Good afternoon Energy Friends!

I'd like to first thank everyone for their congratulatory messages, I really appreciate the warm response and outreach.

It strikes me somewhat surreal that I depart Energy. Between my time in the legal department and these past ten months in policy I've been immersed in the sector for over two years, and while I realize that is just a blip on the map in the grand scheme of things it certainly has left a profound impression on my personal and professional development.

Working in such a contentious and politically sensitive Ministry I sure have gained an appreciation for those who practice in this field. The fact of the matter is Energy is a small compact Ministry which is able to churn out some incredible feats, all within tightly imposed deadlines.

I can earnestly say that what I will miss the most is the people, the colourful cast of characters and brilliant minds always kept me engaged and stimulated. And, not to be overly maudlin and schmaltzy, I can honestly say it was an honour and a privilege (stolen from Titanic I know but still appropriate) to work with all of you. How often is it that you work in an such a respectful and harmonious environment, for that alone I consider myself fortunate and lucky. An important mix of responsible diligent people, levity and intellect keeps this a well oiled machine.

It feels strange to be leaving but I am proud of what was accomplished by all of you and even more assured that the future of Ontario's energy sector is left in good hands. Please feel free to drop me a line at any time, you will be missed!

Warm regards,

Andrew

Subject: Staffing Announcement - Regulatory and Agency Policy

It is with mixed emotions that I inform you that Andrew McIntyre has accepted a new position at the Ministry of Economic Development and Growth, within the Accessibility Directorate of Ontario. His last day with the Ministry will be tomorrow, June the 15th.

Andrew has been an integral member of our team since joining in August of last year as Policy Advisor to support a maternity leave absence. He has been instrumental in providing policy and implementation advice on key initiatives such as the First Nations Delivery Credit (part of Ontario's Fair Hydro Plan) and the Mandate Review of the Ontario Energy Board, and he has been an essential resource in supporting our unit's responsibility for promoting good governance within Ontario's energy agencies. Prior to joining our team Andrew (a lawyer by training) articulated with Legal Services Branch, where he supported such projects as the merger of the OPA and IESO, the development of Bill 112 and Bill 135, and the implementation of the Green Energy Investment Fund.

We will greatly miss Andrew's sense of humour and sunny disposition in the office. Please join me in wishing Andrew well in his new role.

Thank you,

Mike
