.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective October 5, 2009, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

FACTS

Respondent’s Evidence

Dr. G. sent in a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO), dated August 12, 2009, which indicated that the Applicant suffered from Alcohol Dependence and Seizure(s) – Alcohol related.

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant’s driving privilege should be suspended. The MTO also required that the Applicant provide an up-to-date, detailed report from his treating physician and arrange for the Substance Abuse Assessment form to be completed.

Neurologist Dr. B. sent a report concerning the Applicant to the MTO, dated November 10, 2009, which reads, in part, as follows:

> This 41 year old self-employed man collapsed while at work on August 10, 2009.There were premonitory features such as to suggest a faint. He sustained head trauma and lacerated or bit the side of his tongue. His neurological investigations have included a CT of head which showed mild, general atrophy. An EEG revealed mild dysrythmic features right frontal area, "not definitely epileptogenic".
> I assessed X on October 23rd and no abnormalities were detected of a neurological nature. There is no indication that this man is at risk for seizures. We discussed seizure precipitants at length and he was given a list of these triggers which does include sleep deprivation, which had been something he was having trouble with. We do not know the identity of the event. There was a fairly long prodrome and he did sustain head trauma when he fell.
> As his EEG was not substantially abnormal and a CT scan was unremarkable, it would seem reasonable to consider reinstatement of his driving privileges now that more than three months has passed with no further events.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on November 30, 2009, requiring him to provide an up-to-date assessment from his treating physician or by a physician specialising in addictions medicine.

Laboratory tests were carried out on the Applicant on December 15, 2009. The pertinent reports showed that the MCV level was within the normal range at 91.5, and the GGT was raised at 106 (normal range 5 – 50).

The Applicant's family physician, Dr. M. wrote to the MTO concerning the Applicant on January 18, 2010, as follows:

> X's blood work has shown that he has occasional beers, but he does not drink alcohol while he drives. His GGT remains at 106 and his MCV is normal at 92.1. His driver's licence should be reinstated immediately.

Dr. M. wrote again to the MTO on March 12, 2010, as follows:

> X is not alcohol dependent and has totally stopped drinking alcohol since September 10, 2009.

In the MTO Certified Driver Record of the Applicant, dated May 20, 2010, Demerit Points were Zero, and the only offence mentioned is:

> No Driver's Licence or Improper Class of Licence. Date: October 2, 2007.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant described the episode that occurred on August 10, 2009, when he was taken into a hospital Emergency Department. That morning, which was a Tuesday morning, he felt ill. He felt weak and nauseated and did not want to eat anything. He stood up at his desk and then collapsed, striking his head against something as he fell. He found later that not only had he injured his head, but had also lacerated or bitten his tongue. An ambulance was called and he regained consciousness in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. He was only in the Emergency Department for about one hour and a half. The examination by the doctor seemed to take about 10 minutes. He has not suffered anything like this since then.

The Applicant was asked about his alcohol consumption immediately before he was taken into the hospital. He testified that the last time he consumed any alcohol before this episode was on the Saturday before. That is three days before. He was also asked what made the hospital doctor who examined him believe him to be an alcoholic. He replied that his estranged wife learnt that he had been taken into the hospital, followed the ambulance and spoke to the doctor. He described his wife as “mean” and made a big fuss over the small to moderate amounts of alcohol he sometimes drank. She had been particularly incensed because on the Saturday before he had drunk two or three beers while he was mowing the lawn.

He described his drinking habits prior to this event. He said that he usually consumed about 12 beers a week. This was usually at the week-ends and mostly on Saturdays, and also often on Tuesdays when he was accustomed to coach hockey and baseball. The Applicant stated, at first, that the last time he drank alcohol was September 10, 2009, and later, he stated, that it was August 10, 2009.

The Applicant runs his own small business. He usually employs four men, but with his present inability to drive, his business has slowed down and he has had to let one or two of his employees go. He is finding it very “tough” trying to manage his business and not being able to drive.

He was asked if he received the MTO Substance Abuse Assessment form. He replied that he did and showed it to his family physician, but did not clearly explain why it was not completed and sent in.

The Applicant asserted that his neurologist, Dr. B. told him that in his opinion the episode of August 10, 2009 was not a seizure.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant’s licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The MTO had no option but to suspend the driving privilege of the Applicant after receiving the medical report from Dr. G. of the hospital Emergency Department.

The Tribunal has tried to study and weigh the conflicting evidence, and has especially tried to see if the evidence pointed in any particular direction as to the likeliest cause for the loss of consciousness suffered by the Applicant on August 10, 2009. The Tribunal notes the following.

First, the strong inclination of Dr. G. of the hospital Emergency Department was that this episode of August 10, 2009 was a seizure caused by or related to alcohol. But, secondly, neurologist Dr. B.did not incline towards a diagnosis of seizure and wrote that the Applicant was "not likely to have a seizure in the future". The Tribunal note, with surprise, that Dr. B. did not mention alcohol in his report of November 10, 2009. Then, thirdly, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony attests to only a moderate intake of alcohol shortly before the episode and a moderate to high consumption in the past.

The Tribunal notes that the Laboratory reports of December 15, 2009, (markers for alcoholism), showed that the MCV was normal and the GGT was moderately raised at 106 units. Also, Dr. M.'s letter of January 18, 2010 reported that the MCV was at that time normal and the GGT still at 106 units. The file contains no Laboratory reports since then.

In a difficult decision with conflicting opinions and a lack of recent reports, the Tribunal finds it difficult to ignore the following:

1. The report of the neurologist, Dr. B. who in his report of November 10, 2009 wrote, "It would seem reasonable to consider reinstatement of his driving privileges now that more than three months has passed with no further events."

2. The opinion of Dr. M., the family physician of the Applicant, who strongly advocated licence reinstatement in his two letters.

3. The good driving record of the Applicant.

4. The time period, ten months, since the August 10, 2009 episode suffered by the Applicant, with no recurrence.

5. The evidence of the Applicant that he has not consumed alcohol since either August or September 2009.

Therefore, the Tribunal has decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be reinstated.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective October 10, 2009 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: GARRY FISHER, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: CLIFF LEWIS, Agent, representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representative for the Minister

DATE OF HEARING: June 2, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant was accompanied by his spouse/partner. Both were sworn. They testified separately. The Respondent agreed with the approach.

FACTS

The Applicant is a 53 year old tool and dye worker who presented in a hospital Emergency Room (ER) on May 24, 2009, with a history of a witnessed, full blown, tonic/colonic epileptic seizure that had lasted about two minutes.

It was his one and only history of seizure activity. There was none before that date and none since. It is now over a year since the incident.

A Form 203 was submitted to the MTO. The Applicant's driver's licence was duly suspended as of June 30, 2009.

On May 20, 2009, the Applicant was in the same ER complaining of sinusitis and ear infection accompanied by dizziness. A zealous doctor whose handwriting is illegible filled out a form 203 citing "vertigo" as a reason for driving suspension.

On May 24, 2009, the Applicant was seen by Dr. F. a neurologist. It was noted that the Applicant had been drinking an excessive amount of beer in the previous two to three weeks. Liver enzyme tests were elevated above normal in keeping with "mild alcoholic hepatitis". Dr. F's diagnosis was "alcohol withdrawal seizure". He advised the Applicant to "cut down on his drinking", and, further, to be followed up by a neurologist and have appropriate tests including EEG, MRI and CT scan.

The Applicant and his partner testified that during this period the Applicant was under a great deal of pressure from family matters. Both of his parents had been recently diagnosed with cancer (his father died a few months later). The Applicant had taken a leave from work and he was drinking a great deal more beer than his usual pattern of one or two bottles after he was home from work.

On November 12, 2009 he was seen by another neurologist, Dr. C. His opinion agreed with Dr. F. Again the advice was to "taper down on alcohol consumption". He reviewed the EEG and MRI – both were normal. Follow up with the Applicant's family doctor was recommended.

The MTO requested all of the tests thus far completed and fresh blood tests as well. Liver enzymes recently done remain just above normal.

Abstinence from alcohol was requested. The Applicant and his partner are clear that he continues to have the odd beer after work.

The family doctor, Dr. S. has filed a supportive note.

ISSUES

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The question here seems to be "alcohol dependence" and what constitutes dependence. In the view of the Tribunal the Applicant does not appear to be "dependent". If one is not dependent, one is not addicted and hence, an addiction specialist isn't needed.

The seizure seems to be a solitary episode. He has taken the advice of his doctors to "cut down" or "taper" consumption.

The Applicant and his partner appear to be responsible persons. The Tribunal does not find the evidence that the Applicant's medical condition is likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a vehicle safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective, April 5, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: May 3, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar” or the “Respondent”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the commencement of the hearing the Applicant provided a note from her family doctor, which was entered as Exhibit #3, and laboratory reports, which were entered as Exhibits # 4 and #5.

FACTS

The Respondent’s Case

The Respondent reported that the Ministry of Transportation (“MTO”) received a Medical Condition Report by Dr. M.F. dated March 9, 2008, and the only information was that was there is that she suffered from alcohol dependence. The Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles replied to Dr. M.F. on April 8, 2008, and wrote to the Applicant outlining their receipt of this medical report, indicating that she suffered from a medical condition which might impair her ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. A decision was made by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend her driving privileges for medical reasons under Section 47 (1) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Registrar's letter explained that reconsideration of her case could be given upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the Registrar. The letter also advised that an enclosed Alcohol Assessment Form should be completed and returned to the Ministry. The completed Form must indicate if the disease of alcoholism is present, and if so, outline the recommended form of treatment. An interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV and GGT) is also required.

On April 25, 2008, a completed Alcohol Assessment Form was received by the MTO indicating that the Applicant suffered from an addiction. A review of the remaining details of this document disclosed that the Applicant's use of alcohol was rather limited. A laboratory evaluation disclosed a GGT of 16 and an MCV of 91.8, both well within the normal range.

A description of the Applicant's history of alcohol use indicated that she began to drink at the age of 15, with regular use at the age of 16. The reasons for drinking included "to fit in with an older crowd" and also cope with grief and depression over the demise of her husband. The Applicant also stated that she had stopped drinking because it was a threat to her children and her own life. The Applicant also commented that her drinking in no way had interfered with her close relationship with family members. A note was included indicating that the Applicant had maintained complete abstinence for a period of seven months with one very brief relapse.

The treatment program was described a phase 2 intensive treatment program lasting 21 days in October 2007, and the relapse was described as owing to the death of her daughter's father, but the Applicant was also struggling at the time with the separation from her new partner, who is the father of her other two children.

The ultimate diagnosis on this survey showed that she suffered from neither alcohol dependence nor fit the category of hazardous or problem drinker.

Her recommended goal was listed as abstinence and she was continuing under a program with a centre for addiction and also making random visits to AA meetings approximately once a week. This survey form had been completed by her family physician Dr. H.Z.

On May 13, 2008, the MTO again wrote to the Applicant stating that she should remain under suspension and that the MTO needed a detailed up-to-date assessment that would confirm that she had remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of six months. A favourable recommendation from an addictionist and test results of suitable bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT) were also requested.

The Respondent submitted a letter written by the Applicant to the MTO asking that her licence suspension be lifted. In that letter she described how she had been abstinent from alcohol for 10 months and that she had never operated a motor vehicle while she had been drinking. She described the difficulty in bringing order to her life in that two of her children were living in an adjacent city.

In the Applicant's letter, she wrote that she recognized the concern of the Ministry, and therefore, she included reports of hair and urine samples done by the Catholic Children's Aid Society, which she was attending on a weekly basis. Random blood screens were noted as well.

Random screenings indicated that she was positive for opioids (Tylenol 3) prescribed after she had been a passenger involved in a motor vehicle accident on February 10, 2009. She explained that this could be the only reason for this positive finding. A review of these detailed laboratory reports failed to show any other sign of abuse of drugs and was negative for alcohol. The only remaining problem was the issue of the opioids.

On November 12, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that a previous request for detailed information was still outstanding. MTO stated that the Assessment Report must confirm that the Applicant had remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. They said this period could be reduced if she provided information that she had successfully completed an Alcohol Treatment Program, plus the usual request for bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT).

The Respondent submitted a letter, dated February 24, 2010, from an addiction treatment centre stating that the Applicant had participated in a patient program with many visits. It described the Applicant's abstinence from alcohol since March 1, 2009.

On February 24, 2010, the Applicant wrote to the MTO stating that she had already complied with their request with family physician Dr. H.Z.'s report dated April 25, 2008. She drew attention to the GGT and MCV both in the normal range and also to the fact that her doctor had written "neither" regarding the diagnosis about alcohol dependence and hazardous or problem drinker. The Applicant also stated that she was being treated unfairly due to the fact that she had simply used her driver's licence as a form of identification when taken to a hospital by ambulance after she had indulged in heavy drinking. She had never been under the influence of alcohol while driving; nor has she ever had a DUI charge.

On February 24, 2010, the Medical Advisory Committee of the MTO reviewed the Applicant's case. A request for further information asked for confirmation that the driver was no longer using opioid analgesics and continued to remain abstinent from alcohol, and that she provide random supervised urine toxicology screening and bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT and AST).

The Medical Advisory Committee's stance was based on the report to the Ministry on account of alcohol dependence on March 9, 2008. Again, they referred to the occasional use of Tylenol 3 by the Applicant for pain sustained in a car accident which had occurred on February 10, 2009. (There was no mention of the Applicant's actual prescription used to help her through periods of frequent problems with dysmenorrhea). On April 22, 2010 the Ministry wrote to the Applicant indicating their acceptance of correspondence from the addiction centre, but they still needed an assessment from her treating physician. They stated that this report must confirm that she was no longer using opioid analgesics and was continuing to remain abstinent from alcohol.

The Respondent completed its presentation by drawing attention to the pertinent portions of the Highway Traffic Act regarding the licencing of drivers with addiction issues.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant described the initial episode when she had been to a bar drinking with friends, became quite drunk, and passed out on the sidewalk. She was taken by ambulance to a tertiary care medical centre which resulted in the emergency room physician sending a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry regarding her alcohol dependence. The Applicant described that she had been abstinent from alcohol for 6 months at that time and that she has now been completely abstinent from alcohol for 15 months.

She described the crisis in her life in 2008 with the demise of the father of her daughter and then a separation from her partner and father of her second daughter and a son. Separation resulted in two of her three children living in a city 45 miles away, causing her great difficulty getting her family together now she has no driver's licence.

She described how her family had been under close supervision by the Catholic Children's Aid Society with very strict laboratory monitoring of any sign of habituating drugs and the recurring use of opioids, which she explained were due to the fact that Tylenol 3 had been prescribed for her dysmenorrhea. She explained that her initial 5 month interval of total abstinence had occurred after the Children's Aid Society advised her to abstain from the use of alcohol.

The Respondent's Questions

The Respondent elicited the fact that the Applicant had been at CAMH and was being helped with her problems by the social workers. She has been a patient of Dr. H.Z. for 13 years and described her physician as very supportive. Under questioning, she explained the matter of her intermittent use of Tylenol 3. She also noted that she had suffered a miscarriage at the time of her car accident and 6 months ago underwent a D & C.

Questions about her relationship with the AA organization indicated she would go to open meetings, but was not a full fledged member. She had been attending on an intermittent basis with this organization for 4 years. The Applicant also explained that on March 25, 2010, the Catholic Children's Aid Society informed her that they had closed her file and sent her a congratulatory card. Also she has now reunited with her estranged partner and a marriage is planned in October.

The Respondent's Summary

Referring to the Medical Condition Report received by the Ministry on March 9, 2008, the Respondent's Agent noted that this doctor had labeled the Applicant as alcohol dependent and that licencing was forbidden because of this under the Highway Traffic Act. In addition, she submitted the Ministry's concern about the continued use of opioids. She recognized the fact that the Applicant was doing well, had a good support system, but said that the MTO still needs documentation of these happy events with confirmation that she is abstinent from alcohol and that this should be reported to the Ministry by one of her medical specialists. She indicated that such a letter from her family physician would help immeasurably, in restoring her licence.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Ministry's decision to suspend the Applicant's licence is based on section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. The Applicant's status regarding possible habituation (alcohol and opioids) has been under detailed review since the initiating episode March 9, 2009, when she arrived in an emergency department under the influence and was promptly labeled as alcohol dependent. This report gave no further details, and in fact, was simply a tick mark on a form.

The Applicant has been using alcohol on a regular basis since the age of 16, and it is clear that there has been abuse. She has been through a very rough passage with the demise of the father of her first child and the separation from her partner and father of her other two children. She used alcohol to ease the anguish she suffered during this very difficult period.

The Applicant says she has "come a long way" from her initial low spell and has described the support of close friends, family and care and guidance provided by the Catholic Children's Aid Society, and also the assistance from the social workers in an addiction centre as well as the assistance and encouragement of a kindly family doctor. During this difficult passage she has been under the constant scrutiny not only of the Children's Aid Society, but of the MTO with relentless requests for further medical information. The Applicant has complied with the instructions of her various medical counsellors, and in fact, has fulfilled all MTO's requests for medical facts.

It is noteworthy that the Ministry of Transportation Alcohol Assessment Form, a very searching document, again with a tick mark, labelled the Applicant as suffering from addiction, but has otherwise failed to show how this is so. The Applicant passed this examination easily.

The Applicant has demonstrated that she has now been totally abstinent for 15 months and has recognized the error of her ways and the hazards to her if she should begin to use alcohol again. She has presented the Tribunal with a note from her family physician stating she uses Tylenol 3, on a once a month basis, only for dysmenorrhea and liver function tests reported that there were no abnormalities and that the Applicant has been abstinent from alcohol for 15 months.

The Applicant demonstrated very good insight into her problems and deserves great credit for turning her life around with the help of an excellent support system including family, friends, physicians and social workers. The MTO is being somewhat pedantic in continuously dwelling upon the Applicant's use of opioids (Tylenol 3), but the Applicant now realizes that it is a good idea to abandon the use of this drug.

The Applicant has complied almost perfectly with the requests of the MTO regarding her licence problems.

While there likely was misuse of alcohol in this case in the past, ample evidence has been provided to this Tribunal that the Applicant does not suffer from alcohol addiction.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

6135-MED-ALCL-ALCOHOL

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA De SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 23, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

The Respondent’s Case

A Medical Condition Report dated August 5, 2008 was filed by Dr. A., a medical specialist, with the Registrar of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

The report based on examination on July 27, 2008 stated the condition as:

> Seizure(s)-Cerebral.

The patient was aware of the report.

A consultation report by Dr. A. to the Applicant's family physician, Dr. T. dated July 27, 2008 was forwarded to the ministry.

The consultation report described a number of grand mal seizures commencing in January 2008, in a foreign country. He was seen by a physician and a brain CT Scan was normal. He was given a sedative and he saw his family physician on his return to home.

In March 2008, he took the same injection at his home, an intramuscular injection of a veterinary steroid. He was seen in the local Emergency Room. He was prescribed Tegretol but this was discontinued by the Applicant because he felt unwell. An EEG was reported normal. A referral was made to a neurologist but the appointment was cancelled when the tests were normal and he felt well.

In July 2008, his wife awoke at 05:30 when he had a grand mal seizure lasting 30-40 seconds. Seizures occurred again at 07:45 and 09:45.

Dr. A. stated in his letter:

> He consumes alcohol excessively. Approximately 12 ounces of hard liquor per day or perhaps he'll mix a few beer and whiskey. Two nights ago he was social. He drank very heavily, much more than he normally would. He says that he was hung-over yesterday. However he did have several drinks, the last beverage around 1800 hours.
> He would normally start drinking at noon hour and continue until 2100 hours. He has never previously experienced withdrawal symptoms, nor has he been diagnosed with withdrawal seizures.
> I am reluctant to attribute these seizures to alcohol withdrawal. Alcohol withdrawal can be a precipitating factor. However, I wonder about an underlying CNS pathology. According to the son, the seizure starts with twitching of the right side of his face suggesting a left hemisphere focus. I did speak to the radiologist. She agrees that an MRI would be the best next step. However she states that for seizures MRI would be obtained on an elective basis. I think perhaps that is a reasonable decision.
> He was discharged with the following instructions:
> 1. He is not to operate a motor vehicle. He is to avoid situations that might place him at risk in the event of recurrent seizures. For example he is not to be swimming.
> 2. He will start Dilantin 300 mg per day. He will require a Dilantin level in 5 days from now. Given his alcohol consumption Dilantin levels will have to be followed closely.
> 3. He will be scheduled for an outpatient MRI scan.
> 4. I have asked that he severely curtail the alcohol consumption and that he not to stop "cold turkey". To help minimize withdrawal symptoms I have prescribed him Ativan 1 mg q.4h.prn (supply of 30). I have asked him to follow up with Dr. T. as soon as possible with respect to managing this concern.
> 5. I would ask that he reactivate his consultation with Dr. F. (the neurologist).

On August 27, 2008, the Registrar informed the Applicant that his licence to drive was suspended under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

In order to be reinstated he must arrange for an up-to-date report from a physician familiar with his medical history or a neurologist regarding his reported seizures, This report must provide the results of all investigations initiated by his physician, prescribed treatment and cause for the seizures, and a narrative of this and any previous seizure history. He was informed of his right to request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

A report was received from Dr. F. a neurologist, dated September 12, 2008.

The history was described, including reference to the use of veterinary testosterone injection, and alcohol binge drinking.

Investigations included normal CT Scan of the brain. MRI of August 21, 2008, showed no cause for the seizures, and an EEG in April 2008, showed no definite seizure activity.

His impression:

> Drug (veterinary dose testosterone) and alcohol induced seizures. He has removed both of these potential triggers from his lifestyle. Therefore, I think his risk of a recurrence seizure is low. He would like to taper off his Dilantin, and I agree with this approach.
> If he has another seizure that is not related to drug or alcohol use, he would need to be restarted on an anticonvulsant.
> He knows that he is not allowed to drive for now, but I think if he remains seizure free for three months off Dilantin, it would be reasonable to have his privileges reinstated providing that he continues to abstain from alcohol.

The Registrar reviewed this report and on September 29, 2008. The Applicant was asked to file an up-to-date assessment regarding his consumption of alcohol, including an interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT).

The Applicant's family physician, Dr. T. wrote on October 7, 2008:

> (Applicant) has been investigated and reviewed by the neurologist. Both of us agree that as long as (Applicant) avoids these substances it is extremely unlikely that he will have another seizure.
> (Applicant) has been successful in modifying his ingestions of alcohol and he no longer makes use of testosterone.
> I hope this information is of use in re-instating his licence to operate a motor vehicle.

The Registrar informed the Applicant by letter on October 23, 2008, that his case had been reviewed in light of the doctor's report of October 7, 2008. He was advised that some of the previously requested information remains outstanding, namely the Alcohol Assessment Report. If a diagnosis of alcohol or drug dependence was made, confirmation was required that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year, plus results of MCV & GGT.

An Alcohol Assessment Form was completed by Dr. T. on December 18, 2008:

Physical assessment = normal

GGT = 42 in December 2008
MCV = 92.6 in December 2008
Drinks Two to four times a month

- On a typical day when drinking has 1 drink
- Never has five or more drinks at one occasion
- Not able to stop drinking once started less than monthly in the last year
- Never during the past year has he failed to do what was normally expected because of drinking
- Never in the past year has needed a first drink in the morning after a heavy drinking session
- Had a feeling of guilt or remorse after drinking less than monthly in the past year
- Never has been unable to remember what happened the night before because had been drinking
- Never has he or someone else been injured as a result of his drinking
- A doctor or other health worker has been concerned about his drinking or suggested that he cut down but not in the past year

DSM-IV Criteria for Alcohol Dependence: 3 or more occurring at any time in the same 12 months period or withdrawal:

1: Tolerance: not checked
2. Withdrawal: Checked re sweating, seizures
3. Taking larger amounts than intended: not checked
4. Unsuccessful efforts to reduce alcohol use: not checked
5. Preoccupation with drinking: not checked
6. Reduces important activities because of alcohol: not checked
7. Continued drinking despite knowledge of alcohol related physical or psychological problems: not checked

History of Alcohol Use:

Age of first use:16
Age of First Regular use: 19
Last use Glass of wine: December 12
First intoxication: 16
Quantity over past month: 3 drinks
Who do you drink with? Anyone or alone before now. Friends on occasion
Where do you drink: anywhere
Reasons for drinking: now – socially
Reasons for stopping: I had a hangover seizure

Consequences of Drinking:

Legal: Alcohol related driving convictions/outstanding charges/prison time/probation: None
Interpersonal: Has drinking ever affected relationships with spouse or family member: No
Vocational: Has drinking ever affected work performance/caused job loss or demotion: No
Medical: Positive responses from page one should be reported here: No significant withdrawal symptoms related to alcohol (signed by Dr. T.)

A second Alcohol Assessment completed on December 16, 2008 was received on January 16, 2009.

Medical consequences related to alcohol use: seizures and morning shakes.
Diagnostic criteria for Alcohol Dependence or Hazardous or Problem Drinker: no comment.

Recommended Goal for Alcohol Consumption:

> -recommend pt to limit alcohol consumption to less than 3 drinks/week.
> -No history of street drug use.

Notes added by the Applicant:

> I am not dependent on drugs or alcohol.
> I enjoyed drinking and drank regularly for decades, many times to excess.
> I experienced frequent hangovers.
> I never drank to end a hangover, nor could I. Drinking before noon would make me sick.
> When I had a seizure from alcohol withdrawal, I stopped drinking to excess.
> I now have an occasional glass of wine with dinner.
> I do not require any treatment or commercial rehabilitation program.

Laboratory report dated December 19, 2008 was negative for common drugs abuse.

The Registrar wrote on January 15, 2009, requesting a further report from his treating physician or addictions medicine specialist, confirming his continued abstinence from alcohol and drugs and confirmation that he has completed a recommended alcohol/drug treatment program and confirmation that he has remained seizure free.

On April 15, 2010 Dr. T. wrote:

> (Applicant) did have seizures related to supplemental use of a non-prescription hormone. The last episode occurred in 2008. He has not used any of this substance since his last episode in July 2008. He has been off Dilantin for 18 months and has continued to be seizure free. He has no issues with alcohol misuse.
> I am confident that (Applicant) is not at risk of experiencing a recurrence of his seizures. This opinion is consistent with that of Dr. F. in his consultation from 2008. Dr. F. is a neurologist.

The Registrar informed the Applicant by letter dated May 17, 2010, that it was necessary to file an up-to-date assessment which confirms successful completion of an alcohol treatment program and including an interpretation of biochemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) with an explanation for any results that are outside the normal range.

The Applicant's Case:

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he took injections of a veterinary testosterone while in a foreign country in January 2008, in order to improve his athletic performance. A few days later he had a seizure and he was seen by a local physician and a CT scan was arranged. It was reported normal. He was given a sedative.

In March, he took the injection again and was treated for seizures at a local hospital Emergency Room. The seizure was a grand mal type accompanied by tunnel vision and speech deficit. He did not connect the seizures with the steroid until the second episode.

He was prescribed an anti-convulsant, Tegretol, but discontinued it when he felt unwell.

In July 2008, he had been drinking more than usual and had three seizures during the early morning hours and he was taken to the Emergency Room. He was seen by an Internist, Dr. A. and was prescribed Dilantin 300 mg daily, was told to stop driving, to curtail his alcohol consumption, to have an MRI and to see the neurologist, Dr. F.

He acknowledged driving his car while under suspension and states that he does not need to be in an alcohol relapse program. Since July 2008, he has limited his drinking to an occasional glass of wine with dinner.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the

holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. A Medical Condition Report of seizures, filed in July 2008, by a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

2. The reporting physician's letter dated October 7, 2008 that described a series of seizures beginning while on vacation in January 2008, then in March 2008 and July 2008. The first two seizures followed self injection with a steroid and the third following heavy drinking.

3. The Applicant has reduced his alcohol consumption, but not completely controlled it.

4. The Applicant has been seizure free since July 2008 and has been off Dilantin for approximately 18 months.

5. That an up-date report of biological markers and confirmation that he is not misusing alcohol is required.

6. Regulation 340/94, Section 14 that states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

6. CCMTA Standard 13.2:

> Patients with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, including those with alcohol withdrawal seizures should not be allowed to drive any type of motor vehicle.
> May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free. Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Applicant relies on the letters by his family physician stating that he is seizure free and has modified his consumption of alcohol. He does not intend to stop drinking entirely.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's licence to drive under Section 47(1)(b)(g) of the Act upon receiving a Medical Condition Report filed by a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act.

2. The Tribunal notes that a Medical Condition Report was not filed pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act following the seizures in January or March 2008.

3. Evidence described in the letter by Dr. A. dated October 7, 2008, and by the Applicant, of seizures occurring following heavy use of alcohol is indicative of alcohol withdrawal seizures on July 27, 2008, despite reluctance by Dr. A. to say so.

> I am reluctant to attribute these seizures to alcohol withdrawal.

4. The Respondent is justified in requesting an up-to-date report from the Applicant's physician confirming that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program or a reason why this is not necessary, and including up to date original copies of laboratory results of biochemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) with a clinical explanation for any results that are outside laboratory range.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective August 27, 2008, of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID HURST, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 16, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

The Applicant is 40 years of age. His licencing problems developed after a doctor filed a Medical Condition Report on October 24, 2009. That same day the Applicant had been driven to a local hospital by his uncle. The October 24, 2009 report indicated that there was alcohol dependence and drug dependence – cocaine. Optional comments included the following:

1. Found unconscious after two weeks of cocaine and alcohol use.
2. His cocaine abuse 20 years ago for 3 years.
3. Drug screen positive for cocaine
4. Admitting for detox.

This report was signed by Dr. A.S.

On October 29, 2009 the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO" or the "Ministry") wrote to the Applicant indicating that he had a condition which impairs his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle, specifically:

1. Substance abuse
2. Syncopes/loss of consciousness

Licence suspension was carried out under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

This letter went on to explain that consideration for reinstatement could occur upon receipt of information satisfactory to the Registrar. The MTO asked that they receive a detailed up-to-date report from the Applicant's doctor. This report would include:

> The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

The letter also stated that:

1. If a diagnosis of drug dependence is made, the report must confirm that you have remained abstinent from all mind altering substances for a period of one year. This period may be reduced upon the successful completion of a treatment program and a favourable recommendation from your physician.

2. Recent urine drug toxicology screening.

3. A narrative of this and any previous syncope/loss of consciousness history, and confirmation that there have been no further episodes.

A second Medical Condition Report dated October 24, 2009 and signed by Dr. N.V. was submitted by the Respondent. This report noted that there was drug dependence. Under the optional comment section the single word "temporary" was used and likely is reference to instructions in this optional section "whether or not the condition is a serious risk to road safety, is unknown or condition is temporary". Dr. N.V. noted that he had known the Applicant for one day.

These Medical Condition Reports were sent to the MTO by mail.

Hematology reports of February 28, 2010, were then submitted disclosing nothing of consequence. There were no abnormalities of the liver function tests.

The next submission by the Respondent was a report dated March 17, 2010 by the founder and executive director of a foundation which is not for profit organization providing a continuum of health services relating to the treatment and rehabilitation from drug and alcohol abuse. This institution's philosophy was described as holistic in nature.

In this report the Applicant was described as very remorseful for the incident which led to charges against him. He was living with his father and hoped to return to his wife and children. He has been married since 1992 and was employed fulltime. He had abstained from the use of any mood altering substances since he began one to one counseling sessions in January of 2010. He had undergone random urine tests, and abstinence had been maintained; all tests have proven negative. The author of the report did not believe that a similar incident will reoccur. Toxicology reports were included with this letter and all were negative.

On April 1, 2010 the Ministry wrote to the Applicant stating that there was still insufficient information for any possible reinstatement of his licence. The Applicant was advised to provide an up-to-date assessment from his treating physician or by a physician specializing in addiction medicine. It would include a complete alcohol and drug use history, a diagnosis and recommendations for treatment. If, as a result of this assessment, his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol and/or drug dependence alcohol and/or drug dependence, the Ministry will require confirmation that he had remained abstinent from alcohol and/or drugs for a period of one year. This letter went on to state that the one year interval could be reduced if his physician confirmed that he had successfully completed an alcohol and/or drug treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege. Details of biochemical markers were required (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT).

The Applicant was in receipt of MTO's Substance Abuse Assessment Form which, when returned to the Ministry, was found to be only partially completed with very little added information and signed by Dr. M.S. This report was dated April 26, 2010. This report did state that the Applicant was advised to seek a drug rehab program. It is also apparent from the presentation today that page 3 of this report is missing.

On May 17, 2010 the Ministry wrote to the Applicant stating that they had received insufficient information to determine if his licence could be reinstated. They again outlined the requirements in detail in order for reinstatement to be considered. .They also enclosed another copy of the MTO Substance Abuse Assessment Form, which was completed.

On March 3, 2010, Dr. M.S. reported that the Applicant had had sessions with him since January 27, 2010, and has agreed to continue sessions to assist him better with behaviour, handling life issues such as anger, and drug issues. Detailed blood work about that time including liver function tests showed no abnormalities; no urine toxicology tests were reported.

On June 21, 2010, the Ministry again corresponded with the Applicant indicating they had once again received insufficient information to determine if his licence can be reinstated. Again, they informed the Applicant that the required Assessment must confirm that he had remained abstinent from both alcohol and drugs for a period of one year.

The next submission by the Respondent was a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record indicating only suspension for medical reasons on November 8, 2009. Also introduced at this time were the pertinent sections of the 2008 annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act and also the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

This completed the Respondent's submission.

The Applicant's Case

The comments of the Applicant showed a marked difference between the information filed on the Medical Condition Reports and his own recollections. This, out of necessity, required multiple questions from the Tribunal. Referring back to the initial Medical Condition Report dated the October 24, 2009, the Applicant completely denied the first statement that he was "unconscious after two weeks of cocaine and alcohol". The Applicant also completely denied the comment on this report about previous cocaine abuse 20 years ago for 3 years. He stated that he almost never uses alcohol and that alcohol was not a factor on that date. He explained that he was driven to the hospital by his uncle because his face had become "bloated", and on further questioning he attributed that to his use of cocaine. The Applicant stated that he was fully conscious and recalls the nurse taking his blood pressure and starting an intravenous and he also noted that the nurses had given him pills which "nearly killed him". He was also told that his blood pressure (systolic) was 245.

Further questioning by the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant had been using cocaine for 1 – 1½ days. He also stated that he had taken cocaine a month previously, three or four "fixes" in one day. He stated that there was absolutely no truth to the comment on the Medical Condition Report about the use of cocaine 20 years previously. In fact, he said that his first use of cocaine occurred just prior to this hospital incident in October of 2009.

The Applicant also claimed that he never saw Dr. A.S., who had filled out this form. He described having his blood pressure taken, then stepping outside for a cigarette after taking the pills provided by the nurse. He was "out of it" for at least a day. When he awakened, he was given food and drink and stayed for three or four hours, and then was released going to his father's home, where he stayed for two or three days before returning to his own quarters. Since then, he had lived with his father for about two months. He then voluntarily went to a Centre devoted to rehabilitation from drug and alcohol abuse by strict measures, whose executive director had written on March 17, 2010, as noted above. During that period of treatment it was disclosed that he was using cocaine once every 10 – 14 days, and admitted that on the day of his visit to hospital he had taken 5 doses. He said that his problems had developed over a period of several months due to marital difficulties. He described his periodic visits to this holistic centre and stated that he has not used cocaine since January 2010. Regarding alcohol, he said that he would only drink on special occasions. He reiterated that his first use of cocaine was in March or April of 2009.

When questioned about failure to complete the MTO Substance Abuse Assessment Forms, he claimed that the doctor provided incorrect information and he has now developed a conflict with Dr. M.S. He took strong exception to the doctor's statement that he is still using cocaine, which he says is simply not true.

The Respondent questioned the missing page 3 in the Abuse Assessment Form. The Applicant stated that he has this missing page at home, in which Dr. M. S. says the Applicant is abusing cocaine and not seeking help and he says, in fact, the opposite is the case. The Applicant also referred back to the initial visit to hospital, at which time the doctor said that they did not really need to take his licence. The Applicant stated that his wife, with whom he was incompatible, had forced the issue and persuaded the medical people to have his licence suspended.

The Respondent in Cross Examination

On questioning Ms. Bedrossian again elicited the fact that the Applicant has been abstinent regarding cocaine since January 2010, and also that he has not been attending any sessions at any detoxification centre. She elicited the information that after being released from the hospital in late October, the Applicant had used no cocaine through November and December but did so in early January to be followed by a course of rehab treatment for five months. The Applicant also stated that his family had been helping him and he has been living with his parents.

The Respondent explained to the Applicant that the MTO has been presented with this problem and so far has been unable to acquire adequate information in order to reassess the case. She stressed the importance of having a physician provide a completed Assessment Form to be done by any physician and that generally the MTO requires medical documentation that he has been abstinent from cocaine for 12 months.

The Respondent in Summary

Ms. Bedrossian underlined the fact the MTO still had insufficient information to enable them to make a rational decision for restoration of the Applicant's licence. Therefore, the suspension must continue for the present.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,
on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICANT OF THE LAW TO FACTS

One must assume that the Applicant was suffering significant medical problems on the October 24, 2009, when his uncle in his wisdom took the Applicant to hospital to seek help. From that time forth there is very little information available to the Tribunal regarding the Applicant's stay at the hospital and very little documented information has been forthcoming since that time. The Ministry is compelled by law to act on the receipt of such medical condition reports and in this case they indicated alcohol dependence and drug dependence.

Given the Applicant's submissions today, plus the laboratory work available (liver function tests) it is fair for the Tribunal to assume that there is no alcohol problem.

The matter of cocaine dependence has not been fully established with the information presented.

The Tribunal has been told by the Applicant that he was under severe stress due to failure of his marriage and had begun using cocaine to seek solace. On the day that his uncle took him to the hospital, it is assumed that he had taken a large amount of this highly addictive substance.

The Tribunal is handicapped by the very scanty information provided by his doctors, reasons for which are not entirely clear. The Applicant's own acknowledged problems with anger management could be a factor, and most of the doctors' initial comments on their Medical Condition Report on October 24, 2009, are almost totally contradicted by the Applicant's sworn testimony.

The statement that the Applicant had abused cocaine over a three year period 20 years ago does not hold up very well, given the further evidence provided today. The Applicant's use of cocaine in all likelihood has been caused by his recent marital discord and the Tribunal has sworn testimony that he used very little cocaine after the brief hospitalization and has been cocaine free since January 2010, (supported by totally negative findings on urine toxicology tests). It is still not clear whether the Applicant has a significant addiction to cocaine. He has done well with the rehabilitation efforts that have been made.

It is not clear why the Applicant has not been able to obtain full reports on the substance abuse forms from his doctor(s).

The Tribunal finds that alcohol is not a factor. The interval during which the Applicant is documented as having used cocaine is relatively short. It is clear that during this relatively brief interval cocaine has not been a factor in his driving abilities.

Having considered rather conflicted evidence presented to the Tribunal, on the balance of probabilities, the Applicant's driving privilege should be restored. There is insufficient evidence as to the existence of an addiction or medical condition that is likely to interfere with his safe operation of a motor vehicle.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective October 29, 2009, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 13, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

The Applicant was suspended from driving in March 2001 as a result of an intracranial haemorrhage and was subsequently reinstated. In January 2002, he was again the subject of a Medical Condition Report, pursuant to section 203 of the Act, as a result of alcohol abuse. The reporting physician reported that the Applicant's liver function tests had significantly improved, but confirmed that his GGT was elevated at 209 and may remain elevated indefinitely. The doctor also stated that the risk of relapse was significantly reduced.

The Applicant was reinstated in 2003 following successful rehabilitation at a regional hospital substance abuse clinic. An Alcohol Assessment Form completed by his physician, Dr. M., in January 2002 stated that the Applicant "does NOT meet criteria for alcohol dependence".

In August 2008, the Applicant had a single seizure believed to be related to alcohol withdrawal. A Medical Condition Report was filed by an Emergency Room physician. As a result, he voluntarily attended a program offered through the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health ("CAMH"), and successfully completed the 21-day program in September/October 2008. An Alcohol Assessment Form completed by his family physician in August 2009 did not identify alcohol dependence. In July 2009, his GGT was 65 (range <60) and MCV was 87 (range 80-97). His blood film showed evidence of anaemia.

The Applicant's driver's licence was reinstated on September 8, 2009. He was requested to file a follow-up report on January 8, 2010. A letter from the Registrar, dated December 8, 2009, required the Applicant to file an up-to-date assessment by February 2, 2010, which would need to include confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol, seizure free and include results of MCV and GGT tests, with a clinical explanation if the results were outside the normal range.

On January 4, 2010, the Applicant wrote to the Registrar from his winter home outside of Canada, stating that he had received the above letter the day before leaving for his winter home. He stated that he did not bring the letter with him and that he would not be home in Ontario until the end of March 2010. He requested a deferment of the compliance date to mid-April 2010.

On April 26, 2010, the Applicant's family physician, Dr. S., sent a letter to the Registrar stating:

- Recent GGT: 143 (normal <59.99) and MCV: 104 (normal 80-97) done March 31, 2010. These are out of normal laboratory range, can be due to chronic alcohol consumption.
- Patient does not report of any seizures recently since August 2008.
- Patient has not been completely abstinent from drinking but has reported to cut down.
- He does not have any other significant medical problems which can affect his driving.

On May 11, 2010, the Registrar wrote to the Applicant as follows:

> The ministry has received a subsequent report indicating that you suffer from a condition which may impair your ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
> After considering all relevant facts available, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles has decided to suspend your driving privilege for medical reasons under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. An official notice of suspension will be mailed to you under separate cover. This will replace the suspension now in effect for failing to file a satisfactory medical report.
> Therefore you must file an up-to-date, detailed assessment by your treating physician or by a physician specializing in addictions medicine. The report must confirm that you have remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if your physician confirms that you have successfully completed a recent alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of your driving privilege.
> A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that he had complied with all the requirements of the Registrar up to the letter of January 4, 2010. He left for his winter home outside of Canada the day following receipt of the letter and did not take this letter with him. He stated that he telephoned the Ministry of Transportation from his winter home and asked for a deferral until his return to Canada at the end of March 2010. He stated that he was informed that a deferral was not possible.

The letter from his family physician, dated April 26, 2010, was as a result of a visit to the doctor on his return to Canada. He stated that he was open and honest with his physician regarding his consumption of alcohol. While at his winter home, he would drink two pre-dinner cocktails five days out of seven, with two or three glasses of wine during dinner. At home, he would drink mostly shandies consisting of half a beer and half ginger ale, three days out of seven, and wine with dinner.

The Applicant stated that his social alcohol consumption was declared at the time of the Alcohol Assessment.

The bio-chemical markers were only slightly elevated, and in the statement of the reporting physician in 2002, it was noted that these markers may remain elevated indefinitely.

The Applicant decided to voluntarily take the CAMH program in 2008 following the single seizure, in order to see if total abstinence would have any effect on his potential for seizure and he was advised that this was not a risk.

The Applicant noted that he requires a driver's licence in order to supplement his retirement income (which has shrunk), to pursue personal errands and to perform volunteer work. Local public transportation in his town is non-existent outside of peak hours. The Applicant's wife is outside of Canada winding up the affairs at their winter home. He expects to surrender his licence to drive in the next ten years, depending on his general health. He takes medication for Type 2 Diabetes and mild hypertension, and also takes an anti-depressant. The Applicant's family doctor has advised him to reduce his intake of alcohol.

An updated laboratory report, dated July 5, 2010, shows GGT 56 (normal <59.99), AST 20 (normal <36.99), ALT 7 (normal <45.99) and MCV 102 (normal 80-97). Hemoglobin was 102 (normal 135-170).

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,

>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. Section 47, which states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence on the grounds of any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

The Registrar interprets the letter dated April 26, 2010, from the Applicant's family physician, as having the same intent as a Medical Condition Report under section 203 of the Act. The elevated levels of GGT and MCV as well as the physician's comments are indications of continued use of alcohol by the Applicant. The Registrar requires evidence that a period of abstinence of one year must elapse with a reduction to the one-year period, if the physician confirms that the Applicant has successfully completed a recent alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privilege. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers that are outside the normal laboratory range.

2. Regulation 340/94, section 14, which states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Applicant relies on the evidence given by him during examination and cross-examination. The onus is on the Registrar to prove the grounds for suspension of the licence.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The letter by the Applicant's physician on April 26, 2010, does not meet either the content or the intent of a Medical Condition Report under section 203 of the Act, which states:

> Every legally qualified medical practitioner shall report to the Registrar the name, address and clinical condition of every person sixteen years of age or over attending upon the medical practitioner for medical services who, in the opinion of the medical practitioner, is suffering from a condition that may make it dangerous for the person to operate a motor vehicle.

2. The Registrar had reinstated the Applicant's driver's licence on September 8, 2009, subject to the receipt of a follow-up report by February 2, 2010. This report was required to include confirmation that the Applicant has remained abstinent from alcohol, seizure free and include results of MCV and GGT tests with a clinical explanation if the results were outside the normal range.

3. The Registrar refused to extend the Applicant's filing date from February 2, 2010, until his return to his Ontario home from his winter home at the end of March 2010, for no apparent reason, given the history at this date.

4. The Applicant had previously disclosed his social consumption of alcohol in the Alcohol Assessment of August 2009, and a physician had previously stated in 2002 that the GGT may remain elevated indefinitely. The Tribunal notes that the blood smear on July 5, 2010, shows mild macrocytosis and low hemoglobin, which may account for some increase in MCV.

5. The Applicant had successfully completed a 21-day program at CAMH in September/October 2008.

On the basis of this history and the evidence provided at the hearing, the Tribunal concludes that the Registrar has not proven that the Applicant has alcohol dependence or addiction to an extent likely to significantly (emphasis added) interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely. Therefore, Regulation 340/94 does not apply in this case.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective May 11, 2010, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 8, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

Dr. M. sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario ("MTO"), dated March 15, 2007. In this report, he noted that the pertinent medical condition of the Applicant was "Mental or emotional illness – unstable".

When MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.
Dr. T., who became the family physician of the Applicant in 2007 when the Applicant moved to a different province, wrote a letter to the Emergency Department of a hospital requesting an appointment for the Applicant with a psychiatrist. In this letter, the doctor wrote, in part, that the Applicant had been diagnosed in the past with Bipolar Disorder and noted that the Applicant had some concern with his safety, and wanted to protect himself from the family, as he felt some threat from them. The doctor wrote down the details of his examination of the Applicant, which showed entirely normal characteristics.

Dr. T. sent a copy of some of the notes he wrote when the Applicant came to see him. In the note of May 19, 2007, the doctor explained that he had sent the Applicant to a hospital for psychiatric assessment. The Forensic Psychiatrist spoke to Dr. T. on the telephone and stated that he had not "found anything certifiable" and that he was sending the Applicant back to Dr. T.

Dr. S. wrote to MTO on August 1, 2007, writing, in part, as follows:

> He, <the Applicant> had his licence in Ontario suspended, as we understand it at the request of an Emergency Room physician. He has a previous and contentious diagnosis of Bipolar Disorder. It is noteworthy that even during previous psychiatric hospitalizations his Attending Psychiatrists did not feel that revoking his licence was necessary. Additionally, when the patient visited the emergency room voluntarily at <name removed> Hospital (on recommendation of general practitioner Dr. T.), to accelerate his psychiatric review, the on-call psychiatrist did not support a bipolar diagnosis.

The Applicant was sent to a Driving Assessment Centre for a driving assessment. This was done on September 28, 2007, and both the Cognitive Assessment Report and the On-Road Evaluation were favourable for driving.

The Applicant was examined by psychiatrist Dr. P. on November 13, 2008, who wrote the following in her report:

> The above named patient <Applicant's name removed> was seen in this office for a psychiatric assessment. My opinion is that he has a diagnosis of Bipolar Affective Disorder 1.

The Applicant went through an assessment by a psychologist, Dr. M., on September 1, 2009. Under the assessment results, the doctor wrote, in part, as follows:

> Mr. <the Applicant's name> was interviewed and tested for the purpose of ascertaining whether he met diagnostic criteria for any form of bipolar disorder, depressive disorder or manic disorder. The interview inquiry was conducted in accordance with diagnostic designations provided in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual IV. Diagnostic criteria for the above-referenced disorders were not met. Mr. <Applicant's name removed>, by his report, has no history of bipolar disorder, no cyclical mood swings; he denies having had depressive or manic episodes. As noted above, his conduct throughout the interview was consistent with these statements; he was stable, composed, articulate and manifested no disturbance of thinking. He is not now, nor has he in the past, taken any form of psychotropic medication. So on the interview basis there is clearly no evidence of any of these disorders, nor of any other symptom disorders within the range of mental illness.

The recommendation of the Medical Advisory Committee, dated May 26, 2010, was "Request further information". The reasons for this were:

> Need clarifying information as Dr. M. does not mention Dr. P.'s 2008 assessment which confirmed the diagnosis of bipolar disorder and recommended treatment with a mood stabilizer.

Dr. G., family physician for the Applicant in Ontario, wrote a letter to MTO on May 31, 2010, as follows:

> The above-named (the Applicant) is requesting reinstatement of his driver's licence.
> I have reviewed all the previous documents (see enclosed copies) regarding his mental status and his ability to drive a motor vehicle.
> On re-examination at this time, it is my opinion that he can safely operate a motor vehicle.

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant explained the events of March 15, 2007, when he was taken into the hospital emergency. He was living in a house together with friends who had come with him from his home country in 1989. He had been the chief bread-winner for this group of friends, and, in fact, had gone further than that and had even paid for one of his friend's college fees. An argument arose that day in the house to the extent that one person called the police. When the police arrived, they told the Applicant that he could either go and take a quiet walk and come back or be taken to the hospital emergency. He went to the hospital.

In the Emergency Department, the Applicant was kept for a while and stayed there for the night. In the morning, the Applicant saw Dr. M., a physician from this department. The Applicant was somewhat upset because he learned that the doctor had already been talking to his friends from the house. At first, the Applicant was reluctant to talk to Dr. M., but then there was a very brief conversation (just a few minutes). They did not have a proper dialogue. The Applicant was then told he could leave, but was not given any advice or instructions. It was then that the Applicant lost his licence.

The Applicant decided to move to a province in the West. Actually, he had been planning this for a while. There, he got a responsible job at the airport and the doctor working for the airport (Dr. S.) got to know the Applicant. Dr. S. was very supportive and urged the Applicant to try and get an appointment with a psychiatrist (a long waiting list), and also to get a driving assessment report, all to further his chances of having his driver's licence reinstated. Also, his family physician, Dr. T. was very supportive. The Applicant was examined by a psychiatrist who told him, "You are not bipolar".

The Applicant's interview with a psychiatrist, Dr. P., was not a peaceful one. He found it very difficult. In his words, "She even yelled at me".

The Applicant attained a B.Sc. Degree in Electrical and Computer Engineering from a university in 2002. But, his main interest is in coaching soccer. He has a good driving record, and noted that he once drove cars for a living.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal notes that a great deal of the evidence consists of medical reports with differing opinions regarding the Applicant. First, there are reports that the Applicant has Bipolar Disorder or some other serious psychiatric disorder. Then, there are reports that he has no such disorders. The Tribunal is aware, nevertheless, that some individuals who suffer from Bipolar Disorder or from any psychosis may not be safe drivers, but others are.

In the first category are:

1. Dr. P., Psychiatrist, wrote on November 13, 2008, that the Applicant had a diagnosis of Bipolar Disorder.

2. Dr. M., a physician in a hospital emergency department, wrote on March 15, 2007, as a diagnosis: Mental or emotional illness – unstable.

In the second category are:

1. Psychologist Dr. M. wrote on September 1, 2009, that he did not consider the Applicant suffered from Bipolar illness, “nor of any other symptom disorders within the range of mental illness”.

2. Dr. S. wrote on August 1, 2007, that the on-call psychiatrist whom the Applicant was referred to “did not support a bipolar diagnosis”.

3. Dr. T., in his letter of May 19, 2007, did not make an actual diagnosis, but detailed numerous favourable mental characteristics of the Applicant and did not mention any unfavourable ones.

4. Dr. G., who has been the family physician of the Applicant since he arrived in Canada in 1998, except when the Applicant was living in another province, did not write a diagnosis in his report of May 31, 2010, but wrote, “…it is my opinion that he (the Applicant) can safely operate a motor vehicle”.

The Tribunal, at the hearing (which was lengthy), heard the Applicant being cross-examined and also heard the Applicant speak on his own. The Tribunal formed a favourable impression of the Applicant.

The Tribunal concludes that there is serious doubt that the Applicant suffers from Bipolar Disorder or any other significant mental disorder. It is the opinion of the Tribunal that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical condition that is likely to significantly interfere with his ability to operate a motor vehicle safely. The Tribunal has decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be reinstated.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective April 27, 2007, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, self-represented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 29, 2010 Ottawa

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act" or the "HTA").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

The Applicant is a 62-year-old consultant who was informed by the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") on October 21, 2008 that her driving privilege would be suspended for medical reasons under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. This initial notification enclosed an Alcohol Assessment Form to be completed by the Applicant's treating physician and required verification if a diagnosis of alcohol dependence was present. This report also requested details of the Applicant's recent hospital visit on September 26, 2008.

In addition, the MTO requested an up-to-date vision report from an eye specialist which would indicate that the Applicant's vision met the legislated requirement.

The MTO received a Medical Condition Report on the Applicant dated November 4, 2008 and signed by Dr. E.

This report noted:

1. The presence of respiratory problems (asthma).
2. Diseases of senses (deafness, vertigo, visual deficiencies).
3. Neurological diseases.

Physical Examination:

Blindness in left eye due to corneal damage. Tests met standards defined by the HTA, and the neurological exam showed discoordination of movements of the left hand and left leg.

History Details and Summary:

1: No vision left eye,
2: No hearing left ear,
3: Mild allergic asthma,
4: She has a left facial nerve paralysis due to acoustic neuroma surgery, and
5: She has a slight ataxia as a result of her brain damage following surgery.

As part of the Respondent's presentation, the Respondent's agent submitted a report from S/Sgt R.L. sent to the MTO on October 21, 2008.

The narrative of this report describes the events leading to the Applicant's licencing problems.

Synopsis:

On Friday September 26, 2008, regional police were dispatched to investigate the possibility of an impaired driver. At the scene the police officer observed a vehicle parked on the west shoulder of the road with a female in the passenger seat. The constable met with two witnesses, W.K.W. and T.M., who advised that they had been following the vehicle for some time and stated that the vehicle in question was going very slowly. Under observation this vehicle veered onto the right shoulder and then back into line. The vehicle continued to swerve right to left and then went right towards a guard rail on the right side almost striking it. The vehicle then made a hard left turn back into oncoming traffic causing an oncoming school bus to take to the shoulder to avoid a head-on collision, with the vehicle.

This witness and the driver of another vehicle were able to stop the vehicle and take the keys from the female driver. Both witnesses spoke with the driver and stated that she appeared to be impaired.

The police officer said that he could detect an odour of alcohol coming from the female's breath. With the witness statements and the odour, the police officer placed the Applicant under arrest for impaired driving and placed her in the rear of the police vehicle. The Applicant advised the officer that she was paralyzed on the left side of her face and blind in the left eye. She also stated that she was unsteady on her feet due to her medical conditions.

When taken to a neighbouring hospital the police officer requested a breath technician.

The police officer advised that he was unable to get a breath sample from the Applicant due to the paralysis of her mouth. In fact despite several attempts, while the Applicant could push some air through her mouth, there was not enough for the instruments to register a sample.

The Applicant admitted that her driving was bad but felt that this was due to the serious fog condition present.

The police officer felt that there were insufficient grounds to proceed with the impaired driving charge due to the neurological medical condition of the accused. He then charged the Applicant with dangerous driving under the Criminal Code based on evidence provided by the witnesses.

Dr. E. completed and filed a Ministry of Transportation Alcohol Assessment Form on November 20, 2008. While this very searching document disclosed that the Applicant had significant neurological problems due to left facial nerve paralysis and ataxia with left hand in coordination (post-op surgery for an acoustic neuroma with craniotomy) nothing was found in this assessment to indicate that the Applicant had an alcohol related problem. The laboratory markers – GGT and MCV were within normal limits. Dr. E. recommended no treatment.

Dr. E. did note the neurological problems which were likely to significantly interfere with driving:

1. She suffers from post-operative ataxia secondary to an acoustic neuroma surgery.
2. She has very poor vision in the left eye due to corneal scarring.

The doctor went on to state that the threat to road safety is unknown:

1. Generally she is able to get around with only slight unsteadiness when walking and there does not seem to be any problem when manipulating the controls of a vehicle.

2. She has accommodated to the lack of vision and seems to manage driving by being extra cautious and moving her head around.

On November 27, 2008, the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that her driving privilege would remain under suspension. They asked for an up-to-date detailed assessment from a neurologist or treating physician which would make special reference to her reported acoustic neuroma, current status, treatment, details of any residual deficit (physical, cognitive, perceptual) and prognosis.

This letter also stated that the MTO required an up-to-date vision report from her eye specialist.

On April 1, 2009, Dr. E. wrote to the MTO stating that the Applicant had been treated with gamma-knife surgery for an acoustic neuroma with subsequently an open craniotomy. She developed dense left facial nerve palsy with inability to close her left eye with left facial paralysis. The surgery for this was done in 1999. She developed left corneal scarring with blindness and in addition has complete deafness in the left ear. She was also left with some ataxia causing her to be unable to do heel to toe walking and also showed some unsteadiness on Rhomberg testing. Some dysmetria is noted in the left arm and leg although she is able to walk without a cane. It was noted that she was being followed by Dr. B. (neurologist). Dr. E. noted that despite these medical problems she has generally been able to manage and has been able to drive her car without incident until the recent traffic violation. She has no problem manipulating the controls of the car and has no ataxia when seated. She does not suffer from vertigo. She compensates for her visual loss by being extra careful and by using extra head movements to survey her visual field.

She had recently been assessed by Dr. W., an ophthalmologist, and is due to have her routine follow up with Dr. B. (neurologist) next month. Dr. E. stated that the Applicant is able to safely drive a motor vehicle.

On April 16, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant once again asking for an assessment from an eye specialist.

On April 20, 2009, Dr. B. (neurologist) wrote to the MTO and filed a report on the Applicant describing surgery for a benign brain lesion in 1994 – 5. Her neurological condition was described as perfectly stable, with a confirmatory MRI scan indicating neurologic stability.

The doctor said that in his opinion the Applicant posed no threat with regards to driving ability and that there was no significant visual impairment.

On May 12, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating she must have an assessment from an eye specialist filed with specific reference to her visual field.

On May 5, 2009, Dr. W. filed a report on the visual function of the Applicant. Dr. W. described the Applicant's significant medical history the most pertinent problem being the resection of an acoustic neuroma from the left side of her cranium 10 years previously. This lesion was described as a benign slow growing tumour which grows on the vestibular segment of the auditory nerve and that it usually involves the facial nerve as well. The Applicant was described as being left with a left facial droop with inability to close the left eye. This led to scarring of her left cornea. She was also noted to have poor balance for walking because the vestibular nerve helps with balance. When sitting, caused no nerve issue problem.

The Applicant was noted to have compromised vision of the left eye but this is a fairly common problem for any number of reasons and most patients do learn to compensate for this. The Applicant's vision with current correction in the right eye is 20/20. There was no cognitive impairment and there was nothing apparent in the way of a physical problem with the operation of a motor vehicle. An Estermann Driving Binocular Visual Field Test was satisfactory. She was able to see to 60 degrees on either side of the horizontal midline. There was no significant scotoma (blind spot).

The Applicant was described as meeting the visual criteria for driving. Dr. W. noted that she did discuss the matter with the Applicant's regular ophthalmologist and found that her situation had been stable for many years and the latter ophthalmologist was surprised that there was an issue with her driver's licence at all.

On May 11, 2009, Dr. E. sent to the MTO a copy of the neurologist Dr. B.'s report dated April 28th, 2009. This report was summarized as stating “I do not detect significant deficits that would impair this patient's ability to drive”.

On June 2, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant describing the vision report indicating that her visual field does not meet the standards for a class “G” driver's licence. They stated that this report indicated that she did not meet the horizontal visual field requirement of 120 degrees that is required in Regulation 340/94.

They did note that there was a provision under Section 21.2 of the Regulation 340/94 that allows for a waiver of the horizontal visual field standard for class “G” licence holders and applicants.

The Ministry enclosed a class “G” Vision Waiver Applicant Package to enable her to make an application for a waiver.

This application form was completed with the help of Dr. E. and a note by the Applicant that the only reason her licence was suspended was because there was heavy fog on that day and she was pulled over for driving too slow.

In mid 2009, there was series of exchanges between the Ministry and the Applicant regarding details of vision examinations and concerns as to reports, that many of these reports were incomplete, missing or reproduced on photocopying.

On October 28, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that her Vision Waiver Application Package had been approved and that she could now proceed to stage 2 of the assessment process. The second stage consisted of a formal driving evaluation conducted by an occupational therapist.

Ultimately on November 30, 2009 a functional driving assessment was completed by a Registered Occupational Therapist.

In this report a clinical assessment disclosed a good functional report but with some negative comments under the categories “target manoeuvres” and “driver instructor's tests score”. This had to do with observing a speed bump and such things as a delay in signalling a lane change and also failing to yield to a pedestrian at a cross walk and failing to proceed at an advanced green light.

The examiner recommended that the Applicant participate in Driver Rehabilitation to attempt to correct driving errors and improve compensatory strategies.

On December 15, 2009, the MTO advised the Applicant of a Notice of Reinstatement to her class “G” licence valid until March 13, 2010. This licence was valid only for the purpose of receiving remedial lessons with an occupational therapist at an Ontario Rehabilitation Centre.

On February 16, 2010, the Occupational Therapist L.H. filed a report on the Applicant regarding a functional driving evaluation on November 30, 2009. It was recommended that the Applicant complete driving lessons to correct driving errors and to improve compensatory strategies. The driving instructor reported that during the fourth hour of lessons on February 10, 2010, the client completed a significant error as she failed to respond to a red light. The driving instructor intervened by braking.

The therapist contacted the Applicant and explained that the lessons were discontinued and a final on-road evaluation would not be completed as a significant error was completed during the fourth hour. The therapist reported to the Ministry of Transportation, stating that the lessons must be discontinued if a significant error is completed during or after the fourth hour of lessons.

On February 17, 2010, the Medical Advisory Committee of the MTO (“MAC”) in their report indicated continued suspension. The reasons were that the driver failed the functional driving assessment and subsequent lessons were discontinued due to a critical error. The Vision Waiver requirements had not been met and she is deemed to be unsafe to operate a motor vehicle.

On March 29, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that she is not a suitable candidate for the Vision Waiver program.

MTO stated that her case could be reconsidered for a Vision Waiver upon receipt of a satisfactory driving evaluation from a recognized Driver Assessment Centre. (At the hearing the Agent later expanded on this stating that the Functional Assessment Test must be passed by the Applicant to prove to the MTO that she can drive safely and then she could be reassessed).

With the presentation of the certified copy of the Applicant's driving record, pertinent segments of the CCMT Medical Standards for Drivers, and the 2008 annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act, the Agent completed the presentation.

The Applicant's Evidence:

She presented her appeal under the following categories:

1. She could not understand her failure of the visual field tests that had been described as satisfactory by her physicians.

2. Two ophthalmologists and a neurologist have indicated that she does not represent a driving hazard.

3. She has had no accidents in her later years.

4. She found that she can not insure her car for someone else to drive if she has no licence

5. Public transport is not available to her.

6. She noted that in the police report filed on the day she was driving in the fog no one questioned her in any detail.

7. She notes that it has taken a year to get suitable copies of her reports, and mitigating factors in her favour indicated that the tests were very strenuous and exhausting and held in strange locales.

She outlined in some detail difficulties during the road tests. She went on to suggest that she might possibly abandon the whole matter and revert to the situation of a 16 year old applying for their first driving licence after having taken driving lessons.

The Respondent in cross-examination:

The Applicant explained that in taking driving lessons at an examining centre there have to be dual controls so that normal lessons would not be allowed. She stressed that the Ministry's position is that the Applicant has to pass a functional assessment.

The Respondent referred to the second assessment with an error concerning a red light. The Applicant replied that she was instructed to turn right on the next red. She replied she misunderstood the examiner's instruction to turn right on the red light. She interpreted this as referring to a red light further ahead, hence the error.

The Applicant also pointed out the serious financial factor involving the fee of $600.00 for driving lessons.

The Respondent summarized the requirements of section 47(1) of the HTA and the importance of the failure to pass a functional assessment. The Applicant must pass this in order to be eligible for a waiver for reinstatement. She stated that the Applicant has an option of taking another functional assessment test. She again underlined the significant of the failure to respond to a red light during the driver test, the necessitation of braking by the examiner.

The Applicant inquired whether a full clinical assessment would have to be repeated for further testing. The Agent explained that this might be waived but the MTO would have to rule on this.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The decision of the MTO to suspend the Applicant's licence is based on section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The Applicant had the misfortune to develop a benign but serious tumour (acoustic neuroma) situated on the vestibular segment of the auditory nerve in an area near the brain, which is difficult to access. The surgery had unavoidable sequelae with partial paralysis of the left facial nerve resulting in corneal damage to the left eye, motor deficit on the left side and mild problems of balance.

The Applicant, in essence, has a monocular condition, which usually does not result in loss of driving privilege.

The Applicant had driven successfully for several years since her surgery, but on the day of her driving difficulty developed serious problems in maneuvering her car, leading to intervention from other motorists who were on the scene. Their record indicates their impression was that the Applicant was impaired and the police called to the scene could smell alcohol on her breath. At the local hospital, a breathalyzer test was applied and failed to register because of the Applicant's partial facial paralysis making it impossible to blow sufficient amounts of air into the device to take a legitimate reading. The initial charge of driving while impaired was changed to that of Dangerous Driving.

Subsequent investigations indicate that the Applicant has no problem with alcohol. The Ministry has maintained the suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege because of her visual deficit involving the left eye and her failure to pass the functional assessment examination during her driving test, which was carried out with the objective of acquiring a functional waiver regarding her visual deficit.

It is documented that the Applicant drove safely for many years following her surgery with subsequent left eye blindness and some ataxia. The event of September 26, 2008 leading to the Applicant's suspension resulted in a very extensive review of the Applicant's medical status (left eye blindness and motor instability and ultimately a detailed driver re-examination). What has not been given consideration is the fact that the driver has performed satisfactorily following her major surgery for years except for the unfortunate events on the above-mentioned date. The Applicant has described her considerable tension and anxiety during her driving assessment and those factors, in fairness, should be part of these deliberations.

Alcohol may have been a contributing factor to the driving events leading to the suspension, but this was not proven. The Applicant pointed out that she was driving very slowly because of poor visibility and fog. She had already learned, because of her disability, to drive more slowly and carefully in such conditions.

An inordinate amount of effort and time has been expended reviewing the Applicant's driving ability while, in fact, her successful driving record since her surgery speaks for itself.

Also the MTO seems almost obsessed with the Applicant's vision problems. There are many licensed drivers with unilateral blindness. The Tribunal finds no problem here. Also in her favour is the fact that three well qualified medical consultants indicated in their reports that it is safe for her to drive.

The Applicant displayed one lapse in her driving skills in September 2008, but there have been no other problems. The relentless review of her driving ability, and her monocular vision, by the Ministry, is serving no practical purpose, and does not establish that she has a medical condition that is likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective October 21, 2008 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 5, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant submitted an additional document, namely a medical report from Dr. Q, dated June 30, 2010. The Respondent agreed to the admission of this report in evidence, and it was marked as Exhibit # 4.

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

Dr. P, an Emergency Room Physician, sent in a Medical Condition Report on September 14, 2009 in which he reported "Alcohol Dependence" and "Motor Function/Ability Impaired" as the pertinent medical conditions the Applicant presented with. He added, under Optional, the clinical condition of “Ataxia due to Chronic alcohol toxicity”.

When the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) received this report from Dr. P, it was decided that his driving privilege should be suspended.

Another Medical Condition Report was sent in by Dr. K, (the family physician of the Applicant at the time), dated October 24, 2009. In this the doctor reported “Alcohol Dependence” and “Possible Seizure – alcohol related” as the pertinent medical conditions the Applicant presented with, and he further added as follows:

> Binge drinking. Last admission for withdrawal September 12, 2009, also admitted August and February 2009. Continues to drink since. ?Seizures. Medical problems due to alcoholism -1. Cardiomyopathy. 2. Elevated liver function tests. 3. Peroneal palsy right leg.

Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated May 27, 2010 showed the following:

> Driving with more than 80 mgs alcohol in blood on January 26, 1979 and on August 18, 1981.
> Impaired Driving on August 4, 1982.
> Current Demerit Points – zero.

Dr. Q, (the present family physician for the Applicant), sent in the following report concerning the Applicant, dated June 30, 2010:

> Please be advised that this patient was examined and there are no physical contraindications to his having his licence reinstated. He assures me that he is NOT imbibing alcohol.

Applicant’s Evidence

The Applicant said that 2009 was a terrible year for him. As a result, he resorted to alcohol as a crutch, which he regrets; and he will not do it again. He was drinking heavily at times and had withdrawal symptoms. This was what took him to the hospital emergency on September 12, 2009, when he wanted to be admitted so he could be helped. He was in hospital for two weeks at that time. He also was admitted to hospital for alcohol withdrawal problems in February and August 2009. Since this hospital admission of September 2009 he has not taken alcohol.

He was asked if he had a seizure during any of these episodes when he went to the hospital emergency. He said that he was not sure, but at those times he did have instability when he was standing, and he was told by the doctor that he probably had a type of seizure.

Going further into the more distant past, he admitted he had been drinking heavily. When he was convicted of impaired driving in August 1982, he was determined to give up alcohol, and, in fact, he did not touch alcohol for over 25 years, until life became extremely difficult for him in 2009. Any time he was drinking in the past, he would never even think of driving. He considers himself a good and careful driver.

The Applicant exercises every day. He cycles great distances. He said that although he is now 70 years old, he is fitter than an average 40 year old, and he would not be as fit as he is if he was still using alcohol.

He was asked why he did not have the Substance Abuse Assessment form filled in. He said that he understood he had two options, one being to fill out and sign the Notice of Appeal form in which there was a check list of requirements without any mention of the Substance Abuse Assessment form. So, it was this Notice of Appeal form that he decided to sign.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the > holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading "Alcohol Dependence and alcohol withdrawal seizures" of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 13.2) is written as follows:

> May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.
> Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Tribunal sympathises with the Applicant's wish to be able to resume driving.

The Tribunal recognises that the Applicant made a very determined effort to abstain completely from alcohol after his September 2009 admission to hospital, and regards his statement that he has done so as credible.

The Tribunal also recognises that the Applicant pays a great deal of attention to his health and that he keeps himself very physically fit.

Therefore, the Tribunal notes that the Applicant is to be regarded as being alcohol and seizure free for about 10 months. However, the Tribunal notes that there is no evidence that the Applicant hast kept in close touch with an addiction specialist or his family physician for monitoring of his progress, that he has not attended any rehabilitation program and there is no evidence of any laboratory results, showing the present state of his liver function or the absence or presence of any alcoholism. The Tribunal recommends that the Applicant arrange to see his family physician and that laboratory results of liver function tests, GGT and MCV be sent to the MTO. If they are favourable, then, serious consideration should be given to the reinstatement of his driving privileges.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective October 10, 2009, of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 18, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

A Medical Condition Report was completed by Dr. T., a family physician on April 21, 2010, pursuant to Section 203 of the Act.

> Alcohol Dependence
> Neuropathy secondary to alcohol.

The Applicant was a patient of Dr. T. for 21 months and was stated to be aware of the report. The Registrar informed the Applicant by letter on June 23, 2010, that it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for re-instatement, he was required to have his physician complete a Substance Abuse Assessment form. If, as a result of this assessment, a diagnosis of alcohol dependence was confirmed, he must provide confirmation that he has been alcohol-free for one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

In addition, he must file an up-to-date assessment referencing the reported neuropathy with the results of all investigations his doctor has initiated, the diagnosis, treatment, current status and prognosis. He was advised of his right to request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

The Registrar received no further medical information. The Applicant did not request an Administrative Review.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant stated that he has been attending Dr. T. once a month, mostly for repeat prescriptions and management of his anti-coagulant. He has atrial fibrillation and also attends a cardiologist twice a year. His medications are: Warfarin, Crestor, metoprolol, digoxin, ramipril and allopurinol.

He stated that he does remember his visit to the doctor on April 21, 2010 but does not remember being informed that a report was to be sent to the Ministry of Transportation.

He stated that he does not have a problem with alcohol but that he does have a drink of wine occasionally and has never been advised to stop drinking. He stated that he knows nothing about the reported neuropathy and denies having neurological symptoms.

He retired from his job with the electrical department of the Ministry of Transportation after twenty years and has never had a problem driving for over sixty years. Since retirement, he has done volunteer work, mostly with seniors. He has received many complimentary character references since the suspension.

After he received the notice of suspension, he saw Dr. T. who made copies of the Registrar's letter of June 23, 2010 together with the Substance Abuse Assessment form. After two weeks, he saw the doctor again and was told that the medical report required had not been completed. No laboratory tests were ordered other than his regular test for anticoagulation.

He changed doctors and now sees a Dr. S.

ISSUES

> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report of alcohol dependence and neuropathy secondary to alcohol, filed by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act, on April 21, 2010. This required the Registrar to issue a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1)(b)(g) pending receipt of a detailed medical report.

2. Regulation 340/94 states: An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Applicant has failed to arrange for the Registrar to receive an up-to-date detailed medical assessment with reference to his reported alcohol dependence, including a completed Substance Abuse Assessment and bio-chemical markers. Further, the Applicant has failed to arrange for a report referencing the reported neuropathy.

3. The Registrar does not have medical evidence that would either refute or support the reported alcohol dependence.

4. CCMTA Standard 13.2 states that patients with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence may not drive any motor vehicle for twelve months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.

The Applicant acknowledges that he has failed to arrange for the Registrar to receive the requested assessments and undertakes to arrange with his new family physician to complete the requested reports.

The Tribunal finds:

` 1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act, effective July 3, 2010 upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report of alcohol dependence from a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

2. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under Regulation 340/94 of the Act upon failure by the Applicant to arrange for the Registrar to receive a detailed medical assessment and Substance Abuse Assessment regarding the reported alcohol dependence and neuropathy secondary to alcohol.

3. In these circumstances, the onus is on the Applicant to provide medical evidence that he is not dependent on alcohol to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated July 3, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. DAVID W. HURST, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 16, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS:

Mr. Biel, Agent for the Registrar, explained that his file summary included details of the events of a Tribunal hearing held on May 3rd, 2005, involving the Applicant and a second Tribunal hearing held on June 26th, 2008, conducted by this Member.

Mr. Biel requested that proceedings of today's Tribunal begin with consideration of the events since the last Tribunal hearing held on June 26th, 2008.

This Tribunal today concurred with Mr. Biel's request.

FACTS:

In the 2008 Decision, specifically the Application of the Law to Facts, the Tribunal held:

There is one medical report from Dr. M., which reviews the Applicant's entire history of mental > problems (bipolar disorder), including a detailed review of the Applicant's treatment with various mood altering drugs. The Applicant's bipolar disorder has proved to be serious, with difficulty in achieving a stable mental state, particularly with the Applicant's consistent lack of compliance. The Applicant with his presentation shows remarkably little insight into his problem with numerous paranoid statements, and it is clear that with his record of multiple driving offenses, at the present time he should not have his driving privileges restored. He needs very close medical supervision, with good compliance. Satisfactory reports to the Ministry of Transportation (the "MTO"), will be needed for them to consider reinstatement. Part of the Applicant's present difficulties consists of the fact that there have been almost no medical records provided to the MTO for 2½ years; nor does the Applicant demonstrate any plans to co-operate in this regard. This situation leaves the Tribunal with no alternative in the interest of maintaining safe driving standards, but to agree with the MTO's position.

Mr. Biel then referred to a brief letter from Dr. R.S. dated April 5th, 2010. It was addressed "To Whom It May Concern", re: the Applicant.

> This man is my family practice patient. He has asked me to write to you on his behalf, to effect a reinstatement of his licence to drive. He states that his licence was pulled because he is bipolar, and needs to show adequate treatment for bipolar disorder before reinstatement is possible. Can you please inform me, what does the Ministry actually need to effect a reinstatement? Is there anything I can be doing that would be helpful to my patient? Signed Dr. R.S.

This doctor also included a family history of the father with a CVA, mother with rheumatoid arthritis and the diagnoses for the Applicant:

1. hypertension
2. diabetes
3. elevated LFTs (liver function tests) – excessive alcohol intake

His medications included:

1. Amlodipine besylate
2. Multi-vits

The doctor noted that the Applicant needs a blood pressure check and that he has been consuming 12 alcoholic drinks per week.

On May 15th, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging their receipt of the letter from Dr. R.S. dated April 5th, 2010. The MTO stated that it will be necessary to file an up to date assessment from the Applicant's treating physician or psychiatrist. The MTO went on to state that this assessment must confirm 6 months of stability since post-discharge, current treatment, and hospital discharge summary of most recent events. It must also make reference to the following details:

> Details of ongoing compliance and frequency/rapidity of decompensation, signs of impaired judgment, reduced concentration, reckless/aggressive behaviour and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication. Confirmation of mental/emotional stability and current level of function is also required.

Upon receipt of the assessment, the MTO stated that the Applicant's case will be considered for reinstatement.

On June 22nd, 2010 Dr. R.S. corresponded with the MTO for the Applicant. He stated that he found this man physically and emotionally able to drive an automobile.

> "I have not prescribed him Lithium, nor do I anticipate doing so."

No other details were presented.

On July 23rd, 2010, the MTO again wrote to the Applicant indicating in their letter that the June 22nd, 2010 report by Dr. R.S. provided insufficient information in order to determine if the Applicant's licence could be reinstated. They asked for a further detailed assessment from his treating physician.

They went on to state that the assessment must indicate the Applicant's current status, treatment, current level of function and the discharge summary from his recent hospitalization and the Applicant's psychiatric condition. The report would include the reason for the discontinuation of Lithium. In addition, the report must provide details regarding the Applicant's compliance, frequency of appointments, signs of impaired judgment, frequency/rapidity of decompensation, reduced concentration, reckless or aggressive behaviour and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication. Confirmation of a minimum 6 months period of ongoing mental and emotional stability was also requested.

Mr. Biel indicated that the Ministry has received no further information since July 23rd, 2010. He pointed out that the Applicant's file with the Ministry contains no added information on the Applicant's progress for 5 years and that they need more medical details.

Mr. Biel went on to review the pertinent segments of the 2009 annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act, and then reviewed the Applicant's driving record.

Also included was the pertinent section of the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, in particular sections 11.1, 11.2, and 11.3 dealing with mental disorders in driving, emotional disorders, and personality disorders.

Mr. Biel then entered a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record. This showed a multitude of infractions and he specifically drew attention to page 8 of the record stating that since May 3rd, 2005, there had been many offenses, such as driving with no insurance, driving while suspended, driving without a "valtag" (licence plate sticker), and driving with an unpaid fine. Mr. Biel emphasized that the Applicant has been driving without a licence.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE:

The Applicant stated that he didn't have much to add to his story. He described the multiple traffic infractions due to speeding in his "early days" when he was a delivery man for a pizza firm. He stated that he was “stupid”. He then underscored the fact that his doctor says he is fit to drive and therefore he can drive. He described his medication as that of blood pressure pills only. When asked by the Tribunal why he was not taking Lithium, he stated that he never was bipolar.

Recently, while drinking with friends, they decided that he was quite drunk and should be taken to hospital. He described no other reasons for the hospitalization. He disputed the diagnosis of diabetes, indicating that it was a one time blood reading only (7.1) and that he is not being treated for diabetes. He went on to complain that he cannot even get on a waiting list to see a psychiatrist and now his doctor has advised him to get a lawyer. He complained that the MTO has refused his driver’s assessment test.

Mr. Biel at this point carefully explained to the Applicant that eligibility for such a test is not established, the important criteria being that his doctor advises it. There also must be satisfactory medical details provided to the Ministry. Mr. Biel went on to advise the Tribunal that no such medical information has been provided to the MTO.

In reviewing the MTO file, Mr. Biel pointed out 5 years have elapsed since the Ministry received any significant medical information regarding the Applicant. He questioned the Applicant as to whether any hospitalization ever occurred in the interim and the Applicant indicated that there were “a few”.

The Applicant testified as to the recent drinking events with friends. His “drunken” friends were not hospitalized but the police felt the Applicant should be taken to hospital. Mr. Biel then questioned why the Applicant failed to comply with the Ministry’s requests on May 15th and June 23rd of this year for further medical details and asked whether these requests had been taken to his doctor. Mr. Biel also pointed out that the Applicant’s doctor had not responded to any letters from the MTO. The Applicant had no explanation, but stated that he is prone to losing his temper with his doctor. Mr. Biel then questioned the Applicant as to whether he ever felt bipolar; his answer was no and that he only suffered from depression.

MR. BIEL IN SUMMARY:

Mr. Biel pointed out the criteria for suspension of the Applicant’s driving privilege listed in the section 47(1) of the HTA with emphasis on clause 47(1)(g). He reviewed medical suspensions that had been applied in 2000 up to 2004, and the significant history of mental illness. He reviewed the Applicant’s record of poor or reckless driving. He reviewed the Applicant’s failure to obey medical advice and drew attention to item 24 in his summary (Medical Condition Report) dated January 6th, 2005, with the history of substance abuse disorder and a history of non-compliance with treatment for bipolar disorder. Mr. Biel underscored the fact that the Applicant had taken no treatment for his bipolar disorder since 2005.

Mr. Biel reviewed the pertinent section of the HTA submitting that there must be no mental, emotional, or any psychiatric disability to interfere with safe driving. He then underscored the fact that the Applicant has appealed twice to the Licence Appeal Tribunal and on both occasions the Ministry's position has been confirmed. He then went on to summarize the Applicant's 22 driving infraction convictions, including speeding, careless driving, driving with no insurance, unsafe movements on the highway, driving under suspension and two collisions. He then noted that in the Applicant's last appeal, he showed his lack of insight into the problem. Mr. Biel noted that the Applicant's family doctor's reports were very sparse and the replies to the MTO at times were "one liners only". Mr. Biel explained that to drive safely one needs emotional stability and good judgment and that in this case the Applicant is a poor driver with lack of insight. He indicated that the Applicant is noncompliant and still has a significant medical psychiatric disorder.

At this point, questions from the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant no longer uses marijuana and has not done so for the past 8 years. He has not taken any pills for pain control for 3½ years and is only on blood pressure medication. The Applicant admits to using alcohol every week, usually on weekends with friends. He is a non-smoker.

THE APPLICANT IN SUMMARY:

He stated that his doctor assures him that he is being discriminated against by the Ministry but that he will once again try for the doctor to provide further medical details.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The decision of the MTO to continue the suspension of the Applicant's licence is based on section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

This hearing was conducted electronically, making it difficult for the panel to assess the Applicant's current mental status without actually conversing with him in person. As well, not only is the Ministry unable to accurately assess the current medical/mental status of the Applicant, no updated information has been provided at today's Tribunal hearing. The Applicant's doctor has not explained why Lithium has been discontinued.

The Applicant has twice previously appealed to the Tribunal to have his driving privilege reinstated and on both occasions the position of the Ministry has been confirmed. The Applicant has provided no further convincing evidence of a satisfactory mental status and at the same time has again displayed lack of insight into his problem and a tendency to noncompliance (e.g. driving while licence is suspended).

The Registrar today has provided:

(1) a detailed review of the Applicant's driving offenses,

(2) clear evidence that the Applicant has been unable or unwilling to comply with the Ministry's repeated requests for further information (no further details for 5 years), and
(3) sufficient evidence of mental health issues to support the suspension.

Nothing has been presented today by the Applicant to convince the Tribunal that he no longer suffers from a mental, emotional and medical disability likely to significantly interfere with his driving safely.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Ministry's current position of the Applicant's licence suspension pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

It is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

Psychiatrist Dr. L. sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") on November 19, 2007, in which she reported that the Applicant suffered from the medical condition of Dementia or Alzheimer's Disease. The doctor elaborated as follows:

> Mr. X <the Applicant> has had a diagnosis of mild cognitive impairment and has been functioning well. However, with significant stressors in recent months he has started to deteriorate.

> On the TRAILS B test his score is significantly impaired. The level of impairment he shows is predictive of driving problems. The history of his driving that we have received recently, (from sources other than the patient), suggest that he is having difficulties with driving. I am advising that he have an on-road test. In the interim he has been advised to refrain from driving.

When MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

The Applicant saw neurologist Dr. T. #1, who sent a consultation report to the Applicant's family physician, Dr. T. #2, on January 25, 2008. In the early part of this report, the doctor commented that there had been some concerns about cognition over the past couple of years. The doctor found the neurological examination to be essentially normal. The doctor wrote, in conclusion, that the main issue was the patient's cognitive status and noted that he intended to arrange for a cognitive assessment.

A Cognitive Evaluation was carried out at a hospital out-patient department by Occupational Therapist Mr. M. on April 18 and 23, 2008. In conclusion, it was written:

> Evidence of cognitive impairment represents a potential challenge to this gentleman's driving capacity. A formal driving evaluation is recommended.

Driving evaluation testing was carried out on July 31, 2008. In the report, it was written that the assessors felt the Applicant's performance in the on-road assessment was inadequate to safely and independently operate a motor vehicle. It was recommended that the Applicant take 12 hours of in-vehicle driver improvement sessions.

An MRI test of the brain was carried out on the Applicant on September 13, 2008. The "Impression" section of the medical report states:

> Nil acute MR brain

A consultation examination was carried out on the Applicant on March 16, 2009, at a Geriatric Centre by Dr. P. In the report, the doctor reviewed the medical history of the Applicant and described the examination. The doctor decided to change some of the medications of the Applicant, and under "Impression" concluded that she was not convinced the Applicant had a true diagnosis of dementia.

The Applicant attended another driver assessment on October 30, 2009. The following was written, in conclusion:

> Mr. X's <the Applicant> driving errors were outside the range of normal, healthy drivers and beyond reasonable road safety as defined through research. Driving cessation is strongly recommended.

Dr. R. examined the Applicant and sent a report to MTO on May 21, 2010, writing as follows:

> Mr. X <the Applicant> don't have any cognitive deficit or psychiatric disorder which limits his ability to drive a car in his NEIGHBOURHOOD.
> (sic)

The Applicant's Evidence

When the Applicant was asked what he wanted to say for the record, he was articulate and fluent, yet somewhat rambling. From this and from what he had written, it was clear that he has had a distinguished career in the Canadian Armed Forces during and after World War II, rising to the rank of Major. He has been a member of the Canadian Legion for over 65 years.

The Applicant has been driving cars for many years and considers that he drives as well as anyone else. If he was to regain his driver's licence, he would not drive after twilight and not in densely congested areas. When he was being evaluated at one of the driving centres, there was some concern that he was using both feet for the brake and the gas pedal instead of only one. He stated he was used to doing this for many years and he finds no difficulty with doing this. He also stated that his eyesight and hearing are fine.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
> on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant's wish to be able to return to driving.

The Tribunal notes that the diagnosis of "Dementia or Alzheimer's" or "Cognitive Impairment" has been made on several documents, namely those of Dr. L. (November 19, 2007), Dr. T. #1 (January 25, 2008) and Mr. M. (May 2, 2008). On the other hand, somewhat inconclusive opinions were expressed by Dr. P. (March 16, 2009) and Dr. R. (May 21, 2010). Nevertheless, the Tribunal is aware that individuals suffering from these conditions may be safe drivers, while others may not.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant had driving evaluations carried out at two centres. At the first one (July 31, 2008), the report read:

> Mr. X's <the Applicant> performance in the on-road assessment was inadequate to safely and independently operate a vehicle.

At the second centre (October 30, 2009), the final report read:

> Driving cessation is strongly recommended.

In view of the recommendations and opinions of the two driving assessment centres, the Tribunal has decided that the decision of the Registrar should be upheld.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective December 15, 2008, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 27, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

Registrar's Evidence

Dr. S, (Psychiatrist) sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) on July 23, 2009 in which she reported that the Applicant suffered from the medical condition of Stroke/TIA or head injury, "which may make it dangerous for the person to operate a motor vehicle". The doctor further elaborated as follows:

> Fell down a flight of stairs resulting in brain injury with cognitive deficits.

When the MTO received this report it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

The Applicant's family physician, Dr. M, sent a report to the MTO, dated June 1, 2010 in which he wrote the following, (not all legible):

> I saw X (the Applicant) on April 18, 2010. She had some residual right-sided weakness but was? well on her own and walking?.Her BP was 140/100. She states no longer?. I felt she was fit enough to go for road testing to assess her ability to return to driving.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on July 6, 2010 informing her that a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre was required.

In the Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated July 2, 2010, there are no convictions, discharges or other actions. The Current Demerit Points are zero.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that she fell down some stairs in April 2009 and was taken into a hospital and was seen and examined by a doctor for about five minutes and then put into a rehabilitation hospital, which she felt she did not need.

On questioning, she said that she was in this rehabilitation hospital from the time she was admitted in April until July 1, 2009, that is over two months. She was asked whether she had made a request to her physician for arrangements to be made for a driving test, and she said that she had not.

She said that when she went home from the hospital she was driving her car, (until she was not allowed), just as well as before, and had no problems. She has a "Five Star" rating for driving from her Insurance Company. She lives 18 Kms from the nearest town and badly needs to drive, since she has to rely on kind friends and neighbours for getting her groceries etc, and the friends and neighbours are not always available, and also she does not like bothering them.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,
on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal recognises that the Applicant has an excellent driving record and that she has the strong feeling that she can drive as well now as she used to before she fell down a flight of stairs.

The Tribunal notes that, after she presented to the hospital in April 2009, after falling, she was required to stay over two months in a rehabilitation hospital. The Tribunal also notes that in Dr. M's report of June 1, 2010, he wrote that there was "some residual right sided weakness." Also noted is that the MTO has informed the Applicant that a satisfactory driving evaluation is required, but that this has not been done.

The Tribunal considers that a satisfactory assessment from a neurologist and a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre are of great importance before consideration can be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privilege.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: SISTER OF APPLICANT Agent for Applicant

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Respondent
Representative for the Minister

DATE OF HEARING: August 4, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

An interpreter was sworn on behalf of the Applicant. The Applicant was represented by his sister.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case:

A letter dated March 20, 2010 was sent to the family physician, Dr. S. and copied to the Registrar, by a neurologist, Dr. M. pursuant to Section 203 of the Act.

> Thank you very much for referring this gentleman to see me.
> He is a truck driver who has had a couple of seizures, one six years ago and one in December.

> On both occasions he had been at parties and had drunk a little bit too much alcohol.
> He has never had seizures before these two.
> He drinks two or three glasses of whiskey per night.
> His CT scan of the head is normal.
> I am getting an MRI of the brain as well as an MR angiogram because his seizures are preceded by headache.
> Physical Examination: on examination cranial v=nerves are normal. Motor examination is normal. Sensory examination is normal Reflexes are equal and symmetric. Cerebellar examination is normal.
> I told him and his wife that in this country as in the United States where he used to work just before moving here he cannot be a truck driver nor even drive a car if he is seizing and he should completely stop drinking if he wants to be a truck driver because there is no way he would be allowed to drive a truck if he is someone who occasionally seizes following drinking.
> His wife and he swear that he will stop drinking but unfortunately we have to report him to the Ministry of Transportation which I am doing with this letter.
> I hope over time that his promise of not drinking will actually be real in which case he should be able to drive even a truck considering that he seizes so very infrequently and that invariably it is a bit too much alcohol that drives his seizures.
> I will write to you again after the MRI and the EEG.

On May 25, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that his driving privilege was suspended under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act due to:

> Seizure(s) – Alcohol Related

The Registrar further informed the Applicant that In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for an up-to-date report that includes the results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. An Alcohol Assessment Form must also be completed. If his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and/or that he has experienced an alcohol withdrawal or alcohol related seizure, the assessment must confirm that he has remained both seizure free and abstinent form alcohol for a period of one year. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

An Alcohol Assessment Form was completed on June 16, 2010 by the Applicant's family physician, who has known him since October 2006.

Health History:

Seizures ? questionable

According to patient, he never had seizures. On December 22, 2009 he took three drinks (usually takes 1-2 on weekend). And drink was mixed and after 3 drinks, he does not know what happened, probably he lost consciousness. However there was no convulsion Investigations, i.e. MRI & EEG results are not here (waiting).

Physical Assessment:

Blood pressure, liver exam, Neurological Exam: Normal

MCV, GGT, AST ALT: all within normal range.

History of Use;

First use: 23 years
First intoxication; He states that he was never intoxicated but on December 22, 2009 he took 3 drinks & drink was mixed and that is when the incident occurred.
Normally uses 2 drinks
Largest period of absence in last 2 years. Never drinks regularly
Age of first regular use: only on weekend
Frequency of Use; On weekend
Most recent use; April 20, 2010
Date of Reduction or Absence: April 20, 2010

Treatment:

Never used Alcohol on regular basis.
No previous treatment
No period of abstinence following treatment
12 Step Program not used
No participation in Relapse Prevention

Audit:

Two or four drinks a month
Has 1-2 drinks when drinking
Never five or more drinks on one occasion
Never has been unable to stop drinking once started
Never in the past year has been unable to do what was expected
Never in the past year has needed a first drink in the morning to get started.
Never In the past year had a feeling of guilt or remorse after drinking Never in the past year has been unable to remember what happened the night before because of drinking Never has or someone else been injured as a result of his drinking
Never has a relative or friend or other health worker been concerned about his drinking or suggested that he cut down.

Total Audit Score: 3

Diagnosis:

> Does not drink regularly
> Has already stopped even on weekend
> Stopped 2010/04/06
> Laboratory results dated June 4, 2010: MCV, GGT, ALT, AST all within normal range.
> CT of Head dated December 27, 2009: normal
> EEG dated March 26, 2010; Normal

A letter dated June 18, 2010 signed by the neurologist, Dr. M. received by the Registrar stated:

> This gentleman has now had his EEG and it is completely normal.
> As you know his CT scan of the head is also normal.
> Given these results, I can say now that he does not have epilepsy.
> As you know he had alcohol-related seizures and his family doctor is documenting that aspect. My own impression is that he has learned an important lesson in drinking. I do not expect this is a problem anymore.

MAC CASE SUMMARY: dated July 14, 2010-08-05

> Medical Advisory Committee: Request an assessment from a physician specializing in Addictions Medicine. The report must provide a complete medical assessment and a full alcohol use history. Furthermore the report must indicate if the disease of alcoholism is present, and if so what is the recommended form of treatment. The report must also include an interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT & AST) with a clinical explanation for any level outside the normal laboratory range. Report to comment on driver two seizures alcohol related.
> Reasons: MAC notes discrepancy in amount of alcohol consumed. Treating physician states 1-2 drinks per weekend and neurologist states 2-3 drinks of whiskey per night. Driver has had two seizures both alcohol related. Despite the serious medical consequences the driver continues to consume alcohol above minimal risk level (2-3 drinks per night). Request assessment from an addictionist.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on July 18, 2010 of these requirements.

The Applicant's Case:

The Applicant through his interpreter stated that he was employed as a long distance truck driver with a co-driver driving regularly to the U.S. On the night of December 22, 2009 he was not working and he had one beer at his home and then had a drink of rum at a relative's house nearby.

He awoke next morning with a severe headache and the next day went to his family doctor with his wife. He did not have a seizure, did not bite his tongue or wet himself. He did not lose consciousness. A physical examination was not performed. Dr. S. referred him to a neurologist whom he saw in March. He was accompanied to the appointment by his wife who spoke in English to the neurologist. He states that the information on the neurologist's report of March 22, 2010 was based on what his wife told the doctor.

He informed the Tribunal that he had an arranged marriage and that his wife arrived from abroad about six months previously and wished to end the marriage, claiming that he was not educated enough for her. He states that she told the neurologist that he had a previous seizure and that he had a drinking problem. Later he learned that she claimed that he was an alcoholic and that she was preparing a case for divorce and for the Immigration authorities. She moved out of the house on June 22, 2010 and returned on July 9 with a police officer to collect her belongings. He provided the police occurrence number to the Tribunal.

He states that he never had a seizure in the past and that he did not have a seizure on the December 2009 occasion. He began to consume alcohol six years previously. The quantity of alcohol as stated on the neurologist's report was stated incorrectly based on misinformation provided by his wife. He does not drink 2-3 glasses per night as stated by the neurologist because he has to work next day. On the second visit to the neurologist in June 2010 he was accompanied by his sister and was then made aware of the contents of the letter of March 20, 2010. His sister informed the neurologist that the information given by the wife in March was incorrect but he (the neurologist) did not wish to be involved in the domestic situation.

He gave the family doctor his history of alcohol use as stated in the Alcohol Assessment Form. He stopped drinking completely in the first week of April 2010 on the advice of both doctors. He is currently employed in a non-driving capacity by a different employer until he regains his licence.

His sister, who also acted as agent at the hearing, was sworn as a witness. She informed the Tribunal that the Applicant has lived in the basement of her house prior to and during the marriage and still lives there. She has not observed excessive drinking by him in the past and she would know if he continues to drink. She corroborated his statement that he stopped drinking in April.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. The information provided by the neurologist's letter of March 2010, pursuant to Section 203 of the Act, reporting a history of seizures related to alcohol use on December 22, 2010 and also in the past. This was sufficient reason for the Registrar to issue a suspension under section 47(1) of the Act

2. Discrepancy between the quantity of alcohol used as stated by the neurologist and in the Alcohol Assessment Form suggesting under-reporting by the Applicant. Section 14 of regulation 340/94 justified continuation of the suspension based on the history of previous seizure related to alcohol as reported in the neurologist's letter of March 2010.

3. The Medical Advisory Committee recommended continuation of the suspension pending receipt of a report from an addictionist.

4. It would be irresponsible to re-instate the Applicant's driving privilege without new evidence of absence of seizures and abstinence from alcohol for a period of one year or upon a recommendation by an addictionist.

The Applicant relies on:

1. Normal CT scan, MRI scan, EEG, bio-chemical markers that failed to show evidence of epilepsy or continuing alcohol use.

2. Misleading information given by his wife, now estranged, to the neurologist during the consultation in March 2010. This information formed the basis for the neurologist's report to the Ministry.

3. Corroboration by his sister with whom he lives that he does not have a history of alcohol misuse or seizures and that he has stopped drinking completely since April 2010 on medical advice.

4. The neurologist in his report on June 18, 2010 is supportive that the Applicant does not have a condition that may significantly interfere with his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified on issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1) on June 4, 2010 upon receipt of a letter by a neurologist dated March 20, 2010 pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

2. Based on the negative results of CT and MRI scans, EEG, and bio-chemical markers there is no evidence of epilepsy as confirmed by the neurologist's report of June 18,2010.

3. Due in part to the language barrier between the Applicant and the neurologist, and also to a suspicion of misleading information given to the neurologist by the wife of the Applicant, now estranged, the information upon which the section 203 report was made is not reliable.

4. Evidence by the sister of the Applicant, with whom he lives since prior to the incident of December 22, 2009, is credible.

5. The Applicant does not have a medical condition that may significantly interfere with his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 4, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST, M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: DON CARMICHAEL, Agent representing the Applicant

KYLE BIEL, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 3, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Because of traffic problems the Applicant arrived a few minutes late and we had already begun the hearing and took a few minutes to inform the Applicant of how the presentation had proceeded.

FACTS

The Applicant is 74 years old, living in retirement in a remote area.

Two years ago his wife unfortunately died leading to some reactive depression for which his family doctor prescribed two psychotropic drugs – Zyprexa and Prozac.

The Applicant began to realize that he was not feeling mentally as alert as he used to be and went to see a geriatrician, Dr H.D. to try to determine the cause. This consultant questioned the need for the above mentioned drugs which were discontinued. His initial Medical Condition Report dated February 24, 2009, mentioned dementia or Alzheimer's disease in the tick off column.

On March 11, 2009, the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO" or the "Ministry") wrote to the Applicant indicating their receipt of the report stating that he suffered from a medical condition which could impair his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. The Ministry asked that the Applicant arrange to send an up-to-date detailed assessment from a physician familiar with his medical history, a neurologist, or a physician specializing in geriatric medicine. They said this report would evaluate his cognitive functions and confirm that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns. Once this report had been reviewed and approved by the Ministry, the Applicant might be required also to undergo a driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

In August of 2009, Dr. H.D. wrote to the MTO stating that he initially suspected the presence of early Alzheimer's disease and felt that a driving test was warranted to sort out the problem. The Applicant was described as 70 years of age and a retired boxer. There had been a previous myocardial infarction and also depression.

His current medications include:

Lipitor, Aspirin, Eltroxin, Altace, Proscar, Prevacid, Metoprolol and Aricept

He mentioned the previous use of Zyprexa and Prozac and felt that they were negatively influencing his cognition. It caused increased sedation and drowsiness. The doctor stated that since February these two drugs had been stopped and the Applicant was doing "exceedingly well". At the same time he was continued on Aricept, which is a cognitive enhancer, taking 10mg a day.

The Applicant's initial mini-mental status examination showed a score of 24/30 in February. This doctor reassessed him three more times and his most recent mini-mental status score was 27/30. He did have difficulty with the date, the day of the week and on delayed recall, he could remember two or three words. While stating that he was pleased with his patient's progress he felt that the best way to determine his fitness to drive a motor vehicle would be a driving evaluation. The prices for various driving rehab services were provided to him. He found that the Applicant would rather avoid the $600.00 charge and preferred to be examined by the Ministry. This doctor stated that he would leave this decision up to the Ministry.

On September 9, 2009, the MTO corresponded with the Applicant once again stating that they would require a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre.

On November 4, 2009, the Applicant replied to the Ministry refusing a driving evaluation test. Herein he described his management by his geriatrician and pointed out that after eliminating the unnecessary medications (Zyprexa and Prozac) and with the dramatic improvement in his cognitive ability, that the geriatrician felt he should have his driver's licence returned.

The Applicant went on to describe his vigorous fitness program with daily 3 mile runs and bicycling. He also stressed the excellence of his driving record.

On March 1, 2010, the MTO again wrote to the Applicant stating that they required a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre.

Mr. Biel drew attention to Dr. H.D's report (geriatrician) dated August 6, 2009, stating that the best way to determine the Applicant's fitness to drive would be a driving evaluation.

On March 22, 2010, the Ministry again wrote to the Applicant stating that to determine whether he can safely operate a motor vehicle he must have a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre.

Mr. Biel completed the Ministry's presentation drawing attention to pertinent sections of the Highway Traffic Act and the deliberations of the CCMTA. He pointed out that these standards allow licensing where memory impairment or mild dementia is present if the driver's evaluation test is satisfactory.

The Applicant's Case
(Presented by his Agent – Mr. Carmichael)

The Applicant indicated that he had no questions and stated that he understood the position of the MTO. He then presented documents pertaining to his problems, listed as Exhibit #3. The initial page of these documents explained the reason for the Applicant's appeal. His licence suspension was dated March 11, 2009.

He stated that he felt unfairly penalized and his problems began when he was prescribed two psychotropic drugs for his reactive depression by his family doctor. The Applicant stated that he had voluntarily gone to a geriatric specialist, Dr. H.D., and with the elimination of these two drugs (Zyprexa and Prozac) there was a dramatic improvement in his cognitive ability. This was documented in a letter by Dr. H.D.

The Applicant then sought help from a consulting neurologist Dr. D.K. This specialist concurred with the geriatrician's findings of the dramatic improvement in cognitive function when the above mentioned two drugs were discontinued. He found that there was no dementia but a mild case of cognitive impairment was considered possible.

The Applicant went on to explain that on his very limited pension income he could not afford the fee for a Driver's Evaluation Test.

At this point questions by the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant had suffered some degree of depression with the unfortunate loss of his wife two years previously. He described how the drugs made him “stupid”, sleepy, and that he could not think well and he noticed his diminished mental capacity. He said that his family doctor had sent him to the geriatrician and that his depression has now pretty well subsided and his mental capacity has increased markedly since discontinuing the two drugs.

The Applicant described his driving record since the age of 16 including multiple tickets for minor speeding offences but none in his later years. He says that he has no demerit points on his licence.

Mr. Biel for the Ministry in Cross-Examination

On questioning he reviewed the fact that the Applicant’s family doctor had sent him to the geriatrician and that his family doctor is still looking after him. The Applicant said he is seeing his family doctor once a year, but could not clearly explain how his renewal of prescriptions was handled. He did comment that Mr. Carmichael was able to look after this problem for him.

Further questioning by Mr. Biel disclosed that the Applicant had become somewhat at odds with his geriatrician, and that he lost patience with him. The doctor said things about the Applicant that he did not consider to be accurate. He indicated that the geriatrician had recommended pills that made him confused and he thought these two suspect drugs were only discontinued on the second visit. There appears to be confusion in his testimony here. On further questioning by the Agent the Applicant stated that during his August visit with the geriatrician he did not recommend a driving test. It was pointed out by Mr. Biel that he had given the Applicant a list of centers where he could obtain the driving test and there was a discussion about cost. Questioning of the Applicant disclosed that he was not at all in favour of a driving evaluation test as requested by the geriatrician. He knew with certainty that he is safe to drive. Mr. Biel then pointed out that the geriatrician very clearly wanted the Applicant to have a driver evaluation test. The reason for this could not be explained by the Applicant. When asked directly why the Applicant was refusing to comply with this request for a driving evaluation he simply stated that it was because of the high cost. He was then given the hypothetical situation wherein the test could be done with no charge and the Applicant said no because of the time delay. He did concede that if he could have the driving test with no charge today or tomorrow he would agree to that.

The Applicant was then questioned about his boxing career with the possibility that there might have been brain injuries. While conceding that he did have blows to the head the Applicant said that had never been knocked down. The Applicant stated that his geriatrician did not incriminate his boxing career as a possible initiating factor in his cognitive difficulties.

Mr. Biel in Summary

He quoted from the Highway Traffic Act the criteria for suspension under the section 47(1) G, items 1 and 1a. He underlined the fact that the geriatrician had felt he should report this matter to the MTO. He quoted regulation 340/94 of the Highway Traffic Act in particular section 14(a) which states that to hold a licence the driver must not suffer from any mental, emotional or physical condition impairing his driving ability, and any report indicative of such problems mandates suspension.

Mr. Biel described the first Medical Condition Report ticked positive for dementia/Alzheimer's disease.

Attention was drawn to the geriatrician's report of August 2009, indicating improvement but that he still felt a driving evaluation was required. Mr. Biel pointed out that it is now one year since the doctor's last report and no driving evaluation has been done. He referred to Dr. K's report which gives very sparse information and no opinion regarding the need for a driving evaluation test. Mr. Biel did indicate that mild cognitive impairment was not incompatible with the driving privilege. He observed that the geriatrician Dr. H.D. still states that an evaluation test would be very helpful. He also underlined that with mild cognitive impairment or mild dementia a Driver's Evaluation Test is required by the Ministry. Mr. Biel informed the Tribunal that the stumbling block in any re-licencing of the Applicant is simply his reluctance to undergo a driving evaluation test said to be due to the high cost. With this comment he indicated the Applicant is not proactive in trying to find a suitable place to have this driving evaluation at possibly a lesser cost. He closed his summary by pointing out that Dr. K. mentioned the possibility of mild dementia, difficulty with memory, but also that there had been cognitive improvement. A Driver's Evaluation Test would be extremely valuable in helping to solve these difficulties.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,

>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The decision of the MTO to suspend the Applicant's licence is based on section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

It is clear today that the Applicant suffered a reactive depression with the unfortunate loss of his wife and also it seems likely that his family doctor's prescription of two psychotropic drugs (Zyprexa and Prozac) led to drowsiness and reduction of cognitive function.

His improvement with the cessation of these two drugs has been extremely satisfactory as noted by his geriatrician and also by a neurologist. The doctors, however, have not clearly stated in writing that the Applicant should automatically have his driving privilege restored. They have avoided such comment by indicating that a Driver's Evaluation Test would resolve any lingering questions. The Applicant's presentation today as a witness was quite satisfactory. He is alert, pleasant and co-operative and shows a clear understanding of the issues involved. He appeared a little confused at times on cross-examination by Mr. Biel, but not in any critical way.

The Applicant's resistance to the repeated request by the Ministry for a Driver's Evaluation Test raises concern for this Tribunal. He simply states that he cannot afford the cost but was cautious of detailed questioning by Mr. Biel with little enthusiasm for taking the test if it were free. The Applicant's persistent reluctance to make any effort to comply with this request raises concerns. It may be that he suspects that he may not do very well.

It is noteworthy that both of the medical consultants have not stated categorically that the Applicant is fit to drive safely at the present time. They indicated that a Driver's Evaluation Test could help to clarify situation. These facts cause concern to this Tribunal which concurs that a Driver's Evaluation Test is necessary in order to eliminate any lingering doubts about the restoration of the Applicant's driving privilege.

The Tribunal notes that the MTO has dropped its request for up-to-dated medical reports. Its insistence on a driver evaluation test is reasonable.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective March 21, 2009 of the Registrar of Motor's Vehicles (the "Respondent") to suspend the driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

It is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEARANCES: MIKE PACZEK, Paralegal, representing the Applicant

VICTORIAN BEDROSSIAN, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 25, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

The Applicant is a 35 year old butcher. His licensing problems began on the evening of January 21st, 2010. His wife came home to find him in an alcoholic stupor/coma and a 911 call resulted in him being transferred to hospital. This generated a Medical Condition Report signed by Dr. N.S. and the information provided was a tick mark in the box for alcohol dependence. This report was forwarded to the MTO who wrote to the Applicant on January 22nd, 2010 indicating their receipt of a report stating that he had a condition which impairs his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. It described the Applicant as suffering from alcohol dependence under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, which required the suspension. In this letter the MTO offered to reconsider the Applicant's case for reinstatement upon receipt of information satisfactory to the Registrar. The Applicant was told to arrange for the MTO to receive a detailed up-to-date report from his doctor which would include:

1: The results of investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

2: Completion of the enclosed Substance Abuse Assessment Form by his treatment physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine.

3: A clinical explanation to be provided for the results of any biochemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

On the 4th of February, 2010 the Substance Abuse Assessment Form was completed by Dr J.R. in combination with the Applicant and then returned to the Ministry, and of course, it is a very detailed and searching document.

Summary of the findings is as follows:

1: Heath History: Psychiatric disorders and hospitalization within the last 12 months are noted.

