Protecting Retirement Home Residents

If you or someone you love lives in a retirement home in Ontario, you should know that there will be new protections available under the Retirement Homes Act, 2010.

Under the act, all licensed retirement homes will have to:

- have a written policy that promotes zero tolerance of abuse and neglect of their residents
- meet care and safety standards.

Residents will have the right to:

- a contract that is written in plain language
- varied and nutritious meals (if meals are provided)
- form residents councils
- know the true costs of care and accommodation
- access information about outside care providers.

A new regulatory authority will enforce the act. It will also:

- educate retirement home operators about their new responsibilities
- provide clear and accessible information so that residents and their families can make informed decisions about their specific needs
- raise standards in retirement homes across Ontario through enforcement of the legislated requirements.

When Collection Agencies Come Calling

When you're behind in your payments, the business owed may hire an agency to collect the money from you.

Don't ignore the collection agency's calls. If they can't reach you directly, legal action may follow.

The collection agency must first contact you by mail and outline:

- who they are
- how they're authorized to demand payment of the debt
- who claims you owe money (the person or business)
- how much they say you owe.

They must wait six days after this mailing before they contact you again.

After they've spoken with you, the agency cannot contact you in person, by e-mail, telephone or voicemail more than three times a week – and only at certain times of day.

An agency cannot keep contacting you if you send a registered letter requesting that it communicate only with your lawyer. The letter must include your lawyer's name, address and phone number.

Repay your debt as quickly as possible. Negotiate regular payments. Get all details in writing.

Beware of Health Care Fraud

Don't ignore health care fraud.

It has many faces:

- billing for health care services that were not provided or medically necessary
- changing the date of a service on a bill so the service is covered by insurance
- billing for a higher-priced service or product than was actually provided
- using a prescription to obtain products that are not medically necessary
- billing an uninsured service (like a cosmetic procedure) as an insured service.

Help prevent health care fraud:

- Keep your invoices and receipts.
- Keep a record of your visits to health care practitioners.
- Read benefit and billing statements carefully. Report discrepancies to your insurance company, your local law enforcement and/or the Canadian Health Care Anti-fraud Association.
- Keep your benefit information and health cards in a safe place. Don't use your health card for general identification purposes.
- Never sign blank insurance forms or provide blanket authorization to bill for services.
- Remember product promotions, price reductions and "special deals" may involve counterfeit products or inappropriate billing practices.

Everyone has the responsibility as well as the power to prevent and detect health care fraud.

Get involved. Otherwise, we all pay the price.

Plug in Safely

Consumers can protect themselves from potential electrical hazards by making smart decisions about electrical products and installations.

Replace electrical cords that are:

- frayed or damaged
- improperly approved for their intended use (indoor or outdoor)
- undersized (cords must be used within the manufacturer's ampere rating).

Exposed wires, loose connections and circuits that frequently trip or fuses that often blow can present potential shock and fire hazards.

Buy electrical products approved by a recognized certification agency. Unapproved products can present shock and fire hazards. For a list of recognized certification agencies visit www.esasafe.com.

Follow the manufacturer's instructions when using and installing electrical products.

Inspect electrical installations. The Electrical Safety Authority inspects electrical installations to ensure they comply with the Ontario Electrical Safety Code.

Hire a licensed electrical contractor to do electrical work in your home. Only licensed electrical contractors are authorized to offer electrical services, carry liability insurance, use qualified electricians, and can provide a certificate of inspection when the job is complete. This is your record that the electrical work meets Ontario Electrical Safety Code requirements.

To find a licensed electrical contractor in your area visit www.pluginsafely.ca.

Funeral and Cemetery Services – New Law

Did you know the operator of every cemetery, crematorium, funeral establishment and transfer service in Ontario must be licensed?

Any business selling funeral or cemetery services in Ontario must be licensed and, as of July 1, 2012, their representatives must also be licensed. You can have the confidence of knowing that when you buy these services, you are dealing with licensed professionals. And if you have a complaint, you can have your concerns reviewed by an industry regulator.

Here's what you should know:

- Ontario's new law makes it easier to compare prices and make informed choices. Before entering into a contract for licensed services you must be given a price list and a consumer information guide. Make sure your contract lists all the items and services you've paid for — it's the law!
- You have up to 30 days to change your mind for prepaid services and supplies, cancel and receive a full refund.
- To protect your privacy and give you peace of mind, providers cannot solicit by telephone or in person.

Every life can be celebrated in its own way. It's important to spend only what you can afford.

