To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of the Province of Upper Canada in Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return you our warmeſt Thanks for your Excellency's Speech at the opening of the preſent Seſſion; being conſcious of the purpoſes for which our KIND and GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN has called us together, and taught by the awful example of the calamities of War, which deſolate Europe, and of Nations with their Kings degraded and oppreſſed: We fully feel the urgent neceſſity, which behoves us peaceably to conſult, to promote our own happineſs, and preſerve that real Liberty we enjoy: underſerving indeed muſt we be, under ſuch circumſtances, were we not deeply impreſſed with Thankfulneſs to GOD, and Loyalty to our KING.

If our paſt Conduct, as your Excellency has been pleaſed to expreſs, bears ample Teſtimony to our Loyalty, we truſt it will remain unimpaired by our future.

YORK (UPPER CANADA:) Printed by JOHN CAMERON, Printer to the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused the Seal of our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,

On Wednesday morning laſt, the U. S. ſchooner Revenge, of 14 guns, Capt. Ferry, in proceeding from Newport to this port, unfortunately ſtruck on Watch Hill reef, in Rhode Iſland, and in a few hours went to pieces. The ſails, rigging, ſix cannon, and almoſt every article of value were ſaved.—The remainder of the cannon it is ſaid, will be got up without much difficulty. At the time the Revenge ſtruck, the fog was ſo thick that the jib-boom could not be ſeen from the quarter deck There was a branch pilot on board.

Extract of a Letter from Liverpool, dated Nov 21.

" It is confidently aſſerted that licences are received in London from France, to admit American ſhips from this country, under the revocation of the Berlin and Milan decrees; and that only one fourth of the duties generally impoſed on the tariff of 5th Auguſt, would be levied upon produce direct from America.

The greateſt diſtreſs prevails on the continent, in conſequence of the edicts referred to above, and many heavy failures are apprehended. Rice and flour have been in great demand this week for Portugal, but no alteration in the prices."

London, Nov. 12.

An inquiſition was taken on Thurſday, before A Gell, Eſqr. coroner for Weſtminſter, at the houſe of Mr. Ray, in Charles-ſtreet, Berkely ſquare, on the body of Francis Baring, Eſq. who ſhot himſelf at his houſe, No. 48, in the ſame ſtreet, on the preceding day. The deceaſed, it appeared by the teſtimony of two witneſſes, had been in a diſpondent ſtate for ſome time paſt, ariſing, as it was ſuppoſed, from pecuniary embarraſsment. Having ſent out his valet to order dinner, Mr. Baring locked himſelf in his dreſſing room, and ſhortly after, the report of a piſtol alarmed two female ſervants in the houſe.

The neighbors broke into the room, and found the deceaſed lying on his face dead; a ball having entered his forehead, and ſhot away part of his head. He had a piſtol in each hand, and one was found loaded. Verdict—Inſanity.

November 20.

We are aſſured by a very near relation of the late Mr. Francis Baring, that the ſtatement of his having ſhot himſelf in conſequence of pecuniary difficulties, is altogether unfounded. " He had for ſeveral years ſecluded himſelf from ſociety, which at length brought upon him a ſort of melancholy, bordering on mental derangement —— Early in Sept. he loſt a very particular friend, and immediately after his uncle Sir Francis Baring, which ſo diſordered his affectionate mind as to produce the fatal conſequences we have already related. The immenſe fortune of Mr. Francis Baring's father placed his ſon in ſplendid independence, above the effects of all pecuniary difficulties, and unconnected with all ſpeculations or buſineſs."

Capt. Leach, arrived at Boſton, from Cronſtadt, informs that ſome expectations of war between Ruſſia and France were entertained, from an idea, that the reſtoration of Finland to Sweden, might be demanded —Captain L. brought a liſt of American prize caſes in Daniſh courts, and a Daniſh decree for adopting the French tariff of duties.

NEW YORK, January 22.

Lateſt from England — Juſt as the Commercial Advertiſer was prepared for the preſs, our News-Collector returned from the Hook with London ſhipping liſts to the 27th Nov. London papers to the 29th, & Liverpool papers to Dec. 1, incluſive. For theſe we are indebted to a reſpectable gentleman paſſenger on board the ſhip Oneida, Sloat, in 48 days from Liverpool. The Oneida is ſtill at anchor in the bay. One of the paſſengers, J. Monteſſor, Eſq. came up in our boat.

This gentleman informs us, that it was the prevailing opinion in London, that the Prince of Wales would be immediately appointed Regent. This meaſure it was tho't would take place even ſhould the King recover his health.

A new miniſter was to be ſent to Paris to renew the negociation for an exchange of priſoners.

London, Nov. 29

The King.—The following Bulletins arrived from Windſor this morning:

" Windſor Caſtle, Nov. 28, half paſt 8, P. M.

" His Majeſty is not quite ſo well this evening as he was in the morning."

" Windſor Caſtle, Nov. 29

" His Majeſty has paſſed a quiet night, and appears rather better this morning."—Signed as uſual.

Yeſterday the Privy Council aſſembled at half paſt 12, at the Council Chamber, Whitehall, to examine the Phyſicians in attendance upon his Majeſty reſpecting the ſtate of his health; all the Privy Councillors were ſummoned indiſcriminately, as well thoſe who generally act with, as thoſe who are in oppoſition to Miniſters.—It was the moſt numerous meeting of the kind of which the oldeſt ſervant of the Crown has any recollection, including, it is ſuppoſed, not fewer than 100 members.—All the phyſicians, except Dr. Baillie, who had remained at Windſor in immediate attendance upon his Majeſty, were examined. Before the Privy Council called in the Phyſicians, the ſeveral queſtions that ſhould be put to them by the Preſident of the Council, Earl Camden, were debated and carried.—They were in ſubſtance the ſame as thoſe put to the Phyſicians in 1788.

The queſtions put to them, we have the pleaſure to ſay, the anſwers were unanimouſly favorable. They all gave it as their opinion, that though his Majeſty was not at preſent capable of attending to public buſineſs, or of meeting his Parliament, they had the moſt confident belief of his recovery: that the diſorder was mild in its nature: that his Majeſty's bodily health had not ſuffered; but they added, that it was obviously impoſſible for them to fix the preciſe time when the recovery (which they moſt firmly believed would be effected) would take place.

Liverpool. Dec. 1

The Privy Council did not meet on Monday, as it was expected they would have done, for the purpoſe of examining the Royal Phyſicians; but there was a large meeting of that body took place on Wedneſday, at which, we underſtand, the report of the phyſicians was more favorable than could have been expected. Parliament aſſembled on Thurſday laſt, and the reſult of their deliberations will, of courſe, be very important and intereſting.

Heligoland.—On Tueſday arrived a mail from Heligoland, bringing advices to the 23d November On the 19th information was received there that a flotilla, conſiſting of about 25 French gun brigs and boats, was aſſembled at the Iſland of Wangaroog, in conſequeuce of which, Capt. Lord G. Stuart, with the ſquadron under his command, conſiſting of one frigate, three brigs, one ſchooner, one cutter and two ſchuyts (gun veſſels) got under weigh, and ſtood for the mouth of the Elbe On the 20th and 21ſt, a violent cannonade had been heard in that direction, but no account of the reſult had reached the iſland when the mail came away. The enemy ſtill retained poſſeſſion of Nieuwerk, which they had fortified with 50 pieces of cannon. Should Lord G. Stuart be ſucceſsful in the preſent enterprize, it was believed he would next proceed againſt Nieuwerk. The Hamburgh papers, received by this conveyance contain nothing intereſting.

Stockholm, Nov 6

On Monday the Hereditary Crown Prince, Bernadotte, took, in the preſence o the King and the whole Court, the oaths of office, and repeated his adoption of the Lutheran religion, which he had ſworn to obſerve at Helſingor the 19th October.—He then addreſſed the " King and People of Sweden," in a ſhort ſpeech in French, which was immediately tranſlated into Sweediſh, by the Lord Chancellor.

Dreſden, Nov 12.

The ſequeſtration of Engliſh merchandize does not extend to working tools, cotton machinery, &c. Forty-four Ruſſian waggons with colonial merchandize, deſtined for Bohemia, have arrived here; but having refuſed to pay the duties, they have been ſeized and the goods ſtored.

Almeida, Oct. 30.

Gen. Drouet, commandant of the 9th corps of the army, will arrive here to-morrow. The firſt diviſion of this corps is poſted one march in front of this city. Of the ſix half brigades which compoſe the ad diviſion, three have already arrived; and the 3d diviſion will paſs the Coa the 4th—Genl. Drouet, it is believed, will leave this city the 5th. We are ignorant of the deſtination of his corps, 30,000 troops—whether it will go direct to Oporto or Coimbra.

Plymouth, Nov. 27.

Letters from our army in Portugal ſtate, that the watering parties of both armies draw their water from the ſame wells in front of the encampment, and behave under the flag of truce with great civility to each other. A parcel of jack tars, ſtationed in a battery, was at the well as our watering party, and the French ſoldiers gave them brandy for a little bread —It was deſcribed by the officer who commanded as a moſt comical ſcene; the hearty appearance of our ſoldiers to the ſqualid figures of the French troops, made a ſtriking difference. Some of our tars danced one of their hornpipes in the true main deck ſtyle, which appeared to amuſe the Frenchmen highly. Six hundred ſeamen and royal marines are ſtationed in different batteries in front of the Britiſh line. The fine battalion of royal marines now here from the eaſtward, deſtined for foreign ſervice, are to embark to-day for Liſbon, where they will be of infinite ſervice wherever they may be wanted.

LATEST FROM SPAIN.

Capt. Wildes, who arrived in own yeſterday, left Gibraltar on the 15th of Dec. A brig of war had come in which left Cadiz on the 10th. The French were then carrying on the ſiege with ſpirit. They threw ſhot within the walls of the city; and were making great preparation to attack the place by water with gun boats, and two large rafts, which they were conſtructing to carry ſome very heavy cannon and mortars of a new mode. But the captain of the brig ſtated, that no apprehenſions were entertained for the ſecurity of the city.

Gibraltar, Dec. 1.

Upon the ſuggeſtion of the Council of Regency, the Cortes have voted 80,000 men to augment the army, and 10,000 more for the excluſive purpoſe of reinforcing the troops in the Iſle of Leon.

The Spaniſh Cortes have paſſed a decree in which they declare, that they will not lay down their arms until their independence is ſecured, as well as the integrity of their dominions in both worlds, without the leaſt diſmembering of the ſame; and until they ſee their legitimate King releaſed from captivity.

LATEST FROM PORTUGAL

Extract of a letter, dated Liſbon, December 10.

" More reinforcements for the Britiſh army are arriving, and a conſiderable number expected. A ſtrong line of defence is erecting acroſs the oppoſite ſhore from Cacilhas. It will ſet us compleatly at reſt concerning ſecurity here.—The only reports from the armies are of Maſſena's reinforcements being gone back into Spain, and that he is in want of proviſions.—Priſoners and deſerters continue daily to be ſent down "

An official account is given in the London papers, of the capture (9th Nov.) by the ſhip Curracoa, of the French privateer Le Venus, which engaged the Britiſh packet, on board of which Mr. John N. Macomb of New York was killed The privateer mounted 14 guns, had a crew of 67 men, and was 14 days out of L'Orient, and had made no capture. In her conflict with the packet, ſhe had 5 men killed and 14 wounded.

Mr. M'Crea came up laſt night in the pilot boat Governor Tomkins, from on board the ſhip Pallas, in 35 days from Liverpool. We are informed that he has important diſpatches from Mr. Pinkney, our miniſter at London, which it is ſaid afford a well grounded belief that the orders in council will have been removed on the appointment of a regency, which was expected to take place on the meeting of parliament, the 29th of November.

IMPORTANT.

Extract of a letter from Gottenburgh, to a mercantile houſe of the firſt reſpectability in this city, dated 21ſt Nov 1810.

" Yeſterday we were alarmed at information received from Stockholm, ſtating that Napoleon had demanded of the Swediſh government the ſequeſtration of all colonial produce now in ports of Sweden, that had been imported from England, and that all other colonial produce ſhould be ſubjected to the continental duties lately impoſed, and finally that all Engliſh manufactured goods ſhall be burnt; report ſays that only five days are allowed for an anſwer, and that if the demand is not complied with, the French Miniſter is to leave Stockholm.

" The laſt accounts we have from Stockholm by expreſs, are very favorable, and has very conſiderably leſſened the apprehenſion of any immediate danger. We are informed, the King, with the advice of his Privy Council, has returned for an anſwer that no ſuch ſteps can be taken without the concurrence of the Diet, which are not now in ſeſſion. I have it not in my power at preſent to give you any further particulars—indeed I have wrote this in much haſte, merely to prevent your being over alarmed at any information you may receive on the ſubject."

The Tenneſſee Gazette, of Decr. 28, received by laſt night's Weſtern mail, contains the following article:—From Florida we learn that Baton Rouge and N. Feliciana, were taken by governor Claiborne, without oppoſition, and the troops have returned to their cantonments, At Mobile, it is expected, Col. Cu[illegible] will have warm work." Phil. Dem. Preſs.

Something more ſerious —A letter from Port Gibſon, Miſſiſippi Territory to a gentleman in Wilmington, Del. dated Dec. 20 ſays, " Gov. Holmes, with a conſiderable force, on his way to the fort of Baton Rouge, has been taken priſoner by the conventionaliſts, and confined." Reiſ's Gaz.

We have ſeen ſeveral letters per the Paket and the Pallas, ſtating, that the Britiſh Orders in Council will be rescinded, ſoon after the meeting of Parliament. One letter obſerves, in addition, that the ports of France would be effectually blockaded. N. Y. Gazette.

Letters from Waſhington, of Saturday, ſpeak unfavorably of a charter for the U. S. Bank; but thoſe of yeſterday ſtill have hopes that the charter will be renewed. Gaz. U. S.

The bill for admiting the territory of Orleans into the Union as a ſeperate and independant ſtate has paſſed to a third reading in the Houſe of Repreſentatives, and will probably paſs that houſe. The bill as amended does not include the territory in Eaſt Louiſiana (or Weſt Florida) but leaves that a ſubject of future legiſlation, either to be added to the Miſſiſippi or become a ſeperate territory. Nat. Intell.

Yeſterday morning, as the Vermont four horſe ſtage, from this city to Bennington, was paſſing the river at Troy, the ice unexpectedly gave way, and the horſes and ſtage immediately went down—fortunately the paſſengers and driver eſcaped—but the horſes were all drowned. This ſtage was owned by two very induſtrious and meritorious young men, and the loſs to them is very great—Their team was ſaid to be the beſt drove into this city. Alb. Gaz.

VIRGINIA.

LYNCHBURG, Dec. 20.

A Devil Incarnate!—Dr. Moſer of the S. Carolina Houſe of Repreſentatives, gave notice, on the 1ſt inſt. that he would aſk leave to introduce a bill, making the puniſhment DEATH on all perſons who ſhall willfully murder any negro or perſon of colour, within the limits of that State. We hope that the Legiſlature of Virginia, now in ſeſſion, will turn their attention alſo to this ſubject, for Sledd's caſe proves incontrovertibly that the laws, in that reſpect, are defective, and call aloud for reform.

Within the laſt 16 or 18 months, a negro wench, belonging to the eſtate of the late Henry L. Davis, Eſq. of Bedford county, ran away from Sledd, to whom ſhe had been hired, and fought refuge and protection from one of her old maſter's ſons. Mr. Davis carried the wench back to Sledd, and, with mild language, endeavored to appeale the man and to ſoften down guſts of paſſion, which appeared to be exceſſive on beholding the wench brought again under his authority. Exclamations and threats were carried literally, but alas! unfortunately, into effect after his departure A ſtrong decoction of red Pepper and Tobacco was deliberately prepared—(Read it, ye men of humanity—read it, ye Legiſlators! for theſe facts were given in evidence on the trial.) The wench was ſtript and tied up, and ſcored and cut, and bruiſed, and bathed and fomented with the aforeſaid decoction!—and then ſcored and cut again, and again fomented, and thus alternately, until Mr. Sledd's notions of moral diſcipline and neceſſary correction were completely gluted! The wench, unbound, crawled to a ſmall branch near the houſe, to allay the anguiſh of her ſufferings by the application of a little cold water. She did ſo.—Here the poor thing expired! and death releaſed forever this unfortunate victim from the mercileſs hands of a cruel tyrant!

The Counſel maintained the maſter's right to correct the ſlave, and that there was no preciſe limit ſet for correction. He alſo maintained, that although the correction ſhould eventuate in death, or that death ſhould enſue, yet, unleſs the determination to KILL, was plainly proved, the crime did not amount to or conſtitute murder.

Sophiſtry, not reaſon or juſtice, was in this inſtance ſucceſsful, and inſtead of being ſent to the other world, Sled has been ſent to the Penitentiary for [illegible] TWO YEARS! —Star.

From Waſhington —Our Congreſſional news of this day is of the moſt gloomy kind —Party virulence has at length ſucceeded, in deſtroying the U. States Bank. In the houſe of Repreſentatives, a majority of 13 have dared to decide this great national queſtion, contrary to the wiſhes of very many honeſt members of their party, and in direct oppoſition to our great national intereſts.—This vote will fill our cities with immediate and overwhelming diſtreſs. A ſcene of ſuffering, which in the end muſt transcend all calculation, has already commenced in this city. How far the effects of this calamity will extend, no one can conjecture. Every claſs of citizens and every ſection of the Union will unqueſtionably feel its baneful influence. Is it poſſible, Fellow-citizens, that a majority of the legiſlators of your country, merely to gratify the caprice and malevolence of party, ſhould adopt a meaſure fraught with ſuch deep and indiſcriminate ruin? Do you doubt their object? Liſten to their debates Hear the language of their leader—" It MUST and WILL be decided on PARTY PRINCIPLES!

Pitiful Statesmen! Cold Hearted wretches!—Spectator.

The Princeſs Charlotte, was attacked on her paſſage from Liſbon to Falmouth, by the French privateer Venus, which ſhe ſucceeded in beating off. Mr. Macomb volunteered in defence of the Charlotte, and fell a victim to his hardy and adventurous courage. He received a wound from a muſket ball, through the body, which he ſurvived only 16 hours. The conduct of Mr. Macomb, drew forth the plaudits of the whole ſhip's crew, and his name is mentioned by Capt. Kerr, the commander of the packet, in his official return of the action, with the moſt vivid encomiums. His remains were interred at Falmouth, attended by the whole of the ſhip's crew, who ſurvived the action; and a monument was about to be erected to his memory, by the inhabitants of that town, as a tribute to the ſpirit of a gallant and diſtinguiſhed ſtranger, who nobly fell in a cauſe not his own. *N. The WREATH.

To MYRA.

MYRA, my fair and lovely friend,
To thee this beauteous Wreath I ſend,
Cull'd by myſelf the budding roſe
Its living beauties ſcarcely ſhews;
In it my fair you'll finding new
Of modeſty an emblem true,
The ſnow-white lilly, Flora's pride
The rich carnation there's beſide
And various others you will ſee
Blooming and fair ſweet maid like thee,
Which o'er each flower thy fingers drop
Be thick thee Myra what they lay,
For even flowers can talk—'tis truth,
And moral inſtruction teach to youth
Thus then to thee, my Myra gay,
That Wreath ſo charming ſeems to ſay,
" To thee how kind has nature been,
" That thee a lovelier fource was ſeen?
" And ſure you'll ſay we're lovely too,
" Yes fair and beauteous e'en as you.
" Yet paule a while my deareſt maid,
" Thy charms, like ours, are long will fade.
" Think, think of that, and whilſt you've power
" Increaſe in virtue every hour,
" For ſhe who has no other boaſt
" Than beauty's charms—when they are loſt,
" Like us neglected, thrown aſide,
" She then to foliteude may bide
" Her once fair form—too late ſhe'll find,
" That 'bove beauty is the mind."
But ceaſe O moraiſt, no more
With ſuch hath truths to tune thy reed a
By lively Myra knows full well
As the ſweet moral thou would'ſt tell,
To her, dear maid, is kindly given
The beſt and richeſt gift of Heaven;
For to the beauties of her face
Her heart and mind add tenfold Grace!

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands unganted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence forfeites him to the Institution of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years.—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. Public Notice.

CONTRACTS will be entered into with such person or persons who may be willing to furnish a supply of Flour, Pork, or Peale, at Kingston, York, Fort George, Chippawa, Fort Erie, at Amherstburg, for the use of His Majesty's Forces in Upper Canada: each Barrel to contain one Hundred and ninety six pounds of good fine Flour, and to be properly packed in sufficient Casks.

The Pork to be cured and packed in the manner as stated in my printed Notice of the 14th September, 1805. The Peale to be white prime boilers, and packed in Casks; the whole warranted to keep found and good for twelve months after the delivery into the King's Store. For such, sealed Tenders are now ready to be received at this Office in any proportion for the quantity of Flour, Pork, or Peale wanted; the delivery of the quantity of either species of Provisions agreed for, must be made on or before the first day of July, 1811.

Payment will be made by the Agent for Purchases on producing the Receipts of the Commissary, certified by the Officer Commanding, in Quintuplicate of the quantity delivered into the King's Magazines at the aforementioned Depots, by Bill on the Deputy Commissary General at Quebec. The Accounts to be made up agreeable to the form heretofore transmitted to the Commissary at each Post, and the Furnishers signature to be attested by two subscribing Witnesses: Security will be required for the due performance of the Contract.

JOHN M'GILL,
Agent for Purchases.

CIRCULAR.

Adjutant General's Office, York, 18th February, 1811.

SIR,

I Am commanded by the Lieutenant Governor, to call upon you for a detailed Account of the Application of the Monies arising from the Fines, Penalties, and Forfeitures levied, under the Authority of the "Act to explain, amend, and reduce, to one Act of Parliament, the several Laws now in being, for the Raising and Training the Militia of this Province," which shall have come to your hands, to be made up agreeably to the Provisions of the Fortieth Claule of the same Act.

I have the honor to be,
SIR,
your most obedient servant,
Signed ÆNEAS SHAWE,
Adjutant General.

To Colonel Commanding the Regiment of Militia.

THE COURT OF DEATH.

Death the king of terrors, was determined to choose a prime minister: and his pale courtiers, the ghastly train of diseases, were all summoned to attend; when each preferred his claim to the honor of this illustrious office. Fever urged the numbers he had destroyed; cold Palsy set forth his pretensions by shaking all his limbs; and Dropsy, by his swelled unwieldy carcase. Gout hobbled up, and alledged his great power in racking every joint; and Asthma's inability to speak was a strong, tho' silent argument, in favor of his claim. Stone and Cholic pleaded their violence: Plague his rapid progress in destruction; and Consumption, though slow, insisted that he was sure. In the midst of this contention, the court was disturbed with the noise of music, dancing, feasting, and revelry: when immediately entered a lady, with a bold lascivious air, and a flushed and jovial countenance; she was attended on the one hand by a troop of cooks and bacchanals; and on the other, by a train of wanton youths and damsels, who danced, half naked, to the softest musical instruments, her name was INTEMPERANCE. She waved her hand, and thus addressed the croud of diseases;—Give way, ye sickly band of pretenders, nor dare to vie with my superior merit in the service of the great monarch. Am not I your parent? I the author of your being; do ye not derive the power of shortening human life almost wholly from me? Who, then, so fit as myself for this important office? The grisly monarch grinned a smile of approbation, placed her at his right hand, and she immediately became his principal favourite and prime minister.

Lateft Intelliger

Baltimore, Jan. 2

From South America—By the fchr. Express, from Rio Janeiro, arrived yesterday, we learn that no official news of importance from the River Plate, had reached Rio Janeiro, for some time: the lateft accounts were to Nov. 20. Private letters ftated the inhabitants of Chili had followed the example of those of Buenos Ayres in electing a Junta. The troops of the latter had arrived at Jujuy, and were received with open arms. The governor of Paraguay, who was marching to Santa Fe, had returned to his government, finding the inhabitants very little inclined to aſſiſt him—no doubts were entertained of the ultimate ſucceſs of the Juntas. The naval force from Monjevideo had raiſed the blockade of Buenos Ayres for a few days, when ſeveral American veſſels had got into the port; it had again returned, with a firm determination to exclude all veſſels except thoſe bearing that flag, to which permiſſion had been granted to enter by an arrangement with admiral De Courcey, of the Foudroyant of 74.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

We have it from good authority that our government has received deſpatches from Mr. Pinkney, our miniſter at London, dated the 24th and 25th of Nov. Mr. Pinkney conveys an aſſurance from Lord Welleſley, that the firſt buſineſs done after the appointment of a Regency, or after the recovery of the King, would be relative to the reſcinding the orders in council.

Very late from France.

Yeſterday arrived at this port the faſt ſailing ſchooner, Maria Louiſa, Skiddy, in 26 days from Bourdeaux, which port ſhe left on the firſt of January. Capt S. has brought French papers to the 27th of December, which contain London dates to the 16th of December. The King of England was reprefented to be ſlowly recovering. It was alſo expected a regency would be appointed in England and that a complete change in the miniſtry would take place.

The U. S. frigate Eſſex, which carried out the Preſident's Proclamation of the repeal of the Non-intercourſe with France, arrived at L'Orient on the 5th of December, and the Meſſenger arrived in Paris on the 12th. The Preſident's Proclamation had been publiſhed throughout the French empire, and was received with great joy.

Nothing had tranſpired from the French government, relating to American affairs after the receipt of the Preſident's Proclamation; and no change was known to have taken place ſince our laſt advices.

In one of our French papers, we find that the ſhip General Winton, Seward, which failed from the Downs on the 4th of December, for Charleſton, has been captured by a French privateer, and ſent into Calais.

Peterſburg, Nov. 21.

A great part of the city of Mohilow, was reduced to aſhes on the 19th of Oct. laſt.

LONDON, Dec. 11.

Bulletins of the King's Health, Windſor.

The King has had a very good night, and his Majeſty is better this morning than he was yeſterday. (Signed as uſual.)

Windſor, Dec. 13.

(Signed as uſual.)

13. An American veſſel which has arrived at Portſmouth, brings news from Liſbon more recent by three days than that received by the Jaſper. We learn that there has been no compoſing the poſition of Maſſena's army—His rear guard has eſtabliſhed itſelf behind the Zezere as far as Punleale. The head quarters of the Engliſh continue to be at Cartexo.

It is almoſt certain that all the operations of the campaign are ſuſpended for two months. Maſſena has taken, without finding any obſtacle, a poſition on which Ld. Wellington himſelf declared to be impregnable.

In caſe of a regency the following changes are ſpoken of in the firſt political circles as likely to take place for compoſing the new miniſtry:—Firſt Lord of the Treaſury, Lord Holland; Lord Chancellor, Sir Arthur Pigot; Preſident of the Council, the Duke of Bedford; the three Secretaries of State Lord Grenville, Earl Grey, and the Right Hon. G. Ponſonby; Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr Huſkiſſon; firſt Lord of the Admiralty, Earl St. Vincent; Grand Maſter of the Ordnance, Earl Moira; Treaſurer of the Navy, Mr. Sheridan; Lord Chamberlain, the Marquis of Hereford; Grand Equerry, the Duke of Northumberland; Lord Privy Seal, Earl Spencer; Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Mr. Wm. Adam; Maſter of the Wardrobe, Lord Dundas; Attorney General, Mr. Garrow; Solicitor General, Mr. Jekyll; Preſident of the Board of Controul, Mr. Tierney.

It is ſaid that if his Majeſty's health ſhall not be ſufficiently reeſtabliſhed to enable him to prorogue parliament by commiſſion, on Thurſday (13th) there will be on that day another adjournment unto Monday next; after the phyſicians of his Majeſty ſhall have been examined before the Privy Council.

DECEMBER 16.

Yeſterday deſpatches were received from Lord Wellington, dated Cartaxo, Dec 1ſt, at which time no change had taken place between the two armies. Maſſena had fortified Santaran, and added new works. It is believed he waits for reinforcements. There have been ſome ſkirmiſhes in the environs of Baylon, but without any important reſult.

From a London paper of Nov. 29.

Dreadful ſtate of Holland.—A Gentleman of great reſpectability, recently arrived from Holland, gives the following intereſting details reſpecting the ſituation of that unhappy country. He ſays, that the accounts which have appeared in the Engliſh papers of the diſtreſs occaſioned in Holland by Bonaparte's decrees for the prohibition of all commerce, and of the rigour with which thoſe decrees were executed, fall very far ſhort of the truth. No perſon can go a mile out of town without being minutely ſearched, both upon his leaving it, and upon his return; and if he ſhould happen to meet an officer of the cuſtoms (Douanier) in his walk, the ſame ceremony is repeated. The ſearch for prohibited goods in the houſes of individuals, is carried on, if poſſible, in a more vexatious manner. The officers very frequently chooſe to make their ſearch in the middle of the night; every individual in the houſe is forced to get up immediately, and every drawer, cheſt, cloſet, &c. muſt be opened. This viſit and examination may be repeated juſt as often as the officers pleaſe, and the ſlighteſt oppoſition to the officer is puniſhable with the moſt unrelenting ſeverity. But the meaſure of Bonaparte which has ſpread the greateſt miſery and deſolation throughout Holland, was his annihilating at once two thirds of the public debt, and thus robbing the public creditors of two thirds of their property. By this atrocious act of violence, an immenſe number of families have been reduced to abſolute beggary. During the laſt few years, many of the moſt reſpectable Dutch merchants, in conſequence of the impediments thrown in the way of trade, had withdrawn their capitals and placed them in the funds. They are now utterly ruined, becauſe though one third of their capital is nominally left them, yet in the preſent ſtate of the finances, there is but little chance that the intereſt, even upon that third, will be paid.

Every appearance of trade has vaniſhed; the merchants have ſhut up their counting houſes, and of courſe all the perſons in their ſervice have been diſmiſſed without the poſſibility of obtaining any employment. But the diſtreſſing part of our informant's ſtatement was, that which related to the Hoſpitals and other Charitable inſtitutions. Their chief, and, indeed, their only ſupport, was the property they had in their funds, for, in the preſent wretched ſtate of Holland, it is in vain to look for voluntary contributions. By Bonaparte's decree reſpecting the public funds, theſe inſtitutions were at once deprived of all their reſources, and of courſe the unhappy objects whom they ſupported, have been left deſtitute. Upwards of 10,000 unfortunate beings have in conſequence of this meaſure been turned out of hoſpitals and other charitable inſtitutions, to periſh and ſtarve in the ſtreets. The gentleman who gives this diſtreſſing relation, ſaw, within theſe 3 weeks, numbers of poor creatures lying in the ſtreets of Amſterdam, and actually dying for want. In the midſt of this ſcene of wretchedneſs the French officers and ſoldiers betray the moſt unfeeling barbarity, and the moſt wanton inſolence; they are in general quartered upon ſuch of the inhabitants as ſtill retain any portion of property, 12, 14, or even 16 of them are ſometimes quartered upon one individual.

Such is the almoſt unparalleled ſtate of miſery to which that once rich and happy country has been reduced, and all this complicated maſs of human wretchedneſs has been produced by the unprincipled ambition, and the atrocious cruelty of ONE MAN.

From the Mobille our information is down to the 2d of January, at which time a detachment of the American army, under the command of capt. Gaines, were encamped half a mile from the fort, near the lower end of the town, which is repreſented to be ſtronger perhaps than any in the Southern part of the U. States.

Camp near Mobile, Dec. 22, 1810.

SIR,

I have the honor to notify you that I have been inſtructed by Lieut. Col. Sparks, of the army of the United States, to take poſſeſſion of the fort under your charge, and of the town of Mobille, conformably to the proclamation of the Preſident of the United States, dated Oct. 27, 1810, of which you have been duly apprized. Preſuming that you have already made up your mind as to the courſe you will purſue in relation to this important act; it becomes my duty to demand an immediate reply, which I requeſt you will deliver to capt. Luckett, of the army of the United States, who will hand you this letter.

It is preſumed that no one can be more ſenſible than yourſelf of the conciliatory courſe which has been purſued by the government of the United States, touching this ſubject; and, whilſt I aſſure you of the continuance of this diſpoſition, I am perſuaded you need not be told of the weighty conſiderations of duty and attachment by which the officers of the American army are prompted to ſupport a meaſure adopted by their beloved Preſident.

I have the honor to be, reſpectfully, Sir, your obedient ſervant,

EDMUND PENDLETON GAINES

CAPTAIN PEREZ, Spaniſh Commandant, town of Mobille.

TRANSLATION.

Fort Charlotte, 22d Dec. 1810

SIR—I have received your letter, dated at Camp, near Mobille, of this date; and in anſwer to its contents, I have to inform you, that in regard to the notification which you mention that I have received of the proclamation of the Preſident of the United States, ordering poſſeſſion to be taken of the fort and town which are under my charge, it is neceſſary for me to adviſe you that I have not received ſuch information from any magiſtrate or authoriſed chief of the nation of the United States, & in conſequence of not having received it, I have not taken thoſe meaſures, or made thoſe reflections which you believe I muſt have done on the ſuppoſition that I had received it.

Agreeable to the harmony that has hitherto reigned between your nation and mine, I muſt adviſe you, in order, if poſſible, to ſave the effuſion of blood, that on my part I do not find myſelf authoriſed to accede to the propoſal that you make, without having, in the firſt place, the orders of my chief; but, yes, I aſſure you, that if you agree to ſuſpend your operations the ſhort time that will be neceſſary for me to communicate your intimation to the Governor of the province, you will find me ready to fulfil the orders of that ſuperior chief; and at the ſame time, if you judge proper, you may addreſs yourſelf to the ſaid Governor.

I have the honor to be, moſt reſpectfully, your obedient ſervant, (Signed)

CAYETANO PEREZ.

Capt. Ed. Pendleton Gaines.

On the laſt day of December capt. Gaines received a verbal meſſage from the commandant, by one of his officers, that if more than five or ſix of the American troops approached the fort at the ſame time, he ſhould fire on them.

The Spaniſh commandant, we learn, has aſſured the inhabitants that he would not fire into the town unleſs he diſcovered the American troops entering it. On the part of Capt Gaines they had received aſſurances that no operations againſt the fort would be carried on from the inhabited part of the town. Several families, however, had moved to the country; and others were much alarmed leſt the lawleſs followers of Kemper and Kennedy (who it was ſaid, were to join our militia) ſhould enter the town and reſume their falſely attempted ſyſtem of plunder. It was apprehended that there would be much difficulty in reſtraining Kemper and Co. from revenging the loſs of their comrades, whoſe death, in an engagement with the Spaniſh detachment from Mobille, we noticed ſome time ago.

It was hoped, however, that the ardor of theſe men would be checked until the arrival of the United States artillery and gun boats that were daily expected at Mobille. The latter had been hitherto detained by adverſe winds, but ſuch arrangements had been made as would ſave, it was expected bloodſhed in Mobille, and completely diſappoint Kemper in his boaſted expectations to raiſe the Star before the flag of the United States, and to compel the American nation to remunerate his followers out of the public domain.

A letter from Bordeaux, dated the 10th of Dec. ſays, "War was declared againſt England by Sweden on the 18th of November.

A letter from a gentleman of reſpectability in Waſhington to another in this city, (received by Saturday's mail) ſays, "The laſt deſpatches from Mr. Pinkney to government, (via the Pallas at N. York) mentions the name of the new Miniſter from Great Britain to the United States, as communicated by the Marquis of Wellesley to Mr. Pinkney." The ſame letter adds, that the United States Bank Bill will be immediately taken up in Senate, and no doubt is entertained of its paſſing.

London, Nov. 10.

Our Plymouth letter inſerted yeſterday in our naval columns, announces the arrival of the James Cartel, from Morlaix, with Mr. M'Kenzie on board; from which it was inferred, that all negociation for an exchange of priſoners, is at an end. We lament to ſay, that this concluſion is founded in fact. Mr. M'Kenzie finding after ſix months diſcuſſion, that the French government were obſtinately determined againſt the meaſure, applied for his paſſports, which arrived at Morlaix on Tueſday laſt, and he immediately ſailed with his ſecretary and ſuit.—M'Kenzie has, we underſtand ſince reached London; but we cannot find that any news of importance had reached Morlaix before his departure.

FRANCE.—The moſt recent accounts from France ſtate, that Bonaparte's burning Decrees were in every particular inſtance to be carried into effect with unabated ſeverity. A trial had already taken place before the courts newly appointed to try offences againſt the revenue, and an offender of the higheſt order had been branded in the forehead with the letters V. D. It is not aſtoniſhing, that at the ſame time Bonaparte has iſſued a freſh ſupply of licences, authorizing the perſons to whom they are granted, to trade with England, provided they adhere to the original plan of taking on board one third of wines, brandies, or ſuch other commodities as are enumerated in the tariff, iſſued formerly for regulating that trade. The price of a licence is forty Napoleons, (about forty guineas.)

We have the moſt diſtreſſing times ever experienced in this city—Money is not to be had on any terms—Failures have been very general of late, and ſeveral in our line (booksellers)—The whole mercantile body are ſeriouſly alarmed, and want of confidence univerſally prevails—There are two things which in my mind cauſe much of the preſent diſtreſs—the non-renewal of the charter of the U States Bank, and the immenſe amount of bills which have been returned from London proteſted—by one Packet, the amount of returned bills was not leſs than a million of Dollars. Many failures have taken place in London—one paper mentions 80 houſes in that city.

On the third of November, by an explosion of ſecreted gun-powder in the city of Cork, 9 houſes were blown up, and 18 perſons killed, and three wounded ſo that their lives were deſpaired of.—Alb. Gaz.

LATEST FROM GIBRALTAR.

Mr. Langdon, who has arrived in town from Gibraltar, (via Vineyard) politely favored us with a file of papers from that place, to Dec. 8, and ſome ſhipping articles to the 13th, from the former we have ſelected the following articles:

Gibraltar, Dec 8.

The Cortes of Spain have paſſed a decree, ordering the erection of a ſplended monument in honor of their ſovereign.

"Maſſena's original report to Bonaparte, of the battle of Buſſaco, has been intercepted. He ſtates, that he had loſt 3000 of his gallant fellows and four generals, and acknowledges, that his troops could not get poſſeſſion of the two points which they attacked. He bitterly complains of the want of proviſions, and that the towns and villages are deſerted by the inhabitants.

"The enemy's men continue to deſert; they fly to the Engliſh by hundreds.

"The enemy has twice attempted to croſs the Tagus, and in both inſtances have failed. Between 5 and 6000 French deſerters have been ſhipped off for the ports of England.

FROM THE POLITICAL REGISTER.

L Empecinado.—We are indebted to a Spaniſh gentleman, now in this city, who is well acquainted with this illuſtrious patriot and diſtinguiſhed military chief, for materials to form the following brief ſketch of his truly intereſting character.

The family name of the Empecinado is Don Juan Martini, the cognomen being derived from the village, of which he was the moſt diſtinguiſhed inhabitant—he is of honorable parentage, and, before the cruel deſolation of his country by its preſent invaders, he was enabled, from the rent of his eſtate, to live in a ſtyle correſpondent to his birth—he is about 45 years of age, his countenance is noble, and character iſtic of his mind—he is not above the middle ſtature, but of a frame and temperament capable of enduring the ſevere military toils, to which his ardent patriotism has devoted him.

On the invaſion of Spain, he declared his reſolution to maintain the cauſe of his country, or to die in her defence—and he ſpurned every effort that was made to ſeduce his attachment.——The threat was at length uttered of putting his family, then in the power of the French, to death, unleſs he took the oath of allegiance to the Corſican king Joſeph—and as he reſiſted the menace, it was literally carried into effect, and his whole family was put to death!—On this horrid and moſt barbarous occurrence, he vowed eternal vengeance againſt the French name and nation, and ſwore never to ſheathe his ſword until his country was cleared of her invaders.—The vow has hitherto been carried into effect with a moſt dreadful rigor—and the lives of thouſands of his enemy have not yet atoned the murder of his kindred.

The corps, which he commands is entirely compoſed of choſen men, and amounts to three thouſand, comprising infantry, cavalry, and light artillery. No perſon is admitted into it, unleſs recommended by the firſt people of the diſtrict from which he comes. From its compoſition, the movements of this legion are of uncommon celerity, and its operations of the moſt fatal and certain effect—the terror, which it has impreſſed, is felt even within the palace of Madrid, and the walls of the Eſcurial.

Devoted to his country and the obſervance of his oath, the Empecinado refuſes all pecuniary emolument, and always yields his own portion of the booty wreſted from the enemy, to his gallant followers.

In the event, ſo devoutly to be wiſhed, and at preſent ſo probable, of Spain eſtabliſhing her independence, it is believed that the talents and ſervices of this truly great man will be honored by the higheſt offices, in the gift of his country, the gratitude of which has been already repeatedly manifeſted in nominations to office, which he has conſtantly refuſed, in the determination to purſue that plan of war, which he has rendered ſo deſtructive to his baſe and cruel enemy.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20.

For Legendary Tale of St. Romauld.

ONE day, it matters not to know,
How many hundred years ago,
A Spaniard ſtopt at a Peaſant's door,
The Landlord came to welcome him and chat of this and that,
For he had been the traveller there before.
"Does Holy Romauld dwell Still in his Cell?"
The Traveller aſk'd; "or is the old man dead?"
"No—He has left his loving Buck, and We"
"As good a Chriſtian, never more ſhall be,"
The Landlord anſwer'd, and he ſhook his head.
"Ah Sir we knew his worth"
"If ever there did live a Saint on Earth"
"Why Sir, he always uſed to wear a ſhirt"
"For thirty days, all Seaſons, day and night"
"Good man, he knew it was not right,"
"For dirt and aſhes, to fall out with dirt"
"And then he only hung it out in the rain,"
"And put it on again.
"There uſed to be rare work,"
"With him and the Devil, there, in yonder Cell,"
"For Satan uſed to mauſh him like a Turk"
"There they would ſometimes fight,"
"All thro' a Winter's night,"
"From early Sun ſet, until morn,"
"He with a ſtaff, the Devil his horn,"
"The Devil ſpitting fire, with might and main,"
"Enough to make St. Michael half afraid,"
"He ſpake holy water, till he made"
"His red hide hiſs again."
"And the hot vapour, fill'd the little Cell,"
"This was no common, that his face became,"
"All black and yellow, with the brimſtone flame,"
"And then he ſmelt—Oh Lord I how he did ſmell"
"Then Sir, to ſee how he would mortify,"
"The fleſh if any one had come there,"
"Good man he would ſcourge them,"
"And look at all the delicate things and cry"
"Oh Betty, Betty,"
"You would be gormandizing now I know,"
"But if that not be ſo,"
"Home to your bread and water—Home I tell ye"
"But," quoth the Traveller "wherefore did he ſo ſcare,"
"A flock that now his Sainſhy worth ſo well"
"Why," ſaid the Landlord, "for it ſo befell,

" He heard unluckily of our intent,"
" To do him a great Honor, and you know,"
" He was not covetous of Fame below,"
" And fo by Stealth out night, away he went."
" What was this Honor then ?" The Traveller cried,
" Why Sir," the Host replied,
" We thought perhaps that he might one day leave Us,"
" And then fhould Strangers have,"
" The good mans Grave,"

" A lots like that, would naturally grieve Us,"
" For he'll be made a Saint of, to be fure,"
" Therefore we thought it prudent to fecure,
" His relics while we might :"
" And fo we meant, to ftrangle him one night."

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offence ſubjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprifonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid ; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprifonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid ; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Tranſportation for ſeven years :—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders may be brought to puniſhment ; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut within Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons theicin offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be thereunto affixed. Witneſs our Truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thouland Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fifth year of our Reign.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act paſſed in the forty-fourth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majeſty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Expottation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the paſſing of the ſaid Act it ſhould and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perſon Adminiſtering the Government, by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, to iſſue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name ſuch and ſo many perſons within the Province as to him ſhould ſeem meet, as commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act paſſed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton ſhould be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchaſed under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the ſaid Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the ſaid hereinbefore firſt recited Act, and by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate conſtitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legiſlative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Eſquire, William Allan, of York, Eſquire, and Joſeph Edwards of Niagara, Eſquire, in the ſaid Province reſpectively, to be Commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which ſaid Commiſſioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby reſpectively authoriſed and empowered to Purchaſe ſuch Hemp at and after the price of rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Proviſos contained in and according to the Statutes in ſuch caſe made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all ſuch other matters and things as they are authoriſed and required to do in and by the ſaid recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thouſand Eight hundred and nine, and in the fifteth year of his Majeſty's Reign.

Lateſt Intelligence.

CORK, NOV. 5.

Dreadful occurrence.—It is with great horror that we have to relate a calamity, which far exceeds in the fatal conſequences reſulting from it, perhaps any caſualty ever known in this city. About ten o'clock on Saturday night an explosion was heard, proceeding from the quarter of St. Barry's, ſo loud and unexpected, as to produce the deepeſt ſenſations of wonder and alarm.—Crowds ran to the place from whence the roar of deſtruction ſeemed to proceed, and in a ſhort time, it was too evident that apprehenſion had not over calculated in the bodings of misfortune. It was diſcovered that three houſes in Brandy-lane had been blown up, apparently by gun powder; that the adjacent houſes were in flames; and from the ſad teſtimony of facts it was clear, that many unfortunate creatures had been the victims of inſtantaneous deſtruction. For a moment horror and conſternation ſuſpended enquiry—all was mere amazement—nor was there any one near this ſcene of death and ruin who could for a time, give any relation of the cauſes of this diſmal tranſaction—while the encreaſing crowds were gazing upon the ſmoaking remains of the houſes, and the mangled limbs and bodies of their unfortunate inhabitants. The cries of thoſe whoſe houſes were in flames at length called forth ſome efforts and in a little time, ſuch zealous and generous exertions were made as always diſtinguiſh the inhabitants of this city, in caſes where misfortune makes any claim upon them. The two houſes immediately adjoining the conflagration were almoſt inſtantly pulled down, and the reſt were ſaved from deſtruction.

The cauſes of this dreadful circumſtance are not yet quite certain, and independent of conjecture; but ſo far as fact could be collected from the melancholy ſurvivors under the agonies of body and mind which the loſs of their deareſt relatives, the deſtruction of their little properties, and their own bodily ſuffering, contributed to produce, it appears, that a perſon of the name of Ellard, who lived in one of the ruined houſe, had been a workman employed in the powder works at Ballincollig. It is ſuppoſed that by ſome means or other this man contrived to evade detection in bringing out, from time to time, quantities of gun-powde, for which he in general found cuſtomers among the quarry men employed in the neighbouring quarries about the city. It is ſuppoſed that his wife and others of his family, were employed in drying this powder, and had while ſo engaged, brought a candle too cloſe to it, which cauſed the terrible explosion that took place—and as a great many poor families lodged in that and the neighboring houſes occaſioned the loſs of ſo many lives.

We would not be thought to advance what we have related in perfect confidence of its accuracy; we only mention it as the beſt account we have been able to collect; for the mayor and ſheriffs have been too humane to torture the wretched ſurvivors of this ſcene of deſtruction, by official interrogatories, as to minute particulars of the circumſtances.

Of thoſe who have already periſhed, the names are as follows:—Mary Mahony, a widow; John Corkeran, a child; Thos. Ellard, the ſuppoſed cauſe of the calamity, had one of his thighs torn off in a dreadful manner, and died as he had reached the South Infirmary; Mary, his wife; Florence Sullivan, a maſon; Catherine, his wife, and Edward, his ſon, aged 20; Mary Egan, ſen. and Mary Egan, jun.; Daniel Daly, a cooper, Mary, his wife; Mary Connor, a child; John Twomy, a labourer, Elinor, his wife, Honora, his child, Denis Twomy, his brother; Elinor Daly, a ſervant; and John M'Carty, a labourer. There are three others in the infirmary, of whoſe recovery ſcarcely any hopes are entertained.

The bodies of theſe unfortunate people exhibited a dreadful ſight, which even in deſcription would overpower the feelings of the generality of our readers. The five which were in the houſe with Twomy, the labourer, were mangled and mutilated in a dreadful manner, their limbs being ſcattered about the place and ſeveral of the women who ſuffered, to add ſtill to the misfortune, were with child. There was nothing wanting to enhance the miſery of this moſt ſhocking event, which as far as it extended, was complete in deſtruction, eighteen perſons having been literally almoſt torn to pieces, and the remaining three hourly expected to be releaſed from torture. Three houſes were blown to ruins and ſeveral others extremely injured.

The conduct of the mayor and ſheriffs Deane and Beſtard, and the city coroner Mr. H. Hardy, demand in juſtice the moſt univerſal praiſe. There was nothing that ſenſe and humanity could ſuggeſt upon an occaſion of ſo terrible a nature, that was left unperformed—they diſplayed the utmoſt patience and calmneſs, and generous ſympathy, while they were ſtrictly performing their ſeveral duties.—Their example was duly felt by the immenſe crowds which had collected round the place—not an act of inſenſibility was committed by a ſingle individual of many thouſands—not an indecency of expreſſion was uttered, not a direction given that every hand was not ready to execute, and every heart ſeemed panting to adminiſter ſuccour wherever it was wanted. To this general compoſure and humane watchfulneſs to what was paſſing, one poor creature owes her life. She was buried under the ruins; but the caſual junction of a few large ſtones having prevented the rubbiſh from cruſhing her, her groans were not altogether inaudible.—She was heard by Mr. Sheriff Deane, who ſearched according to the ſeeming direction of the ſound, and after ſome time employed in digging amongſt the ruins, he had the ſatisfaction of reſcuing the poor woman from a dreadful death. In fact nothing could have exhibited a more rare ſpectacle of humanity and exertion than the conduct of the mayor, ſheriffs, coroners, conſtables, and populace. The report of the exploſion was immenſely loud, and the conculſion occaſioned by it, broke the windows in that entire diſtrict of the city where it took place. The relations and families of thoſe poor creatures that periſhed, and who happened to be placed beyond the circle of deſtruction, preſent as melancholy objects for public compaſſion, and charity as ever were ſeen. They are without ſhelter, food and raiment—ſome bereft of parents, others of children, and in this the loweſt condition imaginable of human miſery, their lamentations would melt a heart of ſtone. The mayor and ſheriff, we are given to underſtand, have reſolved to ſolicit for thoſe wretched people ſome little ſhare of public charity, and under the auſpices of theſe humane and generous minded gentlemen, a ſubſcription will be opened, to leſſen in ſome degree thoſe miſeries that are within the relief of human means. There is no fear but theſe poor creatures will feel the ſolace of public benevolence.

With this dreadful example before our eyes and with the melancholy conviction of the evils to which the careleſs management of gunpowder may give riſe, it is no wonder that caution and apprehenſions ſhould require ſome exertion to ſatisfy the public fears againſt ſimilar miſfortunes with this we have been relating. We are very happy to believe however, that the mayor and ſheriff intend making a very minute inquiry into the manner in which perſons dealing in gunpowder in this city provide againſt all poſſible accidents from that dangerous and deſtructive article. The law is cautious and diſtinct in its proviſions for public ſafety upon this head; and we have every reaſon to believe that the law relating to the ſafe keeping of gunpowder, will not be one of thoſe which are ſuffered to be conſtantly infracted with impunity.

Indeed we hope and believe that upon enquiry none of the dealers in gunpowder in this city will be found inſenſible to the caution, with which it ſhould be managed.

NATCHEZ, Dec. 24.

Our informant ſays, that Governor Folche was anxious for the interference of the United States, and willing that they ſhould take the country; conſequently, by this time, we ſuppoſe good order is eſtabliſhed among all parties; the proclamation of the Preſident having been forwarded by the members of the legiſlature to that part of the country.

All is harmony and quiet at Baton Rouge and the weſtern part of Florida, the province attached to the Orleans territory, and the government going into operation.

Lieutenant Hukill, of the army, arrived this morning immediately from Baton Rouge; he brings information that news had reached that place of a general inſurrection in Cuba; that Governor Claiborne had received a proclamation of the Preſident of the United States, pardoning all thoſe American citizens of the province who were deſerters from the army, and ſecuring their return to the walks of civil life.

New Orleans, Dec. 20.

We are happy to ſtate, that every thing is tranquil at Baton Rouge. On the 10th inſt. the United State's troops, under the command of colonel Covington, marched into the fort, and the Floridian troops marched out; their flag was lowered and the United States' flag hoiſted. The troops that marched out fired a ſalute, then ſhocked their arms on the eſplanade in front of the fort, laid off their accoutrements, and were marched by their officers into the village, and diſmiſſed.

The members of the aſſembly & governor Skipwith, we are informed, expreſſed ſome doubts on the following words in the Preſident's proclamation, "it will not ceaſe to be a ſubject of fair and friendly negociation;" leſt they ſhould by this friendly negociation, be handed back as ſubjects of Spain—but on examining the proclamation more minutely, they found that the Preſident pledges the U. States that the people ſhall "be protected in the enjoyment of their liberty, property and religion." Hence it would appear, that when this friendly negociation takes place, if the title is not fairly in the U. States by the treaty purchaſe of 1803, that a new treaty of purchaſe will be made on ſuch terms as may be equitable and right. So the buſineſs reſts, and the people are now perfectly ſatisfied.

Population of the ſtate of Connecticut, agreeably to the Cenſus of 1810—Free Whites, 255,176—Free Blacks, 6553—Slaves, 310.—Total, 261,942—Increaſe ſince 1800, 10,940.

The population of Old Maſſachuſetts, including the diſtrict of Maine, is ſtated in the Boſton Centinel to amount to 471,610. In 1800 the population of the ſame diſtrict was 422,845. Increaſe, 48,795.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 28.

Rigaud has procured himſelf to be appointed commander in chief of the departmert of the South, by a meeting held at Aux Cayes on the 2d of November laſt, of 16 perſons, who call themſelves the "Deputies of the People." This act completely ſeparated his command from the juriſdiction and controul of Petion.—The following is the material part of their proceedings.

[TRANSLATION]

"The people of the Department of the South have decreed and decree as follows:

"1ſt. The chief command of the department of the South is conferred upon General Andrew Rigaud, the founder of Liberty in Hayti.—He ſhall excluſively poſſeſs the right to command the army of the South; to appoint all civil and military offices; to make laws for the welfare of the people; to revoke all exiſting laws, which are inconſiſtent with that end, and generally to make all regulations which his wiſdom may ſuggeſt, for the public good; as well as to diminiſh or encreaſe the public taxes, when neceſſary.

"2d. For the public ſecurity, and to aid the general in chief in his labours, a privy council ſhall be joined with him, which ſhall be compoſed of the generals and five notable citizens, who ſhall be choſen by a private ballot and their appointment ſhall form a ſeparate act.

"The above reſolutions were agreed upon by the people, on account of the diſſolution of the corps, which they had had created to repreſent them."

A moſt ſingular Character.

Mr St—ckl—y was a gentleman of a very ancient family, and of an eſtate of a thouſand pounds a year. In his youth he was bred to the law; and he poſſeſſed ſufficient abilities to have made a progreſs in it. Being once put into motion, he was extremely apt to continue ſo; and when at reſt, he hated moving. By this diſpoſition, when he was prevailed on by his companions to paſs an evening in gaiety, he never deſired to change that manner of living, and would have perſiſted in it for ever, if he could have prevailed on them to continue with him; being then as eccentric and as inclined to motion as a comet. In like manner, when once he had become ſedentary by two or three days tarrying at his chambers, he hated the thoughts of being put into action again, and was always with difficul y brought abroad; like a heavy ſtone which has lain ſome time in one place on the ground, and formed itſelf a bed, out of which it is not eaſily removed.

When he left London, he retired into the country, filled with the project of perfecting the perpetual motion. This naturally kept him much at home in purſuit of this ſtudy; and as no one in the town had reſolution enough to reaſon with him on the affair, or was of importance enough to make him change his deſign, that habit of perſiſting in one way kept him at home entirely. During the courſe of more than thirty years, he never came abroad but once, which was, when he was obliged to take the oath of allegiance to King George the Firſt. This was the only time he changed his ſhirt, garments, or ſhaved himſelf, the whole time of his retirement. He was a very little man, and at once the moſt naſty and cleanlieſt perſon alive; waſhing his hands twenty times a day, and neglecting every other part. During this confinement, he never had his bed made. After he had given over all hopes of ſucceſs in the perpetual motion, he took pleaſure in obſerving the work and policy of the ant, and ſtocked the whole town ſo plentifully with that inſect, that the fruits in the gardens were devoured by them.

During the reign of the immortal Queen Anne, whenever the Duke of Marlborough opened the trenches againſt any city in Flanders, he broke ground at the extremity of a floor in his houſe, and made his approaches regularly with his pick-axe, gaining work after work, which he had chalked out on the ground, according to the intelligence in the Gazette. He took the town in the middle of his floor at B—def—d, the ſame day his Grace was maſter of it in Flanders; and every city coſt him a new floor.

During the time of this ſtay within doors, he never ſat on a chair; and when he choſe to warm himſelf, he had made a pit before the fire, into which he leapt, and thus ſat on the floor.

He ſuffered no one to ſee him but the heir of his eſtate, his brother and ſiſter; the firſt never but when he ſent for him, and that very rarely; the others ſometimes once a year, and ſometimes ſeldomer—when he was cheerful, talkative, and a lover of the little-tattle of the town.

His family conſiſted of two ſervant maids, one of whom ſlept in the houſe, the other not. Notwithſtanding this ſingularity and apparent avarice, he was by no means a lover of money; for during this whole time, he had never received nor aſked for any rent from any of his tenants; and thoſe who brought him money he would often keep at an inn more than a week, pay all their expences, and ſend them back again without receiving a ſhilling.

He lived well in his houſe, and frequently gave to the poor; always ate from large joints of meat and never ſaw any thing twice at his table; and at Chriſtmas he divided a certain ſum of money amongſt the neceſſitous of the town.

He ſeemed to be afraid of two things only; one being killed for his riches; the other, being infected with a diſeaſe; for which reaſon he would ſend his maid ſometimes to borrow half a crown from his neighbours, to hint he was poor; and always received the money which was paid him, in a baſon of water, to prevent taking infection from thoſe who paid him.

He never kept his money under lock and key, but piled it up on the ſhelves, before the plates in his kitchen. In his chamber, into which no ſervant had entrance during the time of his tarrying at home, he had two thouſand guineas on the top of a low cheſt of drawers, covered with duſt, and five hundred lying on the floor, where it lay five and twenty years. This laſt ſum a child had thrown down, which he was fond of playing with, by overſetting a table that ſtood upon one foot; the table continued in the ſame ſituation alſo. Through this money he had made two paths, by kicking the pieces upon one ſide; one of which led from the door to the window; the other from the window to the bed.

When he quitted the temple in London, he left an old portmanteau over the portal of the anti-chamber, where it had continued many years, during which time the chambers had paſſed through ſeveral hands; when, at laſt, the gentleman who poſſeſſed them ordered his ſervant to pull it down, it broke by being rotten, and out fell four or five hundred pieces of gold, which were found to belong to him from the incloſed papers: this he had never examined after. It is generally ſuppoſed, alſo, that he had put ſome thouſands of pound into the hands of a banker, or lent them to ſome tradeſman in London, without taking any memorandum from the perſon; all which are loſt to his heirs, as he would never ſay to whom he had lent them, through fear, perhaps, leſt he ſhould hear it was loſt; which ſome minds can bear to ſuffer, though not to know poſitively. After more than thirty years living a recluſe, he was at laſt found dead in his bed, covered with lice. And thus ended the life of this whimſical being.

ODE TO MELANCHOLY.

Come penſive lonely maid, with downcaſt eyes,
That loves to ſhed, unſeen, the pearly tear;
And burthen'd breaſt, that heaves the frequent ſigh
Oft let me join thy ſad, to mem'ry ever dear:
Unwelcome gueſt where light wing'd pleaſure reign,
Come sit and muſe with me, and ſhare my boſom's pain!

I love with thee to pace the verdant mead,
Or ſit reclin'd beſide yon limpid ſtream
That ever murmurs o'er its rocky bed,
And glitt'ring rolls in Luna's ſilver beam.
There the ſweet ſpot at midnight's tranquil hour,
To mourn the various ills, that ſtrut'd life's tender flow'r.

'Twas not for me, earth's boaſted joys were made!
I doom its ſick'ning mirth, and painted toys;
Here be my breaſt and moſſy pillow laid,
Far from ſide pageantry and noiſe.
To hear ſad Philomel pour forth her ſong,
The rav'lets gurgling ſound, and echo's whiſp'ring tongue.

And hark! the diſtant Curfew ſtrikes profound!—
It tells the knell of hours forever fled;
The haſty hours that fly their ſhadows round,
And in each other's fleeting footſteps tread;
As from our boſom all embrace they ſwiftly flee,
Being fancied bleſſings ſome, and anxious cares to me.
How fad the thought its hollow tones create;
How deep the ſigh that wanders from my breaſt!
As ſtill I mourn the friends, whom frequent fate
Hath ſent untimely to the land of reſt.
Oh! ever-mourn'd be each departed ſhade,
On earth's material lay, in peace forever laid.
There wilt thou wet, my ſtreaming eye, in penſive mood,
And friendſhip's tears the urn profuſely lave
O'er thoſe once-lov'd—in fairer world purſued.
Ev'n to the ſilence of the ſilent grave!
While round their tomb (no fiern are nature's laws)
Still Night, in ſolemn ſtate, her duſky curtain draws.

What viſions dread, now flit before my ſight,
Of friends reponing in their kindred clay!
See yonder funeral! death's relentleſs night!
And deep, damp vault, piere'd by no cheering ray.
That o'er its gueſts beneath, no humble bier,
Eternal, drops in vain, its ever ſhiv'ring tear!
And thus, like low'ring trees we careleſs ſtand
Ah either ſide Time's ſmoothly-gliding ſtream;
Nor heed the wave that wafts the yielding ſand,
But ſtill of mirth in ſtore, and pleaſure's dream
'Till downward comes, at life's declining day,
Oblivion's whirling tide, and bears us ſwift away!
When cold and low we reſt behind the ſod,
Say, is't no more to view thoſe circling ſkies?
To rove no more the paths ſo late we trod,
Forever cloſ'd in leaden ſleep, our eyes?
Forever laid beneath the ſurly mould,
Where Death, and black Deſpair, and Horror reign around?

Ah no! we sure ſhall leave that duſky bed,
And riſe to taſte of bliſs and love, again;
And thou ſad maid that mourn'ſt the drooping head,
To ſigh no more, nor wail thy inward pain.
There join whom once we left, like us, who died
And ſtept long years of gloom, unconſcious by our ſide
Ah forrowing Nymph! then dry thy doubtful tear—
We yet ſhall meet above who part below;—
Ev'n you lov'd train ſhall ſmile in bleſt remembrance dear,
Solate reigns a from life, and ev'ry woe!
Who trac'd each other to the downward grave,
And they, who deep'ſt ſlept, beneath the heedleſs wave!—
There happy they—who in thoſe ſpicy bow'rs,
And blooming groves, conſume their deathleſs day!
Or prefs the bluſhing couch of fragrant flow'rs,
And taſte the golden fate, to mortals prais'd!
But hold!—the ſweets theſe balmy zephyrs bring,
What feeble earth poor muſe, ſhall vainly-fearing, ſing!—
There may each Seraph-waſted ſpirit raiſe,
And ſend in peace upon that bliſsful ſhore—
Where thoſe we mourn ſhall meet our longing eyes,
Nor pain nor fear, nor death divide us more.
And where the ſun, that gilds the eternal plain
In whoſe pure realms of love, ſhall never ſet again!

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27.

By the laſt Express from Niagara, no papers are received of later date than the 5th inſt from Albany; their contents, of little new intereſt:—In the addreſs from the conſervative Senate, to Buonaparte, he is told "as long as England ſhall perſiſt in her orders in Council, your majeſty will perſiſt in your decrees" words of ſo little ambiguity that they can read but this, "whilſt England has a Navy to enforce her blockades of my empire, my decrees ſhall operate to counteract them, and I will viſit her iniquities upon her third and fourth generation".—Some documents from the American Charge d' Affairrs, at Paris, of Decr. dates, accompany the Preſident's communication to the Senate &c: their tenor with the general line of conduct of the French ſince the proclaimed repeal of the offenſive decrees, ſhew in ſuch ſtrong colours what is to be juſtifiantially experienced from the imperial friendſhip of Napoleon, that it would be mere ſpeculation to preaict the iſſue.—No later arrivals from Europe than thoſe noticed in our laſt, are mentioned; & no local details of any importance are given.

FOR THE YORK GAZETTE.

WHILST Zephyrs only o'er the Ocean
Gently they its billows move,
Service all round it then delights me
O'er the pebbl'd beach to rove.

Silent then is every ſorrow,
Ev'ry footh'd is every care,
No reflected on my boſom
Are theſe placid ſcenes ſo fair.

Then I Poeſy's charming page,
Fav'rite Bards perhaps peruſe,
Like them ſometimes attempting (Vainly tho') to court the Muſe.

Should the Ocean quickly changing,
E'er aſſume a lurkier found;
Should the tempeſt ſwell its billows,
Soon with foam to whiten round,

Then to verdent meade I'd hie me
Thither I my ſteps would bend,
Where yon Oaks would me ſecurely
From the tempeſt's rage defend.

When impell'd by winds ſo boiſt'rous,
Veſſels gliding ſwift I ſee,
O no Sailor's life I envy,
Ocean has no charms for me.

Ever grateful are theſe Arbours
Which to pleaſing ſleep invite;
Near a ſtream whoſe gentle murmurings
Ne'er alarm, but give delight.

ERRATA.

In the Legendary tale of St. Romuald, publiſhed our laſt, in the twenty ſixth line from the top, for "From every Sun ſet, until morn," read, from Sun ſet, until morn; for every firſt time, for "Oh Betty, Betty," read, Oh Belly, Belly.

MAGNET.

From the year 1302, the directive power of the magnet has been employed with great ſucceſs in the affairs of navigation; but the firſt account we have of any variation in its direction, was by Columbus, in the year 1498, in his firſt voyage to America. From that time, the variation began to be obſerved, and became more known. For the laſt century and an half, mathematicians have made it a regular part of their buſineſs to obſerve it, in different parts of the earth; with the Annual alterations that are conſtantly taking place. In the year 1723, a very accurate obſerver, G. Graham of London, diſcovered that the magnetic needle had a Diurnal, as well as an Annual variation. And it is now well known, that from about eight in the morning, the magnetic needle varies to the Weſt, until about two in the afternoon. The effects of theſe variations are at all times ſuch, that the magnetic needle can never give to the Surveyor who follows its direction, a ſtraight and accurate line.

York, February 11, 1811.

THE Subscriber begs leave to inform his Friends and the Community at large, that there has been infamous reports in circulation, in order to injure him in the unfortunate situation he is placed as a Tavern keeper, by asserting that his charges are exorbitant, and that he has declared he would not entertain a Farmer.

He thus publicly declares to the world, the reports are false to the last degree; and that his CHARGES are as low as Fair dealing, and that he always entertained all parsons who favored him with their company, with attention and politeness, (with this proviso) that they behaved themselves with propriety. JAMES ODELL ROCH

THE subscriber forewarns all persons from cutting any Timber, or otherwise trespassing on Lot No. 4 and the half of Lot No 2, in the Township of York, fronted by the River Humber; as he will prosecute any person so trespassing on his property. PHILIP HAINS

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'ty.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-fourth year of the Reign of this present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Acts, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,

Latest Intelligence.

New York, Febraury 11.

The ship Paragon, Fowler, arrived at this port on Saturday evening in the short passage of 29 days from Liverpool; and has furnished the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiser with London papers to the 6th of January, Liverpool papers to the 8th, and Lloyd's Lists to the 4th.

Both Houses of the Imperial Parliament had been occupied almost exclusively, from the last day of December to the 5th day of January, in discussing certain resolutions on the subject of a Regency, in consequence of the King's incapacity to execute the royal functions. The papers are filled with animated debates thereon.

The latest Bulletin of the King's health is dated the 4th Jan. in which he is stated to be "as well as he was the day preceding," i. e. he had passed a quiet night without much sleep.

Sebastiani, with 2000 men, has taken the castle of Marmella, near Malaga; and Soult was carrying on his preparations against Cadiz with the utmost activity and perseverance.

The French government, as appears by a letter from the grand judge to the president of the council of prizes, have considered America as having pledged herself to oppose the principles of paper blockade; and, in consequence of the president's proclamation of the 2d November, have ordered that American vessels seized since the first of November, shall not be proceeded against according to the principles of the Berlin & Milan decrees.

Letters from Berlin, dated Dec. the 18th, advert to a treaty of marriage in contemplation between the King of Prussia and a very near relation of the emperor Alexander. On the same authority it is mentioned that a coalition between the two crowns will be formed, for the purpole of mutual defence, under a danger which is seriously apprehended.

A dividend of the late Dr. Goldsmith's property was made to the amount of five shillings in the pound; double that sum was expected by the creditors.

Downing Street, Dec. 31, 1810.

A despatch, of which the following is an exact, was yesterday received at Lord Liverpool's office, addressed to his Lordship by Lieut. Gen. Viscount Welling on, dated Cartauxo, 15th of Dec. 1810.

No alteration has been made in the enemy's position in front of this army since I had the honor of addressing you on the 8th inst. and all the deserters and prisoners continue to report the distress which the troops suffer.

The enemy detached a body of cavalry, consisting of four regiments, towards Coimbra, but finding that town occupied by Gen. Baccilar, they have returned again to their station in the rear of their army.

I am concerned to forward the enclosed report from Marshal Sir William Beresford, of the death of capt. Fenwick, the late commandant of Quidos. During the last two months he had been engaged more than twenty times with the enemy's foraging parties, and, I have had several opportunities of reporting his success.

Upon this last occasion he had made an attack upon, and had driven in, a party, consisting of 80 grenadiers, in the neighbourhood of Evora, near Alcobaca, which had come there in search of provisions, having under his command a detachment of the same number of the militia of the garrison of Quidos, and was pursuing them when he was mortally wounded, and he died on the field; we have thus sustained a great loss, and it is lamented by all who had any knowledge of his gallantry and exertions.

It is generally reported that the battalions composing the 9th corps, have marched towards Mantia, where preparations were making for the assembly of a large body of troops. It is certain that all these troops, as well as Gardanne's detachment, have retired from the frontiers of Portugal.

London, January 1.

The Elizabeth, Indiaman (country ship) was lost off Dunkirk, on the 27th of Dec. and out of 403 souls only 21 have been saved, of whom 6 are Europeans and 15 Lascars.

A report had reached Cadiz, at the departure of the last packet, that the Toulon fleet had put to sea, which occasioned the detention of some ships of the line, which had been previously ordered for England.

January 3.

Monitears have arrived this morning of the 28th and 29th ult. the confirm the loss of the Minotaur, 74 guns, capt. Burrey, off the Texel in the late tremendous gales. Officers and 110 men were saved. Burrey, we grieve to say, perished. Never was known such dreadful weather! Apprehensions are entertained for the safety of some of the Minotaur's convoy.

January 5.

Half past 7. P. M.

The letters from Petersburgh mention, that all the ships under the flag of the United States which have been sequestered, and which are under the distinction of Tenerisfe ships, shall have their cargoes sold; and the sale actually commenced at Riga, on the 8th of December.

The letters from Koningsburgh are of the 21st Dec. and speak of the probability of war between Russia and France. Those from Copenhagen mention, with much alarm, a project for the annexation of Denmark to Sweden to which it is supposed the King of the former will give no opposition.

An article from Naples of the 27th of Nov. observes, that the English have shipped off a part of their forces from Sicily, destined for Portugal.

"The orders in council, since the receipt of the President's proclamation, have become a subject of increased interest, and a memorial was, in consequence, preferred to ministers, deploring the urgency of the case, and requesting an early disclosure of their intentions, as the continuance of our export trade to the United States must now depend upon the repeal of the measures in question.—No reply has yet been received to this application nor does it appear that any sanguine hopes are now entertained that our government, constituted as it is at present, will speedily abandon that system, which they have so long and so strenuously maintained. Our expectations, therefore, of a change of measures, chiefly rest upon the prospect of a change of men, the probability of which has been considerably increased, by the recent proceedings in both houses of Parliament, upon the subject of a restricted regency.

In this state of uncertainty, intelligence of an important nature has been received in Paris papers of the 27th ult. From the annual Expose of the state of the French nation, it would appear, that the complete and virtual repeal of the Berlin and Milan decrees will still depend upon the previous revocation of the orders in council.—This important document is dated the 10th ult. and addressed to the Emperor, by M. Champagny, who, in addressing to the commercial policy of Great Britain, makes use of the following words: "Your majesty will persevere in your decrees, so long as England persists in her orders in council. You will oppose, to the maritime blockade, the continental blockade, and to the plunder on the seas, the confiscation of English merchandize upon the continent. It is my duty to acquaint you, that there is henceforth no hope of bringing back your enemies to more moderate ideas, but by persevering in this system."

A letter has also been addressed to the President of the council of prizes, in which it is observed, that in consequence of the American government having engaged to cause its rights to be respected, all cases pending, relative to the seizure of American vessels, subsequent to the 1st November, shall not be decided upon according to the principles of the Berlin and Milan decrees, but shall remain suspended, being, in the mean time, held under legestration, till the 3d February next, when, in consequence of the United States having fulfilled their engagement of causing their rights to be respected, such vessels, with their cargoes, shall be restored to their rightful owners.

As this intelligence has appeared in an official form, and may be interesting at a crisis of such peculiar importance, we embrace this early opportunity of laying it before you.

New York, February 12.

We are indebted to a respectable gentleman for the loan of a London paper of the 6th of January, from which we have extracted the following articles:—

"We yesterday received Dutch papers to the 1st inst. from which we extract the following paragraphs:

Amsterdam, Dec. 29.

"On the 25th, 1200 men got on more on a small piece of wreck from the Minotaur, which was lost on the Hak sands. According to accounts, the Captain and 60 or 70 men, who got into the boat, was unfortunately swamped close in with the ship. Among those who previously got to land is the Second Lieutenant, Mr. Snell, as also the mate, a passenger, and four men of the American ship Charles, Capt. Woodward, from Mobile to New York, which ship has been taken in the Baltic, and sent for the port of London."

Paris, December 25.

"Jean Sarrazin, General of brigade, and one of the commandants of the Legion of Honor, accused of having deserted to the enemy, has been capitally condemned for contumacy by the Council of War, of the 16th Military Division, at Lisle. After the sentence was read, his name was struck out from the Legion of Honor."

Petersburg, Dec. 3

The corps d'armes, which the Turks have in Bosnia, had made several incursions into Servia, and even advanced as far as Belgrade, but Czani Georges succeeded, after a bloody battle, which lasted two days, in repulsing them to the Dwina, and hopes to drive them behind that river.

Vienna, Dec. 12.

It appears to be more certain than ever, on the approaching accouchement of her Majesty the Empress of France, that the Archduke Charles will make a journey to Paris.

According to certain accounts, the Grand Vizier has received an extensive and definitive full power for negociations of Peace with Russia.

Gottenburgh, Dec. 29.

Hostilities between this Kingdom and England are already commenced; several Swedish ships, which failed from this port, or where bound thither having been taken by the English.

The President, and other frigates, have failed for the Cape of Good Hope from Portsmouth, where they will rendezvous until they are joined by the other ships of war.

A letter from a Russian port, of the 20th ult. confirms the rumour that Bonaparte has positively insisted that the Emperor of Russia shall adopt his confiscation and burning Decrees in their full extent; and though it is said that the language of the Note addressed to the Russian Government upon this subject has given great offence, apprehensions were strongly entertained that the demand would ultimately be complied with.

It will probably be three weeks if not a month, before the Regency Bill is passed, without Ministers give it every facility in their power. Which is certainly a duty incumbent on them. The moment the Regent is appointed and invested with full power, Bonaparte will make an overture for peace.

From Spain.—Schr. Polly, Captain Dennis, arrived at Marblehead Wednesday evening last, 36 days from Corunna. Cargo 2000 tts. Merino wool. Captain D. was told by the commander of the British squadron in that port, that the Orders in Council were still in full force, and that he considered it is duty to enforce them as heretofore.

A gentleman in Marblehead has sent the Editor of the Salem Gazette the following, communicated to him by Mr. Joseph Reggio, an Italian gentleman, passenger with Capt. Dennis.

"A conspiracy against the Government had been taken place in Galacia, headed by the Bishop of St. Jago; of which the English General (Walker) being apprised, he sent orders to the Spanish government to put a stop to it, and to call in all the arms which had been distributed for the defence of the country which was objected to; immediately the frigate Arethusa was dispatched to England for 7000 troops; and the Gallinch brig arrived the 7th January, with information that he troops were within the bay.

"The Spanish army was in Asturias, consisting of 33,000 men, including 5000 Portuguese cavalry commanded by Gen. Camel.—

"The French army, commanded by Gens. Bord, 22,000 troops, were within a few miles of Alicante.

"The Emperor of Germany has sent Bonaparte 8,000 troops to relieve the French arms—one half of which had been sent to reinforce Mallena, and the other to Denmark and Switzerland.

"Passed through Bayonne, from 26th to 29th Dec. between 40 and 50,000 troops, excepted of infantry, cavalry, and artillery—presumed to be the reinforcement to Mallena.

"The Grand Seignor has granted to Bonaparte free passage to Egypt for his troops, and an armistice has marched through Dalmatia."—Boston Patriot.

LONDON January 5.

The contents of the Foreign papers are important—They state the surrender of the Turkish fortress of Nicopolis to the Russian army on the 5th October, and add, that a suspension of arms had been agreed to between those powers, and which had been officially notified by the Servian Senate to their troops. The head-quarters of the Grand Vizier continued at Schumla.

Under the head of Stockholm, reports are noticed to be in circulation, threatening the independence of a neighboring power (alluding we suppose to Denmark;) and the present friendly relations between the two countries are said to depend on the return of a courier with dispatches from Paris. The Crown Prince was expected at Gottenburgh on the 24th ult. The Swedish government avowed that in declaring war against Great Britain, their object was to give Bonaparte a proof that no secret understanding subsisted between the two governments.

Official notice has been given at Hamburgh, Lubec, and Bremen, of the determination of the French Government to annex these cities to France, from the 1st of the present month.

Insurrection is reported to have broken out in Madrid, which for a time menaced the life and liberty of Joseph Bonaparte. The Military from the neighbouring provinces, succeed in suppressing it; but Napoleon had, in consequence, received to recall his brother, and annex Spain to the French Empire.

The Lord Mayor has appointed Tuesday next for a meeting of the Common Council, on the subject of addressing Parliament respecting the Regency.

Letters from Paris of the 29th state, that three ships, bound from the United States to Bordeaux, laden with American Produce, on entering the French port, were put under sequestration.

Bonaparte has ordered a conscription in the maritime departments of his Empire, of 4,000 children, to be trained to the sea.

If Cargoes of British merchandize have been made throughout Sweden, preparatory to its confiscation and sale. The cession of Finland had been demanded good in the expectation of war between Russia and France, orders had been given for augmenting the army to 80,000 men.

Washington, (Geo.) Jan. 19.

On Sunday last, about 2 o'clock, a shock of an earthquake was very sensibly felt in this town and its vicinity. The house continued shaking more than one minute.

Norfolk, February 4.

On Saturday evening arrived in this neighbourhood, His Excellency M. Serrurier, Minister Plenipotentiary from his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of France to the U. States. The Minister embarked at Bayonne on the 1st of January on board the ship Commodore Rogers, bound to New York. The ship meeting with adverse winds off the coast of New York, bore away for the Chesapeake, which the entered on Saturday, & the minister, his suite, and some passengers came up in a pilot boat; the ship proceeded immediately to N. York. M. Serrurier has engaged Walker's packet, in which he proceeds as soon as pollible for Washington.

We are sorry that we could not procure any newspapers by this vessel, indeed we are informed that none were brought up—our information is therefore very small, and in substance amounts to what follows:—

The Berlin and Milan decrees were not revoked, on the contrary private letters were sitting out with the utmost activity, which capture all American vessels, whole condemnation follows with certainty. In the Commodore Rogers are passengers ten or twelve American captains whose vessels and cargoes had been condemned and sold. The internal state of France is represented as deplorable beyond conception. Great discontents are manifested, and nothing has more tended to increase them than the war in Spain and Portugal. Accounts had reached Bayonne that Massena had retreated out of Portugal and was at Cindad Rodrigo in Spain. His army was in the most distressed for provisions, he being in a hostile country. It is not stated that he was followed up by Lord Wellington.—The information from Madrid's state, might be to the 20th or 22d of December, much later than our Lisbon advices. A gentleman who was in Bayonne for many weeks previous to the departure of the Commodore Rogers, states that no reinforcements for the armies of Spain had passed through that place for some time. It was a common observation in France, that as the French armies suffered more for want of provisions, than for want of numerical force, reinforcements of men would only increase the distress. There are some who are so malicious as to insinuate that the emperor would not be sorry for the loss of his armies in Spain, in which (and in high commanders) are some of the most notorious Jacobins in France, a character of all others, dreaded and detested.

A new conscription has been lately made of 15,000 men for the marine, which evinces a disposition on the part of France to once more try her strength on the ocean—of the result no one can doubt.—Ledger.

New York, February 13.

LONDON January 2.

The Isle of Bourbon and the Iphigenia frigate was anchored off that island, but rendered to the French. The Africaine, capt. Corbet was taken by a French squadron, on which the Iphigenia was one; but the Boadicea appearing in sight, she was abandoned by the enemy, after taking out those stores and such of her crew as were not wounded.—Captain Corbet, who was wounded in the action, was left on board.

The French frigate Venus, 44, Captain Hamelin, was taken a few hours after the has captured the Ceylon, 32, (having on the dispatch in the Monsieur Ruse, General Abercrombie on board) by the Boadicea.

The Ceylon was taken.

The Ceylon fought till all her mafts were gone.

The Africane did not strike till after a severe action.

It is supposed from the Ceylon being off the Isle of Bourbon, that the intended expedition from India was in the neighborhood.

LUCIEN BONAPARTE'S FAMILY.

TAUNTON, Jan. 3.

The wife of Lucien Bonapatte, his children, and the Abbe Chanpentier, a medical attendant, and several servants, slept at the White Hart Inn, Wellington, on Thursday night, and passed through Taunton the following morning, about nine o'clock.

About eight months since, Napoleon sent an invitation for the appearance of Lucien's two eldest daughters, and his son Charles at his Court Charlotte only, who is 17 years of age, was permitted to avail herself of this imperial favor. She remained there almost two months. Her return was rather precipitate; and for some reason or other, which is known only to the family, demonstrations of implacable resentment have been ever since so unequivocally manifested by Napoleon, that his brother was at length induced to make preparations for his removal.

Lucien has six children.—The gentlemen who sat in the carriage with Lucien when he passed through Taunton, was not his Secretary as we supposed, but the brother of Lucien's first wife.

"LUDLOW, Jan. 2.

"Madame Lucien Bonaparte, with her family, and a numerous train of servants, arrived here this evening, occupying in all, four carriages, and having performed the journey from Plymouth in a week. Lucien removed yesterday from the Inn to Lord Powis' residence in this town, called Dinham house, his Lordship's seat in the neighborhood (Stone houle) being found too small for the reception of so numerous a suite. It is believed they will remain here during several months. The popular surprise at the arrival of so unexpected a stranger is now beginning to subside, and Lucien may already appear in our streets and walks with as little eclat as other inhabitants of the place. He is a man of retired habits, fond of reading, and of domestic life. It is easy to trace in him the origin of that disposition which has led him to quarrel with his brother, and to prefer the tranquil comforts of a private station to the pageantry of royalty. His wish seems to be to pass the time of his detention among us in a quiet manner. In consideration of his family, which unfolds chiefly of females. A good deal of pains has been taken in providing him with comfortable residence; in other respects, he is treated as a prisoner of war, and is subject to whatever restraints government think proper to impose.

Lucien Bonaparte arrived at Ludlow about four o'clock on the evening of Wednesday se'nnight, accompanied by his nephew, an interpreter, secretary, Mr. Ma kenzie and a few fr unds. He drove to the Angel Inn, where he dined and slept. On Thursday morning he walked about the town, viewed the Castle, and some of the principal streets; but as the weather was rather unfavorable, and public curiosity great, he did not stay long. On that evening, one of the Winter Evening assemblies took place which Lucien, and his nephew, and some of his friends attended. Some of the latter danced, but Lucien did not. He continued in the room till supper was announced; he then attended the Countess Powis to the supper room, and sat at her lady ship's right hand during supper; after which he returned to the hall and card-rooms. On Saturday, he went to Stone-houle, a seat of Lord Powis, about five miles from Ludlow, where Lucien is to reside in future, and from thence proceeded to Wyleat, the principal residence of his Lordship, where he stayed a day or two, and returned to Ludlow.

Dover, Dec. 25.

The Eagle, a French frigate, which we yesterday stated to be on shore, has been attacked by the boats of the Diana, under the batteries of Tatihou, which succeeded in getting her on fire and completely destroyed her, without the loss of a man.

A convoy was to sail from Malta about the 20th of Nov. for England.

A warm controversy exists in England and he ween the friends and the opponents of the Prince of Wales, as andidate for the regency. Sir Francis Burdett and Wm. Cobbett espouse he cause of the Prince.

The President's proclamation reached England about the 10th of Dec.

Letters from Liverpool of Dec. 15. state that the British orders in council would be rescinded when the French decrees ceased to operate.

Extract of a letter from Norfolk, to a gentleman in Baltimore, dated Feb. 3.

"Last evening arrived here a French Minister, Gen. Serrurier. He is a young man, with no family but a secretary and two servants. He is direct from Bayonne, which port he left the 30th Dec. in the American ship Commodore Rogers, of and bound to N. York, but having experienced severe northwardly winds on this coast, got in here. The capt. of the Com. Rogers had stipulated to land him at the first port he could make. The ship has since proceeded to New York. She is in ballast, and has a number of American captains, &c. on board, who have left their vessels in France. A captain of a schooner from Baltimore, owned by Mr. Kennedy, has returned in her. The writer has had some conversation with him. He says, there is no revocation of the Berlin or Milan decrees, as to neutrals, and no relaxation in the vigilance of the privateers, in capturing every vessel they fall in with. General Mallena is still said to have retreated to the frontiers of Spain, where it is believed he will winter.

New York, February 14.

We learn by the arrival this forenoon of the ship Dispatch from New-Orleans, that the brigands had risen in the white inhabitants of that territory. General Hampton with the U. States forces were in pursuit of them.—Governor Claiborn had ordered out all the militia, and forbid by proclamation all the male blacks from going at large.

A severe battle had been fought at Mexico between the conventionalists and the Spaniards, the former were defeated with great loss.

February 15.

By the Hibernia, in 50 days from Lisbon, we learn, that Lord Welling n's head quarters were at Gattano, and the French at Santarem. The two armies remained almost inactive, except a little skirmish which occurred about the 14th of December, between a party of cavalry of the two hostile armies in which the French were defeated with considerable loss.

New Orleans, Dec. 27.

By an arrival on the 25th inst. from Mobile, we learn that the gun vessels which failed from hence a short time since with troops for Fort Stoddert had arrived in Mobile Bay—and that Col. Cushing had had an interview with Gov. Folch—the result of which was not known—but it was generally believed at the time when the vessel failed that Mobile would be peaceably given up to the United States in a few days.

January 7.

Serious disturbances have lately broken out in the Kingdom of Mexico. Three battles have been given between the infurgents and troops of the European Government; we learn that the last which has taken place on the 29th October has been very dreadful and terminated to the advantage of the European party. 6000 of the insurgents were said to have been killed or wounded.

Natchez, Dec. 31.

General Hampton reached this city on Friday last; on his arrival, we learn an express was immediately dispatched to Col. Pike supposed to be on his return to Camp Dearborn. We have heard it conjectured by several officers of the army, that the order for the return of the detachment under the command of Col. Pike, would be countermanded, and the place of destination changed. On the day after his arrival, Gen. Hampton hastened to Fort Adams it is supposed, with the view which we have mentioned.

A letter from New Orleans, dated January 15, says, "the insurrection among the blacks is at an end. The ringleaders have all been taken and executed. Peace and order is restored."

Bank of the United States.

The committee of the senate have reported to that body a bill to renew the charter of the United States Bank for twenty years. The capital stock is to be increased five millions of dollars, making the whole amount of capital 15,000,000 of dollars. The president of the United States is to appoint annually, with the advice and consent of the senate a certain portion of the directors. No votes for directors to be given by proxy. The sum to be paid by the bank as the price of the charter is left blank.

Amendment of the Constitution of New York.—Messrs. Sargent, Grotvenor, Lawrence, Rose, and M'Nair, are appointed to enquire whether any, and if any, what amendments are necessary in the constitution of this state. The object is, to call a convention for the purpole of making the necessary alterations Amongst the alterations suggested, are the following:—To allow every perlon to vote for Governor and Senators, who can now vote for members of Assembly. To elect the Governor annually, and render any one perlon ineligible for more than three years in succession. To render the offices of mayor, sheriff, county clerk, and perhaps justices of the peace elective. To vest the appointment of all other officers in the Governor, with the advice and content of the Senate.

Extract of a law lately passed in New-Jersey.

The preamble recites the act of N. York subjecting to seizure and forfeiture any Steam Boats navigating the waters of that State, not belonging to Messrs. Fulton and Co. The act provides in substance, that wherever any Steam Boat, owned and navigated by citizens of this state, shall be seized and forfeited within the jurisdiction of New York, it shall be lawful for citizens of this state to seize within the rivers and harbors of this state any Steam Boat owned by citizens of New York and sell the same, &c.

From the above extract it will be seen that the enlightened state of N. Jersey, in direct violation of the constitution of the United States, have determined to grant letters of marque and reprisal against the citizens of N. York.

A Merman.—A letter from Monmouth, dated the 13th inst. says—"About eight o'clock yesterday morning, two fishermen, going down the river in their trunkies fishing for fish-men, found their net much heavier than usual, and, on coming to shore, they found it contained a huge monster, the upper part of it bearing the exact resemblance of a man, the middle of a beast, spotted like a leopard, and a tail like a fish, the hair on his head green—he has red eyes, and tusks whe inches and a half in length, and measures from head to tail three feet and three quarters. He is now deposited in the Town Hall, for the inspection of the curious.—Lon. paper.

On the 3d of November last the wife of Mr Daniel Sherwood, of Green's Farms, (Conn.) aged 45 years, was delivered of three sons—all healthy, promising children, weighing together 24 pounds.

ODE TO THE POPPY.

NOT for the promise of the labor'd field,
Nor for the Gorn, the vicious Harvests yield
I bend at Ceres' shrine;
For dull to human Eyes appear
The Golden Glooms of the year
And I a melancholy Worship mine,
I hail the Goddess for her scarlet flower!
Thou brilliant Weed
That doth so far exceed
The richest gifts gay Flora can bestow,
Heedless! pass'd thee in Life's morning hour,
(Thou Comforter of Woe,)
Till sorrow taught me to consess thy power.

In early days when Fancy wheats,
A various Wreath I wove,
Of laughing Springs luxuriant Sweets
Per'chance of Love,
The Rose or Thorn my brothers crown'd,
As Venus smil'd or Venus frown'd,
But Love and Joy and all their Train are flown,
Ev'n languid hope no more is mine,
And I will sing of sheer alone,
Unless perchance the attributes of Grief,
The Cypress bud and Willow leaf,
Their pale funereal foliage blend with thine.

Rail lovely blossom! thou canst calm
The wretched Victims of Disease,
Canst circle thole weary Eyes in gentle sleep
Which never open but to weep
For oh! thy potent charm
Can agonising pain disarm,
Expelling even memory from her Seat,
And bid the throbbing heart forget to beat.

Soul soothing plant that can such blessings give,
But for the Mourner bears to live
By thee the Hopeless die,
Oh! ever friendly to Despair!
Maybe Sorrow pallid vainly date
Without a crime that remedy implore,
Which bids the Spirit from its bondage fly,
I'd court thy palliative all in vain more,
No more I'd fue that thou should'st spread
Thy fpell around my aching head,
But would conjure thee to impart
Thy balsam for a broken heart
And by thy felt Lethean Power
(Ineffmable!) bid me
Burst their terrestrial bonds and other Regions try!

Lateſt Intelligence.

New York, Feb. 20.

Cleared out, the Induſtry, Harris, for New York, and Lucretia, Williams, for Boſton

Cadiz, Dec. 9. Ten thouſand muſkets are arrived from England, together with 100,000 flints, one million of cartridges, 9 pieces of ordnance, lead for muſket balls, & 500 barrels of powder

Dec. 13. We learn from Catalonia, that on the 6th of Nov. Macdonald retreated from Cerevera by the Calaf road, and paſſed through the town of Manreſa, which he ſet on fire. The inhabitants, however, ſucceeded in checking the progreſs of the flames, and there were but thirty houſes deſtroyed. He purſued his march by the Vice road, until he reached Gerona and Hoſtalrich, where he is waiting for a large convoy which he is to conduct to Barcelona. As he paſſed through Lerida, he left there the whole of his artillery and plunder.

Gibraltar, Dec. 22.

The Bulwark is arrived at Cadiz with four millions of dollars, and twenty millions more are ſhortly expected from Mexico.—The beſiegers of Cadiz have been ſucceſsful in throwing a few grenades into the town; but we are happy to hear, that they have done no damage.

A pretty large ſum of money and a great quantity of proviſions have been remitted from the ſeat of government to Algeſiras, where ſeveral thouſand men are daily expected.

Another very gallant action was fought at Iſlan in the Sierra of Ronda, on the 5th inſt. between a handful of mountaineers (two hundred and odd) and about two thouſand French troops.—The brave patriots, although ſurpriſed by the enemy, maintained their ground until they had exhauſted their ammunition, and then reſolutely forced their way through the ranks of the enemy whoſe loſs was much more conſiderable than their own.

Extract of a letter from Sir James Fellowes, to Mr Conſul Duff, dated at Cadiz, the 11th December, 1810.

"From the ſtatements during the laſt ten days, it appears that although the diſeaſe which prevailed here, cannot be ſaid to be entirely extinguiſhed, it is ſo far ſuppreſſed that a few caſes only are obſerved in the city."

We are indebted to a reſpectable merchant of this city, for the following extract:—

Bremen, Dec 5.

"We ſuppoſe your countrymen will not feel much inclined to ſhip their property to the European continent. At any rate, we will not accept any conſignments, unleſs they ſend a ſufficient number of dollars along, to pay the duties which amount on the cotton and ſome other articles, to the triple of the firſt coſt. To-morrow the Engliſh manufactures, ſeized by the Douaniers, will be burned here. The quantity here is eſtimated at about 300,000 dollars.—It is ſuppoſed that the amount of Engliſh goods already burnt in Germany exceeds five millions of dollars. We believe that the manufacturers in England will have no objection to ſuch meaſures."

The Philadelphia Political Regiſter of Saturday evening ſays—"We underſtand that a letter of a late date has been received in town from London, ſtating that the Regency had gone into operation"

It is the root only and lower part of the ſtem of the ſtramonium or thorn apple, which poſſeſſes the anti-aſthmatic virtue; theſe ſhould be cut into ſmall pieces and be put into a tobacco pipe, and the ſmoke as well as the ſaliva ſwallowed together. The patient will find relief on ſmoking the firſt pipe.

The Weſt Florida News.—Reſpecting the news of the flight of our troops before a Spaniſh and Britiſh force, of the truth of which we yeſterday expreſſed ſtrong doubts, the National Intelligencer of Saturday, thus remarks:—"Rumours have been circulating for a day or two paſt, on the authority of private letters from Natchez, of a Britiſh force having reached Florida; and on the paper which we received by the laſt mail from Natchez are written the words "a Britiſh fleet at Mobile.' Notwithſtanding theſe concurrent circumſtances, we are of opinion that no credit is due to the report. If there were any foundation for ſuch a report, we ſhould have probably heard of it through a leſs circuitous channel, than that thro' which we now receive it."

Inſurrection in the Orleans Territory. On this ſubject we have an intereſting letter, containing particulars not before received. It appears, that the ſeat of the inſurrection was within thirty miles of the city of New Orleans—much nearer than we had before apprehended. The letter will be found below.

M. Serrurier, the French Miniſter, reached Waſhington on Thurſday. On Friday he was received by the Secretary of State; and on Saturday, preſented to the Preſident.

Waſhington, Feb. 16.

The following is a copy of a bulletin received by this morning's mail, by Mr. Stanley, a member of congreſs, from North Carolina, in a letter from Judge Martin, dated New Orleans, 11th January.

"GENERAL ORDERS.

"Head Quarters, New Orleans, Jan. 10, 1811, at 3 o'clock P. M. The militia of the city and ſuburbs of New Orleans, are all ordered on patrol duty during the enſuing night. They will rendezvous at 6 o'clock, at the places mentioned in prior orders, and await the inſtructions of their inferior officers.—The ſafety of the city renders it neceſſary that this order ſhould be fully obeyed.

WM. C. C. CLAIBORNE."

"New Orleans, Jan. 10, 1811.

"The Brigands were on laſt evening at the plantation of Col. Forſten, their numbers are variouſly ſtated from 180 to 500. During the night they diſperſed, and have for the moſt part taken to the woods. The miſchief done is not aſcertained; there is however reaſon to apprehend that ſeveral of our fellow citizens have been maſſacred; ſome dwelling-houſes are burnt and others pillaged. The near approach of a detachment of U. States troops, and of the volunteer corps under the command of Gen. Hampton, occaſioned the diſperſion of the Brigands; twelve or fourteen have been taken. The General remains with the troops up the coaſt, and the citizens may be aſſured, he will take ſuch meaſures as circumſtances may require and their ſecurity adviſe.

"The inhabitants of New Orleans and its vicinity, will continue their vigilance—regular patrol ſervice by day and night will be ordered and muſt be performed. It is conſidered as eſſential to our ſafety.

WM. C. C. CLAIBORNE."

The letter to Mr. Stanley ſtates that much confuſion and diſtreſs has been occaſioned by the inſurrection of the negroes. The ſeat of it is about 30 miles north of N Orleans, on the ſame ſide of the river—women and children were crouding from that part of the country into the city.—It was reported that ſome lives had been loſt.—About 18 Negroes killed.—No authentic information has yet arrived reſpecting the retreat of Col. Cuſhing, as mentioned to you in my laſt.

Chillicothe, Feb. 6.

Extract of a letter from an officer in the army, to his friend in this town, dated Fort Adams, Dec. 29.

"We are thus far on our return from our Florida campaign—we have taken poſſeſſion (ad et lingual) of all that part of Weſt Florida, bounded by the Miſſiſſippi. The Spaniards ſtill hold poſſeſſion of the fort of Mobile, which is within our claim; it is ſaid to be ſtrongly garriſoned, and capable of making a vigorous defence.—Why we return I am unable to conjecture—our force is certainly ſufficient to bear down all oppoſition—our leaders are perhaps waiting to hear from congreſs.—I admire the energy diſplayed by our executive on this occaſion—the diſappointed and factious can no longer lay our rights are trifled with, for want of ſpirit to aſſert them. Tho we ſhould proceed no farther, our acquiſition muſt be conſidered as valuable—the whole of the Miſſiſſippi is now American. Our flag is waving on the walls of Baton Rouge, and on both ſides of the Lake Ponchartrain, and the commerce of Weſtern America will no longer be ſubjected to the impoſitions of a petty military deſpot, (the vaſſal of a foreign government) but will glide ſecurely on to Orleans, the great emporium of the weſt."

Extract of a letter from an intelligent American, dated Gottenburgh, 4 Dec. 1810, to a reſpectable Houſe in Philadelphia

"On the 22d ult, we came to Mativer harbour, the captain and myſelf went up to Carliham to obtain an anchor, and learn the ſituation of the place. An anchor we procured, and in two days afterwards the declaration of war was made known. On the 2d inſtant, I learnt the intention of the Government to detain every veſſel laden with Colonial goods—I then went by land to the ſhip, and got the Captain to proceed without delay to the iſland of Hanno, where the Britiſh fleet lay. I had to return to Carliham, to ſettle the accounts, procure the protest, and write you letters of advice. I inſtructed the captain how to proceed if I did not get on board before he ſailed with the convoy, but ſo confident was I of getting on board, that I left all my papers and clothes in the ſhip. The ſhip juſt got in time out of the power of the Swedes—the following day every veſſel was detained, and on the 7th inſt. the documents of 130 veſſels laying at Carliham, were taken from them, ſealed up, and are to be ſent to Carlscrona. The Continental ſyſtem is going into operation as faſt as it can in Sweden. The ſituation of an immenſe valuable American property depoſited in Sweden, is very diſtreſſing — No export is now permitted, and I think it will all come under a Tariff Duty before Spring. We could not reach a Ruſſian port, and there is now no other place left us but England that we are permitted to enter where the property will be ſafe."

We may now preſent our readers, with ſome poſitive details, relative to the military operations which have taken place in Mexico. They are extracted from the letter of an officer high in rank, who was in perſon at the laſt engagements. The following contains the ſubſtance of that letter, dated from Queretaro November 12th.

The ſpot where has been fought the principal battle, on the 29th of October, is named Aculeo. Gen. Callejas headed the European army and the perſon Allende Aldamo that of the inſurgents, of about 25 to 30,000 men. ——The Indian army had ſelected their poſition upon the ridge of a hill, which was naturally fortified, and at firſt rendered uſeleſs the ſervice of Cavalry. Having perceived the vanguard of the European army, they attacked them by ſome diſcharges of artillery, which reached no body. The Spaniſh Infantry, ſupported by a well ſerved Artillery, climbed up the poſition of the inſurgents, who after two hours combat, were completely defeated, and purſued by the Cavalry, abandoning all their baggage and Artillery, conſiſting of eight ſmall guns and two pieces of heavy ordinance, which belonged to the regiment of La Villas.—Their loſs is reckoned at 6000 men in killed, wounded and priſoners, and the European army, if we attach credit to that letter, have only loſt three or four men. The perſon of Dolore and his generals have taken their refuge through the mountains where they are ſtrenuouſly purſued. All the Indian boroughs have ſubmitted themſelves, and implored the clemency of the victorious party. The letter ſays farther, that the perſon who headed the inſurgents, does not know how or where to conceal himſelf. They hope that good order will be ſoon reſtored in the revolted provinces.

"When Lucien Bonaparte and family were recently made priſoners of war, the property they had with them, which was very conſiderable, became, as a matter of right and cuſtom, prize to the officers and ſhip's company of his Majeſty's ſhip Pomona, capt. Barrel, who commanded that ſhip, informed his officers, that he did not, for his part, intend to make any claim to it; his officers alſo agreed to wave their rights; and the ſailors, naturally enough, followed the example ſet them. Lucien, however wiſhed to make ſome little courteous acknowledgment of the liberal conduct of the men; and beged that 3 or 400 pounds might be diſtributed among them. This ſum was returned by a deputation from the ſailors, headed by the Captain of the Forecaſtle, ſaying they would have been deviliſh glad if they had come along ſide of them in a frigate, that they might have fought it out; as it was, however, they could not think of taking any money from them. Lucien desired to know if they wiſhed for any thing elſe: "they had no objection to drinking his health, now he was going to England," and accordingly, when he landed at Malta, he ſent of a ſhare of London porter to each man."

FROM BELL'S MESSENGER, NOV. 19.

FUNERAL OF THE PRINCESS AMELIA.

Tuesday being the day appointed for conſigning the remains of her late Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Amelia to the Vault of the Chapel Royal at St. George's, the various perſons who were to form the proceſſion, aſſembled at an early hour in the town of Windſor, which exhibited on the melancholy occaſion, the moſt gloomy appearance. All the ſhops were cloſed and ſcarce an inhabitant could be obſerved, who was not dreſſed in deep mourning; and in many inſtances, the addition of crape hat bands afforded a ſtriking proof of the ſincere regret with which the death of a Princeſs ſo amiable and ſo univerſally beloved, was regarded.

At three o'clock the court yard and gates of the caſtle were cloſed, and none but perſons of decent appearance were admitted.—Shortly after 5, the Royal Stafford Militia marched from their barracks for the purpoſe of flanking the proceſſion, which they performed by forming a triple line, from the ſouth door of the Royal Chapel to Auguſta Lodge, each 7th man bearing a flambeau.—The interim between 5 and 8 o'clock, was filled by the various perſons who were to take poſt in the proceſſion within the chapel, arriving in their carriages, and proceeding to their reſpective ſtations, while thoſe who were to accompany the body aſſembled at Auguſta Lodge, and at 8 preciſely, the whole were in motion, and proceeded in a ſlow manner in the following order:—

Four Trumpeters.
A detachment of Royal Horſe Guards, (blue.)
A plain Hearſe, containing the body of her Royal Highneſs, drawn by 8 black horſes.
A detachment of Horſe Guards.
Two of his Majeſty's carriages, the firſt containing the Princeſs of Wales and Duke of Cambridge.
the latter the Chief Mourner and Pall ſupporter.
The Carriages of their Royal Highneſſes the Princeſs of Wales and Duke of Cambridge.

A temporary ſaloon was erected at the South door of the Chapel, which was lined with black cloth, and on the arrival of the proceſſion at this entrance, the ſervants, horſe guards and trumpeters filed off. The hearſe then approached, and the coffin was taken from it by eight yeomen in their ſtate uniform, who carried it on their ſhoulders, ſupported on a bier, covered with black cloth, and thickly ſtudded with ſilver nails, after which his Royal Highneſs the Princeſs of Wales, and the other perſons who followed in the melancholy train entered the aiſle of the Chapel, which was illuminated by flambeaux, borne by a large detachment of the blues, from whence, after a ſhort time devoted to arrangement, the whole moved forward towards the body of the Chapel (the floor, altar, and pulpit of which, was covered with black cloth) in the order described in the ceremonial publiſhed on Sunday laſt

The Princeſs of Wales and the Royal Dukes, were dreſſed in ſuits of plain mourning.

The Ladies were dreſſed in black with long white veils.

The body having been placed upon the treſſels prepared for its reception, the chief mourner took her ſeat at the head, and the Pall bearers knelt on each ſide. The Coronet and Cuſhion being laid upon the coffin, and the eſcutcheons expoſed to view, the pages then ranged themſelves in front of the altar, while the other perſons who took part in the proceſſion occupied the places which had been previouſly appointed for their reception. Their Royal Highneſſes taking their ſeats in the ſtalls on each ſide of the weſt door at which the proceſſion entered, the Knights of the Garter in their reſpective ſtalls, the Phyſicians, Lords of the Bedchamber, Miniſters, Canons, and Lay Clerks, in the other vacant places, and the Ladies on the lower ſeats next the corpſe.

Theſe diſpoſitions having been made under the direction of a Page, the Dean of Windſor, from the ſuffrance hall, read that part of the burial ſervice, before the interment, with infinite pathos, after which the choir chanted an appropriate hymn, during the whole of which, the deepeſt marks of ſorrow were depicted on the countenance of every perſon preſent, and amongſt the Royal Brothers the ſame ſentiments of poignant grief ſeemed to prevade all their boſoms.

The firſt part of the ſervice being terminated, the proceſſion moved from the chapel in the ſame order in which it entered, and with the ſame degree of awful ſolemnity, the Choir again chanting a lolemn, and taking its courſe to the right from the weſtern door, proceeding thro' the north aiſle to a paſſage behind the altar at the eaſtern extremity of the chapel in which was situated the temporary vault for the reception of the earthly remains of her Royal Highneſs, previous to its final removal to Cardinal Wolſey's Chapel, which is in a forward ſtate of preparation. The corpſe having arrived at the verge of the vault, which was lined with black cloth, he yeomen lowered it into the hollow and the cuſhion and coronet were placed on the top. The Royal Brothers were now obſerved cloſe to the laſt home of their departed ſiſter, and as they gazed on the harrowing ſcene, the big tears rolled down their manly cheeks, while their boſoms heaved with internal anguiſh at the awful taſk it became their duty to perform. While the Dean was finiſhing his office, His Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales burſt into a paroxyſm of grief, and was unable longer to bear up againſt the flood of misery which ſeemed almoſt to overwhelm his ſenſes. He ſobbed, and even cried with almoſt feminine weakneſs. His Royal Brother too participated in his grief, and pay the tribute of fraternal love to the memory of their deceaſed ſiſter, whoſe virtues had endeared her to all who had the felicity of moving in her ſociety. It would be impoſſible to deſcribe the feelings which ſeemed to ſway every heart on this awful occaſion.

The floor of the aiſle in which the vault is ſituated, was covered with black cloth, the gloomy effect of which, together with the ſombre glare of the innumerable torches held by the ſoldiers, afforded a proſpect awfully grand

There were not more than 3000 perſons admitted into the aiſles of the Chapel, 100 of whom only obtained entrance to the interior, during the burial ſervice.

At the concluſion of the ceremony, which was not completed till 11 o'clock, Sir Iſaac Heard, King at Arms, pronounced the following words:

"Princeſs Amelia, aged 27, ſixth daughter of his Majeſty George the Third, King of Great Britain, to whom God grant long life, health, and proſperity."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18.

This day his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the uſual Formalities, cloſed the Seſſion of the Legiſlature, and was pleaſed to deliver the following Speech to both Houſes:—

Hon. Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, And Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

IN cloſing this Seſſion of the Legiſlature, I am happy in expreſſing the ſenſe I entertain of the Diligence and Attention with which you have conducted the various objects of Public Concern that have come under your review.

It is with pleaſure I obſerve, that your liberality is continued, and further extended to the opening and amending of Roads, and the building of Bridges, as it is by a facility of Communication and of Intercourſe, that the intereſts of Agriculture and of Commerce can be effectually promoted, and the induſtrious Settler be enabled to receive his merited reward.

The progreſſive ſtate of Improvement in this Province, preſents us with the moſt flattering proſpects of ſucceſs, and while it affords convincing proofs of what patient Induſtry can accompliſh, holds forth alſo a well grounded hope, that by the Fruits of our Labour, and the fertility of our Soil, we ſhall be enabled not only to inſure Plenty to ourſelves, but, through the intervention of Commerce, to become a valuable Colony to our Parent State.

The other Laws which you have enacted, and to which I have now given the Royal Aſſent, merit alſo my approbation; it only remains for me to recommend that you will ſtrengthen the Laws of your Country, by your Influence, and Example; and that added to your Public Exertions in this place, you will as Individuals, promote good Order, Induſtry, and Loyalty amongſt your fellow Subjects, as it is only by ſuch means that we can expect, or hope for the continuance of that Comfort, Security, and Liberty, which we, under the protection of our Parent State, and under the government of the beſt of Kings, have hitherto enjoyed.

After which His Excellency was pleaſed to prorogue the Parliament until Wednesday 17th April next.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially licenced thereto by Warrant duly derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the Forfeiture of Forty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons there in offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM JARVIS, Secy.

An ACT for granting to His Majesty a certain sum of Money, out of the Funds applicable to the Use of this Province, to defray the Expences of Amending and Opening the Public Highways and Roads, and Building of Bridges in the several Districts thereof.

[Passed the 13th of March, 1811.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS it would much advance the general prosperity of this Province, if the Public Highways and Roads were amended; May it pleafe your Majesty, That it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's moft excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in "the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act for making "more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec in "North America, and to make further provision for the government of the "said Province," and by the authority of the same, That out of the rates and duties already raised, levied and collected, or hereafter to be raised, levied and collected, to and for the use of this Province, there be granted to his Majesty, his heirs and succeffors, the sum of three thousand four hundred and fifty pounds, to be issued out of the Funds now remaining or hereafter to come into the Receiver General's hands, unappropriated and arising from such rates and duties as last aforesaid, which said sum of three thousand four hundred and fifty pounds, shall be disposed of, appropriated and applied in repairing the roads already laid out, and building bridges in the several Districts of this Province.

II. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the said sum of three thousand four hundred and fifty pounds shall be appropriated in the following manner; to the Eastern District four hundred pounds, which said sum of four hundred pounds shall be laid out and expended on the following roads: commencing at Sutherland's Creek in Lancaster, from thence to the Point Au Bodet, one hundred pounds; & seventy-four pounds sixteen shillings & ten pence three farthings to be laid out on the aforesaid, that is now in the Commissioners hands in the Eastern District; and one hundred pounds in the County of Dundas; fifty pounds to be laid out in building a bridge at Captain Mc. Martin's, and fifty pounds to build a bridge near Munrow's Mills, across the creek; and one hundred pounds to be laid out on the Poft-Road, to commence at John Matice's in the Township of Cornwall, and continue on said road to the Province Line, County of Prefcot; on the front road of East and West Hawkesbury, beginning at the Lower Canada Line, from thence to the West Line of Hawkesbury, near Alexander Grant's, one hundred pounds; to the District of Johnstown four hundred pounds; County of Grenville, on the bridge in Johnstown fifty pounds; to build a bridge over the River Rideau, from lot number twenty-six in the Township of Marlborough to lot number five in the Township of Oxford one hundred pounds; from James Humphrey's, in Edwardsburgh, to Lewis Grant's Mill, twelve pounds ten shillings; from Johnstown to Gideon Adams's, Efquire, twelve pounds ten shillings; on the bridges between Thomas Fraser's, Elquire, and Johnstown, twenty-five pounds; twenty pounds on the front road leading from Adam Cole's in Elizabeth Town, to Charles Jones's Mills in the Township of Yonge; and one hundred pounds on the road leading from the aforesaid Mills to the Eafternmoft boundary of the Midland District; and eighty pounds on the road leading from the Iron Works in Lansdown, to Stephen Washburn's in Lansdown aforesaid, thence to Solomon Conley's, thence to Abraham Randall's, thence to Nathaniel Brown's, thence to Abraham Coon's, on fuch part of the aforesaid roads as shall by the said Commissioners be deemed moft neceffary: to the Midland District four hundred pounds, which sum shall be expended on the roads as follows, that is to lay, from the Eastern boundary of the Township of Pittsburgh by the King's Mills to the town of Kingston, the sum of one hundred pounds; from the East fide of Collins's Creek in the third Concession of the Township of Kingston, to the road passing through the fourth Concession of Ernest-town, forty pounds; from the Western boundary of the Township of Richmond to the Eastern boundary of the Township of Thurlow, one hundred and twenty pounds; seventy pounds to the bridge to be built or repaired, on the second Concession road of the Township of Kingston; fifty pounds from Townsend Carman's house to the Carrying Place, in the Township of Ameliasburgh; twenty pounds from the Western boundary of the District of Johnstown, on the road leading from the Iron Works in the Township of Lansdown, until it intersects the road in the Township of Pittsburgh near the Kingston Mills: to the District of Newcastle, four hundred pounds, that the said sum shall be laid out as follows, on the road leading from the Carrying Place at the Head of the Bay of Quinty, to the Mills on lot number thirty-four in the first Concession of the Township of Murray, one hundred pounds; on the road leading from the River Trent to the East line of the Township of Cramahe, one hundred pounds; on the road near the line in front of the second Concession of the Township of Cramahe, forty pounds; on Dundas Street, leading through the Townships of Clark, and Darlington, in the County of Durham, one hundred and sixty pounds.

Provided always, That if any part of the above named roads in the District of Newcastle and the District of Johnstown, shall be altered agreeable to the provisions of an Act passed in the fiftieth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to provide for the laying out, amending, and keeping in repair the "Public Highways and Roads in this Province, and to repeal the Laws now in "force for that purpose," before any of the sums above granted, shall be expended on them, it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners to open and amend the said road so altered, any thing in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding. That the sum of six hundred pounds appropriated for the Home District, be expended as follows, viz, one hundred and fifty pounds on the road from the Eastern boundary of the Home District on Dundas Street, to the bridge over the River Rouge, or Nen; two hundred pounds on the road known by the name of the Middle Road from the Town of York to the River Credit; two hundred and fifty pounds for building of bridges over the Rivers of Humber, and Credit, near the mouth of each river respectively, on the line of road called the Middle Road as aforesaid: to the District of Niagara the sum of four hundred and fifty pounds, from Vanderlip's through the Grand-River Swamp, to Alexander Weftbrook's, one hundred and twenty five pounds; from Judy's Tavern, through Saltfleet to the Forty-mile Creek, fifty pounds; on the new Lake Road from the Forty-mile Creek, to the Beach at Jones's, ten pounds; from the Forty-mile Creek Eastwardly to Shipman's Tavern at the Twelve-mile Creek, fixty pounds; from Shipman's on the Middle Road leading to Niagara until that road interfects the Lake Road, forty five pounds; from Shipman's Tavern, on the road leading to Queenston ten pounds; from William Steel's in Humberston, to Elijah Doane's in Crowland, fifty pounds; and that the Commissioners of Public Highways for the District of Niagara, are hereby authorized and required to apply on the building a bridge across the Outlet of Burlington Bay, being on the divifion line between the Home District and District of Niagara, one hundred pounds: to the District of London, the sum of four hundred pounds, the money in the District of London shall be applied on the Public Road leading through the Townships of Burford, Oxford, and Delaware Town, in the following manner, that is, from the now dwelling Houfe of John Yeighs in Burford, to the junction of the roads on a Weft erly courfe, about one mile from Samuel Kiney's, twenty pounds; from the Weft part of the Pine Wind Falls to the Cooly Place, thirty pounds; from thence to the Township Line of Oxford, forty five pounds; from thence to Captain Canfield's, eighty-five pounds; from thence to Haskins's, thirty pounds; from Cornwright's now dwelling Houfe to Reynolds's Mills in Dorchester, forty pounds; from thence to Archibald M'Millan's in Weftminfter, fixty pounds; from the Weft fide of the River Latranch in the Wilderneſs, ninety pounds: to the Western District, the sum of four hundred pounds, from the Moravian Village to Amherstburgh, two hundred and fifty pounds; from Amherstburgh to John Cornwell's, one hundred pounds; from the Moravian Town on the Delaware Wilderneſs, fifiy pounds.

III. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That at any time from and after the paſſing of this Act, it shall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perfon administering the Government of this Province, to appoint one or more Commiſſioner or Commiſſioners for each and every District of this Province, for carrying the provifions of this Act into execution; which Commiſſioner or Commiſſioners ſhall have full power and authority, and they are hereby required to proceed to repair and amend such roads, and build fuch bridges in each and every District of this Province, as herein before deſcribed, to which he or they ſhall be reſpectively appointed, and the ſaid Commiſſioner or Commiſſioners reſpectively, ſhall cauſe the work required by this Act, to be done or performed between the firſt day of May and the firſt day of November.

IV. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the ſaid Commiſſioners reſpectively appointed by this Act, ſhall once in every year, on or before the firſt day of January, tranſmit to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perſon adminiſtering the Government of this Province, a true account of the expenditures of the money by him or them received, under and by virtue of this Act (in detail) with proper vouchers accompanying the ſame, to be laid before the Legiſlature for their inſpection.

V. And be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it ſhall and may be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor or Perſon adminiſtering the Government of this Province, to direct the Money appropriated and apportioned as aforesaid, for each and every Diſtrict thereof, to be paid to any one of the Commiſſioners for ſuch Diſtrict or Diſtricts, applying for the ſame.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That before any Commiſſioner ſhall proceed to carry into Execution the ſeveral powers and authorities by this Act conferred, he ſhall take the following Oath, I, A. B. do ſwear that I will faithfully and impartially, to the beſt of my ſkill and judgement, perform and carry into execution, the ſeveral powers and authorities in me veſted in and by a certain Act of the Legiſlature of this Province, intituled, "an Act for Granting to his Majeſty, a certain ſum of Money out of the Funds applicable to the uſes of this Province, to defray the expences of amending and repairing the Public Highways and Roads, and building Bridges in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof," without favor or affection to any perſon, or perſons whomſoever, and will duly and faithfully account for all Monies which ſhall from time to time come into my hands for the purpoſe of carrying the provisions of the ſaid Act into execution, ſo help me God; which ſaid Oath ſhall be taken before any one of his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, in and for the Diſtrict for which ſuch Commiſſioner ſhall be appointed, and a Certificate of ſuch Oath, the Juſtice adminiſtering the ſame, is hereby required to tranſmit to the Clerk of the Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province, with all convenient ſpeed, after ſuch Oath ſhall have been by him adminiſtered: Provided neverthleſs, and it is hereby declared, that nothing herein contained, ſhall repeal or annul any of the provifions of any exiſting Act or Acts of this Province contained, for raiſing or levying the Rates thereby impoſed, or compelling the labour by ſuch Acts, or in any of them required to be done and performed on any Public Highways and Roads comprifed in ſuch Acts; but all and every ſuch Act and Acts, is and are hereby declared to be and continue in full force; Provided alſo, that nothing in any former Law or Statute of this Province contained, ſhall from and after the paſſing of this Act, be held or conſtrued to impower or authorize any Magiſtrate or Overſeer in any ſuch Law or Statute mentioned, in any manner to interfere or give directions, touching or concerning any Road or Highway to be laid out, or repaired under and by virtue of this Act; neverthleſs, the ſaid Magiſtrates and Overſeers, and every of them, is and are hereby authorized to carry into execution, all and every ſuch power and authority, as by ſuch Law or Statute, they are veſted with, in all caſes in which the executing ſuch power will not impede, or interfere with the powers or authorities given in and by virtue of this Act. And whereas an Act paſſed in the fifiieth year of his Majeſty's reign, intituled, "an Act for granting to his Majeſty, a certain ſum of Money out of the Funds applicable to the uſes of this Province, to defray the expences of amending and repairing the Public Highways and Roads, laying out and opening new Roads, and building Bridges in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof," it is by the ſecond clauſe of the above recited Act, enacted, that fifty pounds be appropriated on the Road leading from the Iron Works in Lansdown, to Kingſton, to commence at Levy Hatchkuſſes in Leeds, thence to continue on to the Eaſternmoſt boundary of the Midland Diſtrict; And whereas the above recited part of the ſecond clauſe of the ſaid Act, is found inconvenient, ſo far as it relates to fifty pounds being expended on the Road commencing at Levy Hatchkuſſes, and to continue on to the Eaſternmoſt boundary of the Midland Diſtrict: Therefore be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that the above recited part of the ſaid Act, be, and the ſame is hereby repealed.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it ſhall and may be lawful for the ſaid Commiſſioners appointed by the above recited Act, to lay out the ſaid ſum of fifiy pounds, on the Road leading from the aforeſaid Iron Works, to the Eaſtern boundary of the Midland Diſtrict, any Law to the contrary notwithſtanding.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the Money hereby granted to his Majeſty, ſhall be paid by the Receiver General, in diſcharge of ſuch Warrant or Warrants, as ſhall for the purpoſes herein ſet forth, be iſſued by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perſon adminiſtering the Government of this Province, and the Receiver General ſhall account to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, for the ſame, through the Lords Commiſſioners of his Majeſty's Treaſury, for the time being, in ſuch manner and form, as his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to direct.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That each and every Commiſſioner appointed under the authority of any former Act, or Acts of the Parliament of this Province, for laying out, amending, and keeping in repair the Public Highways and Roads in this Province, in whoſe hands any balance remaining unexpended, and who ſhall not be appointed a Commiſſioner under and by virtue of this Act, ſhall on or before the firſt day of May next, pay over every ſuch balance, into the hands of any one Commiſſioner appointed under and by virtue of this Act, in their reſpective Diſtricts, in which ſuch Commiſſioners heretofore appointed, may reſide, and the ſaid balances, the Commiſſioner or Commiſſioners appointed under or by virtue of this Act, are hereby authorized and required to expend in their reſpective Diſtricts, as by the Act of the fifteth year of his Majeſty's Reign, is required.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

Boſton, February 27

FROM PORTUGAL.

By the Logan, captain Luce, we yeſterday received a file of Liſbon papers to the 28th of December; but they are not later than thoſe before received. Captain Luce ſailed on the 29th, when the Britiſh fleet in Liſbon were making preparations for an immediate departure, in conſequence of information, that the Engliſh fleet off Toulon, had been diſperſed in a gale of wind, and had been compelled to go into port to repair their damage. There had been no war events.

New York, February 26.

Lateſt from Cadiz.—Captain Howland, of the brig Orion, ſailed from Cadiz on the 26th of December, and informs us, that on the day of his departure, the Britiſh gun boats made an attack upon the French batteries; that during the action, ſeveral bomb ſhells fell into the town of Cadiz, which did conſiderable damage; one ſhell fell upon the ſchoolhouſe, killed the miſtreſs of it, and took off a boy's leg. Captain H further ſtates, that conſiderable confuſion was diſcovered on board of the Spaniſh Admiral's ſhip; and it was ſaid a ſhell had fallen on board from the French batteries. The firing had not ceaſed when capt. H ſailed.

From Mexico.—We have alſo been favored with the ſupplement to the government Gazette of Mexico of the 20th Nov containing the Official detail of "the glorious action of San Geronimo Aculco," by Brigadier Don Felix Calleja, commander in chief of the army of operation againſt the inſurgents.

This general repreſents the inſurgents to have certainly loſt more than ten thouſand men in killed, wounded and priſoners; and the Vice Roy's army under his command, but one killed and another wounded!!!

We ſhall hereafter tranſlate the diſpatch.

BALTIMORE, February 20.

Extract of a letter from St. Thomas, dated Jan. 11, received at Norfolk.

"Report this morning from Porto Rico, mentions the arrival of two frigates and three brigs of war off St. Johns, ſent out by the Junta with 300,000 dollars for the fitting out and maintenance of ſmaller veſſels, to act with them in preventing all intercourſe with the Spaniſh Main, in conſequence of the different provinces having refuſed to obey the ordinances of the Junta."

Wafhington, Feb. 19.

On Saturday General Turreau preſented to the Preſident his letters of recal; and M. Serrurier was received and preſented his credentials, as envoy extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary from the Emperor of France.

We underſtand that no deſpatches were received from France by the late arrival from Rochelle.

December 21.

About two months ago a lady purchaſed a puppy in the ſtreets, from a woman expoſing it to ſale, which was admired by every perſon that ſaw it, for the peculiar beauty of its hair, and the fineneſs of its texture. A few days ſince poor Phillis was taken ill, and declined her food, all the female friends and old maids in the pariſh were conſtant in their inquiries after the health of the animal. After much ſuffering, the cauſe of the illneſs was diſcovered. As ſhe grew larger her pain increaſed, when at length ſhe was completely cured, as ſhe burſt from an artificial ſkin of a dead dog, which had been ſewn on her, and the beautiful Phillis now appears in her proper perſon one of the ugliеſt and moſt neglected curs in the city.

ANECDOTE.

A countryman from the wilds of Cumberland, ſeveral years ago, came to London on ſome buſineſs reſpecting his uncle's affairs, who had died inteſtate, and had left two young children without a guardian or executor. Before departing from home the man had got advice as to the mode of conducting himſelf, but not being much verſed in the technical lore of the inns of court, had ſubſtituted in his mind expreſſions more familiar. On knocking at the door of the civilian to whom he had been recommended, the gentleman himſelf came to admit him; when the Cambrian accoſted him as follows:—"Pray, Sir, does there a civil villain live here."—"What!" ſays the other, "do you come to inſult me?"—"Yes, Sir," ſaid the countryman, "I came on purpoſe; my uncle is dead detefted; he has left two young infidels, and I am come to ſee if I can be their executioner!"

A ſhort time ſince, a man for a ſmall wager ate 14lbs. of boiled cabbage with 4lbs. of pork; and another, determined to outvie him in gluttony, ate a leg of pork, which when boiled, weighed 16lbs. together with 4lbs. of bread.—Lon. p

Baltimore, Feb. 19 From a ſource the moſt reſpectable, we are informed that Mr. Merriet, the Britiſh charge des affairs, has made known to our government, that the official information, (made public) from Mr. Ruſſell, that the French decrees are not revoked, will be fully credited by the Britiſh Government—and that they will be compelled to conſider a continuance of the non intercourſe againſt them excluſively, as a meaſure of hoſtility, demanding immediate ſteps to meet it

TO MARIA.

Too long the ſoft paſſion in ſilence lay hidden,
Too long Love's pure flame I forbore to declare,
Since alas its fair fuel is, to me are forbidden;
My vows in her balance, weigh lighter than air.
No more may her image at midnight e'er haunt me,
The frail hopes of this no longer torment me,
For Maria's chill silence now hopeleſs has ſent me,
To wander forlorn the lost Son of deſpair!

Ah, why cruel Fair, why exett beauty's power,
To graſp all the love in one heart which can reign?
Ah why thus embitter the ſad mournful hour?
Of one long led Captive in Love's ſtrong chains.
No more may her image at midnight e'er haunt me, &c.

Too lovely Maria, too deeply I'm ſmitten,
Your beauty reſiſtleſs; Your form I adore,
Yet in the dark page of Fate, it is written,
"Live hopeleſs and think of Maria no more."
No more may her image at midnight e'er haunt me, &c.

Oh! heart rending proſpect, deſponding I view her,
Some Mortal more happy this Fair one muſt live;
Yet may every bliſs tranſcendent purſue her,
The lovely Maria, the favor'd of Love.
No more may her image at midnight e'er haunt me, &c.

No longer quaff poiſon, no longer I'll gaze on
The ſweet Earthly Goddeſs, Maria the Fair;
Far, far will I fly from her charm's faſcination,
And breathe love's ſoft ſighs to unpitying air.
No more may her image at midnight e'er haunt me, &c.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King; Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders thereto may be brought to punishment; I have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigoutof the Law.

In Testimony where of we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29 th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM JARVIS, Secy.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty-eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richad Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Councel of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained inand according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Act.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

An ACT to repeal an Act passed in the forty seventh year of His Majesty's Reign, intituled, "An Act for Granting to His Majesty, Duties on Licences to Hawkers, Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, and other Trading Persons therein mentioned, and further, for Granting to His Majesty, Duties on Licences to Hawkers, Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, and other Trading Persons therein mentioned.

[Passed 13th March, 1811.]

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS an Act passed in the forty-seventh year of your Majesty's Reign, intituled, "An Act for granting to His Majesty, Duties on Licences to Hawkers, Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, and other Trading Persons therein mentioned," was limited to be and continue in force, for and during the space of four Years, from and after the passing of the same, and from thence to the end of the then next ensuing Session of the Provincial Parliament, and no longer, is now about to expire; And whereas for the welfare of this Province, it is expedient and necessary, that an alteration of the several duties on Licences contained in said Act, should take place: Be it therefore Enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's Reign, intituled, "an Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same; that the said Act of the forty seventh year of his Majesty's Reign, shall, from and after the fifth day of April next ensuing, be repealed, and the same is hereby repealed accordingly.

II. And be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, collected and paid, to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, to and for the Public uses of this Province, and the support of the Government thereof, the several and respective Duties herein mentioned, for and upon the several respective Licences, to be taken out in the manner, and by the persons herein after mentioned, that is to say, from and after the fifth day of April next, there shall be taken out a Licence by every Hawker, Pedlar and Petty Chapman, and every Trading Person or Persons, going from Town to Town, or to other men's houses, or who have not become Householders by permanent residence in any Town or Place within this Province, by, or for the space of one year previous to the passing of this Act, or travelling on foot, or with a Horse, or Horses, Ass, or Asses, Mule, or Mules, or other Beasts bearing or drawing burthen; Boat, or Boats, decked Vessels, or other Craft, or otherwise, within this Province, carrying to sell, or exposing to sale, any Goods, Wares, or Merchandize; for which Licences there shall be paid hereafter, at the time such Licence shall be taken out; for every Man travelling on foot, the sum of five Pounds current Money of this Province; for every Horse, Ass, or Mule, or other Beast bearing or drawing burthen, the sum of Forty Shillings yearly, for every Beast he so shall travel with, over and above the first mentioned sum of Five Pounds; for every Person sailing with a decked Vessel, trading and exposing for sale, any Goods, Wares or Merchandize on board, or from the same, the Sum of Twelve Pounds Ten Shillings; for every Person trading with a Boat, or other Craft, and exposing for sale, Goods, Wares or Merchandize, for each Boat or Craft he shall so trade with, the sum of Eight Pounds; for every Person other than such Persons as herein before described, who may come into this Province, and expose Goods for sale, who shall not have become a Householder by permanent residence in any Town or Place within this Province for and during the space of one year previous to the passing of this Act, the sum of Ten Pounds.

III. Provided always, and be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any person, such as last before mentioned, shall have become a permanent resident by hiring a house, or shop, and occupying the same for the purpose of Trade, for and during the term of one year, and shall not during that time, either by himself, his servant or agent, have travelled from house to house, for the purpose of vending Goods, Wares or Merchandize, and produce to the Collector a Certificate to that effect, signed by two of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, the nearest to his place of residence, and who are hereby authorized and required to grant the same; it shall and may be lawful for such Collector, and he is hereby required to repay to such person, the sum of Nine Pounds Ten Shillings, and the Certificate of the said Justices, shall be to him a sufficient Voucher for the sum to repaid, and allowed as such in his account with the Inspector General.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons, that shall take out Licences as aforesaid, is and are hereby required to take out a fresh Licence on or before the fifth day of April, in each and every year, before he, she or they, shall presume hereafter during the continuance of this Act, to travel and trade as aforesaid. Provided always, nevertheless, that nothing in this Act, shall be construed to compel any Person or Persons, but such Hawkers, Pedlars or Petty Chapmen, or other trading Persons, as herein before described, to take out such Licence as aforesaid, for bringing Salt, Pot or Pearl Ashes into this Province, or for any Goods, Wares, or Merchandize passing through the same, in Packages unopened, or for driving Cattle for Market, or Sale, or otherwise, through this Province.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the Licences here in before mentioned, shall be granted by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government of this Province, and for every such Licence that shall be delivered, there shall be paid by the Person or Persons applying for the same, to the Collector, the sum of three shillings and nine pence, current Money, and no more, for issuing the same.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every Collector as aforesaid, before he enter upon the execution of his said Office, shall take and subscribe the following Oath, which Oath shall be taken before any two of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the District in which such Collector shall reside, who are hereby authorized and required to administer and transmit the same to be filed in the Clerk of the Peace's Office, amongst the Records of the said District. I, A. B. do swear, that I will well and truly execute, do and perform, the duty of Collector of his Majesty's Revenue, arising on Extract of a letter received at Nassau, dated Havanna, Jan. 11.

"His Britannic Majesty's Ship Implacable, came off here this morning, on her voyage from Vera Cruz to Cadiz, having on board four millions and an half of dollars, and one thousand seroons of Cochineal, and is now standing off to receive on board the member of the Cortes for this island, Don Andres de Jauregui; some of the officers who have landed say, that the revolutionists in Mexico though beaten in every engagement, were still gaining strength."

We have received a long communication from our intelligent correspondent in Cadiz, on the general state of the affairs of the peninsula; and a particular description of the proceedings of the Cortes (Congress) in session near that city. We have not room for the entire this day.

The projects of the Patriot cause were far from being gloomy. The Cortes possessed great self-confidence and they appeared to unite all hearts. Their proceedings were founded on constitutional principles which have been recognized in Spain from time immemorial. They have elected Ferdinand the 7th as their king; but have restrained him from marrying without the consent of the nation, in Cortes. Bigotry and superstition are rapidly disappearing; the clergy are daily becoming laymen; and many of those remaining are among the first to inculcate the truth, that freedom, piety and morality are correlative. The freedom of the press as it regards political topics, is firmly established. It has not yet been deemed expedient to extend its freedom to religious subjects; but the friends of freedom ought to feel grateful to the measure as far as it goes. Political liberty is the sure foundation of religious toleration; and the speculations and the generous emotions, which a free press in behalf of public freedom, will necessarily call into action, must, eventually lead to the dispensation of religious light, and the consolidation of the rights of mankind.

"As to the failures that have happened and are still taking place, you are rightly informed, but as to a famine being in the land, the reverse is the case. A year of greater plenty we have not for half a century been blessed with. There is the same abundance in England. Paddy too has had a productive crop, excellent in quality, of his favourite root. Trade is worse than it was in 1793 and there have been more failures. The present stagnation surpasses any thing of the kind I believe that any of our oldest merchants have experienced, but I think it is at its worst, and that an alteration may be looked for by the middle of this month, as government have come to a determination of aiding by loans, those merchants who have funds that they cannot realize. They have already advanced 2000,000l. sterling on approved security."

fons described by an Act passed in the fifty first year of his Majesty's Reign, intituled, "an Act to repeal an Act passed in the forty seventh year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "an Act for granting to his Majesty, Duties on Licences to "Hawkers, Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, and other Trading "Persons therein mentioned, and further for granting to his "Majesty, certain Duties on Licences to Hawkers, Pedlars "and Petty Chapmen, and other Trading persons therein "mentioned," and will duly and impartially superintend the Collection thereof, according to the best of my skill and knowledge, and in all cases of fraud or suspicion of fraud, that shall come to my knowledge, I will show no person favour or affection, nor will I aggrieve any person from hatred or ill will, and that I will in all cases faithfully do, execute and perform, to the best of my skill and knowledge, all and every the Duties imposed upon me by the before mentioned Act, so help me God.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every Collector acting under and by virtue of this Act, shall within three Months, from and after the passing thereof, give security, by two sureties in one hundred pounds each, and himself in two hundred pounds, current money of this Province, to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, for the due performance of his Office.

VIII. And be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful, to and for each and every Collector, as aforesaid, and he is hereby required to render a just, true, and faithful account of all Monies which he shall collect and receive, under and by virtue of this Act; to the Inspector General of the Province, once in every three Months, and such Collector, shall twice in every year, pay or cause to be paid, into the hands of the Receiver General of this Province, all such Monies as he shall so receive; once on or before the first day of September, and once on or before the first day of February, in each and every year; and that the said Collector, shall retain and take at the rate of five pounds for every hundred pounds, which he shall so collect as aforesaid, during the continuance of this Act, and all Monies so paid by the said Collectors, into the hands of the Receiver General, shall be by him accounted for, to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, through the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, for the time being, in such manner and form, as his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, shall be graciously pleased to direct.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any Justice of the Peace, Collector, Deputy Collector, Constable, or Peace Officer, to seize and detain any such Hawker, Pedlar, Petty Chapman, or other Trading person, as aforesaid, who shall be found trading without a Licence, contrary to this Act, or who being found trading, shall refuse or neglect to produce a Licence according to this Act, after being required so to do, for a reasonable time, in order to his, or her being carried, and they are hereby required to carry such person so seized, unless they shall in the mean time, produce their respective Licences before two of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, the nearest to the place where such offence or offences, shall be committed, which said two Justices of the Peace, are hereby authorized and strictly required, either upon the Confession of the party offending, or due proof by witnesses or witnesses, other than the informer, upon Oath, which Oath they are hereby empowered to administer, that the person or persons so brought before them, had so traded as aforesaid, without a Licence, and in case no such Licence shall be produced by such offender or offenders, before such Justices, the said Justices, by Warrant under their hand and Seals, directed to a Constable or Peace Officer, shall cause the sum of Fifteen Pounds, with reasonable costs, to be forthwith levied by the distress and sale of the Goods, Wares and Merchandize of such offender or offenders, or of the Goods with which such offender or offenders shall be found trading as aforesaid, rendering the overplus, (if any there be) to the owner, or owners thereof, after deducting the reasonable charges for taking the said distress; and for want of sufficient distress, the offender or offenders, shall be sent to the nearest Gaol, for such time, not exceeding six months, nor less than one month, as such Justices of the Peace, shall think most proper.

X. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this Act shall extend or be construed to extend, to prohibit any person or persons from selling Leather, Hollow Ware, Farming Utensils, or any Printed Papers published by authority, nor any Fish, Fruits or Victuals, nor to hinder any persons who are the real makers of any Goods, Wares or Merchandizes, of the Manufactory of this Province, or his, her or their children, Apprentices, Agents, or Servants, to such real workers or makers of such Goods, Wares or Manufactures, only from carrying abroad, exposing to sale, or selling by retail or otherwise, any of the said Goods, Wares or Manufactures of his, her or their own making, in any part of this Province, nor any Tinkers, Coopers, Glaziers, Harness-menders, or any other persons usually trading in mending Kettles, Tubs, Household goods or Harness, whatsoever, from going about and carrying with him, her, or them, proper materials for mending the same, without having a Licence as aforesaid. Provided also, that this Act shall not be construed to extend to prohibit Hucksters, or persons having Stalls or Stands in the Markets, in the Towns within this Province, from selling or exposing to sale, without having a Licence as aforesaid, any Fish, Fruit, Victuals or Goods, Wares and Merchandizes, in such Stalls or Stands, they complying with such rules and regulations of Police, as by the Justices in their General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, are or may be established in such Towns respecting such Stalls and Stands.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this Act, shall be construed to permit any person or persons whatsoever, to sell any Wine, Brandy, Rum or other Spirituous Liquors, without first having taken out a Licence for the sale thereof, agreeable to the Laws of this Province.

XII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no suit or action shall be brought or commenced against any person or persons, for any penalty by this Act imposed, that shall not be brought or commenced within twelve Months after the offence or offences respectively committed.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be summoned as a witness or witnesses, to give evidence before any Justice of the Peace, touching any of the matters relative to this Act, and shall neglect or refuse to appear at the time and place for that purpose appointed, without reasonable excuse for such neglect or refusal, to be allowed of by the said Justices, or on appearing, shall refuse to be examined on Oath, and to give evidence before such Justices of the Peace, before whom the prosecution shall be depending, that then every such person shall forfeit for every such offence, the sum of ten pounds, current Money aforesaid, with costs to be levied, recovered and paid, in such manner, & by such means, as are herein before directed, and for want of sufficient distress, the offender or offenders, shall be sent by such Justices of the Peace, to the nearest Gaol, for such time, not exceeding two Months, nor less than one Month, as such Justices of the Peace, shall think they merit.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the moiety of every pecuniary penalty, or satisfaction by this Act imposed, shall belong to his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, and shall also be paid by the person or persons respectively receiving the same, into the hands of the Receiver General, to and for the uses of his Majesty, his Heirs and Successors, for the Public uses of this Province, and towards the support of the Government thereof, to be accounted for to His Majesty through the Lords Commissioners of his Treasury for the time being, in such manner as it shall please his Majesty to direct; and the other moiety thereof shall belong to the person or persons who shall sue for the same.

XV. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit, shall be brought or commenced against any person or persons, for any thing done in pursuance of this Act, such action or suit shall be commenced within six months next after the matter or thing done, and not afterwards; and the defendant or defendants in such action or suit, may plead the general issue, and give this Act and the special matter in evidence at any trial to be had thereupon: And if afterwards judgment shall be given for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall become non-suited, or discontinue his, her, or their action or suit, after the defendant or defendants shall have appeared, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs awarded to him, her, or them, against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, and have the like remedy for the same as any defendant or defendants hath or have in other cases to recover costs at law.

XVI. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That this Act shall be, and continue to be in force two years from and after the fifth day of April next, and from thence to the end of the then next ensuing Session of Parliament, and no longer.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

New York, March 4.

Captain Brown, of the schooner Hamilton, from Naples, Tunis, and Gibraltar, arrived at this port yesterday in 67 days from Naples. It was said at Gibraltar (from whence Capt. B sailed on the 20th January) that no vessel had been able to get through the Gut for six weeks; consequently the Bay was very full of shipping. Information was received, and considered authentic, that Ferdinand VII. had entered Spain, some accounts said with an army of 30,000 men; but that the Spaniards had refused to receive him whilst under the influence of the French emperor. No intelligence had reached Gibraltar of any recent battle in Portugal.

Philadelphia, February 28.

The present scarcity of fire-wood in this city is a thing altogether unexampled. Within the last three days, it has been sold as high as twenty dollars or more a cord, and even at this enormous price it is difficult to find a load in the market.

It is said, that Bonaparte has addressed a note to the Russian government, requiring them to adopt the confiscation and burning decrees in their fullest extent; and that though the language of this note had given great offence, yet it was feared they would be oblige to comply.—Wellingtonian.

Miraculous Draught of Fishes.

On the night of the 5th of January, 1811, were caught at the head of Niantic River, near the new bridge, Connecticut, by Archibald Davis, Amos Beebe, Samuel Beebe, and Christopher Night, with a small seine, nine thousand nine hundred pounds of fish, of the Bass kind, which were sold on the spot the next day for 275 dollars. They were carried to New York in a smack, by Paul Rogers, and sold for rising 800 dollars. A few evenings after, the same men near the same place, caught 1600 pounds of Bass, which were also carried to New York and sold. Such an instance was never known before in this place by the oldest person living.—Connecticut Gaz.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence forfeits him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Forty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony, punishable by Transportation for seven years, or for the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders thereto may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29 day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fifteenth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Secy.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty-fourth year of the Reign of His present Majesty, entitled, "An Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE Esquire Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Honorable James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorized and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS, Secy.

Lateſt Intelligence.

New-York, March 10.

LATEST LONDON NEWS.

The January mail, brought by the Britiſh government hired ſchooner Thiſtle, Lieut. Depyſter, arrived at this port laſt evening, via Amboy. She ſailed from Plymouth on the 21ſt of January, and was caſt away on Squam Beach the 6th of March. Six of the crew and 3 newspaper mails were loſt. Paſſenger, Capt. J. G. Ogden, of the 56th regiment, with deſpatches from the Britiſh Government to Mr. Morier. At the time of her departure the King was better, and had appeared in public at Windſor. The regency bill had paſſed to a third reading. The Eſſex frigate was at plymouth, waiting the orders of Mr. Pinkney. A few day ſince ſpoke brig Fairy, from Gibraltar for New-York.

We underſtand the packet has brought deſpatches from Mr. Pinkney, for Government.

Since preparing the above verbal news, the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiſer have been obligingly favored with a file of the London Morning Chronicle, to the 12th of January, inclusive, from which the following important extracts were made.

London Jan. 7

A new Decree has been iſſued by the Daniſh Government, by which all trade with England is prohibited, under more ſevere penalties than any yet inflicted by the cruel Napoleon. It is declared a felony, puniſhable by death, in the capture of a ſhip maintaining intercourſe with England.

January 8

Letters were received from Holland yeſterday to the date of the 2d inſtant. The conſcription was extended to children of the age of thirteen. The Scheldt Fleet was moored in Ruppel. It is ſaid that in Norway, 3000 men, intended to man the ſhips of war there, had refuſed to proceed to Holland, and that the Daniſh troops which were ordered to compel them had declined any interference.

January 11.

We have reaſon to believe, that at length the Marquis Wellesly has ſeriouſly applied his mind to the conſideration of the important queſtion of the orders in council, and has adviſed his colleagues in office to come to a final reſolution on the ſubject. On Wednesday laſt an order was ſent for an armed veſſel to be ready at a moments notice to carry deſpatches to America, and we underſtand they were yeſterday deſpatched.

On Sunday laſt, Lord Grenville had an audience of three hours with the Prince of Wales, ſuppoſed to be on buſineſs reſpecting the preſent ſtate of the Kingdom.

January, 12.

Yeſterday the deputation from both Houſes of Parliament went up to Carlton Houſe to preſent to his Royal Highneſs the reſolutions, to which, after a long diſcuſſion, the two houſes had agreed.

The firſt reſolution expreſſes the neceſſity of providing for the exerciſe of the Royal Authority.

The ſecond reſolution, ſtates, that the power veſted in the Prince of Wales, ſhall not extend to granting of any rank or dignity of the Peerage of the realm to any perſon whatever.

The third reſolution prevents the Regent from giving any office in reverſion, or granting any office for any other term than during his majeſty's pleaſure, except ſuch as by law are required for life or during good behavior.

The fourth reſolution prevents the diſpoſition of any of his majeſty's real eſtate, or renewal of leaſes.

The Prince of Wales in a very handſome reply obſerves, "I do not heſitate to accept the office and ſituation propoſed to me, reſtricted as they are, ſtill retaining every opinion expreſſed by me upon a former and ſimilar diſtreſſing occaſion"

To the Lords and Gentlemen, he obſerves,

"You will communicate this my anſwer to the two Houſes, accompanied by my moſt fervent wiſhes and prayers, that the Divine Will may extricate us and the nation from the grievous embarraſſments of our preſent conditions by the ſpeedy reſtoration of his majeſty's health."

The deputation then withdrew

A deputation alſo waited on the Queen with the addreſs and reſolutions of the two houſes which were read to her by Lord Harcourt.

The Queen, after the fifth reſolution was read, in anſwer obſerved, that "I ſhould be wanting to all my duties if I heſitated to accept the ſacred truſt which is now offered to me."

We this day inſert the new State Paper iſſued by Bonaparte. In juſtification of his laſt outrageous act in annexing Holland and the Hanſe Towns to the great family to the French Empire. In this paper there is the uſual torrent of invective againſt the jealouſy and intrigue of England And the ſame faithful repreſentation of the lamentable effects of our impolicy. He now ſays, that the Berlin and Milan decrees ſhall be the code of Europe until we admit the principle, that neutral flags ſhall make free goods; and that nothing but an actual blockade ſhall be admitted as a ſufficient ground for ſeizing a veſſel entering a port. Such is the proud language which, thro' the imbecile councils of England, he is enabled to hold!

This ſtate paper, we find in the proceedings of the Conſervative Senate, dated the 13th of Decr.—The following is an extract:

"It was neceſſary to wait for a period when powerful reprisal would compel her to return to juſtice. That day has arrived—The decrees of Berlin and Milan are the reply to the orders in council. The Britiſh Cabinet have, ſo to ſpeak, dictated them to France. Europe receives them for her code, and that code ſhall be the palladium of the ſeas."

The Morning Chronicle of the 12th of January, obſerves,

"We cannot help indulging the hope, from the Preſident's meſſage that the differences which have ſo long diſturbed the relations between this country and the United States, are likely to be ſoon finally adjuſted. After all, as it muſt neceſſarily be Bonaparte's object, rather to injure our navigation than our commerce, provided they can be kept diſtinct, there is the leſs reaſon to be ſceptical as to the ſincerity of the revocation of his decrees. It appears to be evidently the conjoint intent of England and France, as well as America, that all thoſe obnoxious edicts and regulations touching the rights & commerce of neutrals, which have given them ſo much offence, ſhould be abrogated and done away. The benefits of foreign trade well underſtood are equally valuable to all parties at all times, and the period, we truſt, is approaching, when it will be delivered from that inert and ſhackled ſtate, in which it has of late been doomed to remain."

New York, March 9

Extract of a letter dated London, 9th Jan't to a houſe in this city

"We are for the preſent entirely ſhut out from the continent By a veſſel which eſcaped from the Elbe and had only 44 hours paſſage, we received ſome verbal news; but letter, we do not receive any more, the dread of the conſequences if diſcovered being too great. Hamburg, Bremen, Lubec, the mouths of the Elbe, Weſer and Ems, the Duchies of Lauenburgh, Oldenburg and a certain part of Germany, including Holland and Friedland, are to form a new kingdom, in which two principal courts of juſtice are to be eſtabliſhed, the ſeat of one to be the Hague the other Hamburg. Bevouſt it is ſaid will be made a king, probably this new kingdom is intended for him

"The ſenate of Hamburgh reſigned on the 27th of December, and on the 1ſt January the ſame towns were taken poſſeſſion of in the name of the Emperor.

It is impoſſible to deſcribe the ſufferings, particularly of mercantile people; all thoſe who could were winding up their affairs, to live on what was left them.—Reciprocal confidence is at an end; every one had to depend on his own means, and even thoſe very precarious, as neither property in the ware houſe, or caſh in the cheſt was ſafe from ſeizure on ſome ground or other Dreadful as times were, it was ſtill feared that it had not come to the worſt yet; and we ſee no bafis on which a peace could be concluded at preſent.

We underſtand from good authority that our government by way of neceſſary retaliation, intends to ſtop the exportation from the continent including alſo Ruſſia; and we have no doubt this will be the caſe. Thus you may foreſee, in this country, in this country, as well as with you, a conſiderable riſe of all articles, the growth or manufacture of the continent, ſuch as the uſe of which cannot be diſpenſed with."

LATEST FROM LISBON.

Captain Mentor, of the ſhip Thomas, from Cadiz, informs us, that on the 18th of January, Lord Wellington gave orders to the Portugueſe inhabitants on the ſouth ſide of the Tagus to remove all their property within the Britiſh lines.

The French had received a reinforcement of 15,000 men. No battle.

Waſhington, March 8.

"Congreſs have riſen without ordering a ſummer ſeſſion. The Preſident was deſirous of having one. That ſubject is now under conſideration at the palace. It is expected that Congreſs will be convened by the Preſident—much, however, will depend on the next advices from Europe.—

Counterfeiters.—A camp has lately been diſcovered in the woods near Robbinſtown, diſtrict of Maine, with every neceſſary apparatus for counterfeiting bills and ſpecie, and forging bills of exchange. The gang concerned, is ſaid to conſiſt of upwards of forty perſons Among many other articles taken, was a recipe for turning copper white, by chemical preparations. The dies which were found were well executed. In purſuing a part of the gang, a Mr. Downs was killed by a gunſhot. Three or four of the villains have been ſecured.

EXTRACT.

Various denials of Chriſt.—Does the intemperate man ſuppoſe that by merely profeſſing himſelf a Chriſtian, he acknowledges Chriſt? If he does, he is ruinouſly miſtaken. Every act of intemperance cries out in a louder language than Peter's "I know not the man." Does the blaſphemer, the common ſwearer, or the Sabbath breaker, imagine that becauſe he is born in a Chriſtian country, he has any connexion with Chriſt? If he does he is fatally wrong. Every time he blaſphemes, or curſes, or breaks the Sabbath, he cries out in a louder language than Peter's "I know not the man." Or does he who cheats or defrauds his neighbour, cheriſhes malicious deſigns againſt him, and intends if he can, to do him a private injury; or he who wrongs, or ſtrives to defraud the labourer of his juſt right, ſuppoſe that he has any connection with Chriſt? All his thoughts, all his actions are continually crying out, "What is Chriſt to me?—I know not the man."

An Act to extend and Perſonal Arreſt to the ſum of Forty Shillings, and otherwiſe to regulate the Practice in Caſes of Perſonal Arreſt.

[Paſſed the 13th of March, 1811.]

WHEREAS doubts have ariſen, whether by the Laws now in force in this Province, any perſon can be arreſted for any ſum of money under Ten Pounds Sterling. And whereas the inhabitants of this Province have ſuffered, and ſtill continue to ſuffer much injury from perſons leaving this Province without paying their Debts; for remedy thereof, Be it enacted by the King's moſt excellent Majeſty by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtitute and aſſembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act paſſed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled "an Act to repeal certain "parts of an Act paſſed in the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign intituled, "an Act for making more effectual proviſion for the Government of the "Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further proviſion for "the Government of the ſaid Province," and by the authority of the ſame, That from and after the paſſing of this Act, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for every perſon or perſons who now, or hereafter ſhall have any debt or debts owing to him, her, or them, exceeding the ſum of Forty Shillings Provincial Currency, by any perſon or perſons whatſoever inhabiting this Province, to ſue out a Writ of Capias ad Reſpondendum, and cauſe the perſon of the ſaid debtor or debtors to be arreſted in the ſame manner and under the ſame conditions, reſtrictions, and limitations, as by the Laws now in force in this Province, any perſon or perſons may now be arreſted for any ſum above ten pounds Sterling.

II. And be it further enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That from and after the paſſing of this Act, in all caſes as well above as under Ten Pounds Sterling, no Capias ad Reſpondendum, nor Juſtice's Warrant of Detention ſhall iſſue, unleſs the affidavit to be made by the Plaintiff, his Servant or Agent ſhall ſtate that the Deponent verily believes that the Defendant is about to leave the Province with an intent to defraud his creditors.

III. And be it Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That on ſuch affidavit being made before any one of His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, by any Plaintiff, his Servant, or Agent, before Action brought, it ſhall and may be lawful for ſuch Juſtice to iſſue his Warrant, and cauſe the ſaid Defendant to be arreſted, and detained until he can be ſerved with the proper proceſs, in like manner as is by Law provided in caſes where any Action ſhall have been previouſly commenced.

IV. And be it Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That where the Sum ſworn to, ſhall not exceed the ſum Ten Pounds Sterling, it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the Defendant at the expiration of one Month after having been committed to Priſon, to make Oath before a Commiſſioner for taking Affidavits in the Court of King's Bench, (having given four days previous Notice to the Plaintiff, his Attorney, or Agent, of his intention to make ſuch Oath) that he is not worth the Sum for which he hath been Arreſted, and that he hath not directly or indirectly, ſold, or otherwiſe diſpoſed of any Money, Goods, Debts, or other perſonal Eſtate, to defraud any of his Creditors; and he the ſaid Defendant, ſhall thereupon, be diſcharged from ſuch Impriſonment: Provided nevertheleſs, that ſuch diſcharge, ſhall not operate as a diſcharge from the Debt.

V. And be it further Enacted, by the Authority aforeſaid, That no Writ of Capias ad Satisfaciendum ſhall iſſue in any Action now pending, or hereafter to be brought, unleſs an Affidavit be firſt made and filed by the Plaintiff, his Servant, or Agent, that the Deponent verily believes, that the Defendant is about to leave the Province with an intent to defraud his Creditors, or that he hath reaſon to believe, that the Defendan hath ſecreted, or removed his effects, or hath made ſome ſecret and fraudulent Conveyance thereof, in order to prevent the ſame from being taken in Execution, any Law or Usage to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

An ACT for applying a certain ſum of Money therein mentioned, to make good certain Monies iſſued and advanced by His Majeſty through the Lieutenant Governor, in purſuance of an Addreſs of this Houſe.

[Paſſed 13th March, 1811.]

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS in purſuance of an Addreſs of your Commons Houſe of Aſſembly to Francis Gore, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of your Province of Upper Canada, bearing date the twelfth day of March one thouſand eight hundred and ten, and in the fiftieth year of your Majeſty's reign, ſeveral ſums of money, amounting in the whole to the ſum of four hundred and ninety two pounds eighteen ſhillings and ten pence, have been iſſued and advanced by your Majeſty through your Lieutenant Governor, to the Clerks and other Officers of the two Houſes of Parliament, and to the Commiſſioners appointed by his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, by virtue of an Act paſſed in the forty-ninth year of your Majeſty's reign, intituled, "an Act for granting to your Majeſty a certain ſum of Money out of "the Funds applicable to the Uſes of this Province, to defray the Expences "of Amending and Repairing the Public Highways and Roads, opening new "ones, and building Bridges in the ſeveral Diſtricts thereof," to the Keeper of the Roll, to the Clerk attending the Commiſſioners, under and by virtue of an Act paſſed in the forty fifth year of your Majeſty's reign, intituled "an "Act to afford Relief to thoſe Perſons who may be entitled to claim Land "in this Province, as Heirs or Deviſees of the Nominees of the Crown, in "caſe where no Patent hath iſſued for ſuch Lands, and paying the Meſſen"ger attending on the ſaid Commiſſioners." May it therefore pleaſe your Majeſty, That it may be Enacted, and be it Enacted by the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the Legiſlative Council and Aſſembly of the Province of Upper Canada, conſtituted and aſſembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act paſſed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act paſſed in "the fourteenth year of his Majeſty's reign, intituled, "An Act for making "more effectual Proviſion for the Government of the Province of Quebec "in North America, and to make further proviſion for the Government of Lateſt from Portugal.—Laſt evening arrived at this port, the faſt ſailing ſhip Oronoko, Capt. Richards, from Liſbon, which port he left on the 2d of February.

Captain R. informed us, that a French army of from 10 to 15,000 men, from Cadiz had arrived on the frontiers of Portugal, and that it was expected a great battle would be fought in the month of March, between the armies of Lord Wellington and Maſſena—that General Junot had been wounded (mortally, it was reported) in a ſkirmiſh, a ſhort time before Captain R. failed—that General Romana was dead.—Markets at Liſbon were good.

Lateſt from Cadiz.—Capt. Burbank, of the ſhip Herkimer, from Cadiz, informs us, that he failed from that port on the 4th of February, and that the Britiſh and Spaniſh armies were making preparations to attack the French lines on the oppoſite ſide of the Bay.

London, January 17.

The capt. of the galliot North Star, of Papenburg, arrived on the 9th inſt. at Aberdeen, from Chriſtianſand, in Norway, reports that a revolution had taken place over all Norway, in conſequence of Bonaparte having demanded a certain number of Norwegian ſeamen to man his navy. The forts on the Norway coaſt are all in poſſeſſion of the inſurgents, conſiſting of the whole military and naval force of the country; the former having been ordered to enforce obedience in the latter, not only refuſed, but joined them.

Very Gallant Action.—A more gallant action than that recorded in the following letter, has not been fought by a merchant ſhip againſt the enemy's privateers this war nor in any preceeding one. The Lords of the Admiralty have, in conſequence, been pleaſed to expreſs to the committee for managing the affairs of Lloyd's, their Lordſhips ſatisfaction at the gallantry exhibited on this occaſion, and their intention to grant to each of the crew of the Cumberland, as a mark of their Lordſhips favour, a protection from the impreſs for the ſpace of three years.

"DEAL, January 16.

"Sunday night the ſhip Cumberland, Barrett, maſter, arrived in the Downs from Quebec, with a jury foremaſt and bowſprit, having pitched her bowſprit and foremaſt away in a heavy gale of wind off the Banks of Newfoundland. From 7 till 8 o'clock on Sunday morning, ſhe was attacked by 4 French privateer luggers, between Dover and Folkſtone, the firſt of which hailed to know if he wanted a pilot; capt. B. having ſuſpicion of her replied in the negative; immediately after another privateer ordered him to lay back his mainyard and the whole of them commenced a fire of muſquetry, and two of them ran along ſide and boarded the Cumberland, previous to which the capt. had ordered all the ſhip's crew into the cabin; they being armed with their boarding pikes; as ſoon as about 40 men came on board, the capt. ordered the ſhip to be ſheered off from the privateers, leaving the Frenchmen no good retreat, and on the ſhip being boarded, the privateers ceaſed firing; in the mean time the ſhip's company rallied forward, and cleared the deck; the greateſt part of the boarders being killed and the remainder jumped overboard. Immediately after another came along ſide, and did the captain they would give no quarter; on hearing this the ſhip's company cheered them, and they were boarded and cleared in like manner. This was repeated three times afterwards, with the like ſucceſs on the part of the ſhip's crew, and their taking three priſoners, two of whom were wounded, and one of whom has ſince died of his wounds. Immediately after this capt. Barrett diſcharged three of his cartronades, loaded with round and canniſter ſhot; the firſt was ſeen to carry away the mainmaſt of one of the privateers, and the ſecond carried away the bowſprit of another, and it was ſaid, paſſed deſtroying many of the men, as they were heard to cry out; and the ſhots were heard to ſtrike the veſſel. They then made off, and the Cumberland proceeded for the Downs. We are ſorry to ſay, Mr. Cowper, chief mate, is wounded in the ſhoulder, and that one man on board the Cumberland has died of his wounds. The loſs on the part of the enemy is ſuppoſed to be nearly 60. Capt. B. killed three himſelf, one of which he was obliged to put his foot on to extricate his pike."

WASHINGTON, March 12.

Letters have been received in this city from Mobile to the 6th of February. The Spaniards yet retain poſſeſſion of the fort.—Colonel Guthing, with ſix gun veſſels, ſix more being expected, is lying near the fort. There are two men at Fort Stoddart, who, with 250 under the command of Colonel Guthing, are underſtood to be deemed ſufficient to reduce the fort, if occaſion ſhould require ſuch a courſe.—Nat. Intel.

A letter received from Corunna, dated the end of November, (ſays a late London paper) incloſes the following ſtatement of French troops ſent into Spain by the road of Bayonne, between the end of October 1807, and the cloſe of Auguſt, 1810. The computation is confirmed by another letter from Cadiz, and it is as follows:—

1807,	Infantry	47,500	Cavalry	7,100
1808,	—	259,310	—	36,210
1809,	—	55,410	—	5,300
1810,	—	88,900	—	10,410
		401,100		68,410

The above applies only to the recruits ſent by the way of Bayonne. It preſumed that the numbers which have marched by the way of Catalonia exceeded 150,000, comprising in the whole a force of 619,000. The force in Spain, at the end of laſt year, is ſuppoſed not to have exceeded 200,000 men. Four hundred thouſand human beings ſwept off to gratify the ambition of one man!—New York Spectator.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Thirteenth day of inslant April to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Seventeenth day of March last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Seventeenth day of inslant April, at which time at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-fifth day of May next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our, trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this tenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty fifth year of our Reign.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great-Britain, and on non payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and for the second offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Words in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders there in may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold if such be fit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed. Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this tenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the fifty fifth year of our Reign.

II. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid. That the due application of the said sum of money, purfuant to the directions of this Act, shall be accounted for to his Majesty, his heirs and succeffors through the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury for the time being, in such manner and form as his Majesty his heirs and succeffors may be pleased to direct.

An ACT to amend and continue for a limited time an Act passed in the forty-ninth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled. "An Act for continuing for a limited time the Provisional Agreement entered into between this Province and Lower Canada, at Montreal on the fifth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and four, relative to Duties, also for continuing for a limited time the several Acts of the Parliament of this Province, now in force relating thereto."

[Passed 13th March, 1811.]

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WHEREAS an Act passed in the forty-ninth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act for the continuing for a limited time the Provisional Agreement entered into between this Province and Lower Canada, at Montreal on the fifth day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and four, relative to duties, also for continuing for a limited time the several Acts of the Parliament of this Province now in force relating thereto," will shortly expire, and whereas it is found expedient to continue the same, May it therefore please your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it Enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, the several Acts of the Parliament of this Province, now in force relating thereto, shall be and continue in force until the end of the next Session of the Provincial Parliament, and also for continuing in the whole or in part, certain duties payable on goods and merchandize brought into this Province from the United States of America, by the Laws now in force in Lower Canada.

II Provided also, and be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no higher or other duties shall be levied or paid on goods and merchandize brought into this Province from the United States of America, after the twenty fifth day of this present month of March, than shall be levied or paid on the like goods and merchandize imported into the Province of Lower Canada from the United States of America, after the twenty fifth day of this present month of March, or other or higher duties than are now paid on goods and merchandize brought into this Province from the said United States of America, by the laws now in force.

III. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That this Act shall be and continue to be in force until the twenty fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and thirteen, and no longer.

An ACT to amend the Precepts of the District Courts, and also further to Regulate the Proceedings of Sheriffs in the Sale of Goods and Chattels taken by them in Execution.

[Passed 13th March, 1811.

WHEREAS it is expedient that certain amendments should be made in the Precepts of Summons issuing from the respective District Courts of this Province, and also that certain Regulations should take place, respecting the Proceedings of the Sheriffs in the sale of Goods and Chattels taken by them in Execution;

Be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, the course and proceedings in the respective District Courts in this Province, shall be by summons issuing in the King's name, directed to the Sheriff of the District where the Court shall be held, and Tested in the name of the first Judge of the said Court, which may be in the following form:—

District } GEORGE the THIRD by the Grace of GOD of the United to wit, } Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the ——— } Faith.

To the Sheriff of the District GREETING:—

WE command you that you summon A. B. to appear either in Person or by his Attorney, at our District Court, to be holden at on the day of to answer the complaint of C. D. in a plea of contract, whereby the said A. B. hath promised to pay to the said C. D. the sum of for (the consideration) and which the said A. B hath refuse to pay him as he says.

II. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That when and so often as Goods and Chattels are seized by the Sheriff, his Deputy Officer or Officers, under and by virtue of Execution, issued out of the Court of King's Bench or District Courts, the said Sheriff, his Deputy Officer or Officers, shall on request, deliver to the person or persons to whom the said Goods and Chattels did belong, his, her or their Agents or Servants, an Inventory of the said Goods and Chattels, before they shall be removed from the premises on which they were so seized as aforesaid.

Grammatical Smoking.—As smoking is an innocent indulgence, and as it is authorised with people of all classes to relate stories, or the news of the day, with segars in their mouths; and as the generality of smokers make an awkward appearance, in consequence of their ignorance of the theory of punctuation in smoking, the following system is recommended:—

"A simple puff, serves for a comma,
Puff, puff, a semicolon;
Puff puff, puff, puff, a colon:
Six puffs, a period.

A pause, with the segar kept in the mouth, represents a dash—longer or shorter in continuance.

With the under lip raise the segar almoft again the nose, for an exclamation! And to express great emotion, even to the bleeding of tears, only raise, as before, the segar so as to touch the end of the nose. For an interrogation? it is only necessary to open the lips, and draw the segar round to the corner of the mouth.

Taking the segar from the mouth and knocking the fire from the end, is the conclusion of a paragraph; and throwing it in the fire, is a final and stylish pause."

Never begin a story with a half smoked segar; for to light another while smoking, is not only a breach of politeness, but interferes with the above system of punctuation, which deprives all energy and harmony of expression. FUMIGATOR.—N. Y. Spect.

ANECDOTE.

IN the year 1765, the Emperor of Germany, Joseph the second, took a tour through different parts of his Empire. His Imperial Majesty travelled in a very plain manner in order to avoid receiving much known or troubled with ceremonies. He in general wore a tight grey Coat to cover his uniform, and rode in a mean looking Chariot with only one pair of horses; by this means he was seldom discovered, even at the Post houses, although they were aware of his coming.

Not far from the city of Menheim, at a Post-house, the horses were ordered to be got ready by a certain hour, for the Emperor and suite. When the time drew near at which the Emperor was expected, the Post Boy with fear turn at was to drive the next Carriage was seen with great anxiety for the arrival of the Emperor, fearing himself of being roughly hurried and handsomely rewarded for driving the Emperor's Carriage. At last an old Chariot with one pair of horses and a gentleman wrapped up in a shabby great Coat arrived; nobody had an idea that it was the Emperor—The poor Post Boy, who a few minutes before was to elate, because disappointed of his expected fee, by his present disappointment, began to be very much chagrined and displeased at his fellows. As soon as the Emperor was a little way from the Town, he bid the Boy use the reason of his being so dull and driving so slow, "Sir," said the Boy, "if I tell you the reason, I am sure you will excuse my present behaviour," "what me hear it," said the Emperor, "I will sir," replied the Post Boy, "you must know that the Emperor was expected an hour before you came, and as I had the first turn, I thought certainly have had the honor to drive him and a good reward beside, but you happened to come, and consequently deprived me of that good fortune." "If this is the reason," replied the Emperor, "I will endeavor to make good your loss, I am rather in a hurry, if you will drive me as speedily as possible to the next Town, I will give you 200 Ducats, which is more than you can expect from any Emperor in the World!" If could Post," I will drive you well, and the Emperor may hist ——.

Accordingly, at last at the Court of Menheim, he smiling with millennium one of the gentlemen of that Court of what passed between him and his driver, and the promised number of Ducats were immediately ordered to be paid to the Post Boy.

The first duel fought in N. England, according to Morse and Parish, was between two servants, with sword and daggers. Both were wounded, neither of them mortally. They were tried by the colony, and the victor "to have their heads and feet tied together, and to remain 24 hours without meat or drink." What pity it is made of punishment would not be much more effectual preventative of the practice of dueling, than any now in fashion.

"It is pretty certain, that our ministers have at length come to some determination respecting the orders in council, as there is a quick sailing vessel under immediate orders, waiting for despatches for America. I become as every day more and more manifest, that Bonaparte does not intend to repeal his decrees, if our orders in council are rescinded; but that he intends enforcing, as far as he can, by the operation of those decrees, the Russian pretensions to establish the law of neutrals in 1780.

Dutch papers have arrived to the second.—Confusion in people has again been the scene of disturbance and slaughter. The Jacobinites, always more hostile to their own Government than to the foreign enemy, have again risen, and made a desperate effort to regain their former privileges. They murdered the Senator Lio, forced the Sultan to retire on board his fleet, and set fire to a part of the city. Troops, however, arrived from all quarters to oppose them, and after a sanguinary conflict in the streets of Constantinople, they were forced to yield with the loss of 18,000 men. The official account of these transactions, is accompanied with an assurance, under the same authority, that the negociation with Russia for a peace was in the most favourable train, and that every disposition has been shewn to concede the points in dispute.

LOVE AND AMBITION.

When restrain'd by the spirit of the ages of old,
The page of History with pleasure I turn,
Where the Statesman's and Warrior's great actions are told,
Then with ambition my bosom will burn,
To shine with a flame my fame will be known,
With them with ardour may honour be mine,
Then I'll gain the high laurel ambition refines,
For my name never tarnish'd, in History shine
Will shine over love in the Bard's fatute forgot.

But what that for ambition I breathe forth my fighs,
Can I leave them rapidly chases the fcene,
Or points to dear Chloe with blue laughing eyes,
For my name never tarnish'd, in History shine
Will shine over love in the Bard's fatute forgot.

Yes then in a sweet little Cot would we dwell,
And Peace adorn'd bed me her side,
My Cottage would surely a Palace excel
When rewarded by Love and my beautiful Maid;
Tho' the Trinkets of Grandeur to me be denied,
Dear Love sweetly smiling cares little for these,
Down the Steamlet of life we should happily glide
Attach day would be pass'd in the duty to please.

Ambition no longer roll me of rest,
But calmly I'd view all her late tempting charms;
O my Soul would be patient in being be blest
With the raptures of Love in my dear Chloe's arms,
Yet if Love should reject me and bless not my fighs,
And the Maid of my heart should not smile upon me,
Then will I make Love's shrine the pride of the prize,
Then would I ambition, love only forget.

III. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That from and after the passing of this Act, it shall not be lawful for any Sheriff or his Deputy, or any Bailiff or Constable, directly or indirectly, to purchase any goods or chattels expofed by him to sale, under and by virtue of any Execution from the said Court of King's Bench or District Court in this Province respectively.

An ACT to amend an Act passed in the forty eighth year of His Majesty's Reign, intituled. An Act to explain, amend and reduce to one Act of Parliament, the several Laws now in being, for the raising and training the Militia of this Province.

[Passed 13th March, 1811.]

WHEREAS by the twenty seventh section of an Act passed in the forty eighth year of His Majesty's Reign, intituled, "an Act to explain, amend, and reduce to one Act of Parliament the several Laws now in being for the raising and training the Militia of this Province," it is enacted that the people called Quakers, Menonists and Tunkers, who from certain scruples of conscience decline bearing arms, shall not be compelled to serve in the Militia, but every person professing that he is one of the People called Quakers, Menonists or Tunkers, and producing a Certificate of his being a Quaker, Menonist or Tunker, signed by the Clerk of the Meeting of such society, or by any three or more of the people called Quakers, Menonists or Tunkers, shall be excused and exempted from serving in the said Militia. Provided nevertheless, that every such person or persons that shall or may be of the people called Quakers, Menonists or Tunkers, from the age of sixteen to sixty, shall on or before the first day of December in each & every year, give in his name and place of residence to the Treasurer of the District where he or they shall reside, and pay to such Treasurer, to and for the Public uses of such District, in time of Peace, the sum of Twenty Shillings, and in time of Invasion or Insurrection, or when any part of the Militia of that District shall be called out on actual service, the sum of five Pounds, and in default of such payment, it shall and may be lawful on information or complaint on Oath, made by the said Treasurer before any Justice of the Peace of such District, for the said Justice to issue his Warrant under his hand and seal, to levy the same by the distress and sale of the offender's Goods and Chattels, returning so much of the said distress as shall exceed the sum of twenty shillings per annum in time of Peace, and five Pounds per annum in time of actual Invasion or Insurrection, or when any part of the Militia of that District shall be called out on actual service, deducting therefrom the charges and all other incidental expenses of such distress and sale. And whereas the people called Quakers, cannot avail themselves of the indulgence intended to be granted them, as by their said scruples of conscience, they cannot pay any commutation or composition, to be exempt from bearing arms, nor in case of distress and sale of their Goods and Chattels in consequence of non payment of fines and forfeitures incurred under and by virtue of the said Act; can they receive the surplus (if any) after such distress and sale: Be it Enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled "an Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign intituled, "an Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the "Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for "the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That when and so often as the Goods and Chattels of any Quaker taken by distress and sale, for or on account of any exemption money, fine, forfeiture or penalty under or by virtue of the said Act, shall exceed the amount thereof, the overplus, after deducting the amount of such distress together with the costs and charges of sale, shall be paid by the Constable or other person making such distress and sale, to the Treasurer of the District in which such Quaker shall reside, which overplus shall be and remain and be accounted for as so much for future exemption money, for the person whose Goods and Chattels have been so distrained as aforesaid, and if any Constable or other person making such distress and sale as aforesaid, and refusing or neglecting within one Month after such sale, to pay such overplus as herein before directed, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty five Pounds over and above the said overplus, upon confession or conviction by the Oath of one credible Witness, before any two of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the District wherein such distress and sale were made, and in default of payment, it shall and may be lawful for such Justices, by Warrant under their hands and seals, to cause the same to be levied by distress and sale of the Goods and Chattels of the offender, and if no such distress can be found, to commit the offender by Warrant as aforesaid, to the common Gaol of the District, until the same shall be paid, or for a space of time not exceeding six Calendar Months. Provided always, that no sale of any effects so taken, shall be made, until public notice is given thereof at least eight days previous thereto, at the most public place in the Town or Township where such effects may have been taken in execution, and of the time and place when such effects are to be exposed to sale.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said Act passed in the forty eighth year of his Majesty's Reign, as relates to the returning to any Quaker, such sum or sums of money levied by distress and sale, under and by virtue of that Act, as shall exceed the exemption money required by the said Act to be paid by him for not serving in the said Militia, with the costs and expences incident to the making such distress and sale, shall be and the same is hereby repealed. Provided nevertheless, that if the sum or sums of money to levied by distress, shall exceed the said exemption money, but shall not be equal to the exemption money to be paid by the said Quaker, for the year succeeding that for which such distress and sale were made, that then and in such case the residue of the exemption money so to be paid for that succeeding year, if not paid when due, shall be levied by distress and sale of the Goods and Chattels of the offender.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be the duty of every Constable or other person levying or taking any distress of the Goods and Chattels of any Quaker under and by virtue of this Act, to take as near the value as may be sufficient to satisfy the Warrant for levying such distress, with the costs and expences incident to the sale thereof, and shall stop and

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith :—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Thirteenth day of instant April to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Seventeenth day of March last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Seventeenth day of instant April, at which time at our Town of York, you were held and confirmed to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-fifth day of May next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into confideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this tenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years :—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM JARVIS, Secty.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Acts.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Acts, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS Secy.

Executive Council Office,
York, 4th April, 1811.

NOTICE is hereby given, that in all Leases for the Crown and Clergy Reserves Petitioned for after this day, the Rent will be increased to Fifteen Shillings for each Lot, for the first seven years —to Thirty Shillings the second seven years, and to Forty five Shillings the third seven years. Conſtantinople, Nov. 10.

The Pacha of Bagdad's head was received here three days ago. It was immediately ſtuck up over the gate of the Seraglio. He was one of the moſt powerful Pachas in the empire. He had for a long time refuſed to pay the tribute which he owed to the Sultan, and it was diſcovered that he was in correſpondence with the Wecabites. He had even propoſed to eſpouſe the daughter of one of their chiefs. Haleth Effendi was ſent to him to demand payment of his arrears, and upon meeting with a refuſal, proclaimed him a rebel, and cauſed him to be aſſaſſinated.

BOSTON, March 21.

By the Hannibal, arrived here yeſterday from Liverpool, we have received our regular files of London papers to Jan. 28. The King, tho' not fully reſtored to health, was in a proſperous ſtate of convaleſcence; he had taken ſeveral walks on the terrace at Windſor, which was attended with beneficial conſequences, particularly to his ſight; the regency bill had not been got through with, but as the important points were ſettled, it was expected the bill would immediately paſs, & be accepted by the heir apparent; and that accordingly the Prince had taken the ſacrament, and was preparing to clothe himſelf with the regal powers; the news from Spain and Portugal, contained in theſe papers, are not ſo late as our own accounts, received directly from thoſe places. Large reinforcements were embarking for Portugal, on the hope and expectation that lord Wellington would be enabled to keep poſſeſſion of that country, in defiance of any power which France could bring againſt it. On American affairs, the papers are either ſilent or unintereſting.--Mr. Pinkney had received ſome freſh deſpatches from our government; but neither their complexion, nor the conſequences ariſing from them are mentioned. There is a diſcordance of opinion with regard to the meaſures intended to be purſued by the Regent; the "Times" ſays, there will be no material change in the adminiſtration, ſince the reſtriction of powers, and the limitation of time, will operate to ſhew that no general or extenſive plans will be deemed judicious or practicable.

Beſides the two frigates which lately eſcaped from Breſt, three others have got out of L'Orient, and are ſuppoſed to have gone to the Iſle of France.

Capt. Stevens, arrived here from St. Domingo, ſays it was reported there, that the whole iſland of Curracoa, with little Curracoa, and part of Bonair, was ſunk by an earthquake on the 9th of Feb. with all the veſſels in the harbour, one of which was a veſſel from London with a cargo worth 200,000 dols.

London, Jan. 23.

Three ſhips arrived yeſterday from the coaſt of France. One letter from thence diſtinctly mentions, that Bonaparte has declared to his foreign miniſter, that the U. States ſhall ſupport the cauſe of the one or of the other, in the diſputes of Europe; expreſſing at the ſame time his indifference, whether they declared for France or Great Britain.

January 25.

Lords Grey and Grenville had an interview with the Prince of Wales on Monday, for the expreſs purpoſe of receiving the commands of his Royal Highneſs relative to a new miniſtry. Lords Grey and Grenville will be firſt Lords of the Treaſury and foreign ſecretary, but which of theſe offices will be held by either is uncertain. Mr. will be Chancellor of the Exchequer. Theſe are all that are yet poſitively ſettled. Mr. Freemantle will be one of the Secretaries of the Treaſury. Lord Moira goes to Ireland as Ld. Lieutenant, but not as Commander in Chief. Mr. Sheridan is to be treaſurer of the navy.

Jan. 26. The King's health goes on in a ſatisfactory manner. The Regency Bill finally paſſed the H of Commons the 23d, and was carried to the Lords, and read a firſt time. On the 24th it was read a ſecond time in the houſe of lords, and committed for the next day.

The diſturbances in Norway are quieted.

The holders of colonial produce in Pruſſian ports in the Baltic, being unable to pay the 40 per cent. duty to France, a ſufficient quantity of the produce has been ſeized and ſent to Paris.

Jan. 28. --There were a variety of conjectures, and contradictory publications as to the perſons who are to compoſe the Regent's miniſtry, and the offices they are reſpectively to hold. There is no doubt, however, that there will be a change. Some of the perſons now in power he cannot be expected to continue.

Tortoſa in Spain, has fallen to the French, after a ſiege of 13 days open trenches. It ſurrendered on the firſt day of the year, when a garriſon of 9,500 men laid down their arms, and became priſoners of war. The enemy ſenſible of the value of this acquiſition, loſt no time in endeavouring to turn it to account. Marſhal M'Donald immediately marched to inveſt Tarragona, which, we much fear, will ſhortly, if it has not already taken place, follow the fate of Tortoſa.

This report alſo contains the account of the failure of an expedition againſt Palamus, a ſmall port to the eaſtward of Barcelona. It conſiſted, according to the Moniteur, of 1100 Engliſh, who landed from two ſhips of the line, a frigate and two other veſſels, of whom 600 were killed, and 150 taken priſoners and marched for France. This diſaſter is ſtated to have occurred on the 13th of Dec. We are not aware of any military force to this extent having been employed by us on that part of the Spaniſh coaſt. It will probably turn out that the troops which are here ſtated to be Britiſh, were compoſed of the levies which col. Doyle had been for ſome time employed in organizing in Catalonia, the greater part of which are known to have been deſerters from the enemy.

One of the Paris papers contains the names of ſix farmers, and two merchants, amerced in fines of from 800 to 4000 francs, with limited impriſonment and whipping, for aiding the eſcape of ſome refractory conſcripts, to whom they were related.

The veſſels belonging to the Hanſeatic towns, ordered to be detained at the beginning of the week, have received permiſſion from the Board of Trade to ſail with licences.

WARSAW, Dec. 31.

Two merchants and another individual have been ſentenced here to ten years impriſonment for dealing in Engliſh merchandize.

NEW YORK, March 23.

By the ſch'r Female, Veazey, arrived at Baltimore in 16 days from Kingſton, (Jam.) we learn that an Engliſh ſquadron of five ſail of the line had been ordered to proceed to the Iſland of St. Domingo, for the purpoſe of capturing Chriſtophe's ſquadron, they having fired into the boat of an Engliſh frigate, and killed three men. Captain V. underſtood, before his departure, that the ſquadron had ſailed.

A letter received by the Cleopatra, from Bermuda, dated 14th ult. ſays:—"We have a new admiral (Sawyer) on this ſtation, who has received accounts of a large naval reinforcement on its way from England to join him."

Philadelphia, March 20.

It was publiſhed in the ſtreets of St. Johns, by order of the Governor, that Carracca was in a ſtate of blockade, 5 Spaniſh men of war, 1 frigate, 1 corvette, and 3 brigs, were ſent from St. Johns, for that purpoſe.

News arrived, on the morning, of ſailing, that St Bartholomews was taken by the Britiſh. Markets dull.

March 22.

Arrived ſhip Hebe, capt Ogle, 28 days from Cadiz. The day on which the Hebe ſailed, a detachment from the garriſon of Cadiz, of Britiſh and Spaniſh troops, amounting, as we are informed by an intelligent gentleman paſſenger in the Hebe, to 15,000 men, were furniſhed with rations previous to their embarkation, to make an attack on the French lines which had been much weakened by detachments to their army in Portugal.

A corps of Spaniſh troops from the interior, to the amount of 5000 men, was expected to co-operate in the attack.

The Little William, Macey, from Valencia, via Gibraltar, Spaniſh and Gibraltar papers are received to the end of January, from which a few extracts are made.

Gibraltar, Jan. 19.

Letters from Cadiz ſtate a reinforcement of 10,000 men to have lately arrived at Lisbon from England, and confirm the report of Soult's march for Eſtremadura with 24,000 men, 70 pieces of ordnance, &c. ſo that there remains but 8 or 9000 men before Cadiz, and as many with Sebaſtiani in the kingdom of Grenada.—Of Gen. Balleſteros' operations the ſame letters contain many & various accounts, namely, that the firſt obtained ſome advantages over the enemy; that on the next day, he was nearly overpowered by one of their diviſions much ſtronger than his own, & ſcarcely ſaved from utter deſtruction, by the timely arrival of general Mendizabal; and, laſtly, that at a later date, he fell in with general Girard, and cut his troops to pieces. The French are alſo reported to have ſuſtained loſſes in Urrera. Baza and the mountains of Malaga; all of which, however, yield in importance to that inflicted upon Soult by a body of Patriots who, having diſperſed the eſcort which protected his baggage, carried part of it away, & by killing the horſes or mules which drew or carried the remainder, have laid him under the neceſſity of either proceeding without his baggage, or of ſuſpending his march until he has procured freſh means of conveyance.

A ridiculous attempt has been made by the enemy to bribe General Valdenebro, thro' the channel of an old acquaintance of his who has eſpouſed the cauſe of the uſurper. The reader need not be told, that the offers and arguments of that ſpurious Spaniard have been loſt upon the loyal Chieftain of the gallant Mountaineers of Ronda.—"Yes, I will meet you," ſays he in anſwer to the propoſal of an interview with which his former friend had concluded his letter; "yes, I will meet you; but it will be at the head of my troops."

IMPORTANT.

The following was received by the ſhip Orleans, arrived at Baltimore from New Orleans, where it had been received by expreſs from Nacogdoches, and publiſhed in an extra ſheet.

NACOGDOCHES, Feb. 4.

On the 2nd ult. the troops at Rezar, captain Caſas at their head, roſe, took Governor Saleedo, the two Herreras, and all the European Spaniards that were to be found there, and ſome others, impriſoned and depoſited all their property until further orders.—Capt. Jeans arreſted father Maynos at the Trinity, the Adjutant Inſpector, and Don Joſeph de la Bega, alſo all their property, which is depoſited. All the provinces of Coanuilla, Hiſcava, Monterrey, la Colonia, &c. have revolted, and the European Spaniards that did not make their eſcape, taken into cuſtody, and their property confiſcated. Seignor Bardern has muſtered a conſiderable force beyond Saltillo, in order to prevent the inſurgents entering his province; but the moment he attempted to attack them, his troops refuſed. He endeavored to make his eſcape with the European officers of his army, but was ſoon overtaken by his own followers, and delivered up to Gen. Yriarte, who commands that diviſion of the Generaliſſimo Cure Ydalgos's army, which conſiſts of ſeveral, they ſay, ſeven or eight diviſions in different directions, and is ſuppoſed to have conquered nearly the whole kingdom of Mexico by this time, in faſt with a very little exception, they have met no reſiſtance; but on the contrary, are received by the people with acclamations of joy.

The grand plan is Independence, and the expulſion of the European Spaniards. The Generaliſſimo has the head quarters at Selava Guanahulto. General Yriarte was at Monelora, and is expected to come to Pezar We will ſoon know, and then will be able to form a better idea what kind of regulations will take place in this frontier, &c.—In the mean time Gandiana remains our commandant, and the only variation is that the inhabitants of this place have liberty to go to Nacogdoches for their neceſſaries, &c. &c. The inſurgents have taken the name of Americans; we are no more Spaniards, and are obliged, when the ſentries hail Quien vive? To anſwer America.

Very late from Rio Janeiro.—By the pilot boat Hamilton, which arrived this afternoon in the remarkably ſhort paſſage of 37 days from Rio Janeiro, we learn that the Britiſh and Spaniſh fleets had raiſed the blockade of Montevideo; and that the 5,000 troops, which the Prince of Portugal had ſent to Montevideo, had been ordered back.

Two days later from Portugal.—Arrived laſt even'g the ſchr. Edmund, Deane, from Lisbon, Capt. Deane ſailed on the 19th of Febuary. He confirms the accounts of yeſterday that London papers to an early day in February had been received; but furniſhes no ſtatement of their contents. He informs that the day before he ſailed 3000 Britiſh troops arrived direct from England, and that further reinforcements were daily expected.

Intereſting.—The editors of the N. York Gazette are indebted to a Britiſh gentleman, who left Lisbon on the 17th of laſt month, for the ſubſequent intereſting account of the ſituation, &c. of the contending armies in Portugal. The information is derived from official ſources, and its accuracy may be relied on.

After the battle of Busaco, Lord Wellington retired with the Britiſh Army, from Almeida to the heights of Torres Vedras.—Of this retreat, being about forty leagues in diſtance, there can be little ſaid, as it was accompanied with no military movements of any importance.—The rear guard of the Engliſh and the advance of the French, were conſtantly engaged in ſkirmiſhing, but not to an extent productive of any important conſequence.—The town of Almeguer, near the firſt lines of defence, and not far diſtant from the Tagus, was the only place where the Infantry of the French came up with the Engliſh army.—There a ſmart ſkirmiſh took place between the French and the Light Diviſion commanded by Brigadier Gen. Crawford. This was the only rencontre which took place until Lord Wellington's army was cantoned at Torres Vedras, within the Britiſh lines, and at about five leagues diſtance from Lisbon towards the ſhore of Atlantic, and Gen. Maſſena poſſeſſing himſelf of a height running parallel to that place. Of the three lines of defence, which have been thrown up by the Engliſh & Portugueſe, there can be no adequate deſcription given.—The firſt, or moſt Eaſtern one, paſſes through the town of Torres Vedras, extending from the Atlantic to the River Tagus, and is about twenty miles in extent: The ſecond, paſſing through Mafra, is about 13 miles in extent; and the third paſſing between Moſfra and Ciatra, occupies a diſtance of about 12 miles.

Gen. Maſſena continued in the poſition which he at firſt occupied, oppoſite to Torres Vedras, for more than ſix weeks, continually reconnoitering the poſition of Lord Wellington's army, accompanied by his ſtaff and engineer officers. The difficulty of ſupplying his army with proviſions, the country about him not being fruitful, and the mills having been principally deſtroyed, induced Gen. Maſſena to retire from before Torres Vedras, and he accordingly fortified and retreated to the town of Santarem, this preſent head quarters, which lies upon the river Tagus, about twelve leagues above Lisbon. He had previouſly formed depots of proviſions and forage at this place to a very large extent. He commenced his retreat on the 15th of Nov. and conducted it in a very maſterly manner. He took with him all his baggage, carts, &c. leaving his ſick and wounded to the mercy of an advancing army. The advance guard of the Engliſh came up with the rear of the French army at Cartaxo, at which place the French drew up three regiments of cavalry upon a plain extending towards Santarem. The 95th regiment of Engliſh riflemen were ordered to commence a fire, to induce them to retreat. This produced no effect; and Gen. Crawford drew up the light diviſion in fight, and would have immediately commenced the attack, but, it is ſaid, was checked by Lord Wellington, who reminded him that he had only 4000 in his advance and that he was about to attack Gen. Junot with 14,000.

Gen. Crauford accordingly advanced no farther, but retired to Cartaxo at the ſame time that the French cavalry moved off to Santarem. The following morning at day break, Gen. Crauford's diviſion advanced on the road towards Santarem, the remainder of the army being immediately in his rear. A general engagement was ſupp contemplated, every diviſion taking its poſition according to general orders for attack. Every neceſſary arrangement having been made, the whole army was anxiouſly waiting for an order to advance, when an aid de camp belonging to Col. Pack, who commanded a brigade of Portugueſe, arrived, informing that his commanding officer was advancing on the road to Cartaxo diametrically oppoſite to the orders of Lord Wellington. This circumſtance retarded the advance, and in all probability prevented an attack that day. The evening was employed reconnoitering, and the reſult of a conſultation was, a relinquiſhment of the plan of attack, and an order that the army ſhould return to its cantonments, and there it ſtill remains.

The town of Santarem is ſituated on a hill, commanding a valley on the left, which extends to the river Tagus. In front is the river Rio Major, over which there is a bridge of 100 yards in length, and which is the only paſs to the town on that ſide. The rear of the French army is not confined to Santarem, but occupies the grand military road towards Abrantes, for ſeveral leagues. The town is very ſtrongly fortified. General Maſſena having cauſed to be erected around the hill three regular rows of trees of groſs timber, forked, to prevent aſcending as well as for a cover to the enemy in an attack. Oppoſite to Santarem, on the ſouth ſhore of the Tagus, the country is occupied by Gen. Hill's brigade, having fortified at a place called Chamuſca, and the Spaniſh and Portugueſe farther to the weſtward, at a valley called Cavelos.—Farther up the river, and oppoſite to Abrantes, there are alſo two brigades of Portugueſe, who prevent all communications with the French army from the ſouth ſhore of the Tagus. The main body of the Portugueſe army, under Marſhal Beresford, is ſtationed farther to the weſtward, and immediately oppoſite Cartaxo, the head quarters of Lord Wellington.

Thus are ſituated the two great contending powers in Portugal; and the event of the conteſt is anxiouſly looked for, as it may in one ſide compleat the entire ſubjugation of continental Europe.

Taking it for granted that a change in the Engliſh miniſtry, occaſioned by the acceſſion to power, of the Prince of Wales, will not operate unfavorable towards a proſecution of the war, or occaſion any change of the generals in command, a knowledge of the ſituation of affairs in Portugal will certainly authorize a ſtrong belief, that her hopes are not entirely deſperate. The arrival there of ſtrong reinforcements ſince the appointment of the Regency, ſeems to indicate a favourable diſpoſition in the Prince of Wales, and it has been ſtated in Lisbon from high military authority, that he has addreſſed himſelf perſonally to Lord Wellington to this effect.

The war in any event will be carried to the ſouth ſhore of the Tagus: for it muſt appear obvious, that the preſent lines of defence are impregnable to any force by which they at preſent can be attacked.

An examination of a chart of the country, on the ſouth ſide of the Tagus, will ſhow that a length of time muſt elapſe, and much hard fighting muſt take place, before the armies of France can poſſeſs the heights oppoſite to Lisbon, and which are the only places commanding the city and river.

BOSTON, March 30.

The Lothaire, Capt. Jackſon, arrived off this port yeſterday from Liverpool, which left the 15th Feb. Her papers are to the 13th one day lateſt—Official accounts had been received of the capture by the Engliſh of the important French colony, the Iſle of France, with all the French naval force in thoſe ſeas.

LONDON, Feb. 2.

The following is a copy of an intercepted letter, dated Cornwell Dec. 17.—"It appears that Gen. Junot, relations of the command given to Maſſena, in Portugal, produced a failure before operation. Maſſena, therefore, deprived Junot of his command, arrived him, and ſent him to Paris; the ſuperior confirmed this meaſure, and the General, it is ſaid will be thortly.—2. Prince Ferdinand is to marry the ſiſter of the Empreſs, and to aſcend the throne of Spain—relerving Catalonia and Biſcay for France, the firſt part of which belonged to France until Louis the XIV.—3. King Joſeph returns to Naples.—4 The King of Naples is to be King of Poland; and in order to form that Kingdom the Emperor of Ruſſia has been aſked for his part of the old partition of Poland. Auſtria cedes her part voluntarily.—5 Prince Berthier is to be King of Pruſſia, and there is no neceſſary to aſk Pruſſia for her part of Poland.—6. Maſſena is to be King of Portugal, and muſt conquer his kingdom by the aid of the French & Spaniards, and who will be united under the ſame rules as the reſt of the new kingdoms of Poland and Pruſſia—the new kings muſt go and conquer them from Ruſſia and Pruſſia. It is probable that our force, and the forces of Germany and all the Rheniſh Confederacy, will be united for the grand operation. Such is the news of the day, which is derived from good ſources."

February 12.

This day Parliament was opened by commiſſion, when the commiſſioners appointed by his Royal Highneſs the Regent delivered the Speech; of which the following is the ſubſtance:—

It begins with ſtating that, "in execution of the commiſſion which has been juſt read, the Commiſſioners were commanded by his Royal Highneſs to ſay, that his Royal Highneſs laments, not only in common with all his majeſty's ſubjects, but in a more peculiar degree on his own account, the great national calamity which has impoſed his duty upon his Royal Highneſs.

"His Royal Highneſs is aware of the difficulties attendant upon the important truſt repoſed in him; but he looks with confidence to the wiſdom and zeal of parliament, and to the firmneſs of his majeſty's faithful people. His Royal Highneſs will uſe his beſt efforts to direct the powers inveſted in him towards ſecuring the proſperity and welfare of the country.

"His Royal Highneſs informs them with great ſatisfaction, that freſh opportunities have been afforded of ſecuring the valour and ſkill of his Majeſty's forces. The captures of Bourbon and Amboyna have ſtill further leſſened the enemy's colonies.

"The invaſion of Sicily ſo preſumptuouſly promiſed, has been defeated by the perſeverance and bravery of his Majeſty's forces, aſſiſted by the troops and ſubjects of his Sicilian Majeſty. The chief object of the efforts of this country, during the laſt year, has been Portugal and Cadiz; and the objects of the enemy on theſe points have been hitherto defeated.—The military meaſures of Lord Wellington, & the diſcipline and courage of his army have been very eminent, and have produced the beſt effects upon the conduct of our allies.

"His Royal Highneſs hopes that he ſhall be enabled to afford to Spain and Portugal a continuance of that ſupport which their energy appears to deſerve, and upon which ſo much of their ultimate ſucceſs muſt depend."

The paragraph reſpecting the U. States, is in theſe Words.

"We have it likewiſe in command, to acquaint you, that diſcuſſions are now depending between this country and the U. States of America; and that it is the earneſt wiſh of his Royal Highneſs that he may find himſelf enabled to bring theſe diſcuſſions to an amicable termination, conſiſtent with the honor of his Majeſty's Crown, and the Maritime rights and intereſts of the United Kingdom."

