February 15

The focus of both meeting will be a discussion of the process that will lead to the RBRVS and the principles underlying the methodology that will be used.

Draft documents on process and principles of methodology were distributed at the end of last week to the OMA, the Ministry of Health and to all Chairs of Clinical Sections.

These draft positions will form the basis for the August 6 meetings and the written submissions from the Clinical Sections and others that will follow.

The Commission will be receiving written submissions between August 6 and August 20. Anyone interested is invited to submit but we ask that at this point in the process, submissions be limited to a discussion of process and principles only. Consultations on the methodology itself as well as specific services and concerns will follow in the process.

For a copy of the draft documents being considered, contact your OMA Clinical Section Chair, the OMA or the Commission offices.

This is the beginning stage of an important process for Ontario physicians and we look forward to your participation. We will take into consideration all comments and points of view throughout our mandate. We ask that you assist us by keeping your colleagues informed of the Commission's progress.