What You Need to Know About Condominiums

For many people in Ontario, condominium living is appealing and affordable.

It's important to understand that a condominium is a type of ownership, not a type of building. Most people think of condominiums as apartments, but they can also be townhouses or detached or semi-detached homes.

When you buy a condominium, you also buy an interest in the "common elements" of the entire condominium complex.

These common elements may include:

- corridors
- lobbies
- elevators
- parking areas
- roofs and windows
- landscaping and grounds
- recreational facilities
- guest suites

You share ownership of these common elements with all of the other unit owners in the condominium.

You also share the expense of operating and maintaining these elements with the other owners. A portion of your monthly fees goes into a reserve fund to pay for future repairs, upgrades and replacement.

Condominiums are self-governing communities, with rules and by-laws to guide their operation and business affairs. If you're thinking about buying a condo, it's important that you learn more about those rules – and your rights and responsibilities.

Payday Loans: Quick Cash Comes at a Cost

When payday doesn't come quickly enough, some people resort to a short-term loan from a payday lender. It's an expensive form of credit.

Here's what you need to know about payday loans:

Payday lenders and loan brokers must be licensed by the Ontario Ministry of Consumer Services.

The maximum cost of borrowing is set at $21 for every $100 borrowed.

The payday loan agreement must include specific information, including the:

- amount being borrowed
- total number of days of the loan agreement
- total cost of borrowing (including all fees and charges)
- date the loan must be repaid.

You must receive your loan immediately upon entering into the agreement or within one hour if the agreement is made by phone or online. The lender can't deduct any fees.

You can cancel a payday loan within two business days of receiving the loan. You must return the full amount of the loan, but you don't have to pay the cost of borrowing.

A payday lender cannot give you another payday loan until you have repaid your first loan in full.

If your payday loan is for more than $1,500 or for a period of more than 62 days, the maximum cost of borrowing doesn't apply.

Auto Insurance Fraud Costs Us All

By being an informed consumer when you buy auto insurance, you can reduce your premiums, avoid coverage that is not valid, and help eliminate scams.

Protect yourself:

- Deal only with licensed insurance companies and representatives. The Financial Services Commission of Ontario's website www.fSCO.gov.on.ca has a list of licensed agents and companies. Visit the Registered Insurance Brokers of Ontario website www.ribo.com for a list of licensed brokers.
- Do not pay a referral or a signing fee – a licensed representative does not charge you fees.
- Do not pay by wire transfer or to an unidentified post box – this is not an accepted practice in the industry.
- Read your insurance application form carefully before signing it.
- Contact the insurance company before paying if you are in any doubt.
- If you suspect fraud, immediately contact the insurance company named in the policy. Do not contact the broker or agent named in the policy.

For more information, visit the Financial Services Commission of Ontario website at www.fSCO.gov.on.ca.

Stay Out of Hot Water

Be wary when a salesperson knocks on your door with an offer to replace your hot water tank at a price that's too good to be true.

Ask to see the salesperson's photo identification and get the name of the company the salesperson works for.

Get everything in writing – rental fees, installation costs, warranties, costs for repairs and services – and keep a copy of any sales material you are given.

Don't sign "on the spot." Take time to read the contract, including the fine print. Don't feel pressured to sign immediately.

You can cancel your contract for any reason within 10 days of receiving a copy of the signed contract.

You can cancel for up to one year if the signed contract isn't clear or easy-to-understand or if it doesn't clearly disclose key information, such as:

- a description of the goods and services to be supplied
- an itemized price list
- total cost
- a statement of your rights as a consumer.

You may have more rights to terminate the contract if the salesperson made a false, misleading or deceptive statement.

Exercise Your Rights When You Join a Gym

If you are thinking of joining a gym or fitness club — shop around for the right one.

Look for:

- qualified instructors
- cleanliness
- up-to-date equipment in good working order
- hours of operation and classes that fit your schedule
- opportunity to check out the facilities and observe classes
- uncrowded (but not near-empty) classes
- positive feedback from members.

There are special rules about fitness club contracts.

Read your contract carefully so you understand what you've agreed to:

- You may cancel the contract without any reason within 10 days of receiving a copy of it.
- There's no need to pay for a full year's membership upfront — you can pay monthly. It could cost up to 25 per cent more, but if the club were to go bankrupt suddenly, your overall loss would be less.
- Contracts cannot exceed one year but check to see if your contract contains a renewal clause. If you receive a renewal notice and you don't respond, the club can renew your contract and bill you.