2: Medical: Admitted to a regional hospital on January 21st, 2010 for alcohol induced coma and discharged 5 hours later. Depression was noted and Cipralex prescribed and used for 6 months.

The remainder of the medical examination was unremarkable. The age when the applicant first used of alcohol was 20 years old and first regular use was from the age of 27 when he was drinking every second day, consuming 8oz of Rye on each occasion. On the date of this coma he had consumed 26oz.

3: Treatment: The Applicant did not receive medical treatment but the Applicant was currently attending the AA on a regular basis. He was scheduled to start a rehab program through his place of employment.

4: Audit - Alcohol Use Disorders Identification Test: In summary this detailed part of the questionnaire displayed some very alarming findings. He was consuming 8 or more ounces on a typical drinking day (every 2 days), showed remorse after drinking about once a week, had suffered one black out (loss of memory of the previous evening's activity), and medical workers were advising him to cut down.

5: Diagnosis: Misuse

6: Recommendations: Abstain, and recommended course of rehabilitation and continuing with the AA.

Biochemical markers included with this part of the presentation showed no abnormalities of the critical liver function tests.

On March 11th, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging their receipt of the Substance Abuse Form and stated that it would be necessary for the Applicant to file an assessment from a physician familiar with his medical history, or a psychiatrist. They asked for a complete psychiatric history, provide a diagnosis, current treatment, date of hospitalization(s) (if any), including a discharge summary if any. It would also make reference to the following: details of compliance and frequency/rapidity of decompensation, signs of impaired judgment, reduced concentration, reckless/aggressive behaviour and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication. Information of mental/emotional stability and current level of function was also required. They said that after receipt of such an assessment they would consider him for reinstatement.

On April 29th, 2010 Dr. J.R. (family physician) wrote to the Ministry indicating his understanding that it was now necessary to file an assessment in light of the Substance Abuse Form dated February 4th, 2010. The doctor included a diagnosis of depression with anxiety and the current treatment was counselling, with a prescription of Cipralex 20mg once daily. He described the Applicant's visit to the local emergency department on January 21st, 2010 for 5 hours due to an alcohol induced coma. He described that the Applicant was a confessed alcoholic but stated that he had not had any alcohol since the emergency room visit. He indicated that the Applicant had no psychomotor retardation due to medication, no reckless/aggressive behaviour, no sedation from medication, no reduced concentration, no signs of impaired judgment, and no signs of non-compliance, (e.g. he takes his medication properly, he has stopped drinking alcohol and he attends AA three times a week).

He described the Applicant as mentally and emotionally stable. He is active around the house and has a full time job with no work issues at all. He asked that the Ministry please consider this case for reinstatement.

The Medical Advisory Committee of the MTO reviewed a report on the Applicant that they had received on the 3rd of May 2010 regarding substance abuse. They advised that he remain suspended but will reconsider reinstatement after a report from the driver's treatment physician or a physician specializing in addictions medicine confirming one year abstinence from alcohol supported by biochemical markers. Earlier re-licensing could be considered upon favourable recommendation from a physician specializing in addiction medicine and the successful completion of an alcohol treatment program.

They describe the driver as a self-reported alcoholic who claims cessation of alcohol since his hospitalization in January 2010 for alcohol induced coma. The MAC asked for a longer period of stability pointing out that the driver has not successfully completed a substance abuse treatment program.

Again on June 3rd, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant noting that the MAC had decided that his driving privilege should remain under suspension. Again they asked that he file a satisfactory medical report with all of the usual details requested.

In this letter they specifically pointed out that re-licensing could be considered upon favourable recommendation from a physician specializing in addiction medicine and successful completion of an alcohol treatment program.

On June 23rd, 2010 Dr. J.R. (Applicant's family physician) wrote to the Ministry that he had reviewed the Applicant several times since he lost his licence. He described his attendance with the AA three times a week and abstinence from alcohol for six months. Appropriate blood tests (markers for liver function) confirm his abstinence from alcohol and enclosed current reports. The doctor would not consider the Applicant to be a danger on the road and felt that his licence should be reinstated. He said the Applicant does not need to see an addiction specialist because "he was only addicted to alcohol" and was then attending the AA three times a week.

On August 5th, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his driving privilege would remain under suspension. Again they asked for a detailed up-to-date report from his treatment physician or one specializing in addiction medicine, and confirmation of one year of abstinence from alcohol supported by biochemical markers.

The Agent then entered a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record showing two entries for minor events including the medical suspension and two current demerit points.

The Agent completed her presentation by reviewing current sections of the 2008 annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act, section 47(1) (g) and O. Reg. – 340/94,14(b), and also pertinent sections of the CCMTA including section 13.2 regarding alcohol dependency.

The Applicant's Evidence

Mr. Paczek's only question showed that the only document received by the MTO which pertained to these licensing problems was the single medical condition report of the events of January 21st, 2010 with alcohol induced coma.

Mr Paczek introduced the Applicant as his witness who then described the events of the evening of January 21st, 2010. He described his day off; his wife was still at work and he consumed 750ml of rye whisky over an eight hour period.

His wife came home, found him in coma and had him transferred to hospital. The Applicant explained that he had never done anything like this before and has never passed out while drinking. He described being apparently held at the hospital for 5 hours and then released with no instructions, medications, or follow up plans. He did state that he could not recall the events of that visit.

The Applicant described his first visits to the AA two weeks after that evening of coma and stated that he is still a regular participant with the AA. He denied receiving any other professional treatment. He stated that he plans to remain with the AA as they explained to him that he had a problem with alcohol and he denies any further plans to drink again, he described the awful experience of losing his licence which opened his eyes. He denied any problems with his marriage and said there were no issues at work. The Applicant explained that he is well aware that he has a problem and that he is getting help and that this will not happen again. He denied having any urge to drink now and said he has sponsors with AA that are ready to help immediately if such an event should occur.

At this time questioning from the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant is 35 years old and began to drink when he was 20, and this would be once a week at social events and always rye whisky. He then drank 2 – 3 drinks in an evening up to the age of 28 and slowly increased this volume to 4 – 5 drinks an evening perhaps twice a week.

This progression became more serious and in his early 30's he was drinking more frequently particularly when he was having some problems in his social life. He admitted that by the time he had reached the age of 35 years he was indulging in 6 -8 drinks every day.

He explained that he has not had any alcohol since January 21st, 2010.

Questioning by Ms Bedrossian for the Ministry indicated that the Applicant had taken a brief course of counselling provided by his employer, of weekly sessions over 6 weeks. Questions also disclosed that the Applicant's family doctor was only aware of the drinking problem after the events of January 21st, 2010. The doctor had advised him to seek help from the AA. The doctor did not really advise him to go through a rehabilitation program, because of his conviction that the AA offered the best help. The Applicant also disclosed that he had had no withdrawal symptoms and there is no urge to drink now. The Applicant described his marriage of 3 years that was progressing well.

The Applicant was encouraged to discuss the frequent letters from the MTO and his understanding of their offer to reconsider his situation following the completion of a treatment program. He thought that he had full marks from the MTO because the markers pertaining to his liver function are all normal.

Questions from the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant is not aware of any family history of serious alcohol abuse. He also indicated that his employer, through their local manager, is assisting him in changing his work schedule to enable him to travel by public transit to his job as a butcher.

MS BEDROSSIAN'S SUMMARY:

She described how the solitary medical condition report had triggered all of these events, that the Applicant is currently considered to be a threat to road safety. She stated that the MTO must have current reports of evidence that the Applicant has completed a rehab program and described that the Alcohol Assessment Report clearly indicated that the Applicant is a significant alcoholic. She noted that the MAC for the Ministry has advised continued suspension and wants evidence of 12 months of abstinence and a favourable report from appropriate doctors. She described Dr. J.R.'s letter of June 23rd, 2010 indicating that this is a good letter but drew attention to his statement describing the Applicant's problem as "only alcoholism". The Agent stressed that the guidelines of the CCMTA and the HTA spell out very clearly the matter of a 12 month period of abstinence and the importance of completing a treatment program.

MR. PACZEK FOR THE APPLICANT IN SUMMARY:

He described the incident of coma on January 21st, 2010 as a one time event but admitted that the Alcohol Assessment Form was one of the worst reports he has ever seen. In the Applicant's case he noted that the doctor is expressing no concerns about the Applicant's current ability to drive safely. He described the Applicant as now being abstinent and being well aware of the importance of sobriety in order to work with the sharp cutting equipment as a butcher.

This Agent described the events of January 21st, as a wakeup call and the time when the Applicant "hit rock bottom". He explained that the Applicant is going regularly to the AA which gives him a good support system. His wife is a non-drinker and is very supportive. He stated that the Applicant while a self-confessed alcoholic, understands that this is a life long situation and he is prepared to deal with it.

The Agent pointed out that the Applicant has now been abstinent for seven or more months and urged the Tribunal to decide in the Applicant's favour today rather than adhering to the MTO's need for evidence of 12 months of abstinence, indicating that this is supported by the Applicant's doctor. He then reviewed the Highway Traffic Act where the statue states that the Applicant must not be addicted to alcohol to an extent likely to significantly interfere with safe driving. He indicated that there is no evidence shown here by the MTO that the Applicant is a risk. The Act uses the word "significantly".

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The MTO acted to suspend the Applicant's licence as a result of a solitary medical condition report signed by Dr. N.S. at a regional hospital where the Applicant was taken on January 21st, 2010 suffering from alcohol induced coma. The Applicant, a self-confessed alcoholic, has described in detail the development of his serious problem with alcohol starting at the age of 20 and progressing to these events in early 2010 when he had then developed a habit of consuming 1/3 to ½ a bottle a day of rye whisky.

With the suspension of his licence the Ministry wrote letters clearly indicating that he must demonstrate 12 months of abstinence and should undergo a rehabilitation program. Their position has been reinforced by the stand taken by the Medical Advisory Committee.

As his Agent has indicated the Applicant indeed hit bottom and heard the wakeup call as a result of his alcohol induced coma. It is clear that he has not used alcohol since then and his evidence is supported by repeated laboratory markers pertaining to his liver function. As well his family doctor indicates that the Applicant has things under control and advises that he is safe to drive now.

No evidence has been provided today to suggest that the Applicant comes from an alcoholic background. His Agent has indicated that his client was perhaps immature and acting in poor judgment but it is clear he has concluded himself that he is addicted to alcohol, and it is to be a lifelong problem. This has resulted in a terrible upheaval in his life that he has quickly recognized.

It is admirable that there is now excellent evidence that the Applicant has been abstinent of alcohol for seven months. It is also important in these deliberations to recognize that the Highway Traffic Act and the CCMTA medical standards for drivers, very important documents, clearly address problems of addictions and how they affect a person's driving ability. These regulations assembled by highly qualified experts state that in the case of alcohol addiction the Applicant must provide well documented evidence that he has been abstinent for 12 months and preferably take the rehabilitation program, for even reconsideration to be carried out by the MTO. It is apparent to this Tribunal that the Applicant has indeed had a significant learning experience and is progressing very well in correcting the errors of his ways. Be that as it may, and recognizing his seven months of abstinence, the 12 month interval recommended by the above mentioned regulations, an interval decided upon for very significant reasons, should be supported not only in the interests of the Applicant's health but in the interests of highway safety.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective January 22nd, 2010 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 6, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The wife of the Applicant was present at the hearing.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

A Medical Condition Report was filed with the ministry pursuant to section 203 of the Act by an Emergency Room physician, Dr. S. on March 21, 2010.
Condition: Seizures(s) – Cerebral

"Patient is aware of this report" was checked.

On March 24, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant by letter that it had been decided to suspend his driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for re-instatement he must arrange for the Ministry to receive a detailed up-to-date report from his doctor. The report must include the results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. Also it must make reference to the reported seizure(s), including a narrative of his seizure history, cause and confirmation that he has remained seizure free and whether a diagnosis of epilepsy has been determined.

He was informed of his right to request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

A copy of the E.R. report dated. March 21, 2010 was sent to the Tribunal on April 16, 2010.

It stated that the Applicant was admitted by ambulance at 02:32 with a history of generalised seizures during sleep, lasting approximately ten minutes and witnessed by his wife. This was followed by somnolence and confusion for about twenty minutes. There was a past history of two collapse episodes three to five years ago.

A CT scan of the head was normal, vital signs were normal, and physical examination was normal.

He was directed not to drive and a referral was made to a neurologist.

M.R.I. of the head on April 6, 2010 was reported normal

On April 30, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that he was required to file an assessment from a physician familiar with his history or a neurologist. The assessment must summarize the results of all investigations including an EEG, treatment and probable cause of seizure(s). Reference must be made to current status and a narrative of this and any previous seizure history and confirmation if a diagnosis of epilepsy has been determined.

On July 15, 2010 the Ministry received a copy of a neurologist consultation report prepared by Dr. L. on May 26, 2010 to the Applicant's family physician, Dr. F

> (Applicant) was at home sleeping and around 2 a.m. his wife noted he was clenching his jaw and holding one arm with the other arm and had what appeared to be a convulsive type seizure. He was unresponsive. His wife called EMS. When they arrived he was awake.. He was not confused. There was no Todd's paresis or incontinence but he had bitten his tongue. He says the evening two nights before he had a little more alcohol than usual but not anything significant and was mildly inebriated. He awoke the next morning with a hangover and then worked all day around the house and was very fatigued by Saturday night and went to bed.
> That night he had not drank any alcohol. The next day he returned to his baseline and returned home from hospital.

> A CT scan was normal. An EKG was also normal. He denies a history of febrile seizure or head injury. denies any other problems from a full neurological and general review of systems.
> In summary, this 45 year old gentlemen presents with a history of a generalized seizure overnight and abnormal EEG, consistent with a possible epileptic diathesis with localized spikes coming from the frontal temporal leads. This gentleman likely has localization related epilepsy. As a consequence, I have recommended he go on an anti-epileptic medication. We discussed the many different options and we decided on Lamotrigine. The side effects were discussed, including Stephen Johnson's syndrome and a bad rash. I have given him a titration up to 100 mg b.i.d. over about a month and a half. We discussed the safety issues regarding driving, riding a bike or swimming in deep waters. I have also organized a 3T MRI to look for any focal lesion to explain his seizures. I will have him return to see me as soon as his investigations are done.

On June 23, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that the information provided did not support reinstatement. He was required to arrange for a detailed report from his treating physician confirming that he has remained seizure free for a period of six months, that he is compliant with his anti-epileptic medication, that there are no side effects from the use of the medication and that there are no disqualifying concerns. Lastly this report must include his physician's opinion with respect to current alcohol consumption and its appropriateness considering his medical condition.

A letter from Dr. L. dated July 21, 2010 to Dr. F. was copied to the ministry.

> (Applicant) has been seizure free since March 20th, just over 4 months. He has not yet had his 3T MRI brain scan, but his 1.5T MRI brain was normal. He is on lamotrigine 100 mg BID without any side effects. His wife was able to give me a good description of the seizure she witnessed. There is little doubt that he had a generalized seizure. It would appear to be a localisation related epilepsy from the EEG. I suspect he has a very good chance of remaining seizure free on medication given that he had only a single seizure. The seizure was unprovoked, and not related to alcohol use, therefore he should remain on treatment.
> I will increase his dose of lamotrigine to 150 mg BID which is a good dose for someone his size. I will have him return to clinic in 3 months.

On August 4, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that Dr. L.'s report of July 21, 2010 had been reviewed. He was advised that a six month seizure free period was required, and then he should arrange for an assessment by his treating physician or neurologist. This should confirm that he has been seizure free for six months and that his anticonvulsant medication levels are within therapeutic range.

The Applicant's Case:

In Reasons for appeal the Applicant stated:

1. I did not have a seizure, as alleged by the doctor at the hospital.
2. An automatic suspension without proof of the medical event is inappropriate.
3. I have undergone several medical tests to confirm there was not and there is not a medical issue (MRI, CT scan, blood tests, ECG). I am a healthy 44 year old with no medical issues or history.

4. The delay in reinstating my driver's licence pending a simple EEG test (which will take months apparently), and then delay in reporting and consideration by MTO is a significant burden and not appropriate in the circumstances.

In evidence before the Tribunal the Applicant repeated his assertion that he has never had a seizure since no medically trained person witnessed him having a seizure.

On the night of March 21, 2010 he says he had been in a deep sleep and was dreaming and awoke to find EMS, Fire and Police in his room. He was placed on a stretcher but did not want to be taken to hospital. He was given some medication by the EMS and awoke in the hospital where a doctor told him his CT scan and ECG were normal. He was asked if he used drugs and he was told not to drive until seen by his doctor. Next day he found that he had bitten his tongue.

After his discharge he saw his family doctor, Dr. F. who arranged for the MRI and blood tests. He states that he was not aware that MTO was to be notified by the E.R. physician and was surprised when he received the notice of suspension.

Regarding the reference to previous episodes he related that after his parents died about six years ago he passed out in his office. The second episode consisted of fainting in his bathroom. He did not have seizures on either occasion

The Applicant's wife was affirmed and gave evidence of witnessing her husband shaking in his sleep, grabbing his left arm which was stiff and vibrating. She was unable to wake him and she called 911. The EMS, Fire Department and police arrived in about five minutes. She did not accompany him to the hospital as she had children to care for.
She accompanied her husband to the neurologist for his second visit and described to him what she observed.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1)(b)(g) authorised the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's driving privilege upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report filed by a physician under section 203 of the Act stating that the condition was seizures – cerebral.

2. Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

   > An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

The neurologist in his letter to the family physician on July 15, 2010 and received by the ministry on July 26, 2010 stated a diagnosis of epilepsy based on an abnormal EEG and on the history of seizure during sleep. As a result he prescribed anti-epileptic medication.

3. CCMTA section 6.3.1 states:

The individual with a past history of epileptic seizures should generally not hold any licence other than Class 5 or 6, and then only if he satisfies the following criteria:

a) whether the physician believes the individual is being truthful about the frequency of seizures;
b) whether the physician believes the individual to be a conscientious patient who will take medication in the manner prescribed and follow all the physician's instructions carefully;
c) whether the applicant is under regular medical supervision so that the physician will at once become aware of any further seizure;
d) whether the seizures appear to sign a statement which specifies that it is an offence to make a false declaration.

An applicant who meets all these criteria and who has been free from seizures for six months can usually operate a Class 5 or 6 motor vehicle safely, provided the medication prescribed does not cause significant side effects that would impair driving. This will require a favourable recommendation from the treating physician.

4. The Registrar requires a favourable report from the Applicant's physician confirming a period of six months seizure free, and that the Applicant is taking his medication, before consideration can be given to reinstatement.

The Applicant relies on:

1. He denies that he ever had a seizure based on the lack of evidence by a trained witness.
2. He submits that the Registrar therefore should not have issued a suspension.
3. He submits that the Canadian Medical Association Guidelines for Physicians 7th Edition section 10.4.2 states:

Patients with epilepsy who are taking anti-seizure medication should not be recommended for Class 5 or 6 licensing until the following conditions are met:

- Seizure-free period: The patient should be seizure-free on medication for not less than 6 months, unless seizures with altered awareness have occurred more than once a year in the previous 2 years, in which case the seizure-free interval should be 12 months. With certain types of epilepsy, this period may be reduced to not less than 3 months on the recommendation of a neurologist, stating the reasons for this recommendation. The seizure-free period is necessary to establish a drug level that prevents further seizures without side effects that could affect the patient's ability to drive safely. The anti-seizure medication should have no evident effect on alertness or muscular coordination.

- Patient compliance with medication and instructions: The attending physician should feel confident that the patient is conscientious and reliable and will continue to take the prescribed anti-seizure medication as directed, carefully follow the physician's instructions and promptly report any further seizures. Medication compliance and dose appropriateness should be documented with drug levels whenever reasonably possible.

4. He submits that he is a victim of the Ministry bureaucracy and that if seizures did occur it has taken too long to reach an appeal.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1)(b)(g) of the Act, upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act that stated the condition to be seizures – cerebral.

2. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under regulation 340/94 upon receipt of a report by a neurologist that the Applicant's EEG showed an epileptic abnormality that required anti-epileptic medication. Uncontrolled epilepsy presents a significant safety factor to driver and other road user's safety and the Applicant must accept that the Registrar is responsible for driver safety, despite his denial of this condition.

3. CCMTA standard under section 6.3.1 advises that a seizure free period of six months should elapse before consideration should be given to reinstatement.

4. The Tribunal recommends that the Applicant should arrange for an up-to-date report be sent to the Registrar from the attending neurologist confirming a seizure free period of six months and confirmation of compliance with anti-convulsant medication supported by therapeutic blood levels as recommended by the CMA Guidelines.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated April 5, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. DAVID HURST, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: September 7, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Ms Bedrossian informed the Tribunal of recently received information which was entered today as Exhibit 3 consisting of a letter to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO"), dated August 30, 2010 consisting of a positive testimonial, of the Applicant from one of his clients.

FACTS

The Applicant, a 45 year old truck driver first came to the attention of the MTO on an application for a Diabetes Waiver on August 12th, 2003 and signed by Dr. P.D. The next note to the MTO was a driver's licence renewal application dated August 15, 2007 in which the Applicant stated he was not under suspension, did use corrective lenses, and was diabetic.

On January 8th, 2008, the MTO wrote to the Applicant regarding his indication of "yes" to a question relating to his medical condition (Diabetes). The MTO enclosed a questionnaire to be completed and returned.

This form on return disclosed that the Applicant was taking insulin once daily and disclosed no other important factors in the complete health history section.

October 31, 2008 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant, quoting that he was required to use insulin for his Diabetes, and advised that he could apply for a waiver of the Medical Standards. They enclosed a Waiver Application Package, Diabetic Assessment and a Vision Report Form.

The MTO pointed out that the Diabetic Assessment must be completed by his treating physician, diabetologist, internist or endocrinologist. They requested confirmation that he had not experienced any severe hypoglycaemic reaction, confirmation that his diabetic diary with blood glucose tested at least twice daily for the previous 30 days had been assessed and included the number of blood levels which were below four (4). A recently conducted HBA1C result would have to be provided with confirmation that the level is congruent with his blood logs.

The MTO asked that the Applicant sign an enclosed Waiver Certificate and give it, together with his blood logs and the Diabetic Assessment Form, to his treating physician at the time of the appointment.

The MTO asked that these details be completed and returned by December 26th, 2008. His class "D" would be changed to a class "G", which would be mailed.

In the completed driver's questionnaire and Diabetic Assessment Form, it was recorded that the Applicant was taking NPH insulin (45 – 50 units) twice a day. This was new medication and the Applicant was learning how to handle it.

Also noted on the form, that "in the past there was heavy alcohol use which would cause high blood sugars" and recently the Applicant had cut out alcohol totally. He had never used alcohol during work times but would indulge on off days (i.e. Saturday night)". A further note said:

> "the Applicant has had difficulty controlling Diabetes in the past. Part of this is because of cost of medication. He is now trying to prioritize his medical condition and trying to improve control".

This report was signed by Dr. K.G.

January 9, 2009 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging receipt of the Medical Waiver Certificate and Diabetic Assessment Form. They noted that the Vision Report Form in support of his application for a waiver of the Medical Standards as requested in their previous letter remained outstanding. They requested that this report be returned by February 2nd, 2009 to avoid a downgrade of his licence.

February 3, 2009 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging receipt of the Vision Report. They stated they could not proceed with further review of his situation as the submitted visual field chart for his right eye indicated the fixation losses exceeded 15%. They asked for further studies.

July 30, 2009 – A Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC"), case summary was filed with their latest report received December 30th, 2008. A medical condition was described as insulin treated Diabetes and there was a request for a referral because of the need for a medical waiver.

The MAC requested further information. They requested an MTO Diabetic Assessment Form from the driver's treating physician to confirm that no episodes of severe hypoglycaemia had occurred and the diabetic diary or downloadable diabetic log had been assessed and it showed at least two daily blood glucose readings during the last 30 days. The report must also indicate the number of blood glucose readings below four, below three and below two and the result of a recent HB1AC confirmed as congruent with the diabetic diary. Furthermore, they required confirmation of diabetic education and/or re-education. (CCMTA 8.2).

The MAC's reasons were as follows:

> Most current diabetic assessment is stale dated (December/08). MAC notes the driver has a greater than 10% reading below four placing the driver at greater risk for hypoglycaemia. Report of December/08 indicates a follow-up warranted to insure blood sugar monitoring to see if insulin dose changes were required. Furthermore, driver has a history of non-compliance due to financial reasons.

August 6, 2009 –The MTO again wrote to the Applicant stating that his case has been reviewed and that it would be necessary to have an enclosed Diabetic Assessment Form completed either by the family physician, endocrinologist, internist or diabetologist as the previous submitted form was stale.

This letter went on to request the usual reports about his recent experience with his diabetic management.

September 28, 2009 –The MTO wrote to the Applicant stating they had reviewed his case in light of his phone call to the MTO's office. They stated that a review of his driver's record shows that the suspension was issued in error. They said they had cancelled the suspension and amended his record to reflect the changes that have been made. They enclosed a copy of the suspension cancellation notice for his records and apologized for any inconvenience.

A further Diabetic Assessment form signed by Dr. K. G. was sent to the MTO on September 21, 2009. Noteworthy comments included the presence of hypertension and some degree of nephropathy (diminished kidney function). It was also noted that alcohol had been interfering with the control of Diabetes but currently there was decreasing alcohol intake.

October 22, 2009 –The MTO again wrote to the Applicant having reviewed his case and asked for an up-to-date assessment from his physician(s) indicating if the disease of alcoholism is present and if so what the recommended form of treatment is. They asked that an interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV and GGT) be included. They also enclosed a Substance Abuse Assessment Form to be filled in by his physician.

November 30, 2009 – The completed Substance Abuse Assessment Form was returned to the MTO signed by Dr. K.G. This disclosed the presence of liver disease with abnormal liver function tests; GGT was elevated at 68 (5 – 50 normal range) and ALT was 52 (4 – 43 normal range).

In the category of treatment, the Applicant volunteered that he did not consider himself an alcoholic and had only been treated once in hospital because he had indulged in mixed drinks on a Saturday night and became quite ill. He stated that he never drank when driving, and said that his driving history will confirm that.

The audit section which reviewed the Applicant's drinking habits was summarized as showing the presence of alcohol abuse. It indicated that he was receiving help from social workers and had been to AA meetings.

January 26, 2010 – The MAC of the MTO reviewed the Applicant's case. They requested further information and that the Applicant be suspended. They asked for a full assessment to indicate if the disease of alcoholism is present and if so the recommended treatment. The report was to include an interpretation of bio-chemical markers and asked that an addictionist address the driver's statement of being treated in hospital due to alcohol poisoning. The MAC's reasons for the above included the fact that the driver admits to binge drinking and that he was using eight or more drinks per sitting on weekends. They also noted that the driver scored 18 on his assessment, and has three of the DSM-1V criteria. The MAC also noted that the driver has insulin dependent Diabetes and is having problems with compliance due to financial restraints. The MAC also noted the presence of abnormal liver function tests secondary to alcohol use +/- cholesterol medication. In their final statement, the MAC said it would be prudent to have this driver assessed by an addictionist.

The Registrar concurred with the MAC's decision.

March 29, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant reporting on the Substance Abuse Assessment and again asked for a further complete Medical Assessment with all details.

April 27, 2010 – Dr. K.G. faxed to the MTO details regarding the Applicant.

He began by noting that an appointment with an addiction specialist was pending. In this preliminary statement he described the Applicant as a 45 year old man with a history of problem drinking plus recreational use of marijuana. He stated that his medications included insulin, Altace, Norvasc, and Crestor (anti-cholesterol agent).

May 21, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant granting him an extension on the time limit for the next medical report.

May 25, 2010 – A fax was sent to the MTO from Dr. K.G. confirming that the Applicant was to be seen and reviewed at the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health ("CAMH") in June. Dr. K. G. included in this report to the MTO a letter addressed "To Whom It May Concern":

The doctor described himself as the Applicant's primary care physician stating the Applicant was 45 years old and drank only occasionally prior to 2003. "At that time while undergoing financial stress he began to drink alcohol as a coping mechanism." This was described as weekend drinking and never drinking while working. He drank heavily on weekends but never during the work week. On weekends he would drink one to two litres of liquor but never missed any social or work related responsibilities.

In 2008, on one occasion, he mixed various types of alcohol on a Saturday evening with friends (liquor, wine, beer). The next day in the afternoon he developed stomach pains and went to an emergency department. He was there for several hours and during that time received IV fluids.

Another event in 2008 was described as an episode of left arm weakness. This was diagnosed by a neurologist as radial-nerve palsy. It was noted to be caused in this case by an inappropriate sleeping position pinching the nerve and that this was due to excessive alcohol intake. He recovered well from this event.

Dr. K. G. went on to describe the Applicant's effort to reduce his alcohol use.

> He would stop drinking entirely for several weeks or months, but then start again. For the last three months he had not been drinking heavily, with the occasional use of wine on the weekends (three to four drinks over two days).

His wife was described as being annoyed about his drinking but was supportive in their relationship. The Applicant had felt guilt in the past about the amount of his drinking. Latterly (recent months) he came to the realization that it was not good for his overall health. The Applicant was described as never needing a morning drink or using alcohol to cover the feelings of withdrawal. In fact he has experienced no withdrawal symptoms.

The Applicant had never demonstrated periods of violence, domestic abuse, or problems with law enforcement or missed social or work responsibilities related to alcohol use. Laboratory work disclosed some abnormalities. He had a normal AST (36 but slightly elevated ALT 76). Hepatitis A/B/C are negative. Liver ultrasound showed fatty liver infiltrates which may be the cause of an elevated ALT. GGT was also elevated at 82 (normal 5 – 50) which is likely secondary to alcohol intake. Other laboratory abnormalities were said to be related to poorly controlled Diabetes (high glucose) and elevated cholesterol. His MCV was normal at 88.3.

In summary the Applicant was described as drinking excessive amounts of alcohol in the past. The Applicant was motivated to decrease his alcohol and the doctor planned to continue his support of his patient and looking forward to an addiction specialist review of his problems and perhaps the organization of other support services.

June 18, 2010 – Dr. K.G. faxed to the MTO a report addressed (To Whom It May Concern). This note stated that the Applicant had been assessed at CAMH on June 10th, 2010. The doctor asked for a brief extension on the timeframe required by the MTO so that the completed report could be provided.

July 15, 2010 – Dr. K.G. again notified the MTO of a CAMH assessment of the Applicant by a therapist.

July 6, 2010 – The MTO wrote to Dr. K.G. quoting the Act which requires:

> "that every legally qualified medical practitioner, optometrist or police report to the Registrar the name, address and clinical condition for those individuals 16 years of age or over whom in their opinion is suffering from a clinical condition that may make it dangerous for the person to operate a motor vehicle. In addition and in order for the Ministry to accurately identify the individual being reported, we kindly ask that all other relevant information be provided and to ensure that all of the following information is included in the form.
> - Surname/name/initial
> - Male or female
> - Date of birth
> - Complete address
> - Driver's licence number (if available)
> - Signature, printed name and address of either doctor, optometrist, police, clinical condition."

June 29, 2010 – A fax was forwarded by Dr. K. G. to the MTO. This document provided an assessment of the Applicant done by CAMH.

This assessment was a detailed review indicating that there was abuse and included a statement giving the Applicant's episode of alcohol poisoning after an evening of mixed drinks. It described that this was his first time seeking professional help and in the past 10 months, he was no longer drinking liquor but was then using up to a litre of wine over a weekend. It stated that he would like help moderating down to two to three glasses of wine on Saturday and Sunday. He was noted to be a diabetic with hypertension and high cholesterol problems. The CAMH people transferred him to a similar institution closer to the Applicant's home for further management.

July 23, 2010 – The MAC held a further review. They requested further information of the Applicant. They wished to receive a report from the new counselling centre to which the Applicant had been referred by CAMH. It should provide a diagnosis and treatment plan with respect to the driver's ongoing alcohol consumption and provide an opinion if reduced drinking is appropriate in this case.

In their section on reasons they said that while the driver has been diagnosed with abuse of alcohol and advised to abstain, this has not been done. There was no report yet from the new counselling centre.

July 30, 2010 – The MTO wrote to the Applicant and confirmed to him they had decided to suspend his driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Act.

Their letter went on to offer reconsideration of the Applicant's case in September 2010 upon receipt of medical information satisfactory to the Registrar. They wanted an up-to-date detailed report from a treating physician at his new counselling centre giving a diagnosis and treatment plan with respect to his ongoing alcohol consumption and use of THC and stated that this notice of suspension was to replace the previous suspension for failure to give medical reports.

The Agent then submitted a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record with several minor infractions leading up to the suspension for medical reasons on the 30th of July, 2010.

Also submitted at this time were the pertinent sections of the Act and of the CCMTA document applying to the use of alcohol and drugs. At this time, the Agent referred to Exhibits, a letter addressed "To Whom It May Concern" by a client of the Applicant describing him as a valued member of society.

At this time, the Applicant's wife who had presented his case produced new material (Exhibit 4) dated the 10th of June, 2010. This document gave no indication of its origin but possibly may have come from the Applicant's new centre for counselling. The combined efforts of the Tribunal and the MTO's agent failed to glean significant further information.

On page 8 of Exhibit 4, a question and answer series, question 10 said "I plan to go through with the treatment program because not abusing alcohol and drugs is a choice I really want to make", and with this the Applicant was in strong agreement.

August 30, 2010 – The MTO in a letter to the Applicant acknowledged their assessment of results from this document and stated that the assessment requested in their previous letter remained outstanding. They again said it would be necessary to file an assessment from a physician specializing in addictions medicine, or Dr. K.G., which would provide a diagnosis and treatment plan regarding the Applicant's consumption of alcohol and marijuana. The report would also indicate if reduced drinking is appropriate.

THE CASE FOR THE APPLICANT: (presented by his wife)

Her preliminary comments disclosed that the Applicant had been driving in Canada for 19 years and had been a courier for 18 of those years, working 10 hours a day. He had never had an accident due to any medical problems or substance abuse.

She reported that in 2008 the MTO wanted a Driver's Medical Report reporting eye examinations and numerous tests. She said that her husband the Applicant, while drinking vodka (40% alcohol) at a Saturday night event, added other forms of alcohol and had to visit the hospital the next day with abdominal pains.

At that time he stopped using vodka and switched to red wine. She said that socially her husband will smoke marijuana. She said the suspension was hasty and not valid, but admitted that when Dr. K.G. asked her what she would like in this regard, she acknowledged that she wished her husband would stop drinking because even with wine he would drink as much as was available on any occasion.

She pointed out that no doctors have advised her husband to stop drinking and that this advice only had come from her. She then referred to tab 9 of the MTO's presentation, a letter dated March 29th, 2010, when the Ministry asked for conclusion and interpretation of bio-chemical markers. She explained that to have these done they could only be done by physicians who are not available at CAMH or any other counselling centre. She stated that the MTO had suspended her husband as they had not received bio-chemical markers (and with this the MTO's agent agreed). She also lamented that there had been no report on this matter from any doctor who had treated him. Ms Bedrossian agreed that the suspension had been carried out without these bio-chemical markers.

The Applicant's wife noted that in talking with Dr. K.G., she had difficulty getting any useful explanation of the liver function tests (markers) or other "undercurrent" factors such as Diabetes or of Crestor (cholesterol lowering drug) or concerning the report that there was fatty infiltration on the liver.

The Applicant's wife observed that her living with her husband shows that he is not alcoholic and that in fact he can take it or leave it. She stated that since July 30, 2010, he has had no alcohol whatsoever. She continued by informing the Tribunal that her husband is now attending a new counselling centre and he is under severe financial strain from his inability to work and is very worried about providing for his family. She re-stated the confusion surrounding the bio-chemical markers.

THE APPLICANT SPEAKING ON HIS OWN BEHALF:

The MTO's agent did not really know when Dr. K.G.'s letter was reviewed by the Ministry and agreed that it could take a few weeks – hence some of the debate as to whether the markers were considered in his suspension. The Applicant stated that in conforming with the MTO's request, he has gone even further than what they have asked in order to be compliant. Ms Bedrossian stated that in the MTO's letter of March 29th, 2010, they wanted a medical assessment that would indicate if alcohol was still a factor and if the disease of alcoholism is present. She did find that Dr. K.G. didn't fully explain the various factors that could act on the bio-chemical markers, e.g. was it alcohol or was it Diabetes?

The Applicant summarized his presentation and said that his health is paramount and he will do whatever is needed to support his family and will continue with counselling sessions at his new centre near his home. He also offered to go to an addiction specialist as planned for September 13, 2010. His final statement was “he will do all it takes”.

The Agent for the MTO summarized, stating that the MTO needs more information. She noted that a score of 18 in the Alcohol Assessment Form is high and that the DSMIV criteria Alcohol Assessment Form showed that three of the four elements were ticked as indicating possible dependence. This factor plus the high score of 18 underlies the MTO’s concern.

She noted that the bio-chemical markers are significantly elevated, emphasizing the MTO’s concern about dependence or addiction.

She encouraged the Applicant to have further bio-chemical markers sent directly to her in order to expedite this matter.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant’s licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver’s licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver’s licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
> on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant's licencing problems began with his completion of a driver's licence renewal application dated August 15th, 2007 in which he answered yes to a questionnaire about having to use corrective lenses while driving. This had already been disclosed in a waiver application in 2003 when it was stated by an optometrist that he must wear glasses for driving "Class A".

The MTO ultimately asked that the Applicant complete a Driver's Medical questionnaire regarding the presence of Diabetes requiring insulin. More and more requests from the MTO for medical details ultimately disclosed that the Applicant had problems with hypertension and neuropathy being related to his Diabetes.

Comments about the Applicant's heavy use of alcohol were made by his doctor, stating that this could adversely affect his control of his Diabetes with insulin. At one point, (September 28th, 2009), the MTO wrote to the Applicant admitting that they had issued a licence suspension in his case, in error. His suspension was cancelled. The MTO continued their concern with another request for a Diabetic Assessment Form on August 6th, 2009. By October 22nd, 2009, in the MTO's letter to the Applicant, they were expressing concern about his consumption of alcohol. With the disclosures in a completed Substance Abuse Assessment Form and the negative report from the MAC, the Applicant's licence was suspended on July 30th, 2010.

Ultimately the Applicant had to be taken to hospital after a very heavy Saturday night episode of drinking assorted types of alcoholic beverages leading to a serious case of abdominal distress. The MTO today demonstrated to the Tribunal their continued concern about the Applicant's abuse of alcohol which is inconsistent with the provisions of the Act and the CCMTA document. There is an added factor of marijuana use as well.

There has been considerable discussion today about the disturbing findings in the review of the bio-chemical markers stated by the MTO (GGT, MCV and AST as well as the ALT). It is the position of the Applicant that these liver function tests could be out of line because of his Diabetes, hypercholesterolemia and fatty liver infiltrates seen on the ultrasound. At least however, the Applicant's family physician has indicated that his considerably elevated GGT (82 – with a normal range of 5 – 50) is secondary to alcohol intake and with this the Tribunal concurs.

It is the Tribunal's observation that the Applicant lacks sufficient insight into his problem with alcohol abuse or dependence, (he simply wants to be a more moderate drinker of wine instead of liquor). He has developed a serious problem of dependence and total abstinence is the correct management. The minimal requirement as spelled out in the Act and also mandated by the MTO is that the licencee show with medical documentation that he has completely abstained from alcohol for a period of 12 months. It is noted that he has now been abstinent during these recent weeks.

A serious problem has developed here and although for the record, the Applicant never drinks and drives, the facts are clear that the Applicant should continue on his present course of total abstinence with full documentation and follow up by his medical advisors. The 12 months of abstinence prescribed in the Act are clearly applicable in this case.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective July 30th, 2010 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the “Applicant” respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

INTRODUCTION

What could possibly go wrong with a stroll through your neighbourhood on a mid-summer afternoon? As it turns out, there were consequences unforeseen by the Applicant.

EXHIBITS

1. Notice of Suspension from MTO, July 27, 2010.
2. Notice of Appeal filed by Applicant, August 19, 2010.
3. MTO’s Submissions, August 20, 2010.

FACTS

1. The 56-year-old Applicant was walking through her neighbourhood on a hot, mid-July afternoon and while admiring a neighbour's garden, and just three doors from home, turned her ankle and fell.

   Neighbours came to her aid and went to her house, and found nobody home.

   Although the applicant did not lose consciousness, the neighbours were concerned about her condition and called for EMS assistance. The Applicant was brought to a local hospital Emergency Department.

2. The Applicant says she was only brought to hospital because of an elevated blood pressure measurement by EMS personnel on the scene.

3. During her two-hour Emergency Room (ER) visit, the Applicant had three to four brief interactions with the ER physician. She told the physician she had consumed a bottle of wine before her walk in the 32◦C heat.

   When the physician asked if she had a driver's license, the Applicant explained she had declined an ignition interlock device, but was not driving.

4. The ER physician reported the Applicant to the Registrar (Exhibit 3, Tab 1), under Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act, indicating "alcohol dependence".

5. The Applicant has a May 5, 2008, Criminal Code of Canada conviction for Impaired Driving (Exhibit 3, Tab 3).

6. The Applicant had a 90-day ADLS (Administrative Driver's License Suspension), February 17, 2010 (Exhibit 3, Tab 4).

7. Also in Exhibit 3, Tab 4, a driver's license suspension for failure to complete a remedial program.

8. The applicant has not responded to the (July 20, 2010) request for information (Exhibit 3, Tab 2), specifically the Substance Abuse Assessment Form asked for in the MTO's Letter of Suspension.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS

The Tribunal finds the Registrar has made the case that the Applicant's driving privileges should remain suspended. The MTO has proceeded correctly, and without "a detailed, up-to-date" medical report, cannot consider reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privileges at this time.

The Registrar acted correctly when it suspended the Applicant's driver's license (Exhibit 1), upon receipt of a physician's report (Exhibit 3, Tab 1) citing alcohol dependence.

The Registrar also acted correctly in asking for a detailed, up-to-date report from her doctor (Exhibit 3, Tab 2), including completion of the 10-point Substance Abuse Assessment Form.

The MTO states it would be "negligent" to reinstate driving privileges because of Regulation 340/94:

> "an applicant for, or a holder of, a driver's license must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely."

The Registrar cites the recommendations of the CCMTA (July 2006) Council of Canadian Motor Transport Administrators, P43-Section 13.2: "Alcohol Dependence and Alcohol Withdrawal Standards":

> "May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free."

The Registrar also refers to (Exhibit 3, Tab 2) the 6th Edition of the CMA's (Canadian Medical Association) "Guide for Physicians in Determining Fitness to Drive" ~~ Section 5 ~~ "Alcohol".

In the absence of the Applicant's response to the MTO's request for "detailed, up-to-date medical information", the Tribunal has the following evidence on which to assess whether or not the Applicant has an addiction which is likely to significantly interfere with her ability to drive safely:

(i) the report of the ER physician.
(ii) the Applicant's "Notice of Appeal" (Exhibit 2)
(iii) the Applicant's testimony at the hearing.
(iv) the Applicant's driving record (Exhibit 3, Tab 3)

The following are the facts that are most relevant to the issues before the Tribunal. Firstly, the resident ER physician checked off a box pertaining to "alcohol dependence". This is defined in the SSA Form (Exhibit 3, Tab 2A, Page 5) as "the repetitive inappropriate use of alcohol associated with loss of control, inability to abstain, a pre-occupation with obtaining alcohol and withdrawal symptoms."

When the Applicant told the physician that she had been drinking and that she required an ignition-interlock device to drive (but did not), the Tribunal agrees with the ER physician's decision to report the Applicant to the MTO (Exhibit 3, Tab 1).

Secondly, Exhibit 2 (Notice of Appeal), in the Applicant's August 9, 2010 letter, she outlines her costs-to-date around her May 2008 conviction for Impaired Driving. At no point does she indicate any appreciation of the costs or risks for others due to her driving after drinking.

The Applicant further stated she has every right to drink alcohol, and nobody ever told her that she could not. The Applicant stated that the "Back on Track" program does not mention abstinence from alcohol. Successful completion of this program is mandatory for consideration of reinstatement of driving privileges. The Tribunal has reviewed the MTO publication, "Impaired Driving: Alcohol Education and Treatment Program: Back on Track" and the Applicant is correct that the word "abstinence" does not appear in the text. While the Applicant may well have the right to consume alcohol, a driver's license is a privilege.

Thirdly, in testimony, the Applicant does not appear to be aware of the implications of the difficulties facing her neighbours who found her on the street after her tumble, or the risks of consuming a bottle of wine. She refers to a "panic attack" after she had fallen. Most responsible people being unable to assess her condition would have had reason to call "911". The Applicant says she was dehydrated on her walk because "wine is not water". This evidence indicates an incomplete assessment of her own condition.

The Applicant has completed the "Back on Track" program. The Tribunal notes (Exhibit 3, Tab 3, Page 2) a now out-of-date May 22, 2009 license suspension extension for "failure to complete remedial program".

The Applicant repeatedly asserts that she is not an alcoholic, and on July 16, 2010, she was not driving a car, and not even near a car. She did not present any evidence at the hearing because "there is no evidence". She has no understanding that her addiction manifests itself, whether or not she is driving, and is such that she cannot judge the appropriateness and risks of the act of walking after consuming a bottle of wine on a hot, humid summer day.

Finally, the Tribunal is concerned about the Applicant's driving record (Exhibit 3, Tab 3):

(i) A Criminal Code of Canada conviction on May 22, 2008, regarding an Impaired Driving accident on December 21, 2007, and

(ii) A suspension on May 22, 2009, for failure to complete a remedial program.

(iii) An ADLS (Administrative Driver's License Suspension), February 17, 2010. This is an administrative 90-day suspension for failure to provide a breath sample for analysis by an approved screening device.

This record supports the ER physician's conclusion based on the definition of alcohol dependence referred to above. The record indicates long-term, inappropriate consumption of alcohol and the Applicant's inability to make good decisions as to the outcomes and risks of her consumption of alcohol for the safety of the public.

As of the hearing date, the Applicant has not complied with the MTO's request for medical information. Without this information, the MTO and the Tribunal are not able to consider re-instatement of the Applicant's driving privileges.

The Tribunal is concerned that the Applicant is possibly alcohol-dependent and lacks insight into the problem. Given the substantial evidence of alcohol dependence, the Registrar has proven on the balance of probabilities that the Applicant is addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely. The Applicant failed to provide any medical information on which, any other conclusion can be drawn.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated July 27, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. GARRY FISHER, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: September 1, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the “Applicant”) respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Tribunal was convened as a teleconference.

FACTS

The Applicant is a 55 yr old woman who describes herself as “a single parent”. She has three children, one in the late teens and the others in their twenties. She separated from her husband and that domestic difficulty led her to attempt suicide on April 25 2010. A friendly neighbour kept watch on her and went into her house to find her comatose. An ambulance was called and she was taken to a nearby hospital ER where she was assessed, treated, and admitted to hospital.

The ER Dr. filled out a form 203 and wrote in “COMA” and “POLY-DRUG INGESTION”.

> The Applicant was admitted to hospital where she stayed 12 days – 10 days active ward and 2 days rehabilitation. She apparently signed herself out of hospital. She was used to using a sleeping pill on occasion and had a supply of a diazepam. In addition she had some Oxycocet left over from past knee surgery and added an over the counter sleep medicine. The mixture induced a “coma” and she was found and survived.

In July, she moved from the small town she was in to a similar town three hours away. Presently she stays with friends and has a new family doctor, Dr. W. He has given her an anti-depressant drug and she testifies that she is doing well.

The Applicant drove for two months after her release from the hospital in the spring before a letter arrived from the Ministry of Transportation (“MTO”), advising that her driver licence was suspended. With her change of address, she failed to get the second, more specific letter from the MTO. It clearly requests an up to date medical assessment and urinary toxicology reports.

The Tribunal and the MTO have no medical reports, save the form 203.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant’s licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver’s licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

A holder of a driver's licence must not...

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

In this instance, the Applicant did have a significant mental and emotional problem and it was related to a drug overdose. The Tribunal agrees with the MTO that it requires as a minimum a report from the Applicant's Dr. W., accompanied by urine toxicology testing. The Applicant was encouraged to get these reports and to submit them to the MTO. The Registrar's agent will work with the Applicant to help her process her application for reinstatement.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated July 8, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

DATE OF HEARING: September 7, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

The Applicant is a 76 year old farmer whose family doctor of at least 10 years duration on November 12th, 2009 on his own volition, filed a Medical Condition Report with the MTO. In the section of the report concerning common medical conditions the doctor ticked off

1: Alcohol dependence
2: Mental or emotional illness – unstable
3: Dementia or Alzheimer's

In his optional comments he stated that the Applicant was a non-compliant alcoholic with increasing mental and physical disability. He stated in his report that he had been looking after the Applicant for 20 years. He noted that the Applicant was aware of hir report.

On November 23rd, 2009 in a letter from the Ministry to the Applicant they noted that this Medical Condition Report mentioned his alcohol dependence, psychiatric condition, and cognitive impairment.

The Applicant was informed in this letter that under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act an official notice of suspension would be mailed to him. It was effective as of December 3rd, 2009.

The Ministry went into great detail to describe the requirements for them to reconsider his case for reinstatement:

- Completion of the enclosed Substance Abuse Assessment Form by his treating physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine.
- If a diagnosis of alcohol dependence is made, a recommended form of treatment must be indicated including confirmation of abstinence from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced upon the successful completion of an alcohol treatment program and a favourable recommendation from a physician.
- Recent bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT) with a clinical explanation if any results are outside the normal laboratory range.
- Complete psychiatric history (i.e. duration, degree) dates of hospitalizations (if any), including the most recent discharge summary.

Other points were mentioned and in their final instructions the Ministry stated that a clinical evaluation of the Applicant's cognitive functions was required. They went on to say that once this report has been reviewed and approved by the Ministry, the Applicant might be required to undergo a driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

The Agent for the Ministry referred to a Substance Abuse Assessment Form with its preamble and drew attention to the fact that, although this had been forwarded to the Applicant the Ministry had not received a completed form.

The Agent then presented a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record which disclosed the suspension for medical reasons on the 3rd of December, 2009 and also stated that the Applicant had no current demerit points.

The Agent's final submission was the pertinent section of the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers concerning psychiatric disorders and the effects of alcohol.

The Agent said that he had checked the MTO file on the Applicant as recently as the hearing day and informed the Tribunal that no new information had been received regarding the Applicant.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE:

The Applicant told the Tribunal that he is now "off alcohol", and he had consumed no alcohol for nearly 10 months. He went on to inform the Tribunal that he was looking for a new doctor having recently fired his doctor of many years standing (he claims that it is 10 years) as he is "a druggie and a liar".

The Applicant stated that his health is perfect. He had discontinued all his pills (was taking 17 pills a day while in hospital). When questioned, he stated that he was in hospital in mid October of 2009 when he injured his ankle, having upset a skid on his farm. He was hospitalized for 3 weeks. He denied any other hospitalizations in the last several years. He had returned to work on his farm a week previously. The Applicant described his disappointment in his doctor regarding this suspension and stated that he had seen him in March to ask to have his licence returned. He claimed that his doctor told him he did not need a licence and again stated that the doctor appeared to be on drugs on that occasion.

The Applicant described going to the local OPP office for advice about the licence problem and that he had also seen a lawyer about this matter and was informed by the lawyer that he had lost his licence due to his drinking. He then described his drinking habit as that of three 26oz bottles of rye a week, a habit that had been in place from a steady build up from his previous baseline drinking habit over a period of 2 – 3 years. He described the suspension as "unfair". On questioning, he stated that he never used any drugs. He described himself as being totally abstinent for nearly 10 months. He further remarked on the amount of money he was saving as a result of this. He said that he had moved into a nearby town and moved into a nursing home because of the loss of his licence and described the significant costs while there. With further encouragement from the Tribunal he described his perfect driving record and also noted that he has lost his car insurance on his personal car and also on his antique car. He described the designation in the Medical Condition Report of mental illness as a lie and also noted that the social worker when he was in hospital was a liar. He disclosed that he didn't think any other of the hospital personnel were liars, but he said the designation of possible Alzheimer's disease was also a lie. Questioned as to whether anyone else had noted that his doctor might be on drugs the Applicant informed the Tribunal that numerous people in his nursing home referred to the doctor as a druggie and wondered about how he could institute having the doctor's licence suspended.

THE AGENT FOR THE MTO'S QUESTIONS:

On questioning the Applicant insisted that he had been with his doctor for 10 years although the doctor mentioned 20 years in his Medical Condition Report. The Applicant said that the doctor is lying about that. Questioning of the Applicant about his doctor's awareness of the drinking problem disclosed that he never mentioned alcohol to his doctor. He also stated that the farm accident that injured his ankle did not involve alcohol because he was "an evening drinker". He stated that his doctor never advised him to reduce his alcohol intake because he didn't know that he was drinking. He went on to explain that he had stopped drinking nearly 10 months ago voluntarily without any help. The Applicant also stated that he had been looking for a new doctor for months. He indicated his understanding of the Ministry's need for detailed medical information.

In this questioning by the Agent it emerged that the Applicant is living alone and that his wife had suffered a nervous breakdown in August 2009 but he assured the Tribunal that his wife had no problems with his drinking. The Applicant volunteered that his wife's lawyer had contacted him demanding money for her and stated that this lawyer did not refer to his drinking habit. He said that the lawyer's letter was full of lies about the money that he had. He stated that his wife had not lied but that certainly her lawyer, his doctor and the social worker were, and in fact he felt that all lawyers are liars.

The Applicant stated emphatically that he wanted his licence back.

THE MTO'S AGENT IN SUMMARY:

Mr. Biel underlined the criteria used by the Registrar for the suspension specifically section 47(1)(b). He reiterated the Applicant's family doctor's comments in the Medical Condition Report about alcoholism and increasing mental instability with cognitive impairment which can seriously affect a driver's judgment in the safe operating of a motor vehicle.

The Agent pointed out that they have received no medical information whatsoever up to this date regarding the Applicant. He stated that the HTA requirements indicate that the driver must not suffer serious alcohol dependence nor have any mental or cognitive problems and that these are all mentioned in the Medical Condition Report. The Agent went on to state that this evidence is un-contradicted and pointed out that the Applicant has chosen not to have the Alcohol Assessment Form completed.

The Agent then completed his summary by pointing out that in the CCMTA document there is a requirement that individuals with alcohol dependency must complete a rehabilitation program and 12 months of abstinence. (There is no evidence of that now).

The Agent described the total absence of any medical update reports and that there is no medical information to stand against the one document they have and that is the Medical Condition Report. He asks that the suspension be upheld.

> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

This Tribunal hearing is remarkable for a serious lack of information on which the Tribunal can make a ruling. It is noteworthy that the Applicant's family doctor (of 10 or even 20 years duration) took it upon himself to file a Medical Condition Report informing the Ministry that the Applicant suffered from alcohol dependence, mental or emotional illness – unstable, and Dementia or Alzheimer's disease. The only written note that we have from the doctor states that the Applicant is a noncompliant alcoholic with increasing mental and physical disability.

Presented with such a document the Ministry acted properly in suspending the Applicant's driving privilege and to date they have received no medical updates on the Applicant to suggest that they should change their stance.

It is difficult to appraise the Applicant's mental status during an electronic hearing. The Tribunal has only the Applicant's testimony that he has been abstinent for nine months or so without any medical documentation to support this.

A significant part of the Applicant's presentation was devoted to disparaging the doctor's reputation and also to consistently describe him and others with whom he is involved as liars, suggesting to the Tribunal the possibility that paranoia may be present. The Applicant in his final statement indicated that he plans to get back and forth driving his tractor because no licence is required.

The MTO has acted correctly on the receipt of a solitary Medical Condition Report. The Applicant in response has to date failed to complete the Alcoholic Assessment Report, and has dismissed and possibly defamed his doctor. At the hearing he has indicated to the Tribunal no grasp of what has happened to him and why.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective December 3rd, 2009, of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent's Evidence

Dr. T sent a medical report to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") on April 28, 2008 concerning the Applicant, writing as follows:

> Mrs. X (the Applicant) had a left middle cerebral artery stroke on April 11, 2008. Has cognitive-perceptual deficits that could potentially adversely affect her ability to safely drive. She has therefore been advised not to drive.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on May 12, 2008 informing her that it had been decided to suspend her driving privilege.

Dr. Z sent in a Medical Condition Report to the MTO, dated May 16, 2008, concerning the Applicant. In this he indicated the following:

> Stroke or head injury with significant deficits.
> Situation is a serious road safety risk.
> Patient is aware of the report.
> Comments: Right sided neglect, constructional apraxia, aphasia since left sided parietal stroke.

Dr. E, family physician of the Applicant, sent a medical report to the MTO concerning the Applicant. The report was undated, some of it was illegible and in some of it, the meaning was not clear. Under Complete Health History, the doctor indicated in a positive manner to all nine of the disease groups. He also indicated that the vision in both eyes was good, the patient's Diabetes was treated by diet alone, that she suffered from Psychosis, Alcoholism and Drug Habituation and that the Applicant had been his patient for 25 years.

Consulting physician Dr. R sent a report to Dr. E, family physician of the Applicant, on March 25, 2009, writing, in part, as follows:

> I thank you for the opportunity of seeing this 77 year old patient who had a stroke from which she had a good recovery. She was evaluated by Dr.Z in May of 2008 and she had significant cognitive difficulties. She would really like to get back to driving. She was here alone. No family member accompanied her.
> IMPRESSION: This lady certainly has evidence of cognitive deficits. I have told her that if she really wishes to drive, the next step is to have a driving assessment done.

The Applicant had a Driver Evaluation done on October 8, 2009. The Comments are written as follows:

> Client is found unsafe to drive. She shows difficulty with the following abilities: poor judgement and decision making, difficulty in appropriately scanning her environment to assess risks, difficulty with multi-tasking and shifting attention. Feedback provided to client.

The Certified Driver Record, dated August 9, 2010, showed that the Applicant "Disobeyed traffic signal light – red" on February 4, 2009 and that the Current Demerit Points were 3.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant said that she lives alone in a Church Senior Home. She has two sons and one daughter who help her, but the daughter is sick a fair amount of the time. She said that she had a stroke but "it did not last long". She takes medication for high blood pressure. She explained that when she took the driving test she was nervous having to drive a different car to the one she was used to. She admitted she made a mistake.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading “Strokes” of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 4.2.2) reads:

> Individual who has suffered a CVA may operate any motor vehicle if a complete neurologic assessment has disclosed no residual loss of functional ability.
> Operators of any Class may be required to complete a road test and consent to an annual medical follow-up in case of residual defect.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant suffered a stroke on April 11, 2008. The Tribunal notes that the following medical practitioners described the Applicant’s significant cognitive deficits, namely, Dr. T in his report of April 28, 2008, Dr. Z in his report of May 16, 2008 and Dr. R in his report of March 25, 2009. The Tribunal also notes that in the Driver Evaluation, done on October 8, 2009, under Comments, it was written, “Client is found to be unsafe to drive”.

Because of the foregoing reports, and especially because of the assessment of the Driving Evaluation centre, the Tribunal has decided that the decision of the Registrar should be upheld.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated May 22, 2008 of the Registrar to suspend her driver’s licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

FACTS

The Applicant is a 61 yr old self-employed man of Italian descent, who had a stroke (CVA) on Feb 26 2009. He was taken to a large regional health centre where it was observed that he had left arm and leg weakness and right gaze preference. A diagnosis of right internal carotid occlusion was made, TPA was instituted and within an hour his symptoms were greatly improved. He did have sufficient left-sided residual symptoms that he required

Physio therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy for dysarthria. He was in the initial teaching centre for a month then a rehabilitation centre another two months until he was discharged on May 29 2009.

He received a letter on July 27, 2009 from the Ministry of Transportation Office (MTO) notifying him that his driver's licence was suspended. This was two months after leaving hospital and he had been regularly driving during that time.

Medical opinion is divided on whether he is fit to drive. The rehab doctors – Dr. N. and Dr. C. were opposed to his driving and filled out a form equivalent to a 203 – undated – but with a note that the recommendation was made March 29 2009. The MTO got that note on July 24 2009.

The rehab doctors note that "unfortunately" the Applicant was driving "apparently at the blessing of his family physician and an 'unidentified' consultant at the Health Centre.

The "unidentified" consultant was Dr. J., a neurologist, who on Jun 3, 2009, wrote a long, complete, elegant note to Dr K., the family physician. She wrote that "so long as his visual fields tested normally- (and they did) - she could see no reason why he shouldn't drive.

On Aug 29, 2009, Dr. C. sent another form 203 to the MTO noting the discrepancy of medical opinion and recommending that it be resolved at an authorized driving centre.

On May 11, 2010, the Applicant was assessed at DriveABLE. He failed completely, making seventeen errors during the test; straddling the center line; speeding; improper lane changes; following too close etc.

The Applicant admits that "maybe" he has some bad habits after his many years of driving.

A Jun 2, 2010, letter to the Applicant from the MTO restated the need to continue the suspension until two things happen:
One – an update confirming the stability of his health from his "attending physician".
In this case Dr. K., and his opinion is essential.
Second – The Applicant needed to repeat the drive test, but needed to bone up on his skills if he wants to pass.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

The CCMTA 4.2.2 is concerned with stroke and residual symptoms. The Applicant did have a CVA and does have residual left-sided physical deficits.

That is clear. But medical opinion is divided as to his driving skills.
The problem for the Applicant is that the drive test needs to be passed in order to satisfy guidelines. The Tribunal encouraged him to bone up on the test requirements before attempting it again.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated August 6, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her/his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

6274-MED-NEUR-Neurological

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 14, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant submitted a letter from his family physician, Dr. K., dated October 1, 2010, stating:

> Please be advised that <the Applicant> had no seizures since February 20, 2010. He is safe to drive, and is able to do so immediately.

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

On February 20, 2010, a letter was sent to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") by a neurologist, Dr. W., pursuant to section 203 of the Act. The letter states as follows:

> This gentleman reports episodes where he would awaken having bitten his tongue, feeling weak and dizzy. He would recover gradually throughout the morning. He has had 6 episodes in the last 3 years. There have been no witnessed convulsions. His neurological examination is normal.
> He has been investigated with an MRI and EEG. The MRI was essentially normal. The EEG showed focal slowing over the left temporal lobe and intermittent spike/spike wave activity in the same area. This is epileptogenic.
> This gentleman more than likely has recurrent generalized seizures (i.e. epilepsy) which have all occurred out of sleep. I have started him on Keppra.
> He has had nocturnal seizures. This pattern has been observed over the last 3 years with no daytime seizures. I would recommend his driver's license not be suspended.

On April 13, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that it had been decided that his driving privilege would be suspended under section 47(1) of the Act. In order to be considered for reinstatement he must submit an up-to-date report from a physician familiar with his medical history or a neurologist with results of all investigations (Waking EEG, CT Scan), prescribed treatment, current status and cause for the seizures. A narrative of this and any previous seizure history and confirmation that there have been no further episodes since the last event was also required.

On May 25, 2010, Dr. W. wrote to the Registrar. The letter states in part:

> He has not had any further seizures. He is tolerating the medication well with no significant side effects. His neurological examination is normal.
> …I would recommend his driver's license be reinstated. The CMA recommendations state that "patients with epilepsy whose seizures have only occurred while they were asleep or immediately after wakening for at least 1 year can be recommended for private license no less than 12 months after the initial seizure and with therapeutic drug levels". Levels of Keppra are not available commercially.

The Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") reviewed the Applicant's case on July 5, 2010.

Recommendation:

> Remain suspended. Reconsider with a detailed neurologist's assessment confirming driver has remained seizure free for one year.

Reasons:

> Said to have had recurring seizures in the last three years. Now diagnosed with Epilepsy and has an abnormal EEG. Given the significant driving risk posed by seizures, it is concerning that these have not been previously reported. Acknowledge that thus far the episodes have been nocturnal, however, the CCMTA Standards and CMA Guidelines are very clear in this regard. As such, a one year seizure free period is required before reinstatement can be considered.

On July 15, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that following the review of the recent report, it had been decided that his suspension would continue, as the medical evidence does not support reinstatement. An up-to-date report was required from a neurologist confirming that the Applicant has remained seizure-free for one year.

A letter dated May 27, 2010, from a neurologist, Dr. E., to the family physician, Dr. K., was received by the Registrar. The letter states:

> The patient reports that he has had episodes of generalized weakness that lasts ten to fifteen minutes. He has had six episodes in the last several months. He also reports on one occasion that his wife noticed that he was staring. He had mouth salivation. He has also noticed blood on his pillow.
> The patient has a positive family history for epilepsy in his mother.
> Comment: This patient's history is suggestive of a seizure disorder. I have advised him to remain on Keppra. I will reassess him in six months.

The MAC again reviewed the Applicant's case on September 17, 2010.

Recommendation:

> Remain suspended. Reconsider with a detailed report, from the treating neurologist, confirming that driver has remained free of any seizures for one year and a clear explanation for discrepancy as to history, type of seizures and date of last one.

Reasons:

> It is concerning that the two Neurologists (Dr. E. and Dr. W.) provide a different history of driver's seizure disorder: Dr. W. states all episodes have been nocturnal with last one in January 2010. Dr. E. indicates last seizure was in November 2009 and one [witnessed] episode was diurnal complex partial seizure. Wife noticed he was staring.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on September 21, 2010, that it had been decided to continue the suspension on the basis of the MAC recommendation.

In order to be considered for reinstatement, the Applicant must arrange for a detailed report from his treating neurologist which confirms that he has remained seizure-free for one year. This report must also include an explanation for the discrepancy in the histories and description of the seizures from Dr. E. and Dr. W. The report must indicate the types of seizures experienced and indicate the date of the last episode.

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant is an advisor in cardiology for an insurance company.

In his Reasons for Appeal, the Applicant stated that he has had six episodes in the last three years. He would wake up at night to go to the washroom and would feel weak and dizzy. He saw his family doctor and a number of tests were done, including cardiac echo, stress test, Holter monitor and cardiac ultrasound, all of which were normal.

His family physician referred him to a university hospital where he had a normal CT Scan of the brain. An appointment was made for a neurologist sometime in the future. He returned to his family physician and was referred to Dr. W. in February. An MRI was normal. Dr. W. prescribed Keppra due to focal slowing over the left temporal region on the EEG.

Dr. W. wrote to the Registrar on February 20, 2010, stating:

> This gentleman more than likely has recurrent generalized seizures (i.e. epilepsy) which have all occurred out of sleep.
> This pattern has been observed over the last 3 years with no daytime seizures. I would recommend his driver's license not be suspended.

The Applicant was seen by Dr. B., a second neurologist, at the university hospital on April 30, 2010. Dr. B. reported:

> It is difficult to say whether or not he has had an actual seizure.
> I have arranged for a sleep-deprived EEG in order to see if we can confirm slowing of the left temporal lobe and an epileptogenic focus again after sleep deprivation. I have ordered another brain MRI… with gadolinium in order to look for subtle structural lesions.

On August 24, 2010, Dr. W. again wrote to the Registrar, as follows:

> He has been seizure free for more than 6 months. All his seizures have occurred out of sleep. There is no motor, visual or cognitive impairment that would prevent <the Applicant> from operating a motorized vehicle safely. I would recommend his driver's license be reinstated.

He was referred by his family physician to a third neurologist, Dr. E., who wrote on May 27, 2010:

> …he has had episodes of generalized weakness that lasts ten to fifteen minutes… He also > reports on one occasion that his wife noticed that he was staring. He had mouth salivation. He has also noticed blood on his pillow… This patient's history is suggestive of a seizure disorder. I have advised him to remain on Keppra.

On August 16, 2010, Dr. E. wrote to the Registrar:

> I write on behalf of <the Applicant> to request that his driving privileges be reinstated… I have attached copies of my report to his family doctor including EEG report and MRI scan.

On cross-examination the Applicant stated that his last seizure was on January 7, 2010. This led to his referral to Dr. W.

The Applicant also stated that he has never had a diurnal seizure. The incident referred to by MAC in its reasons of September occurred at night when his wife noticed the staring.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1) of the Act required the Registrar to issue a suspension of driving privileges upon receipt of a letter from a neurologist pursuant to section 203 of the Act, with a diagnosis of nocturnal seizures.

2. The Applicant was started on medication that has controlled the nocturnal seizures and there has not been a seizure since January 7, 2010.

3. The Canadian Medical Association Guidelines for “patients with epilepsy whose seizures have occurred while they were asleep or immediately after wakening for at least one year can be recommended for a private licence (Classes 5 and 6) no less than 12 months after the initial seizure and with therapeutic drug levels”.

4. Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators (“CCMTA”), Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 6.3.4, which states that:

   The individual with a history of seizures solely when asleep or immediately after awakening may be considered for a Class 5 or 6 licence provided he has satisfactory waking EEG’s and is subject to regular medical review.

The Applicant relies on the recommendations by three neurologists and his family physician of 20 years that he is fit to be reinstated. He has been conscientious in attending his neurologist and remains on the prescribed medication without significant side effects. As a cardiologist, he is conscious of his responsibility to ensure his driving is safe.

The Tribunal finds that:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's licence to drive under section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a neurologist's letter pursuant to section 203 of the Act, stating that the Applicant suffered from nocturnal seizures.

2. The medical evidence of the Applicant's neurologist is supportive of reinstatement as he has not had a seizure since January 7, 2010, and has not had a diurnal seizure.

3. The Applicant has remained on the prescribed medication under supervision. There is no drug monitoring available for the prescribed medication.

4. The CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers is supportive of reinstatement.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective April 23, 2010, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. PATRICK COFFEY, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 18, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the “Applicant”) respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

Respondent’s Evidence

On September 18, 2007 the Applicant completed a Ministry of Transportation’s Driver’s Licence Renewal Application in which he wrote that he suffered from the medical condition of Diabetes. When the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) received this piece of information a letter was sent to the Applicant telling him that the enclosed driver's medical questionnaire had to be completed. Because of the failure of the Applicant to submit this questionnaire, the MTO wrote again requiring the Applicant to submit an enclosed medical report from a physician familiar with his medical history.

This medical report was completed on May 4, 2009 by Dr. F, the Applicant's family physician. In this the doctor indicated that the Applicant suffered from Metabolic Disease – Diabetes and also Addictions. The doctor stated that the Diabetes was Type 11 and was treated by diet alone. No abnormalities of significance were found in the physical examination. There was no instability, neurosis or psychosis found but alcoholism was present. In the Summary Dr. F wrote:

> 1. Dr. B (Optometrist) recommends a more detailed optometry test.
> 2. Alcohol use reviewed with patient; states does not affect work performance.
> 3. Currently – good control of blood glucose.

The Substance Abuse Assessment form was completed by Dr. A on November 19, 2009. Under Health History, headaches or blackouts and insomnia were indicated. The doctor further explained that the blackouts were only for the period during intoxication; no spontaneous blackouts. With Laboratory evaluation, the MCV was normal at 91 and the GGT level was not reported. Under Treatment, it was written that treatment was completed in the Spring of 2006, and this was followed by two months of abstinence from alcohol. The AUDIT score was 13. The Recommendations of the doctor was, to suggest an alcohol treatment program.

On March 8, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant informing him that it had been decided that his driving privilege should be suspended.

The Applicant was admitted on January 9, 2010 and discharged on February 5, 2010 at X Centre for a chemical dependency program. It was recommended that he return in three to twelve months for Family Program Stage 2.

Dr. F wrote the following report on May 26, 2010 as follows:

> Mr.X (the Applicant) has been a patient of mine for nine years. He reports week-end alcohol use, with meticulous avoidance of driving while intoxicated. He is certain that this alcohol use pattern will not interfere with his ability to safely drive trucks for his job. There are no current symptoms or signs indicating risk of dangerous driving related to alcohol use. His increased liver function tests are very likely related to alcohol consumption, but are attributable to his week-end use. Laboratory testing on May 18, 2010 showed a slightly raised GGT of 98 and a normal MCV of 91.

In the Ministry of Transportation's Medical Advisory Committee "MAC" Case Summary, dated July 19, 2010, the recommendation of the Medical Advisory Committee was "Remain Suspended". The Instructions were:

Remain suspended. Will reconsider reinstatement with a report from the driver's treating physician to confirm that the driver has remained free of alcohol for a sustained period of 12 months supported by bio-chemical markers,(MCV,GGT,ALT & AST).

The Reasons of the MAC were:

> Licence suspended for medical reasons on March 18, 2010. Medical report completed by Dr. F on 7th May 2009 had identified that individual suffers with addiction. Dr. A completes Substance Abuse Assessment form on November 19, 2009, recording AUDIT score of 13 with suggestion that individual attend alcohol treatment program. Individual completed Chemical Dependence program on February 5, 2010. Dr.F authors a letter on May 26, 2010 stating that individual consumes alcohol on week-ends. A GGT estimation on May 18, 2010 is elevated at 98 u/L which is attributed to the driver's alcohol consumption on weekends. There is inconsistency between the recommendations of the treatment program that individual remain abstinent, and to attend a recovery home if experiencing difficulty; yet, alcohol continues to be consumed on weekends. Driver has relapsed post treatment and is not following aftercare plan.

The Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated September 24, 2010 reported the following pertinent facts:

> Speeding 135 KMH in 90 KMH zone on December 1, 2008.
> Fail to lower headlight beam – 150 metres – approaching.
> Demerit points total – 6.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant found difficulty in stating his case spontaneously, so most of the information he gave at the hearing was in the form of answers to specific questions.

He does not drink and drive. Mostly he drinks at the week-ends. He may drink on a week day in the evening provided he is not on call for work at the time or for the immediate future. His usual habit on days when he is drinking is to go to the beer store and buy six cans of beer and consume them that night. The last time he took a drink was "last Saturday", (two days prior to the day of the hearing).

The Applicant did not attend the 12 Step Program because in the town he is in, far from a large centre, he finds this impossible. He completed a 30 day program at the rehabilitation but has no wish to go back there for any more treatment.

His goal is to return to full duties at work.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant attended an alcohol rehabilitation course in 2006, following which he abstained from alcohol for two months; and he attended a 30 day program in early 2010, but he is still consuming alcohol, probably in the same fashion as he has done for many years.

The Tribunal recognises the following points in favour of the Applicant returning to driving:

1. The Applicant states that he does not allow alcohol to interfere with his driving. This is supported by the statements in the May 26, 2010 report of Dr. F in which she wrote, regarding his alcohol intake, “with meticulous avoidance of driving when intoxicated”. Further in this report Dr. F wrote, ”There are no symptoms or signs indicating risks of dangerous driving related to alcohol use.”

2. In the Substance Abuse Assessment form of November 19, 2009, the Diagnosis that was written was “Substance Abuse”, not “Substance Dependence”.

3. In the Laboratory reports on file the MCV was normal on two occasions and the GGT raised only slightly on one occasion.

4. In the Driving Record for the Applicant there are no reports of driving while impaired.

The Tribunal is aware of the fact that many drivers do consume alcohol to excess on certain occasions, but are careful never to be driving after drinking, and such drivers can be regarded as safe drivers. However, the alcohol consumption of the Applicant was sufficient to alarm Dr. F into calling it an addiction, (May 26, 2010), for Dr. A to recommend an alcohol treatment program, (November 19, 2009), and for the MAC to recommend that the Applicant remains free of alcohol for a trial period of 12 months, (July 19, 2010).

Therefore, the Tribunal is of the opinion that a further period of time should elapse before any consideration is given to the reinstatement of the Applicant’s driving privilege, during which time he should be followed by his family physician, Dr. F and receive close monitoring of the biochemical markers GGT, MCV and liver function test levels with reports to the MTO.

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

On January 11, 2010 the Registrar received a letter dated January 11, 2010 from a family physician, Dr. B. pursuant to Section 203 of the Act.

> This is to inform you that the above named patient (Applicant) should not be driving due to a medical condition.

The Registrar wrote to the Applicant requesting a medical report from the Applicant's physician.

On March 15, 2010 Dr. B. completed a medical report form. This showed that the Applicant had 3+oedema and an enlarged liver four fingerbreadths below the rib margin and protein in the urine. He reported evidence of alcoholism.

> Stopped alcohol four days ago and feeling more energetic. Has Hepatitis C.
> Hgb 115.
> MCV 106.6
> On Synthroid 88 mcg
> Protein and blood in the urine. Am referring to a Urologist.
> Attached lab results re alcohol.
> Has been his patient for 4 1/2 years.

The attached laboratory report showed a blood alcohol level of less than 2.3 ordered by Dr. B. and collected on March 15, 2010.

Also attached was a laboratory report collected on January 5, 2010, ordered by Dr. B.

Alcohol (ethanol)	32.2 m mol/L.
Toxic level	11-22 mmol/L
Depression of CNS:	>22 mmol/L
Fatalities reported:	> 87 mmol/L

GGT	227 (range 5-64)
SGOT	160 (range 9-43)
Alk phosphatase	210 (range 41-114)
Amylase	152 (range 30-81)

On May 12, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under Section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for an up-to-date assessment from his physician or a physician specializing in addictions medicine. This assessment must confirm that he has remained abstinent for 12 months. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST, ALT) that are outside normal laboratory range.

He was informed that he may request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

On September 2, 2010 Dr. B. wrote to the Registrar.

> This letter is in support of (Applicant's) plan to regain his driver's licence in a short time. He works in a rural area. Because he can not work without making house calls without his equipment he is motivated to do whatever is necessary to get his licence back in short order. A weekly blood level at the lab, and a device in his vehicle which must be used to prove sobriety before the motor will start should be a satisfactory guard for the public.
> I hope you will agree.

Also submitted were supportive letters from the Applicant's customers.

The Registrar acknowledged receipt of the supportive letters and informed the Applicant on September 15, 2010 that the suspension would continue and that in information requested previously remained outstanding.

The Respondent filed the Driver's Record that showed a conviction for impaired driving in 1984.

The Applicant's Case:

The Applicant now age 56 is self employed living alone in a small community. His nearest hospital is about one hour away. He drove to the Emergency Room in January 2010 because of fluid in his legs and swelling in his body. He was placed on intravenous antibiotics after some blood tests were taken. He was allowed home and was seen daily by a visiting nurse for management of the intravenous antibiotics. He was seen by his family physician about a week later on January 11, 2010 and was told that his blood alcohol level was very high and that the Ministry of Transport would be notified.

He was vague about the actual date he attended the emergency room but he acknowledged that it would have been January 5 when his blood alcohol level was 32. He acknowledged that he drove himself to the E.R.

His normal consumption of alcohol was about 4-5 beers a day and about 10 beers a day on weekends. He was told by Dr. B. that he must stop drinking. His last drink was on August 15, 2010. He submitted the request for Appeal on September 3, 2010.

He was told by his doctor that he had cirrhosis of the liver and he acknowledged that he had previously been advised by family to stop drinking.

In Reasons for Appeal he stated that he needed his truck for work and that loss of his licence for 12 months would be a disaster. He stated that only he could control his drinking and not a clinic. He acknowledged that he had not sought help from Alcoholics Anonymous.

He suggested that if his licence were reissued on a probationary basis and that blood alcohol tests done on a weekly or bi-weekly basis would show his sincerity. He stated that he has a perfectly clean driving record.

He submitted laboratory tests that showed a blood alcohol level of 2.3 on August 23, 2010 and a letter from Dr. B. dated October on October 1, 2010 that stated:

> (Applicant) is having weekly blood tests which show no trace of alcohol since he stopped taking alcohol on Alcohol on August 15, 2010. His liver tests are not normal due to chronic hepatitis C. The MCV or the RBC, and the GGT are continuing to improve with the abstinence.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

The Respondent relies on:

1. The report by his family physician on January 11, 2010 reporting the Applicant unfit to drive. He was found to have a blood alcohol of 32.2 mmol/L on January 5, 2010 when he drove himself to the Emergency Room.

2. The Applicant has cirrhosis of the liver with impaired liver function and has been advised by his family physician to stop drinking. He stated that he stopped drinking on August 15, 2010.

Regulation 340/94 14(b) of the Act states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

3. CCMTA Section 13.2 states in part:

> Persons habitually dependent on alcohol should not drive until evidence of alcoholism is no longer a problem. These patients must complete a recognized rehabilitation program for substance dependence and remain alcohol free and seizure free for a specified period of time before recommencing driving.
> STANDARD: MAY NOT DRIVE ANY MOTOR VEHICLE FOR 12 MONTHS DURING WHICH TIME THE INDIVIDUAL MUST REMAIN SEIZURE-FREE AND ALCOHOL-FREE.

4. The Applicant has continued drinking 4-5 drinks a day and 10-12 on weekends until August 15, 2010 and while he may be motivated to quit drinking he has not sought help from a relapse prevention program.

The Applicant relies on his decision to stop drinking since August 15, 2010 on advice from his family physician and in light of the diagnosis of cirrhosis of the liver and threat to his livelihood. He acknowledged that he must take part in an alcohol treatment program.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal rules that:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under Section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a medical condition report of alcoholism and impaired liver function, pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act.

2. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension under Regulation 340/94 4(b) upon confirmation that the Applicant has continued to consume alcohol and has failed to comply with an up-to-date assessment confirming abstinence for 12 months.

3. The Applicant showed poor judgement when he drove to the emergency room on January 5, 2010 with a blood alcohol level of 32.2 mmol/L.

4. The Applicant has shown poor motivation to change when he failed to seek help to prevent relapse from a recognized alcohol treatment program.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated May 22, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 5, 2010 Kitchener

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

On September 23, 2009, a Medical Condition Report was completed by an Emergency Room ("E.R.") physician, Dr. W., pursuant to section 203 of the Act, and the following was noted:

> Blackout or Loss of consciousness or Awareness
> Psychosis
> Schizophrenia

> Admits to driving irrationally while hallucinating
> Patient is aware of this report.

The Registrar wrote to the Applicant on September 25, 2009, regarding the reported:

> Syncope/Loss of Consciousness > Psychiatric Condition

The Applicant was informed that it had been decided to suspend his driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement the Applicant was advised that he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date report to be submitted, to include:

- The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
- A narrative of this and any previous syncope/loss of consciousness history and confirmation that there have been no further episodes.
- His complete psychiatric history (i.e. duration, degree), dates of hospitalizations (if any), narrative account of his reported anxiety/ideation/panic attacks (if applicable).
- Evidence of addiction or misuse of medication (if applicable).
- Details of his compliance and frequency/rapidity of decompensation, signs of impaired judgment, reduced concentration, reckless/aggressive behaviour and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication.
- Confirmation of his mental and emotional stability and current level of function.

He was advised that he may request an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

The Applicant's family physician, Dr. C., wrote to the Registrar on November 20, 2009:

> This is to advise that my patient, <the Applicant>, who has been under my care since October 2006, was examined in my office today. He was also seen in consult by Dr. N., psychiatrist on October 19, 2009.
> Currently, he is found to be physically and mentally fit to drive. He never did have any syncopal episodes.

The Registrar responded to the Applicant in light of this letter. He was informed that he must file an assessment that must include the items requested on September 25, 2009.

Dr. C. wrote to the Registrar on January 7, 2010, attaching the consult note and discharge notes. According to Dr. C., the psychiatrist, Dr. N., was of the opinion that the Applicant was stable to drive. The Applicant was also found to be physically fit on a physical exam on November 20, 2009.

The psychiatrist, Dr. N., wrote a discharge note at the Psychiatric Unit of the hospital on October 19, 2009, which summarized the following:

- Admitted September 23, 2009 on a Form 1.
- Reported to have been driving recklessly, confused at times and reported feeling suicidal. Staff in the E.R. concerned about his safety when he went outside for a smoke and he was escorted back to the E.R. by security. Appeared agitated, unpredictable and having auditory hallucinations.
- When seen by Dr. N. on September 23, 2009, he was drowsy. Later during his stay in hospital, he was guarded about why he came to the hospital. He stated that he just wanted to rest after a domestic disagreement.
- Past hospitalization for four days in 2007 for psychosis.
- Discharged on Risperidone on October 9, 2009.
- Seen by Dr. B., a psychologist, during his stay in hospital and diagnosed with narcissistic personality traits and delusional disorder. No suicidal ideas, no homicidal ideation, no impulsive or aggressive behaviour.
- No history of alcohol or substance abuse.
- Referred on discharge to see Dr. J. at the psychiatry follow-up clinic for monitoring of his medication.
- When assessed on October 19, 2009, he was alert and oriented with clear speech and no suicidal or homicidal ideation. No evidence of psychosis and no depression.
- He was advised to continue with Risperidone 2 mg at bedtime with periodic medication assessment. He was informed about available group outpatient services.

At the conclusion of the discharge note, Dr. N. wrote, “In my opinion, <the Applicant> is psychiatrically stable to drive a motor vehicle”.

The Applicant’s case was reviewed by the Medical Advisory Committee (“MAC”) at the Ministry of Transportation on February 8, 2010.

Recommendation:

> Remain suspended. Reconsider with a detailed report from Dr. J., in medication clinic, confirming six months of stability, current symptoms, comments on any psychosis or residual symptoms, medications, doses, compliance, frequency of appointments, level of attention, concentration, sedation, psychomotor function and ability to drive.

Reasons:

> Given recent admission and reckless driving, needs a longer period of stability as noted above. To reconsider would like updated letter from psychiatrist that driver was supposed to follow-up with.

The Registrar informed the Applicant of the above and requested an up-to-date report from Dr. J., addressing the issues listed by MAC.

On March 30, 2010, the Registrar wrote to the Applicant in light of the correspondence from the family physician, Dr. C., and the psychiatrist, Dr. N., and a lengthy letter from the Applicant that outlined his explanation for many of the issues listed by Dr. N.

The Applicant was advised that some of the issues previously requested by the Registrar remained outstanding:

- Assessment by Dr. J. confirming that he has remained stable for a period of six months;
- Current symptoms;
- Comments on any psychosis or residual symptoms;
- Medication, doses, compliance;
- Frequency of appointments;
- Level of attention, concentration, sedation, psychomotor function; and,
- Ability to drive.

The Registrar made reference to an earlier Tribunal Decision, dated June 23, 2010, that confirmed the suspension under section 50(2) of the Act. The Applicant did not appear at the electronic hearing. He informed the Tribunal's Registrar that his reason for failing to appear was incarceration with the local police service. He was then allowed to make application for a new hearing.

On August 13, 2010, the Applicant's psychiatrist, Dr. S., who has known him for a number of years, wrote a letter on his behalf:

> When I enquired about the reasons for this (for the suspension) he mentioned that one day he asked the police to help him because he was unable to sleep at his home and police took him to the emergency room where he slept off but during that time, the doctor informed the Licensing Board to hold his Licence because he complained of dizziness. As far as we could see physically he is in fit condition. I did not see any danger of him driving outside now. I sent him for a blood work to understand how his internal system is. I added CBC and Liver function test GGT, AST, ALT, Bilirubins direct and indirect. After the results are back I might write a letter to the Licensing Board regarding his fitness.

Laboratory results performed on August 10, 2010, showed the following:

- GGT 34 (range less than 60)
- MCV 100 (range 80-97)
- AST 19 (range less than 37)
- ALT 35 (range less than 46)

Dr. S. wrote a second letter to the Registrar on August 18, 2010:

> I am satisfied with his GGT which is 34, AST 19, MCV 100, hence I warned him that he has to totally stop alcohol for next 6 months and by that time his GGT will come down (84 to 94 normal, however I did not see a need to stop his driver's licence and I warned him enough that he has to remain 100% away from alcohol and behave good for which he agreed.

> There is no indication for medication and I will see him when he comes according to the appointment.

On August 19, 2010, the Registrar wrote to the Applicant referencing the letter from Dr. S. on August 18, 2010. Again, he was informed that he must file an up-to-date assessment from a psychiatrist or his treating physician referencing the items listed previously on March 30, 2010. It also noted:

> In addition, it will be necessary to file an assessment from a physician familiar with your medical history or a physician specializing in addiction medicine regarding your consumption of alcohol.

He was provided with a Substance Abuse Assessment Form to give to his physician and was informed that if the assessment confirmed a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, he must provide confirmation of abstinence for a period of one year which may be reduced with confirmation that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement of his driving privilege. Also required is an explanation of any of the bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

The Registrar filed the Applicant's Driver's Record that showed, in addition to the suspension effective October 5, 2009, an offence of Speeding 84 Kmh in 60 Kmh Zone on March 7, 2010 (i.e. while his licence was under suspension).

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that his arrival in the E.R. on September 23, 2009, was prompted by a domestic dispute that led him to having no place to sleep. He called the police and was advised to go to the E.R.

While there, he referred to suicide in the context of some people talking very loudly in the building next door. This was causing him more stress and he jokingly suggested a roof-top view.

He stated that he has never had suicidal ideation. He also has never driven recklessly.

When he went outside the E.R. in order to smoke, the nursing staff asked the hospital security to bring him back.

He stated that he has never had an attack of syncope.

In regard to the advice to see Dr. J. at the outpatient medication monitoring clinic, he stated that he visited the doctor's office and waited for 40 minutes, but the doctor was not there and he was advised by the receptionist to telephone for an appointment. He stated that he did so and spoke to Dr. J., who asked him some questions regarding his reasons for seeing the doctor and was told by the doctor that he saw no reason for the Applicant to be seen by him.

The Applicant denied that he has had an alcohol problem.

He acknowledged having a hospital admission in 2007 for possible delusional behaviour, but has not been on anti-psychotic medication since. The Risperidone prescribed on discharge was discontinued as his psychiatrist, Dr. S., saw no reason for medication.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report filed by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act, stating that the Applicant suffered from Blackout or Loss of consciousness or Awareness, Psychosis, Schizophrenia, and admits to driving irrationally while hallucinating.

2. A history of previous admission under Form 1 in 2007.

3. Failure to follow-up directions to see Dr. J. for monitoring of medication.

4. Driving while under suspension.

5. Failure by his psychiatrist, Dr. S., to make reference to the discharge summary and recommendation in his letters to the Registrar.

6. Reference by Dr. S. to the Applicant's alcohol use and his interpretation of the laboratory results.

7. Lack of follow-up confirmation of compliance.

8. Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("CCMTA"), Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 11.1, which states that:

   > In examining a patient with a mental disorder the diagnosis is less important than the degree to which it affects the ability to drive safely.

9. CCMTA Standard 11.2, which states that:

   > If the physician believes that a patient's judgement or psychomotor activity has been severely affected by his or her emotional state, the patient should be advised not to drive any type of motor vehicle until sufficiently recovered.

The Applicant relies on:

1. The advice by his own psychiatrist and his family physician, and the hospital psychiatrist who treated him for 14 days, who all state that he is fit to drive.

2. Alcohol has never been an issue with him and the fact that the information provided by the psychiatrist, Dr. S., to the Registrar in the letter of August 18, 2010, was a misinterpretation of the laboratory results.

The Tribunal finds that:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension under section 47(1) of the Act, in response to the Medical Condition Report filed by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act, listing medical conditions that may make it dangerous for the Applicant to operate a motor vehicle.

2. The Applicant demonstrated poor judgement when he drove while under suspension and at excessive speed.

3. The Applicant has provided credible reasons for many of the issues surrounding his admission to the psychiatry ward on a Form 1. Most of these issues have been detailed at length by his treating psychiatrist, Dr. N., who at the end of his assessment on October 21, 2009, stated, "…no suicidal or homicidal ideas, denying auditory or visual hallucinations. There was no evidence of perceptual disturbances or psychosis".

4. On October 19, 2009, the psychiatrist Dr. N. stated, "In my opinion <the Applicant> is psychiatrically stable to drive a motor vehicle".

5. The Applicant's family physician, who has known him since October 2006, stated on November 20, 2009: "Currently, he is found to be physically and mentally fit to drive. He never did have any syncopal episodes".

6. The psychiatrist, Dr. S., who arranged the laboratory tests on August 10, 2010, misinterpreted the MCV result, which was 100 in a range of 80-97, when he stated in his letter to the Registrar on August 18, 2010 as follows:

   > I am satisfied with his GGT which is 34, AST 19, MCV 100, hence I warned him that he has to totally stop alcohol for next 6 months and by that time his GGT will come down (84 to 94 normal (emphasis added by the Tribunal), however I did not see a need to stop his driver's licence and I warned him enough that he has to remain 100% away from alcohol and behave good for which he agreed. There is no indication for medications and I will see him when he comes according to the appointment.

   This created the false impression that the Applicant had an alcohol problem and led to the request by the Registrar for a Substance Abuse Assessment.

7. There is no medical evidence that the mental condition that led to the suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege currently presents a disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

8. Since the date of suspension twelve months have passed, and therefore, the required period before reinstatement has been met.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective October 5, 2009, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. GARRY FISHER, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 5, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

Evidence of the Registrar

The Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") notified the Applicant in a letter of March17, 2010, that his licence to drive was suspended under Section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. Dr. H., an Emergency Room (ER) physician in a peripheral hospital, examined the Applicant on March 9, 2010 and filed a form 203, noting "mental or emotional illness – unstable".

The letter from the MTO detailed the reasons for suspension – "psychiatric condition" and requested information from the Applicant, to include: results of medical examinations and detailed psychiatric assessment.

Dr C.B. saw the Applicant on March10, 2010 noting that the hospital visit was the third in as many days. The Applicant was under a great deal of emotional distress related to domestic issues with his wife. The consultation with Dr C.B. and admission to hospital followed a motor vehicle accident ("MVA") on March 9, 2010. After a second ER visit (of three), he had taken a prescribed anti-depressant plus some alcohol and ran his van off the road on the way home.

Dr C.B. describes the Applicant as 33 yrs of age – a large strong man who has been a body builder. In conjunction he has used steroids, but denies "steroid rage".

A psychiatry consultation was arranged with Dr. A.C. He found very little wrong and described "a situational crisis" in need of marital counselling.

Nurse K.G., a mental health therapist, wrote an encouraging note on July 20, 2010.

August 20, 2010 - the MTO wrote the Applicant requesting follow up from his treating physician regarding psychiatric problems and possible substance abuse.

The Applicant's evidence

The Applicant wrote on August 16, 2010, outlining the circumstances of his MVA and is indeed remorseful over his actions. He clearly acknowledges that sedatives and alcohol led to his MVA on March 9, 2010 and because of that, police charged him with Dangerous Driving and Driving Under the Influence ("DUI"). The case was recently heard and at the advice of his lawyer, he pleaded guilty to the (lesser) charge of DUI. That in turn has led to a prolonged licence suspension.

Follow up reports from the Applicant's treating physician as requested from the MTO have not been received. He needs to attend to the matter of follow up reports and settle the medical suspension before the DUI suspension runs its course. The Applicant and the Registrar are working in a friendly and co-operative manner and should be able to resolve the medical issues.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Clearly the Applicant did have a drug-alcohol related MVA. He did have a period of emotional instability. His licence will be suspended for some time yet due to the DUI conviction. The MTO Agent and the Applicant have undertaken to work to get appropriate medical reports from attending doctors and resolve the issues related to Section 47(1) to the satisfaction of the MTO.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 27, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: September 27, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

Dr. P. sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") on July 23, 2010. In this report, he wrote that the Applicant suffered from the medical conditions of Alcohol Dependence, Seizure(s) – Alcohol related, Blackout or Loss of consciousness or Awareness, and Mood Disorder (depression). The doctor wrote the following (not all of the handwritten notes on the Report are legible):

> <The Applicant's name> had a recent fall due to alcohol intoxication @ home; was referred to Addiction Assessment and referral service @ <city> Regional Hospital. She just recently > finished management at Detox/ awaiting a placement @ <name removed> residential treatment program in <city>/ AA meetings. She had willingly discontinued Ativan, Immovane and Tylenol 3 medications and alcohol.

> She is cooperative. She was initially reluctant to be referred to a psychiatrist, but later agreed. She ? at <name removed> Hospital and was concerned on any medical information to be sent there but she was referred to a new psychiatrist in town who works at <name removed> Hospital only.

The Applicant was assessed from the addiction viewpoint at the <name removed> Hospital on July 5, 2010. Pertinent findings and history are as follows:

> Substances used by the Applicant: alcohol, Benzodiazepines and codeine.
> In the past suffered from Depression after the death of her brother, Arthritis of hip and neck, Cancer of uterus, and head injury from a fall.
> Prescribed medications: Prozac, Ativan, Tylenol 3 and Immovane.
> Referral suggested: Residential program at <name removed> Treatment Centre.

Laboratory Report, dated August 6, 2010: In the Immunoassay RDM of urine, Benzodiazepines, Cocaine, Cannabinoids, Oxycodone, Ethanol and Opiates were found negative.

The Program Director of the <name removed> Treatment Centre wrote the following report, in part, on September 17, 2010:

> <The Applicant's name> entered the rehabilitation program for the treatment of Substance Dependence on August 30, 2010. She completed the residential portion of this two-part treatment program on September 17, 2010. In order to fully complete her treatment she will have to attend our Aftercare program for a period of six months. In our opinion, she will continue to remain abstinent as long as she applies herself to the community-based self-help program which was introduced to her during her stay at <name removed> and regularly attends the Aftercare program available to her.

A Substance Abuse Assessment form was completed by the Applicant's family physician on September 21, 2010. Under the heading "Medical", the doctor wrote that the Applicant had gone through some traumatic events in recent years, that her brother had passed away from cancer in 2002, and that the Applicant, herself, was diagnosed with endometrial cancer in 2009. The doctor described the Applicant as being stable, very cooperative, and calmer since her abstinence from alcohol. He also noted that she is following the advice and treatment provided to her. The details under the heading "Physical Assessment and Laboratory Evaluation" are largely illegible, but it is noted that the MCV, GGT, AST and ALT were reported normal. The "AUDIT" score was 13. What is written under the heading "Diagnosis" is largely illegible.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on September 22, 2010, informing her that it would be necessary for an assessment form to be filed from an Addictions Specialist or from a physician familiar with the Applicant's medical history. Also, MTO noted that this report should confirm that the Applicant had been abstinent from alcohol for one year. The MTO also required that an explanation be provided for any abnormal MCV, GGT, AST or ALT reports.

In a report on September 24, 2010, Dr. P. wrote the following:

> <The Applicant> has never seen a psychiatrist, nor been under psychiatric care, and has never been hospitalized for any psychiatric problems, and is mentally and emotionally stable, since becoming my patient in my practice since October 2007.

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that she had completed the 19-day residential program at the <name removed> Treatment Centre and has received the papers indicating this. She understands that the Aftercare program is not mandatory, but she intends to attend this anyway. She is going to "AA" meetings.

The Applicant stated that it was reported that she had a seizure when she was in her twenties, but she asserted that there was never any medical confirmation of this. She also stated that it was reported in Dr. P.'s report, dated July 23, 2010, that her fall on June 30, 2010, was due to inebriation from alcohol, but actually the main cause of this fall was that she tripped over her dog when she entered her house.

Since July 13, 2010, the Applicant has abstained from alcohol, Benzodiazepines and codeine.

The Applicant has a good driving record. She has never driven after drinking. She has a full-time job and would like to be able to drive in order to get to work.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading "Alcohol dependence and alcohol withdrawal seizures" of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 13.2) is written as follows:

May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.

Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant's desire to be able to drive again.
The Tribunal recognizes that the Applicant has not consumed alcohol since July 13, 2010, that she is attending "AA" meetings, that she has successfully completed the 19-day residential program at the <name removed> Treatment Centre, that she is enrolled to complete the rehabilitation program for another six months, that the urine immunoassay report of August 6, 2010 was negative for alcohol and other substances, and that the September 21, 2010 Laboratory Report showed normal results for the GGT and MCV. The Tribunal also recognizes that the Applicant has been under much stress in the last several years, first with the death of her brother in 2002, and secondly, with the fact that she was diagnosed with and treated for uterine cancer in 2009.

However, the Tribunal notes that it is only about three months since the Applicant last consumed alcohol, and that according to the July 5, 2010 Assessment Report from <name removed> Regional Hospital, her intake of alcohol was high to very high prior to July 13, 2010, when she stopped. The Tribunal also notes that the Applicant is only part way through her rehabilitation program at the <name removed> Treatment Centre and still has six months of the Aftercare program.

The Tribunal has decided that the Applicant should complete the rehabilitation program in its entirety and then obtain a report from her family physician confirming that she has been abstinent from alcohol for one year (supported by bio-chemical markers), before consideration can be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's licence.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective August 6, 2010, to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DATE OF HEARING: November 19, 2010 Hamilton

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

INTRODUCTION

The 33-year-old Applicant had a neurosurgical procedure for epilepsy in April 2010. She has been seizure-free since surgery. Should her driving privileges be restored prior to the one-year seizure-free period required by the Registrar?

EXHIBITS

1. Notice of Suspension – effective March 21, 2009
2. Notice of Appeal form – dated October 6, 2010
3. Tabbed Submissions of the Registrar – dated November 3, 2010

4. Letter of the Applicant's Employer – dated November 8, 2010

THE EVIDENCE

Following the suspension of the Applicant's driving privileges for a nocturnal seizure in March 1999 (Exhibit #3 – Tab 1), her privileges were restored in April 2000 (Exhibit #3 – Tab 5).

Her oral testimony was that she drove from 2000 until 2007, when she voluntarily stopped driving because of a recurrence of symptoms. Despite many interactions with the health care system, she was surprised that her driving privileges were not formally suspended until March 2009.

Because of an episode of status epilepticus in February 2009, the Applicant was reported to the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario ("MTO") (Exhibit #3 – Tab 6). Her driving privileges were suspended on March 21, 2009 (Exhibit #3 – Tab 7), requesting medical information from her neurologist.

Anti-convulsant drugs failed to completely control her seizures and caused side effects (skin). The Applicant attended the Epilepsy Clinic at a teaching hospital to be evaluated for a neurosurgical procedure – temporal lobectomy – in hopes of eradicating her seizures.

Following subdural electro-encephalography in January 2010, she was deemed a candidate for a right temporal lobectomy. The procedure was performed on April 8, 2010 (Exhibit #3 – Tab 10).

On August 30, 2010, the Applicant's neurologist copied the MTO (Exhibit #3 – Tab 10) supportive of her returning to work. He stated that the Applicant had been seizure-free since March 10, 2010, and expected her to continue to be seizure-free because of the surgery.

The MTO replied to the Applicant on September 23, 2010 (Exhibit #3 – Tab 11) stating that consideration would be given to restoring her driving privileges after establishing a one-year, seizure-free period (i.e. March 10, 2011).

On October 22, 2010, the Applicant filed a Notice of Appeal (Exhibit #2) with the Tribunal. A hearing was set for November 19, 2010.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's driving privileges be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
>
> on the grounds of,

>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO THE FACTS (ANALYSIS)

The Tribunal finds that the Registrar has not made its case that the Applicant's driving privileges should remain suspended.

The Tribunal has reviewed the following sources of information:

1. The Applicant's Notice of Appeal (Exhibit #2)

2. The Applicant's testimony

3. The Applicant's Driving Record (Exhibit #3 – Tab 13)

4. Guidelines provided by the MTO (Exhibit #3 – Tabs 15 and 16)

5. Letter from the Applicant's Neurologist (Exhibit #3 – Tab 12a)

6. The Act – section 47(1)

The Applicant is a credible witness grateful for the surgical treatment of her epilepsy. She has returned to work (Exhibit #4) and is supported by her manager. She expects to be seizure-free the rest of her life and doesn't see why she should wait until March 10, 2011, to have her driving privileges restored.

Nobody knows whether the Applicant will ever have another seizure. The fact is, she may have a seizure in January 2011 or after March 2011, or never.

The Applicant's driving record only goes back three years (Exhibit #3 – Tab 13). Currently, the Applicant has no demerit points. Her driving privileges were suspended for medical reasons on March 21, 2009.

The Registrar relies on two sets of guidelines to insist that the one-year, seizure-free period be adhered to (Exhibit #3 – Tabs 15 and 16).

Firstly, Exhibit #3 - Tab 15, the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("CCMTA") Medical Standards for Drivers, July 15, 2006.

> A patient who has been seizure-free on medication for 1 year and whose seizures have recurred after medication was stopped for a trial period on the physician's instructions may drive after resuming medication. A patient who stops taking antiseizure medication against the physician's advice should not be allowed to drive until the physician feels confident that he or she has resumed regular drug therapy and will conscientiously follow advice in the future. (CMA 5.4)

The Applicant has only been seizure-free since March 2010. But the preceding paragraph states:

> An applicant who meets all these criteria and who has been free from seizures for six months can usually operate a Class 5 or 6 motor vehicle safely, provided the medication prescribed does not cause significant effects that would impair driving. This will require a favourable recommendation from the treating physician.

The Tribunal believes that the October 10, 2010 letter from the Applicant's Neurologist (Exhibit #3 – Tab 12a) supports the Applicant's case (i.e. Consideration of reinstatement after being free of seizures for six months).

There is nothing in the CCMTA Guidelines, which mentions driving after temporal lobe surgery.

Regarding the Canadian Medical Association ("CMA") Guidelines (Exhibit #3 – Tab 16), 7th Edition, Section 10 – "Nervous system" – Pages 38-40. The Guidelines are presented in both a tabular and text format – Section 10.4.1, Table 2, Page 38:

> After diagnosis of epilepsy, private drivers can drive if:
> - 6 months seizure free on medication
> - Physician has insight into patient compliance
> - Physician cautions against fatigue, alcohol

However, in the text, Section 10.4.2 (Page 39) states:

> Private drivers: Seizure-free period: The patient should be seizure free on medication for not less than 6 months, unless seizures with altered awareness have occurred more than once a year in the previous 2 years, in which case the seizure-free interval should be 12 months.

The Applicant did have seizures on a monthly basis between 2007 and 2009, and regularly sought medical assistance in physicians' offices and hospital Emergency Rooms. During this time, she voluntarily stopped driving. The Tribunal can only surmise that the physicians thought the Applicant wasn't driving because her privileges had already been suspended.

> Private drivers: "After surgery to prevent epileptic seizures":
> - Resume driving if 12 months seizure free after surgery with therapeutic drug levels. (Recommendations for individual patients may differ on an exceptional basis)

The Guidelines are somewhat contradictory, but the Tribunal believes that they provide an alternative to a 12-month seizure-free period required by the Registrar.

The Tribunal relies on the two reports from the Applicant's Neurologist to shorten the seizure-free requirement to six months:

- Exhibit #3, Tab 10, and
- Exhibit #3, Tab 12a

The Tribunal has considered all of the evidence and applied the law to the facts. After careful consideration, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not (re: Regulation 340/94, section 14(a):

> suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

The Tribunal is concerned about the safety of both the Applicant and the public. Guided by the strong recommendation of her Neurologist, the Tribunal believes a seizure-free period of six months is sufficient.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective March 21, 2009, to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST M.D.

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 27, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "HTA").

FACTS:

The Applicant who is a 35 year old architect, received a letter from the MTO on July 21st, 2010 stating they had received a report indicating that he had a condition which impairs his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. The report had been submitted in compliance with the Highway Traffic Act regarding his reported "seizure(s) – alcohol related." After considering all relevant facts available, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles had decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act

This letter from the MTO went on to explain that they would be pleased to reconsider the Applicant's case for reinstatement upon receipt of information satisfactory to the Registrar. Therefore, they asked that he arrange for the MTO to receive a detailed up-to-date report from his doctor which would include the following:

> The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

In the MTO's letter there was a reference to the Applicant's reported seizure(s). As the seizure appeared related to alcohol misuse, "the enclosed Substance Abuse Assessment Form must be completed by the Applicant's treating physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine".

Further, if as a result of the assessment,

> "the Applicant's physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and/or that you have experienced an alcohol withdrawal or alcohol related seizure, this assessment must confirm that you have remained both seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if the Applicant's physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the re-instatement of his driving privilege".

The letter went on to ask for a clinical explanation to be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

The letter asked for details of the circumstances surrounding the reported seizure as well as details of any previous seizure whether alcohol related or not.

This action by the MTO occurred as a result of a Medical Condition Report sent to the MTO on May 20th, 2010. In a list of common medical conditions Dr. T.L. had identified alcohol dependence and seizure(s) – alcohol related. The MTO's requested Substance Abuse Assessment Form regarding the Applicant's problems was filled out by the Applicant's family physician Dr. M.S. on August 4th, 2010. In the form he had itemized that the Applicant had been hospitalized in the last 12 months for alcohol withdrawal symptoms. In the positive response section the doctor indicated that the Applicant had promptly and consciously agreed to attend a program at a regional health centre. He has diligently and regularly continued to attend AA meetings, and totally abstained from the use of alcohol. The doctor expressed his belief that the Applicant clearly recognises that he is a reformed former alcoholic and his doctor stated that he deserved to have his driving privileges restored.

The narrative indicated that he had suffered an alcohol withdrawal seizure 12 – 72 hours after cessation of drinking. At that time all liver function tests were normal.

The Applicant's history disclosed that he first consumed alcohol at the age of 15, to the point of intoxication. He became a regular drinker at the age of 20 and the amount consumed on each occasion would be 6 beers, and 3 shots of brandy and 1 glass of wine. His most recent use of alcohol had been May 18th, 2010 and this report indicated that the Applicant has been abstinent since May 20th, 2010, the date on which he went to hospital because of a withdrawal seizure.

This report disclosed that the Applicant had diligently pursued a 12 step program over a period of 36 weeks. It was also noted that his current participation with sponsors diary, meditation, exercise, diet, avoidance of “slippery” places was going very well.

The Applicant was diagnosed as suffering from alcohol dependency and the recommended goal was abstinence. His ongoing treatment program at the regional centre included regular visits, 6 days a week, including an appearance daily with the AA organization. This had been ongoing for 36 weeks. Dr. M.S. had been looking after the Applicant since his birth, 35 years before.

This form went on to summarize the fact that the Applicant suffered from alcohol dependence, with the appearance of withdrawal problem (seizure).

The audit regarding his current activities disclosed that the Applicant had attended and completed treatment at a regional addiction service centre from June 29th, 2010 to July 29th, 2010 and he has been totally abstinent since May 20th, 2010.

The only other medical problem of any significance is the fact that the Applicant is taking Warfarin for an ongoing management of chronic deep vein thrombosis (Lupus related).

The Respondent then entered a report consisting of the discharge summary from the regional addiction centre indicating that the Applicant lived at home with his wife (there are no children), is self employed and was diligently attending AA meetings. He is meeting with sponsors and had completed the Phase 3 program at this regional centre. He has also continued with regular appointments with his family doctor.

Ninety visits in ninety days were recommended and the Applicant has complied.

It was also noted that the Applicant was following a daily structured routine with three regular meals, snacks, diary, meditation, exercise, relaxation, etc. He was also being observed regarding any possible relapse and the plan was to continue as an outpatient with follow up visits. Laboratory reports for the 4th of August, 2010 showed normal liver function test and this has been the case throughout the months following the alcohol related seizure in May of 2010.

