CBC News Article | Ford government 'gutted' climate change programs that were working: report

The Ontario government has "gutted" climate change programs that were beginning to reap benefits and has not replaced them with a "meaningful" law that is needed immediately, says the province's environmental commissioner. In a report released on Tuesday, "Climate Action in Ontario: What's Next?," Dianne Saxe says a new climate change law is needed to lower greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and provide solutions to environmental problems.

Industry News and Commentary:
