Your Afternoon Briefing For Wednesday May 31, 2017

The budget watchdog's crystal ball shows deficits in Ontario's future. But the Premier maintains the budget will be balanced until 2020, despite the Financial Accountability Officer's spring report that projects the province will be in the red for the next five years. Meanwhile, the summer of savings is nigh now that the hydro plan legislation has passed, and the French commissioner says francophone services are still coming up short. That, and more, in your afternoon QP Briefing.
