Ecological Integrity

Arrowhead

You have the most important role in protection

OntarioParks.com/ecologicalintegrity

Watch for wildlife!

Roads and cars are one of the biggest threats to park wildlife.

6

Don't burn down their house!

Fallen wood is important habitat for salamanders, don't use it for campfires.

Spread the message, not disease.

Invasive species can hitchhike – don't move firewood.

7

Thanked, never.

Over 412 nights of hardcore outback camping, the zipper on this sleeping bag got stuck exactly zero times.

None. Not once. And when it hits the freezing mark on crisp October weekends? Cozy and warm.

Downtime? Not a chance. No basking in the glory of endless mountaintop vistas for this workhorse.

But it doesn't complain. It just goes about its business; doing everything it's supposed to do. Night after night.

At Woods Canada, we know it takes reliable, quality equipment to make great moments in the great outdoors. No compromise.

We've been delivering on this since 1885.

When in doubt, don't throw it out!

MAKE THE DROP

Help keep the great outdoors great

When in doubt, don't throw it out!

Propane cylinders and batteries are wonderful things when you're camping.

But as you pack up your campsite and prepare to return home, please remember that these items need to be disposed of safely.

If left behind, or put in the garbage, propane cylinders, batteries and aerosols pose health-related risks to humans, animals and the environment. In landfill, chemicals and toxic gases may cause soil contamination and water pollution. Also, chemical reactions can occur if these items are mixed with other materials in garbage or recycling bins.

Make the Drop

Many Ontario Parks have collection sites for non-refillable propane cylinders. Ask the park office where you should drop them when you are leaving. If a collection site is not available, please take your used propane cylinder to your local Orange Drop site.

Making the drop ensures that the cylinders are recycled safely and responsibly. The valves, metal and other elements can all be recovered from propane cylinders and reused.

Visit makethedrop.ca to learn more about the Orange Drop Program and to find a location near you where you can drop off other household hazardous waste materials.
