Attached is even a little later – reflects a call cindy and I had with the ofa (John Kim who is the director stickhandling for them) – cindy is going to edit and add some more expert accounting bits, she says

Will flip if/when I see a next version

Great – should I also say “The proposed Climate Change Agency is expected to develop further programs intended to provide rate relief”???

The Ministry is implementing a series of electricity price mitigation initiatives, such as the Ontario Rebate for Electricity Consumers (OREC provides a rebate of 8% of electricity bills) that launched January 1, 2017. OREC is currently funded from taxpayers. The Ministry is also developing further electricity rate mitigation initiatives that utilize cap and trade proceeds, including rate relief for industrial and commercial consumers.

Ps can you send me an intro bullet for the backgournd section that just sets out the story so far on rate mitigation – something like “ the govt announced x and y in FES on rate mitigation” and energy is working on a variety of further potential options. Maybe a sentence about how that relates to what we know about green bank, which is also supposed to be doing rate mitigation?