Another Medical Condition Report from Dr. I.C. was received by the MTO on August 17th, 2010 and this referred also to the events of May 20th with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and a note that there had been an alcohol withdrawal seizure.

The Medical Advisory Committee of the MTO reviewed the Applicant’s progress on August 12th, 2010. They requested further information. They asked for a report from the driver’s treating physician to confirm ongoing abstinence from alcohol supported by bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT and AST). They went on to state that a clinical explanation would be required for any level outside of the normal laboratory range. Furthermore they asked for confirmation of absence of further seizures.

The MAC went on to state that if a favourable report was received they could reinstate to Class "G" with a six months (post-report) follow up to include bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT, and AST).

The MAC observed that the driver has completed a substance abuse treatment program at a well recognised institution and is enrolled in the phase 3 after care program scheduled to be completed in 36 weeks. They asked for a longer period of stability after post-alcohol withdrawal seizure on May 20th, 2010.

On September 22nd, 2010 the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his case had been reviewed in light of the Substance Abuse Assessment Report dated August 10th, 2010. The Applicant was required to file a further report from his treating physician in December 2010 confirming his ongoing abstinence from alcohol supported by bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT and AST). A clinical explanation would be required for any levels outside the normal range. They also requested confirmation that there have been no further seizures.

Upon receipt of these assessments the MTO indicated that his case will be considered for reinstatement.

A certified copy of the Applicant's driving record was filed and there were no offenses and simply a medical suspension.

The Agent then entered pertinent sections of the 2009 Annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act and also the pertinent portions of the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE:

He had no questions of the MTO's Agent and presented (Exhibit #3) recent blood tests stated October 22nd, 2010 indicating that all his liver function tests were normal.

The Applicant went on to express his appreciation for this Tribunal hearing, and said that there were two issues:

1: The main issue as he saw it was his recovery. He pointed out that he is doing everything that the MTO has requested. The problem is that to be compliant in this regard he has serious difficulty getting to the rehab centre on a daily basis but has done so in fact daily except for Sundays for 90 days. He found that this time frame was very difficult for him and also extremely stressful. He acknowledged that a driving licence is a privilege but is very concerned about his ability to maintain his follow up care and sessions with the AA without the use of a car. He underlined carefully the stress that this situation causes him and is under extreme pressure.

2: Not having a licence has caused him serious financial difficulties. His income source is that of working with his father and this is now interfering with his father's activities. He went on to describe how he has recently married and now has mortgage problems.

Questioning by the Tribunal confirmed that he had begun to drink at the age of 15 and indicated that this early start on his drinking career maybe partly due to his European heritage. The use of alcohol isn't frowned upon so much and there could be an hereditary factor with an alcoholic uncle in his background.

He described his drinking then as mostly beer with high school friends.

When he went to University the drinking became a daily event. He admitted that his mother was "on his case" indicating her concern about his excessive drinking habits. In fact the Applicant acknowledged that he knew he was drinking significantly and consuming more than his friends.

He described the day of his seizure which had resulted in a period of withdrawal caused by having started a new job keeping him very busy and the drinking had ceased for approximately two days. He was taken to hospital following this withdrawal seizure and spent three days as an inpatient.

He denied craving alcohol now and stated that he knows that if he starts to drink again he will die. He explained how he has been taught during his treatment to visualize the scene with him on a hospital stretcher if he had begun to drink again.

He went on to explain that after graduation from university at the age of 26 he was certainly a social drinker but he had also developed into a solitary drinker using various measures to hide his abuse of alcohol. He admitted that he had even reached the stage where he was using "eye-openers" by day.

THE RESPONDENT IN CROSS-EXAMINATION:

The Applicant testified that he became a regular daily consumer of alcohol at the age of 20. He had reached the alarming amount of an average of 6 beers, 3 shots of liquor (brandy) and a glass of wine daily and that alcohol was certainly in his blood stream when he was working. He also admitted that he had been drinking the night before, there certainly would be some alcohol in his circulation when driving the next day. He admitted that as well his mother noted his drinking habits and had been on his case for quite sometime. The Applicant observed as well that perhaps 8 – 9 years ago his liver function tests were abnormal and he did see a liver specialist.

He stated that he had never tried any previous interval of abstinence but now has been totally abstinent for five plus months. He stated that there is no alcohol in his house. He observed that his follow up outpatient 36 week program with the addiction centre and the AA will be completed in April.

He also observed that he saw his family doctor a week ago who is now quite ready to give a further supportive report at the present time and he is in touch with him every couple of weeks. He also continues his regular visits with the AA and sponsors.

THE AGENT IN SUMMARY:

He reviewed the findings indicating that the Applicant suffers from alcohol abuse and has had one withdrawal seizure and pointed out that the MTO's decision in this case is appropriate.

He commended the Applicant's excellent approach to the problem and stressed that his position is that of an obligation to uphold the guidelines. He pointed out that the Applicant is now only a month away from fulfilling the MTO's requirement. His only requirement at the present time is that he obtain an up-to-date Medical Review Report. Until that time the position of the Ministry is that the Tribunal should confirm their position.

THE APPLICANT IN SUMMARY:

He expressed his thanks for this Tribunal meeting and indicated that he is well aware of the risk that he poses to himself and others if he starts to drink again and knows that he will succeed in managing this. He stressed that time is a very big issue and the stress of getting back and forth to continue his therapy is real and that he needs his licence.

ISSUES:

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW:

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS:

From the age of 15 the Applicant began to use alcohol and by the age of 20 this had become a regular daily event. The fact is that 8 – 9 years ago liver disease was noted and he continued with his habit and certainly had become dependant. Only with the almost inadvertent two day withdrawal period when he took on a new job assignment did he turn up at an emergency department having had an alcohol withdrawal seizure which has led to the serious situation in which he finds himself now regarding his driver's licence.

The presentation today demonstrates the Applicant suffers from chronic alcoholism, a lifelong affliction.

The Applicant, a highly intelligent individual, very quickly realized the seriousness of his problem and his compliance with the treatment program and the requirements of the MTO has been very diligent doing every step of his treatment, and has done his best to comply with every request from the Ministry.

It is noteworthy that the Ministry's MAC, with the Applicant's efforts to comply, is now working on the six month period of abstinence with detailed documentation as a requirement for them to consider the Applicant for relicencing. The Ministry's attitude is very encouraging.

The Tribunal recognizes as well that the Applicant has excellent insight into his problem and also notes the documented notes of his response to solve his problem.

Review of requirements of the Highway Traffic Act and of the CCMTA document underscores that both of these publications require a well documented full 12 months period of abstinence of alcohol substance abuse. These requirements are logical in that the completion of a 12 month period of abstinence indicates that an Applicant is capable of complying with the requirements. The Tribunal is impressed with the positive nature of the MTO's presentation underscored by the fact that their Medical Advisory Committee is also willing to accept a well documented 6 month period of abstinence. This is probably because of the Applicant's positive response to this crisis.

The matter of chronic alcoholism must be considered realistically. In the interest of safety on the highway and for the Applicant's own health, it is essential that he comply with the MTO's position which in fact now comes down to approximately another month of well documented abstinence. To shorten this interval further would render the regulations redundant. The Tribunal notes that the Applicant is being treated quite fairly by them as well.

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective July 21st, 2010 to suspend the driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having consider the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

It is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. DAVID HURST, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 27, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS

The Applicant, who has had licencing problems previously, was notified by the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") that her driving privilege had been suspended on the 28th of September, 2010.

The Applicant's current problems date back to May 4th, 2009 and at that time her family physician Dr. C.M. sent a letter to the MTO which stated:

> Please be aware that this patient has been to my office to seek counselling for substance abuse problems. She states that she is not drinking prior to driving, but in the past has driven under the influence.

This letter was acknowledged by the Deputy Registrar.

On June 10th, 2009 – a letter was sent to the Applicant stating that the MTO had received a report indicating that she suffered from a medical condition, which may impair her ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. This report was submitted by a physician in compliance with section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act. Accordingly, the Registrar had decided to suspend the Applicant's driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47 (1) of the Highway Traffic Act.

The MTO asked that an enclosed Alcohol Assessment Form be completed by the Applicant's treating physician. The physician was to indicate if a diagnosis of Alcohol Dependence was present, and, if so, what is the recommended form of treatment. If a diagnosis of Alcohol Dependence was made, this assessment was to confirm that the Applicant had remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. The MTO stated that this period could be reduced if information was provided indicating that the Applicant had successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and upon a favourable recommendation from her physician. The report would include the result of bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT) with a clinical explanation if any results were outside of the normal laboratory range.

June 23, 2009 – Dr. C.M., the Applicant's physician wrote,

> To Whom It May Concern: Please be aware that this patient has been to see me in the office on a regular basis. She has been attending regular AA meetings as well. She has also been to see a counsellor at a regional substance abuse clinic. She has had blood work indicating normal GGT and MCV. She had previously attended an inpatient treatment facility from January 26th to February 13th, 2009. She has not driven under the influence and is trying to remain abstinent. I will continue to see her on a biweekly basis and monitor blood levels randomly.

June 23, 2009 – the MTO received a completed Alcohol Assessment Form, and on July 16th, 2009, the Registrar wrote to the Applicant stating several pages of the assessment were illegible. They asked that the form be resubmitted.

July 21, 2009 Dr C.M. wrote:

> To Whom It May Concern: Please be aware that the Applicant has been abstinent since June 13th, 2009. She completed her inpatient program at a regional centre February 13th, 2009. Also please be aware that I have updated the classification form Alcohol Dependence to Problem Drinker because she was experiencing social consequences of her drinking but none of the "major" medical consequences listed on the previous page. She is seeing me on a regular basis, attending AA almost daily and has been very responsible in this her first serious attempt to stop all drinking. She clearly is not a hazard driving at this point.

July 21, 2009 – the Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") of the MTO filed a report indicating that the Applicant should remain suspended. They offered to reconsider her suspension with a detailed assessment from a physician specializing in addictions medicine. The report must confirm a 12 month period of abstinence and indicate whether further formal treatment is recommended, in which case this must be completed before reinstatement can be considered. Additionally, the physician must comment/state if participation in relapse prevention is required. Abstinence must be demonstrated by normal bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT).

The Committee's reasons were as follows:

> Known to be alcohol dependent and admits driving while impaired; although she sought counselling and attended an inpatient treatment facility from January 26 to February 13, 2009, she subsequently relapsed. Dr. C.M.'s report on June 23, 2009 states driver is now seeing a counsellor at a regional centre and attending AA. However, current attempt at abstinence has only been confirmed for one month. Given recent relapse following treatment, a one year period of abstinence should be demonstrated as well as compliance with any recommendations by the physician before a request for reinstatement is considered.

September 10, 2009 – the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that her driving privilege should remain under suspension. They stated that a longer period of stability was necessary to ensure that her condition had been adequately controlled. Again the MTO offered to consider her case provided that they receive a detailed, up-to-date assessment from a physician specializing in addictions medicine. They stressed that the report must confirm that the Applicant had remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of 12 months. They did state that this period could be reduced upon receipt of a favourable report from the addictions specialist, which indicates that she is compliant with the physician recommendations.

September 14, 2009 – a regional treatment centre wrote to the MTO regarding the Applicant stating that an assessment interview had been carried out on November 19th, 2008. Her attendance since June 2009 had been as follows:

June 22, 2009	attended case management appointment
July 13, 2009	appointment rescheduled due to family vacation
August 14, 2009	attended case management session
September 14, 2009	attended case management session

This letter went on to explain that the Applicant had been reported as abstinent since June 13th, 2009. The Applicant had been an active participant in the sessions and appeared to be focused and committed to maintaining her goal of abstinence. The current plan was for her to attend regular case management sessions and regular attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous meetings. Her next appointment was slated for October 13th, 2009.

September 17, 2009 – a letter was sent by the Applicant's physician Dr. C.M., in which she stated that the Applicant had been abstinent since June 2009 and is being reviewed regularly for medical assessment and by a counsellor for ongoing counselling. GGT levels were reported as normal. The doctor felt that she was not at risk of drinking and driving. She stated that if the Applicant was still strongly motivated by alcohol she would have been driving without a licence, to acquire alcohol, and her behaviour and lab tests suggest that she is not. Consequently she has been home over the summer with her children and if she had been driving, they or her husband would have reported this behaviour since the family had been to see the doctor regarding her previous abnormal behaviours. The doctor hoped that this information would be considered when deciding whether or not to reinstate her licence.

November 24, 2009 – Dr. C.M. in a letter stated that she had made a referral for the Applicant to the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health in Toronto. Enclosed was a laboratory report of the GGT which was low normal. The MCV and MCH were also in the normal range.

September 14, 2009 – the MAC for the MTO filed a further report on the Applicant stating that she should remain suspended. Again they stated they would reconsider their position based on the receipt of information from the treating physician confirming abstinence from alcohol for a sustained period of 12 months supported by bio-chemical markers. Consideration for early reinstatement could be given with a report from the Substance Abuse Treatment Program to confirm successful completion of a substance abuse treatment program with relapse prevention. The Committee's reasons were as follows:

> Driver has been diagnosed as alcohol dependent and has attended substance abuse treatment at local centre from January 26/09 to February 13/09. The driver subsequently relapsed achieving abstinence in June/09 and a further period of abstinence is required, and the MAC recognizes the driver has started treatment and in light of her recidivism will require a relapse prevention program.

October 27, 2009 – the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that it had been decided that her driving privilege should remain under suspension. The requirements for reinstatement were described once again.

November 3, 2009 – the Applicant filed a letter listing in detail why she should appeal her licence suspension, and on December 11, 2009 her appeal was heard by the Licence Appeal Tribunal. The decision of this Tribunal was as follows:

> More time should elapse before consideration can be given to the reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privilege, during which time the Applicant should be encouraged to continue with her AA meetings and her appointments with her family physician. When a satisfactory report is received from the Addiction's Specialist, whom the Applicant is scheduled to see on December 18th, 2009, then, serious consideration should be given to the reinstatement of the driving privilege.

December 18, 2009 – a consultation report was sent to Dr. C.M. by Dr. M.Z., a specialist at a mental health program in which he explained to the patient that he was not an addiction specialist but is a psychiatrist doing a psychiatric assessment. He noted that the Applicant was a recovering alcoholic with no alcohol consumption since June 2009 but her licence was still suspended. Dr. M.Z. reviewed the Applicant's drinking habits and noted her sobriety since June of 2009 and also that she sees the AA people three times a week. He noted that she was receiving counselling for the past 12 months or so. Relapse was noted after a three week treatment centre session ending in February 2009. His diagnosis was that there was alcohol abuse in remission since June of 2009 and she was psychiatrically stable and did not need any medications. He recommended that she remain abstinent from alcohol and was to continue to go to AA and see her counsellor regularly.

January 18, 2010 – the MTO once again wrote to the Applicant indicating that her driving privilege should remain under suspension. They again described their requirements for reconsideration for relicensing.

March 18, 2010 – a report was filed from another treatment centre by an addiction counsellor confirming that the Applicant had been a resident at this centre for treatment between March 1, 2010 and March 18, 2010.

March 22, 2010 – the MTO acknowledged this report and indicated the Applicant must file a further assessment as this report did not fully address the concerns requested by them previously.

March 23, 2010 – Dr. C.M. wrote again regarding the Applicant's abstinence and was in support of licence reinstatement effective as soon as possible. Laboratory work on that date showed a GGT in the low normal range.

March 23, 2010 – the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that her medical report had been approved and a notice of reinstatement would be mailed. They requested a further assessment on September 23, 2010 from her treating physician confirming her continued abstinence from alcohol supported by bio-chemical markers (MCV & GGT).

Unfortunately following the reinstatement of her driving privilege, Dr. C.M. reported to the MTO on July 14th, 2010 stating:

> It has come to my attention that this patient is drinking again to excess. Family reports her being drunk during daytime hours several times this month. No clear indication that she is driving at present, however it is reported by family that during the last suspension she was driving without any insurance intermittently. She has not come to see me in the office so I can not provide any definitive evidence that she is driving while she is impaired nor can I indicate that she denies it. In the past she had admitted to me she was driving while intoxicated.

August 4, 2010 – Dr. C.M. wrote,

> To Whom It May Concern: – the Applicant has been abstinent from alcohol since July 2010. She denies driving under the influence of alcohol. I have extensively questioned her family and they adamantly deny any driving while under the influence. She reaffirms today that prior to her last suspension she had driven after drinking but this has never recurred. She now has a job during daytime hours which requires her to drive on a daily basis and I feel strongly that having this employment would be very helpful for her. I sincerely hope that you are not forced to suspend her licence based on the last information that I provided to you. She will be having GGT testing today and on a regular basis and will see me in the office in regular follow up.

September 18, 2010 – the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that as a result of these recent reports they have decided to suspend her driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. Again they outlined their requirements for reconsideration of this stance. The Agent for the MTO submitted a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record which simply showed suspensions for medical reasons on the above mentioned occasions. The Agent then referred to the pertinent sections of the CCMTA medical standards for drivers as it applies to people suffering from substance abuse.

The Applicant's Case

She stated that the letter by her doctor resulting in her second suspension was not accurate. She felt that she had been wrongly judged by her family and in fact was not driving while intoxicated. When questioned by the Tribunal as to how this might have happened, the Applicant stated that her husband may have expressed some concern about her driving. She described this episode as a miscommunication and explained that she has now been abstinent since July, 2010. She stated that her longest period of abstinence had been between 8 and 10 months at the time when her licence had been reinstated. Referring to the setback she suffered in July of 2010, she described it as having occurred for only two or three days, when friends came to visit and drinking occurred. Unfortunately her friends were not aware of her personal drinking difficulties.

The Agent's Questions Of The Applicant

Questioning regarding Dr. C.M.'s letter in July, concerning the relapse ascertained that all of the information in that letter was third party information and none of it had been directly confirmed by the doctor. Again under questioning the Applicant indicated that the drinking episode might have lasted three days when she had friends visiting at their cottage. Her husband was aware of the drinking on this occasion and spoke to her about it , and when she saw her doctor (Dr. C.M.) in August she was abstinent again. Questioning disclosed that the Applicant is continuing to see her doctor on a regular basis and has attended once since August 4, 2010. At that time, she said her doctor advised her to continue to go to AA regularly or as much as she can. She is following this policy at the present time. The Applicant again stated that other than two or three days in July, she has been abstinent now since November, 2009. Questioning of the Agent by the Tribunal at this time indicated that there is no other information with the MTO for this July, 2010 episode.

The Agent explained that the MTO was obliged to act on the reports from the Applicant's family doctor and that the suspension was correct. He pointed out that the regulations that a licencee must not be addicted to an extent to cause a risk on the highway. Tabs 1 to16 of his submissions today demonstrate that such a risk exists. The Agent reviewed the documented evidence that the Applicant had been abstinent for nearly a year and then suffered a three day set back in July of 2010 causing her current re-suspension. The Agent felt that Dr. C.M.'s report leading to this suspension indicated the relapse was a significant one. He pointed out that Dr. C.M. has filed two Medical Condition Reports regarding the Applicant's drinking in the past year. The Agent also stated that it is now 2½ months since the last letter by Dr. C.M. and no new information to recommend reinstatement and no further bio-chemical markers have been provided. He noted that the MTO must have complete information to consider reinstatement and it needs to be updated to the present time.

THE APPLICANT IN SUMMARY:

She stated that the episode in July was a very short interval of moderate drinking and not to excess as indicated in the doctor's letter. She also stated that she is not driving at the present time.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant admits that she is an alcoholic and has stated so at her AA meetings. There is a profusion of evidence here that she has been very compliant seeking help with her alcohol problem, and has had considerable success and at all times her bio-chemical markers have been well within the normal range.

The MTO has been correct in the application of the initial suspension and then again correct with re-suspension as a result of the information provided to them, regarding the short relapse by the Applicant in July 2010. This Medical Condition Report filed by Dr. C.M. was based on third party information as has been pointed out by the Applicant. The doctor was not at hand at that time to carry out any further detailed questioning or examination.

On the occasion of the Applicant's first appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal, a Member in support of the MTO's position stated that the Applicant by complying with their request would be able to regain her licence, and the Applicant in fact has complied very well with the requirements. Were it not for the 2 – 3 days drinking episode with her friends last July, she now would have exceeded the required 12 month period of abstinence and is now approaching five months of sobriety since the July, 2010 set back.

The MTO's requirement for a detailed medical assessment review of any abnormal bio-chemical markers could be easily remedied and for this reason the Applicant's position, in fairness would be considered.

It is noteworthy that all of her physicians have recommended reinstatement.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated September 28, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID HURST, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: November 9, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Despite communication by the Tribunal with the Applicant on November 8, 2010, and the understanding that this hearing would rely on the presence of the Applicant, he failed to be present at the appointed time of 1:00 p.m. on November 9, 2010. Accordingly, the Tribunal allowed a postponement of 30 minutes, at which time the Applicant had failed to appear and as well the Tribunal could not reach him by telephone.

The hearing proceeded in the Applicant’s absence.

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

The Applicant is a 45-year old gentleman who has worked in the insurance industry but recently was unemployed. As will become apparent, it seems likely that his deteriorating health is alcohol related.

The Ministry of Transportation's ("MTO") position was presented by Mr. McKnight, Agent for the Registrar, beginning with a Medical Condition Report, dated January 2, 2009, in which a tick mark had been placed by the category "seizure(s) – alcohol related".

Optional comments disclosed that the Applicant had suffered a generalized tonic/clonic seizure. This was considered likely to be due to alcohol withdrawal. The report had been filed by Dr. A.

On January 26, 2009, MTO acknowledged receipt of this report to the physician.

On January 26, 2009, the MTO also corresponded with the Applicant stating that he suffered from a medical condition which may impair his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. They stated that the Applicant would be suspended of his driving privilege for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Act.

The letter stated that the Applicant must provide an up-to-date detailed report from his treating physician or by a physician specializing in addictions medicine regarding his reported seizure. As the seizure appeared related to alcohol misuse, the Alcohol Assessment Form must be completed. The physician must indicate if a diagnosis of alcohol dependence is present, and, if so, what is the recommended form of treatment.

This letter from MTO indicated that if the diagnosis of alcohol dependence was made, and/or that the Applicant had experienced an alcohol withdrawal seizure, the assessment must confirm that he has remained seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if he provides confirmation that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program, and upon a favourable recommendation from his physician. It must also include the results of bio-chemical markers (MCV and GGT) with a clinical explanation if any results are outside the normal laboratory range.

On March 20, 2009, Dr. K. wrote to MTO regarding the Applicant as follows:

> …had a generalized tonic clonic seizure on the 1st of January 2009. He has had no further seizures since then. Head CT and 2 EEGs are unremarkable and his neurological exam is normal. Therefore there is no evidence of seizure disorder.
> However, there was evidence supportive of alcohol withdrawal as being a cause; information provided by his wife and the alcohol withdrawal symptoms he had when he presented after the seizure to the local hospital. The patient denies any problems with alcohol and disputes this history. In view of this new information, please reassess the status of this patient's driver's licence.

Dr. K. also sent along a copy of a follow-up consultation letter by Dr. W. This report stated that the Applicant had been seen in follow-up for an alcohol withdrawal seizure. He stated that the Applicant denied alcohol was an issue any longer (if ever). There have been no seizures.

Examination showed a mild intention tremor and normal neurological exam.

The results of two EEGs were normal and a head CT was unremarkable. The doctor's opinion was that there was no evidence of epilepsy to account for the seizure. The possibility of alcohol withdrawal seizure could not be ruled out.

A CT report done on January 1, 2009, with examination of the head showed only mild cerebral atrophy.

An EEG examination on February 25, 2009, showed a normal EEG in the awake state, and a Deprived EEG Study was booked for ten days later.

A Deprived EEG Study was done on March 4, 2009, and was described as a normal EEG in the awake, drowsy and sleeping states.

The next documentation relied on by the Agent for the Registrar was a consultation report dated January 2, 2009, and carried out by Dr. K. (neurologist).

In his narrative, the neurologist described a past medical history significant for cardiomyopathy (grade III to IV - expected to be due to alcohol). Medications at home included Enalapril, Spironolactone, Carvedilol, Lasix and Atavan. The Applicant was thought to show a longstanding history of possible essential tremor. No family history of epilepsy. Smoking - two cigarettes a day. He drank every day and admitted to drinking two or three beers a night and slightly more on the weekend. His wife however indicated that he drinks much more than this. The family has also noticed increasing tremor, especially in the arms, marked in the morning when he gets up. No history of seizure disorder and no past history of head trauma. He denies using any illicit drugs.

The Applicant's last alcoholic intake was on January 1, 2009. On that evening at about 5:00 p.m., he was feeling quite shaky and went upstairs to his bedroom where he collapsed on the bed and had a generalized tonic/clonic seizure, witnessed by his wife and lasting about two minutes. He bit his tongue. When he awoke after several minutes, he was confused and did not know his age, although he was able to identify his address and identify his wife. He seemed confused at times, for example mistaking his finger oximeter for a glass of orange juice and he tried to throw his oximeter in the garbage can. He was oriented, however, as to day, month and year. Examination was fairly routine although he was described as quite tremulous with postural and action tremor. Head CT was unremarkable. Sodium was 133 and Potassium 2.9. Fasting glucose was normal. Calcium was slightly low at 2.04 with normal phosphate and magnesium. Both phosphate and magnesium were low when he originally was admitted. CK was elevated at 826. Troponin was 0.04. AST was 112 on admission and had decreased to 86.

Otherwise, transaminases were unremarkable. Alcohol level was 0. Benzodiazepines were noted on the drug screen. Hemoglobin was 112 with a high MCV of 99. Cardiomyopathy, which is being followed, now thought to possibly be secondary to alcohol. Presents with a generalized tonic clonic seizure in the setting of excessive daily alcohol intake, although he has not had a drink in the past 24 hours. Neurological exam was significant for a postural and action tremor of the upper and lower extremities, and also, there is mild confusion as exhibited by misinterpretation of physical stimuli. CT is unremarkable.

It was thought that the chance of finding any other explanation for the seizure was unlikely, given the clinical history and setting. The Applicant was advised not to drive, and was told to abstain from alcohol. Anticonvulsive medication was not considered necessary, unless evidence of epilepsy was found.

The next document relied on by the Agent for the Registrar was the MTO Alcohol Assessment Form, in which there were significant variations and discrepancies that caused concern for the MTO and also for this Tribunal.

On the first page of this document the tick off questions for "medical consequences related to alcohol use", described the following consequences as not present (emphasis added): memory problems, seizures, blackouts, morning shakes, concentration, delirium tremens, liver disease, and neuropathy/cerebral dysfunction.

The section described as "Audit – Alcohol Use Disorders Identification Test" indicated that the Applicant was a very mild user of alcohol. Blood markers were not recorded. The score was not filled in on this part of the questionnaire involving 10 questions, and the answers given in these questions by the Applicant indicated that he was a very infrequent user of alcohol. The ongoing review of this document showed that there were no real problems with alcohol use or abuse, and this was followed up with no recommendation goal regarding alcohol consumption. A hand-written note in the section on diagnosis described how the patient denies that there is an alcohol issue and that he is only having one drink per day. This was signed by Dr. W. The form was dated March 24, 2009.

On March 30, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that the medical evidence submitted to date did not support the reinstatement of his driving privilege. They explained in considerable detail the requirements in order to have him reconsidered for reinstatement.

A consultation note by Dr. M. (cardiologist) was carried out at the request of Dr. W. This was performed on April 19, 2009. The Applicant was described as 44-years of age and had presented to the cardiologist a few years ago with congestive cardiomyopathy. He was described as an on and off patient. Sometimes he was compliant with medication, and sometimes he was not. The cardiologist confessed that they had found no real cause for the cardiomyopathy. He presented to their hospital with a seizure in January 2009, and it was probably related to alcohol withdrawal. His wife stated that the Applicant "drinks a lot".

These new details indicated that the Applicant likely had alcoholic congestive cardiomyopathy. He was noted to be on Coreg 25mg b.i.d., Vasotec 10mg b.i.d., Lasix 80mg b.i.d. and Aldactone 25mg a day.

The Applicant was stated as claiming that he had "just passed out". This cardiologist stated that if this was the case, then it would be in his ball park, as syncope in a patient who has a congestive cardiomyopathy is usually ominous and implies an arrhythmia. But clearly that day the Applicant had a seizure and he had a very high alcohol level in his blood stream.

Regarding the state of the myocardium, the cardiologist called his ventricle grade II – III, not any worse, which is actually not bad. He had done a MUGA Scan a few weeks before and it demonstrated an injection fraction of 35%. The cardiologist did not feel this needed to be pursued. This doctor reassured the Applicant that he was stable from a cardiac perspective.

On May 13, 2009, the MTO wrote to the Applicant acknowledging this latest medical evidence, which did not support the reinstatement of his driving privilege. To reconsider his case, they asked for satisfactory medical information. It would have to confirm that he had remained seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

On July 6, 2009, Dr. W., the Applicant's family doctor, wrote to MTO stating that he had known the Applicant for two years. He described the seizure on January 1, 2009, which was thought to be due to alcohol withdrawal and said that there had been no seizure since, and that his head CT and two EEGs have been normal. The Applicant was not enrolled in an alcohol treatment program, but he and his wife have assured the doctor that he is not drinking except for a single glass of wine with Sunday dinner. He has done blood work, which shows an MCV of 97.1 and an GGT of 109. (The doctor had no explanation as to why the GGT was elevated). AST and ALT were in the normal range, which he thought indicated the Applicant was not drinking heavily. He stated that he was writing to MTO in support of the reinstatement of the Applicant's driver's licence.

The MTO again wrote to the Applicant on July 31, 2009, indicating that the medical evidence submitted to date did not support the reinstatement of his driving privilege. They asked for a detailed up-to-date report from his treating physician or someone specializing in addictions medicine, confirming that he had remained seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

On February 19, 2010, Dr. W. wrote a "To Whom It May Concern" letter that the Applicant was his patient and confirmed that the Applicant had been seizure free for over a year.

MTO wrote to the Applicant on March 5, 2010, confirming that he had been seizure free for over a year, but restated the fact that they needed an up-to-date assessment from the Applicant's treating physician or a physician specializing in addictions medicine, which confirmed that he has been abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. They also requested a review of the bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT).
On May 11, 2010, Dr. W. again wrote "To Whom It May Concern", stating that the Applicant had been seizure free for well over a year.

MTO acknowledged to the Applicant their receipt of this information on June 1, 2010, confirming that he was seizure free for a year. They stated that they needed information from the appropriate doctors of the Applicant's abstinence from alcohol for one year.

The Agent for the Registrar then reviewed the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators, Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 6.3.6 – Alcohol and Seizure. He stated that the last medical report to MTO was in May 2010, which confirmed that the Applicant was seizure free then but provided nothing about his use of alcohol. Mr. McKnight re-iterated that MTO must be provided with more information. They must have information that the Applicant has stopped drinking and also that he has undergone a treatment program.

The Agent for the Registrar in Summary

He pointed out the fact that the two consultants involved here (neurologist and cardiologist) indicated that the Applicant suffered an alcohol withdrawal seizure and also stressed that the Applicant's wife contradicts the Applicant's statements about his sparse use of alcohol.

The Agent reviewed the fact that MTO requires documented evidence that the Applicant is seizure free and also has not used alcohol for a one year period. He noted that the family doctor's cursory reports are silent about the Applicant's use of alcohol, and he thought this omission speaks volumes.

The Agent concluded the Registrar's case by pointing out that there is not enough information to consider the possibility of reinstatement. He asked that the Tribunal confirm the MTO's position.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

…

(b) a driver's licence; or

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

There is no dispute that the Applicant is suffering from alcohol related cardiomyopathy, and has had an alcohol withdrawal seizure while showing some significant elevations of the pertinent liver enzymes.

He has a major problem with alcohol abuse.

The documentation filed on the Applicant's behalf is inadequate, and the MTO Alcohol Assessment Form information is totally inadequate.

There is information that the Applicant has not had a seizure for a year but his alcohol use during that interval is not shown in any detail, and in fact, the best information we have is his wife's repeated statement that her husband is drinking a lot more than that to which he admits.

This is a sick man and it behoves his doctors to clearly explain to the Applicant that he must comply with all of the requirements emphasized by MTO, both in the interest of the Applicant's health, and for safety on the highways. The Applicant needs to attend both the Alcoholics Anonymous program, as well as other documented treatment programs, which may assist him in his recovery.

It does not speak well for the Applicant's understanding of the serious situation he is in and his own responsibilities that he failed to inform the Tribunal that he would not attend the hearing, and also that he could not be reached at the commencement time of the hearing.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective February 5, 2009, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DAVID W. HURST, M.D, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: November 24, 2010 Guelph, Ontario

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "HTA").

FACTS

The Applicant is a 76 year retired health food store proprietor who has lived in a very small community, then moved to a larger centre to be near family and better medical care. Despite his current licencing problems he and his wife have been world travellers. The Applicant has been driving rental cars in European countries including England and also in New Zealand until as recently as two years ago, therefore showing considerable ability, driving on the left hand side of the road.

In June of 2010 a Medical Condition Report was received by the MTO signed by Dr. S in which dementia or Alzheimer's disease had been ticked off. The date of the examination upon which this report was based was entered as 2010/04/29. The patient was not noted to be aware of this report.

On July 9th, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant referring to this report which indicated that he had a condition which could impair his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. Cognitive impairment was listed as the problem. The Registrar after considering all relevant facts had decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act. This message from the Ministry stated a willingness to reconsider his case for reinstatement upon receipt of information satisfactory to the Registrar. Requested was a detailed up to date report from his doctor. Also needed were the results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, and confirmation that the condition was controlled and the absence of further disqualifying medical concerns that could impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. Also requested was a clinical evaluation of his cognitive functions.

On October 8th, 2010, a letter was received by the Licence Appeal Tribunal from the Applicant's occasional family doctor, Dr. R, who is the spouse of Dr. S, who had sent the Medical Condition Report to the Ministry. Dr. R's letter stated that the Applicant and his family "have asked me to provide additional details of his medical history in the hope that he may have his driver's licence reinstated". Dr. R confirmed that the Applicant has enjoyed excellent physical and mental health in the past. In 2004 he did mention some transient unexplained episodes of memory impairment. In 2008 he was beginning to experience more frequent but still minor problems with forgetfulness. Possible explanations included depression, mild cognitive impairment (MCI) or even early stages of a dementing illness such as Alzheimer's. The doctor noted reassuring initial cognitive testing.

Memory problems were noted to be continually progressing, although slowly. The Applicant was reassessed in early 2009 and showed an MMSE score of 23/30 which is considered not good. On another occasion he achieved 26/30 which is considered average. He scored 24/30 on his MOCA test. A Kingston Cognitive Score was reported to be 88/94, considered to be respectable. It was noted that in these tests most of the points were lost on memory testing.

Most likely diagnoses were considered to be either MCI or early Alzheimer's, and by the fall of 2009 memory problems were more noticeable, with dependence on his wife for daily routine. The Applicant retained excellent visual spatial skills and continued to drive. He was warned that with progression of these difficulties he must give up driving.

The doctor said he would support the Applicant undergoing a full functional driver's evaluation at an approved testing centre, stating that reinstatement of his driving privilege would be conditional on a passing grade in such an evaluation.

On October 28th, 2010, the MTO wrote to the Applicant saying that they would require a satisfactory driving evaluation from a rehabilitation centre, in order to determine if he can safely drive.

Mr. Biel, Agent for the Ministry, then entered a very comprehensive list of suitable driver assessment centres. He also provided the Tribunal with a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record which was very brief with one speeding infraction and then his suspension for medical reasons on the 19th of July, 2010, and no demerit points.

Appended by Mr. Biel was a copy of the 2009 annotated Ontario Highway Traffic Act pertaining to the Applicant's difficulties and also filed was a copy of the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, with special emphasis on item 6.8 – Dementia.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE

The Applicant's wife, with the agreement of the Tribunal represented her husband. She began by drawing attention to the CCMTA which in page 27 states:

> "once an individual has progressed to moderate dementia e.g. difficulty with basic activities of daily living such as eating, dressing and hygiene, OR severe cognitive impairment on formal testing such as MMSE score less than 15, the degree of cognitive impairment is sufficient to preclude safe operation of any motor vehicle".

Her point was that this document uses a much lower number, 15, than that quoted (23/30 in Dr. R's letter submitted by the Agent).

The Applicant's wife then presented what she described as her "story". She described her husband as an appealing, good, safe, and alert individual who had suffered an unfair penalty because of a second hand report. She described how her husband had gone downtown in this very small community to a hardware store only to find that he could not locate it as it had moved to another building. Ultimately he was unable to recall where he had parked his car. As it transpired at that time the receptionist from the medical clinic where he only rarely found need to appear, came by, noticed his confusion and assisted him.

The Applicant's wife thought that events that had occurred in this tiny community were a factor (elderly couple killed in car accident, and an Alzheimer's victim lost in the country side and never found). As it turned out, the receptionist, she surmises based in local gossip, described this event to Dr. S who then filed a Medical Condition Report based on this hearsay and forwarded it to the Ministry without informing the Applicant and also without having actually examined him. Date of examination upon which this report is based is stated to be 2010/04/29 but there had been no examination.

She went on to explain her understanding that her husband, the Applicant, has mild dementia and because of this she had asked for professional help from a lady doctor in a somewhat distant large centre to consult regarding her husband's cognitive difficulties. As it transpired this consultant came many times over a period of two years and her medical investigations showed that there was short term memory loss. The Applicant was noted to be forgetful about names and faces but has other great skills including the ability to count backwards in sevens from a hundred. The wife stated that this consultant's last score using the Kingston Cognitive Score was 88/94 and she felt that this indicated a stabilized condition and that there was no ramped up brain problem. She described this as a satisfactory score and stated that her husband had suffered no deterioration of visual and spatial skills.

She stated that she had obtained assistance from the Alzheimer's society where another study was carried out stating that the Applicant was not failing rapidly. The written reports from this study were not provided to the Tribunal.

The Applicant's wife then expanded somewhat on the Applicant's driving skills. As recently as 2008 he had been driving on the autobahns in Germany and also in England on the left side of the road. Questioning from the Tribunal at this point disclosed that the Applicant's last driving efforts were in Toronto in early summer of this year.

At this point with the suggestion by the Tribunal that the Applicant speak on his own behalf, he stated simply that he had owned and operated a health food store and had acquired extensive medical connections and information during those years. It was apparent in his comments that he was inclined to ramble and mentioned his difficulties due to his membership in an organization in the past, unrelated to current matters. He stated that he would be very keen to have further tests taken to assess his impairment. He also volunteered to do a driver's test. He then stated that his mind was functioning well and he was not quite sure why he was at this gathering today.

THE AGENT'S QUESTIONS

Mr. Biel cross examined the Applicant's wife confirming that all of the information came from the receptionist whose comments had led to the Medical Condition Report. In fact the Applicant's wife had not talked to the receptionist regarding her husband's difficulties. She did remember a phone call from the receptionist to ask if her husband had gotten safely home that day. She admitted that he was confused at that time. The Applicant's wife agreed that she was under the assumption that the receptionist had described this scene in the village to Dr. S but she had no personal knowledge. The Applicant's wife volunteered that it was she who had requested cognitive testing as she began to realize that her husband had problems. Mr. Biel suggested that Dr. R was "in the loop", receiving reports from the other doctors and with this the Applicant's wife complained that she was never able to see such reports. Mr. Biel then questioned why a consultant from a fairly distant centre would be coming to see her husband as frequently as every six weeks if the Applicant's problems were not that severe. The Tribunal today agrees that this makes no sense, if the problems were not of concern.

Mr. Biel pointed out the visits from the regional consultant and the fact that none of their reports which must have been going to Dr. R are available to the Tribunal. It does emerge today from the Mr. Biel's questioning that Dr. R has suggested a driver evaluation test frequently.

THE AGENT IN SUMMARY

Mr. Biel stated that the suspension was necessary, underlined in section 47(1) of the HTA, based on the initial Medical Condition Report and that the MTO acted correctly. He stated that there was insufficient evidence for reinstatement at the moment. He pointed out that O. Reg. 340/94 section 14(a) of the HTA states that the Applicant must have no mental, emotional or physical disability, and dementia, even mild, which has the potential to put the driver at risk. He pointed out that all of the information presented by the Applicant's wife today is "word of mouth". Mr. Biel also observed that Dr. R indicated that he wants a driver evaluation test and is therefore demonstrating his concern and that this request is completely inline with the MTO's position.

He closed by underlining the fact that the Applicant's wife's testimony today is entirely hearsay. "She gives medical comments which are based on only her own opinions". He asked that the Tribunal confirm the Ministry's position, and that the Ministry would await the results of a driver's evaluation test.

THE APPLICANT'S WIFE IN SUMMARY

She pointed out that Dr. R's letter is a result of one Medical Condition Report which had been filed by this doctor's wife as a result of a word of mouth story provide to them by the receptionist. The receptionist had inadvertently come across the Applicant on the day when he appeared lost on the main street. She lamented that she was unable to obtain any medical reports coming from the expert(s) from the somewhat distant regional centre. She again pointed out that this is not a case of rampant deterioration. On questioning by the Tribunal as to whether the Applicant's condition was the same as in 2004, his wife said the answer was no but that he is now stable.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

It is indeed unfortunate that the Medical Condition Report was filed on the basis of what appears to be hearsay evidence by "the receptionist". It is clear that this report although stated to be based on an examination on 2010/04/29 was nothing of the sort. Much of the testimony of the Applicant's wife was hearsay and not supported by written documents.

Dr. R's letter of October 8, 2010 to the Licence Appeal Tribunal provides us with the only documented medical information. It does indicate that the Applicant has cognitive problems understood by his wife and family. Dr. R has expressed support for the idea that a full functional driver's evaluation at an approved testing centre be carried out and this is the position of the Ministry today. Such a test has not yet been carried out.

It is apparent to the Tribunal that the Applicant has cognitive difficulties and he appears to be in early stages of some degree of dementia. His visual and spatial skills are impressive and the Tribunal gives credit to his adventures driving in foreign lands. But further studies are clearly required.

As requested by the MTO, detailed medical reports are now mandatory concerning the Applicant's cognitive function and it would help a lot to determine his eligibility for restoration of his driving privilege to have a functional driver's evaluation at an approved centre. Only then can a fair and accurate decision be made regarding re-licencing.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision effective July 19th, 2010 of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent") to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "HTA"), and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Respondent and of the Applicant;

It is the decision of the Tribunal pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: MARK REYNOLDS, Paralegal, representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 8, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The hearing commenced at 9:30 a.m. but due to a scheduling misunderstanding by the Applicant, it was adjourned with consent of the Registrar's Agent to 11:30 a.m.

The Applicant submitted laboratory reports dated December 6 and 7, 2010. With consent, these were entered as Exhibits #4 and #5, respectively.

FACTS

The Registrar's Evidence

A Medical Condition Report was completed by a family physician, Dr. R., on April 24, 2010, pursuant to section 203 of the Act. It stated:

> This patient has just reported that over the last year he has driven while seriously under the influence of alcohol. He continues to have problems with substance abuse although he is applying to get help with the problem. At present, however, he still has a significant problem that may very well interfere with his judgement and ability to drive safely.

On June 30, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that it had been decided to suspend his driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act. In order to be considered for re-instatement, he must arrange for a Substance Abuse Assessment Form to be completed by his treating physician. If this assessment confirmed a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario ("MTO") would require confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

The Applicant was advised that he may apply for an Administrative Review and of his right to appeal.

The Substance Abuse Assessment Form was completed by Dr. R. on July 9, 2010. The following was noted:

> Medical:
> Job stressors – demands; learning to delegate.
> Physical Assessment:
> Normal
> History of Use:
> Age of first use - 13 years old
> Age of first regular use: 16 (cannabis), 20 (cocaine)
> History of first intoxication: 13 years old. Frequency of Use: alcohol weekend binge; Cocaine monthly
> Amount used on each occasion: Alcohol 3 drinks (max of 4)
> Most recent use: Alcohol – mid January/10; Cocaine – March/10
> Longest period of abstinence in last 3 years: 30 months. Date of Reduction: March 2010

Current medications: nil

Treatment:

Previous treatment: Hospital Substance Abuse Program

2006 – 21 days
2002 – 21 days

Period of abstinence following treatment:

2006 – 3 years
2002 – 2 years

Use of 12 Step Program: Narcotics Anonymous – 2010 – home group

Other Participation in Relapse Prevention: Psychologist S.A.

Substance Dependence:

Substance is often taken in larger amounts or over longer period than intended

Audit:

1. How often do you have a drink? Never
2. How many drinks on a typical day? Nil
3. How often do you have five or more drinks on one occasion? Nil
4. How often in the past year not able to stop drinking once started? Twice in 12 months
5. How often in past year failed to do what was normally expected because of drinking? Never
6. How often in past year needed a first drink in the morning after heavy drinking session? Never
7. How often in past year had feeling of guilt or remorse after drinking? Once in past year
8. How often in past year been unable to remember what happened the night before because of drinking? Never
9. Have you or someone else been injured as a result of your drinking? No
10. Has a relative or friend or a doctor or other health professional been concerned about your drinking or suggested that you cut down? Yes during the past year.

Diagnosis:

Abuse especially cocaine.

A letter dated July 9, 2010, was received from S.A., a psychotherapist:

Since April 1, 2009, I have been meeting with <the Applicant> on a weekly basis to address psychological issues and behaviours related to addiction and substance abuse.

> Generally speaking he is making great strides toward full recovery.

On August 6, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that in light of the letter from S.A., it would be necessary to file an assessment from his physician, with reference to his reported drug abuse (cocaine). The assessment must provide a diagnosis and recommend a form of treatment. The results of a physical examination, complete drug use history, and random observed urine toxicology screen would also be required.

On September 13, 2010, Dr. R. submitted a letter to MTO:

> <The Applicant> has been working hard and has not had any contact with cocaine since mid-March and alcohol since mid-January. He is seeing a substance therapist weekly and attends NA weekly. He exercises and has made significant adjustments to his lifestyle. I would recommend that his licence be reinstated.

Dr. R. attached a report of an annual physical examination dated August 19, 2010.

CPP Review:

> The patient's current ongoing problems were reviewed. Current problems are:
> SUBSTANCE ABUSE
> OBESITY
> ALCOHOL DEPENDENCE 2002
> COCAINE ABUSE, CONTINUOUS
> Re the history of substance abuse, he began to use alcohol when he was 13 y.o. Going on weekend binges at 16. He began to use cocaine (smoking) monthly and cannabis up to 1 GM of cocaine at a time. He attended the treatment programme at a community hospital in 2002 and again in 2006. The last time he used cocaine was in March of this year and alcohol in mid-January. He denies cannabis use since 2000.

The physical examination was normal.

Assessment:

> He is attending NA once a week and he sees a psychotherapist (S.A.) once a week.
> There are no physical abnormalities. He does smoke cigarettes.

Attached Laboratory results dated August 17, 2010, showed normal liver function tests, and negative drug screen.

In response, the Registrar informed the Applicant on September 29, 2010, that a longer period of recovery was required and that he must arrange to submit an up-to-date assessment by his physician that confirms a period of abstinence from alcohol of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed a substance abuse program and is supportive of reinstatement.

On October 20, 2010, the psychotherapist S.A. submitted a letter:

> My first encounter with <the Applicant> was on April 1, 2009, when he sought out my professional services to help him deal with a past cocaine addiction. At that time, he had already undergone extensive rehabilitation and with the exception of one relapse he was essentially 'clean' and had been for over one year. His desire to work with me was both to have on-going support in his efforts to stay far and clear from cocaine but also to try and understand the unconscious psychological issues that may have led to his addictive behaviour. In other words he was taking serious preventative measures to address the core issues that might ultimately lead to other addictions and/or continuous relapses. I consider this to be a very responsible decision on his part, which, as it turns out is totally in character and consistent with everything I have come to learn about this exceptional individual. Not only is he a highly productive, upstanding entrepreneur with a number of people in his employ he is also an extremely generous, responsible and helpful friend to many.
> I have been meeting with him on a regular basis for 18 months now and during that time he has relapsed and used cocaine on 3 occasions, each time for the duration of one evening. His usage pales in comparison to the crowds of adults using cocaine recreationally in the city. In the realm of addictions and mental health with regard to average rates of relapse and full recovery he is considered highly successful. His past cocaine addiction is no longer an issue. I would not consider him a threat to anyone anywhere anytime soon.

On October 23, 2010, S.A. wrote an addendum:

> I have been meeting with <the Applicant> on a regular basis for 18 months now and see no reason at this point why he should not have his driver's licence re-instated.

Laboratory results on October 18, 2010, showed negative drug screen.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on November 16, 2010, that his driving privileges would remain under suspension.

A longer period of abstinence was required and he was requested to submit a detailed up-to-date assessment by a physician (emphasis by the Registrar), confirming abstinence from alcohol and drugs for one year, completion of a substance abuse treatment program and a favourable recommendation for re-instatement.

The Applicant's Driver's Record was submitted. This showed an administrative driver's licence suspension on October 1, 2009, for an alcohol level over 0.05 mg.

The Applicant's Evidence

In the Reasons for Appeal, the Applicant's Agent stated:

1. <The Applicant> has shown that he is not at risk to drive a motor vehicle.

2. <The Applicant> has supplied documentation to MTO with written support from his treating physician.

3. <The Applicant> attends Narcotics Anonymous regularly.

4. <The Applicant> is aware of his illness, and has taken appropriate steps to address it.

5. Continued suspension of the Applicant's driver's licence is unwarranted.

In evidence, the Applicant stated that following a lengthy period of abstinence, he relapsed and because he was scared he approached his family physician who has known him for 20 years. He informed the physician, Dr. R., that he had driven after drinking and this led to the Registrar being informed. He had been "going through a rough patch" in his business. He owns a heating company and because the work load had increased during the winter, he felt under a lot of stress. He was attending the 12-step program with Narcotics Anonymous and referred himself to the psychotherapist, S.A., with strong support from his wife and family. He has attended S.A. weekly since April and is aware that Dr. R. and S.A. have communicated.

Dr. R. had referred him in the past to the Substance Abuse clinic at the community hospital in 2002 and 2006. Dr. R. completed the Substance Abuse Assessment Form, which indicates that he is not dependent on alcohol.

He has strong support from his wife, his parents and siblings. He believes that he has learned to cope with the stressors that caused his relapse. All the laboratory results done under Dr. R. since April have confirmed abstinence.

Exhibits #4 and #5 submitted by the Applicant showed a negative drug screen on December 6, 2010, and normal laboratory results on December 7, 2010.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;

(b) a driver's licence; or

(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report filed by the Applicant's family physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act that reported problems with substance abuse which included driving while "seriously under the influence of alcohol".

2. The Applicant's physician has known the Applicant for 20 years and was seriously concerned for safety while driving.

3. The Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators ("CCMTA"), Medical Standards for Drivers, Standard 13.2, stresses the seriousness of driving and habitual alcoholic intoxication. The Standard is:

   MAY NOT DRIVE ANY MOTOR VEHICLE FOR 12 MONTHS DURING WHICH TIME THE INDIVIDUAL MUST REMAIN SEIZURE-FREE AND ALCOHOL-FREE

EARLIER RELICENSURE MAY BE CONSIDERED UPON FAVOURABLE RECOMMENDATION FROM AN ADDICTION SPECIALIST RECOGNISED BY THE LICENSING AUTHORITY AND THE SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF AN ALCOHOL REHABILITATION PROGRAM

4. CCMTA Standard 12.4 for Narcotics states that cocaine has limited so-called recreational use. It is euphorizing, excitatory and very dangerous. The Standard is:

   INDIVIDUALS REPEATEDLY USING NON-PRESCRIPTION NARCOTICS MAY NOT BE ELIGIBLE TO OPERATE ANY CLASS OF VEHICLE, DEPENDING ON DEGREE OF DELIBERATE ABUSE OR LOSS OF CONTROL.

5. Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

   An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

6. The Applicant's driver's record shows an administrative driver's licence suspension for driving with blood alcohol in the "warn" range, in October 2009.

7. Medical evidence shows that the Applicant has been abstinent from alcohol since mid-January 2010 and from cocaine since March 2010.

8. The Registrar requires a period of 12-months abstinence from alcohol which may be reduced upon confirmation by the Applicant's physician that he has successfully completed a substance abuse treatment program and a supportive recommendation for re-instatement.

The Applicant relies on the strong recommendation by his family physician of 20 years and the letters from his psychotherapist that confirm his on-going attendance for counselling and the positive response since commencing counselling. His physician and laboratory screens under direction of his family physician show that he has remained alcohol free since mid-January 2010 and drug free since March 2010.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report completed by the family physician of 20 years that reported a history of driving under the influence of alcohol and also a problem with cocaine abuse.

2. The Applicant has demonstrated genuine intention to deal with both alcohol and cocaine abuse by attending Narcotics Anonymous, and weekly consultation with a psychotherapist.

3. Letters in October 2010 from the psychotherapist, who has communicated with the Applicant's family physician, show a positive response to therapy over an eighteen month period and is supportive of re-instatement.

4. Although the period of abstinence from alcohol has been less than the twelve months required by the Registrar, the family physician has confirmed that the Applicant has remained alcohol-free since mid-January 2010, and is supportive of re-instatement.

5. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant is not dependent on alcohol or drugs to the extent that would be likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective July 10, 2010, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, self-represented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 14, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant submitted an additional document, namely a medical report, dated November 11, 2010. The Registrar's Agent agreed to the admission of this report in evidence, and it was marked #4.

FACTS

Registrar's Evidence

Emergency Room Physician Dr. F sent a Medical Condition Report regarding the Applicant to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) on October 28, 2010. In this he indicated that the Applicant suffered from the condition of Mental or Emotional Illness - unstable. The doctor wrote further as follows:

Patient is depressed; previous attempts at vehicular suicide and ongoing thoughts of same.

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended, and it requested an up-to-date report from her doctor.

The MTO Certified Driver Record, dated November 18, 2010, showed that the Applicant's driving Class is G2, and that there is no record of any convictions, discharges or other actions. The Demerit Points were zero. Psychiatrist Dr. R saw the Applicant in consultation on November 11, 2010 and wrote a report to the Applicant's Family Physician. In this he wrote, in part, that "this 17 year old female" had a longstanding history of mood liability and she stated that she tended to become extremely emotional and anxious in the context of specific stressors that often revolves around abandonment or perceived rejection. This came to a head at the time when she was taken into the Emergency Department of the local hospital. In spite of voicing suicidal ideas she actually had no intent to harm herself and what she was really doing was expressing her need for help. The psychiatrist found no evidence of Psychosis and no history suggesting an underlying Anxiety Disorder. He summarised his report as follows:

> My impression is that she is a 17 year old female whose history and presentation is in keeping with a diagnosis of a Dysthymic Mood Disorder. Her mood deterioration appears to be secondary to fears of abandonment and rejection, and her history over the past several years is that of engaging in relationships too quickly and creating a dependence that ultimately leads to dissolution after a few months. With respect to her ability to drive a motor vehicle, I do not believe that there is any current or ongoing psychiatric issues that are affecting this issue. In fact, I believe that the concerns raised during her Emergency visit at X Hospital were secondary to her vocalisation and attempts to attain help, and were not secondary to any genuine suicidal ideation.

Finally, Dr. S said that he had decided to refer the Applicant for psychotherapy.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant explained that on the day she went into the hospital Emergency Department, (October 28, 2010) she had been very upset at home and was arguing with her parents. She got so upset that she dialled 911, the police arrived and she was taken into the local hospital. She said things she did not mean because of the state she was in. She was kept in hospital for three days. When she was discharged from the hospital she was put on a medication which she took for 10 days. She is seeing a therapist once a week who is helping her. Looking back, she thinks that many of the things she said re suicide etc were impulsive statements brought on because she was really looking for help. Her psychiatrist has told her that he does not have to see her any more.

She has been driving (with G2 licence) since February 2010. She drives a lot. She has driven family members such as her mother and aunt quite long distances and she has never been in an accident or incident.

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar had no option but to suspend the driving privilege of the Applicant after receiving the Medical Condition Report from Dr. F, dated August 28, 2010.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant suffers from mood liability. She has been treated for depression in the past. In her own words, “I have days when I am fine and days when I can be very upset.” In the words of her psychiatrist, “She has a longstanding history of mood liability”.

The Tribunal finds that the crucial point upon which the decision as to whether the Applicant should or should not resume driving has to be the opinion expressed by the medical specialist. Psychiatrist Dr. S wrote a lengthy consultation report on November 11, 2010, and in the conclusion of this report he wrote, “With respect to her ability to drive a motor vehicle, I do not believe there is any current or ongoing psychiatric issues that are affecting this issue. I believe that the concerns raised during her Emergency visit to X Hospital were secondary to her vocalisation and attempts to attain help and were not secondary to any genuine suicidal ideation.”

The Tribunal has decided that the Applicant’s driving privilege should be reinstated.

DECISION

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. PATRICK COFFEY, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 14, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the “Applicant”) respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

FACTS:

Registrar’s Evidence:

On September 21, 2010, Dr. R sent a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) in which he wrote that the Applicant suffered from the condition of Diabetes or Hypoglycemia – Uncontrolled. He further wrote:

> “Seven episodes of Hypoglycemia in last three weeks; current event occurred while driving.”

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that his driver’s licence should be suspended. The MTO informed the Applicant that a detailed up-to-date report was required from his doctor.

The Diabetic Assessment was completed by the Applicant's Family Physician, Dr. K, on October 4, 2010. The following was indicated by the doctor in the Assessment:

> The diagnosis of Diabetes was first made on the Applicant in May 1949.
> The condition is treated by an insulin pump, Novorapid, with a sliding scale for food.
> The readings are electronically downloaded.
> The blood glucose levels are recorded three or more times a day.
> Less than 10% of the blood glucose readings have been below 4 mmol/L.
> The most recent result was 0.074.
> The Applicant's last Diabetic education program was in November 2009.
> The Applicant has suffered two major hypoglycemic events in the last two years. In both cases loss of consciousness occurred. The last one was on September 21, 2010.

The Applicant described the circumstances leading to the hypoglycemic episodes in a manner that was only partially legible

The doctor described the Applicant as being well-informed and motivated.

The MTO Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated November 29, 2010, showed no record of any convictions, discharges or other actions and the Demerit Points were zero.

Applicant's Evidence:

The Applicant stated that he has been a diabetic for over 60 years, (since early childhood) and has been driving for over 45 years, (with no tickets or accidents due to Diabetes). He agreed that he had had two serious hypoglycemic attacks in the last two years and in both he had become unconscious. The last one was on September 21, 2010. But, he disagreed with the report of Dr. R, dated September 21, 2010, in which the doctor stated that he had suffered this hypoglycemic episode while driving' as he maintained that he certainly had not been driving. He described this event in this way: He left the car and went for a walk and then returned to the car. He answered the phone in the car and then reached out for a candy to give himself sugar, because he was worried that the exercise of walking might have used up some calories; and then he passed out. He stated that the car was parked and that he was not driving.

The Applicant is very careful with his management of the Diabetes. He tests his blood sugar at least seven times a day. He tests before he drives a vehicle and also two to three hours after taking Insulin for meals. He likes to keep his blood sugars between 6 and 10 mmol/L. He sees a nurse and a dietician about every three months. He sees doctors regularly.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading " Hypoglycemia" of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers, the applicable standard (Standard 8.3) is written as follows:

> Individuals who become faint or unconscious from spontaneous attacks of Hypoglycemia cannot drive any type of motor vehicle safely.
> Standard: Individuals subject to spontaneous attacks may not operate any type of motor vehicle until the condition is treated and the cause eliminated.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant has been a severe diabetic since childhood and also notes that he is meticulous about his care for the illness. He has not had a driving accident as a consequence of his Diabetes. (It should incidentally be added here that the Applicant had spoken of an episode which happened in 1996 when he lost control of his car and mounted the curb, but the Applicant stated that he was fairly sure that the cause of this was something other than his Diabetes).

However, the Tribunal notes the fact that the Applicant has suffered two major hypoglycemic episodes in the last two years, the last one being less than three months ago, (September 21, 2010), and on both these occasions the Applicant lost consciousness. The Tribunal has to be guided by the Standards set by the C.C.M.T.A. and also by the Drivers Guide of the Canadian Medical Association, (see above); and in so doing has decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should remain under suspension.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. PATRICK COFFEY, MEMBER

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 22, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's evidence

The two medical reports on file concerning the Applicant that were written in 2004, showed that he was being treated for severe psychotic illness (schizophrenia). They also included the diagnosis of probable substance abuse (cocaine).

When the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) received these two reports, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

Between the dates of July 2, 2009 and May 2, 2010, the Applicant wrote five letters to the MTO. In the first of these letters, dated July 2, 2009, the Applicant called himself

"The Eternal Spiritual Sovereign, the Queen", and the rest of the letter reads, in part, as follows:

> "The doctor who reported my inability to safely operate a motor vehicle has dun(sic) an illegal act. I am His Royal Majesty the Queen XX and it is wrong to place any kind of restrained (sic) on me. The offender is guilty of treason. I am asking for my driver's licence to be reinstated due to letter from Toronto police service and the Criminal Code section 47 (1)".

In the letter of November 16, 2009 the Applicant referred to himself as AFA, AKA Her Majesty, the Eternal Sovereign, Her majesty the Sovereign Queen, the Most Sovereign Lord XX, Monarch, The Monarch. In the rest of the letter he wrote, in part:

> "In response to your letter dated October 14, 2009, I realised that you and your department does not understand the duties of a psychiatrist, if when you ask for an assessment "concerts (sic) about royalty and treason" the reason why one's mental status is stereotyped as schizophrenia is because psychiatrists do not want to be involved with sovereign, royal, majestic matters:"

The other letters of the Applicant to the MTO tended to be written in the same vein. In all of them he referred to himself in royal terms. But, in all of them there were some passages where the meaning was clear and to the point.

The Applicant's family physician Dr. L wrote a medical report concerning the Applicant, dated July 10, 2009, as follows:

> "His mental status has been stable. He was seen by Dr. A, psychiatrist, on June 23, 2009. He was stable and compliant with medication. He has good judgement and he has no delusions or hallucinations. He is not taking any other drugs (street drugs) or alcohol. Physical examination shows normal central nervous system, normal lungs and heart and normal gastro-intestinal system. He is now mentally and physically able to drive a motor vehicle."

Dr. L wrote another report on September 1, 2009 and in conclusion, he wrote, "he is fit to drive his motor vehicle".

Psychiatrist Dr. A wrote a medical report concerning the Applicant on June 23, 2009, writing, in part, as follows:

> I continued to provide him with psychiatric care on a regular basis, and the last meeting with me was on June 15, 2009. All the times he attended in the presence of his case manager and he was being compliant with medication; and at the present time he is receiving Seroquel at bedtime as an antipsychotic, but he is also a diabetic and he is aware about the side effects. During the last meeting he seemed to be stable and compliant with the treatment and there was no evidence of active cocaine abuse.

> Laboratory testing was carried out on July 8, 2010. In this the MCV was normal at 85.1, the GGT was normal at 21 and the fasting blood glucose was normal at 5.6.
> Laboratory Urine Abuse Screens was carried out on February 8, 2007 and it was reported that all substances were “Not Detected”, including cocaine. Urine testing done on January 25, 2007 again showed that cocaine was “Not Detected”, but Olanzapine was “Detected”.

Dr. F wrote a medical report on August 25, 2009. writing, in part:

> He, (the Applicant), is also being followed by Dr. L and Dr. A. He appears to be compliant with his medication. He has no known admissions to hospital over the last year. Based on the notes from the above two doctors, I concur with their decision that the patient is capable of driving a motor vehicle. He has no recent drug ingestions and I have included a most recent drug screen which was reported as normal.

IN The MAC Case Summary, dated November 10, 2009 the Instructions were “Remain Suspended”. The Reasons given were:

> Driver has a history of Schizophrenia and was admitted several years ago in disorganised state having burnt a bible on his stove. Although Dr. F (Aug. 2009) and Dr. L (two recent reports) argue that the driver is stable on the basis of a psychiatric evaluation from June 09 by Dr. A, and not at risk for collisions, his letters to the MTO in July and August 2009 suggest ongoing psychosis and disorganisation e.g. he refers to himself as the queen, monarch, eternal sovereign, and accuses the MTO of high treason and the reporting physician of illegally and wrongly suspending his licence. Given the above statements, remain unclear on basis for reinstatement consideration.

The Certified Driver Record for the Applicant, dated November 11, 2010, showed no convictions, discharges, or other actions. The demerit points were zero.

Applicant’s Evidence

When the Applicant was asked what he wanted to say, he launched into a long story about what happened to him in the year 1986, a long time before his licence was suspended, (2004). What he said—and it was difficult to follow his story-- was that he bought an auto, then met a friend who had also just bought an auto. They decided to exchange autos. The Applicant drove around a city block twice and then was stopped by the police, charged with an offence and fined $350.00, which he could not pay.

The Applicant was asked If his family physician thought him to be a royal, to which he responded, “He treats me like one”.

He was asked if he thought himself to be above the law, since he was a very important royal and he answered that he would do whatever the police asked him to do. He showed respect for the law.

On questioning, he said that the last time he saw his psychiatrist, Dr. A was “last month”. He was asked if he had a psychiatric problem and he answered without any hesitation, “Yes”.

The Applicant was asked why he enclosed a photo of the licence plate of his car when he wrote one of his letters to the MTO. His reply was largely incoherent.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant has been hospitalised many times for his chronic schizophrenia, and also notes that his schizophrenia was considerably more severe and unstable in 2004 than in 2009. Also, in 2004 he was probably abusing cocaine, but there is no evidence of any cocaine abuse in 2009.

The Tribunal notes that the 2009 medical reports showed the Applicant’s psychotic illness (schizophrenia) was stable, he was compliant with his medication, and he was seeing his medical advisors regularly.

2009 Medical Reports:

1. Family physician Dr. L expressed the opinion in two reports, (July 10, 2009 and September 1, 2009), that the Applicant was fit to drive.

2. Dr. F (in his report of August 25, 2009) stated that, “the patient is capable of driving a motor vehicle”. But, it is seen on reading his report that Dr. F was basing his decision, partly or wholly, on the notes of Dr. L and Dr. A.

3. Psychiatrist Dr. A, in his report of June 23, 2009, did not express any opinion on the ability of the Applicant to drive.

4. Psychiatrist Dr. F in his MAC report of November 10, 2009, instructed that the driving privilege of the Applicant “Remain suspended”.

The Tribunal notes the absence of any medical reports since 2009 and is of the opinion that up-to-date reports, especially psychiatric assessments, are necessary for decision making with regard to licence reinstatement.

Therefore, the Tribunal finds that neither of the psychiatrists recommended that the Applicant's driving privilege be reinstated. (One was definitely against licence reinstatement and the other did not comment on driving.) On the basis of this, and on the basis of the Applicant's testimony and letter- writing, where he exhibited delusions, rambling, incoherence and disorganised thinking, the Tribunal has decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should remain suspended.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated November 26, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. GARRY FISHER, MEMBER

APPEARANCES: PAUL BAUERLE, Counsel, representing the Applicant

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 21 2010 St. Catharines

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's evidence

A form 203 report was filed with the Ministry of Transport (MTO) by Dr. S, the Applicant's family doctor, on April 29 2009. He checked off "alcohol dependence" and subsequently, on May 31 2009, a letter was forwarded to the Applicant notifying her that her driver's licence was suspended.

The letter noted that she needed to obtain an assessment from her treating physician and be abstinent from alcohol for one year. The time period could be reduced with confirmation of her successfully completing alcohol rehabilitation and a favourable recommendation from her treating physician.

Problems with alcohol came to light in April 2009 when the Applicant fell down some stairs (4 stairs) and fell hard enough to suffer a compression fracture of her spine. This led to a hospital admission – April 11 to 15 – and in the course of that admission she was treated for alcohol withdrawal. She had delirium tremens.

Alcohol abuse started in 2007. The Applicant recognised that she had a problem at that time and sought help from Dr. MS and then from a regional counselling service (NADAS). She continues to the present obtaining help from counsellors.

She is not totally abstinent – admitting to occasional glasses of wine.

The Alcohol Assessment Form of June 2009 showed score of 11, and, in the most recent, was 4. Liver enzymes (ALT, GLT) were normal. The MCV (mean rbc cell volume) is above normal and remains above normal on subsequent testing.

The MAC of the MTO recommends that her licence remain suspended. The Applicant admits to 1 to 2 glasses of wine – maybe – on a Friday or Saturday night and the MAC interprets that information to be Saturdays and Sundays only with 3 drinks per occasion. The MAC consultant recommends abstinence.

The Applicant's evidence

The Applicant is a 45 year old divorced mother of two boys with learning disabilities. The father left some years ago and returned to look after the boys in April 2009 when the Applicant had her fall and was hospitalized. The boys remain with the father.

Mr. Baurle, Solicitor for the Applicant, represents her at this Tribunal and otherwise in custody questions.

Since the licence suspension the Applicant has clearly not been totally abstinent.
She has, however, had on-going counselling, advising moderation, thrice weekly AA meetings, a three week session at a treatment facility in late May 2010 – all monitored by her family doctor (who originally filed the form 203).

She ascribes her troubles to "stress" and treating the stress with vodka through 2007 into 2009. She no longer uses vodka to deal with stress and it would appear that she has adopted the moderation route.

Dr. S writes on August 25 2010:

> "in light of.....my knowledge of this patient as her family physician.... she has taken appropriate steps to control and moderate her alcohol consumption ...(and there are) no continuing grounds for suspending her driver's licence."

The doctor has recommended abstinence to his patient, just as the MAC of the MTO rigidly follows that line, but he has accepted that some are capable of moderation and feels that his patient (the Applicant) is one of them.
The Tribunal is supportive of the counselling that the Applicant is receiving and of her apparent solid doctor/patient relationship.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) of the Act states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (b) a driver's licence; …
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under Section 14 of O. Reg. 340/94

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Applicant acknowledges that she is an alcoholic. She has with the help of her solicitor, demonstrated that she appears to have control of her problem. She has support groups to rely on. Her family doctor is clearly supportive when he states "in my opinion there are no continuing grounds for suspending her driver's licence".

The Tribunal is of the opinion that this woman is coping with her problem of alcohol abuse in a reasonable manner and would agree with her family doctor's assessment.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated May 31, 2009 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

6373-MED

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. PATRICK COFFEY, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: January 4, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the “Applicant”) respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINAY MATTERS

This being an electronic hearing, an attempt was made to make contact with the Applicant by telephone, but this was unsuccessful. And so the decision was made to adjourn for half an hour. After half an hour, contact still could not be made with the Applicant, so the hearing continued in the normal manner without the Applicant.

FACTS:

Registrar’s Evidence:

The Ministry of Transportation (MTO) received a letter from the family physician of the Applicant, Dr. W, dated September 13, 2007, who wrote, in part, as follows:

> This gentleman, (the Applicant), is a 50 year old truck driver living in X. On the evening of August 15th he had some confusion according to his wife which cleared in 15 minutes and then he went on his usual route to Quebec after working on his deck without any problems. On the morning of the > 16th he was found in a truck stop unconscious with a slight laceration to the right side of his head. He was brought to the emergency room at X Hospital where he had a seizure which required Ativan to stabilise. He was found to have hyponatremia at 119. This was corrected over several hours. He had no further convulsions. He was loaded with Dilantin. His blood pressure rose and he was started on Norvasc.

> CT scan done there showed left sided temporal hematoma with a small subdural element. Follow up 48 hours later showed that it was stable. Follow up CT scan done after discharge home showed resolution of the hematoma.
> In summary, it seems that he had a seizure on the basis of acute hyponatremia due to SIADH secondary to intracranial catastrophe which fortunately resolved. He has had no further seizures.

When the MTO received this letter, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

Neurologist Dr. L wrote a report concerning the Applicant on June 19, 2008. In this he reviewed the recent history of the Applicant, and he agreed that the initial scan was suggestive of a contracoup contusion consistent with trauma. The doctor went on to write that there was no evidence of further bleeding nor of a mass lesion, and that he has been seizure-free.

In the MAC Case Summary of September 3, 2008, the Recommendation was to Reinstate to Class 'G' licence. The Reasons given were:

> In August 2007, the driver sustained a temporal hematoma with resulting seizure. It is not clear whether this resulted in some abnormality which may make him susceptible to further seizure. Request an EEG.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on September 3, 2008 informing him that his Class 'AMC' licence would be changed to a Class 'GM'.

Dr. W sent a report to the MTO, dated November 25, 2008, in which he reported that the Applicant suffered another witnessed seizure on September 11, 2008.

The EEG done on the Applicant on November 18, 2008 was reported normal.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on February 2, 2009 informing him that due to the receipt of a medical report it had been decided that his driving privilege should be suspended again.

Neurologist Dr. B wrote a letter to the MTO on May 19, 2009 as follows:

> Mr. X (the Applicant) was seen for the first time in this epilepsy clinic on April 3, 2009. He was seen because he had two seizures, one on August 16, 2007 and the other one on September 11, 2008. Since the last seizure, he has been on Dilantin 100 mg three times a day. He has not had another seizure since he was placed on an antiepileptic medication, and for that reason I would support reinstatement of his driver's license.

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on June 10, 2009 informing him that it had been decided to reinstate his driving licence.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading “Seizures” of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers it is written:

> The individual with a past history of epileptic seizures should generally not hold any licence other than Class 5 or 6 and then only if he/she satisfies the following criteria.

The applicable standard (Standard 6.3.1) is written:

> If individual has been seizure-free on or off medication for 5 years, and receives a favourable report from their usual treating physician and/or a neurologist, may operate any class of motor vehicle.

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant was found unconscious on August 16, 2007 with a small laceration on the right side of his head. It is not certain what caused this loss of consciousness. After being brought to a hospital emergency department the same day, (August 16, 2007), he suffered a seizure. He was put on anti-convulsant treatment. He suffered another witnessed seizure on September 11, 2008, but has not had one since. He has therefore had two major seizures and possibly three, (taking note of the loss of consciousness on August 16, 2007). The Applicant has had his Class ‘G’ licence reinstated, but not his commercial ‘AMC’ licence.

It is only a little over two years since the last seizure and therefore the Tribunal is of the opinion that the Applicant does not meet the applicable C.C.M.T.A. Standard 6.3.1, and that the recommendation of this standard should be followed regarding his ‘AMC’ licence.

DECISION

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: January 5, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

In February 2007, the Registrar was informed by letter from a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act that the Applicant had a First Psychotic Episode, in which she drove at a high rate of speed on the wrong side of the road through a red light before striking a car which was exiting at a school, causing severe personal injuries to the other driver. Following the collision, she was seen wandering about in pyjamas in -20 degree C weather. She had auditory hallucinations and was taken to a local hospital and admitted for mental assessment.

The diagnosis was schizophrenia "with First Episode Psychosis". She was stabilized on Zyprexa 10 mg daily and discharged to be followed up by her psychiatrist, Dr. N.

Her driving privileges were suspended under section 47(1) of the Act.

Following receipt of the hospital discharge summary, her case was reviewed by the Medical Advisory Committee ("MAC") of the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario ("MTO"), and in October, her licence was reinstated after six months of stability and compliance with medications.

On April 8, 2010, the Registrar received a Medical Condition Report from a psychiatrist at the community hospital, Dr. B., pursuant to section 203 of the Act. It noted:

> This patient is suffering from a psychotic illness and has driven a car erratically leading to a motor vehicle accident recently and also three years ago. I feel that therefore she should not hold a valid driver's license.

On June 1, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that her driving privileges were suspended. In order to be considered for reinstatement she was required to arrange for an up-to-date psychiatrist's assessment, which includes her complete psychiatric history i.e. (duration, degree), diagnosis, treatment, and dates of hospitalizations including her most recent discharge summary. The report must provide her current treatment, compliance history, reference to any signs of impaired judgement/concentration, and any sedation or psychomotor retardation due to medication. Confirmation of her mental and emotional stability would also be required.

The Applicant was advised that she may request an Administrative Review with the MTO and advised of her right of appeal to this Tribunal.

Her previous history was contained in the assessment by Dr. N. in 2007.

A report from the community hospital Mental Health Program noted that the Applicant was having trouble coping with changes in her life. No hallucinations and no impairment in judgement were noted. There was no evidence of risk to herself or to others.

She was provided with stress coping material for schizophrenia and was advised to continue her medications. An appointment was made for follow-up in two weeks.

Between March 18 and July 6, 2010, she was admitted four times to the Mental Health Centre.

The Applicant's discharge summary by Dr. N. stated that her discharge diagnosis was:

> Chronic paranoid schizophrenia, long history of non-compliance

Dr. N. stated that the Applicant's mother called 911 after the Applicant packed her bags, and got into a car on the way "to go to a heavenly address". She had not been taking the Risperidone prescribed to her a week previously.

She was admitted and restarted her medications, including Zyprexa, and her condition improved. Once her condition stabilized she was given day passes. Her mother was designated as the substitute decision maker.

On October 14, 2010, Dr. N. wrote that:

> Her insight & acceptance of her illness have improved significantly. She is doing very well on Zyprexa 20 mg/d (also confirmed by her ACT team member who sees her weekly). I do support her application to have her driver's license re-instated.

MAC reviewed her case on November 1, 2010.

Recommendation:

> Remain suspended. Reconsider with a treating psychiatrist's report confirming one year of stability from last discharge. Report should outline level of stability, full mental status exam, symptoms, medications, doses, frequency of appointments, level of sedation, concentration, psychomotor function and ability to drive. Report should also mention any admissions since July 2010 and discharge summaries if applicable.

Reasons:

> Given previous psychiatric history as well as recent history of non-compliance a longer period of stability is required.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on November 18, 2010, that it had been decided that her driving privilege should remain under suspension. She was informed of the requirements in order to be considered for re-instatement, as outlined in the previous letter of June 1, 2010.

The Applicant's Case

In her Reasons for Appeal, the Applicant stated that she lived with her mother and a younger sister. She stated that her first episode in 2007 occurred after a period of stress with her sister and the recent break-up of a live-in relationship with her boyfriend. In 2009, she had a minor motor vehicle accident due to an improper lane change. This was not related to her illness contrary to what was implied in the medical reports. There was only one motor vehicle accident related to her illness, i.e. in 2007.

She stated that she could not afford the medication and stopped taking it in the Fall of 2009. This led to a relapse in the Spring of 2010 when she thought she might be pregnant. During the period in 2010 when she was admitted four times to the hospital there were stresses at home, although she was back on her medication since March with a drug card.

She is now managing her illness since her sister moved and she has support from a community mental health nurse.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. A medical report made pursuant to section 203 of the Act in 2007, stating that the Applicant was admitted to the hospital with a first episode of psychosis, which was associated with a serious driving offence causing serious bodily harm.

   Section 47(1) of the Act states:

   > Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence for any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f). …

2. O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

   > An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

3. The Applicant has been non-compliant with prescribed anti-psychotic medications leading to recurrence of psychosis and an admission to hospital in March 2010.
4. A longer period of stability is required as recommended by the MAC, with supporting medical reports confirming compliance and freedom from mental or emotional instability.

The Applicant relies on her present compliance, and the fact that since her sister left home, there has been no recurrence of the stress previously at fault. She is pursuing a college course and is attending a community support nurse regularly. Her psychiatrist Dr. N. supports the re-instatement of her driver's licence.

The Tribunal finds that:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act, upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report of recurrence of psychotic behaviour associated with non-compliance of prescribed medication.

2. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension under O. Reg. 340/94, section 14, upon review of medical reports that showed re-admission to the hospital four times during the Summer of 2010.

3. The Applicant requires a period of twelve months free from relapse, with evidence of compliance and stability that would likely allow her to operate a motor vehicle safely.

The Tribunal recommends that the Applicant participate in a stress management program that would enable her to cope with life stressors.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision of the Registrar, effective June 11, 2010, to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: Dr. Kevin Flynn, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

Sonia De Santis, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: January 5, 2011 Teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

A Medical Condition Report was completed by an ER Physician, Dr. H., pursuant to section 203 of the Act, on May 16, 2010:

> Alcohol Dependence
> Seizures(s)--Cerebral
> Seizure x 2 in past year – first attributed to alcohol withdrawal, second not likely caused by alcohol.
> Patient likely to have another seizure regardless of cause. Alcohol - 7 drinks a day on average.
> The patient is aware of this report.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on July 14, 2010 that it had been decided to suspend his driving privileges under Section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to have his case considered for re-instatement he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date report that must include:

- Results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
- Completion of a Substance Abuse Assessment form from his physician.
- If his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, the ministry will require confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement.
- A clinical explanation for the results of biochemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.
- Reference to his reported seizure(s), including a narrative of his recent history, cause and confirmation that he has remained seizure-free.
- Whether a diagnosis of epilepsy has been determined.

A Substance Abuse Assessment was completed by his physician, Dr. J. on July 31, 2010.

Health History:

Liver disease; Seizures.

Medical:

Patient has elevated liver enzymes in keeping with chronic alcoholism. His ultrasound does not show cirrhosis but he does have fatty infiltration. He suffered a seizure in May 2009. He left the ER AMA. His Potassium was low, it was likely an alcohol related seizure.

Physical Assessment:

Enlarged liver on ultrasound detected
MCV 98.6 (80-100)
GGT 246 (15-73) secondary to alcoholism
AST 132 (12-49) secondary to alcoholism
ALT 91 (12-49)

History of Use:

Age of first use: 15 years old. Home made wine
Age of first regular use: 18 years old
Amount consumed: at 18 years 6-10 beer/liquor
Most recent use: Monday August 2, 2010
Longest period of abstinence: 2-4 days Date of reduction or abstinence July 18, 2010
Medication: 50 mcg potassium
81 mgm ASA
Atacand

Treatment: I requested patient contact local addiction services.

Period of abstinence: He has not had a period of abstinence that I am aware of.

12 step program: is not aiming to stop drinking.

Substance Dependence:

- Persistent desire or unsuccessful efforts to cut down or control substance use.
- Continued substance use despite knowledge of having a persistent or recurrent social, psychological or physical problem that is caused or exacerbated by use of the substance.
- Withdrawal, as manifested by either (a) characteristic withdrawal syndrome for the substance or (b) the same or closely related substance is taken to relieve or avoid withdrawal syndrome.

Diagnosis: Dependence.

Recommendation: Abstinence.

I have recommended abstinence.

The local Addiction Services submitted a report to the Registrar on September 2, 2010.

The Applicant sought their help upon receipt of the Notice of Suspension.

The report referred to a seizure three years ago which was attributed to low serum potassium resulting from the use of a diuretic. He acknowledged his use of alcohol at the rate of one beer per hour from noon onwards but was reducing his consumption from about 80 per week to a goal of 56 and then he plans to set a lower target. No trigger factors were identified but at times of high stress he would drink more.

He was retired and was less busy around the house since the suspension. He did not plan to stop drinking.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on September 14, 2010 that the suspension would continue. In order to be considered for reinstatement he was required to be alcohol and seizure free for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement. Biochemical markers outside normal laboratory limits must be explained.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant in Reasons for Appeal attached copies of the ER reports of June 5, 2009 and May 16, 2010.

On June 5 he was admitted at 09:15 with a presenting history of chest pain, syncope and "?seizure". ER examination showed an ethyl alcohol level of greater than 36 mmol/L. His BP was elevated at 186/111. He was found to have a reduced level of serum potassium. He was discharged AMA (against medical advice) at 13:45.

On May 16, 2010 he was admitted at 18:05 with a history of seizure. Generalised tonic/clonic seizures were reported lasting 1-2 minutes followed by somnolence. A CT scan was normal. He was informed that the Ministry of Transportation would be notified.

He submitted that the episode on June 5, 2009 was due to the reduced potassium following a diuretic. On the second occasion he states that he had been playing golf on a hot day without sunscreen and felt weak and dizzy.

He states that he has always informed his physicians of his alcohol consumption.

He stopped drinking hard liquor in July 2010 and his goal is to reduce his consumption of beer to 45 per week.

He states that he has not provided the information requested by the Registrar in the letter of September 14, 2010 because he believed that the information requested had been provided previously. He acknowledged that he last had been drinking the evening before the Hearing, when he had six beers.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.
> (2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies:

1. On section 47(1) of the Act that states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence; …
> on the grounds of any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

2. The Medical Condition report of May 16, 2010 that stated that the Applicant's condition was alcohol dependence, and a history of seizures.

3. The Applicant continues to drink and had six beers the night before the Hearing.

4. The Applicant did not seem interested in abstinence and had no plan to enter a relapse prevention program.

5. The Registrar required more information concerning the reported seizure(s).

6. A period of one year alcohol free and seizure free was required in order to be considered for re-instatement.

7. CCMTA Guideline for alcohol dependence and alcohol withdrawal seizures state that a patient with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence including alcohol withdrawal seizures should not be allowed to drive any type of motor vehicle.

> STANDARD: May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.
> Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Applicant relies on his belief that the diagnosis of seizure was incorrect and on each of the ER admissions there was an alternative explanation for his symptoms, namely a reduced serum potassium level due to use of a diuretic, and exposure to too much sun.

He acknowledges his drinking and the amount consumed but does not believe that this causes a disability to the extent that he would be unsafe to drive. He is also gradually reducing the amount of alcohol consumed per day.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report pursuant to section 203 of the Act stating that the condition was alcohol dependence and seizure(s).

2. The information requested by the Registrar in the letter of September 14, 2010 remains outstanding.

3. The Applicant has stated that he does not intend to stop drinking although the biochemical markers for alcoholism were elevated on the Alcohol Assessment Report. No further laboratory results have been submitted.

4. No detailed medical information has been submitted concerning reported seizures.

5. No medical evidence was submitted that supports reinstatement.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated July 15, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DATE OF HEARING: January 13, 2011 By Telephone

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that due to an address change he did not receive the Notice of Hearing at his current address until January 4, 2011. He telephoned the Licence Appeal Tribunal office on January 7 requesting a Hearing in person and was advised to present his argument for change in venue at the commencement. Upon being advised that an in-person Hearing could not be scheduled until February 10, 2011, he requested that the Electronic Hearing continue. The Respondent agreed.

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

A Medical Condition Report was completed on December 31, 2008 by Dr. S., a physician at a community hospital.

> Seizure(s) or loss of consciousness
> Patient is aware of this report.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on January 24, 2009 that his driving privilege was suspended for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for the Registrar to receive an up-to-date detailed report from a physician familiar with his history. This report must include a narrative of any previous syncope/seizure history, the results of any cardiologic and neurological investigations (ECG, EEG, Holter monitor). The report must indicate that the cause has been determined and successfully treated.

He was informed that he may apply for an Administrative Review and of his right of appeal.

No further correspondence took place until a Medical Condition Report was completed on January 29, 2009 by Dr. C. his family physician, reporting:

> Alcohol Dependence
> Seizure(s)-Alcohol related.

Attached was a consultation report from a neurologist, Dr. M. dated January 10, 2008.

Dr M.noted that the family physician informed him that the patient was a heavy drinker (4-5 drinks a day) until recently; that he had a seizure following a late night and early morning when away from home in October 2007. He was taken to the local hospital. A CT scan and EEG performed at the hospital were reported as normal. He had not been driving since the seizure.

There was no past history of seizure but a brother had died at age of two years from seizures. His son developed seizures at age eight.

The Applicant's partner described classical signs of a grand mal seizure.

The Applicant informed Dr. M. that he only has 1-2 drinks of rum after work.

He agreed not to drive until a 12 month period seizure-free had passed. He was prescribed carbamazepine and was asked to have laboratory tests in one month.

Results of laboratory tests on January 20, 2009 showed:

MCV 103.5 (range 80-97)

Carbamazepine level 34 (therapeutic level 17-42)

Dr. M. wrote to the Registrar on October 7, 2010. He had been following the patient for seizures and last assessed him on September 23, 2010. He reported that the patient had seizures in October 2007, November 2008, and October 2009 and was currently controlled on a higher dose of carbamazepine. He noted that the patient's alcohol consumption had been reduced considerably and he was now taking 10 units per week. The latest blood work on August 11, 2010 showed the following:

MCV 108.5

GGT 696 (normal <60)

AST normal

ALT normal

Dr. M. stated that he did not have an explanation for the biochemical abnormalities at this time.

The patient has been seizure-free for approximately one year. From an epilepsy standpoint I think he is safe to drive.

Dr. M. forwarded an Alcohol Assessment Form dated October 15, 2010.

Medical Consequences of Alcohol Use: none.

Physical Assessment normal

Laboratory results as above on August 11, 2010

Alcohol Use Audit:

Total score: 8

History of Alcohol Use

Age of first use: 15 years old

Age of first Regular Use: 30 years old.

Quantity over past month: 5

Who do you drink with? Friend. Where do you drink? Friend's house

Last Use: last week on September, 2010

First intoxication: 15 years old

Reasons for drinking: special occasion

Pattern of Use: Excessive use in past, now quit.

Reasons for stopping: Health concerns.

Consequences of Drinking:

Legal: nil

Interpersonal: nil

Vocational: nil

Medical: patient has seizures but not necessarily linked to alcohol. Strong family history of seizures (his son and brother had seizures).

Treatment:

No previous treatments

12 Step Programs: not used

Diagnosis:

None given

Recommended Goal for Alcohol Consumption

The patient was advised to continue his efforts to decrease alcohol intake down to 3 drinks per week (no more than 2 on any one sitting)

Medical Advisory Committee on November 8, 2010 recommended a report from the driver's treating physician to provide a documented clinical explanation for the driver's elevated GGT and his rising MCV.

Reasons:

Driver has had no further seizures since August 2009. However MAC notes rising increase in the driver's MCV marker in January 2009 =103.5, August 2010=108.5.
GGT marker in August 2010 =696.
MAC does recognise anti-convulsant medication can cause a rise in GGT level.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on November 24, 2010 that in light of Dr. M's assessment on October 7, 2010 it will be necessary to file an assessment from his treating physician which provides a documented clinical explanation for the elevated GGT and rising MCV test result.

The Driver's Record shows one speeding offence dated May 20 2008, 60 kmh in a 50 kmh zone.

The Applicant's Case.

The Applicant submitted that the Medical Condition Report dated December 31 did not identify him as the patient because the given name on the report was not his. The report identified the correct surname and date of birth and the given name is the same as the Applicant's middle name. The Tribunal ruled that the Report correctly applied to the Applicant.

He stated that when he went to another province in October 2007 for a sports event he had some drinks late at night and had to be up at 04:30 in order to catch a flight home. He was at a party where there were strobe lights and he had a seizure. He was taken to a city hospital and tests were performed that allowed him to return home. He saw the neurologist Dr. M. and was started on carbamazepine. He had seizures in 2008 and his last seizure was on October 2009. He is currently taking carbamazepine 600 mgm a day.

Dr. M. called him after the laboratory results in October 2010 and advised him to reduce his alcohol use to three per week and no more than two on any one day. He has had further tests since then, the last one being two weeks ago. These results have not been forwarded to the Registrar and have not been made available to the Tribunal. He states that he has stopped drinking but that the test results have not changed.

He has not shown Dr. M. the Registrar's letter dated October 7, 2010. He has asked the doctor if he can explain the elevated laboratory results but was advised that no further information was available.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1.The Medical Condition report filed pursuant to section 203 of the Act, on December 31, 2008 listing Seizure(s).

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence for any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

2. A report pursuant to section 203 of Act from the Applicant's family physician, Dr. C. on January 29, 2009 listing Alcohol Dependence and Cerebral Seizures.

3. The neurologist, Dr. M. made reference to alcohol in his letter to Dr. C. but left it to Dr. C. to initiate a report under section 203.

4. The Applicant promised to abstain from driving for 15 months on January 10, 2008 but was caught speeding on May 20, 2008.

5. The elevated GGT result over 10 times higher than normal. The Applicant was advised by his physician to cut down on alcohol but results remained high.

6. The Medical Advisory Committee recognised that the GGT may be elevated due to the anticonvulsant medication but this explanation has not been confirmed by the Applicant's physician.

7.The neurologist has recommended re-instatement on the epilepsy diagnosis but no medical recommendation has been made regarding re-instatement on the alcohol issue.

The Applicant relies on the advice given by the neurologist regarding reducing the use of alcohol, which he has followed, in spite of which the laboratory results have remained elevated. He undertook to provide the Registrar with the results of all laboratory tests in the last year and will also discuss further with Dr. M the effect of the medication on the GGT and other liver tests.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in suspending the Applicant's driving privileges upon receipt of a medical report on January 29, 2009 pursuant to section 203 of the Act, listing Alcohol Dependence and Seizures.

2. A diagnosis of alcohol dependence has not been confirmed by the Alcohol Assessment form. There remains to be explained by the Applicant's physician the marked elevation of the GTT marker and the rising MCV. The Tribunal recommends that the Applicant pursue this question with his neurologist, and he also should provide the Registrar with copies of all laboratory results done in the last twelve months.

3. A diagnosis of alcohol withdrawal seizures has not been confirmed by the neurologist, and therefore CCMTA section 13.2 does not apply.

4. The Tribunal recommends reinstatement if the Registrar receives documented evidence that the anticonvulsant carbamazepine can cause elevation of the GGT and MCV markers.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 11, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DATE OF HEARING: January 13, 2011 By Telephone

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

A Medical Condition Report Pursuant to section 203 of the Act was completed by Dr. B. on May 13, 2010, which stated:

> Alcohol or drug abuse
> Condition is Temporary and likely to be resolved within three months
> Patient is aware of this report.

The Registrar informed the Applicant by letter on July 13, 2010 that it had been decided to suspend his driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act regarding the reported <Alcohol Dependence.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for the Registrar to receive a detailed up-to-date report from his physician to include the following:

- Results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
- Completion of the enclosed Substance Abuse Assessment form by his treating physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine.
- If as a result of the assessment his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, the ministry will require confirmation that he has been abstinent from alcohol for a period of twelve months. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement of his driving privilege.
- A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

He was advised of his right to request an Administrative Review and of his right of appeal.

The Substance Abuse Form was completed on July 30, 2010 by Dr. K., his Family Physician for 20 years.

Health History:

Hospitalizations within the past twelve months

Psychiatric disorders (anxiety and depression

Chronic Anxiety or Tension

Presently on citalopram 20 mg daily. Since recent hospitalization for treatment of alcohol abuse he has not any alcohol and is attending AA regularly. I am also seeing him regularly as his Family Physician of many years.

Abstain

Date advised to abstain: June 29, 2010

Dr. K., Family Physician, wrote to the Registrar on August 23, 2010 stating:

> It is my assessment that <Applicant>, a patient of mine for the last 20 years, is medically fit to operate a motor vehicle.
> It should be noted that his sobriety has now reached eight weeks, that he is attending AA meetings three times weekly, and that he has entered a <professional addiction counselling program> which is further testament to his determination for his continued sobriety.

Medical Advisory Committee reviewed his case on October 7, 2010

Recommendation:

> Remain suspended. Will reconsider reinstatement with a report from the driver's treating physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine, confirming abstinence from alcohol for a sustained period of twelve months, supported by bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST ALT) at a rate to be determined by the driver's treating physician.

Reasons

> Driver has previous history of residential substance treatment in1988, a conviction for impaired driving in 2007 and most recent report of alcohol/drug abuse dated May 13, 2010. In light of the aforementioned, consideration for reinstatement cannot be considered until such time as the driver has remained alcohol free for a sustained period of 12 months supported by bio-chemical markers at a rate to be determined by his treating physician.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on October 14, 2010 that his driving privilege would remain suspended. He was advised to arrange for an up-to-date detailed report confirming abstinence for a period of twelve months supported by bio-chemical markers at a rate to be determined by his physician.

On November 23, 2010, Dr. K. wrote:

> I continue to see him regularly. He has not taken a drink and is completely abstinent, and his blood work is excellent.

Laboratory results dated November 11, 2010:

> GGT 13 (<60)
> AST 27 (<37)
> ALT 21 (<45)
> MCV 94 (<80-97)

On December 21, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that his driving privilege would remain suspended. He was again advised that he must arrange for the Registrar to receive a detailed, up-to-date assessment from his physician with the requirements stated in the letter of October 14, 2010.

The Driver's Record:

> Impaired driving 2007/12/04
> Suspended until 2008/12/04
> Suspended for medical reasons 2010/07/23

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that as a result of a break-up of a 4 year relationship he was forced to sell his "dream home" at short notice early in 2010. He had to find temporary accommodation and moved into a motel with his cat.

He was prescribed an antidepressant, Ciprolex and diazepam and he started to drink. As a result of mixing medication with alcohol he became unwell and his sister arranged to have him taken to the Emergency Room by ambulance. He had been taking 4 drinks a day and had increased his consumption the day before his admission to hospital.

Having worked for over 35 years in a senior government position, the sudden suspension of his driving privilege had a traumatic effect. He has been attending Alcoholics Anonymous meetings three times a week and also enrolled in a community health centre addiction counselling program. He keeps in regular touch with his family physician of many years in order to prevent a relapse. He has been sober since June 29, 2010 and he has no demerit points on his licence to drive over 48 years. He is now unable to continue his volunteer work and sports activities as he lives outside the city.

As a result of the impaired driving conviction in 2007, he had to cope with the humiliation of the arrest, waiting for his trial and conviction which required him to use an interlock device. Following the end of the sentence period he voluntarily purchased an interlock device in order to prevent a recurrence. As a result of this he is quite familiar with the results of driving while impaired.

He submitted that his bio-chemical markers on July 30, 2010 showed only marginal elevation of MCV at 100 (range 80-97). MCH was 35 (range 27-32). GGT was normal at 26 (normal <60)..On November 12, 2010,` his MCV was 94, MCH 33 and GGT 13. He submitted that these are indicative of only a temporary minor elevation that returned to normal on stopping alcohol. He noted that Dr. B. in the Medical Condition Report did not check "Situation is a serious road safety risk" and noted that the "condition is temporary and likely to be resolved within 3 months".

Also the Applicant submitted that the Registrar interpreted "Alcohol Abuse" as indicated in the Report on March 13, 2010 as "Alcohol Dependence" in the Notice of Suspension letter on July 13, 2010. His Family Physician diagnosed Alcohol Abuse, not Dependence,in the Alcohol Abuse Assessment.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the of holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report completed by a physician pursuant to section 203 reported alcohol abuse. Section 47(1) states:

   Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence; …

   on the grounds of any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

2. The driver's record of conviction of impaired driving in 2007.

3. The history of relapse following residential treatment in 1988 and the more recent relapse in May 2010.

4. The bio-chemical marker MCV was outside the normal range, without an explanation.

5. The review by the Medical Advisory Committee on October 7, 2010 recommending that the Applicant's driving privilege should remain suspended pending a sustained period of abstinence of 12 months supported by bio-chemical markers.

The Applicant relies on:

1. The Medical Condition Report on May 13, 2010 did list Alcohol Abuse as the condition. The Registrar was in error stating that he suffered from Alcohol Dependence.

2. The bio-chemical markers on which the Registrar relied were only marginally elevated and were normal following a period of sobriety.

3. He has taken steps to prevent relapse by attending AA three times weekly and by enrolling in a community based addiction counselling program.

4. He sees his family physician regularly for management of his problem.

5. He has a previous record of sobriety of 35 months following the conviction in 2007.

6. He has now been sober for over six months.

The Tribunal rules:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report completed by a physician pursuant to section 203 on May 13, 2010, listing "Alcohol Abuse, likely to significantly interfere with driving".

2. The Registrar was not correct in listing the condition as <Alcohol Dependence> in the Notice of Suspension on July 13, 2010.

3. The elevation of the bio-chemical marker MCV on July 30, 2010 on which the Registrar relies was only marginally elevated and was not accompanied by an elevated GGT. Both tests were in the normal range on November 11, 2010.

4. The Applicant has taken several steps to prevent relapse, by attendance at AA three times a week, enrolment in a community based addiction program, and regularly attends his family physician of 20 years.

5. His family physician is supportive of reinstatement.

6. The period of abstinence of over six months is reasonable under the circumstances listed above.

7. The Applicant is not addicted to the use of alcohol to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 11, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend her driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN Presiding Member

Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: January 21, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the "Applicant") respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

EXHIBITS

1. Notice of Appeal received at the Tribunal December 23, 2010, filed by the Applicant.

2. Notice of Suspension issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles effective November 7, 2010, contained in tabbed file #1-9. Filed by the Tribunal.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

A Medical Condition Report was completed pursuant to section 203 of the Act, by Dr. H., a psychiatrist at a teaching hospital, on October 10, 2010.

The medical condition(s) listed were:

> Seizure(s) – Alcohol related.
> Post-operative seizure, possibly related to alcohol withdrawal
> The patient is aware of this report.

On October 20, 2010, the Registrar notified the Applicant by letter that as a result of the report submitted in compliance with the Act, his licence to drive was suspended under Section 47(1) of the Act.

He was advised that in order for his case to be reconsidered, he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date report from his doctor. The report must include:

- The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle;
- A reference to the reported seizure(s). As the seizure appeared to be related to alcohol misuse, he must arrange for completion of a Substance Abuse Assessment form by his physician;
- If as a result of the assessment, his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and/or that the Applicant has experienced an alcohol withdrawal or alcohol related seizure, this assessment must confirm that he has remained both seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege;
- A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range;
- Details of the circumstances surrounding the reported seizure as well as details of any previous seizure whether alcohol related or not.

He was advised of his right to Administrative Review and of his right of Appeal.

On November 2, 2010, a copy of a consultation report from a cardiologist, Dr. D. to the Applicant's family physician, Dr. G was forwarded to the Registrar together with a completed Alcohol Assessment Form.

The specialist noted that the 53 year old patient underwent cardiac surgery at a teaching hospital on October 4, 2010. His post-operative course was complicated by delirium, agitation and a single seizure. CT scan showed generalised atrophy. It was felt that the seizure was probably due to alcohol withdrawal.

No further cardiac problems occurred and he was discharged home on Aspirin, metoprolol 12.5 mg twice daily and Ramipril 2.5 mgm daily. Physical examination was normal. He was advised to avoid alcohol in the future and was abstaining currently.

The Substance Abuse Assessment form was completed by the family physician, Dr. G. on November 30, 2010.

Date advised to abstain

Date became abstinent

October 15, 2010

On December 14, 2010, the Registrar informed the Applicant that it had been decided that the suspension should continue because a longer period of recovery was advised by the medical advisors.

He was requested to submit an up to date detailed report from his physician or a physician specialising in addictions medicine regarding his reported seizure. This assessment should confirm that he has remained both seizure-free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers that are outside the normal laboratory range. His physician must also include details of the circumstances surrounding the reported seizure as well as details of any previous seizure whether alcohol related or not.

He was advised of his right of appeal.

Dr. G., the Applicant's family physician wrote to the Registrar on December 15, 2010.

> This is to certify that <Applicant> does not have a seizure disorder. He had one seizure which probably was due to alcohol withdrawal related to hospitalization for cardiac surgery, which required that he stop all alcohol consumption. There was never a definitive diagnosis. However it was not epilepsy. Additionally there has been no need for anti-convulsant meds. Neither have there been any further seizures.
> I also can verify that <Applicant> does not have any alcohol dependence and that he does not require alcohol rehabilitation treatment.

The Registrar informed the Applicant on December 23, 2010 that the letter from Dr. G. had been reviewed and it had been decided that his driving privilege should remain suspended.

The reason given was that insufficient time had elapsed since the date of his last seizure to ensure that his condition had been adequately controlled. In order to be considered for reinstatement he must submit a detailed report from his treating physician or a specialist in addiction medicine confirming that he has remained seizure free and abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege. A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers that are outside the normal laboratory range. His physician must also include details of the circumstances surrounding the reported seizure as well as details of any previous seizure whether alcohol related or not.

The Applicant's driver record showed no infractions or demerit points.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant stated that he had cardiac valve surgery at the teaching hospital on October 4, 2010. During the surgery he suffered a seizure. During the recovery period he was seen by the psychiatrist, Dr. H. on October 12, 2010. He stated that Dr. H. interviewed him for approximately half an hour and informed him that a report would be sent to the Ministry of Transportation. Following receipt of the Registrar's letter of suspension he saw his family physician for completion of the Substance Abuse form and had laboratory tests as requested by the ministry. All the tests were in the normal range. The cardiac surgeon told him at his follow-up appointment that he had made a good recovery and also indicated to him that he did not understand why his licence was suspended. His cardiologist also told him that he did not have any concerns. His family physician was supportive of reinstatement.

He has suffered substantial financial losses since losing his driving privilege. He states that he has complied with all the requests by the Registrar and has not consumed alcohol since October 16, 2010. He has never had a seizure in the past and there is no family history of seizures. He does not agree with the diagnosis of alcohol withdrawal seizure but acknowledges that he did have a seizure during surgery. He points out that the Medical Condition report stated "possibly related to alcohol withdrawal". He has remained abstinent for three months and he intends not to drink in the future. He contacted ADAPT in order to satisfy the ministry requirements. His family physician has stated in the Substance Assessment report that his diagnosis is misuse and not dependence. His use of alcohol was 12 to 18 beers a week and sometimes he would not drink at all.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1)(b)(g) of the Act that states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence on the grounds of any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

The Medical Condition Report submitted pursuant to Section 203 of the Act required the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence to drive.

2. Regulation 340/94 (14) (a) states that:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely;

3. The Applicant was reported for "possibly alcohol withdrawal seizure" and was advised by his cardiologist to avoid alcohol in the future.

4. The family physician checked that "uncomplicated complication of alcohol withdrawal beginning 12-18 hours after cessation of drinking was related to post-operative cardiac surgery".

5. No other cause was found for the seizure

6. CCMTA Section 13.2 states that patients with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence including those with alcohol withdrawal induced seizures, should not be allowed to drive any type of motor vehicle.

STANDARD: May not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain seizure-free and alcohol-free.
Earlier relicensure may be considered upon favourable recommendation from an addiction specialist recognised by the licensing authority and the successful completion of an alcohol rehabilitation program.

The Applicant relies on the advice given by his cardiac surgeon, his cardiologist and the written advice by his family physician that he does not have a problem with alcohol or seizures. He has been sober for three months and has taken seriously the medical advice to abstain. The seizure has been attributed possibly to alcohol withdrawal. He has made every effort to meet the Registrar's requirements except for the twelve month period seizure free and alcohol free.

The Tribunal finds as fact:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's licence to drive under Section 47(1) upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report filed pursuant to Section 203 of the Act that stated the Applicant suffered from Seizure –Alcohol Related .

2. The Substance Abuse Assessment form completed by the family physician for 20 years did not make a diagnosis of alcohol abuse or dependence, but alcohol misuse. The bio-chemical markers were in the normal range.

3 The recommendation by the family physician was abstinence. The Applicant has been abstinent for three months.

4 CCMTA section 13.2 is directed to patients who have a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, including those with alcohol withdrawal seizures. The Tribunal finds that there the Applicant does not have a diagnosis of alcohol dependence. There is strong indication that the Applicant did suffer an alcohol withdrawal seizure which was solitary and was treated and is not likely to recur as long as the Applicant remains alcohol-free. The Applicant is strongly motivated to avoid relapse.

5 The Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not suffer any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated November 7, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by (the “Applicant”) respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (Ontario) (the "Act").

EXHIBITS

1. Notice of Appeal received at the Tribunal December 23, 2010, filed by the Applicant.

2. Notice of Suspension issued by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles on November 7, 2010, contained in tabbed file #1-9. Filed by the Tribunal.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Respondent acknowledged that the Medical Review Section erred in not issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege immediately upon receipt of the Medical Condition Report in May 2010. Notice of Suspension was issued on November 7, 2010. It appears that the Applicant did not drive after he was discharged from hospital in May because he was aware that the ministry had received a report

FACTS

The Respondent's Case

On May 7, 2010 a Medical Condition Report was completed by an Emergency Room physician, Dr. S. pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

The medical condition(s) listed were:

> Alcohol Dependence
>
> Mental or Emotional illness-Unstable
> Delusions
> The patient is aware of this report.

On June 28, 2010 a letter dated June 2, 2010 was received from the Applicant's family physician, Dr. S.

> <Applicant> has been a patient of mine since 1991.
> He has asked me to write to you on his behalf. He told me that his driver's licence has been suspended because of a medical condition.
> He was admitted to a city hospital on May 2, 2010. He was admitted because of hallucinations and delusions as a result of alcohol withdrawal. The patient was discharged on May 11, 2010. He has been able to abstain from alcohol since his discharge from hospital. His medical condition has improved. He no longer suffers from alcohol withdrawal.
> Since his medical condition has improved, it is not a risk to road safety to operate a motor vehicle.

On July 12, 2010 the Registrar notified the Applicant by letter that he was required to file an up-to-date, detailed assessment from his physician.

The report must contain the following:

- Results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

- Completion of a Substance Assessment form by his physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine
- If a diagnosis of alcohol dependence is confirmed a period of abstinence for one year is required with confirmation. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of reinstatement.
- A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GT, AST, ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

He was requested to file the assessment by September 10, 2010 or his licence would be suspended.

He was advised of his right to Administrative Review and of his right of Appeal.

On July 29, 2010 Dr S. forwarded the completed Substance Abuse Assessment form and in a cover letter he noted:

> <Applicant's> medical condition is under control. If he is able to maintain his sobriety, he should be able to safely operate a motor vehicle.

Diagnosis

Abuse

Recommended goal for alcohol consumption

Patient has been advised to reduce

On October 13, 2010, the Medical Advisory Committee (M.A.C.) case study recommended suspension.

Will reconsider reinstatement with an assessment from a physician specializing in addictions medicine. The report must provide a complete assessment and a full alcohol use history. Additionally, the report must indicate if the disease of alcoholism is present and if so what is the recommended form of treatment. The report must also include an interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT & AST) with a clinical explanation for any level outside the normal laboratory range. Furthermore, the report must also address the hospitalization of May 7, 2010, a copy of the discharge summary with notes. The driver reported a10 year period of abstinence sometime post early 1990s, and an opinion whether reduced drinking at a minimum risk level is appropriate in this case.

Reasons:

As this driver had a significant relapse requiring hospitalization, post treatment with confirmed abstinence of less than 3 months, suspension is recommended. Driver was reported to ministry on May 7, 2010 on account of alcohol dependence and delusions. Substance Abuse Assessment form completed on July 29, 2010 indicates diagnosis of alcohol abuse. Individual history includes a ten year period of abstinence following treatment in early 1990, which would indicate probable relapse for many years. Individual was in alcohol withdrawal with delusions and mental or emotional illness when admitted to hospital on May 4, 2010. Assessment from an Addictionist is required.

On October 28, 2010 the Applicant was accordingly advised that it had been decided that his driving privilege was suspended for medical reasons under section 47(1) of the Act.

