Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant Governor

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament of our Town of York, on the Sixth Day of January to be commenced, held called, and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twenty-third day of November last, We thot fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Sixth day of January next ensuing," at which time, in our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear, But we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking, and by these presents enjoining you and each of you, that on the Twentieth Day of January, next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, FOR THE ACTUAL DISPATCH OF PUBLIC BUSINESS. There to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada, and there to do as may seem necessary. Herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of York, this Twenty third Day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, and in the forty eighth year of our Reign.

F. G.

WM JARVIS, Secretary.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE Esquire Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME—GREETING:

WHEREAS there are divers persons who were resident in the British Colonies in America before the breaking out of the American War, who joined the Royal Standard previous to the treaty of separation in the year 1783, and who have resided in this Province on, or before, the 28th day of July 1798, and have continued to reside therein since that period; but have neglected to obtain in due time the insertion of their Names on the U. E. List, or have been suspended from the same, and are thereby deprived of the advantages intended to be bestowed by His Majesty on that meritorious class of subjects.

AND WHEREAS there are other persons, who in like manner did join the Royal Standard, and who were also resident in this Province on, or before, the 28th day of July 1798, but have since died without having their Names inserted on that List, whereby their Children become deprived of the privileges that they otherwise would have derived from His Majesty's Bounty.

NOW KNOW YE, that I FRANCIS GORE Lieutenant Governor, as aforesaid, solicitous to promote the welfare and happiness of His Majesty's subjects of every description in this Province, more especially of those who have so strongly manifested their attachment and Loyalty to His Majesty; and also solicitous that the Children of such persons, who, when alive, were entitled to have been placed on the U. E. List, but are now removed by death from being admitted to that privilege, may reap the fruits of the Loyalty of their Fathers; DO, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, hereby notify and declare, that the Names of such persons who were resident in the British Colonies in America, before the breaking out of the American War, who joined the Royal Standard previous to the treaty of separation in the year 1783, and who have resided in this Province, on or before the 28th day of July 1798, and have continued to reside therein since that period, or may have been suspended from the U. E. List, may, upon application being made, and proof produced thereof, to the satisfaction of the Executive Government, be now inserted thereon.

And I hereby, with the like advice and consent, further notify and declare, that the Names of such persons as are now deceased, who in their life time were entitled to have been placed on the U. E. List, and who were also resident in this Province on or before the 28th day of July 1798, may, upon due proof thereof to the Executive Government, be also inserted in that List, to the end that the Children of such Subjects may [illegible] His Majesty's Bounty to its fullest extent.

GIVEN under my Hand and Seal at Arms in Council at York, this 31st day of October, in the 47th year of His Majesty's Reign, and in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and six.

FRANCIS GORE Lt. Gov't.

By His Excellency's Command,

WM JARVIS S.

Proclamation

By His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS in and by an act of the parliament of this province, made and passed in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, entitled, "an act to revive and continue an act passed in the forty second year of his present majesty, entitled, "an act to enable the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government of this province, to appoint one or more additional port or ports, place or places of entry within this province and to appoint one or more collector or collectors at the same, respectively, after reciting that an act passed in the forty second year of his present majesty, entitled "an act to enable the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government of this province, to appoint one or more additional port or ports, place or places of entry, within this province, and to appoint one or more collector or collectors at the same respectively, which was to continue in force for three years, and no longer, was expired, and it was expedient that the same should be revived and continued—it is enacted that the said act should, from and after the passing of that act, be revived, and the same was thereby revived and continued in force and effect for two years, and no longer.

And whereas, as well with reference to the interest of his majesty's government of this province, as to the convenience of importers of goods and merchandize, and of the merchants and others, his majesty's subjects resident within this province, it hath been ascertained that there exists immediate occasion for appointing two additional ports and places of entry and clearance at the places herein after specified.

Be it therefore known, to all whom it may concern. That I FRANCIS GORE Lieutenant governor of this province, in exercise of the power and authority so vested in me, in and by the said recited act, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of the said province [illegible] and ports of entry and clearance established by and under the authority of a certain act passed in the provincial parliament, called in the forty first year of his majesty's reign, entitled "An act for granting to his majesty, his heirs and successors, for the use of this province, the like duties on goods and merchandize imported into this province from the United States of America, as are paid on goods and merchandize imported from Great Britain and other places," and also by and under the authority of the above in part recited act, passed in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and two, the places herein after described and specified, that is to say, the village of St. Joseph, on the island of St. Joseph, and the eastern extremity of the carrying place, and on the north side of the river St. Mary, at, or near the Falls of St. Mary, in the Western District, shall from the Eighteenth day of this present month of May, severally and respectively be and the same are by these presents severally and respectively established and proclaimed to be ports and places of entry and clearance for all goods and merchandize, not being entirely prohibited, and for the payment of all duties liable to be paid for all goods and merchandize brought into this province from the United States of America, imported and established by virtue of the said act, to passed in the forty-first year of his said majesty's reign, and according to the direction of the same.

GIVEN under my hand and seal at Arms at York, this second day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, and in the forty seventh year of his said Majesty's reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

LONDON, Nov. 7.

It is certain that intelligence of the death of the King of Spain, and the assassination, or according to some accounts, the imprisonment of the Prince of Asturias, had been received at Lisbon previous to the departure of the vessel which brought the mail. The fact, as we stated yesterday, is announced in several letters. They mention the report, without, however, communicating any circumstances which can enable us to fix the degree of credit to which it may be entitled.

There was a report yesterday that the French and Spaniards were meditating an attack upon Gibraltar.—The Hindostan, which is arrived at Portsmouth, has brought letters, from one of which we make the following extract:

"Gibraltar, Sept. 8.

"Since closing this, an order from the court of Madrid has been put in force—to close all communication between the Spanish territory and this garrison. It was to day confidently reported that 25,000 French troops were expected at Algeziras shortly, and that the provisions necessary were already received. I cannot vouch for the truth of it; however, something must be in agitation. My next may probably throw a farther light on the business."

November 8.

Yesterday a considerable number of letters reached town from Gibraltar, Lisbon, and Oporto. We have seen one from an highly respectable authority, in which it is mentioned, that Lucien Bonaparte had been recalled from his retirement at Rome, and had arrived at Paris, where he experienced the most favorable reception from Napoleon. It is well known that Napoleon offered him the crown of Portugal two years ago, and it is highly probable that the present reconciliation and visit to Paris, is connected with a similar offer.

Letters from St. Petersburgh of the 6th ult mention the important circumstance, that Lord Leveson Gower had directed Sir Stephen Sharp to acquaint the British merchants residing in the Russian ports in the Baltic, that, in reply to a proposal of his, Count Romanzoff had informed him, "that he must decline, under the existing circumstances, to enter into any negociation for a renewal of the Treaty of commerce with Great Britain.

November 9.

The Gazette of Saturday contains two orders in council, for issuing Letters of Marque against Denmark and the Italian States under the influence of France.

Government are possessed of late accounts from Madrid, from Mr. Hunter, formerly consul general in Spain, and now commissary for prisoners of war, which are wholly silent on the subject of the reported revolution in Spain.

The object of Mr. Rose's mission we are given to understand, is to propose to America compensation for resigning the colonial carrying trade of France—by suspending our own navigation laws in favor of America, and permitting her to trade unrestrictedly in the produce of our West India islands.

November 10.

A Proclamation is now, we understand, in readiness for his Majesty's signature, declaring France and the whole of her vassal kingdoms in a state of siege, and prohibiting all intercourse with her or them, all vessels into her or their harbors, except of such as have cleared last from a British port, either home or foreign. There have, no doubt, been a variety of points to adjust, and there will, unquestionably, be some few evils arising from the enforcement of the measure. The preponderance of beneficial result to this country, is, we think, too obvious to have required so procrastinated a deliberation: and if petty interests are to be put in competition with national advantages, we can hardly commit one act of hostility against an enemy who would harass, starve, and distress his own subjects and vassals by every act of deprivation, merely to accelerate our ruin.

General Whitelocke was yesterday put under arrest, previous to his taking his trial upon seventeen charges, preferred against him by Sir Samuel Auchmuty.

Mr. G. H. Rose, who is charged with a particular mission to the government of the United States, sailed on Monday (the 9th) from Lymington, in the Statira frigate, for the Chesapeake.

GREAT NAVAL VICTORY.

We stop the press to state, that it is this afternoon very generally reported, we know not on what authority, that Ad. Lord Collingwood has taken Twelve Sail of the Line, as they were coming out of Cadiz.

Since writing the above, we learn that this intelligence comes as a rumor from William Stuart, to the Lords of the Admiralty.

Their Lordships, however, have no official information on the subject; but, from them, the news was publicly mentioned this day in chancery, by the Lord Chancellor, and great hopes are entertained that it will ultimately turn out to be well founded. Star.

LANDING OF LOUIS XVIII.

Louis XVIII and suite landed on Monday at Yarmouth, in consequence of orders to the Collector of the Customs at that port, brought down from the Secretary of State's Office, by Mr. Rose, Mr. Canning's Private Secretary, and the hon. Mr. Bagot. His Majesty landed under the title of the Duke De Lille, by which he will be properly known and addressed during his residence in this country. He was received on shore by the Duke De Bourbon, and several other branches of the Royal Family, who reached Yarmouth on Sunday afternoon. The populace cheered him on his landing. The whole of the family were to leave that place on Monday afternoon, for Gosfield-House, a seat of the Marquis of Buckingham, in Essex, which the noble owner has offered for the residence and accommodation of this illustrious visitor and his suite.

A proclamation, it is said, will be signed by his Majesty either this day or to-morrow, (some expect it will appear in this night's Gazette) declaring France and every other country under her controul and influence, in a state of siege, prohibiting all intercourse with her or them, and forbidding all ships to enter her or their harbors, except such as have cleared last from a port in Great Britain, or a port in the colonies belonging to Great Britain.

Thus whilst Bonaparte is boasting his decree against our Commerce will reduce us to solicit Peace, he will find that to far from being daunted by his decrees, or dismayed by his menaces, we boldly meet him with a measure of great vigour and decision, cut him off from all intercourse with three quarters of the globe, and say, that he shall receive none of the commodities and produce of the East Indies or the West, of Asia, of America, or of Africa, unless he consents to receive them from us.

We feel great pleasure in announcing to the public the safe arrival of the homeward bound East India fleet, under convoy of the Africa, of 64 guns. They passed Portsmouth last night, and we have no doubt reached the Downs early this morning. The fleet left St. Helena on the 30 of September.

November 11.

All friendly communications between Portugal and Britain has now finally terminated. His Majesty's brig Raleigh, of 18 guns, arrived at Plymouth from Oporto, has brought with her a proclamation issued by the Portuguese government, for shutting the ports of that country against our trade. The convoy, under the Lively frigate, which sailed from the Tagus on the 18th ult. has on board most of the British merchants and their families. And at Oporto the whole of the British property had been embarked, the greater part in Portuguese bottoms. These vessels were expected to sail on the 22d inst. under convoy of his Majesty's ship Lavinia.

That Portugal has concluded an amicable arrangement with France, at the expence of entering entirely into the views and wishes of Bonaparte against this country. When the Townshend packet left Lisbon, thirteen thousand Portugal troops were expected in the capital, intended, as was generally supposed, to carry into effect the order for the embarkation of the British merchants. And from communications that had taken place between the Prince Regent and Lord Strangford, it had been judged expedient to station the Raven brig off the Bar to prevent any of our vessels from entering the Tagus. In addition to this we have heard that accounts were yesterday received at the Admiralty, stating that batteries were erecting by the Portuguese for the avowed purpose of excluding the English.—Lord Strangford and Mr. Gambier still remained at Lisbon when the Townshend sailed; it was supposed they would come home in the Raven as soon as Portugal was entirely cleared of British property and persons.

The homeward bound fleet from Oporto, under convoy of the Boadicea, amounting to thirty two sail, part of which were from Newfoundland, passed up the Channel on Sunday last.

We have from the first moment that the idea was broached, discredited the Britannia intention of the court of Portugal to emigrate to the Brazils. It now appears that our scepticism was well founded, and that the Prince Regent, instead of planning a romantic embarkation to South America, has been making prudent arrangements with Bonaparte to secure his quiet stay in Portugal. That a good and perfect understanding has all along subsisted between our Ally and our Enemy on this subject, appears pretty plain, from the march of the French troops being so long delayed. This measure, though often talked of, has never been put in force; and yet had any doubt existed in the mind of Bonaparte as to the compliance of Portugal with his wishes, the most shallow politician must have seen that the necessity of prompt coercion was resolved on. It is now stated, in the last accounts from Lisbon, that a French army was not at all expected in Portugal.

That the greater part, if not the whole, of the British property has been saved, is a fortunate event, for which we are solely indebted to the generosity of the Prince Regent. In his negociations with France he must have attended to the interests of this country in a particular manner—a circumstance entitling him to our warmest gratitude; which feeling will not be lessened by reflecting on the total want either of precaution or exertion in our behalf manifested by ministers.

Sir Sidney Smith arrived at Falmouth on Monday, and immediately proceeded to hoist his flag on board of the London, of 98 guns, in Cawsand Bay. It is said that government have given orders to take up above 1000 tons of shipping for the use of the troops attached to this expedition.

Liverpool, Nov. 13.

A report, (semi official) prevails, that Admiral Purvis has captured 12 sail of the line of the Spanish fleet, on its way to the Tagus, to take possession of the Portuguese navy.

An order in council is in the Gazette of Tuesday last, declaring the whole of the ports of France, Italy, Holland, and all under the influence of France, in a state of Blockade, which will be rigorously enforced.

Boston, Dec. 14.

Capt. Gray, in the brig Dolphin, arrived on Saturday from Lisbon, brings accounts from that place to Oct. 24.—Capt. Gray reports, that a few days before he left Lisbon, a rumour was prevalent, said to come by the way of Gibraltar, that an engagement had taken place between an English and French and Spanish fleet, in which the latter were entirely defeated. This report, with a similar one received in England on the 10th Nov. renders it highly probable that a great naval action has been recently fought; but whether it be the English fleet under Ad. Purvis, on the Cadiz station, or by Ad. Collingwood, in the Mediterranean, time must unfold.

Something Extraordinary.—It is said General Turreau has entered a formal protest against any pacification between the United States and Great Britain.

New-York, Dec 7.

The prospect thickens.—The following is extracted from a letter received by a merchant of this city, by the Calypso.

Bordeaux, Oct 16.

"Wm. Lee, Esq. American Consul in this city has received a letter from Gen. Armstrong, desiring him to advise all masters of vessels to quit this port in as short a time as possible. The like advice, it is said, has been given to the Consuls at the other sea ports.—Bonaparte will have no neutrals—America will have to fight for or against him."

Washington, Dec 8.

"You may, perhaps, be anxious to know how far the news which has lately been published by the government paper here is true. The following is the result of my enquiries, and I think I may assure you it is correct.

The British government have objected indeed refused, to blend the subject of impressment, with the affair of the Chesapeake, and they consider the act of the President in prohibiting British ships of war from supplies, &c &c. as diminishing the amount of reparation due from the unauthorized attack on the Chesapeake. A minister is certainly coming out to settle this affair exclusively, and the other points may be considered afterwards.

The principle of search of national ships is not contended for by the British government, and Berkeley's conduct is disavowed; the minister explicitly denying that he had any right to determine on hostility even admitting that the previous acts of our own government might have justified such a step in his sovereign.

The President and the officers of government must have spread the alarm of war; but I cannot persuade myself that the people will rush on themselves into a war on such grounds as are now held."

The Subscriber begs leave to acquaint the members of the Agricultural and Commercial Society, that he has withdrawn himself from that Society, & that his secession would not have been accompanied with reluctance, were it not connected with the displeasure of one of the most respectable members of the institution.—Upon leaving it, he has the pleasing reflection of having produced to the Society the model of a machine, which upon the most simple and self-evident principles of mechanism & elemental power, and at an expence not exceeding two pounds, will, with the attendance of one man, perform the labour of twenty, by any known manual process in the preparation of hemp.—On entering the Society, it was upon the broad and beneficent principle of promoting improvements in the Culture & preparation of that article, an object of the utmost magnitude and importance to this Province, and the fountain from whence we flow, but when he reviewed the progress of a patronage assumed for an invidious purpose, & ending in an act of piracy, he felt himself, as a member of that Society, and on a variety of grounds, at liberty to mention the depredation. J. CAMERON.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New York, to a respectable Mercantile House in Albany, dated 14th Dec.

"This afternoon the officers of the Revenge came up in a pilot-boat: they had dispatches from Mr Munroe and Mr Armstrong, which were immediately sent off to the seat of government. The officers have mentioned that Bonaparte declared to Mr Armstrong, that America shall not remain neutral, and they have permitted the printers to publish it on their authority.

"The news by the Brutus, which left England two days after the Revenge, states, that a Proclamation, declaring all the ports of France and its dependencies in a state of blockade, was expected to appear the day after."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman now at Washington, to the editor of the Freeman's Journal, dated December 8.

"The house of representatives were yesterday several hours in conclave, on a message from the president, understood, out of doors, to relate to our affairs with Great Britain. Nothing is suffered to transpire, but it is believed that there is no ground for new alarm. I know at least one member, who had formed an opinion before the dispatches came to hand, that as matters now stood, if we should have war, it would be our own faults; and I am happy to assure you that his opinion, instead of being weakened by the dispatches, has been completely confirmed."

LONDON, Nov. 11.

The letters by the Townshend packet from Lisbon, were delivered out this morning. She sailed on the 21st ult. At the time of her sailing the Royal Family remained at Lisbon: a large body of Portuguese troops, some letters state 25,000, had been ordered from the interior to keep the populace quiet. A considerable ferment existed, and provisions were beginning to grow scarce. The measure of ordering troops from the interior, had been reported to, according to the intelligence brought by a passenger, in consequence of the discovery of a plot to assassinate the Prince Regent and the Ministers, and to corrupt the troops. A Frenchman, who had been long employed in the police at Lisbon, is said to have been detected in endeavouring to seduce the Portuguese soldiery, upwards of 2000 of whom he had brought over to his designs. The troops were therefore ordered from the interior, and general consternation pervaded the court and capital.

No French troops had entered Portugal at the departure of the packet, but it is stated that a division of Spanish troops had arrived at Badajos, on its way to Portugal, and that 60,000 French, under the command of General Junot, had entered Spain for the same destination. The report of the death of the king of Spain is unfounded.

The Lively frigate sailed four days before the packet, with a fleet of about 50 sail for England—nearly the whole of the English merchants, with their property, are on board this fleet.

The Captain of the packet received an order if he should fall in with the Auckland, or any other packet, to direct them not to enter the Tagus. The ports were expected to be shut on the 25th ult.

The Cartaret and Cornwallis packets arrived from Malta and Gibraltar. On the 4th of last month Lord Collingwood returned with his squadron to Malta.

On the 16th, nine sail of Russian ships of the line and a frigate, arrived at Gibraltar.

Sixteen hundred of the German Infantry, and about 500 of the German Cavalry, remain on board the transports in the Downs, under orders for Portsmouth.

It is said that the report of Sir Samuel Auchmuty being about to prefer charges against General Whitelocke, is unfounded. However that may be, the public require that an investigation should take place.

In consequence of the order for Letters of Marque and Reprisals issued against Denmark, the Danish seamen are now considered prisoners of war, and are in that character detained at all the ports of the United Kingdom. About 150 Captains and Mates of Danish merchantmen attended yesterday at the Alien Office, and were sent on their parole to Reading.

A dreadful carnage has taken place in Africa among some of the principal tribes there. From all we have been enabled to learn, it appears that one of the Chiefs, a very rich and powerful Prince, of the tribe of the Affenties, died, and in conformity with the custom was buried, and a large portion of his treasure deposited in his grave. The Chief of another Tribe found means to approach the tomb, from whence he stole the money; the violation was discovered—the thief was pursued, who it was discovered had taken refuge with another Chief, with whom he had shared the booty, and these two were joined by a third. These three tribes were followed by the party aggrieved, with a very large army. One of the offending parties proceeded to the English fort of Anamaboe, where 7000 women and children had previously taken shelter: the fort was attacked by the Affenties, in the defence of which 1700 of them were killed. They were afterwards informed that the Chief of the tribe of whom they were in search had escaped to Cape Coast Castle, for which place they instantly commenced their march, and on their arrival there, he was given up by the Governor, with whom they separated on the most friendly terms, and proceeded again in search of the other offenders, carrying fire and murder through the whole of the country through which they passed. When at Cape Coast, they had proceeded about 600 miles from their native country, and it is said, that in the course of the march not less than from 30 to 40,000 persons had fallen victims to their ferocity.

A proclamation has been issued at Gibraltar, in pursuance of the one recently made by the court of Madrid. It commands all subjects of Spain instantly to quit the garrison: and prohibits the stay of any foreigners whatever, but under certain restrictions.

A private letter from Heisingburgh, mentions, that Russia had threatened to march an army through Finland, if the King of Sweden persisted in carrying on the war.

The Treaty of Tilsit is again said to be very unpopular in St. Petersburgh.

Dispatches have been received from his excellency Lord Granville Leveson Gower, our Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburgh. It is supposed that they are of the most interesting nature, as a cabinet council assembled at a late hour at the foreign office, to deliberate on their contents.

2 o'clock P. M. We have just seen letters from Bilboa, which state that no French troops had entered Spain, and that none were expected. These letters are totally silent on the reported death of the King of Spain.

Letters from Badajoz furnish the important intelligence that in consequence of an arrangement concluded between the Prince Regent and Bonaparte, the sea-ports of Portugal are immediately to be garrisoned by Spaniards.—They enter under the name of the Auxiliary Army of Portugal.

TUNIS, July 25.

In the month of June, 1806, the Bey of Tunis tired of the dependence which the Dey of Algiers imposed on him, took the resolution to free himself from the yoke, and to avenge the Tunisians of the injuries the Algerines caused them the year before, when the latter took Tunis and decapitated the Bey. An article of the treaty at that time concluded, obliged the Tunisians to Demolish the fortresses on the frontiers; but the Bey immediately set about repairing them; at the same time he established two camps on the frontiers of the two Regencies, and having discovered that some of his subjects corresponded with the Bey of Constantine, he caused nine to be arrested, one of whom had his head cut off, and the other eight received a thousand strokes of a stick, and the envoy of the Bey of Constantine was banished the country. At the same time the Bey of Tunis declared that he had no hostile view, and that he only meant to secure his independence.

On this information, the Dey of Algiers assembled an army, under pretence of reducing some rebels to obedience, but shortly declared his real intentions, and in the beginning of July his troops begun their march to attack the Tunisian states. The Tunisian army was commanded by Mustapha, surnamed the Englishman, formerly Bey of Constantine, but obliged to fly from Algiers, and take refuge at Tunis. The Dey of Algiers, before his came to the last extremity, proposed as conditions of peace, that he should pay a large sum of money, and that Mustapha and his son should be delivered up to him. At first, there were some negociations entered into; but at the end of August war was definitively declared.—Two Algerine corsairs attacked a Tunisian vessel, in sight of Algiers, but the latter escaped through her superiority of Sailing.—Things remained, notwithstanding, in the same state, each party cementing himself with making preparations, until the beginning of January, 1807; when two Algerine frigates commenced the blockade of the harbor of Tunis. Notwithstanding the Tunisians threatened with a numerous army, to attack Constantine, whose new Bey, with all his family, had been murdered, the expedition was retarded from day to day, and a great number of Arabs joined the Tunisian army, which amounted to 40,000. The Cherifs of Constantine entered into a negociation; and the Dey of Algiers, uneasy at its progress, and harrassed by the rebels of Oran, made some offers of accommodation about the end of March; but the danger daily becoming more pressing, he detached, on the 2d of April, a reinforcement for the army; and at the same time four vessels, laden with artillery, sailed for Bonne.

The Tunisians laid siege to Constantine, but experienced an unexpected resistance, and nearly the whole of the advanced guard of the Tunisians were made prisoners. The cowardice of the Agas, and a sudden panic seizing the Tunisians, obliged them at last to raise the siege, and retire in the greatest disorder, pursued by the united troops of Algiers and Constantine. The Dey of Algiers caused this victory to be celebrated with the greatest pomp, and announced his intention of making the Regency of Tunis a fourth province of Algiers, and created a new Bey for that city, which he considered already conquered.—In the mean time the Bey of Tunis assembled the remainder his forces, and gave the command to the keeper of his Seals, with orders to give battle to the Algerines, which he did on the 14th of July, in which the Algerines were completely beaten; all their artillery, baggage, flores, 130 tents, and 4000 camels, fell into the hands of the Tunisians.—The greater part of the Algerine army were composed of Turks, and taken prisoners. The extreme heat of the weather prevented the Tunisians recommencing the siege of Constantine; but they are preparing for the enterprize with great prospect of success, the Algerine power being so much reduced, as to require a length of time to recover from its disasters.

New-York, Dec. 12.

The Charleston Courier of Dec. 2, says, "Capt. Cottin, of brig Eliza, which arrived from Congo on Monday last, reports, that 15 days ago, he was boarded by the Lilly, British ship of war, 20 days from England for Antigua, and treated with marked politeness. They informed Capt. C. that there had been a very great probability of a war between Great Britain and the United States, but that it had been amicably arranged, otherwise he would have been a good prize. The seamen's protections were not asked for, nor the smallest trouble given. The Lilly heretofore has rendered herself conspicuous in her conduct towards the Americans.

The following is an extract of a letter from an intelligent gentleman in Paris, dated Oct. 24, 1807.

"It has been currently reported and generally believed here within a few days past, that the Emperor has asserted that he shall consider all nations who have a Minister in London, as his enemies, and treat them accordingly. How much confidence is to be placed in this report I cannot say.

It is is true, it will soon be publicly known."

A court martial has been summoned by the Secretary of the Navy for the trial of Commodore Barron.

It is stated from Washington, that Congress are about investing the President with power to suspend the non-importation act, if, in his opinion, the state of our relations with England should require such a measure.

December 18.

Extract of a letter from a respectable commercial house in Amsterdam, to their correspondents in Philadelphia, dated Oct. 16.—"The Consul of the United States has requested the departure of all the American vessels here to be hastened as much as possible—it is feared matters between France and the United States, are not on a friendly footing."

The Prince of Peace has caused to be published in the Gazette of Madrid, a notice of which the following is an extract:

"The ship la Plata, belonging to the Philippine company, and commanded by D. J. Monteverde, going from Manilla to Lima, has discovered, the 18th Feb. 1806, a group of Islands, the most southern of which as situated about 9 degrees 27 minutes of north latitude, 168 degrees 5 minutes of longitude, to the eastward of Cadiz. These islands, 29 in number, occupy a space of 40 leagues from N E to S W and are separated by channels one or two leagues wide; they are low, and are intersected by forests and rivulets. Their inhabitants are of the most pacific disposition—they are tall and well made, robust and agile. Their complexion is of an olive colour, their noses flat, and their hair black and curled, but rather long.

Expedition against Manilla.—We have been favored with an extract of a letter from Batavia, dated July 25th, 1807, to a gentleman in this city, stating that dispatches had been received by the government at Batavia from Temar, of a large fleet of 60 sail of British men of war and transports, with 20,000 land forces on board, having sailed by, supposed to be intended against the Island of Manilla. The fleet was fitted out at Bengal and Calcutta.—U. S. Gazette, Philadelphia.

Humber, Dec. 18, 1807.

Canadian Courant Extraordinary,
MONTREAL, Jan. 5th.

We received this afternoon, a handbill printed at Burlington on the 1st inst. containing the following news of the first importance.

EMBARGO!

"MIDDLEBURY, Dec. 31.

"A gentleman has just arrived here in three days from Boston, bringing a paper of that town, which contains an act of Congress laying an Embargo. As this is of great importance, I have inclosed a copy for your information."

An Act laying an Embargo on all ships and vessels in the ports and harbors of the United States.

BE it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States, That an Embargo be and hereby is laid on all ships and vessels in the ports and places within the limits of the United States, cleared or not cleared, bound to any foreign port or place; and that no clearance be furnished to any ship or vessel bound to such foreign port or place, except vessels under the immediate direction of the President of the United States; and that the President be authorised to give such instructions to the officers of the Revenue and of the Navy and Revenue Cutters of the United States, as shall appear best adapted for carrying the same into effect. Provided, That nothing herein contained, shall be construed to prevent the departure of any foreign ship or vessel, either in ballast, or with the goods, wares and merchandize on board of such foreign ship or vessel, when notified of this act.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That during the continuance of this act, no vessel, having on board goods, wares, or merchandize, shall be allowed to depart from one port of the United States, to another within the same, unless the master, owner, consignee or factor of such vessel, shall first give bond with one or more sureties to the Collector of the District from which she is bound to depart, in a sum of double the value of the vessel and cargo, that the said goods, wares and merchandize, shall be relanded in some port in the United States, dangers of the seas excepted; which bond and also a certificate from the collector where the same may be relanded, shall, by the collectors respectively, be transmitted to the Secretary of the Treasury. All armed vessels possessing public commissions from any foreign power, are not to be considered as liable to the Embargo laid by this act.

OUR ADMINISTRATION

A letter from a member of Congress to the editor of the N. Y. Evening Post, dated Dec. 19th, observes,

"Yesterday we received a message from the president of a confidential nature. We immediately closed our doors, and they are still closed.—Of course I am not permitted to inform you either what the President has communicated to us, or what we have done in consequence of it. But I may be permitted to tell you we are doing no good—I fear we are about to plunge the nation into the most dreadful calamities, unnecessarily and wantonly.—I am now more than ever persuaded that there is too much French Influence and it is well that those who succumb to it, should act in secret—this is the reason why we sit with closed doors—Our deliberations no more require secrecy than when we were debating on the subject of fortifications—nay, we are, in my opinion, violating the great rights of the people, by sitting at this moment with closed doors. I object to you in terms sufficiently strong, my abhorrence of what we are doing, and the manner in which we are doing it.

Latest from Washington.

Mr. Munroe arrived at Norfolk on Saturday.—Letters have been received from him by members of Congress since his arrival. It is rumored that Mr. Rose, the British Envoy, is coming up the Bay.

What measures Congress will adopt in this alarming and perilous crisis, it remains yet to be seen. To avert the impending danger and provide an effectual security for our rights against the belligerent powers, will require all the wisdom of the government. To them the community look for direction and support. They will be held responsible for their measures in this critical moment; and great and awful is that responsibility.

It appears by several letters inserted in the Burlington Centinel of January 1st, that Dr. Bullus had arrived in the Revenge from England and France, with dispatches from Gen. Armstrong, &c.—The ideas of the writers of the several letters appear to be extremely at variance—one letter states, that there was an appearance that Mr. Jefferson and his party, of which Mr. Madison is the principal, were determined on a war with Great Britain.

Another letter remarks, "It is rumored here that these dispatches give information of Bonaparte's intention that his decree shall be inforced in its utmost rigor, and further, that there shall no longer be any neutral nation; that in case we will join him in a war against Great Britain, he will guarantee to us the cession of Canada and Nova Scotia at a general peace; that instead of interceding in our behalf at the Spanish court for the Floridas, he has secured them to himself, ostensibly to enable him the better to recover St. Domingo, but in truth more effectually to annoy us."

Upon the whole it appears, that the crisis has arrived, that the United States will find it very difficult any longer to maintain their neutrality—that the Administration of that country are hostile to Great Britain and partial to France, is too evident to admit of a doubt—but yet the great body of the people must be almost ruined by a war with Great Britain.

As it relates to us—we surely ought to be on the alert—and it must rouse the spirit and resentment of every loyal, honest Canadian—that he is to be bartered and exchanged like sheep or horses, by the "Infamous Usurper of the Throne of the Louises and the Henrys, and the Murderer of the last hopes of the Illustrious House of Condé:"

Gov. REVOLUTION IN SPAIN.

The Spencer, arrived at Baltimore from St. Sebastians, which she left Nov. 10th, brings advice, that a serious rebellion had shewn itself in Spain, instigated and headed by the Prince of Asturias, and others of the Nobility, to effect a revolution;—that the French army, under Junot, which had been on the march to Portugal, were proceeding to Madrid, to defend that city against the rebels; and that a number of the disaffected nobles, with the prince, had been taken and were imprisened. ☞ This news is corroborated by a Proclamation of the Spanish Government.

FROM THE BOSTON GAZETTE.

Comparative dangers of our two threatened wars with England and France.

To the former we are vulnerable at every point—to the latter, at none.—Great Britain can destroy our commerce with all nations—she can even destroy our coasting trade and fisheries—France can only affect that part of our trade carried on to the Continent of Europe.—At war with England, our Export Trade, from one hundred millions, would dwindle down to five millions, or even less—At war with France, we should still export the twenty-six millions we now export to Great Britain and her dependencies, and perhaps this would increase; it could not diminish.

In an English war, we should be cut off from all West India and East India supplies.

In a French war we should be bountifully supplied, and cheaply furnished with these articles.

Fighting Great Britain, our Fishermen would starve or be taken prisoners.—Fighting France, their business would be reduced, but not destroyed, and at least their persons would be safe.

In combating England, we contribute, as far as in us lies, to the subjugation of ourselves. Victory would be worse than defeat, because it would hasten our own downfall, by forwarding the views of France:—We should not, in such a war, be able to pray that our "enemies might be confounded," but we should be compelled by a regard to our national safety, to reverse the Liturgy, and pray, "that our enemies might prevail."

In combating France, on the other hand, we should only anticipate a few years, what we must come to, as soon as she has conquered England.—Fight or submit must be our fate as soon as that event happens. But let it not be understood however, that we are in favor of war with either.—We are for peace with all nations, and honest Washington and Adams Neutrality—Not your mean, cowardly, short sighted policy, which under color of false impartiality, would suck the blood, and destroy the fairest of the only nation which is now defending our rights and liberties as well as her own.

The Real Danger!!!

Let us not be deceived!! Our Machiavels may intend this noise about France merely as a blind to their secret views.—The True—The Real—The Only Danger of the Nation arises from a British War into which certain men are determined to plunge us.

The York Gazette.

YORK, JANUARY 20, 1808

This day His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the usual formalities, opened the Session of the Legislature, and was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houses:—

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

It is with the highest satisfaction that I express on this occasion, the sentiments which I entertain of that spirit of Loyalty, which was lately so conspicuously displayed in calling out the Militia of this Province.

The zeal and unanimity, which at that time prevailed, and the voluntary offers of service which was then tendered, evince that, His Majesty's subjects in this Colony, have a King whom they love, and a Constitution, which they are ready to defend.

Since the last session of this Legislature, the necessary measures have been taken on my part, and on that of the Trustees appointed by me, for the establishing of Public Schools; institutions which I trust will be the means, not only of communicating useful knowledge to the youth of the Province, but also of instilling into their minds the principles of Religion and Loyalty.

I think it proper to remind you that the act for affording relief to those persons who may be entitled, as heirs or devisees of the nominees of the crown, to lands in this Province, will shortly expire. It will be for you to consider the expediency of the further continuation of that act.

Your past experience, as well as your local knowledge, renders you particularly qualified to discover what still may be wanting to secure the peace, welfare, and good government of the Province; to promote the important purpose, I am well assured will be the object of your deliberations, as it shall be the ruling principle of my conduct.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

I shall give orders to the proper officers to lay before you the Public Accounts, not doubting but they will be considered with that attention which the nature of the subject requires.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House Assembly,

The events of the times, and the particular situation of the Province, require from you more than an ordinary degree of attention and care.

From the short experience that I have had during the last session of this Legislature, I entertain a well founded confidence, that firmness, with moderation will govern your conduct on the present occasion; and that you will convince His Majesty's subjects in this Colony that the authority with which you are invested by the Constitution, has not been delegated to you in vain.

G. O. CASTLE OF ST. LEWIS,
Quebec, 24th Dec. 1807.

INTELLIGENCE having been received that a Frenchman whose real name is Cazeau or Cassino, but who probably goes by some other name, is now in the Province busily employed in the traitorous endeavor of alienating the minds of His Majesty's Canadian Subjects from their allegiance to the Government, as well as in that of imposing on the credulity of the ignorant part of the people, and, by an artful and insidious language of which he is represented as a thorough master, to induce them to an attachment to the Infamous Usurper of the Throne of the Louises and the Henrys and the Murderer of the last hopes of the Illustrious House of Condé. It is therefore his Excellency the Governor General's orders that the utmost diligence be used for the discovering and bringing to justice this Spy and Traitor; and all true Canadians and faithful Militiamen are called upon to use their best endeavors for apprehending him accordingly.

And as a further inducement for their exerting themselves in this case, his Excellency is pleased to promise a Reward of Fifty Pounds to such person or persons as shall either themselves apprehend the person beforenamed and carry him before any Magistrate or Officer of Militia, or as shall give such information as may be the means of his being so apprehended and delivered up.

The aforesaid Cazeau or Cassino is between 30 and 40 years of age, near six feet high, good teeth, fair complexion, hair short and curly and of a sandy colour and rather coarse. He speaks English well, and it is supposed may be passing himself for an American.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS divers persons who of late have received Orders in Council, to enable them to obtain Grants by Patent of part of the waste Lands of the Crown in this Province, have not by themselves or by their Agents, applied at the Surveyor General's Office for a Location of such Lands, and have also neglected to perform certain other Conditions required of them by an Order in Council of the 30th of December, 1802: It is hereby notified by order of his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council to all whom it may concern,

That in all Petitions praying for a Grant of part of the waste Lands of the Crown, the Petitioner shall by himself or Agent (if not privileged) state in his Petition as hereafore, that in case the same should be favorably answered, he undertakes and is ready, within three days from the date of the Order in Council for a Grant to him of such Lands, to pay into the hands of the Receiver General the Fees allowed by his Majesty to be charged on the Patent and for the Survey of the said Lands. And that no Petition from any such person as aforesaid, shall be received by the Clerk of the Executive Council, without the said Statement being inserted therein.

2d. That every Petitioner as aforesaid, shall within four days from the date of the said Order in Council in his favor, by himself or Agent, produce to the Clerk of the Executive Council, a receipt from the Receiver General for the before-mentioned Fees without which no Grant of the said Lands shall be obtained by virtue of such order.

3d. That after the said Receipts shall be delivered as aforesaid, to the Clerk of the Executive Council, he shall give the party in whose favor the Order in Council is made an attested copy of the same, together with an attested copy of the said Receipt.

4th. That the attested copies of the said order and receipt being produced to the Attorney General, a Fiat shall be given by him for the obtaining of the Patent for the said Lands, addressed to the Surveyor General who thereupon shall, at the desire of the Petitioner or his Agent, by permission of the Lieutenant Governor, locate the quantity of Land in the said order in Council specified, & make out a description of the same.

5th. That the said description of the Surveyor General being delivered to the Secretary of the Province, he shall engross the Patent in conformity thereto, and procure the same to be perfected (unless where Settlement Duties are to be performed) within the space of twenty one days from the date of the Order in Council for the quantity of land to be granted to the Petitioner contained in the said description.

6th. That U. E. Loyalists, the sons and daughters of U. E. Loyalists and Military claimants, shall be subject to the above mentioned regulations, except so far as such regulations respect, or have a relation to the payment of Fees. JOHN SMALL,

FRANCIS GORE Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME GREETING:

WHEREAS there are divers persons who were resident in the British Colonies in America, before the breaking out of the American War, who joined the Royal Standard previous to the treaty of separation in the year 1783, and who have resided in this Province on, or before, the 28th day of July 1798, and have continued to reside therein since that period; but have neglected to obtain in due time the insertion of their Names on the U. E. List, or have been suspended from the same, and are thereby deprived of the advantages intended to be bestowed by His Majesty on that meritorious class of subjects.

AND WHEREAS there are other persons who in like manner did join the Royal Standard, and who were also resident in this Province on or before the 28th day of July, 1798, but have since died without having their Names inserted on that List, whereby their Children become deprived of the privileges that they otherwise would have derived from His Majesty's Bounty.

NOW KNOW YE, That I FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant Governor, as aforesaid, solicitous to promote the welfare and happiness of His Majesty's subjects of every description in this Province, more especially of those who have so strongly manifested their attachment and Loyalty to His Majesty; and also solicitous that the Children of such persons, who, when alive, were entitled to have been placed on the U. E. List, but are now removed by death from being admitted to that privilege, may reap the fruits of the Loyalty of their Fathers; DO, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, hereby notify and declare, that the Names of such persons who were resident in the British Colonies in America, before the breaking out of the American War, who joined the Royal Standard previous to the treaty of separation in the year 1783, and who have resided in this Province, on or before the 28th day of July, 1798, and have continued to reside therein since that period, or may have been suspended from the U. E. List, may, upon application being made, and proof produced thereof, to the satisfaction of the Executive Government, be now inserted thereon.

And I hereby, with the like advice and consent, further notify and declare, that the Names of such persons as are now deceased, who in their life time were entitled to have been placed on the U. E. List, and who were also resident in this Province on or before the 28th day of July 1798, may, upon due proof thereof to the Executive Government, be also inserted in that List, to the end that the Children of such Loyal and faithful Subjects may be made partakers of His Majesty's Bounty to its fullest extent.

GIVEN under my Hand and Seal at Arms in Council at York, this 31st day of October, in the 47th year of our Reign, and in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and six.

FRANCIS GORE, Lt. Gov't.

His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

Proclamation.

By His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS in and by an act of the parliament of this province, made and passed in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, entitled, "an act to revive and continue an act passed in the forty second year of his present majesty, entitled, "an act to enable the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government of this province, to appoint one or more additional port or ports, place or places of entry within this province, and to appoint one or more collector or collectors at the same, respectively, after reciting that an act passed in the forty second year of his present majesty, entitled "an act to enable the governor, lieutenant governor, or person administering the government of this province, to appoint one or more additional port or ports, place or places of entry, within this province, and to appoint one or more collector or collectors at the same respectively, which was to continue in force for three years, and no longer, was expired, and it was expedient that the same should be revived and continued—it is enacted that the said act should, from and after the passing of that act, be revived, and the same was thereby revived and continued in force and effect for two years, and no longer. And whereas, in with with reference to the interest of his majesty's government of this province, as to the convenience of importers of goods and merchandize, and of the merchants and others, his majesty's subjects resident within this province, it hath been ascertained that there exists immediate occasion for appointing two additional ports and places of entry and clearance at the places herein after specified.

Be it therefore known, to all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant governor of this province, in exercise of the power and authority so vested in me, in and by the said recited act, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of the said province, do hereby declare and appoint, that in addition to the ports of entry and clearance established by and under the authority of a certain act of the said provincial parliament, passed in the forty first year of his majesty's reign, entitled, "an act for granting to his majesty, his heirs and successors, to and for the uses of this province, the like duties on goods and merchandize brought into this province from the United States of America, as are now paid on goods and merchandize imported from Great Britain and other places," and also by and under the authority of the above in part recited act, passed in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and two, the places herein after described and specified, that is to say, the village of St. Joseph, on the island of St. Joseph, and the eastern extremity of the carrying place, and on the north side of the river St. Mary, at, or near the Falls of St. Mary, in the Western District, shall from the Eighteenth day of this present month of May, severally and respectively, be and the same are by these presents severally and respectively established and proclaimed to be ports and places of entry and clearance for all goods and merchandize, not being entirely prohibited, and for the payment of all duties liable to be paid for all goods and merchandize brought into this province from the United States of America, imported and established by virtue of the said act, to passed in the forty-first year of his said majesty's reign, and according to the direction of the same.

GIVEN under my hand and seal at Arms at York, this second day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seven, and in the forty-seventh year of his said Majesty's reign.

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Govr.

By his Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, 23d January, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to all whom it may concern, that His Majesty has been pleased to issue his Royal Warrant, in the words following to wit

George R.

WHEREAS a Contract has been entered into by the principal Officers of His Majesty's Navy, with Messrs Scott, Idles & Co. for supplying His Majesty's Dock Yards in England and the West Indies, with Canada Masts and Oak Timber, and it being stipulated in the said Contract, that no Masts or Bowsprits which are cut in His Majesty's Colonies, shall be delivered at the Dock Yards unless they are cut by Licence from His Majesty's Surveyor of the Woods in North America, and also if it should be required, under the inspection of this Officer Upon the representation of the matter to Us by the Commissioners for executing the Office of High Admiral of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, We have thought fit to give Empire, Licence and Permission unto the said Messrs Scott, Idles & Co. their Agents and Workmen, to travel into and search out Woods in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, where we have reserved to us the property in any Woods or Trees, and the right of cutting them, and there to fell and cut so many good and sound Trees as may answer the number and dimensions mentioned in the said Contract, (a copy whereof, duly certified by one of our Principal Secretaries of State, is hereunto annexed) and to cause the said Trees through our said Woods to the water side, in order to the transporting and bringing them home our Navy without incurring any penalty or forfeiture by reason thereof—and also Will, We do hereby require as well our Governor or Lieutenant Governor of our said Colonies, as you, and all our Officers, Ministers, and Loving Subjects, whom it may concern, to be aiding and assisting to them, their Agents and Workmen, in whatsoever may relate to the due execution of this service, pursuant to the Contract aforementioned. And for so doing this shall be your Warrant. Given at our Court at Saint James's, the second day of October, 1807, in the forty-seventh year of our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command,
(Signed) CASTLEREAGH.

TO our Trusty and Well Beloved Sir John Wentworth, Baronet, Surveyor General of our Woods on the Continent of America, or to his Deputy or Deputies, or to the said Surveyor General of our said Woods, his Deputy or Deputies, for the time being, and all others whom it may concern.

WE the undersigned Contractors, named in His Majesty's Gracious Warrant, do hereby appoint Messrs. Mure and Jaffile, our Agents at Quebec, for the purposes within mentioned;

LONDON, 9th October, 1807.

(Signed) SCOTT, IDLES & Co.

His Excellency further gives Notice, that a Contract has been made under the authority of the said Warrant, with Messrs. Scott, Idles & Co. Merchants in London, who have appointed Messrs. Mure and Jaffile, Merchants at Quebec, to be their Agents, for the purposes therein mentioned, and that no irregularity may take place on the part of the said Contractors, their Agents or Workmen, His Excellency has thought proper to order the Deputy Surveyor General of the Woods, to mark such White Pine Trees as come within His Majesty's Orders, expressed in the above Warrant.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN SMALL,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

For Sale,

YORK, JANUARY 27, 1808

Disappointed in our supply of Paper by an accident be-yond our control, we have to crave further indulgence from our Patrons.

The last sheet which our last weeks paper was composed and parts spoil, caused some errors and omissions in the copy of His Excellency's Speech, as the opening of the Session is to-day for them, we now republish it correctly

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly.

IT is with the highest satisfaction, that I express on this occasion, the sentiments which I entertain of that spirit of Loyalty, which was lately so conspicuously and universally displayed, on calling out the Militia of this Province,

The zeal and unanimity, which at that time prevailed, and the voluntary offers of Service, which were then tendered, evince, that His Majesty's Subjects in this Colony have a King whom they love, and a Constitution which they are ready to defend.

Since the last Session of this Legislature the necessary measures have been taken on my part, and on that of the Trustees appointed by me, for the establishing of Public Schools, Institutions which I trust will be the means, not only of communicating useful knowledge to the Youth of this Province, but also of instilling into their minds the principles of Religion and of Loyalty.

I think it proper to remind you that the Act for affording relief to those Persons, who may be entitled, as Heirs or Devisees of the Mimees of the Crown, to Lands in this Province, will shortly expire—It will be for you to consider the expediency of the further continuation of that Act.

Your past experience, as well as your local knowledge, render you particularly qualified to discover, what Bill may be wanting, to secure the Peace, Welfare, and good Government of this Province.—To promote this important purpose, I am well assured will be the object of your deliberations, as it shall be the ruling Principle of my Conduct.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly.

I shall give orders to the proper Officer to lay before you the Public Accounts, not doubting but they will be considered, with that attention which the nature of the subject requires.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly.

The events of the eighth, and the consequent situation of this Province, acquire from you more than an ordinary degree of attention and care.

From the short experience, that I have had during the last Session of this Legislature, I entertain a well founded Confidence, that firmness with moderation will govern your Conduct on the present occasion, and that you will convince his Majesty's Subjects in this Colony, that the Authority with which you are invested, by the Constitution, has not been delegated to you in vain.

Address of the Legislative Council, in answer to His Excellency's Speech, at the opening of the present Session of Parliament.

To His Excellency Francis Gore, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE the Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Members of the Legislative Council of the Province of Upper Canada in Parliament assembled, beg leave to offer our thanks to your Excellency for your most gracious Speech, on the opening of this present Session of the Legislature.

We most sincerely congratulate your Excellency on the utter and perfect, which have been so eminently displayed by the Militia of this Province, who by their late conduct, have manifested their attachment to the Constitution, and their love to the King.

We entertain also the pleasing hope, that our Public Schools, which have lately been established, will not only be the means of a diffusion of useful knowledge, but also of promoting a spirit of Religion and Loyalty, amongst the rising generation.

The attention of your Excellency to the interests of those persons, who are Heirs or Devisees of the Mannees of the Crown to Lands in this Province, demands our grateful acknowledgments, and we will take into our serious consideration, the expediency of continuing that law, which has already been enacted for their benefit.

Encouraged by your Excellency's recommendation, we will to the best of our abilities and knowledge, turn our attention to what bill may be wanting to secure the peace, welfare, and good government of this Province; and being deeply impressed with the respect of the times, and with the peculiar circumstances in which we are placed, we will use our utmost endeavours, with moderation and with firmness to discharge the important trust committed to our care.

Signed, THOMAS SCOTT, Speaker.

Legislative Council Chamber, York, 26th February, 1808.

THE GOVERNOR'S ANSWER.

Honorable Gentlemen,

I thank you for your very loyal Address—Nothing can afford me more real satisfaction, than your confidence in directing your attention to what bill may be wanting, to secure the peace, welfare, and good government of this Province.

HOUSE of ASSEMBLY.—Jany. 26.

The House met, and the Speaker read from the Chair His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor's Speech. The Solicitor General, Mr. Sherwood and Mr. Macdonell were then ordered to withdraw, and prepare an Address in answer, as expressed in the Speech.

The Secretary of the Province appeared at the Bar of the House, and took and left Mr. Speaker, that the Speech which the Lieutenant Governor had been pleased to make to both Houses of Assembly, had been reported, and was ready to be delivered to them, if they pleased to receive it. The Speaker informed the House, that he had that day received a Message from His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, by the Secretary of the Province, desiring that the House would attend His Excellency immediately in the Council Chamber, and that he had accordingly with the House, attended there, and heard His Excellency's Speech, which he had been pleased to deliver to both Houses of Assembly, and delivered a copy thereof into the hands of the Speaker, which was then read by the Clerk, and is ordered to be printed.

Mr. Sherwood moved, seconded by Mr. Macdonell, that the House do now resolve itself into a Committee of the whole House, to consider of such Supplies as may be necessary to be granted to His Majesty, for the purposes mentioned in His Excellency's Speech.

Mr. Willcocks moved, seconded by Mr. Wilkinson, that this House do now adjourn.

The Speaker then put the question on Mr. Willcocks's motion, which was negatived on the following division:

Mr. Willcocks	Mr. Sherwood
Mr. Wilkinson	Mr. Macdonell
	Mr. Speaker

The House then resolved itself into a Committee of the whole House, on the Speech of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, to both Houses of Assembly.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair, and the House was resumed.

*Mr. Sherwood reported, that the Committee had had under their consideration to them referred, His Excellency's Speech, and had directed him to move the House for leave to bring in a Bill for granting to His Majesty a sum of money to defray the charges of the Militia Service, and other contingencies of the Province, and had also tish governments had advised them to be still, and by no means to interfere, should the two nations happen to quarrel—That the Delawares, anxious to learn the disposition of their neighbors the Kikapoos, and other nations, had sent speeches to them to that effect, and were well satisfied that they were peaceably inclined. As my informant bears the character of a sober, trusty and intelligent person, I give credit to his report."

We have given, in all, towards twenty millions of dollars to prevent the French from owning territory in our neighborhood,—It is now confidently asserted that Bonaparte has made arrangements, in his way, with the government of Spain, to cede to him the Floridas! Thus after wasting our Treasury and incurring an enormous debt, to secure the management of our own affairs without interruption, we are to have a French colony bordering with us upon the Atlantic. It is as evident as any thing can be that with such a territory running so far beyond them as our Louisiana possessions, we are more exposed, and less able to defend ourselves, than ever. Thus ends the miserable policy of attempting to attain security by purchasing the ground that a suspected and mischievous tenant might occupy. Repertory.

Captain Ehronfton, of the ship Franklin, who arrived at Charleston on the 23d ult. in 65 days from Montevideo, gives the following information:—

About a week previous to the Franklin's sailing, all the neutrals received orders from the government there, that they must depart from the River of Plate in 40 days from the date of the order, loaded or not. It was the general opinion there, that the Americans and Portuguese were all spies for the English;—and for the term of two years no neutral whatever would be admitted into any of the ports in the River of Plate, under any pretence whatever, even if they should have a royal licence.

Gen. Liniers had entered into a new treaty with the commander of the British squadron, left cruising in the river, which consisted of a frigate, a sloop of war and a cutter, that the British were not to molest the river trade, that to, from Montevideo to Buenos Ayres, or any of the ports above Montevideo; and that the Spanish government are to supply the British squadron, or any ships of their nation, that may put in there, with what supplies they may want. Maldonado was appointed the port for their rendezvous, and this was to continue in force for 6 months.

On the 17th October was boarded, off Maldonado by the British frigate Nereid, Capt. Cobbet, who took the chief mate out of the ship, he being an Englishman, otherwise treated us politely. The sloop of war and cutter were also in sight. They informed us, that it was their determination not to molest the river trade, as the Spaniards supplied them with every thing they wanted. Capt. Cobbet also informed us, that he expected a war between America and England, and we should be taken before we got home.

Meteor.—About 7 o'clock on Monday evening last, a meteor was seen in the air, over the northern part of the city of Philadelphia, apparently much larger than a common sky rocket. It was visible for some moments, and moved in a horizontal direction, forming a partial arch, from south to north leaving particles of fire as its progress, in form of a tail behind.—Phil. Paper.

ALBANY, January 18.

Extract of the Embargo.—A letter from a respectable House at Providence, received by yesterday's mail, says: "We were sorry for the situation of our Country, and deplore the many failures that have, and will take place in our seaport and commercial cities. We have this morning received private advices of more than 200 mercantile failures in the English Channel, and in the Provinces of Maine. &c. &c. Daily Adv.

Many days mail from New York, adds to the list of failures in that city. The effect on the sale of produce above, and in the several towns on the river is great. Very few sales, nothing will sell; holders of almost every kind are compelled to sell, and a general depression pervades among all classes of citizens. Longisland Gaz.

Embargo at Portland, Mass.—A letter just received from the Eastward, informs, that the creditors of certain Boston merchants, in the town of Portland, Province of Maine, lately commenced suits against them, and that the Sheriff attached their goods, (under a late law) but that the populace rose in anger, and drove the officers out of town with their writs of attachment. The Supreme court which was to have been in session the same day, thought it prudent to adjourn till a few days next.

It is ruminated, from the legislative and speculative circles of the higher circles at Washington (says the Baltimore Gazette) that if Mr. Rose is clothed with ample powers, the accommodation may speedily be expected with Britain.

Mr. Rose, we are informed in the Washington Federalist, is hourly expected at Washington; the Government having removed all obstacles to his landing.

Governor Hull has informed the President of the determination of the Indians to remain neutral in case of a war between the United States and England.

From Russia.—Capt. Cavendish, from Russia, sailed Oct. 8, and passed the Sound Nov. 8.—The island of Zealand appeared to be blockaded; and Capt. C. did not stop at Elsineur. The British intercourse with Russia still continued, and no new cause of alarm had arisen. The French, it was said, would pass the Belts to Zealand, with 60,000 men, as soon as the season compelled the British to retire. Bost. Cour. Jan. 9.

NATIONAL FASHIONS.

How are the British blockaded? By French decrees.

How are the French blockaded? By British squadrons.

How are the United States blockaded? By secret proceedings and gun boats.

The British and French, professing to follow some old European fashions, undertake to blockade their enemies.

The United States have a fashion of their own in undertaking to blockade themselves.

A Patriarch.—Mr. O'Sullivan has recently died at Beerhaven, at the age of 121. It is added, that he is much lamented by 215 nephews and nieces! Certainly if this family be not of high rank, or remarkable opulence, they are distinguished for their good breeding.—Lon. pap.

GEORGE ROSE.—By the royal calendar, or annual register for the year 1806, we find that the honorable George Rose, the father of the young man who is appointed on a million to America, held the following offices under the British government. He was clerk of Parliament at a salary of 3,000l. a member of the privy Council, and pay-master general of the army with a salary of 2,000l. —he young man who is coming to ica, we understand, was born in 1783; of course he is now about 24 years of age.

Weather Maker.—A man at Thoms has announced a discovery made by him, of a certain method by which he can procure a constancy of "settled pleasant, healthy, and fruitful weather." and he adds, that he hopes "the Great nation will attend to it." This undoubtedly deserves attention. Such an experiment is certainly beyond that of Doctor Franklin and others, who made lightening by poking at the clouds; or those of a late writer, who proposes enormous mills and machines in this country; "only to abate the rigor of the seasons," by the effect of their friction on the atmosphere; or that Jacques Bernardin St. Pierre, who suggests the erection of pyramids, lining themselves in the flues, in countries where there are no mountains to attract vapour, create clouds and make showers of rain descend upon the plains beneath.—'Tis, however, rather an awkward circumstance for the sagacious citizen, that he did not discover his secret while Napoleon was struggling in his neighborhood, with all the rigors of a winter climate, in his campaign against the Russians.

The French must be surprised to hear that we have imposed no contributions upon the island of Zealand or the city of Copenhagen; that we have respected the feelings of the inhabitants to such as not to quarter our troops upon them; that we have not pillaged them, and that we have actually paid for all the necessaries which have been furnished us.

FROM THE STUDIES OF NATURE.

It is to Savages, to men utterly unknown, that we are indebted for the first observations, which are the source of whatever is ingenious in civilized society. In drinking we see polished Europeans running into excess with the denominate barbarous, they use raw juice of grapes, or bread, of wine, of domestic manufacture, of ayes for clothing of animals, raw or roasted, the most useful and most agreeable for human life. Modern Europe glories in her discoveries; but Printing, when sought to it is said, to immortalize the inventor, is to be ascribed to a person in obscure, that several cities of Germany, and even of China, have claimed the discovery as their own. Gaming would never have calculated the probability, but for the observation of a fortunate player, that the more and the more easily it is fixed to a certain point. Evasion had never read the Historian, if some children playing in Zealand with the pebbles of a spectacle-maker, having imagined the first idea of the telescopic tube. Our antipodes would never have subjugated America, the New World, if a navy would not discovered gun-powder; and whatever glory Spain may take to herself on account of the conquering of the globe, the weapon of Ada had planted the pikes there long before the arrival of Christopher Columbus. What, indeed, had became of that great man himself, if the good and simple inhabitants whom he found there had not supplied him with provisions? Late, then, academies extraordinaire machines, systems, books, rulerpieces, the most praise of all is due to the ignorant, who furnished the first materials.

A gentleman from Boston has just returned and handed a detail of a story, which when it is published, it is impossible for a stranger to regret; and in case of a thief taking the attempt, it is equally impossible for him to escape being caught in the act, and detained on the spot, until a peace officer is called with the invention appears to be ruled. Either of which highly beneficial for the security of banking and counting houses, repositories of plate, &c. &c. Should the attempt be made on the latter, in any gentleman's town or country residence, in the absence of the family, the depredator will inevitably be secured to death for his temerity, unless rescued by a person entirely unacquainted with the proper method of opening. Lond. paper.

At Hudson's Bay, some experiments have been made on quicksilver, which every Chemist will know is easily made to freeze with success to the temperature of their countries quicksilver, in a congealed state, the stick has then been caused to beat out into a sheet, as thin as paper. If a piece of the congealed quicksilver be plunged into a glass of hot water, the water is frozen to an instant, the glass is broken, and the quicksilver becomes fluid. Ib.

His Britannic Majesty has ordered, from a London paper, a pension of two thousand pounds a year from his private purse to the passenger known by the name of the man-of-the-Wall, widow of the unfortunate Charles Stuart, grandson of King James the II. and who has been dead some years. This lady had a dower assigned her out of the civil French funds, which were destroyed in the revolution, and the was lately entirely beholden for support to her brother-in-law the Cardinal of York, (the Henry the IXth of our nomenclature, if any such there be.) At the death of his Eminence, the, of course, was totally deprived of the means of subsistence It is already well known, that when the Cardinal of York, the last of his unfortunate house, had been deprived of his revenues by the French usurpation, he wasn't even supplied by our King's unfeeling, unhoped for benefaction of ten thousand per annum, continued to the memory of his remote. This lady in question is a Princess of the house of Holstein, and lived at Brussels when she was married. She is near to many of the noble families of the country. She raises England upon after her husband's death, and has resided some years back in Florence.

ANECDOTES.

A Text.—A preacher in Arabia having for his text that portion of the Koran, "I have called Noah," after twice repeating his text, made a long pause; when an Arab present thinking that he was waiting for an answer, exclaimed, "If Noah will not come, call somebody else."

Swift meeting a man with a black horse in a halter, said, "Honest man—how can you use your horse so ill, to make him black in the face?" when the farmer replied, "Ah, master! had you looked so long thro' a halter as he has, you would have been black in the face too."

YORK, FEBRUARY 4, 1808.

His Majesty's Birth-Day was celebrated in this Town on the usual Rejoicings and was concluded by an elegant Ball at the Government House.—The Country was unusual and splendid, and the Dancing continued until the morning.

Address of the House of Assembly in answer to his Excellency's Speech at the opening of the present Session of the Provincial Parliament.

To His Excellency Francis Gore, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

WE, His Majesty's loyal subjects the Commons of Upper Canada in Parliament assembled, beg leave to return your Excellency our dutiful acknowledgments for your gracious Speech.

We sincerely congratulate your Excellency on the ardent zeal and attachment to our Sovereign and Constitution manifested by the Militia, and we trust that the same patriotic and loyal spirit pervades all ranks of his Majesty's subjects in this Colony.

We highly applaud the prompt and efficacious measures adopted by your Excellency to carry into effect the provision of an act passed in the last session of Parliament for the establishment of Public Schools, and we pleasingly anticipate from these institutions the most substantial benefit to the rising generation in this Province.

We beg leave to assure your Excellency that we feel it to be our duty, and that it shall be the object of our continued consideration to adopt such measures as will best tend to secure the peace, welfare, and good government of this Province; and we are sensible from our experience that in providing for these important and interesting objects, we may rely upon your Excellency's co-operation and assistance.

The momentous events of the times strongly impress upon our minds the necessity of directing all our counsels to the preservation and support of that excellent Constitution from which we derive all the blessings flowing from true and rational liberty.

We hope by our future firmness and moderation to merit a continuance of that highly gratifying approbation, which your Excellency is pleased to express of our former conduct; and also to convince our fellow subjects in this Colony that we only desire to promote their real interests and prosperity.

THE GOVERNOR'S ANSWER.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

I return you my thanks for your loyal and dutiful address.

The zeal which you discover, for the preservation of that excellent Constitution, from which we derive so many blessings, is honorable to yourselves, and worthy of that situation in which you are placed.

I have no doubt, but that by your conduct you will convince your fellow subjects that your only desire is to promote their prosperity and interest.

CURE FOR THE AGUE

The celebrated French chemist, Boullon Lecrange, has lately recommended as an effectual cure of the ague and fever, the gizzards of white fowls, which he has been in the habit of using for two years of forty years; and out of 1000 cases, eight tenths have succeeded.—The gizzards are dried and pulverized as follows:—First clear away the gravel they contain, and slightly wash them; then put them on a trivet, and hang them in the sun or near the fire to dry, after which they must be reduced to powder, sifted and kept in a bottle close corked. The dose is a drachm for adults, and from half a drachm to a scruple for children, mixed in half a glass of wine; and, in case allies, or to any country at war with his Majesty, or to any port or place from which the British flag as aforesaid is excluded, or to any colony belonging to his Majesty's enemies, and which shall not have cleared out as is herein before allowed, to discontinue her in voyage, and to proceed to a port or place in this kingdom, or to Gibraltar or Malta; and any vessel which after having been so warned or after a reasonable time shall have been afforded for the arrival of information of this his Majesty's order from any port or place from whence the failed, or which, after having notice of this order, shall be found in the prosecution of any voyage contrary to the restrictions contained in this order shall be captured, and, together with her cargo, condemned as lawful prize to the captors.

And whereas countries, not engaged in war, have acquiesced in these orders of France prohibiting all trade in any articles the produce or manufacture of his majesty's dominions; and the merchants of these countries have given countenance to those prohibitions, by accepting from persons styling themselves commercial agents of the enemy, resident at neutral ports, certain documents, termed "certificates of origin," being certificates obtained at the report of shipment, declaring that the articles of the cargo are not of the produce or manufacture of his Majesty's dominions, or to that effect.

And whereas this expedient has been directed by France, and admitted to by such merchants, as part of the new system of warfare directed against the trade of this kingdom, and as the most effectual instrument of accomplishing the same, and it is therefore essentially necessary to resist it.

His Majesty is therefore pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, that if any vessel after reasonable time shall have been afforded for receiving notice of this his Majesty's order at the port or place from which such vessel shall have cleared out, shall be found carrying any such certificate or document as aforesaid, or any document referring to, or authenticating the same, such vessel shall be adjudged lawful prize to the captor, together with the goods laden therein, belonging to the person or persons by whom, or on whose behalf, any such document was put on board.

"And the Right Hon. the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and the Judges of the High Court of Admiralty and Courts of Vice-Admiralty are to take the necessary measures therein, as to them shall respectively appertain.

Another expedition to consist of seven regiments of British infantry and the greatest part of the German Legion, was fitting out at Portsmouth, the 7th, 8th, 32d, 34th second battalions, 50th, 60th fifth battalions, and the 63d, were said to have received orders.—The naval part was to consist of 12 sail of the line, under Admiral Keats.

Dissentions still prevailed at Constantinople, and the new Grand Signior was threatened with the fate of his predecessor—he had evinced great firmness of character, and shewed no dismay at the commotions that surrounded him—A report was in circulation at Gottenburgh, that an armistice had been concluded between France and Sweden, but wanted confirmation.—The Danes had begun to avenge themselves on the English, and had made several captures of merchantmen.

It was said at Vienna, and remained uncontradicted for several days, that the Porte had made Peace with England; and that Mr. Paget, the British Minister was again at Constantinople.

The apprehension of a rupture between Russia and England had subsided on the Continent, and several British vessels that had stopped at Riga for orders, were informed, that they might prosecute their voyage without fear of detention or interruption.

A flag of Truce, was said to have arrived in the Downs, in a schooner bearing the national flag. Stocks were affected—Consols and omnium which opened at 63 3-8, the latter at 1 1-4; were at the close of the market at 64 a 1 1-2.

The French government have declared, that no farther intercourse with England, could on any account be permitted, and that even the sailing of the cartels between Morlaix and Plymouth would be prohibited.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

Aaron Burr, it is said, will forfeit his recognizance at the Ohio Court, and means to repair to this city, where the Supreme Court sets the first of February. In this court he means to appeal to try the constitutionality of the late proceedings against him. He was seen last week at Williamsport, in a very humble attire.

The President is confined to his house by an affection in the face, and has undergone an operation.

Mr. Munroe left the city a few days ago for Virginia; but is expected to return immediately.

Richmond, Jan. 8.

"This embargo has spoiled our business and to mend the matter, the hon. legislature of this state has a bill before them this day, and I have no doubt but it will pass, the purport of which is to suspend all courts of justice until the embargo is taken off, so that you may judge what chance we have to collect what is due."

The president of the United States has given permission to the French ministers, to dispatch a vessel from Philadelphia for a port in France: she is to sail in the course of the present week. Thus says a letter to a merchant of this city.

JAN. 6.

In a part of our impression of Friday, we stated that the British line of battle ships, that had been in the bay, had gone to sea. The information we received proved to be incorrect, the Triumph, Sir Thomas Hardy still remains in Lynnhaven bay.

ALBANY, 25.

On saturday last a great number of seamen in Philadelphia, paraded with the flag of the U. S. to the city hall, in order to claim the protection of the corporation, in consequence of being destitute of support, by reason of the embargo. A committee chosen out of their number entered the mayor's office, and stated the difficulties to which they were subjected, and to use their own expressions "wished to know what was to be done." The mayor listened to them with his usual patience, and then informed them that it was not in his power to grant relief, adding with becoming firmness, that the assembly was an improper one and commanded the flag to be taken down; to this order they paid implicit obedience. The majesty of the laws having been thus respected and maintained, the mayor went to the steps in front of the hall, and addressed the sailors nearly as follows:

"My lads I pity you to the bottom of my heart—I know that your's is a hard case, but the government have deemed this measure to be a proper one, and it is your duty to obey the law—I respect your services to our country—I will know how necessary you are to our commercial as well as naval prosperity, but to collect in this manner is not proper—you must be sensible of it. The chamber of commerce have taken your situation into consideration, and a committee is appointed to afford you relief—to them in a respectable manner I advise you to apply, and may God bless you all."

The honest tars then gave three cheers and departed.

We understand from very respectable authority that orders have been very recently issued to all naval commanders in the service of the United States, that they are to discharge from under their respective commands all foreign seamen, which they shall be satisfied are deserters from any foreign service. It is we presume in consequence of these orders that two have been discharged from the Chesapeake within a few days past, one a British seaman and the other a French seaman who was particularly noticed by us a short time since. [Norfolk Ledger.

A few days since, a Farmer from a neighboring town came into this City for the purpose of disposing of the produce of his farm. Finding the market low, he enquired into the cause, and was informed that the government had laid an embargo, and of course our trade was at an end. He wished to know for what reason the embargo was laid: and was told that it was a State secret. Turning round on his heel to carry his load home, addressing himself to the tavern keeper at whose house he had stopped to warm his fingers, "I'll tell you what, Landlord," said he, "this democracy is like the itch—I and my neighbors have all had it—we have all been outed thoroughly for it—and we are all pretty well cured.—Connect. Courant.

Captain Verney, who arrived at Charleston on the 25th ult. from St. Bartholomews, informs, that since the late visit of the French the Governor of St. Bartholomews had refused granting Swedish papers to vessels bound to St. Domingo.

From january 1, 1807, to january 1, 1808, inclusive there entered at the port of Boston. 988 vessels from Foreign Ports:—viz. 190 ships 3 barques, 328 brigs, 43 schooners, and 28 sloops and on the 1st instant, 39 ships, 60 brigs, and 76 schooners were lying in that harbor.

The York Gazette.

YORK, FEBRUARY 12, 1808.

A press of business obliged us reluctantly to omit the proceedings of the House of Assembly, and other matter with which we were favored, this week.

In a late paper we published the copy of an embargo by the government of the United States, the measure is now in full operation, & has excited such sensations in the people, as may be readily conceived. All our late newspapers from that quarter, teem with details of its baleful effects, and distressful consequences. It contemplated as a measure seriously intended to affect our interests, to influence our government to an unworthy compromise of national honor, we should be disposed to view it in the same light we do the anger of a spoiled child, who snatches from it the sugar plumb bestowed by an indulgent parent; but as it may, and must affect America, its operation will be truly deplorable. As to the great question of Peace or war with that country, we cannot form satisfactory opinion; it is impossible to foresee or foretell the result of infatuation; but province is, to be prepared to counteract it. If the measure is one of direct hostility to Great Britain, we do not think ourselves premature or presumptuous in saying, that France and America has prevented the extinction of shipping, the former will most effectually their ingress—and that nearly all the homeward bound, will be captured at their harbor's mouths. It is not for us to arraign the policy of their government, we leave its merits or its fallacy to be tested by its effects; we cannot, however, but deeply deplore system so pregnant with evils, to the almost whole people on earth, whole national habits, whole civil and religious institutions, and whole moral and political interests rendered them worthy the fraternity and friendship of Britons. Should the desperate efforts of blind and misguided party bring on a rupture, let the infatuated authors tremble for the consequences; for if the honorable modes of conciliation adopted by Great Britain, be rejected with levity, or rendered abortive by an inimical bias, she will be justified by the magnanimity of her conduct, & the insulted justice of her intentions, in resorting to the efficient exertion of that power which Providence has placed at her disposal. The rueful inefficiency and convulsed situation of Europe, together with the monstrous system which has produced it, has given rise to systems of policy and self-preservation, and to modes of warfare and annoyance unpractised by, and unknown to former ages. To the overwhelming and gigantic power of France, and to the destructive and sanguinary means which she has rendered it necessary to employ, odious and enormous, Britain feels the perfect instigation to oppose a vigor and resistance, heretofore unparalelled and unexampled; and should she (which Heaven avert) be compelled to contend with America also, it would not be with the mild intention to reclaim, but an extorted determination to punish.

We are aware that the Americans view the conquest of our colonies as a purchase of easy price, we differ widely in opinion with them. Admitting they attempted it, a war would convince them, that their territory is too extensive, and would a doubtful event on their inland frontier, compensate the inevitable destruction of their sea port towns, their commerce and their shipping? Commerce has rendered them flourishing and wealthy, but not powerful; their carrying trade has been boundless, and their exports immense, let these cease, and their country will be in the state of a diseased body, whose humours can no longer be secreted. We are willing to give America credit for a full proportion of national virtue, but great must be that virtue indeed, which could be patient under the painful privations, the certain ills, and the innumerable evils, to which a war with England would inevitably expose her. We hope by all the ties of interest and affection, which ought so powerfully to unite us, that a war may be averted; we hope that the well meant efforts of the virtuous Randolph & his patriot friends may not be ineffectual, & that the first and dearest interests of a growing Empire, may not be sacrificed upon the dreary altar of French influence.

Mr. Rose made his first official visit to the Secretary of State on Friday, and on Saturday he was presented to the president.—Mer. Adv.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Schenectady to his friend in Upper Canada, dated 22d January, 1808.

"This country is at present in a most deplorable situation in consequence of the embargo, &c. And every day produces information from our sea ports, of mercantile houses, apparently of the first standing, stopping payment. The assembling of distressed seamen, &c. our vessels and produce rotting. The circulation of money almost at a stand, and little confidence between man and man; these circumstances rouse the people against the government, and openly accuse it of French influence in consequence of which, and the arrival and reception of Mr. Rose, the British Envoy extraordinary at Washington. Its a general opinion we will have no war with England. Four fifths of the people appear to prefer a war with France and Spain. God send, if we are to have war, it may be with these last mentioned.—Our fleet is now at sea, &c."

COUNCIL CHAMBER, 23d January, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to all whom it may concern, that His Majesty has been pleased to allow his Royal Warrant, in the words following:—

George R.

WHEREAS a Contract has been entered into by the principal Officers of His Majesty's Navy, with Messrs. Scott, Idles & Co. for supplying His Majesty's Dock Yards in England and the West Indies, with Canada Masts and Oak Timber, and it being stipulated in the said Contract, that no Masts or Bowsprits which are cut in His Majesty's Colonies, shall be delivered at the Dock Yards unless they are cut by Licence from His Majesty's Surveyor of the Woods in North America, and also it is found be required, under the inspection of this Officer. Upon the representation of the matter to Us by the Commissioners for executing the Office of High Admiral of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, We have thought fit to give Leave, Licence and Permission unto the said Messrs. Scott, Idles & Co. their Agents and Workmen, to travel into and search our Woods in our Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, where we have reserved to us the property in any Woods or Trees, and the right of cutting them, and there to fell and cut so many good and sound Trees as may answer the number and dimensions mentioned in the said Contract, (a copy whereof, subscribed by one of our Principal Secretaries of State, is hereunto annexed) and to carry the said Trees through our said Woods to the water side, in order to the transporting and bringing them unto our Stores without incurring any penalty or forfeiture by reason thereof. — And lastly, We do hereby require as well our Governour or Lieutenant Governor of our said Colonies, as you, and all our Officers, Ministers, and Loving Subjects, whom it may concern, to be aiding and assisting to them, their Agents and Workmen, in the premises, as they shall be required at any time by this service, pursuant to the Contract aforementioned. And for so doing this shall be your Warrant. Given at our Court at Saint James's, the second day of October, 1807, in the forty-seventh year of our Reign

By His Majesty's Command,
(Signed) CASTLEREAGH.

TO our Trusty and Well beloved Sir John Wentworth, Baronet, Surveyor General of our Woods on the Continent of America, or his Deputy or Deputies, or to the said Surveyor General of our said Woods, his Deputy or Deputies, for the time being, and all others whom it may concern.

WE the undersigned Contractors, named in His Majesty's Gracious Warrant, do hereby appoint Messrs. Mure and Jaffle, our Agents at Quebec, for the purposes within mentioned.

London, 9th October, 1807.
(Signed) SCOTT, IDLES & Co

His Excellency further gives Notice, that a Contract has been made under the authority of the said Warrant, with Messrs. Scott, Idles & Co. Merchants in London, who have appointed Messrs Mure and Jaffle, Merchants at Quebec, to be their Agents, for the purposes therein mentioned, and that no other Agent or Agents on the part of the said Contractors, their Agents or Workmen, His Excellency has thought proper to order the Deputy Surveyor General of the Woods, to mark such White Pine Trees as come within His Majesty's Orders, expressed in the above Warrant.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN SMALL,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

A MEETING of several Gentlemen heretofore Members of the Upper-Canada Agricultural Society was held at Moore's Hotel on Saturday last the 6th inst. when it was unanimously agreed, that the said Society be dissolved, the members thereof having neglected to comply with one of the leading & principal resolutions entered into at its first establishment, and essentially necessary to its continuance and support.

And it appearing for the advantage of this Province, that a New Society, having for its object the Promotion of Agriculture in general, and in particular the Cultivation of Hemp, should be formed.—

It is resolved that this Meeting do adjourn to Saturday next the 13th inst. for that purpose, and that such gentlemen as are disposed to support a new Society are hereby requested to attend on that day.—10th Feby. 1808.

Legiſlative Council, Jan. 29, 1808

This day at 2 o'clock, his Excellency the Governor General came down in ſtate, to the Legiſlative Council Chamber, and being ſeated on the Throne, the Gentleman Uſher of the Black Rod was ſent to command the immediate attendance of the Aſſembly, which being come up, his Excellency was pleaſed to open the Seſſion with the following Speech:

Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, and
Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

Having been honored by his Majeſty's appointment, to the Government in Chief of the Britiſh Provinces in America, I have loſt no time in proceeding hither, to take upon me the arduous and important charge, which his Majeſty has thought been pleaſed to commit to me. It would have been highly gratifying to me if upon this occaſion, I could have been the bearer of any well grounded expectation of the reſtoration of that Peace, which, as the ſureſt foundation of the welfare and happineſs of his people, is the conſtant object of his Majeſty's endeavors; but while an implacable enemy is exerting every reſource of a power, hitherto unexampled in the world, and which is controuled by no principle of juſtice or humanity, in attempting our ruin; while that enemy, under the irritation of a diſappointed ambition, which boundleſs in its extent aims at no leſs than the ſubjugation of the world, regards with a malignant inveteracy, which he does not attempt to conceal, the now only nation in Europe, which, by the wiſdom of its government, the reſources of its wealth, and the energy, virtue and public ſpirit of its people, has been able to reſiſt him, it muſt be with cautious diffidence, and a reliance only on the bleſſing of Divine Providence, that we can look forward to the wiſhed for ceſſation of the inconveniences of war.

The capture of the Capital of the Daniſh dominions, and the conſequent poſſeſſion of the entire fleet, with the whole of the naval arſenals of that power, are events on which I have very cordially to congratulate you. The acquiſition to us would be of little advantage, were it no for the ten-fold greater benefit which ariſes, from the having diverted theſe powerful reſources, from the object to which they were to have been directed. Attempts have been made, by the enemies of his Majeſty, to caſt an imputation on the morality of this meaſure, but the declaration which his Majeſty has been pleaſed to make, of the motives which have imperiouſly led to it, muſt have convinced every mind, not obſtinately diaſſed by an inveterate prejudice, that it was founded upon the ſtricteſt grounds of ſelf-defence, and upon the true principles of the Law of Nations. Britain ſtill ſtands proudly pre-eminent, in her love of juſtice, and her ſacred regard to the rights of other nations.

I have no doubt, that you will join with me Gentlemen, in lamenting the diſcuſſions which have ariſen, between his Majeſty's Government, and that of America. I have no information to convey to you, that might tend to throw any light upon a ſubject, in which this colony muſt be ſo materially intereſted. Let us hope, that the moderation and wiſdom of the government of the United States, will lead them to meet that of his Majeſty, in its endeavors, by an equitable accommodation of differences, to avert the calamities of war, from two nations, who from habits of affinity, unity of language, and the ties of common anceſtry, ſeem deſtined by Providence, for the enjoyment of the bleſſings of continued Peace: while the reciprocal advantages of their commercial intercourſe, ſeem no leſs to point them out to each other, as the objects of a mutual connection, of amity and confidence.

But while we indulge in this, hope we will not be deluded by it, into the neglect of any means, that may be neceſſary, for our defence and ſafety; and I place every confidence in your ready co operation, in any meaſure that may be judged expedient, to add to the energies of Government, with this important view. The loyalty and affection to his Majeſty's Government, ſo ſpiritedly manifeſted on the occaſion, by the Militia of this Province, who have ſtood forward with a chearfulneſs, not to be exceeded, demands my warmeſt applauſe, and furniſhes us with the beſt grounds for hoping, that in the event of any attack on this Province, we ſhall derive from them all the aſſiſtance, that can be expected from a brave People contending for every thing that is dear to them.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

I ſhall cauſe to be laid before you Statements of the Provincial Revenue of the Crown, and of the Expenditure for the laſt Twelve Months.

Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, and
Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

Tho' a portion of the Militia have been ſelected, and are directed to hold themſelves in readineſs, to aſſemble at the ſhorteſt notice, yet I have not thought it neceſſary to call them together; a meaſure, which no particular circumſtance ſeemed immediately to call for, & which would have been attended with conſiderable inconvenience to the Province, while from the ſeaſon of the year, it would not have been accompanied with the advantages that might otherwiſe have been derived, from the opportunity it would have afforded, of exerciſing and training them. While adverting to the ſubject of the Militia, it may not perhaps be inexpedient, that I ſhould recall to your recollection, that one of the limits, by which the exiſtence of the Militia law is bounded, I mean, that of a fixed period, is already expired, ſo that, it is now in force only, ſo long as the War continues. The very great inconvenience that might ariſe to the Country, from the poſſible event of a ſudden concluſion of Peace, at the very moment that there might exiſt a neceſſity of being prepared to reſiſt an unexpected attack from another quarter, will no doubt, point out to you, the expediency of again fixing a determinate period for the duration of this law.

Conſidering the erection of the Gaols for the Cities of Quebec and Montreal, as objects of much importance to the welfare of the Province,—I have loſt no time in proceeding to exercise the powers veſted in the Governor for that purpoſe. Commiſſioners have been appointed in both places, and as I found, that the meaſure ſuffered conſiderable difficulty, and delay, in that which was propoſed for Quebec, from the circumſtance of the Old Gaol being occupied by the Military, to whom it had been formerly given, in lieu of the part of the Barrack of the Royal Artillery, which is now uſed as a Priſon, I have made an arrangement for their evacuating it, as ſoon as poſſible, altho' the troops are neceſſarily put to conſiderable inconvenience, by their doing ſo before the Barracks can be returned to them.

I cannot conclude this Addreſs, without expreſſing the high gratification I experience, at meeting you, in the exerciſe of the Nobleſt Office to which the human mind can be directed, that of legiſlating for a free people. I have the utmoſt confidence, that in the diſcharge of this duty, while on the one hand you carefully watch over the Intereſts and promote the welfare of the People, you will, on the other, be no leſs zealous, in the ſupport of that Government, from the power and energy of which, alone, thoſe Intereſts can derive a permanent ſecurity: and I feel particular ſatisfaction, in looking forward to the moſt perfect harmony and cooperation between us, becauſe I perſuade myſelf, that in every Act of my Adminiſtration, you will find my conduct directed upon the ſame principles, of zealous attachment to my Sovereign, and his Government, and of a ſincere regard to the happineſs and proſperity of the People whom he has committed to my charge.

QUEBEC, FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1808.

The following was the order of Proceſſion on his Excellency's going and returning from the Palace, at the opening of the present Session of the Provincial Parliament.

Town Major,
Major of Brigade,
Assistant Military Secretary,
Aid-de-Camp, Junior,
Aides-de-Camp, in seniority,
Deputy Adjutant General,
Civil Secretary,
Military Secretary,
Adjutant General,
GOVERNOR GENERAL.
Six Orderlies.
COLONEL BROCK.

Lieutenant Colonels in seniority.

The officers waited below for the Governor General, and proceeded before him up the flairs, two and two, as ranks and situations corresponded.

The Aides-de-camp, Military Secretary, and Adjutant General were placed on the right of the Throne, the other staff officers of the suite on the left. Colonel Brock, and the officers accompanying the Governor General, placed themselves in rear of the Throne.

The setting out and return of the procession was announced by a salute fired from the Grand Battery.

The whole ceremony was grand and worthy the meeting of the Representatives of a Great and Good Sovereign with the Representatives of his Free and Loyal Subjects of this Province.

A concourse of people, far exceeding any thing which we have seen on former occasions, was assembled to see his Excellency pass. The whole ground in front of the Bishop's Palace up to the Post Office, and that part of Buade and Mountain Street in sight of the Palace, was filled with Spectators. When his Excellency stept out of the carriage he was saluted with repeated acclamations from the surrounding multitude.

From GIBRALTAR

Capt. Urann, who arrived yesterday, left Gibraltar on the 27th of November. There was no news from the Russian fleet which was up the Mediterranean. A Russian man-of-war sailed from Gibraltar into the Atlantic about the 20th. The Toulon fleet had not recently ventured out of harbour. The Barbary cruizers were not molesting the trade of any nation. There were reports at Gibraltar that the Spaniards intended to bombard that place—but the apparent situation of the Spanish lines did not indicate that such a design was to be executed very speedily. The Spaniards continued to capture American vessels. The French were said to have taken possession of Lisbon; where the Royal family remained, and the fleet was still in that harbour. Capt. U. saw the instructions of a British Privateer, which stated that she was to detain all Protuguese vessels. Off Madeira saw a fleet of six ships of war, standing S. E. supposed to be

The Army from Egypt arrived at Messina on the 18th of Oct. The Turks gave up all prisoners.

"Yesterday arrived His Majesty's ship Thetis from the Dardanelles—last from Algiers—with Sir A. Paget on board."

(Sir A. P. was an Envoy extra to the Turkish Government; by his return it appears he has wholly failed in his mission.

After the king of Spain's proclamation of the late conspiracy was published, the French Ambassador immediately demanded cognizance of the cause and proceed in it against the Prince of Austuria's (the late King's son) and the other accomplices Great consternation prevailed at Madrid, and every thing announced a great catastrophe; but it was nor apprehended the results would be prejudicial or greatly injurious to those under confinement. On the 2d of November, two days after the proclamation, the Prince of Altrurias was released, in consequence of the clamours of the people."

ALBANY, Jan. 29.

It is said that, Messrs Randolph, Clark and Rowan, members of the house of representatives, who were summoned to give evidence before the court of enquiry, in the case of Wilkinson, have refused to obey the summons, the court not having power to compel them to attend. It will be recollected that it is a military court, composed of the most intimate friends of Wilkinson.

Our late papers contain the articles of capitulation for the Danish island of St. Croix and its dependencies to Great Britain on the 21st of December last.

Advices from Port au Prince, dated December 8, received at Nassau, N. P. state, that confusion existed in the south quarter of St. Domingo; several of the blacks in the vicinity of Jeremie had revolted against the government of Petion, and a general Malgloire, who formerly commanded at Jacmel, had rebelled. He gained a regiment over to his plan, but being taken with twenty of his followers, his views were fruftrated; he poisoned himself, and the reft were to be shot.

Our letters from Washington, says the United States' Gazette, mention with considerable confidence that our administration has consented that the affair of the Chesapeake may be difcuffed separately with the English Minister. Mr. Rose was presented to the President on Saturday by the Secretary of State, and it was reported on Monday, that that was the day for commencing the negociation. Mr. Erskine and Mr. Rose attended public worship on Sunday at the Capitol.

The losses of France by a British war, a lesson to America:

By a very able ftatiftical work of Mr. Peuchet, Membre du Conseil de Commerce, etc. etc. it appears, that in 1807, which, he says, was the moft brilliant epoch of French trade, the navigation of France was carried on by 2,007,661 tons, of which, about 588,810 tons were foreign, leaving of french tonnage a total 1,468,851 tons.

In the 9th year of the Republic, the total of French tonnage was reduced to 345,750 tons, including all the coafting veffels, the French veffels in the foreign trade being for all France but 109000 tons, or less than the tonnage of the port of Boston alone, and but one quarter as much as is owned in Maffachuletts!!

The loss to French merchants in tonnage only, being on 622,000 tons, at 50 dolls. per ton, is 31,100,000 dolls.

Yet it fhould be remembered that France had 70 fhips of the line, 150 frigates, and above 100 corvettes to defend her trade.

We have but about 10 or 12 frigates in poor condition, and to build fuch a navy as that of France, would coft more than 40 millions of dollars, and would ftill be ineffectual.

Further, it appears, that France, on an average of three years prior to 1788, exported annually to the value of 542 millions of livres, or about 100 millions of dollars, which is nearly the fame with the exports of the United States the laft year.

Since the war with England, the exports only 305 millions of livres, making a difference of about 237 millions of livres, or 45 millions of dollars per year.

But America would lofe infinitely more than France, for two reafons.

1ft. That France exports to Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Spain, nearly one half of all her exports—and this trade Great Britain cannot impede, it being by land, or internal navigation.

Whereas we have no trade of any moment but by the ocean, where we are exposed.

2d. France fuffers infinitely lefs than we fhall becaufe fhe is more independent of foreign trade than we ever can be, or at leaft under feveral centuries.

Her inland manufactures amount to 300 millions of dollars annually.

Ours are to hers comparatively trifling.

3d. But finally, her loffes are borne by 35 millions of people, ours by fix millions only.

What inferrences ought we to draw from thefe views? that we ought never to go to war with England?

Not fo—Fight if it be neceffary—Endure every calamity, rather than fubmit to injuftice.

But accept all honorable terms and never in fo ruinous a war, for doubtful, much lefs unjuft claims.

We maintain that we have no cauſe of war—no complaint againft England, which has not exifted for fourteen years paft—becaufe the affair of the Chefapeake is done away by an offer of reparation.

If Waſhington—if Adams—if Jefferſon, have all ſpoken truly in their addreſſes to Congreſs, when they have at different times declared we were on amicable terms with England, then I ſay we are ſo now, for we have no cauſe of quarrel which has not always exiſted!!!

Deny this, who can!!

[Boſton Palladium.

"The evil which men do, lives after them, the good is interred with their bones."

So let it be with Britain."

This ſeems to be the faſhionable doctrine in our Country—Of its — nice we ſay nothing—of its policy our preſent evils make us ſay a great deal.

An unauthorized officer provoked beyond what was reaſonable by an acknowledged wrong, does an outrageous act—his government diſavows it, and offers reparation—ſtill we are in a rage.

But we forget to give credit for the great and unuſual reſpect paid to our flag the laſt ſix months.——We forget to applaud, and commend, and do juſtice to the noble and manly deciſions of Sir W. Scott—his indignation at certain malpractices of privateerſmen and public officers.

When an individual does wrong, we charge it to the Nation, but when the nation does right we give no one credit.

We talk of war with England! The ſame papers which contain abuſes againſt her, inform us that her officers, her fleets, yes her Navy!! now convoy our ſhips through the Straits of Gibraltar, againſt the depredations of our propoſed Allies, the French and Spaniards!!

The ſhip Bulah belonging to gentlemen of Boſton, is ſaid to have been convoyed by our enemies, to prevent her from falling into the hands of our friends—

"Capt. Allen, late from Tortola, ſays that ſince he ſailed the ocean, he never knew our flag treated with ſo much attention and civility by the Britiſh." "Our veſſels are all releaſed when captured."—And Admiral Cochrane delivers up all ſeamen claimed as American."

On the other hand, "an American ſhip is caſt away in France, the Horizon, and our good ally the Emperor, more ruthleſs than the ocean, condemns as prize, what the mercy of Providence had ſpared from deſolation.

An American Capt. belonging to Marblehead, captured and carried into Algeſiras, in the Country of our friends the Spaniards, is thrown into gaol, and no ſuffered to ſpeak to any one.

It is clear that we muſt, for the above reaſons, fight England, and join France.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, 23d January, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to all whom it may concern, that His Majeſty has been pleaſed to iſſue his Royal Warrant, in the words following:—

GEORGE R.

WHEREAS a Contract has been entered into by the principal Officers of His Majeſty's Navy, with Meſſrs. Scott, Idles & Co. for ſupplying His Majeſty's Dock Yards in England and the Weſt Indies, with Canada Maſts and Oak Timber, and it being ſtipulated in the ſaid Contract, that no Maſts or Bowſprits which are cut in His Majeſty's Colonies, ſhall be delivered at the Dock Yards unleſs they are cut by Licence from His Majeſty's Surveyor of the Woods in North America, and alſo if it ſhould be required, under the inſpection of this Officer. Upon the repreſentation of the matter to Us by the Commiſſioners for executing the Office of High Admiral of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, We have thought fit to give Leave, Licence and Permiſſion unto the ſaid Meſſrs. Scott, Idles & Co. their Agents and Workmen, to travel into and ſearch our Woods in our Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, where we have reſerved to us the property in any Woods or Trees, and the right of cutting them, and there to fell and cut ſo many good and found Trees as may anſwer the number and dimenſions mentioned in the ſaid Contract, (a copy whereof, ſubſcribed by one of our Principal Secretaries of State, is hereunto annexed) and to carry the ſaid Trees through our ſaid Woods in the water ſides, or coaſts for the tranſporting and bringing them unto our Rivers without interrupting any penalty or forfeiture by reaſon thereof.—And laſtly, We do hereby require as well our Governor or Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Colonies, as you, and all our Officers, Miniſters, and Loving ſubjects, whom it may concern, to be aiding and aſſiſting to them, their Agents and Workmen, in whatſoever may relate to the due execution of the Licence, purſuant to the Contract above mentioned. And for ſo doing this ſhall be your Warrant. Given at our Court at Saint James's, the ſecond day of October, 1807, in the forty-ſeventh year of our reign.

By His Majeſty's Command,

(Signed) CASTLEREAGH.

TO our Truſty and Well Beloved Sir John Wentworth, Baronet, Surveyor General of our Woods in the Continent of America, or to his Deputy or Deputies, or to the ſaid Surveyor General of our ſaid Woods, his Deputy or Deputies, for the time being, and all others whom it may concern.

WE the undernamed Contractors, named in His Majeſty's Gracious Warrant, do hereby appoint Meſſrs. More and Jaffrey, our Agents at Quebec, for the purpoſes within mentioned.

London, 9th October, 1807.

(Signed) SCOTT, IDLES & Co.

His Excellency further gives Notice, that a Contract has been made under the authority of the ſaid Warrant, with Meſſrs. Scott, Idles & Co. Merchants in London, who have appointed Meſſrs More and Jaffrey, Merchants at Quebec, to be their Agents, for the purpoſes therein mentioned, and that no irregularity may take place on the part of the ſaid Contractors, their Agents or Workmen, His Excellency has thought proper to order the Deputy Surveyor General of Woods, to mark ſuch White Pine Trees as come within His Majeſty's Orders, expreſſed in the above Warrant.

DOCTOR J. GLENNON,

RESPECTFULLY begs leave to inform the Public and the Inhabitants of York in particular, that he has commenced buſineſs at the houſe lately occupied by Mr. M'Lean, oppoſite Mr. Marian. He flatters himſelf that the opportunity he has had of acquiring a knowledge of his profeſſion, at one of the firſt Colleges in Europe, will enable him to merit the approbation of thoſe who may be pleaſed to favor him with their commands.

N. B. He has on hand an aſſorted Stock of Genuine Medicines carefully choſen under his immediate inſpection.

WANTED as an APPRENTICE, a Young Man of reſpectable connexions, who will be inſtructed in the Greek and Latin languages, and the Practice of Phyſic and Surgery, Midwifry and Pharmacy.——For terms, apply to

JAMES GLENNON.

York, 12th Feb 1808.

WHEREAS my wife Marianne, has deſerted my bed and board, and refuſes to return; this is to forbid all perſons from truſting her on my account.

9th Feb. 1808. FRAN'S. LA COULINE.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to inform the public, that he has at preſent, not run of ſtones going in his Grift Mill on the River Humber, and hopes in a ſhort time to have a ſecond pair. He flatters himſelf, that from his exertions to eſtabliſh manufacturing Mills, (heretofore ſo much wanted) in this neighborhood, his ſupport will be liberal, and that he will give the moſt general ſatisfaction, as he will employ none but experienced and conſidential workmen. He has at preſent a conſiderable quantity of Lumber and Boards on hand and will be happy to receive orders for theſe articles, which he will execute with thanks and punctuality: for the preſent, he requeſts them to be addreſſed to himſelf at the Humber, or left at the Printing Office in York.

WILLIAM COOPER.

Humber, Dec. 18, 1807.

Beef-Steak & Beer Houſe.

THE ſubſcriber informs his friends and the public that he has opened a Houſe of Entertainment, next door eaſt of Mr. Hunts, where his friends will be ſerved with victualling in good order, on the ſhorteſt notice, and at a cheap rate. He will furniſh the beſt Strong Beer at 8 pence N. Y. Currency per quart, if drank in his houſe, and at 8s. N. Y. Currency per gallon, if taken out. As he intends to keep a conſtant ſupply of racked Beer, with a view not to injure the health of his cuſtomers, and for which he will hang to pay caſh, the very ſmall profits at which he offers to ſell, will put it out of his power to give credit, and he hopes none will be aſked.

N. B. He will immediately have entertainment for Man and Horſe.

DANIEL TIERS.

York, 12th Jan. 1808.

THE Subſcriber begs leave to inform thoſe Cuſtomers to whom he has furniſhed Liquor on credit, that his wants for Grain or Caſh are very preſſing.—He therefore hopes this Notice will induce his Friends to aſſiſt him, without his being obliged to apply for payment in a legal way. JOHN LYON.

WAR WITH ALGIERS.

New-Bedford, January 30

Arrived this evening, ſhip Honeſtus, capt. Clark, 48 days from the Downs.—Left London about the 11th of Dec. for the Mediterranean. Off Cape Trafalgar, ſpoke a Britiſh ſhip of war, who informed that Algiers had declared War againſt America, and had captured a number of veſſels. In conſequence, went into Tangier for further information—and on application to the American Conſul, the account of war was fully confirmed—and a letter handed by the Conſul to capt. C. a copy of which is given below.

In conſequence of this information Capt. C. left Tangier for America, Jan. 1—touched at Madeira on the 9th, and found it in the hands of the Engliſh; they having taken poſſeſſion of it on the 25th Dec.

"Tangier, 31ſt Dec. 1807.

"SIR,—The belief of the Algerines having commenced hoſtilities on the flag of the United States, is founded on the declaration under oath of capt. Ichabod Sheffield, of the ſchr. Mary-Ann, of New-York, made at Naples—which ſtates, that his veſſel and the brig Violet, of Boſton, were captured on the 26th Nov. by an Algerine frigate of 44 guns. Capt. Sheffield adds, that he had heard the ſame frigate had taken an American ſhip and ſchooner a few days before his veſſel. He was fortunate enough to overpower the Turks put on board the Mary-Ann, and arrived at Naples Dec. 4.

"This intelligence appears fully confirmed by the advice received at Gibraltar, on the 21ſt inſt from Oran, of nine American veſſels having been carried to Algiers, of which Mr. Gavino has acquainted me. Under theſe circumſtances, it is my decided opinion, your determination not to proceed up the Mediterranean, is perfectly right; and I beg you may make this known to every American veſſel you may meet at ſea

"With this is a letter for conſul Cathcart, at Madeira; if you can conveniently leave it there, or put it on board any veſſel bound for that iſland, it may be productive of happy conſequences. I alſo deliver you a diſpatch for the Hon. Secretary of State, which I have to requeſt you will put into the hands of the poſt-maſter, at the firſt port you may be able to make in the United States.

"I wiſh you a ſafe and ſpeedy voyage, and am, Sir, your moſt obedient ſervant,

JAMES SIMPSON.

Capt. Nathaniel Clark,
Ship Honeſtus, Tangier-Bay.

Capt. Clark informs, that about the 1ſt Dec. authentic information was received in London, that Ruſſia had declared war againſt England.—Capt. C. read the Declaration himſelf, and ſays that 48 hours were allowed to the Engliſh to get away with their ſhips, &c. of which they had generally availed themſelves; and that the Engliſh had taken poſſeſſion of a Ruſſian frigate, which was lying at Portſmouth, and made all the Ruſſians in England priſoners of war.

That Sweden had concluded an armiſtice with France, which was to continue till May.

That it had been rumoured in London, that a general Embargo had taken place in France; but that it proved to be void of foundation. That the brig Acorn, capt. Folger, arrived in London about the 5th December, from Cherbourg; and that capt. Folger ſtated, that an Embargo of a few days continuance had been laid in conſequence of 2 or 3 frigates being about to ſail, which probably gave riſe to the report.

That it was reported in London, and generally ſuppoſed to be true, that the Royal Family of Portugal, had embarked for Brazil; that off the rock of Liſbon, he ſpoke an Engliſh frigate, an officer from which confirmed this report; and added, that the French had poſſeſſion of Liſbon.

American veſſels, turned away from their ports of deſtination on the Continent, in conſequence of the blockading decrees, were daily arriving in England.

Capt. Clark left a number of American veſſels at London and in the Downs, but not being bound directly home, did not furniſh himſelf with a liſt. He offers the ſame apology for not bringing any papers. The public will no doubt feel indebted to him for his attention in communicating the above important particulars of verbal information.

The only conjectures we have heard, as to the cauſe of the ſudden hoſtility of Algiers towards the United States, are, that it might be occaſioned by ſome accidental failure in the receipt of the tribute—or that the Dey wanted money for his war with Tunis, and improved the opportunity of the abſence of our men of war, to make prizes of our merchantmen. England and Algiers have long been on bad terms.

Extract of a letter from New-Bedford, dated January 31.

This afternoon arrived ſhip Niagara, capt. Croſs, 43 days from Rotterdam.

Capt. C. confirms the intelligence of a Declaration of War by Ruſſia againſt England, and ſays, he heard it mentioned, that the Emperor of Ruſſia had aſſerted, he would continue hoſtilities till the Engliſh had reſtored what they had taken from Denmark.

He alſo confirms the account of the capture of our veſſels by the Algerines.

He underſtood, a ſhort time previous to leaving Rotterdam, that Louis had reſigned from the Government of Holland, on account of ill health, and that Talleyrand had arrived at the Hague to ſupply his place. A more rigorous treatment of neutrals it was expected would reſult from this change.

Capt. C. informs that the ſhip Waſhington, Caſe, of this port, for whoſe ſafety ſtrong apprehenſions had been entertained, was at, or near Cuxhaven, detained by the French. The Orozimbo, Allen, of this port, was detained at Middleburg—her cargo landed, but veſſel not ſuffered to depart, unleſs the conſignee would become obligated to furniſh another veſſel to take it out of the country, provided it was finally ordered away.

Capt. Howes, who has arrived at Gloucester, from Bordeaux, in 45 days, informs, that American veſſels had been embargoed, and their papers kept from them; but that the latter had been reſtored, and the veſſels allowed to depart. Americans are treated in an unfriendly manner; and the Emperor is ſaid to have declared, that the United States ſhould declare for him or againſt him.

New York, Jan. 28.

Arrived at Charleſton, Jan. 13, Bremin Brig Ceres, Capt. Ruyter, 56 days from Bremen. Captain R. left Bremen the 22d of October, but did not ſail from the mouth of the river until the 15th of November. An express boat was ſent to him, with orders to ſail immediately, in conſequence of an embargo having been laid by the French in that port. It was alſo ſtated, that all the ports of France and her allies were ſhut againſt all neutral veſſels, excepting ſuch only as brought proviſions. Colonial produce was particularly excluded, from a belief that moſt of it was Engliſh property. The embargo was ſaid to be general in France, and all the ports under the control of Bonaparte. On the 20th of November, in the channel he was boarded by the Britiſh frigate Revolutionaire, the commander of which informed him, that the whole of the Continent was in a ſtate of blockade, and that the King of Sweden had delivered up his navy to Great Britain.

January 29.

The ſhip Suffolk, from London, whoſe arrival we noticed yeſterday, was boarded on the 6th of December, by a Britiſh man of war brig, bound from Liſbon for England, from whom ſhe received information that 13,000 French troops had entered the capital of Portugal; and that the Portuguese fleet had been joined by an Engliſh ſquadron, under the command of Sir Sidney Smith, off the Tagus.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Recent intelligence from the continent induces a belief that Bonaparte is determined to force America to take a decided part in the war, either on the side of Great Britain or France. At one of his Levees a short time since, he declared publicly to Gen. Armstrong, that he would not admit of any neutrals in the war—and he added, "You may tell your employers, that they may join with England if they please—but it is my determination to exterminate these proud islanders from the face of the earth."

It was not without sufficient reason that the American Minister at Paris recommended that all vessels bearing the flag of the United States should immediately quit the ports of France, and of all countries under her controul, as will be seen by the circular letter addressed by the Consul of the United States, at Hamburgh, to the masters of American ships bound to that port. What a contraft does this new French decree offer to our late Order in Council! We allow American vessels to clear out from the ports of the United States to the 10th of February, and proceed to France; and the French seize a vessel, and sequester the cargo, for entering the Elbe in defiance of a regulation of which it was impossible she could know any thing.

Quebec, January 28.

A young lad of the name of Descarcau was killed on Saturday last as he was passing in the road under the point of the Cape on this side of l'Ance de Mer, by a large body of snow which fell from the Cape. He was carried with the snow entirely down to the River, where his body was found.

The next morning at 6 o'clock, a large Hangard of 140 feet in length by 40 in depth, belonging to Mr. Alex. Munn ship-builder, was crushed to pieces by an enormous mass of snow which fell from the cape near the same place. Mr. Munn's dwelling house has also been considerably injured, and it is probably owing to the resistance of a row of fruit trees at the back of the house, that Mr. Munn and his whole Family did not share the deplorable fate of a family of 7 persons at St. Augustin three years ago.

Charleston, Jan. 20.

Embargo.—What the effects of this act will be abroad we are to learn hereafter, but those which it is producing at home we begin to feel, and feel pretty sharply. Rice, which some weeks since sold briskly at 3 dolls. 50 cents, is now nominally worth but 1 dollar 75 cents: Black seed cotton has fallen from 34 cents to 22 a 25 and no sale, & corn is down to 56 cents.

The North Carolina price current says, flour is down to 2 dolls. 25 cents the barrel, and Tobacco to 2 dolls. 50 cents the cwt. Such is the beginning of the Embargo measure, but what will be the end?

Extract of a letter from Washington to the Editor of the Philadelphia Gazette.

This place is extremely prolific in reports. Among those of to-day is the following which I by no means intend you should believe, though it is certainly not far removed from probability. It is said, that Mr. Tureau has openly expressed his disapprobation at our government's condescending to receive Mr. Rose, and that if he is continued to be recognized as British Envoy, he will demand his passports—It is incontestibly true, that Tureau for a long time past, has been jealous of Mr. Erskine. The following circumstance is an evidence of this fact:—

Some days past, Mr. Turreau waited on Mr. Madison at his office. Previous to entering his apartment, he enquired, "I hope Mr. Erskine is not with the Secretary? Upon being answered in the affirmative, he appeared offended; & said, if he went to the Secretary of State, there was Mr. Erskine—if to the Navy Department, there was Mr. Erskine—if to the Secretary at War, there was Mr. Erskine—the government has but one ear, and that is given to the English minister."

From Washington, January 28.

Our political relations with Great Britain have again assumed an unfavorable aspect—Mr. Rose has no power to make a treaty with the United States—his mission relates to the affair of the Chesapeake solely—and it is said he demands a revocation of the President's proclamation "interdicting British ships of war from our waters and ports" before he can atone for the affair of the Chesapeake, and that on this subject he has no discretionary power. Nothing further, I believe, has transpired respecting the new mission from England. Alb. Gaz.

RUMOUR.—We have a report, that Mr. John Q. Adams has been appointed to confer with Mr. Rose, the new British envoy. N. Y. Oracle.

The Legislature of Virginia by a majority of 134 to 57, has determined on Mr. Madison as their candidate for the next president. Mr. Munroe was his competitor.

The legislature of Georgia, at their last session, appropriated 150,000 dollars for the purchase of arms; and directed the state house and scite at Louisville to be reserved for a public arsenal.

On the margin of a Chillicothe paper of the 14th Dec. we find a written note mentioning that Burr and Blannerhaffet had arrived. The court was still in session.

Masquerades and Masqued Balls, having been attempted to be introduced into the city of Philadelphia, Mr. John Sergeant, a member of the Pennsylvania legislature for that city, has brought into the house of Assembly a resolution, to prevent and restrain practices the tendency of which is so obviously injurious and immoral, by declaring all Masquerades and Masqued Balls to be public nuisances, and directing the punishment which shall be inflicted upon every person promoting or encouraging the same.

We had flattered ourfelves with the pleafing hope, that by the laft mails, we fhould have received accounts of the adjuftment of our differences with the United States.—They are in train, but we have no information on the fubject in particular, as to enable us to fpeak pofitively of the progrefs.

We announce with much fincere regret, the lofs of Mr. BEEMAN's Houfe in this town, which was totally conſumed by Fire yefterday; the principal part of Meſſrs. Campbell and Deary's furniture, and Mr. Drean's goods were fave. Much praife is due to the members of the Legiſlature, the Military, and to all claſſes of the towns people, for their exertions and aſſiſtance, to which, under Providence, muſt be aſcribed the faving many other buildings.

 This unfortunate accident prevented our publiſhing yeſterday.

Having obſerved in that vehicle of malevolence and detraction, ſtiled the Upper Canada Guardian, or Freeman's Journal a paragraph, wherein my name is mentioned in a diſingenious, illiberal and diſhoneſt manner, and for an inſidious and ſiniſter purpoſe; I publicly avow, that that paragraph is unauthoriſed by me, & ſo far as relates to my duty having become a toil, or that my fidelity and diligence are rewarded with negligence and contempt, as therein inſinuated; it is a baſe, foul and malicious falſehood. In the event of a war with America, a parliament duty, the protection of reverend and ſuperannuated parents, would be upon me incumbent and irreſiſtible; but the determination, which on my part, may reſult from filial affection or imperious circumſtances, I ſhall not announce through the proſtituted and pointed medium the Guardian. With reſpect to the ſlanderous publications in that organ of infamy and calumny, I have heretofore obſerved a ſilence and forbearance. I ſhould, ere this, have diſcharged my duty to my country, by opening the painted ſepulchre, and exhibiting to the Public its rotten and peſtilential contents, to all their deformity, had the idea not been ſedulouſly inculcated, that my writ-ſuppoſitious productions were ſubmitted to particular inſpection, attempered to acquieſcence, and controuled by authority: an idea falſe & unfounded! When honored with the charge of the Official Preſs of this Province, I was inveſted with diſcretionary powers, theſe I have ſo far exerciſed at the expence of patriotic and indignant feelings, and from the fulleſt conviction that the "Guardian," from the criminal and unhallowed nature of its inſtitution, and the poiſonous views in its eſtabliſhment, would ſpeedily periſh by the united ſuffrages of an honeſt inſulted community.

J. CAMERON.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.—Jany. 27.

The Houſe reſolved itſelf into a Committee, to take the Addreſs into conſideration, and adopted it without any amendment. Meſſrs. Howard and Dorland were appointed a committee to wait upon his Excellency to know when he would receive the Houſe with their Addreſs:—

Mr. Willcocks obtained leave to bring in a bill on Saturday next, "to revive the bounty upon deſtroying of wolves in this Province."

Mr. Howard obtained leave to bring in a bill on Monday next, to alter the method of performing Statute labour on the highways and roads throughout this Province.

Mr. Solicitor General's Bill for aſcertaining the titles to lands, was on the order of the day for the firſt reading. He apologized for not being able to bring it in, and obtained permiſſion to delay it till to morrow.

Thurſday, 28th Jan. Meſſrs. Howard and Dorland reported that they had waited upon his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, & that he had been pleaſed to appoint this day at 12 o'clock, to receive the Houſe with their Addreſs. The whole Houſe, with its officers, waited upon the Lieutenant Governor with the Addreſs, to which he returned the Anſwer published in our Gazette of January 27th.——The Bill for aſcertaining titles to Lands, was read a firſt time, and ordered to be read a ſecond time on Tueſday next.

Friday 29th Jany.—Mr. Willcocks, purſuant to a notice given yeſterday, moved that every member ſhould have acceſs to the Journals, and be permitted to take extracts from them.

Mr. Solicitor oppoſed the motion. The firſt part he conſidered idle, every member had unqueſtionably a right to ſee the Journals. The ſecond part of the motion relative to making extracts, he conſidered to be improper for the Houſe to grant. He had underſtood, that the gentleman who made the motion was a Printer. He might make the ſame extracts as ſuit his own private purpoſes, and the Journals would appear to the public in an imperfect ſtate.

Mr. Willcocks ſaid that it was his intention to print the Journals in a perfect ſtate, & not by ſelections: he would pledge himſelf to give the whole of them to the public as far as he was able.—The queſtion was put & negatived.

Mr. Willcocks expreſſed a diſapprobation of the proceedings (the words were not diſtinctly heard by the writer) he ſaid to nothing of a promiſe of ſupport by ſeveral members, and of having been deceived.

Mr. Sherwood, in ſtrong terms, expreſſed his ſurprize at the language that had juſt fallen from the gentleman (Mr. Willcocks.) He could not conceive that any individual of the Honorable Houſe would be ſo indiſcreet as to make a promiſe to ſupport any meaſure until it was fully diſcuſſed before the Houſe. Such a procedure would be unworthy of a member of a deliberative body. Mr. Sherwood ſaid, that he had never made any ſuch promiſe, that he would ſupport any member's meaſures, when convinced that they were for the public good, but he diſdained to enter into any combination out of doors. It appeared by the declaration of the gentleman (Mr. Willcocks) that he intended to print the Journals. Mr. Sherwood was uncertain whether any individual member had a right to do that, he was therefore under the neceſſity of voting in the negative. Gentlemen bringing forward new meaſures, would do well to give ſufficient time for conſideration. The queſtion in this inſtance had been brought forward with too much haſte.

The Solicitor General was highly indignant at Mr. Willcock's aſſertion, that ſome members had promiſed to ſupport him. He would not allow himſelf to believe that any gentleman could ſo far forget himſelf as to enter into ſuch a contract.

Capt. Cowan addreſſed the Speaker, and beg'd to call the attention of the Houſe to a Newſpaper which he held in his hand, publiſhed by Mr Joſeph Willcocks. He [Capt. Cowan] alleaged, that a paragraph of that paper, would to the common ſenſe of any perſon, amount to an accuſation that the preſent Houſe of Aſſembly had been bribed by the Governor, with lands, to vote againſt the intereſts of their conſtituents. Capt. Cowan conſidered ſuch an aſſertion as remarkable for its boldneſs as it was deſtitute of foundation. He felt his own innocence, and he believed every member in the Houſe to be innocent of the imputation. He therefore preſumed that the Houſe would not ſuffer it to paſs unnoticed.

Mr. Willcocks denied that he had aſſerted in his paper that the Houſe were bribed. But even if he had made ſuch an aſſertion, the Houſe ought not to call him to an account for it, as he was already under a proſecution carried on againſt him by the Attorney General, and the jury that ſhould hereafter try him might be prejudiced.

Mr. Sherwood animadverted upon Mr. Willcocks's aſſertion that the Houſe ought not to try him even if he were guilty. Mr. Sherwood ſaid that Mr. Willcocks as a member of the Houſe was perfectly acquainted with the laws and conſtitution of the country. It ſo he could not be ignorant that the Houſe had power over any individual member to expel him, or ſend him to priſon. Mr. Sherwood could not think that his Majeſty's Attorney General had brought a proſecution for a libel againſt this Houſe, without the directions of the Houſe. Mr. Sherwood preſumed that the grounds of the proſecution were different from what has been ſtated.

Mr. Solicitor General explained the proſecution. He ſaid that it was an information filed in the Court of King's Bench for a libel againſt his Majeſty's Government in this Province. That the paragraph in queſtion was inſerted in the information. That part relative to this Houſe is blended with other matter that it could not be ſeparated.

The newſpaper was ordered to lie on the table for further conſideration.

Saturday, 30th Jan.—Mr. Willcocks's bill for giving a bounty to deſtroy wolves was read for the firſt time, and ordered to be read again on Tueſday next.

Capt. Cowan gave notice that he ſhould move on Monday next that the Houſe do then reſolve itſelf into a Committee to take into conſideration that part of the paragraph in the newſpaper lying on the table called the Guardian, as relates to this Houſe. At the requeſt of Mr. Willcocks, Capt. Cowan altered the notice to Wednesday next.

On Mr. Sherwood's motion, the houſe ordered that a copy of the paragraph in queſtion be ſent to each member.

Monday, 1ſt Feb.—Mr. Dorland's Bill for the regulation of paſſing and town officers was read a firſt time.

A Bill brought in by Mr. Mallory, to enable the people of the county of Northumberland to hold an annual meeting, in the manner and town meeting, was read for the firſt time.

Tueſday, 2d February.—The Houſe went into Committee upon Mr. Willcocks's bill for reviving the bounty for deſtroying Wolves. Capt Cowan in the Chair. Mr Willcocks ſaid that a meeting had been held by his conſtituents to give him inſtructions. But among the firſt of the inſtructions was an act of this kind. He conſidered it very neceſſary for the good of the country—not was a popular meaſure.

The Solicitor General oppoſed the bill as deſtroying one bill now propoſed was formerly an exiſting law in the Province, and had been repealed at the laſt ſeſſion of Parliament; it would look very capricious and even childiſh to enact a law one year, repeal it the ſecond, and re-enact it the third: it would have a bad effect upon the induſtry of the lower claſs of people, for many would waſte their time in woot-hunting who ought to be otherwiſe employed. He had ventured through a great part in the Province laſt year, and had converſed with many people upon the ſubject of the law relative to woot bounties during the laſt ſeſſion of parliament, and believed that repeal had given general ſatisfaction.

Mr. Washburn ſaid that he was inſtructed by the people of the Bay of Quinte to ſupport ſuch a bill as was now before the Houſe, and he would ſupport it. If the bill did not paſs, he would bring in one for the Midland-Diſtrict only.—The public in general were very much diſſatisfied with the Legiſlature for their conduct laſt year in repealing the law for Wolf bounties.

THE Subſcriber has juſt received the following GARDEN SEEDS, which he will diſpoſe of on moderate terms;—viz.

DOCTOR J. GLENNON,

RESPECTFULLY begs leave to inform the Public and the Inhabitants of York in particular, that he has commenced buſineſs at the houſe lately occupied by Mr. M'Lean, oppoſite Mr Marian. He flatters himſelf that the opportunity he has had of acquiring a knowledge of his profeſſion, at one of the firſt Colleges in Europe, will enable him to merit the approbation of thoſe who may be pleaſed to favor him with their commands.

N. B. He has on hand an aſſorted Stock of Genuine Medicines carefully choſen under his immediate inſpection.

York, 12th Feb. 1808.

THE ſubſcriber begs leave to inform the public, that he has recently erected, and now in full going, his Grift Mill on the River Humber, and hopes in a ſhort time to have it in full operation. He flatters himſelf, that from his exertions to eſtabliſh unexceptionable Mills, (heretofore in much wanted) in this neighborhood, his ſupport will be liberal, and that he will give the moſt general ſatisfaction, as he will employ none but experienced and confidential workmen. He has at preſent a conſiderable quantity of Lumber and Boards on hand, and will be happy to receive orders for theſe articles, which he will execute with thanks and punctuality: for the preſent, he requeſts them to be addreſſed to himſelf at the Humber, or left at the Printing Office in York.

WILLIAM COOPER

Humber, Dec 18, 1807.

Beef-Steak & Beer Houſe.

THE ſubſcriber informs his friends and the public that he has opened a Houſe of Entertainment, next door eaſt of Mr. Hunts, where his friends will be ſerved with victualling, in good order, on ſhort ſhorteſt notice, and at a cheap rate. He will furniſh the beſt Strong Beer at 8 pence N. Y. Currency per quart, if drank in his houſe, and at 2s 6d. N. Y. Currency per gallon, if taken out. As he intends to keep a conſtant ſupply of racked Beer, with a view not to ſpare the health of his cuſtomers, and for which he will have to pay caſh, the very ſmall profits at which he offers to ſell, will put it out of his power to give credit, and he hopes none will be aſked.

N. B. He will immediately have entertainment for Man and Horſe.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,

Tuesday, 2d February.

Mr. Clench was of opinion that to encourage the deſtruction of wolves throughout the Province, by bounties, as far as the ſame conſiſtently could be done, would be worthy of the attention of the legiſlature. He would not aſſert that the bill in its preſent ſhape would have the deſired effect, but perhaps it might be modified to anſwer the purpoſe. He did not think that the Honorable Gentleman's (Mr. Solicitor's) argument had much weight in regard to the induſtry of the people being affected by hunting Wolves. Many perſons occaſionally hunted without being injured by it. In ſuch excurſions they might be ſtimulated to exertions for the killing of Wolves, by a proper bounty, without which no conſiderable effort would be made. He did not know, however, that the repeal of the act laſt year had given general diſſatisfaction. He had been ſeveral reſpectable people who approved of it.

Mr. Willcocks ſaid that he believed he had as good an opportunity of knowing the ſentiments of the people as the Honorable Gentlemen (Mr. Solicitor) who oppoſed the bill, and that thoſe ſentiments had appeared to him directly contrary to what had juſt been ſtated. The money beſtowed in bounties belonged to the people, and they had a right to expect that it would be expended for their benefit.

Mr. Sherwood was well inclined to the principle of the bill, but thought it only calculated for the meridian of the Diſtrict of Niagara and Midland Diſtrict, as thoſe diſtricts only had funds ſufficient to defray the expence. The laws now in force for raiſing and collecting aſſeſſments and rates, were made for the purpoſes of building court houſes and keeping them in repair, paying jailers, conſtables, aſſeſſors, collectors, town clerks, ſheriffs, and clerks of the peace. The current revenue of ſix diſtricts, annually, did not exceed the annual expences of the court houſes, and of theſe ſeveral officers—an individual ſhould be juſt before he could be generous with propriety. The ſame maxim ſhould govern thoſe who had the management of the diſtrict funds; yet how could that be if we burthened thoſe funds with more than they would bear. The payment of debts due to thoſe who had ſerved the public, was an act of juſtice; a payment for the encouragement of deſtroying wolves, was an act of generoſity, as the word bounty implied. By one clauſe in the bill the treaſurer was to pay the bounty out of the firſt money that ſhould come into his hands. Mr. Sherwood could not ſee the propriety of ſuch a preference; he conſidered that orders upon a diſtrict treaſury ſhould be paid in exact ſucceſſion, according to their reſpective dates, when there was not money enough in the treaſury to pay them all at once. Mr. Sherwood concluded by ſaying that he would ſupport the bill as far as it related to the Niagara and Midland Diſtricts, and if the gentleman who brought it in would ſuggeſt any means of obviating the difficulties relative to the other ſix diſtricts in the Province, he would ſupport it generally.—On motion of Mr. Willcocks, the Chairman reported progreſs, and had leave to ſit again to-morrow.

The Houſe went into Committee upon Mr. Dorland's bill for the regulation of parish and town officers. Mr. Clench in the Chair. Mr. Dorland ſaid that by the act now in force relative to pariſh and town officers, the collector of every township was obliged to enter into a bond, with two ſureties, to the clerk of the peace; and for his attendance with ſuch ſureties, was allowed a ſhilling per mile. That the expence incurred by the diſtricts was exceſſive and unneceſſary. The object of this bill was to provide a remedy, by authoriſing the town clerk to take the bond from the collector, in lieu of the clerk of the peace.

Mr. Rogers ſaid that as clerk of the peace for the Diſtrict of Newcaſtle, he had been in the habit of ſending the bonds to the reſpective collectors, to have them executed, or executing them when any of the collectors caſually attended at the quarter ſeſſions, by which means the greateſt part of the expence had been ſaved to the diſtrict. He ſuggeſted the propriety of repealing the clauſe relative to a ſhilling per mile, to make it the duty of the clerk of the peace to ſend the bonds to the collectors to be executed.

Mr. Howard ſupported the bill in its preſent ſtate, without any amendment. He was of opinion that the town clerks could do the duty. The annual expence of the collector's attending the clerk of the peace in the diſtrict of Johnſtown, amounted to upwards of fifteen pounds.

The Chairman addreſſed the Committee. He ſaid that the amount of the rates and aſſeſſments in the Diſtrict of Niagara, was about nine hundred pounds. That in the diſcharge of his duty as clerk of the peace for that diſtrict, he had adopted ſuch meaſures, that the diſtrict had not been ſubjected to five pounds expence for travelling fees of the collectors.

Mr. Sherwood agreed with the gentleman who brought in the bill, as to the expediency of aboliſhing the clauſe now in force relative to allowing a collector one ſhilling per mile for attending the clerk of the peace; but he could not conſent to take the duty from the clerk of the peace of drawing the bonds. They were generally men of buſineſs; and the town clerks, who are annually choſen, would probably in many inſtances be ignorant and negligent. If any collector ſhould be delinquent, the clerk of the peace might be ordered by the ſeſſions to proſecute the bond, which order he would promptly obey; but the town clerk might not attend to ſuch an order, as the ſeſſions had no controul over him. Mr. Sherwood conſidered the meaſure propoſed by the Gentleman from the Diſtrict of Newcaſtle, (Mr. Rogers) as the wiſeſt that could be adopted.

Mr. Willcocks ſaid that the town clerks were choſen by the people, and certainly they would chuſe none but proper perſons for town clerks.

On motion of Mr. Dorland, the Chairman reported progreſs, and obtained leave to ſit again to-morrow.

The Houſe went into Committe upon Mr. Mallory's bill to enable the inhabitants of the county of Haldimand to hold an annual meeting, in the nature of a town meeting. Mr. Cryller in the Chair. Mr. Mallory explained to the Committee the peculiar ſituation of that County. It contained a population of nearly three hundred families, and was not divided into townſhips or pariſhes. The inhabitants were therefore unable to elect pariſh and town officers. The preſent bill was to enable them to hold a meeting in the County for that purpoſe.

The Chairman reported the bill without any amendment.

Wednesday, 3d February.—Capt. Cowan's notice was on the order of the day, to move the Houſe to go into committee of the whole relative to a paragraph in the Upper Canada Guardian, of the 1ſt of October laſt, publiſhed by Mr. Willcocks. Capt. Cowan addreſſed the Speaker. He ſaid that he was informed that Mr. Willcocks was under a proſecution by his Majeſty's Attorney General—he (Capt. Cowan) was inclined to think that it would not be reaſonable to ſubject him to a trial by the Houſe; but rather to leave the matter to be decided by the laws of the country. He ſhould therefore delay his intended motion.

Mr. Sherwood was well ſatiſfied that the gentleman had poſtponed his motion, and hoped that he would diſcontinue any further proceedings upon it. The Houſe was not much in the habit of acting in a judicial capacity, and they ſhould beware of being influenced by reſentment. They had a queſtionably great power over the member accuſed, but it was conſiſtent with found policy and true dignity, to uſe that power with moderation. He had been informed by the Solicitor General that he diſlike of the paragraph, ſuppoſed to allude to this Houſe, was contained in an information filed in the Court of King's Bench. If Mr. Willcocks were convicted, there was no doubt but the meaſure of the puniſhment would be equal to the offence.

The Houſe went again into Committee for the regulation of pariſh and town officers. The bill was read clauſe by clauſe, and adopted with ſome ſmall amendment.

Mr. Sherwood's bill for repealing the act granting the ſum of 400 pounds yearly to the town of York for public buildings, was read the firſt time, and ordered to be read a ſecond time to-morrow.

Mr. Sherwood's bill for eſtabliſhing Courts of Common Pleas, was read the firſt time, and ordered to be read a ſecond time on Saturday next.

Mr. Sherwood's bill for regulating ſpecial Juries, was read the firſt time, and ordered to be read a ſecond time on Friday next.

Thurſday, 4th February.—The Houſe went again into committe of the whole upon the Weſt bill. Mr. Willcocks ſaid that he had given himſelf the trouble to make enquiry ſince the laſt debate of ſeveral reſpectable perſons from different parts of the province, and he was convinced that the bill in its preſent ſtate would anſwer for the whole province. He would not therefore propoſe any amendment.

Mr. M'Lean ſaid that he would ſupport a bill of this kind for the Midland Diſtrict, and for any other diſtrict of the province where it would apply. It would have a tendency to encourage and benefit that moſt uſeful body of men the farmers, and ſuch encouragement and benefit was well worthy of the attention of the legiſlature.

Mr. M'Gregor was directly oppoſed to the bill when applied to the province at large, and particularly to the Weſtern Diſtrict. He wiſhed his reaſons ſhould be diſtinctly underſtood. The Weſtern Diſtrict was in debt at this time nearly to the amount of 600 pounds, and as the yearly expences were almoſt equal to the ſum collected, they muſt proceed ſlowly in paying off the old debt. A bounty upon Wolf ſcalps could not be paid in that diſtrict without further aſſeſſments, and he, had reason to think that was the case with many other districts.

Mr. Howard was very desirous that the bill should pass in its present shape, and not be limited to any particular part of it. He supposed that the inhabitants of two districts would not be pleased to pay for the killing of wolves for the whole province. He considered cheep as the most valuable property that a farmer could own, and the loss of them was consequently injurious in proportion.

Mr. Sherwood said that wolves were to be found in great abundance as far as 60 degrees north, and they were known to be very numerous in the other hemisphere, between 40 and 50 degrees south. When he considered, therefore, that those animals could roam through a space in this vast continent of upwards of six thousand miles in length, by two and three thousand in breadth, he did not think that the ingenuity of the gentleman who brought in the bill would ever enable him considerably to diminish them. He compared it to an attempt to destroy the musquetoes. The legislature had heretofore unwittingly burthened the revenue of most of the districts with greater expences than it would bear. The consequence had been that debts had constantly accumulated, until the credit of many districts had sunk so low that an order upon the district treasury, (which should have been as good as a bank bill) was not worth five shillings in the pound. The legislature had remedied this evil as far as possible, at the last session, by repealing the wolf bounties.

Charleston, Jan. 26.

Yesterday arrived the ship Charles Carter, Capt. Drysdale, in 48 days from London; and the ship Northern Liberties, Capt. Watt, from Greenock. By these arrivals we have received London papers the 10th, and Greenock papers to the 12th ult. inclusive.

The article of most importance is the declaration of the Emperor of Russia, which, although not declared to be so, is tantamount to a declaration of war. The British government have, therefore, laid an embargo upon all the Russian vessels in their ports, & ordered their cruizers to detain all such as they should fall in with. The influence of Bonaparte has added the only maritime nation in Europe, to the enemies of the British, & has woven another laurel for the brow of some of her naval commanders. The Russian naval officers have learnt the art of war in the British navy, but they will, probably, soon have it in their power to evince to the world whether or not they have improved by the lessons which have been given them. It is generally believed that Sweden will be compelled to join in the confederacy.

The temporary authority of the Pope is almost at an end. The French have taken possession of the Castle of St. Angelo, preparatory to the erection of another kingdom in Italy, of which Lucien Bonaparte is to be the head, by the title of King of Latium.

General Sebastini, the French Ambassador to the Porte, has left Constantinople for Paris—The Turkish Government torn by factions, and distracted in their councils, by the influence of Bonaparte and Alexander, will, most probably fall a sacrifice to the insidious friendship of the one, and the overwhelming power of the other.

The city of Berlin, as well as the provinces, are in a state of the most complete misery. The inhabitants are threatened with military execution, for not paying the contributions which the french have imposed upon them, and which they are entirely unable to pay. Bonaparte has demanded five millions of dollars from the king of Prussia, and required that eight of the strongest Prussian for tresses should be garrisoned by French troops until the conclusion of the war.

Bonaparte, it is said, is gone to Italy, for the purpose of meeting all the king and princes, of his own making, at Milan, The Pope, the King and Queen of Naples, the Queen of Etruria, the King of Bavaria, &c. are to be there: but it is not known for what purpose these great personages are to assemble.

The Prince of Asturias has been released by the king of Spain, through the interference of Bonaparte, who has presented him with the cordon of the legion of honor. His highness, it is said, confessed his guilt to his royal parents, and not only received their pardon, but has been placed at the head of the Spanish army destined to invade Portugal. If this account be true, the power of the Prince of Peace is completely overturned; Bonaparte has employed him as long as he thought necessary, and will now, probably, sacrifice him, as the subject way of obtaining popularity with the people, who drew his carriage through the streets amidst the loudest acclamations.

It will open the most extensive mart for their manufactures, and will pave the way for the fall of the Spanish power in South America.

LATEST FROM PORTUGAL.

Extract of a letter from a mercantile house in Lisbon, dated 29th November, 1807, to their correspondent in Boston.

"In consequence of the expected daily arrival of the French army in this city, the Prince Regent, Queen, all the Royal Family, and most of the Nobility, embarked yesterday, and sailed this morning for the Brazils.—This port was declared in a state of blockade the 22d inst. by the squadron under the command of Sir Sidney Smith; the other ports of this kingdom are, however, not included in this blockade.

"I have not, from my political standing, access to the official fountains—it is not mine accedere ad fontes—but information from those sources has descended to me through such channels, that I can venture to assure you, almost beyond a doubt, that our differences with Great Britain will be speedily and satisfactorily accommodated. Apprehensions of French influence upon our councils have been entertained, even by many of the republican party—BUT THAT DANGER IS NEARLY OVER. We shall have peace with Britain. War with France will follow: And America and Britain will be the only obstacles to the gigantic project of Napoleon and Alexander, to divide the world between them. Gloomy will be the prospect, horrible will be the conteft!—Heaven alone can save us, and let us confidently hope that Heaven will yet smile on the cause of Freedom."

