Food for thought:

Why not structure the deferred asset/variance to align with maybe how future customer's bills would show the amounts, example below – this way the customer is still recognizing the electricity cost before reductions (to continue to motivate consumers conservation effort) while seeing a segregated reduction amount:

Typical Avg customer bill:

$100	RPP (current, and new RPP A).... or.... for those customer today who are not on RPP they would still see their normal HOEP and GA (market prices)
$50	Toronto Hydro distribution charges
$50	other LDC, transmission etc charges
$200	subtotal
(100)	RPP B – new rate applied to RPP A and expanded customers
$100	subtotal
$13	HST
$113	Total bill

Sure, like:

RPP A (incumbent RPP rate)

RPP B (OREC class, deferred regulatory asset)

Thurs is not good for me, too many external guest meetings.

Fri am or pm except if possible not for 11am-2pm (with Kim, Jeannette at Toronto Board of Trade event)

Regards.

Subject: variance

Would it be helpful to create an example of how this could work, possibly looking back at what the variance was this past year?