From the London Gazette, Feb. 16.

Foreign Office, Feb. 15.

His Royal Highneſs the Prince Regent, has been pleaſed to appoint AUGUSTUS JOHN FOSTER, Eſq. to be His Majeſty's envoy-extraordinary and Miniſter Plenipotentiary to the United States of America.

[Mr. FOSTER, appointed Miniſter to the United States, is nephew to the Dutcheſs of Devonſhire, and was Secary to the American Legation.]

THE YORK GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, APRIL 20.

SPEECH

Of His Excellency Sir James H. Craig, Governor General, &c. to the Legislative of Lower Canada, delivered 21ſt March laſt.

Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly.

AFTER ſo long and ſo laborious a ſeſſion, I feel at pleaſure in being able to releaſe you from any further attendance, and, that you can return to our conſtituents, with the ſatisfactory conſideration of not having neglected their ſervice or overlooked their intereſts, in the various acts that you have preſented to me, for His Majeſty's aſſent.

Upon the ſtate of our public affairs, the difficulty of communication with Europe has, this winter, appeared to be greater than uſual; probably owing to the impediments thrown in the way of the American commerce, by the acts of their government. I have therefore, joined the meaſſage, with the feelings which would otherwiſe have attended the much lamented death of an amiable Princeſs, were almoſt loſt in the contemplation of the afflicting calamity, by which that event was followed, in the alarming indiſpoſition of our revered Sovereign. Let us place our confidence in the mercy of God, and truſt, that he will, in his gracious diſpenſation, realize thoſe hopes that are held out to us by the laſt accounts that we have received, of his being ſpeedily reſtored to health, to his people and family.

It is ſcarcely neceſſary, that I ſhould obſerve upon a new Act of non-intercourſe or non-importation with reſpect to Great Britain, which has paſſed in the American Congreſs. By what I can underſtand, the beſt of their lawyers are divided in their opinion as to its operation. With us, however, I fear there can be no difference of opinion, as to its being a breach of that ſyſtem of practical and accuſtomed policy, which has ſo long marked their public proceedings towards us. The bill which you have ſo wiſely paſſed for preventing the nefarious traffic that has been but too long carried on, in the forgery of their Bank Notes, will, at leaſt, prove that you have not ſuffered any ſtrong ſenſe of reſentment to wreſt againſt thoſe principles of liberal juſtice, with which you are at all times animated towards them.

I have, Gentlemen, to thank you, for the proviſion that has been made for the payment of the expenditure that has been incurred in the providing a habitation for your Governor, beyond the ſum originally voted for the purpoſe. In having taken this ſtep upon yourſelf, in the confidence I placed in the liberality of Parliament, I feel, however, ſome anxiety that the good people of the Province ſhould know, that the expenditure has been conducted, by the Gentlemen appointed to act as Commiſſioners, with an economy, that has ſaved ſome thouſands of pounds; and this reflection is to myſelf, under the know edge that there exiſted doubts, to which it could be anſwered, without laying any ſpeculation before you.

Among the Acts to which I have juſt declared His Majeſty's aſſent, there is one which I have ſeen with peculiar ſatisfaction. I mean, the Act for aſſimilating the Judges from holding a ſeat in the Houſe of Aſſembly—it is not only, that I think the meaſure right in itſelf, but, that I conſider the paſſing an Act for the purpoſe of complete retrenchment of the erroneous principle, the acting upon which, put me under the neceſſity of diſſolving the laſt Parliament.

Gentlemen, you are now about to return to your homes and to mix again in the common mass of your fellow citizens. Let me entreat you to reflect upon the good that may ariſe from your example, to inculcate thoſe true principles of regularity and ſubmiſſion to the laws, that can alone give ſtability to that degree of happineſs which is attainable in the preſent ſtate of ſociety. Your Province is in an unexampled progreſs of proſperity. Riches are pouring in upon the people; but their moſt eſſential reſource, induſtry and diligence, will inevitably accompany them. The danger of them is too well known to require that I ſhould detain you, by enlarging upon it. It will ariſe from the diſſolution of religion and of the magiſtracy, with the scarcely leſs powerful influence of example and advice in the moſt reſpectable and better informed, to counteract their effects, to preſerve the public morals from ſudden relaxation and finally to bar the entry of crime and of poverty.

A large tract of country, hitherto little known, has been opened to you—its inhabitants are industrious and intelligent, and they cultivate their lands with a productive energy, well calculated to encreaſe the reſources of the colony. Let them reſt on their grounds, be objects of your paternal care—rather let their example be your guide—by the ſame induſtry, "all is as when promiſe to co-ther difference of fertility shall appear, but what may arise from variety of soil and difference of climate.

And now, gentlemen, I have only further to recommend, that, as in an early part of the letter, you yourselves took occasion to observe on the difficulty of the task, you will proportionally exert your best endeavours to do away all mistrust and misunderstanding among yourselves—while these are suffered to remain, all exertions for the public good must be palsied. No bar can still too cordial union—religious differences prefent none. Insolvency is not the disposition of the present times; and, living under one government, enjoying equality in protection and its fostering care, in the mutual intercourse of kindness and benevolence, all others will be found to be ideal. I am earnest on this subject, gentlemen—It is probably the last legacy of a very sincere well wisher, who, if he lives to reach the presence of his Sovereign, would indeed present himself with the proud certainty of obtaining his royal master, if he could conclude his report of his administration, with saying, I found sire, the portion of your subjects that you committed to my charge, divided among themselves, viewing each other with mistrust and jealousy, and animated, as they supposed, by separate interests. I left them, sire, cordially united in the bonds of reciprocal esteem and confidence, and rivaling each other only, in affectionate attachment to your Majesty's government, and in generous exertions for the public good.

Then the honorable Speaker of the Legislative Council said:

Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

It is His Excellency the Governor in Chief's will that this Provincial Parliament be prorogued until Monday, the 29th of April next, and this Provincial Parliament is prorogued until the twenty-ninth day of April next, accordingly.

Lieutenant Governor's Office,

An ACT to repeal an Act passed in the forty-seventh year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act to repeal the several Acts now in force in this Province, relative "to Rates and Assessments, and also to particularize the Property real and personal, "which during the continuance thereof shall be subject to Rates and Assessments, "and fixing the several Valuations at which each and every particular of such "Property shall be Rated and Assessed, and to make further Provision for the "same."

[Passed the 13th March, 1811.]

WHEREAS the present mode of laying Assessments has been found inconvenient, Be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of his "Majesty's reign, intituled, "An Act for making more effectual provision "for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to "make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first Monday in the month of March, one thousand eight hundred and twelve, an Act passed in the forty seventh year of his present Majesty, by which Rates have been imposed, intituled, "An Act to repeal the several Acts now in force in this Province, relative to Rates and Assessments, and also to particularize the Property real "and personal which, during the continuance thereof, shall be subject to Rates "and Assessments, and fixing the several Valuations at which each and every "particular of such property shall be Rated and Assessed," shall be, and the same is hereby repealed.

II. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid, That the following Property, real and personal, shall after the said first Monday in March, one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and for every subsequent year during the continuance of this Act, be deemed ratable property throughout this Province, and shall be rated at the rate and valuation herein after set forth, (that is to say) every acre of arable, pasture, or meadow land, twenty shillings—every acre of uncultivated land, four shillings—every town lot situate in the towns herein after mentioned, Queenstown, Niagara, York and Kingston, twenty pounds—Cornwall, Sandwich and Johnstown, ten pounds—every house built with timber squared or hewed on two sides, of one story in height and not two stories, with not more than two fire places, twenty pounds—for every additional fire place, four pounds—every dwelling house built of squared or flatted timber on two sides, of two stories in height, with not more than two fire places, thirty pounds, and for every additional fire place, eight pounds—every framed house under two stories in heighth with not more than two fire places, thirty five pounds, and every additional fire place, five pounds—every brick or stone house of one story in heighth and not more than two fire places, forty pounds, and for every additional fire place, ten pounds—every framed, brick, or stone house of two stories in heighth and not more than two fire places, sixty pounds, every additional fire place, ten pounds—every grist mill (wrought by water) with one pair of stones, one hundred and fifty pounds, every additional pair, fifty pounds—every saw mill, one hundred pounds—every merchants shop, two hundred pounds—every store house owned or occupied for the receiving and forwarding of goods, wares or merchandize for hire or gain, two hundred pounds—every stone horse kept for the purpose of covering mares for hire or gain, one hundred and ninety-nine pounds. Provided always, That if any person shall bring into any township in this Province, any horse as aforesaid, after the Assessment Bill shall have been made up for such township, it shall and may be lawful for the Collector of any such township, as he is hereby required, to demand and receive of any such person the rate for such horse as aforesaid, unless the owner shall satisfy such Collector, that the rate for such horse has been returned or paid for that year, and in case of refusal of payment, to proceed to the recovery of such rate by distress and sale of such horse as aforesaid.—Every horse of the age of three years and upwards, eight pounds—oxen of the age of four years and upwards per head, four pounds—milch cows per head, three pounds—horned cattle from the age of two years to four years per head, one pound. Provided always, That every stove erected and used in a room where there shall be no fire place, be deemed and considered as a fire place. Provided also, That nothing herein contained, shall extend or be taken or construed to extend to any property, goods or effects, matters or things herein mentioned or enumerated, which shall belong to, or be in the actual possession or occupation of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, except the lands and tenements in the possession of the lessees of the Crown and Clergy Reserves, which shall be liable to the same rates and assessments as other lands herein before mentioned.

III. And be it further Enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the persons nominated and chosen as Assessors in each and every parish, township, reputed township, or place, shall during the continuance of this Act have power and authority, and they are hereby authorized, impowered and required to demand and receive of and from each and every ratable inhabitant, resident within the parish, township, or place for which they shall be so nominated and chosen, a list of all the ratable property real and personal, in his, her, or their possession in the Province; which list shall be taken annually during the continuance of this Act, between the first Monday in March, and the sitting of the Quarter Sessions of the Peace then next ensuing; and the said Assessors shall make a Return of all the ratable inhabitants, with a true List of all their ratable property as aforesaid, and the said Assessors shall include their own ratable property therein, at the foot of which they shall subscribe their names; and after putting up a copy thereof in some public and conspicuous place in the township in which the same shall be made, shall return the same to the Clerk of the Peace, to be laid before the said Court of Quarter Sessions.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all lands shall be considered as ratable property, which are holden in fee simple, or promise of a fee simple, by Land Board Certificates, Order of Council, or Certificate of any Governor of Canada.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for such Assessors yearly and every year during the continuance of this Act, to demand and receive of and from the Treasurer of the District, a sum of money not exceeding four pounds for every hundred pounds contributed and raised in and by their respective townships, reputed townships, or places, for the year they shall serve that office; and so in proportion for any greater or less sum or sums; and the Treasurer of each and every District, is hereby authorized and required to pay such Assessor as aforesaid.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several Courts of Quarter Sessions are hereby authorized, impowered and required, after having ascertained the sum of money required to be raised for defraying the public expences of the District, to divide and apportion the same upon each and every person in the said Rate Rolls named and liable to pay rates as aforesaid, so that every person shall be assessed in just proportion to the list of his, her, or their ratable property real and personal, according to the rates herein before specified, and having ascertained the quota, dividend, or sum of money for which each and every person shall be to assessed for the current year, they shall direct the Clerk of the Peace to transmit forthwith a certified copy of such Assessment Roll, so rated and ascertained as aforesaid, to each and every Collector within the District, and the said Clerk of the Peace shall be intitled to ask, and the Treasurer is hereby required to pay to him the sum of twenty shillings, Lawful Money, on each Assessment Roll, so by the said Clerk apportioned and transmitted as aforesaid, and such copy, certified by the Clerk of the Peace as aforesaid, shall be to each and every Collector sufficient authority for collecting the proportions or dividends within their respective townships, reputed townships, or places. Provided always, That the sum levied shall in no one year exceed one penny in the pound in the sum herein specified, on the valuation at which each species of the property before mentioned shall be rated and assessed.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no new Assessments shall be made until it shall appear to the Justices at their respective General Quarter Sessions, or the greater part of them then and there assembled, by the accounts of their Treasurer or otherwise, that one half of the money collected by virtue of the preceding Rate, together with the whole of the monies collected under and by virtue of any Act or Acts now, or heretofore in force in this Province, shall have been expended for the public uses of the District.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any inhabitant shall refuse or neglect to pay the sum or rate for which he or she stands rated in manner aforesaid, for the space of fourteen days after demand duly made of the same by the said Collector, the said Collector shall, and is hereby required to levy the same by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person so neglecting or refusing to pay, after having obtained a warrant for that purpose, from some one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, and to render the overplus (if any there shall be) to the owner thereof, after deducting the amount of the rates assessed and the legal charges of the distress and sale.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the following fees and no more shall be taken; for every warrant of distress, one shilling; for every mile in travelling to execute the warrant of distress, four pence; and for every selling and making returns, two shillings.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person to be appointed a Parish or Town Officer, un-

Lateſt Intelligence.

From Port au-Prince.—Captain Thomas, of the brig Humbird, arrived at Philadelphia on Tuesday laſt, from Port-au-Prince, and left there the brig George, Chase, for New York, and ſchr. Hamilton, Black, for Philadelphia. Capt. T. informs that on the 9th of March, Petion was to reſign his Presidency, and on the 11th a new Preſident was to be elected, but it was the opinion that Petion would be re-elected. It is ſuppoſed that Rigaud will command the South, and Petion the diſtricts of Port au-Prince as far as the bridge of Mergoare, though there may be an underſtanding between the two commanders. No apprehenſions were entertained from Chriſtophe by land, his fleet being continually in the Bite, and committing many depredations on American veſſels.

The ſchooner Ranger, Captain Height, arrived at Philadelphia on Thursday laſt, after a long and ſtormy paſſage, from Cadiz. Captain Height informs that, after leaving Cadiz in November laſt, he met with ſuch boiſterous weather, that he was obliged to put into St. Thomas's to refit. Being refitted, he ſailed, and when off the Capes of Virginia, met a gale that drove him off the coaſt and obliged him to make the firſt port he could, which was Charleſton, South Carolina; he once more got ready for ſea, and was drove into Wilmington, North Carolina, from which place he arrived in 4 days. While at Cadiz, Captain H. ſays, the ſchr. Priſcilla, belonging to the U. S. was, in a gale of wind, drove under the guns of the French army, oppoſite Cadiz, when the Captain and people, belonging to her, took to their boat and left her, which the Britiſh Admiral (Keats) perceiving, immediately manned ſome boats, and ſent them to bring her off, which the Britiſh tars, through a ſhower of French bullets, gallantly performed. When they bro't her along ſide the Admiral's ſhip, and her papers were handed to him, he enclosed them, with a very polite note, to the American Conſul, delivering the papers and veſſel up to him for the uſe of the owners, without reward or ſalvage, being happy that he could oblige an inhabitant of the United States.

LONDON, Feb 2.

The failures in Paris, according to the laſt advices from the French coaſt, which alſo announce the embargo on all ſhipping in the ports of France, are taking place there daily without intermiſſion. The merchants on the continent are equally embarraſſed. (We ſee no further mention of the embargo in late papers.)

Hoſtilities have been renewed between the Ruſſians and the Turks.

February 8.

Advices by the Anholt Mail ſtate, that a demand of 2000 ſeamen for the French navy has been made from Sweden, but has been refuſed, as inconſiſtent with the laws of the kingdom.—A ſimilar requiſition made from Dantzic, will, no doubt, be more favourably liſtened to. It is ſtill reported, that there are diſturbances in Norway on account of the naval conſcription. There is alſo a rumour of ſome differences between the Courts of Sweden, Denmark and Ruſſia.

February 18.

Advices from St. Peterſburg, to a late date ſtate, that an Ukaſe had been publiſhed by the Ruſſian Government, permitting the entrance of bona fide American veſſels in Ruſſian ports, on the payment of certain duties, ſpecified in a Tariff annexed to the Order.

It is ſtated in ſome letters from France, that Bonaparte expreſſed his intention of behaving with the utmoſt liberality towards ſhips and property belonging to the United States.

The inhabitants of the Valais, Switzerland, reſiſted the execution of the order for annexing that territory to France; but were overpowered by French troops. Three hundred Swiss were killed and 600 wounded.

Extract of a letter dated Port-au-Prince, 3d March, 1811, from a gentleman of intelligence and veracity, to his Father in this city.

"This place is tranquil at preſent, and nothing that indicates a change. No apprehenſion of an attack from Chriſtophe. The town is completely fortified with a wall all round, built in an elegant and ſubſtantial manner.—Rigaud holds poſſeſſion as far as Maraguane, from thence to Aux Cayes: Petion from Port-au Prince to Maraguane and Jacquemel; and Chriſtophe from the Cape to L'Arcahaye. —The remainder of Petion's fleet is now now in this harbour, laid up, and is for ſale. Rigaud has poſſeſſion of ſome of them in Aux Cayes, but it is ſuppoſed they will be given up, as Petion and Rigaud are not at war with each other.—The Preſidential election comes on the 8th of this month; but it is ſuppoſed there will be no oppoſition in this place, as there has been no other candidate named. As to Rigaud, it is uncertain what he intends to do, but he is generally ſuppoſed to be an agent of the French government, as he has diſtributed proclamations nearly to that effect. Petion's proclamations ſay, that he ſhall conſider the people under Rigaud, not as enemies, but as people led aſtray by the intrigues of a deſigning man.—The communication between the two parties is conſtant and uninterrupted.—*N. BALTIMORE, April 2.

Arrived below laſt evening, the ſhip Leda, Hobſon, in 29 days from Cadiz. Captain H. who came up to town laſt night, informs, that on the 22d of February, an expedition ſailed from Cadiz, conſiſting of about 15,000 men, 3500 Engliſh, the Remainder Spaniards, deſtined for Conel, a ſmall town 21 miles to the ſouthward thereof, with the intention of attacking the French beſieging army before that place, which was ſuppoſed to be very weak, owing to conſiderable bodies of troops having been ſent to reinforce Soult, before Badajoz and Meſana. The Engliſh part of the expedition was ſaid to have made a ſafe landing on the 26th; on account of the badneſs of the weather the Spaniards returned and ſailed again on the 26th. It was expected the French would be driven from before Cadiz—5000 Spaniards were alſo to march from Algeziras to Medina Sidonia, to act in concert with the other troops—General Graham commanded this expedition: the whole French force from St. Lucar to Conel was not ſuppoſed to be more than ſeven or eight thouſand men, and no poſſibility of getting reinforcements nearer than Badajoz or Grenada, the ſiege of the former in that caſe they would be obliged to give up, or entirely give up the other, and leave Malaga expoſed. Reports were in circulation that Soult had been forced to abandon the ſiege of Badajoz and march to the relief of Victor commanding before Cadiz, but this was not believed.

The Britiſh force in the Bay of Cadiz conſiſted of ſix line of battle ſhips, two frigates, three bomb ſhips, and a great number of brigs of war and gun-boats, under the command of Rear Admiral Sir R. Keats, which was ſuppoſed would attack the French batteries in front, while the army attacked them in the rear. The Church of St Philip in Cadiz was fitted up for the reception of the Cortes, and they removed from Iſila, and met for the firſt time in that city on the 24th of February. Proviſions of every deſcription was plenty, and when he Leda left Cadiz, there was from 25 to 30,000 barrels of flour aſſembled in the bay, and in conſequence of the number of arrivals with that article, it had fallen from 17 to 16 dollars.

The Diary of Havanna of the 12th March, contains accounts from Mexico, as late as 12th Feb. An official letter from Don Joſeph Delacruz, ſtates that on the 4th, the armies with all their artillery, had arrived at Ixtlan, after having completely ſubdued the rebels; and that tranquility was reſtored throughout the whole country. The chiefs having been ſubdued, and the people ſeeing their errors, ſurrendered, and implored forgiveneſs.

LONDON, Feb. 26.

From the Liſbon papers it is ſtated, that part of the Spaniſh army which was under the command of Balleſteros, is, we fear, nearly deſtroyed or captured. The laſt diſpatches from Lord Wellington, informs us, that 3,000 of them had been taken in Olivenca. Since then it appears that Balleſteros, marched down the left bank of the Guadiana, for the purpoſe of embarking 5,000 men at Ayamonte, for Cadiz. In order to cover the embarkation, he took a poſition at Caſtillegos, where he was attacked by a diviſion of Soult's corps, by which he was defeated and driven across the Guadiana with great loſs. His artillery and cavalry he is ſaid to have left at Paymoza, which is on the left of that river. They were conſequently unable to retreat with him, and have probably been taken.

The private letters from Liſbon mention a fact of ſome importance—that 4000 troops have arrived in the Tagus, from Sicily, to reinforce the army under Lord Wellington.

Late accounts from Liſbon arrived this morning; they were brought to Falmouth by the Princeſs Elizabeth packet, Capt. Kidd, in eight days. No further intelligence had been received from the armies, with the exception of accounts of daily ſkirmiſhes between foraging parties and out poſts. A French party croſſed to the ſouth ſide of the Tagus a few days before the packet ſailed, but were driven back.

Letters from Corunna to the 16th inſt. bring an account of a ſmart action between Portier, (Marqueſino) and a French detachment of the corps of Bonnet, when the latter was defeated with the loſs of many killed and wounded, and 206 priſoners. It took place near Ribadoo.

At Oviedo, the French commandant iſſued an order, that all males ſhould enliſt in the armies of King Joſeph, between the ages of 16 and 46, whether ſingle or married. The inhabitants on hearing of this mandate, fled to the mountains, and did not return until the reſcript was withdrawn.

The Speculator [illegible] March 7. at Falmouth, from Liſbon, after a paſſage of ſix days. Government, we underſtand, have received by this conveyance, deſpatches from Lord Wellington to the 23d inſt. The enemy had made ſome movements, but none of importance; and the reſpective armies remained in nearly the ſame poſitions.—The private letters brought by the Speculator are to the 25th. Sir Joſeph Yorke's ſquadron had arrived late in the Tagus, and landed the troops. The roads and the country in general were in a ſtate which rendered it not very probable that any important movement would ſoon take place.

Boſton, April 6.

VERY LATE FROM ENGLAND

Ship Alert, capt. Nichols, arrived in the outer harbor yeſterday, in ballaſt, in [illegible] ſhort paſſage of 22 days from Liverpool, brings London and Liverpool papers to the 13th inſt. March. The following are the leading items of newsthat they contain.

FRENCH DECREES.

The Paris Moniteur of March 1st. repeats that the French decrees are repealed with reſpect to America becauſe America is taking meaſures to cauſe her flag to be reſpected; and becauſe ſhe refuſes to ſubmit to the Britiſh orders in council; but they are not repealed with reſpect to thoſe neutral who will not oppoſe theſe orders. It adds—"Every flag which ſhall reſiſt the uſurpations of a nation ſuffers to be inſulted is denationalized, and can no longer on that account be recognized as neutral—it becomes Engliſh. The Berlin and Milan decrees will for ever remain the fundamental law of France, becauſe they ariſe from the nature of things; and when England renounces her paper blockades, the decrees of Berlin and Milan will be eſtabliſhed in their full force."

IMPORTANT.

Mr Perceval, of the Houſe of Commons, March 1, informed that Mr. Pinkney, the American Miniſter, had taken his leave of the Regent previous to his return to the United States—that the negociations on the points in diſcuſſion (the right of ſearch, impreſſment of ſeamen, and the order in council) had not been taken off that Mr. Pinkney would leave a charge d'affaire to carry on the ulterior correſpondence between the two Go-

—and that Mr. Foster would try out to America immediately with propositions, which he thought the American government would not refuse to adopt.

London, March 1.

An American gentleman authorizes us to state, on information derived from Mr. Pinkney himself, "that all the powers of that gentleman have totally ceased as to entering into any further discussion with the British government, touching the matters between the two countries." The charge d'affairs has only a power to sign despatches, and transact small business.

Ministers we learn have received information of a proposal having been made by Bonaparte to the American government of a loan to them of 15 sail of the line in case of a war with England

THE ARMY.

ELEGY by a subaltern officer on the loss of his epaulet removed by the Commander in Chief's order of the 19th February.

And must I part with thee, gay Epaulet,
And must this shoulder its bright lord disown;
Must I resign! few intervals my fond regret,
Who buys thee for a pound, then melts thee down!

On at the ball-room, or the throng'd parade,
I've sparred thee before th' admiring fair,
And all thy glitt'ring honors bright display'd.

The big round bullion so while gayly dancing,
With graceful movement beaming to and fro;
Or gorgeous scarlet laced, the pomp enhancing,
Marking at once the hero and the beau!

Gallantly dangling—innocent employ
With inward pleasure oft I've secret spied
Her left eye glancing on the golden toy!

The word and mien lisps "captain"—heav'nly sound!
Delightful brevet title, form'd to cheer
The Sa "light flattering" thro' his airy round.

Nay—at the fair alone this tribute gave,
This temporary rank—respect's sure pledge,
But tailors, waiters spruce, and hotliers grave,
And trad'smen bowing to the counter's edge!

Alas! those visions all now fade away,
With thee, gay epaulet, my joys depart!
Nineteenth of February, tuckless day,
Blown'd sad on many a heavy heaving heart.

Sure, on that inauspicious day, some demon fell
Dropp'd by Da-y-s in his wrath to urge
This shoulder-dripping order, tram'd too well
To mark distinctions, and make Subs repine.

Where erst the field golden bullion shone,
The liveried lacquey's paltry knot is plac'd;
By fcornful looks, and up turn'd nose, is known
The Sub, with fringe, dishonour'd and disgrac'd!

Farewell to midnight shews! farewell to balls!
Farewell, gay epaulet! thou pleasing lure!
Here let me lurk, within these barrack walls,
And 'scape those scoffs 'tis better to endure!

But, oh! Sir D—d! in harmonious lay,
From praising thee, I never should relax,
Hadst thou left us the epaulet to pay,
And taken off the galling Income Tax!

PUBLICO.

Anagram on the name of HORATIO NELSON.

THE following Anagram is, perhaps, the neatest and most pointed one extant, and cannot be too generally known. The Churches and sinecure of the late hero of the Nile and Trafalgar make exactly the following Latin words:

Honor est a Nilo.

Honor is from the Nile.

Thirteen letters, exactly the same as in the name of Horatio Nelson, which form a happy coincidence and situation; for had he been christened Horace, or Horatius, the anagram could not obtain; and further, had he not gained the victory of the Nile, it still would have been defective; but as it is, perhaps, the happiest and most complete that ever was produced; and it is justly attributed to the ingenious and learned Dr. Burney, of Greenwhich. That this anagram here previously discovered, it would have been a motto for his lordship's arms, equally ill not more in point than the present:

"Palmam qui meruit ferat."

"Let him bear the palm who has deserved it."

YORK (UPPER CANADA:) Printed by JOHN CAMERON, Printer to the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Thirteenth day of instant April, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Seventeenth day of March last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Seventeenth day of instant April, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-fifth day of May next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this tenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty first year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign.

F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamation or Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixpence Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisions contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign.

F. G.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said Justices of the Peace, at their General Quarter Session, or the greater part of them, from time to time, to continue such Treasurer in his office so long as they shall fee convenient, and to remove him at their pleasure, and to appoint any other proper perfon in his place.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid. That the Assessments and Rates hereby impofed, may be in the form hereunto subjoined.

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this Act shall be and continue to be in force for four years and no more.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

NEW YORK. April 2.

On Tuesday evening arrived the ship Erie Robinson, in 24 days from Lisbon. We learn verbally from a passenger in the Erie, that there was a battle fought on the 19th of Feb. near Bidajoz, between the French under Mortier, who had 10,000 men, and the Spanish forces under Rafael Mondezabal, commander in chief, who had from 8 to 9000 men. The Spaniards were defeated with considerable loss in killed, wounded and prisoners. Among the prisoners was Don Jon Verrin, second in command of the Spanish forces. It was reported in Lisbon on the 1st of March, that the French had taken Bidajoz. Two fail of the line, part of Sir Joseph York's squadron arrived at Lisbon on the 26th of February with reinforcements for Lord Wellington. The remainder of the squadron was expected every hour. The whole reinforcement would amount to upwards of 9000 effective men. Mallena had received reinforcement and a large supply of provisions. The English had not fallen back to their lines as late as the 1st of March.

Semlin, November 16.

The Servians have at last gained their liberty, by several successive victories.—The Turks, to the amount of 80,000 men, commanded by their Pachas, have been thrice beaten at Dolograde.—The Servians covered themselves with glory near Widdin ; but the battle of the Driana gave a decisive blow. The choicest of the Turkish army, compofed of 60,000 Bofnians, attacked on both sides the Servians, who were not more than 25,000 men, assisted by 2000 Russians, under the command of Colonel Necit. The combat was most bloody. The General in Chief of the Servians, George Petrowitch, encouraged his soldiers, by representing that they were going to fight for all that was most dear to them as men, that they must conquer or be slaves ; that they had to contend with the very men, whom they had so often beaten ; that he himself, would conduct them to battle, and that, in case of danger, he would fly to their relief with the corps of reserve of 6000 men.

The Servians swore to sacrifice their lives in defence of their liberty, and marched against the enemy. After three discharges of musketry, the Servians charged with the bayonet. The carnage was dreadful ; the Russian cavalry rushed upon the Turks with their pikes, and the infantry with the bayonet. The Turks defended themselves in the most desperate manner. All the chiefs of the Servians, and the Russian Colonel Treil, were wounded.

Nevertheless, the Turks were vanquished ; we took 6000 prisoners, and they lost an equal number of men, either killed or drowned in the Driana, during the route. After the battle, a conference took place between the Vizier and Czerni Georges, in which it was agreed that the Turks should pay the Servians 500,000 Ducats, who would in return give up the prisoners that they had taken, and treat for peace. Czerni Georges is now in the Russian camp, where the negociations are carrying on.

London, February 4.

A letter from Cadiz dated January 13, says, " A few days since some of the enemy's gun boats being hauled up to repair, under their camp, when they had no idea of an attack, a division of our boats, led by Capt. Hall, made an unexpected dash at them, and opened so well directed a fire, that a considerable alarm and consternation was evidently manifeft amongst their troops and artillery. Some deserters that have arrived here since, affirm that a general officer, and 300 men were killed and wounded in the attack. The Spanish gun boats also engaged the enemy's works, and did considerable execution.

" Fort Napoleon and Catalina opened on the shipping, but with no effect.

" The French have certainly marched six battalions to reinforce Maffena, and are weak opposite Cadiz. Rota, which would appear a commanding point is very thinly garrisoned, so much so, that Captain Hall, who commands the British flotilla at Cadiz, in a single gun boat, destroyed one of the enemy's boats immediately under the town, keeping at bay during the performance of this service, the whole of the enemy's troops, which could not amount to more than 50 men.—Our markets are plentifully fupplied, but the exchange is high, although eight millions of dollars have lately been landed here. We look out anxiously for news from Portugal."

LISBON, February 20.

" The division of General Claperede belonging to the 9th corps, remained in the city of Guarda on the 10th ; which is the date of the last accounts that I have received from that quarter.

" Notwithstanding I have heard of, and even observed several movements in the interior of the enemy's position, I do not perceive upon the whole, any material alteration, and am of opinion, that the movements have been principally with intention to seek for fupplies of provisions. The difficulty of obtaining them daily increases, and even the inhabitants of Torres Novas and Thomar, the ones who remained in their houses at the time of the invasion of the enemy, have retired to this part of the country almoft dying with hunger.

" By this opportunity I have the fatisfaction of making known to your Excellency, by means of the inclofed copy of a letter, the account which I have received relative to the conduct of Lieut. Streerubitz, belonging to the regiment of Hussars, No. 1. who, during the night of the 9th, with a small detachment of his corps, surprised an enemy's picquet, taking a greater number of prisoners than his own detachment amounted to, without loling a man."

From the same to the same, dated the 23d of February.

" The division of Gen Claperede, belonging to the 9th corps, still continues in the city of Guarda, having its advanced guard at Velmonte, according to the last accounts I have received from those places. They had endeavoured on the 19th inft. to poffefs themfelves of Covilha ; but were repulfed with fome loss on their part, by Col. Grant, who had previously occupied the town with a body of militia from the lower province of Beira.

" I inclofe to your Excellency a copy of a letter on the fubject, fent to me by Marshal Beresford, and likewise of the report made on the occasion by the faid Col. Grant.

" Your Excellency will alfo find inclofed, copies of the reports made by Gen. Wm. Erskine, who commands the advanced posts of the left wing of the army ; they confirm the account of the capture of the Adjutant General Chaffels on the 19th inft. with a detachment of the enemy's cavalry and infantry. This capture was made by Enfign Streerubitz, belonging to the regiment of Hussars, who is worthy of your Excellency's attention, as I stated in my former dispatch ; in this recent affair he behaved with great skill and bravery.

" The operations of the partizans continue in the interior of the country ; and I have fufficiently ftrong proofs that the hoftility of the inhabitants of Spain towards the enemy, continues to increase and becomes more inveterate.

" Don Julian Sanchez, whom I have frequently mentioned to your Excellency, has recently taken a large convoy of biscuit, which was on its way from Ledima to Ciudad Rodergo.—Another body of partizans has alfo lately caused to the enemy confiderable losses at Puente del Arzobispa, and it is faid that Gen. Labouffaye was killed in a skirmish at that place.

" The enemy has made no movement of importance in front of this army since my dispatch to your Excellency of the 15th inft. A confiderable quantity of baggage has been fent out of Santarem ; but I am inclined to fuppofe that it belongs to the officers and foldiers who are fick, and removed from that town to the rear of the army."

British House of Lords, February 12.

The Earl of Aberdeen said, that the fact that discuffions were now held between America and this country, and that his royal highneſs was anxious to bring our differences to an amicable adjuftment, afforded ground for consolation to every well-wifher to his country.—At the same time he did entertain a confidence that every fair and proper advance would be made by his Royal Highneſs's Miniſters to unite the two countries in the bonds of reconciliation and friendship.—He could assure the Noble Marquis (Wellesley) now at the head of that department, if he could suppofe the Noble Marquis attentive to any fuggeftion of his, that if he could effect an amicable adjustment of past differences, and a permanent treaty of future friendship with America, he would do an act which would redound to his honor more than the achievement of any conquest, and would rival any deed of heroism, which we might expect from his brother on the banks of the Tagus.

Lord Elliott said, with respect to the differences with America, he hoped for an adjuftment, founded upon our maritime rights, and the honor of our country ; and he thought those who now held the reins of government more entitled to praise for their conduct on this queftion, than thofe who preceded them in office.

Lord Grenville remarked, that it was with infinite satisfaction that he heard that now if not before we were in a train of friendly negociation with America, and that hopes of a happy agreement were entertained. In no sentiment could he agree more cordially with the Noble Earl (Aberdeen,) than that in which he has so ably and elegantly expreffed his conviction, that nothing could be so conducive to the interefts and honor of the country as an union of amity and harmony with the United States. He felt fo sincerely rejoiced on this surject, that he muft congratulate their Lordships and the country on the expectation that had been held out to them.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Feb. 12.

Mr. Milnes.—He would now make an observation on the relations of this country with America. The two States, in consequence of a similarity of interefts, ought to be united ; and, he doubted not every mode consistent with the honor of the nation, would be effayed to reftore harmony between them. But this he would fay, that whether the Burning and Berlin decrees were rescinded by France, or were permitted to operate fully—till the feelings which her conduct muft excite in America would be that whatever her determination was, it did not arise from a principle of friendship ; the calculation of France muft betray doubt of her sincerity ; and that double would awaken feelings of indignation in America, and would clearly inform her of the interested views by which France was actuated.

Mr. Wellesley, Junr.—With respect to the present ftate of the war, he could observe, that in all the acts and decrees of the French Emperor he appeared now to be actuated by no thing but a desire of revenge. Nor could he, in reference to his Burning Decree, believe him so weak as to impoverish his own friends, for the mere purpose of destroying our chandize.—No, he went far beyond that—he willed to destroy the principle of Commerce altogether, that principle which had raised the Towns of the Hanseatic League to rank among the Powers of Europe—and the absence of which had rendered them to distress. His great aim was to destroy the pre-eminence of England on the Ocean—and until he abandoned the idea, it would be in vain to indulge the hope of a folid and permanent peace. He congratulated the Houfe on the moderate tone which had been adopted in the negociations with the United States of America, which he trufted would be attended with a happy effect.

Mr. Ponsonby—Agreed that there was a disposition in Miniſters to conciliate as far as circumſtan es would permit, the United States of America.

LONDON, February 23.

An article from Vienna, of the 18th ult. ftates in pofitive terms, the fact of Peace being concluded between the Emperor of Ruſſia and the Ottoman Porte, and that by the principal article of the treaty, the Provinces of Moldavia and Walachia are ceded to Ruſſia.

Having captured the Iſle of France, the British intend proceeding to the reduction of Batavia ; if it fhould fall into their hands, it was not the intention of the British government to retain it, the climate being so fatal to European conftitutions ; but to demolish the fortifications, and deliver the settlement up to the natives.

LONDON, March 11.

The pregnance of Bonaparte's Empreſs, Maria Louisa, although little alluded to in the Paris Papers, is so far advanced as to approach to a confinement, as appears from the following paragraph in the Moniteur :

PARIS, Feb. 23.

The Empress, though in the 9th month of her pregnancy, attended mass to day in the Chapel of the Palace of the Thuilleries. It is thought that her Majeſty, as the time of her confinement is so near, will no longer go out of her apartments ; fhe is extremely well, and has not suftained the fhighteft indisposition.

SARAGOSSA, Jan. 20.

The surrender of the important fortreis of Tortosa, will produce the greateſt advantages to the military operations in the eaft of Spain ; it opens to the French armies the road to Valencia.—It is said that General Suchet will enter the kingdom from Catalonia and Aragon, and that another corps of the army of the center will proceed towards it from New Caſtile. We also underſtand that General Sebaſtini, who will be relieved by another corps in Granada, will occupy the kingdom of Murcia, and advance from thence to the fouthern frontiers of Valencia. The Duke of Tarento is to lay siege to Taragona, in the mean time, General Baraguay d'Hilliers maintains order in the north of Catalonia, and keeps up the communication between Barcelona and France with a corps of reserve, which daily receives reinforcements.

The regiments of fusileers and chefſeurs of the guards, under the command of generals Reille and Caffarelli, Aids de-Camp to the Emperor Napoleon, are poſted on both banks of the Ebro, in the neighborhood of Burgos, Valladolid, and other towns of Old Caſtile.

BURGOS, Feb. 7.

The Emperor has ordered an army to be formed, which is to be called the army of the north of Spain. It is to consiſt—1ſt, of the division of the rear guard under the orders of General Reille ; 2, of the division of reserve, under the orders of General Caffarelli ; 3, Imperial Guards in Spain, commanded by General Dorsenne ; 4, General Walter's Brigade of light cavalry, which are at Burgos ; 5, the division of General Bonnet, in he Aſturias ; 6, the firſt division of the rear gard under the orders of General Serras ; 7, all the troops in the garrison or ſtationed in the contiguous provinces.—The Duke of Istria will command the whole.

BALTIMORE, April 4

Hayti.—Captain Clare, of the schooner Eleanor, 15 days from Port-au-Prince, informs, that, the jealousies between Petion and Rigaud had been in a great measure appeased, by the re-election of the former to the presidency, who had resigned a short time before to give an opportunity of making a fair choice. Information was received a short time previous to the Eleanor's sailing, by an English frigate, that Christophe intended to make an attack on Port au Prince with all his force ; they were accordingly preparing to receive them, and all was buſtle when the failed. Captain Macey, from Cape Henry, informs that the fleet did fail on the above mentioned expedition on the 10th ult.

New York, April 12.

Late from Lisbon.—The ship Robert S. Shackford, arrived here from N. Orleans, spoke on the 7th inſt. in lat. 37. 80, long. 74. the brig Heroine, of and for Norfolk, 25 days from Lisbon ; the capt of which well informed, that there had been no movement in the armies, and that the English were in close purſuit of the French, who were on a precipitate retreat. The wind blowing hard, captain Shackford could not get any further particulars.

Summary Punishment.—A couple of men with very long beards, being apprehended on Tuesday week, at Briſtol, in the act of stealing several articles from the stables of the White Heart Inn, were hauled into the yard by two ſtout fellows, whither the whole fraternity of the curry comb were immediately fummoned. The long beards of these diſciples were then ſtuck togethes by pitch, their hands being previously tied together behind them, and while this face to face, a profuſion of ſmall mixed with hellebore, was administered, which caused them to sneeze in such a manner, that, by the frequent and violent bobbing of noſes one against the other a copious ſtream of blood iſſued from either noſtril, while the enraged coſpirits were kicking and capering about in all directions ; and it was not until they afked forgiveneſs, and swowed never again to commit depredations upon people's property, that they were releaſed from their deſirable ſituation, by cutting their beards aſunder with a pair of ſhears.

A singular Imposture.—A portly well dreſſed man, lately walking along the Strand, London, suddenly dropped down in an apoplectic fit, and though no leſs a man than sir J——n E——tt was coming by at the time, and was wiſhing to give every aſſiſtance the Materia Medica could afford, it was all in vain ; the body was dead beyond the reach of any phyſician. A corpse in the Strand unowned, soon drew a crowd ; among them came a well dreſſed, good looking young gentleman, who was curious to see the dead man. He had no sooner made his way through the mob, so as to get a full view of the corpse, than he was ſtruck with amazement ; he remained fixed, his countenance changed, and the tears began to flow down his cheeks.

As soon as he could recover himself so far as to gain utterance, he exclaimed—" Oh, God ! my poor uncle ! Is he gone ? Is he ? —Well," said he, with a deep ſigh, " so perish my hopes ! I am happy however, that I luckily paſſed at this awful moment, to rescue his poor remains, and see them decently interred." Accordingly, the forrowful youth called a coach ; and the charitable mob, who pitied the diſconsolate nephew, assisted to put the corpse in the coach ; where the pious young man soon ſtripped the body, and desiring to be ſet down at a famous ſurgeon's, very conſcientiouſly sold his pretended uncle for two guineas.—*Lon. ON THE ENILS AND PLEASURES OF LIFE.

In ev'ry path of Life we'll find
The cares and forrows of mankind,
Content and pleaſure's radiant beams,
Are ever rain deluding dreams.
Think not of their Ambition fwayn,
'Tis only Honours gild its day.
'Tis full of torments cares and ſtrife,
These are the gifts of Public life.
All bliſs and pleaſures are denied,
I to our arms we take a Bride,
If we deſpiſe the power of Love,
Try for a happier ſtate we prove,
And next from children ever flow,
When we poſſeſs them, care and woe ;
Parental joys and fweet delight,
Other thou than greet the ſight.
We're to be born, or ſoon to die,
Joys really are, we can't deny ;
Maxims of vice are, hated found ;
In all the various ſtations found.

By reading it as it ſtands, the Evils of Life are deſcribed ; but by reading the 1ſt and 3d, and 2d and 4th lines together in each ſtanza, the Pleaſures will be deſcribed. ROSEHARP.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament atour Town of York on the Thirteenth day of inſtant April to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Seventeenth day of March laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Seventeenth day of inſtant April, at which time at our Town of York, you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby conwaking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-fifth day of May next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this tenth day of April, one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Clown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offence ſubjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony, puniſhable by Tranſportation for ſeven years;—To the intent therefore, that the Words in our Proviſo aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders therein may be brought to puniſhment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut without Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons therein offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed. Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this tenth day of April, in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thouſand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majeſty's Reign.

Latest Intelligence.

NEW YORK. April 13.

Latest from Lisbon.—The ship Grand Sachem, capt. H. Chicock, arrived here this morning in 38 days from Lisbon. Capt. H. has politely favoured us with the following interesting information:—That the English officers, & others at Lisbon, supposed it impossible for any army to storm the lines on the side of the Tagus; yet many apprehended that a large French army might get possession of the heights of Almeida, opposite Lisbon, and command the harbor. It was also the opinion of most people, that the vast expence that the English were at, in supporting their large army, navy and transports together with almost the whole population of Portugal, would induce them to withdraw their army soon. It was likewise stated to me, by many officers, that a general battle would soon take place, and it was generally reported, that the French had removed their heavy artillery and baggage from Santarem back to Guarda, and that the English also had removed their heavy baggage, provisions, &c. into boats, to go down the river, if necessary. It was supposed these preparations on both sides were for an engagement. A letter had arrived at Lisbon on the 1st of March, reporting having left the fleet, with reinforcements, from England, off Cape Finnister. A regiment of troops from Gibraltar, and one from England, had arrived some time before. A few days before leaving Lisbon, all the troops and officers off duty had been ordered to the army. Ld. Wellington was well spoken of by all persons at Lisbon, except those in the French interest, and of that number a great majority of the lower class of Portuguese undoubtedly are. A merchant of Lisbon had received a letter from Badaj z, dated 24th Feb. giving a particular account of the defeat (by the French besieging that place) of the Spaniards that were under the command of the late General Romana—they had crossed the Tagus for the purpose of endeavouring to relieve Badaj z, and encamped, carelessly, not far from it. The French attacked them in the night, when the out guards were small and remiss, & killed 1500, took 3,500 prisoners, and totally dispersed the rest. [This corps was 7,000 Spaniards and Portuguele.] It stated that the Spaniards, also, fought well, but that a Portuguese regiment, except 80 men, immediately deserted and fled.

Accounts from Portugal to the 14th Feb. state, that the fortifications on the south bank of the Tagus, towards St. Ubes, are nearly as strong as those occupied by the allies on the north shore. These advantages, which have been obtained by incessant labor, give to the British army every opportunity of commencing offensive operations, which is said to be the intention of Lord Wellington to adopt.

It appears to be the intention of Lord Wellington, on the receipt of the reinforcements lately sent him from England, to cross the Tagus himself, with an army of from 16 to 20,000 men, for the purpose of joining Marshal Beresford and raising the siege of Badajoz; if success should attend this measure, the position of Massena would be rendered very critical.

The French Ambassador Ciulincourt, has obtained a dismission from the Court of St. Petersburg, and General Count Lauriston is to succeed him.

Sir John Francis Cradock is appointed Governor of the Cape of Good Hope; Robert Townshend Farquhar, Esq. Governor of the Isle of France & Bourbon.

It was reported in London that an attempt had been made on the life of Bernadotte, Crown Prince of Sweden. It was also rumoured that Bernadotte's property in France had been seized by order of the Emperor.

The property of the Dey of Algiers and of his favorites, in France, has been put under sequestration.

The Prince of Wales has refused any augmentation of his salary in consequence of his election as regent.

Died lately, at his house in Hurley-street, London, Henry Hope, Esq.—He has left behind him property in the funds, and other securities, to the amount of a million sterling, besides the most extensive collection of pictures in the possession of any individual in Europe. He was at the head of the house of Hope, of Amsterdam, which he quitted at the commencement of the French revolution.

NEW YORK. April 16.

Late and Important from Portugal.—The Boston Centinel of Saturday last, contains the following information:

"By Capt. Foster, who arrived on Thursday from Lisbon, we have interesting accounts from Portugal to the 14th March.—They state, That on the 5th March, Marshal Massena, with his army, recommenced their retreat from the banks of the Tagus, & reached the river Mondego [a distance of 60 miles] the 11th.—That they were closely followed by the allied army under Lord Wellington, who, it was reported, was at Coimbra [on the Mondego about 90 miles from Lisbon] on the 12th.—That numbers of French prisoners were daily arriving in Lisbon. Fifteen hundred having been made prisoners previous to the 6th of March, reposting having left the fleet, with reinforcements, from England, off Cape Finnister. A regiment of troops from Gibraltar, and one from England, had arrived some time before. A few days before leaving Lisbon, all the troops and officers off duty had been ordered to the army. Ld. Wellington was well spoken of by all persons at Lisbon, except those in the French interest, and of that number a great majority of the lower class of Portuguele undoubtedly are. The property of the Dey of Algiers and of his favorites, in France, has been put under sequestration.

service in the month of February. The retreat of the French, accelerated by the reinforcements they had received, became unavoidable; "they took the defolated road by which they advanced towards Lisbon; and the paper adds, that their losses in men, horses, and equipage, had been immense.—This is highly probable from the state of the country through which the retreat was made, and the proximity of the allied army to them in that retreat.

"Capt. Foster informs, that on the 13th March an officials account reached Lisbon, that a Spanish and English force had entered Seville. This fact, Capt. F. was assured was authentic.—We had before learnt that of the French corps in Andalusia, the one under Soult had marched for and penetrated into the centre of the Portuguese province of Alentejo; and that Mortier had also advanced into Spanish Estremadura, with his corps. This must have left the French army in Andalusia, not immediately employed in the siege of Cadiz, in a reduced state; and it is possible, the expedition from Cadiz, which failed in left of February, and which made demonstration to the southward of that port, had actually sailed to the northward, and disembarking near the mouth of the Guadalquiver, and penetrated to Seville, a distance of about 50 miles from the coast."

LONDON, March 12.

The hon. Augustus Foster is preparing to set off as Minister Plenipotentiary, in the room of Mr. Jackson, lately returned from America. It is said he will be the bearer of very conciliatory propolals.

The convoys for Lisbon and the Mediterranean, about 130 sail, following, detained by contrary winds, failed on Saturday from Falmouth under convoy of the Franchise, Rifleman, &c.

Sunday afternoon the Prince of Wales arrived at Windsor, and had an audience with the King for an hour & an half.

It is now ascertained, that the vessel lost on the Manacle Rock is an English transport, marked A. H. supposed to be one of the Poictiers convoy bound for Lisbon.

Advices have been received by Ministers from General Graham. He had embarked and failed with a considerable armament of English and Spanish troops, and had landed at Algeziras on the 21st ult. A severe gale had come on which dispersed the ships, and prevented him from disembarking all the troops at the same point; but it was hoped that he would be able, it duly seconded by the Spanish garrison in Cadiz, to raise the siege of that city.

Under the present critical state of affairs with America, it is said that all Governors and other civil and military officers are about to be ordered to repair, without loss of time, to their respective stations. The number at home at the present moment, is beyond former precedents. Sir George Prevost, it is reported, is to succeed Sir James Craig, in the important command of Canada.—This will occasion further changes.

Lieut. Gen. Maitland, Governor of Grenada, goes to Sicily, and Maj. Gen. Hesslop is also spoken of for the same station. The important command of Halifax will be filled up by a military officer.

A Lisbon mail arrived last night and another this morning. The accounts by the former are of the 28th ult. by the latter to the 4th. The former state (untruly we trust) that Badajoz has fallen after the Spanish army, under Gen. Carrera, had been defeated by Soult, who surprised him in his camp. Abandoning for a time the siege of Badajoz, he threw a bridge over the Guadiana, crossed that river & the Abanaguena without opposition, and destroyed the Spaniards in their camp. This was the army that was under the gallant Romana. The immediate consequence of this defeat was the fall of Badajoz—upon what terms is not stated. It is asserted that Soult will advance to the south side of the Tagus, and that Massena will send a large force across it to co-operate with him against Gen. Beresford who has about 12,000 men under him.—Against such a movement Lord Wellington has taken precautions.

There are dispatches from Lord Wellington of the 23d ult. announcing an attempt by the French General Claperedo, who is at Guarda, to obtain possession of Givelha, but he was driven back by Col. Grant and the Oddenarzis under him. The Guerillas continue to act with great effect against the enemy. Massena has sent a great quantity of baggage from Santarem to the rear of the army, but Ld Wellington suppoles it to be the bagage of the sick.

The above is the substance of the intelligence by the Lisbon mail that arrived last night. But another is arrived this morning with later news from Lisbon to the 4th, which not only contains no details relative to the defeat of Carrera and the fall of Badajoz, but does not even allude to these events. Indeed the Lisbon papers of the day after the fall of Badajoz and the defeat of Carrera is said to have been known at Lisbon, contain the following article relative to Badajoz. It it had fallen, where would have been neceffity of inferting fuch an article?

"Valenca de Alcantara, Feb. 19.

"Badajoz continues the obstinate & glorious defence, and the division of the 5th army encamped about it, preserves its communications uninterrupted, so as to admit of the introduction of all sorts of supplies, which, together with the unalterable tranquility of the brave men who defend it, induces us to hope that it will not easily fall into the power of the enemy, who vents his rage against it by the most dreadful, although interrupted fire."

[Lisbon Diary, March 1.

Since writing the above, our disbelief of Badajoz having fallen is confirmed by the dispatches received by Government. The dispatches from Lord Wellington are of the 16th and 23d ult. and the 2d inst.

So far from Badajoz having fallen, the enemy have made little progress in the siege, and the garrison defend themselves obstinately.

The attack upon Carrera is confirmed; out tho' he lost his artillery, he did not lose many men, & the troops that were dispersed were, as has always been the case in Spain, rejoining their columns very fast when the dispatches came away.

Our army continues in the best state of health and spirits.

We are happy to announce, that one of Sir J. Yorke's squadron, the Dannemark, arrived at Lisbon on the 20th ult. and the remainder of the squadron were seen off the Rock of Lisbon by the Seaflower on the fourth instant.

A vessel arrived at Portsmouth yesterday from Malta and Gibraltar, in only eight days from the latter place. An officer came home in her with dispatches, supposed to be of great importance, from Constantinople. Accounts were also received of General Graham having landed on the 21st ult at Algefiras. The object of this expedition is to oblige the enemy to raise the siege of Cadiz. While Gen. Graham is attacking them on one side, the garrison of Cadiz is to attack them on the other side; and if the attack be simultaneous, and the Spanish garrison behave with vigor, it is thot the expedition will be attended with complete success.

In the close of the debate in the House of Commons last night upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer's motion for the relief of commerce, by a loan of six millions, there were some flatements made relative to America, which several of the morning papers have omitted altogether, or touched upon but slightly:—

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Mr. Whitbread, faid he would beg of that Hon. Gentleman to be cautious of adopting it as a certainty, that the repeal of the Orders in Council was all the American wanted.

"Mr. Whitbread faid that the Right Hon. Gentleman had made some imprudent insinuations with regard to America, which he hoped would not shut Gentlemens minds to the cafe when it was brought before them; he hoped that if America did make any other demands than those which were generally understood, the Right Hon. Gentleman would have no objection to accede to his motion for papers.

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer faid that he would agree to his motion if he brought it forward at a time when consistently with the advantages of the country, they could be granted. He had no objection to repeat again what he thought improper or uncandid; "that Gentlemen should not run away with the impreslion that the repeal of he Orders in Council was all that was required by America. He did not go on to say that there was no hope of accommodating these differences, for he had every reason to hope the contrary."

The letters from the North of Germany, by the Arnholt mails, state, that the rumours of a change of system among the Powers in that part of the continent were again revived. So convinced, it seems, were the merchants of Dantzic of a rupture between France and Russia, and that the Prussian territory would be the theatre of the first military operations, that many of them were removing with their effects into the Russian capital.

His Majesty walked again yesterday on Windsor Terrace, both before and after dinner, accompanied by General Manners. The Physicians were in attendance.

Mr. Perceval last night in the House of Commons, announced a message from the Prince Regent. It was brought up and read by the Speaker, and is as follows:—

"The Prince Regent, in the name and on the behalf of his Majesty thinks it proper to inform the House, that the assistance which his Majesty has been enabled to afford the Portuguese Government, by maintaining a body of their troops in his pay, has been attended with great advantage to the common cause, and contributed essentially to the success of the measure for the defence of the kingdom of Portugal. The Prince Regent therefore trusts that the House of Commons will enable him to continue that assistance for the present year, & likewise to grant such further aid as circumstances and the nature of the contest in which his Majesty is engaged, may appear to require."

Mr. Perceval then gave notice that he would move that this message be referred to the committee of supply on Monday.

March 13.

The latest accounts from Turkey are Constantinople 22 Jan. and Smyrna the 20th Jan. Certain intelligence had arrived, of Russia having granted permission to export corn from the Black Sea through the Bosphorus; & of the Porte having granted permission for the importation of colonial produce into the Black Sea. These friendly concessions were regarded indicative of the happiest results, and the most sanguine reports were circulated, such as the signing of an armistice, &c. Such event had taken place; but it was daily expected.

A morning paper says, it is wished by the physicians that his Majesty should undergo the operation of couching, because the appearance of a crack on the film that obscures the vision, justifies the idea that the precise moment for the experiment is arrived.

March 15.

It is said that there is little or no doubt of a war between Russia and France. To this is to be attributed Bonaparte's Senatus Consultum for calling out a freh conscription of 120,000 men. Troops have been for some time filing off from the departments contiguous to the Rhine into Germany. The troops that were on the Elbe, and seemed to meditate an attack upon Holstein, have suddenly marched to the Prussian frontier, where a large force is already assembled.—Ciulincourt is recalled, but not without being to announce his intentions immediately. Bonaparte has appointed M. Lauriston to succeed him. Immediately after the appointment he sends Lauriston on another mission into Italy. Oldenberg, whole Sovereign is the brother-in law of the Emperor Alexander, has been seized by France, and is to follow the fate of Hamburg, Lubeck, &c. a circumstance which cannot fail, and which no doubt is meant to widen the breach between the two empires. The demand of the restoration of Finland to Sweden is done with the same view. It is faid to be a war of Bonaparte's own seeking. This may surprise some who think he has work enough on his hands already in Spain and Portugal, and who imagined that Russia had conceived this to be a favourable opp ortunity for the beginning of his ruleful influence.—But it will be recollected that he was equally at war with Spain, when he fought the last cause of quarrel with Austria. He was then aided by this very Russia, whom now he meditates an attack upon!—he will now be assisted by the Emperor of Austria, whom Russia had helped him to beat down. The great cause of dispute is the kingdom of Poland. Bonaparte insists upon establishing that kingdom at the expence of the Polish territories of Russia.—He accompanies that demand with the affronting feizure of the territories of the Emperor Alexander's brother in law, and with requiring the restoration of Finland, which he had guaranteed to Russia. Drained by the late war with Turkey, impoverished by the war with England, this, in the opinion of Bonaparte, may be the favourable moment for attacking Russia. As far as relates to us, the war will open the Baltic to us, and we shall of course lend a powerful fleet to take advantage of any events that may occur. That there is any hope of connecting Sweden with Russia we do not believe.—Spain and Portugal will be afforded another opportunity, another breathing time, of which, we trust, they will make use to organize, discipline, and increase their armies. The war with Russia, should that event take place, will be turned to better account, by the Portuguese, we hope, than the war with Austria was.

March 16.

We learn, that Sir James Saumarez only waits the return of the Victory from Lisbon to proceed immediately to the Baltic, with a powerful fleet under his orders. The winds however are likely to prevent his failing for weeks to come. It is now said that Count Gottorp will fail with him.

Rumours of an approaching rupture between Russia and France arrive with every mail from Heligoland. It appears to be certain that there has been a considerable movement of the French troops on the shores of the Baltic towards the interior of Germany, and that some negociations of an amicable kind have lately taken place between the Court of Petersburg and the Porte. It is also stated by respectable authority that in consequence of advices received by Government from the North, the preparations for the failing of the Baltic fleet, to the command of which Sir James Saumarez has been appointed, have been accelerated. It is to consist of 25 sail of the line.

Accounts from Vienna state, that the late negociations between France and Austria related to Dalmatia, which it is said Bonaparte has agreed to give to the latter power. It is added that a decree will soon be published, in which the Emperor Francis will assume the title of King of Dalmatia; but that the sovereignty of that kingdom will afterwards be conveyed to the Archduke Charles.

CORK, March 18.

In our last we gave the latest intelligence which has yet arrived from Lisbon, as it appeared in the ordinary London papers of the 13th inst. which we received exclusively on Saturday morning. The London Gazette has since supplied us with the official details of the military operations of which the substance only had previously transpired. It now appears that the disaster which befell the army of Romana was more serious than had been at first represented. Gen. Mendizabel who commanded it, suffered himself to be surprised in his camp, though most advantageously pitched, and his troops defeated, it should seem without a battle, were dispersed, leaving all their baggage and artillery in possession of the enemy. The loss of the Spaniards in men was but trifling, and it is some satisfaction to learn that most of them have again rallied, some having thrown themselves into Badajoz, and others having assembled at Villa Viclofa. A subjection of treachery is naturally excited by this otherwise unaccountable want of vigilance on the part of the Spanish commander. Notwithstanding this advantage obtained by the enemy, he has not been enabled to make any impression on Badajoz. That fortress continued with 9,000 good troops, and abundantly supplied, was defended with spirit to the date of the last accounts.

NEW YORK, April 23.

On the evening of the 2nd of March the town of L'Orient was illuminated and great rejoicings took place, on receiving news from Paris, that the Empress of France had been safely delivered of a son, who was immediately named King of Rome, and Young Emperor of the West.

The latest accounts from Portugal are to the 7th of April, at which time the head quarters of the British army at Thomar and on the Zezere; the former depot of the French; and that the French head quarters was at Coimbra, near 60 miles apart. On the 6th of March General Beresford's division, consisting of 57,000 men, principally Portuguese, with some squadrons of British cavalry and artillery, joined Lord Wellington's division, consisting of 25,000 effective British troops, and two brigades of Portuguese, at Golega. On the 7th the French had retired in three columns from Tomar, and the British light troops came up with their rear guard, and fetzed upon fifteen took place. On the 9th the British army was formed in front of Santarem, the French having on the preceding evening thrown their whole force into that town, and on their march. On the 10th the British infantry were under orders for forced marches, and it was not doubted at that time, but the whole body of the French would be compelled to fight. The rear guard of the French was overtaken and some skirmishing took place, in which there were some lives loft and prisoners taken on both sides, the British light infantry are reported at having suffered severely, but they forced the French to fly. The 4th regiment of infantry which had just arrived from England, had joined general Beresford's division, and the 3d regiment had joined Lord Wellington's division. In the British army, the sudden retreat of the French was attributed to the desertion of Lieutenant Burke from the British, as he was supposed to have carried a statement of the reinforcements that had lately arrived from England.—Such is the account of the advices to the 7th of April from the armies.

ST. JOHN, FEBRUARY 18, 1811

IT is with peculiar satisfaction, that we inform our readers, that HIS MAJESTY has been most graciously pleased to reward the zeal and discipline of the New Brunswick Fencibles, by ordering on the 20th September last, that corps to be numbered the 104th; it is well know that the rank of that fine Regiment are chiefly filled up with the sons of our brave veterans; we observe with loyal pride that our Province, although the last settled, has been the first that has raised a Regiment of the Line for His Majesty, and infert with great pleasure the following Addrefs and Verses forwarded to us by one of our subscribers.

"To the Honorable Major General Hunter, and his Regiment, which is now formed under his auspices, by the indefatigable and well conducted efforts of Lieut. Col. Johnstone and Maj. M'Carthy, seconded by the zeal and affiduity of the Officers in general, as far as has been found worthy of His Majesty's Royal approbation."

SONG.—Tune, Heart of Oak.

For the Hundred and Fourth, let the Muses entwine,
O'er Ocean unfurl'd, their Standard display—
That Flag which the proudest of nations submays;
Hence a wreath from this cloud piercing Pine shall proclaim,
A Brave Competition,
The Soldier's Ambition,
To rival the Lords of the Ocean in fame.

Before d by Apollo, the Laurel has long
Deck'd the brows of the Hero, and bloom'd in his song;
But Daphne this know in a Chaplet combine,
Her bright polished leaf with a Tuft from the Pine;
Fair and stout, take a Trumpet, my long shall proclaim,
The brave Competition,
A Soldier's Ambition,
To rival the Lords of the Ocean in fame.

Manner for the Field, and enroll'd in the Line,
You burn with impatience to attion to chase;
We consider you leaders, and well may you vie,
With all who resolve or to conquer or die.
Fair and stout, by your own Silver Trumpet proclaim,
The Brave Competition,
A Leader's Ambition,
To rival the Lords of the Ocean in fame.

ANTIMPATION FR M THE GREEK.

The tuneful Nine dispersed not Love,
His power nor wanton deeds,
Preach with the Boy they willing were
Where'er he played beats,
Should he attempt to court the Nine
With Ley heart endued,
Who ne'er has knit at beauty's shrine
Whom Love has ne'er subdued,
Him will the Muses set disdain
With silence to inspire,
Or may he try but try in vain
To sound the dulcet Lyre,
Of Heroes when I first to sing
And lofty theme, rehearse,
I fainty touch the Lyric string
And languish flow my verse,
But when to Love or Beauty's charms
My strains again I wave,
Each genial Nymph my bosom warms
With all their Fire I burn.

Take Notice.

THIS is to notify all persons, that a Woman came from Albany to Earl Guillimsbury, who said she was the Widow of two Husbands, and called herself Jane Mac-cercy or Jane Thomas, and her Maiden name is Jane Finch.—She deceived me and I married her. Afterwards she told me that one of her Husbands was alive; and I found out that she was a Widdome. Therefore I do not consider her as my Wife, and forewarn all persons from crediting or harbouring her on my account, as I will pay none of her contracts.

Latest Intelligence.

NEW YORK, April 24.

Latest from Lisbon.—By the ship Eliza Gracie, capt. Brown, which arrived this morning in 29 days from Lisbon, we have received the following interesting intelligence:—

Reports were in circulation at Lisbon, on the 18th March, when the Eliza Gracie sailed, that the French army under Massena had their Head Quarters at Santarem, and on the 7 March set fire to the said town, and retreated in the night. After dividing the army in two divisions, the main body moved towards the village of Bonabal, and the other towards the town of Thomar. The latter, on reaching the branch of the river Zezere, found that Marshal Beresford had got to the south west side, with a strong force of British and Portuguese troops. The French, aware of the difficulty they must encounter in crossing the river, not having a sufficient number of boats moved to the left, towards the main body of their army, and fell in with them on the 10th of March, near the village of Travisos, which occasioned them considerable delay, and afforded time for the advanced guard of the British army to come up with them. A smart skirmish took place, in which the British took two pieces of cannon and made 300 prisoners, 200 of whom arrived at Lisbon on the 15th of March.

The evening before the Eliza Gracie sailed, a report reached Lisbon that on the 14th of March, Gen. Massena occupied the town of Pombal, where his army was drawn up in line of battle, and that on the evening of the same day a partial action took place, the result of which was not officially known on the 17th of March; but the current report was, that Lord Wellington had cut off a part of the right wing of the French army, and that Massena had set fire to the town of Pombal and retreated in the night towards Coimbra.

An account had reached Lisbon, that Badajoz had been taken by the French —that the French army, under Gen. Mortier, had reached Elvas on their way to join Massena. The English & Portuguese were fortifying the hills opposite Lisbon, on the other side of the Tagus, which is capable of being made one of the strongest places in Portugal. The troops in Lisbon were very healthy and but few soldiers were on the sick list.

From London Papers.

A letter from Lisbon states, that Col. Pontonby of the 23d light dragoons, had lately a narrow escape. He was in a battery with Gen. Fane, who was trying to destroy some boats which the French had collected on the other side of the river; a shot from a French battery, which was playing upon them, took off the front cock of the Colonel's hat close to his forehead, & broke in pieces a spy glass he had at the moment at his eye, but without doing him any material injury.

Several junior officers in the British army in Portugal, have been put under arrest, for insulting, in a convivial moment, the religious ceremonies of the Portuguese. The culprits, in order to evade trial, offered to resign their commissions, but which was indignantly refused by Lord Wellington.

At length the Spaniards have confessed to raise a force like the Portuguese army under Marshal Beresford, officered by British officers, the only way in which we are convinced, the Spaniards can be officered, & brought on all occasions to meet the French in the field, or with the same credit to themselves as they had on so many occasions acquired within walls or when besieged. Col. Fernandez, formerly an officer in the 44th British regiment, has just failed to Cadiz, with arms and clothing for a regiment he is to raise. Majors Green and Campbell will soon proceed to Spain to raise their regiments, and several others of our enterprising and active officers, who have attained a knowledge of the Spanish language, will receive letters of service to raise Spanish regiments. In the Spaniard are all the materials that form a good soldier; they only require officers. After what we have seen Marshal Beresford effect with the Portuguese, we look forward to great things from the Spaniards, when properly organized. Minorca has been mentioned as a depot for training, clothing, and perfecting in discipline. 20,000 Spaniards, to remain there till complete as an effective army; and then to be embarked and landed where they may act with most advantage to the public good of their country.

Extract of a letter from an officer on board the Franchite, dated Falmouth, Feb. 23d.—"When I left you last I thought we should have had a fine passage, as the weather promised well the first day and night; but the last evening we got the wind from the S. S. W. off the Lizard, and heavy rain with thick weather and squalls.—After three this morning, in the act of wearing, we unfortunately run down the transport brig John and Jane, Wm. Wichart, master, with 219 of the 19th regiment on board, 14 of her crew, 15 women, and 6 children, making in the whole 254 souls—out of whom are saved, Evan Duff and 22 of the privates; Mr. Wichart, master, his mate, and 6 of the crew, making in the whole 31 saved, and 223 drowned.

"I am not competent to give you the minute details of this unfortunate event; suffice it to say, that captain Allen, his officers, and ship's company exerted themselves to the utmost of their power in preserving the lives of as many as possible from the wreck. I suppose the Franchite could not be going round at the rate of more than 8 or 9 knots, as they were obliged to run a little before the wind, to clear another vessel. She struck the brig with her cut water right on the beam, which stove her to pieces, and she fell instantly. The rigging of the vessel being foul of bowsprit, kept the wreck under the weather bow, by which means we saved so many lives: no boats could be used, the sea ran so high. About 4 o'clock, having got off with the wreck that were living, and made convoy signal to rendezvous at Falmouth, where we arrived at 2 P. M.

"The boatswain of the brig got safe on board us; but recollecting his wife was left behind, he leapt again on the wreck, in the hopes of bringing her with him, but was never seen afterwards."

In addition to the above, we learn that the Franchite also received some damage. About the same time the American ship Intercourse, capt. Cot, ran down the Wellington transport, laden with ordnance stores for Malta. The captain and five men sunk with the ship; five others got on board the American and are saved.

NEW YORK, April 27.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, to a gentleman in this city, dated March 10, 1811.

"A bloody battle has been fought in this neighbourhood, within a few days, principal y by the British, about 4000 men, and 7000 French. The latter lost 4 Generals, 2 killed and 2 prisoners, one since dead, a number of officers and men killed and prisoners, 5 pieces of cannon and 1 Eagle. The English fifs have been severe, 1246 killed and wounded. The affair has been one of the most brilliant in the annals of the war, and was fought within three miles of our out posts. Owing to the conduct of the Spanish commander, the French army escaped, had he done his duty, every man would have been taken. Our armies are now within our lines ready to try it again."

War in Portugal.—The situation of the armies in Portugal, at the date of our last accounts from that quarter, was such as to excite very great anxiety in the public mind, the Retreat of Massena could not have taken place but from two causes; the impossibility of maintaining the French army in Portugal, or in consequence of a plan to draw the English from their strong position, to that the French might have a chance to overwhelm them with numbers. If the retreat is made for want of supplies on the part of the French, we may calculate on hearing by the next arrivals, of the destruction of the greatest part of Massena's armies. It is almost impossible for them to get out of Portugal in the distressed state in which they are said to have commenced their retreat. The English at their heels with a strong cavalry, the enraged peasants in front and on their flanks and famine and disease in their centre, must make dreadful havock with them. But should this be a feigned retreat to draw the British into the open country, a dreadful battle will be the consequence, and how victory will decide cannot be determined. At any rate the next news must be of importance, as it will in all probability enable us to calculate the fate of Portugal, if not of the whole peninsula.

Latest from France.—Last evening arrived at this port the brig Catherine Ray, Masterton, in 28 days from L'Orient, which port she left on the 22d of March.—The passengers in the Catharine Ray state that it was reported and believed at L'Orient, that the Emperor of Russia had declared war against France.

The following is a translation of Jerome Bonaparte's Proclamation to the inhabitants of Westphalia, on ceding his kingdom to the Emperor of France, dated Cassel, the 6th of March.

"Inhabitants of the Westphalian Territory, incorporated with the French Empire.

"Political circumstances, having determined me, to cede you to his Majesty the Emperor of the French, I release you from the oath of fidelity you are under to me. Should your hearts have known how to appreciate my constant efforts for your happiness, the sweetest recompence I can receive for them, will be to see you bear to his Majesty the Emperor, and to France, the same love, the same devotion, and the same fidelity of which I have had so many proofs, particularly in the critical circumstances of the past years. My most ardent wishes are and ever will be, to see you enjoy, under your new master, as perfect a happiness as your character and loyalty merits.

(Signed,)
JEROME NAPOLEON.
At Cassel, the 5th of March."

Late from Portugal.—We have received files of Portuguese and Spanish Gazettes, down to the early part of April, and some private advices of the military aspect of things in that country; from which we collect the following particulars, principally derived from an officer of the British army, at Lisbon, at the period of the departure of the William Penn.

The head quarters of the British army under Lord Wellington, on the 4th of March, was at Carvaxo near Villa Franca, on the Tagus, 26 miles N. E. from Lisbon, his division, the centre, consisting of 25,000 effective British troops, and two brigades of Portuguese.

The head quarters of Marshal Beresford, on the same day, was at Chumalon, 40 miles eastward of Carvaxo, and on the left of the Tagus, his force consisting of 57,000 men, principally Portuguese, with some squadrons of British cavalry and artillery.

The left of the army under General Drummond, had its head quarters at Torres Vedras, 28 miles due north of Lisbon, and about ten miles from the sea, commanding the lower road between Lisbon and Leyria; the force consisting of 6000 British and 2000 Portuguese, with some auxiliary Spaniards.

The head quarters of the French commander in chief was at this time and on the 5th of March at Santarem, 22 miles N. E. of the British head quarters.

The reconnoitering parties of the right wing under Gen. Beresford, had occasionally crossed to the right side of the Tagus, and had made some demonstrations on that side, the position of Gen. Beresford being 20 miles a-head of the French head quarters; but on the morning of the 5th of March, it was found that the French had retired from this position, having left on their out posts a number of uniformed effigies as a deception; the next day, the 6th of March, the division of Gen. Beresford crossed the Tagus, and formed a junction with the right of the division of General Wellesley at Golaga.

The whole army was now in pursuit of the French, who had made very rapid forced marches. Santarem from its extent, may be supposed to have contained about 15,000 inhabitants, but it now exhibited a heap of ruins; only about five or six houses were left habitable, the rest without exception, unroofed and gutted, nor was there a door or window to be seen, some had been consumed by fire, and the ruins were still smoaking on the 9th. One church only escaped, the others suffered in the general wreck, nor was there a particle of provisions nor any thing of any value to be found.

At the position of Santarem, the two great roads unite, the lower leads to Leyira from which it is about 37 miles distant, in a direction something west of north; this is the road to Coimbra, over which both armies had travelled as far as Leyira, after the battle of Busaco—Coimbra is distant from Santarem about 80 miles.

The other or main road, called the upper road, passes by French depots of provisions and hospitals at Thomar, which was on the Zezere river nearly 22 miles north of Santarem. The position of Gen. Beresford, was below the confluence of the Zezere with the Tagus, and consequently menaced the left of the French, and commanded the upper road which leads through the strong mountain country towards Guarda and Almeida and divides Rodrigo, which have been already distinguished by the military operations of the same armies.

The rear guard of the French was overtaken and some skirmishing took place, in which there were some lives lost and prisoners taken on both sides, the British light infantry are reported as having suffered severely, but they compelled the French to fly.

On the 7th, the main body of the British halted, waiting for the division from Torres Vedras to join, and that day pushed their advance on to Coldas.

The French had retired in three columns from Thomar; and the British right troops came up with their rear guard, and several severe conflicts had taken place.

On the 8th, the whole army was in motion, and it was then supposed that the French had occupied the strong position at the Pont de Murcella, and that they meant to make a stand there. A great number of prisoners were now made, composed principally of persons exhausted by fatigue, and apparently much emaciated from want of food, and several deserters also came into the British.

On the 9th, the British army was forced to halt for want of provisions; the French having destroyed every thing of that description on the whole line of their march, and for several miles on every side. The French had not reached Coimbra on the 9th.

On the 10th, a dragoon of the guards, who brought dispatches to an officer at Santarem, stated, that the advance of the British had come in contact the preceding day with one of the French divisions, about a stage advance from Thomar, on the Abrantes road; he said the French had been taken so much by surprise, that they were seen leaping from the windows of the houles in which they had gone to rest. The British infantry were under orders for forced marches, but the pursuit began, and it was not doubted at that time, that the whole body of the French would be compelled to fight.

The division of General Hill was pushed forward with great celerity, to intercept the French in the passage of the river.

In the British army, the sudden retreat of the French was attributed to the desertion of Lieutenant Burke from the British, as he was supposed to have carried a statement of the reinforcements that had lately arrived from England. Among the prisoners taken by the British in their pursuit, were some deserters from their own army.

The army of General Beresford having abandoned the left side of the Tagus great numbers of people from that side crossed over, and sought refuge in the ruins of Santarem.

On passing up the Tagus after the evacuation of the lines by the British army, the line of defence is seen without difficulty, and there is one deep broad entrenchment from the Tagus to Torres Vedras, and thence to the sea; in the rear of which works the most formidable are erected at every point.

The operations thence to the 7th of April, we have received no minutes of, further than that at that date, the British head quarters were at Thomar on the Zezere; the former depot of the French; and that the French head quarters was at Coimbra, near 60 miles apart.

The 4th regiment of infantry which had just arrived from England, had joined General Beresford's division, & the 2d regiment had joined Lord Wellington's division.

The loss on the part of the British troops amounted to two Captains, five Ensigns, and about one hundred and ninety rank & file killed; five Lieut. Colonels, one Major, 14 Captains, 26 Lieutenants, 8 Ensigns, and about 942 rank and file wounded. It appears that the enemy had about 8000 men engaged, and that the British, with the Spaniards attached to them, amounted to five thousand.

Lieut. General Graham, with the troops under his command, had routed the St. Peter river, and re-entered the Isle of Leon.

Admiral Reynolds was, this afternoon, very unexpectedly ordered to proceed to Saint Helens to relieve Saint George, with all the line of battleships ready for sea (four.) It is said, as the reason for this sudden order, that the enemy's fleet in the Scheld, has manifested the intention of putting to sea.

Orders were received at Plymouth on Friday, for all the Royal Artillery in the district, with the exception of two companies, to prepare for immediate embarkation for Portugal, together with other reinforcements to a considerable amount.

By Capt. Conkell of the schooner Two Brothers, arrived yesterday, in 21 days from Cape Henry (Hyti) we learn, that on the 27th of March, Christophe was proclaimed King of the North, under the title of HENRY the 1st. His troops were paraded on the occasion, and a new code of laws was read.

HORRID MURDER.

PARIS, Jan. 22.

The Bulletin of the Arlet contains the following letter, addressed on the 14th inst. by the two prefect Comnat, to the prefect of the department of the Allier:—

"M. PREFECT,

"I know not how to give you the narration of a frightful crime, committed on the 15th ult. in the Commune of Biozat. My pen seems to recoil at tracing details so horrible. A young woman 23 years of age, has just murdered her father, her mother, her brother and two sisters.

"On the 13th of December, Annable Assert, of the Commune of Biozat, a respectable man, poor, and with a large family, was obliged by the bad state of his affairs, to sell a small part of his property. His daughter, Madeline Albert, of a violent character, of suspected morals, and unfortunately accustomed to abuse her father and mother, reproached her father in language the most violent on account of his state, and ended by imperiously demanding a part of the sum which he had received. The father refused, mentioning to her at the same time the state of his affairs; the insulted and abused him outrageously. The father vexed and affronted at the insolence of his daughter, gave her several blows on the shoulders, and ordered her to go to bed. She obeyed and went to bed. A quarter of an hour after the feized the axe, and advanced without noise towards the fire side, where her father, mother, and three brothers and sisters were warming themselves.

"She aimed a blow with the axe at her father's head, laid open his skull, and in spite of the tears and cries of her family, she repeated her blows. He was killed by the first stroke; and one of the wounds would have been sufficient to deprive this unfortunate man of life. They were so deep, that the monster must have been possessed of extraordinary strength to produce them. She then threw herself on her mother, without being softened by her prayers and sighs, struck her five times with the axe, and laid her at her feet. Her two young sisters, one eleven, the other three years old, met with no greater mercy. She struck the eldest both on the head and neck, but did not kill her, because the poor creature crept under the bed.

"These numerous crimes did not satiate the tygress. She seized her youngest sister who held her mother's body, took her in her arms, & threw her alive as she was into a well.

"Of all this family, a brother 13 years old, survived by a miracle. He was so fortunate as to creep behind a trunk, to open the door, and to make his escape, calling for affistance. Madelaine Albert added to so much atrocity the refinement of hypocricy. She called to her brother, requesting him to return, and promised to do him no harm. In a voice the most mild she calm the endeavoured to prevail on the boy to return to the house; but he was too much terrified; he ran away, and took shelter in the house of a man of the name of Richard. In consequence of his flory, several of the inhabitants went to affift the family.—They found Madelaine Albert walking with great agitation in the houle, with a large knife in her hand, with which she threatened to kill any one that should approach her. The darkness of the night, and the terror inspired by so dreadful a fight, paralyzed the courage of these men; they durst not advance and seize her. Their prefence, Madelaine Albert took from her mother's pocket the key of a cupboard, opened it, took out the money that was in it, and went out of the houle, without any of the spectators having the courage to follow her. It is supposed that she is gone towards Riom or Clermont; the gens d'armes are in purfuit of her.

"I have the honor to be, &c.

The following curious advertisement was posted in Bank street, a few days since:—"Wanted a Hackney Coachman; a gentleman of fortune and family would be preferred. Apply at the Bang up Coffee Houfe, Spooney-street."

From late London papers.

Lieutenant Thomas Moor, of Royal Marines, (the second, for there are two of that name in the Marines) was, by his Majesty, last November, promoted to the Brevet rank of captain in the army, for his great and gallant conduct in having, when landed at Graa, with a party of Royal Marines from his Majesty's ship Amphion, attacked a French guard, vastly superior in number, and after a severe conteft, where both officers and men were actually engaged man to man, hand to hand, every individual of the guard was either killed, wounded, or taken prisoners; he also spiked some guns and carried off two, which, as well as the prisoners, he took on board the Amphion; and this was done in view of a confiderable French force which was at a small distance.

Five Jolly Topers lately met at a publichouse in Doncaster, whose heavy appearance clearly proved that they were partakers of the good things of this world, they weighing collectively eleven hundred weight, five stone, and seven pounds.

A NOVEL, BY MISS PORTER.

To paint a youth as virtuous as he's brave,
Glowing with arts his native realms to save;
To war the terror of th' invading foe,
And still unconquer'd in feverest woe,
That his example British youths may fire,
And patriot deeds their bosoms to inspire
To paint their fenates which caule the heartfelt tear,
The tribute due from sympathy fincere;
Such were the scenes immortaliz'd by Porter
By the rich fancy of a charming maid
Such was fair Porte's talk, then Genius fmil'd,
And proudly own'd her for her fav'rite child.

YORK (UPPER CANADA:) Printed by JOHN CAMERON, Printer to the KING's Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Counſellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Twenty fifth day of inſtant May, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the tenth day of April laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty-fifth day of inſtant May, at which time at our town of York you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Second day of JULY next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this fourth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act paſſed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majeſty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the paſſing of the ſaid Act it ſhould and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perſon Adminiſtering the Government, by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, to iſſue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name ſuch and ſo many perſons within the Province as to him ſhould ſeem meet, as commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act paſſed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton ſhould be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchaſed under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the ſaid Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the ſaid hereinbefore firſt recited Act, and by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate conſtitute and appoint, the Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legiſlative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Eſquire, William Allan, of York, Eſquire, and Joſeph Edwards of Niagara, Eſquire, in the ſaid Province reſpectively, to be Commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which ſaid Commiſſioners, any one or more of them, are and hereby reſpectively authorized empowered to Purchaſe ſuch Hemp at and after the price or rate and manner and conformity to the Regulations and Proviſos contained in and according to the Statutes in ſuch caſe made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all ſuch other matters and things as they are authoriſed and required to do in and by the ſaid recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thouſand Eight hundred and nine, and in the fiftieth year of his Majeſty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS Secy.

Executive Council Office,
York, 4th April, 1811.

NOTICE is hereby given, that in all Leaſes for the Crown and Clergy Reſerves Petitioned for after this day, the Rent will be increaſed to Fifteen Shillings for each Lot, for the firſt ſeven years—to Thirty Shillings the ſecond ſeven years, and to Forty-five Shillings the third ſeven years. But that this increaſe of Rent will not extend to Leaſes Petitioned for prior to this date. And that Lots already petitioned for, for which Leaſes ſhall not be obtained before the 29th of September next, enſuing will be declared vacant and open for application.

And it is further notified, that One Pound Twelve Shillings and Six Pence, Currency, in advance, on account of Rent, for each Leaſe, muſt be paid to his Majeſty's Receiver General by all future Applicants, before they receive the Order in Council for the ſame.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Lateſt Intelligence.

London Gazette Extraordinary.
Downing ſtreet, March 25.

Deſpatches of which the following are copies, were laſt night received at the Earl of Liverpool's office, addreſſed to his Lordſhip by Lieut. General Graham, dated Iſle de Leon, 6th & 10th of March, 1811

Iſle de Leon, March 6, 1811.

My Lord—Captain Hope, my firſt Aid de-Camp, will have the honor of delivering this diſpatch to inform your Lordſhip of the glorious iſſue of an action fought yeſterday by the diviſion under my command, againſt the army commanded by Marſhal Victor, compoſed of the two diviſions of Ruſſin and Laval.

The circumſtances were ſuch as compelled me to attack this very ſuperior force. In order as well to explain to your lordſhip the circumſtances of peculiar diſadvantage under which ſuch an action was begun, ſo as to juſtify myſelf from the imputation of raſhneſs in the attempt, I muſt ſtate to your lordſhip that the allied army, after a night march of ſix een hours, from the camp near Vegar, arrived in the morning of the 5th, on the low bridge of Barroſa, about four miles to the ſouthward of the mouth of the Sans Petri River. This height extends inland about a mile and a half, containing on the north the extenſive healthy plain of Chiclana. A great pine foreſt ſkirts the plain, and circles round the height at ſome diſtance, terminating down to Santi Petri; the intermediate ſpace between the north hue of the height and the foreſt being uneven and broken.

A well conducted and ſucceſsful attack on the rear of the enemy's lines near Santi Petri, by the van guard of the Spaniſh army under Brigadier Gen. Lautrizabel, having opened the communication with the Iſle de Leon, I received General De Penas's directions to move down from the poſition of Barroſa, to that of the Torre de Bermes, about half way to the Santi Petri River, in order to ſecure the communication acroſs the river, over which a bridge had been lately eſtabliſhed. This latter poſition occupies a narrow woody ridge, the right on the Sea Cliff, the left falling down to the Almanza Creek, on the edge of the Marſh. A hard ſandy beach gives an eaſy communication between the weſtern points of theſe poſitions.

My diviſion being halted on the eaſtern ſlope of the Bareras height, was marched about 12 o'clock through the wood towards the Bermeja cavalry, (patroles having previouſly been ſent towards Chiclana, without meeting with the enemy.) On the march I received notice that the enemy had appeared in force on the plain, and was advancing towards the heights of Barroſa.

As I conſidered that poſition as the key of that of Santi Petri, I immediately countermarched in order to ſupport the troops left for the defence, and the alacrity with which this manœuvre was executed ſerved as a favourable omen. It was however impoſſible in ſuch intricate and difficult ground to preſerve order in the columns, and there never was a time to reſtore it entirely.

But before we could get ourſelves quite diſentangled from the wood, the troops on the Barroſa Hill were ſeen returning from it, while the enemy's left wing were rapidly aſcending. At the ſame time his right wing ſtood on the plain, on the edge of the wood, with in cannon ſhot. A retreat in the face of ſuch an enemy, already in reach of the eaſy communication by the ſea beach, muſt have involved the whole allied army in all the danger of being attacked during the unavoidable confuſion of the different corps arriving on the narrow ridge of Bermeja nearly at the ſame time.

Truſting to the known heroiſm of Britiſh troops, regardleſs of the numbers and poſition of their enemy, an immediate attack was determined on. Major Duncan ſoon opened a powerful battery of ten guns in the centre. Brigadier General Dilkes with the brigade of guards, Lieut. Colonel Crowe's (of the 28th) flank battalion, Lieutenant Col. Norcott's two companies of the 2d Riſle Corps, and Major Archeon with a part of the 67th foot, (ſeparated from the regiment in the wood) formed on the right.

Col. Wheatly's brigade, with 3 companies of the Coldſtream guards under Lieut. Col. Jackſon, (ſeparated likewiſe from his battalion in the wood) & Lieut. Col. Barnard's flank battalion formed on the leſt.

As ſoon as the infantry was thus haſtily got together, the guns advanced to a more favorable poſition, and kept up a moſt deſtructive fire.

The right wing proceeded to the attack of Gen. Ruſin's diviſion on the Hill, while Lieut. Colonel Barnard's battalion, and Lieut. Col. Buſne's detachment of the 20th Portugueſe, were warmly engaged with the enemy's trailleurs on our left.

Gen. Laval's diviſion, notwithſtanding the havoc made by Major Duncan's battery, continued to advance in very impoſing maſſes, opening his fire of muſketry, and was only checked by that of the left wing. The left wing now advanced firing: a moſt determined charge by the three companies of guards and the 87th regiment, ſupported by all the remainder of the wing, decided the defeat of Gen. Laval's diviſion.

The eagle of the eighth regiment of light infantry, which ſuffered immenſely, and a howitzer, rewarded this charge, and remained in poſſeſſion of Major Gough of the 87th regiment. Theſe attacks were zealouſly ſupported by Col. Bellon with the 28th regiment, and Lieut. Col. Provoſt with a part of the 67th.

A reſerve formed beyond the narrow valley, acroſs which the enemy was cloſely purſued, next ſhared the ſame fate and was routed by the ſame means.

Meanwhile the right wing was not leſs ſucceſsful; the enemy, confident of ſucceſs, met Gen. Dilkes on the aſcent of the hill, and the conteſt was ſanguinary; but the undaunted perſeverance of the brigade of Guards, of Lieut. Col. Browne's battalion, and of Lieut. Col. Norcott's and Major Anderſon's detachments, overcame every obſtacle, and Gen. Ruſin's diviſion was driven from the heighths in confuſion leaving two pieces of cannon.

No expreſſions of mine could do juſtice to the conduct of the troops throughout. Nothing leſs than the almoſt unparalleled exertions of every officer, the invincible bravery of every ſoldier, and the moſt determined devotion to the honor of his Majeſty's arms in all, could have achieved this brilliant ſucceſs, againſt ſuch a formidable enemy, ſo poſted.

In leſs than an hour and an half from the commencement of the action, the enemy was in full retreat. The retiring diviſions met, halted, and ſeemed inclined to form anew, but a more advanced poſition of our artillery quickly diſperſed them.

The exhauſted ſtate of the troops made purſuit impoſſible. A poſition was taken on the eaſtern ſide of the hill; and we were ſtrengthened on our right by the return of the two Spaniſh battalions that had been attached before to my diviſion, but which I had left on the hill and which had been ordered to retire.

Theſe battalions (Walloon Guard and Cindad Real) made every effort to come back in time, when it was known that we were engaged.

I underſtood too, from General Whatingham, that with three ſquadrons of cavalry he kept in check a corps of infantry and cavalry that attempted to turn the Barroſa height by the ſea. One ſquadron of the 2d Huſſars, King's German Legion, under Capt. Buſche, and directed by Lieut. Col. Ponſonby, (both had been attached to the Spaniſh cavalry) joined in time to make a brilliant and moſt ſucceſsful charge again a ſquadron of French dragoons, which was entirely routed.

An eagle, ſix pieces of cannon, the General of diviſion Ruſin, and the General of brigade, Rouſſeau, wounded and taken; the Chief of the Staff, Gen. Bellegarde, an Aide-de-Camp of Marſhal Victor's, and the Colonel of the 8th regiment, with many other officers killed, and ſeveral wounded and taken priſoners; the field covered with dead bodies and arms of the enemy, at leaſt that my confidence in this diviſion was nobly repaid.

Having remained ſome hours on the Barroſa heights, without being able to procure any ſupplies for the exhauſted troops, the Commiſſaries mules having been diſperſed on the enemy's firſt attack of the hill, I left Major Roſs with the detachment of the 3d battalion of the 25th, and withdrew the reſt of the diviſion, which croſſed the Santi Petri river early the next morning.

I cannot conclude this diſpatch without earneſtly recommending to his Majeſty's gracious notice for promotion, Brevet Lieut. Colonel Browne, (Major of the 28th foot, Brevet Lieut. Col. Norcott, Major of the 95th, Major Duncan, Royal Artillery, Major Gough, of the 87th, Major the Hon. E. Achefon of the 67th, and Captain Birch of the Royal Engineers, all in command of corps or detachments on this memorable ſervice; and I confidently hope that the bearer of this diſpatch, Captain Hope, (to whom I refer your Lordſhip for further details) will be promoted, on being permitted to lay the eagle at his Majeſty's feet.

I have the honor to be, &c.

THOMAS GRAHAM.

P S—I beg leave to add, that two Spaniſh officers, Captains Miranda and Naughton, attached to my ſtaff, behaved with the utmoſt intrepidity. T. G.

Iſle de Leon, March 10, 1811.

My Lord,

I have the honor to tranſmit to your Lordſhip the return of the killed and wounded in the action of the 5th inſtant, and I have the ſatisfaction to add, that the wounded in general, are doing well.

By the beſt accounts that can be collected from the wounded French officers, the enemy had about 8000 men engaged. Their loſs by reports and priſoners, is ſuppoſed to be about 3000. I have no doubt of its being very great.

I tranſmit too a return of the ordnance in our poſſeſſion, and alſo the moſt accurate note that can be obtained of priſoners, moſt of whom were wounded They are ſo diſperſed in different hoſpitals, that an exact return has not been obtained.

I have the honor to be, &c.

THOS. GRAHAM, Lt. Genl.

P. S. Detachments of cavalry & infantry have been daily employed in carrying off the wounded, and burying the dead, till the evening of the 8th inſt. by which time all the enemy's wounded that could be found among the bruſh wood and heath were brought in.

MASSENA's RETREAT.

About 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, the Telegraph announced to the Admiralty the following brief but important intelligence from Plymouth:—

"Plymouth Telegraph.

"Maſſena retreated from Santarem—Lord Wellington in purſuit—5th of March (perhaps 15th of March, as there is a wrong ſignal before the 5th,) Gannet arrived."

The above intelligence was immediately tranſmitted to the Lord Mayor by Mr. Yorke, in the following letter:—

"Mr. Yorke preſents his compliments to the Lord Mayor, and has the honor to tranſmit, for his Lordſhip's information, the copy of a telegraphic diſpatch juſt received."

We immediately communicated the important diſpatch in a ſecond edition.

All yeſterday the public were in great impatience for the arrival of the official diſpatch from Lord Wellington, but though the facts of the retreat of the enemy and our purſuit, are undoubted, no official deſpatches have yet arrived from Lord Wellington. It is not the Gannet but the Ganges, one of Sir Joſeph Yorke's ſquadron that is arrived.—Sir Joſeph himſelf was off the Start yeſterday.—The following are the accounts we have received this morning. Government have not yet received the official particulars, but they are hourly expected:—

"Laſt night arrived the Ganges, 74. Capt. Duncan, in 10 days from Liſbon She brings the following important intelligence:—That Maſſena had on the 4th of March, broken up his camp at Santarem, and fallen back towards Spain, leaving part of his camp equipage behind, and that the light troops of Lord Wellington's army were continually harraſſing the rear of Maſſena's. The Portugueſe ordinanza had intercepted and cut off three hundred waggons of bread deſtined for Maſſena's army. This ſudden retreat of Maſſena is ſuppoſed to on his hearing of the arrival of the reinforcement of 6000 men with Rear Admiral Sir J Yorke. We are happy to ſtate our army was in excellent health, and our ſick and convaleſcents were comfortably lodged in Belem Palace, a convent fitted up as an hoſpital. Maſſena as a rule de guerre, previous to his retreat, filled up ſome ſoldiers jackets with ſtraw, with hats and caps as centinels, but this was ſoon diſcovered, and did not prevent an immediate purſuit. The enemy it is ſuppoſed, have buried their artillery, as the roads are now impaſſable for heavy artillery.

Another letter ſame date.

"His Majeſty's ſhip Ganges, of 74 guns, arrived here laſt evening from Liſbon; left the Tagus the 8th inſt. She brings the gratifying intelligence of the retreat of the French army from their poſition at Santarem. It took place on the 4th inſt. the day on which the troops conveyed by Sir Joſeph Yorke arrived from England. In order to deceive our piquets, Maſſena attempted a rute de guerre, by placing effigies, dreſſed in uniform, with muſkets, in front of his entrenchments; it was, however, ſoon detected, and on orders being given for our army to advance, they diſcovered that the enemy had made a precipitate retreat, leaving behind a great part of his baggage, gun-carriages, camp equipage, &c.—Exaggerated accounts as to the number of the reinforcements received by Lord Wellington, aided to their own neceſſities, are ſuppoſed to have determined the adoption of his deſperate expedient When the intelligence reached Liſbon, his Lordſhip had been three days in purſuit. Theſe accounts are corroborated by a number of private letters with which we have been favored; the, that ſeveral ſkirmiſhes had taken place between our van and the French rear guard, in which a number of priſoners had fallen into our hands; that the ſtreets of Santarem were filled with dead horſes, baggage, gun-carriages, &c. from the latter circumſtance, it is ſuppoſed they had buried the greater part of their artillery, the badneſs of the roads rendering their conveyance impracticable. A report was likewiſe prevalent at Liſbon that the Spaniards had intercepted an immenſe convoy of biſcuit, deſtined for Maſſena's army. The reſpectable quarter from which we derive our information prompts us to entertain the pleaſing hope of being able to lay it before our readers in an official ſhape in the courſe of a few days, as a cutter was waiting at Liſbon for the purpoſe of bringing home the deſpatches from Lord Wellington."

NEW YORK, April 30

The Editor of the United States Gazette is indebted to a friend for the following intereſting extract of a letter from an intelligent American in Cadiz, giving a detailed account of the recent engagement in the neighbourhood of Cadiz.

CADIZ, March 8.

I wrote you ſome days ago and mentioned to you that an expedition was fitting out from this, with a view of attacking the French at Chiclana. I cannot tell you why, and indeed it is difficult to conceive on what principle the Britiſh general determined that the whole expedition ſhould be embarked at Cadiz, carried round to Tarafa, then landed, and be compelled to drag their artillery and heavy baggage through the moſt infamous roads & marſhes, and after all, bring his men, ſpent with fatigue, not having men, ſpent with fatigue, not having had their knapſacks off their backs for thirty-ſix hours, to fight the battle within ſight of our own poſts, when he could have marched out by a bridge with his men freſh and without any baggage to impede them doing their duty. However, the fact is as related In this ſituation marching down towards Chiclana, the Engliſh being poſted in a wood by La Pena, who was the Spaniſh Commander in Chief, was ſurpriſed by the main body of the French under Victor. They immediately formed as quick as poſſible, but during the time neceſſary for this operation the French were pouring in their muſketry & grape ſhot and made a terrible havoc.—The moment they were formed they charged the French with the bayonet, and in a very ſhort time completely routed them. The French took a poſition on a hill, the Engliſh again charged them with the bayonet, and routed them with dreadful ſlaughter.

When General Graham found himſelf ſurpriſed he went into the ranks cheering his men, and led them on in perſon to the charge—not a man that did not do his duty; and one officer of the 87th regiment killed eleven Frenchmen and brought in five priſoners. I have converſed with him ſince The Engliſh loſs is immenſe conſidering the number of men engaged

During the engagement General La Pena with eight or ten thouſand Spaniards did nothing—they gave no aſſiſtance—and though General Graham ſent ſeveral meſſages, La Pena would not allow his men to go on. Had the Spaniards advanced, the whole French army would have been taken; not a man would have eſcaped; and it has been poſitively aſcertained that Victor had orders to this effect—"Give battle, and if you are beaten retreat upon Seville,"—and every French ſoldier was prepared for a retreat.