A letter from Gibon, mentions that Bonaparte has himself written to the Prince of Asturias, constituting him Generalissimo of the united French and Spanish army destined to act against Portugal, and tells him, To go and conquer a country which he will one day govern.

The sword which Bonaparte put into the Prince of Asturias, is that of Francis I. taken by the Spaniards at the battle of Pavia, and lately returned by the king of Spain to the French emperor.

Came into harbor the Crown Princess Maria, Odin, and the Sourknoy Russian frigate. The Russian is very valuable; she has 170,000 ducats, and 500,000 dollars, a quantity of plate, besides a cargo of copper and stores, on board.

REVENGE UNEXEMPLIFIED.

NO wounds are more incurable than those of honor, in almost all nations and ages, men have willingly sacrificed their lives rather than pocket an insult, and we seldom suffer unjustly without wishing to retaliate the injury invariably preferring that we have a right to treat others as we ourselves have been treated.

One of the most striking instances of this kind is recorded of a young Spanish Officer, who being ordered on service to some of the West India Islands, happened to settle in one where the governor or Viceroy had made a law that no Indian should be employed in carrying the baggage of Europeans. The young officer, whose name was Aguirra, notwithstanding engaged an Indian or Negro in carrying several parcels belonging to him. He was instantly accused, and condemned to the usual punishment, which was, that the criminal should be whipped on an ass. Great intercession was made for him without effect. With much ado, however, a reprieve was at last obtained for him for a fortnight, which reached him just as he was fat on the beast, striped, exposed and prepared for punishments. 'Nay,' says Aguirra, 'the shame is suffered, and I am only reprieved for a fortnight: executioner, do your business, and return the tyrant his reprieve.' The sentence accordingly took its course, and the young man endured the punishment which he had incurred. But he never after could be brought to associate with gentlemen. He was constantly strolling about, gloomy and melancholy, in solitary corners. Soon after the Viceroy was removed, and another was sent in his stead. Aguirra was seen hovering round his palace. On this he was advised to move, which he did from the Havanna to Quito, which is 900 miles. Thither in a week's time Aguirra was seen to have followed him, as close as he could. From thence the Viceroy removed to Mexico, which is at least 1800 miles, and in about a fortnight, there Aguirra was also. 'I am resolved,' says the Viceroy, 'to tire this fellow out!' And so transported himself from thence about 3000 miles; but there also did he soon find Aguirra.—'Nay then,' said the Viceroy, 'I will fly the villain no more, but keep a guard about me, and defy him!' which he did. But the palace gates being one day open, and the guads engaged in play, Aguirra entered, boldly mounted the apartments, and finding the Viceroy single and unarmed, stabbed him to the heart, and having no means of escape, stabbed himself at the same time.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Beman's house (lately burned) was not insured, to those who are acquainted with the great and arduous exertions of Mr. Beman, in furnishing provisions for this Town on its first establishment, and to such as can feel for the losses of an upright and valuable man, an opportunity is now offered to be grateful, as well as the benevolent, to raise, by way of loan, from any persons who chuse to subscribe, a fund to enable him to prosecute the business he is engaged in, with such great advantage and convenience to the country.—The terms of the loan might be, one half payable in five years, and the other half in five years more.—Lists for this purpose are left with Duncan Cameron, Esq. The declaration of war by Russia, reported by Capt. Thompson, will, if true, accommodate England. In her trade with Russia, England has always been the loser. In this point of view the occurrence is, however, unworthy of particular notice. Combinations of land force against France, have but tended to augment her power. The same happens with the motley naval force of Europe against England. The Russian declaration of war will be followed by the capture of the Russian maritime force and the annihilation of her commerce. And the fleet of England, already gigantic, and thus increased by the accession of that of Russia, will become the more formidable. France originally assailed, is now fighting for the conquest and humiliation of the world, and England, originally the assailant, for her life. France will be master of the land. England will sweep the ocean. Between these two powers, the unoffending nations of the earth may be crushed. If driven to the utmost extremity, England, unconquerable, unassailable upon the ocean, may become a scourge, and take a terrible revenge; for a nation is bound to save itself by all the means in its power.

JOHN CAMPBELL.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, 23d January, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to all whom it may concern, that His Majesty has been pleased to issue a Royal Warrant, in the words following:—

George R.

WHEREAS a Contract has been entered into by the principal Officers of His Majesty's Navy, with Messrs Boone, Idles & Co. for supplying His Majesty's Dock Yards in England and the West Indies, with Canada Masts and Oak Timber, and it being stipulated in the said Contract, that no Masts or Bowsprits which are cut in His Majesty's Colonies, shall be delivered at the Dock Yards unless they are cut by Licence from His Majesty's Surveyor of the Woods in North America, and that it should be required, under the authority of this Officer. Upon the representation of the matter to Us by the Commissioners for executing the Office of High Admiral of our United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, We have thought fit to give Leave, Licence and Permission unto the said Messrs. Idles & Co. their Agents and Workmen, to travel into and search our Woods in our Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, where we have reserved to us the property in any Woods or Trees, and the right to cutting them, and there to fell and cut so many good and sound Trees, as may answer the number and dimensions mentioned in the said Contract, (a copy whereof, subscribed by one of our Principal Secretaries of State, is hereunto annexed) and to carry the said Trees through our said Woods to the water side, in order to their transporting and bringing them into any Ports without incurring any penalty or forfeiture by reason thereof.—And lastly, We do hereby require as well our Governor or Lieutenant Governor of our said Colonies, as you, and all our Officers, Ministers, and Loving Subjects, whom it may concern, to be aiding and assisting to them, their Agents and Workmen, in whatsoever may relate to the due execution of this service, pursuant to the Contract aforementioned. And for so doing this shall be your Warrant. Given at our Court at Saint James's, the second day of October, 1807, in the forty-seventh year of our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command,
(Signed) CASTLEREAGH.

TO our Trusty and Well beloved Sir John Wentworth, Baronet, Surveyor General of our Woods on the Continent of America, or to his Deputy or Deputies, & to the said Surveyor General of our said Woods, his Deputy or Deputies, for the time being, and all others whom it may concern.

WE the undersigned Contractors, named in His Majesty's Gracious Warrant, do hereby appoint Messrs. Mure and Jouffe, our Agents at Quebec, for the purposes within mentioned.

London, 9th October, 1807.
(Signed)
SCOTT, IDLES & Co

His Excellency further gives Notice, that a Contract has been made under the authority of the said Warrant, with Messrs. Scott, Idles & Co. Merchants in London, who have appointed Messrs Mure and Jouffe, Merchants at Quebec, to be their Agents, for the purposes therein mentioned, and that no irregularity may take place on the part of the said Contractors, their Agents or Workmen, His Excellency has thought proper to order the Deputy Surveyor General of the Woods, to mark such White Pine Trees as come within His Majesty's Orders, expressed in the above Warrant.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN SMALL,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

York, 30th May, 1807

DOCTOR J. GLENNON,

RESPECTFULLY begs leave to inform the Public and the Inhabitants of York in particular, that he has commenced business at the house lately occupied by Mr. M'Lean, opposite Mr. Marian. He flatters himself that the opportunity he has had of acquiring a knowledge of his profession, at one of the first Colleges in Europe, will enable him to merit the approbation of those who may be pleased to favor him with their commands.

N. B. He has on hand an assorted Stock of Genuine Medicines carefully chosen under his immediate inspection.

WANTED as an APPRENTICE, a Young Man of respectable connexions, who will be instructed in the Greek and Latin languages, and the Practice of Surgery, Midwifry and Pharmacy.—For terms, apply to

JAMES GLENNON.

York, 12th Feb. 1808.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform the public, that he has at present, one run of stones going in his Grist Mill on the River Humber, and hopes in a short time to have a second pair. He flatters himself, that from his exertions to establish a manufacturing Mills, (heretofore in much wanted) in this neighborhood, his support will be liberal, and that he will give the most general satisfaction, as he will employ none but experienced and confidential workmen. He has at present a considerable quantity of Lumber and Boards on hand and will be happy to receive orders for these articles, which he will execute with thanks and punctuality: for the present, he requests them to be addressed to himself at the Humber, or left at the Printing Office in York.

WILLIAM COOPER.

Humber, Dec. 18, 1807.

Beef-Steak & Beer House.

THE subscriber informs his friends and the public that he has opened a House of Entertainment, next door east of Mr. Hunts, where his friends will be served with eatbuling, in good order, on the shortest notice, and at a cheap rate. He will furnish the best Strong Beer at 8 pence N. Y. Currency per quart, if drank in his house, and at 1s. 6d. N. Y. Currency per gallon, if taken out. As he intends to keep a constant supplie of racked Beer, with a view soto injure the health, of his customers, and for which he will have to pay cash, the very small profits at which he offers to sell, will put it out of his power to give credit, and he hopes none will be asked.

N. B. He will immediately have entertainment for Man and Horse.

York, 10th Nove 1807.

THE Subscriber wishes to purchase a quantity of WHEAT, for which he will allow the following prices:—

To those persons who have been indebted to him upwards of one year, he will allow at the rate of five shillings and 6d pence N. Y. currency per Bushel.

To those persons who have contracted debts with him within Twelve Months, and to those who wish to barter for Merchandize, he will allow six shillings N. Y. Currency per Bushel.—And also to those who wish to obtain Cash for this article, he will allow at the rate of six shillings N. Y. currency per Bushel, and will give his Bond payable in eight months after the delivery of the Wheat.

The Wheat will be received at Mr. John Bogart's Mills in the Township of Whitchurch, or at Nash's, Lyon's & Walker's Mill in Vaughan. None will be received but that which is of a good quality, as he purposes to have it manufactured for exportation; and in order to accommodate the Farmers, he will endeavor to agree with Mr. Nicholas Miller of Markham, and with Mr. Cooper at the Humber, to receive Wheat at their Mills.

Indian Corn at 5s. 6d. Oats at 3s. Barley at 5s. 2d. Peas at 6s. 6d. will be received at his Store in York, either in payment for debts due him, or in barter for Merchandize, or he will give his Bond for Cash, payable in Eight Months.

Eager and unremitting in his exertions, to encourage the Agriculture and Exports of this Country, Mr. S. engages will procure a second Run of Mill Stones for his Mills, for the purpole of manufacturing Superfine Flour—as he in a few days will leave this for Montreal, from whence with encouragement in the sale of Flour, he will immediately advance his prices for Wheat.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,

Friday, 5th February.

The House went into committee upon the Special Jury Bill. Mr. Rogers in the Chair—Mr. Sherwood explained the object of the bill. It was intended to enable any party of a suit in the Court of King's Bench to obtain a special jury. By the existing laws a special juror must be assessed as high as three hundred pounds, and in several districts there was not a sufficient number of that description. It was necessary to apply to the court by motion, as the laws now stood. Mr. S. considered this altogether unnecessary, it was productive of much delay and expence; he saw no reason why a special jury should not be obtained with the same facility as a common jury. By the bill in question he proposed to make every man assessed at £200 eligible as a special juror, and to enable any party in a suit to obtain such jury without a motion in court; that the party applying should serve a notice on the adverse party to appear at some given day at the sheriff's office. From the jurors eligible should be drawn forty, the parties alternately should strike out twenty-four; the sheriff should return the remaining sixteen. The clerk of the peace was annually to furnish the sheriff with a list of the proper persons from the assels rolls.

Mr. M'Lean preferred that the sheriff should select forty from the whole number, without drawing. He apprehended that drawing might be the means of bringing jurors from very remote parts of the district, when they could be obtained much nearer the court.

The Solicitor General agreed with Mr. M'Lean. In England special jurors were taken from the freeholders book to the amount of forty-eight, and the plaintiff and defendant alternately struck them down to twenty-four. It was of no importance what a special jurors rate was upon the assels roll. He would propose to leave it altogether to the discretion of the sheriff, to return respectable men.

Mr. Clench differed in opinion with the gentlemen who spoke last. He preferred the plan of the bill in its present shape, to any amendment he had heard suggested. He considered the mode laid down in the bill to be unexceptionable. If forty names were drawn, it appeared to him a much fairer way than if the sheriff should chuse them at his pleasure. Such a selection looked something like packing.

Several members wished for further time to consider the bill. The chairman had leave to report progress, and fit again on Monday.

The Solicitor General laid a paper on the table, and informed the Speaker that it was a petition from his Majesty's Attorney General, praying to be heard at the bar of the House against the bill for establishing Courts of Common Pleas.

Mr. Sherwood, after looking at the petition, said that he admired the novelty of this transaction. He had never heard of a petition with a solitary signature against a public bill, in the British House of Commons. He did not think that an Attorney General in England had ever presumed to interfere with the deliberations of that House. He called upon the Solicitor General to prepare himself with authority in support of the propriety of this measure, when a motion should be made for reading the petition.

The Solicitor General said that there was a misapprehension of his conduct; he neither approved of the measure, nor did he intend to support it. He had only brought in the petition as a matter of courtesy to the petitioner.

Saturday, 6th February.

The House went into committee upon the Common Pleas bill.

Mr. Sherwood said that the object of this bill was to remedy one of the greatest grievances that exists in this Province, or that ever could exist in any country, the tardy administration of public justice in civil matters. Let the House peruse the daily journals as here as we. The poorest and weakest individual should be enabled to avail himself of it, with the same facility as the wealthiest and most powerful. One fellow subject, in other parts of the empire, and also the citizens or subjects of other States in amity with Great Britain, who in the ordinary transactions of commercial intercourse, might have debts due to them in this Province, should be able to recover those debts without excessive expence, or unreasonable delay. Every member of the committee knew that these desirable and necessary purposes could not be effected by any court now in this Province. The truth of this proposition was well known to every member of the committee. It would be idle, therefore, to prove by argument, what no one would deny. It might not be amiss, however, to trace to its source the cause that produced such privation of justice. In the infancy of legislation here, and almost in the infancy of the colony, it was not surprising that members should have been returned to the House of Assembly of the first parliament, not too well qualified to discharge their important duty. Their adoption of all the laws of England in civil matters, when most of them knew nothing of their use, was a sample of their profound deliberation. At that time there existed a Court of Common Pleas in every district, and nothing was requisite but the appointment of a few judges, to have rendered these courts highly useful and pleasing to the community. During that parliament (the third) a bill was introduced into the Legislative Council, to abolish these courts of Common Pleas, and establish a Court of King's Bench. By that bill, a system of judicature was attempted, similar to that at Westminster Hall. The court for deciding civil matters was to be holden at one place only, the seat of government; and commissions were to issue annually for trying matters of fact by juries, in different parts of the country. This system, which might be good in England, could not be applied in Upper Canada to answer the purposes of justice. Mr. Sherwood stated numerous obstacles—among others, the want of professional men to act as agents at York, the difficulty of communication with distant parts of the Province, the inadequacy of returning to York for judgment after verdict, the uncertainty of time of holding the assizes, the delay incident to trials but once a year. These and many other causes, produced in most instances, a long delay of justice, which of all others, was the worst. The effects were vexatious and injurious to honest creditors, and pleading and beneficial to fraudulent debtors. The least impediment to the progress of a suit, which an ealy access to the court would readily remove, was sufficient to delay the trial. The British Parliament had provided such liberal salaries, as induced men eminent for science and integrity, to accept the offices of Judges of the King's bench here: their efforts, when confined to a single tribunal, could not avail much towards administering civil justice to a people scattered through a settlement of nearly eight hundred miles in extent. The bill of which he had spoken, in its progress through the Upper House, was somewhat by a very able and patriotic member of that branch of the legislature. His strong and enlightened mind enabled him to foresee the unhappy consequences accident to the proposed system. With cogent reasoning once he pointed out various injuries that would return to the Province; and all that he had predicted had been fully verified. The bill, however, was carried rapidly through the Upper House, and sent to the House of Assembly, which was then composed of farmers, members, the greater part of whom, as yet, were unrefined. The reasoning of those men was thought, must have been a foregone conclusion to any opinion. Yet that House of Assembly, with a promptitude unknown in every [illegible] bodys, passed the bill through each of which the latter [illegible] that they received it. Thus was the present King's Bench unhappily erected upon the ruins of the late Common Pleas.

The ſtatute book of this Province would ſhow many acts that had been made, to render it more capable of adminiſtering juſtice generally, but in vain. The fault was radical. Mr. Sherwood compared the ſyſtem to a building reared upon an imperfect foundation. The ſuperſtructure might be often changed, but the edifice would ever remain imperfect. Juſtice was no where perfectly adminiſtered in civil matters, except in the Home Diſtrict. In order to have ſome ſubſtitute for the courts of common pleas, a bill was brought forward for eſtabliſhing courts of inferior juriſdiction, called diſtrict courts, in which judges ignorant of the law muſt neceſſarily preſide, for no profeſſional man would undertake the painful office of adminiſtering small juſtice, and taking pay from the ſuitors. A knowledge of the laws of our country, was a difficult and intricate ſcience, not to be acquired without long, laborious application, and a previous knowledge of other ſciences. If a man was not born a ſmyth, or a carpenter, ſtill leſs was he born a judge. Of all ridiculous inſtitutions, ever framed by human wiſdom in legiſlation, the Diſtrict Courts was the moſt abſurd. Yet from the impoſſibility of acceſs to the King's Bench, the greateſt number of ſuitors were driven to the Diſtrict Courts, and the ſum of the judgments rendered by them throughout the Province annually, exceeded the ſum of the judgments entered up in the King's Bench for the ſame period. If this opinion was correct, it amounted to a demonſtration, that a great part of our civil rights were decided upon by judges unacquainted with the rule of decition, and from whoſe judgment there was no appeal. The Habeas Corpus act, juſtly eſteemed the bulwark of liberty in England, was almoſt nugatory here. Although there had been numerous inſtances of imprisonment for twelve years paſt in this Province, yet it had never happened, within his knowledge, that any priſoner out of the Home Diſtrict, had been able to avail himſelf of that act. The delay of an application to the Court of King's Bench, from any of the outer diſtricts, muſt neceſſarily be very great. But the expence of a journey of ſeveral hundred miles to the court at York, was an inſuperable obſtacle. The wretched priſoner, like Tantalus, had comfort placed within his view, but wholly beyond his reach. The Habeas Corpus act was not paſſed, till the Engliſh nation, in a ſtruggle for liberty, had convulſed the conſtitution, and for a ſhort period, actually ſubverted it. If the Britiſh parliament could be ſo unwiſe as to repeal it wholly, he would not preſume even to ventilate a ſpeculative opinion of what might be the dreadful conſequences. Yet three fourths of the people of this Colony were ſo circumſtanced, that a repeal of that ſalutary law would not place them in a worſe ſituation. This was an intolerable grievance, that loudly and imperiouſly called for redreſs. He did not mean to contemn the Court of King's Bench any farther than by a general propoſition, that it was unable to adminiſter juſtice to the whole Province. It was a high and dignified tribunal. Such he wiſhed it to remain. The bill now before the committee would tend to increaſe its reſpectability, by giving it an appellatory juriſdiction. That court would try all criminal cauſes where the life of the ſubject was in queſtion; and by veſting it with equitable powers, we ſhould ſuperſede the neceſſity of eſtabliſhing a Court of Chancery. He (Mr. Sherwood) had brought before the Houſe a bill laſt year, for dividing the King's Bench, which he had abandoned, and had ſubſtituted the preſent bill in lieu of it, by the beſt advice that could be obtained in the Province. He had every reaſon to expect that the bill would paſs the Upper Houſe, from the well known diſpoſition of the members of that branch of the legiſlature to promote the proſperity of the Province. They would not be influenced by low or partial motives. It was not reaſonable to ſuppoſe that they would let themſelves in direct oppoſition to the general wiſh of the Colony. As the eſtabliſhment deſigned by this bill was in no wiſe inimical to the rights of the Crown, or ſubjected the Mother Country to one farthing expence. The juſt, warranted him in a firm belief, that in a meaſure, manifeſtly for the public good, they might depend upon the co-operation of His Majeſty's Repreſentative. It only remained for the committee to ſupport the principle of the bill, and diſcharge the duty which they owed to their conſtituents.

Extract of a letter from Liſbon, dated 29th November, 1807, 9 o'clock, morning.

"At the moment I am writing, the Portugueſe ſquadron, conſiſting of 8 line of battle ſhips, 2 frigates and 4 ſmaller veſſels, are under weigh. The Prince Regent and the whole Royal family are on board; the Duke of Cardeval, firſt Prince of the blood, M. d'Aranjo & the miniſter of marine and foreign affairs, the marquis of Pombal, and ſeveral other nobility, with a number of officers, government ſervants, &c. &c. Few or no ſoldiers, except the marine corps have embarked—The preparation for embarkation began the 24th, ſince which they have worked night and day, or rather ſince the 25th, to get on board; and every thing which related to the embarkation has been in great confuſion. Appearances ſeem to indicate that the government was taken by ſurprize. Not even ſailed proviſions for the ſhips' uſe; but little ſhip bread was prepared ſo that they have been obliged to purchaſe flour & put on board inſtead of it. The ſhips have gone away very ſhort of ſalt proviſions, and the bulk of them not half manned. The Prince as well as the nobility have had only time to take their moſt valuable moveable effects, leaving all their fortunes behind. On the 22d notice was received by the Prince that the French army was about entering this kingdom. This cauſed him very conſiderable alarm, and a general ſtir at the palace. The 24th a Britiſh frigate entered as a flag of truce, and the ſame day a faint report reached the public of his intentions to embark.—That night a grand council of ſtate was held, and the next day an order was received at the arſenal to embark all the proviſions, and to prepare the ſhips immediately for ſea. They alſo that day began to embark the Prince's effects, but the miniſters and nobility did not begin to pack up till the 25th and 26th. The firſt of theſe days the flag of truce went out. Whether this ſudden reſolution was owing to the marching of the French army, or to the diſpatches brought by the frigate, is not known, but probably to both. There are now ſeveral Britiſh line of battle ſhips in the offing, who it is ſuppoſed will accompany the Prince to the Brazils. It is ſuppoſed that the value of the diamonds taken with the Prince is about an hundred millions of dollars, and that he took thirty millions of dollars in ſpecie, plate, &c.

HALIFAX, Dec. 18.

Yeſterday, a Committee from the Houſe of Aſſembly, conſiſting of S. B. Roble, Eſq. Chairman, S. G. W. Archibald, W. C. Tonge, J. Wells, W. Lawſon, G. Collins, and T. Pearſon, Eſquires, waited on the hon. Vice-Admiral Berkeley, with the following Addreſs:—

To the Hon. GEORGE CRANFIELD BERKELEY, Vice Admiral of the White, Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Ships and Veſſels on the Halifax Station, &c, &c.

The Addreſs of the Repreſentatives of the Province of Nova Scotia.

SIR,

It is with infinite regret we learn that your immediate departure from hence, is like to terminate the period of your command in this country.

We cannot ſuffer you to leave the Province, without teſtifying for ourſelves and our conſtituents, our acknowledgments for the benefits received from your protection of its Trade, your great attention to the promotion of its maritime intereſts, and the uncommon regard you have ever manifeſted for the liberties of the ſubject, and the individual welfare of the people of this country, who will long retain a grateful ſenſe of your conduct in theſe particulars.

Under theſe impreſſions, we have voted the ſum of one hundred Guineas, for the purchaſe of a piece of Plate: which we truſt you will conſider as a proof of our high reſpect and eſteem, and our gratitude for your ſervices to this country.

We beg leave to aſſure you of our cordial good wiſhes for the health, proſperity and happineſs of yourſelf, your Lady and family; that you may enjoy a ſafe and agreeable paſſage to your native land, & that you may receive the entire approbation of our moſt gracious Sovereign for your conduct, during the time of your continuance on this command; throughout which you have, with equal firmneſs and moderation, ſupported the honor of the Britiſh Flag, and the moſt important intereſts of your country.

Houſe of Aſſembly, Dec. 17.

To which the Vice Admiral was pleaſed to return the ſubſequent anſwer:—

To the Honorable the HOUSE of REPRESENTATIVES of the Province of Nova Scotia.

Gentlemen,

The intereſts of this Province are ſo cloſely connected with the proſperity & maritime ſtrength of the Mother Country, that any officer would be highly culpable if he did not feel it his peculiar duty to promote them by every means in his power. To this object, I truſt, my anxious endeavors have been directed, and it is no trifling conſolation to find that in whatever light thoſe meaſures which I have adopted to uphold the dignity of my Country, and the glory of its Flag, may be viewed at home, this honorable teſtimony of the approbation of ſo reſpectable a Body as the Houſe of Repreſentatives, cannot fail to impreſs the public mind with their opinion of the rectitude of my intentions; & whatever may be my future deſtiny, they may be aſſured that in every ſituation, it will be my moſt anxious ſtudy to deſerve the high honor they have conferred upon me, by devoting my utmoſt endeavors to promote the intereſts, happineſs and welfare of Nova Scotia.

As yet, I have no official intelligence of my removal from this command, but if thoſe rumours be true, my regret will be leſſened in the knowledge of that excellent officer's character who is reported as likely to be my ſucceſſor, in the firm perſuaſion that he will adopt the ſame line of conduct which your partiality has approved of, and which I have ever endeavored to purſue, for the benefit of this colony, and the proſperity of its maritime and commercial intereſts.

Impreſſed with theſe ſentiments, it is with honeſt pride and the moſt heartfelt gratitude, that I accept this valuable memorial of the good opinion of the Legiſlature of this Province, and can only aſſure them, that much as I am flattered and honored by the Gift, it cannot add to thoſe feelings under which I ſhall ever conſider myſelf bound, and with the higheſt eſteem and reſpect ſubſcribe myſelf,

Your very obliged and devoted humble ſervant,

G. C. BERKELEY.

DECLARATION.

The Declaration iſſued at St. Peterſburgh, by his Majeſty the Emperor of all the Ruſſias, has excited in his Majeſty's mind the ſtrongeſt ſenſations of aſtoniſhment and regret.

His Majeſty was not unaware of the nature of thoſe ſecret engagements which had been impoſed upon Ruſſia in the conferences at Tilſit. But his Majeſty had entertained the hope, that a review of the tranſactions of that unfortunate negociation, and a juſt eſtimate of its effects upon the glory of the Ruſſian name, and upon the intereſts of the Ruſſian Empire, would have induced his Imperial Majeſty to extricate himſelf from the embarraſſment of thoſe new counſels and connections which he had adopted in a moment of deſpondency and alarm, and to return to a policy more congenial to the principles which he has ſo invariably profeſſed, and more conducive to the honor of his crown, and to the proſperity of his dominions.

This hope has dictated to his Majeſty the utmoſt forbearance and moderation in all his diplomatic intercourſe with the Court of St. Peterſburgh ſince the Peace of Tilſit.

His Majeſty had much cauſe for ſuſpicion, and juſt cauſe of complaint. But he abſtained from the language of reproach. His Majeſty deemed it neceſſary to require ſpecific explanation with reſpect to thoſe arrangements with France, the concealment of which from his Majeſty could not but confirm the impreſſion already received of their character and tendency. But his Majeſty, nevertheleſs, directed the demand of that explanation to be made, not only without aſperity or the indication of any hoſtile diſpoſition, but with that conſiderate regard to the feelings and ſituation of the Emperor of Ruſſia, which reſulted from the recollection of former friendſhip, and from confidence interrupted but not deſtroyed.

The Declaration of the Emperor of Ruſſia proves, that the object of his Majeſty's forbearance and moderation has not been attained. It proves, unhappily, that the influence of that Power, which is equally and eſſentially the enemy both of Great Britain and of Ruſſia, has acquired a decided aſcendancy in the counſels of the Cabinet of St. Peterſburgh; and has been able to excite a cauſeleſs enmity between two nations, whoſe long eſtabliſhed connection, and whoſe mutual intereſts preſcribed the moſt intimate union and co-operation.

His Majeſty deeply laments the extenſion of the calamities of war. But called upon as he is to defend himſelf againſt an act of unprovoked hoſtility, his Majeſty is anxious to refute in the face of the world, the pretexts by which that act is attempted to be juſtified.

The Declaration aſſerts, that his Majeſty the Emperor of Ruſſia has twice taken up arms in a cauſe in which the intereſt of Great Britain was more direct than his own, and founds upon this aſſertion the charge againſt Great Britain of having neglected to ſecond and ſupport the military operations of Ruſſia.

His Majeſty willingly does juſtice to the motives which originally engaged Ruſſia in the great ſtruggle againſt France. His Majeſty avows with equal readineſs the intereſt which Great Britain has uniformly taken in the fates and fortunes of the Powers on the Continent. But it would ſurely be difficult to prove that Great Britain, who was herſelf in a ſtate of hoſtility with Pruſſia, when the war broke out between Pruſſia and France, had an intereſt and a duty more direct in eſpouſing the Pruſſian quarrel than the Emperor of Ruſſia, the Ally of his Pruſſian Majeſty, the Protector of the North of Europe, and the Guarantee of the Germanic Conſtitution.

It is not in a public Declaration that his Majeſty can diſcuſs the policy of having at any particular period of the war effected, or omitted to effect diſembarkations of troops on the coaſts of Naples. But the inſtance of the war with the Porte is ſtill more ſingularly choſen to illuſtrate the charge againſt G. Britain of indifference to the intereſts of her Ally: a war undertaken by Great Britain at the inſtigation of Ruſſia, and ſolely for the purpoſe of maintaining Ruſſia's intereſts againſt the influence of France.

If, however, the Peace of Tilſit is indeed to be conſidered as the conſequence and the punihment of the imputed inactivity of Great Britain, his Majeſty cannot but regret that the Emperor of Ruſſia ſhould have reſorted to ſo precipitate and fatal a meaſure, at the moment when he had received diſtinct aſſurances, that his Majeſty was making the moſt ſtrenuous exertions to fulfil the wiſhes and expectations of his Ally (aſſurances which his Imperial Majeſty received and acknowledged with apparent confidence and ſatisfaction;) and when his Majeſty was, in fact, prepared to employ for the advancement of the common objects of the war, thoſe forces, which after the Peace of Tilſit, he was under the neceſſity of employing to diſconcert a combination directed againſt his own immediate intereſts and ſecurity.

The vexation of Ruſſian commerce by G. Britain, is, in truth, little more than an imaginary grievance.—Upon a diligent enquiry, made by his Majeſty's command, of the records of the Britiſh Court of Admiralty, there has been diſcovered only a ſolitary inſtance in the courſe of the preſent war, of the condemnation of a veſſel really Ruſſian: a veſſel which had carried naval ſtores to a port of the common enemy. There are but few inſtances of Ruſſian veſſels detained, and none in which juſtice has been refuſed to a party regularly complaining of ſuch detention. It is therefore matter of ſurprize, as well as of concern to his Majeſty, that the Emperor of Ruſſia ſhould have condeſcended to bring forward a complaint which, as it cannot be ſeriouſly felt by thoſe in whoſe behalf it is urged, might appear to be intended to countenance thoſe exaggerated declamations, by which France perſeveringly endeavors to inflame the jealouſy of other countries, and to juſtify her own inveterate animoſity againſt G. Britain.

The Peace of Tilſit was followed by an offer of mediation on the part of the Emperor of Ruſſia for the concluſion of a Peace between Great Britain and France: which it is offered that his Majeſty refuſed.

His Majeſty did not refuſe the mediation of the Emperor of Ruſſia, although the offer of it was accompanied by circumſtances of concealment, which might well have juſtified his refuſal. The articles of the treaty of Tilſit were not communicated to his Majeſty; and ſuperficially that article of the Treaty in virtue of which the mediation was propoſed, and which prefcribed a limited time for the return of his Majeſty's anſwer to that propoſal. And his Majeſty was thus led into an apparent compliance with a limitation ſo offenſive to the dignity of an independent Sovereign.—But the anſwer ſo returned by his Majeſty was not a refuſal. It was a conditional acceptance. The conditions required by his Majeſty were:—a ſtatement of the baſis upon which the enemy were diſpoſed to treat; and a Communication of the Articles of the Peace of Tilſit. The firſt of thoſe conditions was preciſely the ſame which the Emperor of Ruſſia had himſelf annexed not four months before to his own acceptance of the proffered mediation of the Emperor of Auſtria. The ſecond was one which his Majeſty would have had a right to require, even as the Ally of his Imperial Majeſty; but which it would have been highly improvident to omit, when he was invited to confide to his Imperial Majeſty the care of his honour and his intereſts.

But even if theſe conditions (neither of which has been fulfilled, although the fulfilment of them has been required by his Majeſty's ambaſſador at St. Peterſburgh,) had been in themſelves perfectly natural and neceſſary; there were not wanting conſiderations which might have warranted his Majeſty in endeavoring, with more than ordinary anxiety, to alcertain the views of the Emperor of Ruſſia, and the preciſe nature and effect of the new relations which his Imperial had contracted.

The complete abandonment of the intereſts of the King of Pruſſia (who had twice rejected propoſals of ſeparate Peace, from a ſtrict adherence to his engagements with his Imperial Majeſty,) and the character of thoſe proviſions which the Emperor of Ruſſia was contented to make for his own intereſts in the negociations of Tilſit, preſented no encouraging proſpect of the reſult of any exertions which his Imperial Majeſty might be diſpoſed to employ in favor of Great Britain.

It is not, while a French army ſtill occupies and lays waſte the remaining dominions of the King of Pruſſia, in ſpite of the ſtipulations of the Pruſſian Treaty of Tilſit; while contributions are arbitrarily exacted by France from that remnant of the Pruſſian monarchy, ſuch as, in its entire and moſt flouriſhing ſtate, the Pruſſian monarchy would have been unable to diſcharge; while the ſurrender is demanded, in time of Peace, of Pruſſian fortreſſes, which had not been reduced during the war; and while the power of France is exerciſed over Pruſſia with ſuch ſhameleſs tyranny, as to deſignate and demand for inſtant death, individuals, ſubjects of his Pruſſian Majeſty and reſident in his dominions, upon a charge of diſreſpect towards the French government: it is not while all theſe things are done and ſuffered, under the eye of the Emperor of Ruſſia, and without his interference on the part of his Ally, that his Majeſty can feel himſelf called upon to account to Europe, for having heſitated to repoſe an unconditional confidence in the efficacy of his Imperial majeſty's mediation.

Nor, even if that mediation had taken full effect, if a peace had been concluded under it, and that peace guaranteed by his Imperial majeſty, could his majeſty have placed implicit reliance on the ſtability of any ſuch arrangement, after having ſeen the Emperor of Ruſſia openly tranſfer to France the ſovereignty of the Ionian Republic, the independence of which his Imperial Majeſty had recently and ſolemnly guaranteed.

But while the alledged rejection of the Emperor of Ruſſia's mediation, between Great Britain and France, is ſtated as a juſt ground of his Imperial Majeſty's reſentment; his Majeſty's rejection of the mediation for the re-eſtablishment of Peace between G. Britain and Denmark, is repreſented as an inſult which it is beyond the bounds of his Imperial majeſty's moderation to endure.

His Majeſty feels himſelf under no obligation to offer any atonement or apology to the Emperor of Ruſſia for the expedition againſt Copenhagen. It is not for thoſe who were parties to the ſecret arrangements of Tilſit, to demand ſatisfaction for a meaſure to which thoſe arrangements have given riſe, and by which one of the objects of them has been happily defeated.

His Majeſty's juſtification of the expedition againſt Copenhagen is before the world. The Declaration of the Emperor of Ruſſia would ſupply whatever was wanting in it, if any thing could be wanting to convince the moſt credulous of the urgency of that neceſſity under which his Majeſty acted.

But until the Ruſſian declaration was publiſhed, his majeſty had no reaſon to ſuſpect that any opinions which the emperor of Ruſſia might entertain of the tranſactions at Copenhagen could be ſuch as to preclude his imperial majeſty from undertaking, at the requeſt of Great Britain, that ſame office of mediator, which he had aſſumed with ſo much alacrity on the behalf of France. Nor can his majeſty forget that the firſt ſymptoms of reviving confidence, ſince the Peace of Tilſit, the only proſpect of ſucceſs in the endeavors of his majeſty's ambaſſador to reſtore the ancient good underſtanding between G. Britain and Ruſſia, appeared when the intelligence of Copenhagen had been recently received at St. Peterſburgh.

The inviolability of the Baltic Sea, and reciprocal guarantees of the powers that border upon it, guarantees ſaid to have been contracted with the knowledge of the Britiſh government, are ſtated as aggravations of his majeſty's proceedings in the Baltic. It cannot be intended to repreſent his Majeſty as having at any time acquieſced in the principles upon which the inviolability of the Baltic is maintained; however his majeſty may, at particular periods, have forborne, for ſpecial reaſons, influencing his conduct at the time, to act in contradiction to them. Such forbearance could never have applied but to a ſtate of peace and real neutrality in the North, and his majeſty muſt aſſuredly could not be expected to recur to it, after France has been ſuffered to eſtabliſh herſelf in indiſputed ſovereignty along the whole coaſt of the Baltic Sea, from Dantzig to Lubeck.

But the higher the value which the Emperor of Ruſſia places on the engagements reſpecting the tranquility of the Baltic, which he deſcribes himſelf as inheriting from his immediate predeceſſors, the empreſs Catharine and the emperor Paul, the leſs juſtly can his imperial majeſty reſent the appeal made to him by his Majeſty as the guarantee of the peace to be concluded between Great Britain and Denmark. In making that appeal, with the utmoſt confidence and ſincerity, his majeſty neither intended, nor can he imagine, that he offered any inſult to the Emperor of Ruſſia. Nor can his majeſty conceive that, in propoſing to the Prince Royal terms of peace, ſuch as the moſt ſucceſsful war on the part of Denmark could hardly have expected to extort from Great Britain, his Majeſty rendered himſelf liable to the imputation of exaſperating the reſentment, or of outraging the dignity of Denmark.

His Majeſty has thus replied to all the different accuſations by which the Ruſſian government labours to juſtify the rupture of a connection which has ſubſiſted for ages, with reciprocal advantage to Great Britain and Ruſſia; and attempts to diſguiſe the operation of that external influence by which Ruſſia is driven into unjuſt hoſtilities for intereſts not her own.

The Ruſſian Declaration proceeds to announce the ſeveral conditions on which alone theſe hoſtilities can be terminated, and the intercourſe of the two countries reſtored.

His Majeſty has already had occaſion to aſſert, that juſtice has in no inſtance been denied to the claim of his Imperial Majeſty's ſubjects.

The termination of the war with Denmark has been ſo anxiouſly ſought by his Majeſty, that it cannot be neceſſary for his Majeſty to renew any profeſſions upon that ſubject. But his Majeſty is at a loſs to reconcile the Emperor of Ruſſia's preſent anxiety for the completion of ſuch an arrangement with his Imperial Majeſty's refuſal to contribute his good offices for effecting it.

The requeſition of his Imperial Majeſty for the immediate concluſion, by his Majeſty, of a peace with France, is as extraordinary in the ſubſtance, as it is offenſive in the manner. His Majeſty has at no time declined to treat with France, when France has profeſſed a willingneſs to treat on an admiſſible baſis. And the Emperor of Ruſſia cannot fail to remember that the laſt negociation between Great Britain and France was broken off upon points immediately affecting, not his Majeſty's own intereſts, but thoſe of his Imperial Ally. But his Majeſty neither underſtands nor will he admit, the pretenſion of the Emperor of Ruſſia to dictate the time or the mode of his Majeſty's pacific negociation with other powers. It will never be endured by his Majeſty, that any government ſhall indemnify itſelf for the humiliation of ſubſerviency to France, by the adoption of an inſulting and peremptory tone towards Great Britain.

His Majeſty proclaims anew thoſe principles of Maritime Law, againſt which the armed neutrality, under the auſpices of the Empreſs Catharine was originally directed, and againſt which the preſent hoſtilities of Ruſſia are denounced. Thoſe principles have been recognized and acted upon in the beſt periods of the hiſtory of Europe; and acted upon by no power with more ſtrictneſs and ſeverity, than by Ruſſia herſelf, in the reign of the Empreſs Catharine.

Thoſe principles, it is the right and duty of his Majeſty to maintain; and, againſt every confederacy his Majeſty is determined, under the bleſſings of Divine Providence, to maintain them. They have at all times contributed eſſentially to the ſupport of the maritime power of Great Britain, but they are become incalculably more valuable and important at a period when the maritime power of Great Britain conſtitutes the ſole remaining bulwark againſt the overwhelming uſurpations of France; the only refuge to which other nations may yet reſort, in happier times, for aſſiſtance and protection.

When the opportunity for peace between Great Britain and Ruſſia ſhall arrive, his Majeſty will embrace it with eagerneſs. The arrangements of ſuch a negociation will neither be difficult or complicated. His Majeſty, as he has nothing to concede, ſo he has nothing to require. Satisfied if Ruſſia ſhall manifeſt a diſpoſition to return to her ancient feelings of friendſhip towards Great Britain, to a juſt conſideration of her own true intereſts, and to a ſenſe of her own dignity as an Independent nation.

IMPERIAL DECREE.

Rejoinder to his Britannic Majeſty's Order in Council, of the 11th Nov. 1807.

"At our Royal Palace, at Milan, December 17th, 1807.

"Napoleon, Emperor of the French, King of Italy, and Protector of the Rheinith Confederation;—

"Obſerving the meaſures adopted by the Britiſh Government, on the 11th Nov. laſt, by which veſſels belonging to neutral, friendly, or even powers the allies of England, are made liable, not only to be ſearched by Engliſh cruiſers, but to be compulſorily detained in England, and to have a tax laid on them of 5 much per cent on the cargo, to be regulated by the Britiſh Legiſlature.

"Obſerving that by theſe acts the Britiſh government denationaliſed ſhips of every nation in Europe, that it is not competent for any government to detract from its own independence and rights, all the ſovereigns of Europe having in truth the ſovereignties and independence of the flag that it by an unpardonable weakneſs, and which in the eyes of poſterity, would be an indelible ſtain, if ſuch a tyranny was allowed to be eſtabliſhed into principles, and confecrated by uſage, the Engliſh would avail themſelves of it to aſſert it as a right, as they have availed themſelves of the tolerance of governments to eſtabliſh the infamous principle, that the flag of a nation does not cover goods, and to give to their right of blockade an arbitrary extenſion, and which infringes on the ſovereignty of every ſtate; we have decreed and do decree, as follows:—

"ART. I. Every ſhip of whatever nation it may belong, that ſhall have ſubmitted to be ſearched by an Engliſh ſhip, or to a voyage to England, or ſhall have paid any tax whatſoever to the Engliſh government, is thereby, and for that alone, declared to be denationaliſed, to have forfeited the protection of its King, and to have become Engliſh property.

"ART. II Whether the ſhips thus denationaliſed by the arbitrary meaſures of the Engliſh government, enter into our ports, or thoſe of our allies, or whether they fall into the hands of our ſhips of war, or of our privateers, they are declared to be good and lawful prize.

"ART. III. The Britiſh Iſlands are declared to be in a ſtate of blockade, both by land and ſea. Every ſhip, of whatever nation, or whatſoever the nature of its cargo ſo may be, that ſails from the ports of England, or thoſe of the Engliſh Colonies, and of the countries occupied by Engliſh troops, and proceeding to England or to the Engliſh Colonies, or to countries occupied by Engliſh troops, is good and lawful prize, as contrary to the preſent Decree, and may be captured by our ſhips of war, or our privateers, and adjudged to the captor.

"ART. IV Theſe meaſures, which are reforted to only in juſt reſaliation of the barbarous ſyſtem adopted by England, which aſſimilates its legiſlation to that of Algiers, ſhall ceaſe to have any effect with reſpect to all nations who ſhall have the firmneſs to compel the Engliſh government to reſpect their flag. They ſhall continue to be rigorouſly in force ſo long as that government does not return to the principle of the law of nations, which regulates the relations of civiliſed States in a ſtate of war. The proviſions of the preſent decree ſhall be abrogated and null, in fact, as ſoon as the Engliſh abide again by the principles of the law of nations, which are alſo the principles of juſtice and of honor.

All our Miniſters are charged with the execution of the preſent Decree, which ſhall be inſerted in the Bulletin of the Laws.

"INFURIATE MAN."

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman in Leghorn, to merchants in Salem, dated Dec. 29. 1807.

"Since my laſt, we have received a Decree issued by Bonaparte, the ſubſtance of which is,—That if any neutral veſſel bound to a French port ſhould on her paſſage be boarded by an Engliſh veſſel, the ſhall be lawful prize to any veſſel which may capture her.—Or—on the arrival of any neutral veſſel at any French port it ſhall be diſcovered that ſhe has on her paſſage been boarded by any Engliſh veſſel, ſhe ſhall be conſidered as a lawful prize.

"This morning we had a report of Bonaparte's iſſuing another Decree, forbidding all perſons from writing to or corresponding with England, under pain of DEATH.

"Advices have been received, from Mr. Armſtrong at Paris, that he apprehended a general ſeizure of all American property in France."

The tone of Bonaparte's recent decrees admits of but one ſtep further; & that is to decree that every perſon on the Continent of Europe, known to ſpeak, or to have ſpoken a word of Engliſh, to whatever country he may belong, ſhall have his tongue torn out by the roots.

Lateſt from Madeira.

Capt. Goldſbury arrived here on Wedneſday, in the brig Apollo, 16 days from Madeira, informs, that on the 24th December, a Britiſh ſquadron of four ſail of the line, 6 frigates, and a number of tranſports, having on board 3000 troops arrived of Funchal, and immediately took poſſeſſion of the Iſland of Madeira.

Capt. G. remarks, that previous to the arrival of the Britiſh fleet, preparations were made to defend the Iſland, that batteries were erected on the ſhore, and troops placed therein; that the fleet appeared off the town about 8 o'clock in the morning; and with a freſh breeze ſoon went in, and laid themſelves in line of battle, with ſprings on their cables; the tranſports ſtanding off and on; that the Admiral ſent a note to the Governor giving him 15 minutes to anſwer his requeſt, which was to give up the place to the Britiſh, or ſtand in his defence, as he ſhould, in caſe of refuſal, immediately fire on the town; that the Governor not having time to collect all his troops, conſented to the terms of capitulation, and delivered up the Iſland.

Capt. G. alſo adds, that an embargo was laid by the Britiſh Admiral, on all veſſels in port; that he was driven out (intentionally) in the night, and eſcaped. He did not learn how long this embargo was to continue.

The balance of trade between Ruſſia and England is two millions ſterling in favor of Ruſſia.

Extract of a letter juſt received from Philadelphia, dated Feby. 19.

"Mr. Erſkine is now at Baltimore on his way to this place, and both he and Mr. Roſe are expected to be here on the 22d."

On this the only remark to be made at preſent, is, that the negociation between the two governments, American and Britiſh, is brought to a termination of ſome ſort; without ſaying what. The prevalant conjecture is, that the iſſue is favorable to peace and amity.

"WASHINGTON, 14th Feb. 1808.

"I cannot be ſo repeating the report which was mentioned in your paper of Friday, viz. that a Treaty has actually been framed between Mr. Roſe and our government. It is alſo ſaid, that Mr. Nourſe, brother of the regiſter of the treaſury, is to carry this treaty to England! This latter circumſtance, it is ſuppoſed, is in conſequence of ſome doubts as to Mr. Roſe's powers.

"Every thing relating to the negociation with Great Britain muſt be intereſting to the people of this country. And although the above is ſtated merely as a report, it is not with ſtanding the aſſurances of Duane to the contrary, entitled to credit. Query, how did Duane obtain the information, that the negociations with Great Britain were abſolutely broken off, and that war would be the reſult? If true, was it not a moſt treacherous communication? If falſe, is it not a moſt infamous aſſertion?

SUPPLEMENT
YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1808.

This day his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor went in State to the Legiſlative Council Chamber, with the uſual Solemnity, and the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly being ſent for, gave his Aſſent, in his Majeſty's Name, to the following Bills:—

An Act to extend the benefits of an Act paſſed in the 37th year of his Majeſty's reign, intitled, "an Act for the more eaſy Barring of Dower," and to repeal certain parts of the ſame.

An Act for the better Regulation of Pariſh and Town Officers throughout this Province.

An Act for the better Regulation of Special Juries.

An Act for Building a Court Houſe and Gaol in the Township of Elizabeth Town, in the Diſtrict of Johnſtown.

An Act to continue an Act paſſed in the 33d year of his Majeſty's reign intitled "an Act to provide for the appointment of Returning Officers of the ſeveral Counties within this Province."

An Act for the better regulation of Statute Labour in the Counties of Eſſex and Kent, in the Weſtern Diſtrict.

An Act to continue an Act paſſed in the 45th year of his Majeſty's reign, intitled, "an Act to afford Relief to thoſe Perſons who may be intitled to claim Lands in this Province as Heirs or Deviſees of the Nominees of the Crown, in caſes where no Patent hath iſſued for ſuch Land," and further to extend the benefits of the ſaid Act.

An Act for applying certain ſums of money therein mentioned, to make good certain monies iſſued and advanced by his Majeſty through the Lieutenant Governor, in purſuance of an Addreſs.

An Act to amend an Act paſſed in the 47th year of his Majeſty's reign, intitled, "an Act to eſtabliſh Public Schools in each and every Diſtrict of this Province."

An Act for granting to his Majeſty an annual Sum of Money for the purpoſes therein mentioned.

An Act for granting to his Majeſty a certain Sum of Money out of the Funds applicable to the uſes of this Province, to defray the expences of amending and repairing the Public Highways and Roads, laying out and opening new Roads and building Bridges, in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof.

An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof.

An Act for granting to his Majeſty a certain Sum of Money out of the Provincial Fund, to encreaſe the Salary of the Clerk of the Legiſlative Council, and the Clerk of the Houſe of Aſſembly.

An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act paſſed in the 46th year of his Majeſty's reign, intitled, "an Act to continue an Act paſſed in the 43d year of his Majeſty's reign, intitled, "an Act for the better ſecuring to his Majeſty, his heirs and ſucceſſors the due collection and receipt of certain duties therein mentioned.

An Act to explain, amend, and reduce to one Act of Parliament, the ſeveral Laws now in being for the raiſing and training the Militia of this Province.

An Act for the better repreſentation of the Commons of this Province in Parliament, and to repeal part of an act paſſed in the 40th year of his preſent Majeſty's reign, intitled an act for the more equal repreſentation of the Commons of this Province, and for the better defining the qualifications of electors.

After which his Excellency made the following moſt Gracious Speech to both Houſes:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

THE unuſual length, to which this ſeſſion of the Legiſlature has been prolonged, by an event that could not have been foreſeen, will not, I truſt, operate as a material inconvenience to your private affairs; it will, however, be your pride to reflect, that inſtead of repining at any expence of labor or of time, your zealous exertions for the public ſervice have terminated honorably to yourſelves, and advantageouſly to the public.

In times like the preſent, of uncertainty, and of danger, the firſt care of every good man, is the ſafety of his Country;—the ſalutary proviſions enacted by you, in the bill for regulating the Militia of this Province, are the moſt ſubſtantial proofs, that this has been the governing principle of your conduct.

The Act for extending the Repreſentation of the Commons in the Houſe of Aſſembly, I conſider as a meaſure beneficially conducive to the deareſt intereſts of the Subjects of this Province at large; I therefore cheerfully concur in the adoption of it.

I am much gratified alſo, to have it in my power to obſerve, that the growth and culture of Hemp in this Colony, the ſoil of which is ſo well calculated for that deſirable branch of agriculture, has not eſcaped the ſerious attention of the Houſe of Aſſembly, and no endeavors ſhall be wanting on my part, to give activity to the meaſures which they have ſuggeſted, to produce an abundant ſupply of an article of the firſt neceſſity to the Mother Country.

Your wiſdom in providing againſt the difficulties of an Inland Communication, with a prudent management of the ſums you have appropriated for the laying out, and repairing the Public Roads and Bridges, will, I truſt, conſiderably improve them. They are, however, generally, in ſo imperfect a ſtate, that I have it in contemplation to call the next Seſſion of the Legiſlature, at a ſeaſon of the year better calculated for an eaſy acceſs to the Seat of Government.

The relations of amity which happily exiſted, between Great Britain and the United States of America, have been in ſome degree interrupted, and I regret, that during this Seſſion, I have not been enabled to lay before you any communication on this intereſting ſubject; but I cheriſh the hope, that the voice of wiſdom and of moderation will ultimately prevail, and that the people of the United States, will juſtly appreciate the good will of His Majeſty, and that two nations, may not be involved in the calamities of war, whoſe mutual intereſts, plainly point to peace, and commercial intercourſe, from whence naturally ariſe, opulence, proſperity, and happineſs, to nations. It is, however, our eſſential duty, to be prepared for every event; and ſhould occaſion call for it, to be ready with firmneſs, to defend the juſt rights of our King, and the intereſts of his People.

I now cloſe this Seſſion of the Legiſlature, which from its Conſtitution, muſt ſoon be diſſolved; fully confident that your utmoſt efforts will be exerted in promoting peace, harmony, and good morals, amongſt the great body of the people; and that the ſame zeal for the proſperity of this Province, which has diſtinguiſhed your public characters, will govern and animate your private conduct.

And afterwards the Honorable the Speaker of the Legiſlative Council, by the Lieutenant Governor's Command, ſaid:—

It is the Lieutenant Governor's Will and Pleaſure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Friday the Twenty-ſecond day of April next, to be then here holden, and this Parliament is accordingly Prorogued to Friday the Twenty-ſecond day of April next.

Near the cloſe of the Seſſion, juſt when the Queſtion was about to be put, "whether the School Bill, ſhould or ſhould not paſs," Meſſrs. Rogers, Howard and Dorland, left the Houſe of Aſſembly without a Quorum, to prevent any buſineſs being done; and of courſe a ſudden ſtop, was put to the Proceedings of the Legiſlature, until the arrival of Mr. Nellis, from the Forty-mile Creek; who on hearing of this extraordinary circumſtance, with an alacrity which does him credit, returned to his Duty.

In conſequence of this attempt to embarraſs the Executive Government of the Country, by an act, amounting to a virtual diſſolution of the Aſſembly, & before the usual Appropriation Bills had paſſed, and which would have left the Government reſponſible for Sums of Money, advanced the preceding year, in compliance with the Addreſſes of the Houſe of Aſſembly, and on their faith to make good the ſame; the Lieutenant-Governor has deprived Mr. Rogers of the Situations he held under the Crown, and iſſued new Commiſſions of the Peace for the Midland and Johnſtown Diſtricts in which the names of Meſſrs. Dorland and Howard are omitted.

It is with pleaſure we inform the Public, that the dangers to Veſſels navigating Lake Ontario will, in a great meaſure be avoided, by the erection of a Light Houſe on Gibraltar Point, which is to be immediately completed, in compliance with an Addreſs of the Houſe of Aſſembly to the Lieutenant Governor.

We hope ſoon to congratulate the Public on the Eſtabliſhment of a regular Poſt throughout this Province.

The great encouragement held out by the preſent Houſe of Aſſembly, for the Growth and Culture of Hemp, will no doubt, have a powerful influence, and produce a conſiderable emulation among the induſtrious Farmers of the Country. —The Price offered, being One Hundred Pounds York Currency per Ton, to be paid in hard Caſh.

The School Bill having been made permanent, will no doubt be a great encouragement for Men of Education from the United Kingdoms, to ſettle in this Country.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, after the Prorogation of the Legiſlature, entertained the Gentlemen of both Houſes, and a numerous aſſemblage of other genteel Company at Dinner, at the Government Houſe.

On Wedneſday laſt the 9th inſtant, at 12 o'clock, the Speaker, attended by the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly, waited on the Lieutenant Governor with the following Addreſs:—

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE His Majeſty's dutiful and loyal Subjects the Commons of the Province of Upper Canada in Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to renew our profeſſions of attachment, and loyalty, to His Majeſty's Perſon and Government, and as many of his Majeſty's Subjects in this Province, have heretofore evinced the zeal and ſincerity of thoſe Profeſſions at the expence and privation of every thing but life, we truſt they will be always actuated by the ſame ſpirit, ſhould occaſion require it.

Permit us, before we ſurrender the important truſt which has been delegated to us, to expreſs to your Excellency our acknowledgments for the many benefits this Province has derived under your Adminiſtration, and tho' we ſhall not preſume to enumerate them, we cannot avoid noticing the Relief your Excellency has ſo graciouſly extended to theſe meritorious People the Loyaliſts who adhered to the Unity of the Empire, and Military Claimants.

As we can with confidence aſſure our Conſtituents of your Excellency's unceaſing attention and ardent deſire to promote the Welfare and Happineſs of His Majeſty's Subjects in this Province, and as it is our duty, it ſhall alſo be our pride to inculcate a love of order, harmony and union among them, and to cheriſh and mature their attachment to the happieſt of Conſtitutions, and the beſt of Sovereigns.

With reverential thankfulneſs to the Great Diſpoſer of Events, for the uninterrupted bleſſings of Peace, which we have in ſo particular a manner enjoyed ſince the firſt eſtabliſhment of the Province, we ſhall offer up our ſupplications to him for the continuation of his mercies, and that he may be graciouſly pleaſed to order and direct your Councils, that they may tend to his glory, your honor, and the happineſs of the People, and impreſs them with an awful ſenſe of their dependence on, and obligations to him.

Commons Houſe of Aſſembly,
9th March. 1808.

To which His Excellency was pleaſed to make the following Reply:

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

YOUR Loyalty to the King, and the favorable ſentiments which you are pleaſed to expreſs, reſpecting my conduct; afford me the higheſt ſatisfaction.

While no ſtranger to the zeal, with which many of His Majeſty's Subjects in this Province, have ſerved the beſt of Kings, and their ſufferings in that ſervice, it is peculiarly gratifying to me, to become an inſtrument of diſpenſing the Bounty of the Crown to men who ſo well deſerve it.

I unite with you in imploring the Great Ruler of the Univerſe, that he may be pleaſed to continue to this Province, the bleſſings of Peace; but if it ſhould be ordained otherwiſe by infinite wiſdom, I truſt and hope that the Loyalty ſo conſpicuouſly diſplayed in times paſt, by many of its inhabitants, will engage them again to ſtand forth in the cauſe of their Country; and that their Children, the objects of His Majeſty's peculiar favor and bounty, following ſuch an example, will, with a generous and virtuous emulation, tread in the ſteps of their Fathers; and that all His Majeſty's Subjects in this Province, having experienced the bleſſings of the happy Conſtitution under which we live, will ſhew themſelves, on every occaſion, ready to defend it.

I have no doubt, but the ſame zeal, for the proſperity of the Province, which has governed your public conduct, will continue to animate you in private life; and that your endeavors will never be wanting, in every ſituation, to promote the public good.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS divers persons who of late have received Orders in Council, to enable them to obtain Grants by Patent of part of the waste Lands of the Crown in this Province, have not by themselves or by their Agents, applied at the Surveyor General's Office for a Location of such Lands, and have also neglected to perform certain other Conditions required of them by an Order in Council of the 30th of December, 1802: It is hereby notified by order of his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council to all whom it may concern,

That in all Petitions praying for a Grant of part of the waste Lands of the Crown, the Petitioner shall by himself or Agent (if not privileged) state in his Petition as heretofore, that in case the same should be favorably answered, he undertakes and is ready, within three days from the date of the Order in Council for a Grant to him of such Lands, to pay into the hands of the Receiver General the Fees allowed by his Majesty to be charged on the Patent and for the Survey of the said Lands. And that no Petition from any such person as aforesaid, shall be received by the Clerk of the Executive Council, without the said Statement being inserted therein.

And, That every Petitioner as aforesaid, shall within four days from the date of the said Order in Council in his favor, by himself or Agent, produce to the Clerk of the Executive Council, a receipt from the Receiver General for the beforementioned Fees, without which no Grant of the said Lands shall be obtained by virtue of such order.

3d. That after the said Receipts shall be delivered as aforesaid, to the Clerk of the Executive Council, he shall give the party in whose favor the Order in Council is made, an attested copy of the same, together with an attested copy of the said Receipt.

4th. That the attested copies of the said order and receipt being produced to the Attorney General, a Fiat shall be given by him for the obtaining of the Patent for the said Lands, addressed to the Surveyor General, who thereupon shall, at the desire of the Petitioner or his Agent, by permission of the Lieutenant Governor, locate the quantity of Land in the said order in Council specified, & make out a description of the same.

5th. That the said description of the Surveyor General being delivered to the Secretary of the Province, he shall engross the Patent in conformity thereto, and procure the same to be perfected (unless where Settlement Duties are to be performed) within the space of twenty one days from the date of the Order in Council for the quantity of land to be granted to the Petitioner contained in the said description.

6th. That U. E. Loyalists, the sons and daughters of U. E. Loyalists and Military claimants, shall be subject to the above mentioned regulations, except so far as such regulations respect, or have a relation to the payment of Fees.

ROYAL FAMILY OF PORTUGAL.

LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY.

Tuesday, Dec. 22.

FOREIGN OFFICE, DEC. 19.

A Dispatch, of which the following is a Copy, has been this day received from Lord Viscount Strangford, his Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of Lisbon, by the Right Honorable George Canning, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs:

His Majesty's Ship Hibernia, off the Tagus, Nov. 29.

Sir,

I have the honor of announcing to you, that the Prince Regent of Portugal has effected the wise and magnanimous purpose of retiring from a kingdom which he could no longer retain, except as the vassal of France; and that his Royal highness and family, accompanied by most of the ships of war, and by a multitude of his faithful subjects and adherents, have this day departed from Lisbon, and are now on their way to the Brazils, under the escort of a British fleet.

"This grand and memorable event is not to be attributed only to the sudden alarm excited by the appearance of a French army within the frontiers of Portugal. It has been the genuine result of the system of persevering confidence and moderation adopted by His Majesty towards that Country; for the ultimate success of which I had in a manner rendered myself responsible; and which, in obedience to your instructions, I had uniformly continued to support, even under appearances of the most discouraging nature.

I had frequently and distinctly stated to the Cabinet of Lisbon, that in agreeing not to relent the exclusion of British commerce from the Ports of Portugal, his Majesty had exhausted the means of forbearance; that in making that concession to the peculiar circumstances of the Prince Regent's situation, his Majesty had done all that friendship and the remembrance of ancient alliance could justly require; but that a single step beyond the line of modified hostility, thus most reluctantly consented to, must necessarily lead to the extremity of actual war.

The Prince Regent, however, suffered himself for a moment to forget that, in the present state of Europe no country could be permitted to be an enemy to England with impunity, and that however much his Majesty might be disposed to make allowance for the deficiency of the means possessed by Portugal of resistance to the power of France, neither his own dignity, nor the interests of his people would permit his Majesty to accept that excuse for a complyance with the full extent of her unprincipled demands.—On the 8th inst. his Royal Highness was induced to sign an order for the detention of the few British subjects, and of the inconsiderable portion of British property which yet remained at Lisbon. On the publication of this order I caused the arms of England to be removed from the gates of my residence; demanded my passports, protested a final remonstrance against the recent conduct of the Court of Lisbon, and proceeded to the squadron commanded by Sir Sidney Smith, which arrived off the coast of Portugal some days after I had received my passports, and which I joined on the 17th inst.

I immediately suggested to Sir Sidney Smith the expediency of establishing the most rigorous blockade at the mouth of the Tagus; and I had the high satisfaction of afterwards finding, that I had thus anticipated the intentions of his Majesty: your dispatches (which I received by the messenger Sylvester on the 23d) directing me to authorize that measure, in case the Portuguese government should pass the bounds which his Majesty had thought fit to set to his forbearance, and attempt to take any further step injurious to the honor or interests of Great Britain.

Those dispatches were drawn up under the idea that I was still resident at Lisbon, and though I did not receive them until I had actually taken my departure from that Court, still upon a careful consideration of the tenor of your instructions, I thought that it would be right to act as if that case had not occurred. I resolved, therefore, to proceed forthwith to assent in the effect produced by the blockade of Lisbon, and to propose to the Portuguese government, as the only condition upon which the blockade should cease, the alternative (stated by you) either of surrendering the fleet to his Majesty, or of immediately employing it to remove the Prince Regent and his family to the Brazils. I took upon myself this responsibility in renewing negotiations after my public functions had actually ceased, convinced that although it was the fixed determination of his Majesty not to suffer the fleet of Portugal to fall into the possession of his enemies, still his Majesty's first object continued to be the application of that fleet to the original purpose, of saving the Royal family of Braganza from the tyranny of France.

I accordingly requested an audience of the Prince Regent, together with due assurances of protection and security: and upon receiving his Royal Highness's answer, I proceeded to Lisbon on the 27th, in his Majesty's ship Confiance, bearing a flag of truce. I had immediately most interesting communications with the Court of Lisbon, the particulars of which shall be fully detailed in a future dispatch. It suffices to mention in this place, that the Prince Regent was wisely directed in his apprehensions to a French army, and his hopes to an English fleet; that he received the most explicit assurances from me that his Majesty would generously overlook those acts of unwilling and momentary hostility to which his Royal highness's consent had been extorted; and that I promised to his Royal Highness, on the faith of my Sovereign, that the British squadron in the Tagus should be employed to protect his retreat from Lisbon, and his voyage to the Brazils.

A decree was published yesterday, in which the Prince Regent announced his intention of retiring to the city of Rio de Janeiro until the conclusion of a general Peace, and of appointing a Regency to transact the administration of government at Lisbon during his Royal Highness's absence from Europe.

This morning the Portuguese fleet left the Tagus. I had the honor to accompany the Prince in his passage over the Bar. The fleet consisted of eight sail of the line, four large frigates, several armed brigs, sloops, and corvettes, and a number of Brazil ships, amounting, I believe, to about thirty sail in all.—They passed through the British squadron, and his Majesty's ships fired a salute of twenty one guns, which was returned with an equal number. A more interesting spectacle than that afforded by the junction of the two fleets has been rarely beheld.

On quitting the Prince Regent's ship, I repaired on board the Hibernia, but returned immediately, accompanied by Sir Sidney Smith, whom I presented to the Prince, and who was received by his Royal Highness with the most marked and gracious condescension.

I have the honor to enclose lists of the ships of war which were known to have left Lisbon this morning, and which were in sight a few hours ago. There remain at Lisbon four ships of the line, and the same number of frigates, but only one of each sort is serviceable.

I have thought it expedient to lose no time in communicating to his Majesty's government the important intelligence contained in this dispatch. I have therefore to apologise for the hasty and imperfect manner in which it is written.

I have the honor to be, &c.

STRANGFORD.

Admiralty Office, Decr. 21.

Dispatches, of which the following are Extracts and Copies, were received at this office on Saturday last, by Captain Yeo, of his Majesty's sloop the Confiance, from Rear Admiral Sir William Sidney Smith, addressed to the Hon. William Wellesley Pole.

His Majesty's ship Hibernia, 22 leagues west of the Tagus, December 1, 1807.

Sir—In a former dispatch, dated the 22d November, with a postscript of the 26th, I conveyed to you, for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, the proofs contained in various documents of the Portuguese government, being so much influenced by terror of the French arms, as to have acquiesced to certain demands of France operating against Great Britain. The distribution of the Portuguese force was made wholly on the coast, while the land side was left totally unguarded. British subjects of all descriptions were detained; and it therefore became necessary to inform the Portuguese government, that the case had arisen which required, in obedience to my instructions, that I should declare the Tagus in a state of blockade & Lord Strangford agreeing with me that hostility should be met by hostility, the blockade was instituted, & the instructions we had received were acted upon to their full extent; still however, bearing in recollection the first object adopted by his majesty's government of opening a refuge for the head of the Portuguese government, menaced as it was by the powerful arm & baneful influence of the enemy, I thought it my duty to adopt the means open to us of endeavoring to induce the Prince Regent of Portugal to re consider his decision so to unite himself with the Continent of Europe & to recollect he had possessions on that of America, affording an ample balance for any sacrifice he might make here, and from which he would be cut off by the nature of maritime warfare, the termination of which could not be dictated by the combination of the Continental powers of Europe.

In this view, Lord Strangford having received an acquiescence to the proposition which had been made by us, for his Lordship to land & confer with the Prince Regent under the guarantee of a flag of truce, I furnished his Lordship with that conveyance & security, in order that he might give to the Prince that confidence which his word of honor as the King's Minister Plenipotentiary, united with that of a British Admiral, could not fail to inspire towards inducing his royal highness to throw himself and his fleet into the arms of Great Britain in perfect reliance on the King's overlooking, a forced act of apparent hostility against his flag and subjects, and establishing his Royal highness's government in his ultra-marine possessions as originally promised. I have now the heartfelt satisfaction of announcing to you, that our hopes and expectations have been realised to the utmost extent. On the morning of the 29th, the Portuguese fleet (as per list annexed) came out of the Tagus with his Royal Highness the Prince of Brazil and the whole of the Royal family of Braganza on board, together with many of his faithful Counsellors and adherents, as well as other persons attached to his present fortunes.

This fleet of eight sail of the line, four frigates, two brigs, and one schooner, with a crowd of large armed merchant ships, arranged itself under the protection of that of his Majesty, while the firing of a reciprocal salute of 21 guns announced the friendly meeting of those who but the day before were on terms of hostility; the scene impressing every beholder (except the French army on the hills) with the most lively emotions of gratitude to Providence, that there yet existed a power in the world able, as well as willing, to protect the oppressed. I have the honor to be, &c.

His Majesty's ship Hibernia, 22 leagues West of the Tagus, Dec. 1, 1807.

Sir—In another dispatch of this day's date, I have transmitted a list of the Portuguese fleet that came out of the Tagus on the 29th ultimo, of which I received that day from the hands of the Admiral commanding it, when I went on board the Principe Reale to pay my visit of respect and congratulation to his Royal Highness the Prince of Brazil, who was embarked in that ship. I here enclose the list of those left behind. The absence of but one of the four ships is regretted by the Portuguese (the Vasco de Gama) she being under repair; her guns have been employed to arm the Freitas, 64, a new ship, and one of those which came out with the Prince. The other three are mere hulks; and there is one ship on the stocks, the Principe Regente, but she is only in frame.

The Prince, said every thing that the most cordial feelings of gratitude towards, & confidence in, his Majesty and the British nation might be supposed to dictate.

I have by signal (for we have no other mode of communicating in this weather) directed Captain Moore in the Marlborough, with the London, Monarch and Bedford to stay by the body of the Portuguese fleet, and render it every assistance.

I keep in the Hibernia close to the Prince's ship. I cannot as yet, send the Foudroyant, Plantagenet, and Conqueror on to Admiral Purvis, according to their Lordship's order on the 14th, which, I trust, will be the less felt as an inconvenience off Cadiz, as they appear to have been ordered thither with reference to the Russians being within the Straits, before it was known they were on my station. I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) W. SIDNEY SMITH.

List of the Portuguese ships that remain in Lisbon:

St. Sebastian, of 64 guns, unfervicesble without a thorough repair.

Maria Prima, of 74 guns, unfervicesble; ordered to be made into a floating battery, but not yet fitted.

Vasco de Gama, of 74 guns, under repair, and nearly ready.

Princefs de Beira, of 64 guns, condemned; ordered to be fitted as a floating battery

FRIGATES.

Venus, of 48 guns, in need of thorough repair.
Amazona, of 44 guns, in need of do.

December 26.

Miniflers, we underftand, have agreed upon a Declaration to be publifhed, ftating it to be his Majefty's intention to give to the captors his Majefty's right in all prizes that fhall be taken from the Emperor of Ruffia, or his fubjects. They have alfo agreed upon the feveral inftructions to be fent to the feveral courts of Admiralty, to enable them to take cognifance of, and proceed upon, the captured and forfeited veffels. Thefe courts include his Majefty's Courts of Admiralty in foreign fettlements; and the inftructions point out the mode of proceeding, in cafes of capture, of all fhips, goods and merchandize, by any of his Majefty's fhips of war, to which letters of marque and reprifals have been granted.

The Governor of Gibraltar, and the Commiffioners acting at Malta, are to be veffed with power to grant letters of marque and reprifals againft Ruffian fhips, goods and merchandize. And the commanders of merchant fhips fhall have letters of marque and reprifals granted them, with the ufual powers.

January 4.

The attention of government has been for fome time occupied with the important object of our trade to the Brazils, and the Board of Trade, in particular, has been unremitting in its inveftigations. A feries of inftructions to the Merchants is now preparing, and will be fhortly communicated to the public in an official fhape. Several conferences have been held with the Portuguese Miniſter, upon the intended regulations. Until the final adjuſtment of a regular Commercial Treaty, the modes to be purſued in the trade will be ſpecified, and they will have, for their baſis, the liberty given to ſhip and export ſuch articles as have been heretofore admitted into the markets of Portugal. The wants of the Brazils muſt, no doubt, at this peculiar moment, be conſiderable, and with the reſidence of the Court, they muſt materially increaſe.

NEW-YORK, February 29.

The Britiſh Packet Lord Hobart, arrived at this port yeſterday. She left Falmouth on the 15th of January, but has brought papers and Lloyds liſts only one day later than thoſe received by the Romp.

The papers are principally devoted to reports, ſome of which are deſtitute of probability. The leading rumor relates to approaching negociations for peace. It is ſaid that although the proffered mediation of Auſtria was rejected by the Britiſh Miniſters, yet they had offered to treat directly with France; and that Bonaparte had acceded to this propoſal, and had ſent a paſſport for the propoſed Envoy.

One report ſtates, that the Emperor of Ruſſia had died very ſuddenly;

Another, that Bonaparte had fallen a victim to aſſaſſination, on his return from Italy to Paris;

Another, that Bonaparte had been driven by the fury of the populace from Milan, and that he fell by the hands of an enraged multitude in Paris.

It is ſaid that the Emperor of Auſtria has given a decided refuſal to the demand of Bonaparte that Trieſte ſhould be ſhut againſt the commerce of England.

Accounts from Holland ſtate that a ſerious difference had occurred between the French and Ruſſian Emperors reſpecting the partition of Turkey, and the conduct of Bonaparte towards the King of Pruſſia.

CHARLESTON, February 16.

A very intelligent gentleman, who came paſſenger in the Portland, from Bordeaux, gives it as his opinion, that the deſperate and cruel meaſures which Bonaparte is now purſuing, muſt if perſevered in, inevitably lead to the deſtruction of his power. The uneaſineſs and diſſatisfaction which prevails among the people are not to be deſcribed. They dare not complain; but their acquieſcence is rather a fallen ſubmiſſion to the tyrant's will, than an approval of the measures of their government. Bonaparte had already began to make arrangements for calling out the conscripts of 1810, and the people were driven almoft to madneſs by the many privations which they had already and were ſtill to ſuffer from the war, augmented by the rigorous blockade by the Britiſh, and the reſtrictions of their own government—the young men, without diſtinction of perſons, were torn from their homes, to fight for, they knew not what, except to ſerve the cauſe and promote the ambitious views of the inexorable tyrant, who aims at univerſal dominion, and who now wields the ſceptre of the European continent, with a giant graſp, and governs its nation with a whip of ſcorpions.

We regret that we are as yet unable to give our readers any ſatisfactory information upon the ſubject of the negociation with the American government, ſo little having tranſpired, the prevailing opinion is, that Mr. Roſe has diſpatched a veſſel to England for further inſtructions, and that on her return the ſubject will be brought to final iſſue. On adverting to our local concerns, we cannot review the cloſe of the laſt ſeſſion of the Provincial Legiſlature, without ſincerely congratulating the country upon the attention paid to the commercial intereſt In the great advance of price, for the purchaſe of Hemp, and the manner of payment, we witneſs a meaſure replete with the moſt liberal patronſim in the legiſlature, and happieſt conſequences to this and the mother country; and in the appropriation for the Public Roads, we have an earneſt, of what may be expected when the public means ſhall be more commenſurate to the public neceſſities. We look forward with pleaſure to the beneficial operation of the ſtatutes enacted by the preſent Parliament, and a lively hope that their ſucceſſors may be actuated by an equal zeal for the public welfare.

A Proclamation.

By his Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c.

To all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come—

GREETING:

WHEREAS it has been repreſented to us by a certain petition from diverſ of the Juſtices of the Peace in and for the Eaſtern Diſtrict, that it would be highly advantageous to the intereſt, welfare, convenience, and proſperous advancement of the County of Glengary, in the Diſtrict aforeſaid, to eſtabliſh a Public Fair, to be held therein, in ſome convenient place in the ſaid county;—NOW KNOW YE, that in furtherance of ſo deſirable an object, WE have thought fit, by our Letters Patent, bearing even date with theſe preſents, to Give and Grant unto Neil M'Lean, Eſquire, being our Sheriff in and for the Eaſtern Diſtrict, and his ſucceſſors reſpectively, Sheriffs of the ſame, for the time being, to and for the uſe and benefit, and for the reſort and intercourſe of the ſubjects of theſe Provinces in general, and that of the inhabitants of the ſaid County of Glengary in particular, All and ſingular, the right, privilege, advantage, and franchiſe, of keeping and holding a Public Fair, (as ſtewards of the ſame reſpectively) at and within the Townſhip of Williamſtown, in the County and Diſtrict aforeſaid, at two different times in each and every year, that is to ſay, on the firſt day of June and on the firſt day of October, to continue thence reſpectively at each time, for and during the ſpace of eight days, and no longer, and that free of toll; ſubject nevertheleſs, to the conditions, reſtrictions and limitations, in our ſaid Letters Patent contained, as reference being thereto had will more fully appear.

Given under my hand and ſeal at Arms, at York, this twenty-ninth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eight, and in the forty-eighth year of his Majeſty's reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieutenant Governor.

By command of his Excellency,
Wm. Jarvis, Secry.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,

Monday, 8th February.

The Speaker informed the Houſe that the Common Plea bill was to be further conſidered by a committee. Mr. Rogers moved that the petition of William Firth, Eſquire, ſhould be read. The queſtion was put and loſt—the yeas and nays were called for—Meſſrs. Rogers and Dorland only ſtood up. Mr. Rogers expreſſed ſome diſſatisfaction at what had taken place; he was not much acquainted with the law, and was deſirous to hear the petitioner. He ſeldom found time to ſtudy law. It was only at ſuch times as happier mortals ſpent in indolence or pleaſure. He conſidered that every ſubject had a right to petition the Houſe, and that his petition ſhould be received. It would be laid in this caſe,—that the Houſe had rejected the petition, without knowing what it contained: for how could the Houſe be acquainted with the contents of it, without allowing it to be read.

Mr. Waſhburn roſe with ſome warmth, and ſaid that the honorable gentleman (Mr. Rogers) talked nonſenſe. By the rule of the Houſe, the petition had remained two days on the table. The members had all read it, which was well known to the gentleman, (Mr. Rogers) therefore what ſignified arguing that the Houſe was ignorant of what it contained? He (Mr. Waſhburn) knew the contents very well, and therefore he had thought proper to get rid of it by a ſilent vote. If the petition had been publicly read by the clerk, and the matter conſidered, the conſequences might have been diſagreeable.

The Solicitor General ſaid it might poſſibly be ſuppoſed that the petition had been brought in with the approbation of the Lieutenant Governor. He (Mr. Solicitor) therefore thought it his duty to inform the Houſe that this was not the caſe, and that his Excellency diſapproved of the meaſure. He was authoriſed to ſay ſo from the petitioner himſelf.

Mr. Sherwood ſaid that as far as an humble individual, he could preſume to judge of the conduct of his Majeſty's Repreſentative in this Province, it had ever appeared to him replete with wiſdom and integrity, and that he had a ſincere deſire to protect the rights of the people, and of their repreſentatives in parliament. He (Mr. Sherwood) therefore heard with the higheſt ſatisfaction, that the petition was not approved of by his Excellency. Mr. Sherwood conſidered that petition the 'ongeſt attack upon the privileges of the Houſe, that ever had been made ſince Upper Canada was a Colony.

The Houſe again went into committee upon the bill relative to Courts of Common Pleas. The firſt clauſe that came into debate was regarding the ſum for which an abſconding debtor ſhould be holden to bail. Mr. Sherwood ſubmitted to the committee how far ten pounds ſterling, which was the Engliſh law, was the moſt proper ſum; it ſeemed at firſt view, a price ſufficiently low for liberty, but great inconvenience had reſulted from it. He ſaid it was worthy of remark that the inhabitants in the lower part of this province, were in the habit of purſuing debtors into the ſtate of New-York, and arreſting them there for ſmall ſums, because the laws of our own country afforded no remedy: in that land of liberty, the body might be taken for a York ſhilling.

Mr. M'Lean conſidered the ſituation of this country ſo different from that of England, that ten pounds would not apply; a debtor might eſcape from Detroit, Niagara, Kingſton & every where below, in a very little time: when a man might walk out of the country at noon-day in defiance of his creditors, as was now the caſe, he thought there was a great fault in the law. In England, it will not stay for a debtor to leave the country. He was inclined to fix the sum as low as five pounds.

The Solicitor General said that we had departed from the laws of England in principle, there any debtor might be arrested for ten pounds sterling; here an arrest could only be made of a fraudulent debtor, about to abscond; therefore as fraud was made the criterion, it was proper that an arrest should extend as low as the jurisdiction of the court. The sum of ten pounds sterling, to most people who were in the habit of giving credits in this country, was from the scarcity of money a greater loss than the like sum in England.

Washington, March 2.

The city was yesterday full of reports, announcing the fall of New Orleans before the potent arms of Col. Burr and General Moreau, between whom an alliance was patched up to give plausibility to the story. We have sought information at every source from which it was to be expected, and can confidently say there is not the least foundation for this rumor. Intelligence from New-Orleans is received down to the first week in February, when every thing in that quarter was tranquil.

The Senate have, without division, sanctioned the nomination of William Pinckney, Minister resident at the court of London.

A bill has been brought into the Senate, and one of a like tenor in the House of Representatives, authorising the President to raise, in addition to the present force, five regiments of infantry, one regiment of riflemen, one regiment of light artillery, and one regiment of cavalry. The bill has gone through committee of the whole in the House of Representatives without opposition.

From the Baltimore Federal Gazette of the 3d March.

We are informed that a gentleman arrived in town this morning, who says, government received (by express) accounts at 6 o'clock last evening, that BURR and Co. had assembled a much greater force than before, and were re-entering on their enterprize; that the country was thereby in great uproar.

By a gentleman who arrived in the mail, we learn, that an express from New-Orleans reached Washington last evening, which was supposed to bring important news. North American.

The following is an extract of a letter to the Editor of the Political Register of Philadelphia.

Washington, February 25.

The negociation with Mr Role has been resumed—confusion prevails in the cabinet—Gallatin is denounced by the friends of the president and Mr. Madison. Mr. Munroe's open opposition, and threatened publication of his mission to England with a vindication of his conduct in signing the late treaty, have produced great alarm—and, in truth, the executive has not energy to face common difficulties or dangers.

In the additional army bill, the clause authorizing the appointment of two major generals was struck out, and that which respects the inspector general so modified, as to give him the rank of a brigadier only.

A bill has been reported in congress, authorizing a detachment from the militia of the United States.—This is understood to be a revival of the law authorizing a draft of 100,000 men, which expires in April next.

The bill in addition to the act supplementary to the Embargo law, has passed the House of Representatives.—This bill prohibits all commercial intercourse with foreign states or their colonies, both by land and water, under severe penalties.

Madame Moreau arrived at Bordeaux, in the ship Eliza, from New-York. She was immediately arrested by the police and confined to her hotel under a guard, without being permitted to write or speak with any of her friends.—Phil. Gaz.

It would seem by the last foreign intelligence, that the Kingdom of Portugal is to be the allotment of Louis Bonaparte, the King of Holland, who is to surrender that kingdom to the Prince of Benevento, and to receive Portugal in exchange.

It is said a violent earthquake, of more than half an hour's continuance, has been felt throughout the coast of Barbary, particularly at Algiers, which had done considerable damage.

QUEBEC, 2nd February, 1808.

It is with the deepest regret we have to announce the death of the Honorable HENRY ALLCOCK, Chief Justice of the Province. He died this morning at 8 o'clock, of a malignant fever, partly occasioned by intense application, which baffled the ablest medical skill.

Mr. Allcock was at first one of the Puisne Judges of Upper Canada; afterwards Chief Justice of that Province, and about two years ago his Majesty was pleased to appoint him Chief Justice of the Lower Province.

In the exercise of his judicial duties, he evinced the advantages which attend the forming of a legal scholar at the English bar; and in all the various offices which he filled, he acquitted himself as an able judge, distinguished by the most eminent rectitude and unwearied assiduity. His memory was retentive; his judgment clear and penetrating, and so profound was his knowledge of English law, that the energies of his mind cast a luminous ray over the dark and abstruse code of provincial jurisprudence. His language was classical and perspicuous; nor can those who have heard his judgments, remember them without a mixture, at once, of pleasure and regret. In the habitudes of private life, his manners were those which are commonly said to be peculiar to a plain Englishman—affable, conciliating, unaffected. In a word, his public and private virtues will long live in the hearts both of the old and the new subjects of this Province; and his death will be felt with a general and unfeigned sorrow.

The York Gazette.

YORK, APRIL 11, 1808.

The inhabitants of this Province are well acquainted with Mr. Allcock's amiable and transcendant virtues, and are deeply impressed with a just sense of his exalted character. By his death, Canada has been deprived of one of her brightest ornaments; an honest, upright, and independent Judge; an active, liberal, and enlightened Gentleman, whose benevolent mind, was ever intent upon the welfare and improvement of these Provinces, and the happiness of his fellow creatures. His impartiality and patience, when presiding on the bench, endeared him to all ranks and classes of society; and as a private gentleman, Mr. Allcock was respected and beloved, by all who had the honor of his acquaintance. The public mind will evince its affection for the loss of such a character, and by its veneration and respect for departed worth, hold out a strong incitement to others, to emulate such a bright example.

The Editors having been called upon by a number of Gentlemen to request a Meeting of such persons as might wish to subscribe towards erecting a Bridge across that part of the River Don which separates the town and peninsula, give notice that it is desired such Meeting should take place To morrow, at Campbell and Deary's Tavern, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They should be wanting to themselves and in their duty to the public, were they not to give every encouragement and assistance in their power to so desirable an object. Humanity is interested in the laudable undertaking, and it may promote a more general subscription, to state that for the want of a bridge, several lives (within their knowledge) have been lost. When completed, the Peninsula will answer every purpose of an extensive common to the owners of cattle; to those who may use it for purposes of recreation, it furnishes a most delightful walk or ride; as a race ground or place for field exercises, we know not its equal; the sportsman will find a constant and easy access to the best shooting ground, and the convalescent might find health in an occasional excursion to the opposite beach—and travellers or persons coming to market from below, would at all seasons find the town accessible, which to them at present it frequently is not, but at the imminent hazard of life.

Quebec, 10th March, 1808.

GENERAL ORDERS.

His Excellency the Commander of the Forces has been pleased to appoint Lieutenant Colonel Æneas Shaw, late Queen's Rangers, Lieut. Colonel Henry Proctor, and Lieut. Colonel Jasper Grant, of his Majesty's 41st regiment, to the temporary rank of Colonel, in the Province of Upper Canada, during his Majesty's pleasure.

CHARADE.

Where Alpine heights majestic rise,
My first oft wound his winding way,
And in my records, sometimes lies,
Fair verity, (in Poets say);
My third distinguishes her name,
For whom I mix the purest flame.

Died on Tuesday morning last, Mr. Paul Marian, baker and inn-keeper of this Town, an honest, industrious and respectable man, whose death, will be felt by his family, and the inhabitants of this town, as an afflicting private loss, and a real public one.

Anecdote of SIR SIDNEY SMITH.

The statesman, the warrior, and the poet, are conducted by fame, to the temple of glory and placed by her, on the pedestal of immortality, are contemplated by the world with admiration and delight; but in the hero, we often forget the man. Glory bestows the laurel, but virtue the palm, one flourishes on earth, but the other is sacred to Heaven. Amongst the great number of Heroes who have thrown so lively a lustre on the present reign, no one has shone with greater eclat than Sir Sidney Smith; whose laurels have expanded their rays in every climate, where glory has conducted his steps; whether in the cold regions of the North, or under the burning sun of Naples; at the foot of Mount Ætna, or in those sacred places,* where British valor was the first to unfurl her banners, and combatting with zeal, made their cause her own.

But it was during Sir Sidneys imprisonment in the Temple, in the midst of insults and outrages from a tyrannical usurper; in fetters, and in solitude, that he atchieved conquests solely personal, which glory bestows upon her favored votaries.

It was at this period, deprived of all communication with society, abandoned to himself, oppressed by every privation, and languishing under the effects of a burning fever, without even a glass of water to cool his thirst, the sport of daily insults and menaces, that the lingering hours of solitude were sometimes softened by the visits of a fine boy of four years old, son of the under gaoler, (who was afterwards accused of favoring Sir Sidney's escape) placed upon his knees, or playing at his side, this infant by his innocent caresses, soothed the painful sensations of our illustrious countryman. The attachment of this child for Sir Sidney was far beyond his age; and in return, Sir Sidney formed for his companion a more than ordinary affection.

Sir Sidney at length escaped from a fate that was most probably prepared for him by a tyrant, who tramples upon the rights of nations, the laws of honor and the dictates of humanity; and arrived in England to gather fresh laurels in his country's cause.

During Sir Sidney's last cruize off Boulogne, his crew were surprised on a night, when it was blowing a tempestuous gale at seeing a miserable little skiff combatting a long time against the storm, and at last arrive along side. To the astonishment of every body it was perceived, that this leaky & wretched boat, contained only a half-naked little ragged boy, who implored for permission to see Sir Sidney Smith. After some hesitation, the officer of the watch consented to comply with his wishes, and to inform Sir Sidney of the strange visit that was made to him. Sir Sidney was at this moment in his cabin with several of his officers, and ordered that the child might be brought in. He was accordingly introduced, and Sir Sidney wondering at the appearance of the poor little creature, asked him what he wanted—" Do you recollect Sir," faid the child, " during your confinement in the Temple, that the Under Gaoler, wonfe charge you were in, and who is fince dead from bad treatment, (from fufpicion of having favored your efcape) had a Son who ufed to fit on your knees, to play with you and execute your commiffions?" " I recollect him perfectly," faid Sir Sidney—" Well Sir," replied the child, " my father is dead, and has left four little children—I am one—I am that child who was accuftomed to play with you—I have never fince that time forgotten the love I then formed for you—as foon as I became old enough to feel my lofs, I determined to attach myfelf to your fortunes, and to feek you all over the world; and having heard that you were cruizing off this coaft, I refolved to make my efcape, and to try to get on board this fhip, which I was told was yours." During this intereffing recital, the moft lively fenfations of pity, of gratitude, and of fenfibility, appeared in the countenance of Sir Sidney—" Come to my arms, my dear boy," he then exclaimed, " from this moment will I ever confider you as my fon—henceforth you fhall fhare my cabin, and my fortunes, and all my endeavors fhall be exerted to make you forget the lofs you have ftuftained." While fpeaking thus, Sir Sidney preffed him to his bofom, and the officers who were prefent, experienced the moft lively fatisfaction at Sir Sidney's affectionate reception of this intereffing child, who from that moment has never been abfent from him.

The foregoing is by no means an imaginary picture, nor does the plain fubject want any addition to heighten the colouring:—Guido might have chofen a more exalted fubject for her pencil, but Virtue making her choice, could not have felected one more agreeable and more affecting than this, in which the fimple facts only, have been portrayed.

COUNCIL CHAMBER, 23d January, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, by His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to all whom it may concern, that His Majefty has been pleafed to iffue his Royal Warrant, in the words following:—

To all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come—

GREETING:

WHEREAS it has been repreſented to us by a certain petition from diverſ of the Juſtices of the Peace in and for the Eaſtern Diſtrict, that it would be highly advantageous to the intereſt, welfare, convenience, and proſperous advancement of the County of Glengary, in the Diſtrict aforeſaid, to eſtabliſh a Public Fair, to be held therein, in ſome convenient place in the ſaid county:—NOW KNOW YE, that in furtherance of ſo deſirable an object, WE have thought fit, by our Letters Patent, bearing even date with theſe preſents, to Give and Grant unto Neil M'Lean, Eſquire, being our Sheriff in and for the Eaſtern Diſtrict, and his ſucceſſors reſpectively, Sheriffs of the ſame, for the time being, to and for the uſe and benefit, and for the reſort and intercourſe of the ſubjects of theſe Provinces in general, and that of the inhabitants of the ſaid County of Glengary in particular, All and ſingular, the right, privilege, advantage, and franchiſe, of keeping and holding a Public Fair, (as ſtewards of the ſame reſpectively) at and within the Township of Williamſtown, in the County and Diſtrict aforeſaid, at two different times in each and every year, that is to ſay, on the firſt day of June and on the firſt day of October, to continue thence reſpectively at each time, for and during the ſpace of eight days, and no longer, and that free of toll; ſubject nevertheleſs, to the conditions, reſtrictions and limitations, in our ſaid Letters Patent contained, as reference being thereto had will more fully appear.

Given under my hand and ſeal at Arms, at York, this twenty ninth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eight, and in the forty eighth year of his Majeſty's reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieutenant Governor.

By command of his Excellency,
Wm. Jarvis, Secty.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY,

Tuesday, 9th February.

The Houſe again went into committee upon the Common Pleas bill. A debate aroſe upon a clauſe giving to the ſheriff or his deputy the excluſive right of ſerving the common proceſs of the court in caſes where no bail was required. Mr. Sherwood in ſupport of the clauſe, alledged that by the laws now in force any literate perſon may ſerve a common proceſs. He conſidered the law inſupportable, as it deprived the ſheriffs of conſiderable emoluments. Thoſe uſeful officers were not ſufficiently provided for. It would be impolitic and unjuſt to deprive them of any fees that might ariſe from ſervices. The preſent clauſe went into effect. Mr. Willcocks oppoſed the bill altogether, from beginning to end—it was unconſtitutional, and therefore his duty to his conſtituents, to his king and country, compelled him to oppoſe it. Mr. Sherwood called upon him to ſhow how or why this bill was unconſtitutional. Mr. Willcocks then produced a written paper, which he ſaid contained the opinion of his Majeſty's Attorney General of this Province, that the bill was unconſtitutional; he then read ſomething to that effect. Mr. Sherwood ſaid that the able conduct of the member who ſpoke laſt excited his admiration, he had no doubt but it would have the ſame effects upon the public mind; it merited particular notice. That member (Mr. Willcocks) had been abſent when this bill was introduced on Saturday, and debated on Monday, and the principle of it approved by the whole houſe. Mr. Sherwood ſaid that his abſence was not noticed. He now came in on the third day, when a particular clauſe was under conſideration, and oppoſed the whole bill, to uſe his own energetic phraſe, " from beginning to end." He advanced a dogmatical aſſertion that the bill was unconſtitutional. When called upon to ſupport this bold propoſition by argument or reaſon, he had recourſe to logick that from him was ſo underſtood. " It was ſo, becauſe the Attorney General ſaid ſo." Mr. Sherwood complimented the member (Mr. W.) upon taking good advice. He hoped it would be known to the public, that the ruſe of his (Mr. Willcock's) duty to his conſtituents, his king and his country, was the Attorney General's opinion. Mr. Sherwood ſaid that an information was filed in the court of King's Bench, in which the Attorney General alledged that Joſeph Willcocks was guilty of a libel. Mr. Sherwood deſired to know why the member (Mr. W.) if he pinned his legal faith upon ſuch a ſleeve, had not pleaded guilty—To uſe his own argument, he muſt be guilty, " becauſe the Attorney General had ſaid ſo." Mr. Sherwood ſeriouſly appealed to the good ſenſe of the committee whether the epithet " unconſtitutional," when applied to this bill, was any thing more than vapid declamation. Was it unconſtitutional for this Parliament to eſtabliſh a Court, which a former Parliament of this Province had abolished? Was it unconſtitutional to place civil juſtice within the reach of his Majeſty's ſubjects in Upper Canada? Was it unconſtitutional to give them the benefit of the Habeas Corpus act!

Mr. Willcocks ſaid that he had a high reſpect for the Attorney General; that the information filed in the King's Bench was not with that gentleman's approbation. He was promiſed to it from another quarter. Here Mr. Willcocks was called to order by Mr. Rogers. Mr. Rogers ſaid that the queſtion before the committee only related to allowing ſheriffs the right of ſerving all proceſs excluſively, and he conſidered it reaſonable and proper that they ſhould have it. The ſheriffs were bound to ſerve writs to arreſt the body and writs of execution againſt the goods, both of which were always unpleaſant, and sometimes dangerous; it would be hard therefore not to allow them the exclusive right of serving such process as was profitable and not difficult. Mr. Speaker was strenuous in favor of the sheriffs and of the clause as it now stood; it was but distributive justice that the sheriffs should have the sweet with the sour. They were liable to be called upon at any hour of the night to perform difficult and dangerous duty, without a reward commensurate to their exertions. They were subject to losses by escapes. Their salaries were not large, and other emoluments inconsiderable; therefore to allow every literate person to serve the common process of the court, which was lucrative and not dangerous, appeared to him an act of cruel injustice. Mr. Speaker said a report had been circulated that the office of sheriff was kept for him. This report was false. He would not accept of such an office. He supported the sheriffs from a sense of propriety and a wish to do justice.

Mr. M'Lean opposed the clause in its present shape, and offered an amendment, that the writ should be served by any literate person who might be sworn to the service before any justice of the peace. Mr. M'Lean in support of the amendment said that if the sole right of serving a common process were given to the sheriff only, a great deal of unnecessary expence would in many instances be accumulated, by his exacting all the milage, whereas literate persons might be found in the neighborhood of the defendant willing to serve the process for a small consideration. The sheriff of the Midland District lived many miles above Kingston. A professional man by being obliged to send every common process to him for service, would be subject to great inconvenience, and the party to delay and expence. The sheriff would in some districts be unable to discharge such a duty.

The Solicitor General supported Mr. M'Lean's amendment.

Mr. Clench was also for the amendment. He said that writs of summons were frequently taken from his office in the District of Niagara, against people living at a great distance in remote parts of that district, and the plaintiffs were in the habit of employing their neighbors to serve such summons with very little expence; but if none except the sheriff could make such service, the accumulation of expence would be enormous. The law of the land had ever been that writs of summons might be served by any literate person; he saw no reason for altering the law in that respect. The amendment was put and carried in the affirmative.

We beg leave to apologize for the omission of part of a Speech of the Solicitor-General, when the Wolf-Bill was under debate.

Mr. Solicitor conceived it unfair to take the money from the County Treasuries to pay for wolves scalps, when the County Officers many of them remained unpaid for years, not merely for services rendered to the public, but for disbursements made on the public account; he conceived it would be a great degree of injustice to them, as the fees allowed them were comparatively far below the trouble and loss of time to which they were subjected. Mr. Solicitor said, if the gentlemen of that House were so determinedly patriotic, he wished them to evince it by more substantial proofs, than merely arguing in favor of the measure, let gentlemen, he said, appropriate their wages as members, to effect the purpose, if so desirable an one; these sums collectively, would form a fund to meet the demand in future; himself would be proud to throw the example by bestowing his mite, and he trusted the gentlemen of this House would cheerfully do the same.

Messrs. Howard and Rogers spoke against this handsome proposition of the Solicitor's, and we are sorry to state that it was lost.

From a Calcutta (East India) paper received at Philadelphia.

Moradabad, April 10, 1807.

"The northern division of this district, is at present so much infested by Tygers, that we daily hear of men, women, children and cattle, falling a prey to that ferocious inhabitant of the Jungle.

"Mr. Lloyd, the collector of this district, has lately made an excursion in that direction, on his annual circuit. This gentleman distinguished for his humanity, and domestic good qualities, is also famed in the field, for his address and dexterity as a sportsman. At the entreaties of the suffering villagers he has encountered and killed, single handed, 38 full grown Tygers within the short space of one month. 10 of that number he killed in 3 days one of which measured to feet 4 inches in length, and otherwise in proportion.

"It has been asserted and generally supposed, that a Tyger never gives chase to a man unless he be attacked. A very daring instance to the contrary of this assertion, lately occurred to Mr. Lloyd, who while taking an evening drive in his buggy, discovered a Tyger of immense size, prowling on the skirts of the jungle, about 2 miles from his camp. Being unarmed, he immediately turned his horse homeward, and upon looking back, discovered the monster making towards him with all his speed. Mr. Lloyd continued to retreat, as quickly as his horse could gallop, the Tyger persevering in the pursuit, and was rather gaining ground, when alarmed at the report of a musket fired in the camp, he gave up the chase and took into an adjoining thicket. Mr. Lloyd went next morning in quest of his foe, and found him not far distant from his hiding place of the former night. The Tyger immediately made towards the Elephant; allowing him to advance till within 30 yards, when Mr. Lloyd levelled his piece and brought him down with the first shot. This Tyger measured 12 feet 11 inches in length."

The Prince of Peace, the favorite of the Queen of Spain, is the richest subject in Europe, being worth one hundred millions of dollars.—London Pap.

The Emperor Napolean has decreed, that there should be no communication between the "Continent and Sweden, and that all letters destined for Sweden shall be seized."

Capt. Gardiner, who arrived this morning from Madeira and Terceira, 37 days from the latter place, informs that a few days previous to his leaving Terceira, a British ship arrived from off Madeira, with dispatches to the governor general, informing that a most distressing famine had commenced at Lisbon. No Portuguese of any description were allowed to leave the country, and great numbers were obliged to enter the French army for subsistence. British troops were daily expected at Terceira.

New Orleans.—We have had an opportunity of conversing with a respectable gentleman from the city of Washington, who informs us, that letters had been received by the express mail, from New Orleans, dated on the 6th ult. whence it appeared that Gen. Moreau had arrived, and had waited upon the French Consul: that a considerable number of Frenchmen, who were strangers had, within the ten preceding days, made their appearance within that city; several British ships of war were said to be off the Mississippi; and that a feeling of alarm and apprehension prevailed, which without reposing upon any distinct circumstance as the cause, gave much uneasiness with respect to the future.—North American.

From the Barbadoes Mercury, of Jan. 6.

His Majesty's ship Argo, who arrived here on the 23d, after leaving Goire, touched at St. Jago (one of the Cape de Verd-Islands) & obtained there a report which had only two days previous (about the 3d or 4th inst.) reached that island, and which carries along with it a plausible and probable appearance, and we hope may speedily be confirmed. The report at St. Jago stated, that Admiral de Courcy had fallen in with the Rochfort squadron after they had quitted their port, and had succeeded in bringing them to action, obtained a victory over them which put in his possession six of their large ships, and one of (smaller size, (most probably the former of the line, and the latter a frigate,) and that the remainder effected their return into port.

Previous to the Argo's arrival at St. Jago, some of the British men of war, and other vessels employed in the service of the expatriated family of Portugal, had touched there, and on the 7th inst. the African ship Swift, arrived here, fell in with the London, Monarch, and Marlborough, British, & Renard, Portuguese ship of the line, in lat. 2, 30, S. long, 26, fourteen days from Lisbon, on their voyage to the Brazils, with some of the Princes and nobles on board.

Mr. Rose.—We were informed the day before yesterday that the negociation had closed, the rumours to the contrary notwithstanding.

We have since seen a letter from a gentleman at Washington who is well informed, mentioning, that nothing farther can be done by Mr. Rose, on account, as he said, of his instructions being too limited.

This gentleman, the two Castlereagh's, Mr. Erskine, jun. and Mr. Foster, are to return home shortly in the Statira. Mr. Erskine (the minister) and Mr. Mansfield remain here. The writer, who generally concurs with the administration, supposes that the statements and representations lately sent to Great Britain by the Executive will meet with a favorable reception.—North American.

Captain Baker, arrived this morning informs us, that when he sailed from St. Bartholomews, it was reported there that a French fleet of 5 sail had lately been spoke with steering for the West Indies. Admiral Duckworth, apprised, of the circumstance, had detached five sail of the line after them.

Their Prussian majesties continue to lead the most private life. The house they occupy at Memel costs them only 1200 dollars per annum. The king resides in the left wing, the queen in the right, and the princes and princesses in the upper stories.—Lond. Pap.

March 11.

We learn by the brig Hope, arrived last evening, that 25,000 French and Spanish troops were quartered in Lisbon; and that another French army of 10,000 men had entered Portugal. It is further stated that there is no cordiality between the Portuguese and French—that when the French flag was hoisted the inhabitants revolted, and would have succeeded if they had had a brave commanders. They were got under by superior force.

It is further added (and it came from one of the French officers) that during the march of the French army into Portugal, about 8000 of them died of starvation and fatigue, and that they subsisted two days upon acorns.—N. Y. Gaz.

INTERESTING FOREIGN NEWS.

By the arrival this morning of the Factor, Capt. Riddle, in 34 days, and the Francis, Capt. Tayler, in 31 days, from Greenock, we have been furnished with English papers to the 11th February, nearly a month later than before received. We have published in the Commercial Advertiser of this evening all that our time and limits would permit. Among the articles in this evening's paper will be found the King's Speech at the opening of Parliament, in which it is stated that the American Government has connected with the affair of the Chelapeake "pretensions inconsistent with the maritime rights of Great Britain;" and that "that such pretensions his Majesty is determined never to admit."

The Embargo law was received in England towards the last of January. It was published without much comment in the London papers, together with the explanatory articles from the National Intelligencer. A gentleman who came passenger in one of the vessels, states, that the news of the Embargo made no impression on the political circles in London.

KING's SPEECH.

HOUSE of LORDS, Thursday, Jan. 21.

At three o'clock the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, and Lords Dartmouth and Aylesford, took their seats immediately below the throne, as commissioners, and the Commons being soon after in attendance, the Lord Chancellor delivered the following speech:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

We have received his Majesty's commands to assure you, that in calling you together at this important conjuncture of affairs, he entertains the most perfect conviction, that he shall find in you the same determination with which his Majesty himself is animated, to uphold the honor of his Crown, and the just rights and interests of his people.

We are commanded by his Majesty to inform you, that no sooner had the result of the negociations at Tilsit, confirmed the influence and controul of France over the powers of the Continent, than his Majesty was apprized of the intentions of the enemy to combine those powers into one great confederacy, to be directed either to the entire subjugation of this kingdom, or to the imposing upon his Majesty an insecure and ignominious peace.

That for this purpose, it was determined to force into hostility against his Majesty states which had hitherto been allowed by France to maintain or to purchase their neutrality; and to bring to bear against different points of his Majesty's dominions, the whole of the naval force of Europe, and specifically the fleets of Portugal and Denmark.

To place those fleets out of the power of such a confederacy, became therefore the indispensible duty of his Majesty.

In the execution of this duty, so far as related to the Danish fleet, his Majesty has commanded us to assure you, that it was with the deepest reluctance that his Majesty found himself compelled, after his earnest endeavors to open a negociation with the Danish government had failed, to authorize his commanders to resort to the extremity of force but he has the greatest satisfaction in congratulating you upon the successful execution of this painful but necessary service.

We are further commanded to acquaint you, that the course which his Majesty had to pursue with respect to Portugal, was happily of a nature more congenial to his Majesty's feelings. The timely and unreserved communication by the court of Lisbon of the demands and designs of France, while it confirmed to his Majesty the authenticity of the advices which he had received from other quarters, entitled the court to his Majesty's confidence in the sincerity of the assurances by which that communication was accompanied.

The fleet of Portugal was destined by France to be employed as an instrument of vengeance against Great Britain. That fleet has been secured from the grasp of France, and is now employed in conveying to its American dominions the hopes and fortunes of the Portuguese monarchy. His Majesty implores the protection of Divine Providence upon that enterprize, rejoicing in the preservation of a power so long the friend and ally of Great Britain; and in the prospect of its establishment in the New World with augmented strength and splendor.

We have it in command from his Majesty to inform you, that the determination of the enemy to excite hostilities between his Majesty and his late allies, the emperors of Russia and Austria, and the king of Prussia, has been but too successful; and that the ministers from those powers have demanded and received their passports.

This measure on the part of Russia, has been attempted to be justified by a statement of wrongs and grievances which have no real foundation. The emperor of Russia had indeed proffered his mediation between his Majesty and France. His Majesty did not refuse that negociation, but he is confident, you will feel the propriety of its not having been accepted until his Majesty should have been enabled to ascertain that Russia was in a condition to mediate impartially, and until the principles of the basis on which France was ready to negociate were made known to his Majesty.

No pretence of justification has been alledged for the hostile conduct of the emperor of Austria, or for that of his Prussian majesty. His Majesty has not given the slightest ground of complaint to either of those sovereigns, nor even at the moment when they have respectively withdrawn their ministers, have they assigned to his Majesty any distinct cause for that proceeding.

His Majesty has directed that copies of the correspondence between his Majesty's ambassador and the minister for foreign affairs of his imperial majesty the emperor of Russia, during the negociations at Tilsit, and the official note of the Russian minister at this court, containing the offer of his imperial majesty's mediation between his Majesty and France; together with the answer returned to that note by his Majesty's command; and also copies of the official notes, presented by the Austrian minister at this court, and of the answers which his majesty commanded to be returned to them, should be laid before you.

It is with concern that his Majesty commands us to inform you, that notwithstanding his earnest wishes to terminate the war in which he is engaged with the Ottoman Porte his Majesty's endeavors, unhappily for the Turkish empire, have been defeated by the machinations of France not less the enemy of the Porte than that of Great Britain.

But while the influence of France has been thus unfortunately successful in preventing the termination of existing hostilities, and in exciting new war against this country, his Majesty commands us to inform you that the king of Sweden has refused every attempt to induce him to abandon his alliance with Great Britain; and that his Majesty entertains no doubt that you will feel with him the sacredness of the duty which the firmness and fidelity the king of Sweden impose upon his Majesty; and that you will concur in enabling his Majesty to discharge it in a manner worthy of this country.

It remains for us, according to his Majesty's command, to state to you that the treaty of commerce and amity between his Majesty and the United States of America, which was concluded and signed by commissioners duly authorized for that purpose, on the 31st December, 1806, has not taken effect, in consequence of the refusal of the President of the United States to ratify that instrument.

For an unauthorized act of force, committed against an American ship of war, his Majesty did not hesitate to offer immediate and spontaneous reparation.—But no attempt has been made by the American Government to connect with the queſtion which has ariſen out of this act, pretenſions inconſiſtent with the maritime rights of Great Britain: ſuch pretenſions his Majeſty is determined never to admit. His Majeſty, nevertheleſs, hopes that the American government will be actuated by the ſame deſire to preſerve the relations of peace and friendſhip between the two countries, which has influenced his Majeſty's conduct, and that any diſſatisfactions in the diſcuſſions now pending may be effectually removed.

His Majeſty has commanded me to ſtate to you that in conſequence of the decree by which France declared the whole of his Majeſty's dominions to be in a ſtate of blockade, and ſubjected to ſeizure and confiſcation, the produce and manufactures of his kingdom, his Majeſty reſorted, in the firſt inſtance, to a meaſure of mitigated retaliation; and that this meaſure having proved ineffectual for its object, his majeſty has ſince found it neceſſary to adopt others of greater vigor, which he commands us to ſtate to you, will require the aid of Parliament to give them complete and effectual operation.

His Majeſty has directed copies of the orders which he iſſued with the advice of his Privy Council upon this ſubject, to be laid before you, and he commands us to recommend them to your early attention.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

His Majeſty has directed the eſtimates for the enſuing year to be laid before you, in the fulleſt confidence that your loyalty and public ſpirit will induce you to make ſuch proviſions for the public ſervices, as the urgency of affairs may require.

His Majeſty has great ſatisfaction in informing you, that notwithſtanding the difficulties which the enemy has endeavored to impoſe upon the commerce of his ſubjects, and upon his intercourſe with other nations, the reſources of the country have continued in the laſt year to be ſo abundant as to have produced, both from the permanent and temporary revenue, a receipt conſiderably larger than that of the preceding year.

The ſatisfaction which his Majeſty feels aſſured you will derive, in common with his Majeſty, from this proof of the ſolidity of theſe reſources, cannot but be greatly increaſed, if as his Majeſty confidently hopes, it ſhall be found poſſible to raiſe the neceſſary ſupplies for the preſent year without any material additions to the public burdens.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

We are eſpecially commanded to ſay to you, in the name of his Majeſty, that if ever there was a juſt and rational war, it is that which his Majeſty is now compelled to proſecute. This war, is in its principle, purely defenſive. His Majeſty looks but to the attainment of a ſecure and honorable peace; but ſuch a peace can only be negociated upon a footing of perfect equity.

The eyes of Europe and of the world, are fixed upon the Britiſh Parliament.

If as his Majeſty confidently truſts, you diſplay in this criſis of the fate of the country the characteriſtic ſpirit of the Britiſh nation, and face unappalled the unnatural combination which is gathering around us, his Majeſty bids us to aſſure you of his firm perſuaſion, that, under the bleſſing of Divine Providence, the ſtruggle will prove ſucceſsful and glorious to Great Britain.

We are laſtly commanded to aſſure you, that in this awful and momentous conteſt, you may rely on the firmneſs of his Majeſty, who has no cauſe but that of his people; & that his Majeſty reciprocally relies on the wiſdom, the conſtancy, and the affectionate ſupport of his Parliament.

A LETTER

From the Hon. TIMOTHY PICKERING, a Senator of the United States from the State of Maſſachuſetts, exhibiting to his conſtituents a View of the Imminent Danger of an Unneceſſary and Ruinous War. Addreſſed to his excellency James Sullivan, Governor of the ſaid State.

City of Waſhington, Feb. 16, 1808.

SIR,

IN the even current of ordinary times, an addreſs from a Senator in Congreſs to his conſtituents might be diſpenſed with. In ſuch times, the proceedings of the Executive and Legiſlature of the United States, exhibited in their publick acts, might be ſufficient. But the preſent ſingular condition of our country, when its moſt intereſting concerns, wrapt up in myſtery, excite univerſal alarm, requires me to be no longer ſilent. Perhaps I am liable to cenſure, at ſuch a criſis, for not ſooner preſenting, to you and them, ſuch a view of our national affairs as my official ſituation has placed in my power. I now addreſs it to you, Sir, as the proper organ of communication to the legiſlature.

The attainment of TRUTH is ever deſirable; and I cannot permit myſelf to doubt that the ſtatement I now make muſt be acceptable to all who have an agency in directing the affairs, and who are guardians of the intereſts of our Commonwealth, which ſo materially depend on the meaſures of the Government of the Nation. At the ſame time, I am aware of the jealouſy with which, in theſe unhappy days of party diſſentions my communications may, by ſome of my conſtituents, be received. Of this I will not complain: while I with the ſame jealouſy to be extended towards all publick men. Yet I claim ſome ſhare of attention and credit—that ſhare which is due to the man who deſires the world to point, in the whole courſe of a long and publick life, at one inſtance of deception, at a ſingle departure from TRUTH.

The EMBARGO demands the firſt notice. For perhaps no act of the Nationa Government has ever produced ſo much ſolicitude, or ſpread ſuch univerſal alarm. Becauſe all naturally conclude, that a meaſure pregnant with incalculable miſchief to all claſſes of our fellow-citizens, would not have been propoſed by the Preſident, and adopted by Congreſs, but for cauſes deeply affecting the intereſts and ſafety of the nation. It muſt have been under the influence of this opinion that the legiſlative bodies of ſome States have expreſſed their approbation of the Embargo, either expreſsly, or by implication.

The following were all the papers laid by the Preſident before Congreſs, as the grounds of the Embargo.

1. The proclamation of the King of Great Britain requiring the return of his ſubjects, in the ſtrongeſt eſpecially, from foreign countries, to aid, in this hour of peculiar danger, in the defence of their own. But it being an acknowledged principle, that every nation has a right to the ſervice of its ſubjects in time of war, that proclamation could not furniſh the ſlighteſt ground for an Embargo.

2. The extract of a letter from the Grand Judge Register to the French Attorney General for the Council of Prizes. This contained an partial interpretation of the imperial blockading decree of November 21, 1806. This decree, indeed, and its interpretation, preſent flagrant violations of our neutral rights, and of the exiſting treaty between the United States and France: but ſtill, the execution of that decree could not (from the ſmall number of French cruiſers) extenſively interrupt our trade. Theſe two papers were publick.

3 The letter from our Miniſter, Mr. Armſtrong, to Mr. Champagny, the French Miniſter of Foreign Affairs: and

4. Mr. Champagny's anſwer. Both theſe ought, in form of notoriance, alſo to have been made publick. The latter would have furniſhed to our nation ſome idea of the views and expectations of France. But both were withdrawn by the Preſident, to be depoſited among other Executive ſecrets: while neither preſented any new ground to juſtify an Embargo.

In the Senate, theſe papers were referred to a committee. The committee quickly reported a bill for laying an Embargo, agreeably to the Preſident's propoſal. This was read a firſt, a ſecond, and a third time, and paſſed: and all in the ſhort compaſs of about four hours! A little time was repeatedly aſked, to obtain further information, and to conſider a meaſure of ſuch moment, of ſuch univerſal concern: but theſe requeſts were denied. We were hurried into the paſſage of the bill, as if there was danger of its being rejected, if we were allowed time to obtain further information, and deliberately conſider the ſubject. For to that time our veſſels were freely ſailing on foreign voyages; and in a national point of view, the departure of half a dozen or a dozen more, while we were inquiring into the neceſſity or expediency of the Embargo, was of little moment. Or if the danger to our veſſels, ſeamen and merchandize had been ſo extreme as not to admit of one day's delay, ought not that extreme danger to have been exhibited to Congreſs? The Conſtitution which requires the Preſident "to give to Congreſs information of the ſtate of the union," certainly meant, not partial, but complete information on the ſubject of a communication, ſo far as he poſſeſſed it. And when it enjoins him "to recommend to their conſideration ſuch meaſures as he ſhould judge neceſſary and expedient," it as certainly intended that thoſe recommendations ſhould be bottomed on information communicated, not on facts withheld, and locked up in the Executive cabinet. Had the publick ſafety been at ſtake or any great publick good preſented to our view, but which would be loſt by a moment's delay; there would have been ſome apology for diſpatch, though none for acting without due information. In truth, the meaſure appeared to me then, as it ſtill does, and as it appears to the publick, without a ſufficient motive, without a legitimate object. Hence the general inquiry—"For what is the Embargo laid?" And I challenge any man not in the ſecrets of the Executive to tell. I know, Sir, that the Preſident ſaid the papers abovementioned "ſhowed that great and increaſing dangers threatened our veſſels, our ſeamen, and our merchandize:" but I alſo know that they exhibited no new dangers; none of which our merchants and ſeamen had not been well apprized. The Britiſh proclamation had many days before been publiſhed in the newſpapers [the copy laid before us by the Preſident had been cut out of a newſpaper;] and ſo had the ſubſtance, if not the words of Regnier's letter. Yet they had excited little concern among merchants and ſeamen, the preſervation of whoſe perſons and property was the profeſſed object of the Preſident's recommendation of an Embargo. The merchants and ſeamen could accurately eſtimate the dangers of continuing their commercial operations, of which dangers indeed, the actual premiums of inſurance were a ſatisfactory gauge. Thoſe premiums had very little increaſed: for the Britiſh proclamation not a cent: and by the French decree ſo little as not to ſtop commercial enterprizes. The great numbers of veſſels loading or loaded, and prepared for ſea; the exertions every where made, on the firſt rumour of the Embargo, to diſpatch them; demonſtrate the Preſident's dangers to be imaginary—to have been aſſumed. Or if great and real dangers, unknown to commercial men, were impending, or ſure to fall, how deſirable was it to have had them officially declared and publiſhed! This would have produced a voluntary embargo, and prevented every complaint. Beſides, the dangers clearly defined and underſtood, the publick mind would not have been diſquieted with magnary fears, the more tormenting, becauſe uncertain.

It is true that conſiderable numbers of veſſels were collected in our ports, and many held in ſuſpence: not, however, from any new dangers which appeared; but from the myſterious conduct of our affairs after the attack on the Chelpeake; and from the painful apprehenſion that the courſe the Preſident was purſuing would terminate in war. The National Intelligencer (uſually conſidered as the Executive newſpaper) gave the alarm; and it was echoed through the United States War, probable or inevitable war, was the conſtant theme of the newſpapers, and of the converſations, as was reported, of perſons ſuppoſed to be well informed of Executive deſigns. Yet amid this din of war, no adequate preparations were ſeen making to meet it. The order to detach a hundred thouſand militia to fight the Britiſh navy (for there was no appearance of an enemy in any other ſhape) was ſo completely abſurd, as to excite, with men of common ſenſe, no other emotion than ridicule. Not the ſhadow of a reaſon that could operate on the mind of a man of common underſtanding can be offered in its juſtification. The refuſal of the Britiſh officer to receive the frigate Chelſpeake as a prize, when tendered by her commander, is a demonſtration that the attack upon her was excluſively for the purpoſe of taking their deſerters; and not intended as the commencement of a war between the two nations. The Preſident knew that the Britiſh had no invading army to land on our ſhores; and the detached militia would be uſeleſs, except againſt land-forces. Why then was this order of the militia given?—The nature of the caſe, and the actual ſtate of things, authorize the inference, that its immediate, if not its only object, was to increaſe the publick alarm, to aggravate the publick reſentment againſt Great Britain, to excite a war puſſe; and in the height of this artificial fever of the publick mind, which was to be made known in Great Britain, to renew the demands on her government; in the poor expectation of extorting, in that ſtate of things, conceſſions of points which the had always conſidered as her rights, and which at times and under all circumſtances, ſhe had uniformly refuſed to relinquiſh. The refuſal of the ſubſequent negociation at London has ſhown how utterly unfounded was the Preſident's expectation, how perfectly uſeleſs all his bluſter of war. While no well informed man doubted that the Britiſh Government would make ſuitable reparation for the attack on the Cheſapeake. The Preſident himſelf, in his proclamation, had placed the affair on that footing. A rupture between the two nations, ſaid he, "is equally oppoſed to the intereſts of both, as it is to aſſurances of the moſt friendly diſpoſitions on the part of the Britiſh Government, in the midſt of which this outrage was committed. In this light the ſubject cannot but preſent itſelf to that Government, and ſtrengthen the motives to an honorable reparation for the wrong which has been done" And it is now well known that ſuch reparation might have been promptly obtained in London, had the Preſident's inſtructions to Mr. Monroe been compatible with ſuch an adjuſtment. He was required to renegociate on this ſingle, tranſient act (which when once adjuſted was for ever ſettled) but in connection with another claim of long ſtanding, and, to ſay the leaſt, of doubtful right; to wit, the exemption from impreſſment of Britiſh ſeamen found on board American merchant veſſels. To remedy the evil ariſing from his exerciſe, by which our own citizens were ſometimes impreſſed, the attention of our Government, under every adminiſtration, had been earneſtly engaged: but no practicable plan has yet been contrived: while no man who regards the truth, will queſtion the diſpoſition of the Britiſh Government to adopt any arrangement that will ſecure to Great Britain the ſervices of her own ſubjects. And now, when the unexampled ſituation of that nation (left alone to maintain the conflict with France and her numerous dependent States—left alone to withſtand the Power which menaces the liberties of the world) rendered the aid of all her ſubjects more than ever needful; there was no reaſonable ground to expect that ſhe would yield the right to take them when found on board the merchant veſſels of any nation. Thus to inſiſt on her yielding this point, and inſeparably to connect it with the affair of the Cheſapeake, was tantamount to a determination not to negociate at all.

I write, Sir, with freedom; for the times are too perilous to allow thoſe who are placed in high and reſponſible ſituations to be ſilent or reſerved. The peace and ſafety of our country are ſuſpended on a thread. The courſe we have been purſued leads on to war—to a war with Great Britain—a war abſolutely without neceſſity—a war which whether diſaſtrous or ſucceſsful, muſt bring miſery and ruin to the United States: miſery by the deſtruction of our navigation and commerce (perhaps alſo of our faireſt ſea-port towns and cities) the loſs of markets for our produce, the want of foreign goods and manufactures, and the other evils incident to a ſtate of war: and ruin, by the loſs of our liberty and independence. For if with the aid of our arms Great Britain were ſubdued,—from that moment (though flattered perhaps with the name of allies) we ſhould become the Provinces of France. This is a reſult ſo obvious, that I muſt crave your pardon for noticing it. Some advocates of Executive meaſures admit it. They acknowledge that the navy of Britain is our thield againſt the overwhelming power of France.—Why then do they perſiſt in a courſe of conduct tending to a rupture with Great Britain?—Will it be believed that it is principally, or ſolely, to procure inviolability to the merchant flag of the United States? In other words, to protect all ſeamen, Britiſh ſubjects, as well as our own citizens, on board our merchant veſſels? It is a faſt that this has been made the greateſt obſtacle to an amicable ſettlement with Great Britain. Yet (I repeat) it is perfectly well known that the deſires to obtain only her own ſubjects; and that American citizens, preſſed by miſtake, are delivered up on duly authenticated proof. The evil we complain of ariſes from the impoſſibility of always diſtinguiſhing the perſons of two nations who a few years ſince were one people, who exhibit the ſame manners, ſpeak the ſame language, and poſſeſs ſimilar features. But ſeeing that we ſeldom hear complaints in the great naturalizing ſtates, how happens there to be ſuch extreme ſympathy for American ſeamen at Waſhington? Eſpecially in gentlemen from the interiour States, which have no ſeamen, or from thoſe Atlantick States whoſe native ſeamen bear a very ſmall proportion to thoſe of New England? In faſt, the cauſes of complaint are much fewer than are pretended. They rarely occur in the States whoſe ſeamen are chiefly natives. The firſt merchant in the United States, in anſwering my late enquiry about Britiſh impreſſments, ſays "Since the Cheſapeake affair we have had no cauſe of complaint. I cannot find one ſingle inſtance where they have taken one man out of a merchant veſſel. I have had more than twenty veſſels arrived in that time, without one inſtance of a man being taken by them. Three Swedes were taken out by a French frigate. I have made enquiry of all the maſters that have arrived in this vicinity, and cannot find any complaints againſt the Britiſh cruiſers."

Can gentlemen of known hoſtility to foreign commerce in our own veſſels—who are even willing to annihilate it (and ſuch there are)—can theſe gentlemen plead the cauſe of our ſeamen becauſe they really with to protect them? Can thoſe deſire to protect our ſeamen, who, by laying an unneceſſary embargo, expoſe them by thouſands to ſtarve or beg?—One gentleman has ſaid (and I believe he does not ſtand alone) that ſooner than admit the principle that Great Britain had a right to take her own ſubjects from our merchant veſſels, he would abandon commerce altogether!—To what will every man in New England and of the other navigating States, ſacrifice ſuch a ſentiment? A ſentiment which, to prevent the temporary loſs of five men, by impreſs, would reduce fifty thouſand to beggary? But for the Embargo, thouſands depending on the ordinary operations of commerce, would now be employed. Even under the reſtraints of the orders of the Britiſh Government, retaliating the French imperial decree, very large portions of the world remain open to the commerce of the United States. We may yet purſue our trade with the Britiſh dominions, in every part of the globe; with Africa, with China, and with the colonies of France, Spain, and Holland. And let me aſk, whether in the midſt of a profound peace, when the powers of Europe poſſeſſing colonies, would, as formerly, confine the trade with them to their own bottoms, or admit us as foreigners, only under great limitations, we could enjoy a commerce much more extenſive than is practicable at this moment, if the Embargo were not in the way? Why then ſhould it be continued? Why rather was it ever laid? Can thoſe be legitimate reaſons for the Embargo which are concealed from Congreſs, at the moment when they are required to impoſe it? Are the reaſons to be found in the diſpatches from Paris? Theſe have been removed for; and the motion was quaſhed by the advocates for the embargo. Why are theſe diſpatches withheld by the Executive? Why, when all claſſes of citizens anxiouſly inquire "For what is the Embargo laid?" is a ſatisfactory anſwer denied? Why is not Congreſs made acquainted with the actual ſituation of the United States in relation to France? Why in this dangerous criſis, are Mr. Armſtrong's letters to the Secretary of State abſolutely withheld, ſo that a line of them cannot be ſeen? Did they contain no information of the demands and intentions of the French Emperor? Did the Revenge ſail from England to France, and there wait three or four weeks for diſpatches of no importance? And if ſo, why, regardleſs of the public ſolicitude are their contents ſo carefully concealed? If really unimportant, what harm can ariſe from telling Congreſs and the Nation, officially, that they contain nothing of moment to the ſafety, the liberty, the honour, or the intereſts of the United States? On the contrary, they are ſo cloſely locked up becauſe they will not bear the light? Would their diſcloſure rouſe the ſpirit of the people, ſtill ſlumbering in blind confidence in the Executive? Has the French Emperor declared that he will have no neutrals? Has he required that our ports, like thoſe of his veſſal ſtates in Europe, be ſhut againſt Britiſh commerce? Is the Embargo a ſubſtitute, a milder form of compliance with that harſh demand, which if exhibited in its naked and inſulting aſpect, the American ſpirit might yet relent? Are we ſtill to be kept profoundly ignorant of the declarations and deſigns of the French Emperor, although theſe may ſtrike at our liberty and independence? And, in the mean time, are we, by a thouſand irritations, by cheriſhing prejudices, and by exciting freſh reſentments, to be drawn gradually into a war with Great Britain? Why, amidſt the extreme anxiety of the public mind, is it kept on the rack of fearful expectation, by the Preſident's portentous ſilence reſpecting his French diſpatches?—In this concealment there is danger. In this concealment muſt be wrapt up the real cauſe of the Embargo. On any other ſuppoſition it is inexplicable.

I am alarmed, Sir, at this perilous ſtate of things, I cannot repreſs my ſuſpicions; or forbear thus to exhibit to you the grounds on which they reſt. The people are adviſed to repoſe implicit confidence in the National Government: in that unbounded confidence lies our danger. Armed with that confidence, the Executive may procure the adoption of meaſures which may overwhelm us with ruin, as ſurely as if he had an army at his heels. By falſe policy, or by inordinate fears, our country may be betrayed and ſubjugated to France, as ſurely as by corruption. I truſt, Sir, that no one who knows me will charge it to vanity when I ſay, that I have ſome knowledge of public men and of public affairs: and on that knowledge, and with ſolemnity, I declare to you that I have no confidence in the wiſdom or correctneſs of our publick meaſures: that our country is in imminent danger: that it is eſſential to the publick ſafety that the blind confidence in our Rulers ſhould ceaſe; that the State Legiſlatures ſhould know the facts and reaſons on which important general laws are founded; and eſpecially that thoſe States whoſe farms are on the ocean and whoſe harveſts are gathered in every ſea, ſhould immediately and ſeriouſly conſider how to preſerve them. In all the branches of Government, commercial information is wanting; and in "this deſert" called a city, that want cannot be ſupplied. Nothing but the ſenſe of the commercial States, clearly and emphatically expreſſed, will ſave them from ruin.

Are our thouſands of ſhips and veſſels to rot in our harbours? Are our ſixty thouſand ſeamen and fiſhermen to be deprived of employment; and, with their families reduced to want and beggary? Are our hundreds of thouſands or farmers to be compelled to ſuffer their millions of ſurplus produce to perith on their hands; that the Preſident may make an experiment on our patience and fortitude, & on the towering pride, the boundleſs ambition, and unyielding perſeverance of the Conqueror of Europe? Sir, I have reaſon to believe that the Preſident contemplates the continuance of the Embargo until the French Emperor repeals his decrees violating as well his treaty with the United States as every neutral right; and until Britain thereupon recals her retaliating orders! By that time we may have neither ſhips nor ſeamen: and that is preciſely the point to which ſome men will to reduce us.—To ſee the improvidence of this project (to call it by no harſher name, and without adverting to ulterior views) let us look back to former years.

Notwithſtanding the well founded complaints of ſome individuals, and the murmurs of others: notwithſtanding the frequent Executive declarations of maritime aggreſſions committed by Great Britain; notwithſtanding the outrageous decrees of France and Spain, and the wanton ſpoliations practiced and executed by their citizens and tribunals, of which we ſometimes hear a faint whiſper;—the commerce of the United States has hitherto proſpered beyond all example. Our citizens have accumulated wealth; & the publick revenue, annually increaſing, has been the Preſident's annual boaſt.

Theſe facts demonſtrate, that although Great Britain, with her thouſand ſhips of war, could have deſtroyed our commerce, ſhe has really done it no eſſential injury; and that the other belligerents heretofore reſtrained by ſome regard to National Law, and limited by the ſmaller number of their cruizers, have not inflicted upon it any deep wound. Yet in this full tide of ſucceſs, our commerce is ſuddenly arreſted: an alarm of war is raiſed: fearful apprehenſions are excited: the merchants, in particular, thrown into a ſtate of conſternation, are adviſed, by a voluntary embargo, to keep their veſſels at home. And what is the cauſe of this mighty but miſchievous alarm? We know it in its whole extent. It was the unauthorized attack of a British naval officer on the American frigate Chesapeake, to search for and take some deserters known to have been received on board, who had been often demanded and at often refused to be delivered up. As was expected by all confiderate men, and by the Prefident himfelf (as I have before obferved) the Britifh Government, on the firft information of the unfortunate event (and without waiting for an application) difavowed the act of its officer—difclaimed the act of fearching National armed veffels—and declared its readinefs to make ample reparation, as foon as the ftate of the cafe fhould be fully known.

Under fuch circumftances, who can juftify this alarm of war? An alarm which greatly difquieted the publick mind, and occafioned an interruption of commerce extremely injurious to our merchants and fea faring citizens.

I will clofe this long letter by ftating all the exifting pretences—for there are no caufes—for a war with Great Britain.

1. The Britifh fhips of war, agreeably to a right claimed and exercifed for ages—a right claimed and exercifed during the whole of the adminiftrations of Washington, of Adams, and of Jefferfon,—continue to take fome of the Britifh feamen found on board our merchant veffels, and with them a fmall number of ours, from the impoffibility of always diftinguifhing Englifhmen from citizens of the United States. On this point our Government well know that Great Britain is perfectly willing to adopt any arrangement that can be advifed, which will fecure to her fervice the feamen who are her own fubjects; and at the fame time exempt ours from impreffment.

