On March 2, 2017, the Ontario government announced the Fair Hydro Plan, a relief plan for residential customers that the government expects will lower electricity bills by an average of 25%. Please see the Ontario government's news release. The 25% reduction includes the 8% rebate announced for January 1, 2017.

The government also announced an Affordability Fund established to fund the Ontario Electricity Support Program (OESP) and expand its coverage for low-income Torontonians.

More details are expected as new legislation is introduced in the coming weeks. According to the government, initial changes are expected for May 1, which would be reflected on your bills beginning June 2017.
