Inside my latest hydro bill was a flyer highlighting the Wynne government's "fair" hydro plan. Effectively, the pamphlet says that, despite being responsible for North america's worst electricity rates, it's only fair that this same government should provide some sort of relief. always be careful with liberal math. let's say your bill has effectively doubled from $125 to $250 under the liberal reign. With an average (short term, I might add) decrease of 25 per cent, that new bill will be $187.50, which is still 50 per cent over your original average cost.

But wait - you're going to be socked with substantially higher bills after four years. and the provincial debt will include part of this delayed benefit.

I am not sure this is the definition of fair - unless you understand the true definition, which is: Fudge anything Improving re-election.