2. The merchant veffels of France, Spain and Holland, being driven from the ocean, or deftroyed, the commerce of thofe countries with one another, and with their colonies, could no longer be carried on by themfelves. Here the veffels of neutral nations came in to their aid, and carried on nearly the whole commerce of thofe nations. With their feamen thus liberated from the merchant fervice, thofe nations, in the prefent and preceding wars, were enabled to man their fhips of war; and the neutral veffels and feamen fupplying their places, became in fact, though not in name, auxiliaries in war. The commerce of thofe nations, without one armed fhip on the fea appropriated for its protection, was intended thus to be fecured under neutral flags; while the merchant veffels of Great Britain, with its numerous armed fhips to guard them, were expofed to occafional captures.—Such a courfe of things Great Britain has refifted, not in the prefent only, but in former wars; at leaft as far back as that of 1756. And fhe has claimed and maintained a right to impofe on this commerce fome limits and reftraints; becaufe it was a commerce which was denied by thofe nations to neutrals in time of peace; becaufe it was a commerce of immenfe value to the fubjects of her enemies; and becaufe it filled their treafuries with money to enable them to carry on their wars with Great Britain.

3. The third and only remaining pretence for war with Great Britain, is the unfortunate affair of the Chefapeake; which having been already ftated and explained, I will only remark here, that it is not to be believed that the Britifh Government, after being defeated, as before mentioned, in its endeavours to make reparation in London, for the wrong done by its fervant, would have fent hither a fpecial envoy to give honorable fatisfaction, but from its fincere defire to clofe this wound, if our own Government would fuffer it to be healed.

Permit me now to afk, what man, impartially viewing the fubject, will have the boldnefs to fay that there exifts any caufe for plunging the United States into a war with Great Britain? Who that refpects his reputation as a man of common difcernment will fay it? Who that regards the intereft and welfare of his country will fay it? Who then can juftify, who can find an excufe for a courfe of conduct which has brought our country into its prefent ftate of alarm, embarraffment and diftrefs? For myfelf, Sir, I muft declare the opinion, that no free country was ever before fo caufelefsly, and fo blindly, thrown from the height of profperity, and plunged into a ftate of dreadful anxiety and fuffering. But from this degraded and wretched fituation it is not yet too late to efcape. Let the difpatches from our Minifter in France be no longer concealed. Let the Prefident perform the duty required of him by the Conftitution; by giving to Congrefs full information of the ftate of the union in refpect to foreign nations. Above all, let him unfold our actual fituation with France. Let him tell us what are the demands and propofals of her Ruler. Had thefe been honorable to the United States, would not the Prefident have been eager to difclofe them? That they are of an entirely different nature, that they are dishonorable, that they are ruinous to our commercial interefts, and dangerous to our liberty and independence, we are left to infer.

I hope Sir, that the nature and magnitude of the fubject will furnifh a fufficient apology for the length and ftyle of this letter. Perhaps fome may deem it prefumptuous thus to queftion the correctnefs of the proceedings of our Government. A ftrong fenfe of duty, and diftreffing apprehenfions of National ruin, have forced the task upon me. To fome the fentiments which, in the fincerity of my heart, I have expreffed, may give offence: for often nothing offends fo much as TRUTH. Yet I do not defire to offend any man. But when I fee the dangerous extent of Executive influence: when I fee the Great Council of the Nation called on to enact laws deeply affecting the intereft of all claffes of citizens, without adequate information of the reafons of that call: when I obferve the deceptive glofes with which the mifchiefs of the Embargo are attempted to be palliated; and poſteriori evenis adduced as reafons to juftify the meafure; when I know that the rifks of continuing their commercial purfuits againft all known dangers can and will be more accurately calculated by our merchants than by our Government: when if any new dangers to commerce were impending, of which our merchants were uninformed, but of which the Government obtained the knowledge through its Minifter at Paris, or elfewhere, it was plainly the duty of the Executive to make thofe dangers known to Congrefs and the Nation: and fince it fo made known, the merchants and fea faring citizens would, for their own intereft and fafety, have taken due precautions to guard againft them: and as it hence appears certain that an Embargo was not neceffary to the fafety of "our feamen, our veffels, or our merchandize:"—when, Sir, I fee and conſider thefe things, and their evil tendency: in a word, when I obferve the courfe of a proceeding which to me appears calculated to miflead the publick mind to publick ruin; I cannot be filent. Regardleſs, therefore, of perſonal conſequences, I have undertaken to communicate theſe details; with the view to diſſipate dangerous illuſions; to give to my Conſtituents correct information; to excite inquiry; and to rouſe that vigilant jealouſy which is characteriſtick of REPUBLICANS, and eſſential to the preſervation of their rights, their liberties, and their independence.

I have the honor to be, very reſpectfully,
Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
TIMOTHY PICKERING.

FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant Governor.
GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province to the Provincial Parliament of our Town of York, on the Twenty ſecond Day of April to be commenced, held, called, and elected, and to every of you ——— GREETING!

WHEREAS by our Prorogation bearing date the Sixteenth day of March laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Twenty ſecond day of this preſent month of April, at which time in our Town of York, you were held and conſtrained to appear, But we taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking, and by theſe preſents enjoining you and each of you, that on the Thirty-firſt Day of May, next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and there to do as may ſeem neceſſary. Herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be thereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this Eleventh Day of April, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and ſeven, and in the forty eighth year of our Reign.

HOUSE of COMMONS, Jan. 28.

American Intercourſe Bill—Mr. Eden thought it extremely precipitate to renew this Bill at preſent, before we knew the real ſentiments of America.—Were Miniſters prepared to ſay that America was inclined to join with us in our preſent conteſt? If not, he thought the meaſure an anticipation not at all warranted from the late conduct of America. It was, at leaſt, an anticipation of what ought to be the reſult of our negociations.

Mr. Roſe, in anſwer ſaid he admitted America had acted very raſhly, in adopting ſome of her late meaſures; he was anxious, however, not to cloſe the door of conciliation; and he was deſirous to meet her precipitancy with moderation on our part. He could not pledge himſelf as to the pacific diſpoſitions of America, yet he thought it advaſable this bill ſhould be renewed for a few months: it would be recollected, that if not renewed, no American ſhip could enter our harbours after one month expires. He was anxious, therefore, to hold out moderation and conciliation to the laſt extremity, and if we erred at all, he wiſhed it ſhould be on the ſide of moderation.

The bill went through the committee.

HOUSE of LORDS, Feb. 4.

America.—Lord Grenville obſerved, that he had read and heard with regret, that the Preſident of the United States of America had refuſed to ratify the Treaty concluded by the commiſſioners appointed by both countries, for the purpoſe of carrying that beneficial object into execution. He ſhould regret a rupture with America the more, becauſe it muſt neceſſarily give an incentive to the French intereſt, which he had no doubt would ſoon lead to the overthrow of the conſtitution and independence of America. Before, however, we arrived at the extremity of an open rupture with America, he hoped every exertion would be made to adjuſt our differences in a manner conſiſtent with the honour, the dignity, and independence of both nations.

Lord Hawkeſbury would content himſelf with ſtating, for the ſatisfaction of their lordſhips, that whenever diſcuſſion ſhould take place, it would appear that every thing had been done by his majeſty's government to produce a reconciliation, conſiſtent with the feelings and honor of both countries.

Lord Erſkine wiſhed to know whether the United States were made acquainted with our Orders in Council, at the time they had ordered their embargo? Lord Hawkeſbury replied that they were not. Lord Holland moved, that there be laid before the Houſe a copy of the French Decree of the 21ſt November, 1806; and a copy of ſuch information as miniſters had received from neutrals and friendly powers, of the mode in which that decree had been executed.

Earl Grey gave notice that he ſhould move on ſome future day, for all ſuch documents as related to the attack on Conſtantinople, in order to exhibit to this country, and to the world, the groſs miſrepreſentations which had gone abroad.—Adjourned.

LONDON, January 23.

The court martial on General Whitelocke will certainly ſit for the trial of that officer, at the Royal Hoſpital at Cheſſea, on Thurſday next, the 28th inſt.

The two regiments which it was ſaid had ſailed from Madeira for the Weſt Indies, are ſaid to be gone to take poſſeſſion of Port Praya, in the iſland of St. Jago, one of the Cape de Verd iſlands.

There are four charges againſt Gen. Whitelocke.

"1. The firſt for having ſummoned the civil, as well as the military authorities of Buenos Ayres to ſurrender, by which the minds of the people were unneceſſarily alienated from our cauſe.

"II. For want of military judgment, and of delay in the manner of advancing to the place.

"III. For want of military judgment in the diviſion of his army into columns, and ordering them to march into the place without loaded guns—without communication—and without receiving inſtructions, &c. And

"IV. For having, in a ſhameful manner, given up Monte Video, when it was capable of being defended. January 28.

This morning the trial of general Whitelocke before a court martial conſiſting of 21 members, commenced at Cheſſea College. General Sir W. Meadows is preſident, and general Moore the junior officer at the lower end of the table, who will of courſe be firſt called upon for his opinion.

The following are the names of the officers compoſing the court martial.

Sir W. Meadows, Preſident.
Generals Garth, Nugent, Hunt, Lake, Monſon, Moore, Nugent, Hune, Dundas, Pigott, Churchill, de Cuyler, Oglivy, Fox, Sir E. Duffe, Harris, Manners, Welford, Garth, Stavely, Sir C. Rofs.

NEW YORK, March 30.

Extract of a letter from an American Captain at Algeſiras.

After a tedious paſſage, I arrived here on the 17 th of January, as a prize to the Spaniards, under a late decree iſſued at Madrid ſubjecting all property to confiſcation, when the veſſel containing it had been examined by the Britiſh. If they ſhould act on this decree, it will amount to a declaration of war on their part. I am in hopes a few days will determine the buſineſs. There are a number of veſſels here in the ſame predicament with myſelf.

The Editors of the Waſhington Expreſs write to us under date of Saturday, that the poſt-maſter, had juſt received a way bill from Fort Stevens, ſtating that 30 ſail of veſſels, ſuppoſed to be Engliſh, had appeared off Penſacola.

April 1.

A gentleman, who arrived this morning, from the Northern part of this State, informs that the people in that quarter, and in the Northern part of Vermont, have determined not to ſubmit to the laſt ſupplement to the embargo. He ſtates that they take their produce to market, in companies of from twenty to thirty, and have reſolved not to yield to any officers who may attempt to check their progreſs.

A letter has been received from Albany, announcing, that a bill, for the ſuſpenſion of all payments during the continuance of the embargo, is now before the Aſſembly of this State. For the honor of the ſtate, and and the welfare of the community, it is hoped to paſs a meaſure will not be adopted. Let the Legiſlature petition Congreſs, in language which cannot fail to be heard, to repeal the embargo, and relieve us from our preſent diſtreſſing ſituation. But, let them not add tenfold miſery to the accumulated evils under which the people are already doomed to ſtruggle.

A terrible maſſacree of the Indian tribes in the Miſſouri, took place in January laſt. Six Sacs and Foxes were the victims; the Otton, Mahas, and Sieux, the perpetrators of the murders. Men, women and children were nearly all deſtroyed; a few of the chiefs escaped, and have taken refuge at St. Louis.

April 2.

A britiſh 50 gun ſhip and a frigate went into Hapton roads with diſpatches, laſt Sunday morning—Bal. pap.

We underſtand upon reſpectable authority that ſuch is the diſtreſs produced in the Floridas, by our embargo, that a perſon high in office there, has proceeded to New-Orleans and has had a conference with Gen. Claiborne. He has demanded in a tone of menace permiſſion to obtain a ſupply of proviſions from the Miſſiſippi. The Governor not being authoriſed to grant it, it is apprehended ſome violent meaſures will be reſorted to. Diſpatches to this effect have been received at Waſhington. Porto Rico and Cuba are in a ſtate of great diſtreſs.—Phil. Gaz.

A report prevailed yeſterday, (ſays the Waſhington Federaliſt of Wednesday laſt) that the Rocheſter Squadron had ...

East Florida, where they have debarked five thousand troops.

April 4.

By yesterday's Mail, we received a letter, dated 30th of March from a diſtinguiſhed but extremely cautious member of our national legiſlature, from which we extract the following highly intereſting paragraph:—

"The confidential meſſage, which was yeſterday received from the Preſident, was accompanied by diſpatches from both France and England. They are of a nature to excite the deepeſt intereſt as regards the future deſtinies of this country; but I am not, at preſent, at liberty to communicate them."

The Britiſh frigate Statira, with Mr. Rose on board, left Hampton Roads for England on Monday laſt.

Communication from Waſhington to the Editor of the United States Gazette.

Thurſday, March 31.

The particulars of the Preſident's confidential meſſage delivered yeſterday have not tranſpired; but it is well aſcertained that they involve the liberties and independence of the United States. Buonaparte has, it is ſaid, inſiſted that we ſhould take ſides and declare for either England or France; or he has required an interdiction of trade between us and England: or made ſome other inſulting and humiliating demand. It is rumoured that certain democratic members are reſolved on giving publicity to the meſſage let the conſequences be to them perſonally, whatever they may. They declare that there is no poſſible reaſon for concealment, and the beſt and ſtrongeſt reaſon for publiſhing the whole.

Died lately at Bermuda, the Honorable HENRY TUCKER, Preſident and Treaſurer of that Colony.

The York Gazette.

YORK, APRIL 30, 1808.

Through the medium of the American newſpapers, we are furniſhed with copies of the correſpondence between Mr. Roſe, and Mr. Madiſon, the American ſecretary of ſtate, their great length prevents our publiſhing them. It muſt be painful to the well wiſhers of both countries, that the negociation has terminated abortively. The Preſident's interdictory proclamation, was as a preliminary on our part, required to be annulled, which being refuſed on theirs, and the diplomatic powers of our envoy being ſpecifically bound ed by the continuation or retraction of that offenſive meaſure, he has returned to England without effecting the full purpoſes of his miſſion. The Embargo (that political hydra ſo pregnant with national evil and individual diſtreſs) is continued with unrelaxed and extended operation, and its baneful effects, deform in practice, all the promiſed beauties of its theory. We ſhould not be ſurpriſed if to remonſtrances upon its impolicy, and petitions for its repeal, open reſiſtance to its longer exiſtence ſhould ſucceed.

His Majeſty's Speech (publiſhed in our laſt) breathes equal energy and juſtice, and whilſt each diſtinct part of his extenſive and happy dominions, flouriſhes under his mild and beneficent government, every part participates his paternal care and ſolicitude. Our infant Province, although remote, avowedly burthenſome, and heretofore conſidered of minor import, is not unnoticed, and a reſpectable military force is aſſigned for our protection; advice of their arrival is daily expected. We moſt feelingly deprecate a rupture with the American government; but let that government ſeriouſly reflect whether a doubtful conteſt on their northern frontier would compenſate the inevitable annihilation of their commerce, the deſtruction of their faireſt ſea-ports, and ultimately, the exiſtence of their independence, (in which opinion we are juſtified by the apprehenſions of their moſt enlightened and patriotic citizens). We cannot think them ſo infatuated!!!

An Act for granting to his Majeſty a certain ſum of Money out of the Funds applicable to the uſes of this Province, to defray the expences of amending and repairing the Public Highways and Roads, laying out and opening new Roads, and building Bridges in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof.

Paſſed 16th March, 1808.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS it would very much advance the general proſperity of this Province if the public highways and roads already laid out in the ſeveral diſtricts thereof, were amended and repaired, and new additional roads were laid out and opened in certain parts of this Province, to which at preſent there is very difficult acceſs, and certain bridges are alſo become indiſpenſably neceſſary, the want of which at preſent much endangers the lives of the King's ſubjects; and whereas the rates heretofore impoſed, and the duty by law required to be performed on the ſaid public highways and roads, are altogether inadequate to the ſeveral purpoſes aforeſaid, and the impoſing additional burthens by levying diſtrict rates ſufficient for the purpoſes aforeſaid, would in the preſent circumſtances of this Province, be inconvenient, and the neceſſary proviſion can only be made out of the ſurplus of certain duties as yet unappropriated; in order therefore to defray the expences of repairing, amending, laying out and opening ſuch highways and roads, and making ſuch bridges as aforeſaid, May it pleaſe your Majeſty that it may be enacted, and be it therefore enacted by the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act paſſed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an Act for making more effectual proviſion for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further proviſion for the Government of the ſaid Province," and by the authority of the ſame, That from and out of the rates and duties already raiſed, levied and collected, or hereafter to be raiſed, levied and collected, to and for the uſes of this Province, there be granted to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, the ſum of Sixteen Hundred Pounds, to be iſſued out of the fund now remaining or hereafter to come into the Receiver General's hands, unappropriated, and ariſing from ſuch rates and duties as laſt aforeſaid, which ſaid ſum of ſixteen hundred pounds ſhall be diſpoſed of, appropriated and applied, in repairing the roads already laid out, and in laying out and opening new roads, and making bridges in the ſeveral diſtricts of this Province.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid ſum of ſixteen hundred pounds ſhall be apportioned in the following manner, to the Eaſtern Diſtrict the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Diſtrict of Johnstown the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Midland Diſtrict the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Diſtrict of Newcaſtle the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Home Diſtrict the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Diſtrict of Niagara the ſum of two hundred pounds, to the Diſtrict of London the ſum of two hundred pounds, and to the Weſtern Diſtrict the ſum of two hundred pounds.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That at any time from and after the paſſing of this Act, it ſhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the Government, to appoint one or more commiſſioner or commiſſioners for each and every diſtrict of this Province, for carrying the proviſions of this Act into execution, which ſaid commiſſioner or commiſſioners ſhall have full power and authority forthwith to proceed to repair and amend, lay out and open, ſuch roads, and repair and build ſuch bridges, in each and every diſtrict of this Province, to which he or they are reſpectively appointed.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That it ſhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the Government of this Province, to direct the money ſo apportioned as aforeſaid, for each and every diſtrict thereof, to be paid to any one of the commiſſioners for ſuch diſtrict or diſtricts, whom it may pleaſe the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the Government, to appoint to receive the ſame. Provided nevertheleſs, and it is hereby declared, that nothing herein contained ſhall repeal or annul, or be held or conſtrued to repeal or annul any of the proviſions in any exiſting act or acts of this Province contained, for raiſing or levying the rates thereby impoſed, or compelling the labour by ſuch acts in any of them required, to be done and performed, on any of the public highways and roads comprized in ſuch act contained, but all and every ſuch act and acts is and are hereby declared to be and continue in full force. Provided alſo, that nothing in any former law or ſtatute of this Province contained, ſhall from and after the paſſing of this act, be held or conſtrued to empower or authorize any magiſtrate or overſeer in any ſuch law or ſtatute mentioned, in any manner to interfere or give any directions touching or concerning any road or highway to be laid out, opened or repaired, under and by virtue of this act; nevertheleſs, the ſaid magiſtrates and overſeers, and every of them, is and are hereby authorized to carry into execution all and every ſuch power and authorities as by ſuch law or ſtatutes they are inveſted with, in all caſes in which the executing ſuch powers will not impede or interfere with the powers or authorities given in and by this act.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That if any action or ſuit ſhall be commenced againſt any perſon or perſons for any thing done or acted in purſuance of this act, then and in every ſuch caſe, ſuch action or ſuit ſhall be commenced or proſecuted within three calendar months after the fact committed, and not afterwards, and the defendant or defendants in any ſuch action or ſuit, ſhall and may plead the general iſſue, and give this act and the ſpecial matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon, and that the ſame was done in purſuance and by the authority of the preſent act, and if the ſame ſhall appear to have been done, or if any ſuch action or ſuit ſhall be brought after the time limited for bringing the ſame, then the jury ſhall find for the defendant or defendants, or if the plaintiff or plaintiffs ſhall become nonſuit or diſcontinue his, her or their action after the defendant or defendants ſhall have appeared, or if judgment on demurrer ſhall be pronounced for the defendant or defendants, the defendant or defendants in all and every the ſeveral caſes aforeſaid, ſhall and may recover treble coſts, and have the like remedy for the recovery thereof, as defendants are in any other caſes by law entitled to.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the monies hereby granted to his Majeſty, ſhall be paid by the Receiver General, in diſcharge of ſuch warrant or warrants as ſhall for the purpoſes herein before ſet forth, be from time to time iſſued by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the Government of this Province, and not otherwiſe, and the ſaid Receiver General ſhall account to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, for the ſame, through the Lords Commiſſioners of his Majeſty's Treaſury for the time being, in ſuch manner and form as his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to direct.

An Act to explain, amend, and reduce to one Act of Parliament, the ſeveral Laws now in being for the Raiſing and Training the Militia of this Province.

[Paſſed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS a well regulated Militia is of the utmoſt importance to the defence of this Province; and whereas the laws now in force for the training and regulating thereof, are in ſome reſpects defective; Be it therefore enacted by the King's Moſt Excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act paſſed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, intituled, "an Act for making more effectual proviſion for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further proviſion for the government of the ſaid Province," and by the authority of the ſame; That from and after the paſſing of this Act, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the government of this Province, ſhall and may from time to time, conſtitute and appoint, under his hand and ſeal, a ſufficient number of colonels, lieutenant colonels, majors, and other officers, to train, diſcipline, and command the militia of this Province, according to the rules, orders, and directions hereinafter mentioned, and the officers ſo appointed for the militia, ſhall rank with the officers of ſuch of his Majeſty's forces, as may for the time being, ſerve within this Province, as youngeſt of their reſpective rank, which ſaid officers reſpectively, ſhall within ſix months after their ſeveral appointments, take the oath of allegiance to his preſent Majeſty, his heirs and ſucceſſors, before the magiſtrates aſſembled in quarter ſeſſions, within the diſtrict to which ſuch officers reſpectively belong.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That it ſhall and may be lawful for the colonel or officer commanding any regiment or battalion of militia, and he is hereby required, to ſpecify to each captain of a company of his regiment or battalion, the limits from within which the militia men of ſuch captains company ſhall be enrolled.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That every male inhabitant from ſixteen years of age to ſixty, ſhall be deemed capable of bearing arms, and ſhall enroll his name as a militia man on the firſt training day on which the ſaid companies ſhall be drawn out, in the diviſion or limit in which his place of abode may be, and ſhall at ſuch meeting give in his name, his age, and place of reſidence, and if he has thereto but lately removed, he ſhall make the ſame known, together with the place from whence he removed, and each and every ſuch inhabitant, who ſhall not attend and give in his name to the captain or officer commanding the company for ſuch diviſion or limit, ſo that his name may be enrolled as a militia man, ſhall for ſuch neglect forfeit and pay the ſum of ten ſhillings, to be recovered and applied in manner hereinafter mentioned. Provided nevertheleſs, that no inhabitant ſhall be convicted of the offence herein deſcribed, unleſs it is proved at the time of trial, that the ſaid inhabitant had been notified, either perſonally, or by leaving a verbal notice at his uſual place of abode, of the time of meeting, at leaſt ſix days previous thereto. Provided always, that no perſon above the age of fifty years, ſhall be called upon to bear arms, except on the day of annual meeting, or in time of war or emergency.

IV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the neglect of any perſon ſo to preſent himſelf for enrollment and exerciſe, ſhall not be conſtrued to prevent the captain or officer commanding the company of militia of the limits wherein the place of reſidence of any ſuch perſon may be, from entering the name of ſuch perſon, and ſuch captain or officer commanding ſuch company as aforeſaid, is hereby required to enter the name of every ſuch perſon, as ſhall come to his knowledge, upon the enrollment of his company, and when ſo entered, every ſuch perſon ſhall be ſubject to perform all and every the like militia duties, and under the ſame penalties, as if he had perſonally preſented himſelf for enrollment. Provided alſo, that if any difference ſhall ariſe between any captain or officer and any militia man, touching the age of ſuch militia man, it ſhall be incumbent on the ſaid militia man to prove his age.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the colonel or officer commanding each regiment or battalion, ſhall on the fourth day of June, in each and every year reſpectively, or in caſe it ſhall happen on a Sunday, then on the next day, and oftener, if he thinks it neceſſary, call out the militia of ſuch regiment or battalion, to be reviewed and exerciſed, and in his abſence from the county, or in caſe of his removal or death, the ſaid militia ſhall be called out by the next ſenior officer of ſuch regiment or battalion, and every perſon liable to ſerve in ſuch militia, whether officer or private, neglecting or refuſing to attend, (except in caſe of ſickneſs or having obtained leave of abſence) ſhall forfeit and pay, if an officer, forty ſhillings, and if a non-commiſſioned officer or private, ten ſhillings; but if it ſhall appear to the colonel,

SIR,

WE the underſigned Freeholders of the County of Simcoe and the Eaſt Riding of the County of York, having taken into conſideration the nomination of a proper perſon to repreſent us at the enſuing General Election; from our knowledge of your principles and abilities, we have looked up to you, and have to requeſt your permiſſion to hold you up, confident from your profeſſions on a former occaſion, you will uſe your beſt exertions for the intereſt of your conſtituents and the general benefit of the Province, and when we know your determination, we ſhall uſe every fair and honorable means to promote your Election.

We are Sir,

With reſpect,

Your obedient ſervants,

To Lieut. Colonel William Graham, Captain John Wilſon, Parſhal Terry, Eſquire, Mr. John Lyon, and the numerous and reſpectable Freeholders of the Eaſt Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe, who ſigned the foregoing requiſition.

GENTLEMEN,

TO be thus called upon by ſo reſpectable a portion of the Electors of this Diſtrict, to fill a ſituation which the moſt eminent characters in the Province have been ambitious to attain, muſt be truly grateful to any man not devoid of ſenſibility, and would be ungenerous in me and a dereliction of my former profeſſions, to heſitate; I therefore cheerfully accept your offer of holding me up as a Candidate at the enſuing Election, and of ſupporting me by every fair and honorable means—by no other means would I wiſh to obtain the diſtinguiſhed honor; and ſhall conſider the perſon, who through too ardent zeal, may exerciſe any artifice or undue influence of any kind, to promote my election, as no friend of mine, or yours, or of the Freedom of Election, to maintain which you have ſo nobly volunteered. I neither have ſolicited nor ſhall I ſolicit a ſingle vote, therefore hope no freeholder will be offended at my not perſonally calling upon him. You have begun the work, and the completion of it will be more honorable to you, and flattering to me.

I will not attempt to amuſe you with the hypocritical profeſſions of which electioneering addreſſes are moſtly compoſed, or to deceive you with promiſes impoſſible to be performed; but with that truth and ſimplicity which no ſophiſtry can miſconſtrue. I aſſure you, if I have the honor of being your Repreſentative, of exerting my beſt and unceaſing endeavours to promote the general intereſts of the Province, and to protect the civil and religious rights of my conſtituents of every denomination.

I am Gentlemen,

With gratitude and reſpect,

Your obliged

Humble Servant,

THOMAS B. GOUGH.

or officer commanding such regiment or battalion, to be more conducive to the interest and convenience of such regiment or battalion, that the militia of the same be reviewed at different times, and in separate bodies, it shall and may be lawful for the colonel or officer commanding such regiment or battalion, to call out a part of the militia at some convenient time and place, and the remaining part at some other convenient time and place, as to him shall seem meet, and at every such review, the captain or officer commanding each company, shall give to the colonel, or in his absence, to the next senior officer, fair written rolls of their respective companies, and the colonels or other commanding officers, shall transmit returns to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perfon adminiftering the government, within fourteen days after the fourth day of June, in each and every year, under the penalty of five pounds for each captain or other officer commanding a company, and for each colonel or officer commanding a regiment or battalion, ten pounds, for each neglect or refufal.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, That it fhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perfon adminiftering the government, to appoint a proper perfon to be adjutant general of the faid militia, who fhall do all matters and things appertaining to the faid office of adjutant general.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, That the captains of the militia fhall draw out their refpective companies not lefs than twice or more than four times in every year, (giving fix days notice thereof) at the moft convenient time and place in the county or riding, and fhall infpect their arms, and inftruct them in their duties, and every perfon, after fuch notice as aforefaid, who fhall neglect to attend, or fhall difobey, (whether fubaltern officer or private,) (except in cafe of ficknefs or leave of abfence) fhall forfeit and pay, every officer the fum of forty fhillings, and every non commiffioned officer or private, the fum of ten fhillings, for every fuch neglect or difobedience.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, That in time of war, rebellion, or any other preffing exigency, it fhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perfon adminiftering the government, to call forth any of the different companies of the militia, and to march them from their refpective counties or ridings, towns, townfhips, or parifhes, to any part of this Province, there to ferve in conjunction with the other militia, or with his Majefty's forces, and any perfon refufing to obey fuch order or command, or abfconding from or neglecting to repair to the place he is ordered to, being a commiffioned officer, fhall forfeit and pay the fum of fifty pounds, and be held to be unfit to ferve his Majefty as an officer in any military capacity, and being a non commiffioned officer or private, fhall forfeit and pay the fum of twenty pounds, and in default of payment for fuch refufal or neglect, fuch officer, non-commiffioned officer, or private, fhall be committed to the common gaol of the diftrict, for any time not lefs than fix nor more than twelve calendar months, except fuch perfon fhall fatisfy the colonel or officer commanding fuch regiment or battalion to which he belongs, that fuch refufal or neglect arofe from ficknefs, or that he was abfent upon leave. Provided always, that no part of the militia called forth in the manner aforefaid, fhall be obliged to continue in actual fervice for more than fix months at one time, and no militia man fhall be fo called out who fhall be above the age of fifty years, unlefs that the whole of the militia of any diftrict or battalion to which he may belong, fhall be called out and embodied. Provided alfo, that it fhall not be lawful to order the militia, or any part thereof, to march out of this Province, except for the affiftance of the Province of Lower Canada, (when the fame fhall be actually invaded or in a ftate of infurrection) or except in purfuit of an enemy who may have invaded this Province, and except alfo for the deftruction of any veffel or veffels built or building, or any depot or magazine, formed or forming, or for the attack of any enemy who may be embodying or marching for the purpofe of invading this Province, or for the attack of any fortification now erected, or which may be hereafter erected, to cover the invafion thereof.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, That it fhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perfon adminiftering the government, to call out detachments of the militia, and to limit and fix the number of men to be called out on fuch detachments, and in cafes of emergency, by actual invafion or otherwife, when it may not be practicable to confult the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perfon adminiftering the government of this Province, it fhall and may be lawful for the fenior colonel, or in his abfence the lieutenant colonel of the feveral regiments or battalions, to limit and appoint the number of men that he fhall judge neceffary to be called out, and for that purpofe to iffue his orders to the feveral commanding officers, and alfo to direct and authorize any officer, having firft obtained a warrant for fuch purpofe from one of his Majefty's juftices of the peace, to impreis fuch carriages and horfes as the fervice may require, for the ufe of which the owner or owners thereof fhall be intitled to receive the fum of feven fhillings and fix pence per day, for every cart or carriage with two horfes or oxen, during fuch time as the fame fhall be employed or detained on public fervice. Provided always, that whenever it fhall happen that only part of the militia of this Province fhall be called out for actual fervice, it fhall and may be lawful for any perfon, being of the militia of the county or riding that may be fo called out, to provide and fend an able bodied man to ferve in the faid militia in his ftead, and fuch able bodied man fhall be taken and received as a proper fubftitute for fuch perfon living in the county or riding, that would otherwife be obliged to ferve in the faid part of the militia called out as aforefaid.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, That in the feveral counties and ridings, where the number of men is fufficient, the militia fhall be formed into regiments, confifting of not more than ten, nor lefs than eight companies, which companies fhall confift of not more than fifty, nor lefs than twenty private men, and the field officers of fuch regiments fhall be as follows, that is to fay, one colonel, one lieutenant colonel, and one major, and where the number of companies fhall be greater than eight, and not lefs than five, fuch militia fhall be formed into a battalion, and the field officers of fuch battalion fhall be one lieutenant colonel and one major, only, and in each regiment or battalion of militia, there fhall be one captain, one lieutenant, and one enfign, to each company.

To the Free and Independent Electors of the Eaft Riding of the County of York, and the County of Simcoe.

Gentlemen,

As the period will fhortly arrive when the diffolution of the prefent Parliament will of courfe take place, agreeable to the Conftitution, I take the liberty to offer myfelf as a Candidate, not in the common ftile of electioneering.

I think it is incumbent for every one who intends to have himfelf put in nomination to reprefent fo refpectable a body, that they fhould know fomething of his creed.

I am a Britifh born fubject, I have lived under the Government, I have read that great and wonderful production, the Conftitution, and admire it. Its origin is from Scripture in Gothic ages, and after the conqueft by William the Norman, it was improved, and has been by great and able ftatefmen, preferved and fupported by wholefome laws. The three eftates, or regal power, when united, are like three pillars let apart at the bottom, and all joined at the top, the one fupports the other.

I come now, Gentlemen, to the arduous part of my Addreis. For a Man to fay a y thing in favor of his own character, afuredly it muft touch his feelings! I muft obferve, I have not, like your late honorable Member, been foliciied to accept of the honorable office to repreient you.

You will naturally fay, why did you not vote and fupport his Election? My anfwer is the fame I gave on that occafion, "that I did not think it proper that a judge fhould be one of the members to make laws which he himfelf might one day fit to decide upon."

It was from principle, not party fpirit; I will fay it, that no man or fet of men, upon Earth fhould ever bias my mind contrary to my conficience.

Perhaps it may be faid I am put in nomination by fome party, to anfwer fome purpofe? I declare that I never conftulted with a fingle individual on the fubject, nor do I know at this moment I fhall have one to propofe me at the day of Election; however, if I fhould chance to be the object of your choice, I will endeavor to act as conftinent with the fentiments of my Conftituents, as fhall appear to be for the good of the Province at large, and particularly matters that concern the Home Diftrict.

Gentlemen Electors, I have no ambitious views at my time of life; I am untried as a politician; but be aflured it is nothing but public good which has prompted me to offer my fervice; if I fee the majority of the Electors appears to be in favor of any other Candidate, I fhall not attempt to ftand a conteited Election.

Thefe are my fentiments without any mafk. I might here add that having a defire to leave off the active part of my bufinefs, was the only motive that induced me thus to make my intentions public.

I am with due refpect,
Gentlemen,
Your devoted
Humble Servant,
R. HENDERSON.

FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant Governor

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith &c.

To our beloved and faithful Legiflative Counfellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeffes of our faid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, on the Twenty fecond Day of April to be commenced, held, called, and elected, and to every of you——GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Prorogation bearing date the Sixteenth day of March laft, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Twenty fecond day of this prefent month of April, at which time in our Town of York, you were held and conftrained to appear, But we taking into our Royal confideration the eafe and convenience of our loving fubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforefaid, hereby convoking, and by thefe prefents enjoining you and each of you, that on the Thirty-firft Day of May, next enfuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into confideration the ftate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and there to do as may feem neceffary. Herein fail not.

IN Teftimony whereof, WE have caufed thefe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our faid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witnefs our truftly and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eiquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our faid Province at York, this Eleventh Day of April, in the year of our Lord one thoufand eight hundred and feven, and in the forty eighth year of our Reign.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

London, February 3.

Laft night we received the Paris papers to the 26th ult. and this morning fome more papers to the fame date. They are extremely intereiting, particularly thofe which we receive this morning They contain the reports of the minifter for Foreign Affairs upon the motives that induced France to make war againft Portugal—of the minifters of war relative to the meafures neceffary to be adopted at the prefent crifis—and of the government to the fenate upon the neceffity of calling out the conicription of 1809. The motives for the laft meafure are ftated to be to carry war into the heart of England, Ireland or our Indian poffeffions. "So far from diminifhing the military force of France, it ought," fays the miniiters of war," to be increafed till England fhall have recognized the independence of all powers, and reftored to the feas the repofe which France has given to the Continent No reft till the fea fhall be rendered free." In the Reports upon Portugal, the minifter of Foreign Affairs fuppofe we meditate an attack upon Cadiz and Ceuta. Spain entertains fuch apprehenfions.

The kingdom of Naples is reprefented to be in a dreadful ftate of anarchy.—Aflaffinations multiply;—the public tribunals are crouded daily with the trailes of political offenders;—accufation is fure to be followed by conviction; and decapitation and death go hand in hand.

Another expedition is rumored to be in a ftate of great forwardneis.

The Britifh parliament has voted 100,000 feamen, and 30,000 marines for the feivice of the year 1808, and twelve millions fterling, for the navy eftablifhment.

Ruffia has declared war againft Sweden, in confequence of her refufal to join the confederacy againft England; the declaration was iffued 28th Jan.—Some accounts ftate, that a Ruffian army of 35,000 men, had entered Swedifh Finland.—The Ruffian and Dutch Miniiters had left Stockholm. A treaty of alliance offenfive and defenfive is ftid to be concluded by Great Britain with Sweden. The latter to place Malthand in the hands of the Englifh. The Britifh to furnifh fhips of the line, troops, and a fubfidy. Every man in Sweden capable of bearing arms between the age of 16, and 60, is to be called into fervice.

In the Houfe of Commons, 2nd February on the fecond reading of the bill brought in for carrying into effect the orders in council the difcuffion as to the propriety of the meafures of adminiftration was renewed.—The Miniftry, on diviiion, had a majority of 220.

Another fecret expedition of 15,000 men was on the eve of failing from England, under the command of Gen. Stuart.

A London paper of the 22nd Feb. announces the death of Gen. Lord Lake.

General Spencer's expedition.—This expedition, which was put back by contrary winds, failed again from Falmouth on Sunday. The number of troops embarked, amounts to about 12,000, amongft which are the 19th, 32d, 50th, 52d, 61ft, and 82d, Regiments of Foot, and two battalions of the German Legion. At Falmouth it is generally believed they are deftined for the Mediterranean.

Capt. Hammond arrived at Boiton from Liverpool on the 7th. April, saw a veffel on fire, March 5, in lat. 47, 7. long. 28, 11.

This muft be one more American victim to French conflagrating friendihip and amity. [This is a feature of Bonaparte's new fyftem of reftoring the liberty of the Sea's, and muft be peculiarly pleafing to American underwriters, and gratifying to the worthy admirers of French ethics, and their virtuous emperor.]

BOSTON, March 14.

Capt Kitts, of the fchooner julien, arrived at Philadelphia from Lifbon which he left on the 25 of january informs, that if was very currently reported, at his departure, that a French army, confiiting of THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN, had entered Spain, on their way to befieg Gibraltar; which, it was added, was to be conducted by Bonaparte in perfon.

Capt. K. further informs, that the French ftill continued in Lisbon, which was held by them as a conquered city: that Sir Sidney Smith was off the harbour, keeping a ftarp look-out for the Ruffian fquadron then in port, befides ftrictly blockading the place; that an embargo was laid, and continued in force when capt. K. departed—however paffports could be occafionally obtained, from Gen. junot.

BOSTON, April 5.

French Democratizing Decree.

We learn, that the fhip Grace, Capt. Lincee, from this port for Leghorn, was captured in fight of that French port and carried into Porto Ferrajo. She had neither been to a Britifh place, nor had been vifited by a Britifh cruizer. But two of her crew, with a view to obtain the great reward promifed in a recent decree to feamen, who would give information againft their veffels, have told that the had been boarded from an Englifh fhip; and the veffel is thus fubjected to condemnation, and the Captain and mate to imprifonment and fine. vive la republique.

NEW YORK, April 12.

Congrefs. We underftand Congrefs intend to clofe the prefent Seffion on the 25th of this month. But previous to their rifing we perceive by a refolution introduced into the Houfe, that they mean to clothe the prefident with authority to raife the Embargo, and fufpend the Non-intercourfe law, if he fhould judge it expedient, at any time during the recefs. If they thus leave it optional with Mr. Jefferson to continue or difcontinue the embargo, it would require no Philofopher to predict, that it will not be removed the enfuing fummer. His own papers have told us that it will not be removed till it has effectually aided Bonaparte to reftore the liberty of the feas: an operation which, we can fcarcely expect to fee accomplifhed in the prefent year of our Lord.

From Spain. French troops of the confeription of 1809, were to occupy all the Seacoaft of Spain; and to be fupported at the expence of that power. The whole number of thefe troops already entered Spain, and Portugal, amounts to 80,000; the greater part of which were at Salamanca, and found Madrid. A great part of the Spanifh troops had been fent into Portugal.

The Prince of peace was ftill in power, it is not true, as reported, that the Prince of Aftarias had been appointed Generaliffimo of the French and Spanifh armies. Neither is it true that they were going to befiege Gibraltar.

"Bonaparte had laid Portugal under a contribution of 20,000,000 dollars, which enormous fum he ingeniously propofed they fhould raife by robbing the churches of the whole of the plate and two thirds of their revenues.

Parting, to death we may compare,
For fure to thofe who love fincere,
So dreadful is the wan:
Such doubts, fuch fears round the mind,
BUT THEN when adverie fate proves kind,
How fweet is meet again.

To thofe tried hearts, and thofe alone
That have the pangs of abfence known,
This blifsful charge is giv'n;
For who, oh! who would not endure
The pangs of death, if they were fure
To take the joys of Heav'n.

NOTICE.

THE fubfcriber being duly appointed adminiftrator to the eftate of the late Benjamin Gilbert, of York, innkeeper, requefts all perfons indebted to the faid eftate forthwith to pay their accounts, and all perfons having claims thereupon are required to prefent them properly authenticated within three months.

THOS. HAMILTON.

York, 15th April.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That to every regiment or battalion of militia, there shall be in addition to the officers already mentioned, one adjutant and one quarter-master, and that every field officer commanding a regiment or battalion shall fix the number of sergeants who shall serve in each company in his regiment or battalion, and the captains of the said companies shall respectively nominate the sergeants thus fixed, and make a return of their names to the field officer commanding such regiment or battalion, who is hereby authorized to approve or disapprove of such nomination.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in the several counties and ridings, where the militia men are not in number sufficient to form a regiment or battalion, according to the intent and meaning of this act, the militia of such counties or ridings shall be formed into independent companies, each company to consist of not more than fifty, nor less than twenty private men with one captain, one lieutenant and one ensign to each company, and that the Governor Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government may, when he shall think proper, join together any number of such independent companies, and form a battalion or battalions, or may incorporate them with any other regiment or battalion of militia, provided the number of companies in any such regiment or battalion be not thereby made to exceed the number of companies of which a regiment, or battalion of militia is herein before directed to consist.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every non commissioned officer or private, who shall refuse to obey the lawful orders of his superior officer or officers when employed on militia duty, or who shall quarrel with, or insult by abusive words or otherwise, any officer or non commissioned officer, being in the execution of his duty, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum of money not exceeding five pounds, nor less than ten shillings current money of this Province, at the discretion of the justice or justices imposing such fine, and according to the nature of the offence.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person who now is enrolled in any regiment, battalion or independent company of militia, shall, within six months after the passing of this act, and every person who shall hereafter be enrolled of any regiment, battalion or independent company of militia, shall within six months after such enrolment, provide himself with a good and sufficient musket, fusil, rifle or gun, with at least six rounds of powder and ball, and shall come provided with the same at each & every time when he shall be called out either for the purpose of review, exercise or actual service, and if any person so enrolled, shall neglect or refuse to provide himself, or to come so provided, as in the case of review or exercise, he shall for each offence, be liable to a penalty of five shillings, and in the case of actual service, to a penalty of forty shillings, to be levied in manner hereinafter mentioned: Provided always, that when and so often as any militia man shall make it appear to his captain or officer commanding the company, that he has not been able to procure such musket, fusil, rifle or gun, it shall and may be lawful for such captain or officer commanding such company, to admit of such excuse, and to certify the same in writing accordingly, in which case such militia man shall not be liable to pay the said fine of five shillings in case of review or exercise, and forty shillings in case of actual service.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person who shall sell or barter any part of the arms or equipments which may be delivered to him out of his Majesty's stores, or who shall destroy the same, and every person who shall buy, or by barter obtain such arms or equipments, shall severally and respectively forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds for every offence on conviction thereof by the oath of any one credible witness, before two justices of the peace, residing within the county where the same has been committed, and in case the person or persons so selling any part of his or their arms or equipments as aforesaid, or the person or persons obtaining the same in manner aforesaid, being thereof convicted as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to pay the said sum of five pounds, it shall and may be lawful for the said justices, by a warrant under their hands and seals, to commit such person or persons to the gaol of the county or district where the offence shall be committed, for any space of time not exceeding two months: Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the said justices to discharge the person or persons so offending, any time before the expiration of the said two months, when the person or persons so convicted as aforesaid, shall tender to the said justices the penalty inflicted by this act.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That at all times when the militia may be called out and embodied for actual service, the officers, non-commissioned officers and private men of the several regiments, battalions and independent companies of militia shall, from the time of their being drawn out and embodied as aforesaid, and until they shall return to their respective towns, townships, parishes or places of abode, remain under the command of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government, or other officer having the command of them, and shall be liable to punishment for mutiny and desertion as herein after mentioned, that is to say, that every officer, non-commissioned officer, or militia man who shall presume to use traitorous or disrespectful words against his Majesty's Royal Person, or disrespectful words against the Royal family, if a commissioned officer, shall upon conviction thereof before a general court martial, as herein after is directed to be established, be cashiered, if a non-commissioned officer or private, he shall suffer such punishment as by the sentence of the said court martial shall be awarded.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any officer, non-commissioned officer or militia man who shall behave himself with contempt or disrespect towards the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or the person administering the government for the time being, or shall speak words tending to their hurt or dishonor, shall be punished according to the nature of his offence by the judgment of a general court martial

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any officer, non-commissioned officer or militia man who shall begin, excite, cause or join in any mutiny or sedition in the regiment, detachment, troop or company to which he belongs, or in any other regiment, detachment, troop or company, whether of embodied militia or of his Majesty's regular or provincial forces, in any camp or post, or upon any party, detachment or guard on any pretence whatsoever, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as by a general court martial shall be awarded.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any officer, non-commissioned officer or militia man, who being present at any mutiny or sedition shall not use his utmost endeavors to suppress the same, or coming to the knowledge of any mutiny or intended mutiny, shall not without delay give information thereof to his commanding officer, shall suffer such punishment as by a general court martial shall be awarded.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all officers, non commissioned officers and militia men who shall be convicted of having deserted to the enemy, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as shall be awarded by a general court martial.

XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any non commissioned officer or militia man who shall quit, or otherwise absent himself from his regiment, detachment, troop or company, without a furlough from his commanding officer, or who shall withdraw himself from the regiment, detachment, troop or company into which he has been embodied, in order to attach himself to any other regiment, detachment, troop or company then in service, whether of the militia, or of his Majesty's regular or provincial forces, shall upon being convicted thereof, be punished according to the nature of his offence, at the discretion of a general court martial, and in case any officer of the militia shall knowingly receive and entertain such non commissioned officer or militia man, or shall not after his being discovered to be a deserter, immediately confine him and give notice to the regiment, detachment, troop or company in which he last served, he the said officer, so offending, shall, on being convicted thereof before a general court martial, be cashiered.

XXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer, non commissioned officer or militia man shall be convicted of having advised or persuaded any other officer or militia man to desert his Majesty's service, he shall suffer such punishment as shall be awarded by a general court martial.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when the militia of this Province shall be called out on actual service, in all cases when a general court martial shall be required, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government, upon complaint and application to him made, through the colonel or officer commanding the body of militia to which the party accused may belong, shall issue his order to the said commanding officer to assemble a general court martial, which said court martial shall consist of a president who shall be a field officer, and twelve other commissioned officers of the militia; Provided always, that in all trials by general courts martial to be held by virtue of this act, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government shall nominate and appoint the person who shall act as a judge advocate, and that every member of the said court martial, before any proceedings be had before that court, shall take the following oath before the said judge advocate, who is hereby authorized to administer the same, viz. You A. B do swear that you will administer justice to the best of your understanding in the matter now before you, according to the evidence and the militia laws now in force in this Province, without partiality favour or affection; and you further swear, that you will not divulge the sentence of the court until it shall be approved by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government, neither will you upon any account, at any time whatever disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court martial, unless required to give evidence thereof as a witness, by a court of justice in a due course of law—So help you God. And to soon as the said oath shall have been administered to the respective members, the president of the Court is hereby authorized and required to administer to the judge advocate, or the person officiating as such, an oath in the following words: You A. B. do swear, that you will not, upon any account, at any time whatsoever, disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court martial, unless required to give evidence thereof as a witness, by a court of justice, in a due course of law—So help you God. And the said judge advocate shall, and he is hereby authorized to administer to every person giving evidence before the said court, the following oath: The evidence you shall give to this court martial, on the trial of A. B. shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth—So help you God. Provided always, that the judgment of every such court martial shall pass with the concurrence of two thirds of the members, and shall not be put in execution, until the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government has approved thereof. Provided always, that no officer, serving in any of his Majesty's other forces shall sit in any court martial upon the trial of any officer or private man serving in the militia.

XXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That during the time in which the said militia shall be embodied for actual service, they and every of them, as well officers as privates, shall be liable and subject to all and every the provisions, regulations, matters and things in this act contained, respecting the said militia, and also in cases to which the provisions of this act do not extend to all the rules, regulations, pains and penalties of any act or acts of the British Parliament that are or may be in force for the punishment of mutiny and desertion not contrary to this act; Provided nevertheless, that no sentence of any court martial so to be constituted and established under and by virtue of this act, shall extend to the loss of life or limb, unless for desertion, mutiny and sedition, traitorous correspondence, or for traitorously delivering up to the enemy any garrison, fortress, post or guard, any thing herein contained, or any statute, law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding. Provided always, that in no case whatsoever, shall any non commissioned officer, or private man, for any offence by him committed, be subjected to the punishment of being whipped by the sentence of any court martial whatsoever.

XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where a militia officer not on actual service, shall be guilty of improper conduct, or do any thing unbecoming his character as such officer not otherwise provided for in this act, the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government, upon complaint and application made to him through the colonel or other field officer of militia commanding the respective regiment or battalion to which the said officer against whom the complaint is made may belong, or in case the said colonel or other field officer is the party accused, to the next in command, to issue his order to assemble a court of enquiry, which court shall consist of one field officer in rank superior to the officer accused, who shall be president thereof, together with not less than four other commissioned officers, and such court of enquiry shall examine witnesses, and take every necessary step to investigate the matter alledged in the complaint against the said militia officer, and report the evidence in that behalf brought before them, to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government, for his decision thereon.

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That except in time of actual service, the judges of the court of king's bench and clergy, the members of the legislative and executive councils, and their respective officers, the members of the house of assembly for the time being, and the officers thereto belonging, his Majesty's attorney general, solicitor general, the secretary of the Province, and all other civil officers who shall have been or hereafter may be appointed to any civil office in this Province, under the great seal of the same, as well as all magistrates, sheriffs, coroners, half-pay officers, militia officers having served by virtue of any militia commission in any part of his Majesty's dominions, (who may not have obtained leave to resign his commission) the surveyor general and his deputies duly appointed, seafaring men actually employed in the line of their calling, physicians, surgeons, the masters of public schools, ferrymen, and one miller to every grist mill, shall be, and are hereby excused from serving in the said militia Provided always, that this act and the exceptions herein contained, shall not prevent, and it is hereby declared that the same shall not be construed to prevent any or every of the above-mentioned person or persons from holding commissions as officers in the militia in this Province; Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or person administering the government of this Province, by warrant under his hand and seal, to exempt any of the persons herein before enumerated, from being called out on the service aforesaid.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the persons called quakers, menonists and tunkers, who from certain scruples of conscience decline bearing arms, shall not be compelled to serve in the said militia, but every person professing that he is one of the people called quakers, menonists or tunkers, and producing a certificate of his being a quaker, menonist or tunker, signed by the clerk of the meeting of such society or by any three or more of the people called quakers, menonists or tunkers, shall be excused and exempted from serving in the said militia; Provided nevertheless, that every such person or persons that shall or may be of the people called quakers, menonists or tunkers, from the age of sixteen to sixty shall, on or before the first day of December in each and every year, give in his name and place of residence to the treasurer of the district where he or they shall reside, and pay to such treasurer, to and for the public uses of such district, in time of peace, the sum of twenty shillings, and in time of actual invasion or insurrection, or when any part of the militia of that district shall be called out on actual service, the sum of five pounds, and in default of such payment, it shall and may be lawful, on information or complaint on oath made by the said treasurer, before any justice of the peace of such district, for the said justice to issue his warrant, under his hand and seal to levy the same by distress and sale of the offenders goods and chattels, returning so much of the said distress as shall exceed the sum of twenty shillings per annum in time of peace, and five pounds per annum in time of actual invasion or insurrection, or when any part of the militia of that district shall be called out on actual service, deducting therefrom the charges and all other incidental expences of such distress and sale, as well as the expences of summoning such offender before such justice to answer the said information and complaint, and the said sums so levied by the said justice as aforesaid, shall be by him, within the space of two calendar months, paid into the hands of the colonel, or in his absence, the next senior officer of the regiment, battalion or independent company of the division where the offence has been committed, to be applied for the like purposes as the fines, forfeitures and penalties imposed by this act, and for want of such distress, the justice before whom such person shall have been convicted, shall commit him to the common gaol of the district, until he shall pay and satisfy such sum, together with the reasonable charges incident to such conviction: Provided nevertheless, that no person or persons so convicted, shall in any case be detained in custody longer than the space of one calendar month; Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted, that each and every of the persons usually called quakers, menonists and tunkers, that have attained the age of fifty years, shall not be liable to the payment of such sum of twenty shillings for being exempted from serving in the said militia in time of peace, but that in time of war or other emergency, they shall be liable to serve, or to the payment of five pounds for being exempted for every year, until they shall have attained the age of six years

XXVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in time of war, when and so often as occasion may require, it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province to employ the militia of this Province, either upon land or upon the lakes, rivers and communications thereof, in such parties or detachments as by him shall be deemed expedient.

XXIX. And whereas by a certain clause in this Act, it is provided that it shall and may be lawful for the persons therein mentioned, on certain occasions, to call out detachments of the militia; Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the persons to serve on such detachments shall be regularly taken, from time to time, as they shall be required, from a roster or list to regulate the turn of duty, to be first formed by ballot of each and every person in each respective battalion, regiment, or independent company, and that after the same has been formed, when any person shall be enrolled as a militia man in any battalion, regiment, or independent company, the name of such man shall be inserted, and follow the last person in the said roster the initial of whose surname corresponds with the initial of the surname of the man to be inserted, and when any detachment shall be called out for service, the adjutant or officer commanding each regiment, battalion, or independent company, shall give notice to the persons of their turn of duty.

XXX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any detachments are formed and called out for public service, it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province, to divide the same into smaller detachments or parties, and appoint them to serve on board vessels, boats or bateaux, upon any of the lakes, rivers or communications by water of this Province, with great guns or artillery, as well as with small arms, as occasion may require, and shall and may appoint them to be stationary in any of the creeks or harbours of the said lakes, or in any of the rivers of the Province, and also to train and exercise the same to the use of great guns and artillery, as well by land as by water.

XXXI. And whereas it may be convenient to form one or more troop or troops of cavalry; Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province, to form and embody such troop or troops, and to employ the same on such duties as the necessity of the service may require.

XXXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all detachments to be called out and employed as aforesaid, shall and may, if need require, be detained on such service for and during the space of six months at one time, and no longer; provided that every such detachment be relieved by the arrival of a fresh detachment sufficient for the indispensible occasions of the service at such period, for which purpose it shall and may be lawful for the proper officer, one week at least before the expiration of the said period of service, to call together the remaining parts of the regiment, battalion, or independent company, or so many as may be necessary, according to their several turns, to be regulated by the roster as aforesaid, to relieve such detachment.

XXXIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if such detachments cannot be replaced by an equal number of men of the remaining part of such regiment, battalion, or independent company, respectively, then, and in such case, every such detachment to be relieved as aforesaid, shall ballot or draw lots for such a number of men as may be wanting to make the succeeding detachment equal to the detachment to be relieved, and the parties whose names shall be drawn, shall be liable to serve with the said detachment, but in case of a partial relief, they shall be the first to be relieved, either wholly or by ballot, according to the number to be relieved.

XXXIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any person shall have been convicted of any offence against this act, and shall refuse to pay the fine, forfeiture, or penalty imposed on such offender, it shall and may be lawful to and for the justice or justices before whom such person shall have been convicted, to commit such offender to the common gaol of the district, until he shall pay and satisfy such fine, forfeiture, or penalty, together with the reasonable charges attending such conviction; Provided nevertheless, that no person or persons so committed shall in any case be detained in custody longer than the space of one calendar month, except in such cases as are otherwise provided for by this act.

XXXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no persons who have been discharged from his Majesty's service as non commissioned officers shall be obliged to serve in any station in the militia of this Province, inferior to that which they held in his Majesty's service, unless having been non commissioned officers in the said militia, they may have been reduced according to law.

XXXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person enrolled in the militia shall absent or withdraw himself from any place of review or exercise, without having first obtained leave of his commanding officer so to do, under the penalty of forty shillings if a commissioned officer and ten shillings if a non commissioned officer or private.

XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any serjeant of the militia, when thereunto required by his superior and proper officer, shall neglect or refuse to warn the militia men of the company to which he belongs, to appear at the place of enrollment or exercise, he shall for every such neglect or refusal, forfeit and pay the sum of forty shillings.

XXXVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every serjeant of the militia, duly appointed, shall be exempt from serving as constable, for and during such time as he shall hold such appointment as serjeant.

XXXIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person be wounded, or shall be disabled, when employed on actual service, upon an invasion, insurrection or rebellion, he shall be taken care of and attended during the time of such disability, agreeably to his rank.

XL. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any person shall be summoned before two of his Majesty's justices of the peace as aforesaid, for having neglected or refused to do such things as by this act are required of him to be performed, and shall upon the oath of any one credible witness before such justices be duly convicted of such offence, such person shall pay the charges and expences of and incident to such conviction, and that all fines, penalties and forfeitures, by this act imposed, on default of payment, shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, by warrant under the hands and seals of the justices before whom the said offender shall be convicted, rendering the overplus (if any) to the said person whose goods and chattels shall have been so distrained and sold, after deducting therefrom the charges of such distress and sale, and within two months after such conviction and recovery, the sums so recovered shall be transmitted by the justices before whom such information shall have been laid, to the colonel, or in his absence, to the next senior officer of the regiment, battalion, or independent company, and the said colonels and other officers respectively, shall and they are hereby required, out of the several sums of money which they shall receive for fines, forfeitures or penalties, or otherwise, by virtue of this act, to provide for the regiments in their respective counties or ridings, drums, fifes, colours, banners, regimental books, and for the discharge of other incidental expences, and in case any overplus of such monies shall remain in the hands of any such colonel or other officer, after providing such articles as aforesaid, such surplus shall be disposed of in premiums to the persons who shall make the best shot at a target or mark, upon days of training, and in such proportions as at a meeting the colonels or officers commanding regiments, battalions or independent companies shall order and direct, and each colonel, or in his absence the next senior officer of the regiment, battalion or independent company shall render a certified account thereof in detail, to be transmitted to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government, as soon after the thirty-first day of December annually, as practicable.

XLI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no order of conviction made by any justice or justices of the peace by virtue of this act shall be removed by certiorari out of the county, riding, division or place wherein such order or conviction shall have been made, into any court whatsoever, and that no writ of certiorari shall supersede execution or other proceedings upon any such order or conviction so made in pursuance of this act, but that execution and other proceedings shall be had and made thereupon any such writ or writs, or allowance thereof, notwithstanding; Provided always that the fines, forfeitures or penalties, to be levied by virtue of such order or conviction shall not exceed the sum of twenty pounds.

XLII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action shall be brought against any person or persons for any thing done in pursuance of this act, such action or suit shall be commenced within six months next after the fact committed, and not afterwards, and shall be laid in the county, riding or place where the cause of complaint did arise, and not elsewhere, and the defendant or defendants in every such action or suit may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence, at any trial to be had thereupon and if the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants in any such action or suit, or if the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall be nonsuited or discontinue his, her or their action or suit after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, or if upon demurrer, judgement shall be given against the plaintiff or plaintiffs, the defendant or defendants shall have treble costs, and have the like remedy for the same as any defendant hath in other cases to recover costs by law.

XLIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all former acts relating to the raising of the militia within this Province, shall from and after the passing of this act, be and are hereby repealed; Provided nevertheless, that nothing in this act contained shall in any wise extend or be construed to extend to annul or make void any militia appointment which may have taken place in pursuance of the former acts relating to the militia forces, or to prevent the completing any proceedings commenced in pursuance thereof until new commissions are issued under and by virtue of this act.

Latest from Holland.—On Saturday evening arrived at this port the fast sailing Brig Susanna, Samuel Franklin, master, in 45 days from Amsterdam, which port he left on the 25th March, by permission of the Dutch government. In her came passenger Mr. Rittenhouse, the bearer of dispatches from Gen. Armstrong, our minister at Paris ; he set off yesterday for the seat of government. The ship Lexington was to sail in 14 days by permission, to bring home distressed American seamen. No American vessels had arrived there since the sailing of the Eliza. In lat. 43 34. was boarded by a British frigate and treated politely.

By this arrival we learn, that the embargo continued on American vessels. It was said 40 000 troops were to be collected at the Helder for the invasion of England ; but no obvious indications of arrangements for its collection appeared.

The Vienna gazette of the 24 of March mentions, that Russia has considerably reinforced her army with men and munitions in Moldavia and Wallachia. It appeared to be the determination of both Turks and Russians, to begin the campaign in April, at the termination of the armistice at Slobosia. Gen. Kutusow is appointed to the chief command of the Russians. The Turkish troops are not numerous upon the Danube. Great difficulty and disappointment has been experienced in bringing troops over from Asia. A few only of the Pachas crossed into Europe to join the Grand Vizier at Adrianople. The other Pachas have refused obedience to the orders of the Porte.

From Leyden gazettes of the 18th and 22d of March, it appears, that the french have formally taken possession of Flushing, with a radius of the surrounding territory of the extent of 1900 metres, ceded by the treaty of Fontainbleau. On the other hand, the King of Holland has taken possession of East Friesland, and the Lordships of Jever, Kniphausen and Varel, as the equivalent.

An article under the head of Peterfburgh 20th February, mentions that feveral regiments of the army of Moldavia have received orders to proceed to the Caspian Sea, where the Ruffian army is to embark, in order to go through Perfia for Hindoftan ; and that they have begun their march for this deftination.

General Gardainne, the French minifter, arrived with his fuit, at Teheren, in Perfia, on the 4th December, & was pompoufly received by its fovereign, who lavifhed upon them the infignia of the fun.

At Paris Bonaparte has iffued two ftatutes, carrying into effect the inftitutions decreed the 14th of Auguft 1806, whereby the titles of princes, dukes, counts and knights of the French Empire are created, and conferred upon various defcriptions of perfons.

The marriage of the prince of Neufchatel, (Gen. Berthier) vice Conftable of France, with the princefs Elizabeth of Bavaria, was celebrated on the 9th of March.

A diet has been held with the king's approbation for Eaft Pruffia, to deliberate upon the means proper to remedy certain evils.

GEN. WHITELOCKE's SENTENCE.

General Orders.

Horfe Guards, March 24.

At a General Court Martial of which gen. the right honorable Sir Wm. Meadows, K. B. was president, held by virtue of his Majefty's fpecial warrant, bearing date the 25th of January, 1808, at the royal hofpital at Chelfea, on the 28th of the fame month, & continued by adjournment until the 18th of March following, lieut. Gen. John Whitelocke was tried upon the charges (preferred againft him relative to the defeat at Buenos Ayres.)

SENTENCE.

The Court martial having duly conftdered the evidence given in fupport of the charges againft the prifoner (lieut. General Whitelocke) his defence, and the evidence he has adduced, are of opinion that he is guilty of the whole of the faid charges, with the exception of that part of the fecond charge which relates to the order that "the columns fhould be unloaded, and that no firing fhould be permitted on any account."

The court are anxious that it fhould be diftinctly underftood that they attach no cenfure whatever to the precaution taken to prevent unneceffary firing during the advance of the troops to the propofed points of attack, and do therefore acquit lieut. gen Whitelocke of that part of the faid charge.

The court adjudge, that the faid lieut. gen. Whitelocke be cafhiered, and declared totally unfit and unworthy to ferve his majefty in any military capacity whatever.

The king has been pleafed to confirm the above fentence, and his royal highnefs the Commander in chief has received his Majefty's command to direct that it fhall be read at the head of every regiment in his fervice, and inferted in all regimental orderly books, with a view of its becoming a lafting memorial of the fatal confequences to which officers expofe themfelves, who in the difcharge of the important duties confided to them, are deficient in that zeal, judgment and perfonal exertion which their fovereign and their country have a right to expect from officers intrufted with high commands

To his Majefty, who has ever taken a moft lively intereft in the welfare the honor, and reputation of his troops, the recent failure of South America, has proved a fubject of the moft heartfelt regret ; but it has been a confolation to him, and his Majefty has commanded it to be intimated to the army, that after the moft minute inveftigation, his Majefty finds ample caufe for gratification in the intrepidity and good conduct difplayed by his troops lately employed in that fervice and particularly thofe divifions of the army, which were perfonally engaged with the enemy in the town of Buenos Ayres on the 5th of July, 1807 ; and his Majefty entertains no doubt that had the exertions of his troops in South America been directed by the fame ftill and energy, which has eminently diftinguifhed his commanders in other quarters of the world, the refult of the campaign would have proved equally glorious to themfelves and beneficial to their country.

By command of his royal highnefs, the commander in chief,

HARRY CALVERT,
Major-general and adjutant-general of the Forces.

Horfe Guards, March 24.

At a General Court Martial of which gen. the right honorable Sir Wm. Meadows, K. B. was prefident, held by virtue of his Majeity's ſpecial warrant, bearing date the 25th of January, 1808, at the royal hoſpital at Chelſea, on the 28th of the ſame month, & continued by adjournment until the 18th of March following, lieut. Gen. John Whitelocke was tried upon the charges (preferred againſt him relative to the defeat at Buenos Ayres.)

SENTENCE.

The Court martial having duly conſidered the evidence given in ſupport of the charges againſt the priſoner (lieut. General Whitelocke) his defence, and the evidence he has adduced, are of opinion that he is guilty of the whole of the ſaid charges, with the exception of that part of the ſecond charge which relates to the order that "the columns ſhould be unloaded, and that no firing ſhould be permitted on any account,"

The court are anxious that it ſhould be diſtinctly underſtood that they attach no cenſure whatever to the precaution taken to prevent unneceſſary firing during the advance of the troops to the propoſed points of attack, and do therefore acquit lieut. gen Whitelocke of that part of the ſaid charge.

The court adjudge, that the ſaid lieut. gen. Whitelocke be caſhiered, and declared totally unfit and unworthy to ſerve his majeſty in any military capacity whatever.

The king has been pleaſed to confirm the above ſentence, and his royal highneſs the commander in chief has received his Majeſty's command to direct that it ſhall be read at the head of every regiment in his ſervice, and inſerted in all regimental orderly books, with a view of its becoming a laſting memorial of the fatal conſequences to which officers expoſe themſelves, who in the diſcharge of the important duties confided to them, are deficient in that zeal, judgment and perſonal exertion which their ſovereign and their country have a right to expect from officers intruſted with high commands

To his Majeſty, who has ever taken a moſt lively intereſt in the welfare the honor, and reputation of his troops, the recent failure of South America, has proved a ſubject of the moſt heartfelt regret ; but it has been a conſolation to him, and his Majeſty has commanded it to be intimated to the army, that after the moſt minute inveſtigation, his Majeſty finds ample cauſe for gratification in the intrepidity and good conduct diſplayed by his troops lately employed in that ſervice and particularly thoſe divibons of the army, which were perſonally engaged with the enemy in the town of Buenos Ayres on the 5th of July, 1807 ; and his Majeſty entertains no doubt that had the exertions of his troops in South America been directed by the ſame ſkill and energy, which has eminently diſtinguiſhed his commanders in other quarters of the world, the reſult of the campaign would have proved equally glorious to themſelves and beneficial to their country.

By command of his royal highneſs, the commander in chief,

HARRY CALVERT,

Major-general and adjutant-general of the Forces,

threat of paying us a visit would be executed; indeed, from the preparations making in every quarter, the idea does not appear merely chimerical.

Our force at present on the island amounts to about 8,000 men, including three foreign regiments, they are thus divided—at Messina, the head quarters are stationed the 21st 27th, 58th, 62d, and 81st chasseurs Britaniques and Maltese regiment, the 81st forms a cordon from the Light House at the Faro to Messina; at Augusta, under the command of Colonel Oswald, the 20th regiment, and part of De Rolle's are stationed at Syracuse; under brigadier gen. Stewart, the 31st and remainder of De Rolle's; and at Melazzo, under brigadier gen. Cole, the 35th and flank companies of all the numbered regiments on the island except the 62d; a detachment of 300 of 20th dragoons and some companies of artillery compose the remainder of the force in Sicily.

A detachment of about 200 men, from the garrison of Messina, maintains Scylla, under captain Robertson.

We know very little of the politics of the court of Palermo. As long as the ——— possesses the dominion she exerts at present, they cannot be favorable to us. I believe, and am confidently assured, that the population of the country is highly favorable to us, and would with alacrity and joy throw themselves under our protection, should circumstances require us to assume the government of this island. We are at present actually employed in taking a nautifical survey of that part of Sicily immediately in the vicinity of our ports, and I doubt not but that the result will prove the resources of the country to be very abundant under proper cultivation and encouragement. We are, of course, all activity at present, and with the characteristic eagerness of British soldiers, notwithstanding our inferior force, look forward with confidence and joy to the moment of the threatened attack.

March 25.

The King of Sweden, justly estimating the danger with which he is threatened, has sent his adjutant Von Darmfeldt, to France, with propositions of accommodation. This officer arrived at Stralsund on the 23th ult. and received leave from general Castello to prosecute his mission, and it is understood that he had an interview with general Bernadotte at Vienna, on his route to Paris.

The fortresses in Finland are provisioned for four months, and are prepared to make the most vigorous resistance.

Letters from Paris to the 9th instant, state that Napoleon had determined on the seizure of all the public treasures and church plate in Spain; the greater part of the produce of which was intended for a loan to the Emperor of Russia, for the purpose, as supposed by some, of enabling him to lend an army to the Caspian sea; but according to one of the letters, for the purpose of "securing fidelity to the compact lately entered into between Russia and France, and of enabling Alexander to carry on the war without calling upon his discontented subjects for a new supply."

The Dutch government are stated in letters from Amsterdam, to have ordered the levying of a fresh contribution of one hundred million of francs.

March 26.

The Gottenburgh mail of the 21st arrived this morning. It has brought intelligence of importance. The Russians continue to advance, and a battle has taken place near Travastchus. The Russians are said to have lost 5000 men; the Swedes 1700; but the latter afterwards deemed it necessary to retreat.

The King of Denmark departed this life suddenly on the 13th. His demise is an event of no importance: he had been politically dead for many years. The Crown Prince was proclaimed King on the 16th.

Quebec, April 21.

The brig Triton, Wm. Wright, master, arrived here from Hull, on Monday last. The captain reports, that he understood a fleet of fifteen sail of the line, and 20,000 troops had failed for the Baltic, as was supposed for the assistance of the Swedes. We trust however it is destined for Cronstadt, where the Russian fleet lies; and to bring off the Swedish fleet in case of the Swedes being overpowered, or submitting to become the instrument of our enemies.

Captain Wright also mentions that it seemed to be the general opinion in England that there would be no rupture with America.

An Act for granting to his Majesty an annual sum of Money for the purposes therein mentioned.

[Passed 16th March, 1808.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS it is expedient that some provision be made for an adjutant general in this Province; Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "an Act for making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and out of the rates and duties already raised, levied and collected, or hereafter to be raised, levied and collected, to and for the uses of this Province, there be granted to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, annually, the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, for the payment of a salary to the adjutant general of the militia of this Province, for the time being.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province, from time to time to issue his warrant to the Receiver General of this Province for the payment of such salary as aforesaid, yearly or half yearly, and the said Receiver General shall account to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, for the same, through the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, in such manner and form as his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, shall be graciously pleased to direct.

An Act for applying certain Sums of Money therein mentioned, to make good certain Monies issued and advanced by his Majesty, through the Lieutenant Governor, in pursuance of an Address.

Passed 16th March, 1808.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS in pursuance of an Address of your Commons House of Assembly to Francis Gore, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of Your Majesty's Province of Upper Canada, bearing date the ninth day of March, and the Speaker's letter dated the tenth day of said March last past, in the forty-seventh year of your Majesty's reign, several sums of money, amounting in the whole to the sum of five hundred and eighty-eight pounds and eight pence half penny have been issued and advanced by your Majesty through your Lieutenant Governor, to the Clerks and other officers of the two Houses of Parliament for certain contingent expences attending the last Session of Parliament, and to Church or Town Wardens in several districts in this Province, may it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "an Act to make more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That out of the surplus of any fund or funds subject to the disposition of the Parliament of this Province, now remaining in the hands of the Receiver General unappropriated, there shall be issued and applied the sum of five hundred and eighty-eight pounds and eight pence halfpenny, to make good the said sum of Money which has been issued and advanced in pursuance of the aforesaid address and letter.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the due application of the said sum of Money pursuant to the direction of this Act, shall be accounted for to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, through the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury for the time being, in such manner and form as his Majesty, his heirs and successors shall direct.

An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof.

Passed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS by an act of the parliament of this Province, made and passed in the forty fifth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for granting to his Majesty a certain sum of money for the encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp in this Province, and the exportation thereof," it was amongst other things enacted, that the sum of fifty pounds should be the rate or price to be paid per ton for hemp which may be purchased under or by virtue of the said act; and whereas it is found by experience that the said sum of fifty pounds per ton is insufficient to compensate for the labour of the cultivators of hemp in this Province; for the further encouragement thereof, Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act passed in the parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual provision for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said province," and by the authority of the same, That the sum of sixty-two pounds and ten shillings per ton shall be the rate or price for good and merchantable hemp which may be hereafter purchased under and by virtue of this act or any former act of the parliament of this Province, any law or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

New York, May 11.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Rotterdam to his correspondent in this City, dated March 22, 1808.

"The embargo is not yet raised, and it appears the Emperor's determination to keep all ships until America has declared which side she chooses. Six of the first merchants of Antwerp have been seized and sent to the Temple for holding a communication with the other side. Similar measures have been adopted in Ghent. We hear this day that an insurrection in Prussia against the French soldiers quartered there had taken place, by the farmers, headed by the Prussian Generals, particulars not yet arrived."

Effects of the Embargo.—The collectors of Vermont, adjoining Canada, has informed the President, that the people constantly break through the Embargo, and the President has ordered out the militia. This is only the beginning of troubles.

N. Y. Paper.

The ship Agustus, Capt. Chever, arrived at Salem, in 40 days from Leghorn a gentleman who came passenger in her, informs, that they had no accounts of the French and spanish fleets having arrived at Forto Ferrajo—nor was there any positive accounts of them. It had been reported that a large fleet had passed Sicily, where bound, unknown. Off Cape de Gatt, fell in with Capt. Flet, who sailed in co. with him, and informed, that he fell in with a British squadron off Majorca, who were watching a small French fleet at Port Mahon, and had captured four store ships bound to supply them.

The fire in the Island of Trinidad, as mentioned in a late paper, consumed nearly four-fifths of the whole town of Port Spain. Every merchant's store, every baking house, every doctor's and apothecary's shop are entirely destroyed; the public hospitals, old and new government house, and portestant church, shared the same fate. The loss of property is thought to be upwards of one million sterling.

A subscription has been opened at Trinidad for the relief of the sufferers by this fire, at the head of which are the names of his Excellency Brig. General Hislop, Governor of the Islands, and Charles Grant Esq. Collector of the Customs, for one thousand pounds sterling each, an example of beneficence which does infinite honor to the hearts of the donors.

Gibraltar, Feb. 13.

As the most minute circumstances relative to the operations of the Rochefort squadron cannot fail to cause a lively interest among our readers, we have been induced to make some further inquiries relative to it from the American captain alluded to in our last number; and from his log-book, we learn, that it was on the 23d inst. he fell in with it, when he was taken in tow by the frigate two seventy-fours keeping constantly on either side, and the brig astern, as he supposes, in case the tow rope should break, to prevent his escape in the night. On the 26th, about 6 P. M. they cast him off, and made all possible sail in for the land being then in lat. 35. 58. Soon after they parted company, a signal was made from the flag ship and answered by the frigate, which immediately shortened sail, hove to, and spoke the American, ordering him to fleet S. W. till they should be out of sight. He accordingly hauled his wind to the westward about 2 hours, and then bore away for the Gut. He learned from the frigate that the squadron had been 6 days at sea when he fell in with it. The ships are described as being most wretchedly manned with respect to seamen, with the exception of two seventy-fours which appeared to be very well handled.—They were completely filled with troops, which material circumstance he omitted mentioning in his former declaration.

An Act to continue an Act passed in the forty-fifth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an Act to afford relief to those persons who may be entitled to claim Lands in this Province, as Heirs or Devisees of the Nominees of the Crown, in cases where no Patent hath issued for such Lands, and further to extend the benefits of the said Act.

Passed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS an act passed in the forty-fifth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act to afford relief to those persons who may be entitled to claim lands in this Province, as heirs or devisees of the nominees of the crown, in cases where no patent hath issued for such lands," will shortly expire, and it is expedient to continue the said act, and further to extend the benefits thereof; Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual provision for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said province," and by the authority of the same, That the said act of the forty-fifth year of his Majesty's reign, and every part thereof, and every clause, matter and thing therein contained, shall be and the same is hereby continued.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the assignee or assignees of the nominee or nominees of the crown to lands in this Province, who is or are dead, or who have left this Province before the passing of this act, without having obtained his Majesty's letters patent for such lands in his, her or their lifetimes, or before he, she or they did leave this Province, may respectively bring their claim or claims for the said lands before the commissioners hereinafter to be appointed, who shall and may and they are hereby authorized to hear and determine the claim or claims of such assignee or assignees, and to report thereupon to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government, in council, in like manner and under the like regulations and restrictions as are in and by the said act passed in the forty-fifth year of his Majesty's reign, and hereby continued, directed to be observed respecting the claim or claims of the heir or heirs, devisee or devisees of the nominee or nominees of the crown to lands, brought before the commissioners under that act, and that it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government, in council, to issue his Majesty's letters patent for the lot or lots, parcel or parcels of land specified in the said report to or in trust for such person or persons, his, her or their heirs and assigns, as is or are therein declared, by the said commissioners to be appointed under and by virtue of this act, to be the assignee or assignees of the nominee or nominees of the crown, as aforesaid, to such lot or lots, parcel or parcels of land; and that all and every the provisions, regulations, restrictions, matters and things, which in and by the said act of the forty fifth year of his Majesty's reign, are enacted and contained, of and concerning, or in any wise touching or relating to the claim or claims of the heir or heirs, devisee or devisees of the nominee or nominees of the crown, mentioned in that act, shall be and are hereby extended to the assignee or assignees of such nominee or nominees.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the better procuring of evidence to be laid before the commissioners to be appointed under this act, respecting any claim or claims that may be brought before them by virtue thereof, it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province, for the time being, to appoint some person in each and every district of this Province to be a commissioner for taking upon oath (which oath the said commissioners are hereby authorized to administer) the testimony of any person or persons relative to such claim or claims to be brought before the said commissioners.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall forswear him, her or themselves before any such commissioner, he, she or they shall on conviction thereof, be subject to all the pains and penalties of wilful and corrupt perjury.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government of this Province, at any time during the continuance of this act, to issue such and so many commissions under the great seal of this Province to the members of the Executive Council thereof, his Majesty's Chief Justice of the said Province, the Justices of the Court of King's Bench, and such and so many other persons as the said Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the government shall think fit, which said commissioners, or any three of them, of whom the said Chief Justice or one of the said Justices shall be one, shall have full power and authority to carry into force and effect all and every the powers and provisions, matters and things, specified and contained in the said act of the forty-fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, and in this act; and that the said commissioners shall hold their sittings at the same place, and at the like times and in like manner as are specified and declared by the said first mentioned act, respecting the sittings of the said commissioners therein mentioned, under and by virtue of the same.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the clerk of the peace in each and every district of this Province shall once in every three months make a list of the claims sett up in his office, specifying the name or names of the claimant or claimants, together with the number of the lot or lots, and the concession or concessions, with the name or names of the township or townships in which the lands so claimed do lie, and affix the said list on some conspicuous part of the court house or place where the courts are usually held at each general quarter sessions.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act shall be and it is hereby declared to be in force for and during the term of four years, and no longer.

An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the forty-fixth year of his Majefty's reign, entitled "an Act to continue an Act paſſed in the forty third year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an Act for the better ſecuring to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, the due collection and receipt of certain Duties therein mentioned.

Paſſed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS by an act paſſed in the forty-ſixth year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act to continue an act paſſed in the forty third year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act for the better ſecuring to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, the due collection and receipt of certain duties therein mentioned," it was thereby enacted that the ſaid act of the parliament of this Province, paſſed in the forty-third year of his Majeſty's reign, ſhould be and the ſame was thereby continued, and it was thereby further enacted that the ſaid act paſſed in the forty-ſixth year of his Majeſty's reign, ſhould be and continue in force for and during the term of two years, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament, and no longer; And whereas it is thought fit that the ſaid recited act, paſſed in the forty-third year of his Majeſty's reign, ſhould not be ſubject to any limitation in point of time, but that the ſame ſhould be made perpetual; Be it therefore enacted by the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act paſſed in the parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual proviſion for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further proviſion for the government of the ſaid Province," and by the authority of the ſame, That ſo much of the act paſſed in the forty-ſixth year of his Majeſty's reign as limits the continuance of the aforeſaid act to the term of two years, and from thence to the end of the then next ſeſſion of parliament, ſhall be and the ſame is hereby repealed.

An Act to continue an Act paſſed in the Thirty-third year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an Act to provide for the appointment of Returning Officers of the ſeveral Counties within this Province.

Paſſed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS an act paſſed in the thirty-third year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act to provide for the appointment of returning officers of the ſeveral counties within this Province," and which act has ſince been revived and continued by a certain act entitled "an act to revive and continue an act entitled "an act to provide for the appointment of returning officers for the ſeveral counties within this Province," will ſhortly expire, and it being neceſſary that the ſaid act paſſed in the thirty-third year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act to provide for the appointment of returning officers of the ſeveral counties within this Province," be continued; Be it therefore enacted by the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act paſſed in the parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual proviſion for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further proviſion for the government of the ſaid Province," and by the authority of the ſame, That the ſaid act of the thirty third year of his Majeſty's reign, and every part thereof, and every clauſe, matter and thing therein contained, are by the preſent act continued for and during the ſpace of four years, and no longer.

An Act for granting to his Majeſty a certain ſum of Money out of the Provincial Fund, to increaſe the ſalary of the Clerk of the Legiſlative Council and the Clerk of the Houſe of Aſſembly.

Paſſed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS it is thought expedient to increaſe the ſalaries of the Clerks of the Legiſlative Council and Houſe of Aſſembly in this Province; Be it therefore enacted by the King's moſt excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act paſſed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual proviſion for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further proviſion for the government of the ſaid province," and by the authority of the ſame, That from and out of the rates and duties already raiſed, levied and collected, or hereafter to be raiſed, levied and collected, to and for the uſes of this Province, there be granted annually, to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, the ſum of one hundred and fifty pounds, to and for the uſes hereinafter expreſſed, that is to ſay, the ſum of ſeventy-five pounds to the Clerk of the Legiſlative Council, and the ſum of ſeventy-five pounds to the Clerk of the Houſe of Aſſembly, for the time being, in addition to the ſums heretofore granted to and for the uſes of the ſaid Clerks.

II And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, That the monies hereby granted to his Majeſty for the payment of ſalaries to the Clerk of the Legiſlative Council and the Clerk of the Houſe of Aſſembly, ſhall be paid by the Receiver General, in diſcharge of ſuch warrant or warrants as ſhall for the purpoſes herein ſet forth be from time to time iſſued by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or perſon adminiſtering the government of this Province, for the time being, and not otherwiſe, and the ſaid Receiver General ſhall account to his Majeſty for the ſame through the commiſſioners of his Majeſty's treaſury for the time being, in ſuch manner and form as his Majeſty ſhall direct.

FRANCIS GORE, Lieutenant Governor.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our well beloved and faithful the Legislative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our beloved and faithful the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the House of Assembly of our said Province, called and chosen to our present Provincial Parliament of our said Province, and to all our loving Subjects to whom these presents may come——GREETING!

WHEREAS we have thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council of our said Province of Upper Canada, to dissolve this present Provincial Parliament of our said Province, which now stands prorogued to Monday the Twenty seventh day of June next ensuing, We do for that end publish this our Royal Proclamation, and do hereby dissolve the said Provincial Parliament accordingly, and the Legislative Councillors, and the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the House of Assembly, are discharged from their meeting and attendance on Monday the said Twenty seventh day of June;—And we being desirous and resolved as soon as may be, to meet our People of our said Province, and to have their advice in Provincial Parliament, do hereby make known our Royal Will and Pleasure to call a New Provincial Parliament, and do hereby further declare, that, with the advice of our said Executive Council, we have this day given Orders for the issuing our Writs in due form, for calling a New Provincial Parliament in our said Province, which Writs are to bear teste on Monday the Twenty third day of this present month of May, and to be returnable on Saturday the second day of July next ensuing.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fifth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eight, and in the forty-eighth year of our Reign.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

To the Freeholders of the East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe.

WHEREAS his Majesty's Royal Proclamation hath been issued for the purpose of calling together a Legislative Council and House of Assembly for the Province of Upper Canada, and whereas by a certain Act of this Province, passed in the forty eighth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an Act for the better representation of the Commons of this Province in Parliament, and to repeal part of an Act passed in the fortieth year of his present Majesty's reign, entitled "an Act for the more equal representation of the Commons of this Province, and for the better defining the qualification of Electors," it is declared and appointed, that the East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe shall be represented in the said House of Assembly by one Member; and whereas by a certain Instrument under the Sign Manual, and sealed with the Seal of his Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor, I have been nominated and appointed Returning Officer of the East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe, and whereas by a certain Writ under the Great Seal of Upper Canada, by me received, I am thereby directed to cause one Knight, the most fit and discreet, to be freely and indifferently chosen to represent the said East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe in Assembly, by those who shall be present at the day of Election.

Now know ye, that by virtue of the said nomination and appointment, and in obedience to His Majesty's said Writ, I shall attend on Wednesday the fifteenth day of June next at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Government Buildings in the Town of York; and proceed to the Election of one Knight to represent the said East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe in the said House of Assembly, and hereof all Freeholders of the said East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe are to take notice and attend accordingly.

WM. ALLAN,
Returning Officer for the East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe.

York, 26th May, 1808.

London, April 4.

Captain Duncan, who for some time had a command in the Portuguese naval service, had the good fortune about the end of February, to escape on board the Russian squadron in the Tagus; from whence he further succeeded on getting on board a vessel of our blockading fleet and is now arrived in England. This officer remained on board the Russian squadron till the 13th ult; he of course had ample means of ascertaining the state of opinion, and disposition of the Russian officers there. Captain Duncan states, that they are anxious to leave that uncomfortable station, could they do it with safety.

The Russians has suffered greatly from the want of necessaries of all kinds. Junot had forbidden any supplies being sent them; nor had they been enabled for some time to procure from the stores of Portugal an ounce of fresh Provisions of any kind. In the mean while, the inhabitants of Lisbon were reduced to the necessity of making bread of pease, beans, and all the inferior sorts of grain, which, when mixed together were scarcely eatable; and even of this kind the supply was scanty.

Several councils had been held on board the Russian squadron, to consider the measures to be pursued at such an emergency. At one time it was proposed that the Russian fleet should put to sea, consisting of nine sail of the line and a frigate, and risk an engagement with the British; but on reflecting that every one of their ships were damaged in their masts the plan was abandoned as impracticable. Besides this, the crews, for want of proper nourishment, were in a very sickly state.

Glasgow, April 4.

We have been politely favored with the following extract of a letter received in Glasgow this morning.

"London, April 1, 1808.

"A letter is said to have been received by a merchant in this place, from his brother, an officer under Sir R. Strachan and, if genuine, confirms the following facts.

"That Sir Richard Strachan with 8 sail, attacked the Rochefort and Carthagona squadrons, consisting of 12 sail of the line, in Palmas bay, Majorca; that he took or destroyed nine sail at the expence of his own life, two captains, and 1800 killed and wounded.—One of our ships blew up, and one was sunk by the batteries."

April 8.

In the House of Lords, on the 6th of April, Lord Grenville gave notice, that he should upon an early day after the recess, perhaps between the 5th and 10th of May, move to address his Majesty to revoke the late orders in council.

The English have established themselves in the island of Lesina, on the coast of Dalmatia, which the Russians occupied several months during their last war with France; it is thought to have been taken possession of for some temporary purposes, & with an inconsiderable force.

Notwithstanding the pressure of war, and the daily encreasing difficulties to which the commerce of England is exposed, the financial prosperity of the country is represented as keeping pace with the exertions which she is compelled to make; the surplus of the consolidated fund, for the year ending the 5th of April, amounted to 4 millions and a half sterling, exceeding by one million that of the year preceding.

The English squadrons continue here the exclusive dominion of the Archipelago seizing not only Turkish vessels, but such as may have entered a Turkish port. On the 8th of January the Dardanelles and the ports of Egypt were officially proclaimed in a state of close blockade, in the name of admiral Collingwood, with an offer to grant passports to all vessels sailing to and from Malta. This proceeding has reduced the commerce of the Levant to a state of absolute stagnation.

New-York, May, 14.

Capt. Lovett, of the ship Connecticut, who arrived here last evening in 36 days from St. Lucar, informs "that the Prince of Peace was beheaded on the 5th of April, and had been exposed in public loaded with chains—the houses of all his officers were destroyed—Prince Ferdinand was crowned king—and the arrival of Bonaparte was hourly expected at Madrid with 50,000 troops—& that the siege of Gibraltar was no more spoken of."

This is just what we expected the moment we heard that Bonaparte was about to march an army into Spain. And it is just what that poor unfortuntae Prince and every other deserves, that will lend his influence in assisting Bonaparte to overturn the whole world, and destroy every vestige of liberty.—*Ev. An Act to extend the benefits of an Act passed in the thirty-seventh year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an Act for the more easy barring of Dower," and to repeal certain parts of the same.

Passed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS by an act passed in the thirty-seventh year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for the more easy barring of Dower," no provision is made to entitle any person, not residing in this Province, and who may be entitled to dower of any lands or tenements situate therein, to release her right and title to the same. Be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and after the passing of this act, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or any of his Majesty's Colonies or Plantations, or within the United States of America, entitled to dower of any lands or tenements within this Province, by any deed, executed either alone or jointly with other persons, to release all her right and title to the same, and such release shall be as valid and effectual to bar the person so executing the same, of her dower of such lands and tenements, as if a fine had been levied thereof.

II. Provided nevertheless, That no such release so executed shall have any force or effect to bar the person so entitled to dower, unless such person shall come before the mayor or chief magistrate of some city, borough or town corporate in the said United Kingdom, or before the chief judge or any other judge of the supreme court of the said colony, plantation, or state, or before the mayor or chief magistrate of any city, borough or town corporate, within the same, and shall have been examined by the said mayor or chief magistrate, chief judge or judge, touching her consent to be barred of dower in the premises in the said deed of release mentioned, and unless she shall give her consent thereto, and it shall appear to the said mayor, chief magistrate, chief judge or judge, that such consent is free and voluntary, and not the effect of any coercion on the part of the husband or any other person, and unless the said mayor, chief magistrate, chief judge or judge, shall certify the same by endorsement on the said deed.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the purpose of verifying the said certificate, when the same shall be granted as aforesaid, by the mayor or chief magistrate of any city, borough or town corporate, within the said United Kingdom, or within any of the said colonies, plantations or states, the common seal of such city, borough or town corporate, or the seal of office of such mayor or other chief magistrate, shall be affixed thereto; and that when such certificate shall be granted by the chief judge or judge of the supreme court of any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations, or of any of the United States of America, the same shall be verified by the seal of the person administering the government of such colony, plantation or state.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the abovementioned act, entitled "an act for the more easy barring of dower," as relates to the registering of the certificate, required by the said act, be and the same is hereby repealed.

An Act for the better Representation of the Commons of this Province in Parliament, and to repeal part of an act passed in the fortieth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for the more equal representation of the Commons of this Province, and for the better defining the qualification of Electors."

Passed 16th March, 1808.

WHEREAS it is necessary to encrease the representation of the Commons of this Province in Parliament; Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an act passed in the parliament of Great Britain, entitled "an act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for making more effectual provision for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That so much of an act passed in the fortieth year of his Majesty's reign, entitled "an act for the more equal representation of the Commons of this Province in Parliament, and for the better defining the qualification of Electors," as relates to the number of members to represent the Commons of this Province in the House of Assembly, shall be repealed, and the same is hereby repealed accordingly.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the end of the present parliament, the representation of the Commons of this Province in the House of Assembly, shall be in manner following, that is to say, That the county of Prescot shall be represented by one member; that the county of Glengary shall be represented by two members; that the counties of Stormont and Russell shall be represented by one member; that the counties of Dundas, Grenville, Leeds, Frontenac and Prince Edward, except the township of Ameliasburgh, be each represented by one member; that the incorporated counties of Lenox and Addington, be together represented by two members; that the county of Hastings, and the township of Ameliasburgh, in the county of Prince Edward, be represented by one member; that the counties of Northumberland and Durham shall together be represented by one member; the east riding of the county of York and the county of Simcoe by one member; that the west riding of the county of York shall be represented by one member; that the first riding of the county of Lincoln and the county of Haldimand shall be represented by two members, in manner following, viz. the townships of Saltfleet, Ancaster, Barton, Glanford and Binbrook, with so much of the county of Haldimand as lies between Dundas Street and the Onondaga Village, (commonly called Bearsfoot) on the River Ouse, by one member, and the townships of Grimsby, Clinton, Gainsborough and Caistor, with so much of the county of Haldimand as lies between the Onondaga Village aforesaid and the mouth of the River Ouse, by one member; that the second riding of the county of Lincoln shall be represented by one member; that the third riding of the county of Lincoln shall be represented by one member; that the fourth riding of the county of Lincoln shall be represented by one member; that the counties of Oxford and Middlesex be together represented by one member; that the county of Norfolk shall be represented by one member; that the county of Kent shall be represented by one member; that the county of Essex shall be represented by 2 members.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no returning officer or officers who may be hereafter appointed, shall continue any election more than six days, but shall at the expiration of that time, close the poll, notwithstanding any law, usage or custom to the contrary.

London, April 8.

The report of a naval engagement in the Mediterranean appears to have been an idle rumour.

From Copenhagen we learn that the Sound was compietely covered with ice at the beginning of March; and that at Elſineur, where the paſſage is narrow & the current more rapid, the maſſes of ice were ſeen collecting from day to day; ſo that if the froſt continued a week longer, it would be poſſible for foot ſoldiers to march over it into Sweden, where the public mind was ſaid to be in great fermentation.—At Elſineur active preparations were making to embark and tranſport the French army into Scania; and a flotilla was building to protect the movements of the navy and ſecure the tranſports from one iſland to another. In the mean while the king of Sweden (who is concentrating his army) has prohibited all communication between his kingdom and Denmark upon pain of death; and has ordered the flotilla of Abo to be burnt, to prevent its falling into the hands of the Ruſſians, whoſe operations are effectually ſeconded by the rigour of the ſeaſon.

The Porte is making the greateſt efforts to re-eſtabliſh the army of the grand Vizier, which during the winter had been conſiderably weakened. One hundred and fifty thouſand men from the Aſiatic provinces are to repair to it. Very ſevere firmans have been addreſſed to the Governors and envoys ſent to preſs the execution of the orders of the Grand Signior.

REVOLUTION IN SPAIN.

The following intereſting particulars of the affairs of Spain, were received here in a letter from Alicant, arrived yeſterday by the Sally, dated 27th March. They are corroborated by ſimilar accounts from other quarters in Europe.—Boſt. Gazette.

"On the 17th inſt. the rumour being ſpread at Aranjuaz, that the king and royal family were making preparations to ſet out for Cadiz, there to embark on board the Engliſh ſquadron, it cauſed a great fermentation among the people. At 11 o'clock at night, about 40,000 peaſants from the neighborhood, made their appearance, ſurrounded the palace, and inſiſted on ſeeing their majeſties, who were of courſe under the neceſſity of ſhewing themſelves at the balcony. The Prince of Peace, who had already placed a great number of coaches and poſt horſes along the road, took this opportunity of telling their majeſties that their lives were in danger, and that no time muſt be loſt in making their eſcape. The Prince of Aſturias (who has always been an enemy to the Prince of Peace) found means of informing one of his guards of what was going forward, deſiring him to tell the reſt, that if they would protect him, he was reſolved not to quit the country, and even to jump out of the carriage, if taken away by force. Every thing being ready, orders were given to the Gardes du Corps to diſperſe the populace, and even to fire upon them; inſtead of which, theſe troops went to the palace of the Prince of Peace, forced his guard, and ſearched for him without ſucceſs. His wife was found, and treated with the greateſt reſpect, as being a couſin to the King. She was placed in a carriage, and drawn to the royal palace by the populace. In the meanwhile, Marquis Caballero, Miniſter of Gracia and Juſticia, took this opportunity of informing the King, that attempting to leave the country would be in vain; that his majeſty had nothing to fear from the French troops, (then at 11 leagues diſtance) and that the Prince of Peace was a traitor to his country and king. The Council of Caſtile was aſſembled, and their advice was unanimouſly to the ſame purpoſe. The king then iſſued a proclamation, withdrawing from the Prince of Peace the titles of generaliſſimo and high admiral; but this did not appeaſe the people, who continued to inſiſt on the Prince of Aſturias being declared king. At laſt, the king finding there was no other remedy, iſſued a ſecond proclamation on the 20th, by which he reſigns his crown to his ſon, who was accordingly proclaimed, to the great ſatisfaction of the whole nation. One of his firſt ſteps has been to confiſcate all the property which the Prince of Peace had uſurped from the nation, amounting to ſome hundred millions of dollars. Theſe of the lands of the clergy, which have been selling for some years past) 22,500 vales reales of 600 dollars each have been found, and an immense quantity of gold. He is now arrested, and going to be tried: he had been hidden for near two days in a garret of his palace, but pressed by hunger and thirst, he declared himself to one of the guards, who immediately secured him. It is now discovered, that he had sent orders to the governor of Ceuta, to surrender to the English. It also appears certain that M. Valdes, commander of the squadron that sailed last month from Carthagena, had orders to go to Gibraltar and surrender himself, but he put into Mahon under pretext of an accident, and one Salcedo was immediately sent to supercede him, but it is expected he will not have arrived in time.

La Senora Josefa Tudo, mistress of the Prince of Peace, sat out for Cadiz the 15th, with all the money that was left in the Treasury; detachments of Hussars have been sent after her, but it is feared she is already on board of the English fleet. It seems the plan of this man was to take the Royal family over to Spanish America, make a peace with England, destroy the Prince of Asturias, (which was already attempted in October last) and get himself appointed Regent of that country, if not King. The French government had secret advice of this plot and sent in troops by all quarters, with the pretext of an attack against Algiers and Gibraltar, and it was too late when he discovered the real object of this visit. Whatever be his fate, it is not probable that the immense property he has in the Bank of London, will ever be recovered by the nation. All the people in exile by his orders, are recalled to Court. Florida Blanca is expected to be Prime Minister; the Duke of Infantado lately exiled by him, is appointed President of the Council and Colonel of the Spanish Guards: the Duke of Medinaceli and Count Fernan Nuez, are sent to compliment the French Emperor at Burgos and conduct him to Madrid; no blood has been spilt, but several houses of his partizans have been plundered and destroyed by the mob—amongst them, are those of Soler the Minister; Noriega, the Treasurer General; Sixto Espinosa, Cashier of the Consolidation; Truxillo, late Governor of Malaga, and brother in law to the Prince of Peace.——The King and Queen have asked to retire to Granada or St Lucar, but the Council has opposed it as being too near the coast; they are allowed to chuse between Guadalaxara and Arenas a small place in the center of Castile."

Extract of another letter.

Alicant March 27.

"On the 18th instant, at nine in the evening, an order arrived from the generalissimo the Prince of Peace, to the Spanish and Walloon guards and other troops stationed round and doing garrison service at Madrid, to march without delay to Aranjues, where they arrived the next morning to the number of ten thousand. A novelty of such a nature, and at such a time, induced a multitude of people to follow them, amongst which a report was diligently circulated, that their majesties and the prince of peace, intended to retire to Gibraltar, and from thence to America, as had been done by the Portuguese royal family. Impressed with this idea, the mob collected in the grand square before the palace, about 8 o'clock in the evening, crying long live the king and kill the Traitor! Cabellero, the first Secretary of State, immediately proceeded to the Royal apartment, where he found the King and Queen together much alarmed, while he was endeavoring to calm their apprehensions, the prince of Peace entered in apparent consternation, and entreated their majesties to disguise themselves immediately and escape, as the people meditated mischief against them. The secretary assured them that it was false;—that they expressed the greatest love and loyalty for his majesty's person, and only sought revenge on a traitor. And who is he? cried the Prince of Peace. You, said Cabellero.—The fool drew his sword and attempted to stab him; but the king interfering, the latter had time to retire, & to take with him the prince of Asturias, to beg protection of the guard de corps.—The 20th CHARLES IVth ABDICATED THE THRONE to his son, the Prince of Asturias WHO IS NOW PROCLAIMED AS FERDINAND the VIIth."

Extract of a letter from Alicant dated March 25.

"The post from Madrid brings advice of the ascention to the throne of Spain of Ferdinando VII. The King of Spain and his Queen, have retired to their palace at Pardo, a few miles to the northward of Madrid.—Charles has resigned in favor of his son, but it is not thought to be altogether voluntary: the Prince of Peace and his brother are in close confinement; their titles, honors, and incalculable property, return to the crown; they will have a public trial, & what need not be doubted, a public punishment. The joy of Spain is universal, and the people are perfectly tranquil."

Appointments by the new King.

The duke of Infantado to be governor of the Council, and colonel of the Spanish guards; Duke of St. Carlos, steward of the Palace; Cabellero, the former minister of Grace and Justice, is made grandee of Spain and president of the council of Orders; Jovillanus, minister of Justice and Grace; Aranza, the minister at Paris, is appointed Governor of the Council of Horunda; Count Florina Blanca, Deacon of the Council of State; the Archbishop of Toledo, Petriaria; General O'Farrell Director general of the artillery.

The noblemen accused of combining against the life of the king, a few months since, with the Prince of Asturias, have all been pardoned.

In some papers we find the new monarch of Spain denominated Emperor.

At Madrid the following houses were destroyed, the occupants of which were attached to the Prince of Peace.

The house of Don Diego Godoy, brother to the Prince; of Lieutenant general Branchiforti, cousin to do. of Duros the Prince's confessor; of Marquina, lord Mayor; of Norwega, Treasurer general; of Espinova and Condava, loan officers; and of Soler, minister of the Council of Horunda.

ROYAL DECREE.—EDICT.

By an order of his majesty communicated this evening by the most excellent senior Marquis Cabellero, to the most illustrious Senior president pro tempore of the Council, it is intimated to the latter, our lord the King has been pleased to authorize the Prince of Asturias to institute a prosecution according to law, against Don Manuel Gody, now a prisoner.—And the Council being informed of this circumstance has decreed that the order of his majesty be announced to the public together with another, in which it appears that the property and effects in the houses which the said Don manuel Gody inhabited, belong to his majesty; in order that the inhabitants of this city rely on his justice, and that of the Cou may be tranquil, as is expected their loyalty;—and that all person retire to their houses immediately; under no pretence may the well kn fidelity and submission of the inhabi of this place be rendered doubtful this supreme Tribunal obliged to different measures.

BOSTON, May 30.

Latest from Spain.—We have been obligingly favored, by our correspondent in Salem, with the interesting intelligence that follows:

"This day, (May 28th) arrived the schooner Jenny, capt. Hussam, 30 days from Bilboa.—The Prince of Peace had not been beheaded, as has been reported Every thing appeared to be quietly settled under the new King of Spain.—The Johanna was orginally bound to Bilboa but had her regitter endorsed by the Englishman. She however proceeded for her port, and was taken by a Spanish boat within sight of it. No condemnation of American vessels had taken place in Spain under the blockading decrees. The Court of Admiralty at Madrid cleared vessels and cargo. The brig Betsey, Hooper, of Boston, was waiting trial

NORFOLK, May 20.

Dispatches.—A letter from Washington says, that dispatches from Mr. Armstrong have been received, which state that Napoleon has given the United States a limited time to declare for or against him, after which, if they do not do one or the other, he will decide for them. That dispatches have been received we know, but how their contents have transpired we know not. The letter we allude to is from a respectable source. Bonaparte is a most unconscionable fellow, or he would be satisfied with our non-intercourse and embargo laws.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.

French Fleet.—Captain Winn, from Marseilles and Gibraltar informs, that two days before he failed from Gibraltar, a British sloop of war arrived there express, and informed, that she had left a frigate watching the motions of a fleet of 17 French and Spanish ships of the line off Minoraca, where it was supposed they were bound to join 4 or 5 Spanish ships of the line, laying at that island, from whence it was conjectured, they would pass out of the Straits. An express was dispatched from Gibraltar to inform the British fleet off Cadiz, as it was expected the combined fleet meant to relieve the French and Spanish ships at Cadiz, where there were 13 sail of the line all ready for sea. Captain W. further informs, that a part of Bonaparte's army were arrived at a town about 5 or 6 miles of Gibraltar, and it was expected that he would shortly commence the siege of that place, when the inhabitants must soon submit to him—the British have mined the Isthmus, leading into Spain, for the purpose of givin' the French a hoist into the air.

FROM THE N. Y. E. POST.

"HORRIBLE! MOST HORRIBLE!"

My blood boils as I pen this article, and my hand trembles beneath the contending emotions of shame and indignation.

Take first the following narration as it is copied from the Coffee-House Books at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, May 27.

"Arrived last evening, Spanish schr. Salvadore, 12 days from Havana, passengers, Capt. Chalmers, who went out supercargo of the schr. Lovely Lucy, Knowles, bound from this port to Savannah. Capt. C. informs, that the 22d of April, off Cape Romain, they were captured by the French privateer schr. Superior, who put a prize master and 8 men on board, and ordered her to Sumana. They immediately ordered all the crew below—threatening to put us all in irons if we did not remain there. On the evening of the same day experienced a very severe gale from the westward; the Frenchmen lowered all sail and attempted to scud her under bare poles, but through the ignorance or mismanagement of the one at the helm, she broached to, capsized and filled; they then cut away the masts, and she lighted, but neglecting to free them from the shrouds before cutting, she thumped several holes through her sides. The gale continuing with increased violence, in that situation she remained 3 days, when the decks burst asunder.

"Capt. Chalmers, Mr. Wm. Campbell (a passenger) and 8 negro sailors, were fortunate enough to get on that part of the deck that floated; the others were all drowned. They remained on that part of the deck four days, at the mercy of the waves, without provisions or water. On the 28th, one of the negroes died, part of whose body they eat. On the 29th, they were providentially picked up by the brig Nancies from Norfolk bound to Havana. Mr. Campbell died on board the brig the evening of the day they were picked up."

After this atrocious act of piracy and murder, after this outrage upon the sovereignty as a nation, the Frenchman fearlessly pursued his original destination, sailed up the Delaware, and entered the port of Philadelphia, where he refitted his privateer, and then applied to the collector of the port, being one in whom the President has confidence, and obtained not merely a clearance, but the following permit.

"Port of Philadelphia, May 18, 1808.—Permit Captain Brevard to laden on board the armed French schooner, 15 bbls. biscuit—2 casks red wine—50 bbls. flour—4 quintals rice—10 bbls. beef—6 do. codfish—15 do. pork—4 do. cheese—4 do. peas—40 gallons vinegar—2 hhds. French brandy—4 kegs hogs lard—2 do. butter—4 quintals onions—3 jars beef a la-mode—1 do. pickled pork—2 do. fresh butter—2 baskets sweet oil—2 boxes gin—65 lb. codfish—50 lb. sugar—10 gallons brandy—12 dozen porter—6 hams—24 lb. sausages—18 lb. pepper—24 dozen eggs.—BEING FREE ACCORDING TO LAW."

It is added in the Philadelphia papers that she also took away a large sum of money—report says 60,000 dollars.

EXTRAORDINARY.

Very like a WHALE.—We find the following queer article in the New-Brunswick Royal Gazette of the 22d of Feb. last:—

ST. JOHNS, (N. B.) Feb. 22.

Arrived here on Friday morning from St. Andrews, the Packet Speedy, Capt. Johnston, with five passengers, viz. Mr. and Mrs. Price, and Mr. M'Kenzie, of this city, Mr. M'Master, of St. Andrews, and Mr. Hostuck, an English Gentleman. Captain J. informs that on Wednesday evening the 7th inst. the wind being ahead and appearance of a snow storm, he came to an anchor in Blis' harbor; that at three o'clock on Thursday morning they were surprised by a violent agitation of the vessel.—Captain J. can convey but a faint idea of his astonishment on observing the vessel going through the water at the rate of 16 knots per hour, there being only a light wind from the S. E. and when a few minutes previously, she was safely riding at anchor. The mystery was unravelled on his observing a huge Whale that seemed to have entangled himself in the cable, and it was probable the vessel would be dragged ashore, being already removed from her anchorage three miles, and in a dangerous situation, the water running in at the hawser-holes, Captain J. deemed it prudent to cut the cable, from which the Whale immediately disengaged himself.—Captain J. can only account for this most astonishing circumstance by the supposition that the Whale was near the vessel in pursuit of Herrings, and as the tide was setting in, and the wind from S. E. the cable being slack under foot he must have coiled it round his body and drawn it tight by endeavoring to extricate himself.

We state this remarkable circumstance on the authority of the respectable evidences which accompanied the detail.

We certify that the circumstances cited above are facts.

LONDON, April 1.

A letter is ſaid to have been received by a merchant in this place, from his brother, an officer under Sir Richard Strachan, and, if genuine, confirms the following fact:

That Sir R. Strachan, with 8 ſail, attacked the Rochefort and Carthagena ſquadrons, conſiſting of 12 ſail of the line, in Palms Bay, Majorca: that he took and deſtroyed 9 ſail, at the expence of his own life, 2 captains and 1800 killed and wounded. One of our ſhips blew up, and one was ſunk by the batteries.

April 10

The convoy for Canada ſailed from Portſmouth on the 26th April, and when joined by the ſhips from Torbay, Plymouth, and Cork, was expected to conſiſt of nearly 100 ſail which is ſaid to be treble the number that has ſailed for that quarter at one time for many years.

Admiral Duckworth arrived at Plymouth on the 19th April, after having touched in the Weſt-Indies, Cheſapeake, Halifax, and the Weſtern Iſlands in queſt of the Rochefort ſquadron, which he could not find,

April 15. From the captain of a veſſel which arrived yeſterday from Holland, we hear that 25,000 troops have found their way into the iſland of Zealand, French and Daniſh.

Ireland is ſtill diſturbed by ſome local inſurrections, unconnected however, with any queſtions of general politics, and ariſing ſolely out of local oppreſſion.

From London Papers to April 25th, received at the office of the Mercantile Advertiſer, by the ſhip Liverpool Packet.

London, April 20.

By the Gottenburgh mail ſome letters have been received from Dantzic, which ſtate, that an American veſſel had arrived there, whoſe papers certified her to have come from New York. She was in conſequence permitted to land her cargo, which ſold at a very high price. From the examination of the crew, however, it was found that the veſſel came laſt from Liverpool. On this diſcovery, the conſul who ſanctioned the clearance was ſent to the gallies, and the whole amount of the cargo was obliged to be delivered up to the French commander and general Rapp.

The military part of the expedition now preparing, conſiſts principally of the troops which lately returned from the Mediterranean under Sir John Moore. It is ſuppoſed to be deſtined for Sweden. Sir James Saumarez after receiving his laſt inſtructions, left town yeſterday morning, to proceed with his ſquadron to the Baltic.

We have reaſon to believe, that a part of the military force in the Mediterranean, under the command of general Spencer, is deſtined for the protection of Sardinia, upon which iſland the enemy have for ſome time meditated an attack.

Letters in town from Madrid, mention that the Prince of Peace had diſappeared, and no one knew whither he had gone.—The private letters from Spain contain in general very little intelligence. Such is the terror excited by the preſence of a French army in that country, that the writers ſeem afraid to deſcribe the events that are paſſing around them, or to expreſs any political opinion.

A letter from Sweden ſays, "the important fortreſs of Sweaberg, in Finland, was attacked by a force of 10,000 Ruſſians, who after an obſtinate conteſt of two days, were completely repulſed, leaving 1500 men killed and wounded on the field.

April 21.

Advices from Holland to the 17th inſtant, were received yeſterday. They mention a report of the failure of an attack made by the Britiſh on Coriu, but ſtate no particulars. We do not underſtand that any attempt was likely to be made to get poſſeſſion of the Seven Iſlands, but in concert with the people, who are reprelented as impatient to relieve themſelves from the domination of France! and we therefore attach but little credit to the above rumour.

A gentleman arrived yeſterday from Amſterdam, (on his way to America,) which place he left a few days ago, ſtates that, that place now ſuffers the greateſt commercial diſtreſs; many warehouſes and ſhops are entirely ſhut up; and a general outcry prevails againſt the war. He further ſtates, that the report of our intending to make Spaniſh America independent, had cauſed the greateſt apprehenſion in the French Government; that its fears for the ſucceſs of ſuch a meaſure, though ſtudiouſly concealed, were yet obvious; and that Bonaparte was determined to uſe every effort to hurry North-America into a war with England, that he may be able to embody the numerous French now in the United States, into an army for invading Mexico, in conjunction with the Americans, whence he could afterwards ſend troops into the different parts of South-America. Juſt as the laſt courier came away from Stockholm, which was the day after the mail ſet out, a communication was received by the telegraph acroſs the Gulph, that the fortreſs of Sweaberg had been attacked by the Ruſſians, but that they were driven back with great ſlaughter. This was known at Gottenburgh at the ſailing of the laſt packet. A private letter mentions the facts, though not more circumſtantially.

As long as this fortreſs remains in the hands of the Swedes, Finland is not loſt. It is here the King means to land his army as ſoon as the ice is gone. The garriſon of Sweaberg conſiſts of 7000 men, under the command of the old and experienced general Cronſtedt. The fortreſs is proviſioned for four months, owing to the foreſight of Baron Stedingk, the Swediſh Ambaſſador at St. Peterſburgh, who found means to acquaint the commandant of the approaching danger. This brave general has aſſured the King, that he ſhall defend it if attacked by the whole Ruſſian army.

To ſhew the zeal of the Swedes in the honorable conflict in which they are engaged, we need but mention two facts:—The ſailors having been ordered to attend at the offices in the reſpective diſtricts, where they are regiſtered, the wiſh of the King was communicated to them by old naval officers, when without aſking what their pay would be, they all volunteered to a man. The navy was thus completed in a fortnight.

The levy of all young men from 13 to 25 years, conſtituted no leſs than 280,000 men, ſince many who were above 25 under rated their age, and others inliſted on their right to ſerve their country. This number being far more than is wanted, or the country could well ſupport, the King has been obliged to publiſh a proclamation, ſtating how many, and no more, each diſtrict ſhall furniſh; and alſo thoſe who are of account to be enrolled, ſuch as ſtudents at the univerſities, burghers and mechanics.

Theſe volunteers, are now training in all parts of the country, and ſuch is the public ſpirit, that many attend the drill who are not ſuffered to enliſt.

April 22.

It is ſaid that there are nine ſail of the line ready for ſea in Flufhing harbor.

By ſome of our cruizers from off the coaſt of France, we learn that within the laſt fortnight, two more ſail of the line have been added to a ſtrong force aſſembled in the outer harbor of Breſt, which ſeems in a complete condition for ſea, and ready for a ſtart the firſt fair wind, or any ſuch as may oblige our blockading fleet to quit its ſtation.

It is ſaid that the French, ſince they have been prevented, from importing colonial produce, have diſcovered a ſubſtitute for ceffee, in the roots of endive, or what is more generally called dandelion.

April 23.

The moſt active preparations are making to fit out the expedition deſtined for the aſſiſtance of Sweden. The whole force will probably exceed 20,000 men. Orders have been given for the horſe tranſportation to proceed from the river to Ramſgate, there to take the horſe and men on board, the number of tranſports thus ordered will be ſufficient for four thouſand cavalry.—Part of the troops will, we underſtand, embark at Harwich. They comprize 4000 of the German Legion. The 4th, 28th, 52d, 79th, 32d, and 95th, Britiſh regiments, have already received orders for this ſervice. Two brigades of artillery, with a proportionate number of drivers, will accompany the expedition.

The naval ſtrength of the expedition conſiſts of ſeveral ſail of the line, ſeveral frigates, gun-brigs, and ſome boats of a particular conſtruction built for the enterprize. The whole will be under the command of Admiral Keats and Sir James Saumarez.

Government, it is now aſſerted, believe that the ſquadron ſeen on the 7th of March, by the Mullet ſchooner, was Sir John Duckworths, and not an enemy's ſquadron; otherwiſe it is preſumed, it muſt have fallen into the hands of Sir John.

Bonaparte has publiſhed an Imperial decree, organizing a ſyſtem of education for the whole Empire. By this decree, which comprifes 144 articles, and extends to a great length, all the ſchools, academies, and colleges of France, are connected together under the title of "The Univerſity," and from this inſtitution public education of every deſcription is to emanate.

Bonaparte has preſented to Prince Kurakin a ſnuff box with his portrait ſet in diamonds, valued at 40,000l. for the ſhare the Prince took in the Treaty of Tilſit.

BOSTON, May 25.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

The Galen capt. Hinckley, which arrived here ſince our laſt, brought London accounts down to the 19th April; but no very intereſting events had occurred.

The attention of Europe appeared attracted towards Sweden. Guſtavus Adolphus, with a ſpirit bordering upon temerity, was putting his enemies at defiance; expoſing their conduct, and making ſerious preparations to reſiſt not only the threatened invader from Zealand, but to meet the coloſſus of the north, on the frontier of his Sweediſh dominions. Nothing had occurred in that quarter. The Swediſh bulletins repreſent the Sweediſh army as having preſerved its reputation for valor and diſcipline, in all the rencontres which have taken place. The regular army had been increaſed and a levy en maſſe, of the young men of the Kingdom, had been ordered. This, it was calculated, would produce 150,000 men. No troops had been furniſhed by England to aid the Swedes; but large ſupplies of money, arms, and ſtores, had been received. The Engliſh ſquadron under Hood, with five ſail of Swediſh men of war, had ſailed for the Sound and the Belts. No French or other troops had paſſed the Belt into Zealand; but a conſiderable body of Daniſh ſeamen had paſſed into Holſtein, to be marched into France. Pruſſia and Auſtria had alſo declared war againſt Sweden.

From France we gather nothing of moment. The Emperor Napoleon appeared to be amuſing himſelf in manufacturing Princes Dukes, Barons, Counts, Chevaliers, and other articles of the kind—leaving it to his Chiefs, with their "Dogs of War," to execute his pleaſure in Spain, Portugal, Rome, and the Ottoman Empire.

On American affairs many ſpeculations were daily launched in the Britiſh papers. But in the debates in Parliament the miniſtry continued to hold the moſt pacific language towards the United States; at the ſame time, very few if any indications were apparent of an intention to revoke the late orders in council; yet it was expected that relations of amity between the two nations would be preſerved.

The paſſion in Great Britain for continental conqueſt ons appeared wholly to have ſubſided. The commerce of the country ſtill retains its aſcendency ; convoys to & from various quarters of the Globe, being continually arriving or ſailing ; the credit of the government never ſtood higher ; and the King enjoyed the unbounded confidence of his ſubjects. No extraordinary preſſure of want had been experienced ; and the nation and government, confident in their reſources and ability to maintain their naval ſuperiority on the ocean, appeared reſolved to let France and her vaſſals at defiance : to encounter them in all elements ; and if they like the reſt of Europe, are doomed to fall, to fall in the laſt ditch.

At the laſt dates, great diſtreſs was experienced in Portugal from ſcarcity of proviſions. General Junot had made application to the Britiſh Admiral off Liſbon, to permit ſupplies to enter, and the admiral had diſpatched a cutter to England for inſtructions on the ſubject.

NEW-YORK, June 10.

Rumor.—We have ſeen a gentleman from Waſhington, who left that place on Thurſday laſt. He informs that the rumor of the day, was that Bonaparte had given us ſixty days to decide either for or againſt him—that an extra meeting of Congreſs would be called—that every exertion was making to place our naval force in the beſt repair—that war was expected to take place between America and France—and that the Embargo was to be continued until England revoked her Decrees.

June 14.

War in Miniature.—On the 2d inſt. a detachment of militia of about 150 men, from Rutland County, under the command of Major Charles K. Williams, paſſed through Middlebury on their way to the frontiers of Vermont. The governor has alſo ordered out a detachment of militia from Middlebury county on the ſame expedition, to march on the 13th inſt.

Madrid, Feb. 8.

An article in our Gazette ſtates, that though there are 11 Engliſh ſhips of war lying in the roads before Cadiz, a fleet of 50 tranſports, under the eſcort of ſome armed ſhips, had lately ſailed for St. Lucar. The Spaniſh fleet at Cadiz had received orders to join the French ſquadron lying here, and both had taken in proviſions for three months, and were ready to ſail at the firſt notice.

Banks of the Danube, March 8.

In Servia, arrangements are made which ſeem to indicate that foreign troops are expected in the country. According to a letter from Bucharеſt, the Ruſſian troops in Bender and Choczim, make all neceſſary preparations for a new campaign.

Banks of the Maine, March 18.

In purſuance of an order iſſued by the Aulic council of war, eleven regiments of Croats and Prandours, are now aſſembling to form a cordon on the Turkiſh frontiers;—this cordon is to conſiſt of 70,000 men, and to be commanded by the Arch-Duke Ferdinand, brother to the Empreſs.

To the Officers on the Half Pay of the Britiſh American Forces, and the Gentlemen entitled to receive Military Allowances, reſiding in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada.

GENTLEMEN,

The advertiſement which appeared in the Quebec Gazette of Thurſday the 9th inſt. ſigned by the Deputy Paymaſter General in Canada, would announce to you the recent regulations that the Right Honorable, the Paymaſters General of his Majeſty's Forces, have been pleaſed to make reſpecting the mode of paying the Gentlemen placed on the Eſtabliſhment of Half Pay and Military Allowances in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, whereby you will perceive that from the 25th, of December laſt, the Half-Pay and Allowances will be paid at the Office of JOHN HALE, Eſq. Having the pleaſure, Gentlemen, of a perſonal acquaintance with many of you, and impreſſed with the idea of your entertaining a favorable opinion of me; I am purſuaded you will diſpenſe with the formality of a ſeparate addreſs to you on this occaſion in offering my ſervices as agent to tranſact your concerns here; it therefore only remains with me to ſay, that your intereſts will receive attention and punctuality from me: and to thoſe Gentlemen who may be ſtrangers to my perſon and character I have only to add, that whatever ſecurity may be required for the fulfillment of any truſt they may be pleaſed to repoſe in me, ſhall be given to the extent of their wiſhes, ſignified to me by themſelves, or through the channel of any of their friends.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
your very obt. & moſt
humble Servant.
P. LANGAN.

Quebec, 13th June, 1808.

LONDON, April 4.

The following were ſome of the reports current on Saturday:

"A letter from the commander of one of our ſhips of war, cruizing off the Tagus, dated the 13th of March, ſtates that a boat had come out from Lisbon, with intelligence that an action had taken place in the Mediterranean, in which the Britiſh obtained a decided victory. The particulars were not known at Liſbon, but the reſult had occaſioned extraordinary ſenſation there."

Another account in the following terms, was prevalent in moſt of the public offices:

The Confiance, capt. Yeo, on the 13th ult. picked up a boat at the mouth of the Tagus, in which an Engliſh gentleman, who had found shelter on board the Ruſſian ſquadron, and two other refugees, were making their eſcape to our fleet—they ſtated that accounts had reached Liſbon from Valentia and Alicant, with advice of a ſevere action in the Mediterranean, in which the Engliſh were victorious.

"The ſubſtance of the various accounts received by government through Holland, Portugal, &c. is, that Sir R. Strachan having about the 27th of Feb. been joined by the Windſor Caſtle, of 96 guns, the Leonidas and Nymph frigates, Redwing and Minorca ſloops, proceeded to Palmas Bay, in the iſland of Majorca, where the Spaniſh fleet was at anchor, under cover of a ſmall fort and a chain of batteries, which the enemy, apprized of the approach of our ſquadron, had haſtily conſtructed, and manned with a few ſoldiers from Majorca, and the peaſants of the country, Sir R. immediately led the attack in the Caeſar, followed by the Renown, and was ſo gallantly ſeconded by the other ſhips of his ſquadron, that the whole of the enemy were either taken or deſtoryed.

"As to the force of the enemy, and the number of our prizes, the accounts are contradictory, and ſome of them are irreconcilable to the advices previouſly received. The nature of our loſs is ſimilarly circumſtanced, but it appears to have been extenſive, and it is feared embraces ſome juſtly valued officers."

April 22.

Admiral Duckworth's Squadron.—Upon the ſubject of Sir John Duckworth's late cruiſe, the following is an intereſting extract of a letter from an officer belonging to the ſquadron, dated,

Cawſand Bay (Plymouth) April 18.

"Having run down the Bay of Biſcay and called off the Capes Ortegal and Finiſterre we arrived off Madeira, & found Sir Samuel Hoodſlying in Funchall roads where we remained for two days. On the morning of the 3d. of February, his Majeſty's ſhip Comus gave us intelligence of her having been chaſed two days before to the N. W. off Madeira, and it then become obvious that the deſtination of the French ſquadron was the Weſt Indies, for which we proceeded with all expedition, and made the Iſlands of St. Lucre and Martinique in 21 days.—Off the eaſt end of Martinique we ſaw ſix ſail of the line—we cleared for action & formed the line of battle, but on exchanging ſignals, we found friends inſtead of enemies—it was Sir Alexander Cochrane with his ſquadron, who was waiting to give that enemy a reception of which we were in chace, conceiving that he would take refuge in that port.—Finding his fleet was ſufficient to cope with them in thoſe ſeas, we paſſed all the windward Iſlands, and anchored on the 16th February in Baſterre roads, St. Kitts, where we remained only eighteen hours, juſt long enough to take in water, but no proviſions nor even linen waſhed.—We then proceeded to St. Domingo, where it was ſuppoſed the enemy had proceeded for the purpoſe of landing troops—but on our arrival we found no ſhips.

"After cruiſing in the Mona paſſage for 7 or 8 days, we made all diſpatch for the coaſt of America, and arrived off the Cheſapeake on the 11th of March. We communicated with the Statira frigate, and found that our ambaſſador, Mr. Roſe was at Waſhington for the laſt time, to determine whether it ſhould be peace or war with England. We ſhould have gone in, but the Yankees would not let us have a pilot, nor ſupply us with water or proviſions, which forced us to be content to live upon half our uſual allowance;—they would not give us a ſingle pint of water or a cabbage ſtock. We left the Eurydice, to bring us intelligence that might occur as to peace or war with America, and quitted the hoſpitable ſhores of America for the Weſtern iſlands, where we procured all we wanted, after a very long and very anxious cruiſe.—The governor of Flores (a Portugueſe) came off to us, but being unable to give us any information, the admiral thought it moſt expedient to proceed for England where we arrived this morning, after having been upwards of 3 months at ſea, and made a complete circuit of the Weſtern and Atlantic ocean, a journey of upwards of thirteen thouſand miles."

LIVERPOOL, April 27.

POLITICAL REVIEW.

Mr. Roſe has arrived in London from America; he came in the Statira frigate. A Cabinet council was held at the Foreign Office on Saturday laſt, to deliberate on the ſubject of his communication; we are ſorry the accounts from America are not very favorable to England. Although nothing has hitherto tranſpired which renders an amicable adjuſtment hopeleſs, yet certainly there exiſts good reaſons to fear that the negociations are attended with much difficulty. The American government ſeemed determined to abide by the demands which they have made of bringing all their complaints forward together, and are not diſpoſed to be ſatisfied with a mere apology and reparation for the affair of the Cheſapeake. The diſputed points between the countries involve queſtions of vital national importance; and, however inclined we may be to wiſh for a friendly termination of the differences, we ſee more reaſon to fear than to hope. But the refuſal of the American government to permit admiral Duckworth to water his ſquadron in the Cheſapeake, does not of itſelf render war more probable. It was underſtood when the laſt accounts came away that the embargo remained in full force, and that no relaxations of the meaſures which the American government had adopted was to take place till an anſwer had been received to the diſpatches tranſmitted to Europe. Mr. Erſkine remains in America.—We underſtand that the report of an inſurrection in the Weſtern Country, and of a revolution in the Floridas, under the direction of the French General Moreau, are without foundation.

At this period

army consists of brave, strong and healthy men, inhabitants of the country, who are full of courage; and the nation at large are ready to venture every thing for the defence of their country.

The English ships of war which were at Gottenburgh, are now in the Belt and Sound, and an army of 10,000 men is assembled betwixt Helsingburgh and Melmo, so that there now appears little reason to apprehend invasion on that side.

All intercourse with the continent of Europe is considered as at an end. No doubt is entertained that Koningsberg and Memel will be garrisoned by French troops, for the better carrying into execution the plans of the Continental Despot.

The account of the capture of the vessels by the Hortense and Harmoine French frigates, was brought to Liverpool by the captain of the Jean, who was on board one of the frigates for about nine weeks, and escaped from Brest, with four others in an open boat, on the first inst. and landed at Mevagisay. Ten sail of the line, four frigates, and two were in the harbor of Brest; seven

To Officers on Half-Pay in Upper and Lower Canada.

Gentlemen,

ALTHOUGH I have not the honor of being perfonally known to many of you, I am notwithftanding emboldened to take this method of addreffing you, and tendering you my fervices, as your Agent here, for receiving your Half Pay, or other Allowance from Government, agreeably to Mr. Hale's advertifement in the Quebec Gazette. I flatter myfelf that after 18 years experience which I have had in bufinefs, and not unfrequently of this kind, I fhall be found qualified to difcharge the truft with promptitude, fidelity, and the ftricteft attention to your accommodation and intereffs.—At fame time any fecurity (in Quebec) that may be required for the faithful performance of my Engagements, is ready to be granted, and thofe defirous of more particular information with regard to my Character and Punctuality, are requefted to enquire of the EDITOR, who is authorized to refer them to refpectable teftimonies in York.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your moft obedient,
devoted humble Servant
JOHN MUNRO.

Quebec, 17th June, 1808.

From the London Gazette of April 19.

ADMIRALTY OFFICE, April 19.

Copy of a letter from captain Parker, of his Majefty's fhip Stately, to Vice-Admiral Ruffell, dated off Zealand Oddé, March, 25, 1808.

His Majefty's fhip Stately,
Off Zealand Oddé,
25th March, 1808.

Sir,—It is with much fatisfaction I have the honor to acquaint you with the capture and deftruction of the Danifh fhip of the line Prince Chriftian Frederick, of feventy four guns.—Proceeding towards the Great Belt, in company with his Majefty's fhip Naffau, at 2 P. M. on the 22d inft. we obferved a ftrange fail, and the fignal being made to chace at 5 P. M. Greenall, on the coaft of Jutland, bearing N. W. by N. diftant 10 miles, we difcovered that it was an enemy; and at 6 P. M. Capt. Campbell in the Naffau, got up with the enemy, and commenced the action, and in a few minutes after the Stately clofed; a running fight was now maintained for a confiderable time, the enemy fighting with great obftinacy, until we fucceeded in getting very near and gave fome clofe broadfides, on which he ftruck about half paft nine P. M. At this moment the fhips were within two cables length of the fhore of Zealand; and before my firft Lieutenant, who took poffeffion of the Danifh fhip, could cut away her anchor, fhe grounded. Fortunately this fhip and the Naffau, brought up near to her. During the remaining part of the night we were employed in taking out the prifoners; and at daylight of the 23d it was found impoffible to get the captured fhip afloat, the wind blowing ftrong on the fhore, and that, therefore the only courfe I could follow was to deftroy her.—The neceffity for doing this, and for placing our own fhips out of danger, foon became apparent, as the Danes were preparing their artillery on the coaft, and as our fhips were at anchor only two cables length from the beach, they would have done us great injury. After removing the prifoners and wounded, in doing which we experienced much difficulty from the wind blowing ftrong, a good deal of fea running, the enemy's fhip was fet on fire in the evening of the 23d, & in a fhort time blew up.—I am happy to fay our lofs has been fmall. It is trifling indeed when compared with the enemy, where the flaughter was great, he having fifty-five killed and eighty-eight wounded. We have, however, received confiderable damage in our maffs and rigging. The Prince Frederick was a very fine fhip, copper bolted, commanded by captain Jayfon, with a complement of fix hundred and twenty men, and had five hundred and feventy fix on board.

I have the honor to be, &c.
(Signed) GEO. PARKER.
To Vice-Admiral Ruffell, &c. &c.

[This Gazette contains a letter from Captain Fleetwood Pellew, of his Majefty's fhip Psyche, ftating the capture of the Dutch corvette fhip Scipio, of 24 guns, in Samarang Bay, in the Iland of Java, on the 31ft Auguft laft, together with the Dutch armed brig Ceres, of 12 guns, and a large merchant fhip under their convoy from Batavia, as inferted in the Courier of Monday laft.

London, May 3.

A number of Ships of war by Portugal we underftand had been ordered to be built immediately; war was declared againft South America; and fixteen millions of Spanifh dollars were sequeftered belonging to Spain.

When Bonaparte was at Bordeaux, the merchants prefented a petition to him, praying him to relax the feverity of Decrees againft this country, for unlefs he did, they muft be involved in the greateft diftrefs. Bonaparte peremptorily refufed, adding, "that what he had hitherto done, was nothing to what he meant to do."

WHITEHALL, May 7.

The King has appointed the Right Honorable Henry Baron Mulgrave, Sir Richard Bickerton, Bart, Vice Admiral of the White Squadron of His Majefty's Fleet; William Johnftone Hope, and Robert Ward, Efqrs. the Right Honorable Henry John Vifcount Palmerfton, James Buller, Efq. and William Dornett, Efq. Rear Admiral of the Red fquadron of his Majefty's fleet, to be his Majefty's Commiffioners.

Gottenburgh, April 22.

