

More help for more households.

Find out how you can save on your electricity bill.

- More help. With increased Ontario Electricity Support Program (OESP) credits of 50 percent, you could save $35–$75 each month on your electricity bill.
- More households. With new, expanded eligibility criteria, more lower-income households qualify. The amount you could receive depends on factors like the size of your household and total after-tax income.
- Even more help. If you live in a home heated with electricity, rely on certain medical devices requiring a lot of power, or are part of an Indigenous community, you could qualify for a credit of $52–$113 each month.
- Automatic update. If you’re already enrolled, the increased credit will be automatically applied to your bill.

See if you qualify and apply today.

OESP is a program for lower-income households brought to you by the Ontario Energy Board.