I cannot expreſs to you the diſguſt which every man feels for this conduct of La Pena, and more to find that as yet no notice has been taken of it. There is no blame to be attached to the ſoldiers, they cried out for the Engliſh General to lead them, but in vain. The loſs of the French has been greater than has ever been known in any battle where ſimilar numbers have been engaged; particularly officers—not leſs than four generals, and I calculated at leaſt two thouſand men killed and wounded. I went through the hoſpitals, and converſed with many of the men—I ſaw a number juſt taken off the field.

It is ſaid, and I have reaſon to believe it, that General La Pena will be brought to an account for his conduct—and a new expedition is ſpoken of. Several regiments have marched out again to-day, & it is hoped and expected that ſomething deciſive will be done Gen. Graham, it is aſſerted, is to have the command, if he ſhall have every thing. I hope our ſiege will be raiſed. The French army does not now exceed 10,000 men, and they have many points to defend. During the buſineſs at the iſland, a diverſion was made in the bay of Cadiz, three forts were taken. Rota and Porto St. Mary's were taken poſſeſſion of by admiral Keats. They remained ſeveral hours there The poor inhabitants came out in thouſands to admiral Keats, who went there in perſon, and it was diſtreſſing to be obliged to leave them. The conduct of the Britiſh has been gallant indeed, and inſpires courage into every claſs of men.

BALTIMORE, April 27.

We are informed that there is a letter in town received from Mr Pinkney by one of late arrivals from England, ſtating that he will ſail for the United States, in the Eſſex frigate, about the twentieth of April.

LONDON, March 25.

The Hamburgh letters mention that 1200 Norwegian ſailors had paſſed through that city at the end of laſt month, on their way to Antwerp.

A perſon who made his eſcape on Wedneſday laſt from Antwerp, reports, that the enemy had ready for ſea fifteen ſhips of the line, manned chiefly by conſcripts recently called out for the navy. On Tueſday pilots had been ſummoned on board, for the purpoſe of taking the ſhips out.

We mentioned yeſterday the capture of the Challenger ſloop of war, by a French ſquadron that eſcaped from Cherbourg. The enemy's force we learn, conſiſted of a ſhip of the line, a frigate & a brigs.

By the laſt accounts received from Riga, we believe that the fortifications of that place were extended to a conſiderable length.—A number of houſes had been pulled down, in order to cover the ground with batteries.

A court martial has been held at the Iſle of France, on capts. Pym, Lambert, Curtis, and W Houghby, for the loſs of their reſpective ſhips (the Sirus, Ipnegenia, Magicienn, and Nereide) in an action with the enemy at the Iſle de Paſſe; when they were all moſt honorably acquitted.—Capt. Broughton, of the illuſtrious, was Preſident.

A man by the name of Bradley, 18 years of age, meaſuring nearly eight feet in height, and weighing upwards of 25 ſtone, was examining himſelf in London, in January laſt. N. Y. Spct.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE Subſcriber from the poor ſtate of his health, and the difficulty of collection of Money, lays the following plan before the Public:—

That he intends in the enſuing week, to diſpoſe of his Beer, ſtrong and clear, at Six Dollars per Barrel. Thoſe who wiſh to have leſs quantities, may have, by ſending their own kegs clean and ſweet, filled, from one gallon to any number, from fun-rife to fun-ſet, at Two Shillings N. Y. Cy. per gallon.

As he has now got a Perſon whom he can confide in, fit for ſaid purpoſe, there will be no ſerving of Beer on the Sabbath Day.

N. B. The Conſumer will, by the above plan, ſave an hundred per cent.—as ſuch, there will be nothing delivered without the caſh.

This may be ſuppoſed to be a ſpurt for the moment; but he has Beer on hand and Malt ready made, which will ſupply York and its vicinity for twelve months; and ſhall be continued by a Gentleman who is to carry on my Buſineſs during my abſence.

YORK (UPPER CANADA:) Printed by JOHN CAMERON, Printer to the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith :—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York in the Twenty fifth day of infant May, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the tenth day of April last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty-fifth day of infant May, at which time at our town of York you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Second day of JULY next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Elquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this fourteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS Secy.

Executive Council Office,
York, 4th April, 1811.

NOTICE is hereby given, that in all Leases for the Crown and Clergy Reserves Petitioned for after this day, the Rent will be increased to Fifteen Shillings for each Lot, for the first seven years—to Thirty Shillings the second seven years, and to Forty five Shillings the third seven years. But that this increase of Rent will not extend to Leases Petitioned for prior to this date. And that Lots already petitioned for, for which Leases shall not be obtained before the 29th of September next ensuing will be declared vacant and open for application.

And it is further notified, that One Pound Twelve Shillings and Six Pence, Currency, in advance, on account of Rent, for each Lease, must be paid to his Majesty's Receiver General by all future Applicants, before they receive the Order in Council for the same.

Lateſt Intelligence.

BOSTON, May 7.

To the Exchange Coffee Houſe Books, and Mr. Gilbert's Correſpondent in Newburyport, we are indebted for the following letter from that town. We dare not yet rely on this ſtatement, in its extent, though it is five days later than our laſt accounts.

"Arrived this morning, May 6th, the brig Horizon, Cummings, from Liſbon. Left there March 27th. Two days before he ſailed, news was received from the interior that there had been ſeveral ſkirmiſhes between the French and combined armies, in which the former loſt two generals and 20,000 men, viz. 15,000 killed, and 5000 priſoners, together with 20 pieces of cannon—after which the French retreated, and had entirely evacuated Portugal, but not without deſtroying every thing they fell in with in their retreat.

NEW YORK, May 11.

Capt. Elwell, of the brig Exert, juſt arrived from Liſbon, which place he left on the 28th of March, confirms the account that we received via Newburyport, of the complete evacuation of Portugal by the French. There was no particular accounts of the ſkirmiſhes mentioned in the Newburyport article; but Capt. Elwell ſtates that priſoners were arriving daily at Liſbon, 600 having been brought in the day before he ſailed. The French laid the country waſte thro' which they paſſed on their retreat.

By the Exert we have received Liſbon papers to the 24th March, containing official details of the proceedings of the combined armies to the 15th; at that time Gen. Wellington's head quarters were at Louſa.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Liſbon to his friend in this city, dated March 23.

"The French, as I laſt adviſed you, are making the beſt of their way to Almeira, but I think they muſt ſuffer very conſiderably before they reach it. We are following them up cloſely. The laſt accounts from that quarter were from Pomberiro, above the Ponte de Murcella. The enemy's loſs is not aſcertained as yet—many conjecture it to be 5000 men killed, wounded and priſoners."

Lateſt from England.

Yeſterday afternoon, arrived at this port, the faſt ſailing ſloop Algernon, Clake, in 29 days from Belfaſt. By this arrival Belfaſt news papers of the 6th of April, containing London dates of the 2d, being 7 days later than our former advice, are received.—The following extracts comprize every article of moment:—

London, March 28.

The Empreſs of the French was delivered of a Prince at nine o'clock on the morning of the 20th of March. This intereſting intelligence was received by the Governor General of the department of Holland on the 22d, by a telegraphic diſpatch.

The Emperor of Ruſſia and the Archduke Charles of Auſtria, are ſaid to be ſponſors of the Infantine Napoleon.

We underſtand by letters from Heligoland, that there has been a ſtir in trade, and that various articles have been ſold at a conſiderable advance of price.

March 30.

The King of Sweden has reſigned the government into the hands of Bernadotte, on account of his bad health.

On Friday evening, two veſſels arrived from the French coaſt, one of them brought over a merchant, who is ſaid to be the bearer of diſpatches from the French to the Britiſh government. The other has brought an American meſſenger, with diſpatches for Mr. Pinkney.

There has not been a ſingle inſtance in France of the government having ſuffered an American cargo to be delivered into the hands of the conſigned, except thoſe laden with fiſh. All the other veſſels and cargoes from America have either been confiſcated, or are under ſequeſtration.

March 31.—The Jews who happen to be drawn for the French army are not permitted to ſerve by ſubſtitute.

April 1.—An Anholt mail arrived this morning, by which we have received continental intelligence of an intereſting complexion. The report of the attempt to aſſaſſinate Bernadotte, the Crown Prince of Sweden, is confirmed in an article from Stockholm, and ſeveral perſons of high rank have been taken up on ſuſpicion. In the mean time the miſerable old King of Sweden himſelf is ſtated to be dangerouſly ill, and couriers are daily paſſing between Paris and Stockholm carrying as it is ſaid, deſpatches of the moſt important nature. Upon the whole it would ſeem that ſome explosion is on the eve of burſting forth in the North of Europe, which the recent departure of Count Gotorp from this country will no doubt tend to accelerate.

It is underſtood that Mr. Pinkney propoſes to quit England in the Eſſex, on or about the 10th inſtant. It is probable however that he will not take his departure until he has acquired the knowledge of the ultimate proceedings of Congreſs, prior to its diſſolution on the 4th of March.

April 1. We are ſorry to ſtate the prevalence of a confident rumor in the high circles, that her Majeſty the Queen is very ſeriouſly indiſpoſed. Her Majeſty's complaint is ſaid to be of a nature not to afford the conſolation of a hope of a ſpeedy recovery; being of the deſcription of thoſe which are generally the conſequences of old age, and which terminates only with life. It is ſaid to be an attack of the palſy. Her Majeſty, it is added, has been ſome time affected by it; but from a commendable care to avoid further agitating the public mind, without an abſolute neceſſity in the diſtreſſing circumſtances ariſing from the King's illneſs, and his dependence on her Majeſty's care, the painful fact was concealed till the complaint had made ſuch progreſs, as we underſtand to be viſible to all thoſe who have acceſs to her Majeſty's preſence.

A Heligoland mail, which arrived this morning, has given an increaſed importance to the intelligence received yeſterday reſpecting the north of Europe, where affairs are evidently haſtening to a criſis. An evident miſunderſtanding exiſts between Denmark and France, and hints are thrown out that Ruſſia and the former power are upon a perfect amicable footing—in the meantime, the Daniſh ſeamen, who were on their march to man the navy of France, have been halted on their journey, and now await the orders of their own ſovereign. Serious diſturbances are daily breaking out at Hamburg, where the cry of "Long live the King of England," from the mouths of the oppreſſed and ſtarved inhabitants, continually rings in the ears of the ſatellites of deſpotiſm.

Klingſpor, Armfeldt, and Baron, the braveſt and moſt popular of the Swediſh Generals, are implicated in the late conſpiracy to aſſaſſinate Bernadotte.

Some demur has taken place in Sweden alſo, reſpecting the compliance with the demands of Napoleon; nor is it likely that the Swediſh contingency of ſailors to man his fleets will be permitted to leave their native kingdom.

Extract from the reply of the Emperor of France to the addreſs of the deputation from the cities of Hamburgh, Lubec, and Bremen, copied from a Paris paper of March 20.

"The decrees of Berlin and Milan are the fundamental laws of my Empire: they ceaſe only to have effect as to thoſe nations which defend their ſovereignty, and maintain the religion of their flag. England is in a ſtate of blockade as to thoſe nations which ſubmit to the orders of 1806, becauſe the flags thus ſubmitting to the Engliſh laws, are denationalized——they are Engliſh. Thoſe nations on the contrary, which feel their own dignity, and find in their courage and power, ſufficient reſources to diſregard the blockade by neutrication, commonly called a paper blockade, and to approach all the ports of my Empire, except thoſe under real blockade, according to the known uſage and the ſtipulations of the treaty of Utrecht, may hold communication with England. As to them, England is not blockaded.

The decrees of Berlin and Milan, flowing from the nature of things, ſhall continue to form the public code of my empire, as long as England maintains her Orders in Council, of 1806 and 1807, and violates the ſtipulations of the treaty of Utrecht upon this ſubject."

Philadelphia, May 3.

We underſtand that Capt. Graſſin, of the French privateer the Diligent, now in our port, has been arreſted, and held to bail at the ſuit of ſome of our citizens who have been plundered by him.

The town of Montego Bay, in the Iſland of Jamaica, is ſaid to have been deſtroyed by fire, on the 21ſt of April laſt.

From a London paper.

There have been iſſued by the bank between the 6th of February, 1810, and the 19th of February, 1811, ſtamped dollars to the amount of 1,970,274.

The bank had advanced to government, on the 5th January laſt, on malt duty, ſupply and loan, in all 8,670,739l.

The whole amount of ſilver and gold imported and depoſited in the bullion office of the bank, between the 30th March, 1810, and the 19th February, 1811, is

Silver	£396,000
Gold	174,500
Total,	£1,070,500

The army eſtimates for the preſent year ſtate the number of men to be provided for (excluſively of the 30,650 troops in India at 340,821, the expence of which is £15,316,325.

The great ſtone Theatre at the Ruſſian capitol, more capacious than the late Drury-lane Theatre, has been lately burnt to the ground. Mr. Raikes, well known in the commercial world, died in that city in his 82d year.

At a meeting of upwards of 2000 Catholics in Dublin, on the 8th of March, Sir E. Pellew in the chair, it was agreed to preſent an addreſs to the Prince Regent, wherein they offer their hearts and hands in defence of the throne. Major Bryan then moved, that a petition ſhould be forwarded to the Prince, for the removal of the Duke of Richmond and Mr. W. Pole; but after ſome diſcuſſion, an amendment was propoſed by Mr. Plunket, praying that his Highneſs would order an immediate enquiry, and that if no grounds appeared to exiſt for the late meaſure, that he would diſmiſs both the Duke and Mr. Pole. This motion was carried and a petition founded thereon ordered to be preſented.

Dreadful Conflagration.

Letters from India ſtate, that the foreſt of Imel-bdar, in the kingdom of Ava, was, through the negligence of ſome wood cutters, who had kindled a fire at the roots of ſeveral lofty trees, in a ſtate of conflagration in the early part of June. The foreſt was 65 miles in length, and 58 miles in breadth; and ſuch was the power of the flames, aided by the high wind, that maſſes of burning wood weighing half a ton, were carried through the air to a diſtance of 20 miles. Fifty villages in the vicinity of the foreſt were deſtroyed. Many of the unfortunate and idolatrous natives, believing the calamity to be a direct viſitation of ſome vengeful deity, and not chooſing to ſurvive the loſs of their property, precipitated themſelves into the flames. At the date of theſe letters, the conflagration had continued with unabating fierceneſs for five weeks; and from the vaſt area in which the body of fire lay, together with the contiguity of other foreſts, the deſtruction of half the kingdom appeared inevitable.

Extraordinary Longevity.

There is now living in Preſton, (Conn.) a gentleman named Hane Herrick, who is in the 93d year of his age, and who can read the ſmalleſt print without ſpectacles.—He has now living two ſiſters, one of which is 91, and the other 87; and three brothers, who are upwards of 80 years of age each. He has had 11 children, 90 grandchildren, and 100 great grand children. He is now enjoying a remarkable degree of health, and able to walk three miles to meeting on Sunday, which he generally attends.

NEW YORK, May 13.

Arrived, juſt as our paper was prepared for preſs, the ſhip Orbit, captain Vole, in 23 days from Liverpool. By this arrival, we are furniſhed with high ly important news from Portugal.—Marſhal Ney with 8000 troops have ſurrendered to Marſhal Bereſford.—We have received London dates to the 16th, and Liverpool to the 18th of April.

LONDON, March 30.

The great and important victory obtained by General Graham over the French, has not been followed up by thoſe reſults, which the public mind ſo fondly anticipated, from various communications received from Cadiz, ſubſequent to the action. A veſſel bound from Cadiz to Guernſey, has landed a paſſenger, who has reached London from Cadiz. He ſays that he left Cadiz on the 16th inſt. that after the return of General Graham to the Iſle of Leon, the people of that place were told that Gen. Blake at the head of a powerful army would immediately be ſent to finiſh the work which had been ſo nobly begun by Gen. Graham. But the fact is, that Gen. Blake did not undertake any new expedition againſt the enemy. On the contrary, the enemy had concentrated their forces, and returned to their works, and on the 13th ſucceeded in throwing into Cadiz between 30 and 40 ſhells; but without producing any injury.—The inhabitants were occupied in covering the roofs of the houſes with ſuch materials as were beſt calculated to reſiſt the ſhells. It is underſtood that General Graham declined to take the field unleſs he was appointed by the Spaniſh government Commander in Chief. The fate of De La Pena had not been decided. A Court Martial was immediately to be aſſembled for pronouncing on his conduct, which was demanded by the Hon. H. Wellesley, our Ambaſſador at Cadiz.

Private letters from Hamburg communicate, that it has been decreed, that any perſon detected correſponding with England, ſhall be puniſhed with death.

The Prince Regent has ordered an allowance to be made to military meſſes of all regiments, in proportion to their ſtrength, equivalent to the draw back of the duty on wine to the navy on board their ſhips. A regiment of ten companies will have an allowance of 250l. per annum; and ſo in proportion for regiments under that number.

Major Gough, of the 87th, the hon. Major Acheſon, of the 67th, and Major Duncan, of the Royal Artillery, who were ſo ſtrongly recommended for promotion by Gen. Graham, have been raiſed to the rank of Lieutenant Colonels.

The four officers of the Guards who fell in the action of Baroſa, were the only ſons of their reſpective families.

Mr. Perceival has it in contemplation to impoſe an additional duty on all wines.

The much wiſhed for diſpatches from Lord Wellington have not yet arrived. The following is contained in private correſpondence:—

Plymouth Dock, March 30.

"The official accounts from Portugal have not yet arrived; but a tranſport has come in which left the Tagus on the 16th inſt. At that time reports were in circulation, that the enemy had been defeated in two engagements, but nothing decidively ſatisfactory was known, even there, and all was buſtle and confuſion."

His Royal Highneſs the Prince Regent has, we underſtand, written a letter with his own hand to Gen. Graham, expreſſing to him in the moſt flattering terms the lively ſenſe of his gallantry with which his heart was filled: and alſo expreſſing his regret that the reſtrictions which the two houſes had put upon the Regency prevented him at a time from conferring on the General and his officers ſuch marks of his approbation as might prove his gratitude, and in which the Prince ſays he is ſure that he would alſo ſpeak the gratitude of the nation at large. It ſhould be the will of Divine Providence to re-eſtabliſh his Majeſty's health, the Prince Regent ſays that he is ſure that it would be the firſt act of his Majeſty to diſtinguiſh the eminent and glorious ſervice of the General and his gallant army by ſome ſignal mark of his favour; and if it ſhall devolve on him to diſcharge this pleaſing duty, in the name and on the behalf of his Majeſty, it will be to him the happieſt part of the functions he has to fulfil.

General Graham is a native of Perthſhire. The earlieſt part of his life was ſpent as a private gentleman. A ſevere calamity, the loſs of a beloved wife, as we underſtand tore him from his family eſtate, and ſent him a wanderer over the Continent about the age of 30. By a change of ſcene he hoped to ſoften if not to ſubdue, the grief that overwhelmed him. He wandered from place to place, and as may well be conceived, choſe thoſe tracts that were leſs viſited by travellers journeying in full health and ſpirits to find new ſources of amuſement and diſſipation. It was in theſe ſolitary excurſions that he became acquainted with the country on the Banks of the Rhone, and particularly with the country near Toulon; a knowledge of eminent ſervice to our army then at Toulon. At that period he was in that city, not intending to embrace the military profeſſion, but anxious to render his local knowledge uſeful to his countrymen. He profeſſed his ſervices; when it was found that nature had endowed him with all the qualities neceſſary to conſtitute a great captain. To this merit Lord Mulgrave, then Brigadier General, paid the following tribute:—

"Lord Mulgrave begs leave, on this occaſion, to expreſs his grateful ſenſe of the friendly and important aſſiſtance he has received in many difficult moments from Mr. Graham, and to add his tribute of praiſe to the general voice of all the Britiſh and Piedmonteſe officers of his column, who ſaw, with ſo much pleaſure and applauſe, the gallant example which Mr. Graham ſet to the whole column, in the foremoſt point of every attack."

April 8.—The following extract of a letter from Vienna—"Our Empe ror's brother, the Archduke Francis, who embarked at Salonica for England, with about three millions of money beſides jewels, has probably ere this arrived with you. His abſconding cauſes ſome buſtle in our cabinet, and nothing tranſpires about the deſtination. It is difficult to gueſs its operation on our gouty ſtate body, and the haughty minds of our neighbours. It is rumoured that a revolution has taken place in Sweden, and that Bernadotte and his ſupporters have been entirely overthrown. As ſoon as the reſignation of the ſovereign power to Bernadotte was known, the inhabitants of Stockholm are ſaid to have riſen, & after making ſure of the perſon of Bernadotte, declared in favour of their lawful ſovereign. If this be true, his ſailing for the Baltic will be extreme ly apropos; but government have received no confirmation of the rumor.

The thanks of both houſes of Parliament were laſt night voted to the gallant Col. Graham and the officers and ſoldiers under his command, for one of the moſt brilliant ſervices ever performed even by a Britiſh force.

The Turkiſh envoy to our court died yeſterday morning, at his reſidence in Upper Berkely-ſtreet.

Government have received the highly gratifying intelligence of the capture and deſtruction of the whole of the rear guard of the French army under the command of Marſhal Ney, who is himſelf among the priſoners. The action which terminated in this glorious achievment took place on the 31ſt ult. and was fought by the Britiſh and Portugueſe troops under the command of Marſhal Bereſford. The French rear guard, under Ney, originally conſiſted of 15,000 men, but, by previous captures and caſualties, had been reduced to 8000, being the number taken on the glorious 31ſt of March.

Marſhal Bereſford had co operated in ſo maſterly a manner with Lord Wellington's army, that Ney found it impoſſible any longer to continue his retreat, and was therefore cut off from the main body.

The above intelligence was brought to Guernſey by a merchant veſſel, and tranſmitted from thence to government by Admiral the Prince de Bouillon, the Britiſh naval commander on the Guernſey ſtation. No doubts whatever, as to the correctneſs of the news, is entertained in the government departments. The vicinity of Oporto to the ſcene of action is an additional corroboration of the ſtatement.

LIVERPOOL, April 17.

The Indefity, James Melburn, arrived here laſt night in 13 days from Oporto. The captain informs us, that the report upon Change was, that inceſſant ſkirmiſhes had taken place between the advance of Lord Wellington's and rear guard of the French army, and that theſe attacks had proved the moſt deſtructive to the enemy; 8000 French priſoners had then been marched into Coimbra. Maſſena at the head of 2000 cavalry, was all that remained of the French army. A large body of the Guerilla had been hovering on the frontiers for ſome time paſt, and the opinion was, that the retreat of the French would be entirely cut off. The Portugueſe had deſtroyed all the proviſions in the line of the retreat of the French, which was the reaſon aſſigned for the cruelty exerciſed by the French towards the inhabitants.

SATURDAY, APRIL 13, 1811.

DOWNING STREET, APRIL 13.

A Diſpatch, of which the following is an extract, was yeſterday evening received from Lieut. General Lord Viſcount Wellington, K. B. by the Earl of Liverpool, dated Goveia, March 27, 1811.

When I found that the enemy had retired with ſuch celerity from Matia, I continued the purſuit of them with the cavalry, and the light diviſion under Major General Sir Wm. Erſkine only ſupporting theſe troops with the 6th and 3ſt diviſions of infantry, and by the militia on the right of the Mondego; and I was induced to halt the remainder of the army till the ſupplies, which had been ſent round from the Tagus to the Mondego ſhould arrive. The halt was the more deſirable as nothing could be found in the country, and every day's march increaſing the diſtance from the magazines on the Tagus, rendered the ſupply of the troops more difficult and precarious; and the further advance of the main body for a few days did not appear to be neceſſary.

The cavalry and light troops continued to annoy the enemy's rear and take priſoners; and the Militia under Colonel Wilſon had an affair with a detachment of the enemy, on the 22d not far from Celerico, in which they killed ſeven and wounded ſeveral, and took fifty priſoners. The Militia under Gen. Silveira alſo took ſome priſoners on the 25th.

The enemy retired his left, the 2d corps, by Goveia through the mountains upon Guarda, and the remainder of the army by the high road up on Celerico. They have ſince moved more troops upon Guarda, which poſition they ſtill hold in ſtrength. Our advanced guard is in front of Celerico, towards Guarda, and at Alvanea, and third diviſion in the mountains, and occupying Porco Miſerelli and Prados.

The allied troops will be collected in the neighborhood of Celerico to morrow.

Gen. Ballefteros ſurpriſed General Remond, on the 10th, at Palma, and diſperſed his detachment, and took from him five hundred priſoners.

Gen. Ballefteros has ſince retired to Valverde, and I hear that Gen Zayas had been detached from Cadiz with ſix thouſand men, including four hundred cavalry to be embarked at Huelva to join Gen. Ballefteros.

P. S. Since writing the above I have received the report of a gallant action of one of our patroles yeſterday evening, between Alveron and Guarda, under the command of Lieut. Foſter of the Royals, who attacked a detachment of the enemy's cavalry between Alveron and Guarda, and killed and wounded ſeveral of them, and took the officer and thirty-ſeven men priſoners.

Foreign Office, April 12, 1811.

Deſpatches have this day been received at this Office from Charles Stuart Eaquire, his Majeſty's Miniſter at Liſbon, dated the 30th ult. ſtating that Sir William Bereſford, having united the whole of his force in Portalegre on the 23d of March, advanced on the 24th, and attacked the enemy with his cavalry on the 25th. They were compelled to abandon Campo Major, with the loſs of 600 men killed and wounded. On the 26th General Bereſford's head quarters were at Elvas.

The enemy had withdrawn their whole force, excepting a weak picquet to the other ſide of the Guadiana.

The corps under Marſhal Soult has halted in the neighborhood of Llerena.

Gen. Ballefteros had returned to Gibraltar, on the 29th, where his force had been increaſed by the arrival of ſix thouſand men under Gen. Zayas.

Marſhall Beſſieres arrived at Zamora on the 5th of March, with ſeven thouſand men.

It is ſaid that Bonaparte had recalled the French Guards from Spain, and they are forthwith to return to France.

Letters from Conſtantinople, received by the Malta Mail, ſtate, that the Ruſſian Negociator, Italinski, arrived at Buchareſt on the 14th of December. It was thought that the differences between the two powers might ſoon be adjuſted.

The Magnificent, 74, and ſeveral other ſhips of war, have taken and deſtroyed 27 ſail of veſſels, from 100 to 120 tons each, laden with warlike ſtores from Ancona, bound to Coſtu; three of them arrived at Malta the 11th of February.

In the action of Barroſa, the whole of Victor's ſtaff were either killed or wounded. The French Eagle which has been taken, was ſurrounded by ſix French officers who were all killed. The Eagle was then borne off in triumph by the gallant 87th. General Graham charged twice at the head of that regiment, and had two horſes killed under him.

It is ſaid Gen. Graham is to be rewarded by an elevation to the Peerage for his ſplendid victory at Barroſa.

The third battallion of the firſt regiment are to depart immediately for Cadiz.

The Ex-King of Sweden arrived at Heligoland on the 2nd, and was received with the moſt diſtinguiſhing Honours. He is expected to ſtay there two months.

From South America.—Captain Peaſe, of the brig Mentor, who arrived this morning in 21 days from Guiana, informs that part of South America was in a convulſed ſtate and that an inſurgent army was encamped on the oppoſite bank of the Oronoke, awaiting aid from Caraccas, in order to attack the city. The government party were fortifying the city, and making every preparation to repel the Inſurgents. After Capt. P. had anchored down the river, he heard that the army had croſſed the river, and commenced the attack.

On the 8th of April the Prince Regent ſent a requeſt to both Houſes of Parliament, that relief ſhould be afforded to the diſtreſſed people of Portugal. One hundred thouſand pounds was granted by the unanimous vote of both Houſes.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Twenty fifth day of inſtant May, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of April laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty-fifth day of inſtant May, at which time at our town of York, you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Second day of JULY next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this Twenty-fifth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offence ſubjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and for the ſecond offence of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for ſeven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders thereto may be brought to puniſhment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut without Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons therein offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be thereunto affixed. Witneſs our Truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thouſand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,

LONDON, April 13.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

War department, April, 12
Five o'clock, P. M.

Dispatches have arrived from Lord Wellington, dated Gouvea, 27th March 1811.

"The enemy retreating with great celerity from Mosta, Lord Wellington continued the pursuit with the Cavalry and the Light Division only; —hey were supported by the 3d and 6th Divifions, and on the right of the Moudego by the Militia; the reſt of the army was halted, till proviſions could be brought up.

"The pursuing corps harraſſed the enemy's reat, continuing to take priſoners, &c. The enemy's left retreated by Gouvea, through mountains, upon Guarda, the remainder upon Celorico. More troops have since been moved to Guarda, which they occupy in ſtrength. The Britiſh advanced guard is at Alverca, and in front of Celorico, Miserella, and Prados. The Allied army was to be collected at Celorico on the 28th.

"Ballaſteros ſurpriſed Gen Romon's corps at Palma on the 10th, and diſperſed it, taking 500 priſoners. He had since retired to Nalverde, expecting to be joined by Gen. Ziyes from Cadiz with 6000 men, of whom 400 were cavalry.

"From the North of Spain it is reported that the Imperial Guards has been ordered to France."

"A Poſtſcript relates a gallant action fought by a detachment of cavalry under Lieutenant Persse of the 10th Light Dragoons, and Lieut. Foſter of the Royals, with a body of French Dragoons, of whom ſeveral were killed, and an officer and 37 taken.

"It adds, 'the enemy have withdrawn from Pinhel across the Coa."

Mr. Stewart's Dispatches of the 30th announce that

"Marſhal Beresford, having united the whole of his force in Portalegre on the 23d March, advanced with his cavalry and attacked the enemy on the 25th, obliged him to retire with the loſs of 600 killed and wounded. The enemy abandoned Campo Major, and retreated across the Guadiana.

"On the 26th, Marſhal Beresford's head quarters were at Alvas. Soult's corps has halted at Llerena.

"Ballaſteros has been reinforced at Gibralleon by the arrival of General Zayes, with 6,000 men.

Private letters ſtate that Ballaſteros has been ſo much ſtrengthened, that hopes are entertained of his being able to raiſe the ſiege of Cadiz;—they add, that Marſhal Beresford has taken 20 pieces of cannon.

The following communication was made yeſterday evening by the Marquis Wellesley to the Lord Mayor:—

"Foreign Office, April 12.

"My Lord—I have the honor to enclose an Extract of the intelligence contained in the Dispatch received this day from Charles Stewart, Eſq. his Majeſty's Miniſter at Lisbon, under date the 30th March.

"I have the honor to be,
"My Lord,
"Your Lordship's moſt ob't.
"And humble ſervant,
"WELLESLEY."

To the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, &c.

(Bulletin enclosed.)

"Foreign Office, April 12.

"Diſpatches have been received by the Marquis Wellesley from Mr. Stewart, his Majeſty's Miniſter at Lisbon, dated 30th March, ſtating that Sir Wm. Beresford having united the whole of his force at Portalegre, on the 23d March, had advanced on the 24th and attacked the enemy with his cavalry on the 25th. The enemy were compelled to abandon Campo Major, with the loſs of 600 killed and wounded, and the whole of their force on this side of the Guadiana were purſued to Badajos. On the 26th the head quarters of Marſhal Beresford were at Alvas, and a ſmall Spaniſh corps moved towards Albuquerque. The enemy had withdrawn their whole force, except a weak picquet, to the other ſide of the Guadiana. The corps under Marquis Soult had halted in the neighbourhood of the Llerina.

"General Ballaſteros returned to Gibbraleon, a town near Ayamente, on the 29th of March, where his force has been increaſed by the amount of 6,000 men under General Zayas from Cadiz. Marſhall Beſſieres arrived at Zamor on the 5th March, with 7,000 men. The corps of Gen. Silvieracon ſequently moved on to Mon Corvo on the 14th."

Cowes, April 12.

Arrived the American frigate Eſſex from Cherbourgh.

FROM THE PORTUGUESE PAPER

"LISBON. March 31.

Letters received laſt night from our army, ſtate, that the head quarters were about four leagues on this ſide Celerico. It is alſo reported, that the enemy, on the Allentejo ſide, have made a ſimilar ſtand at Badajoz, with about 12,000 men.—Our army in that quarter is 22,000. The cruelty, wanton havoc, and deſtruction committed by the army of Maſſena in its retreat, exceeds all former examples,—they not only burned and deſtroyed all houſes and towns near their route, but alſo murdered the inhabitants, with circumſtances of ſuch atrocious barbarity, as would have diſgraced Vandals, their avidity for plunder was ſuch, that, in one place, the Royal Dragoons ſurpriſed a party of them digging the dead out of their graves, in a Church, in ſearch of plunder.

"General Slade, who commands our cavalry, has greatly diſtinguiſhed himſelf. He did not, for three days during the purſuit, quit his horſe, and was almoſt always cloſe upon the enemy. The Royals, and 16th Light Dragoons, have acquired great reputation and honor by their gallant behaviour on all occaſions.

"The loſs of the enemy muſt have been immenſe, as the roads were literally ſtrewed with dead, and parties of from 50 to 100 each, are daily brot in as priſoners. We ſtill hope to hear of a much greater deſtruction of the enemy."

"Oporto, March 26.

On the 20th inſtant, near Folhacco, we made one thouſand priſoners; a great deal of baggage fell into our hands. On the 21ſt, we alſo took a conſiderable number. The enemy has only 25 or 30 cavalry left. It is ſaid, that in the whole, upwards of 6000 priſoners have been taken. A ſoldier of the 6th Cacadores, ſays, they had a ſevere skirmiſh at the Prera de Falhir, in which an Engliſh Major was killed."

"Liſbon, March 26.

"Letters from Arganel, where the head-quarters of Lord Wellington then were, are the moſt ſatisfactory. On the 18th he made 100 priſoners in Pombeiro, and on the 19th, 1,000 without loſing a ſingle man. He likewiſe took from them more than 2,000 head of cattle; on other roads were found more than 1000 muſkets, great ſpoils, and ornaments of Churches, &c. The enemy has loſt the greater part of his artillery, of ſix and nine pounders. They murder all the peaſants they meet, and have burned the greater part of the houſes. Although we purſue them very cloſely, a pitched battle would not have cauſed them ſo much loſs.—(Liſbon Gazette, 25th March.)

Intereſting Particulars.

We have been favoured with the following extract of a letter from an officer in the diviſion commanded by Marſhal Sir Wm. Beresford, dated Alvas, March 27. 1811:—"Since the 5th inſt. we have been conſtantly on the move, long and harraſſing marches, backwards and forward, according to circumſtances. On the 24th we came within ſight of the enemy and Campo Major, which place they had to ken a few days before; their information was bad, or they did not think we would move on ſo rapidly as we had done. The moment they firſt ſaw us was the moment of flight; they had not time to flie over the draw-bridge, but made a breach in the baſtion near Badajos, pulled down the counterſcarp and moved off in columns. I was in front with the 13th light dragoons and two pieces of artillery, at the time their rear guard was getting out of the ditch; the artillery opened upon it, but did no harm, the 13th and two regiments of Portugueſe cavalry then charged. The road from Campo Major to Badajos, runs acroſs the great plain of Badajos, and has not even a thiſtle or briar to intercept the proſpect. The French manoeuvred moſt beautifully all the way, and ſuſtained three charges of our cavalry without breaking. The 13th behaved moſt nobly. I ſaw ſo many inſtances of individual bravery, as raiſed my opinion of mankind many degrees. The French are fine and brave ſoldiers, but the ſuperiority of our Engliſh horſes, and more particularly the ſuperiority of ſwordmanſhip our fellows ſhowed, decided every conteſt in our favour; it was abſolutely like a game at priſon bars, which you muſt have ſeen at ſchool, except the three charges. The whole way acroſs the plain was a ſucceſſion of individual conteſt, here and there as the cavalry all diſperſed in ſkirmiſhing parties to cover their rear, &c. it was certainly moſt beautiful.—The infantry followed in columns, one led by the Marſhal Beresford, and the other by General Hamilton, but were not at all engaged only in their movement on the plain. The French columns retiring rapidly before them, the cavalry ſkirmiſhing between, the fire from the outworks of Bajadoz to cover the paſſage of the bridge, with the fineneſs of the day, formed altogether a whole that could not be excelled. We had 19,000 infantry, 2000 cavalry, and two brigades of artillery; we have loſt, that is, the 13th and 1ſt Portugueſe cavalry, but chiefly the 13th, 23 killed, 65 wounded, 20 horſes killed, 35 wounded, 18 miſſing; one Corner killed, two Lieutenants wounded (one died next morning.)—The French force, I ſuppoſe, did not exceed 5000, but they had a ſuperiority in cavalry. In Bajadoz and the neighbourhood they have 22,000 with whom we ſhall have a battle in a few days.

Liverpool, April 17.

It was well ſaid by Mr. Percival, when on Wedneſday laſt he moved a grant of 100,000l. to the ſuffering peaſantry of Portugal, that "it had been the good fortune of the Prince Regent, during the ſhort time he had held the government of the country, to ſee the character of the Britiſh nation diſplayed in a greater variety of brilliant and glorious exploits than had perhaps, ever been achieved, in an equal ſpace of time, during any period of our hiſtory." The capture of the Iſles of France and Banda, the battle of Barroſo, the forced retreat of Maſſena, and the defence of Anholt, preſent a proud liſt of ſucceſſes, diſplaying in different portions of the globe the power of the Britiſh empire, and exhibiting us as alike formidable by land as by ſea, on the continent, where we have been ſo often warned from venturing, & on the iſlands of the ocean. To theſe recollections every Britoncurns back with exultation. They diſpiate the gloom which has ſo long hung over the deſtinies of Europe, and if followed with courage and wiſdom, inſtead of proving only a brilliant and tranſient meteor flitting through the darkneſs of the horizon, like the ruddy ſtreaks on the eaſt, they will harbinger a day of comfort and deliverance.

It greatly adds to the value of theſe exploits, and to the pleaſure of reviewing them, that with the exception of the battle of Barroſſa, they have been achieved with a loſs aſtonithingly trifling. Our laurels are ſcarcely tinged with blood. The boaſted ſtrength of the Iſle of France yielded to the very preparations for attack. Banda fell by a bold and almoſt bloodleſs coup de main. Fewer than 400 men defended Anholt againſt 4000 Danes, and captured more than their own number in priſoners, with the loſs of but two men killed and thirty wounded. And Maſſena, after waſting his army by ſickneſs and want, has been forced to a retreat as deſtructive as a general battle, by an army which never moved out of its poſition. The effective ſtrength of the Britiſh force has been thus preſerved. It has inflicted loſſes without feeling them, and remains adequate to purſue the career of victory which has been ſo gloriouſly opened.

The new French Miniſter to the Court of Ruſſia, Lauriſton, has left Paris. He replaces Caulincourt. The expectation that Ruſſia is effecting a change in her politics is ſtill ſupported by letters from the North. The Emperor is ſaid to have come to a determination to declare his neutrality, and his purpoſe of trading even with England. The anxiety diſcovered on his part to come to terms with Turkey corroborates this. A formal negociation has commenced. The Ruſſian negociator arrived at Buchareſt on the 14th of December. The great difficulty in the way of peace appears to be that Alexander demands ceſſions of territory from the Porte, which the Sultan as obſtinately refuſes, and therefore continues his preparations for the renewal of the war. An uneaſy feeling appears to exiſt in Sweden and in other parts of the Baltic coaſt. The defence of Anholt by a handful of Britiſh againſt 4000 Danes, cannot fail to have a good effect upon public opinion, and the preſence of ſo large a Britiſh fleet as that now in preparation, will encourage, eſpecially in Sweden, the hoſtility of the patriots to their preſent oppreſſors.

Laſt Sunday night, ſome German papers, to the 28th ult. accompanied by letters from the Baltic, arrived in London. The latter mention, that the Swediſh Government had requiſitioned all Pruſſian veſſels in the ports of that kingdom within the Baltic, in retaliation for a ſimilar meaſure adopted by the King of Pruſſia.

ADMIRALTY OFFICE, April 9.

Tranſmitted by Vice Admiral Sir James Saumarez.

Fort Yorke, Iſland of Anholt, 27th of March, 1811.

SIR,

I reported to you in my letter of the 10th ult. my having received information of an intended attack on this iſland by the Danes.—On the 13th inſt. I received corroboration of this intelligence, but as every exertion had been made to complete the works as well as our materials would allow, and as piquets were nightly ſtationed from one extremity of the iſland to the other, in order to prevent ſurpriſe, I waited with confidence the meditated attack. Yeſterday his Majeſty's ſhip Tartar arrived on the north ſide of the iſland. The enemy's flotilla and army, conſiſting in all of nearly 4000 men, have this day, after a cloſe combat of four hours and a half, received a moſt complete and deciſive defeat, and are fled back to their ports, with the loſs of three pieces of cannon, and upwards of five hundred priſoners; a number greater by one hundred and fifty men than the garriſon I command.

I am happy to ſay our loſs has not been ſo conſiderable as might have been expected, from ſo deſperate an attack, we have only 2 killed and 30 wounded. The enemy have ſuffered ſeverely; we have buried between 30 and 40 of their dead, and have received in the hoſpital 23 of their wounded, moſt of them have undergone amputations; three ſince dead of their wounds, beſides a great number which they carried off the field to their boats. Major Meiſſeur, their Commandant, fell in the field; Captain Borgon, the next in command, is wounded in the arm; Capt. Penta, Adjutant General to the Commander of the Forces in Jutland, loſt both his legs, ſince dead.

I have the honour to be, &c.

Temporary Reſignation of the King.

A moſt momentous, though not unexpected event has occurred in Sweden: Charles XIII. has reſigned the Government into the hands of Bernadotte. This meaſure, tho' profeſſing to be but temporary, and the conſequence of indiſpoſition, which is hoped to be tranſitory, will, no doubt, be ſoon made permanent.—The following is an abſtract of the Royal Proclamation, ſtating this arrangement in effect. It is remarkable, that it contains ſome reſtrictions ſimilar to thoſe of our Regency Act:

We, Charles, by the Grace of God, King of Sweden, &c. &c.

Make known, whereas, owing to an illneſs that has befallen us, and from which, by the aſſiſtance of the Almighty, we hope ſoon to be reſtored, we have deemed it neceſſary, in order to promote this object, for the preſent, to withdraw ourſelves from the care and trouble, which are ſo cloſely united with the management of public affairs; and in order, during our illneſs not to retard the progreſs of their affairs, we have thought fit to order what is to be obſerved reſpecting the Government. And we do, therefore, hereby appoint and nominate our beloved Son, His Royal Highneſs, Carl Johan, Crown Prince of Sweden, and Generaliſſimo of our military forces, by land and ſea, during our illneſs, & until we ſhall be reſtored to health, to manage the Government in our name and with all the rights we poſſeſs, and alone to ſign and iſſue all orders, &c. with the following reſtrictions above the ſignature:—During the illneſs of my moſt Gracious King and Lord, and agreeable to his appointment; however his Royal Highneſs the Crown Prince muſt not, during the adminiſtration of our royal power and dignity create any Noblemen or Knights, and the vacant offices of the ſtates can only, until further notice, be managed by thoſe whom his Royal Highneſs ſhall appoint to that effect.

Lateſt from Carthagena.—By the arrival of the ſchooner Fell's Point, captain Harriſon, in 29 days from Cartagena, we learn that a complete revolution had taken place there on the 4th of February laſt, by which the laſt veſtige of the old government was deſtroyed. The European officers who had been the moſt influential in their ſtations, were all ſeized at the ſame time, and ſent to the different priſons, in order to prevent ſurpriſe, I waited with confidence the meditated attack. Make known, whereas, owing to an illneſs that has befallen us, and from which, by the aſſiſtance of the Almighty, we hope ſoon to be reſtored, we have deemed it neceſſary, in order to promote this object, for the preſent, to withdraw ourſelves from the care and trouble, which are ſo cloſely united with the management of public affairs; and in order, during our illneſs not to retard the progreſs of their affairs, we have thought fit to order what is to be obſerved reſpecting the Government. And we do, therefore, hereby appoint and nominate our beloved Son, His Royal Highneſs, Carl Johan, Crown Prince of Sweden, and Generaliſſimo of our military forces, by land and ſea, during our illneſs, & until we ſhall be reſtored to health, to manage the Government in our name and with all the rights we poſſeſs, and alone to ſign and iſſue all orders, &c. with the following reſtrictions above the ſignature:—During the illneſs of my moſt Gracious King and Lord, and agreeable to his appointment; however his Royal Highneſs the Crown Prince muſt not, during the adminiſtration of our royal power and dignity create any Noblemen or Knights, and the vacant offices of the ſtates can only, until further notice, be managed by thoſe whom his Royal Highneſs ſhall appoint to that effect.

BALTIMORE May 7.

Lateſt from Carthagena.—By the arrival of the ſchooner Fell's Point, captain Harriſon, in 29 days from Cartagena, we learn that a complete revolution had taken place there on the 4th of February laſt, by which the laſt veſtige of the old government was deſtroyed. The European officers who had been the moſt influential in their ſtations, were all ſeized at the ſame time, and ſent to the different priſons, in order to prevent their eſcape, and to the Iſland of Carthagena for the general congreſs at Sta. Fe for the purpoſe of organizing the new government of the diſtrict. Two members of the Junta and a merchant of great influence, had taken paſſage for New York in the ſchooner Argus, which failed in company with the Fell's Point, for New York, who are thought to poſſeſs inſtructions to form ſome kind of intercourſe with the government of the United States. The preſs has been declared free to diſcuſs every ſubject except religion.

NEW YORK, May 14.

St. Domingo.—Capt. Connell of the ſchooner Mercury, in 20 days from St. Domingo, informs that Petion had iſſued a proclamation, ordering every white French inhabitant to leave the iſland without delay. It is ſaid that he had adopted this meaſure in conſequence of diſcovering, from a number of intercepted letters, that the white French people were ſecretly encouraging and aiding Gen. Regaud in an attempt to deſtroy Petion and deſtroy the Government. An engagement between the troops of the two rival Chieftains was daily expected.

St. Jago De La Vega, March 30.

By information from the Indian Quall, we learn of the murder, about the 1ſt of laſt month, of Capt. Cromartie and the crew, (eight or ten in number) of a ſloop which failed from Kingſton for the purpoſe of bringing a cargo of cattle. From what has been represented to us, it appears that an altercation took place at Port Aſtrea, between Capt. Cromartie, his people, and the Indians employed in furniſhing the cattle, who being a very vindictive race, determined to make them atone with their lives for the quarrel, accordingly they ſecreted their bows and arrows in the bundles of graſs brought on board to ſubſiſt the animals, and made a deſperate attack on theſe unfortunate perſons, all of whom were deſtroyed, with the exception of two, who jumped into the ſea, reached the ſhore, and ſought proteƈtion of ſome Indian women; one of them was wounded with arrows in four different places beſides the loſs of his eye, he however managed to eſcape and reached Aruba, from whence he proceeded to this iſland; the other afterwards quitted his proteƈtors to walk to Bova Iſlands, but was intercepted on the road, and killed a ſacrifice to the thirſt of revenge ſo prevalent amongſt theſe ſavages.

Capt. Beare, from the Cape of Good Hope, ſtates that a ſquadron of Frigates had juſt arrived from England for the Iſle of France ſtation—that an expedition of 8000 men, had failed for the reduƈtion of the Dutch poſſeſſions on the Iſle of Java and the neighboring Iſlands. That Gen. Decaen, late Governor of the Iſle of France, was at the Cape, in an Engliſh transport, on his way to France; but was not permitted to land on account of his ill treatment to the Engliſh priſonerers, previous to the capture of the Iſland. That the Engliſh Eaſt-India Company, has made a monopoly of all the coffee on thoſe Iſlands, for two ſeaſons by contraƈting with the planters at 12 dollars and a half per bale—That ſupplies of all kinds were in a great abundance, from various parts of India, and the Cape.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.

Since our laſt arrived brig Expeditation, capt. Ryy, from Smyrna and Malta. Capt. Ryy informs that it was reported and believed at Malta, that a Britiſh ſquadron of 1 ſhip of the line, and 4 or 5 frigates on the 15th March, in the Adriatic Sea, fell in with a like number of French ſhips of war bound from Toulon for Corfu, when an engagement took place, and the French men, it was ſaid made their eſcape, with the loſs of one frigate which was burnt by the Britiſh.

PARIS, March 28.

Gen. Foy arrived at Paris the day before yeſterday, with letters from the Prince of Eſsling. He left the head-quarters in Portugal on the 15th inſt.

The army was in the beſt condition [for a light ſcamper.] There were hardly any ſick. [thanks to the eil of Jaffa!] The ſoldiers were full of ardour [to get off.]

Marſhal the Prince of Eſsling deemed it expedient to make a movement [in retrograde.] He had puſhed his right to the Zezere, [cloſe puſhing] and eſtabliſhed his head-quarters at Pombal [where he continued juſt long enough to reſt himſelf.]

Several corps of troops in the pay of England had been defeated [and were running AFTER the French.] Columns had penetrated Portugal in every direƈtion, diverting the inhabitants, and reducing them to ſubmiſſion [by butchering old men, women and children.

GALLANT ACTION.

QUEBEC, May 9.—Captain Hodgſon, of the brig Fortune, who arrived here yeſterday from London, was attacked on the 13th of April, in about 53 N. lat. & 20 W. long. by a French privateer of 16 guns, and about 120 men, which he moſt gallantly contended with for an hour and 20 minutes, and finally beat off. During this time his colours were twice ſhot away, and then nailed to the maſt. The enemy made three attempts to board, & were each time repulſed; the boarders being killed in the chains or ſhrouds, or precipitated into the ſea, where they were drowned. The Fortune having ſuſtained conſiderable damage in her rigging and ſpars, and as her crew were decreaſing faſt, would probably have been captured, had the not fortunately ſhot away the enemy's foretop-maſt, at which time the Fortune's crew gave three cheers, and the privateer ſheered off. Capt. H. gave her a parting broadſide, which was not returned, and then lay by, and began to repair the damage, and to clear the ſhip for a renewal of the aƈtion, in caſe the enemy ſhould think proper to renew it. But in two hours afterwards the privateer diſappeared to leeward and Capt. H. proceeded on his voyage. He ſpeaks in the higheſt terms of the bravery of his crew, and of the great aſſiſtance he received from his paſſengers during the aƈtion. The loſs unfortunately ſuſtained by the Fortune in this aƈtion is as follows: John Wilſon, John Dickſon, Engliſh ſeamen killed; and Anthony Oliver, a foreigner, alſo killed. Mr. Alexander Greig, of this city, a paſſenger, wounded in the knee; Mr. Saunderſon, alſo a paſſenger, wounded in the arm, and three men ſlightly wounded.

The Fortune mounts 8 guns and 8 ſwivels, and the number of perſons on board, including her officers, 33—ſeamen and 3 boys, amounted to 19.

The privateer loſt in killed and drowned between 20 and 30 in boarding. but the number killed on board of her by ſhot from the Fortune, could not be aſcertained.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Counſellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Twenty fifth day of inſtant May, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the tenth day of April laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty-fifth day of inſtant May, at which time at our town of York you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Second day of JULY next enſuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this fourteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offence ſubjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony puniſhable by Tranſportation for ſeven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders therein may be brought to puniſhment: We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut without Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons therein offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thouſand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fifteeth year of his Majeſty's Reign.

Latest Intelligence.

NEW YORK, May 29.

War against Spain.—An arrival at Salem, on Sunday morning, from Bordeaux, in 56 days, brings intelligence that an army of 300,000 men was to be raised in France, for the purpose of subjugating Spain and Portugal; and that Bonaparte had declared his intention of heading this army in person, having resolved to carry his point against these two countries.

Seat of War.—It is now some days since we have had any direct accounts from Spain and Portugal. By the last accounts it appears that the power of Bonaparte in those kingdoms, was rapidly on the decline; and that unless some extraordinary exertions were made, it would soon entirely cease. Some are of opinion that he will, for the present, abandon the attempt to conquer those regions; this is however doubtful. It is more than probable that he will make one more desperate effort in the course of the present summer, to subdue those nations. —He cannot, confidently with his plan of universal empire, suffer them to be independent. He must destroy them, or they will, in time, destroy him. It is likely, therefore, that the Spaniards and Portuguese have the worst of the war yet to come. But there is one thing in their favor; they are now more able to bear it than they were formerly. Their invaders have taught them the art of warfare; and, if their leaders can resist the intrigues of the creatures of the tyrant, they are in no great danger. They can never be conquered except by treachery. —Should Bonaparte, as has been suggested, march at the head of his best troops into the peninsula, the people will indeed will have much of suffering to undergo; but the invader will have more. He may march his armies into the country, but he will never march them out. Like Miffens, he will be glad to get out of a situation where nothing is to be gained by a warrior but misery and disgrace.

A letter received from Philadelphia, dated on Tuesday, contains the following postscript:—"The Southern mail states the arrival of two frigates in the Chesapeake, the Essex, with Mr. Pinkney, and a British frigate with Mr. Foster on board."

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated 6th April.

"In politics, we have nothing particular here; people begin to murmur at the inactivity of our government—how many occasions have we lost of expelling the French from this neighborhood—The French army under General Maffena, in Portugal, have been under the necessity to retreat—by the last accounts, they were on the frontiers of Spain, followed by Lord Wellington's army. The French have lost, in the retreat, upwards of 11,000 men prisoners—having destroyed the most part of their baggage, artillery, &c.".

Latest from Monte Video.—By the arrival at Baltimore of the ship Sidney, in 63 days from Monte Video, we learn that the Governor of Monte Video marched (it was supposed against Buenos Ayres) the day before the sailed, with 600 men, and was to be joined on his march by 400 more, and had sent to solicit troops from the Portuguese government. Paraguay was considered in a state of revolution. Buenos Ayres, was closely blockaded, and no vessels of any nation permitted to enter. The forces of the Junta at Buenos Ayres were supposed to be about 2000—most of their troops had been on expedition s to the interior—that which had gone against the Portuguese, had been repulsed.

Philadelphia, May 29.

The brig Fanny, Rogers, left Madeira the 11 inst. Coming out boarded a ship from Lisbon, and had the perusal of Lisbon Papers to the 16th of April. They contained an account of the investment of Badajos by Marshal Beresford, who had summoned it to surrender, which had been twice refused by the French.—He was accordingly making preparations to storm it, and meant to attack it by the breach through which the French entered it.

Salem, May 28.

The Schooner Bird, Captain Evans, arrived here on Saturday, in 57 days from Bordeaux, brings intelligence of a large bonfire of English goods in that city a little before he arrived.

Troops were continually marching through Bordeaux for Spain, and while he was there as many as 100,000 pafsed on. Notwithstanding they boafted of great fuccefses in Spain, yet the better informed found the French had loft an immenue number of men there.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 28.

United States Frigate President, off } Sandy Hook, 23d May, 1811. }

SIR,

I regret extremely being under the neceffity of repreſenting to you an event that occurred on the night of the 16th inſtant, between the ſhip under my command and his Britannic Majeſty's ſhip of war the Little Belt, commanded by Captain Bingham; the reſult of which has given me much pain as well on account of the injury ſhe ſuſtained, as that I ſhould have been compelled to the meaſure that produced it, by a veſſel of her inferior force. The circumſtances are as follows:—On the 16th inſtant, at twenty five minutes paſt Meridian, in ſeventeen fathom water, Cape Henry bearing S. W. diſtant fourteen or fifteen leagues, a ſail was diſcovered from our maſt head in the Eaſt, ſtanding towards us under a preſs of ſail. At half paſt one the ſymetry of her upper ſails (which were at this time diſtinguiſhable from our deck) and her making ſignals, ſhewed her to be a man of war. At forty five minutes paſt one, P. M. hoiſted out enſign and pendant; when, finding her ſignals not anſwered, ſhe wore and ſtood to the ſouthward.—Being deſirous of ſpeaking her, and of aſcertaining what ſhe was, I now made ſail in chaſe; and by half paſt three, P. M. found we were coming up with her; as by this time the upper part of her ſtern began to ſhew itſelf above the horizon. The wind now began, and continued to increaſe, ſo as to prevent my being able to approach her materially before ſunſet; his diſcover her actual force, which the poſition ſhe preſerved during the chace was calculated to conceal) or to judge even to what nation ſhe belonged; as ſhe appeared ſtudiouſly to decline ſhewing her colours. At fifteen or twenty minutes paſt 7, P. M. the chace took in her ſtudding ſails, and ſoon after hauled up her courſes, and hauled by the wind on the ſtarboard tack; ſhe at the ſame hoiſted an enſign or flag at her mizen peak; but it was too dark for me to diſcover what nation ſhe repreſented; now for the firſt time her broad ſide was preſented to our view; but night had ſo far progreſſed, that although her appearance indicated ſhe was a frigate, I was unable to determine her actual force.

At fifteen minutes before eight P. M. being about a mile and a half from her, the wind at the time very light, I directed Captain Ludlow to take a poſition to windward of her and on the ſame tack, within ſhort ſpeaking diſtance. This however the Commander of the chace appeared from his manoeuvres to be anxious to prevent, as he wore and hauled by the wind on different tacks four times ſucceſſively between this period and the time of our arriving at the poſition, which I had ordered to be taken. At fifteen or twenty minutes paſt eight, being forward of her weather beam and diſtant from ſeventy to a hundred yards, I hailed "what ſhip is that?" Having aſk'd the firſt queſtion, I of courſe conſidered myſelf entitledby the common rules of politeneſs to the firſt anſwer; after a pauſe of fifteen or twenty ſeconds, I reiterated my firſt enquiry of "what ſhip is that," and before I had time to take the trumpet from my mouth, was anſwered by a ſhot, that cut off one of our maintop-maſt breaſt back ſtays and went into our mainmaſt—at this inſtant, Capt. Caldwell (of marines) who was ſtanding very near to me on the gangway having obſerved "ſir, the has fired at us," cauſed me to pauſe for a moment, juſt as I was in the act of giving an order to fire a ſhot in return; and before I had time to reſume the repetition of the intended order, a ſhot was actually fired from the ſecond diviſion of this ſhip; and was ſcarcely out of the gun before it was entered from our aſſumed enemy by three others in quick ſucceſſion, and ſoon after the reſt of his broadside and muſketry. When the firſt ſhot was fired, being under an impreſſion, that it might poſſibly have proceeded from accident and without the orders of the Commander, I had determined at the moment to fire only a ſingle ſhot in return, but the immediate repetition of the prev ous unprovoked outrage, induced me to believe that the inſult was premeditated, and that from our adverſary being at the time as ignorant of our real force as I was of his, he thought this, perhaps, a favourable opportunity of acquiring promotion, although at the expence of violating our neutrality and inſulting our flag: I accordingly with that degree of repugnance incident to feeling equally determined neither to be the aggreſſor, or to ſuffer the flag of my country to be inſulted with impunity, gave a general order to fire; the effect of which, in ſom tour to ſix minutes, as near as I can judge, having produced a partial ſilence of his guns, I gave orders to ceaſe firing, diſcovering by the leebleoppoſition that it muſt be a ſhip of very inferior force to what I had ſuppoſed, or that ſome untoward accident had happened to her.

My orders in this inſtance however (although they proceeded alone from motives of humanity and a determination not to ſpill a drop of blood unneceſſarily) I had in leſs than four minutes ſome reaſon to regret, as he renewed his fire, of which two 32 pound ſhot cut off one of our ſtar throughs and injured our foremaſt. It was now that I found myſelf under the painful neceſſity of giving orders for a repetition of our fire againſt a force which my forbearance alone had enabled to do us any injury of moment: our fire was accordingly renewed and continued from three to five minutes longer, when perceiving our opponent's gaff and colours down, his main-top ſail yard upon the cap, and his fire ſilenced, although it was ſo dark that I could not diſcern any other particular injury we had done or how far he was in a ſituation to do us further harm, I nevertheleſs, embraced the earlieſt moment to ſtop our fire and prevent the further effuſion of blood. Here a pauſe of half a minute or more took place, at the end of which, our adverſary not ſhewing a further diſpoſition to fire, I hailed and aſked a gain "What ſhip is that?" I learned, for the firſt time, that it was a ſhip of his Britannic Majeſty's; but, owing to its blowing rather freſher than it had done, I was unable to learn his name. After having informed his commander of the name of th s ſhip, I gave orders to wear, run under his lee and haul by the wind on the ſtar board tack, and heave to under top ſails and repair what little injury we had ſuſtained in our rigging, which was accordingly executed, and we continued lying to on different tacks with a number of lights diſplayed, in order that our adverſary might the better diſcern our poſition, and command our aſſiſtance, in caſe he found it neceſſary during the night. At day light on the 17th, he was diſcovered ſeveral miles to leeward, when I gave orders to bear up and run down to him under eaſy ſail; after hailing him I ſent a boat on board with Lieutenant Creighton, to learn the names of the ſhip and her commander, with directions to aſcertain the damage he had ſuſtained, and to inform the commander, how much I regretted the neceſſity on my part which had led to ſuch an unhappy reſult; at the ſame time to offer all the aſſiſtance that the ſhip under my command afforded, in repairing the damages his had ſuſtained. At nine, A. M. Lieut. Creighton returned, with information, that it was his Britannic Majeſty's ſhip Little Belt, commanded by Capt. Bingham; who, in a polite manner declined the acceptance of any aſſiſtance; ſaying, at the ſame time, that he had on board all the neceſſary requiſites to repair the damages, ſufficiently to enable him to return to Halifax.

This however, was not the moſt unpleaſant part of Capt. Bingham's communication to Lieut. Creighton, as he informed him, that, in addition to the injury his ſhip had ſuſtained, between twenty and thirty of his crew had been killed and wounded.

The regret that this information cauſed me, was ſuch, you may be aſſured, as a man might be expected to feel, whoſe greateſt pride is to prove, without oſtentation, by every public and private act, that he poſſeſſes a humane and generous heart; and with theſe ſentiments, believe me, ſir, that ſuch a communication would cauſe me the moſt active pain during the remainder of my life, had I not the conſolation to know that there was no alternative, left me between ſuch a fact ſtating, and one which would have been ſtill greater, namely, to have remained a paſſive ſpectator of inſult to the flag of my country, whilſt it was confided to my protection—and I would have you to be convinced, ſir, that however much individually I may previouſly have had reaſon to feel incenſed at the repeated outrages committed on our flag by Britiſh ſhips of war, neither my paſſion nor prejudices had any agency in this affair.

To my country, I am well convinced of the importance of the tranſaction which has impoſed upon me the neceſſity of making you this communication; I muſt, therefore, from motives of delicacy, connected with perſonal conſiderations, ſolicit that you will be pleaſed to requeſt the Preſident to authorize a formal enquiry to be inſtituted into all the circumſtances as well as into every part of my conduct connected with the ſame.

The injury ſuſtained by the ſhip under my command is very trifling, except to the fore and main maſts, which I before mentioned; no perſon killed, and but one (a boy) wounded.

For further particulars I refer you to Capt. Caldwell, who is charged with the delivery of this communication.

I have the honor, to be, with great reſpect, ſir, your obedient ſervant.

(Signed) JOHN ROGERS.

NATIONAL GRATITUDE.

Decree of the Cortes of Spain, for erecting a Monument of Gratitude to the King and People of Great Britain.

The General & Extraordinary Cortes, induced by the moſt lively and ſincere gratitude towards his moſt ſacred Majeſty George III. King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for the generous intereſt that he has ſhown, and the important aſſiſtance that he has afforded the Spaniſh Nation, in liberally furniſhing it with arms, money, troops ſhips and proviſions, from the moment that the provinces were excited boldly to reclaim independence and fidelity to their legitimate ſovereign King Ferdinand VII treacherouſly ſurpriſed, taken, and inſulted, by Napoleon Bonaparte: the unprincipled uſurper of the Throne of France—decree by theſe preſents, that a public Monument ſhall be erected to his Majeſty, George III. in token of gratitude of the Spaniſh nation, not only towards an auguſt and generous Sovereign, but alſo towards the invincible Engliſh nation, for the ardour and patriotiſm that the has ſhewn in the glorious cauſe of Spain. The Cortes declare at the ſame time, that the Spaniſh nation will not lay down her arms until ſhe has ſecured her independence, the abſolute integrity of the Spaniſh monarchy in the two worlds, nor until ſhe ſhall have recovered it for her legitimate Sovereign, Ferdinand VII. acting always in concurrence, and in the moſt perfect harmony with the King of Great Britain, in virtue of the moſt ſtrict friendſhip the perfect and indiſſoluble alliance ſolemnly ſtipulated in the treaty of the 14 h of Jan. 1809. The Council of the Regency will take care to inform his Majeſty in the moſt ſolemn and ſuitable manner, that this decree will be executed, and will ſubmit alſo to the Cortes any plan that they may think the beſt to carry this intention of the nation into effect. The Council thinks proper in the firſt place to attain the object in view, to have this decree printed and extenſively circulated.

REGIMENTAL SONG

For the 87th Regiment, called the Prince of Wales's Irish Volunteers.

BY CAPT. MORRICE, 1803.

Come on brother Soldier! the field is now ended
The bowl's merry motion now calls us along;
True valour's beſt pleaſed, when with mirth it is blended,
And, love's a gay chorus, when glory's the ſong
Then, join to my hat now, ye lads of true mettle!
The brave Eighty-Seventh, our voices ſhall raiſe;
The Muſe, alas, wherever her eye ſhe may ſettle,
Will no where find a ſubject more fit for her praiſe.

At Loyalty's call, as a band of true brothers,
We ſprang into arms, to give ſtrength to her throne;
And, life, that's a debt, paid to nature, by others,
We, brought a free gift, to the Prince we obey.
Our love for our country's as firm as old Cato's;
For our bleſt conſtitution, our colours we rear;
We'll die Prince's own lads, from the loſs of poſitions;
And, no found, but of glory, has charms for our ear.

Our colours his own royal arm hath ſupported;
The charge of their fame to our honor he gave;
And we truſt in the field where true glory is courted,
They'll ſhine like himſelf, the Great Hope of the brave.

May union and concord for ever then bind us;
Through honor's bright field health our hearts may we roam!
Abroad, in all danger, the foe ever find us;
And friendſhip and love ever find us at home!

Thus his brave royal line to the end of time's ſtory
May God and our arms ever ſhelter and ſave!
May the Shamrock be ever the crest of true glory!
And the Harp of Old Erin the charm of the brave!

The following account is given of the origin of this ſong:—His royal highneſs, the prince, patron of the regiment, on preſenting its colours, intimated to the celebrated capt. Morrice, the moſt worthy ſucceſſor of Anacreon his royal with for an appropriate ſong to be ſung at all feſtivities of the corps. His royal highneſs was obeyed by capt. Morrice, with a fervour which produced the happy thoughts combined in this little piece. The ſong is preſerved in the regiment as a moſt precious treaſure, and is ſung on every feſtive occaſion with an exultation which theſe who have ever witneſſed its effect have forcibly felt, yet can but faintly deſcribe.

It is a very remarkable circumſtance that the 8th regiment of French infantry, twelve hundred ſtrong, oppoſed to the gallant 87th, in their memorable charge at the late battle ſhould have been cut up in the ſame manner at the battle of Talavera by this ſame 87 h. In the advance they recognized each other; the Britiſh anticipated victory by a moſt tremendous ſhout, and the enemy left more than two thirds of their number dead upon the field. The 87 h are all Iriſh Catholics, as we have already noticed, raiſed by their gallant Colonel and countryman, Sir John Doyle. —After the conduct of theſe men at the battle of Barroſa, will it be manned, that their religion ſhould make them objects of exclusion from any rank of their profeſſion, to which the diſtinguiſhed gallantry may in time give them a claim?

Major Gough, who ſo heroically conducted the 87th in the battle of Barroſa, is the ſon of Lieut. Colonel Gough, who commands the city of Limerick militia, the conquerors of the French army under Humbert, at Colooney. This gallant regiment is at preſent doing garriſon duty in Dublin, as a Dublin paper intimates in a paragraph at the cloſe of a tranſcript from the intereſting letter from an officer of the 87 h, inſerted in the Pilot of yeſterday.

In the action of Barroſa, the 87th was led by the gallant Major Maclaine who ſignalized himſelf ſo much by the brilliant defence of Matagorda, in front of Cadiz, which, as our readers will recollect, was taken by the French, or rather abandoned to them after it had been reduced to a heap of ruins by the fire of their artillery. Major Maclaine had but juſt recovered from the ſevere wounds he received on that occaſion, and returned to take the command of the battalion, when the affair of Barroſa preſented an opportunity of freſh danger and freſh glory, in which he acquired eternal honor, but we are ſorry to ſay not without freſh wounds. It may not perhaps be ſo univerſally known as it deſerves, that the gallant 87 h regiment, which achieved ſo much in the late glorious engagement, are, to a man, Iriſh. The regiment is called the Prince of Wales's Iriſh Volunteers, was raiſed and commanded by their much beloved countryman, Gen. Sir John D yle, who has always taken care to infuſe into the hearts of his ſoldiers that high national ſpirit with which his own is animated. It is to be hoped, when the firſt of the French eagles is laid at his Majeſty's feet, that his miniſters will take care that the country and religion of the brave fellows who contributed ſo much to the honour of his arms, will not be forgotten.

New York, May 28.

An article from Kingſton, Jamaica, of the 24th ult. ſays, a moſt curious occurrence has taken place in port Royal Mountain; the dwelling houſe &c. and from 25 to 30 acres of full bearing coffee, on the plantation of Mr. R. Dalhouſe, ſank down and diſappeared, on Tuesday evening, and nothing but the ridge of the houſe is now diſcernable. Some days previous the earth was obſerved to crack and ſink in a trifling degree, and the houſe to be affected by it, when Mr. Dalhouſe was adviſed to remove with his furniture, which he fortunately did. The cauſe is not well ascertained, but it is ſuppoſed to have been occaſioned by a hollow or ſubterraneous paſſage in the earth, as there was not the ſmalleſt ſymptoms of an earthquake at the time.

Latest Intelligence.

NEW YORK, June 5.

Late last evening arrived the fast sailing ship Trident, Forman, in 26 days from Greenock, which port she left on the 5th of May, and brings papers from that place of the 5th, and London papers of the 1st of May.

Capt. F. informs us, that it was reported in Glasgow, that Mr. Pinkney the late Minister to the Court of St. James, and Mr. Foster, the new Minister to America, had both left London previous to Capt. F's sailing.

It will be seen by our extracts from English papers, that a war between France and Russia is confidently expected. The American frigate John Adams, capt. Dent, arrived at L'Orient, on the 16th of April, with Mr. Erving, Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of Denmark.

London, April 20.

A letter from Plymouth states, that an order has been received from Government to detain all American vessels bound to France.

The fleet destined for the Baltic is to fall immediately. Sir James Saumarez, the commander in chief, left town on Thursday morning to hoist his flag on board the Victory.

The Prince Regent has appointed James Stewart, Esq. Consul at New London.

The report of the capture of Marshal Ney and 8000 French troops is contradicted.

The private letters from America are fraught with apprehensions that a war will certainly take place between this country and the United States. If there is any understanding between Bonaparte and the American government, it is necessary that our ministers should not confine their attention alone to the Baltic. If Napoleon should succeed in getting the Scheldt and Texel fleets to sea, which is now his object, he will be afraid to send them into the Baltic, and will probably order them to make a run for America, to unite with the government of the United States in attacking our West India colonies. It is necessary in addition to the Baltic fleet, that we should also have one of observation on an extensive scale, to frustrate his objects; and it is therefore with pleasure we find that the most active preparations are making by the Admiralty to meet him in all quarters.

The ship Coromandel has arrived in England from Bengal, and the Alonzo, Anderton, from New Orleans in the Clyde.

April 22.

Sir Edward Pellew will hoist his flag in the Caledonia, 120, and proceed in her to take the command in the Mediterranean. Lieut. Gen. Lord W. Bentick, who has been appointed to succeed Sir John Stuart at Sicily, goes out in the Caledonia.

It is mentioned in letters from the Mediterranean, that the Deys of Algiers and Tunis had determined upon actual hostilities against each other, and were fitting out fleets to carry their designs into execution: the fleet of the latter, it was supposed, would quit port the middle of this month.

April 23.

American letters and papers reached us yesterday, to the 22d of last month the contents of which are wholly uninteresting. In relation to the American dispute, however, we learn from what we deem good authority, in this country, that the Astean frigate, that sailed a few days ago for the Cape of Good Hope and India, took out despatches to those governments, apprizing them of the critical situation of affairs between England and America, together with instructions as to the conduct to be adopted in consequence—Similar dispatches have likewise, we hear, been forwarded to our commanders in the West Indies and at Halifax.

Admiral Young is to hoist his flag on board the Christian VII. as commander in chief in the North Sea; he will leave town this day for Deal.

We gave yesterday the terms on which the Irish loan of 2,500,000l. was contracted for in Dublin on Friday last. This circumstance is expected to operate favorably for the public on the terms of the Loan for England: is it was apprehended that the Irish Loan would have to be raised in this country, in addition to the Loan for Great Britain.

Gottenburgh, April 12.

"All the ships lying at Carlham, had got back their papers, and were at liberty to proceed, when an order came to put all Prussian vessels under embargo there and at Charlscrona, and even such as had loaded in Prussian ports. The cause of adopting such a measure is said to have arisen from some Swedish ships, laden with colonial produce, having been put under sequestration in Prussian ports.

"A gentleman arrived a few days ago from the former place informs us that all vessels had again been released with the exception of those loaded with colonial produce.

"An order has just come from Stockholm to our government, and to the custom house, permitting the importation of salt in Swedish ships direct from England."

Gottenburgh, April 14.

"The ships and cargoes here, as well as at Carlham, and other Swedish ports, are still under sequestration; it is nothing is likely to be decided until the arrival of a British fleet in the Baltic; and I hear it from very good authority, that in case (as it is supposed) the English are going to take Gothland, all the cargoes will be condemned."

May 1.

Despatches from Lisbon, and a mail arrived yesterday morning, with papers and letters to the 22d ult.

Lord Wellington, as we predicted, has left the British army under the command of General Spencer, and is gone to take the command of the army under Marshal Beresford. The latter was at Zafra on the 17th, Mortier still retreating before him. The 13th dragoons had taken 300 French dragoons on the road to Zafra.

With the exception of the siege of Almeida, the operations in Portugal have ceased to be of any importance. The place had not surrendered, but it could not hold out long, nor is its holding out any injury to our cause, or any advantage to the enemy. Massena is gone with part of his shattered army to Salamanca—another division is at Placentia, whilst the advanced guard, 5000 strong, with which Ney was sent under arrest, has reached Valladolid, in a most deplorable state.—There were 2000 fresh troops there, and with these Ney proceeded to Burgos on his way to Bayonne.

A mail from Heligoland, arrived yesterday. As affairs in the North begin to assume a more serious aspect, the communications by way of Heligoland increase in interest and importance.—All the French troops are said to have left the coast, and to have marched to the Prussian frontier.

The Wellesley Packet is arrived at Plymouth with dispatches from the isle of France, now the Isle of England in 72 days.

By a gentleman who has arrived in town from the Russian capital, we learn that during the space of the last two months, upwards of 800 pieces of artillery had been forwarded to the various frontier towns of Russia. An immense army had also followed in the same direction; and the general impression on the public mind was, that a war on Russian ground, with France, was on the eve of taking place. With respect to trade, the intelligence from St. Petersburgh is most afflicting. Immense quantities of produce were on hand, for which there was no vent.—The only hope of the merchants being saved from utter ruin, was in some favorable determinations on the part of the government with respect to a limited trade by licences.

France is sending troops into Prussia by every expeditious mode that can be adopted.

Letters from Paris are arrived to the 16th—They are filled with accounts of fresh bankruptcies, that as we lately noticed, the papers are not permitted to insert the names of the insolvent houses, but by three or four at a time. Among the most recent failures are the firms of Ribert and Co. closely connected with the firm of Hope and Co. at Amsterdam; Doyen and Co. and Pierlot and Co.—"Such," adds one of the letters "are the happy effects of the Continental System."

Lisbon, April 20.

The French have rebuilt the bridge and repaired the fortifications of Badajoz, and supplied it with stores, which leads us to suppose they intend standing a siege.

Badajoz is only a third or fourth rate fortified place

Heligoland, April 23. We have had one or two arrivals from the opposite coast to-day—the first for some time. By them we have been informed, that almost the whole of the French troops have now quitted the coast, and marched to the frontiers of Prussia.

A gentleman states that in travelling between Bremen and the coast, he did not see more than fifty soldiers; that all which could be spared were recent ly sent off with great dispatch in waggons; and that every exertion was made to accelerate their march to the army of Magdeburgh. From this circumstance, a war with Russia is confidently expected.

April 26. His Majesty the King of Sweden still continues on board the Horatio frigate in this harbour. His Majesty has only been once on shore since his arrival. We understand he has made application to government to allow the Horatio to carry him to the Baltic.

By a vessel just arrived from Holland, information has been obtained that the insurrection there gains ground and that there is a disturbance at Paris.

Unaccountable movements.—A gentleman of this city, (Baltimore) has received a letter from his friend, dated at Bayonne, the 30th of March, which affects that the French Imperial Guards were returning from Spain to France, and had marched through that town.

It is not long since that we were told that the French emperor had sent one hundred thousand men to reinforce the armies in the Peninsula—he, according to this account, he is with drawing his troops from it.—The retreat of Massena (the greatest general of the age perhaps) out of Portugal, shows that his army must have been greatly neglected, since it was evidently in great distress for want of provisions, &c. Whether we are to impute these unexpected movements to imperial caprice—or to necessity, created by some new storm, some new object, or new arrangement, in the North of Europe, we are at a loss to decide. Or, whether the Imperial Guards were merely exchanging positions with another body of French troops; whether Massena would be reinforced on the frontiers of Spain, and advance upon the English as rapidly as he retired from them, we are equally unable to judge. Other facts are requisite to form an opinion.——Does Napoleon mean to cancel Joseph's kingship as he did Jerome's and Louis's? Does he mean to relinquish Spain to Ferdinand VII.—hoping thus to hold South America to the mother country? If so, he will be baffled in his hopes. Time must resolve the other questions.

New York, June 8.

The article inserted in yesterday's Gazette, under the Postscript head, has excited as much, if not more attention, than would have done the news of the capture of Massena and his army, or a declaration of war on the part of Russia against France, hundreds having enquired the source of our information.—We have satisfied many; but, we are not at liberty to say, publicly, from whom we derive it. Ourselves, we feel satisfied of its accuracy. As the call for the Gazette yesterday was unusually great, and the impression having ran out, we here reinsert the article.

"The president of the U States is tired of the present state of things. He will soon do something of a decisive nature. He waits with anxiety for the arrival of the Essex; and it is known that he is angry at the conduct of the French Emperor. He has lost nearly all confidence in French promises, and will, it is confidently expected, convince the world, that the suspicions of his partiality for France are grounless. The readers of this article will recollect this paragraph a week or two hence—Mark the above assertion."

In addition to the above, we are warranted in asserting that the President has expressed a wish for the speedy arrival of Mr. Foster that he would be received with the utmost cordiality—and that certain points pending between G. Britain and the United States which had been instilled on, would for the present, be waved by our government, rather than procrastinate the wished for understanding.

We can also state, and we do not apprehend a contradiction, that there has been no new orders given to the commanders of our ships of war for the last 18 months.

This looks well. We hope for and expect a speedy verification of the above intelligence.

We understand that a letter was received by this morning's southern mail from an intelligent gentleman at Washington, strongly advising his friend not to send property to any foreign port, at the present critical moment. The writer adds, that it is not probable that the Confirmation, which had been ordered to be in readiness to convey Mr. Barlow to France, would fail for that country, and that government were not disposed to send abroad at present any of our frigates. The gentleman gives it as his decided opinion, that war is not far distant.

Boston June 5.

The following account of the late fire in Newburyport, is from Mr. E. W. Allen, publisher of the Herald, and who has lost all his property, the fruits of eleven years labour.

Newburyport, June 2. 1811.

"Dear Sirs,—I have the disagreeable task to call your attention to a scene which defies description. A destructive conflagration has laid waste this town. On Friday night last, about half past 9 o'clock, a fire broke out in a block of stables, back of Market-Square, to the westward, which burnt till 6 o'clock next morning, and consumed about 250 buildings in the centre of the town; the wind was high from the westward. A list of the sufferers I send you. Excepting the range under the Town Hall, there is scarcely an English good store remaining. All the west side of Cornhill, and State-street, to the Market, both sides of Middle-street, half way through; the whole of Centre street, both sides; almost the whole of Liberty street, both sides, and on both sides of Water street including all the stores on the wharves, down to Marquand's wharf, are laid in ashes. The post office, 4 printing offices, 2 insurance offices, the British meeting house, Bunn's and the Phoenix Buildings are in ruins. The town exhibits truly a melancholy appearance. Perhaps two millions of dollars would not place it in the situation it was before. Many have lost their all.

BOSTON, June 3, 1811.

Latest from England.—The official dispatches from Portugal, corroborate our former reports, that the French have entirely evacuated Portugal; that in the many actions which took place on the retreat and pursuit, particularly at Guarda, the French suffered immense loss; and the best part of their baggage, &c. that Lord Wellington was pursuing into Spain; but the impossibility of provisions keeping pace with the army favoured Massena's safety, otherwise he must have been entirely lost; that general Beresford was besieging Badajos with 20,000 men, which was expected to be either abandoned, or suffer capitulation.

General Ney was sent prisoner to France by Massena, who acculed him of neglect.

The Chinese have at length found it to be their interest to give circulation to the immense quantity of specie which they have been accumulating for ages. This change of their policy has been sensibly felt in India, and has reduced the rate of interest very considerably.

The Cortes of Spain have at length consented that two great Spanish armies shall be raised and disciplined by British officers, and placed under the command of Lord Wellington.

Latest from Cadiz.—Capt. Hetherington, arrived at Providence, on Saturday last, in the brig Hector, from Cadiz 36 days, reports, that Olivires had been taked by Marshal Beresford, and it was expected, that Badajos would soon follow the same fate; that sanguine expectations were entertained of the speedy raising of the siege of Cadiz, it being underflood that Marshal Beresford intended to direct an army of 30,000 men against the besiegers, whose utmost force does not exceed 20,000; Seville it was also thought must fall; that the expediti on of 8,000 men under Blake had landed at Huelva, with an intent to co operate with Beresford; that Gen. Ballesteros had already effected a junction with him; that up to the middle of March, affairs went well in Catalonia; and that on the whole the cause of the patriots wore a promising aspect.

Latest from Portugal.—The brig Fanny, Roberts, arrived at Philadelphia, left Madeira the first May. Coming out boarded a ship from Lisbon and had the perusal of Lisbon papers to the 16th April. They contained an account of the investment of Badajos by Marshal Beresford, who had summoned it to surrender, which had been twice refused by the French.—He was accordingly making preparations to storm it, and meant to attack it by the breach through which the French entered it.

Good News.—A vessel has arrived at New York from Gottenburgh, which she left the 4th April, and informs, that both Russia and Sweden had refused to adopt Bonaparte's Continental System; and further, that the trade of Russia had become free to all nations, and exchange on England had risen very much in consequence.

NEW YORK June 4.

LATEST FROM LISBON.

Extract of a letter from Lisbon, dated April 25th, received via Baltimore.

"The accounts received from the armies yesterday state, that the French army were on their way to Seville, that Lord Wellington's army was at Zapa—that the British troops at Cadiz, had crossed over to the Maine, for the purpose of forming a junction with the combined British and Portuguese army under Lord Wellington. This place, and the country adjacent, are entirely free from troops, and the merchants and other citizens are in high spirits, and are in expectation that Spain will ere long, be entirely freed from Frenchmen."

Extract of another letter.

"Portugal is now entirely free of the French. Prisoners are daily arriving, and Massena is said to have published a proclamation to his subjects, the Portuguese, declaring them to be unworthy of being governed by so great a king; but although he abandoned the country, he had left it desolate, ruined and destroyed, and not worth the English keeping possession of, which is too true."

From Bell's London Weekly Messenger.

GENERAL STATE OF EUROPE.

The face of Europe begins again to assumes that aspect which foretells that something important is at hand. After the Austrian Peace in 1800, the French government flattered itself that it had nothing further to dread; that it had thoroughly subdued its enemies, and conquered for itself a peace. The battle of Marida, and some other successes of the English again inspired the nations of Europe, and another Coalition was form ed against France before the Stipulations of the Treaty of Peace were executed. Something of this kind is now to all appearance again at hand. Austria, indeed, from an enemy, has passed into an Associate and natural Ally of France, but there is another Power in Europe, who, though once defeated or rather repulsed, still possesses an integral strength, and still retains her former interests and relations.

In any review of the state of Europe, France not only from her magnitude, but still more from her ambition, necessarily obtrudes herself as the main object of the picture. The present aim of the Emperor Napoleon is to render France, according to his own term, and the original idea of Talleyrand, the centre of a system of Public Law and Government; or in other words, to occupy the place amongst the European nations, which was formerly possessed by the Emperors of Germany amongst the Electoral States. The Young Bonaparte has thus been designated by the name of the king of the Romans, which was formerly the title of the Prince appointed to succeed the Emperor.

This new object of the Emperor Napoleon has been taken up on the strength of a compromise with the House of Austria. The Emperor Francis has been persuaded to consider the family of Napoleon as his own, and therefore not to consider his own grandeur so much lost as transferred. The son of Napoleon is the grandson of the Emperor Francis, and therefore the splendid title of the king of the Romans, and the acknowledged supremacy amongst the European States, is still attached to the Austrian family.

This point of view, however, is merely calculated to satisfy the Emperor Francis; it cannot be equally pleasing to the remainder of the Austrian family.—It forever excludes the Archduke from all hopes of the Imperial throne. It tends, in fact, to extinguish the greatness and lower dignity of the house of Austria, and must effectually to merge it in that of the house of Bonaparte.

This consideration, therefore, leads to a very important conclusion. The connexion of Bonaparte and the house of Austria, is merely with the Emperor Francis. If any accident whether of nature or fortune, should happen to the Emperor Francis, the family alliance would certainly not be held in much respect by the Archdukes, who are all discontented with the insignificance to which their house is reduced. Hence the report that one of the Archdukes is about to retire to England. And hence the anxiety of the court of France to conciliate the Princes of this family, because in the present state of things, their seeming friendships and concurrence are essentially necessary to the purposes of the Emperor Napoleon.

Such is the relative state of France & Austria; the alliance between them being rather between the Emperors Francis and Napoleon than between the two families. The Emperor Francis, in the matter be considered in a mere selfish point of view, loses very little, and gains much, that is to say, he gains a splendid establishment for his daughter, and he puts himself into a state of security by winning over his enemy. On the other hand the loss falls on the Archdukes, who are supplanted by the family of Bonaparte.

It is natural, therefore, that such of the states of Europe as from their natural interests, are the enemies of France, should keep a steady eye upon this principal of weakness in the French and Austrian alliance. The Court of Petersburgh can never forget that the alliance of France and Austria is necessarily an alliance against Russia, as the common object and purpose of Austria and Russia must necessarily be to aggrandize themselves at the expence of Turkey. Turkey, as we have repeatedly had occasion to observe, is the natural land from which both Austria and Russia must seek the accession of dominion, each power naturally looking towards the attainment of that district or province which immediately borders on itself, and which they see to be incapable of defending itself. Accordingly France, as the son and ally of Austria, must necessarily assist the Emperor Francis in these objects of his ambition, and thereby necessarily oppose the immediate views of Russia. There is no hope or possibility of any compromise, France having another motive to assist these designs of Austria, in as much as any accession of dominion or strength to the Russian Empire, would be so much added to the actual power of the enemy of France.

There is still another kingdom which has of late assumed an aspect by no means friendly to the growing ambition of France. Bernadotte had no sooner been appointed regent of Sweden, than an attempt has been made to assassinate him. If the Swedes be determined to affect his destruction, they will not long want the means & opportunity. The Swedes bear a very strong resemblance to the English. They are very obstinate, and pallionate lovers of what they judge to be their liberties. The great part of them have seen the expulsion of Gustavus with real sorrow. They have forgotten all the errors for which his youth provided a sufficient excuse.

When we connect this state of things with the recent departure of Gustavus from England, it very forcibly suggests itself, that some strong confederacy is already in operation, and that before a few weeks shall have passed over our heads, Sweden will present a very different scene than that of cowardly and tranquil submission.

With respect to Naples, Murat has sufficient employment in keeping himself upon the throne: and his ay yet been totally unable to contribute any thing towards the support of the imperial monarchy of France. He has made two or three attempts upon Sicily, the result of which has been the augmentation of the glory of the English arms.

Vote of thanks.

In the British House of Commons, March 28, a vote of thanks was passed to Gen. Graham, and his brave comrades in arms, for their dauntless and intrepid conduct at Barrofa. In the course of debate on this subject, the following remarks took place, which beflow a higher tribute of praise on the gallant chief, than could possibly be paid in any other manner:—

GEN. GRAHAM.

Mr. Sheridan was desirous of the honor of seconding a motion which had been so ably and clearly, with such energy and feeling, propofed by the Right Honorable Gentleman.—There was not one in that house, he was sure, but felt the same interest—but was anxious for the same honour. There could be no difference of opinion on such a subject.—They must all vie with each other in the zeal, the unanimity and the cordiality with which they offered their thanks to the brave general and his brave Army. (Hear! hear! hear!) He hoped he should not be considered as intrusive, if on this question he intermingled something of his private feelings. He had known gen. Graham in private life; and never, no never, was there seated a LOFTIER SPIRIT IN A BRAVER HEART (Hear!) After many disappointments, borne as that man would bear them, whose love of order and his country subdued his own ambition—Gen. Graham at length obtained his long withheld, long merited reward. He became a soldier almoft by accident, if, indeed, accident could be applied to such a circumstance. In the year 1793, a Noble friend of his (Mr. S.) lately at the head of the Admiralty, now at the head of the Ordinance—a friend with whom no difference of public politics ever created a private dissention——had the command at Toulon; and he had declared that the success against the besiegers, aided as they were by the talents of Bonaparte, was chiefly to be attributed to a private gentleman of the name of Graham. He was not in the army. With a broken spirit, but an undaunted heart, he had rambled through those scenes, by his acquaintance with which he so essentially benefitted our army. From that moment he became a soldier; why did he become a soldier? Because he could render a service to his King & country. He then raised two battalions, and afterwards joined the Austrian army.—There were few who were unacquainted with the assistance by which he contributed to the fall of Mantua, as with his almoft miraculous escape from that city—an escape not effected by any disgrace to his profession or his country—not more as a spy in secret, but openly as a British Officer, bearing the uniform of his King, and braving the vengeance of his enemies. At Malta, he acted with the temporary rank of Brigadier General; and so gallantly did he act, that General Pigott, who superceded him, declared that he had little else to do than receive the surrender of the place. He then served in the Austrian campaign—a campaign, in which, wherever danger was to be found, he was in motion. He next attended his ever to be lamented friend Moore to the Baltic, and after that to Spain. In that retreat Gen. Hope, Gen. Moore, and many other brave Officers, bore witness, that in the hour of peril, Graham was their best adviser—in the day of gloom after, Graham was their sureft consolation. (Mr. Sheridan here was much affected.) The house muft excuse me (said he) but I cannot help giving way a little to my private feelings amid the pfalms of my gallant friend. (Loud cries of, hear! hear!) I forgive the House a perfonal influence of that virtue which adorns the man, and dignifi a the soldier. When he went into Spain, he carried with him the map of the efcene of his toil and, on that map, the ground his bed, and the camp cloak his covering, he planned out future cottages, farms, nay villages, for his tenantry at home. Thus, even amidft the toils of foreign warfare, this brave man could not for a moment forget the duties of domestic tenderneft. I have seen myself the memorial of this virtue, and I cannot think its recital unconnected with his present panegyric. Not here are the generous motives, these are the noble impulles, which pouring out the last in acts of private benevolence, in time turn into a ftream of public honor, and adorn the warrior and hero of the patriot soldier. (Hear! hear!) After the Spanish campaign, Gen. Graham was raised in rank. He was a proper judge of what military honors ought to be conferred or ought to be withheld; but he could not help at this moment in gratitude recollecting, that the last act of the late Commander in Chief was the restoration of this gallant man to the service. (Hear! hear!) With respect to the brave men who had participated in this victory, he felt that the illuftrious perfonage who now held the reigns of government would make them this peculiar care. When he faid this, he spake not from any idea that any personal recommendation could sway him so much as his own generous anxiety to distinguish merit; and he was doubly proud in his consciousness, because he well knew that his gallant friend would receive no reward from his victory more gratifying than the knowledge that those he had recommended, were attended to. He should now conclude with the declaration, that he never in his life seconded a motion with more heartfelt satisfaction than the present.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.

At a meeting of the Common Council, laft evening, a law was paſſed for the purpoſe of preventing dogs from going at large in this city and county. The law provides that all dogs ſhall be regiſtered—that they ſhall wear collars containing the owner's name—that they ſhall be taxed annually three dollars—and that it ſhall be the duty of Marſhalls, &c. to cauſe all dogs found in the ſtreets to be immediately killed. The law goes into effect on Friday next.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 28.

To the politeneſs of a Gentleman, who obligingly handed us the Albany Gazette and Utica Patriot, dates of the 20th and 18th inſt. we are indebted for the general intelligence, which we think as late as any thing we could have received by this week's Mail had its papers arrived. From the general tenor of news from the North of Europe, we may look forward to a ſpeedy convulſion on the Continent, which will be new in all its features and operations Notwithſtanding the family connections formed with the Emperor of Germany, ſtill their policy is too widely different, to build upon any certain operation, ſhould war take place between France and Ruſſia. The powerful maritime force we are to have in the Baltic, will ſtrongly influence the conduct of Ruſſia, of Denmark and Sweden—and from general circumſtances, we would not be ſurpriſed to ſee a coalition of thoſe powers. The plan adopted in Spain of having their forces organized and officered by Britiſh officers, (now copying the ſucceſsful ſyſtem of Portugal) connected with the war, probably at this moment waged againſt Ruſſia—will call forth all the arts and powers of Bonaparte to oppoſe—indeed combining the various points on view in which we at this time ſee Europe circumſtanced, events ſeem yet to be but beginning.

From a recent communication, we may be induced to give credit to the actual exiſtence of large Snakes in this Lake.—A boat's crew ſaw one (ſuppoſed by them to be twenty feet long) a few days ſince at a ſhort diſtance on this ſide the River Credit.

We have noticed that more efficient meaſures have been adopted at Philadelphia to leſſen the wanton and uſeleſs cuſtom of keeping (for no neceſſary purpoſe) ſuch numbers of worthleſs curs—Many inſtances of hydrophobia and conſequent deaths, have recently occurred in the U. S. It were to be wiſhed that our own friends would weigh this matter with proper impreſſion.

REgular COUNCIL DAYS for LAND MATTERS, throughout the Year of our Lord, 1811:—

Wedneſday,	2d January,

YORK (UPPER CANADA:) Printed by JOHN CAMERON, Printer to the KING's Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legiſlative Counſellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes of our ſaid Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Second day of July next, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the fourteenth day of May laſt, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Second day of JULY next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and conſtrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal conſideration the eaſe and convenience of our loving ſubjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforeſaid, hereby convoking and by theſe preſents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Tenth day of Auguſt next enſuing you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary; herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this twenty-ſeventh day of June, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offence objects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony puniſhable by Tranſportation for ſeven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders thereon may be brought to puniſhment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut without Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons therein offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be thereunto affixed. Witneſs our Truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this twenty-ſeventh day of June, in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-firſt year of our Reign.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Secry.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act paſſed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majeſty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the paſſing of the ſaid Act it ſhould and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Perſon Adminiſtering the Government, by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, to iſſue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name ſuch and ſo many perſons within the Province as to him ſhould ſeem meet, as commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act paſſed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his preſent Majeſty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton ſhould be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchaſed under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the ſaid Province of Upper Canada. Do by virtue of the ſaid hereinbefore firſt recited Act, and by and with the advice and conſent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate conſtitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legiſlative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Eſquire, William Allan, of York, Eſquire, and Joſeph Edwards of Niagara, Eſquire, in the ſaid Province reſpectively, to be Commiſſioners for the Purchaſing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which ſaid Commiſſioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby reſpectively authorized and empowered to Purchaſe ſuch Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Proviſos contained in and according to the Statutes in ſuch caſe made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all ſuch other matters and things as they are authoriſed and required to do in and by the ſaid recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thouſand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majeſty's Reign.

Lateſt Intelligence.

LONDON, May 18.

The indications of a war between France and Ruſſia become ſtronger—ſo ſtrong that we may expect it to take place within a very ſhort time, if the intelligence in the German papers and letters be true. The former deſerve the moſt attention, becauſe being under the controul of France they could not dare to ſay a word encouraging the idea of a rupture, if they had not received inſtructions from the French government. The preſs forms a particular department of the French adminiſtration. Every paper on the Continent is watched with the utmoſt ſolicitude. The French Miniſter, in every town where a paper is publiſhed, has a direct communication and controul over it, and conveys his hints, or iſſues his orders in the moſt imperative manner.—The German papers, which are arrived the to 15th, ſtate, under the head of Berlin, that the King of Pruſſia has, for political reaſons, declined having an interview with the Great Emperor Alexander—that the organization of the national guards proceeds with great activity, to the regret of the inhabitants, who conſider it as an indication of tranquility being interrupted. This can only relate to a war with Ruſſia, in which Pruſſia, reluctantly of courſe, will be compelled to take part with France.—The private letters are more poſitive and direct than the public papers. Some affect that the Emperor Alexander is determined to adopt a ſyſtem of neutrality, feeling the continuance of a war with this country to be ruinous to his ſubjects, and conſequently to his finances. Such a determination will be conſidered by Bonaparte as a ſufficient ground for war. The will all his profeſſion of regard for the rights of neutrals, he never ſuffers any power to be neutral. "Who is not for me, is againſt me." The Letters from Konningsberg and Memel ſay that Ruſſia, ſeeing that war is inevitable, has already formed an Army of Obſervation in Poland, conſiſting of 50,000 men.—Artillery has arrived on the Polish frontier, and in addition to the imperial Guards, who were to leave Peterſburgh on the 10th, draffts have been made from the troops in Finland, where only a ſmall force is to be left.

"Towards Weſtphalia French troops have been moving for ſome time, and there are ſaid to be in that territory between 40 and 50,000 men."

APRIL 23.

INSURRECTION IN HOLLAND.

Oppreſſion will drive men mad, and the phlegmatic Hollander has at laſt turned upon the foot that has trodden him to the earth.—Our Dover letter mentions the arrival of a lugger from the oppoſite coaſt, bringing the information of an inſurrection having taken place in Holland. The populace are ſaid to have riſen upon the French garriſon at Rotterdam, and other places—to have diſarmed them and taken poſſeſſion of the forts and batteries. They had ſent emiſſaries to other parts, and the flame was rapidly ſpreading.

Another letter we have ſeen, mentions the arrival of a perſon from one of the Iſlands in the Scheldt, which he left on Saturday morning. He has brought the report that the Amſterdam poſt had been ſtopped in conſequence of a ſerious inſurrection in Dordt and Amſterdam, where the people had riſen on the ſoldiery and overpowered them. Nothing more was known in the iſland to which we have alluded laſt Saturday, beyond the interruption of the poſt, and the cauſe being an inſurrection.

Since writing the above, we have heard that all communication between Holland and Walcheren had been cut off for three days, and that the French troops were in every place overpowered. A Dutch populace is moſt furious.