He was requested to submit an up-to-date assessment from a physician specializing in Addictions Medicine. The report must include a complete assessment and a full alcohol use history. Additionally, the report must indicate if the disease of alcoholism is present and if so what is the recommended form of treatment. The report must also include an interpretation of bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT & AST) with a clinical explanation for any level outside the normal laboratory range. Furthermore, the report must also address the hospitalization of May 7, 2010, a copy of the discharge summary with notes, the reported 10 year period of abstinence sometime post early 1990s, and an opinion whether reduced drinking at a minimum risk level is appropriate in this case.

The Respondent cited:

2. H.T.A. Section 47(1)
3. Ontario Regulation 340/94.(14)
4. CCMTA Section 13,2

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he lost his job as an executive in November 2009 and he encountered financial problems with sleeping difficulties. He turned to drink to help him sleep and soon found that he was drinking too much. In May 2010 he began hallucinating and he would ask his wife for reality checks. She advised him to see his family physician who told him to go to the hospital Emergency Room. He was seen by a psychiatrist and a psychologist and by the third day of hospitalization he was normal. He was discharged on May 11, 2010.

Under cross examination he stated that he suffered from alcohol dependence about ten years ago and he entered into a detoxification center for one week and a treatment program at the local hospital. He remained sober from 1994 to 2004. He attended AA and received the medallion in 2004 for ten years of sobriety. He stated that the reason for his dependence was the loss of a large sum of money due to litigation with an ex partner in 1993.

He was working in western Canada in 2009 when he lost his job during winter and began to drink again. He explained that the offence of disobeying a red light occurred when he was stopped just inside an intersection when the lights changed. Unfortunately a police car was waiting to make a left turn at the same time.

Following his treatment in May 2010, he relapsed again in June 2010 due to financial difficulties and because he was having sleep difficulties.

Under cross examination he acknowledged that his family physician was not aware of the amount of alcohol consumed in 2009 when he was in Western Canada.

He acknowledged the responsibility of physicians in Ontario to report to the ministry when a patient suffers from a medical condition that may interfere with ability to operate a motor vehicle safely. He questioned the need for a specialist in addictions medicine and was informed by the Registrar's representative that addictionists are trained in evaluating addiction problems on referral by a family physician who would provide the patient's medical history. The function of the addictionist would be to determine if the problem is abuse or dependence and to establish the likelihood of relapse. He denies that alcoholism is a disease and that total abstinence is required.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32(12)(b)(i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1)(b)(g) that states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel a driver's licence on the grounds of any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

The Medical Condition Report submitted pursuant to Section 203 of the Act required the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence to drive. The Registrar responded to the Report by requesting further information but due to an internal error the Notice of Suspension was not issued until November 2010.

2. The Applicant has had three relapses since 1993 for alcohol dependence.. He has attended AA but has not successfully completed a treatment program. He has not submitted an up-to date assessment by an Addictions Medicine specialist or sought such an assessment. The number of relapses indicates impaired judgement.

3. Regulation 340/94, Section 14(b): An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

4. On discharge from hospital in May 2010 the Applicant was provided with information on a rehabilitation program but did not follow up.

5. The Registrar requested more medical information which has not been received. There is insufficient medical information to justify reinstatement.

6. CCMTA Section 13.2:

Patients with a history of alcohol dependence should not be allowed to drive any type of motor vehicle. Patients habitually dependent on alcohol should not drive until evidence of alcoholism is no longer a problem. These patients must complete a recognised rehabilitation program for substance dependence and remain alcohol free for a period of time before recommencing driving.

STANDARD: MAY NOT DRIVE ANY MOTOR VEHICLE FOR TWELVE MONTHS DURING WHICH TIME THE INDIVIDUAL MUST REMAIN …ALCOHOL-FREE.

EARLIER RELICENSURE MAY BE CONSIDERED UPON FAVOURABLE RECOMMENDATION FROM AN ADDICTION MEDICINE SPECIALIST RECOGNISED BY THE LICENSING AUTHORITY AND THE SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF AN ALCCOHOL REHABILITATION PROGRAM.

The Applicant relies on:

1. He has been driving since 1960 and has never been stopped for drinking and driving.

2. He does not see that he has a drinking problem and is opposed to seeing an addiction medicine specialist. The cost alone ($1200) would be prohibitive.

3. He has held a responsible position with perfect attendance as an executive.

4. He has not had the urge to drink since June 2010. He submits that alcoholism is not a disease and that controlled drinking is acceptable.

The Tribunal finds as fact:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's licence to drive under Section 47(1) upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report filed pursuant to Section 203 of the Act that stated the Applicant suffered from Alcohol Dependence, Mental or Emotional Illness, and Delusions.

2. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension under Ontario Regulation 340/94(14)(b) upon receipt of the Alcohol Assessment Form and following the Medical Advisory Committee recommendations.

3. The Applicant has not successfully completed an alcohol rehabilitation program and has not submitted medical evidence that he has remained alcohol free for a period of twelve months.

4. Reduced drinking is not an achievable goal for this Applicant

DECISION:

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated April 10, 2006 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

KYLE .M. BIEL Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: January 27, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

On July 21, 2010, a family physician, Dr. M. completed a Medical Condition Report on the Applicant. The condition report based on an examination on May 20, 2010:

> Alcohol Dependence/Abuse
> Patient admitted to driving while intoxicated and had son in the car at the time.
> Patient is aware of this report

The Registrar wrote to the Applicant on July 26, 2010 informing him that considering all the relevant facts available, it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for a detailed, up-to-date report from his physician to include:

- Results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled, and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

- Completion of a Substance Abuse Assessment form by his treating physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine.

- If as a result of the assessment, his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, the ministry will require confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege.

- A clinical explanation must be provided for any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

He was advised that he may request an Administrative Review and of his right of appeal.

A blank Substance Abuse Assessment form was enclosed.

The Registrar received none of the information requested.

The Driver's Record showed:

- a fine for speeding 50 km/h in 40 km/h zone on May 12, 2008
- suspension for unpaid fine August 21, 2008
- reinstatement October 20, 2008
- disobey traffic sign April 27, 2009
- disobey legal sign February 4, 2009
- speeding 71 km/h in 50 km/h zone
- fail to have insurance card January 4, 2010
- speeding 74 km/h in 60 km/h zone February 15, 2010
- speeding 56 km/h in 40 km/h zone May 21, 2010
- fail to have insurance card May 21, 2010
- suspension for medical reasons August 5, 2010

Total demerit points: 10

The Applicant's Case

In Reasons for Appeal, the Applicant submitted that information he gave to the family doctor was taken out of context in regard to a visit he had prior to the suspension.

In sworn testimony he stated that during his visit to Dr. M. on July 20, 2010, the doctor asked if he had been drinking prior to picking his 5 year old son from school on day prior to the appointment. He told the doctor that he had a couple of drinks of beer. His wife was concerned and contacted the doctor. The Applicant initiated the appointment. He informed the doctor that he worked at two fulltime jobs, both of which placed him in contact with alcohol on a regular basis. His told the doctor that his life was "rough and tumble" because of his work hours and he would regularly consume between one and eight to ten drinks a day. Often he would not finish work until 2 a.m. Dr. M. told him that he thought that he drank excessively and he phoned the Applicant three days later to inform him that he was sending the report to the ministry.

He informed the Tribunal that he saw a counsellor about a year previously on referral by CAMH following a MARS assessment. Following the counselling he abstained from alcohol for ninety days.

His work places him in contact with many peers who told him that they do not consider that he has a drinking problem. His wife comes from a different culture and she does not approve of him drinking; therefore he does not drink at home.

Following receipt of the July 26, 2010 letter from the Registrar he made a second appointment with Dr. M. and asked him to complete the Substance Abuse form. The doctor refused, saying that he did not have time. He tried several other physicians and an addiction medicine specialist but found that either they did not wish to complete the form or the cost was one or two thousand dollars. Therefore he decided to appeal. He acknowledged that he did not request an Administrative Review.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.
> (2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Upon receipt of an unsolicited Medical Condition Report by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act, listing alcohol dependence/abuse, the Registrar was obligated to issue a suspension, pending the receipt of more medical information.

2. While there is no medical diagnosis of alcohol dependence there is a history of an ongoing problem with alcohol as evidenced by past history of counselling for alcohol a year ago followed by a period of abstinence.

3. The Applicant works in an environment where alcohol is prevalent.

4. Without receipt of a completed Substance Abuse Assessment form the Registrar has no medical support for reinstatement.

5. Since the Medical Condition Report listed alcohol dependence/abuse, the CCMTA guideline 13.2 standard is:

> MAY NOT DRIVE ANY MOTOR VEHICLE FOR 12 MONTHS DURING WHICH TIME THE INDIVIDUAL MUST REMAIN ALCOHOL-FREE.
> EARLIER RELICENSURE MAY BE CONSIDERED UPON FAVOURABLE RECOMMENDATION FROM AN ADDICTION SPECIALIST RECOGNISED BY THE LICENSING AUTHORITY AND THE SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF AN ALCOHOL REHABILITATION PROGRAM.

The Applicant relies on:

1. There is no history of alcohol abuse.

2. The response to his visit to the physician was “overkill”.

3. He himself took steps to see the doctor in response to his wife’s concerns.

4. He has failed to get a family physician willing to complete the Substance Abuse Assessment form after between twenty and forty attempts.

5. He is unable to operate his business without the use of a car.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension under section 47(1) of the Act, of the Applicant's driving privilege upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report made pursuant to section 203 of the Act that listed Alcohol Dependence/Abuse.

2. The Medical Condition Report was made in the context of concern expressed by the wife of the Applicant, the past history of alcohol abuse counselling and the work environment that places the Applicant in regular contact with alcohol.

3. The Applicant has a history consistent with alcohol abuse but there is no evidence of alcohol dependence or addiction.

4. A completed Substance Abuse Assessment form is necessary before the Registrar can consider re-instatement of the Applicant's driving privilege.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated August 5, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed

DATE OF HEARING: February 10, 2011 Teleconference

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar received a Medical Report on December 11, 2009 for a Class 'A' licence.

The family physician for 20 years, Dr. M. reported:

> Diabetes
> Psychiatric Disorder
> Addiction: Alcohol
> Alcoholism – does not drink & drive (admission to rehab – needs to stop)
> Diabetes controlled; HbA1C Nov 27/09 = 0.057
> Myocardial infarction 2005 – no angina
> Generalised anxiety disorder – controlled well – no tranquilizers used with Paxil

The Registrar informed the Applicant on March 16, 2009 that he no longer met the medical standards for Class 'A'. Under Regulation 340/94 of the Act he may apply for a waiver of the medical standards and he was provided with a Waiver Package to be completed by his physician.

Also he was provided with a Diabetic Assessment form. The form was necessary for confirmation that he has not experienced any severe hypoglycaemic reactions, for assessment of his diabetic diary with blood tests at least twice daily for the last 30 days including the number of levels below 4, and to provide a recent HbA1C.

In addition the assessment must reference his cardiac condition and confirm that he meets the New York Heart Association functional class for Class 'A' licence.

He was also required to have an Alcohol Assessment form completed. If this assessment indicates a diagnosis of dependence, it must confirm that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if he provides confirmation that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and upon a favourable recommendation from his physician, and if he provides the results of bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT) with a clinical explanation if any results are outside the normal laboratory range.

The Alcohol Assessment form was completed by Dr. M. on October 22, 2009.

A letter from a Residential Program dated February 7, 2008 confirmed that the Applicant completed the program from January 17, 2008 to February 7, 2008 and was then transferred to the follow-up program. He was advised to attend regular AA meetings.

The Diabetic Assessment Form completed by Dr. M. on February 19, 2009 showed > "excellent diabetes control".

Results of cardiac assessment including Exercise Stress Test, Echo Doppler Report, were normal.

A Discharge Summary from the local hospital on June 14, 2007 showed that he was then on Insulin.

A letter to the Registrar from Dr. M. on February 22, 2010 stated:

> Recent blood results indicate normal MCV, increased GGT due to fatty infiltration of liver and excellent HbA1C. With avoidance of alcohol and change in dietary habits he should no longer require insulin injections. His hand printed records of glucose readings are consistent with recent HbA1C. He is attending regular physician appointments and is compliant with all recommendations.

On May 19, 2010 Dr. M. wrote:

> This physician has no concerns regarding his fitness to drive given current results. I feel that <Applicant> has a very low future risk of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Medical Advisory Committee (M.A.C.) summaries on July 7, 2010:

- From Endocrinology perspective reinstate and waive to Class 'DM'.

- From a Cardio perspective waive to Class 'A' with an assessment from the drivers treating physician or cardiologist and signed waiver certificate as per cyclical requirements. Next renewal must include NYHA Functional Class and LVEF.

- From a Substance Abuse perspective request a report from Dr. M. to confirm the driver has remained abstinent from alcohol post addictions treatment and relapse prevention program. Furthermore to provide the driver's current bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, ALT & AST). A clinical explanation will be required for any level outside normal laboratory values.

On August 3, the Registrar wrote to the Applicant and referred to the correspondence of February 7, 2008, February 23, 2010 and May 19, 2010 and requested a further report from Dr. M.

The report must confirm that the Applicant has remained abstinent from alcohol post addiction treatment and relapse prevention program. The report must provide current bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and ALT) with a clinical explanation for any results that are outside the normal range.

Upon receipt of the assessment, his case would be considered for reinstatement.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he has been driving since age 17. Since then he has accumulated two speeding tickets and one careless driving charge in 2008. He currently has no demerit points.

As a result of a personality clash at his employment in 2005 his blood pressure was elevated and while being assessed in the local hospital he was discovered to have diabetes. He was also advised at that time to reduce his alcohol intake which had increased due to the stress at work. His marriage was under stress due to his drinking in the 1990s. Following his hospitalisation he arranged a referral to the treatment centre. Since then, he has attended AA regularly and he has become reconciled with his wife.

He has followed the advice given by the hospital doctor, the diabetes centre, and his family doctor, and he believes that both he and his family doctor have met all of the requirements by the Ministry for reinstatement. His family doctor has stated in a letter that since she is in a rural practice and is very busy her reports have sometimes fallen behind.

His last drink was in July or August 2010.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Is the Applicant no longer addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.
> (2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,
>
> (a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and
> (b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,
> (i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and
> (ii) any additional medical information.
> (3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.
> (4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
> (b) a driver's licence; …
>
> on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. The Medical Report filed by Dr. M. for renewal of his Class 'A' licence listed a number of medical issues, including alcohol addiction that justified the request for more detailed information by the Registrar on March 16, 2009.

2. A number of requests by the Registrar with reference to the reported alcohol addiction did not provide the information requested, specifically confirmation that the Applicant has remained abstinent from alcohol since completion of the residential treatment program, for a period of one year. Therefore the Registrar issued a suspension of driving privileges under section 47(1) on January 7, 2011.

3. The family physician recommended abstinence on the Alcohol Assessment form in October 2009.

4. Since the most recent report from the Applicant's family physician on May 19, 2010 the Applicant last had a drink in July or August 2010.
5. The Applicant has a history of alcohol abuse since the 1990s and has reacted to stress by resorting to alcohol.

6. The Registrar requires confirmation by the family physician that the Applicant is compliant with the recommendation of abstinence for a period of one year or a recommendation for earlier reinstatement supported by the bio-chemical markers requested, (MCV, GGT, AST, ALT) with an explanation for results that are outside the normal range for the laboratory.

The Applicant relies on the reports already filed with the Registrar by his family physician. He undertakes to request an up-to-date report by the doctor.

The Tribunal finds:

- The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act upon failure by the Applicant to submit confirmation of abstinence for a period of one year since completing the residential treatment program.

- The Applicant's family physician has provided a clinical explanation for elevation of GGT, (liver changes) and is supportive of reinstatement.

- Since the last report submitted to the Registrar by the family physician in May 2010, the Applicant has informed the Tribunal that he last had alcohol in July or August, 2010.

- The Applicant has not abstained from the one year period and the Tribunal concludes that reinstatement would be premature.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated January 7, 2011 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: Patrick Coffey M.D., Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: Sarah O'Connor, Counsel, representing the Applicant

Caroline Mardon, Psychotherapist

Kyle Biel , Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: February 1, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant submitted an additional document, namely a Laboratory Report, dated January 28, 2011. The Registrar's Agent agreed to the admission of this report in evidence, and it was marked Exhibit #4.

FACTS

Registrar's Evidence

Dr. L sent in a Medical Condition Report, dated January 15, 2008 in which he wrote "Alcohol Dependence" as the applicable medical condition of the Applicant.

On July 30, 2009 addiction specialist Dr. S sent a medical report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) concerning the Applicant. In this the doctor wrote that the Applicant stated that in early January 2008 he was drinking about eight standard drinks every other day, which was a pattern since 2001. Prior to this he was a social drinker.

He got into some legal problems with his neighbours because of noise complaints when he was intoxicated, and, because of this, was encouraged by the courts to seek help from an addiction medicine physician. The Applicant has never had a history of withdrawal seizures or delirium tremens.

Following this, the Applicant saw addiction specialist Dr. L on five occasions and then Dr. S on five occasions, (from March 2, 2009 to July 23, 2009)

Dr. S went on to say in his medical report that the Applicant did have a few months of abstinence for a time in 2008 and from December 2008 to April 2009, but then when his brother passed away, he relapsed. A few weeks after that , the Applicant returned to get help. Dr. S sent in a laboratory report accompanying his report which showed the MCV, the GGT and the liver function tests to be normal.

In the MAC Case Summary, dated October 2, 2009 the Instructions were to "Remain Suspended". And the reasons for this were:

> Driver has a history of relapse. Driver relapsed in 2008 after being abstinent for only a few months and again relapsed in February 2009 for two weeks. Require full 12 months period of abstinence before consideration can be given for reinstatement.

In a medical report from Dr. G, the Applicant's family doctor, dated December 15, 2010, the doctor enclosed a laboratory report showing normal GGT, MCV and ALT levels. The only medical condition indicated in a positive manner was "Psychiatric Disorders", and the doctor's explanation for this was:

> Depression. Has taken medication. Stable. Not symptomatic now. Takes Cipralex 10 mg daily.

The MTO Alcohol Assessment Form for the Applicant was completed by Dr. G on December 21, 2010.

Under Personal Health History the only condition noted was "Depression – not symptomatic now." The physical assessment and laboratory evaluation was normal. The AUDIT score was 5. Under legal consequences of driving it was written, "No driving related charges". In conclusion, the doctor recommended, "Follow safe drinking guidelines, max. two drinks a day on six days a week."

Addiction specialist Dr. L wrote a consultation report on January 15, 2008 addressed to Dr. G. In part, he said in the report that the Applicant came into contact with the law on two occasions, the most recent being in November 2007 and was then mandated to remain abstinent and seek therapy for alcohol abuse as part of his bail condition.
The doctor wrote that since 2001 the Applicant was consuming about eight standard drinks every other day. Prior to that he had been binge drinking during social occasions at which time he experienced some shakiness when he abstained. Since November 2007, the Applicant cut back his consumption to two to three standard drinks every nine days or so.

Dr. L wrote that the Applicant had a history of DUI charges and he also said that he understood that Dr. G diagnosed him with bipolar disorder.

The doctor found his physical examination normal and his GGT, MCV, AST, ALT and ALT were normal on January 3, 2008.

Dr. L's impression was that the Applicant was dependent on alcohol since 2001, that he has continued to drink, though less than before and that he did agree to try a 90 day period of abstinence. The doctor felt that the Applicant should not be driving.

In the Certified Driver Record, dated January 5, 2011 there is one conviction for "speeding" and one for "failing to come to a stop at an intersection", but none indicating "driving under influence". The demerit points are 0.

Laboratory Report, dated January 27, 2011, (Exhibit # 4); test results were normal.

A Summons to a Witness before the Licence Appeal Tribunal, dated January 19, 2011, (Exhibit # 5), was sent to Dr. L.

Psychotherapist Ms. M wrote a detailed, lengthy report concerning the Applicant, (January 27, 2011). She explained that he had been her client from 1996 to 1998 and he recently resumed individual psychotherapy sessions with her. She wrote that she did not see any evidence to support "bipolar disorder. She expressed the opinion that the Applicant does not demonstrate the markers of chronic substance abuse, in that he has never failed to fulfill his obligations at work or at home, and "in fact demonstrates highly capable, responsible behavior at his teaching position and property management". She went on to write that there is no record of hazardous behavior such as drinking and driving and she believes he is capable of ceasing his social drinking on request.

In conclusion, Ms. M, in her report, said that the Applicant was applying himself sincerely to the ongoing psychotherapeutic work, and that she felt confident that their sessions were addressing the root causes of the behaviour which led to the legal review.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that he obtained a University B.A. degree and that he is at present a Professor at X College. He was asked how it came to pass that he lost his driving licence. He said that there was an incident at his home in 2007. He was playing music at 11 p.m. which his neighbor complained about and there was a conflict. The Applicant admitted that he was intoxicated at the time. The neighbour called the police. Subsequently, the law expected him to seek counseling, so that was when he saw addiction specialist Dr. L. She was replacing addiction specialist Dr. S, who was on maternity leave at the time. The interview with Dr. L was for only half an hour, and he understood that Dr. L had only recently become a specialist in addiction medicine. The Applicant said that he has not had a real drinking problem since then – in 2007.

The Applicant vigorously denied the statement in Dr. L's report that he had been charged with DUI (driving under the influence) in the past, for he said that he has never been so charged. He also stated that his doctor, Dr. G, has never made a diagnosis of "Bipolar" about him. He said that he has suffered from depression in the past, but not now. He also explained that when the word "hypomanic" was referred to him, that was because he was suffering from a side-effect of the medication "Paxel", and he felt better as soon as he stopped this medication.

Psychotherapist's Evidence.

Ms. M went briefly through her curriculum vitae. She stated that she has in the past treated clients with substance abuse problems. She has four important "Markers" to give a diagnosis of substance abuse and considers that the Applicant does not fit into any of them. In answer to questions from Counsel , the Psychotherapist stated that the Applicant does not suffer from a condition likely to interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely. In fact, she said that quite likely a small or moderate amount of alcohol could help his overall mental state.
The Psychotherapist was asked by the Respondent if she disagreed with the opinion of Dr. L regarding his diagnosis of alcohol dependency. She replied that she did disagree with it. She stated the Applicant is not an alcoholic.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence;

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal notes that the Applicant consumed more alcohol in the past than at present. A marked improvement is seen. Dr. L reported, (January 15, 2008), that before the time the Applicant was reported to the Police by his neighbour (2007), he was consuming eight standard drinks every other day. And prior to that he sometimes went on binges when socializing, to the extent that he occasionally suffered from shakiness after withdrawal. The Applicant admitted that he has not had a real drinking problem since that time in 2007 when his neighbor complained. Then, in 2008 and 2009 he drank less. According to Dr. L's report he consumed two to three standard drinks every nine days. In 2008 he agreed to a ninety day period of abstinence. There was a relapse when he heard of the sudden death of his brother, (Dr. S's report of July 30, 2009). The Applicant asserted at the hearing that this relapse only lasted for about a day. There is some doubt about the last time he consumed alcohol, whether it was September or November 2010. According to the words of the Applicant there was the occasional, small departure from perfection in terms of alcohol consumption since that date.

The Tribunal notes that Dr. L diagnosed the Applicant as being "Alcohol Dependent"; this was in January 2008. More recently, in Dr. S's report of July 30, 2009, there was no mention of this term. And, in Ms. M's report, (January 27, 2011) and at the hearing, she asserted that she did not believe that the Applicant was alcohol dependent.

On the matter of alcohol dependency, the Tribunal notes that in the Ministry of Transportation Alcohol Form, under Diagnosis, it is written that one of the criteria for being alcohol dependent is "50 or more standard drinks per week". The Applicant falls far short of this and probably did so in the past.

The Tribunal ponders the terms used to describe a person's consumption of alcohol – "alcohol dependent", "alcohol abuse" etc. No term can define exactly the ability or the lack of ability of an individual to be able to drive a vehicle safely. The Tribunal is aware that, as well as the quantity of alcohol consumed, other factors come into play, such as the tolerance to alcohol which some individuals build up, and the variation amongst individuals regarding how consistently the dictum of "no drinking and driving" is kept.

The Tribunal is impressed with the following facts which are in favour of the reinstatement of the Applicant's driving privilege:

1. Good driving record.

2. All the Laboratory blood indices for alcohol (four reports from January 3, 2008 to January 27, 2011) have been normal.

3. The Applicant is now consuming much less alcohol than he did in the past.

4. He is capable of holding responsible work positions. There is no history of an unreasonable number of sick days taken, (a sign of serious alcohol abuse). In fact, the evidence leads one to the opposite conclusion, that there have been very few sick days.

5. The Applicant is still seeing and receiving treatment from his Psychotherapist.

DECISION

After consideration of all the evidence the Tribunal does not find sufficient evidence to warrant the continued suspension of the Applicant's driving licence under section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, in that the Applicant does not suffer from a medical disability likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL, pursuant to pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles
SERHIY SENATORON, Counsel, representing the Applicant

DATE OF HEARING: February 14, 2011 Barrie

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

On a motion by the Registrar’s representative to exclude witnesses called by counsel for the Applicant, the Tribunal ruled that they be excluded from the hearing with consent of the Parties until called to give evidence.

FACTS

The Respondent's Case:

On March 3, 2010 a family physician, Dr. N. completed a Medical Condition Report pursuant to section 203 of the Act, that stated the condition was:

> Alcohol Dependence
> The patient is aware of this report.

On March 8, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that after considering all the relevant facts available it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date report from his physician. The report must include:

- The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.
- Completion of a Substance Abuse Assessment form by his physician or a physician specializing in addiction medicine.
- If, as a result of the assessment, his physician confirms a diagnosis of alcohol dependence, the ministry will require confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year. This period may be reduced if his physician confirms that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and is supportive of the reinstatement of his driving privilege.
- A clinical explanation must be provided for the results of any bio-chemical markers (MCV, GGT, AST and Alt) that are outside the normal laboratory range.

He was advised that he may request an Administrative Review and of his right of appeal. A Hearing date was set for April 27, 2010. The Applicant withdrew his appeal on April 21, 2010.

A new Notice of Appeal was forwarded to the Registrar on January 12, 2011.

A letter written by Dr. N. dated October 22, 2010 was received by the Registrar on November 2, 2010.

Dr. N. wrote:

> I have completed the Substance Form. I enclose copies of reports I have received from<Applicant's> addiction specialist. Despite his low score on the AUDIT questionnaire, I continue to have concerns about <Applicant's> behaviour surrounding his dependence.
> This is my second contact with <Applicant> regarding his alcohol use. In March 2008, he presented with what appeared to be withdrawal symptoms from alcohol use. He was using a substantial amount of alcohol. I advised him at that time that he should abstain from drinking. I believe at that time he did reduce his alcohol consumption.

He presented in February 2010 with evidence of alcoholic hepatitis. He was again drinking large quantities of alcohol. His CAGE screen was positive on three questions. <Applicant> had a professional licence at that time and this is what prompted me to suspend his licence.

Since that time <Applicant> has been trying to obtain his licence back from suspension. He has actually referred himself to an addiction specialist, Dr. B. It would appear that <Applicant> withheld information from Dr. B. regarding his alcohol condition. It was only after a conversation that I had with Dr. B. over the phone, that he became aware of the medical complications <Applicant> was experiencing from his alcohol use.

In September 2010 I received a request for a transfer of medical records to Dr. K. Out of courtesy I contacted Dr. K. regarding <Applicant's> history. It would appear that <Applicant> again withheld information regarding his condition as Dr. K. was unaware of the full story.

Dr. B. has referred <Applicant> to a treatment program. Unfortunately <Applicant> did not feel he had a problem and discharged himself from the program. I believe it was a rehab centre in a <Northern Ontario town>. I received a telephone call from Dr. B. indicating that he would not allow <Applicant> to return to driving because of his behaviour.

I would suggest that <Applicant> have the full one year suspension of his licence. I would strongly recommend that the Ministry of Transportation require <Applicant> to go through a substance abuse rehabilitation program before returning his licence. I have informed <Applicant that I would be filing this report and details of this report.

Also forwarded was a completed Substance Abuse Assessment signed by the Applicant on October 15, 2010, unsigned by the doctor and received at the Ministry on November 3, 2010.

On November 15, 2010 the Registrar informed the Applicant that following review of the reports filed, it had been decided that his driving privilege should remain under suspension.

The medical evidence filed does not support the reinstatement of your driving privilege.

> We will be pleased to reconsider your case upon receipt of satisfactory medical information. Please arrange to have this office receive a detailed report from a physician specializing in addictions medicine or your treating physician.
> The report must confirm that you have remained abstinent from alcohol for one year. This period may be reduced if you provide confirmation that you have successfully completed an alcohol treatment program and upon favourable recommendation from your physician. It must also include the results of bio-chemical (MCV, GGT, AST, ALT) with a clinical explanation if any results are outside normal laboratory range.

The Driver Record shows no convictions.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he went to his family physician Dr. N. who has known him for eight or nine years, in February 2010 with complaints of swelling and weakness in his left arm and leg, concerned about a possible stroke. Dr. N. informed him that he would have to suspend his licence to drive for stroke. He ordered some tests. A CT scan was normal and he told the Applicant that there was no stroke but he believed that he had an alcohol problem. The Applicant told the doctor that he did not have an alcohol problem; he drank on special occasions and has a glass of red wine with dinner. The doctor told him he was allowed to suspend his licence and he recommended that he enter a program for alcohol abuse. He asked Dr. N. if he would reinstate him if he gave up his AZ licence. He stopped drinking. He asked if it would be enough if he took the "Program". The doctor approved of the Program.

Upon receiving the letter of suspension from the Ministry he contacted a lawyer who referred him to an addictionist, Dr. B. He had also sought an opinion from a walk-in doctor who refused to be involved.

Dr. B. obtained his blood test results and told him that he did not understand the reasons for suspension. He gave Dr. B. permission to speak to Dr. N. in his presence and after Dr. B. spoke with Dr. N. he told the Applicant that he agreed that he was an alcoholic. Dr. B. advised him not to appeal the suspension because he, Dr. B. was known at the Ministry and that he would have the suspension removed in three months. Dr. B. referred him to the rehabilitation centre and he agreed in order to satisfy the Ministry. He entered the rehabilitation centre in northern Ontario on July 26, 2010. He informed the intake worker there that he did not have an alcohol addiction but that he was there in order to get his licence back. He stated that the worker seemed to agree and advised him that he should ask his family doctor to seek a second opinion. He was discharged on August 9, 2010.

The discharge summary from the rehab centre states:

> <Applicant> openly addressed his being mandated to treatment issue in regards to his licence being suspended by family doctor. Client indicates he does not have a problem with alcohol/chemical dependency at this time. Client discharged as mutual decision and encouraged to follow his aftercare as outlined below.
> NEGOTIATED AFTERCARE PLAN AND PROGNOSIS: GUARDED

- Meet with family doctor to address conflict of opinions
- Address legal issues ASAP
- Physical and Psychological reassessment after 3-6 months clean and sober

ADDITIONAL NOTES AND COMMENTS: Client was discharged without medication

DISCHARGE STATUS: With staff approval home

On returning home he saw Dr. N. who was not satisfied with the report from the rehabilitation centre.

He arranged to see a new family physician, Dr. K. He did not tell Dr. K. about his licence problem. Dr. K. arranged some blood tests. A thyroid test suggested an underactive thyroid. He was concerned that Dr. N. did not inform him that this could explain some of his symptoms.

On his next visit with Dr. K. he asked her to complete the Substance Abuse Assessment form. He explained to her what had transpired with Dr. N. and she informed him that she would have to make a decision. A few days later he received a letter from her informing him that she would not provide medical care for him.

In mid September Dr. B.'s office informed him that the doctor was not seeing patients for a while due to his personal health.

He met with Dr. N in order to have the Assessment form completed. The doctor informed him that he was not happy with anything he (Applicant) had done. He asked the doctor what would satisfy him and he told him that he had to complete the program. He then completed the Assessment form.

Under cross examination the Applicant stated that Dr. N. did not tell him that he had alcoholic hepatitis.

The Applicant introduced a number of documents from his medical files.

A letter from Dr. K. to the Applicant dated September 20, 2010 stated:

> I regret to inform you that I can no longer provide ongoing medical care to you.
> I am informing you that I will not be in a position to provide you with further medical services. I will be available to render emergency services for you for 30 days until October 19, 2010 but I will not be able to provide non-emergency care.

The Applicant presented two character witnesses

Witness #1. C.P. his sister stated that she sees the Applicant at least weekly and at family gatherings. She stated that she has never seen him intoxicated nor did she ever have a concern about his use of alcohol. She stated that to her knowledge he does not drink every day. After family gatherings his wife would usually drive.

Witness #2 M.D. is a lessor of heavy equipment to the Applicant. He has observed him at a job site on three or four occasions and has never had a concern about his use of alcohol. Furthermore, he would not lease equipment to him if he had any concerns in this regard.

ISSUE

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> …on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Registrar was obliged to issue a suspension of driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report completed on March 32, 2010 by the family physician, Dr. N. pursuant to section 203 of the Act that stated Alcohol dependent.

2. An Alcohol Assessment form completed by Dr. N. on October 15, 2010 reported a diagnosis of Alcoholic hepatitis.

3. A laboratory report from Dr. N. dated March 16, 2010 showed a GGT level of 35 (normal <60) and MCV level of 99 (normal 80-97).

4. The family physician for 8 or 9 years believed that the Applicant had an alcohol problem.
   Regulation 340/94 (14)(b) states An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

5. CCMTA section 13 states that:

   a driver with a diagnosis of alcohol dependence may not drive any motor vehicle for 12 months during which time the individual must remain alcohol-free.

6. An addictionist, Dr. B. referred to the Applicant as being an alcoholic following a conversation with the family doctor, Dr. N.

7. A new family physician, Dr. K. refused to continue seeing the Applicant because he withheld information concerning the diagnosis by Dr. N.

8. The rehabilitation centre described the Applicant's prognosis as Guarded.

The Applicant relies on:

1. The visit to Dr. N. in February 2010 was to seek a reason for swelling of his arm and leg. The doctor ordered some tests and one test showed a borderline elevation of the MCV at 99 with a normal range of 80-97. The GGT was normal at 35 (normal <60).

2. The family doctor made a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and did not describe clinical findings that support his diagnosis. Also he did not report laboratory confirmation of hepatitis

3. The family doctor communicated his diagnosis to two other physicians, one an addictionist who accepted his opinion resulting in referral to a rehabilitation centre and also to being discharged by a new family doctor.

4. Repeated laboratory tests in August and September 2010 showed normal bio-chemical markers.

5. The Applicant has been abstinent from alcohol use since February 2010.

6. Regulation 340/94 stipulates that

   An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

   There is no medical evidence of addiction other than the opinion of the family doctor and his use of alcohol in the past has not significantly interfered with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

7. The Applicant has a clean driver record, has a good family background and is well regarded in his work as a heavy equipment operator.

The Tribunal finds

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report from a physician pursuant to Section 203 of the Act, that reported a diagnosis of Alcohol Dependence.

2. The family physician at time of reporting did not have laboratory bio-chemical markers that supported the diagnosis of alcohol dependence and did not provide clinical evidence that supported his diagnosis of alcoholic hepatitis on the Alcohol Assessment form completed on October 15, 2010.

3. The Alcohol Assessment form fails to support a diagnosis of alcohol dependence and the Tribunal notes that under the Diagnosis section the word Abuse was checked and then cancelled and Dependence was checked.

4. The Applicant attempted to meet the requirements for reinstatement by seeking the help of an addictionist, Dr. B. This doctor ordered laboratory tests that showed normal bio-chemical markers on August 13, 2010 and appears to base his finding of alcoholism on a telephone conversation with Dr. N.

5. The Applicant entered a rehabilitation centre on the advice of Dr. B. in order to support his case for reinstatement. The centre agreed that he would not benefit from remaining at the centre and he was discharged by mutual agreement.

6. The prognosis of Guarded is unqualified and may have been used to absolve the centre from responsibility.

7. The Applicant attempted to find a new physician who would reassess his situation and at first he did not disclose his licence difficulties. When this physician, Dr. K. contacted Dr N.'s office for the patient's file she received a telephone call from Dr. N. informing her of his opinion. She also reviewed laboratory tests ordered by her. These showed normal bio-chemical markers for alcoholism but also showed a previously undiagnosed under-active thyroid function test. Upon repeating this test one month later the result was normal. She then dismissed the Applicant from her practice because of his withholding the Dr. N.'s diagnosis of alcohol dependence.

8. The Applicant has been abstinent since February 2010, has been forthright with the Tribunal, and the diagnoses of alcohol dependence and alcoholic hepatitis have not been supported either by clinical findings or bio-chemical markers.

9. The Applicant is not addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

10. The Applicant has now been abstinent for a period of approximately twelve months.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's decision, effective February 5, 2009, to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar;
IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: D. GREGORY FLUDE, VICE-CHAIR, Presiding Member
DR. F. WAYNE FURLONG, Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: February 16, 2011 Teleconference

MOTION

This is a motion brought by the Minister of Transportation (the "Minister") to determine the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to hear an appeal from a decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence pursuant to section 32(5)(b)(ii) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

On or about January 6, 2011 the Minister sent notice to the Applicant that his licence to drive a motor vehicle was suspended effective January 15, 2011. The sole grounds set out in the notice were that the Applicant did not meet the prescribed visual standards to hold a driver's licence. The notice was computer generated and cited s. 32(12)(b)(ii) of the Act as the statutory authority for the Minister's actions. In fact, s. 32(12)(b)(ii) has been repealed and replaced by s. 32(5)(b)(ii) of the Act. The Applicant appeals that decision to this Tribunal. It is the position of the Registrar that this tribunal does not have jurisdiction to hear an appeal from a licence suspension under s. 32(5)(b)(ii) of the Act. The Applicant took no position with respect to the Registrar's motion.

ISSUES

Does the Tribunal have jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a licence suspension under s. 32(5)(b)(ii)?

DISCUSSION

The jurisdiction of the Tribunal to hear appeals is set out in section 50 of the Act, which states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

It is clear from a reading of s. 50 that the Tribunal may entertain appeals from decisions under s. 32(5) only where a right of appeal is set out in regulations made pursuant to s. 32(14)(n). The applicable regulation is s. 25.1 of O. Reg 340/94 which states:

> 25.1 A decision made by the Minister under subclause 32 (5) (b) (i) of the Act is prescribed as a kind of decision a person may appeal under section 50 of the Act. O. Reg. 205/10, s. 9.

In the absence of express regulatory authority permitting appeals under s. 32(5)(b)(ii), the legislation makes it clear that the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to hear this appeal.

DECISION

Upon motion by the Minister, the Tribunal finds it has no jurisdiction to hear the Applicant's appeal. The appeal is, therefore, a nullity and the Tribunal shall close its file.

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. KEVIN FLYNN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: February 16, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

The Registrar received a medical condition report on December 6, 2005 from a neurologist, Dr. S. pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

> I saw <Applicant> in the hospital after he developed an episode of visual difficulty.
> On examination, I queried a subtle, right upper quadrantic defect. I am not positive this is a bona fide finding but I am investigating him with an MRI scan. Until his investigations are complete, I have asked him not to drive.

> If his investigations are negative for stroke, I expect he will return to driving

The Registrar informed the Applicant that he must submit further medical information.

On January 19, 2006, Dr. A., the Applicant's family physician wrote:

> I am <Applicant's> Family Doctor and I am well acquainted with his health.
> In my opinion he has no medical conditions for which his driver's licence should be revoked.

Dr. A. sent a copy of the MRI scan dated November 28, 2005 that was compared with an MRI on November 8, 2005. The report showed no abnormality.

A Holter report dated November 12, 2005 was normal.

A visual field dated January 21, 2006 was submitted.

On April 26, 2006 the Registrar requested a report from an eye specialist. This was approved by the Registrar.

On February 18, 2010 a Medical Condition Report was completed by Dr. B., a physician at a seniors' health centre. <Applicant> has been his patient for two months.

> Dementia or Alzheimer's.
> Has been assessed by DriveABLE on March 8, 2010.
> Patient is aware of this report.

Dr. A. also sent a Medical Condition Report dated March 11, 2010.

> Dementia or Alzheimer's

Attached was a copy of a Driver Assessment. Referral was by Dr. B. to determine fitness to drive.

> Summary:
> - Physical assessment findings indicate reasonable strength, range of motion and coordination sufficient for driving.
> - Performance on the Cognitive Assessment indicates that cognitive function has declined to a level that will likely impact driving.
> - Driving performance was observed to be outside the range of healthy drivers and driving cessation is recommended. The on-road test was aborted as it was considered too dangerous to proceed.
> Recommendations

- Driving cessation is recommended as driving performance was observed to be outside the range of healthy, normal drivers.

- The client and his wife were advised of the results. The client and his wife were advised that he must stop driving immediately.

Medical Concerns: Mild cognitive impairment.

Onset: Unknown

Medications: sotalol, ramipril, norvasc, caltrate, Lipitor, aspirin, rhinocort, Tylenol

Side Effects: None reported

Past Medical History

- Quadruple bypass 1994; TIA summer 2005; shoulder pain related to 2 falls in 2009.

Documents Reviewed

- Medical Update Form, completed by Dr. C. March 2, 2010

- Vision Note including field testing, completed by Dr. B. March 4, 2010

Vision

Visual History: Good eye health reported.

Corrective Lenses: Condition of his licence.

Ophthalmologist report received

Meets Ministry of Transportation requirements: Yes.

Driving history

Driving Behaviours Almost daily

Absence from driving None

Driving limitations None

History of Disorientation or "Getting Lost" No

Current vehicle: Toyota Highlander

History of Collisions, Suspensions or Moving Violations (past 5 years)

- Client reports no moving violations or suspensions

- Client reported being struck from the side by an out of control vehicle on the 404 within last couple of years. He stated that he was not injured and his vehicle was repaired.

Perceptual/Cognitive/Behavioural Assessment Results:

- Cognitive/Perceptual functions for driving is measured using the DriveABLE Competence Screen.

Physical Assessment Results

Neck range, Trunk control, Upper extremity, Lower extremity: within Functional Limits for driving.

Mobility

Normal

On-Road Assessment

- The On-Road Evaluation is conducted by a Certified Driving Instructor and Occupational Therapist using the standardized DriveABLE Road Test.

- This test was stopped after <Applicant> turned into oncoming traffic by turning left to the wrong side of a median

Cognitive Assessment:

- Motor Speed/Control: Average
- Span of Attentional Field: Below average
- Spatial Judgement and Decision Making: Average
- Speed of Attention Shifting: Below average
- Executive Function: Well below average
- Identification of Driving Situations: Well below average

Summary: 95% predicted probability of road failure.

<Applicant's> overall performance outcome was outside the range of normal healthy drivers as defined through the research and commensurate with driving ability having declined to an unsafe level. Continued driving can place <Applicant's> safety and the safety of others at risk.

Driving cessation is strongly recommended.

On-Road Evaluation:

<Applicant> was not given an on-road evaluation. The research showed that 9/10 individuals performing in this range on the Cognitive Assessment made significant and often dangerous driving errors. A test > on public roadways may present unnecessary risk to the driver and other road users.

> Significant driving errors
> 1. Committed to a left turn with pedestrians occupying intended path.
> 2. Dangerously entered and drove in oncoming traffic lane before or after turn.
> The road evaluation was discontinued as it was unsafe to continue.

The Registrar wrote to the Applicant on March 18, 2010 informing him that it had been decided to suspend his driving privilege under section 47(1) of the Act.

In order to be considered for re-instatement he must arrange for a detailed up-to-date report from his doctor. The report must contain:

- The results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

- A clinical evaluation of his cognitive functions. Once this report has been reviewed and approved he may be required to undergo a driving evaluation at a rehabilitation centre.

The Driver Record shows no convictions and no demerit points.

The Applicant's Case

The Applicant in Reasons for Appeal stated that he has been driving since 1951 and has never been involved in an at-fault accident. He drove a rental car with his wife in Europe without any problems.

He could not remember who referred him to the seniors' health centre. He started there in January 2010 and was there until March. He does not remember seeing Dr. B. who referred him for Driving Assessment. He remembers doing a memory test at the centre and made a mistake at the first attempt of the clock test but completed the test successfully.

His sister died of Alzheimer's Disease.

After the report was sent to the Registrar and after receiving the Notice of Suspension he changed doctors and attended Dr. L. At her clinic he received a number of comprehensive assessments which do not appear to include a memory test. His list of medications include Aricept 5 mg. He stated that this was prescribed by his previous family doctor, Dr. A. in late 2009 to improve his memory. He did not show the March 18, 2010 letter from the Registrar to Dr. L.

He stated that he was not advised to restrict his driving by either his doctor or his family, prior to the suspension.

Regarding the DriveABLE test he stated that he was not familiar with the make of car used. He has no recollection of placing a pedestrian in danger and when doing a left turn at an intersection he realized that traffic was coming against him and the driving instructor intervened.

He does not recall any cognitive tests or questions at the testing centre.

He is receptive to suggestions by the Registrar's representative:

a. He should show the Registrar's letter of March 18, 2010 to his current family physician in order to obtain the up-to-date detailed report requested.

b. He should undergo a standard recognised cognitive test.

c. He should request a driving evaluation at a different centre with a temporary driving permit.

d. He should take driving lessons from a certified driving instructor prior to taking the road test evaluation with a temporary driving permit.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32

(14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Respondent relies on:

1. Section 47(1)(g) authorized the Registrar to suspend driving privileges upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report stating that the Applicant suffered from dementia.

2. The DriveABLE assessment conducted in March 2010 recommended cessation of driving.

3. The Registrar requested a detailed medical report on March 18, 2010 to include results of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status, confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle.

4. The Registrar requested a clinical evaluation of his cognitive functions.

The Applicant made no submission.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension under section 47(1)(g) of the Act of the driving privilege upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report completed by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act, stating that the Applicant suffered from Dementia.

2. The results of a Driving Assessment found that the Applicant's driving errors were outside the range of normal healthy drivers and beyond reasonable road safety.

3. Regulation 340/90 (14)(b) states a driver:

   must not suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely.

4. CCMTA section 6.8 states > that the driver with evidence of memory impairment (dementia may not yet been definitely diagnosed) or with mild dementia (defined as having difficulty with complex tasks such as managing finances, shopping, taking medications, cooking) may be able to drive a private vehicle. This is best determined by performing a professional assessment of driving ability. Such drivers should be reassessed annually because of the progressive nature of most dementing illnesses.

5. While the reported condition is dementia, medical information available to the Registrar does not include a cognitive assessment according to accepted cognitive standards. The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar's request for the detailed up-to-date report requested on March 18, 2010 plus a clinical evaluation of cognitive functions.

6. The Tribunal recommends that once the requested information has been received and evaluated, if the decision of the Registrar is to request a driving assessment, the Applicant be allowed to take driving lessons prior to the driving assessment

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated March 28, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A SUSPENDED LICENCE

TRIBUNAL: DR. D. IAN TURNBULL, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Unrepresented

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: February 15, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

INTRODUCTION

The Applicant is a 42-year-old executive. In a February 17, 2010 decision (Exhibit 3, Tab 6d), the Tribunal confirmed the decision of the Registrar to suspend the driving privileges of the Applicant because of a lack of medical/psychiatric reports.

EXHIBITS

1. December 6, 2010: Registrar (Exhibit 3, Tab 12a) – driving privileges remain under suspension
2. January 13, 2011: Applicant – Notice of Appeal
3. January 28, 2011: Tabbed submission – Registrar
4. February 11, 2011: PP1-11 – Applicant

5. November 16, 2009: Page 2 of Exhibit 3 (5c) – Applicant

FACTS

1. July 23, 2009, an Emergency Room physician examined the Applicant, and faxed an unsolicited report to the Registrar – July 27, 2009, pursuant to Section 203 of the Act, regarding psychosis, not otherwise specified (NOS).

2. On July 23, 2009, the Applicant was a passenger in a car driven by a "friend". The Applicant became suspicious his "friend" was a Central Intelligence Agency ("CIA") agent who intended to kidnap him and take him to the United States. The Applicant spotted a police cruiser on the other side of the road and asked his "friend" to pull over. The Applicant went to the police cruiser and relayed his concerns. The officers brought him to a hospital Emergency Room ("ER") for an assessment.

   Today, the Applicant believes he was mistaken his "friend" was a CIA agent and believes he is more likely associated with Mossad.

3. The Applicant appealed the Registrar's decision January 13, 2010. A Tribunal hearing was held February 10, 2010. The Tribunal confirmed the Registrar's decision (Exhibit 3, Tab 6d).

4. At the same time the Applicant lodged a complaint to the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario ("CPSO") regarding the ER physician who reported him to the Registrar.

   The CPSO report (Exhibit 3, Tab 13b) states the ER physician did examine the Applicant on July 23, 2009, and did fax his report to the Registrar on July 27, 2009, pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act (HTA). Furthermore:

   > The Committee must emphasize that had he not filed a report, he would not have been fulfilling his professional and legal obligations and could have been subject to sanctions.

5. The December 3, 2010 report of the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) of the MTO (Exhibit 3, Tab 12) is central to possible consideration of the Applicant's driving privileges. It states:

   > File cannot be reviewed properly due to minimal and missing data, e.g. no details of circumstances/ reason for admission to CAMH (NOV/09 to JAN/10). Seemingly, driver suffers from delusional disorder and the psychiatrist assumes impression that driver is able to drive sufficiently safely despite the influence of delusions; in some cases individuals with fixed delusions can drive as they tend to be more functional than those with schizophrenia who also have cognitive > symptoms and distracting hallucinations. Nonetheless, particularly in light of driver's somewhat disorganized and paranoid-tinged letters to MTO, it is especially prudent and proper to ask the physician to provide all the additional information noted above. His statement that the driver does not have a condition which impairs driving is insufficient to objectively determine what road risk may be.

6. Driving Record (Exhibit 3, Tab 15) – no demerit points.

7. The Applicant's current appeal (Exhibit 2) is essentially appealing both the initial suspension of August 24, 2009 (Exhibit 3, Tab 6d) and the LAT hearing decision of February 10, 2010.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (b) a driver's licence; …
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar has made the case that the Applicant's driving privileges should remain suspended.

The Registrar acted correctly when it suspended his driving privileges, effective August 30, 2009 (Exhibit 3, Tab 6d) upon receiving a letter from an Emergency Room physician (faxed July 27, 2009), concerning psychosis NOS (not otherwise specified).

An appeal to the License Appeal Tribunal February 10, 2010, confirmed the Registrar's decision to continue the license suspension pending receipt of suitable medical and psychiatric reports (Exhibit 3, Item 6D).

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The request for both medical and psychiatric reports has been made repeatedly, most recently and succinctly in Exhibit 3, Tab 12.

The Applicant's Centre for Addiction and Mental Health ("CAMH") psychiatrist states October 7, 2010 (Exhibit 3, Tab 11a) "based on my report of January 2010 and April 28, 2010, and today, I do not believe that he has a medical condition that makes him unsafe to drive a motor vehicle." His letter does not address the questions raised by the Registrar (Exhibit 3, Tab 10, dated May 31, 2010) regarding ongoing mental and emotional stability and evidence concerning psychiatric symptoms for at least six months.

Furthermore, under Section 47(1), the law states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel (driving privileges) for any other sufficient reason, not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

This section overrides the psychiatrist's support of reinstatement of an Applicant's driving privileges if the Registrar has any concern about the ability of a person to drive a motor vehicle safely.

The Applicant has at least two additional concerns:

Firstly, regarding the ER doctor's actions July 23, 2009 – the Applicant's complaint to the CPSO (Section 3, Tab 3) supports the ER doctor, but the Applicant remains convinced this is not the case; forgery is involved … "clearly lied".

Secondly, he claims he was never served a Form 1 since he was only in the hospital overnight, and that Form 1 is for a 72-hour involuntary assessment. To prove his point, he says the Form 1 had to be handed to him, and it was not. In fact, Form 1 is for a maximum 72-hour assessment, and may be cancelled at any time.

Form 1 is referred to in the Applicant's file by two independent medical doctors:

- Exhibit 3, Tab 5a – ER note, January 14, 2010
- Exhibit 3, Tab 13c

For these reasons, which the Applicant discredits, the Applicant does not provide the requested medical/psychiatric information to the Registrar to assess his paranoid/delusional state. This is particularly important since the Applicant's initial reported psychiatric episode occurred while he was in an automobile.

The Tribunal needs a medical/psychiatric assessment of the risk that the Applicant's paranoid/delusional state may affect his ability to drive a motor vehicle safely. Further the specific requests of the Registrar for information must be answered.

The Tribunal findings are virtually identical to the February 10, 2010 decision by the Presiding Member at the Tribunal hearing.

1. The Registrar was correct in suspending the Applicant's driving privileges in August 2009, following a physician report (Section 203 of the Act) indicating a psychotic state.

2. In the absence of substantive medical and psychiatric reports, as requested by the MAC of the Registrar (December 3, 2010), the Tribunal cannot grant an appeal.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated August 30, 2009 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's Case

The Registrar received a Medical Condition Report that was completed by an Emergency Room physician on April 9, 2009 pursuant to section 203 of the Act, based on an examination on April 7, 2009.

> Alcohol Dependence
> Fall with head injury

On May 30, 2009 the Registrar informed the Applicant that his driving privileges had been suspended under section 47(1) of the Act. In order to be considered for reinstatement he must arrange for the completion of a Substance Abuse Assessment form. If a diagnosis of alcohol dependence is made he must be abstinent from alcohol for one year. This period may be reduced upon a favourable recommendation by his physician who must confirm that he has successfully completed an alcohol treatment program. Also results of MCV and GGT must be included with a clinical explanation if any results are outside the normal laboratory range and reference must be made regarding the reported head injury.

He was advised of his right to appeal.

On January 20, 2011 the Applicant forwarded a copy of a letter from a neurologist, Dr. M. to a family physician, Dr. H. dated October 21, 2009. The Applicant had been referred regarding two seizures. The first incident had occurred when he developed dizziness while painting a ceiling. He fell backwards bumping his head, witnessed by a friend. He was taken to the E.R. by ambulance. A CT scan was normal and he was diagnosed as a "faint" and discharged.

Within two hours of returning home he had an episode of unconsciousness that was associated with stiffness witnessed by his mother. He was taken again to the E.R. His mother told the ambulance attendants that he had a seizure. He informed the neurologist that he was a "self-labelled alcoholic". His opinion was that the Applicant had a vasovagal episode, followed by a possible post-head-injury seizure. An EEG was normal. He did not believe that the incidents were due to alcohol withdrawal seizures. Dr. M. stated:

> No further investigations are necessary and you could write to the Ministry of Transportation recommending reinstatement of his driver's licence.

The Applicant also submitted laboratory results dated September 3, 2009.

> MCV=92.9 (normal 80-94)
> GGT = 26 (normal 0-50)
> Abdominal ultrasound dated August 19, 2010 was normal.

On February 7, 2011 the Registrar informed the Applicant that the reports submitted were outdated and were unacceptable for review. He was informed that he must arrange to submit the information requested on May 30, 2009. An up-to-date Substance Abuse Assessment was required with laboratory bio-chemical markers and a clinical explanation for results that are outside the normal range and confirmation that he has remained alcohol free and seizure free for a period of one year. Also he was required to show confirmation of successful completion of an alcohol treatment program.

The Driver Record shows conviction for impaired driving on October 11, 1985.

The Applicant's Case

While painting a low ceiling in the basement of his parent's house in April 2009 he had his head extended and when he finished he felt faint and collapsed backwards striking the back of his head on the floor. He was taken by ambulance to the E.R. where a CT scan was found to be normal and he was allowed home. Shortly after arriving home he had a headache and fainted again. His mother observed him stiffening and she informed the ambulance personnel that he had a seizure. He was again taken to the E.R. and allowed to go home after he was assessed.

He stated that he had been convicted of impaired driving twenty six years ago. He had been abstinent for two and a half years but had been drinking heavily for two weeks prior to the April 2009 episode but had stopped three days before. His usual consumption was three or four glasses of wine in the evening.

He had stopped attending Alcoholics Anonymous ("AA") about six months prior to the April 2009 incidents, due to family issues. He is now attending AA meetings again. His last drink was in June 2009.

The Applicant stated that he believed that Dr. H. had completed the Substance Abuse Assessment form in 2009. He had obtained all of his medical records from Dr. H. in January 2011 but they did not include this form. He was not aware until January 2011 that the neurologist had recommended reinstatement in October 2009.

The Applicant submitted a letter from a treatment centre dated April 30, 2010.

> <Applicant> entered the rehabilitation program for the treatment of Substance Dependence at the <centre> on April 12, 2010. He completed the residential portion of this two-party treatment program on April 30, 2010.
> In order to fully complete his treatment at the <centre>, he will need to attend our Aftercare Program for a period of six months.
> Confirmation that treatment is complete will be provided after this six-month period through a completion letter.
> In our opinion <Applicant> will continue to remain abstinent as long as he applies himself to the community-based self-help program which was introduced to him during his stay at the <centre> and regularly attends the Aftercare program available to him.

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he attended the Aftercare Program four times.

He did not submit to the Tribunal the letter of referral from Dr. H. to the <centre>.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Is the Applicant no longer addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar relies on:

1. The Medical Condition report of alcohol dependence and head injury was filed by a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act in April 2009.

2. The Applicant has failed to provide medical evidence that would support reinstatement.

3. A completed Substance Abuse Assessment form has not been submitted.

4. The medical information submitted by the Applicant in January 2011 is outdated.

5. The Applicant has acknowledged that he is an alcoholic and he attends AA meetings.

6. The Applicant was convicted of impaired driving in 1985.

7. The Applicant attended a relapse prevention centre in 2010 but did not complete the Aftercare program.

8. A copy of the referral letter from his physician to the treatment centre has not been provided.

9. CCMTA section 13.2 states:

> Patients habitually dependent on alcohol should not drive until evidence of alcoholism is no longer a problem. These patients must complete a recognised > rehabilitation program for substance dependence and remain alcohol-free for a period of one year before recommencing driving.

The Applicant relies on:

1. He has been abstinent since June 2009.

2. He has not had an incident since April 2009.

3. His neurologist stated in his letter to his family physician in October 2009 that he did not require further investigation and that he was fit to have his licence reinstated.

4. As far as he knew the Substance Abuse Assessment form was completed by his family physician in 2009.

5. He attended the <treatment centre> in 2010 although he did not fully complete the Aftercare Program.

6. The loss of his licence has placed heavy stress on his wife.

The Tribunal finds:

1. The Registrar was justified in issuing a suspension of the Applicant's driving privilege under section 47(1)(b)(g) of the Act upon receipt of a Medical Condition Report of alcohol dependence from a physician pursuant to section 203 of the Act.

2. The Applicant's self-admission of chronic alcoholism requires him to arrange for the Registrar to receive an up-to-date completed Substance Abuse Assessment form that includes bio-chemical markers with a clinical explanation for results that are outside the normal laboratory range.

3. The Registrar was justified in continuing the suspension under Regulation 340/94 (1)(b) in the absence of up-to-date medical information that supports reinstatement and confirmation that he has remained abstinent from alcohol for one year.

4. The Registrar is justified in requesting confirmation that the Applicant has successfully completed a relapse prevention program and has been abstinent from alcohol for a period of one year.

5. The Registrar may consider earlier reinstatement upon favourable recommendation by the Applicant's physician following receipt of up-to-date information requested on February 7, 2011 as recommended by CCMTA section 13.2.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated June 9, 2009 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

INTRODUCTION

The Applicant is a 58-year-old family physician whose driving privileges were suspended April 20, 2008 (Exhibit 3, Tab 2a).

A physician had submitted a report (Exhibit 3, Tab 1), pursuant to Section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act (HTA), stating the Applicant had experienced a first generalized seizure.

Following extensive correspondence with the MTO (Exhibit 3, pages 4 and 5), and still being unable to regain his driving privileges, he appealed to the LAT (Exhibit 2) January 14, 2011.

EXHIBITS

1. Notice of Suspension from MTO – April 20, 2008
2. Notice of Appeal – Applicant – January 14, 2011
3. Registrar – Tabbed Submission – February 4, 2011

FACTS

1. The Applicant had a generalized seizure March 26, 2008. He had no prior seizures; there was a remote (1981) closed head injury.

2. The Applicant has several medical problems:

   - Hypothryoidism
   - Sleep apnea
   - Hypertension
   - Obesity (around 300 pounds); and a Body Mass Index (BMI) of 39 (Exhibit 3, Tab 7a)
   - Gastroesophageal reflux
   - Atrial fibrillation
   - Asthma

   and takes numerous prescription medications.

3. Neurologic examination in March 2008 was normal. The cause of his 2008 seizure is not known; it may be "multifactorial" (Exhibit 3, Tab 1).

4. The MTO (Exhibit 3, Tab 4) is interested in the role of alcohol dependence/ withdrawal as the possible cause of his solitary seizure. Accordingly, the Applicant tried to comply with the Registrar's request (August 13, 2008, Exhibit 3, Tab 4) to:

   - See a physician specializing in Addictions Medicine
   - Completing the Alcohol Assessment Form with his physician
   - Submitting hematologic mean corpuscular volume (MCV) and biochemical gamma glutoryl transferase (GGT) markers
   - Remain abstinent from alcohol for 12 months

5. Exhibit 3, Tab 5a (MTO – Alcohol Assessment Form) shows the Applicant is a social drinker. His physician has circled (Page 4 - #2) "withdrawal" as a possible cause of a seizure.

   The Applicant's test score is 12. On Page 6, his physician indicates the Applicant does not meet the criteria for alcohol dependency. The Applicant says he has been abstinent from alcohol for the past six months (October 2010).

   The Applicant has been seizure-free for 35 months, the last six months while abstinent of alcohol.

6. Exhibit 3, Tab 8 – a report from the Medical Advisory Committee (MAC) of the MTO (April 14, 2008) states the March 2008 seizure was due to alcohol withdrawal.

7. This assessment prompts (Exhibit 3, Tab 8a) a May 7, 2009 letter from the MTO to start over again, i.e. Exhibit 3, Tab 4 – August 13, 2008. The Applicant refused to participate in another Alcohol Assessment Form.

8. The Applicant's driving record (Exhibit 3, Tab 16) shows no demerit points. It shows two incidents of being apprehended for driving while his license was under (medical) suspension. There are no alcohol-related driving infractions.

9. In the Applicant's summary, he mentions having successfully completed a "Fitness to Practice" investigation by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO). The Applicant has not included this supportive evidence with his appeal.

10. The Applicant has been in practice for 38 years. He is divorced and lives alone. His day starts at 6 am, and he "has the bit" at 7 am. In addition to an office practice, he does minor surgical procedures on his patients. In 38 years of practice, he had four complaints to the CPSO, all resolved without penalty. Exhibit 3 has positive letters of reference:

    - 5G – dedicated, caring professional
    - 5I – high degree of integrity, responsibility and professionalism

    The letter also states that "there was never any indication of inappropriate or unprofessional behaviour or activity, such as inappropriate use of alcohol."

11. The Tribunal is not aware of any single laboratory test (specifically liver function test) or combination of tests which are independent indicators of alcohol abuse. In this case, with so many ascribed physical ailments and prescribed medications, a plausible interpretation is virtually impossible.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The MTO has made the case for the continuation of the Applicant's suspension of his driving privileges.

The Registrar was correct in April 28, 2008 (Exhibit 3, Tab 2a) in suspending the Applicant's driving privileges after a generalized seizure, following a physician's report, pursuant to Section 203 of the HTA.

The MTO was correct in asking for up-to-date medical information regarding his seizure activity, with which the Applicant complied.

The Tribunal does not know the cause of his solitary seizure, but he has had no seizures in almost three years.

The Applicant has been examined by two neurologists; neither believes he will experience another seizure (Exhibit 3, Tab 3). The best-educated guess as to the cause of the seizure is "multifactorial" (Exhibit 3, Tab 11).

The MTO maintains that the seizure activity in March 2008 was related to alcohol withdrawal. The Applicant disputes the neurologist's report of March 27, 2008 (Exhibit 3, Tab 5e), but does admit to a single episode of consuming 26 ounces of liquor with some buddies between noon and 3 am, while sitting in a chair at home.

The medical standard Regulation 340/94. Section 14(b) provides the license holder must not "be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely."

The Applicant may apply for consideration of reinstatement of his driving privileges if he provides a medical report stating he has been abstinent from alcohol for one year.

This period may be reduced if he provides evidence of counselling (successfully completing a treatment program for substance abuse and a supportive letter from his family physician (or addiction medicine specialist) recommending reinstatement of his driving privileges.

In the Applicant's favour is the MOT Alcohol Assessment Form (Exhibit 3, Tab 5a) suggesting he is not alcohol dependent. Conversely, the same form states he is a "hazardous or problem drinker". Also in the Applicant's favour is a Driving Record which has no alcohol-related driving convictions.

The Applicant states that following his seizure in 2008, a CPSO panel examined him regarding his Fitness to Practice. According to the Applicant, he was successful, but cannot provide any CPSO documentation since "the CPSO does not release that information". The Applicant was not clear as to the reason(s) for the CPSO inquiry.

The Applicant's driver's license was suspended almost three years ago, but a concerted effort to be abstinent only began in October 2010. The Tribunal believes this shows a lack of insight into his possible alcohol dependency. The ability to be abstinent from alcohol for the past five months is promising for a successful counselling program.

Returning to Regulation 390/94, Section 14(b), the statute realizes not all substance-dependent persons pose a significant risk to driving safety. The Tribunal carefully considered that road safety of both the Applicant and general public if his driving privileges are restored prior to 12 months abstinence.

The Tribunal recommends the Applicant provide a letter from a physician/ health professional confirming full participation and completion of a recognized alcohol/ drug counselling program. The Tribunal further recommends the Registrar give consideration to early restoration of the Applicant's driving privileges if he continues to demonstrate sustained abstinence from alcohol, and a supportive letter and favourable recommendations are received from his family physician.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated April 30, 2008, of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

On May 20, 2010 Emergency Physician Dr. Y. sent in a Medical Condition Report to the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) in which he stated that the Applicant suffered from the condition of Dementia or Alzheimers.

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

Geriatrician Dr. P. wrote an Ambulatory Care Clinic Report on July 19, 2010 regarding the Applicant as follows:

> I saw (the Applicant) in my office today with his wife. His wife had brought in a typed note which stated that he is now getting lost while driving and she, at one point, took his car keys and did not let him drive, but then he was very upset and he is quite depressed with the idea of not driving. He continues to drive. He has got lost when his friends had called in from a buffet and he could not find his way to the friend.
> On further questioning, he is reporting that he is driving in a new area and he got lost, but then made his way. He was very argumentative with his wife about the issue of driving. I did a MoCA testing and he scored 17/30. I have advised him to go for a driver's test. He has agreed to undergo this testing and I have increased his Reminyl to 60 mg a day.

The Applicant was tested at a Driver Assessment Centre on October 13, 2010. In the Summary it was written:

> Physical assessment findings indicated functional strength, range of motion, coordination and sensation sufficient for driving. Minimal impairments noted in neck rotation, grip strength and upper extremity coordination.
> Performance on the Cognitive Assessment indicates that cognitive function has declined to a level that may impact driving.
> Driving performance was observed to be outside the range of healthy, normal drivers and cessation was recommended.

In the Recommendation, Driving Cessation was strongly recommended.

In the Certified Driver Record, dated January 26, 2011, the following was shown:

> June 3, 2010. Failure/improper use seat belt.
> Current demerit points – 2.

Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant stated that he used to be a Bank Guard before he retired. Since retirement, he has done voluntary work such as church work, Meals on Wheels etc. and he has been a regular blood donor since the age of 17.

He said that he was feeling very nervous when he took the Driver Test, which was the reason why he did not do well.

He feels he can drive well, does not want to leave all the driving to his wife and would very much like to get his licence back.

Applicant's Wife's Evidence

The Applicant's wife said that her husband is very anxious to get back to driving. She said that if this was possible it would be a relief because there have been times when he has wanted to go out, but she has been unable to drive at the time.

They were both asked what was the reason that he, (the Applicant), had to go to the hospital Emergency Department on May 20, 2010, (the day he saw Dr. H., who sent in the Medical Condition Report). As far as they could remember, it was either the time he had a fall in their backyard and hurt his back, or the time he injured his thumb.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Does the Applicant no longer suffer from a mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

> (1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,
>
> > (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

> (4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian

> Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (b) a driver's licence; …
>
> on the grounds of,

>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

Under the heading "Dementia", (6.8) of the C.C.M.T.A. Medical Standards for Drivers, it is written:

> STANDARD:
> Memory impairment or mild dementia – eligible for Class 5 Licence, subject to satisfactory driving assessment.
> Moderate or severe dementia – ineligible for any class of licence.

The Tribunal sympathises with the Applicant's wish to resume driving; and the Tribunal recognises that the Applicant has a very good driving record.

However, the Tribunal notes that the driving assessment which the Applicant went through resulted in the strong recommendation for “driving cessation”. Therefore, it is the decision of the Tribunal that the Applicant’s driving privilege should remain suspended.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated August 4, 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver’s licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

ORDER

On November 3, 2010, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the “Registrar”) was notified by a physician reporting pursuant to section 203 of the Highway Traffic Act (the "Act").

The Registrar suspended the Applicant’s driving privileges under section 47(1) of the Act, effective November 18, 2010.

The Applicant filed an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the “Tribunal”) on February 9, 2011, and the hearing was subsequently scheduled for March 8, 2011.

The hearing began at 1:35 p.m. on Tuesday, March 8, 2011, at the Tribunal’s Chambers in Toronto, Ontario.

During the course of the hearing, the Agent for the Registrar stated that up-to-date medical information from the Applicant’s physician had recently been received by the Medical Advisory Committee of the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario. She noted that a decision on reinstatement of the Applicant’s driving privileges had not yet been made, but would be forthcoming shortly.
Accordingly, the hearing was adjourned at 2:35 p.m. to allow the Registrar’s process to move forward.

On March 11, 2011, the Tribunal was advised that the Applicant's driver's licence had been reinstated, and the appeal is, therefore, moot.

The proceedings before the Tribunal are concluded, and the file is now closed.

DATE OF HEARING: Mar 17 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

The Registrar's evidence

The Ministry of Transportation (MTO) received a form 203 dated Oct 4 2010, from Dr. JS with the checked box "Seizure(s)-Cerebral". A standard letter was sent to the Applicant from MTO, dated Oct 7 2010, suspending his driver's licence.

MTO requested an up-to-date report from his doctor(s) as well as results of investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment,current status, and reassurance that the condition was controlled.

No mention is made of a time frame in this initial letter.

On November 25, 2010, Dr. JS, who is a highly regarded neurosurgeon, and who filed the original Form 203 (as pointed out by the Respondent – the doctor's legal obligation) wrote to the MTO outlining the sequence of events.

The Applicant had been found to have a brain tumour – an incidental finding when a MRI was done on his head after a fall from his bicycle. The tumour looked like a small meningioma and he was referred to Dr. JS. It was optional whether he had it removed or simply monitored. He elected the surgical removal.

Thus on October 1 2010, a small benign tumour was removed from the right parietal region. About two or three hours post-operation, the Applicant briefly had twitching in his left forearm. He was prescribed Dilantin for seven days and Decadron for three days, both fairly standard post-op orders.

On November 25, 2010, Dr. JS wrote that post-op MRI and EEG studies had not demonstrated any residual tumour or abnormalities that would raise concern about further seizures.

The MTO sent the second letter on January 6, 2011 announcing that he needed to wait a year before having his licence restored or he had an option of appealing the suspension.

A further letter came from his family doctor (Dr.. DM), dated February 16, 2011. He pointed out the history of the brain tumour surgery – using terms like lucky, incidental, and full recovery. He had cleared the Applicant to resume high intensity triathalon training. In conclusion, he noted that "there is absolutely no evidence that (the Applicant), is not safe to operate a motor vehicle at this time".

There are two sets of guidelines: CCMTA Medical standards and the CMA driver's guide.

In this instance the MTO is using the more stringent of the two i.e. CMA 10.8.1 which states "if a seizure occurs either before or after the removal of a tumour the patient should be seizure-free for at least twelve months... before resuming driving.

The Applicant's evidence:

The Applicant presented a very long detailed description of the discovery of his brain tumour (his small benign meningioma), the treatment, the post-op seizure, and his ensuing recovery from the surgery.

The Tribunal is aware that Dilantin and Decadron are used prophylactically post neurosurgical procedures and the Applicant suggests that because his IV wasn't behaving post operatively, he was not getting the dose that he needed to ward off brain irritability. (he is clear about his arm stinging, the machine “beeping” and nurses putting cold compresses on his arm).

The Applicant is fit and fit-looking as one might expect a triathlete to be. He drives very little other than to transport a young family to outings. He bicycles to work.

He questions the meaning of phrases in letters from the MTO such as “since your last seizure” – he had one isolated minor post op seizure. And he questions “your condition”. “What condition?” he asks.

Contradictions are apparent in the CMA guidelines. In CMA 10.4 it states, in discussing single episodes of seizure, that “the time period should be considered a guideline”. Yet, the Applicant pointed out the difference between a “guideline” and the arbitrary nature of the CMA10.8.1.

When he had an EEG in November 2010 sound and sight stimuli were associated with the test. Neither affected his EEG. He notes that every day, he swims many laps with flip turns at each end of the pool and breathes from side to side – all of which would be highly stimulating if he were prone to seizure activity.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant’s licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

Regulation 340/94, Section 14 states:

> An applicant for or a holder of a driver’s licence must not,
>
> (a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; and
>
> (b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(b) a driver's licence; …

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);

(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or

(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

There are two relevant medical standards for applicants; the CCMTA Medical standards and the CMA Guidelines of the CCMTA Medical Standards.. In section 6.10 – the Individual who has made a good recovery following surgery, may be allowed to operate a class 5 or 6 motor vehicle after an appropriate recovery period and with a detailed assessment from a neurologist or neurosurgeon including reference to the nature and extent of the tumour, the likelihood of recurrence and any indication of residual deficits, may operate a motor vehicle. However, the MTO in this decision seems to be using as a basis for decision, the CMA guideline 10.8.1, referenced above, an inflexible rule, rather than the CCMTA Medical Standards

The Tribunal agrees with the Applicant who found the notification from the MTO to be confusing and arbitrary.

He had a small superficial brain tumour removed by an esteemed neurosurgeon who judged the Applicant fit and unlikely to have sequellae. Who better to assess the Applicant?

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated Oct 7 2010 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

TRIBUNAL: D. W. HURST, M.D. Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, Self-Represented

RUSSEL MCKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: MARCH 24. 2011 TORONTO

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

FACTS

Mr. McKnight, the Agent for the Ministry began by explaining that the first nine Tabs were to do with a medical condition report which was filed by Dr. M.L. a neurologist on November 22, 2010. He drew attention to Tab #5, which is a Medical Condition Report pertaining to the Applicant with the possibility of mental or emotional illness and / or dementia or Alzheimer's disease. The Agent drew attention to Section 203 of the HTA, wherein medical conditions related to mental and emotional, dementia and / or Alzheimer are deemed to render a driver incapable of performing safely on the highway. In this Report, the note included the possibility of short-term memory loss and two episodes of amnesia and that the Applicant had been involved in two minor MVA's.

On January 19, 2011, the MTO wrote to the Applicant indicating that he may have a condition which impairs his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. He was informed of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles had decided to suspend his driver's privilege under Section 47(1) of The Highway Traffic.

It was noted in this letter that the Ministry would reconsider his case for reinstatement upon receipt of information satisfactory to the Registrar and that he must arrange for the Ministry to receive an up-to-date report from his doctor including copies of all investigations, diagnosis, prognosis, treatment, current status with confirmation that the condition is controlled and that there are no other disqualifying medical concerns that may impact his ability to safely operate a motor vehicle. They also asked for a clinical evaluation of his cognitive functions. They suggested that he may also be required to undergo a driving evaluation at a Rehabilitation Centre.

Dr. M. L. wrote to the Applicant's family doctor, Dr. H.R., describing the Applicant's extreme distress over the suspension which has severely affected his livelihood, but the good news was that his EEG and brain MRI were completely normal. It was also noted that his minor car accidents had taken place over a period of forty-two years. Dr. M.L. stated that he was "suspicious that his complaints of amnesia may well be at least partially stress-related. He is scheduled to see a psychiatrist, Dr. W.R. at a memory clinic shortly". This neurologist also noted that the Applicant's MMSE was 30/30. He was also noted to have difficulty generating a list of different animals. He also had minimal difficulty mimicking a three step motor command. The neurologist's impression was that he should be allowed to undergo a detailed driver's safety test – Drive Able. He stated that the Applicant would likely pass the test and felt that he should be granted his driving privilege. He also noted that the Applicant would require serial observations of cognitive function over time as well.

The Applicant's physician, Dr. H.R.wrote a letter indicating as follows: "I have been the Applicant's family physician for the past fifteen years. In the summer of 2010, the Applicant asked me to refer him to a neurologist for an examination because he had experienced two incidents of short term memory lapses. For this reason, I referred him to a neurologist, Dr. M.L.

Dr. M.L., met with the applicant for a brief period on November 22, 2010, and conducted a clinical evaluation of his cognitive function. Following this examination, Dr. M.L. arranged for the Applicant to undergo an MRI of the brain as well as an EEG.

Following his initial office clinical assessment, but prior to the Applicant having the above investigations completed, Dr. M.L. notified MTO in writing of his impression of this Applicant's condition. In reviewing Dr. M. L's. consultation report, he stated that the Applicant may possibly have mild cognitive impairment, an emotional illness or early Alzheimer's dementia. The Applicant then did attend at a regional hospital where an MRI of the brain and EEG were completed. Both tests came back negative for any pathology.

Dr. H.R. reported that he had > "never known him to exhibit signs of any of the conditions suggested by Dr. M.L's report. In my opinion, the Applicant may have had stress related issues that contributed to his two incidents of memory lapse. I have informed the doctor that these issues have resolved and in my view any recurrence is highly unlikely – certainly no treatment is required".

The doctor went on to state that he is strongly of the opinion that "the Applicant has no medical condition which would impact or impair his ability to drive a motor vehicle at this time and I respectfully request that his driver's licence be reinstated".

On February 25, 2011 the MTO wrote to the Applicant stating that his case had been reviewed in light of Dr. M.L.'s report dated February 7, 2011 and Dr. H.R.'s report dated February 10, 2011. This letter went on to state that it will be necessary to file the results of the scheduled assessment with Dr. W.R. (psychiatrist), regarding the memory difficulties. The report must also include a diagnosis, treatment (medication/dosage), reference to his current level of function and include confirmation of mental and emotional stability. Once this report was received by the Ministry and approved, the Applicant would be required to undergo a driving evaluation at a Rehabilitation Centre.

The Agent stated that this request from the Ministry was not unreasonable and that they have received no further information to date. The Agent then filed a certified copy of the Applicant's driving record which noted minor speeding violations and a medical suspension on January 9, 2011. He noted that there were no demerit points.

Also relied on by the Agent was the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, with emphasis on Section 6 pertaining to the nervous system and driving. He stressed that this case is still being investigated and that the Ministry needs more information to be able to apply the guidelines fairly and adequately. He also wanted the results of the Drive Able test.

THE APPLICANT'S CASE

Mr. M.R. appeared to represent his brother, the Applicant. He began with a series of questions and statements.

1. He questioned the fairness of the Ministry in proceeding with a suspension as a result of one letter by Dr. M.L. being done before any driving test had been carried out. He said that no diagnosis had been made and only some possibilities mentioned.

2. He pointed out that the letter to his brother, the Applicant, said the suspension was a result of possible cognitive impairment. He noted that in the Medical Condition Report that this is not mentioned. Mr. McKnight said that there was mention of short term memory loss and when this is reported the Registrar must act.

3. He questioned the issue of mental impairment in Section 47(1) of the HTA regarding a commercial licence. Mr. McKnight stated that this is the law.

4. The Agent pointed out the excellence of his brother's driving record which of course only dates back three years and Mr. McKnight was in agreement.

5. The Agent for the Applicant mentioned the MMSE (Mini Mental State Examination), and he pointed out that this is used to test for cognitive impairment and dementia and that the Applicant's score was 30/30 and above 25 is normal. He said this good score would show proof of normalcy but the Mr. McKnight for the Ministry said that they need other tests.

The Agent for the Applicant went on to question the significance of Dr. M.L.'s report, the result of a brief interview, compared to the letter from Dr. H.R., the family physician, who has known the Applicant for fifteen years and is, therefore, in a much better position to assess the Applicant's mental state. Mr. McKnight disagreed and pointed out that the family doctor himself had referred the Applicant to a neurologist.

The Applicant works in real estate, has two children, aged 22 and 17 and is divorced. He reviewed the Applicant's visit to Dr. M.L., noting the plans for an EEG and an MRI, and that he took a detailed history.

He then explained that the Applicant had been driving for 42 years, had two minor "fender benders" and no points attached to his driving record.

The most recent collision, a rear-ender occurred when the Applicant was reaching for an inhaler and accidently struck the car ahead. It was noted that the Applicant had voluntarily asked his family doctor for a report concerning the recent minor memory lapses. The Applicant in fact denied short term memory problems and that at the time of this accident he was quite stressed and that might have been a factor.

The Applicant testified in cross-examination and stated that he had asked his family doctor to do a report about two recent episodes of short term memory loss. The Applicant said he did not feel he needed to see a neurologist. The neurologist's report disclosed that he had no further plans to see him. It was also noted that the Applicant has a tentative appointment to see a psychiatrist in May. Mr. McKnight drew attention to the fact that the neurologist wishes that the Applicant undergo a Drive Able test. This Tribunal was also informed that the Applicant's family doctor is aware of the plans for the Applicant to see a psychiatrist and thinks that this is unnecessary.

MR. MCKNIGHT IN SUMMARY:

The Agent considered it significant that the Applicant's family doctor was sufficiently concerned to send his patient to see a neurologist and the neurologist wanted the MTO to be aware of these events. There were lots of problems in this report with no definite diagnosis. Questions were raised to cause concerns for the Registrar. He pointed out that two significant tests, (MRI and EEG) were done indicating the neurologist's concerns. He noted that no memory evaluation had been done yet and the MTO felt that suspension was warranted. The Registrar obviously had concerns about the two episodes of memory loss and the occurrences of two car accidents. He felt that the neurologist wanted to report these events to the MTO out of his concern about safety. He went on to underline the fact that the neurologist reported these events even though the Applicant tends to belittle what has happened. Again, Mr. McKnight stressed that the neurologist wants a psychiatric report and a driving test. He conceded that the family doctor has taken the opposite stance from the neurologist and strongly felt that there were no significant medical problems. Despite that, the neurologist wants a Drive Able test. Mr. McKnight submitted that the MTO had acted wisely and asked that the Tribunal confirm their decision.

AGENT FOR THE APPLICANT IN SUMMARY:

He noted that the decision to suspend was not based on two reports three days apart to the MTO but only the November 22nd report by Dr. M.L. The MTO decision is based only on the findings of the neurologist and not of the family doctor. He indicated that the family doctor probably sent the Applicant to a neurologist as a back up check on his own opinion. He also stated that this neurologist is not qualified to say if the Applicant can drive safely.

The Agent stated that the current difficulties are all related to the Applicant's memory problems and not driving skill. He felt that this memory loss was not pertinent and noted the normal MRI and EEG. He said nothing showed cognitive problems. He also said the 30/30 score on the MMSE test indicated that the MTO's conclusions are unfounded, unsupported and premature. He complained that the Ministry is now seeking more tests including a very expensive Drive Able test, and he feels these are redundant. He went on to conclude that the MTO could suspend thousands of drivers on the slim evidence presented here. He stated that the Applicant's two minor car accidents were years apart and do no represent an ongoing problem. In asking that this decision of the Ministry be set aside he also pointed out that the Applicant shows no sign of cognitive impairment and that therefore there is no basis for a suspension. He supported this position by again referring to the family doctor's statements. Also he described the three to four visits per year by the Applicant with his family doctor compared to one twenty minute session with the neurologist. He said that the Applicant rues the day he ever went to talk to his family doctor regarding his minor memory lapses.

Questioning by the Tribunal disclosed that the Applicant underwent bariatric surgery on his stomach on December 31, 2003 with a weight decline from 325 pounds to a current 165 pounds. The Applicant, despite having suffered morbid obesity, has no blood pressure problems and is not diabetic, and the several visits with his doctor each year have to do with follow up of the weight loss surgery.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, Section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Ministry's decision was based on the medical condition report filed by a neurologist, which the Tribunal finds is not persuasive. The Applicant had suffered two minor memory lapses which this Tribunal would consider of no great importance but he voluntarily went to his family doctor to have this situation reviewed. The neurologist very quickly filed a Medical Condition Report with the Ministry. The neurologist in a letter to the family doctor on February 7th, 2011, said that the Applicant's complaint of amnesia might be at least partially stress related as the findings on behalf of the Applicant show an excellent score on the MMSE test and normal EEG and MRI of the brain.

The family doctor who states that he has known the Applicant as his patient "for fifteen years never saw the applicant "exhibit signs of any of the conditions suggested in Dr. M.L's (neurologist) report".

This family doctor also concurred with the neurologist that stress related issues might have contributed to the two incidents of memory lapse. He went on to state that he considered the recurrence of these problems as highly unlikely and that no treatment is required. This family doctor then concluded with the strong opinion that the Applicant has no medical condition which would impact or impair his ability to drive a motor vehicle.

The Applicant spoke well as a witness at this Tribunal hearing. At the present time, the evidence against him regarding his driving privilege is minor memory lapses which might be experienced by anyone holding a driver's licence in Ontario.

The evidence today supports that both the findings of the neurologist and the Registrar demonstrated unreasonable and impractical precautions while the general practitioner who knows the Applicant best demonstrated common sense and good balanced judgment. The Applicant should be allowed to drive.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the decision dated January 19, 2011 of the Registrar to suspend his driver's licence pursuant to Section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be set aside.

DATE OF HEARING: March 25, 2011 Toronto

DECISION AND REASONS

This is an appeal to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") by the Applicant respecting a decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant submitted an additional document, namely a laboratory report, dated December 21, 2010. The Registrar's Agent agreed to the admission of this report into evidence, and it was marked as Exhibit #3.

FACTS

Dr. X (name illegible) sent in a Medical Condition Report on March 12, 2007, indicating that the Applicant had the condition of "Alcohol or drug abuse (with seizure on March 12, 2007)", and also indicating that, with regard to "The threat to road safety", "may be at risk". The doctor also commented that the condition was "most likely drug abuse use related".

When the Ministry of Transportation of Ontario ("MTO") received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended.

The following tests done in May or June of 2007 were reported either normal or negative: EEG, ECG, CT of brain, Drug Abuse Screen and Urinalysis.

Neurologist Dr. M. sent in a report to the MTO regarding the Applicant on August 27, 2007, writing as follows:

> This young lady with renal problems and dialysis took some cocaine, which led to a seizure. She has had no epilepsy previously.
> Her EEG is normal as is her CT scan.
> It appears that she has learned her lesson very well. I expect that she will not venture in such things again.
> She does not have epilepsy and will not need medication.
> If the drug aspect is controlled, I see no reason for her not being able to drive.

An Addiction Specialist Dr. W. sent a report to the MTO, dated January 29, 2008. In this report, the doctor indicated that the Applicant had been under his care for cocaine abuse since October 9, 2007, and had been attending counselling sessions. His impression was that the Applicant was not at risk to drive at present.

Four urine tests for abusive drugs were performed on the Applicant in November and December of 2007 and in January of 2008, and all reported as "Not Detected".

The MTO wrote to the Applicant on March 5, 2008, informing her that her driving privilege was reinstated.

An Emergency Room physician, Dr. F., sent in a Medical Condition Report on November 17, 2010, in which he indicated that the Applicant had the medical conditions of first, "Drug Dependence" and secondly of "Mental or Emotional Illness-Unstable".

When the MTO received this report, it was decided that the Applicant's driving privilege should be suspended, and a number of reports and results of investigations were requested.

After the Applicant was seen in a hospital emergency department on November 17, 2010, she was admitted to the hospital. While she was in the hospital, a psychiatric consultation was requested and the Applicant was seen on three occasions by psychiatrist Dr. M. In the first report from the psychiatrist, he stated that the Applicant denied having any mood or anxiety symptoms or negative thoughts. She told the doctor that she was taking Effexor (a medication for depression) for fibromyalgia. In the second report, the Applicant again denied having any suicidal, homicidal or negative thoughts. In the third report, the doctor wrote that the Applicant denies using or abusing any narcotic medication. She admitted to having used cocaine in the past and said that she was planning on attending counselling therapy for her addiction problem when she left the hospital. The doctor stated that he was switching the Applicant's Effexor medication to Cymbalta.

When the Applicant was discharged from the hospital Dr. I. wrote the Final Summary report on November 26, 2010. The discharge diagnosis was:

1. Acute-on-chronic renal failure secondary to non-compliance with peritoneal dialysis.
2. Respiratory failure, needed intubation.
3. Decreased level of consciousness, most likely overdose of narcotic pain medication.

Dr. I. wrote, in part, that the Applicant had been admitted to hospital due to an altered level of consciousness and that she had been taking Percocet – oxycodone, chronically for a year. Her peritoneal dialysis was restarted. She was noted to have a low iron level. She was seen by psychiatrist Dr. M. who recommended starting the medication Cymbalta after weaning off Effexor.

The Extended Driver Record Search for the Applicant, dated February 25, 2011, showed zero demerit points.

The Applicant underwent drug testing from her hair on December 21, 2010, and this was reported as negative for all five drugs.

The Applicant's Testimony

The Applicant asserted that she was admitted to hospital in November, mainly for peritoneal dialysis and also because of respiratory problems and anemia, but not for psychiatric problems. When she was asked why her level of consciousness was low at the time of her admission, she explained that this was because of her overall ill-health at the time, and it was not because of having taken overmuch medication for pain. In fact, she said that about all the medication, which she had been taking had been anti-inflammatory medication, Arthrotec. She felt much better at the time she was discharged from hospital.

She said that she needs to drive in order to take her son to school, to keep medical appointments and to do shopping for the home. She has been having peritoneal dialysis for five years.

ISSUES

Should the decision of the Registrar to suspend the Applicant's licence be confirmed, modified or set aside?

Is the Applicant no longer addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely?

LAW

O. Reg. 340/94, section 14 states:

(1) An applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence must not,

(a) suffer from any mental, emotional, nervous or physical condition or disability likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely; or

(b) be addicted to the use of alcohol or a drug to an extent likely to significantly interfere with his or her ability to drive a motor vehicle safely.

(2) In determining whether an applicant for or a holder of a driver's licence of any class meets the qualifications described in subsection (1), the Minister,

(a) may take into consideration the relevant medical standards for applicants or holders of that class of driver's licence set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers; and

(b) may require the applicant or holder to provide evidence satisfactory to the Minister that he or she is able to drive a motor vehicle of the applicable class safely, including,

(i) any reports of examinations under section 15, and

(ii) any additional medical information.

(3) Despite clause (2) (a) and unless otherwise provided in this Regulation, if there is a difference between a medical standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers and a medical standard set out in this Regulation, the Minister shall take into consideration the standard set out in this Regulation instead of the standard set out in the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers.

(4) In this section, the CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers means the document entitled CCMTA Medical Standards for Drivers, published by the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators and dated March 2009, as it may be amended from time to time, that is available on the Internet through the website of the Canadian Council of Motor Transport Administrators.

Section 47(1) states:

> Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
> …
> (b) a driver's licence; …
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Section 50 of the Act states:

> 50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32(5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or the Registrar.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant who strongly wishes to return to driving, especially so that she can drive her son to school, and to receive medical attention when needed.

The Tribunal recognizes that the Applicant felt a great improvement in her health after her stay in the hospital in November 2010, that the laboratory test for five drugs (December 21, 2010), was reported as being entirely negative (signifying that she has not ingested any of those drugs since she left the hospital). Also, she has an excellent driving record.

However, the Tribunal notes that when the Applicant was admitted to hospital on November 17, 2010, she was found to have a decreased level of consciousness, and this was considered to be secondary to "narcotic pain medication overdose" (see Final Hospital Summary Report - November 26, 2010).

And the Tribunal also notes that when the Applicant was examined in the hospital Emergency Department on November 17, 2010, prior to being admitted, Dr. F. wrote as the pertinent medical conditions “Drug Dependence and Mental or Emotional Illness-Unstable”.

The Tribunal is of the opinion that reinstatement of the Applicant’s driving privileges cannot be considered until there is sufficient long-term evidence of abstinence from drug use. In an effort to achieve this, the Tribunal recommends that the Applicant come under the care of a family physician or an addiction specialist.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar’s decision, effective December 2, 2010, to suspend her driver’s licence pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal, and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

IT IS THE DECISION OF THE TRIBUNAL pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50(2) of the Act that the decision of the Registrar be confirmed.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

ST. DENIS BRIQUES & PIERRES INC.

APPEAL FROM A CANCELLATION AND SEIZURE ORDER DATED OCTOBER 7, 2009 ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT.

TRIBUNAL: SHU-TAI CHENG, Vice-Chair

PARTIES: SYLVIE NICKERSON, Agent for the Applicant (in February)

CHARLENE CHAUMONT, Agent for the Applicant (in April)

PATRICK MOORE and JEAN-CLAUDE GÉLINAS, Counsel for the Respondent, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATES OF HEARING: February 8 and 9, April 8 and 9, 2010 Ottawa

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

BACKGROUND

This hearing arises from a written Cancellation and Seizure Order dated October 7, 2009, issued by the Registrar under the Highway Traffic Act (the "Registrar" and the "Act" respectively) in respect of CVOR certificate 096-926-615 and the plate portion of permits for all commercial vehicles and trailers issued to St. Denis Briques & Pierres Inc.

Prior to the above, by notice of cancellation dated August 7, 2009, the Registrar notified the Applicant that he proposed to cancel the CVOR certificate and permits of the Applicant. An opportunity was then afforded to the Applicant at a hearing convened on September 17, 2009, to show cause as to why the cancellation should not take place. Following this, on October 7, 2009, the Registrar's cancellation order was issued.

St. Denis Briques & Pierre Inc. filed a Notice of Appeal dated October 22, 2009.

The hearing of this matter before the Tribunal took place over a period of four days in February and April 2010.

PRELIMINARY ISSUE

This hearing was conducted in French and in English. At the outset, the Applicant requested a French hearing and an interpreter was to be present throughout the hearing in order to facilitate the understanding of Mr. Daniel St. Denis. As it turned out, Respondent's counsel and first two witnesses being francophone, the first two days of the hearing were conducted in French and an interpreter was unnecessary. Where the Applicant or the Applicant's agent wished to communicate or use terms in English, this was done; otherwise the matter proceeded in French. The third day of hearing was conducted with the assistance of an interpreted, as the Respondent's witness was anglophone and her evidence was interpreter for Mr. St. Denis. In addition, at the beginning of the third day of hearing, a different agent was present for the Applicant and the agent expressed a preference for communications in English. Mr. St. Denis asked that the proceedings continue in a manner so that his agent could understand and stated that he was well able to continue the hearing in English. As stated, an interpreter was used for the evidence of the respondent's second witness. Thereafter, no interpretation was needed. The hearing proceeded in French and in English, at the comfort of the Applicant. Submissions by the representatives were made in French (by the Registrar) and in English (by the Applicant).

EVIDENCE

Testimony on behalf of the Registrar was given by Michelle Chaussé, an inspector with the Ministry of Transportation, Johanne Tardif, an analyst with the Ministry of Transportation, and Adele Di Paolo, a project analyst with the Ministry of Transportation. Mr. Daniel St. Denis gave evidence on behalf of the Applicant.

As a general comment, this Tribunal notes that much latitude was given to the Applicant in the process of cross-examination. In some instances, the Tribunal allowed both the Agent of the Applicant and Daniel St. Denis to address questions, in turn, to the same witness or to ask the same question more than once where there was possibly a doubt as to the question or answer being understood. As to the language in which questions were asked by the Applicant, either English or French, sometimes both were used to accommodate all in attendance.

Testimony of Michelle Chaussé

Michelle Chaussé has worked for the Ministry of Transportation for 15 years. She has been an inspector since 2000 and was previously a controller at the Lancaster station.

After a general description of the Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration (CVOR) system, Agent Chaussé described a facility audit that she conducted in May 2004 at the operations of the Applicant. She was sent by the Ministry who had initiated the audit. The Facility Audit Findings are at tab 9 of Exhibit 3. During this audit, she interviewed Mr. Daniel St. Denis to obtain information and to explain the audit process; she communicated with Mr. St. Denis in French. Agent Chaussé described for the Tribunal various the aspects of the operator's performance and operations that factor into the compliance rates; the compliance rate for drivers being 22.2% and for vehicles being 18.4%, and the overall audit compliance achieved was 20.3%. To pass the audit, a score of 55% must be achieved in each of the two sections (drivers and vehicles). At the end of the onsite visit, Agent Chaussé went through the details of her findings with Mr. St. Denis, the sample was explained, the deficiencies were explained, a copy of the manual that explains the program was given to him, examples of the forms were noted and how to complete them properly was discussed, a copy of the relevant rules and regulations was provided and a copy of the lengthy Facility Audit – Notes was left with him.

Agent Chaussé conducted another facility audit of the Applicant's operations for the Ministry in November 2008. The infraction rate on the Applicant's CVOR was very high at that time. Agent Chaussé was aware that Mr. St. Denis had attended an interview with the Enforcement Branch of the Ministry in July 2007. She was requested to conduct a facility audit in March 2008 and a date had been set. Mr. St. Denis had requested an extension in order to get his documents in order; this request was granted by the Ministry and the audit was conducted in November rather than in March 2008. An entrance interview was conducted with Mr. St. Denis. The number of drivers and vehicles was smaller than the records showed. The preventative maintenance program in effect was manned by unlicensed mechanics; the drivers' records were not kept updated in the office; though driver training was said to have occurred, the operator could not state the date of the training nor provide a list of drivers who had attended the training; the driver's documentation was not checked by the operator after it was submitted; documents required of the drivers are often missing; no accident prevention program had been put in place. The compliance rates were 22.2% for the drivers and 22.9% for the vehicles, with an audit compliance of 22.5%.

Many questions were asked by the Applicant's agent pertaining to specific details in each of the two facility audits. Agent Chaussé was questioned about the qualifications of certain inspectors whose name was on inspection reports (which formed part of the compliance rates), the number of points accorded to different drivers for various incidents of non-compliance and the fairness of same, why certain drivers or vehicles were chosen for the sample used in the facility audit and how the operator could control the conduct of drivers whether in relation to document compliance, hours driven, safety checks when out on the road or other matters. She was also challenged on the seriousness of document compliance versus vehicle mechanical compliance.

Testimony of Johanne Tardif

Johanne Tardif has worked for the Ministry for 21 years. She has been an analyst in the Safety and Enforcement Branch since 2004 and was previously a controller at a Toronto station. As an analyst, her job involves reviewing carrier files and changes therein, incidents, accidents, inspections, violations and Ministry interventions. The Ontario CVOR and Carrier Safety Rating Public Guideline are at Tabs 20 (English) and 21 (French) of Exhibit 4. Ms. Tardif explained that the program underwent changes in 1998 to include a code of safety for carriers and another set of changes in 2007 which changed the rating system to be more reality based on kilometres travelled by the carrier (rather than number of vehicles). She explained that the CVOR system monitors a carrier's CVOR record over a two-year period and that the Carrier Safety Rating is assigned to operators based on its safety record. The rating is based 40% on collisions (accidents), 40% on convictions (infractions or incidents) and 20% on inspections. Points are accorded to these events and the higher the points the more serious the safety concern. Analysts review the ratings for certain thresholds in order to intervene: at 35% a warning letter, over 50% a facility audit, over 80% an interview (or meeting with the branch), at 100% sanction. The Registrar has the discretion to intervene at any time and a carrier need not attain any particular threshold for there to be an intervention. The goal of an intervention is to open communications between the Registrar (usually an analyst) and the carrier, to assist the carrier in its efforts to improve its rating, and to sanction the carrier, if necessary.

In 2006, when the Applicant's safety rating had exceeded 85%, an interview was requested and was conducted by Ms. Tardif in July 2006. Mr. Daniel St. Denis was the company representative at that meeting. Ms. Tardif spoke in French with Mr. St. Denis. Ms. Tardif's notes from that interview-meeting are at Tab 14 of Exhibit 3; the interview and notes were described in detail by Ms. Tardif. It was noted that many remedial actions were to have been taken by the carrier 'by October 2006'.

The CVOR of the Applicant from June 2007 to June 2009 is at Tab 3 of Exhibit 3; background documents to the CVOR were also mentioned: Accident Reports are in Tab 4, Inspection Reports at Tab 5, and Fines at Tab 6.

Questions were asked of Ms. Tardif relating to accidents, convictions and inspections of the Applicant during the years 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2009. Ms. Tardif agreed with the Applicant's agent that fewer inspection points were accorded in 2009 than in 2008, in 2008 than in 2007, and in 2007 than in 2006. The same was said of convictions and collisions. When asked whether this was not 'an improvement' (une amelioration), Ms. Tardif responded that she could not say ("je ne peux pas répondre"), as the safety rating in each case was nevertheless very high.

The CVOR of the Applicant in the June 2007 to June 2009 did not note any Ministry interventions during that time period. When asked why not when the Applicant's safety rating was at 121.8%, Ms. Tardif explained that there had been interventions but not of the sort listed on p. 6 of Tab 3 of Ex. 3 or within that time period. Warning letters had been sent to the Applicant in September 1996 and December 2003, a facility audit was conducted in May 2004, a suspension order had been issued in February 2005, and another facility audit occurred in November 2008.

Ms. Tardif was questioned about the changes to the safety rating system in 2007 and whether the global rate of sanctions had increased as a result. Ms. Tardif said she had not done an analysis on this point and that the statistics on sanctions could be addressed with one of the next witnesses.

Evidence of Adele Di Paolo

Adele Di Paolo is an employee of the Ministry. Her current position since February 2010 is as a project analyst; prior to that, she was a carrier safety rating administrator. One of her many duties is the preparation of Safety Record Review; examples can be found at Tabs 2 and 11 of Exhibit 3. When an intervention is recommended, she prepares a Safety Record Review. This analysis is done for the Deputy Registrar and it is in the record for show cause meetings.

Ms. Di Paolo confirmed that she reviewed the Safety Record Reviews of the Applicant, that she has access to the vehicle registration system, the CVOR record, plate history and all information in the Ministry's system. The history of the Applicant is contained in the Safety Record Review: past history and recent history.

When asked to interpret the facility audit results of May 10, 2004, Ms. Di Paolo stated that this is a poor and failed audit, the operator failed both the driver audit and the vehicle audit. This audit triggered further intervention as the operator's record worsened after the audit. A suspension and seizure was affected and took place for 21 days in 2005. A notice was issued in January 2005. A show cause hearing took place in February 2005 at which Ms. Di Paolo was present and took notes. The notice was for a 30 day suspension and the time period was reduced to 21 days during March 2005.

There was no improvement upon more recent review of the Applicant's record. In July 2006, an interview was conducted (Tab 14 Ex. 3). Another facility audit was done in 2008 after the operator went over 100% again (Tab 15, Ex. 3). The results (Facility Audit Findings) were very poor. After numerous Ministry interventions, the scores were very low at 22.2% and 22.9%, no real improvement in the Ministry's eyes. As a result, Ms. Di Paolo and her program manager recommended a suspension and seizure order.

The Notice of suspension and seizure provided another opportunity for the operator to show cause why such an order should not become final. A show cause meeting was held in September 2009 with the Deputy Registrar and Daniel St. Denis; Ms. Di Paolo was present and took minutes. Mr. St. Denis' representations at the 2009 were similar to those made by him in 2005. The verbal submissions made by Mr. St. Denis and written ones made afterwards did not satisfy the Deputy Registrar, and a cancellation and Seizure Order was issued in October 2009.

In cross-examination, the Applicant and its agent suggested to the witness that infractions were counted twice in the facility audits, once when they occurred and were reported by the inspector or officer and then again when reviewed during the facility audit. However, the Applicant could not provide examples in the documents where this had, in fact, occurred. Ms. Di Paolo was asked why a wheel separation in 2004 continued to be mentioned, and she replied that it was a serious incident; incidents of this kind had caused deaths on Ontario roads in the past. Had this operator improved its record and only had low rates of violation afterwards, then the wheel separation would probably be looked at in a different light. When there is a record like the Applicant's, with a lot of interventions and a high violation rate resulting in repeated interventions by the Ministry, the Ministry looks at serious incidents dating back further than a two year period. Ms. Di Paolo was asked whether the Applicant's business location, near the border of Ontario and Quebec in an area where there is no choice as to the route that vehicles can take, subjected the Applicant's drivers and vehicles to an unfairly high number of inspections, and she answered that it looks good on the operator's record to have a lot of passed inspections and inspections should not be feared, but rather invited if an operator is in compliance.

Evidence of Daniel St. Denis

Mr. St. Denis gave evidence by way of statement rather than question and answer. This was acceptable to the Tribunal in the circumstances of a non-lawyer Agent representing the Applicant and the comfort of Mr. St. Denis in testifying in this manner.

This evidence was given in French and questions in cross-examination or by the Tribunal were asked in French. On occasion, the Applicant's Agent asked a question or made an observation mostly in English.

Mr. St. Denis testified that since 2008 the company has a system in place to check drivers' documentation,`that this is done every weekend prior to a pay check being issued, and that if any problems are noticed they are addressed with the driver. He states that a current CVOR would show a much improved record. The drivers who caused the most problems are no longer with the company. Training courses have been given to the drivers, in 2005, 2006 and 2009. There is a safety action plan in place, daily inspections must be performed before a vehicle takes to the road, there is a preventative maintenance system, and driver abstracts are obtained every 3 months.

The company intends to take its business on a new course and has already reduced its fleet to 3 vehicles; it plans to limit itself to 2 vehicles shortly. Instead of transport, the company will focus on landscaping and its commercial vehicles will only be used to service its landscaping clients by delivering materials or equipment needed for that job. Mr. St. Denis pointed to a limitation of the company's insurance policy and its credit line with the bank as consistent with its intention of having only 2 vehicles and a specific client and business base going forward. Mr. St. Denis gave evidence on the salaries paid to employees by the Applicant company and stated that jobs would be lost if the Applicant could no longer have any commercially plated vehicles.

Mr. St. Denis pointed to improvements in the infraction rate of the Applicant's drivers between November 2009 and now. According to him, the infractions that have taken place have not been dangerous to public safety; two are in error and should not have been sent to the CVOR record.

On cross-examination, Mr. St. Denis testified that most of the systems he has in place were described to the Ministry at the September show cause meeting, though some had not yet been implemented to the current extent. The drivers are not required to present their logbooks at the end of each trip, only once a week with submission of their pay request; if the information in the logbooks is false, the driver will not be kept on and there are examples of when this has been done; however, Mr. St. Denis admitted that there were also instances where this has not been done.

Mr. St. Denis agreed that there had been numerous interventions since 2005 and that at each one the Applicant was asked to make changes and told it had to improve its performance. He also agreed that it was only after the cancellation and seizure order in October 2009 that many of the changes were implemented.

LAW

Under the Act, the Registrar and, by extension the Deputy Registrar, has a wide mandate to regulate the trucking industry with the objective of ensuring the safe operation of commercial vehicles.

Subsection 47 of the Act reads, in part:

> 47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210 (1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g)any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
> (2) As an alternative to a suspension or cancellation under subsection (1), the Registrar may, subject to section 47.1, restrict the number of commercial motor vehicles that may be operated by a holder of a CVOR certificate during the period that the Registrar stipulates.

...

(4) Where a restriction is imposed under subsection (2), the Registrar shall issue to the holder of the CVOR certificate fleet limitation certificates in a number equal to the number of vehicles permitted to be operated.

Subsection 16 of the Act includes certain definitions, including the following:

"CVOR cerficiate" means a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certifiecate issued under this Act; and

"operator" means the person directly or indirectly responsible for the operation of a commercial motor vehicle, including the conduct of the driver or, and the carriage of goods or passengers, if any, in the vehicle or combination of vehicles,

"safety record" means the safety record of an operator determine in accordance with the regulations.

Regulation 424/97, s.5(1) sets out 16 paragraphs describing the information contained in the safety record and at number 17 States "any compilation of analyses of any of the information in paragraphs 1 to 16".

5. (1) The safety record of an operator shall contain a record of the following information:

1. Any suspension or cancellation of the plate portion of the permit under clause 47 (1) (a) of the Act.

2. Any suspension or cancellation of the operator's CVOR certificate under clause 47 (1) (c) of the Act.

3. Any restriction imposed under subsection 47 (2) of the Act on the number of commercial motor vehicles that may be operated by the operator.

4. Any order under subsections 47 (8.1) or (10) of the Act for the seizure of the plate portion of permits, permits or number plates.

5. Any notice sent to the operator under section 47.1 of the Act.

6. Any warning letters sent by, or interviews held with, Ministry officials relating to the operator's safety performance and practices.

7. Any conviction related to the operation of a commercial motor vehicle or a vehicle drawn by it, for an offence committed by an operator, its agents or employees,

i. under this Act or under any other Act of the Legislature or the Parliament of Canada or any regulation or order made under any of them, or

ii. for an offence under a municipal by-law regulating traffic on the highways, or orders made under any of them, except convictions for offences for standing or parking.

8. The particulars of any accident involving a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator or a vehicle drawn by it.

9. The results of any inspection under section 82 or 82.1 of the Act or any similar inspection of a commercial motor vehicle operated by the operator, or a vehicle drawn by it.

10. The results of any investigation or inspection of the records of the operator,

i. under the Act, the Compulsory Automobile Insurance Act, the Dangerous Goods Transportation Act, the Public Vehicles Act, the Truck Transportation Act, the Fuel Tax Act, the Apprenticeship and Certification Act, 1998, the Motor Vehicle Transport Act (Canada), or

ii. under any other Act of the Legislature or the Parliament of Canada or any regulation or order made under any of them if, in the Registrar's opinion, the results of the investigation or inspection contain information described in paragraphs 14, 15 or 16, or relate to the safe operation of its commercial motor vehicles or vehicles drawn by them.

11. Any safety rating that has been assigned to the operator.

12. The results of any audits of the operator.

13. Any record from another jurisdiction in respect of the operator that is comparable to that described in any of paragraphs 1 to 12.

14. The operator's fleet size.

15. The total kilometres travelled by the fleet operated by the operator in each of,

i. Ontario,

ii. Canada outside Ontario, and

iii. outside Canada.