An Engliſh man of war has brought in here fix brigs, three galliots and one floop, laden with corn and proviſions—which were taken at Flatstraud, where they lay under protection of the fortreſs.—Four more veſſels which refuſed to go were ſet on fire—all Daniſh ſhips.

A ſhort detail of the engagement near Stromſtadt, on the 27th of April laſt, between 28 Norway coaſting veſſels, four Swediſh gun-boats and one mortar-boat. At half paſt 5 o'clock in the morning the ſaid Norway flotilla appeared, mounting guns from 6 to 24 pounders.—Four of our gun boats and one mortar boat rowed to meet them about half the way, half a gun ſhot from the town.

The engagement was began by our gun-boats, and continued under an inceſſant ſhower of balls, for the ſpace of one hour and forty minutes; it terminated ſo that our boats gave the laſt fire.

In the preſence of the ſpectators, two of the enemy's veſſels ſunk, with men and every thing on board. Three of them they towed away, and one was miſſing which doubtleſs has been ſunk.

This engagement is beyond credibility to thoſe who were not ſpectators of it, and poſterity will conſider the account romantic.

On our ſide there were four killed and 2 men ſo much wounded that they died ſhortly after—ſeven were ſlightly wounded.

May 1.

Several letters from Carlſcrona and Calmar received here to day, ſtate, that the French and Ruſſians to the number of 10,000 men, have invaded the iſland of Gothland.—They came over, it is ſaid, in a line of battle ſhip and ſeveral frigates, ſuppoſed to be the Ruſſians from Memel and Liebau; 4000 men were landed on the 22d ult. and 6000 on the 24th.—Such are the contents of theſe letters but we do not give them full credit.

May 2.—Yeſterday arrived under Convoy of his Britannic Majeſty's ſhip Kite, ten ſail of tranſports, laden with military ſtores, ammunition, &c. for the uſe of the Swediſh government. By accounts from Stromſtadt we learn that a ſharp action took place within ſight of that town, between 28 Daniſh gun boats and a ſmall flotilla conſiſting of only 4 Swediſh ones and a mortar, which continued for four hours, in which time two of the Danes were ſunk and one blown up; the reſt made their eſcape; during the action four 24 pound ſhots entered the town of Stromſtadt without doing much damage. Our accounts from Finland are not very pleaſing; it is ſaid the Swediſh army have ſuffered very ſeverely in an action near Brackenſtadt, and have loſt a great number of men and officers;—amongſt the latter, Gen. Hoovenhjelm, who was wounded and made priſoner.

In Norway, General Armfeldt had driven the enemy across the Glommen, and ſtormed and taken one or two forts near Lier, which is not far from Chriſtiana, and was purſuing his advantages.

NEW YORK, June 24.

Lateſt from Europe.—Since copying from the morning papers the articles in the preceding columns, the Editor of the Commercial Advertiſer has been favored with the "Cork Mercantile Chronicle" to the fourteenth of May, containing London dates to the 10th.

The official reports from the Swediſh army are of conſiderable importance; but to Americans, the moſt intereſting information, furniſhed by this arrival, is that which relates to the manner in which our national ſhip & our national meſſengers were received in France, and to the conference between Gen. Armſtrong and the French Miniſter.

It appears that the Otage, on her arrival at l'Orient, was ſeized, by the French Government, on the ground that ſhe had been ſpoken by a Britiſh cruizer off that Port—that Mr. Lewis the meſſenger to France, was detained four days at l'Orient before he was permitted to proceed with his diſpatches for our Miniſter at Paris—that Mr. Nourſe, the Meſſenger to England, was, although ſick, compelled to remain a week on board the Ofage, and then confined—(and ſome of the papers ſtate, under a ſtrong guard) to the town of l'Orient—that General Armſtroog, having demanded of France the abandonment of the French decrees ſo far as they related to the American Commerce, received a prompt and deciſive refuſal, accompanied with the inſolent declarations, "that the American Government was already in full poſſeſſion of the unalterable determination of France, who would not permit a neutral ſtate, and that, "unleſs the American ports ſhould be cloſed againſt Great Britain, until a maritime peace could be obtained, France and America muſt be conſidered as at War with each other" and that the Americans in France alarmed with the apprehenſion of an immediate rupture between the two nations, had petitioned, through our miniſter, for paſſports to return to the United States, which petition was peremptorily and obſtinately refuſed.

Theſe are all the facts which have yet tranſpired; and they are ſufficient to ſuggeſt to our readers a volume of comments.——We have room at preſent only for a ſingle remark—If the United States are to chooſe between war with France, and cloſing our ports againſt the commerce of any nation on earth at the will or by the orders of Bonaparte—whatever may be the language or the ſpirit of our rulers—WAR will be echoed by the people throughout every portion of our inſulted country.

Spaniſh News.—Mr. Peter Lander, of Salem, who came paſſenger in the ſchooner Hannah, which ſailed from Gibraltar the 10th of May, and arrived at Marblehead on Sunday laſt, furniſhes the following minute, which he received from capt. Joſeph Young, of the ſhip Native, which had arrived at Gibraltar from Malaga:—

"The Grand Duke of Berg was to be appointed Regent of Spain, in the abſence of the Royal Family at Bayonne, when a grand council was to be held on the ſubject of the Confederation of the Rhine. Six or ſeven hundred Frenchmen had been killed in the ſuburbs of Madrid. About 100,000 Spaniards were under arms in Valencia—the ſame in Catalonia—armed at their own expence; and there was a ſpirit of univerſal revolt from the French domination. Every ſubject of Spain appears reſolutely determined to oppoſe the French with their lives and fortunes."

Hoſtilities with Algiers.—Captain Thurlo, who arrived at Marblehead, on Sunday laſt, 39 days from Gibraltar, informs, that he ſaw a letter from Mr. Tear, American Conſul at Algiers to Mr. Gavino, at Gibraltar, dated about the 10th April, adviſing that the Algerine ſquadron of three frigates and ſeveral gun brigs were cruizing for Americans, and expreſs the opinion that hoſtilities were declared. Their pretence, when they ſailed, was that they were bound againſt the Tuniſians; but that their object was to capture American property ſufficient to amount to 200,000 dollars for each of the Algerines deſtroyed by the Americans, at the time of their late hoſtilities. Mr. Lear recommended that American veſſels in the Mediterranean, ſhould remain in port. Capt. Thurlo learnt by an Engliſh cruizing veſſel, that they had ſeen the Algerine ſquadron, and thinks they were cruizing between cape Spartel and Madeira. For Captain T's. ſhip news, ſee marine head.

South America.—A London paper of May 9, ſays,—"an expedition, we underſtand, deſtined for South America, is in a ſtate of forwardneſs. General Beresford, now at Madeira, has been ordered home in conſequence of his nomination to the ſecond in command. The Commander in Chief has not as yet been determined on, but it is thought Sir A. Wellesley is to receive this appointment.—In the preſent ſtate of Spain, the moſt favorable event may be expected from this expedition; and the removal of the government of Portugal to the Brazils, alſo affords additional invitations to government for the undertaking it. Our troops, we underſtand, are to act in conjunction with thoſe of the Prince Regent; and whether the ſubjugation of South America to the Engliſh, or Portugueſe government, or whether a political change merely is to be effected there, is a matter, we conceive, of perfect indifference; any alteration in the government of that extenſive country would open its trade to us & would be of the very firſt importance, particularly at the preſent period, when we are ſhut out from almoſt the entire of Europe."

From the Oracle of New York, June 25.

We have at length, received deciſive intelligence of our ſituation with France. Bonaparte's cuſtomary arrogance has been exerciſed to its utmoſt extent towards our reſident miniſter and meſſenger extraordinary. "You muſt go to war with England—You muſt exclude them from your ports, or elſe I ſhall declare war againſt you." England is already in a great meaſure debarred from her cuſtomary priviledges on account of her own aggreſſions; but an Emperor, inflated with victory, and to gratify his ambitious views, wills, that we ſhould become an inſtrument, contrary to our inclination, in furthering his plans, or abide by the conſequences of his reſentment. His ultimatum is given, and we muſt chooſe an alternative; which we hope will not be derogatory to the dignity and character of a nation, to eſtabliſh whoſe independence, ſo great ſacrifices were made. We are on the eve of important events.—We have, however, another difficulty to encounter: The ſettlement of our difficulties with England. One year has elapſed ſince the inſult to our national flag and character was offered, and concurrent circumſtances would not admit a regular adjuſtment until the preſent period. A query naturally ariſes—what effect our preſent ſituation with France will have upon the pending negociation? Should a rupture take place with France, an alliance with England would conſequently take place; but whether Great Britain will make juſt compenſation for her aggreſſions upon our flag and commerce is yet left to conjecture.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient,

JOHN MUNRO.

Quebec, 17th June, 1808.

LONDON, May 10.

The Ruſſian frigate is arrived with diſpatches from Admiral Purvis, whom ſhe left about a fortnight ſince. It is ſaid the news ſhe brings confirms the report of the combined Toulon and Rochefort ſquadrons having got ſafely back to Toulon. The Spartan frigate, Capt. Brenton, ſaw ten ſail of the enemy's ſhips on the 8th ult. off Sardinia, ſteering down the Mediterranean.

The expedition ſailed from Yarmouth yeſterday morning with a fair wind to the northward. It was a grand ſpectacle. The naval force conſiſts of 9 ſhips of the line 5 frigates, 9 ſloops and 15 gun brigs, with upwards of 200 ſail of tranſports with troops, 80 of which have horſes on board. Several gun boats accompany the expedition; they are made upon a new conſtruction—they draw only two feet water, and carry a long 18 pounder, and a carronade. It is conjectured they are to cover the landing of the troops.

The conferrences between Mr. Secretary Canning and Mr. Pinckney have for the preſent terminated; and this day Mr. Nourſe ſets out on his return to America with the reſult. Much diſcuſſion is underſtood to have ariſen upon the ſubject of the right to ſearching merchant ſhips; and it is ſcarcely neceſſary to obſerve, that the intereſt of Great Britain have not been compromiſed by any conceſſion of ours on this important point.

On the 7th inſt. an American veſſel arrived in Gueruſey, which left Rochefort on the night of the 30th ult. in conſequence of a private but poſitive communication, that an order had been received at the cuſtom houſe to embargo all American veſſels at Charante and the other French ports, and which would be carried into effect the following morning.

Late laſt night, a Portugueſe officer arrived at South Audley ſtreet with the long expected and joyful intelligence of the ſafe arrival of the Prince Regent of Portugal at Bahaia, on the 25th of January; and after remaining a month had ſailed for the Rio de Janeiro. His Royal Highneſs made ſeveral excurſions in the ſurrounding country, and was preſent at a great hunting party at Cachœira, about 45 leagues from Bahaia. The concourſe of people from the interior was incredible, and his royal highneſs, with his uſual affability, gave audience to every one.

It appears that the Principe-Real was ſeparated in a gale of wind from the reſt of the ſquadron, and it was not until the night of the 15th inſt. that ſhe was joined by the Bedford man-of war.

The remaining perſons of the Royal family had arrived at the Rio de Janeiro, with the reſt of the Portugueſe and Britiſh men of war, a few of which had entered Parnambuco in diſtreſs.

May 11. Some details have been received from Spain, which are highly intereſting, and ſtrongly mark the national feelings.

At Madrid in the Plaza Maya, 4,000 French troops were collected, with artillery mounted, and every other manifeſtation of hoſtile deſigns againſt the inhabitants. It is ſtated that this force was ſucceſsfully reſiſted by the populace, and that all ranks of perſons united, publicly proclaiming their indignation at the conduct of theſe intruders. When Murat expoſtulated with the people, he obſerved, that his countrymen appeared not to injure, but to protect the Spaniſh people as friends: he was told that weapons of war were not neceſſary for the intercourſe of friendſhip, and that the valor of the people was equal to their own protection.

In another place a large body of french troops are ſaid to have been diſarmed & deprived of their cannon; the people declaring that, if they came as friends they did not want cannon, and if as foes, it was proper for the Spaniards not to ſuffer them to have any.

A volunteer of Arragon is reported to have been affronted by three of the Mamalukes, two of whom he killed, & wounded the other, but was at length killed himſelf.

A man had been tried according to the ſhort ceremonies of martial law for a robbery, and had been found guilty.—He was to undergo military execution; the regiment was drawn up which was to inflict the puniſhment, and before he reached the ranks he was reſcued by the populace, who conducted him to the commander in chief, and loudly demanded his liberation and pardon. Murat thought fit to condeſcend to the wiſhes of the citizens, and the man was conveyed away amidſt loud acclamations.

The journey of the new king to Bayonne had produced an almoſt general diſſatisfaction, which was loudly expreſſed in the different places through which he paſſed—It is ſaid, that in one of his proclamations iſſued on his journey, he declared that but for the beſt aſſurances his roval perſon would beſafe, he would not have acquieſced in the invitation to go to Bayonne; and that in the courſe of four or five days he ſhall, with the aſſiſtance of his good brother and ally ſettle the affairs of Spain to the content and joy of his ſubjects.

NEW YORK June 30.

Late Intelligence.—Arrived this forenoon, a veſſel in ſeven days from Savannah with paſſengers from different places. They inform that it was the report at Gibraltar a few days previous to their ſailing, that there had been an engagement between the united Toulon and Rochefort Squadons, and the Engliſh Fleet, under the command of Lord Collingwood, in which the latter had gained a deciſive victory. No official intelligence had yet arrived, but the known ſituation of the French fleet, cloſely blockaded in the Iſland of Minorca, and all ſupplies cut off, rendered it probable, that being nearly or quite equal in force, they were induced to give the Engliſh battle. And the report's having come by the way of Spain gives it additional credit.

One of theſe Gentlemen further reports that ſhortly before ſailing, he had ſeen a letter from the American Conſul at Algiers to the Conſul at Gibraltar, which ſtates, that, notwithſtanding the late ſettlement of affairs between America and Algiers, the latter power were fitting out their cruizers with the utmoſt expedition. Their preciſe deſtination was not known, but from circumſtances, he apprehended they would act againſt American commerce, and ſtrongly recommended any American veſſels lying in the latter ports, who ſhould be then ready for ſea, to wait events. The Conſul at Tangiers likewiſe gave information that there was then an Algerine poliere lying in Tangier Bay bound on a cruize to the weſtward and that at his writing there were then more to the weſtward of the Straits. At the time, there were two Moorish frigates in the Mole of Gibraltar getting ready with great and the utmoſt diſpatch. He further ſtates there were ſupplies of ammunition and many warlike ſtores ſent to Morocco and the Barbary Powers by ſome foreign nation.

The emiſſaries of France having entered Morocco to endeavor to influence the Emperor, to join Napoleon againſt the Engliſh, exuled great exertions to be made by the latter power, to counteract theſe endeavors. The very exiſtence of their fleets in that quarter, depended ſolely on the friendſhip of thoſe ſtates, as every ſupply of freſh proviſions came entirely from them.

July 6.

Late from London—The ſhip Oſage, Duplex, arrived this morning in 43 days from Falmouth.—To the politeneſs of Mr. Howland, paſſenger, we are indebted for a file of London papers, to the 15th of May, from which we have made the moſt intereſting ſelections for the Commercial Advertiſer of this evening.

We perceive nothing in theſe papers relative to exiſting differences; but the general opinion in London was that America would preſerve peace with England and go to war with France.

It is ſaid that one of the Spaniſh provinces in South America has been ceded to Bonaparte.

Mr. Lewis, returned in the Oſage, and has brought diſpatches from Mr. Pinckney to our government.—Mr. Nourſe, having ſome Mercantile buſineſs to tranſact remains in England.

LONDON, May 12.

The Ship La Renomme is arrived from the Mediterranean with diſpatches, and at length all doubt about the Rochfort ſquadis removed. She brings an account, that on the 18th ult. 10 French ſhips of the line and ſome frigates were ſeen off the Iſland of Sardinia by the Spartan ſteering down the Mediterranean; and the Spaniſh ſquadron were at port Mahon, watched by the Imperieuſe.

This news is confirmed by the accounts brought by two veſſels which arrived yeſterday from a French port, and which bring letters and papers to the 30th ult. Theſe papers ſtate that Admiral Gantheume with 10 ſail of the line, 5 frigates and ſeveral brigs, arrived at Toulon on the 18th of April from the Adriatic. It is a very remarkable proof of the ſeamanſhip of the French, that they have been able to perform this circuit with ſuch ſucceſs. We do not find that the French papers contain any other information of importance.

By a veſſel which arrived yeſterday from a French port, ſome intelligence has been received from France, particularly relating to the political tranſactions of Bonaparte. We have ſeen a copy of the Bayonne Decree—it ſtates in ſubſtance, as we before mentioned, that America having embargoed her ſhipping in order, as Bonaparte ſtates, to ſave her property from the Engliſh, he conceives it necessary, with the same view, to order an embargo upon all American shipping in the ports of France. It prescribes further, that as any American vessels which may be found upon the seas after the 28th ult. must be supposed to have violated the American Embargo, or to be engaged in some illicit commerce, such vessels shall be captured and detained.—On the whole, though this decree may be, in truth, hostile to America, it does not manifest that sort of hostility which the American government can legitimately notice.

Nothing like confiscation is mentioned in this Decree. It is dated the 17th ult. Bonaparte was expected to arrive at Rochefort on the 15th instant, in order to review the port and fleet.—The writer of the letter which contains this intelligence, states his opinion which he rather insinuates to be pretty general in France, that Bonaparte has failed in the object of his journey to Bayonne. Certainly his return so soon to Rochefort would seem to warrant such an opinion. An account from Bordeaux, which states, that 40,000 men where expected there, on their route to reinforce the French army in Spain, appears still more to justify this opinion. For if the Spanish government were entirely subservient to the views of Bonaparte, what occasion for such a formidable French force in Spain? It is evident that he does not rely upon the subserviency of that government, or that he meditates something very like to provoke a great popular insurrection.

Another letter contains the extract of a letter from a French officer in Prussia. This officer states, that the great body of the force in that quarter are preparing to march towards Turkey, and he adds, that he has no doubt he, with his companions, will form a part of the army destined for the expedition to India.

PARIS, April 28.

From Algiers the following official report has been received:—

"The measures pursued by the Dey of Algiers towards the Europeans become every day more violent. The Dey having scarcely the government in his hands, not being assured of the fidelity of his troops, and even the confirmation of his office from the Grand Siegniot, his Sovereign not being arrived, and being involved in a bloody war with the Dey of Tunis, though he might, in spite of the difficulties of his situation, levy tribute upon all nations.

"On the 22d inst. he made a demand of the Swedish, Danish, and Dutch Consuls, that they should bring their presents; and he required of the Consul of America 18,000 double piasters, in order to indemnify him for the loss of nine Algerines taken in an American vessel. The Consul pretended that the crew of the vessel had thrown the men overboard, as they were on the point of being boarded by one of her cruizers.

"The Consul of Sweden immediately agreed to the present.

"On the 23d, the three Consuls of Sweden, Holland and America, were summoned to the Palace.

"The Consul of Holland said, he expected instructions from his government, and that he could not, till he received those instructions, make any present. On this the Dey caused it to be intimated to him, that unless he instantly, on the arrival of his messenger, receive his present, he should put his children into irons and send them to labour.

"The Consul of America had not yet received official tidings of the fact of which the Dey had complained, and thought he could not, without the order of his Government, pay the 18,000 piasters.

"The Dey answered him, that unless he should pay the sum in four days he should cast him in irons, or he must deliver to him nine Americans, whom he would hang up at the gate of Bab Azoon.

"Mr. Ulrich, Consul of Denmark, making representation of the state of his country, said, that the vessel which contained presents had been seized by the English and confiscated, and that the English Agent at Algiers himself would testify this: the Consul solicited time of the government; but the Dey paying no respect to the character of an Agent, speaking in the name of his master, caused him to be seized by the officers of justice in the midst of the Palace, and taken to prison, amidst the shouts of a barbarous populace.

"Those who could enter into this horrid prison saw this worthy man among the slaves in his official dress, and loaded with a chain of sixty pounds weight, which Mr. Ulrich bore with fortitude and courage; he merely recommended to his friends the care of his wife and five children.

"At length the Dey resolved, on the earnest entreaties of all the Europeans Consuls, to set the Danish Consul at liberty, and while he was occupied working with all the slaves, they came and took of his chain.

"What security is there against the renewal of these acts of violence.

"All the slaves here are treated with the most horrid cruelty: 450 Portuguese are shut up in prison.—The Court of Lisbon delayed sending the tribute. The government has not sent them any relief, and they are in extreme wretchedness. The officers as well as sailors, are condemned to labor, and are loaded with ignominy.

"A great number of Neapolitans, also slaves, not in a less pitiable situation; and the Dey, who expects to conquer Tunis in the first campaign, hopes to make a booty of 3000 more European slaves, whose ransom he will fix very high. Since he has been forced to give up all the slaves, who were subjects of the Emperor Napoleon, it seems that he is resolved to make his system of robbery press harder upon the other foreigners."

YORK, JULY 23, 1808.

DEPARTED this life on the 20th inst. Mr. PARSHALL TERRY. His death was occasioned by his getting into the River Don on horseback. By this misfortune, an exemplary Wife and large helpless family are left to the care of the ALL disposing Providence, and a refistless appeal is made to the benevolence and sympathetic generosity of a virtuous public. The particular situation of the Road near the Don Bridge, calls imperiously upon the Commissioners appointed by his Excellency, for the particular care of the Roads, and employing the stored money, for immediate repair, as many lives are seriously threatened with danger by its present state, in consequence of the Causeway being removed by an excessive flood. The public when seen, forgets the nature of the required improvement, and as a part of duty we earnestly recommend to public attention.

To Officers on Half-Pay in Upper and Lower Canada.

Gentlemen,

ALTHOUGH I have not the honor of being perſonally known to many of you, I am notwithſtanding emboldened to take this method of addreſſing you, and tendering you my ſervices, as your Agent here, for receiving your Half Pay, or other Allowance from Government, agreeably to Mr. Hale's advertiſement in the Quebec Gazette. I flatter myſelf that after 18 years experience which I have had in buſineſs, and not unfrequently of this kind, I ſhall be found qualified to diſcharge the truſt with promptitude, fidelity, and the ſtricteſt attention to your accommodation and intereſts.—At ſame time any ſecurity (in Quebec) that may be required for the faithful performance of my Engagements, is ready to be granted, and thoſe deſirous of more particular information with regard to my Character and Punctuality, are requeſted to enquire of the EDITOR, who is authorized to refer them to reſpectable teſtimonies in York.

I have the honor to be,

Quebec, 17th June, 1808.

To the Officers on the Half Pay of the British American Forces, and the Gentlemen entitled to receive Military Allowances, reſiding in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada.

GENTLEMEN,

The advertiſement which appeared in the Quebec Gazette of Thurſday the 9th inſt. ſigned by the Deputy Paymaſter General in Canada, would announce to you the recent regulations that the Right Honorable, the Paymaſters General of his Majeſty's Forces, have been pleaſed to make reſpecting the mode of paying the Gentlemen placed on the Eſtabliſhment of Half Pay and Military Allowances in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, whereby you will perceive that from the 25th, of December laſt, the Half-Pay and Allowances will be paid at the Office of JOHN HALE, Eſq. Deputy Paymaſter General in Quebec, and that it will be neceſſary for you to appoint an agent here to receive it at that office.

Having the pleaſure, Gentlemen, of a perſonal acquaintance with many of you, and impreſſed with the idea of your entertaining a favorable opinion of me; I am purſuaded you will diſpenſe with the formality of a ſeparate addreſs to you on this occaſion in offering my ſervices as agent to tranſact your concerns here; it therefore only remains with me to ſay, that your intereſts will receive attention and punctuality from me: and to thoſe Gentlemen who may be ſtrangers to my perſon and character I have only to add, that whatever ſecurity may be required for the fulfillment of any truſt they may be pleaſed to repoſe in me, ſhall be given to the extent of their wiſhes, ſignified to me by themſelves, or through the channel of any of their friends.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
your very obt. & moſt
humble Servant.

LONDON, May 9.

Since our laſt, information of a later date had been received from Sweden.—Our brave ally is proceeding in the invaſion of Norway, not without meeting reſiſtance. For details, we refer to our foreign intelligence. We cannot with truth attach great importance to the conqueſt of Norway as a military operation, though we are aware of its reſources—it would furniſh us with a ſupply of timber, &c. It is only in one reſpect that it is of moment. The acquiſition of that country cannot fail to have the moſt beneficial effect upon the public mind in Sweden. The Swedes are a people ſenſible of national honor; they are the inveterate foes of Denmark; and the exerciſe of dominion over one of the provinces of their adverſary will certainly counteract the impreſſion ariſing from the probable conqueſt of Finland. The date of our laſt intelligence from the Grand Duchy, is of the 7th of April. There is no further account of the aſſerted account of the Ruſſians. It is probable they may be content to retain a military poſition within the frontier of the prince. Maſterly and admirable as has been the retreat of Gen. Kingſpot, it is not to be expected that he can with all his collected forces act on the offenſive.

Poſitive information is derived from Holland, that the Rochefort ſquadron, is in Toulon, and that no battle has taken place.

May 10.

On the 25th ult. the anniverſary of the eſtabliſhment of the orders of Unity was celebrated with great ſolemnity at Amſterdam. The King made a ſpeech in Dutch, which was replied to in a long oration by the Chevalier Van der Palm, the ſpeaker of the order. His ſpeech is very long, full of "wiſe laws," and moral ſayings, and eternally referring to the very prudent motto of the Dutch Knights:

"Doe wel, en zie met on."

"Act well and do not look about you."

A very wiſe admonition we muſt confeſs.

May 13.

We have received a further confirmation of the rigorous or hoſtile treatment now experienced by the Americans in the ports of the enemy. Two veſſels arrived yeſterday from different ports in France, one of which ſailed on the 20th ult. and the other effected her eſcape on the 4th inſt. The accounts they bring are amply corroborative of thoſe given in our ſecond page, relative to the decree iſſued by Bonaparte at Bayonne, which is now acted upon to the full extent of its rigor, and a ſtrict embargo has been laid on all American veſſels and property, as well in all the ports of France as in thoſe of Holland.

The late Admiral Rainier has left property to the amount of 250,000l. and after providing amply for his near relations has made the following bequeſt:—

"I bequeath one tenth part of my perſonal property to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, for the time being, towards the reduction of the national debt, in acknowlegement of the generous bounty of the national eſtabliſhment of the royal navy, in which I acquired the principal part of the fortune I now have, which has exceeded my merit and pretenſions."

It is thought that France mediates the deſperate attempt of ſending the whole of the Breſt fleet to ſea, in order, by joining ſome other of her ſquadrons with it, to raiſe the blockade of Cadiz, and take the Spaniſh ſhips into better keeping than that harbor is at preſent ſuppoſed to afford. It is the object of the Britiſh government to anticipate theſe views.

Among the officers who aſſembled laſt week at the Navy office, to paſs their examination for Lieutenants, a young gentleman appeared for that purpoſe, by whoſe certificates from his late commanding officers, it appeared that he had more than twenty times riſked his life to ſave thoſe of his fellow creatures, by leaping overboard, after thoſe who had fallen into the ſea, in gales of wind, and when the ſhip was going at a great rate; and that he had the ſingular good fortune, by theſe means of ſaving the lives of a dozen ſeamen. Lord Mulgrave was ſo pleaſed with the extraordinary intrepidity & zeal of the young man, that he immediately preſented him with a lieutenant's commiſſion.—He is a native of Cornwall, & not yet 22 years of age. The crew of his Majeſty's ſhip Foudroyant had generouſly preſented him with a handſome ſword, on which his fortunate exertions in preſerving the lives of three of their ſhipmates, are expreſsly engraven.

May 14.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived this morning. It confirms the report of the Ruſſians having landed on the iſland of Gothland; but their force was not more than 2000 men; and it is ſaid they retired after plundering the inhabitants. Oland has alſo been taken poſſeſſion of by the Ruſſians—they landed the beginning of April but were ſoon afterwards recalled.—They have ſince landed a ſecond time and taken poſſeſſion of it.

The progreſs of the Swedes in Norway is leſs rapid than it was.—General Armfeldt has paſſed the mountains of Mangeil Fjeil; but the Norwegians, he candidly admits, begin now to attack his troops. A ſmall Swediſh detachment has been ſurrounded and taken priſoners.

Report is afloat in military circles, that a grand expedition will ſoon ſtart, to conſiſt of 20,000 men. Sir Arthur Wellefley or Genl. Beresford to comman it; with a Brevet rank.

May 15.

Accounts have been received, ſtating that a Treaty has been ſigned at Bayonne, between Bonaparte and the new king of Spain. The following is the ſubſtance:

By the firſt article, Bonaparte recognizes the new king of Spain, Ferdinand the VII.

By the ſecond he confers upon him the adminiſtration of Portugal till a general peace.

Another article relates to the Prince of Peace, who, we hear had not been releaſed from priſon at the date of the Treaty, but who is to be ſent into France.—The article contains an accuſation againſt him.

Another article declares that Spain joins in the confederation of the Rhine, and that her contingent is to be 50,000 men.

Another article cedes to France a port in Spaniſh America.

There are ſecret articles which have not tranſpired.

New York, July 23.

STARVATION!—By the laſt arrivals from the different Weſt-India Iſlands, we find that proviſions of every deſcription, had fallen upwards of 20 per cent, and from the plentiful ſupplies pouring in from Nova-Scotia and England, there was not the leaſt proſpect of ſtarvation, which has been ſo anxiouſly looked for by by our humane Preſident. Thus there is no hope of relief for us—the Embargo muſt continue.

By the Brig Junius, arrived at Philadelphia, in 11 days from St. Croix, we learn that 11 or 12,000 barrels of flour had arrived at that Iſland and St. Thomas; and that at St. Croix flour was ſelling at 16 dollars per barrel.

Richard M'Neal Eſq. appointed Counſel of his Britannic Majeſty for the Orleans Territory, has been recognized in that character, by the Preſident of the United States, and an exequator has been granted to him accordingly.

From the Waſhington Federaliſt.

We are told that Mr. Pinckney has forwarded to our Government a number of propositions as the basis of a commercial treaty between this country and England, submitted to him by the British government. They propose placing the United States on the footing of the most favored nation in all commercial points, so soon as we chuse to renew her trade. Mr. Erskine, it is rumored is authorised to proceed in the arrangement of this subject. We cannot however state any thing respecting it with certainty.

Mr. Erskine the English Minister, arrived in the city last evening, from Philadelphia. We believe he received dispatches from his government by the packet which arrived at New-York on the 19th. It is rumored that he is authorised to enter into a friendly discussion of the differences existing between the two governments.

Madeira restored. Captain Hudson arrived from Madeira, informs us, that a few days previous to his sailing ; the Island of Madeira had been restored by the British to the Portuguese government. He states that an English cutter had arrived in 6 days from England, bringing new orders and regulations for that Island ; in consequence of which General Beresford resigned his authority and the Palace he had occupied to the new Governor. The English colours were taken down and the Portuguese raised at the forts. Gen. Beresford was about to embark on board a frigate, and it was supposed, would immediately proceed to the Brazils.

The French General at Lisbon had levied a new contribution upon the inhabitants, seized all the provisions in the city, and indeed dealt them out to the people with a very sparing hand, that many were in reality perishing with hunger.

The Seal fishery upon the Ice at Newfoundland, has been very fortunate, four vessels engaged in that business, caught no less than 8344, and others have been equally successful.

An attempt was made by the Governor of Vermont, to induce a competent number of the militia to volunteer their services to enforce the Embargo law, but it did not take. The Green Mountain Boys revolt at the idea of taking up arms to support so odious and oppressive a measure.

Flour at St Croix is selling at 6½ dollars a barrel, and Indian-corn meal at 100 dollars a hogshead.

CONTINENTAL PASS.

To all Ploughmen, Cotsmen and Yeomen, and all sorts of men not excepting Hangmen, I send—Greeting.

WHEREAS the bearer hereof has a mind to travel through this our respective District, about his lawful business, and has requested this our pass, a letter of safe conduct ; and after due examination of his character, finding nothing to impede his said travel, I therefore enjoin you to suffer him to pass, repass, and trespass, through Highgate, Lowgate, Newgate and Hellgate, and all other gates except Heavensgate ; for being notoriously known that he has lived in fame and shame among his neighbors this seven years, and there is not one of them all will give him a good word, I therefore enjoin you to suffer him to have egress, regress, disgrace and goodgrace, and all other grease and grace except God's grace.

Given from our house of office, this thirty-third day of the Month called Maggot, in the year of Horn Fair.

SIR GRIMSON MONDONEGA.

By his Honor's Command,
GILES LICHSPEAKERT, Secretary.

WHEREAS Charles Anderson and Abraham Elliott, have been duly appointed, and obtained Letters of Administration out of the Surrogate Court for the Midland Distr ct of the Province of Upper Canada ; they hereby give notice to all those who may have any claims on the Estate of the late Stephen Elliott, to bring in their accounts duly authenticated, immediately to the said Administrators ; and request all those who are in any wise indebted to said Estate, to make payment without delay to the said Administrators, who are authorized to give discharges, or they will avail themselves of this notice to make a dividend of said Estate among the Heirs, on the first Monday of January next.

JORDAN POST, Senr.

York, July 30th, 1808.

YORK, JULY 30, 1808.

ON Saturday last, we had the high satisfaction and pleasure to witness the return of our Lieut. Governor, after a long and fatiguing tour of more than 5 weeks to Amherstburg, Sandwich, &c.

Still resolved on seeing and regulating every thing without depending on the reports of others, he neither spares his person nor considers the expence, whenever the King's service, (which we are assured is his ruling passion) requires his exertions for the good of the Province under his Government.

The journey to Amherstburg by land, is little short of 400 miles.

His Excellency however, returned by Lake Erie, on board the Camden, having had rather a tedious passage of 7 days, and blowing adverse weather.

We are greatly interested in the report of Mr. Erskine's powers to negociate with the American government, and do not hesitate to say, that the groundless cause of difference must speedily be settled to the entire satisfaction of all parties. War against the inexorable Tyrant of France we should not be mortified to hear of, should his unfeeling mandates provoke it from American indignation.—The affairs of Spain are much confused and troublesome through the unrighteous agency of this depraved Gothican, whose intrigues are subservient to the overturning that monarchy, and becoming its sovereign himself.

P. LANGAN.

Quebec, 23th June, 1808.

YORK, AUGUST 6, 1808.

We regret that on our publiſhing day, we are not in poſſeſſion of any foreign papers, and conſequently unable to give ſubſcribers any intereſting news.

It is ſtated upon the authority of information received from a private and credible New-York letter, that the Britiſh government are in poſſeſſion of the Town of Cadiz and from other authority, of a great part of the Spaniſh naval force; from this information we do not withhold our belief. The preſent ſelf created ſovereign of France, is hated, deſpiſed, feared and unvenerated in Spain, except by ſuch as are anxious to improve their circumſtances under his protection and patronage. Our great naval pre-eminence and national power, deeply intereſts every public ſpirited and virtuous Spaniard, and the ancient ſovereignty of their country, will be indelibly ſuppoſed at this Criſis, to depend upon Britiſh protection and energy.

Were an additional incentive wanting to that gratitude and admiration, which the beneficient conduct of the firſt and beſt of men of this Province have inſpired, it might now be unneceſſary to diſburthen my overflowing mind, of the grateful load which oppreſſes it; but the providential oppreſſion is ſo tinctured with conſolatory feelings of grateful affection, and undeſcribable emotions and obligation, that a total ſilence might be miſinterpreted. A manly and unerring ſenſe of the debt, is not unaccompanied with a fixed and unalterable farewell to the unguided and deſtroying imprudence, which has ſo often led to proſpects of apparently unſought and diſhonourable death, and almoſt unpitied deſtruction. In human lives extended to ordinary duration, memorable Aera's arrive. In one, which I ſhall ever conſider as one in mine, if thankful ideas and truly agreeable ſenſations are not begotten, they are renovated with a treble force, and to whatever future ſituation, a providential diſpenſation may devote me, I ſhall feel a juſt pride, an upright gratification, and the diſcharge of a high, a true and double moral duty (however the moſt juſtly elevated ſituation of the beſt of benefactors may diſcountenance it) of teſtifying the firſt and moſt grateful feelings of the human mind. In Area's ſo providentially ordered, new ideas of ſuch perfect origin and permiſſion exiſt, that it is not the overwhelming of cares, or a mind borne down by the improper exerciſe of ill directed judgements which bar their experiencing irreſiſtable motives and an unconquerable inducement to juſt and happy exerciſe. In this recent eſcape, his ſympathy and divine benevolence have awoke anew, thoſe mental energies, which have lain dormant, and whoſe operation heretofore unknown, unexerted, and nearly uſeleſs, have unteemed with perſonal happineſs, and the public proofs of juſt and genial gratitude.

This generous order for the beſt medical aſſiſtance, was obeyed with fervid and ſympathetic ardor and the duties ſo feelingly and generouſly diſcharged by the medical gentlemen, have left upon me impreſſions deeply infixed and immoveably juſt. To thoſe friends whoſe unalloyed and generous ſympathy partook, relieved and lightened the load of my general ſufferings, and whoſe feelings received a not unwelcome increaſe by my healthful amendment; time and future conduct, will beſt beſpeak and convey my feelings and acknowledgements.

We have great ſatisfaction in witneſſing ſo much of the preſent ſeaſon, ſo uncommonly favorable to cultivation and the general good of the Province. So far as obſervation will enable us to judge, the Lakes contain at preſent larger quantities of water than ordinary, during the ſummer ſeaſon. This reminds us of the Indian tradition, which leads to believe, that there is a ſeptennial increaſe and decreaſe of the Provincial Lakes; from general good authority, this obſervation has been regularly noticed.

By the generous benevolence exerciſed towards the family of the late Mr. Terry and his widow, we are enabled to intimate publicly, that the exceeding favors ſhewn to his twin daughters, and the preſent ſituation of the family, are gratefully remembered. The general, though unſought and unmerited kindneſs from the amiable and beſt of ladies is feelingly acknowledged.

The particular ſituation and ſtate of the Don Bridge, making part of the public road eaſtward of the Town, requires a more general and benevolent interference. A recollection of what was done laſt year, for the generous and public purpoſe of bettering & improving Yonge Street, muſt act as a powerful ſtimulus, and an example well worthy of general intimation; to whatever may be offered or appropriated to improve it, a mite ſhall not on our parts be wanting. We cannot for a moment ſuppoſe, that a part of the Diſtrict inveſtment, formed by a Provincial Law, would be miſapplied, when a neceſſary and public purpoſe requires; that a more diſtant one ſhould not be fulfilled in preference to it. We are much gratified and flattered that, the Bridge near the mouth of the Don is completed, and wait impatiently for a liſt of the ſubſcribers to publiſh their names.

It is reported by the friends of Mr. Thorpe, that he is appointed Juſtice of Sierra Leone, for the gratification and contentment of his well wiſhers, we give the following Geographical and Hiſtorical account of the ſettlement upon that Iſland. We are ſtill uninformed whether he poſſeſſed ſufficient intereſt to get any friend of his appointed Surveyor General, or to any other intereſting Office in that Sable Government.

"A ſettlement, from the pureſt motives of humanity, was formed at Sierra Leone, upon the coaſt of Africa, under the patronage of a very reſpectable ſociety of gentlemen in London, in the year 1791. The benevolent purpoſes for which it was intended, are to introduce the right of knowledge, and the comforts of civilization into Africa; and to cement and perpetuate the moſt confidential union between the European Colony and the natives of that country.

The company has ordered experiments to be made, concerning the growth of ſugars in their ſettlements, which have met with ſuch ſucceſs, as to encourage a hope that the preſent high price for that commodity may be ſoon reduced, by a rivalry with the Weſt-India merchants. This benevolent colony proceeds with diligence in clearing of land, and building of houſes. Some delay was occaſioned in obtaining the united conſent of the ſurrounding chiefs, which was at length procured, and the diſpoſitions of king Naimbanna appeared to be very friendly. The climate is found to be more ſalubrious than was expected. We wiſh ſucceſs to the ſettlement, eſtabliſhed upon principles that do honor to humanity."

A settlement of a similar nature was formed upon the island of Bulam, on the same coast, to the eastward of the island of Bulgos, under the direction of Mr. Dalrymple; but this is now entirely relinquished. A great part of the colonists has been massacred by the natives of the shore at the mouth of the river Gambia, who were accustomed to make annual plantations of rice in Bulam; and it was certainly a gross error that this circumstance was not before discovered, and a formal bargain of the isle made with the Africans. The surviving colonists have taken refuge among their countrymen at Sierra Leone; and Mr. Dalrymple, the governor, has returned to England.

At Sierra Leone, on the contrary, where justice and prudence were observed in the acquisition, the colonists are on the happiest terms of friendship with the natives; and make every progress in completing their buildings, and laying out their lots of land for cultivation. Only one death has happened amongst the white people since the date of the last dispatches: those who were then ill, were either recovered, or in a convalescent state, and the physician reports that the mode adopted by him for treating the fever of the climate, had been attended with so much success, that he saw little reason to be more apprehensive of its future effects than of those of an ague in England.

The original proprietors had begged leave we understand to resign to the management and direction of government, all their right and interest, finding from melancholy experience, it unprofitable and deep losing game; and government we hear have accepted their resignation. It has been also said, Mr. Thorpe bears in his pocket, a new constitution, adapted to the interests of its valuable subjects.

On Wednesday the 3d instant, the examination of the scholars in the District Grammar school, was held in presence of the Committee and several gentlemen of this Town.

The progress and improvement the pupils manifested in their exercises, received the acknowledgement of the audience. And it is presumed, that institutions in which an English and classic education is systematically acquired, are of the greatest utility to the public; since they essentially and more largely contribute to the removal of ignorance, the improvement of morals and the formation of the characters of youth into praiseworthy excellence.

For the satisfaction and to ease the anxiety of any persons, respecting the Continental Pass, published in our last; we beg leave to inform such, that our valuable friend Capt. George Playter, obliged us with it six months ago, and that during the late war in America, he has as often used it, as benevolence and good nature made it necessary.

Just as our Paper was going to Press, we received States Gazettes of the 21 ultimo, from which we extract the following interesting intelligence:

From the Philadelphia Political Register.

We yesterday mentioned the arrival of the British June packet at Halifax.—Capt. Carman, arrived at this port from Passamaquoddy says, that he saw there a London paper, brought by the Packet, which stated that Mr. Rose has to return to America, with Plenipotentiary powers, in the Latona frigate, and that Copenhagen had again been taken possession of by the British. Captain Carman is well known in this city as a man of veracity.

THE FLEETS.

On the 29 h of April, the British fleet commanded by Lord Gallingwood, consisting of 12 sail of the line, was spoken not far from Toulon, steering from that place, in order to commence the blockade of the Toulon and Rochefort squadrons, which were lying there.

Sag Harbor, July 9.

Capt. J. H. Horton, arrived here yesterday from Machias, informs that he saw there a hand bill, issued from St. John's, which gave an account of a great naval engagement in the Mediterranean, in which the French were defeated. The English acknowledged to have lost 5000 men, and three ships, which blew up during the engagement.

Exceptions allowed to be made in Affidavit.

1st All Officers on Half Pay are allowed by Act of Parliament to continue in the receipt of that allowance, and to hold any subaltern Commission, in Regiments of Militia, Fencibles, or Volunteers; viz. Captain-Lieutenant, Lieutenant, Enfign, Quarter Maſter, Surgeon, Aſſiſtant Surgeon, Adjutant, and Battalion Clerk; and to receive the full pay and allowances of ſuch Commiſſion during war; and in time of peace, when the Militia is only embodied for 28 days in the year, there is no reſtriction—but an officer on half pay may receive full pay of any rank in the Militia for thoſe 28 days without its preventing him receiving his half pay.

2nd The King has the power of allowing any Officer on half Pay, to receive that allowance, together with his pay and allowances on the Staff, or in the Garriſons, in which alſo the Barrack Department is included; and in every inſtance of this being granted, the Secretary at War is to ſignify it as his Majeſty's pleaſure, to the Paymaſter General.

Officers who do not attend in perſon, will find it neceſſary to appoint an Agent at Quebec, furniſhed with a regular power of Attorney, in Duplicate.

The Commiſſioners appointed to carry into execution the Property Act, having likewiſe iſſued inſtructions on this head, notice is further given—1ſt that when the income of a perſon derived from any ſource payable out of the Revenues of Great Britain amounts to £.150 per annum, a deduction of ten per cent. will be made from the net half pay; 2d that when the whole Britiſh income of the party amounts to £.50 per annum and is under £.150, the tax will be reduced after the rate of one ſhilling for every pound Sterling that the income is proved to be under £150—and 3d that when the whole Britiſh income in the aggregate does not amount to £.50, the officer may claim an exemption from the payment of any tax whatever, in which caſes an Affidavit will be required.

AFFIDAVIT to be made by a perſon reſiding out of Great Britain entitled to any Annuity or Penſion, payable by his Majeſty, or out of the public Revenue of Great Britain where the whole of the income "in Great Britain" ariſes therefrom, claiming an Exemption or Abatement under an Act paſſed in the 46th year of his preſent Majeſty's Reign, intitled "An Act for granting to his Majeſty, during the preſent War and until the 6th day of April next after the Ratification of a Definitive Treaty of Peace a Contribution on the Profits ariſing from property, Profeſſions, Trades, and Offices" as having an income under £.150 per annum for the year ending 5th April, 180 .

I residing at do ſwear that from the 6th day of April 180 to this date, the whole of my income in Great Britain was derived from my Allowance of Half Pay as a reduced in Regiment of and did not exceed the ſum of £ per annum.

To Officers on Half-Pay in Upper and Lower Canada.

Gentlemen,

ALTHOUGH I have not the honor of being perſonally known to many of you, I am notwithſtanding emboldened to take this method of addreſſing you, and tendering you my ſervices, as your Agent here, for receiving your Half Pay, or other Allowance from Government, agreeably to Mr. Hale's advertiſement in the Quebec Gazette. I flatter myſelf that after 18 years experience which I have had in buſineſs, and not unfrequently of this kind, I ſhall be found qualified to diſcharge the truſt with promptitude, fidelity, and the ſtricteſt attention to your accommodation and intereſts.—At ſome time any ſecurity (in Quebec) that may be required for the faithful performance of my Engagements, is ready to be granted, and thoſe deſirous of more particular information with regard to my Character and Punctuality, are requeſted to enquire of the Engliſh, who is authorized to refer them to reſpectable teſtimonies in York.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient,
devoted humble Servant
JOHN MUNRO.

Quebec, 17th June, 1808.

To the Officers on the Half-Pay of the Britiſh American Forces, and the Gentlemen entitled to receive Military Allowances, reſiding in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada.

GENTLEMEN,

The advertiſement which appeared in the Quebec Gazette of Thurſday the 9th inſt. ſigned by the Deputy Paymaſter General in Canada, would announce to you the recent regulations that the Right Honorable, the Paymaſters General of his Majeſty's Forces, have been pleaſed to make reſpecting the mode of paying the Gentlemen placed on the Eſtabliſhment of Half-Pay and Military Allowances in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, whereby you will perceive that from the 25th, of December laſt, the Half-Pay and Allowances will be paid at the Office of JOHN HALE, Eſq. Deputy Paymaſter General in Quebec, and that it will be neceſſary for you to appoint an agent here to receive it at that office.

Having the pleaſure, Gentlemen, of a perſonal acquaintance with many of you, and impreſſed with the idea of your entertaining a favorable opinion of me; I am purſuaded you will diſpenſe with the formality of a ſeparate addreſs to you on this occaſion in offering my ſervices as agent to tranſact your concerns here; it therefore only remains with me to ſay, that your intereſts will receive attention and punctuality from me; and to thoſe Gentlemen who may be ſtrangers to my perſon and character I have only to add, that whatever ſecurity may be required for the fulfillment of any truſt they may be pleaſed to repoſe in me, ſhall be given to the extent of their wiſhes, ſignified to me by themſelves, or through the channel of any of their friends.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
your very obt. & moſt
humble Servant.
P. LANGAN.

Quebec, 13th June, 1808.

YORK, AUGUST 13, 1808.

From private and authentic intelligence received by us, the poſſeſſion of the Town of Cadiz and the principal part of the Spaniſh Navy by our Government, gain our ſtrongeſt belief. Although our national political ſyſtem, obliges us to act towards the Spaniſh nation whilſt allied to the preſent French, with general hoſtility, their torn and unhappy ſituation conſtrains no ordinary pity in the Britiſh breaſt. That a convention with their honeſt and virtuous governors has placed their Naval force under our guidance and protection, is our impreſſion of the ſubject, and that there is both national vigor and energy ſufficient amongſt them, to reſcue their country and government from French tyranny and cabaliſm, is our diſintereſted and perfect hope. Should the event be partially averted, and the worſt party gain an aſcendency, it is not unlikely that through our ſuccour and aſſiſtance, the former King and his ſtedfaſt ſubjects may remove to South America, a country at once rich, extenſive, inviting and worthy the preſence of a ſecond ſovereign. The pride and exceſſive indulgence enjoyed by European Spaniards for a century paſt, have been too much pampered and nurtured by the exceſſive wealth amaſſed in, and drawn from it. That it is alſo inſufficient for being formed into a new and powerful monarchical government is an undoubted fact, and that the ancient Spaniſh government may find preſent ſafety and no diſconſolate ſhelter in its Provinces, is equally true. That ſuch an arrangement is contemplated and ſeriouſly intended by the much troubled party we believe, and that their removal would eventually and ultimately benefit our mother country and government, is plain to a common capacity. We at this moment, have a lively intereſt in their movement, and wait impatiently for the intereſting criſis. If the reſigned monarch removes in uniſon with our wiſhes, the laſt reigning King, cannot figure but as the Jupe and ſilly tool of Bonaparte. Rather than become one of, or move in ſuch a nugatory capacity the Portugueſe Prince generouſly left his European government, and ſpurned at the diſgraceful terms, on which it could be held, and is now a reſpectable and dignified Monarch in America.

When in future more intereſting matter ſhould fail us; we ſhall pleaſingly ſuggeſt ſuch rules and directions of general uſe, as the public may benefit by, viz.

Before any particular work is begun this year either in the ſtreets, or in the public highways leading to this Town; We feel it a relative duty to point to commiſſioners and overſeers of roads and others duly authoriſed to regulate proceedings of that nature. That we ſee an evident and expenſive impropriety in erecting wooden bridges over the various Ravines and the number of Gullies and ſmall ſtreams falling into the Lake. In a nine years reſidence in the place, we have ſeen a number of Bridges of that nature built, with little taſte and leſs profit. Placed in ſuch places as they are, the conſequence ariſing is, they are almoſt immediately expoſed to rotting, againſt which it is not poſſible to guard, and a ſeven years duration is what very few of them can boaſt of, or exceed. Such of them as are not in a tottering and almoſt uſeleſs ſtate attended with danger & great inconvenience, are permitted, & the decayed works are replaced by others of ſhort ſervice, little laſting and leſs ornament. In this country where flag ſtones can be had in great plenty and much facility, their obvious uſe in the formation of ever during Conductors in Ravines and ſmall Streams, muſt occur to every perſon in the leaſt converſant with the ſubject. A quarter of, or the third part of the ordinary Toiſe of ſtone, will generally be ſufficient for a water courſe in any one place, which in or about the town may require. A maſon's labor or extra labor is not neceſſary in placing them, which may be done perfectly with as much eaſe as imperfectly, by any perſon, and when made ſomething longer than our common Bridges are wide, nothing elſe is required but to cover them with earth, until a perfect level is formed with the road. We are earneſt in our recommendation of this to public notice and practice, as our wiſh is, that works of common utility may be made the leaſt coſtly, long during, and beſt method to advance the public and general advantage.

To the united intereſts of the Agricultural and Commercial men of theſe Provinces, (by habit and nature to intimately blended,) we learn correctly, that Colonial produce generally is in much demand at home, and commands a fair and honorable price. Hemp and Pot and Pearl Aſhes, naturally the genuine and favorable produce of our country, are in great eſtimation, and their ſelling price, ſuch as to originate a powerful inducement to every perſon animated by a certainty and ready proſpect of gain, to enter into the cultivation of one, and the manufacture of the others. Beſides the ordinary idea of private emolument ſo inherent in men, a public ſpirit and a general wiſh to adminiſter to national wants, are ſo characteriſtic of Britiſh ſubjects, that we look forward cheerfully to the beneficial culture and well directed industry of our friends and neighbors, and we can venture to predict, that the government vessels on this Lake, will eventually be ordered to convey those articles gratis to Kingston. The Embargo imposed by the government of the United States, as well on their produce as on their shipping, has not in a material degree, injured our West India possessions or clogged their usual commerce. Its great advantage to our North American interest is immense, and we shall not so far as relates to our individual benefit or public welfare, be sorry for its long and unbroken continuance, or that their Custom House Officers may through inattention or a hope of being profited, discharge either the duties of improfitable servants, or careless inactive subjects.

we were somewhat distantly alarmed to hear casually that a small fracas, which happened last winter, between an Hibernian legislator and a mercantile Gentleman, at the head of Lake Ontario, still waits a legal decision upon its merits. We formerly heard that an enlightened Jury, had affessed the value of the indignity and damages literally and substantially sustained at one shilling Pro. Cy. After this upright and creditable acquittal, our opinion rests upon the reasonable supposition, that the gentlemen would have dropped further pursuit and parted satisfied with each others dexterity and proficiency; but this new reward for national hospitality, leaves us really in astonishment.

In a former conversation with an honorable friend, he doubted the existence of a custom in the fifteenth century, of summoning members to Parliament, of great bodily strength, with other reasons and to satisfy him of the fact, we publish the following extract from Prynne.

"It appears that strength of body and constitution was demanded, for the parliamentary writs about this period directed the electors to choose not only the wisest but the stoutest men (potentiores ad laborandum) that they might be able to endure the fatigue of the journey and of close attendance."

As the month is fast approaching, which in this part of the country, is understood to be the Ague and Lake Fever season, We publish the following selected medical advice, wishing that if followed, it may prove an useful preventive, viz. Use great regularity and moderate abstemiousness in diet avoiding fat substances, matters which encourage superfluous bile. Two gentle Emetics and a mild proportion of cathartic medicine, previously taken, are sufficient.

In our last weeks paper, we mentioned the School vacation and the examination of the pupils. We are greatly flattered to find, that the parents and friends of the scholars are much gratified that so much improvement is made, through the attention and care of the Revd. Mr. Stuart. It must be doubly pleasing to parents of Canadian youth, that such excellent care is devoted to their instruction, by such an exemplary character, and a public gratification must be manifest, that they are not sent to a remote Seminary for literature. From a retrospective view of the circumstances, we approve fully of the nomination of the school trustees and Mr. Stuart's kindness in discharging the duties annexed to it. We also enjoy the pleasing confidence, that every person judging with us, will feel a public gratitude for the construction and liberal management of the school.

Married, by the Revd. G. O. Stuart, on Monday the 8th inst. JOHN POWELL, Esq. to Miss SHAW, daughter of the Hon. ÆNEAS SHAW of this place. This matrimonial connexion of the amiable parties, we think replete, and with it productive of the most perfect human happiness.

A subtile mastich to mend all sorts of broken vessels.

Take of any quantity of white of eggs, and beat them well to a froth. Add to this, soft curd cheese and quick lime, and begin beating anew altogether. This may be used in mending whatever you will, even glasses, and will stand both fire and water.

Receipt for making Spruce Beer.

To thirty gallons of water, add 12 ounces of Spruce and 2 gallons molasses, mix the Spruce and molasses in five gallons of the water until it bears a lively froth, then fill up with the remainder of the water. Thus prepared, it may be brought slowly to boil, scum it well and by the time it has coolen down to the common temperature of new milk, add a pint of good yeast.

Directions for clearing Cheese of Vermine.

Take Sallad oil, pepper and salt, mix them together, clean the Cheese well and rub it with the above mixture.

1st All Officers on Half Pay are allowed by Act of Parliament to continue in the receipt of that allowance, and to hold any fubaltern Commiſſion, in Regiments of Militia, Fencibles, or Volunteers; viz. Captain-Lieutenant, Lieutenant, Enſign, Quarter-Maſter, Surgeon, Aſſiſtant Surgeon, Adjutant, and Battalion Clerk; and to receive the full pay and allowances of ſuch Commiſſion during war; and in time of peace, when the Militia is only embodied for 28 days in the year, there is no reſtriction—but an officer on half pay may receive full pay of any rank in the Militia for thoſe 28 days without its preventing him receiving his half pay.

2nd The King has the power of allowing any Officer on half Pay, to receive that allowance, together with his pay and allowances on the Staff, or in the Garriſons, in which alſo the Barrack Department is included; and in every inſtance of this being granted, the Secretary at War is to ſignify it as his Majeſty's pleaſure, to the Paymaſter General.

Officers who do not attend in perſon, will find it neceſſary to appoint an Agent at Quebec, furniſhed with a regular power of Attorney, in Duplicate.

The Commiſſioners appointed to carry into execution the Property Act, having likewiſe iſſued inſtructions on this head, notice is further given—1ſt that when the income of a perſon derived from any ſource payable out of the Revenues of Great Britain amounts to £150 per annum, a deduction of ten per cent. will be made from the net half pay: 2d that when the whole Britiſh income of the party amounts to £.50 per annum and is under £.150, the tax will be reduced after the rate of one ſhilling for every pound Sterling that the income is proved to be under £150—and 3d that when the whole Britiſh income in the aggregate does not amount to £.50, the officer may claim an exemption from the payment of any tax whatever, in which caſes an Affidavit will be required.

AFFIDAVIT to be made by a perſon reſiding out of Great Britain entitled to any Annuity or Penſion, payable by his Majeſty, or out of the public Revenue of Great Britain where the whole of the income "in Great Britain" ariſes therefrom, claiming an Exemption or Abatement under an Act paſſed in the 46th year of his preſent Majeſty's Reign, intitled "An Act for granting to his Majeſty, during the preſent War and until the 6th day of April next after the Ratification of a Definitive Treaty of Peace a Contribution on the Profits ariſing from property, Profeſſions, Trades, and Offices" as having an income under £.150 per annum for the year ending 5th April, 180 .

I reſiding at do ſwear that from the 6th day of April 180 to this date, the whole of my income in Great Britain was derived from my Allowance of Half Pay as a reduced in Regiment of and did not exceed the ſum of £ per annum.

New-York, July 12.

Our readers will recollect, that in Saturday's Gazette, we ſtated that the Spaniards had riſen, attacked and beat the French army that had entered Spain; that the Britiſh ſquadron off Cadiz was hourly expected to join the Spaniſh fleet there, to protect and convoy the King of Spain and Royal Family to South America.

This news was communicated to us by captain Van Beuren, of the brig Thomas Jefferſon, from Madeira, which place he left the 26th of May, and he received it from a reſpectable mercantile houſe in that place. At firſt we were inclined to believe that this was a mere report, and not entitled to much credit. But, from the following intelligence, which we yeſterday received from Captain Sheffield, of the ſchooner Mary Ann, we are induced to believe there is ſome foundation for the news per Captain Van Beuren. Hear what Captain Sheffield ſays.

Captain Sheffield on his arrival at Gibraltar the 14th of May, found 23 ſail of Britiſh tranſports full of troops, getting under way, and was informed by an officer in the boat, which boarded him, that they were bound to Cadiz to take poſſeſſion of that place, which he ſaid, the Spaniards had given up to the Britiſh.—Captain S. came through the Gut with the above fleet, and left them ſteering for Cadiz.

The accounts of the arrival of the Prince of Portugal at the Rio de Janeiro, and the capture of four Spaniſh frigates, with 40 millions of dollars is alſo mentioned by the above veſſel, as being current in the fleet.

Several perſons in Hanover, who were in arrears for the forced loan, have received military execution.

Naval Anecdote. The following is an additional proof of the bravery of our naval commanders:—In the action between lord Anſon and M. de Jonquiere, in 1747, when the Briſtol began to engage the Invincible, captain Fincher, in the Pembroke, endeavoured to get in between her and the enemy; but not finding room enough ſo to do, capt. Fincher hailed the Briſtol and requeſted capt. Montagu to put his helm a ſtarboard, or the Pembroke would run foul of his ſhip; to this capt. Montagu replied, "run foul of me and be d—d; neither you, nor any man in the world, ſhall come between me and my enemy." When the Briſtol had ſilenced the Invincible, capt. Montagu ordered his ſails to be ſet, and went on to a freſh attack, cheering his gallant crew by ſaying, in the ſportſman ſtyle, "come my brave boys, we muſt have one other bird of them."

CADIZ, June 16.

Extract of information from Spain.—Every day circumſtances take place to confirm the friendly diſpoſition of the Spaniſh people as well as the proviſional governments towards Great Britain. At Algeſiras, about the 15th June, a valuable Britiſh merchant ſhip, taken by a French privateer, was ſent with a prize crew into Algeſiras, but no ſooner did ſhe arrive in that port, than the Frenchmen were drove out of her, the Britiſh ſailors were releaſed, the ſhip returned to them and ſent to Gibraltar—indeed, every hoſtility between Great Britain and the Spaniſh nation had ceaſed, and was ſucceeded by the moſt friendly intercourſe.

The Spaniſh fleet of ſix ſail of the line in Minorca, had made arrangement with Lord Collingwood, to remain there until they ſhould receive orders from the Junot of Seville.

On the advancement of General Dupont with a detachment of the French army near Madrid towards Cadiz, to ſupport the cauſe of Bonaparte there, ſuſpicions roſe among the people of Cadiz, that the Captain General of Andaluſia, the Marquis de Solaco, and alſo Governor of Cadiz, was in the intereſt of Bonaparte, the correſpondence between him and the Duke of Berg was finally intercepted :—The people of Cadiz ſurrounded his houſe, and having got the Marquis into their hands, tore him to pieces, his houſe was levelled to the ground, and completely deſtroyed.—In Cadiz a provifional Junto was immediately formed, dependent on the Junot of Seville, and Don Thomas Morla was entruſted with the government of Cadiz, in the room of Solaco.

At Barcelona, Don Pedro Tauxillio was at the ſame time time deſtroyed by the people of Barcelona, for aiding the French general in that place and the people diſcovering that he was in correſpondence with the duke of Berg.

When the Royal family went to Bayonne they were eſcorted by a regiment of Carbineers, conſiſting ~~of 800 men, that~~ had done duty as the royal guard.—On the ſafe of the royal family of Spain being made public, ſome diſturbance was apprehended by Bonaparte amongſt he Spaniſh nobility and ſoldiery. The commanding officers of the Spaniſh regiment of Carbineers, was ordered to parade his men the ſame evening for the purpoſe of their being diſarmed.—This order he evaded, under a promiſe of executing it the following morning: however, on aſſembling his men on their uſual parade, all mounted, he informed them of the orders he had received, told them if they would follow him he would lead them into Spain; they at once agreed to the propoſals, and following their commander, took the road for their own country, and notwithſtanding every attempt to overtake them, they made good their retreat.

Certain accounts had arrived at Cadiz of the death of the duke de L'Infantado at Bayonne.—In ſome diſcuſſion with Bonaparte relative to the fate of the Royal family of Spain, the Prince it is ſaid, remonſtrated in the ſevereſt manner againſt the conduct of Bonaparte; and at laſt either drew his ſword, or on the attempt to draw it, was cut down by Bonaparte's guard in his preſence. The French ſay that before he was deſtroyed, Bonaparte received a wound in the arm.

The intention of Bonaparte, was to place his brother Joſeph on the throne of Spain, and the Grand Duke of Berg on that of Naples; there was no doubt that Joſeph Bonaparte had left Spain; and it was currently reported, though not officially confirmed, on the 9th of June, that on his way to Madrid, he and all his attendants were deſtroyed by the armed peaſantry of the country through which he attempted to paſs.

The intelligence that reached London from the Baltic in the beginning of June, informed, that the Spaniſh troops ſent by Bonaparte, to the North of Europe, were at Lubec and Altona, the greater part at Lubec; about the 25,000 men; it was then intended by the Britiſh government, if theſe troops willed to return to Spain, to afford them means of tranſport. The Britiſh tranſports in the Baltic, that were employed to carry the army to Sweden, would greatly facilitate this meaſure.—At Cadiz it was underſtood that General Apodaco and the commiſſioners ſent to London by the Junot of Seville, had in charge to requeſt the aid of the Britiſh government to the return of thoſe troops to Spain.

By the lateſt intelligence that reached Cadiz on the 19th of June from Portugal, general Gomez was on his march with an army of 88,000 men to attack the French general Junot in Liſbon;—his army was compoſed partly of Spaniards and partly of Portugueſe. The Portugueſe required the aſſiſtance of the Britiſh forces under general Spencer, then at Aymonti, and the fleet off the Tagus. It was underſtood that on the ſurrender of general Dupont with the French army at Cordova, that general Spencer would move towards Liſbon for that purpoſe. The troops remained on the 19th of June on board the tranſports.

To ſecure Cadiz for the intereſt of Bonaparte, general Dupont was detached from Madrid with 12,000 men; but he had only reached Cordova, when he found that the French fleet in Cadiz harbor, conſiſting of 5 ſhips of the line and two frigates had ſurrendered, and the officers and crews made priſoners of was to the Spaniſh Junto at Cadiz;—to return to Madrid was impoſſible, the armed peaſantry had already ſeized the paſſes in the mountains, through which the road went; and a large force by between him and Cadiz. In fact the French army found themſelves in a ſtate of ſiege.—On the 18th of June a courier arrived at Cadiz to inform the Junto, that general Cordoza who commanded the Spaniſh army near Cordova, had been joined by 9000 troops of the line, independent of the volunteers and peaſantry armed with pikes. The French army by death and deſertion, was reduced to 9,700 men. On the 19th of June, a courier arrived, informing that the two armies engaged;—and on the afternoon of the ſame day a ſecond courier arrived to inform the Junto of Cadiz, that general Dupont and his whole force had ſurrendered priſoners of war to general Cordoza.

It was underſtood that the victorious army would immediately March towards Madrid to act in conjunction with the armies marching from Bilcay and other parts of Spain, to beſiege the French in Madrid.

Supplement to the Gazette, of Saturday, 20th Aug.

"To the honor of the Spaniſh nation, it has been found, that ſince the declaration of hoſtilities with France, by the Proviſional government, in no inſtance has a Spaniard been induced to carry any letters from the French officers to the other ports; by this means every communication between the commanders of the French armies has been cut off.

Extract of a letter to Rear-Admiral Purvis dated Utrera, June 19, 1808.

"On receiving directions to proceed to the Junto, at Seville, I was particularly commanded by Major Gen. Spencer to communicate to you direct, the information I thought of any conſequence; and with the particular points in view, ſpecified in the orders I received, I loſe no time in communicating with his ſerene highneſs the Preſident of Andaluſia, &c. has given me as the juſt account of their affairs, I beg leave to obſerve the utmoſt frankneſs appeared to guide them, and the moſt deciſive firmneſs ſtrengthen the relations they made.

"They deſcribed their regular force joined by the camp at St. Rouge, at 12,000, of which 6000 occupy the poſition of Cormona, with 15 pieces of from 7 to 8 pounders; their cavalry, and the remaining force, is at Seville, Utrera, and the ſmall houſes in the neighborhood; the entire force they think, may be encreaſed by ſmall bodies, who arrive daily, and three regiments of peaſants, to whoſe inſtructions they have commanded every attention ſhould be given.

"By intercepted letters from General Dupont, commanding the French at Cordova, they learnt his orders to M. Dubris to proceed to Tarira to Seville direct; others bid him diſobey this order, but join him by the ſhorteſt road at Cordova; he complains they have no anſwers; and in the laſt brought yeſterday, bid him be expeditious, as he is deſirous when reinforced, to drive the rebels from Seville. On the obtaining of the firſt, the Council diſpatched General Johnſton with 3000 regulars, and gave directions to the government of Ayamonte, to put the armed peaſantry in motion. From the impoſſibility of the deeply intrenched ground from this to Seville and Cordova, they do not apprehend the French can proceed, and certainly muſt abandon the ten pieces of cannon, if they are not already deſtroyed; and if he is not, they impute it to his having moved by the left and the river, to join General Dupont at Cordova.

"The irregular force they have given arms, is by the number of rations given, from 70 to 75,000, and would increaſe to any number they would with. This zeal to join the army is repreſſed by the orders in council juſt enforced.

"I am juſt returned from the advanced guard at Cormona, where the utmoſt confidence exiſts; and in an admirable poſition, they are prepared to check the advance of the French, who as yet have made no indication of moving from Cordova, in front of which city they are employed by ſtrengthening an excellent poſition by works.

"General Johnſton's corps is returned and has marched to the main body of the Spaniſh regulars at Utrera, which is the head quarters of the captain General Caſtana.

"When at Cormona, I ſaw 3000 Swiſs who had juſt arrived from Cadiz, where they were poſted on their march from Madrid; others attempted to follow, but it is ſuppoſed they were obliged to diſperſe.

"To deſcribe the ſentiments of the people, I need only obſerve, the loweſt claſs cannot be bribed to convey any intelligence, as appears by the numerous letters they deliver to the Magiſtrates, when the impoſſibility of knowing they are traitors would enſure them every means of paſſing and repaſſing undiſcovered.

"Some evil minded men have been arreſted; and their names and number are ſo inconſiderable, that it has not been thought of ſufficient moment to puniſh them.

"Accounts from Portugal are favorable as can be deſired. Mr. Caraffa, commanding the Spaniſh army at Liſbon, and the Marquis De Monteza, who commands at Oporto, have inſured the Junot of their concurrence in the meaſures adopted; their intention of countenancing the deſertions of the men, and the ſucceſs of this deſign. M. Caraffa's letter adds, the Ruſſian ſquadron would not oppoſe any attempt of the Engliſh to land a force in that part.

"The Preſidios of Africa are ſecured by the arreſts of the French emiſſaries ſent there to liberate the ſlaves, ſo much that they are withdrawing much of their force from them, to encreaſe their defence before Seville.

"The Junot diſpatched intelligence to the Colonies, of the change; but intercepted letters, diſcover the deſign in the French, who, aſſured the country was at their feet, ſent out orders to remove ſome of the higher officers, and naming thoſe in their intereſt. From Bordeaux, the Junto fear the intelligence may get to the ſettlements;—but not from Spain, as they have gotten even to quintuple copies of the orders, and I am deſired to expreſs the ſatisfaction they ſhould feel if a few Engliſh light veſſels were diſpatched to intercept theſe orders, known to failed for the Havannah, Cuba, and Vera Cruz.

"General Morlay's late suspension of the attack on the fleet at Cadiz, has been answered by the most positive orders to take them. The officers and privates are to have their private property restored to them inviolate and the liberty to return to France, if the English approve of the terms; but the unconstitutional surrender of the fleet is determined on here.

"From a collective body, all much occupied, I could not expect much information, and compelled to trust to my memory for names, some confusion may at first occur; but a little at leasure, I shall get over these difficulties, selecting the individuals most proper for my view.

(Signed) E. I. BRADFORD.
D. ad. Gen.'

"P. S. The intelligence of this day has deffused the most desirable activity into the Junto —A deputy has arrived, acknowledges the supremacy of the Junto —the Junto of La Mancha detail by him the numerous peasantry in arms, the attack of the French forces at Andrican, with the entire destruction of them.

"The deserters from the French would be numerous but the peasants kill every straggler—the Junto here have issued orders on this head.

"A Spy has been taken but his examination is not finished.

"A Colonel from the French has arrived with a flag of truce—the obvious motives is to reconnoitre—the Junto have resolved to detain him.

"The arrival of the English at Ayamonte has had the best effect on the minds of the people—all fear is fled—the disorganization goes on with vigor—the machine is gaining stability, and with it that energy which will remove the embarrassment occasion'd by the timid, though well inclined.

"Some suspects people have been arrested, and vigor will enforce the obedience they before received from the novelty of the events."

The officers who brought up the above dispatches, say that London accounts to the 9th of June had been received at Barbadoes, stating that the Russians in three or four engagements had been defeated by the Swedes, with considerable loss, having upwards of 5000 killed in the last engagement. That an attempt was made to assassinate Bonaparte at Bayonne, but that he escaped, having received only a slight contusion of a sabre.

Admiral Cochrane writes to Col. Hamilton, "I have forwarded a copy of this intelligence to the Capt. Gen. of Caracas, and have stopped all hostile proceedings of the squadron under my command against that and the other Spanish provinces; and I am in great hopes they will be preserved from the clutches of the French.

A Spanish letter of marque ship of 20 guns and 150 men, which sailed from the Havanna on the evening of the same day with capt. Darrel, bound for old Spain, with a cargo of 1400 boxes of sugar, has been captured off Cape Florida by a British frigate.

London May 18.

Very sanguine hopes are intertained that the propositions were the subject of the late conferences between Mr. Secretary Canning and Mr. Pinckney will be accepted by the American Government Ministers, it is said, have expressed their readiness to confider the United States in the light of the most favored nation to accede to an arrangement for allowing under certain regulations, the produce of the enemies colonies in the West—Indies to be conveyed to the Continent of Europe in American bottoms, without touching at a British port. The right of searching merchants ships of that country for British seamen, it is proposed to reserve for future discussion. The proposition have been transmitted by Mr. Pinckney to his government, in, as we understand, with full confidence that they will be accepted. The determination of the President on this interesting subject is expected by the latter end of July.

PROLOGUE.

LET wrinkl'd bigotry immers'd in gore,
Fanatic zeal and fuperftition roar
Their mother ign'rance lift her voice on high,
And bark rebellion join her hoarfe cry.
Still fhall we praife that boia and virtuous band,
That fpreads the light of knowledge through the land.
Who bade the feed in ev'ry Diftrict rife.
Which youthful hearts, to glorious deeds entice.
Their praife na Lawrence banks fhall oft be fung,
By many a chofen bard's melodious tongue.
And they to whom the mufe no fong imparts,
Shall think their praifes o'er with grateful hearts.
Already darkneſs tumbles on her throne,
Methinks I hear the Gothic Sov'reign groan
Her Court fhe views benumb'd with anxious fear,
Her facrifice fhades begin to difappear.
She fees her foes paffefs her wide domain,
And clofe her antient folitary reign.
She flies—And at her flight, our fouls rejoice,
Sweet virtue's fon, the cattle of hateful vice,
For often have we ponder'd o'er the page,
That paints the horrors of her favage rage,
When all her pef'rous hood in armour clad,
Miftaken men to mutual flaughter led.
Such cruel arts no longer fhall prevail,
Expanding knowledge flops them of their veil.
Yes, brethren they by confcious feelings bleft,
While manly fouls repell'd the chilling mift.
That here too long with favage prolpect join'd,
To keep the light of fcience from the mind.
All that facred light which bids the virtues rife,
Truth, peace, and charity that never dies.
Eng'fring order, liberty and laws,
Man's choices gifts, the themes of juft applaufe.
That cheers the heart opprefs'd with forrow's load,
That ifills the weary foul form Earth to God.
Delightful hope, the charmer of the breaft,
This light fupport fo grateful to the tafte.
Hope not, the product of a paffing day,
But rich in joy, nor fubject to decay
Portray'd by her, all nature teems with flow'rs,
No forrows frown, no difappointment lours.
Her airy views in brilliant order fhew,
Ten thoufand forms that raife the ecftatic glow.
Here wildom we amidft that fpeaks aloud,
The jolly great, muft firft be jollily good.
Superior worth alone can wreathes beftow,
To grace the gen'rous youth or aged fhow.
Wreathes that fhall yield a never fading bloom,
When countefs ages ftinks into the tomb.
This matchleſs wildom animates us all,
And every bofom beats at honour's call
For what is knowledge, grandeur, wealth and power,
Deceitful pageants of a fhort liv'd hour.
Unleſs fweet virtue o'er the heart preſides
Its flights reſtrains, and various motions guides.
With confcious joy, thole fages we have trac'd,
Whole gen'rous plans gave joy to realms oppreſs'd.
To humble lots like ours where nought appears,
To promife glorious deeds in future years.
And we have feen the bard of laſting name,
Who melts the foul he kindles into flame.
His bafhful mufe in fhort excurſions try,
Averſe like ours to meet the critic's eye.
Be candid then, nor fpare our humble teaft,
Which many an anxious ſtudious hour has dreſt.
Perhaps to day ſome bloſſoms open here,
Whole fame to future ages ſhall be dear.

THE PATRIOTIC ODE.

LET not this yearly feaſt depart
On which ſo many gaze,
Till we have ſung with grateful hearts,
Our darling country's praiſe.
For ſhe has ſtopt with mighty hand
The courſe of Gaul's Anarchial band,
Her glorious deeds the world admires,
The Defpot heaves a bitter groan,
He knows he ſits a tott'ring throne
Except the Britiſh light expires.
But it ſhall burn with crelcive flame
Man's choiceſt joys to ſpread,
Sweet freedom's bleſſings to proclaim,
The fell uſurpers dread.
When execrations load his tomb,
An earneſt of a better doom
When trembling envy's pallying ſting,
From poiſon'd children's impious hearts,
Back on themſelves in fancy darts,
The griefs that gen'rous bolioms wring.
Behold Corcyra's curſed race,
Their parent Corinth ſpurn
To plunge their Sires in deep diſtreſs,
Their ranking bolioms burn.

Like them Columbia's heroes gnaw
Their Britiſh fires with ſerpent jaw.
They joy to cramp their parent ſtate,
Regardleſs of her glorious caule
For juſtice, freedom, equal laws,
As well's their own impending fate.
Ye Loyal bands the world combin'd
By terror's withter'd hand,
Arms ſlowly with reluctant mind,
'Gainſt your native land.
Yet ſpite of David's chains they dare
In ſecret curſe the guilty war.
While Britain on her rock deſies,
The ſavage Defpot's growing threats,
His ſchemes with vigour ſhe defeats
And conq'd on land the Tiger lies.
The Grecians bleſt their native fields,
The ſcenes of bright renown;
The Romans thought ſweet freedom yields
More pleaſure than a crown.
And ſhall not we delight to claim
More than the Greek or Roman name.
For when did they like Britain ſtand
The ſaviours of a ſinking world,
Alas, by force they ruin hurl'd,
On all who durſt their power withſtand.
O ſons of Britain, future times
Your glory ſhall declare,
Your foes and children's baſtard crimes
The wicked's meed ſhall ſhare.
For grateful nations ſprung from thoſe
Whoſe your noble views oppoſe.
Shall at their Fathers bath for ſhame
Who fought to ruſh the gen'rous race,
That tri'd to give them full redreſs
And cherish'd freedom's dying flame.
Already in our country's cauſe,
Some Patriots here have bled
And all to ſhare their juſt applauſe,
Their warmeſt blood will ſhed.
For the delights on us to ſhower
Increaſing bleſſings ev'ry hour.
Sweet bleſſings which our filial love,
Inflame and lead us to repay,
Her care by deeds that ne'er decay
And joyful conſcience muſt approve.

YORK, AUGUST 27, 1808

IT muſt be a pleaſing reflection, and not an ill timed view of the improving circumſtances and bettered ſituation of this Province, to any perſon intereſted in its proſperity and welfare. It muſt be alſo a public and lively gratification to witneſs a beneficent intention diſſeminated in ſo many active ways. Local benefits are advanced with a genial ſpirit, and the common weal is far from bounded, by any illiberal propoſſeſſion, for private happineſs or peculiarity of place. Amongſt the many ſubjects on which a public review may indulge, with patriotic pride and heartfelt enjoyment, a paternal ſolicitude in the beſt of Sovereigns is not forgotten, which has placed the moſt intereſting of men to guide us, and point out the generous and facile modes of advancing a common intereſt. And to public eaſe and wealth, more than ordinary happineſs, originates in the proofs and welcome certainty, that the governed experience the faireſt bloom and happieſt fruits of the beſt of Adminiſtrations. In one ſo liberally ordered, in which the ruling object, leads not to private, but to general eaſe and good, there dwells not only indulgent hope, but the blitiful overflowings of expanſive virtue, and the happy produce of rational enjoyments.

Let us not indulge the vain and falſe idea, and let no poſſible conſtruction leave an impreſſive belief upon us, that his undeviating views, embrace leſs than univerſal good, or that leſs than the happieſt perſonal reward, awaits the fair and honorable exertion of virtue, ſo multifarious & feelingly diſplayed.

Let not whatever may have been printed or ſedulouſly diſſeminated, either through foul intention, the erring emiſſions of enmity of difrobed fpleen, of froward ambition, of forfeited and pennyleſs ſituation, but virtuouſly impreſs us. Let us not pity nor appreciate a ſituation when obtained without a claim, or for a menial purpoſe of miniſtering to paſſionate gratifications by indecorous ſervices or ſacrificing to want of feeling, by want of feeling in doing ſo. In an official ſtate attended by means repugnant to ordinary ſenſe, ſo diſguſting to honeſt ſpirit, and ſo diſtant from all but forlorn hope, let us not ſuppoſe it can be long preſerved, when dignity ornaments the ſount from whence it muſt be ultimately held or iſſued.

Lives there amongſt us one witneſs, one partaker of what heretofore apparently awoke an unſounded ſpectre of diſtinction, or whoſe judgement was either loſt or blinded in a momentary cloud of prejudice, but muſt now, whilſt indulging a retroſpective view of the miſty and forbidding ſcene, feel repentant pains or bluſhing ſhame for unguided preposſeſſion, or muſt experience the fruits of eſpouſing the fairеſt cauſe of virtue. Let us for a moment partially traverſe a few demerits of the delaulting reſtleſs we allude to, and let us regret that the brighteſt aſpect of his feeble peerleſs all, is not the pecuniary wants with which he overwhelmed ſome needy reduced unjudging men, nor the envenomed potion of diſaffection he paſſed as cordial drafts, nor can it elude the moſt common obſervation, that the ſanctity attached to the Bench of Juſtice, or to walls erected for its inveſtigation, or the public explanation of its tenets, were not held ſacred to their truſts. Inſtead of which they became the unſpeaking and ſounding witneſſes of diſguſting diſaffectfulneſs, and of diſſatisfaction inculcated on every mind, poſſible of becoming its nurſery or ſorry receptacle. Let theſe overtop the catalogue of his ordinary want of virtue and form the ſhrouding meed of his unvaried principles. But over his glaring and unbluſhing iniquities, let a curtain of charity be drawn. Where (through him) private or individual beings, wade through martyred circumſtances, let their errors, and his ſeductive feats, lay buried in obliterating ſilence. And let the moral as well as the public wounds he has aſſayed and labored to inflict, be hidden by his welcome abſence. Let us alſo forget his parental traits, and bemoan his predeliction to cabaliſtic evil. And let us not unfold the ſcanty ſcraps, his hapleſs propenſity bore away from needful ſips. But let us mourn his little low, and unavailing cunning, formed to beguile and lead aſtray an erring community; and his unprincipled aſſault upon the Arlean virtue and the generous fortitude of the firſt of Men. Let us ſtill bewail the whim of capricious fate, which urged him here, not only as an advocate and miniſter of juſtice, but in a ſtate diſtant from ſecondary ſituation. This fate, like a telegraphic parent, or gorgon machine of miſchief, armed with a fourfold wrong, ejected and ſent him forth a ſtothy bauble, at once the moſt contemptible, weakeſt and worſt of men. To Sierra Leona it is ſaid he goes, may he there live in throes to ruminate the troublous quid of dreary penitence, or Serpent-like, diſcharge annually his bodily exterior. Let us not wrong compariſon by an attempted aſſimulation of his character, to that of any man of official appointment within our knowledge. We ſhould not now have deigned him a thought, did not contempt and pity, await the retroſpect of his conduct, and ſympathy attend, a ſeduced and miſjudging few.

We have little news of moment to give the Public, in addition what we laſt week publiſhed. The Spaniſh energy is now roused into patriotic action; their national pride and ſpirit, will more than countervail the deſtructive aſcendancy, which the murderous Tyrant of France was attempting to acquire. The ſoſtering aſſiſtance and protecting power of our Country have been beſought; and given. The ardent event we will not confidently augur, but we feel a ſtrong preſentiment, that it will be glorious to us and a providential ſafety, vouchſafed to Spain. The nearly famiſhed and oppreſſed Portuguese are fervent and deadly enemies to preſent Frenchmen, and buſied in their dreat expulſion. Our affairs with the American Government, are in a ſtate of apparent friendly adjuſtment: we ſhould with painful regret, be witneſſes of their increaſed diſtreſs or the conflagration of their vulnerable and wealthieſt cities. We wiſh the Sons of Britons, to inherit the fruition of parental pride but not fall victims to the futile folly, of a temporary elected Sovereign. Our next intelligence, may abound in pleaſing information, ſhould this occur, an extra-paper ſhall convey it to our Friends.

We hear that, at Oſwego, a few of the American troops 40 in number, and ſeventy five of their ſpirited other ſubjects differed eſſentially upon the moſt convenient method, of eluding, or carrying into effect their Embargo law. Pot & pearl-aſhes and common ſalt, were the bones of contention; a combat enſued, & was urged with that dignified rage, which at times, degrades their town-meetings. We learn that, no bodily deaths befel on the ſad occaſion, but that much bloodſhed, ornamented their ſpirited atchievements. Happy Government whoſe wholeſome laws, engender ſuch harmleſs warfare!!!

The Hon'ble. Chief Juſtice Scott, Mr. Juſtice Powell, and the Gentlemen officially belonging to the Courts, left this on Sunday and Monday laſt, on their reſpective Circuits.

MAGDELEINE BELCOUR.

York, 4th Aug. 1808.

Supplement to the Gazette, of Saturday, 27th Aug.

Extract of a letter from Lord Collingwood, to Admiral Cochrane, dated off Cadiz, June 18, 1808.

"Flying fiſh having joined me on her way to Barbadoes, I avail myſelf of the opportunity to put you in poſſeſſion of ſuch events, as have occurred in Spain and come to my knowledge.

"You will doubtleſs have been already informed of the reſignation of the Crown of Spain by Charles IV. to his ſon; of the diſmiſſal of the Prince of Peace, and the ſeizure of his eſtates; of the acceſſion of Ferdinand VII; that Bonaparte had inveigled both thoſe Princes, and the reſt of the Royal Family to meet him at Bayonne; that he made them all priſoners; having obliged Ferdinand to return the crown to his Father, and induced the old King to lay it at his feet, to be diſpoſed of as he might direct.

"Soon after Ferdinand's quitting Madrid to proceed to Bayonne, the Grand Duke of Berg aſſumed to himſelf the temporary command of the government of the country, by the title of Lieutenant General of the Kingdom—this uſurpation, the Spaniſh nation has reſiſted almoſt to a man. The ſpirit to oppoſe French tyranny, the abhorrence of the acts which have been practiſed againſt the Royal Family and the ſtate, and the unanimity and enthuſiaſm manifeſted, to reſtore the nation to its independence, was perhaps, never ſurpaſſed in any country or in any cauſe; even in the parts where the French are in force, (as at Madrid and Barcelona,) this ſpirit is ſaid to exiſt in its full extent, though the avowal of it is puniſhed.

"On the 8th and 9th inſtant, the French ſquadron of five ſail of the line and a frigate, which at the beginning of this revolution, had moved up near to the carracas, were bombarded; and after the ſuſpenſion of the attack for four days on the morning of the 14th, they ſtruck their colours, and were taken poſſeſſion of by the Spaniards.

"As a provincial government, each province has eſtabliſhed a Junto of ſeveral perſons of the greateſt influence; to which the people are obedient, and the moſt zealous in its cauſe: This of Andaluſia, is the one with which the Engliſh have had the moſt communication. Its army is commanded by general Cartanos, and for its ſtate, &c. I beg leave to refer you to the enclofed copy of a letter from capt. Bradford, an officer of the Engliſh forces, who has been with it ſome time. The maſſe of the Province of Valencia, and of the Aſturias, is equally numerous; and that of the former aided by ſome regulars, is ſaid to be on the way to Madrid, to drive the French out of it; In ſhort, ſir, the whole population of the country is in arms, and whenever the French meet a Spaniard they find an inveterate enemy.

"To the Engliſh nation the Spaniards look, as that on which they depend for ſupport, and ſecurity againſt the common enemy; and ſome diſtricts have declared themſelves at peace with Great Britain, without waiting for the uſual forms; but as commiſſioners deputed from the Supreme Council at Seville, have to day gone to England in the Revenge, to treat with his Majeſty's government, I make no doubt the wiſh of the Spaniſh nation will ſoon be gratified by a regular convention.

"The French are making conſiderable exertions to get a large army into Spain; but the ſpirit of the nation is ſo fully roufed, that, if her councils are judicious and their leaders act with ability and firmneſs, there is ample means to reſiſt them and all may end well.

"His Majeſty's government, has directed, in this criſis, that every aſſiſtance ſhall be afforded. I have ſupplied them with powder from the ſhips; and about 5000 men under Major General Spencer, is on their coaſt ready to act as circumſtances may make neceſſary, and a further force is by this time on its way from England.

"The Portugueſe, although diſarmed, are ſaid to be riſing in all parts of the country to expel the French, which they have done at Oporto; and as the enemy's troops there are very few and very much divided, there is every reaſon to ſuppoſe they will be ſucceſsful.—Their principal force is at Liſbon, which conſiſts of about 5000 men, and a large body of people (30,000) partly natives and ſome Spaniards under the command of a Portugueſe General, Gouvezirere, were, by the laſt accounts I received, on the march to attack it; if Liſbon falls, the Ruſſian ſquadron under Admiral Semavin, which is in the Tagus, will probably ſhare the ſame fate; indeed, there is no indication on their part of much zeal towards their new allies.

"I have thought it neceſſary to give you this information of the ſtate of affairs in Spain, as his Majeſty's Government have directed that every aid may be given to them for maintaining their independence as a nation, and reſiſting the ambitious projects of France.

"All the decrees and every act of the ſeveral Juntos, or Supreme Councils throughout Spain, are in the name of Ferdinand VIIth, who is a priſoner to Bonaparte, as well as his two brothers, and the country at preſent is governed by thoſe Juntos in the ſeveral provinces.

"The importance of preserving the colonies from falling into the influence of France you muft be well aware of—and that the French have already taken measures for feducing them; fo that every means fhould be ufed to inform them of the true ftate of affairs here, and of the brave refiftance made by their country. For this purpofe I am authorifed by his Majefty's government to give paffports to fhips or veffels which are employed either in conveying their difpatches and orders to the colonies, or the perfons they may think neceffary to fend out to conduct their affairs in this very critical juncture: I have given fome paffports for this purpofe. Two frigates and feveral feluccas intended for the provinces in America will be [immediately] ready to proceed to different parts of America; and I requeft you will pleafe to apprize the officers under your command of thofe Spanifh fhips and veffels, which they may probably meet, and direct them to give every aid to them in the fervice in which they are employed.

"Thofe veffels will have merchandize in them, the adventures in general of the crew; and fome of them will alfo have quickfilver, which is much wanted at La Vera Cruz. The paffports I gave you are intended to include thofe articles—indeed at this moment, there fhall be no litigation as every encouragement ought to be given to the Spaniards, and their veffels carrying difpatches be confidered as friends.

"P. S. The information contained in this letter you will be pleafed to communicate to the Governors of the feveral Iflands within the limits of your command.

Interefting News from Havanna—Captain M'Donald, who arrived here this morning in 12 days from Havanna, informs us that, previous to his leaving that place, intelligence of the recent events in Spain had been received, creating general interest and univerfal commotion. The dispatches from the new government to the Governor of Cuba, announced Peace with England, and war with France. Proclmation to this effect had been iffued throughout the Iffand, diffufing general joy among all claffes of the inhabitants. And fo highly did they eftimate the infults and the injuries they had fo repeatedly received from Bonaparte, that it was even dangerous for a Frenchman to be feen in the ftreets. Thofe who ventured from their houfes, encountered the merited indignation of the Spaniards, and the popular fury had rifen to fuch a pitch, as to cauſe the death of 2 Frenchmen in the public squares. A free trade, therefore was immediately opened with England, and indeed with all other nations the French alone excepted.

Such, therefore are the effects of thofe tyrannies exercised by the Great Diſturber of the World—and such the enthuſiasm of a brave people, whose energies have slumbered for many centuries. That imbecility which has marked the character of Spain for years paſt appears to have been owing solely to the heads of the rulers and not the hearts of the people—And now that they view the ultimate desires of ambitous France tend to the enslavement of their country, the destruction of of their governmentand the usurpation of their kingdom, the ancient honor of Castilians is revived, and they appear to be eager for the conflict that will give Liberty to their native land, or to its suffering inhabitants honorable death.

"Jefferson with the aſſiſtance of a celebrated anatomiſt from Philadelphia, has been for some time engaged in fitting up the skeleton of a Mammoth, he intended it as a preſent to that Mammoth deſtroyer of mankind Bonaparte. We have not heard that it goes in the Hope. It may probably form the subject of a special miſſion. It is to be hoped that, pregnant as he is with hopes of conqueſt, an abortion may be caused, by the reception of this potent American Skeleton

Upper Canada.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith :—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the ninth day of August, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you——GREETING :—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the fifteenth day of June last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the ninth day of August next ensuing, at which time to our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear ; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twelfth day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the State and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada and there to do as may seem necessary ; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this twenty third day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eight, and in the forty eighth year of our Reign.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

Agent for Purchases Office.

York 16th August, 1808.

NOTICE is hereby given, to such person or persons who may be willing to supply FRESH BEEF of good quality, to the Troops and Military Departments stationed at York, Kingston, Fort George, Fort Chippewa, Fort Erie and Amherstburg, from the 25th September to the 31st December, 1808 ; to deliver in their Proposals, with the name of their security, immediately, to the Agent for Purchases, at York.

Proposals will in like manner be received, for supplying the abovementioned Posts with Fresh Beef of good quality, from the first January to the 24th day of March, 1809.

The lowest price for which the Beef will be delivered, is to be stated, in each of their Proposals, for the periods mentioned therein.

The Beef will be received by the Commissary at each Post, by the quarter, who will immediately pay for the same in Specie, or by Bills on Quebec, at the option of the Contractor.

The Commissary will also, once in every fifteen days (if required,) deliver to the Contractor, a distribution of the quantity of Beef, required for the fifteen days following.

JOHN M'GILL,
Agent for Purchases.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, June 2.

We received yesterday the contents of the Edinburgh and Altona papers from the 4th to the 17th ult. Some serious commotions appear to have broken out at Constantinople about the middle of March, which originated in the whole of the Janissaries having declared against the conduct of the Porte, in respect to the war with England. The insurrection is however, said in some letters to have been entirely suppressed in a few days, and the ringleaders punished.

From the accounts in the French papers, it is obvious that France meditates similar designs against Turkey, to those which have been so diabolically successful in Spain. In the latter country, as our readers are already informed, Bonaparte has completed his work of perfidy ; the wretched king, the still more wretched prince of Asturias, and all the other members of the Royal Family of Spain, with the exception of Don Pedro, who is at the Brazils, have been compelled to sign away their birthright, and submit to a splendid captivity in the territory of their oppressor, where the whole will probably ere long share the fate of the other branches of the Bourbon family who have fallen into the power of the Gallic Tyrant. For a while they may be permitted to meditate in their captivity upon the fallen fortunes of their once illustrious house, until by private assassination, or public murder, they terminate their degrading dependence upon the bounty of the Usurper of their rights, and those of the more worthy branches of the house of Bourbon. Already in all probability, are these wretched captives, secured within the several prisons in France. King Charles with his queen, and some of the family, incarcerated at Compeigne, situate about half way between Paris and Amiens ; and the Prince of Asturias, Don Carlos and Don Antonio, in custody at Navarre, a Royal domain in the department of Indre. To complete the degradation of the unfortunate family of Spain, the Corsican, after having that kingdom consigned over to him by the King and Prince, compels the imbecile Charles to issue a Proclamation to the people, in which he enjoins them in the strongest terms to submit quietly to the troops of his ally the emperor of the French. For princes by their mean spite and dastardly conduct, have proved themselves to despicable and contemptible, we can scarce feel any pity ; but, every accustomed as we have been to the atrocities of Bonaparte, it is impossible for us to contemplate without indignation the refined cruelty with which he has treated the wretched deposed Monarch. That weak prince, after having made every sacrifice both of his own dignity and the interests of his people, that his perfidious ally thought proper to demand, after losing his kingdom to-day, for his life murdered, and himself and his family driven from the Throne of his ancestors, is compelled in a public Proclamation to express himself with the most servile flattery to the very monster from whom he has experienced such accumulated injuries, and to call upon his people as a proof of their loyalty to him, to transfer their allegiance to a usurpatory usurper !—By the cowardly resignation of the other parts of the family, Don Pedro the nephew to the king (who we have already stated is now at the Brazils,) is become the presumptive heir to the crown ; and of this circumstance it is highly probable, our government will deem it advisable to avail themselves. This scion of the Royal Stock, transplanted to Spanish possessions in South America, would be a most acceptable event to the people of that country, who, while by means of it they secured their independence, and preserved themselves from falling under the yoke which now threatens their mother country, would prove most valuable allies to Great Britain in the new world, in the present situation of the old. But it is not in this respect only, that we look for some good arising out of the trouble produced by Corsican perfidy. We continue to look with sanguine hope to the high indignant spirit of the people of Spain, whose patriotic efforts against the Tyrant may in the end not only secure the independence of their own country, but furnish a glorious example of which other nations may be led to profit. So shall the long lost happiness of Europe be restored, and the world be ridded of its greatest curse.

It is said in a Dutch letter, when the last accounts left Cadiz, the English fleet was preparing to enter the Bay.

June 4.

We yesterday received advices from Cadiz, for resulting the project of Bonaparte against the independence of Spain, and preserving the Spanish fleet from falling into his hands, by delivering it up in trust to Great Britain. We are further informed by this conveyance that the people of Seville have taken possession of the arsenals, and that the Province of Aragon had unanimously resolved to resist the power and influence of France. It was reported that the Duke D'Infantado was about to place himself at the head of the people, in order to direct their patriotic spirit in the laudable assertion of the independence of their country; and the greatest credit was attached to this report, from the circumstance of that revered nobleman not having been mentioned in any of the revolutionary decrees that had hitherto been issued from Bayonne. At all events, it is evident that the people will not become the willing slaves of Bonaparte; and should it prove true that their efforts are to be directed by a leader of such talent and estimation, the most sanguine hopes may be entertained in respect to the result of so glorious a struggle.

The anxious looked for advices from our fleet off Cadiz have not yet arrived, but government continue in hourly expectation of receiving the most important intelligence from that quarter. We understand that a communication was yesterday made to the Lord Mayor by the Lords of the Admiralty, which has some relation to this subject; and it is said, that in the expected event of the surrender of the fleet at Cadiz, the River Fencibles and others will be allowed to volunteer their services to bring the ships to England.

Bonaparte it appears, continued at Bayonne, and on the 18th ult. having dismissed the Royal Family of Spain to their respective destinations, was amusing himself with military spectacles and evolutions. Intelligence to the 13th ult. had been received at Paris from Madrid, at which time, Murat was exercising the functions of government without opposition.

The French senate assembled on the 31st, to sanction a proposal for incorporating Parma, Piacenza, and Tuscany with France. We had reason at one time to suppose that these, together with the States of the Church, would have been erected into a sovereignty for Lucien Bonaparte; but it would seem that he has forfeited or renounced all claim to such honors.

The deposed king of Spain was expected at Fontainbleau by the latter end of May.

June 8.

Advices from Gottenburgh to the 31st ult. were received yesterday. They were brought by the Clyde frigate, Captain Owen, which is returned to Yarmouth, after having landed at Gottenburgh £130,000, for the use of the King of Sweden. One expedition was still waiting the return of Colonel Murray, and Admiral Keats was about to remove the Fleet to a greater distance from Gottenburgh, in order to be in readiness to proceed upon any service upon which he might be ordered, without further loss of time. The Snake sloop of war was to sail with a convoy for Leith, on the following day, on board of which are the Danish prisoners taken from on board the man of war destroyed by the Stately and Nassau—Sir J. Saumarez, had been indisposed, but was considerably recovered.—The accounts from Finland agree in stating, that the Russians are in the utmost state of distress, and that in their retreat hundreds of them perish daily through famine and the effects of the general thaw.

An American messenger arrived yesterday, with dispatches for Mr. Pinckney, the contents of which have not yet publicly transpired. The reports upon the subject are very contradictory; but those of a pacific tendency are by far the most entitled to credit.

—The vessel which brought these dispatches is called the St. Michael. She sailed from America the latter end of April, with two Messengers, one of whom she landed at L'Orient, charged with dispatches for Genl. Armstrong, at Paris.

The projected expedition to South America, we have reason to believe, is already in a state of forwardness; and we are rejoiced to find, that it is intended to be conducted upon such principles as promise to insure its most complete success—an event which, in the present state of European affairs, must prove of the highest importance to Great Britain.

Parliament re assembled this day, pursuant to adjournment.

Preparations are making for fitting out an expedition at Dover.

June 9.

It is said that the Viscount Materosa and Don Diego de la Vega, who are arrived from Spain, have been deputed to solicit the assistance of this country towards enabling the Spaniards to expel the French. We learn that in the provinces of Asturias and Gallacia, a provisional government has been established, which has deputed commissioners to go into the different provinces in Spain, to spirit up the people to resistance.—It was by this government, we suppose, that the above mentioned Noblemen were sent to this country—Four more are said to be on board the Stag.—The Marquis De Santa Cruz is at the head of the government, with the title of Commander in Chief.—On the 25th of last month he issued a Proclamation at Oviedo, inviting the inhabitants of Asturias to rise up in defence of their constitution and their country.—"It is your country that calls you to rescue her from the hands of her oppressors.—Will any Spaniard be deaf to her call? —Arise.—We have arms—shall we want hands to yield them?—We have a good cause —shall we want hearts to defend it?—This patriotic call has been patriotically answered. Forty thousand men have already enrolled themselves, and the province of Asturias is by no means the largest in Spain.—Gallicia can furnish a much larger force—so can Biscay.—The Biscayans too are a hardy race, accustomed to military discipline and deeply attached to the constitution of their particular province.—Leon, Arragon and Catalonia, are expected to follow the example of Asturias; and the Castilles, never backward in cause of their country, will scarcely be the last to prove their patriotism. But they are more immediately in the power of France, than any of the other provinces; it is there that the great body of the French are concentrated. Bonaparte in the mean time, aware of the indignation his most infamous treachery has excited, is pouring more troops into Spain from Italy, from the Netherlands and from France.

The Ports of Gijon, Bilboa, and St. Andero, have it is reported, been opened to the English.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived last night, but the intelligence brought by it is not of importance. Of the surrender of the Russians in Gotland, our readers were before informed.—The mail has brought the official report, and the articles of capitulation. The Russians are not to serve against Sweden for twelve months.—The Swedish force in Norway, remains in statu quo. In Finland some further advantages have been obtained over the Russians, but they are not of much importance.

Of the Prussian army, which not two years ago was esteemed to be amongst the most flourishing and best disciplined in Europe, not more than five thousand remain embodied!

The British troops remained in Gottenburgh harbour on the 30th ult.

By a vessel which effected her escape from Charente, on the 25th ult. by cutting her cables, we find that an order had been issued at all the ports of France for laying a first embargo on all vessels, without respect to any flag whatever. No other intelligence of importance has been received by this conveyance.

The Captain of a vessel which arrived yesterday from the Dutch coast, states, that it was generally rumoured at the time of his departure, which was on the first instant, that the Prussians had revolted against the French troops, and that the revolt had been particularly formidable at Berlin and Magdeburg. From the same source we learn, that vast numbers of French troops had marched off towards the Rhine.

The American vessel, the St. Michael, sailed from Baltimore on the 5th ult. with dispatches for General Armstrong, under the care of Mr. Baker; a Mr. Purveyance also the bearer of dispatches for Mr. Pinckney, enclosing others for the British government. The vessel was instructed to make the port of L'Orient, on her approach to which, on the 31st ult. and before she entered the harbour, she was overhauled by a British man of war, (the Donegal or the Dragon). The captain learning that a messenger was on board with dispatches for the British government, proposed to give him a safe conveyance to England; but his offer was declined, the Messengers instructions being first to proceed to France. Mr. Purveyance, as some surmise, may be detained at L'Orient, in the same manner as was Mr. Nourse, until General Armstrong is prepared to send Mr. Baker with him to England; and, perhaps before that can be done, it may be necessary to consult Bonaparte at Bayonne. Should that be the case, we cannot expect to hear of the arrival of the St. Michael in England for some weeks to come; yesterday, however, Mr. Canning announced her arrival at L'Orient to Mr. Pinckney.

June 18.

The third Spanish Deputy came out of Corunna in an open boat, and went on board the Statira frigate. He entreated the Commander to supply the Patriots with 300 barrels of gun powder, of which they were in great want.—Arms they had plenty. The Captain of the Statira could not comply with this request without orders; but he immediately carried the Spanish Deputy to Admiral Gambier who did not think proper to act without the instructions of government, and sent the officer forward in the Statira, to prefer his application in London. This gentleman we understand, says that no insurrection has taken place in Ferrol, but that if any attempt should be made by the French to make themselves masters of the place, the inhabitants would rise to a man against them.

Our squadron off Ferrol is said to have received a communication from the inhabitants, stating that a French frigate was in that port, having on board 30,000 stand of arms. It is added that preparations were making for her capture.

In the mean time, government had taken steps to send ammunition to the Patriots, before the arrival of this third Spanish Deputy. All the frigates that were in Plymouth have sailed for the Spanish coast, with directions we are informed, to land ammunition.—Other ships will follow them immediately.—Sir A. Wellesley's expedition will sail without loss of time. Two detachments of the Royal Artillery and Artillery Drivers, embarked the day before yesterday—they are to form a part of the expedition. Sir T. Dyer is gone to one of the Spanish ports, upon a particular mission.

The spirit of patriotism, is said to have manifested itself at Carthagena—a port of very great importance, which the French we trust, will not be permitted to occupy.

The Deputies who have been required to attend Bonaparte's pleasure at Bayonne, have been conducted thither, in something like the way in which the French conscripts are sent to the armies.—They were not indeed chained or hand-cuffed, but when they were to leave Madrid, Murat sent to each individual's house an escort of horse, under the pretext of doing him honor, and of conducting him safe to Bayonne.

The approaching recess of Parliament will it is reported, be much shorter than usual.—Both houses, it is supposed, will be called together again in October.

We have heard that, our Ministers are determined to aid the cause of the patriots of Spain. Sir Arthur Wellesley sets off this day, or to-morrow, for the purpose of proceeding to Spain. He is to take such troops as are in readiness with him, and the force collected at Cork is to follow. We understand, that vigorous efforts will be used to send as great a force as possible upon this important expedition.

Viscount Materosa is fully accredited by Ministers as Ambassador from the Spanish Patriots, and has taken a house in Hanover square.

We have heard that the Spanish Noblemen Materosa, and De la Vega, have already entered into an agreement with Government, by which all the Spanish prisoners in this Country are immediately to be realeased, and sent back to Spain.

Ammunition has been sent off in great quantities for the use of the Spanish patriots. The Marquis De Santa Cruz, who is at the head of the Provincial Government of Asturias and Gallicia, is a young Nobleman of high spirit, and is in particular esteem in the former province. To him is committed the command of that patriotic army, which we hope is destined to rescue their country from a foreign yoke. The Marquis De Oviedo, who is joined with him in the conduct of the national affairs, is also a Nobleman in whose spirit and virtue the people place entire confidence.

Admiral Gardner, son of Lord Gardner, is to have a flag, which he will hoist immediately, and sail on a secret expedition.

Torbay, June 14.

Last night, at eight o'clock, after post, a schooner ran into the bay, under a very heavy press of canvas, charged with dispatches it is said, and giving an account that the French fleet had escaped from Brest. The whole of the fleet under admiral Lord Gambier got under way immediately, but I fear have made little progress down the channel, as there is very little wind.

Barbadoes July 10.

Ere this, every Frenchman either in Spain or Portugal, is either killed or taken, we already know of about 20,000 being so. It is computed that Spain, in two months from the date of the last dispatches, received the 20th. ult. would have 1,200,000 men in arms. They had got possession of six French ships of the line, and Ambassadors had gone to England to make peace—all Spanish Ports are open.

The following verbal details by the British Officer arrived at Norfolk, have been handed to us for publication, by the gentlemen to whom, they were transmitted from Norfolk, viz. The Spaniards and Portuguese had risen en-masse, and massacred the French troops in Spain and Portugal—Murat who commanded at Madrid, had with difficulty saved his life and surrendered himself a prisoner to the Regent of Spain. Junot who commanded at Lisbon, had taken refuge on board the English fleet, after losing almost the whole of his army. The French squadron at Cadiz had been attacked by the Spaniards in sight of the British fleet which the Spaniards requested might not interfere, as they wished to chastise their perfidious enemy with their own hands—and the French squadron, after a combat was surrendered to the Spaniards.

Seville, June 5.

EXTRACTS

"From letters dated 31st May from Cadiz, we learn the following:—At nine o'clock A. M. of that date the chief of squadron Don Enrique M'Donnel, and Don Pedro Creux went to hold a truce with the Admiral of the British squadron which blockaded that port, in order to establish conferences; and at 8 in the evening, returned with the satisfactory intelligence that the British forces conformed themselves to the dispositions of the Supreme Council, offering all the assistance that might be wanted, among the rest five thousand men, that they had prepared for Gibraltar; and in consequence they ordered the detention of the convoy which conducted them, and that on the day following, an officer was landed in order to determine upon what might be judged expedient.

"From advices received by the Supreme Council, it is known that there had entered into Yelves a corps of 6000 French, to the Portugues; and the speedy disorganization of the whole French army in Portugal was expected."

June 14.

"The Supreme Council received by express this morning, the following advice:

Lisbon, June 2.

"For three days have been seen from hence at the mouth of this Bar, a formidable English squadron.—Yesterday, I myself counted eighteen ships of war nearly within cannon shot, with forty sail of transports, without reckoning others which appeared more distant upon the horizon.

"It is asserted that part of said squadron comes from the Mediterranean, where it destroyed in sight of Majorca the united French squadron which had got out of Brest and Rochefort, reunited with that of Toulon and five Russian ships which had joined them. It appears that there have been brought in tow nine vessels of this defeat, and which are now with the squadron at the entrance of this port. French troops have marched for different places in Spain. Those of Spain have defiled off for that quarter, some by orders and others of their own accord."

MELANCHOLY EVENT.

We have to record a very melancholy event, which took place in this vicinity on Wednesday last. A revenue Cutter from the lines, commanded by Lieut. Farrington, with a serjeant and 12 privates, was dispatched by a Collector of the Customs in pursuit of a large batteau called the Black Snake owned by persons near the lines, well known there to have been employed in smuggling. The Cutter pursued her up Onion river, where she was found and taken pos-

-sion of by Lieut. Farrington, while her crew, who were armed stood on the bank of the river and threatened to fire on the first man who attempted to come on board. The Black Snake was manned by a part of the crew of the Cutter, who proceeded with her down the river, while the smugglers repeatedly declared they shou never take her out of the river alive. They had not gone more than 100 rods, befor they were fired on from the shore, through the bushes, and one man on board of the Cutter, by the name of Ellias Drake was shot through the head and immediately expired. Several more shots were made, when the lieutenant ordered his men to steer for the shore.

Scarcely had they landed, when the whole contents of a large gun, called a wall piece, about ten feet in length, carrying 16 ounce balls, was discharged upon them, which proved fatal to Asa Marsh, another of the crew of the cutter and Mr. Ormsby, an inhabitant of this town, who returning from work, happened to be present at this unfortunate moment.—The lieutenant also received a ball through the left arm and was slightly wounded in his head. By the spirited exertions of the people of this village, eight persons were apprehended and safely lodged in the common goal which is guarded by a detachment of the town militia. A jury of inquest was immediately summoned, who after a view of the bodies and a careful examination of the witnesses, returned their inquisition that the deceased came to their death by WILFUL MURDER. Two of the persons apprehended will probably make it appear that they were not concerned in this horid transaction.

The funeral of these unfortunate victims was attended yesterday, by a vast concourse of persons from this and the neighboring towns. An appropriate and pathetic discourse was delivered by the Rev. D. Willams. The procession proceeded from the Court house to the burying ground, and extended nearly half a mile in length. The militia of this town, under the command of Capt. J. Warner, rendered martial honors to the memory of the deceased.

An examinations of the prisoners has not yet taken place. As soon as an enquiry is made, the public will have a minute detail of the facts; in the mean time, it is hoped all opinion will be suspended.—There are four of these desperadoes who have not yet been taken but the greatest exertions are making to apprehend them.

In the Burlington paper, we find an advertisement under the signature of the Collector of the Revenue, offering a Reward of 100 Dollars for Samuel I. Mott, commander of the barteau: & 50 Dollars each for William Noks, Capt Pease and Slocum Clark, the remainder of the crew who had committed the above recited outrage upon our citizens, and fled from the hand of Justice.—Capt. Pease, it is said, has since been apprehended and committed to Burlington jail.

Two long twelve pounds, and several smaller pieces of cannon, passed thro this village for Lake Champlain, one day last week, under the care of a lieutenant of the navy and several midshipmen.—They are intended for the two gun-boats now building or about to be built, on the lake to aid in enforcing the embargo laws.

Upper Louisiana, May 26.

The Osage nation have killed one of our citizens, and have failed to deliver up the murderer, they have beaten, and wounded many others. They have stolen a large number of our horses, they have wantonly killed and destroyed our cattle, they have plundered our frontier inhabitants and destroyed such articles as were not portable, and from late information received by the traders who have recently returned from their villages, it appears they evince a hostile disposition towards us, and consequently that other depredations may be expected I have in several late conferences with other nations, declared the Osage nation no longer under the protection of the U. States, and set them at liberty to adjust their differences with that abandoned nation in their own way, but have prohibited their attacking them except with a sufficent force to destroy or drive them from our neighborhood. The White-Hair the great chief of the Osages is now with me, he found it impracticable to govern this nation, and has repaired here for protection. The traders have been ordered to leave their villages, as have also the hunters and all other white persons, to quit their country; a confiderable number had already arrived, and the others are daily expected, Under these circumstances I hope that you will permit the Indians in your territory to take their own measures for attacking the Osage. It is possible that a part of the militia of Louisiana will be employed on this service. The expedition will move in September.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, July 4.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

PROROGATION.

The Lord Chancellor addressed the following speech to both Houses of Parliament:

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"We have in command from his Majesty to express to you the great satisfaction which he derives from being enabled, by putting an end to the present session of Parliament, to terminate the laborious attendance which the public business has required of you.

"The measures which you have adopted for the improvement of the Military force of the country, promises to lay the foundation of a system of internal defence, eminently useful, and peculiarly adapted to the exigencies of these times.

"The sanction which you have given to those measures of defensive retaliation, to which the violent attacks of the enemy, upon the commerce and resources of this kingdom compelled his Majesty to resort, has been highly satisfactory to his Majesty.

"His Majesty doubts not, that in the result, the enemy will be convinced of the impolicy of preserving in a system which retorts upon himself, in so much greater proportion, those evils which he endeavors to inflict upon this country.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

"We are commanded by his Majesty to express his most hearty acknowledgements for the cheerfulness with which the necessary supplies for the current year have been provided.

"His Majesty directs us to assure you that he participates in the satisfaction with which you must have contemplated the flourishing situation of the revenue and credit of the country, notwithstanding the pressure of the war; and he congratulates you upon having been enabled to provide for the exigencies of the public service, with so small an addition to the public burthen.

"His Majesty commands us to thank you for having enabled him to make good his engagements with his allies; and to express to you the particular gratification which he has derived from the manner in which you have provided for his sister, her Royal Highness the Dutchess of Brunswick.

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"His Majesty has great satisfaction in informing you, that notwithstanding the formidable confederacy united against his ally, the King of Sweden, that sovereign perseveres with unabated vigor and constancy, to maintain the honor and independence of his crown, and no effort has been wanting on the part of his Majesty to support him in the arduous contest in which he is engaged.

"The recent transactions in Spain and Italy have exhibited new and striking proofs of the unbounded and unprincipled ambition on which assaults the common enemy of every established and independent nation in the world.

"His Majesty views with the liveliest interests, the loyal and determined spirit manifested by the Spanish nation, in resisting the violence and perfidy with which their dearest rights have been assailed.

"The Spanish nation thus nobly struggling against the tyranny and usurpation of France, can no longer be considered as the enemy of Great Britain; but is recognized by his Majesty as a natural friend and ally.

"We are commanded to inform you that his Majesty has received communications from several of the Provinces of Spain, soliciting the aid of his Majesty. The answer of his Majesty to those communications has been received in Spain with every demonstration of those sentiments of confidence and affection which are congenial to the feelings and true interest of both nations; and his Majesty commands us to assure you, that he will continue to make every exertion in his power for the support of the Spanish cause; —guided in the choice and in the direction of his exertions, by the wishes of those in whose behalf they are employed.

"Contributing to the success of this just and glorious cause, his Majesty has no other object than that of preserving unimpaired, the integrity and independence of the Spanish monarchy. But he trusts that the same efforts which are directed to that great object, may, under the blessings of divine Providence, lean in their effect, and by their example, to the restoration of the liberties and peace of Europe."

The commissions for proroguing the Parliament being then read, the Lord Chancellor addressed both houses as follows:

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"By virtue of his Majesty's Commission to us and to other noble Lords directed, and now read, we do in his Majesty's name, and in obedience to his command, prorogue this present Parliament to Wednesday the 20th day of August next, to be then here holden; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Wednesday the 20th day of August next."

PROCLAMATION OF PEACE WITH ENGLAND and SWEDEN, HER ALLY.

Published at Oviedo on the 20th June, 1808.

Ferdinand the Seventh King of Spain in his Royal name—

"The Supreme Junta of this principality declares a general peace with England, and at the same time the closest alliance with that nation, which has with the greatest generosity offered all the succours and assistance that have been asked either. They also declare peace with Sweden, and order, that all our ports should be open to the vessels of both nations, and that this royal resolution be communicated to all the Justices of this principality."

July 7.

We have been favored with the following extracts from the Stockholm Gazette of June 25.

"A report from Field Marshal Klingspor, dated Boahesad, June 10, sets forth that after Colonel Sandels had driven the Russians from Rautalambi, Lappavista, Jorois, and Warkaus, taken all their magazines and artillery, (ninety-nine cannon in all) he proceeded to Koiwis, where, after a severe conflict, the Russians were again defeated, when a number of prisoners and considerable stores fell into the hands of the Swedes.—Sandels was still pursuing the enemy. His headquarters was at Cuopio."

The private letters received by the Gottenburgh mail, fully explain the motives by which Sir John Moore was actuated, when, by his letters from Stockholm, he directs every officer on shore at Gottenburgh, to lose no time in repairing on board the British fleet in the Baltic.—According to these letters, it is by no means true, that the expedition is about to return to England; it is to proceed to Zealand, Sir J. Moore was expected on the 29th of June, to take the command of the troops, and to proceed directly for Copenhagen, where he was to be received with the full approbation of the Danish government, who had entered into a joint treaty with England and Sweden. The Island to be returned to Denmark with the fleet, at the conclusion of such a peace as should justify her in requiring such a restoration.

A Swedish Messenger with important dispatches for the government, came by the Packet. A gentleman has also arrived, who, it is stated, is empowered to negociate with government for an immediate peace with Russia. A letter from Sweden declares positively, that Russia has proclaimed war against France. This must be premature, but that some important arrangement is on the tapis, in which Russia, forms a principle part, seems to be fully evinced by the rapid fall of the Russian produce. Hemp, which last week was 115l. per ton, is now 95l. and it is difficult to find purchasers even at that price.

SWEDEN

A messenger arrived on Saturday with dispatches from Sir J. Moore. He brings intelligence that Sir John Moore continued at Stockholm on the 23d ult. The British troops continued embarking on Sunday se'nnight. The nature of the dispatches have not transpired, but they are understood to be of great importance, as the messenger came home in an extra packet, and his dispatches were of such urgency, as not to admit of his waiting to bring the mail due on that day.

The manner in which the northern war appears to linger, gives much credit to the reports which prevailed through the week of another

COALITION AGAINST FRANCE.

That idea appears to have taken its rise from the following articles in the Vienna Gazette.

Vienna, June 8.

It is observed, that the exchange of Couriers with the first courts of Europe is more frequent than formerly. It appears as if important affairs are under consideration; for on the 14th a great conference is to be held at which the Archdukes are to preside, and all the governors of hereditary dominions, who are now here, are to be present.—The result of the Assembly is to be laid before his Majesty on his arrival. Last night the archduke John departed hence unexpectedly; it is supposed he is gone to the Emperor. The late events in Spain and the Papal dominions, have caused a strong sensation, and given occasion to many secrets among the ministers of the different courts residing here. Baron Thugot, known by his influence in state affairs after the death of the Minister of State, Prince Kaunits, who afterwards removed from court, is now returned to one of our fountains."

The following articles relate to the same subject:

A letter received by the last Gottenburgh mail states, that the king of Prussia is undetermined to have recently had a letter from Bonaparte, advising him to abdicate his throne. Upon receiving this advice the Prussian Monarch is said to have immediately set off for St. Petersburgh.

Letters from Holland of the 26th ultimo, were received on Wednesday. They corroborate the above intelligence, and add, that Denmark and Russia begin to see the dangerous consequences of their present policy, and are already concerting means to correct the alarming error into which they have been seduced by the artifices of this common enemy.

The Rosamond Cutter is arrived at Heligoland, she had brought dispatches to government from Vienna, which are supposed to be of the highest importance. The Cutter came away in haste, and brought only a dozen private letters. It is reported that the Emperor of Austria has determined to make common cause with the Patriots of Spain, and that active preparations had commenced throughout the whole of the Austrian territories. Similar sentiments are said to be expressed by several other German States, and in Prussia and Holland there is a general feeling in favor of the brave Spaniards.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived the 30th ult. and if the reports prevalent in Sweden be true, the Continent is once more about to rise, and make another effort to recover its independence. The reports are, that Bonaparte has demanded of Austria and Russia their territories in Poland—a demand which they peremptorily refused, following their refusal with active preparations for war—that Russia was on the point of evacuating Finland, marching her troops into Poland, and offering peace to Sweden and Great-Britain.

SECOND EDITION.

Insurrection in France.

We stop the press to announce the following important intelligence from the Gazette, of the 25th of June, viz. That the Ld. Lieutenant from the coast of France, state that an insurrection has broken out of a most formidable nature, all the operations of which had been concealed till 55,000 men had been completely armed and organized. The signal for assembling was the cry —Au feu! au feu! au feu!

In the provinces of Languedoc and Rousillon alone from 35 to 40,000 men were in arms, who had joined the Spanish Patriots in Catalonia; the general cry of the united armies was, "Peace with England, and war with Bonaparte." The whole Pyrenean frontier is represented as in full insurrection. Report states, that Talleyrand is the grand mover of this revolt.

Lord. Paper.

The Spaniards and Portuguese are completely in possession of Cadiz and Oporto, and it appears impossible that Junot can hold out at Lisbon.

We have the pleasure to assure our readers, that the utmost activity pervades every department of government in promoting every possible means to assist the Spanish Patriots. The troops destined to embark in this glorious enterprize are moving towards Portsmouth and Plymouth from various quarters, and the embarkation as we yesterday stated, had begun three days ago at both places, and was proceeding with great spirit and the utmost regularity. Among the other wise and laudable measures of government, the release of the Spanish prisoners and the intention to send them in aid of their Patriotic countrymen, is not the least interesting, and may be attended with the best effects. The manner in which this generous measure has been received by the Spanish prisoners themselves is highly gratifying, and must excite the most pleasing emotions in every humane and liberal mind. About twelve hundred of these men, previous to their embarkation on Monday last, at Portsmouth, were indulged with the liberty of walking through the town. It is impossible to describe the rapture with which they received the proposal of being conveyed to their country on condition of their engaging to assist in the glorious endeavor to preserve its independence. They manifested the most ardent attachment to the cause of their country and the strongest sense of gratitude to the English nation for the noble zeal with which it espoused the cause. Their men went through all parts of Plymouth, testifying their sentiments with shouts of joy, and almost incessant acclamations of "Good England!—kind, generous Englishmen!" during the whole of their progress. They were preceded by bands of music and their raptures and grateful exclamations not only produced bursts of sympathy from all the spectators, but the most tender emotions of hope and pleasure. The same joyous events took place at Plymouth where also about 1500 have already embarked. When they were collected on Thursday last, and the letter from government was read to them offering to them a conveyance to their country, on the same condition and desiring those who were willing to embrace the proposal to turn to the right, they all spring, with pleasure in that direction, shouting, with fervent zeal, "Long live the British King! God bless the English and the Spanish Patriots." In truth, the scene was both animating and affecting in the highest degree, and may be considered as one of the proudest effects of those glorious principles of action which have so long distinguished the people of this country, and which we trust, will always pre eminently mark the national character till the end of time.

It is with sincere pleasure we add, that all the Spanish prisoners have been provided with shoes and other necessaries, and have also had money given to them, and that ten thousand regimental suits have already been shipped for the use of the patriots. Such is the activity, such the zeal, and such the generosity of the British government.

In addition to the eminent military characters we have already named, several persons in Spain, distinguished for their rank, talent and authority, have assisted with their counsels, or animated by this example, the noble exertions for the people for their independence. The proclamation of Aragon is signed by a name illustrious in Spanish history. The Supreme Junta of Seville must be composed of men of great rank and consideration—the venerable Florida Blanca, quitted his retirement to sanction by his presence the proclamation of Ferdinand the Seventh, at Murcia. It is said that Don Antonio Valdes, lo long minister of marine, and no less celebrated for his talents than his probity, presides at Leon, and it is confidently reported, that Don Gaspar Mainez De Jovellanos approves and takes a part in the measures adopted to Saragossa.

A Lieutenant in the service of the Portuguese government, is arrived in town with dispatches from the Patriot leaders in Portugal, to his excellency the Chevalier De Souza Coutinho, the Portuguese Ambassador at our court. They are said to contain an offer to rise en masse, for the purpose of liberating the country from the tyranny of the French; at the same time, calling on the official organ of their nation in England to request the assistance of their ancient ally (Great Britain) in their patriotic struggle.

On Saturday now more Spanish prisoners sailed for Spain in the Indefatigable—150 also sailed in the Pickle schooner and 1 transport.

The Narcissus frigate is appointed to sail immediately for Portugal, to convoy home the ships loading there with wine for this country.

July 8.

Catalonia has declared in favor of the patriots, and thus the bright and steady flame encircles the whole kingdom of Spain—but the French, as will be recollected, were in possession of Barcelona, and the strong fort of Montjui, which covers the harbour. Accounts however, by the Aspbea Packet, state a French corps had actually been surrounded in Barcelona.—We have not heard that the dispatches confirm the intelligence of Dupont having been attacked and defeated in the Sierra Morena; on the contrary, it was reported, in our fleet, that he had passed the Sierra Morena, and pushed his unwieldy path, almost to Cordova. If Dupont has pushed on to Cordova, it would seem has if his intentions were to attempt advancing to Seville. The patriots aware of that intention, were sending their force to arrest his progress—they have in Andeadia already assembled, of whom 15,000 are regulars; their head quarters are at Carmona, about 20 miles from Seville, their advanced post at Ecija.—But some person doubts the truth of the report of Dupont having relinquished the strong position of the Sierra Morena and advanced to Cordova—for this force never was raised higher in the French papers than 20,000, and probably does not amount to above two thirds of that number. He could not expect with that force, to make head against the whole patriotic strength of Andalusia.

The disposition of all the provinces is excellent, and subscriptions are going on in every one of them with the greatest eagerness.

The general of the patriotic troops, sent to the Governor of Gibraltar, requesting the loan of 50,000 cobs, (a cob is 4s. 6d. sterling,) to pay his men. The merchants understanding the nature of the request, did not permit it to reach its destination; but instantly subscribed the necessary sum, and dispatched it to the Spaniards by his own messenger.

Commercial speculations to Spain are already in great forwardness; ships are loading with tobacco, sugar, coffee, cocoa, gloves, &c. &c. The article of tobacco has already very considerably advanced in price. A ship was yesterday announced, by a bill put up in the Royal Exchange, to sail with a license, and well armed, for Cadiz direct.

The Spanish navy, at the end of the year 1796, consisted of 76 sail of the line, 23 of which have been taken or destroyed; 51 frigates, 20 of which have been taken or destroyed; 10 corvets, 9 xebecks, 16 bulks, 43 brigs, 7 luggers, 18 galleys, 22 bombs 33 gun-boats, 17 armatas, 5 furnaze, 12 armed boats, and 5 packets; consequently they have at present 53 sail of the line, and 31 frigates, independent of what may have been built since.

Several reports prevailed last night with respect to Sweden—It was said that Colonel Morvey had brought an account of negociations having been entered into by this country and Sweden with Russia and Denmark, and that they were in so favorable a train, as to justify the withdrawing our troops, who were coming home.

By the packet which brought over Col. Murray, the Stockholm Gazette of the 26th ult. has been received. They announce some further successes of the Swedes over the Russians in Finland, and the taking of 15 pieces of cannon by the latter; besides which, it gives us reason to hope, that the account we received by a former mail, of 8000 Russians being surrounded at Grants Gurleby, will prove correct. The private accounts state, that the corps of Russians has actually been forced to surrender.

The whole fresh fleet came out a few days ago, amounting to twelve sail of the line and several frigates. Ours was becalmed—but a breeze springing up soon afterwards, Lord Keith Admiral immediately steered towards them; but the enemy not willing to risk a meeting with his Lordship, immediately made fast back again, and got under the protection of the batteries.

FROM THE TAGUS

A letter from an officer on board the fleet off the Tagus, of June 13, states:—"That an army of 30,000 Spaniards were on their march towards Lisbon; that Admiral Cotton had sent a flag to the Russian Admiral acquainting him of the events which had taken place in Spain and Portugal, and requesting to accept his surrender, on the condition of his fleet's being transferred to the Emperor Alexander on the conclusion of peace; that a body of French troops on their march from St. Ubes to Lisbon, had been surrounded by a detachment of Portuguese, and Spaniards, and taken prisoners;"—The latter concludes, that—"We expect to go into the Tagus every hour, I shall probably come home in a Russian man of war."

According to the German papers, the greatest activity prevails in the recruiting of the Austrian armies, and a report of military retreat is announced. The whole army is in contemplation of the French, divided into ten divisions, three of which are commanded by the Archdukes of the Imperial House. On the 9th ult. the Governor issued a Proclamation for raising an army of reserve for the defence of the monarchy at the same time taking care to laugh at the friendly relations of Austria towards all the powers of the Continent.

Some private letters from Holland mention a report of Prince having declared war against Austria. If this report be true he cannot succeed against Spain, he might desire against Austria, in order to afford him some pretext for withdrawing his troops from Spain.

GLOBE OFFICE, four o'clock. July 9.

It is confidently and generally reported in this City, that a treaty of peace has been signed between Russia, Sweden and Denmark; and that Sir John Moore's expedition, is in sight, off Portsmouth this morning, steering down channel for Lisbon.

The first division of the prize money for the capture of Buenos Ayres, takes place on the 15th inst.—A Field officer's share will be 700l.

NEW-YORK. August 20.

Spanish News.—By the arrival of the ship Ocean, this morning, in 42 days from Gibraltar, we learn

That the French and Spanish Fleet, at Minorca have surrendered to the Patriots of Spain.

That five thousand of Murat's troops had deserted and his whole army at Madrid is reduced to thee thousand, men

That General Spencer, at the head of five thousand British Troops had landed and were marching to the assistance of the Spanish Patriots.

That the French General Dupont, who was proceeding to Seville with 9000 men, was surrounded by 50,000 Spaniards.

That Valdes, the Commander of the Spanish squadron consisting of six ships of war, and De Mahon, Governor in Minorca, had submitted to the orders of the Supreme Council, and declared war against France.

That most of the Spanish provinces had submitted to the Decrees of the Council of Seville, and.

That the grand Council had ordered that all American vessels, which had been detained under the French Decrees, should be liberated.

Thirty thousand barrel of arms, 6000 tons of ammunition, 4,000,000 of buff catridges, with entrenching tools, artillery, &c. have been sent out from Woolwich to the Spanish Patriots.

Albany, August 18.

Passed through this city, on Saturday last, thirteen ship carpenters and two blacksmiths, in the employ of government. Their destination we are told, is Lake Ontario. The vessel to be built, will carry 18 guns, it will take eight months to finish her; she is to be commanded by Lieutenant M. T. Woolsey.

TRANSLATIONS FROM LATE SPANISH PAPERS

Seville—To the Portuguese.

"Your fate perhaps has been more severe than has been suffered by any people upon earth.

"Your Kings forced to fly from you and the same which has happened to Spain is an irrefragable proof of the absolute necessity under which they (the kings did it.—You have been ordered not to defend yourselves, and you have not defended. Junot offered to make you happy, and your happiness has been to be treated with more cruelty than the most ferocious conquerors have used people whom they have subdued by force of arms, and after a most obstinate resistance.

"You have been deprived of your kings, your lands, usages, customs, goods, liberty, of life itself and of that holy religion which your enemies have never respected, but which according to their custom they have promised to protect, and have even feigned to practice themselves. Your nobility has been annihilated, your goods have been confiscated as a punishment for your fidelity and loyalty.

"You have been dragged vilely to foreign regions, and you have been forced to become prostrate at the feet of that which has caused you so many evils, and which by the most terrible perfidy has usurped your empire and rules you with an iron sceptre.—Already your troops have passed your borders, and go chained to die in defence of that which has opposed you, of that which follows a spirit profoundly wicked to destroy those which ought to be your strength, and make them serve with their lives, to their triumphs, and to that ferocious glory to which they aspire.—Spain has been between grief and desperation, your servitude, and all the horrible evils, which have followed it. Ye are her brothers, and pant to fly to our succour.—But some chiefs, a government either weak, or corrupted, has arrested it, and prepared the means by which the ruin of our king, of our laws, the same holy religion which unites us, that all should accompany your own destruction; and by which that barbarous people might accomplish a triumph, and the slavery of the rest of Europe. Our loyalty, our generosity, our justice, could not suffer a wickedness so atrocious, they have broken the restraint. Let us go to fight. We have armies and chiefs, and there is but one cry throughout Spain.—To die all in defence of the country, but also to make those with enemies to fall with us.

