Good morning,

I need you to be more aware of us older folks. I have been living on a pension for 22 years, and I am one of the lucky ones because my pension is indexed. That means I can keep up if you could keep the hydro rate increases around the 1 percent mark. When Dalton McGuinty came up with the HST which roped in home heating fuels and gasoline I fell behind to a point where I now have to make every day choices about what my dwindling disposable income should be spent on. I should also mention that property taxes will force me out of my home in the near future.

I feel powerless to do anything about this deteriorating situation myself, so please consider me when you decide whether or not to allow increases in hydro rates or delivery fees.

Thanks,

Stewart