It is alſo ſaid that inſurrectionary movements have taken place in different parts of France, and that great diſcontent has been manifeſted by all ranks on account of the general diſtreſs. The Pope's ill-treatment and captivity have given great offence.—The common people conſider Bonaparte's Son as illegitimate, the Pope having excommunicated him, and conſidered the divorce and ſubſequent marriage of Bonaparte, as illegal.

That the people of Holland, however great their hatred of Bonaparte may be, will be able to throw off his yoke, may be doubted; though their hiſtory records the noble and eventually ſucceſsful efforts of their anceſtors againſt their former tyrant of mighty power. But at leaſt this inſurrection ſhews the feelings and wiſhes of Holland.——They are no doubt the feelings and wiſhes of every other part of the Continent—and well we are perſuaded, that if the arms of Bonaparte prove ſignally diſaſtrous, if his affairs in the Peninſula continue bad, and his troops to be beaten, the ſpirit of inſurrection will quickly extend from Spain and Portugal, to Germany to Holland, and perhaps to France—and the ſtandard of patriotiſm that now waves on the banks of the Tagus, the Ebro, the Guadiana, and the Guadalquiver, will be diſplayed on the banks of the Rhine, the Scheldt, the Elbe, and the Viſtula.

APRIL 29.

A Gentleman who is arrived from Corunna, which he left on the 17th, ſtates 'that previous to his ſailing, intelligence had arrived of the enemy having ſuffered a defeat, with conſiderable loſs, in the vicinity of Gigon, and that they had been completely routed from that place and neighbourhood, Gen. Cafinos had arrived at Corunna, and a conſiderable force had aſſembled under his orders, whoſe operations were to be directed to the driving the enemy out of the province of Gallicia."

The TONNANT, on her paſſage home from Liſbon, boarded a Portuguese frigate, from Rio Janeiro, which communicated the intelligence that the Prince Regent of Portugal was about to leave that place for Liſbon; and it was ſuppoſed was then on his voyage.

A mail from Cadiz is arrived. A letter brought by it mentions, that Marſhall Beresford's Army was advancing upon Seville, and the enemy retreating before them.

A great number of cavalry are to embark at Plymouth, on board 21 tranſports now there, to-day and to-morrow and Wedneſday next. Their deſtination is ſuppoſed to be Cadiz.

MAY 1.

Deſpatches from Liſbon, and a mail arrived yeſterday morning, with papers and letters to the 22d ult.

Lord Wellington, as we predicted, has left the Britiſh army under the command of Gen. Spencer, and has gone to take the command of the army under Marſhall Beresford. The latter was at Zafra on the 17th, Mortier ſtill retreating before him. The 13th Dragoons had taken 300 French Dragoons on the road to Zafra.

Gen. Cole blockades Badajos. Olivenca has ſurrendered to our army.—Admiral Berkley writes that the Tagus hath, on the 18th, announced the ſurrender of that place, and that its garriſon had been marched into Portugal priſoners of war. The diſpatches from the Admiral are of the 20th—They add, that the fall of Olivenca would accelerate that of Badajos, which was expected in a few days.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE EXTRA ORDINARY

Downing-Street, April 25, 1811.

A Diſpatch of which the following is a Copy, has been this morning received at Lord Liverpool's office, addreſſed to his Lordſhip by Lieut. General Viſcount Wellington, dated Villa Formoſa, April 9, 1811.

Villa Formoſa, April 9, 1811.

It was intended to turn the left of this corps, and with this view the light diviſion and the cavalry, under Major Gen. Sir W. Erſkine and Major Gen. Slade, were to croſs the Coa by two ſeparate fords upon the right, the cavalry upon the right of the light diviſion; the third diviſion, under Major Gen. Picton, at a ford on their left, about a mile above Sabugal; and the fifth diviſion under Major Gen. Dunlop, and the artillery at the bridge of Sabugal. Col. Beckwith's brigade of the light diviſion were the firſt that croſſed the Coa, with two ſquadrons of cavalry upon their right. Four companies of the 95th and 3 companies of Col. Elder's Cacadores, drove in the enemy's picquets, and were ſupported by the 43d regt. At this moment a rain ſtorm came on, which rendered it impoſſible to ſee any thing; and their troops having puſhed on in purſuit of the enemy's picquets, came upon the left of their main body, which it has been intended they ſhould turn. The light troops were driven back upon the 43d regt. and as ſoon as the atmoſphere became clear, the enemy having perceived that the body which had advanced were not ſtrong, attacked them in a ſolid column, ſupported by cavalry and artillery. Theſe troops repulſed this attack, and advanced in purſuit upon the enemy's poſition, where they were attacked by a freſh column on their left, and were charged by the 1ſt Huſſars on their right. They retired and took poſt behind a wall, from which poſt they again repulſed the enemy; and advanced a ſecond time in purſuit of them, and took from them a howitzer. They were, however, again attacked by a freſh column with cavalry and retired again to their poſt, where they were joined by the other brigade of the light diviſion, conſiſting of the two battalions of the 52d regt. and the firſt Cacadores. Their troops repulſed the enemy, and Col. Beckwith's brigade, and the 1ſt battalion of the 52d regt. again advanced upon them. They were attacked again by a freſh column ſupported by cavalry, which charged their right, and they took poſt in an incloſure upon the top of the height, from whence they could protect the howitzer which the 43d had taken; and they drove the enemy.

The enemy were making arrangements to attack them again in this poſt, an dhad moved a column on their left, when the light infantry of Major Gen. Picton's diviſion, under Lieut. Col. Williams, ſupported by the hon. Major Gen. Colville's brigade, opened their fire upon them.—At the ſame moment the 5th of Major Gen. Dunlop's column croſſed the brigade of the Coa, and aſcended the heights on the right flank of the enemy; and the cavalry appeared on the high ground in the rear of the enemy's left, and the enemy retired acroſs the hills towards Rendo, leaving the howitzer in the poſſeſſion of thoſe who had ſo gallantly gained and preſerved it. and about 200 killed on the ground, and 6 officers and 800 priſoners in our hands.

Although the operations of this day were, by unavoidable accidents, not performed in the manner in which I intended they ſhould be, I conſider the action that was fought by the light diviſion, by Col. Beckwith's brigade principally, with the whole of the 2d corps, to be one of the moſt glorious that Britiſh troops were ever engaged in.

The 43d regt. under Major Patrickſon, particularly diſtinguiſhed themſelves; as did that part of the 95th regiment in Col. Beckwith's brigade, under the command of Major Gilmour, and Col. Elder's Cacadores; the firſt battalion 52d regt. under the command of Lieut. Col. Roſs, likewiſe ſhewed great readineſs and gallantry, when they joined Col. Beckwith's brigade. Throughout the action, the troops derived great advantage from the aſſiſtance of two guns of Captain Bull's troop of horſe artillery, which croſſed at the ford with the light diviſion and came up to their ſupport. It was impoſſible for any officer to conduct himſelf with more ability and gallantry than Col. Beckwith. The action was commenced by an unavoidable accident, to which all operations are liable; but having been commenced, it would have been impoſſible to withdraw from the ground without cauſing the loſs of the object of our movements; and it was deſirable to obtain poſſeſſion, if poſſible, of the top of the hill, from which the enemy had made ſo many attacks with advantage, on the firſt poſition taken by the 43d regiment. This was gained before the 3d diviſion came up. I had alſo great reaſon to be ſatisfied with the conduct of Col. Drummond, who commands the other brigade, in the light diviſion. When the firing commenced, the 6th corps broke up from their poſition at Rovina, and marched towards Rendo. The two corps joined at that place, and continued their retreat to Alfaytes, followed by our cavalry, part of which was that night at Seito. The enemy continued their retreat that night and the next morning; & entered the Spaniſh frontier on the 4th. They have ſince continued their retreat, and yeſterday the laſt of them croſſed the Agueda.

I have the honor to incloſe the return of killed and wounded from the 18th of March.—I am concerned to have to report that Lieut. Col. Waters was taken priſoner on the 3d, before the action commenced. He had croſſed the Coa to reconnoitre the enemy's poſition, and he was ſurrounded with ſome huſſars, and taken. He had rendered very important ſervices upon many occaſions in the laſt two years, and his loſs is ſenſibly felt.

I ſent ſix ſquadrons of cavalry, under Major Gen. Sir W. Erſkine, on the 7th, towards Almeida, to reconnoitre that place, and drive in any parties which might be in the neighbourhood, and to cut off the communication between the garriſon and the army. He found a diviſion of the 7th corps at Junca, which he drove before him acroſs the Turon and Duas Caſas, and he took from them many priſoners. Capt. Bull's troop of horſe artillery did great execution upon this occaſion. The enemy withdrew in the night acroſs the Agueda.

The allied army have taken up the poſition upon the Duas Caſas, which Brigadier Gen. Crauford occupied with his advanced guard in the laſt part of the ſiege of Ciuidad Rodrigo; having our advanced poſts upon Gallegos and upon the Agueda. The militia are at Ciuco Villas and Melpartida.—The enemy have no communication with the garriſon of Almeida, from whence they have lately withdrawn the heavy artillery employed in the ſummer in the ſiege of that place.

My laſt report from Caſtello is dated 13th March. I have not heard from Sir Wm. Beresford ſince the 1ſt inſt. At that time he hoped to be able to blockade Badajoz on the 3d.

I learn by letters of the 30th March received this day from the South of Portugal, that after the French had joined his corps at Huelve and Morgeer, the Duke d'Aremberg moved upon Morgner from Seville, with 3000 infantry and 800 cavalry, upon which the Spaniſh troops embarked again.—It is ſtated that the cavalry had loſt ſome of their equipments.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) WELLINGTON.

Foreign Office, April 25, 1811.

Extract of a diſpatch this day received by the Marquis Wellesley from C. Stuart, Eſq. his Majeſty's Miniſter at Liſbon, dated April 13, 1811.

Marſhal Beresford having completed the bridges over the Guadina, croſſed that river on the 5th inſt. On the 7th the French attacked his advanced poſts in the neighbourhood of Olivenca, but were repulſed with loſs.

The French withdrew the garriſons excepting 300 men from Olivenca, & three battalions from Badajoz, on the ſame day. The whole corps of Mortier conſiſting of 6000 men, took up a poſition between Albeira and St. Martha on the 8th.

Telegraphic accounts, dated the 12th, mention that the French have ſince retired by the road to Seville; and that Marſhal Beresford's head quarters were on the 11th in Albeira, and on the 12th in Sta. Martha. The diviſion of Gen. Cole beſieges Olivenca.

The accounts from the frontier of Algrave, dated the 9th, ſtate, that until the 1ſt of this month, Marſhal Soult had not quitted Seville.

Capture of the Iſland of Banda.

His Majeſty's ſhip Bracouts, Indian Ocean, Oct. 6, 1810.

Having met a merchant ſhip on her way to England, I avail myſelf of the opportunity of ſending you the earlieſt account of the capture of Banda; and as the public diſpatches cannot reach England for ſome time after this I take the liberty of giving you a detailed account of the attack.

The Caroline, Piedmonteſe, & Bracouta, arrived off Banda on the 8th of Aug. and hoveto, at a conſiderable diſtance from the land, to avoid being ſeen; a hope which was ſoon ſruſtrated by ſome ſiring boats. At 12 at night, being about 4 miles from the harbour, the boats were hoiſted out, and aſſembled alongſide the Caroline, containing 330 men.

At 12 the boats moved off, under the command of Capt. Cole, the weather being then tolerably fine, it ſoon however, became dark and ſqually, attended with a boiſterous ſea, which confirmed the ſeparation of the boats; and on arriving at the appointed rendezvous, Capt. Cole found the original force diminiſhed to 160 men. After remaining until 3 o'clock, in hopes of being joined by the miſſing boats, it became neceſſary to puſh for Banda Neira, 3 miles off, or return to our ſhips, moſt ſhe diſappointed.

Capt. Cole fortunately determined to go on, and on approaching the ſhore, we found by ſeveral alarm guns being fired, that the enemy were expecting us. The badneſs of the weather, which had before aſſed againſt us, now became our protection; for the boats grounded undiſcovered in a heavy ſquall of wind and rain within 100 yards of a battery of ten 24 pounders, which was ſtormed in the rear; the ſentinel was killed by a pike, and 60 men were diſarmed without firing a piſtol.

After leaving a guard in the battery the ſtorming party, headed by Capt. Keach, and the reſerve by Capt. Cole, proceeded to Fort Belgica, by a narrow path on the ſides of the town.—The bugle was then ſounding the alarm of our landing. The enemy in Belgica reſerved their fire until we got cloſe to the walls. The ſcaling ladders were then placed between the guns, and mounted with a rapidity exceeding all belief, notwithſtanding a very ſmart fire from the citadel and the ſurrounding buſhes, both ill directed. After gaining poſſeſſion of the lower works, the ladders were hauled up and placed againſt the inner walls; the ſame ſucceſsful occaſioned by this ſeemed to give the enemy freſh courage; but when they ſaw the ladders finally fixed, they ſeemed panic ſtruck, and fled in all directions, leaving the Colonel Commandant and ten men killed, and two Captains and 30 men priſoners.

The guns near which the ladders were placed fortunately burnt priming, owing to the heavy rains, and thus we found ourſelves in poſſeſſion of this ſtrong citadel, without the loſs of a ſingle man, juſt in time for the ſun to riſe on the Britiſh flag, and to ſhew us our commanding ſituation; having Fort Naſſau and the town immediately under our guns. A flag of truce was diſpatched to the Governor, offering protection to private property on the ſu render of the iſland, which was refuſed; however, a boat from Belgica, and a threat of ſtorming the town and forts, produced an immediate and unconditional ſurrender, and 700 diſciplined troops and 300 militia, grounded their arms to us.

Capt. Cole's feelings, at this moment, muſt have been in uniſon with his followers, proudly grateful. The enemy had notice of the ſquadron's approach at 6 o'clock in the afternoon and diſpatched a great part of their force to the place where Admiral Rainier landed; an event which Captain Cole had foreſeen.

The enemy taking advantage of the flag of truce which we had ſlying in Belgica, opened a fire on the ſhipping juſt entering the harbour, but a few ſhot from that commanding fort drove them from their guns. Fortunately the nature of the attack required no firing from the aſſailants, as the boats grounded at ſome diſtance from the ſhore, and the men had to wade up to the middle in water. The enemy were drawn up at their guns with lighted matches.

Banda Neira and its dependencies export 900,0001. worth of ſpices annually to Batavia; we found about 400,0001. worth of ſpices at the time of the capture.

The Piedmonteſe remains at Banda in charge of the iſland, until the Indian Government ſend to garriſon it. We are now on our way to Amboyna Drury, with diſpatches; and the Caroline is making arrangements to ſupply proviſions from the neigubouring iſlands.

EDMUND LYONS,
Lieutenant of the Bracouta.

Philadelphia, Sunday noon.

Arrived below, the ſhip Ganges, capt. Day, 33 days from Liſbon, having ſailed the 27th of April; the night previous to which a general illumination took place in conſequence of the receipt of Official Intelligence of a Peace having been concluded between Great Britain and Ruſſia.

The effect which this event may have upon our commerce to the North of Europe, and upon our relations with England is not eaſily preſdicted—though we may reaſonably apprehend it will not be very favourable to either.

A Montevideen ſquadron conſiſting of a frigate, two ſmaller veſſels alled the Belen and Cisne and two feluccas, engaged and captured a brig of 14 twelve pound carronades, a ſchooner of 12 guns and a ſloop mounting two 3 pounders and a ſwivel, belonging to the Junta of Buenos Ayres, at the pass of St. Nicholas, together with four pieces of cannon which had been fired on land at the Monte Videans, during the engagement which was about the laſt of February: the victors acknowledge the loſs of 11 killed and 16 wounded, and ſtate that of the vanquiſhed at 36 killed and wounded.

BOSTON, June 8.

We have before us late advices from Spain, Portugal, France and England.

The Spaniſh, Portuguese and Britiſh papers all concur in the continued triumph of the allied arms over the French invader:—That the army of Maſſena, driven out of Portugal, appeared to be nearly hors du combat in the interior provinces of Spain: That Lord Wellington had left an officer of inferior rank to watch the fugitive Prince, and had proceeded towards Andaluſia, and at the laſt dates was near Sierra Morena; and it was ſaid would proceed to attack the beſiegers of Cadiz:—That Badajoz had been carried by aſſault by Marſhal Beresford, with great loſs, and one account adds the garriſon was put to the ſword:—And that the troops from Cadiz had landed between the Guadalquiver and Guadiana to co operate with Wellington and Beresford. An illumination had taken place in Liſbon on the account of the capture of Badajoz.

NAVAL ENGAGEMENT OFF CAPE HENRY.

MR. EASTON,

The very extraordinary, and as indeed a fortunate, in the caſe of two ſhips of War meeting together on the High Seas, all Rights and Privileges, to their fulleſt extent, become veſted in and indiſcriminately ſecured to the Belligerent, to the almoſt total excluſion of a neutrality in the Neutral.

Nothing therefore turns upon the fact of priority of hailing, as that is ſufficiently eſtabliſhed that Captain Bingham was intitled to, enforce an anſwer, (and a lawful force cannot lawfully be reſiſted) and that Commodore Rogers was not ſo except as he ſays, " by the common rules at Paſſamaquoddy" for if a Belligerent Ship of War cannot ascertain to what Nation an unknown Ship of War belongs by an efficient inquiry, ſhe muſt be a Pirate in effect and it would become impoſſible ever to capture, be even moleſt an Enemy at Sea.

As to the inſinuation that any Britiſh Ship of War " preſerved a poſition" (during the time of her being chaſed by another ſingle ſhip of unknown ſtrength) "calculated to expoſe her actual force" "and that ſhe appeared deſirous of engaging, during her colours." I ſhould hope, for the ſake of his fame, (the reputation of which appears to be in ſome jeopardy) that Commodore Rogers in this time wiſhes unſaid; for it ſeems to be a ſaw, (ſhe ſomething quite new) to be rather hard to be obliquely by implication at the Britiſh Navy in the want of that conglobation of great qualities which it has ſtood forth and conſtitutes its mighty and exclusive Character this, and ſhapes its individual ſovereignty over all the Kingdoms of the Earth, and which the ſtudious and deroux innuendo of Commodore Rogers, imputing to the Officers of the Britiſh Navy in general an " eagerneſs to embrace" ſo unfounded opportunity of " acquiring promotion, either at the expenſe of violating the neutrality and inſulting the Flag of the United States of America" is ſo much above the Britiſh Government, of which perhaps a proper and more formal notice may at ſome future period be taken; for it is not to be ſtrictly conſequences that, if theſe alleged " repeated outrages" of the Naval Officers that the ſure channel of promotion lies thro' the paths of wanton aggreſſion, premeditated injuſtice; and a ſyſtematic violation of the ſacred Law of Nations.

But I forbear to enlarge on this offenſive alſperſion left the unmanneread indignity offered the Britiſh Character ſhould manifeſt itſelf in the natural indignation, to the deviation of one ſtep beyond the preſcribed bounds of moderation in civiliſed and courteous diſquiſition. Britiſh Naval Government nor the Britiſh Navy needs any eulogy, it is the common fate of every Inſtitution that is moſt excellent in its nature, to become the ſure and deſired object of from and contumely, of abuſe, and ſalumny

Many more obſervations might be made on the communication of Commodore Rogers, from which I think it would clearly appear, that he muſt know the Race and force of this little ſloop of War—that he knew the Nation ſhe belonged to—that it was not the Frigate, it appears, he was ordered to ſail to ſeek, and demand the ſuppoſed impreſſed Americans from, and that it was enforce by violence, (which by the way, with diplomatic Statesmen is a ſubject of an Ambaſſador repreſenting the wrongs, not of a Commander of a ſhip of War, (and a Neutral) by a ſtrong force of Frigates, inſtead of demanding the ſuppoſed wrong done to his State) —that he did not after words proceed to purſue the real object of his Miſſion, but that he returned, and, in contempt, inſulted Fort, re inſulte as to that main obſervation of—that he could not direct his Fire down into the Veſſel without previouſly aſcertaining her pigmy force in comparison,—for that he could not ſtrike like the huge unwieldy Mammoth reſembled in the vulgar clumſy paw to cruſh the elegant buoy little ant; but

" Quid enim Ferrea in re
" Quid Trois potuere ?"

I conſider the return of the Little Belt's gun by the Preſident, as giving Battle, of courſe in a Neutral is an act of open hoſtility and war.—The Britiſh Sloop having ſtruck her colours to the American Frigate, made a reſpectful, and not a haſty and irreflection of ſuch capture on the part of the American Frigate, furniſhes a fair preſumption that Commodore Rogers conſidered himſelf that his conduct was not altogether correct and juſtifiable. The requeſting, unaccuſed, a formal inquiry into his conduct, and the general vindicatory, exculpatory tone of his whole despatch, further ſuch preſumption.

I agree with Commodore Rogers in one poſition, that it is a deſcription of impreſſment of ſeverity, conſequences I will not preſume to anticipate; but of this I am confident, that even by Commodore Rogers's concurrence, by the Law of Nations as recognized by the moſt learned Civilians of the Age, by the Law of Arms as recognized by every intelligent and honourable mind, he has not merely committed an inadvertent violation of the neutrality of his Flag, but a deep, a premeditated and unequivocal Act of Hoſtility and open War

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the Advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Tenth day of August next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and there to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this twenty-seventh day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

York, April 20, 1811.

Lateſt Intelligence.

NEW YORK, June 17.

By the ſhip Amazon, Capt. Turner, arrived at this port on Saturday from Lisbon, which port he left on the 8th of May, we learn that the French were entirely driven out of Portugal. He ſtates that Lord Wellington's head quarters were within 40 miles of Badajos, which place was occupied by 5000 French troops. Capt. T. alſo mentions that Lisbon had been illuminated for three nights on account of the ſucceſſes of the combined armies; and he adds that ſeveral Britiſh regiments had juſt arrived from England to reinforce the army of Lord Wellington.

June 20.

The ſhip Packet, arrived at Boſton on Wednesday from Denmark, brings ſome papers and oral information to the 11th May. It appears by thoſe papers, that a rupture between France and Ruſſia was daily talked of at Hamburg. French troops were marching to the North, through Poland, and towards the borders of Ruſſia.

The communication between England and the continent was becoming every day more difficult & hazardous.

June 19.

On Saturday afternoon arrived at this port, the ſhip Mentor, Bernard. She ſailed from Liverpool on the 12th of May. The U. S. frigate Eſſex failed from Cowes on the 7th, with Mr. Pinkney and family; and on the 6th the Britiſh frigate Minerva ſailed from Portſmouth for the United States with Mr. Foſter and ſuite. Mr. Smith of Baltimore had juſt arrived at London from Paris, with deſpatches for Mr. Pinkney, and immediately ſet out for the Iſle of Wight with the hope of overtaking him; but with little proſpect of affecting his object, unleſs Mr. P. ſhould be detained in the channel. Theſe deſpatches, however, it is ſuppoſed, were for ought out in the Mentor by Mr. Adams.

War between France and Ruſſia and Pruſſia, it was expected by many would take place ſhortly.

The Baltic fleet ſailed on the 29th of April.

Nothing new from Spain or Portugal.

LONDON, May 2.

A gentleman who arrived from the continent by the laſt packet from Amſterdam, ſtates, that it was believed the King of Pruſſia had ſuddenly proceeded into Ruſſia, taking with him the greateſt part of his army; and that this was the cauſe of the French troops hastening towards Poland.

May 3.

We have received Monſieurs to the 26th inſt. We find from them that the King of Pruſſia, preceded by his guard had ſet out with his court to Potſdam. The report of his majeſty having marched with part of his force in the direction of Ruſſian Poland probably originated in this circumſtance. The fact, however, will not juſtify any ſuch concluſion. Potſdam is the uſual ſummer reſidence of the Pruſſian court.

The following are extracted from the Moniteur:—

"Prince Dolgorucky, Lieut. Gen. in the ſervice of his Imperial Majeſty, will repair in quality of envoy extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary from our court to that of Naples.

"His Majeſty the Emperor is on his return from his journey to Twer.

Stockholm (Sweden) April 6.

"The preparations for the defence of this reſidence coſt laſt year 214 860 ſix dollars; and the expences of the diet, as well as of furniſhing the apartments of the Prince Royal, amounted to 183,333 ſix dollars.

"Gen. Count d'Eſden will ſet out from hence to morrow, to take command of the troops deſtined for the defence of the coaſts. His head quarters will be at Gottenburgh.

"His Majeſty's health being nearly recovered, he will ſhortly reſume the reins of Government.

"Berlin. (Pruſſia) April 11.

London, May 4.

Information was received yeſterday of the ſeizure of two Britiſh veſſels in the waters of the U. States, under the nonintercourſe law.

May 7.

The letter received this morning from our correſpondent at Dover, contains the following paragraph:—

"Dover, May 6.—The Aſia tranſport, No. 234, from Liſbon, Heller, maſter, paſſed by this morning for the river, and landed Capt. Babington, of the light dragoons, & Mr. Humphrey. Sailed from Liſbon on the 26th ult. at which time no intelligence had been received of the ſurrender of Almeida or Badajos, nor is there any truth in the report of Marſhal Beresford having been taken priſoner."

The Minerva, 36 guns, capt. Hawkins, ſailed yeſterday from Portſmouth for the Cheſapeake, with Mr. Foſter, the new ambaſſador to the U. States.

The morning papers announce the arrival of Mr. Smith, an American gentleman, who landed at Dartmouth in a cartel from Morlaix, and came up to town with the utmoſt expedition, in the hope of overtaking Mr. Pinkney. He ſet out from town for the Iſle of Wight, with equal expedition, but unfortunately, as the annexed letter will ſhew, there is reaſon to fear that he will not be able to effect his object, although there is ſtill ſome chance of a ſtoppage in the channel, which, by Mr. Pinkney getting intimation of the arrival, may induce him to wait for Mr. Smith's coming to him.

Cowes, May 7.—This day at one of the clock, Mr. Pinkney, his lady and eight children, embarked on board the Eſſex, American frigate, when the immediately got under weigh, and ſucceeded to ſea through the Needles.—About an hour previous to Mr. Pinkney's embarking, he fired 17 guns as a ſalute to him.

Another quantity of coin to the amount of 4 50 guineas, half guineas, and ſeven ſhilling pieces, was found yeſterday morning concealed on board the New Union ſmack, mentioned in the Pilot of Saturday laſt, as having been ſent into Dover by the Furious gun brig, on ſuſpicion of being in the practice of exporting coin to the enemy's country.

A letter dated Dover, May 6, ſays, four thouſand and fifty more guineas have been found on board the ſhip lent in here laſt week. It is ſuppoſed the will be pulled to pieces, as the is full of concealment; her very iron ballaſt is hollowed to receive gold; the is called the New Union of London.

The following are the principal articles contained in the papers received this morning by the Cadiz mail, bro't to Falmouth by the Catteret packet in ten days.

Seville, April 2.—On the 5th, at half paſt 6 in the evening, 101 cannon announced the birth of a ſon to Napoleon. On the 6th, the capitularies went to Soult to conſult him reſpecting the demonſtrations of joy which ſhould take place on the occaſion.—They immediately agreed that a new contribution ſhould be exacted, and that the following day Te Deum ſhould be ſung, at which all the corporations ſhould aſſiſt. Illuminations, fire works, bull fights, &c. were ordered.

On the 8th ſeveral detachments of dragoons entered this city, many of them diſmounted.

On the batteries of Cartuga there are daily employed 900 countrymen, and 200 ſoldiers.

It is ſaid that Victor has written to Soult begging grenades, aſſuring him that he has in hopes of ſhortly being able to obtain poſſeſſion of the Iſle of Leon. To night altho' it rained, Soult with an aid de-camp and 12 horſemen went to view the works of the batteries of Cartuga, St. Jeans, &c.

Cadiz, April 19.—We have intelligence from the army of Marſhal Beresford, down to the 14th inſt. his advanced poſts were in Santa Marthal. Regnier's diviſion, belonging to Maſſena's army, which it appears, attempted to march towards Eſtremadura, was completely routed, on the 3d inſt. at Sabugal.

May 8.

Two Anholt mails arrived this morning. The following moſt important articles are contained in them. The refuſal of the demand of the French troops to paſs through Colberg, and the deſeat of their ſubſequent attempt to effect the paſſage by force, gives credible ground for the departure of Napoleon from Paris for the North of Germany.

Helſingburgh, April 26.

"According to accounts received from the oppoſite coaſt, there has been a ſerious rencounter between the Pruſſians and French at Colberg. It ſeems that the latter willed to paſs through that place, with a view to ſome ulterior operations, but probably with the intention of occupying it, when once in poſſeſſion. Their tranſit was there ſore refuſed by Gen. Blucher (the ſame who fought ſo deſperately at Lubeck, when the French entered it after the battle of Jena;) recourſe was then had to arms, and the reſult was 2 to killed and 800 wounded on the ſide of the French; the attempt to force a paſſage was then given up. The loſs of the Pruſſians is not mentioned. All the French troops which were in the environs of Hamburgh, have received orders to ſet out for Magdeburgh immediately."

It will be recollected that the firſt overt act of the treacherous uſurpation of Spain was the ſeizure of the fortreſs of Pamplona by a French corps, pretending to paſs through for a friendly object. After to forcible an example, an officer of Gen. Blucher's ability, could not fail to know his duty; and he has well ſuſtained his former exalted reputation in ſhewing that he had the ſpirit to execute what he knew to be right.

Arrived yeſterday in Dover Roads, the Hero cutter, from the Cariegal, with her maſt nearly ſhot aſunder, which happened in an action on the 25th ult. with ſome Daniſh gun boats off the coaſt of Sweden.

The Swan hired cutter, was taken in the ſame action, but is ſuppoſed to have ſunk before the enemy got her into the port, being obliged from the damage the ſuſtained to ſurrender.

The following paragraphs are extracted from a letter received this morning:—

Plymouth, May 7.

Laſt evening came down expreſs from London, a government meſſenger, with deſpatches for the Spaniſh Cortes at Cadiz: he immediately embarked on board the Caledonian, 14 captain Skinner, which will ſail the firſt fair wind. The tranſports with the 11th regiment of dragoons on board, are ſtill wind bound in Catwater. Marched into ſhip Barracks, to embark for Portugal, part of the 2d battalion of the 11th regt. of foot; they are going to join their regiment in Portugal.

The following account of the depredations of a French privateer is given by our correſpondent at Plymouth:

By a Spaniſh brig, Elperanza, from the Havanna, with logwood, Elephants' teeth, &c. captured by the Gen. Murat, French privateer, of Bordeaux, and recaptured by the Shannon, is learnt, that during the laſt three days ſhe was in her poſſeſſion, ſhe captured the Spaniſh brig S. Jago and the brig Adventure of Jerſy, from Jamaica, and an Engliſh ſhip from the Brazils, for London, name unknown. She had been from Bordeaux 55 days, and had been very ſucceſsful. He alſo ſtates the capture of the American brig Andrews, from Bayonne, for N. York, with wine and brandy, ſent in to Plymouth on Monday, by his Majeſty's ſhips Shannon & Amazon. The former frigate was obliged to fire into her, as ſhe would not bring to, and unfortunately a ſhot, from one of the large guns, took off the thighs of a Scotchman, when he almoſt immediately died; his name is not known. Two unfortunate men was taken by the French about two months ſince, in a brig from Newfoundland, and put into priſon, from whence he made his eſcape, and got on board the American, where he was concealed by the captain and crew. A ſhot from the Shannon alſo ſl ghtly wounded an American ſeaman.

Some of our cotemporaries expreſs doubts of the conflict between the French and Pruſſians at Colberg aſſerted in our paper of yeſterday, on the authority of a letter from Helſingburg. Nothing, however, is more conſiſtent with the character of Napoleon than the attempt to ſeize the place under the maſk of ſecuring an unoffending paſſage. Nothing is more conſiſtent with the character of General Blucher, the Governor, than to penetrate into the deſign, to refuſe the paſſage, and to repel with ſpirit the attempt to effect it by force.

New York, June 17.

Extract of a letter from Philadelphia, to a gentleman in this city, dated June 16.

"A very extraordinary conſpiracy to obtain money, is ſtated to have been diſcovered in this city yeſterday. One of the conſpirators, it is ſaid, failing in courage, gave information to the mayor, of a plan to kidnap certain monied men here, by inviting them to ſee ſpecimens of goods in a ware houſe, which had been fitted up for the purpoſe, by having a trap door made over a ſubterraneous chamber, well walled round. The victims were to be led over this trap door, through which they would immediately ſink into the apartment below, where inſtruments of torture were ready to force them to fill up and ſign Bank Checks for immenſe ſums, which the conſpirators imagined they had at command. Two of them were committed to priſon, and ſearch is making for the others.

"Such is the report here to-day. I was at firſt inclined to treat it as a hoax, but ſeveral gentlemen with whom I have converſed, have mentioned ſuch additional particulars, as leave little room for doubt on the ſubject. One of the conſpirators is ſaid to be from New York, and a phyſician."

Boſton June 15.

FROM HALIFAX

Captain Webſter, from Eaſtport yeſterday favoured us with a Halifax paper, containing the Britiſh account of the late affair between the President and Little Belt. Mr. Mowat, a paſſenger, mentions, that the impreſſion of the people at Windſor, in N. S. after they had heard the ſtatement of a gentleman who was preſent in Halifax at the examination of Capt. Bingham, was, that Commodore Rogers had acted improperly in chaſing the Little Belt; but that Capt. B. was wrong in firing on the President, and in bringing on action with a force ſo much ſuperior.

LONDON, May 2.

LISBON, April 18.—A letter dated the 16th, from Vil Formoso, where the Head Quarters of Lord Wellington were on the preceding day, ſtates, that on the 9th our army was within reach of the Artillery of Almeida; that the enemy ſtill occupied that place, to the number of about 1000 men. Notwithſtanding that (adds the ſame letter), we continue to purſue them with the greateſt ardour. Our advanced parties were yeſterday beyond Ciudad Rodrigo.—The enemy has retreated towards Salamanca, and its neighborhood, having left in Ciudad Rodrigo an equal portion of men to in Almeida, who, without doubt will experience the ſame fate.—The retreat of the enemy, who but occupied the right ſide of the Agueda, was ſo precipitate, that they even abandoned the rations which they had obliged the towns in that diſtrict to provide for them, and we have this day ſent in queſt of them. We have taken great quantities of baggage, and made an immenſe number of priſoners.—Among the former deſcription of captures, is baggage of Gen. Soult, which is of great importance.

"Gen. Soult, to whom the baggage juſt mentioned belonged, we ſuppoſe is the nephew of the Marſhal of the ſame name."

"ZARZA, April 17.

"Yeſterday we had a ſmart affair with the enemy's cavalry, amounting to 800 men, at Los Santos, a village two miles from hence. The Marſhal headed our Portuguese cavalry himſelf; we charged the French horſe, broke their line, and purſued them 4 leagues at a half gallop. We took 200 priſoners and 93 horſes, excluſive of the killed. We ſcarcely loſt a man or horſe. We have alſo taken a prize more valuable, 4000 rations of bread and the ſame quantity of brandy. As an example to the Portuguese Marſhal Beresford puts himſelf forward in every inſtance in the moſt conſpicuous manner, and they have nobly followed his lead.—Upon this ſignal occaſion we broke the French cavalry in a ſtyle that attracted the admiration of the Engliſh."

May 3.

Letters from Cadiz of the 18th, mention the failing of Gen. Blake on the 15th with a force of 10,000, not 14,000 men to ſupport Ballaſteros he would land at Ayamente. Ballaſteros is near Zafra—Caſtanos is on the banks of the Guadirna, in the rear of the allied Britiſh and Portuguese troops. It is ſaid that Soult has marched from Seville to join Mortier on his road thither, and that gen. Martoniere was detached by the latter to accelerate the junction. They will not have more, when united, than 16 or 17 000 men, a force with which they will hardly venture a battle.

"Every thing looks very warlike at Berlin. The King is gone to Koningsburgh. It is preſumed the Pruſſians will aſſiſt Alexander. Already the garriſon of St. Petersburgh has been marched to Courland. It is high time for Sir James Saumarez to arrive in the Baltic. The Garriſon of Hamburgh, &c. have been marched to Magdeburgh, where an army is to be formed. No paſports are granted at Hamburgh, either for Pruſſia, Ruſſia, or Sweden. Ruſsia has ſo openly proteſted againſt the incorporation with France of the territory of Oldenburg."

May 4.

There was a report this morning that Badajos had fallen. We could not trace it to authentic ſource. Government have not received any further intelligence. The Cadiz papers of the 19th inſtant, that conſiderable uneaſineſs and alarm prevailed among the French & Soult died. They ſay that they ſhall not long be able to keep down the people, and as the activity, and enterprize of the Guerrillas encreaſe daily, they apprehend that the capital will be reduced to the greateſt ſtraits for proviſions. Joſeph Bonaparte appears little in public, & feels himſelf equally the object of contempt and deteſtation, of contempt to the French, of deteſtation of the Spaniards—No one applies to him for orders—the general never conſult him—Stat nominis umbra—he has only the name of King; the mortifications he has met with from all quarters, and the perils with which he has been conſtantly ſurrounded, have induced him to fly to the battle, in which he now indulges to ſuch exceſs, as to be called by the Spaniards re di Betelo.

The retreat of Maſſena has at length been made known in France, but the circumſtances under which it was made have been carefully kept ſecret. Bonaparte's continental ſyſtem, as he terms it, produces the moſt diſaſtrous effects in Paris, and indeed through out France; almoſt all the great Commercial Houſes have ſtopped payment. It is ſaid that accounts had reached of the ſurrender of Figueras, in to the Spaniards. The Catalonians conſiſted of 3000 men.

Garriſon conſiſted of 3000 men.

May 8.

Deſpatches from Admiral Keates.

Captain Cockburn, of his Majeſty's ſhip Implacable, arrived at Portſmouth on Monday, in the Druid frigate, with deſpatches for Government. Their contents have not yet transpired, but they are ſaid to be of conſiderable moment. Capt. Cockburn was deſpatched by Admiral Keats in great haſte, immediately after a ſecret ſitting of the Cortes, in which ſome important ſubject had been diſcuſſed, and decided upon.

The Cartaret Packet, which ſailed from Cadiz on the 24th ult. has ſix paſſed us with private accounts from thence to that date, but they do not contain any material information. About 7000 of the Spaniſh army, under the command of Gen. Blake, were landed at Huelva, as we had been previously informed by the Lisbon mail; but the remainder, conſiſting of about thirteen thouſand men, under general Lidriſabel, were, in conſequence of the blowing ſtate of the weather, compelled to return; and at the laſt dates continued at Santa Petri. The veſſels in which they had embarked had received much damage in their maſts, maſts and rigging; they were nevertheleſs to follow the main body, with all poſſible haſte. It was underſtood at Cadiz, that Blake's object was to join gen. Ballaſteros, and his ſubſequent determination to move towards Elvas, is ſuppoſed to have ariſen from ſome information he had received of Ballaſteros having received a check. We fear that there is ſome truth in this report. The enemy were concentrating themſelves in conſiderable numbers, near Seville, for the ſafety of which place they had indicated ſome apprehenſion. A diviſion of 3500 men had been ſent to that city from Soult's army.

The Cambrian merchant veſſel is arrived from Buenos Ayres; whence ſhe ſailed on the 24th February. The maſter ſtates, that great diſſenſions ſtill continued in the interior, and that in ſeveral ſkirmiſhes between the contending parties, the troops of the exiſting Government had been conſiderably worſted; but this occurrence was not allowed to be made public by the Junta at Buenos Ayres. Morino, who had embarked on board the Fame, on a miſſion to Great Britain, died ſoon after his embarkation.

From the London Gazette Extraordinary.

DOWNING STREET, MAY 7, 1811.

A Diſpatch, of which the following is an Extract, was on Sunday night received at Lord Liverpool's office, addreſſed to his Lordſhip by Lieut. General Viſcount Wellington, dated Portalegre, 25th April 1811.

I have the honor to inform you, that ſince I addreſſed you, I have been in Eſtremadura, from whence I am now on my return to the troops ſtationed between the Agueda and the Coa.

I have the honour to enclose the report of Marſhal Sir William Beresford on the ſurpriſe of a ſquadron, by the 13th Light Dragoons, on the night of the 6th inſtant, together with a return of the loſs upon that occaſion.

Sir William Beresford employed the 4th diviſion, under the command of the honorable major general Cole in the attack on Olivenza, which place ſurrendered at diſcretion on the 5th inſtant. I have the honor to enclose the report of the honorable major general Cole to Sir William Beresford, and returns of ordnance, arms, &c. and priſoners taken in the place.

As Sir William Beresford deemed it deſirable to oblige the enemy to retire from the Province of Eſtremadura entirely, before he ſhould commence his operations againſt Badajos, he moved forward with this view, while major general the honorable G. L. Cole was engaged in the attack upon Olivenza, as well as to give ſupport and protection to general Ballaſteros's diviſion of Spaniſh troops, which had been obliged to retire from Freyenal ſucceſſively upon Xeres de los Caballeros and Salvatierra, on the 13th and 14th inſtant, by a diviſion of French troops under the command of general Maranſin.

The Marſhal marched on the 15th to Santa Martha, and on the 16th to Los Santos, where the Britiſh and Portuguese cavalry fell upon a body of the enemy's cavalry, and took one hundred and ſixty priſoners and killed and wounded a great many. The cavalry conducted themſelves with the utmoſt readineſs and good order.

The enemy having retired to Guadalcenal, and the corps under general Maranſin having retired through the Sierre, the troops were put in motion to return to the northward, and to take their ſtations for the operations of the ſiege of Badajoz, and the Marſhal met me at Elvas on the 21ſt.

We reconnoitred Badajoz on the 22d, eſcorted by two light battalions of the King's German Legion, & two ſquadrons of Portuguese Cavalry.

They brought three battalions out of the town, which skirmiſhed with our troops; but I have not yet received the returns of our loſs upon this occaſion.

As the preparations for the ſiege are nearly completed, the place would by this have been regularly inveſted, only that on the night of the 23d the floods in the Guadiana carried away the bridge which Sir W. Beresford had with great difficulty, conſtructed under Juramenha; and the river was no longer fordable any where. Under theſe circumſtances I yeſterday determined to delay the operations of the ſiege, till we ſhould be able to re eſtabliſh the bridge, or until the Guadiana ſhould again become fordable; ſtill keeping Badajos blockaded as cloſely as might be in his power.

Plymouth, April 29.

The Eaſt India Packet Wellefley, is juſt arrived from the Iſle of France, in only 72 days, with deſpatches for the Eaſt India Co. She brings the account of a French brig letter of marque having been taken, with important deſpatches from the French government, by the Eclipſe, 18, and Racehorſe, 18.

From Spain.—Yeſterday we received a file of Cadiz papers to the 22d of April. They are filled with the proceedings of the Cortes on interior regulations; and accounts of events in Portugal and Spain. They ſpeak of many ſucceſſes in various provinces; and the language of confidence of the final expulſion of the French never had a higher tone. The Baron de Antella was Preſident of the Cortes; and Blake, Aga and Ciscar compoſed the Regency.

Baltimore, June 16.

Arrived, ſchooner Manitus, M'Connel, 39 days from Bordeaux. Sailed from that river the 7th of May. The reports by the Manitus are, that Bonaparte was withdrawing his troops from every part of Spain, except the two northern provinces contiguous to France; that French troops were marching to the north; that there were ſtrong indications of a Ruſſian war, which was publicly ſpoken of in France—that a congreſs of the northern powers was to meet on the 2d June; that Murat is made King of Poland; and that the non importation law had been received and puniſhed in the Moniteur without comments, &c.

Philadelphia, June 17.

Arrived here the brig Financier, capt Robinſon, from Cadiz, which port ſhe left on the 4th May. Spaniſh papers to that date received at the office of the Philadelphia Gazette, contain nothing new. We are indebted for the following particulars to the politeneſs of a gentleman paſſenger.

Since the battle at Baroſa, the beſieging army before Cadiz, have been very inactive.—Deſpatches from the French commander in chief to his government are ſaid to have been intercepted and ſent to Lord Wellington; in which he acknowledged the loſs of 3000 men, in killed, wounded and miſſing, at the affair of Barola; and ſtated, that had not ſome miſunderſtanding, in regard to the co operation of the Spaniſh forces happened on that day, the ſiege muſt have been raiſed.—He now demands a reinforcement of 20,000 men to ſupport the ſiege with vigour.—It appears by the above, that the Britiſh, without almoſt any aſſiſtance from the Spaniards, oppoſed to nearly the whole force of the French at Baroſa, were victorious, but with the loſs of nearly half their troops.

Cure for the Whooping Cough.—Take one fourth of a pint of ſweet or olive oil, the ſame quantity of common leeks, cut them fine and ſimmer them moderately two or three hours; add honey ſufficient to make it palatable. A half a table ſpoonful a portion for an adult—if taken four or five times a day it will in a few days remove this diſtreſsing diſorder.

In the Ruſſians bills of mortality, during the year 1809, is counted—127 from 100 to 105 years—86 from 105 to 110—36 from 110 to 115—23 from 115 to 120.—8 from 120 to 125—6 from 125 to 130—1 from 130 to 135—1 from 135 to 140—1 from 145 to 150—2 from 155 to 160.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Second day of July next, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the fourteenth day of May last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Second day of JULY next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby commanding and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the Tenth day of August next enfuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be thereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this twenty-seventh day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this twenty-seventh day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shillings per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the last hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisions contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign.

F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS Secy.

Executive Council Office, York, 4th April, 1811.

NOTICE is hereby given, that in all Leases for the Crown and Clergy Reserves Petitioned for after this day, the Rent will be increased to Fifteen Shillings for each Lot, for the first seven years—to Thirty Shillings the second seven years, and to Forty five Shillings the third seven years. York, April 20, 1811.

From the United States Papers of June 17.

On the twenty-seventh of April last the thanks of the British House of Lords, was unanimously voted to Lord Viscount Wellington; and on the same day the thanks of the House of Commons was also voted to him with the same unanimity.—On which occasion, Mr. Canning said, he rose under strong feelings of the happy presage which the late campaign gave of the advantages which would accrue to our posterity, and the civilized world. We had now not only the honor to keep our enemy from our door, but to chase them from that of our allies, which he hoped we should never lose the power of doing. He heard a rumour that France itself had thown its disconcerted, but he was afraid it was rather premature, although it might be expected hereafter; but the effect it would produce in other parts might be easily anticipated, and another Austerlitz or Jena, might produce consequences different from the former. He expected much from Spain now, which it would have done already, had not their foolish councils misled them two years ago; another glorious opportunity was now offered them.

General Tarleton, though he could not concur in the vote of thanks given to the Noble Lord for the battle of Talavera, entirely concurred in that now proposed. With English courage, Irish spirit, and Scotch intrepidity, under such a commander, every thing was to be expected, and the result had shown, that against such troops the Invincibles of France were not only not invincible, but could not stand.

Gen. Ferguson was convinced there could be but one opinion of the gallantry of our army in Portugal, and of the heroism of its commander. He could not add any thing to the praise of either. He had only to repeat, that there could be but one opinion on the subject: and though his mind was imprssed with full admiration of the late achievements in Portugal, he must say he had not been surprized, having expected nothing else from such a commander and such an army. He never gave a vote with more satisfaction than he now did in support of the resolution.

Lord G. Grenville concurred, not in the vote merely, but in every sentiment of gratitude and admiration which had been expressed, both as to the noble Lord and his gallant army.

LONDON.

We understand that the loan will be at least nineteen millions. An attempt is to be made, in the first instance, to raise the Irish loan in Ireland, before the English loan is made; and if it shall be found impracticable, then the whole loan will be made at once, not as heretofore, referring a part to be taken conditional by the contractors.

The new taxes in contemplation are said to be,

1. Upon pottery and porcelain, which from its cheapness and universal use, it is thought will bear an annual duty of 800,000l.

2. A tax upon Swedish and Baltic timber, as an encouragement to our colonies.

3. An equaliz[illegible] of the duties upon sugar and barley used in distillation, supposed to produce 300,000l.

RUSSIA.

It is known that Caulincourt, the French Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburgh, had been recalled under pretence of ill health. It was not until the arrival of the Anholt mail to day, we were informed of the real source of his Excellency's disgrace; which we are fully assured, is on account of letters to him from his court, having been intercepted, which had in contemplation the life of the Emperor Alexander. His aid-de-camp was implicated in the plot, and has been actually sent off to Siberia.

Warsaw, Feb. 20. Two couriers have arrived here from Constantinople. The 56 officers, 400 men, 16 pieces of cannon, besides ammunition, swords and fire arms.

intelligence they bring is extremely interesting. All letters agree in stating, that the Wechabites continue to be very formidable enemies to the Porte. The number of their partizans which at present is great, augments daily in Asiatic Turkey.

Semlin, March 1. There is still much inquietude at Constantinople. These exists among the janissaries a fermentation, and an explosion is feared every day. The Ottoman ministers are obliged to have recourse to the most severe measures in imprisoning and decapitating some of the mutineers.

The last sitting of the Servian national assembly was boisterous. The question relative to the occupation of Servia by the Russians was discussed with much heat by the different parties into which the nation is divided.

Vienna, March 5. The Russians are not only at present in possession of Belgrade, but have also placed garrisons in all the strong places of Servia. Czerni Georges has lost his command, which causes much discontent in the Servian army, accustomed to fight and to conquer under his orders.

St. Petersburgh March 5. We learn by despatches from the commandant of the Moldavian army, that the troops which are on the other side of the Danube, under the order of the Adjutant General Count de St. Priest, took by assult on the 12th of Feb. from the Turks, the town of Lowischa.—The garrison which consisted of about 15,000 men, defended themselves with the most determined obstinacy, and continued the contest even after the Russians had entered the town. The enemy lost the greater part of his troops, and according to the first reports, were taken 1,200 prisoners, a mongst whom are the Ayan of Nicopoli, and upwards of 20 officers of distinguished rank. The number of killed and wounded on the part of the Russians does not exceed 300 men.—We found in the place 14 pieces of artillery, 44 stand of colours, and a considerable quantity of provisions and ammunition.

In the event of hostilities with America, we may expect an entire revolution in our commercial relations.—No vessel can proceed without convoy, for it is incalculable the quantity of tonnage that the American States can fit out for privateering. The sea will swarm with these depredators; and it will require half our navy to protect our trade. This is precisely what Bonaparte wishes—but unfortunately, our own navy with it too, for at present they are idle.

We sincerely lament to state that a fire broke out in Montego Bay, on Sunday night last, which consumed a most valuable and extensive part of the town. The following is an extract of a letter to a gentleman in this city, the 29th of May.

"I am sorry to inform you that a very unfortunate circumstance has happened here by a fire which broke out last evening about eleven o'clock, thro' the carelessness of a drunken sailor, who having a light in his hand, set fire to some thavings, in a yard of Hill's the chair-maker; the place was immediately in a blaze, and the following houses confumed: from John Gordier's corner to Homer and Dewer's from that to the large tavern, including from Beninger's to Messrs. Hmay's, which comprised Messrs. Alexander Davidson, Cummings, and Spence's house next to the latter unoccupied, Andrew's wharf, John Fray's wharf, and the house at the corner belonging to Mess. Hmay; from Henry Pat's corner to Gallant's, the tailor, and all that square.—I am happy to say, that a good deal of goods have been saved."

Accounts from the 19th of April from Vera Cruz state, that a body of revolutionists in Mexico had been routed by 800 of the viceroy's party, with the loss of their leader, Herrera,

Extract of a letter from Plymouth.

"His Majesty's ship Amelia has anchored here, after a favourable cruize of three months to Madeira, the Canaries and Western Islands, I have great pleasure in communicating an account of the capture of the French corvette Le Charles, of 22 guns and 170 men, commanded by Monsieur A. P. Marriaud, in lat. 44 42 N. & long. 21 23 W. after running 144 miles in 13 hours.

"About ten in the morning saw a strange sail a-head standing towards us, but on seeing our fore top gallant yard hoisted and crossed, she tacked and stood from us, crowding all the sail she could carry, having studding sails, royals, and a large ring tail. This being evidently the conduct of an enemy, we lost no time in commencing a spirited chace, and from the superior excellence of this ship, in point of sailing, we gained on her confiderably by noon. About 6 P. M. the enemy carried away his main top gallant mast, & fore top mast studding sail booms which appeared confiderably to embarrass him, and enabled us to get within gun shot of him by ten at night—on perceiving this and no chance left of escaping (it being a clear and moonlight night) the shortened sail & hove to, and ran along side and hailed him, when he hauled down a light which had been suspended at the mizen peak, and said "he had struck his colours." The only prize he had made was the Americana, a large and very valuable Brazil merchant ship, bound to London, which we are happy to find, has been retaken by the Dryad frigate. When the Americana was captured the enemy allowed the capt. to remain on board her with his wife, but took out the crew and despatched her to the first French port she could make. It is impossible to describe the joy and gratitude testified by the Portuguese on being retaken, considering themselves on the day before, doomed to a long and tedious imprisonment.

"La Charles had been only 50 days off the flocks when taken; was 35 day out from L'Orient, and on her first cruize. She is copper bottomed and fastened, is a strong built ship, one of the largest of her class, a beautiful model, is upwards of 300 tons burthen well found in every kind of stores, and is what seamen term 'a good sea boat.' She had been chased by a line of battle ship, a frigate, and a sloop of war; all of which she easily eluded; but when we chased her, there being a heavy sea and it was blowing strong, she met with the accident before described; without which the chace would have been confiderably prolonged, if she had not effected her escape."

QUEBEC, June 20.

Yesterday his Excellency Sir James Henry Craig, Governor General of British North America, embarked on board the Amelia frigate for England. The embarkation took place at three o'clock in the afternoon, and perhaps never on a similar occasion was such a ceremony better conducted, or furnished a scene more solemn and interesting. The garrison formed an unbroken avenue in close order, from the Chateau to the landing place, a distance of half a mile, each regiment having its colours and music in the centre of its line. The moment the carriage was brought to the door, a number of the inhabitants of Quebec, having yellow cockades in their hats, (his Excellency's state colour) unharnessed the horses, and in conveying their illustrious charge over the last piece of Canadian territory he had to pass, mixed in a suitable manner, triumph to sadness. As his Excellency passed on the troops presented arms, and the bands of music played different national airs. His Excellency was received at the place of embarkation by captain Irby, and after addressing in an appropriate manner, the worthy men who had paid him the last service he was ever to receive in this Province, he gave signs of embarrassment for the first time since his residence amongst us. His heart was full; and his calm and martial look subdued for an instant. He was not only about for to terminate an administration marked throughout by pure intentions and successful results; he was closing for ever a long career of useful public life; he was taking leave of a whole community, whose esteem he had justly won; and looking for the last time on a few who had been his companions in arms in various quarters of the world, and particularly on one, who long since, and through many of the changes of his life, had enjoyed his entire confidence and friendship.

A salute of nineteen guns from the Grand Battery gave the last farewell of the country. He was conveyed to the frigate, and received with yards manned in the usual manner, and a salute as Vice Admiral of British North America. The shipping had all their colours displayed, and a transport vessel repeated the salute in a most spirited manner.

AUGUSTUS PENTHENY, Esq.

Who died in an obscure lodging in Leesen street, Dublin, on the 23d of November last, was a miser of the most perfect drawing. From the low and laborious condition of a journeyman cooper, he accumulated the enormous sum of 30,000l. in the funds of Antigua and St. Croix. He was born in the village of Longwood, County of Meath, and was very early in life encouraged to make a voyage to the West Indies, to follow his trade, under the patronage of his maternal uncle another adventurer, of the name of Caynot, better known among his neighbors by the name of Peter Big Brogues, from the enormous shoes he was mounted in on the day he set out on his travels: Peter acquired an immense fortune, and lived to see his only child married to Sir G. Colebrook, chairman to the East India Company, and a banker in London, to whom Peter gave with his daughter £200,000.

Mr. A. Pentheny saw mankind early thro' one medium; his vital powers were so diverted from generous or social objects, by the prevailing passions of gold that he could discover no trait in any character, however venerable or respectable, that was not secunded by riches; in fact, any one that was not rich he considered as an inferior animal, neither worthy of notice, nor safe to be admitted into society. This extraordinary feeling he extended to female society, and, if possible, with a greater degree of disgust. A woman he considered only as an incumbrance on a man of property, and therefore he could never be prevailed on to admit one into his confidence. Wedlock he utterly and uniformly rejected.—His wife was the public funds, and his children guineas; and no parent or husband paid more deference or care to the comforts of his family. He was never known to separate his immense hoard by rewarding a noble action or alleviating a premature or accidental misfortune by the application of one shilling to such purposes. It could scarcely be expected he would bestow a gift or extend a gratitude to others, he was so niggard of comforts to himself. The evening before he died, some holy friend sent a respectable physician to him, at which the old miser showed no apparent dislike, until he recollected the doctor might expect a fee; this alarmed him, and he immediately rained himself in bed, and addressed the physician as follows: "Doctor I am a strong man and know my disorder, and could cure myself; but as Mr. Nangle has sent you to my assistance, I shall not exchange you for any other person, if you can come to an understanding; in short I wish to know what you will charge for your attendance until I am recovered?" The doctor answered 8 guineas. "Ah, sir (said the old man) if you knew my disorder you would not be so exhorbitant! but to put an end to this discussion, I will give you 6 guineas and a half." The doctor assented, and the patient

From the New York Spectator.

War.—It is so long since this word has been sounding at a distance, and so many years since we have experienced the misery and distress attendant on a state of actual hostility with any nation, that many have concluded we are never to be involved in war, and that America is exempt from this the greatest evil which human nature is heir to. But we have well grounded fears that the time is not far distant when have will be the cry, and when the dogs of war will be let loose upon this so long favored country. We would not disturb our fellow citizens with unnecessary and false alarms; we would not frighten them with frivolous reports, and unfounded surmises; God forbid that we should make a mock of miles of fraud. But there are times when it becomes our bounden duty to sound the trumpet, and to summon our brethren to the work of war, that they may be ready to defend themselves, their wives and their little ones against the murdering hand of the destroyer. Such a time appears to be now approaching;—and we give this notice, that our friends may not be caught slumbering in the hour of danger. The preliminations of our country cannot long continue. Things are progressing fast to a crisis. War seems to be inevitable. We must either wage it, or cease to be a nation,—there appears to be no alternative left us. And this war, independent of the calamities naturally arising from a state of hostility, is of the utmost consequence to our country. It must eventuate in the permanent establishment, or the annihilation of the nation. There is no middle way—We fall in honor, power and stability, and fix ourselves on high and permanent ground, or we sink in insignificance and contempt, never more to rise.

By every thing which has been received from France for many months, it appears that there is but one thing which this country can do to satisfy the emperor. We cannot be considered as a favoured nation, unless we will make war on England. This has been the opinion of thinking men for a long time; and many would not believe it; and others who knew it, declared it was not the case. It is now our duty to state, that hostility towards Great Britain is the only condition on which the emperor will condescend to tender us the fraternal embrace, & that he will accept of our friendship on no other. We must also state, though we cannot at this time name our authority, that this condition has been made known officially to our government, and a categorical answer demanded. What kind of an answer our government has given, we know not; but it is probable that the new instructions to our naval commanders have grown out of this demand, and that Commodore Rodgers's rencontre with the Little Belt, was in consequence of those instructions.—These things will undoubtedly be denied by the friends of the Emperor, and the supporters of the present administration; but time, which often diffuses light into dark transactions, will show to the credulous that this statement is not materially incorrect.

However willing our administration may be to gratify the Emperor and to "conform themselves to his decrees," they would not in the present condition of the country declare war. They have no course left therefore, but to attempt to provoke the British to make war on us; and in this we fear they may be but too successful. We hope, however, that a kind and over ruling Providence, may disappoint them;—but we must warn the public to be vigilant; for they may rest assured that all it not well at Washington.

Some of the farms at Onondago carry strong evidence of possession by the Europeans, at a time considerably remote from the present. Iron, brass, and copper have been ploughed up in considerable quantities. Utensils made of these metals have been frequently found. Locks, and other parts of guns, kettles, and religious medallions, are met with commonly enough. There are likewise the remains of human dwellings, known by the bottoms of palisados yet found in the earth, by the ruins of cellars and foundations, and by the heaps evidently raised by the labour of men. Skulls, and other human bones are also found in such plenty and preservation as to afford satisfactory proofs that men must have died there in great numbers, at a time not sufficiently distant for their bones to have crumbled to dust.

It has not yet been generally understood what population it was which has left behind it so many vestiges of settlement and of art. Onondago was a central and famous place among the Iroquois. This nation consisted of 5 tribes; the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondigus, Cayugas and Senecas. They were very powerful, and extended their sway over a great tract of country in all directions. They waged war with the Algonquins and Hurons; they carried their expeditions to the lands of the Miamis and Potowatarates; they spread the terror of their arms among the Mohegans, and they committed murder and other mischief in Pensylvania, Maryland and Virginia. They appear to have advanced further towards a federative or all state government than any people of North America; for in matters of such general consequence as to affect all the tribes, their respective sachems held a general meeting for deliberation on their common concerns. Onondago was the place for these assemblies. It was about midway between the villages of Mohawks and Senecas; and this central situation was the seat of their national government.

To this seat of population and business, the Europeans turned their attention, soon after their colonies were established. Yet I have not found so much historical information on the subject, as might have been expected.—From Colden, the professed historian of the five Nations, very little can be derived. He seems to have known nothing of the remains of former settlements, now rendered so familiar. But CHARLEVOIX, the historian of New France, has recorded some events and proceedings which throw light upon this dark portion of time. He relates, (Tom. I. Liv. 7. p. 320) that in 1654. father Le Moyne was first sent by the French Governour of Canada, to Onondago. His errand was political: he was to carry Commissioned in the name of the Governor General, to ratify a treaty then depending. In 1655, two other missionaries, fathers Chaumonnat and Dablon, were sent thither.—They arrived at Onondago on the 5th November, that year.

In 1656, a project was formed of a French colony at Onondago; and fifty Frenchmen, under the command of the Sieur Dupuys, were assigned to the service. They arrived, after encountering great difficulties.

The Salt Lake was then known by the name of Gannentaha. There were grand ceremonies at the castle on the arrival of these adventurers. In 1658, the, secretly withdrew, and abandoned their settlement, being alarmed for their safety.

In the autumn of 1661, father Le Moyne was again sent to Onondago, and perfuaded the great chief Garatonthie to accompany him to Quebec;

Lateſt Intelligence.

LONDON, May 10.

An Anholt Mail arrived this morning, but the intelligence brought by it is unimportant. It affords no confirmation of the reported hoſtilities at Colberg between the French and Pruſſians: indeed Government have received intelligence from that quarter of a date long ſubſequent to the day on which the action is ſaid to have taken place, and in which no mention of ſuch an occurrence is made.

The Turks have rejected all offers of accommodations on the part of Ruſſia. The following article alludes to ſome diſturbances at Bagdad which ſeem to threaten ſerious conſequences.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 5

We now know, in a circumſtantial manner, the events which preceded, and followed the depoſition of the Pacha of Bagdad ——The Grand Seignior had depoſed Soliyman Pacha, and ſent 10,000 men to reduce him to obedience. On the 24th Sept. the Janiſſaries ſeized upon the Caſtle of Bagdad, from which they fired, without intermiſſion, upon the Seraglio, in order to force him to quit it. All his troops were without the town and he had with him but 60 Georgian ſlaves. In this interval the town was given up to plunder; undiſciplined troops ſpread themſelves throughout the ſtreets, and maſſacred, without diſtinction, all whom they met. In this extremity the Pacha, not wiſhing to fall into the hands of the Janiſſaries, addreſſed himſelf to the Georgians, and as a favour requeſted they would kill him. This inflamed their courage and furniſhed with two pieces of artillery, they made a ſortie and in the end ſucceeded in again ſeizing upon the Caſtle.

A domeſtic of the Engliſh Conſul loſt on this occaſion, the effects he was conducting to his maſter. The Capidge Pacha, who the Porte had ſent againſt, refuſing any amicable propoſitions, Soliyman took the reſolution of aſſembling his troops, and with 8000 men attacked the Capidge Pacha, but his own ſoldiers betrayed him and deſerted after having pilliged his treaſury. Not more than 500 men remained with him. He ſaved himſelf with 40 Georgians among the Bedouins who offered him the rights of hoſpitality, but he was the victim of his confidence. They cut off his head, which on the 8th October, they ſent to Capidge Pacha.

On the 30th the latter made his entry into the town, where the Kurdes committed the greateſt diſorders—many women were violated, the inhabitants thrown into the Tigris, and the partiſans of Soliyman ſtrangled.

VIENNA, April 3.

Letters from Turkey ſtate, that the Grand Vizier had ſent two ſtrong diviſions of his army to Sophia, where a this moment are aſſembling a large corps d'armes, whoſe deſtination is not known. The army of the Grand Vizier conſiſted of 210,000 men, after detaching theſe two corps.

The Grand Vizier, it is ſaid remains upon the defenſive, in his camp at Schumla. The Captain Pacha has returned from his miſſion into Minor Aſia; the fleets will be conſiderably augmented. The ſailors from Alia have already arrived at their deſtination.

The accounts by the Seaflower, which left Lisbon on the 1ſt inſtant, ſtate that Lord Wellington had returned to Celerico. It was not his intention to beſiege Almeida, but to perſiſt in the blockade, in order to avoid deſtroying the works of that important fortreſs. It is alſo ſaid that Ciudad Rodrigo was to be inveſted. The French troops which had again approached the Portuguese frontiers were underſtood at Liſbon to be thoſe lately under Beſſieres, about 7000 in number, including 1400 of the Imperial Guards. Theſe had been tranſferred to Maſſena, and Beſſieres had returned into the interior with the hoſtileſtives of Maſſena's army.

Mortier, it is aſſerted, is recalled, on account of ſome differences between him and Marſhal Soult. A full expectation prevailed among the Engliſh troops at Cadiz, that the beſieging army before the place would abandon their fortifications, ſome night favourable to their purpoſe, and make a precipitate retreat. The whole garriſon, and the ſhips in the Bay were on the watch to make ſuch a movement as deſtructive as poſſible to the enemy.

Various ineffectual attempts had been made by the French, at a laſt reſource, to raiſe Spaniſh brigades in the provinces of Aſturias and Biscay, and in the North of Catalonia.

It was conſidently believed at Liſboo, that the French were, in every direction from the Weſt, preparing to collect their troops in a time commencing North at Burgos, and terminating South at Toledo, preparatory to their falling back on the left Bank of the Ebro.

A letter from Portſmouth ſtates, that an order has been received from Government, to detain all American veſſels bound to France.

NEW YORK, June 26.

On Sunday afternoon, arrived off Sandy Hook, the Britiſh ſloop of war Sapphire, from Bermuda, and yeſterday an officer belonging to her came up to town with deſpatches relative to the affair between the United States frigate Preſident, and the Britiſh ſloop of war Little Belt. We underſtand they conſiſt of an official letter from Admiral Sawyer, including Captain Bingham's letter, containing a minute and circumſtantial detail of what took place from the moment he deſcried the Preſident to the cloſe of the battle which terminated ſo diſaſtrouſly to his ſhip.—The deſpatches were ſent on to Mr. Merrier, the Britiſh Miniſter at Waſhington, by yeſterday's mail.

To the politeneſs of a mercantile friend we are indebted for the following copy of Captain Bingham's Letter to Admiral Sawyer, giving the particulars of the late rencounter between the United States frigate Preſident, and his Britannic Majeſty's ſloop of war Little Belt.—We underſtand it was received here on Monday by the ſchooner Virginia Packet, in three days from Norfolk. [Even. Poſt.

"Sir—I beg leave to acquaint you, that in purſuance of your orders to join his Majeſty's ſhip Guerrier, and being on my return from the north ward, not having fallen in with her—That about 11 A. M. ſaw a ſtrange ſail, to which I immediately gave chaſe. At 1 P. M. diſcovered her to be a man of war, apparently a frigate, ſtanding to the eaſtward, who, when he made us out, edged away from us, and ſet his royals. Made the ſignal 275, and finding it not anſwered, concluded ſhe was an American frigate, as ſhe had a Commodore's blue pendant flying at the main. Hoiſted the colours and made all fair ſouth, the courſe I intended to ſteer round Cape Hatteras; the ſtranger edging away but not making any more ſail. At 3 3/4 he made ſail in chaſe, when I made the private ſignal which was not anſwered. At 6 50, finding he gained ſo conſiderable on us as not to be able to elude him, during the night, being within gun ſhot, and clearly diſcerning the ſtars in his broad pendant. I imagined the moſt prudent method was, to bring to and hoiſt the colours that no miſtake might ariſe, and that he might ſee what we were. The ſhip was therefore brought too, her colours hoiſted, her guns double ſhotted, and every preparation made in caſe of a ſurpriſe. By his manner of bearing down, he evidently wiſhed to lay me ſhip in a poſition for raking, which I fruſtrated by wearing three times. About 8 15 he came within hail.—I hailed, and aſked what ſhip it was?—He repeated my queſtion. I again hailed, and aſked what ſhip it was? He again repeated my words, and fired a broad ſide, which I inſtantly returned. The action then became general, and continued ſo for three quarters of an hour, when he ceaſed firing, and appeared to be on fire about the main hatchway. He then filled—I was obliged to deſiſt from firing, as the ſhip falling off, no gun would bear, and had no after ſails to keep her too. All the rigging and ſails cut to pieces; not a brace nor a bowline left.—He hailed and aſked what ſhip this was? I told him—He then aſked me if I had ſtruck my colours? My anſwer was No, and aſked what ſhip it was? As plain as I could underſtand (he having got ſome diſtance at this time) he anſwered, The United States frigate. He fired no more guns, but ſtood from us, giving no reaſon for his moſt extraordinary conduct.

At day light in the morning, ſaw a ſhip to windward, when having made out well what we were, bore up and paſſed within hail fully prepared for action. About 8 o'clock he hailed and ſaid, if I pleaſed, he would ſend a boat on board; I replied in the affirmative, and a boat accordingly came with an officer and a meſſage from Commodore Rogers of the Preſident of the United States, to ſay that he lamented much the unfortunate affair (as he termed it) that had happened, and that had he known her force was ſo inferior he ſhould not have fired at me. I aſked his motive for having fired at all? His reply was that "we fired the firſt gun at him;" which was poſitively not the caſe. I cautioned both the officers and men to be particularly careful, and not to ſuffer any more than one man to be at the gun. Nor is it probable that a ſloop of war, within piſtol ſhot of a large 44 gun frigate ſhould commence hoſtilities. He offered me every aſſiſtance I ſtood in need of, and ſubmitted to me that I had better put into one of the ports of the U. States, which I immediately declined.

By the manner in which he apologized it appeared to me evident that he had failed in with a Britiſh frigate he would certainly have brought her to action. And what further confirms me in that opinion is, that his guns were not only loaded with round and grape ſhot, but with every ſcrap of iron that could poſſibly be collected.

I have to lament the loſs of thirty-two men killed and wounded, among whom is the maſter.

His Majeſty's ſhip is much damaged in her maſts, ſails, rigging and hull, and as there are many ſhot through between wind and water, and many ſhots ſtill remaining inſide, and upper works all ſhot away, ſtarboard pump alſo, I have judged it proper to proceed to Halifax, which will I hope meet with your approbation.

I cannot ſpeak in too high terms of the officers and men I have the honor to command, for their ſteady and active conduct throughout the whole of this buſineſs, who had much to do, as a gale of wind came on the ſecond night after the action. I have to requeſt, Sir, that you will be pleaſed to recommend to the notice of my Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty my firſt Lieutenant, Mr. John Molenly, who is in every reſpect a moſt excellent officer, and afforded me great aſſiſtance in ſtopping the leak himſelf in the gale, ſecuring the maſts and doing every thing in his power. It would be the greateſt injuſtice was I not to ſpeak moſt highly of Lieutenant Lovell, ſecond Lieutenant, of Mr. M'Queen, maſter, who as I have before ſtated, was wounded in the right arm, in nearly the middle of the action, and Mr. Wilſon, Maſter's Mate; indeed the conduct of every officer and man was ſo good that it was impoſſible in me to diſcriminate.

I beg leave to incloſe a liſt of the thirty two men killed and wounded, moſt of them mortally I fear.

I hope, Sir, in this affair, I ſhall appear to have done my duty, and to have conducted myſelf as I ought to have done againſt ſo ſuperior a force, and that the honor of the Britiſh colours was well ſupported.

I have the honor to be, Sir, with much reſpect, your moſt obedient humble ſervant,

A. B. BINGHAM, Captain.

To Herbert Sawyer, Eſqr. Rear Admiral of the Red, Commander in Chief, &c. &c. &c.

From Madrazs.—Capt. Thompſon, who arrived at this port yeſterday forenoon, in 108 days from Madraſs, informs that an expedition was fitting out there by the Britiſh under the command of Admiral Drury, for the purpoſe of going againſt the iſland of Java.—The troops were to conſiſt of 12 000, principally natives, under the command of Gen. Abercrombie, and were to ſail about the middle of April.

Capt. Savre, who arrived at Philadelphia on Sunday laſt from Jeremie, reports, that buſineſs was very dull, no produce of any kind worth notice, and caſh extremely ſcarce. The Brigands were committing murder every day. Chriſtophe was fighting againſt Petion, and Petion againſt Rigaud; the Brigands that inhabit the mountains were carrying on a moſt cruel war againſt Rigaud and his adherents; Chriſtophe was blockaded at Gonave and the Cape, for hoiſting a man on board a Britiſh frigate's boat.

Lateſt from Spain.—Captain Pratt, of the ſhip Otho, who arrived this morning, in 45 days from Cadiz, was informed juſt before he ſailed that the Spaniſh Cortes had received deſpatches from their miniſter at St. Petersburgh, ſtating that the Emperor of Ruſſia had declared war againſt France. There were great rejoicings at Cadiz on account of the taking of Figeura, which had lately fallen into the hands of the Spaniards, with 1500 priſoners, and a vaſt quantity of military ſtores, ſaid to be valued at a million of dollars.

An action was fought on the 19th of March off the iſland of Liſſi, between a French and Italian fleet, of 5 frigates, 1 corvette, 1 brig, 2 ſchooners, 1 gun boat, and 1 zebec; and the Britiſh frigates Cerberus, Amphion, Active, and Volage, which laſted 6 hours; one of the French frigates was burnt, and two were taken—the remainder eſcaped. The Britiſh loſt in officers and ſeamen, 50 killed, and 150 wounded.

In a Paris paper of the 6th inſt. it is ſtated, that the diviſion of the army lately under the command of the duke of Eichingen (Ney) is to be put under the orders of the Duke of Raguſa, (Marmont.) This appears to us to confirm the long reported recal of Ney from his command in Spain.

French papers to the 13th, and letters from the Dutch coaſt to the 8th inſt. have arrived. The former ſtate the arrival of Ney at Paris, but aſſign no reaſon for his return. By an article from Vienna it appears that the Grand Vizier has been deprived of the command of the Ottoman armies, on account of his age and infirmities. His ſucceſſor is ſaid to be a man of ability and courage.

The letters from Holland ſtate, that the French troops were expected to be withdrawn from that country, but whether they would be marched to Spain or the North of Europe was not particularly known.

The miniſter opened what is called his annual budget on Monday laſt, & this important day once the object of ſo much dread to the Britiſh nation. paſſed over without exciting any alarm or uneaſineſs. Nothing was ſaid about new taxes, but on the contrary, an old tax was taken off, againſt all ordinary precedent and general expectation.

Cambrian, off Roſas, April 16, 1811.

SIR—I have great pleaſure in ſending to you, by the Bloſſom, the important intelligence of the ſurrender of Figueras to the Spaniards, on the 10th inſt. and that St. Philion and Palamos were taken poſſeſſion of by the Cambrian and Volontaire on the 12th and 14th, the guns all embarked, and the batteries deſtroyed. I am now on my way to Roſas and Cadequis, and I have reaſon to hope the latter place, with Silva, will alſo ſhortly be ours.

The fall of the Figueras has rouſed the Spaniards who are arming in every direction, and Hoſtalrich and Gerona are at this moment garriſoned by Spaniſh troops. The only correct account I can learn is, that 400 Italians with 200 French troops were left to proteſt Figueras, and that the former, diſguſted with the treatment they daily received from the French, and being alſo half ſtarved, opened the gates of the fortreſs to a body of Spaniſh troops, (apprized of their intentions) who ruſhed into the caſtle and put the Frenchmen to the ſword.

At this moment about 2000 effective Spaniſh troops are in poſſeſſion of this important place; and Gen. Sarſfield is on his way with more, as well as ſupplies of every kind.

The French General D'Hilliers, who has the command in Catalonia, on hearing of the fall of Figueras, has abandoned all his holds in Spain, except Barcelona, and is collecting the whole of his force to attack it, as well as to prevent ſupplies getting in; but I am told that a quantity of proviſions was concealed in the town, unknown to the French, which have been given up to the Spaniſh troops in the Caſtle, who are in the higheſt ſpirits poſſible.

The Kerm-gant continues to watch Barcelona, and I ſuppoſe remaining off here with the Volontaire, ready for any thing that may offer; as under all the exiſting circumſtances, I think it likely Roſas may give up.

I alſo beg to inform you, that a large ſettee, deeply laden with grain for Barcelona from Port vendee, was the night before laſt cut out from under the Medes iſland and batteries by the boats of this ſhip, led on by Lieut. Conolly, without a man being hurt.

I beg leave to offer you my congratulations on the fall of Figueras, and the fair proſpect it opens.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) CHAS. BULLEN.

Admiral Sir Charles Cotton, Bart.

P. S. Since writing the above I ſpoke a ſmall boat from Begar, which tells me the French General had made a 24th attempt to recover Figueras two days ſince, and loſt 700 more.

Lord Wellington's Deſpatch.

DOWNING STREET, May 25.

Lord Liverpool has juſt received deſpatches from Lord Wellington, dated the 8th and 10th May. The Park and Tower guns have been fired in conſequence of the victory thoſe deſpatches announce. The following Bulletin has been ſent to the lord Mayor, and poſted on the Mansionhouſe, and at Lloyd's:—

DOWNING STREET, May 25, 1811.

"MY LORD,

"Deſpatches have been received from Lord Wellington, of the 8th and 10th inſt. by which it appears that the enemy's whole army conſiſting of the 2d, 6th and 8th corps, and all the cavalry which could be collected in Caſtile and Leon, including 900 of the Imperial Guards, together with ſome of the battalions of the 9th corps croſſed the Agueda at Ciudad Rodrigo on the 2d inſtant, and on the 3d and 5th, made two deſperate attacks on the Britiſh army, for the purpoſe of relieving Almeida. The conteſt, though very ſevere, eſpecially on the 5th, terminated in the complete repulſe of the enemy, and in the allied army continuing to hold its poſition.

"On the 7th, at night, the French army retired from the poſition which it had occupied on the preceding day at Duas Casas.

"On the 8th, the enemy continued their retreat to the woods between Galligos, Eſpeja, and Fuentes del Honor. On the 9th they croſſed the Agueda, and on the 10th, the Agueda, leaving Almeida to its fate. In the action of the 3d of May, the Britiſh loſs conſiſted of 22 killed, and 171 wounded; that of the Portugueſe to 14 killed and 33 wounded. On the 5th, the Britiſh loſs conſiſted of 148 killed, and 872 wounded; the Portugueſe loſs, 50 killed, and 158 wounded. The number of the allies miſſing in the two days amounted to 320.

"The enemy's loſs appears to have been great in killed, wounded and priſoners; but no return has been tranſmitted of the exact amount. I have the honor, &c.

LIVERPOOL."

"To the Lord Mayor."

The 3d regiment of Guards ſuffered ſeverely.—Lt. Col. Hill, of that regiment, is wounded and taken priſoner. Lieut. Col. Cameron is alſo among the badly wounded. The loſs of the Allies is 1,774 killed, wounded and miſſing. The enemy are ſuppoſed to have loſt about 7000 killed, wounded and priſoners.

POSTSCRIPT.

Tuesday night, 10 o'clock.

Corroboration. We have juſt received information, that capt. Kempton has arrived in Salem, from Lisbon, bringing papers to May 27th. The news from Oporto is corroborated, Marſhal Soult has been beaten by Marſhal Beresford, at Albuera, the 16th May.—French loſs, 7000—allied army 4000. Generals Ruffin and Girard, and one other French General, killed, and three wounded.—Of the allied army General Houghton killed. Generals Stewart and Cole, wounded. —The French retreated in the night after the battle, followed by Beresford's army.

Lord Wellington writes from Villa Formoſa 15th May, that the French garriſon at Almeida, had blown up the walls, and cut their way through the blockading lines.

A letter from Lisbon, May 28th, ſays, "A leu de joie is ſtring on account of the victory at Albuhera."—N. Y. Spect.

BOSTON, July 2.

Extract of a letter from Newburyport.

"This day arrived the ſhip Harriet, Captain Chaſe, 34 days from Oporto, which he left the 26th of May. He confirms generally the accounts of the battle near Almeida, but ſtates the loſs as much larger. I received a letter by this veſſel from a brother at Oporto, dated the 23d of May. It ſtates, that the French have alſo been defeated in another quarter. The letter follows:

"Oporto, May 23.

"This is a poor place to gain correct information from the armies. There are, however, letters in town to day from officers in Beresford's army, ſaying they had a very ſevere battle on the 16th, with Soult, and entirely diſperſed his army—that the French loſt 14 000 men, 3 Generals killed and 2 priſoners—that the Engliſh acknowledge the loſs of 8000. Almeida has ſurrendered to Lord Wellington, at which place he now is.

"From the various reports it is impoſſible to make any accurate calculations reſpecting the movements of the army. It is however generally thought that Lord Wellington will move to the Southward.

Extract of a letter from Charleſton, received in Baltimore, by the Editor of the Federal Republican, dated the 25th of June.

"The brig South Carolina, has juſt arrived from Teneriffe, which left there the 2d of June, on which day an expreſs has been received by the governor, giving an account of a ſanguinary battle having been fought near Seville on the 16th May, between Marſhal Beresford & the French army under Soult.—The French were ſtated to have been nearly annihilated—the allies are ſaid to have loſt 14 000 men and 20 general officers. The capt. and paſſengers of the South Carolina ſtate, that they heard the Gazette read, but could not procure a copy—they alſo confirm the account of the defeat of Maſſena's army on the 5th.

By the arrival, yeſterday, of the ſchr. Nymph, Captain Contony, from Lisbon, we have received the Britiſh official account of the battles near Almeida. It is contained in a long letter from Lord Wellington, dated at Villa Formoso, May 8; and gives the details of every transaction which took place from the 3d to the 8th of May. We have only time to notice the following:—In the battle of the 3d of May, the allied armies had 1 capt. 1 lieut. 2 ſerjeants, and 32 privates killed; 1 lieut. col. 4 captains, 10 lieut's, 5 enſigns, 2 officers of the etat major, 11 ſerjeant, and 170 privates wounded; 1 ſerjeant, and 21 ſoldiers miſſing;—In the action of May 5, the Portugueſe had 5 ſerjeants and 44 privates killed; 1 lieu. col. 2 lieut's, 11 ſerjeants, 140 privates wounded; 1 ſerjeant, 43 privates miſſing; the Engliſh loſt 1 cap. 7 lieut's, 3 ſerjeant's, 2 musicians; 129 privates killed; 3 generals of the ſtaff, 1 lieut. col. 4 Majors, 15 captains, 21 lieut's 7 enſigns, 25 ſtaff officers, 50 ſerjeants 4 musicians, and 760 privates wounded; 1 lieut. col. 2 captains, 3 lieut's, 1 enſign, 8 ſerjeants, and 226 privates miſſing. Among the wounded were Gen. Nightingale, ſlightly; Major Meyer, do.; Lieut. Col. Cameron, badly; Major Beck, ſlightly; Lieut Col. Williams, do.; Lieut. col. Hill, miſſing. The account adds, that the French failed in every object of purſuit, and were finally compelled to retire, with great loſs.

A private letter from Lisbon, of 16th May, gives the following: A ſevere battle has been recently fought on our frontiers, near Almeida, by the two grand armies, commanded by Lord Wellington, and Marſhal Maſſena. The latter attacked with the view of ſaving Almeida; but was repulſed in every charge. On both ſides the loſs has been conſiderable. The garriſon of Almeida, deſpairing of holding it, blew up the fortifications, and a part of the garriſon effected their eſcape. This event leaves Portugal once more free from the rapacity of the French, who do not now poſſeſs an inch of ground in the country.

Captain Couthony ſtates, that the French loſt upwards of 12,000 men in the battles of the 3d and 5th of May.

The frigates Eſſex and Minerva, with Mr. Pinkney and Mr. Pouſſerot on board, arrived at Annapolis on Saturday laſt, the 29th of June.

From the Cadiz Gazette Extraordinary, May 23, 1811.

Copy of a Deſpatch from his Excellency Don Joaquin Blake, to the Council of Regency, with an account of the glorious and complete victory obtained over the army of the enemy commanded by Soult.

Moſt Excellent Sir,

I have the ſatisfaction to announce to you that the allied Spaniſh, Britiſh, and Portugueſe army, have completely and gloriouſly beaten, in the camp of Albuhera, yeſterday the 16th May, the army of the enemy which was marching under the command of Marſhal Soult to the relief of Badajoz and the conqueſt of New Eſtremadura. But we have defeated his projects, and he is rapidly retreating, purſued by our cavalry, who are ſupported by our van guard and ſome Britiſh infantry.

We have not gained an eaſy victory. The battle has been very obſtinate and ſanguinary on both ſides; but the loſs of the enemy greatly exceeded ours. Their loſs is certainly 7000 men. Our army fought for many hours without giving an inch, which enhances the glory of our victory.—Soult had united extraordinary forces with activity proportionate to the grand object he had in view. We were equal in force as to infantry, but his cavalry and artillery far exceeded ours in number; but ſuch was the ardour with which the allied army fought againſt the common enemy, their noble emulation to diſtinguiſh themſelves, and the mutual ſupport which they afforded to each other, that they defeated 30,000 of the tyrant's fatellites; and ſuch was their enthuſiaſm, that they would have conquered any number, in defence of the liberties of Europe.

I will procure you the details of this moſt brilliant and memorable day, as ſoon as poſſible; and in order that you may be early informed of this important victory, I ſend this by my adjut ant Don Sebaſtian Llano, who was in the action, and who will give every verbal information you may require.

I want words to convey to you an idea of the intrepidity, courage and good conduct of all the Spaniſh Generals, officers and troops, who animated by the glorious example of their illuſtrious Britiſh and Portugueſe allies, with whom there ſubſiſted the moſt cordial union, ſtrove to rival them in heroic deeds.

I do not wiſh to particulariſe thoſe who have diſtinguiſhed themſelves, leſt I ſhould involuntarily give an unjuſt preference, as all have done their duty—but I cannot paſs over in ſilence the extraordinary military merit of his Excellency Marſhal Beresford, General in Chief of the United Britiſh and Portugueſe troops, and the ſuperior good conduct of Gen. Caſtanos, who acted in concert and planned the action. Nothing indeed can be compared to the intelligence, activity and valour of Marſhal Beresford, whoſe example animated the troops and led them on to victory.

God preſerve you Excellency many years. From the Camp at Albuera, May 18, 1811.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. Latest Intelligence.

From the London Gazette.

Sir—It is with much pleasure I have to acquaint you, that after an action of six hours, we have completely defeated the combined French and Italian squadrons, consisting of 5 frigates 2 corvette, 1 brig, 2 schooners, 1 gun boat, and 1 xebec; the force opposed to them was his Majesty's ships Amphion, Cerberus, Active and Volage. On the morning of the 13th, the Active made the signal for a strange fleet to windward, and day light discovered to us the enemy's squadron lying too, off the north point of the island of Lisa; the wind at that time was from the north west, a fine breeze. The enemy having formed in two divisions, instantly bore down to attack us under all possible sail. The British line led by the Amphion, was formed by signal in the closest order on the starboard tack to receive them. At nine A. M. the action commenced by our firing on the headmost ships as they came within range; the intention of the enemy appeared to be to break our line in two places, the starboard division led by the French Commodore, bearing upon the Amphion and Active, and the larboard division on the Cerberus and Volage; in this attempt he failed (though almost aboard of us) by the well directed fire and compact order of the line. He then endeavoured to round the van ship, to engage to leeward, and thereby place us between two fires, but was so warmly received in the attempt, and rendered so totally unmanageable, that in the act of wearing, he went on the rocks on shore on Lisa in the greatest possible confusion.

The line was then wore to renew the action, the Amphion not half a cable length from the shore; the remainder of the enemy's starboard division pulling under our stern, and engaging us at leeward, whilst the larboard division tacked and remained to windward, engaging the Cerberus, Volage and Active. In this situation the action commenced with great fury, his Majesty's ships frequently in positions which unavoidably exposed them to a raking fire of the enemy, who with his superiority of numbers had ability to take advantage of it; but nothing, sir, could withstand the brave squadron I had the honor to command. At 20 minutes past 11 A. M. the Flora struck her colours, and at 12 the Bellona followed her example. The enemy to windward now endeavoured to make off, but were followed up as close as the disabled state of his Majesty's ships would admit of, and the Active and Cerberus were enabled at 3 P. M. to compel the flagmost of them to surrender, when the action ceased, leaving us in possession of the Corona of 44 guns, and the Bellona of 32 guns (the French Commodore) the Favourite of 44 guns on shore, which shortly after blew up with a dreadful explosion, the corvette of the enemy making all possible sail to the north west and two frigates crowding sail for the port of Lessina, the small craft flying in every direction; nor was it in my power to prevent them, having no ship in a state to follow.

I must now account for the Flora's getting away after having struck her colours. At the time I was engaged with that ship, the Bellona was taking us, and when she struck, I had no boat that could possibly take possession of her. I therefore preferred closing the Bellona and taking her, to losing time along side the Flora, which I already considered belonging to us. I call on the officers of my own squadron, as well as those of the enemy to witness my assertion. The correspondence I have had on the subject with the French captain of the Danae (now their Commodore) and which I enclose herewith, is convincing, and even their own officers (prisoners here) acknowledge the fact. Indeed I might have sunk her, and so might the Active; but as the Bellona were down, and all firing from her had long ceased both Capt. Gordon and myself considered her as our own. The delay of getting a boat on board the Bellona, and the various pursuit of Capt. Gordon after the beaten enemy, enabled him to steal off, till too late for our shattered ships to come up with him, his rigging and sails apparently not much injured; but by the laws of war I shall ever maintain he belongs to us. The enemy's squadron, as per enclosed return, was commanded by Monsr. Dubordieu, a Cap. de Vaisseau, and a Member of the Legion of Honor, who is killed. In justice to a brave man, I must say, he set a noble example of intrepidity to those under him. They sailed from Ancona on the 11th inst. with 500 troops on board, and every thing necessary for fortifying and garrisoning the island of Lissa. Thanks to Providence we have this time prevented them.

I have to lament the loss of many valuable officers and men; but in a contest of this kind it was to be expected. I am now on my way to Lissa, with the squadron and prizes. The damage the ships have sustained is very considerable, and I fear will render us totally incapable of keeping the sea. I enclose a statement of the enemy's force, together with a return of the killed and wounded in the squadron, and deeply lament they are so great.

I have the honor to be, &c.
(Signed)

WM. HOSTE.

Admiral Sir C. Cotton.

The English squadron consisted of the Amphion, Capt. Hoste, 32 guns, 254 men; the Active, Capt. Gordon, 38 guns, 300 men; Volage, Captain Hornby, 22 guns, 175 men; and Cerberus, Capt. Whitby, 32 guns, and 254 men.—Total 125 guns, and 984 men, from which deduct 104, being ships short of compliment.

The French squadron consisted of La Favorite, Mon. Dubordieu, Commandant de Division, capt. Dellamaliere, of 44 guns, and 350 men; burnt.—Flore, M. Peridier, captain of 44 guns and 350 men; struck, but escaped.—Corona, M. Paiquilago, capt. of 44 24-pounders and 350 men; taken.—Bellona, M. Dodon, capt. of 32 guns and 225 men; taken.—Caroline, Bruvick, capt. of 18 guns and 224 men; escaped.—Schooner of 10 guns and 60 men; escaped.—Xebec, of 6x guns and 80 men, escaped.—Troops embarked 500.—Total 272 guns, and 2655 men

Total officers and seamen, 50 killed and 150 wounded.

SIR,

On my arrival here this morning, I found the remainder of the French Commodore's crew and troops, 200 in number, had retired to Lissa; they were summoned to surrender by Messrs Lee and Kingston, two midshipmen of the Active, who had been left in the charge of prizes, and several men belonging to privateers. The summons was acceded to; they laid down their arms, and were made prisoners of war.

FRENCH ACCOUNT OF THE ABOVE ACTION.

From the Moniteur of April 11.

Lesina, March 24.

Monseigneur—In consequence of the command of your royal highness, I embarked on board the frigate Favorite, at Ancona, on the 11th, in the evening. The division was under the command of captain Dubourdieu, consisting of four frigates and two small corvettes, forming in all six ships, two of which belong to the French, and four to the Italian navy. They got under sail with a light breeze about seven in the evening. At sunset on the 12th, we perceived the eastern point of Lissa. I proposed to Captain Dubourdieu, that I should land at Lissa with 300 men, whom I had on board, in order to take a position. This, however, he refused, and the division remained the whole night in sight of land, keeping before the wind. At day-break we perceived the English division, which consisted of a two decker ship of the line, carrying only her lower deck guns, and three frigates.—The Commodore immediately made the signal to prepare for battle. As the Favourite sailed better than the other ships, she was two leagues ahead of the rest of the division. However, at a quarter past seven, the order was given for the action to commence. Captain Meillerie said to me: "Colonel would it not be better were we to wait an hour longer, and form our line?" I communicated this observation to the Commander, who replied:—"This is the happiest day of our lives, two of these ships must be ours; we have the advantage of two frigates over the enemy, and are as well manned as he is." Your royal highness must be aware, than on board this ship I am nothing; and that I now, for the first time in action as sea, could only concur with this brave officer; and it is impossible to describe the courage which animated the crew of the Favourite. A few minutes after eight the frigates had got within gun shot of two of the enemy's ships, received their fire, and returned it with astonishing activity from both sides: the wind, however, which had become very slack, entirely sunk; and it became at last quite calm. We had been an hour and a quarter in action and no ship of our division had joined us.

At a quarter past nine, Captain Dubourdieu said to me: "this is a glorious day, but I have been somewhat to rash; courage however! our division will yet support us." Scarce had he spoken these words, when a ball struck his breast. At the same time, the frigate Flora came into the line; and a boat half past ten, the Couronne, and half an hour later the Danae also joined.—From this plain statement, your highness will perceive how incomprehensible our manoeuvres were.

As the captain of the frigate and the Lieutenant were killed, the command according to the practice in such cases, devolved on me; the Midshipman Villeneuve directed the manoeuvres. About half past 10 o'clock the masts of the Favourite fell by the board, and M. Villeneuve intimated to me that he could no longer steer the vessel. We were standing at the same time before the wind, close by the island of Lissa. I gave orders to steer for the land, took possession of several vessels, in which I put my Gilors on board, and allowed the frigate to escape without interruption.

The Couronne having lost all her masts, was, after the most obstinate resistance, obliged to strike, about half past four o'clock. The Danae, the Flora, and a corvette, ran, during the night, into Lissian. The English, in the utmost distress, took refuge in the island of St. George, after they had set fire to the Couronne; and one of their frigates, after being wholly dismasted, ran against the rocks of the island, and in all probability must have been dashed to pieces.

The result of this action is, on our part, the loss of two frigates; the loss on the part of the English, is one frigate, and a two-decked vessel.

It is certain that if Captain Dubourdieu had wished to wait longer and concentrate his division, this day would have been very glorious for the Italian navy. The extraordinary zeal and abilities of this officer would have atchieved a two-fold victory. At all events the Italian marine have covered themselves with glory, and acquired a fame that will be transmitted to posterity, by engaging and battling with an an equal, if not inferior force, in spite of the skill and manoeuvres of their Commanders. This merit will neither be overlooked nor unrewarded by his Majesty. Having once engaged us, the enemy found no difference between the French and Italian regiment. The Italian marine had merited the same praise; and it must be to England a source of much anxiety and disappointment, that the Italians of the Adriatic are not inferior to the French seamen. The division will set sail to-morrow from Lesina for Ragusa in order to refit.

It is the opinion of all sea-faring people, that if Captain Dubourdieu had kept his division together, we should have got possession of two of the enemy's ships, though the enemy had cut down ships of the line. However, without reckoning the two corvettes which we had more than the enemy, and the advantage resulting from their having two reduced ships of the line, our frigates had each 80 men on board, which enabled them to fire from both sides. The rashness and impetuosity of Captain Dubourdieu lost every thing. Your royal highness will no doubt receive pleasure from the good conduct of the seamen on this day, (though a positive victory was not obtained,) which is the more to be wondered at, as it is the first action in which the Italian Marine has been engaged, which must gain them the favor and approbation of his Majesty. I have no doubt that the French officers will represent to the Minister of Marine the distinguished courage the Italian seamen displayed on this occasion.

Great as the error was which Capt. Dubourdieu committed, his loss is much to be regretted. Never was an officer more brave or seamen more skilful, but the sight of the enemy produced an imprudent temerity.

The loss of the English is immense; half their officers, and great part of their crews were killed.

Finally, the good disposition of inhabitants of the coast of Dalmatia, ought to be made known to your highness.

Vessels came from all the islands to our affiliance; & the national guards hastened to the coast, and offered us their affiliance.

A. Gefflenga Colonel-Adjutant.

From a Liverpool paper of May 22.

Holland.—The late effervescence at Amsterdam has given the Corsican an opportunity of gratifying his revengeful disposition.—Troops had been poured into the city, the magistrates were made responsible for any tumult which might take place, and not more than three persons were allowed to be seen together in the streets! These measures no less mark the feelings of the Hollanders than the jealousies and fears of the tyrant who had enslaved them. But the Dutch have not reached the measure of their vexations. A decree is reported to have been issued, the object of which is to increase the number of persons liable to the conscription, by prohibiting all men under the age of thirty from marrying! The same iron hand of despotism is exerting itself at Hamburgh. The soldiers have been marched by force, and a French Admiral has arrived to superintend the caption of all the remaining young men for the sea service of his master.

France.—A speech attributed to Bonaparte, and addressed to a deputation of French merchants, has been inserted in the papers. Its authenticity not being fully alcertained, we postpone our comments upon it. If authentic it must be in answer to the complaints of the merchants for which there appears to be an increasing cause which all the gasconades of the anti-commercial Emperor will not remove. Every communication from the French coast announces some important failure. In addition to the banking house of Pierlot & Co. we now find the firm of Goss, D'Avilliers and Co. one of the most respectable in Paris, and which is likely to involve others. The Imperial Banker at St. Petersburgh, Baron Roll and the house of Haselgreen & Co. at Amsterdam, have also failed. No relaxation in favor of commerce was however expected; on the contrary, it was rumoured at Paris that a decree would soon appear, subjecting to capital punishment any one who should be found guilty of drawing or negociating a Bill of Exchange upon England! Yet we suppose Mr. Whitebread will not, as he lately expressed it, "see any thing wicked or tyrannical in the decrees of Bonaparte against commerce."

Summary of Events.—We hear that the despatches brought up by the Gleaner, from Cadiz, contenance the statement that Marshal Victor alarmed by the misfortunes which the French arms have recently sustained in various parts of the Peninsula, and deeming his force unequal to successful prosecution of the siege had determined to abandon it. The force under his command amounts to 14,000 men.