16. The total kilometres of projected travel by the fleet operated by the operator, as reported by the operator at any time, in each of,

i. Ontario,

ii. Canada outside Ontario, and

iii. outside Canada.

17. Any compilations or analyses of any of the information in paragraphs 1 to 16.

(2) The following do not form part of a safety record:

1. A record that is not in the possession of the Registrar.

2. A record originating outside of Ontario that, in the Registrar's opinion, is unreasonably difficult to refer to (because of its form or medium of storage, or for any other reason).

3. A record described in paragraphs 1 to 7 of subsection (1) if, in the Registrar's opinion, the record does not relate to the safe operation of the operator's commercial motor vehicles, or vehicles drawn by them.

There is an appeal from the decision of the Registrar to the Tribunal. Section 50 of the Act provides, in part:

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

> (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

As to jurisprudence, the Tribunal has had reference to the following:

Registrar of Alcohol and Gamin v. Hosseini-Rad [2004] O.J. No. 1273

Re Rainbow Cars (Tecumseh) Inc. [2008] O.L.A.T.D. No. 274

Muscillo Transport Ltd. V. Ontario (L.S.A.B.) [1997] O.J. No. 3111

Re R & S Transportation Inc. [2002] O.L.A.T.D. No. 278

Quick Service Transportation Ltd. v. Registrar of Motor Vehicles, LAT decision, (Oct. 2003)

Re 1295503 Ontario Inc. [2009] O.L.A.T.D. No. 226

DECISION

There are certain questions before the Tribunal.

1 – to paraphrase subsection 47(1) of the Act, does the Tribunal have reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of St. Denis Briques & Pierre Inc. (the Applicant), and the other evidence that the Tribunal considers relevant, that the Applicant will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the law;

2 – if the answer is yes, then what should be done?

The evidence is that there were warning letters and interviews, a plate suspension in 2004, a certificate suspension in 2005, numerous convictions against the operator and drivers, accidents involving the operator's vehicles, many failed inspections, two failed facility audits and a very poor safety rating over the period of many years. All of this is of concern to the Tribunal. So is the attitude of Mr. St. Denis in being unwilling to accept responsibility for the safety records of his operations, preferring to lament his inability to control the company's drivers, the injustice of being often the subject of inspection, and the alleged inaccuracies in calculating the compliance rates of the company's drivers and vehicles.

The Applicant is proposing to reduce the size of its fleet and points to improvements within his company's systems since October 2009. The Applicant is also proposing to limit the business of the Applicant company. However, ss. 47(2) and (4) of the Act mention a restriction of the number of vehicles for a specified time, not a restriction of the manner of use of commercial vehicles nor a reduced fleet for an unlimited time. Had the fleet reduction been combined with a new and improved safety monitoring and training program, fully implemented and sustained over some time, the Applicant might have restructured its operation to meet the required safety levels. However, the Applicant failed to take corrective action in time and the Tribunal notes that the time discussed here are the years since it was warned by letter in 2003 of the Ministry's concerns.

In light of the foregoing, the Tribunal has little confidence that Mr. St. Denis' proposed reduction in fleet size and implementation of the latest action plans will result in a trucking fleet that achieves the required levels of safe operation. As a result, the Tribunal believes that the CVOR certificate of the Applicant must be cancelled.

ORDER

By the authority vested in it under subsection 50(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal directs the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles to carry out his Cancellation and Seizure Order of October 7, 2009 against the Applicant St. Denis Briques & Pierre Inc.

AN APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE DEPUTY REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES UNDER THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8

TO SUSPEND COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATOR'S REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE #134-422-552 AND SEIZE THE PLATE PORTION OF PERMITS

TRIBUNAL: JANE WEARY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: LARRY YOUNG, Agent, representing the Applicant,

PATRICK S. MOORE, Counsel, representing the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF PRE-HEARING: April 28, 2010 Toronto

ORDER

By notice dated January 25, 2010, Maxi Transport Inc. (the "Applicant") appealed the Registrar's Suspension and Seizure Order dated January 14, 2010.

At the commencement of the hearing, Counsel for the Deputy Registrar advised that Minutes of Settlement had been executed by the parties whereby the Applicant had agreed to withdraw its appeal and the Registrar had agreed to delay imposition of its Order to May 10, 2010.

Upon reviewing the settlement agreement and having submissions of both parties, the Tribunal Orders:

1. Pursuant to s. 50(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, the hearing is dismissed and proceedings before the Tribunal hereby concluded.

OVER THE ROAD TRANSPORTATION INC.

Appeal under section 50.(1) of the Highway Traffic Act R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 from the Cancellation and Seizure Order of the Deputy Registrar pursuant to section 47(1) of the Act.

TRIBUNAL: E. ALAN GARBE, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: HARVEY CAPP Q.C., Counsel for the Applicant

PATRICK MOORE, Counsel for the Respondent

DATES OF HEARING: May 12, 13 & 14, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

This is a hearing of the appeal of the Applicant pursuant to section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c, H.8 ("HTA" or the "Act") of the cancellation and seizure order dated January 15, 2010, issued by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Carrier Safety and Enforcement Branch of the Ministry of Transportation (the "Respondent") under sections 47 and 47.1 of the Act

BACKGROUND

The cancellation and seizure order was issued to both Over the Road Transportation Inc. and On the Double World-Wide Courier Ltd. and it was confirmed by counsel for the Applicant that this appeal was only in respect of the cancellation and seizure order issued against Over the Road Transportation Inc. (the "Applicant").

On April 21, 2008, the Respondent issued a Notice of Suspension and Seizure proposing a 30 day suspension of the CVOR certificates issued to the Applicant. and On the Double World-Wide Courier Ltd. ("On the Double") and suspension of the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles registered in the name of the Applicant and On the Double.

After reviewing the submissions of the Applicant and On the Double made at a show cause meeting with the Respondent and the safety record of the parties, the Respondent issued a suspension and seizure order against the Applicant and On the Double dated June 6, 2008, which order was appealed to the Tribunal. The hearing of that took place on February 23, 2009 and it was the Tribunal's decision, after hearing the appeal, to direct the Respondent to carry out the suspension and seizure order ([2009], O.L.A.D. No. 73).

Pursuant to the decision of the Tribunal, the Respondent issued a suspension and seizure order, dated April 14, 2009, against the Applicant and On the Double. that the CVOR certificates and the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to the Applicant and On the Double World-Wide Courier Ltd. be suspended for 30 days and thereafter until all outstanding fines are paid. The order took effect on April 20, 2009.

On December 7, 2009, the Respondent issued a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure to the Applicant and On the Double. that the plate portion of permits for all commercial motor vehicles and trailers issued to the Applicant and On the Double. will be cancelled.

Once again submissions were made at a show cause meeting held on December 22, 2009 after which the Respondent issued the cancellation and seizure order dated January 15, 2010, which is the subject of this appeal.

The Applicant acknowledges that the Tribunal has no jurisdiction with respect to the suspension and seizure order dated April 14, 2009 and that that order remains in effect and does not form part of this appeal.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

It is the Respondent's position that the Applicant's CVOR certificate should be cancelled because of:

1. its poor safety record;
2. the number of convictions;
3. unpaid fines; and
4. the Applicant operating commercial motor vehicles while its CVOR certificates are under suspension.

The Applicant's position is that:

1. it is not operating commercial motor vehicles but is acting as a load broker;
2. it has taken steps to improve its management of drivers; and
3. it has been unable to pay the outstanding fines primarily because of one significant fine of approximately $25,000.00.

ISSUES

The issue before the Tribunal is should the Tribunal confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Registrar to issue a cancellation and seizure order to the Applicant?

EVIDENCE

At the commencement of the hearing, the Applicant's Appeal Books of Documents were entered as exhibits with Volume 1 being Exhibit 3 and Volume 2 being Exhibit 4. The Respondent's Books of Documents were also entered as exhibits with Volume I being Exhibit 5, Volume II being Exhibit 6 and the Respondent's Supplementary Exhibit Book being Exhibit 7.

During the course of the hearing, the terms "load broker", "freight broker" "transportation broker", "load intermediary" or "freight intermediary" were used by the witnesses. For the purpose of this decision the term "load broker" will be used to refer to such parties.

Michael Skelton

The first witness called by the Respondent was Michael Skelton, who is the vice-president of Skelton Truck Lines Ltd. ("Skelton") located in Sharon, Ontario which is a family owned business established in 1962. Mr. Skelton has been working for the company for 30 years. The witness stated that the company owns 45 trucks.

Mr. Skelton testified that the company did not act as a load broker, but there were occasions when the movement of goods would be assigned to other carriers which serviced areas where the goods were being shipped.

The witness referred to the "Load Link" website which provides a site for those seeking to have a load moved or for carriers looking for loads to carry to connect.

Mr. Skelton referred to the "load confirmation sheet" (Exhibit 6, Tab 28, page 306) pursuant to which the Applicant was to carry a load to Walpole, Massachusetts, on July 8, 2009. The witness testified that Skelton did not deal with load brokers but would arrange directly with another carrier to take a load, if necessary.

The witness testified that he did not know that the Applicant's CVOR certificate had been suspended and stated that, had he known, Skelton would not have used the Applicant to carry the load pursuant to the load confirmation sheet of July 7, 2009, nor to carry any other loads. Mr. Skelton stated that he learned of the Applicant's suspension in December 2009, as a result of a conversation with Marc Lavalle, an inspector with the Ministry of Transportation.

Mr. Skelton referred to the document at Tab 1 of Exhibit 7 which was described as being the print of a screen that appears as part of the Load Link website specific to the Applicant which was printed by an employee of Skelton on April 21, 2010. The witness testified that the document appearing at page 2, Exhibit 7, Tab 1 identifies the Applicant as having an Ontario CVOR number with authorities for Ontario. The document at page 3 indicates that the Applicant carries insurance and page 4 indicates the insurance particulars of the Applicant's insurance as recorded on the Load Link website. The witness stated that on the first screen the Applicant is identified under business type as "carrier", whereas if the Applicant was a load broker the designation would be "broker".

Mr. Skelton identified the document appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 3, as being a bill of lading for the shipment previously referred to whereby Skelton was contacted by a manufacturer to deliver freight to Walpole, Massachusetts. The witness testified that within Tab 3 there is documentation that shows that the Applicant carried freight on July 21, 2009 and September 30, 2009 and again on December 4, 2009 for Skelton. The witness testified that the invoices appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 4, represented invoices from the Applicant to Skelton for the transportation of goods previously identified.

On cross examination, Mr. Skelton confirmed that Skelton was a contract carrier as opposed to a common carrier and as such they provided services to named customers. He agreed that the document appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 3, page 10, is a contract for the carriage of goods.

Mr. Skelton acknowledged that US carriers could file on Load Link and if they held a US authority could identify themselves as a "carrier". The witness agreed that the document appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 2, page 10, being a bill of lading, was prepared by the shipper, in this case a manufacturer in Woodbridge, and therefore it would be the shipper who would identify Skelton as the carrier and that the load confirmation was then faxed to the "carrier". The witness acknowledged that the statement on the document appearing on Exhibit 7, Tab 3, page 11, which reads "you must ID as Skelton Truck Lines" was there to ensure that the party picking up the load identified itself as doing so on behalf of Skelton.

Mr. Skelton did not agree that such activity constituted "brokering" or that Skelton was acting as a load broker, but, in the opinion of the witness, Skelton was merely providing a service to its customer.

The witness acknowledged that after the meeting with Inspector Lavalle, Skelton ceased doing business with the Applicant.

When asked in reply to interpret the information contained on the Load Link website with respect to the Applicant, the witness observed that according to the site, the Applicant was still insured with a active CVOR certificate and that page 2 of the Load Link website indicated that the Applicant did not hold any US authorities.

Walter Stulp

Mr. Stulp, is a part owner of Here 2 There Freight Management Inc. ("Here 2 There") who has worked for the company since July 2007. Mr. Strulp stated that Here 2 There is a freight broker and as such does not own any trucks and is not a carrier. The witness stated that Here 2 There has a list of approximately 300 shippers and 400 to 500 carriers with which they regularly do business.

Mr. Stulp testified that he has been involved in the trucking industry for 25 years: 13 years driving and 12 years in administration.

The witness acknowledged that Here 2 There had brokered loads with the Applicant with the first such load being given to the Applicant in September of 2007. Mr. Stulp stated that Here 2 There ceased doing business with the Applicant when they were advised by the Ministry of Transportation that the Applicant did not have a CVOR certificate.

The witness identified the document appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 29, page 312, as being a Here 2 There carrier confirmation form which shows the Applicant as the carrier and that Richard Meyers is the contact person.

Mr. Stulp stated that he did not "double broker" as Here 2 There did not want different names to appear as carriers and they did not want to get into a dispute as to who is to be paid.

The witness testified that the Applicant did not advise Here 2 There that it was acting as a load broker. The witness stated that when he was advised by the Ministry of Transportation that the Applicant's CVOR certificate had been suspended, he called Richard Meyers who acknowledged the suspension.

Mr. Stulp stated that he considered that a CVOR certificate was required in order for the Applicant to fulfill its arrangement with Here 2 There.

The witness testified that the document appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 5, pages 25, 26, 27 and 28, constituted a carrier profile which was kept on record at Here 2 There and indicated the carrier's address, CVOR certificate number, insurance particulars and WSIB clearance.

Mr. Stulp stated that the certificate of insurance at page 28, Exhibit 7, Tab 5, indicates that the Applicant was insured for cargo and that such insurance would not be acquired by a load broker but would only be placed for a "carrier". The witness also testified that a load broker does not take out automobile liability insurance as was indicated by the said Exhibit as being in place for the Applicant.

Mr. Stulp stated that Load Link was used by Here 2 There to arrange for transportation and it was his belief that Here 2 There's profile on Load Link would identify Here 2

There as a “freight broker”. He acknowledged that in certain situations Load Link may indicate that a party was both a freight broker and a carrier.

On cross examination, Mr. Stulp was referred to the carrier confirmation form at Exhibit 6, Tab 29, page 312, and acknowledged he would not have prepared a bill of lading for that load. The witness testified that the carrier confirmation information indicated that the Applicant was carrying the load that a manufacturer was shipping to a construction company in Summerset, Maine.

The witness testified that he met with Inspector Lavalle, who asked questions about the relationship between Here 2 There and the Applicant. Inspector Lavalle recorded Mr. Stulp’s answers to those questions and Mr. Stulp signed the document. The witness testified that a load broker would not have licences and would not have US authorities. When the witness was asked again about “double brokering”, he replied that in such arrangements there were too many middle men, a situation which created problems.

Sherry Atallah

Ms. Atallah is a carrier safety rating administrator employed with the Ministry of Transportation since 2001. Her employment includes investigating complaints against carriers, interviewing carriers and preparing files for the issuance of orders against carriers. Ms. Atallah stated that Greig Beatty, the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles, makes the decisions on suspensions, but that she analizes records for potential suspensions and reviews CVOR applications which may be refused.

Ms. Atallah referred to the document at Exhibit 6, Tab 31, which is the Ontario CVOR and Carrier Safety Rating publication and explained the commercial vehicle operators registration program and the point system. Ms. Atallah stated that the CVOR system evaluates a carrier based on the “events” on its CVOR record including collisions, driver and carrier convictions, commercial vehicle safety alliance standard inspections and detentions and the results of facility audits.

The first step in evaluating a carrier is to assess its "on the road" performance based on three separate safety indicators which are the total collision points accumulated in a 24 month period; total conviction points accumulated in a 24 month period and the total inspection points accumulated in a 24 month period. The points accumulated in each category are compared to the point threshold values to determine the percentage of threshold. The witness stated that, when a carrier’s percentage of threshold is in excess of 100%, concerns were raised about that carrier’s compliance. In the case of the Applicant, it was the review of the Applicant’s safety record, including collisions, convictions and vehicle inspections, that gave rise to the issuance of the suspension and seizure order dated the 6th day of June, 2008 (Exhibit 5, Tab 1).

Ms. Atallah stated that the June 6th, 2008, suspension and seizure order had been appealed to the Tribunal and the decision of the Tribunal appears as Exhibit 5, Tab 2. This decision led to the issuance of the suspension and seizure order dated April 14, 2009, (Exhibit 5, Tab 3). Subsequently, the Notice of Cancellation and Seizure dated December 7, 2009, was issued for the reasons set forth in that order.

Ms. Attallah testified that the safety record review dated December 2009 (Exhibit 5, Tab 5) was prepared by Adele Di Paolo who is a carrier safety rating administrator employed with the Ministry of Transportation and who gave evidence at the hearing before the Tribunal on February 23, 2009. Ms. Atallah testified that according to the Integrated Court Offences Network inquiry system ("Icon"), the Applicant has outstanding fines which total $28,426.12 as at May 11, 2010.

Ms. Attallah testified that the first offence identified on the Icon Fine Report (Exhibit 5, Tab 6, page 17), referred to Section 107 of the Act, and the status "F" indicates a default in the payment of fines. The witness referred to Exhibit 5, Tab 6, page 19, and noted that the total fine for the offence referred to on that page was $25,055.00 as set forth on page 35 of that tab.

The witness explained that "IRP" stood for International Registration Plan, which is a treaty with the United States under which fees are paid based on the kilometres travelled.

Ms. Atallah referred to the documents appearing at Exhibit 5, Tab 7, pages 63 and 64 and testified that there was outstanding a total of $15,318.00 in unpaid amounts in the Applicant's IRP account and that amount remains the same as of May 11, 2010.

Ms. Atallah referred to the commercial vehicle operator summary appearing at Exhibit 5, Tab 9, page 7 and stated that the overall safety violation rate for the Applicant as at December 3, 2009 was 80.4% which is less than 100%. However, the witness stated that the Ministry of Transportation expected a decrease because the Applicant had not been operating and therefore there should be no events added to the record. Ms. Atallah indicated that although 100% was the bench mark, each case was examined individually to determine if there were significant events which required interventions.

The witness referred to a specific event which is recorded in the document at Exhibit 5, Tab 9, page 80, as a result of an inspection on September 11, 2009, which recorded "drive after 16 hours elapsed time" and "logs-false record of duty status". The witness stated that the inspection reports appearing at Exhibit 5, Tab 10, are imported into the CVOR report. Ms. Atallah noted that the inspection report appearing at page 144 of that tab refers to the Applicant as the operator/owner and one R.S. as the driver and is dated October 21, 2009. The inspection report at page 149 contains the statement that the lease agreement shows the operator as the Applicant which has a suspended CVOR certificate. An inspection report appears at page 146 of the same tab, dated September 8, 2009, identifies the Applicant as the operator/owner and one J.O. as the driver. The witness stated that this report indicates that the driver was unable to surrender a CVOR certificate and that the lease, manifest, IFTA, log book and truck all refer to the Applicant as the carrier.

Ms. Atallah testified that a driver can have a CVOR certificate and that the Applicant's drivers all have CVOR certificates. Confusion arises where a driver has a CVOR certificate and the truck is plated to that certificate; however when the logs and other documentation are reviewed, the Applicant is shown as the operator. The witness testified that the term "operator" refers to the party that is responsible for the conduct of the driver, the vehicle and the goods and cargo. Ms. Atallah testified that the situation involving the Applicant results in some events being recorded on the driver's record and some on the Applicant's record which impacts on the violation rates for both the driver and the Applicant.

The witness referred to the facility audit dated October 23, 2006 (Exhibit 5, Tab 13) and noted that the compliance rate for drivers was 22.2% whereas 55% was the minimum percentage needed. Ms. Atallah reviewed the various orders and steps that had been taken with respect to the Applicant, as referred to in the Background section of this decision, which led to the issuance of the cancellation and seizure order dated January 15, 2010, which is the subject matter of this appeal.

Ms. Atallah acknowledged, on cross examination, that the suspension and seizure order dated the 6th day of June, 2008, (Exhibit 5, Tab 1) does state, in the third recital, that outstanding fines against the Applicant were paid to the Courts. The witness acknowledged that the suspension in the order of June 6, 2008, did not take effect while the matter was under appeal and that the Applicant would be permitted to operate during the appeal period.

The witness was referred to the Truck Transportation Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. T.22, which was repealed on January 1, 2006. This Act required a person providing load brokerage services to have a load brokerage certificate. This Act also provided for special licences referred to a "single source" authority for commercial vehicles owned or leased by the person being granted the authority and the driver of such vehicles under one or more contracts or an "owner/driver authority" which authorizes the person being granted the authority to provide one commercial vehicle of which the licencee is the owner or lessee and the driver under one contract at any given time. The witness acknowledged that there was no restriction on the number of vehicles to which such authorities would apply.

Ms. Atallah was referred to page 19 of the Icon report appearing at Exhibit 5, Tab 6, and specifically the second record of conviction wherein a notation had been written of $25,050.00 and confirmed that under Section 190(8) of the Act the maximum fine was $20,000.00. The witness stated that the additional amount is with respect to a victim impact surcharge. Ms. Atallah acknowledged that she had never seen such a large fine.

Ms. Atallah acknowledged that the Applicant was not prohibited from acting as a load broker but disagreed that this was the Applicant's status in Ontario. As to the status of the Applicant with regards to being a licenced carrier in the United States or if the Applicant had received a satisfactory report from the United States Department of Transportation, Ms. Atallah had no direct knowledge.

With reference to the CVOR record (Exhibit 5, Tab 9) Ms. Atallah acknowledged that the rating of 80.4% was less than 100% and that according to the performance summary (page 78, Tab 9) on the vehicle side the results were very good; however, on the driver side, the results were poor for the 24 month period from November 4, 2007 to November 3, 2009.

Ms. Atallah testified that, at the time of those inspections, the logs indicated that the carrier was the Applicant and the driver would produce his own CVOR certificate.

The witness testified that a log book was to be in the name of the operator/carrier pursuant to O. Reg. 555/06 under the Act, Section 19(1) item number 9 which requires that the contents of the daily log shall set out the name of the operator for whom the driver is driving during the day. The witness acknowledged that the US carriers are required to carry logs.

The witness was referred to the documents at Exhibit 6, Tab 25 and acknowledged that one L.G. holds a CVOR licence. With respect to the commercial vehicle inspection report appearing at page 147 of the same tab, the witness confirmed that one A.M. has his own CVOR licence. The witness confirmed that the commercial vehicle inspection report appearing at pages 148 and 149 of the same tab indicated that there were no problems found during those inspections.

Marc Lavalle

Mr. Lavalle is an enforcement officer with the Ministry of Transportation in the Hamilton District Central Region and his responsibilities include conducting audits of log books, trip sheets, trip envelopes and receipts which are maintained by the driver and delivered to the operator at the end of a trip to ensure compliance with the Act .

Mr. Lavalle testified that he conducted a compliance verification of the Applicant on September 21, 22 and 23, 2009 and referred to his facility audit notes appearing as Exhibit 6, Tab 18. The witness stated that he was notified by the Ministry of Transportation that the Deputy Registrar wanted a facility audit conducted of the Applicant.

The witness testified that those facility audit notes were made by him of the facility audit of the Applicant. Mr. Lavalle stated that the opening portion of the audit notes referred to an e-mail sent to the United States Department of Transportation with the result that an audit was conducted by Adrian Cerras, a United States auditor, with Mr. Lavalle in attendance on September 21, 2009. The witness stated that Mr. Cerras conducted an “entrance interview” and advised that the two audits would be conducted at the same time. As set forth in the audit notice, Richard Meyers, the president of the Applicant, was present.

Mr. Lavalle testified that the bills of ladings he examined identified the Applicant as the carrier as did the log books. The witness stated that the Applicant maintained the log books at its address. During the course of the audit the Applicant provided Mr. Cerras with a driver and vehicle list, a copy of which was given to the witness and is part of the audit notes which appear at Exhibit 6, Tab 18, page 193. Mr. Lavalle stated that trip envelopes were provided by the carrier to the driver to keep records and other relevant documentation for each trip that the driver makes and, in the present situation, all such documentation showed the Applicant as the carrier, including fuel receipts.

Mr. Lavalle testified that where the driver is an operator/carrier, logs which are to be maintained at the place of business of the carrier, should be maintained at the place of business of each of the drivers. The logs for those drivers that were examined by the witness were at the Applicant's offices in Mississagua, Ontario.

The witness testified that the fact that the drivers had their own insurance did not change the witness's position that the Applicant was the carrier as indicated in the logs, trip envelopes, bills of lading, load confirmation sheets, fuel receipts and custom stamps.

Mr. Lavalle stated that within the Applicant's place of business there was a dispatch area which contained a black board and three to four people who were giving instructions where to pick up cargo. The witness stated that in his experience the dispatch office is the biggest part of any carrier's office operation whereas a load broker did not have the same need for a dispatch office.

Mr. Lavalle testified that he made copies of the contents of the trip envelopes as they were found in the offices of the Applicant.

The witness referred to the documents appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 19, which were extracted from the trip envelope for one M.G. which started with a driver's daily log dated May 31, 2009. The following pages (pages 195 to 200) set out each day's activity until the driver returned to the Mississauga office on June 6, 2009. The document appearing at page 201 was identified as being a gas receipt for fuel issued in the name of the Applicant.

Mr. Lavalle identified the document appearing at page 202 of the same tab as being a fax confirmation sheet which showed a third party confirming that the Applicant was the named carrier for a load going to Rockland, Massachusetts. Page 203 of the same tab was identified by the witness as being a bill of lading which contains a bar code with a pre-arrival review ("PAR") number in the name of the Applicant. The witness explained that each item travelling into Canada would have a PAR number.

The witness identified the document appearing at page 207 of the same tab as being a custom manifest which again had a PAR number in the Applicant's name, and the manifest showed the Applicant's name and address as the name and address of the owner of the truck. This document was identified as a “carrier’s certificate”. The witness referred to various other documents contained within the same Tab 19, Exhibit 6, all of which, in various ways, indicated that the Applicant was the carrier of record and it was the Applicant’s bar code that was used for all PARs on the load.

Mr. Lavalle explained that pursuant to a lease contract, one party may be allowed to use the PAR numbers of another party when moving a load, however, the witness was not sure if such a lease contract was applicable to the load referred to in Tab 19.

Mr. Lavalle referred to the documents appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 20, page 217 which were drawn from the trip envelope of J.O. The first document was a copy of the front of the trip envelope and was followed by copies of the driver’s daily trip logs, each of which identified the Applicant as the carrier. Other documents from the trip envelope, included an electronic manifest, carriers certificates from the United States Custom Service, order confirmations, carrier booking confirmations and bills of lading, all of which identified the Applicant as the carrier.

Mr. Lavalle reviewed the documents contained in the trip envelopes of the other drivers, all of which indicated that the Applicant was the carrier of record.

Mr. Lavalle made note of the fact that in each case the trips that were reviewed occurred over a period of May, June, August and September of 2009. The witness noted that in the driver’s daily logs, in virtually every instance, the Applicant or its address was shown as the home terminal and as the principal place of business.

Mr. Lavalle indicated that as part of his responsibilities he conducted audit interviews with various parties who had dealings with the Applicant. The witness referred to the audit interview appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 30 and specifically the document appearing at page 317 of the tab whereby a company confirmed that the Applicant is the carrier for a shipment from another company in Etobicoke to a company in Claysburg, Pennsylvania. The witness noted that the document stated, under the heading “Attention Carrier” that “this shipment must be carried by the <name deleted> assigned carrier”. The witness stated that this documentation was obtained from the files of the Applicant and was not included in a trip envelope.

The witness referred to documents appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 6, which are extracts from the records of the Ministry of Transportation and in particularly the commercial vehicle inspection report appearing at page 31, which identifies the Applicant as the carrier with respect to a truck tractor which had problems with its brakes and led to the equipment being impounded. Included with this documentation is a copy of a insurance binder (page 44), which shows the Applicant as being the insured and the coverage as being motor truck cargo coverage form, carriers liability, with the description of operation as being “Common Carrier General Freight”.

Mr. Lavalle made reference to a contract agreement appearing at Exhibit 7, Tab 6, page 46, between the Applicant, operating in the United States under motor carrier numbers and a Department of Transportation number, and an Ontario numbered company which agreement contains the statement that the Applicant is in business as a “freight carrier”. The witness referred to various obligations of the Applicant as set forth in the contract and particularly subparagraph 5.1(c), paragraphs 5.3 and 5.7 and stated that such obligations are consistent with the Applicant being an operator under the Act.

Mr. Lavalle referred to the Ministry of Transportation Inquiry Services search which indicated that as at April 29, 2010, that numbered company was not found in the carrier data base which means that that company did not have a CVOR certificate.

On cross examination, Mr. Lavalle testified that a carrier is required to keep driver’s logs for six months and thereafter stores them on site. The requirement is that during the first six months the logs must be stored at the place of business. The witness stated that there was no accommodation for records to be stored with a company with whom a driver has a contract for storage of records.

The witness acknowledged that the Ministry of Transportation had no authority to inspect the documents of a load broker; however, the Ministry does have authority if the company holds a CVOR certificate.

Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that he did not give prior notice of the September 2009 facility audit and stated that it was not necessary as Mr. Cerras had already made arrangements with the Applicant to conduct a Department of Transportation audit. The witness stated that on September 21, 2009, he entered the offices of the Applicant and explained that he was conducting a compliance verification audit. Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that Mr. Meyers, the president of the Applicant, seemed surprised and was advised by Mr. Lavalle that Mr. Lavalle would check that all drivers had commercial vehicle CVOR certificates. When asked if any charges had been laid as a result of the inspection which is recorded at Exhibit 7, Tab 6, page 31, the witness stated that he had no knowledge of any charges.

Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that he was aware that the Applicant’s drivers were to have CVOR certificates. The witness stated that he did not know if Mr. Cerras issued a satisfactory rating for the Applicant.

Mr. Lavalle stated that he has not seen a load broker identified as a operator/carrier on documentation he reviewed when doing other facility audits.

With respect to the bill of lading dated July 31, 2009, appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 20, page 236, Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that he did not know who prepared the bill of lading and could not comment on why the Applicant was shown as “Carrier”.

The witness was referred to the document that appears at Exhibit 6, Tab 23, page 272, where a company sent an e-mail to Mr. Meyers of the Applicant, which contained the statement “Customs paper work to be forwarded upon receipt of confirmation from Over the Road”. Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that it did not indicate in what capacity the Applicant was acting with respect to this shipment. The witness stated that it was not necessarily the shipper who prepares the bill of lading and related documents. Mr. Lavalle stated that he had advised his superiors of the manner in which he was conducting the compliance audit.

Mr. Lavalle, having expressed the opinion that load brokers did not have a dispatcher, was referred to the copy of a business card appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 29, page 313, which is a copy of the business card of Mr. Stulp, who is identified as being "Sales & Dispatch".

Mr. Lavalle acknowledged that there is no statute against allowing other carriers to use one carrier's PAR numbers or PAP numbers, the United States equivalent.

Richard Meyers

Mr. Meyers, president of the Applicant, testified that the business had originally started out as a courier service and grew in size to the point that they continued the business in the name of the Applicant and ceased using On the Double . Mr. Meyers stated that the Applicant had started to focus its trucking activities on the US in 2004.

The witness stated that the suspension order dated June 6, 2008 (Exhibit 5, Tab 1) ordered the Applicant's CVOR certificate be suspended for 30 days even though the order acknowledges, in the third recital, that outstanding fines were paid. The witness stated that the amount paid was $9,290.00 and confirmed that it was this suspension order that was appealed to the Tribunal.

Mr. Meyers testified that he missed the trial date with respect to the trial that imposed the fine of $25,050.00 and therefore the fine was imposed without hearing the Applicant's position.

The witness testified that the Applicant's CVOR certificate was surrendered on April 20, 2009, in accordance with the suspension order dated April 14, 2009 and that any vehicles operated by the Applicant under leases were returned to the lessor.

In reference to the list of drivers and vehicles (Exhibit 6, Tab 18, page 193) Mr. Meyers confirmed that it was a list of drivers, all of whom own plates and have their own CVOR certificates.

The witness stated that in a letter received from the US Department of Transportion on January 4, 2006 (Exhibit 4, Tab 15), the Applicant received notification that it had met all the requirements of the United States regulations to receive registration to operate interstate commerce within the United States.

Mr. Meyers identified a document referred to as "Company Snapshot" for the Applicant issued by the United States Department of Transportation, which was admitted as Exhibit 9, which showed a satisfactory rating for the Applicant according to the United States Department of Transport's rating system as of May 9, 2010.

Mr. Meyers testified that the Applicant was operating as a load broker in order to survive and the only alternative once its CVOR certificate was suspended, was to shut down the business. Mr. Meyers stated that the Applicant functioned as a load broker in Ontario and a carrier in the United States.

The witness stated that the drivers owned or leased their vehicles, had their own CVOR certificates and carried their own insurance. The Applicant granted permission for the owner/drivers to use the Applicant's PAR and PAP numbers when entering and leaving the United States. Mr. Meyers stated that trip leases were issued which gave the owner/drivers permission to operate under the Applicant's US authorities which were in the name of the Applicant. The witness stated that magnetic decals with the Applicant's logo, motor carrier number and United States Department of Transportation numbers were affixed when the trucks crossed into the United States. The witness stated that the Applicant must maintain logs so that the US Department of Transportation Inspectors could perform audits.

Mr. Meyers referred to copies of the CVOR certificates appearing at Exhibit 4, Tab 16, and specifically the CVOR certificate issued to J.K. and stated that this individual has his own CVOR licence and engaged the driver R.S. as a driver. The witness identified the certificate of insurance for J.K. which appears as the second page of Exhibit 4, Tab 17 as an example of the insurance carried by owner/drivers.

Mr. Meyers identified a copy of the invoice appearing as the third page of Exhibit 4, Tab 18, being invoice number 3 from an Ontario corporation with the address of J. K. addressed to the Applicant as being an invoice for carrying freight. The Applicant referred to the standard truck lease, a copy of which is at Exhibit 4, Tab 20 and stated that this was the approved form of lease used to permit one party to use another party's US authorities. The witness referred to paragraph 9 of the standard truck lease which requires that the lessee remove all signs and indications and other evidence of names and certificate numbers belonging to the lessee upon the termination of the lease and stated that this was the reason why the magnetic signs were removed.

Mr. Meyers referred to the letter of the Ministry of Attorney General to the Tribunal dated November 4, 2008 in which the Applicant's violation rate was recalculated based on a reduced number of convictions which resulted in an overall safety violation rate of 108.67%. The witness stated that it was shown in the Commercial Vehicle Operator Summary dated December 3, 2009, that the overall safety violation rate had fallen to 80.4%. The witness stated that the reduced overall safety violation of 108.67% was not taken into consideration in the decision of this Tribunal dated March 31, 2009, wherein the evidence given by the witness for the Respondent was that the violation was 176% which was extremely high even though the Ministry knew at the time that the rate had been reduced.

Mr. Meyers testified that he hired Larry Kopp, who previously worked for the Applicant, and who has a proven record for managing transportation companies, to maintain safety and compliance standards for the Applicant.

Mr. Meyers testified that with Mr. Kopp's assistance the Applicant was introducing new systems to ensure that logs were properly maintained and to implement safety measures.

Mr. Meyers stated that the financial position of the Applicant had not allowed it to pay its fines but that they were planning to do so over the next 12 months.

With respect to the past conduct of the Applicant, Mr. Meyers acknowledged that errors had been made but felt that the new procedures being introduced would avoid such mistakes in the future.

On cross examination, Mr. Meyers stated that the Applicant surrendered its CVOR certificate and plates in April 2009 and required its drivers to obtain their own CVOR certificates. The witness acknowledged that when its CVOR certificate was suspended, the Applicant became a load broker.

Mr. Meyers stated that the financial loss suffered by the Applicant from returning leased vehicles when its CVOR certificate was surrendered affected the ability of the Applicant to pay its fines.

Mr. Meyers referred to the list of drivers appearing at Exhibit 6, Tab 18, page 193, and acknowledged that the units assigned to the drivers were the same both before and after the Applicant surrendered its CVOR certificate. Mr. Meyers stated that the drivers were independent entities and as owner/operators they do what they want. The witness admitted that nothing had changed for the owner/operators after April 2009, if they had their own plates, CVOR certificates and insurance.

Mr. Meyers stated that in Ontario the Applicant acted as load broker and in the United States as a carrier. The witness stated that he never told anyone of the change in status after April 2009, as it never came up.

It was the witness' testimony that the Applicant was shown as a "carrier" on Load Link as it did not separate the US portion of its activities from its Canadian activities for the purposes of the profile on Load Link. The witness stated that he told Mr. Lavalle that the Applicant was a load broker after the suspension had become effective.

Mr. Meyers expressed the opinion that the inspections which occurred in Vineland were overly aggressive in comparison, by way of example, with inspections in London where the Applicant did not have problems with inspectors.

Mr. Meyers stated that truck leases, also referred to as trip leases, were signed before the first trip and kept on file and that there was one truck lease per truck.

Mr. Meyers explained that the standard truck lease, an example of which appears at Exhibit 4, Tab 20, was in effect from the date the lease started to the end of the year. Mr. Meyers stated that the truck lease was only applicable to the Applicant with respect to its motor carrier number and only as a motor carrier in the United States.

The witness referred to the first recital under terms and conditions wherein reference is made to the lessee as being a motor carrier engaged in the transportation of property in interstate commerce and stated that this meant the lease was only applicable to the U.S. With respect to the issuance of insurance, Mr. Meyers stated that insurance was necessary for its activities in the United States and that the Applicant had to have insurance in place to use the United States authorities.

Mr. Meyers explained that under US regulations it was a requirement that logs be maintained by the Applicant and that it is his understanding that Mr. Lavalle had no problem with the records being maintained at the Applicant's office. The witness explained that each driver had copies of his own logs and kept his own set of records. Mr. Meyers acknowledged that if a driver required assistance in obtaining licences, the Applicant would provide such assistance.

Larry Kopp

Mr. Kopp is a vice-president of the Applicant and is responsible for safety, compliance and dispatch and has held that position since December 2009. Mr. Kopp testified that he has over 30 years in the trucking industry in various capacities.

Mr. Kopp testified that before taking the position, he obtained a firm commitment from Mr. Meyers that the Applicant was committed to a new approach to compliance matters. An example of this new approach, Mr. Kopp referred to a document appearing at Exhibit 3, Tab 7, which is an e-mail from consultants who will process the trip reports; file tax returns; audit driver's logs and issue letters if errors were found. Mr. Kopp stated that the previous company did obligatory checks but there was no follow up.

The witness referred to the document appearing at Exhibit 3, Tab 8, which explains in greater detail the services offered by Transaudit Tax Consultants Inc. Mr. Kopp referred to the document appearing at Tab 9 of the same exhibit titled "Owner Operator and Driver Administrator's Manual" as an example of the new policies which would be implemented when the Applicant has its CVOR certificate back. Mr. Kopp stated that these types of policies had been used with other companies and proven successful.

In addition, Mr. Kopp referred to the contractor's hand book (Exhibit 3, Tab 10) a PowerPoint presentation (Exhibit 3, Tab 11), trip planning PowerPoint presentation (Exhibit 3, Tab 12) and preventative maintenance PowerPoint presentation (Exhibit 3, Tab 13) as further examples of the actions that the Applicant would take to ensure compliance once it has its CVOR certificate. The witness also referred to the contractor/driver application form (Exhibit 3, Tab 14) and the attachments to this application which would be required from all drivers for the Applicant. Mr. Kopp stated that it made more sense for the Applicant to control all aspects of its operations rather than merely be an overseer.

On cross examination, Mr. Kopp testified that he had previously worked for the Applicant in 2006 for 3 or 4 months from February to April to address specific problems, but that now he was working full time for the Applicant. Mr. Kopp testified that he saw his role as bringing the Applicant into compliance and part of that was to have the Applicant pay its outstanding fines.

On cross examination, Mr. Kopp stated that the various manuals referred to above had not been distributed to the drivers and that the PowerPoint presentations had not been conducted as the drivers were not under the control of the Applicant. The witness stated that the lease agreements were being revised to improve compliance.

Mr. Kopp stated that the standard truck lease (Exhibit 4, Tab 20) grants the right to use the Applicant's authorities whereas the Contractor Agreement (Exhibit 7, Tab 6, Page 46) ensured that the owner/operator operating under the Applicant's US authorities followed the rules and regulations. Mr. Kopp stated that the owner/operators worked independently, subject to the right to use the Applicant's US authorities and the obligations which were attached to such use. The Contractor Agreement was not applicable in Canada as the owner/operators were operating under their own authorities. Mr. Kopp was referred to Paragraph 1.2 of the Contractor Agreement which obligated the owner/operator, defined as being the "contractor", to make at least two round trips per week and the witness explained that the purpose of that paragraph was for the benefit of the owner/operator.

When asked to explain the purpose of subparagraph 5.1 c) of the Contractor Agreement, Mr. Kopp explained that as the Applicant was a Canadian company and the owner/operators were being paid by the Applicant in Canada, the Applicant had to ensure that the owner/operators complied with Canadian legislation.

Mr. Kopp stated that a customer would not be told that the Applicant was not the carrier and many of the documents were filled in by the shipper, who may not be aware that the Applicant's CVOR certificate was suspended.

LAW

The applicable sections of the Act are:

> 16 (1)
> "CVOR certificate" means a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate issued under this Act;

> "operator" means the person directly or indirectly responsible for the operation of a commercial motor vehicle including the conduct of the driver of, and the carriage of goods or passengers, if any, in, the vehicle or combination of vehicles;
> "safety record" means the safety record of an operator determined in accordance with the regulations;
> (2) No person shall drive or operate a commercial motor vehicle on a highway unless the operator is the holder of a valid CVOR certificate.
>
> 47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
> (b) a driver's licence; or
> (c) CVOR certificate, on the grounds of,
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210(1) or (2); or
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d) ,(e) or (f).

The appeal comes to this Tribunal by virtue of s. 50(1) of the HTA which provides:

> 50(1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

> (2) The [Tribunal] may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

DECISION

Although the Respondent raised a variety of reasons for issuing the cancellation and seizure order dated January 15, 2010, which is the subject matter of this hearing, it is clear from the evidence introduced and the closing argument that the Respondent's primary reason for cancellation and seizure is that it believes that the Applicant is carrying on the business of a carrier at a time when its Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration Certificate has been suspended in contravention of the Act.

The Applicant maintains that it is doing business in Ontario as a load broker and therefore is not required to have a CVOR certificate or any other authorities, and carries on business in the United States as a carrier where it does hold appropriate authorities. The difficulty confronting the Applicant is the definition of an "operator" as set forth in Section 16 of the Act. The party that needs to have a CVOR certificate is the party who directly or indirectly is responsible for the operation of a commercial motor vehicle including the conduct of the driver, the vehicle and the carriage of goods.

The factual issue to be determined is whether or not the Applicant is directly or indirectly responsible for the conduct of those persons who are its drivers and the vehicles which they drive.

It is interesting to note that in the decision of this Tribunal dated March 31, 2009, the Tribunal stated at paragraph 37;

> The evidence is clear that Mr. Meyers, as director and manager of the Carrier does not operate a system of management wherein he exerts effective and diligent control of the trucks and drivers which operate under his CVOR licence. Instead, Mr. Meyers operates what is in effect a brokerage of independent drivers with their own vehicles operating under their own control. As a consequence, the Applicant is unable to effectively comply with the form oversight necessary to meet his obligations under the Act (emphasis added).

The evidence produced during this hearing leads to the conclusion that the Applicant has not changed its methods of operation from what existed at the time of the Tribunal hearing in February 2009, except that instead of operating under its own CVOR certificate, the Applicant now requires each of its drivers to have their own CVOR certificate. In page after page of the documentation, the Applicant is recorded as being the carrier and although it is possible in certain situations that third parties may have completed this documentation, it is clear from the evidence produced that even the drivers, in certain circumstances, looked to the Applicant as the “carrier”. Mr. Meyers acknowledged that customers were not told that the Applicant’s CVOR certificate was suspended with the result that they would believe that the Applicant was carrying on the business as it had in the past.

The dilemma that the Applicant finds itself in is that it did not exert sufficient control over its trucks and drivers when they were operating under the Applicant’s CVOR certificate to ensure compliance, but maintains sufficient control over the trucks and drivers that it falls within the definition of an “operator”.

When reviewing the evidence of Mr. Skelton and that of Mr. Stulp, it is clear that the difference in their business activities is reflected in the documentation that is generated when a shipment is arranged. Such a distinction does not exist between the activities of the Applicant when it operated under its own CVOR certificate and when it operated as a “load broker”.

Although the standard truck lease and the Contractor Agreement may be considered by the Applicant as “agreements of convenience” to enable the Applicant to operate as a carrier under its US authorities, both documents place obligations upon the Applicant which do not terminate when the drivers cross back into Canada from the United States and those obligations are inconsistent with the activities of a load broker.

Indeed, it may be that the necessity to meet certain requirements of the United States Department of Transportation precludes a company from acting as a carrier in the United States and merely as a load broker in Canada. A simple matter such as the location of logs would create contradictions between the US Department of Transportation requirements and those of a CVOR certificate holder in Ontario.

After considering the evidence produced at this hearing, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant is an "operator" carrying on business without a CVOR certificate contrary to the provisions of the Highway Traffic Act.

ORDER

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under Section 50 of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the decision of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to issue the cancellation and seizure order dated January 15, 2010.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8

TO SUSPEND THE CVOR CERTIFICATE AND TO SEIZE THE PLATE PORTION OF PERMITS

TRIBUNAL: DONALD BENNINGER, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: MARK REYNOLDS, Paralegal, appearing on behalf of Anpro Excavating and Grading Ltd. (the "Applicant")

DOUGLAS LEE, Counsel, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles ("the Registrar")

DATES OF HEARING: July 8 and September 2, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant appeals from the decision of the Registrar to suspend its Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration ("CVOR") for a period of fourteen (14) days. The decision also provides for the seizure of the plate portion of permits issued by Ontario.

The statutory authority for the actions of the Registrar and the jurisdiction of the Tribunal are set out in sections 47, 47.1 and 50 of the Highway Traffic Act (the Act). The Tribunal will set them out here for clarity.

> Suspension and cancellation of licence, etc., general
>
> 47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
> … or
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
> on the grounds of, …
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety;
> Power to seize number plates

(8.1) If the plate portion of a permit is suspended or cancelled under clause (1) (a), the Registrar may order that the plate portion of the permit or the number plates issued in connection with the plate portion of the permit be seized and any police officer or officer appointed for carrying out this Act may seize the plate portion of the permit and the number plates and deliver them to the Ministry.

Definitions, commercial motor vehicle etc.

(9) For the purposes of this section and section 47.1,
"commercial motor vehicle", "operator" and "safety record" have the same meanings as in subsection 16 (1)..

Notice of proposed action

47.1 (1) Before taking any action under clause 47 (1) (a) or (c) or subsection 47 (2), the Registrar shall notify the person whose plate portion of a permit or CVOR certificate is to be affected of his or her proposed action.

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

Powers of Tribunal

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

BACKGROUND

On January 12, 2010 the Deputy Registrar issued a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure of the CVOR certificate issued to Anpro Excavating and Grading Ltd. and to seize the plate portion of the permits (Exhibit 3, Tab 10).

The Notice was followed by a Show Cause meeting, which occurred on February 11, 2010 and the details of that meeting are found in Exhibit 3, Tab 17. As a result of that meeting and Anpro Excavating and Grading Ltd. ("Applicant") submissions, the Deputy Registrar issued a revised decision wherein he states that while he has:

> "considered your submissions and your safety record I remain concerned for highway safety."

He had reduced the original Notice of Cancellation and Seizure to a Suspension and Seizure Order for a period of 14 days dated March 10, 2010. It is this Order that is the subject of this Appeal.

THE EVIDENCE

Counsel for the Respondent, Douglas Lee, provided an opening statement in which he referred to the poor safety record of the Applicant. He indicated this company had been subject to previous notices due to its poor safety record and poor safety performance ratings. He noted that an original Notice of Cancellation and Seizure had been revised to a 14 day Suspension Order.

The Applicant's agent, Mark Reynolds, provided an opening statement in which he indicated the Applicant does not deny that the record is poor. However, he stated this company has turned the corner and has taken steps to improve. Thus, the Applicant believes the sanction is unwarranted.

Summary of Testimony of Jim Kirchner

The witness for the Deputy Registrar was Jim Kirchner, who testified that he has been employed with the Ministry of Transportation (the "Ministry") as a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator since July 2007. He stated this position entails analysis of safety records and file documents, attending the show cause hearing and keeping records of the content of the meeting. He reviews file documents, performs interviews and develops action plans to assist carriers to improve their record. He testified that he had prepared the file concerning the Applicant and presented it to the Deputy Registrar for possible sanction. During cross-examination he stated he had worked as an enforcement/field officer for several years prior to commencing his present position. Furthermore, Mr. Kirchner in his testimony explained the Carrier Safety System through a brief review of the Ministry's publication titled "Commercial Motor Vehicle Operator's Registration (CVOR) and Carrier Safety Rating Public Guideline (Exhibit 3, Tab 21). This publication describes the ratings that are applied to operators of commercial motor vehicles using Ontario's roadways.

These ratings identify the safety performance of commercial vehicle operators. The five ratings, which the Registrar may assign, are:

- Excellent
- Satisfactory
- Satisfactory – Un-audited
- Conditional
- Unsatisfactory

These ratings are calculated by an automated system that contains information on a carrier's performance by tracking convictions, inspections, and other relevant information. He testified that this document outlines the responsibility of the CVOR carrier which includes the conduct and qualifications of the driver and resolving safety issues (Exhibit #3 Tab.21, page 210 for a more complete list).

The Registrar takes all the information, including violation rates and accidents involving property damage or injuries and convictions resulting from a driver's performance into account when reviewing and analyzing an operator's performance and rating. Violation rates are based upon accidents, convictions, inspections and mileage of an operator, as well as other factors over a 24 month moving window period. Any single violation is kept on the carrier‘s record for two years so the carrier‘s violation rate (“VR”) as a percentage of its safety threshold fluctuates as violations are accrued or drop off the record.

Mr. Kirchner testified that a violation rate exceeding 35% of the operator’s threshold will trigger a warning letter, and an operator’s violation rate exceeding 65% of its threshold will trigger a facility audit and a violation rate of 85% means an interview is required. A violation rate that exceeds 100% of its threshold will result in sanctions being considered. A conditional rating will be applied to an operator where the violation rate of that operator is in excess of 65% but less than 100%. Such a rating he stated is considered a very poor rating, close to the stage of sanction. The "threshold" represents 100% of a carrier’s allowable violation rate based on industry performance data.

He testified the violation rate is the measure of a carrier’s safety performance as compared to the carrier’s threshold, and expressed as a percentage of the threshold. Until April 2, 2007, the threshold level was calculated on the basis of the carrier‘s fleet size and kilometres travelled in Ontario. Since that date, it has been based on kilometres travelled in Canada.

Mr. Kirchner testified that during a facility audit it was found that the affiliate company of the Applicant had over $8,500.00 in unpaid fines. He stated this is not a matter for this hearing.

Mr. Kirchner during his history review of the Applicant stated in July 2008 the Registrar had issued a Notice of Suspension and Seizure based on a Safety Record review dated July 2008, a Commercial Vehicle Operating Record, a Facility Audit findings dated May 14, 2008 and an ICON report of unpaid fines. This Order was set aside on July 29, 2008, as the operator paid these fines. He stated during cross-examination when an order is set aside it is not a sanction until closed as a sanction, but, it can be used as an intervention when reviewing a carrier history.

Mr. Kirchner testified the Registrar had issued warning letters to the Applicant regarding the safety record in 1991,1999, 2004 and 2007 and they had interviews in 2003 and 2010.In addition there were facility audits in 1999 which the company passed but on the facility audit in May 2008, the Applicant failed.

Mr. Kirchner drew to the attention of the Tribunal the detailed documentation at Tab 13, pages 37 through 99 outlining the safety record over the past five years which demonstrated a recurring theme of a significant number of collisions, convictions and weight infractions. Some of these collisions caused injuries and one was a major incident involving several vehicles and personal injuries. These incidents resulted in charges and convictions which affected the point system and the Applicant’s poor performance rating.

The Commercial Vehicle Inspection Reports (Tab #15) for a period from December 6, 2007 to December 5, 2009, shows the Applicant’s vehicles being overloaded, axle overweight and load in excess of the permit. Mr. Kirchner testified this is a concern to the Registrar and to public safety as these loads take longer to stop and damage road surfaces. These infractions and convictions also have a negative effect on the Applicant's rating.

In the minutes of the Show Cause meeting dated February 17, 2010, the action plan stated the Applicant had initiated driver training, implemented a policy on no cell phone use while operating company vehicles, as well as installing side mirrors with a better viewing range. This did result in fewer convictions in 2009. Furthermore, this improvement allowed the Registrar on March 10, 2010, to significantly reduce the sanction.

During cross-examination, Mr. Kirchner stated the Ontario CVOR and Carrier Safety Rating: Public Guideline ("Guideline") is partially available on the Ministry web-site. He stated the full document is available to the public upon request at the Sanctions and Investigation Office.

When asked if the system had changed Mr. Kirchner stated it had changed in 2007 and the assignment of the points system was done in conjunction with the National Safety Code and with the stakeholder, namely some carrier representatives. He continued stating the Registrar used the collision rating as a predictor of future collisions.

When asked if other excavators who load their own trucks have as high an infraction rate as the Applicant. Mr. Kirchner replied he had not seen any as high as that of the Applicant.

During cross-examination Mr. Kirchner was asked why no interventions, like warning letters or interviews, had been issued since 2008 and yet the Registrar moved to the sanctions such as the Notice of Suspension and Seizure. His response was that the Registrar had tried interventions in the past including the Set Aside Order and they did not achieve the desired outcome, specifically a significantly improved safety record. He continued stating the violation rate was high, over 100% so the Ministry took action when the sanction was warranted.

During cross-examination Mr. Kirchner explained the inspection levels: level 1 = full mechanical and full driver inspection; level 2 = walk around the vehicle and driver inspection; level 3 = driver only; level 4 = result of police investigation and/or special investigation; level 5 =inspection of vehicle. Mr. Kirchner stated the Applicant has 28 vehicles in his fleet and that vehicle maintenance is not an issue.

Summary of Testimony of the Applicant's President

The President of the Applicant testified. Prior to the company restructuring nearly 10 years ago he was Vice-President of Anpro Excavating Contractors Ltd. He acknowledged that the company has a poor safety record.

He stated that he remembered the facility audit completed by the Ministry auditor in May 2008 and they failed the audit because they had not completed the paperwork required to record the hours of work for the drivers. But he continued there were no drivers who had exceeded the hours of work limitation. He testified he was not aware the Ministry had required a new form of record keeping. He stated that since then, he had hired an ex-MTO officer to train the drivers, his service manager and him so the records are properly completed now.

The Applicant testified that his company was the subject of a Notice of Suspension and Seizure Order in July 2008, for record keeping and unpaid fines in the amount of $8,518.40. Upon review, he agreed to pay $2,040.00 in unpaid fines because they applied to his present CVOR, but he refused to pay the balance as they applied to the prior company called Anpro Excavating Contractors Ltd. and it terminated existence in 1990.He stated after the Registrar advised him that his present CVOR would be suspended he decided he would reluctantly pay the outstanding balance of these fines. Once he had paid the fines in full the Registrar set aside the Notice of Suspension and Seizure dated July 27, 2008.

He stated he did not understand why he had to pay the fines from the prior company and now thought his present CVOR was valid until he received the Notice of Cancellation and Seizure from the Registrar dated January 12, 2010, indicating the Registrar was not satisfied with the Applicant's safety record.

He testified he attended the Show Cause meeting in February 2010 with the Registrar who wanted to know why his points were so high and what was his plan to resolve these safety concerns. He acknowledged he recognized there were some problems and made a commitment to improve. He stated he had some overload tickets in 2008 and had contracted with and paid an organization to represent his company in court. However, he testified the company went out of business and never represented him. They would not represent the Applicant in court or advise him of the court dates and thus the high number of points for convictions.

The Applicant testified that since his show cause meeting he has arranged a defensive driving course for his drivers, replaced the mirror system on his trucks to correct the vision problems and purchased new trucks with better vision lines over the hood. He stated he has made his loader operators aware of the overloading issue and his brothers and foremen are aware to watch and ensure the loads are not overweight and that the weight is equally distributed on each axle. These measures, he testified, have improved his conviction points from 77 in 2008 to 17 in 2009 and 11 in the last year. He stated in 39 inspections he has only had one out of service for a flat tire and he agreed with the witness for the Registrar that the maintenance of company vehicles is not an issue and he stated it will not be an issue in the future.

He testified that every three months he makes his drivers aware of conduct on the roads and the need to report any defects in the trucks such as ripped tarps. As well, twice a year he reviews the driver's record with the service manager.

During cross-examination, he stated this company is a family business. He is president, his wife manages the office and two or three of his brothers are managers. They work in the office and can supervise the loader operators and the drivers if they see issues that need to be addressed.

When asked about the high number of accidents/collisions by two of his drivers he testified that the Tribunal those two drivers are no longer employed by his company and this will help improve his point rating in the future.

He agreed that his drivers may have been on a cell-phone at the time of the accident but there is no proof of this. He stated the drivers denied they were using their cell-phones at the time and there is no way to prove otherwise unless with the new law, which came into effect in March 2010, they are charged by the police. He stated he has a "no cell-phone while driving" policy and the drivers are aware of it but it is difficult to enforce.

The Applicant stated he has a discipline policy but when asked by the Tribunal he could not explain it and indicated it depended on the circumstances. No written evidence of this policy was presented to the Tribunal.

When questioned regarding his company's overall violation rate increasing by 2% after the set aside order the Applicant stated it had a lot to do with the convictions registered against his company when the agency he hired to defend them in court failed to show and the appeal time had elapsed before he became aware of the decision of the court.

Submissions

In his closing submission, Mr. Lee explained this Applicant was subject to the scrutiny of the Registrar not for vehicle maintenance issues or hours of work violations but for a poor safety record and lack of meaningful response during the time period. He advised the Tribunal that this company reacts to situations and is not proactive in preventing collisions and convictions. He explained the discipline policy is inconsistent and has no meaning since a driver involved in two accidents in a month was only suspended from work for one day and yet a driver operating a vehicle with an expired licence was suspended for three days. He pointed out there is no redress regarding chronic problems concerning overloading, collision and convictions.

Mr. Lee referred the Tribunal to the Court of Appeal for Ontario decision R. v Nickel City Transport (Sudbury) Ltd. (1993),14 O.R.(3d)115 paragraph 38 which states:

> "The Crown argues that it should be the obligation for the commercial carrier to put in place a reasonable system to avoid a contravention of the law. According to the Crown, reliance on the shipper to load the vehicles properly was an abdication of this responsibility, and therefore incapable of amounting to due diligence as a matter of law. The Crown further argues that the respondent was fully aware that a driver could not accurately determine weight distribution visually, and therefore should have provided > some method of weighing the vehicles, such as providing a portable scales or making arrangements with an owner of a commercial scales."

And paragraph 39 the Court states:

> "Allowing an operator to argue that, by conducting a visual inspection he has shown due diligence in the circumstances, would be setting the standard too low…..At the very least, a method of checking compliance before travelling should be used which is more reliable than a mere visual inspection."

Mr. Lee explained that casting blame for the numerous convictions in court was due to the lack of representation by the contracted agency does not excuse the Applicant from its responsibility to follow up and if necessary appeal the decisions within an extended time frame. The Applicant, he argued, decided to "bite the bullet" when it should have tried to get the convictions overturned.

Mr. Lee explained that the measures taken by the Registrar before issuing the Notice of Suspension and Seizure do not seem to be enough for the Applicant to take corrective action and improve the company's overall performance to a level where the Registrar believes safety is not an issue. He indicated the Registrar did reduce the sanction from cancellation to a fourteen day suspension after the show cause hearing in February 2010.

In his closing submission, Mr. Reynolds argued there is some monitoring of the cell-phone use when the Applicant and his managers are driving around either with the driver on occasion or viewing the drivers near the job site. He indicated the design of the hoods on some trucks were a possible cause for some of the accidents. Therefore, the Applicant has now changed many of the company trucks to a different model with significantly improved visual lines. In addition, the trucks have had the mirror system changed to provide better visibility. This was completed before the Notice of Suspension and Seizure was issued.

Mr. Reynolds advised the Tribunal that although there is no written action plan, he foresees actions to improve the company safety record and provided the example that there has been only one weight violation in 2009.

Regarding collisions, Mr. Reynolds argued that there were eleven collisions with no charges being laid, yet the points were arbitrarily assigned to the company record.

He submitted that:

> "it takes two years for a violation rate to go to 0%".

In summary, he said there has been significant improvement and there should not be a sanction, or if so, the company should be allowed to keep four trucks, namely the float, the water, the fuel trucks and one dump truck on the road so the that excavator operators are not penalized.

ANALYSIS

Without repeating evidence at length, the Tribunal notes that it made significant review of and also gave due consideration to the facts contained in Exhibits 3. The evidence regarding the Applicant's safety record and poor performance was not disputed and the details documented by the Registrar are accepted as fact. The Agent for the Applicant based his evidence and submissions on the Applicant's improving performance and the measures the company has taken since the Notice of Suspension and Seizure Order has been issued, specifically the driver defensive training day in March 2010.

The matter of the non-payment of fines by the Applicant is not an issue for this hearing other than to demonstrate the Applicant's history and that it does not act until it has no other alternatives to protect the business and the registration. The matter for consideration at this hearing is whether the safety performance record of the Applicant is acceptable and whether the proposed sanction is appropriate. It is evident the Registrar took reasonable steps to bring this poor performance to the attention of the Applicant through its program of escalating notice, specifically starting with the warning letter of October 22, 2004 which asked for "immediate action". Also in 2007 a warning letter was issued and in 2008 there was a facility audit which, the company failed and this lead to a Notice of Suspension and Seizure being issued and eventually being set aside. Then after the unpaid fines had been satisfied the safety concerns remained. In fact, the overall performance rating got worse by almost 2%. The evidence is that the CVOR record of the Applicant accumulated additional convictions and collisions which increased the overall safety VR to an unacceptable level.

The Registrar's efforts were not able to improve the record. On the other side, the Applicant's position is that its recent remedial attempts indicate the sanctions proposed by the Registrar are unnecessary to achieve the goal of highway safety. It submits that it is improving its safety record but additional time is needed in order that the 24 month sliding window can move forward. The fact that a carrier has finally reacted to a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure or a Show Cause meeting should not shield it from the poor record that triggered those events in the first place. The Registrar's reconsideration after the Show Cause meeting and his decision to reduce the sanction from cancellation to suspension notice gives the Applicant the opportunity to prove it is able to continue on a path to improve its overall performance rating by significantly reducing its number of incident, accidents and convictions. As well the facility audit appears now to be acceptable.

The Tribunal notes that the present performance is commendable but it is outside the timeframe that the Notice of Suspension and Seizure as considering and outside the limits of this hearing. The Act looks forward by looking back at the safety record and an operator should be proactive in their practices rather than "reactive". Many of the practices and responses to charges and convictions taken by the Applicant must be considered reactive by the Tribunal.

Therefore, where the safety record warrants regulatory intervention, as it does here, the Tribunal will confirm and order that intervention but with consideration of all the facts. While the record between the issuance of the Suspension and Seizure Order and this hearing may be considered as a mitigating factor, it does not excuse the earlier behaviour or eliminate the need for intervention. The Tribunal is concerned with public safety and believes the sanction is required to ensure the Applicant is aware of the seriousness of his poor safety record.

DECISION

Having considered all of the evidence and having listened to the submissions of Counsel for the Registrar and the Agent for the Applicant the Tribunal concludes that the Applicant has made some progress towards improving its safety performance record since the Show Cause meeting. It is noteworthy that the Show Cause meeting outcome recognized the Applicant intended progress and therefore resulted in reducing the original Cancellation and Seizure Order to a 14 day Suspension and Seizure Order.

In arriving at its decision, the Tribunal notes that the Registrar has already recognized the Applicant's action toward reducing the VR by changing the original Cancellation Order to a Suspension Order. The Tribunal recognizes there have been some recent actions taken by the Applicant to attempt to improve the overall performance rating but the real test will occur over the next several months and by the end of 2010 there should be a significant improvement as indicated at the hearing. This is beyond the timeframe presently before the Tribunal.

When the Tribunal reviewed the Commercial Vehicle Operator Record of the past five years there are numerous reports outlining a variety of incidents ranging from collisions, charges, convictions as well as speeding, axle overload, and disobeying legal signs. Many of the collisions involved inattentive drivers. The Applicant should have taken corrective action including developing a written policy regarding staff expectations and discipline on his own initiative rather than waiting for the Registrar's notices. There was no evidence presented to the Tribunal that driver training or loader operator training to resolve the concerns were completed before the Notices of Cancellation in 2008 or in 2010. Given the frequency of the incidents involving this company and the staff it is difficult to understand why no corrective action was undertaken other than changes to the truck sight lines. It appeared obvious to the Tribunal that if the required training had occurred earlier there may have been a major reduction in incidents and thus an improved overall rating for the Applicant and potentially no need for this hearing.

The Tribunal believes the Registrar has now shown the Applicant that he will not tolerate the poor safety record of the Applicant. In addition, the Registrar has demonstrated the Applicant's necessity to avoid collisions and convictions, as well as develop written policies regarding discipline and company expectations of staff and to comply with Ministry direction.

ORDER

Though the Tribunal was provided with and considered substantial evidence regarding the Applicant's safety performance including the sworn evidence from the Applicant that the Applicant has taken pro-active measures to improve the overall performance and safety record, the focus of this decision remains on safety, in accordance with the Act. Having reviewed all of the evidence and taken into account the submissions of the parties, pursuant to the authority granted to it in section 50 of the Act, this Tribunal orders the Registrar to carry out the terms of the Suspension and Seizure Order dated March 10, 2010 commencing on a date to be set by the Registrar.

SHINEY EXPRESS LTD. AND C D TRANSPORT CORP.

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE DEPUTY REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES UNDER THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8

TO CANCEL THE COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATORS' REGISTRATION CERTIFICATES AND TO SEIZE THE PLATE PORTION OF THE PERMITS

TRIBUNAL: LAURIE SANFORD, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: MARK REYNOLDS, Paralegal, representing the Applicants

PATRICK MOORE, Counsel, representing the Deputy Registrar

DATE OF HEARING: November 25, 2010 Toronto

DECISION AND ORDER

On July 20, 2010, the Deputy Registrar under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act") ordered the cancellation of the Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration ("CVOR") certificate and the seizure of the plate portion of the permits of Shiney Express Ltd., C D Transport Corp. ("CD Transport") and four other companies on the grounds that the Deputy Registrar had concerns about the safe operation of these entities. This is an appeal by Shiney Express Ltd. and CD Transport to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from that order. At the outset of the hearing, Mr. Reynolds, Paralegal for the Applicants, advised that Shiney Express Ltd. had withdrawn its appeal.

FACTS

The regime for granting CVOR certificates and monitoring highway safety focuses on three principal measurements, which the Ministry of Transportation ("MTO") regards as a reasonable proxy for highway safety. The measurements are taken from police reports and from weight scale inspections.

On-site facility audits are also done by the MTO. The MTO measures collisions, convictions of drivers and inspections of both drivers and vehicles and arrives at a weighted violation rate which is measured over a rolling 24-month period and which is compared to a threshold rate. If the weighted violation rate reaches 35% of the threshold rate, then the CVOR holder is issued a warning letter. Only 4.2% of the carrier population of 60,185 exceeded this violation rate as of September, 2010. If the weighted violation rate is between 50% and 84% of the threshold then a facility audit is undertaken, which may result in further action being required. If the weighted violation rate is between 85% and 100% then the registrant is called in to the MTO for an interview and is expected to produce an action plan for significant improvement. Sanctions may result. If the weighted violation rate exceeds 100% of the threshold rate, which occurs in fewer than 0.2% of trucking fleets, then the MTO enforces a series of sanctions which are designed as punishments. These sanctions include suspensions of varying periods, usually between 7 and 30 days, and ultimately the cancellation of the CVOR certificate. When suspensions are proposed, the CVOR certificate holder has an opportunity to show cause why the suspension should not occur. Currently, 80% of registrants who have received some form of intervention improve their performance to an acceptable standard, which includes a violation rate below 35%.

It is within this regulatory regime that CD Transport is conducting business under the direction of its current President, Mr. Balour Pandher. Mr. Pandher's history as the owner/operator of CVOR companies has been an unhappy one. A previously registered company which was operated by Mr. Pandher achieved an overall safety violation rate in April, 2007 of 170.9%. In 2007, it is alleged that Mr. Pandher attempted to obtain CVOR certificates for two other companies without disclosing his involvement. Mr. Pandher denied this allegation at a show cause meeting but did not give evidence at this hearing and neither he nor the witness he called denied the allegation. The applications were refused by the Deputy Registrar on the grounds that the companies were under the direct or indirect control of Mr. Pandher and that the safety record of his existing CVOR company was not satisfactory. The Deputy Registrar pointed to the fact that one of the applicant companies had the same address as Mr. Pandher's company and that the principal of the other applicant company lived at the same address as did Mr. Pandher. Neither company appealed the refusal of their applications. While these facts certainly raise suspicion, the Tribunal finds that the Deputy Registrar has not met the standard of proof required to demonstrate that Mr. Pandher tried twice in 2007 to obtain a CVOR registration without disclosing his involvement with the applicants.

The operations of Mr. Pandher's CVOR company continued to deteriorate and by January 2008, had a catastrophic overall safety violation rate of 202.4%. As a result, the company faced a proposed suspension of its operations when, in February/March, 2008, Mr. Pandher voluntarily terminated his registration on the grounds that he could not obtain insurance.

At the end of March, 2008, Mr. Pandher purchased CD Transport, an established carrier. It is alleged, and not denied by Mr. Pandher, that he attempted to conceal his ownership of CD Transport from the Deputy Registrar. The change in ownership was not reported to the MTO as required under the Act. When, in August 2008, the company applied for a renewal of its CVOR certificate, the application was purportedly signed by a previous director of the company, one of the men who had sold the company to Mr. Pandher. A comparison of the signature on this application and the signature of the same man on another document shows the signatures are markedly different. It is alleged by the Deputy Registrar and not denied by Mr. Pandher, that someone within CD Transport signed the application form incorrectly to conceal Mr. Pandher's involvement with the company. It is alleged, and not denied by Mr. Pandher, that the same process was used in 2010 when the company again applied for a renewal of its CVOR certificate. Again, a visible comparison of the purported signature of the former director on the renewal application with the actual signature of the same man on another form shows striking differences. The Tribunal finds as fact that Mr. Pandher did attempt to conceal his ownership of CD Transport from the Deputy Registrar.

While Mr. Pandher was successful in concealing his involvement with CD Transport from the Deputy Registrar, he was less successful in managing the company. CD Transport had been operating within acceptable safety standards with a violation rate of approximately 18% at the time Mr. Pandher acquired it. However, its safety record quickly deteriorated and by November, 2008, the Overall Violation Rate had risen to 39.5% and a warning letter was issued. Despite this, the safety record of the company deteriorated to 115.7% in March, 2010. At this point, the officers of the company were called in for a show cause meeting. At this meeting the MTO became aware for the first time of Mr. Pandher's involvement with the company. At that time, Mr. Pandher explained that he had bought the company two years earlier but that his accountant had not made the required changes. A second show cause meeting was called in July 2010 specifically to deal with the purchase of CD Transport by Mr. Pandher and his history of non-compliance. At that meeting, Mr. Pandher asserted that he had not notified MTO of his ownership of CD Transport because he had not yet notified the Ministry of Government Services of the change. However, MTO showed Mr. Pandher a copy of a profile report by the Ministry of Government Services showing the correct ownership. Mr. Pandher said he was unaware that the changes had been filed. Mr. Pandher's explanations are not credible.

In August 2009, Mr. Pandher hired an outside consultant to attempt to improve the safety rating of CD Transport. A representative of this company gave evidence of multiple changes in the procedures of the company, in particular the hiring of drivers, their testing, the inspection of their log books and their discipline. Based on these changes, CD Transport believed that it could lower its overall safety violation rate to approximately 65% by October, 2010 as prior driver infractions dropped off CD Transport's record. However, due primarily to a new driver conviction, this result was not achieved and CD Transport's overall safety violation rate remains at slightly under 100% at last measure.

The consultant does review driver logs and has instituted basic management processes. However, the consultant company does not have a representative on site at CD Transport and depends on Mr. Pandher for some of the information on which it relies. As well, it is Mr. Pandher who conducts the road tests of new drivers. This is relevant because it is the road safety record of the drivers of CD Transport that is the principal factor in the unacceptable safety rating of the company.

LAW

Under the Act, the Registrar and, by extension the Deputy Registrar, has a wide mandate to regulate the trucking industry with the objective of ensuring the safe operation of commercial vehicles.

Subsection 47 of the Act reads, in part:

> 47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210 (1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
> 47. (2) As an alternative to a suspension or cancellation under subsection (1), the Registrar may, subject to section 47.1, restrict the number of commercial motor vehicles that may be operated by a holder of a CVOR certificate during the period that the Registrar stipulates.

There is an appeal from the decision of the Registrar to the Tribunal. Section 50 of the Act provides, in part:

> 50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.
>
> 50. (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

DECISION

There are two questions before the Tribunal. First, to paraphrase subsection 47(1) of the Act, does the Tribunal have reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of CD Transport, and the other evidence that the Tribunal considers relevant, that CD Transport will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the law? Secondly, if the answer to the first question is yes, then what ought to be done?

The Tribunal has a number of concerns about the operation of CD Transport. The rapid deterioration of the overall safety violation rate of CD Transport when Mr. Pandher assumed control provides strong evidence that Mr. Pandher has not learned the lessons of his earlier CVOR experience. Mr. Pandher did hire an outside consultant in August of 2009, before he faced sanctions for the safety record of CD Transport. However, he had already been forced out of business once because he could not get insurance and he had received a Warning Letter from the Deputy Registrar about the operations of CD Transport. This cannot be regarded as proactive management.

Mr. Reynolds, the Paralegal for CD Transport, also noted that the safety record had improved since the consultants were hired and this ought to be considered in determining whether there are legitimate grounds for concern about CD Transport. It is true that the safety record has improved. However, the Tribunal is concerned that these improvements are fragile. There is no safety and compliance employee or consultant on site. The consultant who gave evidence has no formal training in safety and compliance. Instead, the consultants depend on Mr. Pandher to perform key tasks including conducting driver road tests. In fact, the consultants simply take Mr. Pandher's word that these tests are being done. Given Mr. Pandher's record of mismanagement of CVOR companies, this is not an acceptable arrangement. The results of the changes made by the consultants are that CD Transport's overall safety violation rate is slightly below 100%, an unacceptable rating.

Mr. Reynolds noted that MTO relied on the police reports in determining why drivers had been convicted of offences, a key problem at CD Transport. He argues that this reliance is misplaced as the police on the scene may sometimes misjudge the situation. However, if the driver feels the facts have been misrepresented in the police report, the driver is free to contest the matter in court. The fact is that entirely unacceptable levels of driver convictions have been entered against drivers at CD Transport. Further, there continue to be driver related safety infractions and this directly impacts public safety on the road.

The Tribunal is also troubled by the conduct of Mr. Pandher. Rather than address the problems that plagued his earlier business, he engaged in repeated deceptions to obtain CD Transport without the MTO being aware of his involvement. This pattern of deception is a serious matter and cannot give confidence that Mr. Pandher intends to operate his business in accordance with the law. As well, the Tribunal has no confidence that Mr. Pandher is sincere in his efforts to improve the safety of CD Transport.

There can be no assurance that Mr. Pandher will continue to implement needed driver training and safety management processes if he is permitted to remain in business. There was no evidence given as to the term of contract Mr. Pandher has with the consultants, for example.

Given Mr. Pandher's deceptive dealings with MTO, his recurring record of unacceptable safety operations and the lack of results achieved as a result of his attempts to improve the situation, the Tribunal has strong evidence to believe that CD Transport will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the law.

CD Transport is currently operating below the required safety levels and, as long as Mr. Pandher is managing the company, it is not realistic to expect the safety of the operations to improve to acceptable levels. In light of this, the Tribunal believes that the CVOR certificate of CD Transport must be cancelled.

ORDER

By the authority vested in it under subsection 50(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal directs the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles to carry out his Cancellation and Seizure Order of July 20, 2010, against the Applicant C D Transport Corp.

TO REFUSE TO ISSUE A COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATOR'S REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE

APPEARANCES: RANDALL BURCH, Agent, representing the Applicant

DATES OF HEARING: November 10, 2010

INTERIM ORDER

On July 20, 2010, the Deputy Registrar under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act") refused to issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration ("CVOR") certificate to 1811519 Ontario Inc. o/a Bestway Waste Management ("Bestway") on the grounds that the Deputy Registrar had concerns about the safety records of related companies and on the grounds of unpaid fines by both Bestway and the predecessor company, Western Waste & Recyclers Inc. ("Western Waste"). On August 16, 2010 the Deputy Registrar issued a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure affecting Bestway and two other companies. This is an appeal by Bestway to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from those decisions and orders as they affect Bestway.

During closing submissions, Mr. Lee, Counsel for the Deputy Registrar, and Mr. Burch, Agent for Bestway, were given the opportunity to make written submissions on any terms and conditions that might be attached to the CVOR certificate of Bestway if the Tribunal, after reviewing the evidence and considering the closing submissions, decides that a refusal to issue the CVOR certificate is not appropriate.

For further clarity, any terms and conditions would need to address the following areas of concern. First, there would need to be an ongoing commitment by Bestway to operate with an acceptable overall safety violation rate. The Tribunal is interested in knowing whether an action plan to achieve this would be appropriate and if so, how such an action plan would be prepared, submitted and approved by the Deputy Registrar. Second, terms and conditions would be required to address the outstanding fines owed by the predecessor company to Bestway, Western Waste. Specifically, at a minimum, the terms and conditions would need to set a schedule of repayments or some other timely repayment provision and, if practicable, provide for regular reporting to the Ministry of Transportation of payments made. If any fleet restrictions are proposed as a condition of issuing a CVOR certificate to Bestway, then the proposed duration of such fleet restrictions and any preconditions to lifting the restriction should be detailed. The consequences of a failure to meet any of the terms and conditions should be specified.

The Tribunal would appreciate any submissions on the question of the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to impose any terms and conditions and any consequences for the breach of such conditions. The above is in addition to any other submissions the parties wish to make concerning the appropriate penalty that should apply to Bestway.

Accordingly, the Tribunal orders that by January 31, 2011, the Deputy Registrar may make written submissions as to penalty and by February 16, 2011, Bestway may make written submissions as to penalty in reply. Submissions should be sent both to the Tribunal and to the other party.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal of an order of the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the 'Registrar'), dated September 14th, 2010, to cancel the Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration (CVOR) certificates 155-643-257, 125-495-116, 144-940-283 issued to 2105360 Ontario Inc., Lee Trans Corporation and 1565252 Ontario Inc.,(the 'Applicants'), and seize the plate portion of permits issued pursuant to s. 47 and 47(1) of the Highway Traffic Act (the 'Act'). .

The two Applicants 2105360 Ontario Inc. and 1565252 Ontario Inc., were issued CVOR certificates in 2006 and 2003 respectively, and currently operate a gravel hauling business out of the same location. The Applicant Lee Trans Corporation was in the same business but there has been no recorded activity for it since 2006. The President of 2105380 Ontario Inc. and Lee Trans Corporation are the same individual and he is the father of the President of 1565252 Ontario Inc.

The CVOR certificate for Lee Trans Corporation was previously suspended for a period of 24 days in 2004.

ISSUES

1. Does the Tribunal have reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the Applicants and any other relevant information before it, that the Applicants will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety?

2. If the answer to this question is yes, what Order should the Tribunal Make?

EVIDENCE

The evidence of the Respondent consisted of documentation and the testimony of Sherry Atallah, Carrier Safety Rating Administrator.

The evidence of the Applicant consisted of documentation and the testimony of Freda Dimopoulos, an industry consultant.

The following is a summary of the relevant evidence.

Testimony of Sherry Atallah

Ms. Atallah is employed with the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) as a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator. It is her job, among other things, to analyze a carrier's record to determine if a sanction should be recommended, to meet with carriers who have reached their threshold in order to develop an action plan, and to attend 'show cause' meetings. She has been employed with the MTO since 2001 and has been previously involved with the Applicants, including the suspension issued against the Applicant Lee Trans Corporation in 2004.

The CVOR and the Carrier Safety Rating system is in place for the purpose of promoting the safe operation of commercial vehicles on Ontario Roads. The details of how the CVOR system works is set out in "Ontario's CVOR and Carrier Safety Rating Public Guideline"[1] (the 'Guideline') which is available to the public on line and at MTO offices. The Guideline sets out the numerous responsibilities of an operator which include the monitoring its CVOR record, and being responsible for the conduct of its drivers and the mechanical safety condition of its vehicles.

The CVOR system monitors a carrier's CVOR record over a twenty-four month period. It is an automated computer system and contains information that includes details of fleet size, kilometers travelled, commodity transported, overall violation rate and safety rating for each operator. It also includes convictions, reportable collisions, Commercial Vehicle Safety Alliance ('CVSA') safety inspection results and any Ministry interventions that have occurred. CVSA inspection standards are a set of standards applied by all jurisdictions across North America.

The kilometer travel of a carrier is used in determining violation rates and is provided to the MTO by the carriers. Every carrier can monitor its own CVOR record by obtaining a level II abstract. It is available for a fee of five dollars off the internet. It is also provided to a carrier by the MTO in a number of circumstances, for example when a warning letter is sent by the Ministry, when a carrier is requested to come into a meeting or when a sanction is proposed.

Road side inspections conducted according with CVSA standards provide details of the number of defects, out of service defects or critical defects, (the latter type of defect will lead to an impoundment) found on to the vehicle at the time of inspection, Defects might also be found with respect the Driver and his industry required documentation.

The CVOR record also includes the results of any 'Facility Audits', which involves the examination of vehicle and driver records on site. As with the results of inspections and collisions and convictions, a facility audit is done with a scoring component. All these results are taken into consideration in determining a carrier's violation rates.

A carrier's 'threshold' is the safety performance standard, (violation rate) that it is expected not to exceed and is based on industry performance data. The CVOR system calculates a carrier's violation rate for collisions, convictions and inspections and then compares it to the threshold (violation rate) it is expected not to exceed and is expressed as a percentage of the threshold. An increase in the percentage of threshold, indicates an increasingly poor violation rate.

Although CVOR system is an automated system the record of a carrier is reviewed by individuals prior to any action being taken against a carrier. When a carrier is at 35% of threshold, a letter of warning is sent. When 50 % of threshold is reached, an audit may be triggered. When the violation reaches 85% a meeting is requested– when over 100%, a sanction initiated. Each step may not always be followed in each instance, it is up to the discretion of the Registrar. Less than 1% of carriers reach the sanction stage.[2]

The most severe sanctions include seizure, fleet reduction, or cancellation. Another sanction is the assigning of an unsatisfactory safety rating, which is a public label. The 'rating' is based on a carrier's safety record. When a carrier's violation rate exceeds 70%, its rating can go down to a 'Conditional rating. 'Unsatisfactory' is assigned when a sanction is ordered. The safety record of 2105360 indicates that it only achieved a 'satisfactory' safety rating between March 10, 2009, to July 26, 2009.

Ms. Atallah clarified the difference between having an ‘excellent’ rating for a facility audit, which is based on the on-site examination of a carrier’s records and an excellent ‘safety rating’ which relates to the actual on-road performance. A carrier would have to have a violation rate between 0 to 15%, and a low collision rate in order to be given an ‘excellent’ safety rating.

Following the notice of the cancellation, a ‘show cause’ meeting was held on August 31, 2010. . This meeting is viewed as an opportunity for the carrier to provide submissions as to why the Registrar should not go forward with the sanction. Ms. Atallah attended the meeting At the end the Registrar remained concerned that the Applicants were in the same position, as a result of the same issues, as in 2004. Nothing seemed changed. The fact that the Applicant’s consultant in attendance at the meeting had only recently been engaged and the safety plan presented was the same as in 2004 caused concern. .

Although the two numbered companies have each passed facility audits during the twenty four month period being examined, the on road performance did not show, in the Registrar’s opinion, that the safety requirements that were on the books were in fact being done. The collisions, convictions and inspections results showed otherwise. Inspection results indicated the same defect was found on the same truck only a couple of months apart, suggesting that the inspections records were not being handed in by the drivers so action could be taken. The approach to driver problems appeared the same: the same memos were issued to drivers regarding safety issues in 2004 and in 2010. Driver training seemed to be taken in reaction to accidents, rather than as proactive measures, and the additional training undertaken did not seem to make a difference as further accidents occurred.

Explanations given by the President of 2105380 Ontario Inc., and Lee Trans Corporation, at the show cause meeting were similar to those given by him prior to the sanction of Lee Trans Corporation in 2004. These explanations included that the driver’s did not hand in the tickets and therefore he did not know about them and that there was a language barrier with the drivers. Many of the same drivers work for both numbered companies. The driver discipline policy is the same for all the Applicants and is the same that was in place in 2004. The Registrar’s concern is that policies are not being enforced, and training programs are not being effective. Lee Trans Corporation has already been given a suspension over the same issue. The fact that the sanction did not bring about improvement was of real concern.

During the two year review period the vehicles of 2105360 Ontario were in 9 collisions, 6 involving driver impropriety. Some details of these accidents were reviewed by Ms. Atallah as follows:

1. May 18, 2010, the driver of the Applicant’s vehicle swerved into a lane and hit another vehicle; the Applicant’s vehicle had no damage, the other vehicle some. The driver was charged with improper lane change.

2. May 3, 2010, the accident was reported at a reporting centre where an officer determined that the driver of the Applicant's vehicle was following too close and struck the vehicle ahead when traffic came to a stop.

3. January 18, 2010, the same driver who was involved in the May 18, 2010 accident side-swiped another car, causing it to spin out into ditch. The Applicant's Driver was charged with an improper lane change. The Applicant's vehicle was slightly damaged;, the other car involved was demolished.

4. October 6, 2009, the driver for the Applicant's vehicle was charged with disobeying a traffic light after his vehicle struck another. There was minor damage to the truck and moderate damage to the second vehicle.

5. July 20, 2009, there was single vehicle accident. The driver of the vehicle turned a corner too fast; the vehicle rolled on its side and spilt its load. The driver was charged with making an unsafe move.

During this same period 1565252vehicles were involved in 3 collisions, 2 involving driver impropriety.

Ms. Atallah reviewed some of the results of the road side inspections and suggested that there are recurring themes: overweight loads, tires, brakes, suspensions. There also appeared to be repeated defects of the same nature, (tires, out of service), on the same vehicle, in a relatively short period of time.[3]

The out of service rate for 1565252 Ontario Inc. was 44.74%, or,almost one out over every two vehicles inspected is put out of service.

Freda Dimopoulos

Ms. Dimopoulos was hired as a consultant by the Applicants (specifically the numbered companies) approximately 2 and a half years ago to help them with their hours of service and trip inspections. She was previously employed by the MTO as an enforcement officer. She has approximately 24 years experience working the scales, then as an investigator and auditor. She left the Ministry in 2005.

Ms. Dimopoulos attends the Applicants' business on a regular basis, 2 to 3 times a month, at which time she reviews the hours of service and trip inspection documentation to ensure compliance. She also does some disciplinary work with the drivers; she calls them in if she discovers any issues. She looks at trip inspection reports to make sure all the items are filled in and discusses any problems with the drivers. It was her opinion that the drivers have improve considerably in filing the appropriate documentation in the past two and a half years. At the time she began her work with drivers they were not filling out any kind of documentation.

[3] Exhibit 3, pgs 246 and 262

Ms. Dimopoulos reviewed the Applicants' discipline policy set out in the "Company Manual"[4]. It is a three strike policy, the first incident involving a driver results in a verbal review of the problem with the driver and a two week probationary period. The manual also indicates that if warranted the more serious action of a written warning may be given. This written warning is to be placed in the employee's file and registered as their 'first strike', and to remain so for "no less than six months". On the second incident, there is a written warning and a company fine of $100 would be levied against the employee. The employee also may be suspended without pay for no less than 3 days. The Manual suggests either or both the fine and suspension may be imposed and a 'permanent' record will be attached to the employee's file for a period of no less than two years. On the third incident the employee may be terminated or possibly retrained, as they (the Applicants) want to try every means to get a driver to come into compliance before they terminate him. The Manual states that any decision of an employee termination shall be brought to the attention of the President of the company and can be overturned.

In terms of hiring, drivers must complete an application, a road test and provide both the CVOR and Driver's abstract. The abstracts are reviewed by the President(s). Ms. Dimopoulos stated that the Applicants are going to be asking prospective employees to provide a criminal check. The Tribunal understood this to be suggesting that this is a next step, however, this appears to be a current requirement as stated in the Company Manual. If a prospected driver has an 'at fault' accident in the last two years they will not be considered or if they have 3 demerit points or more they will not be considered. Ms. Dimopoulos indicated she believes the road test is conducted by the President(s) and that they recently hired a safety compliance officer.

The policy with respect to accidents is for the drivers to call police/ 911 and then call dispatch and provide as much detail as possible. If a driver is found to be "at fault" the policy is that the driver will be put on probation for two weeks. In cross-examination the witness conceded she was not certain as to what this implies. The witness also testified that the drivers receive memos regarding safety concerns and that safety meetings have been implemented. The witness was not completely clear on the frequency of the meetings. She indicated that these meetings were mandatory for all drivers, although in cross-examination it was agreed that some drivers had not attended the meetings.

The Applicants also have a program for preventative maintenance which the witness has helped to set up and monitor, to ensure that the program is being documented. There is a policy re unpaid fines; currently all fines have been paid.

In March of 2010 Ms. Dimopoulos suggested to the President(s) of the numbered companies that additional driver training should be undertaken. Two courses were pursued, one on defensive driving and one on air brakes systems. This was around the same time the Applicants began the safety meetings. This initiative was in response to the violation rate and the witness testified that it has been of help that the drivers were trying to improve. Her assessment was that it was a matter of the Presidents being stricter with the drivers.

Ms. Dimopoulos also recommended that the Applicants obtain a CVOR abstract on a regular basis. She recommends every 6 months.

Ms. Dimopoulos reviewed the two favourable 'Facility Audit Findings', the first dated July 23, 2008, for 2105360 Ontario Inc. in which the operator scored 94.4% compliance. [5] It passed all areas: Drivers 88.9%, Vehicles 100% and Safety Programs and Training 62.5%. The second related to 1565252 Ontario Inc., dated July 27, 2009. [6] This operator achieved an overall compliance rate of 97.5%. In her opinion it was very rare for an operator to score so high, and she testified that the audit tells you that the operator is operating in compliance and that if he scores high he is obviously doing something right. When asked how it can be determine that the maintenance is actually being done, she indicated it was through the road side inspections, done by MTO or local police.

Ms. Dimopolous has seen a progressive improvement. Drivers were not marking defects on trip inspections but now are and having on sight maintenance means drivers can give defect reports directly to maintenance. This improvement was achieved through discipline and explaining the importance of trip inspections. Her testimony was that the drivers were a "little bit more conscientious" concerning inspections

With respect to any language barriers, the witness testified that on the whole there are several drivers who speak English well and are able to translate for the others. Overall the witness indicated that she was hoping to see improvement, and the main area to be addressed is driver error, which, she acknowledged, seems to be a problem.

Ms. Dimopoulos confirmed she has had experience carrying out CVSA inspections. She reviewed some of the particulars set out in the CVOR printout for Applicant 210560 Ontario Inc. [7] and provided some comments and further explanation of the results.

1. An inspection done on 2010/06/07 indicated there were 4 defects, although no out of service. Two related to the lighting system on the truck tractor, she pointed out that this type of defect could happen at any time and therefore raises the question whether they were preventable. Other defects identified as 'suspension system' and 'wheels/RIMS" were not clear as to what they were but were not a danger or would have been categorized differently, they were not 'OOS' or 'out of service'. It is a problem that should be corrected but not an immediate concern.

2. With respect to the inspection report dated 2010/04/13, two defects were

[5] Exhibit 5 tab O
[6] Exhibit 5 tab N
[7] Exhibit 3, tab 7, pgs 99 to 160

noted, one relating again to a stop lamp on the trailer which was categorized as OOS, the other relating to the air supply to the brake system. According to the inspection report there was an air leak although the truck passed the air loss test and it was not found to be an 'OOS' defect. The witness testified that this could be a small leak or it could be a hose 'chaffing'. and putting it on the report is a way to bring attention to the issue as it can lead to problems. But, unless it is 'down to the cord' air loss is not necessarily a defect. It is at an officer's discretion as to whether it is a defect. If the compressor can keep up to the air leak it would not be put OOS.

3. The inspection dated 2010/03/12 gave rise to 4 defects, two relating to axle weights. It was pointed out that the CVSA does not speak to axle weights as an 'OOS' defect. This issue comes about when the shipper loads the trucks, not necessarily where the driver wants it, Loading is something the driver does not have control over and the driver is not allowed to readjust the load at most gravel pits, the witness testified. The gross weight was in this instance within what was allowable.

4. The two defects noted at the time of inspection on 2010/03/11 were also relating to axle weights, although the gross weight was within what was allowable. The driver would not know about the axle weights, and the pits would not have the equipment to measure axle weights. .

5. Inspection 2008/08/19 noted that there was two defects, one 'OOS' relating to a flat tire; the other defect was for not having done a pre-trip inspection. The witness pointed out that a flat tire can happen at any time, that the officer was not necessarily obliged to find it an 'OOS' defect, the fact it had not been noted by the driver the does not mean that a pre-trip inspection was not done.

Ms. Dimopoulos stated that, in her experience, gravel companies have a hard time, they often make the same trip four to six times a day and the terrain they travel is very hard with a lot of stones, increasing the chance for all sorts of things happening to the vehicles. And because they travel the same roads, and make so many trips, they get overly inspected. Applicant 210560 Ontario Inc. has a fleet of 15, and had approximately 60 inspections in the 24 month period reviewed. This was not a normal amount of inspections in the witness's opinion but they do travel the same routes more than once a day. The Applicant 1565252 Ontario Inc. has a fleet size of 12 and had 38 inspections in the same period, also a very high number of inspections.

The Witness acknowledged that overall violation rates of 115.18% and 88.6% are problematic, as is the overall OOS rage of 44.74% for 1565252 Ontario Inc.

Ms. Dimopoulos indicated in cross examination that she believed that the Applicants were obtaining a CVOR abstract on a regular basis. She initially prompted the Applicants to get abstracts, not in response to anything other than her belief that they should be checked to see what the violations rates were. She acknowledged she had probably recommended it before as she regularly recommends this to clients: how frequent is up to them. She acknowledged that the operators should be able to do this without prompting.

THE LAW:

The Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8 as amended provides that:

> 47(1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210 (1) or (2);
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
> (2) As an alternative to a suspension or concellation under subsection (1), the Registrar may, subject to section 47.1, restrict the number of commercial motor vehicles that may be operated by a holder of a CVOR certificiate during the period that the Registrar stipulates.

The material facts of this case are not in dispute. The Applicants are related companies and the accuracy of the information contained in the CVOR safety record for the two numbered companies has not been challenged. It has been suggested that some of the defects noted in the inspection reports for 2105360 Ontario Inc. were items that had an element of discretion, which was simply not exercised in the company's favour. It was also suggested that these companies have been subjected to a much higher rate of inspection than normal. This may be true. The explanation for this appears to relate to the nature of the Applicants' business which requires frequent trips on the same roads. This may be frustrating to the Applicants but it was not obvious to the Tribunal that this should be taken as a reason to discount the inspection findings.

It has also been acknowledged that the collision and conviction rates for the Applicant 2105360 Ontario Inc. are problematic. There were 6 accidents involving driver error in a two year period. The evidence of both parties suggests that this high violation rate relates to the issue of driver discipline or the lack thereof. This problem is not new; it was an identified problem 6 years ago at the time of the suspension of Lee Trans Corporation.

The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar that the two related numbered companies, 1565252 Ontario Inc. and 2105360 Ontario Inc., in particular the latter, now appear to be in the same position with the same issues as Lee Trans Corporation had been in at the time of the previous sanction. The CVOR system is simply a monitoring system, it is up to the operators to ensure that drivers are qualified and vehicles are maintained. The Applicants have had ample warning of what their responsibilities are, and ample time to figure out a way to ensure that those responsibilities were met, yet they have failed to do so. The Tribunal sees no reason why they should be held to a lesser standard than other carriers in the industry, to do so jeopardizes public safety.

It has been argued that the Applicants are not “beyond redemption”; however, there was little or no evidence before the Tribunal as to how they are trying to accomplish this redemption and given their history it cannot simply be assumed. Ms. Dimopoulos indicated that when she first started working with the Applicant, about two and a half years ago, the Applicant’s drivers were hardly doing any of the required documentation. One would have thought that the previous suspension and appeal process would have made the Applicants intimately aware of all that needed to be done to be in compliance, and would have given the Presidents a clear understanding of the importance of maintaining a good safety record.

Although the Tribunal has noted that things improved with Ms. Dimopoulos’s involvement and that both numbered companies have scored ‘excellent’ on a facility audit, there is little or no evidence that the improvement in compliance in this area has translated to an improved safety record as one would have expected. In view of this fact, this achievement is not adequate evidence, in the Tribunal’s opinion, to provide confidence that improved road safety is achievable by these Applicants and there was no other evidence put forward to satisfy the Tribunal that there have been or will be permanent changes in policy or in the approach to safety. The Tribunal finds that the evidence submitted by the Registrar provides reasonable grounds to believe that the Applicants will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the law.

It was argued that a sanction other than cancellation would be more appropriate. However, a suspension has not worked in the past. The Tribunal is unable to come up with any reason why a reduced fleet size would address the concerns raised and there were no submissions made on this point to convince the Tribunal otherwise.

ORDER

The Tribunal, by the authority invested in it under Section 50(1) of the Act, orders the Deputy Registrar to carry out the Cancellation and Seizure Order dated September 14, 2010 cancelling the CVOR certificates of the Applicants and seizing the plate portion of permits issued for their vehicles.

1811519 ONTARIO INC. o/a BESTWAY WASTE MANAGEMENT

APPEAL FROM A DECISION OF THE DEPUTY REGISTRAR UNDER THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990 c. H.8

TO REFUSE TO ISSUE A COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATOR'S REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE

TRIBUNAL: LAURIE SANFORD, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: RANDALL BURCH, Agent, representing the Applicant

DATES OF HEARING: November 10, 2010

DECISION AND ORDER

On August 23, 2010, the Deputy Registrar under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act") refused to issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration ("CVOR") certificate to 1811519 Ontario Inc. o/a Bestway Waste Management ("Bestway") on the grounds that the Deputy Registrar had concerns about the safety records of related companies and on the grounds of unpaid fines in the amount of approximately $27,000. On August 16, 2010 The Deputy Registrar issued a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure affecting Bestway and two other companies. This is an appeal by Bestway to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from those decisions and orders as they affect Bestway.

FACTS

Mr. Paolo Rossi is the President of Bestway and he also had control of the two other companies referred to in the Deputy Registrar's August 23rd refusal to issue a CVOR certificate. One of those companies is Western Waste and Recyclers Inc. ("Western Waste") and the other is The Young Disposal Co. Ltd. ("Young Disposal").

All CVOR certificate holders operate within a regulatory regime. Currently, the regime for granting CVOR certificates and monitoring highway safety focuses on three principal measurements, which the Ministry of Transport regards as a reasonable proxy for highway safety. The measurements are taken from police reports and from weight scale inspections. On-site facility audits are also done by the Ministry. The Ministry measures collisions, convictions of drivers and inspections of both drivers and vehicles and arrives at a weighted violation rate which is measured over a rolling 24-month period and which is compared to a threshold rate. If the weighted violation rate reaches 35% of the threshold rate, then the CVOR holder is issued a warning letter. If the weighted violation rate is between 50% and 84% of the threshold then a facility audit is undertaken, which may result in further action being required. If the weighted violation rate is between 85% and 100% then the registrant is called in to the Ministry for an interview and is expected to produce an action plan for significant improvement. Sanctions may result. If the weighted violation rate exceeds 100% of the threshold rate, then the Ministry enforces a series of sanctions which are designed as punishments. These sanctions include suspensions of varying periods, usually between 7 and 30 days, and ultimately the cancellation of the CVOR certificate. When suspensions are proposed, the CVOR certificate holder has an opportunity to show cause why the suspension should not occur. Over 80% of show cause meetings result in CVOR certificate holders reforming their operations to the point where no further intervention is required. Fewer than .01% of carriers require further sanctions.

Mr. Paolo Rossi began operating Western Waste as its President in 1995. In 1996, the company was issued a warning letter, which did not produce the desired result. In 1999, the company failed a Facility Audit and was assigned a Conditional Safety Rating. The safety record of Young Disposal was also of concern and that company underwent two facility audits before voluntarily terminating its CVOR certificate in 2005.

Following the 1999 Facility Audit of Western Waste, there was no further intervention required until 2004, when the company's safety record again deteriorated to the point where a warning letter was issued. By March, 2005, the Overall Safety Violation Rate for Western Waste had risen to 94.5% and Mr. Rossi was called in for a sanction meeting and produced an action plan. Nevertheless, two years later, the company's performance again deteriorated and in March, 2007 a warning letter was issued. In April, 2009 another warning letter was required and in June of that year, the CVOR certificate of Western Waste expired and was not renewed.

In 2007, after two orders to desist had been issued by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment, Western Waste was convicted under the Environmental Protection Act, R.S.O. 1990, c E.19 (the "EPA") of offences related to the illegal operation of a waste transfer site. Western Waste was ordered by the Superior Court of Justice to close the site and remove the waste by June, 2007. In 2008, Mr. Rossi was found by the Superior Court of Justice to be in contempt of an earlier order concerning some equipment that had been leased to Western Waste. In 2009, both the company and Mr. Rossi were convicted of failing to remove waste from the company's property and failing to ensure that no further waste was deposited at the company site. Further fines were imposed. These fines include approximately $20,000 that are due and owing now and a further substantial amount that will become due in the summer of this year. In addition, Western Waste has fines totalling approximately $7,300 for offences under the Act. Mr. Rossi has been making payments towards these fines since the fall of 2010 and has expressed his determination to pay all fines that are owed by him. Given that Western Waste and Young Disposal are no longer operating, there is some question as to what fines remain owing by Mr. Rossi personally. However, Mr. Rossi stated that he intended to seek clarification of the amount he was liable for under the EPA.

It is unusual that one company would incur four warning letters, even over a span of 14 years and this, together with the extremely poor safety record of the company in 2005, causes the Deputy Registrar concern about the safe operation of Bestway, given that Mr. Rossi will also be operating that company. As well, the Deputy Registrar is concerned about the unpaid fines under the EPA and the Act. Further, the Deputy Registrar is concerned that Bestway is operating despite not being granted a CVOR certificate.

Mr. Rossi testified that the past 7 years of his life have been a nightmare. There has been a catastrophic combination of serious health issues, business reverses and marital problems that have left him unable to focus on the management of his CVOR business. Increasingly, other people were operating the business as Mr. Rossi cycled in and out of hospital. There is no evidence that Mr. Rossi appointed an experienced manager to care for the business in his absence. Instead, he left inexperienced and untrained people to conduct his business while he was unable to do so. He felt he had no choice but to try to continue operating his business during this time in part due to the financial pressures he is under. One of the financial pressures he has felt has been the need to make court ordered alimony payments.

Mr. Rossi concedes that he has been operating Bestway while his CVOR certificate was pending. He also testified that, in an effort to hold his business together, he has driven heavy equipment, including a truck, while on a morphine patch. He conceded that while on morphine, his judgment was sometimes “somewhat clouded.” He is off morphine now although still on pain killers. He is now out of the hospital, although he does expect to undergo one more operation in 2011.

Mr. Rossi wants to get back to basics with his new business, Bestway. Bestway has four trucks now, two in operation and two on stand-by. He and a long time driver of his are the only carriers of the new operation and he inspects the trucks personally. He has a mechanic in twice a week to look over the equipment. The last time he was pulled over at a weigh scale he was told that there was a big improvement and he is determined to stay on top of his business.

As of the last measurement, in September, 2010, Bestway had an overall violation rate of 8.85% and Mr. Rossi advises that the company has not had an accident or other incident since. As of July, 2010, the Overall Violation Rate of Western Waste was 34.6%. The company had not operated for approximately a year at that point.

During closing argument, Mr. Lee, the counsel for the Deputy Registrar, referred to a statement in the documents submitted by the Deputy Registrar. The reference is to a "system note" dated June, 2009 which indicates that the CVOR certificate of Western Waste was revoked due to an attempted payment of some amount owing that was refused due to insufficient funds. Mr. Lee advised that that rejected payment was for a renewal fee and that under the Act a cheque submitted for a renewal fee that is not honoured is grounds for cancellation of the CVOR certificate at the discretion of the Registrar. However, the Deputy Registrar's witness did not mention this in her testimony and neither did Mr. Rossi address it. He was not cross-examined about it. Further, the system note is not specific about what the rejected payment was for and there is evidence that suggests that it was not for a renewal fee. The chronology of events submitted by the Deputy Registrar says that the CVOR certificate of Western Waste expired in 2009 and it does not refer to a dishonoured cheque. It would not be fair to use the ambiguous evidence against Mr. Rossi when he was not given an opportunity to deny or explain it. Therefore, this evidence was not relied upon by the Tribunal.

LAW

Under the Act, the Registrar and, by extension the Deputy Registrar, has a wide mandate to regulate the trucking industry with the objective of ensuring the safe operation of commercial vehicles.

Under subsection 16(2) of the Act, no one may operate a commercial vehicle without a valid CVOR certificate. Under subsection 17(2):

> The Registrar may refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to an applicant if the Registrar has reason to believe, having regard to the applicant's safety record and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the applicant will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety.

Subsection 17(3) grants the Registrar the discretion to refuse to issue a CVOR certificate to any person related to a person whose CVOR certificate which has been cancelled. Mr. Lee advises that the Registrar rarely grants a CVOR certificate to any related person following a cancellation. Section 47 of the Act contains similar provisions to those of subsections 17(2) and 17(3) regarding the cancellation of an existing CVOR certificate.

There is an appeal from the decision of the Registrar to the Tribunal. Section 50 of the Act provides, in part:

> 50 (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

> 50 (2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

DECISION

There are two questions before the Tribunal. First, to paraphrase subsection 17(2) of the Act, does the Tribunal have reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of Western Waste and Bestway, and the other evidence that the Tribunal considers relevant, that Bestway will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with the law relating to highway safety? Secondly, if the answer to the first question is yes, then what ought to be done?

The safety record of Western Waste was a marginal one while the company was operating. While the safety violation rate only once approached 100%, it has repeatedly gone above 35%, triggering four Warning Letters. However, at present, the safety violation rate of Western Waste is below 35% and the safety violation rate of Bestway is below 10%. Therefore the Tribunal concludes that having regard only for the safety record of Western Waste and Bestway, there is no compelling reason to believe that Bestway will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely.

The Tribunal does have concerns about whether Bestway will operate in accordance with the law relating to highway safety. Mr. Rossi is the owner of Bestway and he is also the sole director of Western Waste, a company which is insolvent. Western Waste was operating under the EPA regulatory system for the maintenance of an approved waste disposal facility. The company defied two ministry orders to stop dumping waste and remove the waste from an unapproved part of the property. The company subsequently defied a Court order to close the site and incurred a further conviction for that. Mr. Rossi was found to be in contempt of a Court Order relating to the lease of certain equipment to Western Waste. This conduct raises concerns about whether Mr. Rossi will comply with a regulatory scheme such as the one which governs CVOR operations. The fact that Mr. Rossi has been operating Bestway despite not having a CVOR certificate also raises concerns about whether Mr. Rossi will comply with the Act. Mr. Rossi, in his testimony, demonstrated no remorse for operating Bestway in violation of the Act. Rather, he explained that he had been able to obtain insurance and he seemed to regard that as sufficient to continue operation. Mr Rossi appears to be a sophisticated businessman. As such, he may be expected to understand that any claim made under an insurance policy that is predicated on his having a valid CVOR certificate is going to be problematic. Mr. Rossi expressed no concern for the consequences that might arise if Bestway were involved in a serious accident while it was operating in violation of the Act. Instead, he insisted that he needed to operate his business in order to pay his bills, including his court ordered alimony payments.

Mr. Rossi has been through a terrible period in his life and it is clear that he is desperate to hang on to his business and to rebuild it. Despite the old saying that “desperate men do desperate things”, desperate people of good judgement and a respect for the law do very different things than people who lack that judgement and respect. Mr. Rossi has shown disrespect for the law both in his conduct under the EPA regulatory scheme and in operating without a CVOR certificate in violation of the Act. He has also shown startlingly bad judgement, not only in his disregard for the law but also in operating heavy equipment and a truck while on a morphine patch. Here again, it does not appear to have occurred to Mr. Rossi that someone might have been badly injured because he was driving under the influence of morphine. He explained that he had to hold his business together, as though this were a full justification for his actions.

Therefore, there are legitimate grounds for concerns about Mr. Rossi's ability to operate in accordance with the regulatory scheme in the Act. However, there are also real reasons to believe that Mr. Rossi is determined to face the consequences of his previous behaviour. He is determined to pay any fines he owes under the EPA and the Act for the operations of Western Waste. More importantly, he has begun to make these payments. Further, he has reduced the size of his operation and is involving himself directly in the safe operation of his trucks. It is important to note that the last time his truck was inspected, the inspector noted a big improvement.

Mr. Rossi submitted terms and conditions that he stated he would be prepared to adhere to if he is permitted to continue his operation. However, the Tribunal believes that there are at present legitimate concerns about Mr. Rossi's ability to be governed by the Act. Given his inability to comply with orders issued under the EPA and by the Court, there is reason to doubt that he would be bound by any terms and conditions ordered by this Tribunal. Mr. Rossi must demonstrate that he understands the importance of complying with the Act before he can be trusted to comply with terms and conditions that may be attached to a CVOR certificate. One way that Mr. Rossi can show this is by paying the fines that he currently owes under the Act and the EPA.

The Deputy Registrar has refused to issue a CVOR certificate to Bestway, in part because of the unpaid fines under the Act and the EPA. For the reasons noted above, this would seem to be an appropriate response. It is true that it will be more difficult for Mr. Rossi to pay his fines if he is denied the ability to conduct a CVOR operation. However, the payment of those fines is the best evidence that Mr. Rossi is prepared to submit himself to a regulatory regime.

