“Despite endless discussions at conferences and internal strategy sessions about the need for innovation, the public service remains characterized by a culture of risk aversion. Conversations with senior public servants reveal frustration with systems oriented towards the status quo.

At an organizational level, the story is much the same. For example, the 2017 Ontario Public Service employee survey found that only 52% of employees felt encouraged to take reasonable risks and 55% believed that innovation was valued in the workplace.”