On Saturday an Anholt mail reached town with papers and letters from Sweden to the 12th inst.—A gentleman who arrived in the packet states that previous to his departure from Stockholm, accounts had been received there of all differences between Russia and France having been amicably adjusted, and that the former power had in consequence withdrawn a part of her troops which she had assembled on the frontiers of Poland. The declaration of Austria & Prussia, that in the case of hostilities taking place, they would join the French force is supposed to have greatly influenced the Russian Emperor; besides which, the determination of the Porte to listen to no terms of peace which had not for their basis, the restoration of Moldavia and Wallachia would oblige him to employ all his troops to bring the war to a successful termination in this quarter.

The Duke of Oldenburg, on being dispossessed of his territory by the injustice of Bonaparte, not only protested against the measure, but published a farewell address to his subjects in which he deplores the necessity he was under for abandoning them for the present, and expresses hopes that the mediation of his kinsman, the Emperor of Russia, would be successful in restoring him. On account of the strong language in which the address was couched its circulation was forbidden by Koverberg, the Prefect of the Ems, who also required that those who had copies should give them up. The Duke was offered a pension by Bonaparte, but thinking that his acceptance might be deemed a compromise of his rights, he rejected it.

On Saturday twelve stands of colours taken from the enemy on different occasions, including the French eagle taken by the 87th regiment at the battle of Barossa, were carried with military ceremonies from the Parade in St. James Park, to Whitehall Chapel, and deposited on each side of the altar. The spectacle, which was one of the finest ever witnessed, was attended by the Dukes of York and Cambridge, Sir D. Dundas, Generals Hope, Doyle Calvert and Phipps, Spanish and Portuguese Ministers, besides a number of Indies of distinction.

The French General Rusin, who was made prisoner at Barrosa expired on board the Gorgon ship of war, on Wednesday evening off St. Helena; he had spent the day in good spirits, expressing his satisfation at arriving in England, and his escape from the Spaniards.

Extract from the Morning Chronicle or Mirror of Fashion, (a London Paper,) dated 20th May, 1811.

The Maelstroom.—A Danish paper states, that this dreadful Whirlpool, situated to the Westward of the coast of Lapland, has, within the last two years, increased its phenomena. It now stands 15 minutes every fifth hour. Vessels at the distance of eight or nine English miles are no longer safe; and its attractive force, when agitated by a storm, will even reach them or the larger kind of animals, at the distance of ten miles, and impetuously hurry them to certain destruction in the gulph. Two Vessels bound from Norway to the Vygien Islands, having been driven last Summer within nine miles of the Maelstroom, and imagining themselves secure, as its operation was thought to be confined to six miles, were on a sudden carried away by the torrent, and with their crews entirely lost.

A small Island has lately emerged from the sea, to the north of Moscoe. It is ten miles long and five broad, and bears no marks of Volcanic origin.

NEW YORK, July 13.

Latest European News.—The news by the Massachusetts from Dublin, which we publish this day, is a few days later than has been before received; but it is of very little importance. The accounts from the North of Europe are the most interesting; and these are unsatisfactory.—It appears, however, that Bonaparte is likely to settle the disturbances in the north without fighting. He has already bought the King of Prussia; and is undoubtedly in negociation with the Emperor of Russia. How he will succeed cannot yet be determined; but there is very little hope that any thing can be done for humanity in the North of Europe while the people are under the present governments in that quarter. As long as Bonaparte has the government under his control, the people have very little hope. While they submit to the wills of the weak and cowardly second hand tyrants, now can they expect to resist the mighty conqueror, the great overbearing master of Europe?

The British appear to be determined to follow up their successes in Spain and Portugal. They are sending off both troops daily, to reinforce their armies. If Bonaparte should succeed in quieting his disturbances in the north, it is probable he will make another effort in the peninsula, and more bloody battles may be expected.—N. Y. Spect.

LONDON May 25.

"Wings's Sound, May 10.—The fleet under Sir James Saumarez remains here, and it is supposed will not proceed up the Baltic until joined by four sail of the line expected from England. A boat's crew, it is said, belonging to one of the naval vessels, had been detained in one of the rivers of the Swedes, and confined. Sir James Saumarez sent a flag of truce to demand them, but the result has not transpired. Bernadotte has signified his intention of visiting Gottenburgh. He has made a requisition of the services of all males from the age of 18 to 45 years. The question of peace or war is supposed to depend upon the decision the Swedes will make on a demand made by Sir James Saumarez for the restitution of the British property on board the Prussian ships detained at Carleham."

In addition to the above letter, we have to mention a report that the Swedish government has replied to a demand made by our admiral, that the taking possession of the cargoes was not meant as an act of hostility against his country, but as a reprisal against Prussia, for having detained Swedish vessels in their ports.

May 27.

A mail from Anholt arrived this morning with the important intelligence of negociations for peace having at length been opened between the Porte and Russia, with every prospect of being brought to a favorable termination. The eagerness with which Russia has of late prefled her overtures upon the Porte, and the avowed diminution of her pretentions confirm us almost in the belief, that war between Russia and France is at hand.

Another circumstance that will further confirm this belief is, that orders have been received at Portsmouth relative to the return of the Russian prisoners of war to their own country. There are about three thousand, for whom conveyance will be shortly provided.

Intercepted Correspondence.

Minsters have received by the Mermaid, from Cadiz, copies of Intercepted Letters of great importance.—Baron Le Jeune, Aide de Camp to Bertheir, who was before employed on a confidential message to the King of Sweden, has been lately engaged in a duel to the Duke of Dalmatia, who [illegible] had remonstrated to the Minister at Paris the absolute impossibility of his retaining his situation South of the Sierra Morena, and his intention of retreating to La Carlielina, with the corps under Victor and Sebastiani, unless he should receive immediate reinforcements.—Baron Le Jeune having arrived on the frontiers of Spain, ventured to proceed with an escort only fifty dragoons, and after having proceeded to some distance, he was met by a strong party of the Guerillas, who cut down every one of his companions, seized his papers, and made him prisoner. The documents were, without delay, forwarded to the Regency at Cadiz, and on discovering he contents, copies were prepared & sent off immediately to Marshal Beresford, Lord Wellington, and to all the Spanish Generals.—We have only room to state the substance of these most interesting details.

Berthier in reply to Soult's observations, urges him to employ every exertion to maintain his position South of the Sierra, and informs him that he can be provided with no reinforcements until a depending negociation with Russia, which requires France to place herself in the most imposing attitude, shall have been brought to a conclusion. The Minister adds, that there is every probability of an amicable adjustment, and when that is accomplished, "We shall again see each other." The reinforcements will be supplied, and a great plan which has been agreed upon with his Imperial Majesty will be carried into early operation.—"But the project cannot yet ripen."

PARIS, May 10.

The King of Spain arrived this day at Rambouliet. He went in person to the Emperor, to congratulate him on the birth of his son, the King of Rome.

Important.—A gentleman arrived in this city from Washington, mentions that the opinion of the best informed persons there, before the arrival of Mr. Foster, was, that there would be war with Great Britain—that since Mr. Foster's arrival, he and Mr. Monroe have had several long conversations together, one of which lasted nearly a day—and that it is now confidently believed that an amicable termination of all disputes will take place very speedily.

By the Palas, Capt Heath from Cadiz.

Cadiz May 16.

Last night despatches were received by the British Envoy, stating, that the British lines had been attacked at Puente del Honour on the 3d and 5th by the army of Massena, he having been reinforced by Marshal Bessieres with 6000 cavalry of the imperial guards, the result was the discomfiture of the French, 6000 being killed, wounded and prisoners; the loss of the allies 1477. When the despatches were sent off, the light troops were in full pursuit of the flying enemy. On the 18th inst. the 72d Highland regiment which sustained the shock, were severely cut up. On the 19th inst. salutes were fired and the city illuminated, in celebration of the capture of Figueras, a frontier town of Catalonia, and the fourth fortress in Europe for strength. On the night of the 4th April, Rove to with 700 Spaniards, furprised the garrison consisting of 2000 French, and put to death all who resisted; the governor was stabbed asleep. The fort was in a condition to stand a siege;—1500 pieces of ordnance, an abundance of muskets and other military accoutrements were found uninjured. There are within the walls, bomb proof accommodations for 10,000 horse and 20,000 foot; the Catalans are employed in furnishing it with stores and provisions, and are determined to defend it to the last extremity. No Turk is within the walls, with a force competent to its defence; Rovera, with his army is without.

The commander in chief in Valencia has issued an Edict, ordering a certain penalty to be inflicted on any Spaniard who shall permit to live any Frenchman who was necessary to the burning of Manresa, where the most barbarous acts were committed. They burnt 900 houses, and had the inhumanity to set fire to the hospitals filled with the sick. On the reduction of Oloh, one of the articles of capitulation was, that the French would surrender themselves prisoners of war, on condition that they should not be marched through Manresa.

May 20.

Accounts have been received by the Regency this morning, that on the 10th inst. the French evacuated Almeida at 12 at night, and at half past 12 the mines under the fortification, which had been previously fired, exploded, and reduced this important fortress to a heap of ruins. The allies are in full pursuit of the panic-struck enemy.

A letter from Antwerp flates, that Bonaparte has 16 sail of the line in that harbor, and 8 others building.—This is something towards his "more than a hundred sail;" but unless they are kept very busy, they will never form a part of the complement, as the British are smagingly fond of second-hand vessels!—

The Spanish patriot arms have been unusually successful in Catalonia.—All letters from the South are full of confidence. The last accounts flate, that Gerona had been added to their late re-conquests.

Mungo Park.—The Nereid, which arrived a few days ago at Plymouth, has brought accounts, which completely put an end to all hopes of the existence of Mungo Park, the enterprising traveller. The search that had been made after him tended fully to confirm the accounts previously received of his diffolution. It seems the immediate cause of his death was a fever brought on by the hardships he endured. He drew his last breath in the hovel of an old negro woman.—Not a veftige of his papers has been received.—Lon. pap.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JULY 27.

The Papers this day arrived (which we have received) dates, 10th & 13th inst. from New York, contain little more than the official flatements of the brilliant atchievements of the Allies on the Peninsula. Large British reinforcements are sent from England. His Majesty's indifposition still continues. No positive opinion can yet be formed of our relations with the American States; but we think them not unfavorable.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders thereto may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. VICTORY OF ALBUHERA.

Copy of a Despatch from his Excellency Marshal W. C. Beresford, to his Excellency Lord Viscount Wellington.

ALBUHERA, May 18, 1811.

I have infinite satisfaction in communicating to your Excellency, that the Allied Army united at this place under my orders, gained on the 16th inst. after a very sanguinary battle, a complete victory over that of the enemy, commanded by Marshal Soult; and I proceed to relate to your Excellency the particulars of it.

In a former despatch I acquainted your Excellency of the March of Marshal Soult from Seville, and that in consequence I judged it prudent to raise completely the siege of Badajoz, and to prepare to fight him with our combined forces, rather than by attending to two objects at the same time to risk the loss of both. It appears that Marshal Soult was using every means to collect a force that he thought fully sufficient for his object, the relief of Badajoz; and for that purpose he drew sufficient troops from the corps of Marshal Victor and General Sebastiani, and I believe also from the French army of the centre: having thus completed his preparations he marched from Seville on the 10th inst. with a corps estimated then at 15 or 16,000 men; and on his descent into Estremadura he formed a junction with the corps of General Latour Maubourg, estimated at 5000 men. His Excellency Gen. Blake, instantly on learning the movement of Marshal Soult, in strict conformity to the plan proposed by your Excellency, marched to form a junction with the corps under my command, and arrived at Valverde in person on the 14th inst. having then consulted with his Excellency Gen. Castanos, it was resolved to go and meet the enemy and give him battle.

Learning the determination of the enemy to relieve Badajoz, I marched from before that place with the infantry to the post opposite Valverde, excepting the division of the Hon. Maj. Gen. G. L. Cole, which I left with 3000 of the Spanish troops to cover the retreat of our stores.

The cavalry which according to my orders was retiring, in proportion as the advanced, formed a junction in Santa Martha with the cavalry of Gen. Blake; that of Gen. Castanos commanded by the Count de Penne Villemur, continued united with ours.

As halting at Valverde, though a stronger position, left Badajoz completely open, I determined to take a position (such as could be found in this open and level country) in this place, being thus directly between the enemy and Badajoz.

The army was consequently united here on the 15th inst. the corps of Gen. Blake, though it made a forced march for the purpose, only joined that night, and could not take its position before the morning of the 16th, when the division of gen. Cole also joined with the Spanish brigade of Don Carlos d'Hespanita, a little before the beginning of the action. Our cavalry had been obliged in the morning of the 15th to retire from Santa Martha and join here.

In the afternoon of this day the enemy appeared on our front; on the following morning our dispositions were made to receive them, being formed in two lines almost parallel to the river at Albuhera at the high water mark, and covering the roads to Badajoz and Valverde; though your Excellency knows that the whole superfices of this country is passable in every part by troops of all descriptions.

Gen. Blake's corps was on the right in two lines, his left on the road of Valverde, joined on the right to the division of Maj. Gen. the Hon. W. Stewart; its left reached the road of Badajoz, where commenced the right of the division of Maj. Gen. Hamilton, which terminated the line on the left; Gen. Cole's division with one brigade of Gen. Hamilton formed the second line of the British and Portuguese army.

The enemy on the morning of the 16th was not tardy in making the attack; at eight o'clock he was in motion, and his cavalry was seen to pass the brook of Albuhera considerably above our right; shortly afterwards he sent out of the wood which was in front of us, a great force of cavalry, & two heavy columns of infantry, which marched towards our front, as if intending to attack the village & bridge of Albuhera. During this time, under the protection of his very superior cavalry, he caused the principal corps of his infantry to defile near the river beyond our right, shortly after which it appeared to be his intention to turn us on that side and cut us off from Valverde. I ordered in consequence, Maj. Gen. Cole's division to form anoblique line in the rear of our right, and its right to be thrown back; and it becoming evident that the enemy's intention was to attack our right, I requested Gen. Blake to form a part of his first line, and the whole of his second in the same way, which he did. The enemy commenced his attack at nine o'clock, continuing at the same time to threaten our left; and after a strong and brave resistance from the Spanish troops, he gained the heights upon which they were formed. In the mean time the division of the Hon. Maj. Gen. W. Stewart was brought up to support them, and that of Maj. Gen. Hamilton brot up towards the left of the Spanish line, and formed into battalions with contigious open columns, so as to be able to move in any direction.

The Portuguese brigade of cavalry, commanded by Brig. Gen. Otway, remained at some diffance upon the left in order to oppose any attempt of the enemy below the village.

As the heights which the enemy had gained overlooked and completely commanded the whole of our position, it became necessary to use every effort to retake and keep them; & a very noble one was made by the division of Gen. Stewart, with that brave officer at their head. From almost the commencement of the enemy's attack, it began to rain hard, which with the smoke, rendered it impossible to discern any thing distinctly; which circumstance, together with the nature of the ground, was very favorable to the enemy in forming his columns, and in his subsequent attack. The brigade of Gen. Stewart's division, commanded by Col. Colborne, was first in action, and behaved in the bravest manner; and finding that the enemy could not be dislodged by firing, proceeded to attack it with the bayonet; and in the act of attacking, a body of Polish lance men (clearly whom the obscurity of the atmosphere and the nature of the ground hindered me from) and besides when seen, were mistaken by the brigade for Spanish cavalry, and consequently not fired on) turned it; and being thus unexpectedly attacked in the rear was unfortunately broken, and suffered greatly. The 31st regiment, forming to the left of the brigade, alone escaped this charge, and under the orders of Major L'Estrange, maintained its ground until the arrival of the 3d brigade, under the orders of Maj. Gen. Houghton—The conduct of this brigade was evidently very brave, nor was that of the 2d brigade, under command of the Hon. Lt. Col. Abercrombie, inferior.

Maj. Gen. Houghton, while exciting his brigade to a charge, fell covered with wounds. Though the principal attack of the enemy was upon this part of the right, he also made a continued attempt upon that part of our original front in the village and bridge, which were defended in the bravest manner by Maj. Gen. Baron Alten, and the brigade of light infantry of the German Legion, whose conduct was in every point of view, evidently good. This point now formed our left, and Maj. Gen. Hamilton's division had been sent thither, and was left to direct the defence of that point, while the attack of the enemy continued upon our right. A considerable proportion of the Spanish troops defending this place, the enemy's cavalry in attempting to force our right had endeavored to turn it; but by the able manoeuvres of Maj. Gen. the Hon. W. Lumley, commanding the allied cavalry, though greatley inferior in number to that of the enemy, their attempts were frustrated.

Maj. Gen. Cole, seeing the attack of the enemy, very judiciously changed the position of his left a little, marched in a line to attack the enemy's left, and arrived very opportunely to contribute with the charges of the brigade of Gen. Stewart's division, to force the enemy to abandon their situation, retreat precipitately and take shelter behind their reserve. Here the brigade of fusiliers particularly distinguished itself. The enemy was purfued by the allies to a considerable distance, and as far as I judged prudent, considering their immense superiority in cavalry, and I contented myself with seeing them driven beyond Albuhera.

I have every reason to speak very favorably of the manner in which our artillery was served and fought; and Maj. Harman, commander of the English, and Maj. Dixon, commander of the Portuguese, and the officers and soldiers, are entitled to my thanks. The four pieces of horse artillery, commanded by Capt. Lefebure, made great havoc among the enemy's caval ry, and a brigade of Spanish artillery [the only one in the field] shewed equal good conduct and bravery.

We lost in the misfortune that befel the brigade commanded by Lt. Col. Colbourne [respecting whom Gen. Stewart states, that he acted & was then acting in the most noble manner, leading the brigade in admirable order] one howitzer, which the enemy, before the arrival of the brave Gen. Houghton, had time to withdraw, with two or three hundred prisoners of that brigade.

After he was routed in his principal attack, he still continued near the village, from whence he could never make any progress, or pass the brook; notwithstanding that I had been obliged to draw from thence a large proportion of troops to support the principal point of the attack; but the enemy seeing his principal attack frustrated relaxed his efforts in the other quarter.

The Portuguese division of Major Gen. Hamilton, shewed on all occasions the greatest firmness and courage and manoeuvred as well as the Enlish.

The Portuguese brigade of General Harvey, belonging to Gen. Cole's division, had an opportunity of distinguishing itself, when it marched in a line along the plain, with the utmost firmness, against a charge from the enemy's cavalry.

It is impossible to enumerate all the instances of discipline and valor exhibited in this strongly contested action; but never did troops more bravely or gloriously sustain the honor of their respective countries. I am not able to particularize the Spanish divisions, brigades or regiments, that were engaged in the battle, because I know not their denominations, or names; but I have great satisfaction in saying that their conduct was brave and honorable; and although by reason of the superior number and weight of the enemy's force, the portion of troops that was in the attacked position, was obliged to give ground, it was after an obstinate resistance, and they continued to support their allies in good order, and enabled his Excellency Gen. Blake will do ample justice in this respect, by making honorable mention of those who deserve it.

The battle commenced at 9 in the morning, and continued without interruption until two in the afternoon, when the enemy were driven beyond Albuhera; in the remainder of the day there was only firing of great guns and skirmishing.

It is impossible to do justice by words to the valor of the troops; every individual most nobly did his duty; as it proved by the great loss we have sustained; notwithstanding that we have repulsed the enemy 1,8 it was observed that our killed, particularly those of the 57th regiment, lay, as they had fought, in files, and the wounded received their wounds in front.

The Hon. Maj. Gen. Stewart distinguished himself very particularly, and contributed much to the honour of the day. He received two contusions, but did not quit the field. Maj. Gen. the Hon. G. L. Cole also deserves the highest praise, and I have to regret being deprived of his services for some time, by reason of the wound he received.—The Hon. Lieut. Col. Abercrombie, commanding the 2d brigade of the 2d division, and Major L'Estrange of the 31st regiment deserve to be particularly mentioned; and nothing can exceed the conduct and bravery of Col. Highs, at the head of his regiment. I am particularly obliged to the Hon. Maj. Gen. W. Lumley for the very able manner in which he opposed the numerous cavalry of the enemy, and frustrated their intention. I am also much obliged to Maj. Gen. Hamilton, who commanded the left during the violent attack on our right; and the Portuguese brigade of brigadier Gen. Fouseca and Campbell deserve to be mentioned.—I muft highly praise Maj. Gen. Alton, and the excellent brigade under his command; and it is with great satisfaction that I assure your Excellency that the good conduct and bravery of every corps and individual was suitable to the opportunity that they had to distinguish themselves. I know not a single individual who did not do his duty well.

I have to lament the loss of Col. Collins, commander of a Portuguese brigade;—a cannon ball took off one of hisleg; he is an officer of great merit; and I deeply lament the death of Maj. Gen. Hoghton, and two officers of great hopes.—Lieut. Col. Sir W. Myers and Lieut. Col. Duckworth.

"I have great satisfaction in informing your Excellency, not only of the firm and brave conduct of our allies, the Spanish troops, commanded by his Excellency Gen. Blake, but also to assure you that there was a perfect harmony between us; and that General Blake not only conformed in every respect to the general plan proposed by your Excellency, but in the details, & in every thing that I suggested to his Excellency, I received the most immediate and cordial consent and co-operation, and nothing was omitted on his part to secure the success of our combined forces; and during the battle he continued most effentially by his experience, knowledge, and zeal, to us happy result.

His Excellency Capt. Gen. Castanos who had joined the few troops that he had left for service, to those of General Blake, and placed them under his orders, alisted in perfon in the field; not only on this, but on all occasions I owe much to Gen. Castanos, who is always eager to go wherever he can contribute to the success of the common cause.

Though unfortunately I cannot designate the corps of the many individuals of the Spanish troops who distinguished themselves, I will not however omit the names of Gen. Ballesteros, whose valor was conspicuous; as was also that of the corps under his command, and likewise that of Gen. Zayas, and of Don Carlos D'Hefpanita.—The Spanish cavalry behaved extremely well, and the Count de Peune Villemur merits to be particularly mentioned.

I annex the return of our loss in this action, which is very heavy; to it we muft add the loss of the troops under the command of his Excellency Gen. Blake in killed, wounded and missing, but of which I have not the return.—Tho' I cannot know the loss of the enemy with certainty, it muft be ftill great; they left about 2000 dead on the field of battle, and we made from 900 to 1000 prisoners; they have five generals killed or wounded; of the former the Generals of division Mallem and Peftin; Gazan, and 2 others among the latter. Their force was much more considerable than we were informed at first, and they had certainly 4000 horfe, with a numerous and heavy artillery. Their numerous cavalry fuspended and limited all our operations, and with their artillery fwept their infantry, after it was routed.

They retreated after the battle to the ground which they had previouflv occupied; and this morning, or rather during the night, commenced their retreat by the road by which they came towards Seville, and abandoned Badajoz to its fate. They left a number of wounded in the camp from which they retreated, to whom we are giving all the affiftance in our power. I have ordered our cavalry to purfue the enemy; but he is too ftrong in that defcription of troops for us to attempt any thing in the plains that he is crofting.—We have thus reaped the advantages that we had propofed to ourfelves when we oppofed the attempts of the enemy; and as he was obliged to abandon the object, on account of which he had nearly ftripped Andalufia of troops, inftead of fulfilling the arrogant boafts and promifes which Marfhal Soult made to his troops on the fetting out from Seville; he returns thither with a defeated army, and what perhaps is ftill more prejudicial, with a diminifhed reputation.

I have the honor, &c.

My Lord,

In conformity to the inftructions which your Excellency gave me on the 24th of laft month; in confequence of the ftate of the Guadiana, and of our means of communication acrofs the Guadiana, having been deftroyed by the fudden rife of that river; I was leaving my cavalry at Zafra, Los Santos and Villa la France, I paffed the infantry with the head quarters at Almendralejo, Aarachal and Villalba, in which places were the divifions of Gen. William Stewart, and Major Gen. Hamilton, and the divifion of Major Gen. Cole, with the brigade of Brigadier Gen. Madden, of the Portuguefe cavalry to Merida, the brigade of infantry commanded by Brigr. Gen. Kemmis, and the one intended for the attack of Fort St. Chriftoval, in Montijo, the light brigade of the German Legion, under the orders of Major General Baron Alten, in Talavera Real, having the light battalion of the Lufitanian Legion in Olivenza.

I reported that the waters of the Guadiana would fall, and that by the 1ft of April, it being of con fiderable importance to drive away the enemy from us as much as poffible during the fiege, fearing they fhould, after we had paffed the river, retire from Leirna to Gyudal-canal, kept poffeffion of the latter place, which enabled them to raife contributions and main tain themfelves in the province of Eftremadura. I determined that a fmall column of 2000 men, compofed of the 1ft brigade of the 2nd divifion, commanded by col. Colborne, Alten, with a fquadrons of cavalry and 2 Spanifh fquadrons, march from Almendralejo by way of Ribeira and Marquilla towards Arzuga, in order to threaten their right, fending at the fame time a ftrong party to Llerena, and make them from Villa Franca to Llerna, to fupport the count de Penne Villemur, who was there with the Spanifh cavalry of the corps of gen. Caftanos, and make them fenfe of an attack in front, while gen. Ballefteros, marching from Monaftario by way of Montemolin, threatened their left. Thefe manoeuvres had the defired effect; fcarcely had the 1ft brigade, lieut. colonel Colborne advance near Arzuga, where they had 500 infantry and 300 horfe, when they precipitately abandoned the place, and retired towards Guadalcanal, and that place gen. Latour Maubourg, with the 5th corps, quitted two hours after the arrival of this detachment, and is at prefent retreated to the vicinity of Conftantia. Lieut. col Colborne performed this fervice in the moft noble manner.

The weather having for fome days been fine, the waters of the Guadiana having fallen, and our preparations for the fiege of Badajoz, being, through the activity of lieut. col. Fletcher, nearly completed, on the 3d of May I ordered 3 brigades of infantry, one brigade of the 6th of the guards, and 2 fquadrons of cavalry to march from their cantonments to inveft Badajoz more clofely, on the fouth fide of the river, which he did with his ufual zeal and vigilance on the 14th. On the 6th inft. I ordered the remaining 3 brigades of infantry to Badajoz, by the way of Albuhera, the other by Talavera, the cavalry remaining poffed as before. On the 7th I came before Badajoz with the firft divifion. Gen. Colborne alfo gave 2000 men to co-operate in the fiege, under the orders of brigr gen Don Carlos d'Hefpanita. On the 8th I received the brigade of brigr gen. Kemmis, which was previouflv poffed upon the Xevora, to proceed to Torre de Santa Fogracia, 3 hour 2 miles from Badajoz, on the road to Campo Mayor, and there to join hifon with the Portuguefe regiment 17, and two fquadrons of cavalry of the 4th and 6th from Elvas, who were to march at 3 in the morning, the whole to remain under the orders of the hon. major gen. Lumley, to inveft the north fide, and attack the fort of San Chriftoval.

By fome accident that happened to the bearer of the orders for brig. gen Kemmis, that officer did not arrive at his poft until 9 o'clock; and on the hon. gen. Lumley's joining the light companies of the brigade which was advancing towards the city, with the force that he brought from Elvas, the garrifon made a fortie upon him, but was immediately repulfed, and the grenadiers of the regiment commanded col. Turner, particularly diftinguifhed themfelves in charging the enemy. The detachment fuffered the lofs, which is ftated in return No. I.

On the 8th, lieut col. Fletcher conftructed batteries againft Pardaleiras and Picurina, upon the heights which command thofe places at a favorable diftance; and capt. Squire, when the lieut col. had fent to infpect the works, determined to order them to be raifed againft San Chriftoval.

The ground was completed on the 8th, the opening of the trench on that fide immediately caufed great alarm to the enemy; and they oppofed it with a moft heavy fire of balls and bombs; and on the morning of the 10th, made a fortie againft the battery which was conftructing, with 1200 men; being only apprized of the attack when the men reached it, and there being in it of the troops that covered it, only one company of light infantry, the enemy took poffeffion of it, but did not retain it two minutes, for the whole corps which fupported it, and which was very nigh in the declivity of the mountain, immediately feized their arms, and drove out the enemy with conliderable lofs. I regret that it was to fay that ours on this occafion, was greater; becaufe the troops were expofed to the balls and bombs from the caftle, upon which they had to march, and to the mufquetry from the latter. I annex the return of our lofs on this day; and have to lament being deprived of the fervices of Lieut. Col. Fletcher, in the fhort time that he was in the Portuguefe fervice, gave me the greateft fatisfaction, and in thefe two days the moft evident proofs of his valour.

I herewith tranfmit a return of the laft fubfequent lofs of men during our operations againft Badajoz; and the accounts of the hon major gen. Lumley, relative to the circumftances and conf equences of the enemy's fortie.—The lofs was wholly on the north fide; for the enemy turned his whole attention to oppofe our progrefs on that fide, and remained idle works with balls and bombs; and we have to lament the lofs of a greater number of Officers and foldiers than we had reafon to expect.

On the 12th I received intelligence from General Blake, that Marfhal Soult had left Seville on the 10th, and with the declared intention of coming to Badajoz. It was faid that a force of 15,000 men and that Gen Latour Maubourg had again advanced, and occupied Guadal-canal and Llerena, from which places the Count de Penne Villemur was obliged to retire. As Gen Blake, in conformity to the plan of operations propofed by your Excellency, had ordered 2000 men to Fregenal, Gen. Ballefteros from Medaffera extended his advanced guards until within a league of Seville. I could not fuppofe that this march of Marfhal Soult was merely to difpoffe thofe pofitions, and leave him to remain in Seville, or, as was actually ftated, againft me, and for the purpofe of raifing the fiege of Badajoz; and conf equently determined to remain where I was, to place until the ulterior movements of Soult fhould determine this point for memore certain; & in the night of the 13th ftill in the act of fhelling the city, our trenches to the fourth fide of the Guadiana; but in the middle of the night I received intelligence on from Gen. Blake, and from other quarters, of the rapid advance of Marfhal Soult, and which left no doubt as to his intentions.

I immediately ordered the operations againft Badajoz to fe fufpended, & commenced with drawing towards Elvas our artillery and ftores, which unfortunately comprized nearly all that was neceffary for the fiege; to withdraw which, appeared to be a very dangerous operation, as well as a moft laborious one, under the circumftances of being obliged to prepare ourfelves to receive Marfhal Soult. However I determined to ufe every effort to prevent any thing from falling into the hands of the enemy, and thro' the great exertions of Lieut. Col. Fletcher of the Royal Engineers, and Maj. Dixon of the artillery, every thing was withdrawn in the afternoon of the 15th.

It is but juftice to ftate, that to the zeal and inceffant activity in every branch of the fervice, and for the good of his country, of Brigr. Gen. Hamilton, Governor of the province of Alem Tejo, we are indebted on all occafions, & particularly on this, for having furniflied us with the neceffary conveyances, and aflifted in every refpect in which he could be ferviceable to us. I avail myfelf with pleafure of this opportunity to give to Lieut. Gen. Leite the praife which he has amply merited.

I was obliged, in order to cover the withdrawing of the ftores, to leave the divifion of Maj. Gen. the hon. G. L. Cole, before Badajoz, and doubtleis, as your Excellency will perceive by my laft defpatch, the arrangements to avoid the unpleafantnefs of abandoning fome of our ftores to the enemy, and to prepare for fighting Marfhal Soult were as perfect as poffible; fince Maj Gen. Cole marched from before Badajoz to join this army at two in the morning of the 16th, and arrived half an hour before the enemy began the attack.

I have however the fatisfaction to inform your Excellency, that the enemy cannot boaft of having taken the leaft part of our ftores; all of them were fafely collected at Elvas; and with the exception of the brigade of Brig. Gen. Kemmis, which was to the northward of the Guadiana, our troops were all united on the morning of the 16th to receive the attack, and oppofe the advance of Marfhal Soult.

I have the honour, &c.

BOSTON, July 15.

LISBON, May 30.

We learn from H. Q. that information has been received there, that the Englifh and Portuguese cavalry which Marfhal Beresford fent in purfuit of Soult, have beaten the enemy, taken 60 prifoners, and killed 100.

June 1.

Our laft advices from Elvas, ftate, that the trenches were opened in front of Badajoz, the 28th May; and that the fiege was continued with the greateft activity.

A battle was fought at Usagre, on the 26th ult. between the cavalry of the allied army, and that of the Fr. The enemy loft 760 killed including officers and privates, and we took 73 perfoners, including a Lieut Colonel, a Grand Major, &c. We have alfo received a confirmation of the rout of Sebaftiana's divifion at Baezs.

A letter from Lifbon, dated May 29, to a merchant in this town, says, "Genoa is ours! immediately become a free port, it being laid that an Englifh squadron were invited into the port by the inhabitants." Another letter dated on the 2d June, from the fame fource, mentioning that letters had been received, confirming the above report, and alfo adds, "it is fully believed that the detachment of French troops in Spain, commanded by Gen. Sebaftiani, has been entirely cut up, and it is expected Malaca will foon be in poffeffion of the Englifh."—Ex. C. H. Book.

It is said that Government has obtained the conſent of the Cortes and Regency to take 30,000 Spaniards into British pay.

LONDON, June 3.

The Turks and Ruſſians are ſaid to have concluded another armiſtice of 42 days for the purpoſe of entering into preliminaries of peace. It is ſaid in one letter, that a new m tive of hoſtility has ariſen between Ruſſia and France. A courier of the laſt war taken by the Ruſſians on his way to the Turkiſh camp worth of Adrianople. His papers were examined, and by them it appeared that there ſubſiſted a connexion between Bonaparte and the Ottoman Porte hoſtile to the intereſt of Alexander.

June 5.

Elvas, May 22, 1811.

My Lord—I enclose a letter of the 22d inft. which I have received from Marfhal Sir Wm. Beresford, containing a letter from Gen. Gazan to Marfhal Soult, which has been intercepted by fome of our parties.

Gen. Gazan, wounded himfelf, was marching with the wounded; and from his account of thofe with him, from the account of thofe at Alsendralejo, and thofe left on the ground at Albuhera, from the numbers found dead on the field, and the prifoners, the loss fhal computes the enemy's loft not to fall fhort of 9000 men.

I have the honour to be, &c.

WELLINGTON.

Camp near Albuhera, 21ſt May, 1811.

My Lord—I have the honour to tranſmit to your Lordſhip the accompanying intercepted letter of ſome importance; after the ſevere battle we had, it is ſatisfactory to know that our calculations of the enemy's loſs were not exaggerated, and you will ſee by Gen. Gazan's letter to Marſhal Soult, that in killed and wounded, it cannot be leſs than 8000 men left dead on the field and taken; we have the knowledge of three thouſand; Gen. Gazan ſtates, that he has more than 4000 wounded with him; 320 were at Almendralejo, by the ſame letters; Gazan ſays many have died on the road, and which we know to have been the caſe, as it is in the few firſt days that the bad caſes die in numbers, and a precipitate retreat and want of convenient cottage muſt increaſe the mortality; thus we can fcarcely calculate the loſs of the enemy from theſe data at no leſs than 9000 men.

Our advance was cloſe to Aſtichal and Almendralejo, and I propoſe putting a ſtrong column of infantry to march towards thoſe places to-morrow morning and ſhall occupy it.

I have the honor to be, &c.

(Signed) W. C. BERESFORD.

New York, July 20.

By the brig Bevan, and the ſchooner Charles, from Liſbon, and the brig Union from Gibraltar, in 30 days, arrived at this port, intelligence is received from Liſbon to the 11th, and from Gibraltar to the 8th of June.

We have received Gibraltar papers, but have not time to make extracts from them for this day's REGISTER.

The following verbal details are all we have yet been able to collect.

A battle is ſaid to have been fought between the combined and the French armies in which the latter were defeated, and the remains of their army ſhut up in Seville.

Letters from Malta had been received at Gibraltar, by a reſpectable houſe, which ſtated that information had reached Malta, on the 16th of May, from Conſtantinople, Smyrna, and Odeſſa, of peace being concluded between Ruſſia and Turkey—and of war being declared by Ruſſia againſt France.

From Liſbon.—Capt. Gibſon, of the Ontario, arrived at Baltimore, the 28th inſtant, from Liſbon on the 3d June—reports that the combined Britiſh, Spaniſh and Portugueſe army had commenced the bombardment of Badajoz on the 3d; Lord Wellington was preſent, and the place cloſely inveſted.—Several ſhips had paſſed between the beſieged and beſieging.

Before Lord Wellington would open the batteries againſt the city, he ſent in a flag to the French general offering and advising, that as they reſuſed to ſurrender, they ſhould ſend the women and children, knowing he commanded a force adequate to reducing the place. The offer was rejected immediately, the Frenchman ſtating that he would defend the place while tenable, and that he was able to protect thoſe whom the beſiegers offered to receive.

The whole kingdom of Portugal remained clear of Frenchmen. No truth in the report of Wellington's army having fallen back.

Capt. G. heard of a very ſerious battle on the 23d May, ſeven days after that of Albuhera, and near the place, but no particulars.

SALEM, July 26.

From Cadiz.—Capt. Leach, who left Cadiz on the 23d of May, informs us, that the ſiege of the French had nearly ceaſed, and it was expected that they would ſhortly move off, and intercourſe with St. Mary's and the neighbouring places now in their power, be reſtored. Their fire had never done any damage in the city.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith :—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Tenth day of August next, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twentieth day of June last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Tenth day of August next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the eighteenth day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Elquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this thirty-first day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty-first year of our Reign.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

Surprise of the Caſtle of Figueras.

An account of this extraordinary event has been publiſhed in the Mancheſter Diary of the 22d April. It begins by ſtating, that Dr. Lovira—a Clergyman who, ever ſince the beginning of the War, has been remarkably active againſt the French in the Eaſtern diſtrict of Catalonia, at the head of a gallant band of Patriots—had long ago formed a plan for reconquering Figueras, and communicated it to former commanders in Chief of the army in that Province, who had conſtantly rejected it, and even nick-named it the Raviradа. The Marquis de Campoverde having been appointed to that exalted ſituation, the Doctor, ever convinced that a project might be carried into execution, ſubmitted it to his Excellency; and the Marquis, having approved of it, readily ſupplied him with the means of making the attempt.—The Doctor next concerted matters with the Commandant of the Diviſion of the Ampurdan, D. Joſe Antonio Martinez; and, having, from religious motives, fixed upon Paſſion week, it was agreed, that, on Palm Sunday, (the 6th April) the diviſion ſhould be formed in Equitol. And, accordingly, having made it known, that volunteers were wanted for a perilous, but highly important and honorable expedition, they were joined id that town by 200 men of the 1ſt Section of the Catalan Legion and 300 of the 2d light Section; proceeded to Ridaura; where they were further reinforced by 92 men of the Battalion of Almogavares and 462 of that of Expatriados; and, marching out on the morning of the 7th, arrived, at night, in the town of Oix near the frontier of France.

On the next day, in order to miſlead the enemy and their own gallant followers, they purſued their march through Sadernes, Gittariu and Coſi to Llorona, and gave out, that they were going to penetrate into France; which report obtained ſo much credit, that precautions were taken by the Inhabitants of that part of the frontier to guard againſt the threatened invaſion.—On the 9th, at 12 o'clock noon, they ſet out for the wood of Villarig, and kept concealed, until dark, in the ravine. There the whole force was divided into ſeveral detachments; officers were appointed to take charge of them, and the, received their inſtructions reſpecting the points to which they were reſpectively to proceed.

This concluded, and ſome wine having been diſtributed among the men, who, from the moment they ſtarted, had taken but little nouriſhment in cold and rainy weather, they purſued their march to Palau-Surroca, ſhort league from the caſtle, where the officers, who were all well acquainted with the place, received further and more detailed inſtructions; and, at half paſt two in the morning of the 10th, the whole diviſion leaped into the ditches, and, leaving under the arches a ſmall reſerve to carry aſſiſtance wherever it might be neceſſary, went into the caſtle at the door of the Magazine which opens to the ditch, and which had been kept open by three of Dr. Rovira's men whom he had maintained there for this purpoſe, at his own expence for upwards of a twelve month back. The firſt enemy they met with in their progreſs, was ſtabbed on the ſpot; and the Commandants of the detachments ruſhing on as quick as lightning, to the poſts reſpectively allotted to each of them, the ſurpriſe was ſo complete, that neither governor, nor officers nor ſoldiers had time to come out of their quarters, or almoſt to open their eyes or mouths; ſo that it may be truly aſſerted, that the ſurpriſe of the caſtle of Figueras was the buſineſs of a few minutes—of courſe it was effected without the loſs of a ſingle man.

This moſt important attempt having thus been crowned with complete ſucceſs, the reſerve was brought in, and the remainder of the Corps, to which belonged the troops of the Expedition, was ſent for—by which means 4 garriſon was ſhortly collected of 2600 men; and, as there was no artillery men among them, ſome of the Expatriados, who had a ſlight know ledge of that branch of the ſervice, took charge of the cannon. The leaders next thought of ſecuring the caſtle from any attempt of the enemy's. For this purpoſe, they firſt directed the door of the ſtore to be walled up without loſs of time; and then Doctor Rovira, who was better known in the Ampurdan than Commandant Martinez, ſent orders to the Inhabitants of all the neighboring towns and villages to come immediately and reinforce the Garriſon. Although his hand writing and ſignature were quite familiar to them, they heſitated to give credit to ſo wonderful a change; but the Spaniſh flag having been hoiſted and a few guns fired to remove their doubts, all the young men flocked to the caſtle, which, in a few hours was perfectly ſecure. No great apprehenſion need be entertained, as there was but 6 or 700 French foot and 40 horſe in the town of Figueras. Theſe, aſtoniſhed and terrified, knew not what to think of what was paſſing before their eyes, and doubted whether it was a dream or a reality. Concluding however, that it muſt have been a mere diſpute between the French and Italian troops, of which the Garriſon was compoſed, they ſent an orderly to aſcertain the fact, who, being challenged as he approached, & anſwering France! —was ſhot dead upon the ſpot. The reception, given to their orderly, convinced thoſe in the town that it was a more ſerious buſineſs than they were aware of, and they diſpatched a flag of truce, to whoſe inquiries no other anſwer was returned than a ſtrict injunction never to come back, as any other meſſage would be anſwered at the mouth of the cannon. Upon hearing this, the French Commandant, rendered desperate, and foaming with rage, drew up his men and ſhowed himſelf in ſight of the caſtle; but, no ſooner was his ſmall band deſcried by the gallant Conquerors, than a few cannon ſhot warned them of the imminent danger to which they were expoſed, and they directly moved out of the reach of the batteries.

The account concludes with a return of the enemy's force in the caſtle at the time it was ſurpriſed; it conſiſted of between 300 & 1200 French men of no Napolitans, with the whole ſtaff of the Ampurdan. No detailed ſtatement is given of the articles found in it; but it is aſſerted, in general, that they are worth thouſands of millions, as they were depoſited within its walls the plunder not only of the garriſon, but of almoſt the whole of the army of Catalonia, and a vaſt quantity of ordnance, clothing, proviſions, &c.

SINGULAR PHENOMENON.

Captain Farwell, arrived at Boſton from St. Ubes, when off the Weſt end of the iſland of St. Michaels, on the 18th ult. at 10 A. M. paſſed to leeward within 4 or 5 miles of a great ſmoke riſing out of the ſea, and throwing up large columns of water to a great diſtance, attended with flaſhes of fire—he ſaw ſimilar ſights the night before, at the diſtance of 50 miles.—The water appeared very much colored, and filled with dead fiſh. We ſome time ſince ſaw an account of this phenomenon in a letter from St. Michaels. It appears by this account that the ſub marine eruption continued.

[It will be recollected, that captain Thomas, of the ſhip Otis, from Liſboon, ſaw the above phenomenon on the 17th ult. and gives a deſcription of it ſimilar to the above.

NEW YORK, July 31.

From Liſbon—Arrived this day, the ſhip Columbia, Captain Selden, in 43 days from Liſbon. Captain S. ſtates, that no authentic information of the raiſing of the ſiege of Badajos had arrived at that port. The rumour of the day was, that the French army had been reinforced; and it was believed by many, that the combined armies would find it prudent to retire from Badajos. Capt. Selden adds, that from ſix to eight thouſand troops, moſtly cavalry, had arrived at Liſbon from England, to reinforce Lord Wellington's army. The people were daily ſtrengthening the fortifications in the neighbourhood of Liſbon. No apprehenſions are entertained for the ſafety of Portugal.

PROVIDENCE, July 26.

On Wednesday arrived at this port, brig George Washington, in fifty days from Gibraltar, and 48 from Algeſiras. The day before the ſailed, June 13, a Spaniſh convoy arrived from Tarragona, and brought information that the ſiege of that city, by the French, under General Souchet, had been raiſed. It was ſaid the French were preparing to leave Malaga. No late battle had been fought. The late ſucceſs of the allied armies had inſpired the Patriots with a confidence hitherto unknown, and the prevailing opinion was, that in the courſe of a few months there would not be a French ſoldier in the ſouth and eaſt part of Spain, unleſs a priſoner.

Captain Oxnard, who arriv d at Alexandria on Monday laſt, left Cadiz the 18th of June, at which time the ſiege had not been raiſed—There was a report there, which was not believed that Wellington had retreated towards the confines of Portugal. The ſiege of Badajos was going on when that latter account reached Cadiz—The ſhip Nowburyport was ſired at by the French when going into Cadiz but received no damage.

CHARLESTON, July 20.

From Cadiz via Barbadoes.—We learn by the arrival laſt evening of the ſch'r. Newbern, in 18 days from Barbadoes, that the day ſhe ſailed, a veſſel arrived at that Iſland from Cadiz, with the intelligence that General Graham had had another battle with the French, in which they were defeated; that the ſiege of Cadiz had been raiſed, and that the French were retreating out of that part of Spain.

NORFOLK, July 26.

"Saturday, July 20, ſpoke ſchr. Mercury, Swift, from Providence bound to Charleſton; ſame day at 7 A. M. lat. 38 58, in 20 fathom water, ſpoke an Engliſh ſhip of war with another ſhip in company, ſteering to the Eaſtward by the wind, who ſaid they were bound to England; and at half paſt 9 A. M. they tacked ſhip and ſtood to the S. W. at 20 minutes paſt meredian diſcovered two ſhips were ſtanding to the Eaſtward, and ſuppoſed them to be the ſame under a preſs of ſail, and to appearance one of them was in chaſe of the other: at half paſt 1 P. M. loſt ſight of them entirely: at 4 P. M. ſaw two pilot boats, one on our lee bow and the other on our lee quarter, ſtanding out to ſea: at half paſt 4 the one a head ran athwart our bows, but did not appear inclined to ſpeak us; at 20 minutes paſt 6 P. M. ſaw three large ſhips to windward, diſtance from us 12 leagues, two of them very cloſe to each other, and the other ſome diſtance to the windward, and to appearance all covered in ſmoke, the 3 ſhips were engaged firing continual broadſides and irregular ſingle guns in quick ſucceſſion—we could diſtinguiſh the difference in the report of the guns; the ſhip to windward fired not ſo faſt, and more irregular; they kept up their fire without any interruſſion till 25 minutes paſt 6, when frequently they were ſilenced on both ſides; at 47 minutes paſt 6 they ceaſed firing entirely, but ſtill kept in company."

Dorr and part of his crew of the Rapid, navigated to Philadelphia the General Green, ſhe having loſt her captain and moſt of her crew at Batavia.

From the Intelligencer.

It will be obſerved, by our paper of this day that Congreſs are convened to meet at an earlier day than that appointed by the conſtitution. It cannot be expected that the conſiderations which produced this meaſure will be fully known until they ſhall be deſcloſed to the legiſlature. It is to be preſumed that it grows out of our foreign relations. It ſeems to be underſtood that the communications of Mr. Foſter do not correſpond with the reaſonable expectations which might have been formed. We do not underſtand that they have extended directly to any ſubject beyond the orders in council and the blockade of May, 1806. With reſpect to this blockade, it is underſtood to be placed under a conſtruction and on a footing to render it no longer an inſeparable difficulty. As to the Orders in Council, it would ſeem that a repeal of them is made to depend, not only on further evidence than is yet afforded of any repeal whatever of the French Decrees, but on a repeal of theſe decrees in a far greater extent than the United States have required, or can require as violating any of their neutral rights, and an idea is held out of a retaliation on the non-importation act, if continued in force without ſuch repeal of the French decrees as is contended for by Great Britain.

INDIAN NEWS.

ST LEWIS, June 27.

Perhaps ſome of our readers will imagine, when they read the following ſtatements, that like the ſhepherd's boy in the fable, we are inclined to cry wolf! wolf! when no danger is near. The alarm has certainly been given ſeveral times before, and meaſures had been taken to frighten the wolves from the fold with effect. But in the preſent inſtance, they have burſt the incloſure, and immolated ſome victims. This, we hope, will awaken the ſhepherds to a ſenſe of danger.

Mr. Laline, Indian Interpreter informs, that "the ſavages are preparing for hoſtilities; that war is the language of all the white people. Two brothers of the wife of Main Pock, with a ſmall party, ſeized about twenty horſes on the Kaskaskia river; theſe robbers are Pattawatomies, and live in the Prairie du Borbeau, near Piorias, on the Illinois river." An old Pattawatomie, who has abandoned his tribe, and reſides near this place (St. Lewis) ſays that his ſon is juſt returned from the Prophet's town, and the numerous Indian villages on the ſouthern borders of the lakes. The prophet calculates on being able to collect all the Pottawatomies & Saukies, two thirds of the Kickapoos, a conſiderable number of Ottoways, and a ſmall portion of the Shawanees. Two or three hundred of theſe Indians have gone, by invitation, to Fort Malden, for arms and ammunition.

Since writing the above, we are told that the ſmall party ſent in the purſuit of the Indians who committed the murder on Clinton Hill, have returned; they overtook them on the road to their village, in a praire, 3 days north of the ſcene of blood. The ſavages fled towards a grove, but their prisoner, ſeeing relief ſo near, jumped off her horſe and ran to meet her friends: as ſoon as this was obſerved by her captors, they wheeled, and one of them endeavored to dispatch her by ſinking his war hatchet in her neck and back, but the girl dodged at each blow, and came off with ſleſh wounds, very deep gaſhes! We underſtand that the main body of his army, had been cut off from all communication with Seville, and with the army of Victor near Cadiz; that he was ſurrounded by Lord Wellington, and Marſhal Beresford, and was without the hope of eſcape. This intelligence is later than what we had received from the theatre of war, and while we have no doubt that ſuch was the report at Cadiz, we are inclined to queſtion its accuracy.

Expeditions were to have left Cadiz about the 10th of June, a gainſt Rota and St. Mary's, while General Graham was to make an attack on Chiclana. The Spaniards were in high ſpirits, and expected that in two months there would not be a Frenchman in Spain.—Nor. Ledg.

Lateſt Reports.—The brig Mohawk, arrived this morning from Madeira, brings a report ſimilar to that under the New-York head, of the retreat of the allies in Spain: Alſo a report of the King of England's increaſing illneſs. The following from the Norfolk Ledger contains her news:—Balt pap.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman on board the ſhip Mohawk, off Cape Henry dated July 23

We ſailed from Madeira on 27th June—there were letters and papers from Liſbon to 15th June. The French armies had received large acinforcements, and had raiſed the ſiege of Badajoz the allies having fallen back—another battle was daily expected.

There was a report in Madeira, that Admiral Cotton had fallen in with the Toulon fleet, with a number of tranſports bound to Barcelona, and had captured nine ſail of the line and ten thouſand troops, &c. but as I could not trace the channel through which the news came, to my ſatisfaction, I merely give you the report without having much confidence in it myſelf. We alſo had London papers to 15 June—the King had been taken ſuddenly ill again and it was believed could not live long.

The Britiſh and Foreign Bible Society have presented a donation of 100l. ſterl to the Charleſton (S. C.) Bible Society.

By a gentleman who arrived yeſterday from Vermont, we are informed that a very deſtructive freſhet took place in Poultney river in that ſtate, on Monday laſt, by which property eſtimated at the value of 100,000 dollars, had been ſwept away by the rapid riſe of the river; mills, bridges, dwelling houſes, barns, fences and cattle, with large fields of grain and graſs, were ſo ſuddenly taken off that in ſome inſtances the occupants had ſcarcely time to eſcape the deſtruction—our informant adds, that two or three lives have been loſt; an extenſive woollen cloth manufactory was carried off, the value of which was ſuppoſed to be 15,000 dollars—in ſome inſtances, where flouriſhing fields of grain and graſs promiſed an abundant reward for the labour of the huſbandman, the crop and ſoil were waſhed away and replaced by ſand and gravel—Poultney, Caſtleton and Middleton, are the only places from which we have heard.

BOSTON, July 27.

Capt. Endicott, arrived at Salem, yeſterday, in 49 days from Riga, Ruſſia. We have not learnt that the brings much political intelligence. Mr. Erving, our miniſter to the Court of Denmark, arrived at Copenhagen from France, on the firſt of June. His arrival had been anxiouſly looked for by our ſuffering brethren in that quarter. It appears by the Sound Liſt, that two or three American veſſels which had been captured and ſent into Denmark, had been liberated prior to his arrival. The talk of war between Ruſſia and France had ſubſided in Ruſſia.

York, Aug. 11, 1811.

NEW YORK, July 31.

By the following article from the Intelligencer, relative to the negociations with Mr. Foster, it may be fairly "inferred" that no accommodation is likely to take place with Great Britain. For our own parts we never had the least expectation that Mr. Foster's mission would be of any use;—we had no idea that the differences subsisting between this country and Great Britain could ever be settled while the present party wield the destinies of the nation.—A war with France would be the inevitable consequence of an accommodation with England; and what democratic government either in Holland, the United States, or elsewhere dare risk a war with the great Napoleon!

From the Intelligencer.

It will be observed, by our paper of this day, that Congress are convened to meet at an earlier day than that appointed by the constitution. It cannot be expected that the considerations which produced this measure will be fully known until they shall be disclosed to the legislature. It is to be presumed that it grows out of our foreign relations. It seems to be understood that the communications of Mr. Foster do not correspond with the reasonable expectations which might have been formed. We do not understand that they have extended directly to any subject beyond the orders in council and the block de of May, 1806.—With respect to this blockade, it is understood to be placed under a constitution and on a footing to render it no longer an insuperable difficulty. As to the Orders in Council, it would seem that a repeal of them is made to depend, not only on further evidence than is yet afforded of any repeal what ever of the French decrees, but on a repeal of these decrees in a far greater extent than the United States have required, or can require as violating any of their neutral rights. And an idea is held out of a retaliation on the non importation act, if continued in force without such repeal of the French decrees as is contended for by Great Britain.

SALEM, July 26.

Captain Wardwell, from Gibraltar, July 16th, fell in with and took three men from the wreck of the brig Almira, of Warren, R. I. During a heavy gale on the 12th, she was thrown on her beam ends, and immediately filled with water. In a short time a sea which righted her, carried every spar over her side The three men were preserved by lashing themselves to the taffrel, on which they had remained four days when taken off. One man perished on the wreck after the accident—the cabin boy was washed off and drowned—the two mates and one hand took to the small boat: whether they were drowned or fortunately picked up by some vessel, is uncertain; but the men from the wreck saw the boat drift past them next day.

The following Oration was delivered by the Dean of Westminster, at the close of the Funeral Ceremony at the interment of R. Cumberland, in Poets Corner, Westminster Abbey.

"Good People,

"The person you see now deposited is Richard Cumberland, an author of no small merit; his writings were chiefly for the Stage; but of strict moral tendency; they were not without faults, but they were not gross, abounding with satire and libidinous expressions, as I am shocked to observe is the case of many of the present day. He wrote as much as any; few wrote better; and his works will be held in the highest estimation as long as the English language will be understood. He conducted the Theatre a (chool for moral improvements, and his remains are truly worthy of mingling with the illustrious dead which surround us.—Read his profe fubjects on divinity! there you will find the true Christian fpirit of the man who trufted in our Lord and Saviour Jefus Chrift; may God forgive him his fins, and at the refurrection of the juft receive him to everlafting glory."

Latest from France.—The pilot boat Faith, Capt. Minugh, arrived at this port on Saturday evening, failed from L'Orient on the 21ft ult. at which time every thing relative to this country remained as per our advices by the Matchlefs. There were at L'Orient, four fail of the line and fome frigates, blockaded by fix or feven Britifh fhips of war. The American frigate John Adams was at Cherborough, and it was expected fhe would return to England previous to her departure for the United States. The news in France from England was as late as the 17 h June, above a week later than received here.

We have it in our power (from the moft refpectable authority) to contradict the reported fufpenfion of the negociation between our government & the Britifh Miniiter. The negociation is ftill continued, but in confequence of the limited powers of Mr. Foller he is obliged to wait for orders from his governmeat before any thing decifive can be determined on. By the fourth day of November Mr. Foller will have time to know the ultimatum of his government. He muft know it and this government muft know it too—different policy muft be purfued towards us or it will be feen that there is fome Wig Wam.—It is known that Mr. Madifon's proclamation grows out of the ftate of our Foreign Relations, and that he was difappointed in the miffion of Mr. Foller.—Alexr. Herald.

The following extracts of letters which we copy from the Aurora, will ferve to fhow the fituation of our trade to France,—that "extenfive and lucrative trade" which was mentioned in the National Intelligencer fome days fince. It will appear that the moft of this "lucrative trade" is carried on under licences, and not only French but Englifh licences! how will our good democrats fwallow this? The editor of the Intelligencer in his paper of Saturday, declared the New Orleans Packet was claffed among the other veffels which had arrived in France fubfequent to the 2d of November.—This was a miftake, to fay no worfe of it, which in fuch a knowing one as the Editor of the Intelligencer, ought not to have been committed. Mr. Duane's letters, confirm the ftatement we have before given, that the New Orleans Packet is not releafed.

We have received letters from Bourdeaux, of the dates between the 17th May and the 11th of June inclufive, from which we make the following extracts:—

"The fhip Ann, which lately arrived here, entered as a French fhip, though fhe had no French licence, but it is fuppofed fhe had a double fet of papers. She was admitted to enter on the 21 May, with other veffels mentioned in the annexed abftract; had the a French licence, fhe would have been admitted fourteen days after her arrival.

"The fchooner Henry, of and from Baltimore, to St. Sebaftians, burthen 97 and a half tuns, capt. Jacobs, with a cargo of fix'y tuns of tobacco, put into this river on the 28th Dec. 18 9, in diftrefs; the veffel and cargo were then feized by the cuftom houfe, and the tobacco fold. By an imperial decree of the 25th April, 1811, this fchooner and the proceeds of the cargo have been ordered to be reftored to the owners, or their agents here, on condition of exporting filk goods for the amount. The decree ftates, that the property is reftored in conlequence of the magnanimous and benevolent conduct of captain Jacobs in having affifted in Auguft, 1810, 250 French paffengers in diftrefs, flying from affaffination in the iiland of Cuba.

"Among the veffels not yet (May 17) admitted, are,

"The New Orleans Packet of New York, which arrived on the 14th Nov. from Gibraltar, where part of her cargo had been fold.

"The fchooner Friendfhip, of and from Baltimore, which arrived the 8th Dec. 1810, with coffee—fhe had cleared out for Gottenburgh.

"The brig Calypfo, of New York, which arrived at L'Orient in 18 8, where fhe was feized—has been reftored to the owners."—N. Y. Spectator.

Political Manœuvreing—The Non-Intercourfe with Great Britain is a fore evil to our country. The people now know and feel the diftreffes which this foolifh meaiure has brot upon them. Nothing could make the independant citizens of our country, fubmit to fuch an unneceffary reftriction, did they know that the government expects no benefit from it, and that it was the intention of our rulers never to releafe us from the burden of it. In order that the people fhould not underftand this bufinefs, the members of the adminiftration find it neceffary to have frequent recourfe to the old Jeffertonian fyftem of deception. It was given out foon after the paffage of this odious law, that on board the Effex were defpatches, which would enable the President to determine whether it was expedient to call Congrefs or not. Mr. Foller was alfo on his way from Great Britain, authorifed to do every thing our government fhould require of him. The Non Intercourfe had already totally deftroyed that obftinate nation, and they muft now come to our terms, alias, the terms of Bonaparte, or the ſtarving manufacturers, every man, woman and child of them would rife. The Effex arrived, but we heard nothing of her despatches. Mr. Foller alſo arrived.—Although he offered more than our government really expected, yet it was not enough—ne negociations are therefore ſuſpended, it not brought to a final clofe, and nothing is to be expected from the miſſion of Mr. Foſter. The Government G zette gravely tells us of this, and at the fame time declares that no defpatches were received by the Eſſex, ſubſequent to the arrival of the John Adams in France. Here then the curtain is let fall over two acts of the political farce. But leſt the people ſhould have time to think and reflect upon theſe diſgraceful ſcenes, before theſe acts are cloſed, another is commenced. In the ſame paper that announced the ſuſpenſion of the negociation with Mr. Foſter, and the non-arrival of the expected deſpatches by the Eſſex, we find the Preſident's Proclamation for a call of Congreſs. This is to keep up the play until November next. In November ſomething is to be done. The Preſident has important matters to communicate. The non-intercourſe will then be taken off, war will be declared againſt England, or againſt France, or perhaps againſt both. Theſe are the ideas that will now be held out. But they are fallacious. When November comes, the Preſident will take care to have ſundry deſpatch veſſels out, which will be all winter running. The proceedings of Congreſs will be ſuſpended from day to day, to hear news from Europe. Congreſs will adjourn without the expected intelligence, and the non-intercourſe will be faſtened on the country for another year.—Thus will this buſineſs be kept up from year to year, until commerce is entirely deſtroyed—and Mr. Jefferſon's Chineſe ſyſtem eſtabliſhed in our country.—N. Y. Spect.

Extract of a letter from Capt. Wm. P. Coffin of the ſchr Paulina, farmed with 4 guns and 13 men] to his owners in this city, dated ELSINEUR May 30, 1811.

"With pleaſure I inform you of my ſafe arrival at this port, after a paſſage of 32 days. Nothing of conſequence occurred until the 28th inſt. the Naze of Norway bearing N. N. W. 6 leagues diſtant. At 3 a. m. diſcovered a ſail making towards us. The wind being light I found ſhe gained upon me, and it immediately fell calm. I perceived ſhe came up with me in 40 ſweeps. Every exertion was made to eſcape, but in vain; conſequently I was prepared to be made a prize of, ſeeing his force ſo great, up wards of 40 men, and of course more muſkets than cannon, although we found he had enough of the latter. About 10 o'clock, he commenced a fire upon us. I made our ports and guns appear to the beſt advantage, but did not dare to fire; and when we came to his view, I ſaw by his actions that he was frightened. I had already 5 men ſtowed away for the purpoſe of re taking her if poſſible. He was now within half a mile, and his ſhot whiſtling round us in every direction. I thought it a pitty to loſe ſuch a veſſel as the Paulina. My ſailors, for which they deſerve credit, ſaid they would as ſoon die as be taken, and if I would head them, we could beat them off. I conſented. He ran up Daniſh colors, and I anſwered them with my guns, determined that he ſhould have the ſchooner at as dear a rate as poſſible; and after a ſmart engagement of near an hour, I was overjoyed to ſee him ſweep away from us as faſt as he came to us. I expended about 50 pounds of powder, and had only 3 cartridges left when he ran off. I found that the ſmall iron on the ſtarboard ſide did more execution than the great ſhot. Thus far the guns have ſaved the Paulina. The ſchooner is very little damaged. The privateer was a large cutter."

French Licences.—In a former paper we gave ſome account of foreign licences. We have heard, ſince that time, very little about French Licences, which used formerly to be ſounded in our ears through every democratic paper from Georgia to Maine. French licences, like Pharoah's lean kine, appear to have eaten up thoſe of Britain, and we ſhall find, on recurrence to the books of thoſe who have uſed them, that the emperor's licences are ſimilar to Pharoah's kine in another point of view; ſo withſtanding they have devoured all the other commerce of the United States, they are ſtill lean. That this ſyſtem of trading under licence, has brought diſgrace on our country, none can deny; and we are ſatisfied, that if continued, it will bring poverty as well as diſgrace. Though in the time of the Embargo, there were undoubtedly many veſſels which ſailed under Britiſh licences, yet the buſineſs was conſidered ſo degrading, that none would avow it. A captain of a veſſel who carried a Britiſh licence, felt himſelf in the ſame ſituation as if he carried two ſets of papers, and he never expoſed the licence but in the greateſt neceſſity. But how are the times altered! French licences are now ſold publicly—they have been adverſiſed by the agents of his imperial Majeſty in our capital ſeaports, and no one conſiders it a diſgrace to purchaſe. Some of the public officers in the employment of the United States, have dealt in French licences to an extent that will aſtoniſh the people, when their conduct ſhall be developed; but as this has been done under the roſe, we ſhall not meddle with it at preſent. We leave theſe people like their ſuperiors to expoſe each other. We would call the attention of our readers to the ſituation of the trade of our country, as it is at preſent conducted. Let the people read the ſtatements from the Aurora, which we publiſhed on Wedneſday; they will there find that the "lucrative trade to France," as the Intelligencer calls it, is carried on almoſt excluſively under French licences, and not only French but Britiſh licences. That our readers may underſtand a little of this buſineſs, and ſee what an enormous tribute we are paying under this licence ſyſtem, we will ſtate the price of French licences as they have been ſold by the Emperor, and by his agents or pedlars. A licence in France without the line in cypher, which muſt in all caſes be affixed in this country, uſually coſt 40 Napoleons. Theſe, if we have not been miſinformed, have actually been ſold in this city, for more than two thouſand dollars. Thus we are not only paying an enormous tribute into the emperor's caiſe privé, but we are ſupporting a number of his minions in this country, who, to ſay the leaſt of them, are not our beſt friends. If this buſineſs had been carried on privately, and by a few individuals only, the circumſtance would not have been ſo alarming; but when all the trade we are allowed to have to foreign countries is conducted in this way, and our government appear to be diſpoſed to acquieſce in the ſyſtem, it is certain a matter of very ſerious concern. We paſs laws to extend the freedom of our trade, while we encourage and patronize a trade carried on under licences. We prohibit a trade to the only nation which will meet us on reciprocal terms, and pay for commerce to a nation, which will not permit us to trade, only in a way that takes from us all the profits of our enterprize. What is this but paying a tribute to a foreign power?—N. P. Spect.

Boſton, Auguſt 2.

We yeſterday received London papers to June 17th. They do not furniſh any important occurrences.

The Prince Regent, in company with the Duke of York as Commander in Chief, reviewed 18,000 troops on Wimbleton Common, the 10th June. Several fleets of merchantmen to and from various parts of the Globe, had ſailed and arrived ſafe. According to the official returns there were in England June 1ſt, no leſs than 49 531 French priſoners of war. The letters by the Howard ſay, the Prince Regent was very well diſpoſed to cultivate a good underſtanding with the United States and to remove the Orders of Council, if they could be effected without a ſacrifice of the vital intereſts of his country.

The ceremony of the Baptiſm of the Baby King of Rome, took place in Paris, June 9th, amidſt the new made Kings and Queens and Princes of the Napoleon Dynaſty.—It was magnificient beyond deſcription. All Paris, beſides ſtrangers, ſays the Moniteur, were preſent. The day was devoted to feſtivity throughout the Empire.

MARRIED,

In Herefordſhire, England, John Freeman, a chimney-ſweeper, to Miſs Priſcilla Thankthwaite, with a fortune of 4000l. Miſs T. was a very eccentric character, and on her coming of age, declared that ſhe would be married either to a ſoldier, a ſailor, a cobler, or a chimney-ſweeper. In conſequence of this declaration, Peter Norman, a ſoldier, Henry Dalton, a ſailor, James Hunt, a cobler, & John Freeman, a chimney ſweeper, reſpectively paid their addreſſes to this fair female, and exerted all their abilities to win her heart. After a mature deliberation on the merits of the different ſuitors, ſhe gave her preference to the member of the ſooty tribe!

KINGSTON, (U. C.) Aug. 20.

DIED—On Thurſday evening laſt, the Reverend Dr. JOHN STUART, Rector of this Parish, after a ſhort but painful illneſs, which he ſupported with Chriſtian fortitude and reſignation; and on Saturday his remains were interred with every poſſible mark of reſpect.

Though Doctor STUART had attained to the age of ſeventy one years, the vigor of his conſtitution appeared to be ſtill unimpaired, and at the time he was attacked by the diſeaſe which terminated his uſeful life, he ſeemed likely to continue with us many years. He was appointed Rector to this Parish in the year 1785. At that time the Epiſcopal Church here held few members; and its increaſe, from very ſlender beginnings, to its preſent reſpectable ſtate, is in a great meaſure to be aſcribed to the reſpectability and influence of his character as a paſtor.

In his domeſtic relations he was an affectionate huſband and parent, and a kind maſter. The pleaſantneſs of his manners endeared him to his friends and acquaintance. His converſation was always remarkably cheerful, without ever derogating from the gravity of his character, or leſſening for a moment in the minds of the company the reſpect due to his ſituation.

He will be long lamented by his family and intimate friends; nor will it be eaſy to find a ſucceſſor every way qualified to repair his loſs to the public.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 6.

Latest from Liſbon.—Arrived this forenoon, the ſchr. Atalanta, Palmer, in 36 days from Liſbon, which place ſhe left the 28th June. At that time it was reported that Marſhal Soult had been joined by reinforcements, and was advancing along the banks of the Guadiana with 45,000 men.—The Britiſh had raiſed the ſiege of Badajoz, and were retiring towards Liſbon. Capt. P. further ſtates, that a few days before he ſailed, a fleet of transports had arrived from England with 4000 troops, principally cavalry, to reinforce the army of Lord Wellington.

Auguſt 10.

The Toulon Squadron.—By an intelligent gentleman who came paſſenger in the ſhip Maria Thereſa, arrived at this port this forenoon from Liſbon, we learn the official account of the capture of the French Fleet from Toulon, conſiſting of nine ſail, bound up the ſtraits, with ſome thouſand troops on board, off Cape de Gatt, by an Engliſh ſquadron of five ſail of the line, commanded by Admiral Cotton, after a very obſtinate conflict. Seven of the French ſhips had been carried in to port, and the remaining two deſtroyed. This account was received by Admiral Berkley, on the Liſbon ſtation, by a deſpatch veſſel from the ſtraits and by him communicated to the Britiſh Ambaſſador at Liſbon.

From the New York Morning Poſt.

STATE OF THE NEGOCIATIONS WITH MR. FOSTER.

We underſtand, from a ſource that we cannot but ſuſpect, that Mr. Foſter, believing the French Decrees to remain untrepealed, had propoſed to the Preſident that a non importation law ſhould be paſſed with France, placing her in the ſame ſituation, with reſpect to this country, as England; and in conſideration thereof his government would be willing to rescind their Orders in Council—or, on the other hand, produce proof of the mutual revocation of the French decrees, and then the Orders ſhall ceaſe to operate and be void. Mr. Madiſon, being unable to do the firſt, without the aſſiſtance of Congreſs, and, perhaps, not having it in his power to perform the latter, did accordingly iſſue a proclamation, convening Congreſs on the firſt Munday in November next. If Congreſs conclude that Bonaparte's decrees are ſtill in force, then there is no doubt they will paſs the reſtrictive law, and a final ſettlement with England, will be the conſequence, as we are informed that Mr. Foſter has inſtructions to make ſuch arrangements, with regard to minor points, as will obviate every material difficulty in their ſettlement. But ſhould the President and Congreſs contend, contrary to our expectations, that the French decrees are repealed, without producing proof of their revocation, and refuſe to paſs the law againſt France, then we muſt confeſs there is a great probability of retaliatory meaſures from England, which may eventuate in war.

Mr. Foſter, previous to Mr. Monroe's departure from Waſhington, had an interview with him, which laſted ſeveral hours, and terminated ſatisfactory to both gentlemen. Mr. Foſter, we learn, is making arrangements to ſtay in this country a conſiderable time.

BOSTON, Auguſt 6.

From Portugal.—Capt. Weſt, who arrived yeſterday, ſailed from Oporto on the 18th of July. It was underſtood that, for want of proviſions, the Britiſh and Portugueſe army had fallen back towards Liſbon, and within about 60 miles of that city; that Maſſena's army had formed a junction with that of Soult, and the ſeene of war had been carried to the ſouthward of the Tagus; inſomuch, that the Britiſh had ſuſpended purchaſes at Oporto for the troops, and ordered the public ſtores to be removed to Liſbon. There was a slight rumour at Oporto, that 20,000 French troops were coming down to the northward of that place, which occaſioned ſome alarm. No new battle had taken place.

The retreat of the Britiſh army cannot have been very rapid; because, if our former accounts were true, it muſt have began about the 9th of June, & to the late dates they had not retrogated more than two days march.—It was rather perhaps, a change of poſition, on the advance of the French with their reinforcements. It would appear by the laſt intelligence that the army was between Eſtremadura and Evora.

Dreadful Calamity in Hungary.

A German paper, (Neue Z. stung) which came to hand laſt week, contains the following article, dated Piesburgh, April 24. "Early on the morning of the 10th inſt. the Danube without any previous warning, ſuddenly overflowed its banks below Breſl and inundated the adjacent country thirty miles. By this incident, 24 villages, for the moſt part extremely populous, were ſwept away, with the greateſt part of their inhabitants. It is computed, that between three and four thouſand perſons have loſt their lives.

Capture of the French Brig Adele.—The U. S. brig Vixen, Capt. Gadsden, returned into this port yeſterday. She went to ſea on Friday morning, thereby after the French brig Adele, Capt. Vilac, and ſhoved to the ſouthward after her, in order to ſee her off the coaſt. In the afternoon, the Britiſh ſhip Emulous, of 18 guns, hove in ſight, and immediately gave chaſe to the French brig. Between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening, the Emulous came up with the Adele, and captured her; on Saturday morning, Capt. Gadsden fell in with the Britiſh ſhip, and her prize in company.

From the Norfolk Pub. Ledger of July 31

By the arrival of the ſhip Sheffield, capt. Cowper, in 37 days from Liſbon we have received a regular file of papers to the 2nd of June.

One of our papers contains an official diſpatch from Lord Wellington, dated at Elvas, 13th June, which is of conſiderable length. It ſtates that a breach having been made in the fort of St. Chriſtopher at Badajoz, a general aſſault was made on the 10th of June, in which the allied army was repulſed with conſiderable loſs. At this juncture, Lord Wellington learned that Gen. Drouet, who had collected a force of 10,000 men in the vicinity of Toledo, was marching in great haſte to join Soult. At the ſame time information was received by Lord Welling on that a French corps of 18,000 infantry, 3000 cavalry and 34 pieces of artillery, had marched from Salamanca, and was moving with great rapidity to join Marſhal Soult. The whole of the French forces were expected to unite in Merida on the 16th June.

This information, admitting of no doubt, Lord Wellington raiſed the ſiege of Badajoz on the 11th of June, and drew off all the heavy artillery, which with the head quarters, was tranſferred to Elvas. Marſhal Beresford remained with his command before Badajoz, the place being under blockade.

It appears that the French army, (lately Maſſena's) is marching to the ſouth, and the future ſcene of active operations will be Eſtremadura. We apprehend from Lord Wellington's diſpatch, that he will in all probability move ſtill nearer Liſbon. Gen. Hill with the late reinforcement from England of 10,000 men, of which 15 were cavalry, had not united with the main army, but would in a few days.

Marſhal Soult was at Llerena on the 5th of June, but was to march in the direction of Merida in a day or two.

Nothing of importance had occurred in the north of Spain; the allied army under Gen. Sir Brent Spencer, in conſequence of the movements of the French army had approached nearer to Liſbon, and on the 6th of June was at Siota.

It appears from our Liſbon papers, that the armies of the interior, both of France and thoſe of the patriots are in motion. Several partial actions had taken place, in which the patriots obtained the advantage. The French are determined (if we may judge from appearances) to make one grand effort to drive the Britiſh from the Peninſula, until they effect which, they cannot extinguiſh what they call "rebellions" in Spain. In Gallicia, the patriots have aſſembled a reſpectable force, with which they were marching towards the neareſt French poſt. In that part of Spain, the French were very weak, from the drafts that had been made to ſupply the army of Portugal, as it is termed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.

Naval Battle.—The following account of a naval battle in the Mediterranean was brought by the Maria Theresa, in 44 days from Lisbon:—

An Express had arrived from Admiral Cotton—Admiral Berkley, stating, that Admiral Cotton had fallen in with a French fleet from Toulon, of 9 sail of the line, off Cape De Gatt, full of troops; and had succeeded in taking seven sail, and in sinking the other two. This account was published in an Extra Gazette at Lisbon, by Mr. Stewart, British Ambassador at that place.

From Gottenburg.—Captain Coggeshall, of the Eliza, failed from Gottenburg the 21st of June—and was convoyed through the Belt by a British frigate. Admiral Stuarzes, the British commander in chief, had hoisted his flag at Gottenburg, which is his head quarters. His whole force in the Baltic consisted of 21 sail of the line, besides a great number of frigates and other vessels. No operation was had been undertaken since the arrival of Sir James.—Capt. C. states, that the conduct of the British cruizers to American vessels was marked by polite and friendly. An American vessel arrived at Gottenburg a few days before Capt. Coggeshall sailed, which was boarded off the Scaw by two Danish privateers, who permitted her to proceed. The privateersmen informed, that they had late orders not to molest American vessels.—N. Y. Gaz.

LONDON, June 24.

A vessel arrived on Saturday from the coast of Holland.—The passengers state, that the prohibitory system continues to be rigorously enforced, and that fresh failures are daily taking place among the most respectable commercial firms.

An Heligoland Mail arrived this morning, which left that Island on the 24th inst. The Horatio frigate, and some other vessels, had sailed upon an expedition, to cut out a flotilla of 29 armed vessels, near the mouth of the Ems. These, with other vessels of a similar description off the Elbe and the Weser, were placed there, it is supposed, for the purpose of cutting off all communication between the Island the Continent. Several persons had been arrested, and sent off to Hamburgh, to be tried for holding communication with the English. Some had been convicted and shot for this offence, previous to the 11th inst. the date of the latest papers from that city. The Danes are making the most active military preparations.

The 68th Regiment, 800 strong, sailed on Tuesday, to join the British army in Portugal. The 32d and 45th regiments are likewise on their passage from Guernsey, for the same destination.

The Volcano and Strombolo bombs, which, it is understood, were intended for Cadiz, sailed last week to join Sir James Saumarez, in the Baltic.

The capture of the five French privateers, and the destruction of a sixth, at Sidonia, deserves more notice than we could take of it last week. Sidonia is about 20 miles from Cadiz, and well situated for affording protection to this species of naval warfare, and facilitating the capture of any merchant vessels going into Cadiz; to which service these privateers had been too successful; not long since two large ships, laden with flour, fell into their hands. Their capture had also long been an object of desire, from a suspicion that their crews were principally deserters from the British ships lying in Cadiz Bay, Americans and others. They were small cutter rigged vessels, with sweeps; and when they undertook any considerable enterprize, 70 French Dragoons (in garrison at Sidonia) were embarked on board them. Capt. Price, of the Sabine, provoked by their daring intrusions, anchored his ship as close as possible into the road-stead, and, in the night, dispatched the boats manned with volunteers, to attack them, under the command of Lieutenant Usherwood, assisted by Lieut. Flannane, and Mr. Settle, Master. They succeeded most admirably: each boat took a privateer, though moored under a battery protected by their crews (125 men) and a strong guard of soldiers. The soldiers and crew drew 2 of them on shore, after they were taken; but were quickly put to flight by the cutlas.—Capt. Price attributes the small loss sustained (one man only wounded) to Lieutenant Usherwood's well conceived plan of attack, and the determined bravery of the officers and men. The prisoners taken had been marched from Antwerp.

The Mermaid, armed enflut, Hon. Capt. Percy, sailed on Friday from Portsmouth, with the Prince of Orange and suite on board, for Lisbon. His Highness waited only for the Prince Regent's Fete to commence his military career by active service, in pursuance of his recent nomination to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the army. He left Oxford only on Tuesday, the day preceding the Fete.

Constantinople, May 10.—According to intelligence from Schumla, dated 28th April, the Grand Vizir had come days before hoisted the horses tails, which is the signal of the order given for the troops to march from their winter quarters, and join the camp. The army immediately under his command will daily receive reinforcements from Romelia and Natolia. His principal force will nevertheless consist of troops from Romelia, whose confidence can be depended upon with some security.

The detachments of Russian troops, which were posted upon the right bank of the Danube, continue to pass by degrees to the left side.—They destroyed Nicopolis previous to quitting it. There is still in Silistria, a Russian garrison of 12000 men. Those which remain at Radschuck for the defence of that fortress, and maintain the communication with Guirgewo on the opposite bank, are estimated at about 5000 men. Gen. Siss has his head quarters at Crajova. It appears that the environs of Widden are free, and in general we now observe the greatest silence relative to the servians.

The fleet destined for the Black Sea has begun to go out of the Bay of Bujukdere, and it is believed that the Captain Pacha will shortly sail with the other ships of war which are to form a part of it.

Affairs of Portugal—We have received files of Lisbon papers to the 24th June. They contain accounts of gallant actions in various parts of Spain, in which great numbers of the invaders were killed or rendered useless.—The patriotic armies in Valencia and Catalonia appeared to be in the best spirits. Succours had been thrown into the citadel of Figueras; and a British squadron co-operated with the defenders of Tarragona. Gen. Doyle has furnished these armies with arms, stores and clothing for 10,000 men. The patriotic scouting parties were active. Even in indolent Gallicia something effective against the common enemy was expected. There did not appear to be much preparations making in Lisbon to receive the allied army; but the lines on the South side of the Tagus were very extensive and complete. We noticed many months since an article which announced the arrival in the Tagus, from England, of intrenching tools for 18,000 men; which we learn have been employed for months in rendering these lines, like those on the North side, impregnable against any force the French can bring against them.

St Louis, June 4.

We have been a letter from Governor Harrison to a public officer of this territory, informing him of the movements of the Indians. He says that the Pottowatomies who murdered Captain Cole's party, have claimed the protection of Main poc; that they will not give them up, nor is there the least probability of obtaining redress, as the whole nation have joined the prophet, who is preparing to attack the settlements shortly. These murderers have left that part of the Indian country bordering on Governor Hill's jurisdiction, fearing apprehension, as the Governor had taken measures to secure them. They now reside at the Piorias. It rests with Governor Edwards to exert his powers in bringing them to condign punishment.

From travellers, from spies and from every other source of information, direct from the hostile Indian country, we have every reason to expect a general attack as soon as the corn is ripe enough for food. We are happy to learn, that the people are placing themselves in a posture of defence by building block houses, and moving in to compact societies. We regret the want of arms among the people; scarcely a fourth house in Illinois can fur nish a rifle.

New York, Aug. 17.

LATEST FROM PORTUGAL.

By the arrival this day of the Eliz, Robinson, in 38 days from Lisbon, we learn, that the French had succeeded in relieving Badajoz, by a reinforcement of troops, and that such as had not entered had fallen back to Laredo, near Seville. No action had taken place on the advance of Marshal Soult and Marmont, as the English had taken the precaution to raise the siege & fall back to Elvas; but on the French retiring to Zarena, this English had again advanced and invested Badajoz. The Prince of Orange and suite had arrived at Lisbon, from England, and Lord Paget was daily expected. General Beresford was about returning to England. It was reported at Lisbon on the 4th of July, that the advanced army under Gen. Blake had entered Seville on the 28th of June, but it was believed that he would make but a short stay, and return to raise the siege of Cadiz. Marshal Soult had detached 20,000 troops to cut off Blake, but his success was confidered doubtful.—Five transports with troops, under convoy of a frigate was entering Lisbon when the Eriz came out. It was said to be very sickly in Badajoz, and no battles had lately been fought.

By the above arrival we have received London papers to the 27th of June inclusive, from which we have taken the following extracts.

Paris, June 21.

The Grand Duke of Baden departed this life on the 10th, after a reign of 65 years. He is succeeded by his grandson.

London, June 26.

A gentleman who arrived from Copenhagen yesterday informs us, that, according to the accounts received at that city from St. Petersburgh, matters were still in suspense between France and Russia; but that a favourable termination of the differences was expected, owing to the state of the latter power's finances. This gentleman had received at Copenhagen a paper, purporting to be an official document from France, relative to the complaints of that government against Russia. This instrument demanded of Russia, that she should shut her ports against all trade whatever, until her flag, and that of every other nation, should be respected by Great Britain.

June 27.

The idea of an immediate rupture between France and Russia gains credit; particularly since the arrival of a mail from Anholt last night. It is mentioned in several letters both from Stockholm and Gottenburgh.

Gottenburgh, June 17.

"Our letters from Stockholm speak in positive terms of war between France and Russia. The Russians are fortifying Aland, where there are 10,000 men. The storm is certainly gathering, and will most assuredly be very severely felt."

The following letter is from a gentleman in an official situation.

"Gottenburgh, June 17.

"Our accounts to day corroborate what appears in the newspapers, viz. A Rupture between Russia and France. Add to these letters the fact of the Danish army having been ordered to hold itself in readiness to march,—and the circumstance of so large a portion of the French and Rhenish troops moving towards the frontiers of Poland. And also the circumstance of so many of the French Generals having been ordered to Paris: Massena, Mortier, Junot, Ney, and others; Generals who would have been kept in Spain, if their services had not been wanted elsewhere. To all these facts we must unite the important omissions in Bonaparte's speech—the omission of all mention of Russia—the rage he vents against us for endeavouring to stimulate other powers against France, and the doubtful indecisive manner in which he speaks of the continuance of peace upon the continent.

There is a rumour in circulation that Sir Joseph York will immediately be despatched to the coast of America, with a squadron, of which the Venguer, Edinburgh and America, will form a part.

Some time ago we mentioned that the Archduke Francis, one of the Emperor of Austria's brothers, had left Vienna secretly, with all the valuables he could collect. We now find that he has made his escape to Malta, from whence he means to proceed to Messina. The motives of his departure from his brother's court and territories, are not yet known.

Mr. Wellesley Pole is appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer for Ireland, and has in consequence vacated his seat in Parliament, in order to be re-elected, for which purpose he left town last night for Ireland. He has expressed his determination not to accept any part of the salary or emoluments belonging to that office.

Government have agreed to grant licences for French ships to come to British ports in ballast, and receive on board cargoes of coffee and sugar; but those ships are not allowed to import articles of French production.

Windsor, June 26, 2 P. M.

"The King remains much in the same state as he was yesterday, at least there is no alteration for the worse."

Philadelphia, August 13.

Mr. Foster, the British minister, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon. He makes his summer residence at a country seat a few miles from town.

Boston, Aug. 3. Mr. Choate has arrived here, via Nantucket from Cadiz, which he left June 23d.—A few days before, it was reported in Cadiz, that a French squadron with troops had failed from Toulon; on which the British admiral in Cadiz put to sea immediately with four sail of the line, in search of it. Mr. C. was informed by an English officer, the day before he failed, that the French near Badajoz had been reinforced by an army of 20,000 men; and that the siege of Cadiz continued.

Dublin, June 19.—Lord Louth was this day brought up in the Court of King's Bench to receive judgement, having been convicted in Trinity Term upon a criminal information for abuse of his authority, and oppression as a Magistrate in the year 1809, in issuing a warrant against——Matthews his tenant, the prosecutor, and having him arrested and committed to Dundalk goal for an alledged felony, of having cut timber upon his Lordship's estate between sun-rise and sunset.

Judge Day recited the evidence given on the trial, from which it appeared, that the prosecutor held under the defendant, since the year 1811, a piece of ground in the county of Louth, and was in the employment of his Lordship as a labourer. No disagreement took place between them until the defendant took a fancy to about four acres of the prosecutor's land, which the latter refused to part with; and this drew down upon him the displeasure of his Lordship, which manifested itself in several acts of oppression. In the month of December, 1809, the act for which the defendant was now before the Court, was committed. On a Monday in that Month he summoned the prosecutor before him, for the alledged offence of cutting the timber; but the charge was not acted upon, and he was sent away, with orders to attend again on Saturday. His Lordship, however, did not wait for the expiration of the time, but on the intermediate Thursday he went with a constable to the prosecutor's house, and arrested him upon the warrant. In vain did he implore his landlord's clemency, urging that his wife was despaired of in a fever, and that his child lay dead in the next appartment to her. In vain did he urge his innocence; for, after the most minute investigation, not a trace appeared to warrant the charge of cutting the trees, none having ever grown where they were alledged to have been cut. His Lordship was inexorable, and, without either oath, information, or any document whatever to substantiate the charge, committed the prosecutor to prison for a felony, where he lay confined in a dungeon, as a felon, for 24 days, and was not delivered until the assizes, when he was discharged for want of prosecution. The defence set up by the defendant on this trial was error in judgement; but every circumstance tended to prove that his Lordship was actuated by malicious motives, and that it was done in revenge, in consequence of the prosecutor's refusal to give up the four acres.—The Judge fined that the Court had taken a considerable time to mature their opinion of what the sentence ought to be, and thereby afforded the defendant an opportunity of making compensation to the prosecutor, which had been done; but that reparation to the public for the injury yet remained, and the Court had decided as the sentence of his Lordship, that he be imprisoned in Newgate for three calander Months.

The sum paid to the prosecutor is said to be 300*l.* besides costs.

Villainy Rewarded.—In the rebellion of 1754, a party of Cumberland's dragoons was hurrying through Nithsdale in search of rebels—Hungry and fatigued, they called at a lone widow's house, and demanded refreshment.—Her son, a lad of six teen, dressed them up lang kale and butter, and the good woman brought new milk, which she told them was all her stock. One of the party inquired with seeming kindness, how she lived—"Indeed," quoth she, "the cow and the kale yard, with God's blessing, are my maiden." He stole, and with his fabre killed the cow, and destroyed all the kale. The poor woman was thrown upon the world, and died of a broken heart—the disconsolate youth, her son, wandered away, beyond the inquiry of friends or the search of compassion. In the continental war, when the British army had gained a great and signal victory, the soldiery were making merry with wine, and recounting their exploits—a dragoon roared out, 'I once starved a Scotch witch in Nithsdale: I killed her cow, and destroyed her greens; but,' added he, 'she could live for all that on her God, as she said.' 'And don't you rue it,' cried a young soldier, starting up, 'don't you rue it?'. 'Rue what?' said he, 'I rue aught like that.' 'Then, by my God,' retorted the youth, unsheathing his sword, 'that woman was my mother! draw, you brutal villain, draw.' They fought; the youth passed his sword twice through the dragoon's body, and, while he turned him over in the throes of death, exclaimed, 'had you rued it, you should have only been punished by your God.'

From the London Courier of June 25.

The speech of Bonaparte to the Legislative Body, is entirely his own composition—There are all the features of his character in it—Violence and coarseness; the wish to be thought careful of the interests of religion struggling to conceal, but ill concealing, that hatred he has of the Christian Religion, and the Catholic Religion above all, because, above all, it threatens to give a counterbalance to his power.—Observe, too, his desire to be thought well versed in ancient history; he can faintly misapplies and misunderstands it. Then the affectation of moderation in his views and intentions which he exemplifies by a recapitulation of the most horrible acts of tyranny and injustice—He is shocked at religion being mixed with politics, and he seizes Rome; he does not wish for any thing that is not contained in the treaties he has concluded; and he destroys the independence of Holland, which he had guaranteed by the most solemn treaties. There is a levity too in his manner of speaking of those acts which increase our disgust of his character: 'the tyger and the monkey are mixed up in him;' "Holland has been united to the empire; (he is but an emanation of it!" Infolent mockery! He is scandalized at our attack upon neutrals, and he secures the mouths of the Ems, the Weser, and the Elbe, all belonging to neutrals; not that he wants to increase his territories, but for maritime means. The crying injustice of seizing the Valais he gently dismisses by saying that that event was foreseen from the moment the act of mediation took place. Foreseen it was, no doubt, because it was foreseen that he would stick at nothing that he could accomplish, by fraud or force, by treachery or violence—but foreseen it could not be upon any other ground, because he had expressly stipulated for the independence of the Valais, complimenting the inhabitants upon their simple and pastoral habits, so worthy of the patriarchal ages!—But England! the mighty nation that still rebukes his power and mocks his means, the very mention of England stirs all the gall in his composition, and excites a paroxism of rage and hate. What accuracy does he not attribute to us—What power of raising the arms of nations against him! What a promptitude in laying hold of every event that occurs! What a quickness of perception in his designs! But why this furious tirade now, now against us!—Why? but because some continental power has evinced an intention of escaping from his system; because that power has remonstrated against its impolicy, and shewn that it is calculated to do more harm to those who adopt it than to those against whom it is directed. This is the only key we can find to his present fury, and Russia is the power which he supposes us to have attempted to route.—Russia, as we remarked on Saturday, he does not name, nor even alude to. Nor does he mention Prussia. He never omits particularising the powers with which he is satisfied. The omission of their names is a purpoled one. He is evidently not sure that the peace of the Continent will not be disturbed—"he wishes nothing that is not in the treaties he has concluded." expressions, we may be sure, full of meaning, and sufficiently significant to Russia if not to Prussia. Were we to hazard a conjecture, we should say, that Russia had bound herself, by secret articles, to adopt all the means he might adopt against this country; to be of one mind with him for peace or for war; that Russia has since found out the folly & ruin of clinging to his system, and has resolved upon deparring from it.——Hence his rage and his accusations against us!

The manner in which he speaks of our interference on the Peninsula is worthy of remark, on account of its bombast and its absurdity. He is to put an end to us by a peal of thunder. Let him take care that the bolt he would launch against us does not fall upon his own head.

The account of the operations in Catalonia is the next article worthy of notice. After our readers have perused it, we would ask them, whether two troops of any nation could have shewn more courage, more discipline, more firmness, more constancy, than these Catalonians? Every day is a day of combat; the scene terrible, as the French themselves confess; the Spanish artillerymen suffer themselves to be cut down at their guns; they will not capitulate; they stand an assault, and defend the fort to the last ditch, to the last entrenchment. If, without this discipline and skill the Spaniards have been able to refist France for three years, what may they not be expected to do, now that they have added a knowledge of the military art, to a love of their country and a hatred of their oppressors. It will be from Spain then "that the peal of thunder" will come that will appal if not destroy the Tyrant.

INSURRECTION AND MASSACRE!!

Captain Spalding, of the schooner Mary, in 17 days from Aux Cayes, arrived at Quarantine ground this morning. Capt. S. not having been visited by the port Physician, we could not board him; but learned while our boat lay at some distance from him, that there had been a serious insurrection at Aux Cayes. The facts, as nearly as our situation would permit us to gather them, are that a detachment of Rigaud's troops, stationed near Petion's line, being in great want of provisions, &c. had frequently petitioned for supplies; which were promised by Rigaud to be furnished in a few days—not satisfied with this, they still continued their murmurs, and finally determined on marching into town, and supplying themselves by force; and on putting Rigaud to death should he oppose them. They offered to place their captain, in the event of success, in Rigaud's place, if he would head them in the enterprize; this he peremptorily refused, and was immediately shot. The Rebels entered the city at two o'clock in the morning of the 28th June; and, there being but few troops in town to oppose them, took possession of the arsenal, and commenced a dreadful slaughter of the inhabitants, which they continued till 11 o'clock, A. M. when finding that General Rigaud was drawing in from out posts a reinforcement of troops for the defence of the city, they retreated and endeavored to gain the mountains for refuge; but being closely purfued, 50 or 60 of them, with their leader, were killed and shot.—When Captain S. failed, the people were apprehensive of another serious attack, and were making preparations for it, by placing the town in a better state of defence. It was a dreadful sight to see the women and children flying from their homes to the beach, and in attitudes of inexpressible anguith, imploring the shipping in the harbor to save them from the savage massacre.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 31.

MR. EDITOR.

A most inhuman practice exists in this town and neighbourhood, at which the humane mind ought to revolt with horror and detestation.

If a latent desire of revenge is cherished towards any person who may own cattle, by some miscreant whose mind is rendered callous by the indulgence of vicious inclinations, or if an horse or cow may happen to stray on the premises of those whose breasts are devoid of feeling; the poor animal, whose only desire is the gratifying his appetite, feels the effects of their brutal rage.

Two horses, accustomed to run on the Commons here, one owned by Mr. Murchison and the other by Mr. Cooper, were fince Monday last, cut in a most shocking manner with an axe-knife, or some other sharp instrument —If such internal customs are passed by, we shall by degrees degenerate into such a state of barbarity, that the next courfe taken will be to mangle one another.

I have been informed, that of late, this practice has become so horribly prevalent, as hardly to excite belief; and it is to be hoped, that every one who posseses the common feelings of humanity, will join in a fervent wish, that the Magistrates of this town will enforce the law (if such there is) which may tend to prevent the recurrence of such atrocities. AN INHABITANT.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the Tenth day of August next, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twentieth day of June last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the Tenth day of August next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear: but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving Subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and enabling thefe prefents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the eighteenth day of September next enfuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into conſideration the ſtate and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may ſeem neceſſary: herein fail not.

IN Teſtimony whereof, WE have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our ſaid Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witneſs our truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province at York, this thirty-firſt day of July in the year of our Lord one thouſand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty firſt year of our Reign.

NEW YORK, August 26.

On Saturday evening arrived at this port the fast sailing ship Herald, capt. Price, from Liverpool, having sailed from thence on the 9th of July—the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have received from capt. Price a file of London papers and Lloyd's Lists, to the evening of the 6th of July, and a Liverpool paper of the 8 h.

London, July 1.

Portsmouth, July 5.

This morning sailed the Vengeur, 74 Rear Admiral Sir Josep Yorke, Capt. Brown; Dunciark, 74. Capt. Buller; Edinburgh, 74 Capt. Rolles; Pyramus, 36. Capt. Dalrwood; and the Rover, 18, Capt. Finley, for the coast of America.

July 2.

Orders came down this morning for the Spartan frigate to complete her refit, and repair immediately to Spithead, to join the squadron under Sir Joseph Yorke, for America.

Dover July 3.

The ship Archduke Charles, Capt. Moore, from Lima, went up this morning, and landed F. Salazar, and suite, Deputy from the kingdom of Peru; he went to Wright's hotel and Ship Inn, was in full uniform (blue turned up with red.) They bring home one million and five hundred thousand pounds sterling all in gold.

Spoithberg, June 13.

This morning a fleet of English vessels was discovered under easy sail, standing to the southward with a light westerly breeze, and a southerly current; at nine in the forenoon, the said fleet being then off Flotsberg, it tacked and came to anchor to the northward of Sendgaddesky. Another fleet of English vessels, which yesterday evening came to anchor between Heurthholm and Spoithberg, weighed anchor this morning and proceeded. The convoy consists of 88 sail, including the ships of war.

NEW YORK, August 27.

The fast sailing schooner Portie, captain Turner, arrived at this port yesterday, in 32 days from Bourdeaux, from whence she sailed on the 22d of July. The news of the departure of Sir Joseph Yorke for the American station had been received there.

Joseph Bonaparte had set out for Spain; and 80,000 troops were to follow him, as a reinforcement to the armies in Spain and Portugal.

Tranquility prevailed between Russia and France, and no idea was entertained that it would be interrupted.

We are happy to have been able to trace the report of the insurrection of the blacks in Jamaica, in such a manner, and to make such comparisons of dates and circumstances, as to warrant us in saying that no credit whatever is to be attached to it.—Even. Post.

The British West India merchants stated to their government in May last, that their produce formed one third of the imports of the kingdom, and their supplies required nearly one fourth of the exports; that the British capital employed in the West Indies, is supposed to amount to one hundred and fifty millions sterling.

Extract of a letter from Spain.

"BANKS OF THE DOURO. May 29.

