10/11/2009	16:00	0:46	To Build a Nation	The White Pass: Wits, Grit and Guts	They said it couldn't be done. But men built the White Pass and Yukon Route railroad. They carved it from sheer walls of granite, muscled it across deep canyons and pushed it up the slopes of each mountain that stood in their way. Building this railway in the 19th century was an exceptional achievement. What sets the White Pass apart is how quickly it was built two short years, and where it was built, at high latitudes, in very cold weather. And it is built without the tools today's engineers take for granted—GPS, laser beam surveys, heavy equipment and heavy-lift choppers. So how did they build this	CC	14+