"Come then, generous Portuguese, to unite yourselves with Spain, to die for the country. Its standards expect you and will receive you with gladness, as brothers infamously oppressed. The cause of Portugal and of Spain is the same. Do not fear our troops;—their desires are the same as your own—and with your arms and forces, you may reckon upon security.

"Within yourselves you have an object for your vengeance. Do not obey the authors of your calamities:—attack them. They are a handful of dismayed wretches, and already vanquished by the very perfidies and cruelties which they have committed; and in the eyes of Europe, and of the whole world they are covered with disgrace.

"Rise in a mass!—Avoid to stain your generous hands with any crime; but go to fight against it, and destroy it.—Our forces reunited will put an end to this perfidious enemy—and Portugal, Spain, all Europe, again will breathe—or will die free, and as men.

"Portuguese! your country is not yet lost,—unless that it has been only delayed. Unite, and fly to re-establish and to save it!"

YORK, SEPTEMBER 10, 1808.

All our recent Accounts of the progress of the nations of Europe, confirm the pleasing fact that, they have awakened from the slumbers of infatuation, and the unenvied state into which, the policy of Buonaparte, had hurried and beguiled them. The Providential dispensation of his overweening power, was permitted not to influence our Parent-Country; to it, the sufferers and suffering, have cast the imploring eye of efficient assistance and it is beneficently granted to the cajoled or conquered, without nicety of discrimination or distinct partiality. The warmth of benevolence, and the sympathetic ardor of Britons are generously roused, to second the upright determination of our best of Soveriegns, and a Host of our Heroes, are now wielding the sword of protection, over the bleeding distresses of Europe, and the war-worn oppression of its victims.

CAUTION.

Several Persons, worthy and useful subjects to the United-States, evade the severities of their Embargo laws, by attempting at present, to pass in this Province a variety of badly counterfeited Bank-bills. We put the Public on their guard against them, and should be better pleased to know that, their State-Prisons, became the further nurseries of their valuable Artisans, than that, one Provincial Gallows should be degraded by such Appendages.

YORK, SEPTEMBER 17, 1808

The publication of the Proceedings of the last House of Assembly, has been for some time forborne. We now, temporally resume it, to discharge our duties to the enlightened and robust Constituents of J. Willcocks, Esq. That he was not latterly opposed, by some respectable rival, arose from the appendant degradation of opposition; and we believe, from the burden of contempt and pity, which clings to his former priceless election. We spurn at the unjustifiable intention, of leaving an impression upon his present judges; if any be hovering on their minds let it be sanctified, by being interwoven with the divine standard of Justice and Verity. It remains not to us, to apportion the degree of punishment, due to a base and unprincipled falsehood, uttered for a baneful purpose, against a Body-politic, or an interesting and functional individual: there is, independent of mankind a high Power, who metes his own vengeance upon wilful depravation.

Saturday 20th February, 1808.

"Pursuant to the order of the day, the Trial of Joseph Willcocks came on. The bar and gallery were crowded with a concourse of spectators. The Speaker informed the house that, he had caused two witnesses to be summoned, and that they were now present at the Bar of the House. Mr. Willcocks rose and said, he flattered himself he should be able to convince the House that there was no necessity for a trial. He apologised for being unused to speak in public, and begged leave to read his defence. He then produced a written paper and read it for that purpose. He did not (as on Thursday) deny having used language to that effect, but attempted to extenuate the offence by saying, that it was "a jocular, incautious and unmeaning conversation"; that the words were spoken in the moments of hilarity, when he was in a playful sportive humour, but without even dreaming that these words would be repeated, or that he was surrounded by base spies and informers. He made a virulent attack upon the witnesses, but was interrupted and called to order by Mr. Sherwood, who said that, the witnesses were under the protection of the House, and should not be in the smallest degree insulted. That such conduct was indecorous, and would not impress the minds of the members with sentiments favorable to Mr. Willcocks. Mr. Willcocks appologized and went on to read his paper. He dwelt much upon the different meaning that words might have, according to the manner in which they were spoken. "A single look would alter the sense of an expression. He concluded a lengthy written farrago by saying, that he hoped for the best, but was prepared to meet the worst with fortitude. His studied speech, made no apparent impression upon the House, favorable to him. At the request of several of the members, the Speaker called the first witness, Doctor Glennon to the Bar for examination. The other witness at the request of Mr. Willcocks, was sent away, that he might not be within hearing 'till called for. Doctor Glennon said that, some time last week, Mr. Willcocks stopped at witness's door, and entered into conversation relative to a trial which he had been threatened with by the House of Assembly. Upon being asked how he got clear of that trial he (Willcocks) said that, the House durst not bring on the trial, for he could prove that the members had been bribed with twelve hundred acres of land each, he could prove it by one of the members of this House. Mr. Willcocks cross examined the witness with much ingenuity, in order to make him contradict himself, but did not succeed. Among other questions, he asked the witness if he had not an enmity or ill will to him? if he had not cautioned people against keeping his company? Doctor Glennon said that, he had not given such a caution to any one; that he did not bear Mr. Willcocks the least ill will, but on the contrary, had rendered him essential service by giving him medicine and advice as a surgeon, for which he had not as yet received any payment.

Mr. Wilmot, Surveyor, the second witness, who had retired at Willcocks's request, during Doctor Glennon's examination, was called to the Bar. He said that, he was present at Doctor Glennon's door some time last week, when Mr. Willcocks had some conversation relative to the House of Assembly. He was asked why the House did not bring him to trial. He said that, the House durst not bring him to trial, for he could prove that they were bribed with twelve hundred acres of land each. He could prove it by one of the members (Mr. Rogers). Mr. Willcocks attempted also to puzzle and perplex this witness by cross examination, but to no purpose. The Speaker then desired Mr. Willcocks to produce any evidence that he might have in his own defence. The only witness he called was a man from among the by-standers, who alleged that, two days ago, he had heard Doctor Glennon affert at a tavern in York, that, he did not think Willcocks would be brought to trial for any words spoken in his prefence, for, fuch words were of no importance. The Speaker then called upon Mr. Willcocks, to know if he had any thing further to fay in his own defence. He faid that, he wifhed to prepare a fpeech, but could not do it under fix or feven days. He therefore made a motion that the trial might be poftponed. Mr. Waffoburn fecended him, and putting his hand upon his breaft, faid fomething that could not diftinctly be heard, about the laws of God and Cæfar. The motion was negatived by a great majority. Captain Cowan then moved "that it is the opinion of the Houfe, that Joſeph Willcocks is guilty." Mr. Sherwood rofe and faid that, he could not give a filent vote on this occafion. It had but feldom fallen to his lot to act in a judicial capacity, he to decide upon the rights of another. The talk in the preſent inſtance was an unpleaſant one; but it was a duty, and he ſhould not ſhrink from it. Mr. Joſeph Willcocks ſtood accuſed of having in a new paper called "The Guardian" of October laſt, of which he was the acknowledged Editor, inſinuated that the members of the Houſe of Aſſembly were bribed by the Governor, with land, to vote againſt the intereſt of their conſtituents; and of having lately aſſerted in the public ſtreet of York, and in the hearing of all thoſe who choſe to hear him, that the Houſe durſt not bring him to trial, for he would prove them guilty. This outrage exceeded the bounds of forbearance. The Houſe had a dignity to ſupport, which muſt not be frittered away by the attacks of falſehood and malevolence. However humble the members might be out of doors; yet collectively they formed one part of the High Court of Parliament, at leaſt as reſpectable as any other branch. The King himſelf, with all the influence of patronage, with all the pomp and ſplendour of power and loyalty, was not more auguſt than the Houſe of Commons. Mr. Sherwood took a curſory view of the evidence, and ſaid, he ſincerely believed Mr. Willcocks guilty of what was charged againſt him. Many of the members of the Houſe of Aſſembly came from diſtant parts of the province, and were ſubject to hardſhips and dangers in travelling at inclement ſeaſons of the year. All of them ſuffered conſiderable loſs in their attendance upon Parliament. If in addition to their inconveniencies, they were obliged without proteſtion, "to bear the vileſt obloquy, no man in his ſenſes would be a member; but happily that was not the caſe. The conſtitution veſted in that Houſe the power of proteſting itſelf, and that power muſt be uſed in the preſent inſtance. It was indiſpenſably neceſſary for the purpoſes of juſtice as well as for the ſake of example that Mr. Willcocks ſhould be puniſhed. His conduct was exceſſively infatuated and wicked. In the early part of the Seſſion, notice was taken of the libel in his newspapers, but the Houſe with great moderation paſſed it over, on account of a proſecution pending againſt him in the King's Bench for the ſame offence. Inſtead of profiting by this lenity, and governing his conduct by prudence and diſcretion, he became the more daring, and added inſult to injury. Mr. Sherwood made a ſevere attack upon the news-paper publiſhed by Willcocks, called the Guardian. He conſidered it to a peſtilence in the land, that diſſeminated poiſon from one end of the colony to the other. The treaſonable ſtories, or wit as they ſeem to think it with diſguſting fcurrility, which his conduct merited the moſt grateful effteem and reſpect of every loyal ſubject. The Houſe of Aſſembly were reſpected as a cleanly body, unworthy of the confidence of their conſtituents, and bribed with land. Mr. Sherwood ſaid that, he had been eight years a member, and he defied the tongue of ſlander to affert that, he had ever during that period, received a ſingle acre. It was not unworthy of remark, however, that Mr. Joſeph Willcocks himſelf, ſhortly after his arrival from Ireland, had received twelve hundred acres of excellent land. This donation, no doubt, was made to him for ſome important ſervice that he rendered Government in his native country. He concluded by ſaying that, whatever trouble or ſhame Willcocks bro't upon himſelf, muſt be attributed to his own perverſeneſs and folly.

After Mr. Willcocks had gone through his defence and croſs examined the witneſſes, the Speaker called upon Mr. Willcocks to know if he had any thing further to offer in his defence. Mr. Willcocks then required further time without offering any ground whatever.

Mr. M'Lean roſe and obſerved, in explanation and for the information of Mr. Willcocks that, if he would ſtate any reaſonable cauſe for further delay, he apprehended the indulgence would not be refuſed, and that he would vote for the queſtion.

Mr. M'Lean obſerved that, he had underſtood a queſtion had been moved in the houſe relative to a publication that had appeared in a news-paper, called "The Upper Canada Guardian," reſpecting the members of the Houſe of Aſſembly, that he was not preſent when the debate took place, but from the information he had received, he concurred in in what the Houſe had done for this cauſe, that there could not be a better or ſafer principle to the ſubject, than not to diſcuſs a matter on which a criminal proſecution was pending, as the minds of the public might be biaſſed by ſuch diſcuſſions and poſſibly bar the avenues to public juſtice with an unfavorable impreſſion towards the party accuſed.

In the diviſion of the preſent queſtions, I think the party accuſed has had a fair and impartial trial, from the teſtimony adduced, I have no heſitation in declaring him guilty and that the offence is a flagrant breach of the privileges of the Houſe, yet it may be for mature conſideration what ſhall be the puniſhment."

The cordial unanimity, of their highly honorable conduct on this memorable occaſion, will for ever endear them. to every loyal and honeſt ſubject: that it reſulted from their grateful and lively reſpect to ſacred Truth, which in the inſtance before them, had been ſo perverſely violated, and that, their unſullied Honor, was urged, to be vindicated and publicly juſtified, are loud, ſpeaking, and recorded Facts.

The laſt winter a laudible curioſity, prompted me and Robert Nellis Eſq. to travel on foot from the head of this Lake to the River Credit, on the portion of Land neareſt the water's edge, as well to aſcertain the eligibility of the ſituation for being formed in to a public highway, as the eaſy methods neceſſary to the formation. That it is the eaſieſt and moſt practicable part of the intervening country for the purpoſe, is our candid opinion, and that it would facilitate the paſſage of foot travellers greatly, is evident from its contiguity to the Lake, and appoſite quality. I with its ſituation and inviting appearance, to be aſcertained by a government Surveyor, or party ordered for the purpoſe, and that it may be found ſo preferable for a road, to any ground now occupied. It is to be hoped, that it may be devoted to ſuch uſe, without injury to the former, inconvenience to the public, or a private annoyance of any extent or conſequence. It cannot become ſo, upon a general conſideration of its utility and the principle of its making a fafe, an eaſy public convenience and valuable accommodation. Our opinion was and now is a confident one, that it curtails the general diſtance a few miles, and that cauſeways and the expence of any extra labour, were unneceſſary or nearly precluded by its promiſing appearance and proſpect of little common, and ſomething leſs than ordinary work. It was the object or intention of Mr. Nellis, to mention theſe neceſſary circumſtances at Head Quarters, which we are diſpoſed to believe he had not an opportunity of doing, (effected by his haſte to return.) We now ſuggeſt them for the public purpoſe, which then impelled him—and anxiouſly wiſh, the ſucceſsful application may advance an uſeful and agreeable general end.

Medicinal Springs.

It is now about two years, ſince theſe Springs were firſt diſcovered in the township of Scarborough, in this Diſtrict. From the report of ſeveral Perſons who have already been cured, of various complaints by the uſe of theſe waters, it may not perhaps be premature, to announce at this period, a matter of ſo much promiſe to the Public.

Some of the waters of theſe Springs, has been brought by an intelligent friend and placed in the hands of a Gentleman of this Town, well qualified to analyze them. The reſult of the Teſt, as to their real quality, together with authenticated accounts of the moſt remarkable caſes of cure, will hereafter be ſubmitted to the Public.

It is with no ſmall degree of Pleaſure we make this communication; anticipating the general benefits, to be derived from ſo great a bleſſing.

In point of local ſituation, nothing could be more fortunate, theſe Springs lying near the centre of the Province. & not far from the Seat of Government.

Effects of prejudice and a mode of counteracting it.

A perſon, about five years of age, occaſionally freely partook of Muſk-melons. He at once conceived a ſtrong averſion to their uſe; for nineteen years, he could neither ſee them ate or divided, without the ſtrongeſt appearance of fainting.—A Lady, a ſtranger to this diſlike, ſent him a couple of very fine ones, he then, with a manifeſt determination to conquer his uncommon impreſſion, eat of them without ſickneſs, and is now as fond of them, as any eſculent production.

On Wednesday the 7th Inſt. the foundation of a Roman Catholic Chapel, was laid in the Town of Kingſton. The Commandant and Officers of the Garriſon, and the moſt reſpectable characters, among the Inhabitants of the place, aſſembled on the occaſion.

It augurs favorably, for this Capital; that this month, formerly ſtigmatiſed for its accompanying Fevers, proſpects this year, an agreeable exemption of general health.

Fall of Bonaparte.—If we may truſt the prophetic intimations of a Clerical Seer, the downfall of this ſanguinary Deſpot is likely to take place in a ſhort time.—The Reverend Prophet founds his predictions on ſome paſſages in the 13th chapter of the book of Revelation, which he thus interprets:—"The Beaſt riſing out of the ſea (Corſica) with ſeven heads and ten horns, and upon his heads ten horns—is Bonaparte. This Beaſt was to have reigned forty and two months.—As Emperor of France, Bonaparte has nearly reigned this exact number of months. The Dragon (i.e the Devil) gave him this power and great authority; and he cauſed all both ſmall and great, rich and poor, free and bound to receive a mark in their right hand—i.e Bonaparte has cauſed all perſons to ſubmit to his tyranny.—The Beaſt's number was ſix hundred three ſcore and ſix, which exactly correſponds with the numerical calculations of all the letters in Bonaparte's name, reckoning the letters according to the number affixed to each before the introduction of figures, thus; —N—40, A—1, P—60, O—50, L—20, E—5, A—1, N—40, (the letters of his Chriſtian name); B—2, U—110, O—50 N—40, A—1, P—60, A—1, R—80, T —110, E—5, being the letters in his ſurname, amounting altogether to 666, the identical number of the Beaſt—i. e. Bonaparte." This venerable expounder of divine myſteries adds, that the Spaniſh Patriots are the deſtined inſtruments of the deſtruction of this Beaſt, as he denominates the French Ruler according to the ſymbolical language of the paſſages which he thus explains, and it is ſaid that he confidently relies on the truth of his interpretation. There are very few perſons in the world who can wiſh that he may prove a falſe prophet.

Extraordinary visit to the French Emperor.—It was on the 29th of April, (ſays a London paper) and about ſix o'clock in the evening, when a very ugly perſonage whom none of the officers recollected to have ſeen, walked very compoſedly through the imperial antichamber towards his Majeſty's ſitting room. His face was exceſſively ſcarred, his eyes ſunken and piercing, his body thin and waſted, but his hands amazing large, and he trode with a ſtep of alarming weight. Some of the gentlemen were about to oppoſe this unceremonious viſit, but whenever any of them approached him, he would ſtop and look full in their eyes, at which unaccountable attitude they could not help turning pale, their voices faultered and their hands dropped, and they ſaw with powerleſs conſternation the imperial door cloſe after him.

The Emperor was ſetting with Talleyrand over ſome papers, and neither he nor his Miniſter knew they had a viſitor till the ugly perſonage ſeated himſelf with a dead weight upon a chair between them. They both looked up, and ſtarted violently back, and the Emperor exclaimed, in his hurried way, "Who are you? Whom—what—where do you come from?" The unknown ſhook his head, with a melancholy ſeverity; he made the ſign of the croſs to the ex-biſhop Talleyrand, whoſe hideous jaws chattered up and down like a mandarin's on a mantle-piece, and aſſuming a bitter ſmile, ſaid, in a deep hollow voice, "Do neither of you know me?"

Napoleon recovered himſelf; he ſeemed to chidain any reply, but nevertheleſs he anſwered with a ſtern reſort of frown, "I think I have ſeen you when I was young, perhaps too a little while after the execution of that fool Palm; but my memory does not retain your perſon with any diſtinctneſs, and why ſhould it be retained?"

The ugly gentleman made no reply. He turned to the Prince of Benevento, and looked with an air of ſtrict enquiry.

"I—I—think," ſaid the Miniſter, "I think I—I—but poſitively—yes—I believe I did—I did ſee ſome ſuch looking perſon the—the—the day before I was conſecrated Biſhop of Autun."

"My name," ſaid the figure, with a ſigh, "is Conſcience."

The Emperor and his Miniſter looked at each other with a mixture of ſurpriſe and inquiry.—"Now I recollect," ſaid Talleyrand, recovering himſelf, "I met this preſumptuous fellow on the road to Holland; I am perſuaded he is a wizard and ought to be burnt. I always thought ſo when I was a Biſhop.—He inſiſted of having a lift in my carriage, and none of my retinue dared to refuſe him, his face was ſo hideous."—The viſitor took out a pocket-glaſs, and offered it to the Prince:—"The Devil!" cried Talleyrand. "No," ſaid the viſitor, "it's only yourſelf. The bad paſſions of your ſerene highneſs have rendered you as ugly as the Devil; but it is the bad paſſions of others that have ſcarred my face and made it ſo alarming." The ſtrange being looked ſtill more melancholy and the ſunſhine ſeemed to withdraw from the room as he ſpoke.—"As to my viſit here," continued he, "the high deſtiny has decreed it. I muſt return for a while to the nobler world from which I deſcended, and I knew where my death was to be found.—Yes; I am to die by the hand of the moſt bloodthirſty of men, for ſo it is written in the everlaſting book of Fate, whoſe leaves are of the ſolid thunder and whoſe pen of the ſubſtantial lightning."

Napoleon is a man of few words. He inſtantly drew his ſword and ran it through the boſom of his unwelcome gueſt, who in a moſt awful tone of voice had juſt ſtrength to utter as he died, "I ſhall ſee you again on your death-bed."

Napoleon ſmiled with a face of uneaſy ſarcaſm, and after feeling, the point of his ſword, which had grown ſharper by his work, returned it into the ſheath. The next thing to be conſidered was the diſpoſal of the dead body, which the Emperor and his Miniſter lifted upon the fire. A number of looſe papers roſe up the flame; Napoleon thruſted in his twiſted maps of Switzerland, Holland, Spain, and Portugal, together with Palm's libel, a portrait of the Duke D'Enghien, and Rouſſeau's Treatiſe on the Social Compact: and in the mean time the ex-biſhop went to his maſters library to fetch all the ſermons and bibles on which he could lay his hands; but, as unluckily there was none to be found, he contented himſelf with bringing away all the works in praiſe of the Britiſh conſtitution. In five minutes not an atom of the body was to be ſeen.

"Auguſt Sire!" exclaimed the enraptured Miniſter:—"Fortune be praiſed, we are now free from Conſcience."

"Yes," replied the Emperor with meditative energy, "the deſtiny of the Great Nation is everlaſtingly fixed. The father of his people is at length void of Conſcience!"

It was whiſpered about the palace that there had been a little affair in the imperial ſtudy, that is, that a man had been killed; but the next day it was confidently believed all over Paris, that the Emperor had killed the Devil. This however, was publickly contradicted by the Moniteur in a very ſerious manner, and the people were told that it was not the Devil, but an Engliſh Miſtord, named Conſcience, who under pretence of deferring the Britiſh army at Copenhagen, had attempted to aſſaſſinate the Great Napoleon. "No matter!" ſaid every body, with a ſhrug, "it's all the ſame, if it was an Engliſhman."

FROM LONDON PAPERS.

A merchant of Liverpool, of the name of Earl has obtained a patent for a certain mode for tillage and dreſſing of Land, and for the application of manure: he propoſes by means of a double mold-board-plough, to throw the earth into furrows of 13 inches or two feet aſunder, and in the bottom of theſe furrows to ſtrew the ſeed—the ſides of the furrows are occaſionally to be ſcraped upon the plants as they grow, but the channels are to preſerved in condition for the manure, which being reduced to a liquid ſtate, is to flow into theſe courſes from a general reſervoir.—Mr. Earle propoſes to allow farmers the benefit of this ſyſtem of practice, on their paying to him five ſhillings per acre annually for ſuch indulgence.

A method of making Spruce, or Dutch Spruce, which is well adapted for common beverage:—Two pecks of fine wheat, five ditto barley, and three quarters of a peck of rye, to be thoroughly dried by a kiln, and then ground. Mix them with ſeventy five gallons of water and boil them.—After a ſufficient boiling and ſtraining, add 125 lbs. of moloſſes, three quarters of a pint of pure turpentine, and one pound and a half of bark: the whole to be fomented with yeaſt or grounds of porter.

Flower of Brimſtone ſprinkled by a puff, dredging-box, or otherwiſe, on the leaves of vegetables, will effectually deſtroy worms or inſects, and likewiſe promote the growth of the plant—peach trees are particularly improved by the application.

A few days ago, as a ſailor was travelling near Brotherton, a hare made an attempt to croſs the road, but was ſo confuſed by two carriages at the ſame time croſſing, that the ran ſo near the ſailor as enabled him to knock her down, which having done, he put it in his handkerchief, and travelled on; and ſoon after met with an honorable baronet, particularly tenacious in the preſervation of his game, who immediately called out to the ſailor, "I ſay man, is that your own hare?" and upon receiving no anſwer, the ſame queſtion was twice repeated: at laſt the tar vociferated, "d——n your eyes, you lubber, do you think I wear a wig?"

A Fatal Duel, took place on the 29th ult. in a barren field of capt. William Fiſher, of Delaware, between two Negro gentlemen.

It was fought with bravery, and is worthy of record. The diſpute originated in conſequence of the leader (who was the challenger) being charged by his opponent, with not aſking as large a ſwarth as he did; this was denied; the lie was given; the fatal duel immediately took place with the weapons in hand. Their ſtrokes were ſimultaneous; one received the ſcythe in his left breaſt, which perforated the thorax; and the other was ſtuck in the heart. They both died inſtantly.—N. Y. Spectator.

A Lapland Wedding.—The following account of the method of deciding on a marriage between young persons in Lapland, is extracted from Fuller's Worthies of England, a work, which for the generality of its information and entertainment, is not to be excelled.—"Here let me infert a paſſage of a cuſtom in this barbarous country, from the mouths of credible merchants, whoſe eyes have beheld it. It is death in Lapland to marry a maid without her parents or friends conſent;—wherefore if one bear affection for a maid, upon the breaking thereof to her friends, the faſhion is, that a day is appointed for their friends to meet to behold the two young parties to run a race together. The maid is allowed in ſtarting the advantage of a third part of the the race, ſo that it is impoſſible, except willing of herſelf, that ſhe ſhould ever be overtaken. If the maid over run her ſuitor, the matter is ended, he muſt never have her, it being penal for the man again to renew the motion of marriage. But if the virgin hath an affection for him though at the firſt running hard, to try the truth of his love, ſhe will, (without Atalanta's golden balls to retard her ſpeed) pretend ſome caſualty, and make a voluntary halt before ſhe cometh to the mark, or end of the race Thus none are compelled to marry againſt their own will; and this is the cauſe in this poor country, that the married people are richer in their own contentment, than in other lands, where ſo many forced matches make feigned love, and cauſe real unhappineſs."

CURIOUS DIALOGUE.

The following is a dialogue between chief juſtice M'Kean and an old woman, who was giving teſtimony in a cauſe depending in the Pennſylvania court:—

CHIEF JUSTICE. Pull off your bonnet Madam—give us an opportunity of ſeeing your countenance.

OLD WOMAN. I will not, ſir.

C. J. I deſire you to pull off your bonnet.

O. W. Sir, I am informed that in all public aſſemblies the woman ought to have her head covered, and of course I ſhall not take off my bonnet.

C. J. Why, you are a pretty woman! Indeed! I think you had better come and take a ſeat on the bench.

O. W. I heartily thank you ſir; but I really think there are old women enough there already!

IMPORTANCE OF THE REAR RANK.

Said a man in the front, to a man in the rear,
"Hold your peace with your inſolent cheer—
"Your poor weak-headed, what's the uſe of your here?
——"Might as well give a gun to a rat."
"You pretend not to know which is the uſe of us here?
"They know it who give us our pay!
"Such heroes as we, Sir, are clapt in the rear,
"To prevent you from running away!"

A man and a woman one night in a moſt violent ſtorm, knocked pretty ſturdily at Swift's door and at length roused the Dean from his ſlumbers. He roſe, and throwing up the ſaſh of his chamber window, aſked, what they could want? They answered, they wanted to get married immediately, and had called for the purpoſe. "No," but ſays the Dean, "can't you wait till morning. It is now one o'clock." They ſtated ſome urgent reaſon for proceeding with out delay. The Dean found it in vain to parley. "Well," ſaid the Dean, ſtill keeping his head out of the window and talking with the bride and bridegroom in the ſtreet, if it muſt be ſo, I'll marry you now.

Attend!"

Under this window in ſtormy weather,
I join this man and woman together;
Let none but HE, who made the thunder,
Ever put this man and woman aſunder.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Counſellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the twelfth day of this preſent month of September, to be commenced, held called and elected, and to every of you——GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twenty third day of July laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twelfth day of this preſent month of September at which time in our town of York, you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twentieth day of October next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our ſaid Province of Upper Canada and there to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this fifth day of September in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eight, and in the forty eighth year of our Reign.

Agent for Purchaſes.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.

On Sunday Captain Bradford, of the brig Mercury arrived in this port, in 52 days from Alicant and 40 from Gibraltar.—Captain B. was but a few hours at Gibraltar and bro't no Engliſh papers. His verbal accounts are as follows;

A detachment of about a thouſand French troops ordered on ſome enterprize from Barcelona, which is ſtill occupied by the French were attacked and cut to pieces by the Spaniards.

The French Conſul and a number of French merchants at Malaga, had fallen victims to popular indignation, and generally the French who had ſpread themſelves in different parts of Spain, were ſeeking ſecurity by ſecret flights.

He confirms the deſtruction of Dupont's army ſent from Madrid to drive the revolutionary government from Seville.—The battle coſt the Spaniards about 7000 lives. Dupont's army conſiſted of from 9 to 12000.

He repeats the rumor that Junot's army had been ſubdued in Liſbon by the Portugueſe, and ſtates that they were actually bombarding the Ruſſian ſquadron in the Tagus.

He confirms all the accounts we have had of the zeal diſplayed by the people of Spain, in their ſtruggle for liberty, and ſtates that he had heard of their having met with no check in any quarter. They are devoted to the views of the new government, and determined to drive the French beyond the Alps or periſh in the attempt. Another battle was ſoon expected, 5000 French were within thirty leagues of Alicant and twenty thouſand Spaniards were aſſembled to oppoſe them.

The inhabitants of Naples have followed the example of Spain, and riſen upon the French troops left there by King Joſeph.—With what proſpect of ſucceſs was not known.

A Valencia paper of the 21ſt June, ſtates under the head of Madrid, June 15, that—

The Ruſſian Miniſter had given offence by not attending the levees of the Grand Duke Berg, and that he had left the city—that the Emperor Alexander declared he had not made a definitive treaty of peace at Tilſit, but merely ſigned an armiſtice the terms of which had not been fulfilled by Napoleon—that the Arch Duke Charles was to marry a Ruſſian Princeſs, and that a WAR BETWEEN FRANCE, RUSSIA and AUSTRIA would take place.

A Valencia paper of June 21, mentions the deſeat of the French under Dupont.

At Gibraltar, Captain B. learnt, that the Portugueſe had conquered the French in their country; and that at the laſt dates from Liſbon, they were firing upon the Ruſſian ſquadron to compel it to ſurrender. It is very probable, many of the French had taken refuge on board their ſhips.

Britiſh troops had been landed at St. Lucar.

SARRAGOSSA, [Arragon] June 16.

Yeſterday thoſe proud Frenchmen who preſumed to attack this capital were overthrown. 7000 were killed and a conſiderable number wounded, 30 priſoners taken and many deſerters joined us. We captured 6 battalion pieces, 6 ſtand of colours, 2 military cheſts, a number of horſes, and a quantity of arms and ammunition. We confidently expect the whole army which has entered Arragon, will be utterly defeated.

Soria, June 18.

The French had loſt between 5 and 6000 men in the actions of Tudela, Guller, and Arragon, and the remaining 12,000 had orders to enter Sarragoſſa. They were all put to the Sword. We have taken 400 horſes, and 27 waggons of ammunition.

Torteſa, June 20.

200 Spaniſh and Walloon guards with many ammuſtaſturers have arrived here from Barcelona, and enliſted for the Patriots.—Yeſterday they were joined by as many more. Latterly, Spaniſh ſoldiers who refuſe to fight with the French at Barcelona, are ſhut up in the citadel. Many young men have been hand-cuffed, and ſome chained by their necks to be carried to France; 6000 of the inhabitants are ſaid to have eſcaped from Barcelona.

The ſtate of affairs in this province is growing more and more intereſting every moment; while this capital can take no ſhare, becauſe its fortreſſes are in poſſeſſion of the French. They commit all manner of exceſſes for the purpoſe of overawing the people. Three inhabitants were ſhot, charged by a ſoldier for encouraging deſertion. We learn that at the foot of Montſerrat, in a farm houſe called Maſana, the inhabitants of Manreſa, and ſeveral other place, opened such a fire upon the French division which sat out for that town, that they put it completely to the rout, with the loss of many killed and wounded, and took its whole train of artillery excepting one howitzer. This evening, carts are coming in loaded with wounded Frenchmen.

This day at noon, 1000 French, horse and foot, were led out; but they have already returned in a panic.—A short time since, a strong division, of the best troops they have, went out from this, and not one remains.—Two divisions left here—one for Tarragona, and the other for Manreia. The latter fell into an ambuth at Bruich, where the revolutionists had erected two batteries. The peasantry have dug holes on the roads towards Madrid, to impede the French cavalry; and cut down trees to obstruct the infantry.

Yesterday morning, the armed inhabitants of Bruich, attacked the French—and it is supposed 2000 were killed. The inhabitants were directed by a priest, who held a sword in one hand and a crucifix in the other. The Castle of St. Ferdinand will be starved into surrender.

Manreia, Nich, and Lerica, are in a state of defence, and the armed inhabitants of Gerona, have taken possession of the forts.

PROCLAMATION.

OF THE SPANISH LADIES AT ALICANT.

The government has yet offended the fair sex—and many there are among us who can not contain their resentment. Are we useful for any thing in the present occurrences? Would they refuse our employing ourselves in the labors suited to our sex?—Our honour is called in question, and we require entire satisfaction. How can you repair our wrongs? Employ us immediately in those decent occupations which can alleviate, give assistance and support our brave warriors.

See the heroic conduct of the Saragonian ladies who, inflamed with the love of country, king and religion, hasten to lend you every kind of assistance. You will shortly be joined by vast numbers of regulars, who jealous of your glory, and anxious to share it, are coming hither by forced marches.

In the meanwhile, ye all, clergy, communities, mothers of families, and other citizens who, either by your personal exertions in the field of battle, or by supplying the wants of your fellow citizens, have so effectively contributed to preserve the capital of your kingdom, and to maintain the honor of the nation! continue to put up your most earnest prayers to the Almighty, through the mediations of His august and most holy mother, our Lady of the Pillar, Protectress of the Kingdom, that HE may prosper our arms, and enable us to reap the fruit of our victories, by the total destruction of the French army.—Sarragossa Gazette extraordinary.

A letter received by an eminent merchant, mentions the following curious fact: Murat finding himself in want of provisions, and conceiving the people of Valencia and Murcia were friendly to the cause of France, addressed a letter to the govrs of those provinces, requesting an immediate supply of corn; the request was farcastically managed; the governors lamented that it was not in their power to comply with the request of his highness in the article of corn, but conceiving it their duty to comply in some sort with the request of such a hero, they would in a few days present him and the army under his command, with three hundred muskets, on which they must insist of his accepting. The same note, after an apology for the shortness of the notice, requests that his highness would instantly give directions for thirty thousand beds to be prepared and in readiness for that number of respectable visitors, who meant to pay the city of Murcia a visit on the ever memorable day of Corpus Christi, and as they might sojourn a few days, they would not trouble his highness on the subject of provisions, they being scarce, and it was their intention to bring whole artillery with them in sufficient quantities for themselves and countrymen."

LONDON, July 2.

Andalusia.

The vigorous proclamation of the city of Seville, which we inserted in Wednesday's courier, prepared us to expect a general rising of the province of Andalusia.—Without any previous concert with the northern provinces, the Andalusians declare themselves determined to get rid of their detestable oppressors.—A provincial government assembled at Seville, the second city in magnitude in Spain, and its first act, after inviting the people to rise in arms, was to solicit the assistance of this country.

On the 30th, the Government of Cadiz was placed in the hands of Don Morla, a man of a very different character from that of his predecessor—a real Patriot, ardently attached to the cause of his country, and indignant at the insults and cruelties exercised against it by the French. He immediately issued a most vigorous proclamation, exciting the soldiers and people to rise in defence of their sovereign, against the tyranny and oppression of the French.

MURCIA.

While these events are passing in Andalusia, Murcia has been added to the list of patriot provinces, and a former minister of foreign affairs, Count Florida Blanka, has quitted his retirement a the advanced age of 76, and placed himself at the head of the Murcians.

VALENCIA.

The same kind of convention has been established at Corunna and Ferrol as at Cadiz—our ships have been admitted at both those ports.—At Ferrol we believe there are one or two French sail of the line.—So strong are the natural defences and passes of Galicia, that there are no apprehensions of the French making any effort to invade that province—of course the whole patriot force will be sent out of it; and the accounts received yesterday mention that it is actually on its march into Leon.

LEON.

This province, whose spirit is excellent, stretches along the western frontiers of Old Castile, and part of New Castile, till it is met by the mountains which separate it from Estramadura on the South. It is of the highest importance to the Patriots, inasmuch as it affords an easy entrance into both Castiles.—It is in Old Castile that the Patriots of Asturias and Galicia and Leon mean to make a stand.—While one body intercepts all communication between France and Madrid, another it to ascend to Madrid and make an attack upon the French, in which another force ascending Andalusia, is to co-operate.

ASTURIAS.

This province is much stronger even than Galicia, and has well been called the cradle of Spanish independence. The Moors were never able to take it; and it was from the Austrian mountains that these bands descended which at length forced the Moors to retire Southward. The loss of Asturias has been chiefly lent into where some actions have already been fought partial and not important; but the object of the Patriots is, if possible, to clear that Province, and thus make the communication between France and the French in Old & New Castile more difficult.

NAVARRE AND THE CASTILES.

That they have not yet declared so decisively against the French, is not to be attributed to any predilection for them, but to the presence of the French troops. The French have a strong force at Pampeluna, a fortress of the greatest importance. Marshal Bessieres, we believe, occupies Burgos, in Old Castile. Murat possessed, or did possess Madrid. Aware of the intentions of Andalusia, and of the leaning of the people towards the English, he sent general Dupont with his division to carry the Sierra Morena, in order to keep up the communication with Madrid.—It is supposed he had about twelve thousand men.——The Sierra Morena is seldom frequented except by smugglers and the gastherds who tend the immense flocks of sheep.—These persons are acquainted with all the paths and defiles of those mountains, and it was from them the patriots received an account of the march of Dupont's division.—The information of the pack upon it comes from so many places, from Gijon, from Oviedo, from Corunna, that we cannot help giving credit to it. The smugglers are said to have acted as guides to the Patriots, and conducted them to a part of the Sierra Morena, where the French could be attacked with advantage; they were totally routed and dispersed, and Dupont escaped to Madrid with great difficulty. The first success of the patriots, so salutary to their cause, produced a great effect upon Murat—he is said to have immediately quitted Madrid, and drawn off his force towards Buen Retiro. But even before this success over Dupont, the people of Madrid had begun to evince their hatred of the French. Desertions had become frequent in the French army, and the natives eagerly gave asylum to the deserters. The Clergy too, fed the patriotic flame, and our readers may see in a Madrid article, which we have extracted from the Dutch papers, the state of Madrid, and the apprehensions of Murat.

ARRAGON.

Of the state of this province, we have not received any particular accounts, further than that it is decidedly against the French.

From Portugal.

Details furnished by Captain W. Cox, of the ship John Jones.

Left Lisbon on the 17th of June, 18 8, at that time there was a report in circulation that a revolution had taken place in Russia, and that the Emperor Alexander had been dethroned by his people, and his brother Constantine proclaimed Emperor. About the latter end of the month of March, Mr. Michael Sattaro, was sent by the French general Junot, to the British Admiral Sir O. Cotton, then commanding the blockading squadron off the bar of Lisbon, with proposals to permit provisions to come in; the boat in which Mr. S. went, carried the Portuguese flag, with a white flag at the fore, the Admiral's answer was, that he was willing to permit a certain quantity of provisions into Portugal under the following conditions:

1. That it should be in British bottoms with flags of truce as colonial produce, &c.
2. That they should be allowed to take in return, Wines, Fruit, &c.
3. That all British subjects then confined should be set at liberty.

To the 2d article the French General consented, but not to the other two, and in consequence published a decree, and gave orders to all officers commanding the forts and batteries along the coast of Portugal, to fire under any pretence whatever, even with a flag of truce under pain of being tried and broken by a Court martial.

In the month of May, Mr. S. was again sent out and remained three days, in the result of his mission was not known when he left Lisbon. About the middle of May, the Spanish General Belesta who commanded at Porto, marched from thence for Spain, and took with him as prisoners, the French General Quesuel with all his suite and troops, as also the chief magistrate, Mr. Taboureau, and the people at Porto it is said had appointed a government in the name of the former prince regent, and hoisted the Portuguese flag; the greater part of the Spanish troops that entered Portugal with the French, also marched to Spain, but those in Lisbon and its environs were all disarmed on the night of the 18th of June, by the French, and put on board some Portuguese ships of war then in the Tagus under French colours. General Junot published the next morning his motives, for disarming the Spaniards, in which he says that he was obliged to take those steps, although (very much against his feelings) on account of the infamous behavior of the Spanish Gen. at Porto, and to prevent any effusion of blood. In Lisbon there only about 800 Spaniards and the environs about 12,00, making the whole 2000 men. There was not more than 5000 French troops in Portugal when I left it, the rest of the army went for Spain, in different parts of the frontiers of Portugal. The French had been attacked by the Spaniards particularly at Badajos, where they permitted them to enter, and then attacked them, killed a great number and took the remainder prisoners. The Portuguese Lieut. Gen. Gomez Freire de Andrade who marched with the Portuguese troops that were sent to assist the Spaniards in the commencement of the French revolution, where he also distinguished himself as a General.

The French Gen. Junot, ordered that all the property belonging to this general, should be immediately confiscated who is very popular and almost adored by the Portuguese people. The French had fortified the castle of St. George, in Lisbon, and put in bread and water for six months, and it was generally supposed, should they be attacked by the Spaniards by land, and the British by sea, that they would retire to the Castle as it commands the city, which they could easily destroy.—Of Lisbon there was a very strong, as also, a number of transports with troops on board, but they had not disembarked in any force when I left Lisbon. There are no French troops in the province of Algrave, where the people are all in arms, and that Portugal is governed in the name of the Prince Regent, and the Portuguese flag flying there, as also in a number of provinces throughout Portugal.

Both Spaniards and Portuguese have red ribbands about their left arms as a distinction they have also seized about 5000 barrels of flour destined for Lisbon; as also the greated part of the Church plate, and upwards of 5000 bags of cotton, going from Portugal to France. When I left Portugal there was no great want of provisions, but every thing was dear, and a great deal of poverty; there being no business whatever doing, and should they not shortly receive some supply of corn, bread must rise confiderable in price, although there was a very great prospect of an abundant harvest all over the country. In Lisbon the French are preparing with great activity all the old ships of war, the prince left behind him, but none of them, it is faid, is seaworthy.

The Russian fleet, commanded by Rear Admiral Sevini, consisting of nine ships of the line, one fifty gun ship, and a frigate, still continued in the Tagus; they are also repairing.

The French made an attack on the fort of Carro Marin, in Algarve, on the 22d of June but were repulsed with the loss of a number killed and taken prisoners, and all over that part of Portugal they have been attacked by the Portuguese and completely routed.

It was likewise reported that the 21st of June was the day fixed for all the Portuguese to rise on the French; but I cannot say if they rose in Lisbon, as I was on my journey at that time for Algarve; and all communications was stopped between that part and the South of Portugal, but it was told that they had risen there, as also in St. Ubes, Alcacere do Sal, Beja, as also at Mertola, where they took a great quantity of flour intended for Lisbon.

London, June 25.

The Gazette of Saturday contains an order in council allowing the importation of staves, lumber, and all kinds of provisions (excepting beef, pork, and butter,) in neutral or friendly ships, into all our West India and South American possessions, until the 22d of June, 1809; or until six months notice may be given in the Gazette of the revocation of this permission.

A French squadron with 8000 troops destined to take possession of Carthagena was met with by a number of British ships of war, and completely destroyed. Two of their frigates, and all of their transports were sunk, and two ships of the line were boarded, and their crews put to the sword. The English lost two frigates, and received some damage in their ships. The action was fought between Alicant and Carthagena, on the 24th May.

In the single province of Asturias, there have been raised and equipped 150,000 men.

Twelve artillery waggons went from the Bank yesterday with money, which, it is supposed, is intended to be embarked for Sweden.

Sir Edward Pellew with his squadron, have taken, sunk and destroyed every Dutch armed vessel on the coast of Java. Three of the ships were of the line, viz. Revoluire 70, Pluto 70 Korienaar 68, and Lottkon, company ship 1000 tons and 40 guns; all the guns, military stores, &c. in the garrison of Griffie, and the battery of Samhalangen, on the island of Maridora were completely destroyed.

The Spanish Navy consists of 53 sail of the line, and 31 frigates, exclusive of what may have been built since 1795, and the captures recently made from the French.

New-York Sept. 5.

We learn by the brig Troy, capt. Booth, from Campeachy, that Spaniards on the Main had declared themselves in favour of Ferdinand VII. and at war with France.

Accounts have been received in this city, via Havanna, which mention that the Turks have declared war against France, and that all Frenchmen have been ordered to quit the territories of the Grand Seignior.

Extract of a letter from, Trinidad, to a Gentleman in New-York, August 1.

This moment a lanche has arrived from Barcelona, in which several intelligent Spaniards have come up.

"At Carracas much French blood has been spilled, and the survivors of all sizes, ages and descriptions, have been imprisoned and ironed. The general French officer, who was sent out to take the command of the province, offered some insult to Captain Beaver, of the Acasta frigate, ashore; he was instantly cut down by a Spanish officer who was present, and the populace tore him to pieces. Some others also suffered, and the whole would have been cut up into jerk beef, had it not been for the interference of the Acasta's officers. They are however all in the cizemattes and well secured in irons.

"Dispatches had reached Caraccas of eleven days later date than the letters of Lord Collingwood; and it is believed there that the Spaniards have destroyed every Frenchman in Spain—Murat and the whole army at Madrid—Duhem and the division at Barcenola—the garrisons which had treacherously possessed themselves of Pampeluna and Navarra; all have been butchered.—They have forced to Bayonne, and have rescued the Royal Family, who were there detained prisoners, and not sent into France as Bonaparte helignedly published. Bonaparte had ordered the Royal Family of Spain to be dispatched by his mamelukes at the last extremity, but they had not time to even begin the work murder. They were preserved, it is said by the French inhabitants of Bayonne, until the Spaniards got possession of their prison. Bonaparte's arm had been amputated in consequence of the wound he had received from the Duke de Infantado on the Spaniards attacking Bayonne. The same sentiment of detestation of the French pervades the whole Spanish nation, from the Prince to the Peasant."

On Saturday arrived at Norfolk, the British schooner Swift Capt. Young, in 18 days from St. Croix, from him, have derived the following important news.

On the 1st of August a vessel arrived at St. Croix from Laguira, by which advices were received, which stated, that on the 17th of July, the French government brig Le Serpent, of 16 guns, and 110 men arrived at Laguira, with the information that, the throne of Spain, had been abdicated by Kings Charles and Ferdinand, in favour of the Emperor of France. Orders were delivered to the Governor of Caraccas from the dethroned Kings, and from the French Emperor to acknowledge Joseph Bonaparte for their lawful Sovereign, as the Emperor had named him King of Spain. This information excited the deepest concern, which was dispelled on the following day by the arrival of the British Frigate Acasto, Capt. Beaver, dispatched from Barbadoes by Adml. Cochrane, with the determination and proceedings of the Council of Seville. The French officers fled in haste from the city of Caraccas to Laguira, and got on board the Le Serpent but they were stopt by the Acasto, who made prize of the vessel.

The resentment, against the French was so great, that the commandant could in difficulty, protect a few Frenchmen who remained of the party that was sent from Guadaloupe, at the time of Miranda's expected invasion. The British sloop of war Lark, arrived on the 20th. but her object was anticipated, by the arrival of the Acasto.

JAMAICA July 26.

With much regret we announce the death of Gen William A. Valentine, Lieutenant Governor and commander in chief of the forces in this Island.

YORK, SEPTEMBER 24. 1808

Arrived on Wednesday the 21st inst. the Honorable Mr. Justice Powell, from the Eastern Circuit.

Amongst the number of useful and saleable articles of which it is commendable to promote the manufacture, it must be generally considered that paper is not the least considerable. When we view it as an article of which the importation does in some measure, annually draw from us no small portion of the public wealth, it will be allowed that this pecuniary drain, will be in a great measure systematized and reduced within a small and unfelt compass. In addition to this material object, the waste of ample means and materials necessary to its making, which are now too often lost and useless, would it in this plan become much demanded, and yield some indifferent gain to proprietors generally. All families in the habit of consuming more or less of linen ware, would contribute some necessary aid to the manufacturer, and would ordinarily produce the vendee the means (if no further,) of paying the common County Rates, which are invariably exacted in Specie. By the usual mode practised in the sitting of Flax and Hemp for their native uses; much tow which is by some considered as a lesser nuisance, is wholly lost or otherwise becomes useless for any purpose. From experiments made on these materials by paper manufacturers, it is proved an active and profitable matter to be used, and with little trouble, a valuable ingredient in the composition of coarse paper. On this Lake where ordinary ship tackle is subject to a quick waste, the cables and canvas lose their serviceable qualities, and in this case would yield no inconsiderable fund of materials. The safe and plenty in which these can be procured, hold out a strong inducement to a spirited factorer, and beside the general accommodation, the texture of Paper, would yield a very handsome product on the easiest terms. This partial view of its general effects, excites a strong hope in us, that some individual of just calculation and capacity, will spiritedly step forward, and benefit himself as well as the public, in some inviting situation, and we know none more eligible or promising that being in the neighborhood of the Capital. We do not think that a large fund is necessary in the completion of a manufactory of such known general use, were it necessary, the public would make a spirited pecuniary advance for its promotion, and the Executive would gladly compensate a share.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Translated from late Spanish papers of June, for the Boston Gazette.

Valencia, June 7.

We are advised of the departure from Carthagena of a large train of Artillery, and that they have sent to our aid 25,000 muskets.

To day we expect the arrival of 1200 of the Spanish guards, who have withdrawn from the service of the enemy.

Valladolid, May 31.

A great quantity of artillery & 20,000 muskets have been drawn from Segovia and the city Rodorigo.

All is rapidly organizing here, the enemy is absolutely cut off, and the communication between Bayonne and Madrid completely stopped: such have been the vigorous and well concerted plans of that great man, the immortal Cuesta, who is at our head.

Zamora, May 31.

The extraction of 224,000 rials destined for Madrid by the tyrant Murat, has been prohibited, and for greater security a formidable guard is placed over the treasury. It is said the French intend making a movement with a part of the enemy from Madrid, but who can believe they will be so imprudent? Where can these miserable people go without being completely routed? The people of Madrid will not loose a moment in throwing off the yoke, in spite of a number of vile adulators who are attached to the Court and Ministry.

After the ceremony of swearing allegiance to Ferdinand the 7th. at Grenada, 200 persons repaired to San Geronimo to celebrate the event. On their receiving the information of the arrival there of the Governor of M[illegible]a, they immediately seized him, and placed a respectable guard over him to prevent any outrage to his person. As this visit was suspicious at the petition of the people the mail was examined and two letters were found from Napoleon and Murat to this wretch, naming him general of the four kingdoms of Andalusia, and giving him hopes of a speedy assistance of 50,000 men, which were to be added to those already employed in the subjugation of Spain. Hardly were the people informed of this iniquity, when they rushed upon him and murdered him with every sort of arms, dragged him through the city, and after tearing him in pieces, burnt him to ashes. The Magistrates have condemned this conduct of the people, and are taking measures to prevent such atrocities in future.

Lerida, May 31.

Here no order of Murat is obeyed: we are dispoſed to unite with the Arragonians; we have men and discipline. Bonaparte has nothing to hope from our duplicities in Bayonne; for many days not a marvedi has been permitted to be taken from the treasury. All the neighborhood is fired with enthusiasm, but keep order and respect the authorities.

Valencia, June 10.

Our negociations with great Britain present us a fruitful field for mercantile and political speculation.——The Cabinet of St. Cloud will not fail to charge England with our revolution, and have subtlety and sophistry enough to deny that their perfidy and crimes alone have been the cause of our independence.

We know that the peasantry of Manresa have put to the sword nearly the whole of the body of troops commanded by General Lechi second in command of the army at Catalonia, a man of ferocious character.

June 14.

We are certain there no longer remains a single soldier of the French army in Tarragona, and that the division destined for that p[illegible] received an order to pass immediately to Brusch to reinforce that of general Lechi, who is totally discomfited by the valor and dispositions of the brave Manrefians.

We are assured of the death of general Dupont in the attack of the Sierra Morena.

In Borrunna, the French engineer charged with the review of the Magazines of Artillery has been seized, and at the same time possession taken of the park of Artillery, with the Magazine of arms. A remittance of money had been sent to Murat the day before, was likewise stopped.

The agreeable information has been received from Lugo and other cities of the province, of their declaration of their beloved Ferdinand, and they ask of us arms and cannon, which shall be given them immediately, since from a happy circumstance, our park and Magazines are filled with them. In the city of Lugo and its province alone, 60,000 men have enrolled themselves. Our troops amount to 90,000 men; and among the various donations of consequence which have been offered to maintain this army, that of Babildo de Santiago is worthy mentioning.—He presented immediately seven millions, promising besides to do-liver monthly for the public service, the third part of his income. Who could refrain from tears to see our old men snatching from the hand of their sons the hoe and placing in their stead the bolts of vengeance and the sword of liberty.

Pampelona, June 6.

The French in this city have received a reinforcement of 4,000 men. Almoft all the young men have left the city to avoid being forced from their country, and united with the French army.

Seville, June 7.

Battalions are entering at every inftant to join the army. We judge we have 110,000 men under arms. The raifing regiments of cavalry and infantry, is ftill continued. It would be degrading the enthuliafm to attempt a defcription of it.

We are aflured all this army united, with the troops of the line, who are many, will depart for Sierra Morena under the orders of general Mori de Caftenos. Diviſions of the cavalry, artillery, and Pioneers have already marched.

Gaudix, June 1.

We follow the general motion of the whole nation; and already 1500 have gone from this city to join the army of Grenada. Some deſerters from the French cavalry have arrived, who inſpire us with the greateſt pity.

Madrid. June 18.

General Morla has ſummoned the duke of Berg to reſtore Ferdinand VII to the throne of Spain within twenty days, or the French captured with the ſquadron at Cadiz ſhould be treated with all military rigor. It is ſaid the Duke immediately impriſoned all the members of the Council of Caſtile.

We are aſſured the 10,000 men he has ſent towards Valencia, go with the object of forcing this point to unite themſelves with the army of Catalonia.

The French diviſions deſtined for conducting the artillery has been completely routed as well as that from Andaluſia.

We do not forget the gallant action of our Spaniards in Portugal, who united with the inhabitants of that country, have at the expence of many ſacrifices, beaten the enemy, and declared for our unfortunate and beloved monarch, Ferdinand VII.

In Arragon there is much zeal and many diviſions have already gone out to occupy different poſts.

Valencia, June 17.

Our chiefs have already gone to occupy different poſts; in a ſhort time we ſhall complete three reſpectable armies. Almanza, Tortola, and the Conreras, will be the Theatre of our arms, unleſs the enemy ſhould be abſolutely reduced to a ſtate of impotence. All their plans can only be directed to a diſgraceful retreat.

The day before yeſterday arrived here a magnificient and numerous train of artilleie to reinforce one of our armies on the frontiers.

Seville, June 8.

A company of cavalry has been raiſed in this city, from the moſt diſtinguiſhed claſs of our citizens. Room cannot be found to quarter the men who preſent themſelves for the ſervice of their country.

Donations are very great. An individual, Don N. Vasouez, has offered a regiment of cavalry. A citizen of Utera has given 6000 fenegas of wheat, 6000 of Barley, and 40,000 dollars, to be repeated annually. We ſhould never finiſh were we to attempt the relation of the noble ſacrifices made by the inhabitants.

Sarragoſſa, June 11.

The remainder of the Spaniſh guards who remained in Madrid, left the capital on the 5th, at day break, with their arms and colours. The French not daring to oppoſe their march. In a ſhort time they arrived in this city with other troops, amount to 800.

Marſhal Moncey, who with 5000 men, marched for Valencia on the 5th, receiving a counter order as ſoon as the route of Dupont was known, and he took the road for Andaluſia, where he will never arrive.

Gallicia is in arms, and has a formidable army organized, compoſed moſtly of regular troops.

The infamous Sabran, with his troops are completely deſtroyed: theſe are the men who took the vain-glorious title of invincibles, and boaſted of being able to reduce the whole kingdom of Valencia to aſhes.

At a muſter of the troops aſſembled at Seville, it appears there were 120,000 men, firm in their attachment to the cauſe for which all Spain is now engaged, and reſolute to defend its rights and ſovereignty, by the ſacrifices of their blood.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 7.

Foreign News.—We underſtand that letters have been received from Halifax, by the Britiſh Packet which arrived this morning, ſtating that a veſſel had juſt arrived at Pictou (N. S.) in a ſhort paſſage from England, bringing information that a treaty had been formed between Great Britain and Ruſſia.—

That hoſtilities between the Northern Powers were ſuſpended—

That the Spaniſh Patriots, among other ſucceſsful operations, had taken poſſeſſion of Madrid—and

That the wife of Murat, who had been left at Madrid by her huſband, was a priſoner to the Patriots.

A letter was alſo received in Boſton on Saturday laſt, by an arrival from Halifax containing the following Poſtſcript.

"A veſſel arrived at Pictou, on the 16th of Aug in 29 days from Glaſgow, the Captain of which informs, that Great Britain and Ruſſia had made peace! The date of this news, muſt be ſeveral days later than our previous accounts from London, which gave ſome prelages of ſuch an event.

Extract of a letter from Alicant, dated 2d of July.

"The 30th ult. we received official information from Valencia, that Gen. Moncey, with his army of about 12,000 men, arrived at the wall of the ſaid place, had begun the attack, and that they had been repulſed three times; in conſequence of this news, the people of this place began to be very uneaſy and immediately made preparation to defend themſelves in case they ſhould come. The caſtle was immediately furniſhed with proviſions, and they had begun to ſhut up entirely the gates of the city, waiting with great anxiety, the news of the deciſion of the battle, knowing the fate of the whole province depended on Valencieanes. Their anxiety was yeſterday diſpelled by a poſt diſpatched by the Supreme Tribunal of Valencia, with the tidings that the French, after having attacked the city ſeven hours, were completely beaten and defeated, with loſs of between ſeven and eight thouſand men, & that the few remaining had taken to their heels, happy to be able to get off. However, they were followed, and I have no doubt ere this, are all deſtroyed. Eight hundred Friars were in the action, they fought with great bravery and near one half of them were killed. Should the French, think of making us a viſit, they muſt do it with an army of 6 or 7,000 men, and even with this number I do not think they could take the caſtle, for its ſituation is ſuch, that from it, a ſmall army would almoſt be deſtroyed before it arrived at the city. We however continue our preparation for defence, and the inhabitants are all determined to defend the city with valour."

Extract from the addreſs of Bonaparte to his ſpecial Junta at Bayonne. "I now truſt to your ſovereign, and depend upon your exertions in the different provinces to bring back the nation to their duty. The people is a monſter that muſt be muzzled, the mean is in your hands. My armies and treaſures are at your ſervice. Should I not hear, before you reach Madrid, that tranquility is reſtored, I will no longer temporize, but will reduce you to ſubjugation, and regard you as a conquered country. Unmuzzled Addreſs.

We are pleaſed to hear that a Gentleman in the city, has recently received letters from Spain, containing the accounts of three ſeveral ſons fought between the patriots and the infuriate French, from the 15th June to the 2d July, in which the former obtained complete ſucceſſes.

The pretended adoption of a Spaniſh conſtitution by the Junta at Bayonne, was the moſt ſolemn mockery imaginable. After the old King of Spain, and his family, had been betrayed into France, and choused out of their inheritance, Bonaparte, by a decree ordered Murat to convene an aſſembly of Notables at Bayonne, in France, to meet on the 15th June, to form a new conſtitution. He was directed to notify about 150; but not one who was then in the ſervice of Ferdinand, but to confine himſelf to ſuch as had been in exile, and diſgrace; who were known to be attached to Bonaparte, and who only to obtain power was in the deſtruction of the exiſting order of things. Of the 150 notified, only about 27 attended; and it were thoſe men, who have acceded to the Conſtitution. This inſtrument is one of Bonaparte's own culling from the pigeon holes of Sieyes. It is, we underſtand, wholly monarchical.

The King Joſeph, is made the fountain of all power, as well as honor, and the controul of the reſources and purſe-ſtrings of the kingdom. The crown is to be hereditary in the male line of the Bonapartes, natural or adopted. A ſort of Cortes is eſtabliſhed to regiſter the King's acts; but even the deputies of this aſſembly muſt have the ſanction of the ſovereign; and the preſs is placed in the controul of a royal licencer.——For the amuſement of the curious, we publiſh the following liſt of his ſwol'n and thrice potent ſumd atting of Titles, viz. Don Joſeph, by the grace of God, King of Caſtile, of Arragon, of two Sicilies, of Jeruſalem, of Navarre, of Grenada, of Toledo, of Valencia, of Majorca, of Minorca, of Seville, of Gerdyvye, of Cordova, of Corcega, of Murcia, of Vigo, of the Algarcies, of Algezias, of Gibraltar, of the Canary Iſlands, of the Weſt and Eaſt Indies, of the Iſlands of Terra Firma, of the Ocean; Arch-Duke of Auſtria; Duke of Burgundy, of Brabant and Milan; Count of Aſpspurg, of Flanders, Tyrol and Barcelona; Lord of Biſcay, and of Molina, &c. &c. &c.

Pampelona, June 29.

ARRAGON.

The Gazette of the 20th announces that the French army had loſt 3000 men, killed, ſince its entrance into that kingdom, independent of wounded, priſoners and deſerters. —The Gazette of the 24th aſſures, that a detachment of 2000 men, who were marching towards Epila, and who indeed entered, were ſo completely deſtroyed that there only remained 400 who could flee. That of the 25th relates another famous action in Sarragoſſa, whoſe reſult has been ſo favorable that we are aſſured that General Leſevre, can have at the moſt, only 4500 men, of the 12,000 who marched for that place and Logrono. Indeed God proteets our cauſe, ſince the Spaniards perform miracles never known in a people ſo undiſciplined. A Courier from General Leſevre, has been intercepted, in which he declares to the Emperor his want of men, but requeſts all the kingdoms might be declared already reduced to obedience. Notwithſtanding this news, formidable trains of artillery continue to leave this city, deſtined for Arragon, as well as bombs, &c.

A letter of the 3d July ſtates, that in Sarragola, on the 25th ult. a ſhell from the French camp fell in the ſquare of St. Domingo, which ſo enraged the inhabitants, that they ruſhed to the field of battle, routed the enemy, purſued them 7 leagues, and became maſters of 27 pieces of cannon with all their baggage.

On the 28th, 29th and 30th, there was a violent cannonading, but the reſult is not known, a perſon however, who came yeſterday from P. aſſures us that General Leſevre, with the few men left with him furrendered, and the eſcort with proviſions and ammunition, deſtined for his camp, had been taken by the Arragonians with 45 baggage wagons.

"Gazette Extraordinary, Sarragoſa, July 3.

The day before yeſterday, (the 1ſt,) at midnight, the French camp in the neighborhood of this capital began the bombardment of the city, this was continued till the evening of the following day, in which they expendey more than 1400 balls and ſhells. They attacked ſome of the gates, but the valour of the troops and inhabitants who guarded them, reſiſting a galling fire, deſtroyed all who preſented themſelves, ſtrewing the field with French bodies; in the evening of the ſame day, they continued the attack with their infantry and artillery, and were again repulſed with conſiderable loſs, and convinced of the obſtinacy and valor of our troops, they retired having ſuffered from a continual fire of 12 hours. The ſhot and ſhells of the enemy have not only done little damage, but have ſerved to excite a greater hatred to them and impreſs us with the ſacred duties of religion, and of our country of our honor and our king.

A great many arms have fallen into our hands, and among the ſame have been found ſome of the ornamen s ſtolen from the churches and individuals: We have made many priſoners.

If all parts the French army has been routed, and intrigue and deceit are the only reſource remaining to ſave them from the total extermination with which they are menaced in Spain.

By an expreſs which left Valencia on the 30th June, we received officially the agreeable news, that the French army commanded by General Moncey, having attacked that city on the 28th of the ſame month, were received by ſuch a dreadful fire from the natives, for the ſpace of ſeven hours, that after having been routed, and their bodies covered the ground in the neighborhood, they precipitately abandoned the field; and in the utmoſt confuſion, without proviſion, and without force, took the road to Madrid, in which the main body of the Valencian army is waiting to cut off their retreat, ſo that not one of thoſe who remain can eſcape.

We have alſo received, by a courier of to day, information, that the remains of the army of 16,000 men, who entered Andaluſia, under the command of General Dupont, has retreated to Andujar, and that it is reduced to only 6000 men: that on the 22d of June, they were within the diſtance of two leagues from the firſt diviſion of the vanguard of the Spaniſh army of that kingdom, commanded by General Campaigne, and that the day following it would be joined by the 2d diviſion under the command of General Caſtanos, for the purpoſe of attacking & entirely deſtroying Dupont.

Barr and Miranda.—Captain Main of the Arcturus, on his paſſage from St. Sebaſtians was boarded by a veſſel belonging to a Britiſh fleet, through which he paſſed, and was informed that theſe two notorious perſonages were in the expedition bound to the aid of the Spaniſh Patriots.

Col. Gibbs, a paſſenger in the Arcturus, was informed, when in Paris, that an attack had been contemplated on the Auſtrian dominions before the diſturbances in Spain broke out. That Auſtria was more formidable than ever, and have organized a force of 400,000.—Repertory.

The Arcturus ſtopped at Foyal, and while there, a Portuguefe 72, arrived on her way to England, from Brazils, and informed that Sir Sidney Smith was about proceeding with an allied army of Britiſh and Portuguefe, againſt Buenos Ayres.—ib.

Dublin, July 14.

SAILING OF THE EXPEDITION.

This intereſting circumſtance, which he hopes, the pride, and the affections of the United Kingdom are ſo cloſely united, took place on Tuesday morning laſt at Cove.—The wind being round at eaſt, the ſignal for weighing was made, and in a few minutes his Majeſty's ſhip the Donegal, 84, Captain Malcolm, and the Reſiſtance, and Crocodile frigates, forming the convoy, were under ſail. The Reſiſtance was the van ſhip, and the Donegal, with Sir Authur Wellefley and his ſtaff on board, ſtood out to ſea.—In paſſing Carliſle fort a mutal ſalute of fifteen guns was fired between the battery and the ſhip, which was re-echoed by ſhouts of an immense aſſemblage of persons on ſhore, who crowded on the adjacent heights.—The intire fleet ſtood out to ſea under a propitious breeze and were ſoon out of ſight, accompanied by the prayers and bleſſings of an admiring multitude.

Should the intell gence prove well founded, that Bonaparte's ſiſter Madam Murat, has fallen into the hands of the Patriots, it cannot be looked upon as a trifling occurence.—He who is ſo earneſt in the exaltation of his family to Royal Power cannot be indifferent to an event which throws into the hands of the moſt ardent and exaſperated enemies, a perſonage of ſo much impor ance as his own ſiſter, and the wife of one of his moſt favored and uſeful Generals.

The town of St. Juan in the Iſland of Porto Rico, is ſtated to have been taken poſſeſſion of by the commander of a Britiſh 74, in conſequence of an invitation to that effect from the inhabitants of the iſland.

FOR THE YORK GAZETTE.

While Neptune hails the Britiſh Monarch Sire,
And yields his Trident and abyſs to fire?
Their long contended, know no ſecond claim,
'Till hardy Britons, quench'd the darkeſt flame.
Their Godlike Sovereign, guides their ſtormed ſtar,
Europe, a proud Umpire, Freedom's toune and pale.
Their Patriarch glides, a happy human reign,
And ſent a Nation to their lawful Main.

And, infant Heroes, ely Horatio's name.

YORK, October 1ſt. 1808.

Lieutenant Governor's Office.

30th Septr. 1808.

The Lieutenant Governor has been pleaſed to appoint, Mr. Allan M'Lean junr. to be a Clerk in the Lieutenant Governor's Office, in the room of Mr. Thomas Bingle, reſigned!

Departed this Life, on Friday the 30th ultimo. The Honorable Peter Ruſſell, Eſquire: formerly Preſident of the Government of this Province, late Receiver General and Member of the Executive and Legiſlative Councils. A Gentleman, who whilſt living, was honored and ſincerely eſteemed; and of whoſe regular and amiable conduct, the Public will long retain a favored and grateful remembrance.

Reflecting for a moment upon the ſituation of Europe, it leads us to look forward with uncommon anxiety to the eventful conſequences of theſt univerſal and political peruſion. When a review is taken of the deſtructive the artful and lately inteſtious policy of Bonaparte, we are ſurrounded with a sceptical and unpleaſant aſtoniſhment. That ſo numerous and dangerous a body of peſtiferous Fortune hunters, infeſt the different Nations, and batter their fotlorn-hope, to become Engines of entailing the ſaſſalage & ſlavery of Countries, to ſo ſanguine and peſtilential a Desperado, is aſtoniſh incredible. To his ſinuous and influential arts of bribery and his various and ill eſtabliſhed baits of diſaffection, may his repeated victories be imputed; but not to the warlike or deſperate efforts of his diſtiled Soldiery, when martial encounters have taken place. When in theſe, Britons were their opponents, that ſteady unappalled and heroic bravery, that rigid and generous attachment to national honor, which adds ſuch diſtended dignity to the Britiſh name, was ever triumphant to us, and to them, a fixed and invariable diſcomfiture. The ensanguined Scenes, into which the people of Europe have been plunged, through his unbounded and reſtleſs ambition, and collateral turpitude, are now on the verge of a cloſe. His Hydra-manations and the baſeneſs of this deteſtable Sky-l-k of Policy, this crumpled marauder and deſtroyer of mankind, are now we hope to be burniſhed wand of abaſement. That weary Europe, will ſhortly enjoy a pauſe from devaſtation and a grateful interlude, between unjuſtifiable exceneration, and harmonious peace, is our preſent impreſſion and devout wiſh. France, in paſt ages, but with peculi in force at this time, Europe regards with forfeited confidence, and a just mixture of contempt hatred and dread. Its present tyrant, formerly a Democratic-buffoon, now a Harlequin Emperor, has excited every degree of baleful horror, which is Providentially permitted to influence the human race. Britain on the reverse, is deemed invincible, for her extended power and the physical bravery of her hardy and veteran subjects; and Majestically stands, on the Pinnacle of human glory, and the affectionate admiration of the World; and is the blessed Patron, and Protector of all civil, rational and genteel Liberty. For the loathed and detested Family of Bonaparte, we scarcely cherish one Christian sentiment; and we cannot but wish that less, than a livid, lasting and exemplary vengeance may overwhelm them.

A Gentleman lately returned from the neighbourhood of Sandwich, has seen a sample of Fossil Salt, discovered in that quarter, it is said to be a native subterranean production, requiring neither mechanical or laborious process: we should have been glattered to have seen a specimen. We have also, a private information, that an immense quantity of Iron-ore of a superior quality, is now known to two persons. It is a pleasing and buoyant reflection, that our Country teems with such needful and useful treasures; and each of us must with, they were generally known, and be made objects of Public advantage.

It excites no ordinary surprise in us, that the Mercantile Gentlemen of Niagara, have so long forborne, to petition for leave and a situation, whereon to build an additional Wharf: that which occurs to us, as the most appropriate and inviting, lies near the Store-House of the Mess Crooks, on the Shore. The general utility and necessity are so obvious, that it is unnecessary, to enlarge on the prominent and many advantages, which must result.

It has been communicated to us, that the erecting a Tontine Coffee House at Niagara is in contemplation. We were favored with a sight of the draft of the proposed one, by a particular friend, who is interesting himself in procuring us a copy. The object is public-spirited, and his particular wish, leads to agreeable accomodation. So far as is now in our power, we cordially a hail and hearty participation of his views, and are impelled by a strong and warm desire, to further his laudable intentions. When the Building is completed, and its business conducted on the liberal principles he inculcates, we do not hesitate to say, that besides the local satisfaction it must add, Genteel Travellers will experience the gratification of the best treatment, and an agreeable incentive to frequent visits.

THE Subscribers, have just received from Montreal, a general assortment of DRY GOODS and GROCERIES, which they offer for sale upon very liberal terms at the House formerly occupied by Mr. Totman.

Importance of Newspapers.

"The rabble gather round the man of news,
And listen with their mouths ——
Some tell, some hear, some judge of news, some make it,
And he that lies most loud is most believ'd."—DRYDEN.

Would parents and tutors be careful to put a well conducted and chaste newspaper in the way of ingenuous youth, they would find it lead to great and rapid improvements in the science of life and manners, with the least possible trouble to themselves. Novelty has sufficient attractions for the young; it such a literary desert might give a higher relish to its enjoyments.

The subsequent essay is intended to encourage this mode of promoting juvenile proficiency; and to stimulate the managers of such publications to render them meet for the eyes of unsuspecting innocence.

Among the various causes that have contributed to the general diffusion of knowledge in the present age, nothing seems to have been of more importance than the circulation of so many different newspapers. A superficial observer will, perhaps, smile at this opinion; when he considers what slender abilities are generally employed in the compilation of some, what prejudice is displayed in the conduct of others, and what factious, principles are disseminated through this medium; he will, probably, be surprised that a newspaper, however well it may be conducted, should come in for such distinguished applause.

But where is the good that may not be perverted to evil? the blessing that may not be abused? excess of liberty degenerates into licentiousness; and too great indulgence in the pleasures of the table may prove as fatal as swallowing the most deleterious poisons.

It is well known that, within these few years, diurnal publications have been multiplied to an amazing degree; and their characters for taste in arrangement, and elegance of composition, in some measure, keep pace with their numbers. Competition begets exertion; and those who hope that their writing shall be read, and their labors patronized, study to adorn them with all the charms of polished diction and the attractive grace of novelty.

The information that newspapers formerly conveyed was trivial; and the circulation proportionably confined.

The learned, the rich, or the idle alone, tho't of encouraging them, about half a century ago; now all ranks and descriptions of men read, study and endeavor to comprehend the intelligence they convey, and too often adopt the principles they recommend, without examination; and act on them as if they were sanctioned by irrefragible authority. This, no doubt, is an unfortunate circumstance; but it is in some measure remedied by the contrary opinions of contending journalists; and truth and justice may generally be found, by comparing different statements, and keeping the middle course between both extremes.

It is dangerous for those only who read but one paper. And that paper is made the vehicle of false principles and delusive reasoning; or where original prejudices give a wrong bias to the mind, and thus convey even salutary caution to criminal intemperance.

On the other hand, [illegible] on proper religious and political principles, is calculated to do infinite service among those, more especially, who are incapable of thinking for themselves, and who, by habit, acquire the sentiments that perpetually meet their eyes, and simile their vacant hours. And in the country particularly, how many thousands receive what they read in a periodical publication as oracular decisions; and, to whom a knowledge of social or moral duty could not otherwise be communicated, as they too often neglect the established means of instruction or despise its assistance.

Hence the importance of Journals that preserve these grand objects in view—to illuminate, and to reform. And from the same consideration, may be seen the infamy and guilt of those who poison the public mind, weaken the faith of revelation, unhinge the ties of moral order, and disseminate opinions subversive of the well being of civil and society. Could the author of such publications, whether issuing regularly or occasionally from the press, sit down and consider with a calm attention, what possible ill effects may result from their want of integrity or duty as men and citizens, they would shudder at the reflection.

The solitary views of men may affect a few; but who can estimate the mischief of public ill example, or atone for the wide spread effects of pernicious principles.

But, on the tendency of newspapers, perhaps, enough has been said. Their general direction, it is to be hoped, is good; & that much more service is done by the aggregate mass, than evil is occasioned by particular parts.

All, even the worst, in other points of view, tend to convey instruction and to generalize knowledge. By giving intelligence from every quarter of the globe, they excite curiosities; by displaying the good and bad qualities of other nations, they remove illfounded prejudices, or confirm deserved aversion. They communicate beneficial discoveries, which would otherwise be lost; they record translations which engage admiration or excel diligence; they warn by example, and instruct by censure. They diffuse taste; they correct prevailing absurdities. They awe the proudest into the conviction of keeping some terms and public opinion.

They deter the flagitious from crimes, lest they should be held up to public detestation; and, in fine, they watch over individual and public liberty, which can never be violated with impunity, while the press remains pure and free.

Thus, to the philosophic eye, the diurnal labors of characters undignified by literature appear capable of producing more extensively beneficial consequences than the abilities of a Plato, a Socrates or a Johnson.

May such feel the value of the rank they hold; and never more disgrace it, by propagating vice, or wilful error, by lending their countenance to the worthless, or by wrenching the bond that preserves mankind in harmony and happiness.

POLITICAL ESSAY.

PRINCE OF PEACE.—Don Manuel Godoy was in 1788 a private soldier, and from that humble station he rose to the possession of greater power than was ever in the grasp of Richelieu or Mazarin in France. Like them surrounded with guards, and abounding in immense riches, he exercised an uncontrouled dominion. He was allied to the House of Bourbon by a marriage with a princess of that family, and after the commission of innumerable crimes it is astonishing that he himself never made an attempt on the throne.

It was an extraordinary circumstance that a family, originally obscure as that of Godoy, should have become possessed of such boundless power and immense riches at a time when the Spanish nation oppressed with expences, was reduced to the greatest extremities. The sums accumulated by this single family, would have been sufficient to fit out squadrons for the protection of their commerce; and, would have saved the public credit which, since the ministerial career of this Prince of Peace, has been almost entirely destroyed.

His power far exceeded any ever yet possessed by the oldest grandees: he directed the proceedings of the army and commanded the whole funds of the nation. In his hands and in those of his associates, was placed the most absolute authority. The grendees, the heads of the church, and even the presumptive heir to the crown trembled before a man who was destitute of patriotism and honor, & who owed his elevation to the most base intrigues as he did his fortune to public spoliation. When the success of France reduced Spain to the lowest verge, resource was had to a man who, to gratify his own purposes, would act as a sycophant; and to satiate his ambition would descend to the most degrading submissions.

The extravagance of this avaricious being was boundless. He made all the honors and dignities which were heaped upon him the sources of extortion and plunder. Throughout the islands and the Spanish possessions in America, he had agents who put in operation his schemes of plunder. We are informed, that contemplating to erect a palace suitable to his rank and taste, he had dispatched orders to the island of Cuba, to cut down the finest mahogany in those extensive forests. He intended, in the building of this palace to eclipse the glory of Solomon, in the erection of the temple which has immortalized his name.

Spain, which under Phillip II. was richer than all the rest of Europe; & who, but for England, would have made all the world tremble, has been reduced by this ambitious minister to the most degrading situation. They have been cut off from the communications of their colonies—and at a certain period it has been impossible for them to obtain the former usual supplies from their rich and valuable mines in South America.

The English papers have this long time foretold that a dreadful revolution was about to take place in Spain; but who would have imagined that the result should wear such a happy appearance, as well for the Spaniads themselves as for all the nations of Europe?

If it is true that the Prince of Peace were attached to the interest of Great Britain, Bonaparte, one would say must have had notice of his designs, and his manœuvres would almost demonstrate that he had an intimation of his motives. But we are far from believing Godoy ever to have entertained an idea of giving over the Spanish navy to the English, or to have suggested the emigration of the royal family to America. Such arguments may be supported by the abettors of Bonaparte, and adduced by them as an excuse for his treachery towards Spain. However, the best of the Spanish troops were sent to Poland, there to waste their strength against the Swedes: another army was destined for Gibraltar, whilst numerous French troops overran the Spanish territory, under pretence of invading Portugal.

Their fleets at Cadiz and Ferrol were intermixed. These strokes of policy were intended no doubt, to keep a strict watch on the conduct of the Spaniards, and to take advantage of the first favorable opportunity to enslave this unhappy people, and substitute in the place of their royal family a branch of the new dynasty.

But, the usual good fortune of Bonaparte seems here to have abandoned him—his hopes are, and, we flatter ourselves, ever will be frustrated with respect to Spain. Perhaps in planning the ruin of this nation he has been only plotting his own downfall. Like that Godoy has changed the bayonet for the sceptre: sprung from the dregs of the people he has governed, through an obtainable king, one of the greatest kingdoms in the world—But he has had his day—and Providence has hurled him from that height to which it had elevated him for the attainment of its ends. Bonaparte, like Godoy, the instrument of Providence, has not, perhaps long, to survive his fate, or, if he should unfortunately outlive the patriotism of Spain, it will be only to render his fall more conspicuous.

MISCELLANY.

From Inverness we have the following account of a rural feast, provided on the last of the holidays, old style:—

"Cattle fetching little or no price, & fodder being dear in the extreme, it occurred to the proprietor of Beaufort, that it would not be amiss to draw back his countrymen to the habit of eating some flesh with their food, and washing it down, in the convivial hour, with Lunc Laiter, strong ale, instead of ardent spirits.—He had a fat bullock roasted on a wooden windlass for a spit, and gave his tenants of Inverness strong ale to wash it down. The roast took eighteen hours in preparing, & nearly five hundred persons of all ages & both sexes, partook of this substantial feast. The bag-pipes and the fiddle organized the happy scene, and they parted in good humour with one another, and several matches for life took place in consequence."

The wife of a weaver in Inverness, died on Monday se'nnight, and was buried on Tuesday: the widow's late wedower was again married on Thursday.

A young man, named Blake, was lately executed at Kilmainham, in Ireland, for a highway robbery which he committed on his return from witnessing the execution of a friend, at the same place for a like offence.

A German journalist observes, that the sale of divinity at the last Leipsic book-fair, was dull, and that books of physic were a mere drug.

The Frenchman who has taken out a patent for allaying storms, says, the discovery will be of the utmost importance to many families.

A modern Tourist says, "they make a good Cheshire cheese in Ireland at present as in any other part of England."

WOMEN.—"In youth" says Bacon, "women are our mistresses, at a riper age our companions, in old age our nurses, and in all ages our friends."

There are now living in Doctor's Lane, Saddleworth, three brothers who have married four sisters!

The proprietors of newspapers in this country will be much surprised at the hypocrisy of similar productions in France. The daily sale of the Moniteur, we are told, is 20,000—of the journal de Paris, 18,000—of the Publiciste, 16,000—of the journal des Defenseurs de la Patrie, 10,000—of the Ciel du Cabinet, 6,000—and of the Petites Affiches, 30,000.

UNDOUBTED COURAGE

Mr. Bowell, in his tour to Corsica, relates a remarkable anecdote, with general Paoli told him.—At the siege of Toulon, the commander of the army, ordered Carew, an officer in the service of Naples, to advance with a detachment to a particular post. Having his orders, he whispered to Capt. Carew, Sir I know you to be a gallant man, I have therefore put you on this duty, which I tell you in confidence, is certain death to you and your men; I place you there to make the enemy spring a mine below you. Carew made a bow to the General, and led on his men in silence to the dreadful post. He stood there with an undaunted countenance, and having called to one of his soldiers for a draught of wine, there he said, I drink to all those who bravely fall in battle." Fortunately, at that instant, Toulon capitulated, and Carew escaped after displaying a rare instance of determined intrepidity.

A Mistake Rectified.

An Irishman going down the High-street of Glasgow, met with a person he thought he knew; but Pat, finding his mistake, "I beg your pardon," says he, "I thought it was you, and you thought it was me; but by J—s, it is none of us."

PROPHECIES.

A new edition of every old book has just been published at Paris; it is intitled, "Everlasting prophecies, from the year 1521, to the end of the world." The author is Joseph Justo, of Naples.

The Academy of Sciences at Paris is said to have transmitted this little work, (45 pages) to the minister Louvois: and what is still more, to have found it invariably correct for the last 140 years. Of the year 1806, it said—"Let people procure a supply of oats and commodities for, at the end of August commences great war, which extends to many regions. The people suffer death and great calamities. In 1809, a great quantity of snow will fall at the begining of February! Many inundations." The most important prophecy relates to the year 1811.—" It will be difficult to preserve the cattle through the severity of winter; from that year a peace of the whole century will be enjoyed by whole Christendom; bread, wine, and clothing will then be cheap."

ANECDOTE.

An Irishman seeing a large quantity of potatoes standing in a market place, observed to a bye-stander, "what a fine show of potatoes." "Yes, they are," replied he, "very fine potatoes: I see you have the name quite pat; how do you call them in your country?" "Ah, faith" returned the Irishman, "we never call 'em; when we want any, we go and dig them."

BRAVE GARRISON.

In the year 1687, when Austria, Poland, and Venice united in a formidable confederacy against the Turks, the Polish general entering Moldavia, laid siege to the fortress of Newez. That important place which had been abandoned by all the inhabitants, was garrisoned only by 19 Moldavian chasseurs, whom accident had brought thither.—These brave men raised the draw bridges, shut the gates and refused to surrender. The Polanders, ignorant of the weakness of the garrison, cannonaded it four days successively. The chasseurs defended themselves courageously, and killed a great number of the besiegers, among whom was the master of artillery. On the 5th day, having lost ten of their number, this little garrison demanded to capitulate. An honorable capitulation was immediately granted, with liberty to retire wherever they pleased. As soon as the articles were signed, what was the astonishment of the besieging army in beholding six men, who supported on their shoulders three others that were wounded. At this instant, all the sentiments of admiration, of shame & indignation, were successively uppermost in the bosom of the Polish general. For some moments he remained thunderstruck. "The dictates of honor, however, at length prevailed; and strictly adhering to the capitulation, he dismissed the brave besieged with every mark of military applause.

Fatal Heroism—An Historical Fact.

In the contest between the Houses of Austria and Bourbon, for the throne of Spain which continued during nearly all the reign of our glorious Queen Anne, the city and port of Alicant, in the kingdom of Spain, was in possession of Major General Richards, an Englishman, in the service of Charles III. of Austria, one of the competitors. The city being long and closely besieged by a large French army, with a numerous train of artillery, became at last untenable; and general Richards having called a council of war, it was resolved to retire with the garrison into the castle, which was then esteemed impregnable. They with incredible labour, sunk three cisterns in the solid rock, and having filled them with water, the troops retired, consisting of one English regiment (Mohun's) and a regiment of French refugees in British pay. The French finding they could make no progress in a regular siege against this fortress, resolved upon mining, a work excessively laborious and tedious. General Richards, daily in hopes of relief from the British fleet, was well pleased at this undertaking of the enemy, looking on the accomplishment of it as a thing impossible. The besiegers wrought with incredible labour at the mine, forcing vast numbers of peasants to assist; and in about 12 weeks finished the works thought proper for the service, and charging them with 1500 barrels of powder, large beams, iron bars, crows, and other utensils of destruction, summoned the castle to surrender on the 20th of March, 1709, most solemnly assuring them a safe conduct to Barcelona, with bag and baggage, for every person in it, if they submitted in three days, otherwise no mercy would be shewn; and to demonstrate the reality of their deign, they delived the garrison to depute three officers of skill to inspect their works, and to be allowed the liberty of making what scrutiny they pleased. Three engineers from the castle inspected the works and informed the general, that if their judgment failed them not, the explosion would carry up the whole castle. A grand council of war was called, the French summons repeated, and the report of the engineers made known to it. They knew they wanted water, but still had hopes to be relieved by the fleet, who knew their distress, and consequently under some concern for their relief. Their unanimous resolution was to commit themselves to the providence of God, and whatever fate attended them to stand the springing of the mine. The French and Spanish officers expressed the utmost concern at a resolution so fatal, and sent the second night of three allowed, to divert them to what they called, and it is very likely tho't inexcusable obstinacy.—Honorable articles were again offered and again rejected. The fatal third night approached; no fleet seen; the French sent the last summons, with assurance that the mine was primed, and should be sprung by six o'clock the next morning. The besieged were inflexible; they persisted in their first resolution, and having ordered every thing for the night, betook themselves to their meditations, and with cool and unshaken constancy waited the fatal hour. The day approaching, the governor was informed that the inhabitants were flying in all directions, and he then, with the other officers, went to the western battery to inform themselves. At last the corporal's guard cried out, the train was fired; observing smoke from the lighted matches and combustible matter. The governor and field officers were urged to remove, but refused—The mine at last blew up, the rock opened and fell, and the whole mountain was convulsed. The governor and field officers with their company, and about 30 centinels, and women, ten guns and two mortars were buried in the abyss, and their dying groans were heard, some of them after the mournful fourth day. Great part of the Castle, and many of the houses in the city were overwhelmed in the ruins. The government devolved upon Colonel de Albon, who made a desperate sally, and the bombs of the castle played more furiously than ever upon the town in every direction; thus, in some measure revenging the death of his brave companions, and continued these marks of resentment till the arrival of the long expected fleets

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of Cadiz dated July 30, to his friend in this city.

"The victory over general Dupont's army was obtained by a force of 8,000 peasants and it inspired the Spaniards so much that they now dominate themselves" the Conquerors of the Conquerors of Andalusia and Jena."

"The British force under Sir Arthur Wellsley consisting of 12,000 men, landed at Lisbon and the defeat of general Junot, is daily expected. He has only about ten thousand men in Lisbon and its vicinity. A few days after the British troops that were here, 5000, under General Spencer set sail to join Sir Arthur, . . . by this time must have arrived.

"It was yesterday reported that 12 sail of French ships of war line from Toulon for Spain, had been attacked by admiral Thornborough's squadron in the Mediterranean, and that two French two decked ships and the English had been pursuing the remainder. This is generally believed."

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated 28th July, 1808.

"The paper enclosed contains the details of the capture by the troops of this single Province, of an entire French army, which consisted when it left Madrid, of 23,000 . The capitulation was signed on the 22d inst. The prisoners actually surrendered are said to exceed 16,000, and at this time there remains not a single Frenchman in arms in Andalusia. In most of the other provinces the whole mass of the people have displayed a determined spirit of resistance to the French, and several bloody battles have been fought, which have uniformly terminated favorably for the Spaniards, particularly at Valencia and Sarragossa, where two very considerable bodies of French have been totally cut to pieces; in short, the Spaniards appear to unanimous and serious in their determination to drive the French out of the country, that I am not without great hope of their couple success. As yet no general government has been formed, but the Juntos or Councils established in each province, for its temporary government, have taken the most decided measures to oppose the enemy with success, by making all the inhabitants between the ages of 16 and 45 serve in the army, without distinction of rank. Envoys have been sent to England to demand supplies of arms and ammunition—these have been received in the most flattering manner by the government of Great Britain, to whom this revolution is all important, and the subject of much exultation. But while I rejoice that Bonaparte is likely to be stopped in his career to universal despotism, I very much fear it will excite the difficulty of bringing our disputes with Great Britain to a favorable conclusion."

penſation. An appropriate Funeral Sermon, was preached by the Revd. O'Kill Stuart.

The Garriſon, commanded by Major Fuller, performed with becoming dignity the Military Honors, of this reſpected Veteran, who was a Captain in the Army, on half pay.

Deeply impreſſed, with an ardent eſteem for his manly Character, & the irreparable loſs, occaſioned by his death, we were not amongſt thoſe who felt the leaſt, at this laſt tribute of Reſpect, to his revered memory and Remains.

If it is freſh in our recollection, that a Bill to regulate the admiſſion of individuals as Phyſicians & Surgeons in this Province, was laſt Winter brought in to the Houſe of Aſſembly by a diſtinguiſhed Member of the honorable Body. We alſo remember, that the merits of the Bill, were ſuggeſted, and that they underwent diſcuſſion and inveſtigation, and experienced ſeveral neceſſary Amendments.

We are not inſenſible to the Movers honorable motives, in bringing ſo laudable a meaſure forward at the juncture, as the neceſſity of ſomething to improve the irregular ſyſtems on which, Phyſic and Surgery are now conducted, is fully obvious. By this sense of the ſubject, the Gentleman was impelled to a warm and active ſupport of its ſpirit & laudable with for its ſpeedy promotion.

We cannot however but regret, that it was dropped in the Houſe, whilſt the opinions of ſeveral Gentlemen were ſo ſpecifically different from any we can entertain. How far we as incompetent judges, are warranted in this different view of a common ſubject, remains not for us to determine; but our general impreſſion of its neceſſary utility is not leſſened or defeated. The principal reaſon, we venture to aſſign for its ſuſpenſion or its failure, riſes from the variety of Buſineſs, to which, the attention of the Members was devoted, or that, unweighed as the matter in queſtion might be, as not familiariſed to ſuperior judgements. The opinion we maintain of ſuch a public want, ariſes from the conviction we feel, and the knowledge we poſſeſs, that the health, nay frequently the exiſtence of a fellow creature is loſt, being too often ſacrificed to the pretenſions or cannibal ignorance of Empirics, Quacks and Impoſtors. It is an inconteſtible fact, that we are all created Patients, but few of us born Phyſicians, and that education and ſtudious practice, as well as a juſt judgement of Diagnoſtics and the efficient operative qualities of preſcriptions, form the neceſſary parts of fortunate and conſpicuous Practioners.

To qualify the ordinary profeſſors of medicine by the attainment of this neceſſary and ornamental part of human knowledge, and to bar the avenues to groſs public impoſitions were the leading principles in this laudable Bill; at leaſt, it thus forcibly impreſſed us, when we heard it repeatedly read. As medicines, frequently poſſeſs the properties of extending and curtailing the duration of exiſtence, they require to be preſcribed and adminiſtered with much judgement and caution, and not as in many cases by ignorant and unſparing hands. In indulging in unreaſonable, and blameable hope, we really wiſh and anticipate the introduction, of this encircling diſtended meaſure, & benevolently paſſed on the very ſpirit of promoting the ſafety of health, and public good.

Our Troops at Halifax 4,000 in number, have embarked on a ſecret Expedition; it is alſo our conjecture, that the Tranſports arrived at Quebec, are ordered to convey our principal Forces from that quarter, to act concertedly with the others, wherever they may be deſtined.

We learn from Montreal, that a veſſel had arrived from Liverpool in 30 days, with an account, that in an engagement in Spain (in what part not ſtated) between 40,000 French and as many Spaniards, the former were defeated after dreadful carnage on both ſides.

By former accounts it was expected that an engagement muſt ſoon take place in Caſtile, between the army of Marſhal Bellieres and the Aſturian army, conſiſting of 44 000 men.

Amongſt the late promotions in the army, May 6, 1808, we find the following officers in, or connected with this Province, viz.

T. Peter of the Canadian Regiment to be Major General in the army.
D. Shanks do. to be Colonel in do.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, Auguſt 3.

Moſt Important and Glorious News from Spain.

Defeat of the French in Arragon, Valencia, and Catalonia, confirmed.

Intelligence of the greateſt importance has been received from Spain, and we rejoice in being able to ſtate it is glorious. Government have received diſpatches from Lord Collingwood of the 17th of laſt month. Ceville Gazettes have been received to the 24th and Oviedo to the 30th of laſt month.—The diſpatches of Lord Collingwood have brought a confirmation of the ſucceſs of the Spaniards in Valencia, in Arragon and Catalonia. Near Barcelona the French ſuſtained a defeat, and were forced to retire to the forts. A Madrid article of the 27th in Oviedo papers, adds, after the enemy had thrown themſelves into Fort Monjouy, which commands the harbour of Barcelona, the Catalonian Patriots inſtead of ſtorming them their loſs was very great, between 6 and 7000 men; but they ſucceeded in making themſelves maſters of it, and immediately put the whole garriſon to the ſwords.

Moncey found a grave for his army in Valencia. A ſeries of actions took place near the walls of that city on the 26th, 27th, 28th, and 29th of June. On the 26th and 27th the Spaniards are ſaid to have ſuſtained conſiderable loſs, and the French to have ſucceeded in their object of getting near Valencia, ſo as to be able to make an attack upon it on the 28th. The Valencians, aware of Moncey's intentions, were poſted under the walls. He began his attack in the afternoon of the 28th, but the town was ſo vigorously defended, that he was obliged to retire to his poſition between Quarte and Midlata, where he had thrown up a battery. There he was attacked by the Patriots on the 29th, and a moſt ſanguinary conflict enſued—which, thanks to Providence! "the good cauſe," as the Oviedo Gazette informs us, was ultimately triumphant, and of 18,000 men of whom Moncey's army conſiſted, only 1000 made their eſcape. Theſe wandered about uncertain what courſe to take. At length they effected a junction with a French force at St. Clemente. Such is the fate that has attended the French arms and operations in Valencia. A ſimilar fate has befallen them in Murcia, but the particulars are not mentioned.

The diſpatches have brought alſo a confirmation of the failure of all the attacks upon Saragoſſa.—And thus in Arragon, Catalonia, and Valencia, the French army have ſuſtained a diminution of of near 40,000 men.

Dupont remained in Andaluſia when the laſt accounts were received from Gen. Caſtanos, on the 14th ult. He had by ſtratagem evaded one attack from the Spaniards; as the latter were preparing to attack him, they diſcovered in the enemies van Spaniſh women chilaren, and Monks, whom Dupont had carried off with him from Cordova. The Spaniards ſhrunk from the idea of getting at the diſh of their country women, and the attack was not made. But Gen. Caſtanos in his diſpatches of the 11th ult. to the Junta of Seville informed him, that he meant to attack DuPont on the next day. Dupont was completely hemmed in and reduced to the laſt extremity.

Two French diviſions under Generals Frere and Wheedis were ſent to join him, but Wheedis having been routed, they did not think it prudent to proceed further than St. Clemente.

The impoſition ſort of Figuerie in Catalonia has been taken by the Patriots.

Upon the above intelligence, ſo important and ſo glorious, we have not room to make any comments; not indeed, are any neceſſary. It will fill every Britiſh heart with exultation and pride; it will ſtrengthen the belief, that the decree is gone forth to arreſt the tyrant in his courſe, and to affect and avenge the cauſe of freedom and of man.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated July 28.

"General Dupont has ſurrendered & all his Army of 16,732 men.

It is reported this day and firmly believed, that King Joſeph on his way to Madrid, with 15,000 men was attacked by General Ceuſta, and obliged to ſeek ſafety in flight, leaving on the field of battle the greater part of his army.

P.S. July 29.—We have juſt received accounts from Malaga, that on the 25th inſtant, a zebec reached that port with news of the arrival at Ivaca of an Engliſh frigate, much ſhattered, in conſequence of an engagement, which ſhe and the reſt of the fleet to which the belonged, had with a French fleet of the line, conſiſting of 11 ships, conveying troops to Spain. When ſhe left the fleet, the Engliſh had ſunk two ſhips of the line, taken two others, and were purſuing the remainder.

The Field Marſhal Don Teodoro Reding has ſent the following diſpatch dated on the 21ſt Inſtant, to the General in Chief of the Army of operations of Andaluſia.

Moſt excellent Sir, ſince the diſpatch which I tranſmitted to your Excellency on the 17th Inſt. informing you, of the attack made by the diviſion under my command, upon that of Gen. Gobert, who was killed in the action, and whoſe diviſion was diſlodged from all the poſitions, which it had taken contiguous to Bayles, and completely beaten, and out of the reaſons which induced me to return to Monjibat;—I repaſſed in the afternoon of the 17th the river Guadalquivier and took a poſition that night—on the 18th at day break, I was joined by the ſecond diviſion under the command Field Marſhal the Marquis de Compigny and we both marched towards this town for the purpose of attacking the enemy if he occupied it. As soon as I arrived, in obedience to your Excellency's orders, I disposed the columns of attack facing towards Andujar. At three in the morning of the 19th when the troop were forming to begin their march, Gen Dupont with his army attacked our camp, and commenced a fire of his artillery, with a design doubtless, to surprise us, but with the weakness of lighting, all the troops of the two divisions led by their worthy officers, flew th the points attacked, assisted by the artillery of both At Sun rise our troops were in possession of the place and heights which were formerly occupied, and the enemy began their attacks on various parts of the line, having the advantage of forming their columns under cover from our fire, in consequence of their occupying a better position protected by their artillery.

At every point they were repulsed, and in their turn assailed, notwithstanding the violence of their attacks. which they repeated without more interruption than was necessary to fall back, and form new columns, until half past twelve, but were fatigued without being able to gain any ground, although they had several times broken our lines of defence, with the intrepidity of troops accustomed to conquer, and penetrated to our batteries, which were served that day, in a manner which astonished and terrified the enemy and which has few examples, for they not only immediately dismounted all the artillery of the enemy, but routed whatever columns presented themselves, always protecting the points attacked, and varying their positions as circumstances required.

General Dupont, then placed himself with the other Generals at the head of the columns supported by the artillery, and made a last attack with admirable boldness; but with no better success. and we are told by the enemy that 14 of their guns were dismounted, that their loss amounted to 2000 men killed and wounded, among the latter Dupont and two other generals.

Dublin August 5.

We are in possession of some information from Oporto later than that which has been recd by the Plover. At the period our intelligence was transmitted, the Narcissus frigate was at that port, and intended to sail with a convoy for England.

It was understood at Oporto that Junot had sent six thousand men against the patriots!

Aug 6. The statement in the Spanish prints to which which we are most attracted, describes the defeat of a French corps of 18,000 men under the command of Ge Moncey. This division had proceeded into the province of Valencia, and had taken post between Quare and Misiata, village near Valencia. In this situation they were attacked by the patrotic force under Gen Caro, and compelled to retire

The attack was renewed on the following day, with similar good fortune, and great loss on both sides. Notwithstanding the disadvantages under which, Moncey had fought on those two days, he resolved upon being the assailant on the 28 making an attempt to carry the town, On the afternoon of that day he began the attack, but the patriots being apprised of this intention, had moved under the walls for their protection. After several desperate but unavailing assaults, he was obliged to retire in some disorder after his former position where the village where he was covered by a battery.

Encouraged by success, however the patriots attacked him, and a most sanguinary conflict concluded by a most complete victory on their side — over the French army, which began the battle on the 28th, only 14,000 are said to have escaped. This small body after having wandered about for some time without any destination, was fortunate enough to fall in with a small French corps under Gen. Frere. This Gen had been detached to give succour to Dupont, but hearing that a detachment under general Wedel had been routed in endeavoring to to accomplish the same object, he considered it unadvisable to pursue his progress and flopped at St Clements, where the fugitives joined him.

The patriots in Catalonia have not been less indefatigable or distinguished, than in Valencia. A large body of Catalonians, stormed and carried, after sustaining a loss of 7,000 men, Monjuy which had been occupied by a body of French troops—they put the French garrison to the sword. The loss of the Fr, in the different provinces of Catalonia, Valencia, and Arragon, is estimated at 40,000 men. What we have stated is strictly from Spanish official accounts.

A special communication from Plymouth, written late on Tesday last has furnished us with short but interesting information, which we trust will be confirmed The Townshend packet arrived at Plymouth just before our correspondent had dispatched his letter on that day from Corunna, which place she left on the 21st of July—Before her departure intelligence had been received at Corunna that the Patriots had given battle to Dupont at Andujar, and that the result is the total destruction of his army—Dupont, made prisoner in the action

From Calcutta

The French frigate La Cannonier of 50 guns, from Acapulco (on the S W. coast of New-Spain) with 4,000,000 of dollars, had arrived at Manilla. On the 16th of March, the English frigate Terpsichore, of 32 guns, had an action with a ship, which was at first supposed to be the Cannonier, but was not, and which escaped, after having killed the Lieutenant of the English ship, and 20 men, and had wounded 22. The name of the ship has not been obtained. The English ship Florenzo, Capt. Hardinge, with the loss of 10 men killed, together with her Captain and 26 men wounded. had captured the French frigate La Piedmontaise, of 50 guns and 366 Frenchmen and 200 Lascars, from the Isle of France, on a cruise The French lost 48 killed and 112 wounded. The action was in the Gulf of Manar, between Cape Cormorin and the Island of Ceylon. M. Moreau, the second in command of the French ship, fell in the action. The English Government, in India, had paid a proper tribute of respect to the memory of the brave Captain who fell in this engagement. The accounts of the markets at China, are the high prices of opium and cotton.—Specie to the amount of one Million and a half sterling, was imported on account of the India Company. The English were not inattentive to the reports in Europe of an intended invasion of India. And were active in combating the Indian Powers.

At a dancing Assembly of Genteel Company, a finical Coxcomb in dress & wit, was a principal manager—His hair of immoderate length on the forehead was troublesome, and furnished abundant employment and amusement to his hands whilst dancing, to diminish his eye-sight, of such unnecessary incumbrance.—A Gentleman possessing equal wit and good breeding, asked him, why he retained such a superfluity? he answered sneeringly, that he kept it for the purpose of stuffing Saddles: right, right said the other, it is the use, to which, all Brittles should be applied.

To the President of the Sup, Council,

"I have the satisfaction of acquainting your Highness, with the complete victory obtained since the battle of Baylen. Gen Dupont and the whole of his division, with their arms, artillery, baggage, &c are prisoners of war. The others who were not in the action, although they are not in the same situation, are included in the capitulation, and obliged to return to France by sea, so that not one Frenchman remains in Andaluha.—The particulars to be communicated to you by my nephew, until you receive circumstantial details, your Highness may be assured, that the bravery of the troops and officers, their constancy, sufferings and privations correspond with the sentiments which your Highness entertains of them, and which the army merits, and with the opinion, I have of their patriotism and zeal for the public cause. God preserve your Highness many years.

Head Quarters 21st July, 1808
XA DE CASTANOS

Yesterday the 20th July, the army your Highness, obtained the most complete victory which the nation has seen for many ages. The result is in imitation of the battle of Pavia: in one moment the Andalusias are freed from the arms of France. The division of Dupont with every thing belonging to it, and its Generals are capitulated, and the other divisions which occupied his Majesty's dominions from the summit of the Sierra to Baylen, evacuated the Peninsula by sea

This is the substance of the treaty that his Excellency General Castanos and myself had the pleasure to sign last night, &c as we left the camp at midnight, exhausted by fatigue and watchfulness, it is not possible at present to transmit to your Excellent Highness, the details of the capitulations and battles, but I shall do it as soon as time permits.

This pleasing intelligence will be communicated by Col. Giron, an officer of the highest merit, and proved himself deserving of whatever favours your Highness may be pleased to bestow on him.

Don Ferdinand

Extract of another, dated 29 July

"The Pall from Malaga has just arrived, and brings letters dated 26th inst. containing the following information, viz:—That on the 25th, in the forenoon, a Xebec from Ivica entered that port and brought intelligence that before her departure from that Island an English frigate had arrived there in distress having been in an engagement which had taken place in the Mediterranean, between an English squadron, commanded by Admiral Thornborough, and a French fleet of 11 sail of the line from Toulon, with troops on board, destined for Spain.—When the frigate left the fleet, two French ships were sunk & two taken and the English were in pursuit of the rest. The letters say, that the account is fully believed in Malaga, and that an express had been sent off by the governmen of that place with the news to the junta of Seville."

Oporto, July 4.

"I perceive the anxiety of your mind respecting our situation at Oporto, and I will do every thing in my power to tranquilize it —Others will contribute to the same purpose but none with more eagerness and interest than myself. In fact our situation is quite changed, as I already announced to you, in my former letters of the 19th and 21st; and I hope that Heaven will confound the pride of the impious Napoleon, that monster who delights in blood and carnage;—In fine, that scourge of the human race. God confirmed the confirmation of Spain and Portugal, & perhaps of the whole world, caused by that execrable man, and I hope will protect us. Do not suspect any method of order in my letters, I follow my own ideas, but you may rely upon the veracity of what I state to you.

"After the imprisonment of the governor Francis Quesner by the Spaniards, when they went away, and we were left under the protection of our former magistrates, whom, we expected, would pursue the same line of conduct; or to speak more properly, would imitate the example of Spain, which it was their duty to make the common cause; but in this we were disappointed. These pusillanimous beings, who, for the greater part were sold to iniquity, continued to govern us in the French manner. The true Portuguese of which there are many, murmured in secret, and shewed their dissatisfaction in various shapes, but did not dare to declare themselves openly. There was 400 artillery men of the regiment of Viana; but not being sufficient to garrison the town, castles, &c. they called out two-thirds of the auxiliaries, who entered upon the service, but with some reluctance, because it was not in the name of the Prince.

"Holy Thursday at length arrived, and the governor gave orders, according to custom to the auxiliaries to follow the procession without their colours, as they bore the arms of Portugal.—The chief officers answered that without these they would not parade, & in consequence, there was only one company in the procession. The murmuring of the people strongly spoke their feelings. The governor, a weak and timid man, importuned by the French and their partizans, having no will of his own, followed the perfidious counsels of these persons, and far from availing himself of the excellent disposition of the people took all possible means to destroy their energy, representing to them the approach of the French troops, which though their force was small and contemptible, he described the same terrific colours that Virgil does the Dolphans and Myrmidons.—To this was added the threats of the guillotine. fusillades, &c. threats which other wretches arrogantly and insulting circulated.

"On the 18th, intelligence was received that two thousand French troops were to arrive on the following day, and in confirmation of it the governor ordered carts to be prepared to convey provisions to them at Oliveira de Ameyra, where it was reported they were to halt for the night. At six in the evening of the same day an exterior officer arrived. Seeing the carts loaded, he indignantly exclaimed, that to the french they should send powder and ball". To consequence of this, a number of persons immediately collected, and prevented the carts from setting off, and the officer pledged himself to them that they should be supported by his comrades. He immediately went to the barracks at Lappa, and the soldiers assembling with a sufficiency of artillery, advanced to the squre Oviedo. The latter placed mounted on horseback, displayed the ensign bearing the Portuguese arms, and in a loud voice and with great energy and dignity, exclaimed, "Long live the Prince Regent!" One might say, that men sprang out of the earth, since thousands joined in the cry, and reiterated the same expressions. The soldiers marched with speed to the bank of the river, and planted artillery to prevent the entrance of the French. The auxiliaries run to arms, the drums beat, the bells were rung, the doors of the magazine were broken open, and the people flocked there to take arms, and in a moment the whole city was in a condition to defend itself against an army. Picture to your imagination what a light this was; and confess that in the midst of all this confusion, incidental to a people in such a state of commotion, there was not a single drop of blood spilled, not a house burned, nor any carnage. The only object in view was to prevent the entrance of a hostile force, to secure the persons of such Frenchmen as were in the town, who took care to conceal themselves, considering this tumult as temporary.

"Ramunda then appeared, having been confined since he fled from the Castle of Foz, where he had been confined, and took upon himself the command of a part of the new town.—On Sunday the 19th, a Council was assembled in haste to form a provisional government. They sent for the Bishop to attend the meeting, but he being indisposed, it was agreed that the Council should adjourn to this palace.

"It is not possible for me to express to you how the martial spirit diffused itself.—Even women forgot the natural timidity of their sex, and took up arms. Mothers put arms into the hands of their sons; fifers into those of their brothers. There is not a person who is not willing to assist in defending his religion and his country. Every man is a soldier, and every soldier is a hero in himself. Such is the force of enthusiasm.—The misfortune is, that having so many arms we have no officers to direct them; if there were, there is nothing which we could not effect.

"As the vessels are about to sail, I have not now time to observe upon what I have seen, which appears to me, in fact, like a dream.

"On the 20th, fifty heroes of Auderina were brought here, who were sent to us from Coimbra, where they were joined by the students and inhabitants. To make sure of them, they bound them to each other with cords.

"On the 23d, another scene more striking occurred. Forty French, who resided here, were conveyed from prison to a vessel, which carried them to the English squadron. Thus we got rid of the French; but when shall we get rid of the rascals who are in their interest?

"Luis Oliveira was brought here from St. Theriso, where he was arrested, put into the common gaol, and afterwards sent to the castle of Foz with other suspected persons.

"The provinces of Minho, Tras dos Montes and all Beira, followed example.

I am anxious to know what passes at Lisbon with which our communication is cut off.

"Two thousand five hundred Frenchmen, commanded by general Loison, were advancing to this place. This furious and sanguinary man, it is reported, intended to make a dreadful example of the inhabitants of this city, on account of the joy manifested by them when the Spaniards seized Quefner, the French governor. But on his arrival at Monte Pino from Almeida, being informed of what had taken place, he retreated to Lamego, where he committed dreadful carnage."

July 5.

"Yesterday a plot of a counter rev lution was discovered. In it were concerned two of those who shewed themselves most loyal on the 18th. Luis Paulino, who was also concerned in it, or suspected of being so, absconded to-day. A Juiza of the Misericordia Oporto was beheaded, and in all their executions greatest dignity, zeal, and circumspection were apparent. From Lisbon we hear nothing, since the communication is entirely cut off. It is reported that Junot is entrenching himself, but it is certain that the whole kingdom of Algarve has thrown off the yoke which oppressed it. How different is the appearance of Oporto! joy beaming in every countenance, from what it was a few days ago."

July 8.

"Spain gave us the example, which was immediately followed by the Province of Tras dos Montes, Oporto, and all the country between Douro and Minho; did not delay long after.—Beira imitated us, and Algarve did the same on St. John's Day, on which they massacred all the French who might be there and their perfidious adherents.—Lisbon remains to be re-conquered, where Junot still commands; but his reign will be for a few days only, considering the proximity of the Spanish troops, who are advancing to besiege him.

"We had hardly shaken off the yoke which oppressed us, when we were on the point of being destroyed. Some perverse Spirits, who had lost themselves to iniquity, had formed a plot to plunge us into the former chaos, and to reduce the town to ashes, in order to raise themselves upon its ruins.—They had planned to destroy the existing Government, which could not have been effected without much blood and slaughter.—Providence saved us. The conspiracy was discovered, the conspirators were arrested, and their trials will commence immediately. We are not yet acquainted with their accomplices, & shall therefore not give you their names.—Luis Paulino, however, is one of them. If you recollect the name of such a fellow. Manuel Felex, Procurator of the city, was also arrested yesterday, on account of his bad conduct, and conveyed to prison amidst a thousand insults of the fish women and mob.

"This day an English brig of war entered the river, and came up as far the bridge, where there was already a Portuguese armed vessel to defend the town. We have a regiment of Ecclesiastics, with their colours, drums, and music. Friars and Canons, intermixed with soldiers, mount the Bishop's guard.—The Familiars of the Holy Office are dressed in regimentals, with their Abbot at their head."

A method of contracting Viands into Fish

An honeſt but illiterate Catholic, had buſineſs with his Confeſſor, (a Prieſt) in the ſeaſon of Lent. He waited on his Reverence, and was ſhewn into the Parlour. The Prieſt, being called out and detained for ſome time, the viſitor in the interim, received a then grateful variety of olfactory treats: curioſity prompted him to aſcertain the cauſe, and he made his way to the cooking Apartment, when he diſcovered a loin of veal, and a pair of chickens, roaſting for dinner. Once turning, he found the Good man in the Parlour: Perdix, ſaid the Parſon, you have been viſiting my fiſh, fiſh ſaid the man, it is meat and fowls ſurely not fiſh: Toot Toot, replied the other, I dip my meats in water, which is equal to a Somerſet, and bleſs them by pronouncing their tranſmutation.

An infallible Cure for chronic Rheum.

A reſpectable man well ſtricken in years (about 80,) was ſubject to repeated attacks of that unpleaſant complaint: when afflicted, this ordinary relief aroſe from a powerful Sweat. His method of promoting it, was to be enclofed in an oven moderately heated. He felt a viſitation of the diſorder, on a Sunday, when all the Family attended Church, except a Grand Daughter of 11 years old. He cauſed the Oven to be heated, and himſelf as uſual to become the Tenant. The girl withdrew to dreſs herſelf, which engroſſed a few minutes more than ſhe intended: on returning to relieve her grand father: ſhe diſcovered him defunct and the body reduced to half its ordinary ſize.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

LONDON, Auguſt 6.

British Army in Spain.—The reports reſpecting the miniſterial arrangements for the command of our forces in Spain, are various. By ſome it is aſſerted that the Duke of York will command the troops, and by others, that general Dalrymple will be at their head. An evening paper has given the following liſt of appointments, which we inſert, but without any confidence in its accuracy:—

The Duke of York will command an army of 70,000 men in Spain.

Lord Hutchiſon is to accompany his Royal Highneſs the commander and chief to Spain in a confidential ſituation.

Sir Samuel Auchmuty goes of military Secretary to his Royal Highneſs.

Lieutenant Colonel Gordon retains his ſituation, and is to remain at home to tranſact public buſineſs during the duke's abſence.

Sir William Meadows is to act as commander in chief at home.

A General Field Staff to be appointed from officers of diſtinguiſhed talents and notorious public merit.

Sir A. Welleſley is named as the field adjutant general on the junction of the Britiſh forces in Spain.

The general Staff of the army is to remain as at preſent.

The Duke of Cambridge and Lord Moira, will both be employed with the Duke of York.

Lord Proby is appointed aſſiſtant adjutant general of the forces.

Sir D. Baird at Cork, to embark in command of ſeven regiments, now embarking at Cove.

Sir Robert Wilſon has obtained leave to raiſe a Portugueſe legion of 500 men.

The Guards have received orders to embark at Deal.

Paris papers have been received to the 24th ult.—They are wholly unintereſting—not a word of Spain; not a word about the victories over the Patriots. The ſilence of the papers under French influence is a moſt favorable omen.

Letters from Gottenburgh ſtate, that the Emperor of Ruſſia has offered to make peace with Sweden; but that his Swediſh Majeſty refuſed, obſerving, that he could not treat without England.

In order to complete the ſecond battalion of thoſe regiments in Ireland that are deficient of men, an immediate volunteering from the Iriſh militia is to take place.

This meaſure will add at leaſt ſix thouſand men to our regular forces.

It is ſaid, that a million of dollars are immediately to be ſhipped on board the Euryalus and Minorca frigates, for Cadiz.

Latest from Spain.—The ſhip Camilla, capt. Warden, has arrived at quarantine in 34 days from Cadiz. Her letter bag has not yet come up, ſo that we are unable to preſent our readers with any tranſlations this evening, of thoſe events which has given victory to the Spaniſh arms and ennobled the name of Spaniards. But we have converſed with Mr. Frazer, a paſſenger, who came up this morning, who informs us that he was preſent when Dupont and the remainder of his army ſurrendered to the Patriots—that no general engagement had taken place ſince that event—that in the partial engagements that ſucceeded the Patriots were victorious—that the brave defenders of their injured country were flocking from all quarters to Madrid—and that, ere this, according to the opinions of the beſt informed men, Madrid was in their poſſeſſion. Sir John Moore General Spencer, and General Stuart, were to have landed the day the Camilla ſailed to the Southward of Liſbon. A little town in the Province of Saragoſſa opened their gates to the French, the inhabitants retreating while 12,000 of the tyrants army marched forward; they had no ſooner cleared the gates when a mine was ſprung, the effect of which was that not a man ſurvived to tell the dreadful tale. Mr. Frazer likewiſe informs us, that while he was at Valencia, the heads of 248 Frenchmen were taken off in one morning—they did not belong to the army, but were ſeized upon as ſuſpicious perſons.

Since preparing the forogoing, we learn that the French had evacuated Barcelona after deſtroying the town—the place is now in poſſeſſion of the Patriots; King Joſeph, after hearing of the ſurrender of Dupont, quitted Madrid on the 29th of July.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.

On the 11th of September, captain Leſo ſpoke the Jamaica frigate, bound from England for the Weſt-Indies—was treated politely, and furniſhed with London papers to the 14th of Auguſt, containing further advices of the ſucceſs of the Spaniſh patriots.

On the nineteenth he was boarded by the Eurydice frigate, nine days from Liſbon for Halifax, and informed by the boarding officer, that general Junot and the French army under his command, had ſurrendered at Liſbon to the Engliſh and Portugueſe patriots, which event had terminated the power of Bonaparte in the Kingdom of Portugal; and that the Ruſſian fleet in the Tagus had ſurrendered to the Britiſh forces, and had ſailed for England.

It was reported at Amſterdam, that Bonaparte was at the head of an army making towards Auſtria.

Spaniſh News.—The following is a more particular ſummary of the late news from Spain, than the one we publiſhed laſt evening—It is copied from the Mercantile Advertiſer of this morning:

Captain Warden of the ſhip Camilla, left Cadiz on the 27th of Auguſt. He informs that Joſeph Bonaparte (the Mushroom King of Spain) had reached Madrid, but had retracing his ſteps back to the frontiers.—The French, after nearly deſtroying the town, had been driven out of Barcelona; and at Valencia the French inhabitants had been exterminated by a general massacree.—The Spaniards had sprung a mine at Saragossa, by which 12,000 fell victims. The British fleet had withdrawn from Cadiz, and the French fleet were laid up. A Spanish 74 sailed about 15 days before Capt. Warden, for La Vera Cruz and Havanna; a frigate was ready to sail to Lima, and a 74 for the South-seas.——It was reported that Junot (whose master had sent him to protect the Portuguese) was to be attacked by the natives and the British, on the day Captain W. left Cadiz. [We have a letter which mentions his defeat and surrender.]—The Governor of Gibraltar had resigned his situation, that he might take the chief command in Lisbon.—It was generally believed in Cadiz, that the French would be driven from Spain. The Minorca gun-brig and sloop of war, had arrived at Cadiz from England, with eight millions of dollars, for the use of the Patriots.—Bonaparte had returned to Paris, in consequence (as was said) of some of the Northern Powers having declared war against him.—Such is the substance of the verbal intelligence received by the Camilla.

Extract of a letter from a very respectable American Gentleman in Gibraltar, to his friend in this City, dated August 11th, received per ship Camilla, from Cadiz.

"We yesterday received the news of the surrender of the whole French Army, under Gen. Junot, at Lisbon, to the British forces —Junot himself a prisoner to the Portuguese and Spaniards.—He had attempted to make his escape from his army. Five thousand French Troops, in two bodies, that were marching to the relief of Junot, have been totally cut to pieces by the Spaniards, not even one individual escaped.

"Joseph 1st, (as he is ironically called) has fled from Madrid, having first given the place to pillage to his soldiers, and is supposed to have gone to Catalonia, or more probably to Barcelona, of which place the French have possession.

"Fifteen tons of silver, and arms and ammunition, for the Patriots have arrived at Cadiz from England; and twenty thousand pounds have been advanced by the government here, and about one hundred thousand dollars by the merchants, and more money is hourly expected from England; in fact, every assistance the British can give, is afforded to the Spaniards.

"Gov. Dalrymple has just resigned the command in chief of this garrison, and proceeds to Lisbon to-morrow, to take the command of all the British forces in Spain and Portugal, amounting to about 40,000 men. General Drummond succeeded to the command in chief here."

Through the kind attention of a particular Friend, I have received the following; accompanied in his feeling appreciation of such genuine merit, he, with some degree of trouble, obtained them for publication. The last of the amiable Mr. Cochran, will hereafter be published, so far as my little knowledge of Circumstances, will admit, and a faint tribute be paid, to his exemplary Life, and Character.

The following Charge was delivered by Mr. Justice Cochran, to the Grand Jury of the District of New-castle, upon the 27th of September 1803

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury.

WE are now assembled together, for the first time, under a recent Act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in pursuance of that wise and benevolent system of the laws of England, which ever anxious for the welfare of the Subject, brings Justice home to every Man's door: and has provided against the inconvenience that the people of this District, as Jurymen or witnesses should be obliged to travel to any great distance from their Families, or that those who have Rights withheld from or injuries done to them, should meet with any material difficulty, in search after that justice, which by the peculiarly excellent Constitution of this Country, is deemed to be due to every Man.

But Gentlemen, so far from intending that this facility in obtaining the recovery of rights, and the redress of injuries, should encourage a spirit of litigation amongst the people: it may be discovered, throughout every page of the British Jurisprudence, that those, who have been intrusted with the making, or administering the laws, have ever shown the utmost anxiety, to inculcate principles of peace, order, and harmony; and to guard as much as possible, against frivolous disputes and differences. These are sometimes, the inevitable consequences of the various dispositions, and passions of men. But Gentlemen, it gives me considerable satisfaction to observe, that they have as yet, been very circumscribed in this District; and long may they continue to be so.

In all personal controversies, which terminate in Law-suits, one party or other, must be a Loser; and when one reflects upon the expence, the trouble, the loss of time, and above all the uneasiness of Mind attending them, it is surely better to make every effort towards accommodation; even if it should be attended with some little sacrifice, than to risk the Event, for it often happens, that those who suppose themselves right, are found to be wrong.

Gentlemen.—The Subjects, to which your attention will now be drawn, are of a Public nature, such as concern the public peace and tranquility. It is not to be expected, Gentlemen, in an infant settlement like this, that Crimes of the more gross and enormous kind, which disgrace the Histories of great and populous Cities, will be found to be numerous or perhaps even to exist, but Gentlemen, in proportion as you are free from Vice you should be careful to guard the Avenues to it, with vigilance.

Those Offences, which most excite the Public indignation, commonly reach the ears of His Majesty's Attorney General; but besides these, Gentlemen, there are others, which from the nature of them, are best known to those, who are constantly upon the spot. Upon such, as Magistrates and Grand-Jurors, it behoves you all to have an observant and vigilant eye, and whilst by your own good examples, you discourage every species of disorder and immorality, you likewise endeavor to give due effect to the execution of those laws which are so admirably calculated for the promotion of virtue, and for the punishment and suppression of vice.

Gentlemen, the very solemn oath which you have just taken, is so excellent a compendium of your duty, that if this were not the first time of your being called together in the capacity of Grand Jurymen, I should think it needless for me to dwell longer upon the subject. But as it is one of the greatest importance to the community, I must still request your attention whilst I endeavor shortly to fill up this admirable outline.

You have sworn, Gentlemen, diligently to enquire and true presentment make of all such matters and things as shall be given you in charge.

Your duty in this respect is twofold; by indictment, and by presentment. An indictment is where an accusation is laid at the suit of the King, and you find that a bill brought before you is true. A presentment is where, without such bill, the accusation is found by yourselves, and afterwards reduced to a formed indictment.

If any thing, should come within your own knowledge, which may tend to subvert our holy Religion, or to draw off the Allegiance of His Majesty's Subjects from the belief of Kings; any thing which may tend to disturb the quiet of the Community, or to undermine the Morals of the People, is a fit Subject for your enquiry, and should not be allowed to escape you.

The King's Counsel, your fellows and your own, you have sworn to keep secret.

This, Gentlemen, is a subject of great consequence, to the furtherance of public justice. If the discussions of Grand Jurymen, or the evidence given before them were publicly made known, it would be attended with infinite inconvenience, Prosecutors and witnesses might be deterred from bringing forward, and substantiating, just accusations. The Guilty, would go unpunished, and the Innocent continue to suffer from their depravity. The remainder of the oath, Gentlemen, is so plain and obvious, and conveys its spirit and meaning, in so much better terms than I can attempt, to put it in, that it is unnecessary for me to comment upon it. I shall therefore only repeat it to you, & I trust it will have its full weight, upon your present, and future deliberations.

The oath is, "that you present no one for envy, hatred, or malice, neither shall you leave any one unpresented for fear, favor or affection, gain, reward, or hope thereof, but you shall present all things truly, as they come to your knowledge, according to the best of your understanding.

Gentlemen. The particular Offences into which, it is now necessary, for you to enquire, are I am sorry to observe to you of a capital nature, made so by a Statute of GEORGE the First, called the Black-Act, from the disguised manner in which the perpetrators of some of the offences, enumerated therein, committed them. It is by that Act, declared, that if any person, shall unlawfully or maliciously, kill, maim or wound any Cattle, he shall suffer death, without benefit of Clergy. And Gentlemen, it will here be necessary for you to enquire, whether the essential part of the offence, that is, the malice, be sufficiently supported by the evidence, in each of these cases, to enable you to find the Bill. If you could in the course of your investigation, discover, that there had been a previous quarrel, or dispute, or any circumstances from which, you can collect, that these offences, were committed thro'a revengeful, malicious, or spiteful intention towards the owners of these horses, it is your duty to find the Bills;

I have likewise had some intimation, of a riot and assault, and that, under a charge attended with most aggravating circumstances. If this be brought before you: you will examine whether, there was any tumultuous assembling of persons, for the disturbance of the Peace, by assaulting any person, that is by attempting or offering with force and violence to do a corporal hurt to him. These kinds of combinations, are very dangerous to Society, and as they are often entered into for the purposes of obstructing the Ends of Public Justice, they are then, looked upon by the Law, as very heinous offences, and are accordingly punished, with great severity.

Gentlemen; I wish to impress upon you, that it is merely necessary for you to attend to the Evidence for the Crown, & not to hear any evidence for the defence as the Person accused, will have a future and a better opportunity, of defending himself fully upon his Trial. Nor is there any necessity, that the Charge, should be fully substantiated before you: for if upon the evidence, brought forward by the Crown, you should think there is, a probable ground of accusation against the persons charged with these offences, you ought to find the Bills: if on the contrary, the Evidence does not afford to you, a reasonable cause of Suspicion, you should reject them. —— I have no doubt Gentlemen, but that every Case, which is brought before you, will meet with that cool and impartial consideration, which is due to it. If you should require any further information from the Court, it shall be afforded you.

YORK, 22. OCTOBER 1808.

I observe in late American News Papers that, their Regular standing Army, increases in a rapid and disproportionate manner. I also notice, that some very material appointments, to nearly their highest military ranks have happened. If Colonel Duane, should be ably seconded, by the stupendous support of fellow Editors, and other antifan news mongers, we may with nervous apprehension forebode the Levy en Masse, of nearly the whole literature of the country. In such novel and notable appointments, if the Sire of their fostering Embargo, does not see, his darling elegantly justified, he makes or studies at heart, vigorous and most able provisions for its enforcement; by blending the veteran and Sonorous wielders of the Goose-Quill, with his formidable sons of phalanx. This Lesson of veritable and dilated policy so forcibly inculcated to his loyal and unanimous auditory Citizens, is not unattended by serious dangers to his daring enemies, they being to portentously menaced, with the possible rages of his heroic hosts of literary conscripts.

When a casual peep into the profound policy of the Quadrennial Sovereign of the United States may be taken, the protuberances of his wonderous System, obscures the Marrow-fat shadow, not wholly the lean substance of his laborious views and national acquisitions. Men of such refined sensibility, such efficient and extensive ideas of temporal and temporary convenience as a Presidential elective Monarch, may be supposed to be, far outvies in nicest computation, the lesser tenant, of the gayest sublunary tenement. He who fills the portentous situation pro. tem. of well husbanded Empire, and who shudders on the brink of demarcation, can no longer entertain an ardent interest, in its countrys approach to perfection, nor in the durability or value of its new fangled government. The tenant urged to the verge of decampment, feels his dwelling of declensive interest; it is equal to him, whether it moulders into ruin, becomes the subject of conflagration, or through the ravages of an Earthquake, is withdrawn from human view or figures in pristine rubbish. The chance medley or happened Emperor with gliding certainty in his front, the retrograde march of quick paced decamping Empire and consequence in his rear, leaves with unlimited regret, the well or ill laid trains of futile glory, and transient beams of supreme and transitory Majesty. He deposits with engrossed and well assembled condescension (not hypocritical humiliation) the governmental Scarf and the power and insignia of welcome though redundant Sovereignty. This in a most distant measure, reminds me of the ungrateful though frequent change, in the gay, the richly trapped, vain and festive carriage horse. He boiling with all the fwoln and well nerved pride of animal elegance, with pampered spirit, unmeasured fodder, and glittering in superior exaction of richest trapping, bears with unbounded confidence his owner. With this honorary boon of distinction, this forceful impulse, we have seen the high prized, noble, the now ill fated animal, fall lame, sick, decrepid and irrecoverably foundered. I have seen him in an altered and pitied situation, unvalued dispossessed of ornament, a sorry subject of inattention, lost to those scenes of gay, of sportive and pre-eminent enjoyment, he dwindles into the battened, dispired, hal rideless horse, the garron of a Garbage mongers car.

It is widely distinct from my views or wishes, to ever so distantly affimilate, this spectre of undue comparison, indeed it might border on, or be of real impiety; to justify my classing such opposite objects of creation, in a nearer degree or proportion than that they were the very Antipodes or counterpoise of animal perfection. I cannot, neither can I wish to predict, what moment, a nations man or political harlequin, may transmigrate, or how soon he may be transmuted into a mummy or a gig Emperor, or like Alfred the Great, (of blessed memory,) be chidden for not watching the culinary process of a pancake. Admiring as I do, a titled Presidential being, it would ill become me to fumble or flounder into the arcana of his mortal policy, or probe the profound means of prolecuting national arithmetic. Yet I should be a deadly foe, to this specific admiration, however numerous his modes or objects to excite it, did I withhold it from the Man, or his all potent, arduous and wonder working measures. In these, an useful number of first rate machinations, if not engendered, are yet rendered more unfathomable; the hidden chink, conceal'd from mortal sight, is impervious to all human touch, save the favored touch of intrinsic fraternal politicians. Bound to appreciate his distended and new modes of saving knowledge, they one and all term with invigoration and deep and profuse inflames of a nations interest. Contraction, forms a more essential digit (though fraction it may be) in the Golden Rule of government, than it does of an artful commercial menfuration. It might augur infipid weakness, or infipid strength in any ruler vainly to permit the surplus of a countrys native superfluities, to be dealt in needed quantities to other ungrout nations. The happy secret of this animated and wealth making policy, is vested in the brave denial to others, of what may be facilely lost, or nobly rot-at home.

If the causes of a present Embargo, were to be impertinently canvassed. The pert American, might assign as local reasons, that a monsieur of Finesse, a bold intrepid Frenchman greatly vegetates on soup maigre, Frog marmalade, and other nameless though delicious and other substantial dainties; why then should our President feed or supply them, under the scourge of detentious or iron goad of unsuspended robbery. The selfwilled and fullen Briton, inside on more solid somethings, opinionated he has the audacity to rear or purchase them: and the proud that they have a King, and an uncivil, a devouring and carnivorous navy. For fear the fine generous republican, now the imperial Francoeis, might with the like, they shall not add to their revolting number, by engrafting or adopting ours." Were this American a democrat, he might levellate as follows, viz. "Our citizens should be encouraged from petitioning our President, our Printers, (if Federalists) from disseminating political or national information, and from depicting and blazoning, what to them appears the impolitic, the villainous or poltroon measure of our government; or they should be encouraged, from uttering their dangerous creed, and obliged to pay up, to curb their intolerable mania of affection to the British. Now finally to conclude (to use their expression) "the blasmoths should be unbarged from animal refunction, and a tandrewax be placed round Lake Ontario, & Olwego River, &c. &c. &c."

It may be incumbent on me to revere the memory of Washington, and esteem the amiable character of Adams, and it would be a serious defection from our ordinary pursuit of justice, were I not openly to discriminate between the good and indifferent. Without more knowledge of the great Jefferson, than that he is prolific in palatable measures, I confess that my judgement of him is obscured, and with it may never overbound the environs of its enveloping darkness. We pronounce no further upon his warlike dispositions, than that through the bar of his embargo, he has declared a harmless war against all Europe, and an injurious one to the industry and commerce of his country. We some new hew his well-ordered and undeviating attachment to the people, and the valuable rules of his Presidential system of conduct, dingled in the ear of his countrymen. Our regard to Americans, and an interest in the propriety of their Government, have impofed a general silence upon us. Without a Prophetic spirit, which we presume, "not to have we cannot divine, who is their next Prince of Louisiana, or Heir Apparent of their Presidential-Throne. We should not however repine, to an Anti Gallican, in Religion, Principles and Politics. In any government where like theirs, every man moves under the pendant thread of elevation, it might be presumptive to hazard a random judgement on such a sublime subject. As yet, we shall suspend opinion; infant as they are in the refined system of obtaining, and unfledged in revels of durant royalty, their regenerating polity, may yet engender such tumultuous scenes, as ere now, spangled the Roman territory.