"The superio junta of Burgos, has just received an account of the rencontre which the intrepid Don Francisco Elpozy Mina has recently had with the French in the vicinity of Vitoria, the particulars of which are as follows:—

"On the 25th instant, a French detachment, consisting of 1200 men of infantry and cavalry, let out from Vitoria to escort a large convoy of 150 coaches and waggons, loaded with the riches, spoils and baggage of general Marsena, who, with other French generals remained in Vitoria. There was also in the convoy 1 42 Spanish and English prisoners. They had hardly marched two hours, when Elpozy (who had previously stationed his troops on the right and left of the road) permitted the French vanguard to pass on, and suddenly attacked the main body of the convoy. This happened at 6 in the morning and after a short resistance on the part of the French, their general of brigade (Lieutenante) hoisted a white handkerchief and exclaimed that he wished to surrender. With this our troops suspended their fire and Elpozy sent an officer to treat about the surrender, which in appearance was sincere; but the French general shot the unfortunate officer with a pistol. Our men, justly irritated by this act of treachery, renewed the attack with fury, killed a great many of the enemy, and obliged the rest to surrender. Their perfidious general was immediately shot: the prisoners regained their liberty, and in a moment they armed themselves with the muskets of those who but a short time before were their oppressors.—The action lasted four hours in which the French lost 300 men, including several officers of rank, the rest remained prisoners, among whom there is a general, who is wounded. It is calculated that the booty amounts to four millions.—Our loss is but trifling.—Espozy maintained his positions with the intention of taking if possible the rabble as he calls them) following French generals who were at Vitoria:—Marshal Maffena; generals of division Loison, Solignac, Lahouski and Marchand; generals of brigade Thouvenot, Buquet, Grandjean, Barthelemy, Lapisse and Gratien and other officers of rank.

"In consequence of the taking by surprise the important fortress of San Fernando de Figueras, and the brilliant actions of Oiot and Castellfollit, the council of regency has promoted the brigadiers Don Juan Antonio Martinez and Baron de Eroles to the rank of field marshals and colonel Don Francisco Rovira to that of brigadier."

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

Yesterday arrived at this port, the ship Ariadne, Getty, in 45 days from Belfast, from whence she sailed on the 14th of July, Capt. G. has furnished the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser, with Irish newspapers to the 14th of July, containing London dates of the 12th. The papers are barren of news. The following is a summary of their contents.

The official letter of Commodore Rogers appears in one of the papers with the following remark: "It is a very plausible statement, and makes us extremely anxious for the publication from authority of Capt. Bingham's despatches."

The same paper of the 8th ult. says, "according to accounts received this day from Portsmouth, Sir J. Yorke, proceeded to sea with sealed orders, to be opened to the westward of Scilly. Sir Joseph sailed on Friday."

A London paper of the 9th ultimo, observes, that the report of the Queen's Council was signed by all the members on Saturday, and was to be laid before Parliament that day (the 9th.)

The same paper observes, that his Majesty was not in a state of mind to resume the functions of the Regal Authority; that his bodily health, however, had not declined, and therefore that some of the physicians saw no reason to alter their former opinion, that his Majesty would ultimately recover, notwithstanding the accounts from Windsor were, that the King had passed a worse night on Sunday, than he had done for a considerable time.

A letter from a respectable gentleman of the first respectability in London, dated 3d July, has the following postscript:—"Wat with the United States will take place, if the American government do not give satisfaction for the attack on the little Belt—which is said here to have been made by the President."

Capt. Tabor, of the ship Mary, who arrive d here yesterday, left Oporto on the 29 h of July. He states, that the combined British Spanish and Portuguese armies were in cantonments, as was also that of the French, during the summer months; and that no battle had taken place since that of Albuhera.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

By the arrival at Boston of the brig Female, in 33 days from Bordeaux, French papers to the 14th July are received.

The stock of the bank of France, is rated at 25 per cent advance; the last 6 months dividend being 3 1-2 per cent with a reserve of 2 1-2 per cent.

In the public schools military discipline is ordered to be given to the children, in order that they may acquire the habit of subordination, so useful in all the avocations of life.

The use of indigo is said to be replaced by the Pastel of Languedoc; and sugar of cane by that of the sugar of maple and beets.

The Expose of the government states, that 28,000,000 of dollars, are appropriated in 1811, for works of internal improvement; this, the paper says, is a greater sum than any of the Emperors's predecessors used to apply during a whole reign.

Paris, July 9.

Letter from Gen. Souchet to the Prince of Neuchatel. &c.

"MY LORD,

"I depose at the feet of his Majesty, the Keys of Tarragona, to which is attached the hope of the approching submission of all Catalonias

"A siege of two months, or rather three sieges in one, and five successive assaults, have destroyed a garrison of 18,000 men, of the most reputable troops of Spain, and opened to us a port where the English have fed the insurrection of the province, to preserve a vent for their merchandize. They have by their multiplied succours, prolonged the defence of the place; they have carried thither arms, ammunition, and troops from Valencia, Alicant and Carthagena.

"The fury of the soldiers was raised to the highest state by the resistance of the garrison, who expected each day their deliverance, and who assured themselves of success in a general sortie. The 5th assault, more vigorous than the preceding, gave us yesterday, in the middle of the day, the last enclosed place, and led to a terrible massacre, with little loss on our part.—The disastrous consequences that I predicted in my last despatches, have taken place, and will resound for a long time in Spain. 4000 men have been killed in the city. 10 or 12,000 have attempted to save themselves over the walls, by flying to the country; near 10,000 wheat 500 were officers, were taken prisoners, and are on their way to France; near 1500 wounded are in the hospitals of the place, where their lives have been respected in the midst of carnage. Three Field Marshals and the Governor are among the dead. 20 colours, 384 cannon, 4000 balls or bums, and 50,000 wt. of powder and lead, are in our power. I shall immediately address to your Highness the exact details of all that we have found, and the glorious action which has crowned the efforts of the army of Arragon and Catalonia.

"I am with respect, Monseigneur, of your Serene Highness, the humble and very devoted servant,

(Signed) "Comte SOUCHET."

(Then follows a list of 479 officers, and 9,284 soldiers prisoners.)

New York, August 29.

A French Prize.—The British ship Tottenham, capt. Young, bound from London to Grenada, arrived here yesterday, prize to the French Privateer Duke of Dantzic, capt. Arragnaudau, a member of Bonaparte's legion of honour. She was captured off Barbadoes, the 3d inst. and the captain and crew, except 3 men and 2 boys, were put on board the privateer. The Tottenham mounts about 10 guns, and was taken early in the morning by surprise. The prize came into our harbour with the French flag flying over the English, and the union down. The prize master alledges, that he put into this port for want of provisions, water, &c.—The privateer had taken 5 or 6 other ships which she burnt. We believe this to be the first French prize that has put into this port since the days of citizen Genet.

Philadelphia, August 27.

The French privateer brig Diligent and French privateer schr. Marengo, that went to sea on Saturday last, have put back into Cape May Roads.

We understand that the French brig Diligent, after dropping down the river, received her complement of guns, carriages, &c. from the Marengo, who it is said, obtained them for this purpose in a late visit to New-York.

Batavia, (Genesee) August 19.

On Sunday morning, the 11th inst. a Seneca Indian was found dead near the village of New-Amsterdam in the County of Niagara. He appeared to have been beaten in a violent and inhuman manner. Upon inquiry it was ascertained that during the preceding evening there had been a quarrel between some white men and Indians, in which this unfortunate Indian was concerned. The quarrel commenced about 100 rods from the place where he was found dead. After receiving one or two blows, he had endeavored to make his escape by taking the road that leads to the Indian village. He was pursued by several white men, among the most active of whom was one M'Donald. The Indian had not gone far before he received a most violent blow upon the head with a club, supposed to have been thrown by M'Donald, and during the pursuit several others, but from whom does not appear.—Proving, however, too active for his followers, the Indian finally escaped them. On Monday the 12th inst. the coroner's quest was held over the body. Two severe bruises were discovered on the head; one on the left side the other on the back part, in the latter of which places the scull was much fractured. The inquest, after a patient and lengthy investigation of the matter, found a charge against M'Donald of wilful murder. M'Donald has made his escape, and is supposed to have gone to Malden, Upper Canada. A reward of 50 dollars is offered to any one who will apprehend him and have him confined in any gaol in this state.

Boston, August 29.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

Last evening arrived the U. States frigate John Adams, Capt. Dent, from France; sailed from Cherbourg, 17th July, and landed a messenger on the coast of England, on the 18th.

Capt. D. informs, that a few days before he sailed from Cherbourg, an order came to give up several American vessels, and among them was the Henry, Low, of Portland, which had been detained above a year.

The John Adams has several sets of despatches for government, & brings many letters and papers. The latter are not later than those received by the Female from Bordeaux.

The day the John Adams sailed from Cherbourg, capt. D. spoke one of the blockading squadron, who gave him some English papers, as late, he thinks, as the 13th or 14th of July, which he afterwards gave to Admiral Hood, from the Mediterranean. The papers stated that the court of inquiry on capt. Bingham, had highly approved of his conduct, & a letter from Admiral Sawyer, spoke also in the highest terms of his conduct, as commander of the Little Belt; our neither of these letters were published; and that the English ministerial papers continued to affirm, that Sir Joseph Yorke has orders to commence immediate hostilities with America, unless our government will make proper concessions for the insult thus offered their flag. The King of England remained the same as for some time past. Nothing new from the North of Europe.

Capt. D. informs that many troops were continually going from France to Spain and Portugal; and that about 50,000 had passed through Bayonne within a short time.

New York, August 31.

Latest from Lisbon direct.—By the arrival this forenoon of the brig Alliance, capt. Brumley, from Lisbon, which place she left the 24th July, we learn that there had been no recent general battle up to that date, between the allied and French armies. Four thousand British troops destined for Malta, touched at Lisbon a few days before captain Bumley sailed, and were ordered to land and join Lord Wellington's army.—Evening Post.

The President having, at the demand of the British minister, disavowed any orders as having occasioned the chace and battle with the Little Belt, and agreed to call a civil court upon the conduct of Captain Rogers, as we intimated some days ago, upon the authority of accurate letters from Washington, the apprehensions of war excited in England by that conflict, and the failing of Admiral Yorke with a reinforcement for the Halifax fleet in consequence, do not indicate the approach of hostilities. Balt. Fed Rep.

Court of Inquiry.—The gentlemen who compose the Court of Inquiry, appointed by the Secretary of the Navy to investigate Commodore Rogers' conduct, prior to and during his engagement with the sloop of War Little Belt, assembled this morning on board of the U. S. Frigate United States, now lying in the port of New York, and entered upon the business of their appointment. The Court is composed of Commodore Decatur, is President, Captains Chauncy and Stewart, Affaciate Members, and Adjutant Gen. Wm. Paulding, Judge Advocate, in the place of Nathaniel Sandford, Esq. who declined serving in that capacity on account of ill health. It is supposed that the business will occupy the Court several days. Eve. Post.

The Aurora has intelligence from Wilmington that a proclamation is about to be issued laying an embargo on all vessels in the ports and harbors of the United States. This is likely enough.—As soon as we heard that Admiral Yorke was to come upon the American station with an additional naval force, we expected that our warriors at Washington would fit out a proclamation to repel him.—Gaz. U. States.

Proclamation.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the eighteenth day of Sept. next to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twenty first day of July last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the eighteenth day of Sept. next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving Subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-sixth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this Seventh day of Sept. in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty first year of our Reign.

Lateft Intelligence.

Valencia, May 31.

The Catalan Boys, Don Francisco Rovira, arrived in this city on the 23d inft. and departed the following day, amidst the acclamations and applauses of the people, to join the general in chief at Murviedro.

About the middle of this month, 32 boxes of plate arrived here, which were sent by the Empecinado, and which were the booty he had re taken from the enemy—Every active measure is now taking to supply the public necessities both within and without this province. Our archbishop has contributed 3000 reals for the subscription opened in this city to supply the forces of Figueras, and 4 00 for the army of Aragon.—The collection is still going on.

The stock of an earthquake was very sensibly felt all over the town, on Thursday morning, a few minutes before 7 o'clock.

There is an intimation in the French Expose, that Bonaparte will send 350-000 additional troops into Spain; to find the graves in which an equal number have already been deposited.

NEW YORK, August 28.

Independence of South America.—We this day copy from the Aurora the Declaration of Independence of the provinces of that part of South America, called Venezuela, and the establishment of a federal and representative government in those provinces. The provinces consist of seven; but the spirit of liberty is not confined to Venezuela, and we soon expect to hear of other provinces following the example of that part of South America.

By the name of the Most High.

We, the representatives of the federal provinces of Caracas, Cumana, Barinas, Margarita, Barcelona, Merida, and Truxillo, constituting the confederation of Venezuela, on the southern continent of America, in congress assembled; confidering that we have been in the full and entire poffession of our natural rights since the 19th of April, 1810, which we refumed in consequence of the transactions at Bayonne, the abdication of the Spanish throne, by the conquest of Spain, and the accession of a new dynasty, established without our consent. While we avail ourselves of the rights of men, which have been withheld from us by force for more than three centuries, and to which we are reftored by the political revolutions in human affairs, we think it becoming to ftate to the world the reasons by which we are called to the free exercise of the sovereign authority.

We deem it unnecessary to infift up on the unquestionable right which every conquered country holds to reftore itself to liberty & independence: we pals over in a generous silence, the long series of ill ations, oppreffions, & privations, which the fatal law of conquest has indiscriminately involved the difcoverers, conquerors, and settlers of thefe countries; whole condition has been made wretched by the very means which should have promoted their felicity: throwing a veil over three centuries of Spanish dominion in America, we can confine ourselves to the narration of recent and well known facts, which prove how much we have been ill ated; and that we should not be involved in the commotions, diforders, and conquests which have divided Spain.

The diforders in Europe had increased the evils under which we before fuffered; by obftructing complaints, and fruftrating the means of redress, by authorising the governors placed as by Spain, to infult and oppress us with impunity, leaving us without

GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the twenty first day of July last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the eighteenth day of Sept. next, at which time at our town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving Subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the twenty-sixth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada and therein to do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province at York, this Seventh day of Sept. in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven, and in the Fifty first year of our Reign.

Lateft Intelligence.

Valencia, May 31.

The Catalan Boys, Don Francisco Rovira, arrived in this city on the 23d inft. and departed the following day, amidst the acclamations and applauses of the people, to join the general in chief at Murviedro.

About the middle of this month, 32 boxes of plate arrived here, which were sent by the Empecinado, and which were the booty he had re taken from the enemy—Every active measure is now taking to supply the public necessities both within and without this province. Our archbishop has contributed 3000 reals for the subscription opened in this city to supply the forces of Figueras, and 4 00 for the army of Aragon.—The collection is still going on at the Holy Metropolitan church as has likewise subscribed 15,000 reals for Catalonia, and 3000 for Aragon.—The magistrates and town of Bocairente have put 3000 reals and 3000 shirts at the disposal of the Marquis de Campo verde, to be divided amongst those who distinguished themselves the most in the daring undertaking to surprife the fortrefs of Figuera. Don Jofef Armegnol, an inhabitant of Murviedro has delivered to our general the sum of 192 reals for the works that are now making in that fortrefs.—4000 bayonets, 2000 muskets and 25 many suits of clothes have been sent to the army of Arragon. 43,000 rations of bread, 40,000 of grain, 64 quintals of powder, 2000 do. muskets balls, 2000 do. of cannon balls, and a large quantity of lead, have been sent to Tarragona; and finally a detachment of 1700 men from this army have been sent to reinforce the garrison of that place —and we endeavour by every means possible to foment the trade of carrying provisions there from these coasts.

Brigadier Don Juan Martin (the Empecinado) commander of the 5th division of the second army, under date of the 27th inft. from Buitrago, transmitted to the general in chief a dispatch from the commander of the 2nd squadron of light cavalry, Don Jofef Mendedes, which in substance is as follows—that in consequence of the directions of the brigadier, he was proceeding towards Alcala de Henares to attack the garrison in that city; he met on the 24 h of the same month an escort of 46 men near Azuqueca, from the regiment of Estremadura, with one officer—he attacked them, killed 14 including the officer, and took the rest prisoners.

Philadelphia, August 26.

Latest from Gibraltar and Cadiz.—By the brig Amphitrite, Capt. Maliere, arrived at this port this morning, in 36 days from Gibraltar, a file of the Gibraltar Chronicle to the 14 h ult. has been received at the office of the Register, from which the following articles are taken:—

CADIZ June 28.

Ayamonte letters of the 26 h, fuppofe the van guard of the army in Gibraltar. There, as well as here, the objects of its movements is unknown.

JULY 1.

The remainder of the convoy which was collecting in this bay, has failed.—The first division has been gone for several days, with provisions and cash for Blake's army.

JULY 2.

A body of cavalry of the 5th army is between Vellarala and la Palma, and the remaining troops at Cattellejos, Gibraleon, &.

JULY 3.

Ayamonte letters of yesterday state, Gen. Blake to have his head quarters at Trigueros. Lord W Bentinck and Suit continued in Sherpa tions—the latter making frequent excursions in the environs of Elvas. Gen. Graham failed this day for Lisbon, in the Latona, with one ship of the line and a few transports.

ELVAS, June 21.

D. Juan Sanchez attacked, near Ciudad Rodrigo, 500 Frenchmen, who efcorted a convoy of provisions for the said town—took 200, put the others to the sword, and captured the convoy —The Anglo Portuguese army continues in its positions, and the enemy's on the left of the Guadiana—the latter have detached two divisions to watch Gen. Blake's and Billefter's motions. We have been apprized of the constitution of Asturias, which is due to the judicious movements of M. Santocildes, who his fumponed Asturgas. The last mentioned city and that of Leon, will shortly be clear of enemies.

AYAMONTE, June 27.

Yesterday were landed 22 pieces of ordnance and their carriages; and this day, after being repaired, they set out for La Redandela, following Blake's army.

GIBRALTAR, July 13.

Spanish papers have been received to the 9 h inft. since the above extracts were taken from those we had in hand Not only is the account of the evacuation of Asturias confirmed, but it is added, that the enemy abandoned Astorga, on the morning of the 20th of last month, after blowing up the ramparts. The army of the centre continued in Bizo on the 12th. Quesada's division occupied Bizo and Ubeda; the enemy's greatest force was at La Carolina. There remains no French troops on the eastern coast from Alicante to Velez Malaga. Blake is concentrating his forces in the environs of Ayamonte—the enemy's consist of between 11 and 12,000 men. One of their detachments entered Huelva in the evening of the 5th inft. and one of their divisions was seen on the 7th, paffing through Lepe, shortly after Billeters had paffed through the same place on his way to Ayamonte. Soult is ftated to have confiderably reinforced the garrison of Badajoz, and since returned to Seville; and accounts had been received at Cadiz of Lord Wellington having advanced to Truxillo, in consequence, it was fuppofed, of Marmon's having patted with Soult and proceeded to Caftile with troops.

JULY 11.

The remainder of the convoy which was collecting in this bay, has failed.—The first division has been gone for several days, with provisions and cash for Blake's army.

JULY 2.

A body of cavalry of the 5th army is between Vellarala and la Palma, and the remaining troops at Cattellejos, Gibraleon, &.

JULY 3.

Ayamonte letters of yesterday state, Gen. Blake to have his head quarters at Trigueros. Lord W Bentinck and Suit continued in Sherpa tions—the latter making frequent excursions the protection or the support of the laws.

It is contrary to the order of nature, impracticable in relation to the government of Spain, and has been most afflicting to America, that territories so much more extensive, and a population incomparably more numerous should be subjected and dependant on a peninsular corner of the European continent.

The cession and abdication made at Bayonne, the transactions at the Escurial and at Aranjuez; and the orders issued by the imperial lieutenant the marshal Duke of Berg to America, authorizing the exercise of those rights, which till that period the Americans had sacrificed to the preservation and integrity of the Spanish.

The people of Venezuela, were the first who generally acknowledged, and who preferred that integrity, never for taking the interests of their European brethren, while there remained the least prospect of salvation.

America had required a new existence; she was able and was bound to take charge of her own safety and prosperity; she was at liberty to acknowledge or to reject the authority of a king who was so little deserving of that power as to regard his personal safety more than that of the nation over which he had been placed.

All the Bourbons who concurred in the futile stipulations of Bayonne, having withdrawn from the Spanish territory contrary to the will of the people, abrogated, dishonored, and trampled upon all the sacred obligations which they had contracted with the Spaniards of both worlds, who with their blood and treasures had placed them on the throne, in opposition to the efforts of the House of Austria: such conduct has rendered them unfit to rule over a free people, whom they disposed of like a gang of slaves.

The intrusive governments which have arrogated to themselves the authority which belongs only to the nation al representation, treacherously availed themselves of the known good faith the distance and effects, which ignorance and suppression had produced a mong the Americans, to direct their passions against the new dynasty, which had been imposed upon Spain, and in opposition to their own principles, kept up the illusion amongst us in favour of Ferdinand, but only in order to baffle our national hope and to make us with greater impunity their prey; they held forth to us promises of liberty, equality, and fraternity in pompous discourses, the more effectually to conceal the snare which they were in fidiously laying for us by an inefficient and degrading shew of representation.

As soon as the various forms of the Spanish government were overthrown, and others had been successively substituted, and imperious necessity had taught Venezuela to look to her own safety, in order to support the king & afford an asylum to their European brethren against the calamities by which they were menaced, all their former services were disregarded; new measures were adopted against us, and the very steps taken for the preservation of the Spanish government, were branded with the titles of insurrection, perfidy and ingratitude, but only because that the door was closed against a monopoly of power which they had expected to perpetuate in the name of a king, whose dominion was imaginary.

Notwithstanding our moderation, our generosity, and the purity of our intentions, and in opposition to the wishes of our brethren in Europe, we were declared to the world in a state of blockade; hostilities were commenced against us; agents sent among us to excite revolt and arm us against each other; whilst our national character was traduced and foreign nations excited to make war upon us.

Deaf to our remonstrances, without submitting our reasons to the impartial judgment of mankind, and deprived of every other arbitrament but that of our enemies, we were prohibited from all intercourse with our brethren; and adding contempt to calumny, they undertook to appoint delegates for us, & without our consent, who were to assist at their cortes, the more effectually to dispose of our persons and property, and render us subject to the power of our enemies.

In order to defeat the wholesome measures of our national representation, when obliged to recognize it, they undertook to reduce the ratio of our population, submitting the forms of election to servile committees acting at the disposal of arbitrary rulers; thus insulting our inexperience & good faith, and utterly regardless of our political importance or our welfare.

The Spanish government, ever deaf to the demands of justice, undertook to frustrate all our legitimate rights, by condemning as criminals and devoting to the infamy of the gibbet, or to confiscation and banishment, those Americans who at different periods had employed their talents and services for the happiness of their country.

Such were the causes which at length have impelled us to look to our own security and to avert those disorders and horrible calamities which we could perceive were otherwise inevitable, & from which we shall ever keep aloof; by their fell policy they have rendered our brethren insensible to our misfortunes and have armed them against us; they have effaced from their hearts the tender impressions of love and confanguinity, and converted into enemies many members of our great family.

When, faithful to our promises, we were sacrificing our peace and dignity to support the cause of Ferdinand of Bourbon, we saw to the bonds of power by which he united his fate to that of the Emperor of the French, he added the sacrifice of kindred and friends, and that on this account the existing Spanish rulers themselves have already resolved to acknowledge him only conditionally. In this painful state of perplexity, three years have elapsed in political irresolution, so dangerous, so fraught with evil, that this alone would have authorized the determination which the faith we had pledged and other fraternal attachments had caused us to defer, till imperious necessity compels us to proceed farther than we had first contemplated; but prefsed by the hostile and unnatural conduct of the Spanish rulers, we are at length absolved from the conditional oath which we had taken, & now take upon us the august sovereignty which we are called here to exercise.

But as our glory consists in establishing principles consistent with human happiness, and not erecting a partial felicity in the misfortunes of our fellow mortals, we hereby proclaim and declare, that we shall regard as friends and companions in our destiny, and participators of our happiness, all those who united by the relations of blood, language, and religion, have suffered oppression under the ancient establishments, and who shall assert their independence thereof, and of any foreign power whatsoever, engaging that all who shall co-operate with us shall partake in life, fortune, and opinion, declaring and recognizing not only their rights, but those of every nation, in war enemies, in peace friends, brethren, and fellow citizens.

In consideration, therefore, of these solid public and incontestible motives, which force upon us the necessity of reassuming our natural rights, thus restored to us by the revolution of human affairs, and in virtue of the imprescriptible rights of every people, to dissolve every agreement, convention, or social compact, which doth not establish the purposes for which alone all governments are instituted, we are convinced that we cannot and ought not any longer to endure the chains by which we were connected with the government of Spain; and we do declare like every other independent people, that we are free and determined to hold no dependence on any potentate, power, or government, than we ourselves establish; and that we now take among the sovereign nations of the earth the rank which the Supreme Being and nature have alligned to us, and to which we have been called by the succession of human events and by a regard for our own happiness.

Although we foresee the difficulties which may attend our new situation, and the obligations which we contract by the rank which we are about to occupy in the political order of the world; and above all, the powerful influence of ancient forms and habits, by which (to our regret) we have been hitherto affected—yet we also know, that a shameful submission to them, whilst it is in our power to shake them off, would prove more ignominious to ourselves, and more fatal to posterity, than our long and painful servitude. It therefore becomes our indispensible duty to provide for our fecurity, liberty, and happiness, by an entire and essential subversion and reform of our ancient establishments.

Wherefore, believing, for all these reasons, that we have complied with the respect which we owe to the opinions of mankind, and to the dignity of other nations, with whom we are about to rank, and of whose friendly intercourse we assure ourselves—

We, the representatives of the confederated provinces of Venezuela, invoking the Most High to witness the justice of our cause, and the rectitude of our intentions, imploring his divine assistance to ratify at the epoch of our political birth, the dignity to which His Providence has reduced us, the ardent desire to live and to die free, and in the behalf and the defence of the holy Catholic and Apostolic religion of Jesus Christ, as the first of our duties.

We, therefore, in the name, by the will and under the authority which we hold for the virtuous people of Venezuela, do solemnly declare to the world that these united provinces are and ought to be from this day forth in fact and of right, free, sovereign and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance and dependence on the crown of Spain and of those who now call or may hereafter call themselves its representatives or agents; & that as free, sovereign and independent states, we hold full power to adopt whatever form of government may be deemed suitable to the general will of its inhabitants; to declare war, make peace, form treaties, establish commercial treaties, define boundaries and regulate navigation; and to propole and execute all other acts, usually made and executed by free and independent nations; and for the due fulfilment, validity and stability of this, our solemn declaration, we mutually and reciprocally pledge and bind the provinces to each other, our lives, fortunes, and the honor of the nation.

Done at the Federal Palace of the Caraccas, signed with our hands, and sealed with the great seal of the provincial confederation and countersigned by the secretary to the congress assembled, on the 5th day of July, in the year 1811, and in the first of our independence.

A CURIOUS RACE.

Two Yankees lately took lodgings for about ten days at a tavern in London country, and fared sumptuously, drinking two or three bottles of wine daily. The last day a dispute arose about the speed of their horses; they at last agreed to enter on the "profitable contest." The landlord was appointed judge, and each being the rider of his own horse. When they were well mounted, the judge, like those at the Olympic games, gave the word—"One, two, three, and off!" Off they went, and neither have been heard of since; leaving the landlord fully compensated by having had the honor of being their judge.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18.

His Grace the Duke of Manchester, attended by Colonel Gould and Mr. M'Leod, after traversing Lakes Huron and Erie in a birch canoe, arrived again at this place on the 10th instant by the way of Penetanguishene and Lake Simcoe.

Of this Nobleman, we may justly remark, that his search after information, and a knowledge of this globe and its inhabitants, subjecting himself at the same time to constant privations, both of convenience and comfort, was hardly to be looked for or expected, from one of the highest rank, brought up in the lap of luxury and accustomed to all the elegancies of polished life.

How much more then are we to appreciate his resolution, his constancy and his exertions, when informed that within these few months past, he has also visited the South Sea? having crossed the Isthmus of Darien, sometimes in canoes, and sometimes on foot, or on mules in that burning region: A journey the most laborious, and which few, except Indians, have hitherto undertaken.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor accompanies his Grace as far as Kingston, for which place they sailed on board his Majesty's schooner Gloucester on Friday last.

The Meteor, or Comit, which we have been regularly for about a fortnight past, does not to the naked eye, exhibit any material difference of appearance, except that when farther North, its emitted light is more vivid than when in its Western circuit. We may notice its varied progress, its position being some nights several degrees further West; and on others further North—and from the alternate points it occupies in the firmament, it seems not to have any given place alligned it.

Thursday, heavy and cloudy with mist
Friday, sultry and cloudy; a shower of rain in the afternoon.
Saturday, clear and moderate.
Sunday, pleasant and clear in the forenoon, cloudy and inclining to rain in the afternoon.
Monday, clear and pleasant.
Tuesday, clear and warm in the forenoon, about two o'clock a visible eclipse of the sun, which continued upwards of an hour; the remainder of the day clear and warm.
Wednesday, clear and warm in the morning; in the afternoon cloudy, with sharp lightning, thunder and heavy rain.

☞ THE Editor regrets to state, that his repeated Notifications to many of his Printing Office Customers has been so long ineffectual—he therefore again requests, that payment may be made without unreasonable delay.—From disappointments he has reluctantly been obliged to adopt a rule in which he will invariably perfist, which is, 'that few orders will be hereafter 'executed unless accompanied with 'payment. York, Aug. 11. 1811.

To be sold by Auction,

☞ On Monday the 23th inst. at the Residence of the Subscriber, on Lot No. 35, Yonge Street, to commence at 11 o'clock, all his Household Furniture, Farming Utensils and Stock.

Three months Credit will be given for any sum above twenty Dollars, on approved Security.—He will also dispose of by private sale, Lot No. 25, in the first concession of the Township of York, on the West side of Yonge Street, adjoining the Township of Vaughan and Markham, containing 210 acres, about 40 of which are under good Fence, mostly new; on the premises are a two Story dwelling-House with Wings, which with a small expence, would accommodate a large genteel Family, also a Barn, Stable, Root-House and Well.

Lot No. 27 in the Township of Vaughan, on the West side of Yonge Street, one lot from the above, containing 210 acres, about 90 acres of which are well cleared, a considerable part of which is Meadow. There is a good two story Farm House and Barn, also a thriving young Orchard, and Nursery fit to transplant on the premises. Both the above Farms are excellent soil, within twelve miles of the Town of York, and contiguous to Grist and Saw Mills; and when the contemplated Route for the North West Trade takes place, their value must be considerably enhanced. If these Lots should not be sold before the first day of March next, Lot No 25 will be rented on very favorable terms to an improving Tenant. Lot No. 27 being at present occupied by an industrious Substantial person from whom any quantity of Hay, Wheat, Oats, &c. which will be disposed of reasonable on the premises.

Lot No. 14 in the 4th Concession of the Township of York, and No. 25 in the 7th Concession of do. 80 acres, situate on the River Humber, and is supposed to contain above 100 acres, having a large broken front on the River.

Lots No. 3 and 7, and Lots No 1, 2 and 4, in the 4th concession of the Township of Scarborough, containing 200 acres each; the River Rouge runs through part of these Lots, on which there is an excellent Mill Seat adjacent to Lake Ontario, to which the River can easily be made navigable for boats or rafts.

Lots No. 2 and 6 in the 7th, and the West half of Lot No 4 in the 6th concession of the Township of Scott, containing 300 acres, the land is of excellent quality and contiguous to a large settlement in the Township of Uxbridge, in which there is Grift and Saw Mills within two miles.

The foregoing Lands will be sold on advantageous terms to the purchaser; a part of the purchase money will be required upon executing the Title Deeds, and the remainder, for which a long credit will be given, to be secured by Mortgage on the premises, with Interest. For further particulars apply to the Subscriber, or the Printer hereof.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigourof the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign.

F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada. &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many ports within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act, passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Twenty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9.

On Saturday laſt, the following Address was preſented to his Excellency by the reſident Members of the Executive Council.

SIR,

YOUR Excellency having ſignified your intention of availing yourſelf of the Gracious permiſſion of his Royal Highneſs the Prince Regent to viſit England on your private affairs, we the reſident Members of his Majeſty's Executive Council of the Province of Upper Canada, whilſt we regret this temporary ſeparation, cannot forbear expreſſing our thanks for the happineſs and protection which we with his Majeſty's other Subjects have experienced under your Adminiſtration.

We reflect with pleaſure and pride, on that harmony which has uniformly ſubſiſted between the different branches of the Executive Government during your Excellency's reſidence amongſt us, nor are we forgetful, of that countenance and ſupport, which we have at all times received from your Excellency in the diſcharge of the duties committed to our care.

The kindness and attention, with which as private Individuals, you have condeſcended to honor us, we now moſt cordially acknowledge, and ſhall ever moſt gratefully remember.

In taking leave of your Excellency, we entertain the hope, that you and your Lady will receive every degree of happineſs in your intended viſit to England, and that you with ſafety will return to reſume the Duties of that high Station in which His Majeſty has been pleaſed to place you in this Province.

(Signed by)
THOS. SCOTT,
JOHN M'GILL,
WM. DUMMER POWELL,
P. SELBY.

York, 5th October, 1811.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,

I receive your Address with great ſatisfaction, as a Public Teſtimony of the cordiality with which the ſeveral branches of the Executive Authority have co-operated during my Adminiſtration.

If the King's ſervice and the happineſs of the Community, have been advanced under my Auſpices, I am indebted to the liberal ſupport, I have uniformly received from the Council.

Accept my thanks for your good wiſhes, and be aſſured that whatever may be my deſtination, I ſhall cheriſh with ſatisfaction, the remembrance of your regard.

The following Addreſs from the Magiſtrates and Inhabitants of the Town of York, was, by a deputation, alſo preſented to his Excellency.

To his Excellency FRANCIS GORE Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOU. EXCELLENCY,

WE the Magiſtrates and other Inhabitants of the town of York, in Upper Canada, have heard with much concern, your Excellency's intention, tho' but for a time, of leaving this Province.

We conſider it as a duty, which we owe to you, as well as to ourſelves, to expreſs on this occaſion, our gratitude for the happiness which we have enjoyed during your Excellency's reſidence amongſt us.

At Inhabitants of this Province, we offer our ſincere acknowledgements, not only for that encouragement and aſſiſtance which your Excellency has, at all times, afforded to meaſures of public utility, but for your easiness of access, and your readiness to liſten to the tale, as well as afford aſſiſtance and relief to the moſt humble individual.

The aged Loyaliſt, and the Sons and Daughters of aged Loyaliſts muſt ever with gratitude bear in mind, your Excellency's adminiſtration—the poor can never forget it.

As Individuals, permit us to offer our thanks for that affability and attention with which at all times you have condeſcended to honor us.

But our regret for your Excellency's departure is alleviated by the proſpect of your return.

Permit us in the mean time to offer our ſincere wiſhes for a proſperous voyage to your Excellency and your Lady, and a ſafe return to reſume the Government of this Province.

REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,

BY encouraging and aſſiſting all meaſures of Public Utility, and affording countenance to the Loyal Emigrants and their immediate deſcendants I have beſt fulfilled the Gracious Intentions of His Majeſty, whoſe Paternal care has ever been directed to the comfort and happiness of his Subjects.

I thank you for your expreſſion of Perſonal good will, and ſhall carry with me a juſt ſenſe of the reſpectful attention of the Magiſtrates and Inhabitants of the Town of York.

The early departure of his Excellency preveoted the other Inhabitants of this Province, from offering him the like mark of eſteem.

His Excellency and Lady, yeſterday embarked for England; and were accompanied by Major General Brock, and attended by the principal Inhabitants of the Town of York, to the place of Embarkation.

PRESENT.

Capt. Derenzy, Lt. Crowther, Lt. Bullock, 41ſt Regt.

NAWKAWRONTA, Speaker.

A REPORT having reached us, that his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor of this Province is about to depart for England; We are ſent here as delegates from our ſeveral Nations, to pay our reſpects to his Excellency.

We lament that his Excellency's health does not permit him to ſee us, but we will now ſpeak to you as if his Excellency were preſent.

We are ſent here to ſalute your Excellency, and to thank you in the name of our ſeveral Nations for your kindneſs to us during your Government of this Province. You have done every thing for us that was right, and we are happy. We would have been glad that all the King's Officers here were preſent to hear what we have to ſay, and we wiſh what we now ſay to be repeated to our Great Father the King of England.

We think that our Father the King, appointed Colonel Claus to the Office that he now holds, that he may attend

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 3.

Account of the Capture of the British Ship Exchange, James Johns, master, from Curracoa, bound to London.

We left Curracoa on Thursday the 27th of July, 1811. Passengers on board, Major General John Thomas Layard, late Lieutenant Governor of Curracoa; Col. Vande Spiegle, Collector of that island; and Major Lyon. On the 28th inst. being very fine weather, we observed a pilot boat schooner to leeward of us, and not having any suspicion of French privateers being about the Mona passage, we allowed her to come near us, when she hoisted Spanish King's colors and a pendant, which made us think she was a Spanish cruizer; however seeing her still come near us, made us more suspicious, and the captain perceiving him haul down his Spanish colours, hasted immediately, for the second time, his English Ensign, which was immediately answered by them with a French flag; we then immediately perceived our critical situation, seeing a very large schooner and full of men, she captain immediately prepared for action, & fired the stern chasers, which was returned from them with grape shot. After three quarters of an hours engagement, which was conducted by the captain, passengers and crew with the greatest coolness, and finding she had ceased firing and coming along side to board us, we surrendered, and after our colours were struck, fired a dozen rounds of musketry at us; we were immediately taken possession of by the privateer, who sent on board a prize master and 14 men, when we learnt her to be the Matengo private, Captain Ordronaux as they said, from Nantz, with 96 men, and ten guns, and 191 tons measurement; they ordered immediately the captain and passengers on board the privateer (excepting Major Lyon, having his little daughter with him, who was very much alarmed, they therefore suffered him to remain with her) after keeping the captain and passengers a short time on board of the privateer, they suffered them to return again on board the ship, when she was brought to anchor that same night at about 11 o'clock, on the south side of the Mona Island; they then sent the whole of the crew on board the privateer, & put them in irons, they then demanded from the captain the manifest and bills of lading letters, by which they found there was a large quantity of specie on board, and which they informed us they had information by the brig Coffee Planter, Capt. Jenkins, who they had taken a few days before, and who was from Curracoa bound to London, and which they had ransomed for ten thousand dollars, and suffered them to proceed; they on account of this intelligence was waiting for us, knowing the specie to be on board. After taking the money out, which we believe to be about thirty three thouland dollars, they remained quiet for that night; the next morning the 29th of July; they sent on board and took out all the provisions and water both belonging to the ship and passengers stock, all the guns, cables, &c. in fact left the ship destitute of every thing, and informed us they meant to send the ship and passengers to France, however, after some conversation between the passengers and captain of the privateer, and they requesting him for God's sake not to send them in the ship, as she was then in such a bad state not possible to proceed, and they must certainly all perish if he persisted, he then promised to take them on board the privateer, and put them on board the first vessel he could, or land them on the coast of Porto Rico at night time: accordingly he ordered all the passengers, capt. and crew on board the privateer with their respective baggage, and left the ship at anchor without any soul on board, and proceeded. Shortly after he chased a vessel and came up with her, when she proved to be the Spanish schooner Antelope, Captain Smith, loaded with mahogany, from St. Domingo bound to St. Thomas. The captain came immediately to our captain and passengers, and said, gentlemen here is this vessel for you, and you may take her and proceed with her wherever you please; he therefore ordered all the passengers baggage to be put on board, and after ransacking all Major Lyon's baggage and taking all his money from him, suffered them to proceed—putting provisions sufficiently on board for them to exist for a few days; we had not left the vessel above three or four hours when we saw the ship all in a blaze. On the 1st of August we arrived at Mayagnez on the coast of Porto Rico, where we anchored, and were immediately re taken by his Majesty's schooner Elizabeth, commanded by Lieutenant Dwyer, who in the most handsome and humane manner, offered his services and his vessel to take us safe to St. Thomas, and which he did after giving us every comfort his vessel could afford.

The Captain and passengers praise much the Captain of the privateer & his officers for their good and mild treatment while they were in their possession, not allowing the crew to touch any part of their baggage—the crew is a desperate set, and composed chiefly of vagabonds of all nations.

NEW YORK, September 11.

The Villain, who robbed the Branch Bank in Charleston of one hundred and thirty five thousand dollars, has been detected and imprisoned; and nearly the whole sum safely returned to the vaults. The particulars of this fortunate detection and discovery are thus detailed in the Charleston Courier of the 2d instant:—

"Bank Robbery.—It is with much satisfaction that we are enabled to state the recovery of the money taken from the Vaults of the late Office of Discount and Deposit in this city, in the night of the 24th ult.

It appears, that strong suspicion had been entertained by the Agents of the Bank for some days, that Mr. BENJAMIN GRAY, of this city, a man of great mechanical talents, had been concerned in the Robbery.—A warrant was accordingly procured on Saturday morning, and he was arrested, and underwent a long examination at the Bank, before John H. Mitchell, Esq. Justice of the Quorum, in the prefence of the Directors of the Institution and several other gentlemen. We understand that, although there was much circumstantial evidence, tending to criminate Mr. GRAY, produced on this examination, yet nothing appeared sufficiently strong to have convicted him of the act; he was, however, committed to prison in the afternoon, preparatory to a further examination.

"In the course of the evening, a Negro fellow belonging to Mr. Gray, and who was suspected to have aided his master in removing the specie, was arrested by Wm. Blacklock, Esq. at whose house his wife resided, and on being informed that his master had been committed to gaol for robbing the Bank, and that he was known to have aided him in the robbery, he was so intimidated that he confessed the fact, and offered on condition of pardon, &c. to point out were the money had been concealed. A detachment of the City Guard was immediately procured, and sent off to secure the money, which they found deposited in the original boxes, in the inclosure of Mr. Gray's residence, near the Race Course, concealed under a quantity of manure, straw, &c. The money with the exception of a few hundred dollars, which has been made away with, was brought down early yesterday morning, and again deposited in the vaults, from whence it had been taken exactly one week before. We understand that the false keys, with which the Bank is supposed to have been entered, besides a lantern, &c. were found in a leathern bag, secreted with the money.

"We cannot refrain from congratulating the community on the discovery of the perpetrator of this daring robbery.—The Officers of the Bank, whose feelings on the occasion, enveloped as the business was in mystery and darkness, must have been acute indeed, are at once relieved from a weight of anxiety and responsibility, which, to a feeling mind, is more distressing than even a conviction of guilt itself; and the citizens at large, who have taken a lively interest in the investigation of the business, from a conviction that the character of our city would suffer in the eyes of the world, should the robbers escape with impunity, will reflect with pleasure that a transaction, rivalling ingenuity and design and in secrecy of execution the power of enchantment itself, has been brought to light, and that all those hateful fulpicions which would otherwise inevitably have fastened themselves upon the mind, have been thus happily dissipated."

LONDON, July 23.

A mail from Anholt arrived this morning. Sir James Saumarez remains in his old position, and the accounts from Carlscrona state, that affairs wore a pacific aspect in the Baltic. The Russians are said to act on the defensive in Turkey—we have no doubt they are endeavouring to adjust their differences with Turkey—as little may be doubted that Bonaparte is spiriting up Turkey to continue the war. He is desirous of making the two Powers weaken each other, that they may be less able to resist any designs which he may have upon either, or both.

Admiralty Office, July 23.

Vice-Admiral Sir James Saumarez has transmitted to John Wilson Croker, Esq. a letter from Capt. Peter of his Majesty's ship Crissy, giving an account of an attack made off Helim Island, on the 5th inst. by a Danish flotilla of 17 gun boats and 10 heavy row boats, on a convoy under the protection of the Crissy, Defence, Dictator, Shelorake sloop, and Bruiser gun vessel. The enemy were defeated without the loss of any of the convoy, and four of the Danish gun-boats were captured, mounting each one long 24 pounder and four brass howitzers, and having on board together 126 men.

July 25.

Letters received from an Officer of the Artillery in Lord Wellington's army at the Portalegre, state, that Soult has made a strong reconnoissance of three days of our position, and that he had suddenly retired, supposed towards Seville, as he had broken up his camp. Lord Wellington's army, in high spirits and health, retained their ground and were going into cantonements. The tents for the Royal Artillery had arrived at Portalegre from Lisbon, as previous to that every officer and private had for six weeks slept on the bare ground, yet were still healthy. The last convoy, with the 32d and other regiments from Guernsey, had arrived safe at Lisbon, and were preparing to join Lord Wellington's army. They are all remarkably healthy.

New York, Sept. 18.

From St. Peterburg.—Capt. Gray of the ship Herald, who arrived at the Lazaretto, Philadelphia, last Monday, in 65 days from St. Petersburg, states, that the ports of Russia, Sweden, Norway and Denmark, are open to American commerce. He likewise states, that English vessels are freely admitted in Russian ports, and that notwithstanding this disregard on the part of Russia, of the French anti-commercial system, there was no prospect of a rupture between the two Emperors. That the Russians have met with a defeat from the Turks, and have been obliged to retreat across the Danube. It was believed Russia would cease hostilities against Turkey. Austria continues to observe rigidly, the continental system.

London, July 27.

Two American gentlemen, who landed at Dartmouth, on Wednesday, with despatches for the charge d'affaires of the United States in this country, have brought a confirmation of the release of all American vessels detained in France since the 1st November. It is said also, that some provisions have been transmitted through the American legation to government.

July 28.

A neutral vessel which arrived on Friday at Dover from Dieppe, has brot a confirmation of the intelligence contained in our last number, of the assemblement of 30 army on the French coast. The passengers state, that troops are marching from Dunkirk, & other places, to the camp at Boulogne, and that the force assembled there, will comprise in a few days 40,000 men. The flotilla has been exercised, but found to be in a miserable state.—It is not credible that Bonaparte has any real design of attempting an invasion; and it follows that his design by this assemblage must be made to deter our reinforcing the British army in Portugal.

July 29.

The Adventure, Snowden, of Whitby, from Leith, for Quebec, was lost the 24th of May last in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, the crew were saved—This is the identical ship that the Circumnavigator, Captain Cook, sailed round the world in. She was repaired at Whitby last year.

It is now said in some well informed circles connected with government that his Majesty's ministers are disposed to act a temperate part with respect to the United States, and not to provoke hostilities unless the honor of the British flag should require it. The opinion of an immediate war with the republic which so currently prevailed, is in a great degree to be attributed to the misapprehension that Sir Joseph York's squadron was to be stationed off the coast of the United States.

Last night died Suddenly, at Devonshire House, Piccadilly, his Grace William Cavendish, Duke of Devonshire.

July 31.

We understand there are some licences in town for shipping goods direct from hence to Petersburgh. The licences, we believe, have the sign manual of Alexander, and are principally for the importation of drugs. It has been observed, that as a matter of favor to this country, two Russian harbours are to be converted into free ports.—Those mentioned to us for this purpose are Archangel without and Liebau within the Baltic.

Sir James Craig, late Governor of Quebec, has reached England by the Amelia frigate.

August 1.

Letters from the coast of France to the 28th instant, inform us, that Bonaparte has just published a decree, denouncing the penalty of death against any captain on board of whose ship any bills of exchange upon England, or correspondence with England, shall be found.

August 2.—The daughter of Lucien Bonaparte, we are informed, from a respectable authority, is shortly to be married to a Mr. Charlton, a young man of 24 years of age, and possessing a large landed property in Shropshire. The fair foreigner is very handsome, and very highly spoken of. Mr. Charleton is of the family of the Luchmeres. The match is approved of by all parties, & promises to prove a happy one.

By a letter, dated the 15th of May, received from the Brazils, it appears that the Prince Regent of Portugal had, two days previous thereto, being his birth day, settled a pension of 20,000 crowns per annum on Lord Wellington, 10,000 on General Beresford, and 5000 on Colonel Trant.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14.

Latest from Cadiz.—By the last sailing ship George and Albert, captain Singleton, in 28 days from Cadiz, the Editor of the Federal Gazette, has received Cadiz papers to the 10th August. Transactions are given this evening. Wheat capt. S. sailed, Aug. 25. Markets were very dull—Flour 11 dollars.

The French had reinforced the besieging army. Reports estimated them at near 30 000. The firing was kept up; with little effect however. Soult had arrived near Cadiz. Official accounts from Lord Wellington to the 25th July, shows no recent movement of importance. The French army had gained no new ground; on the contrary it appears that the allies had pushed a small division into Castile. King Joseph had actually passed Valladolid, with an escort, on his return to Madrid. The South East Provinces of Murcia, Grenada, &c. continued free from the French.

OFFICIAL.

Lord Wellington to Don Miguel Pereyra Forjz.

H. Q. St. Joan, July 18, 1811.

The enemy's army fired off on the 14th inst. towards Truxillo. It is not known whether they have gone further towards Almaraz, or with the cavalry which were in Talavera, taken the road of Merida. The enemy appear disposed to take a central position on the line of the Tagus—that they might all necessary march to any point of our operations, or retreat, if necessary; and where they might draw recourse from their divisions in Estremadura and Castile.

As soon as the troops under General Blake had embarked, the enemy's division in which had marched towards the Guadiana, and which, as mention ed in my last, had reached Cattarga, fell back to San Lucar. I learn that the troops belonging to the 4th corps, which Marshal Soult had withdrawn from Estremadura, had taken the direction to Grenada, leaving in Andalusia the 1st corps of reserve. The 5th corps, and most of their cavalry still occupy Estremadura.

There is nothing new from Valladolid, except the arrival of "King Joseph" to Spain; who was on the 5th instant at Burgos with an escort of 3000 men. It is reported that numerous reinforcements are to follow him from France. A detachment of 1000 men from the French garrison of Salamanca marched towards Bejar on the 12th, with the apparent intention of succouring Ciudad Rodrigo.

WELLINGTON.

Lord Wellington to his Excellency Don Miguel Forjiz.—[Extract.]

PORTALEGRE, July 25, 1811.

The enemy's cavalry abandoned Merida on the 17 h, and have continued their march towards Almaraz. One division of their infantry has reached Placentia, in which city they mean to establish their advanced post on the right bank of the Tagus. The same day Marshal Marmont arrived at Almaraz towards which point several other French divisions were marching—leaving in Truxillo only a small number of infantry and some horse. The 5th corps had defiled from Estremadura for Seville. King Joseph left Valladolid on the 14th taking the road to Madrid.

I have nothing new from the north.

CADIZ August 9.

The British 74, Bulwark, arrived on the 7th with specie from America.

The Duke del Infantado sailed from this port for London the 30th ult. to reside as ambassador at London.

Lord Wellington gave at head quarters, a grand entertainment to general Castanos on the 15 h July, in memory of the victory of Baylen. General Castanos proposed to celebrate on the 28 h the anniversary of Talavera in company with Lord W.

The Conde Penne has sent out for the 5th army.

There remained in port, embarked on board the transports, 2100 Infantry and some cavalry; a force which appears to have been attached to the last expedition.

Valencia del Alcantara. 18 Aug.

(By a private letter,) Gen. Castanos arrived the day before yesterday at this place: the English are moving towards Castile, leaving one division of 3000 men in Estremadura.

Cadiz Evening Gazette, August 4.

(Private letter.)—The enemy are arriving at Truxillo, and their detachments occupy several villages above Guadaloupe; they still keep possession of Almandralejo, Zafra, and St. Martha. They are fortifying the Castle of Frejenal and they are in possession of Cahalleros at X-res; they have abandoned Alivencia; but having destroyed four Ravelins, they have free ingress and egress as they please. The English head quarters are at Castle Branco, and the enemy are in possession of Coria to Placentia. Gen. Castanos is in Valencia or Alcantara, Morillo, in Caceres with 2000 infantry, and 900 cavalry—the cavalry of the Count of Penne are in Beja in Portugal.

VIENNA, June 20.

The Austrian troops have made no movements. Some disturbances it is said have arisen in the Tyrol on account of the conscription.

ALICANT, July 20.

[Private letter] N. writes to me that our friend (Mina) has seized another great convoy between Ebella and Pampeluna, which appears now to be the principal road from France.

PHILADELPHIA Sept. 12.

"This morning arrived brig ——, Hughes, from Madeira Left there, August 8th, brig Sukey, of Newburyport, to sail next day for Africa; and a ship from N. York, just arrived. No other American vessels there. On the 6th August a British 64 gun ship and a frigate arrived at Madeira from England, said to be part of a fleet bound to America. They sailed on the day following. On board of one of them was the new Governor for Bermuda; who, at dinner, on shore said that the fleet was to rendezvous at Bermuda, and there wait for information from Sir John Duckworth, the British Minister to the United States by which their conduct would be regulated; and as he understood if these infractions were of a certain complexion, the fleet would proceed to the coast of America. Captain H on the 18 inst. in lat. 37. 20, long. 64. spoke brig Pilgrim, Young, 9 days from Rhode Island for Sierra Leone."

CATSKILL, Sept. 11.

Shocking Catastrophe.—Fire—On Friday the 6th instant, the House of Mr Frink, of Jefferson Schoharie, county, was consumed by Fire; 4 of his children and a daughter of the Wife of the same place, together with all the furniture except a bed with an infant on it, were consumed.

From the National Intelligencer of Sept 17

We understand that orders have issued from the Navy Department, to put in commission an additional number of gun boats forthwith; twenty tobe stationed in the harbor of New York; ten at Norfolk, and three at Wilmington. (North Carolina) These are intended and no doubt will have the effect to strengthen the land batteries and enable them more effectually to repel any attack which might be made; though we incline to the opinion that none will be attempted.

Norfolk, Sept. 13

The ship London Packet, Kennard, from London; brings papers to the 27 h July. The King's death was hourly expected. Troops almost daily embarking for the Peninsula.—Capt. K. has despatches from our Charges des Affaires for government.—Accounts had reached London that a Russian nobleman had left St. Petersburgh for G. Britain, on an amicable embassy.

Boston, Sept. 16.

Latest from Portugal.—Despatches from Lord Wellington to the 26 h of July have been published in the Spanish papers; they simply relate to the operations of the opposing armies, in which is found no event of any political interest. They mention, that the two armies under Soult and Marmont had separated, the former for Seville, and the latter for Placentia, about 150 miles apart; and that Lord Wellington was at Abrantes. This step, forced upon the French by necessity, shews the skill and advantages of the British commander, in frustrating the plans of an adversary to entrap him in a snare; and enforce upon the mind a still stronger conviction, that while the fate of Portugal rests in the hands of a General so skilled in arms, and so adroit in manoeuvres, it will terminate successful to the cause of freedom, and the rights of humanity.

Extract of a letter from an officer in Col. Boyd's regiment of United States troops, dated Newport, Kentucky, Aug. 24, 1811.

"Late advices from Governor Harrison, of the Indian territory, urge the troops immediately to Vincennes on the Wabash.—The public papers have contained some details of the cruelties and menaces of the Indians in that quarter. Positive orders have been issued from the War Office, to attack if their hostile indications are continued. In anticipation of real service we have been practising firing for several days with ball cartridges, at a target, and performed beyond expectation. The troops created in me a confidence, that they would acquit honour in the event of a conflict. We are ordered to prepare 64,000 ball cartridges.

"The distance from this place to Vincennes, by water, is near 700 miles and the nearest direction through the woods 200."

Indian War.—The Argus, printed at Frankfort, (K.) Aug. 28, 1811, says, "We have been favoured with a perusal of a letter from Gen. Harrison, dated at Vincennes, to his friend in this place. The substance of which is, that about the 20th of Sept. next, he expected to go against the Indians with a force of fifteen hundred regulars and militia. We presume the President of the United States has determined to remove the Prophet; or at least to manifest to our Indian neighbours, a disposition, to correct their various outrages on our frontiers. The Governor does not anticipate any fighting. Col. Boyd, with about 500 regulars, has moved towards Vincennes preparatory to this expedition."

The Kentucky Gazette of the 27th ult. says, a number of Volunteers from Lexington, will set out in a few days for Vincennes.

PHILADELPHIA Sept. 18.

Yesterday arrived brig Nancy, capt. Mitchell, from Lisbon, which place he left the 21 of August, and has politely furnished us with the following. It was reported at Lisbon, that the French army, after fortifying Badajoz, fell back in order to fortify Taxilla, on the south border of the Tagus, and the English advanced again towards Badajoz. That there are 20,000 men expected every day from England, among them is expected 6000 cavalry.—The Admiral ship, the Barfleur of 110 guns, with Admiral Barclay him self, is called home to England, the unmoored a few days before capt. M. sailed, fell down below Bellem Castle, where the lays at anchor with three frigates, waiting for the transports getting ready to join another convoy, several of them were discharging their cargoes, and taking in ballast as fast as possible, working night and day, with the help of about 50 boats to each of them, belonging to other transport ships which are to remain there. Several transports arrived with a convoy from England, the 29th of July, with troops and horses, baggage, artillery, &c. and were landing at Bellem, they are marched out to the army without delay, and are not allowed one hour in town, to look round themselves; their wives are not allowed to follow them to the army, but are all left behind, some at Lisbon, and some at Belleem. It was also reported that Marmont was marching from France towards Portugal, at the head of 60,000 men to reinforce the French army on the borders of Portugal. Two packets had just arrived from England, but he had no time to hear the contents of their news. He left them the day after their arrival. The French prisoners at Lisbon, are allowed to go to work digging canals for the communication of the waters into the docks, and are under the protection of the English guards, to prevent the barbarity of the Portuguese against them. The French army are no more allowed to destroy any part of the country. Lord Wellington sent a message to the French general, that in case they did not cease destroying the country, he would give up all the French prisoners to the mercy of the Portuguese, and they had quit destroying any thing since that message.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Cadiz, to his correspondent in this place, dated Aug. 8.

"I have no apprehensions for the safety of Cadiz, all the lines are ably defended by British troops, and I will cannot spare men from his army in Estremadura. Lord Wellington has received strong reinforcements, and is expected to commence offensive operations in Spain. Should he be successful the siege of Cadiz will be raised which will open a market to the adjacent country, which is suffering lot provisions."—Norfolk Ledger.

CADIZ, July 23.

Yesterday entered in this port, the 47 h English regiment, which attempted to succour Tarragona.

Two monks of La Trappe have arrived from Majorca, on their way to England; where there is a monastery of their order in the county of Norfolk.

The Mino brought for the King from Vera Cruz, 1,516,283 dollars, & from Havanna, 149,514. For individuals from Vera Cruz, 1,922,988, and from Havanna 114,382.

VALENCIA, July 12.

Suchet being informed that on St. Peter's day, there was to be a sally from the garrison of Tarragona, and at the same time a concerted attack by the army of Campoverde, he resolved to anticipate this operation. On the 28th, after a horrible fire kept up the whole day, and a large breach being effected by five in the evening, the enemy's columns of attack presented themselves at it, under the orders of Gen. Montmarie. Twice they tried to enter, and were driven back by the valiant defenders, at the head of whom was General Senen de Contrares, who gloriously fell in the conteft. But the enemy receiving reinforcements of fresh troops, and making a charge with incredible fury, they succeeded in gaining poffeffion of the breach, and entered the city. A part of the garrifon retired, posting a horrible fire upon the enemy, who equally suffered from the houfes and buildings but continually receiving reinforcements, they gained the city, giving no quarter, and covering it with their dead bodies and thofe of its garrifon and inhabitants! Two Spanifh columns of about 3000 men, fucceeded in paffing through the gate of S. Antonie; but the greater part of them fell into the hands of the enemy. The garrifon on that day confifted of from 5 to 6000 brave men, the prifoners amounting to 3500, the remainder were illuftrious victims, who heroically facrificed themfelves for their country on that memorable day.

LUGO, July 14.

Gen. Santocildes has more than 18,000 men; and Porlier in Portes 3,000. The corps which remain here conffift of 5,000 men, and in the other points of the province, are about 4000 regular troops. Gen. Abadia has not yet arrived. It appears that Joleph is convoking the Cortes at Burgos.

ILLESCAS June 29.

Yefterday the party of Velafco, attacked on the road to Toledo, another enemy party of 60 infantry and 18 cavalry, who were efcorting the General of brigade Milhaud. Only 9 of the enemy efcaped; the reft were either killed or taken prifoners, the General being in the former number.

to the interests of all the Six Nations, and we are now instructed by our Nations, thankfully to acknowledge that he has always discharged that duty to our great satisfaction.

The Six Nations have lately had a Council among themselves on the subject of their Money concerns, & we are now instructed to express to your Excellency our entire satisfaction with Colonel Claus's having placed our Money in the English Funds. We wish it to remain there, receiving only the annual Interest as heretofore.

As all the Six Nations residing on the Grand River, feel themselves happy under the Government of their Great Father the King of England, and under the Superintendance and care of his Servant Colonel Claus, they have taken this opportunity to send us to declare the same to your Excellency before you leave us.

Our Brother Colonel Claus knows very well how much we are intruded upon by White People fixing themselves on our Lands, on the Grand River, without any regular permission from our Chiefs. We therefore hope that our Father the King, will order that we may be relieved from this annoyance by obliging the intruders to quit our Lands as soon as possible.

Having nothing more to say on our Affairs at present. We Salute our Great Father the King, and beg that your Excellency will accept our warmest thanks for your constant kindness to us during your Administration of this Province. We Pray the Great Spirit to Grant you and your Family good health, and a safe and pleasant passage across the great Lake to your own Country.

We now give you a Belt, and twelve Strings of Wampum to accompany this acknowledgement of our Gratitude to the King of England.

Interpreted by Fraser and the two Lottridges, Mohawk Indians.

D. CAMERON, Assistant Secy. I. A.

York, 1st October, 1811.

His Excellency's Answer to the above Speech

I am happy to meet you as a Deputation from the Six Nations residing at the Grand River, and am much pleased with your expressions of grateful attachment to your Great Father the King of England, and your good wishes towards myself. I trust you will always think and speak in this manner, and I earnestly recommend to you to hold your Great Father constantly by the hand, and to be steadily united among yourselves. Your peace and happiness depend very much on your steady attachment to your Great Father and the Officers appointed by him to superintend your concerns. You ought carefully to avoid all intercourse with vicious White People, who have no object in view but to sow discord among you, and cheat you of your Money and Land. I will take great pleasure in reporting to your Father the King, your expressions of attachment to him. I now take you by the hand, and give you fourteen Strings Wampum.

An Assemblage of the Chiefs of the Mississaugue Nation took place at York, on the 7th October, 1811, and the following Speech was made by them to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, previous to his departure for England :—

FATHER,

WE are grieved to see you leave us, because we have experienced the constancy of your charity.

We speak our own feelings, and the feelings of our Brothers at Lake Simcoe ; if they were here, they would speak the sentiments which we now speak.—They and us have but one and the same heart towards you.

Father—We know the charities which you have done to our wives and children, and we hope that he who is to take your place, will be like you, and that you will recommend us to be considered by him.—We shall be always ready to listen to him, and he will find us dutiful.

Father—Leave behind you tokens of your good heart, and tell him who takes your place, to have pity upon us when we are in sickness, and to clothe our children when they are naked—this is all we have to say, and we hope that you listen to us, and will not forget us.

Father—As you are about to embark, we wish that the Great Spirit will have his eyes on you, that you may arrive safe in your own Country, where our Great Father the King is.

His Excellency Lieut. Governor Gore's Answer to the Speech delivered by the Chiefs of the Mississaugue Nation, on the 7th October, 1811.

MY CHILDREN,

I thank you very much for this mark of kindness, in coming forward on my departure from the Country, to bid me farewell in your own name and that of your Nation.—I shall recommend you to the protection of the Person who will have the direction of all Public Affairs in this Country during my absence, who, I am certain, will shew you the same kindness that you so gratefully acknowledge to have received from me.

Children—I shall always recollect with pleasure, your readiness on all occasions, to attend at my call, which was done with cheerfulness.—I now take you by the hand and bid you farewell ; and I desire that you will remember me to your People on your return.

Indian Affairs.—Our readers doubtless recollect that some time ago Tecumseh, the brother of the Prophet, and an artful intriguing man, advanced with a large body of Indians, say seven or eight hundred, to Vincennes, with a view, as is fully believed, to have surprised and attacked the town; to have gathered a harvest of scalps and plunder, and then return probably within the British territory. Gov. Harrison, when applied to, refused permission to these Indians to approach.—Tecumseh then requested to be admitted with a part of them; Gov. H. permitted him to enter the town with about an hundred and eighty, on condition that they should leave their arms behind them. They came, however, armed with their knives. Meanwhile the Governor had the garrison of the fort drawn up in order of arms, together with two or three companies of militia. The appearance of this force had a wonderful effect on Tecumseh, who with his usual artfulness professed the greatest friendship and respect for the authority of the United States; declared that he meant merely a visit of compliment, and that he was desirous of visiting some friendly tribe below, with whom he was connected. He paused below, leaving the Prophet, with the main body of his forces, above, Vincennes.

We are now apprized, by the westcoun prints, that Governor Harrison is about to move for the purpose of dispersing this formidable body of intruders, for which purpose he is to employ Col. Boyd's regiment, together with a portion of the militia and some volunteers. It is not probable that there will be any blood shed.—The Prophet is represented as being no warrior, and will probably retire with precipitation when ordered to do; but the magnitude of the force employed will convince the poor deluded wretches, that, if ever they dare lift a tomahawk against our settlers as a nation or body, extermination would be their fate.

We are pleased to learn that our government is erecting block houses and establishing a line of posts along our north western frontier, which will probably obviate any future obtrusion from the same quarter.—Nat. Intel.

BOSTON, Sept. 17.

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman at Monte Video, Dated June 19th.

"This city is now the only place on this side of the country, where the authority of the Cortes of Spain is acknowledged, and is closely invested with Buenos Ayres troops. Reports are various as to their force, but the belief of their being 6000 is most current. They presented themselves before the city on the 15th of May. Although thirty days have elapsed, no effective measures have seemingly been taken to reduce it. Their operations have extended to nothing more than cutting off the supplies and provisions. These measures alone will not immediately distress this place, in which are at least provisions for four months, and further supplies may be expected from various ports on the coast, and may be brought by water. A few days since a flag of truce was sent to Buenos Ayres, which was answered by conditions for the surrender of the city, viz. that the Viceroy Signor Elio shall immediately leave the country—that all other officers of government, civil and military, shall hold their places—property to be protected, and personal security given to every individual acknowledging the government of Buenos Ayres. These, which are considered very favourable conditions for the people, (by whom they are not supposed to be generally known) have probably been refused by the vice King.

"An order was issued the 10th ult. for every American vessel, except loaded with jerked beef, to leave this port in 48 hours. An order so unreasonable could not be complied with by all, and several now remain to get water, ballast, &c.—No cause is assigned for this violent edict.—Vessels are thus wantonly compelled to leave a port suddenly and unprepared for, into which they had entered as friends, confiding in the good faith of the government!"

From the Isle of France.—On Sunday night last, arrived here the brig Harriet, capt. Waldo, from the Isle of France, and 54 days from the Cape of Good Hope. We are indebted to the politeness of Capt. W. for the following items of intelligence.

"The frigates President and Macao had arrived but a few days from England, bringing out orders for an entire change in these existing governments, annexing the Islands of Mauritius and Bourbon to the Crown, instead of the E. I. Company, and putting them on the Madras establishment, immediately after their arrival at the Americans from the U. States direct, were detained for adjudication, and the captains not allowed any intercourse either on shore or with their countrymen. March 21st, a severe hurricane was experienced at the Mauritius, which did much injury both on shore and in the harbour of port St. Louis. It extended to the Lat. of 30, S. and Long. 61. E. a number of English vessels had arrived dismasted and many more missing.—An English expedition sent for the purpose of reducing the French settlements in Madagascar were almost totally destroyed, but one Governor Brig, narrowly escaped, the rest all perished.—It is rumor'd that he had been driven to from Bourbon and never more heard of.—A large expedition had gone against Batavia, which was expected to make but a feeble resistance.—The late Admiral Drury, on that station had died, and Admiral Stopford form the Cape of Good Hope, had gone on to take the command.—The French Inhabitants of Mauritius were daily quitting this Island by every possible conveyance.

Both in India, the Islands, and the Cape of Good Hope, the year had been remarkable for most tremendous gales of wind and hurricanes. The whole month of May was one continued gale of wind off the Cape. On the 28th of May, the Hussar experienced a most violent gale from the N. W. in which she was hove on her beam-ends, with the loss of nearly every thing on the main deck, and with difficulty righted.

On June the 7th, a very considerable shock of an Earthquake was experienced at the Cape, that shook and cracked a number of houses, but did no other damage. It served, however, to very much alarm the minds of the inhabitants, the last year having like wise experienced one. A repetition of the shock being feared, large numbers pushed the whole night in the streets and plains—every force ably shook the vessel in the Bay and lasted about five minutes.

June the 13th, the English frigate Curacoa, had arrived at St. Simon' Bay from England. A change of government took place likewise at the Cape. The Governor and Lieutenant Governor being called home, and Sir I. Craddock appointed to the command there.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.

Latest from England.—The ship Mary Ann is below in a short passage from Liverpool.—By her London papers to the 3d of Aug. and Liverpool to the 5th are received in town; but we have not been so fortunate as to get a sight of them. Our regular file of London papers is in the letter bag, which has not yet been delived at the Post Office; so that we are prevented giving their contents this day. We are informed, however, that there is very little news. The king was living on the 3d of August, though there were no hopes of his recovery. The American war mania had subsided in a great measure, and it was not now expected that hostilities between the two countries would take place.

Latest from Portugal.—Last evening arrived at this port the ship Remittance, Dolliver, in 44 days from Lisbon.

Capt. D sailed on the 20th Aug. and informs us, that on the 17th of the same month, the Head Quarters of the British army, were at Celerico, about 45 leagues from Lisbon; and the French were advancing.

Captain D. further states, that 11 000 British troops were sick in the Hospitals in Lisbon, that reinforcements were almost daily arriving from England; and that it was reported at Lisbon, that the Emperor Napoleon, was marching into Spain, with a reinforcement of 200,000 men.

We further learn from Capt. Dolliver, that London papers were received at Lisbon previous to his sailing, to the 12th of Aug. inclusive, which Capt. D. and his passengers perused.—They stated that the King was alive but very ill.

NORFOLK, Sept. 18.

The Schooner Fame, Captain Gaddis from St. Bartholomews, bound to Alexandria, ran ashore on Gurritucc Inlet, on the night of the 11th inst. —crew saved—vessel and cargo, consisting of 60 hhds. sugar, 152 bags coffee, 23 puncheons rum, and about 600 dollars in specie, lost (except 19 puncheons of the rum.) They were decoyed amongst the breakers by a light which appeared on the beach & which light they mistook for that of Cape Henry. Capt. Gadd left St. Bartholomews the 28th ult. at which time various accounts had reached them, from the Westward Islands, particularly Barbadoes, stating, that a French fleet of 29 sail, 15 of which were said to be ships of upwards of 100 guns, had been seen to windward, which caused great alarm throughout the British Islands, on hearing of such a formidable fleet of the enemy so near paying them a visit.

CHARLESTON, Sept. 13.

Hurricanes.—It is worthy of observation, that the Hurricanes which have been most severely felt in this city, have usually occurred about the same time of the year.. This fact will enable us to make such arrangements as that we may not be unnecessarily exposed at the period of its recurrence. The great Hurricane of 1752 commenced on the 14th of September—that in 1804 on the 7th Sept. —that in 1811 on the 11th Sept.—and that late destructive visitation on the 10th Sept.

FROM THE NEWBERN LEDGER.

Extract of a letter from a young Officer on board the British sloop of War Race Horse, dated Port Louis (Isle of France) 12th June, 1811, to gentleman in this place.

"I have the satisfaction to inform you of the capture of a large French frigates full of troops for this Island, by his Majesty's ships Astrea, Phoebe, Galatea, and Race Horse, after hard fighting for three hour, and a half, the circumstances of which I shall now relate.

"We were cruizing off this Island in company of the Phoebe and Galatea of 36 guns each, when we fell in with three large French frigates, which we knew were expected, and full of troops. After chasing them twenty-four hours, they stood towards us with all sail. Our ships were not well manned, and the Astrea was to leave Port Louis that very day—the senior officer judged it prudent, to make the action sure, to join company, we therefore made for the land, and they continued after us, our plan succeeded, the Astrea joined, but we lost the enemy in the night. As they were acquainted with the capture of the Island we made all sail to Tamatave on the Madagascar coast, thinking they would get water and provisions there—we made the land on the 19th of May in the evening, and at day light of the 20th, we discovered the gentlemen to windward. After chasing them nearly the whole day, at four in the afternoon we brought them to action, but not so close as we wished, as it was a perfect calm—an incessant fire for 3 hours was kept up on both sides. It being dark and hazy, and the ships much mixed, our Commodore made the signal to close, and the French did the same. At half past eight, with little wind, the action commenced close—the French Commodore being the advanced ship, was taken in 25 minutes, with the loss of 120 men—he, poor fellow, did not survive to witness the surrender of the ship. The other two made off, our ships not being able to follow, their rigging being so much cut up. Having repaired our damages, on the following day proceeded to Tamatave where we found the largest of the enemy at anchor, under a battery of 12 guns, and within a reef of rocks.—This ship we thought had struck during the action, and as I understood the French Commodore, I was sent in with a flag of truce to ascertain that fact from the Captain, but he had fallen in the action—the next in command gave me his honor that the ship had not struck. He proposed to surrender his ship and fort, provided his officers and crew should not be considered prisoners of war, and be permitted to return to France: I took his proposals to our senior officer, who for the sake of humanity, (for we should have ken her out, and having already many prisoners on board) accepted the terms proposed. The Race Horse then went in and took possession of the Frigate and Battery, the former was most dreadfully cut up; the other Frigate has escaped for the present. The ships taken are Renomee and Nereide, both of the largest class, and almost new—the one that is escaped is the Clorinde, of the same class, each had 350 troops exclusive of their complement.

"I am in justice bound to say, that they fought desperately, and their Commanders, poor fellows, deserved a better fate—they defended their ships like men of honor. The loss on our side, I am happy to say, is not very considerable; our little ship being very low in the water, received no damage in her hull, and we have only one man wounded."

BOSTON, Sept. 24.

Spanish Expedition.—Yesterday arrived brig Hamlet, Clark, in 38 days from Algesiras.—Brings no account of any recent fighting, but confirms the report that a Spanish Expedition had gone up the Mediterranean. Transports with 5000 troops under convoy, with 5000 bbls. flour and other provisions and between 20 and 30 pieces of Artillery, left Cadiz the 28th of July, touched at Algesiras, and went through the Straights. Malaga was the reported obj ct of its destination.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.

Our arrivals from Lisbon as late as the 19th of Aug. say, that both armies still occupied their Cantonments, and that nothing had taken place between them except a brush now and then between scouting and foraging parties—they also say that reinforcements were daily arriving at Lisbon from England.

INDIAN WAR.

We have understood from good authority, that Governor Harrison has requested of the Executive of this state, permission for a troop of the Jefferson Cavalry to accompany him on his proposed expedition against the Indians, and that the request was granted. The company is to be made up of volunteers from the two troops in Jefferson county; Capt. Funk will command them. Governor Harrison's first object is to erect some forts upon the upper boundary of our late purchase from the Indians; and eventually to remove the banditti which have been collected upon the Wabash river by the Shawanee prophet. This statement may be relied on. A kind of inofficial statement is afloat, that the Shawanee prophet will be taken into the custody of the whites if he can be caught. The last mail from Vincennes, furnishes us with no papers from that place or beyond it. —Wash. Argus.

Just as our paper was going to press we received the following important intelligence by a gentleman from Lawrenceburg, who informs us that he had the perusal of various letters, which stated that great preparations were making to check the hostile intentions of the Indians, who are bent on open war. Every citizen of Lawrenceburg, a few days past, willingly offered their services in the defence of his country, which we hope will be the same throughout the nation. We are also informed, that Mr. Dill a respectable gentleman in Lawrenceburg, has received a letter from Governor Harrison, stating that 500 Indians were encamped two or three miles from St. Louis.—Cin. Adv.

BOSTON, Sept. 30. 1811.

Late from Portugal.—Our Lisbon dates are brought down to the 20th Aug. Both the French and allied army had made a northern progress. The French under Marmont had proceeded to the Agueda and Coa on the Portuguese frontier near Ciudad Rodrigo; where they had been joined over the troops from the North under Generals Bonet & Dorsenne; which must have augmented their force to perhaps 50,000 men. Lord Wellington at ways keeping in a line between his enemy and Lisbon, had advanced to the vicinity of the Coa, and on the 17th August had his H. Q. at Sabugal, not far from Guarda, where he had perhaps 55,000 men; which he could augment to a short time to 70,000. Soult had gone into Andalusia, to direct operations against Cadiz. Those who contemplate war events will see, that these new positions are similar to those held prior to the battle of Albuhera, or immediately after the expulsion of Massena from Portugal. We may speedily expect more BLOODY NEWS, from that quarter.

Marshal Beresford was near Lisbon organizing and equipping the Portuguese recruits; of which he had sent 8 or 9000 to the army.

Our accounts from Spain are gloomy. The fall of Tarragona had spread dismay in the South; and occasioned the dispersion of Campoverde's army, and the submission of some of the guerrillas. Figueras was expected to follow the fate of Tarragona & Montserrat. The Cortes were very unpopular with the army; as they had not been careful to provide even necessaries for them. Blake had been at Cadiz with his ragged troops; and it was hoped had helped them from the four millions of dollars which had lately arrived from Vera Cruz. He had been flatted, that the Cortes and Regency had received one hundred millions of dollars from the new world; and yet had permitted the defenders of the soil to be naked and famished. There is "some thing rotten in the state of Denmark." In the North the spirit of patriotism was highly animated.

LONDON, July 29.

We are informed by a letter from Deptford, that a quantity of arms and ammunition is shipping from the depot, for a new and particular service, consisting, it is stated, of 12,000 weight of gun powder, in packages of 150lb. each, a correspanding quantity of lead, and 50,000 flints of arms. It is conjectured that Sir Peter Burgh is the destination of this shipment.

The 1st and 4th Dragoon Guards, the 9th Dragoons, part of the 3d, or Buffs, and the 17th Fuzileers, sailed from Plymouth for Portugal on Saturday. Two troops of the 3d, or Kings own Dragoon Guards embark at Portsmouth to day, besides part of the German Legion. The King's own Dragoon Guards have not been out of England for the last 6 years.

The transports for Portugal, which have 4000 troops in detachments, on board, sailed on Saturday morning from Portsmouth, under convoy of the Mercury, capt. Tencock; and Jasper, capt. Hainloke. The latter takes several transports to Cadiz and Gibraltar, and from thence returns to Lisbon. The Duke of Buffer, Earls Clare and Delawne, & Lord William Fitzgerald, for Lisbon, are passengers in the Mercury.

Saturday morning the Lluestina frigate, hon. capt. Gordon, also sailed for the Cape of Good Hope, having under convoy the Baring for Bengal, with Gen. Sir George Nugent, Commander in Chief in India, on board; the Sir William Burrowes and Helen, with stores for the Cape, Isle of France and Madras.

The first division of the 5th Dragoon Guards arrived on Saturday at Portsmouth from Suffex, and after being inspected by General Whethm, were embarked for Portugal.

The 23d Light Dragoons, under the command of the Earl of Portarlington are in daily expectation of receiving orders to embark for Portugal. This fine regiment fustained great loss at the battle of Talavera, and came home thereby after it was recruited.

The four Hussar regiments are expected immediately to be employed. They are complete in men and horses, and in point of discipline, not to be excelled by any in his Majesty's service.

It is said to have been at length arranged, that a brigade of cavalry should troops shall be sent to Portugal. Only depot squadrons of the Blues & of each of the regiments of Horse Guards, will be left at home; & these squadrons will, with a regiment of heavy cavalry, have the London duty.

A convoy from Quebec, with the Amelia-frigate, has arrived at Plymouth.

The Porte is said to have rejected the proposals of Russia, and the armies are in motion on each side. But not much reliance is to be placed on the news from Turkey by way of Vienna. We rather think that the struglice between the two powers has been prolonged with a view to the adjustment of the differences between them.

The Pope has been removed by the order of Bonaparte, from Savona, in the Genoese territory, to Tortona, a fleeing place of Piedmont. Such are events at the period of the meeting of the Ecclesiastical Council at Paris, may give room for various reflections.

July 30.

Of the disfurnance in Dantzic, the following particulars are flated in a private letter:—

"This place (Dantzic) has been thrown into great confution by an alarming riot that occurred among the soldiery a day or two since, in which between 7 and 8 lives were loft.

"Gen. Rappe was giving an entertainment on his birth day to a felect party of the officers of the Garrison, which consists of 25,000 men; and during the absence of their Commanders, many of the men became intoxicated, particularly the Germans. While they were drinking, the Frenchmen propofed as a health, 'The Emperor Napoleon, and success to his soldiers.' The Germans were inclined to drink it in the condition that the Emperors of Germany and Russia were individual, which the French refused. A dispute arose in consequence, swords were drawn, bayonets fixed, balls fired, and the slaughter of the number I have mentioned took place.

"In the midst of this scene the officers arrived, but their interference had little effect with the inebriated soldiery, and the riot was not quelled until several officers were among the sufferers. The result is, that General Rappe has been sent under a strong guard to prison, who will be tried by a Military Commission for disobedience, rebellion and intoxication. It is probable that a terrible example will be made of them.'

Extract of a letter from Gottenburgh, dated July 19.

"I have this moment received a letter from Koningsburgh, the 16th inst. which states, that a serious affray took place at Dantzic, on the birthday of Gen. Rappe, between the Austrian and French troops in that town, in which 83 persons were killed and many wounded. According to all accounts the greatest animosity prevailed between the French and the inhabitants, which was expected to be fatal to further hightened, as soon as the amicable understanding between Russia & England be made known there; for it is now given as a fact, that all differences between the two nations are at an end, and the people of St. Petersburgh no longer use any reserve upon that head."

April 1.

Bonaparte it appears, is making most extraordinary exertions to collect levies, for manning the ships of war he is fitting out in the ports of France & Holland. Letters from the coast of France, dated the 28th ult. state, that great numbers of foreign seamen had recently been conducted to the different depots prepared for their reception. These men are conveyed to their destination under escort of Gendarmerie, and are very strongly guarded. The kind of naval conscription which Bonaparte had established, has not been found sufficiently productive to answer his present demands, and he has issued orders to the Hans Towns to furnish immediately, in proportion to their population, a number of men fitted for the naval service. These orders, we understand, have already been carried into execution in a very rigorous manner at Hamburgh. The French Governor of that city, it is said, caused the gates to be shut during three successive days, and after seizing every man who had been at sea, and a great proportion of those employed in the navigation of the river, sent them off under a strong guard for Holland. It is supposed that these men are destined for the fleet in the Scheldt.

August 3.

It is said that Russia has assembled three lines of troops extending from Riga, on the right, to the river Dwina on the left, composing upwards of 300,000 men.

Provisions, ammunition, and other warlike stores are said to have been got together in great abundance in this quarter; and certainly, the preparations for hostilities were never more active.

A letter from St. Petersburgh (Russ) mentiones the loss by fire, of an immense quantity of tar, tallows, hemp, flax &c. at Archangel.

LONDON, July 18.

Several French Emigrants, who had arrived in England, state that Bonaparte's last levies consist wholly of boys, and that these were no veterans in France, but the Imperial Guards.

Upwards of 800 Dutch Frenchmen have made application to the British government to be taken under its protection, and have solicited to be allowed to settle on some part of the coast of Scotland—and measures are taking to accommodate them.

Surrender of Madagascar.

From Governor Farquhar to Lord Liverpool, dated "Isle of France, April 2, 1811.

"The Eclipse, Capt. Lyon has returned after taking possession of the French port of Tamelavi, in Madagascar 18th of February, and landed detachments from the 22d regt. & Bourbon Isle corps, to form the garrison. The French commandant accepted without opposition, the terms upon which the Isle of France capitulated.—The result of this service had freed these seas from the last French flag, and secured to us an unmolested traffic with the fruitful and abundant island of Madagascar."

We hear from India, that General Sir S. Achmuty embarked at Madras, 12th March, with his expedition against Java.

The Prince Regent of Portugal has conferred on Lord Wellington the title of Lord Vimeira, with a pension of 20,000 cruisadoes (about 11,000 dollars) per annum, which last he has declined to accept. He as also relinquished his pay as Marshal General of Portugal, which amounts to more than 34,000 dollars a year.

A Russian peasant, of the name of Alexei Nikforov died lately in the village of Kamenka, in the province of Ula, at the advanced age of 124. At 101 he lost his wife, aged 90; and two years after married another, by whom he had 2 daughters, whom he lived to see married and mothers.

ISAAC BROCK, PRESIDENT.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the twenty-sixth day of October to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the seventeenth day of Sept. last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty sixth day of October last, at which time at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the second day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada and therein do as may seem necessary: herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved ISSAC BROCK, Esquire, our President administering the Government of our said Province and Major General commanding our Forces within our said Province, at York this nineteenth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven and in the fifty first year of our Reign. I. B.

WM. JARVIS, Secretary.

Proclamation.

ISAAC BROCK, PRESIDENT.

GEORGE the Third, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith:

To all whom it may concern.—Greeting.

WHEREAS FRANCIS GORE, Elquire, Lieutenant Governor of this Province, having solicited, and obtained Our Leave to be absent on his Private Affairs, and the Administration of the Government during his absence, having devolved on ISAAC BROCK, Elquire, Major General Commanding the Forces within the said Province. WE have thought proper by, and with the advice of our Executive Council, to issue this Proclamation, that all Persons having due notice thereof, may Govern themselves accordingly.

IN TESTIMONY whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of the said Province to be hereunto affixed. Witness our trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purposing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Whereas by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisos contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS, Secy.

Sheriff's Office,

York, 18 July 1811.

WHEREAS many persons have obtained Leases of the Crown and Clergy Reserves, as well as Licences of Occupation of Glebe Lands, in the Home District, for which they are in arrears for Rent,

Notice is hereby given, that unless they do make immediate payment of such Arrears of Rent, to the Subscriber, they will be returned as defaulters, and legal steps will be taken to recover the same.

JOHN BEIKIE, Sheriff.

Executive Council Office,
York, 4th April, 1811.

NOTICE is hereby given, that in all Leases for the Crown and Clergy Reserves Petitioned for after this day, the Rent will be increased to Fifteen Shillings for each Lot, for the first seven years—to Thirty Shillings the second seven years, and to Forty five Shillings the third seven years. But that this increase of Rent will not extend to Leases Petitioned for prior to this date. And that Lots already petitioned for, for which Leases shall not be obtained before the 29th of September next ensuing will be declared vacant and open for application.

And it is further notified, that One Pound Twelve Shillings and Six Pence, Currency, in advance, on account of Rent, for each Lease, must be paid to his Majesty's Receiver General by all future Applicants, before they receive the Order in Council for the same.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL,
Clerk of the Executive Council.

Extract of a letter from Cincinnati, dated September 2, 1811.

"We shall probably have some skirmishing with the Indians near the Wabash.—An express reached the garrison at Newport, on the 30th Aug. from Governor Harrison, requesting that Colonel Boyd's regiment should descend the Ohio with all despatch, and that he would meet them at some point, and ascend the Wabash with them.—They embarked the following day. Letters have been received stating that several boats have been plundered by the Indians, near the yellow banks.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 20.

Arrived in town on Sunday evening last, from Michilimackinac, a delegation of Ottawas Indians, under the charge of Doctor La Baron, late of that place. The great Ottawas chief, the Bastard is amongst the number. They are going on to the city of Washington to see the President of the United States. Their particular object, if any, is unknown. They appear much gratified and astonished in viewing the numerous manufactures of this place.

CHAMBERSBURGH, (Penn.) Sept. 24.

Arrived in this borough on Sunday evening last, seven Indians of the Ottoway nation, accompanied by Mr. Ryley, as interpreter.—The principal chief is Kemeneshawgun Black bird and the others are sons of chiefs of that nation; they are on their route to the City of Washington.

It is said, they are a deputation appointed by the Ottoways, Chippewas, and Pottawatamies, relative to the league which the Prophet or Shawnee chief) wished to establish with these nations, against the United States, which it appears they had rejected.

We are informed by a gentleman just returned from Vermont, and the upper part of New Hampshire, that the appearance of the Comet is ascribed, by the Democrats, to British agency.—Bost. Cent.

COMMUNICATION.

A new way of paying Bills.—A young lad who is generally esteemed an idiot and who without other friends or relatives, by means unknown, obtains subsistence, lodged at a public house in Washington, and in the morning having breakfasted, called for his bill, which (no doubt to his surprise) exceeded in amount all the money that he was in possession of.—Finding he could not defray it, he asked his host if he did not want a bar keeper, and was replied to in the affirmative; he then offered himself for that station, declaring at the same time, that no person could possibly suit better, as he had the power of drawing any kinds of liquor, out of one keg: the landlord anxious to be acquainted with so apparently profitable an art, invited him to walk down in his cellar, where he had a cask of wine, and make good his assertion, which if he succeeded, he should "receive constant employ"—the youth complied and boaring a hole in one head of the cask, requested the expectant host to hold his finger thereon, he then bored the other end, which the landlord by stretching his arms to their greatest extremity, was enabled to cover in like manner; the idiot leaving him in this disagreeable situation, said he would "go and get a couple of spouts," but to the astonishment of his longing friend, did not return, who was compelled to bellow lustily, ere any one arrived to relieve him from his uncomfortable posture.

ANECDOTE OF SANTEUIL,

A celebrated Poet of the last Century.

Returning one night to the Abbey of S. Victor, at 11 o'clock, the porter refused to open the door, saying he had positive orders to admit no one at that hour. After much altercation, Santeuil dipt a Louis d'or under the door, and he obtained immediate admittance. As soon as he got in, he pretended he had left a book upon a stone, upon which he had been sitting while he waited for the door opening.—The porter, animated with the poet's generosity, ran to get the book, and Santeuil shut the door upon him. Master Peter, who was half naked, knocked in his return, when Santeuil started the same difficulties as he had done again admitting any one at that time of night, and that he would not disobey the prior.—"Aye, but master," said the porter, "you know I let you in very civilly." "And so will I you as civilly," said Santeuil, "if you please—you know the price—in or out is the word, and I will delay no long er." The porter, finding he was like to sleep in the street, half nacked, and also run the risk of losing his place slipt the piece of gold under the door again, saying, "I thought a poor money would not stay long with me," and purchased his admittance.

LONDON, Aug. 14.

A letter from Capt. Codrington, commanding the Blake, of 74 guns, off Tarragona, after mentioning the assault of that devoted city, gives the following account of the extraordinary panic which struck a part of the garrison which had for many weeks exhibited so many fine specimens of heroism and constancy.—Well may he cry Lord what is man. "A large mass of people," says the captain, "armed with muskets, and some without, therefore ran forward along the road suffering themselves to be fired upon by about 20 French, who continued running beside them at only a few yards distance.—At length they were stopped entirely by a volley of fire from one small party of the enemy, who had stretched themselves at a turn of the road, supported by a second a little higher up, who opened a masked battery of two field pieces. A horrible butchery then ensued; and shortly afterwards the remainder of these poor wretches, amounting to above three thousand, tamely submitted to be led away prisoners by less than as many hundred French.

"All the boats in the squadron and transports were sent to assist those who were swimming or concealed under the rocks near land, notwithstanding a heavy fire of musketry and field pieces which was warmly and successfully returned by the launches and gun boats from 5 to 6000 were then brought off to the shipping many of them badly wounded."

Monthly Commercial Report for August 1811.

The late orders from South America have had a good effect in reviving the manufactures of Birmingham Sheffield and Manchester; and the return of the Jamaica fleet will add to the export of such articles, as considerable are now executing to the West Indies. Russian produce has experienced a considerable fall. Of the six million of Exchequer Bills voted by Parliament to be applied for the relief of trade, only one million and an half has been disposed of by the Commissioners. No advance whatever has been made in the price of American produce. The demand for British manufactured goods for South America increases daily. Large remittances have lately been received from thence in doll rs (fifty tons of which have been received from Lima) cochineal, cotton, hides, &c. and the shipments now making for London and Liverpool for that country are very considerable.

Count Gortorp, King of Sweden, was still at Tonningen on the 18th ult. It was thought he would be sent to Suabia.

About fifty tons of specie, amounting to a million sterling, belonging to the East India Company, were landed at Deal last week from the China fleet.

PARIS, Aug. 12.

We are assured that a Courier arrived from the army of Arragon, has brought intelligence that Montserrat, a fortified monastery, some leagues from Tarragona, has been carried at the point of the bayonet, by the army of Marshal Suchet.

BOSTON, October 2.

From Portugal.—Accounts from Lisbon to the 18th Aug. have been received. Both armies remained in cantonments, and no war events had occurred, excepting trifling affairs of foraging parties. The fall campaign would probably open in September.

Letters from France repeat the reports, that great reinforcements were on the march to Spain:—We believe that, as usual, they are exaggerations, and that only the ordinary reinforcements have been marched thither; & that Lord Wellington will be able to defend Lisbon against any French force that can be maintained in Portugal.

LONDON, August 13.

A rumour is prevalent that the allied army in Portugal has broken up from the positions in which it was cantoned at the date of Lord Wellington's last despatches, and resumed its former station in the vicinity of Almeira.—One of the reasons assigned for this change of position, is, that the enemy had concentrated their forces on the northern frontiers of Portugal, and again threatened an irruption.—Another reason is given in the superior healthiness of the northern provinces of Portugal, and that Lord Wellington has withdrawn his troops from the South of the Tagus, on account of the ill health which prevailed among them.

The Bellipotent of 64 guns, which came home with the escort to the China fleet, brings intelligence that the Dutch, after having destroyed all the fortifications, had evacuated Batavia, and retired to Murraik, a strong position in the Straits of Sunda.

A merchant vessle (the Malvin) laden with hides, tallow and bark, from South America, was boarded by a pilot boat off Plymouth, on Friday afternoon.—She was only 48 days from Buenos Ayres; and if the intelligence she brings be correct, it may be considered of some importance. The master of the vessel stated, that great rejoicings had taken place at Buenos Ayres, in consequence of a victory obtained by the troops of that government over those of the Viceroy of Monte Video.—Elio, himself, is reported to have fled with a few followers. Another account states him to have been assassinated by his own men, nearly two thirds of whom are said to have deserted his cause, and joined the popular party, who are represented as rapidly acquiring strength in every direction.

Aug. 16.

Another Anholt mail arrived on Saturday night, by which we received some further German papers, and letters from Gottenburgh to the 7th inst. The former do not supply us with any intelligence of much interest. An article from Vienna states, that Rudschuck has been appointed as the place of meeting for the Turkish and Russian negociators.—Both parties appear to be equally desirous of an accommodation.

The letters from Gottenburgh furnish nothing new relative to the matters in dispute between Russia & France but this is accounted for by the circumstance, that the last packet from Petersburgh for Stockholm had been taken by one of our cruizers, and the letters sent to Sir James Saumarez.—It was expected, however, that he would forward them without delay to their destination.

Aug. 19.

The private communications by the Anholt mail which arrived on Saturday, are from Koningsburgh to the 30th ult. and from Gottenburgh to the 10th inst. Letters from Koningsburgh state, that 20,000 French troops had suddenly entered Dantzic, with all their ammunition and artillery, giving out that they were ordered to march towards the Rhine.

The following is an extract of one of the Koningsburg letters:

Koningsburg, July 26.

"We hear that an arrangement has been made between the French ambassador and the minister of Alexander, under which the trade with England is to be permitted according to the restrictions hitherto adopted, and with this concession, the alliance between the two emperors is not to be interrupted."

The result of the negociation between France and Russia is mentioned in much the same terms in a letter from Riga.

Our Portsmouth letters on Wednesday, announced the arrival of several transports at Portsmouth from Lisbon under convoy of the North Star, capt. Coe. The transports are ten in number, and had a passage of three weeks. They were in charge of Lieut. Pye; and brought home the skeleton regiments of the 2d battalion 7th fusileers, 2d, 48th, and 7th King's German Legion, which have respectively borne a part in the capture of Oporto, the battles of Talavera, Bufaco, Fuentes D'Onor, and Albuera.—Owing to the losses they have suffered in these and other operations during the campaign, and the usual casualties of the climate they were ordered to deliver up the remainder of their men (about 250 or 300 of each battalion) to their several 1st battalions—the officers and non-commissioned officers only returned home.—The transports also brought 300 wounded officers and men, among the former were Major Grant & Capt. C. Weyms, 7th regt.; Capt. Maxwell, 22d; Capt. Stevens, 3d Buffs; Capt. Gall, 28th; and Capt. Ferns, 66th; besides several subalterns, all severely wounded in the battle of Albuera, and the attack of Badajos. Lord Aylmer, Assistant Arjutant Gen.—Col. Blunden, dragoons; Major Lloyd, 24th; and Capt. Fenwick, guards, were among the passengers.

Francis Sissi Leila Tofs, chamberlain to the Ex Queen of Etruria, and Caipan Chiteslitan an Italian merchant, were, on the 25th ult. adjudged to suffer death, by a court martial at Paris, for having undertaken missions to foreign powers; as were three of their accomplices, viz. Bighi, Maitre d'Hotel to the Queen of Etruria, Minueci, her principal Equerry, and Bosi, Director of the Hospital at Nice. Bonaparte commuted the sentence of the Chamberlain, but the other parties were shot on the 27th ult.

We understand that seven chiefs of the Ottoway tribe of Indians, arrived at Washington on Saturday. Their business of course, is yet unknown; as they reside above Detroit on the American frontiers, it is possible the object of their visit at this time may be of considerable importance. The Ottoways are in strict alliance with the Chippeways, and the two tribes combined are represented as compelling a formidable band of warriors. The chiefs above mentioned are all young men except one, of a good appearance and well apparelled in their fantastic way. They came through Pittsburgh, Fredericktown, &c. and are accompanied by an interpreter.—alex. Gaz.

FROM A LONDON PAPER.

SIR JAMES PULTENY.

We are concerned to state, that this worthy Baronet died on Friday afternoon, in Norfolk, in consequence of the unfortunate accident which he met with a few days ago. Sir James entered the army early in life, and distinguished himself much in the American war, particularly in the memorable defence of St. Kitts. At the commencement of the war of the French Revolution, he served on the continent under the Duke of York, and in the expedition to Holland he had a command under his Royal Highness. Upon the formation of the present administration, he was appointed Secretary at war, which office he resigned last year. By his death the colonelcy of the 18th regiment of foot becomes vacant. It is but justice to the memory of Sir James to add, that he bore his misfortune with the utmost fortitude. His mind appeared to be as calm, and his pulse was as regular, as if no such misfortune had occurred. He converled with his friends, as far as he was permitted, with firmness & composure, and the continuance of favorable symptoms, after so fatal a wound, was attributed chiefly to the serenity of his mind. He made a settlement of his immense property, above 600,000l. a few months before the fatal accident.

A hearse and mourning coach went from Burry, on Sunday, for the purpose of conveying Sir James Pulteney's remains to London, but upon opening his will, it was discovered that he had desired to be interred at Buckenham, in Norfolk, (which feat he hired to Lord Petre) and in consequence the above carriages returned empty. The interest of the immense sum left him by his wife, the Countess of Bath, (50,000l. per annum) now devolves on the four children of Mrs. Markham, by a son of the late Archbishop of York, who was divorced from her husband about six years ago. His Brother Maj. General Murry, succeeds to the Baronetage, and the family estates in Scotland.

TORTOLA, May 16.

On the 8th was executed behind the jail in this town, the Hon. A. W. Hodge, Esq. one of the Members of his Majesty's Council in this island, for the murder of one of his own negroes named Prosper.