The Deputy Registrar is also proposing to cancel the CVOR certificate of Bestway, Western Waste and Young Disposal. The Registrar will not ordinarily grant a CVOR certificate to anyone related to a person whose CVOR certificate has been cancelled. A cancellation of a CVOR certificate effectively excludes someone from the business of operating a commercial vehicle forever. This is an excessive sanction under the circumstances. Neither the safety record of Western Waste nor that of Bestway warrants the cancellation of a CVOR certificate, given the finality of such an action. The CVOR certificates of Western Waste and Young Disposal have expired. Therefore there is no concern that they will resume operations. If Bestway is refused a CVOR certificate, then it too will be unable to operate.

If Mr. Rossi pays any fines owing by him under the EPA and the Act arising from the operation of Western Waste and Bestway, then he ought to be entitled to apply again for a CVOR certificate. In this eventuality and assuming there have been no further violations of the law, the Tribunal hopes that the Registrar will give his application favourable consideration.

ORDER

By the authority vested in it under subsection 50(2) of the Highway Traffic Act, the Tribunal directs the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles to carry out his Refusal to Issue a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate to 1811519 Ontario Inc. o/a Bestway Waste Management, dated August 23, 2010. The Tribunal further directs the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles not to carry out his Cancellation and Seizure Order of August 16, 2010 against the Applicant 1811519 Ontario Inc. o/a Bestway Waste Management, Western Waste & Recyclers Inc. and The Young Disposal Co Ltd.

1772065 ONTARIO INC.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50(1) OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM AN ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 47(1)

TO CANCEL THE COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATORS' REGISTRATION CERTIFICATES AND TO SEIZE THE PLATE PORTION OF ALL PERMITS ISSUED

TRIBUNAL: DAVID GREGORY FLUDE, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: MANJIT GARCHA, Agent, representing 1772065 Ontario Inc. (the "Applicant")

PATRICK MOORE, Counsel, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Respondent")

DATE OF PRE-HEARING: February 8 and 28, 2011 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

The Applicant appeals to this Tribunal under section 50(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act"), from an order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") issued pursuant to section 47(1) to cancel Commercial Vehicle Operators Registration ("CVOR") certificate number 163-912-947 issued to the Applicant and to seize the plate portion of any permits issued.

The grounds relied on by the Registrar relate to the Applicant's affiliation with a group of four former CVOR holders that were referred to loosely as the Khalistan Group. In the view of the Registrar, the Applicant is a front for the Khalistan Group and is not an independent corporation as it asserts. The Registrar points to the Applicant's safety violation record and takes the view that, when considered with the safety violation record of the Khalistan Group, there are grounds to believe that the Applicant will not operate safely.

BACKGROUND FACTS

To understand the present appeal, it is necessary to review actions taken by the Registrar in January 2009 to cancel the CVOR certificates of 4 holders: Maninder Gaur Gosal, Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd., a corporation owned by Ms. Gosal, 2075497 Ontario Inc., a corporation owned by a daughter of Ms. Gosal, and 2075498 Ontario Inc., a corporation owned by a second daughter who has a role to play in this appeal, Tanjit Gosal (collectively referred to as the "Khalistan Group"). All of the CVOR holders appealed to this Tribunal but, prior to the hearing, three of the holders withdrew their appeals and the hearing proceeded with respect to one of the corporations, 2075498 Ontario Inc. The safety record of the Khalistan Group is fully reviewed in the decision of Vice-Chair Macklin in 2075498 Ontario Inc. O.L.A.T. decision released on July 9, 2009. The applicant was given a suspension for 21 days largely on the evidence of Tanjit Gosal that she was no longer talking to her parents and she had totally separated her operations from the rest of the Khalistan Group. As the evidence unfolds it will become clear that Tanjit Gosal has had a reconciliation with her parents.

It is also necessary to appreciate the structure of CVOR regulation. The Province operates a safety rating system for CVOR holders. A CVOR holder is given a safety rating based on the number of trucks it operates and the number of miles that it operates in Canada in any given year. If and when there is a violation, whether because a truck has been involved in an "at fault" accident, has been charged with breach of the Act or has been found to be defective while operating on the public highway, points are assessed against the company's violation record ("VR"). The VR is then expressed as a percentage of the overall record. Violations remain on the record for two years such that at any given time the VR represents the record of the company over the preceding 24 months.

There are a number of interventions by the Registrar that may be triggered by a rising percentage. At 35% VR the Registrar may send a letter drawing an operator's attention to the rising trend and informing the operator that efforts are required to counter the trend. At 60% VR there may be an audit of the operator's records to confirm that the operator is using qualified drivers, maintaining maintenance records and logging the hours of work of its drivers. As the VR approaches or exceeds 100%, the Registrar may call the operator to a meeting to explain why its CVOR certificate should not be suspended or cancelled. While this policy is set out in various publications and legislation, it is subject to the Registrar's duty to take appropriate steps at any time in the interests of promoting highway safety and protecting the public from unsafe operators.

The Registrar assigns a rating to each CVOR operator ranging from Excellent to Unsatisfactory. The Applicant currently has a "Conditional" rating and that rating will become unsatisfactory should the Tribunal uphold the Proposal of the Registrar or impose a suspension.

In considering the safety record of the Khalistan Group, Vice-Chair Macklin had this to say in the second paragraph of his decision:

> The Khalistan Group had an abysmal safety record as a transport concern….The issue on this appeal is whether the steps taken by the Applicant are "too little too late" to get it out from under the collective safety record that, by all objective standards, warrants a cancellation and seizure order.

The abysmal record to which Vice-Chair Macklin refers included interventions by the Registrar dating back many years. There had been suspensions levied against more than one of the Group. By January 2009 the Group's collective safety record had reached a VR of 210%, a level described by the witness, Sherry Atallah, as the worst she had ever seen in 11 years working in CVOR regulation.

The president of the Applicant, Charanjit Garcha, had been a driver for the Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd., one of the Khalistan Group. He incorporated the Applicant in the summer of 2008 and the Applicant applied for a CVOR certificate in January 2009. The certificate was issued about 2 weeks before the cancellation of the three Khalistan Group CVOR certificates and the suspension of the fourth. Khalistan Group trucks were then leased to the Applicant and the Applicant proceeded to operate the trucks under its CVOR certificate. The Applicant's sole customer is the Khalistan Group, particularly Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd. All of the Applicant's truck maintenance is carried out in a repair shop, Khalistan Truck & Trailer Repair, that is part of the extended Khalistan Group.

By the summer of 2010 the Applicant's VR rating had reached approximately 66%. The Registrar requested a facility audit and particularly asked the auditor to determine if the Applicant was operating independently or whether it was a shell corporation created to permit the Khalistan Group to circumvent the earlier cancellation order. The auditor attended the Applicant's head office and it is the audit and its findings that are in dispute in the appeal.

FACTS

The Tribunal heard evidence from three witnesses, including Sherry Atallah, a Carrier Safety Rating Administrator, and Joseph Daniel, a Highway Carrier Safety Inspector and Facilities Auditor. Both witness work in the office of the Registrar. The third witness was the president of the Applicant, Charanjit Garcha. The evidence above concerning the CVOR system came from Ms. Atallah. In addition, Ms. Atallah stated that less than one tenth of one per cent of carriers reach the 100% VR level and three tenths of one percent reach the 70% level and another three tenths of one per cent exceed the 85% level. Of these carriers, 80% improve after intervention by the Registrar.

The Registrar is wary of attempts to circumvent enforcement. Accordingly, when the Applicant, a former Khalistan driver, commenced operation using Khalistan Group trucks, Ms. Atallah approved the transfer of Khalistan's trucks to the Applicant's CVOR but decided to monitor the Applicant for signs of affiliation. According to Ms. Atallah there is no authority to block the transfer of trucks when a CVOR has been cancelled. The next opportunity to monitor arose when the Applicant's safety record warranted a facility audit.

The audit was carried out by Joseph Daniel. Mr. Daniel was assigned the audit file on July 22, 2010. He attended at the Applicant's head office on July 27 but met only the president's sons who had no information. He obtained the e-mail address of one of the sons and returned to his office and drafted and e-mailed a letter stating that he would return the next morning to conduct the audit. The letter outlined the documents he wished to see. When he arrived in his office early the next morning he had a voicemail message from a person who identified herself as Tani. Tani stated that she was calling on behalf of the president of the Applicant and that she wanted to postpone the audit. Mr. Daniel declined to do so and subsequently arrived at the Applicant's head office to carry out the audit. He was met by Mr. Garcha and by Tanjit Gosal. Ms. Gosal advised Mr. Daniel that she was there to answer questions due to Mr. Garcha's poor knowledge of the English language. Mr. Daniel determined that Tanjit Gosal was the owner of 2075498 Ontario Inc., the corporation given a 21 day suspension by this Tribunal on its representations that Ms. Gosal had disassociated herself from dealings with her family and the Khalistan Group.

Mr. Daniel requested the records. He was informed that all of the records were at Ms. Gosal's place of business. He was told that Ms. Gosal did the books for the Applicant. Mr. Daniel gave Ms. Gosal the opportunity to attend her place of business to retrieve the records. He then completed the audit based on the records he was given. There are three segments to the audit. The Applicant passed one segment, that relating to driver qualifications, failed the maintenance segment and scored zero on the driver hours of work segment. When discussing business operations, Mr. Daniel was informed that, not only did Ms. Gosal do the book-keeping but her father, a former president of a Khalistan Group company, provided the dispatch function. Mr. Garcha also maintained that he carried out the dispatch function in the evenings along with Ms. Gosal's father. No dispatch records were available.

The vehicle lease agreements caused Mr. Daniel some concern. One lease was from the president of Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd., in her personal capacity and the others were from Khalistan Transport itself. The leases were identical and did not have any financial terms. In addition there were terms that seemed unusual. Clause 4 prohibited a change in commodities carried without permission from the Khalistan Group. Clause 5 required permission to carry passengers. Clause 8 required all invoices and other documentation to be delivered to the Khalistan Group. While Mr. Daniel could understand why repair invoices might be important to a lessor to ensure the trucks were being well maintained, he had difficulty understanding why a lessor would want payroll and fuel use information.

At a later date, Tanjit Gosal provided Mr. Daniel with further records including invoices and a monthly accounting reconciliation of amounts billed by and paid to the Applicant from Khalistan. On reviewing the reconciliation, Mr. Daniel was of the view that the Applicant would be incapable of paying its bills and payroll. Mr. Daniel also noted that there were no payroll records for the drivers and significant bills were being paid out of Khalistan Transport's account. In particular, Khalistan Transport paid $7,166.00 for the first insurance installment on behalf of the Applicant. Mr. Garcha stated that he paid his drivers in cash and sometimes H. would make the payment in his behalf. Mr. Daniel formed the opinion that either Khalistan Group or Tanjit Gosal was in fact controlling the Applicant.

The Registrar issued a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure and invited the Applicant to a show cause meeting in St. Catharines. Ms. Atallah was present and took notes. The meeting was held on September 22, 2010 but the notes were not transcribed until later, October 23 in fact. It was Ms. Atallah's evidence that the typed notes are copies of her handwritten contemporaneous notes. Manjit Garcha, the Applicant's agent at this hearing, attended with Charanjit Garcha. It is clear from a reading of the notes that Charanjit Garcha demonstrated an almost total lack of knowledge about his company and its financial state. He had no idea how much money the company earned or how much it paid out. This lack of knowledge was continued in his evidence before the Tribunal where he stated that Tanjit Gosal told him at the end of the month how much money he was entitled to and he accepted that figure because he trusted Khalistan Group not to cheat him.

One outcome of the meeting was an undertaking by the Applicant to produce an action plan to address its worsening safety record. The action plan was to be produced to the Registrar by October 15, 2010. The Applicant complied with the undertaking and sent an action plan to the Registrar. The Registrar's office did not reply to the action plan and it was Ms. Atallah's position that it was not the Registrar's function to do so. Responsibility to comply with the law and operate safely resides with the Applicant and it would be improper for the Registrar to endorse any particular course of action. Notwithstanding the preparation of an action plan, the Registrar concluded that the Applicant's CVOR certificate should be cancelled and issued the appropriate order giving rise to this Appeal.

In cross-examination of both Ms. Atallah and Mr. Daniel, Mr. Manjit Garcha explored the possibility that the Registrar had pre-judged the case. Mr. Daniel was forthright in admitting that he was asked to determine if there was an improper relationship between the Applicant and the Khalistan Group but he denied that he was directed to find such a relationship, come what may. He was asked to review the facts and make a determination. He concluded an improper relationship existed. Both Mr. Daniel and Ms. Atallah were shown a certificate from the Registrar giving the Applicant a "Conditional" rating. It was dated on the day before Mr. Daniel's audit. Ms. Atallah was more familiar with the procedure and explained that the conditional rating was generated by the computer once the Applicants VR exceeded 70%. It was coincidental that this occurred on July 27, the day before the audit, but she stated that it was triggered by the same facts as those that triggered the audit, a high VR. It should be noted that based on facts raised by the Applicant during Ms. Atallah's evidence, Ms. Atallah stated that one series of violations for out of service defects may have been caused by an accident and that the effective VR rate is more likely 66%, not in excess of 70%. She did point out that the Applicant had not raised its concerns with the Registrar prior to the hearing.

As stated above, Mr. Chanarjit Garcha demonstrated a total lack of knowledge about the financial operations of his company. When it was drawn to his attention that in many months he would not have enough to pay his drivers he answered that he borrowed money from friends and relatives. He had no idea how his maintenance bills were paid. He stated that he had borrowed $7,166.00 from Khalistan Transport to pay his insurance and that it had been repaid. Monthly installments thereafter were paid by him. He was of the view that maintenance costs were just deducted by Tanjit Gosal from his final cheque but he did not know.

He was shown the reconciliation prepared by Ms. Gosal. He stated that he did not understand financial statements or how to read them. Mr. Daniel had previously identified the line items. The first line in each month was the total invoiced by the Applicant. The second line was the deduction of lease payments. The third line in each month was the amount Khalistan charged for dispatch services and the final line was the amount payable to the Applicant. Mr. Garcha testified to two lease rates, $7,500.00 and $7,000.00. He said about $6,000.00 at the show cause meeting. He finally insisted it was $7,000.00 per month. When it was pointed out to him that the amount charged was never reflective of $7,000 per month he had no explanation. The same answer was given with respect to the dispatch charge. He stated that he was charged 6% for dispatch services but the actual amount set out in the reconciliation is closer to 20% each month. He had no explanation other than he trusted Tanjit Gosal to pay him what he was entitled to. He felt the final amount would reflect various loans but did not know how these were calculated.

With respect to fuel, Mr. Garcha stated that sometimes he used Khalistan fuel and sometimes he would pay for it himself. He borrowed money to pay for fuel when it was necessary. He is not sure how payment is made to Khalistan for fuel used but thinks it must all be included in the monthly reconciliation. Mr. Garcha explained that the Applicant's trucks are parked each night on a site owned by the Khalistan Group. His wife looks after all of the invoicing.

Mr. Garcha admitted that Tanjit Gosal is a manager at the Applicant. In addition to book-keeping she has handled driver discipline matters. He had no explanation why Tanjit Gosal used another company name in writing to the Applicant's drivers. He also admitted that he deals with Ms. Gosal in all his dealings with Khalistan Transport but would not go on to say she was also a manager there. He did not know her role.

When questioned about the action plan, Mr. Garcha stated that it had been prepared by Manjit Garcha. The witness does not read or write English so he relied on Manjit Garcha to prepare the plan. When the witness was taken to an area in the action plan that was his responsibility, the monthly receipt and review of the CVOR record, he was unaware that that it was his responsibility to carry out this task. He was aware that he was responsible for accident reporting and analysis but he was totally unaware of the discipline policy set out in the action plan.

THE LAW

The Act provides:

> 16. (1) In this section and in sections 17 to 23.1, "commercial motor vehicle" does not include,

(a) a commercial motor vehicle, other than a bus, having a gross weight or registered gross weight of not more than 4,500 kilograms, an ambulance, a fire apparatus, a hearse, a casket wagon, a mobile crane, a motor home or a vehicle commonly known as a tow truck,
(b) a commercial motor vehicle leased for no longer than thirty days by an individual for the transportation of goods kept for that individual's personal use or the gratuitous carriage of passengers,
(c) a commercial motor vehicle operated under a permit and number plates issued under a regulation made under clause 7 (24) (g) or (h) that is not transporting passengers or goods,
(d) a commercial motor vehicle operated under the authority of an In-Transit permit, and
(e) a bus that is used for personal purposes without compensation; ("véhicule utilitaire")

"compensation" includes any rate, remuneration, reimbursement or reward of any kind paid, payable or promised, or received or demanded, directly or indirectly; ("rémunération")

"CVOR certificate" means a Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration Certificate issued under this Act; ("certificat d'immatriculation UVU")

"goods" includes all classes of materials, wares and merchandise and livestock; ("biens")

"operator" means the person directly or indirectly responsible for the operation of a commercial motor vehicle including the conduct of the driver of, and the carriage of goods or passengers, if any, in, the vehicle or combination of vehicles; ("utilisateur")

"safety record" means the safety record of an operator determined in accordance with the regulations;

Interpretation

17. (4) An applicant is related to a person for the purpose of subsection (3) if,

(a) the applicant and the person are related individuals;
(b) either the applicant or the person is a partner of the other or was a partner of the other or they have or have had partners in common;
(c) either the applicant or the person, directly or indirectly, controls or controlled or manages or managed the other; or
(d) the applicant and the person have or have had common officers or directors or they are or have been controlled, directly or indirectly, by the same shareholders.

Suspension and cancellation of licence, etc., general

47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,

(a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
(b) a driver's licence; or
(c) a CVOR certificate,

on the grounds of,

(d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;

(e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210 (1) or (2);
(f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
(g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).

Interpretation

(2.1) Subsection 17 (4) applies, with necessary modifications, for the purpose of determining who are related persons under clause (1) (f).

Appeal

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister made under subsection 32 (5) for which there is a right of appeal pursuant to a regulation made under clause 32 (14) (n) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

Powers of Tribunal

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

ISSUE

The issue before the Tribunal is to determine if the there is reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Tribunal considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety. In doing so, the Act asks the Tribunal to determine if there are persons related to the holder and then to consider the safety record of those persons in making its findings.

ANALYSIS

There is extensive evidence indicating a close relationship between Tanjit Gosal and the Applicant. Mr. Garcha in his testimony confirmed that Ms. Gosal is a manager of his company. She handles the book-keeping, she keeps the company's records at her place of business and she handles discipline for the Applicant. There is also evidence that Ms. Gosal is still closely involved with Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd. This evidence runs directly counter to the position she took before this Tribunal where she stated that she was disassociating herself from her parents trucking operations. Ms. Gosal did not testify before the hearing so her current involvement with Khalistan Group has not been tested by evidence given under oath. For the purpose of the current appeal, the evidence discloses that Ms. Gosal is the person with whom the Applicant deals when it needs to deal with Khalistan Transport. In his testimony Mr. Garcha stated that he did not know her role at Khalistan but his evidence suggested she is an active and senior member of its management.

The evidence also discloses that the Applicant is totally dependent on the Khalistan Group for its customers, its maintenance and its truck parking. The evidence of its financial independence does not withstand close scrutiny. Mr. Garcha testified that he has no idea what funds his company earns and what amounts it is charged. He did state that he relies totally on Ms. Gosal to tell him what he is entitled to receive each month. The Applicant is then responsible to pay drivers, insurance and fuel and all other operating expenses. Mr. Garcha said that drivers are paid $18.00/hour. Insurance costs an initial payment of $7,166.00 and monthly installments of $3,438.95. There are lease costs and dispatch costs. Ms. Gosal provided Mr. Daniel with financial figures. Mr. Garcha confirmed in his evidence that he relied on the numbers given him by Ms. Gosal. An analysis of these numbers indicates that the Applicant is not financially viable. The numbers span several quiet months in the construction industry, February, March and April but they also include May and June. The Tribunal concludes that they are fairly representative of the seasonal fluctuations in the Applicant's business. 80% of the Applicant's income was made in May and June. The overall figures indicate that the business was operated at a loss of approximately $22,000.00 before fuel charges were incurred. It is not clear from Mr. Garcha's evidence whether there are also further deductions for maintenance which would render the business even more of a financial disaster.

Counter to the financial evidence above, Mr. Garcha stated that he was financially better off from running the Applicant than when he was simply a driver. Clearly, as a driver, he had positive cash flow to the extent of $18.00 an hour. On the figures given, any profit is being siphoned off to Khalistan Transport as lease costs and dispatch fees. The Tribunal must conclude from this evidence that the financial figures advanced by Ms. Gosal are false and are for the purpose of creating the appearance of an independent operation and that the fact is that the Applicant is a front for the Khalistan Group.

Having reviewed all of the evidence, the Tribunal finds that, at a minimum, Khalistan Transport Co. Ltd. and 2075498 Ontario Inc. are related companies to the Applicant. In her capacity as a manager for all three companies, Tanjit Gosal effectively controls the operations of the Applicant. In doing so she is aided by her father, H., who provides dispatch services at great cost to the Applicant. The Tribunal finds that, contrary to Mr. Garcha's evidence that he does dispatch in the evenings, the amounts charged to the Applicant for dispatch services would indicate that his role in that context is minor to non-existent.

The relationship extends further. The President of Khalistan Transport is Maninder Gaur Gosal, Tanjit Gosal's mother and H.'s husband. Maninder Gaur Gosal has had her own CVOR and it was the VR of 210% with respect to that CVOR that led to cancellation of the certificates of three of the Khalistan Group companies and the imposition of a sanction on Ms. Gosal's corporation. The Tribunal finds that the Applicant is related to the whole Khalistan Group through the interrelationship of Maninder Gaur Gosal, Tanjit Gosal, H. and the three corporations as that term is used in s. 17 (4) of the Act.

Having determined that the Khalistan Group is related to the Applicant, the statute directs the Tribunal to consider its safety records together with the Applicant's when determining if there is reason to believe that the Applicant will not operate safely or in accordance with the Act and regulations.

Violations on a CVOR safety record are counted against the record for a two year period. Unscrupulous operators, at one time, incorporated several companies and applied for a CVOR certificate for each company. They would rotate operations through the companies such that, as the VR rate became sufficient to attract sanctions from the Registrar, that company would cease operations and a related company would simply take over and carry on business as usual. After two years, the original company could recommence operations with a clean record. It is this avoidance technique that s. 17 (4) of the Act is designed to prevent.

The factual review by Vice-Chair Macklin in the earlier appeal goes on to discuss the plans the Applicant had to disassociate itself from the Khalistan Group and its "abysmal safety record." The facts outlined are tantalizing:

> The extent to which leniency will be bestowed on 2075498 will depend, to a considerable extent, on the credibility of Ms Gosal.
> In Ms Gosal's view, she has been the manager of a transport business only since January 2009. 2075498 owns/leases six trucks. The company employs six drivers. The trucks are stored on Claireport Crescent, Toronto, Ontario. The trucks have been stored at that address since January 2009. Her operations are at a different address than Racine Road (her parents place of business), because of Ms Gosal's desire to disassociate herself from her parents businesses. She is currently not on speaking terms with her parents.

The facts outlined by Vice-Chair Macklin are exactly parallel to the facts concerning the Applicant. The Applicant's operations commenced in January 2009 with six leased trucks. The audit report indicates that all trucks, except one out of service truck, were parked at Claireport Crescent. The out of service truck was parked at Racine Drive. Both Claireport Crescent and Racine Drive are locations owned by the Khalistan Group. Given Ms. Gosal's involvement in the management of the Applicant, it is possible she was actually referring to the Applicant earlier. There is no evidence before this Tribunal how she effected the reconciliation with her parents, but it is clear from Vice-Chair Macklin's decision that his leniency in levying a 21 day suspension as opposed to a cancellation was predicated on a separation between 2075498 and the rest of the Khalistan Group. This separation now appears to be at an end.

Looking at the Applicant's safety record, it appears that few steps had been taken up to the Show Cause meeting to address safety. The Applicant had failed the facility audit. It had amassed sufficient violations in a period of 19 months that its VR was in the region of 66% allowing for the variation that came out in evidence. It had virtually no records or safety program. It was not until Manjit Garcha became involved that it began to establish policies covering discipline, review of its CVOR record and recording of driver hours of work. Even so, as of the date of the hearing, Charanjit Garcha did not know the policy for progressive driver discipline or that he was responsible for monthly review of the CVOR record. The Tribunal finds that the steps taken by the Applicant are insufficient to mitigate the "abysmal safety record" of the Khalistan Group. It appears to be business as usual using the Applicant as a shell corporation.

ORDER

Pursuant to the provisions of s. 50 (2) of the Act, the Tribunal orders the Registrar to carry out the Cancellation and Seizure Order dated October 20, 2010 and to cancel CVOR certificate 163-912-947 issued to 1772065 Ontario Inc. and to seize the plate portions of the permits.

APPEAL FROM AN ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES UNDER THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8

TO CANCEL THE COMMERCIAL VEHICLE OPERATOR'S REGISTRATION CERTIFICATE AND TO SEIZE THE PLATE PORTION OF ALL PERMITS

TRIBUNAL: RICHARD MACKLIN, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: DOUGLAS LEE, Counsel, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

No one appearing for the Applicant, A & W X-Press Inc.

DATE OF HEARING: March 7, 2011 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION AND ORDER

OVERVIEW

The Applicant appeals to the Licence Appeal Tribunal (the "Tribunal") from a Cancellation and Seizure Order made by the Deputy Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act"). The Order is dated November 30, 2010. Section 47 of the Act empowers the Registrar to suspend or cancel a commercial vehicle operator's registration ("CVOR") certificate. In an appeal, the Tribunal decides "afresh" as to the appropriate order in respect of the CVOR.

APPLICANT FAILS TO ATTEND

An Appointment for and Notice of Hearing "(Notice of Hearing") in respect of the appeal was faxed to the parties on January 21, 2011. The cover letter that accompanied the Notice of Hearing confirmed that the Applicant's request for an electronic hearing in respect of the appeal could not be accommodated on account of the lack of consent of the Registrar. Thus, the hearing of the appeal was confirmed as in-person for the date of March 7, 2011 (see Exhibit 4). The parties attended an electronic pre-hearing on February 4, 2011. At the pre-hearing, the Tribunal ordered, amongst other things, that:

> 4. The hearing in this matter will commence on March 7, 2011 at 9:30 am at the Tribunal's Chambers, 1 St. Clair Ave. West, Toronto, Ontario. (see Exhibit 5)

The Applicant failed to attend at the hearing on March 7, 2011. The Tribunal stood the matter down to 10:00 a.m. and, upon the Applicant's not showing up by that time, conducted the hearing of the appeal as if each allegation in the Notice of Cancellation and Seizure, dated October 20, 2010 and Cancellation and Seizure Order dated November 30, 2010, was contested. The hearing concluded at 11:30 a.m. and the Applicant had still not appeared.

THE FACTS

CVOR System

The CVOR system has been established by the Ministry of Transportation and is monitored by the Registrar. The system is aptly described in the decision of Vice-Chair Jane Weary, in Thistletown Motor Freight (2003) Inc. (Re) [2006] O.L.A.T.D. No. 580 ("Thistletown"), starting at page two:

> Mr. Miller explained that in order to effectively regulate licensed operators, the Ministry establishes thresholds for safety records of each operator. This is based on a computer analysis derived from points assigned to a given carrier for each driver impropriety determined in a conviction, accident or mechanical inspection of that carrier, the latter derived from system audits as well as on-road inspections. Accidents only trigger the imposition of points where they are "reportable" in that they involve property damage over $1,000.00 and/or personal injury. The points are assigned based on the information included by the Police Officer in the Accident report generated and depend on notations of improper driver action and/or condition and/or vehicle condition.
> Points in each category remain on the record for a floating two-year period. The average in each category, and the overall weighted average, are compared to those of all CVOR carriers in order to establish a "threshold" of 100%. As a carrier approaches this threshold, the Ministry will be alerted to take intervening actions such as a warning letter or a facility audit. When the threshold is exceeded, sanctions will normally be imposed which may range from a specified suspension period to the cancellation of the CVOR certificate.
> Information concerning the computation of a fleet's threshold, and hence evaluation, are disclosed to carriers as well as the public in a document entitled Ontario's Carrier Safety Rating and Commercial Vehicle Operator's Registration System Public Guideline, published by the Ministry of Transportation.
> As well as sanctions, the Ministry is required to assign each carrier a Safety Rating. These range from Excellent to Unsatisfactory, the latter assigned to any Carrier under sanction for the duration of the sanction period. On completion of the period, the carrier is assigned a Conditional rating, the second lowest available.

The Applicant's CVOR History

The Applicant's CVOR certificate was issued on January 21, 2008. The Applicant is based in Taylor Michigan but, as required under the Act, has obtained and maintained a CVOR licence on account of its doing trucking business in Ontario (approximately 133,000 kilometers travelled in Ontario every two years).

As a general rule, trucking concerns are in compliance with their safety obligations so long as their overall safety violation rate is less than 35% of threshold. An overall safety violation rate above that number is considered out of compliance under the CVOR system. Various steps short of sanction are employed when the safety rate is between 35 and 100% of threshold. Sanctions are contemplated when that rate exceeds 100% of threshold.

The Applicant's overall safety violation rate reached in excess of 35% of threshold within a three month period of CVOR issuance, resulting in a warning letter from the Ministry. The Applicant's overall safety violation rate continued to climb and exceeded 70% of threshold by March 2008.

By January of 2009 (one year from CVOR issuance) the Applicant's overall safety violation rate exceeded 100% of threshold and the Registrar commenced sanction proceedings. Specifically, at February 2009 the company had an overall safety violation rate of 153.16% of threshold for the 13 month period starting January 21, 2008. The action plan to address these shortcomings, as confirmed at an in-person show cause meeting of February 10, 2009, included: the hiring of a new shop manager, termination of poor drivers, additional truck inspections and extensive training and orientation on Canadian regulations. The Registrar was not persuaded by the Applicant's proposed action plan and a Suspension and Seizure Order dated March 12, 2009 was issued, suspending the Applicant's CVOR for 30 days. The Applicant initially appealed the Suspension and Seizure order, but that appeal was subsequently withdrawn.

As noted above, a Notice of Cancellation and Seizure was issued against the Applicant on October 20, 2010. As at that date, the Applicant was still operating in an unsafe manner. Its overall safety violation rate was 107.23% of threshold (August 2008 to August 2010) and 110.21% (September 2009 to September 2010). A show cause hearing was conducted by the Registrar by way of written submissions from the Applicant (the Applicant had been offered an opportunity to appear in person) (see Exhibit 3, Tab 3). The proposed solutions to the ongoing safety concerns, as set out in the written submissions, were largely the same as they had been in February 2009. Specifically, the Applicant hired a Transportation Safety Compliance Officer, promised more training of staff and supervisory personnel and the termination of poor drivers. The Registrar was not persuaded by the written submissions of the Applicant and the Notice of Cancellation and Suspension, as noted above, was confirmed by the Cancellation and Seizure Order dated November 30, 2010.

No concrete evidence of any effective remedial steps taken by the Applicant was tendered at this hearing.

THE LAW

Legislation and General Principles

The statutory authority for the actions of the Registrar and the jurisdiction of the Tribunal is set out in sections 47, 47.1 and 50 of the Act. The key provisions are as follows:

> Suspension and cancellation of licence, etc., general
>
> 47. (1) Subject to section 47.1, the Registrar may suspend or cancel,
>
> (a) the plate portion of a permit as defined in Part II;
>
> (b) a driver's licence; or
>
> (c) a CVOR certificate,
>
> on the grounds of,
>
> (d) misconduct for which the holder is responsible, directly or indirectly, related to the operation or driving of a motor vehicle;
>
> (e) conviction of the holder for an offence referred to in subsection 210 (1) or (2);
>
> (f) the Registrar having reason to believe, having regard to the safety record of the holder or of a person related to the holder, and any other information that the Registrar considers relevant, that the holder will not operate a commercial motor vehicle safely or in accordance with this Act, the regulations and other laws relating to highway safety; or
>
> (g) any other sufficient reason not referred to in clause (d), (e) or (f).
>
> (2.1) Subsection 17(4) applies, with necessary modifications, for the purpose of determining who are related persons under clause (1) (f).
> (8.1) If the plate portion of a permit is suspended or cancelled under clause (1) (a), the Registrar may order that the plate portion of the permit or the number plates issued in connection with the plate portion of the permit be seized and any police officer or officer appointed for carrying out this Act may seize the plate portion of the permit and the number plates and deliver them to the Ministry.
>
> Notice of proposed action, s. 47
>
> 47.1 (1) Before taking any action under clause 47 (1) (a) or (c) or subsection 47 (2), the Registrar shall notify the person whose plate portion of a permit or CVOR certificate is to be affected of his or her proposed action.
> Appeal

50. (1) Every person aggrieved by a decision of the Minister under subclause 32 (12) (b) (i) or a decision of the Registrar under section 17 or 47 may appeal the decision to the Tribunal.

Powers of Tribunal

(2) The Tribunal may confirm, modify or set aside the decision of the Minister or Registrar.

The CVOR system operates in the public interest to protect motorists from unsafe trucks and truck drivers. The standard to be met by a commercial operators is compliance, not incremental improvements that fall short of compliance (see Muscillo Transport Ltd. v. Ontario (Licence Suspension Appeal Board), [1997] O.J. No. 3111 (O.C.G.D.) at paras. 52, 58, aff'd (1998) 110 O.A.C. 174 (C.A.)).

Conclusion

In this case the Cancellation and Seizure Order proposed by the Registrar is justified on the following grounds:

i) the Applicant has not, since it received its CVOR in January 2008, operated in safe manner for any material period of time. Indeed, the Applicant has operated at a safety rating of above 100% of threshold since at least January 2009;

ii) the Applicant has had sufficient notice that a serious sanction may be applied. It received a warning letter, its officer met with the Regisrar's staff, and its CVOR certificate and plate portion of its permits were previously suspended for a significant period of time (30 days);

iii) the Applicant has not offered any evidence that it has rectified its unsafe practices;

iv) the Applicant has not offered evidence of any concrete steps that it intends to take that might have the effect of a systemic improvement in its safety performance. It has merely offered, in writing, a recycling of previous steps that have, to date, not worked.

ORDER

The Tribunal, by the authority vested in it under s. 50(1) of the Act, orders the Registrar carry out the Cancellation and Seizure Order dated November 30, 2010, cancelling the CVOR certificates of the Applicant and seizing the plate portion of permits issued for its vehicles.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

5999-ADLS-MED

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D.
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: WILLIAM FINNEGAN
Agent for the Applicant

KYLE BIEL
Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 22, 2010 Teleconference

DECISION RELEASED: April 23, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 22, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on April 23, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on April 6, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective February 20, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

O. Reg. 574 to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

> 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
> (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
>
> (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
>
> (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
>
> (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
>
> (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
> (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
>
> (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
> (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of O. Reg. 574 provides:

> A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on February 20, 2010.

The Applicant relied on information provided by his legal Consultant, as well reports from his health care providers.

The Applicant's Legal Consultant provided a declaration of exemption from the Law Society on the grounds that he is part of a group of "Persons who are not in the business of providing legal services and occasionally provide assistance to a friend or relative for no fee".

In a letter dated March 4, 2010, the Applicant's Agent details the events of the incident as well as how the Applicant was feeling at the time:

> "...(the Applicant) began to vomit mucus and blood …Was uneasy on his feet and feeling pain and tension in his chest area. He then requested the officer call for an ambulance for transport to the hospital."

With respect to a medical condition the Applicant through his agent provided a letter dated February 24, 2010 from the Applicant's Oncologist stating:

> "He is an unfortunate gentleman who has metastatic rectal carcinoma with metastases in the thorax. He was initially diagnosed with a T3 NO MO rectal cancer in 2000. He has had two subsequent resections from the chest metastases. He was noted to have a right hilar mass that was treated with radiation to a dose of 4000cGy in 15 fractions followed by chemotherapy (FOLFIRI). The most recent imaging shows that he has two nodules, one in the right lung, one in the left lung and changes in the right hilar area post radiation."

With respect to the breathalyser session, Dr. D'Souza states:

> "the purpose of this letter is to document the fact that the patient does in fact have medical conditions that would affect his ability to blow effectively. This includes the two lung resections for which he likely would have chronic chest wall pain, decreased lung function. He also has a history of coronary artery disease with a prior myocardial infarction and a prior history of pulmonary embolus."

Excerpts from a "History of Condition" prepared by a physician on February 24, 2010 indicate:

> "He does suffer from 2 primary cancers, one of the bowel and another of the lung, unfortunately for him both of these cancers are progressive and he now (sic) a secondary spread lung of the bowel cancer in addition to his primary lung disease… He does have difficulty with forced expiration with some appreciable bronchospasm associated with his damaged lungs."

A hand written note from the Applicant's home health care provider confirms the Applicant's sate of health suggesting that the condition:

> "has made his tidal volume very decreased and shortness of breath is quite common."

The ambulance report describes the Applicant's "General Appearance:

> "Pt in moderate distress, speaking short sentences with difficulty, guarding his chest with his hand and c/o chest tightness and SOB… coughing up blood occasionally"

According to the Ambulance report the Applicant developed "angina like discomfort" on the way to the hospital.

Under the category “Physical Exam”, the following notations are entered:

> “Chest Air Entry” marked as “Decreased”,
> Chest tightness and heaviness substernal radiating to L arm. 5/10”

At the hearing the Applicant’s Agent opted not to allow the Applicant to testify and proffered a statement instead.

The Applicant’s Agent reiterated the information provided in his letters regarding the details of the incident where the Applicant was stopped and demanded a breathalyser test.

The Applicant’s Agent further described the Applicant’s medical condition as per medical information submitted by the Applicant and entered as Exhibit # 3.

According to the Applicant’s Agent, the Applicant was transported by ambulance to a local hospital where he requested a blood sample be taken to prove he had no alcohol in his system. He was advised that this was not possible as any request for a blood sample regarding alcohol would have to be made by a police officer.

The Applicant’s Agent pointed out that the Applicant did not refuse to provide a sample but rather was unable to do so.

The Registrar’s Agent rebutted the Applicant’s Agent comment regarding a surgery supposedly undertaken by the Applicant around Easter. The Registrar’s Agent contends that there is no written evidence of this surgery, and emphasizes that it not up to the Applicant’s Agent to provide evidence.

The Registrar’s Evidence

Constable Wayne Plaquet the officer who made the breath demand was called as a witness. He confirmed that he has about nine years of experience in the job.

Constable Plaquet described the events that led to the Applicant's breath sample being demanded. He then testified that at first glance the Applicant did not exhibit any signs of discomfort, nor did he initially ask for medical assistance.

The officer described the Applicant’s attempts to provide a sample. Although three demands were made, only one attempt was made. During the attempt the Applicant blew for approximately one second and began coughing. At this time he advised the constable that he could not blow as he was “sick”, and asked for an ambulance.

Constable Plaquet attested that the Applicant was coughing during his bursts of yelling, but his notes did not indicate that the Applicant was vomiting or coughing up blood.

Regarding the Applicant’s comments with respect to his health, Constable Plaquet admitted that he was suspicious of the Applicant's claims, and stated that he called an ambulance in order to "cover my bases".

In cross-examination, the Applicant's Agent questioned the officer as to the Applicant's previous involvement with the police earlier the same day and his subsequent release. Constable Plaquet acknowledged that the Applicant was taken to hospital, but refused to admit that his condition was serious enough to warrant hospitalization.

Asked why he did not ask for a blood sample, Constable Plaquet denied that he had the option. According to Constable Wayne Plaquet the situation did not warrant a blood sample as there were no grounds under statute.

Constable Plaquet asked the Tribunal if he could make a statement. There being no objection he was allowed to continue. Constable Plaquet proceeded to inform the Tribunal of the Crown Attorney's position in this matter. Constable Plaquet asserted that since it is doubtful that any of the Applicant's health care providers have legal training or training in the roadside breathalyser device, whatever anyone says in the reports regarding the lung cancer is of no consequence. Constable Plaquet claimed that: "They can say whatever they want" he was informed by the Crown that the Applicant must prove lung capacity.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In his closing remarks, the Applicant's Agent summed up by highlighting the medical information submitted by the health care providers which, in his view, clearly states that the Applicant's lung capacity limits his ability to comply with a breath demand. Given that he was taken to hospital by ambulance and the length of time he was kept at the hospital, there is no doubt that he was in need of medical attention.

The Applicant's Agent continued by pointing out that the Applicant has no criminal record and that he needs his licence in order to attend the various medical appointments he must keep due to his condition.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the Applicant's medical history. Albeit the medical condition might have been present in the past, in the view of the Registrar's Agent, it was not a medical condition that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to do so. The eyewitness evidence from the officer is that, other than for the coughing, there was no reason why the Applicant could not provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent disputed that the Applicant was in any distress as he was not coughing prior to the breath demand and only asked for an ambulance after he was actually charged. According to the officer, the Applicant had no trouble yelling and cussing.

With respect to the medical reports, the Registrar's Agent questions why the Applicant did not have page two of the Appeal form completed by his physician and opted instead to provide a history of the condition. Referring to the document dated February 24, 2010, the Registrar's Agent points out that the physician's comments were made without the benefit of eyewitness evidence. The physician offers no dates of surgeries to corroborate the history, nor does he provide clinical evidence to indicate that the Applicant would have impaired ability to provide a breath sample. Neither physician has deemed it necessary to request pulmonary function tests.
Further both physicians are vague in their comments using words like "likely and may". The Registrar's Agent asked that the Tribunal not be swayed by the cancer diagnosis. The question is whether the condition would prevent the Applicant from providing a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent called attention to the fact that the Applicant was able to complete three attempts earlier in the day, and yet was able to drive home without incident. Subsequently after only one attempt he requested an ambulance.

In summary the Registrar's Agent noted that there are no hospital admission records to substantiate the Applicant's grounds for appeal.

The Applicant's possible state of intoxication or degree of impairment is not within the Tribunal's mandate and does not influence the Tribunal's decision.

With respect to the Applicant's offer to provide a blood sample, the Tribunal would like to clarify that subsection 48.3(3) of the Act is clear in its provision, in that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "by an analysis of breath or blood taken". Although the option is available, the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. Accepting policy, as per norm, since there were no such signs, the Tribunal deems the issue of a blood sample irrelevant.

The Registrar's Agent has not disputed the Applicant's medical condition, as stated in the medical records; thus, the medical condition is proven.

The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar's Agent that there are two components to Section 50.1 (2) (b). It does not suffice to establish that an individual has any type of a medical condition. The crux of the issue is whether the medical condition was manifesting at the time of the breathalyzer and caused the individual to fail or not comply with a breath sample demand.

The only evidence available to the Tribunal in this matter are the Applicant's written submissions and the eyewitness testimony of the officer involved in the incident. Normally the Tribunal would accord considerably more weight to eyewitness evidence, yet the medical evidence in this matter cannot be dismissed easily.

Both the officer and the Registrar's Agent inferred that the medical reports and the Applicant's present condition are suspect. No evidence of collusion between the Applicant and his physicians was introduced. Thus the Tribunal will not entertain the notion.

The Registrar's Agent maintains that the Applicant medical history is just that, "history". The Registrar's Agent contends: that the condition was in the past; that the physicians' opinions with respect to the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample are pure conjecture which is clearly demonstrated by the evasive tone of the reports and that the lack of pulmonary function reports render the reports useless.

The Tribunal does not share the Registrar's Agent view that the lack of pulmonary function reports devalue the reports, nor with the suggestion that the Applicant's condition is in the past. According to Dr. D'Souza: "The most recent imaging shows that has two nodules, one in the right lung, one in the left lung." Dr. Colin Bryan notes that "both cancers are progressive". However dated the Applicant's medical history may be, his condition is not likely to go away. Nonetheless, there is evidence of the Applicant's state of health at the time of the breathalyser session. According to the Ambulance Report the Applicant was "coughing up blood occasionally". The Tribunal is satisfied that the Applicant must have been in some distress at the time. This premise is further validated by the physical exam performed by the paramedics which also confirms:

> "Chest Air Entry" as "Decreased", as well as: "Chest tightness and heaviness substernal radiating to L arm. 5/10"

The Tribunal finds the medical reports conclusive, and is satisfied that the condition was present at the time and could have prevented the Applicant from providing an adequate sample.

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal and the Tribunal finds that he has done so. Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's Suspension Order, February 20, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under subsection 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT;

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: KENNETH W. KOPROWSKI, Vice Chair

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 31, 2010 Windsor

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 31, 2010, at Windsor, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on April 6, 2010 with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section of the 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit 2, under section 50.1 of the HTA. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") dated January 16, 2010, filed as Exhibit 1.

Reason for the Appeal

The reasons for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal are summarized as follows:

The Applicant states that he was unable to provide the required breath sample because of a medical reason.

Part of the Notice of Appeal is a medical report, dated March 11, 2010, from the Applicant's family physician. The report states that the Applicant has been the doctor's patient for nineteen years and that the Applicant suffers from acute asthma and that his condition prevented "adequate exhalation", as quoted from the report. The family physician does not provide further particulars.

In support of the family physician's report there are copies of pulmonary function test ("PFT") results, but they are all dated January 31, 2002. The incident occurred on January 16, 2010, and is two weeks short of being eight years after the date of the PFT results. There were not any more recent PFT results that were filed in support of the Applicant's appeal.

The family physician's report gives no details of the date of the Applicant's last visit with him.

Preliminary Matters

There were no preliminary matters raised by either party.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the HTA states:

> 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 to the Act, at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3), requires that a medical report must contain:

> 15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
>
> (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
>
> (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
>
> (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
>
> (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
>
> (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
> (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

> (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
> (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 provides:

> "A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS

The Applicant argued that, because of his breathing problems arising from his acute asthma condition, he could not provide a sample of his breath. Therefore, he could not blow enough air into the approved roadside breathalyzer that the police had given to him. On the other hand, the Registrar's witness, an officer of the Ontario Provincial Police ("OPP") who tried to have the Applicant provide a breath sample, stated that the Applicant was refusing to blow properly into the unit, despite the officer having shown the Applicant how to blow into it properly.

Evidence of the Applicant

The Applicant stated that, a short while after having left a relative's residence by car on the evening of January 16, 2010, he began to have difficulty breathing at about 9:15 p.m., while he was driving. He experienced tightness in his chest, as he has experienced from time to time in the past because he suffers from asthma. For this condition, he takes Ventolin, when needed, to help with his breathing, but takes Symbicort on a daily basis. On this occasion, he had only Symbicort with him in the car. After taking one inhalation of the Symbicort, as he was still driving, he obtained minor relief, but he wanted to hurry home to take his Ventolin.

He passed another vehicle which he felt was travelling very slowly. The evidence revealed that the speed limit on the highway at that location was fifty kilometres an hour. The Applicant admitted that he exceeded the speed limit in passing the vehicle. The evidence revealed that he was travelling so fast that the police officer who pursued him, and who was the Registrar's only witness at this hearing, charged the Applicant with "stunt driving" under the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario. That charge involves exceeding the speed limit by fifty kilometers an hour or more.

The Applicant eventually pulled into the driveway of his residence, followed closely by the officer's police cruiser. The Applicant stated that he did not see the cruiser until it pulled into the driveway. The Applicant had to exit his vehicle from the passenger's side, because the cruiser was pulled up close to the driver's door of the Applicant's vehicle.

The Applicant testified that he was placed in handcuffs and was placed in the rear seat of the officer's cruiser. By this time, he stated that about four other cruisers had pulled into the Applicant's driveway. When the police officer asked the Applicant if he had been drinking, he stated that he had not. This is contrary to the subsequent testimony of the police officer. When the police officer stated that he smelled alcohol on the Applicant's breath, the Applicant again stated that he had not been drinking. Nevertheless, the officer obtained a portable breathalyzer unit and asked the Applicant to blow into it. The Applicant stated that he attempted to provide a breath sample, but the unit indicated that a sufficient sample was not provided. The officer then changed the mouthpiece and demonstrated to the Applicant how he was to blow into the unit. Then, using a different mouthpiece, the Applicant stated that he attempted again to provide a sample of his breath. That attempt, as well, failed. The officer then accused the Applicant of refusing to blow properly.

The Applicant responded that he did not refuse. He testified that his position in the rear seat of the cruiser prevented him from providing a proper sample. He stated that he was still in handcuffs, with his hands behind his back, and was slightly bent forward, sitting sideways in the rear seat. The officer, in his testimony, further elaborated that the Applicant was, in fact, sitting sideways, but his feet were touching the ground, and the Applicant was sitting on the side edge of the rear seat. The police officer held the unit as the Applicant was blowing into it. The Applicant claimed that this uncomfortable position did not allow him to adequately expand his diaphragm to provide a proper breath sample.

The police then took the Applicant to the nearby OPP detachment. The Applicant emphasized that he was not under the influence of alcohol, was not staggering while walking, and his speech was not slurred. However, the Tribunal had to remind the Applicant that the issue before this Tribunal was not whether he had been drinking but, rather, whether the he failed or refused to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath because he was unable to do so for a medical reason.

While at the detachment office, the Applicant stated that he was out of breath but was still able to walk. Sometime after being placed in a holding cell, the Applicant began to feel more distressed, so that the police called the Applicant's girlfriend, who brought a Ventolin inhaler about ten minutes later. After taking the Ventolin, the Applicant was able breathe better. The police also called paramedics, as a precaution, according to the subsequent testimony of the investigating officer. When the paramedics arrived, they gave another Ventolin treatment to the Applicant, and took him to a nearby hospital. After being seen first by a triage nurse, the Applicant eventually left the hospital without being seen by a doctor.

In support of his case, the Applicant referred to the PFT results attached to his Notice of Appeal. Those tests are dated January 31, 2002. The Applicant did not have any more recent test results to file with this Tribunal.

On cross-examination, the Applicant stated that, after he had taken the Symbicort while still driving home that evening, he was feeling good enough to continue driving home. He did not feel that he had to stop his car or that he should call the emergency telephone number, 911. When the police officer pulled up beside the Applicant's vehicle in the Applicant's driveway, the Applicant did not tell the officer that he needed the Ventolin inhaler that was in his residence. The Applicant stated that the reason for not telling the officer was that the Applicant was not, to quote the Applicant, in any "dire straits" after he had taken the Symbicort.

The Applicant acknowledged that the officer instructed him to take deep breaths and then blow into the breathalyzer unit and to keep a seal over the mouthpiece with his lips. The Applicant further admitted that he did not have any problems with his lips or his mouth that would prevent him from making a proper seal around the mouthpiece.

Even after having been taken to the OPP detachment, the Applicant did not tell anyone that he needed medication and did not feel that he had to be taken to a hospital or that he needed any medical attention. It was his testimony that it was not until about one-half hour from the time that the Applicant unsuccessfully blew into the breathalyzer that he asked for any medication, by which time he was in the holding cell at the OPP detachment. The testimony of the OPP officer confirms that the time was actually one hour and twenty minutes, and not one-half hour. The Applicant then further admitted that, after the paramedics had taken him to the hospital, the triage nurse deemed him to be stable and placed him in the waiting room. After two hours, no doctor had yet seen the Applicant. The Applicant was experiencing no difficulty, so he left the hospital without seeing a doctor.

After this incident, the Applicant admitted that he saw his own family physician about two days later, but his doctor did not examine him. In February, the Applicant saw his doctor again, but, again, his doctor did not examine him. Finally, the Applicant again saw his doctor on March 11, 2010, at which time the doctor filled in the report, previously referred to as being part of the Notice of Appeal, Exhibit 2. On March 8, 2010, the doctor wrote a letter, also filed as part of Exhibit 2, which states that the Applicant had been treated for asthma over the past twenty years, and that he currently takes Symbicort and Ventolin. The letter is addressed "To whom it may concern." The Tribunal notes that neither the report of March 11 nor the letter of March 8 indicates that the Applicant would have had difficulty in providing a breath sample into a breathalyzer on January 16.

Evidence of Constable Daniel Pillon

Constable Pillon has been a member of the OPP since April 2006.

On January 16, 2010, he was on moving radar patrol. This means that his approved directional radar was not a stationary unit, but, rather, one that allows a police officer in a moving police cruiser to determine the speed of any on-coming vehicle. On the night in question, Constable Pillon noticed that his radar reading for the Applicant's vehicle was, on a first reading, 110 kilometres per hour ("kph") and, on the second reading, 118 kph, in an area where the speed limit was 50 kph. The Constable then activated his cruiser's emergency lights as the Applicant's vehicle passed by. When the Applicant failed to stop, the Constable turned his cruiser around and pursued the Applicant's vehicle at speeds exceeding 120 kph. The Constable followed the Applicant's vehicle onto the driveway of the Applicant's residence. At that point, the Constable had the Applicant exit his vehicle by way of the passenger door, placed him in handcuffs with his hands behind his back, and placed him in the rear seat of the cruiser. Four other cruisers arrived at the scene; a procedure that Constable Pillon stated was standard for cases involving vehicle pursuits.

The Applicant alleged that his asthma condition prevented him from providing a sample of his breath into the breathalyzer. The Registrar's Agent disputed that allegation on several grounds, one being that the Applicant did not complain about his condition or seek medication for it until a significant time after the demand for the breath sample was made. Therefore, in these Reasons, the Tribunal considers it to be necessary to set out the specific times at which the officer stated that events occurred on January 16.

At 9:48 p.m., while at the Applicant's driveway, Constable Pillon charged the Applicant with fleeing police and dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

While confronting the Applicant on those charges, Constable Pillon also noticed an odour of alcohol on the Applicant's breath. When he asked the Applicant if he had been drinking, he stated that he had "a shot" at his brother's house. There was no evidence as to what drink the "shot" involved or how long before this incident he had taken it. But, at 9:50 p.m., Constable Pillon made a demand for a sample of the Applicant's breath, to be given into an approved breathalyzer unit that plugs into a 12-volt outlet in the police cruiser. At 9:52 and 9:53 p.m., Constable Pillon demonstrated to the Applicant how to blow properly into the unit. In response to this demonstration, the Applicant, using a vulgar profanity, stated that he was an ER (emergency room) nurse and knew what to do.

At 9:53 p.m. the Applicant was told to provide a breath sample. But, the Applicant did not seal the mouthpiece with his lips, so that air was being expelled around the mouthpiece. He also interrupted the flow of air so that, although the unit made a tone periodically to indicate that air was flowing in, the tone went off and on, indicating a periodic stoppage of air. The Constable concluded that the Applicant was using his tongue to cover the mouthpiece at different times. The Applicant challenged the officer on cross-examination, arguing that the officer did not actually see the Applicant's tongue cover the mouthpiece. However, the evidence revealed that there was nothing else in the Applicant's mouth at the time. Furthermore, the officer was only about one foot away from the Applicant during the use of the breathalyzer unit and since the officer could detect a puffing sound whenever the air was stopped, the Tribunal considers that the officer's conclusion was a reasonable one under the circumstances. The unit registered an "error" signal, confirming that a suitable sample of breath was not provided.

During this first episode, the officer did not detect any breathing difficulties on the part of the Applicant. As well, the officer did not detect that the Applicant exhibited signs of shortness of breath, or wheezing or coughing. The Applicant made no complaints about his breathing ability. He did not ask for any medication.

At 9:58 p.m., Constable Pillon inserted a new mouthpiece into the breathalyzer unit, and again asked the Applicant to blow into it. The results were the same as they were after the first demand; that is, the Applicant did not seal the mouthpiece, air was expelled around it, there was the same periodic stoppage of air, and the unit registered "error" once again. As before, the Applicant did not make any complaints about his medical condition.

Before the officer administered the breathalyzer test for a third time, he warned the Applicant that, if he did not provide an adequate breath sample for a third time, he would charge him with failing to provide a breath sample. Again, however, the results were the same as they were for the two previous attempts. The constable charged the Applicant with refusing to provide a breath sample, to which the Applicant responded, "Whatever."

At 10:01 p.m., the police officer and the Applicant left the Applicant's driveway and travelled to the OPP detachment. The Applicant was still in the rear seat of the police cruiser. At 10:12 p.m., the Applicant was lodged in a cell. He talked to his lawyer at 10:34 p.m. by telephone, privately, outside the cell, and at 10:39, he returned to his cell.

At 11:10 p.m., approximately one hour and twenty minutes after the Applicant was first asked to provide a sample of his breath, the Applicant asked for his inhaler, prompting a call to this girlfriend at 11:15 p.m. to bring the inhaler and also prompting a call to paramedics as a precaution. At 11:33, the Applicant used his inhaler. At 11:45 p.m., the paramedics arrived. At two minutes after midnight, the police released the Applicant on a Promise to Appear in Court. The paramedics took him to a nearby hospital.

At 1:00 a.m., Constable Pillon received a telephone call from that hospital and was advised that the Applicant had left on foot without seeing a doctor. Constable Pillon then notified the local police services to make them aware that there was a person in the community who might be in need of medical attention. However, there was no evidence of any further police or paramedic involvement with the Applicant.

On cross-examination, the Applicant stressed that he was in an awkward position in the police cruiser when the officer asked him to provide a breath sample. In response, the officer stated that the Applicant's position was conducive to providing a sufficient sample. The officer explained that the Applicant was sitting sideways in the rear seat of the cruiser, his hands were behind his back, and his feet were touching the ground, and he was bent slightly forward. There was no evidence before this Tribunal that supported the Applicant's contention.

In addition, the Applicant questioned the officer on why he did not ask the Applicant about any medical condition he might be suffering from. In reply, the officer stated that he did not ask about the Applicant's medical condition because, during his interaction with the Applicant before they went to the detachment office, there were no physical signs that he was in any kind of distress.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The reports from the Applicant's family physician fall short of saying that the Applicant was unable to provide a sample of his breath into the roadside breathalyzer unit on January 16, 2010. The Applicant's doctor states only that the Applicant suffers from acute asthma. There is nothing in his two reports that substantiates the Applicant's contention that his breathing problems prevented a successful breathalyzer test. The Tribunal acknowledges that the doctor, in his report of March 11, does state that the Applicant's acute asthma "prevents adequate exhalation." However, that still does not answer the question as to whether the Applicant could properly blow into the breathalyzer on January 16. Even the PFT results attached to the March 11, 2010, report, are almost eight years old. There were no recent test results closer to January 16, 2010.

In contrast, the report from Dr. Goldstein dated March 24, 2010, and attached to the Respondent's submissions, Exhibit 3, is quite persuasive. His report states that the vast majority of individuals, even with a Forced Expiry Volume in 1 second (FEV 1) of 0.7 are able to satisfactorily provide a breath sample into the unit notwithstanding their respiratory condition. On the Applicant's PFT results attached to Exhibit 2, this Tribunal notes that the Applicant's FEV 1 both before and after the Applicant used a bronchodilator are well over 3.00. Those readings are all higher, and therefore better, than the 0.7 reading that Dr. Goldstein states would be sufficient to provide a breath sample.

In addition, this Tribunal does not accept the Applicant's argument that the PFT results of January 31, 2002 give rise to the "possibility," to quote from his argument, that he might not have been able to provide a sufficient sample of his breath on January 16, 2010. The reason is that, attached to the Respondent's submissions, Exhibit 3, there is a Notice to Registrar dated February 15, 2002, just fifteen days after the Applicant's PFT results on January 31, 2002. As the Registrar's counsel argued, the Notice confirms that the Applicant's licence was suspended under the ADLS provisions of the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario for having blown "over 80." Therefore, if the Applicant could successfully provide a sample of his breath within fifteen days after his PFT results on January 31, 2002, it is not logical to hold that the test results from January 31, 2002, can support the Applicant's contention that he could not provide a sample of his breath almost eight years later. The absence of any recent PFT results that might have demonstrated that he could not have provided such a sample on January 16, 2010 supports the Tribunal's decision.

Furthermore, the Applicant has the onus of proving his case based on a balance of probabilities, and not based on mere possibilities.

In addition, there is other evidence to support the Registrar's argument that the Applicant was not in such distress so as to prevent him from providing an adequate sample of this breath, summarized as follows:

At the time Constable Pillon attempted to have the Applicant provide a sample of his breath at the Applicant's residence, there was nothing in the Applicant's behaviour that indicated that he was experiencing any medical problem, let alone a shortness of breath. What the officer did see, however, was that the Applicant did not form a seal around the mouthpiece, resulting in air being expelled from around the mouthpiece. He also observed that Applicant interfered periodically with the flow of air into the breathalyzer. Yet, the Applicant confirmed, in his testimony, that he had no problems with his lips or his mouth that would prevent him from blowing properly into the breathalyzer. The Applicant himself stated that he was not in "dire straits" when he was asked to blow into the breathalyzer.

The Applicant did not ask for medical attention until approximately one hour and twenty minutes after he was first asked to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant was an ER nurse, and would have known to ask for medical assistance, if he needed it; yet he did not ask for any help when he was asked to blow into the breathalyzer.

Even when the Applicant was taken to a nearby hospital, there is no evidence that he needed any medical assistance, after being assessed by the triage nurse. The Applicant, in fact, left on his own accord, without being seen by a doctor.

The Applicant's condition is under control. The family physician who prepared the report of March 11, 2010, does not even give the date of the Applicant's last visit to his office.

For all the above reasons, this Tribunal concludes that the Applicant has not shown that he was unable to provide a sample of his breath on January 16, 2010 for a medical reason.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated January 16, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

DATE OF HEARING: June 9, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 9, 2010 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on June 10, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section of the 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") dated March 28, 2010.

REASON FOR THE APPEAL

The reasons for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal are summarized as follows:

The Applicant's appeal is grounded in ss. 50.1 (2)(b), that is, that he was unable to provide a breath sample on the grounds that he had a medical condition that rendered him unable to blow. The Applicant further argues that certain police behaviour infringed his rights under s. 7 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms which states:

> 7. Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of the person and the right not to be deprived thereof except in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

Pursuant to the provisions of s. 48.3 of the Act, the Applicant's driver's licence was suspended for a period of 90 days. The Applicable provisions of s. 48.3 state:

> Suspension of licence, alcohol testing
> 48.3 (1) Where a police officer is satisfied that a person driving or having the care, charge or control of a motor vehicle or operating or having the care or control of a vessel meets one of the criteria set out in subsection (3), the officer shall notify the Registrar of that fact, or cause the Registrar to be so notified, in the form and manner and within the time prescribed by the regulations.
> Suspension of driver's licence for ninety days
> (2) Upon being notified under subsection (1), the Registrar shall suspend a person's driver's licence for a period of ninety days.
> Criteria
> (3) The criteria for the purpose of subsection (1) are:
> 1. The person is shown, by an analysis of breath or blood taken pursuant to a demand made under subsection 254 (3) of the Criminal Code (Canada) or pursuant to section 256 of the Criminal Code (Canada), to have a concentration of alcohol in his or her blood in excess of 80 milligrams in 100 millilitres of blood.
> 2. The person failed or refused to provide a breath or blood sample in response to a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada).

The Applicant appeals to this Tribunal pursuant to the provisions of s. 50.1 of the Act. S. 50.1 provides:

Appeal of ninety-day suspension

50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

Grounds for appeal

(2) The only grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

(a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3 (3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason.

Supporting material

(3) A person who appeals to the Tribunal under subsection (1) shall file such written material in support of the appeal as may be required by the regulations made under clause 49 (4) (c), together with such other material as the person may wish to submit, and the Tribunal shall not hold a hearing until all the supporting material is filed.

Powers of Board

(4) The Tribunal may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Licence reinstated

(5) If the Tribunal orders that the suspension be set aside, it shall give written notice of the order to the appellant and the Registrar and, upon receipt of such notice, the Registrar shall reinstate the appellant's driver's licence, subject to any other suspension under this Act.

Decision final

(6) The decision of the Tribunal under this section is final and binding.

Suspension not stayed

(7) The suspension under section 48.3 continues to apply despite the filing of an appeal under this section unless the Registrar reinstates the licence pursuant to the Tribunal's order that the suspension be set aside, and this subsection prevails over the Statutory Powers Procedure Act.

FACTS:

The Applicant was taken to his local police station on March 28, 2010 and asked to provide a breath sample. The officer who administered the breath test concluded that the Applicant was deliberately refusing to blow into the device for the required five second period and, after several unsuccessful attempts to have the Applicant blow as required, charged him with refusal to provide a breath sample.

The Tribunal heard evidence from the Applicant and from the two police officers involved in his arrest, Officer Steven Bebee and Officer Michael Aaslay. The Applicant testified that he has a chronic medical condition known as angioedema. As a result of the condition, the Applicant suffers from periodic episodes of swelling in various parts of his body. It was the Applicant's evidence that he experiences attacks at least once a month. The severity changes from attack to attack. He stated that it normally takes about 10 hours for the swelling to go down once he starts his medication. He also stated, in cross-examination, that the condition may last three days.

On the morning of March 28, 2010, the Applicant stated that he awoke at around 6:00 a.m. with a swollen tongue, right cheek and gums. He self-medicated in accordance with advice from his physician. He took Prednisone, Reactin and Benadryl. He experienced some improvement in his symptoms. He then remained at home all day with two exceptions. Around noon he went to the grocery store. In the early evening, he went around to his girlfriend's house which was 90 seconds' drive away to see her kids. He stayed only a few minutes with his girlfriend because they had a dispute. He left and drove home. On arrival at his home, he was arrested by two police officers on unrelated charges.

The Applicant testified that on his arrest he immediately informed the officers that he had a medical condition and required medication from his car. He testified that the police officers ignored his requests for access to his medication. They also ignored his repeated requests to be taken to hospital. At the station, after he was processed and placed in a cell, he was taken to the breathalyzer room where a demand was made from him to provide a breath sample. Use of the breathalyzer device was demonstrated. He advised the officer of his medical problem. The officer ignored the medical information. The Applicant stated that he noted video recording equipment in the breathalyzer room. He asked the officer if the audio portion was working and was told that it was. He testified that he then walked over to the camera and said aloud that he was not refusing to blow but that his medical condition was such that he could not blow. Despite this fact, he tried his best to blow. After a couple of failed attempts, the officer charged him with refusal to provide a breath sample.

At a later date, the Applicant attended court on the charges relating to his refusal to blow. He was given disclosure by the Crown, including the video of his time in the breathalyzer room. It was at this time that he discovered that the video had no audio.

Officer Steven Bebee was an acting sergeant on March 28, 2010 on community patrol in a marked police cruiser. Over the radio he heard a call concerning an individual leaving a local bar and staggering to his car. The car was registered to the Applicant. Officers were dispatched to the bar to try to intercept the Applicant but he had already left. Officer Bebee was in the vicinity of the Applicant's residence so he parked his cruiser on the route he expected the Applicant to take home. After several minutes, the Applicant's car passed. Officer Bebee activated his roof lights but not the siren. Officer Bebee formed the impression that the Applicant speeded up when he activated his lights although his overall speed remained moderate. Because of potential danger to the public resulting from a high-speed chase, Officer Bebee decided not to initiate a pursuit. Instead he dropped back. He observed the Applicant's vehicle turning onto his street and pulling into the driveway. Officer Bebee parked his cruiser across the driveway in such a manner that the Applicant's car was locked in between his cruiser and a car already parked in the driveway.

Officer Bebee gout out of his cruiser and approached the driver's side door of the Applicant's car. The Applicant got out of the car and walked up his driveway to the house. Officer Bebee arrested the Applicant for impaired driving. He grabbed the Applicant's left arm at which point the Applicant spun to face him. Officer Bebee felt this move was aggressive so he spun the Applicant and locked him against a car in the driveway. He then tried to cuff the Applicant but due to the Applicant's struggles was unable to do so. The Applicant had freed one hand and was trying to put it in his waistband. Officer Bebee called for assistance and, once Officer Aaslay arrived and provided assistance, he was able to restrain the Applicant and arrest him. The Applicant was informed of his right to counsel and a demand for a breath sample was made of him.

Officer Bebee was able to smell alcohol on the Applicant's breath almost immediately after he approached him. While the Applicant's speech was slurred, Officer Bebee had no difficulty understanding him. The Applicant's eyes were red. Once he was restrained, the Applicant was taken to Officer Aaslay's cruiser. Officer Bebee stated that the Applicant was sufficiently unsteady on his feet to require assistance walking. He acknowledged that the Applicant had his hands cuffed behind his back and that this fact would interfere with walking but felt the Applicant's inability to walk was excessive in the circumstances.

The Applicant was searched following the arrest and his keys and wallet were removed from him. Officer Bebee found no medication on the Applicant's person. He knocked on the Applicant's door. It was answered by the Applicant's sister. He turned over the Applicant's personal belongings to his sister.

Throughout the arrest, Officer Bebee stated that the Applicant was yelling. He continued to yell: "Let me blow into the machine, I'm not drunk" in the back of Officer Aaslay's cruiser. According to Officer Bebee, at no time did the Applicant raise medical issues or ask for medication. Officer Aaslay then took the Applicant back to the police station. When Officer Bebee returned to the station later, Officer Aaslay informed him that the Applicant had refused to provide a breathalyzer sample. Officer Bebee then prepared and served the 90 day suspension notice on the Applicant.

Officer Aaslay testified that he was one of the officers dispatched to the bar after the report of the individual staggering to a car. The car having already left the bar, Officer Aaslay drove towards the Applicant's home address. On the way there he received Officer Bebee's call for assistance. On his arrival at the Applicant's home he observed Officer Bebee struggling with the Applicant in the driveway. He assisted Officer Bebee in taking the Applicant to the ground and restraining him. He then drove the Applicant to the police station.

At the station, the Applicant was processed by Staff Sergeant Doherty. The booking procedure involves questions about medical conditions. The Applicant did not complain about any medical conditions either in the cruiser or to Staff Sergeant Doherty. The Applicant was then taken to the cells and Officer Aaslay prepared the breathalyzer room. Officer Aaslay then took the Applicant from the cells to the breathalyzer room where he made a demand for a breath sample and informed the Applicant of his right to counsel. He demonstrated the use of the mouthpiece and the manner in which to give a sample.

The Applicant was not wheezing or coughing during this period. He was not drooling. He put the mouthpiece in his mouth and started blowing. He had no problem forming a seal and blowing and Officer Aaslay got a reading, but the Applicant stopped blowing just before the required length of time. Officer Aaslay readjusted the mouthpiece and asked the Applicant to blow again. The Applicant did not blow properly. He just stopped blowing. He pointed to the mouthpiece and said: "I'm trying." He made no complaint about a medical condition that interfered with his ability to blow. Officer Aaslay determined that the Applicant was not willing to give the required sample and charged him with refusal to provide a breath sample.

Officer Aaslay has been a certified breathalyzer for two and a half years. During that time the breathalyzer room has been equipped for audio/video recording. It activates automatically with motion sensors when someone enters the room. There is no procedure for him to check the functioning of the audio/visual equipment prior to entry to the room. He assumed it was working properly when he tested the Applicant and advised the Applicant that the test was being recorded. Following the test, he filled out a request to seize the recording which was forward to the Inspector. The recording was seized and put in the evidence room for use in future court proceedings. Officer Aaslay has not seen the recording.

The medical evidence put forward by the Applicant establishes that he does suffer from episodic angioedema and has done so since October 2006. There are several emergency admission reports ranging from a Triage Report of October 8, 2006 to an Emergency Admission Report dated April 4, 2009. The April 2009 report details an angioedema episode involving his tongue. That report indicates no wheezing and a clear chest. He was tested at Hospital but no allergens were identified that triggered his condition. The Hospital report recommends the use of Reactin and Benadryl when episodes of swelling occur, as the condition responds easily to these medications.

Approximately two weeks after his arrest, The Applicant was seen by his family physician. With respect to that visit, the physician wrote:

> [The Applicant] suffers from episodic angioedema which causes swelling of his tongue and upper lip. He tells me that he was experiencing this problem when asked to do a Breathalyzer on March 28, 2010. In theory the swelling of his tongue and upper lip could interfere with his ability to comply with the Breathalyzer.

Some time later, the Applicant's family physician was asked for a fuller report on the Applicant's condition. He expands on the theoretical musings in his earlier letter.

> On that night [March 28, 2010] [The Applicant] reports that he was experiencing swelling of his tongue to a degree that he could not comply with a breathalyzer. This is possible in theory however if this is truly what [The Applicant] was experiencing at the time then his speech would be markedly garbled and very difficult to understand. If the officer who charged him states [The Applicant's] speech was essentially normal then I very much doubt that the tongue swelling the he was experiencing would prevent him from complying with the breathalyzer.

ANALYSIS

A review of the totality of the evidence indicates that the Applicant has been less than forthcoming with the Tribunal. His evidence lacks consistency. He stated that he awoke at 6:00 a.m. with swelling in his mouth. He self-medicated. According to the Applicant, it takes about 10 hours for the swelling to go down although he said it may last three days on occasion. By the time of his arrest approximately 13 hours after he awoke, it was his evidence that his condition had improved. All of that day, while under no pressure or duress, the Applicant chose not to attend hospital or seek an appointment with his physician, yet, it was his evidence that he immediately asked the police to take him to hospital when he was arrested and repeated that request when he was taken in for processing and prior to giving his breath sample. There is an inconsistency in the Applicant suddenly needing to attend the hospital with improving symptoms.

Not even the Applicant suggests that he was unable to blow into the breathalyzer or to make a good seal. Nor does the Applicant argue that his words were so slurred that the arresting officers could not understand them. While Officer Bebee testified that the Applicant's speech was slurred from the effects of alcohol, and while he used the term, "very slurred" in his notes at the end of his shift, both he and Officer Aaslay testified that they were able to understand him clearly. There is no evidence that the Applicant's speech was "garbled and very difficult to understand." The Tribunal concludes that, on a balance of probabilities, the Applicant was not suffering from a medical condition on the evening of March 28, 2010 that rendered him unable to provide a breath sample when the police made the demand.

The Applicant argues that the failure of the police to have the audio recording in operation constitutes a breach of his rights under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. According to the Applicant's argument, the contradiction between the evidence of the officers and the evidence of the Applicant regarding his medical condition and the officers' knowledge of it raises issues as to credibility. As can be seen from the analysis above, the Tribunal has reviewed the Applicant's evidence without reference to the police evidence and found it to be internally inconsistent. The Tribunal has found that, even accepting the Applicant's evidence about his medical condition, he raised no complaint about an inability to communicate his medical condition to the officers. Indeed, it is his evidence that he stated quite clearly to the camera in the breathalyser room that he was not refusing to blow but could not because of some undefined characteristic of his swollen tongue; a characteristic not supported by the medical evidence and the fact of his clear speech. The Applicant's statements that he had a medical condition carry very little probative weight about the possibility that he had a condition of such severity that he could not form a seal and blow into the test apparatus. It is the balance of the Applicant's evidence, and the agreement of that evidence with the evidence of Officer Aaslay, that form the basis for the Tribunal's conclusions. Even if the Tribunal resolves the evidentiary dispute in favour of the Applicant - that he did complain about his condition - his appeal must fail.

Finally, the specific section of the Charter relied on by the Applicant, s. 7, addresses the fundamental right of all Canadians to "life, liberty and security of the person and the right not to be deprived thereof except in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice." For the Applicant to succeed he must demonstrate that administrative suspension of a driver's licence is a matter of life, liberty or security of the person. This question was considered by the Ontario Court of Appeal in Horsefield v. Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicles) [1999] O.J. No. 967. Justice Finlayson speaking for the Court stated at paragrahs 53 and 54:

> I hardly think that losing for 90 days the privilege or license to drive a motor vehicle is in the same category as suffering the state to dictate one's place of residence. The suggestion does trivialize the Charter, which is intended to protect fundamental liberties, not insulate the citizen from inconvenience, no matter how great that inconvenience may be in the individual case…..
> For the reasons set out above, I am of the opinion that s. 48.3 of the HTA establishing the ADLS Program does not interfere with a liberty protected by s. 7 of the Charter.

Based on the Horsefield decision, the Applicant's Charter argument must fail.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated March 28, 2010 pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension

KYLE M.BIEL
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 3, 2010

DECISION RELEASED: June 3, 2010 Toronto, Ontario

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 3, 2010 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on June 3, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section of the 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") dated April 25, 2010

Reason for the Appeal

The reasons for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal are summarized as follows: The Applicant claims that he was unable to complete the demand for a breath sample due to sudden shortness of breath and high blood pressure.

Preliminary Matters

At the onset of the hearing the Tribunal ordered that witnesses, except for the parties, be excluded during the testimony of other witnesses. The witnesses were cautioned not to discuss their evidence with the parties or other witnesses during the period of exclusion of witnesses.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the HTA states:

> 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 to the Act, at subsection 15(1),(2) and (3), requires that a medical report must contain:

15.(1) "a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner."

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 provides:

"A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal".

FACTS

The Applicant, accompanied by his wife was returning to Canada from a casino on the U.S.

side at approximately 02:00 hours on April 25, 2010. He entered the bus lane and was stopped by Border Service Officer Lorne Hamilton, an officer of the Canadian Border Service Agency. The officer detected the odour of alcohol from the driver and noted that he had bloodshot eyes. He asked if the driver had consumed alcohol that evening and was told that he had three drinks. He issued a demand for a breath sample, under authority of Section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act. This officer is trained to administer a roadside breath test.

He identified the Applicant as the driver.

He escorted the driver to an office and explained how the test is performed. He demonstrated the technique on himself. At each test the driver interrupted the blow and the machine showed “ERROR”. After the seventh attempt he advised the driver that he had one more chance to comply. He failed, was cautioned, placed under arrest for failing to supply a sample of breath on demand and was allowed to speak to Duty Counsel. He was placed in a holding cell pending the arrival of a Regional Police officer who would complete the requirements for arrest and release.

While in the cell the driver requested medical assistance regarding his blood pressure and an ambulance was called.

The officer informed the Tribunal that the driver show no signs of breathing difficulty or physical distress such as trembling or sweating. He did not ask for medication.

An ambulance arrived and the paramedics performed an assessment. Regional Police Officer Constable. Matthew Whitely arrived at 03:20 as the driver was being placed in the ambulance. The Officer briefed Constable Whitely. and informed him of events leading to the charge. Officer Hamilton accompanied the ambulance to the Emergency Room and Constable Whitely followed in his car.

The paramedics documented normal breath sounds and a rapid heart beat. They administered Oxygen and noted improvement on arrival at the E.R.

While the driver was awaiting assessment at the E.R. Constable Whitely observed no evidence of breathing difficulty. The driver was cooperative and expressed concern for his wife who had been left at the bridge.

The Medical record from the ER noted at 04:20 was difficult to decipher due to poor copy quality but shows blood pressure 168/116, heart rate 98, no shortness of breath, and the driver was given a sedative by mouth.

Constable Whitely completed documentation and released the driver from custody.

The Applicant discharged himself from the E.R at 06:50 hours.

Applicant denies that he told Officer Hamilton that he had taken any alcohol and informed the Tribunal that he had not been drinking. He stated that he asked for a blood test for alcohol upon failing to complete the demand for a breath sample. He was advised that there was no indication for a blood test. Constable Whitely advised the Tribunal that the circumstances did not call for a blood alcohol test to be demanded.

Medical evidence provided by the Family Physician in Reasons for Appeal states:

(a) Details and Diagnosis of Patient's Present Condition:

Hypertension, Non-Alcoholic

(b) History of Condition Precluding Patient from providing Breath or Blood Sample:

None. As per patient, he was willing to give blood sample

(c) Type of Measurements or recent test taken (dater indicated)

Blood work for glucose, liver enzymes, cholesterol elevated, liver enzymes within normal limits.

(d) Relevant details of last visit, including date of Patient's last visit

High blood pressure April 29, 2010, previous April 7, 2010, also has blood pressure.

(e) How long has the Applicant been your patient?

3 years.

A letter written by his regular family physician on May 12, 2010 states in part:

His blood pressure was very high when they checked him at the border and later in the emergency. This may have been the reason why he wasn't able to complete the breathalyzer test.

The Applicant stated that he was distracted by construction on the bridge and he drove by mistake into the bus lane. He attributes the rise of blood pressure and rapid heart rate reaction to being stopped by the officer and the demand for a breath sample. He states that he was unable to complete the breath sample because of his rising blood pressure and rapid heart rate. He denies that he had consumed alcohol and believes that he should have been tested by a blood sample as he requested.

The Respondent relies on sworn police evidence that the Applicant admitted to having three drinks during the evening before being stopped. The Applicant failed to complete the breath test after eight attempts and two demonstrations by the officer. The applicant asked for emergency assistance only after he was charged. On arrival in the Emergency Room there was no evidence to support his claim of shortness of breath.

The Tribunal finds that:

1. The Applicant is the driver who failed to comply with a demand for a breath sample on April 25, 2010 when requested by a Peace Officer under Section 48.3 of the Highway Traffic Act.

2. Medical evidence produced by the Applicant in Reasons for Appeal under Regulation 574 to the Act, subsection 15(1)(2) and (3), fails to preclude the Applicant was medically incapable of providing a breath sample on demand under Section 254 of the Criminal Code

3. There was no indication for a demand for a blood sample from the Applicant under Section 50.1(b) of the HTA.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated April 25, 2010 pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: KEVIN FLYNN, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: A FAMILY MEMBER OF THE APPLICANT, Agent, representing the Applicant

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: May 31, 2010 Toronto

DECISION RELEASED: June 1, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 31, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on June 1, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Act, and it was received by the Tribunal on May 14, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar, effective February 22, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath or blood sample because of a medical reason.

The Applicant claims that he was unable to complete a roadside breath test on demand, on February 22, 2010, on the ground of a pre-existing medical condition.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the onset of the hearing, the Tribunal ordered that witnesses be excluded during the testimony of other witnesses. The witnesses were cautioned not to discuss their evidence with the parties or other witnesses during the period of exclusion of witnesses.

The Registrar's disclosure materials were sent by courier on May 25, 2010, to the Applicant's home address as noted in the Applicant's Notice of Appeal form, but were undeliverable. The Applicant was served with copies when the hearing commenced, and he agreed to continue.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension ("ADLS") under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

(a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason.

The Act states under section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 provides that:

A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant was driving his vehicle southbound on a provincial highway on February 22, 2010, when he lost control of his vehicle and ended up in a ditch. A civilian telephoned the regional police for emergency assistance, and Police Constable Jansen attended at the scene at approximately 2100 hours.

Police Constable Jansen gave evidence and identified the Applicant as the driver.

On the day of the incident, it was snowing and he found tire tracks leading to the vehicle. The lights were on and the engine of the vehicle was running. The civilian who had called informed the police that the Applicant had asked the civilian if he had any whiskey.

The driver informed Police Constable Jansen that his vehicle had "spun out" when he was returning from his destination (slang name of town deleted). He had a cooler in the vehicle containing two bottles - one was empty and the other contained water. Police Constable Jansen took the driver to his cruiser and noted that the driver was unsteady and appeared confused. The officer was also suspicious of the Applicant's mispronunciation of the town name (referred to above). He did not detect the odour of alcohol from the driver. The driver did not at any time request medical assistance. Police Constable Jansen sat with the Applicant in the cruiser and did not see evidence of medical distress.

He suspected that the driver had been drinking so he made a demand to the Applicant for a roadside test for alcohol.

He allowed the driver six attempts to blow into the Alcotest. The first two attempts showed "error", indicating insufficient blowing. On the third attempt, the driver failed to make a tight seal around the mouthpiece, and on the fourth attempt, the sample was too shallow to sound the tone. Police Constable Jansen cautioned the driver about the implications of failing to blow, and on the sixth attempt, the breath sample was again too weak and shallow. At 2126 hours, Police Constable Jansen arrested the driver, handcuffed him and took him to the police station. He informed the driver of his right to a lawyer but the offer was declined.

The Applicant contacted his family physician, Dr. V., several days after the incident.

Dr. V. had investigated the Applicant for a chest condition and a diagnosis of lung cancer was made by biopsy on April 13, 2010. Dr. V. prepared a letter on April 6, 2010, in accordance with the Regulation.

The doctor's letter states:

> <The Applicant> is under my medical care. In the past two months <the Applicant> has experienced increasing shortness of breath. This is associated with a chronic cough. <The Applicant> is a long time smoker. He underwent investigations which revealed, chronic lung disease as well as a nodule in his right upper lobe. <The Applicant> has been referred to a > thoracic surgeon for further pulmonary assessment and biopsy of his lung nodule.

> On March 9, 2010 (sic) <the Applicant> was unable to adequately breathe into a breathalyzer.
> <The Applicant>'s poor respiratory and expiratory efforts are related to all of the aforementioned medical issues.

On May 12, 2010, Dr. V. completed the section on the Notice of Appeal form titled "Applicant's Medical Information". It notes as follows:

(a) Details and diagnosis of patient's present condition:

> Increasing shortness of breath, increasing cough, currently under investigation for lung cancer.

(b) History of condition precluding patient from providing breath or blood sample:

> This question was unanswered.

(c) Type of measurements or recent test taken with (date indicated):

> CXR - Chest X-Ray March 4/10, Lung CT Scan - March 19, 2010, Biopsy confirms lung cancer

(d) Relevant details of last visit, including date of patient's last visit:

> March 4/10 presented with cough, shortness of breath. Last visit - April 6/10

(e) How long has the Applicant been your patient?

> 6 years 2 months

(f) Physician's information:

> General Practice

The Applicant informed the Tribunal that he had a Pulmonary Function Test at the regional hospital on April 13, 2010. He agreed that this test was similar to the breathalyzer and confirmed that he had no problem completing it. A copy of the Pulmonary Function Test was not provided to the Tribunal. Also, the test was not referred to by Dr. V., in the section of the Notice of Appeal form completed by her.

The Applicant stated that he was a heavy smoker, since age 15, of one pack per day until about one month ago. He worked in construction in the 70s and 80s with exposure to asbestos.

He has been using a puffer for his breathing since he was seen by Dr. V., after the road accident in February 2010. He claimed that the breathalyzer can be adjusted to make it more difficult to blow. He stated that he told the officer that he had trouble breathing. He did not recall asking the civilian if the civilian had any whiskey.

An excerpt of the Applicant's Extended Driver Record shows the following convictions:

- February 1979 - Impaired Driving
- April 1979 - Impaired Driving
- October 1982 - Impaired Driving
- July 1984 - Fail/Refuse Roadside Breath Test
- July 1990 - Fail or Refuse to Provide Breath or Blood Sample
- July 1990 (x2 convictions) - Impaired Driving

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal finds that:

1. The Applicant was the driver charged on February 22, 2010, pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code"), and referred to in subsection 48.3(3).

2. The Applicant failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code to provide a sample of breath, without a valid medical reason.

3. The medical evidence produced by the Applicant in his reasons for appeal under Regulation 574 to the Act, subsection (15)(1), (2) and (3), fails to prove the Applicant was medically incapable of providing a breath sample on demand under section 254 of the Criminal Code.

The results of the Pulmonary Function Test, performed on April 13, 2010, were not provided to the Tribunal.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar, effective February 22, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D.
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL
Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 12, 2010 Cornwall

DECISION RELEASED: July 13, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on July 12, 2010, at Cornwall, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on July 13, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section of the 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on June 25, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective May 9, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> "I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason".

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

There were no preliminary matters. All documents were entered as exhibits with the consent of both Parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

O. Reg. 574 to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

> 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
> (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of O. Reg. 574 provides:

> A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on May 9, 2010, as per the Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit #2.

The Applicant's written submissions were in the form of a typewritten letter dated June 22, 2010, and addressed "To Whom It May Concern". In her letter the Applicant sets out the reason for appeal as:

> "stressed (sic) induced breathing problems, which occur from Reactive airways disease".

In support of her grounds for appeal due to a medical condition, the Applicant provided the Tribunal with a letter from her physician, dated June 22, 2010. The Applicant's physician states:

> "This note is to confirm that (Applicant) has Reactive Airways Disease of moderate intensity. She has required hospitalization for treatment in the past. This condition would make it difficult for her to provide a breath sample especially in a stress-induced bronchospasm.
> (Applicant) was last seen June 10, 2010. At that time examination of her chest was positive for expiatory wheeze in both lungs. She does require ventolin and flovent inhalers and singulair for management of the condition."

Together with the previously mentioned written submissions the Applicant also enclosed copies of prescriptions for Ventolin, Ration-Salbutamol HFA, Symbicort, Cipralex and Singulair.

At the hearing, the Applicant testified as to the events that led to her being stopped and asked to provide a breath sample. The Applicant attested that she became anxious and was having a hard time breathing when asked to provide a breath sample. She asked the officer for her purse so that she could use the ventolin inhaler and requested to be taken to hospital but the officer paid no attention.

In cross-examination, the Applicant affirmed that she did not recall telling the officer she would fail the breathalyzer and that she believes that she would have passed. The Applicant clarified that she asked the officer for her purse, but did not recall whether it was before or after she had been charged. When asked specifically if she had used the inhaler after retrieving her purse, the Applicant replied that she had already been charged.

As for signs of an asthma attack, the Applicant explained that she just felt tightness in the chest. She admitted to yelling at the officer and being angry because she believed he was being unfair.

The Applicant initially stated that she tried to give a breath sample by putting her "mouth on the thing once or twice". Under further questioning, the Applicant admitted that she tried only "once", and that she did not recall whether or not the mouthpiece was connected to the device. According to the Applicant "nothing happened", the machine did not emit a tone.

The Applicant affirmed that she was not having an asthma attack, that she felt that she "could not expel the air" and that her chest felt tight.

The Applicant insisted that she asked for an ambulance, but the officer did not take her seriously. Once she was released she went home and used her puffers for relief, but did not seek immediate medical assistance.

According to the Applicant she made an appointment to see her physician after finding out the suspension could be appealed. At that time the Applicant was sent for a pulmonary function test, which she was able to complete without medication.

The Registrar's Evidence

Constable Serge Duguay was called as a witness.

The Constable affirmed that he has been a police officer for "eight and half years".

The Registrar's Agent asked the Constable to describe the events that led to the Applicant's breath sample being demanded.
According to the Constable, when asked to blow into the device, the Applicant immediately stated she would fail. The Constable testified that the Applicant's behaviour was belligerent; she was yelling, using profanity and making racial comments.

Constable Duguay affirmed that the Applicant held the mouthpiece in her hand but made no attempt to provide a breath sample. After she was charged, the Applicant told the officer that she was having an asthma attack, an ambulance was offered but the Applicant denied that one was needed.

Constable Duguay did not see the Applicant use any inhalers after she got her purse but remembers the Applicant stating the medication was not in her purse.

The Applicant opted not to cross-examine the officer.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In her closing remarks, the Applicant denied that an ambulance was offered and noted that the officer took her breathing difficulties as a joke.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the Applicant's medical condition. Nonetheless, according to the Registrar's Agent, it was not asthma that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to do so. The Applicant confessed to the officer that she knew she would fail the test. The evidence from the officer is that the Applicant did not make an attempt to blow into the mouthpiece.

According to the Registrar's Agent, the officer did not observe any reason as to why the Applicant could not provide a breath sample. The officer's testimony is that there was no coughing, wheezing and that, in fact, she was yelling and swearing.

The Registrar's Agent continued by pointing out that the medical report, which is dated forty four days after the incident, is sparse and missing crucial information. Further, there are no test results to substantiate the claim that the Applicant could not provide a breath sample. She was able to complete pulmonary function tests, which are similar to the breathalyzer. The Registrar's Agent noted that there is nothing to link the "reactive Airway disease" to the Applicant's inability to provide a sample. It appears that the doctor was not aware that the Applicant did not even attempt the test.

The Registrar's Agent concluded by pointing out that there are inconsistencies in the Applicant's testimony and asked that the Tribunal prefer the evidence of the Constable rather than that of the Applicant.

In rebuttal, the Applicant expressed her disagreement with the Registrar's Agent closing remarks. The Applicant admits to maybe raising her voice, but insists that the breathing difficulty she was experiencing would have prevented her from yelling. Reiterating her previous statement about not using the inhalers when she was given her purse because she had already been charged, the Applicant explained:

> "may be my breathing got better, that is why I did not need them".

The Applicant claims that she did not refuse to provide a breath sample; she simply believed she was not going to be able to do it because of her condition.

The Tribunal heard evidence from the officer that the Applicant simply refused to make any attempt to provide a breath sample. The Applicant hesitantly stated she tried "once or twice". She could not remember whether the mouthpiece was attached at the time but does remember, "nothing happened". The Tribunal is satisfied that the Applicant refused to comply with the demand for a breath sample. Nonetheless, as the Applicant implied that a medical condition was the cause of her refusal, the Tribunal examined the medical evidence provided.

The Registrar's Agent did not dispute the Applicant's condition, as stated in the medical records. Therefore, the condition is proven.

The Registrar's Agent pointed out that the Applicant failed to consult with a physician until after forty-four days had passed. Further, he argued that the medical report does not offer a detailed explanation, nor link the condition to the failure to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal agrees. The medical report attached to the Notice of Appeal form is vague and inconclusive. The physician mentions prior hospitalizations due to the condition, but offers no details regarding the length of stay or frequency of the asthma attacks.

The Tribunal considered the fact that during the Applicant's last visit to the physician, her chest was found to be "positive for expiatory wheeze in both lungs". Yet, the date of this visit was a full month after the incident. There is no conclusive evidence that the condition was pre-existent.

As there are two components to section 50.1 (2) (b) that must be considered, the Tribunal must point out that it does not suffice to establish that an individual has any type of a medical condition at the time of the breathalyzer demand. The crux of the issue is whether the medical condition caused the individual to fail or not comply with a breath sample demand.

Thus, in order to determine whether or not the Applicant was in fact experiencing respiratory difficulties at the time of the breathalyzer session, the Tribunal must rely on the evidence of the eyewitnesses involved in the incident, the Applicant and the police officer.

The evidence of the police officer is that at no time did he observe the Applicant exhibiting shortness of breath. The Applicant is adamant she was feeling tightness in the chest, perhaps due to anxiety, but confirmed that she was not having an asthma attack.
By her own admission, the Applicant declared that once she had been charged, there was no need for the use of the inhalers. Further, although she maintains that she asked for an ambulance, she did not seek medical assistance after being released. The Tribunal finds that the actions and comments of the Applicant are not supportive of her claim that she was in a state of severe respiratory distress, which would have precluded her from providing a breath sample. Given the preceding, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's testimony lacks the consistency required to be deemed credible.

The Tribunal is sympathetic with the Applicant's position that she was in a state of anxiety. Unfortunately, her view is not substantiated in the medical report.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that she has failed to do so.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated May 9, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: DR. ANTOINE AOUAD, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: ADAM LITTLE, Counsel, representing the Applicant

KYLE BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: September 10, 2010 Toronto

DECISION RELEASED: September 14, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on September 10, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on September 14, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons:

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on August 24, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective August 15, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> "I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason".

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties. There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

O. Reg. 574 to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

> 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of O. Reg. 574 provides:

> A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on August 15, 2010, as per the Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit #2.

The Notice of Appeal filed by the client, filed as Exhibit # 2 contains: "Ambulance – Outpatient; Toronto East General Hospital Emergency", report prepared by Dr. S; a blood analysis print out; and an ECG. All documents appear to have the date of August 15, 2010.

The Applicant also relied on several written documents which, were entered as exhibits as follows:

Exhibit 4: Curriculum Vitae of witness Marina Vaisman.
Exhibit 5: An Authorization and Consent form signed by the Applicant under the letterhead of <name deleted>.

Exhibit 6: Consists of two pages from the Doctor's Office, one being a prescription, the other a note from a physician whose signature is illegible and the name at the top of the pad reads "Dr. <name deleted>".

Exhibit 7: A letter dated August 19, 2010 from <name deleted>, confirming the Applicant's employment with the firm for the past "8 years".

The hospital report indicates that no anomalies were noted and that the Applicant was released after a couple of hours.

In a signed handwritten note, dated "AUG 24/10", the physician consulted by the Applicant during the absence of his long time family physician states:

> "Seen today (first visit) (Applicant's name) is currently suffering from depression. He describes a pain episode and was unable to complete a breathalyzer. He is to attend with a psychologist + to start an antidepressant anti-anxiety medication".

At the commencement of the hearing the witnesses were excluded at the request of the Applicant's counsel.

Lead by his counsel, the Applicant answered basic questions regarding his age, status in Canada, status with police, family and health.

The Applicant's health problems began approximately ten years ago when his wife left him. He described his medical condition as "stress" manifesting as rapid heartbeat, shortness of breath, headaches and stomach upset, which occur for no apparent reason.

The Applicant testified that he has been thoroughly checked out by his family physician and that no specific issues were found, other than that he was advised about smoking which could aggravate the shortness of breath.

When asked by his counsel to detail exactly what he feels when he is having a panic attack, the Applicant stated:

> "like now, my hands are getting wet, I am getting short of breath and …pressure in the heart, headache and weakness in the whole body …my whole body 'kinda' shaking, not enough air to breath, have to take some medication for it."

According to the Applicant, he began psychotherapy with a "counselor" about a year ago. The therapist is teaching the Applicant basic life skills.

At the request of his counsel, the Applicant related the events prior to the breath demand. With respect to the breath demand, when told that he might lose his licence if alcohol was found in his blood the Applicant attested that he "panicked …was afraid", because he has never had any dealings with the police and because of all his financial responsibilities. According to the Applicant the officer's loud voice, demeanour and use of profanity made him considerably more edgy and "scared, scared". The Applicant stated that throughout the incident, he felt embarrassed, particularly because the incident occurred in front of his children; and also considers driving his livelihood and is well known. This led to his hands shaking so badly, that he was unable to open the plastic wrapper around the mouthpiece.

The Applicant explained what happened in each of the eight attempts to provide a sample. He repeatedly asserted that he tried to blow into the device as hard as he could but due to the circumstances, he was feeling > "pretty bad …heart started pumping …tight …started to have short of breath …head starting hurting …pressure in head …dizzy…could not breath...".

After arriving at the police station and being placed in a cell, the Applicant began to feel pain in his back, similar to what happened in the past, and an ambulance was called.

According to the Applicant, he was unable to visit his physician of twenty-one years after the incident because the physician was on holidays. He did consult his therapist and another physician.

In cross-examination, the Applicant agreed with the Registrar's Agent's list of symptoms he was feeling at the time: "heart pumping, shortness of breath, hands shaking, dizzy, escalated to body shaking, bad headache, shortness of breath as the testing continued less air more trouble breathing".

In reply to the question posed by the Registrar's Agent as to why he did not request medical assistance, the Applicant explained that he was afraid of the officers. The Registrar's Agent countered with the question as to why he did not inform the officers at the police station of his situation when asked how he was feeling. The Applicant responded by stating that the police are all one team and that he was afraid, under stress and not understanding what was happening.

Being asked if he had a problem with his lips, the Applicant testified that he has "sore lips", and that while trying to provide a breath sample his "lips were shaking and may be some air comes out" around the mouthpiece.

At the request of Registrar's Agent, the Applicant admitted that he has never taken prescribed medication, using instead Valerian root as needed. In the past he had never been referred to a psychiatrist or psychologist, choosing only to see a counsellor. The counsellor has taught him techniques to deal with stressful situations which may cause panic attacks.

The Applicant testified that panic attacks have been happening for the past ten years and occur sporadically "once a month, once a week …just happen…". When asked by the Registrar's Agent if he knew he was having a panic attack, the Applicant replied: "I guess so, yeah". The Registrar's Agent pointed out that the hospital report says nothing about anxiety or panic. The Applicant's response was simply that he "told them everything". Further questioning determined that there might be some erroneous information in the hospital report.

No oxygen was administered while the Applicant was in the hospital, nor was there any medication prescribed. The ECG was unremarkable.

The Applicant's witness Marina Vaisman summarized her professional credentials emphasizing that her training and experience includes psychotherapy. She read from a list of widely known symptoms of anxiety, asserting that respiratory problems and pain on the left side are some of the indicators of anxiety or panic which are undetectable. Thus, although the officers were not aware, in her opinion the Applicant suffers from anxiety and was in the midst of a panic attack at the time of a breathalyzer, which caused his inability to provide a breath sample.

Ms Vaisman asserted that people in the throes of a panic attack are not able to talk. When the Applicant's counsel pointed out that the Applicant had no difficulty expressing himself, the witness insisted that his speech would be incoherent.

In cross-examination, Ms Vaisman confirmed the Registrar's Agent's remark that as a psychotherapist she is not able to diagnose, by way of explanation as to her previous testimony regarding the Applicant's condition. Ms Vaisman elucidated that depression is the diagnosis and anxiety and panic are the symptoms which can be determined through assessment.

Ms Vaisman testified that before the incident, she used to see the Applicant once per month but since his condition has deteriorated, she sees him once per week. In her opinion, the Applicant does not need to see a psychiatrist as psychiatrists are medical doctors and he is better served by a psychotherapist. Ms Vaisman noted that the Applicant initially went to see her for a heart condition, but she realized after seeing the ECG that he did not have a heart condition; he was suffering from spasm.

According to Ms Vaisman, the Applicant's last panic attack was around the end of May. In attempting to answer if she had ever seen the Applicant in the throes of a panic attack, she referred to the Applicant's emotional state when she first started seeing him. When asked about the Applicant's behaviour during a panic attack, Ms Vaisman once again referred to the notes on the symptoms of anxiety and panic.

Ms Vaisman believes that the Applicant would not have disclosed his conditions either to officers or the emergency physician due to his being in a crisis situation and therefore unable to think properly. The Registrar's Agent asked Ms Vaisman to describe what she meant by "not thinking clearly". After a lengthy discourse she concluded: "like a mind gone blank".

With respect to the Registrar's Agent's comment that the hospital report makes no mention of anxiety or panic, Ms Vaisman insisted that it did, stressing the words "left side pain".

Ms Vaisman pointed out that only psychotherapists are able to assess when someone is having a panic attack. Doctors in a hospital cannot because by that time the patient is calm. Thus, by virtue of her knowing the Applicant, she feels she is the only person who can testify as to his condition.

The Registrar's Evidence

Constable Andrew Boyd was called as a witness.

The Constable affirmed that he has been a police officer for ten years.

Both parties agreed upon the events that led to the Applicant arriving on the scene.

The Constable described how he came to ask the Applicant for a breath sample being demanded.

According to the Constable, the Applicant initially attempted to "negotiate" his way out of having to provide a breath sample. In his first attempt, the Applicant did not form a tight seal with his lips. Subsequent attempts to provide a sample were similar. The Applicant blew into the device but allowed air to escape rather than blow into the device. All nine attempts produced the same unsatisfactory result.

Constable Boyd noted that at no time did he notice the Applicant in any physical distress, holding his head or short of breath. The Applicant was transported to the station as the constable believed the Applicant's judgment was too impaired for him to sign the notice to appear.

Once at the station, an ambulance was called even though the Applicant refused to inform the constable of how he was feeling. Paramedics made the decision to take the Applicant to the hospital based on information that he was having chest pains.

In cross-examination, the Applicant's counsel challenged the officer on the indicia of alcohol impairment and what led the officer to demand a breath sample.

A discussion ensued as to the date of the calibration of the device, which was past the fourteen days the Applicant's counsel argued that each device needs to be calibrated. The officer maintained the policy has changed; nonetheless he was satisfied the device was working properly.

The officer denied that the Applicant advised him of any physical distress such as difficulty breathing. The officer acknowledged the Applicant to be nervous but did not notice any other symptoms of distress.
The Applicant's counsel asked the officer to relay the reading found on the device after each breath attempt. The officer testified that the device showed "either nothing or an E/0". The officer explained that if there was nothing registered, it meant that the device was registering no air; if there was an E/0 it meant that some air went into the device but that it was insufficient. According to the officer the results were consistent with the Applicant blowing around the mouthpiece rather than into the device.

The officer admitted to speaking loudly to “speak over” the Applicant but denies the use of profanity.

Police Constable Mark Andrew Baird was called as a witness.

Constable Baird did not administer the breath test but was present during the session. He did notice the Applicant having difficulty opening the package, but not necessarily because he was shaking.

According to Constable Baird, the Applicant appeared to be pleading not to do the test, by explaining that his life was driving. The Applicant was taken back to the station as it was felt that his judgment was impaired, as the Applicant did not appear to understand the consequences of not obeying a demand. The officer testified that the Applicant never asked for medical intervention and did not appear to be in distress. Only at the CIB did the Applicant mention that he was claustrophobic and had pain on his chest.

Constable Baird admitted that Constable Boyd did raise his voice to make a point while the Applicant was speaking, but did not use profanity.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In his closing remarks, the Applicant’s counsel asserted that based on a balance of probabilities, his client has met the criteria for an appeal on medical grounds. The counsel pointed out that two completely competing stories were heard, suggesting that the Tribunal had to decide on how much weight to place on the medical evidence introduced versus the evidence of the police officers.

It might appear that the officer’s evidence stands unchallenged, but the Tribunal must also consider the evidence of the Applicant and determine whether that it is more likely than not, that the Applicant has a medical issue that would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

According to the Applicant’s counsel, the relevant facts are these. The Applicant was working all day, goes home takes a glass of wine and goes to bed. At about three o’clock in the morning the stress begins as the Applicant is startled by his future father in law yelling at him that his future step son has been stopped by the police. Arriving at the scene the stress continues to mount bringing on the panic attack which is not an excuse, but a medical justification which meets the burden of onus for the appeal.

The Applicant’s counsel introduced and referred to this Tribunal’s decision issued on February 1, 2010, which deals with anxiety and points out that the concept of panic attacks has been accepted by the Tribunal. The Applicant, his counsel continued, has been treated for depression, anxiety and panic attacks since December 2009, and his “Occupational Therapist/Physiotherapist” testified at today’s hearing.

The Applicant's counsel conceded that the witness was not present at the time of the breathalyzer and formulated her conclusions based on information provided by the Applicant. He also referred to the fact that her testimony may have been lengthy and at times "off the rails", but did offer an explanation as to his oxygen intake and his ability to blow into the device. There is also the triage report which, albeit containing erroneous information, does confirm the Applicant was having a panic attack. The Tribunal heard from the Applicant's witness that the pain on the left side of his body was one of the symptoms of a panic attack.

As far as the officers' testimony regarding the Applicant being too impaired to sign the release form, the Applicant's counsel attributes the apparent impairment to the Applicant being in a state of panic and quotes officer Baird's statement that the Applicant "did not appear to be cognizant of what was going on".

The fact that the Applicant drives for a living may not appear relevant, but according to the Applicant's counsel, played a role in increasing the stress level the Applicant was experiencing.

In conclusion, the Applicant's counsel urged that the Tribunal rule in favour of the Applicant based on paragraphs 46 and 47 of the February 1, 2010 decision.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the argument that the Applicant has a medical condition for which he is being treated. Nonetheless, according to the Registrar's Agent, it was not the medical condition that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample. The Applicant deliberately and continuously blew around the mouthpiece. There are no medical reports to show that the Applicant has any sort of mouth problem that would cause him not to form a tight seal around the mouthpiece.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to cooperate with the police. There is no evidence that the Applicant was having a panic attack at the time and fumbling with a plastic bag is not conclusive evidence of a panic attack.

According to the Registrar's Agent, the Applicant had enough wherewithal to discuss his job and his children, but did not volunteer any information about his medical condition. The Tribunal is asked to believe that this was due to his conditioning in the army or a panic attack, but there is no evidence that the Applicant was experiencing a panic attack at the time of the breathalyzer.

The Registrar's Agent continued by pointing out that the medical information is sparse and missing crucial information, such as whether the Applicant would have been able to provide a breath sample. The Registrar's Agent also noted that no medication was prescribed by the Applicant's physician of 21 years. Referring to the triage report, the Registrar's Agent quoted specific details provided by the Applicant to the intake worker, regarding his condition, but still made no mention of a panic attack. Further, the triage report shows the Applicant's condition to be unremarkable.

The Registrar's Agent asked the Tribunal to take Ms Vaisman's testimony with caution, stating that she is clearly speculating as she was not present during the breath test session and ultimately the Act requires that medical reports must be provided by a medical practitioner.

The Registrar's Agent concluded, by asking the Tribunal to prefer the evidence of the officers.

In rebuttal the Applicant's counsel reiterated the previous points made with respect to the Applicant's failure to mention his condition.

Although careful consideration was given to the total evidence presented, issues not related to the incident will not be mentioned.

Prior to setting down the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal is compelled to make it clear that the Applicant's possible state of intoxication or degree of impairment is not within the Tribunal's mandate and does not influence the Tribunal's decision.

Further, as the Applicant on several occasions stressed his strong disapproval of the officer's attitude, it is essential that the Tribunal declare its lack of jurisdiction to deal with such concerns and allegations. The Tribunal does recognize and has taken into consideration as suggested by the Applicant's counsel, the possible effect that the officer's alleged behaviour may have had on the emotional state of the Applicant.

Finally, as the Applicant alluded several times to the possible hardship the loss of his licence may cause, the Tribunal needs to point out that although it may sympathize with the Applicant's plight, the Tribunal has no authority to consider hardship in this matter.

The Registrar's Agent has not disputed the Applicant's condition.

The Tribunal accepts the diagnosis of "depression"; nonetheless the Tribunal finds that there is not a shred of medical evidence to substantiate the claim that the Applicant suffers from anxiety or panic attacks, and thus, the condition which forms the basis for appeal has not been proven.
The Registrar's Agent pointed out that medical reports must be provided by a qualified physician. The Tribunal agrees. Section 15 (3) of Ontario Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 510/96, prescribes:

> "That the report shall be signed by the medical practitioner".

The Applicant's counsel in his closing remarks considered the testimony of the Applicant's witness, Ms Marina Vaisman, as medical proof of his client's condition. With all due respect to Ms Vaisman, although she was presented as the Applicant's therapist with knowledge of his medical condition, not being a medical practitioner, she cannot be accepted as a medical witness.

Nonetheless, as Ms Vaisman has worked with the Applicant in a professional capacity since December 2009, the Tribunal has considered her testimony.

First Ms Vaisman's credentials must be reviewed. Ms Vaisman's Resume indicates that she holds diplomas in nursing and pharmacy science, as well as a Bachelor of Science Degree in Occupational Therapy. Studies in the field of psychology appear to be limited to an "ABI (Acute Brain Injury) workshop, Psychotherapy workshop, in Toronto" in 2004 and perhaps, "Cognition: A Problem Solving Approach to Choosing Assessment Tools" also in 2004.

The Tribunal found Ms. Vaisman's answers to direct questions posed by both the Applicant's counsel and the Registrar's Agent to be vague and evasive.

In her testimony Ms Vaisman contended that although the Applicant's physician was testing him for a heart condition, she "assessed" the Applicant as actually suffering from anxiety and panic attacks. In reply to the Registrar's Agent's questions, Ms Vaisman maintained that anxiety and panic were symptoms of depression, which in her opinion did not need to be treated by a qualified psychiatrist.