Postscript

Just as the paper was going to Press, I was politely favored with this most interesting news. American Sailors discharged from our Fleet, by orders from the Admiralty.—Commencement of hostilities between the Austrians and French announced.—The latter defeated in the first engagement.—Lisbon taken by our forces, the French army of 17,000 surrendered, after two days engagement. The Russian Fleet surrendered, and to be sent to England The French losses in Spain and Portugal, 140,000 men, and ten four thousand prisoners in Andalusia. The particulars of this pleasing intelligence, will be published in the next Gazette.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

Important.—A merchant of this city handed us this forenoon a letter from his correſpondent at Cadiz, containing the following highly pleaſing intelligence. Ev. Poſt.

"Cadiz, Auguſt 26, 1808.

"The Britiſh ſhips of war in this quarter, and particularly off here, have received orders from the Admiralty to diſcharge all the American ſeamen on board their reſpective veſſels, and in conſequence a great many have obtained their diſcharge and come on ſhore here ; this you may ſtate as a fact, as I can vouch for the truth of it, having converſed with many of them ſince their liberation—this looks well. Our veſſels navigating in this quarter are treated politely by the Engliſh, and no obſtacle is thrown in the way of our trade which is admiſſible. This port being now open, all neutrals are admitted to a free entry—the blockade is raiſed and ſome of the Britiſh men of war have quitted this ſtation entirely. Lord Collingwood leaves here in a few days to proceed to Barcelona, in Catalonia, which place, after being for a long time in poſſeſſion of the French, is at length ſaid to be entirely clear of them. It is computed that the French have already loſt in this country 140,000 men in killed and priſoners. In all the actions with the French, the Spaniards have behaved with great gallantry, and they begin to find that their enemies are not invincible, yet it is ſaid they are ſome of thoſe ſoldiers who conquered at Marengo, Auſterlitz, and Jena. The Spaniards have manifeſted their determination to conquer or die, and if they perſiſt in this determination I really think the reſult will be favorabe to their cauſe. The revolution in this country will probably influence the conduct of our government in a greater or leſs degree. The ſucceſs of Spain, England cannot but participate in —that government has ſeconded the views of this people and eſpouſed their cauſe with that accuſtomed zeal peculiar to them.—The Minorca Britiſh brig of war arrived here 20 days ſince with the Britiſh Conſul, Mr. Duff, who brought out upwards of a million of dollars for this government, as a loan. Our mutual friend Mr.——, will probably detail to you ſome account of the military tranſactions in this country, and particularly the almoſt unexampled and obſtinate defence of Saragoſſa a city of Arragon, by the inhabitants of that rich city and province ; theſe brave and loyal people deſerve to be claſſed with the band of Leonidas who ſo bravely defended the paſs of Thermopylæ. After repeated attacks on this devoted city, by the flower of the French army, the Arragoneſe ſucceeded in driving them entirely out. The carnage has been dreadful :—even the women there have ſhared in all the viciſſitudes of the ſoldiers life, and have fought with an enthuſiaſm which nothing but a conſciouſneſs of the juſtneſs of their cauſe and a love of their country could have inſpired —more than 2509 of theſe females have been killed fighting in the ranks in the different attacks."

Further important particulars from Spain.

We learn from an intelligent Spaniſh gentleman of the firſt reſpectability, who came paſſenger in the ſhip Camillus, arrived here yeſterday, that the news of Dupont's ſurrender to the arms of the Patriots of Spain was received at Madrid on the 27th of July, and that King Joſeph with his army left that city on the 30th, three days after, carrying with them a few millions of dollars which they found in the treaſury and bank of St. Charles ; that the illuſtrious Duke de Infantado, who accompanied King Joſeph from Bayonne, had ſeparated from him, and was at Valladolid among the Patriots raiſing a reſpectable army ; that on the 5th of Auguſt, General Blake, at the head of his army conſiſting of ninety thouſand men, arrived at Aſtorga from Gallacia, on his way to Burgos ;—that Gen. Cerballon, who is commander in chief of the army of Valencia, entered Madrid on the 3d of Auguſt with five thouſand men, and reſtored tranquility to the city, and happineſs to its inhabitants.

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The intelligence which was received yeſterday by the ſhip America from Amſterdam, and the ſchooner Union from Liverpool is of the moſt intereſting and important nature.

An intelligent gentleman, paſſenger in the America ; ſtates that it was reported and believed at Amſterdam, that the Emperor Napoleon had put himſelf at the head of an army to act againſt Auſtria.

The annexed extract from the log-book of the America ſhews that Junot, and the French army under his command had ſurrendered to the Britiſh forces, and the Portugueſe Patriots—and that the Ruſſian fleet in the Tagus had alſo capitulated, and was ſent to England.

By the total reduction of the French in Portugal, the British regular troops in that kingdom and in Spain, at leaft 50,000 ftrong, with the whole power of Portugal, would be enabled to march againft the remnant of the French force in Spain, which muft inevitably be fubdued.

Extract from the log-book of the ship America, captain Le ar, from Amfterdam.

"Sept. 21, lat. 46, long. 36, was boarded by the Englifh frigate Jamaica, and treated politely. Sept. 17, long. 50, N. was boarded by the Englifh frigate Eurydice, 9 days from Lifbon for Halifax—the boarding officer informed, that Gen. Junot capitulated to the Englifh and Portugueſe Patriots, and all Portugal was in poſſeſſion of the Patriots and the Britiſh; and that the Ruſſian fleet lying in the Tagus, ſurrendered to the Britiſh, and were ſent to England.

Courier office, London Auguſt 9.

FRANCE AND AUSTRIA.

Diſpatches were yeſterday received from Sir James Saumarez, in the Baltic. Report ſays, they announce the commencement of hoſtilities between the Auſtrians and French. Whether this be any part of the contents of the diſpatches we know not; but a letter from an officer in the Baltic ſtates, that Sir James whilſt cruiſing off Stralſund, on the 29th ult. was informed that hoſtilities had actually commenced, a battle having been fought at Gallicia, in which the French were entirely defeated.

Boſton, Oct. 3.

The ſhip United States, captain Harding, has this moment arrived in this port from Cadiz, which place he left the 23d of Auguſt, Sept. 6. The United States cloſe in with St. Michaels, was boarded from the Britiſh frigate Eurydice, 5 days from Lifbon, for Halifax, treated politely, and informed that the Britiſh took poſſeſſion of Lifbon, the 29th or 30th of Auguſt; and that the French army, (17,000) had ſurrendered to the Britiſh, after a ſevere action of two days; that about 7000 Britiſh were killed, and two or 3000 French, and a great number wounded;—and that the Ruſſian fleet had capitulated, and was to be ſent to England. The Eurydice was direct from England, with convoy off Lifbon, did not enter the Tagus, and was only off there one day. Sept. 17, lat. 39, 22, long. 46, 35, was boarded from Britiſh brig Hunter with 60 ſail of merchantmen under convoy, 42 days from Jamaica for London; treated politely.

Captain Harding was detained ſix months in Algeſiras, in conſequence of Bonaparte's decree of Jan. 3, 1808.

Captain Harding has brought diſpatches from Mr. Erving to our Secretary of State, ſaid to be important.

Mr. Mede, the United States navy agent in Cadiz, writes to a gentlemen in this town, that in Spain and Portugal, 140,000 French troops had been deſtroyed; that 24,000 were then priſoners in the province Andaluſia; and that to hope to effect any thing in Spain Bonaparte muſt ſend a force of 200,000 men.

London Auguſt 13.

Letters are ſaid to have been received, which ſtate the arrival of Bonaparte at Paris, and that he had determined upon calling out every perſon capable of bearing arms, from the age of 16 to 42, for the purpoſe of being marched againſt Spain. It is added, that the Senate had expreſſed a reluctant ſentiment upon the ſubject, in conſequence of which he had ordered eight of the members to be thrown into priſon.

The intelligence tranſmitted to government by Colonel Doyle, that [illegible] inſurrection of Spain and the Indies, and the French troops, took the road to Burgos. Gen. Caeſar, it is ſaid, miſſed intercepting his Majeſty on his journey to Madrid only two hours. We ſhall be glad to be more fortunate in intercepting the Emperor, Napoleon, we obſerve, has made ſimple retreat from Benevento to Burgos, for the purpoſe no doubt, of ſtanking and covering Joſeph's paſſage back to the French frontiers.

The intelligence from Corunna encourages us to hope, that in a very ſhort time, the war between France and Spain will be a war on the Pyrenees.

The Emperor of France is paſſing through the maritime ports; for what purpoſe, is not conjectured; unleſs to enforce his new levy en maſſe.

Louis 18th has had an interview with his Majeſty at Kew; and is now viſiting the ſeveral public inſtitutions in the Methropolis.

Auguſt 14.

When Joſeph Bonaparte found that he could not maintain himſelf upon the throne of Spain, he determined to ſecure the crown, and therefore carried off with him all the regalia and other valuables of the Spaniſh Court.

A diviſion of the Auſtrian Army, under the command of general Ponte, has made an incurſion on the road towards Burgos, and had taken a French convoy, with eight waggons loaded with plunder. Gen. Caſtanos was advancing in La Mancha.

The following is eſtimated to be the amount of the force advancing from the following Spaniſh Provinces, towards Madrid.

Andaluſian levies,	50,000
The Valencian,	45,000
The Murcian,	20,000
The Eſtramaduran,	20,000—135,000

Independent of the Auſtrian and Gallacian armies.

Auguſt 16.

It is reported, that Bonaparte wrote a letter Bayonne to the Emperor Francis, in which he demanded to know the motives of the military preparations in the Auſtrian States. It is alſo ſaid, that the tyrant threatened to deprive the Auſtrian Emperor of his crown within three months, if he ſhould attempt any thing againſt France at the preſent criſis.

The Supreme Junta of Oporto, acting for the whole of Portugal, we are informed, have requeſted to be ſupplied from this country with 30,000 ſtand of arms, and 300,000l. in ſpecie.

We learn by a gentleman who arrived here in the ſhip Diſpatch from La Vera Cruz, that the Corporation of Mexico, has offered FOURTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS as a preſent to the Patriots of Spain, to enable them the more effectually to carry on the war againſt France.—N. Y. Gazette.

Bonaparte has had the following return made to him of the number of Jews in all the different parts of the Globe, viz. in the Turkiſh empire, 1,000,000; in Perſia, China, India, on the eaſt and weſt of the Ganges, 300,000; in the weſt of Europe, Africa, and America, 1,700,000; making a population of three millions.—Albany Gazette.

Memoirs of Sir John Lockhart Roſs, Bart. Vice-Admiral of the Blue.

To honor the memory of worth, is the peculiar province, and that not the leaſt important or grateful, of a periodical publication. Though, as "the brief chronicle of the times," much that is temporary and fleeting, muſt neceſſarily engage our attention and occupy our pen, yet the page conſecrated by heroism, or ſacred to departed worth, ſhall outlive the buſtle of the day, and claim the applauding tribute of poſterity. To us the future hiſtorian ſhall appeal for the juſt conception of character, or the accurate delineation of fact; and, in the luminous page of the Naval Hiſtory of Britain, the name of Sir John Lockhart Roſs will be entitled to no ſecondary place.

Immaterial as it is to mankind in general, in what peculiar ſpot a man who has rendered eminent public ſervices to his country firſt drew the vital air, it is with the million the firſt object of enquiry. Sir John Lockhart Roſs, then, was a native of Scotland, deſcended from a very antient and honorable family in Lanarkſhire, he being the fifth ſon of Sir James Lockhart, Bart. of Carſtairs. He was born on the 11th of November 1721. From his earlieſt years he diſcovered a predileſtion for a ſea life, and in conſequence, in the year 1733, he embarked as a Midſhipman in the Navy. In this capacity he evinced qualities which particularly fitted him for the active and enterprifing duties of a Naval Officer, and gave dawnings of that diſtinction which he afterwards attained. As Firſt Lieuteuant to Sir Peter Warren and Lord Anſon, having ſhewed proofs of uncommon ability, diligence, and valor, he was, in the year 1747, appointed to the command of the Vulcan fire ſhip. In October of the ſame year he ſerved in the fleet under Admiral Hawke, who, cruiſing off Cape Finiſterre with 16 ſhips, captured ſix ſhips of the French line.

In 1755, upon the appearance of a rupture with France, Captain Lockhard was appointed to the Savage ſloop of war, and cruiſed under the Admirals Hawke, Byng, and Weſt, for the purpoſe of making reprifals upon the enemy, in which ſervice he was ever ſingularly zealous and ſucceſsful.

In March 1756 he was made Poſt into the Tartar frigate of 26 guns (24 nine pounders) and 200 men. The eminent ſervices he performed in this little ſhip, are ſtill proverbial in the Navy. His name was the terror of every French frigate or privateer that iſſued from their ports, he having in a very ſhort ſpace of time captured no leſs than nine veſſels of force, carrying collectively 2048 men and 224 guns. Of theſe the laſt, called the Melampe, fitted out at Bayonne for the expreſs purpoſe of taking the Tartar, gave him the opportunity of atchieving a victory that, for comparative brilliancy, was ſcarcely ſurpaſſed during a war fatal to the naval power of our enemies. The Melampe was of a force very ſuperior to the Tartar, mounting 36 guns, (twelve-pounders,) and having on board 320 choſen men. They ſoon met, for when two hoſtile Commanders, are actuated by the ſame deſire, to meet even on the wide expanſe of ocean, is no very difficult point. A very hot and obſtinate engagement enſued; but the enemy's colours were at length ſtruck to the ſuperior courage and diſcipline of the Britiſh Commander and his gallant crew. The perfidious Frenchmen, ſtung with the diſgraceful event of a conteſt ſo unequal on the part of the Britiſh ſhip, after having hailed the Tartar, acknowledged his ſurrender, and ſubmiſſively ſued for quarter, made a deſperate attempt to ſurpriſe and overpower her crew, whom he vainly ſuppoſed to be thrown off their guard, elated with victory. He boarded the Tartar; but in penetration vigilance and courage, he was more than overmatched by the Britiſh Commander. The Frenchmen were vigorouſly repulſed, and more than fifth of them were killed or drowned in their unwarrantable effort.

So active was captain Lockhard in the protection of our own trade, and ſucceſsful in the annoyance and deſtruction of that of the enemy, that the merchants of London and Priſtol, ſenſible of the important benefits more immediately derived to them from his ſervices, preſented him with valuable pieces of plate, in token of their private gratitude and public eſteem.

In November 1758, he was appointed to Chriſtian of 80 guns, under the orders of Admiral Hawke, who, with 22 ſail of the line in October 1759, then off Quiberon Bay, fell in with 23 ſail of French line of battle ſhips, with he engaged, and of which two were ſunk, two driven on ſhore and burnt, and one taken.

In the action between the Britiſh and French fleets in July 1778, he commanded the Shrewſbury, of 74 guns.

In 1779, he was promoted to Rear-Admiral of the Blue, and having hoiſted his flag on board the Royal George, he ſailed under the orders of Admiral Rodney, whole fleet, conſiſting of 22 ſail of the line, with tranſports and ſtores for the relief of Gibraltar, fell in with 11 Spaniſh ſhips of the line, which having chaſed and engaged, they took the Spaniſh Admiral and ſix of his ſhips, beſides one blown up in the action.

In March 1781, he again ſailed in the Royal George, under the command of Admirals Darby, and Digby, with 26 ſail of the line, frigates and tranſports, containing ſtores and proviſions, for the relief of the garriſon of Gibraltar.

On the 12th of April the fleet came off the Bay, when Sir John Lockhart Roſs, received orders to ſhift his flag to the Alexander of 74 guns, and proceed with her and five two-decked ſhips of his diviſion, the frigates and 60 ſail of ſtore ſhips, into the Bay, and ſuperintend and direct the unloading the ſtores which he accomplihed in ſix days, having landed 7000 tons of proviſions and 2000 barrels of gun-powder in the midſt of the heavieſt cannonade ever known; not leſs, at a moderate computation, that 200 ſhot and ſhells having been thrown every hour whilſt the ſhips remained at anchor in the Bay. Upon the 20th, Admiral Roſs with his ſquadron regained the fleet, when he received the thanks of the commander in chief, and having re ſhifted his flag to the Royal George, he returned with the fleet to England.

In April 1782 he was appointed to the command of a ſquadron, conſiſting of eight ſhips of the line and five frigates, to be employed in the North Seas, and cruiſed off the Texel, in which he had blocked up 15 ſail of Dutch men of war, until the end of June, when moſt the officers and men of his ſquadron were ſeized with a very prevalent diſorder at that time, known by the name of the Influenza. The Admiral himſelf was not exempted from the contagion, and in this ſickly ſtate he thought it adviſeable to return with his fleet to the Downs. In the December following, his health being perfectly re-eſtabliſhed, he made a tender of his ſervices to the Admiralty Board, but the concluſion of hoſtilities in the beginning of 1783 rendered his re-appointment unneceſſary.

In eſtimating the character of Sir John Lockhart, Roſs as an officer, when we take into the account his zeal, his activity, his uncommon ardour in the proſecution of all the ſevere and unremitting duties of his hazardous profeſſion, with the very great benefits which the Commercial intereſt reaped from his exertions, it will be found that he is entitled to rank with the firſt Naval characters of Britain. In coolneſs and intrepidity in the hour of battle, he could not be ſurpaſſed. In the courſe of a long and active war, to fight and to conquer became a like habitual to him.

He was reckoned a diſciplinarian, but in the exerciſe of his authority he never was cruel or tyrannical. To the diſcipline of the Britiſh Navy is wholly owing its boaſted ſuperiority over that of every other State. The free, turbulent, and intrepid ſpirit of the Britiſh ſeamen, when unawed by authority, defeats its own power by diverſity and exuberance; but brought under controul by well regulated diſcipline, it conſolidates and forms a bulwark which no human force is able to ſubdue.

Sir John Lockhart Roſs was reſpected and beloved by all the officers and men who ever ſerved under him, for he combined the manners of a gentleman with the feelings of a man. In the ſtation he was chearful and convivial; in his diſpoſition benevolent and humane; ſteady friend, and in particular by a certain writer, he has been conſtured by his attention to economy. That writer inconſiderately and imprudently advanced, that it even threw a ſhade upon his merits as an officer. On the abſurdity of this poſition, it is unneceſſary to comment. A juſt attention to oeconomy is a requiſite in every great character, and will invariably be found in every good one. We have at preſent too many living inſtances, that without it the moſt brilliant talents degenerate into infamy, and are unable to ſhield their profligate poſſeſſors from contempt and diſgrace.

Upon ſucceeding to the Eſtate of General Roſs, he added to the ſirname of Lockhart that of Roſs. To this eſtate, called Balnagowan, moſt beautifully ſituated upon the Bay of Cromartie, in Roſs ſhire, he retired after the concluſion of the former war in 1763, where he gave full ſcope to his benevolence and patriotiſm, in the encouragement of Induſtry, and the promotion of the Agricultural Arts. To uſe the words of the celebrated Mr. Pennant, "he ſucceſsively converted his ſword into a plough ſhare." Under his auſpices the peaſantry labored, were remunerated and were happy. The face of the country, as well as the human face, aſſumed a different aſpect. Bare mountains became clothed with trees, and barren heath with verdure; and while to bleſs grateful his benevolence and natural activity of mind, he conſiderably improved his fortune.

He married in 1761 Miſs Elizabeth Baillie, heireſs of Lamington, eldeſt daughter of Robert Dundas, Eſq. of Arniſton, Lord Preſident of the Court of Seſſion in Scotland, by whom he left two ſons and five daughters. In 1768 he was returned to Parliament for Lanark.

In 1780, he became a Baronet of Scotland, by the death of his eldeſt brother, from whom he [illegible] inherited the paternal eſtate of Caſtle Leod.

He was ſucceeded in his title and Eſtates by his eldeſt ſon, Sir Charles Roſs, Major of the 37th regiment of foot, and Member of Parliament for Kirkwalls &c. His ſecond ſon was in the Navy.

Sir John Lockhart Roſs died, on the 9th June 1790, in the 69th year of his age, at his ſeat of Balnagowan, where he had been reſident with his family for ſome months. His conſtitution which had ſuffered by a life of hardſhip and activity, had for ſome years become infirm, and he enjoyed, in the endearments of domeſtic Society and honorable retirement, all that can ſweeten and render placid the evening of life. By a numerous circle of friends, the remembrance of his private virtues will long be cherished with affection; while, from his country, his ſervices entitled him to the moſt diſtinguiſhed tribute of public gratitude and eſteem.

In addition to the honorable teſtimony, (now publiſhed) of the meritorious deſerts of Sir Lockhart Roſs, to whoſe energetic character, our nation are ſo gratefully attached and indebted. I have alſo had the pleaſure of peruſing a Commandante, warm official aprobation of the ſpirited and gallant conduct of Captain Steel, our Provincial Commodore; politely favored by Captain Warren of the Toronto, with the Magazine account of it, accident alone has denied me its poſſeſſion. Upon knowing the circumſtances which led to it, I felt a pleaſing animation, to ſee ſo juſt a tribute of praiſe, to the intereſting intrepidity of a gentleman, who has long ſtood high in my eſteem.

In what once compoſed this, three ſelected Caeſars, have been ſeen combatting for the vacant Throne, and three Cardinal Pontiffs fixing the Papal chair and ſeverally diſpenſing condemnation to each other, and eternal forgiveneſs to the ſins of their adherents. It might in the view of a Democrat, ſavour of political profanity to ſuppoſe, that three Preſidents in a like caſe may ever war on the bo dement of a Federal City: but in ſuch a favored land where every male may become the public Sovereign, in deſpite of himſelf the rotation of ſovereign community, may multiply ad infinitum. Their Embargo, which reflects no immortal honor on the views of poliſcy, from which it refuſed, their ſceptical citizens take the liberty to deplore, ſtill farther, they beſeech his ſupremacy to modify or condemn it, or adminiſter a wholeſome Julap of his graces healing catalaſm to it. To nations ſo juſtly thought the genuine Step-Children of Liberty, a ſtep-king or Preſident may be an incumbency; in a little time, we may forebode the preſent one, repudiating his government, and that his ſtepſon of politics, may ſhortly wield the American Sceptre. Let unbiaſed conſideration for a moment extend itſelf over every belligerent or local occurrence of effect, and no ſingle baſis on which to ground their extraordinary piece of Embargo impolicy can appear. Let us for a moment traverſe the pleaſing facts, that our naval banners fly triumphant in every marine or public water, that our national conduct inſeparably blended with and centered on wideſt generoſity, univerſally extends the hand of needed aſſiſtance, to every human being. That America has long depended upon, and enjoyed the general ſuctures of our Country, and in renumeration has returned to us, whatever their fertile fields produced of ſuperabundance. Humanity impels me to depreciate the diſtreſſed injuſtice, with which ſhe has been viſited, by this peſtilential meaſure. We ſee induſtry enchained and commerce (their firſt dependance) ſtruggling with a ſpecies of fanaticiſm. Our country intendedly inſtulted, our debt of juſtice withheld; and unnumerable Americans overwhelmed with ruinous poverty. Fat be it from me, to diſcuſs their ſovereign reaſons ſhet them who are deeply wounded, deplore the ſtab, he may be an object of forgiveneſs, but diſtant indeed from juſtification. Let the haſtening reſult impreſs his intereſted mind.

Although a native of America, (a thing which in itſelf, begets no abſolute diſguſt) I know nothing, conſiſtent with one gleam or reaſon, that can attach me to their preſent government. Had I been borne a Hottentot or Ottoman, the ſtern dereſt knowledge of the glorious ſyſtem to which I am bleſſed with an inviolable attachment, would have inſpired and perfected that attachment.

GREY PAPER

By a Gentleman returned from Long-Point, I have received information, that a settler of that neighborhood, has very lately found a piece of virgin or refined gold. It resembles in shape, such materials of Stone, as the Indians formerly used for Axes or Chissels. Its weight is nearly three pounds, and its quality of great purity.

Prompted by a curiosity of discovery, I formerly travelled a part of the Eastern Boundaries of Markham, Whitchurch and Guillambury. The only things of any interest, which I saw there, were some fragments of antique Earthen Ware, and some faint vestiges of settlements. I have since been variously informed, that indubitable outlines of extensive fortification, and the proofs of public works of some magnitude, are still visible. It would be a pleasing circumstance, if these remains were ascertained by a person of interest and science, and a part of their History and period, discovered. My general impression was, that a commercial settlement had been established in Whitchurch, about two centuries ago, or that, the Mohawk Tribes, whilst in possession of these tracts, had posts of defence in different parts of them.

On the 29th instant, His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor and Major Halton, sailed for Niagara in the Toronto, Yacht. It was his Excellency's intention to have gone there on Monday last, he embarked for the purpose, and received an honorary salute from the garrison. Excessive gales, and a succession of violent head winds, delayed his proceeding until Thursday morning.

His leading principles in his AGE OF REASON, impelled the wretch, many years since, to abandon this woman, on the wished and to him certain presumption, that she would become the victim of poverty; but our Nations' generosity belied the villainous hope of this diabolical man. The woman lived generally respected, and died lamented by her acquaintance.

It was thought that it was given to Mr. Jefferſon alone.—Had it been underſtood that the United States were coupled with it, the company who hiſſed, would have drank it with pleaſure, from their high reſpect for the American nation.—But Mr. Jefferſon has ſhewn himſelf too much the ſlave of Bonaparte ; has been to partial too all his ambitious ſchemes ; and too inimical to England to receive any token of reſpect, from Engliſh patriots, aſſembled to honor the deputies of thoſe patriots who are ſhedding their blood freely, to emancipate their country from the fangs of the tyrant, whom Mr. Jefferſon delighted to honor.

ON CRUELTY.

I had lately a beautiful inſtance of the pure benevolence of the mind, occaſioned by the following circumſtance :—Two young men, in the wantonneſs of ſport, had faſtened an animal to a ſtake, and were expreſſing pleaſure at its anguiſh. a younge lady, happening to g by, pleaded ſo powerfully in its behalf, and uſed ſuch pathetic diffuafives, that they at length yielded to the ftrength of her argument and confeffed their error.

Trifling as this circumftance may be thought by the volatile and gay, it will naturally lead the ferious and fober mind into fome reflections of common cruelty to the creatures of the earth. This has been a fubject thought worthy the attention of the nobleft writers, who haveexerted their unitedendeavours to regulate our pleafures, and to humanize the heart; but in defiance of the maxims of the wise, and in oppofition to the pleadings of conference, they ftill perfift in a cruel cuftom of torturing the defencelefs, and harming the gentle.

There is nothing argues fo much dallardy of fpirit as taking a diabolic satisfaction in the oppreffion of weaknefs: in directing our barbarity againft thofe beings who have not the power to redrefs themselves, and who, in dumb refignation, are compelled to bear all the malice and cruelty of Man. We are all willing to pronounce aloud the basenefs of the wretch who could bruife the old for the mere exercise of his ftrength, and we all kindle into rage, and glow with refentment, at the injury which we receive ourfelves: and yet, far from "doing to others what we would wifh they fhould do unto us," multitudes can behold the gafp, and hear the groan of expiration, without the difcompofure of a feature, or paffion. It furely were no philofophical romance to fuppofe, that every inhabitant of the woods and of the waters, every infect of the field and the air, has a circle of connections, to whom its welfare is naturally dear; and fet of relations, with whom it is engaged in the confidence of a reciprocated friendfhip.

That the brutes and birds are commonly focial, may be feen every hour by him who will caft an eye into the meadows, where thoufands in a tribe will affemble together for amufement, or for neceffity, for pleafure or for food; and the gunner, who wounds a fparrow, may perhaps occafion as much difcorder and confufion in the community of birds, as the fudden death of fome illuftrious Potentate in a Nation.

In a world where inftances of viciffitude, uncertainty, and mifery, mark every day in characters of anguifh, and with memorials of deftruction, every man has feen the parent, the husband, or the friend, bewailing thofe whom fome diftafter or other has hurried to the tomb; every foul is furcharged with forrow, and every heart enrobed in a general mourning: thefe we allow to be the tribute of our fenfibility to the memory of thofe whom we fhall fee no more. And why then may not the linnet's death throw a general gadnefs over the grove, and ftrike every leather'd bofom with diftrefs?

Be this, however, as it may: we are mortally certain that every creature can feel the ftrull of pleafure, and the pangs of pain; and we ought therefore, upon principles not only of fpeculative philofophy, but of common humanity, to avoid the infliction of every unneceffary diftrefs. There is fomething unpen le, and even ungrateful, in hatraffing or deftroying thofe creatures who look up to us in the hour of feverity for protection; and who, in the day of pleafure, expreis (in the filent el quence of nature) their fenfe of the favours they receive. And if we conflder the utility, or the entertainment, they afford us in refpect to the buiinefs or convenience, the pleafure, or the eafe of life, we fhall furely ceafe to abufe thofe beings who toil or fing to promote our enjoyments. The moft bloody characters are the Butcher, the Surgeon and the Sportsman. The Butcher indeed is the leaft blamable, as he kills from the neceffity of nature, and to preferve the life of his fellow creatures, and therefore is not properly an object either of ridicule or cenfure; but the Surgeon is often one who derives his ftill in diffection or amputation by fanguinary experiments on the bodies of living animals; and who can beft judge of the nature of difeafe and pain in man, by feeing how the brutes expire by poifon, or how the agony of the wound operates within them. Nor are philofophers leaft culpable in this point, who torture, fometimes with the moft barbarity, to no end or purpofe, and are inquifitively cruel, and curioufly inhuman. The Sportsman is ftill more pitilefs than either, fince he has no other plea for dealing deftruction through the field and foreft, but that he delights in the bavock which he makes. He is a being who rifes with the dawn, to profecute the diverfion of death; and, with unnatural fatisfaction, robs the vales of their mufic, and the groves of their ornaments.

With what an oppofite pleafure is the tender heart affected, and how different does the amiable man treat the creatures around: in his walk of contemplation, he expreffes fatisfaction at the mingled long of innocence and nature; in the feafon of froft he difpenfes his bounty towards thofe who can only beg by figns; and in the months of fummer, his garden is at once a nurfery and an aflylum from fuch as would incommode their labours or their loves.

We fhall, however, ceafe to wonder at the blows and brutles, the threats and injuries, which are exaggerated (without provocation) on the brutes, when we reflect on the collected and unnatural malevolence of mankind towards each other; it is not furprifing that he who has the heart to deftroy the calms of felicity, to harrafs a relation, or to betray a friend (to whom he is bound by every cement of confidence and honor), fhould either in the vacancy of idlenefs, or the pride of his power, torture fuch as can neither conquer or refift him. I have had frequent occafion to pronounce man the moft cruel of all creatures, and have obferved that though his motives of malignity are weaker, yet his propenfity to barbarity is ftronger than any other. The brutes, incited by a powerful and prevalent inftinct, cherifh from the deep felt fenfations of nature; they are bigotedly affectionate, and tenderly vigilant, in the arts of protecting and fupporting their refpective relations. Man on the contrary, often acts from the impulfe of ambitious paffions and ungenerous principles, from the ftimulations of intereft, or the whifpers of concealed refentment: he often infinuates, himfelf into notice by a meanneis which is a blufh to his manhood; and fometimes is inhuman to a child, becaufe a miftrefs has offended him. The cruelty of man to man is even greater than the cruelty of man to brute; and he who in the arrogance of his fuperiority, calls himfelf the Lord of Earth, (except the irradiations of divinity emitted from his eye and traceable in his form) has, of all other creatures, the fmalleft marks of the Deity to diftinguifh him.

Yet furely, if it is the greateft moral virtue to diffufe happinefs, it is the greateft vice to multiply mifery; and it is certainly the character of none but the Father of Iniquity, or thofe who obey him, to rejoice at the diftrefs which their inhumanity occafions. It is impoffible to tell how near our natures are allied to thofe of the animal world, or how we may be connected with them in the univerfal and dependant chain of cauſes: but of this plain and falutary truth no man is ignorant—that the fmalleft atom that fports in ether, or creeps on the Earth, and enjoys its privilege of inviſibility, is formed for fome peculiar or general end; that it has organs to diſtinguiſh, and faculties to ſeek; and that if we are not compelled by the laws of nature to deprive it of the right of being, we cannot conſiſtently with the laws of virtue or humanity) deſtroy either its life or enjoyments for the gratification of ſport.

DIONYSIUS.

FOR THE YORK GAZETTE.

Mr. Printer,

Of the various changes of diſpoſition in a human being, after the years of anarchy are got over; few changes poſſeſs ſuch ſhare merit, as a judicious change to modeſty of ſhip, and the rules of virtuous morality. Born to little knowledge, and condemned to leſs education, my moral ſyſtem was tainted during my firſt years of manhood, without a fettled preference for any religious leſs, or given method of offering adoration; I frequented the aſſemblies of Jews and Gentiles, as inclination or convenience offered, and felt no ſenſible attention nor particular impreſſion from what I ſaw or heard. The Synagogue forms an exception; it flatted to my conception as a ſpiritual Gaiuar, on which was thrummed an unintelligent confuſion dance of ſemblant worſhip. One ſalutary influence of witneſſing this Jewiſh ceremony, what ever it may be technically called; is ſtigued convulſively, both mind and body. Subſequently my Rumbling genius, humbled on a trifling hobby horſe, and I became involuntarily a confirmed and conſtant Methodiſt. A welcome convert, I received every degree of attentive enjoyment, which an unfettered poſſe of faithful brethern and ſiſters in joint tenancy, could grant or would beſtow. However newly invented the ſpecies of their holy paſtime, they have each its avenues to ennui, opened, and ſickle man is attacked with laſſitude, from witneſſing Methodiſtical inadvertencies without the power of patient refiſtance, or tolerable endurance. This was my peculiar miſhap, and induced me to take a laſting farewell of Methodiſm, and impelled me to labor in the graſeful vineyards. Some cauſes of the diſſolution of this religious copartnery, aroſe on my ſide, from an intimate experience of their numerous practices, unfavored by ſincerity and oppoſed to decent formality. The Camp Meetings of my quondam favorites, have many diſtinct though corporate features, which ſeverally are repugnant to common ſenſe, and eſtranged from every ſymptom of religion. Theſe characteriſtic abſurdities recibly remind me of the Bonmith Carnival, and I fear that in ſtead of the ſpiritual leaf, they degenerate into immoderate carnal vices. Whether the ſpiritual lent is predominant or not is uncertain, but we believe it hulked out of their religious and Camp Meeting logbooks. From the numbers of thoſe which occur, the appellation of jubilee is appropriately fet aſide. I think a county yearjubilee, more approximate, and that their commencement ſhould chime in with St. Patricks day, the ordinary celebration of whoſe ſanctity would ably aſſiſt, and perfectly qualify his memorialiſts and Methodiſtical religioniſts to perform without heſitation and with memorable eclat, their incumbent and ſubdivided parts, in this blended carnagoole. I have known a Turkey craw ſtuffed, and a Chicken infatuated with ſmutty wheat, to celebrate the welcome viſit of a preacher one of the teſtators of condemnation, and ſecutator of the vi et armis, and ſplendor of Leciter. I have ſeen an unſophiſticated Apoſtle of theirs, (the only Hiberniun lecturer I ever ſaw) in the act of lonorous and brogonniering religious advice, as an overflowing worſhipper and active diſciple of Bacchus, enter primarily his attentive audience. This redundant auditor, not unnoticed by his unreverence, was ſpoketully glanced at in the Sermon—in ſuffing, not ſtecring to a text, he egregiouſly ſuvvented a ſtraight line of March. When ſeated a ſhort time, the ſame ſpecific powers of his opiate, operated irreſiſtably, and ſoſing his poiſe and center of abſtract gravity, his reſinoned ſcience involuntarily coalated with the houſe floor in audible craſh, a ſanguinary confuſion was the ornamental conſequence of this proſtrate abaſement; however, not inſenſible of this tangible connection of his forehead and the floor, to uſe an additional nautical phraſe, he beat out of harbor, and anchored in the firſt vacant ſoundings of the main ſtreet, which preſented to ſhelter. The Reverend ſangtado, "trembling alive" to propriety, commended his ſituation in leſſure; (like the Iriſh renegado boy, praying for himſelf in Baltimore,) to the mercy of the Supreme and Sabbian favor, inſenſible of whoſe hands he might fall into. Under ſuch a leſturer's laſh, inebriation was treated as a prodigy; and (diſloyal to virtue as it was) it was lambaſted with magnificent rhetoric, and bouncing profanity, to an opinion to humble at mine, his phrenetic abuſe, appeared a ſpecies of rotundity without circumference or center; paſſion ſoured the beginning and panting the finis. Out winded in this great effort, he curtailed the battle by groaning ſilence, and got gently intoxicated in the evening. The generality of Methodiſt Miniſters I have heard attempt to preach, have done wonders in their way; their ire againſt common ſin is diſſeminated with the ſame pleaſing welcome, with which a Pole-Cat ejects her angry and redundant odour, and with rhetoric more potent and impreſſive, than figures through the loud ſpeech of a recruiting ſergeant. Theſe gentle preachers, are generally the conſcripts of idleneſs, their indolence begets a preſidence of lazineſs, or an impetuoſity of gadding. The laſt may appear improbable, but it is a judicious truth, that the rigid Methodiſt, and the rigid Democrat, preſent the ſame lines of countenance, leanneſs and general appearance, to eſtabliſh this incontrovertibly trace the exact likeneſs in the two deſcriptions. The divine religion, implanted in our hearts, by one bleſſed Saviour, abounds in meekneſs, and a generally ſilent Faith. It produces not that pitiable furor, which deſignates the apparent worſhip of Methodiſts; I have ſeen the candle light ſmothered for perhaps nam'd is purpoſes in large aſſemblies; I have ſeen the body of convert, kneaded and ſummeled, as a Baker does his dough, I have ſeen them fall down in apparent convulſions, with little attention to decorum or decency: I have heard them bawl aloud that they held Jeſus by the great toe, and were aſcending with him. That they were burning in everlaſting fire and demanding more of that ingredient from the Creator. I have heard one Preacher (to a large congregation) ſelecting them to fling ſtones at each other, like King David and Goliah, at the Brook Kidron; Sally or Lydia, Jonathan or Benjamin, no matter which, were his memorable words. From the innumerable inſtances in which I have heard their profane deluſions and madneſs uttered, I ſhed their ſociety, as I would the ſemen of peſtilence, and I deplore their apparent infatuation, to have ſeen intimately their Pen or Hurdle erected a the foot of the Camp Preachers leſturing altar, and ſee the ſanctuary and corpu copiae of * and wineſs the baneful proofs of back ſliding and luminous imbecility.

Mr. Printer,

I pronounce the country favored whoſe juſticiaries, are not polluted by unwelcome fraternity with an U. I. Narcolean-Janiſary, a ſoſter-brother of Democracy's, a Diſciple of Epheſian Diana's, an Abettor and God-father of Poverty, a commiſary-miniſtrel of Diſaffections, an inflated Igotus Fatuus of conſequence, a legal Semi-Fungus of groſſeneſs, an Alp a Omega of virtuous hatred, a ſcorious Scroyle of Loyalty, a Sangrado of legiſlative ſcience. I have ſeen the ſmitten Deer and ſmitten Dolphin ſpeeding to diſſolution, with vivid and luminous haſte, and a trail of e——s I have ſeen "a mortal great Judge," ſpeeding to the pit of phyſicial contempt, with a quadruplicate trail of catechumens, whoſe deeply planted and profound praiſeworthy progreſs, is noted in the log-book of memory, viz. William the Good, inebriated by robbing, the twin-brother of villainy, and I fear a cuſtos rotulorum in the grizzly realm of Lucifer. Do. Charlemagne the corpuscle, elected high admiral of Noah's Ark, Corregidor of the Turtle Doves, and grand Hambro' line knight, of the bed poſt. Do. Johannes Mill, rough rider, and ſupernumerary appendage, to a fraternal ſtate, grand patron of the Canadian thiſtle. Do. the homogenious Joſephus Bland, heir at law to immortal Emmett, adminiſtrator and colonial agent to his political ſponſors, tranſatlic journaliſt of Freemen, Swift's text ſtrick-louſes, and guardian general of our borders, pecuniary cardinal beagle to bottle conjurers, revallie drummer to legum doctor's creditors, primitive predicapt premonitory puling pug-probationer and proboſcis to his cadevant political Prolocutor.

YORK, 5 NOVEMBER, 1808

His Excellency the Lieut Governor, and Major Hallon, arrived here on Tueſday the firſt inſt from Niagara, in the Toronto Yacht

I have reaſon to believe the war commenced between the Auſtrians & French. Accounts ſtate, loſs of the latter at 12,000 men, in the firſt engagement. Favored with an extract, from a very late New-York letter, I am now convinced, that the French General in Spain and Portugal, who were not killed in action, are all captured with their armies, by the Patriots.

The Embargo ſo ruinous to the U. S. is petitioned againſt by their ſubjects, the laſt of theſe petitions, that I have ſeen, are expreſſed in ſuch energetic terms, as fully depict their ſtrong diſguſt to this ſtrange meaſure. From an averſion to fan the flame of [illegible] I decline publiſhing particle of property on which my claims of infancy and manhood are immoveable, and which by a ſpecies of formal robbery is withheld, has added to my invincible diſguſt, and a forceful preſentiment with redoubling ſtrength, beams no diſtant day of retribution.

I ſee (without a peculiar force of ſtrength) the brooding convulſions, hovering over their conſtitutional change. A judge of colours, of mediate capacity, can facilely judge of coulored civil conſtitutions. To judge of the parallel nature of things, which affect a nervous perſon, and the leniſtive conſtitution of tottering government, no ſtrength of predictive reaſon is required. I ſee awaiting one a iconic change, more peſtilently combined in the body politic, than the conjunct diſeaſes of paſſy, paralytic convulſions, and St. Vitus's dance in one human body. With little and careleſs knowledge of their geographical extent, and ſtill leſs of their legiſlative ſubdiviſions, the ſperdy alteration in all its parts and features, is fully familiariſed to my humble though unerring judgement. Perſonal and originating cauſes, ge erally order the trivial rules of all perſonal conduct; but unreſiſtable and impulſive reaſon dopets to ſome men, the overwhelming events which involve the general fates of countries and Nations. I thinkd be unhappy, if to a virtuous people, a virtuous government might not adhere. Our own, the laboun of patriots and ages cemented with luſtre & high perfection of human reaſon, ſupported on the adamantine baſis of affection and grateful attachment, engroſſing the moſt refined rational enjoyments of generous man blended with the firſt facted injunctions of nature, and indelibly engraved on every ſpark of virtue. It ſtands favored and I hope beloved by Providence, a burniſhed Beacon which the world admires, and from which the great examples of all that is good or glorious emanates.

The Editor intends publiſhing the Memoirs of the late Parſhal Terry Elq. drawn up by himſelf; and entertains the pleaſing hope, that they will be liberally ſubicribed to, as his widow will be ſole proprietreſs.

The non-arrival of the Toronto, at this port, prevents me from giving any further intereſting intelligence from Europe. I can ſay, that the 49th Regiment in Lower Canada are embarked for the Weſt Indies—alſo, the death of Captain Howard, late Member of the Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province.

VERY LATE LONDON NEWS.

Last evening arrived in this port, the British Packet, Lord Chesterfield, Gibbon, in the remarkable short passage of 31 days from Falmouth, via Halifax, in 7 days from the latter port. Passenger, Mr. Dove Bethune, merchant of this city.

Mr. Bethune left London on the 7th of September, and is the bearer of dispatches from Mr. Pinkney to our minister at the Court of St. James, to the secretary of state.

We learn verbally by the Packet, that our affairs with Great Britain, were likely to be amicably settled, and in a short time; and that a French Senatus Consultum had petitioned the Emperor Bonaparte to withdraw his troops from Spain, and leave the kingdom to the Patriots.

LONDON, Sept. 1.

A mail from Gottenburgh arrived this morning. The only article it has brought is the following; but, the report of an action between the British and Russian fleets is, we understand unfounded.

"Gottenburgh, August 19.

"General Armfeldt did not resign the command of the western army to General Cedershiom, as was first reported.

"Private letters of to day's post from Stockholm report, that the Russian fleet which appeared off Gildenholm on the 6th August, was met on the 12th by an English fleet and totally put to the rout. This appears rather incredible, as we cannot conceive that a sufficient number of English ships for the purpose could have been so high up in the Baltic at that time."

The Brest fleet is said to have put to sea again. The postscript to a letter from an officer of the Minerva frigate, lays briefly—"the French fleet are again out." So great is the distress of the islands of Guadaloupe and Martinique for provisions, that every effort will be made to relieve them. This, of course, will produce on our part the most active measure to prevent them. It is true that the Toulon squadron put to sea with troops on board, it may be that the West Indies, and not the Baltic islands, was their destination, but it is probable that Martinique and Guadaloupe will fall before any succours can reach them from Europe.

The expedition against Bilboa, is said not to have been undertaken with the view of keeping possession, but of plundering it. After the houses and inhabitants had been pillaged of their most valuable property, the French banditti are reported to have evacuated the town and retired to Vittoria.

Our commerce with Spain is already become very considerable. One house in London has received an order from that country for castle woollens, sufficient to clothe twenty thousand troops. Trade is looking up to the West Riding; and the intercourse between this country and Spain is already of great advantage.

Very considerable supplies of arms and ammunition have been sent from the ports in the northwest of Spain, to the Biscayans.

September 2.

Complete defeat of General Junot, and proposals for the surrender of his army.

The glorious intelligence we have to announce will delight every heart, though we are perswaded that every one of our readers was prepared to expect it. The British armies have been eminently victorious over the French in Portugal in two battles and long before this time (in the words of General Castenos after the surrender of Dupont, we have no doubt, "that not a Frenchman remains in arms throughout the kingdom of Portugal."

The Park and Tower guns were fired this morning at eight o'clock, in honor of these great victories.

The glorious intelligence was brought about 8 o'clock last night to Lord Castlereagh's office by captain Campbell. It was soon after communicated by his Lordship to the Lord Mayor.

COPY.

DOWNING STREET, Sept. 1, 1808.

"My Lord—I have the honor to acquaint your Lordship, that Captain Campbell arrived this evening with dispatches from Lieutenant General Sir Arthur Wellesley, dated Vimiera, the 22d ult. giving an account of two victories obtained over the French army in Portugal—the first on the 17th at Rolleca, over the advanced corps of the French, consisting of 6000 men, commanded by Generals Laborde and Brenick, in which the French were defeated with the loss of 1500 men, in killed, wounded and prisoners: the second over the whole of the French army in Portugal, consisting of 14,000 men, commanded by General Junot, wherein the French were completely defeated, with the loss of 13 pieces of cannon, 23 tumbrills of ammunition, and about 3500 men, in killed wounded and prisoners.

"In consequence of this action, general Kellerman arrived with a flag of truce at head-quarters on the 22d. to treat for terms.

"Lieutenant General Burrard landed, and arrived in the field of Action after the battle had commenced on the 21st ult.; but he generously declined taking the command from Sir Arthur Wellesley. On the 22d. Lieutenant General Sir Hugh Dalrymple landed, and took the command.

"I have the honor to be &c.

Private letters are said to have been received in town this morning, stating that the ports of Holland are open for the exportation of all goods, except leather, butter and salt.

September 3.

Accounts have been received which state, that in consequence of some movements which had been observed among the French troops our commander in the Baltic had found it necessary to remove all the Spanish troops from Langeland, which had been effectually done, and they were conveyed to G. enhagh (9000 men, and 200 women) where the transports for bringing them to England are arrived by this time.

Orders had been received at Deal for the immediate imbarkation of the brigade of guards there. The brigade at Chatham is also to embark—other regiments will join them, and this fresh imbarkation will consist of about 10,000 men.

The embarkation at Cork, has been suspended.

Saturday morning the Thunderer, of 74 guns, captain Talbot, was released from quarantine at Portsmouth. She sailed from Palermo on the 27th of July. On her passage to Gibraltar, she spoke a British boat, which told her that four of her ships of the line were at anchor to the eastward of Barcelona, and that they had destroyed a convoy going with troops from Toulon to Barcelona. The Thunderer took from Palermo to Gibraltar, prince Leopold second son of the king of Naples. He is sent by his father to claim the regency of Spain as next heir to the crown of Spain.

A letter from Cadiz, contains the following summary of the plunder taken by the Spanish armies from Dupont:—

17,000 suits of military clothing; 37,000 muskets, packed up; 120 pieces of cannon; 30 mortars; 186 coaches; 2000 excellent horses; 100 ammunition carts; 6,000,000 of hard dollars and the military chest; all the plate stolen at Cordova, and the other places through which the French army marched, had been melted into bars.

The following are the goods permitted to be exported from Holland: Butter, Cheese, Geneva, Earthenware, rushes, flower, roots tiles and pans, hoops, dried hides, cambricks leather, plants, paper, pipes, sash, faturni, ground bark, bricks, starch, tobacco, farrar, flax, fruits, clover, garden and flower seeds, and madders.

September 7.

The Musquito sloop arrived at Yarmouth yesterday, with the intelligence of the Russian fleet of 12 sail of the line being off Stockholm—Sir James Saumarez was on the 23d ult. at Carlscrona, and our squadron, which had on the 19th received information of the Russians being at sea, were making every effort to give them the meeting.

Another of these revolutions which are so frequent in Turkish history, has taken place at Constantinople, and the Sultan Selim, who "waded through slaughter to the throne," has been deposed and murdered, his Nephew has been elevated to the dangerous dignity, to possess it a less time than his predecessor, and to meet probably with the same fate. Forty thousand of the inhabitants of Constantinople are said to be in arms.

Dantzic August, 2.

His Excellency General Rapp, the governor of this city, has died here, after a long illness.

From the London Gazette Extraordinary.

Downing Street Sept. 2, 1808.

Extract of a letter from Lieutenant General Sir Arthur Wellesley, dated Head quarters at Caldas, the 16th of August, 1808.

I marched from Lyria on the 18th, and arrived at Abobaca on the 19th, which place the enemy had abandoned in the preceding night; and I arrived here yesterday. The enemy about 4000 in number, were posted about ten miles from hence, at Borica; and they occupied Brilos, about three miles from hence, with their advanced posts. As the possession of this last village was important to our future operations, I determined to occupy it; and as soon as the British infantry arrived upon the ground, I directed that it might be occupied by a detachment, consisting of four companies of riflemen of the 60th and 95th regiments. The enemy consisting of a small piquet of infantry and a few cavalry, made a trifling resistance and retired; but they were followed by a detachment of our riflemen to the distance of three miles from Brilos. The riflemen were then attacked by a superior body of the enemy, who attempted to cut them off from the main body of the detachment to which they belonged, which had now advanced to their support; larger bodies of the enemy now appeared on both the flanks of the detachment, and it was with difficulty that Major General Spencer, who had gone out to Ebidos when he had heard that the riflemen had advanced in pursuit of the enemy, was enabled to effect their retreat to that village. They have since remained in possession of it, and the enemy have retired entirely from the neighborhood. In this little affair of the advanced posts, which was occasioned solely by the eagerness of the troops in pursuit of the enemy, I am concerned to add, that Lieut. Panbury, of the second battalion of the 95th regiment was killed, and the hon. Capt. Pakenham wounded, but slightly; but we have lost 1 rank & file killed, 5 wounded and 21 missing.

Head-Quarters, at Vita Verde, August 17

My Lord—The French General Laborde having continued in his possession at Roleia since my arrival at Caldas on the 14th inst. I determined to attack him in it this morning. Roleia is situated on an eminence having a plain in its front at the end of a valley, which commences at Caldas, and is closed to the southward by the mountains, which join the hills, forming the valley, and about eight miles from Roleia is the town and old Moorish fortress of Ebidos, from whence the enemy's piquet had been driven on the 15th, and from that time he had posts on the hills on the sides of the valley, as well as in the plain in front of the army, which was posted on the height in front of Roleia, its right resting upon the hills, its left upon the eminence on which was a windmill, and the whole covering four or five passes into the mountains in his rear.

I have reason to believe that his force consists of at least 6000 men, of which about 300 were cavalry, with five pieces of cannon; and there was some reason to believe that General Loison, who was at Rio Major yesterday, would join General Laborde by his right in the course of the night. The plan of attack was formed into three columns; the right, consisting of 1200 Portuguese infantry, destined to turn the enemy's left and penetrate into the mountains in his rear; the left consisting of Major Gen. Fergufon's and Brig. Gen. Bowes's brigades of infantry, three companies of riflemen, and 20 British and 20 Portuguese cavalry, was destined, under the command of Major Gen. Fergufon, to afcend the hills at Ebidos, to turn all the enemy's posts on the left of the valley, as well as the right of his post at Roleia; this corps was also destined to watch the motions of gen. Loifon, on the enemy's right, who I had heard had moved from Rio Major towards Alcoentre last night.—The centre columu, consisting of Major Gen. Hill's, Brig. Genl. Nightingale's, Brig. Gen. Crawford's, and Brig. Gen. Fane's brigades, (with the exception of the riflemen detached with Maj. gen. Ferguson,) and 400 Portuguese light infantry, the British and Portuguese cavalry, a brigade of nine pounders, and a brigade of six pounders, were destined to attack Gen. Laborde's position in front.

The columns being formed, the troops moved from Ebidos about seven o'clock in the morning. Brig. Gen. Fane's riflemen were immediately detached into the hills on the left of the valley, to keep up the communication between the centre and left columns, and to protect the march of the former along the valley; and the enemy's posts were successively driven in. Major Gen. Hill's brigade formed in three columns of battalions, moved on the right of the valley, supported by the cavalry, in order to attack the enemy's left; and Brig. Gens. Nightingale and Crawford moved with the artillery along the high road, until at length the former formed in the plain immediately in the enemy's front supported by the light infantry companies, and the 45th regiment of Brig. Gen. Crawford's brigade, while the two other regiments of this brigade (the 5th and 91st,) and one of the nine pounder brigade were kept as a reserve in the rear. Maj. Gen. Hill and Brig. Gen. Nightingale advanced upon the enemy's position, and at the same moment, Brig. Gen. Fane's riflemen were in the hills on his right, the Portuguese infantry in a village upon his left, and Major Gen. Fergufon's column was defcending from the height in the plains.—From this situation the enemy retired by the paffes in the mountains with the utmoft regularity and the greateft celerity; and notwithftanding the rapid advance of the Britith infantry, the want of a fufficient body of cavalry was the caufe of his fuffering but little lofs in the plain.

It was then neceffary to make a difpofition to attack the formidable pofition which he had taken up. Brig. Gen. Fane's were already in the mountains on his right, and no time was loft in attacking the different paffes, as well to fupport the riflemen, as to defeat the enemy completely. The Portuguefe infantry were ordered to move up a pafs on the right of the whole; the light companies of Major Gen. Hill's brigade, and the 18th regiment moved up a pafs next on the right, and the 95th regiment fupported by the 9th, under Brig. Gen. Nightingale, a third pafs; and the 45th and 82d regiments, paffed on the left. Thefe paffes were very difficult of accefs, and fome of them were well defended by the enemy, particularly that which was attacked with the greateft impetuofity, and reached the enemy, before thofe whofe attacks were to be made on their flanks: the defence of the enemy was defperate, and it was in this attack principally that we fuftained the lofs which we have to lament; particularly of that gallant officer the hon. Lieut. Col. Lake who diftinguifhed himfelf on this occafion.—The enemy was however, driven from all the pofitions he had taken in the paffes of the mountains, and our troops were advanced in the plains on their tops. For a confiderable length of time, the 29th and 9th regiments alone were advanced to this point, with Brig. Gen. Fane's riflemen at a diftance on the left, and they were afterwards fupported by the 5th regiment, and by the light companies of Maj. Gen. Hill's brigade, which had come up on their right; and by the other troops ordered to afcend the mountains, who came up by degrees. The enemy here made three moft gallant attacks upon the 29th and 9th regiments, fupported as I have above ftated, with a view to cover the retreat of his defeated army; in all of which he was, however repulfed; but he fucceeded in effecting his retreat in good order, owing principally to my want of cavalry, and fecondly, to the difficulty of bringing up the paffes of the mountains with celerity a fufficient number of troops, and of cannon, to fupport thofe which had firft afcended. The lofs of the enemy has however, been very great; and he left three pieces of cannon in our hands.

I cannot fufficiently applaud the conduct of the troops throughout the action. The enemy's pofitions were formidable, and he took them up with his ufual ability and celerity, and defended them moft gallantly. But I muft obferve, that although we had fuch a fuperiority of numbers employed in the operations of this day, the troops actually engaged, in the beat of the action were, from unfavorable circumftances, only the 5th, 9th, 28th, the riflemen of the 94th and 60th and the flank companies of maj. Gen. Hill's brigade, being a number by no means equal to that of the enemy; their conduct therefore deferves the higheft commendation.

Vimiera, Aug. 22.

Sir—I have the honor to report to you, that the enemy attacked us in our pofition at Vimiera, this morning. The village of Vimiera ftands in a valley, through which runs the river Macieira; at the back and to the weftward and northward of this village, is a mountain, the weftern point of which touches the fea, and the eaftern is feparated by a deep avenue from the heights, over which paffes the road which leads from Lourinha and the northward, to Vimiera. The greater part of their infantry, the 1ft, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, and 8th brigades were poffed on this mountain, with eight pieces of artillery; Maj. Gen. Hill's brigade being on the right, Maj. Gen. Fergufon's on the left, having one battalion on the heights, feparated from the mountain. On the eaftern and fouthern fide of the town is a hill which is entirely commanded, particularly on its right, by the mountain to the weftward of the town, and commanding all the ground in the neighborhood to the fouthward and eaftward, on which brigade Gen. Fane was poffed with his riflemen and the 50th regiment, and Brig. Gen. Anftruther with his brigade, with half a brigade of fix pounders, and half a brigade of nine pounders, which had been ordered to the pofition in the courfe of laft night. The ground over which paffed the road from Lourinha commanded the left of this height and it had not been occupied, excepting a piquet, as the camp had been taken up only for one night; and there was no water in the neighborhood of this height. The cavalry and the referve of artillery were in the valley, between the hills on which the infantry ftood; both flanking and fupporting Brig. Gen. Fane's advanced guard.

The enemy firft appeared at eight o'clock in the morning, in large bodies of cavalry on our left upon the heights on the road to Lourinha; and it was foon obvious that the attack would be made upon our advanced guard, and the left of our pofition; and maj. gen. Fergufon's brigade was immediately moved across the ravine to the heights on the road to Lourinha, with three pieces of cannon; he was followed fucceffively by brig. gen. Nightingale, with his brigade and three pieces of cannon; brig. gen. Ackland with his brigade, and brig. gen. Bowes with his brigade. Thefe troops were formed (major gen. Fergufon's brigade in the firft line; brig. gen. Bowe's and Ackland's in the fecond; and brig. gen. Nightingale's in the fecond; and brig. gen. Bowe's and Ackland's in columns in the rear) on thefe heights, with their right upon the valley which leads into Vimiera; and their left upon the other ravine, which feparates thefe heights from the range which terminates at the landing place at Maceira. On thefe laft mentioned heights, the Portuguefe troops which had been in the bottom near Vimiera, were poffed in the firft inftance, and they were fupported by brig. gen. Crawford's brigade.

The troops of the advanced guard on the height of the fouthward and eaftward of the town were deemed fufficient for its defence, and maj. gen. Hill was moved to the centre of the mountain on which the great body of the infantry had been poffed, as a fupport to thefe troops and as a referve to the whole army. In addition to this fupport, thefe troops had that of the cavalry in the rear of their right. The enemy's attack began in feven columns upon the whole of the troops on this height; on the left they advanced, notwithftanding the fire of the riflemen, clofe to the 50th regiment, and were checked and driven back only by the bayonets of that corps. The 2d battalion, and 43d regiment were likewife clofely engaged with them in the road which leads to Vimiera; a part of that corps having been ordered into the church yard to prevent them from penetrating into the town. On the right of the pofition they were repulfed by the bayonets of the 29th regiment, which corps fucceffively fupported by the 2d battalion of the 43d regiment, which by an advance in column, took the enemy in flank. Befides this oppofition given to the attack of the enemy on our advanced guard by their own exertions, they were attacked in flank by brig. general Ackland's brigade in its advance to its pofition on the heights on the left, and a cannonade was kept up on the flank of the enemy's columns by the artillery on thefe heights.

At length, after a moft defperate conteft, the enemy was driven back in confufion from this attack, with the lofs of feven pieces of cannon, many prifoners, and a great number of officers and foldiers killed and wounded. He was purfued by the detachment of the 20th light Dragoons, but the enemy's cavalry was fo much fuperior in numbers, that this detachment has fuffered much, and Lieu. Col. Taylor was unfortunately killed. Nearly at the fame time the enemy's attack commenced upon the heights on the road to Lourinha. This attack, was fupported by a large, body of cavalry, and was made with the ufual impetuofity of French troops.—It was received with fteadinefs by Major General Fergufon's brigade conffiting of the 86th, 40th, and 71ft regiments; and thefe corps charged as foon as the enemy approached them, who gave way, and they continued to advance upon him, fupported by the 20th, one of the corps of brig. gen. Nightingale's brigade, which as the ground extended, afterwards formed a part of the firft line; by the 29th regiment, and by brig. gen. Bowes and Ackland's brigades, while brig. general Crawford's brigade, and the Portuguefe troops in two lines, advanced along the height on the left. In the advance of maj. gen. Fergufon's brigade, 6 pieces of cannon were taken from the enemy, with many prifoners and vaft numbers were killed and wounded.

The enemy afterwards made an attempt to recover part of his artillery by attacking the 71ft and 82d regiments, which were halted in a valley, in which it had been taken. Thefe two regiments retired from the low grounds in the valley to the heights, where they halted, faced about, fired, and advanced upon the enemy, who had by that time arrived in the low ground, and they thus obliged him again to retire with great lofs. In this action, in which the whole of the French force in Portugal, employed under the command of the Duke D'Abrantes in perfon, in which the enemy were certainly fuperior in cavalry and artillery, and in which not more than half of the Britifh army were actually engaged, he fuftained a fignal defeat and has loft 18 pieces of cannon, 23 ammunition waggons, with powder, fhells, ftores of all defcriptions, and 20,000 rounds of mufket ammunition. One general officer (Beniere) has been wounded and taken prifoner, and a great many officers and foldiers have been killed, wounded, and taken.

A. WELLESLEY.

N. B. Since writing the above I have been informed that a French Gen. Officer, fuppofed to be Gen. Thebault the chief of the Staff has been found dead upon the field.

London, Sept. 6.

We have seen a letter received lately, which ftates that the Senate of Paris, pensioned Bonaparte to withdraw his armies from Spain and Portugal. As the men of thefe Countries have not fenfe enough to attend to his Imperial Majefty's benevolent counfels, and to accept with gratitude the amiable Sovereign which he recommends to them. They recommend to his Majefty to leave thefe froward people to themfelves.

On Sunday night his Excellency General Hue Dobro Gov. of Monte Vicdo, with his lady and suite arrived at the Clarendon Hotel in Bond-Street. The object of his journey to England was without doubt, moft important, but we think that the grand revolution in Spain, will pave the way for the amelioration of S. America, in a manner the moft confonant to the wifhes of all good men.

September 7.

Three French Camps have been ordered to be formed in Bavaria and Saxony, and have been commanded to hold themfelves in readinefs. The preparations of Auftria correfpond with the importance of the occafion; and the Arch-duke Ch. is to have the command in Chief with an limited power——The A.Duke John, & the other Princes, are to have separate commands. Auftria feems determined to bring into this conteft all her refources; and the French may be doomed to find in Germany, not another Ulm, and Aufterlitz and Jena, but another Baylen, Valencia, and Saragofla.

Orders have been iffued for the formation of a grand Depot of Artillery and ammunition at Weedon, in Northamptonfhire, as being the moft centrical part of the Kingdom. A large portion of the artillery will be drawn from the Southern Diftrict; and it is underftood that the depot, when formed, will be second only in point of magnitude, to the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich. It is a grand Building.

The meditated attack of Gen. Stuart upon the Neapolitan territory, is corroborated by letters from Palermo, which ftate that the French had evacuated both Calabrias; that Gen. Sir Jas Stuart had embarked for Italy, with 20,000 troops, and it was supposed the Neapolitans would rise en maffe to benefit by our aid.

A reinforcement of 3 fhips of the line has been sent to our fleet in the Baltic; the infatuated ruffians may lament the hour we act decifively againft them.

Capt. Gibbon informs, that juft before he left England, accounts were received that the celebrated Engliih frigate Sea-Horse, had engaged three Turkifh frigates in the Mediterranean, funk one and captured one the other escaped during the engagement. That taken, of 50 guns. The engagement was unparralled for defparation, the enemy's lofs was 830 killed and 200 wounded, her complement 704. We had 6 killed and 8 wounded; their guns were all brafs: The Sea-horfe carried 26 guns. The long catalogue of our glorious Naval atchievements prefents no inftance furpaffing this in brilliance.

Our friends and allies, the exemplary Swedes, are eminently fucceffful in all their rencounters with the Ruffians——and exert a noble ardour on every occafion.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

Lateſt Intelligence.

Poſtſcript to the Boſton Gazette of Monday.

SUNDAY EVENING, 5 o'clock.

We ſtop the preſs to announce the arrival of the brig Conſtance, in 28 days from Liverpool, bringing London accounts to Sept. 16.—Though our perufal of them has been neceſſarily a rapid one, ſtill we find they contain the relation of many events of conſequence. The following are however all that we can give of their contents:—

CAPTURE OF LISBON AND THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

Star Office, Second Edition.—We ſtop the Preſs to ſtate, that this afternoon, at half paſt four o'clock, a ſon of Sir H. Dalrymple, together with Captain Hallkett, Captain of the fleet under Sir Charles Cotton, arrived at the Admiralty and at the Secretary of State's office, with the important information, that Junot and his whole army are priſoners.—That Liſbon is occupied by the Britiſh Troops—and that the Ruſſian fleet ſurrendered to Sir C. Cotton.—Some French frigates were found among them; the whole taken amount to 27 ſail.

IMPORTANT FROM SPAIN.

The Spaniſh accounts to the 9th have been received. They adviſe, that the French have retreated from Burgos, and fallen back as far as Pampelona, where it is ſaid, they have been again defeated by the gallant Palafox.—The Spaniſh forces are all pouring in that direction. The Auſtrian and Ruſſian ambaſſadors remained at Madrid, and carry on their diplomatic correſpondence with their reſpective courts through Trieſte.

In the battle near Pampelona, General Palafox killed 5000 of the enemy, and took 1000 priſoners.

A letter from the Magiſtrates of Tudela, to General Palafox, dated 20th of Auguſt, announcing the evacuation of the French from that city, after a reſidence of nearly three months. The hero of Saragoſſa, in his anſwer, accuſes the inhabitants of a want of firmneſs, or patriotiſm, in ſuffering the enemy to remain for a moment among them.

General Blake has advanced from Leon to Rio Sequillo.

The French Senate has been ſummoned to meet to take the affairs of Spain into conſideration.

The eſcape of the Spaniſh troops from Holſtein, is noticed in the Paris papers, and their patriotic leader the Marquis de Romana ſtyled a traitor.

Letters from Holland adviſe, that Bonaparte is collecting an immenſe force, for the purpoſe of renewing his deſigns on Spain.—It is further ſaid, that nearly 300,000 French were already aſſembled on the Spaniſh frontiers; and that Bonaparte was determined to ſend his whole force in that direction, if neceſſary for the attainment of his object.

Bonaparte appears at length thoroughly roufed to a ſenſe of his danger from the unexpected and glorious efforts of Spain. French detachments are marching from Sileſia, from Brandenburgh, and indeed from every part of Pruſſia as well as other quarters towards the Pyrenees. Marſhal Ney has already paſſed through Bayonne, on his way to Burgos, where he is to aſſume the command of the French armies in Spain. The ſcene is now beginning to aſſume a new and terrific aſpect.—It will preſent a field for the exerciſe of patriotiſm and bravery almoſt beyond any that has ever been exhibited on the page of hiſtory. To reſiſt the torrent of force which is now preparing to overwhelm the Spaniſh nation, will require all the reſources of courage and conduct, fortified by invincible perſeverance, and prepared for every ſacrifice.—If the Spaniſh troops ſhall finally triumph, in this glorious cauſe, they will preſent the moſt auguſt ſpectacle to the world which has been exhibited ſince the invaſion of Greece by the Monarchs of Perſia.

Our lateſt Paris Journals, which are to the 9th of Sept. preſent a number of official documents of great intereſt. They give the Meſſage of the Emperor to the Senate, and the Expoſe of the ſeveral Miniſters of the Adminiſtration, in reſpect to Spain, and their relation with other powers. In the Meſſage, Bonaparte ſays—"I am determined to carry on the war with Spain, with the utmoſt activity, and deſtroy the armies which England has diſembarked in that country. The future ſecurity of my ſubjects, the proſperity of commerce, and a maritime peace, muſt alike depend upon thoſe important operations."

The conduct of the Engliſh in aſſiſting the eſcape of the Spaniards in Holſtein, has drawn forth the warmeſt acknowledgements from the Magiſtrates of Oviedo. The following is the concluding part of their addreſs:—"Noble and generous Engliſh, your extraordinary activity in all parts of the Globe, and the ſucceſs which you laviſh on the Spaniards, to deliver them from a tyrant, will be ever engraven on our hearts, and ſerve as a model in the hiſtory of nations.—Glory to Great Britain!—Glory to Spain!—And death to Tyrants!"

The troops ſent to be embarked for Spain from this country, will amount to near ſeventy thouſand men; they are the flower of our troops, and will compoſe greater force than was ever before ſent abroad at one time.

Dupont appears not likely to eſcape from Spain.—The manifold infractions of the convention, by which alone his own life as well as that of his army, was ſaved, are conſidered ſo attrocious and diſhonorable as to releaſe the Spaniards from every obligation which they entered into in that inſtrument.

The Dutch papers continue to be filled with the movements of the troops in Germany.

Inſurrections are ſaid to have broken out in thoſe parts of France which border on Spain.

Although Auſtria continues to augment her military force, ſtill it is believed that ſhe will not hazard at preſent any direct hoſtility againſt France. Policy ſeems to dictate this meaſure; ſo long as the beſt Generals and armies of France, are hanging upon her frontiers. We confidently expect that Austria will rife againſt her moſt dangerous foe; but the time for her interference in the great ſtruggle of nations, ſeems not to have arrived.

Accounts from Holland adviſe, that Bonaparte has determined not to allow any veſſel whatever to depart from a French port without ſpecial permiſſion. The Hope, an American veſſel, which was loaded and on the point of ſailing has been ordered to return and unload.

The French official paper has at length propoſed to publiſh a genuine narrative of the preſent campaign in Spain; in which the French armies are repreſented as having been every where victorious. This one ſpecimen of French veracity, will ſhew what dependance is to be placed on their official accounts of Spaniſh affairs.

The Ruſſians have a fleet of 13 ſail of the line, and an equal number of frigates, lying in the port of Hango Bay, in Sweadiſh Finland. Their object appears to be an attack on the Sweadiſh fleet, while the Britiſh ſquadron on the Baltic ſtation, remain ſcattered as they now are.—We are happy however, to learn, that the Sweadiſh flotilla have retreated to Hufceſter Bay, the navigation of which is too intricate for the Ruſſians to attempt entering. In the mean time the Britiſh are concentrating their naval force with a view of attacking the Ruſſian fleet and great hopes are entertained of a new and ſplendid victory.

LERIDA, Auguſt 13.

We learn that on the 6th and 7th inſt. the French made a freſh attack upon Gerona, but were repulſed with inexpreſſible valour by its inhabitants, who occaſioned the enemy the loſs of 12,000 men, carrying towards Perpignan 14 waggons of wounded: the maquelets and ſmugglers followed in purſuit, maintaining a well directed fire of muſketry, which cauſed them much loſs.

LEON, Aug. 22.

Yeſterday orders were given to all the diviſions of Gallacia to aſſemble in that city on the 18 Sept. and for the whole army to march the following day for Burgos; the French are in number from 35 to 40,000 men; the army of Gallacia about 40,000, and that of Aſturias will amount to 30,000. It is to be obſerved that on the day of attack, of which day we are ignorant, though the 7th of September is named, the greater part of our armies will join, in order to attack the French in different points, and ſurround them; the army of Spain which will enter into action in conjunction with our allies, will amount to 70,000 men; conſequently we expect that not a ſingle Frenchman will eſcape out of Spain.

SPAIN.

Extract of a letter, dated GIJON, Sept. 8.

"At Caſtro, a ſhort diſtance only from Bilboa, I met a moſt intelligent gentleman, holding a high office in the Civil Department in the army of Old Caſtile. He was one of the members of the Junta of Bilboa, from whence he eſcaped when the French took poſſeſſion of that place; and having been ſtationed at Lun, a ſmall town cloſe to Bayonne, under the old government, in an official capacity, he was able to give me the beſt information reſpecting the French forces, &c. From him I learn that the French force now at Bilboa is about 1000, and 150 at Portogalette, a ſmall place on the bank of the river, a little below Bilboa, the whole of whom are boys and ſtriplings, the Veteran troops having marched again towards Burgos. The Force which took poſſeſſion of Bilboa, conſiſted of 4000 men, under general Merlin of which they loſt a conſiderable number; the Spaniards loſt only 90 or 100. Of 1000 who defended the place, there were 800 only armed with muſkets.

General Moncey arrived at Bilboa about the 18 inſt. Joſeph Bonaparte was ſuppoſed to be at Miranda, about 45 miles N. E. Burgos; and Jourdan is alſo arrived in Spain but without any conſiderable reinforcements. Between the 20th and 26th of Auguſt, 7180 wounded ſoldiers and ſeveral Generals paſſed into France.—The diviſion under General Lefebvre had retreated from Tudela, about 70 miles N. W. of Saragoſſa; and in the attack on Saragoſſa, on the 14th of Auguſt, the French loſt 9000 men, and it is believed nearly 23,000 altogether in the ſeveral engagements with General Palafox, who defended his poſt with a handful of troops (about ten thouſand!) his whole force including peaſantry, at this moment not compoſing 30,000.—The gentlemen above alluded to, eſtimated the French force in Spain and Portugal, in the firſt inſtance, at 150,000; of which 130,000 paſſed under his inſpection; 19,000 of that number are cavalry, including the artillery, horſes, &c.; and there were no leſs than 80 Generals attached to the army. The French are conſtantly throwing troops into Spain, but in ſuch ſmall numbers that they do little more than keep pace with the deſertion, which is great; and from every account I have reaſon to believe, that the French have loſt 113,000 men in Spain and Portugal, including in that number the forces under Junot whoſe fate is conſidered as inevitable.—The whole remaining force of the enemy is, therefore, at this time, about 10,000 between Burgos, Pampelona, Vittoria and Bilboa, not reckoning thoſe at Barcelona, as we are ignorant of the affairs in Catalonia.

"As General Caſtenos only reached Madrid of the 23d ult. and General Blake's army cannot move from Aſturgas for want of cavalry, I am ſorry to ſay, there is not at this moment, any force of the patriots ſufficiently advanced to keep the enemy in check; but they have not lately made any great efforts, and it is to be hoped part of our army from Portugal will ſoon be at liberty to act in Spain.

"The liberation of the Spaniſh troops in the North, has excited the moſt lively ſenſations of joy, and it is hardly poſſible to deſcribe the attachment of the Spaniards to the Engliſh, whom they hail as their deliverers.

"The property of the Prince of Peace having been confiscated, the Junta of Oviedo have ſold his ſheep, with other things, and ſent preſents to all the captains on the ſtation, of the Merino breed."

Madrid, Aug. 20.

The 24th inſt. is the proclamation of Ferdinand VII. for which day a conſpiracy was in readineſs, paid by the French and directed by the Marquis——, who had ſecreted 7000 muſkets, 1 cannon, 1 howitzer, and ſeveral caſes of ſabres; but ſoon we ſhall ſee a great number of thoſe intelligious wretches hanged, &c.

London, Sept. 17.

The troops embarked at Cork are to proceed to Falmouth, where they are to be joined by thoſe embarked in the Channel.—The whole will ſail from Falmouth for their ultimate deſtination under the command of Sir David Baird.

A monument has been erected at Madrid to the memory of the Spaniards who fell in the inſurrection of the ſecond of May.—The cenotaph is ſuperb: in the four corners are four pyramids, and in the front this inſcription—"To the unfortunate Spaniards aſſaſſinated on the ſecond of May, by French perfidy, their free and triumphant country conſecrates this deſerved memorial."

According to a report of Count Klingipor, The Sweadiſh troops have taken poſſeſſion of Jeppejard, whence the Ruſſians have retreated on the Road to Bjorneborg. His Majeſty has alſo received a report from Adjutant General Engelbrechten, dated Ejerge battery in Jemtland, the 20th inſt. ſtating that the enemy had evacuated both Jemtland and Herjedal, and retreated beyond the Lomſele.—Stockholm Gazette, Aug. 26.

Admiralty Office, Sept. 16, 1808.

Captain Halſted firſt Captain of to the Squadron under the command Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Bart. commander in chief of his Majeſty's veſſels on the coaſt of Portugal, arrived yeſterday at this office, with diſpatches from the Admiral to the hon. W. W. Pole, of which the following are copies:

Hibernia, off the Tagus, Sept. 3.

SIR,

Incloſed herewith, for the information of the lords commiſſioners of the Admiralty, is a copy of a convention entered into by lieut. Col. Murray and Gen. Kellerman, for the evacuation of Portugal by the French army; ſuch convention having been ratified by Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Dalrymple, myſelf, and the French commander in chief. Britiſh troops conſiſting of the 2d and 42d regiments, were on the 30 inſt. landed, to occupy the forts of Cascaile, St. Antonia, St. Julian, and the Bugio; and no time ſhall be loſt to embark the French troops, agreeable to the ſaid convention. Capt. Halſted, firſt captain of this ſhip, and captain of the fleet, who is bearer of diſpatches to their Lordſhips reſpecting the Ruſſian ſquadron in the Tagus, is in full poſſeſſion of my confidence, and will be able to explain to their Lordſhips the motives inducing me to ratify the convention in queſtion, as well as give any further information that may be thought neceſſary.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed) C. COTTON.

Hon. W. W. Pole, &c. &c. &c.

A copy of the convention inclosed in the letter from Sir Hugh Dalrymple.

Hibernia off the Tagus, 4th Sept. 1808.

SIR,

Herewith I have to honor to inclose to you, for the information of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, a copy of a convention entered into by me, with Vice-Admiral Seniavin, commanding the Ruſſian fleet in the Tagus; by which it will appear to their Lordſhips that ſuch fleet has been ordered to me, to be held by his Majeſty as a depoſit, until ſix months after the concluſion of a peace between Ruſſia and England.

I have charged capt. Halſted, firſt captain of the Hibernia, and captain of the fleet, with the delivery of this diſpatch to their Lordſhips; he was ſent by me to negociate the convention with Vice-Admiral Seniavin, and will be able to explain every particular.

To capt. Halſted I feel greatly indebted for his able advice and aſſiſtance upon all points of ſervice, his zeal and diligence have been exemplary and entitle him to my higheſt commendations.

Rear-adm. Tyler has been directed to ſuperintend the firſt diviſion of the Ruſſian fleet, which I purpoſe ordering under his protection immediately to Spithead; to him (ſince with me) I have been indebted for every aſſiſtance, and to the captains, officers and crews of thoſe ſhips that have been employed throughout a tedioſly protracted blockade, (by whom every exertion has been made with a degree of cheerfulneſs doing them infinite honor.) I feel extremely grateful, and deem it my duty to offer every poſſible teſtimony of my approbation in their favor.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) C. COTTON.

Articles of a convention entered into between Vice-Admiral Seniavin, Knight of the Order of St. Alexander, and other Ruſſian Orders, and Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Baronet, for the ſurrender of the Ruſſian fleet, now anchored in the River Tagus.

Art. I. The ſhips of war of the Emperor of Ruſſia now in the Tagus, as ſpecified in the annexed liſt, ſhall be delivered up to Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, immediately, with all their ſtores as they now are: to be ſent to England, and there held as a depoſit by his Britannic Majeſty, to be reſtored to his Imperial Majeſty, within ſix months after the concluſion of a peace between his Britiannic Majeſty and his Imperial Majeſty the Emperor of all the Ruſſias.

II. Vice-Admiral Seniavin, with the officers, ſailors, and marines, under his command, to return to Ruſſia without any condition or ſtipulation reſpecting their future ſervices; to be conveyed there in men of war, or proper veſſels at the expence of his Britannic Majeſty.

Done and concluded on board the ſhip Twenday, in the Tagus, and on board his Britannic Majeſty's ſhip Hibernia, off the mouth of that river, the 3d day of Sept. 1808.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Yeſterday evening a mail from Gottenburg arrived. It brings an account of an action between Sir Samuel Hood and the Ruſſian fleet in the Baltic. It appears that Sir S. Hood with two ſail of the line, has joined the Sweadiſh fleet, with which he ſailed in purſuit of the Ruſſians. The Ruſſian Admiral, apprized of their approach, quitted Henga Roads on the 25th of Auguſt, he was however, overtaken by the combined squadron. The Britiſh ſhips Cantaur and the Implacable, being ſo much better ſailers than the Swedes ſucceeded in bringing the rear of the Ruſſian fleet to action and one of their line of battle ſhips ſtruck her colors. The whole of the Ruſſian fleet then bore down to procure her, in which they ſucceeded; but ſhe was again attacked by the Centaur and carried by boarding; ſhe unfortunately, however, got aground and Sir H. was obliged, after taking out the priſoners to burn her. The Sweadiſh fleet at that time coming up, the Ruſſian Admiral crowded all ſail, and took refuge into Port Baltic, where he was blockaded up when the laſt accounts came away, by the united Britiſh and Sweadiſh fleets. The Ruſſians immediately on their entering Port Baltic, began to erect works for the protection of their fleet upon an iſland which commands the entrance of the harbor.—When this intelligence reached Sweden orders were given for the embarkation of a body of troops, for the purpoſe of reducing the Iſland. Sir J. Saumarez had joined Sir S. Hood with 4 ſail of the line. Lieutenant Thompſon arrived at the Admiralty yeſterday with the above intelligence. —Sun.

NEW YORK, October, 28.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT!

By the arrival this morning of the Barque Richard, captain Odricon, in 32 days from Liverpool, we have received the following very important verbal intelligence:—

That on the 18th Sept. Mr. Maury, the American Conſul at Liverpool, received diſpatches from our Government from Mr. Pinckney at London, with poſitive directions, that ſhould there be no veſſel about to ſail from Liverpool, one ſhould be inſtantly chartered for the purpoſe, and ſent off within eight hours.

That the Barque Richard, loaded only in part, was procured for the occaſion, and diſpatched early on the 19th.

That while beating down the channel, ſhe was boarded by Mr. Maury's Clerk, for the purpoſe of communicating the intelligence, that an expreſs had juſt arrived from Mr. Pinckney, bringing information that

Bonaparte had DECLARED WAR againſt the UNITED STATES.—

Had confiscated all American property within his reach.

And arrested and imprisoned all the American Citizens that could be found.

In corroboration of a part of this intelligence, we find in the London Statesmen, of the 17th of September, the following Poſt-Scrip:—

A Row-Boat has arrived at Guernſey, from St. Maloes, with four American ſeamen, who ſtate that Bonaparte had arreſted all the Americans in France. This account which has been received by a gentleman in the city, was read at Batson's Coffee Houſe this morning.

YORK, 19, NOVEMBER, 1808.

Lieutenant Governor's Office.

18th Nov. 1808.

THE Lieutenant Governor has been pleaſed to appoint, William Warren Baldwin, Eſquire, to be Regiſter of the Court of Probates, vice Miles M'Donell Eſq. reſigned.

W. HALTON, Sec'ry.

It muſt be a pleaſing circumſtance to ſuch as are intereſted in a juſt and well adminiſtered Government, and the general welfare of this Province, that in addition to the beneficent care, beſtowed on the heirs & children of the loyal ſubjects, who were its earlieſt ſettlers, there is now a rapid increaſe of valuable Farmers, all anxious and eager to be enrolled in the liſt of Britiſh ſubjects, and become partakers of the ſolid advantages, which, a fine, inviting, and encouraging country realizes to every man of regular induſtry and ordinary enterpriſe. In addition to whatever can be reaſonably hoped or actually enjoyed, under a mild and virtuous government, it muſt be obvious to a perſon who has knowledge of the riches of our Land and ſalubrious climate, that a welcome and juſt reward awaits the products of well ordered induſtry, and that neither time nor ſeaſon influences the market of the articles, or curtails the value of their price or ſale. To whoever either rears or produces our ſurplus neceſſaries, it muſt be a grateful reflection as well as a rational conſolation, that he is inſtrumental in contributing a mite to the national Funds—and that his induſtry & enterpriſe, are means of adminiſtering to public neceſſity, or diſſeminating wealth. Gifted as this Province is, with a fertile and almoſt unparalelled ſoil, every thing which it does or may by eaſy labour produce, is neceſſary to the common demands of our mother country. Nothing indemial or local is cultured or manufactured in vain—on the contrary, all and every part, is neceſſary and generally material to whatever purpoſe it is applied, or ſubſervient to. It becomes a general mean to the artiſan, not only as neceſſaries to an handicrafts ingenuity, but as an eſſential aid to his ſyſtem of procuring a livelihood, or a real promoter of his pecuniary ſavings. The evils which ſeems formerly appendant to our water communication, between this and our ſiſter Province are gradually diſappearing, or ſeem vaniſhed in our preſent modes of conveyance. The ſpeed with which this is now atchieved, is unaccompanied by ought like actual danger or obſtruction, but is attended with general additional and pleaſing certainty, and ſure profit. From that Province to this, ſome art and labour have been expended in neceſſary improvement, and more is looked forward to. Whatever may be deviſed or executed to meliorate its preſent difficulties, muſt be warmly approved in its authors and promoters, and be of great public utility. Our preſent knowledge and opinion of the face of the Country, leads us to believe, that the Town of Kingſton muſt ſhortly become a depot of additional conſequence, ſituated as it is, at the head and foot of ſhip and boat navigation, it muſt as the imports and exports increaſe, be uſed as a neceſſary landing place or ſtore-houſe. Its ordinary intereſt will depend either generally or ſolely on its weſtern neighborhood. Heretofore we have with ſome ſurpriſe witneſſed, that no man of large wealth, or mercantile enterpriſe, has ſelected it for a place of buſineſs—in a different, or reverſed, caſe a general profit would mutually accrue from ſupplying the ordinary ſhop keepers, and a large advantage be interwoven, with the diſburthening the Country of its extra products. A thing in itſelf ſo much needed and evident, requires to be ſuggeſted. On that in which a common intereſt is involved, we feel it a duty to be not wholly ſilent, but to recommend and promote it, ſo far as ſituation enables us. Pleaſed as we are with this flouriſhing and deſirable Province, our pleaſure is forcibly added to, by its valuable acquiſitions. Its preſent new ſettlers, principally Penſylvanians, in addition to their regular and devout religious habits, import a well ordered and moral exertion of induſtry, and the genuine comforts of a concomitant wealth, and inherit a ſincere attachment to our happy government, and the decorous adminiſtration of its decrees.

DIED, lately at Niagara, JOHN M'NABB Eſquire. This gentleman lived with an amiable character; which in the army, his conduct was particularly ſtriked and enforced by the higheſt eſteem of his fellow ſoldiers, and all who knew him.

QUEBEC, October 3, 1808.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

The September Term, of the Court of King's Bench of Criminal jurisdiction, commenced on Wednesday, the 21st inst. when the honorable Chief Justice Sewell, presided for the first time.

The following address was presented by his honor by the Grand Jury, on Monday last:

"To the Honorable John Sewell, Esquire, Chief Justice of the Province of Lower Canada;

"May it please your honor,

"The Grand Jury have great satisfaction in offering to your Honor their sincere congratulations on your appointment to the high and important office of Chief Justice, which you are so well qualified to fill."

"They, at the same time, take the liberty of returning their sincere thanks for your very instructive Charge, so impressively delivered from the Bench, at the opening of this session, and to request a copy for publication of that part of it which relates generally to the duty of a Grand Jury."

"Grand Jury Room, Quebec, 26th Sept. 1808.

His Honor having been pleased to comply with the above request, we have the satisfaction of gratifying the public with the following extract.

Extract from the Charge to the Grand Jury of the District of Quebec, delivered in the King's Bench, on the 21st September.

"GENTLEMEN,

"The system of Criminal jurisdiction which obtains in this Province is more careful of life and liberty, more provident in its dispositions to secure an impartial and careful investigation, than any other. It is not the premature offspring of speculative Theory, but the labor of the closet accomodated to the political views and designs of a transient Government, but the result of experience, designed for the benefit of the subject, ripened by the joint wisdom of successive Legislators of all ranks, and many centuries, and essentially connected with a constitution which perfectly attains the end of civil and social union."

"In the administration of this excellent system, you, Gentlemen, are now called to participate; to an office highly honorable and as extensive as it is honorable. You are indeed required, in a particular manner, to give attention to the matters which you receive in charge from the Court, and to the accusations which the Crown Officer presents for your consideration. But these are by no means the limits of your enquiries. It is your duty to search out, if it be possible, the concealed perpetrators of every crime, from Treason to Trespass, and to put him, of yourselves, in course for trial. No wrongs, no oppressions are beyond your authority. Whatever touches or affects the safety or honor of the Crown, does violence to the rights of any individual; is, forbidden by law, or inconsistent with the public peace, is a proper object for your animadversion. No man in Europe, is exempted from your accusing power; the lowest, if innocent, is entitled to your protection."

"This, Gentlemen, is an important trust. A trust which interests equally the Sovereign and his people,—to be executed with prudence, deliberation, diligence, integrity, secrecy and courage, according to the oath which you have taken; an oath originally framed, upon a clear and distinct view of all that is required of you; which is a guide to the performance of your duty, it becomes you to hold in faithful recollection, as much in tenderness to your own conscience, as in duty to his Majesty and to the community at large."

"You are bound by your Oath "diligently to inquire and make true presentment of all the matters and things which are given in charge" and "to present all things, truly, as they come to your knowledge, according to the best of your understanding."—Words to comprehensive, demand no comment; it is necessary only to remark that the true and diligent inquiry which you have promised to make, does not bind you to the extended examination and severe scrutiny necessary upon the trial of an offender.—The object of your institution is not to establish ultimately, the guilt, or innocence, of the accused, but to inquire and pronounce whether the matter with which he stands charged, be, or be not, to circumstanced, as to call for further investigation. You are to present him for trial, if you have reasonable grounds, to believe that the charge is founded in truth; to save him from the ignominy, the danger, and the inquietudes of a trial, if his innocence is apparent upon the evidence adduced in support of the indictment, or, to falsify to be presumed from it, that it cannot conscientiously be doubted. To do more, is to protect the accused from the due course of Law, to invade the province of the Petty Jury, and to usurp from them, the legal right of ultimate decision, to which they, constitutionally and exclusively, are entitled."

"You have sworn "not to present any "man, from envy, hatred or malice"; by which you engage, to reject the influence of every wicked motive; but to save you from an opposite extreme you have also sworn "not to leave any man unpresented, for fa"vor or affection"; by which you engage to reject even the influence of pity, compassion and benevolence, towards delinquents of every description; to extinguish such feelings by a sense of superior duty to the general body of the public, least they should excite in you, sentiments which might induce you to favor a Criminal, and which ought therefore studiously to be avoided; because if you favor you pardon, and in pardoning, you assume a prerogative constitutionally, and most wisely entrusted to the Crown."

"With a knowledge of the frailty, as well as the depravity of our nature, the oath requires you, and you have sworn to abstain even the hope of reward" and to discourage it."—A covenant that your conduct in every respect shall be disinterested, impartial and absolutely free from all pecuniary apprehensions of consequences.—This, with your promise to keep secret the King's evidence and counsel, your own counsel, and the counsel of your fellow Jurors, constitutes the sum of your engagement."

"Gentlemen,

"We are aware that the duties of a grand Juror so frequently return to many Gentlemen in this District, as to render them in some degree irksome; but we are convinced, there are none among you, who regret the time or trouble which they require—If there was one, we would beg him to consider the high nature of the functions which he executes, their importance to himself and to his fellow subjects; and while he reflects that the corrupt performance of a Grand Juror's duty, exonerates the guilty, punishes the innocent, and by undermining the administration of justice, greatly injures the Government of his country, we would beg him to remember, that a negligent and imperfect performance of that duty, produces the same effects. The Inquest by a Grand Jury is indeed a privilege, of high inestimable value, but the mere form of it is nothing; much of personal convenience and individual comfort must be sacrificed, if we mean to preserve an institution, so pre-eminently beneficial to our [illegible] country."

Lateſt Intelligence.

LONDON, Sept. 20.

That a number of Americans have eſcaped from France & arrived at Guernſey, under an apprehenſion that they would be impriſoned had they ſtayed longer in that country, is fully confirmed by letters received yeſterday from Falmouth.

The Moniteur of the 7th inſt. has publiſhed the mock treaties by which Bonaparte claims the right of transferring the Crown of Spain to his Brother Joſeph.—In return for this kingdom, the unfortunate Charles IV. receives the Palace of Compagne, with its parks and foreſts, and a revenue of thirty millions of reals. The acceſſion of the Prince of Aſturias follows his fathers reſignation, and he is to have poſſeſſions in Navarre to the amount of 30,000 acres.—The French and Dutch papers are ſtill filled with articles relative to the movement of troops, among which there is one which appears to throw ſome light on the nature of the journey which Bonaparte is ſaid to be about to undertake. It is ſtated that on the 7th, a detachment of the Imperial Life Guards ſet off in great haſte for Straſburgh. We may, therefore, ſoon expect to hear of the arrival of their Maſter in that city.—Whether we are to regard this journey of Napoleon as the prelude to hoſtile operations againſt Auſtria, or as undertaken for the purpoſe of an interview with the Emperor of Ruſſia, which, according to report, is to take place at Weimar, a ſhort time will ſhew.

The expedition under Sir David Baird, ſailed from Cork on Sunday ſe'nnight. Its firſt point of deſtination is underſtood to be Falmouth, for which port the tranſports, having on board the Brigade of Guards, have ſailed from the Downs.

September 21.

The following is an extract of a letter from Gottenburgh, Sept. 7 :—It is calculated that the Ruſſians have loſt 30,000 men ſince the commencement of the war in Finland. A want of proviſions and the intenſe cold, have been particularly fatal to them. I can aſſure you from good authority, that in Aland, Gothland, and Finland, the Swedes have collected and taken about 11000 ſtand of arms from the Ruſſians, amongſt which there is not one ſingle Ruſſian muſket, all of them being part of the 20,000 ſtand furniſhed two years ago, by the Swedes to Ruſſia, at the requeſt of Great-Britain. The troops encamped in the neighborhood of Riga are ſaid to be nearly deſtitute of arms.

September 22.

The Pluſhing ſquadron conſiſting of nine ſail of the line, it appears, are ready to put to ſea.—Rear Admiral Gardner in the Bellerophon, and ſix other ſail of the line, have ſailed from the Downs, to give a good account of the enemy, if they ſhould venture out of port.

September 23.

It was reported yeſterday, that orders had been diſpatched by government for the immediate recall of Sir Hugh Dalrymple and Sir Harry Burrard. The army in that country will then be placed under the command of Sir J. Moore. Sir Arthur Wellesley, it is ſaid, has marched with 16 000 men to the ſupport of the Spaniſh Patriots. The Encounter gun brig has arrived at Falmouth from Spain; but as the came direct from off Cadiz, ſhe could bring no recent intelligence from the immediate ſcene of hoſtilities. She has, however, brought diſpatches for government and the Spaniſh Deputies.

The tranſports, with the firſt diviſion of the Spaniſh troops on board, arrived off Yarmouth on Tueſday. On the ſame day the troops embarked at Harwich, which are to form a part of the expedition collecting at Falmouth, ſailed and yeſterday they arrived in the Downs. The Spaniſh troops will probably accompany this expedition.

It was yeſterday very currently reported in the city that our fleet had ſucceeded in an attack on the Ruſſians in Rogerwick Bay, and that ſeven ſail of the enemy's line had been captured.

The Baltic.—A reſpectable evening paper of yeſterday, publiſhed the following article, but without vouching for its truth, as it had been communicated by a ſtranger.

"A letter is ſaid to have reached town from an officer in Sir James Saumarez's ſquadron, ſtating, that on his junction with Sir Samuel Hood, at Baltic Port, the detachments of Royal Marines from the Britiſh ſquadron, were landed on the iſland, at its entrance, where the Ruſſians had taken poſt and erected heavy batteries; that after a moſt ſevere action with the enemy (who were far ſuperior in numbers) they ſucceeded in diſlodging them, a part of the Ruſſians ſurrendering, and others eſcaped in boats to their ſhips. At the time the letter was ſent off, our men were re-embarking on board their ſhips, which being effected, it was the gallant Admiral's intention immediately to enter the port, and give the enemy battle. The writer adds, "of the reſult no doubt can be entertained." Our loſs in this ſervice is ſtated to be very great, as our marines had to ſuſtain a tremendous fire of grape and muſketry, before a landing could be effected."

September 24.

Yeſterday we received by mails from Corunna and Gijon, Spaniſh papers to the 16th inſt. They were brought from the former port by the Snappe ſchooner, and from the latter by the Peruvian ſloop, both of which veſſels arrived at Plymouth. From theſe journals we have ſelected ſome very intereſting articles, and their contents prepare us for intelligence of the greateſt importance by the next arrivals from Spain. Various accounts lead to ſhew, that a great battle was about to take place on the Ebro, where the French have concentrated the whole of the force in Spain, and which, in the beginning of the preſent month, was ſuppoſed to amount to only 40,000 men.—The three great armies of the patriots were then endeavouring to form a junction, for the purpoſe of attacking the enemy. Palafox was advancing with 25,000 men from Saragoſſa; the Marquis de Caſtelar, with 25,000, from Madrid; and General Blake, with 35,000, from Leon. The latter commander is ſaid to be within a day's march of the French, but we hope that nothing will be attempted until the three armies can, by their union, cooperate in one regular plan of attack. We are afraid that the force detached from Portugal, under the command of Sir A. Wellesley, which we underſtand, conſiſt of 18,000 men, will not arrive at Burgos before the expected battle, on the reſult of which ſo much depends, ſhall have been fought.—It ſeems that the original intentions of the French were to have puſhed on to Aragon, and to have made another attempt to get poſſeſſion of Saragoſſa, but on their march to Tudela they received intelligence which induced them to meaſure back their ſteps. Joſeph Bonaparte is ſtill in Spain. A letter from Madrid, dated the 7th, ſtates, that he was then at Logrono, on the confines of old Caſtile, near Navarre, where the French head quarters were eſtabliſhed.—Some private accounts ſtate, that the French head quarters had been advanced to Burgos, but theſe is nothing in the papers to induce us to credit this ſtatement. On the contrary General Blake is ſuppoſed to have occupied Burgos, as the laſt accounts from his army left him at Reynoſa. The head quarters of General Cuеſta were at Alva del Formee. The Ruſſian Ambaſſador has left Madrid for Liſbon, it is ſuppoſed, for the purpoſe of communicating with admiral Siniavin. By a veſſel arrived at Carthagena, from Palermo, which the left on the 11th ult. we learn, that troops, arms and ammunition were then embarking for the Neapolitan territories, where the people, upon hearing of the events in Spain had riſen againſt the French.

An extraordinary Gazette, publiſhed by the Junta of Seville, dated the 22d ult. contains a detailed account of the battle at Gerona, on the 16th, in which the French under Dumeſne, were completely defeated, with the loſs of their artillery and baggage.

Letters from Stockholm have reached town which ſtates that ſubſequent to the 17th ult. the Swedes had another battle with the Ruſſians in Finland, between Bjornborg & Chriſtianſtadt, the reſult of which was a decided victory on the part of the Swedes. The Ruſſians left two thouſand dead on the field of battle. The Swedes had twenty-two officers and upwards of 800 privates killed & wounded. General Cronſtadt fell as he was charging at the head of his corps. The Ruſſians in conſequence of this defeat, are ſtated to have fallen back from Abo to the diſtance of between 30 and 40 miles on the road to St. Peterſburgh.—The Swedes had 760 ſome points marched upwards of fifteen miles beyond the Ruſſian frontiers.

Altona Mercury, Sept. 3.—Our Gazette contains the following article from Saxony :—"The apprehenſions of a war with Auſtria have vaniſhed, and it is made public at Dreſden that the Auſtrian Court has, under the date of the 9th ult. publiſhed an extremely ſatisfactory declaration relative to its armings.—Correſpondent.

FROM A LATE LONDON PAPER.

DREADFUL FIRE.

DESTRUCTION OF COVENT GARDEN THEATRE.

We have this day the painful taſk of recording one of the moſt dreadful conflagrations which have occured in the metropolis this ſeveral years. About 4 o'clock, yeſterday morning, a fire was diſcovered in Covent Garden Theatre, which raged with ſuch fury, that in the courſe of about three hours, the whole of the extenſive edifice was deſtroyed. The flames were ſo rapid that ſcarcely any of the property within the Theatre could be ſaved.—The books of account, deeds, and the treaſury, were fortunately preſerved through the exertions of Mr. Hughes, the Treaſurer. A trifling part of the ſcenery was alſo ſaved; but the whole of the wardrobe was deſtroyed.

It unfortunately happened that on the preceding day, in conſequence of ſome complaint reſpecting an irregular ſupply of water, the main had been cut off, with the intention of laying down a new one. From this circumſtance the ſupply of water was for ſome time very ſcanty, and the engines were unable to act with effect.—The flames in the mean time extended their ravages.—The wind being weſterly, blew them in a direction towards bow-ſtreet, and for a ſhort time there was ſo briſk a breeze, that the inhabitants on the oppoſite ſide of the ſtreet and the courts leading into it, began to entertain great fears for the ſafety of their property.—Fortunately, however, the wind ſoon abated.—But it took a contrary direction—inſtead of the oppoſite ſide of Bow ſtreet, the inhabitants of Hart-ſtreet were then threatened with deſtruction.—By this change of the wind the ſhip public houſe, the corner of Hart ſtreet, in Bow-ſtreet, was ſaved, notwithſtanding the fire raged with the greateſt violence on both ſides of it:—by the extraordinary exertions of the firemen, the Bath Hotel, on the other ſide of the Theatre, in Hart-ſtreet, was alſo ſaved.—But the blaze ruſhed across Hart ſtreet, the effect of which was, that there were ſix houſes in that ſtreet moſt actionally injured, although not totally deſtroyed.—The premiſes of Meſſrs. Hankins and Wilſher, coach-makers in Long-Acre, were alſo partially damaged. —But of all the damage which the furniture and other property of all the ſurrounding neighborhood ſuſtained, by their confuſed and haſty removal, as well as by the rapine of the miſcreants, who took advantage of their diſtreſſed ſituation, it is impoſſible to tender any account.

From the extent and hollow nature of the building, and immenſe quantity of oiled canvas, the flames formed an upright column riſing to a tremendous height in the atmoſphere, and ſending off ſparks that ſpread a ſhower of fire all around. The flames ſtill increaſed; and one of the Phoenix Engines, with rather too much daring, was introduced within the Theatre, with the hope that it could play with the greater effect. It moſt unfortunately happened, however, that the roof and an inſide wall fell in, with ſuch a ſudden craſh as to bury the Engine and the men beneath the ruins. It was ſome conſiderable length of time before the rubbiſh could be ſo far removed as to dig out the unhappy ſufferers. It was then found that two men belonging to the Phœnix (Higgleworth and Kilby) were totally deprived of life; Seyers, another belonging to the ſame office, was taken to Middleſex Hoſpital in a moſt dangerous ſtate, and is ſaid to have ſince died. Several poor labouring men who were employed in aſſiſting the firemen, were alſo dug out of the ruins; ſome of them dead and others in a moſt dreadful mutilated ſtate, from which there is little proſpect of their recovery. In the paſſage by the ſide of the Theatre, in Bow-ſtreet, ſome volunteers and their friends were found partly burnt and partly ſcalded to death by the pouring down of the water from the burning walls. In St. Paul's Church, Covent Garden, there were eleven moſt ſhockingly mutilated human bodies.—Several perſons were alſo conveyed to Middleſex, Bartholomew's, and St. Thomas's Hoſpital, where the greater part of them are ſaid to have expired.

The loſs to the theatre itſelf is in fact irreparable. The property is inſured

In the Sun, for	£ 25,000
In the Phœnix, for	13,000
In the Royal Exchange, for	5,000
In the Union, for	5,000

which makes a total of 48,000l. It is ſaid that there are other inſurances nearly to the amount of 20,000l. more But among the property loſt there is beſides the uſual ſtock of ſcenery, an additional quantity for a new melo-drama, which was ſhortly to be brought forward: there were alſo a great quantity of pieces of muſic, of which, though the out-line might have been given in many books, a correct copy had not yet been taken; ſome dramatic productions, the property of the theatre, have alſo been forever loſt to the proprietors and to the public. Of the probable value of the Theatre a fair eſtimate may be taken when it is ſtated that Mr. J. Kemble, not long ſince, gave 25, 00l. for 1-6th ſhare.

Among other loſſes the Excellent Society which held their meetings at the top of the Theatre, called the Beef Steak Club, which have exiſted for many years, have loſt all their old ſtock of wines, which cannot be replaced, and worth at leaſt 1500l, beſides their ſideboard and table implements.

Superſtitious practices of the Ruſſians.

In ſpite of the civilized ſtate, in which we believe the Ruſſians are, it would be difficult to find a nation more ſuperſtitious; nor even Spain nor Portugal exceeds it. The Ruſſians eat no hares nor pigeons; the former becauſe they are reputed unclean, and the latter becauſe they are afraid of eating the Holy Ghoſt in the form of a dove. The ringing of bells is for them an object of veneration, and they aſcribe to it much efficacy for the ſaving of ſouls. On days of great ſolemnity, there are no eats able to bear the noiſe of the bells, which are put in motion at break of day, and are never ſuffered to reſt till ſun ſet. They reckon it devotion to go and ring them, and on this account the cords of the moſt part reach to cottages before the churches, conſtructed expreſsly for the convenience of benevolent ringers.

Like the Spaniards and Italians, the Ruſſians have ſmall chapels in their houſes, in honor of the ſaint for whom they have a peculiar devotion. This ſaint of predilection, is in Ruſſia known under the name of Bog, and no expence is grudged to decorate the chapel of a Bog, which is always furniſhed with the richeſt luminary, when the proprietor is in ability. This childiſhneſs is not the rage of the common people alone. Noblemen, people in office, monſteriers, all have their Bogs, and at the higheſt price. What will be ſcarcely believed, but we can atteſt, becauſe we have ſeen it, is that Mr. Scheremetoff, a member of the Directing Senate has a cabinet of Bogs worth more than a million of roubles. £222,222 : 4s Sterling.

Generally the Saint or Bog is painted on wood, and it is the diamonds, with which it is ſurrounded, that conſtitute its value. A Ruſſian entering an apartment ſalutes nobody before he has made three croſs ſigns before the Bog of the houſe. The Bogs moſt in faſhion are St. Nicholas, St. John the Baptiſt, St. Serguis and St. Alexander Neuſki; yet the other Saints are not without veneration, more or leſs, which is always ſettled by the pretended power attributed to them by ignorant ſuperſtition. For example, it is an opinion in this country that St. George watches parttcularly over the horned beaſts, and that St. Blaiſe is with God the patron and interpreter of other animals. Houſes have St. Anthony, and St. Jonas is for the fiſhes. St. Attipee is invoked for the toothach, St. Elias againſt thunder, and the Virgin for an infinite number of evils, and a very long patronage.

From the European Magazine for July 1808.

Degraded Europe, in thine awful ſtation,
Since pain ſpectators of the Tyrant's crimes!
By fraud deceived, or by your oppreſs'n,
No generous feelings warm'd your torpid breaſt.
ENGLAND alone oppoſ'd his fiery reign,
And now, THE YOUTH OF BRUNSWICK ſtands in Spain
Brightly it beams—a beacon to inſpire,
And warm ISRAEL'S Sons with Patriotic Fire!
Spaniards! the ſame flame throngh Europe ſpreads,
And ſtreak your featers on your Tyrant's head!
Glorious your ſtruggle! in a glorious cauſe!
For Wives, Religion, Liberty and Laws,
For all the ſoft endearments that can bleſs,
And tune to harmony the human mind!
Then ſhe ſhall reach your hearts, and arm each manly hand,
To drive the Gallic Bloodhounds from your land!
Your daughter's boſoms ſhall you to the field,
Where VICTORY ſhall triumph and where GLORY ſhall yield to Heroes in arms! purſue your glorious plan,
And vindicate the RIGHTS OF MAN.
Your ſhrieks proclaim'd by FRANCE, and wrote with blood
But thoſe like HANNAH to ſubſiſt on PUBLIC GOOD!
THE MIGHTY ISLAND, is your ſon no more,
But brings you ſuccour from far freedom's ſhore!
And, when the ſpoils your ſons have made her own,
The BLOOD HORSES DEMON trembles on his Throne
With daughter gorg'd, and borrow'd by default,
The BRAND OF INFAMIE ſhall torment him there!
And round, in fancy'd awful ſight, ſhall ſtand
All the pale victims of his worſ'ned hand!
Then ſhall the fury of his reign impart,
And ſcourge with Scorpions! Rings the tyrant's heart!
The muſt prophetic, long had ſeen his doom,
And ſtill preſerves his damnation mark!
Hear'n! a gloomy ſhades at night away,
And give the proſpect of a happier day!
GERMANY! ITALIANS! hear the glorious call,
ISRAELS' quarrel is this cauſe of all!
BRITANNIA points—and mark the noble view,
HER SPEAR TO FRANCE her OLIVE BRANCH to you!
Fight but as your birth'—and the bleſs you know,
The VIRTUOUS MONARCH is no more your foe.
Nations, ariſe! and to your vengeance join,
Redreſs your WRONGS OPPRESSION ſtrikes and,
Chaos from the earth his hate detached mass,
And end the hiſtory of your own diſgrace!
Then ſhall the groaning world from bondage free,
Talk all the ſweets of PEACE and LIBERTY!

Inſtance of Generoſity and Beneficence.—About 70 years ago, a perſon of the name of Honkins in the pariſh of Steventon Berkſhire, by will devised an eſtate of 200l. per ann. and his perſonal property, to a gentleman whom he had not ſeen for a long ſeries of years, but who formerly had been his ſchool-fellow; leaving two ſiſters, one of them living with him at the time of his death, in indigent circumſtances. Very lately this eſtate belonged to a gentleman of Woodſtock, who on being acquainted with the above circumſtances, ſought out the deſcendants of the unfortunate ſiſters; and on the 4th inſt. made over the eſtate to them, ſaying, "it was an unjuſt bequeſt, and he would have nothing to do with it."

Lateſt Intelligence.

LONDON, Saturday, 2 o'clock, afternoon, 24th September, 1808.

"'Tis believed that the Portugueſe have refuſed to permit the convention to be carried into effect—Accounts from the Baltic juſt received by the Gottenburgh mail—Sir James Saumarez was bombarding the Ruſſian fortifications, and the Ruſſian fleet had offered to capitulate on certain terms, which were refuſed—The bombardment was expected to re-commence."

Sept. 25.

It is underſtood that a war between Auſtria and France, if not actually commenced is on the eve of breaking out.—Bonaparte has left Paris for Hamburgh.

One day later from London.—The ſhip Union Iſland, captain Sibton, has arrived at Norfolk in 32 days from Liverpool, bringing papers of the 26th of September, one day later than before received. Extracts will be found below.

"The lateſt papers we have received, ſays the Norfolk Ledger, aſſert—that information had been received that day, that a general inſurrection has taken place in the Kingdom of Naples, and that all the French there had been maſſacred or driven out :—although this intelligence wants confirmation it is by no means improbable.

The war in the North of Europe has reſulted moſt gloriouſly for the gallant king of Sweden. The Ruſſians have been driven from Finland with immenſe loſs and diſgrace.—In addition to that loſs and diſgrace, and the loſs of his fleet in the Tagus, freſh mortifications were preparing for the Emperor Alexander. His fleet in the Baltic are no doubt, ere this, in poſſeſſion of the United Swediſh and Engliſh fleets, for which purpoſe fire ſhips had been ſent from England, and troops were going from Sweden to make a joint attack by ſea and land. The Emperor of Ruſſia will find himſelf, it is probable, leſs in troops 30,000, and in ſhips of the line, beſides 12 or 15 frigates—in ſeamen 8 or 10,000, and in reputation, his loſs is incalculable. Our readers will perceive that nothing is more unfounded than thoſe reports which ſtated a difference between Sweden and England.

On Thurſday the brig Fox, capt. Thorndike, arrived at Salem from Palermo, laſt from Algeſiras. Captain Thorndike brought Gibraltar papers to the 14th of September, but they contain no accounts of Spaniſh affairs which we have not already had.—When he was at Palermo, the news which excited the greateſt intereſt, was Murats being king of Naples. An Engliſh Ambaſſador had ſailed from thence to Conſtantinople ; and two bomb ſhips for Barcelona, to bombard the fortreſs that commands that place. At Algeſiras the people were highly animated in the patriotic cauſe, and the name of a Frenchman was highly deteſtable to them.—He heard of no other recent important event, but they repreſented that Joſeph Bonaparte was ſurrounded by the Spaniſh armies and would be obliged to ſurrender ; by which event they expected to recover their king. The French ſtill maintained the ſtrong fortreſs of Montjoi, which commands the city of Barcelona ; but the Spaniards expected to reduce them. Indeed they did not admit a doubt of ſucceſs in the complete expulſion of the French from the kingdom. They were anxious to know of the concurrence of the colonies in the patriots cauſe, that the mines of Mexico might contribute to its ſupport.—Salem Gazette.

Extract of a letter from an American merchant in London, dated 20th Sept. 1808, to his friend in Virginia, received by the Hope.

"Many well wiſhers to Great Britain during the laſt winter, thought there was ſome reaſon to apprehend an unfavorable reſult to the arduous ſtruggle for the ſafety and independence of the world, in which ſhe was engaged. All the trade to the Continent of Europe was at an end, and juſt at this gloomy moment the United States evinced towards her a diſpoſition more hoſtile than war itſelf. A non-intercourſe law and an embargo ſeemed likely to be more miſchievous to England than any other America could have adopted ; That ſuch was the intention and expectation of her government, was generally believed. This ſneaking policy has however, met its merited diſgrace.—Owing to an event, over which England had no controul, the honorable and glorious ſtruggle of the Spaniſh people, Engliſh commerce has again revived, and is extending itſelf immenſely in every direction.—While the American embargo is bringing ruin on herſelf, it has no other effect in England than to give energy to her trade ; and, excepting amongſt us, a few American merchants, America is as little ſpoken or thought of here as any one of the Weſt-India Iſlands !"

A number of individuals deeply impressed with a fenfe of the enormous wrongs which the natives of Africa have fuffered in their intercourfe with Europe; and actuated by a defire to impair thefe wrongs as well as by the general feelings of benevolence, have been anxious to adopt fuch meafures as may feem beft calculated to promote their civilization and happinefs. They have therefore formed themfelves into a Society for that purpofe, called the AFRICAN INSTITUTION, and they earneftly invite the aid of the humane and benevolent in every part of the kingdom in furtherance of their defign.

The abolition of the Slave Trade hitherto carried on by Great Britain, America, and Denmark, will in a confiderable degree remove the barrier which has fo long obftructed the natural courfe of focial improvement in Africa; and thus open a way for introducing the comforts and arts of a more civilized ftate of Society. The happieft effects may alfo be reafonably anticipated from diffufing ufeful knowledge, and exciting induftry among the inhabitants of Africa; and from obtaining and circulating throughout this country, more ample and authentic information concerning the agricultural and commercial faculties of that vaft Continent: and through the judicious profecution of fuch endeavors, it may be fairly hoped that, in the room of that traffic by which Africa has been fo long degraded, a legitimate and far more extended commerce will ultimately be eftablifhed, beneficial alike to the natives of Africa, and to the manufactures of Great Britain and Ireland. The prefent period, it may further be remarked, is eminently fitted for profecuting thefe benevolent defigns; fince the fufpenfion, during the war of that large fhare of the Slave Trade, which has commonly been carried on by France, Spain and Holland, will, when combined with the effect of the abolition Laws of Great Britain, America and Denmark, produce nearly the entire ceffation of that traffic, along a line of coaft extending between two and three thoufand miles in length and thereby afford a peculiarly favorable opportunity for giving a new direction to the induftry and commerce of Africa.

To prevent mifconception concerning the views and meafures of the African Inftitution, it may be proper to ftate, that it is the Society's fixed determination not to undertake any religious miffions, and not to engage in commercial fpeculations. The Society is aware that there already exift feveral moft refpectable inftitutions formed for the diffufion of Chriftianity, and means not to encroach on their province. It will be the duty and care of the Society in the firft inftance, to watch over the execution of the laws, recently enacted in this and other countries, for abolifhing the African Slave Trade; to endeavor to prevent the infraction of thofe laws, and from time to time to fuggeft any means by which they may be rendered more effectual to their object; and likewife to do all in their power, by communicating information and by other appropriate methods to promote the abolition of the African Slave Trade by foreign nations.

The further means which it is propofed to employ for the purpofe of promoting civilization and improvement in Africa are of the following kind.

1. To collect and diffufe throughout this country, accurate information, refpecting the natural production of Africa, and its general refpecting the agricultural and commercial capacities of the African continent, and the intellectual, moral, and the political condition of its inhabitants.

2. To promote the inftruction of the Africans in letters and in ufeful knowledge, and to cultivate a friendly connection with the natives of that Continent.

3. To endeavor to enlighten the minds of the Africans with refpect to their true intereft, and to diffufe information among them refpecting the means whereby they may improve the prefent opportunity of fubftituting a beneficial commerce in place of the Slave Trade.

4. To introduce among them fuch of the improvements and ufeful arts of Europe as are fuited to their condition.

5. To promote the cultivation of the African foil, not only by exciting and directing the induftry of the natives, but by furnifhing where it may appear advantageous to do fo, ufeful feed and plants, and implements of husbandry.

6. To introduce among the inhabitants, beneficial medical difcoveries.

7. To obtain a knowledge of the principal language of Africa, and as has already been found to be practicable, to reduce them to writing, with a view to facilitate the diffufion of information among the natives of that country.

8. To employ fuitable agents and eftablifh correfpondences as fhall appear advifable, and to encourage individual enterprife and exertion, in promoting any of the purpofes of inftitution.

The benefits to be conferred on Africa by the efforts of this Inftitution, muft fo obviously depend on the extent of the pecuniary funds which may be obtained, that it feems hardly neceffary to urge on thofe who feel the force of what has been already faid the importance of an early contribution. The Society has already engaged in meafures with a view to the improvement of Africa, to which their prefent funds are barely adequate, and without a very confiderable enlargement of them, they will be obliged to forego many opportunities of attempting to advance the happinefs and civilization of Africa.

Nor ought the benefits to be overlooked, which are likely to accrue to this country, fhould the Inftitution fucceed in their endeavors to develope the capabilities of the African Continent. Whilft France is employing her utmoft efforts to prevent our commerce from flowing into ancient channels, furely it becomes us to cherifh every reafonable profpect of finding our outlets. We have atchieved a great and fplendid act of national juftice in abolifhing the Slave Trade. Let our benevolence alfo interpofe to repair the ruin and degradation we have contributed to bring on Africa, and to teach her the ufe of her liberal faculties; and we may foon difcover, by our happy experience, that in exercifing juftice and benevolence towards her, whatever may be the apparent facrifices, we have only been laying a more folid foundation for the enlargement of our national profperity.

A fubfcription of fixty guineas or upwards at one time, conftitutes a hereditary Governor; of thirty guineas at one time a Governor for life; of three guineas annually, an annual Governor; of ten guineas at one time, a Member for life; of one guinea annually, an annual Member.

The Board of Directors is chofen from among the Governors.

*Thefe meafures are fully ftated in the Society's fecond report made on the 25th of March, 1803, and which has fince been printed.

With much unfeigned pleafure, I witneſs the beneficient difpofition, which in furtherance of that divine impulfe which led to the abolition of Slavery, is now to earneft in difleminating moral principles, and in the means of inculcating the neceffity, and promoting the advance of that ufeful and ornamental knowledge, which places ours at the head of all nations. From the Nobility and the many names of highly refpectable Commons, urging foremoft in this divinely implanted view, we may anticipate the rational completion, and happy refult of their well combined and appropriate intentions. The boundleſs fcope of creative wifdom extends equally to the proteeting care of its created Beings, whatever may be their complection or exterior colour. I can experience nothing more replete with genuine happineſs, than to ſee, ſo many exemplary worthies, animated with an unerring and Heaven beſtowed enthuſiaſm of diſcharging that Chriſtian duty of "do unto others, as you would they "ſhould do unto you." Added to the meek and many virtues, which our Miſſionaries are engrafting on the African mind, the progreſs of our handi-craft arts, and literature amongſt them is opening, and I feel the proſpective aſſurance of certainty, that their rapid advance, will richly compenſate the virtuous minds, connected with or intereſted in the truly worthy undertaking.

FROM THE EVENING POST.

Treatment of the Americans by the French.

It is high time America ſhould know how her citizens are treated in France. My blood boils in my veins as I liſten to the following recital which I here tranſcribe from the lips of the witneſſes themſelves.

The following ſtatement is given in plain, and not exaggerated terms, and in the full belief that it is every ſyllable ſtrictly true.

Captain Palmer, of this port (one of my informants) failed from the Canaries in the ſhip Mercury, bound to Hamburgh, in the Bay of Biſcay, was boarded by an Engliſh letter of marque, treated politely, and permitted to proceed. But on the 27th of January laſt, he was captured by a French privateer and carried into Dieppe, on the preſumption that he was bound to London. After the crew had been examined, in order to procure evidence of this fact, and it was found that none of them would ſwear to it, ſince they all knew the deſtination of the veſſel to be Hamburgh, three of them, namely, Adam Wiſe, the ſecond mate, Iſaac Robinſon, both Americans, and Henry Fatjotham, a German, were ſeized and put in a dungeon, and there they were kept for three days and three nights, and ſupplied with nothing but bread and water all that time, in order to compel them by this ſpecies of torture, to perjure themſelves, and ſwear what was wanted of them. While in this confinement, they were offered not only their liberty, if they would ſwear, but one third of the ſhip and cargo. They however, had the virtue to endure the puniſhment, to reſiſt the temptation, and deſpiſe every threat. At length they were ſet at liberty. Captain Palmer was however, detained from January to Auguſt, when his veſſel was condemned on another ground, viz: that ſhe had been viſited by an Engliſh letter of marque; this, it ſeems being a ground of condemnation that was not reſorted to till lately; but ſince it has been taken, condemnations have been going on inceſſantly, up to the time he ſailed from Havre, (Sept. 24th.) A fact of no ſmall moment is to be added to this narrative; which is, that during all the time Captain Palmer remained at Dieppe, waiting the fate of his ſhip, though he made repeated applications to our Ambaſſador General Armſtrong, by letter, that gentleman never gave himſelf the trouble to anſwer him; and when he at length went up to Paris to ſee him, he had no other ſatisfaction than to be told, coldly, that the General could not interfere, the ſhip muſt be condemned under the Milan Decree. Under this decree ſhe was condemned accordingly, and Captain Palmer was glad to make his eſcape and get home; where the only conſolation he has, and the only indemnity for being plundered by a foreign piratical government, is to be able to tell his ſad tale, and lament that he is an American Citizen.

Along with Capt. Palmer came Capt. Caleb Hopkins, of Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire, (my other informant) who ſailed from this port for Cherbourg, in the ſhip Victory, of Portſmouth, and having been captured and ſent into England, but not detained, proceeded to his original deſtination, where he arrived, landed and warehouſed his cargo ſome days before the Milan decree had been acted upon except in the caſe of the Horizon. Neverthleſs the veſſel and cargo were ſeized under the ſame decree and held for trial. Captain Hopkins then applied to the American Ambaſſador at Paris, by letters from Cherbourg, and moſt earneſtly beſought him to interfere, or leaſt to ſend him a paſſport, to come to Paris to attempt to recover his ſhip.

Armſtrong after preſerving a perfect ſilence for many months, at length on the 16th of July laſt, deigned to write him by his ſecretary, in which he told him it would be uſeleſs to come to Paris; and he had the cruelty to attempt to play off a ſcarcaſm on his wretched countryman, by ſaying in his letter, which now lies before me, "I would adviſe you that Paris is not on the rout to L'Orient, the only port in France from which you can ſail for America."

After the veſſel was condemned, he walked all the way from Cherbourg, to Paris, more than three hundred miles, to ſee Armſtrong perſonally, and get a paſſport home. Armſtrong aſked him if he had any money to pay for this paſſport? The poor man anſwered no, he was not the owner of a farthing;—Armſtrong then turned to his ſecretary, and cut the buſineſs ſhort by ordering the man a paſſport, whenever he procured 12 franks to pay the fees. Captain Hopkins then went into the ſtreet, and begged the money with which he went back and bought a License to return to his native country, penyleſs and ruined. And now, Captain Hopkins found himſelf ſtripped of every thing, and nearly reduced to the laſt deſperate recourſe of great numbers of his countrymen, that of engaging on board a French privateer, to ſave himſelf from ſtarving; but accident aſſiſted him, and he got a conveyance back in the Hope. Theſe facts I take from himſelf; to-morrow he ſets out for his cheerleſs home.

If Captain Smith, of Philadelphia, who formerly ſailed in the employ of John Jubel, commonly known by the name of the Algerine Smith, (from having been captured and impriſoned by the Algerines) has any friends living, wife, or children, I am prepared to give them ſome account of his fate.—This Captain Smith laſt ſailed in his own brig, the Hope, and was captured about two and twenty months ago; his brig was run aſhore, all his papers loſt or deſtroyed, and the monſters who took him made a formal report that he was an Engliſhman. Being deprived of his evideuce to ſhew that he was a citizen of the United States, he was hurried off to the living grave of Americans at Arras, whe he has remained ever ſince. I am authoriſed to ſtate, that ſeveral Americans who knew Capt. Smith, have been to Armſtrong and informed him that they knew him, that he was an American and belonged to Philadelphia, but Armſtrong only anſwered, let him ſend home for regular papers, and declined to give any aſſiſtance.

The laſt caſe I have to mention is that of Captain Waterman, of this port. Capt. Waterman left London on his homeward bound voyage, and was captured by a French privateer in the Bay of Biſcay. The privateersman called him up in the night to ſee his veſſel in a blaze, in hopes he might be provoked to utter ſome intemperate expreſſion againſt the French government, but he was on his guard. Having burnt his veſſel and deſtroyed all his papers; they made a report that he was an Engliſhman. It was in vain that he denied it, and for want of papers which had been taken from him, appealed to ſome of his crew for evidence. He and all his crew were immediately ordered to the infernal priſon at Arras. As they paſſed by Paris, ſeveral American capts. went out to ſee them, ſome of whom, particularly a Captain Nichols, of Portſmouth, N. H. recognized captain Waterman, as an old acquaintance, and went directly and made application to our Ambaſſador, for his relief. The application however, was in vain, Armſtrong declining any interference, and Captain Waterman and all his crew were immerced in the priſon, where they are at this moment pining in hopeleſs captivity.

The following facts are added to ſhew the indignity and contempt our countrymen are treated by the French.—Captain Palmer, it ſeems, omitted to take off his hat and make his obedicance to the French commiſſary; in the evening he found himſelf arreſted by two ſoldiers who clapped him in priſon, from which he was only releaſed the next morning by the intercoſence of the American Conſul, but with an aſſurance, that if he was ever guilty of ſuch inſolence again, imprisonment and chains ſhould be his portion till he was ſent out of the country.—The other fact is ſtill more degrading. On the march of Captain Waterman's crew to their gloomy dungeon, the mate of the ſhip not chuſing to walk through a pond of water that lay in his way, went round, for which he was ſeized by his drivers, and chained laſt to a criminal conducting to the ſame priſon, and thus made to walk through all the mud puddles in the road, to the great diverſion of the French guard.

A coachmaker advertiſes that he has on ſale, a number of Sociables for young ladies and gentlemen, and Sulkies for married folks.

Among the ſingular inſtitutions of France, is a Celtic Society eſtabliſhed at Paris; the oſtenſible object is to trace the radicles of the European languages.

How to make Borax.

Take two ounces of rock-alum; diſſolve it and mix it with two ounces of alkaline ſalt which is uſed in making of glaſs. Put all into a pewter pot, and ſet it a-doing, for the ſpace of half an hour, over a gentle fire; then take it out of the water. Take next two ounces of gem ſalt in powder, as much of alkaline ſalt, two ounces of virginboney, and one of cow milk. Mix all well together and ſet it in the ſun for three days. Then the Borax is done.

To whiten iron like ſilver.

Mix ammoniac ſalt's powder, and quick-lime, in cold water. Then make your iron red hot ſeveral times, and each time, plunge it in that diſſolution. It will turn as white as ſilver.

To extract Mercury from Lead.

Take lead and beat it into ſheets, or laminas, very fine. Put theſe in a glaſs veſſel with common ſalt, a double quantity of the lead. Cover this well, and bury it under ground for nine days at leaſt. After this time if you open the veſſel again, you will find your lead turned all into running mercury, or quick-ſilver, at the bottom of it.

To preſerve the brightneſs of arms.

Rub them with Hart's marrow. Or, elſe, diſſolve ſome allum powder with the ſtrongeſt vinegar you can find, (that of Montpellier which ſerves to make their famous verdigriſe is the ſtuff), and rub your arms with it. By theſe means they keep forever bright and ſhining.

PERISHED, ſome day laſt week, near the Etobicoke, MITCHEL and GILES; they were with one other, returning from Town in a ſmall boat. From what little can be gathered of the attending circumſtances, my impreſſion is, that an indulgence in ſtrong drink nearly bordering on excels, conduced to the melancholy cataſtrophe. They have left widows and families to regret their immature death, and who may probably become objects of public charity.

Latest Intelligence.

LONDON, Sept. 26.

The movement of the troops in every direction on the continent, continue to indicate the early renewal of war. Austria is on every side surrounded by hostile armies—a numerous Russian corps is assembled on the frontiers of Gallicia—two large French armies in Silesia menace Moravia: the Saxon contingent has approached the frontiers of Bohemia; the extensive camps at Erfmuth, Molsham, Bamberg, &c. and on the Rhine, threaten Austria. A large body of Bavarians is assembled in the Tyrol. It is to be joined by a corps of Italian troops, in the event of a war, to penetrate into Saltzburg—while the French army in the Friuli, augmented to nearly 50,000 men, threaten Siiria. Austria, in her part, has assumed an imposing attitude, and appears to view these formidable preparations without dismay. An extensive promotion has taken place in her Army—Nine Generals have been raised to the rank of Field Marshals, and nineteen officers to the rank of Generals.——The Austrian army has been divided into eight divisions, each commanded by a F. Marshal, under the command of the Archduke Charles, who is Generalissimo. Minister at war, and Supreme in all matters of Military jurisdiction. The eight corps of the army have been thus disposed of; 1st and 2d divisions, Archdukes John & Ferdinand; the 3d to Count Bellegarde; 4th Baron Sach; 5th Marquis Chasteler 6th Prince Schavarzenberg; 7th Prince Lichtenstein; 8th Count Kienau. Archduke Gustav commands under the Archduke J.

The duke of Sudermania has assumed the command of the Swedish army on the frontiers of Norway, and it is supposed, from this circumstance, that the expedition against that country will be renewed.

We understand that so late as the 9th. no detachments had been made from the British army. An expedition had been planned, we understand, to Spain, but it had been deemed expedient not to weaken our forces in Portugal, while a reasonable doubt[s] whether the conduct of the enemy had not impofed on us the necessity to renew hoftilities against him: or whether in the event of the fulfilment of the convention, our whole force might not be necessary to compel the Portuguese to its execution.——The Gazette of last night contains an order of the King in Council, for the reftoration of Portuguese property, which has been under detention since the French took poffeffion of that country.

A letter of the 10th inft. from Sicily ftates, that the Snapper schooner Lieut. Champion, was then off the Islands, and had given the following information to a pilot boat:—viz. "that the British and French troops had a very defperate action in the neighborhood of Corunna in which the British were victorious; that the French had loft 800 men killed in the action befides an immenfe number wounded, and a great number of officers made prifoners. A French general who had been taken prifoner in the affair, was then on board the Snapper, which had been 7 days on her paffage from Corunna."

An embassy is preparing at Paris, at the head of which Duroc is placed to compliment the Emperor of Austria on his marriage. Presents of considerable value, have been ordered by Bonaparte for the occasion.

In skirmishing, one of the English rifle-men, and a voltigeur of the French army, having levelled at each other both shots took effect. In this position desperately wounded, they contrived to screw on their bayonets, and crawling towards each other continued to fight until the Englishman drove his weapon through the body of his antagonist.

A London paper of Sept. 26, says, the Russian fleet block ded in Port Baltic, have offered to capitulate, on condition of the fleet being unrigged and not to serve again during the war, but that this, has been refused, and 5 ships of the line and 6 frigates demanded to be surrendered to the Allies, and the remainder to be placed in the above situation—and that the Allies had great expectations of capturing the whole fleet.

An article of highly gratifying intelligence is received from Bashire. The propositions and views of France, disclosed by a late Embassy to the King of Persia, has excited the utmost indignation in the Breast of that sovereign. The perfidious designs of his ally were clearly discerned.

The accounts of the approaching English Embassy, were joyfully received, and a personage of high rank and consideration had been dispatched to Bashire as memendar to gen. gen. Malcolm, and to attend the embassy to Sheraiz.

Extract of a letter from Halifax, dated November 10.

"A vessel arrived yesterday from Newfoundland. The Captain mentions the arrival of a brig there (belonging to Messrs. Tobias of Boston) from Cadiz—by which, verbal accounts were received to the last of September or last of October, at which time the Spaniards continued very successful, and orders were given by the correspondent in Cadiz to send the brig back again with a cargo as early as possible."