The prisoner on his trial pleaded not guilty. The first witness was a free woman of colour, named Patsey Georges. She stated that she was in the habit of attending Mr. Hodge's estate to wash linen; that one day Prosper came to her to borrow six shillings, being the sum that his master required of him, because a mango had fallen from a tree, which (sic) Prosper was set to watch. He told the witness that he must either find the 6s. or to be flogged; that the witness had only 3s. which she gave him, but that did not appease Mr. Hodge; that Prosper was flogged for upwards of an hour, received more than one hundred lashes, and threatened by his master, that if he did not bring the remaining 3s. on the next day the flogging should be repeated; that the next day he was tied to a tree, and flogged for such a length of time, that the thong of the whip doubled, that his head fell back, and that he could bawl no more. That he was carried to the sick house and chained to two other negroes; that he remained in this confinement during five days, at the end of which time his companions broke away and thereby released him; that he was unable to abscond; that he went to the negro house and think himself up; that he was found there dead in a state of putrefaction, some days afterwards; that the crawlers were in his wounds, and not a piece of black flesh was seen on the hinder part of his body where he had been flogged.

Stephen M'Keogh, a white man, who had lived as a manager on Mr. Hodge's estate, deposed that he saw the deceased Prosper after he had been severely flogged; that he could put his finger in his side; he saw him some days before his death in a cruel state; he could not go near him for the blue flies. Mr. Hodge had told the witness, while he was in his employ, that if the work of the estate was not done, he was satisfied it he heard the whip.

The prisoner's Counsel, in their attempt to impeach the veracity of the witness, called evidence as to his general character, which disclosed in flances of still greater barbarity on the part of Mr. Hodge. Among other examples, Patsey Georges swore, that he had occasioned the death of his cook, by pouring boiling water down her throat.

The Jury brought in a verdict of Guilty.—There were six other indictments on similar charges against the prisoner.

To the last moment of his life, Mr. Hodge persisted in his innocence of the crime for which he was about to suffer. He acknowledged that he had been a cruel master; that he had repeatedly flogged his negroes; that they had run away, when by their own neglect and the confequent exposure of their wounds, the death of some of them had possibly enfued.

The evening preceding his execution, he took leave of his three young children, which so overpowered him, as to make it a matter of doubt if he would ever be restored to tranquility. In the morning, however, he was calm, and acquired still greater fortitude by receiving the facrament. He walked with firmness to the place of execution. Thousands of persons witnessed the awful spectacle, some of whom rather indecently expressed exultation. Mr. Hodge was a Gentleman Commoner of Oriel College, Oxford. He came out some years ago to visit his property in Tortola. He was a man of great accomplishments and of excellent manners, and at the time of his death was about 50 years of age. He had been thrice married. Happily neither of his wives lived to see his last disgrace. By his second lady he left a daughter about 15 years of age, now in England; by his last three children, of whom the eldest is about 8 and the youngest 4 years old.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor reached Kingston on the morning of Thursday the 11th instant.—Boats, previously prepared for his conveyance, awaited his arrival at Kingston, and he embarked immediately for Montreal.

On the 14th inst. the following Address from the Magistrates and Inhabitants of the Niagara District, was presented to his Honor Isaac Brock, Esq President, administering the Government of this Province, &c. &c. &c. at Niagara.

WE the Magistrates and Inhabitants of the District of Niagara, beg leave cordially and sincerely to congratulate you on your arrival amongst us, to administer the Government of a Province whose Laws and Constitution are so assimulated and congenial to those of the Mother Country, and to express our regret at the departure of His Excellency Lieutenant Governor Gore, who so purely and ably administered the same during his residence therein; that regret however is diminished, upon the knowledge of your having succeeded to the important duties incident thereto

Under the fostering protection of the British Government in our local situation as Colonists, we enjoy a full measure of every Blessing that can be expected; if internal enemies to such a state of freedom should endeavour to propagate discontent, or delude the ignorant, we rely with confidence on your co operation as His Majesty's Representative, in giving due effect to the laws, if assailed by foreign aggression and our peace endangered, we look up with satisfaction to the benefit of those professional talents for which you are distinguished, in maintaining the Province in due allegiance to our Sovereign; and as His Majesty's subjects, we pledge ourselves to put forth all the means Providence may enable us to make use of to preserve our freedom, and a proud adherence to the Unity of the British Empire.—You personally have our ardent wish for a long enjoyment of health and happiness; and the approbation of your Sovereign, in the exercise of any other dignified station which you may hereafter fill.

(Signed)

THOMAS DICKSON,
Chairman of Quarter Sessions, Niagara District.

Niagara, 14th October, 1811.

To the Magistrates and Inhabitants of the District of Niagara.

Gentlemen,

THE satisfaction you express at my nomination to succeed to the administration of this Province (during the temporary absence of your highly esteemed Lieutenant Governor) is very flattering to my feelings.

I am already sufficiently acquainted with your character to rely with perfect confidence, on your loyal and gallant support upon any emergency that can happen.

(Signed)

ISAAC BROCK, President.

JOHN BEIKIE, Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, York, } 22d October, 1811. }

FOR sale by the Subscriber, the following Lands with the Improvement thereon, viz. Lot No. 25, in the first concession of the Township of York, on the West side of Yonge Street, adjoining the Township of Vaughan and Markham, containing 210 acres, about 100 of which are under good Fence, mostly new; on the premises are a two Story dwelling-House with Wings, which with a small expence, would accommodate a large genteel Family, also a Barn, Stable, Out-Houses and Well.

Lot No. 27 in the Township of Vaughan, on the West side of Yonge Street, one lot from the above, containing 210 acres, about 80 acres of which are well cleared, a comfortable part of which is Meadow. There is a good two Story Farm House and Barn, also a thriving young Orchard, and Nursery fit to transplant on the premises. Both the above Farms are excellent soil, within a few miles of the Town of York, and contiguous to Grist and Saw Mills; and when the contemplated Route for the North West Trade takes place, they will be found to be considerably enhanced. If their Lots should not be sold before the first day of March next, Lot No. 25 will be rented on very favorable terms to an industrious Tenant. Lot No. 27 being at present occupied by an industrious husbandman renting. On both for a quantity of Hay, Wheat, Peas, Oats, &c. which will be disposed of reasonable on the premises.

Lot No. 14 in the 4th Concession of the Township of York, 200 acres, 50 acres of it in the 7th Concession of do. 80 acres, situate on the River Humber, and supposed to contain above two acres, having a large Brick front on the River.

Lots No. 3 and 7, and Lots No 1, 2 and 4, in the 4th concession of the Township of Scarborough, containing 800 acres each; the River Rouge runs through part of them, on which there is an excellent Mill Seat adjacent to Lake Ontario, to which the River can easily be made navigable for boats or Craft.

Lots No 1 and 8 in the 7th, and the West half of Lot No 4 in the 6th concession of the Township of Scott, containing 600 acres; the land is of excellent quality and configuration for settlement in the Township of Uxbridge, in which there is Grist and Saw Mills within two miles.

The foregoing Lands will be sold on advantageous terms to the purchaser; a part of the purchase money will be required upon receiving the Title Deeds, and the remainder, for which a long credit will be given, to be secured by Mortgage on the premises, with Interest. For further particulars apply to the Subscriber, or the Printer hereof.

NEW PROPERTY TAX.

This Act declares, that on all profits arising from funded or landed property, annuities, dividends and shares of annuities payable to any perſon or perſons, bodies politic or corporate, companies, or ſocieties, whether corporate or not corporate, the following ſums are to be paid, which includes the above New and the Old Aſſeſſments, viz.

Perſons whoſe income does not exceed 50l. are exempt, and every income from 50l. is allowed 1s. in every pound from any given ſum to 150l. according to the following table.

51 —	0 3	72 —	3 0
52 —	0 6	80 —	4 10
53 —	0 9	90 —	6 0
54 —	0 12	100 —	7 10
55 —	0 15	110 —	9 0
56 —	0 18	120 —	10 10
57 —	1 1	130 —	12 0
58 —	1 4	140 —	13 10
59 —	1 7	150 —	15 0
60 —	1 10

Perſons who will make oath or affirmation they have not earned 1l. 10s. in one week, or 5l. in one day as daily labourers or mechanics, in the year preceeding the assessment, are exempted.

ON LANDLORDS.

For all lands, tenements, hereditaments, or heritages, there ſhall be charged throughout Great Britain, in reſpect of the property thereof, for every 20s. of the annual value thereof the ſum of 2s. 1d. and the ſaid duty ſhall extend to all manors and meſſuages, to all quarries of ſtone, ſlate, limeſtone, or chalk mines of all ſorts, all iron mills and iron works, all ſalt ſprings and ſalt works, all parks, cheſes, warrens, foreſts, underwoods, and coppices, all waters and canals of every deſcription, all tythes, all rights of markets and fairs, all way-bridges and ferries, &c. the duty to be charged is 2s. out of every 20s. of their annual value.

The annual value is to be computed on an average of 7 year of rack rent, or at the rent which they are worth to be let by the year. The duties to be paid by the occupier or occupiers of the lands for the time being, and the ſums ſo paid are to be deducted out of the firſt payment of the rent. When the lands are liable to any pecuniary incumbrance ariſing from rent charge, annuity, or any other ſource, there is to be a proportional reduction. In the caſe of lands, in which the land tax has not been redeemed, the neceſſary reduction is to take place.—Mortgages in poſſeſſion are to be charged as occupied, and aſſeſſed accordingly.

Where any houſes or lands ſhall be occupied by the owner when the aſſeſſment is made, who ſhall die within the year, the heirs, &c. of ſuch perſon entitled to the rents ſhall be liable to pay all arrears for that year.

ON TENANTS.

On dwelling houſes, lands, tenements and hereditaments, there is to be charged in right of occupation the ſum of 1s. 6d. in each pound of the rent. In Scotland the duty is to be only 1s. The ſame deductions on account of intereſt or annuities are to be allowed, as in caſe of lands.

The ſcite of all colleges, halls, univerſities, hoſpitals, public ſchools, alm's houſes, and all offices, gardens, walks, and grounds for recreation connected with them, are exempted.

No property is to be eſtimated at a leſs value than they were charged in the laſt poor's rate. Where there is no poor's rate or were property is not rated, the Aſſeſſors ſhall, by the beſt information of the average value of five preceding years, make their eſtimate. When the amount of rent depends on the price of grain or corn, the eſtimate is to be formed on the amount payable the preceding year, calculated by the average prices.

The Aſſeſſors are empowered to make their eſtimates on the production of the leaſe by the tenant, according to the rent reſerved.

The aſſeſſors are to ſurvey the lands and property on which they are to form their eſtimates. After the eſtimates are given in, and no objection to them taken by the parties, the Commiſſioners are immediately to order the aſſeſſment. The pariſhes are to be answerable for the Collectors, and where arrears take place, they are to be re-aſſeſſed. Perſons not making a return within the time limited, are liable to a penalty of 50l.. No aſſeſſment or ſurcharge is to be liable to impeachment on the ground that there are miſtakes in the names or deſcriptions. Thoſe conceiving themſelves over rated have the liberty of appeal to the Commiſſioners, and on making this appeal they are to produce a ſchedule, ſpecifying the ſource of their income. When an appeal is made, the occupier, by producing his leaſe, or if there is no leaſe, by proving his annual rent before the Commiſſioners, may have his rate reduced.

ON DIVIDENDS.

All public annuities are included, with the exception of the ſtocks of public companies, otherwiſe charged by the Act. The ſtocks of friendly ſocieties and charitable inſtitutions are exempted.

Guardians, tutors, and truſtees are directed to pay the duty on the property, with the management of which they are entruſted. The annuities, dividends, and ſhares of foreigners are exempted from the payment of this duty. Foreigners are to aſcertain their ſtock by their attornies and agents. Perſons pretending falſely that ſtock is the property of foreigners ſhall, if diſcovered, be liable to a treble duty, and an additional fine of 5 pol.

INCOME from any kind of PROPERTY in Great Britain or elſewhere, or from any Profeſſion, Trade, or Vocation.

On the annual profits from any kind of property whatever, whether ſituated in Great Britain or elſewhere, or from any annuities, allowances, or ſtipends, or from any profeſſion or trade, or vocation, whether the ſame ſhall be carried on in Great Britain or elſewhere, there is to be charged the year by ſum of 2s. on every pound. This refers to his Majeſty's ſubjects reſiding in Great Britain. The ſame regulation applies to non-reſidence, allowances for intereſt and other incumbrances are allowed by the Act.

The duty to be charged ſhall be computed on a fair, and juſt eſtimate of the full amount of the profits within the preceding year, ending on the day when the accounts are balanced. It is to extend to trades of every deſcription, to all bodies corporate, all fellowſhips, companies or ſocieties, and to every adventure or concern carried on in Great Britain or elſewhere.

The duty to be charged on property of uncertain annual value, is to be eſtimated by the produce of the preceding year. An average of 3 years is to be allowed where the circumſtances of the caſe ſeem to require.—Temporary abſentees are to be charged as reſidents. Temporary reſidents are not to be liable to the duty till after a reſidence of ſix months. Any perſon claiming exemption and returning before the 5th of April, are to be liable to the duty. Truſt property in the Court of Chancery is to be liable to a contribution.

Married women trading on their own accounts are to pay the duty, but if living with their huſbands it is to be charged in their names.

The duty on trade is to be charged ſeparately, & partners are to be charged jointly, unleſs they expreſs what are their reſpective ſhares, when they may have a ſeparate aſſeſſment.

No deductions to be allowed for any diſburſements, or expences of maintenance; nor for any rent or value of any dwelling houſe or domeſtic office, except ſuch part as may be uſed for private purpoſe. Perſons carrying on two or more concerns, may set the loſs ſuſtained in one againſt the profits acquired in the other.

The aſſeſſments of poſſeſſions in Ireland are to be received through the medium of factors. Thoſe holding offices in Ireland, or ſerving in Parliament, are to be charged in the ſame way, as ſubjects reſident out of Great Britain. The duties on profits or foreign poſſeſſions to be levied on the remittances.

Perſons to deliver in liſts of the names of lodgers, inmates, and ſervants. Wilfully neglecting to deliver in liſts, are liable to a penalty of any ſum not exceeding 20l.

Form of Journeyman's Affidavit.

I, A. B. do ſwear [or affirm] that I exercile the employment of a laborer in huſbandry, or other work [naming it] or artiſan, handicraftman, or mechanic in the trade of or manufacture in the manufacture of for daily or weekly wages; that I have not received in any one day or week within the year preceding, for my work or labor any ſum exceeding and that within the time above mentioned I have worked for

EAST INDIA NEWS.

Calcutta, May 8.

The Nyſus frigate, capt. Beaver was preparing to ſail from the Iſle of France for the Seychelle Iſlands, whither the was to carry a ſmall detachment of British troops to occupy theſe iſlands—thence ſhe was to proceed to Madras or Bengal.

The ſhip General Wellesley had ſailed the latter end of March, as a cartel for France. She carries off 220 late inhabitants of the Iſle of France, who refuſed to take the oath of allegiance.

The Henry Wellesley was equipping as a cartel, to be diſpatched to Europe, with a further number of diſaffected inhabitants. Lieut. Rich, of the Bengal army, had been appointed Commiſſary, and was to embark for Mocha on board the Henry Wellesley.

His Excellency the Commander in Chief having received from Government the ſubjoined letter, addreſſed to his Excellency Sir Harford Jones, Bart. K. C. his Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary and Miniſter Plenipotentiary at the Court of Taehran, by his Royal Highneſs Abbas Meerza, Prince Royal of Perſia, is pleaſed to publiſh the ſame in G. O. for the information of the Army, and to expreſs his ſatisfaction at the occurrence of a circumſtance, ſo honorable to the memory of a Soldier of the late Troops.

Tranſlation of a letter from his Royal Highneſs Abbas Meerza, Prince Royal of Perſia, to Sir Harford Jones Bart. K. C. his Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary and Miniſter Plenipotentiary at the Court of Taehran.

The humanity and benevolence of our diſpoſition induces us to reward thoſe who have been employed in our ſervice, whether living or dead, in a manner ſuitable to the great and generous. It having pleaſed the Almighty to call from this world Abdul Cawder, a private in the Indian Horſe Artillery, who for ſome time diſplayed zeal and activity in our ſervice, and in the proſecution of which he loſt his life, we therefore as a reward for his ſervices, and taking into our conſideration the alliance ſubſiſting between the States of Perſia and England, now ſend you, his Britannic Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary, the ſum of 300 rupees, which we requeſt your Excellency to tranſmit to his family, with the aſſurance of our favour, hoping this will prove ſome alleviation to their grief. (Signed) ABBAS.

Prince Royal.

The Officer Commanding the Horſe Artillery will immediately aſſemble a committee to aſcertain the neareſt heir of trooper Abdul Cawder, and tranſmit the proceedings to the Adjutant General's office.

NEW YORK, October 10.

By the arrival of the ſhip Orbit, capt. Bool, in 35 days from Liverpool, we have been favored with London papers to the 30th and Liverpool to the 31ſt of Auguſt. We have made ſuch extracts as our limits will permit. The news is of very little importance. Nothing ſatisfactory relative to the coalition in the North. The King was alive on the 29th of Aug. but was not expected to live long. No news from the ſeat of war of a later date than before received.

London, Auguſt 24.

Bonaparte has impoſed a tax of a centime per ſheet (whatever may be the form of the volume) on all publications, the copy right of which belonging to the author or his heirs, has expired.

The ſucceſs of the Ruſſians at Rudſchuck appears to have been inconſiderable; they were obliged to retire haſtily from that town as they ſet it partially on fire; and the Turks who were cloſe in their rear very ſpeedily extinguiſhed the flames. The Grand Vizier's army is three times as numerous as that of Kutuſow, and he has formed the intention of attempting the re-conqueſt of the provinces which remain in the poſſeſſion of Ruſſia; he begins with the invaſion of Wallachia and Beſſarabia.

The Little Belt of 20 guns, capt. Bingham, arrived on Thurſday at Portſmouth, after a paſſage of three weeks, from Halifax, to which place ſhe went to repair the damage ſuſtained in her ſevere action with the Preſident frigate. She has brought an account of the capture of the French frigate Enterprenante, of 32 guns, bound from Breſt for New York with diſpatches, by the Atalante ſloop of war, of 18 guns, Mr. Hickey.

Monitours of the 19th and other Paris papers of the 18th, were received this morning. The Moniteur of the 19th contains the following important declaration made by Bonaparte, in reply to an addreſs from a deputation of the Ionian Iſles:—

"I will never abandon the iſlands which the ſuperiority of the enemy by ſea has placed in their power. In India, in America, in the Mediterranean, every thing that is and has been French ſhall always be ſo. Conquered by the enemy, by the viciſſitudes of war, they ſhall return into the empire by the other events of the war, or by the ſtipulations of peace. I ſhould always conſider it as an eternal blot up on my reign, if I ever ſanctioned the abandonment of a ſingle Frenchman."

Auguſt 26.

We have received a letter from an officer on board the Morrington, dated 2d of March, 1811. It ſtates, that Lord Minto had embarked on board that veſſel, and was to accompany the expedition againſt Java. It was to rendezvous at Prince of Wales's Iſland—25,000 men excluſive of men of war.

Auguſt 28.

We reſume our extracts brought by the German papers, in the Anh. It mail, which arrived yeſterday. We lately ſtated that ſome perſons in official ſtations in Pruſſia had been diſmiſſed, and ſome of them ſent to priſon. It appears from the preſent papers that great diſcontent prevails in the Pruſſian ſtates, and that the perſons alluded to have incurred the diſpleaſure of government by taking an active part in remonſtrating againſt ſome of its recent meaſures. The Ruſſians, it is ſaid, have evacuated the fortreſs of Silliſtria, which has been taken poſſeſſion of by the Turks.

Advices from Piuſhing ſtate, that the French fleet lately moved out, apparently with intent to put to ſea, but that they have returned again into the harbour. It conſiſts of 17 ſail of the line, and a large proportion of frigates. Beſides theſe, there are three ſhips of the line at Goree, and five in the Texel. Theſe united would make a formidable fleet of 25 ſail of the line and it is ſuppoſed that they will endeavour to form a junction as ſoon as the ſeaſon obliges our ſhips to leave their ſtation; an event which is likely ſoon to take place, as they have already experienced a great deal of bad weather upon that coaſt.

The Freya frigate, of 38 guns, capt. Campbell, arrived on Monday night at Portſmouth from Liſbon, accompanied by a tranſport with wounded and invalid ſoldiers from the army. She had a paſſage of 17 days, and of courſe brings no later intelligence from the army than that received by the packet. Generals Sir Brent Spencer and Houſton, and Colonels Inglis and Collins, are come home in the Freya. The two latter are wounded.

Seven hundred French priſoners ſailed on Saturday from Plymouth, on board the Diadem, of 64 guns, for Leith, as the individual priſon they were confined in is in a ſtate of great dilapidation.

By the Anna Maria, direct from the River Plate, letters have been received from Monte Video, which ſtate, that the Buenos Ayres troops were before the gates of that city, and its ſpeedy ſurrender was anticipated.

It is highly gratifying to be enabled to ſtate, that the entire ſhip timber and naval ſtores of every deſcription, as alſo the ordnance, &c. which were in the Royal Arſenal at Carthagena, have been completely removed from thence to the dockyard at Port Mahon—They were accompanied by the ſhipwrights and artificers of every claſs, who had been employed at that place, and who, it is repreſented have been much pleaſed with the alteration. To the enemy, in the event of their obtaining poſſeſſion of Carthagena, the meaſure muſt prove the cauſe of much diſappointment, as theſe ſtores would have been of great advantage for the fitting out privateers to annoy our trade. Our men of war have already experienced ſome benefit in being enabled to receive the repairs they ſtood in need of at Port Mahon, without proceeding either to Malta or Gibraltar, by which they are enabled to reſume their ſtations much ſooner.

Auguſt 29.

Some of the letters from Liſbon mention, that large reinforcements have lately been received by the enemy, and that Maſſena is expected at the head of 50,000 men. We do not believe this ſtatement. The reinforcements which the enemy have lately received, have not been to any very conſiderable amount. Their papers mentioned a ſhort time ago, that ſome diviſions of an army of reſerve had arrived; but they have been ſcarcely ſufficient to enable Gen. Bonnet to make head againſt the Gallician army, which now indeed has acquired ſuch ſtrength as to have forced the enemy to retire from Aſtorga and the country, interpoſed by the Orbigo, between that city and Leon. He will find, at the head of the Britiſh army the ſame general that beat him out of Portugal; and he may experience a ſimilar fate if he is again ambitious of trying his fortune in that country. But we apprehend that Bonaparte has no intention of ſending large reinforcements to Portugal at preſent. He is recalling more of his Generals from Spain, and it is to be remarked, that with the exception of Soult, Souchet, and Victor, all his beſt generals are at Paris or in Germany.

Meanwhile we do not believe that the preſent ſeaſon will be a ſeaſon of perfect tranquility to our troops. The movements of ſome of the diviſions of our army, indicate an immediate attack upon Ciudad Rodrigo.

Upon conſidering the ſubject we apprehend that the French Archbiſhops and Biſhops who have let off for Italy, with ſeveral Cardinals, are not gone there in diſgrace or baniſhment, but are a deputation ſent to the Pope in the name of the Council to invite him to ſanction its proceedings, and, perhaps, to repair to Paris. Amongſt theſe Archbiſhops, we find two who are notoriouſly devoted to Bonaparte, Archbiſhops of Tours and Mechlin. Among theſe Cardinals we ſee the name of Boyaro, who was the principal adviſer of the journey of the Pope to Paris to Crown the ruffian.—The Pope is now at Savona.

Some private letters from Paris have lately ſtated that the affairs of the Council had taken a turn more acceptable to Bonaparte. Some of the obnoxious Biſhops had been removed, (imprisoned.)

Sir Joſeph Yorke returned yeſterday to Spithead with the ſquadron under his command.

The following is a tranſlation of a letter from Paris; the intelligence contained in which, if it be true, poſſeſſes conſiderable intereſt:—

It is by intereſting to you, my friend I muſt inform you that the buſineſs of our Conclave has taken a very favorable turn, that it is ſaid the holy Pope will come here to ſwear allegiance to his ſovereign; that the affairs in Spain are in a very good train. Marſhal Macdonald informs me that he expects to be in poſſeſſion of Figueras by the latter end of this month.—There is perhaps, a cloud riſing from the north, but which will ſoon be diſſipated by the thunder of our cannon."

We ſhall only obſerve upon the above, that if the Pope does really ſwear allegiance to Bonaparte, (which we muſt ſee, however, venture to doubt) it is impoſſible to conceive how the Roman Catholics of countries at war with France can, conſiſtently with the duty they owe their own Sovereign, pay any reſpect to his Holineſs.

From other letters we learn, that three prieſts have been ſent to priſon (their rank or ſtation in the Church is not mentioned) for refuſing to take certain oaths of ſubmiſſion to Bonaparte. They are probably Members of the Synod or Council lately aſſembled at Paris.

A general belief prevailed in the French metropolis, that a war with Ruſſia would take place. This it will be ſeen, is alluded to in the letter above quoted.

It ſeems to be clear, that for ſome time to come, nothing will be attempted by the French againſt our army in Portugal. Marmont and Soult have each retired from the point where they effected their junction, and Marmont has put his army into quarters. The interval, it is ſaid, will be employed in collecting as great a force as poſſible in the neighborhood of Ciudad Rodorigo. But it is not likely that they will be able to unite a force as great as that which was ſo lately arreſted on the Guadjana and even if they could there would be no cauſe for alarm. No greater difficulties will be preſented to Ld. Wellington than thoſe he has already ſubdued, and it is therefore reaſonable to anticipate the ſame ſucceſs. The French can only become more powerful in the proportion of the new troops they ſend acroſs the Pyrenees; and to make up their daily loſſes, and to augment their armies to an amount equal to the expulſion of the Britiſh will require more troops than the preſent ſtate of affairs will permit to be ſent. A greater concentration of their forces from the interior of Spain than what was effected in order to create an army for Soult, when he marched for the relief of Badajoz, & alſo to ſtrengthen Marmont, does not appear practicable.

The French cannot leave the provinces deſtitute of armies. The people are kept down only by their preſence, & their abſence gives ſucceſs to the numerous guerillas by which they are ſurrounded. Soult is gone to take the command of the French army in Murcia. A part of his army has been ſent to reinforce Victor before Cadiz. Beſsieres had detached 2000 men to Zamora, and is alſo moving on Salamanca, in conſequence of Don Juhan Sanchez having threatened that city. Beſsieres gives out that he is advancing with his main body againſt Portugal. Two diviſions of Lord Wellington's army, the 2d and 3d, are left under generals Hill and Picton, on the Caya, near Elvas. The reſt of the army had proceeded to the North. General Spencer has left the army, and on his way to England.

Lord Wellington has been indiſpoſed but we rejoice to ſay, not ſeriouſly.

The following extract of a letter from an officer of his Majeſty's ſhip Princeſs Charlotte, gives an account of a very brilliant affair between a boat of that ſhip and ſome French gun boats:

"His Majeſty's ſhip Princeſs Charlotte, off St. Sebaſtians, Aug. 6th, 1811.

"The Princeſs Charlotte having captured a Spaniſh launch, it was fitted out to cruize upon the coaſt with carronade, ſmall arms, and 30 men; and the command was given to Mr. Salter, Maſter's Mate. Being forced to come to anchor near Bornio, by a gale of wind, he was perceived by the garriſon, and three gun boats were dispatched to take poſſeſſion of him Fortunately Mr. Salter ſoon diſcovered their intent, cut his cables & made towards the enemy.—A brisk firing ſoon commenced on both ſides, when one of the boats was ſeen to ſheer off and ſoon after ſunk, with all her crew, conſiſting of the Captain of a French national ſchooner then lying in Bornio, a Major, ſecond commandant of the garriſon, & 30 men, not one of whom were ſaved. The other two boats continued the action for ſome time, but at laſt made all ſail into port, having had a conſiderable number killed and wounded. Mr. Salter would have either taken or deſtroyed them, but the wind was dead on ſhore, and being cloſe under the batteries, it was impoſſible to purſue them.—There were only two men wounded on board the launch. Each of the boats had thirty picked men on board, and came out for the expreſs purpoſe of taking in Mr. Salter with them."

Part of the Toulon fleet finding the coaſt clear, ventured to peep out in the beginning of this month, but ſoon ſeeing, and out fleet off that place exchanged ſome ſhots with the batteries in the Bay of Hieres.

A morning paper ſays, "It is, we underſtand, the intention of Miniſters that Parliament ſhall aſſemble in October, for a ſhort Seſſion, the chief buſineſs of which will be the removal of ſome reſtrictions ſo unwiſely impoſed upon the preſent exerciſe of the Royal authority."

The Archduke Charles, a brother of the Emperor of Germany, it is ſaid, is to be married to the daughter of the King (late Duke) of Bavaria.

DOVER, Aug. 23.

We are annoyed almoſt every night by the French privateers; laſt night one of them captured an American brig, but being chaſed by one of the ſloops of war on the ſtation, they abandoned her, and the was recaptured and ſent into the Downs; the privateer's men, eight in number, took their boat, and, after being ſome time in her, the was found to leak ſo much that they were obliged to row for the ſhore, and were all taken priſoners, and ſent to the guard houſe.

Plymouth, Aug. 24.

The Diana frigate has detained and ſent in the American brig Brutus, Jo. De Cormeie, maſter, from Baltimore, with 31 paſſengers, bound to Bourdeaux.

NEW YORK.

Mr. T. F. Leeming, who came paſſenger in the ſhip Fly, which arrived here yeſterday, in 46 days from Liſbon confirms the account which we publiſhed on Saturday laſt, given us by Capt. Siſſon of the brig Iſabella, in 38 days from Oporto, that the Engliſh were preparing for an attack on Ciudad Rodrigo. Mr. L. further ſtates, that all the boats in the harbor were out in requiſition to carry military ſtores to Almeida, where Lord Wellington was concentrating his forces. It was believed that a deſperate conflict would attend, and much blood be ſpilled at the intended attack.—Three or four hundred boats had gone up the river with ammunition, &c.—The Portugueſe troops were better diſciplined and on a more reſpectable footing than at any time heretofore.

(To be Continued.)

CADIZ, July 27.

The Commander in chief ad interim of the 2d Army, and Captain General, also ad interim, of the Kingdom of valencia, to the Inhabitants of the same.

Notwithstanding the heroic defence opposed by Tarragona to the French, and the generous and extraordinary efforts of this Kingdom to relieve it, the enemy occupied in the evening of the 28th June last. The sacrifices which we made to prevent tha moment uns event, only served to put it off for a short time; but they are not the less important or meritorious on that account. We must hope, that so laudable an example of disinterestedness and patriotism will be followed by the neighbouring provinces, in case the Enemy intend to retrieve, by plundering and devastating this Kingdom, the enormous losses which he has sustained to make himself master of Tarragona, without finding in it where with to gratify his avarice. To this end, I have issued the requisite orders to all that are included in the military district of the army under my command, and I have no doubt but they will be complied with by the officers at the head of their respective divisions, sensible as they are of the advantages of union, and above all, of the absolute necessity of implicit obedience in military operations. The select Valencian division, under the orders of its gallant Commander, D. Jose Miranda, will shortly join me, with the assistance of the British Squadron which has engaged to bring it back to this Kingdom, or find resources in its valor, or in the skill of its General, to effect its junction with the army; but, if, against my expectations, the former should present difficulties (which I am thoroughly convinced will not originate in the military commanders) and the latter should prove impossible, the Valencians, bearing in mind their former triumphs, ought so far to confide in themselves as not to beg the assistance of others for the defence of their homes. These are men, means and strong holds which will check the progress of an Enemy more elated by our misfortunes than by his dear bought success. But above all, there are loyal Spaniards who prefers death to slavery, and who will sacrifice every thing to be free.

We hourly expect, H. E. the Marquis del palacio appointed, H. H. the Council of Regency, Commander in Chief of this army, with the power of directing the military operations of the Fifth. From this necessary combination, and particularly from his experience and tried military skill, we may confidently expect the salvation of this Kingdom and the humiliation of our enemy; but, until his happy and desirable arrival, I shall solemnly protest, that nothing will be wanting on my part fully to discharge the honorable duties laid upon me, and that I deem it the height of glory to seal with my blood the oath which I took long since of shedding it in defence of my religion, of my country and of my legitimate Sovereign, Ferdinand VII.

H. Q. Murviedro, July 4. 1811.

French "Decree" in Spain.—The Duke of Istria, one of Bonaparte's marshals of the empire, and commander in Chief of the French army in the North of Spain, has lately issued a decree, which, for tyranny and injustice, exceeds all others from the same source.

By this decree, if a son is bravely contending for the rights of his country, his father is made accountable both in his property and person; he son is in the same way made responsible for the father. If an individual absents himself from his township for more than 8 days three of his nearest relations are to be seized and held as hostages.—No inhabitant can pass from one town to another without being provided with a passport.—Whoever is convicted of holding correspondence with the patriots is immediately to suffer DEATH. Every town is to be given up to pillage that does not give the French information of any patriotic soldiers that may be concealed in its neighbourhood; the most culpable inhabitants are to be given up to a military commission, which is certain death; for the second offence the town is to be burnt. Any person giving orders for the ringing of bells or executing the same, on the approach of the French troops is to be SHOT!

PENSACOLA, July 18. Suchet was at Granolieu, a few days ago, collecting as many men as he could from all the garrisons in the province, in order to march against Figueras. Others think that he intends to lay siege to the castle of Cardona. The Catalans, notwithstanding their reverses, will lay down their lives rather than submit to the yoke of the tyrant.

ELVAS, July 30. These armies are in motion, without any one knowing any thing of their destination.

July 31. All we know here is, that the French have withdrawn from Olivenza, and that the English are reported to be there already. It is also said that Lord Wellington has been directed by his government to act in the interior of Spain. Letters from Galicia state, that general Santocildes punishes and rewards the officers & men of his army without distinction, and that he has thus secured the regard of his troops who are very well pleased with him.

July 28. Part of the British troops are crossing the Guadiana at Moura, on their way to Xeres de los Caballeros.

July 27. Marmont's army has commenced its march towards the right bank of the Tagus, and on the 20th its advanced guard entered Plasencia. The neighbouring towns and villages have been ordered to send in a great many carts and mules; a proof, that the Enemy intend to pursue their march. Their artillery has taken the road to Talavera.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.

Later from England.—Capt. Avery of the ship Iris, which arrived at this port last evening, informs, that he had a London paper of the 6th of Sept. but gave it to the commander of the Arethusa frigate. The paper contained no news of importance. The King was alive. But his death was hourly expected.

Later from Cadiz.—The ship Herkimer, Barbour, arrived here yesterday, and brings intelligence that the surrender of Figueras to the French, on the 28th of August, had been officially announced at Cadiz. Want of provisions compelled the garrison to capitulate. No apprehensions were entertained by the inhabitants, of the French making any impression upon Cadiz.

LONDON, August 30.

Extract of a letter from the North of Spain, dated 6 jon, Aug. 21.

"This goes by his Majesty's ship Iris, and leaves here instantly for England. A British officer just arrived here from the coast of Biscay, says 40,000 conscripts entered that country there the pass of Irun, but they are not sufficient, we hope, to alarm us much, as Mormont requires reinforcements.—Soult entered Santander on the 15th inst. but was compelled to leave it again in 24 hours. He has taken and destroyed 650 of the enemy, with the loss of 400 men to himself. He is now at Calmedia, seven leagues this side of Santander, waiting reinforcements.—His division does not exceed 3600 men, or did not when he attacked.—The enemy, 2000 strong, fortified themselves in Torre la Vega, a strong pile ten miles from Santander, to which Porlier's force might have been rendered very near equal from the town as soon as the enemy got reinforced."

A curious report is in circulation, that the Dauphin of France is still alive. A person is said to have lately arrived in this country, who knows his place of refidence, and has communicated this to our government, besides making affidavit to the same effect.

The archbishops and bishops, who lately set out from Paris for Italy, have but been dismissed in disgrace, as stated in some of the papers. They are a deputation from the council sitting in the city to the Pope, inviting him to sanction its proceedings.

The Wasp mail packet, which arrived yesterday from Lisbon, brings letters to the 12th inst. By this arrival we learn, that the lines before Lisbon had been recently inspected, and found as complete as military skill and indefatigable labour could make them. So formidable are they, that it is said to be the deliberate opinion of the most experienced engineers, that no force, however great, sent against them by France, could be successfully waged by least by his assistance, &c. The Kings sons may be appointed to all offices, except those of Judges or Deputies to the Cortes; they cannot leave the kingdom without the consent of the latter.—There will be eight Secretaries of State, two of whom for North and South America; they shall be responsible for the transactions in their respective departments, and the Cortes will determine what appointments they are to receive. A Council of State will be established composed of 40 Members, four of whom to be Grandees of known merit and virtue; four to belong to the Clergy, out of whom two bishops; 12 Americans and the others to be taken from among the deserving of the other professions. The Councillors of State are to be appointed by the King out of a list of candidates proposed by the Cortes. The latter to be convened every year on the 1st of March, and to continue sitting three months unless the session should be prolonged upon the King's demand, or for some very urgent reason, but, in no case, for a longer term than one month. (As to the election of the Deputies to the Cortes, it is to be managed as directed by the constitution [the dispositions relative there to being very much detailed and framed with great judgment and a laudable forefight.) There will be one deputy for every 70,000 souls.—The King will open the Cortes, or, in his name, the President of the Deputation which must be permanent to enforce the execution of the constitutional laws of the Spanish Monarchy.

Corunna, Aug. 23d.

In order that the public may be made acquainted without delay with the happy results of the operations of the 7th Army, of which his Excellency Don Gabriel de Mend zabal is General in Chief, we publish this extraordinary paper containing the information sent to us by a Spaniard, from Santona, written at nine at night on the 16th inst.

"At half past four in the morning of the 14th, from 7 to 800 men, with some cavalry from Poriers's division, arrived at St. Andero; after having marched eight leagues at night, without much secrecy, that, after surprising, and killing the first centinels, they obtained possession of the entrances of the forts of St Francisco, gate of the Remedios, Santa Clara, and Santa Lucia, without any person perceiving them; and the first intimation was given by a discharge, made by the guard of the hospital of San Raphael in the High-st.

"The General with all the officers (the number of whom was much more than double of that belonging to the garrison) was in bed; he had about 300 gen d'arms, and 100 infantry, but owing to the surprise, though the General rushed into the street he could muster only 50 of the gen d'arms, and with them, and a portion of the officers, who had collected, half dressed, on the rampart, he took the principal road, accompanied by individuals employed in the hospitals, intendency, commissariat, &c. and as soon as they arrived at the mole, they threw them selves into the water, in order to take several boats moored in the Cabeza de la Mole, with no person on board, and having manned them with the crews of two vessels, which being straitened could not get away, they put to sea in a disorderly manner, and with the water up to the males, at last, bound to Santona, where 4 or 6 of them with 40 or 5 persons arrived at noon. The Intendant Adamar, was taken near Santa Lucia; none of them carried away any thing more than the clothes that they had on, and some were even without shoes.

There was considerable firing upon those who attempted to escape; but it had entirely ceased at 9 o'clock a all the gates; forty Spanish soldiers collected in the old Square, after having taken from 60 to 80 horses, and 25 or 30 prisoners (principally officers) and marched with the greatest order by the principal road, without doing the least damage to the inhabitants, or even asking them for the least provisions. As yet it is not known whether they proceeded to Camargo or to Ponte de Arce.

In the New Square one French centinel was found killed; on the ascent of Atalania 4 or 6; near Cordoaria de Becedo 9 gend'armes, a colonel and one of the general's horse; all belonging to the party that went with him; it is not known where he is, though every body affects that he was taken prisoner; that one of his aids was killed, and that the other has arrived at Santona.

The latest advices are, that the fort that was constructed in Solia, and had 150 men, was taken yesterday by the Spaniards, and burnt: that the garrison fled to the mountains; and at Camargo there was considerable firing with them; the result is not known. The principal attack was at Torrelavega, which was fortified at various points, and at St. Vicente de Barquera. It is said the Travelers had rendered yesterday, and that at noon this day the Spaniards were to return to St. Andero; though the writer doubts whether it be true, as it would have been known at the hour when he wrote. In St. Andero there is no adjutant with 90 Frenchmen commanding the place; this morning three English frigates and three smaller vessels anchored near the Castle de la Canda, and fired on that of St. Martin, and five gun boats entered the bay, and made discharges upon the fortifications, the city excepted. The whole without doubt to make a diversion. Yesterday, the 15th, at night, the English (number unknown) entered St. Andero by St. Martin's, they formed a junction in the New Square, destroyed some bottlicks and waggons that were there, and embarked again with out any one molesting them.

Castaños is at Tolosa with 40,000 men; it is also said that Longa is at Escudo, &c.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6.

The following ADDRESS, we did not receive until the 4th instant, which prevented its earlier insertion.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada.

THE undersigned Magistrates and Principal Inhabitants of the District of Niagara, take the earliest opportunity after hearing of your intended departure for England, to express their regret at your withdrawing from the Government of this Province, so ably and purely administered during your residence therein. Enjoying as we do under the protection of our Mother Country, an admirable constitution, it is incident to such a state of freedom and local circumstances to foster faction in the querulous and discontented, who always dreading good rule and morality, vent their calumny on those in power. If such there are amongst us in this part of the Colony, we presume their shafts are too impotent and their aim too contemptible to meet your Excellency's observation in the elevated situation you fill. We sincerely wish you and your Lady health, happiness and a pleasant passage home, and in returning to your friends, the enjoyment of every anticipated gratifying sensation.

Not doubting our Gracious Sovereign will duly appreciate your public and private virtues, should these again be called into action in this Colony, your past administration will be a pledge for the future.

Buffalo, Oct. 2.

Two or three families were lately driven on shore in an open boat, a few miles above Fort Erie. They were removing from New England to this Province. Two men and two children were drowned, and all the property on board entirely lost. It was said that about 2000 dollars in bills on the eastern banks, were also lost. The unfortunate widows and children, whose lives were saved, are thus left entirely destitute of the means of support.

DIED,] On Monday morning last, about three o'clock, after a long illness, at Mr. Bennet's tavern, Mr. Daniel Loughlan, butcher, a native of the North of Ireland, and one of the oldest settlers in this town.

ISAAC BROCK, PRESIDENT.

GEORGE THE THIRD, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:—

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province, to the Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on the twenty sixth day of October to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:—

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the seventeenth day of Sept. last, We thought fit by and with the advice of our Executive Council to prorogue our Provincial Parliament until the twenty fifth day of October last, at which time at our town of YORK, you were held and constrained to appear; but WE taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit by and with the advice of our executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents, enjoining you and each of you, that on the second day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament in our town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada and thereinto do as may seem necessary; herein fail not.

IN Testimony whereof, WE have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—Witness our trusty and well beloved ISSAC BROCK Elquire, our President administering the Government of our said Province and Major General commanding our Forces within our said Province, at York this nineteenth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eleven and in the fifty first year of our Reign. PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time, shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders therein may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber so cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. F. G.

By His Excellency's Command,
WM. JARVIS, Sec'y.

Proclamation.

FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the forty fourth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for Granting to his Majesty a certain Sum of Money, for the further Encouragement of the Growth & Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and the Exportation thereof," it is (among other things) enacted, that at any time or times after the passing of the said Act it should and might be Lawful for the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, to issue one or more Proclamations, and therein to name such and so many persons within the Province as to him should seem meet, as commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp, the Growth of this Province. And Where as by an Act passed in the forty eighth year of the Reign of his present Majesty, entitled, "an Act for the further Encouragement of the Growth and Cultivation of Hemp within this Province, and for the Exportation thereof," it is enacted, that the Sum of Sixty-two Pounds and Ten Shilling per Ton should be the rate or price for Good & Merchantable Hemp which might be thereafter Purchased under and by virtue of the hereinbefore recited Act.

Now know all whom it may concern, That I FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the said Province of Upper Canada, Do by virtue of the said hereinbefore first recited Act, and by and with the advice and consent of the Executive Council of this Province, Nominate constitute and appoint, The Hon. James Baby, The Honorable Richard Cartwright, Members of the Legislative Council of this Province, Thomas Talbot of Port Talbot, Esquire, William Allan, of York, Esquire, and Joseph Edwards of Niagara, Esquire, in the said Province respectively, to be Commissioners for the Purchasing of Merchantable Hemp the Growth of this Province, which said Commissioners, or any one or more of them, are and is hereby respectively authorized and empowered to Purchase such Hemp at and after the price or rate and in manner and conformity to the Regulations and Provisions contained in and according to the Statutes in such case made and Provided, and to do and perform and Execute all such other matters and things as they are authorised and required to do in and by the said recited Acts.

GIVEN under my hand and Seal at Arms at York, in the Province of Upper Canada, this Twenty-fourth day of November in the year of our Lord one Thousand Eight hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of his Majesty's Reign. F. G.

By Command of His Excellency,
WM. JARVIS. Secy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.

An Ohio Editor, mentions the receipt of letters from New Orleans, from the contents of which he expects an insurrection will take place among the blacks in Louisiana before long, owing to the tyranny of their masters. The negroes are said to have had several secret meetings.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 1.

Arrived schooner Industry, Carsley, from St. Jago de Cuba, in 17 days,— A Spanish ship had arrived there from Tarragona, with upwards of 200 of the inhabitants of that ill-fated city on board, who had escaped the miseries of the French, when that place fell into their hands— he vessel had a large quantity of plate and other valuables on board, which had been saved by these unfortunate fugitives in their flight. The ship had left Tarragona with so much precipitation, that she was unable to procure a clearance or even the ship's papers.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.

Yesterday arrived ship Magnet, Myrick, 35 days from Lisbon. The day before he sailed, two fleets of transports arrived, one from Ireland, the other from England, with about ten thousand troops, one half of which was cavalry. He also informs, that it was reported at Lisbon, that a battle was fought on the 25th or 26th of August, between the French and combined armies in Portugal—that the action continued 36 hours—that the combined army fell 6000, the French fifteen thousand, and gave up the field to their opponents. This is given as a report at that time in Lisbon; and if true, we shall hear more of it.

BOSTON, October 19.

Hurricanes, tornadoes, storms, fires and freshets, on the ocean and land, in the old and new world, have the present year been more active agents of desolation than in any year within our recollection.

N. B. The accounts of vessels damaged in the September gales at sea, now give a total of 75—viz. 31 ships, (the name of 21 given and 10 report ed as having been seen;) 11 brigs, (names given 2) 12 schooners (9 names given, 3 seen;) 4 British vessels of war, (2 names given Æolus and Tartarus;) —and 17 sail, reported merely as having been seen. It is, however to be observed, that it is probable some of the 32 distressed vessels, reported merely as having been seen at sea, may be part of the vessels whose names or arrivals have been otherwise announced; and the same vessels may have been seen and reported by various arrivals.

HALIFAX, October 9.

The Scepire, transport, arrived on Monday last, in 49 days passage from Portsmouth, with several officers, and part of a company of the Royal Artillery—she sailed from Portsmouth under convoy of the Seine frigate,

The Townsend packet, dismasted in the late gale, arrived yesterday in 38 days passage, from Falmouth, with the mail for August.

His Majesty's ships Africa, Spartan, Æolus, and Tartarus, returned here on Sunday in a dismasted and otherwise damaged state.—The hurricane, experienced here on Monday se'night struck them in lat. 41, 18, long. 65, 28.—The following extract from the log book of an officer of the Spartan, is awfully descriptive of the storm, and the danger to which our brave countrymen were exposed.

Monday, Sept. 30.—At 2 A. M. wind S. E. fresh gales and cloudy, Africa in company—at 3 down top gallant yards, and close reefed the top sails; at 7 struck top gallant masts—at the same time, the Barometer had fallen to 28.6 10, this was attempted to be communicated to the Africa by telegraph, but it came on so thick that we loft sight of her. At 8 it blew very hard from the S. E.—handed the topsails and courles; the sea got up so suddenly that we could not send a man aloft to send the topgallant masts on deck; at 10 A. M. the barometer at 28 2 10, at 10, 30, the wind suddenly died away to nearly a calm, so that the storm staysails were let go from the flying jibstay, the wind gradually shifting round from N. E. to N. W. and at about half past 11 it came on to blow with a fury which it is impossible to describe; the whole of the wind seemed but a continued discharge of heavy artillery, and its effect upon the storm sails (which were quite new, and of the strongest canvas) was the same as if struck by a shot, the instant they felt the wind they shivered to atoms and blew away in very small pieces; and now without a rag of sail set, except a trysail, the ship lay on her side like a log, the sea was one sheet of foam, the ice guns on the main deck were under water, and nothing but the hatchways being battened down in time prevented our receiving much below; the mizin top-sail blew loose, and at the same moment the mizen top mast went over the side, but the wind was so loud that we did not hear it fall; the sea was at this time breaking over the ship to windward, while the took in prodigious quantities to leeward, and the scene on deck was most awful.—For nearly an hour and a half this continued—every moment we expected the masts to be blown over the side, and by the greatest exertions imaginable, a hawser was passed round the lee rigging to enable us to cut away the shrouds whenever the masts might fall.—The men behaved nobly, and the officers set them a good example, but such was the tempest, that the most daring seaman could do little more at first than look at it with astonishment. At 1 P. M. the carpenter reported the main mast to be so badly sprung that he thought it must soon fall—the foremast was nearly in the same state, the ship labouring so much that we considered the loss of the masts as inevitable; at half past 1 the wind abated, but still blew a heavy gale, and we saw the Africa to windward, with her main and mizen top masts gone; at this time the larboard or weather bower anchor broke adrift, and we apprehended that the force of the sea would drive it through the bow so we cut the cable and let it go: at four the gale had moderated, but the sea still ran very high; all hands were employed in securing the masts. At 10, 30, P. M. the main top mast fell over the side, which we were not sorry to see, as it certainly saved the main mast; we were employed all night in clearing the wreck; the next morning the sea still ran high, and to save the mast we were forced to cut the main geers, and let the yard come down;—but we secured it without its doing any injury; we saved all our wreck.—Many of the men distinguished themselves by their intrepidity in volunteering aloft, when it was not justifiable to order them up—but they made the offer, and it was reluctantly accepted."

The schr. Margaret, Cameron, from hence bound to Barbadoes, foundered in the gale of the 30th ult.—The crew were saved by a ship bound to Saint Andrews from England; afterwards received on board H. M. S. Spartan, and arrived here on Sunday.

The govt. schr. Hunter, on her passage from Quebec, has been driven ashore at Canso, but is expected to be got off.

The govt. brig Endeavour, of Newfoundland, the schr. Hibernia, and the Lady Delavel, transport, have been driven on shore at Sydney, Cape Breton.

The brig Mars, Robson, of St. John, N. B. from Kingston, Jam. bound to Quebec, went ashore in the gale near Lincomb harbour, and is totally lost. The mate of the brig and five seamen perished.

Schr. Greyhound, Daffney, of Margaret's Bay, was also driven ashore at Fishermans's harbour, and it is feared will be lost.

Many houses have been blown down at Manchester, and in the harbours contiguous. Great damage has been done at Antichat, Lawrence Kavanagh and Clement Hubert, Esqrs. we understand, have experienced very heavy losses, in the destruction of their flores and fishing establishments.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.

From Mr. Kunick, passenger in the Pallas, we learn, that things at Cadiz, (22d Sept.) remained as per last accounts. Frequent firing on both sides, with little effect. The account of the fall of Figueras was confirmed, as also that of Valencia. A gentleman arrived at Cadiz, who left Lisbon the 9th of Sept. reported he had seen a letter of the 6th, from a Colonel in the British army, who said that the two armies were so near each other, that an engagement must shortly take place.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.

By the arrival of the ship Trident, capt. Foreman 22 days from Greenock, Glasgow and London papers to the 26th of Sept. have been received.—— They contain, however, very little news of importance. The King is living and in the same situation in which he was left at the last accounts.

LONDON, Sept. 20.

Some accounts have been received from Hamburgh, by a gentleman who has arrived from Sweden. He confirms the former account of a disturbance having taken place, and the refuse of a gentleman who had been ordered to be shot for holding a correspondence with England. He also states that every person, without exception or regard to age or circumstances, having any knowledge of, or having ever been employed at sea, was sent to man the Scheldt fleet. Several old Captains and Masters of vessels, who had retired from the service on a scanty pittance, were not excepted.

If we are to give credit to the contents of various letters received by the Anholt mail, which arrived this day, very serious convulsions are on the eve of taking place, on the borders of the Prussian territory. We have seen a letter which states, that at Ruggen Walde, a town in Pomerania, the peasants, no longer able to endure the severity of their privations, had risen en masse, and had put to death every French soldier they could meet with. Their example had been followed by the peasantry throughout Prussian Pomerania, and particularly in the vicinity of Colberg.—It continues to be the opinion of the best informed, that a mutual understanding has taken place between the Russian and Prussian powers, which in the spring of the ensuing year, will threw itself in an open rupture with France.

A report was this day circulated, that Montevideo had united itself to the revolutionists of Buenos Ayres; and that this information had been brought by Capt. Charlton, of the ship John, arrived from thence.—That some degree of probability may be attached to the speedy fall of Monte Video, is not denied; but we have good reason to believe that no such event had taken place at the time that the John sailed.

It is rumoured, that the Earl of Hardwicke will soon succeed the duke of Richmond as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The following intelligence was yesterday received at the Admiralty:—

"Aug. 30. 1811.—Lat. 36. 34. N. long. 8. 9. W. Cape St. Vincent, N. N. W. distant two leagues. at 4 P. M. spoke his Majesty's ship Seaflower, out two days from Lisbon, having a transport under convoy bound to Cadiz; Lieut. Stewart informed me, that Lo. Wellington had attacked and carried Ciudad Rodrigo."

A Lisbon mail is just arrived. The news by the Express Packet is not confirmed.

Dispatches are also arrived from Lo. Wellington, dated the 28th ult. from Fuente Ginaldo.

Our troops had blockaded Ciudad Rodrigo, but there did not appear to be any intention of laying a regular siege to it.

No movement of importance had taken place in the Western Provinces of Spain; but one division of French troops that had been in garrison in the North, and had been relieved by the conscripts lately arrived from France, had advanced to Valladolid and Rio Seco.—Marmont is also understood to have concentrated his troops more than he had done in the first instance.

The extreme heat obliged the armies to remain in their cantonments.

Owing to the influence of the fever in Estremadura, there had been some increase in the number of our sick; but we are happy to say, that the cases were generally slight, and the deaths were very few.

LISBON, Aug. 31.

The 6th division of the army, that is the 11th and 1st battalion, 58th, 2d battalion, 61st, 1st battalion, 24th and 36th regiments of foot, have invested Badajoz. The battering train from Porto has doubtless arrived ere now. A very considerable number of guns have also been sent up from this place —The cavalry have also moved towards head quarters, which are now at Fuente de Ginaldo.

The enemy continues near Coria, where he is in force; he has not as yet made any movement of consequence.

A transport of 403 tons, copper-bottomed, took fire and was complete ly burned this week. About three barrels of powder exploded; it was considered a great fire till last night; when such a conflagration took place as was never before seen.

The weather which was uncommonly hot, set fire to some furze on the other side of the river, 30 miles off; at fix in the evening, it became alarming, and at ten extended over 4 square miles, and consumed twenty-seven houses. We do not know that any lives have been lost.

Valencia de Alcantara, July 23. It appears that some British divisions are in motion, and it is confidently reported, that they are going to cross the Tagus and march into Beyra, Ld. Wellington transferring for the present, his head quarters to Portalegre.

"DEAL, Sept. 22.

"The praam which was at anchor off Ramer this morning, was one of the seven sail of ditto, and 11 sail of brigs & schrs. 27 in the whole, which were sent out to take the Naiad; and so confident were they of success, that they brought a pilot to convey the frigate to Havre de Grace or Cherbourg.—The engagement the first day was at long shots, but the second day they veffels being selected were sent out, three shots were fired from the French batteries, it is said by Bonaparte himself, at his own veffels to make them engage closer, when the French Admiral, seconded by the large praam, came very close; but having lost a number of men, his fire was silenced, and his colours hauled down, the captain of the praam taken, gallantly ran down between the Naiad and the French Admiral, and either by design or accident boarded the frigate, she being filled with soldiers, picked men, under a most gallant fire of musketry, attempted to carry the Naiad by boarding; but being repulsed, she was boarded in her turn, and taken; the French Admiral who had commenced firing again, that gallant shocked and struck, but owing to the praam being lashed fast to the Naiad, she effected his escape. She has twelve long brass (guns 38 pounders,) caft to throw shot further than any other ordnance, and a crew of 320 men, sailors and soldiers; it is a very long low veffel, draws but little water, but is an ugly looking veffel. The French own to have 7 killed and 30 wounded, the Naiad has two killed and fifteen wounded. She had three brigs and one cutter with her. The Caftilian had her first Lieutenant killed, and three men killed and wounded; the loss of the others is not yet ascertained. The French mail have suffered very severely; and the upper works of their Admiral were shot clear away, and several others much damaged. Bonaparte, who was on shore at first in the batteries, was afterwards rowing about in a long new boat, painted green; the firing was the most tremendous which has been heard a long shire for some years past."

LONDON, Aug. 26.

The discussion of the project of the Constitution commenced, on yesterday's sitting, with the preamble and 1st Article, both of which were approved by the Cortes viz.

"In the name of God Almighty, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, Author and Supreme Lawgiver of Society.

"The General and Extraordinary Cortes of the Spanish Nation, thoroughly convinced, after the most careful examination and mature deliberation, that the ancient fundamental laws of this monarchy provided proper measures and precautions be taken to ensure the lawful observance there of, can fully answer the important purpose of promoting the glory prosperity and welfare of the whole nation, decree the following political Constitution for the good government and proper administration of the State.

"Art. 1. The Spanish nation is the reunion of all Spaniards in both hemispheres."

On the 23d the Cortes had decreed the convocation of a National Council.

SALSINA, July 20.

The atrocities committed by the barbarous Suchet and the Bandetti under his orders on their passage through Molins de Roy, have put Lieutenant Colonel Manjo under the necessity of taking the following just determination.

"That a decree of reprizals will be carried into effect in this very moment. The barbarity of the fanguinary Suchet is increasing. He lays waste, assassinates and hangs. And whom? defenceless peasants, home travellers in the military line, who guided by the gallantry and patriotism which characterize them, were by my orders, and under their officer, watching the motions of the enemy who took them prisoners after an honorable conteft. In so base a conduct, I direct the 6 French prisoners whom I took in the field of battle, to be hanged in the environs of our Capital, treacherously occupied by the enemy; and I make it known that all who may happen to fall into my hands, shall be sacrificed to my just indignation so long as they shall not treat my brave soldiers as prisoners of war. The voice of the country and the clamours of the people lay it upon me as a duty to direct myself of the mercy and compassion to which I am naturally disposed until an end be put to the cruelties and atrocities of our perfidious and treacherous enemies. Llobregat, July 12.

(Signed) JOSE MANSO.

ELVAS Aug. 11.

Girard occupies the points of Almendralejo, Llerena, Zefra, Xeres, Santa Marta and the whole territory of Barros, with about 5,000 men, and Marmont, Truxillo (with 4 000,) Blacencia, Coria and Plasar de Sar as Ciudad Rodrigo. Lord Wellington is between the last mentioned town and Almeyda.

August 18.

Between 6 and 7,000 foot and from 1800 to 2000 have assembled in Alcantara where they are to proceed to Caceres and join General Morillo.

Head Quarters, Valencia de Alcantara, Aug. 15.—The English continue in their positions; our small army is increasing; the divisions are commanded by Gen. Morillo, Espana and Downie—Morillo at Caceres, Espana in Alcantara waiting for orders to act in Castile, and Downie between Truxillo and Caceres where must have arrived by this time Count de Penne's cavalry.

SEVILLE, Aug. 17.

We are unacquainted with the state of things on the side of Grenada; but to day we have reason to suspect, that something has occurred favourable to the good cause, as an order has just been received from Soult for reinforcements to be sent from

AYAMONT, Aug. 21.

General Ballesteros lately attacked with a brigade of 1100 foot, a French column of 350 cavalry and 500 infantry in Rio tinto, defeated them after a hard fought action, and captured 9 men, 300 fanegahes of corn and other articles.

The French withdrew from Palencia as soon as they heard that the English had entered Coria; but the cavalry is in pursuit of them.

GIBRALTAR, Aug. 31.

A Diary extraordinary of that town published on the 27th inst. contains a private account from Elche, fair to be entitled to credit, of the action of the 10th, between Soult and Freyre, of which mention was made in our last. In this account it is acknowledged that the right wing of the Spanish army was broken through; but owing to the heroic resistance of the troops which composed it, 3000 in number, the enemy's loss was twice as great as their own; and gen. Freyre having succeeded in withdrawing his routed wing to the left, with an order hitherto unknown in that army, our allies retired without the least dispersion, to a spot called Les Vertientes, 3 or 4 leagues from Grenada. There they stopped and offered battle to Soult who declined it; upon seeing which the Spanish cavalry charged the French horse and killed 300 of them. Another skirmish subsequently took place between Loxa and Las Verrientes, the result of which was, that the French abandoned the field and commenced their retreat with precipitation, pursued in their turn, by the troops which they had so lately been retiring before them.

Soult's force is estimated at between 16 and 20 000 men, and his total loss, to the date of the account (the 15th) at 5000. The Spanish army is 28,000 strong, including 2,500 cavalry, the hordes of which are in very good condition.

Loss of the Schooner Elizabeth City, Capt. Merriam, of Charlefton.

Mr. Joseph D. Broadbrooks, mate of the Schr. Elizabeth City, arrived here on Sunday evening, in the sloop Eliza, from Savannah and has furnished us with the following melancholy particulars of the Loss of that veffel, together with the Captain, three Passengers and three Negro Seamen.—She sailed from Nassau, N. P. bound for this port on the 25th of September, in ballast, but having about 20, 600 dollars in specie on board. On the 29th, experienced a violent gale of wind, in which the Schooner was thrown upon her beam ends, and while in that situation her fore-mast went by the board. The gale continuing with very little intermission, captain M. concluded it most prudent to endeavour to make some port to the Southward, and on the morning of the 2d inst. finding himself off St. Simons' harbour, and it still blowing a gale, he endeavoured to run into that place; but the veffel unfortunately struck upon the North Breaker, and after beating for about three hours, during which time the knocked off her rudder, the worked over, and immediately filled and sunk in 4 fathoms water and about 8 miles from the nearest shore. At this dreadful moment, when inevitable death appeared to await them all, an attempt was made to launch the boat, but the was drawn down in the whirl pool occasioned by the sinking veffel—Mr. B. saw his companions sinking around him, but being a good swimmer, he determined not withstanding the fury of the storm, to attempt to reach the shore; Mrs. Fleming, a lady passenger, in the act of sinking, caught him by the lappel of his jacket, and would probably have carried him to the bottom with her had he not the presence of mind to disengage himself, by tearing off that part of his jacket to which she had fastened herself; he saw her sink before him, her arm extended above the water, with a part of his jacket fast clenced in her hand. After swimming and drifting before the tide and wind for about 12 miles, Mr. B. landed upon the marsh, nearly up to his middle in water, in which situation he remained through the night, when he was fortunately relieved. Two negroes likewife saved themselves by swimming, and reached the shore. The following are the names of those who perished (7 in number) viz. Captain John H. Meriam, (formerly of the house of Teriam & Perry, of this city) master of the veffel; Mrs. Flemming, formerly of Philadelphia, but who had been residing at Nassau, where her husband had lately died; having sold off her effects at that place, she was returning to her friends at Philadelphia; Mr. Uriah Nosh, a native of Philadelphia, but who had resided for a few years past in this city, and was the supercargo of the Elizabeth City; Mr.——Smith, a native of Ireland, but lately a resident of New Orleans had about 7000 dollars in specie with him; and three negro seamen, part of the crew.

From a London Paper.

Manufacturing and making a coat in one day.—

On Tuesday last, the 25th instant, the following experiment was tried at Mr. John Coxeter's manufactory, Greenham Mills, Newbury, Berks. Two sheep were taken to the manufactory by five o'clock in the morning, which were afterwards thorn, the wool spun, wove, milled, dyed, sheared, pressed, made up in a complete coat, and worn by S. J. Tuckmorton, Esq. by a quarter past six in the evening.—A wager of 1000 guineas was depending on the result of this experiment, which was decided two hours and three quarters within the appointed time. The sheep were roasted whole on the same day, for the workmen.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that sundry Persons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Person cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reserves, within our said Province, is thereby guilty of a Misdemeanor, which for the first offence subjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Imprisonment, on which the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a second time, is subjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Imprisonment, or until the penalty and charges shall be paid; and that any Person convicted of the like offence a third time shall be deemed guilty of Felony punishable by Transportation for seven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforesaid, may be preserved, and that such offenders thereto may be brought to punishment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber to cut without Licence shall be seized and sold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Persons therein offending, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law.

In Testimony whereof we have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be thereunto affixed. Witness our Trusty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our said Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. Annual Duty, 1*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*

NEW YORK, November 1.

It appears that Bonaparte has relaxed in his reftrictions on Britifh commerce. Several veffels under French fanction, arrived in England the beginning of Sept. from Oitend with cargoes, and others were expected.

The laft accounts from Conftantinople, intimate, that the Black Sea is to be open to general commerce, and that peace would be fpeedily concluded with Ruffia.

An article from Peterfburgh, of the 17th Aug. fays, "The Counfellor of State, Mr. de Difchkow, Charge des Affaires, and Conful General from Ruffia to America, has been named Minifter Plenipotentiary to the Congrefs of the United States.

It is ftated, that the fecond pregnancy of the Empreis Maria Louifa is vifibly advanced. Maria is fome what jealous of Napoleon, who ftill vifits Jofephine and her daughter.

The Ruffians appear to be acting chiefly on the defenfive in Turkey.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.

On Wednesday night laft, between 11 and 12 o'clock, the town was alarmed with another cry of fire, which took place about 50 yards fouth of that on Saturday, and near Arch and Front ftreets. It feems uncertain whether it began in Mr. Shaw's joiners fhop, or in an adjoining place, in which was kept a night fchool, as both were on fire when firft difcovered. It foon took poffeffion of a large pile of pine fire wood, laid in by a baker, from thefe fources it communicated all around among a number of buildings on the back part of Front and Arch ftreets, and notwithftanding the affiduity of the inhabitants, hofemen, &c. it could not be got under till 1 o'clock. Mr. Shaw loft his work fhop, the fchool room was burnt, a blackfmith's fhop confiderably damaged. Mr. Gaw's chair manufactory, feveral ftables and outhouses, and laft though not leaft the large three ftory brick ftore of Mr. Samuel Allen, containing a large quantity of cotton and coffee, with a variety of other goods, to a confiderable amount were deftroyed. The deftruction of houfes, furniture and goods, muft be little fhort of fifty or fixty thoufand dollars.

We learn that an ingenious fraud has lately been detected by the Charleston Banks, of guilding the new coin of half dollars and quarters, fo as to pafs them for Eagles and half Eagles. They are executed fo well as to elude common obfervation. The deception will at once be difcovered by weighing them.

BOSTON, October 23.

From Portugal.—We have had accounts to nearly the middle of September. The fall campaign had not opened; Lord Wellington's army had advanced to the mountain borders of Spain, and was continually receiving reinforcements from England. The French armies were cantoned in various diftricts. Marmont was among the Eftremadurian mountains; and unlefs powerfully reinforced was not likely foon to be in a condition to attempt the conqueft of Portugal. Soult had gone to the South to aflift Suchet in the works of defolation and murder.

LONDON, Sept. 20.

The German papers furnifh us with fome details of the ftate of the war on the banks of the Danube, where the Turks appear to have retrieved their fortune, and to remain unmolefted maflers of the right bank of the river.

Bonaparte is faid, in an article from Koningfberg, on his way to Petersburgh to have demanded of the King of Pruffia the furrender of Silefia, or of the fortreffes of Colberg and Grandentz. The demand was inftantly and indignantly rejected; his Pruffian Majefty replying, that he would fooner rifk the confequences of a war, unequal as the conteft muft now be, than give up Silefia, or his laft ftrong holds. Couriers were, it is added, immediately fent off to Peterfburgh, and to the Ruffian general on the Polifh frontiers, who had in confequence advanced with his army to co-operate with the Pruffian troops. The King of Pruffia at the fame time conferred the chief command of his army on General Blucher, who diftinguifhed himfelf eminently in the laft war. This General immediately iffued orders to collect the Pruffian army, ftrengthened Colberg and Grandentz, and enabled them to ftand a long fiege, while, with the reft of the troops, he fell back towards the Ruffian army, in order to effect a junction with it more fpeedily.

Several letters are in town from Pruffia, but they me ely refer in obfcure terms to fome important change in the poftion of affairs. A letter, dated the 6th inftant, from Wingo Sound, only fays, that "the reports from Pruffia are various and contradictory."

We are by no means prepared to fay that this intelligence is not true; but the laft French papers certainly did not induce us to expect any rupture between Pruffia and France. And indeed in one of them of the lateft date, there is the following article from Berlin: "The manner in which the government has afforded fuccours to the different parts of the kingdom, has given great fatisfaction, and has been attended with the moft beneficial effects.—This is the more vifible in Silefia, and the Silefian bonds are now at 37 12 per cent." This article is no proof certainly that the intelligence from Koningfberg is unfounded. But we quote it merely to fhew, that the Paris papers were not prepared for any hoftile tone between the French and Pruffian governments. We are moft anxious for the next arrivals from Pruffia; if Bonaparte has indeed made fuch a demand, war in the North is certain. It is reported that Pruffia will decline doing any thing that fhould evince a determination to go to war, till the feafon arrived when our fleet would be under the neceffity of quitting the Baltic. But we have already fupplied Ruffia with various articles, of which the ftood moft in need for warlike operations, fuch as powder, ball, lead, &c. Extract of a letter from Gottenburgh, dated Sept. 6.

"Fourteen French gun boats, lent through the Holftein Canal, are arrived at Roftock, and forty more are expected."

Extract of a letter from Gottenburgh, dated Sept. 7.

"The South is now completely blockaded by two French privateers, who have late captured many Americans and Swedes. Five of the latter were, the other day, retaken from the Frenchmen by their own (the Swede) gun boats, and the prize-maflers and all hands made prifoners of war, and fent to Malmo goal. Twenty gunboats have lately come through the Holftein Canal, to watch the ftraggling that may be coming from Ruffian ports, &c. after the Britifh fleet leave the Baltic. Forty more are expected at Roftock daily, and it is expected nothing will efcape them. They are to rendezvous at Roftock."

Two fhipwrights belonging to the dockyard at Plymouth, being at work on board an old Spanifh fhoop of war, which is fitting for a returning hulk, in cutting away a piece of the ceiling plank, they found a bag of doubloons concealed, to the value of upwards of 500*l.*

On Saturday fortnight, R. M. Rogers, a Welfh feaman, having previoufly prepared a diving bell, with 18 cwt. of metal faftened round its circumference, defcended from the bowfprit of a floop, which was anchored for the purpofe over the wreck of a lighter laden with iron, which fome time fince funk at Paffage, near Cork. The diver defcended three times to afcertain the fituation of the wreck; in his laft attempt he was fecured to the hold of the veffel, and far ceeded in bringing up one bar of iron in his hand. Now that he has difcovered the fituation, he expects in a few days to be able to bring up the entire property, which confifted of about 30 tons of iron. This novel experiment attracted a numerous and highly refpectable aflemblage, among whom were an Admiral and fome Captains of the navy.

Sir Samuel Hood hoifted his flag on Friday at Portfmouth, on board the Owen of Glendour frigate, 36 guns, Captain Hodgfon, and was expected to fail yefterday or this day for Madras to take the command in the Eaft Indies. Admiral Stopford returns to the Cape of Good Hope.

The Curracoa frigate, Capt. Towers, has brought over 2,000 letters from India, and the Cape; and alfo five rare animals, two of which are now defcript, fome fingularly curious, the fore part being headed and horned like an ox, and the hind quarters perfectly of the horfe kind.

The large bands of robbers noticed in the French and German papers, to ftop the communication between the city of Frankfort and the French territories, are faid to be formed in confiderable bodies of determined warriors, like the Spanifh guerillas. They poffefs a large tract of ground in the Black Foreft, and have feized convoys of artillery and ammunition croffing the Rhine, in their march to Poland from France.

THE KING.

BULLETIN.

Windfor Caftle, Sept. 24.

"His Majefty had fome fleep in the night, and is much the fame as he was the day before yefterday.

(Signed)
H. HALFORD,
W. HERBERDEN,
H. WILLIS."

His Majefty's meals are now ferved up with fome regularity and manner, when he was firft afflicted with the malady, and he eats with a very good appetite.

A very brilliant affair has been atchieved by the Thames frigate, and Cephalus floop, having taken from under the batteries, near the coaft of Naples, 11 gun boats, 1 armed feluccas and 14 merchant veffels, without the lofs of a man.

Two Anholt mails arrived this morning, and one from Heligoland. The former have brought nothing but a continuation of the eternal details from Turkey. Nothing new has happened fince the Ruffians croffed the Danube.

The Heligoland mail brings an account that war is fpoken of on the continent, between Ruffia and France, and it is expected the French will attack Pruffia early this winter.

The French troops that were on the coaft, marched into the interior of Germany. The confeription is enforced with great feverity in Germany, and the condition of all ranks of men is deplorable.

Private Correfpondence.

Monday Evening half paft 7.

This day arrived two bags of letters from Anholt, and another from Heligoland. The bags by the former bring letters from St. Petersburgh to the 24 h ult. by which it appears, that the idea of hoftilities between Ruffia and France had again revived with equal confidence; the probability of an immediate rupture between thefe powers, is mentioned in many letters from Stockholm and Gottenburgh, under date of the 29th ult. and from Konigfberg. The letters uniformly ftate, that the diffatisfaction expreffed for many months paft, had at length fhown itfelf in various alarming forms, in fe veral parts of the Ruffian dominions. In Pomerania, the people had evinced a determination to refift the further aggreffions of France, but it was much dreaded that France would take immediate advantage of the hoftility of the people of Ruffia, fo as to render the country more abject if poffible, and more fubmiffive than heretofore.

September 23.

and capture of one of the enemy's large Praams, in the prefence of Bonaparte.

The cauſe of the inceſſant firing on the French coaſt, is now aſcertained to be an engagement between the Naiad, three ſloops of war and a cutter, and ſeven large praams, each as large as a frigate, 11 gun brigs, and other ſmall craft, 27 in all. The following letter gives an account of the engagement; we took the port Admiral in his praam, but he afterwards run off. How ever we took another and brought her away. Bonaparte was in the engagement—he was in a boat with Marſhal Ney.

DOVER, Sept. 22.

The Naiad frigate has juſt anchored abreaſt of the Caſtle, with one of the large Boulogne praams with French colours under the Britiſh which ſhe took after a ſevere action. The praam appears a very long low ſhip, and they ſay has very heavy metal: her foremaſt ſtands very far forward, and her mizzen maſt very far abaft. She appears as long as the frigate, and does not appear to be much damaged in her hulls and rigging.

Bonaparte was preſent it is ſaid. The flotilla 70 ſail in number, was out the firſt day, and Buonaparte enraged to ſee the frigate behave ſo cool and determined, ſent out ſix praams to take the Naiad, and this was the cauſe of the terrible firing that we have heard here. Lord Temple is gone off to the frigate to learn particulars. Bonaparte's being preſent will make this action memorable.

Extract of another letter.

"During the latter part of the engagement the French admiral, and the reſt of his fleet, made towards the harbour of Bologne, which ſo enraged his Imperial Majeſty, that he ordered the guns of the battery to be turned on the invincible flotilla, to drive them to ſea again, but it had no effect; for as the French Commodore ſaid, "theſe maſter ſent them out to fight men, but they found devils."

"Five o'clock A. M.—The Naiad, frigate has juſt arrived, and brought in a French praam of 20 guns. The particulars of the French flotilla of Boulogne has not yet tranſpired, but from the account of ſome of the men, there are ſaid to be 17 of the Naiad's crew wounded, and the firſt Lieut. of the Caſtilian reported to be killed. This accounts for the heavy firing heard off the French coaſt. It is confidently reported that Bonaparte and Admiral De Winter were on board of the veſſels when the attack was commenced; but they prudently got on ſhore."

The advices from Gottenburgh inform us, that the homeward bound fleet, conſiſting of about 200 ſail, were weather bound in the Bay, on account of the ſtrong gales. On the ſubject of a Northern War, the letters ſpeak with as much confidence as any preceding ones; but they all conclude, that if Pruſſia ſhould venture upon hoſtilities with France, ſhe would be totally be feconded by Ruſſia. It was reported, but contradicted, that acts of aggreſſion had commenced on France. The paſſengers by the Anholt packet, from Heligoland had been in the Pruſſian States, are all poſitive that a war will be commenced.

The Moniteur gives Suchet's account of his engagement with the Spaniſh Patriots under the command of Gen. Freire. Gen. Blake's diviſion, it is ſtated, had previouſly joined him. He ſays, that he had taken 6 or 700 priſoners; that 500, deſerters, the greater part French or foreigners, had alſo joined him, who being priſoners of war, had been forced to ſerve. His loſs, he ſays, is 30 men killed and 150 wounded. The Moniteur contains alſo the French account of the action near Aſtorga, between the Spaniſh patriots under Gen. Abadia, and the French under D'Orſeone; in which the Spaniards are ſaid to have loſt 300 killed and wounded, and 300 priſoners.

A letter from Bonaparte to his brother Joſeph, dated July 18th, ſays, he cannot ſend him reinforcements, as it would not be prudent to draw his troops from the North.

Letters from Cadiz ſay, the Spaniſh Cortes have agreed to embody 30,000 men, to be trained by Britiſh officers; but only one third of the officers are to be Engliſh.

Bonaparte was at Compeigne the 9th, and was expected at Antwerp. He has iſſued a ſevere decree againſt Frenchmen naturalized in foreign countries.

Mr. Capel Loffi, a celebrated Engliſh Aſtronomer, has ſtated in a publication that the Comet was ſeen in Anglia the 21ſt Auguſt.

Rear Ad. Hallowell has his flag on board the Tigre, 74. Thirty-five blockading squadron.

The French have twenty-five ſail of the line, and a great number of frigates, and near Breſt, ready for ſome expedition. Three objects are ſuſpected; one a deſcent, another, to get into Cadiz; and a third, to join the Toulon fleet, and make an attack on Sicily. The Admiralty are taking meaſures to defeat all theſe projects ſhould they be attempted. An extra number of ſhips are ordered on the Lough-willy ſtation;—Off the Scheldt Admiral Young has ſeventeen ſail of the line; and is to be joined immediately by Ad. Durham with a ſquadron of ſeven ſail of the line more, beſides frigates. Vice Admiral Strachan, and Rear Ad. Ferrier have alſo flags in this fleet.

Two frigates, the Semiramis and Diana, lately went into the Cayenne.—The French Commodore miſtaking them for French veſſels went on board them for freſh proviſions, and was made priſoner of. They captured a cutvette, and retired after remaining 12 hours.

In May laſt, ſome robbers broke open the tomb of the mother of the Sultan Selim, at Conſtantinople, and robbed it of gold cloths and precious ſtones to the value of one hundred and fifty thouſand piaſtres. Suſpicion alighting on ſome Sclavonian ſlaves they were taken up and put to torture; two of them refuſing to make confeſſion, were impaled in the ſtreets of Conſtantinople, and remained alive, but in dreadful agony, twenty-two hours.

Of the lateſt diſcoveries of Ruſſian Travellers, that of an Iſland in the Icy Ocean, by Syrawitſkoi, a Merchant, deſerves particular notice.—Hedemſtrom, the Ruſſian Naturaliſt, who has recently examined the Iſland, which has received the appellation of New Siberia, found three birds' claws, 1 yard in length;—and the roving Jakute related that they had ſometimes found feathers, the barrel of which was capable of admitting a man's clenched fiſt.——Thus theſe polar regions, which have yielded thoſe gigantic Bones of the claſs of mammalia, known by the name of mamoth, have likewiſe preſerved ſimilar relics in the department of ornithology whoſe authenticated exiſtence may, perhaps, at ſome future period, afford a key to the fables of the Griffin, and the great bird on the mountain of Caf.

The following is an extract of a letter from Liverpool:—"There is at preſent here a ſingular phenomenon. The American brig Traveller, is juſt arrived from Sierra Leone, and is owned and commanded by Paul Cuffee, the ſon of Cuffe a Negro ſlave imported into America. Her mate and all her crew are negroes, or the immediate deſcendants of negroes;—Capt. Cuffee is about 50 years of age; has a fine negro (negreſs) and ſix children, living at New Bedford, (Maſs.) of which ſtate he is a citizen.

When Capt. Cuffee's father (who had acquired his freedom) died, he left a family almoſt unprovided for, but the ſon laboured hard to ſupport his mother, his brethren, and his ſiſters. He began trade in a ſmall boat, and, after a while, almoſt by himſelf, built a larger veſſel, in which he worked ſome years with aſſiduity. Having providentially met a perſon capable and willing to impart ſome knowledge of navigation, his ideas were enlarged, and with his proſpects he enlarged his deſires and ſucceed. Happily for him, and his family, his mind received religious inſtruction from the ſociety of Friends (Quakers,) and he attached himſelf to that reſpectable body, adopted their dreſs and language, and is now a very reſpectable member of that community.

When Clarkſon's Hiſtory of the Abolition of the Slave Trade, fell in o his hands, it awakened all the powers of his mind to a conſideration of his origin, and the duties he owed to his people: and coupled with the ſenſe of duty which his religious information had given him, he longed to impart to the negro race the bleſſings which Britiſh Chriſtian benevolence had been roused to confer on Africa.—This became the ruling deſire of his mind.—The Directors of the Britiſh African Inſtitution, having heard of this ſingular event, and that Capt. Cuffee (his negro, and therefore his favourite name) was about to ſail with his negro crew (no longer a term of reproach,) applied to this government for a licence for his coming to England, hoping much from his co-operation, and inſtumentality.

The zeal Capt. Cuffee felt for the African cauſe, determined his noble mind to forego all proſpects of mercantile profit, and even the natural deſire to return to his wife and children, fire to return to his wife and children, and he came directly to England, bringing with him a native of Sierra Leone, whole father, a negro, is of conſiderable property, and in a large way of buſineſs. The Capt. brought him from Sierra Leone, at the expreſs with of the Colonits, to learn navigation; and it is but juſtice to the diligence and intellect of this young man to ſay, that in a ſhort voyage to England, he has learned ſurprifingly faſt, and ſhows that intellect is by no means controlled by the color of the ſkin, and that the Blacks are worthy of being the brethren of the fortunately more cultivated whites.

Capt. Cuffee, is of a very pleaſing countenance, and phyſiognomy truly intereſting; he is both tall and ſtout, ſpeaks Engliſh well, dreſſes in the Quaker ſtyle in a drab coloured ſuit, and wears a large flapped white hat.

It is ſuppoſed that the Traveller, will return to Sierra Leone.

SUPPLEMENT to the YORK GAZETTE,

Of WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1811, No. XIX.

President's Message.

WASHINGTON CITY,
TUESDAY Nov. 5, 1811.

The President of the United States this Day communicated, by Mr. EDWARD COLES, his private Secretary, the following Message to Congress.

Fellow Citizens of the Senate,
And of the House of Representatives.

In calling you together sooner than a separation from your homes would otherwise have been required, I yielded to considerations drawn from the posture of our Foreign affairs; and in fixing the present, for the time of your meeting, regard was had to the probability of further developements of the Policy of the belligerent Powers towards this Country, which might the more unite the National Councils, in the measures to be pursued.

At the close of the last Session of Congress, it was hoped that the successive confirmations of the extinction of the French Decrees, so far as they violated our Neutral Commerce, would have induced the Government of Great Britain to repeal its Orders in Council, and thereby authorise a removal of the existing obstructions to her Commerce with the United States.

Instead of this reasonable step towards satisfaction and friendship between the two Nations, the Orders were, at a moment when least to have been expected, put into a more rigorous execution; and it was communicated through the British Envoy just arrived, that whilst the revocation of the Edicts of France, as officially made known to the British Government, was denied to have taken place, it was an indispensable condition of the British Orders, that Commerce should be restored to a footing, that would admit the productions and manufactures of Great Britain, when owned by neutrals, into markets shut against them by her enemy; the United States being given to understand that, in the mean time, a continuance of their Non-Importation Act would lead to measures of retaliation.

At a later date, it has indeed appeared, that a communication to the British Government, of fresh evidence of the repeal of the French Decrees against our neutral Trade, was followed by an intimation that it had been transmitted to the British Plenipotentiary here, in order that it might receive full consideration in the depending discussions. This communication appears not to have been received, but the transmission of it hither, instead of founding on it an actual repeal of the Orders, or assurances that the repeal would ensue, will not permit us to rely on any effective change in the British Cabinet. To be ready to meet with cordiality satisfactory proofs of such a change, and to proceed, in the mean time, in adjusting our measures to the views which have been disclosed through the Minister, will best consult our Duty.

In the unfriendly spirit of those disclosures, indemnity and redress for other wrongs have continued to be withheld, and our coast and the mouths of our harbours have again witnessed scenes, not less derogatory to the dearest of our National rights, than vexatious to the regular course of our Trade.

Among the occurrences produced by the conduct of British ships of War, hovering on our coasts was an encounter between one of them and the American frigate commanded by Capt. Rogers, rendered unavoidable on the part of the latter, by a fire commenced without cause by the former; whose commander is therefore alone chargeable with the blood unfortunately shed in maintaining the honour of the American flag. The proceedings of a Court of enquiry, requested by Captain Rogers, are communicated; together with the correspondence relating to the occurrence, between the Secretary of State, and his Britannic Majesty's Envoy. To these are added, the several correspondence which have passed on the subject of the British Orders in Council, and to both, the correspondence relating to the Floridas, in which Congress will be made acquainted with the interposition which the Government of Great Britain has thought proper to make against the proceedings of the United States.

The justness and fairness which have been evinced on the part of the United States towards France both before and since the revocation of her Decrees, authorised an expectation that her Government would have followed up that measure by all such others as were due to our reasonable claims, as well as dictated by its amicable professions. No proof, however, is yet given of an intention to repair the other wrongs done to the United States: and particularly to restore the great amount of American property seized and condemned under edicts, which, though not affecting our neutral relations, and, therefore, not entering into questions between the United States and other belligerents, were nevertheless founded on such unjust principles, that the reparation ought to have been prompt and ample.

In addition to this, and other demands of strict right on that Nation, the United States have much reason to be dissatisfied with the rigorous and unexpected restrictions, to which their Trade with the French dominions has been subjected; and which if not discontinued, will require at least correspondent restrictions on importations from France into the United States.

On all these subjects our Minister Plenipotentiary, lately sent to Paris, has carried with him the necessary instructions; the result of which will be communicated to you, and by ascertaining the ulterior policy of the French Government towards the United States, will enable you to adapt to it that of the United States towards France.

Our other Foreign relations remain without unfavorable changes. With Russia they are on the best footing of friendship. The ports of Sweden have afforded proofs of friendly dispositions towards our commerce, in the Councils of that Nation also. And the information from our special Minister to Denmark, shews that the mission had been attended with valuable effect, to our Citizens, whose property had been so extensively violated, and endangered by cruisers under the Danish flag.

Under the ominous indications which commanded attention, it became a duty to exert the means committed to the Executive Department, in providing for the general security.—The works of defence on our maritime frontier have accordingly been prosecuted, with an activity leaving little to be added for the completion of the most important ones; and, as particularly suited for co-operation in emergencies, a portion of the Gun Boats have, in particular harbours, been ordered into use. The ships of war before in Commission, with the addition of a frigate, have been chiefly employed as a cruising guard to the rights of our coast. And such a disposition has been made of our land Forces as was thought to promise the services most appropriate and important. In this disposition is included a Force, consisting of Regulars and Militia, embodied in the Indian territory, and marched towards our North Western frontier. This measure was made requisite by several murders and depredations committed by Indians, but more especially by the menacing preparations and aspect of a combination of them on the Wabash, under the influence and direction of a fanatic of the Shawanese Tribe. With these exceptions, the Indian Tribes retain their peaceable dispositions towards us, and their usual pursuits.

I must now add, that the period is arrived which claims from the Legislative Guardians of the National rights a system of more ample provisions for maintaining them. Notwithstanding the scrupulous justice, the protracted moderation, and the multiplied efforts on the part of the United States, to substitute, for the accumulating dangers to the peace of the two countries, all the mutual advantages of re-established friendship & confidence; we have seen that the British Cabinet perseveres not only in withholding a remedy for other wrongs so long and so loudly calling for it, but in the execution brought home to the threshold of our territory, of measures which, under existing circumstances, have the character, as well as the effect of War on our lawful commerce.

With this evidence of hostile inflexibility, in trampling on rights which no independent Nation can relinquish; Congress will feel the duty of putting the United States into an armor, and an attitude demanded by the crisis, and corresponding with the National spirit and expectations.

I recommend accordingly, that adequate provisions be made for filling the rank and prolonging the enlistments of the Regular Troops, for an auxiliary force, to be engaged for a more limited term, for the acceptance of Volunteer Corps, whose patriotic ardor may court a participation in urgent services; for detachments as they may be wanted, of other portions of the Militia; and for such a preparation of the great body as will proportion its usefulness to its intrinsic capacities. Nor can the occasion fail to remind you of the importance of those Military Seminaries, which, in every event, will form a valuable and frugal part of our military establishment.

The manufacture of cannon and small arms has proceeded with due success, and the stock and resources of all the necessary munition are adequate to emergencies; it will not be inexpedient however for Congress to authorise an enlargement of them.

Your attention will of course be drawn to such provisions, on the subject of our naval force, as may be required for the services to which it may be best adapted. I submit to Congress the seasonableness, also of an authority to augment the stock of such materials as are impermeable in their nature, or may not at once be attainable.

In contemplating the scenes which distinguish this momentous epoch, and estimating their claims to our attention, it is impossible to overlook those developing themselves among the great communities which occupy the southern portion of our own hemisphere, and extend into our neighborhood. An enlarged philanthropy, and an enlightened forecast, concur in imposing on our national councils an obligation to take a deep interest in their destinies, to cherish reciprocal sentiments of good will, to regard the progress of the events, and not to be unprepared for whatever order of things may be ultimately established.

Under another aspect of our situation, the earnest attention of Congress will be due to the expediency of further guards against evasions and infractions of our commercial laws. The practice of smuggling, which is odious every where, and particularly criminal in free governments, where the laws being made by all, for the good of all, a fraud is committed on every individual as well as on the state, attains its utmost guilt, when it blends, with a pursuit of ignominious gains, a treacherous subserviency, in the transgressors, to a foreign policy adverse to that of their own Country. It is then that the virtuous indignation of the public should be enabled to manifeſt itſelf through the regular animadverſions of the moſt competent laws.

To ſecure greater reſpect to our own mercantile flag, and to the honeſt intereſt which it covers, it is expedient alſo, that it be made puniſhable in our citizens, to accept licences from foreign governments, for a trade unlawfully interdicted, by them to other American citizens, or to trade under falſe colours or papers of any ſort.

A prohibition is equally called for, againſt the acceptance, by our citizens of ſpecial licences, to be uſed in a trade with the United States; and againſt the admiſſion into particular ports of the United States of veſſels from foreign countries, authoriſed to trade, with particular ports only.

Although other ſubjects will preſs more immediately on your deliberations, a portion of them cannot but be well beſtowed on the juſt and ſound policy of ſecuring to our manufactures the ſucceſs they have attained and are ſtill attaining, in ſome degree, under the impulſe of cauſes not permanent, and to our navigation, the fair extent of which is at preſent abridged by the unequal regulations of foreign governments.

Beſides the reaſonableneſs of ſaving our manufactures from ſacrifices which a change of circumſtances might bring on them, the national intereſt requires, that with reſpect to ſuch articles at leaſt, as belong to our defence and our primary wants, we ſhould not be left in unneceſſary dependance on external ſupplies. And whilſt foreign governments adhere to the exiſting diſcriminations in their ports againſt our navigation and an equality or leſſer diſcrimination is enjoyed by their navigation in our ports, the effect cannot be miſtaken, becauſe it has been ſeriouſly felt by our ſhipping intereſt, and in proportion as this takes place, the advantages of an independant conveyance of our products to foreign markets, and of a growing body of mariners, trained by their occupations for the ſervice of their country in times of danger, muſt be diminiſhed.

The receipts into the Treaſury during the year ending on the thirtieth day of September laſt, have exceeded thirteen millions and a half of dollars, and have enabled us to defray the current expences including the intereſt on the public debt, and to reimburſe more than five millions of dollars of the principal, without recurring to the loan authorized by the act of the laſt ſeſſion. The temporary loan obtained in the latter end of the year one thouſand eight hundred and ten, has alſo been reimburſed and is not included in the amount.

The decreaſe of revenue, ariſing from the ſituation of our commerce and the extraordinary expences which have and may be come neceſſary muſt be taken into view, in making commenſurate proviſions for the enſuing year. And I recommend to your conſideration the propriety of enſuring a ſufficiency of annual revenue, at leaſt, to defray the ordinary expences of government, and to pay the intereſt on the public debt, including that on new loans which may be authoriſed.

I cannot cloſe this communication without expreſſing my deep ſenſe of the criſis in which you are aſſembled, my confidence in a wiſe and honorable reſult to your deliberations, and aſſurances of the faithful zeal with which my co-operating duties will be diſcharged, invoking at the ſame time, the bleſſing of Heaven on our beloved Country, and on all the means that may be employed in vindicating its rights and advancing its welfare.

PROCLAMATION

FRANCIS GORE, Lieut. Governor.

George the Third by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith.

WHEREAS Information has been received, that ſundry Perſons have entered our Woods within our Province of Upper Canada, with intent, in defiance of the Law, to cut down Timber Trees, not being Specially Licenced thereunto by authority derived under our Privy Seal, or that of our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province. It is hereby Notified, that any Perſon cutting Timber on our Crown Lands ungranted, or on our Crown and Clergy Reſerves, within our ſaid Province, is thereby guilty of a Miſdemeanor, which for the firſt offiance ſubjects him to the forfeiture of Twenty Pounds of Lawful money of Great Britain, and on non-payment thereof, to Twelve Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a ſecond time, is ſubjected to the forfeiture of Thirty Pounds of like Lawful money, and on non-payment thereof, to eighteen Months Impriſonment, or until the penalty and charges ſhall be paid; and that any Perſon convicted of the like offence a third time, ſhall be deemed guilty of Felony puniſhable by Tranſportation for ſeven years:—To the intent therefore, that our Woods in our Province aforeſaid, may be preſerved, and that ſuch offenders thereto may be brought to puniſhment; We have thought fit by the advice of our Executive Council hereby to declare, that all Timber ſo cut without Licence ſhall be ſeized and ſold for the benefit of our Crown and Revenue, and all Perſons therein offending, ſhall be proſecuted with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

In Teſtimony whereof we have cauſed theſe our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our ſaid Province to be thereunto affixed. Witneſs our Truſty and well beloved FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Our Lieutenant Governor of our ſaid Province of Upper Canada, this 29th day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thouſand Eight Hundred and nine, and in the Fiftieth year of our Reign. Lateſt Intelligence.

LONDON, Sept. 24.

The Moniteur having lately favored us with details of the French naval manœuvres, the Gazette of laſt night has returned the compliment, and given the enemy an account of ſome Britiſh naval manœuvres. There is to be ſure ſome trifling difference in the reſult of theſe reſpective manœuvres, as Bonaparte himſelf can certify, who was an eye witneſs of one of them. Captain Carteret's account is a very clear and manly account, and we like it the better for its plain plunt manner of mentioning Bonaparte. W underſtand that the latter was very warm in his panegyric upon his flotilla for the brilliancy of their laſt day's performance. It conſiſted, as our readers will ſee, in firing broadſides from 9 praams, not one of which dared to cloſe with our frigate, each praam having twelve 24 pounders and one 100 men, in all 84 twenty four pounders, and 804 men, againſt 38 twenty four pounders, and about 320 men! Nor was this all the odds againſt us. Theſe 84 guns and 840 men were afterwards aſſiſted by 11 more veſſels, having 42 more twenty-four pounders. After having cannonaded us from their 126 guns, we were enabled to tack, and make ſail towards the flotilla, which then manfully ran back again under the batteries.

However, this day's wonderful ſucceſs ſo animated Bonaparte, that he ſent out his flotilla a ſecond time. The reſult is known.—The poor flotilla hurried into port when we were within piſtol ſhot, in the greateſt confuſion, and has not ventured out ſince.

The Gazette of laſt night alſo contains this official account of that neat affair in the Mediterraneo, where one of our frigates and a ſloop took 26 ſail in a Neapolitan port, under cover of a round tower, which we ſtormed and took, while the adjacent hills were lined with musqueteers and peaſantry.

To the Gazette account of captures from the enemy, we have to make the following pretty little addition :—

"PLYMOUTH, Sept. 23.

"Came in a French chaſſe marrees, taken by his Majeſty's ſhip Scepter; a French brig taken by his M jeſty's ſhip Abercrombie; —a French ſloop taken by his Majeſty's ſhip Pompee; a French galliot and a French ſloop taken by his Majeſty's ſhip Seamarais."

In proportion as our army takes up poſitions between the Coa and the Aguedas, Marmont having ſent moſt of his heavy baggage into the interior, and his ſick from Salamanca, defiles towards Old Caſtile. Meanwhile the army of the North, marching towards Valladolid, ſeems to have an intention of proceeding in the direction of Ciudad Rodrigo. We dare ſay the movements of this army, and of Marmont, are with the view of effecting a junction.—Private letters ſpeak in confident terms of the immediate renewal of active operations.—Soult, it is ſaid is returning to the Guadiana with a great part of his army.

A Mail from Anbolt arrived this morning. It has not brought any news of much importance. Bonaparte is to attend his tour to Rotterdam.

"ALTONA, Sept. 8.

"Count Gottorp arrived in this town this morning, and alighted at Frank's Hotel."—The iſle du Nord Sept. 1.

We received this morning Bombay Papers to the 9th April. They ſtate, that the capture of the Mauritus has produced great advantage in trade and navigation.

There is an embargo on the other ſide of the water in conſequence of Bonaparte being on the coaſt.

French troops have certainly entered Spain lately; we believe to the amount of 20,000 men.

Letters yeſterday reached us from Buenos Ayres, to the 9th of July; they contain intelligence of an unexpected nature. It appears that the Vice Roy Elio has actually fitted out a naval expedition for the purpoſe of attacking the town of Buenos Ayres. Some letters announce that it has ſailed; whilſt others ſay, was on the point of ſailing. The Junta of Buenos Ayres were informed of this alarming circumſtance by an officer of Roudou, upon which proclamations were iſſued ordering all Europeans from the place, without delay. The utmoſt boſtle and confuſion was excited. The Junta had ordered an embargo on all their launches and ſmall craft, to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy. Governor Elio, it is ſtated, him ſelf accompanies the expedition.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2.

From Lisbon.—The brig Hiram, Barker, arrived this morning from Lisbon, which ſhe left on the 14th of September. The Editor of the Federal Gazette has been politely favored with Lisbon Gazettes of the 13 h, from which translations follow.—The official accounts from Elvas to the 6 and from Lord Wellington's Head Quarters to the 4th of September No important battle. The Spaniards claim advantages over Soult in the South, while Lord Wellington has accounts that Marmont, (with late Massena's army) was about moving in a Southerly direction from Salamanca &c. Flour at Lisbon, 14 to 14 25 dollars.—Large quantity of flour on hand. Troops arriving from England.