In light of Ms. Vaisman's credentials, her demeanour on the stand was arrogant, condescending and disrespectful to the Registrar's Agent. Anxiety and panic attacks are in fact noted as disorders in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, fourth edition. The Tribunal gives little weight to Ms Vaisman's testimony.

The Applicant's counsel suggested that there are two opposing points of view. The Tribunal agrees that there are certainly two plausible explanations which are in opposition. The Registrar's Agent argues that the Applicant deliberately refused to comply with the breath demand; the Applicant's counsel suggests that a medical reason prevented the Applicant from providing a sample.

The only evidence available to the Tribunal in this matter is the eyewitness testimony of the Applicant and the officers involved in the incident. The officers both testified that they had no reason to assume that the Applicant was in any physical or emotional distress. By his own admission, the Applicant proffered no information to the officers as to any existing medical condition. He noted that he was "scared, afraid". It can definitely be inferred that that the symptoms of fear mimic those of anxiety and panic, but without medical evidence the Tribunal is unable to speculate.

The Tribunal acknowledges the decision submitted by the Applicant's counsel in support of the appeal. First, the Tribunal must emphasize that each case is unique and is treated as such. Nonetheless, as the governing law is established by precedence, the Tribunal must discuss how the cases differ. The Applicant in the case submitted a medical history substantiated by adequate medical reports. As it has been noted herein before, this case lacks a corroborating medical diagnosis.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that he has failed to do so.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated August 15, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D.
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE BIEL
Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 26, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 26, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on October 27, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on October 08, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective October 03, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

O. Reg. 574 to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

> 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
> (a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
>
> (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
>
> (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
>
> (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
>
> (e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
> (f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.
>
> (2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.
> (3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of O. Reg. 574 provides:

> A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on October 03, 2010.

The Applicant relied on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared by the Applicant's physician on October 7, 2010 as well as an undated letter signed by the Applicant and addressed: "To Whom it May Concern".

In her letter the Applicant confirms the medication she has been prescribed; provides an account the events surrounding the breathalyser commenting that her "heart was pounding".

Under “Details and Diagnosis of Patients Present Condition” Dr. F.T., the Applicant’s physician of over “30 years” writes:

> “Panic Attacks, General Anxiety Disorder, several depression episodes, Bipolar episodes”

The physician set out the history of the Applicant’s condition as:

> “During a panic attack, patient becomes short of breath, experiences chest pains, has rapid heart rate, perspires”

According to the physician “clinical examination during examination – confirms patient’s history of these attacks under stressful conditions.”

The Applicant was last seen by her physician on July 29, 2010 at which time medication was prescribed.

At the hearing the Applicant reiterated the information provided in her letter to the Tribunal regarding the details of the incident where the Applicant was stopped and demanded a breathalyser test. The Applicant testified that she was advised that if she did not comply she would be handcuffed and arrested, and that she became very > “anxious and nervous …heart was racing”.

According to the Applicant she asked for water but there was none available. She maintained that she tried her best to provide a sample but was not able to do so.

In cross-examination, the Registrar’s Agent requested the Applicant confirm the medication she is taking and asked whether she has been prescribed any kind of “puffer” or inhaler. The Applicant affirmed that she is taking anti-depressants and medication for her “racing heart” prescribed by a cardiologist, but no respiratory medication.

The Applicant denied the Registrar’s Agent’s suggestion that she became nervous because she was afraid she would be over the legal limit. According to the Applicant she knew one drink would not be a problem. She asserted that she could not complete the breath test because her heart was racing and her chest felt tight,

> “as if something was sitting on …chest”.

In reply to the Registrar’s Agent’s questions the Applicant testified that she did tell the Constable how she was feeling, not specifically that she was having a “panic attack”, and that she did not ask for medication. The Applicant claimed she knew what was happening and did not feel that medical assistance was necessary.

According to the Applicant she has had a panic attack in the doctor’s office. The panic attacks just happen any time due to “situations”. Depending on the severity of the panic attacks, the Applicant may or may not be able to control herself. In circumstances where she is unable to control the panic, she needs to take two tablets instead of just one. The Applicant has never been hospitalized for panic attacks but has seen a psychiatrist.

The Registrar's Evidence

Constable Jim Wallace was called as a witness. Constable Wallace confirmed that he has been a police officer since 1981.

Constable Wallace described the events that led to the Applicant's breath sample being demanded. He then testified that the Applicant did not exhibit any signs of impairment.

The officer described the Applicant's attempts to provide a sample. Although the Applicant was given several opportunities to provide a sample, she did not blow long enough to provide a reading. According to the Officer she would blow for three to five seconds and then stop. The Officer recollected that the Applicant told him several times that she was anxious, but he did not see any signs of distress.

After thirteen unsuccessful attempts the Applicant asked his partner to explain the procedure and try to see if he could get a breath sample. Seven further opportunities were given to the Applicant, each with the same negative results.

The Applicant did not cross-examine the Officer.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In her closing remarks, the Applicant stated that she appealed in order to be able to come before the Tribunal to explain in her words what took place.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the Applicant's medical history. Albeit the medical condition might have been present in the past, in the view of the Registrar's Agent, it was not a medical condition that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, as she knew she had consumed alcohol and would be over the limit. She consciously made a decision not to blow into the device. The unchallenged eyewitness evidence from the officer is that there was no medical reason why the Applicant could not provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent disputed that the Applicant was in any physical distress. According to the Registrar's Agent she was not having shortness of breath or struggling for breath. All the Officer observed was that the Applicant stopped breathing into the device after a couple of seconds.

The Registrar's Agent continued by arguing that while the Applicant told the Officer she was anxious, according to the Registrar's Agent, everyone is anxious if they know they are likely to fail the breathalyser. Further, being anxious is not the same as having a panic attack.

With respect to the medical report, the Registrar's Agent asserted that the listing of the conditions does not prove the Applicant was having a panic attack at the time. Further the Registrar's Agent maintained that the physician did not link the condition to the breathalyser, nor has he referred the Applicant to a respirologist or prescribed a puffer.

The Registrar's Agent pointed out that the Applicant in her letter does not mention a medical condition but does ask that her licence be returned as she was not intoxicated.

In summary the Registrar's Agent asked the Tribunal prefer the evidence of the Officer as there is no evidence the Applicant's condition is as severe as the Applicant has led the Tribunal to believe.

In rebuttal the Applicant emphasized that after hearing the statement made by the second officer, regarding the possibility of being handcuffed, taken to jail and fingerprinted, she just > "sat there frozen".

She tried to do her best to comply but was very anxious.

The Applicant's possible state of intoxication or degree of impairment is not within the Tribunal's mandate and does not influence the Tribunal's decision.

With respect to the possibility raised by Applicant that she should have asked to provide a blood sample, the Tribunal would like to clarify that subsection 48.3(3) of the Act is clear in its provision, in that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "by an analysis of breath or blood taken". Although the option is available, the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. Accepting policy, as per norm, since there were no such signs, the Tribunal deems the issue of a blood sample irrelevant.

The Registrar's Agent has not disputed the Applicant's medical condition, as stated in the medical record; thus, the medical condition is proven.

The Tribunal does not share the Registrar's Agent view that the omission of pulmonary function tests, a referral to a respirologist or the fact the Applicant has not been prescribed an inhaler, is of consequence. The Applicant's diagnosis is clearly confirmed by her physician:

> "Panic Attacks, General Anxiety Disorder, several depression episodes, Bipolar episodes".

A "puffer" may not be the indicated treatment for anxiety. The Applicant is taking medication for her condition as deemed appropriate by her physician of thirty years.

The Registrar's Agent insisted that there is no evidence of how the Applicant's condition could have prevented her from complying with the breath demand. Contrary to the argument put forward by the Registrar's Agent the medical evidence in this matter cannot be dismissed easily. Dr. F.T., having witnessed the Applicant in the midst of a panic attack, is able to specify the symptoms exhibited by the Applicant:

> "…patient becomes short of breath, experiences chest pains, has rapid heart rate, perspires".

The Tribunal finds the medical report comprehensive and conclusive.

The Registrar's Agent asserted that there are two components to Section 50.1 (2) (b). It does not suffice to establish that an individual has any type of a medical condition. The Tribunal agrees that the crux of the issue is whether the medical condition was manifesting at the time of the breathalyzer and caused the individual to fail or not comply with a breath sample demand.

Although the Officer did not notice any symptoms of distress, he admitted the Applicant advised him a couple of times, she was "anxious" and asked for some water. The Applicant testified that she was "frozen", her heart was pounding, and her chest was tight.

The Registrar's Agent suggests that anyone would likely be anxious after being asked to take a breathalyser test. The Tribunal agrees. There is no doubt that being asked to provide a breath sample can be considered a stressful situation. The Applicant testified that her condition was aggravated by the threat of being hauled to jail in handcuffs. Thus, it is quite probable the Applicant was in the throes of an anxiety attack at the time of the breathalyser. This premise is corroborated by the Dr. F.T. who points out that the Applicant has a > "…history of these attacks under stressful conditions."

The Tribunal is satisfied that the Applicant's condition was manifesting at the time and prevented the Applicant from providing an adequate sample. The Tribunal's decision is based not only on Dr. F.T's compelling report, but also by taking in consideration the Applicant's testimony and demeanour, which, the Tribunal finds was consistent and credible.

The onus is on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal and the Tribunal finds that she has done so. Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1 (2) (b), in that she was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, she was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent her from providing a breath sample.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's Suspension Order, October 03, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under subsection 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: DR. ANTOINE AOUAD, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: October 14, 2010 by teleconference

DECISION RELEASED: October 15, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on October 14, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on October 15, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons:

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on September 20, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective August 16, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> "I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason".

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties. There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The Act states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

> 15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 provides that:

A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on August 16, 2010, as per the Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit #2.

The Notice of Appeal filed by the client, filed as Exhibit # 2 rather than containing the prescribed medical form, included an undated "Without Prejudice" statement signed by the Applicant.

The Applicant also relied on a letter submitted to the Tribunal on October 2, 2010, enclosing: two handwritten notes from Dr. F., one dated August 31, 2010, the other September 30, 2010; a letter from Dr. K.'s office, signed by the Office Manager, also dated September 30, 2010; an undated letter from Dr. D. pertaining to a visit on September 10, 2010.

Two pictures of pillboxes were attached to the Applicant's submissions of October 2, 2010. In his initial letter to the Tribunal the Applicant states:

> "I was never asked to provide a blood sample …I could not provide a breathalyzer sample without endangering myself physically and I was never asked to provide a blood sample."

The Applicant goes on to explain that on the night in question he mistakenly took his wife's seizure medication, which made him "dizzy" and lack concentration. The Applicant lists a "recent septoplasty …and untreated allergies" as two factors which made "getting a breath and catching …breath after each attempt difficult."

Dr. F. notes that the Applicant suffers from exhaustion due to caring for his disabled wife and that the Applicant's mix of medication resulted in an "episode of dizziness".

Dr. K.'s Office Manager confirms the date of the Septoplasty and Bilateral Turbinate Reduction as July 9, 2010 and comments that on August 16, 2010,

> "The Applicant would not have been able to provide a breathalyzer test due to being still in recovery from surgery and would not have been able to breath through his nose."

The letter from Dr. D. supports the Applicant's ability to drive despite his diagnosis and treatment for "bipolar-mood disorder". Regarding the breathalyzer test session, Dr. D. relates the events as described to him by the Applicant concluding that:

> "the amount of medication would obviously leave him dizzy and likely unable to provide a proper breath sample."

At the hearing, the Applicant testified that the events evolved from a "confluence of medical issues" and affirmed that the Crown is amenable to withdrawing the charges. In his testimony, the Applicant reiterated the main causes for his inability to provide a breath sample: still in recovery from his septoplasty which caused shortness of breath; exhaustion aggravated by sleep deprivation due to caring for his disabled wife; the mix up in medications which caused dizziness; argument with daughter which caused anger; frustration due to "limited time"; animosity towards the officer.

The Applicant asserted that he did not refuse. According to the Applicant he endangered his life by making several attempts to provide a breath sample.

In cross-examination the Registrar's Agent quoting from the Applicant's written submissions, disputed the Applicant's assertion of having a "clean driving record", by pointing out a previous conviction.

Continuing to read from the Applicant's "Without Prejudice" statement, the Registrar's Agent asked the Applicant if "dizziness" was the reason for not providing a breath sample. The Applicant explained that it was a contributing factor, as he was also unable to breathe due to nasal surgery. The Applicant attested that he did not ask the officer to sit down nor did he make any mention to the officer regarding the discomfort he was feeling, given the "animosity" with the officer. The Applicant agreed that medical attention would have been beneficial, and that he in fact felt he needed it, but did not ask as he was "not in the mood".

Referring to the letter from Dr. K.'s office, the Registrar's Agent pointed out that it notes the Applicant would not be able to breathe through his nose, and suggested that the Applicant would have been asked to actually breathe through the mouth. The Applicant asserted that he was told to breathe in through the nose and breathe out through the mouth and emphasized that he was unable to comply due to the fact that he was feeling dizzy and was having difficulty following the instructions.

In reply to questions posed by the Registrar's Agent, the Applicant admitted: to being a smoker but denied asking the officer to be allowed to smoke, as he does not smoke cigarettes; being belligerent towards the officer but not yelling; not having the "mindset" to ask for medical assistance nor ask for medical attention as he was very anxious to "hurry up and get home" to care for his wife.

The Registrar's Agent challenged the Applicant to explain why if he could barely breathe while in the cell, he did not ask for medical help. According to the Applicant, he was not given a chance to ask for medical attention after being transported to the station as he was immediately placed into a room and left there. The Applicant denied the Registrar's Agent's suggestion that he was singing while in the cell, but conceded that he might have been humming or "mumbling" in order to relieve anxiety.

Regarding the length of time it took for the Applicant to see Dr. D., the Applicant initially stated that he had no transportation and that he had to wait for an appointment. When asked specifically if the first time he saw Dr. D. was after the event on September 10, 2010, the Applicant replied "No, it actually wasn't"; when subsequently asked why he did not obtain a report, the Applicant noted: "I did not actually see him, I spoke to him to make an appointment." The Applicant further explained that he had an appointment prior to September 10, 2010, but was unable to attend due to his caregiver duties and lack of transportation.

In reply to the Registrar's Agent's questions as to when he first saw his family physician, the Applicant replied that he had to wait as the physician was on vacation. The Applicant testified that after being told by several of his friends what the issue was, "he could not breathe", Dr. F. provided him with a second report on September 30, 2010.

In reviewing the letter from Dr. K.'s office, the Applicant admitted that he did not physically consult with Dr. K., but rather spoke with him on the telephone. As to the letter being signed by the office Manager rather than the doctor, the Applicant stated that she was directed by the doctor to write the letter.

Responding to the Registrar's Agent's comment that nothing in the letter from Dr. K. indicates the Applicant suffers from shortness of breath, the Applicant clarified that he in fact was having difficulty breathing. After further questioning, the Applicant agreed with the Registrar's Agent that he was having difficulty breathing through his nose, not his mouth.

The Applicant called his wife to testify. She confirmed her disability and attested to her previous experiences with the breathalyzer as well as the family's previous contact with the police officer involved at the time of the breathalyzer. The witness was briefly cross-examined by the Registrar's Agent regarding the fact that she was not present at the time of the breathalyzer.

After the cross-examination, the Applicant requested to question his witness. The Tribunal noted the Registrar's Agent objection but allowed the evidence. The Applicant's questioning focused on: the reasons for his exhaustion; the method of pill dispensing in the household; the argument with his daughter; and the reason he was anxious to be home which was to care for his wife.

The Registrar's Evidence

Constable Stephen Welton was called as a witness.

The Constable affirmed that he has been in his present position since August of 2005.

The Constable described how he came to ask the Applicant for a breath sample.

According to the Constable, the Applicant was irritated at being stopped. The first couple of attempts to provide a sample, the Applicant put his mouth over the piece correctly but did not blow into the device. No tone was emitted by the machine, which indicated that no air was going in. At one point the Applicant put the entire mouthpiece into his mouth and blew several times. The device produced error messages, indicative that some air was flowing in, but that it was insufficient to determine a reading.

Constable Welton noted that at no time did he notice the Applicant in any physical distress, he did not appear short of breath, dizzy or unsteady on his feet. Constable Welton asserted that the Applicant did not ask for medical assistance or medication. Throughout the incident, including the ride to the station, the Applicant was loud, obnoxious, swearing and threatening to have the officer fired from his job. Regarding the officer's previous encounters with the family, the officer testified that he harbours no ill will; in fact he drove the Applicant home after the incident.

In cross-examination, the Applicant questioned the officer regarding the instructions given to blow into the device. The Applicant's understanding was that he was to make a tight seal, take a deep breath and blow. The officer could not recall the exact words used, but suggested that the instructions would have been to take a deep breath, make a seal and blow.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In his closing remarks, the Applicant referred to the last part evidence proffered by Constable Welton, emphasizing that he would have been unable to carry out the instructions, as he was at the time unable to breath through the nose. According to the Applicant, the more he kept blowing the dizzier he got. The Applicant further contends that he was anxious to get home to take care of his wife. The Applicant acknowledged harbouring feelings of animosity towards Constable Welton. He further pointed out that Constable Welton has only a few years in the force, not decades and is not medically trained and therefore not able to assess physical distress.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks maintained that no medical condition, be it exhaustion, sleep deprivation, nasal surgery or shortness of breath caused the Applicant to fail to provide a breath sample. The Registrar's Agent argued that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to cooperate with the police. There is no evidence that the Applicant was unsteady on his feet or dizzy. Instead the evidence clearly shows that the Applicant was not following instructions. The Applicant went so far as to put the entire mouthpiece in his mouth and then blow around it. When he did make a seal he failed to blow into the device.

With respect to the Applicant's claim that he did not have the mindset to inform the officer of his difficulties, the Registrar's Agent contends that the Applicant did have the wherewithal and the "respiratory energy" to be argumentative and use profanity. As well the Applicant repeatedly asked the officer for a smoke, which completely undermines the Applicant's claim that he was experiencing shortness of breath.

The Registrar's Agent continued by pointing out that the Applicant did not submit the required form with his Notice of Appeal. Instead, he opted to provide the Tribunal with medical reports which do not conform with Regulation 574. Specifically: none of the reports complies with Section 15. 1 (c) which requires that the medical practitioner provide a link between the medical condition and the inability to provide a breath sample; the reports do not specify how long the physicians had been seeing the Applicant; there are no history details of the condition; no details of last visit and most importantly no test results.

Addressing the medical reports one by one, the Registrar's Agent first quoted from the Applicant's "Without Prejudice" statement, wherein he informs the Tribunal of the medication mix up and the results thereof. In reviewing Dr. D.'s report, the Registrar's Agent suggests that the doctor's comments are merely hearsay as they reflect only what was told to him by the Applicant.

According to the Registrar's Agent, Dr. F.'s original handwritten note dated August 31, 2010, simply reiterates the information given to him by the Applicant regarding the incident. The second note confirms the Applicant may have been suffering from exhaustion and sleep deprivation, but there is no mention as to how these symptoms could have affected the Applicant's ability to provide a breath sample. The Registrar's Agent continued by contending that Dr. F.'s report makes no mention of the Applicant's nasal surgery, allergies, or breathing difficulties.

According to the Registrar's Agent, the letter from Dr. K. is on his letterhead but clearly not written nor signed by him. The report is written and signed by the Office Manager. There is no indication that he has seen or approved this report. The Registrar's Agent again referred to Regulations 574 which requires a medical report to be signed by a medical practitioner. The Registrar's Agent asks that the Tribunal give no weight to this report.

The Registrar's Agent concluded, by asking the Tribunal to prefer the evidence of the officer.

In rebuttal, the Applicant reiterated the previous points made emphasizing he may not have followed procedures and he was not aware of what was required.

Although careful consideration was given to the total evidence presented, issues not related to the incident will not be mentioned.

Prior to setting out the reasons for the decision, the Tribunal is compelled to make a ruling, for the record, of the Registrar's Agent's objection to the admissibility of the Applicant's testimony regarding the withdrawal of the court proceedings. The Tribunal notes that the Applicant produced no documented evidence to substantiate his claim and court matters are independent of this Tribunal. Thus, no further consideration will be given to the Applicant's statement.

The Applicant appealed his licence suspension by the Registrar under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

> "…person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason…"

In his written statement to the Tribunal, the Applicant wrote: "I was never asked to provide a blood sample". With respect to the Applicant's offer to provide a blood sample, the Tribunal would like to clarify that subsection 48.3(3) of the Act is clear in its provision, in that the concentration of alcohol in the blood may be obtained "by an analysis of breath or blood taken". Although the option is available, the decision to request a blood sample remains at the discretion of the officers. According to established policy, no blood samples are to be demanded unless there are obvious visible physical signs preventing the individual from providing a breath sample. Accepting policy, as per norm, since there were no such signs, the Tribunal deems the issue of a blood sample irrelevant.

The Applicant argued that he did not refuse; he made every possible effort to blow into the device; therefore, he "complied". The Tribunal disagrees. It would completely defeat the purpose of the legislation to exonerate individuals simply because they "attempted" to blow into a breathalyzer. There is a clear anticipation in the demand for a breath sample that a result is to be obtained, i.e. a reading. This Tribunal interprets the words "failed …to comply" as not having met that expectation in that no result is obtained. There is no doubt that the Applicant was unsuccessful in obtaining a reading; thus he failed to comply.

This matter differs from the usual in that both the medical reports as well as the argument presented by the Applicant propose that it was not a specific existing condition that caused the Applicant‘s failure to provide a breath sample. Rather it was as the Applicant describes it a “confluence of medical issues”.

The Applicant, in appealing on medical grounds, appears to be under the mistaken assumption that he could be acquitted simply by virtue of suffering from a medical condition. It would be ludicrous to absolve all individuals solely on the basis that they have a medical condition.

It cannot suffice to prove that a medical condition exists. The crux of the matter is whether the medical condition could cause the individual to fail or not comply with a breath demand, as the word “precludes” implies. The Registrar’s Agent has disputed the Applicant’s medical condition as presented. The Tribunal agrees. There is absolutely not a shred of medical evidence linking any of the conditions mentioned, to the Applicant’s inability to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar’s Agent pointed out that all medical reports must conform to the provisions of Section 15 of Ontario Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 510/96. Although the Tribunal recognizes that there is no pre-existing condition, other than the recent Septoplasty and Bilateral Turbinate Reduction and possibly allergies, the Tribunal agrees that it is imperative that medical reports conform to the regulation.

Section 15 of Ontario Regulation 574 prescribes as follows:

> 15 (1) “A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is submitted in evidence shall clearly state:
> (a) the name, telephone number and address, with postal code, of the medical practitioner;
> (b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
>
> (c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver’s license under section 50.1 of the Act.”
>
> (d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
>
> 15 (2): The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.”
> 15 (3) “That the report shall be signed by the medical practitioner”.

None of the reports comply with the requirements.

Dr. F. is the Applicant’s family physician. Since allergies were mentioned by the Applicant as one of the reasons for his breathing difficulties, the Tribunal would have expected to see a report detailing a history of allergies and the respiratory symptoms associated with allergies. No history of allergies or breathing difficulties is provided, no details of the last visit, and most definitely no links to the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample.

His notes regurgitate what was told to him by the Applicant regarding the events at the time of the breathalyzer. Dr. F. fails to connect the effects of exhaustion, sleep deprivation and the mix of medications to the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal cannot and will not contest Dr. F.'s conclusion that the mix of medications can "result in an episode of dizziness". Yet with all due respect to Dr. F., this conclusion cannot be accepted as proof that the Applicant was in fact feeling dizzy at the time of the breathalyzer.

Dr. D., who has been seeing the Applicant "for many years", supports the Applicant's ability to drive in spite of his diagnosis and treatment. He does mention that the amount of medication taken by the Applicant on the night in question "would obviously leave him dizzy and likely unable to provide a proper breath sample". Although Dr. D.'s conclusion appears to be well reasoned, it is based solely on information provided to him by the Applicant. Further, as is the case with Dr. F., he was not present at the time of the breathalyzer.

Most flagrant of all is the report purporting to be from Dr. K. The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar's Agent contention that there is absolutely no indication that Dr. K. authorized this report or is even aware of its existence. No commentary will be made.

Given the lack of medical corroboration in support of the Applicant's medical grounds for appeal, the only other evidence available to the Tribunal in this matter is the eyewitness testimony of the Applicant and the officer involved in the incident.

The officer testified that he had no reason to assume that the Applicant was in any physical distress. By his own admission, the Applicant proffered no information to the officer as to any discomfort he may have been experiencing. He acknowledged that he was "belligerent", frustrated, angry, "not in the mood", and felt animosity towards the officer.

It can definitely be inferred that the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample was more a "confluence" of his emotional state at the time than a "confluence of medical events" as argued by the Applicant. Nonetheless the Tribunal's decision is not founded on speculation but on the irrefutable lack of medical evidence presented. Also of consideration was the fact that the Applicant's testimony was evasive and riddled with contradicting statements.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that he has failed to do so.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated August 16, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: PATRICK COFFEY, M.D., Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: November 10, 2010 Toronto

DECISION RELEASED: November 12, 2010

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on November 10, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on November 12, 2010, with reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act for the following reasons.

REASONS

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the Act, dated October 12, 2010, and received by the Tribunal on October 25, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective October 1, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The basis for the appeal is that there was a medical reason why the Applicant was unable to give the required breath sample that was requested by a police officer.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

FACTS

The Applicant testified that at about 2:30 a.m. on October 1, 2010, he drove through a RIDE program and was stopped by the police and asked when he last had a drink. He answered that it was at about 8:00 p.m. At that time, he stated that while he was working and renovating his condominium and finishing the floor, he had one beer. The police officer then asked the Applicant to step out of the vehicle and come with him to his car for a breathalyzer test. The police officer then explained to the Applicant how to use the breathalyzer. The Applicant noted that he did his best to breathe into the breathalyzer repeatedly, but found that he could not keep breathing long enough. He told the police officer that the work he had been doing in his condominium involved him breathing in dust from drywall, fibreglass and other chemicals.

The Applicant was asked at the hearing what he was doing prior to being stopped by the police. He replied that he went to a club at about midnight and when he left there, he was on his way home. He stated that he was feeling alright when he went to the club. He did not have any alcohol at this club.

The Applicant then spoke about what he did later that day (October 1, 2010). He and his wife tried to make an appointment for him to see his wife's family physician, but the physician was away. The Applicant needed to see a doctor because he was wondering if there was any reason why he had difficulty breathing into the breathalyzer. He was not aware that he suffered from any respiratory illness. So, the Applicant went to an After-Hours medical clinic and saw Dr. A. at about 6:00 p.m. This doctor gave him a prescription for an inhaler, and put him through some pulmonary function tests.

The Applicant completed his testimony by explaining that he needs to drive his truck for his work, which is his only source of income.

Police Constable Dan Scobie stated that he has been in the police force since 1991. He is a qualified breathalyzer technician. He was conducting a RIDE program on the morning of October 1, 2010. At 2:10 a.m. the Applicant came through the RIDE program and when P.C. Scobie spoke to the Applicant, he smelt alcohol off his breath and he also smelt alcohol in the car. He asked the Applicant when he last had a drink and the reply was that he had not had anything to drink. (The officer then added more information, saying that not long after, the Applicant stated that his last drink was at about 7:00 p.m. the previous evening). So, he asked the Applicant to pull over. He explained carefully the way to use and breathe into the breathalyzer. It seemed to P.C. Scobie that the Applicant "did not put enough effort" in to breathing into the machine. He had the Applicant attempt to use the breathalyzer a total of 19 times. In the early attempts, there was no tone at all; then there was an audible tone for less than a second, and latterly, after he explained to the Applicant the consequences of not completing the test, the highest the Applicant was able to get to was four seconds, not high enough for completion of the test. The police officer checked that the breathalyzer was working satisfactorily.

Dr. A. completed page two of the Notice of Appeal form, dated October 8, 2010, regarding the Applicant, writing as follows:

> Diagnosis - Obstructive Lung Disease. Patient has shortness of breath and wheezing.
> History - Patient was exposed to varnish and had asthmatic reaction to it.
> Recent Tests Taken - Spirometry or Pulmonary Function Test – October 1, 2010
> Last Visit Details - …did poorly on pulmonary test and placed on medication – Advair Diskus.

Dr. G., a consultant respirologist, sent in a report to the Ministry of Transportation on November 8, 2010, regarding the Applicant. He reviewed the results of the Applicant's spirometry tests in detail. In his concluding sentences, referring to the tests done, he wrote:

> At these flow rates, however, it would be straightforward to provide a breath sample. The unknown issue is whether these flow rates were likely to have been encountered at the time the patient declined the test.

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension ("ADLS") under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1(1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

(2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,

(a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason.

The Act states under section 50.1(4):

The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Regulation 574 to the Act at subsection 15(1), (2) and (3) require that a medical report must contain:

15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of Regulation 574 provides:

A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal finds the following facts of importance:

1. On the night of September 30/October 1, 2010, the Applicant felt well enough to go to a club at about midnight and left after about two hours to go home. On his way home, he was stopped by the police at 2:10 a.m. and was told that a breathalyzer test was required. In spite of not showing any symptoms of wheezing or shortness of breath or difficulties with breathing, there were 19 failures to provide a satisfactory breath sample, so that the police officer decided that the test was not completed; and his words were, "He did not put enough effort in to it".

2. Dr. G. is not just a consultant respirologist, but also, he has been the medical advisor to the pulmonary function laboratories for over 19 years. In the concluding remarks of his November 8, 2010 report he wrote (concerning the pulmonary function tests):

> At these flow rates, however, it would be straightforward to provide a breath sample. The unknown is whether these flow rates were likely to be encountered at the time the patient declined the test.

The Tribunal notes that at the time that the Applicant took the breathalyzer test, the police officer present did not notice any abnormal breathing signs and nor did the Applicant complain of wheezing or shortness of breath. Therefore, the Tribunal concludes that the results of the pulmonary function tests do not show any inability on the part of the Applicant to provide a satisfactory breath sample.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merits of the appeal, the Tribunal finds that he has not done so, and, accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's suspension order, effective October 1, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: December 20, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on December 20, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on December 21, 2010, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the suspension imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on December 2, 2010. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective November 17, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

Documents tendered were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.

> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

O. Reg. 574 to the Act at subsections 15 (1), (2) and (3) requires that a medical report must contain:

15. (1) a report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,

(a) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;

(b) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;

(c) that the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the [Tribunal] from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;

(d) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;

(e) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and

(f) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of speciality.

(2) The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests.

(3) The report shall be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, section 13 of O. Reg. 574 provides:

A person appealing a suspension has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on November 17, 2010.

The Applicant relied on page 2 of the Notice of Appeal prepared on November 29, 2010, by his physician; a typewritten letter, dated November 29, 2010 explaining the reasons for appeal; information downloaded from several internet sites expounding the similarities between the symptoms of hypoglycaemia and intoxication; as well as a copy of a purported wallet card providing information to Healthcare Professionals about the Applicant's condition.
In his letter the Applicant relates that his car veered off the road due to the roads "being a bit slick". According to the Applicant he "was going into diabetic shock during the event…"

Under “Details and Diagnosis of Patients Present Condition” Dr. F.T., the Applicant’s physician of “2 years” writes:

“Type I Diabetes”

The physician set out the history of the Applicant’s condition as:

“If blood sugar low would be incapable of cooperation”

The Applicant was last seen by his physician on November 15, 2010 for depression.

At the hearing the Applicant reiterated the information provided in his letter to the Tribunal. The Applicant testified that he is now working very closely with his team to prevent the recurrence of another hypoglycaemic incident.

In cross-examination, the Registrar’s Agent asked the Applicant to address the reasons for appeal as stated in his letter. The Applicant confirmed that the reason he did not blow is that he knew he was in trouble and in need of medical assistance as he had been without medication for sometime.

According to the Applicant, his condition caused him to go into shock and become irrational. He admitted that he initially was afraid of blowing a false positive, as he is aware that a diabetic shock can cause a false reading.

The Applicant was taken from the station to the hospital and was released after two hours into police custody.

The Registrar’s Agent questioned how the physician knew the Applicant’s blood sugar at the time of the incident. The Applicant explained that the physician read the hospital reports. According to the Applicant he knew he was in trouble at the roadside but was unable to voice his need for medical attention.

The Applicant testified that he had no recollection of being asked for a breath sample, nor of his response to the officer.

The Registrar’s Evidence

Constable Cory Markle was called as a witness. Constable Markle confirmed that he has been a police officer since May 2010. Constable Markle is not a Qualified Breath Technician but was the investigating officer.

Constable Markle described the events that led to the Applicant's breath sample being demanded. He then testified that there was no issue with communication when he approached the Applicant, but his speech was slurred. The Constable confirmed that he needed to repeat himself several times to get the Applicant to follow instructions, but felt that the Applicant understood the requests being made.

The officer affirmed that the Applicant was arrested at the scene for impairment and taken to the station. Constable Markle asserted that while he was reading the breath demand, he was interrupted by the Applicant who stated clearly “I refuse …I refuse.” According to the officer the Applicant was aware of the possible suspension, but that there was no indication of a medical issue.

While at the station the Applicant refused to allow his necklace to be taken from him, explaining that it was his life line. Yet, he did not ask for medical attention. Eventually the items were removed at which time the Applicant became combative. During a scuffle it was noticed that the Applicant was wearing an insulin pump. As he was placed in the cell in handcuffs the Applicant complained that he had been assaulted by the officers. He demanded to see Dr. Morgan but did not elaborate on the reason why he needed a doctor.

The paramedics were called when the Applicant was found passed out in his cell, but he refused assistance. He was then taken to hospital by three officers, and subsequently returned approximately an hour and a half later.

After being discharged the Applicant walked home.

Constable Markle concluded his testimony by confirming that there was no indication the Applicant did not understand what was happening.

In cross-examination the Applicant asked the officer if he understood hypoglycaemia. The officer noted that he is aware of the condition but not the symptoms.

In response to the Applicant’s question regarding his attempt to show the officer his wallet card, the officer denied the card was ever mentioned.

The Applicant questioned the officer regarding the bruises on his head before he arrived at the station. The Officer replied that the scuffle arose after the Applicant became combative at the station.

The Applicant pointed out that he was calling for his doctor, and suggested that his asking should have been a signal he was in medical distress. The officer replied that the only time the Applicant mentioned his condition was after he had been asked for a breath sample, after he was asked to take off his necklace, and the only time he asked for Dr. Morgan was after the fight with the police officer.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In his closing remarks, the Applicant stated that his memory may be sketchy, but he knows that there was lot of information left out of the Constable’s testimony and that all he said was “lie after lie”. The Applicant commented on the officer’s short tenure on the force and stated that he believes a lot of mistakes were made.

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the Applicant's medical history. Nonetheless it was not a medical condition that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent disputed that the Applicant was in any physical distress. According to the Registrar's Agent there was no medical reason why the Applicant could not provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent continued by arguing that the Applicant does not recall what took place the evening he was stopped, however Constable Markle does remember and has clear notes detailing what transpired. With respect to the demand, the Applicant does not recall being asked to provide a sample, yet the Constable insists that the Applicant understood what was being demanded and that the Applicant refused. In fact the Applicant refused twice, once as the demand was being read, the second time after being told he would be charged with failing to provide.

The Registrar's Agent pointed out that the Applicant has not provided a link between his condition and the refusal.

In summary the Registrar's Agent emphasized that the similarities between the condition and intoxication have nothing to do with the Applicant's inability to provide a sample. The Registrar's Agent maintained that the paramedics "weren't interested in taking him to the hospital", and that the police had to take him to hospital from where he was released.

As for the medical report, the Registrar's Agent contends that the physician simply notes "if" the blood sugar was low. According to the Registrar's Agent there is no evidence the Applicant's blood sugar was low at the time. The Applicant knew what the consequences of his actions would be and chose to refuse to provide a breath sample.

In rebuttal the Applicant added that he is sorry that he does not recall all the events, but is adamant that he was in an insulin shock. The Applicant claims that he does not even recall why he left his house and that he was in his slippers at the time.

The Applicant's possible state of intoxication or degree of impairment is not within the Tribunal's mandate and does not influence the Tribunal's decision.

The Registrar's Agent has not disputed the Applicant's medical condition, as stated in the medical record; thus, the medical condition is proven.

The Tribunal shares the Registrar's Agent concern as to the lack of specific evidence as to whether or not the Applicant was in an insulin shock at the time of the demand for a breath sample. Nonetheless, the Tribunal must and does accept the Applicant's physician assertion that with low blood sugar the Applicant "would be incapable of cooperation".

The Tribunal normally relies on the eyewitness account of the events surrounding the breathalyzer. Constable's Markle's testimony, although discrepant at times, does suggest that the Applicant was highly uncooperative.

The Tribunal notes that the officer claims not to have noticed any signs of medical distress, yet agrees that the Applicant informed him of his condition, had a necklace which he called his "life-line", called for a doctor, was found passed out in his cell and was taken to hospital.

The Registrar's Agent contends that the paramedics "weren't interested in taking the Applicant to the hospital". The Tribunal cannot ascertain the basis for this premise. The fact remains that the Applicant was found passed out in his cell and taken to hospital.

There is of course no way of knowing the cause of the Applicant's behaviour without tests at the time. Therefore, the Tribunal accepts the Applicant's argument, which is supported by the physician's statement, and the fact the he passed out.

Based on the evidence before the Tribunal, and on a balance of probabilities, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant meets the criteria of Section 50.1(2)(b), in that he was able to demonstrate that at the time of the breath demand, he was suffering from a medical condition which would prevent him from providing a breath sample.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the Registrar's Suspension Order, November 17, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the Act, and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under subsection 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal orders the suspension set aside.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.1 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM A DECISION OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 48.3(2) OF THAT ACT

TO APPEAL A 90-DAY ADMINISTRATIVE DRIVER'S LICENCE SUSPENSION

TRIBUNAL: DR. ANTOINE AOUAD, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: DOUGLAS ALLEN, Agent for the Applicant

KYLE M. BIEL, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 02, 2011 Toronto

DECISION RELEASED: March 03, 2011

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 02, 2011, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

The Tribunal released its Decision on March 03, 2011, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons:

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed, by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA, dated and received by the Tribunal on February 09, 2011. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar effective December 31, 2010.

Reason for the Appeal

The reason for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal is summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason.

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

The Applicant's Agent submitted documentation for which the Respondent had no copies. The hearing was paused for a few brief moments in order for documents to be photocopied.

All documents were entered as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Driver's Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the Act states:

> 50.1 (1) A person whose driver's licence is suspended under section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
>
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or
> (b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The Act states under section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Rule 15.3(b) and (c) of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice states:

> 15.3 In addition to the provisions of Rule 15.2, the following Rules apply to appeals pursuant to Section 50.1 of the Act:
> (b) A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
> (i) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
> (ii) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
> (iii) That the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
> (iv) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
> (v) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
> (vi) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of specialty.
> (c) The report referred to in subrule (b) shall
> (i) provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests, and
> (ii) be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, Rule 15.3(a) the Tribunal's Rules of Practice states of states:

> (a) The Applicant has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on December 31, 2010, as per the Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit #2.

The Applicant's written submissions consisted of page 2 of the Notice of Appeal signed by his physician together a list of herbal medication taken by the Applicant, as well as downloaded information as to possible adverse effects.

In support of his grounds for appeal due to a medical condition, the Applicant provided the Tribunal with page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, wherein Dr. T dates the Applicant's first visit as "Dec 30/10".

On the form, signed on February 04, 2011, Dr. T. confirms the Applicant's condition as "chronic back pain", and the reason for the last visit on "January 11, 2011" as "complaints of side effects from Tylenol".

Dr. T. also mentions in the history of the condition as "difficulty breathing, dry mouth, adverse effects from medication."

In a letter dated January 22, 2011, the Applicant's physician states:

> (Applicant) …visited my clinic on December 30, 2010 with complaining of severe back pain, neck, and chest pain. (Applicant) has history of low back pain for years; he has been working in a construction company that involved a lot of dry wall tapering and sanding. (Applicant) has been doing a lot of lifting and carrying of heavy materials. (Applicant) frequently contact with dust, sand and he is suffering from difficulty breathing as a result.

According to the physician the Applicant was prescribed with Tylenol #3 and "Eucomia ulmoides Oliv." for back pain.

The Applicant was not present at the hearing. Mr. D. Allen as Agent represented him.

At the hearing, the Applicant's Agent advised the Tribunal that he is not relying on the written package other than the letter from the physician.

Mr. Allen stated that the law is quite simple in that it allows for an appeal in the event of a medical condition interfering with an individual's ability to provide a breath sample. According to the Applicant's Agent, which, he based on Section 1 of the Charter of Rights, there is no need to prove "reasonable doubt". Mr. Allen argues that it suffices that the Applicant's doctor has stated the Applicant suffers from breathing difficulties and maintains that if the Doctor's diagnosis is to be challenged, the Respondent should have summoned the physician to attend the hearing.

The Registrar's Evidence

PC Liz Newton was called as a witness.

She related her observations while PC Yeoman was dealing with the Applicant. She subsequently approached the Applicant to see if she could be of assistance. While in close proximity to the Applicant the officer witnessed that the Applicant was not making a tight seal around the mouthpiece and could hear the air escaping.

PC Newton allowed the Applicant five attempts to provide a breath sample and obtained the same result as her partner, since air was escaping around the mouthpiece rather than going into the device.

Nothing in the officer's observation led her to believe that the Applicant was in any type of physical distress at the time of the breathalyzer session.

In cross-examination, the Applicant's Agent focused his questioning on: the cooperation of the Applicant; his ability to speak or understand the English language; the officer's knowledge of s. 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act; the procedure and workings of the alcotest device; the lung capacity required to activate the device; and the Applicant's identity.

PC Newton testified that had she observed the Applicant in any type of physical distress she would have called an ambulance. She noticed nothing out of the ordinary other than the fact the Applicant was not blowing long enough to activate the device.

PC K. Yeoman was called as a witness.

The Applicant's Agent questioned the officer regarding his recollection of the notes and was satisfied that the officer recalled the Applicant.

PC Yeoman detailed the events that led to the Applicant being stopped and demanded a breath sample, as well as his observations with respect to the Applicant's breathalyzer session.

The Applicant's Agent cross-examined the officer as to when the device was last calibrated; the resistance presented by blowing into the device; the Applicant's cooperation at the time, and the officer's confirmation of the Applicant's job.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

In closing the Applicant's Agent maintained that both officers' testimony is consistent with the uncontested medical evidence. The Applicant's Agent explained that while the Applicant was able to blow into the unattached mouthpiece, he was unable to blow into the device due to resistance, which is a fact as confirmed by the officer.

According to the Applicant's Agent, the Applicant was not uncooperative in any way. He told the officers he wanted to try, and did not stop trying. There is no evidence that he resisted, refused, or that he did not make his best effort.

Mr. Allen asserted that the evidence is clear in that the Applicant works with drywall. The officers are neither judges nor able make pronouncements on medical conditions. Mr. Allen pointed out that the officer was in a quandary as to the reason the Applicant was not able to provide a breath sample.

The Applicant's Agent emphasized that the officers had no reason to believe the Applicant was intoxicated and that the Applicant had no genuine reason to be afraid to provide a breath sample. What the Applicant had, according to the Agent, was a respiratory condition not apparent to the officers, and his inability to provide a sample lies in the design of the machine. Furthermore, Mr. Allen argued, had the officers believed the Applicant was over the limit a blood sample could have been obtained.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to do so. Neither officer saw anything out of the ordinary with respect to any difficulty breathing. Further, according to the Registrar's Agent, blowing around the mouthpiece has nothing to do with a medical condition.

The Registrar's Agent quoted Dr. T's letter, which refers to back problems and suggest that the medical condition could not have been too serious as the Applicant was on his way to Casino Rama.

The Registrar's Agent emphasized that a medical condition does not automatically exempt anyone from providing a breath sample, there has to be a link between the condition and the refusal. The medical evidence provided is sparse and missing crucial information as to decreased pulmonary function. There are absolutely no clinical tests to confirm the Applicant's respiratory capacity.

In rebuttal, Mr. Allen alluded to the presumption of innocence which places the onus on the Registrar to prove the case. He also pointed out that the threshold of medical burden of proof does not require a link; it simply requires a condition.

Mr. Allen, the Applicant's Agent, vocal, at times argumentative, eloquently raised issues, some of which are outside of the Tribunal's mandate in an appeal on medical grounds, but which, in the interest of fairness, transparency and edification, the Tribunal feels compelled to address, particularly as the possibility of an appeal was mentioned.

After concluding his opening statement the Applicant's Agent suggested that according to the Rules of Procedure, the Tribunal need not proceed with the hearing, if it were to accept the physician's letter as sufficient to establish the Applicant's case.

Section 2.10 (1) of the Licence Appeal Tribunal's (LAT) Rules of Practice Effective: January 1, 2008, Revised: July 1, 2008; January 1, 2011, does indeed allow the Tribunal to dismiss a proceeding without a hearing, if it finds the hearing:

(a) is frivolous, vexatious or is commenced in bad faith

(b) relates to matters that are outside the jurisdiction of the Tribunal;

(c) some aspect of the statutory requirements for bringing the proceeding has not been met, or

(d) the party filing the appeal has abandoned the proceeding.

Since none of the criteria required was present, the Tribunal ruled in favour of proceeding.

The issue of a request by Mr. Allen for a voir dire, after PC Liz Newton's was sworn in, was resolved by an agreement to proceed with the understanding that Mr. Allen would have an opportunity to raise the issue of qualifications at any time during the testimony.

With respect to the use of the Officer's notes to reinforce her memory of the incident involving the Applicant, the Applicant's Agent questioned the Officer to determine her "independent recollection" of events regarding the Applicant. It was agreed that the Officer would proceed without referring to her notes.

The Applicant's Agent objected to the PC Newton's testimony regarding the odour of alcohol emanating from the Applicant. In his closing remarks the Applicant's Agent referred to the fact that the officers did not seek to obtain a blood sample, therefore, according to Mr. Allen, they did not believe the Applicant was intoxicated. The Applicant's state of intoxication or degree of impairment is not within the Tribunal's mandate. It has no bearing on the Tribunal's decision; thus, any evidence pertaining to the Applicant's possible impairment is inconsequential.

Although the rules of evidence are often more relaxed in a quasi-judicial setting, than in a court of law, the Tribunal nonetheless sustained the Applicant's Agent's objection to the Respondent leading the witness.

The objection to PC Newton's testimony regarding air escaping around the mouthpiece was dealt with by having the officer proffer her testimony in the form of her observations rather than an apparent opinion.

An issue arose as Officer Newton was attempting to testify regarding her observations of the Applicant's physical condition. The Applicant's Agent argued that the officer's qualifications had not been established. The witness was allowed to continue once she clarified to the Tribunal that she had been a medic in the armed forces.

The Respondent's Agent questioned the relevance of cross-examining PC Newton on her knowledge of the manual. The Applicant's Agent retorted that the law in Ontario requires users to be familiar with the manufacturer's set standards, otherwise readings obtained cannot be used in proceedings. As previously stated, this Tribunal is not concerned with an actual reading but rather with an Applicant's inability to provide a sample solely on medical grounds. As any other criteria would be outside the Tribunal's jurisdiction, this Tribunal will not consider evidence pertaining to the workings of the device. Similarly the Tribunal disregarded the further discussions regarding the device brought to the hearing or the device used at the site.

The Applicant's Agent raised the issue of identification of the Applicant by pointing out that the PC Newton had only accepted information from her partner and had not herself identified the Applicant. The Respondent suggested that if there was an issue of wrong identification the Applicant could have appealed on the grounds of mistaken identity. The Tribunal agrees and accepts PC Newton's evidence as relating to the Applicant.

A further point of contention occurred during PC Yeoman's testimony regarding the date of the incident. The Applicant's Agent maintained that the onus is on the Respondent to prove their case, therefore the Respondent may not correct his witness. The Applicant's Agent requested that the officer's testimony be struck from the record, and that he not be allowed to continue. The Tribunal points out that in a quasi-judicial Tribunal the onus is on the Applicant to prove his case. The Tribunal refers Mr. Allen to Rule 15.3 which is clear in its provision that:

> The Applicant has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

As the date of the event does not appear to have been an issue of dispute, the Tribunal allowed the officer to stand corrected and proceed.

Several times during the hearing the Applicant's Agent referred to the Charter of Rights. In the opening statement Mr. Allen referred to Section 1; during the Registrar's Agent closing remarks Mr. Allen interjected suggesting the wording used by Registrar's Agent invited the Tribunal to accept that the Applicant's absence should be held against him, which according to Mr. Allen is "in violation of the constitution and against the Charter"; in his rebuttal Mr. Allen reiterated his belief that the according to the Charter the onus is on the Registrar to prove the case.

The Rules of Procedure with respect to Constitutional challenges prescribe as follows:

> Section 8.1 Where a party intends to raise a question about the constitutional validity or applicability of legislation, a regulation or by-law made under legislation, or a rule of common law, or to claim a remedy under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, then pursuant to section 109(6) of the Courts of Justice Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. C. 43. Revised: July 1, 2008; January 1, 2011 16
> (1) notice of a constitutional question shall be served on the other parties, the Tribunal, the Attorney General of Ontario, and the Attorney General of Canada as soon as the circumstances requiring notice become known and, in any event, at least 15 days before the question is to be argued before the Tribunal, and
> (2) under clause (1) above notice shall set forth,
> (i) the particular legislative provision or particular rule of common law,
>
> (ii) the material facts giving rise to the constitutional questions, and
> (iii) the legal basis for the constitutional question, setting out concisely the legal basis for each question and identifying the constitutional principles to be argued,
> (3) where a party fails to comply with Rule 8.1(1) or Rule 8.1(2), the Act, regulation, by-law or common law shall not be found to be invalid or inapplicable or the remedy shall not be granted, as the case may be.

> Section 8.2 Where the Attorneys General of Canada and Ontario are entitled to notice of a matter referred to in Rule 8.1, he or she is entitled to adduce evidence and make submissions to the Tribunal regarding the constitutional question.

Although this Tribunal is familiar with the wording of the Charter, as it appears that the procedures for a constitutional challenge were not followed, this Tribunal is precluded from dealing with the points mentioned by the Applicant's Agent.

The Applicant appealed his licence suspension by the Registrar under Section 50.1 (2) (b) of the Highway Traffic Act, which prescribes:

> …person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason…

The argument inferred by the Applicant's Agent is that the Applicant did not refuse; he was cooperative and made every possible effort to blow into the device; the assumption being he "complied". The Tribunal disagrees. It would completely defeat the purpose of the legislation to exonerate individuals simply because they "attempted" to blow into a breathalyzer. There is a clear anticipation in the demand for a breath sample that a result is to be obtained, i.e. a reading. This Tribunal interprets the words "failed …to comply" as not having met that expectation in that no result is obtained. There is no doubt that the Applicant was unsuccessful in obtaining a reading; thus he failed to comply.

The Registrar's Agent did not dispute the Applicant's condition, as stated in the medical records. Therefore, the diagnosis provided by the Applicant's physician: "chronic back pain …difficulty breathing, dry mouth, adverse effects from medication", is proven.

The Applicant's Agent insisted that all that is required by the Tribunal is for an Applicant to establish a medical condition. Absolving all individuals with a medical condition from providing a breath sample would render the legislation useless. It cannot suffice to prove that a medical condition exists. The crux of the matter is whether the medical condition could cause the individual to fail or not comply with a breath demand, as the word "precludes" implies. The, applicable legislation provides Tribunal members with specific guidelines within which to determine whether a medical condition could have affected the failure to provide a breath sample.

The Tribunal decision with respect to this matter was made solely on the basis of the medical evidence, or in fact, the lack thereof.

Neither the information provided by Dr. T in page 2 of the Notice of Appeal nor in his letter conforms to Section 15 (2) of Ontario Regulation 574, which is unambiguous, plainly setting out the essential information that must be present in all medical reports:

> The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath sample including the results of any related tests.

The Registrar's Agent argued that the medical report does not offer a detailed explanation, nor link the condition to the failure to provide a breath sample. The Tribunal agrees. The medical report attached to the Notice of Appeal form is vague and inconclusive. The physician mentions "breathing difficulties" but fails to provide details as to history and severity of the condition. Furthermore, there is no indication that the Applicant has undergone pulmonary function tests; nor is on any medication for a respiratory condition.

A proven medical condition does not suffice to establish that the condition was manifesting at the time of the breathalyzer. In order to determine whether or not the Applicant was in fact experiencing respiratory difficulties at the time, the Tribunal relies on the evidence of the eyewitnesses involved in the incident, the Applicant and the officers.

The evidence of the police officers is that at no time was anything out of the ordinary observed.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal the Tribunal finds that he has failed to do so.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated December 31, 2010, pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, No One Appearing

KYLE BIEL,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 14, 2011

DECISION RELEASED: March 15, 2011 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on March 14, 2011, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.1 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H.8 ("HTA").

The Tribunal released its Decision on March 15, 2011, with Reasons to follow.

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the suspension imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section of the 48.3 of the HTA for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

The Applicant appealed by way of a Notice of Appeal under section 50.1 of the HTA. The Applicant appeals from the order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") dated February 6, 2011.

Reason for the Appeal

The reasons for the appeal set out in the Notice of Appeal are summarized as follows:

> I was unable to provide the required breath/blood sample because of a medical reason.

Preliminary Matters

The Applicant not being present at the time scheduled for the hearing, the usual thirty-minute grace period was granted.

A telephone call was made to the Applicant's number on record. There was no reply.

Given that the Applicant signed for the notification of hearing, the hearing proceeded in absentia.

All documents were entered as exhibits.

ISSUE

Did the Applicant fail or refuse to comply with a demand made to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason?

LAW

The legislation governing the Administrative Drivers Licence Suspension (ADLS) under subsection 50.1(1) and (2) of the HTA states:

> 50.1(1) "A person whose driver's licence is suspended under Section 48.3 may appeal the suspension to the Tribunal.
>
> (2) The grounds on which a person may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may order that the suspension be set aside are,
> (a) that the person whose licence was suspended is not the same individual to whom a demand for a sample of breath or blood was made, or from whom a sample of breath or blood was taken, as the case may be, under or pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code (Canada) referred to in subsection 48.3(3); or

(b) that the person failed or refused to comply with a demand made under section 254 of the Criminal Code (Canada) to provide a sample of breath or blood because he or she was unable to do so for a medical reason".

The HTA states under Section 50.1(4):

> The [Tribunal] may confirm the suspension or may order that the suspension be set aside.

Rule 15.3(b) and (c) of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice states:

> 15.3 In addition to the provisions of Rule 15.2, the following Rules apply to appeals pursuant to Section 50.1 of the Act:
> (b) A report of a legally qualified medical practitioner that is to be submitted in evidence shall clearly state,
> (i) the name, telephone number and address, with the postal code, of the medical practitioner;
> (ii) the name, date of birth and address of the person who is the subject of the report;
> (iii) That the medical practitioner has prepared the report, or is aware that the report may be used, in support of an appeal to the Tribunal from the suspension of a driver's licence under section 50.1 of the Act;
> (iv) the length of time and frequency with which the medical practitioner has attended upon the person who is the subject of the report, including the date of the most recent examination of the person that supports the findings set out in the report;
> (v) whether the medical practitioner is the family physician of the person who is the subject of the report; and
> (vi) whether the medical practitioner is a specialist and, if so, the field of specialty.
> (c) The report referred to in subrule (b) shall
> (i) provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests, and
> (ii) be signed by the medical practitioner.

Finally, Rule 15.3(a) the Tribunal's Rules of Practice states of states:

> (a) The Applicant has the onus of establishing the merit of the appeal.

FACTS

The Applicant's Evidence

The Applicant's driver's licence was suspended on February 06, 2010, as per the Notice of Appeal, filed as Exhibit #2.

The Applicant's written submissions consisted of: page 2 of the Notice of Appeal, completed by his physician; a typewritten account of events from the Applicant; 2 letters from the William Osler Centre; and a letter from a Community MD.

In his typewritten note addressed "To whom it may concern" the Applicant explains that he informed the officer that he had a previous back injury and that his back hurt and his chest felt like it was "caving in".

Both letters from the William Osler Centre contain the results of BCH Magnetic Resonance Imaging, dated 18/11/2007 and 10/10/2008.

The letter from the Community MD dated September 09, 2009, is regarding the Applicant's back pain, and is addressed to Ministry of Labour.

The physician, who completed page 2 of the Notice of Appeal confirms that he has been attending the Applicant for "3 years and 4 months". The Applicant's condition is diagnosed as "severe depression, severe back pain".

With respect to the Applicant's inability to provide a breath sample the physician writes: "Patient stated to me that he felt 'chest was caving' 'in severe back pain'"

The physician last saw the Applicant on "February 15, 2011" for "his condition".

The Registrar's Evidence

Constable Christian Pelletier was called as a witness.

The Constable affirmed that he has been with the Toronto Police since 2002.

The Registrar's Agent asked the Constable to describe the events that led to the Applicant's breath sample being demanded.

According to the Constable, when asked to blow into the device, the Applicant either blew out his cheeks but did not supply sufficient air volume to activate the device, or broke the seal around the mouthpiece. Each attempted resulted in a no reading with the machine producing an error message.

Constable Pelletier did not see the Applicant in any type of respiratory distress.

Constable Amrinder Sandhu, who has been a police officer for two years, was called as a witness.

The Constable testified as to his involvement in the incident. At no time did he observe the Applicant either having breathing difficulties nor was he "wincing" or seemingly in pain.

APPLICATION OF THE LAW TO FACTS

The Registrar's Agent, in his closing remarks, confirmed that it is not the intention of the Registrar to challenge the Applicant's medical condition. Nonetheless, according to the Registrar's Agent, it was not a medical condition that caused the Applicant to refuse to provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent maintained that the Applicant had no intention of providing a breath sample, and consciously made a decision not to do so. The evidence from the officers is that the Applicant did not make a satisfactory attempt to blow into the mouthpiece. Neither officer witnessed the Applicant having any physical problems.

As far as the medical report is concerned, the Registrar's Agent maintained that it is entirely hearsay, sparse and missing crucial information, as there are no test results to substantiate the claim that the Applicant could not provide a breath sample.

The Registrar's Agent did not dispute the Applicant's condition, as stated in the medical records. Therefore, the condition is proven.

The Tribunal decision with respect to this matter was made solely on the basis of the medical evidence, or in fact, the lack thereof.

The information provided in page 2 of the Notice of Appeal does not conform with the criteria of Rule 15.3(c)(i) of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, which is unambiguous, plainly setting out the essential information that must be present in all medical reports:

> The report shall provide the details of any present condition, diagnosis and history of the condition that precludes the person who is the subject of the report from providing a breath or blood sample including the results of any related tests…

The Tribunal agrees with the Registrar's Agent argument that the medical does not offer a detailed explanation, nor link the condition to the failure to provide a breath sample. The medical report attached to the Notice of Appeal form is vague and inconclusive. The physician merely confirms what he was told by the Applicant about severe back pain and the chest "caving in". Furthermore, there is no indication that the Applicant has undergone pulmonary function tests; nor is on any medication for a respiratory condition.

A proven medical condition does not suffice to establish that the condition was manifesting at the time of the breathalyzer. In order to determine whether or not the Applicant was in fact experiencing difficulties at the time, the Tribunal relies on the evidence of the eyewitnesses involved in the incident, the Applicant and the officers.

As the Applicant was not present to testify in his own behalf, the Tribunal relied on the testimony of the police officers that at no time did they notice the Applicant in any physical distress.

The onus being on the Applicant to establish the merit of the appeal the Tribunal finds that he has failed to do so.

DECISION

Upon the application by the Applicant to appeal the suspension order of the Registrar dated February 06, 2011 pursuant to section 48.3 of the HTA and having considered the evidence filed with the Tribunal and the submissions of the Registrar and of the Applicant;

Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 50.1(4) of the HTA, the Tribunal confirms the suspension.

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

6007-NUSP-DUDI-Not Under Suspension & Due Diligence

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: KAMRAN TAHERI, Agent representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: APRIL 23, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 23, 2010, in Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	Toyota CBA 2010
Date of Appeal:	April 7, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the driver's licence was not under suspension and the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in sections 50.2(3)(b) and (c) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on April 23, 2010 and proceeded as an oral hearing.

The Respondent submitted a set of certified copies of documents. The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Respondent were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Agent for the Applicant was affirmed before giving testimony.

The Applicant conducts a daily car and truck rental operation. The Applicant currently has a fleet of about 40 vehicles available to rent. This number increases to about 60 vehicles during the summer months.

The Agent is the manager and part franchise owner. He runs the franchise with another partner and also has one employee. The Agent has owned the franchise for the past seven years.

The suspended driver at the time the vehicle was impounded was one of the Applicant's regular customers. The Agent has known the suspended driver for the past 2 ½ years.

The Agent assisted the suspended driver on the day the impounded vehicle was rented. The suspended driver was returning a rented vehicle for servicing and rented the impounded vehicle for one week. The suspended driver provided his driver's licence card as well as a credit card. According to the rental agreement, the suspended driver paid a $200 cash deposit as his credit card limit had been exceeded.

Two days later, the Agent received a call from the Sudbury police advising that the rented vehicle had been impounded as it was being driven by the customer on the rental agreement and that costumer was a suspended driver.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 25, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8), final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(b) and (c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(b) alleging that the driver's licence of the driver driving at the time of the impoundment order was not under suspension, section 55.1(2) of the Act states:

> Where a police officer or officer appointed for carrying out the provisions of this Act is satisfied that a person was driving a motor vehicle on a highway while his or her driver's licence is under suspension under section 41 or 42 or 43, even if it is under suspension at the same time for any other reason, the officer shall,
> (a) notify the Registrar of the fact or cause the Registrar to be notified; and
> (b) detain the motor vehicle that was being driven by the person whose driver's licence is under suspension until the Registrar issues an order under subsection (3).

Section 41 of the Highway Traffic Act identify the type of appeals for which a licence is suspended in sections 41(1)(a), (b), (c), (d), and (e) and 41(7) and 42(1) and 42(5) as follows:

> Section 41(1) Subject to subsections 41.1 (1), (2) and (3), the driver's licence of a person who is convicted of an offence,
> (a) under section 220, 221 or 236 of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed by means of a motor vehicle or a street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of Motorized snow vehicle Act;
>
> (b) under section 249, 252, 253 or 255 of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed while driving or having the care, charge or control of a motor vehicle or street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act;
>
> (c) under subsection 254 (5) of the Criminal Code (Canada) committed in relation to the driving or having the care, charge or control of a motor vehicle or street car within the meaning of this Act or a motorized snow vehicle within the meaning of the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act;
>
> (d) under a provision that is enacted by a state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations; or
> (e) referred to in a predecessor to this sub-section, > is thereupon suspended ....

> Section 42.(1) The driver's licence of a person who is convicted of an offence under subsection 259 (4) of the Criminal Code (Canada) or under a provision that is enacted by state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations is thereupon suspended for a period of,
> (a) upon the first conviction, one year; and
> (b) upon a subsequent conviction, two years,
> in addition to any other period for which the licence is suspended and consecutively there to.
> (4) This section applies in the same manner as if a person were convicted of an offence if the person pleads guilty to or is found guilty of an offence referred to in subsection (1) and,
>
> (a) an order directing that the accused be discharged is made under section 730 of the Criminal Code (Canada) or under a provision that is enacted by a state of the United States of America and that is designated by the regulations; or
> (b) a disposition is made under section 20 or sections 28 to 32 of the Young Offenders Act (Canada), including a confirmation or variation of the disposition. R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8, s.42 (1-4).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Appeal – Not Under Suspension

The issue before the Tribunal is whether the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the Order was made, was not then under suspension.

At the onset of this hearing, the Tribunal asked the Applicant whether he had received and reviewed the Ministry of Transportation's submissions, which were sent to him by courier. The Agent acknowledged that he had reviewed the driving record of the suspended driver who was, in fact, a disqualified driver. He had been convicted under the Criminal Code of Canada for Impaired Driving and is currently serving three suspensions in total.

The Tribunal wishes to point out that the Applicant has the right to seek compensation from the suspended driver, as stated in subsection 55.1(21) of the HTA:

> The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order.

The Tribunal finds that this ground of appeal has no merit.

Appeal – Due Diligence

The second issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence, in attempting to determine that the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, in respect of which the order was made, was not then under suspension. Subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle, or its Agent, must exercise due diligence and the onus of proof is on the Applicant, or its Agent, to establish that due diligence was performed, which is required under this section of the Act.

By his own admission, the Applicant advised the Tribunal that he had "heard about the website", but was "not clear" on how to use it. He further advised the Tribunal that "it is not possible to do a driver's licence check on each driver, it is not routine in this industry" unless there is suspicion surrounding the customer. The Agent may be of the view that if he inconveniences the customers by asking them to wait while he verifies the validity of their driver's licence, they may not be returning customers. He does not view this process as protecting the Applicant's property and assets.

The clause in the rental agreement states:

> The undersigned lessee or the signatory to this rental agreement certifies that he or she holds a valid driver's licence for the operation of the vehicle(s) referred to in the agreement and agrees to ensure that any person who operates the vehicle holds a valid driver's licence of the proper class.

Merely relying on the customer's attestation is not sufficient. Viewing the picture and expiry on the driver's licence card does not constitute due diligence. At no point in time did the suspended driver advise the Agent that he was a suspended driver.

The evidence before the Tribunal was that the Agent did not take any measures to ensure that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence, but merely assumed that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence since he had been a customer for 2 ½ years.

Due diligence requires that the Applicant and/or its agent take further steps to verify the validity of the driver's licence. This can be accomplished, for a nominal fee, by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation (seven days a week, 24 hours a day) with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of a licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

DATE OF HEARING: April 23, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 23, 2010, by teleconference, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	the Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	1994, Chevrolet, Lumina (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	April 6, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant has five children who require transportation to school, medical appointments, extracurricular activities and social commitments. Four of the children are school age and are currently walking to school. Two of the children have been referred to specialists for monitoring of different health issues. Since the Applicant's car was impounded one appointment, of an undisclosed nature, has been missed. There is 911 service available to the Applicant.

In addition to staying at home to care for her family, the Applicant is currently taking correspondence courses in order to complete her high school diploma. She began this endeavour in 2005. Although the courses are by correspondence, she is required to submit work in person to an independent learning centre which is a 30 minute walk from her home. It had also been the intention of the Applicant to continue her studies at a college, in a different community, simultaneously with working on her high school diploma. Her college studies have previously been interrupted by various other factors but she hoped to be registered for the summer semester. The Applicant believes that her ability to complete the necessary courses, within the time frame required by the college, will be jeopardized if she does not have the use of a car. This will prevent her from successfully graduating in September of 2012.

The Applicant testified that the alternative forms of vehicular transportation available are too costly, particularly given the size of her family, and that she needs to use a vehicle for tasks such as grocery shopping. Local bus service is $2.25 per person regardless of age. The cost of a taxi to and from the grocery store is $20: she has used a taxi once for this purpose since the impoundment. The Applicant has investigated both renting and leasing a car and has determined that she can not afford either. The cheapest car to be leased is $68 per week. Extended family has not been advised of the impoundment but would not, in any event, be available to assist and the Applicant has no friends in the vicinity. The Applicant clarified that the two cars that appear to be registered in her name, in addition to the impounded car, are cars which she has disposed of and should no longer be registered in her name. The car currently registered in the driver's name, (the driver is the Applicant's spouse), is not in working condition.

The Applicant expressed concern that she will not be able to meet the future health and nutritional needs of her family without the impounded vehicle. The Applicant stated that she will not be able to pay the fees to retrieve her vehicle and will not be able to afford to buy another vehicle. Not only will this cause a significant financial strain, but ultimately it will prevent her from completing her educational program and obtaining decent employment which will have a catastrophic financial effect in the end.

At the time of the hearing the Applicant's spouse was employed. He works from home but is required to attend meetings. Since the impoundment he has cycled, walked and been driven by a co-worker to his meetings.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;
3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;
4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment ('the driver') had been convicted of the offence of having a blood/alcohol content in excess of .08 under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 17, 2010.
5. Copies of Ministry of Transportation records indicating two vehicles, in addition to the impounded vehicle are currently registered in the name of the Applicant, and one vehicle is currently registered in the name of the driver.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The “owner” for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> “Owner” means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar’s order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines “exceptional hardship” as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
>
> (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
> (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
> (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
> (d) the impact of the loss,
>
> (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
> (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).
> (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Pursuant to s. 22(1) of Regulation 574, in determining whether an impoundment will result in exceptional hardship the Tribunal must consider whether there is an alternative to the impounded vehicle and if not, whether the impoundment will result in a threat to the health or safety of any individual normally transported by that vehicle.

The evidence of the Applicant establishes that there are a number of alternatives to the impounded vehicle for the transportation of the Applicant and her family. The children are able to walk to school, the Applicant is able to walk to the independent learning centre, and there are buses and taxis services in the community which can be used for acquiring groceries and attending appointments. Since the impoundment the Applicant has been able to attend all scheduled appointments using the alternative means available, with one exception, and there was no suggestion that this missed appointment was a threat to anyone's health or safety.

The Tribunal understands that there may be costs associated with some of the alternative means of transportation as there are with any form of transportation involving a vehicle, including the impounded vehicle. However, the Tribunal is not satisfied by the evidence that the potential costs will prove prohibitive.

The Applicant has stated that the impoundment will ultimately result in an economic catastrophe as she cannot afford to retrieve the car and she will never be able to afford a new one. This will then impact on her education and consequently her future job opportunities. Pursuant to s.22(3) of Regulation 574 the Tribunal may consider financial and economic loss in determining whether exceptional hardship will result, provided such loss is immediate, significant and lasting. The fact that the impoundment may interfere with the future employment of the Applicant does not meet this criteria.

Although the evidence before the Tribunal establishes that the impoundment will cause significant inconvenience and potentially added expenses to the Applicant and her family, the evidence does not establish that the impoundment will result in exceptional hardship.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: TERRANCE SWEENEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: APRIL 19, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 19 2010, by teleconference, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2002 Honda Uex (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	March 31, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on April 19, 2010 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant testified that he is married with four children living at home. He works as a machine operator and his wife and children attend school. He agreed that he was driving while his licence was suspended, but was merely test driving the vehicle to see if it was in good order because he had not been driving it for a while.

He did not present any evidence as to exceptional hardship and on cross examination by Ms. Bedrossian admitted the following:

a) he has been able to get to work by bus or a friend sometimes drives him;
b) everyone in his house is healthy, so there were no doctors' appointments missed;
c) his wife and children have been able to attend school by bus.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 11, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

O. Reg.631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant simply did not present any evidence to support a finding of exceptional hardship.

His answers on cross examination establish clearly that there are alternatives to the impounded vehicle available to them. Neither he nor his family has suffered any exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of his motor vehicle.

He is able to get to his work by bus or through a friend. His wife and children have not missed any school as they are able to get there by bus. No member of the family has been ill, so no medical appointments have been missed. The Tribunal notes that the Applicant lives in a community, where “911” service is available in an emergency.

In summary, the onus was on the Applicant to adduce evidence that he or anyone else in his family would suffer exceptional hardship if the impoundment order were confirmed. He has failed to do this.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant’s motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: KENNETH W. KOPROWSKI, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 19, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 19, 2010, by teleconference, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. The owner has appealed that order. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2007 Hyundai Tib (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	March 30, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on April 19, 2010 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

The hearing proceeded.

ISSUES

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

She gave brief testimony about each issue.

Issue # 1: Due Diligence

The Applicant testified that, at the time the vehicle was impounded on March 13, 2010, she was on a trip out of the country with a friend. She admits that the vehicle in question was hers and that, while she was away, she left it at the home of her parents where she and her boyfriend both lived. It was her boyfriend who had been driving her vehicle at the time he was stopped by police on March 13, 2010. She had known her boyfriend for only about five months before the impoundment order was made.

She emphasized that, before she left on her trip, she did not know that her boyfriend would use her vehicle. The only time he used it before her trip was the time that he had to drive her to the local hospital where she had to receive emergency treatment. She did not know that, while she was away, he had taken her car keys and had driven her car to his place of employment. She stated that, before she left on her trip, she did not give him any instructions to use the vehicle. On the other hand, the Tribunal notes that there was no evidence that she had told him not to use it. This observation is of significance to the Tribunal considering that she stated, on cross-examination, that when she went on her trip she "probably" left the keys on a table at her parents' house, thereby leaving them easily accessible by anyone.

She further testified that she did not know that her boyfriend's driver's licence was suspended. She never asked him whether he had a valid licence, did not ever see his driver's licence, nor did she take any other steps to inquire whether his licence had been suspended. The topic never came up between them because, as she stated, she did not allow other people to use her vehicle, except for the one time that her boyfriend drove her to the emergency department of the local hospital. His use of her vehicle on March 13, 2010, was, in her words, "unexpected." In addition, she stated that she did not know a lot about him. She candidly stated that she was "under the assumption that he had a driver's licence," to quote her testimony.

It was only about 28 hours after the impoundment order was made that she returned from her trip. It was then that her boyfriend told her of the impoundment.

The Agent for the Registrar questioned the Applicant about a statement she had made in her Notice of Appeal that would indicate that she did, in fact, give her boyfriend permission to use her vehicle. On page two of the Notice of Appeal, the Applicant stated, among other things: "I was out of the country at the time of this incident, and was under the assumption that the person I lent the car to had a valid driver's licence." (emphasis is added).

In response, the Applicant stated that her wording was incorrect and that she did not lend the vehicle to her boyfriend. She used that wording in error because of her nervousness in completing the Notice of Appeal form.

Issue #2: Exceptional Hardship

The Applicant stated that the impoundment of her vehicle caused her exceptional hardship because she could not use it to go to and from her places of employment during the period of impoundment. She holds down two jobs. One is that of a waitress in her community at a local restaurant where she has worked for almost thirteen years. The other, which she has held for about the last two years, is that of an assistant to a local caterer who caters to functions both within and outside the Applicant's community. In order to get to work at the restaurant, she has been able to use the vehicles that her parents own, but must alternate from one vehicle to the other, because her parents need their own vehicles, as well, for their own purposes. She stated that using their vehicles creates an inconvenience for both her and her parents.

As a waitress, she works nights, and earns minimum wage plus tips. In her small community, there is no bus service that she can use, inasmuch as the service does not run seven days a week and ends at 5:00 p.m. each day that it does operate. She either has to use her parents' vehicles to get to and from work, or has to pay for an expensive taxi fare of $27.00, one-way, or rely on co-workers to provide her with a ride. Sometimes, her parents take her to work and then pick her up at the end of her shift.

As an assistant to the caterer, she works during her time off from the local restaurant and earns significantly more money. However, the caterer works at different places during the week, and at different times, so that the Applicant needs her car to get to those places. For some of those places there is no public bus service whatsoever. Sometimes the caterer himself can pick her up and return her to her home, but not always. She stated that she has lost out on some small catering jobs because of the impoundment. However, the major catering jobs will begin about April 30th. She will have the use of her vehicle by that time, since the period of impoundment ends April 27. Once she recovers her vehicle, the Applicant will be able to go to the out-of-town catering functions.

She also stated that the costs of the impoundment will be about $2,000.00 and she will have to go further into debt in order to have her vehicle released. In addition, she is still paying for her vehicle and also must incur expensive taxi fares occasionally. She argued that having to incur these additional expenses meant that she is the one who has to suffer financially as a result of the impoundment, whereas it was the driver of the vehicle who caused the impoundment order to be made.

On cross-examination by the Agent for the Registrar, the Applicant confirmed that there is no issue about her health and safety or that of anyone else who might have to use the vehicle. There is a 911 emergency call service in her community. She has not had to miss any medical appointments as a result of the impoundment.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record as Exhibit 3 were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until April 27, 2010.

The Agent for the Registrar called no witnesses. Instead, she relied on the documentation filed as Exhibit 3. The Applicant at no time questioned the accuracy of that documentation.

The Agent for the Registrar submitted that the Applicant did not demonstrate due diligence in attempting to determine whether or not the driver's licence of the driver of her motor vehicle at the time that the impoundment order was made was under suspension. The Agent for the Registrar emphasized that the Applicant never asked the driver, her boyfriend, whether he had a valid driver's licence. She did not ever see or attempt to see his driver's licence. She did not ask her boyfriend or take any other steps to find out whether his licence had been suspended.

In addition, when she left on her trip, she left the keys on a table, at her parents' house, where her boyfriend also lived. The keys were exposed and readily available to anyone who wanted to use them.

As for the Applicant's contention that she suffered exceptional hardship, the Agent for the Registrar emphasized that there were alternatives to the impounded vehicle available to the Applicant, so that the ground of exceptional hardship could not succeed. She had access to her parents' two vehicles. She could take a taxi cab, although, the Applicant considered the fare to be expensive, and she could obtain rides from either her co-workers at the restaurant or from her employer in the catering business.

In addition, the Agent for the Registrar also submitted that there was no threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle. Also, the financial loss that the Applicant testified to was not immediate, significant and lasting, for she did not lose any employment. Lastly, the inconvenience to her and to her parents was not a matter that this Tribunal could consider.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3) (c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3) (c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3) (d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the > impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Issue # 1 Due Diligence

The evidence is clear that the Applicant took no steps whatsoever to either determine the status of her boyfriend's driver's licence or to protect her keys from improper use while she was on her holiday. There was, as well, no evidence that she told her boyfriend that he was not to use her vehicle while she was on her trip.

The definition of "due," referred to earlier, is defined as, among other things, "proper" and "adequate." The term "diligence" is defined as "careful attention", "heedfulness", and "caution". The definition of "due diligence" found in Black's law dictionary, quoted earlier, requires the Applicant to take:

> "such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case."

The Applicant merely assumed that her boyfriend had a driver's licence even though, as the Applicant herself stated, she did not know much about him. Therefore, her belief that her boyfriend's licence was not suspended, founded on her lack of inquiries and on her assumption that he had a valid driver's licence, cannot be considered to be honest and reasonable, on the facts of this case.

Having regard to all those factors, the Tribunal considers that the Applicant falls short of having taken all reasonable steps that a prudent person should have taken in these circumstances to determine that the driver's licence of her boyfriend was not then under suspension. As a result, the Tribunal does not consider that the Applicant has satisfied her onus of proving on a balance of probabilities that she exercised due diligence.

On that ground, the Applicant's appeal fails.

Issue #2 Exceptional Hardship

The evidence of the Applicant was that there were alternatives to the impounded vehicle available to her, a matter that this Tribunal must consider, according to section 22 (1) of Regulation 574, referred to earlier. She had her parents' vehicles available to her. They all lived at the same address. Her co-workers at the restaurant were available and her employer in the catering business was also available, although not all the time. She also had taxi service available to her.

Although the Applicant stated that using her parents' vehicles created an inconvenience both to her and to her parents, the fact that the use of their vehicles may have been an inconvenience to any person is not a matter that this Tribunal can consider, in accordance with section 22 (2) (a) of Regulation 574, referred to earlier.

The Applicant's evidence indicated that there was some financial loss to her because she missed out on some catering functions, she had to pay taxi fares occasionally and because she will have to pay the large impound fee. However, she did not lose her employment at the restaurant, and she will be able to resume her catering functions after she recovers her vehicle. Therefore, the evidence does not show that such financial loss will be immediate, significant and lasting, as required by section 22(3)(b) of Regulation 574. However, the consideration of whether the financial loss will be immediate, significant and lasting is a factor to be considered only if, among other factors set out in section 22(3), there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle, and this Tribunal has already held that alternatives were available.

The Tribunal has sympathy for the Applicant. However, having regard to all the above factors, and applying to them the applicable legislation, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not satisfied her onus to prove on a balance of probabilities that she suffered exceptional hardship as a result of the impoundment of her vehicle.

Therefore, on the ground of exceptional hardship, the Applicant's appeal also fails.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: KENNETH W. KOPROWSKI, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 14, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 14, 2010, by teleconference, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 180 days.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 180 days. The owner has appealed that order. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 1999 Ford Mustang (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: March 29, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

ISSUES

1. Whether the Applicant's appeal of the order to impound the Applicant's current motor vehicle is not permitted on the ground of exceptional hardship because an order to impound was previously made with respect to the same motor vehicle then owned by the same owner, the Applicant, as provided in subsection 50.2(4) of the Act?

2. Whether the Tribunal should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Agent for the Registrar did not make the first issue a matter of a preliminary Motion but was, instead, content to allow the Applicant to give evidence on her own behalf.

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Registrar.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

In her brief testimony, the Applicant stated that her vehicle was impounded on three separate occasions. The Registrar's documents, which the Applicant did not dispute, confirmed that one order to impound was made on February 3, 2009, for 45 days, and a second order to impound was made on June 8, 2009, for 90 days. The Applicant did not appeal the first two orders to impound. The third order to impound, which was the subject of this appeal, was made on March 15, 2010, for 180 days. The three orders to impound were made against the same vehicle. The Applicant was the owner of that vehicle at all relevant times. The Tribunal notes that, before the order was made on March 15, 2010, the two previous orders to impound were made within the two-year period prescribed in section 1 of Regulation 631/98 to satisfy the requirements of section 55.1 (3) of the Act, summarized later in these Reasons.

On all three occasions, the orders to impound were made because the Applicant's common law spouse was driving the vehicle. His licence had been suspended because he had been convicted under the Criminal Code of Canada for impaired driving causing death and impaired driving causing bodily harm. The licence suspension was to expire April 14, 2010.

The Applicant testified that she would suffer exceptional hardship because of the order to impound. She stated that the exceptional hardship arose from the fact that she needed her vehicle to drive her teenage son to school and to his medical appointments and sports events. She also needed the vehicle to drive herself and her common law spouse to medical appointments with their family doctor and specialists, outside her community.

Without the vehicle, her son's grandparents were taking turns giving rides to her son. In addition, she acknowledged that she and her spouse had public transportation available to them.

She also stated that she will not be able to afford to pay the impound fee at the time her vehicle will be released from the impound facility on September 11, 2010.

The Agent for the Registrar conducted a very short cross-examination of the Applicant. He established that the Applicant's spouse paid the impound fee after the first impoundment and that her parents paid the impound fee after the second impoundment.

With regard to the events leading up to the third impoundment, the Applicant stated that her spouse insisted on driving both himself and the Applicant to a medical appointment in another community. The Applicant did not like the idea, but felt compelled to go along with his demand. She admitted that she should have called the police, but was worried about not making her medical appointment on time. Nevertheless, she still missed her appointment after the police stopped her vehicle en route.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record as Exhibit #3 were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving Causing Death and Impaired Driving Causing Bodily Harm under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until April 14, 2010.

The Agent for the Registrar emphasized that two previous orders to impound had already been made against the vehicle owned by the Applicant within the two-year period prescribed in section 1 of Regulation 631/98. He further submitted that the ground of exceptional hardship was not available to the Applicant because of the previous impoundment of her vehicle, according to section 50.2(4) of the Act. He also submitted that it was because of the provision in section 50.2(4) that he did not have to challenge the testimony of the Applicant relating to her claims of exceptional hardship because the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship was not even available to her.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8), final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> (Emphasis is added)

Section 1 of Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
>
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

But, the legislation contains a serious restriction on when an Applicant can claim exceptional hardship. Where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

(Emphasis is added)

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;

(b) financial or economic loss to any person;

(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Tribunal agrees with the submission of the Agent for the Registrar that the ground of exceptional hardship is not available to the Applicant. It is immediately clear, from the evidence before this Tribunal, that the Applicant cannot succeed in her appeal because of the admitted facts and because of the specific and unambiguous provisions of section 50.2 (4) of the Act; that is, the claim for exceptional hardship does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner. In this case, there was not just one such previous order to impound the vehicle owned by the Applicant, but two orders. At its core, the appeal is doomed to failure. The Registrar has met the onus of establishing that the Applicant was the owner of a previously impounded vehicle thereby triggering the provisions in section 50.2 (4). The Applicant's case must fail.

In view of this Tribunal's finding on the first issue, it is unnecessary to make a finding on the second issue of whether the order will result in exceptional hardship.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 180 days.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: GENEVIÈVE BLAIS, Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DESANTIS
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: April 12, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on April 12, 2010, by teleconference to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	the Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2004 Oldsmobile AGX (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	March 22, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on April 12, 2010 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

The Respondent submitted a set of certified copies of documents. The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUES

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows. The Applicant was affirmed before giving testimony.

The Applicant was self-represented. She has a two year old child and lives with her boyfriend.

In support of the first ground of appeal, due diligence, she testified that the suspended driver driving the vehicle at the time of the impoundment is a friend of her boyfriend. She has known him for approximately one year. He spends time with her boyfriend at their home using the “gym” equipment in the basement.

On March 6, 2010, the day the vehicle was impounded, the Applicant testified that around 9 or 10 a.m., when she was still kind of sleeping, her boyfriend and the suspended driver took the vehicle to go out for breakfast. Later in the day she received a telephone call from a third party who related that her boyfriend and the suspended driver were allegedly drinking and driving. She immediately went out to look for her vehicle and found it impounded by the police.

The Applicant stated that she believed the suspended driver had a valid driver’s licence. She had in the past few months seen him drive another vehicle. On cross-examination the Applicant confirmed that on the day of the vehicle impoundment she did not see the suspended driver’s licence. She had seen the licence a few days prior to the day of the vehicle impoundment when the suspended driver was visiting with her boyfriend. They were joking about the quality of the photos on licences and she looked at the licence at that time. She noticed that it was issued by another province. She acknowledged that she did not check the expiry date. She testified that she was unaware of the suspended driver’s driving record and had no knowledge of the procedure to contact the Ministry to verify the validity of a licence.

On the second ground of her appeal, exceptional hardship, the Applicant stated she requires the vehicle as transportation to and from work and to drop off her son for babysitting at her mother’s home. Although she had two part time jobs, she can now only handle one job and barely makes ends meet. She has relied on her elderly grandparents to drive her around but feels it is an imposition as they repeatedly drive many other members of her family.

The Applicant works approximately twenty hours a week in a restaurant. She works mostly during the day. She lives approximately four kilometres, about a five minute drive, from her work location, her grandparents and her mother’s home. She cannot afford the cost of a taxi and has at times walked the thirty minute distance. She emphasized that the loss of use of the vehicle has been very stressful and she does not have the financial means to pay the impoundment fees.

In further evidence on cross examination, the Applicant confirmed that she has a second vehicle registered in her name. She stated she is unable to use this vehicle as her boyfriend requires it for employment some distance away and is absent several days in the week. When he is at home he has provided assistance. She has relied on her grandparents to assist her with transportation to work, to get groceries and to bring her son to her mother who provides babysitting while she is at work.

Since the date of the vehicle impoundment, the Applicant has been able to attend her part time job at the restaurant. Of the 120 hours of work scheduled, she has been absent approximately 17 hours. She acknowledged that she more or less abandoned her second part time job in retail sales as she was finding the loss of use of a vehicle very stressful. She anticipates working more hours at the restaurant during the summer months. She is not in arrears with her rent.

The Applicant has no contact with the suspended driver. She does not anticipate that she will be able to recover from the suspended driver any costs incurred as she believes he is not in the community and has many fines to pay. She has not discussed financial assistance for the impoundment fees with her boyfriend. She confirmed that she and her son are in good health and she has access to 911 emergency services.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4 Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 16, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3) (c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3) (c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3) (d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded was not then under suspension. Subsection 50.2(3) (c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence and the onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was performed, as required under this section of the Act.

The evidence established that the Applicant has known the suspended driver for approximately one year as a friend of her boyfriend. She did not see the suspended driver's licence on the day of the vehicle impoundment. She acknowledged that as it was early in the morning, she cannot recall whether her boyfriend or the suspended driver took the keys to the vehicle. When she saw the suspended driver's licence three or four days earlier she remembers that it was issued by another province, but could not confirm that she looked at it closely to determine the expiry date. She assumed the licence was valid as she had previously seen the suspended driver drive other vehicles. At no time did the suspended driver tell the Applicant or her boyfriend that he was a suspended driver.

The evidence before the Tribunal indicates that the Applicant did not take any measures to ensure that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence, but merely assumed that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence and "trusted that he would be telling the truth". The suspended driver abused the Applicant's trust.

Due diligence requires that the Applicant and/or an agent take further steps to verify the validity of the driver's licence. This can be accomplished by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of a licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca. The applicant testified she was unaware of this service.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by subsection 50.2(3) (c) of the Act.

The second issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Tribunal should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 is very specific. It provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment. The Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

The Tribunal considered the written submissions and heard testimony from the Applicant that:

1. her grandparents drive her to her part time employment;

2. her place of employment, her grandparent's and mother's home are a short distance away from her residence, basically five minutes by car and one half hour by foot;

3. while driving her to work, the grandparents stop at her mother's home to leave her young son for babysitting;

4. when her grandparents are not available to drive, she walks the short distance to work and to her mother's home;

5. she has another vehicle registered in her name; however, her boyfriend generally uses this vehicle for work some distance away. Although the boyfriend is absent from the home several days a week due to his work location, he assists her whenever possible;

6. her grandparents drive her to purchase groceries or drop off groceries at her house;

7. she is not able to afford the cost of taxis;

8. she has missed 17 of 120 scheduled hours of work at her part time job since the day the vehicle was impounded. She may be able to increase her hours of work during the summer season;

9. she voluntarily left a second part time job due to the stressful situation resulting from the loss of use of the vehicle;

10. she is up to date with her monthly rent;

11. there are no health issues with herself or her child;

12. her community is 911accessible in the event of an emergency;

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded motor vehicle.

Evidence was heard that the Applicant has and may continue to experience financial difficulties as a result of the loss of the vehicle. Regrettably, by her own will, she abandoned a second part time employment. The Tribunal heard no evidence that the Applicant's financial situation is more strained than prior to the vehicle's impoundment. Since the conditions in subsection 22(3) have not been met, the Tribunal, although understanding the Applicant's situation, is not permitted to consider this factor in arriving at its decision.

Evidence was heard that the Applicant believes that the suspended driver will not be able to financially help pay the costs associated with the vehicle impoundment. She believes he is not in the community and has many fines to pay. The Applicant was unable to tell the Tribunal whether or not her boyfriend who was a party in the day's activities that led to the vehicle impoundment will pay some of the costs. The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, as is stated in section 55.1(21) of the Highway Traffic Act:

> "The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

Overall, the evidence presented by the Applicant was not sufficient to prove that she is indeed suffering any immediate, significant and lasting impact because of the impoundment. Her primary concerns relate to the costs of the impoundment and her ability to conveniently travel between home and work. The Tribunal cannot consider the costs of the impoundment or convenience in determining exceptional hardship.

The Tribunal finds that although the Applicant has been inconvenienced by the loss of the vehicle, she has not established exceptional hardship, as defined in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: SIMON DANN
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 29, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on March 29, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	joint ownership between the Applicant and her husband (now deceased)
Motor Vehicle:	2003 GMC, SIE (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	March 10, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the Vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on March 29, 2010 and proceeded as a teleconference hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant is a widow living by herself in a rural area at various distances from local communities and centres. Ottawa and the Town of Renfrew were said to involve driving times of two (2) hours and just over one (1) hour (respectively) from her home. The Applicant's husband, who is registered as the joint owner of the impounded vehicle, passed away about the time of the impoundment. He had been hospitalized in Pembrooke.

The Applicant said she has no finances to afford any alternative vehicle; she is in poor health due to (3) heart attacks, bad back and high blood pressure. She cannot get to her doctor whose office is 70km away. Her house is wood heated and she does not have the strength to get the wood for her heating stove; nor is she able to get groceries.

The Applicant has one neighbour but there is no relationship with that neighbour due to past disagreements. She said she has family members but each has their own significant problems which, as she described, include substance abuse, financial and emotional difficulties. She said that there are no helping hands within the extended family group. She did say there was one son who comes from Ottawa and visits her on the weekend but is unable to do anything other than bring “milk” as he has his own financial issues and she has no financial ability to compensate him.

The Applicant did not dispute the fact the driver of the vehicle, at the time it was stopped, was driving without a license and she acknowledged he had been imprisoned due to the charge of driving without a license. She said the driver was her step-son and he had been living with her, helping her around the house but she didn’t know when he would be released. She said the only reason he was driving the vehicle was to help her out at the time her husband was dying. She said she had been unable to get back to the hospital at the end when her husband died because the vehicle had been impounded and she had no alternate means of transportation.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar’s evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving while under a lifetime suspension under the Criminal Code of Canada;

The Respondent’s Agent reviewed the facts contained in the Respondent’s Materials and Submissions documents (comprised of 7 tabs and recorded as Exhibit #3).

The Applicant did not dispute any of the evidence submitted by the Respondent. The Respondent's Agent also questioned the Applicant on the alternatives available to her and she testified that:

- there were several vehicles registered to the Applicant's late husband's name and two were validly plated;
- the Applicant also had several vehicles registered in her name but none with valid plates;
- of the two vehicles, registered to her late husband and validly plated, one was not driven at all due to mechanical problems while the other was only used on her lot to ferry wood to the house and take garbage to the dump, about 12 km away, on backwood roads – she confirmed she would not drive the vehicle on highway roads;
- the Applicant did not have a valid driver's permit as her permit had expired in February 2009 – she replied she had forgotten to renew the driver's license as she was completely focused on her ailing husband but pointed out that the impounded vehicle was validly licensed and insured.

The Respondent's Agent also questioned the Applicant about the help which her son in Ottawa was able to provide on his weekend visits with her; as well as help from another son-in-law who could take her for any groceries at a local store about 12km away. She replied the son-in-law from Ottawa was unable to afford to help and, of the other one, she could not expect to ask for anything else but to take her for her license renewal.

In summary, the Respondent's Agent argued the Applicant did have alternatives through the son from Ottawa as well as the son-in-law living in the local area. There had been some alternative vehicles for the Applicant, arguing that if the vehicle could be driven 12 km to the dump, she could have used it for her grocery and banking transportation needs. In addition, he pointed out that as she did not have a valid driver's license, she did not have anyone available to drive the vehicle which had been impounded.

The Respondent's Agent asked that the order to impound be confirmed.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of exceptional hardship under subsection 50.2 (3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment has caused hardship as described in subsection 22(2) and in order for her appeal to be considered under subsection 22(2), the Applicant must demonstrate that all of subsection 22(3) has been met.

Furthermore, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

The Applicant testified she has been housebound since the vehicle was impounded. Since her home is in a rural part of eastern Ontario, she has been unable to get to doctor's appointments, or travel out for groceries. Her husband also died at the time of the impoundment and she stated she was unable to be at the hospital, 70 km away when that occurred.

While the Respondent's Agent noted that she has two other validly plated vehicles available the Applicant said that one has mechanical issues and can not be driven and the other is only used on her property and to drive to a local dump – a distance of 12 km on country roads – but it is not in good enough condition to take on the highway to local communities such as Ottawa.

Her testimony confirmed she has no alternative as there is no public transit and she does not have the financial resources to rent a vehicle. She referred to herself as “poor” and is fully dependent on her pension as her sole income.

She spoke of an extended family but described the problems within the family such that she must essentially be self-sufficient. She is unable to provide for her needs as she is not in good health, having had several heart attacks, suffers from a bad back, high blood pressure and was dependent upon the help provided by the step-son who had been driving the impounded vehicle and was imprisoned at the time of the impoundment. She did not know when he would be released.

The Respondent’s Agent pointed out that the Applicant’s driving license had expired in February 2009 and that she would be unable to drive the vehicle. Though the Applicant advised she would renew her license, the Tribunal takes the position that the Applicant’s driving license, and whether it is current or expired, is an issue in itself and is for another authority to deal with and therefore, this issue does not influence the matter before it.

In summary, the principal facts influencing the decision to accept the Applicant’s claim of hardship flow from consideration:

(1) her personal health and physical condition

(2) her rural home location and the inability to travel the distances to healthcare, grocery facilities, post office and banking;

(3) the complete absence of public transportation;

(4) her lack of financial capability to obtain a rental vehicle during the impound period;

(5) the description of her family relations and inability to obtain interim help, support, and care;

(6) the financial condition of her Ottawa-based son who was unable to afford to provide her with groceries or for her to be able to reimburse him in the event he did bring her supplies.

After hearing all of the Applicant’s evidence and having heard no compelling evidence to the contrary from the Respondent’s Agent to show the Applicant had options meet her travel and healthcare needs, it is this Tribunal’s conclusion the impoundment did create conditions of exceptional hardship and potential threats to her health and safety.

On the evidence the impoundment has had an immediate impact on her. Considering her financial and health conditions, and that there was no evidence presented to the contrary, the Tribunal is satisfied that the impact of the impoundment of the vehicle demonstrates a lasting and significant impact on her life which would be permanent.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: DAVID CARYLL,
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT, Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: March 31, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on March 31, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

INTRODUCTION

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	1988 GMC, GM4 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	March 3, 2010

The Applicant appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before the Tribunal on March 31, 2010 and as there were no preliminary matters, the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

BACKGROUND FACTS

The following facts are not in dispute.

The Applicant is disabled, unable to work, and lives alone.

On February 4, 2010, the police arrested the Applicant for driving his vehicle while his driver's licence was suspended for a conviction under the Criminal Code. The police impounded the vehicle.

The Applicant was held in custody for 18 days waiting for a bail hearing.

On February 23, 2010, the Applicant pleaded guilty to the charge of driving a vehicle, on February 4, 2010, while prohibited from doing so under the Criminal Code.

On March 21, 2010, the vehicle was released from the impound facility.

EVIDENCE CONCERNING EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP

The Applicant testified that the police had made a mistake in arresting him for driving his vehicle to his mother's residence and back again on February 4, 2010. He said that a friend, rather than himself, was the driver of the vehicle. He was a passenger.

He testified that he made the February 23, 2010 plea bargain merely to escape the terrible conditions he endured during his 18 days in jail.

The Applicant testified that during the impoundment period, when not incarcerated, his mother or a friend drove him to various appointments and errands, with their own vehicles. He had to cancel some appointments, most of which were rescheduled.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

(a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Before addressing the issue of exceptional hardship, the Tribunal will deal with the issue of the alleged police error in charging the Applicant on February 4, 2010.

It is a matter of law that the Tribunal has no authority to overturn a criminal conviction. Therefore, the Applicant's conviction of February 23, 2010, and relevant details, must be considered by the Tribunal as fact.

As the Applicant appealed on the basis of exceptional hardship, the central issue for the Tribunal to determine is whether;

"… no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available."

The Applicant's testimony confirmed that he had alternative transportation to the impounded vehicle, during the impoundment period, namely, that his mother and a friend drove him to his various appointments.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not met the onus under subsection 22 (3)(a) of the Regulation, namely, "to demonstrate that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available".

Therefore, the Applicant has failed to satisfy the statutory requirements for this appeal.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: TERRANCE SWEENEY, Vice-Chair

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: May 12, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

An electronic hearing was held on May 12, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 2002 Chev Trailblazer (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: April 19, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

Evidence for the Applicant

The Applicant and her mother testified.

The Applicant is the mother of five children and divorced. Her licence is currently under suspension, and a friend offered to drive her car. They were pulled over by a police officer who found that the Applicant's friend had been banned from driving for life. The vehicle was impounded.

The Applicant testified that she needs the vehicle to get her children to school. She also testified that her mother has a medical condition, and that she needs to drive her mother to medical appointments.

The Applicant and her former husband have joint custody of three of the Applicant's children. Those children have been living with their father while the vehicle has been impounded and he drives the children to school.

The Applicant's two teenage daughters live with her and walk to school.

The Applicant has not been able to get to work without the vehicle and is currently on stress leave, receiving employment insurance benefits. She will get her job back when the impoundment ends.

The Applicant confirmed that she has no medical appointments scheduled. She also confirmed that there are bus services available in the city where she lives, and pointed out that she cannot afford taxis.
On cross-examination, the Applicant stated that doing without the vehicle had not been easy and stated that she had to contribute gas money in order to get friends to drive her places.

The Applicant's mother testified that doing without the vehicle has been problematic. The Applicant's grandmother has been driving the Applicant's mother to places when needed, but she has now gone out of town. The Applicant's mother conceded that as she has gotten along alright so far during the impoundment, she supposed that she could survive the next few days of the impoundment.

Evidence for the Registrar

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code") outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver is suspended for life.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

(a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;

(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or

(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
>
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
>
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
>
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of "exceptional hardship" under subsection 50.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific. It provides the Tribunal with the criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment.

The Applicant has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in subsection 22(2). The Applicant must demonstrate that all of subsection 22(3) has been met. Moreover, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered in respect of an alternative vehicle. The Applicant must show that there is no alternative to the impounded vehicle.

The Applicant conceded that:

1. Three of her children are currently living with their father who drives them to school.

2. Her two teenage daughters walk to school.

3. She has no medical appointments scheduled.

4. She will get her job back when the impoundment ends.

5. There are bus services and taxis available in the city where she lives.

6. She has been able to get rides from friends when she has helped pay for gas.

The mother of the Applicant agreed that she could get along alright for the few days remaining of the impoundment period.
There are alternatives available to the impounded vehicle. The Tribunal, therefore, cannot consider subsection 22(2)(b) respecting financial or economic loss to any person, including the Applicant.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, CHAP.H.8 AS AMENDED (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: AGENT, Representing the Applicant

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: May 6, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 6, 2010 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND:

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: The "Applicant".
Motor Vehicle: FRHT/MCV
Date of Appeal: April 16, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that: (i) the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and (ii) the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

The Registrar submitted a set of original certified documents, copies of which had previously been filed with the Tribunal.

The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both Parties.

ISSUE:

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit # 2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS:

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Agent's submissions and sworn testimony follow.

The Applicant is a seasonal asphalt paving and landscaping contractor which operates during the months of April to October. During the winter months, it occasionally plows snow and salts pavements.

It has been in business since 1996 and currently employs six persons. It also owns six fleet vehicles consisting of two personal vehicles, two dump trucks, two pick-up trucks plus three trailers.

The Applicant's season started during the week of April 12, 2010. On Friday of that same week, the driver of the dump truck was stopped by police for not wearing a seatbelt. The police determined he was a suspended driver and the vehicle was impounded.

The Agent received a call from police from roadside advising of what had transpired. The Agent arrived on scene and was fortunately granted the opportunity to unload the asphalt before the vehicle was taken to the impound facility.

Evidence for the Registrar

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code") outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Dangerous Driving under the Criminal Code pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 16th, 2010.

LAW:

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

(a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS:

Appeal – Exceptional Hardship

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Tribunal should set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the impounded vehicle will suffer exceptional hardship.

The Applicant's Agent has appealed on the ground of "exceptional hardship" under subsection 55.2 (3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. In order for the Applicant's appeal to be considered under subsection 22(2), it must have demonstrated that all of subsection 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

As mentioned above, the Applicant owns two dump trucks. One dump truck is utilized each April at the start of the season. The second is put on the road in May once it is licenced and insured. Since the vehicle's impoundment, the second dump truck was licenced and insured and put on the road sooner than anticipated.

When the vehicle was initially impounded, "machinery, trailer and broken asphalt" was located on a residential road. Other companies and colleagues within the same industry, were able to help the Applicant load, move and relocate the materials off the road. The Agent advised the Tribunal that these companies and colleagues are not able to assist the Applicant on a go-forward basis because their schedules do not permit it as their season is also limited.

The Agent testified that the Applicant has lost a number of corporate contracts worth more than $150,000. It has had to return a number of deposits to residents since it could not meet its obligations. "Some residents will wait, but some won't." Without the second dump truck, the employees are only working on two sites per day. They are currently working on concrete sidewalks as well as small landscaping jobs, curbs and patios. It had to "scale down" and be more selective of the work undertaken due to the vehicle's impoundment. The Applicant also works with larger contractors who call on the Applicant to esthetically complete the project.

By the Agent's own admission, it "has been quite difficult" during the impoundment period. The employees have had to reduce their hours and payroll, at times, cannot be met.

The Applicant cannot afford to broker a vehicle during the interim since it may not have the same electrical hook-up with hitch, but has been able to have materials delivered to the jobs sites.

Since there are alternatives to the impounded motor vehicle, the Tribunal cannot consider the losses under clause 22(2).

The Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver, as is stated in subsection 55.1(21) of the HTA:

> "The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order".

The Tribunal sincerely sympathizes with the Agent, but the Applicant's employees are continuing to work; they are utilizing the second dump truck and should the need arise, materials can be delivered and colleagues could lend a quick helping hand as they have done in the past.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has alternatives to the impounded vehicle and has managed with some difficult to meet some contractual obligations and keep its workers employed.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in subsections 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 340, the Tribunal finds that the Agent on behalf of the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

Appeal – Due Diligence

The second issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence, in attempting to determine that the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension. Subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence and the onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was performed, as required under this section of the Act.

The suspended driver provided the Applicant with a licence abstract last April 2009. Since he was a returning employee, an abstract had not been requested. All the new employees have provided the Applicant with current abstracts. The Agent advised the Tribunal that he "relied on the insurance company" to advise him of any licencing issues arising from his employees. The Applicant trusted the suspended driver as he thought he had no reason not to. The evidence before the Tribunal was that the Applicant did not take any measures to ensure that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence, but merely assumed that the suspended driver had a valid driver's licence.

The Respondent indicated to the Agent that a six month timeframe is an adequate and responsible amount of time for an employer to check the validity of a employee's driver's licence, should the employee have care and control of a company vehicle.

Due diligence requires that the Agent on behalf of the Applicant, take further steps to verify the validity of the driver's licence and it has now done so. This can be accomplished by contacting the Ontario Ministry of Transportation with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of a licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca.

The Tribunal therefore has no evidence that the Agent exercised due diligence as required by subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

DECISION:

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, CHAP.H.8 AS AMENDED (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO,
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: ROBERT BONADEO, Agent, Representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: May 7, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on May 7, 2010, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to Section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, Chap. H.8 amended ("HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO SET ASIDE the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to Section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter H.8, as amended (the "Act").

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	The Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2005, Ford, SRW (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	April 15, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended and the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

The Applicant's Agent advised the Tribunal that it is abandoning the exceptional hardship ground of appeal as provided in subsection 50.2(3) (d) of the Act.

A Supervisor employed by the Applicant, who was responsible for the crew involved with the impounded vehicle, appeared as a witness for the Applicant.

The Respondent submitted a set of original certified documents, copies of which had previously been filed with the Tribunal.

The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Respondent were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit # 2) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's submissions as well as its Agent's and witness's affirmed testimonies follow.

The Applicant has been in business since 1952 and deals with the construction and forming of basements and basement walls for residential and low-rise buildings in Toronto and surrounding areas.

The Applicant employs from 100 to 130 employees. There is a high turnover rate in this industry as well as the construction industry as a whole. It has a fleet of about 51 vehicles. Approximately 35 employees are authorized to drive these vehicles.

The majority of the employees are divided into crews consisting of about five employees. These crews are created amongst the employees. Depending on the contractual obligations, there are between 12 to 25 crews at any given time.

The level of command within the crew starts with the foreman (also known as the crew leader who is usually the driver of a company vehicle and who is also responsible for the crew and task at hand), first man, second man and two labourers. These are all unionized employees. Each foreman takes orders from the supervisor. In rare instances, a second driver on a crew is authorized by the supervisor to have care and control of the company vehicle once an MTO abstract is obtained and it is determined the potential second driver has a valid driver's licence.

On the day the vehicle was impounded, three crews were returning home after having worked out of town all week. The suspended driver at the time the vehicle was impounded had volunteered to drive the crew home after the foreman had voiced that he was tired. The suspended driver was one of the crew's labourers. The suspended driver was not one of the Applicant's authorized drivers. The vehicle was stopped on the shoulder of the highway when police pulled up behind the vehicle. The suspended driver was in the driver's seat and could not produce a driver's licence. The police determined he was a disqualified driver and the vehicle was impounded. The foreman phoned the supervisor to advise him of what had transpired and the foreman was subsequently disciplined.

The supervisor and two other crews had already returned home earlier in the day and could not assist in transporting this crew home. One of the crew member's wives drove to their location and transported everyone home.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of ability impaired under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until October 21, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The “owner” for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> “Owner” means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar’s order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3) (c).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3) (c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of “due diligence” as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, “due diligence” in Black’s Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Subsection 50.2(3) (c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence and the onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was performed, which is required under this section of the Act.

The supervisor for each crew is responsible for, but not limited to:

1. hiring and firing the employees that report to him;
2. ensuring the safety of his crew by reinforcing the policies in place and code of conduct within the scope of the company as well as what is outlined in their union contract;
3. assigning vehicles to foremen;
4. obtaining driver's abstracts from the employees who are authorized to drive fleet vehicles or provide a copy of the driver's licence to the Applicant's insurance company who immediately provides the Applicant with the driver's abstract; and
5. obtaining a copy of the worker's safety certificate which is required by the Ministry of Labour.

At no point in time is the foreman authorized to change the rules without the supervisor's direct instructions.

This crew's foreman was hired in January 2010. A driver's abstract was obtained when he was hired and immediately after this incident. In both instances, his abstract was clear and the foreman had a valid driver's licence.

At the hiring stage, the foreman is verbally instructed by the supervisor regarding his duties and responsibilities involving the work to be undertaken, the safety of his crew and rules concerning the fleet vehicle. Both the foreman and supervisor are responsible for communicating to their crews that no one other than the foreman is permitted to drive the fleet vehicle unless the supervisor personally authorizes it. The Applicant does not have a clearly written and signed agreement in place for all drivers of fleet vehicles regarding the care and control of such vehicles.

Testimony was heard that abstracts are obtained within a six-month interval for those employees who are authorized to drive a fleet vehicle and these abstracts are cross-checked with the Applicant's insurance company. According to the Respondent, this is an adequate timeframe and reasonable amount of time for an employer to check the validity of an employee's driver's licence.

Since the suspended driver was not authorized or directed by the Applicant to drive a fleet vehicle and no authority was given to him by the Applicant or its supervisor, neither the Applicant nor its supervisor could have known if the suspended driver had care and control of the vehicle.

Due diligence in this instance was performed by the Applicant. It is not reasonable to require a corporate vehicle owner to check the driver's licences of persons it specifically has barred from driving its vehicles. There is a system in place to prevent unauthorized drivers, which an employee, without authority, overruled.

On the evidence before it, the Tribunal concludes that the Applicant acted in a reasonable and responsible manner in exercising due diligence.

The Tribunal therefore sets aside the Registrar's decision.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chap. H8 as amended, the Tribunal sets aside the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

DATE OF HEARING: May 6, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

An electronic hearing was held on May 6, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 2007, Mazda, B40 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: April 14, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

The Registrar submitted a set of original certified documents, copies of which had previously been filed with the Tribunal.

The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both Parties.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Registrar.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's submissions and affirmed testimony follow.