Baltimore, Nov. 15.

By the ship Spartan from the Havanna, we learn that a convoy of 50 sail of English were momentarily expected from London. The ship Comet, Dixey, from Philadelphia, arrived there in distress, pumps continually at work. She was condemned as unseaworthy. Her cargo sold for about 73,000 dollars. Without undergoing any material repairs, she took a cargo in for old Spain. She belongs to the celebrated Daniel Clarke of N. Orleans, to which she was ostensibly bound. R. Keene was generally reputed here the author of the spurious intercepted letter from Talleyrand to Mr. Jefferson. He was generally detested by the Americans at Havanna, and left there a day or two before the letter was made public, in an English Hermaphrodite brig. The St. Lorenzo ship of the line, is to join as convoy for Old Spain, about the 4th inst. Flour from 50 to 56 dollars per bbl. The ship Bayone and other ships from Charleston had just arrived. The Spaniards seem much exasperated against us on account of the embargo.

His Excellency the governor of the State of Maryland.

SIR.

The President of the United States by virtue of an act of Congress, passed on the 30th day of March, 1808, entitled, an act authorising a detachment from the Militia of the United States, has directed me to call upon the Executives of the several states and territories to take effectual measures to organize, arm and equip, according to law, and hold in readiness to march at a moment's warning, their respective proportions of one hundred thousand Militia, officers included. —This therefore is to require of your Excellency to take effectual measures for having Six Thousand and Sixty Three of the Militia of the State of Maryland, (being her quota,) detached and duly organized into Companies, Battalions, Regiments, Brigades and Divisions, within the shortest period that circumstances will permit, and as nearly as possible in the following proportions of Artillery, Cavalry, Riflemen and Infantry, viz. one twelfth artillery, one sixteenth Cavalry, and from one sixteenth to one twelfth Riflemen, and the residue Infantry, to be completely equipped with arms and accutremeuts fit for actual service, including blankets and knapsacks.

Any corps of volunteers who previous to orders may tender their services conformably to the second section of the aforesaid act, will be confidered a part of the quota of said State, according to their numbers: And your Excellency is also authorised to accept, as a part thereof, any Company or Companies of Volunteers, either of Artillery, Cavalry or Infantry, who may associate and offer themselves for the service, agreeable to an act of Congress, a copy of which is enclosed, passed on the 24th of February, 1807. And I have to request that your Excellency will endeavor to inspire as general a disposition as possible for voluntary offers of service, especially under the last mentioned act.—Permit me also to suggest the importance of having such general and field officers selected as can, in all respects be relied upon in case the detachments should be called into actual service.

When the detachments and organization shall have been completed, the respective corps will be exercised under the officers set over them, but will not remain embodied, or be considered in actual service, until by subsequent orders, they shall be directed to take the field.

Your Excellency will please to direct, that correct inspection returns be made of the respective corps, and that copies thereof be transmitted to this department as early as possible; separate returns should be made of those who have heretofore volunteered, and many volunteered under the aforesaid act.

I have to honor to be,
Very respectfully, your Excellency's Obt. Servant,
H. DEARBORN.

CHARLESTON Nov. 5

A gentleman who left Port au Priuce St. Domingo on the 1st. Oct. informs us that an internal warfare is still carried on in that Island, between the rival Chiefs Petion and Christophe; the former marched from Port au Prince about the middle of Sept. with an army of 8000 men, to attack St. Marks and Cape Francois which were still in the possession of the latter; the last accounts left Petion, within a few miles of St. Marks, and several partial engagements had taken place between them.

There were many British ships at the different ports in that Island; indeed the British have almost the exclusive trade. Provisions were very high, flour, pork, &c. selling at 60 or 70 dollars per barrel colonial produce was plenty. Nearly 2000 fugitive Frenchmen had arrived in the different ports of St. Domingo, from the Island of Cuba, since the change of affairs in that Island; but they have been ordered by Gen. Petion to leave St. Domingo. It was supposed that the French privateers driven from Cuba, will now rendezvous at Samana, on the east end of St. Domingo.

A miserable looking object, last evening, a sailor, applied at a book store in Pearl-street for charity, and pleaded the want of employment as his excuse for adopting such means of procuring subsistence——Shortly after he left the store, it was perceived that he had stolen a gentleman's great coat and umbrella; and no doubt, has laid upon them such an embargo, that neither will ever find an opportunity to escape from the illegal & unconstitutional restraints imposed on it.

Havanna, October 22.

Extract from the Mexico Gazette extra, of the 10th September, 1808.

"Proclamation passed on all the corners of this capital at seven in the morning, by order of government:

"Inhabitants of Mexico of all classes and conditions! Necessity is not subjected to ordinary laws; the people have seized the person of his excellency the Viceroy.—They have demanded his resignation for reasons of utility and general good. They have convoked last night to the Royal Assembly, the illustrious archbishop and other authorities, who have yielded to the urgency of the case, and separated the Viceroy from all authority,—it has fallen in conformity to the Royal order of the 5th of October, 1806, on the Field Marshal Don Pedro Caribay, until the provisional letters of instruction are opened. He is already in possession of the chief command; tranquil and without apprehension. You are at present commanded by a chief of known reputation, and with whose probity you are acquainted. Rely on the vigilance of the Royal Assembly and all will end in your benefit. Disturbances can only serve to divide our minds and create damages which may be irremediable. All this is assured by the abovementioned chief, ad interim, the Royal Council, and other authorities which occurred.

Published by command of the most Excellent Seignior, Regent of the Royal Council, the Illustrious Archbishop, &c.

From Mr. Canning to Mr. Pinckney,
Foreign Office, Sept. 23, 1808.

The undersigned his Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign affairs, had the honor to receive the official letter addressed to him by Mr. Pinckney, minister plenipotentiary of the United States, respecting the orders in Council issued by his majesty on the 7th January and 11th November, 1807.

He has laid the letter before the King, and he is commanded to assure Mr. Pinckney that, the answer to the proposal which Mr. Pinckney was instructed to bring forward, has been deferred only in the hope that the renewed applications which was understood to have been recently made by the government of the United States to that of France, might, in the new state of things which has arisen in Europe, have met with such a reception in France, as would have rendered the compliance of his Majesty with that proposal consistent as much with his majesty's own dignity and with the interests of his people, as it would have been with his Majesty's disposition towards the United States. Unhappily now there is now no longer any reason to believe that such a hope is likely to be realized; and the undersigned is therefore commanded to communicate to Mr. Pinckney the decision which, under the circumstances as they stand, his majesty feels himself compelled, however unwilling, to adopt.

The mitigated measures of retaliation announced by his majesty in the orders in council of the 7th January, and further extension of that measure (an extention in operation but not in principle) by the order in November, were founded (as has been already repeatedly avowed by his Majesty) on the "unquestionable right of his majesty to retort upon the enemy the evils of his own injustice"...and upon the consideration that "if third parties incidentally suffered by these retaliatory measures, they were to seek their redress from the power by whose original aggression that retaliation was occasioned."

His Majesty sees nothing in the embargo laid on by the President of the United States of America, which varies this original and simple state of the question.

If considered as a measure of impartial hostility against both belligerents, the embargo appears to his majesty to have been manifestly unjust, as according to every principle of justice, that redress ought to have been first sought from the party originating the wrong. And his majesty cannot consent to buy off that hostility which America ought not to have extended to him, at the expense of a concession made not to America but to France.

If, as it has more generally been represented by the government of the United States, the embargo is only to be considered as an innocent municipal regulation which affects none but the United States themselves, and with which no foreign state has any concern; viewed in this light, his majesty does not conceive that he has the right or the pretension to make any complaint of it, and he has made none. But in this light there appears not only no reciprocity, but no assignable relation, between the repeal by the United States of a measure of voluntary self restriction, and the surrender by his majesty of his right of retaliation against his enemies.

The government of the United States is not now to be informed that the Berlin decree of November 21, 1806, was the practical commencement of an attempt not merely to check or impair the prosperity of Great Britain, but utterly to annihilate her political existence, thro' the ruin of her commercial prosperity; that in this attempt almost all the powers of the European continent, have been compelled more or less to co-operate; and that the American embargo, though most assuredly not intended to that end (for America can have no real interest in the subversion of the British power, and her rulers are too enlightened to be led from any impulse against the real interests of their country) but by some unfortunate concurrence of circumstances, without any hostile intention, the American Embargo did come in aid of "the blockade of the European continent" precisely at the very moment when, if that blockade could have succeeded at all, this interposition of the American government would most effectually have contributed to its success.

To this universal combination, his majesty has opened a temperate but a determined retaliation upon the enemy, trusting that a firm resistance would defeat this project, but knowing that the smallest concession would infallibly encourage a perseverance in it.

The struggle has been reviewed by other powers not without an apprehension that it might be fatal to this country. The British government has not disguised from itself that the trial of such an experiment might be arduous and long; though it has never doubted of the final issue. But if that issue, such as the British government confidently anticipated, has providentially arrived much sooner than could have been hoped; if "the blockade of the continent," as it has been triumphantly styled by the enemy, is raised even before it has been well established; and if that system, of which extent and continuity were the vital principles, is broken up into fragments utterly harmless and contemptible; it is nevertheless important in the highest degree to the reputation of this country (a reputation which constitutes great part of her power) that this disappointment of the hopes of her enemies should not have been purchased by any concession; that not a doubt should remain to distant times of her determination and of her ability to have continued her resistance; and that no step which could even mistakenly be construed into concession should be taken on her part, while the smallest link of the confederacy remains undissolved; or while it can be a question whether the plan devised for her destruction has or has not either completely failed or been unequivocally abandoned.

These considerations compel his majesty to adhere to the principles on which the orders in council of the 7th January and the 11th November are founded, so long as France adheres to that system by which his Majesty's retaliatory measures were occasioned and justified.

It is not improbable indeed, that some alterations may be made in the orders in council, as they are at present framed; alterations calculated not to abate their spirit or impair their principle, but to adapt them more exactly to the different state of things which has fortunately grown up in Europe, and to combine all practicable relief to neutrals, with a more severe pressure upon the enemy.

But of alterations made with this view only, it would be uncandid to take any advantage in the present discussion; however, it might be hoped, that in their practical effect, they might prove beneficial to America, provided the operation of the embargo were not to prevent her from reaping that benefit.

It remains for the undersigned, to take notice of the last paragraph of Mr. Pinckney's letter. There cannot exist on the part of Mr. Pinckney, a stronger wish than that does on that of the undersigned, and of the British government, for the adjustment of all the differences subsisting between the two countries.

His majesty has no other disposition than to cultivate the most friendly intercourse with the United States.

The undersigned is persuaded, that Mr. Pinckney would be one of the last to imagine what is often idly asserted, that the depression of any other country is necessary or serviceable to the prosperity of this. The prosperity of America is essentially the prosperity of Great Britain, and the strength and power of Great Britain are not for herself only but for the world. When those adjustments shall take place, to which, though unfortunately, not practicable at this moment, not under the conditions prescribed by Mr. Pinckney, the undersigned, nevertheless, confidently looks forward, it will perhaps be no insecure pledge, for the continuance of the good understanding between the two countries, that they will have learnt duly to appreciate each other's friendship; and that it will not hereafter be imputed to Great Britain, either on the one hand that the envies American industry as prejudical to British commerce, or, on the other hand, that she is compelled to court an intercourse with America, as absolutely necessary to her own existence.

His majesty would not hesitate to contribute, in any manner his power, to restore to the commerce of the United States, its wonted activity; and if it were possible to make any sacrifice for the repeal of the embargo, without appearing to depreciate it as a measure of hostility, he would gladly have facilitated its removal as a measure of inconvenient retribution upon the American people.

The undersigned is commanded, in conclusion, to observe, that nothing is said in Mr. Pinckney's letter of, any intention to repeal the proclamation by which the ships of war of Great Britain are interdicted from all those rights of hospitality, in the United States, which are freely allowed to the ships of his Majesty's enemies.

The continuance of an interdiction which, under such circumstances, amounts so nearly to direct hostility, after the willingness professed, and the attempt made by his majesty, to remove the cause on which that measure had been originally founded, would afford but an inauspicious omen for the commencement of a system of mutual conciliation; and the omission of any notice of that measure in the proposal which Mr. Pinckney has been instructed to bring forward, would have been of itself a material defect in the overture of the President.

But the undersigned is commanded no further to dwell upon this subject than for the purpose of alluding Mr. Pinckney, that on this and every other point in discussion between the two governments, his majesty earnestly desires the restoration of a perfect good understanding, and that his majesty would decline no measure for the attainment of that object, which should be compatible with his own honor, and just rights, and with the interests of his people.

The undersigned requests Mr. Pinckney will accept the assurances of his consideration.

IMPORTANT REPORT.

The Committee to whom was referred so much of the message of the President of the United States on the 8th inst. as respects our relations with foreign powers.

REPORT IN PART....

AFTER a period of twenty-five years of Peace, hardly interrupted by tranfient hostilities, and of prosperity unparalleled in the history of nations; the United States are, for the first time, since the treaty which terminated the revolutionary war, placed in a situation equally difficult, critical and dangerous.

Those principles recognized by the civilized world under the name of law of nations, which heretofore controuled belligerent powers, regulated the duties of neutrals and protected their rights, are now avowedly disregarded or forgotten by Great Britain and France. Each of those two nations, captures or condemns all American vessels trading with her enemies or her enemies allies; and every European power having become a party in the contest, the whole of our commerce with Europe and European colonies, becomes liable to capture by either one or the other. If there be any nominal exception, it is made on a condition of tribute, which only adds insult to injury.

The only plea urged in justification of those hostilities, is that of retaliation grounded on a presumed acquiescence of the United States in previous aggressions by the other party. Waving a discussion of the correctness of the principle of retaliation, a principle doubtful in itself and altogether inadmissible to the extent to which it has been carried, and when operating on the neutral rather than on the enemy; it is altogether untrue that the United States have ever voluntarily acquiesced in the unlawful aggressions of either nation; omitted or delayed any measures calculated to obtain redress, or in any respect deviated from that impartiality to which they were bound by their neutrality. France has alluded to the violations of the national flag, and of the sovereignty of the United States, in the instances of Pierce's murder, of the outrage on the Chesapeake, and of the destruction of the Impetueux. The measures taken to obtain redress in those cases, are of public notoriety, and it may be added, that with the exception of the last, those aggressions on the sovereignty of the United States, did not affect their neutrality, and gave no right to France either of complaint or interference. Setting aside irregularities of less importance and equally chargeable to both nations, such as the British order of June 1803, and the decree of the French General Ferrand; the principal violations by England of the neutral rights of America, prior to the Berlin decree of November 1806, and which, if acquiesced in, might have given grounds of complaint to France, are the capture of American vessels laden with colonial produce, founded on a renewal of that pretended principle generally called "the rule of 1756;" the impressment of American seamen, compelled thereby to become the auxiliaries of England against France, & proclamation or nominal blockades, particularly that of the coast from the river Elbe to Brest, notified in May, 1806.

It will not be asserted, that the United States ever tamely acquiesced in either of those pretensions. It will not be denied, that with respect to the two first the most strenuous efforts were instantly made to procure an alteration of the British system.

It is true that to the nominal proclamation blockades of England, the United States, had opposed only spirited & repeated remonstrances, and that these had not always been successful. But the measures which a neutral nation may be supposed bound to take against the infractions of its neutrality, must always bear a certain proportion to the extent and nature of the injury received, and to the means of opposition. It cannot certainly be pretended, that a hasty refort to war should in every such instance have become the duty of America. Nor can the irregularities of England, in declaring in a ſtate of blockade, a certain extent of coaſt part of which was not, and the whole of which could not, even by her powerful navy be actually ingelled & blockaded, be plead in juſtification of that decree, by which France, without an efficient fleet, pretends to announce the blockade of the dominions a of power which has the incontestable command of the ſea, and before no port of which she can ſtation a ſingle veſſel. The Milan decree of 1807, can ſtill leſs ſerve for its defence on the ſuppoſed acquieſcence of the United States in the Britiſh orders of the preceding month, ſince thoſe orders, which have not certainly been acquieſced in, were not even known in America at the date of the decree. And it is proper here to add that the French have, particularly by the ſequeſtration of certain veſſels in their ports, and by burning our ſhips on the high ſeas, gone even beyond the tenor of their own extraordinary edicts.

The allegation of an acquieſcence in the Berlin decree of November 1806, by which alone the Britiſh government pretends to juſtify the orders of council, is equally unfounded. In the note on that ſubject, addreſſed on the 5th of December 1806, by the Britiſh government to the American miniſters; after having ſtated that "they could not believe that the enemy would ever ſeriouſly attempt to enforce ſuch a ſyſtem," the following declaration is expreſsly made, If however, the enemy ſhould carry theſe threats into execution, and if neutral nations, contrary to all expectation, ſhould acquieſce in ſuch uſurpation, his majeſty might probably be compelled, however reluctantly, to retaliate in his juſt defence,' &c. The two requiſites neceſſary in the opinion of Great Britain to juſtify retaliation, are ſtated to be; the execution of the decree and the acquieſcence of neutral nations. Yet within eight days after, and in the face of that declaration, without waiting for aſcertaining either of thoſe facts the retaliating Britiſh order of January 7th, 1807, was iſſued, which, contrary to the acknowledged law of nations, ſubjected to capture, veſſels of the United States ſailing from the ports of one belligerent to a port of another belligerent.

The United States in the mean while, and without delay, had taken the neceſſary ſteps to aſcertain the manner in which the French government intended to execute their decree.

That decree might be conſtrued merely as a municipal law forbidding the introduction of Britiſh merchandize, and the admiſſion of veſſels coming from England. Under that aſpect, and if confined to that object, the neutral rights of America were not affected by its operation.

A belligerent may, without any infraction of neutral rights, forbid the admiſſion into his ports of any veſſels coming from the ports of his enemy. And France had undoubtedly the ſame right to exclude from her dominions every ſpecies of Britiſh merchandize, which the united States have exerciſed in forbidding the importation of certain ſpecies. Great Britain might be injured by ſuch regulations: but America had no more right to complain of that part of the decree, than France had to object to the American non-Importation act. So far indeed as reſpects the United States, they were placed by the municipal part of the decree in the ſame ſituation, in relation to France, in which they are placed in their intercourſe with Great Britain by the permanent laws of that country. The French decree forbids American veſſels to import Britiſh merchandize into France. The Britiſh navigation act forbids American veſſels to import French merchandize into England. But that broad clauſe of the Berlin decree which declared the Britiſh iſlands in a ſtate of blockade, though not followed by regulations to that effect, ſtill threatened an intended operation on the high ſeas. This if carried into effect would be a flagrant violation of the neutral rights of the U. States, and as ſuch they would be bound to oppoſe it. The miniſter of the United States at Paris, immediately applied for explanation on that ſubject; and the French miniſter of marine on the 24th December, 1806, ſeven days before the date of the above mentioned note of the Britiſh government, ſtated in anſwer, that the decree made no alteration in the regulations then eſtabliſhed in France with regard to neutral navigation, or to the commercial convention of the United States with France: that the declaration of the Britiſh iſlands being in a ſtate of blockade did not change the exiſting French laws concerning maritime captures, and that American veſſels could not be taken at ſea for the mere reaſon of their being going to, or returning from an Engliſh port.

The execution of the decree comported for ſeveral months with thoſe explanations; ſeveral veſſels were arreſted for having introduced articles of Engliſh growth or manufacture, and among them ſome which being actually from England, and laden with Engliſh colonial produce, had entered with forged papers, as if coming from the U. States. But no alteration of the firſt conſtruction given by the French government took place until the month of September, 1807. The firſt condemnation of the principle that the decree ſubjected neutral veſſels to capture on the high ſeas, was that of the Horizon on the 10th october following. Prior to that time there could have been no acquieſcence in a decree infringing the neutral rights of the United States, becauſe till that time it was explained and what was more important, executed in ſuch manner as not to infringe thoſe rights, becauſe until then no ſuch infraction had taken place. The Miniſters of the United States at London, at the requeſt of the Britiſh miniſter, communicated to him on the 18th Oct. 1807, the ſubſtance of the explanations received, and of the manner in which the decree was executed. For they were at that time ignorant of the change which had taken place.

It was on the 18th of Sept. 1807, that a new conſtruction of the decree took place; an inſtruction having that day been tranſmitted to the council of prizes by the miniſter of juſtice, by which that court was informed, that French armed veſſels were authoriſed, under that decree, to ſeize without exception, in neutral veſſels, either Engliſh property, or merchandize of Engliſh growth or manufacture. An immediate explanation having been aſked from the French miniſter of foreign relations, he confirmed, in anſwer to the 7th October, 1807, the determination of his government to adopt that conſtruction. Its firſt application took place on the 10th of the ſame month, in the caſe of the Horizon, of which the miniſter of the United States was not informed until the month of November; and on the 12th of that month, he preſented a ſpirited remonſtrance againſt that infraction of the neutral rights of the United States. He had in the mean while, tranſmitted to America the inſtruction to the council of prizes of the 18th of September. This was on the of December; and a copy of the deciſion in the caſe of the Horizon, having at the ſame time reached government, the Preſident, aware of the conſequences which would follow that new ſtate of things, communicated immediately to congreſs the alteration of the French decree, and recommended the embargo, which was accordingly laid on the 22d of December, 1807; at which time it was well underſtood, in this country, that the Britiſh orders of council, of Nov. preceding, had iſſued, although they were not officially communicated to our government.

On the 11th of November preceding, the Britiſh orders of council had been iſſued, declaring that all the ports of France, of her allies, and of any other country at war with England, and all other ports of Europe, from which, although not at war with England, the Britiſh flag was excluded, ſhould thenceforth be conſidered as if the ſame were actually blockaded; that all trade in articles of the produce or manufacturer of the ſaid countries ſhould be deemed unlawful; and that every veſſel trading from or to the ſaid countries, together with all goods or merchandize on board, and alſo all articles of the produce or manufacture of the ſaid countries ſhould be liable to capture & condemnation.

Theſe orders cannot be defended on the ground of their being intended as retaliating on account of the Berlin decree as conſtrued, and uniformly executed from its date to the 18th September, 1807, its conſtruction and execution having till infringed no neutral rights.

For certainly the monſtrous doctrine will not be aſſerted even by the Britiſh government that neutral nations are bound to reſiſt not only the acts of belligerent powers which violate their rights, but alſo thoſe municipal regulations, which, however they may injure the enemy, are lawful, and do not affect the legitimate rights of the neutral. The only retaliation to be uſed in ſuch caſes, muſt be ſuch as will operate on the enemy without infringing the rights of the neutral. If ſolely intended as a retaliation on the Berlin decree, as executed prior to the month of September, the Britiſh orders of council ſhould have been confined to forbidding the introduction into Great Britain of French or enemy's merchandize, and the admiſſion into Britiſh ports of neutral veſſels coming from a French or other enemy's port. Indeed the ground of retaliation on account of any culpable acquieſcence of neutrals in decrees violating their rights, is abandoned by the very tenor of the orders; their operation being extended to thoſe countries from which the Britiſh flag was excluded, ſuch as Auſtria, although ſuch countries were neither at war with Great Britain, nor had paſſed any decree in any way affecting or connected with neutral rights.

Nor are the orders juſtifiable on the pretence of an acquieſcence on the part of the United States, in the French decree, as conſtrued and executed, ſubſequent to the 18th September, 1807, when it became an evident ſatisfaction of their rights, and ſuch as they were bound to oppoſe. For their miniſter at Paris, immediately made the neceſſary remonſtrances; and the orders iſſued not only without having aſcertained whether the United States would acquieſce in the injurious alteration of the French decree, but more than one month before that alteration was known in America. It may even be aſſerted that the alteration was not known in England when the orders of Council were iſſued; the inſtruction of the 18th September, 1807, which gave the new and injurious conſtruction, not having been promulgated in France and its firſt publication having been made in December, 1807, and by the American government itſelf.

"The British orders of council are, therefore, unjuſtifiable on the principle of retaliation, even giving to that principle all the latitude which has ever been avowedly contended for. They are in open violation of the ſolemn declaration made by the Britiſh miniſters in December, 1806, that retaliation on the part of Great Britain would depend on the execution of an unlawful decree, and on the acquieſcence of neutral nations in ſuch infraction of their rights. And they were alſo iſſued notwithſtanding the official communication made by the miniſters of the United States, that the French decree was conſtrued and executed ſo as not to infringe their neutral rights, and without any previous notice or intimation denying the correctneſs of that ſtatement.

The Berlin decree, as expounded and executed ſubſequent to the 18th September, 1807, and the Britiſh orders of council of the 11th November enſuing, are therefore, as they affect the United States, contemporatious aggreſſions of the belligerent powers, equally unprovoked and equally indefenſible on the preſumed ground of acquieſcence. Theſe, together with the Milan decree of December, 1807, which filled the meaſure, would on the principle of ſelf-defence, have juſtified immediate hoſtilities againſt both nations in the part of the U. States. They thought it more eligible in the firſt inſtance, by withdrawing their veſſels from the ocean, to avoid war, at leaſt for a ſeaſon, & at the ſame time, to ſnatch their immenſe and defenceleſs commerce from impending deſtruction.

Another appeal has in the mean time been made, under the authority veſted in the preſident for that purpoſe, to the juſtice and true intereſt of France and England.

The propoſitions made by the United States, and the arguments urged by their miniſters, are before Congreſs. By theſe, the very pretext of the illegal edicts was removed; and it is evident that a revocation, by either nation, on the ground on which it was aſked, either muſt have produced, what both pretended to have in view, a reſtoration of the freedom of commerce and of the acknowledged principles of the law of nations: or in caſe of a refuſal by the other belligerent, would have carried into effect, in the moſt efficient manner, the offenſible object of the edicts, and made the United States a party in the war againſt him. The effort has been ineffectual. The propoſitions have been actually rejected by one of the belligerent powers and remain unanſwered by the other. In this ſtate of things, what courſe ought the United States to purſue? Your committee can perceive no other alternative but abject and degrading ſubmiſſion; war with both nations; or a continuance and enforcement of the preſent ſuſpenſion of commerce.

The firſt cannot require any diſcuſſion. But the preſſure of the embargo is ſenſibly felt, and the calamities inſeparable from a ſtate of war, naturally create a wiſh that ſome middle courſe might be diſcovered, which ſhould avoid the evils of both, and not be inconſiſtent with national honor and independence. That illuſion muſt be diſſipated; and it is neceſſary that the people of the United States ſhould fully underſtand the ſituation in which they are placed,

"There is no other alternative but war with both nations, or a continuance of the preſent ſyſtem." For war with one of the belligerents only would be ſubmiſſion to the edicts and will of the other; and a repeal in whole or in part of the embargo muſt neceſſarily be war or ſubmiſſion.

A general repeal, without arming, would be ſubmiſſion to both nations.

A general repeal and arming of our merchant veſſels, would be war with both, and war of the worſt kind, ſuffering the enemies to plunder us without retaliating upon them.

A partial repeal muſt, from the ſituation of Europe, neceſſarily be actual ſubmiſſion to one of the aggreſſors, and war with the other.

The laſt poſition is the only one on which there can be any doubt; and it will be moſt fatisfactorily demonſtrated by ſelecting, among the ſeveral modifications which might be ſuggeſted that which only on firſt view appear the leaſt exceptionable; a propoſition to repeal the embargo, ſo far only as relates to thoſe powers which have not paſſed or do not execute any decrees injurious to the neutral rights of the United States.

It is ſaid that the adoption of that propoſition would reſtore our commerce with the native powers of Aſia and Africa, and with Spain Portugal, Sweden and Ruſſia. Let this be admitted, granted, although the preciſe line of conduct now purſued by moſt of thoſe nations in relation to the United States, is not correctly aſcertained. So far as relates to any advantages which would reſult from that meaſure, if confined to that offenſible object, it will be ſufficient to obſerve that the exports of articles of the domeſtic produce of the United States, during the year ending the 30th September, 1807, amounted to 48,700,000 dollars, and that the portion exported to the countries above enumerated, fell ſhort of ſeven millions: an amount too inconſiderable when compared with the bulk of our exports, to deſerve attention, even if a queſtion affecting the independence of the nation was to be decided by conſiderations of immediate profit.

But the true effect of the propoſition would be to open an indirect trade with Great Britain, which, through St. Bartholomew & Havanna, Lisbon, Cadiz or Gottenburgh, would receive, at prices reduced by glutted markets, and for want of competition, all the proviſions, naval ſtores, raw materials for her manufactures, and other articles which ſhe may want. Whether ſhe would be ſatisfied with that favorable ſtate of things, or whether, conſidering that boon as a pledge of unqualified ſubmiſſion, ſhe would according to the tenor of her orders, interrupt our ſcanty commerce with Ruſſia, and occaſionally under ſome new pretext, capture rather than purchaſe the cargoes intended for her own uſe, is equally uncertain and unimportant. Nor can it be doubted, that a meaſure which would ſupply excluſively one of the belligerents, would be war with the other. Conſidered merely as a queſtion of profit, it would be much more eligible at once to raiſe the embargo in relation to Great Britain, as we would then, at leaſt, have the advantage of a direct market with the conſumer. But the propoſition can only be defended on the ground that France is the only aggreſſor, and, that having no juſt reaſon to complain of England, it is our duty to ſubmit to her orders. On that inadmiſſible ſuppoſition, it would not only be more candid, but alſo a more dignified, as well as more advantageous courſe, openly to join England, and to make a war againſt France. The object would be clearly underſtood, an ally would be obtained, and the meannels of ſubmiſſion might be better palliated.

It appears unneceſſary to purſue any farther the examination of propoſitions, which the diſtinct ſituation of the United States will alone have ſuggeſted, and will prove more inadmiſſible, or impracticable as the ſubject is more thoroughly inveſtigated. The alternative is painful; it is between a continued ſuſpenſion of commerce and war with both England and France. But the choice muſt ultimately be made between the two; and it is important that we ſhould be prepared for either the one or the other.

The aggreſſions of England & France collectively, affecting almoſt the whole of our commerce, and perſiſted in notwithſtanding repeated remonſtrances, explanations and propoſitions the moſt can-did and unexceptionable, are to all intents and purpoſes a maritime war waged by both nations againſt the United States. It cannot be denied that the ultimate and only effective mode of reſiſting that warfare, if perſiſted in, is war. A permanent ſuſpenſion of commerce, after repeated and unavailing efforts to obtain peace, would not properly be reſiſtance; it would be withdrawing from the conteſt and abandoning our indiſputable right freely to navigate the ocean. The preſent unſettled ſtate of the world, the extraordinary ſituation in which the United States are placed, and the neceſſity if war be reſorted to, of making it at the ſame time againſt both nations, and theſe the two moſt powerful of the world, are the principal cauſes of heſitation. There would be none in reſorting to that remedy, however calamitous, if a ſelection could be made on any principle of juſtice, or without a ſacrifice of national independence.

On a queſtion of ſuch difficulty, involving the moſt important intereſts of the union, and which has not, perhaps until lately, been ſufficiently conſidered, Your Committee think the Houſe alone competent to pronounce a deciſive opinion: and they have in this report, confined themſelves to an expoſition of the ſubject, and to ſuch introductory reſolutions, as will be equally applicable to either alternative The firſt of theſe, being merely declaratory of a determination not to ſubmit to foreign aggreſſions, may perhaps at the firſt view, appear ſuperfluous. It is however, believed by the committee, that a pledge by the repreſentatives of the nation that they will not abandon its eſſential rights, will not at this critical moment be unacceptable. The miſapprehenſions, which ſeem to have exiſted, and the miſrepreſentations which have been circulated, reſpecting the ſtate of our Foreign relations, render alſo ſuch declaration expedient And it may not be uſeleſs that every foreign nation ſhould underſtand, that its aggreſſions never will be juſtified or encouraged by any deſcription of American citizen—For the queſtion for every citizen now is, whether he will rally round the Government of his choice, or enliſt under foreign banners? Whether he will be for his Country, or againſt his country

The committee reſpectfully ſubmitted the following Reſolutions:

1 Reſolved, That the United States cannot without a ſacrifice of their rights, honor and independence, ſubmit to the late edicts of Great Britain and France.

Reſolved, That it is expedient to prohibit, by Law, the admiſſion into the ports of the United States, of all public or private armed or unarmed ſhips or veſſels belonging to Great Britain or France or to any other of the belligerent powers, having in force orders or decrees violating the lawful commerce and neutral rights of the United States; and alſo the importation of any goods, wares or merchandize, the growth, produce or manufacture of the dominions of any of the ſaid powers, or imported from any place in the poſſeſſion of either.

Reſolved, That meaſures ought to be immediately taken for placing the Country in a more complete ſtate of defence.

Arrived at Norfolk, on Saturday evening, His Britannic Majesty's advice boat Rapid, in 31 days from Barbadoes. On the day the Rapid sailed, the British Ship Pompee, of 98 guns arrived at Barbadoes from England; the Neptune, of 98 guns sailed with the Pompee and was momentarily expected. From a proclamation published, notifying the blockade of the French Windward Islands, we believe the reduction of Martinique and Guadaloupe will be attempted by the British commanders. Norfolk Leg.

PROCLAMATION.

By the Honorable Sir A Cochrane, K.B. Rear Admiral of the Red, and Commander in Chief of His Majesty's ships and vessels employed or to be employed at Barbados and the Leeward Islands &c.

Whereas, an intimation has been received from the Right Honorable Viscount Castlereagh, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, that the strictest naval blockade is to be established over the Leeward French Carribean Island. — The several captains, commanders, and commanding officers under my orders, are hereby authorised and directed, to stop all neutral vessels destined for any of the Ports of the said Islands; and if they shall appear to be ignorant of the existence of the blockade, and have no enemy's property on board, the masters of such vessels shall be apprised thereof, and warned not to proceed to such Ports, and a notice written to that effect, upon one or more of the principal ship's papers.

But if a neutral vessel shall appear to have been so warned or to be otherwise informed of the existence of the blockade or to have sailed from her last clearing port, after it may be reasonably supposed that this nouification might have been made public there, and yet be found attempting, or intending to enter either of the ports of the said Islands, such vessel, shall be seized and be sent into port for legal adjudication.—Any with respect to neutral vessels coming out of the said ports having any colonial produce, goods or merchandize on board, appearing to have been after the knowledge of the Blockade—such vessels shall in like manner be seized and sent in for legal adjudication.

A Gentleman from St. Kitts informs that whilst there, the British brig of war Heureux, arrived there from a cruize having met with the Juliana from St. Vincents for New York upset, with all her sails &c. standing, and boats lashed on the deck, & no person living or dead on board. The Captain of the Heureux took out of her 40 puncheons of rum, her sails &c. and some clothes. The Officers of the Heureux with to give seven eights of the property to the real owners, if they exist.

The Juliana, had been captured by 3 French vessels of war, who took out the crew, part of the cargo, and scuttled her. The Capt. and crew have since arrived in the U. States.

We are informed that Don Juan Cagigal Governor of Cumana, has communicated to the Gov. of Trinidad under date of the 30th. October, the information received by a vessel from Cadiz, which left that place on the 18. September; that there had been a brilliant action between the French and Spaniards in which 8500 Manchegans, commanded by an Alcade, whose name is Don Joseph Lopez Membrillo, routed 5000 French, the greater part of whom they took prisoners, together with their Generals, artillery, &c. Phi Gaz

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

The British Packet Manchester, Capt. Davis, arrived at this port on Saturday evening from Falmouth and Halifax, with the October mail. She left Falmouth on the 12th of October. Mr. Ely, a passenger, has politely favored us with London papers to the 9th 12 days later than our advices by the ship Betsey.

We have copied from them as liberally as our limits would allow. Indeed excepting the taking of Burgos and Bilboa by the Spaniards, their uniform success, and the departure of Bonaparte from Paris, to arrange at Euforth the destinies of Europe with the autocrath of the north; there is very little in these papers either to inform or amuse.

The expedition under Sir David Baird consisting of 200 transports and 14,000 men, said to be destined for Corunna, sailed from Falmouth on the 9th October.

We learn from Halifax, N. S. that the expedition of 4000 men, which has been fitting out there for a secret service, was to sail about the 7th or 8th inst. for Bermuda, under Sir George Prevost, where their number was to be augmented to 5000, & from whence it was conjectured, they would proceed to attack the island of Martinique.

The legislative assembly of the province of Nova Scotia opened its session at Halifax on the 24th November. The Governor Sir George Prevost, in his address to both houses, congratulates them on the present favorable aspect of political affairs, in the success which has attended the British arms in cooperation with those of Spain, Portugal and Sweden, against the common enemy; and thus notices the American embargo:—

"When I turn my thoughts to the affairs of this Province, I find much to congratulate you upon. We can now fully estimate the effects of the embargo, so long and so vigorously imposed on the commerce of the United States, by the Government of that country. The manner in which their general restriction of trade has been carried into execution, leaves no doubt as to their real object intended to be accomplished by it. The project has totally failed, and the British nation has derived sufficient experience from the measure, to be convinced that her colonies and her commerce can be as little affected by the embargo of America, as by the blockading decree of France. New sources have been resorted to with success, to supply the deficiencies produced by so sudden an interruption of Commerce, and the vast increase of imports and exports of this Province proves, that the embargo is a measure well adapted to promote the true interest of His Majesty's North American colonies.

After some local information his excellency announces to the legislature that he shall shortly proceed on a particular foreign service; and that during his temporary absence, the civil administration of the province will devolve on the honorable Alexander Croke.—Mer. Adv.

London, Sept. 28.

The Gazette of last night contains a dispatch from Lord Collingwood, including a letter from Lord Cochrane, relative to the capture from the French of the fort of Mongal, an important post commanding a pass in the road from Barcelona to Gerona, which the enemy were then besieging. The military stores found in the castle were delivered to the Spanish militia, after which the castle was destroyed and rocks blown down into the roads, which in many places was rendered impassable to artillery, without a very heavy loss of men to the enemy, should they determine to repair them. About the same time, Captain Otway of the Mona-gue, landed at Rofas Bay a party of marines in aid of the Spanifh peafantry, and repulfed a French force which was on its march to attack that fortrefs.

The guards of the little king of Holland have lately committed feveral excefſes at Zieſt, which the king was unable to put a ſtop to, though in his rage he tore the uniform from off his back, and declared he never would put it on again unleſs they returned to ſubmiſſion.

Sept. 30. A Gottenburgh mail arrived at a late hour laſt night—its contents are very intereſting. The Swediſh papers contain the report of a propoſition made by Admiral Saumarez, for the ſurrender of the Ruſſian fleet in Baltic Port. It is ſaid, that the commanders of the combined ſquadron were willing to permit one half of the Ruſſian ſhips to return to Cronſtadt, on condition that the other half ſhould be given up. The Ruſſian Admiral objected to theſe terms. But offered to diſmantle his ſhips! This propoſal was, however in its turn rejected, & when the laſt accounts left the blockading fleet, a fire-ſhip was prepared to be ſent againſt the Ruſſians. The king of Sweden has written a letter to the Emperor of Ruſſia, on the cruelties committed by his troops in Finland, which points out, in a noble and dignified manner, the impolicy of his conduct. It is probable that this juſt reproof would reach his Imperial Majeſty when he was ſetting out to meet his worthy ally Bonaparte, for it appears that he was expected about the middle of the preſent month at Koningſburg on his way to Erfurth, where the interview is to take place!

Sir Hugh Dalrymple, we underſtand, has been recalled.—Sir Harry Burrard is to be left in the command of the troops in Portugal—and Sir John Moore is to command the troops going to Spain.

Some new reaſon occurs almoſt every day, for expecting important and favorable intelligence from Italy. A report of a ſerious inſurrection having broken out in that country, prevailed at Rotterdam on Saturday laſt.

Admiral Lord Gambier ſailed on Tueſday in the Caledonia, of 120 guns, to take the command of the Channel fleet.

Oct. 1. Reports have been long afloat, that the embargo in the French ports on American ſhips had been taken off; they are, however, ſtatly contradicted by the following letter, received by a reſpectable houſe in this city:

Paris, Sept. 19.—Our endeavours to get ſuch American ſhips as had actually loaded for America, releaſed from the exiſting embargo, have again completely failed: the anſwer we have got is nearly the ſame as the former one, viz. "That the Bayonne decree muſt remain in full force. That his Imperial and Royal Majeſty cannot allow any ſhips to depart from his dominions, till the reaſons have ceaſed to exiſt which cauſed the government of the United States to order an embargo on all its ſhipping: that any navigation now carried on by American veſſels, is in direct oppoſition to the wiſhes of the ſaid government, and can only be meant as trade, beneficial to the enemy of all neutral rights."—You will pleaſe to inform us, whether we ſhall unload your ſhip, &c. as no probability remains of accompliſhing your wiſhes of getting her home.

Oct. 3. Bonaparte has left Paris preceded by the crafty Talleyrand and Mr. Champigny, and accompanied by his ſeveral other miniſters, and ſome diſtinguiſhed general officers. His deſtination in the firſt inſtance, is avowedly for the ſtates of the Rheniſh Confederation; & under all the circumſtances of the caſe, there can be little doubt that his object is the arrangement of the operations of the approaching campaign in Germany.

Marſhal Lannes is ſaid to have arrived at Koningſburg, for the purpoſe of conducting the Emperor Alexander to Erfurth, in Saxony, where he was to have an interview with Napoleon. The object of this interview muſt unqueſtionably be the arrangement of ſome plan for the ſubjugation of Europe.

Bonaparte has iſſued two decrees, the one relating to the Greek Church in Dalmatia, the other to the increaſed rigorous prohibition of colonial produce in France. No article of this deſcription is allowed to be brought into France from Spain or Holland and veſſels ſo freighted which ſhall enter the rivers Elbe Wezer, and Jade, are ordered to be ſeized and confiſcated. The members of the confederation of the Rhine are ſtated to have been ſubſidized by Bonaparte to provide 100,000 men for France at a ſpecified price. They are, for the preſent to be employed in the interior of France, where in all probability, the tyrant is fearful of truſting the French troops among the diſcontented multitudes of his ſubjects.

Private letters ſtate, that the Ruſſian Admiral in Port Baltic has offered to ſurrender his fleet to Admiral Saumarez upon the ſame conditions as thoſe granted to the fleet in the Tagus; and that the latter has written home for inſtructions how to act.

The two Mr. Freres, who are appointed Miniſter Plenipotentiary and Secretary to the Supreme Government of Spain, ſet out this day, to fulfil their miſſion. They will be accompanied by the gallant Marquis De la Romana.——They take with them one million of dollars for the uſe of the patriots.

The Genoa gazette, of the 30th ult. ſtates, that Napoleon has demanded that the Auſtrian ports in the Adriatic may be ſhut againſt American veſſels.

The German papers again name Bernadotte as Bonaparte's intended King of Portugal, and Berthier as Murat's ſucceſſor in the Grand Duchy of Berg.

Erfurth, the place affixed in the Gottenburg mail for the approaching interview between Bonaparte and the Emperor of Ruſſia, is a fortified town in lower Saxony. There Alexander will be as much in the power of the Corſican as in the power and centre of France.

Oct. 6. We ſtop the preſs to inſert the following, received by a mail juſt arrived.

"Koningſburg, Sept. 16.

On Saturday or Monday next the Emperor Alexander with his Brother Conſtantine and their mutual friend Caulincourt, are expected here on their way to Erfurth, where they are to have a meeting with Napoleon.—Conſtantine, it is ſaid, goes thither with very ill will, but the Emperor inſiſted on it.

The diploma ic concerns of the French at Peterſburgh will, in the mean time be managed by the Chevalier de Bray, the Bavarian miniſter at city.

The Emperor of Auſtria has alſo received through Duroc, who was ſent to Vienna, for that purpoſe, an invitation to be of the party; but it is thought that he will decline it.

Sir Arthur Welleſley and General Ferguſon have both arrived in England from the Britiſh army in Portugal.

It appears by the letters received from London that credit is reviving in that city. The government paper which had lately been at a diſcount of 40, is now only at 20—Exchange on London 58 a 8.

The patriots of Spain having ſucceeded in concentrating a conſiderable force without giving to the enemy any opportunity of attacking them in detail, have begun their operations againſt the enemy's quarters. In ſeveral ſkirmiſhes the Spaniards have had the advantage; but the principal affair that has taken place was on the 20th, at Bilboa, of which the patriots have again obtained poſſeſſion, after a very ſevere action in which the enemy was defeated with great loſs. The conquerors were received with great joy by the inhabitants, who immediately, proclaimed Ferdinand VII. "There ſeems great reaſon to hope from the ſituation of the two armies, that the French will be either obliged to abandon their poſitions, or to fight under great diſadvantage.

A curious circumſtance is mentioned in an article from Cadiz. Gen. Dupont with his ſtaff, who has embarked for France, are ſtated to have been captured by the Engliſh and carried into Gibraltar. Admiral Roſily, who commanded the French fleet at Cadiz, is alſo ſtated to have been captured in the ſame manner, and carried into Malta.

The Auſtrian Conſul at Carthagena was employed by order of his court in collecting the Spaniſh manifeſtoes, accounts of battles, &c. for the purpoſe of ſending to Vienna to be compared with the French ſtatements.

Large bodies of troops continued to paſs through Madrid for the main army.

There are a variety of ſtatements in the Dutch papers reſpecting Bonaparte's journey to Germany. According to one report, he is to return to Bayonne by the 20th of this month, to take the army acting againſt Spain. In the mean time, a conſcription of all the principal performers on the Paris ſtage has been made for the amuſement of the Emperor of Ruſſia, during his ſtay in Germany.

The troops of the Rheniſh Confederation are all preſſing towards the French headquarters at Bayonne, at which place, according to the arrangements that have been made, they are expected to arrive by the 24th of this month.

It appears that Murat did arrive at Naples on the 6th ultimo, and immediately proceeded to exerciſe the ſovereignty which Napoleon's decree has conferred upon him. We believe however, he does not ſit very tranquilly upon his throne. He has to dread a deſcent of Britiſh troops in Calabria, which may perhaps encourage his ſubjects to treat him much in the ſame manner as the Spaniards have Joſ.

Letters of a recent date from Riga ſtate, that the Senate of that city had petitioned the Emperor Alexander not to quit his dominions for the purpoſe of being met by Bonaparte. The anſwer returned to this repreſentation, is ſaid to be, that "the Senate, would better conſult its duty by attending to thoſe concerns that were within the limits of its functions."

Oct. 8.

Lord William Bentinck is arrived at Madrid, on a ſpecial miſſion to the Supreme Junta.

A letter from an officer at Falmouth ſays, "we ſhall ſail probably as ſoon as the wind is fair. Corunna is reported to be the place of rendezvous.

"We are in number 12,413 men, and 850 horſes, excluſive of officers, ſtaff, and non commiſſioned officers.

"The artillery are provided with the new invented guns, to be carried by mules when the march of the army lies through the mountains. The Royal Waggon train are alſo to be completed with mules on their arrival.

"The tranſports are proviſioned for two months, from which ſome conjecture we are going into the Mediterranean, but from what has tranſpired through the Staff, it is to enable thoſe ſhips after our debarkation, to proceed to Portugal to receive the troops there and convey them to any other port where they may be wanted."

Our Portſmouth correſpondents inform us, that when the Ruſſian fleet from Liſbon, accompanied by our ſquadron, entered Portſmouth harbour, the latter did not hold their colours, as if the feelings of the Ruſſians ought not to be wounded by ſeeing our colours hoiſted on our ſhips and their own colours not hoiſted on board theirs! Our correſpondent however adds, that ſince they have been in the harbour, the Ruſſian Admiral's flag has been flying on board his ſhips. This ſight galled the ſeamen and the people of Portſmouth grievouſly.

Dutch papers have been received to the firſt inſt. They contain no intelligence of importance. Bonaparte arrived at Mentz on the 24th, and was to ſet out for Frankfort the next day.

The Grand Decide, which has done ſo much miſchief to our trade in the Weſt Indies, has been taken by the Conſtitution and ſent into Plymouth.

It is ſaid that the ſix battalions which were ſent to Halifax under Sir George Provoſt, in the then probable event of a rupture with America, have been ordered to be embarked immediately.

Sir Charles Briſbane is appointed Governor of St. Vincents.

Mr. Murphy, of the houſe of Gordon and Murphy, having made application to the Spaniſh Government to raiſe three native battalions, permiſſion was accordingly given, and that gentleman was appointed Colonel of the regiment.

Mr. Francis Mazarredo, of the houſe of Meſſrs. Gomez de la Forte, Perez, Mazarredo, and Co. made application to the Spaniſh Government to raiſe three native battalions. Permiſſion was accordingly given, and that gentleman was appointed Colonel of the regiment.

The latter is the nephew of Bonaparte's Advocate in Biſcay. Another nephew has been ſome time with the Spaniſh army.

LONDON, Sept. 27.

It is with pleaſure we ſee that ſucceſs has not abated the caution of the Spaniards, and that they are proceeding with a prudence equal to their patriotiſm. It is ſuppoſed that as ſoon as they had collected a ſufficient force, they would fall upon the French, and aſk an immediate and general Battle. This does not appear to be their intention. The French have no idea of deſcending from the Ebro to Madrid; the patriots are therefore not obliged to ſtation their main force between the enemy and the capital; they are occupied in watching and harraſſing the enemy's flank.

When Palafox advanced againſt the left flank of the French, Moncey with a ſtrong detachment wiſhed to bring him to battle, and thus to carry that ſyſtem into execution which the French have often found ſo advantageous to them, viz the ſyſtem of beating their enemies in detail. Had Moncey been able to have cut up Palafox's diviſion, the enemy would have been able to have borne with more preſſure againſt Gen. Blake, who hovered on their right flank. But Palafox, as cautious as he is brave, ſaw Moncey's intention, and defeated it; he drew off his troops, and fell back upon Saragoſſa.

Mean while Blake made a menacing movement upon the enemy's right, and M. was immediately recalled to the main body. The intelligence received by Government yeſterday ſtated that Blake, inſtead of purſuing his courſe to the Ebro, as ſeemed to be his original purpoſe, has directed his march into Biscay and Guipuſcoa; he will there cut off the enemy's retreat through thoſe provinces, and perhaps may be able to throw a powerful detachment between the Pyrenean frontiers and Pampeluna. The only route by which the enemy can retreat from the Ebro, is by the road that leads through Pampeluna to their frontier. That they will ſuſtain themſelves on the Ebro if they can, there is no doubt—but the ſeaſon is coming on when troops will with difficulty be able to paſs the Pyrenees to reinforce them.

Supplies of proviſions will not be eaſily obtained; the country all around them is hoſtile, on each flank, and in front, there will be a hoſtile army. Perhaps they will court a general battle, in the hope of being able to beat troops not yet accuſtomed to military habits, and of thereby throwing diſcouragement among the Spaniards. The Spaniards however, may have determined not to riſk a general battle, but to wait and ſee if ſcarcity and ſickneſs may not effect more againſt the enemy than the ſword.

The Ruſſian Admiral in the Baltic is ſaid, to have rejected the terms offered him by Sir James Saumarez, and the Swediſh Admiral. He hopes to ſuſtain himſelf in his preſent poſition. The Iſland of Eaſt Roga or Rogen commands the entrance or anchorage of the harbor, and it is ſtrongly fortified. It was ſaid that the Swedes had determined to ſend a ſtrong military Force to attack it. But it is poſſible that fire-ſhips may render ſuch an attack unneceſſary. Sir James Saumarez had determined to ſend ſeveral in as ſoon as the wind was favorable. The enemy have ſtruck yards & topmaſts, and they may do conſiderable execution in a ſquadron already panick-ſtruck and not manned by officers and men poſſeſſed of great naval ſcience or ſkill.

Letters to the 10th inſt. have been received from Hamburg. They ſtate, that ſince the laſt meſſage of the emperor of the French to his Council of State, Auſtria has redoubled her exertions to increaſe her military force.

From the New York Spectator of 3d Dec.

It is ſtated in the Boſton Palladium, that Mr. Armſtrong has written a letter in which he has this obſervation: "We have greatly overrated our means of coercion—the embargo is not felt here, and in England it is forgotten. I wiſh it was raiſed."—It is added that he adviſes the immediate arming of our Frigates for the protection of our commerce.

I have good grounds for informing you, that our Miniſter in England, has in a private letter given the Adminiſtration to underſtand very diſtinctly, that he does not deſpair of effecting an accommodation with England. I have equal grounds to add, that our miniſter in France, has written in the moſt diſcouraging manner as to any hope of better proſpects there. Ev. Poſt.

A letter from a merchant in Havanna, to another in Charleſton, dated 12th inſt. ſays —"If the accounts are true that a rupture has taken place between France and America, the veſſels of United States will continue to be well received here; but if they ſtill adhere to the embargo, there is a ſtrong party here determined to retaliate, by excluding them from this trade."

The ſhip Winifred, Captain Bonnell, arrived at Charleſton on the 21ſt inſtant, from Barracoa, with fifty-ſix French paſſengers, which Capt. B. was compelled to take on board by the Spaniſh Government—a cartel, having on board 175 Frenchmen, had ſailed a few days before Capt. B. for Samana, and two or three other veſſels bound to the United States had taken a number on board. All Frenchmen who would not take the oath of allegiance to Ferdinand VIIth, were ordered to leave the Iſland.

Extract of a letter from Burlington Nov. 18

"I attended the execution of Dean. There was a vaſt concourſe of people. He appeared perfectly indifferent to his fate, and ſhewed no ſigns of repentance or ſorrow for his crime. After he aſcended the ſtageing of the gallows he denied the crime of which he was charged, and made a ſhort harrangue. At the laſt moment he kicked his hat into his grave, and upon his coffin, and pulled the cap over his eyes himſelf. He died without ſtruggling, in a very ſhort time. He appeared entirely compoſed, from the time he was taken from the goal until he ſwung off. No body prayed with him on the Gallows."

Corunna, Oct 1.

Burgos was evacuated by the French on the 22d ult. after ſpiking their artillery and deſtroying their powder. The next operation will be directed againſt St. Sebaſtian's. From the ſituation of the two armies, a great battle muſt take place very ſoon, unleſs the French retire altogether. Reinforcements are pouring in upon Blake's army every day. To morrow we expect 30,000 troops, part of which are Engliſh, and ſome from Portugal, to arrive here on their way to join him. The Spaniſh troops under the Marquis De la Romana arrived off this harbor laſt night, and have been ordered for Santander and Bilboa.

WORK:—PRINTED BY CAMERON AND BANNATT, [illegible]

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render sincere thanks to those gentlemen in this town, who have favored me with their names and furnished me with money to carry into operation the benevolent design for which the Society sent me out.

I have agreed with a printer in this town for several thousand tracts of different kinds, to be struck off, as soon as possible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be sent to every person who has contributed to the work; that all may see to what use their money has been applied.—And the names of all those who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be sent to Boston and inserted in the PANOPLIST, a periodical work published monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel disposed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the ignorant, and to reform the vicious, they will be so kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the subscription paper, and the tokens of their liberality affixed to them. Those who subscribe a dollar will have their names inserted in the PANOPLIST with the sum annexed: and the smallest sum will be gratefully received by the public's sincere friend,

and humble servant,

THADDEUS OSGOOD.

Upper Canada.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Sheriffs, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the 28th day of this present month of December, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the fifteenth day of November last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the 28th day of this present month of December at which time in our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the second day of February next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, for the actual dispatch of public business, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada and there to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this 17th day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eight, and forty ninth of our Reign. PROCLAMATION
FOR PARDONING DESERTERS
FROM
His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from HIS REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

London

Such Deserters, if Able-bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force . .til the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY,

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER

CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

FROM ENGLAND—Very late.

A gentleman who came to town last evening from Salem, informed us of the arrival there of the schooner Mohawk, of this port, in 28 days from Liverpool, and favored us with letters and papers from England to the 28th October, inclusive.

London, October 24.

PACIFIC OVERTURES.

A Russian and French messenger arrived from France on Friday morning, & returned on Sunday.

Nothing certain has yet transpired either with respect to the dispatches to or the reply returned by our government.—We have heard that the former are very short—that they consist of two letters dated from Erfurth, and addressed from M. de Champagny, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, and M. de Romanzow, the Russian Minister, to his Excellency George Canning, Esq.—that the two letters are in substance the same, stating, that his Majesty the emperor of all the Russias and his Majesty the emperor of the French, being equally animated with a desire to put an end to the calamities of war, he (the minister for Foreign Affairs) has it in command from his Majesty to request his excellency to communicate to his Britannic Majesty that desire, and if his Britannic Majesty be influenced by a similar desire, to propose that plenipotentiaries shall be immediately named, to proceed to a place that may be fixed upon, to open a negociation with the plenipotentiaries of his Imperial Majesty for the conclusion of a Maritime Peace.

If we be correct, the answer that will be returned by his Majesty's Ministers to such a communication is obvious. The epithet applied by the enemy to the kind of peace which they are desirous of negociating, shews us at once, that they do not admit our interference in the affairs of the Continent. His Majesty's ministers we should conjecture would reply to M. de Champagny, and M. Romanzow, that his Britannic Majesty was animated by the desire which he had always expressed, and which was known to all Europe, to put an end to the calamities of war, whenever he could do so consistently with the security of his dominions, the honor of his crown, and the good faith he owed to his allies—that he was ready to enter into a negociation in concert with those allies, and that he would immediately communicate the overture that had been made to him to his Majesty the King of Sweden, to the Prince Regent of Portugal and to the Central & Supreme Junta in Spain, governing in the name of his Catholic Majesty Ferdinand VII.

Other persons have indulged very different conjectures. They imagine, we think contrary to all probability, that Bonaparte and his vassal emperer, have at once rushed in medios res—that they have proposed a basis in limine; and that they have began by mentioning terms. Some suppose, that in the overture to our government, we are told we have no right to assist the Spaniards; that it is a mere family quarrel, with which we as Islanders have nothing to do. This he would hardly do in the first instance. It will be found, we dare say, that the overture which has been made us, is of a loose and general nature, and does not touch upon terms or basis

The arrival of the messengers had some effect upon the funds—but it produced disgust instead of pleasure in the public mind. Every body viewed the overture as an insidious attempt to detach us from the Spanish and Portuguese patriots—there was not a man who did not say "is Bonaparte ready, as a preliminary to negociation, to withdraw his troops from Spain, and release Ferdinand the 7th—if he is not, let us have no negociation—let us hear of no peace—let us send back his messengers and his overtures with disdain and defiance."

It is probable that we shall have also the flag of truce over in a few days with the answer to the reply of our ministers.

Oct. 26—French troops under Marshal Ney, moved from Victoria, Sept. 27, and took possession of Bilboa—the Spaniards retreating.

It is said, the French attempted to retreat from Bilboa, Sept. 30, but found their retreat cut off.

There are frequent desertions from the French troops in Spain, of Italians, Germans and Portuguese.

Latest accounts from Spain.

We have received Spanish papers of the 19th. The Spaniards hope to cut off the divisions of the French army that entered Bilboa.—The general attack on the whole French line was intended for the 23d or 24th instant.

British troops under Generals Moore and Hope, marched from Lisbon, October 12, for Spain.

The troops under general Baird, 13,000, were lying at Corunna, Oct. 17, in transports

Ferdinand of Spain, his uncle and brother are at Paris.

Castaño is to command the centre of the great Spanish army.

The French still hold Barcelona—have declared it in a state of siege, proclaimed martial law; and issued one of their severe proclamations.

There are several accounts of internal battles between parties of Spaniards and French. They always ended in favor of the former.

Among the British officers in Spain, are 40 members of Parliament.

The French troops embarked at Lisbon on the 15th.

The transports conveying the French troops from Lisbon to France, met with severe gales soon after leaving port, which dispersed them. One was lost and 287 soldiers perished.

The French General Kellerman, at Portugal, at his request has been brought to England.

The late revolution in Turkey has prevented the British envoy, who was on his way, from proceeding to that capital.

An expedition is preparing at Sicily, under General Stuart, supposed against Naples.

Parliament is further prorogued to the 10th December.

Seven vessels bound to Heligoland, & 5 from the Baltic, have been taken by a French privateer.

The British squadron have quitted the blockade of the Russian fleet in Port Baltic, leaving three Swedish ships to watch it.

Report says, that 20 of our transports have driven on the French coast in a gale. We presume they were light vessels without troops.

The Windsor Castle packet arrived in England, October 19th, from New York and Halifax.

The Am. brig Adamant, Allen, and ship Ann, Bradford, of Alexandria have been sent into Malta.

Plymouth, October 23.

Arrived the Rowena from Corunna, which is said to have brought a report that the Spaniards have gained a victory over the French, and that Corunna has been illuminated in consequence.

20,000 British troops have marched into Spain, from Portugal. The rest there, are ordered to the Mediterranean.

The Hibernia, James, from Londonderry for Philadelphia, has been wrecked—no lives lost.

Colonial produce through Holland is prohibited in France.

A new decree has been passed in Holland to prevent intercourse with England.

An embargo has been laid at Petersburgh, where several American vessels are among the detained.

Our cruizers have just sent into Spain two valuable vessels from Guadaloupe.

American vessels are not permitted at Trieste during the American embargo—in consequence, six bound thither have stopped at Malta.

The American schooner, Betsey, Hooper, of Marblehead, from England to Spain, was captured by a French privateer, and re-captured, September 23d & arrived at Castro near Bilboa.

Santano, Sept 27.

Joseph Napoleon slept last night in a village near Durango, 16 leagues from Bilboa.

The Marquis de Portago, and Gen. Paul Ceuta [illegible] Blake, commanding our troops in this [illegible] army.

Madrid, October 1.

The Central Junta have ordered military succours to Catalonia, which is threatened with fresh forces from France.

The Junta have communicated their installations to the foreign Ministers at Madrid, and their respective courts, & to all the courts of Europe whose friendship they could expect. They have appointed Don Juan Ruiz Apodica, charge d'Affaires at the Court of London.

A military Junta has been formed composed of five Generals, viz. Castanos, Marquis de Castelar, Mahi, Sangra and the Marquis de Palacios.

The Supreme Junta have formally demanded King Ferdinand of Napoleon.

RIVADEO, Sept. 30.

Yesterday arrived two transports with Spanish troops, rescued from the French in the North of Europe.

PORTUGAL, Sept. 15.

The establishment of the Regency will immediately take place. The info of the French here in battles previous to the capitulation, are—killed 2226, wounded 1703; prisoners 2634; captivated 26303 infantry, 1093 cavalry, and 161 conductors, with 28.8 waggons, and 80 boxes of cartridges. The Regency was established September 28: one of the principals is to be the Archbishop of Oporto.

PARIS, Oct. 3.

The day before yesterday arrived here the 66th regiment in its march to Spain; this is the 18th regiment which is to proceed from the Grand Army to that country.

Within these last two days no intelligence of any moment has been received from Spain. General Lefebvre has arrived in Bayonne from that country, and is daily expected in this capital.

We feel nothing regarding American affairs in the late papers, but the reiteration of the remark, that there is no impediment to a DIRECT trade between the U. S. and Spain and Portugal, and their colonies.

The London papers say, that the French dispatches for America found on Mr. Young the Consul, directed the procuring of Joseph Bonaparte to be acknowledged in the Spanish colonies.

Imperial Interview. There has been a friendly meeting of the Emperors of Russia and France at Erfurth. They had continued there three weeks at the last dates. From thence the pacific overtures had been sent to England—and there the fate of Europe will be determined on.

Bonaparte was accompanied to Erfurth by Talleyrand and Champagny.

His Majesty the King of Westphalia, his Imperial Highness the Grand Duke Constantine, and the Duke and Hereditary Prince of Weimar, had arrived at Erfurth.

Armistice between the Swedes and Russians.

The propositions of Russia for an Armistice with the Swedes, is conjectured to be because she wants to employ her troops elsewhere.—A letter from Sweden says, there is nothing in this armistice to warrant a peace between Sweden and Russia. The Swedish King, dissatisfied with his guards, has broke 4000 of them. The Swedes have suffered much lately in Finland.

The armistice is said to be confined to military operations in the North of Finland. It is for an unlimited time, and it is dated Sept. 27, 1808.

There is no new indication of a hostile disposition on the part of Austria.

20,000 British troops having marched from Bilboa, and others preparing soon to sail from England, it is probable there soon will be forty thousand English soldiers in the Northern part of Spain, to act against the French.

No military event of great consequence has occurred to Spain for some time past. Gueita has been a little refractory, and is said to have resigned.

Castanos is said to be appointed Commander in Chief of the Spanish forces.

The French Emperor in an address to his soldiers, Sept. 29, says, "Let us carry our conquering Eagles to the Pillars of Hercules," (Gibraltar.)

The French troops in Spain had not been much reinforced. The Northern army is not estimated at more than 43,000. The Patriot army opposed to it includes double that number.

A Proclamation has been issued in Italy by Bonaparte, forbidding the people to speak about the affairs of Spain.

Sir Arthur Wellesley had returned to England.

Sir H. Dalrymple, is also in England.

About the middle of Sept. the Spanish Patriots took Bilboa from the French. It was defended by 5000—2000 of whom it was said was killed or wounded, and 3000 made prisoners. On the 27th, the French with a strong force retook it.

Cavellos has published under his name an account of the conduct of Napoleon towards the Royal Family of Spain.

The whole strength of the Spanish forces is stated to be as follows—General Castenos army is, however considered one half overated.

Central army, under Castenos,	65,000
Northern army under Blake, including ten thousand Asturians,	30,000
Arragonese, under Palafox,	15,000
Catalonians, under Lamas,	20,000
Reinforcements on their march from Sarragoffa, under Vives,	10,000
Ditto from Grenada, under Reding,	10,000
Ditto from Portugal, under Badojos,	14,000
The Marquis d. Romana's army,	9,000
The expedition under Sir D. Baird,	15,000
Sir John Moore's army, on its march for Spain,	20,000
The Remainder of the British in Portugal going to Catalonia,	15,000
Grand Total	243,000

The first division of Junot's Army had been dispersed by a tempest, with some loss, but were working up into Quiberon Bay. The second were expected to arrive at Rochelle about the 20th. It was reported that the third, on sailing from Lisbon, were ordered to return, by dispatches from England, to wait at Lisbon, until it was ascertained that the transports which carried the former were suffered to return from France.

Extract of a letter from Liverpool, dated October 28. 1808.

The affairs of the Spaniards go on well.—They will doubtless make good their independence. But Russia, it seems, will be more closely leagued with France, than before.

"We had intelligence a few days since from London of the arrival of a French and a Russian Messenger from the French court.—It is believed they were the bearers of some pacific propositions: but it is not expected any thing will arise out of it; as the proposals are understood to have been of an inadmissible nature.

From late LONDON PAPERS.

Division of Turkey—The following project for the dismemberment of European Turkey, is the substance of some observations made by the French General Lauriston, while speaking of the distracted state of the Ottoman Government, and is communicated by an Officer of L'Unite frigate, cruizing off Ragusa:—"France to have Albania, Greece, the Morea, and the Islands.—Russia, to retain its Conquests in Moldavia and Bessarabia.—Austria (as the event of her acceding to the Confederacy) to receive Bosnia, Servia, and Macedonia.—Austria ceding to France the Lutheran.—The Provinces of Wallachia, Bulgaria and Romania, to be erected into a separate Kingdom, for the Grand Duke Constantine, with the title of King of Thrace: Constantinople to be his Capital. The disposition of the Asiatic Provinces is not mentioned, and they are possibly reserved for some future arrangements.

New York, December 8.

Surrender of the City of St. Domingo to the British.—The Norfolk Ledger of the 6. inst. says" A gentleman who arrived here on Saturday, in 22 days from Cape Francois, informs us, that an express had arrived at the Cape, bringing information, that General Ferrand had surrendered the City of Saint Domingo to the British, and that it was garrisoned with troops of that Nation. Samana, it was also said, was taken by the Spaniards. The surrender of the former was a voluntary offer on the part of General Ferrand.—The war between Petion and Christophe, still raged with unabated fury. Christophe had been latterly successful, particularly in the destruction of Petion's naval force."

Captain Taylor of the ship Lydia, who arrived at Philadelphia on Sunday last from Liverpool, is the bearer of dispatches from our Minister at London, which were immediately forwarded to the seat of Government.

Most of our Readers recollect an explosion of gun powder some time since demolished a great part of Leyden. A gentleman from Holland informs us, that after that melancholy event, subscription papers were sent to various parts of Europe, for the relief of the sufferers. When the subscription money arrived at Holland, Louis Bonaparte, king of Holland, ordered the money to be paid into the royal coffers and left the suffering inhabitants for whose relief it was intended in beggary and wretchedness. Wash. Fed.

The Comet again, which at this period last year first made its appearance, seems again to have directed its erratick course towards our sphere. It bears due east and may be seen every evening soon after 7, somewhat below a straight line between the planet Jupiter, and the leading star in Ursa Minor, at about two thirds distant from the planet, and forming nearly an angled triangle with the Pleiades. The tail is not so perceptible as last year, but its nucleus is visible to the naked eye.

PROCLAMATION

FOR

PARDONING DESERTERS

FROM

His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Influence of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Durham	Such Deserters, if Able-bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,

JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER

CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next enfuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Poft in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

LONDON, July 30.

We find by a Gottenburgh Mail, that the disposition both of the people and the Government of Denmark towards this Country has undergone a material change.—By the judicious management of Sir James Saumarez, an agreement has been entered into with the Government of Denmark for the exchange of prisoners, which has already been carried into effect. The prisoners taken on board the Prince Christian are sent home to Denmark, and in return a number of British prisoners have been sent to Gottenburgh. They speak very highly of the reception they met with among the Danish, and state, that the French, though in the character of Allies, treat Holstein as a conquered country: the Danish arms and ensigns have been taken down every where, and those of France substituted in their room.

The following General orders have been issued to the Army.

HORSEGUARDS July 20.

"The Commander in Chief directs it to be notified, that in consequence of the state of preparation for immediate service, in which the whole army is at this present moment held, His Majesty has been graciously pleased to dispense with the QUEUES until further orders.

"His Royal Highness desires the Commanding Officers of the Regiments will take care that their men's hair is cut close to their necks in the neatest and most uniform manner, and that their heads are kept perfectly clean, by combing, brushing and frequently washing them; for the latter purpose, it is His Majesty's pleasure that a small sponge shall hereafter be added to each man's regimental necessaries.

"By order of his Royal Highness the Commander in Chief.

"HARRY CALVERT Adj. Gl."

From the North American.

The following is handed to us as the outlines of the new order of things, which is advocated at Washington, in the ministerial parties as the most eligible in the present crisis. We have subjoined a few notes, in very concise form, to them. If the gentleman should have misapprehended any of the conversation, by giving a character of general approbation to projects, which were confined to a few only of the addle-headed politicians, who figure in the management of our destinies, it must be attributed to any thing rather than the want of veracity in him. Generally we suppose his capacity for observation would not suffer him to fall into material errors.

SKETCH.

1. To prohibit intercourse by land and sea with all foreign powers.

2. To recall our ministers, consuls and agents from all foreign powers.

3. To prohibit the importation of goods and merchandize in foreign bottoms after the 1st day of May next. Vessels arriving after that date to be allowed to depart with their cargoes, but not to land.

4. To reduce the salary of the president to 5000 dollars per annum.

5. To abolish the department of state from the fourth of March.

6. To reduce the salary of the secretary of the treasury and reorganize this department, so as to abolish what is useless, and incorporate with it what is proper to be preserved of the department of state.

7. To abolish the office of the secretary of the navy, and align the duties of this office to the secretary of war, whose salary is to be reduced.

8. All officers of the custom-house to be discharged from and after the 4th day of March, except the collectors of the ports of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and Charleston. The navy officers of the United States are to execute the revenue laws in all the other ports, under those collectors.

9. The payment of dividends and interests to foreigners to be suspended from and after the 1st January next.

10. A land tax to be substituted for duties on commerce, to operate after the year 1809.

11. Internal navigation to be encouraged, so far as to render the intercourse between the states as secure as possible from the chance of interruption by a foreign force.

12. Domestic manufactures to be encouraged and patronized by the governments.

13. The per diem and other expences of congress to be [illegible].

We learn says the New York Gazette, from Havana, that the following property, belonging to the Viceroy of Mexico, has been seized by the Patriots: found in his palace 55,085 dollars in money; in plate and jewels, 250,000 dollars; silver in bars 40,000 dollars; in the mint 400,000 dollars; depofited in different houses 200,000 dollars, and 600,000 dollars had been depofited in several mines in the name of his wife.

Extract of a letter from a Spanish Gentleman officially employed in London, to his friend in Philadelphia, dated October 2nd, 1808.

We are anxious to know the fate of the general attack of the Patriots against the remains of the French army in Spain. General Blake has already arrived in Reynosa, to attack the flanks of the French in that poft—Genera' Caftanos was to attack the front of Burgos—Gen. Palafox with another army was to attack the other flank. The three armies amounted to above 90,000 of the beft regular troops; to this to be added 10,000 of the Marquis Romana's troops, and 10,000 English troops, which are now landing in Auftarias—the 20,000 Englifh troops which were in Lifbon, and 15,000 Spaniards, from Eftremadura, had marched to join the army at Burgos—in addition to these there were upwards of 35,000 well armed peafants.—The Emperor Napoleon is making every exertion to effect his purpofe in Spain, where he will be powerfully, and we hope fuccefsfully oppofed, though not without great bloodfhed.

A Non-Intercourse with England.

"Why should this take place? Only to make the people believe there is some cause for the frothy rage so long expressed by our rulers against England—and to hide their own disgrace and the real state of our affairs with France. The tyrant has again repeated that he will allow of no neutrality, and he decrees a non intercourse with us as long as we dare to avoid his demand of declaring war on England. Were there no blockade of France and Holland by the Orders in Council, enforced by ships of war, we should not dare go together of those countries under American colours, as we are seized under some of Bonaparte's decrees. In order therefore to avoid offending Bonaparte, by holding intercouse with England, while we can have none with France, our rulers will now declare a Non Intercouse, and execute it probably with all the rigour of Napoleon's tyranny.

Our embargo was a substitute for complying with the Tyrants commands to go to war with England; but it is probable that though he was satisfied, how this monster has found that our Embargo is treated with contempt by the British—it is required of us that we should declare war with England and the people not being ready for this, are to be brought one step nearer, and being deprived of all intercourse with England, it is vainly hoped by our Philosophic rulers, that this will satisfy France; but they are mistaken—and if the British Ministers are as much [illegible] and magnanimous as they have hitherto appeared, they will yet leave us to ourselves — to suffer the just punishment which our national folly and vice have inflicted."

FROM GUADALOUPE.

Capt. Fairchild of the brig Mary, arrived in 28 days at New York from Guadaloupe, informs, that the Alligator, from Baltimore to some other port in the States with 1700 Barrels of Flour and 300 do. lard and butter, had arrived at Guadaloupe, the crew having two days after leaving Baltimore, risen upon the Officers, and compelled them to take her to that pt. On going in, the Alligator loft her rudder and the crew all left her as soon as she arrived.—ib.

Method of extracting Opium from the Poppy and preparing it.

The tapping ought to commence directly after the flower leaves fall from the capsules.—If this should be neglected many days the stalk becomes dry, and no juice can be obtained. The best method of performing this part of the business, is first to cut off the stalk about half an inch below the capsule; then holding the capsule in one hand, take the milky juice that issues from it with the knife and put it upon an earthen plate: by this time the top of the incised stalk will hold another large drop, which should be removed as before; this done, the stalk should be again cut about an inch lower, when a similar drop of juice will issue; the cutting must be repeated as often as the milk rises upon the top. This juice must be exposed to the Sun when in a few hours the aqueous parts will evaporate, and the genuine opium be formed, much stronger and more pure than any imported.

FROM LONDON PAPERS.

Ceremony of depofing a Spanish King.—About the middle of the fifteenth Century, when the patience of the Caftilian people was exhaufted by the crimes and follies of the flagacious Henry IV. they in a body claimed to themselves and exercised the privilege of trying and passing sentence on their Sovereign. A fpacious theatre having been erected in the plain near Avila, an image representing the king seated on a throne clad in royal robes, with a crown on its head, a fceptre in its hand, and the fword of juftice by its fide——The accusation against the king was read, and the fentence of depofition was pronounced in presence of a numerous assembly. At the close of the firft article of the charge, the Archbifhop of Toledo advanced and tore the crown from the head of the image: at the close of the fecond, the Count De Placentia snatched the fword of juftice from its side; at the clofe of the third, the Comte De Beneventi wrefted the sceptre from its hand; at the clofe of the laft, Don Diego Lopez De Stuniga tumbled it headlong from the throne. At the same inftant Don Alfonzo, Henry's brother, was proclaimed King of Caftile and Leon in his ftead.

A celebrated Phyfician being rallied by a friend on the inefficacy of his pre[illegible]

As Lieut. Col. Lake gallantly led on the grenadiers of the 29th, his men dropped faft around him, and he thought it right to push on the light company, who had hitherto been in the rear, and had of courfe but slightly suffered; at this movement, perceiving the grenadiers murmur a little at this fuppofed preference, he immediately called out to them, with admirable prefence of mind, and in that dialect beft fuited to thofe he addreffed—"My brave comrades, let the light company lather these fellows, and we'll fhave them?"—Thefe were his laft words—for he had fcarcely fpoken, when he was ftruck in the breaft with a musket ball, and never fpoke more!

In the moment of Lieut. Col. Stuart's cheering his men to the attack, and juft after Col. Lake was wounded, he was ftruck by a muffet ball in the groin. Some of the 9th immediately turned back, and would have affifted, but he cried out—"I shall be taken care of, my lads—don't mind me; but push on, and support the brave 29th.

New-York, 8th Dec.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Canaan, (Con.) to his correfpondent in this city, dated 22d Nov 1808.

"A great number of mad foxes have been killed in this and the neighboring towns the Summer and fall paft. Many creatures of different kinds, fuppofed to have been bitten by them, have died of the fame diforder. One man was bit in the leg by a mad fox, who took medicine as an antidote against the virus of the Hydrophobia, but without effect. He was foon taken with the fymptoms of the difeafe and had many violent fits. Hundreds of people came to see him among which were fome Doctors. The Phyficians tried an experement, by giving him great quantities of poifon, sufficient to kill ten well men—but ftrange to tell it wholly removed the fits, and has effectually cured the man."

Remarks upon the Spanish Nation.

Perfons and Habits.—As to the perfons of the Spaniards the men are generally tall, but feldom corpulent; their complexion fwarthy; their hair black, with brifk fparkling eyes. Their women are generally fmall and ftender.

Genius and Temper.—The Spaniards are men of wit, and of an elevated genius, but very little improved by ftudy or converfation. They are admired, however, for their fecrecy, conftancy and patience in adverfity. They are flow in determination, but ufually conclude judicioufly at laft; true to their words, great enemies to lying, and extremely temperate in eating and drinking.

Taxes.—The taxes in Spain are, duties on goods imported and exported; on goods brought into Madrid, or carried from one province into another.

The rents of all the firft floor of all the houfes in Madrid.

A kind of land tax on the peafants, and thofe under the degree of nobility.

A kind of general excife on meat, drink, and other provifions.

Duties on cattle driven from north to south.

A tax on thofe who eat butter, cheefe, milk, or eggs, in Lent.

A tax on the clergy, who are exempt from military fervice.

A tax on the three military orders, for the King their grand-maffer.

A tax on timber.

But more money is raifed by the King's fifth of the treafure brought from America, than by all other means.

Nobility.—The nobility of Spain are ftyled Hidalgos, by which is to be underftood, that they are defcended from the ancient Gothic Chriftians, and not from the Moors; for Hidalgo is a gentleman. Their titles are Dukes, Marquiffes, Vifcounts, &c. The grandees are the moft noble, and fuffered to be covered before the King, who treats them as princes, ftyling them Illuftrious in his letters, and in fpeaking to them, or of them, they are ftyled their eminencies.

Military Orders.—The knights of the military orders of St. James, Calatrava, and Alcantara, are efteemed noblemen; they were inftituted in the long wars between the Chriftians and the Moors, as an encouragement to valour; and have large commanderies, or eftates annexed to their refpective orders, confifting chiefly of towns and territories recovered from the Moors. The maffers of thefe orders were once fo powerful, that they difputed the King's authority over them; whereupon the King procured thofe maffterfhips to be conferred on himfelf by the Pope, that they might no longer affume an independency of the ftate.

In the fine country they inhabit, there are fome fandy barren deferts in the southern parts, but their vallies in general are exceedingly fruitful, and their mountains are covered with trees and herbage to the tops. The country produces a very great variety of rich wines, oil & fruit such as Seville oranges, lemons, prunes, figs, almonds, pomegranates, chefnuts, & capers. It produces alfo filk, fine wool, flax, and cotton; and there are mines of quickfilver, ftecl, copper, lead, and allum. The ftcel of Toledo and Bilboa, is efteemed the beft in Europe.

The Spaniards, in return for the manufactures they export to America, receive gold, filver, cochineal, indigo, the cocoa, or chocolate nut, logs-wood, and other dying woods, fugar, tobacco, fnuff, and other produce of that part of the world, fupplying moft of the countries of Europe and Afia with the filver they bring from thence in their galleons.

PROCLAMATION
FOR PARDONING DESERTERS
FROM
His Majeſty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, Auguſt, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been repreſented to THE KING, That there are at this Time ſeveral DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majeſty's GRACIOUS PARDON and that ſuch an Inſtance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who ſhall ſurrender themſelves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whoſe Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Iſle of Wight.

Such Deſerters, if Able-bodied Men and fit for Service, ſhall be ſent to the Regiments from which they reſpectively deſerted, or be appointed to ſuch Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majeſty may be pleaſed to command; and, when ſo placed, ſhall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

Durham, Carliſle, Leeds, Manchester, Nottingham, Liſtwich, Shrewsbury, Birmingham, Hereford, Bedford, Maidſtone, Gloucester, Southampton, Wells, London

AND WHEREAS many of the ſaid Deſerters may have enliſted in other Regular Corps, and are now ſerving therein, His Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to extend to ſuch Deſerters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they ſhall continue to ſerve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themſelves to their reſpective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they ſhall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly ſerved.

The Magiſtrate to whom any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Regular Forces may ſurrender himſelf, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which ſuch Deſerter ſurrendered himſelf, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deſerter at the Head Quarters of the neareſt Military Poſt, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unleſs prevented by Sickneſs, to be certified by ſome Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magiſtrate's Certificate, or to be otherwiſe proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at ſuch Military Poſt.

And with a View to prevent as far as poſſible all Soldiers from Deſertion, after theſe His Majeſty's moſt gracious Intentions ſhall be made known, His Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter deſert, ſhall be tranſmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Pariſhes, to which the Deſerters belong; in order that their Names may be expoſed to public View in the Church, or ſuch other conſpicuous Place, as may render it impoſſible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought diſgrace by their Miſconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majeſty has further commanded, that this Meaſure ſhall be made public, that every Soldier may be aſſured, that the greateſt Exertions will be uſed for the Apprehenſion of any Man who may hereafter deſert, and that thoſe who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Riſk they incur of Detection, and of the moſt ſevere Puniſhment, if they do not immediately avail themſelves of the Pardon held out in this His Majeſty's moſt gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may deſert after theſe His Majeſty's gracious Intentions are made Public, ſhall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded againſt with the utmoſt Severity.

It is to be clearly underſtood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deſerters from the Army of Reſerve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Militia Forces.

By His Majeſty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION iſſued by His Majeſty's Orders in England and deſirous of affording to all Deſerters the opportunity of availing themſelves of His Majeſty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleaſed thus to make the ſame public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with reſpect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER

CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next inclusive, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

(Signed) JOHN SMALL, C. E. C.

New York, December 17.

On Wednesday morning last arrived in this city the schooner Experiment, Captain Fitch, in 49 days from the island of Trinidad in the South sea.—This vessel was dispatched by government to bring home from the uninhabited island of Trinidad, six unfortunate men, who were unavoidably left there by the ship Leonidas a whaler, belonging to New London.

They report that the island abounds with goats which rove about in flocks of from 100 to 200 each, hogs in great numbers, and among the rocks various kinds of fish. There is also tobacco, parsley, caster nuts, and mustard. It is very mountainous and rugged, and the only landing is on the east side, where there is a beach about one mile in length. Daily Adv.

It appears from the London general shipping list, that upwards of 70 ships sailed from England for the little island of Heligoland, near the Elbe, between the 25th of July and 8th of October last: which clearly shews, that Great Britain is carrying on a very considerable trade with the Continent, notwithstanding all Bonaparte's decrees and our embargo. Daily Gazette.

Mr. Smith, the printer of the National Intelligencer makes the following remarks on the relaxation of the British orders in council.

"The article, which intimates a relaxation of the orders of council, which we take from the morning Chronicle, if correct, would open a wide field for speculation; and would seem to shew, either that the British cabinet are opening the way to the eventful dereliction of a system which a hard necessity may compel them to abandon; or that they have thrown out this appearance of a disposition to yield to the just claims of neutrals, to paralize the measures expected from our government. This last conjecture acquires some weight from the fusion when this relaxation is alledged to have been made, which just followed it time, on a common calculation, to reach this Country on the opening of the session of Congress. But it is unnecessary further to speculate on what may have occurred. When substantiated, it will be time enough to analize its character, and to decide whether it evinces most of friendship or treachery."

A Barbadoes paper of Oct. 22, says, "Bonapatte approves the American embargo because he thinks it will tend to flatter Great Britain—Our government intends to make him feel that we have something stronger than an embargo to starve his islands——A chain of eighteen or twenty frigates have been drawn round Martinique and Guadaloupe, which are declared to be in a state of strict blockade; while victuallers are stationed near to supply them."

St. Domingo.—By an arrival in 19 days from from Jamaica, we are informed that the city of St. Domingo has surrendered to the British, and that the French Gen. Ferrand had shot himself.

The Emperor of Russia and King of Prussia lately met in the road near Koningsburgh;—they both alighted from their carriages, and tenderly embraced each other. "The ways of Monarchs are sometimes dark and mysterious"—London paper.

The Jews in France have been ordered by an Imperial decree, to assume and enregister family or surnames, on pain, in case of failure for three months, being banished France. They are prohibited taking names in the old Testament or that of towns. ib.

Letters received by the Favorite, arrived a few days since at this port from Cadiz announce that Don Pedro Cavallos has been appointed First Minister of State and Foreign Affairs, by the new Government of Spain, whose confidence, as well as that of the nation, he fully enjoys.

An article, dated Cadiz, October 9, says—"The post has just arrived with the agreeable news of the retreat of Joseph Bonaparte and his army to France, being entirely cut off by the patriots; and that he had no other alternative than to throw himself into Bilboa with 9,000 men, which will be attacked by a superior force, and there is no doubt he will be obliged to surrender at discretion."

Dec. 19.—From Jamaica.—Jamaica papers to the 26th November are arrived by the ship Meffenger, in 19 days from Kingston. These papers announce the capture of Sumana, a notorious rendezvous of French privateers. It is stated that, on the 10th of November, the frigates La Franchife, Aurora, and Daedalus, and the brigs Rein Deer and Pert anchored before the town; that more than 200 of the inhabitants fled to two french privateers, lying in the harbor, with the hope of escaping to St. Domingo; that they were soon captured by the British squadron; and that the fort of Sumana was then stormed & carried after a feeble resistance.

These papers also confirm the account of the death of Gen. Ferrand.

"It appears," they say, "that on the first attempt of the Spaniards to gain possession of the city of Santo Domingo, the General did not command the troops himself; but on the following day, when he understood that a large body of Spaniards from Porto Rico had landed and things began to wear a alarming aspect, he marched out at the head of a very fine corps, on whom he placed the most implicit confidence; but scarcely had he proceeded, when the major part of them, who were Spaniards, and who were exasperated at the outrages committed by the French against their country, deserted his ranks, and joined their countrymen. Enraged to find himself thus abandoned by his only hope, Gen. Ferrand terminated his existence by blowing out his brains with a pistol. Still, however, the Spaniards were unable to gain possession of the city, but retired to a strong post, in order to wait for reinforcements when the attack was to be renewed. On Tuesday last, off Cape Tiburon, the Hebe spoke a Spanish schooner which had been at Santo Domingo as a flag of truce from Cuba, and which confirmed the above."

Extract of a letter from Kingston, Jam. per ship Meffenger, dated Nov. 29.

An act has passed the Legislature imposing on the Island of Jamaica, laying the following duty on articles imported in American vessels:

Superfine Flour per	196 wt.	5s.
Ship Bread	100 do.	3s. 6d.
Corn Meal	196 do.	3s. 4d.
Rice	100 do.	1s. 8d.
Corn per Bushel		2s.
Boston Chips per	M	3s. 4d.
Cypress Shingles per	M	2s. 6d.
Staves and Heading	M	10s
Plank and Scantling	M	20s
Pitch Pine do.	M	15s
All other Lumber	M	15s
Hogshead Hoops	M	5s

Tonnage duty 6s. 8d. per ton.

Horses, neat Cattle, and all other articles not enumerated, 10 per cent. ad valorem, at the port of entry.

Duties on Fish the same as the bounty on that imported from British America, in their own vessels.

Dec. 20. Letters from Spain say, "that the greatest exertions are made in the different provinces in providing and training up of mules, and getting the necessary equipages for the new invented field-pieces from Woolwich; in the provinces of Asturias and Galicia there are 1300 of these fine animals purchased, and are now training for the purpose: the invention is highly admired by Gens. Blake and Caftanos; as it is of the most excellent use to small parties in a mountainous country, as the guns recoil across the backs of seven mules abreast, though only carried by one. An experiment was tried by Colonel Don Palandro, in Asturias, twenty one mules stood for it to be fired alternately for five hours; in all one hundred and fifty times."

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Admiralty Office, Oct. 25.

A copy of a letter from Vice-Admiral Lord Gollingwood, commander in chief of his Majesty's ships and vessels in the Mediterranean, to the Hon. W. W. Pole, dated on board the Ocean, off Cape Pallas, the 5th Sept. 1808.

Sir,

I enclose for the information of the lords commissioners of the Admiralty, two letters which I have received from captain Stewart, of his Majesty's ship Seahorse, dated the 6th and 8th of July, giving an account of his having fallen in with a large Turkish frigate and corvette on the evening of the 5th of the month, off the Island of Scopolo, and after a severe action, taken the Bedaie Zaffer, a Turkish frigate of 52 guns, and 500 men; the corvette was not seen in the morning.

The example which captain Stewart has given in this action of gallantry and skill, by which his own ship was so well preserved, while his opponent was ruined, must be highly gratifying to their lordships, and marks the high state of discipline of his ship, and the ability of the officers who conducted it.

I enclose also a letter from captain Hope, Hall, of his Majesty's sloop Kingfisher, of the 27th of June, informing me that he had captured a French letter of marque, the Hercule of 12 guns and 37 men, off the coast of Caramania.

I am, &c. COLLINGWOOD.

His Majesty's Ship Seahorse,
off Skyro, July 6, 1808.

My Lord,

I have the honor to inform your Lordship that yesterday evening we observed 2 Turkish men of war and a galley coming round the east end of the Island of Scopolo, towards which we immediately made sail. On coming near enough to make out that they were both single decked ships, I determined to bring them to action, having every confidence in the officers and crew of the ship. The action began at half past nine, the Turks going a little off the wind, under easy sail, and continually endeavoring to run up on board; indeed I early saw that their chief attention was directed to this object, and as the largest ship appeared of great force, and full of men, I kept this ship in a position not to be boarded. At ten o'clock observing a good opportunity of more particularly attacking the small ship to advantage, we dropped alongside of her, & after a quarter of an hour's hot fire, at half pistol shot distance, her fire having totally ceased, we left her in a state of the greatest distress and confusion, with her sails mostly down, and just before we had left her, the had partially blown up forward. By this time the large frigate, which, from having fallen a little to leeward, had not been able to assist her consort, had again got pretty close up, and the action between us soon recommenced; still to obliviate was the resistance of the Turks, that it was not till a quarter past one we rendered her a motionless wreck. As they now would neither answer nor fire, I conceived it most prudent, knowing the character of the people, to wait for day light to send on board her. At day light, observing her colors upon the stump of the mizen mast we poured a broadside into her stern, when she struck, and I had the pleasure to take possession of the Badere Zaffer, a very fine frigate of the largest dimensions, carrying 52 long brass guns, 24 pounders, on the main deck, except two, which are 42 pounders, & 12 pounders on the quarter deck and forecastle. She had a complement of 500 men, and was commanded by Scandelli Richue Ali, who, I am informed, was only prevented by his own people, from blowing her up.—Her loss in killed and wounded is prodigious, 165 killed, and 195 wounded; ours comparatively small, five killed, and ten wounded.—Our mizen mast fell soon after the action, which is the greatest injury we have sustained. The other ship was named the Aba Pesan, carrying 23 13 pounders and two mortars, commanded by capt. Darigadi Ali, with a complement of 230 men. I understand they took most of the men out of the galley before the action, and sent her away.

Having now my lord, given you the detail of this affair, there only remains the pleasant office of recommending to you the officers & ship company, who during a tedious night action, where much depended upon working the sails as well as the guns, behaved in a manner to command my utmost gratitude. The disparity of force, with the loss in the enemy's ships, will prove the greatness of their exertions, to which I shall add, that 80 men were absent from the ship. Mr. Downie the first Lieutenant, is an officer of merit, ability and experience, and I beg strongly to recommend him to your Lordship's protection for promotion. Mr. Lester master's mate, who has passed, is also very deserving of promotion. Thomas Hulls, gunners mate, and an excellent man, acted as gunner of his ship, and conduct, is very deserving of such a situation I have the honor to be, &c. &c.

JOHN STEWART.

The right hon. Lord Collingwood.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday December 17.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The unfinished bufiness of Yesterday was taken up; the question being on the following resolution;

Resolved, That it is expedient to prohibit, by law, the admission into the ports of the U. S. of all public or private, armed or unarmed ships or vessels belonging to Great Britain or France—or to any other of the belligerent powers, having in force orders or decrees violating the lawful commerce or neutral rights of the United States—and also the importation of any goods, wares or merchandize, (the growth, produce, or manufacture of the dominions of any of the said powers, or imported from any place in the possession of either.)

Mr Rhea (T.) supported the resolution in a speech of near two hours.

Mr. Taggart oppofed the resolution in a speech of two hours.

A division of the question was called for, taking the sense of the House on each member of the resolution separately.

Mr. Van Horne moved to amend the last clause of the resolution, by striking out the foregoing words between parentheses and adding the following:

"And that the Act laying an Embargo on all ships and vessels within the ports and harbours of the U. States and the several supplementary Acts thereto, shall be repealed," so far as to allow the ships and vessels, belonging to and wholly navigated by citizens of the U. S. to depart with their cargoes to places not in the possession of any of the said belligerent powers, and that the citizens of the U. S. be authorised to arm and equip their merchant vessels, and repel by force any assault or hostility which may be made or committed by any vessel belonging to any of the said powers, and may fubdue and capture the same, and may retake any vessel owned as aforesaid which may have been captured by any vessel belonging to any of the said powers."

Mr. D. R. Williams called for a division of Mr. Van Horne's amendment, taking the question first on striking out the words in the original resolution.

And the motion to strike out was negatived—Ayes 34.

Mr, Mumford called for the Yeas and Nays on the amendment.

Mr. Quincy called for a division of the amendment, so as to take the question first on the words in parenthesis.

Mr. Van Horne said, this was one way of making a man vote against his own motion; for he certainly must vote against the first clause if taken separately.

On the suggestion of Mr. G. W. Campbell that the gentleman would get at his object better by a distinct propofition at another time—

Mr. Van Horne withdrew his motion for the present.

Mr. Lewis moved to amend the original resolution by adding at the end of it the following:—and also, that the Act laying an embargo on all ships and vessels in the ports and harbour of the U. S. and the several acts supplementary thereto, be repealed."

The Speaker decided that the amendment was out of order, as it involved a subject already specially before a committee of the whole.

The question on the first clause of the resolution recurring—

Mr. Gardenier called for a division of it so as to take the question separate on the exclusion of English and French ships.

Mr. Gardenier spoke half an hour in explanation of his reasons for taking the question separately as to G. Britain and France.

The question was then taken on the following member of the resolution:

"Resolved, That it is expedient to prohibit, by law, the admission into the ports of the U. S. of all public or private, armed or unarmed ships or vessels belonging to Great Britain"—Yeas 92—Nays 28

Mr. Elliot called for a further division of the remainder of the first clause, so as to take it separately on excluding the vessels of France, and of other powers, having in force edicts affecting neutral commerce.

And the question was taken on the words "or France"—Yeas 97—Nays 24.

The question was then taken on the remainder of the first clause, to wit the words "or to any other belligerent powers having, in force orders or decrees violating the lawful commerce and neutral rights of the U. States"—Ayes 96—Nays 25.

The question then being on the second member of the resolution, as follows:

"And also the importation of any goods, wares or merchandize, the growth, produce or manufacture of the dominions of any of the said powers, or imported from any place in the possession of either."

Mr. Randolph spoke for about two hours and a half against it.

The question was then taken on the said clause, by Yeas and Nays—Yeas 82—Nays 36.

The question was then taken on the whole resolution and carried—Yeas 84.—Nays 3.

The question then being on the following resolution—

"Resolved, That measures ought to be immediately taken for placing the country in a more complete state of defence"

Mr. Dana observed that as this would probably be a nearly unanimous vote, he wished the full sense of the House to be expressed on it, and therefore called for the Yeas and Nays, which the House agreed to take.

But upon the suggestion of several members that taking them would forbid with be common content

The resolution was carried without a dissenting voice

The two instructive resolutions was referred to the committee who reported it, with instructions to bring in a bill or bills in conformance of it

The last resolution was referred to the committee on our military and naval establishments.

And then the House adjourned.

Proclamation by the President of the U. S.

"Whereas information has been received that sundry persons are combined, or combining and confederating together, on Lake Champlain and the country thereto adjacent for the purpose of forming insurrections, against the authority of the Laws of the United States, for oppoing the same, and obstructing their execution; and that such combinations are too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, or by the powers vested in the marshals by the laws of the U. States: Now therefore to the end that the authority of the Laws, may be maintained, and that those concerned directly or indirectly, in any insurrection or combination against the same, may be duly warned, I have issued this Proclamation, hereby commanding such insurgents, and all concerned in such combinations, instantly and without delay to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes: and I do hereby further require and command all officers, having authority, civil or military, and all other persons, civil or military, who shall be found within the vicinage of such insurrections or combinations, to be aiding & assisting, by all the means in their power, by force of arms or otherwise, to quell and subdue such insurrections or combinations, to seize upon all those therein concerned, who shall not, instantly and without delay, disperse and retire to their respective abodes; and to deliver them over to the civil authority of the place, to be proceeded against according to law.

In testimony whereof, I have caused &c.

TH: JEFFERSON

We are informed that the Governor of Delaware, when he received orders to draft the quota of 100,000 militia, replied that he should issue no orders on that subject, until he had been informed of the object for which the troops were to be raised. As commander in chief of the state force, he considered himself entitled to such information. He also wrote to one of the state representatives, Mr. White, to procure the information who accordingly made a motion in the Senate with a view of drawing forth the real object of the measure. The information, however, was not rendered, nor has any step been taken to organize the quota of Delaware.

Intelligence from LONDON.

The accounts via Havanna, of the capture of Joseph Bonaparte, are ordered extremely probable by advices from the city of Coruna, in Spain, was nominated for three successive nights; in consequence of a great victory said to be obtained by the Spanish patriots over the French—no doubt the capture of the multi-room king.

It appears also, that Marshal Ney, upon whom the French had rested their last hopes for reducing the irresistible Spaniards, was expected to surrender, with a fine army of 34,000 men.

From the circumstance of Napoleon making propositions to the Spanish Junta, it would appear as if he began to be apprehensive of the flame reaching France, where it is well known discontent is only kept down by military awe—and the Spanish troops were rapidly pressing on towards the French frontiers.

By a letter just received, I understand, that terrible damage has been sustained at Quebec, by the great rise of the River.

The person who sent me some verses, will excuse my not inserting them,—having declined publishing such things, but favors of a complimentary cast to individuals.

PROCLAMATION
FOR PARDONING DESERTERS
FROM
His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in HIS MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Durham	Such Deserters, if Able-bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.
Carlisle
Leeds
Manchester
Nottingham
Ipswich
Shrewsbury
Birmingham
Hereford
Bedford
Maidstone
Gloucester
Southampton
Wells
London

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the neareft Military Poft, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unleſs prevented by Sickneſs, to be certified by ſome Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magiſtrate's Certificate, or to be otherwiſe proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at ſuch Military Poſt.

And with a View to prevent as far as poſſible all Soldiers from Deſertion, after theſe His Majeſty's moſt gracious Intentions ſhall be made known, His Majeſty has been pleaſed to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter deſert, ſhall be tranſmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Pariſhes, to which the Deſerters belong; in order that their Names may be expoſed to public View in the Church, or ſuch other conſpicuous Place, as may render it impoſſible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought diſgrace by their Miſconduct, without immediate Deteſtion; and His Majeſty has further commanded, that this Meaſure ſhall be made public, that every Soldier may be aſſured, that the greateſt Exertions will be uſed for the Apprehenſion of any Man who may hereafter deſert, and that thoſe who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Riſk they incur of Detection, and of the moſt ſevere Puniſhment, if they do not immediately avail themſelves of the Pardon held out in this His Majeſty's moſt gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may deſert after theſe His Majeſty's gracious Intentions are made Public, ſhall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded againſt with the utmoſt Severity.

It is to be clearly underſtood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deſerters from the Army of Reſerve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Militia Forces.

By His Majeſty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION iſſued by His Majeſty's Orders in England and deſirous of affording to all Deſerters the opportunity of availing themſelves of His Majeſty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleaſed thus to make the ſame public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with reſpect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER-

CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Militia Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being ordered to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as are recited in His Majesty's Proclamation.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

London, Oct. 29.

The Rowena sloop of war is arrived at Plymouth from Corunna, and is said to have brought intelligence of importance respecting the French and Spanish armies, & it is rumoured that the latter have gained a victory over the former. The town of Corunna is stated to have been illuminated for three nights, but whether on account of a fresh victory, or on the arrival of the British troops, is not stated. Col. Hamilton is arrived on the Rowena.

The French again evacuated Bilboa on the 30th ult. after plundering the place, but were compelled to return the same day, on finding their retreat cut off by the different divisions of the Spanish army, by which they were outflanked. Gen. Blake being informed of this important fact, put his whole army in motion on the 31st, and when the accounts left Corunna, intelligence of the surrender of the 14,000 men, under the command of Marshal Ney, was hourly expected. Meanwhile Palafox, with 18000 men, was advancing to Estramadura, to secure that important maritime pass into France.

Latest from Spain.

MADRID, November 1.

The French attacked our line on the Ebro, by Logrono, Ladosa and Lerin.——The first two points very feebly, and the last Marshall Moncey charged with his entire division, which was well resisted by our riflemen of Cadiz, who suffered severely. General Blake disladged the enemy from Zarnoza with the loss of many men, two cannon, and one howitz; and pursued the enemy to Vergara, by which means the French are cut off from the road to Irun, and have no other road left through which to return to France but that of Roncesvalles. From the ardor of our troops, we may expect the most successful results.——Such is the impetuosity and their eagerness for battle, that the commanders are compelled continually to restrain them.

November 4.

The celebrated Valdes and Count de La-Quintanilla, have taken the Oath as Deputies to the Central Government, from the Kingdom of Leon.

The army of Gallicia attacked the French on the 26th October, and continued on the 27th, dislodging them from all their posts, and on the 28th, occupied Estrago. When the post set off, the French continued retreating, and our troops attacking.—The result we hope will be highly prosperous.

ARANJUEZ Nov 4.

General Palafox, a member of the Central Government, with the Count de Montijo, have gone to Catalonia to view the troops of that ground, and make the needful provisions for the defence of the country, and to repel the enemy.

The Central Government have decreed, that each Vice-reynais (Vice Governments) of which, there are five in South America, shall send two deputies to the Central Government.——They have also decreed that their President count Florida Blanca shall have in his service the Royal Body Guards.

The Marquis de la Romana, has set out from Villaca stin to Vittoria, to take command of the veterans who arrived from the Baltic, and landed at St. Anders, and are now to form a part of the army of General Blake.

VIC, (in Catalonia,) Oct. 28.

We are endeavouring to concentre the enemy, and in particular the line at Barcelona, from whence persons of the first credit assure us, that the general quarters are about to be removed to Sarria, one and a half miles from that place, to confine the French still more, who, it seems are much divided among themselves.

GERONA, October.

Last week 3000 Frenchmen, stationed at Rosellon, who were appointed to protect the Coast and go to Bayonne to reinforce the army of Navarre, with 600 Mountaineers, hand-cuffed and accompanied by a number of gens d'armes, on the second days journey from Perpignan, mutinied, curfing their Regenerator Bonaparte, and attributing to his ambition, their unhappiness, and misfortunes, and after killing some of the gen d'armes, liberated themselves.

Alboa, October 31.

The greatest activity still prevails in raising troops throughout this part of the Country. This village has just equipped 8 armed 800 infantry and 56 cavalry.—The troops of Grenada have passed through Murcia, on their way to the army.

LISBON, October 26.

The army now raising by the Regency of Portugal, for the defence of this country consists of 100 944 Infantry and 7128 Cavalry besides 4 Regiments of Artillery.

New York Spect.

LONDON, Nov. 4.

The general attack upon the French in Spain was expected to be made on the 22d or 23d of last month—and sanguine expectations are entertained of its success.—The enemy will have been previously reduced to great straits for want of provisions. The Spaniards describe around them a semi-circle—but they possess both the roads that lead from Spain to Bayonne, the road from Vittoria and the road from Pampeluna. They are behind the little river which takes its rise in Biscay and runs to Pampeluna.

Our troops that have been landed at Corunna are to proceed in divisions of 3000 men each to Burgos.——They will there join the troops that have marched from Lisbon under General Moore.—The remainder of our troops in Portugal were expected to embark immediately in the Tagus for the purpose of proceeding [illegible] mouth of the Ebro, from whence they will march to Barcelona. The Spanish troops which had so long been confined in the Tagus, and when their release embarked on board British transports, have proceeded to their destination.

The British squadron in the Tagus consisted of four sail of the line, [illegible] small vessels. It would shortly be [illegible] diminished, as Sir Charles Cotton had received orders to return to England.

By the Brutus, the editors of the New-York Gazette have received New Orleans papers to the 2d of December. The Gazette of the 23d of November, announces the arrival of Mr. Morales from Havana. He informs, says the Gazette, "the Supreme junta established in Mexico, had agreed to acknowledge the authority of the junta at Seville——to supply the wants of the other colonies, and to remit all the funds of the crown to Europe, for the support of the war against France. It had likewise promised to supply Cuba with flour, on the condition of shutting the ports of that island against the Americans," whose government was suspected of an undue attachment and partiality for France, which was manifested by the continuance of the embargo at a moment when the withholding supplies was a forerunner to a declaration of war. Sixteen vessels were loading with flour for Havana, at the date of the last advices from Vera Cruz."—ibid. Gaz.

A letter from St. Croix, dated Nov. 19th, says—"In a few weeks, Martinique will be added to the number of captured islands, as well as Guadaloupe, as it is supposed little opposition will be made.—A force of from 8 to 10,000 men goes against them."

Charleston, Dec. 19.

Yesterday arrived the Span. ship Maria, Raimonde Olevera, 24 days from Havana, in ballast, bound to Cadiz, with dispatches for the Spanish government, but having got on the Florida reef and carried away her rudder, has been compelled to put into this port to refit.

We learn by the arrival of the Spanish ship Maria that the day before the Jersey Havana news arrived that place, that the city of St. Domingo, had been taken by the Spaniards, and that Gen. Ferrand the French commandant had shot himself in consequence. It was also stated that the Governor of Cuba had received a message from Gen. Christopher, importing that he would surrender that part of the island which he possessed to the officers of Ferdinand VII. provided he should think proper to take possession of it in the name of that king.

YORK, 25th January, 1809.

Wednesday last being the anniversity of His Majesty's Birth Day, the Royal Standard was hoisted in the morning at the Garrison. At twelve o'clock a Royal Salute was fired by the Artillery, and followed by three rounds from the Infantry.

In the evening an elegant Ball and Supper was given at the Government House.—Dancing commenced at ten o'clock;—the Ball Room having been tastefully and elegantly fitted up and decorated for the occasion.—At half past one the Supper Room was thrown open, when the Company, amounting to about an hundred persons, partook of a very sumptuous Banquet, consisting of every delicacy, and a variety of the choicest Wines.

Dancing was resumed after Supper, and kept up with great spirit, till near eight o'clock in the morning—when the Company retired highly gratified with the splendour of the Entertainment and the condescending attention of the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs Gore.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at [illegible] Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER-

CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next enfuing, and with refpect to fuch perfons as are deftrous of atoning for their paft mifconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of thefe Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deferters are to furrender themfelves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Poft in either of the aforefaid Provinces, or to any Magiftrate near whom they may be; fuch Magiftrate being defired to furnifh them with a Certificate of the date of fuch furrender, which Certificate will be in force in the fame manner and under the fame limitations as directed in His Majefty's Proclamation.

From the Albany Gazette.

We this day enter on the publication of a State Document, fays the Editor of the London Times, of as much intereft and importance as any which has been offered to the public within our recollection. It is a circumftantial narrative, fupported by official documents, of the artifice, hypocrify, treachery and tyranny, by which Bonaparte drew the virtuous and unfortunate King Ferdinand from Madrid to Bayonne, compelled him to defcend from the throne of Spain, and renounce his right to it. The facts & proofs are furnifhed by Mr. Cevallos, who filled the important office of Minifter of Foreign Affairs, under the late and prefent King of Spain, accompanied the latter to Bayonne, and who notwithftanding the noble ftand he made there in fupport of the indefeafible rights of his maftar, was continued by Joleph Bonaparte in the fame appointment. With the subsequent conduct of this very able and honeft ftatesman, the public are already acquainted. He went in the train of the Ufurper to Madrid, from whence he made his efcape, to throw himfelf into the arms of his country, and give it the full benefit of his virtues and talents. When we were firft apprized that M. Cevallos had abandoned the traitorous fervice into which he was impreffed, we were perfuaded that the interval would not be long until he laid before his country and Europe the particulars of thefe extraordinary tranfactions. This he has done in one of the cleareft, moft luminous, as well as moft temperate expofitions it has ever fallen to our lot to peruse.

The following which we extract from a London paper, will give a general idea of its contents:— Don Cevallos, Secretary of State to Ferdinand VII. and who accompanied that unfortunate Monarch to Bayonne, has publifhed an expofition of the bafe and perfidious practices of the Emperor of the French in his ufurpation of the crown of Spain. This intereffting paper is accompanied with the moft authentic documents; which while they muft tend to increafe the enthufiasm of the Spanifh people, are well calculated to unite every legitimate monarch in a league againft the ruler of France. Its extreme length however, only enables us to prefent a fummary of its contents.

Don Cevallos, after noticing the fubfervicncy of Spain to the wifhes of France, owing to the weaknefs and treachery of the prince of peace; that fleets, armies & treafure had been facrificed to preferve the ruinous alliance of 1796; and that every thing was done to fatisfy the infatiable demands of the French government proceeds to obferve that, fcarcely had the treaty of Tilfit been concluded, in which the deftiny of the world feemed to be decided in Bonaparte's favor, when he turned his eyes towards the Weft, and refolved in his mind the ruin of Spain &c. "He began by demanding a refpectable body of our troops to exert their valour in remote regions, and for foreign intereffs. This he effected without difficulty, for the Spanifh Minifter regarding him as his patron, immediately placed a gallant and choſen force of 16,000 men at his difpofal. The enterprize of making him felf maſter of Spain however, was not fo eaſy as he imagined; it was neceſſary to find ſome pretext for the introduction of his troops into the kingdom, to excite diſcord and enmity in the Royal Family, that his deſigns might not be penetrated, and his forces experience any oppoſition, his ambaſſador at our Court (Beauharnois,) who is nearly related to the Imperial family, received inſtructions to that effect; and ſhortly after, the arreſt of the Prince of Aſturias, who had entered into a correſpondence with the emperor reſpecting a marriage with his niece, was the conſequence. At this period, a Treaty which had been concluded between his Catholic Majeſty and Bonaparte, at Fontainebleau, was brought to Spain. It was negociated by an agent of the favorite's without the participation, or even the knowledge of the Spaniſh Miniſtry.—The reſult of this Treaty was to render the Emperor maſter of Portugal with very little expence: to furniſh him a plauſible pretext for introducing his troops into the peninſula with the intent of ſubjugating it at a proper opportunity; and to put him in immediate poſſeſſion of Tuscany. In return for theſe conceſſions his Imperial Majeſty engaged to acknowledge C. IV. emperor of the two Americas, & to reward the treacherous favoriſe with the Algarves and Alentejo, in property and ſovereignty. The execution of the treaty was delayed, and the favoriſe became apprehenſive that he had loſt the imaginary protection of the Emperor. In truth, Bonaparte, aware that he had incurred the hatred of the Spaniſh people, and conceiving it no longer neceſſary to treat with confidence wiſhed to inſpire him with apprehenſions for his ſafety, that he might perſuade his Royal Maſter, over whom, he had an unbounded sway, to emigrate to S. America.—The plan ſucceeded, for even during the negociation of a marriage between the Prince of Aſturias and Bonapartes niece, French troops were marched into Spain; their Commanders took poſſeſſion by fraud and ſurprize, of the fortreſſes of Pampeluna, St. Sebaſtian, Figueras, and Barcelona; and then induſtriouſly propagated the belief that Bonaparte was favorable to the Heir apparent. The royal parents, as well as the favorite, were ſtruck with terror at this conduct of the Emperor, and new fears were artfully impreſſed upon them by French agents. 'At length; they determined to emigrate to Mexico; and this reſolution became known to the people by their preparations. The commotions of Aranjuiz, however, which on the 17th and 19th March burſt forth like a ſudden exploſion, prevented its execution; the favorite, who without the title of king, had exerciſed the functions of Royalty, was impriſoned, and the Royal Parents abdicated in favor of their ſon, who was proclaimed Sovereign under the title of Ferdinand VII. The Emperor was ignorant of theſe events; he imagined that the Royal Family had fled to the coaſt, and was preparing to embark; he ordered his army to advance to Madrid, and flattered himſelf he ſhould now poſſeſs without a ſtruggle a throne which had been thus haſtily vacated. The new Sovereign learning the advance of the French army, haſtened to communicate the voluntary abdication of his parents to the Emperor; he made every effort to procure the latter's recognition of his title; he was at length aſſured by his Imperial Majeſty's Envoy, Gen. Savary, that his maſter would viſit him at Madrid; that he was already diſpoſed in his favor; and that nothing would tend more to conciliate the Emperor than this mark of reſpect. The preſſing ſolicitations of the Duke of Berg, Savary, and others, added to the earneſt wiſhes of the King to make his people happy, and reſtore tranquility to the kingdom, at length induced him to quit Madrid, in the expectation of meeting the Emperor at Burgos—from thence he was perſuaded by Savary, who accompanied him, to advance to Vittoria, where ſome ſuſpicious movements of the Frh. troops led the courtiers to urge him to return. But Ferdinand had too much confidence in the faith of the French emperor—he paſſed the frontiers, and arrived at Bayonne. Duroc, on his arrival, came to invite the King to dine with his Imperial Majeſty, where his reception was flattering: what muſt then have been the feelings of Ferdinand, after his return to his reſidence, to be informed by Savary —the man who had drawn him from his capital with ſo many proteſtations of ſecurity, who had aſſured him of the recognition of his Imperial Majeſty—that Bonaparte had irrevocably decreed that the Bourbon dynaſty ſhould no longer reign in Spain, and that it ſhould be ſucceeded by his own! In the conference which ſucceeded between M. Champigny and Don Cevallos, the latter ſtrongly ſupported his Majeſty's rights, and any communication he might make while abſent from his kingdom, and in a ſtate of confinement, would be null and void, and would not be acknowledged by his people. The emperor, who over heard the conference, inſulted the Spaniſh miniſter, called him a traitor, and informed Ferdinand that he muſt nominate a more flexible negociator, and one who would be leſs ſuſceptible on the point of honor. In the laſt interview which the king had with his Imperial Majeſty, the latter ſaid, —"Prince, you have only to chuſe betwixt life or death." "Who can doubt (adds Don Cevallos) from this clear evidence, that the renunciation executed by Ferdinand VII. in favor of his auguſt father, and that which ſucceeded in favor of the Emperor, are abſolute nullities, & that the rights of the dynaſty of Bourbon are not in the leaſt prejudiced by it?'

French Friendſhip again.—The ſchooner John Clayton, from La Guira, with a cargo of 200,000 lbs. coffee, and 100 ceroons of Indigo belonging to Baltimore, has been ſeized at Leghorn, and it is expected will be condemned in conſequence of the Bayonne decree. We underſtand the caſe of this veſſel ſtands as follows:—the John ſailed from Baltimore for La Guira, by permiſſion, under the fourth ſupplementary embargo act; by ſome means or other ſhe found her way with her cargo to Leghorn, where it was vainly hoped ſhe might with liberty diſpoſe of her cargo. Unfortunately, however, the Bayonne Decree came into operation. This decree it will be recollected, was kindly intended by Bonaparte, to give effect to our embargo laws, and enacts, that as the American Government had abandoned the ocean, all veſſels ſailing under their flag ſhould be deemed good and lawful prize.—Phil. Gaz.

YORK, February 3, 1809.

This day His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the usual Formalities, opened the Seſſion of the Legiſlature, and was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houſes:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council,
And Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

It is a great ſatisfaction to me, at this important period to avail myſelf of the General Senſe of the Country; and I now meet you with a full confidence in your beſt Exertions to Frame ſuch Laws, as may further promote the Happineſs, the Proſperity, and the Security of this Province

The Truſt, with which you are now inveſted, is of the utmoſt importance to your Country; the proper diſcharge of that Truſt, will reflect the higheſt Honor on yourſelves.

Your general and local knowledge of this Province, will point out, what may be moſt conducive to its Proſperity, while the important ſituation in which you are now placed, enables you to avail yourſelves of that knowledge.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

I have directed as uſual, the Public Accounts to be laid before you, not doubting but that you will beſtow on them, the attention which they deſerve.

Arrangements with the Province of Lower Canada, with reſpect to Revenue, will terminate on the firſt day of March next, and the Legiſlature of that Province, have paſſed a Law conditionally to continue them, to the twenty fifth day of March, One thouſand eight hundred and eleven. It will be for you to conſider how far it may be expedient to concur with them in this meaſure.

Some alterations relative to the value of certain Gold Coins having been made during the laſt Seſſion of the Legiſlature of Lower Canada, which operate to the diſadvantage of this Province, it will not be unworthy of your attention to inveſtigate the propriety of giving them a correſponding value.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

The eventful times in which we live, demand our moſt ſerious attention,—While we contemplate with pleaſure and pride, the noble and ſucceſsful ſtand for liberty, and the intereſts of mankind, which Great Britain has made amidſt the awful conflicts of contending nations; we ought attentively to conſider our own ſituation and circumſtances. Hitherto we have enjoyed tranquility, plenty and peace; how long it may pleaſe the Supreme Ruler of Nations, thus to favor us, is wiſely concealed from our view. But under ſuch circumſtances it becomes us to prepare ourſelves to meet every event, and to evince by our zeal and loyalty, that we know the value of our Conſtitution, and are worthy the name of Britiſh Subjects.

In the evening the members of the Legiſlative Council, and of the Houſe of Aſſembly, the Officers of the Garriſon and ſeveral Gentlemen of the Town and neighbourhood, dined with his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor at the Government Houſe.

The Houſe of Aſſembly have choſen Samuel Street, Eſq. their Speaker.

THE SPANISH DEPUTIES' FEAST.

An Anti-Gallican, Anti-Yankee Ode.

'Twas for the feaſt by Thames' Commercial Sons
Given to Iberia's Deputies and Dons,
In cloſe debate,
A Junta fate,
As ſoft in etiquette and City breeding;
Like Arthur's Peers the table round,
They plan'd in wiſdom moſt profound,
The pride and pomp, and circumſtance of feeding.
Happy, happy, happy City!
Bleſt with ſuch a Sage Committee,
Happy Gueſts! allowed to ſhare
City friendſhip—City fare!

High on a throne with proper emblems graced
So the committee will'd, was Baring placed,
Baring—whoſe trade extends its buſy
Foot Tor's to Maſſachuſet's bays,
And equal benefit beſtows
On Britain's friends, and Britain's foes;
Forming (each Yankee knows the fact)
Its own great Navigation Act.
Happy City, bleſt with rare men,
Fit to act the part of Chairmen;
Happy moſt, Sir Francis Baring,
This diſtinguiſh'd honor wearing.

See from every foreign board,
Choiceſt dainties crown the board,
Turbot's Holland's coaſt ſupplies,
Lobſters, Norway not denies;
Types of their Country's hopeleſs cauſe,
Thoſe without gills, and theſe without their claws;
Turtles too, of large dimenſion,
From thy teeming Iſle—Aſcenſion,
Spread their fins and blubber green
In calapaſh and deep tureen.

Nor abſent thou, whom days of old
Number'd 'mongſt our Barons bold;
Roaſt beef—not that
Which ſwol'n and fat
Coke's Norfolk Agriculti'ral Meeting
To Smithfield ſends unfit for eating;
Soft as pork lard, or cow's rank tumen?
But beef that nouriſh'd Engliſh yeomen,
And by its ſolid meat, and pudding ſuet,
Made England's tars
And lions of Mars,
Like Dragons fight, and Frenchmen rue it.

The Chairman carv'd a ſlice, then wav'd his hand,
And ſtrains reſponſive iſſued from the band.
Air—"When hearty Roaſt Beef," &c.
Chorus—O the Roaſt Beef, &c.

The Dinner ended—unreſtrain'd
Social mirth and friendſhip reign'd,
Friendſhip, ſuch as ought to be
'Twixt Patriots leagued in amity,
Not that which to alliances States
Gallia thew'd at civic rates,
Frantic riot—mirth infernal,
Tranſient love, and hate eternal;
But ſuch as o'er the waſſail bowl,
Britain's ſons in days of yore,
With liberal hand, and generous ſoul,
To their gueſts alliances bore.

Friendſhip making common cauſe
'Gainſt Napoleon's Demon band,
Foes to divine and human laws,
Scourge and peſt of every land;

Save in that Britain's favor'd Iſle,
Of Freedom's Sons the bleſt domain,
Over-ſhall it ſecure, and Commerce ſmile,
Beneath a patriot Monarch's reign;
Whilſt her vallies laugh and ſing
To echoing hills—"God ſave the king."

TOAST—The King.
CHORUS—God ſave Great George our King, &c.

The toaſt libations a pie crown'd,
Reſponſive plaudits ſhook the room,
Iberia's Sons the rapture own'd,
But ſully mourn'd their Monarch's dooms

When lo! with hearty welcome cheer'd,
The Genius of the place appear'd,
And gazing round with concious pride,
Took her place by Canning's ſide;
Then ſmiling on each ſtranger gueſt,
Thus her native friends addreſs'd.

"Not to Britain's Iſle alone
"Be the god-like taſk aſſign'd,
"To ſhake the Gallic Deſpot's throne,
"And chaſe the ills that threat mankind;
"Not alone to Britain's coaſt
"Be the boon of freedom known,
"Soon Iberia's Sons ſhall boaſt
"Britiſh freedom in their own.

"Deſcendants they from Chiefs of old,
"In Pavia's battle-lift enroll'd,
"From Dons in noble daring tried,

PRINTED BY CAMERON AND BENNETT, ...EET.

" Of Chivalry the flower and pride?
" Thefe—alfe t at their Country's call,
" 'Gainft the fell invading Gaul,
" Shall with peafants hardy, ftrong,
" Soon avenge their Country's wrong,
" And by Cafhone feel to war,
" Bid Fama's laurels bloom in Andujar;
" Whilft our Patriot Sons afford
" Britain's buckler, Britain's fword,
" And round their thotes her navies fail,
" Partake their triumph & their valor hail."

The grateful tear from Maferosa flow'd,
And Apodaca's cheek with ardour glow'd;
And, whilft the accents grac'd her tongue,
The tuneful band,
With gratious hand,
Their harps to Britain's favorite Carol ftrung,

AIR—" When Britain firft," &c.

CHORUS—Rule Britannia.

" Nor to Iberia's land alone
" Shall Britifh amity be thown;
" On Tagus tide
" Her fleets fhall ride;
" Affift the weak—the ftrong inſpire
" With Englifh valor—patriot fire;
" Again to Lufitania's fhore
" Her laws, her faith, her prince reſtore;
" Bid fanguine ſtains no more her fields deſile,
" But yellow harveſts wave—the purple vintage ſmile."

AIR—" Britons ſtrike home."

CHORUS.

Then in ſong and converſe gay
Paſs'd the feſtive hour away,
Every tongue its joy declaring;
When ſome Demon whiſper'd Baring—
Some Demon Imp of Mammon race,
With Belial tongue and Yankee face;
Some Agent Imp that unſeenhand
Works in Commerce contraband,
" Good Sir Francis—Hope and Aid,
" And Patron of our Lumber Trade,
" Quondam Friend of Lee and Gates,
" Toaſt our Prefident and States!"
Well inclin'd, and thus entreated,
He the Yankee Toaſt repeated.
But, or ere his lips could cloſe,
Hiſs and hollow murmur roſe;
Hiſſes loud and never ceaſing,
Murmurs into groans encreaſing.

Baring trembled, Sherry ſtared,
And though with Patriot ſpeech prepar'd
Silent ſat, and bit his thumb;
And Erſkine, ſtrange to ſay—was dumb!
Each Patriot boſom indignation own'd,
And Meterosa mus'd and Apodaca frown'd,
And with looks of grief and gloom,
The feſtive Genius left the room.

Thus from Order, Diſcord roſe
At the Civic Banquet's cloſe.
Ne'er may Yankee Toaſt again
Our City's Patriot Rites profane!
And Oh! Auguſta, if thy gen'rous Sons
To future Banquets ſhall invite the Dons,
To cheer them with a lure affiance
Of Engliſh Friendſhip and Alliance;
Be it thy peculiar care
To keep a Baring from the Chair:
Nor when thy wiſdom ſhall again think fit
To give them Roaſt Meat—bake them with the Spit.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render ſincere thanks to thoſe gentlemen in this town, who have favored me with their names and furniſhed me with money to carry into operation the benevolent deſign for which the Society ſent me out.

I have agreed with a printer in this town for ſeveral thouſand tracts of different kinds, to be ſtruck off, as ſoon as poſſible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be ſent to every perſon who has contributed to the work; that all may ſee to what uſe their money has been applied.—And the names of all thoſe who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be ſent to Boſton and inſerted in the PANOPLIST, a periodical work publiſhed monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel diſpoſed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the ignorant, and to reform the vicious, they will be ſo kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the ſubſcription paper, and the tokens of their liberality ſtated to them. Thoſe who ſubſcribe a dollar will have their names inſerted in the PANOPLIST with the ſum annexed: and the ſmalleſt ſum will be gratefully received by the public's ſincere friend, and humble ſervant,

THADDEUS OSGOOD.

PROCLAMATION
FOR PARDONING DESERTERS
FROM
His Majeſty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, Auguſt 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been repreſented to THE KING, That there are at this Time ſeveral DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majeſty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that ſuch an Inſtance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who ſhall ſurrender themſelves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whoſe Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Iſle of Wight.

Such Deſerters, if Able-bodied Men and fit for Service, ſhall be ſent to the Regiments from which they reſpectively deſerted, or be appointed to ſuch Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majeſty may be pleaſed to command; and, when ſo placed, ſhall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the ſaid Deſerters may have enliſted in other Regular Corps, and are now ſerving therein, His Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to extend to ſuch Deſerters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they ſhall continue to ſerve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themſelves to their reſpective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they ſhall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly ſerved.

The Magiſtrate to whom any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Regular Forces may ſurrender himſelf, is authoriſed and required to certify the Day on which ſuch Deſerter ſurrendered himſelf, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deſerter at the Head Quarters of the neareſt Military Poſt, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unleſs prevented by Sickneſs, to be certified by ſome Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magiſtrate's Certificate, or to be otherwiſe proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at ſuch Military Poſt.

And with a View to prevent as far as poſſible all Soldiers from Deſertion, after theſe His Majeſty's moſt gracious Intentions ſhall be made known, His Majeſty has been pleaſed to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter deſert, ſhall be tranſmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Pariſhes, to which the Deſerters belong; in order that their Names may be expoſed to public View in the Church, or ſuch other conſpicuous Place, as may render it impoſſible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought diſgrace by their Miſconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majeſty has further commanded, that this Meaſure ſhall be made public, that every Soldier may be aſſured, that the greateſt Exertions will be uſed for the Apprehenſion of any Man who may hereafter deſert, and that thoſe who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Riſk they incur of Detection, and of the moſt ſevere Puniſhment, if they do not immediately avail themſelves of the Pardon held out in this His Majeſty's moſt gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may deſert after theſe His Majeſty's gracious Intentions are made Public, ſhall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded againſt with the utmoſt Severity.

It is to be clearly underſtood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deſerters from the Army of Reſerve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Militia Forces.

By His Majeſty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES in the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION iſſued by His Majeſty's Orders in England and deſirous of affording to all Deſerters the opportunity of availing themſelves of His Majeſty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleaſed thus to make the ſame public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with reſpect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER-CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next enſuing, and with reſpect to ſuch perſons as are deſirous of atoning for their paſt miſconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of theſe Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deſerters are to ſurrender themſelves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Poſt in either of the aforeſaid Provinces, or to any Magiſtrate near whom they may be; ſuch Magiſtrate being deſired to furniſh them with a Certificate of the date of ſuch ſurrender, which Certificate will be in force in the ſame manner and under the ſame limitations as directed in His Majeſty's Proclamation.

AN INVITATION TO A WALK BY MOONLIGHT.

Per incertam lunam—
Est iter in silvis. VIRGIL.

WILL you my love? the moon is high,
The air is calm, the night's serene,
A hazel and a chestnut fire,
Shiveen o'er the lofty scene

Will you my love? the hour's so still,
So solemn that, methinks, I hear
The Elfins on the hollow hill,
Footing their magic morrice near.

Will you my love? come forth and see,
How mild the moon, in chaftly bright,
Efays, o'er the ftream from tree,
And thus reflect a lovelier light?

Behold! how all its cheerleſs rays,
Round and round thy temples more,
Bright ſting to their amorous gaze,
And trembling as they kiss thee—love.

And hark! the bird from yonder grove
Woos thee to oft her pretty long,
While echoes fweeten all—love,
And every thrilling note prolong

Then come, and this laſt hour ferene,
Devote to ſofter thoughts and—me,
Adding to this fair lovely ſcene,
The tarter, lovelier light of thee.

In a recent liſt of marriages we read of that of Mr. Savage, of Eat-on, to Mrs. Wild, of Hunger-ford.

Over a door in the neighbourhood of Lincoln's Inn-fields, is written J. Death, dealer in ſpirit-ous liquors.

The late marriage of Mr Lyon with Miſs Lamb, is a violation of Horace's rule in his art of Poetry.

An old man, who had a young wife, of reputed gallantry, enquiring in what part of the body the ſkin was thickeſt, received for anſwer—"undoubtedly in the forehead; for otherwiſe, you would already have horns.'

A punſter obſerves, that we muſt ceaſe to wonder at the ſelection of prieſts to the head of the Spaniſh armies, when we reflect that they have been bred to the cannon law.

It was rather a ſingular coincidence, that on the firſt day of the late Weſtminſter Quarter Seſſions, when Counſellor Fielding took his place on the Juſticial Bench, almoſt the firſt priſoner tried before the Court was named Tom Jones.

The Premen of the metropolis have formed themſelves into a ſociety which they call the Sporting Club.

The man of the name of Stealwell, who was lately taken up for picking a gentleman's pocket, has been excluded the ſociety of pickpockets, for having in ſo bungling a manner effaced his name, and forfeited his pretenſions to dexterity.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

Charleſton, January 4.

The Britiſh ſhip Anne, captain Kermod, in 49 days from Liverpool, anchored within the bay yeſterday, and laſt evening ſome of the paſſengers came up to town in one of the pilot boats.

By this arrival we have been furniſhed with copious files of London and Liverpool papers to the 20th November.

It will be ſeen by the extracts which we have given this morning, that Bonaparte is about to "let flip the dogs of war" againſt Spain, in good earneſt; and that he had arrived at Bayonne, to ſuperintend their operations in perſon.

No action has been fought in Spain ſince the date of our laſt advices.

The Britiſh troops under Sir John Moore and Sir David Baird, had formed a junction with the Spaniſh armies, and a general engagement was momently expected.

London, Nov. 7.

Intelligence by the Gottenburgh mails ſtate, that the embargo in the Ruſſian ports was taken off on the 8th ult. A gentleman arrived in town from St. Peterſburg, ſtates, that that port was opened the day preceding his departure. The ſole motive for ſhutting it, we underſtand was to prevent proviſion ſhips from falling into the hands of the Engliſh and Swedes who were blockading the Baltic port, and who were ſuppoſed to be deſtitute of proviſions, and without the means of procuring any, except what they picked up at ſea.

Sir John Cradock is to command the Britiſh troops in Portugal, in the room of general Burrard, who has been recalled. —The amount of the Britiſh force in that kingdom will be 10,000 men.

The Britiſh force now in Spain are all to rendezvous at Valladolid. When aſſembled, they will amount to at leaſt 40,000 men.

Liverpool, Nov. 9.

Spain.—The opinion we expreſſed laſt week, that the ſuſpicion Bonaparte entertained of Auſtria, had delayed in preparations againſt Spain, appears to be confirmed by the late intelligence in the Dutch papers. The conferences in Erfurth are terminated, and Bonaparte having bro't Alexander into his views, and ſucceeded in menacing Auſtria into an apparent acquieſcence, is organizing his means with all poſſible celerity for the eſtabliſhment of his brother Joſeph on the throne of Madrid. He himſelf returned to Paris, and had ſet out for Bayonne, from whence he intends to proceed to Spain, to take command of hisarmy in perſon. Whether the ſame good fortune will attend him there as in Italy and Germany, or whether, as in Egypt, after the defeat of ſubordinate commanders, he be deſtined to perſonal diſgrace and diſcomfiture, will depend upon contingencies as various as they are critical; but this may be affirmed, that the axiom—"a people in arms and determined to defend their country, cannot be conquered," will be put to a ſevere trial; and, until the reſult be proclaimed, at leaſt three quarters of the globe will be held in a ſtate of painful ſuſpenſe, and involved in the deepeſt attention.

NEW-YORK, January, 10.

Lateſt from Waſhington.—We have been obligingly favored with the following extracts of letters from Waſhington.

January 7.

"This day the Senate have concurred in paſſing the Bill to enforce the Embargo, with the amendments from the Houſe, and on Monday orders will be iſſued accordingly.—Thus, you ſee, that by this meaſure, they have completely ruined the coaſting Trade, the only little commerce which remained to us. The Non-Intercourſe Bill is the next in queſtion, and will undoubtedly paſs. Theſe meaſures will be purſued until Congreſs convenes in May next; and if then found ineffectual, War with both England and France will be the reſult; but not with the latter if our government can poſſibly avoid it. War with England ſeems to be their great object.

"It is a fact too evident to admit of contradiction, that the adminiſtrators of our government are determined on the deſtruction of Commerce; and on the ruin of all thoſe engaged in its purſuits. How the meaſures which have been lately adopted will be received by the people of the Eaſtern States, I leave for them to decide. Government contemplates ſending a Diſpatch veſſel to Europe in 15 or 20 days."

January 9.

"It ſeems to be now ſettled, with the majority in both Houſes, that we are to have the embargo enforced and a Non-Intercourſe adopted. The preſent Congreſs will riſe with all theſe embarraſſments upon the commerce of our country. Thoſe in the ſecrets ſay, that Congreſs will meet in May, when the new Congreſs and new Preſident will do as they pleaſe, with regard to the fetters put upon us by the old.

"A Diſpatch-boat is to be ſent to Europe about the middle of the preſent month, with all their violent legiſlation in the trunk of the Meſſenger. At the approach of this hoſt, Great-Britain is to fall down before its mighty power, and give up her Orders in Council, and ſucumb to the Great Nation."

STRONG LANGUAGE.

[From the Baltimore Federal Republican.]
From our Correſpondent at Waſhington:

It is not uncommon for a coward who is kicked upon the exchange, to go home and revenge himſelf by whipping his wife and children.——When our territory was invaded by Spain, and our ſouthern frontiers were expoſed to the incurſions of the moſt contemptible enemies, the ſyſtem of economy forbade the augmentation of our forces. Now that the people threaten to reſiſt the encroachments of tyranny, and it is neceſſary to teach the people to admire Mr. Jefferſon's Embargo, a force of one hundred and fifty-ſix thouſand men is to be employed, not againſt foreign enemies, but againſt our own citizens. One hundred thouſand Militia, Wilkinſon's ſix thouſand regulars, and the new ſtanding army of fifty thouſand men. Mr. Gardenier obſerved to the houſe, "I for one will not ſtand guilty in my place, and permit the chains which are forging to be wound round me. When the liberties of my conſtituents are thus invaded, ſtanding upon the rampart of the conſtitution, I will fight in their defence to the laſt gaſp. Sir, when the country is overrun with this force, it will be no longer ſafe for ſome of us to hold a ſeat upon this floor, but at the riſk of my head, I will fight in defence of the people's rights, while I have life. Within this citadel of the nation's ſafety, I will found the tocſin of alarm, and arouſe my countrymen to a ſenſe of their danger."

IMPORTANT.

From the Waſhington Monitor.

The following propoſitions, made by the Emperors of Ruſſia and France to Great Britain, we gave to our readers on Monday in an extra ſheet; we now republiſh them in the Monitor, to wit.—

1ſt. Hanover to be reſtored to Great Britain.

2d. Brunſwick to be reſtored to the heirs of the Duke.

3d. Holland to be reſtored to the prince of Orange.

4th. Portugal to be reſtored to the duke of Braganza, or become a Britiſh Colony.

5th. King Ferdinand (of Naples) to retain Sicily.

6th. Joſeph Napoleon to become king of Spain and the Indies.

I repeat, the intelligence may be relied on; I received it from Bordeaux by the late arrival; and my correſpondent, intimately acquainted with French policy, has ſent me other intereſting communications, which I will hereafter make known.

[The above tempting propoſitions were immediately and decliſively rejected by the Britiſh Cabinet.]

A great man has now a new and grand project in his head, of erecting, on what is called the middle ground, certain flats in the mouth of the Cheſapeake, an immenſe ſtone wall, encloſing about ten acres of water, with a large gate to it, as a Gun-boat pen, for them to run into and lock themſelves up whenever an enemy appears on the coaſt. He has conſulted a number of gentlemen on the ſubject, particularly Admiral Graves, who approved of it mightily, as extremely important in a Gun boat warfare.——A certain facetious member of Congreſs from Virginia, told him that the chief difficulty he foreſaw, would be in opening and ſhutting the gate when the Sea beat ſo tremendouſly high, that perhaps he had better leave a ſmall gap juſt wide enough for a gun boat to ſlip in at. The Secretary of the Navy has been under the neceſſity of informing him that all the wealth and labour of the univerſe would not be ſufficient to erect a work there capable of withſtanding the ſhock of the Sea for one hour—it is more than probable however, that there will be a meſſage on the ſubject. The Secretary at war, delighted with the boldneſs of the idea, had been drawing a plan of the work, and propoſes that two baſtions ſhould be erected on the inſide, upon each of which a manufactory of torpedoes ſhould be conſtructed; the whole to be accompliſhed with the Surplus-REVENUE of 1810. Waſh. Fed.

Extract of a letter from Kingſton, Jamaica, dated the 5th of December.

YORK, February 8, 1809.

The following Addreſſes were preſented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in anſwer to His Excellency's Speech at the opening of the preſent Seſſion of the Provincial Legiſlature.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects the Legiſlative Council in Provincial Parliament aſſembled, return your Excellency our thanks, for your moſt gracious Speech. And we aſſure your Excellency, that you may rely with confidence on our beſt endeavours to diſcharge the important truſt with which we are inveſted, in ſuch a manner as may moſt effectually promote the happineſs, the proſperity, and the ſecurity of this Province.

The eventful times in which we live, do indeed, demand our moſt ſerious attention. While we contemplate with pleaſure and pride, the noble and ſucceſsful ſtand for liberty, and the intereſts of mankind, which Great Britain hath made amidſt the awful conflicts of contending Nations, our own ſituation and circumſtances ſhall be attentively conſidered.

Thankful to the Supreme Ruler of Nations, for the tranquility, Plenty and Peace we have hitherto enjoyed; it alſo becomes us under preſent circumſtances, to prepare for every event, and we ſhould ill deſerve the bleſſings we enjoy, did we not properly appreciate the value of our Conſtitution, and were we not at all times ready to evince our zeal and loyalty, and to ſhew ourſelves worthy of the name of Britiſh ſubjects.

(Signed) THOS. SCOTT, Speaker.

Legiſlative Council Chamber, York, 6th February, 1809.

To which His Excellency was pleaſed to return the following anſwer:

HONORABLE GENTLEMEN,

YOUR dutiful and loyal addreſs, merits my higheſt approbation.

I have the beſt hopes in your exertions to promote the proſperity and ſecurity of this Province: And your profeſſions of attachment to the Conſtitution, and your Gratitude for the bleſſings you enjoy as Britiſh ſubjects, afford me great ſatisfaction.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Upper Canada, in this firſt Seſſion of the fifth Provincial Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return Your Excellency our moſt grateful thanks for your gracious Speech.

We are fully aware of the importance of the Truſt with which we are inveſted, and will with diligence and aſſiduity endeavor, to the utmoſt of our abilities, faithfully to diſcharge it.

We will pay due attention to the Public Accounts, and will maturely take into our conſideration the expiring arrangements made with Lower Canada, as well as the conditional Law paſſed relative thereto, by the Legiſlature of that Province, ſo ſoon as the tendency and operation of that Law, is made known to us.

The neceſſity of equaliſing the Standard of Gold Coin between this Province and that of Lower Canada, is a meaſure which we will not loſe ſight of, and which we will carefully attend to, when the exiſting Standard of the Gold of that Province is ſubmitted to our conſideration.

Eventful indeed, are the times in which we live, and momentous may be the reſult thereof, yet we contemplate with pride and pleaſure, the pre-eminent and proud poſition which Great Britain has taken amidſt the conflicts of contending Nations. We implore the Supreme Diſpoſer of Events, to reſtore, and continue to mankind in general, the tranquility, plenty, and peace, which this Province ſo happily enjoys; under every circumſtance, we truſt that it will be made appear, that the ſame zeal, loyalty and exertion, which animate the Mother Country, have not degenerated in this her diſtant Colony, and that we will never forfeit our claim to the appellation of Britiſh Subjects.

(Signed) SAML. STREET, Speaker.

Common Houſe of Aſſembly, York, the Sixth day of February, 1809.

To which His Excellency was pleaſed to return the following anſwer:

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

I Thank you for this dutiful and Loyal Addreſs, and ſhall be ready at all times to co-operate with you in every meaſure, that may tend to promote the welfare of the Province.

The aſſurances of your zeal and attachment to our Mother Country, are at this time peculiarly proper, and reflect on you the higheſt honor.

I ſhall direct the Statutes of the laſt Seſſion of the Province of Lower Canada, to be laid before you.

Confuſion in the Camp!—The democratic repreſentatives from Maſſachuſetts have received a letter from Mr. John Quincy Adams, announcing to them that the embargo muſt be given up, or democracy dies forever in the Eaſt. Mr. Storey and Mr. Bacon have taken the alarm, and are preparing to diſcover that this wiſe and powerful meaſure, "however honorable to the Sages with whom it originated," as the former gentleman has ſaid, ſh is not so coercive upon foreign powers as those sages had led them to believe.—— There are many strong indications of an approaching rebellion against the "anti-commercial system of Confucius the younger," in a quarter where nothing but the most abject submission was expected.—Freeman's Journal.

Mr. Gallatin's Opinion.—A letter from Boston, dated December 30, says—— a gentleman in this town, last from Washington, has had a conversation with Mr. Gallatin, who informed him the embargo must come off before Congress rises, as commerce is the only support of the treasury."—ib.

Effects of the Embargo.—In a neighboring county at Sheriff's Sales, were sold 1000 acres of land for 12 dollars, four grown negroes, three horses, and three beds for 90 dollars. The above is received from unquestionable authority. To remark on it would be to insult the miseries that grind the hapless victims of that "death consuming measure."—Wilmington Gaz.

Secretary of State.—It is reported in high circles at Washington, that Mr. Jefferson has consented to serve as Secretary of State under President Madison. It was hinted a year or two ago that he would do so, in the Intelligencer or Enquirer, we cannot at this moment recollect which. This event is certainly far from being an improbable one. Spectr.

The British Minister has requested our Executive to grant leave to British vessels to ascend the Mississippi to Baton Rouge in West Florida. The President refuses to comply. Mr. Erskine is said to have remarked that it was immaterial, for as we are bound by treaty with Spain to suffer Spanish vessels to come to that place, the intercourse which the British government has in view, can be carried on by that channel. ib.

THE Subscriber now takes the liberty of requesting all Persons who induced him by promises, subscriptions and encouragement to undertake and complete the necessary and substantial Bridge near Mr. Hills's, on Yonge Street, immediately to discharge their several subscriptions, and voluntary promises, as a small indemnification to the Subscriber for his toils in the undertaking.

Also, The highest Market Prices for Flour, Corn, Oats, Butter, Cheese and Pork at his Store in York.

Having given some of those who are indebted to him a further extent of time to the 15th of February next, the better to enable them to settle their Accounts; he confidently expects that they will avail themselves of the proffered opportunity, otherwise he will be obliged to put into the hands of his Attorney for collection, all Notes and Accounts that may remain unsettled after that period.

HENRY DEAN.

York, 31st January, 1809.

THE Subscriber informs his customers and the Farmers in general, that he will receive merchantable Wheat at the following Mills, viz Lyon & Walker's on Yonge Street, Milliken & Miller's in Markham, and at Timothy Rogers's in Pickering; for which he will give at the rate of seven shillings New-York Currency per Bushel, when received in payment of debts that have been contracted for eighteen Months past;—Seven shillings and six pence N. Y. Cy. per bushel, in payment for debts that have been contracted nine Months and upwards; and eight shillings or like currency per bushel, when in payment for debts that have been contracted subsequent to the 1st of April last, or in exchange for Goods.

He will also receive in payment for debts not exceeding nine months standing, to be in exchange for merchandize, the following articles of Country produce, at the prices affixed to each and, are delivered at his Store in York, viz.

FLOUR, two pounds six shillings New York currency per Barrel, containing 196 pounds nett,
RYE and PEASE, seven shillings N. Y. currency per Bushel.
INDIAN CORN, five shillings ——ditto—— per Bushel.
OATS, three Shillings ——ditto—— per Bushel.
BUTTER and CHEESE, Price according to the quality.
PORK, sixteen dollars per Barrel of 208 pounds Nett, and six pence N. Y. currency, when not cut up.

Cash will be given for the above articles at a reduced price, or they will be received in Payment of Debts, contracted previous to the 1st of April last, upon a reasonable deduction in the price.

The subscriber regrets that he could not make an arrangement with Mr. J. Bogart; but any Flour manufactured at his Mills, and branded with his mark, will be received and a generous price given.

From the generous prices now offered for all kinds of produce, the subscriber entertains the hope that his friends in the Country, will be enabled to settle their accounts of long standing. In justice to himself, he has to inform those that are in his debt for goods, full eighteen months past, and who will not profit by the advantageous terms offered, that unless their accounts are discharged before the first of February next ensuing, they will be put into the hands of an Attorney for collection.

Should the Embargo continue, he will furnish his customers, or any person recommended by them (if required) in the Month of April next, with Pot-Ash Kettles, at a reasonable price, and furnish goods for the purchase of Ashes.

QUETON ST. GEORGE.

N. B. Any person who may wish to make a payment in wheat, or exchange this article for Goods, should such person live at a greater distance from any of the aforementioned Mills than on York, his wheat will be received at the Store of the Subscriber in York; which will in no wise accommodate his customers in every possible and reasonable way.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render sincere thanks to those gentlemen in this town, who have favored me with their names and furnished me with money to carry into operation the benevolent design for which the Society sent me out.

I have agreed with a printer in this town for several thousand tracts of different kinds, to be struck off, as soon as possible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be sent to every person who has contributed to the work; that all may see to what use their money has been applied.—And the names of all those who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be sent to Boston and inserted in the PANOPLIST, a periodical work published monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel disposed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the ignorant, and to reform the vicious, they will be so kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the subscription paper, and the tokens of their liberality affixed to them. Those who subscribe a dollar will have their names inserted in the PANOPLIST with the sum annexed: and the smallest sum will be gratefully received by the public's sincere friend,

and humble servant,

THADDEUS OSGOOD.

PROCLAMATION FOR PARDONING DESERTERS FROM His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; to order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehention of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES in the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA, to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

Last evening arrived here the ship Charleston Packet, Capt. Cornell, from Bordeaux.—While off New Castle, he forwarded the following letter, which contains the most material articles of his intelligence.

Ship Charleston Packet, off New Castle, Dec. 21.

The present will serve to inform you of my arrival from Bordeaux, which place I left on the 2d Nov. by Special permission of his Majesty the Emperor, through the interference of our minister, for the purpose of bringing home the distressed seamen of our country, belonging to the vessels condemned and sequestered; those in the latter situation, the Council of prizes have some time since received orders to suspend the trials of.

A general embargo continued on all neutrals throughout the ports of the French. I have on board a number of passengers, one of which is the bearer of dispatches from our Ambassador at Paris for the American government.

I have herewith enclosed you a file of Bordeaux papers, but from which, I believe a few political truths may be gathered, according to the reports from Spain and elsewhere. Bordeaux and its vicinity was crouded with sick and wounded returning from Spain, and these troops were allowed no communication with the reinforcements from the grand army marching that way. So unfavorable were the accounts they brought from the seat of war, it was currently reported and credited that the French had been defeated with great slaughter in a late action at Catalonia, that King Joseph maintained with great difficulty his position a Burgos and Vittoria. The grand army was daily encreasing by forced marches through Bordeaux, and about 50,000 had already passed that city, as many more by other roads.

The Emperor arrived at Bordeaux the morning of my departure, he remained there but three hours, and continued his rout towards Spain, his haste is said to be in consequence of meeting a courier from thence with unfavourable news. The French troops under Junot who capitulated in Portugal, were daily arriving at Bordeaux and Rochefort in English tranports, and it was reported were marching into the interior of France, and not to be sent on the present campaign, for certain reasons. Previous to the separation of the Emperors of France and Russia at Erfurth, each sent a courier to St. James's (so says the official Gazette at Paris.)—Report said they were not received.—Since this conference of their Majesty's the rumor of war with Austria appears to have subsided.

Little may be said of the commercial state of affairs, as no change has taken place except a small depreciation of Colonial produce, owing to a number of late arrivals of letters of Marque...Many others were fitting out in the different ports which was believed would continue to reduce the markets; the absence of the American flag for so long a time, has created a spirit of enterprise, and taught them to carry on a commerce independent of us, and they boastingly say, we shall no longer monopolize the trade of their colonies.

On the 23d of Oct. Napoleon delivered a speech to the Legislative corps, in which, he pledges himself to establish the new dynasty in Spain, and to plant his eagles on the forts of Lisbon...In this speech he takes the following notice of the United States: "they have, says he, preferred abandoning the commerce of the Ocean, rather than submit, &c."

On the same day Bonaparte had a grand levee, at which all the foreign ministers attended. Among the presentations, we observe M. Le Chevalier de Sartiwanis, minister plenipotentiary to the United States, from Joseph king of Spain.

PORTUGUESE Dominions in America.

Brazil is bounded by the mouth of the river Amazon, and the Atlantic Ocean on the North; by the same Ocean on the East; by the mouth of the river Plata on the South; and by a chain of Mountains which divide it from Spanish America and the country of the Amazons, on the West. The places of greatest Consequence, are Para, Belim, St. Lewis, Siara, St. Luc. Tignates, Payraba, Tamara, Olinda, Seregippe, St. Salvador, Puys, Porto Seguro, Spirito Santo, St. Sebastian, St. Vincent, &c.

There are some small Islands on the coast of Brazil, where Ships touch sometimes for provisions in their voyages to the South seas (namely) Fernando, St. Barbora, St. Catharine's, &c. The Atlantic Ocean washes the coast of Brazil on the North east and South, for 3000 miles and upwards; wherein are several fine bays and harbours: the harbour of Pernambucco, the harbour or bay of All Sts. the harbour of Porto Seguro, the port & harbour of Rio Janeiro, the port of St. Vincent, the harbour of St. Gabriel, the port of St. Salvador, on the North thore of the river La Plata, near the entrance of it. The principal Capes are, Cape Roque, Cape St. Augustine, Cape Frio, and Cape St. Mary, the most Southerly promontory of Brazil.

The Portuguese, who first discovered this part of the Continent, gave it the name of the Holy Cross; but it afterwards obtained the name or Brazil, from the Brazil wood, as it grows there abundantly.

As to the face of this extensive country, the land is rather low than high near the coast, but exceeding pleasant, being chequered with woods and savannahs, or meadow grounds, and the trees for the most part ever-greens: but on the west side of it, far with in land, are high mountains, which separate it from the Spanish province of La Plata; & in these are innumerable springs and Lakes, from whence ifsue abundance of rivers that fall into the great rivers Amazon and La-pla ta, or run across the country from west to east, and fall into the Atlantic Ocean; which last are very numerous, and of great use to the Portuguese in turning their Sugar mills.

As to the north of Brazil, which lies almost under the equator, this, like other countries in the like situation, is subject to great rains and variable winds, particularly in the Months of March and September, when they have such deluges of rain, with storms & tornadoes, that the country is overflowed, and the air unhealthful.

As to the more southern provinces of Brazil, there is no country between the tropics where the heats are more tolerable, or the air more healthful than this, being constantly refreshed with breezes from the sea, and abounding in lakes and rivers, which annually overflow their banks and in the inland part of the country, the winds from the mountains are still cooler than those that blow from the Ocean.

Sugar in immense quantity is made there and in Europe is much preferred to the wellandian muscovado, as the unrefined sugar is called.

About the latter end of December annually, a species of whales, are uncommonly numerous on this coast. They come also into the harbours and inland lakes, where the seamen kill them in great numbers. The fat or blubber is then boiled into oil, and becomes an article of profitable commerce; the leaner part of this species, is esteemed wholesome and palatable food, and much eaten by the poorer sort of people.

The bay and river of Rio Janeiro, are as much resorted to by the Portuguese, as any part of Brazil, on account of the gold and diamonds that have been discovered in the mountains to the westward of this and the neighboring province of St. Vincent. These have occasioned the building upon, and peopling the banks of the river Janeiro, more than any part of Brazil.

The Portuguese discovered this country in the year 1500. but did not plant it until 1549. when they fixed themselves at the bay of All Saints, and built the city of St. Salvador. The French also made some attempts to plant colonies on this coast; but were driven from thence by the Portuguese, who remained in Brazil, almost without a rival, till the year 1623; but being then under the dominion of the King of Spain, with whom the United Provinces were at war, the Dutch W. India company invaded Brazil, and subdued the northern provinces.

They also sent a squadron to the coast of Africa, and took from them the important fort of Del Mina, the strongest fortress on the Guinea coast, which the Hollanders are in possession of.

But the Dutch were entirely driven out of Brazil in the year 1654. However, the W. India company still continuing their pretensions to Brazil, and committing depredations on the Portuguese at sea, the latter agreed, in 1661, to pay the Dutch eight tuns of gold to relinquish their interest in that country; which was accepted, and the Portuguese remained in peaceable possession of all Brazil from that day till near the year 1763, when the Spanish governor of Buenos Ayres having had intelligence of the war between Portugal and Spain, he marched, and after a month siege, made himself master of the Portuguese frontier forts, called St. Sacrament, on the 3d of December; but by the treaty of peace it was restored.

The Prince Regent on leaving Europe & on his arrival in his American dominions, was most joyfully received by his grateful subjects; a general illumination for seven days, celebrated his joyful arrival. Commodore Moore, who went out with his Highness, had been knighted; a new order of honour was instituted, and the people were altogether in high spirits.

A CHRITSMAS HYMN.

FROM yonder beauteous realms of light,
Conceal'd from mortal view,
An am'rous train of cherubs bright
To Bethlem's valley flew.

Dark was the night; in silence drear
The world was huh'd around;
Our earth-born race, devoid of care,
Lay wrapt in sleep profound:

All but a few industrious swains
That guarded night and day,
Their flocks in safety on the plains
From savage beasts of prey.

When, lo! a brighter morn than e'er
Had bluth'd o'er Bethlem's sky,
Stopt midnight in her black career,
Made sullen darkness fly.

Around and round an airy throng
Of Angels fair appear'd;
Balanc'd on golden clouds they hung;
The shepherds saw and fear'd

When soft descending from the sky,
In morning bluhes clad,
The Angel of the Lord drew nigh,
With speech and visage glad:

"Fear not—swift messengers from GOD,
"We come to banish fear—
"For in our hands no vengeful rod
"Of wrath divine we bear.

"But calls of mercy, tidings blest,
"From mercy's climes we bring;
"Rise, Shepherds, to you village haste,
"Salute your infant King.

"In Bethlem's town, a peaceful place,
"On this auspicious morn,
"Of David's long forgotten race,
"Your Saviour CHRIST is born.

"You'll find him in a Manger mean,
"In swadding bands array'd;
"Content to fill a lowly scene,
"Till man's just debt be paid.

"No kingly rites adorn his birth
"Though born o'er King's to rule:
"For thee, O man, he visits earth,
"And tread's affliction's school."

Thus Gabriel spoke—th' angelic crowd,
On golden harps high strung,
As ocean's solemn murmurs loud,
This new Hosanna sung:

"All glory be to GOD on high,
"To all the earth be peace:
"Good will to man, proclaim it high
"And henceforth never cease."

EPITAPH ON A MISER.

BENEATH this verdent hillock lies
Demar, the wealthy and the wife.
His heirs, that he might safely rest,
Have put his carcase in a chest;
The very chest, in which, they say,
His other left, his money lay.
And, if his heirs continue kind
To that dear self he left behind,
I dare believe, that four in five
Will think his better half alive.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

Important from Spain.

Philadelphia, Sunday noon, Jan. 22d, 1809.

The source from whence the following highly interesting and agreeable intelligence is derived, entitles it to almost implicit belief.—

Extract of a letter dated Liverpool 21st November 1808, received by a Gentleman from Alexandria on the 19th Instant, by a Vessel arrived at Hampton Roads from Liverpool.

"Some days ago dispatches arrived from Spain, advising that the French army, under the command of General Ney, 25,000 men strong, attacked the Spanish army, under the command of General Blake, 17,000 strong; the action lasted nine hours, during which the Spaniards maintained their ground, but finding themselves so inferior in numbers, they retreated during the night to Bilboa, and two days after fell back twenty miles, where they were joined by the troops from the Baltic, under the command of General Romana; on the 5th of this month they attacked the French, and the battle lasted four days—the French were COMPLETELY DEFEATED.—Ney killed;—besides 9000 killed, wounded, and prisoners—Blake is wounded—the two armies were nearly equal in numbers.—Phil. gaz.

BOSTON, Jan. 26, 1809.

IMPORTANT.

To the politeness of a respectable merchant, we are indebted for the following extract.—It will be remembered that the last accounts from London, stated that information had been received of WAR between AUSTRIA and FRANCE.—The following letter informs us that the Austrian port of Trieste, which was closed by Bonapartean mandate, is again opened to neutral trade.—If this be true, and it appears very probable, then it will favor the belief that Austria has joined the glorious cause of Spain and freedom. In which case, we may suppose, that a power resulting from the close union of oppressed and indignant nations will yet be adequate to humble the world's Great Foe.

[Bal. Fed. Gaz.

Extract of a letter, dated Cadiz, November 7.

I have just received a letter from Mr. Erving, an extract of which follows under date 25th ult.

"I have received the most prompt and satisfactory assurances whilst at Aranjuez, both from Mr. Cevallos, the Minister of State, & the President of the junta, that the ship at Algesiras, should be liberated without any difficulty or delay. I shall return to Aranjuez on Friday, or Saturday, and may perhaps then write to you more particularly on the subject."

We have recieved an express from Gibraltar giving information, that the port of Trieste, is open to all vessels. This circumstance argues favorably for colonial produce, which rises in consequence.

We have seen a letter from a respectable and intelligent Gentleman at Washington, under Tuesday's date, which intimates a resolution will be offered in the House of Representatives on Wednesday or Thursday, (this day) for the recal of Mr. Pinckney from London." The writer does not mention any thing relative to our Minister in France. On a subject so extremely delicate, we at present hazard no comment.

Balt. Gaz. January 19.

Extract from Bonaparte's speech Oct. 27.

"The United States of America, have preferred to renounce commerce and the sea, rather than to acknowledge the slavery of them.

"A part of my army is marching against those armies which England has formed or landed in Spain, it is a particular blessing from that providence which has constantly protected our arms, that passion should have so far blinded the English councils, as to make them attempt more than the protection of the seas, and at length present their army upon the continent.

"I set off in a few days, in order to put myself at the head of my army, and with the help of God, to crown the King of Spain in Madrid, and plant my eagles upon the forts of Lisbon.

"I have every reason to be satisfied with the sentiments of the princes of the confederation of the Rhine.

"Switzerland feels every day more and more the benefits of the act of mediation."

Cash will be given for the above articles at a reduced price, or they will be received in Payment of debts, contracted previous to the 1st of April last, upon a reasonable deduction in the price.

The subscriber regrets that he could not make an arrangement with Mr. J. Rogers; but any Flour manufactured at his Mills, and branded with this mark, will be received and a generous price given.

From the generous prices now offered for all kinds of produce, the subscriber entertains the hope that his friends in the country, will be enabled to settle their accounts of long standing. In justice to himself, he has to inform those that are in his debt for goods, had eighteen months past, and who will not profit by the advantageous terms offered, that unless their accounts are discharged before the first of February next ensuing, they will be put into the hands of an Attorney for collection.

Should the Embargo continue, he will furnish his customers, or any person recommended by them (if required) in the Month of April next, with Pot-Ash Kettles, at a reasonable price, and furnish goods for the purchase of Ashes.

QUETTON ST. GEORGE.

N. B. Any person who may wish to make a payment in wheat, or exchange this article for Goods, should such person live at a greater distance from any of the aforementioned Mills than from York, his wheat will be received at the Store of the Subscriber in York; whose wish is to accommodate his customers in every possible and reasonable way.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render sincere thanks to those gentlemen in this town, who have favored me with their names and furnished me with money to carry into operation the benevolent design for which the Society sent me out.

I have agreed with a printer in this town for several thousand tracts of different kinds, to be struck off, as soon as possible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be sent to every person who has contributed to the work; that all may see to what use their money has been applied.—And the names of all those who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be sent to Boston and inserted in the PANOPLIST, a periodical work published monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel disposed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the heathen, and to reform the vicious, they will be so kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the subscription paper, and the tokens of their liberality shall be fixed to them. Those who subscribe a dollar will have their names inserted in the PANOPLIST with the sum annexed: and the smallest sum will be gratefully received by the public's sincere friend,

and humble servant,

THADDEUS OSGOOD.

PROCLAMATION FOR PARDONING DESERTERS FROM His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act paſſed in the forty fourth year of the reign of His preſent Majeſty, intitled, "An Act for granting to His Majeſty a certain ſum of Money, for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the exportation thereof;" It is (among other things enacted) that at any time or times after the paſſing of the ſaid Act, it ſhould and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, or Perſon adminiſtering the Government for and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, to iſſue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name ſuch and ſo many perſons within the Province as to him ſhould ſeem meet, as Commiſſioners for the purchaſing of merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province. And whereas by an Act paſſed in the forty eighth year of the reign of His preſent Majeſty, intitled, "An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the exportation thereof;" It is enacted, that the ſum of Sixty two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton ſhould be the rate or price for good and Merchantable Hemp, which might be thereafter purchaſed under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

NOW KNOW ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, That I, FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the ſaid Province of Upper Canada, do, by virtue of the ſaid hereinbefore firſt recited Act, and by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, nominate, conſtitute and appoint, the Honorable James Baby, the Honorable Richard Cartwright, the Honorable Robert Hamilton, Members of the Legiſlative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot, of Port Talbot, Eſq. and William Allan, of York, Eſquire, in the ſaid Province reſpectively, to be Commiſſioners for the purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province, which ſaid Commiſſioners or any one or more of them are, and is hereby reſpectively authoriſed & empowered, to purchaſe ſuch Hemp, at & after the price or rate in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Proviſos contained in and according to the Statutes, in ſuch caſe made and provided; And to do, perform and execute all ſuch other matters & things, as they are authoriſed and required to do, in and by the ſaid recited Acts.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty-ninth year of His Majeſty's Reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

WM. JARVIS Sec'y.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Received by the arrival of the Britiſh Packet Princeſs Amelia, from Falmouth, and ſhip Philſburgh, from Liverpool.

By thoſe two veſſels the editor of the Mercantile Advertiſer has received London papers of the 3d December, and Cork papers of the 8th, nearly a month later than any previous advices.

We have extracted from the lateſt of the papers whatever is intereſting, thoſe of an anterior date being unuſually barren of intelligence. It appears that the army of the French Emperor had entered Spain and that the diviſion of the patriot army under General Blake had been defeated with conſiderable loſs; but this defeat is not conſidered as calculated to excite deſponency with reſpect to the ultimate ſucceſs of the Patriots.

The captain of the Packet informs us that on the 6th of December two Britiſh regiments of cavalry ſailed from Plymouth for Spain, to reinforce the patriot army: and that on his paſſage he ſpoke the Guerrier frigate from the Weſt-Indies and received intelligence that the Engliſh had taken Martinique.

Captain Moorſon, we underſtand brot London papers to the 5th December, but gave them to the Governor of Bermuda.

London Dec. 4.

The operations of the Spaniſh Army of the centre have been attended with complete ſucceſs—The paſſage of the Ebro has been forced in three points, and the ſtrong French poſitions of Caparoſſo, with the heights about taken——On the 25th ult. a freſh battle is ſaid to have taken place, and the accounts are that at the cloſe of it, the Marquis Romana was driving the French before him—It is added, that after ſeveral days fighting the Spaniſh army have routed the French in Navarre, which would oblige Marſhal Ney to abandon all the advantages he had gained in Gallicia.

Boſton, Jan. 10.

We hear from Barnſtable diſtrict, that a Deputy Sheriff, being about to ſerve a proceſs under the authority of the State, has been reſiſted by a military force called out by the U. S. Collector—and compelled to retire, without performing his duty. The Collector excuſed himſelf by ſaying he acted under inſtructions from the ſecretary of the Treaſury. We underſtand, that this is the ſecond time the Collector of that Diſtrict has called out a military detachment.

January 26.

A number of Wood veſſels, which have diſcharged their loads, on ſeveral wharves at the North End, are now detained for want of ſuch bonds as the New Embargo Law requires for granting a clearance to go home.—Their bonds muſt be ſigned by one or more of the owners of the veſſels, and alas, they reſide 2 or 300 miles off. In this predicament the poor fellows are detained at a conſiderable expence, and no little vexation; and the owners though innocent in their remiſsnels in their fulfilment of known laws, are put to an expence, that muſt render their trips an expence rather than profit to them.

From the Boſton Centinel.

It is underſtood that the merchants of this town have generally determined not to comply with the Embargo requiſitions.—Having depoſited their goods in their ſhips and warehouſes when they had a legal right ſo to do, they will not ſubmit to any regulations which is in effect an ex-poſt facto law.—They will neither give bonds nor unload their veſſels, and if the officers of the United States attempt to take poſſeſſion, they will truſt to an independant Judiciary of their own State for protection.

BOSTON, Jan 25.

The ſhip that went to ſea from Bath, a ſhort time ſince, was the Sally, lately belonging to Mr. John Richardſon, loaded with lumber. We have been favored with a letter from that place, giving the following account of her:—I ſhould have written you reſpecting the ſhip which went to ſea, but ſuppoſed you would have had correct information of her departure from Portland before my account would reach you, but the account which is publiſhed in the Gazette of that place, is ſo erroneous, that I will relate the particulars. The ſhip ſtarted from the wharf between 12 and one o'clock, the cuſtom houſe pimps looking on, at a diſtance, but not daring to interfere to ſtop her—the ſort commenced firing as ſoon as ſhe appeared in ſight, and continued till ſhe got out of reach, only one ball touched the ſhip; ſeveral who counted the guns ſay, that 50 ſhot were fired—they uſed at the fort two long 12's, two 6's, and one 6 pounder, and if they had ever ſo many guns they could not have made uſe of more than they did.——The ſhip paſſed within 8 or 10 rods from the fort, and as ſoon as ſhe got out of the reach of the guns, the cutter which laid at the wharf, and fired at the ſhip as ſhe paſſed, was manned with the ſoldiers in addition to her crew, with an intent to board her, but could not over take her, and with difficulty got back themſelves, after picking up the ſhip's pilot and 2 men—there were only 17 men with the pilot on board, when ſhe went out of the river, and ſeveral of them walked on deck as ſhe paſſed the fort, apparently with unconcern—one of the ſoldiers walked upon the breaſt work of the fort, and with a muſket took aim at the captain of the ſhip, which compliment was returned from her, and was the only gun ſhe fired—the departure of the ſhip by the fort was witneſſed by hundreds, 30 ſleighs went down from Bath. The new embargo law cannot be enforced in this town.

Extract of a letter from Providence, (R. I.) dated Jan. 20.

"This day Col. Olney the Collector of this port and brother have incloſed their Commiſſions, and reſigned their offices, declaring, as they have taken an oath to ſupport the conſtitution, they cannot poſſibly act as the direct agents of its evident violation in the execution of the laſt law for enforcing the Embargo. There is now no Cuſtom-Houſe here."

Ev. Poſt.

Extract of a letter dated Providence (R. I.) Jan. 25.

"We are under martial law. Our Governor has this day ordered out four military companies to protect the embargo—The companies met, and reſolved that they would diſmiſs and retire to their houſes. Information having been lodged with the collector, that an attempt would be made to get off a ſmall ſloop that had lately been ſeized by the cuſtom houſe officers, was the reaſon for calling in military aid. The ſenſations excited among the inhabitants by this act are not to be deſcribed. The ſtreets were ſoon thronged; and had a ſingle ſhot been fired, the whole military force would have been maſſacred, and many houſes demoliſhed. At 9 o'clock, P. M. a party of men, from a to 3 hundred took poſſeſſion of the ſloop—cut a paſſage of about a mile through the ice—bent her ſails—and hung her rudder, and now ſhe is under way with a briſk breeze."

Cabinet Councils.—When the laſt mail left Waſhington, it was underſtood, that the Preſident and his Council had been many hours in ſeſſion. Expreſſes had been diſpatched for Vermont and Boſton, with inſtructions to the officers commanding the regular troops in thoſe quarters, to cauſe the new embargo law to be executed by means of the forces under their command. We have no heſitation in announcing that the Executive is inflexibly determined to execute that law at the point of the bayonet! [Free. Jour.

The Senate (of the U-States) has concurred with the Houſe of Repreſentatives, in the reſolution to adjourn Congreſs to the fourth Monday of May next.

New-York Spectr.

A letter has juſt been received at Waſhington from Savannah, in Georgia, mentioning that while cotton at that place and Auguſta, is only ten or eleven cents a pound, it is at 62-1-2 in Florida, oppoſite St. Mary's, near which place three Britiſh Ships are loading with cotton, ſmuggled out of the United States into Florida.—*Free. Intercourſe with Brazil.—The brig Hamlet, of New York, was ſome time ſince ſent out by the Preſident of the U. States, with a commercial agent or meſſenger to the Portugueſe government at Brazil, commiſſioned to enquire of that government, whether a commercial intercourſe could be open'd between the United States and Brazil, on terms ſimilar to thoſe which regulated the commercial connexion between us and Portugal, while the government of that kingdom continued in Europe? An anſwer in the affirmative, highly ſatisfactory in its manner as well as matter, has been received. Free. Journal.

The Attitude!—The favourite expreſſion at Waſhington, to convey the idea of going to war, is changing the attitude of the nation. Heaven knows it is time that our attitude ſhould be altered. We are in a ſtate of diſgraceful and degrading ſubmiſſion to the tyrant of the Land and the tyrant of the Sea, to the "Tyger and the Shark." It is Impoſſible to give a better deſcription of our preſent "attitude" than that which is to be found in Geneſis, chap. xlix. ver. 14, 15. "Iſaachar is a ſtrong ass, couching down before two burdens: And he ſaw that reſt was good, and the land that it was pleaſant; and bowed his ſhoulder to bear, and became a ſervant unto tribute."—ib.

War! War!—The Monitor echoes the Enquirer, and boldly proclaims that "The Embargo will come off, and War be ſubſtituted, if the Engliſh do not do juſtice to our demands upon them."—Great Britain muſt come to our feet, or we go to War with G. Britain—and France." Was not Mr. Randolph very much in the wrong in objecting to a queſtion being taken upon the words, "and France?" There is ſurely much meaning in thoſe two potent monoſyllables!

Nothing but a moſt tremendous expreſſion of the voice of the people—we pray to God that they may do nothing but expreſs their voice—will prevent War with England and alliance with France.

May the God of Our Fathers ſave us from deſtruction!—Freemans Journal.

Denunciation.—The Veteran LINCOLN is denounced at Waſhington by the miniſters of adminiſtration, as little better than a traitor to his country, for reſigning his office, the duties, or rather powers, of which he could not conſcientiouſly execute in theſe deſpotic times. He was one of our firſt generals during the revolution—was wounded in one battle, and taken priſoner in conſequence of another—and, amid the evil commotions which preceded the adoption of the preſent conſtitution, ſuppreſſed the formidable inſurrection led by Shays, without ſhedding the blood of a ſingle man. Howl on ye Monſters! His fame will remain untarniſhed by your peſtilence breath. His laurels will grow greener in the current of ages. Ingratitude thou marble hearted fiend!—ib.

Albany Jan. 30.

The eight ſhips which lately ſailed from Jerſey, for "Boſton and elſewhere," had on board 4900 bales cotton, containing probably nearly a million and an half pounds. If they ſhould be blown off to Liverpool, and obliged to diſpoſe of their cargoes at 3s. ſterling per pound, would we not ſympathiſe with their unfortunate owners?

Extract of a letter from Boſton, dated January 18, 1809.

"Since writing my laſt letter, the additional embargo law has arrived, & has had an aſtoniſhing effect on the people generally of this place, democrats as well as federaliſts. A few days previous to its being received, a large number of veſſels cleared out from here in ballaſt, and went off, ſome to Europe, and ſome to the Weſt Indies.—The commotion has been ſuch, that the cuſtom houſe is ſhut up, and it is generally reported, that the collector and his deputy have reſigned their offices.

State Street, the principal ſtreet in the city, has had thouſands of people in it this morning, and it ſeems certain, there is a determination to reſiſt the laws. The legiſlature meet the 25th of this month, and I fear, from the extreme violence of the people, and the ſentiments of a very large majority of the members, that there will be very ſerious work.——There is hardly a man in Boſton, but what declares his ſentiments openly, that rather than ſubmit any longer to the embargo laws, he would prefer a ſeparation of the Union.—I believe they wait only the ſitting of the Legiſlature, which meets next week, when I am very poſitive you will ſoon hear of ſerious work in this State."

Extract of a letter from the Hon. Jas. Sloan, member of Congreſs from New-Jerſey, to his friend in Philadelphia.

"I ſhall now proceed to a very important communication which I with thee with all poſſible ſpeed to lay, or cauſe to be laid before the peaceable citizens of Philadelphia. It is, that within a ſhort time paſt, the leaders of the dominant party in our houſe, have thrown off the maſk, and avow their determination to keep on, and enforce in the moſt rigorous manner, the Embargo laws, until they are ready to declare war (doubtleſs with England) that is to ſay, we will oppreſs the people with unconſtitutional ruinous, and tyrannical laws, enforced at the point of the bayonet, as to compel them to ſubmit to foreign war, as the leſſer evil. To prevent this greateſt of all evils, ſpirited but decent memorials from your city (which ranks firſt in the union) would be very efficacious; as our opponents alledge that the people approve of the Embargo laws, otherwiſe they would petition for their removal. The Chamber of Commerce have had a meeting, at which the ſubject of a memorial to Congreſs was agitated, and as I am informed declined on the oſtenſible ground of former memorials having been treated with contempt; but on the real ground of ſpeculation——in my merchants having, after the paſſage of non-intercourſe reſolutions in our houſe, made ſuch great ſpeculations in foreign articles, that their intereſt induces them to wiſh the Embargo to continue for a conſiderable time longer; but I hope the great maſs of citizens, whoſe ſufferings are increaſed by thoſe ſpeculations, and who with to prevent domeſtic commotions, as well as foreign war, will be aroused to a ſenſe of the imminent danger in which they ſtand, before it is too late. If the late law, for more rigorouſly enforcing the Embargo laws, does not awaken the free citizens of the Middle and Eaſtern ſtates, they will deſerve indeed, to be made "hewers of wood and drawers of water"! to Southern Nabobs who are now ſo flushed with ſucceſs on the election of another Virginia Preſident, that they appear determined, "by a few bold ſtrokes, to ſilence all oppoſition." But I hope they will ſpeedily cauſe their all-powerful voice, to penetrate our ſplendid walls in ſuch a manner, as to convince the preſent dominant party, that they will neither ſubmit tamely to be ruined by unconſtitutional oppreſſive laws; nor compelled to go to war unneceſſarily, and therefore unjuſtly with any nation on earth.

"I expect ere this comes to hand, the paper, will have announced the loading and departure of a brig from Bath, of ſuperior force to the revenue cutter, who fired to bring her too, but, inſtead of obeying, returned the fire, and proceeded on her voyage. Thus have a ſpecies of civil war (ſo called) commenced, which I fear if the plan of enforcing the Embargo is perſiſted in much longer, will increaſe to a deplorable height. Thus have I, from a ſenſe of duty, unboſomed myſelf to thee, with a view if poſſible to arreſt the progreſs of the ruinous meaſures adopted by the majority now in power, which it is evident, are more injurious to the peace and intereſt of theſe U. States, than thoſe loudly complained of, in '98, '99, and 1800. The people have been falsely imputed upon, with the idea that keeping on the embargo, is the only means of procuring peace; whereas, the reverse is the fact—the present measures if persisted in, will acquire a large military force to execute them, and from the tyrannical manner in which every petty deputy collector is authorized to act, it is morally certain, that opposition of a very serious and alarming nature will soon be made. Whereas I do not entertain a doubt, that were we to adopt my friend Mumford's resolution, we might peaceably engage in our trade, with this additional pleasure, that in benefiting ourselves, we should relieve the wants of divers friendly nations, now contending against the unjust demands of Bonaparte, whose conduct latterly cannot in my opinion, be approbated by any republican, or indeed by any just and humane person. This plan would also be consistent with sound policy, by laying the Spaniards under a debt of gratitude, which would probably keep open, after peace, an extensive trade to her rich and populous territories on our continent.

"It is probable that some of your citizens may think my interference in this business improper; and that it ought to be left to the representatives of your city. Let such be informed, that one of them has been long absent from this place and the other, however worthy and honest a private citizen he may be, appears as a legislator, not to trouble himself with minutely investigating subjects; but prefers an easier and safer line of conduct, that is, to glide smoothly along with the majority."

One DOLLAR per bushel will be given; one half in Cash, if required, and the other half in Merchandize at the prices, and no advantage taken.

Also, The highest Market Prices for Flour, Corn, Oats, Butter, Cheese and Pork at his Store in York.

Having given some of those whom are indebted to him a further extent of time to the 15th of February next, the better to enable them to settle their Accounts; he confidently expects that they will avail themselves of the proffered opportunity, otherwise he will be obliged to put into the hands of his Attorney for collection, all Notes and Accounts that may remain unsettled after that period.

HENRY DREAN.

York, 31st January, 1809.

THE Subscriber informs his customers and the Farmers in general, that he will receive merchantable Wheat at the following Mills, viz Lyon & Walker's on Yonge Street, Miliken & Miller's in Markham, and at Timothy Rogers's in Pickering; for which he will give at the rate of seven shillings New-York Currency per Bushel, when received in payment for debts that have been contracted for eighteen Months past.—Seven shillings and six pence N. Y. Cy. per bushel, in payment for debts that have been contracted nine Months and upwards; and eight shillings of like currency per bushel, when in payment for debts that have been contracted subsequent to the 1st of April last, or in exchange for Goods

He will also receive in payment for debts not exceeding nine months standing, or in exchange for merchandize, the following articles at Country produce, at the prices affixed to each and, and delivered at his Store in York, viz

FLOUR, two pounds six shillings New York currency per Barrel, containing 196 pounds nett.
RYE and PEASE, seven shillings N. Y. currency per Bushel.
INDIAN CORN, five shillings——ditto——per Bushel.
OATS, three Shillings——ditto——per Bushel.
BUTTER and CHEESE, Price according to the quality.
PORK, fifteen dollars per Barrel of 208 pounds Nett, and six pence N. Y. currency, when not cut up.

Cash will be given for the above articles at a reduced price, or they will be received in Payment of debts, contracted previous to the 1st of April last, upon a reasonable deduction in the price.

The subscriber regrets that he could not make an arrangement with Mr. J. Bogart; but any Flour manufactured at his Mills, and branded with his mark, will be received and a generous price given.

From the generous prices now offered for all kinds of produce, the Subscriber entertains the hope that his friends in the country will be enabled to settle their accounts of long standing. In justice to himself, he has to inform those that are in his debt for goods, had eighteen months past, and who will not profit by the advantageous terms offered, that unless their accounts are discharged before the first of February next ensuing, they will be put into the hands of an Attorney for collection.

Should the Embargo continue, he will furnish his customers, or any person recommended by them (if required) in the Month of April next, with Pot-Ash Kettles, at a reasonable price, and furnish goods for the purchase of Ashes.

QUETON ST. GEORGE.

N. B. Any person who may wish to make payment in wheat, or exchange this article for Goods, should such person live at a greater distance from any of the aforementioned Mills than from York, his wheat will be received at the Store of the Subscriber in York; whose will is to accommodate his customers in every possible and reasonable way.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render sincere thanks to those gentlemen in this town, who have favored me with their names and furnished me with money to carry into operation the benevolent design for which the Society sent me out.

I have agreed with a printerin this town for several thousand tracts of different kinds, to be struck off, as soon as possible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be sent to every person who has contributed to the work; that all may see to what use their money has been applied.—And the names of all those who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be sent to Boston and inserted in the PANOPLIST, a periodical work published monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel disposed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the ignorant, and to reform the vicious, they will be so kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the subscription paper, and the tokens of their liberality affixed to them. Those who subscribe a dollar will have their names inserted in the PANOPLIST with the sum annexed: and the smallest sum will be gratefully received by the public's sincere friend,

and humble servant,
THADDEUS OSGOOD.

PROCLAMATION FOR PARDONING DESERTERS FROM His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for granting to His Majesty, a certain sum of Money, for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the exportation thereof;" It is (among other things enacted,) that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act, it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as Commissioners for the purchasing of merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province. And whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the exportation thereof;" It is enacted, that the sum of Sixty two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton, should be the rate or price for good and Merchantable Hemp, which might be thereafter purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

NOW KNOW ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, That I, FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, do, by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, nominate, constitute and appoint, the Honorable James Baby, the Honorable Richard Cartwright, the Honorable Robert Hamilton, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot, of Port Talbot, Esq. and William Allan, of York, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners or any one or more of them are, and is hereby respectively authorized & empowered, to purchase such Hemp, at & after the price or rate in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes, in such case made and provided; And to do, perform and execute all such other matters & things, as they are authorized and required to do, in and by the said recited Acts.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty-ninth year of His Majesty's Reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

GOTTENBURGH MAIL.

Stockholm, Nov. 11.—His royal Majesty has received the following report from the general in chief of the Finnish Army, including a report from Colonel Sandals, chief of Brigade, touching a severe battle which has been fought in the vicinity of Ideofalme, since the armistice concluded between the Swedish and Russian armies was declared to be at an end, received yesterday by a Russian officer from Lieut. Tuchkoff, with the intimation that hostilities would immediately commence.

"Soon after I received a report that my advanced posts had been attacked by the Russians, and compelled by the enemy's great superiority in number to fall back to Wirdabridge, which soon after broke down after the troops had crossed it. A violent cannonading was immediately commenced by the enemy from the neighboring heights, which was vigorously returned from our side, and Prince Dolgorouky, who commanded the Russian van, was mortally wounded at the beginning of the action, and expired soon after. In the mean time the enemy's chasseurs and infantry crossed the bridge, which they had repaired, formed the line, and advanced against our troops, notwithstanding the vigorous cannonade which was kept up from our batteries, which they attempted to carry, but were repulsed by our troops with the utmost intrepidity and valour, and pursued as far as Wirda bridge. In this action the enemy's loss consisted in 360 men killed and wounded, and 70 taken prisoners, among whom are three field officers.

"According to the accounts of the prisoners, the enemy's force in the above affair which lasted six hours, exceeded 6000 men, commanded by lieut. General Tuschoff, and under him by generals Rackmonoff, Prince Dolgorouky and Alexejeff.

"At the close of the action, the Russian commanding general propofed a fuspenfion of hoftilities for 24 hours to bury his dead, which I was the more ready to grant, as our loss was alfo confiderable, confifting of 30 killed, and 250 wounded.

Latest News.

Aranjuez, Nov. 17.—Lieut. general Don Joachim Blake has reported from Elpinala, under date of the 10th inft. that finding it impoffible to maintain himfelf in Biscay on account of the fcarcity of provifions, he refolved to move with the army to the above place & its environs, in order to procure provifions and allow his troops fome moments of repofe. When he made the neceffary preparations to carry that refolution into effect, the enemy appeared before Valmaloda, 14 or 15,000 ftrong, which place was occupied by the firft and fecond divifions, & the Afturian troops. Several detachments were fent to skirmish with the enemy while the main body was falling back to Nava. The third divifion poffed at Orantus, was at the fame time attacked by a numerous French corps, which, no doubt, intended to occupy the road to Nava, and cut off the retreat of our troops; but the enemy were defeated, and the third divifion effected a junction with the army in Nava, the whole of which filed off in Elpenofa de las Montens, covering the retreat of the North divifion, commanded by general count de S. Romana. The faid General Blake reports from Rinofa, under the date of the 11th, that at 9 o'clock in the morning, his army was attacked by very fuperior forces, but our troops, both officers and men, maintained their pofitions with the utmoft gallantry until the fall of night, and the enemy was repulfed on all fides, but being conftderably reinforced by frefh troops, and availing himfelf of his vaft fuperiority in number, he attacked again the next day, general Blake's army ftill fatigued by the glorious exertion of the preceding day, and making fome impreffion on our left, the centre and right fell back towards St. Andero, and took poft in Reinofa, where the whole army rallied, and the Marquis de la Romana affumed the command in Chief.—Madrid Gazette, Nov. 13.

Lydela, Nov. 6.——Yefterday, at three o'clock in the afternoon, his Excellency Don Joleph de Palafox, and a Major General Doyle, arrived at this place, and proceeded to the houfe of the former Don Francifco de Palafox, where in the evening, a meeting of the generals was held. The next morning they returned to Sarragoffa. Two Phyficians who made their efcape from Pampeluna ftate, that the French have three upwards of 500 fick, and that from 40 to 50 are dying every day. All travellers who come from Navarre, confirm that intelligence.

Coruna, Nov. 26.

By letters received in the courfe of yefterday we learn, that with commendable activity and addrefs the lieutenant colonel Don Enrique Canfeco, has procured the artillery of the army of Eftremadura, and in like manner that the lieutenant Colonel Don Miguel Valledor, has conducted to Leon, the artillery and ammunition at Reynofa. Conftdering the activity and addrefs neceffary for thefe particular fervices, one cannot but highly praife thefe worthy officers, and in general all thofe of the royal corps of artillery who conducted themfelves fo gallantly; without meaning by this eulogium to deprive the other officers and foldiers of the army of the praife fo juftly due to them.—The retreat of our army to Leon has deranged all the plans of the enemy, who the moment they fhall know of our junction with the Englifh army and the reinforcements which we fhall fend with the utmoft difpatch muft abandon all the country he occupies, unlefs he would be cut off and obliged to furrender; this point of reunion was the only one we ought to have chofe in cafe the enemy penetrate by Borgage in the plains. But when the two armies have joined, we fhall have cavalry, and that very refpectable. The organization and reunion will be effected without lofs of time, and clearing the plains we will march immediately to diflodge them from Burgos, and all the country they occupy from that to Bidafoa. Let us then have courage and conftancy, and make every exertion that reinforcements may not be delayed an inftant.—Diari de Coruhna.

LONDON, Decr. 9.

It was on Wednefday ftated at Lloyd's, that inteligence had been received of Bonaparte's arrival at Madrid, on the 17th ult. but from what quarter, or by what means fuch a ftatement was brought to the Coffee-Houfe we could not afcertain.

Mr. Munro, one of the king's meffengers, who arrived yefterday with the Corunna mail, and brought difpatches from Lord William Bentinck, and Mr. Frere, brought difpatches from Generals Broderick and Leith, having paffed along the line of march of Sir David Baird's army. The accounts received by government were given in fubftance in a Bulletin, of which the following is a copy:

BULLETIN.

It appears by difpatches received from Corunna dated the 23d, and from San Vicente de la Barquera, dated the 19th ult. that the account of general Blake being defeated is confirmed. He was engaged in continual actions from the 4th to the 13th. On the 11th the Afturians having been worfted on the left, the French got poffeffion of a height which covered the road on which they retreated, and they were thrown into great confufion, and General Blake retired to Reynofa, but a French column, appearing upon this road from Burgos, he retreated by Salo to San Vincente de la Barquera. There, upon the 17th, he had collected near 20,000 of his troops, and the Marquis de la Romana had taken the command, and they would be in a ftate of advance again.

"The French has occupied St. Andero & Santona—the former on the 16th, and the latter on the 20th. But by the exertions of General Leith, all the provifions, ammunition and ftores fent by this country, had been removed.

"It appears that part of the army at Eftremadura had been defeated near Burgos by the French; but there is no account of their having advanced beyond it. General Moore arrived on the 10th at Salamanca—General Baird was at Aftorga."

To this we add, on the credit however, of private letters, that the French corps that advanced to Palladolid had afterwards retreated to Burgos.

LATER ACCOUNTS.

The favourite cutter has arrived at Plymouth, from the coaft of Spain—The Bonne Citoyenne, Capt. Thompfon, arrived yefterday at Portsmouth. Capt. Thompfon has fince reached town. He left Corunna on the 26th ult. and brings accounts from General Blake's army to the 24th. The fubftance of the intelligence by the Bonne Citoyenne, will be found in the fubjoined letters:—

Portsmouth, Dec. 1.

"This afternoon arrived here the Bonne Citoyenne, Capt. Thompfon, with difpatches from Corunna, from whence the Bonne Citoyenne, failed on Saturday laft, the 26th ult. Capt. Thompfon brings difpatches from General Blake's army, which continued retreating, but bravely defending every inch of ground, till the 24th, when General Blake made a firm ftand, and repelled his enemies, numerous as they were. After this action General Blake's force remained 25,000 ftrong. This we muft think very good news; but, we regret to hear that Romana's force, having made fome miftake in the rout, fell in with the enemy, and after a very brave refiftance, and having flaughtered an immenfe number of the enemy, he was at length overpowered and cut to pieces. We regret ftill more to learn that Bonaparte's emiffaries had but too well fucceeded in ftirring up fedition, and that the Prince of Peace's party was formidable in Spain. We truft, however, that the Patriots will ultimately fucceed over Bonaparte and the Prince of Peace.

The laft letters from Madrid are not in the expreffion of alarm. The Spanifh troops have been fucceafsful every where but in Bifcay and Gallicia: and a great part of the army of Eftramadura, which, it was confidered had been deftroyed at Burgos, has efcaped, though in a deftitute ftate, to Segovia.

The enemy's excurfions in Caftile have been rapid, but of fhort duration. At Palencia, however, and Valladolid, they accomplifhed the releafe of a number of French prifoners and fome fufpected per

The pul[illegible] feeling is, on the whole in a better ftate than it was ten days. Human nature muft lament the fufferings and endurances of the brave patriots—but the recollection is unaccompanied by any difmay, as to the refult of their exertions.

Gallant and Sanguinary Action.—The following letter from Plymouth records the moft gallant and fanguinary Action that has been fought this war.—It was between the Amethyft of 36 guns, and the Thetis, a French frigate of 44 guns—Need we add that the latter was taken?—

"Plymouth, Nov. 14.

"Came in the Amethyft 36 guns, captain Seymour from a cruize off L'Orient.—Laft Thurfday evening fhe fell in with a large French Frigate of 44 guns and 436 men, including 100 foldiers—brought her to clofe action at 7 p. m. in the moft gallant ftyle, which lafted three hours and a half, one hour and a half of which they were grappled by the anchor of the Amethyft ftriking in the bow of the French frigate, when the fire of the enemy ftackened and foon ceafed.—After two fmart broadfides from the Amethyft fhe ftruck. On being boarded fhe appeared like a channel houfe, the dead and mangled bodies lying in heaps on the deck. She proved to be the Thetis, of 44 guns, Mons. Pinfen, and 436 men, including 100 foldiers——out of which the had captain Pinfen killed, and 286 men killed and wounded. Out of 100 foldiers there are only fourteen left alive. She had on board 1000 barrels of flour for Martinique, and Mons Thibaud, Lieutenant Governor of that Iland. She is a fine frigate of her claſs, and every officer on board of her but one, is either killed or wounded. The French frigate, from all accounts, was well manœuvred; but the very fuperior fire of the Amethyft bore down all oppofition. We are happy to ftate, that the gallant capt. Seymour is unhurt; Lieutenant Kendall, Royal Marines, wounded; Mr. Gibfon, Master's mate, and Mr. Marks Miller's mate, are badly wounded; 19 feamen and Royal Marines, killed, and 51 feamen and royal marines wounded.—It is fuppofed to be the moft defperate action that has been fought this war, and redounds greatly to the credit and difcipline of captain Seymour, his officers and fhip's company.—The prize is now in tow of the Shannon, 32, which hove in fight at the clofe of the action. The Thetis is twelve feet longer than the Amethyft.

Very Interefting Foreign Intelligence.—Arrived at this port laft evening, the fhip Philipsburgh, Leffingwell, from Liverpool and Cork and the Britifh Packet Princefs Amelia, Moorfon, from Falmouth—The Editor of the Commercial Adverttifer is indebted to the politenefs of his friend Profeffor Hall of Middlebury College (Vermont) who came paffenger in the Philipsburgh, for files of London and Cork papers, the former to the 4th, and the latter to the 8th of December. From thefe we have filled our paper this evening with very intereffing extracts. Other articles fhall be given hereafter.

In prefenting this mafs of intelligence to our readers, we avail ourfelves of the following fummary from the Cork Chronicle of December 7.

It will be recollected, that on the 31ft of October, General Blake was attacked by a large French force near Durango, and after a brave and obftinate refiftance compelled to fall back upon Bilboa, and fubfequently upon Navia. By this fuccefs of the enemy, two divifions of this army were feparated from the body he commanded, and he refolved to effect a junction with them. With this intention on the 5th, he advanced and attacked a ftrong column of the enemy, which he defeated and drove beyond the Valmaleda. On the feventh he again attacked them, but for fome want of co-operation in the centre divifions of his army, he was unable to advance and he again retreated upon Valmaleda. On the 9th the rear divifion of his army was ftarply engaged and not unfuccefsfully. On the 9th, the French renewed their attack, and with great fuperiority of number.—This was a fanguinary conflict, and maintained upon both fides during the day. It terminated favorably for Blake.—By the affiftance of reinforcements the French were enabled to refume offenfive fighting on the 11th, and the Spaniards were at length compelled to give way to this inceffancy of attack with augmented numbers. They were broken and thrown into confufion. The occupation of fome elevated ground in their line of retreat, gave the enemy fuch an advantage, as to compel Blake to feek his fecurity by the facrifice of a part of his cannon and baggage. He, however, fucceeded in gaining Reynofa with whatever he could collect of his difperfed forces. His adverfary gave him no refpite in this poft, and an immediate attack upon it forced him to retreat to Villa Vicienza.—This laft movement was perilous, and difplayed the conſummate ability of General Blake, and the unfubdued bravery of his army. Perhaps the hiſtory of any time does not fupply inſtances of greater intrepidity and determination in battle, and of more endurance and conſtancy under every kind of hardſhip and privation than Blake's Army evinced during this unremitting warfare. The ſoldiers of this very great man, inſpired by his example, and by the cauſe of their country, fought without clothes, ſhoes, or ſtockings, literally almoſt naked, expoſed to all the ſeverity of the weather in that condition.—They had not for ſeveral days more food than would juſt ſuſtain nature—and before the accumulated preſſure, of want, fatigue, and a powerful enemy, they at laſt gave way. Since the French ruler began his career of tyranny, he has not had ſuch adverſaries to contend with as this band of heroes—and if we judge from what they have performed, ſuch he is likely ſtill to find in Spain. We are compelled to cloſe obſervations by merely ſtating, that General Blake's army which could not retreat to St. Vincent with the Marquis de Romana were collecting at Leon, and with ſome augmentation of new levies, made a force of nearly 20,000.

The brother of the Marquis de Romana, and General Quiroz, were killed in the battle of the 11th.

The Fr. occupied Santander on the 15th ult.

There are ſeveral rumours afloat, ſtating, that the French had been repulſed from St. Vincente de Barquera, with great loſs—that they have retreated from Burgos—that Auſtria and the Porte have declared war againſt France, and ſeveral others equally flattering, and deſirable, which we cannot permit ourſelves to credit at preſent.

An Auſtrian meſſenger, it is ſtated, came in the Minſtrel, which arrived in Plymouth on Wedneſday laſt, from Mol[illegible]. A Treaty, it is reported, is nearly concluded between England and Auſtria.

Official accounts from Stockholm confirm the defeat of the Ruſſians in Finland.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.

The Britiſh ſchr. Swift, captain Young, from Porto-Rico, is arrived at Newport-Iland with the loſs of her anchors.—Capt. Y. ſailed from thence on the 23d ult. previous to which time a Spaniſh veſſel arrived from St. Andero, with advices to the 17th of November, ſtating that the Spaniards had obtained a great victory, and captured Pampeluna. Capt. Young alſo informs that the Britiſh had taken Martinique with the loſs of 730 men. The city of St. Domingo had offered to capitulate to the government of Porto-Rico, and an officer had been diſpatched to St. Domingo for that purpoſe.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—We yeſterday announced the receipt of diſpatches from Spain, communicating an account of an action between the Spaniards under gen. Blake, and the French army under general Ney. It appears that gen. Blake having advanced from Bilboa, attacked the enemy on the 26th at Zarnoza, on the road to Durango, to which the French, under gen. Merlin had withdrawn, after they had evacuated Bilboa. After a ſhort but very ſharp action the French began to retreat, but continued to diſpute every inch of ground during the whole of their retrograde movement. General Blake advanced as far as Darnoza, from whence he meant ſhortly to make a freſh attack upon the enemy, who, it was thought, would riſk a general battle in defence of Durango, as the poſſeſſion of it by the Spaniards, would place them completely in the rear of the French at Vittoria. In this action the Spaniards are ſaid to have loſt 2000 men. The loſs of the French is repreſented as much more conſiderable. A private letter ſtates that a French corps, conſiſting of upwards of 4000 infantry, was entirely cut off and compelled to ſurrender. On the 27th, General Blake reconnoitered the poſition of the enemy, and determined to attack them with all possible speed: so that the next arrival will in all probability bring us accounts of the utmost importance from that quarter. The army under the command of marshal Lefebvre had, we understand, been reinforced by about 3000 men from France; but beyond this we have not heard of material reinforcements having reached the enemy in Spain.

The army under the command of Blake, is estimated at 50,000 men, mostly infantry; that under Castanos is nearly 90,000, including a great number of cavalry. An army from Catalonia, amounting to between 30 and 40,000, under the command of Vivas, had also proceeded to join the main body. The army of Arragon, which continued to advance, had been strengthened by great numbers of recruits, who flocked voluntarily from all parts of that Province, to share in the glory which was expected soon to result from the joint exertions of the patriotic forces.

These accounts were brought by the Windsor Castle Packet, arrived at Falmouth in 5 days from St. Andero. Private letters from St. Andero, of the 31st the day on which the Packet sailed, describe the French army as being in great want of provisions, and that many desertions daily took place.

At the imperial meeting at Erfurth, one million and five hundred thousand dollars are said to have been thrown into circulation in that town and its environs. The two emperors paid each for their apartment, 50 Louis-dors a day

An article from Hamburgh, of the 21st ult. states that the two emperors, before their departure from Erfurth, signed a new treaty of amity and alliance.

The contents of the propositions from Erfurth, and the answer of our government, have been from the beginning subjects of anxious curiosity and speculation. Among the various opinions hazarded upon them, the following account of their substance is considered the most worthy of notice:—The offer, it is said, was to the following effect, that we "should acknowledge Joseph as king of Spain, and that Bonaparte was then ready to treat with us upon any terms we might propose." To which our answer is said to have been, that "he should restore Ferdinand, and we had then no objection to negociate on the uti possidetus."

County Subscribers who are in arrears for the Gazette, and for Advertisements inserted by desire, are requested, if convenient to them, to leave the amount in any Grain advertised to be purchased by Mr. St. George, at the places he proposes to receive Grain in the Country; a document from the Miller or person in charge of the Mill, will oblige the Subscriber. J. CAMERON.

NOTICE.

TO THE PATRONS OF THE Public Good.

IN behalf of the Society, by which I am employed, I would render sincere thanks to those gentlemen in this town, who have favoured me with their names and furnished me with money to carry into operation the benevolent design for which the Society sent me out.

I have agreed with a printer in this town for several thousand tracts of different kinds, to be struck off, as soon as possible. When they are printed I have ordered one of each kind to be sent to every person who has contributed to the work; that all may see to what use their money has been applied.—And the names of all those who have given to the amount of one Dollar will be sent to Boston and inserted in the PANOPTIST, a periodical work published monthly.—And if there are any other gentlemen in this vicinity who have not contributed and feel disposed to engage in the benevolent plan of attempting to enlighten the ignorant, and to reform the vicious, they will be so kind as to forward their names to the Printer hereof, or to Mr. John Campbell, Inn-Keeper, where I took lodgings, who holds the subscription paper, and the tokens of their liberality affixed to them. Those who subscribe a dollar will have their names inserted in the PANOPLIST with the sum annexed; and the smallest sum will be gratefully received by the public's sincere friend,

and humble servant,
THADDEUS OSGOOD.

PROCLAMATION

FOR

PARDONING DESERTERS

FROM

His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from HIS REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

London

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Places as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES in the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of aloning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

Of the Governments of Guinea &c.

In this Country there are some sovereign princes, whose dominions are very extensive, rich, and powerful, and who are arbitrary monarchs, limited by no laws, or any other restraints. And there are a multitude of others, to whom the Europeans have given the name of Kings, whose dominions do not exceed the distant bounds of a common Parish, and whose power and revenues are proportionally mean. But the King of Whidah, or Fidah, is reverenced and much feared by his subjects, and is by them considered as a demigod; they always appear in his presence either kneeling or prostrate on the ground. When they attend him in the morning; they prostrate themselves before the gate of his palace, kiss the earth three times, and clapping their hands together, use some expressions that look more like the adoration of some deity, than any compliments paid to an earthly prince, and they even tremble at the sight of him.

No person whatever is permitted to see his Majesty eat, or to know in what part of the palace he sleeps, unless his wives, of whom the King has seldom less than a thousand; these continually surround him and are his life-guards, and are frequently sent on embassies, and employed in executing such commands and sentences as seem much more proper for men, such as punishing criminals, pulling down houses and inflicting the other severe chastisements decreed and ordered by their Sovereign Lord and husband.

When the King goes abroad, five or six hundred of his wives run before him, or attend him: he has not it is said, a single man in his train.

The chief magistrates under the King, are the Cabiceroes, whom he consults in state affairs, and concerning peace & war, and by these he usually administers justice to the people.

We do not find this King ever wearing a crown, or that there is any other ceremony at his accession, than the shewing him publicly to the people, and sacrificing some animals to his gods.—The eldest son, and in some places the brother, is intitled to the throne; the females never succeed, except in one kingdom up on this large coast.

The habits of the common people, in Proper Guinea, are a cloth about their middle, and the people of condition have another over their shoulders, and are adorned with abundance of rings & bracelets of gold, ivory or copper; the arms, legs, and great part of the bodies of the men are naked, but the women are veiled when they go abroad.

Of their Religion, they generally acknowledge one supreme almighty being, that created the universe; and yet pay no manner of worship or adoration, never praying to him, or giving him thanks for any thing they enjoy. They believe he is too far exalted above them to take any notice of poor mortals, and therefore pray and sacrifice to a multitude of inferior deities; of which they have some in common to whole nations; and yet every one has a god of his own chusing.

The Sea is one of their principal gods, to which they sacrifice, when the winds, and waves are so tempestuous, that no foreign merchants can visit their coasts. This usually happens in July, and they then throw in all manner of goods, meat, drink, and clothing, to appease the enraged element.

IMPORTANT REPORT.

By the arrival yesterday of the Brig Triton, from Halifax, a report was received of the defeat of a French army in Spain. The information reached Halifax subsequent to the publication of the papers of the day—so that no printed account has been received. We have however, been so fortunate as to obtain the following extract of a letter respecting this interesting intelligence:—

Extract of a letter from Halifax, Jan. 28.

"I have just time to copy from a Newfoundland paper (just received) the following paragraphs:

"Royal Gazette Office,
"St. John's, N. F. Dec. 29.

"On Saturday last arrived here the brig Elizabeth, capt. Way, in 23 days from Lisbon. He reports, that the evening previous to his sailing, news had arrived that a general engagement had taken place between the united forces of the British and Spanish troops and the French army.—The latter were Defeated, with the loss of 5000 killed. The former lost 2000 men—and we are sorry to learn that General Baird is mentioned among the number. Our troops distinguished themselves, and much praise is bestowed on the 20th regiment of cavalry for their gallantry in the action."

[As there were British officers of high rank in Portugal, it might be the duty of the officer commanding the British troops in Spain to send an express thither. Our last rumours via England, mentioned, that the retreating Spaniards had turned upon the French, on the 24th of Nov. & the British troops were extremely near. Lisbon is better situated than Cadiz for news from the northern armies in Spain.]

NORFOLK, Feb. 2.

A letter has been received by a gentleman in this place, from the Captain of the British frigate Guerrier, in which it is stated, that Martinique, had surrendered to the British, and that Guadaloupe was invested.

Died in England, General Guy Carleton, Lord Dorchester, K. B. aged 84; formerly Governor General of Canada, and commanding the British troops in America, at the conclusion of the peace:—he is succeeded in his title by a son of the late Colonel Tarleton, about 4 years of age. [Albany Gaz.

PRINTED BY CAMERON AND BENNETT, ... STREET.

YORK, MARCH 9, 1809.

This Day His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the usual Formalities, closed the Session of the Legislature, and was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houses:—

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

HAVING dedicated a considerable portion of your time with zeal, and I hope with success, to the Public Service, and the business of the Session being concluded; I have great pleasure in being able to relieve you, from your Labors.

Your attention to the Quartering and Accommodation of His Majesty's Regular Forces, and of the Militia when called into Actual Service, affords a convincing proof of your watchful attention, to whatever may be necessary for our Preservation and Defence.—The Provisions of an Act passed by you, for preventing vexatious Suits at Law, and the continuance of the Arrangements made between this Province, and that of Lower Canada, with the Regulations which you have established relative to Gold Coin, discover that you are not less solicitous to promote such measures as may tend to the Internal Prosperity of this Province.

The other Laws which you have enacted, have also met with my approbation, and appear to me, to be well calculated to accomplish the salutary ends, which they propose.

You have now for a Season finished the Task, which as Branches of the Legislature, you have been called upon to perform—But on retiring to the situation of Private Individuals, you will still have it in your power to render the most essential Services to your Country.—Well knowing the value of our excellent Constitution, by your Influence and Example, you will be able to promote amongst those around you, a Spirit of Loyalty to the King; of Attachment to our Parent State, and of Subordination to the Laws,—the only means by which that Constitution can be supported, and the Happiness as well as the Safety of this Province, under every circumstance preserved.

Died, at Carlisle, Penn. Mr. John Lyle and his wife; their house caught on fire while they were in a state of intoxication! and they were consumed with it—a dog belonging to the house was heard barking during the conflagration, and was found consumed close by his master's remains. Lyle and his wife, (loving creatures!) were seen fighting about two hours before the dreadful catastrophe, which took place about nine o'clock in the evening.

[Boston Palladium, Feb. 10.

The CHILD OF SORROW'S Tale.

Deny, but do not taunt a maid
Who never scorn, with scorn repays,
Proud man, tho' now I ask your aid,
Mine once, alas! were happier days.
But sorrow mark'd me for her own
Before I told my twentieth year,
Yet when my friends began to frown,
I but reproach'd them with—a tear.

I ne'er could frame the harsh reply,
The look unkind, by feeling fear'd,
E'en when I met disdain's gold eye,
E'en when I cruel language heard.
I've seen my friend, my earliest friend,
Refuse my tale of woe to hear;
Yet still unwilling to offend,
All my remembrance was—a tear.

And I have known the Slanderer's tongue
My fame with vile dishonor paint,
Yet on my lips no curses hung,
The murmur—mild was my complaint,
And I was forc'd by cruel power
To leave the scenes I held most dear;
Oh, 'twas indeed a trying hour,
Yet all my language was—a tear.

And I have known the youth I lov'd
Recall the vows he swore to me,
Behold my pallid cheek unmov'd
And smiling, boast that he was free!
Yet I was calm,—and (hour of dread)
I saw him woo a maid more dear—
But I was mute—I only shed,
No, no! I could not shed a tear.

Ah, full was then my cup of grief,
Friends, fortune, lover, fame all lost!—
A Beggar now, I ask relief,
A smile, a trifling boon at most;—
Still can you chide me from your door?
Ah no! your looks compassion wear;
So large a gift—Oh words were poor!
I thank, I bless you, in—a tear.

Virtue is the race which God hath set man to run; & happiness the goal; which none can arrive at till he hath finished his course, and received his crown in the mansions of eternity.

Felicity pure and unmixed, is by no means a draught for mortal man.

The terrors even of death are no terrors to the good; he that committeth no guilt, hath nothing to fear.

Envy not the appearance of happiness in any man, for thou knowest not his secret griefs.

Let not hope allure, nor fear deter thee from doing that which is right; so shalt thou be prepared to meet all events with an equal mind.

Murmur not at the dispensation of God, but correct thine own heart, neither lay within thyself, if I had wealth or power, or leisure, I should be happy, for know, they all of them bring to their several possessors their peculiar inconveniences.

From the experience of others do thou learn wisdom; and from their failings correct thine own faults.

To the FRIENDS of MORALITY and LITERATURE in YORK, and its Vicinity.

THE Subscriber has been engaged for several months past in travelling through the two Provinces of Canada, in the character of a Missionary.—My time has been devoted to purchasing lectures from town to town, and visiting Schools and private families. And the great want of religious information which I have discovered among the lower classes of the community, induces me to make the greatest exertions in my power, and earnestly solicit the assistance of my fellow men, towards furnishing them with the means of improving their minds and reforming their manners.—Much has been done in some parts of Europe, towards instructing the ignorant and reforming the vicious, by means of printing and distributing Tracts & giving away small books to the poor. I have been making an humble attempt to promote the same benevolent design in this Country. And by the patronage and assistance of the friends of humanity where I have been lecturing, I have been enabled to give away about 300 dollars worth of moral and religious Tracts; and I trust, by the assistance of the Public in this part of the country, the benevolent plan will be carried into some good degree of perfection.

The names of those who have given to the amount of one dollar, towards the business of printing and circulating Tracts, are translated, and a copy may be seen at Mr. Post's, in York, and likewise at Mr. Mower's, at Montreal;—another copy is left with Mr. Frieon, Merchant, at Niagara. And different kinds of small Tracts are left for distribution at the above mentioned places.—All are invited without distinction of sects, to accept of the Tracts; for it is presumed, nothing will be found among the small tracts which are or may be printed, that is calculated to wound the feelings of different sects and denominations of Christians; and should anything be found among the small tracts in circulation, that wounds the feelings of the man of pleasure, it is hoped, that such wounded feelings may be amply compensated for all the pains which they endure, while reading a suitable warning from a friend.

The principal design of these small tracts, is to instruct the ignorant and reform the vicious, and it is the sincere desire and fervent prayer of every Christian, that they may have the desired effect.

Let none fear to call for these tracts, because they may be unable, or feel unwilling to give any thing towards favoring the plan. For nothing is expected from the poor; and if any are able, but feel unwilling to afford their assistance, it is hoped, that by reading such tracts they may be made willing to do something towards assisting their fellow men. And all those who feel themselves able and willing to afford their aid towards printing and distributing small tracts in these Provinces, are desired to give in their names and the sums which they are disposed to contribute, either to Mr. Mower at Montreal, Mr. Post at York, or to Mr. Heron at Niagara, by whom it will be applied to the purpose before mentioned.

I am about to take leave of the Province, and complete that part of my mission which lies within the States. And I desire, in this public manner, to return sincere thanks to God, and to my fellow-men for the kind reception with which I have met, while journeying through this part of the country.—A. S. I hope and trust, the honorable Society in whose service I am, will annually send some supplies to destitute parts of these Provinces.

With sentiments of respect I subscribe Myself the Public's sincere Friend
and humble Servant,
THADDEUS OSGOOD.

Country Subscribers who are in arrears for the Gazette, and for Advertisements inserted by desire, are requested, if convenient so them, to leave the amount in any Grain advertised to be purchased by Mr. St. George, at the places he proposes to receive Grain in the Country; a document from the Miller or person in charge of the Mill, will oblige the Subscriber. J. CAMERON.

NOTICE.

TAKEN up by the Subscriber, on his Farm in Vaughan, about the 1st January last, a yearling Heifer, with the following natural marks, viz.—A white spot on the forehead, white up the shoulders, white flanks, a white tail and white hind-legs; the rest of the animal is red. The owner by paying charges, and proving property, is required to take her away. JOHN BRUCE.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

WANTED by the Subscriber 10,000 BUSHELS MERCHANTABLE WHEAT; and in order to accomodate them, it will be received at the following Mills, viz.

At Lyon & Walker's, Yonge Street,
Milliken & Miller's, Markham,
And Timothy Rogers', Pickering.

One DOLLAR per Bushel will be given; one half in Cash, if required, and the other half in Merchandize at Cash price, and no advantage taken.

Also, The highest Market Prices for Flour, Corn, Oats, Butter, Cheese and Pork at his Store in York.

Having given some of those who are thickred to him a further space of time to the 25th of February next, the latter to enable them to settle their Accounts; he confidently expects that they will avail themselves of the proffered opportunity, otherwise he will be obliged to put into the hands of his Attorney for collection, all Notes and Accounts that may remain unsettled after that period.

HENRY DREAN.

York, 31st January, 1809.

THE Subscriber informs his customers and the Farmers in general, that he will receive Merchantable Wheat at the following Mills, viz Lyon & Walker's on Yonge Street, Milliken & Miller's in Markham, and at Timothy Rogers's in Pickering; for which he will give at the rate of seven shillings New-York Currency per Bushel, when received in payment for debts that have been contracted for eighteen Months past.—Seven shillings and six pence N. Y. Cy. per bushel, in payment for debts that have been contracted nine Months and upwards; and eight shillings of the currency per Bushel, when in payment for debts that have been contracted subsequent to 1st of April last, or in exchange for Goods.

He will also receive in payment for debts not exceeding nine months standing, or in exchange for merchandize, the following prices of Country produce, at the prices affixed to each and, and delivered at his Store in York, viz.

FLOUR, two pounds six shillings New York currency per Barrel, containing 196 pounds nett.
BYE and PEASE, seven shillings N.Y. currency per Bushel.
INDIAN CORN, five shillings ——— ditto ——— per Bushel.
OATS, three Shillings ——— ditto ——— per Bushel.
BUTTER and CHEESE, Price according to the quality.
PORK, fourteen dollars per Barrel of 200 pounds Nett, and six pence N. Y. currency, when not cut up.

Cash will be given for the above articles at a reduced price, or they will be received in Payment of debts, contracted previous to the 1st of April last, upon a reasonable deduction in the price.

The subscriber regrets that he could not make an arrangement with Mr. J. Bagley; but any Flour manufactured at his Mills, and branded with his mark, will be received and a generous price given.

From the generous prices now offered for all kinds of produce, the subscriber entertains the hope that his friends in the country, will be enabled to settle their accounts of long standing. In justice to himself, he has to inform those that are in his debt for goods, had eighteen months past, and who will not profit by the advantageous terms offered, that unless their accounts are discharged before the first of February next ensuing, they will be put into the hands of an Attorney for collection.

Should the Embargo continue, he will furnish his customers, or any person recommended by them (if required) in the Month of April next, with Pot-Ash Kettles, at a reasonable price, and furnish goods for the purchase of Ashes.

QUETTON ST. GEORGE.

N. B. Any person who may wish to make a payment in wheat, or exchange that article for Goods, about such person lives at greater distance from any of the aforementioned Mills than from York, his wheat will be received at the Store of the Subscriber in York; which truly is to accommodate his customers in every possible and reasonable way.

PROCLAMATION
FOR PARDONING DESERTERS
FROM
His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments to which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserters from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

SPANISH PAPERS.

We have seen a file of the official Madrid Gazettes to the 29th of November. They contain numerous accounts of military operations, in which success seldom deserted the patriotic standards: and no indications of any severe reverses.—It appeared, however, that a party of the French had advanced to Soria, on one side; and that General Frias, who commanded the patriot army of Estremadura had retired to Somosiera, about 60 miles from Madrid. But on the 15th November, General Palafox wrote from Calaborra, that the French had evacuated Caparosia, and had retreated to Penalto. In Catalonia, General Vives had given battle to the French, and it was said had taken Rosas. He had declared Barcelona in a state of rigid siege.—Troops were continually passing the interior towns on their march to the armies. The English Ambassador to the supreme Junta was received in great style, at Aranjuez, the 14th Nov.—Don Cevallos was present. The official publications of the Supreme Junta breathed the most determined spirit; & their tables were filled with addresses of congratulation on their progress, of confidence in their patriotism, and devotion to the holy cause of the country. They state their men in arms at 400,000. Every paper contained columns of patriotic donations, from the widow's mite, to gifts of 50,000 reals each. We have seen no accounts of the progress of the British army, excepting that under the head of Badajoz, Nov. 12, it is stated that on the 27th October, the 2d, 36th, 71st and 92d regiments of foot passed that city for Castile; and were followed on the 7th November, by the 18th regiment of light dragoons. Business appeared very brisk at Cadiz. On the 14th of November, the Francisco de Paula, of 74 guns, sailed for Vera Cruz, convoying six vessels for that port; three for Havanna; two for Honduras; one for Maracaibo; six for Montevido, and Buenos Ayres; and one for Carthagena.

London, Dec. 6.—The King of Prussia has been obliged to deliver to the French his famous service of gold; it was conveyed to Berlin under an escort of Genl. Blucher's hussars called the "Death Head." A serious affray took place between these hussars, and some French troops who had insulted them, and several lives were lost before order was restored.

Marshal Brune, it is said, died in prison at Paris, on the fifth day of his confinement. It was supposed he was poisoned.

Extract of a letter addressed to a gentleman of Philadelphia, dated

"Havanna, Jan. 29, 1809.

"A Spanish ship arrived here this morning, in a remarkable short passage from Cadiz, bringing the pleasing intelligence of the defeat of the French army at Madrid on the 8th and 9th of December, by the combined English and Spanish armies. The French lost 14,000 killed, and 16,000 prisoners—the lois of the combined armies is very considerable.

It is also added, that there was great rejoicing at the Havanna, in consequence of this information.

The letter from which the above was extracted came by a vessel arrived at an Eastern port.

Bridgetown, (Barbadoes) Jan. 17.

The boats of his Majesty's brig Morne Fortunee have recently captured, close under Morne Bueuf, Martinique, a fine French cutter, called the Frederick, of 163 tons, from Havre, bound to St. Pierre, with a valuable cargo of wine, oil, flour, beef and dry goods.

LONDON, Dec. 15.

The Government has published the following declaration upon the negotiation proposed by Russia and France;—

"The proposals made by the Governments of Russia and France have not terminated in any negotiation; and as the correspondence is concluded, His Majesty thinks fit immediately to make public the result. The continual appearance of a negotiation after seeing that it was absolutely impossible to obtain a peace, would only be advantageous to the enemy. It would offer to France an opportunity to sow discord and jealousy in the councils of those who are united to resist oppression, and the illusive prospects of a peace between Great Britain and France could only be prejudicial to those nations which groan under the tyranny of French alliance, or those which preserve a vacillating and precarious independance, if among them there should be one which actually is wavering between the inevitable ruin of a prolonged inactivity, and the consequent risks of an effort to liberate itself: those proposals would hold out the vain hope that they might be permitted to renew their tranquility, or would alarm them with the fear of remaining alone in the contest. His Majesty was fully persuaded that this was the principal object of France in the proposals that were made to him from Erfurth, at a time when such terrible consequences would result from the decision of peace or war, both from its importance and the uncertainty of the result. His Majesty saw the necessity of investigating, if it were possible, the views and designs of the enemy. It was difficult for His Majesty to believe that the Emperor of Russia should so blindly have delivered himself up to the violence and ambition of that power, with whom his Imperial Majesty has unfortunately allied himself; that he should be disposed to assist openly in the usurpation of the Spanish monarchy, and to acknowledge and defend the rights which France has arrogated to herself; to depose and imprison the Royal Family, and to compel them by force to transfer to her the oath of fidelity of an independent nation therefore, when it was proposed to his Majesty to enter into a negotiation for a general peace, in concert with his allies, and to treat either on the basis of the Uti possidetis, which until now has been a subject of so many disputes, or on any basis whatever, compatible with justice, honor, and equality; his Majesty determined to oppose to this feigned candour & moderation, a candour real and sincere, on his part.

His Majesty declared he was ready to enter into the negotiation in concert with his allies, and therefore communicated to them immediately the proposals which he had received. But as his Majesty was not leagued with Spain by a formal treaty of alliance, he judged it necessary to declare, that the engagements which he had contracted in the face of the world with that nation, he considered not less sacred nor less obligatory on his Majesty, than the most solemn treaties; that his Majesty would negotiate in concert with the Spanish Government, in the name of his Catholick Majesty Ferdinand VII. The answer given by France to this proposal of his Majesty discovered immediately the viel which was used to cover its schemes, and showed at once the arrogance and injustice of that government. To the Spanish nation in general they have applied the degrading title of Spanish insurgents, and the demand of the admission of the Spanish government as a party in the negociation was thrown aside as inadmissible & insulting! His Majesty has received, with as much astonishment as sorrow, the answer of the Emperor of Russia; and although to the same effect, is less indecorous in its tone and manner. He characterises as an insurrection, the glorious efforts of the Spanish people in favor of their legitimate sovereign, and in defence of the independence of their country; and has sanctioned by the authority of his Imperial Majesty, an usurpation which has not its equal in the history of the world. His Majesty would have readily embraced the opportunity of a negotiation that would have presented some hope or prospect of a peace compatible with justice and honour. His Majesty regrets extremely any thing which will aggravate and prolong the sufferings of Europe; but neither the honour of his Majesty, nor the generosity of the British nation, will permit him to commence a negotiation by abandoning a loyal and brave people, who are fighting for the preservation of all that is most dear to men, and whose efforts in a cause so notoriously just, his Majesty has obligated himself most solemnly to support.

Westminster Decr. 15th.

We learn verbally (says the Editor of the Mercantile Advertiser) by a passenger in the Matilda, that on the 26th of January a dispatch was received at Antigua from Admiral Cochrane, stating that Sir John Moore with an army of 36,000 men had attacked the French army in the environs of Madrid, and completely routed them, with great slaughter on both sides.

The English lost 4000 killed.

It is further stated, that a French 50 gun ship, with 500 troops and 1700 barrels of flour, was captured after a severe engagement, going into Guadaloupe, by the British frigates Jason and Cleopatra.

Accounts from Sweden were unfavorable since the rupture of the Armistice, the Russians pushed forward with such an overwhelming superiority of force, that all the gallant efforts of the Swedes have been found fruitless.

A Russian Ukase, notifies to the merchants of St. Petersburgh, that after the first of January 1809, no ships shall be suffered to enter or clear from the Russian PORTS.

A Sunday paper, says, some ministerial changes are spoken of. The Duke of Portland, Mr. Canning, and Mr. Mulgrave, it is said, are to retire. Lord Chatham, it is added, is to be removed to the Treasury, and Lord Melville has been offered a seat in the Cabinet.

Private Letters from Holland state, that Bonaparte has ordered a relaxation to take place in the regulations enjoined by his Milan Decrees, respecting Neutrals—— By the Decrees alluded to, it was ordered that all Neutrals which had touched at a British port, or submitted to be searched by a British cruizer, should be confiscated on entering a French port, or condemned as legal prizes if captured by a French armed vessel. It is now ordered that neutrals shall be admitted into French ports, though they have been searched by a British cruizer, provided they have not touched at a British port. Bonaparte by relaxing in the Milan decree probably expects that the American government will be induced to remove its embargo so far at least as regards vessels bound to France. [N. York Spect.

Extract of a letter from Staunton (Virginia to the Editor of the U. S. Gaz.

A considerable alarm has been excited in this part of the country lately, and indeed all through Virginia in the consequence of some hints having been made that a revolt would take place shortly among the Negroes. Patrolls have been ordered out through nearly every county, with expres orders to shoot down every negro who did not stop and give an account of himself as soon as he was hailed. This has been the case with three poor wretches already in Orange. A large number have been taken up and committed to prison in Nelson, some of whom confessed their intentions, & made a discovery of the place where their weapons were concealed.—— —Search was made, and they were found.

IMPORTANT MECHANICAL INVENTION.

Extract of a letter from a member of the South Carolina Legislature, to his friend in this city.

"As we exchanged ideas of American manufactories in our last, I shall proceed to inform you of a machine that was exhibited at our seat of government, apparently the best adapted to the domestic uses of our state that could be invented. It is a machine about the size of a small chest of drawers, & contains seven spindles like those on the little foot spinning wheels, made use of at every farm house for spinning flax: these receive the cotton from rollers, to which it is conveyed by a carding apparatus which takes the cotton off a circular saw, a little different from those in common use in our sawgins; the whole can be driven by one smart girl with facility, and at the same time pick from the seed, card and spin seven pounds of cotton per day, fit for the sheets, table linen, shirts, &c. generally made use of in the farm houses through the State; a work that less than twenty people could not do in a day by the common wheel; and these are likely to become as general throughout the country as the spinning wheel itself."

YORK, MARCH 15, 1809.

Various accounts of the decisive Victory obtained by the British and Spanish Forces in the neighborhood of Madrid on the 8th and 9th December last over the French, are received through different channels of information: in some it is stated that, the number of killed, wounded and taken of the French, amounts to 45,000.—Gathering from the different sources of this intelligence, we may infer the atchievement to be splendid, brilliant, and sanguinary.

At the Annual Town Meeting, held at Thomas Stoodley's Tavern, on Monday the 6th day of March, 1809, the following persons were chosen Town & Parish Officers for the present year, viz.

AND WHEREAS many of the faid Deferters may have enliſted in other Regular Corps, and are now ſerving therein, His Majeſty is graciouſly pleaſed to extend to ſuch Deſerters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they ſhall continue to ſerve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themſelves to their reſpective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they ſhall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly ſerved.

The Magiſtrate to whom any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Regular Forces may ſurrender himſelf, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which ſuch Deſerter ſurrendered himſelf, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deſerter at the Head Quarters of the neareſt Military Poſt, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unleſs prevented by Sickneſs, to be certified by ſome Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magiſtrate's Certificate, or to be otherwiſe proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at ſuch Military Poſt.

And with a View to prevent as far as poſſible all Soldiers from Deſertion, after theſe His Majeſty's moſt gracious Intentions ſhall be made known, His Majeſty has been pleaſed to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter deſert, ſhall be tranſmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Pariſhes, to which the Deſerters belong; in order that their Names may be expoſed to public View in the Church, or ſuch other conſpicuous Place, as may render it impoſſible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought diſgrace by their Miſconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majeſty has further commanded, that this Meaſure ſhall be made public, that every Soldier may be aſſured, that the greateſt Exertions will be uſed for the Apprehenſion of any Man who may hereafter deſert, and that thoſe who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Riſk they incur of Detection, and of the moſt ſevere Puniſhment, if they do not immediately avail themſelves of the Pardon held out in this His Majeſty's moſt gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may deſert after theſe His Majeſty's gracious Intentions are made Public, ſhall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded againſt with the utmoſt Severity.

It is to be clearly underſtood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deſerters from the Army of Reſerve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deſerter from His Majeſty's Militia Forces.

By His Majeſty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION iſſued by His Majeſty's Orders in England and deſirous of affording to all Deſerters the opportunity of availing themſelves of His Majeſty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleaſed thus to make the ſame public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with reſpect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA, to 24th DECEMBER next enſuing, and with reſpect to ſuch perſons as are deſirous of atoning for their paſt miſconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of theſe Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deſerters are to ſurrender themſelves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Poſt in either of the aforeſaid Provinces, or to any Magiſtrate near whom they may be; ſuch Magiſtrate being deſired to furniſh them with a Certificate of the date of ſuch ſurrender, which Certificate will be in force in the ſame manner and under the ſame limitations as directed in His Majeſty's Proclamation.

GIVEN AT HEAD QUARTERS,

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-fourth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for granting to His Majesty, a certain sum of Money, for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the exportation thereof;" It is (among other things enacted,) that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act, it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as Commissioners for the purchasing of merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province. And whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the exportation thereof;" It is enacted, that the sum of Sixty two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton, should be the rate or price for good and Merchantable Hemp, which might be thereafter purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

NOW KNOW ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, That I, FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, do, by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, nominate, constitute and appoint, the Honorable James Baby, the Honorable Richard Cartwright, the Honorable Robert Hamilton, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot, of Port Talbot, Esq. and William Allan, of York, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners or any one or more of them are, and is hereby respectively authorized & empowered, to purchase such Hemp, at & after the price or rate in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes, in such case made and provided; And to do, perform and execute all such other matters & things, as they are authorized and required to do, in and by the said recited Acts.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty-ninth year of His Majesty's Reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS. Sec'y.

A letter from J. B. Dabney Esq American Consul, to a friend at St. Michael.

Fayal Azores, June 25, 1808.

"A phenomenon has occurred here, not unusual in former ages, but of which there has been no example of late years—it was well calculated to inspire terror, and has been attended with the destruction of lives and property.—On Sunday the first of May, at one P. M. walking in the balcony of my house at St. Antonio, I heard noises like the report of a heavy cannon at a distance, and concluded there was some sea engagement in the vicinity of the island.

"But soon after, casting my eyes towards the island of St. George, ten leagues distant, I perceived a dense column of smoak rising to an immense height; it was soon judged that a volcano had burst out, about the centre of the island, and this was rendered certain, for when the night came on the fire exhibited an awful appearance. Being desirous of viewing this wonderful exertion of nature, I embarked on the third day of May, accompanied by the British Consul, and ten other gentlemen, for St. George; we ran over in five hours, and arrived at Vellas, the principal town, at 11 A. M. We found the poor inhabitants perfectly panic struck, wholly given up to religious ceremonies and devotion. We learned that the fire of the first of May had broken out in a ditch, in the midst of fertile pastures, three leagues South East of Vellas, and had immediately formed a crater, in size about 24 acres.

"In two days it had thrown out cinders, or small pummice stones, that a strong N. E. wind had propelled southerly; and which, independent of the mass accumulated round the crater, had covered the earth from one foot to four feet in depth, half a league in width and three in length; then passing the channel 5 leagues, had done some damage to the East point of Pico.

"The fire of this larger crater had nearly subsided, but in the evening preceding our arrival, another small crater had opened, one league north of the large one, and only two leagues from Vellas. After taking some refreshment, we visited the second crater, the sulphurous smoke of which, driven southerly, rendered it impracticable to attempt to approach the large one. When we came within a mile of the crater, we found the earth rent in every direction; and as we approached nearer, some of the chasms were six feet wide. By leaping over some of these chasms, and making windings to avoid the large ones we at length arrived within two hundred yards of the spot; and saw it in the middle of a pasture, distinctly at intervals, when the thick smoke which swept the earth lighted up a little. The mouth of it was only about fifty yards in circumference; the fire seemed struggling for vent; the force with which a pale blue flame issued forth, resembled a powerful steam engine, multiplied an hundred fold; the noise was deafening; the earth where we stood had a tremulous motion, the whole island seemed convulsed; horrid blowings, were occasionally heard from the bowels of the earth, & earth quakes were frequent. After remaining here about ten minutes, we returned to town; the inhabitants had mostly quitted their houses, & remained in the open air, or under tents. We passed the night at Vellas, and the next morning went by water to Ursulina, a small sea port town, two leagues south of Vellas, and viewed that part of the country covered with cinders before mentioned, and which has turned the most valuable vineyard in the island into a frightful desert. On the same day, the 4th of May, we ventured to Fayal, and on the 5th and succeeding days, from twelve to fifteen volcanoes broke out in the fields we had traversed on the 3d, from the chasms before described, and threw out a quantity of lava which traversed on slowly towards Vellas. The fire of those small craters subsided and the lava ceased running about the 11th of May; on which day the large volcano that had lain dormant for nine days, burst forth again like a roaring lion, with horrid belchings, distinctly heard at twelve leagues distance, throwing up immense quantity of lava, illuminating at night the whole island. This continued with tremendous force until the fifth of June, exhibiting the awful, yet magnificent spectacle of a perfect river of fire, distinctly seen from Fayal, running into the sea.

"On that day, the fifth, we experienced that its force began to fail; and in a few days after, it ceased entirely. The distance of the crater from the sea is about four miles and its elevation about three thousand five hundred feet—The lava inundated and swept away the town of Ursulina, and country houses and cottages adjacent, as well as the farm-houses, throughout the Centre. It was usual, gave timely notice of its approach, and most of the inhabitants fled; some few, however, remained in the vicinity of it too long (endeavoring to save their furniture and effects) were scalded by flashes of steam, which without injuring clothes, took off not only their skin but their flesh. About sixty persons were thus miserably scalded, some of whom died on the spot, or in a few days afterwards. Numbers of cattle shared the same fate. The Judge and principal inhabitants left the Island very early.

"The consternation and anxiety were some days so great among the people, that even their domestic concerns were abandoned; & amidst plenty, they were in danger of starving. Supplies of ready baked bread were sent from hence to their relief, and large boats were sent to bring away the inhabitants who had just lost their dwellings. In short the island, heretofore rich in cattle, corn & wine, is nearly ruined, and a scene of greater desolation and distress has seldom been witnessed in any country."

By a passenger in the Ship True American in 21 days from Port-au Prince, we learn that 8 or 10 days before he sailed, a severe battle was fought at Cape Nichola Mole, between the Armies of Petion and Christophe, in which the latter was defeated with great loss.

An American brig, laden with provisions, had recently been captured by one of Christophe's cruizers, and had been condemned.

By the British brig Fox, from Jamaica, we have received Kingston papers to the end of January. We extract therefrom the following article relative to reported events in Spain——and leave our readers to make their own deductions Phil Gaz.

IMPORTANT.

The report brought by the Cornwall, which we noticed in our last, that Bonaparte with 200,000 had crossed the Pyrenees, we are happy to say, is without foundation. By the arrival of the Ship Westmoreland, Bridson, from Liverpool, on Thursday, the following very different and most glorious information has been received, which bears every mark of authenticity, and fully justifies the wisdom of General Blake's retreat: On the 17th of December, whilst the Westmoreland lay at Madeira, the British Consul at Funchal, Archibald Bromlie, Esq. paid a visit to Captain Bridson, and informed him, that a vessel had just then arrived in the bay, in a very quick passage from Gibraltar, the Captain of which stated, that previous to his sailing, news had reached there, express from Spain, of a signal victory having been gained by the combined armies of Spain and England, between the Ebro and Bayonne, over a large army of the French, said to be commanded by marshal Ney; that the loss of the French amounted to no less than 45,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners, and the remainder completely routed;——some time previous to this action which terminated so gloriously for the cause of the brave Spaniards, the gallant Sir J. More had joined them with a large reinforcement, which determined the patriots to give battle to the enemy, the result of which was, as above described.

After the engagement they took such measures as entirely to cut off the enemy's retreat. The Spanish army was commanded by the Marquis de Romana.

The Captain adds that this information was received at Gibraltar with great demonstrations of joy. The Town and Garrison, were illuminated, and the shipping fired a salute in commemoration of the occasion.

N. Y. Spectator.

KINGSTON (Jam.) Jan. 28.

The Mary, hired Packet Boat, Watson, arrived with a mail on Thursday. She left Falmouth December 19th. She left Barbadoes on the 17th Instant. The London Fleet of 200 sail, had just entered Carlisle Bay.

Our London papers by the Mary are to December 15th. The Patriots of Spain have experienced a reverse of fortune, but not to that extent that the gasconading bulletins of the Monitieur proclaim; for the Cornwall Gazette of the 17th under the head of good news, says there is reason to hope, that the British troops have formed a junction with the Patriots, and given a check to the insidious invaders of Spain.

The Mars Cutter arrived at Falmouth from Lisbon, which place she left on the 5th December, with Dispatches from Madrid, dated November 27. Captain M'Caechy, of the 11th regiment was Passenger.—He informed, that the news was of the most favorable nature. The affairs in Spain had taken a sudden turn in favour of the Patriots——that they had rallied since the defeat of Castanos, and cut off 25,000 of the French——Such is the news from Madrid——it serves to shew that Bonaparte was not there the 27th.

LONDON, Dec. 15.

Rotterdam papers state, that an English vessel from South America, sent into the Meuse by a Danish privateer, has brought advice, that the English and Portuguese agents at Buenos Ayres, had failed in their mission, that Liniers had received entensive powers from King Joseph, and had declared his resolution to remain a faithful ally of France.

SATURDAY MARCH 11.

A letter has been recieved this day by the Eastern Mail, dated Saint Lucar the 6th of December, which says "Commerce here is at a stand, and I expect will remain so, until the fate of this country takes a more decided turn. An important advantage has just been gained by the combined Spanish and English armies in a general action.——This intelligence has this moment been received by Express; the particulars I am not yet able to give you."

Tenth Congress—The following article, we republish, from the Baltimore Whig, merely to inform our readers, what a Democratic editor can say of a democatic Congress.

WASHINGTON March 4th 1809

"EXPIRED—at twelve O'clock last night the TENTH CONGRESS, after a lingering disease of two years—Being elevated to stations which they were incompetent to fill, they brought odium on themselves, and contempt on the Office.——Despicable through life, their constituents have followed the Thracian custom and made merry at the death!!!

"MARGARET FINCH"

FEBRUARY 28.

By the arrival this morning of the brig Betsey & Silly, Capt. Fuller, in 9 days from Charleston, we learn that a vessel had arrived there from Bermuda, bringing a report that on the 16th Dec. a severe battle was fought near Madrid, between the Spanish and French armies, and that the French were defeated with the loss of Twenty seven thousand men.

Orders of His Excellency the Lieutenant General Sir John Moore to the British Army on its march from Lisbon to Spain.

The Commander of the forces trusts, that the troops on entering into Spain, will feel with him how much it is for their honor & advantage to maintain the high opinion, and cherish the good will which that brave and high spirited people entertain towards the British nation.

The troops upon their march will generally be quartered upon the inhabitants. The Spaniards are a grave orderly people, and extremely sober, but generous and warm in their tempers, and easily affronted by any insult or difrespect, that is offered to them. They are grateful to the English and will receive their troops with kindness and cordiality.

This the General hopes, will be met with equal kindness on the part of the soldiers, & that they will endeavour to accommodate themselves to their manners, be orderly in their quarters, and not shock, by acts of intemperance, a people worthy of their attachment, whole efforts they are come to support, in the most glorious of causes—to free them from French bondage, and to establish their national liberty and independence.

Upon entering Spain, as a compliment to the Spanish nation, the army will wear the red cockade in addition to their own. Cockades are ordered for this purpose for the non commissioned officers, and more will be sent from Madrid, but in the mean time the officers are requested to provide themselves and to put them on when they pass the frontier.

MEMORIAL

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States

The Memorial and Remonstrance of the Legislature of Massachusetts

WHEN the Government of a free People is felt to be oppressive on the Community; when its measures appear to originate in imperfect conceptions of the interests of the whole, or inattention to the important concerns of any one portion; a decent respect for the opinions of their fellow-citizens, and a regard for their own rights, require of that part of the Society which feels oppressed or alarmed, a prompt & explicit declaration of their opinions. Such a courte of proceeding, by producing early and frequent public discussion, is calculated to support all such measures as are wise and expedient; and on the other hand it furnishes a fashionable opportunity to the Government to abandon all such as are found to be impolitick or injurious; it is calculated at once to silence the murmurs of the People if they are unfounded, and to remove all their just causes of complaint.

The Citizens of Massachusetts are firm and zealous in the vindication of their rights; but their habits and their principles equally forbid a resort to violent, disorderly, or unconstitutional means for that purpose. They indulge a pride in the belief that the Constitution of Government under which they live are to framed, as to afford a peaceable remedy, for every grievance to which they may be subjected. They have accordingly by Petitions from various parts of the State, expressed to the President of the United States, their sentiments on the oppressive operation, and destructive tendency, of the Embargo laid on their ships and vessels in December 1807. This Legislature also, in the same spirit have heretofore endeavored through their Senators and Representatives, to communicate to the Government of the United States, their opinions and views of the system of Policy lately adopted and pursued by the Administration. They have been with regret that these peaceable and respectful efforts have not produced any relaxation of the rigorous measures complained of; but that on the contrary, it has been thought proper to enforce the Embargo by a late act, exceeding in severity all that preceded it; an Act, which if continued in operation will, as we apprehend, not only complete the destruction of the Commercial prosperity, but prove highly dangerous to the public liberty, and domestic peace, of this People. This Legislature have also felt the most serious alarm from perceiving the other measures, lately proposed and contemplated in the Congress of the United States. At this awful and momentous crisis we ought not to affect ignorance of those events, which on ordinary occasions a fenfe of Duty would forbid our noticing. It would be a bafe dereliction of purity, at fuch a moment as the preſent, we ſhould permit a too ſcrupulous regard to mere forms to prevent our attempting any thing poſſible for the ſecurity of our conſtituents, and for the peace and happineſs of our common country. This Legislature therefore with the plainneſs and ſincerity which become the Repreſentatives of a free people, and with all the reſpect which is due to the Honorable Body which they addreſs, do preſent this, their ſolemn Remonſtrance, againſt the ſeveral meaſures which is now oppreſſing this part of the United States.

Commerce has been one of the chief employments of the People of New England from the firſt ſettlement of the Country; and their ſucceſs has promoted and abundantly rewarded the labours of Agriculture. This latter in its turn has extended and encouraged Commerce; and from the joint operation of theſe cauſes, New-England, without any great ſtaple, and without any peculiar local advantages, has conſtantly and rapidly encreaſed in wealth, proſperity, and power. If however the advantages of Commerce were leſs obvious and leſs important, yet the habits of the Country ſo long and firmly eſtabliſhed, could not be ſuddenly changed, without producing conſequences the moſt diſtreſſing and deſtructive. Our Huſbandmen and Mariners cannot at an act of Government be converted into Manufacturers; nor will our Merchants and Mechanics ever conſent to abandon their cities, and retire from the Sea ſhore, to clear up and cultivate the Wilderneſs. The Hiſtory of the world has demonſtrated that even the moſt deſpotic Governments have hardly ever ſucceeded in changing the habits of a great People; and moſt certainly in a free Country it cannot be attempted with any proſpect of ſucceſs. The meaſures adopted by the Britiſh Government, to interdict or controul our Commerce, were among the moſt powerful cauſes of the Revolution. The Power of eſtabliſhing Commerce is enumerated in the Declaration of our Independence, among the eſſential rights of ſovereignty; and in the articles of Confederation, Trade, Religion and the Sovereignty of the States, are mentioned as the three principal objects, which that compact was intended to protect. In the preſent Conſtitution of the United States the Government are enrolled with a greater and more adequate power of this protection and extenſion of Commerce, the utility and neceſſity of which ſeems to have impoſed certain reſtrictions on that power. The People have been reſtrained from impoſing any tax or duty whatſoever on Exports, leſt in virtue of their authority, they might in any degree embarraſs the exportation of our produce. The People have manifeſted a ſimilar diſpoſition in other articles of the Conſtitution; and if in the time of framing and adopting that inſtrument, any queſtion had ariſen as to the extent of the Power, or the duty of the Government in this particular; there can be no doubt that a clauſe would have been inſerted, moſt explicitly declaring the intereſts of commerce to be one of the principal conſiderations for forming the Union, and the encouragement and defence to be among the firſt duties of the Government; while the right to annihilate or obſtruct it would have been explicitly denied. For a long time after the eſtabliſhment of this Government, the Fiſheries, Navigation, and Trade of this Country were protected and widely extended. They ſpread almoſt the whole revenue of the United States, and encouraged univerſal induſtry. What in the year 1794 the Commercial rights of the Nation were affailed by Great Britain, the immortal Waſhington, by dignified, fair and impartial negociation, procured for his Country ample compenſations for paſt injuries, and ſecurity againſt future aggreſſions. In the year 1798, our Government under ſimilar circumſtances attempted to the ſame manner to obtain from France, indemnity for outrages, and a recognition of our rights; and when fair negociation was found to be inſincere, they did not heſitate immediately to adopt meaſures of defence, becoming an independent and powerful people. The firmneſs of their wiſe and patriotic meaſures, and the unſeaſonable hoſtilities manifeſted by the People to their efforts, formed to have decided forever the true policy of the United States. But in the year 1808, when our Commercial rights were again attacked by the ſame nation, which had but imperfectly atoned for her injuries in 1798, and in a manner unwarrantable, inſolent, and outrageous, than before, the People expected, that the Government would have recourſe to the ſame Policy which had formerly been crowned with ſuch ſignal ſucceſs. Inſtead of prompt and vigorous meaſures of defence, they have ſeen the Governments retire from the conflict; and by annihilating the whole foreign Commerce, totally ceaſe, that they are unwilling, or unable, to protect it. This apparent inability or indiſpoſition to raiſe reſiſtance, has furniſhed a pretence to another Power, to retaliate on his enemy through our unprotected rights. Thus the United States are placed in a ſituation, unprecedented in the hiſtory of the world, being inſulted at the ſame moment in ſeveral countries with two moſt powerful nations, who are themſelves at war with each other.

PROCLAMATION FOR PARDONING DESERTERS FROM His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His Majesty's LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Force Act, but not to extend to any Deserters from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES in the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA, to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing, and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces, or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

An ACT to encourage the Destroying of Wolves in this Province.

[Passed 9th of March, 1809.]

WHEREAS the inhabitants of this Province have suffered, and continue to suffer great injury and damage from Wolves, since the discontinuance of the Bounty heretofore granted for the destroying them; Therefore be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled "an Act for making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec in North America, & to make further provision for the government of the said Province," & by the authority of the same, that from and after the passing of this Act, all and every person or persons who shall kill or cause to be killed any Wolf or Wolves, and who shall, after the death thereof, take or cause to be taken the scalp or scalps with the ears on the same, of such wolf or wolves, before any or of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace acting within the division where such town, township or parish where the said wolf or wolves shall have been killed, shall be, and make oath before the said Justice, that the said wolf or wolves was or were killed within the said town, township or parish, or within five miles of any inhabited place next adjoining the said town, township or parish, which oath the said Justice is hereby empowered to administer, the said Justice having first destroyed the said scalp or scalps, shall give to such person or persons a certificate of the fact or facts having been proved to his satisfaction, and such certificate being presented to the Treasurer of the District, shall authorize the person or persons obtaining and presenting the same, to ask for, demand and receive of and from the said Treasurer the sum of Twenty shillings for the scalp of every wolf so taken and presented, Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend the said reward to any Indian or Indians who shall kill or cause to be killed, any wolf or wolves as aforesaid.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when and so often as any person or persons, possessed of any such certificates as aforesaid, shall present the same to the Treasurer of the District wherein such wolf or wolves shall have been destroyed, he, the said Treasurer, shall forthwith pay and satisfy the bounty to which such certificate shall entitle the person or persons presenting the same, provided the District fund in his hands do enable him so to do, and if the district fund in his hands do not enable him the said District Treasurer to pay and satisfy such bounty Forthwith, then and in such case, he the said District Treasurer shall pay and satisfy the same out of the monies of the District which shall next hereafter come into his hands.

III. Provided a ways, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that it shall not be lawful for the Treasurer of any District to pay and satisfy the bounty to which such certificate shall entitle the person or persons presenting the same, until he shall have paid the other annual expences of the District arising from the Building a Court House and Gaol, and keeping the same in repair, the salary of the Clerk of the Peace and Gaoler, the maintenance of the Prisoners and the fees of the Coroners and other officers, any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That when and as often as the funds of any District will, according to the provisions of this Act, enable the Treasurer of such District to pay and satisfy the bounty to which such certificate shall entitle the person or persons presenting the same, it shall and may be lawful for the Magistrates of such District in Quarter Sessions assembled, to order that each and every certificate granted as aforesaid for having destroyed a wolf or wolves, shall be a lawful tender to the full value and amount therein specified, for and towards the discharge of any District rate or assessment to be collected of or from any person or persons within the District wherein such wolf or wolves shall have been destroyed, and shall accordingly as such be accepted and taken as equivalent to so much of the current gold or silver coin of this Province, by the Collector of each and every township within such District respectively, and as such shall and may by each and every Collector respectively be paid and delivered over to the District Treasurer, by whom the same shall in like manner be taken and accepted as a lawful tender, and equivalent to so much of the aforesaid current coin of this Province.

An ACT for the more effectual preventing of Frivolous and Vexatious Suits, and to Authorize the Levying of Poundage upon Executions in certain Cases, and to regulate the Sales by Sheriffs and other Officers.

[Passed 9th of March, 1809.]

BE it Enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provition for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That in all actions to be brought in the Province of Upper Canada, from and after

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To all our Loving Subjects,——Greeting;

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the ninth day of March last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the fourteenth day of this present month of April, at which time in our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby countermanding and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-second day of May next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.— Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this seventh day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty ninth of our Reign.

F. G.

Wm. Jarvis, Secretary.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for granting to His Majesty, a certain sum of Money, for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the exportation thereof;" It is (among other things enacted) that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act, it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as Commissioners for the purchasing of merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province. And whereas by an Act passed in the forty-eighth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the exportation thereof;" It is enacted, that the sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton, should be the rate or price for good and Merchantable Hemp, which might be thereafter purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

NOW KNOW ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, That I, FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, do, by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, nominate, constitute and appoint, the Honorable James Baby, the Honorable Richard Cartwright, the Honorable Robert Hamilton, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot, of Port Talbot, Esq. and William Allan, of York, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province, which said Commissioners or any one or more of them are, and is hereby respectively authorised & empowered, to purchase such Hemp, at & at the price or rate in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes, in such case made and provided; And to do, perform and execute all such other matters & things, as they are authorized and required to do, in and by the said recited Acts.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty-ninth year of His Majesty's Reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

By His Excellency's Command,
Wm. Jarvis Sec'y.

the passing of this Act, wherein the Defendant or Defendants, shall be arrested, and held to bail, and wherein the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs, shall not recover the amount of the sum for which the Defendant or Defendants in such Action shall have been so arrested, and held to Special Bail, such Defendant or Defendants shall be entitled to costs of Suit, to be taxed according to the custom of the Court, in which such Action shall have been brought, provided it shall be made appear to the satisfaction of the Court, in which such Action is brought, upon motion to be made in Court for that purpose, and upon hearing the parties by Affidavit, that the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs in such Action, had not any reasonable or probable cause for causing the Defendant or Defendants, to be arrested and held to Special Bail, in such amount as aforesaid; and provided that such Court shall thereupon by Rule, or Order of the same Court, direct that such Costs shall be allowed to the defendant or defendants, and the plaintiff or plaintiffs, shall upon such Rule or Order being made as aforesaid, be disabled from taking out any execution for the sum recovered in any such Action, unless the same shall exceed, and then in such sum only, as the same shall exceed the amount of the taxed Costs of the defendant or defendants in such action, and in case the sum recovered in any such action shall be less than the amount of the Costs of the defendant or defendants to be taxed as aforesaid, that then the defendant or defendants, shall be entitled to set off against the sum of money recovered by the plaintiff or plaintiffs, in such action from the amount of his, her or their Costs, to be taxed as aforesaid, to take out execution for such Costs in like manner as a defendant or defendants may now by law have execution for Costs in other cases.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all actions which shall be brought in the Province of Upper Canada after the passing of this Act, upon any judgement recovered, or which shall be recovered, in any Court of the said Province; the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such Action, on the judgement shall not recover, or be entitled to any Costs of Suit, unless the court in which such action on the judgement shall be brought, or some Judge of the same Court shall otherwise order.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the passing of this Act, in every action in which the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall be entitled to levy under an Execution, against the Goods of any defendant or defendants, such plaintiff or plaintiffs may also levy the Poundage fees and expences of the execution, over and above the sum recovered by the judgement.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the passing of this Act, if any defendant or defendants shall be taken, detained or charged in custody, at the suit of any person or persons upon mesne process, issuing out of the Court of King's Bench, in the said Province, and shall be imprisoned, and detained therein, after the return of such process, it shall and may be lawful for such defendant or defendants, in vacation time only, and upon due notice thereof given to the Attorney of the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such process, to put in and justify Bail before the Chief Justice or any of the Justices of the said Court of King's Bench, who may if he shall think fit, thereupon, order a Rule to issue for the allowance of such Bail, and may further order such defendant to be discharged out of custody, by Writ of Supersedeas, or otherwise, according to the practice of the said Court, in like manner as the same is, and may be done, by an order from the court in Term time.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no Sheriff or other Officer, in any district of this Province, shall proceed to the sale of any effects, taken by virtue of any Writ of Execution, until public notice in writing thereof is given, at least eight days previous thereto, at the most public place in the Town or Township where such effects may have been taken in execution, and of the time and place where such effects are to be exposed to sale.

An ACT for applying certain Sums of Money therein mentioned, to make good certain Monies issued and advanced by His Majesty through the Lieutenant Governor in pursuance of several Addresses.

[Passed 9th of March, 1809.]

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS in pursuance of several Addresses of your Commons House of Assembly, to Francis Gore, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of your Majesty's Province of Upper Canada, bearing date the eighth, ninth, and fifteenth days of March last past, in the forty-eighth year of your Majesty's reign, several sums of money, amounting in the whole to the sum of one thousand and forty-five pounds four shillings and eleven pence farthing have been issued and advanced by your Majesty, through your Lieutenant Governor to the Clerks and other officers of the two Houses of Parliament, for certain contingent expences attending the last session of Parliament, and for erecting a Light House on Gibraltar Point, May it therefore please your Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, & under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled; "an Act for making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provition for the government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That out of the surplus of any fund or funds subject to the disposition of the Parliament of this Province, now remaining

From a late London Paper.

M. Augustin, who, in May last, undertook his 54th aerial voyage at Amsterdam, has recently made public some interesting circumstances which attended his ascension. He states, that after gaining an elevation of 16,000 feet, at half past 8 P. M. the weather being cloudy, he found himself enveloped in total darkness. At this time he heard the loud balloons that were attached to the lower end, sometimes clattering against each other, so far as their situation allow'd it. He was himself nearly overcome with cold and fear; but having recovered the use of his faculties, by throwing off some volatile salts, he threw out a bag of ballast and rose into a lighter region, where he found himself as well as the balloon, entirely covered with snow. This phenomenon he attributes to the gilt stars, ornaments and letters, attached to the balloon, which had attracted a great quantity of electric vapours, and thus exposed him to the imminent danger. He calculates his greatest elevation at 20,562 feet, and the distance he had travelled at about 60 miles.

The greater part of the celebrated vineyards of Tukay, in Hungary, have this year (1808) been destroyed by a tremendous storm accompanied with hail and the bursting of a cloud. The hail-stones were as walnuts, and the bursting of the cloud was so violent, that stones of great weight were thrown from the vineyards into the village, by which dreadful calamity, seven men and one boy were killed, many persons badly bruised, and a great number of cattle perished. The whole village was so entirely filled with stones, that the labour of hundreds of people was required to clear them away.

The Swedish Marine experiences some degree of inconvenience from the suspension of their accustomed supply of timber from Prussia, from which they have been in the habit of importing from 3 to 500,000 cubic feet annually, at the expence of nearly 6 British shillings per cubic foot. It is a singular circumstance that Prussia, which has not aspired to become a naval power, has been chiefly instrumental in rendering Sweden one, by her supplies of naval stores, and has for several years past received upwards of 200,000l sterling, for imp timber alone.

Berlin, Oct. 12.

By a courier, who left Saturday arrived here from Erfurth, (which at present contains within its walls, 2 Emperors, 5 Kings, and 72 Princes and Princesses,) official information has been received, that the Emperor Napoleon, in consequence of the powerful interposition of his Imperial Russian Majesty, has not only agreed to remit a very considerable part of the contribution imposed on the Prussian dominion, and not yet paid, but also solemnly promised, that the French Troops are speedily to evacuate the Prussian territory.

SONNET

TO THE POPPY,

By an unfortunate Young Lady.

Pure and unspotted as the flower of Spring,
I once could boast the snow-drop's modest mien;
In innocence, the morn's chaste glowing scene;
In guilt, (alas emblem!) the chill evening.

Crept is that flower of all its virgin grace,
By base Seduction's hand untimely torn!
I too am left that loveliness to mourn,
And without thee, my countless griefs to trace!

Come drowsy flower! & steep my senses o'er,
In sweet oblivion's balm, to sorrow dear;
My woe worn heart all joy must know no more
An me! a wounded spirit who can bear? †

Come then sweet soother, sad remembrance drown!
O let me all forget—but God alone!—

PROCLAMATION FOR PARDONING DESERTERS FROM His Majesty's Regular Land Forces.

WAR OFFICE, August, 25, 1808.

WHEREAS it has been represented to THE KING, That there are at this Time several DESERTERS from the different REGULAR CORPS in His MAJESTY'S LAND SERVICE, who might be induced to return to their Duty by an Offer of His Majesty's GRACIOUS PARDON, and that such an Instance of His Royal Clemency would have a due Influence upon their future Behaviour; His Majesty has been graciously pleased to grant His FREE PARDON to all DESERTERS from His REGULAR LAND FORCES, who shall surrender themselves, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER, to the Commanding Officer of any Regiment, or to any of the Superintending Field Officers of the Recruiting Service, whose Stations are mentioned in the Margin hereof, or to the Commandant of the Army Depot in the Isle of Wight.

Such Deserters, if Able bodied Men and fit for Service, shall be sent to the Regiments from which they respectively deserted, or be appointed to such Regiments in the United Kingdom as His Majesty may be pleased to command; and, when so placed, shall not be liable to be claimed by any other Corps to which they may formerly have belonged.

AND WHEREAS many of the said Deserters may have enlisted in other Regular Corps, and are now serving therein, His Majesty is graciously pleased to extend to such Deserters the Benefit of this Pardon; and to direct that they shall continue to serve in the Corps wherein they now are, upon declaring themselves to their respective Commanding Officers, on or before the Twenty-fourth of OCTOBER next, & they shall not be liable at any future Time, to be claimed by the Regiments in which they formerly served.

The Magistrate to whom any Deserter from His Majesty's Regular Forces may surrender himself, is authorized and required to certify the Day on which such Deserter surrendered himself, which Certificate is to continue in Force until the Arrival of the Deserter at the Head Quarters of the nearest Military Post, provided he proceed at the Rate of Ten Miles a Day, unless prevented by Sickness, to be certified by some Medical Practitioner on the Back of the Magistrate's Certificate, or to be otherwise proved to the Satisfaction of the Officer Commanding at such Military Post.

And with a View to prevent as far as possible all Soldiers from Desertion, after these His Majesty's most gracious Intentions shall be made known, His Majesty has been pleased to command, that the Name of every Soldier who may hereafter desert, shall be transmitted through the Secretary at War to the Church Wardens of the Parishes, to which the Deserters belong; in order that their Names may be exposed to public View in the Church, or such other conspicuous Place, as may render it impossible for Men, who have been guilty of this Crime, to return home to their Friends, on whom they have brought disgrace by their Misconduct, without immediate Detection; and His Majesty has further commanded, that this Measure shall be made public, that every Soldier may be assured, that the greatest Exertions will be used for the Apprehension of any Man who may hereafter desert, and that those who have already been guilty of that Crime, may be aware of the daily Risk they incur of Detection, and of the most severe Punishment, if they do not immediately avail themselves of the Pardon held out in this His Majesty's most gracious Proclamation.

Any Soldier who may desert after these His Majesty's gracious Intentions are made Public, shall not be included in the above Pardon, but be proceeded against with the utmost Severity.

It is to be clearly understood, That this Proclamation of Pardon is intended to include all Deserters from the Army of Reserve and Additional Forces Act, but not to extend to any Deserter from His Majesty's Militia Forces.

By His Majesty's Command,
JAS. PULTENEY.

THE COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S FORCES In the BRITISH PROVINCES of NORTH AMERICA, having received an Official Copy of the above PROCLAMATION issued by His Majesty's Orders in England and desirous of affording to all Deserters the opportunity of availing themselves of His Majesty's gracious offer of Pardon, is pleased thus to make the same public, and to extend the term to which it is limited with respect to the Provinces of UPPER and LOWER CANADA, to 24th DECEMBER next ensuing; and with respect to such persons as are desirous of atoning for their past misconduct who may come in from beyond the limits of these Provinces, to 24th FEBRUARY, that will be in the year 1809. Deserters are to surrender themselves to any Field Officer or to any other Officer commanding any Detachment or Military Post in either of the aforesaid Provinces or to any Magistrate near whom they may be; such Magistrate being desired to furnish them with a Certificate of the date of such surrender, which Certificate will be in force in the same manner and under the same limitations as directed in His Majesty's Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith :—

To all our Loving Subjects,——Greeting:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the ninth day of March last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the fourteenth day of this present month of April, at which time in our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty second day of May next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and thereto to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this seventh day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty ninth of our Reign. F. G.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for granting to His Majesty, a certain sum of Money, for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the exportation thereof;" It is (among other things enacted,) that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act, it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as Commissioners for the purchasing of merchantable Hemp, the growth of this Province. And whereas by an Act passed in the forty-eighth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intitled, "An Act for the further encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the exportation thereof;" It is enacted, that the sum of Sixty two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton, should be the rate or price for good and Merchantable Hemp, which might be thereafter purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act,

NOW KNOW ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, That I, FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, do, by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, nominate, constitute and appoint, the Honorable James Baby, the Honorable Richard Cartwright, the Honorable Robert Hamilton, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot, of Port Talbot, Esq. and William Allan, of York, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners or any one or more of them are, and is hereby respectively authorised & empowered, to purchase such Hemp, at such or the price or rate in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes, in such case made and provided; And to do, perform and execute all such other matters & things, as they are authorised and required to do, in and by the said recited Acts.

Given under my Hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this thirteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nine, and in the forty-ninth year of His Majesty's Reign.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Governor.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Glorious News from Spain.

Philadelphia, March 25.

The intelligence which we this day publish from Spain is of the greatest importance.—The statement of the distribution of the Spanish forces and the determination of the people to die rather than to abandon the cause of their country, are well explained in the victory published by the Junta of Murcia, to whom the account of the Marquis de Romana's success has been communicated by the commissioners of Tarancon, which is about equidistant from Murcia and Segovia, the scene of action, to which the combined armies of Spain and England, 90,000 strong, must have moved after their junction on.

A correspondence had taken place between Gen. Palafox and Marshal Moncey after an unsuccessful attack by the latter on Saragossa in which the French had been repulsed with great slaughter (supposed 8000 men;) Gen. Palafox had intimated that no more flags of truce, requiring him to surrender, would be admitted, as he had determined to conquer or perish.—Pol. Reg.

LATEST FROM SPAIN.

By the arrival of the British brig Little George, from the Havanna

Murcia, Jan. 14.

The Commissioners of the Supreme Council, near the armies of the enemy, has this day communicated the following intelligence:

This morning was published in this army, by order of the general, the news of the French having been completely routed between Segovia and the plains of San Antonio, by the Marquis de la Romana, leaving on the field of battle, killed, wounded and prisoners, TWENTY ONE THOUSAND Frenchmen with all their artillery and baggage; and the rest of the army, with a great personage, (said to be Napoleon) is surrounded by our troops in the Paular de Segovia: I know not whether this pleasing information has reached your Excellency, but if not I communicate it to fulfil my duty.

Persons who have come from Madrid affirm that the French are disappearing from that city without knowing for what reason, nor whither they go, and that the few who do remain do not exhibit the same haughty appearance as formerly.

We expect to be joined by the new troops of Ucles and Cuenca, when the army will advance in pursuit of the enemy.

Taragon, Jan. 8.

The present notice having the character of veracity, the Supreme Junta ordered it to be proclaimed with firing of cannon and ringing of bells.

Signed by the Marquis of Villa Franca y los Velez, Duke de Medinasidenia.

By order of his Excellency,
ANGTIN FERNANDEZ COSTA.

Havana, March 6.

Dear Sir—My hasty letter of yesterday via Baltimore, informed you of no arrival in 35 days from Cadiz; the governmental information is contained in the Extra Gazette of yesterday, which I have the pleasure to enclose you, together with an original account enclosed in a letter to a friend of mine from the house of —— of Cadiz. I regret not having time to forward an English translation, the exigency of the moment, however, prevents the possibility. The public commotion of yesterday was general and great, until the precise and exact purport of the dispatches were known, after which things again resumed their former course, and the sanguine disposition of the Spaniards, views their armies in Spain in the full tide of successful experiment. The terms of capitulation of Madrid are not as yet made known, although contained among the dispatches for government."

Cadiz, January, 16.

"Napoleon having gained advantages over some of the Spanish chiefs, has been enabled to divert the central army, and pass along by the unaccustomed roads of Somosierra, advancing by Estremadura as far as Truxillo, and finally, in the beginning of December, with 40,000 men got possession of Madrid by capitulation; the inhabitants having been most shamefully deceived by the infamous traitor Morlaes, the 4th of that month, agreeably to the official Gazette of the government.

"The Corsican flattered himself that he had conquered the whole kingdom, in consequence of so many unexpected disasters; but he was deceived, and it is not improbable but he may soon become the victim of his own perfidy and temerity, which have only tended to inspire new horror for his name; and in this nation, a most decided determination to die, rather than submit to the domination of such an unprincipled adventurer.

"Our unprincipled commanders are dismissed; our dispersed armies are reunited & reorganized, under generals possessing our fullest confidence, and they have already in several battles, proved to the French what Spanish valor can do when well commanded; and these forces, being once concentrated, can only wish for an opportunity to establish a decisive victory.

"Napoleon is actually about 20 leagues to the north of Madrid, collecting his army, —the duke of Infantado with 40,000 men of the best troops, were upon Cuens, extending his Van guard towards Aranjuez—Ceuta was in Estremadura, with a numerous army—Romana and the British, with 90,000 of the best disciplined troops, were upon Leon—Palafox was in Arragon, with the glory of having repulsed eighteen attacks of the enemy, upon Sarragoll.—Reding in Catalonia, in place of General Virus—Blake in Asturias—the French have their head quarters at Burgos, their whole force in the kingdom, 125,000.
