Those will certainly be his remarks before he puts his chief law officer hat on and informs his Cabinet colleagues of what the law says (even if our esteemed counsel from Blakes – for a reason that remains beyond me – did not put forward their legal advice on paper, yet are verbally saying they don't share the written view of a former SCC judge or the province's in-house constitutional law experts... making our ability to deliver the AG's constitutionally-mandated duty very difficult).

Blakes is retained by Energy / Ontario.

Remarks by AG should be simple enough to craft : "I support this."

Andrew:

The Attorney General was briefed this morning by the Deputy Attorney General, Blakes (including Hogg), and counsel from Constitutional Law Branch regarding the constitutional risks attached to the bill.

Amy will be working with our counsel over the next 48 hours to prepare the AG's remarks for Cabinet, based on the advice he received this morning. Please feel free to reach out to her should you have any questions.

Quick question for you – who is Blakes' client on this matter?
