Good Afternoon:

Sent an update this afternoon, but wanted to respond to this as well.

1. Toronto Hydro is what the Ontario Energy Board (OEB) uses as the typical residential customer for all of their calculus.
2. Regarding the social programs - that's a good point. We should do own it. PO isn't afraid of that point. Will need to add this in our next turn. Good eye.
3. RPP = most residential homes, but also a swath of small farms and small businesses (convenience stores and hairdressers, etc.). So RPP is a whole basket of / category of consumers that are a touch larger than just "residential consumers".
4. RE: Quick Facts. I think the historical measures are better placed in a background. We should get them to do that as well as part of the next turn.

I know I'm not actually DComm, but I thought I would have a once over anyway. Do with it as you will.

Added comments to the NR.

Other general comments:

GA doc - why is Toronto the example LDC? Or are we doing the previously mentioned 3 (HydrOne, TOHydro, Alectra).

Social Programs doc - point #3 briefly mentions moving to taxbase. Are we avoiding talking about the fiscal impact? Either way, obviously we'll have to ready for the q.

Let me know if there is anything I can help with in Dan's absence.

Landon.