The Applicant is a gentleman in his early 60s who is also the owner and suspended driver at the time the vehicle was impounded. He is married and has two adult sons who do not live within the same community as the Applicant. The Applicant and his wife live in an area which is 30 kilometres away from a large town or city. They are surrounded by cottages whose owners return on weekends.

They are both receiving disability benefits and both work part-time to supplement their incomes. The Applicant is self-employed and restores furniture and his wife is a secret shopper.

The Applicant's mother-in-law is 87-years-old and lives on her own in a city two hours away. His wife's sister lives a short distance from their mother and in the event of an emergency, the Applicant's sister-in-law or 911 would be able to respond and attend to their mother quicker than the Applicant's wife who lives quite a distance away. The two sisters look after their mother "by being available 24 hours a day if needed" to assist her with shopping and attending appointments.

On the day the vehicle was impounded the Applicant's sister-in-law picked up the Applicant's wife and drove to their mother's home two hours away. The Applicant was scheduled to attend a regularly scheduled physiotherapy appointment, needed due to years of extreme back pain. Knowing of his suspension and not having any other means of attending his appointment, the Applicant chose to drive himself to the appointment. The Applicant was stopped by police since the vehicle's licence plate sticker had expired. The police determined he was a suspended driver and the vehicle was impounded.

Evidence for the Registrar

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code") outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Dangerous Driving under the Criminal Code pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until November 24, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

(a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;

(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or

(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.

Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
>
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
>
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
>
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
>
> (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
>
> (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
>
> (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of "exceptional hardship" under subsection 50.2 (3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if, in fact, "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment.

The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in hardship as described in subsection 22(2). In order for his appeal to be considered under subsection 22(2), the Applicant must have demonstrated that all of subsection 22(3) has been met. Furthermore, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

The Applicant was convicted of a Criminal Code offence and is suspended until November 24, 2010. The Applicant advised the Tribunal that he is aware of his suspension and his wife is the sole driver of the impounded vehicle. Prior to their vehicle being impounded, she would drive him to get furniture restoration estimates, groceries, medication and all appointments. Since they live a fair distance from a neighbouring community, they have had to rely on the Applicant's sister-in-law who delivers food every two weeks. They do not have potable water and therefore must boil their water before use and consumption.

The Applicant has had two doctor's appointments by way of teleconference. Through the kindness of a friend, the Applicant's wife was driven to her doctor's appointment 30 kilometers away. The Applicant's wife was also able to take a taxi to one of her appointments. Since the vehicle's impoundment, the Applicant has missed approximately 12 physiotherapy appointments. Their medications are temporarily being delivered to the Applicant's home at an added cost. In the event of an emergency, he lives in a community, which is 911 accessible.

Although they have had a difficult time during this impoundment period, the Applicant and his wife have been “getting by”. Sadly, they have not been able to rely on their sons nor their neighbours.

The Applicant’s licence is under suspension due to a conviction of an offence under the Criminal Code of Canada. The Applicant was the driver of the impounded vehicle and by his own admission; he wrongfully had care and control of the vehicle knowing that he was a disqualified driver. Therefore, as a disqualified driver he should not be driving under any circumstances. The return of a vehicle to a suspended driver would jeopardize the safety of everyone.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in subsections 22(3) and (4) of the Regulation, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant’s motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

5977-MVIA-EXTENSION OF TIME

IN THE MATTER of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, Section 50.2;

AND IN THE MATTER of a motion by the Applicant seeking an extension of the time requirements to commence an appeal from an impoundment order of the Registrar under Section 55.1(3) of the Highway Traffic Act;

TRIBUNAL: ELIZABETH SPROULE, Vice-chair

APPEARANCES: Spouse of Applicant, Agent, representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Counsel representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF MOTION: May 18, 2010 by teleconference

ORDER

A motion was heard by teleconference on May 18, 2010 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's request for an extension of time to appeal the impoundment order of the Registrar affecting the Applicant's motor vehicle. The motion is brought pursuant to Section 20(7) of Regulation 574, R.R.O., 1990 made under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990. c. H.8 ("HTA").

PRELIMINARY MATTERS

At the outset of the proceedings it was noted that the Applicant did not have a copy of the Registrar's submissions. A copy of the submissions had been sent by courier to the Applicant's Agent, who is also the Applicant's spouse and resides with the Applicant. The Applicant's Agent acknowledged receiving a notice of the courier delivery; however, neither the Agent nor the Applicant chose to respond to the notice.

After reviewing the Registrar's submissions, it was apparent that the Applicant was previously in possession of some of the disclosed documents. Those that were not already in the possession of the Applicant included the vehicle registration record for the impounded vehicle and the driving record of the driver at the time of the impoundment ('the driver'). As neither the registration of the vehicle nor the status of the driver's licence is in issue, the Agent confirmed that the Applicant was willing to proceed.

Evidence

The Applicant's Agent provided oral testimony in support of the motion. As indicated, she is the spouse of the Applicant and has primary use of the impounded vehicle, notwithstanding that it is registered in the Applicant's name. The Registrar called no witnesses.

FACTS

The Applicant left the country at the beginning of January 2010. The impounded vehicle, along with its keys, was left with a daughter for the winter in order that it might be repaired. The daughter had a valid driver's licence; however, her son (the Applicant's grandson) who was living in the same residence did not have a valid driver's licence. The suspended status of the driver's licence was known to the Applicant at the time the car was left in the daughter's care. According to the witness, it was taken for granted that the driver would know that he was not supposed to drive the car and therefore no instructions on that point were given to either the driver or his mother. The witness testified that the driver was not given permission to drive the vehicle. At the time of the impoundment the daughter who had care and control of the vehicle went away, leaving the vehicle at her residence where the driver continued to reside. According to the witness, the daughter did not give the driver permission to take the vehicle. It was acknowledged that the driver had used the keys to access the vehicle.

On February 2, 2010, the car was impounded. The Applicant was not made aware of the impoundment until the Order to Impound was received by mail. As the Applicant was residing out of the country at the time, the notice had to be forwarded through the postal system and was not received until mid to late February. According to the witness, it took a number of attempts to get the appropriate appeal information and forms off the internet at a public library. The witness was not able to provide specific dates as to when the Applicant was aware of the appeal process, except that it was at a point that the notice of appeal could not be filed within the prescribed time.

Ultimately the Notice of Appeal was signed and dated March 13, 2010 and received by the Tribunal on March 24, 2010.

The witness does not believe the car should have been impounded as she believes, based on what she had been told, that the driver was inside a store when approached by police and not in the car. She does, however, concede that the driver had probably driven the vehicle to the store.

Documents submitted by the Registrar indicated that the Release Order issued March 8, 2010, which was sent to the same address as the Order to Impound, was received, signed and returned by fax within 8 days.

The Applicant has identified two grounds of appeal. Both are permitted grounds for appeal set out in Section 50.2(3) of the Highway Traffic Act. The first ground of appeal is that due diligence was exercised to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended. The second ground is that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship. The Applicant did not indicate that a ground for appeal was that the vehicle was stolen, although it was indicated on the Notice of Appeal that the driver did not have permission.

THE LAW

Section 20(7) of Regulation 574 states:

> 20. (7) Despite subsection (1), the Board may extend the time for commencing an appeal if the owner establishes that the owner, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness, or other cause beyond the owner's control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

> 7. Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,
> (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
> (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

DECISION and ORDER

The Tribunal has been granted the authority to extend the time for commencing an appeal under 50.2(3) of the HTA by the two provisions set out above. The wording of Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act is somewhat broader than that of Section 20(7) of Regulation 574. Section 7 provides that the Tribunal need only be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for the extension. The issue before the Tribunal is therefore whether there are reasonable grounds for granting the Applicant an extension of time to file his appeal.

What constitutes "reasonable grounds" was addressed in the case of Miller Manufacturing and Development Co. v. Alden, [1979] O.J. No.3109. The Ontario Court of Appeal concluded that there are a number of considerations that may be viewed as important; the emphasis given them will vary with the circumstances. These considerations include the intention to appeal, the length of delay, the prejudice to the other party, and the merits of the appeal.

In the Ontario Court of Appeal decision Frey v. MacDonald, [1989] O.J. No. 236, Mr. Justice Blair added to the considerations whether there was an intention to appeal, and a reasonable explanation for the failure to observe the time limits, and a broader rule that extensions should be granted if the justice of the case requires it.

The criteria set out in the *Mille*r and Frey decisions were again articulated in the *Re: Billodea*u, [1994] O.C.R.A.T.D. No. 90, as a four part test. To succeed in a motion to extend the time for filing an appeal an applicant must show:

1. That there was an intention to appeal within the time limit.
2. That the reason the notice of appeal was not served on time is such that the Applicant should be excused for not doing so, and allowed to do it later if he/she did so as soon as the true situation was apprehended.
3. That there is not some overriding prejudice to the Respondent in the allowing of the application.
4. That there is a substantial point in issue; and the Applicant has some reasonable chance of success.

The Applicant's appeal was filed approximately 35 days late. The Tribunal accepts the Applicant's evidence that the Notice of Impoundment was not received until after the time limit for appeal. It is unfortunate that the individual who was left with the care and control of the car did not inform the Applicant of the turn of events. The Tribunal finds that the explanations of the delay of several weeks further to complete the appropriate Notice of Appeal were not satisfactory. It would appear that once the Applicant knew the time limit to appeal had passed, the Applicant did not feel a sense of urgency to file the Appeal and therefore the late filing was simply due to a lack of diligence rather than a result of accident, illness, or something beyond the Applicant's control.

However, even if the Tribunal found that the Applicant's delay was excusable, and that there would be no prejudice to the Registrar, there must be a substantial point in issue and the Applicant must have some reasonable chance of success in order to justify the granting of an extension of time. In this case the Tribunal finds that the Applicant does not have any reasonable chance of success, as there is no indication that there are any facts to support either of the permitted grounds of appeal set out in the Applicant's Notice of Appeal. The impounded car was left at a residence where the Applicant knew a suspended driver was residing and the Applicant gave no verbal directions or made any other efforts to ensure that the driver was not allowed access to the vehicle. Clearly there was no due diligence. The Applicant was not intending to use the car during the impoundment period and therefore the impoundment caused no hardship whatsoever. The Applicant was able to pay to have the car released, although it was indicated that this was not done with ease. Finally, although it was argued that the driver did not have permission to drive, there was no evidence that the car had been stolen and this was not identified at any point as a ground of appeal. In the absence of evidence supporting any of the permitted grounds of appeal the Applicant does not have any reasonable chance to succeed and therefore justice does not require that the Applicant be granted an extension of time to file an appeal in this instance.

Based on above reasons the Applicant's motion for the extension of time is denied.

APPEL EN VERTU DE L'ARTICLE 50.2 DU CODE DE LA ROUTE, L.R.O. 1990, c. H.8 À PARTIR D'UNE ORDONNANCE DU REGISTRATEUR DES VÉHICULES AUTOMOBILES EN VERTU DE L'ARTICLE 55.1(3) DE LA LOI.

POUR APPELER D'UNE ORDONNANCE DE MISE EN FOURRIÈRE D'UN VÉHICULE AUTOMOBILE ÉMISE PAR LE REGISTRATEUR DES VÉHICULES AUTOMOBILES

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, D. M.,
Membre, Président de l'audience

COMPARUTION: REQUÉRANTE, représentée par sa fille

SONIA DE SANTIS, Représentante du Registrateur des véhicules automobiles

STEPHANIE ROY,
Interprète du Registrateur

DATE DE L'AUDIENCE: 28 juin 2010 par téléconférence

RAISONS DE LA DÉCISION

Une cause a été entendue par téléconférence le 28 juin 2010 à Toronto, Ontario pour examiner la demande d'appel de la Requérante en vertu de l'article 50.2 du Code de la route, L.R.O., 1990, c. H.8 (la «Loi»).

LE TRIBUNAL A DÉCIDÉ DE CONFIRMER l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière délivrée par le Registrateur en vertu de l'article 55.1(3) du CODE DE LA ROUTE. Par conséquent, le véhicule automobile de la Requérante demeurera dans les installations de la fourrière pendant 45 jours.

ANTÉCÉDENTS:

Le Registrateur des véhicules automobiles (le «Registrateur»), a délivré une ordonnance de mise en fourrière d'un véhicule automobile pendant 45 jours, en vertu de l'article 55.1 de la Loi. Le propriétaire a interjeté appel de cette ordonnance. Voici les renseignements concernant le propriétaire, le véhicule automobile et la date de l'appel:

Propriétaire:	la Requérante
Véhicule automobile:	Pontiac 2003 (le «véhicule»)
Date de l'appel:	31 mai, 2010

La Requérante a interjeté appel de cette ordonnance de mise en fourrière auprès du Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis (le «Tribunal»), accompagné des documents d'appui et des frais de 100,00$ exigés payables au Ministère des finances.

Le propriétaire en appelle de la décision en raison du fait que la perte du véhicule engendrera un préjudice excessif tel que déterminé dans les articles 50.2(3)(d) et (d) de la Loi.

Cette affaire a été entendue par ce Tribunal le 28 juin 2010 par téléphone (conférence électronique).

Les documents présentés ont été acceptés avec le consentement des deux parties.

POINT:

Le Tribunal devrait-il casser l'ordonnance du Registrateur pour la mise en fourrière du véhicule en se basant sur le fait que l'ordonnance causera un préjudice excessif?

FAITS:

Le Tribunal a entendu les témoignages présentés en faveur de la Requérante et du Défendeur.

Témoignage de la Requérante

Voici un résumé du témoignage de la Requérante.

La Requérante a décidée de ne pas faire des soumissions écrites, plutôt elle a fourni une lettre autorisant sa fille à agir comme son Agent et témoin.

Durant l'audience, la Requérante n'a pas donné de témoignage.

L'Agent de la Requérante a prêté serment avant le commencent de l'audience comme témoin. À ce titre elle a attesté que bien que le véhicule est registrée sous le nom de sa mère, elle est le conducteur unique. Le jour en question elle a permis quelqu'un elle a rencontrée récemment pour conduire son véhicule ignorant qu'il n'avait pas de permis de conduire valide.

En contre-interrogatoire, l'agent de la Requérante a confirmé qu'elle a besoin du véhicule pour le travail et pour ses enfants. La perte a été pas seulement un dérangement, mais a aussi provoqué sa perte de profits comme elle doit travailler. Le témoin (agent) qui est l'utilisateur du véhicule avait été aidé par sa mère, grand-père et ami, pourtant elle a maintenant dû prendre le transport alternant qui est coûteux et a manqué un total de cinq jours de travail qu'elle ne peut pas se permettre. Elle pourrait être en mesure de récupérer le temps perdu, mais devra mettre ses enfants dans le soin de jour. Il n'y a aucun transport en commun dans sa région.

L'agent (témoin) est en bonne santé mais son fils avait des problèmes d'oreille et vomissait, et a dû être pris à l'hôpital par sa mère (la requérante).

Il y a d'autres véhicules enregistrés à l'adresse de la Requérante, mais aucun des véhicules n'est disponible pour l'agent (témoin).

Témoignage du Registrateur

Les documents présentés par le Registrateur et admis dans l'enregistrement quant au consentement du Requérante étaient les suivants:

1. Copie des enregistrements du Ministère des transports indiquant, entre autre chose, que le véhicule automobile confisqué ci-inclus est enregistré au nom du Requérante à titre de propriétaire;

2. Copie de l'Avis au Registrateur indiquant, entre autre chose, que le véhicule au moment où il était en détention était conduit par la personne reconnue coupable de l'infraction en vertu du Code criminel du Canada mis en lumière au point 4 ci-dessous;

3. Copie de l'Ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule, délivrée par le Registrateur des véhicules automobiles;

4. Copie des enregistrements du Ministère des Transports indiquant qu'au moment de la mise en fourrière, le conducteur avait été reconnu coupable de défaut de fourni un échantillon d'haleine ou de sang en vertu du Code Criminel du Canada conformément auquel le permis de conduire du conducteur était suspendu jusqu'au 25 juillet 2010.

À l'audience, la Représentante du Registrateur n'a soumis aucune preuve verbale, choisissant de s'en tenir aux informations fournie.

LOI:

L'article 55.1 de la Loi indique que le Registrateur peut rendre une ordonnance de mise en fourrière d'un véhicule automobile et l'article 50.2 indique le droit du propriétaire du véhicule automobile d'en appeler auprès du Tribunal. Sur l'appel, le Tribunal peut, en vertu du paragraphe 50.2(5) de la Loi, confirmer ou casser l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière, et la décision du Tribunal est définitive, en vertu du paragraphe 50.2(8).

Le paragraphe 55.1(3) de la Loi déclare que:

> (3) Sur réception de l'avis prévu au paragraphe (2), le registrateur peut, sans tenir d'audience, rendre une ordonnance de restitution du véhicule automobile ou une ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile que conduisait le conducteur dont le permis de conduire fait l'objet d'une suspension pendant les périodes suivantes:
> 1. Pendant 45 jours, si une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article n'a pas été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.
> 2. Pendant 90 jours, si une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article a été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.
> 3. Pendant 180 jours, si plus d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article a été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.

O. Règlement de l'Ontario 631/98, dont il est mention ci-dessus, est de deux ans.

Le droit du propriétaire d'appeler devant ce Tribunal lorsque le véhicule automobile du propriétaire a été mis en fourrière est indiqué dans l'article 50.2 de la Loi, paragraphe 50.2(1):

> (1) Le propriétaire d'un véhicule automobile qui fait l'objet d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue à l'article 55.1 peut, sur acquittement des droits prescrits, interjeter appel de l'ordonnance devant le Tribunal.

Aux termes du paragraphe 50.2(2) de la Loi, les parties pour un appel sont le propriétaire et le Registrateur. Le « propriétaire » pour les besoins de cet article est défini dans le paragraphe 50.2(11), tel que modifié le 6 décembre 2000. «Propriétaire» est défini comme suit:

> «propriétaire» S'entend de chaque personne dont le nom figure sur le certificat d'enregistrement du véhicule. Cependant, au paragraphe (4), «propriétaire» s'entend de la personne dont le nom figure sur la partie relative à la plaque d'un certificat d'immatriculation dans les cas où le certificat d'enregistrement se compose d'une partie relative au véhicule et d'une partie-plaque et où le nom de différentes personnes figure sur chaque partie.

Le propriétaire peut interjeter appel de l'ordonnance du Registrateur pour seulement quatre motifs spécifiques énumérés dans le paragraphe 50.2(3):

> (3) Les seuls motifs pour lesquels un propriétaire peut interjeter appel en vertu du paragraphe (1) et les seuls motifs pour lesquels le Tribunal peut annuler l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière sont les suivants,
> (a) soit le véhicule automobile qui fait l'objet de l'ordonnance était un véhicule volé au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;
> (b) soit le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;
> (c) soit le propriétaire du véhicule automobile a fait preuve d'une diligence raisonnable pour tenter de déterminer que le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;
> (d) soit l'ordonnance causera un préjudice excessif.

Le Requérante interjette appel ici sur les bases des articles 50.2(3)(d).

Quant à un appel en vertu de l'article 50.2(3)(d) alléguant que la mise en fourrière constitue un préjudice excessif, le Shorter Oxford Dictionary définit «préjudice excessif» comme suit:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

De plus, lorsque le propriétaire interjette appel sur le motif de préjudice excessif, le paragraphe 50.2(4) indique:

> (4) L'alinéa (3) d) ne s'applique pas si une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue à l'article 55.1 a déjà été rendue à l'égard de tout véhicule automobile appartenant alors au même propriétaire.

En outre, le paragraphe 55.1(28) de la Loi indique que le lieutenant-gouverneur en conseil peut effectuer des règlements et indique spécifiquement dans l'alinéa (h) du paragraphe 55.1(28), > (h) prescrire les critères dont le Tribunal doit tenir compte et ceux dont il ne doit pas tenir compte lorsqu'il détermine, dans le cadre d'un appel prévu à l'article 50.2, si un préjudice excessif résultera d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière qui est rendue en vertu du présent article.

La section 22 du Règlement 574 R.R.O. 1990, donne les critères à considérer et les critères qui ne doivent pas être considérés par le Tribunal pour déterminer si le préjudice excessif résultera d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière en vertu de l'article 55.1 comme suit:

> 22 (1) Lors de la détermination si un préjudice excessif résultera d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière en vertu de l'article 55.1 de la Loi, le [Tribunal] devrait considérer si aucune alternative à la mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile est disponible et, s'il n'y a pas d'alternative disponible, que la mise en fourrière résulterait en,
> (a) une menace pour la santé ou la sécurité de toute personne qui est d'ordinaire transportée par le véhicule automobile; ou
> (b) une menace pour la santé et la sécurité de la population ou de l'environnement ou de propriété d'une communauté pour lequel le véhicule automobile est d'ordinaire utilisé.
> (2) Lors de la détermination si un préjudice excessif résultera d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière en vertu de l'article 55.1 de la Loi, le [Tribunal] ne devrait pas, en vertu du paragraphe (3), considérer si la mise en fourrière résultera en,
> (a) un inconvénient pour tout individu;
> (b) une perte financière ou économique pour tout individu;
> (c) une perte d'emploi ou de possibilité d'emploi pour tout individu; ou
> (d) une perte d'enseignement ou de formation ou d'une possibilité d'enseignement ou de formation pour tout individu.
> (3) Le [Tribunal] pourrait considérer les critères établis dans les clauses (2) (b), (c) et (d) si le propriétaire démontre,
> (a) qu'aucune alternative à la mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile est disponible;
> (b) que la perte sera immédiate, significative et durera;
> (c) que la conséquence de la perte se portera sur une personne d'ordinaire transportée par le véhicule automobile; et

(d) que l'impact de la perte,

(i) se portera sur une personne autre que la personne qui conduit alors que son permis de conduire était suspendu en raison de l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile, et

(ii) ne résultera pas en une perte par le conducteur suspendu défini dans la clause (2)(b), (c) ou (d).

(4) Afin de démontrer qu'il n'y avait pas d'alternative disponible à la mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile en vertu du paragraphe (1) ou de la clause (3) (a), le propriétaire doit démontrer que toute option raisonnable a été considérée et vérifiée qui pourrait éliminer ou réduire adéquatement toute menace ou perte pour la personne, incluant l'utilisation d'un autre véhicule pour remplacer le véhicule automobile mis en fourrière et prendre des mesures pour se débrouiller sans le véhicule automobile mis en fourrière ou un remplacement pendant la période de mise en fourrière.

APPLICATION DE LA LOI AUX FAITS:

Bien que tous les éléments de preuve aient été pris en compte, ce qui précède est un résumé des délibérations. Les éléments produits en preuve et qui n'avaient pas de rapport direct avec la question n'ont pas été transcrits.

Dans le sommaire des déclarations finale, l'Agent de la Requérante a supplié son propre besoin pour le véhicule en réitérant l'évidence offerte. La fille de la Requérante est une mère simple qui a besoin du véhicule pour travailler.

L'Agent du Registrateur a montré que l'agent de la Requérante a des modes alternants de transport, comme la famille et les amis l'ont aidée à arriver autour. Quand le fils de l'agent de la Requérante était malade, la Requérante l'a pris à l'hôpital. L'agent de la Requérante a perdu un total de cinq jours de travail et a perdu de l'argent qui n'est pas considéré significatif et durable. Dans sa déclaration finale l'Agent du Registrateur a demandée que la décision du Registrateur soit soutenu.

La Requérante a déposé un appel en invoquant pour motifs le fait que en vertu de l'article 50.2(3)d) du Code de la route, «…la perte du véhicule causera un préjudice excessif…». Il appartient à la Requérante de prouver le bien-fondé de l'appel.

Pour évaluer la perte financière, le Tribunal doit s'en tenir aux termes de l'article 22(2) du Règlement de l'Ontario 574, R.R.O. 1990, qui prévoit:

> «Pour déterminer si un préjudice excessif résultera d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière en vertu de l'article 55(1) de la Loi, le [Tribunal], sous réserve de la sous-section (3), ne tiendra pas compte des conséquences éventuelles suivantes:

(a) un désagrément subi par qui que ce soit;
(b) une perte financière ou économique subie par qui que ce soit;
(c) la perte d'un emploi ou d'une possibilité d'emploi subie par qui que ce soit;
(d) la perte d'un enseignement ou d'une formation, ou d'une possibilité d'enseignement ou de formation, subie par qui que ce soit.

Les limitations imposées au Tribunal par l'article 22(2), sont supprimées par l'article 22(3), qui établit que le Tribunal:

> «…peut tenir compte des critères définis dans les sections (2) b), c) et d) si le propriétaire peut prouver que:
> (a) il n'existe pas d'alternative à la mise en fourrière du véhicule…»

La question est de savoir si la Requérante peut disposer un autre mode de transport.

Le Tribunal n'a aucune évidence de la Requérante. L'évidence a été présentée par la fille (agent) de la Requérante qu'elle est la seule personne utilisant le véhicule et qui a subi les conséquences de la perte.

Bien qu'inhabituel, le Tribunal, a considéré l'intention implicite de la Requérante et a accepté l'évidence. Pourtant, dans la considération de l'état critique du témoin (agent) le Tribunal a constaté qu'il y a des modes alternants de transport à sa disposition. En fait, un ami a offert de lui fournir une voiture si elle paie l'assurance.

Le Tribunal a également examiné l'article 22(3)b), qui permet au Tribunal de prendre en compte les pertes qui sont:

> «(b) immédiates, significatives et durables…»

Aucune évidence n'a été donnée à la perte de revenu subi par le Requérante. La fille de la Requérante a vraiment manqué le temps du travail, mais aucune déclaration de revenu et de frais n'a été présentée, le Tribunal n'a aucune évidence documentée qu'à la mesure de l'épreuve financière provoquée par la mise en fourrière.

Comme n'importe quelles pertes que la Requérante peut avoir soutenues n'ont pas été prouvées être significative ou durable, le Tribunal ne peut pas constater qu'il y a un préjudice excessif comme défini conformément au Règlement.

Pour évaluer la perte financière, le Tribunal doit s'en tenir aux termes de l'article 22(2) du Règlement de l'Ontario 574, qui prévoit:

> (d) que l'impact de la perte,

(i) se portera sur une personne autre que la personne qui conduit alors que son permis de conduire était suspendu en raison de l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile, et

(ii) ne résultera pas en une perte par le conducteur suspendu défini dans la clause (2)(b), (c) ou (d).

La Requérante n'était pas le chauffeur du véhicule au moment de la mise en fourrière. Bien que l'agent soit la personne affectée, étant donné qu'il n'y a aucune évidence que n'importe quelles pertes soutenues sont immédiates, significatives et durable, le Tribunal ne peut pas constater qu'il y a l'épreuve un préjudice excessif comme défini conformément au Règlement.

La Requérante n'a pas établi, ni présenté de preuve indiquant qu'elle avait subi une perte significative et durable.

Après avoir examiné les preuves présentées, le Tribunal reconnaît que la Requérante a subi des désagréments à la suite de la perte du véhicule, mais qu'elle n'a pas apporté la preuve d'un préjudice excessif justifiant l'appel aux termes de l'article 50.2(3) de la Loi.

DÉCISION:

Après considération de la preuve, en vertu de l'autorité conférée dans le Tribunal en vertu de l'article 50.2(5) du Code de la route, L.R.O. 1990, c. H8, le Tribunal confirme l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile de la Requérante, telle que délivrée par le Registrateur des véhicules automobiles, et le véhicule demeurera dans la fourrière pendant 45 jours.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8 FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D.
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 22, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on June 22, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 1998 RBT (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: June 02, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3) (d) of the Act.

All documents were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of the appeal was entered as Exhibit #2. In a typewritten note received by the Tribunal June 02, 2010 the Applicant pleads for the return of the motor vehicle as he is fearful that the impoundment will adversely affect his new business as well as his health "or the health of a dependant".

During the hearing, the Applicant affirmed that all his comments had been made in the Notice of Appeal and chose not to proffer any further evidence.

In cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed that the motorcycle with the keys is regularly kept in a communal area of a motorcycle shop. On the day in question that the motorcycle was taken without permission by the Applicant's friend's father.

Before owning the motorcycle the Applicant had no means of transportation other than "for the most part" his skateboard, which he has been using since the impoundment.

The Applicant is no longer receiving disability as he started his own business.

There have been no medical appointments missed since the motorcycle was impounded, and 911 service is available in the area.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows:

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were filed as Exhibit # 3 as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Failure to Stop for Police Officer under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

The Registrar did not call any witnesses.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>

of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

O. Reg. 631/98, provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3) (d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3) (d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

(4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

(h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;

(b) financial or economic loss to any person;

(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant opted not to make a closing statement.

The Respondent's Agent pointed out that the Applicant has been able to get around on his skateboard or by asking his friends and family for assistance.

The Applicant is in good health and there is 911 service in the area.

The Respondent's Agent closed by noting that there is no wage loss, as the Applicant is not working, nonetheless the circumstances were pre-existent.

In rebuttal the Applicant pointed out that he was not aware the person found driving his motorcycle was disqualified; nor did he know that the motorcycle had been taken. The Applicant also emphasized that skateboarding is not an adequate means of transportation. He feels like he is the victim in this situation.

The onus is on the Applicant to establish exceptional hardship, as grounds of appeal, as provided in section 50.2(3) (d) of the Act.

In assessing financial loss, the Tribunal is restricted by section 22(2) of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, which provides:

22(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

The constraint imposed on the Tribunal by section 22(2) is lifted by section 22(3), which states that the Tribunal:

may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

> (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

At issue is whether the Applicant has alternative modes of transportation.

Evidence before this Tribunal indicates that, albeit inconvenient, other means of transportation are available to the Applicant. Therefore, the criterion for consideration under section 22(3)(a) is not met.

The Tribunal further reviewed section 22(3)(b) which allows the Tribunal to consider losses provided that:

> (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

The Applicant has suffered no loss of income as he is presently not working. Further, as no statement of income and expenses was introduced, the Tribunal has no documented evidence as to the extent of the financial hardship caused by the impoundment.

As any losses the Applicant may have sustained have not been proven to be significant or lasting, the Tribunal cannot find that there is exceptional hardship as defined under the above-noted Regulation.

Regulation 574 provides that this Tribunal may not consider economic loss unless the owner demonstrates that:

> (d) the impact of the loss,
>
> (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
> ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2) (b), (c) or (d).

The Applicant was not the driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment. Although he is the affected party, given that there is no evidence that any losses sustained are immediate, significant and lasting, the Tribunal cannot find that there is exceptional hardship as defined under the Regulation.

After assessing the evidence presented, the Tribunal finds that although the Applicant may have been inconvenienced by the loss of the vehicle, he has not established exceptional hardship, as defined in section 50.2(3) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H8, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: DAVID B. CARYLL, Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 4, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on June 4, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, in the presence of the Applicant and Russell McKnight, Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 2004 Toyota UXS (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: May 19, 2010

The Applicant appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The following facts are not in dispute.

On Friday, April 30, 2010, the Applicant went to bed at around 10:30 p.m. Sometime following that, the gentleman (the "driver") who lives with the Applicant took her vehicle keys and drove the vehicle.

At approximately 11:50 p.m. the same evening, the police identified the driver of the vehicle as an individual whose driver's licence was suspended for a conviction under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46. The police impounded the vehicle, and arrested the driver.

Evidence for the Applicant

The Applicant testified that the loss of the vehicle was causing her exceptional hardship.

She stated that she has a disability and needs her car to shop, keep appointments, and to pick up her children, who live with their father in another city, for their bi-weekly weekend visits with her.

She testified that she has gone shopping and to appointments by taxi, renting a car, and from time to time, with friends. She does not want to keep doing so because of the cost.

The Applicant was scheduled to have her children on two weekends, since the impoundment, but has missed one of the weekends because of the cost of renting a car.

She testified that she has not missed any doctor's appointments: the next one being after the impoundment period, at the end of June.

The Applicant confirmed that the impoundment will not impose any threat to her health and safety, and further confirmed that there are emergency medical services available to her, if needed.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
>
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;

(b) financial or economic loss to any person;

(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

There is no doubt that the Applicant is inconvenienced by having her vehicle impounded, resulting in some financial or economic loss related to her having to assume the costs from renting a vehicle or using taxis. However, the central issue for the Tribunal to determine is whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available.

The Applicant testified that, during the impoundment period, her source of transportation to shop, attend appointments, and pick up her children was by using taxis, car rentals, and friends. Also, the Applicant has access to 911 emergency medical services.

Under subsection 22(1) of the Regulation, there was no evidence presented to show that the impoundment of the vehicle would result in a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle.

The Tribunal cannot consider, in arriving at its decision, the fact that the loss of the vehicle will cause inconvenience, and financial or economic loss to the Applicant, as described under subsection 22(2)(a) and (b) of the Regulation.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not met the onus under subsection 22(3)(a) of the Regulation, namely, to demonstrate that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available.

Although the Tribunal is sympathetic to the Applicant's situation, the Tribunal's jurisdiction is set out in and limited by the Act. The Applicant has failed to satisfy the statutory requirements in order for this appeal to be successful.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: ANTOINE AOUAD, M.D.
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 14, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

A hearing was held on June 14, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant (the "Applicant")
Motor Vehicle:	2005, Buick, Terraza (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	May 17, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time it was being driven as provided in section 50.2(3)(a) of the Act.

All documents were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant's written submission filed with the Tribunal in support of the appeal was entered as Exhibit # 2. It is the Applicant's position that the vehicle was taken without his permission and therefore he considered it stolen. The Applicant alludes to "erroneous" information filed by the officer as to the best of his knowledge does not have a driver's licence.

At the hearing the Applicant reiterated the comments in his written submissions, describing the events that led to the vehicle being impounded.

The Applicant questioned the length, location and cost of the impoundment, and strenuously objected to his suffering the consequences of the behaviour of a known criminal. The Applicant emphasized that the officer did not know that the vehicle did not belong to the person who was found in the driver's seat. He insisted that the loss of the vehicle caused immense hardship but he did not believe that the hardship clause applied as he does own another vehicle.

In cross-examination, the Applicant confirmed the facts as previously proffered. The Applicant did not advise his friend that he was not to lend the vehicle to anyone else, and his friend has not explained why he allowed a suspended driver to drive.

The Applicant's wife was sworn in as a witness. She testified that both the person to whom the vehicle was lent and the suspended driver have said that they would assist with the cost of the impound.

By way of clarification the Tribunal asked whether the Applicant charged the suspended driver with theft. The Applicant stated that he did not.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Impaired Driving under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until June 12, 2022.

The Registrar did not call any witnesses.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3) (a).

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3) (a) alleging that the vehicle was stolen, the meaning of “stolen” is not provided in The Highway Traffic Act.

The Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., provides the definition of “stolen” as follows:

> Stolen: 1. Obtained by theft. 2. Accomplished or enjoyed by stealth; secret. 3. Of time: obtained by contrivance
> Theft: 1. The action of a thief; the felonious taking away of the personal goods of another; larceny 2. That which is or has been stolen; the proceeds of thieving.

The Criminal Code of Canada (the "Code") R.S.C. 1985, Chap. C-46 provides guidance.

Section 1 of the Code states:

> “steal” means to commit theft…

Section 332(1) of the Code states:

> 322. (1) Every one commits theft who fraudulently and without colour of right takes, or fraudulently and without colour of right converts to his use or the use of another person, anything, whether animate or inanimate, with intent,
> (a) to deprive, temporarily or absolutely, the owner of it, or a person who has a special property or interest in it, of the thing or of his property or interest in it;
> (b) to pledge or deposit it as security;
> (c) to part with it under a condition with respect to its return that the person who parts with it may be unable to perform; or
> (d) to deal with it in such a manner that it cannot be restored in the condition in which it was at the time it was taken or converted.
> (2) A person commits theft when, with intent to steal anything, he moves it or causes it to move or to be moved, or begins to cause it to become movable.
> (3) A taking or conversion of anything may be fraudulent notwithstanding that it is effected without secrecy or attempt at concealment.
> (4) For the purposes of this Act, the question whether anything that is converted is taken for the purpose of conversion, or whether it is, at the time it is converted, in the lawful possession of the person who converts it is not material.
> (5) For the purposes of this section, a person who has a wild living creature in captivity shall be deemed to have a special property or interest in it while it is in captivity and after it has escaped from captivity.

The Divisional Court held in Ontario (Registrar of Motor Vehicles) [2002] O.J. No. 745 that the Tribunal should not limit the meaning of “stolen” only to an intention to take the vehicle permanently. The Court held that the term “stolen” could also apply to an intention to take the vehicle temporarily. The Court reviewed the circumstances of that case and stated:

> "In our opinion a vehicle is 'stolen' in this context when it is taken without the owner's consent and when the perpetrator intends to deprive the owner of it, whether permanently or temporarily."

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

In his summary statement, the Applicant stated that the incident has placed the family in extreme hardship due to familial circumstances.

In her summary statement, the Registrar's Agent maintains that the vehicle was properly impounded.

The Registrar's Agent noted that the suspended driver has not been charged with theft.

In rebuttal the Applicant suggested that there has been exceptional hardship but he chose not to use that option as he does have another vehicle.

It is unfortunate that the Applicant did not appeal under due diligence. The Tribunal sympathizes with the Applicant's indignation and understands the feeling that he does not deserve the consequences of this incident. Nonetheless the onus is on the Applicant to establish the merits of the grounds for appeal.

The gist of the Applicant's evidence is that the vehicle was taken without his knowledge or consent, and was therefore stolen. In order to determine whether the vehicle was stolen at the time of impoundment, the Tribunal must consider the meaning of the word "stolen". As the Highway Traffic Act offers no definition, the Tribunal looked to the definitions referred to above and to Black's Law Dictionary for reference as to what is commonly accepted by the judiciary as constituting theft.

According to Black's Law Dictionary, "stolen' is defined as follows:

> "Acquired or possessed, as a result of some wrongful or dishonest act or taking, whereby a person willfully obtains or retains possession of property which belongs to another, without or beyond any permission given, and with the intent to deprive the owner of the benefit of ownership (or possession) permanently."

The Applicant, in his defense, asserts that permission was never given, yet there is no evidence that the vehicle would not be returned as it was originally lent to a friend of the Applicant.

The Tribunal finds that Applicant has failed to meet the essential criteria as to intent, necessary to deem the vehicle stolen at the time of impoundment.

After assessing the evidence presented, with respect to section 50.2(3)(a), the Tribunal finds that the Applicant's vehicle had not been stolen at the time of impoundment.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: DAVID CARYLL,
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

DATE OF HEARING: May 31, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on May 31, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, in the presence of the Applicant and Sonia De Santis, representative for the Registrar, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

INTRODUCTION

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2005 Chev, VTR (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	May 21, 2010

The Applicant appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before the Tribunal on May 31, 2010 and, as there were no preliminary matters, the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

BACKGROUND FACTS

The following facts are not in dispute.

On Monday, May 3rd, 2010, the Applicant drove her vehicle to work. She lent her vehicle to a friend (the "friend") to conduct some personal matters. Both the Applicant and the friend had valid driver's licences.

Around 2:30 p.m., the same day, the police stopped the vehicle which was being driven by an individual (the "driver") whose driver's licence was suspended for a conviction under the Criminal Code. The police impounded the vehicle.

EVIDENCE CONCERNING EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP

The Applicant testified that she lives approximately one hour drive from her place of employment. She said the loss of the vehicle was causing her exceptional hardship.

Prior to the hearing she had been scheduled to work 28 days during the impoundment period. She missed two of those days of work. She testified that she got to and from work by having friends, relatives and acquaintances drive her. On a couple of occasions she could not get a drive so she hitch hiked or stayed over night in a motel.

She testified there was no regular bus service, and that renting a car was out of the question as she does not have a credit card. She confirmed that there is Emergency Medical Services available where she lives.

She said that if she had to stay in town, her 13 year old son had adult supervision and travels to school, each day, by school bus.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of subsection 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

There is no doubt that the Applicant is inconvenienced by having her vehicle impounded, resulting in associated financial or economic loss related to her missing some days from work.

However, the central issue for the Tribunal to determine is whether;

> "… no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available."

The Applicant testified that her source of transportation to work was from the goodness of friends, relatives and acquaintances. In fact, except for two days, the Applicant has not missed any work.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has an alternative to the impounded vehicle to get to work. As far as medical emergencies she has access to 911 Emergency Medical Services.

Under subsection 22(1), there was no evidence presented to show that the impoundment of the vehicle would result in,

> "a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle."

The Tribunal cannot consider, in arriving at its decision, the fact that the loss of her car will cause the Applicant inconvenience, financial or economic loss as described under subsection 22 (2)(a) and (b) of the Regulation.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not met the onus under subsection 22 (3)(a) of the Regulation, namely, "to demonstrate that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available".

Although the Tribunal is sympathetic to the fact the Applicant lent her vehicle to a friend in good faith, the Tribunal's jurisdiction is set out in and limited by the Statute. The Applicant has failed to satisfy the statutory requirements for this appeal to be successful.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

Licence Appeal Tribunal

Tribunal d'appel en matière de permis

Ontario

6143-MVIA-Exceptional Hardship

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: SIMON DANN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: AGENT, for the Applicant

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent, representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 19, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on July 19, 2010, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: GMC, JIMMY, 1999 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: June 29, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the Vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3) (d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on July 19, 2010, and proceeded as a teleconference hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence is as follows:

The Applicant suffers from back muscle and spinal pain which requires continual medical review and medication to help make his back discomfort bearable. He is unable to walk any distance and requires vehicle transportation to get to work – which is approximately 15 miles for a round trip. While there was no discussion of the lack of transit in his home area, it was stated that there is also no transit route in the area of his work place.

The Applicant does not have any family able to assist him and as there is only one vehicle in the family, being the impounded vehicle, none of the other family members are able to help the Applicant travel to and from work.

The Applicant's Agent confirmed that he has been able to get occasional rides from his employer and co-worker but that is not reliable and a letter from the employer suggests the Applicant's position could be in jeopardy if he is unable to attend work on a regular basis.

The Applicant's family, which is reliant on one vehicle, has been able to get by with the purchase of a hand-pulled wagon to carry groceries home and occasional use of a taxi, though it was referred to as being unaffordable. The Applicant does have access to 911 services and while he has missed doctor's appointments for review of his back condition and medications, the Applicant's Agent confirmed the appointments were able to be rescheduled.

While the Applicant's Notice of Appeal material stated that "financial means is not a consideration", the Applicant's Agent said there was only one vehicle and that both the Applicant's wife and son needed access to the vehicle for business meetings and employment search purposes, respectively.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence is as follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with more than 80 mgs alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until December 15, 2010.

The Respondent's Agent reviewed the facts contained in the Respondent's Materials and Submissions documents. The Applicant did not dispute any of the evidence submitted by the Respondent.

Through the questions submitted by the Respondent's Agent to the Applicant, it was confirmed that the Applicant had:

- Access to 9-1-1 service;
- Missed medical appointments that were rescheduled;
- Was able to complete grocery errands; and
- Had used taxi service though it was considered unaffordable.

Further the Applicant did not dispute that there was no change from conditions existing prior to the vehicle being impounded, i.e., that the Applicant's son was unemployed, that his wife was able to carry on her business and was in the process of obtaining her driver's licence, and that no new threat to anyone's well-being had resulted from the impoundment.

In summary, the Respondent's Agent submitted that the Applicant did have and was able to manage through the impound period without incurring any threat to his health or well-being or to the well-being of anyone else dependent upon access to the vehicle. Therefore, the Respondent's Agent asked that the order to impound be confirmed.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;
(b) financial or economic loss to any person;
(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of exceptional hardship under subsection 50.2 (3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574, is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment has caused hardship as described in subsection 22(2) and, in order for the appeal to be considered under subsection 22(2), the Applicant must demonstrate that all of subsection 22(3) has been met.

Furthermore, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

While the Applicant's evidence and testimony confirmed the family had been able to get through the impound period already passed, albeit with some stated difficulties, there was no evidence to indicate the remaining 13 days of the impound period would be any different.

Specifically, the evidence was clear that the Applicant knew he should not have taken the vehicle and should have relied on his son, who was in the home at the time the Applicant took the vehicle. In addition, the Applicant and his family have been able to obtain their groceries and he has managed to continue working, whether at his employer's shop or on a construction or installation site.

It was also clear the Applicant has access to emergency services (i.e., 911 service) and taxis, despite the cost. In summary, the evidence showed that while there were no family or neighborhood friends to help the family with transportation needs, there was also no compelling evidence to indicate a condition of hardship upon the family, in accordance with the hardship criteria detailed in subsections 22 (2) and (3).

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: MARY ANN SPENCER
Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

RUSSELL MCKNIGHT,
Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: July 19, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

An electronic hearing was held on July 19, 2010 at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	the Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	2004 Pontiac Sunfire (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	June 25, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

The hearing in this matter was originally scheduled to take place on July 14, 2010, however, neither the Applicant nor an authorized representative appeared. The Tribunal issued an Order and Notice of Intent to Dismiss. The Applicant did contact the Tribunal later on July 14, 2010, and provided written reasons explaining why he failed to attend the hearing. The Tribunal accepted those reasons and rescheduled the hearing. The matter then came before this Tribunal on July 19, 2010 and proceeded as an electronic hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence follows.

The Applicant testified that he requires his vehicle for health reasons. He has a serious medical condition and attends doctors' appointments an estimated average of three times per week.

The Applicant, a suspended driver, was operating the vehicle when it was impounded. He stated that he had received some distressing medical news and that as a result of his medical condition has had some issues with stress and with managing alcohol in more recent years. He is attending a program to assist him with these issues.

The Applicant has two residences: one an apartment in a major city and another in a small municipality a considerable distance from the city. He sees general practitioners in both places but his more specialized medical appointments are in the city.

Because the Applicant's driver's licence is suspended, the Applicant's partner normally drives the Applicant's vehicle to take the Applicant from the smaller municipality to his city appointments. The partner also drives the Applicant when the Applicant resides in the city. The Applicant's partner, however, is scheduled for surgery in late July and following this surgery will be unable to operate a vehicle during the approximate two week recuperation period.

The Applicant testified that his parents drove him and his partner to the city almost immediately after the impoundment of his vehicle to allow him to file his Notice of Appeal. He has been residing in his city apartment since filing the Appeal on June 25, 2010 and intends to stay at this location until the end of his partner's recuperation period. Some, but not all, of his medical practitioners are located within a few blocks of his residence.

The Applicant stated that because of his health, he is unable to negotiate public transit. Further, because he lives on a fixed disability pension, he is unable to afford the cost of taxis or a rental vehicle. On cross-examination, when asked if he could not redirect the money he would normally have used to pay for the operation of the vehicle towards the cost of taxis, the Applicant testified that he has found those funds useful for other living expenses. The Applicant stated that he has missed no appointments since the impoundment of his vehicle but has rescheduled some. For those he was able to attend, he was able to get assistance from a friend and he has taken taxis occasionally. He further testified that a family member will be moving in with him and his partner to assist them during his partner's post-surgical recuperation period.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner.

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving while impaired under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until June 3, 2013.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;

(b) financial or economic loss to any person;

(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the loss of the Applicant's vehicle will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant in his written reasons accompanying his Notice of Appeal stated "The continued impoundment of my car is a threat to my health".

Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific. It provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment. The Tribunal must first consider whether the Applicant has an alternative to the motor vehicle and if, no alternative is available, can then consider whether the impoundment will result in a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle.

The Applicant testified that he has a serious medical condition. Because he is a suspended driver, he relies on his partner to operate his vehicle to transport him to various medical appointments. He testified that he has two residences and medical appointments in both municipalities. Within a few days of the impoundment of the vehicle, the Applicant relocated to his city residence where he intends to stay until his partner has recuperated from scheduled surgery. The partner will be unable to drive during this recuperation period.

The Applicant's parents drove him to the city in order to file his Notice of Appeal and to relocate to his city residence. The Applicant testified that he is unable to negotiate public transportation because of his medical condition and cannot afford to either rent a vehicle or take taxis because he lives on a fixed income. To date, during the period of the impoundment, he has relied on some help from friends and has taken taxis occasionally. He has missed none of his estimated three medical appointments per week but has rescheduled some. He testified that the medical appointments are, with only a few exceptions, located within a few blocks of his residence. The Applicant acknowledged that he has some funds available since he is not operating the vehicle but stated he is using them for other expenses. He also acknowledged that during his partner's recuperation period he would be required to make other arrangements since his partner would be unable to drive. The Applicant lives in an area served by 911.

The evidence indicates that the Applicant does have alternatives available to the motor vehicle and that he has used some of them since the impoundment of his vehicle. His parents and friends have assisted him and he has taken taxis. The evidence therefore does not establish exceptional hardship as set out in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: SIMON DANN
Presiding member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent, representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: June 30, 2010 Teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on June 30, 2010, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	Toyota Corolla (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal:	June 10, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on June 30, 2010 and proceeded as a teleconference hearing.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit # 1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Respondent.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence is as follows.

The Applicant is currently in the latter part of maternity leave from her job in the health care/home care field. Before going on maternity leave, she had two full time jobs to "manage expenses". Her husband lost his full time employment, in the same field, in June 2009, and then lost his license in January 2010, which has restricted his ability to obtain full-time work as he continues with part-time placements where he can go with transit and or bicycle.

The Applicant lives in a suburban area some distance away from a major urban centre. She is the mother of 3 children aged 16 and 4 years as well as an 8 month old. The oldest was referred to as being able to assist her with baby-sitting the younger children based on how that would fit around her own working hours. The 4 year old just finished the school year and does not have a day care place, while the 8 month old child does but it is approximately 18 kilometres away and the Applicant has to get him there for 7:30 A.M. The Applicant said she had to take the placement now in order to have it for the fall.

The Applicant stated her family's income level is "below the poverty line" and that they are on the "verge of losing our home". The Applicant's husband, whose license was under suspension, was driving her vehicle at the time of the impoundment. She said he has a vehicle as well but it is parked in the garage at home and she expects it will be repossessed as the payments are two months behind. She is not insured on the vehicle as the cost was unaffordable based on her husband's driving record and suspension. She is insured on her vehicle with a different insurance company. She added they are already in "collections with other debts" and her credit record would be in the way of any transfer of the vehicle her husband has into her name.

The Applicant acknowledged that while she missed one medical appointment for her 8 month old she has managed to reschedule it, and even on the day of the hearing, she said she had to take a taxi home in order to be on time for the conference call. She said the taxi cost her $32.00 which meant she would have to forego something else.

The Applicant said she has no finances to afford a rental vehicle and no friends in the area and no family relations in Canada to help her out. She said she intends to go back to work full time in September but is reliant on having a vehicle as she also does home visits and cannot rely on transit. If she cannot find a day care spot for her 4 year old she will have to take night shift work. However, there is no night transit in her suburb and without a vehicle she will not be able to take that employment, which puts into question her ability to provide for her family. She is also intending to continue her education in psychology and wants to start in September. This would help her increase her income. She said she does not have the money to pay the impound fee and could therefore lose her vehicle.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence is as follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving while under a suspension under the Criminal Code of Canada;

The Respondent's Agent reviewed the facts contained in the Respondent's Materials and Submissions documents. The Applicant did not dispute any of the evidence submitted by the Respondent.

Through the questions submitted by the Respondent's Agent to the Applicant, it was specifically confirmed that the Applicant had:

- Access to 9-1-1 service and other services as were needed;
- Not missed any medical appointments, other than having to reschedule one;
- Was able to use public transit to get her 8 month old to day care and attend to daily errands, despite the difficulty of having children in tow and the length of time required to complete travel;
- Used taxi service, though she stated it was unaffordable;
- Not considered using a rental car based on her previous experience with the cost and view that it was not affordable;
- No evidence to show the loss of the vehicle posed a threat to the well-being and/or safety of herself and anyone ordinarily transported by the vehicle.

In summary, the Respondent's Agent submitted that the Applicant did have and was able to manage through the impound period already passed, with only 12 days remaining, without incurring any threat to her health or well-being or to anyone else dependent upon her access to the vehicle. Therefore, the Respondent's Agent asked that the order to impound be confirmed.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed. defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional : Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3) (d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22 (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
>
> (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
> (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
> (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
> (d) the impact of the loss,
> (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant has appealed on the ground of exceptional hardship under subsection 50.2 (3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, is very specific, in that it provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if in fact exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment has caused hardship as described in subsection 22(2) and in order for her appeal to be considered under subsection 22(2), the Applicant must demonstrate that all of the criteria described in subsection 22(3) have been met.

Furthermore, subsection 22(4) of the Regulation provides the criteria for demonstrating that every reasonable option has been considered respecting an alternative vehicle. Subsection 22(3) requires the owner to demonstrate that there is no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle.

The Applicant's evidence and testimony confirmed that she and her family had been able to get through the impound period already passed, albeit with some stated difficulties. She did not say anything to indicate the remaining 12 days of the impound period would be any different or lead to any specific hardship other than the conditions which had been experienced in the 33 days passed.

While the Applicant pointed to the exceptional hardship criteria of subsection 22(2) (b) (c) (d) which would result from her inability to afford the impound fees, the Applicant's testimony and evidence did not show that the resulting impacts of the impoundment would be significant and lasting upon the family, in accordance with the hardship criteria detailed in subsections 22 (2) and (3).

Therefore, in the absence of any clear and compelling evidence from the Applicant to show that the loss of the vehicle would have significant and lasting impacts, or posed a threat to their safety and well-being, this Tribunal is unable to conclude that the impoundment created conditions of exceptional hardship.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

6181-MVIA-DUDI, EXHP- Due Diligence, Exceptional Hardship

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: MARY ANN SPENCER, Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Agent representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 17, 2010 Toronto

REASONS FOR DECISION

An electronic hearing was held on August 17, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar") pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 1998 Honda ULX (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal: July 28, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the vehicle owner exercised due diligence to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended as provided in section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act and that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

The Applicant’s Notice of Appeal filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the grounds of the Applicant’s appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension and/or that the order to impound the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Registrar.

Evidence for the Applicant

The Applicant testified that her vehicle was impounded while she was out of the country for the weekend. Her daughter, the suspended driver, lives in another municipality, but visits her mother’s home occasionally on weekends. On the weekend of the impoundment, the daughter visited the Applicant’s home in her absence, found the vehicle keys and drove the vehicle, resulting in its impoundment. The Applicant became aware of the impoundment when she returned home.

The Applicant stated that she had no knowledge that her daughter’s licence was currently suspended. While she was aware that it had been suspended three years ago, she believed the matter “had been taken care of”. She stated that she hasn’t been concerned about her daughter’s licence since her daughter has not had a vehicle for approximately three years and does not drive her mother’s when she visits. On cross-examination, she stated she has never specifically asked her daughter about the status of her licence since she believed the matter was “over with”. She then added that she would be “more diligent” in the future with her car keys now that she was aware of the suspended licence.

The Applicant runs a catering business from her home and needs her vehicle both to purchase supplies and for deliveries. Since the impoundment, she has had to refuse some orders because of her lack of a vehicle. She stated that this time of year is normally one of her busiest. However, she was able to fulfil some committed orders by finding other means of transportation. On three occasions, she rented a vehicle for the day. On other occasions, either a neighbour assisted by driving her to make deliveries or customers picked up their orders. In the latter case, the Applicant testified that she had to reduce her price since her normal price includes the cost of delivery. As a result, she stated she is losing money. The Applicant does have another vehicle but it is currently not operable. She testified that she does not have the money either to repair this vehicle or to pay the fees to release the impounded vehicle. Her daughter cannot help her since she is currently receiving short term disability.

The Applicant has regular doctor's appointments to monitor health conditions. Since the impoundment, she has cancelled two of these appointments because of the difficulty of reaching them. The area in which she lives is not directly served by public transportation. The Applicant states she would have to walk approximately 15 minutes to catch a bus. The doctor's appointments can be rescheduled but the Applicant has not done so to date. The area in which the Applicant lives is served by 911 emergency services.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code") outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of driving with a blood alcohol level in excess of .08 pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until September 11, 2010.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

> (3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:
>
> 1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.
>
> 3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

> (1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

> "Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d)..

With respect to an appeal under subsection 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary provides the definition of "due diligence" as follows:

> Due: A. adj. 1. That is owing or payable, as a debt. 2. Belonging or falling to by right. 3. That ought to be giving or rendered; merited. 4. Such as ought to be; fitting; proper; rightful. 5. Such as is requisite or necessary; adequate. 6. To be ascribed or attributed; owing to, caused by, in consequence of. 7. Under engagement or contract to be ready or arrive (at a defined time).
> Diligence: 1. The quality of being diligent; industry, assiduity. 2. Speed, dispatch. 3. Careful attention, heedfulness, caution. 4. Law. The attention and care due from a person in a given situation....

Also, "due diligence" in Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 is as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or

(b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.

(2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,

(a) inconvenience to any person;

(b) financial or economic loss to any person;

(c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or

(d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.

(3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The first issue to be considered is whether the Applicant exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, in respect of which the order was made, was not then under suspension. Section 50.2(3)(c) of the Act requires the owner of the vehicle to exercise due diligence. The onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish due diligence was performed

The Applicant testified that she was not aware that her daughter's licence was suspended. While she knew her daughter had lost her licence approximately three years ago, she believed "it had been taken care of". On the weekend of the impoundment, the Applicant was not home but left her car keys there. The Applicant testified that she had never asked her daughter about the status of her licence and stated that she believed she had seen correspondence from the Ministry sending the licence back and that the suspension was "over with". She added that in the future she intended to be diligent about the keys now that she knew the status of her daughter's licence. There is no evidence that the Applicant made any attempt to confirm the status of her daughter's driver's licence. Further, the Applicant testified she was unaware that her daughter would be using her vehicle, making it impossible for her to have made the determination about the licence's status at the time the vehicle was driven.

The Tribunal therefore finds that the evidence is insufficient to indicate that the Applicant exercised due diligence as required by subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

The second issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the loss of the Applicant's vehicle will result in exceptional hardship. Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific. It provides the Tribunal with the criteria the Applicant must meet to determine if exceptional hardship will result from the impoundment.

The Tribunal must first consider whether the Applicant has an alternative to the motor vehicle. The Applicant testified that the use of her vehicle is critical to the catering business she runs from her home. She needs transportation in order to purchase supplies and to make deliveries. Since the impoundment, the Applicant has refused some orders because of transportation difficulties. However, she has honoured commitments previously made by having friends and neighbours drive her; by having customers pick up orders; or, on three occasions, by renting a vehicle. The Applicant's income has gone down as a result during the impoundment period but there is no indication that the impact is significant or will be lasting.

The Applicant testified that she has regular medical appointments for monitoring purposes and has cancelled two of these because of the lack of a vehicle. Both appointments can be rescheduled although the Applicant has not done so to date. The area in which she lives is served by 911 emergency services.

In this case, the Applicant has alternatives available to the impounded vehicle. She has rented a vehicle and has had assistance with rides. She also testified that while the area in which she lives is not directly served by public transportation, bus routes are within a fifteen minute walk of her home.

The evidence indicates that the Applicant has available alternatives to the use of the impounded vehicle and therefore does not establish exceptional hardship as set out in subsection 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

IN THE MATTER of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c.H.8 as amended, Section 50.2;

AND IN THE MATTER of a motion by the Applicant seeking an extension of the time requirements for this Applicant to commence an appeal from an impoundment order of the Registrar under Section 55.1 of the Highway Traffic Act;

TRIBUNAL: MARY ANN SPENCER, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

VICTORIA BEDROSSIAN, Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF MOTION: August 17, 2010 By teleconference

ORDER

A motion was heard by teleconference on August 17, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's request for an extension of time to appeal the impoundment order of the Registrar affecting the Applicant's motor vehicle. The motion is brought pursuant to Section 20(7) of O.Reg. 632/98 amending Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990 made under the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990. c.H.8 amended ("HTA").

The Tribunal denied the extension of time requested by the Applicant to commence an appeal for the reasons set out below.

SUBMISSIONS OF WRITTEN MATERIAL

The Applicant submitted the following documents:

1. Notice of Appeal dated July 9, 2010, received by the Tribunal on July 14, 2010

2. Motion request, e-mail dated June 24, 2007

The Agent for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles submitted the following certified documents:

1. Order to Impound dated June 1, 2010

2. Release Order dated July 4, 2010

THE FACTS

The following is a summary of the Applicant's affirmed testimony.

The Applicant is a single mother who works part-time providing home care and requires the impounded vehicle for that purpose.

The vehicle was impounded on June 2, 2010 when it was being driven by the Applicant's then live-in boyfriend, the suspended driver. The Applicant owns two vehicles. The impounded vehicle was used primarily by the boyfriend until he lost his licence approximately ten days before the impoundment. On the day of the impoundment, the Applicant discovered her vehicle was missing when she came home from work. She was called by her boyfriend who had been held by police and drove to another municipality to pick him up. He told her the vehicle would be impounded in that municipality for approximately 45 days. Through discussions with friends, she learned that the cost of releasing the vehicle could be anywhere from $500 to $3000.

Over the course of the next few weeks, the Applicant attempted to get more information from her boyfriend about how to retrieve the vehicle and the impoundment fee. She testified that because he had been the vehicle's primary driver, she understood he would be taking care of the situation.

The Applicant ended the ten year live-in relationship with her boyfriend on June 30, 2010 because he was drinking and was abusive. On July 2, 2010, she discovered a copy of the Notice to Registrar when she was packing the boyfriend's belongings. She then contacted the towing company named on the Notice and learned where the vehicle was and what the cost of release would be. On July 8, 2010, she called the Ministry of Transportation who directed her to the information about the ability to file an appeal which was contained on the back of the Notice. She also contacted the Tribunal on July 8, 2010 for information on how to file an appeal.

The Applicant signed the Notice of Appeal on July 9, 2010 and it was received by the Tribunal on July 14, 2010. On July 12, 2010, she received a copy of the Ministry of Transportation's Notice to Release dated July 4, 2010. She expressed her concern that the Ministry had in effect only given her four days notice since the vehicle was available for release on July 16, 2010.

The Applicant provided detailed testimony about her financial situation and the loss of household income which occurred when she ended her relationship with her boyfriend. She also testified that her original intent was to borrow funds to pay for the impoundment and then sell the vehicle in order to pay back the loan. However, the vehicle she has been using for work requires extensive repairs and she now needs to keep the impounded vehicle for that purpose. The Applicant's vehicle is still at the impound facility.

On cross-examination, the Applicant testified that she did not receive the copy of the Notice of Impound dated June 1, 2010. She stated that she would have been working days during the time period when it would likely have been delivered. She suggested that her boyfriend, who was at home during the day, may have hidden it from her. She also testified that she did not contact anyone, including police or the Ministry of Transportation, for further information until she found the Notice to Registrar on July 2, 2010, at which time she contacted the towing company. She stated that during the period from June 1, 2010, the date of the impoundment, to June 30, 2010, the date she asked her boyfriend to move out, she believed that the boyfriend was "taking care of it". She stated she was not the person who was responsible for the vehicle's impoundment and that when the boyfriend said it was his responsibility, she believed him, stating "Why would he have a reason to lie to her?"

THE LAW

Section 50.2(3) of the Highway Traffic Act states:

> (3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
>
> (a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;
> (b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;
>
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

Section 20(1) of Regulation 632/98 states:

> 20. (1) An appeal to the Tribunal under section 50.2 of the Act shall be commenced by filing a notice of appeal with the Tribunal within 15 days of the issuance of the order to impound, together with a fee of $100 payable to the Minister of Finance.

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98 states:

> 20. (7) Despite subsection (1), the Tribunal may extend the time for commencing an appeal if the owner establishes that the owner, acting in good faith, was unable through accident, illness, or other cause beyond the owner's control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

Section 7 of the Licence Appeal Tribunal Act, 1999 states:

> 7. Despite any limitation of time fixed by or under any Act for the giving of any notice requiring a hearing by the Tribunal or an appeal from a decision or order of the Tribunal under section 11 or any other Act, if the Tribunal is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for applying for the extension and for granting relief, it may,
> (a) extend the time for giving the notice either before or after the expiration of the limitation of time so limited; and
> (b) give the directions that it considers proper as a result of extending the time.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Section 20(7) of Regulation 632/98, provides the Tribunal with the criteria that the Applicant must meet to satisfy the Tribunal that an extension of the time for commencing an appeal ought to be granted. The Applicant must establish that she, acting in good faith was unable through accident, illness or other cause beyond her control to bring the appeal within the prescribed 15 days.

The Applicant testified that she learned the vehicle was impounded for 45 days and would cost a minimum of $500 to release on June 1, 2010, the day of the impoundment when she was told what happened by her then live-in boyfriend, the suspended driver.

The Applicant testified that she did not file her appeal during the 15 day period specified by regulation because she was unaware she could. She testified that she did ask her boyfriend for details but relied on him when he said he would be responsible for the vehicle. She further testified that she did not see a copy of the Notice of Impound sent June 2, 2010 and suggested that her boyfriend might have taken it. The Applicant asked the boyfriend to move out on June 30th. It was only when packing his belongings on July 2, 2010 that she discovered the Notice to Registrar and called the towing company. The Applicant then did take action, calling both the Ministry of Transportation and the Tribunal on July 8, 2010 and subsequently completing her Notice of Appeal which was received by the Tribunal on July 14, 2010. The Notice was completed on July 9, 2010 more than three weeks after the appeal period had expired.

The Applicant was not unable to file the appeal because of an accident or illness. Rather, the Applicant initially relied on her boyfriend who had indicated he would take responsibility for the release of the vehicle. It was only after the Applicant asked the boyfriend to move out that she attempted to get more details about the impoundment from anyone other than him.

The Applicant clearly attempted to expedite an appeal after the break up of her relationship with the suspended driver. However, she testified that until she asked him to leave on June 30, 2010, she believed it was his responsibility to take care of the situation. While the Applicant did ask some questions initially, she did not pursue the matter with him. At one point, she testified this was because of a history of abuse with the boyfriend. Later, she testified that she had no reason to disbelieve him.

During the period June 1, 2010, the date of the impoundment and June 30, 2010, the date the Applicant ended the relationship with her boyfriend, she could in fact have made inquiries to the police to discover exactly where her vehicle was and what options were available to her. The vehicle is in her name and the Applicant is in fact responsible for it, notwithstanding her stated belief that it was her boyfriend's responsibility since he drove the vehicle while his licence was suspended. It was not beyond the Applicant's control to obtain the information she required in order to file the appeal on time.

There is no evidence before the Tribunal to indicate that the Applicant was unable through accident, illness or cause beyond her control to bring the appeal within the prescribed period.

ORDER

For the reasons set out above, the motion herein of the Applicant requesting an extension of time to appeal, pursuant to section 20(7) of O.Reg. 632/98 amending Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, is denied.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: NIVES MONTANO, Member

APPEARANCES: THE APPLICANT'S WIFE, Agent, representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 6, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

An electronic hearing was held on August 6, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar) pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the Act. As a result the Applicant's motor vehicle will remain detained at the impound facility for 45 days.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: the Applicant
Motor Vehicle: 2001 Pontiac Montana (the "vehicle")

Date of Appeal: July 19, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties.

The Registrar submitted a set of original certified documents, copies of which had previously been filed with the Tribunal. The documents tendered by the Applicant and the Registrar were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

ISSUE

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Registrar.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Agent's, Applicant's and suspended driver's submissions and affirmed testimonies follow.

The Applicant and the Agent are spouses of one another. They have three adult children of which only one lives within the same community. The adult son that lives within the same community also happens to be the suspended driver at the time the vehicle was impounded. The other two adult children live within the province, but many hours drive away.

When the vehicle was impounded, the Applicant and the Agent were in Europe enjoying a 6-week dream vacation, since retiring. They flew back to Canada on July 5, 2010, and stayed with their daughter and family for a few days before returning home on July 10, 2010. Their daughter informed them of their vehicle's impoundment two days after their arrival back from holidays.

The suspended driver was house-sitting the Applicant's home while the Applicant and the Agent were away on holidays. Since the suspended driver had his own vehicle, the thought never crossed the Applicant's mind to deny the suspended driver access to the impounded vehicle. The Applicant and the Agent were not aware he was a suspended driver.

The suspended driver testified that he was aware of his suspension. He had borrowed the Applicant's vehicle, without the Applicant's permission, in order to take his daughters on a road trip. The suspended driver testified that his own vehicle would not have been suitable for the road trip given all the camping necessities, which needed to be packed for the trip. He had returned home from his road trip the night before the vehicle was impounded but did not have a chance to switch the vehicles.

On the night the vehicle was impounded, the suspended driver hit a sign marking a pothole while driving the Applicant's vehicle, which caused a flat tire. Witnesses called the police and the suspended driver was given a 90-day administrative driver's licence suspension since he "blew over" the legal limit of alcohol in his bloodstream. The police also ran the driver's licence of the suspended driver wherein they determined that he was also a disqualified driver. He was arrested and the vehicle was impounded.

Evidence for the Registrar

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46 (the "Criminal Code") outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of the offence of Driving with More than 80 Mgs of Alcohol in Blood under the Criminal Code pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension until December 22, 2012.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:

(3) Upon notification under subsection (2), the Registrar may, without a hearing, issue an order to release the motor vehicle or issue an order to impound the motor vehicle that was being driven by the driver whose driver's licence is under suspension, as follows:

1. For 45 days, if an order to impound under this section has not previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

2. For 90 days, if one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

3. For 180 days, if more than one order to impound under this section has previously been made, within a prescribed period, with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the owner of the vehicle currently being impounded.

Regulation 631/98 provides that the prescribed period, referred to above, is two years.

The right of the owner to appeal to this Tribunal where that owner's motor vehicle has been impounded is provided in section 50.2 of the Act, with subsection 50.2(1) stating:

(1) The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under section 55.1 may, upon paying the prescribed fee, appeal the order to the Tribunal.

By subsection 50.2(2) of the Act, the parties to an appeal are the owner and the Registrar. The "owner" for the purposes of the section is defined in subsection 50.2(11), as amended December 6, 2000. "Owner" is defined as:

"Owner" means each person whose name appears on the certificate of registration for the vehicle but in subsection (4) "owner" means the person whose name appears on the plate portion of a permit in cases where the certificate of registration consists of a vehicle portion and a plate portion and different persons are named on each portion.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order on only four specific grounds set out in subsection 50.2(3):

(3) The only grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and the only grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,

(a) that the motor vehicle that is subject to the order was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made;

(b) that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension;

(c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or

(d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of section 50.2(3)(d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd ed., defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Also, where the owner appeals on the ground of exceptional hardship, subsection 50.2(4) provides:

> (4) Clause (3)(d) does not apply if an order to impound under section 55.1 was previously made with respect to any motor vehicle then owned by the same owner.

Further, subsection 55.1(28) of the Act provides that the Lieutenant Governor in Council may make regulations, and specifically provides in clause (h) of subsection 55.1(28),

> (h) prescribing criteria to be considered, and criteria not to be considered, by the Tribunal in determining in an appeal under section 50.2 whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound that is made under this section.

Section 22 of Regulation 574, R.R.O. 1990, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
>
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
>
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
>
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
>
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,

(a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;

(b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;

(c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and

(d) the impact of the loss,

(i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and

(ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

(4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

The Applicant filed an appeal on the ground of "exceptional hardship" under section 50.2(3)(d). Section 22 of Regulation 574 is very specific. It provides the Tribunal with the criteria that the Applicant must meet to determine if "exceptional hardship" will result from the impoundment. The Applicant in this case has argued that the impoundment will result in exceptional hardship as described by section 22(2).

Subsection 22(1) requires that the Tribunal consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available to determine whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound.

The basis of this appeal was to try to have the impounded vehicle released prior to the Applicant and Agent's four grandchildren coming to visit. The Applicant and Agent used their second vehicle for 21 days prior to their extended families arriving for a visit. The grandchildren and their two sets of parents arrived on July 31, 2010, to spend a week together with their grandparents. There were four vehicles available to the Applicant and Agent when their children and families came to visit (i.e. the Applicant and Agent's second vehicle which seats four persons; plus each of their children's vehicles including the suspended driver's vehicle). The grandchildren will remain for an extended visit, but their parents are scheduled to drive home on August 7, 2010. The impounded vehicle is scheduled to be released from impoundment on August 9, 2010. Therefore, at the time of the hearing, the Applicant and the Agent would have had only two days without the use of their impounded minivan.

Therefore, the Applicant and the Agent have alternative vehicles available to them, other than the impounded vehicle.

The Applicant and the Agent are pensioned and are on a fixed income. Although the Tribunal understands their financial situation, their status pre-existed the vehicle's impoundment. In the alternative, the Applicant may pursue compensation from the suspended driver as is stated in subsection 55.1(21) of the Act:

> The owner of a motor vehicle that is subject to an order to impound under this section may bring an action against the driver of the motor vehicle at the time the order was made to recover any costs or other losses incurred by the owner in connection with the order.

Neither the Applicant nor the Agent have had or missed any medical appointments. Their community is 911 accessible and a hospital is nearby in the event of an emergency. There is no threat to the health and safety of the Applicant, the Agent or their family.

Unfortunately, the Applicant and the Agent do not meet the requirements under this regulation since they have an alternative to the impounded vehicle.

Accordingly, after considering the criteria set out in section 22(3) and (4) of Regulation 574, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not established exceptional hardship as set out in section 50.2(3)(d) of the Act.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Act, the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

DATE DE L'AUDIENCE: 28 juillet 2010 Ottawa

RAISONS DE LA DÉCISION

Une cause a été entendue le 28 juillet 2010 à Ottawa, Ontario pour examiner la demande d'appel de la Requérante en vertu de l'article 50.2 du Code de la route, L.R.O. 1990, c. H.8 (la «Loi»).

LE TRIBUNAL A DÉCIDÉ DE CONFIRMER l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière émis par le Registrateur des véhicules automobiles (le «Registrateur») en vertu de l'article 55.1(3) de la Loi. Par conséquent, le véhicule automobile de la Requérante demeurera dans le lieu d'entreposage de la fourrière pendant 45 jours.

ANTÉCÉDENTS

Le Registrateur a émis une ordonnance de mise en fourrière d'un véhicule automobile pendant 45 jours, en vertu de l'article 55.1 de la Loi. Le propriétaire a interjeté appel de cette ordonnance. Voici les renseignements concernant le propriétaire, le véhicule automobile et la date de l'appel:

Propriétaire:	la Requérante
Véhicule automobile:	Toyota 2003 (le «véhicule»)
Date de l'appel:	le 9 juillet 2010

L'avis d'appel de la Requérante précise que le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue tels que déterminé dans l'article 50.2(3)(b) de la Loi. La Requérante ajoute qu'il n'y avait pas de conducteur dans le véhicule qui était stationné dans sa cour le jour en question.

Les documents présentés ont été acceptés avec le consentement des deux parties.

POINT

Le Tribunal devrait-il casser l'ordonnance du Registrateur pour la mise en fourrière du véhicule en se basant sur le fait que le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue?

FAITS

Le Tribunal a entendu les témoignages présentés à l'appui de la Requérante et de l'Intimé (le «Registrateur»).

Témoignage de la Requérante

Voici un résumé du témoignage à l'appui de la Requérante.

La Requérante témoigne qu'elle est propriétaire du véhicule automobile qui est sujet de la mise en fourrière. La Requérante travaille tous les jours et son travail l'oblige de se rendre à plusieurs endroits. Souvent, elle utilise sa voiture pour le travail, mais à l'occasion elle se fait conduire au travail, avec sa voiture, par un ami qui demeure dans sa maison où elle lui loue une chambre. Cet ami est enregistré sur l'attestation d'assurance-automobile du véhicule. Le jour en question, cet ami la conduit au travail très tôt le matin avec le véhicule. Comme à l'habitude, lors de son retour, il a stationné le véhicule dans le parking et a déposé les clés de la voiture dans la résidence de la Requérante.

La Requérante témoigne qu'un autre ami, le conducteur présumé du véhicule automobile en question, demeure également chez elle où elle lui loue une chambre. Lors de son témoignage, elle insiste que cet ami n'a pas le droit de conduire sa voiture et selon ses connaissances, il ne le fait pas. Elle avoue qu'elle était au travail le jour en question et elle-même n'était pas témoin à l'occasion. Néanmoins, elle accepte les faits fournis par cet ami, le conducteur présumé du véhicule en question.

En contre-interrogatoire, la Requérante atteste qu'elle est au courant que le permis de conduire du conducteur présumé fait objet d'une suspension. Elle insiste que c'est impossible que son ami aurait conduit le véhicule le jour en question. Elle indique que son fils de dix ans lui a confirmé que les clés du véhicule étaient dans la maison lors de l'évènement et que la voiture était stationnée dans le parking à la maison.

La Requérante indique qu'elle est très bouleversée de l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule. Elle est une victime innocente. La perte du véhicule lui cause beaucoup d'ennuies. Elle est une mère monoparentale et elle a dû annuler la programmation d'été pour son fils et un rendez-vous pour sa visite médicale annuelle, car elle n'a pas les moyens de s'y rendre. Elle avère qu'elle est en bonne santé et qu'elle a accès au service 911 d'urgence.

La Requérante témoigne qu'elle doit se fier sur l'aide d'amis pour se rendre au travail car elle ne peut pas toujours se permettre les frais coûteux de taxi. Depuis la saisie du véhicule, elle a perdu cinq jours de travail. Malgré le fait qu'elle a accès aux autobus servant le transport en commun, ce service n'est pas toujours raisonnablement possible car elle doit souvent se rendre à plusieurs endroits de travail dans une journée. Jamais qu'elle aurait constaté que la perte du véhicule et les conséquences d'un tel évènement seraient si sévères et avec autant de tribulations. Elle reçoit sa famille de l'extérieur du pays prochainement, et elle doit avoir son véhicule pendant leur visite.

Le premier témoin, désigné sous le nom témoin A, à l'appui de la Requérante, est le conducteur présumé du véhicule automobile qui est sujet de la mise en fourrière. Il témoigne sous serment que, le jour en question, il était à la maison de la Requérante où il se tient toute la journée. Il s'occupait à faire du travail dans la cour avec un ami, un homme à tout faire, lors que l'agent de police, Constable Stevenson, s'est présenté sur les lieux. Il témoigne être tout surpris de la présence du policier qu'il reconnaît d'une autre rencontre quelques temps passé. Il est étonné lorsque le policier le confronte avec le fait qu'il l'a vu conduire le véhicule de la Requérante et lui fait rappel qu'il est sans permis valide. Le témoin A nie sa culpabilité au policier qu'il conduisait le véhicule ce matin. De plus il se dit étonné que l'agent de police lui délivre une citation à comparaître pour conduire sans permis et qu'il entame le processus de saisir le véhicule et le remorquer à une fourrière. Étant donné que la Requérante n'était pas sur les lieux, il a fourni au policier les coordonnées de la Requérante pour qu'il puisse lui communiquer l'évènement par téléphone. Il déclare au Tribunal qu'il n'était pas le conducteur du véhicule car le véhicule était toujours stationné à la maison de la Requérante.

En contre-interrogatoire, le témoin A avoue qu'il a déjà conduit le véhicule de la Requérante mais seulement dans le passé quand il avait un permis de conduire valide. Il avère qu'il ne s'est pas absenté des lieux de sa demeure durant tout le jour en question.

Le deuxième témoin, désigné sous le nom témoin B, à l'appui de la Requérante, est l'homme à tout faire, un autre ami de la Requérante. Il dit, sous serment, qu'il était à la résidence de la Requérante avec le témoin A du mi-matin à la mi-après-midi le jour en question. Peu de temps après son arrivé ce matin, il confirme voir l'agent de police en conversation avec témoin A, mais déclare de ne pas s'en être mêlé. Il témoigne que, de ses connaissances, le témoin A ne conduit pas la voiture de la Requérante. En effet, c'est lui qui le conduit lorsque témoin A doit se présenter à des rendez-vous.

Témoignage du Registrateur

Les documents présentés par le Registrateur et admis dans l'enregistrement quant au consentement de la Requérante étaient les suivants:

1. Copie des enregistrements du Ministère des transports indiquant, entre autre chose, que le véhicule automobile confisqué ci-inclus est enregistré au nom de la Requérante à titre de propriétaire;

2. Copie de l'Avis au Registrateur indiquant, entre autre chose, que le véhicule au moment où il était en détention était conduit par la personne tandis que son permis de conduire est suspendu à la suite d'une déclaration de culpabilité prononcée en vertu du Code criminel du Canada, L.R. 1985, c. C-46 (le «Code criminel»), ainsi qu'il est fait mention au point 4 ci-dessous;

3. Copie de l'Ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule, émis par le Registrateur;

4. Copie du résumé de recherche du Ministère des Transports indiquant qu'au moment de la mise en fourrière, le conducteur avait été reconnu coupable de conduire avec une alcoolémie supérieure à 0.08 en vertu du Code criminel conformément auquel le permis de conduire du conducteur était suspendu jusqu'au 13 janvier 2013.

À l'audience, le troisième témoin est l'agent de police, Constable Stevenson, à l'appui du Registrateur. Assermenté, le policier atteste qu'il est agent de police avec le Service de police d'Ottawa depuis huit ans et précédemment à Toronto pour treize années. Selon ce témoin, le jour en question, lui et son partenaire travaillaient en état civile dans les environs de la résidence de la Requérante. Il connaissait la résidence à partir d'un évènement antérieure il y à un mois, où il a rencontré le témoin A.

Vers 11h18, le policier voit le véhicule de la Requérante circuler sur la route près de la résidence de la Requérante et stationner dans le parking de cette maison. Il observe derrière le volant de la voiture le témoin A, seul dans le véhicule. Sous peu, le policier confronte le témoin A avec le fait qu'il était chauffeur sans permis valide, d'un véhicule. Il avère que le témoin A était très bouleversé et celui-ci lui prononce qu'il a simplement été se chercher un café, que c'est rare qu'il conduit le véhicule et il plaide avec le policier de ne pas saisir le véhicule, car «il appartient à ma blonde et elle va me tuer».

Le policier témoigne que le témoin A était offusqué que le véhicule serait immédiatement remorqué à une fourrière et entreposé pendant 45 jours.

D'autres recherches de la part du policier Stevenson indique que selon le dossier obtenu du Service de police d'Ottawa, le témoin A s'est présenté en personne, comme requis sous un ordre de la cour, au poste de police d'Ottawa à 10h58 le jour en question. Le poste de police est situé environ huit kilomètres de la résidence de la Requérante.

Compte-tenu des contradictions dans le témoignage, le Tribunal pose quelques questions au témoin A et au témoin B. Le témoin B déclare qu'il n'a pas vu le témoin A dès son arrivé à la maison vers 10h00. Il ne se souvient pas d'avoir conduit le témoin A ce jour au poste de police pour que celui-ci puisse s'y présenter.

Le témoin A, confronté au témoignage du policier Stevenson, indique au Tribunal qu'il s'en souvient maintenant que le jour en question était un mardi. Il modifie son témoignage pour avouer qu'il n'était pas à la résidence de la Requérante toute la journée. En effet, il s'est rendu au poste de police le matin. Il indique de ne pas avoir utilisé l'autobus. Il s'excuse de sa confusion et ajoute qu'il y avait beaucoup de va-et-vient cette journée. Il se trouve perturbé de tout ce qui se passe et insiste que le témoin B a oublié qu'il la conduit au poste de police.

Le Tribunal est de l'avis que les témoignages à l'appui de la Requérante sont fragiles. Leur crédibilité, pour employer un euphémisme, est douteuse. La fiabilité de ces témoignages est questionnable. Les preuves sont faibles et contredites. Le Tribunal trouve que la version des faits de ces témoins est rude à absorber.

LOI

L'article 55.1 de la Loi indique que le Registrateur peut rendre une ordonnance de mise en fourrière d'un véhicule automobile et l'article 50.2 indique le droit du propriétaire du véhicule automobile d'en appeler auprès du Tribunal. Sur l'appel, le Tribunal peut, en vertu du paragraphe 50.2(5) de la Loi, confirmer ou casser l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière, et la décision du Tribunal est définitive, en vertu du paragraphe 50.2(8).

Le paragraphe 55.1(3) de la Loi déclare que:

(3) Sur réception de l'avis prévu au paragraphe (2), le registrateur peut, sans tenir d'audience, rendre une ordonnance de restitution du véhicule automobile ou une ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile que conduisait le conducteur dont le permis de conduire fait l'objet d'une suspension pendant les périodes suivantes:

1. Pendant 45 jours, si une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article n'a pas été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.

2. Pendant 90 jours, si une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article a été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.

3. Pendant 180 jours, si plus d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue au présent article a été rendue antérieurement, au cours d'une période prescrite, à l'égard d'un véhicule automobile appartenant alors au propriétaire du véhicule en voie d'être mis en fourrière.

O. Règlement de l'Ontario 631/98, dont il est mention ci-dessus, est de deux ans.

Le droit du propriétaire d'appeler devant ce Tribunal lorsque le véhicule automobile du propriétaire a été mis en fourrière est indiqué dans l'article 50.2 de la Loi, paragraphe 50.2(1):

(1) Le propriétaire d'un véhicule automobile qui fait l'objet d'une ordonnance de mise en fourrière prévue à l'article 55.1 peut, sur acquittement des droits prescrits, interjeter appel de l'ordonnance devant le Tribunal.

Aux termes du paragraphe 50.2(2) de la Loi, les parties pour un appel sont le propriétaire et le Registrateur. Le «propriétaire» pour les besoins de cet article est défini dans le paragraphe 50.2(11), tel que modifié le 6 décembre 2000. «Propriétaire» est défini comme suit:

«Propriétaire» S'entend de chaque personne dont le nom figure sur le certificat d'enregistrement du véhicule. Cependant, au paragraphe (4), «propriétaire» s'entend de la personne dont le nom figure sur la partie relative à la plaque d'un certificat d'immatriculation dans les cas où le certificat d'enregistrement se compose d'une partie relative au véhicule et d'une partie-plaque et où le nom de différentes personnes figure sur chaque partie.

Le propriétaire peut interjeter appel de l'ordonnance du Registrateur pour seulement quatre motifs spécifiques énumérés dans le paragraphe 50.2(3):

(3) Les seuls motifs pour lesquels un propriétaire peut interjeter appel en vertu du paragraphe (1) et les seuls motifs pour lesquels le Tribunal peut annuler l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière sont les suivants,

(a) soit le véhicule automobile qui fait l'objet de l'ordonnance était un véhicule volé au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;

(b) soit le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;

(c) soit le propriétaire du véhicule automobile a fait preuve d'une diligence raisonnable pour tenter de déterminer que le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue;

(d) soit l'ordonnance causera un préjudice excessif.

Le Requérante interjette appel ici sur les bases d'article 50.2(3)(b).

Quant à un appel en vertu de l'article 50.2(3)(b) alléguant que le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension au moment à l'égard duquel l'ordonnance a été rendue, l'article 55.1(2) de la Loi indique que:

(2) Lorsqu'un agent de police ou un agent chargé d'appliquer les dispositions de la présente loi est convaincu qu'une personne conduisait un véhicule automobile sur une voie publique alors que son permis de conduire fait l'objet d'une suspension prévue à l'article 41, 42 ou 43, même s'il fait l'objet d'une suspension en même temps pour une autre raison, il fait ce qui suit:

a) il en avise ou en fait aviser le registrateur;

b) il retient le véhicule automobile que conduisait la personne dont le permis de conduire fait l'objet d'une suspension jusqu'à ce que le registrateur rende une ordonnance en vertu du paragraphe (3). 1997, chap. 12, art. 8; 2000, chap. 26, annexe O, par. 5 (2).

L'article 41 du la Loi identifie le type d'appels pour lesquels un permis est suspendu dans les sections 41(1) (a) (b) (c) (d) et (e) et 41(7) et 42(1) et 42(5) comme suit:

41. (1) Sous réserve des paragraphes 41.1 (1), (2) et (3), le permis de conduire d'une personne déclarée coupable d'une des infractions suivantes:

a) infraction visée à l'article 220, 221 ou 236 du Code criminel (Canada) commise au moyen d'un véhicule automobile ou d'un tramway au sens de la présente loi, ou d'une motoneige;

b) infraction visée à l'article 249, 249.1, 249.2, 249.3, 249.4 ou 252 du Code criminel (Canada) commise alors qu'elle conduisait un véhicule automobile ou un tramway au sens de la présente loi, ou une motoneige, ou en avait la garde, la charge ou le contrôle;

b.1) infraction visée à l'article 253 ou 255 du Code criminel (Canada) commise alors qu'elle :

(i) conduisait un véhicule automobile ou un tramway au sens de la présente loi, ou une motoneige, ou en avait la garde, la charge ou le contrôle,

(ii) conduisait un bateau au sens de l'article 48 ou en avait la garde ou le contrôle;

c) infraction visée à l'article 254 du Code criminel (Canada) commise relativement :

(i) à la conduite, à la garde, à la charge ou au contrôle d'un véhicule automobile ou d'un tramway au sens de la présente loi, ou d'une motoneige,

(ii) à la conduite, à la garde ou au contrôle d'un bateau au sens de l'article 48;

d) infraction visée à une disposition qui est adoptée par une autre autorité législative, y compris par une municipalité de celle-ci, et qui est désignée dans une entente de réciprocité conclue en vertu de l'article 40;

e) infraction visée à un paragraphe que le présent paragraphe remplace, est suspendu;

f) pour un an, à la première déclaration de culpabilité;

g) pour trois ans, à la première déclaration de culpabilité subséquente;

h) pour une période indéterminée, à la deuxième déclaration de culpabilité subséquente ou à la déclaration de culpabilité subséquente additionnelle. 1997, chap. 12, par. 1 (1); 2001, chap. 9, annexe O, art. 2; 2006, chap. 20, art. 1; 2007, chap. 13, par. 6 (1); 2009, chap. 5, art. 10.

(2) Afin de déterminer s'il s'agit d'une déclaration de culpabilité subséquente ou d'une déclaration de culpabilité subséquente additionnelle, selon le cas, pour l'application des alinéas (1) g) et h), il ne doit être tenu compte que de l'ordre des déclarations de culpabilité et non de l'ordre dans lequel les infractions ont été commises, ni du fait qu'une infraction a été commise avant ou après une déclaration de culpabilité. L.R.O. 1990, chap. H.8, par. 41 (2).

(4) Si le tribunal ou le juge, selon le cas, qui reconnaît la personne coupable conformément au paragraphe (1), est d'avis qu'une telle mesure est opportune pour la protection du public circulant sur les voies publiques, il peut rendre une ordonnance prorogeant la suspension du permis:

a) soit pour une période qui s'ajoute à celle qui est mentionnée au paragraphe (1) que le tribunal ou le juge estime appropriée, si la personne est passible d'emprisonnement à perpétuité pour l'infraction commise;

b) soit pour une période qui s'ajoute à celle précisée au paragraphe (1) que le tribunal ou le juge estime appropriée mais n'excédant pas trois ans, si la personne n'est pas passible d'emprisonnement à perpétuité pour l'infraction commise. L.R.O. 1990, chap. H.8, par 41 (4).

(5) Le présent article s'applique de la même façon que si la personne était déclarée coupable d'une infraction, si cette personne plaide coupable ou est reconnue coupable d'une infraction visée au paragraphe (1) et si, selon le cas:

a) une ordonnance d'absolution de l'accusé est rendue en vertu de l'article 730 du Code criminel (Canada) ou aux termes d'une disposition qui est adoptée par un État des États-Unis d'Amérique et désignée dans les règlements;

b) une décision est rendue en application l'article 20 ou des articles 28 à 32 de la Loi sur les jeunes contrevenants (Canada), une peine spécifique est imposée en application de l'article 42, 59, 94, 95 ou 96 de la Loi sur le système de justice pénale pour les adolescents (Canada) ou une peine applicable aux adultes est imposée en application de la Loi sur le système de justice pénale pour les adolescents (Canada), y compris une confirmation ou une modification de la décision ou de la peine.

APPLICATION DE LA LOI AUX FAITS

La Requérante, en mots de la fin, supplie son cas et son propre besoin pour le véhicule en réitérant l'évidence offerte. Elle dit avoir accepté la version des faits fournis par son ami, le témoin A, sans question. Depuis l'évènement, elle se sent punie et la perte financière et le stress émotionnel sont significatifs.

La représentante du Registrateur a démontré que la Requérante était au courant que son ami n'avait pas un permis de conduire valide. Il s'agit qu'elle aurait dû prendre toutes les mesures nécessaires pour s'assurer que son ami n'était pas susceptible d'accéder les clés de son véhicule. Le Tribunal a entendu que la Requérante a utilisé d'autres modes de transport, comme des taxis, l'autobus et des amis au cours du dernier mois. La perte de cinq jours de travail n'est pas considéré significative et durable. Dans sa déclaration finale la représentante du Registrateur demande que la décision du Registrateur soit soutenue.

La Requérante a déposé un appel en invoquant pour motif le fait qu'en vertu de l'article 50.2(3)(b) de la Loi «…le permis de conduire du conducteur du véhicule automobile ne faisait pas l'objet d'une suspension…». Il appartient à la Requérante de prouver le bien-fondé de l'appel et ceci n'a pas été le cas.

Le Tribunal reconnais que la perte du véhicule et les résultats de cet évènement sembleraient avoir eu un effet déplorable pour la Requérante. Dans l'avis du Tribunal, il est regrettable que son ami semble avoir négligé ses responsabilités et a eu un manque de sincérité envers elle. Le témoignage de son ami est un témoignage de complaisance et la modification de son témoignage suite au témoignage du policier, aux yeux du Tribunal, à discréditer ce témoignage.

Le Tribunal accepte le témoignage de l'agent de police et les faits et ces preuves sont dignes de fois. Il n'y a aucune raison de douter la véracité de cette information.

Après avoir examiné les preuves présentées, le Tribunal reconnaît que la Requérante a subi des désagréments à la suite de la perte du véhicule, mais qu'elle n'a pas apporté la preuve nécessaire justifiant l'appel aux termes de l'article 50.2(3) de la Loi.

DÉCISION

Après considération de la preuve, en vertu de l'autorité conférée dans le Tribunal en vertu de l'article 50.2(5) de la Loi, le Tribunal confirme l'ordonnance de mise en fourrière du véhicule automobile de la Requérante, telle qu'émis par le Registrateur, et le véhicule demeurera dans la fourrière pendant 45 jours.

MOTION

6082-MVIA-Motion-Costs

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: MARY ANN SPENCER, Member

APPEARANCES: No one appearing for the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: August 4, 2010 by teleconference

ORDER

The parties to this matter are the Applicant and the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"). The Registrar requested this motion in order to seek costs against the Applicant pursuant to Rule 14 of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice.

This motion was heard by teleconference. At the time scheduled for the motion to commence, the Applicant did not join the teleconference. The records of the Tribunal indicated that the Applicant did not pick up the Appointment For and Notice of Hearing that had been sent to him by courier. The hearing recessed and staff of the Tribunal unsuccessfully attempted to contact the Applicant. After a thirty minute delay, the hearing of the motion proceeded in the absence of the Applicant.

The Registrar's Agent requested that costs of a total of $765.00 be awarded to the Registrar in respect of the hearings in this matter held on June 22, 2010 and July 6, 2010, which the Applicant failed to either attend personally or to authorize a representative to attend on his behalf.

At the time scheduled for the teleconference hearing on June 22, 2010, neither the Applicant nor a representative joined the teleconference. A representative did join the teleconference after a delay of thirty minutes during which time staff of the Tribunal attempted to reach the Applicant. However, the Tribunal noted that it had received no documentation from the Applicant authorizing the representative to appear on the Applicant's behalf. The hearing was therefore adjourned to July 6, 2010.

The Tribunal issued an Order dated June 25, 2010, stating that "should the Applicant be unable to participate in the hearing on July 6, 2010, he shall provide the Tribunal with a written document naming and authorizing an agent to act on his behalf". The Tribunal's records indicate that the Order of the Tribunal was successfully delivered by courier. However, no documentation authorizing a representative to appear on behalf of the Applicant was received by the Tribunal before the rescheduled hearing date.

No representative of the Applicant joined the teleconference at its scheduled commencement time on July 6, 2010. The hearing was delayed and staff of the Tribunal contacted an individual at the phone number on record for the Applicant, who indicated that he would participate in the teleconference hearing. When the hearing commenced, the Tribunal noted that it had received no written documentation authorizing this individual to appear on the Applicant's behalf. Accordingly, the parties were advised that a Notice of Intent to Dismiss the proceedings would be issued.

On July 9, 2010, in accordance with Rule 2.10 (1)(d) of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice, the Tribunal issued an Order and Notice of Intent to Dismiss pursuant to the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. S.22. The Applicant was provided with ten days from the date of the release of the Order to provide written submissions to the Tribunal as to why the appeal should not be dismissed, including an explanation of the Applicant's failure to attend or have an authorized agent attend on his behalf at both scheduled hearings. The Applicant did not contact the Tribunal in this regard. No reasons have been provided as to why the Tribunal should not dismiss the Applicant's appeal. Therefore, the Tribunal dismisses the Applicant's appeal.

Rule 14 of the Tribunal's Rules of Practice permits the Tribunal to award costs where a party has acted "unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith". Rule 14.2 (a) specifically states:

> The Tribunal in determining whether a party has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously, or in bad faith shall consider all of the circumstances, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, circumstances such as a party:
> (a) failing to attend a hearing before the Tribunal or to send a representative when properly given notice, without contacting the Tribunal and other parties to the hearing;

The Applicant in this matter failed to contact the Tribunal regarding his inability to attend both on June 22, 2010 and July 6, 2010, and failed to provide authorization for a representative to appear on his behalf on July 6, 2010, as ordered by the Tribunal on June 25, 2010. Further, the Applicant failed to provide reasons as to why his appeal should not be dismissed in response to the Tribunal's Order and Notice of Intent to Dismiss dated July 9, 2010.

The Tribunal therefore finds that in accordance with Rule 14 of its Rules of Practice, the Applicant has acted unreasonably, frivolously, vexatiously or in bad faith and the motion of the Registrar is granted.

The Tribunal orders as follows:

1. Pursuant to the authority vested in it under section 4.6 of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act, this proceeding, initiated by the Applicant's request for a hearing before this Tribunal, is dismissed;

2. Pursuant to the authority vested in it under subsection 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8, this Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar, effective May 1, 2010, to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle for 45 days;

3. The Applicant shall pay to the Registrar costs in the amount of $765.00.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: DAVID B. CARYLL, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: APPLICANT, unrepresented

SONIA DE SANTIS, Representative for the Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar")

DATE OF HEARING: September 16, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on September 16, 2010, at Toronto, Ontario, in the presence of the Applicant and Sonia De Santis, representative for the Registrar, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner:	Applicant
Motor Vehicle:	1997 Dodge Truck – Wisconsin plates (the “vehicle”)
Date of Appeal:	August 27, 2010

The Applicant appeals on the basis that he exercised due diligence (i.e. all reasonable efforts) to determine that the driver's licence was not suspended; and, the loss of the vehicle will result in exceptional hardship as provided in sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d) of the Act.

This matter came before the Tribunal on September 16, 2010 and, as there were no preliminary matters, the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

The bases for the Applicant’s appeal are:

1. Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver’s licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension?

2. Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar’s order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship?

BACKGROUND FACTS

The following facts are not in dispute.

On Friday, August 13, 2010, the Applicant, a resident of both Canada and the USA, lent his vehicle to an acquaintance (the “driver”) for personal reasons.

Later that day, at 11:31 a.m., the vehicle was stopped by the police. The police found that the driver’s licence was suspended because he was convicted for certain offences under the Criminal Code of Canada, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46. The police impounded the vehicle.

EVIDENCE CONCERNING DUE DILIGENCE

The Applicant testified that he thought the driver had a valid licence. This was based on a previous encounter, about a month before, when the driver came to buy a motorcycle from a friend. He was present when the friend asked the driver if he had a licence. The driver said “yes” and showed it to the friend.

Both the Applicant and friend testified that they did not give the licence close scrutiny. In particular, they failed to notice if the licence was expired or not, or if it even showed a photograph of the driver. They did nothing else to determine whether the driver had a valid licence.

When the Applicant lent his car to the driver, on August 13, 2010, he relied solely on this experience.

EVIDENCE CONCERNING EXCEPTIONAL HARDSHIP

The Applicant testified that the primary use for his car is for shopping and other personal matters. As he is on disability, he does not need the vehicle for work.

He said that during the impoundment period his friend, and others, drove him shopping and to other appointments. During this period he said he has not missed any medical appointments. The Applicant is the only person who relies on the vehicle. He has access to 911 emergency services.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

The owner may appeal the Registrar's order as set out in subsection 50.2(3):

> (3) [Two of the] grounds on which an owner may appeal under subsection (1) and [two of the] grounds on which the Tribunal may set aside the order to impound are,
> (c) that the owner of the motor vehicle exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the driver's licence of the driver of the motor vehicle at the time in respect of which the order was made was not then under suspension; or
> (d) that the order will result in exceptional hardship.

The Applicant here appeals on the basis of sections 50.2(3)(c) and (d).

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(c) alleging that the owner exercised due diligence prior to releasing the vehicle to the driver, Black's Law Dictionary (sixth edition) at page 457 defines due diligence as follows:

> Due diligence: Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the > particular circumstances; not measured by any absolute standard, but depending on the relative facts of the special case.

With respect to an appeal under section 50.2(3)(d) alleging that the impoundment results in exceptional hardship, the Shorter Oxford Dictionary defines "exceptional hardship" as follows:

> Exceptional: Of the nature of or forming an exception; unusual.
> Hardship: 1. The quality of being hard to bear; hardness; severity. 2. Hardness of fate or circumstance; severe toil or suffering; extreme privation.

Section 22 of Regulation 574 R.R.O. 1990, as amended by Ontario Regulation 632/98, provides for criteria to be considered and criteria not to be considered by the Tribunal in determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 as follows:

> 22. (1) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall consider whether no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available and, if no alternative is available, whether the impoundment will result in,
> (a) a threat to the health or safety of any person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; or
> (b) a threat to the public health and safety or to the environment or property of a community in whose service the motor vehicle is ordinarily used.
>
> (2) In determining whether exceptional hardship will result from an order to impound under section 55.1 of the Act, the [Tribunal] shall not, subject to subsection (3), consider whether the impoundment will result in,
>
> (a) inconvenience to any person;
> (b) financial or economic loss to any person;
> (c) loss of employment or employment opportunity to any person; or
> (d) loss of education or training or of an educational or training opportunity to any person.
>
> (3) The [Tribunal] may consider the criteria set out in clauses (2) (b), (c) and (d) if the owner demonstrates that,
>
> (a) no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available;
> (b) the loss will be immediate, significant and lasting;
> (c) the impact of the loss will be upon a person ordinarily transported by the motor vehicle; and
> (d) the impact of the loss,
> (i) will be upon a person other than the person whose driving while his or her driver's licence was under suspension resulted in the order to impound the motor vehicle, and
> (ii) will not be a result of a loss by the suspended driver of the type set out in clause (2)(b), (c) or (d).

> (4) In order to show that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available under subsection (1) or clause (3) (a), the owner must demonstrate that every reasonable option has been considered and inquired into that could eliminate or adequately mitigate any threat or loss to the person, including using another vehicle to replace the impounded motor vehicle and making arrangements to do without the impounded motor vehicle or a replacement during the impound period.

APPLICATION OF LAW TO FACTS

Due Diligence:

The first issue to be considered in this appeal is whether the Applicant:

> … exercised due diligence in attempting to determine that the licence of the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded, in respect of which the order was made, was not then under suspension.

Subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act is quite specific in that the owner of the vehicle must exercise due diligence, and the onus of proof is on the Applicant to establish that due diligence was exercised.

Black's Law Dictionary defines due diligence as:

> "Such a measure of prudence, activity, or assiduity, as is properly to be expected from, and ordinarily exercised by, a reasonable and prudent man under the particular circumstances …".

In this case, for the Applicant to rely on a defence of due diligence, he must show:

1. that he took all reasonable steps to prevent an individual without a valid licence from driving his vehicle, and

2. that at the time of the impoundment of his vehicle, he had an honest and reasonable belief that his car was being driven by someone with a valid licence.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant took no prudent steps to ensure that the driver had a valid licence. Basing his belief on the fact that the driver produced a licence, that was not closely scrutinized, does not meet the standard for due diligence.

The onus was on the Applicant to prove on a balance of probabilities that he exercised due diligence.

The Tribunal finds that the Applicant failed to meet this test, as required by subsection 50.2(3)(c) of the Act.

For future reference, one possibility of exercising due diligence would be to contact the Ontario Ministry of Transportation with the driver's name and driver's licence number at 1-900-565-6555 for automated service, or obtaining a driver's abstract of a licence at a local MTO Driver Vehicle Licence Issuing Office, or Service Ontario Kiosk at a local mall, or accessing the MTO website at www.mto.gov.on.ca.

Exceptional Hardship:

The second issue to be considered in this appeal is, should the Tribunal:

> "… set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the order will result in exceptional hardship [to the Applicant]?"

In reviewing the evidence, the Applicant has access to other vehicles, during the impoundment period, in the form of his friend and other acquaintances. He has not missed any medical appointments, or been unable to get groceries. The Applicant has access to 911 emergency health services.

After considering all of the evidence, the Tribunal finds that the Applicant has not met the onus under subsection 22 (3)(a) of the Regulation, namely:

> … that no alternative to the impounded motor vehicle is available

The Tribunal is therefore precluded from considering the Applicant's claim of exceptional hardship under subsection 22 (2) of the Regulation.

Although the Tribunal is sympathetic to the position of the Applicant, it has no alternative but to adhere to the law and apply it accordingly.

DECISION

After considering the evidence, pursuant to the authority vested in the Tribunal under section 50.2(5) of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. H8 the Tribunal confirms the Order of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the Applicant's motor vehicle, and it will remain at the impound facility for 45 days.

APPEAL UNDER SECTION 50.2 OF THE HIGHWAY TRAFFIC ACT, R.S.O. 1990, c. H.8 (THE "ACT"), FROM THE ORDER OF THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES PURSUANT TO SECTION 55.1(3) OF THE ACT.

TO APPEAL AN ORDER TO IMPOUND A MOTOR VEHICLE ISSUED BY THE REGISTRAR OF MOTOR VEHICLES

TRIBUNAL: SIMON DANN, Presiding Member

APPEARANCES: RICHARD JANSSEN, Agent, representing the Applicant

RUSSELL McKNIGHT, Agent, representing the Registrar of Motor Vehicles

DATE OF HEARING: September 20, 2010 by teleconference

REASONS FOR DECISION

A teleconference hearing was held on September 20, 2010, to consider the Applicant's appeal pursuant to section 50.2 of the Highway Traffic Act, R.S.O., 1990, c. H.8 amended (the "HTA" or the "Act").

THE TRIBUNAL RULED TO CONFIRM the Order to Impound imposed by the Registrar pursuant to section 55.1(3) of the HTA.

BACKGROUND

This is an appeal under section 50.2 of the Act.

The Registrar of Motor Vehicles (the "Registrar"), made an order under section 55.1 of the Act to impound a motor vehicle for a period of 45 days. That order has been appealed by the owner. The owner, motor vehicle, and date of appeal are as follows:

Owner: Edmonds Chevrolet Pontiac GMC Ltd.
Motor Vehicle: Chevrolet, Avalanche, 2010 (the "vehicle")
Date of Appeal: August 26, 2010

The owner appeals on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time it was being driven as provided in section 50.2(3)(a) of the Act.

This matter came before this Tribunal on September 20, 2010, and proceeded as a teleconference hearing. All documents were entered into evidence as exhibits with the consent of both parties.

There were no preliminary matters in dispute between the parties and the hearing proceeded.

ISSUE

The Applicant's request for a hearing filed with this Tribunal (Exhibit #1) identifies the basis of the Applicant's appeal.

Should the Tribunal set aside the Registrar's order to impound the vehicle on the basis that the motor vehicle was stolen at the time in respect of which the order was made?

FACTS

The Tribunal heard the evidence given in support of the Applicant and the Registrar.

Evidence for the Applicant

A summary of the Applicant's evidence is as follows:

During the course of the hearing, the Applicant's Agent recapped the sequence of events as submitted in his letter of "Reason for appeal" which was attached to the Notice of Appeal.

It was confirmed that the Applicant sold and delivered the vehicle, and had completed the paperwork required to transfer the ownership of the vehicle to the buyer, who was not the driver at the time the vehicle was impounded. The Applicant's Agent confirmed that they were not the registered owner of the vehicle at the time it was being claimed to have been stolen.

At that time, the registered owner ("buyer") was the buyer and the vehicle had been paid for with an NSF cheque (insufficient funds) by a friend of hers. Following the impoundment of the vehicle and the Applicant's discovery that the cheque they had received did not have the funds required to cover the amount written, the buyer cooperated with the Applicant to return ownership of the vehicle to the Applicant, who is again the registered owner.

The Applicant's Agent acknowledged they had confirmed that the buyer had a valid vehicle insurance policy in effect and that they had accepted a regular cheque in payment … the latter meaning that they had not followed their regular procedure of requiring a certified cheque.

The Applicant's Agent argued that they should not have to suffer the loss of the vehicle nor the impound costs as they had no involvement with its impoundment or decision to allow an individual without a valid licence drive the vehicle. The Agent confirmed no action had been taken to charge either the driver of the vehicle at the time it was impounded, or the buyer. The Applicant's single interest was to recover the vehicle as quickly as possible in order to be able to sell it.

Evidence for the Registrar

A summary of the Registrar's evidence is as follows.

The documents tendered by the Registrar and admitted into the record on consent of the Applicant were as follows:

1. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that, among other things, the impounded motor vehicle herein is registered in the name of the Applicant as owner;

2. Copy of Notice to the Registrar indicating, among other things, that the vehicle at the time it was detained was being driven by the person convicted of the offence under the Criminal Code of Canada outlined in point 4 below;

3. Copy of the Order by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to impound the vehicle;

4. Copy of the Ministry of Transportation records indicating that the driver at the time of impoundment had been convicted of a number of offences including driving with more than 80 mgs alcohol in blood under the Criminal Code of Canada pursuant to which the driver's licence of the driver was then under suspension for life.

The Registrar's Agent reviewed the facts contained in the Registrar's Materials and Submissions documents. The Applicant did not dispute any of the evidence submitted by the Registrar. The Registrar's Agent asked that the order to impound be confirmed.

LAW

Section 55.1 of the Act provides that the Registrar may make an order that a motor vehicle be impounded, and section 50.2 provides the motor vehicle owner's right of appeal to the Tribunal. The Tribunal on the appeal may, pursuant to subsection 50.2(5) of the Act, confirm or set aside the order to impound, and the decision of the Tribunal is, pursuant to subsection 50.2(8) final and binding.

Subsection 55.1(3) of the Act states:
